followed a trail of car parts. The car just disintegrated. We later heard that the victim became a quadriplegic, said Peru, who lives at the corner of Surrey Heights and Cherry Hill with his wife and two daughters.

In the last three years at that address, the Perus say they have witnessed several accidents, from fender benders to fatalities, some occurring in Canton and some in Westland. Their house is in Westland but their backyard borders on Canton.

The most recent accident involved a 14-year-old girl hit by a car as she walked along the shoulder of Cherry Hill west of John Hix on the night of

> "ALTHOUGH DRIVER fault is always a factor, even an untrained observer can realize that the poor conditions at these two intersections contrib-ute a great deal to the problem," Peru said in his last letter to county officials.

> Peru's main objection is to the 45 mph speed limit posted for Cherry Hill from Newburgh west through the city limit. East of Newburgh, the speed limit drops to 40 mph and then down to 35 mph further east.

> "Forty-five mph was appropriate when this area was rural. But it's very built up now," said Peru, who works the afternoon shift at the Ypsilanti Hydra-Matic plant. "At 45 mph, you are equating this residential area on Cherry Hill with Ford Road, a state highway

Pedestrians and bicyclists trying to PERU ALSO advocates that the county install flashing caution lights near the subtle curve on Cherry Hill at the city border - the site of last year's car disintegration accident. And he thinks a three-foot asphalt strip is needed along Cherry Hill all the way to Canton Center Road.

There is no shoulder, and the road is too narrow," he said. "There's no margin for error. Every 10th car that goes by, you can hear the right tire go off the road. I'm just waiting for a car to careen into our yard.

Westland police have recorded four accidents at the corner of Cherry Hill and John Hix in the first seven months of 1985. Three involved property damage, the fourth involved a pedestrian, according to Lt. Al Billings in the traffic bureau. No accidents have been reported this year at Surrey Heights and Cherry Hill, he said.

The intersection of Cherry Hill and John Hix has Please turn to Page 4 been a hazardous one, according to some residents. The post was hit six months ago by a driver who was forced off the road by a drunk driver.

Ernail Jefferson, 24, a Detroit Correction Center escapee, has been char with receiving and concealing stolen property valued over $100 and unlawful driving away of an automobile.

Jefferson, of DeSoto Street in Detroit, was apprehended after a high-speed chase that ended in a Canton cornfield Friday afternoon near Michigan Avenue and Haggerty Road. Police were still seeking a second suspect Wednesday. Jefferson, who escaped from the Detroit Correction Center on July 13, was serving a two-to-five-year sentence for attempted receipt of stolen property, and a mandatory two-year sentence for possession of a firearm. He began serving time July 1984.

Jefferson was arraigned over the weekend at Westland's out-county branch of Wayne Circuit Court by Circuit Judge Donald Neitzel. He faces possible sentences of up to five years for the charges, both felonies.

The court entered a plea of not guilty for Jefferson, who stood mute at the arraignment. Bond was set at $15,000. Jefferson is being held in Wayne County Jail in lieu of bond

Police said they are optimistic about arresting the second person in the incident. "We hope to have him soon," said Lt. Alex Wilson. A preliminary examination of the charges against Jefferson will be held

Aug. 5 before 35th District Judge James Garber in Plymouth. Five law enforcement agencies were involved in Friday's hour-long chase. Assisting Canton were the Michigan State Police canine unit, a Detroit Police

Ernie Harwell 'tunes in' to first love

Tiger announcer pens national best seller in first at-bat

Ernie Harwell has made it to baseball's Hall of Fame for his broadcasting prowess. But it was sportswriting, not sports announcing,

"I really wanted to be a newspaperman," said Harwell, who has been broadcasting Detroit Tiger games on radio for 26 years.

"If I'd have been able to get a job I would have been one. But when I got out of school there were no newspaper job openings. So I got into radio." HARWELL has put his old sportswriting skills back into use, though, in a new book called "Tuned to Baseball." Now in its second printing, the book is an account of Harwell's experiences in 45 years of

"It's basically about people I have met in baseball," the 67-year-old Farmington Hills resident said. "It's not autobiographical in the sense of I was born here and did this.

Harwell, who comes across as friendly and relaxed in person as he does on the air, visited several local bookstores last week to autograph copies of his book. He appeared Wednesday at the Paper Tiger bookstore in Livonia and Saturday at Walden books in the Westland Shopping Center.

He drew adoring fans, both young and old, for whom Tiger baseball and Ernie Harwell have become almost synonymous "I've been listening to Tiger baseball for 60" years," one man said. "I grew up with Ty Tyson. out I'd have to say I like you better. One woman had Harwell sign a cookbook for her husband because she is "usually in the kitchen when he's listening to you."

"TUNED to Baseball" has chapters on the owners, the managers, the players, the early days of sports broadcasting, the art of conducting interviews and other baseball topics. Harwell said this is the first full-fledged book he has written, although he has previously written magazine articles, chapters of books and "Tiger Trivia" compilations with Fred Smith. He said clarity of expression is his goal, whether he's behind the typewiter or the microphone. "I've never been a guy who admired someone who didn't write clearly. Some writers are supposed to be so great and write these long, complicated sentences that are hard to understand, but to me if you don't understand it, that's missing the first priority.

Harwell was born in 1918 in Washington, Ga., which is about 40 miles from Royston, where another Tiger Hall of Famer, Ty Cobb, was born. 'Ty Cobb was one of my early heroes, and since he's from my home state, I read a lot about him and heard about him. Later on I got to meet him. AS HARWELL recounts in "Tuned to Baseball, their first meeting came in 1941, when Harwell was just starting out in the broadcasting business. He went to Royston to interview Cobb for WSB radio in Atlanta, but had been forewarned that Cobb was a "bitter, mean old man" who would never talk to

"I found out differently," Harwell wrote. . . . he was most cordial. A drink or two had already warmed him up for me. And he talked. The problem was not getting him to start talking, but getting him to stop talking.'

Harwell had started working for WSB when his plans for a newspaper career had fizzled. He had worked as correspondent for the Sporting News at age 16 and served as a fill-in employee at the Atlanta Constitution while going to high school and Emory University in Atlanta. But he couldn't find a full-time newspaper job. "I'd been in speech class at Emory with a fellow who was a program director at WSB," Harwell said. "He knew I was interested in speech and sports, and it was his idea to combine the two."

