Iva Levangie, owner of Cake Depot in Canton, finishes with flair the three-tier cake she's donating for Saturday night's Sesquicentennial Ball at the UAW Hall. More than 200 people are expected to don their forebears' outfits and eat, drink, dance and be merry at the gala, old-time event.

Have a ball at the Ball!

Belles in long dresses and beaux in top hats and tails will be waiting till the wee hours Saturday night at a ball planned to commemorate Canton's 150th year. Cocktails, appetizers, a buffet dinner and birthday cake, entertainment and dancing are on tap beginning at 6 p.m. at the UAW Hall on Michigan Avenue. Tickets are available at township hall for $17.50.

The event will cap a historic week for Canton. It was March 7, 1834 that President Andrew Jackson alighted from a stagecoach in the Territory of Michigan to help celebrate the founding of Canton Township.

Police, firefighters, DPW workers and township officials hosted open houses Wednesday to mark the occasion. At town hall festivities that evening, "President Jackson" reappeared and congratulated Cantonites on the sesquicentennial.

Good wishes are pouring in from far and near. U.S. cities and towns also named Canton are sending letters, proclamations, maps, and flags. Closer to home, the chamber of commerce and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools have passed resolutions in observance of the township's "150 years of illustrious and noteworthy existence."

You can salute Canton, too. Attend the Sesquicentennial Ball and relive the days when visiting Detroit (population 9,102) meant traveling plank roads on horseback; when taking a break from farm work meant dancing to Finney's Orchestra, tiddly-winks and Pedro card games (never mind the ministers' admonishments), and when America's Underground Railway thrived in these parts.

Security firm says no to joint cable TV plan

Omnicom launches another search

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

The ADT security firm has decided against joining with Omnicom Cablevision to provide home security for local residents.

Omnicom had hoped to form a joint venture with ADT to provide long-promised security service in the next few months.

But Steve Larson, Canton trustee, recently was informed ADT has bowed out for financial reasons. That information came from Peter Newell, a senior vice president for Capital Cities Corp., which owns Omnicom.

Larson, a member of Canton's cable advisory committee, recently asked Newell to make a progress report to Canton's board of trustees on the cable home-security system. Omnicom, which has franchise agreements with Canton, Plymouth and Northville, has promised optional home security for these communities, but the system never has been implemented.

"I'm not willing to let this die," Larson said. "Pete (Newell) is going to other security systems in the country to see if the response is the same."

ADT, SAID to be the oldest and largest security firm in the country, is currently testing a wireless home security system which transmits over radio frequency. According to Larson, the firm will continue testing in White Plains, N.Y., and not expand into any other markets for now.

The failure of Omnicom and ADT to reach agreement "doesn't bode well" for implementation of the home security service in the near future, Larson said.

The proposed security plan, as included in the franchise agreements, calls for burglar and fire alarms, as well as medical alert. The ADT proposal had called for a wireless unit in the subscriber's home which could transmit emergency calls over radio frequency.

The calls would go through Omnicom cable lines to ADT who would, in turn, call the police, fire or emergency medical service.

Newell recently told Canton officials he has been unable to find a security firm capable or willing to provide the service at an affordable cost.

While Newell had projected a cost of $895 for installation, and around $20 per month to monitor the system, other companies were pegging costs in the $2,000-$3,000 range, he said.

ACCORDING TO Larson, many firms are reluctant to risk a costly lawsuit, in the event the equipment or system fails during a call for help. Newell has acknowledged cost and liability are key issues.

Larson, while admitting the proposed home security plan is largely experimental, and a "huge job," believes Omnicom has not moved fast enough to fulfill its agreement.

The existing system is built to accept a two-way plan, and could use ADT equipment, according to Larson.

"All you need is a magic box in our house that can electronically inquire. Is everything okay?"

"But Omnicom would have to take a greater role than they want," Larson said. "You have to have a foolproof system, or as nearly foolproof as you can."

The liability is what is getting them nervous."

Rick Coleman, Omnicom general manager, pointed out that there are no cable-firm home security systems in operation in the metropolitan area, and few in the country. He believes the market for such service is small.

"The market isn't really there," Coleman said. "It has to be economically viable for both the cable company and the security firm. It isn't easy."

ANOTHER OPTION, which Larson calls a "remote possibility," would be

School's closing means transfers, shifts in services

A sensitive subject drew dozens to the Plymouth-Canton school board meeting at Tanger Elementary School Monday night. So delicate was the topic that it never was stated per se. The agenda read, "Change in use of Starkweather School for 1984-85 school year." Discussion was introduced as "combining Starkweather and Tanger schools."

But the bottom line? Starkweather Elementary School will close at the end of this school year. It's virtually assured school board members will approve the action at Monday's session.

Officials gave teachers, students and parents — many of them puzzled and upset — numerous reasons for recommending the move, which will affect hundreds of students.

THE REASONS include:

- housing patterns and declining enrollment, particularly in the area surrounding Tanger and Starkweather elementary;
- long-term district needs;
- cost effectiveness; and
- a below-optimum number of students at Starkweather and Tanger that currently forces the grouping together of students who otherwise would be separated for behavioral or social reasons.

Shirley Spaniel, executive director of elementary education, said increased student population at Tanger would mean more support services, such as library availability and reading services.

Savings will be realized on expenses presently incurred for cafeteria workers, aides and crossing guards, she added.

"Also, we would like to have a full-time administrator available to boys and girls at all times. From a supervision standpoint, consolidating enrollments makes the most sense," she said. Presently, Carrol Nichols is principal of both Starkweather and Tanger. Student enrollment for next year is projected to be 347 at Tanger and 469 at Farrand.

Sentencing due in traffic death

A Plymouth Township woman will be sentenced April 4 after pleading guilty to manslaughter in the traffic death of a Canton man last year.

Jeanne Koziarski, 38, of Turtlehead, recently pleaded guilty before Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Joseph Sulivan.

Lawrence Konkol, 33, of Manton

Drive, Canton, died Jan. 27, 1983 following a collision with Koziarski's vehicle on Ford Road east of Lilley. Police tests indicated Koziarski was legally intoxicated at the time of the crash.

Maximum penalty on the manslaughter charge is 15 years imprisonment.

Birthday girl is 103

Adelaide Duffy was calm and collected when she celebrated her 103rd birthday Sunday at Whispering Willows nursing home in Canton. Duffy, who was born on a farm outside Newport, is the widow of attorney Charles Duffy. Her son, Patrick of Redford, and residents of the nursing home helped mark the special occasion. Asked what enabled his mother, who is hard of hearing, to live so long, Duffy said, "You'd have to ask a scientist who studies genetics."

Wayne-Westland School District

The district serves southeast Canton

By Sandra Armbruster
staff writer

Officials from the Wayne County Intermediate School District and the state Department of Education have begun an audit of the Wayne-Westland district's student accounting figures. It is unknown when the audit will be completed.

This is the first time that the state has joined the ISD in the annual audit. The decision to do so was reached after reports were published outlining discrepancies in last year's audit of adult/community education enrollment. Those 1982-83 figures will be reviewed by state auditors.

Auditors began work last Thursday and are expected to continue "through this week and possibly into next week," said Dan Sise, executive director for student relations.

He described the audit as very thorough, with two officials from the Michigan Department of Education and three from the ISD "going through the books with a fine tooth comb."

Back taxes spur city rescue plan

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

The city of Plymouth has offered to lend a helping hand to a Mill Street company struggling to pay off its debts in U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

The company, Bathys Manufacturing, 100 S. Mill, owes the city $59,595 in back taxes. In early 1983 the company, which still is operating, filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 in the Eastern District bankruptcy court.

Instead of stretching payments over 56 months to the city, as ordered by the court, the city has asked the company to sell eighth-tenths of an acre owned by the company. The land is behind the company on the northern tip of its property, near Amelia, Mill and the C & O Railroad tracks.

The city, in turn, would sell the land (zoned heavy industrial) and pay off the company's tax bill, said City Manager Henry Graper.

Graper highlighted the proposal at Monday's City Commission meeting, saying the proposal had been made by letter that day and that the company

State probes district enrollment discrepancies

These officials also are conducting private interviews with teachers and staff members without Wayne-Westland officials present. She said. On site inspections of adult/continuing education programs are expected.

"We expect vast improvement in this audit over the sloppy record keeping of last year," said Dr. Timothy Dyer in a written statement he read at Monday's board meeting.

Dyer later said that the statement was requested by the board of education to outline the "official position of the administration" on the controversy.

TRAINING IN attendance record keeping is expected to eliminate problems that occurred last year when students who had never attended class were counted as enrolled.

"Any unusual discrepancies in the records (this year) will be the result of incompetence or fraud, either of which will be addressed most directly," Dyer continued in his statement.

After conducting his own investigation, Dyer ordered administrative changes. Those included the division of the adult/community education department into four units — Nankin Mills, Tinkham Extension, Wayne Memorial and preschool.

"Each unit is now responsible for its own work report and student count. In addition, each unit is evaluated by a different cabinet member," according to the statement.

RESPONSIBILITY for some programs, payroll and student accounting was shifted from Dr. James Lombard, assistant superintendent for adult/continuing education, to other areas.

Dyer explained that "very cumbersome" management practices were discovered in adult education shifts at the William D. Ford Vocational Education Center.

Historically, individual principals never had control over adult vocational programs when they were offered at the high schools. That practice was continued when the vocational center opened, and Ford Principal John Lange was given responsibility for the first and second shifts only.

The split responsibilities resulted in "considerable difference in management" styles, according to Dyer, in such areas as record keeping.

"Until last year, I had no reason to be concerned," Dyer said. He added that when auditors brought management problems to his attention, he didn't believe them at first.

"It didn't take me long to figure out they were right," Dyer said.

The entire operation of the Ford Center is now under Lange's responsibility, placing an "administrator on duty at night all the time," Dyer added.

PAYROLL PROCESSING also has been shifted to the employee relations department, which handles all other workers in the district. Previously, part-time teachers, who may only work 12 hours or less, were processed by Lombard's department.

During the last year all the functions of posting positions, placement and payroll were "folded into" the employee relations department, Dyer said. The payroll for those part-time teachers was put on the district's computer at that time.

In addition, student enrollment counts are now handled by the student relations department, which already had responsibility for kindergarten through 12th grade enrollment.

And Deputy Superintendent Dr. Dennis O'Neill was directed to monitor the department's operations.

MORE CHANGES may be in store for the adult/community education department, according to Dyer. He said that he will recommend to whomsoever is selected as the new superintendent in the district that it be combined with the general education department under Dr. Clarice Stafford.

"We're not going to have two superintendents directing that department," Dyer told the board.

In preparation for that move, Lombard's request for reassignment from an assistant superintendent to the Wayne-Westland Association of Building Administrators was approved by the board Monday night.

Approval came despite objections from some board members that Lombard will receive the same salary and benefits for two years before facing a reduction. The payout is provided for in a wage agreement with cabinet members.

DYER WHO had previously issued a "severe reprimand" to Lombard for his handling of student counts, said the transfer has no connection with the current controversy.

"Even before I knew I was leaving, Jim and I were talking and looking at his department," Dyer said. "He is aware of the necessity for doing this."

Since cabinet members require a 90-day notice before the end of the school year for a change in status, Lombard decided to place his request now, Dyer said.

A separate department was established for adult and community education during a period of rapid growth, according to Dyer. In 1976, there were 1,230 students enrolled in its programs. Enrollment peaked in 1981 with 4,073 students. Current enrollment is 2,338. Actual numbers of students enrolled is larger. Since most students attend part time, their status is calculated according to a formula and added to that of other part-time students to come up with full-time equivalents.

ANOTHER department which may eventually be merged is student relations.

"At the moment, it's not wise because special education is so volatile," Dyer said. "But in the future, I expect a new person will look at that, too."

The superintendent said that most districts combine those functions all under an assistant superintendent for instruction.

"Growth was so tremendous" they were split up, Dyer said. Now, however, "times have changed, and it's a luxury we can't afford."

Firm backs out of home security plan for the cable system to be hooked into the township's proposed central police-fire dispatch system. That joint system is expected to be established when a new police station is built in the next year or so.

"I don't want the township (to assume responsibility) but if that's what it takes..." Larson said.

Larson said he wants more discussions with the police and fire departments and the township board before proceeding on such a plan.

"It will ultimately be the only way to get the service," Larson said. "There is going to be a price tag, there is no question."

Clerk John Flodin expressed skepticism about the feasibility of such a plan.

"If private industry can't do it, how can we do it?" Flodin said. "If there was a profit to be made, they would do it."

Man faces drug charge

Canton police have charged a 29-year-old Garden City man with possession of cocaine.

Bernard Dean Spring of Sheridan was arraigned last weekend at the outcounty branch of the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office. He stood mute and a not guilty plea was entered in his behalf.

Spring, who is free on $2,000 bond, faces a Thursday, March 15, preliminary examination in 55th District Court to determine if there is enough evidence to bind him over for trial.

According to Canton police Sgt. Alex

Wilson, Spring was arrested early Saturday morning after running a red light at Michigan Avenue and Sheldon. The arrest was made by a Plymouth police officer working on a regional drunk-driving patrol force, assisted by a Canton officer.

