The Canton Connection

DON'T FORGET to vote in the Plymouth-Canton School Board election Monday, June 13. If you'll be out of town, you may pick up an absentee ballot at the board offices at 454 S. Harvey in Plymouth 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, June 11.

TIGER FANS, the Knights of Columbus' Canton chapter will take you out to the ballgame at 7:30 p.m. Friday to see the Bengals take on the Cleveland Indians. Transportation to and from Tiger Stadium will be provided on a bus departing from St. Thomas A'Becket Church. Pizza will be served after the game. For information and reservations, call Tim Orbacki at 981-6241.

CANTON Historical Commission's Lillian Hauk, Ruth Wiles and Tivadar Balogh recently were reappointed by the Canton Township Board to three-year terms as commissioners.

The Canton Historical Society is looking for volunteers to help staff fund-raisers. Proceeds are used to preserve Canton's history and share it with present and future generations. Next on the society's calendar is the Canton Country Festival, where a concession booth will be in operation Tuesday-Sunday, June 14-19. For more information, call 453-2534 or 495-0744.

LORI CONN of Canton received an earful of Grand Prix action this past weekend. As a volunteer at one of four message centers, she paged and relayed information between drivers, pit crews, officials and celebrities. Conn works for Lexitel Corp. of Birmingham, which markets long distance telephone services.

HATS OFF to Daniel Dakiewicz, selected as a Youth for Understanding Rachel Andersen Scholar. Recognized for outstanding achievement, the Canton resident will study history and politics for a year in Germany. As a student at Plymouth Canton High School, Dakiewicz participated in student government, debating and showed a keen interest in science.

JUDITH GUEST'S fans are invited to an informal discussion of her book, "Second Heaven," at noon on Monday, June 13, in the meeting room at the Canton Public Library. Coffee, tea and dessert will be provided — just bring a brown bag lunch. For more information, call 397-0999.

COZY BEAR is coming to Canton Saturday to help celebrate Consumers Warehouse grand opening celebration, set for 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at its new location at Sheldon and Ford roads. Tom Dean of radio station WCZY and Cozy Bear will entertain, and balloons will be given away. The Pepsi Challenge booth also will be on site. Consumers Warehouse offers discount prices on health and beauty aids, over-the-counter drugs, soft drinks, beer and wine. Film processing, fresh baked goods and a pharmacy also are available.

TWO-WHEELERS of Canton, a Road-E-O is on tap for you. It's slated for 11 a.m. Saturday, June 11, (June 18 is the rain date) at the west end of the Meijers Thrifty Acres parking lot. You'll be able to show off your bicycle skills and pick up some new ones as the Canton police and Neighborhood Watch Association teach bicycle safety and handling. The afternoon will feature visits from clowns and other local characters; a chance to win a bike and other prizes; an obstacle course; and bicycle safety inspection and registration. Registration fee is $1.

Landfill robbed

Two Canton men face larceny charges in the theft of a $33,000 sweeper vehicle from the Woodland Meadows landfill last week.

Todd Letts, 17, and Michael Powelson, 21, were arraigned in 35th District Court Tuesday on a felony charge of larceny over $100. Both live on Van Born Road.

They stood mute and the court entered innocent pleas in their behalf. They were released on $5,000 personal bond each. Preliminary examination in district court will be June 9.

ACCORDING TO police, a patrol officer discovered the sweeper straddling the road and curb on Van Born, west of Haggerty shortly after 1 a.m. Monday. While the officer was checking a nearby business, two men arrived in a pickup truck, said Officer Eddie Tanner.

The men told police a third man had come to their homes, asking for help in getting a sweeper "unstuck," Tanner said. They could provide no information about the third man's name or whereabouts, Tanner said.

A torn piece of fencing was on the vehicle, according to the report. Officers checked further, and found the gate smashed at the nearby Woodland Meadows Landfill. The sweeper's identification number indicated the vehicle belonged to the landfill owners, Tanner said.

Larceny over $100 carries a maximum penalty of four years in prison upon conviction.

It's a snappy happy contest

Amateur photographers should try to capture the color and quality exhibited in this poppy picture when they compete in the Observer & Eccentric color photo contest. "Nature in the Suburbs" is the theme of this year's competition. Information on contest rules and details about this photograph by Norb Davert, 18, of Livonia are included inside today's newspaper.

Chip Toss boss seeks microwave for watery batch

Anybody want to donate their microwave oven to dry out a few cow chips?

Canton's annual cow chip fling is only two weeks away, but rainy weather has hampered the collection and drying of cow chips for the event.

"We're having a hard time this year," laments Art Winkel, coordinator for the cow-chip toss. "We only have three cow chips ready."

The fling is scheduled to take place at 3 p.m., Sunday, June 19, during the Canton Country Festival. Last year's toss attracted more than 30 participants, and Bruce McDermott won with his 118-foot toss.

Fastidious folks may wear gloves during the event.

IN PREVIOUS years, Winkel, his wife Shirley and other people would scour farmers' fields for the cow chips, which were then laid on Winkel's driveway to dry out. Winkel's current meager crop is tucked under some plastic.

"We will have to come up with alternatives — maybe pita bread (round, flat Middle Eastern bread with pocket)," Winkel said. "We could use microwave ovens and basement floors (to dry chips). A good week of sunshine should do it."

People who want to donate their basements or ovens can get in touch with Winkel at the Canton fire hall, 128 N. Canton Center, Canton 48187.

MEANWHILE, THE selection of the Cow Chip Queen will be made tomorrow, Winkel said.

Fourteen women, ranging in age from 16 to 60 have applied, Winkel said. Among the applicants are a member of the historical society, a Civitan Club member, and several full-time homemakers.

The applicants show a good sense of humor, Winkel said. Several submitted poems on why they should be chosen.

Bad weather will mean meager harvest

The Canton Farmers' Market will open July 23 — with a little help from Mother Nature.

The chilly, wet weather has delayed spring planting, said Jack Suddendorf, president of the Canton Vegetable Growers' Association.

"It's kind of a freaky year," Suddendorf said. "In terms of vegetable production, we're way behind. We're three weeks behind on a lot of vegetables."

Possible results will be smaller quantities of vegetables, or delays in coming to market, Suddendorf said.

"We'll have less sweet corn this year," he added. "Either that, or it will all come in late, at the same time."

THIS IS the fourth year for the open-air Canton market, which features only fresh vegetables and produce grown in the township. It is held in the parking lot at New Towne Plaza (K mart) shopping center at Ford and Sheldon.

This year, for the first time, the market will be open for business both Saturday and Sunday. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Among the items for sale are sweet corn, tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers and other vegetables. Other items include honey and cantaloupes.

The market began four years ago as an effort to highlight the vegetable farming community of Canton. Seventeen families belong to the vegetable growers group, and about 15 regularly participate in the market, Suddendorf said.

SEVERAL SPECIAL events will be offered, but no dates have been set, Suddendorf said.

These will include a clown-balloon day; a petting-zoo day with farm animals; and a corn roast, for customers

Professional background and experience working with people, have time and dedication for commitment to board.

MURPHY: I am a 1980 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, and have attended school in this district from first grade to my completion 1980. I feel being a recent product of this educational system might enable me to offer some insight on problems and situations currently existing.

STEARNES: No response to questionnaire.

Questions asked by the League and answers submitted by the candidates follow:

Do you believe that the Plymouth-Canton Schools are demanding sufficient standards of excellence from the students? From the teachers? From the administrators?

Murphy: We do need to elevate our standards of excellence, but gradually. As we increase our expectations we also increase the chance of failure within our higher expectations. The goals we set for students, teachers, and administrators should be realistic and achievable. We should continue to elevate our standards as we successfully reach our goals and improve the overall condition of education.

Yack: Education as an institution is a reflection of society. During the '60s and early '70s society was adrift, so also was education. Society is now in the midst of a quest for improved quality, higher standards, and moderation. Education is also seeking to raise standards and improve quality. Plymouth-Canton is no exception. Staff training needs to continue, need to establish achievement standards at each level, strengthen graduation requirements, building administrators must become more involved in monitoring instruction/learning, demand strict adherence to disciplinary code, and all held accountable for their performance.

Artley: Standards of excellence must be continually reviewed and updated for all of us inclusive of parents, students, teachers and administrators. If we do not seek improvement, how can we find progress? Key to change is listening and working together. Compare performance with expectations. Find out what's so attractive about private schools. Quality/quantity of education — equally important, support high school competency test end of junior year.

THOMAS: Students need to spend more time on-task both at school and home in math, reading, writing, grammar, and spelling. Teachers must teach to specific objectives and be responsible along with parents for the students' learning achievements. Our principals and administrators must spend more time in the classroom. Plymouth-Canton Schools and parents must demand that we improve our standards of excellence beyond their present level.

Quinn: Expectation of achievement for students, teachers, administrators needs improvement. More communication, information, cooperation concerning curriculum, discipline are essential. Teachers should be teacher certified areas only, avoiding negative learning situations. Decentralize administration. Building administration retain autonomous control of building budget; with input from teachers; other staff; central administration.

