School board loses Quinn Freshman trustee steps down

In an unexpected move, Nancy Quinn is resigning from the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

In a one-paragraph letter to the Board of Education, Quinn cited personal reasons for stepping down. She was absent from Monday night's workshop meeting and the letter of resignation was read by President Roland Thomas Jr.

Quinn's resignation is effective Monday, April 22.

ANY RESIDENT of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools interested in being appointed to fill the vacancy caused by Quinn's departure may apply in writing by April 30. The board plans to name a replacement by May 6.

In her letter, Quinn thanked the board for its help and for working with her during her tenure as a trustee. Elected to a four-year term, she was the top vote-getter in last June's election which unseated incumbent Glenn Schroeder. Freshman Trustee Les Walker also was elected last June.

After that election, Tom Yack resigned for personal reasons and was replaced by Dean Swartzwelter who will run for election on this June's ballot. Any resident with an interest in schools and a demonstrated capacity for leadership may write the Board of Education Secretary, 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth MI 48170 by April 30.

The persons eventually appointed will first be recommended by a board subcommittee and then voted upon by the full board at its May 6 meeting. The appointee will serve until June 1986.

THOMAS TOLD the Observer that the Wayne County Election Commission made a determination that there was not sufficient time to allow Quinn's successor to be elected at the June annual school election.

Monday, April 8, is the deadline for residents to apply to have their names placed on the June ballot. "We just learned of the resignation Monday night," said Thomas on Tuesday. "The news will appear in the Crier Wednes-day and in the Observer Thursday. That would give residents only Thursday, Friday and the weekend to get nominating petitions circulated and back to the board office by Monday.

"The Wayne County Election Commission decided that just was not suffi-

Decision to resign brings regrets

School trustee Nancy Quinn's decision to resign her seat on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education did not come easily.

"I had hoped to fulfill my four-year term but due to a personal situation, I am unable to," Quinn told the Observer Tuesday. "It was a very hard decision I've been thinking about for a month or so. I regret this action but it is necessary for the future.

"In the end, it's my decision. I have to live with it. I appreciate the support I've received from all facets of the community

Cinema, retail development is on fast track

Site proposal welcomed with high praises

Initial steps in building a 12-screen cinema complex and retail shops east of Haggerty and south of Ford Road are moving quickly.

Efficiency and cooperation among township employees and the developer, Schostak Brothers and Co. Inc., has made "record time" in clearing preliminary steps in developing the site.

"I've been in this business for more than 25 years, and I can say very candidly that your staff is very pleasant to work with and very competent," said John Bernard, Schostak broker and Township Board of Trustees at its said. meeting Tuesday. Bernard cited David Nicholson, director of economic growth, and Matthew Modrack, planning director.

The board unanimously approved special land use and a site plan.

CONSTRUCTION IS expected to begin sometime in May or early June, Modrack said. Schostak, a developer for 66 years, plans to open its doors to

The 16.175 acres will include the $4-5 million theaters on 48,810 square feet, which represents 58 percent of the building area.

Proposed shops will cover 24,120 square feet; a "quality" restaurant, 8,000 square feet; and the commercial building, 3,000 square feet. The complex will have 1,359 parking spaces.

"It is very likely that parking provided is excessive due to the staggered demand from the theaters as well as the Bernard said."So, we should be able to joint use between the theater and shops," the proposal said.

Drainage for the area has been a major point of concern, and steps have been taken to improve what has been dubbed, "The Smith Drain" on the north side of the cinema complex site. Schostak has agreed to make improvements to the storm drainage system.

"The bottom line is to do the drain right, and to work with the neighbors," work this out efficiently."

MODRACK SAID: "The project has been on a real fast track. It's been about five weeks since the preliminary proposal was taken before the Canton Township Planning Commission."

Loren Bennett, a planning commission member, praised Schostak's "professionalism" and well-presented proposal.

The planning commission thought it was one of the best presentations ever presented to them," Bennett said. "Concerns were anticipated in advance, and the planning commission thought it was a marvelous project."

A 24-foot-wide berm is expected to be built along the Haggerty frontage, and a 6-foot masonry wall will run along the south side. The areas surrounding the site include Budgetel, a 100-plus-room hotel to be built to the north; vacant land to the south; condominiums on the east and I-275 on the west.

The next step for the developers is to complete construction plans and apply for building permits with the township

Canton man faces cocaine charge

By M.B. Dillon Ward staff writer

A preliminary examination for Gregory Mark Seguin of Canton, charged with cocaine possession, was slated for 10:30 a.m. today before 35th District Judge James Garber.

Possession of less than 50 grams of cocaine is punishable by up to four years imprisonment and/or a $2,500 fine plus probation. Seguin pleaded not guilty at his arraignment Feb. 21 in 35th District Court, and was released on $5,000 bond.

Seguin also faces assault charges filed by Livonia police. Charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder, Seguin was bound over for trial by Livonia's 16th District Judge James McCann at a preliminary examination March 14.

An arraignment on the information is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. April 8 at the out-county branch of Wayne County Circuit Court in Westland. Seguin, 31, pleaded not guilty to the assault charge at his arraignment in 35th District Court Feb. 15. He was freed on 10 percent of a $15,000 bond by Judge John MacDonald, who conducted the hearing for 16th District Court. Assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder is a felony carrying a 10-year prison term and/or a fine.

The charge stems from a Feb. 1 inci-dent which hospitalized former Plymouth resident Nicole Cooper, 20, Seguin's estranged girlfriend. Cooper of Washington Township was treated at Westland Medical Center for internal injuries, facial and head wounds, lacerations, and a possible fracture of the hand allegedly inflicted by Seguin at a friend's house on Stark Road in Livonia, according to Livonia officer Anne-Dempsey of the detective bureau.

Seguin was arrested Feb. 14 during a raid in which officers from four law enforcement -agencies simultaneously converged on his apartment at 8502 Honeytree. Three of the four, Livonia, Canton and the U.S. Treasury Depart-ment, were working together and unaware that the fourth, Dearborn, was working on a different case involving Seguin.

Livonia police had enlisted the help of Canton police officers and a U.S. Treasury Department special agent. According to police, the Treasury agent, from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, seized from Seguin's apartment a Spitfire machine gun - possession of which is a federal offense, although he has not been charged in connection with it.

Dearborn undercover officers were investigating a narcotics case.

Police said they found in Seguin's apartment a quantity of white powdery material later identified by Michigan State police as cocaine. The machine gun and other weapons were confiscated from a gun case in Seguin's bedroom during the raid, according to police.

Old man winter's extended visit put of a crimp in the holiday business in the Plymouth community.

In an unofficial survey of the business areas, the proprietors, almost in chorus, said, "Business is good, but it could be better."

The Midnight Madness campaign downtown didn't draw as many visitors as a year ago. But there were more gusty winds this year than in 1984 and the shop owners expect this will be balanced over the rest of the week.

