2 fountains to crown site

By Diane Gale

Plush flowing water fountains illuminated with colored lights will set the tone of a proposed shopping center at Ford and Lilley roads.

Construction of Fountain Plaza is expected to begin soon.

"Hopefully we'll be able to put the shovel in the ground within the next 30 days," said Frank Essa, the sole property owner.

"And we should be open for business no later than December but hopefully it will be October or November of 1986," said Essa, a 17-year Canton resident.

The site is on the north side of Ford east of Lilley. The first building — a total 7,300 square feet — will house three units. The largest of the three units is 4,080 square feet, which "would be ideal for a cocktail lounge or restaurant," Essa said.

THE SECOND BUILDING to be constructed would house nine units with a total of 12,500 square feet. Adjacent to the land is the massive 20,000-square-foot Mans Do It site. This building, constructed in 1972, also is owned by Essa. It is the first commercial building on Ford Road in Canton, according to Essa.

He estimates more than $1 million will be spent on the development with the fountains alone costing between $8,000 and $9,000. The fountain idea was born while Essa was staying in Las Vegas. He said the flowing water and lights will be patterned after the elaborate outdoor decor of the Nevada hotels.

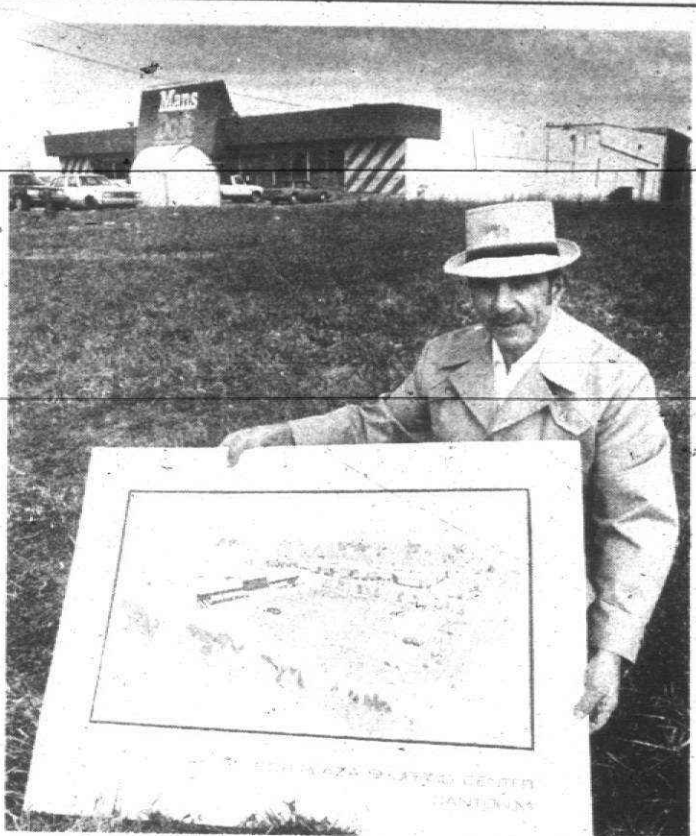

Citing restrictions set by Canton's sign ordinances, Essa opted for fountains to "attract tenants" to his development.

Automobile Club of Michigan has signed a lease to rent one of the units, Essa said.

"They are opening up smaller offices that are not so big in scale," Essa said. "This will be one of those, so people don't have to travel to the main offices."

HOWEVER, NO other lease commitments had been made by April 10.

Motel passes grade

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Budgetel Inn finally cleared a major hurdle in its long stride toward building a 110-unit, three-story motel on the southeast corner of Ford and Haggerty in Canton.

As its name indicates, the motel chain charges relatively low rates ranging from $26.95 to $33.95 a night depending on the market of the site, according to David Lucas, Budgetel Inn senior vice president and financial officer.

Budgetel April 8 was granted a financial incentive break by the Canton Township Board of Trustees. Trustees denied Budgetel the Economic Development Corporation status earlier this year.

However the board gave approval by a 5-2 vote when the company returned to the board April 8 with plans for additional landscaping and sidewalks at the site.

