Residents: thumbs down on cityhood

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton should nix thoughts of becoming a city.

That refrain was echoed during a public forum March 19 attended by some 40 residents who showed up to discuss cityhood.

Canton's 60,000-plus residents were invited by a committee studying the pros and cons of switching from a charter township form of government.

THE POSSIBILITY of increased taxes was the major concern voiced by the crowd made up mostly of senior adults.

Charter townships can levy up to 5 mills without voter approval, and cities can levy up to 20 mills without voter approval. Both forms of government can add more to the tax bill with voter favor.

Residents expressed worry about the possibility of taxes rising if Canton becomes a city.

"The bottom line on taxes is that cityhood does not cost more," said Kenneth VerBurg, a Michigan State University community development professor who spoke at the meeting. Although he seemed to favor cityhood, VerBurg said, it was not his job to "persuade" residents either way.

"It depends on what you want in services," he said.

HISTORICALLY, townships switched to cityhood to avoid annexation threats, VerBurg said. However, chances are remote that Canton's borders can be sliced away by other communities.

A positive aspect of cityhood, VerBurg said, is that Canton would receive more control of roads presently under Wayne County's authority.

"If you get money directly and Wayne County turns over responsibility, then you as a community decide on the priority of the roads," VerBurg said. "That could be an important aspect."

Canton would have to add to the Department of Public Works, but money could be borrowed for added equipment like trucks, VerBurg said.

CANTON RESIDENT Bruce Patterson said, "I think you should look at a definitive goal that could only be achieved by going to cityhood."

Another difference between the forms of government is that cities directly receive state gas and weight tax monies. For townships, the funds are filtered from the state to the county and finally to the municipality.

If cityhood is approved, Canton needs to consider liability insurance for potential lawsuits affecting roads that would come under its authority.

Dr. P.S. Vachher of Pilgrim Hills subdivision said residents' "quality of life" would decline if Canton became a city.

"The advantage of this public meeting is that the decision is in your hands," VerBurg said. "In effect, the question is what do you want out of your community government and which form of government will best give it to you. My guess is that over the next hundred years, Canton will become a city. It's kind of the way things evolve."

Melvin Rising, a Canton resident, said, "We had a good meeting. It's too bad some of the young people who live in the township who will have to live here didn't come."

THE CITYHOOD study committee was initially to report to the Canton Township Board of Trustees by April 30. Even though an extension was offered, the committee should try to meet the deadline, said committee chairman David McDonald.

"We see that it's time to stop the fact-finding process and start deciding the issue because we can go on researching this forever."

Teen motorists to vie for safe driving awards

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Cash prizes and the use of a new car for a year are being used to get teenage drivers to compete in a national driving program promoting safety.

For the first time since Operation Driver Excellence began, Canton Township will host the district competition.

"One purpose of the program is to make youngsters aware that they have to be safe drivers," said James Sebel of American Veterans of World War II, Korea and Vietnam, which is sponsoring Operation Driver Excellence with Dodge.

"It's to make youngsters aware of courtesy on the roads, defensive driving and to make them aware of what's happening on the highways," said Sebel, adding that 50 percent of all fatal accidents involve youngsters between 15 and 25 years old.

THE DISTRICT competition will be held beginning 8:30 a.m. Saturday, April 19, on Canton Township Hall grounds, at 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

Applications are available at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools as well as the Canton Township Police Department.

At the district level novice drivers will represent high schools in Monroe, Wayne, Washtenaw and Lenawee counties.

Winners of the district competition will meet with top candidates around the state and those victors will go to the national meet.

"The district level has always been held in Detroit and this is the first time it will be held anywhere else," said Canton Officer Eddie Tanner, who is representing the police department in organizing the event.

"Michigan has never had someone win the national, and that's what we're looking for this year," Tanner said. "We're hoping three students from each high school at the district level will participate."

From 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. the drivers will test their skills on a written exam, maneuver a car through an obstacle course and complete a road test accompanied by a police officer who will grade them for proper handling skills. Refreshments will be available, and parents of the youngsters are invited to attend, Tanner said.

FIRST-THROUGH FIFTH-PLACE winners at the district level will receive jackets and the top three also will get trophies.

First-through fifth-place winners will become eligible for the state competition. First-fifth-place winners at

Proposed library site earns donation

Yazaki celebrates Canton site opening

A generous hand is reaching from the Far East to help fund a proposed $2 million building housing Canton's Public Library.

Yasuhiko Yazaki, president of the international Yazaki Group, is donating $10,000 to the Canton Public Library Board to commemorate the grand opening of the American Yazaki Corp., 6700 Haggerty west of I-275 and north of Ford Road.

American Yazaki Corp.'s $10 million, 210,000-square-foot Canton headquarters conducts engineering, research, sales and distribution for the company, which primarily sells car components.

The facility — a subsidiary of the Yazaki Group — transferred to the Canton site in December from four adjacent buildings in Livonia where they leased space.

THE DONATION is the first for the library's building fund.

"This is a good start, and it couldn't have come at a better time," said John Schwartz, Canton Public Library board member.

It's premature to pin anything down on when it will be built, "because mainly we don't have the money," Schwartz said.

Yasuhiko Yazaki, Shinji Yazaki, executive vice president of the parent company, and others from the Yazaki group will be present for the celebration beginning at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the Canton site. The Yazaki corporations have annual sales of more than $1 billion.

The festivities will begin with the launching of the six-sided Japanese style rokkaku kite and ribbon cutting. After the gift is presented to the library, a sake ceremonial toast will open a reception and offer a tour of the facility. The San Jose Taiko drum group performs at 8 p.m. after dinner.

Community involvement is important to the Japanese, said Jeanne Paluzzi, JGP Marketing Group International Inc.

"The library project was chosen for two reasons," Paluzzi said. "It's a project that needs some funding and the other reason is philosophical. A library is a repository of facts and ideas. It's a means for learning and growing. It truly reflects the philosophy of the Yazaki Company for a multi-cultural experience to grow."

The American Yazaki Corp. began operations in Chicago in 1966 and opened a Detroit-area branch office in 1973 which became the main U.S. office in 1976.

American Yazaki Corp. also deals with gas absorption air conditioning products.

Besides its locations in Japan, the Yazaki Group has operations in Dallas, El Paso and Nashville. Sites in other countries include Thailand, Taiwan, Australia, Philippines, Mexico, Great Britain, France, Iraq and Switzerland.

Man describes self in fake police report

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A Westland man proved to be his own worst enemy when he allegedly filed a police report when he called Township Police and was later found to be the guilty party.

The 23-year-old man was charged with filing a false police report after Canton Police found holes in his story hours after he called police March 18. In fact the best lead police had was his description of the fictitious assailant.

The young man described himself but excluded a beard he wears.

His story went like this: At about 10:30 p.m. March 17 he was driving west on Cherry Hill near Lotz in Canton Township when he saw a man hitchhiking. He picked him up and began driving west on Cherry Hill. When they approached Napier, he told police, the man aimed a blue steel revolver at him and demanded all his money. When he announced he didn't have any money, the robber demanded the car he was driving — a 1982 Ford Escort.

HE TOLD POLICE the subject drove his car west on Cherry Hill. The man called police from his Westland home to file a report more than two hours after he said the incident occurred.

He said the assailant was a white male, 5-10, 160 pounds, with a black leather jacket and blue jeans.

The license plate on his car was entered into a computer system used by law enforcement agencies throughout the state. Canton Police officers learned at 8:30 p.m. that a Washtenaw County sheriff made a computer inquiry about the same license.

Canton Police called the Washtenaw County Sheriff's department and "found that an off-duty officer saw someone matching the man's description in a field at Dixboro and Plymouth roads," Lt. Larry Stewart said. "The deputy approached the subject and asked if he needed help."

THE MAN DECLINED assistance. "The officers decided his story just seemed to be too smooth, and he wasn't convincing," Stewart said. "The man's physical description plus the beard matched the victim's. The deputy described the man to a T. He didn't know he was talking to a police officer because he (the officer) was in plain clothes."

When Canton Police confronted the man about the validity of his report, he confessed that it was contrived. The car was found with damage on the interior, broken windows and the radio missing.

He was charged with filing a false police report, a misdemeanor.

5th Super Bowl
Ex-football hero tackles drug problem

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

WHEN CARL ELLER

TALKS, people listen.

At 43, he still looks the part of one of football's most respected and feared defensive ends, a member of the Purple People Eaters. The former Minnesota Vikings star and veteran of four Super Bowls has long since shed his purple battle gear, but Eller is still battling, this time against drugs.

"Don't say it can't happen to you," Eller warns. "Nobody starts out to become a drug addict. It's not the way I started. I was on a joyride, out to have fun. What if it does happen? Who's going to help you? You might not be as lucky as I was."

Eller was in West Bloomfield Township last week to talk about his personal war against drugs, which he refers to as his fifth Super Bowl. Nearly 1,000 students from across metropolitan Detroit — most of them high school athletes and their coaches — attended the afternoon event at West Bloomfield High School.