Woolard: No! Have talked with teachers, parents, administration, and students on this issue. Children generally perform high if expectations are high. We should instill confidence in them early, help them set and achieve higher goals. Plymouth-Canton could have higher percentage of youth go on to further education, but presently, numbers are low. I see too many children not bother to even attend school, much less work on it.

Teachers should have incentives for creative, dedicated teaching. Basics should be stressed and expanded, but they don't need to be boring! Administrators should promote incentives for early retirement, saving district thousands of dollars and allowing new talents to be hired.

Stearnes: No response to questionnaire.

Q. Discuss the budget cuts you would recommend in order to balance the 1983-84 school budget. Are there any budget items you would seek to protect?

Artley: Reduce administrative costs through efficiency/combine responsibilities. Coordinate benefit packages. Be open, honest, flexible, communicative about need for cuts. Seek public input. Consolidate Special Education/TAG thru magnet schools. Approach booster groups for shared funding/responsibility. Protect areas directly affecting children and learning environment. Computerize records, daily communications, scheduling using students in work/study relationship. Selectively preserve safety bussing in urban/rural areas requiring same. Maximize potential with eye on future.

Murphy: I feel cuts should be made in areas that don't compromise the quality of education at the student level, such as cuts in administration. I personally would like to see the unique educational opportunities and situations protected that set Plymouth-Canton schools apart from other districts. It's unfortunate that in recent history we lost the operation of the school farm and Geer school due to cut-backs.

Quinn: I do not want any cuts in education! Financial solvency is necessary. The 1983-84 budget, as projected, is balanced. Phase I cutbacks have been instituted according to the Zero-based budgeting theory. This approach is realistic as compared to eliminating whole programs. I would protect instructional programs, particularly, math, science, english/reading, social science, computer literacy. Education has become a scapegoat. We need to make education our No. 1 priority on local, state, national levels. Lobbying, interest groups, volunteering and sharing of information with business, labor are essential.

Thomas: My recommendations for reduced spending are: bus replacement/transportation, interest expense, workers' compensation, unemployment expense, clerical and custodial support, athletics to 1982-83 expenditures. Would reduce class sizes and protect all programs directly impacting students.

Yack: When the 1983-84 budget is approved I will support budget reductions not directly affecting the classroom instructional program. I support reductions in unemployment and workers compensation costs, clerical, custodial, administration, bus replacement, utility costs. Protected areas include: class size, length of instructional day, materials and supplies, support staff - librarians, reading teachers, counselors, continued staff inservice efforts, purchase of additional computers.

Woolard: Seek to protect programs directly affecting children — especially Special Education, safety bussing, and athletics. Cut transportation, gas, phone, and expenses not affecting quality of education.

Q. Do you feel that the educational opportunities are equal from one elementary school to another across the district? ... from one middle school to another across the district? Discuss.

Thomas: Teachers, principals, and facilities are different throughout the district at both levels. With instructional skills, supervision, and management programs and district-wide adoption of basal textbooks, the district should provide as equal an educational opportunity as possible. The seventh and eighth grade are equivalent in basic curriculum. The ninth grade classes may vary because of size and student requirements. Ninth grade students can take advantage of courses offered during first hour at CEP. We should make every effort within our financial resources to meet the educational needs of all students.

Murphy: It would be more accurate to describe the educational opportunities as different, not as equal. In each educational setting you have a gathering of individuals, brought together for the purpose of education. This interaction is special, and could not be duplicated.

Yack: Yes, educational opportunities are equal for the most part. Textbooks, supplies and staff are allocated on the same basis. Basic program is guided by district program and course objectives. Uniqueness will occur because of the individual talents and interests of staff members.

Woolard: Curriculum is outlined for each grade by district committee, controlling for great differences in content taught between schools. However, school populations vary dramatically with variables such as income, unemployment, and family situations. Some children have advantages of adequate nutrition, health care, preschool classes and/or stimulation, and secure family situations. Some have not. Needs vary greatly between classes and schools. Teachers' styles and grading vary, also.

Artley: Noting differences in size and facilities, educational opportunities may vary between schools. Ninth graders at the Park had different courses available than those at middle schools. A more appropriate question, "Are we making use of total resources through district wide cooperation and sharing?" Answer — It is an ongoing effort demanding commitment and involvement. Uniformity of curriculum and discipline are critical.

Quinn: Theoretically, curriculum guidelines promote educational equality K-12. Realistically, this goal is not achieved. Each school has its own environment, students, staff, administrators, parents, building similarities/differences open-closed, new-old. Learning/teaching processes are individual/unique. Current education is based on "time-frame-goals" theory. "Outcome-based" education promotes individualized level achievement learning. Concentration on classroom facilities, class sizes, curriculum, certification, are important.

Stearnes: No response to questionnaire.

Stroller goes back to school for a day in Plymouth-Canton

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

The modern public school system, especially in the lower grades, is a far cry from the little, old, red-brick, one-room setting of the turn of the century.

This was brought to the attention of the Stroller when he visited Smith Elementary School the other day as part of the "I've Been Back to School" program sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Education Association.

The moment he walked into the school, supervised by teacher Marilyn Finch, and saw the youngsters in the first, second and third grades in study, the change was evident.

First, there was no special teacher's desk in the center of the back wall, with the students' benches in a half moon before her, as there had been in the old days.

There were no individual desks. Instead, the students sat at tables that accommodated at least six children, and they talked freely even while doing class work.

This was most unusual to the old-timer. In his day back in 1903, when the Stroller was taken to the lone schoolhouse in his town and entered in Mabel Weisley's first grade class, a visit from one desk to another would have caught the eye of the teacher, and she would have surmised that the students were trading answers and the like. She would have broken it up.

In his day, the Stroller told the students, you sat at your desk to do your work, and there was no talking back and forth, and no going up to the teacher to get help.

But in the modern classroom there were all sorts of conversations, and the room was noisy compared with the days when quiet was demanded at all times.

Mrs. Finch and Principal George Dodson pointed out that this freedom was part of the plan to impress the students that they were not slaves — and that they could avoid being boisterous when given the freedom to speak freely. "This has helped the discipline," they said.

The surprising part of the enjoyable visit came when the youngsters were invited to ask questions.

While talking to the classes, The Stroller explained that in his day the students had to walk to school, and the distance in his case was a bit more than a mile. He also told them that he was dismissed at 11:30 each morning to walk home for lunch and then come back in the afternoon, regardless of the weather.

"Didn't they have buses in these days?" one little girl asked. She couldn't believe that there were no buses and that only the rich had automobiles.

"Did you have to ask permission to go to the washroom?" another small girl asked. When told that he had to ask permission any time we wanted to leave our seats at the desks, she asked, "Even for a drink of water?"

"Did you have a gym?" one of the boys asked, and he seemed horrified that there was no such thing when The Stroller went to school.

Then came lunch. And this proved the great advances made. The children raced for the cafeteria, instead of racing home for lunch. There they were served a fine meal of salad, a chicken leg, French-fried potatoes, and a strawberry shortcake.

What a treat that would have been in the old days. And it was the same recess. Instead of going to the old creek field where the cows were still grazing, they had a play area with the latest equipment.

It sure was a great change from the days in 1903 when The Stroller started being exposed to what the Pennsylvania Dutch called "book learning."

Yes, The Stroller went back to school for a day — and he learned a great deal.

Since when is pilfering legal?

To the editor:

I didn't think legal pilfering was allowed in this day and age, especially in our respected Canton community, but I guess one never knows. Upon witnessing two such events in a matter of three weeks, my conscience demands I write. I sincerely hope, but not necessarily believe, that the Canton police would like me to write as well.

I refer to two evictions from the Honey Tree Apartment complex. Personal properties, some of which appeared to be very expensive, were strewn on Wayne County property adjacent to Joy Road, resulting in scenery analogous to a garbage pit. But alas, this garbage pit was short-lived as most of the personal properties were carted away by some of our fine citizens via trucks, vans, cars, bikes and legs.

Also, I shouldn't forget to mention the traffic jam that this free yard sale caused. I do not condemn Honey Tree for taking action against a free renter, but surely there has to be a better way! Apparently, there is a legal right to steal unattended personal property in our community since the Canton police informed me they were monitoring the situation but can't do anything, and, yes, it is legal for Honey Tree to dispose of evictees' personal belongings on Wayne County property. I surely trust they have been misinformed as well as the county!

Again, there must be a better way. If Honey Tree's actions are legal, why can't they have a free-for-all on their own property? Better yet, and most important, why can't they invite our charitable organizations to take advantage of this legal pilfering resulting in help for our needy? Or, why not just leave everything intact and inform the tenant he will be thrown in jail on a certain day? Maybe the Canton police could then assist in this endeavor!

As tedious as it may be, corrections are needed to this application of pilferage practice. As law-abiding and taxpaying citizens, we should not have to put up with this garbage!

