Facility captures national attention

Editor's note: This is the first in an occasional series of stories on Alzheimer's disease and how it touches Canton residents.

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Loren Bennett, Canton Township trustee, may one day be considered a pioneer in burning the path for Alzheimer's victims by making a move considered nationally innovative.

Alzheimer's disease is the fourth leading cause of death in the country after cancer, stroke and heart disease.

He took the step in December 1983 by forming Senior Living Inc., a corporation providing custodial care and a homelike atmosphere strictly for Alzheimer's victims.

"This is a new phenomenon, and we're very happy to see more and more of them," according to Barbara Greenberg, director of Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association.

The Senior Living homes in Washtenaw County are in Pittsfield Township and Whitmore Lake. Bennett also is looking to open other similar homes specifically for Alzheimer's victims.

"No one has any specific information on how many, but we are hearing more and more that people are making specific accommodations for Alzheimer's victims," said Marian Emr, public relations specialist with the National Institute on Aging. "They're (residential facilities specifically for Alzheimer's victims) still in the category of being rare," Emr said. "The important thing is that people are starting to look at Alzheimer's as an important disease."

SENIOR LIVING offers an alternative for families who are no longer able to constantly watch their loved ones, and aren't content with the institutional settings of most nursing homes, Bennett said. A one-month stay is $1,350.

Canton Trustee Loren Bennett visits sufferers of Alzheimer's disease at the Washtenaw County home he directs.

"We're not there to extend life, because Alzheimer's is terminal, but we're there to improve the quality," said Bennett who is president of the corporation and on the board of directors, but doesn't have ownership. The Senior Living residences resemble other suburban homes — pictures of loved ones hang on the walls and a pair of parakeets chirp in a cage. At first glance, the people and their surroundings at the Pittsfield site seem commonplace, but a closer look unveils small peculiarities.

For instance, the birds are nameless. It seems odd too that most of the pictures are yellowed with age.

Bedroom doors have names printed on them, and the bathroom is also identified.

These are signs of Alzheimer's victims having lost their short-term memories first. Ironically, memo-

Tax proposal not a panacea — Geake, Law

Local lawmakers have varying views on the merits of Gov. James Blanchard's recently proposed property tax rebate plan.

Backed by 37th District Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, Blanchard's proposal would grant homeowners and renters a 10 percent rebate if passed by the Legislature.

Kosteva lauds the idea, saying that because of "very dramatic inflationary pressures in the 1970s and large millage increases," rebates are important to western Wayne County homeowners.

However Republicans including Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and 36th District Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, (whose districts include Canton) say Blanchard's plan is misdirected.

"What's fair is to return the tax to the people who are paying it. The reason we have a surplus is because the income tax was raised too much to begin with," said Geake.

REPUBLICANS are calling for an income tax rollback to 4.6 percent from 5.3 percent. Blanchard says he will resist any effort to roll back the 1983 tax hike earlier than its scheduled expiration date of 1987.

In six to eight months when deferred payments to school districts will be current, the state will have accumulated $400 million in its "rainy day fund," said Law. Beyond that, there's $250-$300 million in reserve surplus, he added.

Law says "there is nothing wrong" with a property tax rebate — Plymouth, Canton and Northville property owners pay heavy taxes.

Gerald Law

"But you run into a problem on who should get the money back if there's going to be a rebate of any surplus," said Law. "Probably the fairest way to give money back is to give it back to those who paid the income tax hike."

"It's totally possible that some people who paid the property tax may not have paid income tax. Why should they get a rebate when their property taxes did not create the surplus?"

Robert Geake

Geake — who concedes Blanchard's plan would be especially helpful to Detroiters and others with relatively low property values — assessed the situation this way: "I thought the governor was in a tough spot politically because he claimed previously there would be no surplus — that the tax increase was needed."

"Now he has the surplus, and Republicans are calling for a rollback. His only plausible program is to find some other tax deduction, or else admit the Republicans were right."

The governor justifies his proposal saying "it is clear that Michigan's property tax is the most burdensome of our state taxes. By comparison Michigan's income tax and sales tax are below many states. It's the property tax that's way out of line."

REBATES WORK — and would be modified — like this:

If your property taxes are in excess of 3.5 percent of your household income, then the state rebates you 60 percent of the excess tax.

Michigan property taxes — which support county, community college, city, township and school district governments — total $5 billion a year, according to state Treasurer Robert Bowman. Of this, $3 billion is paid by residences.

Weather couldn't wither Cantonites

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Plummeting mercury and chilling winds were to blame for mishaps around the country, but Canton Township residents apparently got through the recent bout of winter weather relatively well.

Sub-zero temperatures Monday gave school children in the Plymouth-Canton, Van Buren and Wayne-Westland school districts the day off. Canton Library-goers were also turned away Monday, because of a broken heater. Heat was restored Tuesday.

The Canton Township Police Department reported an unusually large number of fender benders, but no major accidents were attributed to the weather, according to police Lt. Larry Stewart. Ten minor accidents occurred Tuesday morning between 5:45 and 8 a.m., Stewart said. No serious injuries were reported.

"An instrumental factor (contributing to the accidents) was that some of the roads were clear, and then there's an icy stretch, and people are going too fast," Stewart said. "Because of blowing snow, you have to be extremely aware of icy stretches."

"A lot of accidents have been caused because people couldn't stop at a stop sign and went into traffic," he said.

At least three cars were abandoned because of the arctic weather Monday morning. Two of the vehicles were stuck on the I-275 ramp near Michigan Avenue. The other was left on Beck south of Proctor Road.

"WHENEVER the weather is bad we always get a lot of (injuries from) auto accidents," said Denise Chaffey, office manager at Oakwood Hospital Canton Center.

Officials allay fears about police meetings

By Diane Gale
staff writer

The meetings of the police department review committee won't be secret after all. The news media are invited to attend.

The press will be informed about the meetings whose purpose is to revamp the police department.

Concerns had been expressed when three Canton Township public officials were named to the committee because, under the Open Meetings Act, they could meet in closed session without posting the time and date of proposed meetings.

The officials are Supervisor James Poole and board trustees Loren Bennett and Robert Padgett. They were appointed by the township board and are the only members of the committee.

PADGETT, WHO is chairman of the committee, said Tuesday that the media is invited to the meetings. Impromptu sessions held without notifying the press and conducted solely among committee members will be discussed afterwards, he said.

Discretion in disclosing information will be used when dealing with sensitive personnel matters, he added.

Roderick Bartell of a Pennsylvania consulting firm, Bartell and Bartell, suggested forming the committee in a comprehensive study of the police department which cited numerous problems and a need for a major turnaround in the department.

A SECOND suggestion from Bartell, that of a committee to represent the police department, will be discussed at a 3 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 31 meeting. This nine-member steering committee will address department concerns and objectives.

Command officers, the three police union representatives, an officer representing each of the three shifts and Bartell are invited, Padgett said.

"The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the makeup of the steering committee, and hopefully from that we'll find the membership," Padgett said. "We'll all be making an effort here, realizing that lying ahead are hard times, hard hours and hard work to make things better."

"Bartell has done a fine job in documenting some of the things that have been going on in the department for a long time," Padgett said.

Bennett agreed the study was a "fantastic blueprint that's well worth the money ($16,862 for initial fees)."

Referring to the committee meetings Poole said: "We have a hell of a challenge and a difficult task."

Major changes suggested by the review committee and the steering committee will be presented to the full Canton Township Board for approval. However, other smaller alterations can be implemented by Jerry Cox, chief of police.

IN TODAY'S ISSUE

Super Bowl a super bust

It was a case of Murphy's Law, says Suzanne Skubick of Omnicom Cablevision.

If something can go wrong, it will — and it did Sunday evening as hundreds of eyes were glued to television sets for the 19th Super Bowl.

Many Omnicom viewers undoubtedly cursed at their sets when the screens went blank Sunday evening.

"When it gets so severely cold, metal shrinks," Skubick said. "Even though the cable is designed for some shrinkage, the severe cold this weekend was more than it was designed for."

"Also, the blowing snow got in the electronics in some spots," she said.

The result was a break in cable service for many customers — a break which couldn't have come at a worse time for football fans.

Snowy snafu leads to cable TV disruption

Skubick, Omnicom's program director, wasn't certain how many customers were affected by the disruption. Omnicom general manager Rick Coleman couldn't be reached for comment Tuesday.

If it's any consolation to those who were watching (or trying to watch) the 49ers and Dolphins square off, Omnicom really couldn't have done anything to prevent the disruption.

Cable companies design their systems to allow for shrinkage. Typically, the kinks caused by shrinkage are worked out during the first year of operation.

This weekend's frigid temperatures and winds simply were more than what could be expected.

Although she doesn't live in the Omnicom coverage area, Skubick said her cable service has been disrupted in the past by cold weather — indicating the problem isn't unique to Omnicom.

And, if you're a Dolphin fan, you really didn't want to see the game anyway.

DANCING TO music and becoming fit at the same time: Doesn't sound all bad, does it?

Canton Township's Parks and Recreation Department in conjunction with the Wayne-Westland YMCA is offering a popular seven-week winter shape-up program called "Dynamic Aerobics."

Should you be in the vicinity from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. or 10:30-11:30 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, you may catch a glimpse of leotard-clad, fitness-minded folks in the basement of the Canton Township administration building at 1150 Canton Center Road.

Dynamic Aerobics, which kicked off Tuesday, is a vigorous exercise program set to music and designed to trim and slim the body.

The fee for the exercise class is $35 per person. For more information, call 397-1000, or write the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton 48188.

Jacquie Rundell, a Canton resident and Dynamic Aerobics instructor, leads the class through a dance routine.

Geake, Law knock tax plan

In calendar 1984, the state paid back $44.4 million in residential rebates. Blanchard proposes to use $65 million to fatten the rebate package to about $720 million. The latter checks would be sent out in 1985.

It's estimated that 1.5 million Michigan families, about 58 percent of the total, receive rebates. Nearly all are below the $68,000 income level.

The average rebate is $400. It would increase to $440 if Blanchard's plan passes the Legislature, Bowman said.

stills intact.

One thing is given in the homes: Residents' brains are deteriorating and they probably will die of Alzheimer's complications such as pneumonia or heart failure.

The first sign of Alzheimer's is slight memory loss, which becomes continually aggravated until the person is incapacitated.

ALZHEIMER'S IS the fourth-leading cause of death in the country after cancer, strokes and heart disease, according proudly of the rebate system, sometimes known as the "circuit breaker." But both Geake and Law see problems with it.

"The most unfair aspect of the circuit breaker for Plymouth and Canton area residents is the $1,200 ceiling, and Blanchard is not proposing any increase there," Geake said earlier this week.

(Although taxpayers get back the amount by which their property taxes exceed 3.5 percent, the sum may not exceed $1,200).

"It's especially unfair to senior citizens and other people on fixed incomes," added the senator, who expected Blanchard to trumpet his cause at yesterday's State of the State address. "If taxes keep going up and income does not, the $1,200 ceiling doesn't help much."

"THE PROBLEM is, it's been $1,200 for 10 years now," agreed Law, who advocates increasing sales taxes to help fund education. "Obviously property taxes have gone up substantially in that period."

Both lawmakers predict the House and Senate will call for a rollback in the state income tax, though the House may be more supportive of Blanchard's plan.

"There probably will be a lot of pressure to roll back the tax earlier than 1987. If there are not enough votes to roll back early, then probably at least as a final measure, we'll adopt an increase in the property tax (rebate) and return a larger amount of the surplus to taxpayers," Law said.

Canton Township survives the deep freeze unscathed

There was no exception during this week's icy temperatures and blowing snow, she said.

"When the weather's bad there's usually a few snow-blower accidents, and lots of heart attacks, because people are out there shoveling," Chaffey added. "But we don't see a lot of frost-bite incidents."

SURPRISINGLY, the Department of Public Works had no water main breaks through Tuesday evening, according to Jake Dingeldey, DPW director.

"There were five calls (Monday), but most were from faucets mistakenly reported as main breaks," Dingeldey said.

Residents who experience frozen pipes should keep the water running at a slow rate in a faucet near the problem area, Dingeldey suggests. Pipes commonly freeze in crawl spaces, and in other unheated areas where parts of the pipe are exposed. Wrapping the pipe with cloths could prevent freezing, he said.

Words of advice for people caring for animals during the cold come from Dr.

Ken Harr, Canton Center Animal Hospital veterinarian.

"People don't consider that water in a dish will freeze outside, and a dog could get dehydrated or develop a kidney problem without it," Harr said. "Exposure itself would certainly kill a lot of animals in this weather."

Outdoor animals should have an insulated area or garage to stay in. You should also provide the animal with some type of material, like hay, to nest in, Harr said.

"But for the most part people should bring the animal in (when the temperatures are sub-zero)," he said.

An important factor in keeping warm is maintaining a good diet, because "feeding gives us energy, and the more fat provided, the more energy,"

Harr said.

A reminder about evacuation information came from township hall at Tuesday's Canton Township Board of Trustees' meeting. Supervisor James Poole announced that the community's primary evacuation center, in case of emergencies including severe weather conditions, is at Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

Wayne County group maps future business

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

The guard has changed at the Conference of Western Wayne (CWW) and the first item of business is charting the course for the future.

"We are in the decision-making process of whether we should be a research and planning support group or a direct service group," said Maurice Breen, Plymouth Township supervisor. Breen recently was elected CWW chairman.

CWW is comprised of chief elected officials (CEOs) from 16 western Wayne County communities and is similar to the Downriver Community Conference. CWW normally meets once each month in a different member community.

The group went through a transition following the election of William Lucas as county executive. Before Lucas' election the group was comprised of municipal employees, rather than elected officials, and for all practical purposes was dormant.

Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara spearheaded the rebirth of the group as last year's chairman. At the same time CEOs became representatives. CWW offered one year's free membership to communities which didn't belong.

TODDLER STORYTIME

Thursday, Jan. 24 — The Toddler Storytime at Canton Public Library is a half-hour program for the 2-year-old who must be accompanied by an adult. The four-week (Feb. 4-25) program will introduce the toddler to the library through stories, games, songs, fingerplays and crafts. There are no repeats for this program as children may attend this four-week session only once. No latecomers will be admitted. Registration begins at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 24, in person only. One adult may register one child only. The schedule of winter sessions is: at 6 p.m. Mondays through Feb. 25, at 10:15 a.m. Wednesdays through Feb. 27.

PRESCHOOL STORYTIME

Thursday, Jan. 24 — Preschool storytime sessions at Canton Public Library are designed for children age 3, 4, 5 who are not enrolled in kindergarten and who can sit attentively for 45 minutes without parental attendance. The four-week program, which begins Feb. 4, will introduce children to the world of stories, puppets, songs, fingerplays and crafts — all chosen to stimulate the imagination.

Class size is limited and registration is required. A parent must remain in the library while the storytime is in session. No latecomers will be admitted. Registration will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 24, in person only for children who did not participate in the fall storytime session. One adult may register one child only. The schedule of winter sessions is: at 6 p.m. Mondays through Feb. 25, at 10:15 a.m. Wednesdays through Feb. 27.

Fund-raiser central eyed

PTOs, band boosters, drama groups and others who raise funds for special Plymouth-Canton school projects may no longer be able to operate independently.

Representatives from the Educational Consultants Foundation addressed the Plymouth-Canton school board Monday, recommending that a foundation be established to serve as a "central clearing house" for all fund-raising activities.

Trustees, who braved sub-zero temperatures to attend the workshop, liked the sound of several features of the system being used increasingly by public schools.

"There's no question about tax exemptions," said Richard Egli, district community relations director. "People may not give to a PTO or some other group that doesn't have an IRS exemption. But tax-deductible donations can be made to a foundation and the money used for education."

"A FOUNDATION also could schedule fund-raising drives, making sure they're staggered throughout the year and not head-to-head."

A local expert asked to attend the meeting said establishing the organization would permit persons to donate property or stock, which could be converted to cash by the foundation. Funds also could be earmarked for particular projects, such as computer education, or portions of the district, said Dr. John Lore, president of the Michigan Colleges Foundation. (Composed of 16 small independent colleges in Michigan, the group raises scholarship money and direct funding for schools.)

Setting up the foundation would require no new personnel — at least initially, Egli said.

"If it gets big enough, a fund director could be hired and a non-profit separate organization set up. Members of the school board and the community would serve on it," he added.

Administrators are examining the plan and are to report their recommendations to the board.

Governor resists early income tax rollback

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Gov. James Blanchard wants to increase property tax rebates 10 percent to homeowners and renters.

He also wants to write taxpayers a separate rebate check so they won't confuse their property tax rebates with their income tax refunds.

But he will resist any effort to roll back the 1983 state income tax hike earlier than its scheduled expiration date of 1987.

