Board OKs $1-million bus expenditure

By Diane Gale
staff writer

After failing state police inspections for the first time in 10 years, the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools got the green light from the board of education to buy 26 buses and eight vehicles to transport special-education students at a cost exceeding $1 million. Seven of the district's buses were slapped with red tags by the state police. The classification prohibits the vehicles from being driven for safety reasons until repairs are made on the specified major defects. "It's been over 10 years since any defects were found in our buses," according to Dale Goby, director of transportation and safety. Tight budgets have prevented the district from buying needed vehicles before this time, and the buses are showing their age. Goby said. Although the administration hasn't determined what type of financing will be used, payments will be spread over three years. "With a three-year purchase plan there's a price break, because we're buying at today's price," explained Diane Barnes, the schools' assistant director of finance.

"We're considering different ways to purchase the buses, and during the next week or two we'll be investigating," Barnes said. "The financing is out there, because I've already been contacted by two or three banks." The board directed the administration to report back by Dec. 1, 1984 with information on the financing possibilities. The money won't be needed until November, Barnes said. The first half of the fleet will be delivered before Dec. 1, 1984, and the remainder will arrive in the district before July 1, 1985. "Bus purchases have been delayed for the past two years during which time the condition of the fleet has continued to deteriorate resulting in increased maintenance costs, greater difficulty with the annual state police inspection and increased inconvenience due to breakdowns," Goby said. If the purchase was denied, the district would have been forced to continue operating the 100 or so vehicles now in use, which are showing their age with an average odometer reading of 86,000, Goby added. Some special-education vehicles have more than 125,000 miles.

High-speed chase ends in discovery of skull in trunk

Man is charged with eluding

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A portion of a human skull was discovered in the trunk of a car after a Canton Township police officer ended a high-speed chase by ramming a man's vehicle and forcing it off the road early Saturday morning.

James Bernard Powers, 29, of Whitmore Lake was charged with "fleeing and eluding." Powers was released after posting 10 percent of a $2,500 bond set by Judge Kalem Garian of Highland Park's 30th District Court. Garian was working the weekend arraignment shift at the Circuit Court annex in Westland.

"It's possible he was involved in other (illegal) things, but the problem is we can't at this time prove much more than fleeing and eluding," according to Acting Lt. Alex Wilson.

Powers was carrying between $800 and $900 in cash. Police also found keys to various cars and hotel rooms.

"We don't know exactly why he was fleeing at this time," Wilson said.

However, the partial skull — including the eye and nose sockets — seemed suspicious to police. The top of the bone and jaw are missing.

"POWERS SAID he stole it (skull) from a doctor's office in Ann Arbor, and it appears possible, due to the way the skull is cut very clean," said Wilson. "It appears to be old."

"We're checking with Ann Arbor (police) to see if any doctors have reported a missing skull," Wilson said. "We're currently checking all the possibilities, but there's not a lot more that we can show."

The evidence was uncovered after an officer attempted to stop Powers on Michigan Avenue east of Sheldon at about 2 a.m. The officer "observed erratic driving and thought the suspect may be under the influence," Wilson said.

Powers, who was driving a 1967 gold Cadillac, immediately sped up going west on Geddes. The suspect was traveling in excess of 90 mph on roads with posted speed limits of 35 mph and 45 mph, Wilson said.

Powers, who was alone in the car, continued driving carelessly as he approached Canton Center Road where he forced a motorist off the highway, Wilson said. The chase proceeded west on Geddes to Denton Road where another patrol car was waiting to assist in the arrest.

Grade school to close, will re-open for adults

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Starkweather Elementary School will close its doors to children at the end of this school year, and may re-open in fall as an adult day school.

Rather than leaving the 57-year-old school vacant, other uses have been explored. Plymouth-Canton school administrators suggested to the board at its meeting Monday that the proposed adult-day community education program is a needed and financially sound move for the district.

"There were other suggestions for the school, but this is the only one that met the (Plymouth-Canton Board of Education) requirement of producing revenues," according to Dr. John M. Hoben, superintendent.

Some of the other recommendations for the facility included a library media outlet, a center for "talented and gifted students," a "demonstration school" for teachers to learn skills and a special-education program.

The initial cost of opening the school to provide the additional community-education programs is projected at $44,163, a sum which would be taken from the district's general fund during the 1984-85 school year. However, through dollars accumulated from state aid, tuition and fees, the program is expected to replenish the budget with approximately $96,727 during the 1985-86 school year. In the 1986-87 school year the program is slated to add about $137,340 to the fund.

"These figures are conservative," Hoben said. "The revenues probably could increase by a lot more, but it's still a gamble."

The community-education program is experiencing growing pains with an increase in enrollment of about 10 percent each year over the past few years, according to David Dursum, assistant director of community education.

If the proposal passes, the additional programs offered at Starkweather will include:

- General Education Development Test (GED) classes for students wanting to receive the equivalent of a high-school diploma.

- Business education, including word processing and computer programming and typing.

- Physical-fitness classes, like aerobics and volleyball.

- Health Occupation Center for the district's medical- and dental-assistant programs.

- A bilingual program that hinges upon the awarding of an applied-for federal grant.

- Traditional classes, like mathematics, bookkeeping and reading.

New food for thought

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A food-management company, guaranteeing the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools a $39,000 return on lunch sales, made a tantalizing offer that was unanimously accepted by the school board Monday night.

Including the Plymouth-Canton district, Service Systems Corp. now manages 204 school systems in the country.

"None of the other proposals offered that assertive or positive return," according to Thomas Rose, the district's purchasing agent.

The Food Service Evaluation Committee — composed of two principals, two parents, two administrators and two school employees — studied various proposals and options for the past four months before recommending Service Systems Corp.

Competitive proposals from food-management companies must be sought at least every three years.

"The greatest difficulty we had is that Interstate United has done a good job for the past three years," Rose said. "When you go out for proposals you put yourself in a certain situation, because you have to look for the next year and seek the best proposal."

Service Systems was awarded the contract for the 1984-85 school year, and is offering a menu spokesman say will attract high-school students at lower prices. High-school students buy school lunches less often than any other group, Rose said.

Police, fire unions endorse judicial candidate

By Diane Gale
staff writer

For the first time in Canton Township history the police and fire unions have entered the political arena by endorsing a candidate.

Attorney Robert Greenstein, who has lengthy experience in Canton Township government, received the nods in his bid for 35th District judge. The support is a high-voltage boost for his campaign to woo the all-important electors from Canton Township, Greenstein said.

The community has "enough voters to totally control the election," Greenstein said.

The seat has jurisdiction over Canton Township, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township.

"I think I have an excellent chance of winning, and it depends a whole lot on Canton," Greenstein said. "With the unions supporting me, I hope it will rub off on other residents."

"The fact that they've (police and fire unions) decided to endorse me, and did it for the first time makes me feel

'Everything in the world is political, and you might as well get someone that you want in the office.'

— Claude Gersky
Canton firefighter

that all I've worked for during the past 15 years wasn't in vain," said Greenstein, Canton's first police chief.

Greenstein, 46, who has law offices in Canton, was Canton's municipal judge 1968-70. He also worked as a Canton supervisor and trustee. Other stints during the more than 20 years he has lived in the community include serving as president of two homeowners' associations, as well as founder and director of a group that worked for farmland preservation in Canton.

"We're definitely familiar with Mr. Greenstein's qualifications, and I think he represents what we'd like to see in a judge," said Officer John Sherwin, treasurer of the Police Officers Association of Michigan Local 162.

Sherwin said he "anticipates" that the six-year-old union will make other endorsements in the election.

"We see how we'd like to have things done, and the endorsements are a way of letting people know that we're watching and that we're here," Sherwin said.

"We are affiliated with the court quite a bit, and we felt he was worth endorsing," he said. "He's a very outspoken person, but he's usually accurate in what he says."

Bikers benefit St. Jude cause

More than $800 was raised last Saturday at the first Plymouth St. Jude Children's Hospital Bike-A-Thon. The event will be telecast on Omnicom Channel 15 at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Friday and 9 p.m. Saturday. Opening ceremonies featured vocalist Jan Gattoni, accompanist Jerry Haulscher, two mounted Wayne County Sheriff deputies, and a flag ceremony involving Boy Scout Troops 743, 210, 325 and 1534 sponsored by Plymouth Elks, Bird PTO, and the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. Wayne County Executive William Lucas rode the first lap on his own bike. Other officials participating were William Oakley, Wayne County road commissioner, Cathy Kanabic, administrative assistant, Wayne County parks, Esther Hulsing, Plymouth Township clerk, and William Robinson, Plymouth mayor pro-tem. Volunteer help was provided by the P.A.C.T. CB team led by Chuck VanVleck, Dan LeBlond and Michelle Dean, three volunteer Registered Nurses from United Home Health Care, Jud Watkins of Ann Street, Plymouth, served as food chairman, and giving safety assistance were Plymouth Township firefighters Fred Honke, Clayton Miller, Greg Westfall, Donald McDurman, Donald Hahn, James Haar, Martin King, and Carlos Has. One 14-year-old biker, Andy Hoover, rode 56 miles. "Unfortunately, many other activities were taking place the same day as our ride and kids' interests were spread very thin," comments Frances Rudd, bike-a-thon chairman. "Bikers attending, however, were most enthusiastic and said they would tell their friends about it, so we hope to do better next year." Funds are used to fight cancer. Monetary gifts may be made payable to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and mailed directly to National Bank of Detroit Branch 39, Main Street, Plymouth MI 48170 JR30.

Jobs ready for youth

The Summer Youth Employment Training Program (SYETP) again this summer is aiming to put a dent in youth unemployment in the Plymouth, Canton, Northville area. The program will hire students ages 16-21 and place them into entry-level positions in a variety of occupations throughout public and private non-profit organizations. Participants will receive wages for 32 hours per work week. The eight-week program is scheduled to begin June 18 and end Aug. 10. To be eligible the applicant must live in the Plymouth-Canton or Northville school districts and be low income or self-supporting. Others who may be eligible include: youth living with unemployed parents, those receiving Aid to Dependent Children, students working their way through college and supporting themselves by at least 50 percent or handicapped youth. A special two-day orientation and job-skill workshop will be conducted by SYETP before the program begins. Attendance at the workshop is required of participants. All applications should be turned in by the end of May. Applications will be processed on a first-come basis. Anyone interested should pick up forms at the Rock Shop in Plymouth Salem High School or at the Chief Connection in Plymouth Canton High School 10:30-11:30 a.m. Monday-Friday. 3 enter in state finals

Three students from Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) recently participated in state finals in forensic competition.

Competing in the forensics state finals at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, were Pam Pavlicsak, senior at Plymouth Salem High, competing in radio broadcasting, Chris Pettit, Plymouth Canton High junior, competing in storytelling, and Paul Hines, Canton junior, competing in sales speaking.

The meet was set up with two preliminary rounds, a semifinal and final round. The top six finishers are awarded trophies.

Pettit placed first in the state in storytelling, Pavlicsak made the semifinal round in radio and was the second top female finisher in the state. Pavlicsak, in her second year of forensic participation, also made it to the state semifinal round last year. This was Pettit's first and Hine's second year in the finals.

Lorenz, Hudson earn SC honorary degrees

By Tim Richard staff writer

Michigan can recover economically by becoming the "arsenal of productivity," just as it was World War II's "arsenal of democracy," publisher Philip H. Power told 281 Schoolcraft College graduates and their families Saturday.

"The day of counting on a good job without some form of post-high school education is over," the owner of Suburban Communications Corp., parent of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers said to the community college audience.

"I believe our main opportunity (for recovery) lies in our traditional economic base: manufacturing," he said. But 21st century manufacturing must emphasize high labor skills and productivity, Power said, adding, "We cannot and will not discard our workers."

Gov. Blanchard has made a commitment — state government will do everything in its power to help those workers gain the skills, the knowledge and the resources they need to find new jobs, good jobs, lasting jobs for the future.

SCHOOLCRAFT rewarded Power with an honorary associate in arts degree, citing his work as a member of Blanchard's Commission on the Future of Higher Education and chairmanship of the governor's Michigan Job Training Coordinating Council.

He was the first person in the college's 19-year history of commencement to speak a second time. His first appearance was in 1969, before Schoolcraft began awarding honorary degrees. Board Chairman Michael Burley noted 83 honorary degrees have been awarded since 1971.

Other honorary degrees went to: Ralph G. Lorenz, manager since 1939 and owner since 1964 of the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth, a driving force in downtown Plymouth's rejuvenation and a key promoter of Schoolcraft's famed culinary arts program — honorary associate in applied science. Samuel Hedges, author of "Reaching Out . . ." The History of Schoolcraft College, former trustee of the college, author of histories of Plymouth and retired advertising manager for Evans Products Co. — honorary associate in arts.

George L. Clark, Northville Township supervisor in 1959-63, a founder of the Schoolcraft College Foundation and former hardware merchant and real estate agent — honorary associate in applied science. Retired in Texas, Clark was unable to attend the ceremony.

New of honorary degrees is kept a secret until the moment the degree is awarded. The tradition forces the college administration into some elaborate gyrations in huring recipients to the ceremony.

This year, Hudson was asked to bring Lorenz, unaware that both were to be honored.

While 90 percent of Schoolcraft students are from the northwestern Wayne County district, one mother traveled from Great Britain to see her daughter graduate, President Richard McDowell said.

Gwen Moorecraft came from Wales to see daughter Vikki MacGowan receive her diploma in culinary arts.

The 281 attending the traditional cap-and-gown ceremony in the college gymnasium were among 859 who earned degrees during the last calendar year. Many spring, summer and fall graduates are already attending four-year colleges to work on baccalaureate degrees, and others have scattered to jobs.

The two-year college awards associate degrees in arts, engineering, general studies and science, along with a number of one-year certificates.

THE LIST of graduates, along with lists of special honors, will be published as soon as it is officially prepared by the college — typically in four weeks.

McDowell said 37 persons earned two degrees and four were awarded three degrees. Earning admission to the Phi Theta Kappa honorary society were 113 graduates.