Harwell made it to the big leagues as a broadcaster in 1948 with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Followwith the New York Giants and Baltimore Orioles, Harwell joined the Tiger announcing crew to have your health and have a job that you really Detroit Tiger Announcer Ernie Harwell's book "Tuned to Baseball" is to bookstores what the 1984 season was to the World Champion Bengals. It's become a national best seller.

'What's been fun is being able to see these people one-to-one. There are people I've talked to but who've never seen me. It's gratifying to me, because they can come up and say hello and we can have a little bit of a conversation and sign a book in the meantime,' says Ernie Harwell.

Parks contribute to quality of life

HAT COULD become one of Canton's greatest treasures lies buried in moth balls in township hall

Unless future-minded residents and officials take action, time is certain to erase it from the realm of possibility

The Canton Parks and Recreation Department's master plan calls for the acquisition of at least 50 acres of farmland in the township's western half. The "passive park" would be used for purposes such as hiking, biking, picnicking, jogging, cross-country skiing and tobogganing

The proposal - if Canton is to provide a quality lifestyle for its residents - is vital Plymouth architect Erick Carne warns that "Livonia might be the Canton of 10 years from now unless a master plan is adopted and followed. Carne recently assisted both Livonia and Wayne in salvaging what potential parkland remained in both largely developed cities.

Fears expressed by some Canton resiiems partially explain the park plan's inertia. There are those who feel nearby residents might be harassed by the wrong element. or young people who might frequent such a park

But studies to the contrary indicate that access to park land subtracts from deviant human behavior - presumably good news for a community concerned about high rates of burglaries and other proper-

Passive parks (wooded and open areas excluding athletic fields) are considered essential in maintaining the health and sanity of the urban population, according to a recent study. The study found that the failure of government to provide public parks for physical activity and relaxation can cause people to succumb to socially destructive behavior and aggressive ani-

The Parks Association of New York City which conducted the study also concluded that living compactly in cities is not normal to the human body or its nervous system, because neither evolved in an urban environment. The physical and psychological stresses brought about by living in the city can be tolerated only by those in good health and sanity, it said.

Granted, there's no guarantee a Canton park would be problem free - as Dr Keith Archer, finance director for the city of Dearborn which owns Camp Dearborn

(a 626-acre park in Milford), points out. Any time you gather people in a small spot, you have problems from time to time. But you control it with proper security." said Archer.

Archer said security is easier to enforce n a self-contained park such as Camp Dearborn than in the sprawling Edward Hines Park, "to which access and egress can't be controlled. That's one reason. Hines Park doesn't extend into Dearborn.

IN ANY CASE, it's time the township's plan was dusted off and pursued. As Canton acreage becomes less valuable as farmland, it is being gobbled up rapidly by

Right now, Canton residents have to travel roughly six miles to get to Maybury State Park, or nearly 10 miles to Lower Huron Metro Park. A little initiative could go a long way toward enriching the township with what Detroit Mayor Coleman Young might call "one of the gems of the

There's a movement afoot to anoint Canton as a magnet for Michigan tourism What better way to enhance the township's image than by preserving a parcel of natural beauty for folks to enjoy at their leisure or on their lunch hour?

Canton has a fleeting opportunity to take a tip from the late landscape architect Frederick Law Olmstead, American visionary and designer of New York City's Central Park. "Olmstead's idea - often missed by planners - is that parks are not only art, but a fundamental social necessity for balancing our lives," said urban planning Professor Robert Champlin

He thought that if he could put a park when the need arises, all the better near the downtown factories, employees working 12-hour shifts could at least offering disposable razors and butane spend a few minutes of the day away from lighters; cameras, flashlights and watches the noise, irritation, confusion, smells and that are useless once the non-replaceable pollution inside the building and get into a battery dies. We have escaped the trap of neutral place that's compatible with the our possessions by disposing of them.

Old-time newsmen ballooned the story

That's the picture they have. But interesting and exciting as journalism is today. it doesn't compare with the old days before radio, television and other means of communication.

The Stroller had to smile when the young lad spoke, for his memory took him back to the days when he was assigned to cover the Port Huron to Mackinac sailing

WHEN HE was told to cover the big race, the first thing The Stroller thought about was how to get his reports to the paper to meet the edition schedule. You will have to figure that out yourself" the sports editor said, with a half smile. "So let's see what kind of a plan you'll come up with."

It wasn't easy, and there were days of study of just what could be done.

The Stroller checked everything he schedule could think of, but there was no way to get the stories from the middle of the lake to the newspaper office on time.

Then a good friend and rival, the late Harry LeDuc of the Detroit News, discovered an answer. "I called the Coast Guard we made a success of a puzzling assignand asked if they ever left their stations to watch the race. They said they did. So I got an idea.

"If we get balloons, write our stories. insert them in the balloons and toss them overboard, the Coast Guards will pick them up and get them to the telegraph,

IT SEEMED rather silly at first thought. But it would be a good scheme if

So off to the race we went. It was simple enough at the start, in Port Huron. We could see the start, head for the telegraph office, and then come back to the race.

The big question was what to do on Sunday afternoon when the morning paper had a copy deadline of 5 o'clock.

The balloon plan was worth a try. The stories were written on the boat, rolled up. placed in the balloons and tossed overboard, with a wave to the Coast Guard. It was done with a silent prayer.

BECAUSE OF the interest the Coast Guard showed, The Stroller didn't miss an edition. That was back in the 1920s, and he was complimented on meeting every

And in those far-away days, the boats that started on Saturday didn't arrive at the finish line in port until Monday night or some time Tuesday. But thanks to the Coast Guard and LeDuc's idea of balloons.

Today there is ship-to-shore communication, and some of the radio stations send a man up over the lake in a plane with enough time to get back to his office and go on the air with regular news.

Talk about excitement. We had it in what folks now call "the good old days."

But yesterday's hinterlands are becoming today's suburbs, and all of a sudden we have people fighting landfill expansion. We haven't stopped producing waste; we just don't want it piled in our back yards. Americans have disposed of an estimated six billion tons of hazardous waste

It may be odd to think that the problem of waste disposal should be blamed on ordinary citizens when we consider the amount of pollution that our industries spew. But the attitude of buying a consumer good today only to dispose of it tomorrow reflects the attitude that got us into this mess in the first place.