"It is clear that Michigan's property tax is the most burdensome of our state taxes," the governor said as he launched his campaign in several Michigan cities last week.

"By comparison, Michigan's income tax and sales tax are below many states. It's the property tax that's way out of line."

HERE'S HOW the rebate system works and how Blanchard would change it:

Blanchard said 1.5 million Michigan families — about 58 percent of the total — receive rebates. Nearly all are below the $68,000 income level.

The average rebate is $400. It would increase to $440 if Blanchard's plan passes the Legislature, Bowman said.

The rebates would be hiked by increasing the dollar amount though not by lowering the threshold below the current 3.5 percent of income. "There's no need to tinker with the system," Blanchard said.

ALTHOUGH STATE political leaders speak proudly of the rebate system, sometimes known as the "circuit breaker," Blanchard said "there's a lot of confusion of the property tax rebate with the income tax refund."

So beginning with 1986 refunds (for the 1985 tax year), the state will issue separate checks, Bowman said.

In 1968-9, when Gov. William G. Milliken inaugurated the system, a single check was sent out with no differentiation between income tax refund and property tax rebate.

In recent years, the treasurer sent out a single check but noted on the stub that part was for an income tax refund and part for a property tax rebate (see sample in photo).

To further educate the public, Bowman's office will operate a toll-free hot line to answer questions from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily on state and taxes and the rebate. The number is 1-800-292-MICH.

WHILE REPUBLICAN lawmakers continued to call for a rollback in the income tax rate, two suburban Democrats appeared at Blanchard's news conference near Detroit Metropolitan Airport to endorse the plan.

Rep. Justine Barnes, D-Westland, in her second House term after nearly 17 years on the Westland City Council, called the property tax "most regressive." She agreed with Blanchard that "people do not understand the circuit breaker."

Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, said rebates are important "to western Wayne County homeowners because of "very dramatic inflationary pressures in the 1970s; and the large millage increases they voted." The freshman legislator said he was "encouraged" by the Blanchard plan.

Open house at CEP Pre School

Parents from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are invited to attend the open house for the CEP Pre School (formerly Canton Children's Corners) from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 1, in Room 138 at Plymouth Canton High on Canton Center Road south of Joy. The program is a laboratory setting under the direction of Sue Visser, along with professionals Lois Santer and Nedra Wagar, aimed at giving high school students a job training opportunity of working with preschoolers while attending school. At the open house, parents will receive all information and applications for fall classes. Children who will be age 3 by May 1 may apply along with 4-year-olds. The preschoolers attend two days a week, either Monday/Wednesday or Tuesday/Thursday for two hours at a time. Morning or afternoon sessions may be requested. Cost is $136 for the 16-week (one semester) program. In the pictures above, student Michelle Rosenstrom (left) helps Danielle Gibbons and Jill Gravett down a slide. Student Michelle Everson reads to preschoolers Jeremy Epplay and Christina Turner.

When it Comes to Health Care Experience, Nothing Else Comes Close.

HEALTH ALLIANCE PLAN.

Because HAP has been around two to three times longer than all its imitators, you get the experience others can't give. And the quality, value, innovation and convenience that comes with that experience.

People trust HAP to deliver the kind of quality health care they need. For 25 years HAP has provided quality coverage that combines personalized medicine with the latest in technology. And the value that comes from never having to pay a doctor bill again.

HAP's innovations began 25 years ago.

We expanded the concept of health care coverage to include preventive care such as testing, health classes and seminars. And now you can get optical services and eyeglasses at any of the ten Hudson's Optical Centers. Plus fill your prescription at conveniently located Perry Drugs.

Convenience is another important way HAP makes health care better. Because with easy access, you're more likely to take care of the things you should. When you should. And with HAP's 16 centers, plus four new facilities that will open this year (in Taylor, Warren, Rochester, and Southfield), there's one in your neighborhood. Unlike other health care plans, HAP has 6 emergency rooms open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. If you can't get to a HAP emergency facility, you can use any facility, anywhere. And you don't have to call us first.

So when it comes to your health, don't take chances. Choose the health care plan with the most experience, Health Alliance Plan.

Publicize your pent-up peeve

MARK THIS week down on your calendar. Circle it and save it. Remember it as a significant point in history. This week is the start of a major movement, a movement long overdue.

What type of movement? Call it a movement dedicated to saving lives. Call it a movement dedicated to preserving mental health. Call it — peeve liberation.

Peeves are those little inconveniences which start the blood boiling, those minor irritations which are quick to flare the temper.

These temporary fits of anger are nothing to scoff at — a pent-up peeve can be dangerous. Without proper expression, such a peeve can result in undue stress and frustration. Needless to say, stress can kill you and frustration will drive you nuts.

IN THE INTEREST of relieving stress and frustration, the time has come to air our peeves and attempt to rid our lives of pet annoyances. If nothing else, it feels good to let it out.

At the risk of being a peeve evangelist, I invite you to join the movement. I joined this week and asked those I work with to do likewise. The response has been tremendous. Selected peeve testimonials follow — but first a word about joining the movement.

Joining is simple. Jot down your pet peeve(s) on a sheet of paper and mail it to The Observer, Peeve Liberation, 489 S. Main, Plymouth MI 48170. Include your name and address.

Peeves will be published as space permits. While general peeves are welcome, peeves dealing with things around town are preferred.

Until we hear from you, here's some peeves from the Observer. I'll start things off with a couple of my own.

Nothing irritates me more than the portable Mayflower Meeting House parking sign. Strategically placed, the sign successfully blocks an exiting driver's view of northbound traffic on Main Street.

Another thing which ticks me off is getting "beeped at" while waiting to make a right turn from westbound Ann Arbor Road to northbound Main Street. A right on red is illegal at that intersection, yet some drivers are compelled to blow their horn at those waiting for the light to change.

To the person in charge of the Mayflower parking sign, and to the impatient drivers at Ann Arbor Road and Main: "I'm peeved." — Gary M. Cates.

ON TO PEEVES from my co-workers.

"My pet peeve in Plymouth is over-use of the word 'unique.' Everything which happens in town is described as 'unique,' which would be indeed if it were so.

"An event cannot be unique unless it is the only one of its kind in the world; architecture or whatever is described as being unique.

"There are few things in the universe which are truly unique and so one could not expect to find many 'unique' things in one town."

To those who can't distinguish between unique and unusual, "I'm peeved" — Emory Daniels.

"My pet peeves are old college pals who think that unions are only for truck drivers and auto workers, nouveau Plymouthites who forget that Plymouth's origins are in Old Village than Beacon Hill, and stopping for the same train twice."

To those white-collar workers fearful of collective bargaining, to those Plymouthites wishing they were north of Eight Mile, and to the many rail crossings in Plymouth: "I'm peeved" — Bill Bresler.

My pet peeves are perfectly able people who park in wheelchair-designated parking spots, and residents of 25 years or less who complain about innovations in Plymouth (even the crowds at the ice carving festival) and "want to keep it the way it was."

To those able-bodied motorists, and to the "Johnny-come-latelies": "I'm peeved" — Ellie Graham.

"My pet peeves are auto repair shop workers who have no qualms about ripping people off, and interviewing someone at length on deadline and having them say at the conclusion, 'You're not going to quote me as ya'?"

To those manipulating mechanics, and to those "on-the-record/off-the-record" sources: "I'm peeved" — Diane Gale.

"I have a most peculiar pet peeve. My temperature rises when seated in a restaurant, say the Box Bar, next to someone chomping on potato chips or tortilla chips.

"Fortunately for me, it's impossible for celery lovers or gum snappers to order either item at the Box. I keep reminding myself to be good because if I go to hell, I'll be listening to noisy chawers for eternity."

To those noisy chawers: "I'm peeved" — Marybeth Dillon Ward.

"My peeve is the way some people think Sheldon Road between Warren and Ford is four lanes. It's not big enough for two cars — it's actually a lane and a half.

"Where it narrows down, someone always ends up getting cut off."

To those who feel compelled to pass on the right, "I'm peeved" — Bridget Moran.

Finally, Lucas pays bill

"It's an old-fashioned ethical principle that what you owe, you pay. Bill Lucas had a responsibility to an individual, and he paid it."

— Bill Johnson
Executive's press secretary

THEY TRIED to make Wayne County Executive Bill Lucas look like a hero as he took out a bank loan to pay off a $269,000 legal bill to Dennis Nystrom, now his chief of staff.

The case goes back to the mid-1970s when the county Board of Commissioners, casting about for ways to cut the deficit, settled on then-Sheriff Lucas' road patrol. Under a silly labor contract, there was no way to lay off only part of the 250-man force. The whole unit had to go.

Lucas had excellent advice from then-corporation counsel George Cross that there was no way he could fight it. The board had a tough decision to make and made it.

Ignoring the advice, Lucas (himself a lawyer) and the various Sheriff's Department unions decided to do battle in court, represented by Nystrom. That is how the $269,000 bill was rolled up.

They lost, every inch of the way. IN ONE, almost comical 1981 scene, Circuit Judge Victor Baum refused to block the 250 layoffs.

The board of commissioners read

Tim Richard

Baum's decision as saying Lucas and Nystrom lost. Newspaper reporters read that way. Even TV reporters, notorious for their disdain of the written word, understood that Lucas-Nystrom lost.

Lucas and lawyer Nystrom said no, we won. Judge Baum had to correct them later on.

Finally, visiting Judge Harvey Moes of Hillsdale County conducted the trial and decided every single point against Lucas-Nystrom. They were humiliated.

BECOMING COUNTY executive in 1983, Lucas went to heroic lengths to get the county — the winner — to pay his, the loser's, bill. Even the most cynical watchers of Wayne County government were thunderstruck at the Lucas-Nystrom effort.

Naturally, Lucas-Nystrom lost. And so, in 1985, years after losing a case that should never have been tried, Lucas decided to pay the bill.

Politically, Lucas went to great lengths to take care of lawyer Nystrom. Items:

- Ignoring the home-rule charter approved by voters, Lucas has appointed no one to the charter position of deputy executive. Nystrom, his probable choice, could never be confirmed by the County Commission.

- Thumbing his nose at the charter, Lucas invented the position of chief of staff and installed Nystrom in it. No confirmation by the commission is necessary.

- Seeking to subvert the American checks and balances system in the charter, Lucas sought a charter amendment to strip the commission of authority to approve contracts. He had been paying Nystrom on a contractual basis rather than on a salary basis. Wisely, voters refused to sign petitions to put it on the ballot.

- Again seeking to subvert the charter, Lucas sought a charter amendment that would virtually strip the commission of power to ratify major appointments. Had it succeeded, Lucas could have appointed Nystrom to the vacant deputy slot without commission ratification. Wisely, voters didn't sign enough petitions to put it on the ballot.

- Editorially, this newspaper found Lucas' proposal so lacking in merit that we advised voters against signing the petitions. A hopping-mad Nystrom called up this writer and said some unflattering things.

Now we all know why.

Rep. Bankes on hot seat in abortion controversy

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Lyn Bankes may be the key. The freshman Republican state representative from Livonia will be the target of both pro-choice and right-to-life groups as the state House of Representatives moves toward a vote on cutting off funds for Medicaid abortions.

"Lyn Bankes is under tremendous pressure," Maxine Swanson, a pro-choice Republican leader, told the Michigan Women's Campaign Fund meeting in Southfield Monday. The group is pro-choice.

Swanson, 10TH Congressional District Republican chairwoman and chair of the Grand Valley State College board, agreed with state Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, that Moral Majority and anti-abortion groups are "slick," "professional" and "intense" about the issue.

"At this point in time, we are losing the debate," Pollack added. "We are being out-organized and out-spent. When a few people feel very intensely on an issue..."

The Senate this month passed a bill cutting off funds for Medicaid abortions for welfare recipients by a 25-8 vote. The yes vote would be enough to override an expected veto by Gov. James J. Blanchard. The bill now goes to the House.

LAST YEAR the House was a vote or two short of the 74 needed for a two-thirds override. At least four pro-choice representatives lost their 1984 re-election bids. State right-to-life chairwoman Barbara Listing predicts victory in 1985.

"I don't think it's lost in the House," said Pollack, a first-term senator. "It's tight. Barbara Listing wants you to think it's all over."

Bankes replaced Rep. Jack Kirksey, a Livonia Republican who didn't seek re-election. Kirksey had voted on both sides of the issue over the years.

Republican Gov. William G. Milliken vetoed similar measures 11 times and Democrat Blanchard has vetoed them twice. The House never has been able to override a veto.

Bankes has indicated she would support a veto, at least until some other program is in place to aid low-income women who can't afford to pay for abortions. Bankes was endorsed and aided by the Michigan Women's Campaign Fund, which bills itself as a non-partisan political action committee that helps elect "progressive and feminist women" to local and state office.

WHILE BOTH political parties will support their women candidates, Pollack and Swanson agreed, neither party will actively recruit women to run.

"The Democratic Party will not go out and look for women candidates," said Pollack, an active Democrat since 1965. "Women need to look for women candidates. We need to look at which districts are open."

"We need to get Democratic candidates to run in Democratic districts, not in Republican districts. Waiting to see who files — then it's too late."

Of the 1984 Democratic vice presidential candidate, she said, "Geraldine Ferraro had two handicaps — both men. One was her running mate (Walter Mondale). The other was her house mate (husband John Zaccaro, who is in legal trouble over his real estate transactions)."

Swanson described herself as being from the "progressive, middle-of-the-road, Milliken moderate" wing of the Republican Party. Since Milliken retired as governor, she said, some moderates have been "sitting back, others have been hanging tough."

"Ultra-conservatives have taken over some of my party," added the Grosse Pointe resident. "I suggest you Democratic women watch your gates. Your party is in a state of flux."

MWCF's LITERATURE most often mentions Medicaid abortions as an important issue. House Democrats supported MWCF's position by more than 3-1 over Republicans.

Other favorite issues are union insurance, equal pay for "equivalent" work and the U.S. Equal Rights Amendment (all pro) and the balanced budget amendment (against).

Located in an office building at 8100 E. Jefferson in Detroit, MWCF last year considered 35 candidates and endorsed 22 — four Republicans, 16 Democrats and two non-partisan.

Republicans had a 3-1 won-lost record at the polls; Democrats, a 6-10 record; and nonpartisan, 1-1. Among Republicans it supported were Reps. Bankes of Livonia and Judith Miller of Birmingham. Among Democrats were Rep. Maxine Berman of Southfield and loser Vickie Barnett of Farmington.

It supported Democrat Patricia Boyle for the state Supreme Court but not Republican Dorothy Comstock Riley. Both women were elected.

It gave Republican candidates a total of $12,500 and Democrats $20,950.

State membership co-chairwoman is Janet Cooper of Livonia.

Abortion bill goes to House

"The issue is so familiar that there was no debate." That's how state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, summed up a committee vote to halt state-funded Medicaid abortions.

During the first week of the legislative session, the Senior Citizens and Social Services Committee which he chairs voted 4-0 to report out the bill to the full Senate.

THE FULL Senate last week passed the bill 25-8, a two-thirds margin that will be sufficient to override any gubernatorial veto.

Among area senators, only Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, voted against the funding cut-off.

Supporting it were Geake, whose district includes Redford, Livonia, Plymouth and Canton; Doug Cruce, R-Troy; Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield; and Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford.

The bill goes to the House of Representatives, which has passed such bills in the past but could never provide two-thirds support for a veto.

Geake is more confident this year because Republicans picked up six House seats, and another pro-choice Democrat was defeated in his primary. Last fall, the anti-abortion bloc believed it was about two votes short.

GOV. JAMES J. Blanchard and, before him, Gov. William G. Milliken vetoed such bills a total of 13 times in the last decade.

The state spent $5.2 million on 19,500 Medicaid abortions in 1981-82. That grew to $5.7 million on 18,700 abortions in 1982-83, the last full fiscal year for which figures are available. The total cost was up nearly 10 percent.

Bonnie Kolk, legislative vice president for Right to Life of Michigan, an anti-abortion group, said only 15 states (including Michigan) and the District of Columbia pay for welfare abortions, while 35 states either never have paid for them or have discontinued the policy.

"It's very serious. But there's still hope."

"The Kresge Eye Institute at Harper Hospital has important research and eye surgery departments. There's no better place for your dad to be."

Our story has been dramatized here, but the sorrow of blindness by accident, birth, disease and aging is very real. The work of treatment and cure is a journey of discovery into darkness; the joy of vision itself a miracle of infinite complexity. And hope springs from the research and clinical innovations of a few special facilities like the Kresge Eye Institute at Harper Hospital. Dedicated exclusively to the problems of vision, the Kresge Eye Institute treats thousands of patients each year. Its research programs develop new paths of understanding. Its clinical practice brings new technology to medicine and refines pioneering treatment techniques for others to follow. This important Medical Center resource gives present hope to millions with impaired vision throughout the world and promises better vision for future generations.

