Ten candidates will seek election to the Plymouth-Canton school board

Two four-year terms and one twoyear term will be contested.

The candidates include two incumbents; a Canton resident making his third bid for the board, another trying for a second time and several newcomers

One incumbent, E.J. McClendon, who is completing a four; year term, has filed for a two-year term this time around. Another incumbent, Marilyn D. Schwinn, who was appointed to fill the vacancy left by Nancy Quinn's resignation, has filed for a four-year term

Elaine Kirchgatter of Canton, whose four-year term expires this June, has decided against seeking reelection after 81/2 years service.

"I have served two full terms and then some and I figure it's time to let Kirchgatter someone else serve."

Sumpter, who manages a paint store, is seeking a seat on the school board for the third time.

Basically, I'm still concerned about schools and I want to take part determining the directions of schools. I've been watching what's going on in school for the past three years," he said.

Kotcher, a first-time candidate, is a homemaker and part-time investment manager

"I have a master's degree in business administration, I was a teacher. I have attended school board meetings regularly at least three years,' she said. "I'm on the citizens bond, committee, been on the TAG (talented and gifted), advisory committee and special ed advisory committee."

Lore, a homemaker, also is making her initial bid for a board seat.

"I'm just very interested in schools," she said. "I've always been very active in various school councils and now I have time to run for the school board

Wines is a homemaker trying for the second time to win a board seat.

T've just stayed involved," she said, citing service on the safety committee and PTO council. "I'm interested in the district, interested in educatión. I'm a district person, not an issue person.

Bully approach

Volunteer reveals soft side, too

By Diane Gale staff writer

Jack Ryan quieted an unruly crowd once by making it known he was the toughest guy around.

At 72, under 5 foot 5 inches tall with a crop of white hair; he uses the same approach now. And it usually works.

Ryan attends all kinds of community_meetings armed with a round of pointed questions, and his tone of voice says he expects quick, straight-forward answers!

"I started asking questions because I wanted answers.

He's "Jack" to most everyone atboard meetings, township hall and RETIRED FOR eight years as assistant superintendent for transportation at Detroit Country Day in Birmingham, Ryan doesn't just sit back and point a finger. He's joined enough Canton volunteer groups to keep a corps of people busy.

Ryan tells a story about how he calmed a Detroit school bus of rowdy kids when he was filling in for a bus driver who was forced out of the vehicle.

people

'I asked who was the toughest kid on the bus, and so one kid said he was," Ryan said. "I took him outside and told him I was the toughest one now and he could be second toughest, From then on in he became my assistant and all of us joked and had a good time.

He uses the same approach with adults around town.

As a member of the Canton Senior Advisory Council, Ryan worked on planning and getting approval for Canton's proposed senior citizen housing.

We got that through last year." More often than not, Ryan is enlisted by township hall folks. Canton's former grants coordinator asked Ryan to join the Canton Community Development Block Grant Advisory Committee. His involvement got for the senior citizens living in Royal Holiday Mobile Home Park federal funds for fire

Ryan, a resident at the mobile home park, was concerned about the lack of hydrants and was determined to see them installed.

Ryan's newest community involvement is spearheading a Neighborhood Watch program for Royal Holiday. He's also a member of the Royal Holiday senior group, previously holding top posts.

Everything he does is with a smile and because he enjoys it.

"I get paid one peanut a year. I do it for the pleasure and self-satisfaction. I like to have fun and if I don't have fun I don't do it.

ANOTHER PROJECT Ryan orked on and was able to achieve results for was from his membership on the Nankin Transit Commission. Four new buses will be purchased for this area, Ryan said.

Being adventurous has been in Ryan's blood for a long time. He joined the Air Corps when he was 32. Even that was a good time because he was able to travel the South Pacific islands, Ryan said.

Hustler, Penthouse and Playboy what's inside may be knocked off the shelves of Canton stores

Pictures and content in the magazines will be scrutinized to determine if they can be legally sold in Canton Township.

The move follows a request from township resident Richard Tenaglia that Canton Police issue citations against 10 stores for violating a local pornography ordinance by selling either one or all of the magazines.

THE STORES CITED in the letter are Canton Party Store, Arbor Drugs, 7-11, Star Stop, Richardsons, Maria's, Grapevine, Cracker Barrel, Quik Pik and Lawsons.

Defining obscenity and taking le gal action against so-called offenders is difficult.

Obscenity is "continually defined and redefined" by the U.S. Supreme Court, said C. Gerald Hemming, Canton's lawyer. The definition of obscenity must be weighed against freedom of the press and freedom of speech, Hemming said.

Also the community's standards must be "sufficiently well defined" to avoid vagueness so the publisher is aware of those standards

Following an investigation, Canton Police plan to request a warrant prosecution from Hemming against one of the stores listed in the letter, said Canton Police Lt. Larry Stewart. It's undecided which store will be targeted, he added.

We'll be taking one store that's selling the magazine, and we'll write t up and we will see what happens, Stewart said

The case will be reviewed by Hemming to determine if Canton's pornography ordinance applies and whether the ordinance has been violated. Canton Police and Hemming also will decide if a new local ordinance should be written in accordance with the U.S. Constitution.

Canton's pornography ordinance has not been enforced for at least the past five years, Hemming said.

ALONG WITH the letter to police, Tenaglia sent a brochure from Citizens for Decency Through Law, a non-profit organization with 106 U.S. chapters. The group assists in prosecutions against obscene matter. We do not target anything," said

Norma Moran, organization development director in Arizona

"A misnomer about us is that we go out and look for people to prose-cute," Moran said. "What we do is assist people who want to prose-

The brochure says "four things happen" when "males become immersed in pornography." They become addicted requiring more and more "sexual highs," and the person 'needs rougher, more mean," zarre, deviant, explicit and "anti-social sexual imagery to get his turntized, making the material seem commonplace which finally results in the person acting out, the bro-

"What was once shocking and wrong or immoral is now legitimized," the brochure said

Because the definition of obscene is debatable the law allows people in the community - in the form of juries during litigation — to decide its meaning, Moran said.

"What is obscene for one community would not be obscene for another," she said.

Due to "bondage type" material in Hustler and Penthouse these magazines are considered more obscene than Playboy, she added.

Clerk's suit spurs open-meeting

IN TODAY'S ISSUE

By Diane Gale staff writer

Canton Township Board of Trustees hired two attorneys Tuesday to represent it in a lawsuit filed by Canton Clerk Linda Chuhran citing interference with her duties as clerk.

The job goes to Canton attorney C. Gerald Hemming and Dearborn attorney Robert Edick who represented Supervisor James Poole, the sole defendant, in the initial lawsuit filed by Chuhran.

Last January Wayne Circuit Judge James A. Hathaway allowed Chuhran to change the lawsuit naming the Charter Township of Canton as defendant. In effect, the entire board is added

THE BOARD did not set attorney fee limitations at Tuesday's board

The township paid about $4,800 for Poole's defense. Attorney fees to Canton for the amended lawsuit are expected to escalate.

Chuhran's lawyer, Alan Helmkamp of Livonia, has maintained that if the case goes to trial he'll also seek reimbursement from the township. However, in the meantime, Chuhran has paid her own attorney

A potential conflict in the Open Meetings Act was a major issue of concern at the board meeting. Because Chuhran is a trustee there could be a problem with privately discussing strategy for the lawsuit.

The Open Meetings Act maintains that when a quorum of trustees meets, the gathering must be held in public. One exception is when the board discusses strategies in a litiga-

'It creates a very unusual situation when a member of a body is suing the body and you're discussing lawsuit strategy," Trustee Bob Padget said.

The board can ask Chuhran not to attend the discussions, Hemming said. If she insists on being present during lawsuit discussions information could instead be disseminated through written correspondences and by individual and limited meet-

Chuhran said Tuesday she couldn't "this time" promise that she would miss the meetings. Hemming stressed that the "true defendant" in the lawsuit is the Charter Township of Canton and not the board of trustees.

CHUHRAN VOTED against naming Edick and Hemming as the board's attorneys.

Trustees Loren Bennett, Stephen Larson, John Preniczky, Treasurer Gerald Brown, Padget and Poole voted in f: . of hiring the attor-

"It should be noted Mr. Edick did not try to resolve the issue, and my attorney was advised to act in the mode of promoting discussion," Chuhran said. "We were trying to stop things and discuss it."