Trustees Bob Padgett and Steven Larson voted against and Trustees John Preniczky and Loren Bennett, Clerk Linda Chuhman, Supervisor James Poole and Treasurer Gerald Brown were in favor.

"I have not liked the project from day one because I wanted something more for that area," Larson said. "That area is one of the last real good sites for that kind of hotel and when they break ground they won't tear it down later to build a fancy Ramada Inn, Holidome or Holiday Inn."

"Budgetel is not a bad project, and if we had a Holiday Inn or Ramada Inn I would welcome them."

CONSTRUCTION OF the building is expected to begin this spring, said Dave Nicholson, Canton community and economic development director.

Frontage of the building is on the east side of Haggerty. It will extend back to the I-275 expressway right of way.

Some board members indicated a full-service major chain hotel would have been preferred. But last year when Budgetel site plans met minimum requirements the board had no choice but to approve, Larson said.

"EDC is a discretionary act," Larson said. "We told them that if they want EDC financing then give us more landscaping and other exterior amenities so that the people in Canton who don't go inside will be recognized. We provided them with a mechanism to save them hundreds of thousands of dollars and in return they gave us trees, shrubs and sidewalks."

Budgetel Inn's have been in existence for 11 years and are a subsidiary of Marcus Corp., which is involved in hotel, restaurant and theater businesses. There are 33 locations in 18 states and 15 sites are presently under construction or will break ground soon, Lucas said.

"Our bread and butter is the commercial man and family type of people," Lucas said.

Police porno case launched

Canton group takes aim at 'obscene' material

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A Canton resident who recently formed an organization to fight "accessibility and viewability" of sex-oriented magazines supports a recent police investigation of displaying pornographic material in local stores.

Phyllis Counts and Derek Gendron, 21, of Garden City established Citizens United for Decency a "few months ago."

Members of the group have since visited some 30 stores and video rental shops in Plymouth, Canton, Garden City and Westland asking for restrictions on the material.

"We anticipated that the complete removal would be a lot more difficult task, and we are trying to limit the accessibility by putting them behind the counters," Counts said. "We want them out of sight of minors by having them completely covered."

In an investigation that started last week, Canton police may decide selling magazines with nude bodies violates Canton's pornography ordinance.

Canton police purchased a Penthouse Friday from a local store and officer Robert Sidor said he plans to submit a report to Canton's lawyer, C. Gerald Hemming this week.

AFTER REVIEWING Canton's pornography ordinance Hemming said he will determine if a warrant should be issued.

"They were kept down underneath the counter, and I had to ask if they had any magazines," Sidor said.

The investigation was initiated after Canton resident Richard Tenaglia wrote a complaint to Canton police requesting warrants against 10 stores for selling Hustler, Penthouse and Playboy.

Along with the letter, Tenaglia sent a brochure from Citizens for Decency Through Law — a non-profit national group that assists in prosecutions against pornographic material.

The stores cited in the letter are Canton Party Store, Arbor Drugs, 7-11, Star Stop, Richardsons, Maria's, Grapevine, Cracker Barrel, Quik Pik and Lawson's.

Counts said she receives a wide range of reactions from store owners when she requests accessibility limitations.

"It's real interesting approaching these people on this because they get so indignant," she said. "And then a lot of stores are saying sure we'll do it, and when you walk out and come back again they're out in full view."

"I am curious what would happen if we get in a confrontation where the cops throw us out of a place of business that is doing something that is contrary to the law."

Counts said there are about 15 members of Citizens United for Decency.

Gypsies nabbed for larceny

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Two women identified by their attorney as Polish gypsies were arraigned on felony larceny charges stemming from an incident in Canton's K Mart last week.

Bozema Chal and Grazyna Kwiatek were allegedly "waddling out" of the store with pillow cases stuffed with men's and women's clothes tied to them, said Canton officer Robert Sidor.

They were arrested by a K Mart security officer about 8:20 p.m. April 9 and remained in the Canton jail until their arraignment April 11 in 35th District Court before Judge John MacDonald.