Perhaps if we had been more diligent about reducing household waste, we would have held industry accountable for proper disposal of its own. Maybe we would have stunted the manufacture of throwaway items, and legislation like the bottle bul

TOO BAD THE U.S. Supreme Court has to rely solely on the Constitution to make its rulings. A little common sense would resolve some legal battles.

Take, for example, recent Supreme Court rulings on shared-time programs. Invoking the separation of church and state principle, the justices ruled that two very different shared-time school programs are unconstitutional.

IN THE first, justices said public schools no longer can provide such educational services as remedial reading and math. That ruling is expected to affect 6,451 Michigan children in 298 non-public schools and 152 public school districts.

Impact of the ruling goes far beyond numbers for the Rochester school district. "I think the rulings make it very clear that our assigning the people to the private schools is unconstitutional," said Superintendent John Telford.

But transporting those students to a public facility from a non-public site makes it all legal, according to state Superintendent Phillip Runkel.

BUDGET FREEZE - By a vote of 207 for and 19 against, the House rejected an amendment to reeze the fiscal 1986 authorization for clean water programs at the 1985 level of $2.6 billion.

The House went on to approve 1986 spending of more than $4.6 billion under the legislation (HR 8), which was sent to the Senate. This marked the House's first failure in eight at-empts this year to freeze a major 1986 spending bill, giving it an .875 batting average in the budget-Freeze advocates say their approach is necessary because the House is too undisciplined to reduce the deficit through the normal budget process. The bill's chief mission is to provide federal grants to communities for sewage treatment con-

GLORIA HOPFNER is back home in Plymouth Township after a monthlong tour of Europe. This time, the well-traveled Gloria flew to London, crossed over to the continent and headed east by bus through Belgium, the Netherlands, Germany and Poland to Russia. After a week in Russia she returned to London via Finland, Sweden and

The week in Russia was a highlight of the trip for Gloria.

"They tried to buy the clothes off our backs, especially jeans, men's shoes and watches," she said.

They spent three days in Moscow and as no special entertainment was planned for the first evening, they went for a walk after dinner. Gloria said she was glad they did because at 9:30 there were many people out walking and "that's when we met the young people with the exchanges."

It seems all the Russian cities had special lapel pins made to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the "victory over Fascism." A young person would approach the tourists, give them a lapel pin, and say, "Present." Then they would say, "Exchange — gum, pen, lighter?" The visitors collected lapel pin souvenirs in exchange for gum or ballpoint pens.

IN MOSCOW, they went to the circus one night and to a Verdi opera at the Pushkin Theater another night. After the opera they snacked on apple juice and mounds of caviar on rounds of pumpernickel bread.

Three meals a day were included in the Russian tour. Breakfast in Moscow included sliced cold sausage, French and pumpernickel bread, boiled eggs, tea, coffee and cucumbers.

"We had a lot of cucumbers and roast pork in Russia," she said.

Breakfast in Minsk was rye bread, sliced cheese, plum jam, an omelet with ham and coffee or tea. "We had tomato juice one morning but we never had orange juice."

For lunch in Smolensk they had sliced tomatoes and green onions, salad dressing, sour rye bread, vegetable beef soup in enormous cups, beer, sliced beef and rice, lettuce and sliced pickles with a charlotte rousse for dessert.

A dinner in Moscow included beer, tomato and cucumber with salad dressing, beef chunks and kasha (like rice), huge shortbread cookies topped with slivered almonds (thick and about as big a a saucer), a flaky pastry and Turkish coffee served demitasse.

THEY ATTENDED a Balalaika

Folklore evening in Leningrad.
"The meal lasted for three hours with beverages, entertainment, music, song and dance. The costumes were colorful. Each guest was given a split of champagne, 500 cc of vodka plus red wine. I gave mine away and stuck with the lemonade and Pepsi."

Gloria noted the menu in her journal: liver pate, roast pork and gravy, beets, tomato and cucumber salad, sturgeon, bread, caviar, potato pancakes topped with sour cream, beef and potato soup served in a large pottery crock.

While in Leningrad they toured the Hermitage. "We couldn't take our handbags and raincoats into the museum because of sabotage. Someone had thrown acid on a Rembrandt."

Gloria said they are well and usually large amounts because it could be six to eight hours before the next meal.

USUALLY THEY dined in hotels with white tablecloths and sometimes fresh flowers on the tables

Pepsi and Coca Cola were available in bottles with Russian labels. Bottled lemonade was another favorite.

There were long waits for customs and immigration — 3½ hours when they entered Russia at Brest and 2½ hours when they exited at Vyborg.

What do tourists in Russia buy for

What do tourists in Russia buy for souvenirs?

Gloria said the most popular purchases were vodka, fur hats, amber jewelry, lacquered boxes, dolls and babushkas.

Ice cream social is Sunday at Manor

Tonquish Creek Manor will celebrate its 15th birthday from 2-5 p.m. Sunday Aug. 11 with an ice cream social. The party in the garden room of the manor is open to all area senior citizens and their guests.

Admission is 50 cents and tickets may be purchased in advance at the manor or in the office the day of the party. Guests must be accompanied by a senior citizen to attend.

The Plymouth Rotary Club and the Plymouth Housing Commission are cosponsoring the celebration.

Tonquish Creek Manor is a joint effort of the city of Plymouth and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. It provides 108 units of subsidized housing for men and women over 62 years old.

WHEN IT WAS built 15 years ago, there were 60 units. The extra 48 units were added in 1981.

The manor backs up to the meandering Tonquish Creek and its landscaped grounds and colonial facade reflect the gracious living of its residents.

Each apartment features a fell bath and shower with a vanity and emergency pull-cord system. Each has individually controlled heat, master television antenna and cable TV hook-up, kitchen appliances, and ample kitchen cupboard space Each has a living room, bedroom, kitchen and closets.

Rent, including utilities, is one third of the resident's gross income. City of Plymouth residents and former residents have priority in renting apartments. Plymouth Township residents and other area residents also are accepted.

THERE ARE TWO apartments designed for the fully handicapped and five for semi-handicapped seniors.

Those who drive have assigned parking spaces for their cars. Those who do not drive may be transported by the manor van for medical appointments, grocery or clothing shopping or to K mart. The van operates within the boundaries of the city and Plymouth Township.