The miles have accumulated by winding in and out of the district's 85 routes. The older buses are in the district's "spare fleet" to minimize their mileage figures.
The buses we currently use last more than 10 years, so we're trying to purchase buses that will last as long, Goby said. "We feel it's in the best in-

Thanks to all blood donors

To the editor:
I wish I could personally thank and shake the hand of every man and woman who took the time to give blood so generously on April 28 at the Canton Township Administration Building. The Blood Drive was our 4th Annual Drive for the Children's Leukemia Foundation. Our chapter, the Western Wayne County Chapter, sponsored the blood drive.

Standing in front of Meijer's again recalled many pleasant memories of talking to old friends and making new friends. The people recognized the uniform and the Fire Rescue Unit. I think it is easier to associate the need for help with something that stands for life saving and trust.

I am sincerely amazed at the genuine interest and caring that people share when approached about the drive that has some how touched their lives or perhaps that of a close friend. Some of the people that I talked to had never given blood before but said that they always wanted to.

I said this would be a good time to share with someone something that only you can do. Most people opened their hearts although being frightened at the thought of giving blood wanted to give something of themselves in order that someone else might benefit.

I spoke to people from not only Canton, but Wayne, Westland and the Garden City area. One young man from as far away as Pinckney came all the way back to Canton to give blood for the first time. Thank you John Roach.

Recalling another lady who I talked to from Westland, she remarked it was also her first time and she was a chicken. I told her she would meet some of the nicest people she would ever meet, and they would help her though this because they were giving for the first time too. She said, "I will be there."

Due to their support, the school netted $8,000 to further its educational programs.

Elaine Yagella, Director, Plymouth

New food for thought

The cost of the federal, nutritional, balanced lunch will be $1.20 for junior and senior high school students this fall — down from the present $1.35.

There will be no change in prices for adults and elementary students, $1.75 and $1, respectively.
In order to make sure the company delivers on its promises, the committee will remain in existence to monitor the performance of the company.

The group also will report its findings periodically to the board. The committee is made up of dedicated people, and when we were done covering the territory we left no stone unturned," Rose said. "We felt solid about our recommendation."

Our chapter needs help with things like the blood drive, a cookie sale and other area functions for the Children's Leukemia Foundation. If you are interested in donating some time please contact me.
Frank Chakrabarty, President - Western Wayne County Chapter, Children's Leukemia Foundation, 45855 Maben Road, Canton, 455-1077

Merchants' help appreciated

To the editor:
New Morning School, a pre-kindergarten through eighth grade school, is located in Plymouth Township, wishes to thank the Canton merchants and community members who generously donated to our recent 8th Annual Auction

Police find skull in driver's trunk

The first officer feared for the safety of pedestrians in the area, and rammed the driver's door of the Cadillac, which forced Powers off the road. Wilson said. No one was injured in the incident, but there was approximately $400 worth of damage to the police car, according to Wilson. He estimated that repairs on the Cadillac would cost about $450.

Judicial candidate endorsed by unions

Canton's fire union, Local 2289, voted to endorse Greenstein because he's a candidate from the community who they believe will do a fair job, according to union vice president Claude Gersky, a Canton firefighter.
"Everything in the world is political, and you might as well get someone that you want in the office," Gersky said. "We support him, because he's a Canton resident, and we know him and what he's done for Canton."

The fire union also plans to make other endorsements in the election, but it hasn't committed to anyone else, Gersky said.
The post will be vacated by retiring District Judge Dunbar Davis of Plymouth.

Closed school to re-open for adults

Job-market-preparation classes, which will help students identify their interests.
The facility also will provide an adult learning center for students who choose to set up their own schedules and work on programs by themselves or in small groups.
Another possibility involves sharing the facility with Schoolcraft College, which has indicated a strong desire to increase its offerings if facilities are available.

The majority of students who otherwise would have gone to Starkweather will attend Tanger Elementary. Others will go to Smith and Allen elementary.

The idea of closing the school was to have more efficient utilization out of our existing facilities," Hoban said. "It was caused also in some degree to a decline in enrollment."

crime watch

MAY 3 was a good day for thieves and a bad day for homeowners.
Worst hit was a house on Congress, which got nailed for more than $2,000 in losses. Missing were such items as a phone recorder ($130) and a 19-inch RCA color TV ($550), but the big loss was in firearms. Missing were a Winchester shotgun ($600), a Remington rifle with scope ($450) and a .35-caliber handgun ($300).

There was no subtlety to a B&E on Eaton. The front door was kicked in and taken, were $60 in cash and a $200 TV from the bedroom.

MEANWHILE, a mystery was developing on Thornwood, in a house owned by an FBI agent recently transferred here.
Item: The contents of the house were thrown about, the product of a careful ransacking.

Item: The ransacker was calm enough to smoke a Marlboro down to the butt. (He left it there; no one in the family smokes.)

Item: A jewelry box, containing jewelry and kept on a dresser, was found on the bed.
So, what's the mystery? Just another sneak-thief in the night? No. Nothing was stolen, not even the jewelry.

A HOUSE on Meadowdale was vacant, but there was something of value in the garage. A thief of thieves broke into the garage May 1 and made off with a swimming-pool filter valued at $850.

IN THE NICK of time tells the story of a family on Somerset Square. They returned home from a wedding the night of May 6 and apparently scared off a thief.

He had come in through a sliding glass door and started ransacking the house. Just after he found the jewelry, the family came home and chased him off.

A SIMILAR case, also on the 6th, happened on Parkside. Entry was first attempted on a rear door. When that failed, entrance was made after breaking the glass on a garage door adjacent to the house. Every room was ransacked. The jewelry was found and stuffed into a bag.

At that point, apparently, the family returned home. The thief fled, in his haste dropping the bag of jewelry outside the house, where it was later found. He did, however, manage to hold on to a 22-carat wedding band valued at $300.

MICHAEL Spragg, 27, ended up in Oakwood Hospital, Canton Center about 9 p.m. May 9 after a tire blew up in his face. Spragg was inflating his car tire at the Shell gas station at Ford and Haggerty roads when, due to a defect or over-inflation, it exploded. Dirt flew into Spragg's eyes, and he was treated at the hospital where he was treated and released, officials said.

Our story has been dramatized here, but the sorrow of blindness by accident, birth, disease and aging is very real. The work of treatment and cure is a journey of discovery into darkness; the joy of vision itself a miracle of infinite complexity. And hope springs from the research and clinical innovations of a few special facilities like the Kresge Eye Institute at Harper Hospital. Dedicated exclusively to the problems of vision, the Kresge Eye Institute treats thousands of patients each year. Its research programs develop new paths of understanding. Its clinical practice brings new technology to medicine and refines pioneering treatment techniques for others to follow. County Executive William Lucas and his staff will have to do more homework if they expect Circuit Court to allow them to start closing down Wayne County General Hospital.

LWV uses radio campaign to get young to vote

By Kathy Parrish staff writer
Voting turns off many young adults. But they do tune in to radio. So the League of Women Voters is joining forces with a national radio network in an effort to get 18- to 24-year-olds into voting booths this fall.
Called 'Taking Charge,' the campaign was unveiled this week during the League of Women Voters' national convention in the Westin Hotel, Detroit. About 1,500 delegates viewed a multimedia presentation on the project, which will start Sept. 6 in eight cities on RKO owned and operated radio stations.
Spots encouraging young people to vote are set for Boston, New York, Washington, D.C., Memphis, Fort Lauderdale/Miami, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Leagues in other areas are also being encouraged to take part in the effort.
'We want the younger generation to understand that the way to get power is to register and vote,' explained Virginia Schwartz, a Birmingham resident who is the League's Government/Voters Service Chair.
'RKO has the ability to talk to that age group in a way they can understand.'

group to get into voting booths. In the 1980 elections, 55.3 percent of 18-24-year-olds were not registered. Of those 21-24, 47.3 percent were not registered.
In the 1982 congressional elections, 65 percent of 18-20-year-olds and 52.2 percent of 21-24-year-olds couldn't vote.
League volunteers blame lack of participation on the flux of young adults who may be in school, not own homes or have families. Many people just don't vote until there is a local election issue they really care about.
'The older you are, the more likely you are to participate in the political process,' explained Schwartz.
'When 18-year-olds got the vote, there was hope that that group would take charge. And there's concern that they haven't taken that opportunity.'

stantal. 'But what better cause to participate in during an election year?' asked Carter, whose stations reach eight million people weekly.
Not only is RKO paying for the project, but its stations are making available prime time for the radio spots. The public-service announcements are expected to be heard 100 million times within a month.
'We're trying to encourage the young people of America to become involved in the Democratic process,' explained Carter, who believes they've 'abdicated their responsibilities.
'If they continue to be turned off, I'm not sure we're looking at a democracy in the future.'

Firm loses appeal on avoiding SBT

A New York firm which operates a plant in Plymouth has lost an appeal to avoid paying the Single Business Tax (SBT).
The Michigan Court of Appeals ruled last week that non-Michigan based companies which operate in the state are liable to pay Michigan's Single Business Tax.
The case originated when Acco Industries of New York, which operated plants in Warren, Adrian and Plymouth, was assessed deficiency tax assessments by the Michigan Treasury for the years 1976-79.
Acco appealed the Treasury Department's assessment to the Michigan Tax Tribunal which entered a judgment for the state. That judgment was appealed to the Michigan Court of Appeals.
ATTORNEY GENERAL Frank Kelley, who represented the state, said the appellate decision will save Michigan 'hundreds of millions of dollars' in future tax revenues.
The Appeals Court agreed with the contentions put forth by Kelley that Acco's method of comparing worldwide compensation with a Michigan tax is illegal.
The judges went on to explain that the tax computation practices of the Michigan Treasury Department are correct, added Kelley, and prior lower court decisions plus a clarifying amendment in 1981 to the SBT law makes the legislative intent very clear in this matter.

Michigan loses appeal on avoiding SBT

As a result of the action, he said, Acco will have to pay $297,228. The amount includes interest through May 1, 1984.
'This is a tremendous victory for the people of Michigan,' said Kelley. 'The $300,000 judgment against Acco is just the tip of the iceberg. Our victory will prevent other companies in similar situations from trying to get out of their legitimate tax assessment.'
The attorney general claimed the potential savings to the state in tax revenue is some $750 million.

Grandstanding won't save hospital

COUNTY EXECUTIVE William Lucas has signaled another code blue on Wayne County General Hospital...

"It's not going to close," said Kay Beard, county commissioner who represents the district in which the hospital is located.

"They're playing games with people's lives," said Dr. Ramon Joseph, chief of internal medicine at the hospital.

BUT ALL the protests won't be able to revive the hospital in its present form. Had some of those people spent more time looking for solutions instead of grandstanding...

Financial problems at Wayne County General are nothing new. When the county government racked up a deficits in the late '70s, it closed the psychiatric hospital known as Eloise...

But still deficits continue. When Lucas took office in 1983, he recommended that the county sell the hospital.

CHANGES WERENT made by the county commission because few wanted to offend labor groups, which often supported them politically.

Not until Lucas instituted the so-called impasse document did 550 employees in the AFSCME local take $3,000 pay cuts.

One labor group — a professional corporation of doctors — first tried to abate the life-threatening rise of hospital costs.

In July 1981, the doctors formed University Medical Associates and agreed to freeze their fees for treating indigent patients to the $1 million cost. It has remained frozen at that level.

The 55 doctors in the group average less than $20,000 each, hardly a lucrative amount. But added to it are fees for training and supervising staff as well as fees charged to patients who have insurance.

THAT CONTRACT, as well as the four boards which have supervised the hospital's operations, are responsible for its mismanagement, according to Milton Mack, a county commissioner from Wayne.

Dr. Joseph, however, argues that Lucas' incessant criticism of the hospital has been responsible for the drop in revenue.

Last Monday, the occupancy rate had dropped to 53 percent.

WHAT'S TO happen to the patients, the employees and the building itself? The county commission has shown no inclination to find a real solution...

Lucas campaigned on a promise of bringing fiscal responsibility to the county, and his plan to close the hospital is consistent.

While his staff members claim there is a plan for closing the hospital, no one has seen it. What about the 1,100 pregnant women who can't all be absorbed by surrounding hospitals?

What about the 47 patients on kidney-dialysis machines? There are only 20 available spots elsewhere throughout the county.

And what about Wayne County General's trauma center, which provides emergency-room care unavailable elsewhere in the vicinity of Metropolitan Airport and major freeways?

LUCAS' PLAN to close the facility is likely to bring on lawsuits, which already have been threatened by union leaders.

Zapping out-of-towners

TO STATE Rep. Vernon Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, it was just a routine bill. After all, the House had passed it hardly batting an eyelash.

But in the Senate, Ehlers' bill on boards of review had to go through the Local Government Committee, one of whose members is Sen. Harry DeMaso.

Ehlers' HB 5111 would allow cities and townships with more than 10,000 population to expand the boards of review from three members to six or nine...

DeMaso's suggestion: Board of review members should be certified property appraisers, folks with some technical expertise.

DeMaso, TO the uninitiated, was once supervisor of Battle Creek Township and a state representative at the same time.

DeMaso estimates local governments are losing $1 billion a year in property tax revenues because assessors and boards of review are too easy on home-town folks.

DeMaso estimates local governments are losing $1 billion a year in property tax revenues because assessors and boards of review are too easy on home-town folks.

Conversely, he argues, they are tough on out-of-state and non-resident owners of cottages.

"A lot of non-resident property owners are told, in so many words, 'Don't bother to come in — you don't live here.'"

Remember that state income tax increase? The one that went through the Senate with 19 Democratic votes and one Republican vote?

AFTERWARDS, HIS caucus treated him like a leper. When his party took over control of the Senate this year, DeMaso was passed over for the chairmanship...

So now DeMaso is on the Local Government Committee, arguing for honest assessing practices for non-residents of the communities which tax them.

If your summer cottage or upstate hunting shack is being treated like the Taj Mahal by the township, you'll be pleased to know that one legislator grasped the problem.

Lawmakers split on El Salvador

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes May 3-10.

HOUSE

POWER. The House rejected, 176 for and 214 against, an amendment to stop the provision of low-cost electricity from the Hoover Dam to some 10 million southern California, Arizona and Nevada consumers.