Among them were students from West Bloomfield, North Farmington, Southfield, Birmingham Brother Rice, Plymouth-Canton, Plymouth-Salem and Catholic Central high schools. The event was sponsored by Henry Ford Hospital's Maplegrove Centers for chemical dependency treatment.

AS A YOUNGSTER in North Carolina, Eller said he fought to gain recognition. I didn't fit into any of the three neat categories of students — "the athletes, the academics and the affluent."

Instead, Eller said, "I found the deviants. Their qualifications were not high, all you had to do was what they did, get drunk."

Recognition followed, but of the negative variety. His high school principal gave him an ultimatum: straighten up or fail a grade. Eller decided to join the football team but, he says, "my behavior didn't change."

Eller listened just enough to win a scholarship to the University of Minnesota. "I wanted to get away from home where my mother couldn't legislate how I'd have fun."

In college Eller discovered parties and nearly lost his scholarship, but his on-field activities made him the first-round draft pick of the Minnesota Vikings.

"I signed a big contract and suddenly I was affluent. I had conquered the athletic and the academic parts and was very much a part of the three groups that had rejected me earlier. I married my college sweetheart and thought, 'Hey this is great. This is the way life is supposed to be.'"

SOON AFTER SIGNING, Eller had his first experience with marijuana. Upon becoming a Viking he learned, "If you want to be a Viking, you have to drink like one." Eller had no problem belonging.

After two partying teammates ended their careers in an automobile accident, Eller "decided to change chemicals" and became a heavy marijuana user. Later he was introduced to cocaine.

"Suddenly I had a whole new set of feelings. I was no longer stinky, dull, Carl Eller. I had a new image of a dynamic person. I was a success. I was enjoying my career. It was a pleasure to be a Minnesota Viking."

All that soon changed, Eller said. "Suddenly I was no longer a Viking. I was a Seattle Seahawk."

He told me to take sleeping pills. "If you're basing your friendships on drugs," Eller told the student crowd, "drugs are your common denominator."

EXTRACT yourself from that group. Refuse to do drugs and see how much your friendship means to them."

AUDIENCE REACTION to Eller's speech was favorable. "Tess Berger, a junior and football player at Southfield High School, said, 'He was a good speaker. What he said deals with kids our age. It happens at Southfield, but we've got a supportive coach in Cal Fletcher.'"

"It was interesting," Gerry Haight, a junior at North Farmington High School, said. "We've got a small problem at North, but it isn't so much the athletes."

Rodney Wilson, a WBHS junior involved in several sports, said, "There's a problem here, very little, but it does exist. No cocaine, but pot and alcohol."

Flick Wilson, counselor, freshman basketball and golf coach brought a seven-person contingent from Plymouth-Salem, both athletes and journalists.

Plymouth-Salem student John Flower intended to write a review for the school newspaper, and Dan Johnston planned to speak to students about the airwaves via the school's radio station, WSDP. LaMar Crayton said, "We're all going to help spread the word."

Above: Julie Weingarden, a West Bloomfield senior, will report on Eller's talk for the school newspaper. Left: Utica teacher Steve Starnes and Clarkson student Chip Galley are among those who travelled to West Bloomfield to hear Eller's message.

What is Gibson's future?

Life, at times, can take some unusual twists and turns. Take the case of Kirk Gibson, the Tigers right fielder.

During most of the off-season he dominated the sports pages until he came to terms with a new contract that will pay him $1 million a year.

He was looking forward to this coming season when he hoped to prove to the world that he was worth all that money. Then came one of the twists and turns. He was stricken with a sore shoulder and now will sit on the bench — at least for a time — in the role of a designated hitter.

But now the question is being asked, will the Tigers continue to pay him that much for just making casual appearances at the plate? This is doubtful. And if the shoulder doesn't improve, the contract may be changed. And that will be another long drawn-out discussion.

BUT IT WON'T be anything new to the Tigers. They have gone through such cases several times in the past.

For instance they lost Mickey Cochrane, one of the finest managers they ever had, just when he was at the peak of his career as a player.

A playing manager, he had been hit on the head with a pitched ball and had to sit

the stroller
W.W. Edgar

out the rest of the season. He tried to be only a bench manager when he returned. But he couldn't make it and had to retire.

Hank Greenberg, the hard-hitting first baseman, was another case. At the peak of his career he suffered a wrist injury. Some thought he may have trouble bouncing back. And with Rudy York, another hard hitter, available to play first, Greenberg was shifted to left field.

Hank was the type who took things most seriously. So he agreed to the shift, provided he got a better contract. He never wanted more than one-year contracts. But he pointed out that his career may be shortened in the new position. So he was given a one-year contract, such as he wanted, and he worked hard in spring training until he learned the tricks of playing the outfield.

Then, at his peak in the new job, he went into the military service. And when he returned he was traded to Pittsburgh where he finished his career. But he was still a Tiger at heart.

IT IS THESE two cases that causes attention to be paid to Gibson's career.

Will he be able to take over again in right field? If he can't, chances are the Tigers will not pay that fabulous salary for a designated hitter.

This is just another of the twists and turns that life takes and Gibson will be the center of attention when the season gets underway.

It will be fine if his shoulder heals and he can take his place in the outfield and make the throws. But life is funny. It cost the Tigers plenty in past years.

Will he do it again? All the eyes will be on him when the season opens and his role will be up to Sparky Anderson. It won't be an easy problem to answer.

Veterans tell concerns on war

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

In the Veterans of Foreign War hall this week, members of the Mayflower-Gamble Post commented they were confused about President Reagan's plea that $100 million be sent to the Contras in Nicaragua to help stave off an invasion by the Russians.

"We don't want another Vietnam," said Archie Bunch, past adjutant of the post, as fellow members nodded their heads in agreement.

"He said in his address on television the other evening that this was the best way to stave off trouble and he made a serious plea that his wish be granted."

"But the president stated that he planned to take the case to the people. So far he hasn't done that and we are puzzled. After the people speak, it will be another thing, but right now it isn't clear."

HIS FELLOW veterans nodded and the former adjutant went on to say that "we seem to be in trouble, but are not being told everything that is going on. There are times when these things happen that the people aren't told all the facts. That could be possible now. So we will wait until we get all the facts. It might then be a plan we can approve all the way."

He said that the Vietnam War was costly and that it "was a case where not all the facts were given to us at the start. We don't want another war, and we don't want the Russians over in Central America. But we ought to be given all the facts."

He repeated that the facts may come out when the president goes to the people.

"UNTIL THEN we will remain a bit confused. The time has come when we don't want another Vietnam."

In his television address the other evening, the president was speaking seriously when he said that he is not asking for this huge amount out of our funds, but in military things needed to prevent the Russians from having a stronghold in Central America.

The VFW members are eager for some sort of settlement, as soon as possible, but until that happens, they admit being confused.

3 chemical safety bills pass Senate

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The state Senate has passed and sent to Gov. Blanchard three "right-to-know" safety bills. Two senators warned that one bill violates the Headlee amendment of the state constitution.

The bills require information to be given to workers, firefighters and the general public about dangerous chemicals. All Observer & Eccentric area senators voted yes on final passage.

"It's not a matter of safety for the firefighters. It's a matter of telling the local units of government what they must do," said Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, objecting to one bill.

WELBORN LOST. His amendment requiring the state to "reimburse local governments for the cost incurred in preparing, distributing and implementing" information plans was defeated, 12 yes and 23 no votes.

Welborn argued that the 1978 Headlee amendment requires the state to pay for any programs mandated to local government.

Supporting the Welborn amendment were Republicans Doug Cruse of Troy, Robert Geake of Northville and Rudy Nichols of Waterford.

Tobey's group labelled the last bill a "stop-gap measure" and called for better legislation.

Farmington Hills and Patrick McCollough of Dearborn. Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield, was absent.

THE MICHIGAN Right to Know Task Force, chaired by Scott Tobey, hailed the bills as "a tremendous victory."

It encouraged "people who are exposed to toxic chemicals in the workplace or in their communities to begin demanding the information that this law will provide."

The bills would require:

- Chemical suppliers to label all hazardous chemicals and to provide material safety data sheets to employers who purchase the chemicals.
- Employers would be responsible for training workers on the hazards. Manufacturing employers must be in compliance by May 25. Other employers must comply by Feb. 25, 1987.
- Local fire chiefs to develop plans for fighting chemical fires and make the plans available to firefighters.
- The Michigan Department of Public Health to make available to the public information on hazardous chemicals used by employers within a resident's county.

Tobey's group labelled the last bill a "stop-gap measure" and called for better legislation.

Check point delay only 2 minutes

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Innocent motorists would never have to wait more than two minutes to get through a drunk driver check point, the State Police director promises.

And a driver approaching a check point could turn and go back the other way — although his motions would be watched with great interest by an officer.

Col. Gerald Hough, a strong advocate of check points, last week told a Skeptical House Judiciary Committee how the check point system would work, based on experiences in Delaware and Maryland.

Hough expects to begin them in Michigan in late April or early May. He will act under an executive order by Gov. Blanchard, although the Judiciary Committee is considering a bill to strip State Police of that authority.