The nutrition program at the manor is for all seniors 62 years of age and over in the Plymouth area. A hot nutritious meal is served Monday through Friday and charge is by donation. Homebound seniors may have the meal delivered by van by calling 453-9703 at least a day in advance. Non-residents also are asked to make reservations by calling the same number.

Menus for a month are published in advance so residents can be select from choices.

THE SECTION 8 Existing Housing, Rental Assistance Program is designed to assist low-income senior citizens and families with rent payments.

After eligibility for the program has been verified and the application has been approved, a certificate is issued to the senior or family allowing them to locate an apartment of their choice within the community. The certificate guarantees prospective landlords that the holder of the certificate has in fact been accepted for the program and that a portion of the rent will be sent directly to the landlord from the housing commission on a regular basis.

There is a waiting list for the certificates but low income senior citizens and families are encouraged to apply.

SHARON THOMAS has been director of housing for the city of Plymouth for seven years.

She said the average age of Tonquish Creek Manor residents is 86.

"Three of our residents are having their 96th birthdays this year," she said.

Thomas explained that the van is a cooperative Plymouth city and township operation, funded by a community block grant. Helen Range, van driver, has a radio in the van. After a senior has been delivered to a doctor's office, the driver awaits a call from the doctor's office, informing her that the appointment is over, before returning for the pick-up.

The van makes two trips a week to K mart. "Our residents love to go there; they get their prescriptions filled, buy groceries and can buy just about everything." Thomas said.

Clara Schrader, 88, recalls the first staff at the manor and the three baby showers the residents put on for them.

Alice Schwinn, who just returned from from five weeks in Ohio looking after her mother, said in the early pre-van days, their families did their grocery shopping. She and other original residents were discussing their trip to Pelee Island the day before. The boat trip was lovely, their lunch at the hotel was lovely, and so was their tour of the island where they saw the vineyards and 20,000

"Kathy's family needed hope."

A young mother with a serious illness. Her family in crisis. They came to Harper Hospital and found new hope. They earned that Harper is a uniersity-based research and eaching hospital. A place where scientists work alongside physicians. transforming discovery into treatment. They found that Harper concentrates on the tough adult cases cancer, heart disease and serious vision disorders.

Patients like Kathy come to larper Hospital at the Medical Center with confidence. They come because Harper is a major participant, together with the Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York and the M.D. Anderson Tumor Institute in Houston, in America's network of only twenty Comprehensive Cancer Centers. Patients know that if the diagnosis is cancer, there is no better place to be than Harper Hospital.

And they come with confidence because the Kresge Eve Institute is at Harper Hospital. This important Medical Center resource is devoted exclusively to the problems of vision. And through its research and clinical work, the Kresge Eye Institute gives new hope to millions with impaired vision throughout the world.

Harper is hope for heart patients, too. Its large scale, nationally recognized program brings together research, teaching, rgery and medicine. More open heart surgeries are performed each year at Harper than are ormed at any other hospital in Michigan. But of more significance is the growing number of heart patients Harper is able to treat successfully veritable stampede. Bedlam ensued, and the terrorists, brandishing their weapons, threatened the newsmen. After this shameful spectacle, one of the hostages, under mortal danger, read a prepared statement designed to further the aims of the hijackers.

each year without surgery. For Kathy and her family. For you and your family. Harper Hospital is Science. Research. Hope and Healing.

All of this was solemnly reported on the evening news as though this were a press conference called at the State Department or the for eign office of a responsible government

national press should have designated four or hostages were presented without editing, com five newsmen as a sign of protest that they would not dignify this "press conference" by the physical presence of more than the bare perspectives

The media representatives, after having received the statement of the hostages, should have offered a message of their own on behalf of the most fundamental principles of decency, ustice and compassion protesting these attacks on innocent people and calling on the captors to release their captives.

ulated the values upon which civilization itself depends. What we saw instead was how the media fed on the misery and fear of their tornentors. From a moral point of view, the television professionals had become accessories to the crime, and not merely observers of it.

The television coverage often provided no context of meaning to the images appearing on the screen. Hostages were depicted in conditions of well-being and courteous treatment while the opposite was true. The statements of

State's unseen grid showcase

URICE WARE, a Parade All-American wide receiver from Albion, was in uniform sitting along the sidelines at Michigan State's Spartan Stadium with the rest of the West All-Star

"Hey man, this is supposed to be a press day. Where's the press?" he wondered out loud.

It was last Friday, a pleasant sunny day. At Spartan Stadium, Don Lessner was busy organizing 80 of this state's top football players. He was trying to line the athletes up for photographs in geographic groups - this group for the Lansing Journal, this group for the Grand Rapids Press, this group, this large group, for the Observer & Eccentric

Lessner is one of the driving forces behind the Michigan High School East-West All-Star Football Game. For no pay and little thanks, Lessner tries to make sure the media are as well informed about this game as possible. He knows that without media exposure, the game will not

SO EACH year, this being the fifth annual game, he organizes a press day. He gathers all 80 players and the coaches into the stadium. The players are uniformed, a photographer is hired, and the media are free to get their stories. Lessner, to further entice the media, caps the day with a nice lunch.

What does this man get for his troubles? Heartache, mostly.

Every daily and weekly newspaper was invited to the press day last Friday. Every radio and TV station was invited. At final count, their were 12 members of the media on hand Friday - none from the state's major metropolitan daily newspapers or radio-TV stations. There was talk of canceling the luncheon.

Indeed, Maurice Ware, where was the press? No doubt on Saturday, game day, the press will be asking, "Where are all the fans? An ugly cloud has hung over this all-star game since its start in 1981. The play has been spectacular. Over the years it has spawned some scintil ting performances - the game has been the shorcase of the state's football talent the organisers had hoped it would be.

But thshowcase is a waste if it's left unseen

DES'/ITE SMALL crowds, the game has managed to break even financially because of various sponsors like McDonald's and the Shriners. This year, the game has no sponsors. "We are very worried," said Lessner.

"McDonald's asked us last year if they could take over the game. We sent them a proposal and then didn't hear from them again."

The Michigan High School Football Coaches Association, the originators of the game, brought in Muddy Waters to try to drum up some business for the game. It was figured that Waters, the former Michigan State coach who helped make the Cherry Bowl a reality, could use his contacts to produce sponsorship.