The House later passed a bill (HR 4275) to renew the contract for 30 years. This will perpetuate subsidized rates that today are about one-tenth the market rate.

Supporter Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said the amendment should be backed by "those who believe in a free market and believe that energy from whatever source ought to be freely priced in that market."

Opponent Morris Udall, D-Ariz., said renewing the contract was consistent with the historical rationale of federal hydroelectric projects, which is not to make a profit but to recover construction and transmission costs plus interest.

Members voting yes wanted Hoover Dam power to be priced at market rates.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, and Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit.

roll call report

MILITARY. By a vote of 207 for and 208 against, the House rejected an amendment to spend less on the category of military aid that goes primarily to Third World countries.

The vote occurred during debate on a $1.8 billion foreign aid bill (HR 5119) that later was passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

Opponent Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said the higher outlay "contributes to the national security of the U.S." by enabling friendly Third World nations to defend themselves rather than request U.S. intervention.

Supporter Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., asked: "When will this Congress and this president come to grips with the federal deficit that threatens to rupture this country?"

Members voting yes wanted Hoover Dam power to be priced at market rates.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, and Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit.

Voting no: William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

SENATE

DEFICIT. On a tie vote of 49-49, the Senate rejected a Democratic alternative to President Reagan's deficit-reduction package.

The plan would have cut the deficit by $236 billion over three years, compared to the $144 billion cut in the president's proposal.

Opponents drew a parallel between Vietnam and deepening U.S. military involvement in El Salvador.

Members voting yes supported the president's military aid request for El Salvador.

Voting yes: Pursell and Broomfield.

Voting no: Hertel, Ford and Levin.

EL SALVADOR. By a vote of 212 for and 208 against, the House gave President Reagan a big victory by approving some $251 million in fiscal 1984-85 military aid to El Salvador.

Opponents drew a parallel between Vietnam and deepening U.S. military involvement in El Salvador.

Members voting yes supported the president's military aid request for El Salvador.

Voting yes: Pursell and Broomfield.

Voting no: Hertel, Ford and Levin.

LEVIN AND RIEGLE both voted no.

Outspoken Truman finally gets respect

FROM THE time he was a little lad in knee pants, The Stroller was what might be called a history buff.

He never missed a chance to read about the battles of the Revolutionary War. He never allowed a year to pass without visiting Independence Hall in Philadelphia to sit at the same tables where the Continental Congress sat.

And he never missed an opportunity to visit Washington's Crossing in New Jersey to view, in his mind's eye, the sight of Gen. Washington crossing the Delaware on the night before the battle of Trenton that tipped the scales of the war.

And he thrilled at Mt. Vernon where he stood on the same spot from which Washington was supposed to have thrown a silver dollar across the Potomac.

One of his fondest memories is of the afternoon he sat on the porch of Gen. Robert E. Lee's home overlooking Arlington National Cemetery and heard the story of how Lee, the great Confederate, spurned the offer of President Lincoln to lead the Union troops in the Civil War.

THAT'S WHY he was so disappointed during the past few days while reading the daily prints that paid all sorts of accolades to the late President Harry S. Truman on the 100th anniversary of his birth.

Not only the daily papers but most of the national magazines paid him all sorts of compliments for the way he handled his tenure in the White House.

But that was Truman's way. He had confidence in his own opinions and, while he said he wasn't qualified for the office when he took it, he became a great president.

Too bad he didn't live to celebrate his 100th anniversary and enjoy reading the kind words that were long overdue.

Detroit taxes didn't pay for regional water system

DETROIT POLITICOS have repeated the lament so often that they probably believe it.

"Suburbia would completely confiscate the water system," charged Buddy Battle, the former UAW regional director who now works for Detroit Mayor Coleman Young.

"Detroit taxpayers paid for it," said Detroit Council President Erma Henderson.

"Are suburban officials willing to reimburse Detroit $1 billion for the water system's assets?" asked V. Lonnie Peek of the Concerned Citizens Council.

THE ISSUE is whether the Michigan Legislature should establish a regional system of governance for the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department — a one-man show which sells water to 70 outlying communities and sewage treatment services to about 100.

The red herring is the false belief that Detroit taxed itself to build a system to share with suburbans.

It simply isn't so, Oakland County Drain Commissioner George Kuhn told a Senate committee last week. What's more, he trotted out city of Detroit documents to prove it.

That was during the administration of Mayor Roman S. Gribbs.

Three years later, when Coleman Young was mayor, the city decided that wasn't enough, so the water system paid off the city another $3 million — a total of more than $15 million.

SINCE THE LATE 1970s, hundreds of millions of dollars have been poured into the Detroit sewage treatment plant to curb pollution of the Detroit River and Lake Erie.

Those dollars? Not city of Detroit tax dollars. They were user fee dollars that we all paid. They were state tax dollars that we all paid. And they were federal tax dollars that we all paid.

Suburban users of the water and sewerage system have just as much right as anyone else to say they paid for the system and ought to have a voice in running it.

Detroit's response is that, out of a feeling of civic magnanimity, three suburbanites serve on the seven-member Detroit Water Board. The rest of the story is that the mayor of Detroit can fire those suburbanites at any time — just ask Livonia Mayor Ed McNamara — and that the constitutional principle of "one person, one vote" is grandly ignored.

DETROIT HAD plenty of warning that customer communities might become restive about paying, paying, paying for the system with no voice in its control.

Giffels/Black & Veatch, consulting engineers, advised in May of 1977: "When the suburbs have only minimal input to the wastewater planning process and the rate setting process, alienation is likely to result."

It further warned that Detroit was no longer the majority customer of the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department; that 56 percent of the customers resided outside the city limits, and that by the year 2000 some 70 percent of the customers would be non-Detroiters.

"Unless strong remedial measures are undertaken by DWSJ for the following conditions, there is strong likelihood that a new metropolitan wastewater authority will be created," the consultants said.

Well, Detroit ignored the warning. And now we have suburban politicians making a powerful case that a new governance system is needed to give customers the feeling they are being treated fairly.

Logically, Detroit should strongly favor such a change. Suburban customers now can blame Mayor Young and his administration for the water-sewer rate hikes. If the suburbs had real representation on the water board, the suburban customers wouldn't have to beat Young over the head. They could blame their own suburban representatives on the board.

Disagrees with anti-MX stance

To the editor:
In the May 10 edition of the Observer a letter was printed urging people to write U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell to vote against the MX missile system. The debate of nuclear proliferation is a large and complicated one that is subject to much over-simplification. The letter, in my opinion, falls victim to this limitation.

In the beginning of the article the author inferred, by saying that Rep. Pursell had voted yes on the funding of the MX because "this would persuade the Russians to participate in a nuclear freeze agreement," and that this has not happened, that it shows his line of reasoning is invalid.

The nuclear arms race did not come about in a matter of a few months or even years. It has been escalating since World War II. So, too, will the solution to this problem not be found in a few months, or years, but in a long series of negotiations. There are no short cuts.

Secondly, the author mentioned that because land-based missiles are 30 minutes from Russia they could only be used in a first attack. This simply is not true. The whole basis of the U.S.'s use of nuclear weapons is we will not attack unless attacked - Period! If Russia ever launched a strike we would be able to detect it and have sufficient time to decide whether to launch ours or not.

The author also says the arms race can be understood by a school child, "The higher we build our arsenal, the higher our enemy builds his." Unfortunately, it is not that simple. If we stop, what guarantee do we have the Soviets will stop? That is why I feel Rep. Pursell thinks this is what we need to persuade the Russians to participate in a nuclear freeze agreement. The Russians will not stop producing nuclear weapons unless it is in their favor to stop. The MX is a bargaining chip. The MX forces the Russians to re-evaluate their position and consider a nuclear freeze.

Lastly, to say that because of these weapons our children will bear a debt beyond comprehension which will let "... human needs and services go begging," is going a bit too far. Defense spending is going up, no argument, but it is playing a catch-up game. Between 1975 and 1981 the percentage of our GNP used for defense fell dramatically. We are just trying to reach levels of spending that we used to have and desperately need to bring our military forces out of this state of decline. In the same time period the Russians did not slack off in their military spending; in fact, Soviet spending reached record levels.

In conclusion, one point that the author brings out and I totally agree with is the need to get involved. The whole nuclear arms problem is very complicated and requires constant attention to stay current. Pro or con, it is important that you know both sides of the story and base your opinion intelligently using facts with an awareness of just what is possible.

JV cage coach also quits post

To the editor:
I thought Chris McCoskey's column "Administration is out of touch" on May 10, 1984 was excellent. I also have resigned my position of J.V. Basketball at Canton as of April 30, 1984. My reasons were very much the same as Tom Williams, Brian Gilles and Fred Thomann.

I felt the effects of the destruction of the middle school program first hand the past two years. I had to prepare our 10th graders to compete against 10th graders from surrounding districts that have been playing as a team for three years or more. Our 10th graders are at a big disadvantage because the first year they get to play together as a team is 10th grade. Also with only having one team in the middle school there are several kids that can't make the team because all 7th, 8th and 9th graders must compete against each other for 15 spots. Most coaches will keep five 7th graders, five 8th graders, and 5 ninth graders. This obviously is going to eliminate at least seven 9th graders from each middle school that would have had an opportunity to play if there were two or three separate teams in each school.

Again the 9th graders in this district are getting the short end of the stick, just as they did when they were moved out of the high school. I can't understand how this district's school board can honestly feel our kids are getting an all around educational program when the athletic program, especially in the middle schools is destroyed and the destruction of the high schools programs are not far behind.

ALL THOSE young people from the Plymouth High School Class of 1944 are gathering July 21 at the Plymouth Elks Lodge for their 40-year reunion. What a year that was (1944)! Can it be 40 years on June 6 since D-Day?

The committee planning the reunion is trying to locate several classmates. They would like to have addresses for Eleanor Bozanyk Dienes, Mary Brandt, Doris Brown, Betty Cousins, Dorothy Fisher, Virginia Hall, Ruth Hazlett, Jack Henry, Velma Hillier, Elaine Johnson, Edward Kincaid, Carol Kinney Rose, William Kurtz, Marvin Liverance, Jack Martin, Robert Nelson, Louise Newman Richards, Edith Nolte, Juanita Penny, Lydia Rose, Harold Todd, June Van Meter Ratkewicz, Jack Waltman, Nancy Waters Houchiel, Edward Young and Helen Zimmerman.

If you know the address of any of these people, or have a clue to their whereabouts, please call Wilma Lounsbury Post, 453-0278.

PLYMOUTH Modeling & Finishing Academy had its spring graduation fashion show Tuesday at the Plymouth Hilton.

The graduates were Vicki Anderson, Mary Bauml, Christy Boak, Michelle Corruner, Barbara DeKun, Nancy DelSignore, Susan Drake, Kelly Halfacre, Laura Helling, Renee Jordan, Missy Raye, Amy Shearer, Laura Stearnes, Crystal White, Angela Williams and Jodi Williams.

SUNANDA MALLICK, a Canton resident, has a display of her graphic design art work at the Canton Public Library. It will be on exhibit there until the end of May. Sunanda is a graduate of the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

FRED VANDERPUTTE of the United States Post Office will be guest speaker at next Wednesday's meeting of the Plymouth-Northville Chapter of the American Association for Retired persons. His topic will be "Mail Fraud."

The AARP chapter is sponsoring a Texas Gulf Coast Tour this fall. The travelers will leave the Plymouth Cultural Center Oct. 20 and return Nov. 4. Members interested in learning more about the trip may call Fanny Bear, 453-8262.

Edith Kirk, who does publicity for the group, mentioned that they are proud of their former president's recognition. Gordon Arthur was commended by the Detroit area AARP chapters for his activities on behalf of AARP at the local, state and national levels. He received a special certificate last month at a workshop at Sweden House.

CONGRATULATIONS to Linda J. Christopher of Plymouth Township for graduating with high honors from Madonna College. Her field is music.

These young women, like Linda, who have a husband and two children, and earn their degrees, really impress me. Her husband Kenn, who is our next door neighbor here at the Observer office, must have been one of the proudest observers at the graduation ceremonies.

KAY JOHNSON'S surprise farewell party was just that, a complete surprise. More than 50 friends gathered at the Plymouth Family Y, 248 Union Street, to wish her a happy retirement. Kay came to the Y as a secretary in 1976. She said she is looking forward to doing what she wants to do — playing golf and enjoying all her needlework hobbies. Kay and her husband, Dick, live in Canton Township.

Janet Luce, Y director, baked a cake for the occasion and made meatballs for the hors d'oeuvres table. There was a great and delectable spread of foods provided by Joan McCarthy, Chris Hosking, Kelly Lisanti, Clara Camp, Janet Place, Josie Elliott, Jill Petersen, Jan Mettesucci, Barb Vaughan and Ellen Volchoos.

There were gifts — a shoe box full of golf balls, an engraved desk set and a plaque. She bought golf clubs with her gift of money.

Rick Messery, a member of the Y board of directors, conducted the roast, reminding Kay of Fall Festivals past.

Innovations are nothing new for newcomers

The Plymouth Newcomers Club tried something new this spring. The end-of-the-season meeting was a brunch instead of a luncheon.

Members dined on melon balls, quiche and bacon in the Mayflower Meeting House; new officers and committee heads were installed with the traditional presentation of flowers. And for the first time in history, no one felt rushed. The women were home before their children were out of school.

The newcomers have initiated many new projects and social events since the club was formed in 1957. Vivian Champion organized the Newcomers

Club as a means of acquainting new residents with the community and each other. Over the years it grew from a dozen or so members to more than 200. When the building boom subsided and more women went to work, membership leveled off to slightly more than 100.

Friendships fostered by the club have lasted more than 25 years.

OFFICERS FOR THE 1984-85 season are Alice Homan, president; Marge Rourke, vice president; Eleanor Thomsen, recording secretary; Linda Hart, corresponding secretary; Bev Forgues, treasurer; and Pat McCombs, retiring president, advisor.

The executive board recommended members to chair committees and serve as members of the board. They are Jeanne Hutko, couples social; Teres Raglow, membership; Charlene Akers and Becky Weiss, programs; Mary Rapp, publicity; and Rusty Barger, reservations.