Bank indebted

To the editor:

We have some good news from the Plymouth-Canton Clothing Bank. In the fall we were in need of volunteers to help sort, size and assist our customers. The Plymouth and Canton Observers and the Community Crier were most helpful in running articles concerning this need.

As a result we would like to introduce you to Virginia Kocik, Margaret Schroeder, Janet Pierangelino and Louise Stern. They are very caring and hard workers — thank you ladies. I would like to thank Helen Decker who has been with us for six years and has taken charge of the Clothing Bank during my absence and is doing a great job. Helen's husband Dick is the Treasurer for the Clothing Bank, and they both are very caring people. Pat Zaidel and Lee Campbell have been with us three years and continue to help out when their schedules allow it.

As you know we have many fine people in our schools and in the community who donate funds, used clothing and some new items such as socks, underwear, hats and mittens. We would like to list some of those that have helped us out this year:

Sue Vogel from the Olde Goose Barn donated funds collected from an arts and crafts show held at West Middle School; Marilyn Lehmann from the Lehmann College of Beauty donated funds collected from hair cuts and manicures done by students; the Women's Club of the Cherry Hill Methodist Church donated funds and clothing; Allen School — principal Tom Workman and his support staff donated funds; teacher Betty Gibson and her fourth grade students conducted a clothing drive throughout the school and collected new items for our children; Piegel School — Diane Montano and her kindergarten students donated new items along with Mr. King, Erickson School — Linda Bright's kindergarten students, new items; Jacqueline Saunders, new items; Field School — Mrs. Perry's kindergarten students; Tanger School's Mrs. Jacobs; Lucy Morris' kindergarten students; Hulsing School's Linda Stuart, and Judy Zachary of Smith School and her kindergarten students all sent new items of clothing to our children in need.

As always under the leadership of Marjane Walsh the employees of the Board of Education office provided food and Christmas goodies for families in need again this year.

All of us at the clothing bank wish to thank all of you for caring for our children and their moms and dads — we urge you to notify anyone you know on general assistance to come to the Clothing Bank. We have many nice warm clothes for those in need. Plymouth-Canton residents may call 451-6678 on Tuesdays or Thursdays between 9:30 a.m. and noon.

IT HAS BEEN eight years since this area was gripped by the fear of child abductions and murders. It has been a long time since the bodies of four 11-14-year-olds were found in Troy, Southfield, Franklin Village and Livonia during the winters of 1976 and 1977.

Police officials believed one person — dubbed the "Oakland County child killer" — was responsible for the deaths.

At one time 160 police officers from Wayne, Oakland and State Police forces worked on the case.

"TODAY the investigation is being handled by one state trooper who reviews leads and maintains contact with police agencies," Oakland County deputy Steve Powell said last week. Powell was meeting with a group of suburban parents.

What happened to the child killer, the parents asked.

"What's your theory?" Powell answered. "It's as good as mine. Everyone has a theory. All we know for sure is that the killings stopped. They may never be solved."

Powell said investigators from Seattle are in this area studying the work of the 160-person task force. Seattle has recently had several child killings. Although it never solved the murders, the Oakland County task force has become a national model for police regional cooperation in murder investigations.

POWELL MET with the parents to discuss techniques for preventing child abductions. In the years since the Oakland County killings, some of the interest in child murders has subsided, he said.

He started by dismissing the advice usually given to children: "Don't talk to strangers."

"In 80 percent of the cases, a child is taken by someone he knows," Powell said. "It's the neighbor or a family friend most of the time. The case of a stranger who drives into a neighborhood and picks a child off the street doesn't happen often."

Typically, the abductor is known by the child. It is often someone trusted — a friendly neighbor, a person who swings the child in the park.

According to Powell, better advice would be: "Don't let strangers touch you." If this happens a child should be told to run away as quickly as possible.

HE GAVE SOME specific tips

- Buy distinctive clothing for your child. Bright or reflective clothing helps to identify your child in a crowd. It's fairly easy to find a child wearing a lime green jacket with a tiger on the back.

"I dropped Blue Cross!"

Georgia Estep
switched from Blue Cross to HealthPlus of Michigan for her health care.

Over the past 5 years, thousands of GM employees have dropped their Blue Cross coverage and have joined HealthPlus of Michigan.

And now, a lot of GM retirees are switching, too. Why?

Why did Georgia Estep join HealthPlus of Michigan?

It's simple. To get better health care... and save money too.

Visits to your plan physician are free!

When you join HealthPlus of Michigan you get your own personal doctor that you choose. And visits to this doctor are free, starting April 1. Routine check-ups and visits to specialists — when referred by your plan physician — are free ($10 co-payment for mental health services). There are no claim forms to file... no records for you to keep.

Prescriptions are free

at hundreds of participating pharmacies, when prescribed by your plan physician. And, still, you file no claim forms.

For hospital stays,

you get unlimited days for necessary medical and surgical care.

For skilled nursing home care,

you get 730 days free with HealthPlus of Michigan.

For emergency care.

For emergency care, you're covered anywhere in the world. The system works like VISA® or Mastercard®; the doctor or hospital can call our 24-hour number on the back of your card to verify your coverage is current.

And with HealthPlus of Michigan, you're covered...

for lab work, home care, treatment of glaucoma, wheel chairs, and more. And remember... you don't have to file any claim forms.

How can HealthPlus of Michigan offer all this?

Because we're an HMO. HealthPlus of Michigan saves money by working to keep you healthy, and by coordinating your health care through your own personal plan physician.

Is HealthPlus of Michigan right for you? Don't you think you should at least check into it?

How can you join?

It's easy! Just mark the box for HealthPlus of Michigan on your GM Informed Choice Plan election form. The enrollment period ends February 5. Your HealthPlus of Michigan coverage will become effective on April 1. Until then you'll continue to receive your full Medicare and Blue Cross coverage.

For more information about HealthPlus of Michigan, ask your doctor, or call 353-7350, or come see us.

you'll feel better.

INAUGURATION DAY in Washington, D.C. did not come off as planned for Diane Williams, aide in the Washington office of U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell. As it turned out, it was more than she had hoped for — a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

As a little background information, for those of you who don't know Diane, she is a former Canton Township resident. She was employed by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce before her Washington assignment.

Diane had been appointed to represent Michigan Gov. James Blanchard in the inaugural parade. When the parade was canceled because of extremely cold weather, the inaugural committee had to do some fast shuffling of plans.

"Instead of the parade, they arranged a special White House reception, where I met President Reagan. Mrs. Reagan was wearing the same hat and dress that she wore at the inaugural ceremony. If I'd been in the parade, I never would have met the president." Diane still was bubbling with excitement when I talked to her Wednesday morning. She said it was the first time she had met Reagan, and to meet him on the day of his second inauguration made it an unforgettable experience.

THE DAY STARTED

early for Carl's staff, with a reception in his office. "We had orange juice, coffee and doughnuts for the people who came in to pick up tickets," she said.

She had been provided with a car and military escort, so congested traffic was no problem for Diane.

"The driver was a Marine corporal and my escort was Capt. Scott Key of the United States Air Force. They were in radio contact with the inaugural committee and could be reached at any time through the committee."

She said the majority of the people traveled by bus from their hotels to the inaugural balls.

"Ours was in the Washington Sheraton. They were all people from midwest states. That is how they are divided for the balls, one for the New England states, another for the southwest, and so on, according to area. There were 5,000 to 6,000 at each ball," Diane explained.

The ballroom at the Sheraton was huge. "It was three stories high and almost entirely dance floor. It was carpeted around the perimeter, but there was no place to sit down. Everyone stood all night, from 8 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. There were a lot of women with their fancy shoes off in the women's lounge — resting their feet."

Diane said there were a few boxes, each seating about eight people. A box at floor level rented for $3,500 and a balcony box for $2,500. A Guy Lombardo Band and a Count Basie Band took turns providing music for dancing. And did I mention the fact that her Air Force captain was her escort to the ball?

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady made the rounds of all the balls. The Midwesterners were expecting them to arrive around 11 p.m.

"They came early, about 10:15," Diane said. "The president talked for about five minutes, then they danced on the stage. Vice President and Mrs. Bush had been there earlier. They came between 9 and 9:15."

She said, "It was a wonderful experience, the beautiful dresses, the pomp and circumstance, a once-in-a-lifetime experience."

Washington is wonderful, but she likes to get back "home." She said misses the closeness of the community and friends. "I always go over and visit the people I worked with at the schools, when I'm there. You meet people here, but you miss the closeness."

BARB LOEFFLER left a host of good friends behind when she, husband Art and family moved to the Upper Peninsula. Barb was one of the powers in the Plymouth-Canton chapter of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

Right now, Barb could use the moral support and prayers of her old friends as she returns from a stay in the hospital. A card or a note mailed to Barb Loeffler, P.O. Box 38, Germfask, Mich. 49836, would help her through a most difficult time.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Who done it? He did! Sgt. Towers (Bob Regan, upper left) and Clive Winton (Dave Ide) watch as the clergymen, the Rev. Humphrey (Donald Starr, lower left), Bishop Dudley of Lax (Bob Pici) and Vicar Toop, accuse each other.

Plymouth Theatre Guild opens 'See How They Run'

The comedy "See How They Run" is entertainment for the whole family. There's never a dull moment as the story unfolds with its swift action and involved situations.

The Plymouth Theatre Guild's production of Philip King's smash London hit opens at 8 p.m. Friday in Central Middle School auditorium. Show dates are Jan. 25, 26 and Feb. 1 and 2. Tickets are available at the door — $4 for adults and $3 for under 18-year-olds and senior citizens. For information about group rates, call 455-2632.

Bob Weibel is directing "See How They Run." He has directed "Romantic Comedy" and "Death Trap" for PTG. When he's not directing, he's a professional writer.

A fascinating cast of characters dashes in and out the doors of an English vicarage as the plot and the excitement build.

HELEN DeJulio stars as Penelope Toop, the vicar's wife, but also a former actress. DeJulio, a teacher at Franklin Junior High School, is making her third appearance with the guild.

David Ide plays the male lead, Corporal Clive Winton. An American actor, now stationed with the Air Force in England, Winton starts all the confusion. Ide has been with PTG for a number of years and will be remembered for his roles in "Forty Carats" and "Bus Stop."

Chuck Miller portrays Lionel Troop, the vicar. Miller, a Ford Motor Co. employee, is a member of Plymouth Theater Guild's Board of Governors.

MAGGIE SERGUS returns to the local stage as Ida, the half-witted Cockney maid who has seen too many movies. Audiences enjoyed Sergus' performance in "Bus Stop."

Patricia Bray-LaFramboise has given up her director's chair for the role of the prudish Miss Skilton, who touches alcohol for the first time in her life. Bray has been with the guild for 10 years and has served as its president.

BOB PICI plays the sedate Bishop of Lax, who also is Penelope's uncle. The good bishop is aghast at all the goings-on and the trumped-up stories he hears. This is Pici's first role with PTG. His voice may be familiar from his stints as news director for two Detroit radio stations.

Gerald L'Heureux is the escaped Russian prisoner, disguised as a clergyman.

Donald Starr is the Rev. Humphrey and Bob Regan is Sgt. Towers. All three return to the Plymouth stage to add further confusion to the plot.

"See How They Run" is produced by Joe Marsh. For ticket information, call Robin Galick, 262-2875, or Sondra Farmer, 455-2632.

Central Middle School is on Church Street at Main, Plymouth.

Clive and Penelope (Helen DeJulio) are interrupted during a spat by the Bishop of Lax, Rev. Humphrey and Rev. Toop.

Bob Weibel is directing his third Plymouth Theatre Guild production.

Girl Scout cookie time

Plymouth and Canton Girl Scouts, from Brownies to Seniors, will begin taking orders tomorrow for cookies.

They have all the old favorites — peanut butter patties, thin mints, shortbread, peanut chocolate chip, caramel delights and peanut butter sandwiches — plus a new one. Scout leaders, Scouts and all those who have had an opportunity to taste the brand new lemon pastry cream say it's a winner. They all give the delicate pastry cakes, filled with lemon cream and frosted with a pastry glaze, rave reviews.

Nearly 9,000 Scouts in the Huron Valley Council will take orders from Jan. 25 through Feb. 15. Deliveries will be made March 4-16. The price remains $1.75 per box; 98 cents of this goes to Girl Scouting. The council has set a goal of 723,000 packages to be sold in 1985.

THIS MAJOR fund-raising event will earn $700,000 in the council area if the Scouts meet their goal.

Cookies vary in different parts of the country. The local cookies are FFV-Interbake cookies, produced in Battle Creek, Michigan and Richmond, Virginia. Last year's reports from other parts of the country of foreign substances in Girl Scout cookies resulted in new packaging procedures. There were no complaints about the FFV-Interbake 1984 cookies.

The cookies are made with pure vegetable oil and free from all artificial preservatives. They all meet Kosher requirements.

Cookie chairwomen for Plymouth-Canton area are Sandra Reid, Pat Mackiewicz, Cindy Bastion, Betty Shupe and Ruby Monk. They train and work with the individual troop cookie chairwoman. Jeanne Wood, council chairwoman, is a Canton Township resident. She has the all-over responsibility for Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, which includes Washenaw, Livingston, western Wayne and northern Monroe counties.

Lisa Jackson, Junior Troop 639, shows there are Girl Scout cookies to suit every taste.

It's June in January at bridal fashion show

You'll never guess what we are going to cover this week!

Right now, in the midst of this sub-zero weather, I am about to lift you right out of this misery and take you to orange blossoms and a summer breeze, as we prepare for the spring and summer wedding.

Perhaps you remember last year when I told you about a bridal fashion show in our community, sponsored by many of our local shops. Well, they are doing it again and it promises to be just as lovely, filled with beautiful gowns from Beginnings Bridal Shop.

For those of you who may not have heard about last year's show, and to bring you up to date, let me give you a little background on the afternoon's events. Actually, what will be provided is an opportunity to learn everything you always wanted to know about a wedding, but were too confused to ask.

Merchants from our community will gather in one place at one time with samples or information about their goods and services which pertain to weddings.

You'll sample hors d'oeuvres by Rose Catering, a beautiful cake by Paris Bakery, and relax and enjoy a wonderful fashion show. O and D Bush Jewelers, a well-respected jeweler from this area, will have lovely selections and answers to all your questions about that everlasting keepsake.

But that's not all. The Engraving Connection once again will be on hand, as well as Able Rentals, which handles everything — including tables and chairs, runners and table coverings, even beautiful gazebos. Kathy's Kraft Korner has joined our lineup this year, and once again we'll enjoy the selection of beautiful photographs from Rawlinson Photography. We'll even have University Limco on hand to answer your questions on the only way to travel on that special day, or any other day you may have in mind.

"AB," YOU SAY, "how about the basic and troublesome pattern choices every couple must face?"

Well, they've got you covered. Royal Prestige Products will have helpful suggestions for stoneware, china, even flatware. To tend to the very special needs of a bride and her attendants, Mayflower and Co. Salon, and Great Shape Salon and Spa will be ready and willing to advise you in any way possible.

Naturally, there will be loads of beautiful gowns for the well-dressed, up-to-date bride, party, male and female. None other than Valente's returns this year to bring us the very latest. There will be gowns for brides, all her attendants and the mothers of the bride and bridegroom.

Perhaps you'd just like to get a sneak preview of some prom gowns, or something for a very special evening. This is an excellent opportunity to get a close look at a variety of styles, as well as the latest in colors for spring and summer.

A very important thing to remember about this particular Bridal Fashion Show is that it is sponsored by local merchants, presented here in our community. And many of these people are residents of our community. It offers an excellent opportunity to meet the people and perhaps sample their product or service.

Again, the price is very modest for an afternoon of relaxed entertainment in an elegant fashion, at a convenient location, the Plymouth Cultural Center. Admission remains only $2, if purchased in advance from any of the merchants involved, or $3 at the door at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 27.

Canton chatter

CANTON PARKS and Recreation Department wants everyone to know that things are not only still happening, but getting better all the time.

Let me give you a couple of the biggies that are very close to happening. For example, a teen ski trip.

Now listen to this carefully. It sounds fantastic. Friday, Feb. 8, at the Alpine Valley Ski Area, this is for teens with or without your own equipment. You'll leave Canton Township Administration Building at 5 p.m. and return approximately 12:15 a.m. The cost is only $15 if you do have your own equipment and $8 if you have your own equipment.

This is a great opportunity for anyone who loves to ski, but never can get a ride, or use of a car to get to the slopes. All transportation and supervision is provided by the staff of the recreation department.

