Regional comeback: lessons from New York

John P. Keith, president of the Regional Plan Association in New York City, talked about restructuring metropolitan areas last week as guest speaker for the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments. Here are key portions of his text.

There are many similarities between your situation throughout southeast Michigan in the recession of the early 1980s and ours in the New York region during the recession of the early 1970s.

Nick Sharkey

Area seniors set example for all of us

GROWING OLD is something most of us don't like to think about. It reminds us of our mortality and eventual death.

IN THE PAST few months, however, I've noticed a change in the portrayal of seniors in our pages. Photographs of smiling seniors have replaced the sad expressions of the past.

SENIORS CAN usually take a more reasoned approach to the problems facing a community. They can see better the evolutionary changes.

THE CONTRIBUTIONS of seniors go beyond merely recalling what has happened in the past. Many are vital, active participants in improving their communities.

WE WERE GIVEN a chance to buy two acres of ground in the wooded area of an old abandoned farm in what was then Livonia Township.

AS THE YEARS slipped by, the words of The Stroller's mother often came back to him. Years ago when he was a mere youth, she said to him, "Make the most of what you have. Don't bother about the folks next door."

WEED pulling to keep the place neat and trim is far from slavery. It is a matter of personal pride.

Detroit is not New York, and you can't copy what we did, but there are three lessons we have learned that I believe apply equally to Detroit.

What constitutes the bulwark of our own liberty and independence? It is not our sprawling battlements, our bristling sea coasts, our army and our navy.

— Abraham Lincoln, 1858

Not slavery to owner Yard work: matter of pride

WHILE ON bended knee one morning pulling weeds from the sunken garden in his front yard, The Stroller had his solitary work interrupted by a sightseer who stopped his car and called, "You've got a fine-looking place here in the woods."

He suggested we allow the weeds to grow, then cut them, and soon we would have grass the full length of the two acres.

takes people twice as long to get to work as in suburban campuses where everyone drives cars — but the Manhattan workers expend only half as much energy in getting to work.

WE DID A book called "Urban Rail in America," which proposes a 20-year program for improving public transportation throughout the nation. It suggests that about two dozen cities in the U.S. have dense enough travel corridors to accommodate either light or heavy rail.

Mansour's pitch for poor is impressive

HER SENTENCES are long and scholarly. But there is a faint sob in the voice of Dr. Agnes M. Mansour, director of the Michigan Department of Social Services, as she asks for more money for welfare.

SEVERAL THINGS still bothered me about her approach, with its condescending tone of a second-grade teacher advocating a tax increase.

As she talked, her voice tight with emotion, Mansour reminded me of what the old-timers used to say about Eleanor Roosevelt: That she reduced every issue, no matter how complex, to a matter of milk for starving babies.

"I'M CATHOLIC myself," a suburban legislator of more conservative bent told me, "and I know how the minds of the religious (priests and nuns) work. They don't worry about a job. They don't have to worry about families. They don't worry about mortgages and property taxes."

Our studies have pointed to the prime importance of centralizing activities in urban centers. It saves massive public and private investments, keeps opportunities available to the poor, conserves energy and farmland and reduces air and water pollution.

THE KEY to whether Blanchard's capital stimulation plan works, according to two representatives from western Wayne County, is whether the governor himself will abandon capping of interest rates.

"We are a capital-short state," said Keith, in an interview on the House floor. "Michigan doesn't have enough savings money to make mortgage loans, so we must go to the national market. When interest rates (nationally) go higher than our caps (usury laws), we're freezing our capital."

"I'D SACRIFICE anything to get that $43 million into the budget... to get a 5-percent increase for people who have been frozen since 1979," Mansour told the Senate Appropriations Committee.

SEVERAL THINGS still bothered me about her approach, with its condescending tone of a second-grade teacher advocating a tax increase.

When the Goldwater types used to reduce issues to being "for America" or "against America," liberals called them "simplistic." But is not Dr. Agnes Mansour simplistic in her single-minded advocacy of giving more "social services"?

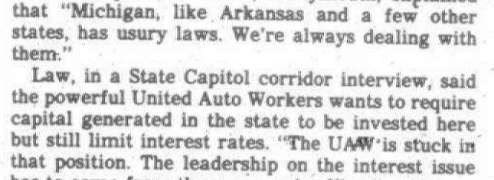

So weed pulling to keep the place neat and trim is far from slavery. It is a matter of personal pride.

Blanchard: fiscal plan will stimulate economy

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A confident Gov. James Blanchard expects that his newest economic proposal — the Michigan Strategic Fund — will sail through the legislature this fall. Top Democratic legislators agree.

Blanchard described the fund as a long-term solution to diversifying the economy and creating jobs in contrast to his short-range summer jobs programs for youth and construction workers.

Gov. Blanchard

Blanchard is asking $54 million for the Michigan Strategic Fund — $45 million from existing Michigan Economic Development Authority and $9 million voted in the Commerce Department budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Blanchard said the fund would have authority to select "priority" industries (automotive, electronics and software) to receive loans, investments, loan guarantees — even guide investments made by the state pension fund and accident fund.

Keith said Blanchard has asked him to hold off on his bills "until his program is finalized."

Blanchard unveiled his Michigan Strategic Fund — "a partnership between government and the private sector designed to increase the availability of financing for all types of business in our state."

Blanchard said the fund would have authority to select "priority" industries (automotive, electronics and software) to receive loans, investments, loan guarantees — even guide investments made by the state pension fund and accident fund.