It didn't work out that way. Waters was brought in too late. Auto companies and other large corporations, some of Waters' major contacts, had already set their budgets and money was not available for the game.

"WE BROUGHT in Muddy to promote the game," said Plymouth Salem coach Tom Moshimer, who is the game's chairman. "His deal was to go out and raise money to make the game solvent. That didn't work out. Now, we have to put people in the stands. Muddy has gone out and sold blocks of tickets, so maybe it'll work out."

And maybe it won't. The coaches' association asked its members to buy five tickets each for the game. Only 20 percent responded.

You can see what's happening. Here we have this tremendous football game - tremendous for both the fans and the players - being tainted by various extraneous elements

No. 1, the media Catch-22. A large percentage of the media ignores the game because it doesn't attract many fans. The game doesn't attract many fans because the media fail to give it proper exposure. No. 2, apathy among the coaches. This is the hardest to comprehend. For every Moshimer or Lessner, there are three other coaches who could care less about this game. If every coach in the state buys five tickets, the game has no worries

NO. 3, the time and location of the game. The oldest theory on why the game doesn't attract fans is that people can't get fired up for football in August and that MSU is too far away. These two factors do keep some people away, although the suspicion here is that only a small percentage

The people at MSU do a fine job of running the all-star week at minimal cost - the coaches association could not get a better deal.

The good news in all of this is that the coaches remain committed to presenting this game every year - for better or worse. We, those who have an interest in high school athletics, are fortunate to have that commitment. It's just too bad this cloud has to hang around. It takes some of the shine off the stars. As for me, this is the last I will write about the poor attendance at the all-star game. It has taken up enough space. Oh, you'll know how many people showed up Saturday, but in next Thursday's Observer & Eccentric sports sections (where details of Saturday's game will be featured), the plays and the players will make the

East vs. West duel intensifies

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Just another all-star game, right?

So what if you bring together 80 of the state's best high school senior football players from last year - 40 from the east and 40 from the west spend a week whipping them into shape, and then throw them out on the astro-turf at Michigan State's Spartan Stadium to have at it?

So what? You think it means anything to these guys? You think they care?

Nah, not at all. That's why on the very first practice session — a light, padless workout with players wearing shorts and T-shirts — several East defensive players took their best shots at their All-American tailback John Miller.

Yeah, they knocked me down a couple of times," said Miller, a Farmington Harrison grad and one of MSU's top recruits. "I guess they were trying to prove something. I told them, wait till we get the pads on. Then let me see what you've got.

Just another all-star game? Right, and Khomeini is just another benevolent dictator.

THE FACT is, these players care very much about this game, this fifth annual Michigan High School East-West All-Star Game, which will be played at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Spartan Stadium.

For some players, those highly recruited, the game offers a chance to put on a show for their new college coaches. To other players, those who weren't recruited, the game is perhaps their last shot at obtaining the elusive scholarship, or at least an invitation to walk-on.

But, for all the players, there is the desire to represent their high school, their community and their region one last time on the gridiron. And do not underestimate the intensity of an East-West rivalry - especially since the East has pummelled the West in three of the four meetings.

"This is only the second day we've been here," said Miller Friday. "Already you can feel the tension starting to build. I can't wait to see what it will be like on Saturday.'

The Observer & Eccentric area has a huge contingent on the East squad, including head coach Ken Kaestner (Livonia Churchill) and assistants Jack Reardon (Livonia Stevenson), Herb Osterland (Churchill) and Jack Gabel (Stevenson)

"I'VE ALWAYS said there isn't ever a loser in this game," Kaestner said. "But, you can tell the West really wants to win this game. And we do, too. We plan to work very hard this week.'

The game is special to the coaches and the fans of high school football in Michigan, even though few have turned out for the four previous contests (that's another story, see related column). But, for the most part, the game is for the players. Here's what the O&E area players have to say about it:

The fifth annual East-West all-star football game promises to be a knock down, drag out affair as the West looks to avenge three losses in previous games. Livonia Churchill grad Dave Mize and the eight other O&E area players hope to be ready for the challenge Saturday at Spartan Stadium.

John Miller, Farmington Harrison-MSU: "It makes you feel proud to be playing with the best players in the state. I think it's more prestigious to be in this game than it was to be chosen on the Dream Team. This is the best.

Chuck McSwigan, Bloomfield Hills Lahser-MSU: "This gives me the chance to meet with some of the guys I played with and against and it gives me a chance to get some of the kinks out before the college season starts. This is special because it'll give me experience of playing against college-level tal-

Gilles captures national crown

By Chris McCosky

A milestone was reached in the amateur tennis career of Plymouth's Chris Gilles last weekend.

Gilles, a highly-ranked amateur and an all-Big 10 No. 1 singles player at the University of Wisconsin, won the Womens USTA National Amateur Hardcourt Championship in Cleveland.

Gilles and her University of Wisconsin teammate Cathy Van Pelt also teamed to win the doubles champion-

It was the first national title for

"The funny thing is that I didn't really play that well," Gilles said. "I played just good enough to win in every match. I was not really impressed with myself at all."

IN FRONT of a crowd of nearly 3,000 and a regional television audience, Gilles knocked off Libby Brendee of Dallas, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1 in the finals.

"I'll tell you what I was proud of," said Gilles' father Brian. "The place was packed, and the match was on TV and Chris didn't let any of that bother her. She didn't seem nervous at all."

If there has been a flaw in Gilles tennis game in recent years, it was a tendency to get overly-nervous before

tennis

"I wasn't nervous at all," Gilles said. "I just blocked everything out of mind, the crowd, the TV. I knew that I had more experience than my opponent did. I just concentrated on my game.

Some added maturity was afforded Gilles in July when she placed second in the USTA Womens National Claycourt Championships in Pittsburgh. She lost in the finals to NCAA champion Gretchen Rush, 6-3, 6-1.

"I thought that in Pittsburgh I was a lot more nervous than I was this weekend (in Cleveland)," Gilles said.

GILLES MAY have felt like she wasn't on top of her game, but her opponents wouldn't believe it.

She defeated Sandra Meiser in the first round, 6-1, 6-0. Amy Tarkleson was her second victim, 6-3, 6-0. Gilles dropped Pennsylvania's Kelly Erven in the quarterfinals, 6-4, 6-1.