The officers confiscated syringes, a small quantity of marijuana and a quarter-ounce of white powdery substance, later identified as cocaine, Wilson said.

Possession of cocaine is a felony punishable by five years in prison upon conviction.

DIA has slide show for kids

The Detroit Institute of Arts is offering eight free slide presentations this year to fourth, fifth and sixth graders in the metropolitan area.

Co-ordinated by The Art to the Schools Committee, trained volunteers bring slides of DIA art objects into the classroom and lead a discussion of them with the students.

Interested teachers can call the DIA to arrange a presentation.

The volunteers undergo a year-long training program given by Michael Farrell, art history professor, and various curators from the DIA education department.

Transfers planned for students

Stoneybrook Apartments and the area extending to the C&O railroad track will remain at Tanger. Students in the current Tanger attendance area excluding Honeytree and Stoneybrook — numbering about 100 — will go to Farrand.

12 youngsters residing in an area bounded by Ann Arbor Trail, Main Street, and the C&O railroad track will be moved from Starkweather to Smith.

180 Starkweather students will be transferred to Tanger.

Students whose homes are located off Five Mile Road will attend Farrand. Transfers elsewhere in the district are planned: All Ixister sixth graders (93 students) will be transferred to Pioneer. Students who live in Brentwood Estates, a new subdivision bounded by Ford, Saltz, Oakley and Aberdeen, will go to Ixister.

Dr. John Hoben, superintendent, said as the population moves further south, Tanger will probably close.

"We projected Tanger and Starkweather would close at the end of this year," he said. "We're attempting to get more stability with this move."

That is the basic rationale involved in picking Tanger kids to go to Farrand.

OFFICIALS attempted to field an arsenal of questions fired at them by the audience.

A Union Street resident said, "If you want to do this, you can. But I don't believe your concern is the students. I believe it's money. How do you explain to your child the reasons why he's one of 12 students who are going somewhere else? How does that fit in?"

Spaniel answered that the area is contiguous to Smith School boundaries, and that change is intended to achieve stability over the long term.

A Riverside resident said he was "very upset" kids are not being taken to the first or second nearest school.

"I'm concerned about my daughter missing her bus, especially in light of the problem in Detroit lately with school girls being raped. Are you going to walk her home? I think these boundaries are not drawn properly."

"In developing boundaries, there is always a problem," responded Glenn Schroeder, school board president. "We don't always make everyone happy."

Popcorn Popper! by Doc Keeth
The other day, one of the most important people in the world (a potential customer), stopped in and asked if he could see a LENNOX PULSE FURNACE.

Yes sir, right this way. I proceeded to point out various features exclusive to the LENNOX PULSE FURNACE before we which delivers 97 cents worth of heat per fuel dollar.

The gentleman asked if I could turn it on so he could hear it in operation. I told him it is running. He went on to say he has been told by a brand X furnace dealer that the PULSE FURNACE sounded like a popcorn popper and the only sound he could hear was a low hum.

Of course, I pointed out that the hum was the sound of saving money.

He must have like what he saw and heard, he bought it, we installed it and at last report, he had a big smile and a small gas bill.

The LENNOX PULSE FURNACE can slash your fuel cost too! So come to see, place and hear the little sucker hum the "sound of savings" for you.

Milt Mack feels double-crossed by Lucas

Two of William Lucas' best political friends publicly chastised the Wayne County executive as the County Commission overrode his veto of an ordinance governing the county hospital.

"It's a double-cross. It stinks," said Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, who had defended the executive's two previous vetoes but backed the override this time.

"It was a double-cross," said Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, sponsor of the ordinance and chief advocate of Keeping Wayne County General Hospital in Westland under county ownership. "It's gratifying the long, agonizing process has come to an end."

THE COMMISSION last week gave 10-1 approval to what they thought was a compromise ordinance setting up a governing board for the county hospital after Lucas had vetoed two earlier efforts — one in 1983 and one this year.

Four members were absent, including Richard Manning, D-Redford.

After the second veto, three suburban commissioners — Mary Dumas, R-Livonia, Manning and Mack — negotiated a compromise that appeared acceptable to Lucas. The Commission adopted the compromise ordinance two weeks ago.

Lucas vetoed it anyway, citing a section which he said "limits our ability to eliminate or reduce services. It could break our budget." In an interview with the Observer, Lucas said a requirement that the county operate clinics in Detroit was unnecessary.

But Mack said — and Dumas agreed — that Lucas' own staff had offered the language on service reduction.

Mack said he, Dumas and Manning had "gone out on a limb" in negotiating with Lucas and had been chastised by fellow commissioners for doing so. But they thought they had brought back an acceptable compromise.

"The ordinance contains good policy. And it doesn't violate the charter," Mack said.

Work to start on health center

Groundbreaking has been scheduled for Sunday, March 11, for a health care facility developed by Huron-Arbor Corp. at Ann Arbor Trail and Harvey in Plymouth.

The public is invited to the ceremony which will begin 2:30 p.m.

This Friday afternoon ground-breaking ceremonies will be held for adding a second deck to Central Parking Lot, which is being done by the city in conjunction with the building of the medical facility. The parking lot ceremony will begin at 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Work on Central Parking Lot is expected to begin March 15 with work on the lower level to be finished by the Fall Festival.

Westland, but declared his fellow commissioners "had good and right reason for the override. I have to defend them, even if I'm on the opposite side."

Hertel added, "Instead of the chief executive saying he made a mistake, he vilifies the Commission for doing what he wanted them to do."

Dumas said Lucas should have been satisfied by the compromise because it gave the executive full power to appoint the hospital's seven-member governing board with Commission approval. The earlier drafts would have forced Lucas to choose members from a panel submitted by commissioners — which would have given the County Commission effective control of appointments.

IN AN interview after the Commission meeting, Mack said Lucas' veto could hurt the executive's own cause — trying to sell the hospital, which the county is subsidizing at the rate of $15 million a year.

Mack said the section requiring Commission approval of any reduction in hospital services would be done by a simple, one-step "resolution." Without that section, he added, the ordinance would have to be amended through a more cumbersome committee and public hearing procedure.

Commissioner Joseph Jurkiewicz, D-Taylor, said, "It's clear the chief executive doesn't want any compromise with the County Commission. We're in a constant veto situation on any ordinance."

State Dems selecting delegates

Michigan Democrats will take the first step Friday, March 17, in a three-step process to pick 155 delegates to the July Democratic National Convention in San Francisco.

Wayne County Democrats will cast presidential preference ballots in schools, community centers and libraries from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"Anyone who declares himself or herself a Democrat is eligible to vote," said Orville Tungate, longtime Democratic Party leader and elections executive in the Wayne County clerk's office. "There is no joining the party required. There are no dues."

"The rules are that you have to be a registered voter, except 17-year-olds who will be 18 by Nov. 6. They must declare they will register to vote."

THE SEMI-OPEN voting will be used to determine how many delegates each presidential candidate will have in the Michigan delegation.

A person must sign a card declaring he or she is a Democrat and then may vote for any of the surviving presidential hopefuls or may choose "undecided." Of the 155 delegates representing the state's 18 congressional districts, 93 will be committed by this method.

Step 2 in the process will take place April 14 when enrolled Democrats meet in district conventions to pick national convention delegates.

In order to be allocated a delegate from one of Michigan's 18 congressional districts, a presidential candidate must have received at least 20 percent of the vote in the March 17 poll.

This requirement was roundly criticized by George W. Sallade, Ann Arbor attorney and a supporter of U.S. Sen. Gary Hart. Appearing last month before the Democratic State Central Committee, Sallade said 20 percent was too high. But the DSCC left the rule unchanged.

STEP 3 will take place April 28 when the state central committee meets in Lansing to elect 59 at-large delegates, according to party Chairman Rick Wiener.

The committee will pick 31 from the ranks of party leaders and top elected officials. The remaining 18 at-large delegates will be picked from the throughout the state.

"Michigan's delegation shall be evenly divided between males and females," said Wiener. "There will be a one-person deviation due to the odd number of delegates."

"The party has established affirmative action of 22 percent for blacks, 1 percent for Hispanics, less than 1 percent for Native Americans, and representation for Asian/Pacific Americans."

State Senator Basil Brown, D-Highland Park, has introduced legislation that would allow the Michigan State Police to conduct sobriety checklines.

Sobriety checks Deterrent to drunk driving?

DRUNK DRIVING IS a problem. Each year, innocent people die at the hands of drunk drivers. Possibly the tragedy has touched you, whether it be a friend, acquaintance, or loved one who died.

THE STATE OF Maryland has such a program. Opponents point to the low percentage of arrests as an indication of its failure. However, a low percentage of arrests could be an indication of success.

WHILE INTENSIVE alcohol patrols have helped alleviate some of the problem, a random roadblock program is needed. The officers patrol and watch for someone having difficulty handling his car.

It takes trial and error to become a savvy shopper

TIMES ARE a changing. Perhaps no social change in recent years has been as profound as that of the so-called "working woman." Census experts say over one-half of adult women now work outside of the home.

Nick Sharkey
As I looked around my suburban grocery market on Saturday morning, I noticed that more than half of the other shoppers were men.

Power struggle spawns big waste of time, money

Canton taxpayers are to be pitted. Thanks to their treasurer, they now are forking over $2,500 and receiving nothing in return.

THE ENTIRE affair is reminiscent of childhood. Do you remember as a kid having a playmate brag, "I've got a secret. Only me and my best friend know what it is, and we're not telling."

Appointments: no gravy bowl

RONALD REAGAN likes to appoint westerners to high federal posts. Jimmy Carter was equally certain Georgians were best equipped to run the government.

opening up by June 30, the terms and local members. An (S) indicates state Senate confirmation is required.

HERE ARE some of the positions

If not, they should be. Canham says if the case goes to court, he won't get out of his chair. He expects any judge worth his robe to throw it out.

Current officeholders and township employees, several of whom can be credited with keeping Canton on course despite overwhelming odds, are burning out.

Area reps back foreign language grants

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Feb. 23-25.

HOUSE LANGUAGE — By a vote of 265 for and 120 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to improve foreign language instruction at all levels of American education.

SENATE CREDIT CARDS — By a vote of 23 for and 66 against, the Senate refused to permanently prohibit merchants from charging extra for credit card purchases.

Canton Township... The treasurer seems to again place herself as the sole judge of the public will and public good.

Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, whose district includes Canton, points out how destructive all of this is. Canton is no longer a small township out in the boonies.

S'craft has SAT classes

Preparation classes for high school students planning to take the Scholastic Achievement Test will begin March 10 and April 4 at Schoolcraft College.

STATE CONSTRUCTION Code Commission. Four terms, including that of John Donaldson (public member) of West Bloomfield, expired Jan. 31.

Michigan Board of Dentistry. Three terms, two professional and one public, expire June 30; one belongs to Dr. Aris Hoplamazian of Southfield.

David Bonior, D-Mich., said America's trade, diplomacy and national security have been harmed by its growing illiteracy in foreign languages.

EXPORTS — By a vote of 20 for and 74 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to retain a president's strong power to block farm exports.

"Don't worry... Mommy's coming home, soon..."

It's true that your mother is very sick. But this is the right place for her to be.

Doctors from all over send sick people to Harper Hospital because it's part of this famous Medical Center.

Reader blasts sports writer

To the editor:
Was Chris McCosky hired to be a sport writer or a sit-down comedienne?

His column in the Feb. 27 Observer was the most outlandish and feeble attempt at journalism I have read in your newspaper since we subscribed to it eight years ago.

It appears your Mr. McCosky cannot take any form of criticism since he takes a very defensive, sarcastic position against Salem fans.

I wonder what Mr. McCosky and your paper would print if you both knew Canton's feelings on the lack of coverage they've received over the year.

Permit us to point out a few statistics to you.
On Jan. 27, Canton's basketball team beat Salem 52-47; however, the Observer article made Salem the winner by its coverage.

Your Brad Emons referred to Canton's win as "overachievers." Why? Because they beat Salem, they're overachievers?

On Feb. 27, Canton basketball team beat Bentley 71-59 in the first round of the playoffs and Salem lost to Churchill 13-12 the same night. Dare we point out to you the coverage of those two games?

There were 152 lines written about Salem's loss and 30 lines written for Canton's win. Who are you trying to kid?

Did Mr. McCosky write both those articles? His byline is printed only under Salem's article — to appease the Salem fans perhaps?

I am not even a parent to Canton's basketball team but I am incensed. We read the coverage of these games. Your Mr. McCosky states (referring to Canton) "a team with limited talent, limited depth, no height, having to play at the top of its game at all times in order to win..." clearly shows that Mr. McCosky is definitely a nearsighted reporter who obviously does not proofread what he writes. Otherwise, he wouldn't make these ignorant statements.

Can you imagine how the Canton players feel when they read this garbage? No wonder they're winners. They probably pretend that basketball is your sportswriter's face.

We suggest your paper, in the future, utilize more perceptive, intelligent and talented reporters to cover the Canton-Salem events. Otherwise your Canton athletic fans are going to become so disgusted with your one-sided reporting, they will probably subscribe to other newspapers and reporters who print realistic and truthful coverage without juvenile and amateurish reporters covering these events.