ONLY A COMMAND officer of high rank could set up a check point in an area identified statistically as a drunk driving accident-probability area.

Hough said.

Most likely times would be 1-4 a.m. It will take about a dozen officers to operate a check point. Most points will be operated jointly by State Police and county sheriff's offices or local police.

Early sites would be in outstate metropolitan counties such as Ingham, Kalamazoo or Saginaw.

"THE DRIVER may refuse to talk or even to roll down his window," Hough said. "The officer will do his best to determine the level of sobriety and let them go through."

After talking to a driver, the officer would make a preliminary decision as to whether the driver has been drinking. Hough said. A preliminary breath test can be administered.

It's possible that the first five drivers may all be stopped. When that happens, officers will process the people they have stopped and let all others go through.

not the tri-county metro Detroit area. Two-lane roads are most likely starting points.

The teams would post four warning signs over a space of about 2,000 feet approaching the check point.

Five "stations" would operate simultaneously. Officers would stop a car 30 seconds and talk to the driver, handing him a pamphlet from the University of Michigan Traffic Research Center.

THE PUBLIC will be warned long in advance where check points will be set up.

Hough said advance publicity would be a deterrent to drinking and driving in that area.

This bothered some lawmakers, who said there was confusion over whether the program was meant to result in arrests or scare off drunk drivers.

Frank Ianni, a highway safety expert from Delaware, said in a State Capitol news conference that the arrest rate for check points was one per 7.93 work hours vs. one per 8.35 hours for police patrols — a 5 percent difference.

Plymouth Rock Masonic temple built in 1924

Part Two

Membership in the Plymouth Masonic Lodge grew from 79 in 1893 to 323 in 1924.

In 1924, when Henry Hondorp was Worshipful Master, the lodge built a new temple — the one which exists today. It was designed to accommodate the needs of both the Masons and its auxiliary, the Order of the Eastern Star.

The temple, a three-story brick building, has a dining room on the first floor with a seating capacity of 300. Lodge room and parlors are on the second floor. The third was built for recreational purposes.

Most of the cost of the building was borne by private subscription raised by a committee headed by Frank Rambo and Charles Rathburn Jr.

ROSSELL TANGER recalls that the first meeting in the new temple was on Dec. 4, 1924.

Tanger, Worshipful Master in 1927, is the oldest living member to hold that office. The new building, corner of Penman Avenue and Union Street, was dedicated by officers of the Grand Lodge of Michigan on Dec. 29.

The Plymouth Mail on Jan. 2, 1925 devoted more than half of its front page to articles about the building and the lodge, including a three-column photo of the building committee in front of the temple. Shown were George A. Smith, D.F. Murray, R.O. Mimmac, Henry Hondorp, C.H. Rauch, Karl Hillmer, John H. Patterson, Herman Mack and William Wood.

Mimmac, president of the committee, was the community's first mayor when Plymouth became a city in 1932. He died in office that year, and was succeeded as chairman of the building committee by Fred Schrader who served in the post until 1939. Smith was superintendent of schools here from 1918 to 1945. Patterson was the general contractor who built the temple.

The furnishings committee for the temple consisted of Fred Schrader, Charles Bennett and Edward Hough. Schrader founded the funeral home that bears his name. Bennett and Hough ran the Daisy Manufacturing Company, then the largest employer in the village. (Fred Hadley, Worshipful Master in 1959, says that one of the oldest items in the lodge today is a wooden gavel brought back from Jerusalem in 1925 by Charley Bennett.)

MEMBERSHIP IN the lodge, at 323 when the Masons moved into the new temple, increased to 362 during the next five years. It began to decline, however, during the Depression of the 1930s. It reached a low mark in 1935, the year the song at the top of the charts was "I Got Plenty o' Nuttin'."

Things got brighter after the economic upturn.

On May 25, 1944, the mortgage on the building, which stood at $10,400 during the depths of the Depression, was paid off and burned. Better times also led to an upturn in Masonic membership, culminating in January 1950 when the lodge reached 543.

The 100th anniversary of the founding of the lodge was observed on Jan. 15, 1952, when Walter Gregory was Worshipful Master. (The dispensation creating the lodge had come in January 1951) but the charter was not granted until January 1952, the year the U.S. imported sparrows from Germany as a defense against caterpillars.

The committee for the 1952 celebration was chaired by past master Harry Mumby. James Gallimore delivered the lodge history. Music was provided past and present

Sam Hudson

by a string trio led by Evelyn Woods, a charter member of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Clifford Smith, secretary of the lodge for the past 10 years, said membership continued to rise during the '60s and '70s, reaching an all-time high of 800 on Jan. 1, 1970. After 1970 there was a steady decline. Part of this was due to an increasing number of deaths among older members, part to the retirement of members who moved to warmer climates.

On Jan. 1, 1986, membership stood at 564. Of this figure, 100 were members with 40 or more years in Masonry.

THE YEAR 1984 was a turning point for Masons in terms of participation in community activities and needs.

Prior to that time, money raised by lodges was used primarily for charitable use within the order. Relief was available for distressed members, widows or orphans but not for those outside the order.

This custom changed in 1984 when the Grand Master of Michigan Masonic Lodges designated the month of March as "Community Charity Month." He asked each lodge to donate to a charity in the community.

Plymouth Rock Lodge decided to aid the Salvation Army. A dinner was held on March 23, 1984, with Salvation Army and City of Plymouth officials as guests. Profit from the dinner plus donations from the lodge and its members totaled $610, which was presented to the Plymouth Corps of the Salvation Army.

In 1985, the lodge decided to assist the local branch of the Michigan Special Olympics organization. A total of $354, raised from a dinner held in March that year, was given to the local Olympics committee. In his message to the members of the lodge in January 1986, the current Worshipful Master, Earl Spaulding III, wrote: "It is time to let Masonry out of the closet. Plymouth Rock Lodge has become more active in the community and will continue to do so."

As an example of this policy, the dining room of the lodge was open to the public during the recent annual ice festival, and Masons served hot drinks and cookies to those who entered.

Eggs have multi-religious appeal

Easter Sunday. On this day thousands upon thousands of people will be feasting on hard-boiled eggs to carry on an Easter tradition.

How did it start? The story that has been passed along states that early man stared in wonder at an egg. It looked like a stone. Then, with a crack, out of the dead thing poked a tiny beak, a head and the warm body of a living bird. It seemed a miracle — the miracle of new life. This is the meaning of the Easter egg. It goes back far beyond any one religion and belongs to mankind.

This came about because this was the day that Jesus rose from the dead to a new life and the egg has become a tradition in many walks of life and in many religions.

MOST RELIGIONS celebrate in some manner with the egg. The Egyptians, Persians, Phoenicians and Hindus believed the world itself began with an enormous egg. In one Hindu myth the large egg broke in two. Half turned to gold becoming the earth. Mountains, rivers and oceans, clouds and mists came from beneath just under the shell. And then, hatched from the giant egg, came the sun. And the broken bits of shell became islands in the Pacific.

The ancient Persians, Greeks and Chinese gave another gift of eggs during spring festivals in celebration of the new life among them.

Today when a baby is born to Chinese parents they share their happiness by giving a red egg to each relative and friend. The egg comes to a person's home like an announcement card.

In Greece people used to dye eggs red. It was thought to be a magical color. These eggs were colored red to symbolize Jesus' bleeding on the cross. Today the Greeks dye eggs all different colors and use them in a special Easter greeting. When two people meet they hold out their eggs and tap them lightly together. One says "Christ is risen" and the other answers, "He is risen indeed."

Back home in the Pennsylvania Dutch country, we youngsters used the dyed eggs as a sort of gambling implement. When we met we tapped each other's egg. If your friend's egg cracked, you took it. We used to come home at times with enough eggs to feed the entire family.

We used to spend enjoyable evenings while visiting in the neighborhood to dye eggs. Of course you brought your own eggs. And we raced to see which of us could come up with the brightest and most colorful of the eggs on the table.

It was this season of the year, too, that we carried the colored dyed eggs to school and often swapped colors at lunch time.

Two of the best exercises with the dyed eggs was egg hunting and egg rolling.

The egg roll was inspired by the message we got before the event started. We were told this egg roll was to symbolize rolling the stones away from Christ's grave. We also had our races to see which of us could locate the most eggs. For fun we used to watch the teachers and janitors place them. It might have been cheating a bit but it was fun.

Cat fanciers flock to annual show of feline champions

By Tim Smith
staff writer

Marnie Wettlaufer was ready to make an issue out of the 74th Annual Mid-Michigan Cat Fanciers Show of champion and household cats last weekend.

In fact, you might say she took a "Special Issue," her 1½-year-old Persian beauty, to the competition. Reading Special Issue and a seven-month-old Persian kitten called Kallylace Cliche for competition is pretty much a full-time job, according to the Southfield resident.

But the adulation and attention heaped onto the animals by total strangers made the effort worth it, she said.

OWNERS OF THE 375 feline beauties, worth about $1.5 million, probably would have agreed with an estimated 10,000 cat lovers flocking to the Southfield Civic Center.