Among the guest speakers at last season's monthly luncheon meetings were: Dian Smith of Dian's Quilt Shop; Pat Ribar, Ribar Floral Co.; chefs from the Holiday Inn; Brian Collins, interior designer from Hudson's, and a clothing seminar by Casual Corners.

THE LUNCHEON meetings are open to the entire membership. Special-interest groups offer a wide range of activities and often meet in members' homes.

These smaller, more intimate gatherings include antique browsers, baby-sitting co-op, bicycling, book beat, bowling, ladies and couples, bridge, ladies and couples, craft connection, golf, gourmet, greenery, interior design, little tots, pinocle, reading, sit-n-stitch and yarn craft.

Husbands are included in the couples social events. There was an evening at Northville Downs and a square-dancing party.

The Newcomers Club also is community-service oriented. The annual fashion show is a successful project, attracting a large crowd with proceeds going to the Dunning-Hough Library. This year a check for $800 was presented to Pat Thomas, head librarian.

Membership is open to residents of Plymouth Township and the city of Plymouth who have lived in the community for less than two years. For membership information, they may call Alice Homan, 455-7494, or Marge Rourke, 420-2099.

Printmaker Gwen Frostic is coming down from her 285-acre wildlife sanctuary near Benzonia to talk about "Creativity." The Sunshine Garden Club, a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, is sponsoring her appearance at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Pioneer Middle School, 48081 W. Ann Arbor Road. Admission is $2 at the door and refreshments will be served. Gwen Frostic Prints — calendars, stationery, block prints and illustrated books — are known around the world.

'Now, be free' Archbishop inspires grads

By Julie Nelson
special writer

THE 570 GRADUATES of Madonna College came away from graduation exercises last weekend with more than diplomas. Laid on them was a mantle of freedom, put there by Archbishop Edmund Szoka of Detroit.

Amidst the traditional pomp and circumstance, flashing cameras, the smiles and tears and the conferral of degrees, Szoka addressed the 1984 class, telling them "Faith is the ability to believe without seeing."

"A college education gives you the social tools to provide gainful employment and financial success. There is, however, a desire and yearning far more basic than the desire for financial success. That desire is for happiness, freedom and liberation from anything that can enslave us," Szoka said.

THE ARCHBISHOP'S speech connected faith and the graduates' education at Madonna to freedom, claiming it is only by making informed decisions that people can be morally responsible.

"Faith and vision," said Szoka, "makes us truly free because we make decisions that are in harmony with God's creation. Decisions are liberating when they allow us to live in harmony; enslaving when they bind us to the tyranny of disorder."

Most of the students were too excited to say more about the archbishop's speech other than "I liked it."

But Ellen Block, who earned her bachelor of science degree, added, "I thought it was very good because it wasn't your usual 'go for it' speech. He was delivering a real message."

AN INTERESTING sidelight to the graduation was the number of older graduates, many of whom have children and careers.

At 72, Katherine E. Reid of Detroit was the oldest. She earned a bachelor of science in gerontology after retiring in 1976 after 29 years with the federal government. She was especially joyful that her 94-year-old mother is still living and could share the proud moment with her.

Another gerontology major, Sonia G. Makled, 45, of Livonia smiled when she told how it took her "20 years to finish — raising five children at the same time."

Szoka spoke to all of them, both young of age and the young of spirit, asking them to consider the personal and social responsibilities of their education.

"We do not live in isolation," he said. "We live in a society where we all have a compelling responsibility and personal interest in each other. In a world rapidly more complex and threatening, all of us are caught up in the great moral questions of our time."

SZOKA NAMED racism, world hunger, poverty and drugs as major moral problems.

"It is easy to speak against social evil," he added, "but that moral posture will be without value unless it reflects the moral dimension of our lives. It is only the human act which is good or bad."

There was an unplanned humorous incident during Szoka's speech. At one point, he referred to graduates who had obtained their goal "with blood, sweat and tears."

Several students connected the phrase to a famous rock group by that name, and began applauding. "Sometimes your teachers don't believe this," Szoka continued with a smile, apparently unaware of the students' own interpretation of his reference.

Tiger mania also lightened the solemnity of the occasion somewhat when Troy graduate Joe Chestney — his Tiger baseball cap concealed under his graduation gown — made a lightning fast switch of mortarboard to baseball cap at the conclusion of the ceremonies.

One of the high points in the ceremony came when Sister Rose Marie, academic dean, presented her own sister, Helen Hampton for a bachelor of science degree. With a voice that was steady throughout the reading of the graduates' name, the dean's voice quavered slightly when she read her sister's name. The audience applauded as the two embraced.

Another came when Madonna president Sister Mary Francilene conferred the honorary degree of doctor of humanities on the archbishop.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, held in St. Genevieve Catholic

Let's get nominations in for Grand Marshal

It's a busy time in Canton. You've missed a lot already, but one of the best things about living in Canton is that it's never too late. Because we are a growing, constantly changing community, there is always something just beginning.

Although this is not the first announcement, this is a very important activity. And the more residents who participate, the better it will turn out. I speak of nominations for Grand Marshal for the Canton Country Festival Parade.

Bring it to your attention for this reason. Perhaps some of you will remember our mothers telling us that quite often the prettiest girls don't get asked to the dance. Or the best looking guys are afraid to ask a girl, thinking she'll never want to go out with him. I'm sure we've known that pretty gal who didn't get invited or the good-looking guy who was afraid to ask, at one time in our lives. Well, the same situation results, sometimes, in nominations like this.

Take for instance a contest to nominate "You Favorite Teacher" or "Nicest Guy" award. When you read the winning letter, you can think of 12 teachers far more deserving than the one that won the fabulous prize. Or 79 people within one block of you who have done more in one week than the winner of the "Nice Guy" award had accomplished in his whole lifetime.

So, I challenge you. I'm sure you know at least 12 people in the community deserving of being the Grand Marshal. Wouldn't you like to see one of them get it? Better than some obscure person who lived here three months and joined 89 committees to get their name in the public eye just so they could be named Grand Marshal of the Canton Country Festival Parade? You know there are tons of people who move to Canton each spring just for that reason. Sure! And what's more, one of them will get it. Do you think they sit around waiting for someone to enter their name? No way! They have the whole thing written up and mailed out the same day they turn in their change-of-address cards. That's right!

I wouldn't be surprised if it became a national movement — tons of people moving to little towns across the nation in an attempt to be named Grand Marshal. Maybe there aren't quite "tons" of people, and maybe it isn't quite true they come here just to be named Grand Marshal of our Festival Parade, maybe four or so?

Well anyway, please make sure one of our many dedicated wonderful deserving people is named Grand Marshal. So make your nomination and save Canton. Save the honor of the Grand Marshal of the Canton Country Festival Parade! Think of some terrific person who has lived here for more than three hours, write down all the neat things they have done and get that letter in the mail, now. Don't let our Grand Marshal position be corrupted by the underground "Grand Marshal Position Corrupting Organization," dedicated to taking over all the Grand Marshal positions in America. They may not be dedicated to taking over all the Grand Marshal positions in America — but I'll bet they want some of the more illustrious.

Send your nominations to the Canton Country Festival Parade Committee, 1150 S. Canton Center, Canton, MI 48188. Nominations should be 206 words or less and must be submitted by Saturday, May 26. Hurry! Canton and America are counting on YOU.

SO HOW WAS your Mother's Day?
Due to the rain, I was unable to get to all the outside work I had hoped for, so I am officially declaring a "Rain Date Mother's Day" set for this weekend. I think this should fit in nicely with the Canton Beautification Committee's plans.
This is Fix-Up Week, May 18-24, a chance to fix all these sturdy homes that mother nature tried her hand at huffing, puffing and blowing down this past winter and spring. If you didn't need a roof last year with the hail, you too, and let them get a peek at their own Historical Museum. Enjoy Canton!

DON'T FORGET the contest sponsored by the library. Can you guess the day, hour and minute they will circulate the millionth book? The only hints I am allowed to give you are: (1) The Canton Public Library officially opened Oct. 20, 1980. (2) As of March 31, 1984, the library had circulated 944,300 items.

Please don't hesitate to go over and become a part of the statistics. Then check the rules and enter.
I don't want to sound like a grump, so let a word to the wise be sufficient.

PARENTS, DO you know where YOUR children are? Take a minute and check now. Are your children where they said they would be?
One beautiful day last week, I watched in horror as two young boys of approximately middle-school age sat parked on their BMX-type bikes smack-dab in the middle of the runway at Mettetal Airport! Thank God, the planes just waited at the other end. However, what if just one pilot didn't notice the two small figures at the far end of that long strip? We yelled from our car on Joy Road. As we started to turn to get closer, their brains started to function and they rode off. For myself, the other motorist on Joy Road, as well as the parents of these boys, I want to thank the wise, alert pilots who patiently waited for the intruders to leave.

Parents, all you need is one pilot to not notice them in time. I repeat, for all our safety, do you know (or not know) where your children are?

DO YOU CARE WHAT HE PUTS INTO HIS BODY?

What we put into our body can mean the difference between a clear head and congestion. Many modern disorders, from high blood pressure to anxiety and fatigue, are linked to additives. A steady diet of chemicalized, overprocessed "nonfoods" - the kind we've become used to buying - may compound the problem. There are alternatives. Whole foods full of natural goodness can help prevent many modern maladies and allergies. Enrich your knowledge of good food; protect yourself and those you love. It pays to watch what we put into our body.

Author speaks on stress

Marilyn Ganskow how to manage stress

Marilyn Ganskow, author of the popular "New Life Series Bible study material," will be guest speaker at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth on Tuesday. Beginning at 9:30 a.m., the meeting there will be "A New Approach to Managing Stress." After a sandwich lunch, the group will reconvene in the afternoon for discussion that will continue until 2 p.m. Participants are asked to bring a sandwich, but dessert and a beverage will be provided. Child-care reservations can be made by calling the church office, 453-5280. Children will also need a sack lunch.

St. Paul's begins remodeling drive

A kickoff dinner Sunday at Fairlane Manor in Dearborn will launch a three-year, $50,000 capital improvements program at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Livonia.

Jacl Miller, general chairman, said the program calls for an addition to the sanctuary lobby and the remodeling or refurbishing of existing facilities.

Miller said the major projects will include: expanding the lobby, installing an elevator in the lobby to make the social hall and other lower-level areas of the church accessible to the elderly and the handicapped, purchase of computer to facilitate record-keeping and other tasks associated with the mission of the church, resurfacing and restriping the parking lots; and the purchase of a van for the use of senior citizens and groups of the church.

Commenting on the program, Dr. William F. Whitledge, pastor of St. Paul's, said, "The history of St. Paul's is a record of growth. It all started in 1951 when we first worshipped in a little white-frame chapel, in 1958 when we added the education building, and in 1966 when we built the sanctuary."

"Now, our $3.8 million program - Renew, Repair, Rebuild - offers us a real opportunity to expand our ministry to our congregation and our community and, thus, to Christ's mission worldwide."

Historic church is dedicated

It may not look like it from here, but the dedication of restored Newburg Church in the historical village at Greenmead, Livonia's historical site, will take place at 4 p.m. Sunday on schedule. Placement of the steeple, shown at the right, and a general cleaning up of the area are all that remains to be done. Sunday will also see the unveiling of the original stained glass windows now hidden behind protective plywood covers until the dedication. The Rev. Jack E. Giguere, pastor of the Newburg United Methodist Church, will deliver an address tracing the past and charting the future of the church's revival to Livonia. The public is invited.

Hunger appeal dramatized by CROP walk

Six Plymouth churches will join in the sponsorship of the 1984 CROP walk from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Sunday, May 20. CROP is the community hunger appeal of the Church World Service. Funds collected will go to the Plymouth Salvation Army, Mother Wattle's Soup Kitchens, with the majority going toward water and food for the drought and starvation areas of Africa.

The walk acts as a reminder of how people in developing countries have to walk for fresh water, said Rev. Tom Cook of the First Presbyterian Church, who is coordinating the event. For that reason, he said, families are encouraged to participate in the walk.

Local churches sponsoring the walk are: Geneva Presbyterian, First Presbyterian, First Methodist, First Baptist, St. Paul's Lutheran, Trinity Presbyterian, and St. John Neumann.

Participants should meet at 1:30 p.m. at "the Gathering" in Kellogg Park, next to the Penn Theater. Anyone wishing to participate or pledge, can contact Cook at 453-6464.

Honoring people is very important

Receiving an honorary degree is exciting. I was fascinated by a college president friend writing to the college president honoring me: "When we honor someone, we honor ourselves."

The act of honoring has profound and powerful effect. Religion teaches that we judge ourselves when we pass judgement. We need more often to think of this from the positive side of judging by honoring what is to be best.

Soon we will celebrate Memorial Day. We will thank our sacred dead and hear words about honor in military efforts and the risks of battle. Nobility arises by equating life itself with honor.

ONE OF our most important national documents is the Declaration of Independence which concludes with the signers writing, "We mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

One part of defining a person is observing what that person honors. We define ourselves by specific pursuits. We become the spirit or energies flowing in our experiences. We become identifiable as we invest ourselves in relationships and events. Acting on our good intentions become life-creating purpose.

HONORING SOMEONE motivates us to strengthen what we admire. Character traits we select for special notice become beacons guiding us. Honoring is acting out the golden rule by highlighting in others exactly what we would like to enhance in ourselves. Distinction honored is distinction pursued.

Commitment to support specific values flows from honoring. We put ourselves on the line to stick with values meriting our highest esteem. We state our basic trust. We identify ourselves with the vitality which caught our attention.

It seems we are looking outward but we are going inward as life flows from qualities we respect enough to honor them.

Rev. Charles Erickson

Rev. Charles Erickson

We are pulled forward by the power of hope. Honoring gives forces to our hope that qualities we respect will be seen more often. We hope whatever is noble in us will increase in merit in the eyes of more people. We are energized to increase our own worth and dignity. We hope what we honor will become more important to all those we happen to influence.

It seems we are looking outward but we are going inward as life flows from qualities we respect enough to honor them.

American Legion honors outstanding service to community

Sarah Gilmore, executive director of the Plymouth Council on Aging, was named American Legion Citizen of the Year by the Passage-Gayde Post 391 American Legion. Gilmore and other outstanding members of the community were honored by the Legion at its 15th annual recognition night.