The following charges are included in a complaint filed against the board March 27 in Wayne Circuit

 Denying custody of all township records, books and papers.

· Preventing free access to township records stored in other depart-

 Refusing to allow Chuhran to open and maintain various accounts, including an account with the treasurer relating to township funds · Failing to compensate a deputy clerk whom she appointed.

Additional charges are specificallevied against Poole for what Chuhran sites as his interference with the clerk's responsibilities.

A public hearing on the request has been scheduled before the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees on April 22.

Ford's application for the tax breaks says that the new machinery and equipment will be used to manufacture and assemble aluminum radiators and heater cores.

Ford has requested abatement 50 percent of property taxes due for the maximum period (12 years) allowed by law.

Ford tax officials estimate that tax breaks would total $610,000 over 12 years of abatement. Additional tax revenues also would come to $610,000, with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools in line to receive about $428,000

Modern surgery is also important. Open-heart operations for bypass and reconstructive procedures are saving lives every day. And here at Harper, more of these opera tions are performed each year than at any other hospital in Michigan.

Defector raps OU for not teaching Russian

now an author and lecturer living in Washington, D.C., decried Oakland University's cancellation of its Russian language program when it was brought to his attention by the department's retiring instructor.

"This is surprising because even in Washington the Congress of the United States wants to encourage the study of the Russian language," said Arkady Shevchenko, a former U.N. delegate for the Soviet Union on a visit to Oakland University.

Shevchenko, who spoke to a student assembly on Tuesday, had been a ranking Soviet diplomat when in the 1970s he became a "reluctant" spy for the United States and later defected. His story has been told in a recently published book titled "Breaking with Moscow."

AT A PRESS conference earlier this week, Shevchenko was addressed by OU instructor Helen

House ends long dispute over deficit cuts

gress were recorded on major rollcall votes in the days before the current Easter recess.

HOUSE

BUDGET CUTS - By a vote of 230 for and 154 against, the House accepted the Senate version of a $25 billion deficit-reduction measure, ending several months of dispute over the so-called "reconciliation bill" (HR 3128) and clearing it for President Reagan's signature.

Under the fiscal 1986 budget blueprint set last year by the House and were required to achieve savings of up to $74 billion over three years, largely by rewriting a host of federal laws. The final product approved by this vote uses $19 billion in spending cuts and $6 billion in revenue hikes during fiscal 1986-88 to reach the $25 billion figure.

Among its most disputed provisions, the bill sets new terms for distributing lucrative offshore oil royalties between the federal government and certain coastal states, denies federal workers more attractive health benefits, changes the tobacco price-support program in a way that reportedly pleases both farmers and cigarette manufacturers, and makes permanent the 16-cents-a-pack U.S. tax on cigarettes.

The House had wanted to require all states to extend basic welfare benefits (Aid for Families with Dependent Children or AFDC) to certain two-parent families in which the main wage-earner is jobless. But the Senate prevailed with its proposal to continue giving states an option on whether to qualify such families for

Citing the welfare issue, Beau

Boulter, R-Texas, said he would vote for the bill because he does not want to "increase the size of the welfare state, bringing more people onto the welfare rolls

Opponent Dan Rostenkowski, Dsaid he would vote against the bill largely because it omitted the House language requiring all states to provide welfare to jobless two-parent families that can qualify for it. "I do not think it is right to single out specific states or other geographical regions for special treatment under our national entitlement programs," he said.

Members voting yes wanted to accept Senate language in several disputed areas and pass the fiscal 1986 reconciliation bill.

This apparently ended serious congressional consideration this year of the long-simmering issue. The measure (SJ Res 225) requires each year's budget to be in balance except during declared war or when three-fifths majorities in both houses agree to deficit spending.

Meantime, many state legislatures are pursuing a different route to the same goal. Thirty-two of the re-quired 34 states (a two-thirds majority) have called on Congress to hold a constitutional convention for-debating a balanced-budget constitutional amendment.

Supporter Paul Simon, D-Ill., said: Here, my friends, you have the opportunity to say, on the record, we must balance the budget. We do not say how it should be done, we just say it must be done

Opponent Gary Hart, D-Colo., said the requirement that three-fifths majorities in the House and Senate must approve deficit spending in a given year "would be tyranny by minority . . . enabling senators representing only 10 percent of America's population to control all budget and tax policies for all Americans.

The issue now returns to the House, which on April 15 is scheduled to reconsider its recent vote hat defeated Reagan's bid for $70 million in arms money and 430 million in non-military aid to the contras. Congress last approved military aid to the anti-Sandinista rebels in 1983.

McNamara sees success for drain issue petition drive

Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara said the petition drive he started to get the Wayne County Drain Commission issue on the ballot is within 4,000 signatures needed of finishing.

Some 500 McNamara voluntees collected 16,000 signatures last weekend and plan to return to area shopping centers this weekend.

McNamara expressed confidence in reaching the legally required limit of at least 76,000 names. He said he aims to collect 90,000 signatures to ensure there are enough valid signatures of registered voters to get a ballot issue, however

The proposition asks that officeholder Charles Youngblood be re-moved in 1988 and that the elective position.become an appointed one.

McNamara, a candidate for Wayne County executive, picked up a petition drive started by Wayne County Executive William Lucas in 1983. Lucas' drive had collected 56,000 signatures before stalling.

The drain office has become the source of controversy recently over extreme assessment costs against residents of communities in rural western Wayne County and over illegal bidding procedures. Auditors, puzzled by the office's accounting procedures, have reported to County Commissioners that the books cannot be audited.

Reducing threat of a break-in

staff writer

With the summer months approaching, many Plymouth-Canton families will be thinking of vacation trips. Travels to the seashore, campground or other vacation spot will provide a much-needed break from the pressures of work and school.

When planning those trips thoughts of crime prevention may not be high on the list. It's a lot more fun to think about vacation pleasures. Even so, a few moments spent on crime prevention can save family members from property loss and needless aggravation later on.

Homes that appear to be occupied are less likely to be targeted for "Anything that's going to give the appearance that the home is occupied" will help, according to Officer Robert Smith of the Plymouth Township Police Department.

What it all boils down to is giving any appearance that the person is actually there," said Officer Eddie Tanner of the Canton Police Depart-

Lights by a home's entrances are helpful. A photoelectric cell which reacts to sunlight can be used for outdoor entrances. The lights going on and off will help give the home an occupied look; the light provided will also make many burglars less willing to hang around.

CRIMINALS DO not like to work in the light," the Canton officer said.

Indoor lights can be put on timers. 'When there are lights on, it indicates there are people there," said Officer Robert Scoggins of the Plymouth City Police Department.

Those timers should be set to go on and off at different times, Canton Township's Tanner said, to give the appearance that someone is moving around in the home. A timer on a clock radio can also be useful.

Plymouth Township's Smith advised setting timers to correspond to the family's normal use of lights. Lights in the living room, for example, shouldn't be burning brightly at

That neighbor or friend can re-move circulars and bring in the Tanner said. He advised against having that person pile the mail in a highly visible spot near a door or window. It's better to put the mail in a less visible spot, so potential burglars won't be given a clue that residents are away.

That friend or trusted neighbor should have a telephone number where the residents can be reached. It's also important to leave keys to the home with the friend or neighbor. Police may need to get inside the home, Tanner said, to see that Plymouth Township's Smith suggested that residents contact local police to make the planned absence from the home known. Police officers can provide assistance with crime prevention planning. Knowing checked periodically.

Plymouth's Scoggins agreed that contacting local police before leaving on a vacation trip is a good idea. He also advised against putting a message on a telephone answering machine to indicate that residents

Other crime prevention tips of-fered by local police include:

"Make sure it gets mowed," Scoggins said. "If you let your grass grow too long, people think 'Hey, these people are gone.

 Stopping newspaper delivery, or making arrangements to have newspapers brought inside.

Police officers don't always recommend letting the newspaper carrier know that residents will be out of town, Plymouth Township's Smith said. The carrier may spread word of those vacation plans around, making a break-in at the home more like-

"Of course, they should always make sure they have their vehic serviced properly," Scoggins said. "We highly recommend that they get their vehicle serviced.'

