Satellite dish ruling draws much attention

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

When Judge John MacDonald ruled Canton Township could not force Antoinette Benner to remove her satellite dish antenna, some guessed the decision might have far-reaching impact.

They were right.

The 35th District Court judge's 12-page ruling, handed down last September, has been hailed by leaders of the satellite TV industry. It also was cited by the FCC in a related ruling last month.

But its biggest impact is demonstrated in the number of requests 35th District Court clerks have received for copies of the ruling. Cities and townships seeking guidelines for writing their own dish-use ordinances are interested.

"We've had lots of requests — from Colorado, California, Florida — straight across the country," said Judy Richards, deputy court administrator. She estimates the requests at 15-20.

PARTICIPANTS IN the case note that satellite dish placement on private lots seldom had been tested in the courts at the time Benner's case was decided. And no wonder — the first home TV satellite dish was built in 1976 by a man using spare U.S. Army parts.

First commercial sales followed in 1979. Howard Postema, president of the Satellite Dealers Association of Michigan, estimates the number of home satellite dishes in use at 1.5 million. And Michigan, he said, is ranked second in the nation in per capita use of the television antennas.

Postema is understandably pleased with MacDonald's decision. "We've done our best to make it available to anybody with any sort of a problem. We've sent copies of it to every city government in the tri-county area just to advise them it's a good statement of the law, something you should take into consideration."

Also happy with the ruling is the national Satellite Television Industry Association. In the November issue of its magazine, Satvision, the group printed the judge's opinion in its entirety.

In his written ruling, MacDonald noted that unlike radio or TV antennas, "a dish must have an unobstructed line of sight to the transmitting satellite. A building, or even a tree can block out reception. . . . The imposition of highly restrictive zoning regulations may so restrict the placement of TV dishes as to effectively preclude their use on residential lots."

Further, he wrote, "Because satellite dish antennas provide users with the unique ability to receive scores of programming services, some of which are not available through any other means, an ordinance severely restricting . . . dish antennas would leave consumers without adequate alternative means of receiving these services."

"Judge MacDonald," Postema said, "gets into constitutional questions: The Fourteenth Amendment providing equal protection and the First Amendment providing freedom of speech; not only to deliver communications but to receive it."

MacDonald did acknowledge the township's right to regulate satellite dishes. But he wrote that Canton based its case on a vague ordinance, and failed to "clearly address its contention that the dish is aesthetically detrimental."

MacDonald, 51, practiced law in the area for 25 years before winning election to the bench in November 1984. Of his decision, he said, "I knew there'd be some reaction but not this much reaction."

Cityhood forum slated

Canton residents will have another chance.

A public forum to discuss the pros and cons of cityhood will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Canton Township Hall on Canton Center Road.

Kenneth VerBurg, a Michigan State University professor, was scheduled to speak at a meeting March 5, but became ill and canceled at the last minute to the disappointment of some 50 residents who showed for the meeting. VerBurg will discuss township and cityhood characteristics, and answer questions from the audience.

The forum is intended to gather data before April 30 — a deadline when a committee studying the forms of government is to report to the Canton Township Board of Trustees. The committee's recommendation may be accepted or rejected. If the board opts for cityhood, the issue will ultimately be decided by Canton voters.

I-275 draws 2 more major developers

By Diane Gale
staff writer

More major developments are gravitating to Haggerty Road in Canton because of the I-275 expressway.

Wallside Windows, a $2 million facility, plans to begin construction on five acres of land on the northwest corner of Haggerty and Warren adjacent to the Tonquish Creek.

The 50,000-square-foot structure will house production of replacement windows and vinyl building materials as well as general offices and a retail showroom.

THE SITE IS only one-quarter of a mile north of the $10 million American Yazaki Corp., which serves as the U.S. headquarters for the international company.

Yazaki — considered the cornerstone of the I-275/Haggerty Road corridor in Canton — bought 20 acres of land from the township for $20,000 an acre or $405,000. The company, which broke ground in April 1985, makes wiring equipment for automotive, solar and gas industrial use.

"Wallside diversifies our local economy because it doesn't center around the auto business," said David Nicholson, Canton's community and economic development director. "It's a nice stable industry. There will always be people who will need to replace windows."

The price of the township land rose when Wallside bought 5.5 acres. The company will pay $45,000 an acre and also will receive a 12-year 50 percent tax abatement.

"The tax abatement is offered to everyone," Nicholson said. "We're probably the only community that guarantees tax abatements for industries."

Wallside, to be financed by an industrial revenue bond issue of $2 million, will relocate about 40 employees and hire another 40 workers, Nicholson said.

ANOTHER COMPANY planning to set up shop on Haggerty is McLaren Engines, a race car research and development company. It will locate on township-owned land north of the Wallside site.

The Canton Township Board of Trustees has tentatively agreed to the purchase and the sale is expected to take place within the next 45 days, Nicholson predicted. Again the price for the township land is higher. McLaren will pay $50,000 an acre for 10.2 acres, he added.

McLaren will be the fourth major industry in the area. They are hoping to break ground sometime in late June, Nicholson said.

The longest standing developer in the area is the K mart office complex and wholesale distribution center on the south side of Joy about 500 feet west of Haggerty. It was built in the mid-1970s.

Nicholson said the change in the type of development from the K mart warehouse to the proposed McLaren Engines shows a shift to office type buildings in Canton.

"We've got so much going on that it's hard keeping up with it," Nicholson said.

Signals crossed on cable-TV charge increase

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Nearly half of Canton's cable subscribers are seeing about a 25 percent increase in their bills, beginning this month.

It was expected the basic rates would increase from $8.35 to $10.45, a 25 percent hike. Existing customers — who were paying lower rates than new customers for movie channels — also were bumped up to the higher rate this month.

Members of the Canton Cable Committee adamantly opposed the increase at last week's Canton Township Board of Trustee meeting.

OMNICOM OF Michigan Inc. raised premium channel rates for Home Box Office, Cinemax and The Movie Channel from $8.95 to $10.95 for existing customers who enjoyed the lower rates.

The $10.95 rate for these channels was in effect for new sign-ons since March 1985. There are about 7,500 subscribers in Canton.

The Canton Township Board of Trustees in January 1986 approved a $1.60 monthly basic rate increase to kick-in the beginning of March. Another 5 percent was tacked on by Omnicom due to a federal law that allows that amount without local government approval.

Steve Larson, a Canton Township trustee and Canton Cable Committee member, said if he had known the movie channel rates were increasing for the grandfathered subscribers he would have voted against the basic rate increase.

"That's significant enough that I think they should have told us about it when they asked for the basic rate increase, mainly because of the argument they were giving us for the basic rate increase," Larson said. "They said give me the money in basic so I don't have to increase the premium.

"I feel Omnicom misled me and everyone else on the Cable TV Commission and the board," Larson said. "There's a fine line between trying to deceive someone and not explaining something to someone. When you're a quasi-monopoly you tend to make decisions based on what the market will bear."

FREDERICK COLLMAN, Omnicom general manager, said he didn't perceive the change in the movie channel billing as a rate increase.

Collman said when he approached the board for the basic rate increase he "was not addressing the grandfather rates."

"Raising the premium would have been raising what it was in March," Collman said. "There's a misunderstanding. We were never trying to hoodwink them about our grandfather rates. They were saying that they were misled and I'm saying that wasn't intentional."

Collman plans to address the board at the March 25 meeting.

Candidates share same goal: oust Blanchard

But gubernatorial hopefuls split on issues

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Jim Blanchard ducks.

Five Republican candidates for governor agree on that. They blistered the first-term Democratic governor on lack of "leadership" on tough issues, and they said his publicity machine exaggerates Michigan's economic recovery.

But they differed on what to do about prison overcrowding when they spoke last week before the Troy Chamber of Commerce.

Wayne County Executive William Lucas, Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy and Brighton industrialist Richard Chrysler got to speak. Two latecomers to the campaign — automotive engineer John Lauve and state Rep. Colleen Engler — were interviewed separately and asked the same questions.

Here is how they answered questions from newspeople on state issues:

SHOULD JURY awards for non-economic damages (pain and suffering) in medical malpractice cases be limited, as proposed in state Senate legislation?

Chrysler, 43, didn't answer the question directly. He condemned "frivolous lawsuits" and said those who file them should be required to pay the attorneys' fees of defendants.

We need to get people to think before they act," said Chrysler, who is making his first bid for office.

Lucas, 59, said "I need additional facts." He blistered "those who had the ability and did nothing. Something has to be done," said Lucas, who spent 14 years as sheriff before becoming Wayne's first county executive in 1983.

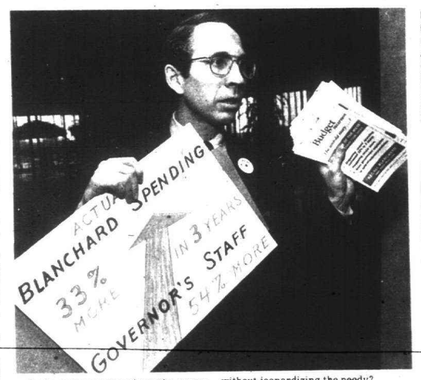

Murphy, 62, answered, "If it takes a cap, I'm for a cap. The governor ought to say something. The governor is not a leader."

The inability to get malpractice insurance because of high jury awards is costing Michigan doctors, "and we need doctors," said Murphy, seeking state office after 12 years as county executive and 30 years in county government.

Lauve, 44, interviewed later, said he advocates lifting the licenses of incompetent doctors. Frequently a candidate in the Grosse Pointe area, Lauve is best known as leader of the unsuccessful drive to recall Blanchard.