Richard D. Cummings
Canton

Editor's Note: The Observer did some checking and found that:

• Yes, there have been four or five evictions at Honey Tree Apartments (a 744-unit complex near Joy Road and I-275) in the last two years and some property has been placed on the side of Joy Road, according to manager Sherry Kelly. Honey Tree stores as much valuable property as possible, Kelly said.

• Yes, it is legal for landlords to place evictees' belongings on public property after the tenant has 1) fallen three months behind in rent; 2) been personally served by the court with a writ of eviction and failed to move out within 10 days; and 3) failed to appeal within 15 days after the judgment of possession is granted to the landlord by the court. The legal procedure is set in motion by the landlord, who must seek a judgment of possession in court.

After a 48-hour notice, the court bailiff then may deposit the evictees' property on public land.

• No, it is not legal for passers-by to help themselves to an evictee's property. When caught, such persons face larceny charges.

• According to Canton property involved in the most recent eviction had been carted away until called by the evictee. She returned home to find what was left of her belongings sitting on county property along Joy Road.

"I think it's rotten. But there isn't a heck of a lot of information that would lead us to any suspect. It's being followed up like every other case," a police department spokesman said.

Kelly said Honey Tree "tried to keep security there and keep people away, but you can't have someone sitting there waiting for someone to pick up their merchandise, especially when they've skipped town."

The sad part about it is the amazing number of other residents who stop and pick up stuff, knowing the evictees are financially unable to pay rent, and that this is all they have in the world," Kelly added. "Some people are scavengers — it's a shame."

In Honey Tree's defense, Kelly said evictees have "more than ample time to arrange for another residence and are given ample notice. Technically, it's 99 percent their own fault," she said.

Honey Tree has set up a payment plan for those who have difficulty in paying rent.

"The problem is, they won't contact us. We can't help them if we don't know anything about it. It's a shame, but what can you do?" Kelly said.

I was delighted when I saw the Nancy Walls Smith article back in your paper. I was a faithful reader of her articles, and I was very disappointed when they stopped appearing in your paper awhile back.

Recalling the picnic season in Small Town America

We are heading into summer and what we in the small towns of America called the picnic season. Back in our little town in the foothills of the Lehigh Mountains in Pennsylvania, the annual Union Sunday School picnic was the biggest holiday of the year, with the possible exception of Christmas.

We had 11 churches in our town and, once each year, all rivalries were gone, and all hands went to work on the big picnic.

For weeks the women (our mothers) of the town planned the food we were to take, and who was to make the dash for a good place at the community stoves.

These were not ordinary picnics where the outdoor meal consisted mostly of sandwiches and here and there a pudding and the always-present watermelon.

The big picnic back home was unusual in that it was held out of town and the picnickers looked forward to a train ride along with the picnic.

When The Stroller was a youth the picnic grounds were in a place called Bellwood, about 25 miles by train. The ride to the grounds was always a thrill, especially since the train had to pass through a tunnel to get there.

On one particular year The Stroller's mother outdid herself. She not only baked pies to take with us, but she was up most of the night preparing deviled clams, too.

This meant that we had to race from the

the stroller

train to the section of the grounds where the stoves were situated to be certain that we selected one with an oven. This was a necessity; deviled clams have to be warm to be enjoyed.

This year, when we got there and staked out the kind of a stove that was needed, our family became the envy of all those around us.

Mother became the center of conversation and many other mothers sought her advice on how to prepare the clams. Everyone was eager to get away from the old sandwich routine. Mother spent most of her morning and early afternoon holding an impromptu class on seafood preparation.

Some of the families who sought the clams exchanged, giving us choice dishes and huge pieces of watermelon. So, mother became "queen of the picnic."

The big Sunday school picnic was the major event, but weekly picnics were the rule throughout the summer. Close to our town was Sand Spring Park, popular because it had a nice stream running through it. Folks sought tables along the banks.

On picnic days this stream was a handy cooler for watermelon.

Inasmuch as there no way in which the individual melons could be identified, there were many cases of theft and oftentimes the youngsters would, somehow, get the melons out of the water, and then "help" the family search for its lost melon.

Mother had a way to overcome any possible loss of our melon. She stitched band-aids on the melon and it could be easily spotted. Our family never lost a melon.

And, it soon became a fashion to dress up the melon far easier identification in the stream.

Plastered watermelon and deviled clams were the order of the day for the Edgar group.

What memories this season brings.

Real estate on the upturn as sales rise

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

The sales and inquiries that have more than doubled over last year have caused the real estate firms in Plymouth to feel confident that the economy is well on the upturn and may be a boom within the year.

"I have never had so many calls and inquiries about home building and real estate," said Bud Gould, the Plymouth-born developer.

"From morning until night I am getting these calls and that is the sign that people are in the purchasing mood. It is the most action I have had in several years."

Another who is confident that the slump is about over is former mayor James McKeon, now with the Schweizer Realty firm on Main Street.

"There sure is a lot of activity, not only in the purchase of homes, but the renters also are active. I know that my business is more than double what it was a year ago and this is just the beginning of what could be a boom."

Asked what has brought about the change he quickly answered, "The public's confidence that we are on the right road in government and they see the end of the gloom that marked the slumping economy."

MCKEON SPOKE from personal experience. He cited a case where an ad in the Plymouth Observer for one week brought 30 inquiries for rental of a condominium.

"And the rent being asked wasn't cheap," he said. Like Gould he placed the change on the confidence of the public.

"They now are not only looking for homes to buy, but many are eager to build. And with this type of feeling there is bound to be a great upward trend in the real estate market."

Mike Caffery, another real estate man, noted, too, that it is the renewed public confidence that has brought about a change.

"The people must feel that our government has us headed in the right direction," he said, "because there is all sorts of activity — much more than last year and even for the past several years."

There are some areas in the outskirts of Plymouth where home building is in progress. These are the more costly homes but Gould, a land developer for many years, is sure that the lower priced homes will be attractive and that's where the building boom will get its biggest boost.

MAKE IT BIG WITH BERRIES

Two's company, three's a crowd, four or more makes a party! As every cool, calm party-giver knows, the formula for a great dessert buffet begins (and ends) with sensational desserts. Naturally, innovative ideas are welcome — those in rhyme with today's life-style, which begs for convenience and easy preparation. Then what could be more ideally suited than fresh strawberry and fresh blueberry desserts? After all, berries are the original convenience foods, without fuss, peeling or waste!

Here are three superlative variations on a fresh berry theme that belong in your repertoire when a guest list reaches up to a dozen. Each dessert combines the best of seasonal fruit with dessert convenience foods that promise to make recipe preparation swift and snappy. Additionally, you'll appreciate the concept that these chilled desserts can be prepared ahead of time with just a final flourish or two before serving time. Scan the ingredient lines and you'll be delighted to see how store-bought cake and frozen pastry dough are used.

Without exception, these are streamlined desserts, beginning with the Trifle Torte. While you may think of the traditional torte as a complicated Continental dessert with a long ingredient line requiring several preparation steps, this torte is simplified to the nth degree. Flavored gelatin, instant pudding and pie filling and artificial whipped topping are the basis for a luscious mixture layered with fresh fruits over cubes of angel food cake. Chilled and molded in a bowl, the torte needs only the magic of thawed whipped topping as "frosting" and decorative garnish.

Today's version of a flan is different from the classic tart requiring special baking pans. Rather, a sheet of frozen puff pastry is cut and baked according to recipe directions. You might do this a day or two before the party and store. There's no rushing to this Pastry Fruit Flan because the mixture of lemon flavor instant pudding and pie filling and sour cream can be made hours in advance of the event. Assemble the elegant-and-easy flan just before serving time; arrange a "parade" of fresh fruit, glaze with apple jelly, complement with whipped topping garnish.

Icebox cakes, longtime classics in dessert lore, enjoy popularity this season with a newly developed recipe for Strawberry Icebox Loaf. This small-effort dessert deserves the most perfect, red-bright berries you can round up to show through a clear, sparking top layer of fruit-flavored gelatin — strawberry flavor. Yes, traditional delicate ladyfingers line a loaf pan, surrounding a chilled layered mixture of fruit-flavored gelatin, frozen whipped topping and more fresh berries. "Fancied up" whipped topping frames the entire loaf.