Parents, were you paying attention? Think of it — a chance to send that pesky teen-ager on a dream outing. They can ski with a lot of other kids their own age, and you don't have to drive or supervise. Now you must admit there aren't too many activities these days where you can stay toasty warm while your teens have a wonderful time and are supervised at the same time. All this and for a very reasonable fee!

Remember too, they do not need to have all their own equipment. Time is running short. You can register in person or by mail at Township Hall and all fees must be paid at time of registration.

If you have any questions just give them a call at 397-1000, ask for the recreation department but hurry and call now.

That should keep you busy for a while. Call me and tell me how and what you're doing! If you're having a rough time, or you know someone who is, please give me a call. We'll see if we can help.

Have a great week and call Parks and Rec. to see what they have going. They have some great plans for spring and summer, so keep your eyes open, things are about to happen.

VERY IMPORTANT — Don't forget this Sunday, Jan. 27 noon-5 p.m. it's Skate to Beat Diabetes at the Skatin' Station. Please give them a call, 459-6400, or the American Diabetes Association, 523-9480, for more information. A chance OF a lifetime for you, a chance FOR a lifetime for those who need your help.

THE TEENS aren't the only ones with something to look forward to. We have a Valentine Party for the kids 3-12 years old, 10-11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 9.

As always, the party will be packed with cartoons, a magic show, games, prizes and refreshments. These parties always are fun for the younger set. It gives them a chance to get to know Cantonites from other schools in a fun, relaxed setting.

The party is FREE, which helps make it a fun relaxed setting for the parents so everyone is assured of a good time. They do ask that you register the children so they have plenty for everyone! Again simply call 397-1000 and they'll be happy to sign you up.

NOW IF YOU'RE just getting into the swing of winter and are ready to try out your hand at a little cross-country skiing (or maybe I should say feet), we have the perfect place for you. We still have two cross-country clinics Wednesday, Jan. 30 and Thursday, Feb. 14, both from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The fee is $6 per person for each clinic. This will include skis, boots, poles and instructions. The fee is only $4 if you have your own equipment. The clinics are at Maybury State Park, Eight Mile west of Beck, and you may need a State Park sticker for entry. However, you may purchase the daily pass for $2. There will be plenty of time to ski the trails after the clinics and lessons are by a certified instructor.

They do request you register at least two days before each clinic, so call now.

That should keep you busy for a while. Call me and tell me how and what you're doing! If you're having a rough time, or you know someone who is,

please give me a call. We'll see if we can help.

Have a great week and call Parks and Rec. to see what they have going. They have some great plans for spring and summer, so keep your eyes open, things are about to happen.

VERY IMPORTANT — Don't forget this Sunday, Jan. 27 noon-5 p.m. it's Skate to Beat Diabetes at the Skatin' Station. Please give them a call, 459-6400, or the American Diabetes Association, 523-9480, for more information. A chance OF a lifetime for you, a chance FOR a lifetime for those who need your help.

Director's here!

1985 follies now in rehearsal

Bob Berkson, professional director, has arrived from New York. It was a long wait at Metropolitan Airport, but his plane finally landed.

Janet Campbell, chairwoman of the Plymouth Community Arts Council's 1985 musical revue, and her co-chairs, Carol Davis and John Claeys, were the official welcoming committee. Their long wait at Metro was more comfortable than that of the director, whose flight was delayed, then canceled.

The foursome's arrival in Plymouth was cheered by a second line of commuters who had been awaiting their coming (and dinner) in the Crow's Nest pub at the Mayflower.

Faye Leggett, costume chair, Sharon Bolobradich, talent chair, and her co-chairs, Jan Gattion, Jim Shannon and Barb Zarow, had been holding down the fort in the pub. They were ready for dinner and their first conference with Berkson.

THE ODD-YEAR follies — the first was in 1979 — is strictly a home-grown production when it comes to cast and behind-the-scenes crew. The only professional is the director from Jerome

H. Cargill Productions in New York. He supplies the glamorous costumes, expertise and stamina to bring out the talents of the locals. In three weeks he will turn out a show that will be the talk of the town.

Bob Berkson, 35, is the youngest of the directors of arts council shows. He has directed and choreographed musicals in Europe, North Africa, England, South America and all over the United States.

He directed before he studied acting and choreographed before he studied dancing. His background is extensive for his years. He directed his first show, a group of kids at a library in Cleveland, when he was 7. He's been at it ever since, satisfying his ambition to learn total production. He's been involved in theater for 18 years — through high school and college, community theatre, summer stock with professionals.

He's worked with Leonard Bernstein, acted in, produced and directed "Hair," and "West Side Story" in New York and done international tours in Israel, Vienna, Madrid, Algiers, Dominican Republic and London.

Mr. and Mrs. William Frazee of Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda Carole, to James Anthony Ankofski of Curtis, Livonia. The bride-elect graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1979 and is manager of the Vickers Rack of Plymouth. Her fiancé graduated from Livonia Stevenson High School in 1979 and earned an associate degree in applied science with a certificate in culinary arts. He also is employed as manager of Bakers Rack of Plymouth.

INAUGURATION DAY in Washington, D.C. did not come off as planned for Diane Williams, aide in the Washington office of U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell. As it turned out, it was more than she had hoped for — a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

As a little background information, for those of you who don't know Diane, she is a former Canton Township resident. She was employed by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce before her Washington assignment.

Diane had been appointed to represent Michigan Gov. James Blanchard in the inaugural parade. When the parade was canceled because of extremely cold weather, the inaugural committee had to do some fast shuffling of plans.

"Instead of the parade, they arranged a special White House reception, where I met President Reagan. Mrs. Reagan was wearing the same hat and dress that she wore at the inaugural ceremony. If I'd been in the parade, I never would have met the president," Diane still was bubbling with excitement when I talked to her Wednesday morning. She said it was the first time she had met Reagan, and to meet him on the day of his second inauguration made it an unforgettable experience.

THE DAY STARTED early for Carl's staff, with a reception in his office. "We had orange juice, coffee and doughnuts for the people who came in to pick up tickets," she said. She had been provided with a car and military escort, so congested traffic was no problem for Diane.

"The driver was a Marine corporal and my escort was Capt. Scott Key of the United States Air Force. They were in radio contact with the inaugural committee and could be reached at any time through the committee."

She said the majority of the people traveled by bus from their hotels to the inaugural balls. "Ours was in the Washington Sheraton. They were all people from midwest states. That is how they are divided for the balls, one for the New England states, another for the southwest, and so on, according to area. There were 5,000 to 6,000 at each ball," Diane explained.

The ballroom at the Sheraton was huge. "It was three stories high and almost entirely dance floor. It was carpeted around the perimeter, but there was no place to sit down. Everyone stood all night, from 8 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. There were a lot of women with their fancy shoes off in the women's lounge — resting their feet."

Diane said there were a few boxes, each seating about eight people. A box at floor level rented for $3,500 and a balcony box for $2,500. A Guy Lombardo Band and a Count Basie Band took turns providing music for dancing. And Diane mentioned the fact that her Air Force captain was her escort to the ball!

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady made the rounds of all the balls. The Midwesterners were expecting them to arrive around 11 p.m.

They came early, about 10:15. "Diane said. "The president talked for about five minutes, then they danced on the stage. Vice President and Mrs. Bush had been there earlier. They came between 9 and 9:15."

She said, "It was a wonderful experience, the beautiful dresses, the pomp and circumstance, a once-in-a-lifetime experience."

Washington is wonderful, but she likes to get back "home." She said misses the closeness of the community and friends. "I always go over and visit the people I worked with at the schools, when I'm there. You meet people here, but you miss the closeness."

BARB LOEFFLER left a host of good friends behind when she, husband Art and family moved to the Upper Peninsula. Barb was one of the powers in the Plymouth-Canton chapter of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

Right now, Barb could use the moral support and prayers of her old friends as she returns from a stay in the hospital. A card or a note mailed to Barb Loeffler, P.O. Box 38, Germfask, Mich. 49836, would help her through a most difficult time.

Key word is ANTICIPATION for better parenting

By Julie Nelson
special writer

PLANNING AHEAD and establishing rules are handy tools for effective parenting in the '80s, according to a leading Christian family counselor in an address last week as part of Ward Church of Livonia's observance of Family Week.

"No matter what stage you are at in your parenting, whether your children are toddlers or teen-agers, be sure to prepare for the next stage so that it doesn't hit you like a bolt of lightning," said Dr. H. Norman Wright.

The author of 43 books, Wright is an executive director of the Christian Marriage Enrichment and Family Counseling Center in Santa Ana, Calif.

In addition to his address last Thursday night, Wright also led an all-day seminar Friday morning attended by over 190 area church pasters and/or counselors representing 30 denominations. Focus of the meeting was premarital counseling.

Wright cited the need for families to establish rules together and for couples to determine the values they want to instill before a crisis occurs.

UNITY IN PARENTAL GUIDANCE and discipline is critical, he added.

"One of the major problems I find in counseling is that one person is the disciplinarian and one person is not. And the children know how to divide between the two," Wright noted.

"I stress the importance of the parents sitting down alone, without the presence of children, and asking each other 'What are the goals we have for our children and how are we going to see that those goals are realized?'"

During counseling sessions — and with his own family — Wright literally complies lists of rules dealing with such items as spending money, work

Linda Clark and Ed King (right), both of St. Andrew Episcopal Church, Livonia, were participants in the seminar conducted by Dr. Norman Wright.

CHURCH MEMBERS are expected

We live in a time when this is a critical

Religion leads inward, outward

Rev. David Strong

What is the function of religious membership? Typically, membership in a church or synagogue serves to further the growth and spread in its beliefs and its impact upon its own members. Today religious membership must also mean offering peace, hope and justice to those beyond its own membership. No religious group can legitimately serve only its own needs.

I was in a meeting the other night when a discussion of church membership took place. Strong feelings were expressed by those in the discussion. There were wide differences of opinion on the subject. I am sure that this will not be the last time we consider the topic.

Someone suggested that we look up the definition of church membership. I expected our rule book to give us a narrow view. Unexpectedly, the definition provides a broad and challenging perspective.

Religion must call us to the needs, problems and spirituality of the whole world. Religion in its deepest sense is not a private affair. I have no sympathy with the religious groups who focus entirely upon themselves. People would support their own religious needs and the institution in which they worship. They fail if they ignore the rest of the world.

The definition of church membership which I like holds a tension between the personal and the universal. Elizabeth O'Connor calls this kind of religion "the inward and the outward journey." In this definition, a person applies his or her faith both to inward spiritual development and to outward service to the world.

We live in a world in which the boundaries between people are shrinking. Likewise the spirituality of religion must expand. Religion must lead us to establish peace, justice and hope in a world of desperate needs.

Making rules: It's a dirty job people love

RULES, RULES, RULES. Everything within the rules. Confining, restraining, constraining, refining rules. Who makes the rules? People — and we all know how imperfect they are. Which makes rule-making the most secure of professions, for there will always be a need for people to rule on rules.

Sports embodies this addiction of ours, for nowhere are rules more strictly enforced than in the games we play.

I've got nothing against rules, as long as they pertain to everyone. For instance, two basketball teams playing under different sets of rules would be silly, right?

Or, say, one team using a different size basketball than another. Or even teams in one part of the nation interpreting the same rules differently than teams in another part.

RIDICULOUS, RIGHT? Of course it is. That's why it should come as no big surprise that each of the above has occurred.

The first everyone remembers quite well. The reminders of it encircle collegiate basketball courts everywhere. Remember? The 3-point field-goal lines, I mean. What a job the NCAA did with that.

Actually, what the NCAA said was that it would not allow 3-point field goals — or shot clocks — to be used in the season-ending tournament, which just added to the confusion.

Some conferences adopted 3-point lines, some didn't. Some had shot clocks, some didn't. And to add interest, some 3-point lines were 22-feet away while others were as little as 19. Shot clocks ranged from 30 to 45 seconds.

The experiment didn't last too long, thank goodness. How could it? It doesn't make sense for teams to play under a dozen different sets of rules.

BUT TIME marches on . . .

And so do the basketball rulesmakers. Next, they figure, let's tinker with women's basketball. We'll improve the game, make it more like the mens game by shrinking the ball. That will make it easier to handle, there will be fewer turnovers, and the game will be more exciting. A smaller, lighter ball will be easier to dunk, too.

Imagine that! A girl dunking the ball! Well, as it turned out, this change in rules has helped in unexpected ways and done little where it was expected to help.

"It's definitely made a difference," said Schoolcraft College women's coach Ed Kavanaugh. "I love it, they love it."

WHERE IT has helped is not in ballhandling or dunks — a girl actually did dunk a ball this season, the first time ever in a game situation. According to Kavanaugh, it has helped "shooting range, but not necessarily accuracy. And it helps distance passing. They can get out on the break better."

Sue Kruszewski, Oakland University's coach, has noticed no significant changes. "They like playing with it," she said, "but it hasn't really helped our shooting percentage much."

The rub here isn't so much the changing of the size of the ball, but its limitations. High school girls still use the bigger balls, which seems a little like a weightlifter starting with heavy weights and working down. Wouldn't it make better sense for younger players to start with the small ball and work up to the larger one — not vice versa?

Kavanaugh is hopeful the smaller ball will be adopted for high school play nationally, which would be helpful in this state since it would take until the turn of the century for the MHSAA to make a ruling on such a "controversial" topic.

NOW, SO NO stones be left unturned, the basketball rulesmakers have moved into the NJCAA's arena for some fine-tuning.

If anyone at Schoolcraft wanted to protest the Ocelots loss of three games earlier this month, they could make a case of it. After all, the team was playing without its two top scorers, who were sidelined by a misinterpretation of the rules.

Here's what happened: The NJCAA passed a new rule stating all players must pass at least 12 credit hours in the previous semester to compete. The previous rule said athletes must pass 10 hours.

James Orr and Harold Martin each passed only 10 hours, so, under the new NJCAA standard, they were ineligible. Schoolcraft played three games with just seven players and lost all three.

Then the NJCAA discovered some regions of the country were enforcing the rule differently than others. A phrase included in the new ruling said it cannot create a hardship on players enrolled in school. Some regions translated that as players already enrolled can follow the 10-hour standard.

SCHOOLCRAFT'S REGION followed the new ruling to the letter, and it cost them. Late last week, the NJCAA issued a clarification, stating that students enrolled in school before the new rule's adoption can follow the old rule.

Orr and Martin returned to action last Saturday, much to the delight of coach Rocky Watkins. Still, it would have been much nicer to have them when the Ocelots were losing those three straight.

"They unnecessarily sat out three games," said Watkins. "It's the NJCAA's fault. They made a clarification in the middle of the season."

"It was very untypical of them. They're usually very stern. There was pressure applied by other regions, but I was surprised they gave in."

Watkins isn't complaining, because he got his two stars back.

Besides, should he start complaining, who knows? They may change the rules again, make them play with a Nerf ball and throw in a 30-foot free-throw line, just for good measure.

God knows, they're work isn't done yet.

Nothing is for certain in Chiefs, Rocks duel

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

ABOUT THE only thing certain in tonight's long-awaited Plymouth-Salem-Canton wrestling match is that it will be intensely competitive, spiced with bits of drama, personal triumph, the bitter agony of failure and excitement.

Other than that, there aren't many sure bets. "Salem is definitely favored," said first-year Canton coach Rick Menoch. "We've competed against each other in three tournaments so far this year — John Glenn, Salem and at North Farmington — and they have placed ahead of us in all three. And, they've beaten the same teams in the league we have but by wider margins."

OK, Menoch has a good point. But, the fact remains, both teams are unbeaten in league play, both 6-0. And in individual matches between Salem and Canton wrestlers, the scores have been close.

"Canton is a very well-balanced team," said Salem coach Ron Krueger. "I foresee a lot of trouble with this meet. They are not that bad."

Indeed, Canton is ranked No. 2 in Observerland, behind only Salem.

BESIDES, KRUEGER isn't one who puts a lot of stock in favorites and underdogs. Last year, most people said his team was the underdog against Canton. And, although the Chiefs did win last year's encounter, Krueger still believes his team was better.

"Last year, everyone said we were the underdogs. But I didn't think so. I felt we were the better team. But, we didn't do some of the things we should have done and we lost."

But, he points out, his team came back to wrestle the league meet title, and thus the league championship,

Here are the probable starting lineups for Thursday's Plymouth-Canton-Plymouth Salem wrestling meet. The meet will begin at 7:30 in the Salem gym.