Rep. Engler, 33, interviewed by phone, said, "I support malpractice caps. It's impossible to (fully) compensate victims for non-economic damages."

STEVE CANTRELL/staff photographer

In the outstate area where she comes from, juries don't make the kinds of multi-million pain-and-suffering awards that are common in the tri-county area, said the fourth-term legislator.

CAN WELFARE spending be cut without jeopardizing the needy?

Murphy said yes because "there is too much administration."

Chrysler agreed, charging that only $1 in $4 gets to welfare recipients. He advocated "workfare" programs and job training for welfare recipients.

Lucas said "many need welfare, many take advantage of welfare," and the state should crack down on cheaters.

Engler said "I don't believe it is" possible to cut welfare without hurting the needy. She added the Legislature has kept ADC and general assistance benefits level since 1979, increasing only "categorical" items such as the clothing allowance.

Lauve said, "Bring payments down. We should not have the incentive for people to flock to Michigan."

PRISONS ARE overcrowded and overburdened. What would you do?

Chrysler said "career offenders" who commit 67 percent of the heinous crimes should be "warehoused" by using existing space, not by building new prisons at high union rates.

"We need prison space," said Lucas, putting the need at 4,000 beds. He charged Blanchard delayed a year before declining Wayne County's offer to use a hospital grounds building.

Murphy said the problem is difficult because prisoners are quick to get federal court rulings that "that jail doesn't conform to anything." Prisoners want "Holiday Inn" accommodations, he said. He advocated job training, paying prisoners for work and charging them for upkeep.

"I remember boot camp," said veteran Lauve, who advocated using prisoners to pick up trash and do road repairs.

Engler said she voted for using state "rainy day fund" money for prison construction and agreed with the regional prison concept. She said drunk drivers are going free because scarce prison space must be used for more serious offenders.

MICHIGAN'S BUSINESS climate is called lousy by some, but the state Commerce Department says Michigan ranks third in the nation in new business incorporations. What would you do?

Lucas accused Blanchard of using prime-time broadcast advertising to boost his own image. He charged the governor and lawmakers are shoving aside decisions on workers compensation changes until after the 1986 election. "I would make decisions, bring matters to a head."

Murphy said "we're wa-a-a-ay down on the list of states that are competitive. I haven't talked to one businessman who said the state Commerce Department helped him." Murphy said his own county is attracting 34 percent of the new business development in the state, but business expansion should be spread wider.

Chrysler and Engler said the new incorporation figures were inflated because many bar and restaurant owners were forced to incorporate in order to protect their personal assets if they faced liability suits.

Lauve said Blanchard "can't dispel the Alexander Grant report that ranks Michigan dead last" as a place to do business. If Michigan is gaining in "hamburger stands," it's losing companies like Clark Equipment, which moved from Buchanan to South Bend, Ind.

SUMMING UP, Lucas said that he was able in Wayne County, which others viewed as bankrupt and ungovernable, to "meet payrolls, pay debts and form a new government . . . without raising taxes."

Murphy said Blanchard has "no goals. I set goals. That is the reason we can cut taxes" while moving toward a 911 emergency telephone system, implementing a tornado warning system and setting up a breast cancer screening program.

Chrysler said Blanchard "increased taxes" in order to "buy votes." As Livingston County's largest employer, he called himself "the only candidate with experience at creating jobs."

Lauve carries around charts saying Blanchard used the 1983 temporary personal income tax increase to increase state spending by 33 percent rather than to pay off debts.

Engler was the only candidate who had no literature to distribute. Her announcement last week cited her legislative experience and noted she is the only candidate from outside the metropolitan area.

Teacher competency tests OK'd

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The state House Education Committee gave solid support to a bill requiring competency testing of would-be teachers.

But a key member doubts such an exam is the best way to pluck the weeds from the crop.

"Everyone's for quality," said Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, vice-chairman of the 20-member panel. "But when you look at the total cost and compare testing to the alternatives ..."

The first-term lawmaker said higher salaries and in-service work may be better alternatives, adding, "I hope we're not through with the bill."

The bill would require that, prior to receiving a state certificate, a person would have to pass state exams in basic intellectual skills, their specific fields such as chemistry or history, and teaching skills.

If enacted, the law would require basic skills testing for all teachers certified in the fall of 1991.

The subject area examination would be phased in for fall of 1993.

REPRESENTATIVES are far from through with the bill.

Education Committee Chairman William Keith, D-Garden City, noted the measure (Senate Bill 447) must go next to the Appropriations Committee, which will measure costs.

And because the House measure is far different from the original Senate version, the House version must go back to the upper chamber for concurrence.

The bill is supported by the Michigan Association of School Boards, Michigan Association of School Administrators and the two major teachers unions.

One union, the Federation of Teachers, however, wants the bill amended so that the examination advisory committee has a majority of classroom teachers rather than administrators or professors.

DESPITE HIS qualms, Kosteva voted to report out the bill. So did Keith and Reps. Justine Barns, D-Westland, and Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia.

Bankes strongly favors it.

"True or not, a lot of people think some teachers teach the first year and repeat it 17 times. That's a perception," she said.

Her view is supported by Phillip Runkel, superintendent of public instruction. He cited a 1983 state poll which showed "97 percent of the citizens polled felt that teachers should be reuired to demonstrate competency in the subject area they teach."

A 1984 nationwide Gallup Poll showed 89 percent of the public and 69 percent of teachers favor state exams for beginning teachers.

BANKES WAS pleased with one major change in the House version of the bill.

"The Senate bill allowed each teaching college to have its own exam. We thought that was ludicrous," she said. The House version requires the state Department of Education to draw up standardized tests.

Lawyers, doctors, nurses, architects and many other professional persons must pass state exams before being certified to work, she said, "and parents are demanding the same."

Rep. Tom Power, R-Traverse City, agreed. "Schools of education have a motive to write an extremely weak exam."

IN 1981, according to a Senate staff report, a math test given to 392 prospective elementary teachers at five Michigan universities showed that, even with calculators:

- Thirty percent couldn't subtract 0.14 from 64.
- Fourty percent couldn't divide 24 by 0.3.
- Eighty-eight percent couldn't calculate what percentage of 1,200 is 30.

The Michigan Department of Education reports that 19 states currently require passage of some kind of certification test.

Fifteen states are planning new or additonal examinations. Eighteen — including Michigan — have no competency tests.

A SPOKESMAN FOR the Michigan Municipal League said that while the league had received many requests for information on MacDonald's ruling, those requests have tapered off following the FCC ruling in February.

The FCC found such a ruling was necessary to insure that local and state authorities "do not interfere unreasonably with the federal right to construct and use antennas." But local rules are not pre-empted if they have "a valid health, safety of aesthetic objective," according to the commission.

Aaron Machnik, Canton Township building director, terms the FCC ruling as "180 degrees out of sync" with MacDonald's. "I don't know who's correct or incorrect," Machnik said, adding he's been studying several varying ordinances from around the country while preparing an ordinance for presentation to the township board.

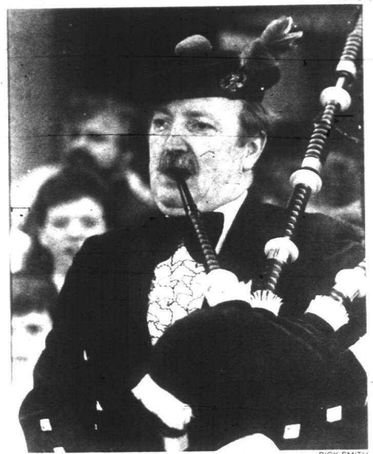

Canton did not have a specific ordinance regulating placement of satellite dish antennas in March 1985 when Benner was cited for violation of a structure ordinance.

In contrast, the city of Plymouth approved an ordinance regulating satellite dish placement two years ago.

"We wanted them placed out of sight on the back of the roof or in the back yard," said City Manager Henry Graper. He said that ordinance has not been tested, adding there are few, if any, satellite dishes in Plymouth.

Noting the wide-ranging impact of any ruling from the FCC, Postema said MacDonald's ruling will still be useful to communities considering satellite-dish ordinances.

He gets into First Amendment questions which the FCC does not get into," Postema said, adding "Judge MacDonald's ruling is more easily understandable."

Hike debated

The issue of local governmental impact on rates will be dead in January 1987 when basic rates are deregulated and municipalities will be stripped of cable cost control. Municipalities now only can affect the basic rates.

During numerous basic rate increase requests to the board, Collman stressed that the company receives a better rate of return on basic rates than premium rates because Omnicom must share the premium fee with the servicing company.

After the board denied the increase, Collman said, the company would be forced to raise the premium rates.

A note signed by Collman dated Feb. 20 was attached to subscriber bills highlighting discounts offered to subscribers with the satellite package and at least two premium services. Two or three dollars can be saved on each premium service, the letter said.

New special ed rules to allow smaller classes

By Tim Richard
staff writer

New special education rules, which sailed through the State Board of Education last week, are "designed to last into the next century," in the words of one administrator.

The end of a two-year working process was a unanimous voice vote by the state's highest elected policy board.

Board members raised only two questions — about a possible six-year age range in special ed classes and about higher costs due to smaller teacher loads.

They seemed satisfied the rules won't hurt Michigan's 160,000 special ed students.

"THE CURRENT special education rules were passed in 1973, when special ed was a new mandate," said Dr. Edward Birch, state director of special education services.