The goods in their possession were estimated at a value of $450, Sidor said.

MacDonald set a $10,000 surety or 10 percent cash bond for each woman. Bond was immediately posted for Chal, 20, by two men identified by her attorney as friends or possibly relatives.

Bond was expected for Kwiatek later Friday afternoon.

A delay from the time of the arrest and the arraignment was due to police trying to validate identities of the suspects. Two interpreters were called in to assist because the women did not speak English to the police, according to Canton officer Eddie Tanner.

THE WOMEN gave Chicago addresses, and their attorney failed to explain why they were in Canton.

"They're gypsies so they don't have any country in the world to call their own," said their attorney, Michael Mozolla, to Judge MacDonald.

Mozolla, a Hamtramck attorney, spoke to the suspects and men in Polish and jokingly referred to himself as the king of the Ukraines. He said he was hired to represent the women because he spoke Polish.

A plea of not guilty was entered for the women and a preliminary examination date is set for 10 a.m. April 21 to determine if there is enough evidence to hold a trial.

The maximum penalty for a conviction of larceny in a building is four years in prison.

County studies drain plan

By Teri Banas
staff writer

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners is expected Tuesday to take up the issue of adopting an Aug. 5 ballot proposal to abolish the office of county drain commissioner.

The proposal, drafted by chairman John Hertel and Commissioner Milton Mack of Wayne, calls for eliminating the $41,686 job almost immediately upon voter approval.

It would take effect within 10 days after election results were sanctioned by the board of canvassers.

For the past several weeks Mack, chairman of the commission's Public Service Committee, has held hearings to gather support for the proposal, particularly from fellow commissioners who have been either undecided or opposed to the change.

whose district includes Canton Township, declined to say whether he had commitments from even a simple majority of the board members — he needs eight. However, he would spend the weekend lobbying.

"It's like pushing a rock to the top of the hill and almost being to the top. You got to keep pushing," he said.

Critics, especially Democratic party leaders, criticize the proposal because it would eliminate an elective office. Precinct leaders a few weeks ago sent letters urging commissioners in their districts to oppose the measure, saying elective office holders are directly accountable to the public.

Mack said he planned to contact not only special interest groups and commissioners but Democratic party leaders and labor leaders to get their support.

But proponents say the services of a drain commissioner, responsible for cleaning and maintaining open rural drains, are directed at only a small percentage of county residents, less than one-third. Most voters are not directly affected or interested in the office. This, argues Mack, also leads to a breakdown in the checks and balances over the office.

Controversy has surrounded the present long-term officeholder, Charles Youngblood, in recent months because of very high assessment charges in two western Wayne County townships and charges over improper and illegal bidding procedures and inaudible accounts.

BESIDES the commission effort, county executive candidate Edward McNamara, Livonia's mayor, has taken up a petition drive started by

New punch card system is adopted

A punch-card voting system will replace the traditional pull-lever type in Canton Township.

Equipment including a dual-disk-drive micro-computer, card reader, printer, terminal, frame-assembly machine, crimping machine and punch mask runs $99,703. Software costs $11,500. The total cost is $111,203.

The computer and printer will be used for typing minutes of commission, board and other township meetings as well as other work in the clerk's office, said Clerk Linda Chuhman.

The system will allow the clerk's office to trim the number of election workers, Chuhman said. However, at the first election with the punch-card system next August, the same number of workers will be on hand to help explain how they work.

A punch-card voting machine will be on display at township hall to give voters an opportunity to practice on the new devices. The equipment may arrive before the end of the month.

"A major issue is the handicap aspect," Chuhman said. "The legislation pertaining to handicappers requires that a device or machine be adapted for these voters."

Canton will have 101 Shoup, or pull-lever-type voting machines "to unload," Chuhman said. The potential of selling the machines is doubtful, she added, because other communities also are trying to "get rid of" the equipment.

A trip to Africa came by accident

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

Some of the most interesting happenings of your lifetime come by accident.

At least it was pure happenstance that sent Eric and Mary Childs of Plymouth to Africa for a vacation they never will forget.