Mother and son work toward full-scale recovery

ANE MILOSCH and her husband, Mac, stopped in Ala bama for the evening of April 23, 1983, to rest before heading to Florida, where they expected to spend a warm, peaceful vacation. She was asleep at 4 a.m., trying to rest before the final drive to Florida, when the phone rang.

It was the couple's son Greg. He said that Steve, their 23-year-old son, was on his way from work at General Motors in Flint when his car crashed on southbound I-75 at a sharp turn near the Clarkston exit, The bad news was that Steve was pronounced dead on arrival. The good news wasn't much better.

The doctor revived Steve, but the accident that had thrown him 200 feet left him in a coma and in very critical condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. That moment stays with her like a relentless nightmare, a nightmare that was followed by an endless ride to the hospital, where family members tried to brace her for the worst. 'Mom, he really looks bad," her daughter said.

But no warning could have braced her for the sight of machines breathing for her son, and stitches about a foot long exposed from his shaven head.

"I remember seeing him and then two nurses on either side of me holding me up and taking me out of the room," she said. "And I remember that I cried, it was hard to believe that my son was fighting for his life." The doctors gave it to her straight. They weren't giving any

STEVE, THE doctors told her and her husband, had received a massive blow to the head called a closed head injury. He had two blood clots and his skull was fractured. In this case, they said, the fracture was a blessing that gave Steve's swollen brain the extra room it needed.

Steve would remain in that same bed in a coma for 51/2 weeks. During drastically. She stopped going to her job and moved into the hospital. While other family members realized that normalcy was the best therapy, she refused to leave the waiting room, unless it was to see

Milosch describes that time as a clump of 10-minute visits between the hours of 10 a.m. and 8 p.m., three Code Blues and an intense amount of prayer. During this time she could not read or plan any sort of normal life, it all rested on Steve. All she could do was sit in the waiting room with her number-one antagonist, the

"It's stressful to sit in a waiting room and all there is is a clock," she said. "And it doesn't move.

What Milosch couldn't comprehend at that time was that Steve had become another number in a national statistic. He was now one of 30,000 to 50,000 people who survive brain damage injury and he was one of the 1,250 new traumatic head injury cases caused by motorcycle or

Steve's closed head injury meant his wound did not pepetrate through the skull and into the brain, but rather the damage was caused by the brain hitting against the skull

Milosch would learn much of this later on, but now all she concentrated on was the emotion and the hope that Steve would soon regain consciousness. She said that the day Steve did come out of his coma was unlike any movie or soap opera could have depicted it. Instead of the comatose victim suddenly waking up and returning to normal, Steve only opened his eyes.

Much later, Steve's mouth gave a low, robot-like sound. The doctors told her about the process of recovery. It would be slow, very slow, and would require much training, drive and patience. She wanted to know if Steve suffered brain dam-

"I KNOW NOW that it was a stupid question," she said. "He didn't talk, he still had a tube in his throat. 23-year-old, 6 foot 2 infant."

Steve went into physical, occupational and speech therapy while in the hospital. When he left, Steve made progress, but he was still in a wheelchair, still trying desperately to become whole again.

The family didn't have it easy either. Mother was being missed around the house and the emotional strain was putting unneeded pres-sure on the family. Milosch said, for example, that it took much pain and communication to bring her out of her compulsive monitoring and caution toward Steve. She finally realized, however, that Steve had to be given the freedom to fail, if he was ever going to learn. And learn he did. After almost three years, Steve is able to do just about anything he did before the accident, although he now has to work harder to do it. He is back at school at OCC in Auburn Hills and once again in charge of his own life.

But there are deficits. The right side of his body is still weaker than his left, he has a heart condition, he has a vision problem, and he occasionally has problems with his memory. But he is driving again.

His mother says Steve still fights as hard as ever to return to how he was before the accident, and she is proud of his strength and determination through the whole ordeal.

Steve is not the only one who has grown because of the accident.

MILOSCH WENT back to work at a new job called Total Therapy Management.

She is a lecturer and volunteer, she understands that the draining experience she has gone through can be used to help others in the same position. Communication and understanding are sometimes all it takes, and all that can be done She first started to do public relations for Total Therapy Management where 18 staff members help 25-30 brain-injured clients in Oak Park and nine staff members teach 20-25

Fun fair helps church project

Last September, Mt. Hope Congregational Church in Livenia set on an exciting but uncharted journey that will test human resourcefulness.

At their annual membership, "Ral-Day," the church distributed $7cash to each person in attendance. The sermon that day centered around the parable of Jesus in which a rich man gave charge of his resources into the hands of his servants. Their task was in invest and increase and otherwise be "faithful" stewards of their responsibilities The church members were to do likewise with their money

In September, there will be anothspecial service at which the 'God's money" and its increase will be collected.

IN THE MEANWHILE, Mt. Hope parishioners have been working hard as carrying out the role of faithful stewards. They have made crafts, of fered services and purchased items for re-sale.

One of the outlets for all this activity and work will come Saturday, April 26, at the church's first Fun Fair, a family-oriented event that will be open to the public and offer-ing an opportunity to shop special booths, partake of homemade (oods and other refreshments and have fun playing a variety of games, including the computer games.

Participation in the fair is not limited to Mt. Hope members, Others who would like to have booths are invited. Vendors should call the church office at 425-7280.

Switch is on to 15-year mortgages

conventional mortgages matured in 15 years. In 1985, that percentage more than doubled to 13.8 percent. Fifteen-year mortgages proved more popular among repurchasers than among first-time buyers, but first-time buyers were still responsible for 34 percent of the 15-year mortgages written in 1985.

The principal advantage of the 15year mortgage is its rapid equity build-up from loan payments. With interest rates at 10 percent, the borrower amortizing a loan over 15 years will have accumulated 51/2 times more equity in five years just by loan repayment than if the borrower had taken out a 30-year loan.

Lenders typically offer slightly lower interest rates on 15-year mortgages. But this small break on the interest rate is not enough to offset the higher monthly payment per thousand dollars of loan amount. For example, a 30-year mortgage at 12 percent carries a monthly payment of $10.29 per thousand dollars of loan amount, while a 15-year mortgage at 111/2 carries a monthly payment of $11.68 per thousand dollars.

SO TO MAKE monthly payments comparable between 15- and 30-year mortgages, borrowers using the shorter-term loan must buy less expensive housing or make larger downpayments. Otherwise the larger monthly payment would oblige them to spend a larger percentage of their income on the mortgage payment.

In 1985, home buyers with 15-year mortgages tended to be slightly older than those being financed for 30 years. But in most cases, the 15-year mortgagors had lower incomes. Although it might be expected that lower incomes would be associated with lower purchase prices, borrowers choosing 15-year mortgages bought even less expensive homes relative to their incomes than their counterparts with 30-year mort-

Fifteen-year mortgagors made relatively higher down payments than 30-year mortgagors did. The combination of lower interest rates, lower home prices, higher down payments and lower rates typically produced lower monthly payments with 15-year loans than for those with 30-

And home buyers with 15-year mortgages tended to find less expensive homes among existing housing stock, particularly in that part of the housing stock built 25 or more years ago. Relatively few first-time buyers bougat new homes or condominiums with 15-year mortgages.

Large down payments offset mortgage rates

The return of lower interest rates has brought a sense of deja vu to the home-buyer's market. But more stringent qualifying standards could be smudging an otherwise rosy pic-

Traditional methods of home financing with short-term mortgages and spending less income toward housing are back, according to study by the United States League of Savings Institutions on 1985 house-financing data.

The results could mean increase in both home equity as loans are paid off moré quickly and in personal finances because prospective buyers have to save substantially more for a down payment.

But falling mortgage rates do not necessarily mean houses are more affordable. The average conventional mortgage payment in 1985 was $865 compared to $845 in 1984, indicating buyers were opting for more expensive homes. In the Detroit area, interest rates averaged 11.37 percent for the last half of 1985. In 1984, they averaged 11.56 percent.