IN MOST PLACES, especially the restaurants, the parking areas have been filled. The fact some were more crowded than usual was seen as evidence that the people making their visit to the business houses would be back before

A Palm Sunday celebration

EMBERS OF the First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth celebrated Palm Sunday in a special way this

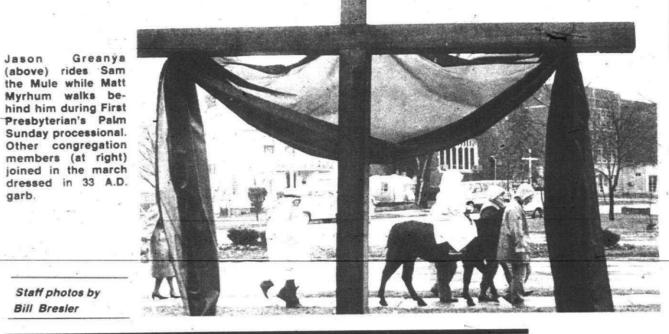

Dressed in costumes characteristic of 33 A.D., members re-enacted the events which marked Palm Sunday when Christ made his triumphant ride into Jerusalem

Led by a donkey and rider, the congregation's procession marched from the church, at the corner of Church and Main, to The Gathering at Kellogg Park. Parishioners waved palm branches along the way, just as the Jews did when Christ made his way through the streets.

Once at The Gathering, a short service was held which included reading scriptures related to Palm Sunday and singing hymns.

Christ went to Jerusalem on Palm Sunday to celebrate the Passover with his disciples. Even as he entered the city and the Jewish nation proclaimed him as messiah, he knew their cries of 'Hosanna'' soon would be exchanged for shouts of rucify Him."

Just days after the triumphant entry, Christ was put to death on the cross - which will be rememered in Good Friday services tomorrow. Easter Sunday marks the celebration of his resurrection and victory over the grave three days after his death, as He had predicted.

Once at Kellogg Park, congregation members took time to read scriptures relating to Palm Sunday and sing some hymns.

supporting a private company. I object to the use of the name Mayflower Hotel, and the fact that it is sponsored by Canton Township," Brown said. "I'm in favor of community promotion, but we are talking about supporting a commercial company with the taxpayer's money."

POOLE EMPHASIZED that the festival could be a twoedged sword. He cited potential problems with congested parking in residential areas, traffic problems and crowd control. "This certainly could be a big promotion for Canton Township, but it might cause more complaints than compliments for us." Poole said. The balloon festival most recently came under fire when promoters Scott Lorenz and Gordon Boring requested use of the Plymouth Township Park. Debate over costs for transporting spectators to the site and costs for repairing the park afterwards led Lorenz and Boring to cancel the festival. Plymouth Township subsequently reserved the park for another group.

It was at that point discussions started with the schools and Canton. - At Monday night's meeting, Thomas said Superintendent

John Hoben and Canton Supervisor James Poole had met with festival promoters and ironed out many of the details for using the CEP "The balloon festival draws thousands of people to our community and we believe it is a good community and family activity," Thomas said.

We felt it would be appropriate to have the festival at the CEP when other arrangements could not be completed," he said.

"The Board of Education recognizes that this event is a showcase for our community and that it contributes to the economic well-being of the area.'

ALTHOUGH DETAILS of the arrangement weren't disclosed, the promoters reportedly have agreed that the school district will not incur any costs.

"We are optimistic that the event will provide an opportunity for our booster clubs to do some fund raising," Thomas said. Plymouth Township's request to receive 10 percent of on-site concessions reportedly was what led to the initial cancellation. Canton Township agreed to co-sponsor the event and will assist in the promotional costs. During intitial talks, Canton has agreed to handle traffic control, coordination of surrounding police departments, locating road signs and crowd control. Boring earlier told the Observer that permission still is needed from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to launch from the CEP. Although the event is running on a tight time schedule, he said details still could be worked out high school assignments has be-come the topic of hot debate at Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meetings. It happens once a year when selections are announced.

Parents and students unhappy with their particular assignments appeal to the school board, asking to be assigned to the signed to. other school. Over the years, the vast majority of requests has come from students assigned to Plymouth Canton High who from which they will graduate. To avoid would prefer to attend Plymouth Salem High. This year is no exception.

Assigning students by random draw to either Salem High or Canton High was initiated to balance populations, to lessen abuses of athletic recruitment, and to avoid any possibility of being charged with de facto segregation (an important factor back when the suburbs were in panic over the possibility of cross-district ousing

Random selection has accomplished those goals. The populations are balanced, abuses of athletic recruiting have been very few, and absolutely no student assignments have been made on the basis of Sometime it is hard to realize how complex state government can be. The state Department of Agriculture has several committees established by law to deal with various agricultural products.

Included are the Apple Committee, the Asparagus Committee, the Bean Commission, the Plum Committee, the Potato Industry Commission and the Soybean Com-

The committees have similar reponsibilities. The Asparagus committee, for example, was established by public act in 1965 to develop an Asparagus Industry Development Program.

Its seven members "oversee conducting promotion and advertising programs and assembling and disseminating market information." Expenses are subscribed by producer assessments. Members are appointed by the governor from lists submitted by asparagus growers.

The school board has recognized that students develop a loyalty to the school split loyalties in a family, the board has allowed siblings to attend the school attended by their older brother or sister if that sibling will be in high school at the same time. Historically, that is the only exception to the random draw. All appeals, no matter how, emotional or rational, have been denied - period!

Now a drive is on to allow an exception for siblings of staff members at the Cenennial Educational Park. Staff members making the appeals, however, are not librarians, custodians, teachers, or cafeteria employees. Rather, the appeal is coming from coaches. That is interesting because athletics is the only area where it makes a difference which school you are assigned.

In sports, you can play only for the team of the school where you are matriculated. While there is one band, one newspaper, one radio station, one forenics team, one yearbook, etc. at CEP, in sports there are two football teams, two basketball teams, two soccer teams, two baseball teams, two swimming teams, two cross country teams, two wrestling teams, etc., etc

If there were only one football team, the appeal now being made from coaches would be satisfied (or one swimming team, one basketball team, one wrestling team, etc.). But that action has broader implications than the question about random selection.

We note, however, that the current appeals are coming from Salem coaches. Coaches of Canton teams are not appearing before the school board asking that students be allowed to attend the school their parents work at.

Does that mean Canton coaches don't have children? Or that siblings of Canton coaches want to compete against their parents? Or that Canton coaches are apa-

Athletics behind most recent upheavel

The arguments made by Salem coaches seemingly apply to librarians, custodians, teachers at both schools, cafeteria employees, security guards and Canton coaches. But in spite of media exposure, the crowd at school board meetings still is dominated by Salem coaches. That says something

SOME ARGUE that a boundary feeder system should be used to determine where students attend high school.