It so happened they were in the airport waiting to greet their son, who was flying in from his home in Arizona, when they met Chuck Bozzy who works with Eric Childs at Ford's and who had spent 18 years hunting and vacationing in Africa.

After listening to him, the Childs made up their minds to take the kind of trip they had heard about. So it was off to Africa with their sons and their wives.

ERIC, WHO retired from Ford's on April 1, got to enjoy the trip and help bring back a number of souvenirs to decorate a large room in their home on Ann Street.

"We arrived in Nairobi, Kenya," she said, "and I never saw such beautiful scenery. There were all kinds of mountains and the ground below was green with grass. The entire scene was much more than we expected. In fact, it was so grand we were planning another trip next year."

"We found that the natives were pleasant, much different than those you read about in the papers. We got along just swell. They treated us well, many talked to our language, and guided us around to see the animals."

"We are told it is beautiful. What a sight it is to see the scenery from the high mountains down to the coast. Fortunately, we have plenty of pictures just to keep us mindful of the most glorious trip we ever have had."

"Just imagine looking at a herd of 300 elephants. Then you get an idea of the fine sights we saw and always will remember."

In many cases the animals were friendly, provided you didn't get too close or tug at them. In many cases there were special showtimes of the animals, though we didn't see any tigers.

"One of the most interesting things we were shown was the treatment these folks gave the animals. For instance, they take blood from them and then mix it with their water. It must have had a wonderful effect."

"We saw elephants, lions and all sorts of animals that attract hunters like Jack Sells of Plymouth, who has made many trips over there."

ONE OF the choice souvenirs she has hung up in the room next to her kitchen is what the Africans call a wife beater. It is a heavy stick with a ball of heavy material wrapped like a ball and it is used as a club.

"I brought one home — just for curiosity sake."

"Of course, our stay was mostly on the coast, just about where the hump shows on the map. Next time over, we want to go into the central part of the continent just to see the animals and the scenery."

"We are told it is beautiful. What a sight it is to see the scenery from the high mountains down to the coast. Fortunately, we have plenty of pictures just to keep us mindful of the most glorious trip we ever have had."

"Just imagine looking at a herd of 300 elephants. Then you get an idea of the fine sights we saw and always will remember."

In contrast to a year ago when foreign manufacturers had the latest designs in lawn equipment, this year the American manufacturers have taken over.

The one firm (Honda) which paced the foreign models last year is the lone company adding anything new for 1986.

Meanwhile most of the American-built mowers and tillers have new models on the market — supposedly an improvement over the models of last summer.

This was evident in the display at Saxton's Garden Center in Plymouth where many makes are on display. But, just on sight, the American models seem to be the better on the market for this coming summer season.

There is only one foreign model on display which wasn't in the race a year ago — the Mitsubishi mower, made in Japan. It is the first Japanese model to be shown in this area.

Meanwhile Saxton's is pleased with the comeback of the American models. Most of them have made vast improvements, not only in work but in appearance.

In the American line the oldtimers of the last few years are the Roper, Torro, Lawn Boy, Bolen and Simplicity. Great improvements have been made.

"All of these models are able to do good work on the lawn, or with the tractor," pointed out Bill Saxton. "But Roper and Torro have a better hold on the market."

However, all eyes will be on the Japanese model. The Japanese have made a great indent in the American automobile field, and the owners of the spacious lawns are wondering now if the Japanese are out to do the same in lawn equipment.

"The American machines have stood up well in the past years," said Saxton, "but we will have to wait and see. It is a big machine and it will have to be washed closely."

"Meanwhile the big problem this year is getting folks to handle the machines on the average lawn."

"But help in many areas is difficult to get. With the new American models the work could be easier and help should not be too difficult to get."

"We are just waiting for summer to come when the lawns need work to have an attractive appearance. Maybe conditions will change but from all appearances the American models will be doing most of the work."

McCarthy arms hurl Eagles to 2-0 beginning

How about those McCarthy brothers?