Area banks and mortgage companies, for the most part, back up the study. The major exception to the trends set in the past few years is the vanishing of adjusted-rate mort-Adjusted-rate mortgages, though initially offering a lower rate (81/2 percent at one bank compared to about 10 percent for fixed-rate mortgages), can fluctuate upward with inflation. A fixed-rate mortgage remains the same throughout the loan period. ARMs captured twothirds of the conventional home mortgage market in 1985, more than twice the 31.9 percent in 1983.

BUT THIS YEAR fixed-rate mortgages are what's in demand at area lending institutions.

"There's no risk involved like there is with the ARMs," said Tom

'New standards for qualifying for a mortgage are now in place - and are the equivalent, in terms of income needed to quality, of a 11/2 percent increase in interest.'

U.S. Housing Markets

tive for the National Bank of Detroit office in Farmington. "Now it's more popular because the fixed rate has come down."

The 15-year mortgage appears to be supplanting the popularity of

"Since the first of the year, I'd say 99 percent of our business has been with the 15-year fixed rate," said Ken Nelson, branch manager of First Federal Savings of Michigan in Westland. "There's very few adjusted-rate mortgages around."

But 30-year fixed-rate mortgages have one major advantage - lower monthly payments. The monthly payment on a $96,000 mortgage with 15-year mortgage at 101/4 percent is $1,046.37. The 30-year monthly payment at 10% percent is $895.72 a $150 difference. Lending institutions generally offer lower rates for 15-year mortgages than for 30-year loans.

"The difference in the monthly payment isn't dramatic," said William Yaw, director of marketing for First Standard Federal in Troy, "but the interest paid is significant." (See accompanying story.)

ALTHOUGH LOWER interest rates would seemingly mean more buyers could qualify for loans, a new many purchasers the effect of the interest rates. According to the publication, U.S. Housing Markets, "new standards for qualifying for a mortgage are now in place - and are the equivalent, in terms of income needed to qualify, of a 11/2 percent increase in interest.

In 1985, lenders reverted to the 28percent-of-income limit that had been followed in the 1970s. Translated into income dollars, the publica-tion reports that the borrower now needs 3.57 times his annual payment instead of the former three times to be considered for a mortgage. From late 1980 to early 1985, a borrower without heavy debt obligations could qualify for a conventional mortgage if first-year payments were as high as 33% percent of gross income.

Even Federal Housing Administration and Veteran's Administration loans, which always were more lenient in income standards, have tightened their guidelines. Previously a borrower could qualify with payments 40 percent of their income and sometimes higher. Since last year, there has been a firm 38 percent ceiling with some exceptions, according to the publication.

"These new limits were not arbitrarily imposed. They are a reaction to the high rate of delinquencies and foreclosures of the last few years. There is no longer enough appreciation in home prices to bail out overextended buyers.'

Area lenders agreed.

"It's getting hard to approve a loan with a 5 percent downpayment these days," said Nelson.

Another aspect of home buying age of the buyers - seems to be changing. Contrary to the League of Savings report, which said the median age for a person purchasing was 36 in 1985, many home buyers appear to be younger, according to those selling area real estate.

Please turn to Page 3

Financing menu serves up change

With the strong likelihood that inflation will remain in remission, many of the trends in home ownership that have emerged in the mid-1980s will continue, according to the U.S. League of Savings Institutions. Here is what the league sees in its crystal ball.

· Never again is a single type of mortgage instrument likely to dominate the market as the long-term, fixed-rate mortgage did for so long. Adjustable-rate mortgages have established their place on the mortgage menu, and short-term mortgages, such as the 15-year mortgage, are doing so today.

· Disinflation has begun to impose more stringent loan underwriting standards on mortgage borrowers - higher down payments and lower ratios of housing expense-to-income. Disinflation is the reduction of the general level of prices, planned to increase purchasing power while controling deflation. The data presented in the 1985 Home Buyer Survey revealed the decline in the percent of income devoted to housing expense; higher down payments will be evident long before the next survey is taken.

 The need of many prospective home buyers to save substantially more than in the past to meet those down payment requirements should contribute to - although not by itself a cause - a reversal of the long decline in personal saving rates. Higher downpayments will almost certainly mean that young households will achieve home ownership a bit later in life than those who preceded them in the 1970s and early

Consumers sees area stake in Midland plant

staff writer

Even southeastern Michigan residents who buy electricty from Detroit Edison have a stake in Consumers Power Co.'s plan to convert its idle Midland nuclear plant to a gas-fired generator, said CP Chairman William T. McCormick Jr.

The new chief of the state's largest utility called a news conference in Detroit Monday to announce a request for a 25-percent electric rate increase over five years for outstate customers. CP's natural gas customers in the metro Detroit suburbs, however, would face no rate in-

The rate increase, if granted by the state Public Service Commission, would generate more than $500 million in revenue. The revenue would be invested in converting the $4 billion, unfinished, nuclear plant at Midland to a natural gas combined-cycle facility by 1990.

The PSC said it has no authority over-new power plant construction, other than to set electric rates to be paid by customers.

The board of directors of Consumers Power, meeting in Jackson Tuesday, approved the plan.

"Michigan's future power require-ments should be met by facilities in the state for reasons of economy, reliability and security of supply," McCormick said.

BUT WHEN nearly all of the tri-county area gets electricity from Edison, why did McCormick make his announcement in the heart of Edison's territory? He gave four rea-

• The utility can't go into the capital market for conversion funds. Selling stock is impossible because common stockholders suffered a 1985 loss of $4.42 a share. "We can't borrow - our bonds are below investment grade," McCormick said.

But by using electricity revenues to make the 41/2-year conversion, he said. CP could restore itself to fiscal health and find acceptance in the capital market in a future year.

 CP and Edison are part of a seven-state grid - the Michigan Electric Power Coordination Center located in Ann Arbor — that distributes electricity where it's needed during peak demands, McCormick said. If CP has adequate capacity, then so does Edison, he reasoned. He predicted supply would outpace demand in a decade, even with Edison's Fermi II plant coming on-

McCormick said CP engineers and outside experts analyzed many options before deciding the cheapest to ratepayers and in terms of construction time - was to convert the Midland plant to natural gas in two

Cost to electric customers would be a 5 percent increase a year for five years, or 25 percent.

Current average bill is $36.30 a month. After five years, the CP electric customer would see the household cost rise by $9.08 to $45.35. REJECTED OPTIONS were:

 Abandoning the nuclear plant entirely. Despite counter statements from the attorney general's office, McCormick insisted CP would be entitled to a 19 percent rate increase to recover the cost from customers. "Anyone who thinks we will get nothing for abandoning Midland is kidding himself," he said.

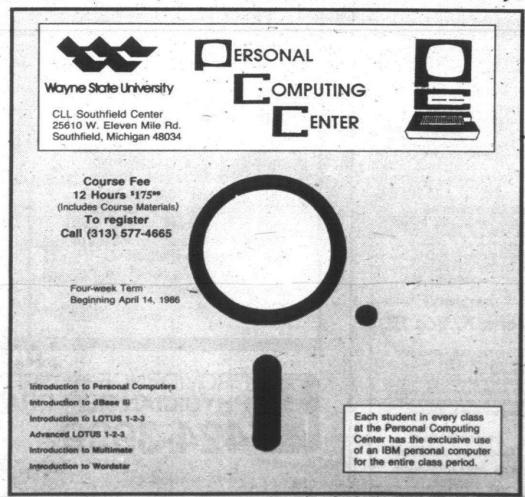

• Buying power from other sources — a 33-percent rate increase. This breaks down to a 19percent increase for abandoning the nuclear plant and a 14-percent increase for buying electricity else-

● Converting to coal — a 25 percent rate increase, plus longer conversion time and a dirtier plant when completed.

 Completing the nuclear plant - 41 percent more from customers.

Teach tots what's really important first of all, sports

O IT'S SPRING. New season. New life. Time for a new beginning. Which is what I'm contemplating. A change. Nothing cosmetic, mind you. I'm not going to try and be nice to people, or smile more, or lend a sympathetic ear. People would just take it for

I'm talking career here. And I know exactly what I'll do, too. Write children's stories.

This isn't lunacy. This was well thought-out during a 10-day vacation in somewhat sunny Los Angeles, where men are sometimes men, women are usually blonde and always better athletically than I am, and the only belief shared by all sexes is: "He who dies with the most toys, wins."