Gilles beat Van Pelt, her doubles partner, in the semifinal round 6-3, 6-0.

Gilles, along with her sister Wendy, left Sunday for Atlanta to compete in the U.S. Team Intersectional Cham-

The National American Baseball Federation is bringing a pair of tournaments to Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools this weekend.

The NABF Junior (15-16 age group) Regional Tournament will run Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Teams from Plymouth Salem, Taylor, Chicago and Brooklyn, N.Y. will compete.

Also, the NABF Sophomore World

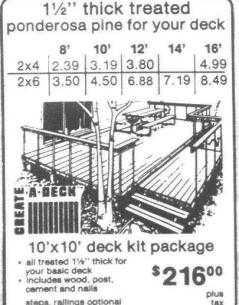

Series (13-14) will be hosted by Plymouth Salem. The tourney, featuring Salem, Detroit Kronk, Detroit PAL, Macomb County and two Little Caesars' teams, will run Friday, Saturday and Expand your talents with Inmont, a world leader in the development of coatings for the automotive industry. Our growth has created immediate opportunities in our Quality Assurance Group as follows:

TECHNICIANS

We are looking for a self-starter with proven technical expertise, and the ability to communicate with and lead other chemists and/or technicians in assigned projects. You must have a BS in Chemistry or Chemical Engineering, with emphasis in analytical chemistry preferred. You should also have 3-5 years industrial analytical laboratory experience, preferably in automotive OEM coatings. Color formulation and/or tinting skills are a definite asset. This position will serve as Shift Leader in our soon-to-be-completed Quality Assurance Laboratory at one of our leading manufacturing facilities

Quality Assurance Technicians New opportunities are available for QA Technicians with a minimum of 2 years industrial and/or analytical laboratory experience. Candidates years industrial and/or analytical laboratory experience. Cariddates must also have a minimum of 2 years college chemistry and mathematical aptitude, a technical Associate degree is preferred. Industrial laboratory experience will be considered in lieu of the educational requirements. You'll be involved in basic laboratory procedures, observations of various compounding applications, and testing of automotive coatings utilizing the latest technology and equipment.

We offer an excellent salary and benefits package, which includes 100% tuition reimbursement, medical and stock option programs as well as opportunities for future growth and development. Please send your

Joseph Haynes of Belleville and Linda Kruz of Redford appear in a scene from the Livonia-Redford Theatre Guild production of the play "Friends in Dark Places."

Guild premieres new play at its summer workshop

N ORIGINAL PLAY, "Friends in Dark Places" by 26-yearold Ann Arbor playwright Janet Mackie Hackel, will premiere Friday at the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford.

We wanted to do an original play, said workshop coordinator Lois Tobin, when asked what prompted the group to do Hackel's play. "Also, since this was to be a summer workshop, we were looking for light material, not heavy drama. And, since this was to be a teaching situation, we wanted something less complex than drama. This is really quite a good

A two-act farce, "Friends in Dark Places" was part of a manuscript which won a University of Michigan Hopwood Award for Hackel earlier this year. Hopwoods are awarded annually to U-M students for best writing entries in the fields of poetry, fiction, essay and drama.

The play will be the culminating event of a six-week theater workshop conducted by TGLR. Approximately 20 students took part in the workshop. funded chiefly by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts

PARTICIPANTS ATTENDED sessions on stage lighting, makeup, costuming, props and sound, plus set construction, painting and design, approximately three times a week.

"Friends in Dark Places" will be presented at 8 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays through Aug. 10 at the TGLR auditorium, 15138 Beech-Daly in Redford. Admission is $3, and tickets will be sold at the door only. For further information, call 425-5942.

Tobin said the play was recommended to the group earlier this summer by Attic Theatre playwright-inresidence Simone Press.

"I admire Janet's work very much," Press said. "I think she's simply a wonderful writer, and I thought she's written a lovely farce that was well-suited for the summer workshop." The two playwrights met as fellow students at U-M and this year worked together at the Attic where Hackel served as assistant coordinator of the New Playwrights Forum.

In a recent telephone interview, playwright Hackel said, "Two days after I'd dropped off the play with Lois Tobin, she called me and said six people on the workshop committee had read it, and that the guild would like to do the play. They said they'd like to pay me - and asked it that would be all right.

The recent U-M graduate never had a play produced before although several received staged readings in U-M's Theater Department. "I had to fight the urge to say, 'Pay me?' I'll pay you!

HACKEL STARTED out writing short fiction during her high school days in East Lansing and changed to playwriting on the advice of fellow writing students at U-M, who noted that her fiction was made up almost entirely of dialogue.

Her first playwriting class at U-M, taken two years ago as a graduate student in the MFA program, was taught by playwright Milan Stitt (author of "The Runner Stumbles"). It left a lasting impression

33605 PLYMOUTH IW. OFF FARMINGTON

That first week in class, Milan Stitt just absolutely mesmerized me, Hackel said. "He was simply incredible. I walked out of that classroom after four hours and said, 'This is what I want to do, until I can't do it anymore.

Hackel wrote the first draft of "Friends in Dark Places" in about eight hours last summer

"I started out trying to write a deep, meaningful play about death," she explained. "My mom died about six years ago, and I think I was trying to write the great American drama on dealing with death.

"But it was a horrible play. I kept putting in these ditzy little lines that you just can't have in a serious play.'

EVENTUALLY, HACKEL decided to keep the "ditzy little lines" and make the play into a comedy. The result was "Friends in Dark Places."

"(The play) has changed completely from that first draft," Hackel said. 'Now, it's just one laugh after another - hopefully on confusion. At the center of this is a 'dead" body (which keeps getting 'misplaced"), a couple of cases of mistaken identity and a lot of befuddled characters. "There are a lot of women I've lived with who, if they see this play, will probably never speak to me again, because I've put so much of them into the play," Hackel said with a laugh, when asked about the sources for her characters.

'Really, though," she said a bit more seriously, "all of the characters are me, too. Each one has a major quirk — each is just an exaggerated part of me.'