WE SAT AROUND talking about Lincoln, drawn together by a common need for conversation and some kind of comfort.

Lincoln Hale had come home for his 40th class reunion Saturday night at the Mayflower Meeting House. He died of a heart attack sometime Sunday. His hosts, Jackie and Harvey Troutman, were letting him sleep after the reunion with the Plymouth High School Class of '43. Lincoln was 58.

He and Pat had celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary the Sunday before at their home in Salem, Ore. Their three children, Sarah, Peter and Bruce had brought all the food and planned the party. Pat made sure Lincoln had lots of family pictures to take along to show to old friends in Plymouth. Pat's 40th PHS class reunion is next year, so this was Lincoln's turn to make the trip. They had moved to Oregon 18 years ago.

SO WE SAT.

Dorothy and Austin Norton had known the Hales since their college days at Michigan State University. Lincoln and Austin, both veterans of World War II, met at MSU and have been good friends ever since. Jackie's friendship went back a little further. She had known Lincoln since she was 5.

There was a lot of reminiscing. Austin always made it a point to call Lincoln on George Washington's birthday to wish him a happy birthday. He smiled at Lincoln's response as he reminded him that his and Abe Lincoln's birthday was Feb. 12. There were memories of fishing trips and hunting trips and family vacations together. And the conversation always kept going back to concern for Pat and their family.

There was talk of Lincoln's many interests — his love of trees, nature, the outdoors, of finding arrow heads and rocks. Perhaps it was his birthday that triggered his becoming a Civil War buff. And there was his gift of friendship.

HE HAD PLANNED to go home Wednesday. And he had planned to see many more old friends and visit the Detroit Art Institute.

He did have time to admire the hardwoods and especially the beech trees. He said it was good to see a cardinal again. He thought the Plymouth Township Park was a marvelous addition. He attended the Thursday evening band concert in Kellogg Park and strolled over to Cloverdale's for an ice cream cone after the concert. He was back to Cloverdale's the next day with good friends Bob and Delores Smith.

The Troutmans had stocked up on Vernors gingerale for his visit. He loved Oregon in spite of its lack of hardwoods, cardinals and Vernors (and Cloverdale ice cream).

His last words to Lois McAllister after the class reunion were, "I've had a wonderful time. Be sure and let me know when you're having the next one."

Lois said, "We've had three class reunions and Lincoln never missed one." It was a shocked and saddened planning committee that met Monday night to discuss what the class of '43 could do in Lincoln's memory.

Knowing Lincoln was such a pleasure.

THE BIG 50-50 prizes all have been awarded by the Blue Chapter of the CEP Athletic Boosters Club. Last three winners were Denise Edson, Millie Ferrarri and Gary Shelton, each of whom won $100.

The Blue chapter will start a new 50-50 in the fall. The Boosters have done their bit to keep the athletic programs going at the two high schools. They have donated thousands of dollars to the sports departments at the schools this past year.

LORETTA KLEIN will host a coffee from 10 a.m. to noon Friday, July 8, at her home 11710 Wildwing in Trailwood subdivision. Loretta is a volunteer at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor. She and other volunteers at St. Joe will be on hand to talk about the importance of the program.

The Hazel Larsen Guild was formed five years ago and the anniversary of the guild has been chosen as a time to enlist new volunteers.

For more information, call the volunteer office, 572-3390.

Classmates from the Plymouth High School Class of 1943 came from all over the nation for their 40-year class reunion Saturday evening.

It's 40 years for class of 1943

Ray Kearney was master of ceremonies.

Plymouth High School Class of 1943 met in the Mayflower Meeting House for their 40-year reunion. The organizing committee had been meeting for a year to plan the party.

Ray Kearney was master of ceremonies for the event and his classmates said he hadn't lost his sense of humor. Kearney, the class clown, was as funny as he was 40 years ago.

Awards were presented in several categories. Mike and Lois Kleinschmidt from California, and Lincoln Hale from Oregon, tied for first place in the who had traveled the farthest distance division. Both the Kleinschmidts were members of the class.

Hal and Loretta Young have the youngest child. Lois (McIntyre) and Howard Kottke had the newest American-made automobile. Ruth (Pierce) and Dick Lantzer had been retired longer than anyone else in the class — 10 years.

Bill Donohue and his wife, Julia, had the most grandchildren. Fern and Kenny Hannah had the longest marriage. Gerald Olson had been the first of his classmates to join the service.

Shirley (Hoffman) Appicelli, a member of the planning committee, made all the white roses tied with blue ribbons corsages for the women. Lois (Hoffman) McAllister made the name-tags, with large bold letters so everyone could read them. Other members of the committee were Dottie Foreman, Clare Ebersole, Jack Kenyon, Lois Merriman, Hal Young, Ray Kearney and Bill Keefer.

Red carpet rolled out during Italian visit

By Gae McCord special writer

It took only 10 days to turn 22 members of the Plymouth Community Arts Council into devout Italophiles, all with a greater understanding of Italy, her people, history, art, customs, and to a greater or lesser degree, her language.

The group, representing three generations, was led by Plymouth Salem High School humanities teacher Ruth Tonner. Because of the years Tonner has spent in Italy, and her many connections there, the group had the rare opportunity to tour and study with some of the world's leading authorities in art, history, archaeology, and the classics.