Now I'm going to explain myself, so pay strict attention. The logic is there, but sometimes you've got to search a little hard for it.

WE ARE in the throes of a mini baby boom. I could bore you with meaningful statistics, but I won't. I know what I know, and I know that not since the early 1960s, when the last baby boom wilted, have there been more young couples planning to raise a houseful of tax deductions.

That means a brand new surge of eager, young minds, all anxious to gobble up whatever reading material they can find on a computer disc.

It's perfect. It's profitable. To say nothing of the potential.

These children will need someone to update the Dick-and-Jane-and-their-pet-dog-Spot books, so popular when I was a rug rat. Plots will have to be modernized with characters reflecting the changes, like Dick and Jane and their space robot Tobor.

And I'm just the guy to do it.

Tell you why. First of all, despite an audience far more sophisticated than the one of 20 years ago, the style of writing still must be simple. You don't want to confuse the youngsters too early in life. Let the politicians do that a few years down the road. So who's more qualified to write simply than a sportswriter? Heck, we have an unwritten rule about using words with more than three syllables ("Only in dire emergencies or if you mispronounce the word."). Can you see the connection? It would be the perfect step up for me.

POINT NO. 2: The subject matter we concern ourselves with supplies the perfect training for just such a venture. Remember, a newspapers' sports staff is often referred to as the Toy Department.

True, the toys that fill the reams of copy we churn out are either for adults, those aspiring to be adults or those pretending to be adults. But toys are toys, so the adjustment from producing stories about baseball to writing about Gobots can't be too severe.

It might be a heckuva lot more interesting, too. Anyway, someone from the field of sports is the rfect choice for teaching the kids of what's important. Care to argue? Check out the front page stories of Monday's daily newspapers.

Both have stories about Libya's possible ties to recent terrorist activities, but right there with them is a story on a crooked home plate at Tiger Stadium on the day of the baseball opener and the Red Wings winning the finale in their worst season ever. Both also carried special sections to commemorate the opening of the baseball season. End of argument.

POINT NO. 3: What's important. It took a trip to California for me to realize it.

Out there, guys who can't afford dinner or long pants drive around in $30,000 Porsches. Not just a lucky few, either. There are more cars of that caliber out there than neckties

What perspective! The only news out of the Middle East that gets their attention is falling fuel prices, which gives them the chance to cruise even more.

Toys are everything in California. How else could one state host so many major professional sports teams - five in baseball, four each in basketball and football and even one in hockey, in a place where most of the ice is used for Margueritas.

The object is to teach toddlers what's vital, California-style. We can try to impress upon children that if Jane takes one of the three apples from the basket, two will be left.

But I maintain that if you tell them a jump shot canned by Dick from outside the 20-foot arc counts three points instead of two, they'll learn a lot faster.

NOT JUST counting, either. These kids will learn about the thrill of vietery and how to attain it.

They'll learn about the agony of defeat and how to

And they'll learn about the adult population's high regard for fun and games. Who wants to hear about a Libyan madman when the Tigers are on TV?

I'll do my Howard Cosellian-best to "tell it like it is" in my children's stories. Dad will come home and ask Dick how he did in his baseball game before sitting down in front of his television to watch a hockey game on cable while perusing the sports

There's a fortune to be made, to be sure. And when I tire of writing children's stories, I'll take the next logical step. Such a simple style of prose would be perfect in writing a bowling column.

Chiefs to climb last step?

Bridesmaid in 1985, Canton wants a title

Mike Burt, who played No. 3 doubles last year, jumps to No. 2 singles in Canton's

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Jim Hayes has been coaching tennis at Plymouth Canton since the school opened its doors 13 years ago. "He is the best coach, by far, in this area," said Farmington Harrison coach Bernie Goldstein. "He plays the game, he knows what he's High praise coming from the win-ningest tennis coach in the Western

"Ah, Bernie's my buddy," Hayes said. "I appreciate what he said, but you tell him if I'm such a good coach, how come we can't ever beat

Hayes' Chiefs, after losing three dual meets in the Western Lakes last season, pulled in second at the league meet behind Harrison. The Chiefs were 10-3 on the season.

"I think we'll be about the same as we were last year," Hayes said. "Our singles players have improved; they've worked hard over the summer. I don't know if our doubles teams will be as strong as last year,

The four singles positions appear to be set. Senior Tom Hathaway returns at No. 1. Mike Burt, a muchimproved sophomore, will play No. 2. Freshman Dan Orlandi is at No. 3 and senior Don Cavell will open at

If the season opened today, Hayes would have seniors Jeff Fitzryk and Sung Woo Kahng playing No. 1 doubles. Sophomore Steve Schmidt and junior Ehren Kolsch at No. 2 dou-

Four players are battling for the No. 3 doubles spot: sophomore Rich Gurchak, freshman Jim Gallagher, junior Jeff Blunt and sophomore Jeff

"I think Harrison will be very good this season, as will Northville and Livonia Stevenson," Hayes said. "Our league was very competitive last year and will be again. I don't know how good Plymouth Salem will be. We will have to do better in the dual meets. We lost to Farmington, Northville and Harrison in duals last year and that really hurt us."

PLYMOUTH SALEM coach Judy Braun, in her fifth season, has a major problem on her hands. She has some 16 players on her roster, all of equal ability.

"I just have no idea at this point as far as a lineup," she said. "I mean, this is really bad. There is not a lot of difference between the players. I could have two groups, I can't really make a division. It's really strange."

Part of the problem is that five players have departed from last year's 5-9 team. Ron Rabillas moved way while Cam Evans, John Kath, Eric Sovine and Bob Gaekwad have graduated Braun has five players returning who started a year ago: juniors Clyde Binguit, Bob Breach, Rich Cooper, Ted Hanosh and Mark Rearick. There are no seniors on the team.

Others in the running for court time are: juniors Jeff Czerniak, Gary Kroll, Malay Mody, Mark Pilley and Brain Rowland; sophomores Bob Barr and Chris Marschak; and freshmen Rich Cundiff, Wade Garard, Mark Lloyd and Matt Lore.

"We have the talent to be competi-tive in this league," Braun said. Both squads will open the season Wednesday, April 16: Salem at Livo-nia Franklin, the Chiefs at home against Walled Lake Western.

Wolverine

Dave Dameron, Plymouth Salem's state champion wrestler, had his dream year capped off Wednesday morning. He signed a letter-of-intent to accept a full-ride wrestling scholarship from the University of Michigan. How anxious was U-M to land Dameron? The signing day officially began at 8 a.m. and U-M coach Dale Barr asked if he could be at Dameron's home at 7:30 a.m. By signing with the Wolverines, Dameron said no to Michigan State, Indiana and Wisconsin, all of whom were bidding for the 126-pounder.

Hathaway tipped in Easter tourney

Farmington Tennis Club's annual Easter Junior Tennis Open that concluded Sunday.

Eighty-five players from Michigan, Ohio and Ontario competed in three age levels - Boys and Girls 14, 16

Frazier, the nation's No. 1 player in Girls 14s, won the Girls 18 title in straight sets over Northville's Breita Johnson. Frazier did not lose a game throughout the entire tournament.

In Girls 16, Brab Coughland of Birmingham defeated Dayton's Michelle Goecke. Erin Einhorn of West Bloomfield defeated Southfield's Michelle Harris in the Girls 14 division.

Greg Wendt has chucked his basketball shorts for awhile to chuck a few fast balls.

At least that was the original plan. The University of Detroit basket- able to get my timing down after a ball standout had orginally taken his act to the diamond as a pitcher. But judging by his two-hit performance as a designated hitter in the Titans' win over Eastern Michigan recently. his hitting is a welcomed rainstorm in a desert of offensive lethargy.

Abstracts, figures work together

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Talk about self-discipline. Pat Boyer of Birmingham somehow knew she must give up her first love, figure painting, and instead do abstracts if she was to really advance in figurative work the way she wanted to.

If that sounds hard, it was. But, it took her where she wanted to go. The result is a one-person show at Troy Art Gallery opening tomorrow with Boyer has always been ambitious for herself in the art world. She has a strong sense of color and continuity, which was recognized when she was a student at what was then Society of Arts and Crafts in the early and mid-1960s.