"Over the last 13 or 14 years, we've seen drastic changes," Birch said, citing two:

First, kids who used to be taught in separate rooms are now "mainstreamed" as much as possible. Half of our kids in special ed spend less than half their time in special ed classrooms."

Second, court decisions have forced school officials to put kids in "the least restrictive environment."

How revised rules will affect Wayne schools

Of the state's 124 special education rules, exactly half were revised by the State Board of Education. Dr. Richard Baldwin, policy development specialist, said only 17 would have any cost impact.

Here are the four major cost changes and how they would affect Wayne Intermediate and local school districts:

- Severely mentally impaired — Current rule allows a maximum of one teacher, four instructional aides and 24 students.

The change sets a ratio of either a) one teacher, two aides and 12 students or b) a ratio of one teacher, three aides and 15 students. Statewide, the cost increase will be $815,000 for 23 districts.

The Wayne County Intermediate School District would have to add two teachers at a total cost of $52,000.

- Educable mentally impaired — Present rule sets a teacher's caseload at 18 students.

The new rule reduces the caseload to 15 at the elementary level and requires an aide whenever the teacher has 12 or more students in the classroom at one time. Total cost statewide is projected at $1.5 million.

Rural districts with high caseloads seemed most affected. In Wayne County, the Westwood district would have to add one teacher for a total cost of $69,000.

- Physically and otherwise health impaired — Current rule sets a maximum of 15 full-time equivalent students for each teacher.

The new rule sets maximums of a) 15 different students and b) no more than 10 at a time. Total statewide cost to 13 intermediate districts would be $573,000.

Wayne Intermediate would have to add a single staffer at a cost of $44,000.

- Speech and language impaired — Current rule sets a maximum caseload of 75 pupils. New rule cuts this to 60. Total state cost is estimated at $169,000.

DOROTHY BEARDMORE, a new state board member who served on both the Rochester and Oakland Intermediate boards, won approval for her request for a periodic review of the rule allowing children from as many as six elementary grades to be taught in a single "resource room."

That change had stirred concern and some opposition from Oakland County parents. The current rule is four years.

The change was made, Birch said, because "you'd need two classrooms in every building to have a four-year span."

In a real life situation dealing, for example, with math, he added, it's unlikely first and sixth graders ever would be mixed. And the mixing would occur only with mild cases.

He called fears of inappropriate mixes "a worst case scenario."

HOW LOCAL and intermediate school districts will pay for the changes — many of which reduce class and teaching loads — bothered two board members.

"What I hear from the local districts is, 'Where will the money come from?'" said Cherry Jacobus of East Grand Rapids.

Dr. Phillip E. Runkel, state superintendent of public instruction, said the "worst scenario" would cause $3 million of increases — less than 1 percent of the $600 million spent statewide on special education. See separate story on this page.

Those cost increases would be offset by efficiencies and reductions in other areas, although no dollar amount could be put on the savings, Runkel and Birch said.

"It's pretty much a wash," Birch added.

RUNKEL SAID some rules could be implemented as early as next fall.

Birch advised districts not to make changes, however, until they are in effect.

Next, said Runkel, the rules must be reviewed for form by the attorney general's staff. Then they go to the Legislature's Joint Administrative Rules Committee.

"The rules committee can't amend them," Runkel said. "It can reject them. It can send them back and tell you what parts they don't like. The committee will have a hearing on this.

"The State Board of Education has final approval," he said.

BEARDMORE SAID the state board passed emergency rules during the 1979-83 fiscal crisis.

"Our experience showed, hey, some were good. But there was no way the board could make those temporary rules permanent," she said.

Current rules have been marked by many requests for "hundreds of deviations," she said. "With the new rules, we expect there will be fewer requests, and fewer will be granted."

The two-year process was marked by many suggestions, negotiations and compromises. In the final month, Runkel sat down with a coalition called CAUSE — Citizens Alliance to Uphold Special Education.

It represented all special ed organizations plus the state associations of school boards and school administrators along with the two teachers' unions. The panel voted 13-1 to support the new rules, Beardmore said.

THE OAKLAND Parents Advisory Committee was angry they weren't part of the negotiations, she said.

"The feeling of the rest was that CAUSE was representing parents and providers. I don't think they (Oakland PAC) objected to the final result as much as the fact that they weren't a party to the way it was done," she said.

"I've met with individual special ed teachers, and they say it's wonderful. There might have been a few concerns, but a lot of the fears have been built on worse possible cases.

"The complaint procedures have been improved."

S'craft center helps businesses get contracts

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Business is getting brisker at Schoolcraft College's Business Development Center.

Area firms are learning how to bid on federal and state contracts, and at least 2,000 people have been trained for jobs, said director Bruce Sweet.

"We don't have hard numbers yet on their success," added staff member John Chichester. "But last month we assisted firms with 123 contract opportunities bidding on $150,000 worth of contracts," he reported to the board of trustees last week.

Area firms are learning how to bid on federal and state contracts, and at least 2,000 people have been trained for jobs.
— Bruce Sweet, director
Schoolcraft Business Development Center

CHICHESTER is in charge of the phase known as "marketing to government" — procuring government contracts. Sweet hired him away from the Downriver Community Conference.

In World War II, Chichester said, metro Detroit was known as "the arsenal of democracy." After the war, however, it went back to the auto business, and companies lost their knowledge of how to deal with the government.

Plummeting auto sales in the recessions of the '70s and '80s, however, drove home the lesson that southeastern Michigan had to diversify its economy.

SCHOOLCRAFT'S Business Development Center is located conspicuously in the library, adjacent to the college's visitors parking lot.

There, Chichester said, he provides one-on-one counseling, hands out technical information on bidding, and sets up seminars and conferences.

Some 67 area companies have been getting a continuous stream of information, he added.

College President Richard McDowell said an area architect-engineering firm is in a strong position to get the contract to build a new downriver post office.

SWEET SAID Schoolcraft is working on setting up the first auto-glass-installer certification program in the nation.

It's an outgrowth of a Job Opportunity grant of $84,000 from the state to train 42 auto-glass installers. "The state will require certification next year of auto-glass installers," he said.

Sweet said the college has provided training for 2,100 employees of area firms, not counting the much-publicized training of 400 reservationists for Republic Airlines.

Among the classes are computer literacy and statistical training for Ford Motor Co. Livonia transmission plant employees. Some classes even have dealt with retirement.

Companies are finding out about the Business Development Center through referrals, news stories, talks to chambers of commerce and ads in chamber bulletins, Sweet said.

THE BUSINESS Development Center is funded up to $295,000 from five different sources.

"The things I like are that we don't get dependent on any one source, and three of these are performance-based contracts," Sweet said. The sources:

- $57,000 from the U.S. Labor Department via the Wayne County Private Industry Corp. It funds the information center, training seminars and the procurement library.
- $50,000 from the state Commerce Department for procurement assistance.
- $63,000 from the Defense Department logistics agency for procurement assistance.
- $35,000 from the Ann Arbor Chamber of Commerce for procurement assistance.
- $25,000 from the Oakland County Community Growth Agency for procurement assistance.

The center's $65,000 operating budget comes from the college.

Hearing set on busing funds

The State Board of Education will hold a public hearing at 10 a.m. Wednesday, March 19, to discuss proposed changes in the way the state offers transportation funding to local school districts.

It will be in the Wayne Intermediate School District "Discussatorium" at 33500 Van Born Road in Wayne.

Written comments can be submitted to the state department's offices at the School Management Services Building, P.O. Box 30008, Lansing, MI 48909.

HOW HEALTHY ARE YOU?

People under chiropractic care know the answer. They know that health is when all systems of the body are functioning all the time.

They also know that the function of the brain and nerve system is to coordinate and control all body function. That's why they come in for spinal adjustments. The adjustment they receive is to realign vertebrae which are out of place, which, in turn, interfere with the function of the nerve system.

Scientific research indicated that interference to the nerve system caused cells of the body to work improperly. This sets up disease, which leads to sickness and early death.

LENGTH OF THE TIME WITH INTERFERENCE TO THE NERVE SYSTEM.

Chiropractic care focuses on the removal of the cause of poor health by removing interference to the nerve system.

• According to a University of Southern Californian study, Los Angeles women are four times more likely to have a chronic cough than women living in urban in rural areas of Michigan. Probable reason: smog.

• A recent study found that adult adoptees were more similar to their biologic than their adoptive parents in the degree of body fatness. These findings highlight the importance of genetic influences, rather than the family environment, in determining adult obesity.

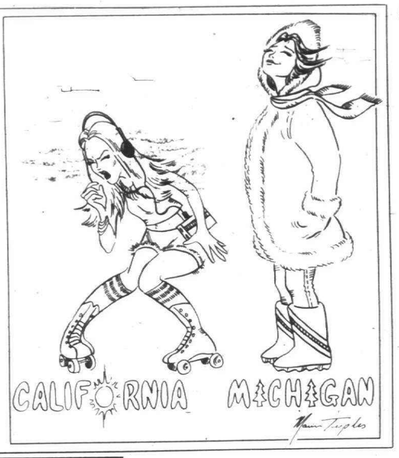

• The safest and most effective way to perform a sit-up is to lie on your back keeping your knees bent and feet flat on the floor.

• Unused muscle does not gradually turn to fat. Muscle and fat are two distinctly different types of tissue that are not capable of converting to the other. Muscles that are unused simply decrease in size.

• A recent study showed that cigarette smoking increased the daily energy expenditure by approximately 10 percent. These findings help to explain why people tend to gain weight when they stop smoking. To counteract this effect, it is recommended that subjects who stop smoking either reduce their caloric intake or increase their physical activity.