The Canton kids, be they athletic or support squads (cheerleader and chieftess) compete against each other every year to make the team or squad because they believe they are winners.

It's too bad and so sad you don't print it as it is.

Both schools have excellent teams and squads so why don't print it as it is.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Dyas,
Canton

Appreciate news coverage

To the editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for printing the articles on vocational education that appeared in the Observer during Vocational Education Week early in February.

Both the photos as well as the articles were outstanding and reflecting the caring and concern that you and the Observer Newspapers have demonstrated for the last 14 years that I have been associated with the Plymouth community and the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

It has been my experience that the staff of the Observer Newspaper always has conducted itself in a professional and responsible manner while adhering to the highest standards in our local print media.

Again, thanks for your efforts.

Tax breaks called time bombs

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Tax breaks for businesses and wealthy individuals came under intense fire from a panel of local Democratic leaders Saturday at Schoolcraft College.

"It's not where we tax. It's where we don't tax," said state Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor. She singled out the state's Single Business Tax (SBT) as "generating (only) 53 percent of what it could" because of loopholes.

Howard Young, a UAW economist and consultant, said that at the federal level, the Individual Retirement Account costs the government $15 billion in revenue, "and it's not going to lower or middle income people." People who set up an IRA may deduct payments up to $2,000 for an individual or $2,250 per couple from taxable income.

YOUNG CALLED IRA and the all-savers certificates "time bombs in the tax system."

Pollack and Young were participants in a day-long conference sponsored by the Wayne 2nd Congressional District to discuss issues affecting the country.

The "Issues '84" seminar featured panel discussions on economics, education, U.S. involvement in the Middle East and the "nuclear threat."

Representatives of various presidential candidates spoke at the last afternoon session.

Citing polls that showed unemployment and the Reagan Administration's proposed $183 billion federal deficit as top concerns of the public, Young said:

"The issue in November is, is this one country where we take an interest in each other? Or is it everybody for himself? It's too easy to knock government... but we'd be a lot worse off without it."

POLLACK AGREED, saying the theme of the new Senate Republican leadership in Lansing is that "government is the enemy."

She added, "And I'm very concerned the public just might buy it."

A first-term legislator, Pollack, a former Washtenaw Community College instructor, said that in her first year she was "surprised at the strength of special interest groups."

"And it's not labor and the big corporations. It's the smaller business interest groups. Their strength is enormous."

"Her second strong impression was that 'Republicans don't mind spending. They just don't like raising revenue.'"

As examples, she cited Republican-sponsored bills which would exempt the food processing industry from the SBT and spend $140 million more for education without saying where the funds would come from.

"EVERYBODY hates taxes," agreed S. Martin Taylor, director of the state Department of Labor and the Michigan Employment Security Commission in the Blanchard Administration.

"The notion that somehow you can make all these cuts and do it with eliminating waste and mismanagement is utter b.s. It just is not there."

Eugene Kuthy, commissioner of the state Financial Institutions Bureau, blistered the Reagan deficit budget, saying its chief ill effects wouldn't be felt until after the 1984 presidential election.

"There is fair unanimity among economists that the deficit will generate a great increase in interest rates," said Kuthy, an Orchard Lake resident, lawyer, former accounting firm consultant and sometime teacher of business and government regulation courses at the University of Michigan.

High interest rates will hamper the recovery of credit-sensitive automobile sales, he said. Businesses will be unable to predict their debt service charges if, as he expects, variable rate loans spread in the business world.

KUTHY PREDICTED "a severe shortage of mortgage availability" by 1985 if the deficit isn't brought under control.

Despite the current economic recovery, he predicted even more bank failures in 1984 than in 1983, which saw "more bank failures in the U.S. than in any year since the Great Depression." The reason is that banks have been left in a weakened position by the recession.

Kuthy called bank failures worse than ordinary business failures because "bank depositors are not investors. They expect to rent their money out for awhile and get it back."

THE INTERNATIONAL convention of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides planned for this summer in the United States has inspired the local Scouts and their leaders. They have come up with some tremendous global and local projects. Leaders Darlene Severson, Sharon Michelson and Verna George are coordinating a project to benefit their local communities.

Girl Scouts and Brownies are contributing items that cannot be purchased with food stamps. And when you think about it, there are many necessities of life that cannot be bought with the stamps.

For instance, hard cash has to be paid for toilet paper, aluminum foil, paper towels, tissues, trash bags and school items. Hygiene products like soap, toothpaste, tooth brushes, feminine items and so on are not eligible food stamp purchases. Laundry soap, heavy duty cleansers like Comet and Lysol, and many other things are on the list of forbidden items.

The Plymouth Salvation Army, which serves the Plymouth-Canton-Northville area, is accepting the donations. All the troops will take their collections to the Salvation Army on Main Street south of Ann Arbor Road during Girl Scout Week, March 11-17.

Somewhat, we always think of food donations for the disadvantaged, but a tube of toothpaste, a cake of soap or a box of tissues can be a top priority item.

THE WOMEN'S Association at First Presbyterian Church is starting another Dynamic Aerobics class. Proceeds from the last session went to "The Warm Coat Program" to help American Indians in North Dakota and Arizona.

WILLIAM T. SKINNER of Plymouth has been nominated to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., by U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth. While the congressman makes the nominations to the Naval, Military and Air Force academies, the institutions make all final decisions on appointments.

CAROL AND ERIC Nordell have another Old Inn Antique Show coming up at Dearborn Inn. The dates of the three-day show and sale are March 16-18. A champagne reception and benefit preview will be 7:30-10:30 p.m. Thursday, March 15, in the Alexandria Ballroom and the Greenfield Room of the Dearborn Inn. Admission is $20 per person to the reception which features champagne, cocktails, an hors d'oeuvre buffet, and admission to the show. All proceeds benefit the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and $10 of the admission price is tax deductible. Guests at the reception have an opportunity to meet the exhibitors and are entitled to first buying privileges.

Reservations may be made by sending a check, payable to Old Inn Antique Show, DSO Benefit, 15746 Bradner Road, Northville MI 48167. Reservations will be held at door.

Carol and Eric used to have an antique shop in Old Village.

THE LADYWOOD Mothers' Club always is well-represented by local residents whose daughters attend the high school in Livonia.

The Prom Fashion Show planned for Wednesday, March 14, is a mother and daughter occasion.

Among the students modeling in the show are seniors Ann Hallway and Maureen Brooks; and juniors Dawn Ozust, Lauren Roslinski, Angela Dugas, Carla Volmer, Mariena Nagy, Shelly Bogdady, Lyn Swift and Leigh Loranger.

KRISTA KIRCHOFF, a senior at Plymouth Canton High School, is on the 1984 J Board at Jacobson's in Ann Arbor. This is the first year that a student from the Plymouth area has been selected for the 15-member high school board.

Krista has planned and participated in fashion shows, planned promotional activities, demonstrated products, and worked part time in all departments. She is the daughter of Dick and Rainy Kirchoff of Plymouth.

PAULA EROM had high score at last Thursday's party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural Center. Tom Cram took second-place honors.

Maid of Erin

Maureen O'Sullivan Hayes reigns on St. Patrick's Day

By Elinor Graham
staff writer

Maureen O'Sullivan Hayes of N. Main Street, Plymouth is the United Irish Societies' 1984 Maid of Erin. She was selected by a panel of judges in a competition at the Gaelic League in Detroit. Former Plymouth resident Deirdre Holland of Farmington Hills was first runner-up and Colleen O'Connor, a student at Plymouth Salem High School, was second runner-up.

The Maid of Erin will reign as queen of the St. Patrick's Day Parade Sunday. She has been invited by Michigan Gov. James Blanchard to attend a special reception and will appear on the Kelly & Company television show. For one year, she will have the Maid of Erin trophy, which is dedicated to the memory of Jerome Cavanagh, former mayor of Detroit.

But the major prize associated with the Maid of Erin title is the trip to Ireland. Maureen and her older sister, Catherine, will leave for the auld sod June 15.

THEY WILL fly to London and spend five days with relatives there before taking a ferry to Ireland. They will have two weeks in Ireland, making their headquarters with family in the Cork and Kerry areas before flying home from Shannon.

This will be Maureen's second trip to Ireland. The whole family went over for a visit when she was 2.

"We're Irish as far back as we can go. My parents were born here but all my grandparents were born in Ireland," she said. Her dimples, sparkling eyes and wit belie her Irish heritage. The combination makes her the classic example, the perfect Maid of Erin.

MAUREEN HAYES graduated from Plymouth Salem High School 1983. She attends Schoolcraft College where she is in her second year of business finance studies. She also holds down two jobs.

This very busy 18-year-old has classes 8-11 a.m., works for the Communication Workers of America on Main Street from noon to 5 p.m., then scoots down to H&R Block on Main Street to her position as a receptionist. This semester she also has night classes on Mondays and Wednesdays.

As she dashed away from a picture-taking session, trophy under one arm and gown, cape and sash over the other, she said, "See that green car in the parking lot? That's mine. See the dents? I call it Belfast because it's bombed on all four corners."

Candidates for the Maid of Erin title were interviewed and questioned by the judges. They also had to give a talk. "I knew they'd expect me to be funny so I was very serious, at first. I described the history of the Claddagh ring — the Irish ring with two hands holding the heart. I left the humor until the last."

She said she thought she had a chance of winning until the last candidate. "She sang, and she had the most beautiful voice. I knew I was out of it."

She was completely surprised when she was named Maid of Erin. "I heard later that it was my interview that won," she said.

What does she do in her spare time? She thoroughly enjoys a game of euchre or pinochle.

Maureen O'Sullivan Hayes, as Maid of Erin, will reign over St. Patrick's Day celebrations in the metropolitan area.

Fashion show/luncheon in War Memorial

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Angela Rakus models the gaucho-look fashions of the 1960s-70s. Justine Lohin wears flapper outfit. And Marsha Livermore is a Gibson Girl for the cystic fibrosis research benefit.

Antique and contemporary fashions will be modeled at the Alpha Chi Omega benefit fashion show luncheon Saturday, March 24 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. "Something Old — Something New" will feature local sorority members Marsha Livermore and Sheryl Fletcher of Plymouth and Virginia Koon, Justine Lohin and Anne Molyneux of Canton Township as models. Proceeds from the benefit will go to Cystic Fibrosis research.

The show will be coordinated by Angela Rakus, freelance fashion stylist, who has collected styles dating from 1820 to the present. Guests will have an opportunity to see the highlights of her collection along with an update from Lena's of Troy, Manhattan Unmentionables, and The Limited.

WINE TIME will be 11:30 a.m. and admission of $13.50 per person includes an opportunity to win prizes. Grand prize is two roundtrip airline tickets to any place in the continental United States, Bermuda, the Bahamas or San Juan, Porto Rico.

Donna Weinle of Grosse Pointe is general chairwoman for benefit. Wine time hostesses are Betty Frolund, MaryHelen Feighner and Deborah Dubay. Fresh homemade baked goods will be for sale at the Olde Bakerie Shoppe.

After the show, guests may tour the War Memorial guided by a member of the docent committee. The home once called The Moorings, was owned by financier Russell Alger. It is included in the Michigan Society of Architects list of 50 significant buildings in Michigan. It recently was established on the National and State Register of Historic Places.

At one time, the War Memorial was home to a branch of the Detroit Institute of Arts. In 1949 it was designated as a center to honor the veterans of World War II.

THE LUNCHEON and show will be in the William Fries Ballroom overlooking Lake St. Clair. The afternoon is open to the public and deadline for reservations is March 16. For reservation information, call the Cystic Fibrosis office, 552-9616.

Something Old — Something New is held in conjunction with the upcoming national celebration of Alpha Chi Omega's centennial year. The sorority was founded in 1885 at De Pauw University. The Detroit chapter is marking its 75th year in the community.

The 120 collegiate chapters and the 354 alumnae chapters and clubs in the United States and Canada support the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation in its goal to find a cure for the leading genetic killer of children and young people. The disease attacks the respiratory and digestive systems and at this time has no cure or genetic test to determine who carries the defective gene.

The War Memorial is at 32 Lakeshore Drive (continuation of Jefferson Avenue), Grosse Pointe Farms.

New Morning School to explain programs

New Morning School will have an informational meeting 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 20, for parents interested in fall classes for their children.

The school is a state-certified and licensed school for children in preschool and grades kindergarten to eight. It is located at 14501 Haggerty, Plymouth.

A slide presentation and discussion will be followed by small group meetings led by the New Morning teachers. They will explain the specific goals and activities of the preschool, early primary, elementary, and middle school programs.

Registration will be completed that evening. A visit in the classroom also can be arranged. There currently are openings in all programs.

New Morning offers a co-op and non-co-op option with different tuition rates. Parents help by serving as teacher aides, helping with maintenance of the building, planning fund-raisers, and becoming involved in administrative decisions.

Parents who cannot attend the informational meeting may call Elaine Yagiela, the school's director, at 420-3331.