Jim and Pat McCarthy are trying to do for the Plymouth Christian baseball program what they did for the school's basketball program — make it win games.

So far so good.

The Eagles are 2-0 on the young season; the McCarthy brothers pitched both victories.

Tuesday, Pat McCarthy hurled a two-hit shutout at Calvary Christian. He walked one and fanned 14 in the Eagles' 5-0 win.

Wednesday, the Eagles bettered rival Southfield Christian 6-2. Jim McCarthy allowed one hit and two unearned runs in 5½ innings. He walked three and struck out eight.

Jeff Leach got the final two outs.

The Eagles parlayed a five-run fifth inning into a victory Wednesday. Pat McCarthy knocked in one run with a sacrifice fly, Chris Kiser singled home two more and Todd Gentry capped the uprising with a two-run home run. Jim McCarthy added a double in the inning.

The Eagles are coached by Sam Gaines.

Rocks win opener

"It was a pitcher's day all the way," said Thurston coach Emil Majeski. "I liked the effort of my team, even though we lost. Salem made the defensive plays and we didn't. That's about it."

Junior Sean Worden played flawlessly at third base for Salem. He made four solid plays to help keep the Eagles off the bases. Junior first baseman Brian Dawson also handled several tough chances.

"The real question with us will be, 'Are we going to score runs?'" Gravlin said. "We graduated 13 seniors, most of whom contributed home runs, RBI and high batting averages."

Sumner led off Salem's two-run fifth with a single. Pinch-hitter Curt White slammed a double to right field sending Sumner to third. Ricky Genrich scored Sumner with a ground out and Dowd singled home White.

BRIAN TILLER'S speed stole the third Salem run in the sixth. Tiller drew a two-out walk from Thurston reliever George. He advanced to second when an attempted pickoff throw rolled away from the first baseman.

Tiller then scored from second on Robinson's infield single.

It was the season-opener for both teams.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Shane Smith got the start for Salem in place of an injured Chris Davis Wednesday and pitched three solid innings.

MEAT NUTRI-FACTS

SHOPPING FOR NUTRITION AT THE MEAT COUNTER

For most Americans the answer to "what's for dinner?" is probably a combination of what tastes best, what's priced right, and what's most nutritious. But for an increasing number of consumers—nearly one-third of the U.S. population—nutrition and health reasons are major factors in deciding what food to buy and serve to their families.

Consumers Get Meat Facts

That's why the meat industry is providing meat retailers with a nutrition information program called "Meat Nutri-Facts." While more consumers are choosing leaner cuts, many shoppers have a difficult time deciding which meat cuts actually offer the best nutrient buys. The Meat Nutri-Facts program helps supermarket shoppers select meat cuts, according to their specific nutrient needs, by providing them with a nutrient profile of red meat products in a simple, straightforward way—right at the meat case.

The voluntary Meat Nutri-Facts program is provided to meat retailers because they are the people shoppers turn to with their questions on meat. The meat retailers will be provided with all the latest nutrient composition data in an easy to understand graph format on beef, pork and lamb cuts. Then, in turn, they can pass this information along to their customers.

The new Meat Nutri-Facts program was developed jointly by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, the American Meat Institute and the Food Marketing Institute. The program is unique because it offers nutritional information that other programs don't, and it offers it on a cut-by-cut basis. Cholesterol, total fat or saturated fat, for example, are not listed on the nutritional labels of many products. But the Meat Nutri-Facts program lists them on a graph right along with other nutrients because consumers want this kind of information.

Before Meat Nutri-Facts was introduced nationwide it was tested by stores in four cities—Syracuse, Seattle, Minneapolis and Wooster, Ohio. The 90-store P & C Food Market chain in Syracuse—one of the test stores—found that consumers responded well to materials in their stores during the test period. The number one benefit shoppers identified about Meat Nutri-Facts was receiving direct information on calories. The second most important benefit cited was that it provided nutrition information; third was fat information.

Consumers Want Nutrition Information

Previous market research also found that consumers want nutrition information presented in a useful and informative form. The overwhelming choice was a graph which gives a visual picture of a meat cut's nutrient content. It gives all of the nutrient data needed to help shoppers decide, "what's for dinner?"