Surviving in winter — even plants adapt

By Timothy Nowicki
special writer

COLD winter weather in Michigan causes all living organisms to adapt to low temperatures and reduced exposure to sunlight.

Mammals either hibernate, or grow extra fur to keep warm. Amphibians and reptiles reduce their body functions to a bare minimum, bury themselves in the soil, or find a secluded cave.

Plants too have adapted to the climatic changes that occur. Annuals, which grow and bloom in the summer but die after they set seed, ensure next year's generation to winter hardy perennial seeds.

Perennial plants — which grow year after year from the same root system — generally lose their leaves and reduce their water content.

MOST PLANTS that remain visible during winter are just a skeleton of what they were like in summer.

Without leaves, trees and bushes display their network of suppport — their branches. When viewed against a background of white snow, interesting shapes can be determined.

nature

Along the sides of freeways, the gumdrop or thimble shape of the teasel flowerhead can be readily indentified on top of it's six-foot stem.

THE DOME shape of many goldenrod field bushes suggest someone had actually pruned them. Most of these bushes are species of bush called dogwood. A single plant begins to grow from its supporting root system.

Then after a short time, more plants begin to grow fromt he spreading roots. Each generation continues to spread outward, while the original plants toward the center grow even taller, thus creating a dome appearance.

ELM TREES that remain can be easily identified in winter by their distinct funnel shape.

Branching of elm trees does not begin until about half way up the tree. Then the main branches angle obliquely outward, gradually forming the fine branches near the top.

THE SAME MEDICINE, DIFFERENT RESULTS

Why is it that you have an upset stomach, headache, or itching from a drug, but someone you know has used the same medicine for years with benefit and no distress?

This difference in drug effect occurs because of the great variation between individuals in their ability to absorb, transport, use, and break down a drug. Throughout the body there are chemicals called enzymes which accomplish the task of processing medications that have entered the bloodstream. Hundreds of enzymes are involved and no two people bring the same enzymes to the job. Thus, it is possible for the usual dose of a drug to be toxic to an individual because that person happens to have no enzyme capable of breaking down that drug efficiently.

Doctors tend to be skeptical about the use of a drug for reasons that: "This drug helped my neighbor, let me try it and see if it will help me." Because of the differences in enzymes between people, not only may that drug not help you, it possibly could cause you harm.

Plymouth Masonic Lodge founded 135 years ago

(Part I)

The second oldest fraternal organization in the community — Plymouth Rock Lodge No. 47, Free and Accepted Masons — has been in existence for the past 135 years. But it had its origin in Northville.

The dispensation which established the lodge in Northville, on the recommendation of the officers and members of Detroit Lodge No. 2, was dated Jan. 15, 1851, the year the first academic degree was granted to a woman in Michigan.

The lodge functioned in Northville for five years then was transferred to Plymouth. It remained in Plymouth until 1864, the year "In God We Trust" first appeared on American coins.

In 1864, the lodge moved back to Northville but its number was changed to 186 and Plymouth retained the No. 47 and the charter. Local Masons then adopted the present name, Plymouth Rock Lodge No. 47.

In the following year, the Oddfellows, Plymouth oldest fraternal organization, established here in 1847, signed a 99-year lease on the third story of a building built by Masonic member Henry Fralick on Main Street, opposite Kellogg Park. (Fralick was secretary of the Masonic Lodge in 1860-61). In return for the privilege of sharing the Oddfellow's space, the Masons agreed to pay half the expense of the lease.

BEGINNING IN 1869 and again in 1875, 1879 and 1880, the Worshipful Master of the Lodge was a well-known Plymouth businessman, William N. Wherry.

Wherry, who began a bicycle livery and repair business in Plymouth in 1866, also was an accomplished taxidermist. But his chief claim to fame was the "famous self-setting Wherry Mole Trap" which he made in a shop on Dodge Street at the rear of his Main Street home.

In an ad in the Plymouth Mail on Feb. 1, 1889, which advertised his traps as a "Dead Shot on Moles," Wherry quoted a merchant in Wayne, Mich., who "caught twenty-nine moles in less than one yard of space." Wherry traps were shipped all over the U.S. and Canada. In 1903, Montgomery Ward offered Wherry traps in its catalog for 67 cents each or $7.80 per dozen.

Masons met in the Fralick building for the next 28 years. Membership declined and activity was at a low ebb until 1888 when Preston B. Whitbeck was the Worshipful Master. Whitbeck, who joined the lodge in 1885, and was Master for four years beginning in 1887 and for a fifth time in 1894, had been a master mason in Brighton. He moved to Plymouth in 1884 where he operated a farm.

During Whitbeck's time, the duties of the Master were many and varied. A Masonic leaflet, honoring Whitbeck at age 90 when he was the oldest living past master of the Lodge, noted: "Often, Brother Whitbeck was obliged to leave for lodge in time to build the fires, clean and fill the kerosene lamps and sometimes wash the dishes of a previous supper."

In 1898, when Whitbeck was treasurer of Plymouth Township and George A. Starkweather was president of the Village of Plymouth, they teamed in an unsuccessful effort to dissuade Northville residents from splitting away to form a separate township.

During Whitbeck's tenure as Master, the addition of 30 members gave new impetus to the Lodge. In 1890, the meeting place was remodelled and new furniture installed at a cost of $600.

MASONIC OCCUPANCY of the Fralick building came to an abrupt end on April 18, 1893, when James M. Collier was Worshipful Master.

On that day, fire engulfed the Main Street block in which the building was located. The blaze, which the Detroit Journal called "the dastardly deed of an incendiary," was discovered just before midnight.

Residents rushed to dam Tonquish Creek to provide water for Detroit firemen, but the fire engine did not arrive until 2:30 a.m. By that time most of the Phoenix Block, including the Fralick building, was in ruin. (Fire companies were not organized in Plymouth until after the fire when water was piped from Northrup Spring in Northville Township). All of the buildings from Penniman Avenue to within three stores of Ann Arbor Trail were destroyed.

The Oddfellows and the Masons lost records dating back to their origins in 1847 and 1851. Some of the Masonic loss was covered by insurance, which paid $200 on the meeting place and $300 on regalia. After the fire, the Masons met in a hall generously provided by the Knights of Pythias.

An organization known as the Plymouth Masonic Association was quickly formed for the purpose of erecting a building. The president of the association that first year was W.H. Hoyt. Hoyt, who was president of the village in 1883 and supervisor of Plymouth Township from 1891 to 1896, was the owner of the Hoyt Monument Works located near his home on Main Street. The firm sold gravestones.

Shares of $10 each were bought by lodge members. When $2,000 was raised, the lodge began construction of a temple two stories high. Two rooms on the first floor were for rental. The second floor was for lodge purposes.

The building, which cost $5,000, was dedicated on Nov. 14, 1893, just seven months after the fire. I have been unable to determine where it was located. By 1922, when Roswell Tanger joined the lodge, it met in rooms over Schrader's Furniture Store, then located on Penniman Avenue.

Irish friends reappear on 17th

the stroller

W.W. Edgar

This is one of the great days that the Stroller will be living in memory.

As the days and years pass by he will be recalling his many visits to the old Trinity Church in Corktown and a few interesting hours with the late Father Clement Kern.

St. Patrick's Day was never complete until you spent some time with your Irish friends at the old church. And when the services were ended you moved next door to the good Father's residence. After a visit and a few hours of telling Irish yarns, then exiting over to Fort Street where Tommy Long, a one-time prize fighter, ran a parlor to aid persons who needed a thirst quencher.

There never was a holiday in the entire year that ever came close to St. Patrick's Day when the noon arrived.

THE STROLLER'S first visit to the old church came as a surprise.

At the time he was working out of an office in the Fort Shelby Hotel and had just came downstairs on the way to the dining room when in came Tommy Long.

He grabbed The Stroller by the arm and said, "Come you Dutchman, we'll make an Irishman out of you for an hour or two."

With that we started for Holy Trinity, just a city block away.

When we got there and went into the church, Tommy walked down the main aisle, keeping a tight hold on The Stroller until we got to the front row and sat with the Sisters.

For a moment it seemed a bit embarrassing as folks who knew us were chuckling. Just about then the good father walked out of the wing toward the altar. When he spotted The Stroller even he smiled.

He was a very gracious host after the service and some of the finest stories one ever heard were told. But he refused an invitation to join the group to the thirst-quenching parlor only a few minutes away.

Had he gone he would have enjoyed the singing. Tommy Long's brother had a fine Irish voice and he led the group with "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" and asked all to join in. But when he was asked to sing Mother MaCree, he refused, saying that would be the closer. We did have fun with "Where the River Shannon Flows" and all the old-time favorites.

THIS WENT ON for hours and it was a day that the Irish proved to be good hosts and friends. But it left a feeling with The Stroller that being Irish was really fun.

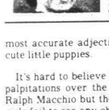

It was for The Stroller and, as he recalls that great afternoon, he felt that the bit of Irish blood in his veins was what made him a lover of the old-time Irish songs.

Father Kern, who spent his last days at the St. John Seminary in Plymouth, never forgot the day The Stroller visited him and we had several fine visits in his retirement. He is gone now and the Long boys, too, have passed from the scene. But never is there a St. Patrick's Day that they don't come back in memory.

You can rest assured that those old Irish songs will be hummed on this St. Patrick's Day.

So "Erin Go Brah." Have a happy day — as happy as the one The Stroller will be enjoying.

Sex appeal grows old

Nancy Walls Smith

I don't know about you, but I find the fact that Kris Kristofferson will soon be 50 years old very depressing. (I imagine he's not too thrilled at the prospect, either).