The problem is that there is no precedent for that approach. When Plymouth High School operated in what is now Central Middle School, all high schoolers in Plymouth-Canton attended P.H.S. Where they lived made no difference, and no one talked of boundaries or feeders at the high school level

When old Plymouth High was closed and Salem opened, all high schoolers still attended one building. The geographical boundaries were those of the school district are located in Canton Township? Should we have all students who live in Canton attend Salem High and all Plymouth students attend Canton High? Is that not just as rational as suggesting that Plymouth students should attend Salem and Canton students attend Canton High?

If a geographical boundary approach is

Should we have all students living east of Main Street/Morton Taylor attend Salem and all west-siders attend Canton High? Or should all students living north of Warren Road attend Canton High and those south attend Salem? Are there any rational arguments for these positions?

No. And neither are there any rational arguments for having students living in the western or northern parts of the community attend Salem High.

TRUE, EACH YEAR a crowd of parents storms the school board to protest the random selection process. But it also is true that each year the overwhelming majority of parents and students has not protested. The vast majority realize that it makes little difference which school a student is assigned to, if that student is not an athlete who aspires to be Salem-coached.

Because the balance is almost 50-50 between the schools, the fact that relatively few protest random selection each year may suggest there might be community support for the process. There is little evidence to suggest that large numbers such as a third or even a fourth of the student body - are dissatisfied.

There may be merit in having single athletic teams at the CEP, but no argument has been made to warrant elimination of random selection. The process works, adversely affects only a minority and, barring the lack of any logical alternative, seems to be the best approach.

The administration and board are going to take a long-range look at random selection to consider changes. But major changes should come only after study and considered deliberations - not because of an adverse affect on one group of students, but because it would be in the best interests of the district at large.

And that kind of conclusion will, and should, stand the test of time.

Spinning political wheels

MAYBE THE people doing it feel good. But you have to wonder whether the "peace" groups who picketed Congressman Bill Broomfield's Birmingham office and the anti-tax groups still trying to recall Gov. Jim Blanchard are using their time productively.

Start with the Recall Blanchard movement. Upset with the rules imposed by Secretary of State Richard Austin, they went to Oakland Circuit Court - and lost. They're headed for the Court of Appeals, where they'll no doubt lose again.

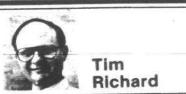

IF THEY CAN even file their petitions, they will need 760,000 signatures, which guarantees only an election, not a recall. On the other hand, it would take only about 9,000 signatures to put a Republican candidate for governor on the ballot in 1986 and 20,000 for a Democratic candidate

For a recall to be successful, you must collect your signatures in a 90-day time span. To nominate another candidate in 1986, you have no time limit.

There are a host of other rules inhibiting recalls.

On a recall, you must use a separate sheet in every city or township, but for a live recall. They wouldn't listen. candidacy you can mix them within a county

The state is telling the recall folks they election. But if they simply nominated an opponent to Blanchard at a normal election, the state would bear the cost. Which is simpler - a recall or a positive campaign for a rival candidate? AT THE VERY beginning, we tried to warn the recall folks.

We told them how difficult it is to pull off a recall, but they wouldn't listen. We respected their views on taxes but suggested they use their energy in supporting a rival to Blanchard in 1986. They wouldn't listen. We told them that people tend to be active in politics an average of 3.8 years (that's based on a Republican Party study of precinct delegates). Since volunteers tend to burn out, we suggested it would be wiser to join an established political party and work for positive change, not a nega-

Now they are snarling at the distinguished judge (with a Republican history) who ruled against them. Meanwhile, would have to bear the cost of a special Blanchard is rising, rising, rising in the opinion polls and hell-bent for re-election. And the recall people spin their wheels.

BROOMFIELD, WHO has been in Congress since the mid-1950s, isn't the most visible officeholder in these suburbs. When he's in town, he speaks to business and banking types who wear three-piece suits and buy tickets to his fund-raisers.

It stands to reason: If you want to hear Bill Broomfield and get his ear, the way to do it is to put on a three-piece suit (or a designer dress, if that's more appropriate), buy a ticket to his fund-raiser and tell him there that you want the U.S. to keep hands off Nicaragua. He would understand that.

Casually dressed folks have picketed Broomfield quite a bit in recent years. His re-election margins keep growing. If American foreign policy is to be changed, the Bill Broomfields of America will change it, not the peace activists. It wasn't John Kennedy who opened Ameri-ca's door to Communist China, but the red-baiting Richard Nixon. It wasn't retail merchant Bill Milliken who changed state government's bad attitude toward corporations, but the supposedly liberal

Jim Blanchard. Pickets make good news copy and pictures. But they aren't achieving positive change

Granpy launched an orator's career AFTER TRAVELING along life's highway for any length of time, a fellow gets a yearning to turn back and relive some of the days of his youth.

Each year as we enter Easter week, The Stroller thinks of the days of long ago when this was the day for the big family dinner

It wasn't the food that brought back the memories. It was the visit with Granpy Edgar when the meal was finished.

Grandmother raised chickens, so we always had full and plenty to eat. But after dinner it was something different. Granpy took all the boys into the parlor and chatted with us. He asked all sorts of questions. When he was finished getting the information he wanted, he would ask us to recite for him.

KNOWING THAT was what he was after. The Stroller always memorized some verses and was ready when called upon. This always pleased the old gent, whose daily occupation was piling up cast iron pieces on what was called the iron wharf back home.

With this background, one never would guess the old gent had a love of poetry. So when the others were finished, he called on The Stroller, and then came the thrill.

On one particular Easter Sunday, he stepped to the center of the room in front of the kind old gent and recited "The Village Blacksmith." As he went from verse to verse, he noticed the smile on the old gent's face. And he knew Granpy was going to be pleased.

When the verses were ended, Granpy ret up, grabbed The Stroller around the Iders and praised him for a fine effort.

"Some day you could be an after-dinner speaker," he whispered. "that would be a lot of fun for you. So don't ever give up."

SO WHEN Easter week comes along, the memory of that particular Easter years ago comes back, too. In memory, The Stroller always has a fine visit with his granddaddy.

As the years passed and he came west from the Pennsylvania Dutch country, the prophecy came true. He was here only a short time when he was invited to address a luncheon club. From that day on, the Stroller was more or less a regular on the lettuce circuit.

Each time he spoke before these luncheon groups, his memory carried him back to that Easter Sunday afternoon when his grandfather hinted it was going to happen.

SO THIS Easter Sunday afternoon, there will be no colored eggs in the little white house with the green shutters. We have outlived that custom and favor softboiled eggs for Easter Sunday breakfast.

But as he sits there enjoying his meal, The Stroller's mind will carry him back to the old home town and family dinner, and then meeting with Granpy Edgar. That takes the lead over colored eggs, the coming of rabbits and all other traditions.