After being met at the Rome airport by a bus and courier from the American Council for International Studies, Inc., under whose auspices they traveled, they group began a journey of discovery, intensive study, and just as intensive fun.

They checked into their hotel, which was only a few moments walk from the Pantheon. They toured Rome on the bus that was to become their home away from home before enjoying their first Italian meal as a group. A moonlight view of the Campidoglio and the ancient Romans remembered in marble completed the first of the magical days.

FOR THE NEXT two days they were joined by Professor William Hood of Oberlin College and a fellow of the American Academy. Hood guided them on a walking tour of Rome. The Villa Borghese, St. Peters, and the American Academy were but a few of the highlights of the hours spent under the tutelage of this master teacher.

He took them to the studio of Peter Rockwell, son of Norman Rockwell, where their host talked to them about sculpture and the life of a sculptor. Rockwell took them to his apartment overlooking the rooftops of Rome, where they met his wife and family.

THE VATICAN Museums, the Sistine Chapel, the Spanish Steps, sidewalk cafes, inoperable elevators, tempting shops and remaining alive in Italian traffic were also subjects for in-depth study by the group.

When President Carter and Vice President Mondale were in Rome a few years ago, Professor Harry B. Evans, chairman of classics at Fordham University, guided them through the Forum and the Colosseum. The intrepid travelers from Plymouth were afforded the identical tour with the rather unfortunate addition of rain.

They were undaunted by the intermittent downpours, however, and scrambled from one small shelter to another without missing a word of the fascinating interpretation of these famous ruins.

Marian West and Elizabeth Campbell kept spirits bright with notes from their Walt Disney baggies purchased at the Colosseum.

The rather soggy day was concluded by a trip to romantic and serene Tivoli, where the fountains are especially inspiring in the evening. Dinner together was in a quaint, country-style restaurant discovered on the spur of the moment by Tonner. Back in Rome, late at night, all hands threw their coins into the fountain and walked back to the bus exchanging songs with a group of Greek students.

general public. He then accompanied the visitors on a train ride which hurled them through the mountains to Sorrento, a jewel on the Amalfi Coast.

After a record-breaking check-in to their hotel, everyone boarded a hydrofoil for the Isle of Capri.

Bill and Jo Elen Odom lead Nancy Cooper, David Campbell, Mary Elizabeth Smith, and a reluctant Sue Gallas to the very top of Capri in a chairlift for one of the world's most breathtaking views. After several hours of shopping and lunch, the group returned to Sorrento by ferry boat.

THE NEXT DAY gave Johnny Crosby and Maribeth Carroll a chance to give their well-filled notebooks a rest as they sped back north en route to Florence. Lunch in an ancient monastery and a visit to the cathedral in the lovely hill town of Orvieto broke up the daylong journey through the exquisite Italian countryside.

Don and Judy Morgan, who were accompanied by Don's charming mother, Nancy, celebrated their 21st wedding anniversary in Florence.

The travelers were guests of a count and countess at a wine-and-cheese reception in an old villa on the outskirts of Florence. They toured the villa and the formal gardens of the villa which is owned by the University of Michigan and the University of Wisconsin.

Calculate retirement taxes

Have you ever wondered how our financial plans would be affected when Social Security benefits are taxed?

Determining whether you will pay a tax on your benefits over and above any tax you may pay on your pension or other income after the new rules take effect in 1984 will call for you to add up three things:

- Your adjusted gross income.
Any interest from tax-exempt obligations.
One-half of your Social Security benefits.

If the total is more than $32,000 for married people ($25,000 for singles), you will pay the new benefits tax on the lesser of two amounts...

Here is a hypothetical illustration about a retired couple who receive maximum Social Security benefits of $9,000 each in 1984 along with separate $15,000 pensions...

more than the base amount allowed for a married couple. They will therefore be taxed on half the excess, or on $3,500.

If you and your spouse have larger pensions say $21,000 each, producing a gross income of $42,000, a different type of calculation comes into play.

Adding $42,000 and one-half of $18,000 gives a total of $51,000, which makes for an excess of $19,000 over the $32,000 base...

base amount is zero if you do. But take heart that your retirement tax bracket will probably be lower than your present one.

You may also want to seek out some tax shelters to protect as much income as possible.

Custodians balk at jobs corps program

Custodians employed by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are saying no to Gov. James Blanchard's Youth Corps employment program.

Last week, low-income students hired at minimum wage by Byron Richardson, the district's job coordinator, began work as groundskeepers, custodians and clerical workers in the district.

"The (custodians) local is opposed to the governor's Youth Corps jobs program," said Norman J. Kee, assistant superintendent for employee relations. "They feel they've lost 18 positions, are slated to lose six more, and can't jeopardize the loss of permanent positions by using Youth Corps workers."

"It's a shame. We'll probably be getting calls from parents whose kids will not be getting jobs."

Custodians are the ones opposing the program this year. The district projects savings of $102,000 due to the loss of six custodians in 1983-84.

In past years, the district has participated in youth jobs projects without causing a loss of jobs. The only unfilled slots on the custodial staff have resulted through attrition during periods of cutbacks in the last five to six years, added Kee.

To enable the district to hire student workers, employee units must sign an agreement. The custodial board has signed in the past, "as long as it wasn't for the purpose of eliminating current employees," said Kee.

Student's art in Congress

Plymouth's Scott Cherry was formally recognized by the Plymouth-Canton School Board Monday for capturing first place in the 1983 Congressional Arts Competition. Cherry, a Plymouth-Canton High School student, will have his artwork displayed at the Capitol in Washington D.C. through March, 1984.