As owners of the prized animals lapped up the attention heaped on their prized Persians, tabbies or Scottish folds, they knew the important "Grand Champion" status and contacts for future-kitten-buys were at stake.

"The show was a tremendous success," said Eve Russell, event director and vice president of the cat fanciers.

"We had virtually all 31 different breeds of cat represented, and people are here from as far as Charlevoix and Traverse City.

"Our emphasis is on the importance of cat care. I'm confident that message got through."

The event also helped raise money for cat care by various southeast Michigan organizations.

PROCEEDS FROM the non-profit event will support the Michigan Humane Society, Humane Feline Research at Michigan State Small Animal Clinic, neuter-spay programs in southeastern Michigan, local public libraries' juvenile departments, and humane societies of Wayne, Oakland and other counties.

"Variety is what brings you here," said Sterling Heights resident Joyce Johnson, who fell enough in love with the Himalayan breed at a past show to go out and buy two of them.

"Every time I look at one I get the urge to buy," Johnson said.

But for Special Issue, an adult male with wide, copper eyes and a gleaming, white coat, the show meant another step in his pursuit of a Grand Championship, now having reached the half-way mark, Wettlaufer said.

To attain that status, the animal must defeat 200 champion cats. In order to be labelled a "champion," open-division cats (showing for the first time) must impress judges and garner six blue ribbons.

To Wettlaufer, who has attended 15 to 30 shows annually for five years, her adult champion and Persian kitten, a neophyte to the cat show game, already are winners.

ONE CAT that successfully passed enough judges' inspections to become a Grand Champion is Iran's Starblitz, a red/white tabby belonging to Doris Pape of Livonia.

According to Pape's husband, Don, receiving a passing grade depends on who is doing the judging.

"Some like shorthairs, some like longhairs. Others go for colors," Pape said. "It depends on the judge."

"(The judge) picks out the cats he thinks are good, marks down on the side, and through the process of elimination comes up with what he thinks are the 10 best cats in the show."

"For some to reach Grand Championship status, it takes a full year of competition. Others can do it — if they're a good, top cat — in an average of three shows."

And the felines have to put up with quite an inspection to chalk up the blue ribbons.

STATIONED at one of the four "rings" was Don Williams. Behind him were 12 cages with occupants ready for scrutiny.

Williams painstakingly lifted the cat up off the judging table, looked at his face, checked his eyes and coat, then looked at his face again. He repositioned the contestant into its cage and grabbed another for inspection.

"They check everything about their physical beings," said Wettlaufer. "Not only do they judge physical features, such as boning, the shape of the head, or the coat, they look at the facial expressions and personality."

One cat with a large dose of personality was Spud, a championship division Scottish fold, owned by Gail and Mark Alsager of Canton.

Gail Alsager, twirling a cat toy in the face of her playful blue and white cat, said the breed got the name because they originate in Scotland and because their ears are folded down.

Looking up with big, gold eyes, Spud jumped up at a toy and latched onto a thin stick with both paws. The champion, belonging to one of the rarer breeds of cat, then held on for dear life.

"ONE LOOK at his round, sweet face, and you can see why they are becoming much more popular to breed and own," said Alsager, a veterinarian.

Troy's Vivian Artrip, owner of Vistar's Flaming Star, a red Persian champion, said breeding and showing cats is merely "an expensive hobby."

"My husband (Harry) bought me a blue Persian kitten 15 years ago as a gift, and that got me started," she said.

"But these shows give people a chance to see what you have, make some business contacts, and meet a lot of new friends."

Artrip said her hobby branched out in 1979, when she began entering cats into shows.

Farmington's Suzanne Campeau, the owner of Sun Val Top Brass, a cream Persian cat, also said she attends shows more as a hobby than anything else.

"But it's fun to win, exciting. I've had cats all my life, and I've been showing them for eight years."

But more than winning awards, the main message of the show, according to Russell, is the need to take proper care of, and love the animals.

Fancy that.

'Variety is what brings you here.'

WANT TO CHOOSE THE SEX OF YOUR BABY?

Throughout history methods have been suggested to increase the odds of conceiving either a male or female child. They have generally proven to be unreliable.

Dr. Ronald J. Ericsson has developed methods for the separation of sperm thus increasing the chance of conceiving a child of the desired sex. Using his method to increase the odds for a male or female child, has proven to be 80% successful.

The Ericsson procedure has been tested in laboratories, university centers, and private clinics. It has been shown to be safe and effective. The Midwest Fertility and Sex Selection Center is the only center licensed in Michigan to use Dr. Ericsson's technique.

OLD WORLD FAVORITES FRESH AS SPRING

From ancient times to the present, in countries around the globe, people of varying faiths have celebrated numerous spring rites. Food often plays a prominent role in the festivities with eggs standing out above other foods and serving variously as a symbol of life, the renewal of life and the resurrection of Christ. In addition to their symbolic decorative use, these nutritious natural wonders have also shown their versatility in a host of dishes traditionally served for the occasions. The holiday treats below are merely a small sampling of classic ethnic recipes that have been adapted for modern cooks. One of them might be just the thing to add a fresh note to whatever you celebrate this spring!

PARED-DOWN PASKHA

about 2 cups

You might describe this Russian Easter dessert as a spreadable cheese cake. Customarily made with bakers' farmer or pot cheese, and sometimes cream cheese and whipping cream besides, our uncooked version is still rich and creamy, but considerably lower in calories. After Easter, serve it with fruit, plain cookies or pound cake.

- 1 carton (12 oz.) dry cottage cheese
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/3 cup butter, softened
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Candied fruit pieces, optional

Press cottage cheese through sieve into small mixing bowl. Beat in remaining ingredients except nuts and fruit until thoroughly blended.

Line a 2-1/4-cup (or larger) perforated container* with double layer of dampened cheesecloth. Spoon cheese mixture into cheesecloth. Fold over ends of cheesecloth and place a weight smaller than container on top. (About 1 lb. A full food can works well.) Set in shallow pan so liquid can drain. Refrigerate overnight.

To serve, remove weight and turn back cheesecloth. Unmold onto small serving plate. Garnish with fruit pieces, if desired. Refrigerate any leftovers.

*Sieve, colander, strainer, clean non-clay flowerpot, or empty cottage cheese carton with a few holes punched in bottom.

NEW WORLD SIMNEL CAKE

12 servings

Legends about and recipes for this delicious fruitcake vary from county to county in England, but most often it is associated with the fourth Sunday in Lent, Mothering Sunday, when the British honor either the Mother Church, their own mothers, or both. This variation eliminates the tedious and toughening step of boiling before baking and is simply made with only one layer of almond paste.

- 1-3/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup currants or seedless raisins
- 1/2 cup diced candied mixed fruit
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 6 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 can (8 oz.) almond paste

Place 9x5-inch springform pan on 12-inch length of waxed paper. Trace around pan. Lightly grease bottom and side of pan. Set pan and waxed paper aside.

In medium bowl, stir together flour, peel, baking powder and seasonings until thoroughly blended. Stir in fruits. Set aside. In large mixing bowl at medium speed, beat together butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Set aside 2 tablespoons of the beaten eggs. Add remaining beaten eggs to butter/sugar mixture. Beat at medium speed until thoroughly blended. Fold in reserved flour mixture. Pour into prepared pan. Bake in preheated 300°F oven 1 hour.

Meanwhile, cut scant 1/2-inch slice from almond paste. Cover and set aside. Place remaining waxed paper and roll of parchment paper on top of cake. Place piece of waxed paper and roll paste to fit circle trimming edges of paste, if necessary. Cover and set aside. Knead trimmings, if any, into reserved slice and form into 11 small balls. Cover and set aside.

Remove cake from oven. Increase oven temperature to 400°F. With a spatula, gently loosen cake from pan at side and remove pan side. Brush top of cake with some of the reserved beaten eggs. Carefully place rolled paste circle on top of cake. Brush paste circle with some of the remaining beaten eggs. Gently press balls onto top of paste. Brush balls with remaining beaten eggs. Bake until paste is lightly browned, 7 to 8 minutes. Cool on wire rack.

MODERN SPINACH MATZO KUGEL

4 to 6 servings

The 8-day home festival of Passover joyously celebrates by Jews, the feast called Seder is notable for the lack of leavening foods, legumes and grains. The symbolic matzo crackers, eggs and vegetables are all combined in this kosher, quiche-like kugel.

- 3 matzo crackers
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms (about 8 oz.)
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 8 eggs
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
- 1 cup (8 oz.) low-fat cottage cheese
- 1 jar (2 oz.) chopped pimiento, drained

Soak crackers in enough warm water to cover just until softened, 3 to 5 minutes. Press gently between paper towels and set aside.

In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, cook mushrooms and onion in butter until tender but not browned, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and set aside. Set aside some attractive mushroom slices for garnish.

In large bowl, beat together eggs, lemon juice and peel and salt until thoroughly blended. Stir in reserved mushroom/onion mixture, spinach, cheese and pimiento.