Hackel added that since she has lived in group situations for several years, she was not surprised when she ound herself writing a play centered around this kind of situation. There's frantic, frenzied, over

Finally, there's Luther Martin, who, trying to explain her rather unusual name, simply says, "My mother was very religious." She's not mar ried, is pregnant and is looking forward very much to having her baby

She wanders around on stage, sing ing a lot and also has a persistent Scrabble fixation, often playing Scrabble in her head and spelling the words aloud at rather unexpected

"The only trouble is," Hackel said, 'she's a horrible speller

COMMUNITY THEATER veteran Bob Weibel is directing the play. In the cast are Kathleen Lietz as Alice, Sue Reno as Luther. Patti Jones as Blue and Linda Kruz as Tedi. Also in the play are Joe Haynes, Daniel Taylor, Mark Willett, Bob Pici, Scott Duglos and Mark Tucker.

Actors auditioned for each role and are not direct participants in the summer workshop. Producers are Judy Pierson, and Maggie and Jerry Lamb. Everyone I've worked with at TGLR has been just wonderfully supportive," said Hackel, who participat ed in several of the workshop sessions and sat in on auditions. "I think I was very lucky. These actors are creating these roles. There's nothing there, except the words. It's exciting!" Hackel confided she had only one very large regret. Because of a teaching commitment with U-M's Summer School Abroad program, she'll be in England in August and won't be able to see her first play performed

This 14-block artery is not a city renewal project, nor the bright idea of some city developer; it has been here for decades, tying the hotels, restaurants and shopping areas to office buildings and theaters.

Nicollet Mall is where the people of Minneapolis work and shop and play, picnicking around the fountains beside Orchestra Hall and littering the streets with plastic beer cups during the annual block party that launches Aquatennial and Sommerfest.

From one end of the mall you can walk the Loring Greenway past condominiums and office buildings to Loring Park, and on to the Guthrie Theater and the Walker Art Center.

From the other end you can cross the Mississippi River to Riverplace and St. Anthony Main, two restored shopping and eating complexes. In between, on Nicollet Mall, you can ride the bus for a dime or walk from building to building along miles of skyways.

THE TWIN cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul have been competing for "skyway firsts" for years:

OR MOST it's a fascination begun in childhood. Memories of cars that captivated them as youngsters are now welded into a grown-up's hobby.

Every year, these men and women display the bounty of their garages during the Concours d'Elegance on the grounds of Meadow Brook Hall, Oakand University, near Rochester. Now in its seventh year, the show of classic and memorable cars is set for Sunday, Aug. 4.

For John Sullivan of Livonia, the event is another chance to show the car he drives nearly every day, a 1934 Packard Club Sedan V-12. He found the car, meant to be a formal, chauffer-driven vehicle in 1974 in Connecticut. "It was all black and I used to drive it to Lansing before I worked on it," Sullivan

With its chassis now painted butterscotch gold and terra cotta and the wheel wells a striking pumpkin color, Sullivan calls his vehicle "very exotic." At the 1982 Concours, the judges agreed and awarded it first-place honors. Sullivan's car has picked up first-place trophies in such categories as best of show and best restored in shows throughout the United States and Canada, including the prestigious Grand Classic sponsored by the Antique Car Club of America

From its driving lights that turn with the steering wheel to its automatic booster breaking system, this 1934 Packard was a pacesetter. Every 25 miles, its chassis was automatically lubricated. Its passengers were entertained by a radio built into the dashboard, another first.

An imposing mix of chrome and metal, the 1934 Packard Club Sedan was the heaviest model put out by the company. With its 150 horsepower engine and 18-inch wheels clad in white wall tires, the car weighs in at 6,500 pounds. A driver could find himself gliding along in this behemoth from Detroit at 100 miles per hour, expending one gallon of gasoline for every 13.9 miles. On the narrow lanes of early highways, the car's performance improved to 15 miles per gallon. About eight years after that Packard model was introduced to the world its engine became entrenched in the war effort, according to Sullivan. Pilots in the cockpit of B-51 bombers and at the wheel of PT boats felt the power of the Packard's

But for Sullivan, the old cars recall his childhood in Upper Michigan's copper country. He came from a big car family. In 1931, his family drove from the Upper Pennisula to Detroit in a LaSalle Victoria coupe. He owns a 1955 Thunderbird, a 1931 Buick and a 1966 Cadillac and a 1978 Eldorado. That Cadillac, with its tan chassis and gold trim is one of only 1,700 made.

And Sullivan drives them all, even on winter roads that most classic car owners would avoid. You get over it after a while," he said about any owner's tendency to be wary of putting a dent in a favorite car. In fact, it doesn't make much sense to Sullivan to have a car and not to drive it. "I have a friend with a car that has two miles on it. He takes if everywhere in a trailer. I call those guys fanat-

WHEN RAY LAWSON of Troy found the car he coveted, a 1936 Buick four-door convertible, in New Haven, Conn., he and his wife, Liz, spent three days driving it home to Michigan. "It's maybe not the smartest move we've ever made, but we made it,"Lawson said.

"I knew exactly what style I wanted, a '36 Phaeton. It was the largest Phaeton they made that Priced at $2,349, it was the most expensive car Buick brought out in that Depression year.

'It was an all new body style. Buick dropped out style." It was the same body Cadillac used at that time with Buick adding "its on doodads on it.

In the three years he's owned it, he's replaced some of the wood in the body and put on a new roof. Then he spruced up the car's chassis. "It looked like - a lump of coal, that what it looked like with a black chassis and a black interior.

He had it painted pale yellow and tan with discreet red pinstripes. "It's mostly our taste. Buick didn't two tone a car like that to my knowledge. The colors are fairly close to Buick colors. They had primitive paint in those days. They didn't recommend pastels at all. There was no body to the paint," said Lawson.