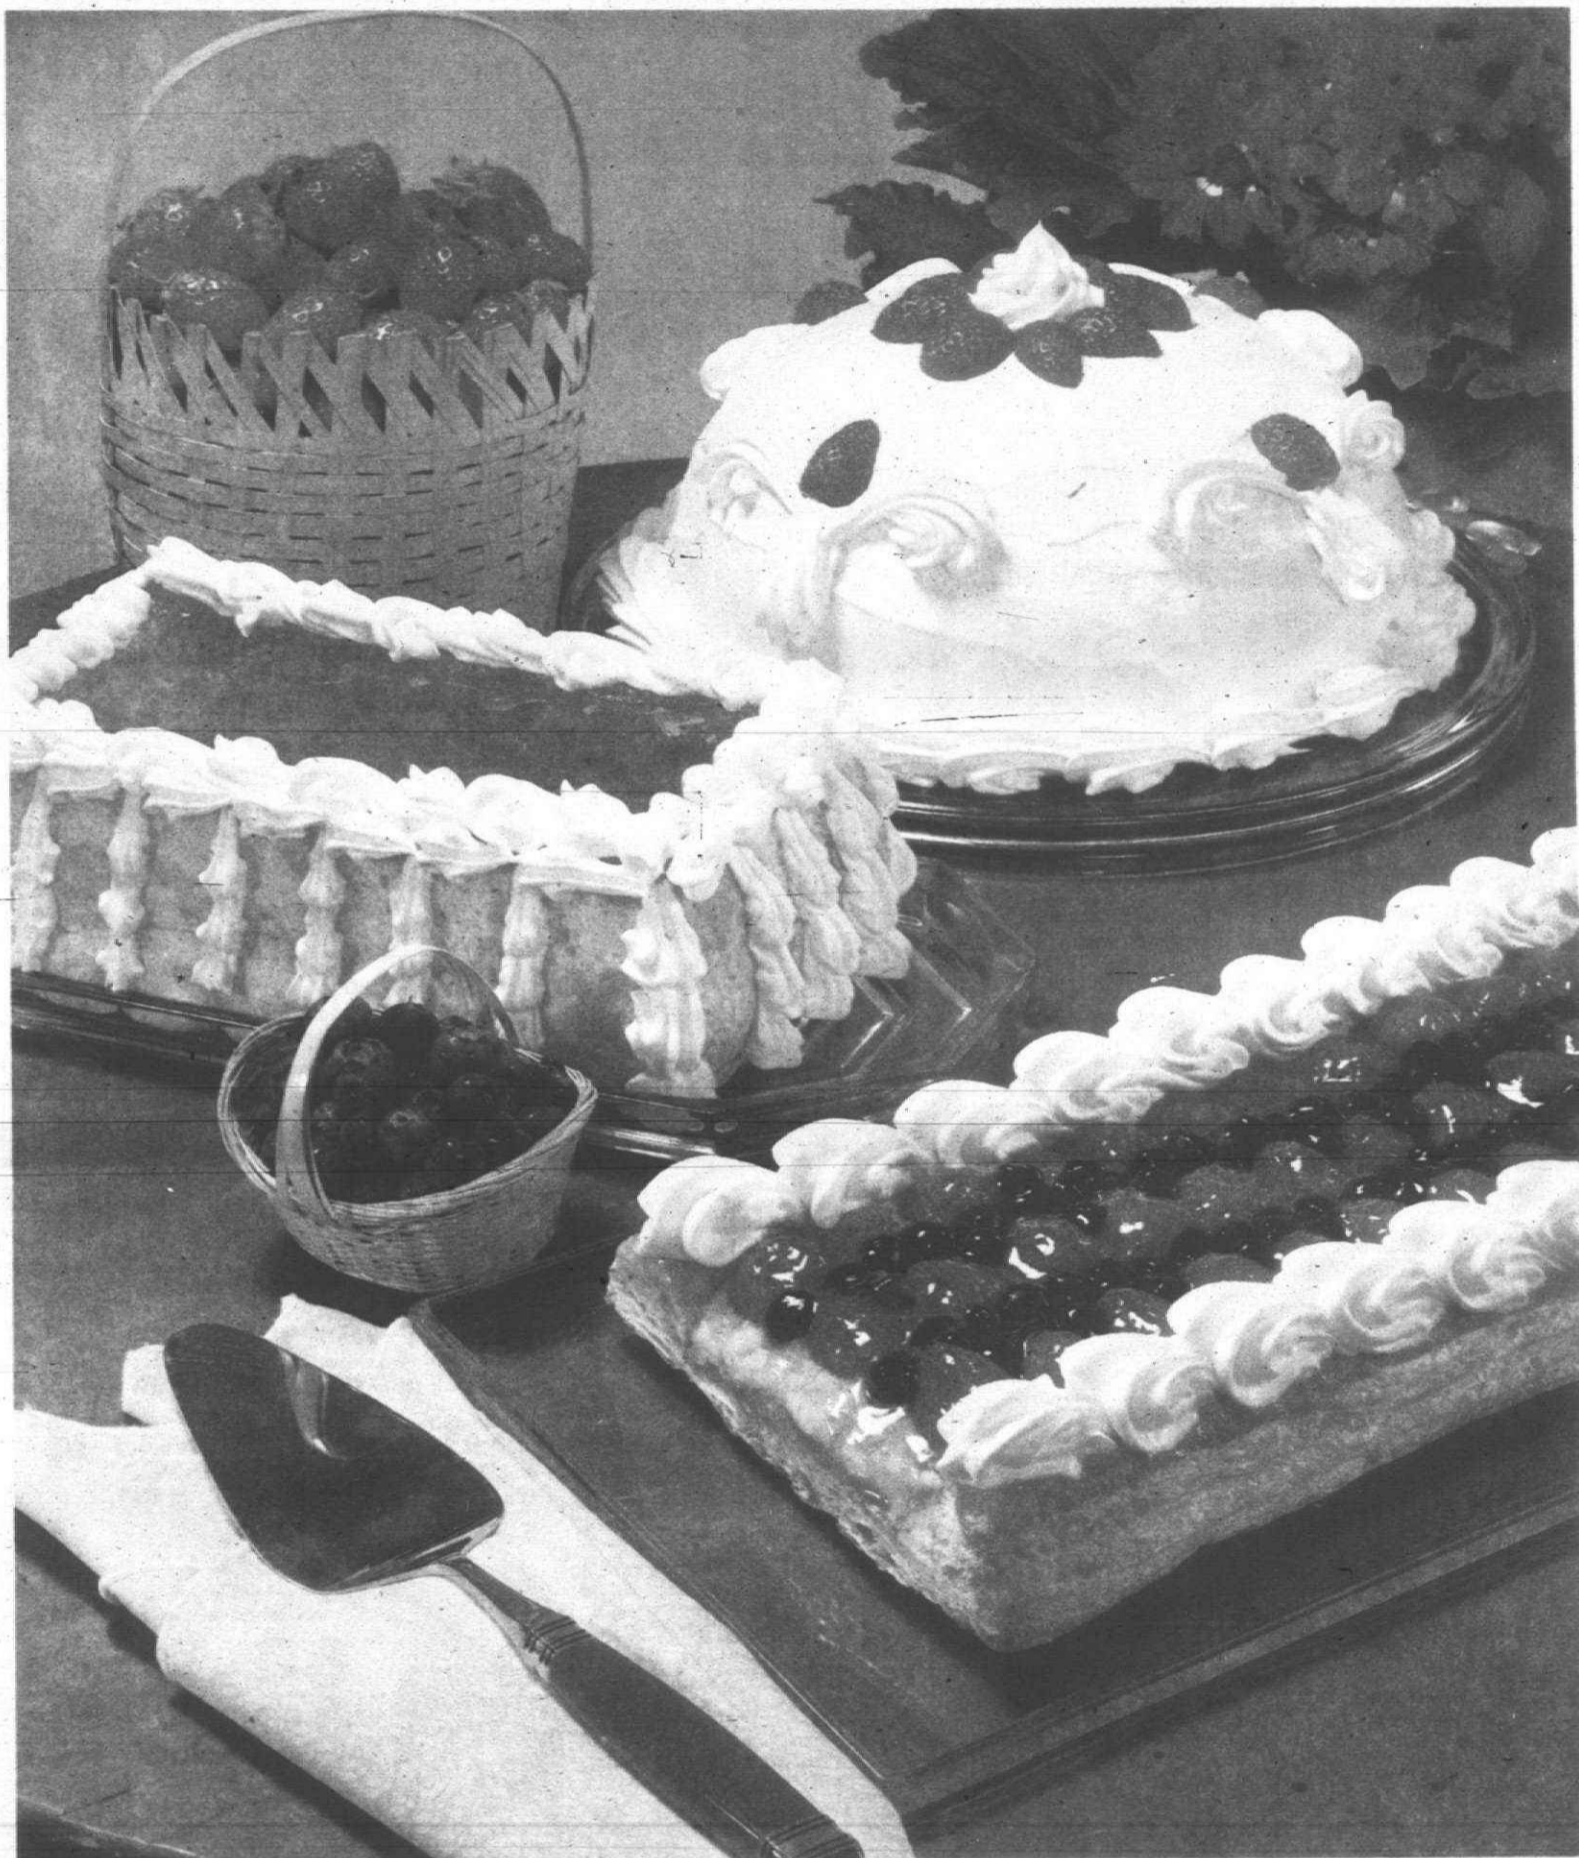

Elegant looking, yet simple to prepare, these desserts are "frosted" with whipped topping in a way similar to how experts use icing. Practice makes perfect, and it's easily accomplished by using the back of a cake pan-as practice ground. When decorating with frozen whipped topping, keep these tips in mind:

...Frozen whipped topping should be completely thawed.

...Make your own pastry bag by cutting a hole at the bottom corner of a medium size plastic storage bag. Fold top edge of the bag back about 2 inches and insert star tip tightly into the end. To hold the bag securely, place it in a jar or tall glass and fill with whipped topping. Unfold top of bag and turn corners to center; fold down top tightly.