She returned there — now the Center for Creative Studies-College of Art and Design — two decades later because, "I wanted exposure downtown. I became intensely involved with abstracts. I wanted to leave the figure. I had always concentrated on the figure, but I got frustrated

She said that on her return to downtown Detroit, she was involved with young artists for three years. Later when she returned to figure work, she shared a model with several artists and found, to her delight, that the figurative and the abstracts played off each other.

AND AS SHE talked about the relationship between the two in the Troy Art Gallery, she said she may be working on several drawings or paintings in both areas at the same time, experiencing a compatability rather than a conflict between "Abstracts are my work (from the standpoint of) looking into my own soul, my own mind. The figures are my response to people.

She said the abstracts heightened her awareness of herself and that, in turn, increased her awareness of the people around her. And her return to school added another dimension

"The second time at CCS, three years, I spent a lot of time doing studio work. You can get very insulated out here (the suburbs). I'm very uncomfortable just being comfortable. I worked with Aris (Koutroulis) mostly. He gave me a studio right away and I went to work. I needed that atmosphere and the young people who put you on

There is a slow smile suggesting she liked being

SHE IS showing a variety of works on paper in the Troy Art Gallery show - oils, pastels, watercolor, acrylic. Most of the works are mixtures. All show a refined sense of color that is exciting, but a little more controlled and a little less flamboyant than in previous times

However, with control, the figures have become freer, the lines longer and looser. There is a delightful spontaneity about these people. Her several male nudes, however, seem to possess a controlled energy about to be unleashed

Boyer hasn't lost her sense of the bizarre or her sense of humor, but there's a maturity here now that signals she has developed additional inner resources. She's moving beyond reflecting the people she's studied with (granted there are some illustrious ones) to becoming her own person artistically. A look at a book of small drawings she's done which symbolize the events in her life suggests that both abstracts and figures will move toward stronger, simplier forms.

C.D. STOUFFER

Pat Boyer considers the watercolor at which have personal connotations for lower left a transition piece that leads her, also stand alone without explanainto her new work such as the colorful tion. abstract directly above it. The abstracts,

She has a strong sense of drama and excitment. She's definitely an artist to keep watching - and

The show continues through May 10. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 755 W. Big Beaver, Suite 131, Troy.

In Michigan's most explosive growth area.

> you can live on 70 blissful acres of tranquility.

"Live where you work" often implies sacrificing home comforts for business convenience — trading the good life for job practicatity. Not at Green Hill. Just 2 minutes east of the 1-275 corridor, right next door to the most explosive growth area in Michigan, Green Hill offers a super bresidential environment over 70 acres of park and woodland, lawns and gardens, logging paths and nature trails. The apartments are the last word in "state-of-the-art" design — with more space, more convenience, more amenities. You can choose between 1- and 2-bedroom floor plans, terrace residences, or country townhouses. If your job dictates proximity, come see Green Hill — where you can "have it all" We welcome your visit. Stop where you can "have it all." We welcome your visit. # earranging space can provide more room

Your present home can be rearranged to provide more room than you ever thought possible, according to Sally Clark and Lois Perschetz, two decorating writers who recently wrote a book on space-making ideas they have discovered over the years.

The title of their book is selfexplanatory: "Making Space: How To Decorate and Renovate to Get the Space You Need from the Space You -

Most people assume they must do without needed space or move. ignoring the space they already have. the two women say.

Instead, they suggest you look for extra space along the walls, at ceiling height or in the corners of rooms. If necessary, create what you need by building or buying two freestanding closets along one end of a room and using the space between for shelves, a desk or table, a sofa or bed.

Our goal has been to show it is possible to improve space, explained Perschetz.

The solutions we show work in all types of homes, added Clark, who are both former editors of House Beautiful Magazine.

PLYMOUTH

To householders and apartment dwellers who find their possessions over-running their space, the two women offered some room by roon suggestions for improving the

"Approach your home in terms of needs instead of focusing on the traditional use of the room." said Perschetz.

For example, in a dining room, move the table out of the center of the room over to one side. This frees the room to become something more than the rarely used setting for holiday dinners that it is in most homes, she said. ,

Moving the table makes it possible to bring bookshelves or home electronic equipment and some seating and convert the room to a family center. With careful planning. you'll still be able to use the room for holiday dining by moving some of the new furniture to one side.

If you don't have a dining room, but want one, look for a spot that can be converted. One person whose home is illustrated in their book carved a dining room out of a foyer by using a dropleaf table that seats six comfortably when opened.

In the bathroom, the space mostoften wasted is the area above the shower head and below the ceiling. The two suggest you build shelves above the tub for towels and other

Both admitted to pet peeves against standard bathroom vanities. "They are too small." said Clark Instead she suggested mirroring the area above the sink and building more commodious shelves to one side.

If two bathrooms would relieve the morning rush, but there isn't room or money enough to cover their construction, try adding a second lavatory and toilet and continuing with only one tub. By creating a second small half-bath that connects to the existing tub, you've solved the problem and used less money and space than a second full bath would

Using wall space more creatively is also a way to get more mileage out of your kitchen. They suggest employing products such as grids or pegboard to hang utensils out in the open. An overhead pot rack accommodates pots and pans and makes them more accessible. It also frees valuable cabinet space for other items.

They see three possibilities when dealing with a tiny kitchen. Depending on your decorating taste, you could opt for floor-to-ceiling cabinets and no clutter. Or, you could outfit the kitchen with niches and nooks so there is a place for everything. A third idea would be to use kitchen utensils as accessories. Hang plates on cabinet door-fronts, suspend herbs from the ceiling, display knives and other utensils in decorative pitchers.

In a high-ceiling room, opt for establishing two levels of activity. You can build in and carpet platforms that open to reveal storage or stack mattresses one, two and three high to create a series of seating "steps"

Unused spaces exist in every home, they said. Look for them under the stairs, in corners or in narrow hallways which can be likely resting places for narrow pieces of furniture.

Under the stairs, for example, you could install a bunk bed for occasional guests, a small half-bath or a household desk and telephone center. In the corner of any room, you can wedge in a triangular cabinet, tabletop or series of shelves.

andscaping begins with a plan

Careful landscape planning can increase your family's enjoyment of your property, add to the value of your home and decrease the time and money costs of planting and maintaining the landscape.

A carefully planned landscape also tends to look better than an unorganized planting.

Curt Peterson, Extension horticulture specialist at Michigan State University, suggests looking at the landscape as an extension of the home. It includes public, private and utility areas and may include special use areas, such as a pet run, vegetable garden or volleyball court. Well thought out landscaping can help define use areas, frame desirable views and screen out unattractive vistas, as well as enhance the general appearance of the property.

The first step in planning the landscape is to make a scale drawing of the property with the major features clearly marked - walks, drives, buildings, utilities, shade trees, etc.

Then analyze your family's needs and wants and determine how the present landscape does or does not meet them throughout the year. Does the prevailing wind fill the driveway with snow? Are the garbage cans the dominant feature in the view from the dining room window? Is the charm of the old mulberry tree fading faster than the mulberry stains on the carpet - and on the dog? Would you like to have a flower or vegetable garden, a grassy area where the children could play, a patio or deck, or storage for a recreational vehicle? Would you like to spend less time maintaining your home grounds and more time enjoying them?

"The next question is, will plants do the job for you in the landscape?" Peterson says. "Perhaps a living snow fence of shrubs in the proper place could redirect blowing snow for you. Establishing a utility area in a less prominent place in the yard and screening it with shrubs or a section of fence could improve the view at mealtime. And a fruitless, high quality shade tree could replace the mulberry."

Before you start looking at plants, however, you need to determine what limitations the planting site places on your choice. The growing conditions on a site - whether the spot is low and wet, hot and sunny in the summer, shady, exposed to the wind and sun in winter - will limit your choices in plants

"Certain plants have very strict growing requirements," Peterson says "Others are more tolerant but most have a fairly limited range of light, moisture and soil conditions in which they do best. A common, inexpensive plant in a site that offers it optimum growing conditions will do more for the landscape than an expensive, exotic, poorly adapted plant that is just barely surviving."

Other-considerations in the planting site are the location of overhead and underground utilities, the need for an unobstructed view (of play areas for young children, for instance, or of the street and approaching traffic for drivers exiting the property), ease of maintenance, space available and proximity to the house and other structures.