He was the only local finalist from the 2nd Congressional District, which encompasses parts of Wayne, Washtenaw, Monroe, Jackson and Lenawee counties.

Mike Whorf will open the 1983-84 Town Hall Series Oct. 5 at the Penn Theatre.

November celebrity guest speaker will be Jim Hoke author and hypnotist.

Whorf leads off Town Hall Series

Mike Whorf will open the Plymouth Town Hall Series Wednesday, Oct. 5, in the Penn Theatre. Whorf was writer, producer and narrator of radio station WJR's award-winning program, "Kaleidoscope." He has received radio's highest honor in broadcasting, the Peabody Award.

The topic for his Wednesday morning Town Hall talk will be "America on Parade." He will incorporate poetry, prose and song, with piano accompaniment, into his program. Ronald Houser will provide musical accompaniment on the piano.

Season tickets for the four-part lecture series arranged by the Friends of the Plymouth Y now are available. Orders should be mailed to: Janet McKelvey, PO Box 14, Plymouth 48170. Regular season tickets are $25 for the series. Patron tickets at $35 for the season ensure reserved seats and patrons' names are listed in the program. Patron requests must be received before Aug. 1 to have names listed in the program.

Reservations for the celebrity luncheons immediately after the lectures may be made now. Town Hallers have an opportunity to present questions to the celebrity speakers at the luncheon in the Mayflower Meeting House. Tickets for the four luncheons are $30. Requests should be to Clara Camp, luncheon series chairman, PO Box 134, Plymouth, Mich. 48170.

Checks for the lectures and the luncheons should be payable to Friends of the Y.

TOWN HALL dates are Oct. 5, Nov. 2, Feb. 1 and March 7. All are at 10:30 a.m. in the Penn Theatre on Penniman, Plymouth. The Friends of the Y promise an exciting and entertaining season.

Author Jim Hoke will speak in November. His split-second ability to put people into a hypnotic trances has amazed television audiences across the nation. His book, "I Would If I Could and I Can," is a best seller. Hoke punctuates his positive success gospel with hypnosis, showing audiences how to generate the positive emotional power of a winner. His topic will be "You Would If You Could — Here's How You Can."

Nila Magidoff's topic in February will be "Everyday Life in the Soviet Union." She will tell how the people in her native Russia are becoming "Americanized" and of the growing resurgence of religion and the underground press.

Syndicated columnist Susan Bondy will be the March celebrity. Her twice-weekly "Money Matters" column appears in more than 400 newspapers, coast-to-coast. As a nationally recognized money expert, she is a consultant to major corporations and financial institutions. Her talk is called "Money — Making It — Growing It — Keeping It."

TICKETS for individual lectures go on sale Sept. 17 at $7.50 per person.

Free parking is available to season ticket holders. Tables for luncheon groups may be reserved in advance by calling 453-8865.

The Friends of the Y initiated the Plymouth Town Hall Series last year. Profits from the series go to the Plymouth YMCA building fund.

Nila Magidoff, February speaker, will talk about her native Russia, as it is today.

Susan Bondy, syndicated columnist and financial expert will talk about money matters in March.

Oasis bats sound off for victory

Golf Center put on a hitting spree last week, blasting Buddy's in a Livonia Parks and Recreation women's softball game at Bicentennial Park.

The winners opened the scoring in the second inning when Joanne Petrus singled, advanced to second base on a sacrifice by Shelley Larned, and scored on a single by Joni Sommerville.

Oasis then put the game away by adding seven runs in the sixth on four hits and five walks.

Ric Van Dyke of Plymouth rides aboard 'Dixie' during Sunday's equestrian event at Nature's Last Stand Stable. Competition was held in dressage, cross country and stadium jumping.

Livonia girl tops area horse riders at Nature Stable

Fifty-eight riders from around the state and Midwest gathered under a hot sun and clear skies in Salem Township Sunday for the second event of the Michigan Combined Training Association's (MCTA) season.

Riders competed in six divisions in the competition, which was also a selection trial for the national team meet in October in Gladstone, N.J., site of the U.S. Equestrian Team's headquarters.

Laura Sobell of Lexington was the top rider in the Open

Long-distance running is an individual sport, but teamwork is beneficial according to Racquets Unlimited owner Ben Tashich.

ate, is best suited for events ranging from 6.2 to 10 miles. 'After two years I'm trying to make a comeback,' he said.

'Is running a fad or lifestyle?' questions Tashich. 'Are you running or racing?' The beauty of it is that Joe No Name can line up at Boston with Bill Rodgers and nobody cares.

TASHICH has assembled a team with an eye for the finish line. Since September, Racquets Unlimited has competed in 41 races.

Dave King's 'Elvis' moving into big time

Dave King in his 'Tribute to Elvis' stage show, featuring the Original Ditties, will be presented at 7:30 tonight at Premier Center in Sterling Heights.

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

EXCEPT FOR HIS heavy-lidded, soulful brown eyes, entertainer Dave King doesn't look much like Elvis Presley.

THE DITTIES are to the '60s what Sha-Na-Na is to the '50s,' he said of the nostalgic-oriented band that is part of his show.

THE PLYMOUTH-CANTON High School art teacher (real name Dave Paluzzi) has been doing an Elvis show since 1974.