...Hold one hand on top edge of bag, applying even pressure, and use other hand to guide tip to make decorations.

Now is the time to count your assets for a dessert party: three time-saving, energy-saving recipes that make the most of fresh strawberries and blueberries. They're foolproof finales!

Top: Trifle Torte. Center: Strawberry Icebox Loaf. Bottom: Pastry Fruit Flan.

Trifle Torte

- 1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 package (4-serving size) vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling
- 1 cup cold milk
- 2 containers (8 oz. each) frozen whipped topping, thawed
- 1 baked angel food cake, cut into cubes
- 3/4 cup sliced strawberries
- 3/4 cup fresh or frozen blueberries

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add lemon juice and chill until slightly thickened. Meanwhile, prepare pudding mix with 1 cup milk as directed on package for pudding. Chill; then fold in gelatin. Fold in 1 container of the whipped topping, blending until smooth. Place one third of the cake cubes in 2-quart bowl. Top with one third of the fruits; add one third of the gelatin-pudding mixture, spreading evenly. Repeat layers. Cover bowl with plastic wrap and chill at least 6 hours. Unmold onto serving plate. Spread remaining container of whipped topping over mold, using part for decorations, and garnish with additional fruit, if desired. Makes about 6 cups or 12 servings.

Strawberry Icebox Loaf

- 12 ladyfingers, split
- 1 pint strawberries
- 2 packages (3 oz. each) or 1 package (6 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
- 2 cups boiling water
- 1 cup cold water
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract*
- 1 container (4 oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed

*Or use 3 tablespoons orange liqueur.

Line sides of 9x5-inch loaf pan with ladyfingers. Halve 1 cup of the strawberries; slice remaining berries. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water. Measure 3/4 cup and chill until thickened. Spoon into pan and arrange strawberry halves, cut side up, in rows on the gelatin. Add extract to remaining gelatin and chill until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped topping and the sliced strawberries and spoon into pan over clear layer. Chill until firm, at least 4 hours. Invert onto serving dish. Garnish with additional whipped topping, if desired. Makes about 6 cups or 12 servings.

Pastry Fruit Flan

- 1 sheet frozen puff pastry, thawed
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 package (4-serving size) vanilla or lemon flavor instant pudding and pie filling
- 1 cup cold milk
- 1 container (8 oz.) sour cream
- 1 pint strawberries, halved
- 1 cup blueberries
- 1/2 cup apple jelly, melted and cooled

Roll pastry on lightly floured board into 16x11-inch rectangle. Prick entire surface with fork. Cut 4 lengthwise strips, about 1-1/4 inches wide. Place rectangle on ungreased baking sheet and brush with egg. Place 2 of the strips on the longer edges, brush with egg and top with remaining 2 strips. Brush with egg. Bake at 350° for 20 to 25 minutes, until golden brown. Cool completely on rack.

Combine pudding, milk and sour cream in bowl. Beat until smooth and well blended, about 1 minute. Chill. Just before serving, spread filling in pastry shell and arrange fruits in rows on top. Brush fruit with jelly. Garnish with thawed frozen whipped topping, if desired. Refrigerate any leftover flan.

Craft and magic illuminate sky with glitter

A SOFT POP, a flash, a quick whine through the night air and suddenly the sky erupts in a brilliant cascade of color and glitter, sparkles and shimmers. A loud report close behind vibrates through the earth.

The fireworks have begun. Although no one is certain, one expert theorized that fireworks originated in ancient China or India where saltpeter (nitrate of potash) was used as an agent for curing meat. Particles of the substance, accidentally falling into a campfire, might have mixed with charcoal, the resulting flare setting off the first experiments. Flakes of iron from striking flint would have produced glitter, just as iron filings do today, and the addition of sulfur yielded black powder — good old-fashioned gun powder. Placing this mixture in bamboo tubes was an easy next step, and with the boost of rocketry, the basics of the pyrotechnic industry were launched for centuries to come.

Italy long dominated the fireworks scene in Europe, but in the mid-1700s, Louis XV wooed Italy's famous pyrotechnicians, the Ruggieri brothers, to his court where some of history's grandest displays were produced. But the brothers became too good at their trade. One display in London was so elaborate — it lasted six hours — that the public outcry against extravagance caused a lull in large official displays in England that lasted into the 19th century.

IN THE COLONIES, John Adams, besides contributing in more significant ways to American history, seems to have fathered the idea that the nation's Fourth of July celebrations should feature fireworks displays. In a letter to his wife Abigail on July 3, 1776, Adams advocated the use of "pomp and parade . . . bonfires and illuminations . . . from one end of this continent, to the other, from this time forward forevermore."

In time, Independence Day fireworks came to be regarded as such an inalienable right that, when the first "safe and sane" July Fourth campaigns began in the early 1900s, reformers found it necessary to win a good word from national leaders to avoid being considered disloyal and unpatriotic.

Grand displays waned during the Depression years, then sputtered along on a routine but not particularly spectacular course in many sections of the country until the 1970s when, during the bicentennial celebrations, fireworks boomed loudly and flared stylishly.

Fireworks reached another peak along with patriotic sentiment in 1981 when the hostages held in Iran returned home during the January presidential inaugural festivities.

TODAY, FIREWORKS in the United States add up to a $125 million industry, said John Conkling, executive director of the American Pyrotechnic Association. But leadership in pyrotechnic manufacturing passed to the People's Republic of China after U.S.-Chinese trade relations were re-established in 1971. More than 50 percent of all fireworks used in this country are shipped from mainland China.

Titanium, a metal used in many high tech products, is now used to achieve brilliance and add visibility to the big-bang salutes. Otherwise, ingredients and manufacturing procedures remain much the same as they were 200 years ago. And the nature of ingredients and their possible undesirable interactions continue to demand painstaking hand labor to create a show.

Individual display shell cases are made of paper or cardboard, cut, shaped and pasted by hand. Black powder is poured into containers, and other chemicals, shaped into tiny pellets called stars, are added. Each of the stars will burn to form one thin streak of color.

Other chemicals contained in tiny tubes or bags produce the deafening salutes and special effects. How and when these are placed in relation to the black powder and to each other determines how the performance will appear.

THE LONG-FAVORED oriental-style chrysanthemum that explodes with thousands of symmetrical streams of color reflects the precise symmetry of its packing. More random placement of chemicals, combinations or shells within shells produce colors and designs that pour out with varying speed and intensity. Only the pyrotechnician who designs and builds the shell can predict with certainty the performance and personality of each of these actors. For this, he calls upon a knowledge of physics and of the compatibility of chemicals, as well as a good sense of color and design.

The way shells are constructed, their combinations and ramifications, is what interests the fireworks industry at the moment. "That's what's new," said George Zambelli, president of one of America's largest display manufacturing companies.

"We aren't experimenting with new formulas," he said, although a search does still go on for a safe and stable substance to produce a strong, bright blue.

INEVITABLY, DISPLAY techniques mirror the changing world. Now there are art directors and choreographers involved in the presentations. Split-second firings ignited from electronic control panels are keyed to elaborate scenarios. Fireworks are put to music, which may be simultaneously broadcast by local radio stations, and are incorporated into symphony performances. Displays are mixed with lasers. On the horizon looms the use of computers that will allow even more precise timing and more intricate shows.

A range of skills, knowledge, history and psychology go into producing these explosives with their gentle or playful names. But as twilight ends and the first shot is fired, one more essential ingredient becomes apparent — a touch of magic.

Bad weather isn't a problem as berries bloom on schedule

Bob Blessed makes sure the irrigation pipes are working as he will need to water the plants in case frost hits.

Bountiful strawberry crops are expected about the middle of the month at area pick-your-own strawberry farms.

Although there had been some concern expressed that the late spring might affect the fresh strawberry season, at least one berry grower expects the fruit will ripen on schedule this year.

Bob Blessed, one of only two remaining active farmers in Plymouth Township, has been raising strawberries for 20 years now at 49601 Powell east of Ridge Road.

"The blossoms look good and the fruit is starting to form," said Blessed, adding that he's not sure that the weather has a great impact on the growth and ripening of berries.

"I noticed this spring that the dandelions came out right on schedule. And the berry plants are blossoming on schedule, too. The plants need sun, but weather may not be as important as we think."

"Strawberries tend to be very independent. They're going to bloom no matter what the weather."

THE BLESSEDS, who operate the longest-established, family-operated strawberry farm in western Wayne County, have planted 14 acres of strawberries. The berries should begin ripening and be ready for picking the latter part of this week, said Blessed. That prediction also matches the expectations of Harvey Belter, Cooperative Extension Service agent for southeastern Michigan who expects berries to be coming into the market in volume about June 10.

Strawberry plants have been in bloom for more than two weeks now, says Belter, and will come in heavy once warmer weather arrives. Belter predicts a bountiful strawberry crop in Michigan.

Blessed also expects to have a beautiful crop of berries this year.