Easter Sunday memories are a thrifl, and The Stroller's only wish is that he could return for another visit with Granpy in the parlor

Then his Easter would be complete.

'Far-fetched' idea becomes a reality

By Elinor Graham staff writer

It's being referred to as a "marriage of sculpture and architecture.

Whatever the name, a one-man show of Peter Rockwell's works in a Frank Lloyd Wright house is an impressive undertaking

What began as a glimmer of an idea almost two years ago, will become a reality May 9 when the Plymouth Community Arts Council opens the 20-day show. A shuttle-bus service will transport guests from the Frame Works on Penniman Avenue to the Frank Lloyd Wright house recently purchased by Tom Monaghan, owner of the Detroit Tigers and Domino's Pizza.

Sculptor Peter Rockwell, son of artist Norman Rockwell, is coming from Italy a few days before the opening. He will be here to set up his marble and bronze sculptures in the "Snowflake House" and its surrounding gardens. The works-are being shipped from his studio in Rome for the show.

THE ARTS TOUR of Italy in June 1983 attracted 22 members of the arts council and their families. The tour had suggested by Ruth Tonner, been humanities teacher at the Centennial Educational Park, and arranged by the PCAC.

Tonner's knowledge of the area and the art community gave the group an inside look. She arranged for special guides who were experts in their fields. She was responsible for their introduction to Peter Rockwell and, later, an invitation to his home.

Janet Campbell, PCAC president, suggested to Rockwell that he show his works in Plymouth. He seemed receptive to the idea - if the time were con venient. About 14 months ago, he said he'd come

Arts council members were considering a site for the show and about a year ago, they thought of the Frank Lloyd Wright house. They were told it should be available during a transition eriod in May 1985.

They had the artist and famous "Snowflake House." The hexagonal structure has four levels and seven flat, sky-lighted roof lines that harmonize with the site. Wright also designed the furniture for the house so that the land, the structure and the interior are one. The bedroom wing designed by Wright. was added later.

HELEN MILLIKEN agreed to be, honorary chair of the show. The Frame Works would be a co-sponsor and the shuttle-bus will leave there every half hour. Video tapes of the artist and his works may be viewed at Frame Works during the show.

Partial funding came from the Michigan Council for the Arts. Rockwell will give a special lecture in Plymouth Canton High School Little Theater.

The opening benefit reception will be 7-10 p.m. Friday, May 10. Admission will be $25 and guests will have an opportunity to meet the sculptor. After May 11, the show will be open to the public free.

Composer Robert Jones and violist Jean Braun collaborate on the viola symphony, which will premiere at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 14, at the Plymouth Symphony concert.

Moving to Plymouth after graduating from college in 1957, Braun taught Jones, admitting to being "sort of disa few years in elementary schools but heartened." Since 1982, President Richhas been mainly a private teacher and avid promoter - of the viola.

Doktor, a viola star who has recorded on the Deutsche Grammaphon label, is her hero. The April 14 concert will be his second appearance with the PSO and his fourth in the western suburbs. Jones, too, admires Doktor as "an excellent performer, teacher and editor."

JONES IS a keyboard musician who frankly admits that "the only thing I can write without help is a piano concerto."

In the months that Jones worked on the viola concerto, Braun ran through the solo part, "testing it to see what works." Jones called her "much too modest" about her role. The score was mailed to Doktor. Jones said the soloist "polished up things like balancing runs. He's the shaper. It takes these shapers. It's a constant team effort. You gotta have all this help."

The practice is common. Brahms, Beethoven and Tchaikovsky needed help on their violin concertos, and even Mozart worked with soloists in serving up his clarinet concerto and four horn concertos.

JONES WAS hired at Schoolcraft College in 1969 as composer-in-residence under a Ford Foundation grant. Previously, he taught at all levels in Hartford, Conn.

The community college's fine arts director was Wayne Dunlap, who doubled then as conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. Dunlap's idea was that Jones would compose for all sorts of community groups in the metropolitan area. As it turned out, most of Jones' bigger compositions were for the PSO - including a folk opera based on Shaker themes and "A. Plymouth Symphony."

Disappointed at Schoolcraft's failure to build a fine arts auditorium and teaching center, Dunlap left for Grand

Jones on the viola neglected, sensuous

Here are composer Robert W. Jones' program notes for his Concerto for Viola and Orchestra. It will receive its initial performance at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 14, in Plymouth Salem High School, Joy west of Canton Center Road, by the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra with Paul Doktor as soloist.*General admission is $6.

FACE IT. The viola is a peglected instrument. In the string family, the only one given shorter shrift is the string bass.

For hundreds of years, first the violin, then the cello inspired enough literature to keep an army of virtuosi busy for a good half-century. The viola? Well, it's always been there. When somebody needed a "pah-pah-pah" to follow the basses' "oom," guess who got the job.

In Haydn's early quartets, the first violin got the meaty melodies, the second violin got the countermelodies, and the cello bolstered the bass. Guess who got the fillers.

When Paganini asked Berlioz to write him a piece for viola and orchestra, Berlioz gave the melodies to the orchestra. Guess who got the accompaniment.

When Richard Strauss turned to Cervantes for inspiration, he gave (the role sof) Don Quizote to the cello. Guess who got Sancho Panza. Got the picture?

I CAME late in life to an appreciátion of the gorgeous, sensuous velvet that is the viola. I've written only one other concerto, and that was 23 years ago - for cello.

When I began to get deeply involved with violists and the viola, my eyes were opened. I began to investigate the literature.

I came to the conclusion that, for me, the greatest 20th-century composer for the viola was Paul Hindemith - because he was not only a masterful composer but also an accomplished working violist. He loved the instrument and wrote long and lovingly for it. After him, Bartok and Walton. After them, Porter and Piston.

I welcomed the opportunity.

THIS CONCERTO was written for Paul Doktor as the result of a dinner conversation. Many things begin that way.

I'd sketched a couple of movements for a viola concerto 10 years ago at the MacDowell Colony, but when I took them out and looked at them, I realized that my thinking had changed so much since then that it was time for a whole new start.

I sat down one day during the early spring of 1984 and let the juices flow

All four movements of the concerto are derived from the motive expressed in the opening measures by the chimes, vibraphone and solo viola ... Today it's considered "old hat" for comp to use the austere classic formal enclo

To fling or not to fling — aye that's the rub

Let's take this step by step with honest, considerate, conscientious, goodnatured cooperation. Tall order, I know. But in this community, I think we can do it.

First and foremost, let's hang up our egos and try to communicate. The issue is the Cow Chip Fling. The problem is: to be or not to be.

Thus far, the only decision has been to reinstate the fling until some sort of community feedback can be attained. The biggest question remaining seems to be how to attain the feedback.

If only I could make decisions the way the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) does.