BOTH KING and most of the group called the Original Ditties, who are part of his expanded act, are from Livonia.

Center in Sterling Heights. Originally, two shows were planned, but because of the Detroit fireworks, the late show has been canceled.

'The Ditties are to the '60s what Sha-Na-Na is to the '50s,' he said of the nostalgic-oriented band that is part of his show.

For his big show, King has expanded the five-piece Ditties band to 12-14 pieces. He also has added a horn section, female and male vocalists and three or four extra people who handle lights, sound engineering and other tasks.

What's the most difficult part about imitating Elvis? 'For years I played Top 40 music in lounges,' King said, explaining that the voice was easy.

'We feel we have at this point a true Las Vegas show,' King emphasized at the Premier Center. 'I was born and grew up in Livonia,' King said.

Backup vocalists are Catherine Belle and John Anthony, both from the Ann Arbor area.

King lives in Ann Arbor with his wife Jill. The couple, who first met at Eastern Michigan University, have been married 12 years.

'I have received my package and video and have expressed interest,' the soft-spoken King said, in reference to Sun City.

The schoolteacher/performer has been teaching art at Plymouth-Canton since 1971. He enjoys teaching and working with young people and doesn't plan to give up that career.

He also writes and performs his own country-pop songs. 'Impersonating Presley is a stepping-stone in his musical career,' he believes.

In the meantime, he's happy doing his tribute to Elvis, accepting bookings during the summer and other holidays.

'I HAD TO study his moves. And I do the snarl, the pony' 'mp,' he said.

Currently in negotiation are show dates for King and the Ditties to play the new Livonia HomeDome.

'They have received my package and video and have expressed interest,' the soft-spoken King said, in reference to Sun City.

Fireworks will soar at 25th Freedom Festival

The United States and Canada will celebrate 25 years of the International Freedom Festival with a fireworks display over the Detroit River.

More than one million people are expected to share in the silver anniversary celebration.

THE MAIN fireworks show will feature more than eight tons of fireworks and equipment.

The 30-minute show will be produced by Jim Soggi, president of American Fireworks Co.

The public will be able to watch the event from all points along the Detroit River.

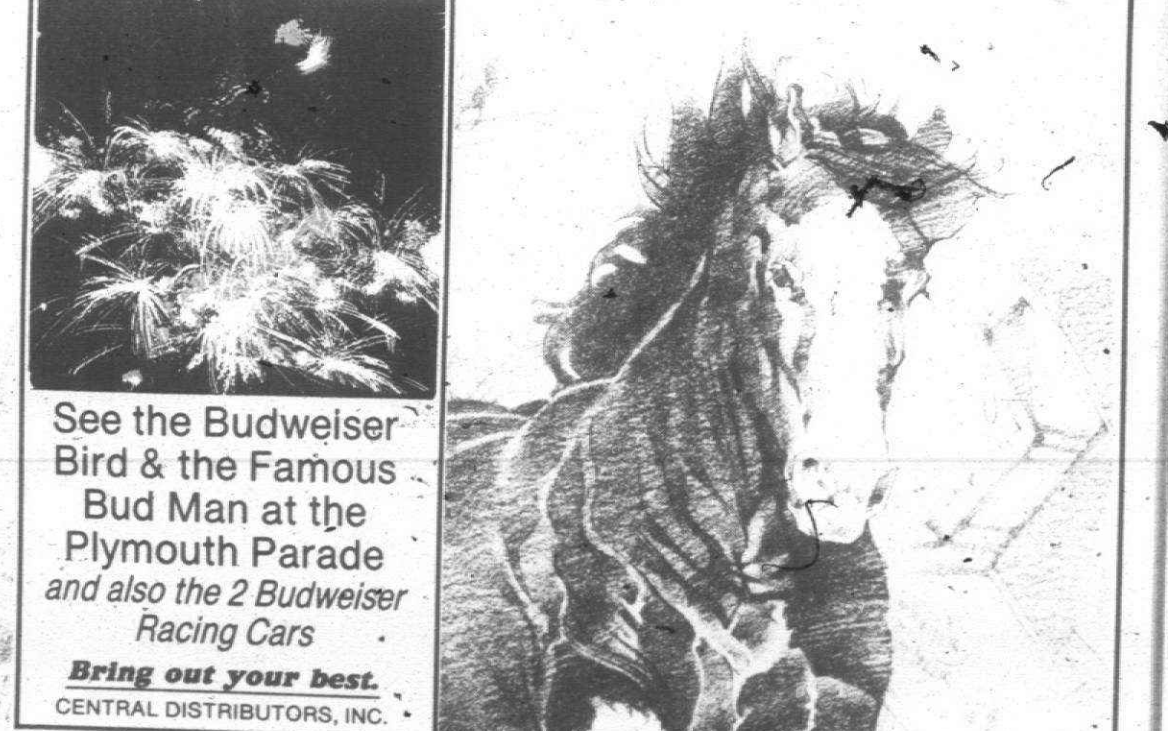

FOOD AND beverage concessions and restrooms will be available on both sides of the river.

For more information on the fireworks, call the Magic hotline at 298-6200.

In case of inclement weather, the fireworks will be held Friday at the same time.

MEADOW BROOK "Hee Haw" star Roy Clark will perform Friday at the Meadow Brook Music Festival on the Oakland University campus near Rochester. The Irish Rovers appear Saturday, along with folk-pops singer Tom Paxton, who wrote their hit "Wasn't That a Party."