Peace: Sesquicentennial Ball is Saturday

So, Canton, are you ready to put to rest all the day-long petty ailments that threaten to tear this community apart? Or, at the very least, put it aside?

How about a clean slate for all? Come on, you'll feel better in the morning if you do. Let's have a BIG party to get this bright, friendly future off to a sparkling start.

I have an idea! How about trying to rent the U.A.W. Hall on Michigan Avenue. We could, I'm sure, get a decent price. I mean after all, it's for the community. Then we could get a band. We'll give the Moods a call and see if they can provide live music. Then we'll get some food. I suggest a big buffet so everyone will have enough to eat. As a matter of fact, since we are trying to bring everybody together and make everyone happy, how about serving three different types of meat? Yes, that is perfect, a real breakthrough in human relations, for everyone knows it's those little details that make a party.

Now, since some people could arrive late, or early, perhaps we should plan on some hors d'oeuvres — yes — hot hors d'oeuvres. I love it! What a great party! I have. Wait a minute, better include some cold hors d'oeuvres, just in case it rains late.

There, that should do it.

HOW COULD I forget the soda pop? Everyone knows you can't have a party without pop. Now that I think about it, some people like something a little stronger and this is an ecumenical party. So we'll have to offer an open bar, at cash bar could get people annoyed. The open bar is the only way.

OK. Now for the date. I think as soon as possible is imperative. It must be a weekend so if people actually start feeling friendly towards each other had new ideas for this community, while the older residents liked it just fine. And taxes were a lot lower then.

But we are here, and here we'll have to stay. And in case you haven't noticed, the boom banded! We are now a stable community approximately 50,000 strong.

If you take a minute to think about it, we are just repeating history. Just as when the Potawatomi Indians led by Chief Toniquish were the oldtimers and the new settlers were taking away their land and their means of support. The government seemed to favor the new settlers (ancestors of today's oldtimers) and forgot what was good for the former residents. Just change the names and dates, the situation remains the same. What was once a simple community of Potawatomi, getting along real friendly, was being changed into a strictly governed-by-the-book "thriving community."

JUST A THOUGHT, but yesterday, March 7, was the beginning of our yearlong party. This coming Saturday is the big dinner dance, a Sesquicentennial Ball to be exact. So grab your partner and come on over to the U.A.W. Hall. Admission is only $17.50 each. You don't have to be in costume, you just have to be there. And don't think this gets you out of coming to my picnic in July.

WELL, THEY DID! If you haven't heard, the Rockettes blasted off and roared to second place in the state finals. We have a real special squad that we can be proud of (as if we weren't already). For the record, our squad received a total score of 39,746 out of a possible 40. The difference between the Rockettes and first place was .001. Now that's a close call! Congratulations, Rockettes. And congratulations to all the parents, siblings and friends who supported them.

I told you once before about the final fling the Rockettes have every year. Well, the time is upon us. The squad will give only two performances of "Rockin' in Unison" in Plymouth Salem Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. March 9 and 10. The very reasonable price is only $2.50 in advance and $3 at the door. You won't want to miss the show with new costumes, all different with lots of flashy sparkles, on colorful satin. It will be a full, variety-packed evening with all 17 girls performing.

Get set for singing and comedy and Mr. Crespo. They tell me you'll know Mr. Crespo! Joining the lovely Rockettes will be in the neighborhood of 35 other faces including live break dancing. (I know how many things I would break if I tried it!) Musical entertainment will be provided by the popular group, Skyline. Our very own Christina Branham will treat us to a sample of her prize-winning dancing style. You may remember Chris won the best dancer award at the summer training camp. What we didn't know was Chris also won an award even more valuable — Most Congenial. Congratulations on that, Chris.

Congratulations and thank you again: Rockettes Deanna Miller, Sally Nitchman, De Anna Park, Jill Swisher, Christina Branham, Nancy Timbermann, Leslie Lynch, Jenny Wells, Lenore Gibson, Tracy Greenhalge, Julie Taylor, Renee Shreda, Renay Kwanzy, Yvette Kalvenes, Dawn Markinkiewicz, co-captains Elaine Willis and Marci Plichta, and your sponsor, Ronda Pretzlaff. To all, "Break-a-leg." That's show-biz talk for good luck.

Please come to the Sesquicentennial. A lot of people worked very hard for a long time to make our dream a reality. It will be fantastic, if you're there.

Linebrinks celebrate golden anniversary

Toys offer 'Christian alternative'

By Jack Leach
Staff writer

Toys can be hazardous to your child's spiritual and mental health.
That's the opinion of representatives of a new toy called Praise Unlimited.
Modern toys stress violence, sex, and Satanism, they said.
But the Atlanta-based company has come up with its own answers to G.I. Joe, Barbie, and Dungeons and Dragons - a little Faith, Hope, Joy and Love.
The latter are the names Praise Unlimited has given to its first line of toys, its Praise Dolls.
The idea is to offer a religious alternative to the products of regular toy companies, said Cheryl Richards of Livonia, the firm's Wayne County divisional director.
"In the toy world up to now I don't really believe there's been a Christian alternative," Richards said.

WHEN SQUEEZED, the curly haired Praise Dolls stog or talk, giving religious messages such as "Jesus loves me" or "Did you know God loves you?" Interchangeable records provide different phrases. The dolls also come in versions that are applicable to different faiths or that speak other languages, such as Spanish.
And for every one of the 21-inch dolls sold, a smaller, 16-inch version of the same doll is given free to an underpri-viileged child through the company's "friendship program," Richards said.

A dozen more toys are planned, including Judah the Christian soldier for boys, Noah's Ark, a talking telephone, and a Fruit of the Spirit hat and vest.
"Every toy we come out with has to teach a Bible principle or have a Christian significance," Richards said.
Charles and Sue Post, Praise Unlimited's founders, will be appearing in the Detroit area this Thursday through Saturday, Richards said. They will be talking about what they consider the "evils" of the toy industry and the advantages of their products.
RESIDES appearances on WXYZ-TV's "Kelly and Co." at 9 a.m. Friday, and on various local religious radio stations Friday afternoon, the Posts have scheduled a special Toy Awareness Rally for Thursday night. They will follow by the rally at 7 p.m. in Room H of the Dearborn Hyatt Regency.
The rally will feature a slide presentation on the effects of regular toys and the alternative offered by Praise Unlimited.
"I want Detroit to hear all of the startling facts about the emotional and physical abuse children are receiving from violent, Satanic and sex-oriented toys," Richards said.
"They've got quite a story to tell about Barbie," said Richards' husband Dave, the minister of music at Fairlane Assembly in Dearborn Heights. "The co-creator of Barbie will not even let his grandchildren have a Barbie doll."

"It's the feeling of Praise Unlimited that when a child gets a Barbie, she sees this trim, nice-busted doll, and there are things that don't do a child and things that it leads to in the future."
But Kathy Kennedy, a spokeswoman for Mattel Inc. of Hawthorne, Calif., maker of Barbie and other toys, disagreed with Praise Unlimited's negative assessment of Barbie and toys in general.
"Barbie recently celebrated her 25th anniversary, and we feel the reason why is that both parents and children want the doll are the many good benefits associated with Barbie," Kennedy said.
Kennedy said the doll teaches girls good grooming habits and allows girls to imagine themselves in various occupations such as fashion editor or skin diver.
"Barbie was an astronaut 20 years before Sally Ride," she said.

MATTEL ALSO puts out an action toy for boys called Masters of the Universe. Kennedy said that toy stresses fantasy, adventure and the triumph of good over evil, not violence.
"As a toy company, we try to come out with toys in different areas that are not only entertaining but also have some kind of benefit," Kennedy said.
She added that she never heard the story that one of Barbie's co-creators had turned against his creation.
"First off, there are a lot of people claiming to be the doll's developers," she said. "But it really was a team effort. Agrop designed Barbie. I've never heard that story, and I've been working for Mattel for a couple of years."

Mrs. Richards said she has been selling the Praise Dolls since September. A minister friend of hers recommended her to the company as a saleswoman.
The Richards went to visit the Atlanta firm in Georgia in August and were impressed.
"There was no pressure put on me at all, and I think I was very shocked by that," Richards said. "I could see they were genuine, not out to make so much money but out to change the toy market and help the underprivileged."
SINCE THEN, Richards has sold 100 of the dolls and her family has sold even more, making them No. 2 in family sales nationally for the firm. The dolls are sold through Praise Parties, a toy sale equivalent of a Tupperware party, and in church bookstores.
The larger dolls sell for $75, the smaller ones for $55.
Anyone interested in buying or selling the dolls may attend a special "opportunity meeting" 1-5 p.m. Saturday at the Fairlane Inn, 21430 Michigan Ave., Dearborn, Richards said. The Posts also will appear at that meeting.
At 9 a.m. Saturday, some of the 16-inch dolls will be distributed to children at the Living Centers Inc. children's center in Taylor.
For more information on Praise Unlimited, call Richards at 591-0547.

Cheryl Richards of Livonia, Wayne County divisional director for the Praise Unlimited toy company, shows off some of the firm's Praise Dolls, which say or sing religious messages when squeezed.

The event, open to the public, is the final presentation in a Sunday cultural series sponsored by the church arts committee. Tickets are $6 for adults, $3 for students and are available by calling 422-1470. The glee club has received worldwide recognition. Among its honors is the international trophy for men's choirs at competition in Wales. Last month it was a first-prize winner in the statewide Johnny Manns competition held in Plymouth. The director is Harry M. Langford (right, first row), professor of music at WSU.

Broken contracts symptom of deeper malady
After hearing the judge decree that Billy Sims should play for Detroit, Jerry Argovitz said he would write his contracts on the pages of the 110 new directions transforming our lives" as the book "Megatrends" unfolds them. He says that is an important clue in helping our response.
If more and more people are breaking contracts, promises or agreements whenever they feel compelled to do so, then we need to remember how fragile the thread of trust is and how valuable it becomes in community order.
Broken contracts, suspended labor agreements and broken marriages are symptoms of a deeper malady. The

moral perspectives
Rev. Charles Erickson
process of interaction for mutual benefit has turned into a struggle for self-advancement. At some point along the way, the efforts for mutual enrichment have waned.
SOME CRITICS would suggest that "modernism" is to blame for this flaw in public life. Modernism has given us high tech and unparalleled success in the production and exchange of goods. We can make things we have never heard of before and we can market and sell them anywhere. But we have become separated from one another and we do not trust each other.
Modernism should not be blamed entirely for the breakdown of contracts

Mayor makes appointments

The Plymouth City Commission Monday night approved several appointments and reappointments made by Mayor David Pugh to city boards and committees.

Judy Lewis has been named to the Personnel Service Appeal Board through June 1984, filling a vacancy.

Named to one-year terms on the Beautification Committee were Edith L. Wysocki and Alan Odell.

Reappointed to one-year terms on the Beautification Committee were Mary Childs, Jan Keller, Pat Carne, Irene Walldorf, Sharon Rucinski,

Two Detroiters were charged Monday in the early Sunday morning break-in of a Plymouth jewelry store. The robbery was the second in two weeks at Blinford Jewelers, 476 Forest, and another in a string of "smash-and-grab" break-ins at suburban jewelry stores, including three in Livonia.

Larry Smith, 24, and Timmy Wilson, 21, were arraigned before 35th District Court Judge James Garber on a charge of breaking and entering. A not-guilty plea was entered for them, and a $10,000 bond set for each. Bond was not posted Monday. An exam will be held Monday before Judge Dunbar Davis.

Police said they caught Smith coming out of the store at 5:30 a.m. Sunday after police had gone to the store in response to a burglar alarm. Wilson was arrested moments later at the Clock Restaurant, 9468 S. Main. A third man seen running from the store was not caught and still remains unidentified.

said Plymouth police Lt. Henry Berghoff. Berghoff said a bag containing more than $1,000 worth of jewelry was recovered from the suspects.

Police said a break-in at the jewelry store two weeks ago led to the installation of bars on the store's doors and windows. No one has been charged in that robbery, Berghoff said.

Numerous communities, such as Livonia and Southgate, have reported recent "smash-and-grab" break-ins of jewelry stores, Berghoff said.

alarm call at Church and Main and the robbers were on the way out by the time police got there.

Three jewelry store break-ins were reported recently in Livonia. One of the stores, Benjamin's at Six Mile and Newburg, was robbed twice, said Livonia Police Lt. Richard Erickson. The third break-in was at Roman Jewels, Five Mile and Harrison. No one has been charged yet in the robberies, Erickson said.

Agencies tell how families cope with joblessness

By Kathy Parrish
staff writer

The 16-year-old spent a lot of school time daydreaming about home problems.

After Dawn's dad was laid off work,

"I thought it was my fault because my parents gave me dirty looks, ignored me, and yelled at me," the Detroit fifth grader told a group of congressmen Monday in Redford Township.

"I spent a lot of time thinking about my problems and my grades went down."

APPEARING BEFORE five members of the House of Representatives Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families, Dawn and a dozen other area witnesses talked about their own experiences with joblessness.

Among those on hand were unemployed auto workers, a school counselor who runs support groups for children of unemployed, a minister whose church does job referrals, and the director of the state Office of Children and Youth Services.