The annual dinner and awards program in the Mayflower Hotel had Wayne County Sheriff Robert Picano as featured speaker. His topic was "Community Involvement." A special certificate of appreciation was presented to Omnicom (Cablevision) for its service to the community and for helping the post promote its programs. Rick Collman, general manager, and Suzanne Kubick, program director, accepted the award for Omnicom.

THE HONOREES were: Donald Hahn, Plymouth Township Firefighter of the Year; Phil Phillips, Industrialist of the Year; Scott Lorenz, Businessperson of the Year; and Paul Pavloff, City of Plymouth Firefighter of the Year. The program concluded with a silent tribute to previous honorees who are deceased. They were: Arnold Johansen, 1967, industrialist; R.T. Thompson, executive editor, Observer & Eccentric newspapers, 1975, Citizen of the Year; Frank Henderson, 1973, industrialist; Martin Schomberger, 1967, Plymouth Township Firefighter; and Robert Caloia, 1975, Plymouth Township Firefighter.

Schultz deletes appeal to LWV for MX

By Kathy Parrish staff writer

It's easy to see why Secretary of State George Schultz did some last-minute editing on his speech to the League of Women Voters.

A text of his talk called the MX missile a critical element in this country's strategic modernization program. The text said it "has been important to the maintenance of a strong deterrent and thus to the building of a solid foundation for progress in arms control."

But that was before the 1,500 delegates of the LWV called on congressional leaders to halt MX funding and testing of anti-satellite weapons.

When Schultz appeared before the delegates in Detroit's Westin Hotel, that portion of the speech was gone.

Instead, the government official praised President Ronald Reagan's commitment to peace.

"We are faced today with a basic truth: A nuclear war cannot be won and must never be fought," he said, quoting his boss.

"Guided by this truth, the United States has been seeking to enhance its national security not only by strengthening its defenses and its alliances, but also — with equal vigor — by negotiating with the Soviet Union and other nations on the most-ambitious arms control agenda in history."

EXPECTED to be controversial, Schultz's speech was well received by delegates of the nonpartisan organization which educates voters.

Listeners were firmly instructed to stay in their seats while the secretary of state was in the room. "If there are any unauthorized people in the aisles, the secretary will be removed," they were told while waiting for him to arrive.

Laughter echoed through the room when the delegates were told: "You can talk quietly with your neighbors. Don't talk about controversial things that will get your emotions aroused."

"No issue is of greater importance to the American people than the issue of war and peace," said Schultz, who also served in the administrations of Presidents Dwight Eisenhower and Richard Nixon.

"It is the gravest responsibility of any president, any administration, to defend the peace, so that our ideals of freedom and justice can thrive in an environment of security."

OUTLINING ARMS control objectives, Schultz kidded about the formal speech. "Some of this reads like the League of Women Voters resolutions." During a question-and-answer session, the secretary of state admitted it is a little difficult to negotiate on behalf of the U.S. — especially when politicians are traveling the world doing some negotiating of their own.

But while wishing "people would be a little more disciplined at times," he said he wouldn't want to see our system change.

"In our country there are great variations of view and I think that's very constructive for the rest of the world to see. But we must remember that we have the capacity to debate, but also have the capacity to decide. "There has to be a capacity for decisiveness."

Dental care part of health care

Americans, more than ever, are working hard to stay healthy and fit. They are exercising, watching their diet and finding out more about what it takes to stay healthy.

But many of those health-conscious Americans separate their dental care from their total health care. To them, dental care means having a bright, pretty smile.

Teeth and gums, like other parts of the body, are susceptible to disease.

One dental disease which is prevalent among adults, although it can occur at any age, is periodontal disease, the major cause of tooth loss in adults.

The American Dental Hygienists' Association recommends you inspect your mouth for the following signs of gum disease:

- Bleeding gums when brushing teeth;
- Red, swollen and tender gums;
- Loose or separating permanent teeth;
- Change in the way dentures and partials fit;
- Bad breath;
- Change in the way teeth fit together when biting.

Gum disease can be prevented. Brushing and flossing thoroughly at least once a day, eating well-balanced meals and limiting snacks, visiting your dental hygienist and dentist on a regular basis, and checking for any signs of gum disease are important in preventing gum disease.

Solid waste issue becomes landfill fight

First of two articles
By Penny Wright
special writer

Opinions at a recent public hearing over the proposed Wayne County Solid Waste Management Plan sounded like this:

"I'm a NIMBY," declared the homeowner. "I became a NIMBY (Not In My Back Yard) when Wayne County proposed putting a landfill near my home. I don't want it."

Many Wayne County officials predict similar reactions as county residents confront the issue of solid waste disposal within their communities over the coming months.

They fear controversy could defeat a plan that seeks to minimize the risks of current landfill operations, while moving toward alternative waste disposal methods.

THE WAYNE County Solid Waste Management Plan is the county's most recent attempt to control a problem that has plagued civilized society for years — rubbish. It's more politely termed "solid waste."

Solid wastes are residential, commercial and industrial discards, excluding hazardous wastes and wastes such as fly ash, foundry sand, agricultural or demolition waste.

The concern these days is that we are running out of places to stash this stuff. The solid waste plan proposed for Wayne County is considered the tool for handling the dilemma.

"The purpose of the plan is to assure that Wayne County will have the capacity for handling its solid waste," said Wayne County planner Maurice Roach.

Roach, who directed much of the plan's development, believes the plan will force communities to look at the issues of solid waste before they get into a bind.

SOME AREAS are already feeling the nowhere-to-dump pinch.

Roach cites Macomb County as an example. Macomb is currently down to nine months capacity.

Unless efforts to buy a landfill in St.

Clair County are successful, Macomb won't have a place to dump its waste next winter.

"The problems of waste disposal can't be hidden forever," said Roach. He contends the proposed solid waste plan will bring about land disposal reform. "If it gets rolling, I think it will work very well."

The move to develop the county plan began in 1978 with the passage of Public Act 641. Called the Michigan Solid Waste Management Act, this law requires each county to prepare a plan for dealing with non-hazardous solid waste in a manner that will minimize adverse environmental effects or prevent them from occurring in the first place.

If a county fails to develop a plan, the director of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources will then prepare a plan for that county, and it will be final. About half of the counties have a plan in place.

THE WAYNE County Solid Waste Plan was formulated over the past three years by a 13-member committee comprised of representatives from the solid waste disposal industry, local and county governments, environmental groups and the general public.

The finished product depicts the existing solid waste disposal situation, projects the likely situation in the year 2000, and sets forth recommendations which assure environmental safety in existing waste treatment facilities while directing a movement toward alternate methods of waste disposal.

Twenty-nine of 43 communities that comprise Wayne County must approve the plan to ensure its adoption.

A KEY ISSUE determining local community approval will be the location of the county. Four are included in the proposed plan.

At present, 18 sanitary landfills serve the municipal and industrial needs of the county. Four are located outside Wayne County. Four new landfills have been proposed for inclusion into the solid waste plan.

Schools plan survey

In attempt to determine "what kind of district and schools the community wants," a survey is being considered by Plymouth-Canton Community School officials.

At a Monday night workshop, it was suggested that representatives "from all facets of the community" form a group to study ways the district can be improved.

The survey would serve as a means of listening to the community, enabling the district to respond to the needs and desires of the people who pay for the schools, said Richard Egli, district community relations director. Options will be examined by a committee and offered to the board, he said.

"We are looking at various publics, or groups that are significant to the schools - business people being an example - who can list good and bad things and prioritize," Egli said.

A similar project was undertaken two years ago, and "most of the recommendations" were implemented, Egli added.

The survey was suggested as a result of Superintendent John Hoben's recent attendance at the American Association of School Administrators annual convention. A similar project was undertaken with good results in Pittsburgh schools, he said.

Brides remain true to tradition

By Mary Klemic
 staff writer

Someone reviewing the years 1926 to 1981 would see an almost infinite list of changes — different presidents, new inventions, various fashions and trends. But a sampling of area residents married in different decades during that time suggests that weddings have changed only slightly.

The wedding of Thomas Regan and Mary Feld in June 1926 was a "traditional Catholic ceremony," according to the couple, now living in Westland. It also was a family affair: Mary's uncle, a Jesuit priest from Cleveland, performed the ceremony, a cousin played piano, a niece sang, a sister was a bridesmaid, a brother was best man. Mary's mother and sister-in-law made the two-tier wedding cake, and Mrs. Feld also made the bride's headdress and veil.

"There's more pomp and ceremony today," Thomas Regan said.

"Some weddings today are so elaborate," Mary Regan said. "We couldn't afford to have such a big wedding. When you're starting out, you don't have that much money."

MARY WORE a three-quarter-length white dress and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Thomas wore a blue suit and gray tie.

After the wedding ceremony at Our Lady of Help Catholic Church in Detroit, the reception was held in the backyard of Mary's house. Just the immediate family and a few friends attended. The event wasn't catered.

"It was a very nice wedding, it was on a Wednesday," Mrs. Regan said. "Wednesday was supposed to be a good day for weddings. I don't know why that was."

"A very unusual afternoon it was," W.W. "Eddie" Edgar said when asked about his wedding. Edgar married Leona Ames in June 1930 in the Metropolitan Methodist Church in Detroit.

THE WEDDING had its unusual touches. Metropolitan Opera tenor Bryant Huff sang and the "top organist in the City of Detroit" performed such songs as "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me," Edgar recalls.

The minister who was going to officiate was delayed in a storm, and Huff valiantly kept singing for some 15 to 20 extra minutes before the minister finally arrived, his fedora had soaking wet. The guests were wondering what had happened, Edgar says.

"They thought one of us ran out on the other," he said.

THERE WERE no bridal gown, tuxedo and reception, as the couple had planned to leave right after the ceremony to catch the boat to Buffalo. Leona, then 25, wore a cap with a veil, and a pink dress that she still wears. The groom, 33, wore a blue suit. It happened that the wedding took place one-half hour late, and the couple just had time to catch the boat.

The strains of "O Promise Me" had given way to melodies by Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey when Rose Fitzpatrick, 20, married Les Butler, 21, in November 1947 in a traditional ceremony at St. Bridgid's Catholic Church in Brooklyn, New York. The groom wore a tuxedo while Rose wore a rented satin gown. She carried a bouquet of roses.

"It was not an elaborate reception. We couldn't afford anything fancy. It was what you would call a 'beer and sandwich' reception held in an American Legion Hall," Rose said.

WEDDINGS OFTEN were all-day events then, says Olga Pelc, who as Olga Holda married Leon Pelc in July 1947. She was 23, he was 25.

"We were married early in the morning," Olga said. "There were guests for breakfast, and after breakfast we went to a studio to have pictures taken. The reception was at 6 p.m."

Their wedding was held at Holy Redeemer Church in Detroit. The groom wore a white tuxedo, and the bride a white gown and veil. She carried stefanotis and gardenias. Her sister-in-law sang "Ava Maria" and other songs at the Catholic ceremony.

"YOU HAD to do what they told you," Olga said. "Today they say what they want to say. They marry after noon and don't have breakfasts, and have strictly evening receptions. Today brides don't go to studios on the same day."

The bride was responsible for supplying the food and hiring cooks for the wedding day, according to Mrs. Pelc.

"Right after the war, things weren't

The brides of today remain true to tradition

all that plentiful," she said. "You just had to get what you could."

"You were more or less obligated to invite relatives, and friends came last, if there was room."

Traditional weddings were going strong in the busy 1960s, as when Leonard Poger married Judy Barkman in April 1968. The evening ceremony took place at Beth Israel in Flint.

"IT WAS a memorable day for a lot of reasons," Leonard Poger said. "We got the word at the reception at the restaurant that evening that Martin Luther King was dead."

Poger describes his wedding as a "traditional Jewish ceremony," including the groom's crushing a glass with his foot and prenuptial agreements or a contract of responsibilities. The ceremony featured the words, "to love and honor," omitting "obey." Judy wore a full-length white gown and white veil, while Leonard wore a suit.

"It was the most expensive thing I ever bought then, except for my car and my camera," he said with a laugh.

THE WEDDING of 24-year-old Karen Carlsen and 27-year-old Laurence Miller in June 1968 was a formal one, according to Karen, who is called "K.C." because of her maiden name. The event took place in St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran Church in New Jersey.

"It was very traditional, with the invitations being sent out in a most formal manner and a reception at a country club," the Plymouth resident said. "My father wore a uniform to give me away."

Laurence Mueller wore a tuxedo, while the bride wore a white wedding gown with a long satin train, trimmed with daisy lace. The gown since has been made into a formal dress, and its train into a tuxedo jacket.

THERE WERE two wedding cakes: one a four-tier white cake, the other a traditional Danish wedding cake of almond ring pastry.

"In the East Coast, when I was growing up, there were a lot of evening weddings as opposed to 2 or 4 in the afternoon," K.C. said.

A park in Plymouth was the setting for the August 1981 wedding of Ruth Ann Rice, 40 and Richard Wanserski, 41, of Canton.

The wedding was the second for both Ruth Ann and Richard and involved three separate ceremonies. The first of these took place in the park and included the parents of the bride and groom and their children from the previous marriages.

AT THE second ceremony, a "not too formal" church ceremony at St. Paul's Monastery in Detroit the following day, the children were attendants, Ruth Ann says.

"The priest gave his blessing of the marriage," Ruth Ann recalled. "He made a special sermon out of it."

The couple's third ceremony took place at St. Francis De Sales Church in Detroit three months later, after the announcements came through for the previous marriages.

Dress was casual for the ceremonies. For example, Ruth Ann wore a light knit dress for one and short ivory dress for another.

PLYMOUTH JUDGES and mayors have seen untraditional touches for the weddings they have performed.

Mary Childs, now a member of The Plymouth City Commission, married 182 couples of all ages in her 1979-81 term as mayor of that community to earn the nickname, "Marryin' Mary."

Childs wrote each ceremony, including such state requirements as stating that the couple came "freely and without reservations" and such traditional vows as "to love, honor and keep, and forsaking all others . . . For better, for worse, for rich, for poor, in sickness and in health," she says. She would type up the ceremony and present it to the couple after the wedding. Only one couple opted to write their own ceremony.