Just imagine. Get up in the morning and have to figure out what to have for breakfast. "First," I'd say to myself in keeping with the spirit of the MHSAA, "I have to recognize all the far-reaching implications of my decision. Heavens, all the people that could be affected!' Organizing myself with true-blue bureaucratic efficiency, I would dissect the problem and examine it piecemeal. Of course, I wouldn't make a move without the full support of those involved.

"Well, dear wife, what do you think I should have?" I would ask my dear wife. All answers would be duly recorded.

"Well, dear cat, what do you think I should have?" I would ask my dear cat. Any discernable answer would be duly recorded, then forwarded to Ripley's Believe It or Not.

AFTER TABULATING the results, I would then announce my monumental decision, if I could come to one. Of course, by then it would be lunchtime anyway

Imagine trying to decide something really important, like what color underwear to wear! Well, okay, so I sound a little silly. But I won't admit to exaggeration. For instance, see how the MHSAA has treated the most controversial matter put before it: the football playoffs.

"Let's take a poll," was their reply to the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association, which requested an expanded playoff format for the second time in 2 years. Remember last year. The football coaches association thought it had a good plan and presented it to the MHSAA's Representative Council, a noble body of 19 which professes to present the wishes of the high schools of Michigan. The coaches wanted to expand the football playoffs to include 32 teams per class, instead of eight.

THE COACHES obviously didn't realize what they were asking - or from whom. A change that severe was far too drastic for the MHSAA. Not too surprisingly, the Representative Council turned them down flat.

There were problems with that plan, to be sure: longer playoffs, shorter regular season schedules, the possibility of playing two games in 1 week. Radical changes, far too radical for the MHSAA to even consider.

So the coaches put together another playoff plan. This one is far different from the first. It's reasonable, logical and fair. It certainly seems better than the present format.

That makes it dangerous to the MHSAA. It could even result in - Heaven forbid! - a change

The plan calls for expanding the playoffs to 16

It was as if the ball was coming down in slow motion. Chris Gilles stood poised to kill the return. She had her opponent so far out of position, the point seemed a cinch. Slam! Gilles whacked the tennis ball with a mighty force

"I don't believe it," Gilles shrieked in a voice that was part whimper and part scream

The shot landed inches outside the line.

Homecomings can be awfully cruel sometimes Chris Gilles the former high school all-stater from Plymouth Salem now the No. 1 singles player at the University of Wisconsin, played tennis before the home folks Sunday morning for the first time this year.

A large contingent of family and friends turned out, at 8:30, to see Gilles and Wisconsin take on the University of Michigan in a Big 10 match at the Huron Valley Tennis Club. Wisconsin won, Gilles lost.

"I WAS really glad everyone came," Gilles said. "I really wanted to see everyone and I'm glad they wanted to see me. But, I was really, really nervous.-I'm not blaming the loss on that. I'm blaming me, mentally. Even after I got over being nervous, I didn't pull it out." U-M's Paula Reichert, of Grosse Pointe, outlasted Gilles in the 21/2 hour match, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5. Gilles had led 5-4 in the third set.

It was another in a long series of tough moments for the attractive and personable freshman this season - the type of tough moments that are often referred to as character builders.

"She's playing No. 1 singles and she's taking her lumps," said Wisconsin coach Kelly Ferguson, a two-time NCAA champion. "It's tough playing No. 1 with type of schedule we have. She's had some great wins, but she's also lost matches she should have won.'

Wisconsin has played 10 of the nation's top 20 teams already this season. Gilles, after beating Michigan State's Trish Bandenbrink, 6-0, 6-4, Saturday and losing to Reichert Sunday, is 12-8 in singles. Wisconsin is 11-10.

FERGUSON ISN"T too concerned about Gilles' ability in singles.

"She'll be all-Big 10, I'm 80 percent sure of that. And she should go to nationals. The top four singles players from the region qualify for nationals, and Chris is ranked No. 3 right now," Ferguson said.

But there are other areas, Ferguson said, in which Gilles needs plenty of work. Like in doubles play, where Gilles began the season at No. 1, slipped to No. 2 and now is playing at No. 3.

Chris Gilles has been everything I hoped she'd be when I recruited her. She's very, very tough. A great competitor.'

> - Kelly Ferguson Wisconsin coach

(P.C)1C

"She needs to work on her doubles game," Ferguson said. "I hope that's what she concentrates on this summer. We've not been picking up many points in doubles and that's been hurting us this season."

Said Gilles: "No, I don't really like playing doubles. At the beginning, it. was real tough on me. Now I'm just going out there to have fun. I'm playing No. 3 now and it's a lot easier. We're winning. We'll have a winning doubles record by the end of the year. Playing No. 3 is fine with me, whatever helps the team win."

FERGUSON LIKES to hear Gilles talk in terms of "the team." The two have locked horns on the issue a couple of times. After a recent loss, Gilles wondered how the loss would affect her chances for the nationals. Ferguson's reply was stern: Don't put your personal accomplishments and goals ahead of the team's.

"That's been hard for me," Gilles said. "I have a problem thinking in terms of the team. If the team won and I lost, I'm not happy and I should be. But, I'm never happy when I lose. Don't get me wrong, I am happy for the team when we win. It's just I take my losses harder than I should. I have to understand that it's more of a team thing."

Gilles is in the throes of a slump. She has lost four of her last six matches. Yet, nobody is worried. In three of the four losses, Gilles played very well against superior competition.

"Chris Gilles has been everything I hoped she'd be when I recruited her," Ferguson said. "She's very, very tough. A great competitor."

Gilles, despite the ups and downs, is happy with her freshman season.

"This is good for me," she said. "I mean, the girls I'm playing are about ready to turn pro. I know now what I have to do to get to that level."

There's something to be said for taking lumps, even if the lumps spoil a homecoming.

playoffs, but, according to the coaches plan, teams would be selected after 8 games. The first playoff game would be played on the season's ninth week

Schools could still schedule opponents for the ninth week and switch for the playoffs. For example, if Farmington Harrison and Plymouth Salem were to meet in the opening round of the state playoffs, the team's they scheduled for their final games would play each other instead.

The MHSAA has answered this threat with its normal dodge-the-bullet strategy: they conducted a poll. Know what they found? Nearly 70 percent of the schools that replied (713 received questionaires, 580 answered) favored expanding the playoffs.

Of course, as the MHSAA might point out, more than a quarter liked things just the way they are. And the poll results didn't convince some people, like MHSAA assistant director Warren McKenzie.

McKenzie told O&E sports editor Chris McCosky that some school principals gave the survey to their football coaches and let them fill it out

"Many superintendents, we understand, are upset with their principals for voting to expand the playoffs," McKenzie said.

If you think that sounds like the makings of a dodge, you're not alone. The MHSAA is supposed to make a decision on the matter May 5-8 at its annual meeting in Cadillac.