About 100 attended the hearing in Methodist Children's Home Society, chosen for the event because it deals daily with the needs of children and families.

"Redford's kind of a typical suburban community. It's the most bedroom community in America," said committee member Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, whose 17th Congressional District includes Redford Township. The freshman congressman last year campaigned door-to-door in the community which leads the nation in percentage of owner-occupied homes.

"It's a community that has lots of typical families."

THE 25-MEMBER bipartisan committee, now in its second year, was set up to assess the condition of American children, youth and families and make recommendations to Congress on topics dealing with them.

Last year it held 13 hearings ranging from "Families in Crisis: Economic Security" to drug use by youth and teen pregnancy.

Monday's regional hearing on "The New Unemployed: Long-Term Consequences for Their Families" was an effort to examine the economic, social and psychological impact of job losses on the newly unemployed.

Much of the three-hour session focused on the effects of long term unemployment.

"UNEMPLOYMENT traditionally gets attention by legislators when there's a crisis situation," explained committee chairman Rep. George Miller, a California Democrat.

"We're looking at the people left behind in the recovery, who may never get back on their feet. This is a little bit of preplanning so we can help those people."

Levin, in his introduction to the session, said that while going door-to-door in the area, he had heard stories of families being fragmented because members left the state for work or children dropped out of school to help support relatives.

"This is an opportunity to learn more about those stories," he said. "The more we understand the true cost of unemployment, perhaps the more we understand the importance of prevention."

AS WELL AS citing financial problems, witnesses testified that joblessness can lead to spouse and child abuse, use of drugs and alcohol, severe depression and even divorce.

Artie Morris-Vann, a guidance counselor at two Detroit public elementary schools, observed that children of the unemployed often undergo personality changes. Typical are aggressiveness, crying, falling grades and daydreaming.

"There's a great deal of confusion because children don't understand what's going on," explained Morris-Vann, whose groups share ideas on how to cope with their home problems.

"Talking with others in the same situation often helps make it easier."

Rocks win, Chiefs burned at buzzer

Hot Salem outguns revved-up Rockets

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

The Plymouth Salem offense, which took a mid-season sabbatical, has returned. And not a moment too soon.

The Rock cagers needed every ounce of offense it could muster Wednesday night to outlast the fired-up Rockets from Westland. John Glenn in their first-round contest in the state Class A district tournament at Canton High School.

OK, you want offense, you got it. Erich Hartnett scored 23 points, Jeff Arnold 22 and Rick Berberet 20 to pace the Rocks to a 74-64 victory.

"We knew John Glenn could score points," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "We didn't expect to be in a 40 or 50 point game tonight. We knew we had to score to beat them."

John Glenn, the champions of the Northwest Suburban League, put on a gutsy display, coming back several times from deep deficits.

SALEM LED by as many as 10 throughout the first half, but when the teams went into the locker rooms at the half, the score was 32-30 Salem.

"Oh, I knew we'd hang in there," said soft-spoken Glenn coach Gordie Davis. "These kids play as hard as any team I've had."

Glenn's guard tandem of Jeff Hawley and Mike Baydarian gave the Rock defense fits throughout the contest. In the first half, Hawley had the hot hand scoring 11 points (he finished with 15). In the second half, it was Baydarian who scored 10 to finish with 20.

But, the Rock defense accomplished its main objective — it shut down the Rocket fastbreak.

"We've been beaten twice this year with the running game," Thomann said. "We decided we weren't going to get beat by the running game again."

Said Davis: "The boards were part of that. Salem plays very physical and kept us off the boards in that first half. We didn't run the ball the way we would have liked."

Arnold found the range from the perimeter in the third quarter, hitting five of six shots. He, along with Hartnett and Berberet, helped put the Rocks back up by a 10, 48-38, late in the third quarter.

WHEN THE quarter ended, Salem led 52-42 and it looked as if Glenn may have spent its last rocket.

No way. The Rockets began the fourth quarter with a 10-3 spurt triggered by Baydarian and the strong offensive rebounding of Mario Grazulis. Grazulis scored eight of his 16 points in the final quarter before fouling out with 20 seconds left in the game.

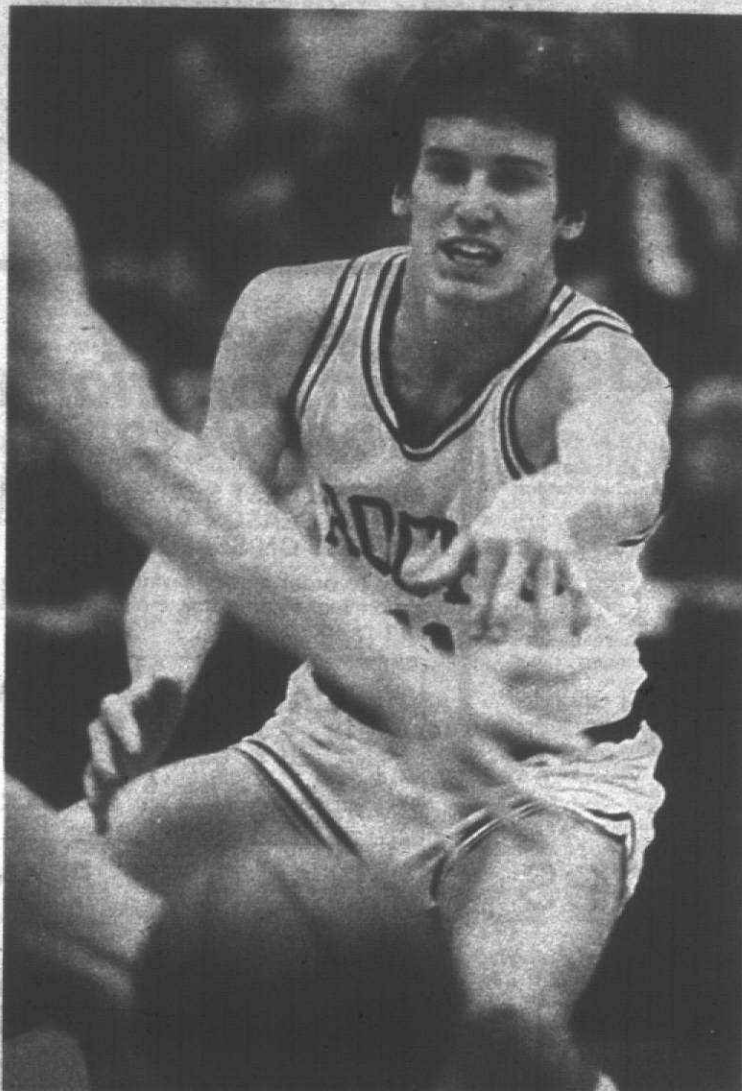

After Baydarian hit four straight free throws, Glenn was within three, 63-60, with 3:37 left.

Two key baskets off offensive rebounds by LeSean Haygood kept Salem on top. Finally, Glenn showed signs of weakening. And, when Hartnett threw down a dunk with three minutes left to put the Rocks back up by seven, the game was iced.

Salem outscored Glenn 11-4 in the final three minutes. The game ended on a vicious slam by Berberet, who had been tackled by Grazulis on a previous dunk attempt.

Berberet had five steals, six assists and eight rebounds to go along with his 20 points.

Salem, 18-3, plays Northville at 7:30 Friday night for the district championship.

Northville rally ends Canton's title hopes

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Destiny's road, the path that has led the Plymouth Canton basketball team to division and league championships, came to a halt short of a state district title Wednesday night.

Northville ousted the Chiefs 52-50 on a shot that appeared to have been taken after the final buzzer had sounded.

With 38 seconds left and the score tied at 50, the Chiefs worked for the last shot. Senior guard Mark Bennett's pass intended for Kevin Hawkins was intercepted by Northville's Bob Pegrum. With six seconds left, Northville called timeout.

Steve Frellick broke free of the Chief press and found Steve Schrader alone underneath the hoop. Schrader's shot, however, missed badly and the clock showed no time remaining. But, because of the near hysteria of the crowd, the buzzer wasn't heard and Schrader ripped the rebound out of Bennett's clutches and threw in the shot.

TO THE DISMAY of the jammed-packed crowd at the Canton gym, referee Larry Casey signaled that the shot was good and the game over.

"I saw what I saw and that was it. I don't have any other comment to make," Casey said after the game.

It was a tough way for the Chiefs to end the finest season in its history, but coach Dave Van Wagoner wasn't making any excuses for his team.

"I didn't see the shot. People were jumping in front of me. But, to be honest with you, we came out flat tonight," he said. "We played our fifth emotional game in a row now, and we just didn't have it in us to get one more. It was just not our night. Those things happen in basketball."

It had been a season where nearly every break had gone Canton's way, especially in those last five games Van Wagoner mentioned. But, against Northville, fate turned away from the Chiefs. Shots that have fallen all year for Canton, suddenly rimmed the hoop and fell away in the fourth quarter. Passes that have been on the money all year were suddenly being picked off.

Canton, after a listless first-half performance that left the Chiefs a point behind 24-23, got its game going in the third quarter.

BENNETT, A multi-talented player who experienced a rare off night, began penetrating and dishing off assists. Sharpshooter Gary Thomas, hitting two of five entering the third quarter, got hot and hit four in a row. Mike Jennings and Jim Schlicker contributed key hoops and rebounds and Canton had itself a 42-39 lead entering the final eight minutes.

That's when things began to sour. Canton went cold in the fourth quarter, hitting two of eight shots. They also committed five lethal turnovers. Northville, who had success inside all game, began kicking it in to Schrader who responded with seven points, six in the final two minutes, including the controversial game-winner.

Schrader finished with 24 points to lead all scorers. Dan Nielsen added 10.

For Canton, Thomas scored 17, Schlicker 13 and Jennings 11. Jennings gave the Chiefs a tireless effort underneath both baskets, as did Hawkins and Eli Rogers.

Bennett dished out nine assists, but he took just three shots from the floor, no free throws and didn't score a point.

Chiefs jolt Wayne

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

The Chiefs have just about taken the c-a-n-t out of Canton. There doesn't seem to be a team the Chiefs can't beat.

On the heels of their first-ever Western Lakes championship win last Friday, the Chiefs stunned heavily favored Wayne Memorial, 56-55, to open the state Class A district basketball tournament at Canton Monday.

"We feel we are a pretty good basketball team," said Dave Van Wagoner, who said that it's about time people start recognizing that fact. "We proved some of the local prognosticators wrong here tonight."

Ouch. Wayne was picked by most, including this newspaper, to win the Canton district. But, senior Mark Bennett and company pulled off another in a season-long series of Canton upsets.

BENNETT, AFTER his team had trailed by three with 38 seconds left, hit two clutch free throws with eight seconds left to give the Chiefs the win. He had missed two consecutive free throws before hitting the game winner.

"Just don't miss them, that's all I thought about," Bennett said.

Canton trailed 41-36 entering the final period. The Chiefs had maintained a slim three-point lead throughout much of the first half, but Wayne began to flex its muscle in the third quarter.

Keith Strickland drained two jumpers within the first 30 seconds of the third quarter to put the Zebras ahead, 27-26. He finished with 10 in the quarter, including a fantastic double-pump slam dunk at the buzzer to give Wayne its five-point margin.

Strickland wound up with a game-high 18 points. Wayne's 6-foot-6 center Pollis Robertson chipped in 14 and blocked seven Canton shots.

Canton, aided by some questionable officiating and some outstanding play from junior Jim Schlicker, sharpshooter Gary Thomas, Bennett and Elijah Rogers, began to creep back into contention.

Schlicker, who scored eight fourth-quarter points, hit a pair of jumpers to tie the game at 49 and again at 51 with 2:10 left to play.

Before that, Robertson stuffed a shot over Rogers that would have given Wayne a five-point lead, but the official called Robertson for traveling and nullified the hoop. Wayne coach Chuck Henry was incensed.

A BASKET by Strickland put Wayne back in front. And the Zebras looked to have the game won when Kevin Dailey hit a pair of free throws with 38 seconds left. Canton trailed at that point, 55-52.

Bennett drove the length of the floor and dished to Rogers for a layup. Then Wayne's Howard Flowers was fouled with 22 seconds left. He missed the front end of the one-and-one.

Bennett, again drove the length of the floor. He found Thomas alone in the corner, but Thomas' jumper fell short. Bennett, though, was fouled going after the rebound. He brought the large Canton house down by making both free throws. The enthusiastic crowd went wild, but the celebration was nearly premature.

With less than eight seconds left in the game, Flowers drove virtually uncontested through the lane. His layup rolled off the rim and into the clutches of Thomas.

Henry, however, felt his player was fouled on the play.

"That was a gutless call," Henry said motioning to the spot where he felt Flowers was hacked. "They call a foul on the other end when we box out, and then on this end they don't call anything. It's a shame. It shouldn't happen this way in a state tournament game."

But, Henry knew there was another factor in his team's loss — their inability to take advantage of their size and work the ball inside.