Place one of the reserved crackers on bottom of lightly greased 2-quart casserole or 8x8x2-inch baking dish. Cut another reserved cracker into four strips. Line sides of dish with cracker strips. Pour in about 2-1/2 cups of the vegetable mixture. Top with remaining cracker and remaining vegetable mixture. Bake in preheated 350°F oven 30 minutes. Arrange reserved mushroom slices on top. Continue baking until knife inserted near center comes out clean, 10 to 15 minutes.

QUICK KULICH

1 large or 2 small loaves

Though it's less time consuming to make this Russian Easter Bread with today's fast-rising yeast, its classic cylindrical shape is preserved by baking the rich yeast dough in empty food cans. Traditionally, the bread is sliced into rounds (with the top slice served to the guest of honor or senior member of the family) and spread with Paskha.

- 4-1/2 cups all-purpose flour, divided
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 2 packages fast-rising active dry yeast
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup butter
- 4 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- 1/2 cup golden seedless raisins
- 1/2 cup chopped dried or candied mixed fruit
- 1/3 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1-1/2 to 2 teaspoons milk
- Nut halves, optional
- Fruit pieces, optional

Set aside 1 cup of the flour. In large mixing bowl, stir together remaining flour with 1/4 cup sugar, yeast, salt and nutmeg until thoroughly blended. In small saucepan over medium heat, heat 1/2 cup milk, water and butter until very warm, 120° to 130°F. (Butter need not melt completely.) Add to dry mixture along with eggs and vanilla. Stir until blended. Stir in enough of the remaining 1 cup flour to make a soft dough. Stir in chopped nuts, raisins and chopped fruit. Knead on lightly floured board 4 minutes.

Place dough in well-greased 2-pound coffee can OR 2 (1-lb. each) coffee cans OR 2 (46-oz. each) juice cans. Cover can/s with plastic wrap and cloth or paper towels. Let rise in warm place until doubled (finger pushed into dough will leave an imprint), 20 to 30 minutes for large can or 15 to 20 minutes for small cans.

Bake in preheated 350°F oven until lightly browned and bread sounds hollow when tapped with finger, 30 to 35 minutes for large can, about 25 minutes for small cans.

Tap can/s gently on side/s to loosen. Remove from can/s. Cool on wire rack. Beat together confectioners' sugar and 1-1/2 to 2 teaspoons milk until smooth. Drizzle over bread/s. Garnish with nut halves or fruit pieces, if desired. To serve, slice horizontally into rounds.

EASY ITALIAN EASTER PIE

6 to 8 servings

Sometimes made in as many as thirty-three layers (representing the years of Christ's life), this savory main dish is delicious hot or cold. Despite the lack of all those layers, this modernized recipe is still lovely to look at when sliced.

- 4 ounces link mild Italian sausage
- 2 tablespoons water
- 4 eggs
- 1 carton (15 oz.) low-fat or part-skim ricotta cheese
- 4 ounces prosciutto or cooked ham, chopped
- 2 ounces Genoa salami, chopped
- 1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded mozzarella cheese
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 sheet frozen puff pastry, thawed
- 4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- 4 thin slices Genoa salami, optional
- Parsley sprigs, optional

In small skillet over medium heat, cook sausage with water, covered, 5 to 6 minutes. Uncover and continue cooking, turning occasionally, until lightly browned, about 2 minutes more. Set aside.

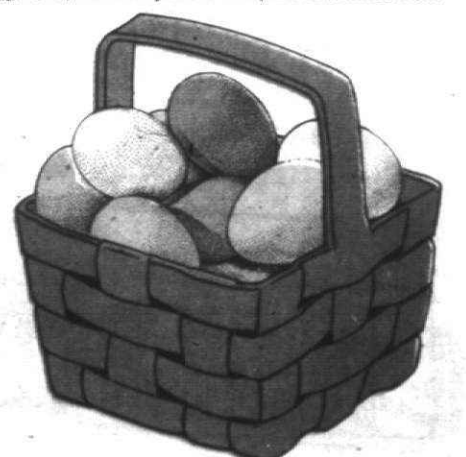

In large bowl, beat 4 eggs well. Set aside 2 tablespoons. Thoroughly blend ricotta into remaining beaten eggs. Slice cooked reserved sausage. Stir sausage and remaining ingredients except puff pastry and sliced eggs into ricotta mixture until well combined. Set aside.

On lightly floured surface, roll puff pastry into 14-inch square. Cut 12-inch circle from the square. Line 9-inch pie plate with rolled pastry. Press trimmings together and roll into 10-inch circle. Make small slit in 10-inch circle and set aside.

Pour 1-1/2 cups of the reserved ricotta mixture into pastry-lined plate. Reserve 1 center egg slice for garnish, arrange sliced eggs over ricotta mixture. Pour in remaining reserved ricotta mixture. Brush edge of bottom pastry with some of the reserved beaten egg. Place slit circle on top of ricotta mixture. Pinch edges of pastries together to seal. Trim edge even with rim of plate. Flute edge of crust and brush top and edge with remaining reserved beaten eggs.

Bake in preheated 350°F oven until lightly browned and knife inserted near center comes out clean, about 40 to 45 minutes. Garnish with reserved egg slice and salami and parsley, if desired. To serve, cut into wedges.

To hard cook, put eggs in single layer in saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand, covered, in the hot water 15 to 17 minutes for Large eggs. (Adjust time up or down by about 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller.) Immediately run cold water over eggs or put them in ice water until completely cooled. To remove shell, crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell, then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

Bacon frittata is Easter treat

Canadian Bacon Frittata makes an elegant, quick-to-prepare Easter brunch entree.

Easter is traditionally a time of new beginnings — the first signs of spring begin to appear, new clothes are purchased and festive holiday foods are prepared for family celebrations. Start a new tradition in your home this year by preparing an Easter brunch featuring Canadian Bacon Frittata.

A brunch is a convenient and relaxing way for family members and guests to enjoy each other's company as well as participate in all of the busy holiday festivities. And Canadian-style bacon, with its marvelous flavor and aroma, is an excellent mid-morning meal choice.

Canadian-style bacon has a similar flavor and appearance to ham. This lean, meaty bacon actually comes from the prestigious pork loin muscle. The loin is processed to remove most of the fat, then shaped into a compact roll, cured, smoked and cooked. Since this boneless, full-flavored bacon offers little waste, one pound of meat provides four to five three-ounce servings.

Canadian Bacon Frittata takes only about half an hour to prepare and cook. Arrange the bacon slices around the edge of an ovenproof frying pan. Then pour a seasoned egg mixture in the pan over the slices and cook until the mixture is almost set. Just before serving, put the entire briefly under the broiler to give the eggs a golden brown color.

CANADIAN BACON FRITTATA
Preparation time: 15 minutes
Cooking time: 17 to 20 minutes

16 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut 1/4-inch thick (about 8 oz.)
5 eggs, slightly beaten
5 Tbsp. water
6 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
1 Tbsp. chopped fresh dill (or 1/2 tsp. dried dill weed)
1/2 tsp. each salt and dried oregano leaves
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 1/2 cups thinly sliced fresh vegetables

(zucchini, mushrooms, red pepper, green onion)
1 Tbsp. butter

Combine eggs, water, cheese, salt, salt, oregano and pepper; reserve. Cook and stir vegetables in butter in ovenproof frying pan 2 minutes or until vegetables are almost tender. Stir vegetables into egg mixture. Arrange overlapping slices of Canadian-style bacon around edge only (do not go over rim) of same frying pan. Carefully pour egg mixture into frying pan. Cover and cook over medium-low to medium heat 15 minutes or until eggs are almost set. Place under broiler to lightly brown egg mixture. Garnish with fresh dill, if desired. 4 servings.

Careful analysis is important for speedy recovery.

Dr. Mashike explaining the cause of a patient's problem.

Dr. Mashike has corrected these symptoms in many people without drugs. The procedure is as follows:

1. Each vertebrae of the spine, when out of position, usually causes a certain symptom to appear.
2. The spine is analyzed to find misplaced vertebrae (subluxated vertebrae).
3. These subluxated vertebrae are adjusted into place, unblocking nerve fibers.
4. When pressure is removed from nerve fibers, the tissue or organs they supply are regenerated and return to normal.
5. When the tissue or organs are normal, symptoms are alleviated.

If you have these symptoms, we suggest a spinal examination to find the underlying cause of the problem.
For a spinal examination call 459-0200.

'Birds' actress recalls career

also works with wildlife-preservation groups and is a volunteer with Food for the Hungry, a relief group.

Shambala, which is about 40 miles northeast of Beverly Hills, is home to just about every type of big cat — lions, tigers, leopards, cougars, jaguars, cheetahs, and even tigers, which are combinations of tigers and lions. The cats, many of which have been raised as cubs in Hedren's home, roam compounds within the ranch, where they do everything their wild brethren do, except hunt.

At Shambala, Hedren and her family have been able to develop close relationships with the beasts. Hedren said each of the big cats has a personality of its own — a personality that is more than the "fierce hunter" image commonly associated with the big cats.

The big cat has a full, rounded personality, Hedren said. They're very lovable, very playful. They have a great capacity for love. Some are very serious animals. Some are very funny. No other characteristic than being menacing is very unfair.