JULY JAZZ The George Benson Quartet will open Jazz in July, the outdoor series returning this summer to the Bloomfield Township Public Library, 1099 Lone Pine. Benson's concert will be at 2 p.m. Sunday on the library lawn. Benson has backed many stars, such as Aretha Franklin and Tony Bennett, and has recorded with virtually all the artists who made Motown Records the dominant force in popular music in the 1960s.

JAZZ CONCERTS Doug Jacobs and the Red Garter Band play at 6:30 tonight, fireworks night, on the terrace of Detroit's Hotel Pontchartrain. General admission is $7. Children under 12 are $3. Fireworks rain date is Friday. The group steps ahead, featuring Michael Brecker, Peter Erskine, Eddie Gomez, Mike Mainieri and Elaine Elias, performs at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. Reserved seats are $5, general admission $7. Call 965-0200 for information.

STAR THEATRE Comedy star Martha Raye as the greedy Miss Hannigan heads the cast of the Broadway musical "Annie," opening Tuesday at the Star Theatre of Flint. "Annie" runs through Sunday, July 10, at the White Auditorium, Sandy, the original dog from the Broadway production, also is in the show (and earning $1,000 a week). For ticket information, call 239-1464.

JEDI ADVENTURE CENTER In the spirit of the Star Wars saga, Westland Center is presenting the Jedi Adventure Center, Friday through Sunday, July 10, in the East Court. It will be open during mall hours.

Second runs Tom Panzenhagen WHAT'S IT WORTH? A ratings guide to the movies

"Bedtime Story" (1964), 1 p.m. Friday on Ch. 50. Originally 99 minutes. How did Marlon Brando ever get himself into "Bedtime Story"? For that matter, what are David Niven and Shirley Jones doing in this archaic film about playboys who wager on which of them can bed a budding debutante first? The script has "sophisticated comedy" written all over it, but it's difficult to conceive of who ever could have considered this film sophisticated or funny.

"My Friend Flicka" (1943), 11:30 a.m. Sunday on Ch. 50. Originally 96 minutes. Preston Foster plays a rancher disturbed by his son's attraction to a half-breed horse in this Harold Schuster film. The Arianciprinciples of the superiority of thoroughbreds espoused by Foster are scary given the year this film was made, and one wonders whether that philosophy was tangential to the plot or whether the screenwriter purposely introduced it in order to debunk that doctrine by film's end. At any rate, it's a good film.

For gourmet travelers Tour to focus on Italy's wining, dining highlights

TWO BLOOMFIELD HILLS women will lead food-and-wine tours into Italy this fall. Cynthia Wybranowski and Maryangela Bassi, who operate under the name Cynthia's Cuisine, will explore the restaurants, vineyards and special attractions of Piemonte Oct. 3-12 and Veneto Oct. 14-22.

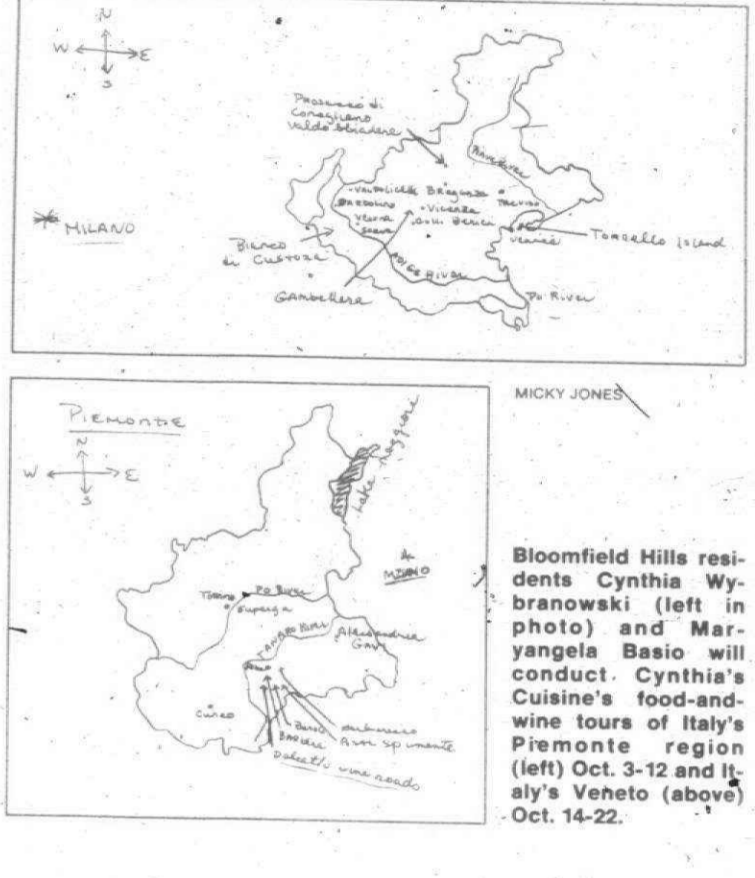

The trip's organizers have never organized or led a tour group before, but they have a passion for good food and have created an itinerary designed to give you an insiders' view of the classical Italian dinner table.

TOUR PARTICIPANTS will fly on Alitalia Airlines from Detroit to Milan Sunday, Oct. 2. Cynthia and Maryangela will be waiting for them with a chauffeured bus. They will drive to Sorisio and spend the day exploring restaurants, wine museums, vineyards and scenery on the way to Torino.