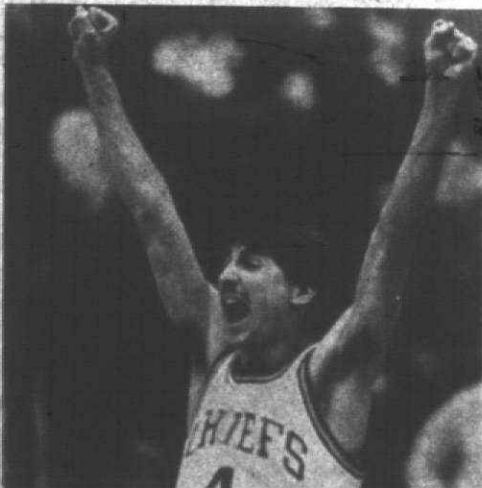

"We did a very poor job of getting the ball inside in the first half. That is what I thought we'd be able to do against them. I certainly didn't expect to score just 23 points in the first half," he said.

SAID VAN WAGONER: "Again, that was our game plan. We wanted to dig down inside and pack in our 3-2 zone and force them to shoot from the outside."

Another factor detrimental to the Zebras was an injury to starting guard Tony Strickland. He played only about five minutes of the game.

Canton got a strong game from Schlicker. He led the Chiefs with 16 points. Thomas had 13 and Bennett 11. Bennett also had nine assists. Mike Jennings, Schlicker and Rogers did an excellent job of rebounding against the taller Zebras.

While Canton (16-5) advanced in the tournament, Wayne's season came to an abrupt halt. The team finished with a 15-6 record.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

Just one year ago this week, Plymouth Salem beat Livonia Stevenson 67-70 to capture the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLLA) title at Salem. The triumph made the Rocks the first-ever WLAA basketball champions. Both Stevenson and Salem came into the contest with 17-2 overall records and 14-1 league marks. The only WLAA losses on their records came in games against each other. "What it came down to was our eight against their five," said Rock coach Fred Thomann. "It seems everyone we went to on the bench contributed." John Cohen scored 16 points, all in the last two quarters, Dave Houle had 15, Marvin Zurek scored 11, and Glenn Medalle and Matt Broderick netted 10 apiece.

Iafrate shines outside Olympic light

AL IAFRATE COULD EASILY BE registered as a foreign agent. He's spent much of his high school senior year outside the United States.

It's been Assignment Ice ever since the 17-year-old Livonian made the U.S. Olympic hockey team back in July.

Iafrate spent just one day at home after returning from the Winter Olympic Games in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia. That's because he had to report immediately to the Belleville Bulls of the Ontario Major Hockey Association (OHA).

Iafrate didn't get the same kind of hometown greeting that the "Miracle on Ice" Gold Medal hockey team received in 1980. He and his teammates never made it to the medal round, losing to Canada and Czechoslovakia, not to mention a painful tie against Norway.

"A couple of buddies picked me up at the airport," recalls Iafrate. "No one knew I came home because it was a day earlier."

LIKE HIS FELLOW U.S. teammates, Iafrate's return home was quiet.

There was, however, a banner hanging on his house: "Welcome Home, Al."

"I got one sign, I guess I was lucky," said the tall and rangy defenseman.

The U.S. team took heavy criticism for their performance at Sarajevo.

"It was a great experience for my husband and I," said Al's wife, Linda. "The media was a little rough, but it was a great experience and we're happy for Al."

U.S. coach Lou Vairo, who learned his trade on the streets of Brooklyn, took the brunt of the criticism.

"Some of the press got down on us," said young Al. "I didn't read too many stories. I don't get too upset about those things anyway."

"Maybe something that stood out is that we got criticized. I know I was criticized by the coach."

Iafrate added that everyone could easily have been 7-3. With eight girls that had never played varsity before, I had hoped at best for a 500 season. And we came close to that."

Martin said Junior Fran Whittaker was the team's most improved player. Senior Kelly Bernias, he said, was her best all-around and most consistent player all season.

Canton (3-20) drew a first-round bye at Wayne last Saturday, then played Livonia Churchill. The Chargers beat the Chiefs 15-7, 15-1, ending a long first season for coach Peggy Moore.

"They just blew us away," Moore said. "We didn't pass well, didn't get our attack game going, there were no sets — we just kind of fell apart."

Jennifer Gorecki played a good match despite the loss for Canton.

Brad Emons

For the league playoffs, he has five Americans on the team, four from Michigan. Two Belleville players, Jim Andonoff and Warren and Mike Vellucci of Farmington, were teammates of Iafrate when the Compuware Midglens won the national title two years ago.

"As far as the skating goes there's not much difference and I was kind of surprised," Iafrate said. "But the difference from Olympic hockey to here is the stick handling and passing."

"It's a lot rougher here, but it's not as bad as everyone says. There are fights. If you're looking for it, you'll get it. There are games, but the league has really changed over the past few years."

"There are a lot of good hockey players here."

SINCE IAFRATE is not a total stranger in Belleville, he's made the adjustment nicely. Belleville is 3-3 since Iafrate arrived. He has one goal and two assists (through Wednesday).

Iafrate and Andonoff team together at a private home with the parents of Bulls' coach Larry Marvey.

Through correspondence courses, Iafrate is finishing up his high school requirements and should be able to take part in commencement exercises at Bentley High School.

"The administrators (at Bentley) have treated me well," he said. "I just sent back my exams. I was taking four classes. Here I'm taking three classes to graduate."

Iafrate feels at home on the ice as well.

"This is totally different (than the Olympics)," he said. "The coach knows I'm offensive minded, and he lets me go when the situation arises."

"On the U.S. team you kind of felt restricted, but the coach (Vairo) told us what we wanted from the start — get the puck to the forwards."

"HERE, I FEEL more comfortable and I'm more confident. I like it here. Everywhere the crowds are great, and we have the second best attendance (3,000 average) in the league."

The OHA playoffs begin March 20 and by that time Iafrate will have played nearly 80 games.

"I feel better than I thought," Iafrate said. "I've played over 70 games, but not all against pros and world-class players. I've been lucky. I haven't really had a serious injury."

Eagles sharp in loss

The Plymouth Christian basketball lost its game against Ann Arbor Greenhills Tuesday night 46-41, but coach Butch DeRenzo was happy with his team's performance.

"Overall, I was very pleased with the effort tonight," he said. "We didn't get much offense, but defensively, we played a great man-to-man. They are much bigger than us, but we played an aggressive man-to-man for three and a half quarters. The kids did a great job."

The Eagles, down by as many as 14 in the fourth quarter, pulled within four several times. They could get no closer, however.

Rod Winkle and Lane Lambert scored 10 points apiece to lead the Eagles. Mark Dougherty led all scorers with 15 for Greenhills.

The Eagles (6-14) will play at Southfield Christian in the state Class D tournament at 6 p.m. Friday.

Canton wins division gymnastics crown

By Chris McCokey
staff writer

"You know, this was only the second time all season I had my complete lineup competing at the same time."

—Mary Gills, Raiders coach

North Farmington gymnastics coach Mary Johnese-Glitz wore a pin on the lapel of her blazer Saturday that read 10.0. Though none of her gymnasts earned such a score, the team's effort, to her, was indeed perfect.

The Raiders, with individual brilliance and powerful team depth, over-matched their opposition to win the Western Lakes Activities Association and the Lakes Division championships.

North amassed 131.70 points, its highest score of the season, to win the title. It was the seventh consecutive league title for the Raiders, five straight in the old Northwest Suburban League and the last two in the W.L.A.A.

"Plymouth Canton earned 123.10 points to place second overall and win the Western Division title over third-place Farmington Harrison (121.25).

"Both fortunately and unfortunately, everything came out as I predicted," said Canton coach John Cunningham. "Our performance was definitely pleasing. We were six points behind North, though I would have liked to make that a bit closer."

Beale, with 34.10 points, won all-around honors. She scored an 8.90 on vault, 8.40 on bars, 8.25 on beam, and 8.55 on floor exercise. Ironically, none of those scores were first-place scores, though she was the Western Division champion on beam and floor.

North's Kebride was the Lakes Division all-around medalist.

The highest score of the day was earned by North's Shifra, who scored a 9.10 on vault to win the Lakes and overall medals in that event. Kebride and Harrison freshman Tracey Solomon each gained 9.05 on the vault. Solomon won the Western Division medal.

On bars, Northville's Heitert, injured for most of the season, won overall and Western Division honors with an 8.90. Farmington's Katie MacIntosh won the Lakes Division medal with an 8.55.

SALEM'S BETH Raffal was the overall and Lakes Division winner on the uneven bars (11.75) and balance beam (28.60).

Spikers' season ends

1984 will not go down in history as a great year for the Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem volleyball teams.

Both teams suffered swift elimination from the state Class A district tournament at Wayne Memorial.

Salem (4-6, tournament records not included) was ousted by Westland John Glenn in a pre-district match last Wednesday. The Rockets won 13-15, 15-12, 16-14.

"We lost our momentum in the second game," said Rock coach James Martin. The Rockets led in game two and then fell behind 12-3 in game three before a desperate rally fell short.

"I'M NOT disappointed at all in our season," Martin said. "There were three matches, including

Red-hot Plymouth Aces streak toward state title

The Plymouth Junior Aces hockey team took first place in the Adray League with a 17-1 record, four points ahead of the rival Livonia Knights.

In the Michigan Amateur Hockey Association District IV playoffs, which took place Feb. 4-5 in Livonia, the Aces defeated the Knights 9-0 and 9-4 to win the District IV Junior C championship.

The Aces' next task is the Junior C state championship which begins tonight and run through Sunday at the Lindell Arena in Royal Oak.

The Aces open up at 8:30 tonight against Sterling Heights. The Aces will then take on Livonia at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, and Saginaw at 8:45 that night.

The semifinal game will be played Sunday morning and the championship at 6 p.m.

CEP grapplers fall at state meet

Joe Urso of Redford Catholic Central captured the 167-pound crown at the state Class A wrestling meet last weekend at Lansing Eastern High School.

The CC senior concluded a banner year, finishing with a 64-2 record. His teammate Mike DiManno, finished fifth at 155 as the Shamrocks finished 11th in the team standings with 35 points.

Temperance-Bedford captured the title with 142½ points.

Westland John Glenn, 13th in the team standings with 32½ points, got sterling performances from Dan Gibson, who was third at 112, and Mike Rossi, who was fourth at 119. Gibson finished at 34-3, while Rossi is 37-10.

Bentley, which had three state qualifiers, got a third place finish from Mark Zenas at 185. The Yaffai brothers, Anwar (112) and Abe (119) combined for three victories at the state. Abe, who was fourth at 119, finished the year with a 39-2-1 record.

AREA WRESTLERS qualifying for the state, but not placing, included Rick Gillies (105) and Vaughn Viar (185), Glenn, Todd Gattoni (112) and Tim Collins (138), Plymouth Canton; John Jeannotte (132) and Andy Ward (145, Plymouth Salem; Dan Jenkins (119), Livonia Stevenson; Ab Hazen (167) and Dave Hovey (98), Farmington.

Mt. Pleasant captured the Class B title at Ferris State College.

Redford Thurston's Marshall Wierpelt (132) and Jeff Norton (145) failed to place, as did Livonia Clarenceville's Joe Desjarlais.

Area bowlers gain national exposure

Bob Chamberlain and Bob Goike, two members of the all-star league, caused the national spotlight to be focused on the Detroit area over the past week — and the names now are known nationwide.

On national TV Saturday, Chamberlain, a member of the Stroh team, scored a major upset when he bowled his way to the national pro championship in Toledo. Only a few nights before, Goike, a member of the Lodge Lanes of Belleville, set a record to take the lead in all events in the ABC tournament at Reno, Nevada.

In winning the national title, Chamberlain earned $38,000, the most any Detroit bowler ever won in a single event. Goike stands a good chance of winning the ABC title, even though he was to wait until the tournament closes. He put together series of 707 in the team event, 710 in the doubles and 760 in 3142.

WOODLAND LANES Jack Smerdon had a 289 in 746 to take scoring honors of the week. Other good showings were made by Bob Hardy with a 279 in 654 and Ken Kilbit with 253 in 654.

WESTLAND BOWL There was a great finish in the Monday morning event. Goike stands a good chance of winning the ABC title, even though he was to wait until the tournament closes. He put together series of 707 in the team event, 710 in the doubles and 760 in 3142.

COUNTRY LANES Norm Dorenson reached his life's ambition when he rolled a 289 in a 707 series. Al Kief barely missed the barrier breaker with a 697.

GARDEN LANES Mike Kalema couldn't stand properly after bowling a 264 game slumped to 189 and then missed a 289 in 719 to take the honor. Larry Franz was not far behind with a 693.

BEL-AIRE Tim Detherage continued the pace of the classic of one 700 series after another by coming through with a 289 in 719 to take the honor. Larry Franz was not far behind with a 693.

MERRI-BOWL George Platukas added his name on the membership role of the 700 club when he fired a 736 series in the handicappers league. The

March: the best of times for planning trips

Time for skiing or spring travel

March is the month when winter-lovers look around for more snow while sun-lovers look forward to spring. Either way, now is the moment. Grab your winter pleasure before the snow melts. Plan your spring trips to coincide with traditional spring activities warming up all over the country.