SALEM (6-0)
88 pounds	Dennis Cameron (17-6)
105	Tim Ott (10-10)
112	Nam Kim (2-2)
119	Kevin Freeman (20-8)
125	Dave Dawson (24-9)
132	Kyle Rantz (7-7)
138	Bill Morley (17-7)
145	Andy Ward (18-6)
155	Eric Felling (18-8)
167	Greg Woodchuk (unknown)
185	James Woodchuk (18-6)
198	Brian Johnson (14-12)
Hyatt	Marc Cogan (10-6)
Coach	Ron Krueger
CANTON (5-0, 7-2)
88 pounds	Tom Brenner (5-10)
105	Jimmie Baker (0-1)
112	Dave Dunford (17-7)
119	Tim Blevy (18-6)
125	Frank Drabek (13-13-2)
132	Jay Polard (14-12)
138	Jim Parks (12-4)
145	Scott Tasker (25-7)
155	Doug Eldridge (7-10)
167	Keith Koczek (2-2)
185	Mike Graczyk (18-10)
198	Ernie Krumm (13-12)
Hyatt	Jim Nelson (18-6-1)
Coach	Rick Menoch

So don't tell Krueger his team is favored to win this year — he won't buy it.

"Somehow, the Canton kids always seem to get sky-high against us," he said. "I don't know if the Canton meet is as important to our kids as it is to them. But, I'll tell you this, it better get important to our kids or they will suffer the same results as last year."

Said Menoch: "In wrestling, nothing is etched in stone. It could be a blow out one way or the other. But, I really expect it to be a very close meet. It'll be a really nice meet for the fans to come out and watch."

Chuck Olson has an endearing way of cutting to the core of issues involving his swim team.

The long-time Plymouth Salem coach will take his team into action tonight against the area's best, Livonia Stevenson. On the line is Salem's reign of dominance in the Western Lakes Activities Association. The Rocks have never lost a dual swim meet in the WLAA — nor a league championship.

Already, Stevenson has ended one of the Rocks' streaks, besting them in the WLAA relays earlier this season.

And, quite honestly, Olson expects the Spartans will stop the Rocks' dual meet streak tonight.

"Hey, times don't lie and Livonia Stevenson has the times," Olson said. "The question is, how will they perform under pressure?"

"I think it's obvious to everyone that we are a bit behind them right now. They are quicker in the 50 and 100 freestyle, the butterfly, backstroke and breaststroke. It's going to be an extremely difficult meet for us. We have to hope for a few drops (in times) against them and hope we can feel good about our swims afterwards."

SO, WHAT do we do? Just write Salem off in tonight's meet? Concede victory to Stevenson?

Only a fool would do that. And Livonia Stevenson didn't become one of the state's top swim programs by being foolish.

"I think Chuck (Olson) can beat you anytime you're not prepared," said Stevenson coach Doug Buckler. "We're going in with the attitude to swim our very best."

"Chuck has a good good team and there's nobody I respect more."

No, the Spartans remember all too well what happened last year. They were heavy favorites to dethrone Salem last year, but the Rocks prevailed. The Spartans aren't likely to take Salem lightly.

"I think we can give them a good meet, don't get me wrong," Olson said. "We've been on top the last couple years and we don't want to go down without a good showing. It's possible we could pull this one out, but it would be a longshot."

AS ALWAYS, tonight's meet will feature some stirring races. Salem's Greg Wolff will have it out with Stevenson's vaunted distance duo of Jeff Albert and Lewis Ministrelli in both the 200 and 500 freestyle events.

In the 200, Ministrelli's best time to date is 1:52.6 and Wolff's is 1:54.1. In the 500, Wolff has gone 5:04.8 to Albert's 5:15.0. If Wolff can pull a double win here, the Rocks could be in a position to challenge.

The backstroke will feature a competitive field with the Harwood brothers from Salem (Don and Mike) against Stevenson's talented freshman Joe Saunders. Saunders' best to date was a 5:59.5, while Don Harwood has gone 1:01.9 and Mike Harwood 1:03.7.

Olson said the diving could also be pivotal. Salem's Bob Longridge (215.45 best) will battle Stevenson's Ken Milligan (202.7).

"This will be tight," Olson said. "Either team could go 1-2-3 here."

LAST YEAR, Salem seemed to have the edge in individual talent with the likes of Erik Kleinsmith, Bob Bowling and Scott Anderson. But those three have graduated, leaving the individual talent edge to Stevenson. Steve Taormina, Saunders and Kevin Everhart are the best of the lot this year.

"We have the frontliners, but they have the second and third guys, and that's what we've got to be worried about," said Buckler. "It's going to be a good meet. Times can be deceiving. We're a young team — 80 percent freshman and sophomores. I just hope we don't crack under pressure."

Stevenson enters with a 4-1-1 record, while Salem is 5-1. The winner will claim the Western Lakes Lakes Division title and carry a heavy advantage into the WLAA meet Friday, March 1.

But, more important than that, a Stevenson win will shatter Salem's reign of dominance over the WLAA.

The meet will begin at 7 tonight in the Salem pool.

No safe bets in Chiefs-Rocks mat war

THE WAY the two coaches see it, the meet could be decided in any one of seven weight classes.

At 119, Salem's Kevin Freeman has beaten Canton's Tim Birely twice each other.

The match at 145 could be the best of the meet. Salem's Andy Ward (16-6) and Scott Tasker (25-7) will renew their rivalry. Tasker pinned Ward in their first meeting this year, though Ward was slowed by injuries. Ward has come

The same holds for the 138 bout. Canton's Jim Parks (12-4) and Salem's Bill Morely (17-7) have never wrestled each other.

The match at 145 could be the best of the meet. Salem's Andy Ward (16-6) and Scott Tasker (25-7) will renew their rivalry. Tasker pinned Ward in their first meeting this year, though Ward was slowed by injuries. Ward has come back to win the next two on close decisions, 2-1 in overtime and 6-5.

The 167 weight is a complete toss up. In fact, the two coaches aren't sure who'll be wrestling Salem has been going with Greg Wooschuk most of the year, while Canton will either use Keith Keates or Todd Cherry.

At 185, Salem's Jamie Wooschuk has enjoyed two close victories against Mike Graczyk, but Graczyk has been one of the more improved Canton performers in recent outings.

THE ERNIE Krumm-Brian Johnson rivalry at 198 needs little refueling after last year. Krumm was the hero in Canton's victory a year ago. Behind in points to Jamie Wooschuk, Krumm stuck him at 4:28 — a shocking victory for Canton and a devastating loss for Salem. This year, the heavier Krumm (13-12) and Johnson (14-12) are 1-1.

Revenge could also be a factor at heavyweight. Canton's Jim Malson, considered by many the best big man in Observerland, stuck Cygan to close out last year's dual meet.

"We have got to win some of the close ones or we'll be in trouble," Krueger said.

Menoch echoed. "We've lost twice at 119, 145 and 185. All were close matches. Those are the swing matches we have to win."

Other matches are easier to predict. Salem should get victories out of its Dameron brothers, Dennis (17-5 at 98) and Dave (24-1 at 126). Tim Ott (105) and Eric Retting (155) should also win.

Freeland's 1983 state champion and a good pick to win this year's title, set the tone by scoring 36.65 in the second event, floor exercise, the team score more than doubled to 73.45, and the race became a battle for second place.

Troy, two-time defending Dearborn champ, won that battle as the Colts totaled 132.40 points, which bettered Ann Arbor Pioneer's 129.20 score, but was a distant second to Freeland's meet record 139.90.

Freeland's Julie Nieman dominated Farmington's Kathy Temple owned the medals in 1981.

Nieman captured the all-around title with a score of 36.40, followed by Farmington's Lori Stanick (35.30). Nieman was first on vault (9.45), uneven parallel bars (9.20) and floor exercise (9.45), and second on the balance beam (8.40).

Troy's one-two all-around punch of Suzanne Enciso and Michel Sima placed fourth and fifth, respectively. Enciso, whose day was highlighted when she stuck her vault for a second-place 9.40, scored 34.05 in all-around. Sima scored 33.45.

PLYMOUTH SALEM'S Beth Raffai was sixth in all-around (32.55), and teammate Jackie Huff was tied for ninth (32.25). Raffai was third on beam (8.0), while Huff was tied for fifth (7.75).

Troy's best team score came in vault (34.90), but its floor exercise performance (34.50) seemed to gather most of the attention. Ironically, no Troy performer placed in the top 10 in floor, but consistency was the key to the high they only managed a team score of 30.40.

"There were low scores, but the head judge said they were scoring low all day," Troy coach Sandy Smith said. "They were scoring consistently low, so it wasn't a factor. We didn't fall off the beam, but we had a lot of breaks in the routines."

team score. The lowest Troy score was an 8.25, and the highest was an 8.65.

"A couple of the coaches commented on the choreography of the whole team in floor," Smith said. "I thought we had good choreography, too. That's pretty good this early in the season. Like always, we have to get the good tricks in."

Troy's second-place finish was a result of the same ingredient which helped the Colts capture the title last year — team depth. Six performers combined for the team score, and five placed in at least one event.

Enciso was second on vault and fifth on bars (8.45). Kim Cousino was tied for fifth on beam (7.75) and tied for seventh on vault (8.45). Sima was fifth on vault (8.95) and sixth on bars (8.4). Laura Sienkiewicz was tied for ninth on vault (7.65) and Astrid Klose was tied for 10th on bars (8.2).

Troy's strong floor performance came from Enciso and Sima (8.65), Sienkiewicz (8.6) and Dana Watson (8.55).

The remainder of the team standings, following Freeland, Troy and Pioneer, were Dearborn (127.20), Jackson County Western (121.65), Dearborn Edsel Ford (120.25), Plymouth Salem (118.80), Adrian (117.60), Westland (113.70), Grosse Pointe North (111.65), East Lansing (110.60), Northville (107.30) and Bloomfield Hills (107.20).

N'ville trips Rocks; Chiefs tough in loss

Two wins in a row just won't happen for the Rocks.

Plymouth Salem's shooters fell into a deep freeze Friday night against Northville's tightly packed zone defense and suffered a heart-breaking 49-43 Western Lakes League loss to the Mustangs in Northville.

"The game was dropping early in the game but it wouldn't drop late for us," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "They packed their zone in tight and we weren't scoring from the outside."

The Rocks (4-5 overall, 3-3 in league play) jumped out to a 14-8 first quarter lead but lost their advantage by halftime. The score was tied 24-24 at intermission.

In the second half, Northville hurt Salem by pumping the ball to the inside forcing the Rocks to foul. Northville finished the game 11 for 19 from the charity stripe. Salem was 1 for 4.

Mike White led the way for the Rocks with 14 points. Steve Sobolich scored 11 points and LeSean Haygood added 10 and 13 rebounds.

Greg Wendel and Don Norton had 12 points apiece for the winners.

Wagoner, uncle of Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner, said his nephew engineered a smart game, but the power of the Spartans was just too much for the Chiefs.

"We played slow-down and it was a smart thing for him to do," the Stevenson coach said. "You have to give Plymouth Canton credit."

Despite the praise, the Canton coach was not consoled.

"We played real well," the younger Van Wagoner said. "We executed the game plan to perfection but it was the same old story of missing some key shots at the end. I'm proud of the team. It's just a matter of time before we start rattling off some wins."

The Chiefs led 9-8 after one quarter and 22-16 at intermission before Stevenson took control with a 14-6 burst in the third quarter.

Bob Shuka paced Stevenson (8-1 and 6-0 in league play) with 11 points and Matt Burdick added 9.

Canton (3-6 and 2-4 in the league) was led by Jim Schlicker with 12 points and Brent Stack with 9 points and 7 rebounds. Kevin Hawkins added 7 points.

Jamie Wooschuk of Salem and Mike Graczyk of Canton will renew their rivalry tonight in the 185-pound weight class.

Canton 4th at Civitan

Perennial Class B wrestling power Stevensville-Lakeshore flexed its muscles Saturday and captured the 8th annual Civitan Wrestling Tournament over second-place Belleville 186-5.

Saginaw took third among the eight teams with 183 points and host Plymouth Canton finished fourth with 125. Harper Woods Notre Dame was fifth with 72, Oxford was sixth with 36.5 points and Birmingham Seaholm and Berkley rounded out the field with 16 and 14 points, respectively.

Stevensville-Lakeshore tallied five first-place finishers, including the tournament's Most Outstanding Wrestler, 134-pounder Matt Cluff. Cluff pinned his first opponent in 12 seconds, won his second match on a superior decision and stopped Belleville's Mike Beckley in the finals, 4-3.

Stevensville-Lakeshore also chalked up three second-place finishers.

CANTON BOASTED three champions, Dave Dunford (114 pounds), Jim Parks (140) and Scott Tasker (147). Dunford pinned Mike Zetter of Notre Dame in the finals in 3:12. Parks won a 9-6 decision over Hakim Frank Draback (128), championship and Tasker took his crown with a 9-2 win over Lakeshore's Justin Skvara.

The Chiefs also had three third-place finishers and three fourth-place finishers. Ernie Krumm (200), Mike Graczyk (187) and Jim Malson (heavyweight) ended up in the No. 3 spot while Frank Draback (128), Tim Birely (121) and Tom Brenner (100) finished fourth for Canton.

There were three champions for Belleville. The Tigers also had five second place finishers.

Eagle spikers win 2nd

The Plymouth Christian volleyball team won its second match in a row Tuesday knocking off Taylor Baptist Park, 9-15, 15-10, 15-10.

Kim Allen sparked the Eagles with 14 service points in game two. Debbie Van Housen also a key dominating the net.

"We played very well, overall," coach Jan Brandel said. "We had five days off and that really helped. We didn't give up when we got behind. We showed a lot of intensity."

The Eagles are now 2-3.

Plymouth Salem remained unbeaten (4-0) in the gym with a 121-2-109-2 victory over the Farmington gymnasts Tuesday.

Jackie Huff and Beth Raffai led the way for the Rocks. Huff won the vault (8.55) and the floor exercise (8.6), finished second on uneven parallel bars (8.2) and fourth on balance beam (7.6). Raffai won on beam (8.55), placed second on vault (8.35), third on bars (7.6) and third on floor (8.1).

Sarah Michalka clipped in with a third on vault (8.3), fourth on bars (7.3), third on beam (7.65) and fifth on floor (6.65).

The Madonna College men's basketball team will carry a two-game winning streak into Saturday's game against Nazareth College at the Pontiac Silverdome.

On Saturday, Maurice Woods poured in 26 points to lift Madonna to an 88-77 homecourt victory over Ohio Valley.

Jim Sall added 20 for the victors, who raised their season record to 3-8.

Earlier in the week, Madonna smashed the host University of Windsor JV squad, 93-69.

Four other Madonna players scored in double figures — Sall (20), Craig Hunter (14), Tim Proben (12), Karl David (12).

The Madonna women's and men's team will play at 1 and 3 p.m., respectively, as preliminary games to the Pistons-Seattle game Saturday night at the Silverdome.

Prep coaches: Call in statistics

Attention, Observerland high school wrestling and gymnastics coaches. Once again the Observer sports staff is asking your cooperation in putting together our statistics page for the winter sports season.

To make this feature work, coaches must report their statistics, on a weekly basis, to the following people:

WRESTLING: Garden City head coach Dean Shipman will compile the top five wrestlers in each weight class. Please report your wrestlers' records to Shipman any weekday between the hours of 11:40 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. at 421-8220.

GYMNASTICS: Observer sports editor Chris McCosky will compile a listing of the top team scores and top individual scores in each event. Coaches should report their stats to McCosky by Monday afternoon.

The cooperation of the coaches has always helped make the Observer sports page the area's No. 1 source for prep sports. We thank you for your continued support.

24 volleyball units invade the CEP

Twenty-four high school volleyball teams, including last year's Class B state champion Saline, will compete Saturday in the 10th annual Plymouth Volleyball Invitational.

Pool play begins at 8 a.m. with the semifinals beginning at 2:30 p.m. and the final match at 4:30 p.m.

The 24 teams will be broken down into six, four-team pools, three-played at the Plymouth Canton gym and three played at Plymouth Salem.

Here's how the teams will be aligned for pool play:

At Canton, Pool A will include Warren, Canton, Dearborn Heights, Crestwood, Hazel Park and Ann Arbor Huron. Pool B will house Plymouth Canton, Adrian, Redford Union and Royal Oak.

At Salem, Pool A will consist of South Haven, Ann Arbor Gabriel, Dearborn, Edsel Ford, Pool B will have Plymouth Salem, Fraser, Clarkston and Westland John Glenn.

Adrian will be admitted Saturday for $1, students (under 18) will get in for 50 cents.

Among the favorites to win this year's tourney are Saline, Adrian, Regina, South Haven and John Glenn.

On Saturday, the Ocelots improved their Eastern Conference record to 3-2 with a 66-53 rout of visiting Alpena.

Again, Schoolcraft started fast and coasted to the triumph. The Ocelots opened up a 37-18 lead by the half, and the closest Alpena could come thereafter was 8.