The nutrition information included on the graph includes total calories, total fat (with a breakdown of saturated, monounsaturated and polyunsaturated fats), cholesterol, sodium, protein, iron, zinc, thiamin, niacin and vitamin B-12. This information is based on a cooked, trimmed, three ounce serving of each meat cut. Because the type of cooking method may change the nutrient content, the charts also specify which cooking method was used. For example, the beef sirloin steak chart displays, "185 calories per 3 ounce broiled, trimmed serving."

Because calorie information is important to consumers, it is highlighted in the Meat Nutri-Facts chart, and is listed first on the graph. Shoppers may be surprised to find that 22 meat cuts contain less than 200 calories per three ounce cooked, trimmed serving.

This includes cuts like beef round steak (160 calories); beef tenderloin (183 calories); pork center loin (196 calories); boneless ham, 11% fat (151 calories); lamb sirloin roast (173 calories); and lamb blade chops (195 calories). This is convincing evidence that beef, pork and lamb are leaner.

At the Meat Counter

Meat retailers can place the Meat Nutri-Facts charts right where the shopper needs this information the most—at the meat counter. For example, when shoppers approach the meat case where the beef sirloin steaks are located, they may find a chart telling them that a three ounce serving of a broiled, trimmed beef sirloin steak has 185 calories.

Then, if they look in the fresh pork section, they may see a chart for pork center loin chops that shows how much of each nutrient is in this cut. Shoppers will notice that the bar graph for thiamin in pork center loin chops is longer than any of the other nutrients. One, three ounce serving of this pork cut meets 65 percent of the U.S. RDA requirements for thiamin, as shown in the graph.

As shoppers continue to move along the meat counter they may also find a graph placed by lamb loin chops. With several of these charts at the meat case, shoppers can compare nutrient data, and decide which meat cuts meet their needs best.

Making Informed Meat Purchases

Another advantage of the Meat Nutri-Facts program is that it allows consumers to make more informed meat purchases. If someone is on a fat-modified diet, for example, he'll be able to find the beef, pork or lamb cut that fits that diet. A person looking for something else in the way of calories or nutrients need only consult a nearby chart and select the appropriate cut.

If, for example, someone is on a 1500 calorie diet, how can they find out which red meat cuts could be included as part of their diet? A look at the Meat Nutri-Facts chart will show the calorie content of a particular meat cut, according to a particular cooking method. Cuts listed under 200 calories are good candidates for the calorie-conscious shopper.

Because of the variety of available lean cuts, individuals can make their diet work by selecting low-calorie cuts. If someone prefers lamb, they can choose a three ounce serving of a broiled, lamb blade chop for just 195 calories. However, if they crave a tender meat cut, like the tenderloin, they can select a three ounce broiled beef tenderloin steak at 183 calories or a roasted pork tenderloin at 141 calories.

Additional Materials

Retailers may also provide their customers with an assortment of consumer publications. One pamphlet explains the Meat Nutri-Facts program. A second pamphlet provides consumer tips on how to cut calories in cooking; meat storage and handling guidelines; and basic cooking instructions. Two additional consumer pamphlets contain recipes—one on beef and the other on pork. Each of the recipes has a Meat Nutri-Facts graph providing consumers with complete nutrient data on the entire recipe.

For more information on this new nutrient information program, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to Meat Nutri-Facts, Dept. TK, Meat Board, 444 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60611. Allow six to eight weeks for delivery.

Light and easy Vegetable pasta has unique twist

Making the usual a little unusual adds creative flair to meal preparation.

For example, pasta dishes are customarily combined in a tomato-based sauce, but consider a white sauce made with a lower fat cream cheese alternative.

Creamy Vegetable Pasta provides that light touch by using fresh vegetables, sauteed in a minimum of margarine, added to cooked spaghetti and tossed in a white sauce made with light pasteurized process cream cheese product.