Highlights of the 10-day Piemonte trip (it's known in English as Piedmont) include a mini-tour of the cafes of Torino; a visit to the vineyards of Angelo Gaja, producer of Barbaresco wines; a meeting with wine authority Renato Ratti; a tour down the "Dolcetta Wine Road" through vineyards and tasting centers; meals at a fine regional restaurant.

MARYANGELO'S research and boisterous enthusiasm will tell you everything you want to know about regional cuisine, and more. Whether this is enough to assure you that the bus will arrive on time or the itinerary will run on schedule, I don't know.

THE VENETO tour will focus on the same food and wine experience, but of course the food and wine will be different, and a highlight of the trip will be a visit to Venice. Seafood specialties, the Veneto risotto, an international wine

Post-1850 architecture is satisfying to owners

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

It looks more like a house out of a Mark Twain novel than a law office. Its peaks, glass doors and curving porch seem to belong to a bygone era, not one which has cars and trucks rushing by toward the nearby I-75 freeway.

Indeed, the Klein and Bloom law office at 39040 Seven Mile Road in Livonia is from a different era. The building is an example of the Queen Anne style of architecture that was popular between 1880 and 1900.

Most of the architecture in the area is geared to the styles of the mid- to late 1800s, according to Livonia architect Bob Seymour. The law office is just one example.

"The buildings are there and they're going to stay," Seymour said. "It's a matter of maintenance more than anything else."

A HOME ON Newburgh in Westland is of the octagon style, popular between 1850 and 1860.

"That's one of the few in Michigan," Seymour said. "There's only eight or 10 in the state."

Octagon features include an encircling porch and cupola. The inventor of the style, Orson Fowler, believed the beauty of the design could be found in its functional interior and the eight different views it allowed.

Hill House, part of the 104-acre Greenmead historical development in Livonia, is an example of the Greek revival style of 1820-1860 that featured columns.

Seymour hears a lot of reasons for restoration of old buildings. Twenty percent of his business involves restoration work, he estimates.

"SOMETIMES clients fall in love with a style and want to keep it, and don't care what it's going to cost, or they recognize its historic value," Seymour said. "It's hard to say. It varies from client to client."

Restoration takes a variety of forms: rehabilitation, which involves repairing a building, bringing it up to current standards and making it useable; remodeling, making changes to make it liveable; and pure restoration, modeling it in the style of a specific time period.

"REMODELING is like saving what you like," Seymour explained. "With restoration, you're really concerned about the history of a building — who owned it, what developments it has been through."

Gary Bloom, a partner in Klein and Bloom, said the office was restored partly because of his presidency of the Franklin Historical Society.

"It's kind of a landmark," he laughed. "When I tell people where I work, they say, 'You mean in that old house?'"

"When it was built, it was nice," Bloom continued. "We restored the wood and followed the floor plan. We made the basement into a law library."

WORKING ON the Detroit United Railroad waiting room in Greenmead, built between 1900 and 1920, was like a "detective story," Seymour said.

"We found something we didn't expect to find," he said. For example, outlines of stairways on the wall showed there were two floor levels and not just one.

Work on the Rowe House in Westland showed that walls had been removed and that the structure had been on fire several times.

Seymour has worked with many architectural styles but doesn't have a favorite type.

"Each one is a little different," he said. "Variety is what I prefer. I enjoy doing new buildings."

This former home now houses a law office in one of the most distinctive buildings in the area. Constructed in the Queen Anne style popular after the Civil War, the structure has the graciousness of another era.

Below: Photos show the kind of detailing that is found in the Klein and Bloom law office building. The windows were encased by design work which added to the rich appearance of the building.

Staff photos by Jim Jagdfeld

This house in Westland is of the eight-sided octagon style, popular between 1850 and 1860. It is believed to be one of eight or 10 in the state. The designer lauded its functional interior and the eight different views the house afforded.

Lessons in art

Pastels bright with color win awards

By David Messing
special writer

Picture a teen-age girl in white Levis and a powder-blue top. She comes into my store for her art lesson. Checking the list of lessons she sees she is to try pastels, for today's lesson.

Confidentially she starts her beginning sketch. As the forms take shape she begins blocking in a few colors, stepping back to look at her drawing in deep concentration, she rests her hands on her hips, leaving colorful-fingerprints.

Energetically she scrubs in large areas of color, creating a cloud of colored smoke which rises from her paper. The dust tends to tickle the nose so she daintily rubs her nose, here too leaving a streak of color. With all the colors "blocked" in she sees that much of the details are temporarily lost.

Breaking into a sweat, she pushes her sleeves up on her arms, leaving multicolored sleeves. By now the real work of art is on her rather than in front of her.

Artifacts

AND SO it goes, as frustrations set in. Finally, after her lesson, she leaves looking much like a living-color-wheel.

Of course this frustration can happen in any media, but only in pastel is the frustration of mind and hand so graphically displayed on face and body.

In the order of my lesson plans, pastels are usually the first stumbling block. First of all what are pastels? Color is often referred to as pigment. Pigment in an oil base is known as oil paint. Pigment in a resin or plastic base is known as acrylic. Pigment in a casien or tempera base is known as watercolor. And finally pigment in a glue base is known as pastel.

Now the quality ranges according to the amount of pigment in the glue. Less expensive pastels have an addition to chalk to the glue base. These are most common (even though they are dusty) because they are economical. A set of 48 colors costs about $11.50.