"I TRIED to make it as near a simple church ceremony as I could," Childs said.

"Everybody seemed very pleased. One time a grandmother said to me, 'I wish I had talked to you before the wedding. I worried about my granddaughter not being married in the church. But this was more meaningful than we had in the church."

Children from previous marriages were encouraged to take part in Childs' ceremonies.

"I would suggest (the couple) have a little birthstone ring to give to a little girl, for example, so the children would feel part of it," she said.

EVERY WEDDING Childs performed was serious, but some had humorous moments, she says. There was the time a little girl in attendance ran home to get corn flakes to throw at the bride and groom, instead of the usual rice or birdseed. Another time the bride presented the groom with a watch, saying "he must watch what he does from now on."

Unlike the mayor of Plymouth, 35th District Judge Dunbar Davis may perform weddings outside the city limits.

"I've done quite a few at restaurants, Martha and Mary Chapel (in Greenfield Village) and in the parks," the judge said. "Once I married a couple in a bowling alley. The lady worked there and they met there. That's OK. I've done a lot of garden weddings."

Boycotting our legends, dreams

REWriting "The Christmas Carol" in sports-ese. The Ghost of Sports Past arrived last week — at local movie houses. It's called "The Natural," and it stars Robert Redford as baseball phenom Roy Hobbs in the screen adaptation of Bernard Malamud's novel. It's pure fiction, this film. It's Ruthian legend and Camelot fantasy blended into a baseball fairy tale. It's good guys vs. bad guys, the corrupt powerful against the righteous individual. It's fun. And, as outlandish as it might seem, it is the very foundation of baseball and sports itself.

LEGEND, FABLES, tall tales of mighty deeds achieved with one swing of the bat is what baseball is.

It's Babe Ruth pointing to the spot where he'd hit his homer.

It's Lou Gehrig's farewell speech. It's Don Larsen hurling a perfect game in the World Series.

It's thousands of tidbits and anecdotes fondly remembered and clearly detailed by millions of fans, each with his own personal favorite to protect.

The story "The Natural" tells is outlandish, which is what makes it so real: Sports is the imagined becoming reality.

WHO COULD HAVE expected Roger Bannister to shatter the four-minute mark in the mile in such unlikely conditions (poor weather and no racing for a year)?

Who would have believed Bob Beamon would leap more than 29 feet that day at the Mexico City Olympics?

How many thought the Tigers would win the 1968 World Series after trailing three games to one? "The Natural" is unreal. It's just images projected on canvas.

It also provides a perfect definition of sports: striving for what had only been imagined before, shooting for the unattainable.

NOW FOR THE DEMONS of Sports Present. That, too, surfaced last week. It came over the airwaves. The Soviets said "nyet" to the Los Angeles Olympics. Their allies soon joined the boycott.

It is a travesty of major proportions. Not just to us, the public who will once again — as in 1980 — miss the opportunity to crown new heroes, new Olympian gods. There will be no Nadia Comaneci or Olga Korbut this year. Their countries won't be in L.A.

And even as we marvel at the exploits of a Carl Lewis or Mary Decker-Tabb, it will forever be accompanied by a "but" or an "if," as in, "But if the Soviets had been there..."

BUT THE GREATEST SORROW is not ours to carry. The athletes who for eight years trained and worked and sweated for this one chance, the opportunity to show the entire globe his or her strength and ability and talent, are being cheated.

It's a devastating loss. The countless, endless hours of preparation from those like Michelle Berube, the rhythmic gymnast from Rochester; Jeff Pierce, the bicyclist from Livonia; Gary Wojdyla, the rower from Plymouth; Tom Babits, the pole vaulter from Redford; Craig Payne, the boxer from Livonia; all Olympic-hopefuls who, even if they make the U.S. team, will compete in what amounts to nothing more than a Friends of the U.S. Games.

A curse on Carter and his 1980 boycott! A pox on all politicians who overstep their bounds, who interfere where they have no right!

They have robbed us, these attention-starved meddlers, of a chance to adore our champions. And worse, they have spurned eight years of labor these Olympic athletes — Soviet and U.S. alike — have devoted to attaining a dream.

THE SHADOW OF SPORTS FUTURE is just that — dark and undistinguishable, lacking clear outline.

It is foreboding, when faced with the reality of the present. What the Soviets did by boycotting the L.A. games, which was certainly in retaliation for the U.S. boycott of the 1980 Moscow games, could destroy the Olympics forever.

The pillars of Olympia are cracking now. By 1988, they will collapse should the course remained unchanged.

Politicians are not easy to blame for the impending disaster, but not wholly. We, too, bear the responsibility.

OUR IDEALS HAVE STRAYED. We professionalize our amateurs, like our Soviet bloc rivals; we count medals like missiles — the country with the most wins.

Lost is the individual striving for perfection, to do what no man has done before.

Gone, too, in this world of automated athletics we pursue, is the deed that existed only as a dream until some young god turned it into reality and legend. Our heroes may end up only as real as Roy Hobbs' celluloid images.

We need people to breathe life into him, to transform fiction into reality. Without the Roy Hobbs, sports has no future because it will have no past. Should the Olympics crumble, many Hobbs-like legends will be forever lost.

And that will be a tragedy of extreme consequence.

Rocks beat No. 1 Spartans

Viele's 8th-inning hit gives Salem a win, Spartans take nightcap 4-1

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Salem's Cindy Runge slides in safely under the tag of Stevenson catcher Linda Loeffler for what proved to be the winning run in the Rocks' 5-3 eighth-inning triumph over the Spartans Monday.

The Livonia Stevenson softball team came into its Western Lakes showdown against Plymouth Salem Monday with some impressive credentials.

The Spartans were ranked No. 1 in Observerland and No. 3 in the state. They had just won the Livonia city tournament over the weekend and were 10-0 on the season. They had outscored their opponents 128-7 in those 12 games and pitcher Lisa Bokovoy had a 0.12 ERA, eight shutouts, two no-hitters, and had given up just 18 hits on the year — phenomenal numbers.

But, the Spartans found out that defending league champions do not die easy. Salem, who was 10-3 entering the double-header, touched Bokovoy for 13 hits and five runs, nipping the Spartans 5-3 in an eight-inning thriller.

Bokovoy toughened in game two, and Stevenson rebounded with a 4-1 win.

WHAT IT all means is, if both teams win their remaining league contests, the Rocks and Spartans will share the Lakes Division title and Stevenson will win the Western Lakes conference outright.

Bokovoy had pitched six complete ball games in four days prior to the double-header with Salem. Stevenson coach Lee Cagle said that even though she had pitched a lot of innings, she was only averaging 10-11 pitches per inning. Still, it was obvious Bokovoy wasn't 100 percent.

"This wasn't a good pitching outing for her," Cagle said. "She was not keeping the ball down, her drop pitch wasn't working, and she wasn't getting the low strikes from the umpire."

"Maybe it was a little fatigue, but Salem is a good swinging team. They make good contact. They deserve a lot of credit."

After all, a Bokovoy at 90 percent is still better than any other pitcher in the area and the Rocks ripped 13 hits.

"I knew we could hit her," said Salem coach Rob Willette, who's teams had never beaten Stevenson. "We've got a real good hitting team."

TERRI LESNIAK and Cheryl Viele, two seniors, led the Salem attack. Lesniak had three hits and Viele only one. Viele's hit was the game-winner — a clutch bases-loaded single that scored two runs in the top of the eighth.

State says no to playoff expansion

By Chris McCosky staff writer

The Michigan High School Athletic Association, through its Representative Council, has said no to a plan that would have expanded the high-school football playoffs to 128 teams.

The council, which consists primarily of high-school principals and superintendents, decided that "there would be no change in the high-school football playoff format for the 1984 season."

The decision came after the council met Sunday through Thursday of last week.

"An overwhelming number of school administrators do not want to expand the playoffs," said Vern Norris, the executive director of the MHSAA. "This is a tough thing to say because of all the negative things we read about the playoffs every fall, but it seems most people are satisfied with the present playoff structure."

The playoff expansion plan brought before the council, the Ahern Plan, was researched and developed over a three-year period by Ithaca High School coach Jim Ahern. The Michigan High School Football Coaches Association adopted the Ahern Plan in April.

"WE'RE NOT about to hang it up now," said Ahern. "We have to now go back, re-evaluate some of the things in the plan and contact more principals and superintendents. We need to get their feelings on the issue and go from there."

Ahern said he was disappointed that the council would not at least publish results of a mythical "paper playoff" using the Ahern Plan during the 1984 season.

"I don't see why they wouldn't put the paper playoff in the paper just to see how it would work," Ahern said.

The council did note that it had no objection to the coaches association continuing its study of the issue.

Walt Bazylewicz, director of physical education for the Archdiocese of Detroit and head of the Catholic League, is a member of the Representative Council.

"Football is part of the educational curriculum," he said. "Any recommendation to expand the curriculum needs the support of the principals, superintendents and administrators of the schools. This plan didn't have that."

Bazylewicz said the council objected to two elements of the Ahern Plan.

Northville ousts Canton

Mike Morgan has brought the Plymouth Canton soccer team a long way in his first season. He has taken the Chiefs from mediocrity to a superb 10-4 state-ranked club this season.

soccer

But to Morgan, none of that matters now. His Chiefs were ousted by Northville, 3-2, in a state pre-regional qualifying match.

"They just wanted it more than we did tonight," Morgan said.

The Chiefs fell behind 2-0 after a half, but high-scoring Lisa Russell tied twice in the opening stages of the second half to tie it.

"It became a mid-field game after that," Morgan said. "They got the game-winner with about 20 minutes left. We mounted several good attacks, but no cigar."

Kim Reeves, Alice Shobe and Lori Enger got assists for Canton.

Northville will take on Plymouth Salem Friday in the pre-regional final.

"It's kind of disappointing," Morgan said. "The two toughest teams in the region met in the pre-regional qualifier. Look for Northville to go all the way through the region now."

PLYMOUTH SALEM may have something to say about that first, however.

The Rocks blanked West Bloomfield 3-0 in their pre-regional qualifier Saturday.

Julie Tortora has been contributing greatly to the Salem attack since she was moved from forward to halfback. The Rocks face Northville in a pre-regional match at Salem tomorrow.

Salem splits with Spartans

"The freshmen and sophomores have been doing all the hitting for us," Willette said. "I told the seniors it was time they started contributing."

Stevenson scored first on a single by Bokovsky, a sacrifice by Shannon Snyder and a base hit by Kathy Baloff.

Salem tied it in the fourth on a single by Lesniak, a fielder's choice and a single by Leslie Plichta. An outfield error on the hit allowed Cindy Runge to score all the way from first.

The Rocks forged ahead in the fifth on a two-out single by Patty Maslak and a double by Debbie Glomski — one of her two hits.

The game was played in chilly conditions and under the threat of rain. In the sixth, the skies opened and a cold, hard rain fell on the combatants.

But, the rain didn't dampen the drama of the game. With two out in the bottom of the sixth, Liz Gargaro launched a high pop fly that fell over the short right-center field fence for a game-tying home run.

Both teams threatened in the seventh. Bokovsky retired the Rocks after they put runners at second and third with one out. A great diving catch by Salem left fielder Runge saved a potential Spartan run.

That set the stage for an exciting eighth.

THE SUN came out just in time, it seemed, to warm up the Rock bats in the eighth.

Lesniak singled, Runge walked and, after a strike out, Tackett got an infield hit. Vele then scored two with her clutch single. Leslie Culver followed with a hit. Maggy Meissner hit a one-hopper back to Bokovsky. Bokovsky threw home to force the second out, but catcher Linda Loeffler's throw to first was wild and Vele scored the third run of the inning.

A double by Snyder and a single by Gargaro got one back for the Spartans but it wasn't enough.

Sue Carlson was the winning pitcher for the Rocks. She scattered 10 hits but didn't walk a batter. She was aided by some strong defensive play from shortstop Lesniak, third baseman Culver and the outfield.

"Our team is very aggressive at the plate," Cagle said. "They don't like to take walks, and that's not very smart especially against a pitcher who will give up some walks."

In game two, Bokovsky allowed only four hits. She aided her own cause by ripping three hits. Gerliann DiDominico had two hits for Stevenson.

Ahern Plan turned down

"THERE WAS some objection to starting football in the middle of the summer and some were concerned about playing more than one football game in a week," he said.

In expanding the playoff format to include 128 teams, the Ahern Plan proposed two additional playoff dates. These dates would be made up, in essence, by playing the first game of the season before Labor Day, and then scheduling three playoff dates within an eight-day span.

The Ahern Plan was to take effect in the 1986 season.

As it stands, the 52-team, eight-team-per-enrollment-class playoff system based on a computer point system will continue to be the prep football playoff format in Michigan.

World-class stars brighten Ice Show

The Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department annually puts on one of the finest ice shows in the area and this year should be no different.

This year's Plymouth Ice Review 1984 — "Music Makes You Move" — will feature a talented contingent of ice skaters who will perform this weekend at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The program features guest skater Jimmy Santee, former United States junior men's figure skating national champion and the ice dancing team of Jodie Balogh and Jerod Swallow, members of the 1985 United States junior world team.

"It's going to be a great show," director Barb Miller said. "It's a variety of skating at all levels. It features a lot of kids from the Plymouth area."

"THE REST OF the performers are skaters from our own arena — ranging in ages from four to 20," Miller said.

The first show is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 18. Saturday's performance will include two shows, a matinee performance at 1:30 and an evening show at 7:30. The production will conclude with a 3 p.m. show Sunday.

Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12 and senior citizens. The arena is located at 525 Farmer St.

World-class stars brighten Ice Show

The Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department annually puts on one of the finest ice shows in the area and this year should be no different.

This year's Plymouth Ice Review 1984 — "Music Makes You Move" — will feature a talented contingent of ice skaters who will perform this weekend at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The program features guest skater Jimmy Santee, former United States junior men's figure skating national champion and the ice dancing team of Jodie Balogh and Jerod Swallow, members of the 1985 United States junior world team.