By the time you've thought through these considerations, you can begin to consider types and families of plants and decide what ornamental characteristics are important to you. Mature size, shape, color of foliage. presence of foliage all year round, interesting bark texture or color. flowers, fruits and potential pest problems are among the traits to consider.

"Select plants with the characteristics you need to meet the goals of your plan," Peterson advises. "Make sure the plants you select fit the environmental conditions you have

he garden corner:

There's nothing like a breath of spring to start the gardening questions rolling in. Extension specialists at Michigan State University answer some timely questions about vegetable gardening, lawns, landscape plants and related topics:

What are the first crops I can plant in my garden in the spring?

In the vegetable garden, radishes, lettuce, spinach, carrots, onions and peas are the first crops to be planted from seed. Calendula (pot marigolds) and sweet peas can be planted in the flower garden as soon as the soil is dry enough to work. The cole crops cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, etc. - can be set in the garden as transplants in mid-April in central lower Michigan.

Is there any real advantage to planting tomatoes much before mid-

If you warm the soil before planting by covering it with plastic and protect the tops of the plants against frost and cold temperatures, you may be able to start harvesting tomatoes earlier than usual. Warming the soil is critical plants-with their roots in cold soil won't grow. You can use either black or clear plastic to warm the soil, but black plastic will also control weeds by blocking the light from reaching the soil and germinating weed seeds.

Warming the soil can also promote quicker germination of both cool weather crops and large-seeded warm weather crops, such as beans, sweet corn and squash. Planted in cold. damp soil, these seeds tend to rot rather than germinate. Because the chances of losing early planted warm-weather crops to frost are high - you have to forget to protect them only once - it's wise to try early planting with only a few plants or a short row of seeds rather than risk an entire planting and your whole harvest. If you do lose the first planting, you still have plenty of time to replant.

Spring do-it-yourself projects

Tennyson expressed that in spring a person's fancy turns to thoughts of love. But he didn't mention that your thoughts may have turned to Do-It-Yourself projects around your family's

There is repair work, clean up; planting and building projects, to name a few. Or, perhaps this spring is set aside for building a new deck or greenhouse in your backyard.

Some spring home improvement projects can be started inside while winter lingers or during the rainy season. Bird feeders and flower planters are easy to build, often come in kits and can add a new-look to your spring yard. They are perfect examples of indoor projects appropriate for your Do-It-Yourself work area.

If you haven't cleaned out your workshop all winter, spring is an opportune time to get rid of the buildup of scraps and waste. It's also important to clean and condition tools regularly. For hand tools, a rustinhibiting product should be applied to protect blades.

Once the weather has warmed, you may be tempted to get outside for family fun. In addition to the regular activities, turn ordinary work into an event. If you have smaller children, you might create a game out of picking up the yard, or challenge other family members by encouraging them to repair the doghouse and give it a fresh coat-of paint. If play equipment, such as a swing or sandbox is installed, cleaned or repaired first, you should have little problem keeping youngsters out of the way so you can concentrate on larger undertakings. New additions can help turn an ordinary yard into a modern garden. Build a deckoff the back or the side of your house, for example. Or build a gazebo or greenhouse. It's often most helpful to sfart projects before cleaning the yard and doing repair work. You will save yourself from cleaning up twice.

Remodel with lighting

Remodeling of residential homes today is "big business" and becomes ever more popular with homeowners as they outgrow their present home, and find purchasing a new and larger residence more and more costly.

The alternative, of course, as young children grow to teenagers and need more bedroom and study area, as the lady-of-the-house wants to add more appliances like a microwave oven in the kitchen or a laundry room on the first floor instead of in the basement. as the need for additional, and separate, entertainment and hobby areas expands, or a family takes elderly parents to live with them, is extensive remodeling.

It is at this point, while still in the talking and planning stage, before blueprints are drawn, that a home lighting inventory and reassessment should be undertaken. Lighting is one of remodelings most overlooked elements.

There are many changes and 9 additions in home lighting that can improve the home and quality of life for its occupants. If your remodeling plans are not too extensive, the base lighting system usually remains in place. Typical modifications are rewiring for better control, substituting more efficient light sources for less efficient ones, and relocating existing fixtures for better task lighting and to eliminate unwanted glare (more wattage is not always better) and shadows: lighting a formerly dark corner of a small room can make the whole room seem larger and more

If your remodeling plans are fairly extensive, structural lighting is most easily, and economically, installed at this time. Structural lighting may include a lighted: soffit, cornice, cove, valance, wall bracket, canopy, toe mold, slot, top of cabinet, under counter or room divider. Recessed downlighting is a very important form of structural lighting. It is a fixture recessed into the ceiling and is very unobtrusive. The fixture may have a

Energy Consideration

Remodeling time is an excellent time to think about energy considerations in home lighting. Lighting constitutes less than 11 percent of residential electricity usage-despite the fact the average single-family home has nearly 28 lighting fixtures, as opposed to movable lamps.

If you are redoing the kitchen, make provision for adding fixtures over the sink, under cabinets and any area where tasks are performed; and maybe, add a pendant light or chandelier over a table in an adjacent dining area.

In the bedroom, don't just put a fixture in the middle of the room. Consider lighting grooming areas at a dressing table, light for reading in bed, valance lighting to expand the visual size of the room and enhance draperies, and perhaps a chandelier or pendant over a table for late at night suppers, or catching up on tasks brought home from the office away from the distractions in other home areas. Fixtures suspended from the ceiling save all your table space for your work.

If your remodeling doesn't include restructuring walls, track lighting is easy to install and very flexible. It can be ceiling or wall-mounted and many decorative styles and sizes are available. Single, double, or triple spot fixtures are another good and flexible choice.

In the Living Room

· Upgrade the plumbing or electrical system

· Repair the porch

Recessed downlights can form or define a special area within a space. For example: the downlights can be positioned to surround a furniture grouping, such as facing sofas or a grouping of three or four chairs, thus forming an intimate conversational area with, perhaps, a cocktail table in between.

The downlights should be positioned over the front or back edge of the seats, not over the center. The light surrounding this special area must be dimmer so it doens't intrude, although brighter light may be in farther places in the room.

Chandeliers

Nothing will more dramatically enhance a dining room than the addition of a chandelier if you don't already have one, or the replacement of an older style fixture with something new and different.

A chandelier hung over a table should be 12 inches smaller in diamater than the smallest table dimension. How high over a table used for eating? The lowest part of the fixture should be no less that 2 feet 6 inches above the tabletop. When remodeling in a dinimg room, also consider the addition of wall scones to match the chandelier.

Lighting for Senior Citizens Sad but true, our eyesight lessens with time. If you are remodeling your home to accommodate an older parent or relative, take this fact into consideration. Besides the over-all

ighting tips

lighting in the senior's apartment or room, make certain stairs are clearly visible, especially at night, and that provision is made in their living area for sufficient light for reading, needlework or other hobbies.

For handwork, such as needlepoint where there is little contrast to much small detail, older eyes need 200 to 300 watt standard voltage, or a 50 watt standard voltage, or a 50 watt low-voltage incandescent bulb in a lamp or fixture. Make sure the lamp, or fixture, has this capacity.

Obey the Rules

Whether you employ a professional or are doing some of your own remodeling, always follow codes for installation, as well as manufacturer's instructions.

they are placed in a window that is too dark, but without the light they need to produce food they will literally starve to death. Such plants will slowly lose old leaves and produce smaller new ones, and as time goes on will become tall and spindly. If you match the plants you grow to the amount of light you have available at your windowsill, and observe a few basic cultural practices, you will be well on your way to a windowsill garden that will grow and thrive not only from month to month, but from year to year.

The first step in deciding how much light your windowsill garden receives is to determine which way the window faces. Use a compass if necessary. North-facing windows receive the least amount of light, south the most. East and west windows receive roughly the same amount, although west windows tend to be hotter than east windows. You must also consider how much actual light finds its way through your windows. The glass itself cuts down on light, even when the windows are sparkling clean. If your window is heavily shaded by trees, curtains, nearby buildings or a porch roof or awning, the amount of light will be reduced considerably. Curtains, even sheer ones, can effectively turn a west window into a "north" one.