It's just that he's always been my favorite movie star/singer/sex symbol. But it's silly when your favorite sex symbol is 50 years old. Besides, he is starting to look a little wizened.

When I saw him in his latest TV effort, "Blood and Orchids," sans beard, I actually saw lots of little wrinkles on his face. Oh, my. It was disillusioning to say the least.

Even good ol' hunky Tom Selleck of "Magnum, P.I." fame is at least 40. He still looks pretty great but he's probably only got a couple of good years left in him. I'm as sad about this fact as he probably is.

RECENTLY I picked up a copy of "Superteens Magazine" for one of my kids. OK, I admit it — it wasn't for one of my kids. I was just curious.

I wanted to see what today's "sexy, adorable centerfolds" had going for them. Since most of the young men in the magazine appeared to be barely this side of puberty, I'd say that "adorable" was the most accurate adjective on the cover. Kind of like cute little puppies.

It's hard to believe that some little girl is having palpitations over the likes of Ricky Schroder and Ralph Macchio but then I'm sure those same young girls fail to see any charm in an old grey-beard like Kris Kristofferson.

At least there's one sex symbol in my life who will never change. He looks as "hunky" as he did 20 years ago and he's just as macho as Magnum. But the very best part is that he comes home for dinner every day at 5.

CALCIUM FOR A SLICE OF THE BETTER LIFE

Today's brunch or luncheon party guests expect more than food that looks good and tastes great. There's an additional ingredient required by our health-oriented society — food that is good for you.

For women especially, one of the many important factors in healthy eating is calcium intake.

Calcium is essential for building bones, muscle contraction, blood clotting and nerve function. If the body does not get enough, hormones will cause calcium to be released from the skeleton into the bloodstream to make it available for nerves and muscles. Long-term inadequate intakes of calcium have been associated with the development of osteoporosis — porous, brittle, breakable bones. For approximately one out of every four women over the age of 65, this disorder is all too well-known.

Although osteoporosis is most commonly observed in persons in their sixties, the disorder may actually begin in the mid 30's. The key to reducing potential risk is to build maximum bone mass before age 35. But no matter what the age, steps can be taken today to insure an adequate calcium intake.

1) EXAMINE YOUR DIET: The Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA) for calcium is 800 mg for adults. However, getting the RDA for calcium is not always easy, especially for women. In fact, two out of every three women over the age of 17 do not consume the RDA for calcium — most are getting only about 600 mg per day. But according to some experts, even this may not be enough for the average woman. These experts suggest the RDA be raised to 1,000 mg before menopause and 1,500 mg after menopause. In selecting foods rich in calcium, this chart may be helpful to you.

CALCIUM CONTENT OF SELECTED FOODS

| EXCELLENT SOURCES | AVERAGE SERVING SIZE | CALCIUM (mg) | PERCENT OF ADULT RDA (800 mg) |
|---|---|---|---|
| CHEESE | | | |
| Cheddar, mild | 1 oz | 204 | 25.5 |
| Colby | 1 oz | 194 | 24.2 |
| Monterey Jack | 1 oz | 212 | 26.5 |
| Swiss | 1 oz | 272 | 34.0 |
| Processed Singles | 1 oz | 167 | 20.9 |
| MILK | | | |
| Skim | 1 cup | 296 | 37.0 |
| Whole | 1 cup | 288 | 36.0 |
| Yogurt (low fat) plain | 8 oz | 347 | 43.4 |
| FISH (with bones) | | | |
| Salmon, canned | 3 oz | 167 | 20.9 |
| Sardines | 3 oz | 370 | 46.3 |
| Collard Greens | 1/2 cup | 176 | 22.0 |
| MODERATE SOURCES | | | |
| Oysters | 3 oz | 81 | 10.1 |
| Spinach, cooked | 1/2 cup | 88 | 11.0 |
| Cottage Cheese (2% fat) | 1/2 cup | 77 | 9.6 |
| Soybean Curds (tofu) | 3 oz | 108 | 13.5 |
| Almonds | 1/4 cup | 83 | 10.4 |
| Broccoli, cooked | 1/2 cup | 68 | 8.5 |
| Ice cream, vanilla | 1/2 cup | 88 | 11.0 |

2) BE AWARE OF CALCIUM LOSS FACTORS: Coffee, alcohol and nicotine from any source may increase calcium loss.

3) EXERCISE: Exercise involving movement and muscle pull is recommended. Interestingly, NASA medical consultants have noted an immediate loss of bone mass in astronauts spending even a short amount of time in zero gravity. Likewise, people who require complete bed rest for long periods of time lose calcium from the bone. Hence, walking, jogging, aerobic dancing, gymnastics, tennis and weight lifting all work on behalf of the bones. Exercising outdoors in the sun allows the body to make vitamin D, further benefiting calcium utilization.

To achieve an all around good diet which provides plenty of calcium, learn the best food sources of calcium and then incorporate these foods into your daily diet. (Milk and American cheese are convenient sources of calcium.) Incorporating these dairy products into the three meals of the day is an easy way to help you get the recommended allowance for calcium.

Other suggestions include: 1) adding cheese in sandwiches and salads; 2) snacking on cheese and crackers; and 3) using milk and cheese in casseroles.

Skillet dishes have built-in ease, convenience

With today's dining trends taking a definite turn toward good-tasting dishes with built-in ease and convenience, the best cooks have one or two special ingredients which always assure them of successful results.

They begin with a convenient, high-quality, easy-to-prepare food to which a variety of ingredients can be added for a head start on tempting dishes for any occasion.

Skillet dishes, for example, are enjoying a resurgence in popularity due to the time pressures so many cooks face. A skillet dish is appealing because it's so easy, and several meal components can be prepared together, eliminating the extra time required to prepare several courses.

Two such easy skillet dishes are Wild Ginger Chicken and Wild and Easy Supper Skillet.

Serve 25-minute Wild Ginger Chicken anytime, for guests or family meals.

WILD GINGER CHICKEN

1 tsp. ground ginger
½ tsp. garlic powder
½ tsp. paprika
⅛-¼ tsp. cayenne
4 chicken thighs, skin removed
1½ cups water
1 pkg. (5 oz.) brown and wild rice with mushrooms mix
1 cup fresh pea pods

Combine ginger, garlic, paprika and cayenne. Sprinkle over chicken; rub to coat thoroughly. Combine water and contents of rice and seasoning packet in large skillet. Arrange chicken in skillet, pressing down into rice. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Add pea pods; stir into rice surrounding chicken. Cover. Let stand 5 minutes or until rice is of desired consistency. Makes 4 servings.

WILD AND EASY SUPPER SKILLET

1 tsp. garlic powder
¾ pound boneless beef sirloin, cut into 2x½x½-inch strips
2 Tbsp. vegetable oil
1¾ cups water
1 pkg. (5 oz.) brown and wild rice with mushrooms mix
1 cup small broccoli flowerets
½ tsp. salt
¼ cup thin red pepper strips or 2 Tbsp. pimiento strips

Sprinkle garlic powder over sirloin. Cook sirloin in oil in large skillet over medium heat just until cooked through, 4-5 minutes. Remove meat; reserve. Add water and contents of rice and seasoning packets to skillet. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in broccoli and beef; add salt if desired. Cover and let stand 5 minutes or until rice is of desired consistency. Sprinkle with red pepper. Makes 4 servings.

Mixes save the day

Nothing is more embarrassing than unexpected guests dropping in and not having anything to serve them.

Having soup and recipe mixes on hand can help eliminate that worry. Chili Beef Soup is just one recipe that is quick but impressive.

CHILI BEEF SOUP

1 lb. ground beef
1 large clove garlic, minced
1-2 Tbsp. chili powder
1 pouch onion mushroom soup and recipe mix
¾ cup water
1 can (about 16 oz.) kidney beans
1 can (about 15 oz.) tomatoes, cut up
Sliced avocado
Shredded Cheddar cheese

In 3-quart saucepan over medium heat, cook beef with garlic and chili powder until browned, stirring to break up meat. Pour off fat. Stir in soup mix, water, kidney beans and tomatoes. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low; cover and simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Garnish with avocado and cheese. Makes 5 cups or 5 servings.

'Dolly' production is looking swell

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Members of the Plymouth Park Players cast and crew have been hard at work in recent weeks, polishing their production of "Hello, Dolly!" until it shines.

Area residents will have an opportunity to see the results of that hard work on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 20-22, when the adventures of Dolly Levi come to life. Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium.

It's going very well," Gloria Logan, the director, said Thursday. "By next weekend, we'll be ready."

"Hello, Dolly!" is the story of Dolly Levi's efforts to marry off wealthy Horace Vandergelder and send his money circulating the way her late husband taught her.

ALONG THE WAY, Dolly also succeeds in matching up the young Widow Molloy with Vandergelder's head clerk, Cornelius Hackl. She also matches up Barnaby Tucker, Cornelius' assistant, with Minnie Fay, Mrs. Molloy's hat shop assistant, and the artist Ambrose Kemper with Vandergelder's niece, Ermengarde.

The company includes students in grades nine through 12 from Plymouth Salem High School and Plymouth Canton High School and students from several middle schools.

"They all manage to get along really well, and they all manage to get the job done, too, which is terrific," Logan said.

Rehearsals have been held from 2:30 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. The company rehearses each show for approximately eight weeks, she said.

In addition to the rehearsal sessions, many hours have gone into the technical work for "Hello, Dolly!"

The company performed Neil Simon's "Barefoot in the Park" during the fall. "Barefoot in the Park" had a limited number of characters, Logan said, but "Hello, Dolly!" has a larger cast, including its principal characters and a number of dancers and singers.