Blessed says his berries will be selling for 65 cents a quart — the same price as last year. "That confuses some people because a lot of berry farms sell by the pound. We think that berries look best and are handled best in wooden containers so we continue to sell by the quart."

A quart contains about a pound and a half of berries, Blessed adds.

The Blesseds recommend pickers bring their own container to put the berries in after picking. They recommend a container which is shallow as a deep container will result in berries in the bottom being crushed.

BELTER ADVISES people interested in finding U-pick sources of any commodity to check the classified advertisements in newspapers where they usually are listed under such headings as farms, fruits, vegetables, etc.

If you decide to join the U-pick brigade, it's wise to call ahead. Blessed, for instance, has a taped message on 453-6439 during the season which will tell callers what picking conditions are like for the next day.

Belter says pickers should wear comfortable, washable clothing and take along a hat as the sun can be very hot in an open field. Also bring along a bug repellent.

Very small children will soon become hot and bored, he adds, so it's a good idea to take turns minding the children in the shade or leave them attended at home.

It's advisable to pick berries in the morning, he says.

Strawberries should have a solid, red color, be free of decay, and still wearing their green caps. Although very large berries are almost breathtaking, says Belter, small to medium berries are likely to have the most flavor and yield the most servings per quart.

After picking, go straight home. Sort fruit for ripeness and use the ripest berries first. Berries that will be eaten within a day or two will keep best refrigerated in a shallow pan. Cover the pan with waxed paper (not plastic wrap). Wash just before using, lifting berries from the cool water. Remove caps and stems after washing.

Cordless phones may have listeners

By Dan Vecchioni
staff writer

There may be fewer kind words, but there may be fewer kind words about the most recently evolved form of the telephone, the cordless model.

The phone has boomed in popularity because of the convenience it affords in allowing persons to place and receive calls nearly anywhere within a few hundred feet of their homes.

The trade-off, however, is privacy. The cordless phones forego the traditional telephone wires to transmit conversation. Instead, they rely on radio waves to carry the signals to and from the base unit plugged into the wall and the portable unit carried in hand.

While the radio waves are out of the normal broadcast range, they can be picked up by anyone within a few miles who has a general coverage shortwave receiver and has tuned into the corresponding frequency.

"I DON'T THINK people are aware of these phones are capable of being listened to," said Irbay Tallant, engineer with the Detroit district office of the Federal Communications Commission.

Tallant explained that the FCC has assigned cordless phones two frequencies — 1.8 megahertz for the base units and 49 megahertz for the portable units.

"Anyone with a receiver that can tune into these frequencies can listen," he said. "And John Q. Public can buy these receivers. There's nothing illegal about listening in."

The cordless phone is considered a Part 15 device by the FCC, Tallant said. Part 15 devices are not protected by privacy safeguards as are some police radio transmissions, he added.

According to Vernon Griffith of Livonia, a ham radio operator for 37 years, he has been "getting good strong signals from telephone conversations several miles away."

"These people are on the air and don't know it," he said. "These people should be told because they think they're just talking to each other."

GRIFFITH SAID that from what he has heard many shortwave owners are listening in on the conversations.

"They're fun to listen to. You can listen to the people yack away. But you can't talk back," he said. "But I try to pinpoint the range. And that's a very difficult thing to do unless they name their street or their area."

Most radios only pick up signals in the normal broadcast range, they can be picked up by anyone within a few miles who has a general coverage shortwave receiver and has tuned into the corresponding frequency.

"There are lots of these receivers around," he said. "I'd say there's 20 of them just in my area." Griffith said he does not own a cordless phone. Besides the lack of privacy, he said the phones could be drowned out by nearby ham radio transmissions. Also because of the limited number of channels, one cordless phone owner may be able to get into the range of a second owner's base unit and make long-distance calls that would be billed to the second owner.

Robert Miller, vice president of merchandising and consumer products for Radio Shack's headquarters in Fort Worth, Texas, said that his company began receiving inquiries regarding the cordless phones about 10 weeks ago.

Buggy now has route in Detroit

John Hopkins of Plymouth, former French teacher at the Centennial Educational Park, has taken his buggy business to downtown Detroit to offer city residents and tourists a chance for a buggy ride through Greektown and Bricktown. Hopkins begins offering rides about 7 p.m. Fridays and continues throughout each weekend, starting the service just in time for visitors to the Grand Prix. Plymouth-Canton residents are well acquainted with Hopkins service as he has given rides to customers of the Plymouth Hilton and Mayflower hotels and has rented his rig for weddings and parties.

Antique shop opening with eye-catching name

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

The latest business listing on South Main Street in Plymouth is the Old Goose Barn, directly across the street from the National Bank of Detroit. But don't be deceived. There are no live geese on the other side of the door. Instead there is a wide selection of really antique treasures that date back to the Indians that once roamed the area.

The new owners, Sue Vogel and her husband, who have been resident of Plymouth for the past six years, have gone to great lengths to set up this antique shop, they are hoping that the odd people to come inside.

"There is no particular reason why we selected that name, other than I have liked geese since my childhood and we figured it would be attractive to the curious."

For some time Mrs. Vogel has worked as a saleswoman out of her home. "But the urge to have a shop and help the people of Plymouth sell some of the items they work on in their off hours overcame me and this shop is the result," she said.

INSIDE THE door you will find the old time butcher blocks that mother or grandmother used. There will be a salad table with a hole at the one end where the cuttings can be dropped into a bowl.

In listing the odd items Mrs. Vogel called attention to the pomptops, which are the clay casseroles made by the Indians when they were the early settlers. With them she will show stenciled work done by the folks in the Plymouth area. There will be clay pie pans and, of course, the stuffed geese, looking almost real will be all around the room.

"My husband and I have been looking for a place to start a business for more than a year and a half," Mrs. Vogel said, "and when we heard that Jim the Barber was willing to rent one half of the street floor, we quickly took advantage of it. Now here we are."

"This can be their market," she said and I know there are plenty of nice things being made right around here."

She feels, too, that the aggressive growth of Plymouth will be more complete with a shop that displays real antiques that go back to the Indian days.

800 summer jobs

Relief is arriving for local job-hunting youth

Plymouth-Canton youths whose feet have grown sore from job hunting can quit dwelling on Michigan's 14.9 percent unemployment rate and apply for one of nearly 800 area summer jobs.

About 500 jobs will be filled in Wayne County through Gov. James Blanchard's Michigan Youth Corps summer employment plan by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

A federal youth jobs program will employ 220 more young people in western Wayne, while 40 slots are open through Growth Works' Employment Dynamics program. Growth Works — a private, non-profit agency of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools — offers programs in alternative education, counseling and employment.

Accepting applications at the Plymouth Salem High School bookstore at 46181 Joy Road is Byron Richardson, job coordinator for the school district and regional program manager for the state's summer jobs program.

Prospective employees for jobs on the schools' maintenance, secretarial, security staffs and grounds crews may apply from 9-11 a.m. tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday at MESC branch offices, community colleges and the bookstore.

Applicants must be between 18 and 21 years old, Michigan residents and unemployed.

Pay will be $3.35 (minimum wage), while supervisory positions will be compensated at $5 per hour.

A number of jobs will be open in state parks through the Department of Natural Resources, while others are available cleaning highways, in soil conservation, repairing county fairgrounds and buildings, and through human service and public facilities programs.

Applications will be forwarded to the MESC office for screening, then will be returned to Richardson's staff, which will conduct local hiring.

Those hired will work 28 hours a week, Monday through Thursday, beginning June 20.

For more information, call 453-3100, ext. 298.

UNDER THE FEDERAL program, jobs at hospitals, state police posts, township halls, community colleges, day care centers, Army and Navy recruiting stations, and departments of public works are available.

Corps thanks peanut buyers

The Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone in the Plymouth-Canton community for making this year's Kiwanis Peanut Sale so successful.

We especially appreciate all the kind remarks to the members of the corps by purchasers, indicating that you enjoy seeing and hearing the corps perform.

The money raised this year on our behalf will be used to partially finance our annual eastern tour. This year we will be performing in various places in the state of New York, along with performances in Canada.

For any further information regarding performances or any other questions you may have about the corps, please drop a note to the Plymouth Fife & Drum Corps, P.O. Box 176, Plymouth, Mich., 48170.

Oriental Taming of the Shrew

Caracalla, moreover, obviously, has a fine historic sense. The 26 dancers are beautifully trained. The women's movements are as volatile as flame and their arms and hands swirl with the delicacy of tropical fish.

— Alan M. Kriegsmann, Washington Post
Caracalla wove exciting line dances for the men and an amusing ballet for cafe habitue's and their chairs into the flurry of fast-moving professionals...costumes were colourful and the dancers lively, good-looking and most engaging.

— Jennifer Dunning, New York Times
But make no mistake, the Caracalla dancers are good, very good.

S'craft operating budget calls for 4 percent hike

The Schoolcraft Board of Trustees last week reviewed the first draft of the 1983-84 budget calling for a 4 percent spending increase.

The budget estimated spending at $16.4 million, up $669,000 over the present budget of $15.7 million.