Working cooks will enjoy Creamy Vegetable Pasta, not only for its flavor but because it can be made quickly with minimal effort. Simply adding warm loaves of crusty bread, a crisp salad and a full-bodied red wine creates a sumptuous Italian meal with a uniquely light touch.

THIS "LIGHT" aspect can be further extended to wholesome snack foods.

Carrot Bran Muffins are a delicious breakfast bread served warm from the oven or tucked away as a mid-afternoon snack.

CREAMY VEGETABLE PASTA

1/4 cup oil
1 egg, beaten
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 cup sugar
1 Tbsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup shredded carrot
1 8-oz. pkg. light pasteurized process cream cheese product
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg

Combine cereal and milk; let stand 2 minutes. Add oil and egg; mix well. Add combined dry ingredients and carrots, mixing just until moistened. Spoon into greased and floured medium-size muffin pans, filling each cup 3/4 full.

Combine process cream cheese product, sugar and egg; mixing until well blended. Drop 1 teaspoonful cream cheese mixture into each muffin cup. Bake at 375 degrees, 15 to 18 minutes or until edges begin to brown. 18 muffins.

CARROT BRAN MUFFINS

1 1/4 cups bran cereal

Turn to kiwi for flavor

Juicy kiwifruit turn ordinary dishes into the spectacular. They add a boost of brilliant green color and tangy-sweet flavor to salads, stir-frys and desserts.

For a low-calorie alternative to heavy desserts, try Kiwifruit Compote. It's a colorful combination of fruit available this time of year.

To ripen kiwifruit, leave fruit firm at room temperature several days or until it yields to gentle finger pressure. Placing fruit in a plastic bag with an apple or banana and leaving at room temperature will hasten ripening. Ripe kiwifruit should be refrigerated where it will keep for a few weeks.

KIWIFRUIT COMPOTE

2 Kiwifruit, pared and sliced
1 cup red grapes, halved and seeded if necessary
1 red apple, cubed
1 banana, peeled and sliced
2 Tbsp. orange liqueur

Cut kiwifruit slices in half. Gently toss together with remaining ingredients. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Trendy cooking simplified

A show-stopping main dish is the key to success when company's coming and dinner must be special. It need not be extravagant or tedious to prepare, but it should be impressive and as light as it is satisfying.

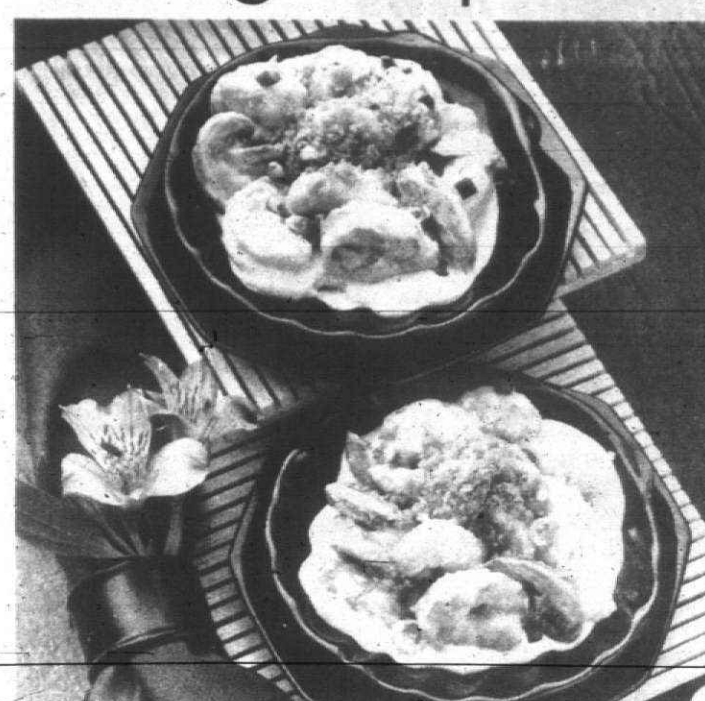

Seafood and chicken are the starting points for today's most trendy meals, and when the entree must be elegant they rise easily to the challenge. Next time the party's at your house, look to stylish interpretations of these special favorites to set the tone for gracious dining.