To prove her point, Hedren showed slides of a lion playfully jumping through a kitchen window, lying on a couch watching television and sleeping with her daughter on her daughter's bed.

SHE CONCEDED that she and members of her family have gotten hurt at times in their associations with the big cats. She said that can be expected when you're fooling around with a 600-pound playmate.

But it is comforting, she said, to hear the roar of the big cats outside her home at night and the sounds of their heavy bodies knocking against the outer walls.

The idea for Shambala started in 1969 when she made the adventure film, "Satan's Harvest," in Africa. It was the first time she had gotten the chance to see lions up close. She and her then husband, producer Noah Marshall, decided they would like to make a film focusing on the big cats.

The family began raising lion cubs in their home in the city. When an animal control officer lodged a complaint, the couple decided to buy the Shambala ranch as a setting for their cat menagerie.

The film they eventually produced, "Roar," survived a disaster-laden filming schedule. The bad luck started with the first piece of film that was shot, as a promotional piece for potential backers.

The scene called for Hedren to lie on a log while a parade of big cats walked over her. Unfortunately, one of the cats, seeing Hedren in such an uncharacteristic position, decided to grab her head in its mouth. Hedren could hear her skullbones grinding in the animal's grip before someone was able to shoot it away.

Another scene called for one of Shambala's elephants to wreck a boat. During the filming of that scene, Hedren suffered a hairline fracture and gangrene after her leg was caught between the elephant's trunk and tusk.

Other injuries to the cast, a disastrous flood and a forest fire also played havoc with the film's shooting schedule. The family ended up going into hock to keep the film afloat, with Hedren even selling the fur coat that Alfred Hitchcock had given her during the filming of "Marnie."

COMPLETED in October 1979, "Roar" eventually was released throughout the world everywhere, that is, but the United States.

That's because the distributors we dealt with wanted, if you'll excuse the pun, the lion's share of the proceeds," Hedren said. She is now considering marketing the film on videocassette.

Compared to what she went through to film "Roar," working on "The Birds" was "duck soup," Hedren said. "The Birds," a 1962 movie about birds attacking mankind, was her first film.

Alfred Hitchcock had selected her for the film after spotting her in a "Today" show commercial.

Many of the birds trained for "The Birds" could not be used for anything else afterward, Hedren said. They had learned their lesson — how to dive on people and peck them — only too well. But there was one raven named Buddy who befriended Hedren and would perch on her makeup table.

"He couldn't be in the film because he was so nice,"

According to Spoto's book, the most harrowing part of "The Birds" for Hedren was the filming of the scene in which her character is trapped alone in a roomful of birds. The filming of that scene took a full week, and Hedren suffered many real pecks along with the artists. Hedren's courage in doing the scene elicited praise from many on-lookers, including actor Cary Grant, who was making a picture on a nearby stage.

SAYING THAT "The Birds" were the stars of "The Birds," Hedren instead selected "Marnie" as her favorite film role. She liked the role "because it was a very complicated character and it was very much a challenge to do that."

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Tippi Hedren, known for her role in Alfred Hitchcock's "The Birds," was the speaker last week at Livonia Town Hall. She talked about Shambala, her California ranch, and also touched on her film career.

Her co-star in "Marnie" was Sean Connery, who had recently made his first appearance as James Bond. Connery played a man in love with Marnie, who refuses to respond to his love.

"Sean was just out of 'Dr. No,' just beginning to acquire the fame he eventually got. He was a super gentleman. I always wondered about Marnie, how she could turn him down."

The set of "Marnie" also was the scene of some real-life drama. According to Spoto's book, Hitchcock's fascination with Hedren as one of his "cool blonds" reached a level of explicitness it had never reached before with any other actress.

Along with Hedren in her trailer, Hitchcock made an overt sexual proposition and threatened he would ruin her if she refused. Spoto wrote that when she turned him down, Hitchcock lost interest in "Marnie" according to Spoto, and the finished film has sloppiness in technique and special effects that are uncharacteristic of Hitchcock's other work.

HEDREN LATER worked with director Charlie Chaplin on "A Countess from Hong Kong," which also starred Marlon Brando and Sophia Loren. The directorial styles of Chaplin and Hitchcock were very different, Hedren recalled.

Hitchcock had everything planned out before he filmed and relaxed and cracked jokes on the set. Chaplin was very serious on the set and would act out the things he wanted his actors to do.

"He couldn't be in the film because he was so nice,"

Wayne contingent leads cage squad

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Team accomplishments and individual achievement often go hand in hand. This year is no different as area coaches voted to select the All-Observer boys basketball team.

The area's top team, Wayne Memorial, was eliminated in the state tourney by Mr. Basketball Terry Mills and Romulus in an exciting 93-92 double overtime game. But even though Wayne never got out of its district, the Zebras enjoyed a cinderella season of sorts.

After losing two All-Observer players from a year ago, Pollis Robertson (now at Wisconsin) and Howard Flewers (Eastern Michigan), the Zebras ended up defending their Wolverine A Conference title. And despite its tallest player being only 6-feet-2, Wayne managed to finish the season with an 18-3 record.

Eighteen area coaches gathered recently to select the area's best players. Wayne High, Observerland's top-rated team, had two players named to the first team. Coach Chuck Henry was also picked as Coach of the Year.

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN, which captured the Western Lakes championship, landed one player on the first team along with Farmington Harrison, the conference runner-up.

Garden City, the Northwest Suburban League co-champion, gained one berth. Redford Catholic Central, North Farmington and Plymouth Salem — all district champions — are also represented on the first team.

Because of two tie votes for the final spot, eight players were voted to the first team.

Introducing the 1985-86 All-Observer boys basketball team:

FIRST TEAM

Rick Anderson, senior, North Farmington: The 6-foot-5 swingman repeats as an All-Area performer.

He averaged 19 points, 13 rebounds and three assists per game this season, while shooting 49 percent from the field and 77 percent from the line.

A three-year All-League pick, Anderson holds North school records in career rebounds (686), season scoring (432 points), career scoring (1,171) and career scoring average (17.7).

"Rick's success on and off the floor is no accident," said North coach Tom Negoshian. "He has a tremendous capacity for hard work. I pay him my highest compliment by hoping my sons will grow up some day to be like him."

Anderson is being courted by several Mid-American Conference schools.

Mark Robinson, junior, Wayne: Having a nose for the ball, the 6-2, 165-pound small forward was Wayne's leading scorer, averaging 18.0 points per game. He scored 379 points on the year.

He also grabbed 206 rebounds, added 62 assists and made 43 steals this season.

Wayne's sixth man a year ago, Robinson developed quickly as a junior. He was voted co-MVP in the Wolverine A along with Wyandotte's Norm Erickson.

"Mark is the best athlete that I have ever coached," said Wayne's Chuck Henry. "He's really an outstanding player on offense and on defense."

"It's great to have him back another year."

Spence Williams, senior, Wayne: Directing the offense, the 5-9 point guard was Zebras' brains and quarterback.

During the season, Williams shot at an amazing 67 percent clip from the field (102 for 153) for an 11.0 scoring average.

He also added 55 rebounds, 94 steals and 129 assists in 21 games.

A three-year varsity starter, Williams made the All-Wolverine A Conference team after being second team last season.

"He'll be missed next year," Henry said. "His record as a starting point guard is 39-5. Spence has great quickness, and is a great ball-handler and defensive player."

Paul Tavana, senior, Catholic Central: The spry 6-4 forward capped an outstanding three-year career for the Shamrocks by averaging 15.3 points, nine rebounds and 3.2 block shots per game this year.

The first-team All-Catholic pick led CC to a 16-7 overall record and a berth in the A-B Division playoffs. He also helped CC to a district title.

Noted for his quick jumping ability, the CC co-captain was an intimidating force for the Shamrocks.

"Paul was our best defensive player," said CC's Bernie Holowicki. "He is very intense and hard working."

Steve Hawley, junior, John Glenn: The 6-1 guard led the area in scoring with a 21.9 average. He also dished out six assists per game in leading the Rockets to the WLAA crown.

A pure jump shooter, Hawley was named All-Conference in the 12-team Western Lakes circuit.