The major part will be spent on instructional salaries. Sixty percent, or $9.8 million is budgeted for faculty salaries and new programs. During the current year, $9.2 million was budgeted.

Business affairs accounts for 18 percent of the projected budget. Spending is pegged at $3 million, up $98,000 over this year. This includes funds for purchasing supplies and maintaining equipment for programs.

Several categories in the proposed 1983-84 budget have been cut. The general administration budget, which includes funds for the president's office, board of trustees, personnel and all other administrative posts, decreased 6 percent, from $1 million to $967,000.

The contingency budget was decreased from $360,195 to $247,700. Although it is only a slight reduction, more money was put into instruction this year because of the new programs, said David Heinzman, director of Schoolcraft's college relations.

Heinzman said the college was able to make some cuts "because there is no board election expense next year and we will save interest money because of the summer tax collection in Livonia."

Next year, three new degree and certificate programs will be offered at Schoolcraft. They are: cardiovascular technology, a 65-hour degree program; certified medical assistant, a 61-credit-hour degree program; and a program which calls for 34-hours toward a certificate in applied science and emergency medical technology or a 46-hour certificate program in applied science.

DR. KANE FOLLOWING THE CONTOUR

When you have a crown made to protect a tooth that's been badly damaged by decay, your dentist will pay special attention to the relationship of the surrounding teeth and how they follow the lines of your lips.

He'll also study the natural color of your teeth. When the crown is made, it can be covered with a natural-looking material, such as acrylic or porcelain. This is important when the crown is on one of your front teeth. When you open your mouth to speak or smile, you'll feel cosmetically secure if the tooth has a natural look.

Your dentist will also spend a lot of time shaping the crowned tooth so the contour will look natural as well as perfectly matching the shade of your other teeth. It should also properly support the shape of your lips. Care will be taken so that your face will keep its natural look and not change in any way.

Your dentist is not only concerned about the good health of teeth and gums. He's concerned about your personal appearance, too.

Churchill corners WLAA track market

Salem's 4th is best in Lakes; Canton 8th

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Six teams, in Plymouth Salem coach Fred Thomann's estimation, had the "capability of winning the meet" Wednesday when the 10 Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) girls' track teams got together at Livonia Churchill to decide the league championship.

Salem, which won four of five dual meets this season, was one of those six. But the Rocks weren't able to muster enough points to overtake host-team Livonia Churchill, which finished in first and completed a sweep by winning both the boys' and girls' WLAA titles.

Churchill totaled 85 points to claim the victory. Salem scored 63 points to end in fourth, behind Walled Lake Western (72 points) and Farmington Harrison (64). Plymouth Canton was eighth with 30.

Finishing behind Salem was Livonia Stevenson (48), Northville (46), Farmington (37), Canton, Walled Lake Central (21½) and Livonia Bentley (1½).

"WE SCORED in every event we should have scored in," Thomann explained. "But we just didn't get enough points."

"It was a combination of things. Getting a fourth instead of a second or a sixth instead of a fourth. Those kind of things cost us a few points and ultimately that hurt us."

Thomann agreed that, going in, the meet was a tossup. "It really was," he said. "I figured the team that won it would be the team that strung together the most first places."

"Our effort was good, we performed well, we just didn't score enough."

The Rocks did collect four seconds, but failed to win an event. And, by Thomann's formula for victory, that cost them.

CANTON DID not go into the meet as one of the favorites. The young Chiefs did come out of it, however, with three new school records and some confidence for next year.

"Almost everyone had their best times," said Canton coach Bob Richardson. "We have a lot of young kids — we graduate just one senior — and now those kids have a full year's experience."

"Next year we should improve on our dual meet record."

The Chiefs, who scored in six (of 15) events, completed this dual season with a 1-6 mark. Richardson's aim was to build a solid foundation from which a contender could emerge in the year's to come. His success can only be judged in the season's ahead.

SALEM'S TOP performer was, again, junior Dawn Johnson. Competing in four individual events, the versatile Johnson collected a second, two thirds and a fifth.

Her second came in the long jump (17-4¼), an event in which the Rocks placed three among the top six. Ann Glomski was fifth (15-11) and Kelly Bemiss was sixth (15-8¼).

Johnson took third in both the 100-meter (12.67) and 200-meter (26.5) dashes and was fifth in the 400 run (1:01.35) to complete what Thomann termed "a really nice day."

Cindy McSurely also garnered a second in the high jump (5-2). McSurely was third in the 100 hurdles (15.7).

The Rocks got a second from Carol Lindsay in the 300 hurdles (48.4), and the team of Glomski, Fran Whitaker, Bemiss and Stacy Stojeba were second in the 400 relay (52.0).

Scoring Salem's other points were: the 1,600 relay team of Whittaker, Mary Beth Weast, Susie Balconi and Lindsay (4:11.12), placing third; Stojeba, a fifth in the 100 (12.81); and Shelly Simons, a fifth in the 800 (2:28.1).

CANTON'S BEST finish of the day was a record-setter. The 1,600 relay team of Lisa Wood, Kim Bennett, Carolyn Nagy and Ruthann Trout combined to break the school mark they set 10 days earlier in the state regionals. The

Lingg leads Rocks; Chief boys finish 7th

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

There was no way Livonia Churchill could lose this meet. Unless the team got trapped in the bus or was quarantined for measles.

No such unlikely event occurred, so the Chargers did the likely thing and won the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) boys' track championship last Wednesday at Farmington with a resounding total of 160 team points.

Only one thing bothered Churchill, and that was Plymouth Salem. The Rocks used a superlative performance by Dan Lingg, who won two events himself and helped on a third, and a solid showing in the field and hurdle events to stay even with Churchill, for awhile.

Salem faded midway through the track events and Churchill assumed a command it never lost.

The Rocks finished third with 79½ points, 4½ behind second-place Farmington. Livonia Stevenson was fourth (49½), followed by Walled Lake Western (38), Livonia Bentley (36), Plymouth Canton (22), Walled Lake Central (13), Northville (12) and Farmington Harrison (four).

"OBVIOUSLY, CHURCHILL ran away with the meet," said Salem coach Gary Balconi. "The only event they didn't score in was the high jump."

"Salem and Farmington battled all the way. Coming out of the field events, it was pretty close between Churchill, Salem and Farmington."

"(Farmington) got us in the dual meet by two and they nipped us here."

The meet was close coming out of the field events because the Rocks scored in four of the events, collecting a pair of firsts. And it was Lingg who earned both, winning the pole vault (13-6) and the long jump (21-2½).

The Salem standout got plenty of support, though. In the long jump, Salem had three in the top four. Mike White was third (19-8½) and Jeff Arnold fourth (19-8½).

The Rocks also got three fifths in the field events: Keith Urban in the discus (139-1), Rich Pinko in the pole vault (11-0) and Erich Hartnett, who tied with Stevenson's Steve Potok for fifth in the high jump (5-10).

ON THE TRACK, Salem's Glenn Medalle streaked to victory in the 120-yard high hurdles (14.96). Teammate, Arviner Sooch finished third in the event (15.27). Sooch was also fourth in the 330 low hurdles (40.5) and Dan Allinger was sixth (41.11).

The Rocks also captured the 440 relay (44.81), with the team of Lingg, Arnold, Marc Tindall and Medalle racing to victory.

The standout performer in the track events, however, was Churchill's Erik Hansen. Hansen, an exchange student from Denmark, won the 100 (10.09), the 220 (22.96) and the 440 (49.2).

Tindall was involved in the bulk of Salem's other scoring performances. The sprinter tallied a pair of fourths in the 100 (10.42) and 220 (23.88) and he teamed with Allinger, Craig Morton and White for a sixth in the mile relay (3:35.26).

"Tindall had an especially fine day, considering he ran in eight races (counting preliminaries and finals)," Balconi said.

The Rocks' 880 relay team of Allinger, Arnold, Morton and White placed fourth (1:33.96) and Frank Brosnan was sixth in the two mile run (10:11.6) to round out the team's scoring.

CANTON'S POINTS came from scoring in all three relay events and on the fleet feet of Elijah Rogers.

Rogers sprinted to a second in the 100 (10.31) and a third in the 440 (51.70). The Chiefs were fifth in both the 440 (46.04) and mile relays and placed sixth in the 880 relay (1:35.12).

Canton's other points were scored by Anton Ivezaj, who was fifth in the shot put (45-11¼), and by Tom Bowie, who finished sixth in the long jump (18-10).

Sport camps: lots to choose

High school sports may last from September to June, but the individual training that helps young athletes improve can often be found during the months between.

That's why summer sports camps have become so popular in recent years. Kids of all ages can go to a camp during the summer and learn anything from good form on a jump shot to the proper strategy in defending a soccer corner kick.

Formats of the camps are as varied as the number of sports they cater to. There are overnight camps and day camps — and programs that offer both. All are aimed at certain goals: to teach the youngster some necessary elements of the game and to help him (or her) improve, while having fun doing it.