MY PERSONAL poll on what that decision will be revealed the following

· 10 percent figure the MHSAA will favor the new playoff format,

• 30 percent figure the MHSAA will can it;

· 50 percent figure they'll find some way to table it for another year;

• 10 percent figure they'll ignore it altogether.

What are the MHSAA's true feelings on the subject? Here's what one MHSAA insider told McCosky:

"I think the whole playoff thing is a problem. It's not good for the sport and it's not good for the kids. If it has any value at all, it's to satisfy the whims of adult coaches egos." With an attitude like that, I can't see the MHSAA ever expanding the playoffs. Their " perception is dismal: The bigger the playoffs, the bigger their headache.

Lansing club gets gym title

The Great Lakes Gymnastics Club of Lansing dominated the prestigious Capitol Cup Gymnastics Meet in Lansing capturing team honors in both the 13-15 and 10-12 age groups.

The Capitol Cup is a United States Gymmastics Federation (USGF) compulsory meet for Class I and Class II male gymnasts. Top scorers from the Capitol Cup go towards qualifying for national competition in June.

Great Lakes, led by Brian Halstead of Lansing and Adrian Besancon of Livonia, outpointed the Farmington Gymnastics Club 163.7-137.4 in the 13-15 division

Halstead won all-around honors with a 55.9 score, Besancon, who placed first on pommel horse (9.6) and rings (9.1), was second all-around with a 54.7

For Farmington, Bret Trocchio placed sixth allaround (46.3) and placed first on floor exercise (9.5). David Thomas scored a 9.0 on pommel horse and placed third.

IN THE 10-12 division, Great Lakes topped Farmington 157-144.65. Blake Gymnmastics Club of Warren placed third, 138.65.

Livonia's John Besancon took all-around honors for Great Lakes with a 53.3. He placed first on floor (9.0), rings (9.0) and parallel bars (9.0).

Farmington's Doug Stibel placed eighth allaround (49.2) and fourth on floor (8.7). Teammate Nathan Blackburn placed ninth all-around with a 48.95 and fourth on rings (8.3).

Farmington had the lone competitors in the Class I 16-18 age group. Todd Olson of Canton won allaround honors with a 40.5. Chris Jeannotte, also from Canton, was second (36.9).

The Farmington Gymnastics Club was the site of the first Mid-American Team Classic, a USGF optional meet, last Saturday. Again, Great Lakes was the dominant team, outscoring the four other compétitors including runner-up Midwest Twisters from Wisconsin Farmington placed third.

Halstead (50.55) and Adrian Besancon (49.4) placed 1-2 all-around for Great Lakes.

SEASON OPENER!

Chiefs hungry for WLAA title

By Chris McCosky staff writer

It seems a little funny to hear Plym outh Canton baseball coach Fred Crissey calling for a return to excellence in

After all, Crissey's Chiefs have compiled records of 17-7 and 18-7 the past Western Six League titles in seven wo seasons - 220-68 since 1974. Believe it or not, though, the 1983 and 1984 Chief teams did not play typical Plymouth Canton-style ball. As a

years, have yet to win a Western Lakes crown. "I think pitching and defense will be our strengths this year," Crissey said The defense hasn't been there for two years. In 1981 and 1982 we played sound defense and hit 25 to 30 home runs (and compiled a 53-8 record). In '83 we hit home runs but the defense wasn't there. I think we're ready to reurn to what earned us our reputation."

There's another characteristic of this 1985 team that is reminiscent of the Canton glory days.

"CHEMISTRY-WISE, it's been a pleasure to work with this group," Crissey said. "They are just outstanding, the dedication, the enthusiasm - these are things we've missed the last two years also. I don't know how we'll play, I'm not about to make any predictions. But, you kind of get a gut feeling about these kids."

Of the 25 athletes on Crissey's roster. 16 are honor students. And a good number are experienced and talented play ers weaned on Canton baseball.

Pitching will key the Chiefs in '85 and Crissey received an early Christmas present. Left-hander Mark Coburn, an all-Catholic pitcher at Redford Bishop Borgess last season, has transferred to Canton. He, along with flame-throwing right-hander Buckey Blake (3-1 last year despite tendonitis in his throwing arm), will anchor the Chiefs' mound corps. Mike Clark (3-1 last year) and John

Title contenders? Livonia schools look to move up the ladder

By Rich Swenson staff writer

Livonia high school girls track teams hope to rebound from an "off season" last year in Western Lake Activities Association (WLAA) competition

Last season, traditionally strong Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Churchill were upstaged by two Farmington schools - Farmington High and Harrison - which tied for the league title. But with a few breaks, both schools could make a run at the championship this year. Livonia Bentley, entering its last track season (the school is closing) just hopes to improve on last year's dismal season, in which the Bulldogs won only one dual meet.

The Spartans gave the best Livonia showing last season, finishing a respectable fourth. But perennia contender Livonia Churchill limped in a disappointing eighth while Livonia Bentley came in dead last, unable to record a single point.

The 1985 season should be different, however, according to coaches. Also previewed will be Livonia Clarenceville of the Metro Conference

"We should be decent - maybe not the top, but decent," she said. "We hope to finish in the middle of the pack.

ANOTHER JAZZ great comes to the metro area when trumpeter Freddie Hubbard joins the MPJMA Jazz Repertory Orchestra for a concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 13, at the Wayne Community Arts Auditorium on Cass Avenue in Detroit.

Wendell Harrison, Pamela Wise and Harold McKinney. "We've got, a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts to put this con-

1960s and '70s, Hubbard was frequently voted No. One Jazz Trumpeter by Downbeat magazine polls. In addition to recording more than 30 albums, Hubbard has played jazz concerts and festivals all over the world. Although more recently surpassed in popularity Woody Shaw and Wynton Marsalis, Hubbard is - as the title of his latest album release suggests - a classic jazz trumpeter. For instance, in the 1930s and '40s. you always knew who led the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra, the Freddy Martin Orchestra or the Artie Shaw Orchestra

In the 1950s, what with the advent of MPJMA stands for the Michigan rock 'n' roll, musical groups took on Professional Jazz Musicians Associa-tion, which is presenting a spring fund-names like the Flamingos, the Coastraising concert featuring the music of ... ers, the Del Vikings, the Teenagers, the Fleetwoods and the Kingston Trio. Into the 1960s, the creativity in naming bands and groups was near a high - in more ways than one. You had groups like Steppenwolf, Jefferson Airplane Blue Cheer and Strawberry Alarn Clock.

> That trend toward self-expression in names continues today, though into the present decade almost anything goes when a group selects a name. You can find bands called Twisted Sister, Duran Duran, Loverboy, Yellow Jacket, Flock of Seagulls and Revolution.

All of which brings me to a look at some local pop bands. Reviewing a list ing, I ran across these gems: Benny and the Jets, Bonnie and the Working Girls, the Born Again Virgins, Boss Rhino, Good Catholic Boys, Moose and Da Sharks and Otis and the Elevators.