His father was a Buick dealer in Royal Oak. In 1936, his father felt lucky if "he sold two cars a

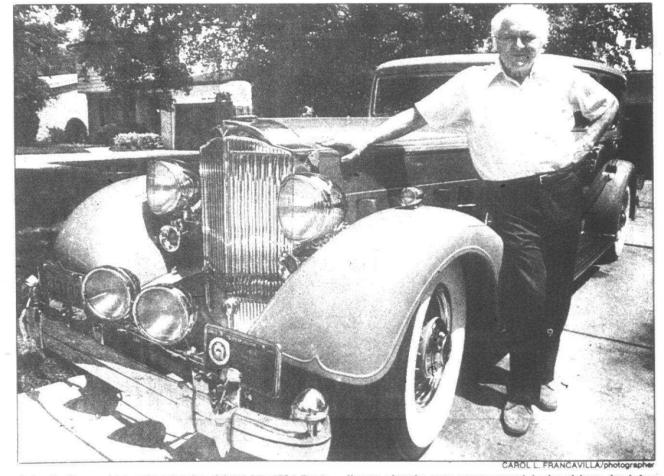

Every January his father reluctantly accepted the one 90 series limousine that Buick required its dealers to sell. At $2,295, it was considered to be very expensive and usually took the best part of a

It represented luxury incarnate, and when Lawson saw a half rusted 1938 Buick limo parked in a barn, he bought it. It was combined with the parts from two more Buick limos to create the navy blue 1938 four-door limo sedan now parked in his garage. The car took first place honors at last year's

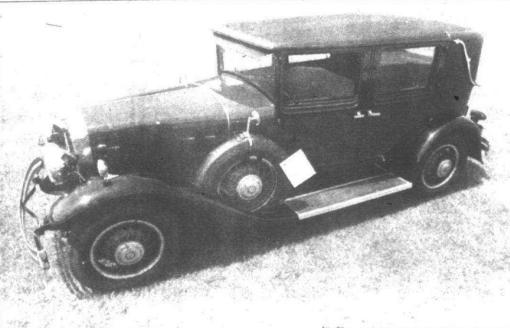

THE ECONOMY was more optimistic in 1929 when Jerry Gray's 1929 four-door Franklin Sport Sedan first hit the road. Gray of Rochester Hills bought the car last winter because he was searching for a hobby in which his entire family could participate. He and his wife Chris have three children ages 11, 13 and 15. They found the car in Pennsylvania during a family trip expressly to purchase a classic auto. "It booked neat," Gray said. "It has a certain class, it looks just old and elegant." It also has four-wheel hydraulic brakes, "important to us for safety reasons."

Rebuilt in 1972 as the last project of an ailing car fancier, the Gray family's Franklin didn't require extensive work. "There are little things you have to keep tweeking," he said. "You realize they were pretty smart way back when. It;s been educational for me. It's been educational for the kids, I think."

The family's car took third place at the Rochester Heritage Festival's car classic last Memorial Day. To show off their prize, the Grays appeared in vintage costumes that Mrs. Gray has found and re-

By David Messing

My diet was going just fine. I could even imagine Lorraine, (my weight watcher instructor) patting me on the back. Sandy went to the art store to work so that I could spend the day at home with the boys. When lunch time arrived it was "no problem."

I just toasted two slices of Trim Line bread (bread exchange) measured out 4 oz of tuna fish (protein exchange) and quartered a cucumber (vegetable exchange). Then with a Diet Coke in hand I stepped back, looked at the plate and said to myself, "I've been dieting for three days straight and I'm still alive "But before I could take the first bite of my healthy-legal-lo-cal lunch, my three boys came in from the pool in their usual condition; dripping wet and starved.

Since all three love peanut butter and jelly sandwiches I thought "no problem" so I quickly got out all the stuff for their unhealthy-illegal-high-cal lunch. The "problem" began when I unscrewed the lid from off of the Jiff peanut butter, every sensory nerve in my whole head came alive. Oh! The smell of peanut butter Oh! The feel of moist high calorie bread. Listen! The unmistakable sound of the knife as it clinks against the inside of the peanut butter jar. "Oh wow," I said aloud, "look how the bread kind of sticks together where the sandwich is cut in

OH, BY the way my wife makes all the jam and jellies at our house. Do you know what homemade strawberry jam tastes like? Finally with tears in my eyes and a lump in my throat I yelled in desperation "Here . . . take 'em . . . get them out of here. I can't stand to be in the same room with 'em." Of course my own lunch had, by now, lost it's color. The bread seemed dry, the tuna bland and the cucumber. ... well I guess it was just cu-

Finally with one hedonistic stroke I grabbed the knife with peanut butter and jelly still on it and licked it clean. Then, as my own reflection on the knife became clear, I looked and said to myself "Lorraine would be ashamed of you." So Thursday I will confess my sins and ask her how many cerery the full-color appetite.

Well, for the last few weeks, I have talked about painting on location and on vacation. Of course on vacation you must travel light and that is why I recommend one color media like pencil and pen and ink. But for many artists one color media are. well, like a diet lunch if you know what I mean. So here are a few easy to tote, full color recipes for

If the smell of turps stirs you artistic juices and you are the type that has to have a brush in your hand, then travel with oil pastels. Oil pastels are very inexpensive; a set of 24 will run you about $7.05. They come in a very easy to carry, long, thin and flat box. As a studio media, oil pastels are often overlooked, but as a traveling media they can't be

First, however, I recommend you take along a few canvas boards which are flat and usually cost around $1 or carry a pad of "canvasette" (imitation canvas) or preferably a "canvas pad" which has

NOW WHEN and if you get time to paint on your vacation, simply block in the colors with your oil pastels. It is kind of like drawing with tubes of libstick. When you are finished blocking in color get out your little jar of turpentine and moisten your brushes. Turpentine will melt and blend all your colors to approach the look of an oil painting. The work will dry quickly and can even be painted over with oils when you return home.

If you are a watercolor lover, then travel with an assortment of cakes or "pans." These are the hard little circles or squares that most people associate with children's watercolors. Grumbacher makes a variety of sizes, colors and prices. Of course, you should use a watercolor block and you need only to carry three or four brushes. Another one of my favorite travlin' mediums is colored pencils. Now I hate to brag, but if you want to see how beautiful color pencil can be, stop by either the Livonia or Plymouth store. I am so proud of the beautiful work my students have done with this most overooked medium. Now when you go on vacation you often treat yourself to some of the better things in life. So why not treat yourself to the best pad of paper for your colored pencils.

The canson "mi tientes" line of colored paper has always been a standard of excellence. A full sheet is 90 cents but too large for traveling. So treat yourself to their colored paper assortment pad which is only $2.70. The rich colors of berol prismacolors truely come alive against the beautiful colors and delightful tooth of Mi Tientes paper. Colored pencil do not smear or fade, but when you return from your vacation the work should, however, be sprayed with fixatif as colored pencils drawings tend to "fog." I have to end now, as I have run out of room and I must get this peanut butter off my breath before my weight watchers meeting.