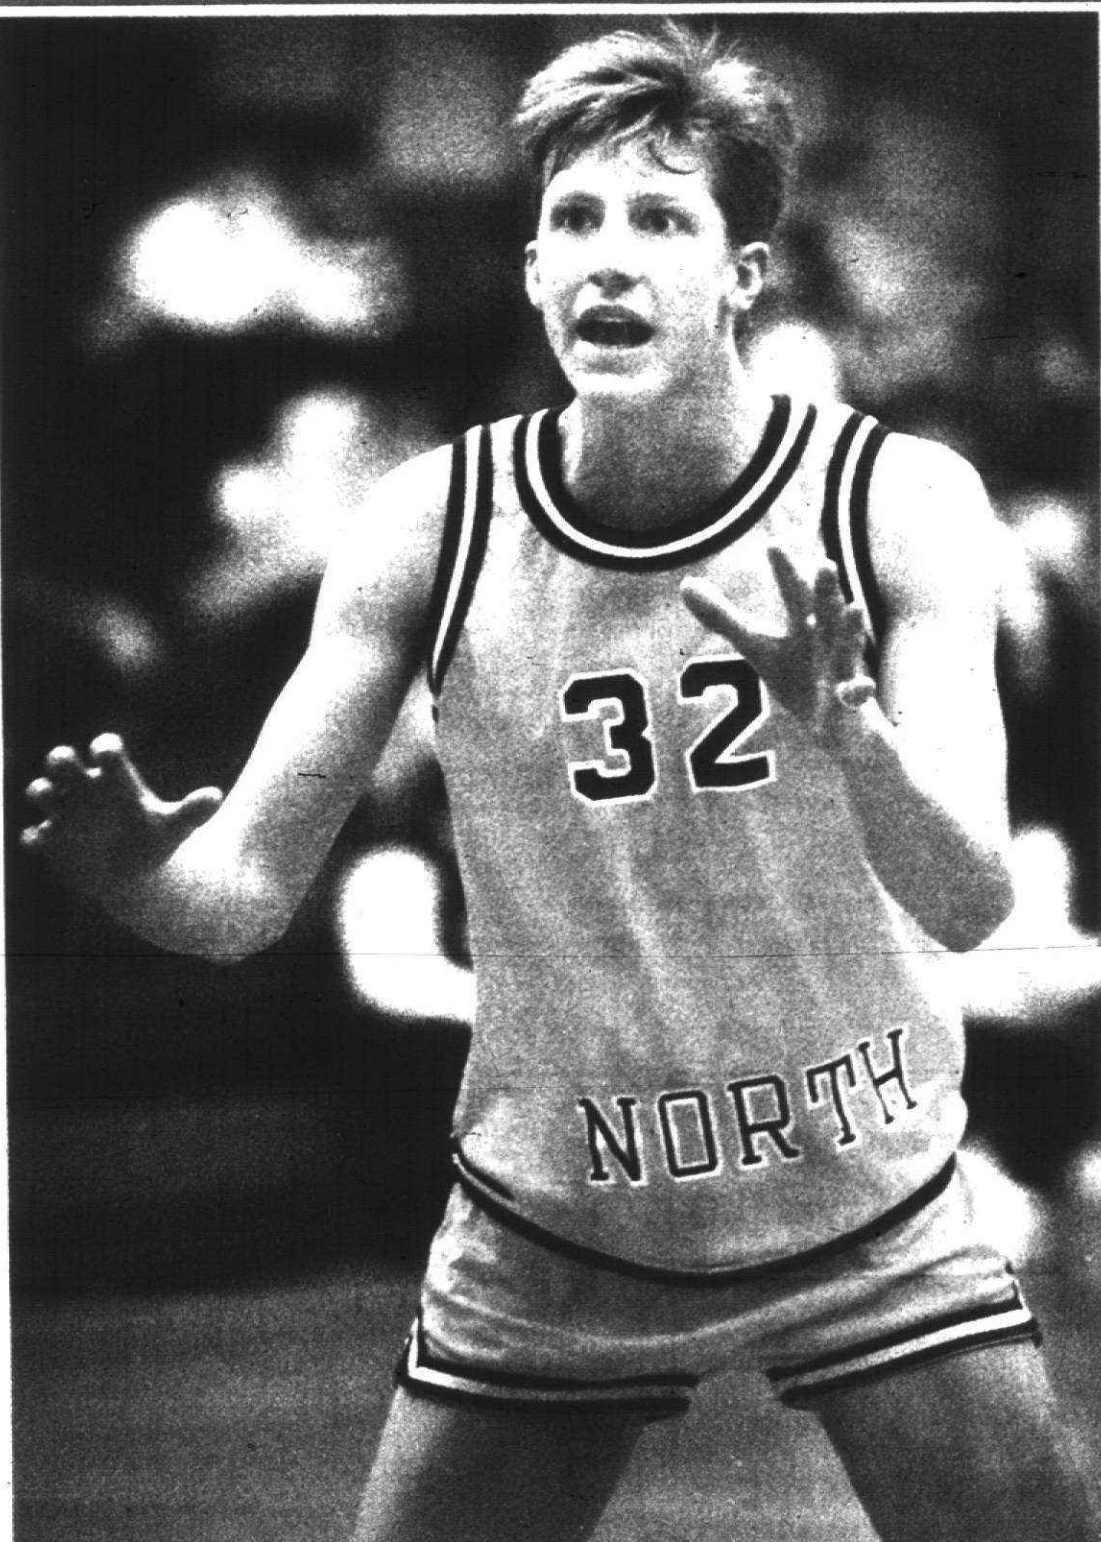

"Steve is one of the most consistent players I've ever coached," said Glenn's Gordie Davis. "He is a team leader and pressure player."

Hawley, who will be back another year, missed Glenn's school scoring record by only three points.

Mike Hale, junior, Plymouth Salem: The 6-5 forward was busy under the boards all season.

He averaged 17 points and 12 rebounds per game. He shot 64 percent from the field and 77 percent from the free throw line.

Rick Anderson has been a mainstay on the North Farmington basketball team for three seasons. The 6-foot-5 junior forward was voted to the All-Area squad for the second consecutive year. Several Mid-American Conference schools are interested in his services including Eastern Michigan, Western Michigan and Kent State. Anderson's best asset is his outside shooting ability.

Michelle Lonigro (left), an eight-goal scorer last year, will combine with Beth Frigge and Kendra Whiteley to make Canton's offense formidable this season.

Defense keys Rock plans

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

With a strong back, the Plymouth Salem girls soccer team should be more than able to pull its own weight this season.

And, better yet, have a better chance at beating Western Lakes nemesis Livonia Stevenson. The Rocks have only pulled off that feat once in nine attempts since the two started playing each other.

"This year, I think we can take Livonia Stevenson," said Salem coach Ken Johnson. "That's our goal every year at the start of the season."

Salem's returning backline, along with senior goal-scorer Julie Tortora, is the main reason for such optimism.

Michelle Cygan will switch from left full-back to center fullback to make up for the loss of graduated defender Ruth Knoerl. Defenders Chris Casler, Niki Stojeba and Lisa Hysko also return to lend some experience on the defensive front.

In goal, the Rocks have Ellen Schnackel and Jenny Cebula keeping things tidy.

But such austerity plans for opponent's offenses have little benefit without some offense from Salem's front line. Since Johnson fancies a 4-3-3 formation, which stocks up on defenders and leaves only three forwards, the scoring burden lies with Tortora. In three years, Tortora's netted 44 goals. This season, the senior striker is flanked by Pam Mayer.

The other wing position is unfilled, but there are plenty of freshmen applicants. The frosh list includes Jill Estey, Teri King, Missy Smith and Jo Wiklund.

The job requirement for the incoming wingers is to feed the ball to Tortora, considered exceptional in the air on headers.

"She's the general," said Johnson. "If we can get the wingers crossing the ball high, she'll knock a few in."

At midfield, Salem returns Suzie Balconi, Rachel Thiet and Jennifer Belhart.

One of the few things the Rocks don't return are some seniors. Tortora and Balconi are the only two on the team.

Last year, the Rocks were 9-7-3. Johnson thinks his team can run up a few more wins this season.

"We're a fast team," said Johnson. "We're very fit."

PLYMOUTH CANTON

Mike Morgan needs only four fingers to count the number of players Plymouth Canton lost to graduation.

The thumb that's left could be used to plug up the holes in the defense those losses might cause. Gone are defenders Lisa Goff and Kelly Murphy along with goalkeeper Pat Phillips.

"We have a very good offensive team," said Morgan, whose team finished with an 11-7-1 mark last season. "The question mark is defensively. I rely a lot on my defenders. That's where most of the plays come from."

So, in turn, the Chiefs are going to count on Cheryl Nippa, Ronda Rice and Shelly Tutor to support the backline, which includes freshman Jenny Saul in the net.

But don't tremble. While Saul might be a freshman, she also has seven years of goal-keeping experience in area youth leagues on her resume.

"She's very good," said Morgan. "I didn't know she was coming out this year. I didn't think she was old enough. That filled my last blank."

Canton's front line of Beth Frigge, Kendra Whiteley and Michelle Longo certainly won't draw too many blanks this season. All have experience as all three combined for 25 goals last season.

Frigge is the main goal-getter of the three with 10 last season. Longo netted eight while Whiteley knocked in seven last season.

Best cagers

"Mike is not a flashy player, but a very hard worker who got the job done," said Salem coach Bob Brodie. "He was our steadiest, strongest and most durable player, not missing a quarter of action all season."

Defensively, Mike was always on our opponents' best inside player."

Hale also made the Salem captain and MVP. He also made the All-Western Lakes squad.

Ken George, senior, Farm. Harrison: The heady 5-10 forward led Harrison to a 32-10 record over two seasons, including a Western Lakes crown last season.

A two-time All-Western Lakes player, George scored 295 points this season and 294 a year ago.

He also had 233 career assists and 121 career steals.