Jerry Patlow, a Redford theatrical agent for the last 22 years, manages and books local bands. Besides representing the "West Side Story"-sounding REMEMBER THE good old days Benny and the Jets, Patlow also books a group called Wedsel's Edsels

Gene Ferris wrote a Christmas song and recorded it with the Jordanaires, but it didn't get the airplay he expected. Ferris continues to write songs, hoping that one of his country tunes becomes a hit someday. He also has his own band, the Paupers, with whom he plays rhythm guitar. Other band members are Jess Childers, bass guitar; Bill White, lead guitar and Don Houston, drums.

Mexican eatery adds Italian food

A restaurant that opened a year ago as Chico's, specializing in Mexican food, has undergone a name and menu change, now expanded to include Italian food.

Jalapeno Pete's & Pasta, across the street from the Westland shopping mall, is run by Sam Cusimano, who is principal owner and general manager. His brother, Fritz, is head chef who does the Italian specialties in the kitchen. "All the sauces are fresh made to order," Sam Cusimano said. When the restaurant first opened.

the idea was to capitalize on the poj larity of Mexican food. But the brothers, with their Italian heritage, decided to add the kind of food they were most familiar with, and now pasta and other Italian dishes abound on a separate section of the menu.

Since Mexican, Chinese and Italian are the three top ethnic kinds of food. We figured we had two out of three. Cusimano said.

Called Jalapeno Pete's and Pasta since December, the restaurant has a traditional Mexican decor, to which

"Superman II" (1980). 8 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Originally 127 minutes. TV time slot: 180 min-

Writers and producers who began to run out of ideas about three-quarters of the way through the original 'Superman'' here prove that a dearth of good, new material can't stand in the way of a sequel. Even comic book movies have to maintain semblance of credibility, yet 'Superman II" has none. Why, for instance, broadcast that Superman, once transformed permanently and irrevocably into Clark Kent, cannot again become the man of steel only have him retransformed into Superman to save the day near film's end? And what ever happens to Lex Luthor's assistant, Valerie Perrine, who simply drops out of the movie about half way through? Bevond the incredulities, "Superman I" has none of the warmth or depth of character that the original offers. It also reveals the limited acting ability of Christopher Reeve, who looked solid in "Superman," but very wooden in later works such as this one, "Somewhere in Time" and "Monsignor." A squealing Margot Kidder's no treat either, but bad guys Gene Hackman, Sarah Douglas and Terence Stamp get their fangs into too-limited parts. Ned Beatty. Susannah York, Jackie Cooper and E.G. Marshall co-star and are completely wasted.

Rating: 75 cents.

"Young Doctors in Love" (1982), 9 p.m. Monday on Ch. 7. Originally 95 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes

Producer/director Garry Marshall, who gave us TV's "Laverne & Shirley," is behind "Young Doctors in Love," a satire about as subtle as a shotgun blast. It's inspired by the zany ."Airplane!" but isn't as good, high. Dabney Coleman, Michael responsible for last year's "Flamin- highly. go Kid," a tender and occasionally

"Jesus Christ, Superstar" (1973), 12:30 Monday night on Ch. 7. Orignally 103 minutes. TV time slot: 235 minutes.

Happy Easter, everyone. And here's the perfect film to mark the holy day. Writers Tim Rice and An drew Lloyd Webber's "Jesus Christ Superstar" is superbly tranferred from Broadway to the big screen by director Norman Jewison who, as usual, imbues the film with a clean, vibrant look. Credit, too, einematog rapher Douglas Slocombe (who also worked with Jewison on the visually distinct "Rollerball") for the breathtaking visuals. The rest of the applause goes to Webber and Rice who also wrote "Evita," for their provocative and moving play. Ted veeley and Yvonne Elliman star. Rating: $3.20.

"Gable and Lombard" (1976) 12:30 Wednesday night on Ch. 7. Driginally 131 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Just a brief blurb to cue you in on one of the worst movies ever made James Brolin and Jill Clayburgh who have distinguished themselves in other quarters, are absolutely yet just might play well on the home horrendous as the mythic Clark screen, where expectations aren't so Gable and Carol Lombard. Brolin's performance, especially, has to be McKeon and Harry Dean Stanton seen to be disbelieved. For unintendstar. # Works call for sense of humor

The Detroit Contemporary Chamber presented its latest program of contemporary music Friday. The program featured music by Ramon Zupko, Sydney Hodkinson, Michael Colgrass and Igor Stravinsky

If one were to ask to choose the "odd one" in the above list, that wouldn't be too difficult. None of the first three enjoys the universal reputation of Stravinsky. The question of who is the more established composer is beside the point, however. The works of the esser-known composers on this program did provide musical interest on their own, even if one prefers more established works. But even the work y Stravinsky, his 1918 composition "L'histoire du oldat." (The Soldier's Tale), isn't part of the standard repertoire.

The opening work by Zupko, who was present titled "Fixations," featured a trio for piano, violin and cello, supplmented by prerecorded sounds of these instruments (not with the identical perform-

The interaction between the players and the recorded sound seemed to be spontaneous and real at some points. The trio on stage consisted of pianist Robert Conway, violinist Magdalen Heilbronn and cellist Marcy Chanteaux.

THE WORK by Hodkinson, "The Dissolution of the Serial," featured Barrett Kalellis at the piano and James Dawson, playing interchangeably soprano and alto saxophone. The work, as the name implies, features gradual transition from atonality to tonality.

Dawson, a regular performer on this series and on the faculty of Oakland University, was impressive in his ability to produce so many varying sounds on his instrument and displayed fine tech-

REFERRED to as "art Negre," the Trocadero Museum possessed a large number and wide variety of African objects. Undoubtedly, Picasso had access to these tribal works. After "De-moiselles," Picasso became an avid Essentially, the religious fetishes of the tribal objects are translated and modernized into new meaning. Like "Bust of a Woman," Brancusi's "Ma-dame L. R." 1914-18, was inspired by a reliquary figure of Hongwe also on view at the Trocadero.

A Zuni war god mask on view at the Berlin Museum inspired Paul Klee's "Mask of Fear," 1932 and gives social commentary. Giacometti's bronze, "Spoon Woman," 1926-27, incorporates the spoons of the Ivory coast in a metaphoric statement that renders the female body as a vessel.

JUST AS the European artists sought inspiration from African and Oceanic cultures, American artists, such as Jackson Pollack looked to North America. Inspired, he began a genuine engagement with the primitive. Not only is his interest in native American art evident in his color sense (yellow, red, black) but in "Birth," 1939-40, there is an unmistakable resemblance to Eskimo masks as he combines tribal design with an image of primal male and female forces.

no documented evidence that Miro was directly influenced by the Eskimo objects. Miro may or may not have seen the tribal masks, but certainly he was aware of the culture. The tribal arts have a simplicity and basic form that transcends time and sends its message

Young poet finds words come easily

By Mary Klemic staff writer

At the age of 25, Robin Smith is practically an old hand at poetry.