"Hello, Dolly!" is one of those all-time rousers. It's a fun family show."

Choosing "Hello, Dolly!" has also given the costumers an opportunity to work on a number of period costumes, she said. Nearly all of the costumes have been built by the costumers, with just a few having been rented.

LOGAN IS LOOKING forward to the performance dates.

"That's when I get to quote, unquote, relax."

Tickets for "Hello, Dolly!" are $3.50 for general admission, $5 for reserved seating.

Tickets may be purchased from any company member or at the Salem High School auditorium. General admission tickets will be sold at the door on show nights as available.

Tickets for reserved seats must be purchased in advance from Gloria Logan in the Salem High School auditorium. For additional information, call 451-6243.

Wildlife threat?

Wilderness buffs oppose U.P. timbering plan

By Penny Wright
special writer

Southeastern Michigan conservationists are giving poor reviews to a new U.S. Forest Service resource management plan for the 928,000-acre Ottawa National Forest, located in Michigan's western upper peninsula.

At an Ann Arbor meeting, many called the plan flawed and urged public opposition.

The issue is whether the Ottawa National Forest should be opened to increased timber harvesting. The forest, abutting Michigan's Porcupine Mountain Wilderness, is home to an extensive mix of wildlife including the bald eagle and the nearly extinct eastern timber wolf.

our land
Penny Wright

The Ottawa is dotted with scenic waterfalls, pristine lakes and dense masses of hardwood and conifer trees.

THE PLAN was discussed at a workshop held in the Ann Arbopr public library last week. Besides Ann Arborites, the session drew onlookers from Livonia, Dearborn, East Detroit, Birmingham and other suburban communities.

Workshop panelists spoke on behalf of the Wilderness Society, a co-sponsor the session along with the Sierra Club and National Audubon Society.

The Forest Service is part of the U.S. Agriculture Department. National forests are designated as multiple use lands — for timber and grazing as well as recreation and wilderness.

Wilderness advocates charged the plan displays a long-term philosphy of "building more roads and harvesting more timber." They called the philosophy unnessary, uneconomical and damaging to the forest's wild resource values.

"We feel it is critically important for people to know about the Ottawa Plan and how they can influence the outcome of the plan," said Mike Anderson, a forest planning specialist with the Wilderness Society.

Anderson said the general public has until Feb. 28 to comment on the Ottawa plan. "Citizens have the opportunity to affect the outcome of the final plan if they act immediately.

THE BASICS of the Forest Service plan are:

- Increase the timber harvest to 86 million board feet (mbf) yearly for the plan's 10 years. In the second decade, annual harvests of 111 mbf are planned; 130 mbf in the third decade, and 140 mbf annually in the fourth and fifth decades.
- Increase the road system through the forest to 5,030 miles over 30 years. Currently 4,000 miles of roads are in place.
- Designate some 50,344 acres — Sylvania, Sturgeon River Gorge and McCormick areas — as protected wilderness.
- Support four packs of endangered eastern timber wolf and 66 bald eagle breeding areas.
- Provide opportunity for semi-primitive nonmotorized recreation on 14 percent of the forest, semi-motorized recreation on 5 percent and roaded recreation on the other 81 percent.

WHILE CONTENDING the plan lacks enough undisturbed land to support wildlife needs, panelists fired hardest at the proposed increase in lumbering.

Panelist Michael Kellett, citing figures showing an average of $1 million a year loss in timber sales from the Ottawa Forest, called for a slowdown in timbering.

"Using Forest Service data, we can show taxpayers are losing money on the timber harvesting, and we believe there is not strong enough need to do what is planned," said Kellett who is on the faculty of the University of Michigan medical school.

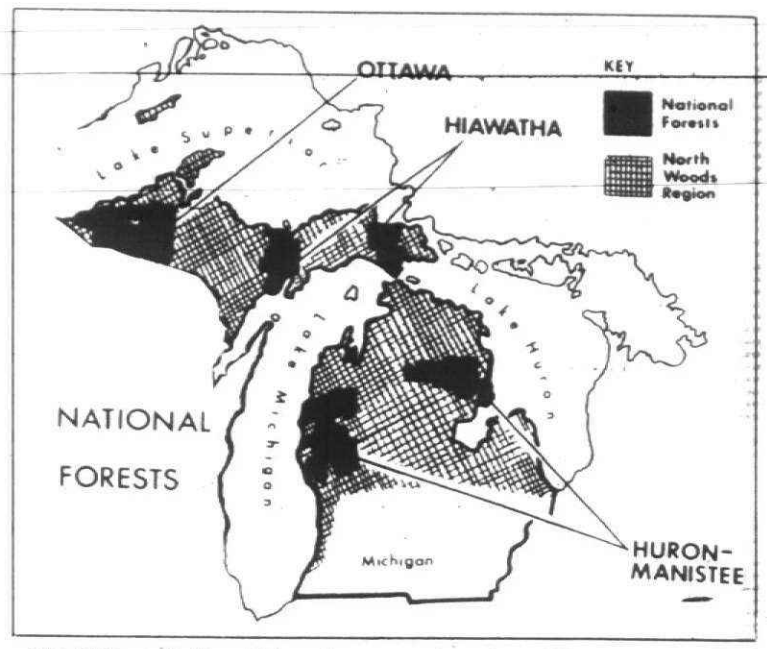

When questioned about the losses, Kellet indicated the Forest Service lost money due to high overhead, which included the costs of building roads. Timber sold from non-national forest land usually includes the costs of road building in the price.

In addition, Kellett said, "we propose the Forest Service call it quits on road building for 10 years and save the government money."

LOOKING AT the recreational aspects of the plan, Mark Fly, Ph.D, of the U-M School of Natural Resources, said it could reverse the migration trend of city dwellers to the upper peninsula.

"People are making quality of life decisions to move up there. They are looking for natural amenities of the area," he said. "Most land owners — new, longtime or absent — want more wilderness areas.

The Wilderness Society urged sending letters to: Forest Supervisor, Ottawa National Forest, East U.S.-2, Ironwood, Mich. 49938. They also urged writiNg to U.S. senators and representatives.

The Ottawa National Forest covers almost a million acres of wilderness in the Michigan's upper peninsula. At issue is whether the Ottawa National Forest should be opened to increased timber harvesting. The forest is home to an extensive mix of wildlife, including the bald eagle and eastern timber wolf.

Deepest low for Observer-land hoops?

Teams depart early from state tourney

Putting the basketballs back on the shelf

Chris McCosky

THE 1985-86 Observerland boys basketball season, which officially ended Wednesday night, earned itself a rather dubious distinction.

The season came to a close quicker than any other in recent history. The norm in Observerland is to get at least one team into the regional finals. Garden City reached that plateau last year, Plymouth Salem the year before, Redford Catholic Central the year before that.

This year only three teams escaped district tournaments. North Farmington and Plymouth Salem, two teams unranked in the area for most of the season, along with Catholic Central.

All three were bumped in the first round.

The point is obvious. The level of play in Observerland remains a cut (or two) below state-class teams. In other words, don't look for any area teams in next year's preseason top 25 in the state.

HOWEVER, JUST because the teams can't compete at the state level, doesn't mean we can't have some fun in our own area. That's just what happened this season.

The competition within the Western Lakes was intensive, even though in the end, the favored teams — Farmington Harrison and Westland John Glenn — came out comfortably on top. The two put on quite a show in their championship match. Out of 17 games I covered this season, it was easily the most entertaining (of course, I didn't see Wayne vs. Romulus in the districts).

There were no sure bets in Western Lakes games this season. There were few sure bets in any Observerland games this year. In any case, Pete (give me parity or give me death) Rozelle would have thoroughly enjoyed Observerland hoops this season.

Let's tie up all the loose ends and put this season to bed, once and for all.

THE FIGHT: Yes, there was a bit of a non-basketball related skirmish during the Romulus-Plymouth Salem regional game Wednesday night.

Brad Emons, who covered the game, reports that it was a lot of barking and not much biting. The fight started when Salem's Tom D'Angelo was pestering a Romulus player after a missed shot. The two bumped and exchanged words. The benches emptied, but no punches were thrown.

"The only scary thing was when Terry Mills came storming off the bench," Emons said. "I thought he might do some damage, but nothing happened."

Mills did some damage when play resumed, however. He rattled the backboard with a thundering two-handed dunk.

THE OVERACHIEVERS: 1. Plymouth Canton, 0-5 before Christmas, 10-6 after. 2. Wayne Memorial. They were the best team in the area (by far) and their tallest player was 6-2. 3. Livonia Churchill. Don Albertson may have put forth his best coaching effort of his career. His young team finished with a 12-9 record and was darn near impossible to beat at home. 4. Plymouth Christian. This team finished with a best-ever 17-4 record. Two years ago, the same group of players were 5-15.

The underachievers: 1. North Farmington. Perhaps this is unfair because the team started just two players with any extensive varsity experience. In the later part of the season, North was one of the top teams in the area — as was expected of them all along.

A lack of experience wasn't North's only problem. It was frustrating to watch the team waste the ability of Rick Anderson.

Anderson, arguably, was the best basketball player in Observerland this season (the coaches from the Mid-American Conference think so, anyway). He averaged between 10 and 15 shots per game with North. He rarely got the ball in a good position to score. Someone with his shooting ability should be taking 20 to 25 shots a game.

ANOTHER THING about Anderson. How come the guy never gets to the foul line? He's a 90 percent or better free throw shooter, but it seemed the only time he'd get to the line was to finish off a three-point play.