If you have an unusually dark window, or a dark corner that cries for a plant, consider purchasing two identical plants recommended for a north window. Rotate the plants between the dark spot and a bright window on a weekly basis.

Supplemental lighting is another solution. Suspend a fluorescent fixture over the spot where you want the plant, and use one cool-white and one warm-white tube to provide a wide spectrum of light. Attach a timer so it will turn on and off automatically. Most plants will appreciate at least 12 to 14 hours of supplemental light per day.

Another way to provide additional light is to reflect it onto plants. White walls will reflect more light than dark ones, and a well-placed mirror can reflect a great deal of light onto plants

The amount of light available to a plant diminishes quite rapidly as you move away from a window. Place plants as close as possible to a window without touching it. If they need to be more than two feet from an east or west window, choose a species recommended for a northern exposure.

every window

Avoid placing plants directly on top of radiators or heafing ducts.

Dust on leaves cuts down on the amount of light a plant receives. The misting used to raise humidity levels around a plant doesn't wash off much dust. A better solution is to regularly give your plants a brief shower. For large plants, tie a plastic bag around the pot, covering the soil as much as possible (so it doesn't wash away), and set the plant, pot and all, in the shower under a gentle stream of tepid water for several minutes. Small plants can be rinsed in the sink. In the summer, plants can be moved outside and sprayed with a gentle stream from the hose.

Regular showers also help with insect control by washing away insects before an infestation gets started. Most can be washed away with a gentle rub. Use a soft brush for hairy-leaved plants. If you see evidence of an infestation, wash the leaves with a weak solution of white soap (one or two tablespoons to a gallon of water) with a soft sponge.

Select your plants according to the amount of light you have available, don't neglect the basics of good culture - proper watering, humidity levels, fertilizing and soil conditions and you will be well on your way to houseplants you can enjoy for years to come.

Here are some examples of houseplants that prefer light from the:

 NORTH — Asplenium nidus (bird's nest fern), Maranta leuconeura (prayer plant), Zebrina pendula (wandering jew), and Dieffenbachia sp. (dumb cane)

 SOUTH — Pelargonium sp. (geranium), Aloe barbadensis (medicinal aloe), Crassula argentea (jade plant) and Brassaia arboricola (Hawaiian shefflera)

• EAST — Nephrolepsis exaltata (Boston fern), Oxalis (shamrock), Cissus rhombifolia (grape ivy) and Clivia minnata (kaffir lily).

 WEST — Ficus elastica (rubber plant), Monstera deliciosa (cut-leaf philodendron) and Chamaedorea elegans (parlor palm)

itchen remodeling takes a budget

The first thing to consider in remodeling a kitchen is what's wrong with it. The second is what you'd like to add, subtract or edit to make it workable and more attractive.

Few kitchens in older homes have enough storage or counter space. They're dimly lit, have inadequate ventilation and inefficient appliances. They need help!

So, sometimes, does a kitchen in a relatively new home if it doesn't suit your lifestyle. It may have been designed for a family of three, and yours is a family of six in which five of the six like to cook.

How many people will use the kitchen is an important consideration in determining its layout. You may need two sinks, to accomodate a salad chef at the second or a bartender if the kitchen is to be an entertainment center as well as a place to prepare food.

Two cooking centers, too, can be a convenience if one member of the family likes to bake and another to barbecue, or if the children clamor for snacks while you're preparing the main course for company. They can use the microwave, you the conventional or convection oven.

What used to be a simple enough matter of layout out an efficient work triangle - a triangle of not more than 22 nor less than 12 feet beween $1nk, refrigerator and range - has become complicated by the fact people are spending more time in the kitchen.

Using it more and enjoying it more requires satellite centers. A planning center, perhaps, that incorporates a computer: Where do you put it?

Take precise measurements before designing a layout based on your answers to host of questions, and scaled to your budget.

narrow bed between the house and the patio?

Impatiens, fibrous-rooted begonias, tuberous begonias and coleus are probably the most popular and widely available flowering annuals for shade. Impatiens, coleus and fibrous begonias can be purchased in flats or multi-packs and transplanted after the danger of frost is past. Tuberous begonias must be started indoors in early spring.

Impatiens forms thick mounds covered with 1 to 2 inche flowers in a wide range of bright colors. Fibrous begonias tend to spread less and bear many but smaller flowers. Some tuberous begonias produce flowers nearly a foot in diameter in brilliant shades of red, pink, coral, salmon, vellow and white. Coleus is grown for its colored and often exotically shaped foliage

Any of these would do well in a northern exposure. In an eastern exposure, where plants would get sun in the morning and shade in the afternoon, you could also plant salvia or nicotiana (flowering tobacco). Most shade-tolerant plants will do well in a site with morning sun and afternoon shade but will not thrive in a spot shaded in the morning and exposed to the hot, harsh afternoon

I'd like to plant several varieties of summer squash, but a hill of each type planted according to the directions on the seed packet would produce enough squash for a small army. Any suggestions?

Try planting three or four types of squash in each hill. Plant two seeds of each variety and thin to one plant of each. This will give you a good mixture in more manageable quantities than planting a hill of each type.

I put a complete fertilizer on my lawn last fall. Do I need to fertilize again this spring?

MSU research indicates it's better to hold off fertilizing lawns with nitrogen until late May or early June. Early fertilization promotes lush top growth at the expense of root development.

is there any advantage to buying large tomato plants for transplanting into the vegetable garden?

No. In fact, you're better off to buy smaller plants. They'll suffer much less from transplant shock and so will quickly get down to the business of establishing a strong root system to support future growth and fruit production. Large plants that have flowers and/or fruits on them at transplanting time may never develop large, healthy root systems. Their yields may be significantly lower and they are much more likely to suffer during dry weather.

hat every home buyer should know

Whether you are buying or selling your home - and it's a hot real estate market right now — property inspection is one of the wisest investments you can make, according to a local home inspection service.

"Home inspections performed by qualified specialists can take a lot of worry out of the purchase and sale of real property," says Glen R. Hadfield, president of Total Check Inc., a Southfield-based home inspection service with offices at local, regional and — coming soon — national Martin D. Goldman, owner of the firm, feels that buyers and sellers can also garner helpful maintenance and home remodeling tips from an inspection.

"We encourage the buyer to walk through with our inspector. We provide a 20-page checklist report to the buyer at the time of inspection and encourage our clients to ask the inspector questions

"It generally takes two to three hours to do an inspection. We don't do repairs or recommend contractors, but we do offer liability protection along with the service we provide, Goldman commented.

With the fast turnover of homes on the market today, inspection service provides both the buyer and seller with useful information on any problems with the house or property.

"Every house is different. There are, surprisingly, some perfect houses, but many times the buyers are amazed with the things our inspectors turn up." he explained.

"We're not there to kill the deal (the real estate sale), but let people know what needs to be done," he added.

Over 500 items are checked by Total Check and some of the main areas include the roof, both as to structural soundness and any water penetration; basement and foundation; central heat system and its components; central cooling system and its components; walls, ceilings and floors as to structural soundness; kitchens and laundry areas and built-in appliances: bathrooms; living areas; garages; windows, doors and fixtures; water heaters; water pressure; electric receptacles and fixtures: insulation ventilation; and optional inspections of

"Many people buy a house on impulse and worry about the decision later. This provides an impartial analysis from which a purchase decision can be made. Your home is probably your largest investment and should be protected," said Goldman.

If someone is just thinking about selling, Goldman suggests it might be to their advantage to have a house check done. Maintenance tips, suggestions and fact sheets on a home can point out where some dollars might have to be spent on keeping the home up. Why put a lot of money into redecorating when a very real priority might be to put in a new electrical system or heating element. We're usually surprised when our plumbing or household systems fail and an inspection can give clues to trouble spots.

Goldman notes that inspectors are former engineers, architects, general contractors, builders and persons with similar background who have learned the difference between significant problems and cosmetic flaws, have developed a sense for detecting suspicious symptoms and are sufficiently trained to communicate their findings and recommendations clearly. He recommends that anyone securing an inspection service should carefully check the credentials of the individual doing the work.

"The average house of 1,500 to 1,999 square feet costs approximately $200 to inspect through Total Check, said Goldman. "Having a home inspected protects everyone.