"It's going to be a great show," director Barb Miller said. "It's a variety of skating at all levels. It features a lot of kids from the Plymouth area."

"THE REST OF the performers are skaters from our own arena — ranging in ages from four to 20," Miller said.

The first show is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 18. Saturday's performance will include two shows, a matinee performance at 1:30 and an evening show at 7:30. The production will conclude with a 3 p.m. show Sunday.

Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12 and senior citizens. The arena is located at 525 Farmer St.

Both teams threatened in the seventh. Bokovsky retired the Rocks after they put runners at second and third with one out. A great diving catch by Salem left fielder Runge saved a potential Spartan run.

That set the stage for an exciting eighth.

THE SUN came out just in time, it seemed, to warm up the Rock bats in the eighth.

Lesniak singled, Runge walked and, after a strike out, Tackett got an infield hit. Vele then scored two with her clutch single. Leslie Culver followed with a hit. Maggy Meissner hit a one-hopper back to Bokovsky. Bokovsky threw home to force the second out, but catcher Linda Loeffler's throw to first was wild and Vele scored the third run of the inning.

A double by Snyder and a single by Gargaro got one back for the Spartans but it wasn't enough.

Sue Carlson was the winning pitcher for the Rocks. She scattered 10 hits but didn't walk a batter. She was aided by some strong defensive play from shortstop Lesniak, third baseman Culver and the outfield.

"Our team is very aggressive at the plate," Cagle said. "They don't like to take walks, and that's not very smart especially against a pitcher who will give up some walks."

In game two, Bokovsky allowed only four hits. She aided her own cause by ripping three hits. Gerliann DiDominico had two hits for Stevenson.

Rocks 5th at RU Relays

By Chris McCosky staff writer

It was a crowning moment in the long, successful, and a bit overlooked coaching career of Farmington's Gerry Young.

His girls track team carried him off the Redford Union track Saturday after the Falcons bested a strong 15-team field in the annual RU Relays.

It was the first time the Falcons have won the event, known as the female counterpart to the boys' Observerland Relays.

Farmington amassed 61 team points. Pontiac Northern, the No. 1 team in Oakland County and the meet's overwhelming favorite, took second, just five points back.

"Some of the coaches were upset that Northern was even in the meet because they are outside the (Observerland) area. They are a real tough squad, but our girls just did an all-around outstanding job. I think the RU people were happy to present us with the trophy," Young said.

THE FALCONS have been ranked No. 2 in Observerland most of the season behind John Glenn who didn't compete at RU. Bishop Borgess, ranked No. 3 in the area, took third at RU with 48 points.

Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy, experiencing its worst dual-meet season ever, placed a strong fourth with 43 points. Following Mercy were Plymouth Salem (35) and Livonia Stevenson (36).

Farmington flexed its muscles in the field events to build up what proved to be an insurmountable lead. With a first in the discus relay, second in both the shot-put and high-jump relays, and a fourth in the long-jump relay, the Falcons had 30 points before running a race.

The Falcons also took three of the four individual firsts of the field. Terri Quenneville won the shot (33-0), Beth Sherman won the discus (11

WE SUPPORT BETTER HOUSING.

We know how tough it is to jump on the home improvement bandwagon with traditional loans. Especially if you don't like applying over and over, then waiting for approval. That's why we think you'll like The Home Improvement Loan Account from your First of America bank. Because you apply just once, then use it as often as you like up to your credit limit, just like a charge. What's more, you don't have to stop with fixed improvements like remodeling and room additions. You can also enjoy on-the-spot financing for items like appliances and furnishings. Better yet, you'll pay interest only on the balance you owe with no prepayment penalty, at an interest rate lower than both VISA and MasterCard. So you can save even more in finance charges when you pay above your monthly minimum. So drop into your First of America bank or call us toll-free, 1-800-222-1983. We'll give you an application and list of participating stores. The Home Improvement Loan Account. When we work together, we think it's a better way to pay for a better home.

Down under: Sophisticated Sydney dominates coast; inland lies the vast, empty outback region

Last week travel writer William Schemmel told of his adventures aboard a cruise ship traveling the South Pacific. This week he dissects, barks and explores Australia.

By William Schemmel
Special writer

JUST BEFORE dawn, the Royal Viking Star knifes through the fog, and a million lights are visible on the surrounding hillsides. At the end of a two-week cruise through the South Pacific, we are entering Sydney harbor.

I'm standing by the rail, feeling unsettled and a little lost, as the Sydney Opera House, the Harbour Bridge and skyline come into focus. When you've reached Australia, you've gone about as far from the U.S. as it's possible to go. The first few hours ashore only strengthen the feeling that this is a far, far land, with its own tribal customs and exotic speech. A first-timer doesn't comprehend, for instance, that when an Aussie says, "That's a grouse bag of fruit you're wearing," mate, he's paying a compliment to one's suit of clothes.

WHEN YOUR ear gets the hang of it, though, you find yourself answering even when not completely certain of the question "Too right, mate," and "That's a fair go," as you raise your middy of Tooney's draft to this colorful land Down Under and its 15-million hospitable folk.

Once the language barrier is overcome, you find there's plenty that's familiar in big cities like Sydney, Brisbane and Melbourne. Aussies have taken to American fast-foods, and our sitcoms and game shows are mainstays of their telly.

It's easy to take to Sydney, Australia's "Leading Lady," as she pegs herself, is a right beaut. The 3.5-million Sydneysiders are more than a fifth of the population of this nation as physically large as the continental U.S. She's a handsome place, a tad like San Francisco with her spectacular harbor, easy sophistication and electric lifestyle.

One of the best ways to orient yourself is on the Sydney Explorer, a special bus that makes a circuit past the major downtown sights.

YOU'RE FREE to hop off whenever the notion strikes to wander through the Royal Botanic Gardens, Chinatown, a host of museums, and the clam-shell

Harbour bridge and Sydney skyline

Koala and cub in wildlife sanctuary

Sydney Harbour features sailboat and Opera House fantasy of the Opera House, then reboard when another bus comes around. Actually "Opera House" is a misleading term since it has five major halls and concerts of all sorts, drama, dance and cinema are also part of its repertoire. Like any major metropolis, Sydney is a mosaic of neighborhoods. The oldest, called The Rocks, was where His Majesty's prisoners first set foot when exiled from Mother England in the mid-18th century. In recent years, the area has been spruced up as the avenue for restaurants, craft shops, small museums and a visitors center. In little more than a year, the Regent of Sydney has established itself as "the" hotel. Rising 34 stories above the shopping district, it has sweeping views of the harbor. From the Circular Quay, just across and Georgetown, with San Francisco's North Beach thrown in for spice. To comprehend even a little the Australian character, it's necessary to extricate yourself from Sydney's luxurious lap and venture into the lonely emptiness of the fabied Outback. The most popular destination is Alice Springs, near what Australians call the Red Centre, an unbroken sea of arid plains, ancient riverbeds and barren mountains.

WHEN MISS Jean Paget came to the Alice in search of Joe Harmon in the PBS mini-series "A Town Like Alice," the raciest thing in town was the ice cream parlor. Well, wouldn't Joe and Miss Jean be fair speechless in Alice these days? It's grown into a bustling place with more than 20,000 people, all kinds of shops and restaurants, a race track, and even a state-run gambling casino with slots, roulette, blackjack and the lot.

There's also an alarming number of places around town where quiche is available. Most visitors over-night in Alice, on their way out to Ayers Rock and the Olgas. These mesmerizing rock formations, 290 miles southwest of Alice, are part of the Uluru National Park, 325,000 acres of desert protected by the Conservation Commission of the Northern Territory.

AYERS ROCK, the world's largest monolith, looms up more than 1,100 feet, with a distance around its base of five and half miles. Made up of a reddish sandstone, the mammoth rock takes on an almost hallucinatory quality as it change colors with the arc of the sun. At sunrise and sunset, it glows ember-like against the stark plain. People see a rock as imposing as this, and immediately they have to conquer it. Every year, more than 80,000 undertake the rigorous, almost straight-up climb to the top, fully warned by signs at the base that this should not be undertaken lightly.

The rewards for those who make it are panoramic views of the desert, the blue-silhouetted mountains and the nearby Olgas. The latter are an ensemble of 28 rock domes that look from the air like a burnt ground for gigantic mastodons.

ABOUT FIVE miles from the base is the modern complex of Yulara. It has two deluxe hotels — a Four Seasons and Sheraton — with swimming pools, restaurants, lounges and comfortable guest rooms with air conditioning and TV, also, 3,600 camp sites, shopping, a community center, visitors center and museum.

Plymouth hotel man wins award

Scott Lorenz, general manager of the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth, was awarded one of the five winners of the 1984 Michigan Ambassador of Tourism Awards.

The eleventh annual awards were presented by Gov. James J. Blanchard at the Governor's Conference on Tourism this week in Flint. Blanchard said in the opening session that Michigan must continue to publicize its tourism attractions and encourage travel and tourism among its citizens. "State government has a specific role in tourism and in creating an atmosphere to help make tourism grow," Blanchard said.

The governor said this can be achieved by greater legislative support such as the recent enactment of the room assessment tax bill, more aggressive campaigns to assist the traveling public and continued improvement of roads and highways.

LORENZ WAS recognized for creating a Canadian

Par Value Plan, by which Canadian visitors can spend their money at par with American dollars. He also was cited for founding the Michigan Hot Air Balloon Festival held in Plymouth and the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular. He was one of the organizers of Circle Michigan, which markets Michigan to the motor coach industry. Other winners of the awards were freelance travel writer Dixie Franklin of Marquette, cited for her efforts in promoting the Upper Peninsula, retired Grand Rapids Press writer B.G. (Bill) Brown, for 50 years of contributions to the travel industry, James Cordray of Montague, owner of White River Campground, for the development of both campground and canoeing directories, and George Cantor, Detroit News columnist and one-time travel writer for the Detroit Free Press. Michigan Embassy of Tourism Awards were also presented at the conference, honoring W.K. Kellogg Company plant tours at Battle Creek, the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival, Michigan Technological University's Winter Carnival, and the Upper Peninsula Rodeo at Iron River.

Heads restaurateurs Machus travels as new president

By Ethel Simmons
Staff writer

WHIRLWIND SCHEDULE will keep restaurateur Harris O. Machus on the go during his year in office as the new president of the National Restaurant Association.

He's even managing to be three places at once — almost. Last Thursday morning, just before he was going out of town to attend three events simultaneously in Chicago, he sat at the desk in his office at Birmingham's Adams Square office building and went over his upcoming agenda.

It was the picture of composure. Nothing hectic, nothing hurried about Machus. He looks the careful businessman he is, watching every facet of his own restaurant operation, guarding the cost but determined always to keep the quality high.

Three bottles of the special salad dressing (Machus Famous Dressing) sold at Machus restaurants were on his desk. The original label is applied by hand. A new one, being considered, can be done by machine and will help Machus keep up with increased production.

"I'D HATE TO leave this, which has some distinction and class, and go to this, which is quite common," he said with a tinge of regret in his voice. The old label is shiny and accented in red, the new has a flat finish and is pinkish-red.

Little things mean a lot to Machus, but they can add up to big things. When he started his first restaurant (now Machus 160) in the heart of town in 1951, it featured pastries that had grown popular at the bakery there opened by his father in 1933.

The tiny, 22-stool restaurant mostly offered salads and sandwiches, but they were served by a chef in full regalia. Today the Machus group includes six restaurants, two cafeterias and three pastry shops. The flagship restaurant is Machus Red Fox in Bloomfield Township, where Chef Leopold Schaefer, one of the country's 17 master chefs, reigns.

A coveted Ivy Award — presented to the Red Fox by Restaurants and Institutions Magazine — is one of the reasons Machus went to Chicago last week. He also is in the Windy City for the National Restaurant Association's board of directors meeting, when he takes over the presidency, and the annual meeting of members from throughout the country.

Sunday night, Machus planned to attend "three things between 6:30 and 8." First there was the NRA's reception in the Palmer House for state association restaurants' presidents and their executive vice presidents (guests also included Jerry Hill, president of Bill Knapp and head of the Michigan Restaurant Association).

SECOND WAS the Michigan State University Hotel and Restaurant School Alumni's reception. Machus wanted to be there, not only because he is the NRA president, but also because he is a graduate of Michigan State.

The third event was the Ivy Awards reception and dinner at the Drake Hotel. Ten restaurants are selected each year to receive the Ivy Award, which Machus prizes because, "It is given to restaurants by their peers, rather than restaurant critics or food critics by people who are supposed to be impartial but are your peers."

Of the Ivy award, Machus said, "I feel very privileged to have been selected." With modesty, he used the same phrase to describe the honor of being named president of the NRA. He has been an NRA board member for eight years.

Saturday was another busy night in Chicago for Machus, who attended a $500-a-plate Dinner of the Century, with each chef from the U.S. Culinary Team preparing a course. Twenty wines were served with the meal.

The evening raised funds for the 1984 Culinary Team, whose members include Dan Hugelier of Schuler's restaurants (in West Bloomfield and Rochester, among others), Richard Schneider, Marcus Bosinger and Lawrence Ryan. They will compete with teams from 32 countries this fall at the Culinary Olympics in Frankfurt, Germany.

THE NRA's trade show will open Sunday and continue through Wednesday at Chicago's McCormick Place. "We're expecting 90,000 people from all over the world. Anyone in the food service industry from hotel to mom-and-pop operation can see every piece of equipment used in a restaurant, hotel or coffee shop," Machus said.

Machus attends Chicago events

"There will be 1,300 exhibitors and more than 6,000 items on display. We're going to buy some things. There you can see everything that's available."

Machus said the NRA is the spokesperson for the entire food service industry. "We're constantly having seminars."

Machus restaurants, which has its own hospitality program, contributed to the NRA's Management Hospitality Guide for fast-food, regular restaurants and cafeterias.

Looking at what he called his "cue cards" — notes on index-size cards — Machus cited some NRA statistics.

Sales for the industry have gone up each year, even though 1982 and 1983 were considered as recession years. Sales were $133 billion in 1982, $144 billion in 1983 and are projected to be $157 billion this year.

Reasons for the increase, he said, are that, "There are more working women including households with two people working and teen-agers working. More people are eating out, not spending a lot of money or time but going out for convenience."