The Livonia resident has been writing since she was in grade school. A poem she wrote on Columbus was the winning entry in a contest in fifth grade.

"It was something I always did. It wasn't something I aspired to," Smith said. "I just loved English, I loved to read.

SMITH WILL be one of eight writers who will participate in readings called "New Voices in Michigan Poetry," part of the Poetry Resource Center of Michigan's ninth annual Michigan Poetry Festival this year. The restival ton. This year's eight poets were chosen where things come from.

from more than 100 contestants.

"I was really thrilled," said Smith, who submitted five poems for consideration. "I think it's a good chance to meet a lot of other writers from around the state and let your work be known." Smith's work has appeared in publications at Western Michigan University, where she attended, and Wayne State University, but she never has taken part in public readings before.

THE POET has her dry spells, but most of the time she finds it easy to write. Many of Smith's ideas come to her right before she goes to sleep. She thinks a work is finished when it moves from one idea to another smoothly and "hangs together."

Sometimes I work and work (at a poem) until it seems like there's nothing else I can get rid of."

Smith writes for everyone to read, not one certain group of people. She will polish a poem until it communicates what she wants, but she doesn't mind if readers give it an interpretation different than she has intended. "That's OK," Smith said. "After I write it, in a way it's not mine any

SMITH IS FROM a creative family. One of her sisters paints, while another writes fiction. Her mother, who works as a mime, was active in community theater and also wrote poetry. In high school, Smith's favorite poets Smith said. "He likes to turn the pagincluded Sylvia Plath, Carl Sandburg, .es."

Robert Frost and other poets. "I never got into traditional classical rhymed material," Smith said. "My work is free verse and imagistic. That's pretty broad."

Smith wants to keep writing until she compiles enough works to put in a book. She also would like to take classes to finish a degree in English.

"THE ONLY goal I really have is someday I would like to have a book published of my own work," the poet said. "I don't see that happening until I'm much older."

Smith doesn't write every day, although she belongs to a writing group. She finds time for poetry around her job as a computer operator at WSU and taking care of 3-year-old son Colin.

Well we're open in our new store. Terrance Corners is a beautiful place for an art store and school. As of this writing, however, parts of the ceiling are off and six of the 24 drafting tables have yet to be assembled. I even have to "beat it" over there before 10 a.m. to reprogram the cash registers. Even though we worked around the clock for two weeks, we still have a million things to do.

Moving stock around is kind of a joke in the store, and we will probably still be moving shelves and stock for the next month. Sandy's a good one for that. She wanted us to move an 8-by-12 foot mat board display, "just six inches to the right."

"Six inches." I said, "we would need

artifacts

at least 10 men and a hi-lo to move that thing one inch.'

I'd swim the deepest ocean and climb the highest mountain for her, but I ain't gonna move that mat board display. Anyway, there is no way I could say that we are really ready to open, but we are

COME TO think of it, this certainly is a bad week to continue my two part article on "follow through." I fell asleep three times writing it, I hope you don't fall asleep reading it.

Last week I ended my article with the "follow through" principle with the basic elements of No. 1, a good idea or subject. No. 2, the technical skill to rightly represent the idea or subject. No. 3, the presentation of the well-executed idea or subject. The lack of any one of the three will result as a flaw in your follow through. A good idea rendered poorly is no better off than a poor idea rendered well. Even a good idea rendered well is halted if it is poorty presented.

So first off I would like to briefly hit some of the top ten road blocks on your highway to successful follow through. rcolor the easiest way to stifle In wat your follow through is to do too much. Over painting or scrubbing in watercolor causes the beautiful bleeds to flatten out into boring shapes of solid color. New students in watercolor should "play" with "bleeds" or "wet in wet" techniques until they feel comfortable. Try with one brush or just wet the area you wish to color. Then with another brush full of color touch into the wet area. Enjoy the bleed and flow of color and resist adding in more color until the bleed of color has stopped.

Most new students just keep brushing or scrubbing the area and end up with a flat color. In pastels I tell my students that the first road block to their follow through is that of over bleeding. I think there is something therapeudic about rubbing our fingers on pastels. Maybe it goes back to when we used to rub the satin ribbon on our "nigh-nighs" or "hlankies."

WHATEVER, MOST students if not warned will rub their pastel pictures so much that the details are lost under a misty cloud of multicolored dust. Well it may help produce a better pastel rendering if you do not blend with your fingers as much and simply use the different colors of pastels to rub into each other and therefore, blend with each other. This technique in pastel will pro-duce rich colors and relatively clear images. Charcoals are usually flat because they do not span the gamut of grays to black. If your charcoal is not black enough then try using soft compressed charcoal to produce rich blacks and emphasize the grays.

Pen and ink short comings are usually due to lines that are not fine enough. Even in pen and ink "learn to draw' books, it looks like the artist should retire his quill tip in lieu of a technical pen. There are plenty of times I use quill tips and dip them in black magic ink. But for most of my realistic pen and ink, I prefer the regularity of a good technical pen.

For beginning pen and ink, you should have a "20-by-0" and a "4-by-0" and work your drawing no larger than 11 inches by 14 inches. Air brushing has plenty of opportunities to stumble. One common goof is, over spraying your frisket or template. So much so that you see the light line of the outer limits of your template misted across your artwork.

Another common short coming is when you have a large dot or "grainy" spray pattern. This is always caused by too heavy a consistency of paint either or too little air to rightly atomize the paint.

ONE LAST warning when peeling frisket be sure you peel up all your planned too. Because frisket is transparent it is very common to not see some little section of frisket. Then when that over looked piece is painted it begins to show up. To better see your frisket tip the illustration board so that the light reflects off from the surface of the frisket.

In gouache or opaque watercolor it is best. I feel, to keep your paint thin and start out with a transparent wash effect then move towards opacity. The biggest draw back to realistic coloring is that students do not carefully study the many shades and tints even in solid colors. Every color is affected by its surrounding colors and light source or reflected light from off of other objects.

Many first time scratch-boards seem to find their way into the circular file. Perhaps the fate of many could be changed if only the artist kept their lines tiny and accurate, and in addition learn how to sharpen a scratchpoint on a sharpening stone. A good scratch point drawing may require from three to 10 sharpenings. The presentation is the final step in follow through. Presentation merely means how you present or show your work. All artwork should at least be matted to be protected from the finger prints of adoring viewers. Of course artwork is even better presented when framed.

There is just something about the clean edge of a mat, the make of the frame molding and the flatness of the glass, that truly finishes a piece of art-work. Use the "follow through princi-ple" in all you do. It certainly could pertain to much more than just artwork . . . except maybe when it comes to moving an art store.