If it was frustrating for me, imagine how Anderson and North coach Tom Negoshian must have felt.

More underachievers: Plymouth Salem comes to mind. They were a 12-11 team very typical of Observerland basketball. The Rocks were both very good and very bad this season.

They were one of the biggest teams in the area, but their big men (with the exception of Mike Hale) were relatively passive players. Injuries played a big role in keeping Salem near .500. At one point, the team played without three starters.

ALL-EXCITEMENT TEAM: These are the guys I most enjoyed watching this season. 1. Farmington's Bruce Kratt. 2. John Glenn's Steve Hawley. 3. CC's Paul Tavana. 4. Harrison's Ken George. 5. Canton's Tyrone Reeves.

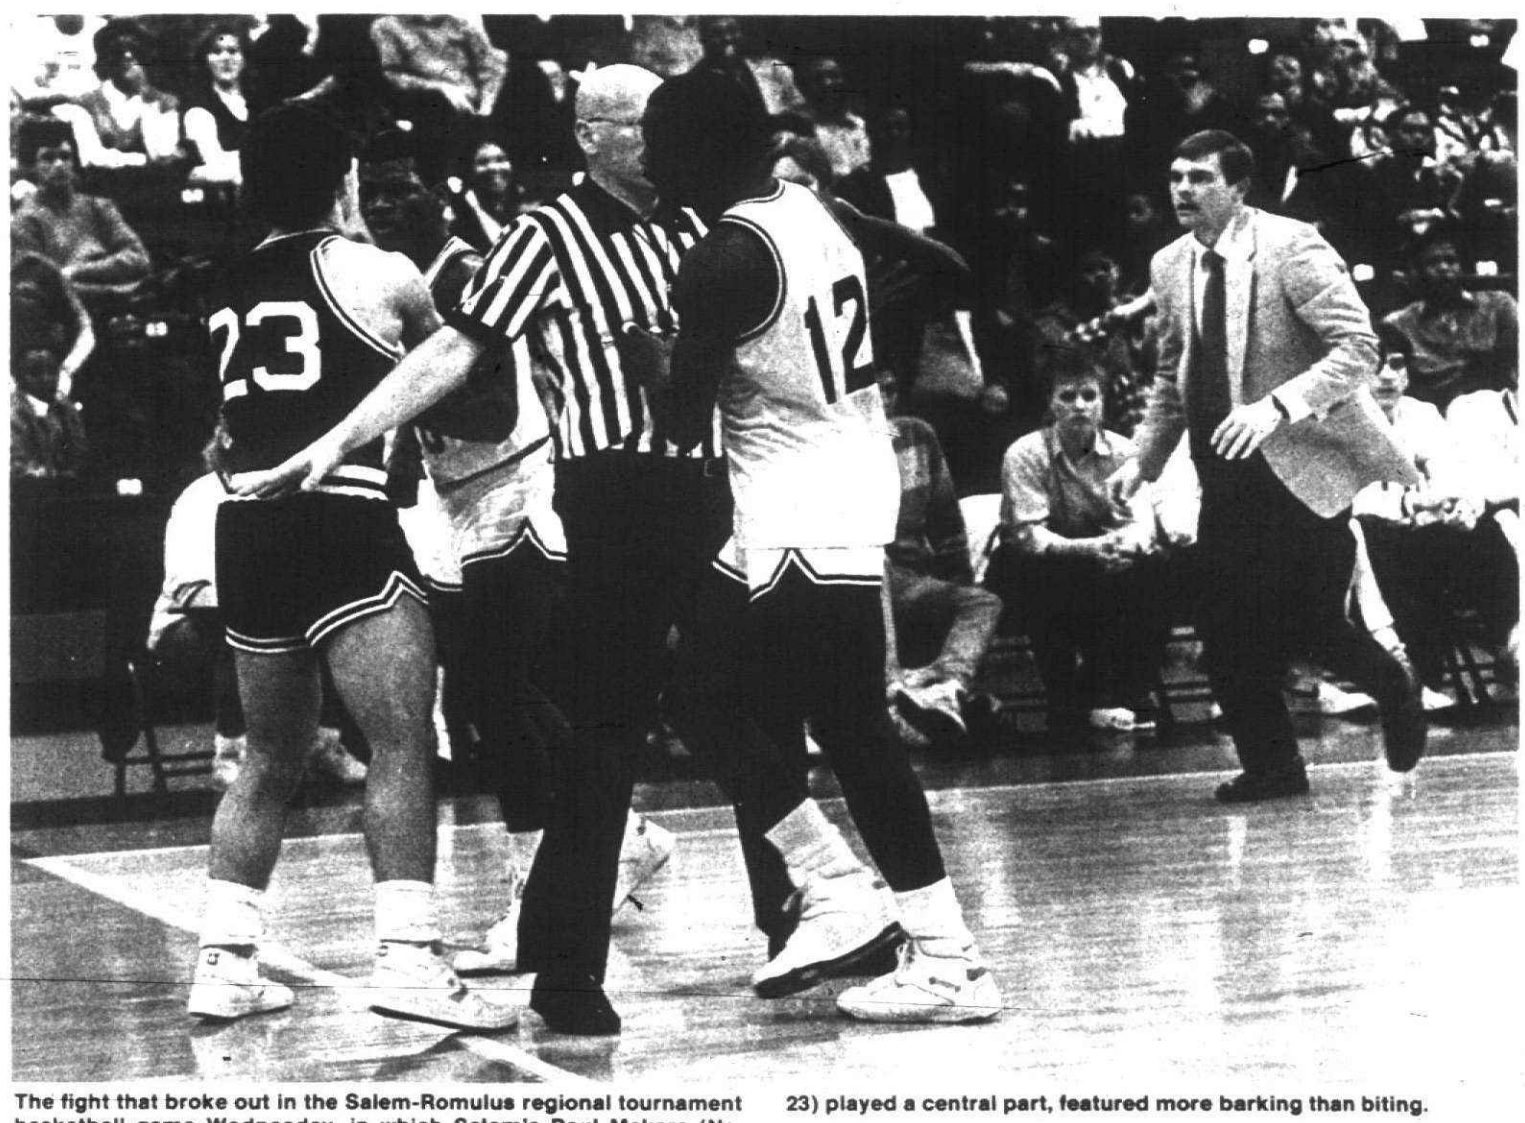

It should be noted that I didn't see any of these guys play this season: Cordell Robinson of Bishop Borgess, Mark Robinson or Spence Williams of Wayne, or Dennis Bushart of Redford Union.

All-Blue Collar team: These guys are hard-working and under-appreciated. 1. Mike Hale of Salem. 2. Rod Sarcevich of Harrison. 3. Paul Makara of Salem. 4. Ken Gendjar of Churchill. 5. John Sheridan, Garden City.

Most improved players: 1. Joel Mies of Canton. 2. Will Lund of Harrison. 3. Kyle Mutz of Farmington. 4. Andy Grazulis of Glenn. 5. Chip Finneran, Livonia Stevenson.

Lastly, I would be remiss if I didn't extend one last appeal to the Western Lakes athletic directors to reinstate the post-season league tournament.

You have the opportunity to stage a tournament to rival the highly-publicized PSL and Catholic League tournaments. Don't waste the opportunity. Listen to the coaches, they have put together a feasible plan: talk to either Fred Thomann or Mike Teachman.

The fight that broke out in the Salem-Romulus regional tournament basketball game Wednesday, in which Salem's Paul Makara (No. 23) played a central part, featured more barking than biting.

Mike Hale (left) and Tyrone Reeves (right) were among the bright spots on the boys basketball horizon this season. The good news is: both are juniors and will return next season.

Thomann's name can't escape college rumor mill

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

PERHAPS EVERYTHING was calm for too long.

For wont of a better term, the recent splurge of collegiate basketball coaching vacancies is often just referred to as cyclic. That makes it sound as if, every couple of years or so, there will always be a sudden rash of openings. Like the changing of the seasons, supposedly.

The effects these possible changes will have locally can not yet be determined. But that doesn't mean loads of possibilities — some plausible, some definitely possible, and some totally ridiculous — aren't being scrutinized.

The first opening came at Eastern Michigan University, when coach Jim Boyce resigned in January. Assistant coach Ben Braun assumed command, and Braun continues to be a top prospect. His recruitment efforts — Brian Nolan of Muskegon has committed, while Brad Soucy of Allen Park Intercity Baptist and North Farmington's Rick Anderson are close to it — have helped solidify his chances.

Others submitting their applications are Charlie Parker, the Wayne State coach; Bill Morris, formerly of Hillsdale College and now at Fort Hayes State; and Bernie Fine, an assistant coach at Syracuse.

THE NEXT OPENING brought rumors that Oakland University's Greg Kampe might be departing. Bowling Green State coach John Weinert announced in January he would retire at the end of this season. Kampe, who played under Weinert, admitted he had applied for the job, but has since withdrawn his name from consideration.

WSU's Parker, who was an assistant at BG under Weinert, is also interested in that job. So is Eldon Miller, who is leaving Ohio State.

Is this getting confusing? Well hold on, 'cuz there's more to come.

OU's Sue Kruszewski submitted her resignation as womens basketball coach earlier this month. Kruszewski, who coached the Lady Pioneers to a 42-40 record over three years, cited burnout as her reason for leaving.

OU athletic director Paul Hartman is hoping to have a new coach by April 9, the signing date for high school players. As yet, no favorite for the job has emerged, but the possibilities . . .