March madness is still very visible on the ski slopes. Kawartha Peaks and Devils Elbow, in the Bethany area of Ontario, are planning costume parties on the slopes March 11 and 18 respectively. At Collingwood's Blue Mountain they call it 7-Up Madness.

Barrie, Ontario, holds a Stars Under the Stars March 10 to raise money for cystic fibrosis research. Skiers will ski all night. If you are lucky, you might find yourself skiing close to a spring maple-sugar operation. Contact Tourism Canada, 1900 First Federal Building, Detroit 48226 or telephone 963-9686 for information.

GUELPH, ONTARIO, is not far from these snow-happy places, but in Guelph they are thinking spring. The Guelph Spring Festival will be April 27 to May 13 in an explosion of music and theater.

Ask Tourism Canada for a brochure on the exciting list of events: the opera "Orpheus and Eurydice," the Oxford String Quartet, the National Arts Centre Orchestra, Toronto Mendelssohn Youth Choir, 78th Fraser Highlanders Pipe Band and more, including many fine individual artists. Additional artistic events are scheduled for May 31 through June 4.

GOING SOUTH will get you into spring faster. The whole month of March is Springfest '84 on Hilton Head Island, S.C. April 26, 27, 28 are the dates of A Night in Old Savannah half an hour's drive away in Savannah, Ga. Savannah's festival celebrates 25 ethnic cultures in Coastal Georgia.

1-of-a-kind traveler

Visitors like to tour historic Savannah during the day and enjoy entertainment from five sound stages at night, all in the area of the city's oldest square, Johnson Square. The average mean temperature for April is 66 degrees.

Johnson Square is one of the 24 original squares built in the city, 20 of which have been saved and restored by Historic Savannah Inc. For information, contact P.O. Box 9389, Savannah, GA. 31412.

ST AUGUSTINE Restoration Foundation Inc. is sponsoring a film called "St. Augustine 1576," to be shown in a new twin theater in St. Augustine, but nobody seems to know when it will open. It was scheduled for January, and again for March, and the Foundation now says that it will probably be around April 1. Don't hold your breath, but if you are going to St. Augustine anyway, check it out.

TWO BANDS OF THE CHEROKEE nation will meet in Tennessee for the first time since they were removed forcibly in 1838 to Oklahoma and North Carolina on what has been called the Trail of Tears.

On April 6 and 7, Chief Ross Swimmer of the western nation and Chief Robert S. Youngdeer of the eastern nation will conduct council meetings with about 100 delegates from each of the two groups.

Several public events are planned, including the transfer of an eternal flame to a permanent shrine at Red Clay State Historical Park.

For information on Cherokee celebrating, contact the Tennessee Dept. of Conservation, 701 Broadway, Nashville, TN 37203.

Savannah, one of the more charming cities of the south, has many attractive features including 20 park-like squares for relaxation and social activities. Carriage rides are available. The A Night in Old Savannah celebration will be April 26-28.

Got a yen to sing? Nashville is waiting

Is there anyone alive who hasn't belted out a great tune in the shower or sung along with the radio and thought, "If I just had the band and the background singers, I could be as good as any of them?"

If you have ever had that dream, your chance at stardom may have arrived. Country Crossroads Recording Studio, a new attraction on Music Row in Nashville, give anyone the opportunity to make a professional-quality recording.

Sound engineers provide instructions through headphones in private booths. Practice sessions are allowed, although there is a time limit. There is also a "helper voice" on the tape.

Since the Studio opened its doors to the public it has been used by some professional singers and musicians and a number of serious singers who have recorded demonstration songs for use in approaching the big-label recording executives located in nearby offices. But for most would-be singers, it is just for fun.

sung or used as a "bed" over which a spoken message can be recorded for special occasions.

The Studio provides a copy of the song's lyrics to each customer on a page suitable for framing. The customer also receives the original tape of the session and copies can be made for an additional fee. A single recording session costs $9.95 ($13.95 for two songs) with additional cassettes available at $4.95 each.

The Country Crossroads Recording Studio is across the street from the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum on the lower level of Country Crossroads, an attraction which uses computer-animated characters to showcase Nashville's musical heritage.

For more information about Country Crossroads Recording Studio and other Nashville attractions, contact the Tennessee Department of Tourist Development, Room T, Box 23170, Nashville, Tenn. 37202.

While well-known singers and groups frequently travel to Nashville to use the recording studios, many visitors are novices such as this trio who came from Iowa to make a recording.

For those who prefer not to sing at all, Country Crossroads Recording Studio also offers a musical background for spoken messages. There are versions of "Happy Birthday" and "Happy Anniversary" which can be

Look for ways to save on taxes

The deadline for filing 1983 tax returns is April 15. This four-part article will suggest ways to save on '83 returns.

Here are several ways of identifying incomes that are not taxable.

BENEFITS — Social Security payments received in 1982 are tax-free. Also untaxed are veteran's benefits, the part of a pension that is a return of what you put in, most death pay-outs from insurance, worker's compensation benefits and most scholarships which are not pay for work.

You may be taxed on part or all of unemployment compensation if you had other income. Jobless pay is exempt only if your adjusted gross income plus the jobless pay and other income totals no more than $18,000 on a joint return.

Employer-paid health insurance premiums still are a tax-free fringe benefit. Also, untaxed are employer payments for group term life insurance up to $50,000.

MARRIAGE PENALTY — Working couples will receive a bigger break for 1983. Ten percent of the lower-paid spouse's earnings — after deductions for an Individual Retirement Account — can be excluded from taxation up to $3,000.

DIVIDENDS — Up to $200 of stock dividends are tax-free on joint returns. The exclusion applies to mutual funds that hold stock, but not to dividends paid by money-market funds. Public utility investors can receive a break by reinvesting 1982 dividends in more utility shares.

In approved plans, up to $1,500 may be excluded on a joint return. If you meet the rules, tax is not due until the new shares are sold, and then at the low, long-term capital-gains rate if finances and you

held for more than one year.

REBATES — Dividends on insurance policies are not income. They usually are a rebate on premiums and are not taxable. But interest earned on dividends left with the insurance company is taxable.

A refund received on last year's state income tax may not be taxable. It is taxable only if previously claimed as a federal deduction.

chase price and is not considered income.

Interest earned on certificates of deposit at banks and savings institutions is not taxed until it is credited to an account and can be withdrawn without penalty.

There is a choice on earnings from U.S. Series E and EE Savings Bonds. Most people let the interest build up and report it when the bonds are cashed in. But interest can be reported each year as it is earned — a strategy which often is beneficial for children who own bonds and have little taxable income.

Alvin again Director stars in musical hit 'I Love My Wife'

See review of "I Love My Wife" on next page. BY Ethel Simmons staff writer. SANDY-HAIRED, brown-eyed James Seymour, who has a winsome smile that shows his front teeth, looks perfectly cast as Alvin, the young husband in "I Love My Wife," at the Birmingham Theatre.

"I LOVE My Wife" isn't the first show the actor has directed. He directed "All the Way Home" at the Ensemble Studio Theatre in New York and took the show to the Peterborough (N.H.) Players, "one of the oldest summer theaters in the country."

Director/actor James Seymour, who is frequently cast as a young husband, in real life is a father-to-be. He stars as Alvin in the Birmingham Theatre production of the Broadway musical "I Love My Wife."

LIKE THE naive character, Alvin, whom he plays in "I Love My Wife," Seymour is from Trenton, N.J. There, perhaps, the similarity ends. The multi-talented Seymour, who is primarily an actor, has been enjoying his chance to pace as director. During the interview, his mind-set seemed more that of someone behind the scenes than of a star-conscious performer.

HE BELIEVES Williams' strength as a playwright stemmed from a lack of protective armor that most people have built up. "What was so wonderful was that he could put that pain on paper."

HE DID "I Love My Wife" on Broadway about six years ago and in Chicago about five years ago. Others in the Birmingham Theatre cast also have appeared in various productions of the show.

Susan Synnestevedt, first-prize winner, performed the Saint-Saens Concerto No. 3 for violin.

Young violinist plays skillfully

By Mary Jane Dwyer
special writer

Violinist Susan Synnestevedt displayed her virtuosity in Sunday's concert with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra at the Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium.

She showed her audience why she was awarded first place in the second Young Artist Competition, receiving a $1,000 prize from the Michigan Foundation for the Arts.

Performing a powerful Saint-Saens Concerto No. 3 for Violin, Synnestevedt won out over 79 other contestants, selected by a committee of eight tape judges and three finals adjudicators.

Synnestevedt came to Michigan to compete in the competition from Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia where she is a student and concertmaster with the Curtis Orchestra.

HER PLAYING is purposeful and directed. She was in full command of every run, every trill, every technical device during the 18th violin concerto. One of the most beautiful moments of the concert came at the end of the second movement when she softened her tone and duetted with principal clarinetist John Mohler.

Synnestevedt also is a musician who understands the importance of the visual aspect of performing. Her red dress and blond hair made her presentation even more pleasing, though such things should really have no bearing on a fine performance.

As a violinist, Synnestevedt has outstanding qualities in musicianship.

The second-place award, the Oliver H. Wagner Memorial Award of $750, was given to pianist William Ransom, a doctoral student at the University of Michigan on scholarship with Theodore Levin.

Not until Ransom was well into his Chopin Piano Concerto No. 1 was I able to understand why the artist had picked this concerto for the competition. After all, Chopin was not a master in orchestration.

THEN I understood. Ransom is extremely lyrical with the tender passages in Chopin. He is able to change pace quickly, alternate emotional expressions and move from one rhythm to another with no alteration of the overall feeling of the composition. His style is light, airy and then powerful, always clear but with a rapid facility that is easy and comfortable.

He performs with feeling.

A $500 prize and third place was awarded to flutist Jeffrey Zook. He is a student at the University of Michigan School of Music and has won numerous scholarships and awards. Zook is a highly energetic performer and is skilled in his playing.

The 1928 Nielsen Concerto for Flute and Orchestra composition, which Zook performed, has its merits for technique but little else. Even Jean-Pierre Ransom pal failed to make it interesting at the Detroit Symphony Orchestra performance last spring.

William Ransom played a Chopin piano concerto.

Jeffrey Zook did a Nielsen concerto for flute and orchestra.

Johan van der Merwe's quick action as conductor provided a nice accompaniment for the three soloists. The orchestra came through with a good back-up. Principal trombonist Charles Wilson, principal hornist Louis Stout and principal clarinetist John Mohler gave strong support for Zook in the Nielsen number.

Attic Theatre seeks entries for young authors contest

The Attic Theatre's first Young Authors Contest, sponsored in coordination with the Attic's New Playwrights Forum, has been announced by Artistic Director Lavinia Moyer.

theater's artistic staff for presentation as a staged reading at 7 p.m. Monday, June 4, at the theater, 525 E. Lafayette at Beaubien in Detroit's Gresham. It will be the final production of this year's New Playwrights Forum.

Judging and audience discussion will follow the performance.

Detroit-area high school students, freshman through senior, may submit manuscripts for one act (20-60 pages in length) or full-length (80-120 pages) plays. Authors may use no more than eight characters and also must consider the constraints of a small staging area.

Submissions must be postmarked by Friday, April 6. The author's name, address, telephone number, grade level and school should be included, as well as a list of the play's characters. A winner will be announced Friday, May 11.

Theater scene offers musical, heavy drama

Capable cast struggles mightily to bring zest to weak musical

Medow Brook Theatre captures feeling of Henry James' work 'The Heiress'

Performances of the musical "I Love My Wife" continue through Sunday, April 1, at the Birmingham Theatre, 211 S. Woodward, Birmingham. For ticket information call the box office at 644-3533.

By Barbara Michaels
special writer

Weak lyrics, a generally lackluster score and an inane plot make it an uphill battle for the talented cast members of "I Love My Wife," current production at the Birmingham Theatre.

Although the director and principal players cannot be faulted and do manage a few shining moments, they are not enough to redeem the show.

The Michael Stewart-Cy Coleman musical comedy is about two young married couples, lifelong friends, who aspire to broaden their horizons and become swingers. When push comes to shove (and various other attempted positions), the foursome's sexual escapades fall flat. Even in these liberated times, everyone is not cut out to be a swinger, the show suggests. Nor is every one-gag plotline meant to be a musical.

Wally (Mark Jacoby) convinces his pal Alvin (James Seymour) that three in bed is better than two. Alvin then must convince his reluctant wife Cleo (Marcia McClain). Should it be two males and one female or two females and one male? Wally ends their indecision by suggesting they expand to a foursome. That leaves Wally to break the news to his outraged wife Monica (Jacqueline Reilly).

WHEN THE pre-appointed time arrives, Alvin invents all sorts of delaying tactics. The others finally shut him up, and Wally pulls out his new swingers' sex manual. The latter doesn't work too well, and neither do Wally and Alvin.

Whenever one of the principals breaks into song, a four-man combo of their old pals wanders out to provide musical accompaniment, sometimes mercifully drowning out the lyrics. The running gag is that the musicians appear in a different silly costume each time, the outfits sometimes ill-fitting and looking homemade.

review

Seymour, who also is the show's director, works hard at giving Alvin some comic depth and succeeds handsomely. His timing and facial expressions are right on target, and Seymour's aura of fresh-faced innocence makes his aspirations to swing amusingly preposterous.