Chandler's 18 points paced the winners. Alpena tossed in 16, Evans had 11 and Almee Frye 9.

Both players were thought to be academically ineligible according to a new NJCAA ruling that stated players must participate in sports. That represented an increase from the previous eligibility requirement of 10 credit hours passed.

Lady Ocelots win 5th straight

That's the count for Schoolcraft College's women's basketball team after it routed Siena Heights junior varsity 93-48 Monday at Schoolcraft.

The Ocelots opened up a 20-point lead by the time the first half was half over. It was 31-9 with eight minutes to play before intermission and 45-15 at the break.

Five Ocelots reached double figures in scoring, and four of them had 9 points or better in the first 20 minutes.

Missy Aiken and Sherry Evans netted 10 points apiece in the opening half and Caryn Lamb and Kim Chandler collected 9 each.

Aiken finished with a game-high 27. Evans had 18, Lamb, 17, Chandler, 16, and Rhonda Lancaster, 10. Sharon Barnes topped Siena Heights with 18.

The nonconference win, Schoolcraft's fifth straight, evened the team's record at 9-9 overall.

Each program features the film, program notes, a speaker, and gourmet dessert with coffee or tea served at 7:30 p.m. Individual admission is $5, full-time student $3 and senior citizen (over 65) $3. For a season's subscription (Mondays or Tuesdays) at $20, write: Encore Cinema Club Ltd./Cranbrook P.M., P.O. Box 801, Bloomfield Hills 48101.
- MEADOW BROOK
 "A Case of Libel," dramatization of an episode from Louis Nizer's best-selling book "My Life in Court," will open a four-week run at 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 24, at Meadow Brook Theatre on the Oakland University campus near Rochester. Tony Mookus has been cast in the role of the canny attorney, Robert Sloan; George Gitto in Paul Cleary, the opposing counsel; John Eames is the slandering Boyd Bendix, and Phillip Locker is journalist Dennis Corcoran, whose character has been defamed. The production runs through Saturday, Feb. 17. For ticket information call the box office at 377-3300.
- CABARET CONCERT
 Music stylists Ursula Walker and Buddy Budson have put billing for Pontiac-Oakland Symphony's annual Cabaret Concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 26, at the Northfield Hilton in Troy. Tickets at $20 per person include the jazz music, a light buffet during the first intermission and coffee during the second, and dancing after the concert. There will be a cash bar throughout the evening. David Daniels conducts the symphony. Patrons tickets at $30 each include a champagne reception at 7:15 p.m., before the concert. For further information call 334-6024.
- ACTOR TRAINING
 A new six-week term of actor training programs will begin the week of Sunday, Jan. 27, at the Actors Alliance Theatre Company in Southfield. Registration is open for a selection of beginner through advanced-level classes. Faculty includes Annette Madias, Divina Cook, Laurie V. Logan and Scott McCue. For a free brochure call the theater weekdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at 642-1326.
- RED PARROT
 An evening of dancing and a food buffet will be offered for an evening to benefit the Southwest Metropolitan Detroit Chapter of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation from 5 p.m. to closing Thursday, Jan. 24, at the Red Parrot lounge at the Michigan Inn in Southfield. Drinks will be offered at special prices. Entertainment includes the Red Parrot dancers, mimes and clowns.
- CASTING CALL
 St. Bede Players will hold auditions for the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "Carousel" at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 31, and 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 3, at the Social Hall of St. Bede on W. 12 Mile and Southfield roads in Southfield. All parts, including dance and choreography, are open. The production will be presented the weekends of May 10 and 17. For further information call 557-7781 or 537-7275.

Ensemble gives strong concert

By Avigdor Zaromp
Special writer

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble (LCE) presented this season's last ethnic program on Sunday. Following the two programs, which featured French and Italian cultures, this latest program was dedicated to Poland.

Most of us are aware of the various ethnic groups in our area. There are several other worthy, ethnic cultural events around. One aspect that distinguishes this series is its universal appeal, which isn't restricted merely to the members of the ethnic groups involved. One certainly doesn't have to be Polish to enjoy and appreciate music by Chopin and Wieniawski. Beyond that, other aspects of the program can be equally enjoyed, even though these might be less familiar to people in the audience.

Many people braved the Sunday's cold weather to attend the program. The musical part featured works by the two prominent Polish classical composers. At the piano was Fedora Horowitz, founder and artistic director of LCE. She accompanied violinist Geoffrey Applegate, from the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, in the Wieniawski selections.

Applegate, who has been also reviewed here for his part in the Italian program, proved again to be a most competent and skillful violinist. The selections consisted of the Mazurka No. 2 in G minor, the Romance from the Second Violin Concerto in D minor and the Scherzo-Tarantelle.

Applegate's performance was clean and articulate. He was very expressive in the slow concerto movement. In the fast Scherzo, there were some minor slips but no serious loss of command and composure.

Horowitz had her significant pianistic role in Chopin's celebrated Andante Spianato and Grand Polonaise. Her playing, her usual high standard, was impressive even after the Vladimir Ashkenazy recital two days earlier (reviewed elsewhere in this section).

Among several performances by other artists in this area of this work in recent years, this one offered the most sparkle and brilliance. She romped through the difficult portions of the Polonaise with authority and the few missed notes were inconspicuous.

The artistic portion of the program featured dances, reading of Polish poetry and singing of Polish songs. The poems, read with clarity by Danuta Sworska, were also presented with inspired English translation by Jane Mordensky. The dances were presented by the Wawel Folk Ensemble, a group that is renowned for its authentic presentations both in the U.S. and in Europe. They have appeared in Poland and at the White House, among other places.

THE VARIOUS dances were introduced and explained by Marcia Lewandowski, founder and director of the Wawel Folk Ensembles. The dancers, who were wearing authentic colorful costumes from various regions of Poland, presented dances from Silesia, Lublin, Greater Poland and the less familiar place of Nowy Sacz (pronounced Nowy Sonch). In the Greater Poland dance, members of the ensemble also demonstrated their skill at cracking riding whips.

'Rival' costars

Angela Yannon and Richard Klautsch portray Lydia Languish and Captain Absolute in "The Rival," opening at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 7, at the Hilbert Repertory Theatre at Wayne State University in Detroit. Previews will be held Friday-Saturday, Feb. 1-2. Richard Sheridan's 18th-century comedy continues through April 5. For more information, call the box office at 577-2972.

Video course slated

A video scriptwriting course will be offered starting at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 30, on the Oakland University campus near Rochester. The course is being offered by the university's Division of Continuing Education.

The course will be taught by Nadine Maynard of Southfield, vice-president of the Detroit Producers Association. She has created and directed workshops in video production for Continental Cablevision of Michigan.

Tuition is $60. For enrollment information call the Continuing Education office at 370-3120 between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. weekdays.

The course will present methods and formats applicable for industry, education and cable television. Enrollees will learn the language of video, along with basic design and format of various types of scripts, ranging from public service announcements to in-house training tapes.

Introductory television production also will be presented in the five-session course.

Overall, thriller 'Dial 'M' misses

"Dial 'M' for Murder" by Frederick Knott continues at 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday at the O'Leary Performing Arts Center, 6500 Middlebelt, Garden City. Non-reserved seats are available for all performances. Tickets are $4 for adults, $3 for students and senior citizens. For more information, call 525-9258.

The Garden City Civic Theatre's current production of "Dial 'M' for Murder" is a real disappointment.

Set in post-war London, the play (directed by Franc Dennis) centers around greedy, narcissistic Tony Wendice, an ex-tennis pro, who plans "the perfect murder" of his rich, beautiful, trusting wife, Margot.

As Margot, Lisa Anne Hagelthorn has several problems. Though she is an attractive performer and certainly looks the part, she never seems comfortable in this role somehow. To begin with, there's her onstage accent, which sounds as if it originated in some Philadelphia, London, Garden City network.

It doesn't lend any credibility to her character, but it does make her seem madly affected. Further, she often delivers her lines with such flatness that she appears to be reading them directly from the script. As a result, it's next to impossible for an audience to identify and sympathize with her character, and Hagelthorn's Margot never really takes on any life of her own.

AS MAX HALLIDAY, Margo's once-upon-a-time love, David Glen Brian is equally unconvincing. He, too, never seems at ease with his role and, in addition, his lines are too often stiffly delivered, difficult to hear and simply misspoken.

He appears, more than anything else, to be under-rehearsed — as if he'd stepped into the role at the last minute and was still attempting gamely to learn it as the curtain rises on the opening performance.

Similarly, Lane Hoy, in the role of the hired killer, Captain Legate, seems under-rehearsed — not sure of his lines, his timing or even of what to do with his hands when he's onstage.

On the plus side — sort of — Dennis Martell has his lines and his English accent down pat, looks absolutely smashing and seems to be totally self-confident in his role as the murderous, conning Tony. As a result, a rather odd situation evolves: the villain becomes the most attractive, engaging character onstage.

Back on the negative side, there are the static-y telephone conversations, during which the recorded offstage voices of the other end of the line sometimes there when it shouldn't be, and sometimes not there when it should be. Sometimes, too, it answers a question which hasn't even been asked yet by the onstage actor.

FURTHER COMPLICATIONS in the production involve other sound effects, especially those used in the second-act "murder scene." The sound of thunder, along with recorded background "music" played during this scene, is so profoundly distorted that it's practically unrecognizable. Often, it sounds more like something has just gone dreadfully wrong with the sound system. Consequently, the effect of this important scene is practically destroyed.

Speaking of this scene, why has director Dennis chosen to play it so quickly? Intrusive sound effects aside, there's hardly time, as it's done here, for any build-up of suspense or tension to take place.

For this version of Frederick Knott's thriller, the thrill is gone. Too bad. Without it, there's really not much left to be excited about.

Like J.R., Dallas skyline just keeps on going

I FLEW HOME from Dallas during the Deep Freeze last Sunday and flew out again for Nassau, Bahamas, yesterday. That may sound like good planning, but it was just good luck, a bit of warm-weather serendipity I will pay for in full when I try to start my car next week, after it has been sitting for several days in an airport parking lot.

I'll tell you about the restoration of Cable Beach when I get back from sunshine land. Today I want to tell you about the skyline of Dallas. I say "skylines" in the plural because the building boom seems to be all over J.R. Ewing's city: downtown, just out of downtown in "Trammell Crow" country along the Stemmons Freeway, in North Dallas, and in Las Colinas in Irving, near the Dallas/Fort Worth Airport.

The eagle may be our national bird, but what flies over Dallas these days is the building crane.

If you are a fan of the CBS-TV series "Dallas," you know the opening shot of the show, where the cameras follow converging expressways toward the highrise skyline of the city. They plan to reshoot that scene soon because it's so out of date.

We photographed Dallas only three years ago, and we'll have to throw all our skyline pictures away. They're obsolete. The "Ewing Oil Co.," really InterFirst Two, is no longer the top of the town.

TOUR GUIDES love to say that J.R. is trying to move his headquarters to InterFirst Plaza because he wants to be in the tallest building in town. Just in case you don't know how tall it is, they've put numbers on the outside walls every ten stories so that your eye can follow them up 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70.

Other new highrises on the skyline include Lincoln Plaza, the LTV Tower, the Atlantic Richfield Co., Thanking Tower, First City Center, etc. A Big ETC!

What does all this mean to the traveler. It means a lot to the business traveler, who has new hotels and new services available all over Dallas. Let's just consider hotels.

Hotel tours are part of a travel writer's business, but I seldom find as many new or renovated grand hotels as I saw in Dallas last week. This town of almost-a-million people has 34,000 hotel rooms within the 16-mile radius of the metropolitan city, with 1,500 more to come by 1986.

IT'S SYMBOLIC that the Adolphus Hotel should be at the beginning of the city list, not because it is number one in alphabetical order but because beer baron Adolphus Busch built it in 1912 to top the Dallas skyline.

You can't get far enough back from it now to photograph its baroque facade, and its rooftop are certainly not on the skyline any more, but its glorious renovation makes it one of the poshest and most elegant hotels in the country.

Two other old-world hotels, booming and expensive, are the Fairmont downtown and Mansion on Turtle Creek. The Mansion is everybody's idea of "staying with rich friends" and the Fairmont has the kind of nightclub, with dinner and live stage, that you used to see in old movies.

Not so noticeable, but still interesting, is the restored Ambassador Park Hotel, built long ago as an apartment hotel, and now literally overlooking Old City Park, the Greenfield-Village-style complex at edge of downtown.

THE HYATT Regency isn't new any more, but its glass face still dominates downtown because of the acres of glass on its face and the Reunion Tower next door. From the top of the Tower you can see it all, from the log cabin and the John F. Kennedy Memorial in Historical Plaza to the other grand hotels around town — the Bradford Plaza and the Plaza of the Americas among them.

You can also identify the restoration of the West End Historic District, the restored Art Deco buildings in Fair Park, the new Dallas Art Museum and the Union Station-plus-Visitor's Center at the foot of the Tower itself.

Thanks to the regular weekly opening of the television show "Dallas," the Dallas skyline is a familiar sight, but few viewers get to see the city's night skyline. Below is the view from Old City Park. Dallas is one of the fastest-growing finance, communications, insurance, computer service and printing centers in the U.S.

All that is enough to make a Detroit jealous, but it's only the beginning in Dallas. Our convention stayed at Loew's Anatole Hotel, just off the downtown map in the Dallas Market Center area, known locally as Trammell Crow country.

Crow is one of five Dallasites recently listed among the 10 richest business entrepreneurs in the country. Some people say that it is a battle of egos between these billionaires that makes the skyline change so fast, each working on the theme of "anything you can build I can build bigger."

CROW OWNS most of what I see from my hotel window: the building run by Wyndham hotels across the freeway, the market center and the brand new Infomart, a replica of London's legendary Crystal Palace. Infomart opens tomorrow, Jan. 25, with 1.5-million square feet of market space dedicated to information processing.

If you have driven Dallas' freeways, you don't need to be told about the cranes flying high above the high-rolling office towers and retail centers of North Dallas. One Friday afternoon traffic jam tells all.

The Westin people built a hotel at one end of the Galleria and plan to build another one at the other end, just as they did in Houston. One hopes that Dallas is not as overbuilt as Houston turned out to be; it is said that Houston's downtown hotels sometimes average 30-percent occupancy, which is a good way to go out of business.

The Sheraton Park Central is up there in North Dallas along with a dozen other hotels that seem to have opened their doors in the last two or three years. The other area of special interest to business travelers is Las Colinas, near Dallas/Fort Worth Airport. Las Colinas is a controlled community in Irving where the cranes and bulldozers are so busy they look like industrial art. (For real art, check out the bronze horse running into and out of the fountain at Williams Square.)

FOUR SEASONS manages the beautiful Mandalay hotel in Las Colinas with its canal walk, shopping area and gondolas. It also manages a complete and expensive private sports complex called Las Colinas Sports Club open to Mandalay guests.

After four or five days of this, in and out of new, expensive architecture, you begin to wonder what can possibly be going on here or whether the boom can last. Dallas is not an oil city, J.R. Ewing aside, it's a city based on banks, insurance companies, high tech and financial services. Can it really be explained by saying "everybody's moving to the sun belt?"

Sun Belt. Magic words this week. It was 60 degrees and sunny during the day while I was there, but a Blue Norther came in and dropped the temperature 50 degrees Saturday night. By Sunday morning, when I flew out of town, Dallas was shivering at 10 degrees.

I had been warned that I would find cold weather and snow at home, but I didn't realize how bad it was until the shuttle dropped me at my car in the Long Term Parking Lot at Metro Airport and the driver said, "If your car starts it will be the first one today."

It didn't.

Dallas is not an oil city, J.R. Ewing aside, it's a city based on banks, insurance companies, high tech and financial services.

exhibitions

DOSSIN GREAT LAKES MUSEUM

The museum has reopened to the public with a major new exhibition, "Michigan's Nautical Time Capsules." The exhibit will bring to life the stories and times of sailing vessels that met untimely fates on the often dangerous waters of the Great Lakes. Scattered on Michigan's bottomlands are intact examples of schooners, brigs, barges, propellers and steam-barges that were lost, in some cases, more than a century ago. The focus of the display is to consider each vessel as a historical artifact rather than to recount the disaster that befell it. The museum is on Strand Drive on the south shore of Belle Isle. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. Call 267-6440.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE OF METROPOLITAN DETROIT

An Arab American photo exhibit by Millard Berry is featured this month. Funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Arab Community Center for Economic and Social Services, with support from the International Institute, the display of 40 framed photographs taken over a seven-year period tells the story of Arab Americans in Wayne County. After January, the exhibit will make a brief stop at the Henry Ford Centennial Library in Dearborn before going on national tour. The museum is at 111 E. Kirby in Detroit. Phone 871-8600.