A clutch free throw shooter, George hit 113 of 144 this season, a 78.6 percent clip. He shot 78 percent last year en route to second team All-Area honors.

George led Oakland County in free throw shooting two straight years.

LAKELAND, Fla. — The Tigers were on the road for an exhibition game in Orlando against the Minnesota Twins. Sparky Anderson was gone and so were his coaches. Club president Jim Campbell was nowhere to be seen. Neither was general manager Bill LaJeune.

The only ones left behind at Marching Stadium were a handful of pitchers. They went through a half-hearted workout, throwing to a couple of minor-league catchers brought over for the morning from Tigertown and running a few sprints.

But mostly they joked with each other as the rock music blared from the open clubhouse nearby.

Soon, the minor-league catchers were on their way back to Tigertown, the complex across the road that is home to the minor-leaguers, and the Tiger pitchers were showering and changing into their golfing duds.

THERE WERE two exceptions. Frank Tanana wasn't through yet. He had gotten in his pitching and then ran for nearly three miles in the sauna-like heat and 90-percent humidity. But he wanted to get in some fielding and he recruited fellow starter Dave LaPoint to hit him a bunch of sizzling grounders.

"What an inspiration!" hollered out Jack Morris, dressed in civvies and toweling off his wet hair as he good-naturedly teased Tanana. "Let's move those feet a little."

"I'm gassed," said Tanana. "Yeah, you look a little flushed," said Morris.

Gassed or not, flushed or not, Tanana kept on fielding grounders. "Give me some real hard ones, OK?" he asked of LaPoint, who started drilling the ball at Tanana's feet. One ball, as hot as the day, zipped by Tanana as he kicked out his leg like a goalie making a skate save.

"THAT'S PERFECT," said Tanana. "Just like that." And so it went.

Half an hour later, showered and dressed, but still red-faced and sucking in oxygen, Tanana came out of the clubhouse for friendly half-hour chat with a home-town reporter.

Someone stepping out of a time warp from, say, 1977, might have been shocked at Tanana's performance. Frank Tanana busting his tail in practice? Frank Tanana being friendly with a reporter he'd never met? Frank Tanana? Wasn't he the rude party boy of the California Angels?

"I wasn't a very nice person," Tanana acknowledged. "I followed man and it almost killed me. I'm going to follow God now."

Tanana came out of Detroit Catholic Central in 1971 with a Nolan Ryan fastball. He soon developed a strong taste for the fast life, too. His reputation grew on the field and off the field. He struck out 269 batters in 1975 to lead the American League and 261 in 1976. He won a pile of games and was named to three All-Star teams. He became an All-Star in the bar, as well.

"I WENT the ways of the world," explained Tanana, who has rented a place in Troy for the upcoming season. "I fell into the playboy routine. I had a lot of things. I had money. I had a lot of girlfriends, a nice home. I also had a terrific drinking problem. I was in a lane that was taking me down the path of destruction."

"CONTENTMENT? THAT'S a good word," said Tanana. "Now, my life is contentment. It's exciting, it's meaningful. It's got a purpose. I've gone through some tough times since I've been a Christian. My career has been mediocre at best. But I get a great enjoyment out of it. I work harder than I ever worked before because I'm working for God's glory. And I'm working so I can share the good news of Jesus Christ."

Tanana doesn't get up on any soap boxes in the clubhouse, but he's active in the Baseball Chapel, and is more than willing to share his thoughts with players who come to him for advice.

He has a familiarity with the Bible, quoting scripture, not by rote, mechanically, but with a natural-style that gives meaning to the words.

Tanana is seriously considering joining a seminary in the off-season. How, you may ask, can a good Catholic boy with four kids join a seminary? Tanana no longer considers himself a Catholic. The seminary, the Dallas Theological Seminary, is non-denominational.

"My thoughts on going into the seminary are just to gain a greater knowledge of His word," he explained.

"FOR MY own growth and for my ability to answer questions from my friends and people I come into contact with. I don't consider myself a Catholic anymore. I consider myself a disciple of Jesus Christ. Catholic, Methodist, Baptist, those are labels, and we're not going to bring our labels with us when we go."

Though Tanana says his career lately has been mediocre, if he continues to pitch the way he did after he came to Detroit last June in a trade with Texas, his fulltime attendance in the seminary may be years away.

Tanana found new life in his old home town. He beat the Yankees three times in 1975, 10-7 record with a Tiger. He struck out 11 men twice in a game and 10 another time. He had his first one-hitter. He won his final five games, the longest streak all season by a Tiger, and his assortment of curves had the hitters flailing helplessly. And his 159 strikeouts were his most since 1977.

Another good season and he will probably move his off-season home from Arlington, Tex., to the Detroit area. Having played for four teams in six seasons, Tanana, 32, has been reluctant to move back to Detroit till he thinks his career has settled back down.

In the meantime, he wants to be an example to his teammates and to his new neighbors in Troy. "I don't want to be a good guy," he says. "I want people to see how I can cope with life's problems. To see my contentment."

"Just Between Friends" (PG-13) nicely straddles the thin line between domestic tragedy and maudlin melodrama while managing to be entertaining and emotionally stimulating.

Someone remarked acerbically that Mary Tyler Moore gets younger and cuter every day, but in "Friends" she controls the asaccharine with an effective, low-key characterization of a dependent woman who, to survive, must become independent.

Holly Davis (Moore) is happily married to Chip (Ted Danson) who is devoted to her and their teenage children, Kim (Susan Rinnell) and Jeff (Timothy Gibbs). Chip is a seismologist whose good friend and co-worker Harry Crandall (Sam Waterston) helps Chip live a double life with TV newscaster Sandy Dunlap (Christine Lahti). Girlfriended Sandy, in turn, becomes close friends with Holly who works as a substitute aerobics exercise instructor.

Only in the movies... but if you think about it, life's like that and it's often hard to tell whether people are discussing family tragedies or the latest episode of "General Hospital."

"Just Between Friends" has a complicated plot, but part of the film's pleasure is following developments. Often it seems as if the film is reaching far beyond credible boundaries. At each step, however, the resolution is reasonable and the film works well.

Excellent, naturalistic acting is one reason that this emotional roller-coaster is a pleasant ride. Literate, intelligent, amusing writing and directing by Allan Burns is another. Both major and minor roles are performed with lightly reined control so that seemingly exaggerated situations become plausible.

Teenagers in films often are bratty, unpleasant characters as are successful professional women having affairs with husbands of vulnerable women who have devoted themselves to home and family.

Not so here as Kim and Jeff are restrained in performance and, of course, limited by the script. Lahti is alternately a brusque, streetwise, sharp-tongued, tender and vulnerable woman trying to make it in television and on the home-front as well. Her performance is fine-tuned to those oppositions. Similarly with the other principals whose performances are exceptionally real and natural.

"THE OFFICIAL STORY" is Argentina's powerful and touching expiation of rightist guilt for the thousands who were tortured, murdered and are now "missing," the fascist euphemism for elimination of the opposition.

"The Official Story" traces Alicia's (Norma Aleandro) horrifying discovery that her husband, Roberto (Hector Alterio), is involved in the disappearances. The horrible secret of how he obtained a child, Gaby (Analia Castro), for adoption destroys their marriage.

In her obsessive search for Gaby's parentage, Alicia learns what she and her sheltered circle have been ignoring for many years, their good life has been guaranteed by rightist repression.

Aleandro deservedly won Best Actress at Cannes and Cartagena Film Festivals as Alicia, and the young Castro, delightful as daughter Gaby, should win something during this awards season. "The Official Story" has been nominated as Best Foreign Film.

In spite of all that, however, the film is not as artistically, emotionally or politically as satisfying as its Brazilian cousin, "The Kiss of the Spider Woman," which should win a few Oscars tonight. "Official Story" is emotionally powerful in subject and treatment but annoying in technique — elliptical editing, overdone bridging sound and unexplained plot elements — none of which are fatal, but they do reduce the film to good when it could have been great.

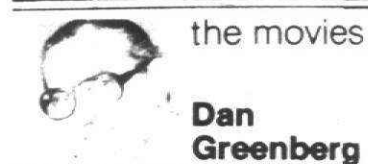

"9-1/2 WEEKS" (R) is the title, not the length, of a Kim Basinger-Mickey Rourke exercise in boredom. Supposedly this is a "hot" film about a sado-masochistic love affair between an art gallery type (Basinger) and a big-time Wall Street operator (Rourke) who always needs a shave.

For an hour-and-three-quarters, the SM crowd is treated to an endless series of closeups that occasionally zooms in for extreme closeups. Visual variety is provided by closeups at odd angles.

"9-1/2 Weeks" is supposed to be about a sado-masochistic couple, but the sadism is entirely on the part of the filmmakers while the masochism is deeply ingrained in anyone who willingly sits through such a painful experience. Good soundtrack. Buy the tape and forget the flick. Or, at the very least, repress it.

In "Just Between Friends," Mary Tyler Moore finds out that her new best friend, played by Christine Lahti, is actually her husband's girlfriend. Also starring are Ted Danson as the husband and Sam Waterston as his friend.