Compulsive about his bedclothes, Seymour does hilarious battle with his pillow and blanket. Stalling for time, he gets maximum mileage out of a piece of banana cream pie and does the slowest striptease imaginable, somehow getting his socks to stand at attention.

The other principal players are all irritating and have pleasant singing styles. Jacoby has an appropriately suave facade, while both McClain and Reilly are bubbly.

The musicians also have small speaking parts. Bob Cross, the show's musical director, endows his character with personality, while the rest are pretty bland.

The most sprightly musical numbers are "Hey There, Good Times," performed by the combo, and "Everybody Today is Turning On." In the latter duet Wally tries to persuade Alvin to light up some mysterious substance that turns out to be modeling clay. The other 11 songs are rather woful.

Gary Decker's scenery works well, especially the diner set. Janie Sell's choreography is adequate, and Howard Werner's lighting is fine.

No one can be blamed for the show's weaknesses except its writers.

Performances of "The Heiress" by Henry James continue through Sunday, March 18, at Meadow Brook Theatre on the Oakland University campus near Rochester. For ticket information call the box office at 377-3300.

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

Meadow Brook Theatre's production of "The Heiress" is true to the genius of Henry James.

The drama rises above drawing-room melodrama to tell a tale rich in the psychology of what shapes character.

The play by Ruth and Augustus Goetz is based on James' 1880s novel "Washington Square." "The Heiress" is an entertaining period soap opera complete with an autocratic father, young lovers planning a midnight elopement and a widowed aunt who feels their romance.

Father has money, lots of it, and he threatens not to will it to his daughter, Catherine, if she marries her chosen young man. Throw in a consumptive cough to heighten suspense and Meadow Brook has an engaging, if frivolous story.

Thanks to James' understanding of the complexities of human motivation, "The Heiress" rises above the soap bubbles to tell us something about love and cruelty, loss and vengeance.

Her matchmaking aunt, admirably played by Jillian Lindig, delights in romance. Maureen McDevitt, who plays Catherine's twisty bright cousin Marian, the beauty who's everything Catherine's not.

These ladies balance the grave Catherine and her father and give a liveliness to the drawing room drama that's directed with stylized reserve by Terence Kilburn. As the poor, struggling widow-in-a-bonnet, Bethany Carpenter projects such honesty that the character doesn't seem like a stereotype it could so easily be.

Catherine falls in love with Morris Townsend, a handsome bachelor with no income. She's smitten by Morris as much by his good looks and smooth talk as by the fact that he's the first man to pay her amorous attention.

When Catherine realizes that her father doesn't love her, in fact disdains her and finds her boring, she begins to change. Gone is the obedient, docile young woman.

The doctor is a respectable gentleman, and she's much too honest to flirt coquettishly. Linda Gehring plays Catherine with a breathless earnestness.

Her matchmaking aunt, admirably played by Jillian Lindig, delights in romance. Maureen McDevitt, who plays Catherine's twisty bright cousin Marian, the beauty who's everything Catherine's not.

These ladies balance the grave Catherine and her father and give a liveliness to the drawing room drama that's directed with stylized reserve by Terence Kilburn. As the poor, struggling widow-in-a-bonnet, Bethany Carpenter projects such honesty that the character doesn't seem like a stereotype it could so easily be.

Catherine falls in love with Morris Townsend, a handsome bachelor with no income. She's smitten by Morris as much by his good looks and smooth talk as by the fact that he's the first man to pay her amorous attention.

When Catherine realizes that her father doesn't love her, in fact disdains her and finds her boring, she begins to change. Gone is the obedient, docile young woman.

The doctor is a respectable gentleman, and she's much too honest to flirt coquettishly. Linda Gehring plays Catherine with a breathless earnestness.

Cinematographer Haskell Wexler popularized use of the "steady-cam," a device that allows camera mobility while keeping a steady picture, in "Bound for Glory," and he won an Oscar for his efforts. Somehow, though, beautiful photography contradicts the rags-to-rags story of musician Woody Guthrie's trek through Depression-era America and his awakening to the social and economic injustices of the age. David Carradine, nonetheless, is convincing as Guthrie and, photography aside, the film's theme emerges strong and clear. Ronnie Cox co-stars.

Roger Moore's best James Bond film is "The Spy Who Loved Me," co-starring Barbara Bach, Richard Kiel and Curt Jurgens. Bach, as Moore's Soviet counterpart, is the key. While prior 007 films lagged behind the times, Bach's portrayal of a sultry and sophisticated Russian agent propelled this picture into the age of the Equal Rights and Amendment. In fact, subsequent Bond films have only regressed. Kiel, too, as the metal-mouthed Jaws, is a wonderful bad guy, and Jurgens is perfect as the evil mastermind. Bernard Lee also co-stars.

Globetrotting with a camera

Photographer Bob Webber shows us the world

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

You may never have the chance to travel around the world in 80 days, as did fictional character Phileas Fogg. But in a way you can make a similar trip in some 80 seconds.

That is, if you visit Frame Works in Plymouth now through March 28. The shop, at 833 Penniman, is featuring an International Photographic Exhibit by Robert Webber. Included in the exhibit are photographs taken from North America, Latin America and Europe.

There is a mountain in Switzerland. Here is a guard in London, England. In that row you see the Tower of Pisa. Look in this row and you're watching sheep graze in Pennsylvania.

"ANYBODY CAN learn how to use a camera, but you have to recognize a picture when you see it," said Webber, a Plymouth resident.

"You should look for something with a center of interest. It's a matter of personal tastes as to what you like to look at."

Webber became interested in photography while he was in the Navy. He founded a camera shop and studio in Northville in 1965. Now semi-retired, Webber travels around the world looking for subjects to photograph six months a year, he says. He and wife Betty have written about their journeys and given slide show presentations on the subject.

"I've had my lucky shots," Webber said. "I happened to catch a Canadian goose with water on its back just right for one picture. But I've been known to wait an hour and a half for the weather to clear to get what I want. My wife is getting used to that. I might drive all day and take one picture of a red barn."

IN THE display are scenes from Normandy, Holland, Portugal, Canada and the Italian, French and Spanish Riviera, among other places. There are local shots, too, including those taken on Michigan college campuses and in Plymouth.

Many of the pictures have to do with water, boats or some other nautical theme. Among these are shots of a lighthouse on a rocky slope, colorful boats in front of old white structures along a coast in Spain and white gulls flocking behind fishermen. Webber admits having a certain fondness for this subject.

"We try to keep to the coastlines," he said. "We like the small seaport cities."

But Webber adds that he photographs "just about anything." He once chartered a helicopter to take aerial photographs of Detroit. Two of his favorite pictures are of a church at Mont St. Michel in Normandy and an old barn in Canada.

"I'm an architectural nut," Webber said. "I like architecture."

MANY OF Webber's photographs have a story behind them. When he took a picture of a scene in Zumatt, located in the southern part of Switzerland, he and his wife ran into the only person they knew in Europe. The man in the shot entitled "Goose and Friend," taken in Denmark, didn't know he would be included in the picture.

Webber took a course in portraiture and attended photography seminars, but most of his photographer's knowledge came through experience, he says.

"I bought my first camera when I was in the Navy," Webber said. "I took primarily family pictures. Then I joined the Photographic Guild of Detroit. The competition makes you get out and take pictures, and I learned a lot.

"I would advise would-be photographers to join a good camera club," he added. "It will get you started. Most of them have instructional classes and competition among members. Part of the club is going on assignments, so you take pictures you might not take otherwise."

WEBBER MAJORED in math and English at Albion College. He joined the Detroit diesel engine division of General Motors in 1946. Webber later worked as production control manager for a diesel engine and farm tractor firm, procedures supervisor at Willow Run for the Kaiser-Fraiser Corp. In 1953, he became an organization analyst for the Ford Motor Co. He has been president of the Plymouth Symphony Society and the Northville Chamber of Commerce.

"My love of photography took me from big business to small business,"

Webber said.

"I like the fact that you got something to show for your work," he said. "I still get excited about seeing a roll of film as it's developed."

Webber, who has been to all but four U.S. states, wants to visit England again to photograph the ice skating pair of Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean who won a gold medal at the Winter Olympics in Sarajevo. He has never seen Australia and New Zealand and hopes to visit those places someday.

The Webbers' 1982 motor trip through Europe cost them $55 a day. They wrote about how they kept their travel costs down and offered the reports for sale.

"We met a lot of nice people who told us what to see," Robert Webber said. "So we saw a lot of museums and things the tour buses never stop at. We learned some unknown history by visiting small towns."

How to save art for posterity

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington MI 48024.

I am 36 and aging fast.

Just look at my photo. Really this photo in the paper doesn't do my eye bags justice. They are much bigger and darker. I am already into the corrective combing stage and hate to go out on windy days. Even my beard is turning white. I know it is just a few white hairs here and there, but it is getting a little painful plucking them out everyday. One friend said a white beard is very distinguished. But I'm only 36, I want to be cute, not distinguished.

I have always been relatively unconcerned about my age until I became "28ish" and "29ish," then I began to worry about the "big three-0." As a matter of fact I had a traumatic experience at that time in my life. I always got confused about my age. Since I needed a pencil and scratch pad to figure it out, I never took the time to calculate my correct age. So when I thought I was 28 getting close to 30, I was shocked to discover I was already 29 turning 30.

At my own birthday party, I couldn't believe it when my wife put 30 candles on the cake. I still feel that I lost a year somewhere back then.

SINCE WE can do nothing to halt the passing of time, it is a particular blessing to be an artist. Certainly any work of art outlasts its creator. How inspiring to think that an expression in the form of art whether it be in drawing, painting, sculpture or writing can clearly speak long after the voice of the artist is silenced. This thought adds a little weight to those many quick sketches most artists have laying around. Indeed a significant percentage of art works we frame at the art store are cherished pieces, perhaps only casually observed during the artist's lifetime. For this reason I feel it is of particular importance that your choice of paper and media be of a good quality so that your works of art will hold up to the passage of time.

This week we framed a pencil drawing done in 1977. It is hard to believe that in just seven years this paper had drastically yellowed and even cracked in some areas. When you consider the time spent doing any work of art it would be a shame if it turned out beautifully and was on an inferior grade of paper. If this happens, you can always transfer your drawing to better paper. The best way to approach this, however, is to do a rough sketch on bond, layout or poster paper. When you have established all the critical areas transfer (by rubbing graphite on the back of your drawing) the main shapes to a good quality paper. High rag or 100 percent rag paper has a good chance of staying white over the passing of time. I had better go to a question to change the subject before this sounds like a life insurance commercial.

Q: My name is Janice and I am having a difficult time drawing this idea I have of a man holding up the world, similar to Atlas. Would an anatomy class help me.

A: As you probably already know, Janice, people are very difficult to draw. If you draw them even a little out of proportion or imperfect it is very noticeable. Within a year, my personal goal of having a studio class concentrating on anatomy will come true. There is too much about anatomy to touch on here. I have scratched the surface a little in a couple previous articles. I will say this, it is very important to look closely and study the shapes and how they relate to each other and you will have an easier time drawing. Remember to spend as much time studying the shape as you do sketching it. Make it clear in your mind before you even attempt to make a visual expression.

I think of my 5-year-old son, Adam. Now there is a kid who knows how to look at shapes. All those cute stuffed toys and animals he plays with all day seem to scare him at night, when it is bed time. Before we are allowed to leave his room, we must turn Cookie Monster and the other 12 Sesame Street toys, so they face the wall, because the large eyes scare him at night. Anything that has a threatening silhouette must be put on the floor. It is very common to hear his little voice, somewhat irritated, as it pierces the night's silence, "Hey you guys forgot to turn Big Bird around."

Thank-you: Many people have taken time to write letters asking questions and complimenting the Artifacts column. Others have made a trip to the Art Store to introduce themselves and there express their favorable opinion of the column. Please accept my thank-you to the many nice people who have cheered this article on for 35 weeks.

Circular File: "You said anything can be fixed, now fix this drawing before I throw it away" said Bella, as she slammed her drawing down on the art table.

She had a beautifully drawn picture of an opossum in a tree. The problem was that you couldn't make out the structure of the opossum because it is so furry. This problem was easily corrected by adding heavily shaded areas to show the structure of the animal. After the structure was established, Bella added a fine lines here and there to give it the hairy texture. The proper approach to drawing furry, fluffy or hair covered animals is to always develop the structure first. Then define the planes and shapes of bone and muscle. Then and only then add the finishing details.

Sometimes the strokes of hair or fur will completely cover up the structure you may have struggled to produce. But that structure is critical because it supports the finishing details and adds a lifelike quality to your animal renderings. Some animals have very short hair which because of its shiny texture emphasizes the bone and muscle structure. A horse, for example, is a study in bone, muscle and proportion. The fact that a horse even has hair is only evident in that it has a shiny coat, which wonderfully bends light and shadow to emphasize its massive structure.