VAAL CLASSES

Beginning this week are winter classes offered by the Visual Arts Association of Livonia. Day, evening and Saturday classes and workshops will be available in drawing, watercolor, oil, mixed media and printing. For a winter schedule, call Shirley Glenn at 422-5645 or Ann Keeton at 255-3088.

DETROIT ARTISTS MARKET

Through Friday, Feb. 8 — A two-man exhibition of paintings by Sheldon Iden and Charles McGee will run. Iden and McGee are well-known Michigan artists whose work is included in many private and public collections. A catalog will be published in conjunction with the exhibition. Also on display is an Upper Gallery show of work by Lee Bale of Birmingham, Adam Thomas of Detroit, James Pujdowski of Hamtramck and Bob Vandervennet of Detroit. The Detroit Artists Market is at 1452 Randolph, Harmonie Park. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Phone 962-0337.

SELO/SHEVEL GALLERY

Friday, Feb. 8 — Michigan Ceramics '85, the annual statewide juried exhibition sponsored by the Michigan Potter's Association, will be on display through March 2. First prize funds for the show are available through a grant from the Michigan Foundation for the Arts. The gallery is at 329 S. Main, Ann Arbor. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, except Friday, when it is open until 9 p.m. Phone 761-6263.

DETROIT HISTORICAL MUSEUM

Friday, Feb. 8 — "Black Women in Michigan, 1785-1985," a new exhibition, opens with a champagne reception and program, 6-9 p.m. The exhibit will focus on the community activism of historical and contemporary black women from Michigan, such as Sojourner Truth, Rosa Parks, Dr. Ethelene Crockett and Mother Charlezetta Waddles. Featured on the opening program are Carmen Harlan of WDIV-TV, Deputy Chief of Police Jim Ingram, Dr. Bernadine Denning of Detroit Public Schools and Dottie Jones of the UAW. Donations for the program are $15 per person or $25 per couple. The museum is on Woodward at Kirby in Detroit's University Cultural Center. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. Call 833-1805.

HILL GALLERY

Saturday, Jan. 26 — Group show which continues through March 2 includes works by Louise Bourgeois, Mark diSvero, Arshile Gorky, Raoul Hague, Michael Heizer, Willem de Kooning, Martin Puryear, Tony Smith, Cy Twombly and Jay Wholley, 163 Townsend, Birmingham.

TOWN CENTER GALLERY

Fantasy Stick Sculptures, wall figures and Fantasy Busts by Chicago area sculptor, James Eaton continue through January. Prints by gallery regulars Asoulay, Schurr, Gibson and Gardner. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, 3000 Town Center, Suite 45, Southfield.

Opera offers deaf and blind many rewards

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

The world of opera features a variety of wonders for young and old. Unfortunately, the handicapped often feel it is an enchanting land they cannot visit, or one in which they are not welcome.

A one-day workshop held Saturday at Madonna College in Livonia showed this need not be the case.

Opera shouldn't be off-limits to the blind and the deaf, according to Karen Di Chiera, director of education for the Michigan Opera Theater, principal presenter for the four-hour workshop. Opera is so dramatic, it holds something for everyone, she says.

"Should deaf people come to opera? I think that's sort of an unthought-out question," Di Chiera told the 17 participants at the workshop. "If you can't see it, you can hear it. If you can't hear it, you can see it."

Di Chiera defines opera as a musical theater art form in which the main delivery instrument is the singing voice.

INTERPRETING OPERAS for the handicapped is an exciting new field with many possibilities. And Di Chiera and Madonna faculty members John Ray and Mary Wells, who also spoke at the workshop and who interpret with sign language for the deaf, said a lot is going on in the field in Detroit that isn't being done anywhere else.

"It really allows us as interpreters to explore all kinds of neat things," Ray said.

Coloratura soprano Beverly Sills started interpreting operas for the deaf in sign language a few years ago in New York, Di Chiera said. Then, interpreters would sit on stools on the stage.

"We able-bodied persons presuppose what the handicapped can and cannot tolerate," Ray said. "The problem that we have as artists, we're presenting performing arts to people who don't know anything about it. You can't say, 'What do you want to see?' because they don't know. We have to educate the handicapped community so they will assume the responsibility to let us know what it is we have to do."

The visually impaired may listen to cassette tapes of the opera before the performance. Braille scripts are also available so they can follow the action as it is taking place.

INTERPRETING AN opera for the hearing impaired presents a number of problems, workshop presenters said. For example, how do you indicate that the music has changed, or that seven or eight persons are singing different things at the same time? How do you interpret the overture, which sets the mood before the performance begins, or show that there is a chorus singing off-stage?

'We don't want to be stuck off somewhere in the corner, in plain clothes. That's like saying, "Oh, you deaf people are nice but don't watch this over here." We react as the characters on stage do frequently. We feel it's very important that deaf people come and say, "This is a performance for me too, not just incidentally for me."'

interpreter

Costuming for interpreters is important as well. What the interpreters wear can't be too light, or their hands won't show.

"For the hearing impaired, the first thing most people think of is, anything spoken would be (sign) interpreted," Ray said. "But you can remove the words from opera and you still have a big chunk of opera."

"When you are interpreting a play or a speech, you get a copy of the speech beforehand. (In opera) you don't want merely the words. We get the orchestration. We know the oboes are playing one thing, the cymbals are playing something else. Somehow or other, the hearing impaired audience has to know that."

WHILE ANSWERS to all of the questions haven't been found, solutions to others have been developed. The interpreters may sway their bodies to the beat of the music. They wear costumes identical to the rest of the cast.

Ray and Wells demonstrated one solution they worked out for a song from Mozart's "The Magic Flute." Presented by the Michigan Opera Theater last year, it was the first time an opera had been interpreted for the deaf in Detroit.

In the piece, a "bird man" named Papageno and "bird woman" named Papagena sing about the children they will have. Papageno says there will be boy birds (Papageno) while Papagena says there will be girl birds (Papagena).

Instead of spelling out P-A-P-A-G-E-N-O or P-A-P-A-G-E-N-A with the finger alphabet, Ray and Wells combined the sign language for the word "bird" with that for "man" or "woman," saying, in effect, "birdman" or "birdwoman." Making bobbing motions with their bodies showed the birdlike aspect of the song.

John Ray and Mary Wells sign passages from an opera at a workshop at Madonna College. Through sign language and body interpretation, the deaf are able to experience the color and drama of opera.

PREPARING TO interpret an opera is a time taking process, according to Ray and Wells. First, they learn about the opera, purchasing the entire score for it and memorizing it as a conductor would. They get familiar with the music by listening to cassette tapes of it.

"That's before we even get to the words," Ray said. "We breathe 'Faust,' we eat 'Faust,' we pray 'Faust.'" After some six months, "all of a sudden you begin to love the music," he said.

The interpreters then read the script to get the storyline down and divide the story characters up according to who will play whom. It isn't necessarily the case that Ray will take all the male roles and Wells all the female roles. Then they go over it act by act, attending every rehearsal to learn actor motivation.

"We want to know these things," Ray said. "We don't have the privilege of looking at them as they're doing it."

"We don't want to be stuck off somewhere in the corner in plain clothes," Wells said. "That's like saying, 'Oh, you deaf people are nice but don't watch this over here.' We react as the characters on stage do frequently. We feel it's very important that deaf people come and say, 'This is a performance for me too, not just incidentally for me.'"

THE HARD work pays off. Ray recalled the time several years ago when they interpreted an opera in Dayton. After the performance, many deaf people lined up to ask the interpreters for their autographs, he said.

"They never had that experience before," Ray said.

He encouraged those at the workshop, whether they knew sign language or not, to bring the arts to the handicapped or the elderly.

"If you have the ability, the skills, the interest, the desire to do that, think of the doors you can open," Ray said. "Make the performing arts accessible in any way you can."

Signing can be used to interpret opera for the deaf as shown by John Ray.

Your artwork needs a solid foundation

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing.

He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington MI 48024.

"This will be my finest work," I said to myself. I was still in high school at the time. I was down in the basement experimenting with different art media. Then I had a great idea of building texture and basic form out of plaster and then painting the bas-relief with liquetex.

I hastily formed the plaster into an abstract still life with a complexity of background textures. Then I put black liquetex paint into a cake decorating cone (sorry Mom) and added gloss polymere medium to make the paint shiny. To add to the three-dimensional quality of the painting I then squeezed the cone and as the paint oozed out I defined all of the still life shapes.

When I was done the floor was full of multi-colored tread marks from my tennis shoes. I had, yet another, "paint shirt" and I had emptied about six tubes of acrylic paint. But, I had created a fantastic piece of art. It was my best yet. Since I was eager to show it off, of course no one was home. So I put the three-foot masterpiece in the trunk of my car so I would have it on hand. Then finally a lady to whom I sold my first painting (for $15) asked how my art was coming along. "Gee," I said to her, "I'm not sure, but I think I have a painting in the trunk of my car."

BEFORE SHE even offered to look at it I had my keys in hand and bounded like a gazelle (or maybe a water buffalo) to the car. Cradling my masterpiece like a newborn baby, I held it horizontally in my arms. She then, impressed with the color, form and style, asked me to hold it up so she could better see it.

My 17-year-old eyes turned to dilator signs and I remember thinking,

"Hey, this baby's worth at least $35." If the scripture "pride cometh before the fall" was ever more graphically displayed, I would like to know. As I tipped the painting vertically the entire piece slid off the masonite board on which it was built. "Oh, dear" she said "Oh no" I moaned, as I felt the weight of the plaster release from the board, and fell into a multi-colored heap of rubble.

My hat is off to that lady as she never cracked a smile as a lanky, perhaps, over-confident, 17-year-old stood there with a blank piece of masonite and a pulsating red face. But I'll bet she is still telling the story whenever she gets the chance. So my problem wasn't the masonite nor was it the plaster. It wasn't the innovative style nor was it my youthful enthusiasm.

MY ERROR came from the lack of structure or foundation. My painting with all its texture, color, design and style, had nothing to hold onto. So it is with many works of art. The artist is so eager to "get with it" that they forget to "support it."

Let's take the pen and ink of a dog for an example. Many times students are so anxious to shade the many hairs of the dog that they forget to carefully proportion and place the many features of the dog. Before the ink pen even gets wet with ink, the structure or pencil drawing of the dog must be precise. Are the eyes the right size and in line with the mouth and the nose?

Are the legs long enough and is the tail the right length? No amount of crosshatching, stipple or line shading will ever hide, nor correct, poor structure. Remember that structure supports detail and never the reverse. Just like a building being constructed. It seems that the builder's work is unseen for a few days. The reason of course is that they are below ground level working hard to build a solid foundation. Then the structure starts to appear rising up from the foundation.

Then before you know it they're putting the glass in and adding the finishing touches. Of course this is like the student who has learned to hold on to his or her inspiration long enough to properly build the structure needed to support the details the subject demands. I am sure the builders wish they could start laying face brick and place doors and windows the first week but their experience tells them they must first support the building before they finish it.

Truly the hard work of building a drawing or painting is unseen as the finishing details often cover up the structure you labored over. But like the building that will soundly stand firm on its foundation, your work will correctly stand as a testimony to your inspiration, ability and hard work. So remember before you finish it... support it.

ARTIFOLKS: Margie from Farmington Hills. I remember telling Margie that in pencil drawing use a "9 H" to make grooves in the paper to create delicate textures. Then go over those areas with a "B" pencil to produce beautiful textures and details. Well, Margie told me she didn't like the 9H because it still made too dark a line, so she made her impressions in the paper with the point of a 50 cent compass (or any pointed metal object) and then shaded over with a soft pencil and the impression remained pure white.

Another hint Margie mentioned is to use this technique and all pencil techniques on 100 percent acid free museum board. The reason is that museum board is soft and easily impressionable. It also has a pleasant tooth for graphite and the extra benefit is to know that your drawing will never fade, crack or yellow with age. Thanks, Margie, for not following my advice... I think. Seriously, Margie, thanks for the hints.

Contrasting styles

1 artist works with darkness, the other with light

Winter snows and slushy roads shouldn't keep snugg suburbanites from venturing into downtown Detroit. The Sheldon Iden/Charles McGee exhibition at the Detroit Artists Market is well worth the trek.

The immediate reaction to the Iden/McGee show recalls cartoon vernacular — how Iden's rich dark metaphoric oils interact with McGee's rhythmic lively and densely packed collages as they play off one another in dramatic contrast.

The Iden oils have a "Venetian" reference and elicit, according to Iden, the dark rich colors of Venice at night.

And, indeed, if the viewer allows the time and lets his eyes become accustomed to the ostensibly all-black canvas, without fail, shape and color will appear.

This is essentially the essence of Iden's work. It isn't passive. It is, in fact, cerebral, asking the viewer to become an active participant in the artistic process.

Marvin Anderson, artist, teacher at Eastern Michigan University and author of the exhibition catalog states, "You will not get it in 30 seconds. The paintings and drawings of Sheldon Iden for environment and nature.

McGee's aptly named "Noah's Ark" series is immediate in the evocation of realism and nature. Where Iden's canvases are dark and mysterious, McGee's colorful, textural, lively collages are a joyful assemblage of all creation co-existing in harmonious balance.

All creatures large and small take their place and share in an universal equality. In optimistic reaffirmation of life, McGee recycles and alters materials from everyday experience into a work of art.

For example, "Noah's Ark — Breaking," 1984-85 boasts McGee's own hair. While traveling through Europe, his long hair caused unfavorable reaction and detained him at several borders. Cut, glued and reused in the collage, the now three-dimensional textural material elicits a totally different response.

If this series is a bringing together of all life's elements, the large bulletin board mural, "Noah's Ark I," 1984 is an amalgamation of all the works in the exhibition. Begun as a method of instruction while teaching a class in the mural, the lively imposing work dances before the viewer as African and American fabric, rope, musical notes, computer chips, raindrops, a bee, the world of man and beasts work together.

SENSES are stimulated as line, shape, color and texture find balance. The two central figures with a flattened Egyptian-like look are the only images pre-sketched. All else evolves in this microcosm of humanity and nature.

Detroit Iden studied at the Art Institute of Chicago, Society of Arts and Crafts, Wayne State University (BFA), Cranbrook Academy of Art (MFA). He is also a member of the faculty at Eastern Michigan University.

His paintings are in many permanent collections, including Detroit Institute of Arts, Flint Museum of Art and Grand Rapids Museum of Art.

McGee is an associate professor of art at Eastern Michigan University. He studied at Society of Arts and Crafts and in Barcelona at Escuela Massana and School of Graphics, Barcelona.

Also on exhibition in the upper gallery are works by Lee Bala, textiles; Adam Thomas, paintings; James Pujowski, painting; and Bob Vander-venet, sculpture.

The Detroit Artists Market is at 1452 Randolph, Harmonie Park. The exhibition will extend to Feb. 5. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

Charles McGee, pictured with his mixed media work, "Noah's Ark Series: Genesis," is a versatile artist who has always been in the forefront of experimentation and new ideas.

Calligraphy and design exhibit rates good marks

By Benita Bornstein

The exhibition at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association "Making a Mark" is making a splash. The show is a joint effort by members of the Michigan Association of Calligraphers and a group of designers invited by BBAA's fabric design instructor, Linda Jackier-Soberman.

The result — an unique and visually exciting exhibition of experimental and decorative calligraphic works and a collection of jewelry, wearables, yardage and furniture with design interest in marks.

Although there are some works of traditional calligraphy, according to Leslie Masters, assistant director of the BBAA, this is an "idea" show. The idea is to make a mark in contemporary artistic terms.

Calligraphers were challenged to try different techniques and create a bolder look. This was accomplished through the efforts of Elaine Grohman of the Calligraphers Association.

She called in Dick Beasley, an acclaimed calligrapher from Northern Arizona University, to conduct an intensive three-day workshop for advanced calligraphers.

BEASLEY juried the calligraphic works while Soberman makes her mark in diverse mediums such as jewelry, clothing and furnishings. The tight edges of her canvas rug inspired the black lacquered and design-marked canvas jewelry. Her contemporary black lacquered table with marks of design is a stunning artistic as well as functional piece.

Jo Rosen's cotton patchworks are a creative blend of design with graffiti-like marks of tie, tie, tie, and ZZZ's superimposed on fabric.

"I love my coat" by Rosemary Gratch makes use of fabric and design in a technique that recalls the tie-dye of the '60s. But the pink painted cotton dyed fabric is contemporary in terms of the defined marks of design. The marks on Susan Wayne's metals and brightly colored titanium form unique pieces of contemporary jewelry.

Calligraphy on clay is Barbara Boyles medium. In Experimental Calligraphy No. 3, she has scripted the story of Genesis onto a white contemporary free-form piece.