Pure pigment pastels are my favorite, and they are a pleasant step up after you have used the lesser quality pastels. A 30 half-stick assortment of pure pastels cost around $14.95. It is still best to start with a lower quality set because when you begin artwork in color it is best to have a wide range of colors.

START WITH a paper that has somewhat of a tooth to it. Now you can make background colors with pastels or use colored paper. First line draw the basic shapes of your subject in vine charcoal and make corrections with a kneaded eraser.

Vine charcoal is merely a charred piece of wood, and it makes a warm, gray line. A kneaded eraser is an artist's best friend and my dog's favorite treat. It is soft and pliable, and when it gets dirty you stretch or "knead" it until it becomes clean.

One of my art students, Angie, holds the official "Art store and more kneaded eraser stretch" record. . . 18 feet, and my standard poodle has eaten at least $14.85 worth of kneaded erasers during her seven years. So much for kneaded erasers.

AFTER YOUR LINE drawing looks complete begin "blocking" in the main colors. Blocking means putting in large areas of color with a minimum of care or accuracy. Then mix your colors by stroking one over the other. The back of a bluebird for example is a rich blue so make a base color of a similar blue.

To lighten the area, simply stroke a lighter blue over the base color. This is similar to painting. Dark colors shade the base color, and light colors tint or lighten the base color.

Local lensman captures elusive sulphur butterfly

Gary Zimmerman, a longtime Livonia resident, has been taking photographs seriously for 10 years.

When not performing his responsibilities as sales engineer for the F. Jos. Lamb Co. of Warren, Zimmerman is out shooting a subject at which he has become very accomplished — butterflies and moths.

This photograph is a sulphur butterfly which Zimmerman took with his Canon A-1 camera, 135 mm lens, and an extension bellows to get him in close.

Kodachrome 25 was his choice of film. By his using a strobe unit as the light source, the butterfly was not only perfectly lit, but flash buff-off caused the background to "blackout" for a very pleasing effect.

SOME ADVICE from Zimmerman to budding photographers, "Join one of the many camera clubs in the area. They've taught me much of what I know. Nowhere else can you find good camaraderie and a great learning environment."

Zimmerman himself is past president of the Livonia Camera Club and has become a top competitor in international photographic salons. In fact, he has already been classified as a "star" ranked photo exhibitor, a feat not easily attained.

Zimmerman's photographic future? He'd like to continue with nature photography and expand into slide manipulation. "I enjoy doing diazochromes (adding color to transparencies)."

Outdoors is brought indoors

Homeowners create an eclectic city/country look

By Corinne Abalt staff writer
A country home bordering on the rustic in Franklin Village was turned into an art collector's dream by Birmingham interior designers Jane Levy Mettler and Joel Stephen Mettler.

The dining room provides a blend of periods and styles. Chippendale-style chairs and contemporary table of high-gloss lacquer with steel base, designed by the Mettlers, seem completely at home with Oriental and modern art.

Art lesson: using pastels

drawing is not the beginning structure. The finishing details, such as the middle, this stage looks messy, is somewhat confusing, and most often arouses fears of failure.

MANY FINISHED pastels are very light and almost a ghost image of the subject, but the pastels that we are talking about here are rich with color. So don't be afraid to press hard on the pastel stick and don't spend a fortune buying hundreds of colors. Make the right colors, by blending them one over the other.

additions before the present owners acquired it. Like many Franklin settings, in the past it had attracted horse owners and the interior reflected that interest.

BUT THE PRESENT owners are more art than animal, more house than horse-oriented, so one of the first projects was to replace the rough sawn cedar siding in many of the rooms with wet plaster.

THE DOOR frames in the dining room at the front walk in the Japanese garden which this spring was full of white and apricot azaleas in full bloom.

THIS MADE THE eclectic atmosphere of the living room work beautifully. There is a huge Jules Olitsky painting on one wall, a fine, large Milton Avery over the black slate fireplace, African sculpture and some excellent examples of oriental porcelain in the living room.

you are forced to render details. Here pastels feel very 'stumpy' and hard to handle.

Bill Anderson, artist, is seen working on a painting of a landscape.

and durable taupe fabric, work well with two Mies van der Rohe chairs. Fortunately the designers were able to match the dark brown-burgundy tile in the foyer so it could be carried into the living room and dining room.

THE LIVING room rug, made especially for this room by Edward Fields, is a sculptured, natural cashmere color, or all wool with a velvety lushness to its contrasting textures.

THE MIXTURE of choice pieces from different periods and cultures combined with contemporary continues in the dining room where the glass-topped table designed by the Mettlers, on a steel base is paired with Chippendale chairs and an oriental screen and rug.

SAYING THE OWNERS are very conscious of the landscape, Mettler noted the presence of a cutting garden of annuals just outside the kitchen door, a vegetable garden out of sight at the far end of the property and the landscaping to shelter the side of the pool away from the house.

Now the best for last - pastel on velvet. I know the mental image which comes to most people when they hear the word velvet. But try it, you'll like it. Most of my students have really enjoyed it - some have sold them for $55 even before they were finished.

Bill Anderson, artist, is seen working on a painting of a landscape.

Particularly pleasing to the designers is the continuing change and vitality of the living room.

The living room illustrates the close tie between the indoors and the landscaped patio and pool area beyond. The soft, warm taupe shades of the matching sofas and sculptured rug set the scene for the brilliant colors of the modern art and oriental porcelain.