Like Ed Kavanaugh, the highly-successful Schoolcraft College and Livonia Ladywood womens coach. Kavanaugh has guided SC to the Eastern Conference championship and Ladywood to the Class B state crown in the last year.

So is he interested? "Not at all," said Kavanaugh, squashing that potential rumor quickly. "I'm happy where I am."

NOW TO THE MOST intriguing of candidates: the current Oakland Community College mens basketball coach, Fred Thomann. Or at least he was the top man through Saturday.

Thomann coached boys' basketball at Plymouth Salem for 12 years, piling up a 227-49 record, before resigning after the 1983-84 season. He still coaches Salem's girls team. And when an old friend, OCC coach Tom McPhillips, asked if he'd like to assist him prior to this season, Thomann agreed.

Little did he know what it would entail. Just before the end of the regular season, McPhillips was hospitalized. Thomann was called on to take over.

It wasn't an unpleasant task. OCC was one of the Eastern Conference's top teams. But it wasn't easy, either, particularly on short notice, with key tournament games ahead, and with Thomann committed to coaching the Salem girls track program.

OCC has since won the state junior college title and reached the NJCAA Division II semifinals under Thomann's tutelage. With McPhillips' return in doubt, the question was apparent: Would Thomann take the position on a full-time basis?

"WE HAVEN'T made any kind of a decision on it," said OCC athletic director Pin Ryan Thursday. "We're going to wait until the season is over."

Asked if Thomann would be considered for — or would consider — the job, Ryan replied, "I don't really know, that's what I'm saying. At the end of the season, we'll sit down and talk about it."

Coaching vacancies stir rumors

Thomann was no more revealing. Clouding the picture further was his background. He was the only high school coach considered for the EMU post before Boyce was selected, and he has shown an ability to coach womens basketball, too.

Which means he could be a candidate at EMU (again) or OU, as well as OCC — couldn't he?

"I haven't had time in the last three weeks to think about any openings," said Thomann. "It's been hectic. I've been tied up with OCC Thursday through Sunday for the past three weeks.

"I can honestly say I haven't given it much thought."

Still, Thomann could be considered at any of the three positions, although he said he had "not submitted my name for any position."

AND YET ...

"The thought enters your mind," Thomann admitted. "I interviewed for the Eastern job when Boyce got it, and they asked me to interview. Now, in retrospect, I can understand why they were not going to hire a high school coach, especially after the Gerry Faust thing at Notre Dame, when he couldn't do the job."

EMU does not appear to be a realistic possibility for Thomann. OU, too, must be considered a longshot. The school's administration has hired men to coach its womens team (current University of Detroit coach Dewayne Jones), but would probably want someone with more college experience.

That still leaves OCC, where the unvoiced message is that, should McPhillips not return, the job would be Thomann's for the taking.

"I'm still not even in a position to think about that," said Thomann. "Being thrust into this position, under these circumstances, is not the best way to do it. That's why I told the players and the people in the administration I would take it one day at a time.

"I'll talk to Tom first. In my mind it's still his job. It's his team, he recruited them, they're his players."

McPHILLIPS IS due to return in a week. But don't expect Thomann to make a decision quickly. He still enjoys teaching at Salem, and already was looking forward to coaching the girls team next year, which he thinks could be one of the school's best ever.

As for the OU position, Hartman has shown a tendency to select non-local coaches (Kampe, an assistant at Toledo, in mens basketball, and womens swim coach Mary Ellen Wydan, from Pennsylvania and an assistant at University of North Carolina).

Not that Hartman wouldn't listen. The question still remaining is: Would Thomann be interested?

And the only answer possible is, stay tuned.

OCC bounced in semifinals

The balanced scoring that marked Oakland Community College's men's basketball success throughout the season was missing Friday, and that cost the Raiders in a 69-59 loss to Parkland (Urbana, Ill.) CC in the NJCAA Division II semifinals at Flint Mott CC.

Early foul trouble plagued OCC. Starters Gary Holt and Willie Jones both missed nine minutes of the opening half after drawing their third personal fouls, enabling PCC to open up a 34-25 lead by the intermission.

That advantage grew to 16 before the Raiders rallied behind Jones, who scored 20 of his 24 points in the second half, and Rod Thompson, who had eight of his 18 in an OCC surge that tied it at 50 with six minutes left.

That was the best the Raiders could do, however. PCC scored the next four points and stayed in command by canning 13 of 14 free throws down the stretch. For the game, PCC hit 23 of 29 foul shots to seven of 16 for OCC. Dave Stein led the winners with 26 points.

The Plymouth-Canton Bantam B Flyers hockey team had it's perfect season blemished at the state playoffs last week, but wound up taking second place overall.

The Flyers took a 47-0-4 regular season record into the state playoffs at Southfield.

Only one Bantam team in the state was good enough to top the Flyers — Traverse City. Plymouth-Canton, one of eight district champions competing for the state title, defeated teams from Redford, Jackson and Warren, but lost a pair of 6-2 decisions to Traverse City.

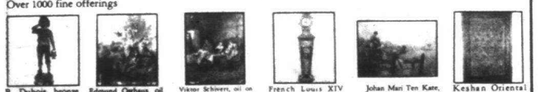

Mark Jogwich, Mike O'Brien, David McKee, Matt Blom, Jimmy Marshall, Mike Tenant, Scott Hall, Eddie Monette and Tommy Fugabian all scored goals for the Flyers in the tournament. Tenant scored six goals and McKee scored three.

The team will play at Joe Louis Arena at 8 p.m. March 21 in the East vs. West divisional game.

The Flyers are coached by Ray Allen with assistance from former Red Wing Dennis Hextall, Steve Kaifesh, Tom Allen and Ed Blom.

'Old critic' predicts who will win Oscars

First I was out of step with the millions who love Rocky and Rambo. Then I alienated young persons without number by saying Molly Ringwald is not Pretty in Pink, or out of it for that matter.

Now, once again, it is time for this old critic to expose his incompetence by predicting the 1986 Oscar winners.

Who will take home the Oscars? Movie fans everywhere are trying to guess winners of the Academy Awards. ABC-TV will broadcast live coverage of the event beginning at 9 p.m. Monday, March 24.

Best Actress, hands down, goes to Geraldine Page for her bravura performance in "Trip to Bountiful." After eight nominations, she finally should get the award.

If I even approach last year's 63 percent, I'll feel pretty good, but don't call Jimmy the Greek just yet.

Unlike Awards Night (Monday, March 24, this year), I won't try for the big finish. Rather, let's start at the top with Best Picture. This year's nominees include some of the best films of the decade. Looking at academy politics, I suspect that "Color Purple" will win Best Picture, although I think "Prizzi's Honor" and "Kiss of the Spider Woman" are better films.

IT'S ALWAYS a shaky proposition to compare films which are so diverse. In years less richly endowed with new films, either of these three or "Out of Africa" probably would walk away with most of the Oscars.

But, given the heavy competition this year, I think the emotion will carry the day for "Purple," even though I'm picking "Spider Woman" because "Prizzi's" sardonic irony didn't sell well. Besides, that crowd already has won quite a few awards.

I do think John Huston will take home an Oscar as Best Director for "Prizzi," reflecting respect and honor for a filmmaker of great accomplishment who made a very clever, entertaining movie.

Plunging right ahead, for Best Actor, I'm torn between Jack Nicholson and William Hurt. Immediately after screening "Prizzi" I ordered Jack's statue. Then I saw "Spider Woman." Both Hurt and Nicholson deserve the award but neither wants half, so I'll bet on Hurt since Nicholson's got a couple. Watch — after all this clever reasoning, James Garner will get a sympathy award for "Murphy's Romance." Not from me.

Best Actress, hands down, goes to Geraldine Page for her bravura performance in "Trip to Bountiful." After eight nominations, she finally should get the award. Whoopi Goldberg did turn in a superb performance but "Purple" will win so much that there's got to be some backlash. I'm betting on that in this category. Besides, Page did a marvelous job.

ALL FIVE ACTRESSES in the Supporting category are deserving but, to me at least, Oprah Winfrey in "Purple" is just a little bit ahead of the field and gets my vote.

William Hickey is most deserving in the Supporting Actor column but, among "Prizzi's" political problems, it peaked too early. Hickey, primarily known as a teacher of acting, should have a lot of support, but I'll bet Don Ameche gets it on sentiment. After all, if he hadn't invented the telephone, how could you call your agent?

"Miss Celie's Blues" from "Purple" for Best Song, although the kids on the pop charts may win for "Power of Love" from "Back to the Future" or "Say You, Say Me" from "White Nights." If Miss Celie doesn't get it, I'll pick "Power of Love."

"The Purple Rose of Cairo" was a very clever film, even though its box office wasn't smash. I'll pick Woody Allen for Original Screenplay. For Screenplay Adaptation, again the competition is intense with Horton Foote's "Trip to Bountiful" breaking into the select circle of "Purple," "Prizzi," "Africa" (screenplay by Kurt Luedke of Birmingham) and the "Spider Woman."

In most years, any one of those would be three lengths ahead of its closest challenger. "Purple," on a roll, will get this one as well as Original Score and Makeup.

Film Editing to "Runaway Train" while "Back to the Future" wins Sound and Sound Effects Editing. "Cocoon" gets my vote for Visual Effects and "Out of Africa" will win Costume and Cinematography.

Most of the Foreign Film and Documentary nominations weren't available so I don't have to stick my neck out there.

Here's hoping my percentage is better than last year. But who's counting?

Menu changed

New table linens, table lanterns and uniforms also are changing the restaurant's image. Windows, on the 11th floor of the inn, overlooks the Ann Arbor skyline.