The Observer sports staff has already printed facts for several camps being offered throughout the metro area. There are dozens to choose from, so the parent and/or the athlete should be able to select the one best suited for his purposes.

Here is a list of some of the camps being offered this summer. Not all are contained on this list, but we will endeavor to print as many as possible in the weeks ahead.

SCHOOLCRAFT SOCCER SCHOOLS

Schoolcraft College will offer three soccer schools this summer for boys and girls 6-19 years of age.

Dates are as follows: June 20-25, August 1-6 and August 15-20. Features include a free T-shirt and soccer ball, age group competition, a separate program for younger players, instruction for advanced players and goalkeepers and supervised instruction by a staff of college coaches and players.

Daily schedule starts at 9 a.m. with exercise and cross country run. From 9:15 to 10:30 a.m. participants will work on skills, such as ball control, dribbling, kicking and goalkeeping. Group tactics and application of skills will be 10:30 to 11:15 a.m., followed by a 45-minute session of competitive games.

The day ends with a one-hour swimming period, from noon to 1 p.m. Parents are invited to attend a clinic on the last day of each session, to observe and to play in student-parent games.

Cost is $45. A $25 non-refundable deposit must accompany the application, with the balance to be paid on or before the first day of registration (June 20, Aug. 1 and Aug. 15). Registration can be completed in the Schoolcraft Physical Education Building lobby. Checks should be made payable to Schoolcraft College Summer Soccer.

Applications are available at Schoolcraft College, on Haggerty between Six and Seven Mile roads.

EASTSIDE/WESTSIDE FOOTBALL

Redford Catholic Central's Tom Mach and Warren DeLaSalle's John Maronto will combine their efforts again this summer for the second annual Eastside/Westside Instructional Football Camps for 5th-8th graders.

Both coaches will be present at both schools, so choose the one that's closest. The Eastside camp is June 27-July 1 at DeLaSalle and the Westside camp is July 11-15 at Redford Catholic Central.

Features include instruction on weight training, running form and flexibility, and nutrition and diet. Also included are motivational talks and movies, offensive and defensive drills and a T-shirt as well as testing in various drills.

The camp is instructional — there will be no contact. Instruction will include position-by-position sessions.

Daily schedule starts at 9 a.m. with a half-hour meeting. Three different 50-minute instructional periods follow. After an hour break for lunch, there will be a 20-minute talk and three more 35-minute instructional sessions. A specialty period follows at 3 p.m.

Equipment needed includes football or tennis shoes, gym shorts and T-shirt, towels and a lock for valuables. No lunches will be served, but there will be free soft drinks.

Cost is $65 per person, with at least $25 due with registration form, the balance due the first day of camp. Applications are available at either high school. Catholic Central is on Breakfast Drive, south of Lyndon between Beech Daly and Inkster roads.

DeLaSalle is on Common Road, between 12 and 13 Mile and Groesbeck and Schoenherr.

For more information, call Mach at 531-7251 or Maronto at 791-9329.

SUMMER CAMPS OF CHAMPIONS

University of Michigan offers a full slate of summer camps in nearly any sport, for both male and female. Most are open to 8-17-year-olds (persons who have started their senior year in high school are ineligible).

Here is a list of some of the offerings:

• Baseball — Directed by U-M head baseball coach Bud Middaugh. Featured are former and current pro players, like Alan Trammell, Bill Freehan and Jim Northrup. Instruction includes sliding, baserunning, bunting, fielding, throwing, pitching, hitting, catching, and infield and outfield play.

Live-in sessions: June 12-17, June 19-24, June 26-July 1 and July 10-15. A day camp will be offered July 4-8. Fee is $175 for live-ins and $65 for commuters.

• Men's basketball — Director is Bill Frieder, U-M head coach. Features include: personalized instruction by Frieder and his staff, movies and personal evaluation. Dates are June 19-24, June 26-July 1 and July 2-9. Cost is $195 for live-ins, $95 for commuters.

• Women's basketball — Directed by U-M women's coach Gloria Soluk. Open to 10-16-year-olds. Features include instruction on jump shooting, ball handling, dribbling, screening, individual offense, player-to-player defense and more. Dates are July 10-15, July 31-Aug. 5 and Aug. 7-12 for overnights and July 17-22 for commuters and overnights. Cost is $65 for commuters and $155 for overnights.

There will also be team camps on July 31-Aug. 3, Aug. 3-6 and Aug. 7-12 for overnights and Aug. 1-5 for commuters. Cost is $100 for the three-day camp and $155 for the five-day camp.

• Football — Director is U-M assistant Gary Moeller. Camp is open to high school students. Features include training and technique skill for all offensive and defensive positions. Innovations in weight training, instruction in form and sprint running and flexibility, as well as teaching films are included.

Date is July 5-9. Cost is $160 for overnights, $80 for commuters.

THESE ARE JUST four of the schools offered. Others are golf (co-ed), field hockey, cheerleading, swimming (co-ed), tennis, softball, athletic training, women's gymnastics, ice hockey, soccer, track and field, volleyball and wrestling. For more information or a registration form, call the U-M Department of Athletics at 663-2411.

Canton's fortunes tumble

GARY CASKEY/staff photographer

Canton's Missy Aiken pops out. Canton managed just three hits in a 5-2 loss to Ann Arbor Pioneer in state district play.

It was just a matter of time. Plymouth Canton's softball team survived its pre-district contest with Romulus on a series of breaks and many Romulus miscues.

Lady Luck was smiling on the Chiefs in that one.

But those smiles turned to frowns Saturday, as Canton let Ann Arbor Pioneer come from behind to win, 5-2 in eight innings, in the first round of the Ann Arbor Huron state district tournament.

That loss came on the heels of another disappointing setback. Last Wednesday, the Chiefs blew a chance to share the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) overall title by losing to Walled Lake Central, 10-6.

Canton finished its season with a 12-7 overall record. Its loss to Central handed the WLAA crown to Plymouth Salem.

IN THE LOSS to the Pioneers, Canton built a 2-1 lead going into the seventh inning. The Chiefs had only three hits in the game, but sloppy play by Ann Arbor helped them score twice.

In the first inning, Sue Gerke singled, went to second on a passed ball, reached third on Ranae Edwards' groundout and scored on another passed ball.

In the fourth, Marie Krashovetz walked and eventually came around to score on yet another passed ball.

That lead lasted until two were out in the seventh. A walk and a steal put a runner on second for the Pioneers. Lisa Duham then got the game-tying hit to force extra innings.

Pioneer scored three times in the eighth to clinch the victory. Belleville then beat the Pioneers, 2-0, to win the district title.

Gerke had two of Canton's three hits. Krashovetz had the other. Pitcher Janine Carpenter allowed three hits, seven walks and two strike outs in taking the loss.

In losing to Central, Carpenter surrendered just three hits, but seven walks, four errors and one hit batsperson led to the Chiefs' demise. The Vikings scored eight runs in the second inning on just one hit.

Beech Daly record stays perfect

First place Beech Daly Clinic put on its hitting clothes with a 15-10 Garden City Invitational Baseball League win last week over 3 Kego Round.

The game was played at Garden City Park. Tommy Leedle drilled a three-run homer in the first inning and Wayne Traver added a two-run blast to help Beech Daly to its fourth straight victory without a defeat.

Mark Wegryn and Jay Traver each added three hits as Beech Daly totaled baseball

14 on the night. Gary Ryan belted a two-run homer and John White added a solo shot for 3 Kego in the first inning.

Jim Remington chipped in with a two-run blast in the seventh inning, but it wasn't enough for 3 Kego, which dropped to 3-2 in league play. Reliever Jim Volk, who hurled the final four innings, was the winning pitcher. Gordie Lorincz, the first of four 3 Kego pitchers, took the loss.

THE GANGSTERS earned their first win of the year with a 6-5 triumph over the Runners in a league game played last week at Garden City Junior High. RBI singles by Terry Justin and Rick Schmidt in the bottom of the seventh gave the Gangsters the victory.

Schmidt, the last of four Gangster pitchers, got credit for the victory. Ron Soper suffered the loss.

Harlan Lee collected two of the Gangsters' 10 hits. He also contributed three RBI. John Smelik paced the Runners, now 0-4, with two hits.

THE EXPOS evened their league record to 2-2 last week with a 14-2 triumph last week at GC Park over Emerald Motors, now 3-0 overall.

team finished second in 4-11-1, which, converted to yards, lowers the school record to 4-12-1.

Wood, Lori Schauder, Nagy and Bennett teamed for a third in the 800 relay (1:49.4).

The Chiefs collected three fourths, with Nagy's record-breaker in the 400 run setting the pace. Nagy was clocked at 1:00.7, which shattered her own record and lowered it to 1:01.0.

Also taking fourth was Kim Brown in the 100 (13.9) and Trout in the 800 (2:27.3).

Canton's third record came in the 400 relay, which placed fifth. Wood, Schauder, Bennett and Brown were timed in 52.8, lowering the record of 53.0 set in 1977 to 52.8 after conversion to yards.

Bennett also collected a fifth for the Chiefs in the 200 dash (27.3).