Dick Beasley's "Doodles" are just that, no message, simply letters creatively rendered as an art form. In ink and gouache, he builds up the letters in an embossing effect, sometimes with gold leaf, but in contemporary design.

ESSENTIALLY, the combination of calligraphy and design work well together. There is added impact and meaning to this design showcase in terms of the current interest in graffiti as art originating in New York.

The pieces in "Making a Mark" are fresh, inventive and bear the mark of excellence.

The BBAA is at 1516 S. Cranbrook Road, Birmingham. The show extends through Feb. 2. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday-Saturday.

Wedding countdown

Before the big day arrives, every bride should plan to ensure as carefree a wedding as possible. Fashion and wedding experts recommend that brides begin planning for a formal wedding anywhere from six months to a year in advance.

Worrying about detail too near to the date of the wedding can detract from the romance of this important day. So get organized and check off the following items in your bridal organizer as they come up.

A checklist can be a fun way of counting down the months, weeks, days and moments before you say, "I do."

1 YEAR TO 6 MONTHS

- Avoid wedding trauma by talking about your budget and wedding style with everyone involved, both sets of parents and your fiancé.

- Pick a place for the ceremony and reception and make reservations.

- Decide on the number of guests you can afford and accommodate and put together a guest list.

- Meet with the person who will officiate.

- Choose your dress and accessories.

- Choose a color scheme and plan the reception.

- Register china, silver, etc.

- Select your wedding attendants.

- Start house or apartment hunting.

- Talk to a travel agent about your honeymoon.

3 TO 6 MONTHS

- Order the announcements and invitations and address them as soon as they arrive. This way, it's exciting instead of a chore.

- Shop for your trousseau.

- Select a photographer, florist and musicians.

- Order attendants' dresses and suits.

- Meet with your caterer.

- Put everything in writing to avoid last-minute hassles.

3 TO 7 WEEKS

- Buy your fiancé's wedding gift and gifts for the bridal party.

- Mail invitations.

- Have final dress fitting and take formal portrait.

- Order rings.

- Reserve hotel rooms for out-of-town guests.

- Plan rehearsal dinner.

2 WEEKS

- Get marriage license.

- Arrange transportation to ceremony.

- Organize luggage and do a last-minute confirmation on honeymoon reservations.

1 WEEK

- Start packing and organize each day and evening outfit.

- Confirm number of guests for caterer.

- Arrange rehearsal.

- Keep up with thank-you notes as gifts arrive.

If you take care of all the little things, the big things have a way of taking care of themselves.

Tradition

Barefoot-in-the-park ceremonies give way to time-honored customs

The word for weddings today is "traditional." The barefoot-in-the-park ceremonies of the 1960s and '70s have disappeared as completely as flower children and love beads. Elegant clothes, age-old ritual and a spirit of nostalgia are the rule.

But does this swing back mean that all innovation is out of style? Does the bride of today really have a wedding that is distinguishable from the one her mother had? Barbara Tober, editor in chief of Bride's magazine, says no.

"Today's weddings seek out the best and most beautiful traditions of the past in contrast to a few years ago when anything old was automatically suspect. But, at the same time, they're modern in that they express new ideals."

Fewer "rules" of etiquette plus a climate that favors personal expression have led couples to add their own creative touch. "But today's individuality is very different from the 'do your own thing' brand of the last decade," Tober said.

Couples don't throw out the whole ceremony and start from scratch; they change or add little things. For example, they have their own special music played, have a little girl instead of a boy as a ring bearer, or pass out printed ceremony programs.

Modern weddings also break with the past over the ideal of equality. Today's bride may be dressed in a demure turn-of-the-century style, but that isn't necessarily indicative of her approach to marriage. For example, because many couples decided that ritual phrases such as "love, honor and obey" and "man and wife" just didn't fit anymore, these phrases have largely disappeared.

The "giving away" (a part of some ceremonies in which the celebrant asks, "Who gives this woman in marriage?") has also changed with the times. Today a couple might rewrite the question to read, "Who blesses this marriage?" with both the bride's and groom's parents answering, "We do."

The same kind of thinking has likewise revised the idea of who pays for a wedding. Traditionally, the bride's parents shouldered the whole bill.

"But for the first time," Tober said, "there's a definite trend toward the sharing of expenses by the groom's family." This is partly economic — for some families everyone must chip in for there to be a wedding at all.

But it's also a sign of the times. A bride's parents are no longer considered to be "marrying off" their daughter. Rather, the wedding is seen as a joining of two people and two families.

Equality means a new role in the wedding for today's groom. In the past, a groom often felt like a spectator at his bride's "big day." Modern couples simply take for granted that it's his day, too.

Grooms have new responsibilities. They help pick the wedding site, choose china patterns, address invitations, and write thank-you notes. And they back in a larger share of the limelight. Some men wear engagement rings, appear with the fiancées in newspaper announcements and have showers thrown in their honor.

Rings are symbols of your love. But purchasing a diamond is still basically a consumer decision. You should do the same kind of research and comparison shopping as you would when buying any other high-ticket item.

A diamond is forever

You've just decided to get married — one of the biggest decisions of your life — and now you must make a serious investment decision. You need to select engagement and wedding rings.

It's hard to be completely objective. After all, rings are symbols of your love. But purchasing a diamond is still basically a consumer decision. You should do the same kind of research and comparison shopping as you would when buying any other high-ticket item.

Buying diamonds and other precious stones without the help of a trained jeweler can be confusing. It can be difficult for the average consumer to price jewelry because of the wide range of quality in stones, settings and styles.

"You don't need a special education to be a smart diamond shopper," says Robert Sprattford, president of the American Gem Society, a 50-year-old trade association of jewelers dedicated to consumer protection and gemological education. "But there are a few simple factors that can help you select a diamond that's best for you. We call them the four C's: cut, color, clarity and carat weight."

• Cut: Even the biggest diamond will have less value if it's cut incorrectly. A diamond is actually a series of 58 sides or facets that move light through the stone in a precise path. If the stone is cut at the wrong angle, all the sparkle and fire will lead out of the diamond and never reach your eye.

In a social setting, there's an easy way to tell who's wearing high-quality diamonds. Sprattford offers this suggestion:

"When you go to a party, even in dim light, there will be some diamonds that can be seen glittering across the room. Those are the ones that are cut correctly. Most stones today are cut for size, but it doesn't matter how big they are. If they don't sparkle from far away, they're not correctly cut diamonds."

• Color: While there are extremely rare diamonds that are very valuable because they have a blue tinge or other unusual color, such as pink or canary yellow, absence of color is what makes most diamonds valuable. Diamonds naturally occur in a range of colors from crystal clear to yellow to dark brown.

The American Gem Society has developed its own method of grading diamonds with zero to three being the best colorless stones. A three to five rating means the stone has a tinge of yellow and is not considered as valuable. Diamonds that fall in the five to 10 category are distinctly yellow to brown and they fall in the lowest price range.

• Clarity: The third C is clarity, meaning any marks, bubbles, clouds or scratches inside or on the surfaces of the diamond, any flaw will have some impact on the value and beauty of the stone, but the impact depends on size of the imperfection.

• Carat weight: The last and least important quality, the price of a diamond is determined not per carat, but its cut, color and clarity. A smaller, higher quality stone will be worth much more than a larger, badly cut or yellow-hued diamond.

2nd, 3rd marriages come out of the closet

Nearly 30 percent of all marriages today are remarriages. But the number of remarriages isn't all that's growing. So is the spirit of celebration.

Traditionally, couples embarking on second and third marriages faced strong pressure to keep the wedding a small, quiet affair bearing little resemblance to a first wedding. Etiquette books addressed the subject with an abundance of negatives: "The remarrying bride does not wear white"; "a second engagement is never announced in the newspapers."

All that has changed, says Bride's magazine. The emphasis now is a lot less on rules, a lot more on the importance of sharing a joyful new beginning surrounded by family and friends.

Some of the magazine's suggestions for a remarrying couple:

• As the bride, be a little bit selfish at this time. Wear an engagement ring. Indulge in a beauty day at the salon — complete with lavish hair care, facial and manicure.

• Feel free to marry in the outfit of your choice. The traditionally simple, cream-colored suit still is lovely — but so is a romantically long and lacy gown, in white or your favorite color. The only accessory best omitted is the veil — long a symbol of youth. A more sophisticated choice might be a hat, cloche or wreath of flowers.

• If either of you has children, try to include them in as many plans as you can. They'll feel especially important playing a role in your ceremony. Depending on their ages, they can be ring bearers or flower girls, bridesmaids, ushers or honor attendants.

• Make your reception as extravagant a party as you wish, complete with all the wedding traditions — a receiving line, the first dance, the ceremonial cutting of the cake and a champagne toast. A warm way to welcome guests is to head up the receiving line yourselves, rather than leaving it to your parents. They, in turn, will be free to circulate among guests.

• Don't feel a honeymoon isn't necessary this time around. Getting married is tiring, even if you've been through it before. Plan a trip just for the two of you first, then a group honeymoon with your children so you'll all feel like a family.

Wedding facts & figures

Diamonds are said to be the only gems composed of no more than one element. Diamonds are crystallized pure carbon.

In ancient Rome, the cake was broken over the bride's head after a wedding. The guests then gathered the crumbs as good-luck tokens.

LET US HELP YOU PLAN YOUR WEDDING

Generations of brides have called on us for assistance in creating a flawless wedding. Whether your plans are for a small, informal ceremony, or one elegant and elaborate, you will find the gown of your dreams at Jacobson's. Let us guide you every step of the way to a most memorable wedding day.

Jacobson's

We will now open until Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday.

Your wedding day would not be complete without capturing moments like these.

Add a new chapter to the family album

In some ways, the photographic record of your wedding is like your spouse to be — you'll have to live with both for a long time. That's why hiring a wedding photographer is such an important decision to make.

While relatives and friends may take their own photographs of the occasion, an experienced professional can be counted on to capture on film all aspects of your wedding. A wedding photographer, unlike relatives, will not be distracted from his job by friends and relatives who haven't seen each other since the last family wedding.

Professional photographers are trained to photograph with a sensitivity that captures the emotion of the day without interfering with the solemnity of the ceremony or the fun of the reception. But good photography is often in the eye of the beholder, so put a little effort into choosing the right photographer for your big day.

Here are some suggestions from Kostas to help you select the right photographer.

- Begin your search early, particularly if your wedding will take place in the prime months of June, July, August or September. That way you won't have to settle for a photographer just because he or she is the only one left.

- Interview a variety of photographers and look at samples of their work. Select a photographer whose style suits the images you'd like to capture.

- Arrange for a formal bridal portrait for the newspaper at the time of your final gown fitting.

- Don't change your hairstyle or have it cut just before taking your portrait. You want to look like you. Keep jewelry and other accessories to a minimum. Your makeup should be flattering, but not excessive.

- Before the wedding, make sure the photographer is aware of any particular shots you have in mind. Enlist a friend or relative to identify others as special targets for the photographer. Also, request photographs of your guests at various table groupings at the reception.

Once you have your wedding photographs, they don't have to be locked to an album. Here are some ideas for other uses.

- Give an album to your parents.
- Make thank-you notes more personal by enclosing your photograph.
- Use photos for Christmas cards or gifts.
- Include enlargements in the decor of your home.

Do-it-yourself reception helps keep you solvent

You're getting married and you want an elegant catered reception. But on a limited budget, having the best to make you and your guests feel special isn't easy. Here are some tips.

First, decide on a budget. The money you can spend will determine several things: the amount of food, type and amount of decoration, location, rental and equipment, entertainment.

To begin your selections, consult a few caterers in your area to get ideas for the party. Look at photographs of parties they've catered and ask for a price list and referrals.

During your search, you'll find that some caterers are strictly food handlers and servers. They don't provide party equipment set up for decoration. But others — usually the more expensive ones — do everything from hiring the band to hunting for a location. This type of service can set your mind at ease but may put too much of a burden on your pocketbook.

Once you've decided the general style of your reception, sit down with your price lists and determine which caterer came the closest in price and services offered to meet your needs. To stay within your budget, you'll probably have to decide which services you wish to pay for and which you can do yourself or eliminate. Remember that the more you do the less you will have to pay.

Obviously, you don't want to be washing dishes while your guests are dancing, but there are other ways to cut costs. You may prefer to make a portion of the food yourself, borrow equipment instead of renting, decorate, do the flower arrangements or provide the music yourself. For instance, if you want a luncheon reception, consider slicing meats and making salads, side dishes or relishes yourself. All of these can be made ahead and refrigerated until the party day.

Or consider having a small meal served between regular mealtimes. If guests are invited to a reception held between standard dining times, they usually will eat before the reception. Less food will be needed, but what you serve can be sumptuous. Buffet-style eating is also more social, less troublesome and less costly.

Here is a sample menu for a 2 p.m.

reception served buffet style:

- Ribbon sandwiches — can be made up to two weeks ahead and kept frozen.
- Fresh fruit — Cut pineapple, watermelon, cantaloupe and honeydew into 1½-inch hunks.
- Hors d'oeuvres — Have a waiter serve four or five types on a platter as people mingle.
- Potato salad — can be made one or two days ahead and kept refrigerated.
- Cake — Buying from a supermarket bakery or home baker is less expensive.
- Punch or champagne — Mix for punch can be made ahead and kept frozen. Ask a friend to pour the alcoholic beverage to save money on bartending.

Flowers and music add an elegant touch to any reception no matter what types you use. Inexpensive flowers — mums, carnations, daisies, baby's breath or fern — are as pretty as more expensive ones. For music, tape your favorite pieces to play lightly in the background.

Any way you plan your reception, it should be special to you. And planning something within your budget that is special to your guests is something both you and they will remember for a long time.

The Exceptional Reception!

Marriage is built on strengths

Like many couples, you and your potential spouse may be faced with one or two rough spots in a good relationship. If unresolved, even a minor area of conflict can damage your marriage. If a satisfying solution is found, you will have strengthened your relationship and added to its positive foundation.

That's what the marriage enrichment movement is all about — de-emphasizing weaknesses and building on strengths.

Since the first marriage encounter weekend retreat in the '60s, thousands of couples have benefited from marriage enrichment. They attend discussion groups or weekend retreats led by trained couples, clergy, teachers, counselors or psychologists. In groups such as Marriage Encounters, PREPARE/ENRICH, the Association of Couples for Marriage Enrichment and Training in Marriage Enrichment, couples learn that they can enhance their relationships.

YOU CAN START enrichment at any point, even before the wedding. And it's never too late — you can enrich your relationship at any time from one to 50 years into your marriage. All you need is a commitment of time and effort and the willingness to change.

For Ann and Tom Williams, the eight years of their marriage had been mostly happy ones — except when Tom's parents were in town. Those weeks were full of tension as they tried to explain to Tom's parents why they didn't move back to Tom's hometown, why they hadn't fixed the garage roof and, it seemed, the "why" of anything they did. Ann and Tom were happy with each other and liked the choices they had made, but they needed a way to communicate this to Tom's parents — before their parent-in-law problem threatened all they had built.

Ann and Tom sought the advice of psychologists Don Dinkmeyer and Jon Carlson, authors of "Training In Marriage Enrichment," published by American Guidance Service. Ann and Tom weren't looking for therapy — their marriage was basically healthy and they accepted themselves and each other. They just wanted to learn to solve this problem together. So the Williams joined three other couples for weekly training sessions and soon learned how to cope with Tom's family, using a more relaxed and united approach.

Whether you're working on your own or in a group, there are several basics to enriching your marriage. One is learning to take responsibility for your own actions and feelings. It's not your partner who's driving you into a rage when the living room is a mess — you're allowing your feelings to overwhelm you. Changing reactive behavior is the first step toward resolving any problem.

ANOTHER BASIC: You need to communicate honestly and openly about your feelings. Without the skills to do this, no marriage can successfully negotiate the pitfalls and choices today's lifestyles bring.

Remember, even little changes affect the whole marriage. Be sure to be patient with yourself and your partner. All change takes time.

To help you get started, here are some practical marriage-enriching tips from authors Dinkmeyer and Carlson:

- Be as polite to your partner as you are to a stranger.
- Encourage each other often.
- Avoid placing blame.
- Set limits on the time you'll use to discuss problems.
- Spend regular time together having fun.
- Have realistic expectations.

Each day you have numerous opportunities to nurture your relationship. Leave a love note on the pillow, buy flowers, give a reassuring hug. Couples in truly successful marriages work at their relationships daily.

If you're interested in learning more about marriage enrichment, check with your local church, temple or community center or contact the Association of Couples for Marriage Enrichment in Winston-Salem, N.C., at 919-724-1526 or American Guidance Service in Circle Pines, Minn., at 800-328-2560.