HE SAID another trend is more singles — male and female, small families and the retired, all eating out more.

"The industry employs about eight million people, and we serve 80 million customers each day," he continued. "The NRA's mission is to promote, educate and protect the industry. The food-service industry is among the country's top 10 fastest-growing industries."

In 1983, Machus was honored by Governor James Blanchard with the Ambassador of Michigan Tourism Award. "Approximately 25 million travelers come to Michigan each year," Machus said. "We serve them."

Tourism brings in $451 million in taxes to the State of Michigan and generates $10 billion of income. "The award was for my involvement in the industry," he said.

Recently, Machus visited Washington, Chicago and Florida and was back home in Birmingham one day when he hosted a $100-a-plate gourmet dinner at the Machus Red Fox, to benefit the U.S. Culinary Team.

Within the last few weeks he made trips to attend state meetings of the Massachusetts Restaurant Association, the Oklahoma Restaurant Association and the Utah Restaurant Association. During his NRA presidency, he figures, "I probably will have made 35-40 trips to other states for state association meetings or other organization meetings."

ON MOST TRIPS, Machus is accompanied by his wife, Elaine, who herself has a role in the Machus restaurants business. She works in conjunction with a design company, planning atmosphere for new restaurants and remodeling present ones.

Harris Machus keeps a seven-day-a-week schedule looking after his own restaurants. Each morning he starts the day by visiting Machus 160, greeting and talking with staff, as well as sitting briefly at the "round table" where area business, office and shop people congregate.

Then it's on to the Machus Sly Fox on S. Hunter, the bakery at Adams Square and the cafeteria there. At each stop he checks sales figures in the "beat book" ("beat yesterday"). There's also a log book, where managers and other staff members can record comments. At the Sly Fox, Machus checks a weekly banquet book each Monday morning.

Finally, he arrives at the Machus headquarters, a suite of offices on the lower level of the Adams Square offices. He confers with the project engineer and with senior executives. His secretary Irene Kerr is there to smooth a lot of the detail.

He and the other company officers — Martin Kreger, John Wood and John Miller — visit other restaurants and meet with their management staffs during the day.

HARRIS AND Elaine Machus frequently stop in for dinner at one of his restaurants, where he checks out the housekeeping and back of the restaurant, along with the meal.

Saturdays, he's back in his office, clearing up his desk. Sundays, he always visits a Machus restaurant for brunch or dinner.

Even the bake shop gets inspected and gives him a chance to say hello to the bakers. "The bake shop starts at midnight. If we've been somewhere late at night, I will invariably stop in," he said.

Strike up the band

A summer season for the Detroit Concert Band has not been announced yet. The season of free outdoor concerts is still in the making, with the band soliciting funds from corporate and foundation sponsors. Band conductor Leonard B. Smith and the Detroit Concert Band are pictured here at another concert series, the 1983 Meadow Brook Music Festival.

Ansel Adams: Warm, humble genius

Ansel Adams is gone, but his legacy will live on.

His greatness can't be questioned, whether it lies in the tremendous body of photography work he left or his ceaseless efforts as a conservationist.

Adams will be remembered as a man of superb vision and perseverance, who lifted photography to its current levels of public acceptance and appreciation.

But, there's another side of this great man - one that will be missed by the many fortunate enough to have gotten to know him.

This is the human Ansel Adams - the Adams who was humble, witty, compassionate, and charming.

I was lucky to have become familiar with this side of him and after sharing the remainder of this story with me, perhaps you'll know him better, too.

I first met Ansel Adams in 1979 while attending his Yosemite photographic workshop. I was in the back row of seats during the orientation session when in strolled the thick bearded photographer in ever present stetson hat and bolo tie.

HE SAT down next to me, put out his hand and introduced himself (as if I didn't know who he was) I was taken aback. The great man himself, just as humble as apple pie, sitting down and introducing himself.

Well, I found out in succeeding days that this behavior was typical of him. He had a way of making you feel right at home. In fact, in subsequent years, I was always welcome at his Carmel home during visits to California.

He was always spirited and full of energy whether it was at an early morning breakfast at Yosemite Lodge or a late night photographic bull-session with his students.

While it is easily said that Adams

photography

had a captivating personality and an abundance of charisma, one quality he possessed that I'll always remember was his fabulous sense of humor.

Once, while a passenger in his new Cadillac (it wasn't quite new, he was too modest for that), he delighted in showing me how all the lights and gadgets on the instrument panel worked. With a chuckle, he accelerated and decelerated demonstrating the green and amber fuel efficiency lights.

I remember him being critical of a deceased photographer's work, when suddenly he caught himself in mid-sentence and said, "I shouldn't be talking like this, he's gone to the final wash."

Adams had heart problems for years and not too long ago underwent open-heart surgery. He delighted privately and even publicly in unbuttoning his shirt and showing off his telltale scar.

On a visit to Detroit a few years ago, I was asked to pick him up at the airport and help him out during his stay. As he stepped off the plane, I couldn't help but feel that some of the grandeur of the California mountains had just graced Detroit.

ON THE WAY to the hotel, he asked if he could see the Renaissance Center. He said he had heard about RenCen but wanted to see it for himself. With his keen and perceptive eye, he marveled at the unusual architectural forms.

I noticed he was constantly "seeing" things. With a grin on his face as if he were about to do something mischievous, he strolled into the Waldenbooks store and sauntered over to the photography section.

He located one of his own books, slipped a pen from his pocket, scribbled a fast autograph, and discreetly placed the book back on the shelf.

I'm sure he was thinking that someone was in for a grand surprise. Well, the book lasted a total of about 20 seconds on the shelf before a lucky purchaser got to it.

Back at the hotel, Adams insisted on carrying his own suitcase to his room and immediately phoned his wife, Virginia, back home to let her know he arrived safely and that he missed her.

LATER that day, he tirelessly wrote out hundreds of autographs at a book signing with a smile and friendly remark for his admirers. That night at a cocktail party, as I was growing weary from a long day, he was still going strong, alert and jovial as usual.

A week later, I received a note from him thanking me for helping during his visit - and it was hand written.

Yes, Ansel Adams is gone. But his memories and mountains of work will live on. His photographs are of the grandest scale. He could make cathedrals from rock formations and driftwood come alive. He will go down in history as a pioneer of photography.

For me, his legacy is more personal. He told me once to go through life not

This wisdom will remain with me forever.

4-H Fair features variety of herbs

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

You don't need a green thumb to raise or appreciate herbs.

Many herbs are easy to grow. And they're not just for cooking, but can be used around the house and garden.

Raising herbs is nothing new to Joann Wimmer of Livonia. Her husband Jack designed an herb garden at Greenmead Farms in Livonia.

"My mother used to raise them," Joann said. "I've done it all my life."

"There's no secret, just keep them in the sun. There's no fertilizing. Some, like rosemary, we bring in the house in the wintertime."

THE WIMMERS' garden at their house has contained such herbs as rosemary, oregano, tarragon, garlic chives, horseradish and lemon thyme. Some of these herbs may be seen at what is being described as the area's largest herb sale on Sunday.

The herb garden at Greenmead is maintained by Jack and Joann Wimmer. Herbs will be on sale at the 4-H Country Fair.

and master gardener Bob Klein.

"It has a strong minty flavor," said Klein, who works at the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service. "You have to be careful not to use too much of it."

Sage is a perennial herb that is pretty and easy to grow, Klein said. Common types of artemisia are used as borders, such as the "silver king" variety, which resembles a chrysanthemum. Oregano, used in Italian dishes, has a lavender flower.

Licorice and marshmallow are considered herbs, according to Klein. Lovage resembles celery and can be eaten raw or added to soups. There are varieties of mint (including pineapple mint, orange mint, apple mint and ginger mint) and scented geraniums (lime scent, apple scent and rose).

SOME HERBS have stories behind them. Early settlers used the leaves of the "Bible leaf" herb to mark places in their Bibles. Apparently, the wide leaves of the herb made good book-marks, Klein said.

Herbal products include packages of herbs used as moth repellents, and "potpourri," a jar containing several herbs to create a pleasant scent. Lavender is placed in drawers because of its fragrance. Catnip makes a tea. Tarragon can be made into vinegar.

"You can get pretty wound up in this thing," Klein said. "It's amazing, the different things you can do with herbs."

To dry herbs for storage, Klein said to spread them on a cookie sheet and put it in the oven, at not more than 200 degrees, for five to 10 hours. A tray or screen of herbs could be dried outside on a sunny day.

"They will dry out real nice, and there won't be any mold or anything like that," Klein said. "I've kept basil for two to three years in a jar."

"The herbs should be well dried before you try to put them away. Put them in quart jars or pint jars and seal them real well."

● MICHIGAN HISTORICAL MUSEUM The show "Images of Michigan's Heritage" is on display through Sept. 1. Exhibitors, accepted from the entire state, include Livonia resident Audrey Spent, entitled "Thresher Section 411," was done at Greenmead in Livonia. The museum is at 208 N. Capitol Ave. in Lansing.

A "great deal longer than it took Donizetti to write it," she said, referring to the four-week period she spent at Lake Como where he wrote the opera in 1830. It was his first major success. "I began working on it in March," she said. "I thought it was long - it is."

Her husband, sitting next to her, compared it to other operas composed later that century. An expert in early operatic literature, Bonynge had called the opera "advanced for its time in the dramatic development of music in a lecture given the night before at Toronto's Harbour Front.

"The opera is much harder to sing today than it was when it was written," said Bonynge. "In those days singers didn't go up with as much power as they do today. The part is so difficult because it is so long and so high. Singers have tried singing parts such as this as they were sung in 1830 but today's public doesn't like it."

BONYNGE has cut what he calls "a few junky pages" out of this production to shorten the performance time. He said the set was strong on looks with a 19th century grand opera appeal. The production is directed by the Chicago Lyric Opera.

After the Detroit production, it will go to Houston and San Francisco. The five opera companies all have a financial interest in it. The joint venture puts MOT in the league with the large companies in the country.

Donizetti composed some 70 operas in his career. One of the music "comes close to the same musical phrases of later operas," said Bonynge.

Sutherland was asked if he ever gets the operas mixed up. "All the time," she said. "Concern about getting operas mixed up is an opera singer's nightmare. No, I don't memorize easily."

Her husband finished her sentence "and she is a slow learner."

Sutherland has been criticized in the past for poor diction.

"What I have found is that when one review comes out in a city, then it is repeated in reviews in other cities around the country, right or wrong."

Sutherland said she feels that as she has gotten older she is more relaxed and in some ways it is not as difficult to take the high notes. She is one of this country's greatest voices and knows it.

"Now if I don't fit the bill, it's too bad," she adds flippantly but somehow without egotism.

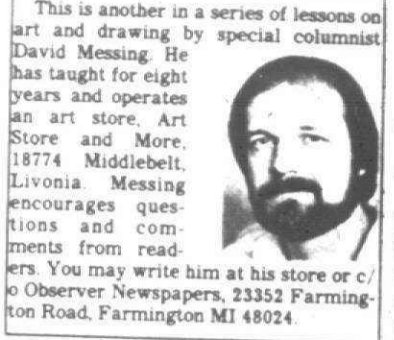

The Bonyngees were asked about the tremendous demand for their services all over the world, suggesting that the Metropolitan Opera would like to have them appear more in New York.

"Oh, would they?" quipped Sutherland. "Perhaps you know something we don't."

It was an obvious referral to the couple's four year absence from the Met and another chapter in the Met's notorious history of failing to hire the world's great singers while they are in their prime.

Just as Sutherland never sings without her husband on the podium as conductor, the two finish each other's sentences, interrupt each other, and are virtually inseparable. He explained her comment with "We don't sing at the Met because other people ask us first."

Changing media doesn't have to be risky

From the previous summer will fit him. Thinking it safe he tries on the cotton pants with the elastic to its limit as he struggles to reach the button to the hole. He makes it, but is not pleased, because nothing looks worse than an elastic waist band when it is smooth and taut. Disgusted, he searches for stretch jeans. But perhaps he will just have to face the fat or fact, that some changes in his diet are necessary.

The rays of the sun warm the earth and new life comes forth to greet spring and the upcoming summer. Meanwhile, Dave Messing stands before his closet and wonders if any of his clothes

Sutherland has lively sense of humor

By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

At a news conference in Toronto last week, Dame Joan Sutherland came up with a succession of one liners that cast doubts on those rumors of her shyness.

The legendary opera singer, famed for her dramatic coloratura performances in comic opera, such as "Daughter of the Regiment" and "The Marriage of Figaro" as well as tragedies as "Lucia di Lammermoor," is in Toronto with husband and conductor, Richard Bonynge for Canadian Opera Company's (COC) production of "Anna Bolena."

The meeting took place in the Prime Minister's Suite of the Sutton Place Hotel. The muted decor was enhanced by two oil paintings - one of a hunting scene, reminiscent of the hunting scene in Act I of "Anna Bolena," and another of the Paris Opera.

Sutherland doesn't look 58 years old, nor does she appear to be a grandmother. She was classically dressed in red, white, and blue wearing very simple makeup.

With her Australian accent, typified by the soft "a" pronunciation of the word "scheduled," she amused everyone with her spontaneous, quick-witted remarks.

She was asked how long she had been working on the Anna Bolena role.

"A great deal longer than it took Donizetti to write it," she said, referring to the four-week period she spent at Lake Como where he wrote the opera in 1830. It was his first major success.

"I began working on it in March," she said. "I thought it was long - it is."

Her husband, sitting next to her, compared it to other operas composed later that century. An expert in early operatic literature, Bonynge had called the opera "advanced for its time in the dramatic development of music in a lecture given the night before at Toronto's Harbour Front.

such as this as they were sung in 1830 but today's public doesn't like it."

BONYNGE has cut what he calls "a few junky pages" out of this production to shorten the performance time. He said the set was strong on looks with a 19th century grand opera appeal. The production is directed by the Chicago Lyric Opera.

After the Detroit production, it will go to Houston and San Francisco. The five opera companies all have a financial interest in it. The joint venture puts MOT in the league with the large companies in the country.

Her husband finished her sentence "and she is a slow learner."