When time is at a premium but dinner must be magnificent, look to Shrimp a la Parisienne. To prepare, shrimp is baked in a flavorful sauce that combines mushrooms, Swiss cheese and white wine with the mild flavor and creamy texture of cream cheese.

Present it elegantly in individual shell-shaped baking dishes, your favorite ramekins or a single baking dish to enjoy rave reviews without fishing for compliments.

FOR CHICKEN lovers, boneless skinned chicken breasts, called supremes by the French, are favorite party meal mainstays. Whether you opt for economy and bone the breasts yourself or enjoy the convenience of buying them boned, you'll be pleased with the luxurious note they bring to the menu.

Serve boneless breasts as Cheese-Filled Chicken. Supremes at this spring's most splendid parties and family dinners. To create the eye-catching dish, chicken breasts are rolled around a flavorful filling that teams shredded cheddar with cream cheese. Crumb coated, lightly browned and baked on a bed of long grain and wild rice, the dish is smartly sauced with a savory mixture of cream cheese and mushrooms.

When company's coming and the entree must be elegant, nothing makes eyes light up faster than Shrimp a la Parisienne.

SHRIMP A LA PARISIENNE

Working together to fight illiteracy

By Julie Brown
staff writer

JOB APPLICATIONS, tax forms, medicine bottles, restaurant menus, newspapers and street signs are just a few of the things they have trouble with. For adults who can't read, the printed word — in all of its various forms — is a constant reminder that they're different.

"When you can read, it's hard to imagine what it's like not to be able to read," said Mary Kay Frey, adult basic education teacher for Plymouth-Canton Community Education, a service of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. "We just take it for granted."

Frey, who has a master's degree in reading from Purdue University in Indiana, is student-tutor coordinator for the Community Literacy Council. That role involves serving as the liaison between the Literacy Council and the Plymouth-Canton community.

The Literacy Council was formed last fall. Its purpose is to help non-reading adults develop reading skills.

Since the Literacy Council's formation last September, some 35 people have gone through training and are now working as tutors on a one-on-one basis.

LAST WEDNESDAY night, those who were instrumental in the formation of the Literacy Council met with community representatives at the Starkweather Center in Plymouth. Those attending watched part of a film on illiteracy, "Don't Call Me Stupid," and also reviewed figures on illiteracy problems at the local level.

According to 1980 U.S. census statistics, the Plymouth-Canton community's total population of 81,630 includes 5,296 people with eight years or less of formal education. For an additional 5,440 Plymouth-Canton residents who are 18 or older, English is a second language.

"We do have that situation in a community like Plymouth-Canton," Sharon Streen, assistant director of Plymouth-Canton Community Education, told those at Wednesday's meeting. "So the statistics are telling us we have a lot to do in a community like this."

Streen and Frey were involved in the formation of the Literacy Council last fall, along with Dodie Beckman, who teaches English as a second language to Community Education students, and Carolyn Burns, a Canton resident who has been involved in literacy efforts for a number of years.

"She's given us all kinds of help in starting the council," Streen said of Burns.

THE TUTORIAL program offers free one-on-one reading assistance for adults. Students and tutors set up their own schedules, working around job and family commitments.

So far, more than 100 women have sought the reading help offered by Frey said. Those participating range in age from their late teens on up.

"We have a lady who's 76," Frey said. "She hasn't been in school for 68 years."

The tutors come from all walks of life. Community Education's Streen said. Although some are educators, others do not have formal training in teaching.

"Many of our tutors have come from the churches," she said. "They are a really important group of support to us."

Those involved in the local effort would like to have much of the groundwork done by this fall. At that time, the ABC and PBS television networks plan to broadcast documentaries on illiteracy. The documentaries and other related programming are part of Project Literacy U.S. (PLUS), a campaign designed to help illiterate and semilliterate adults.

"I'd like the delivery system in Plymouth-Canton to be in place" by then, Streen said.

The local organization would also like to expand its efforts to help those for whom English is a second language.

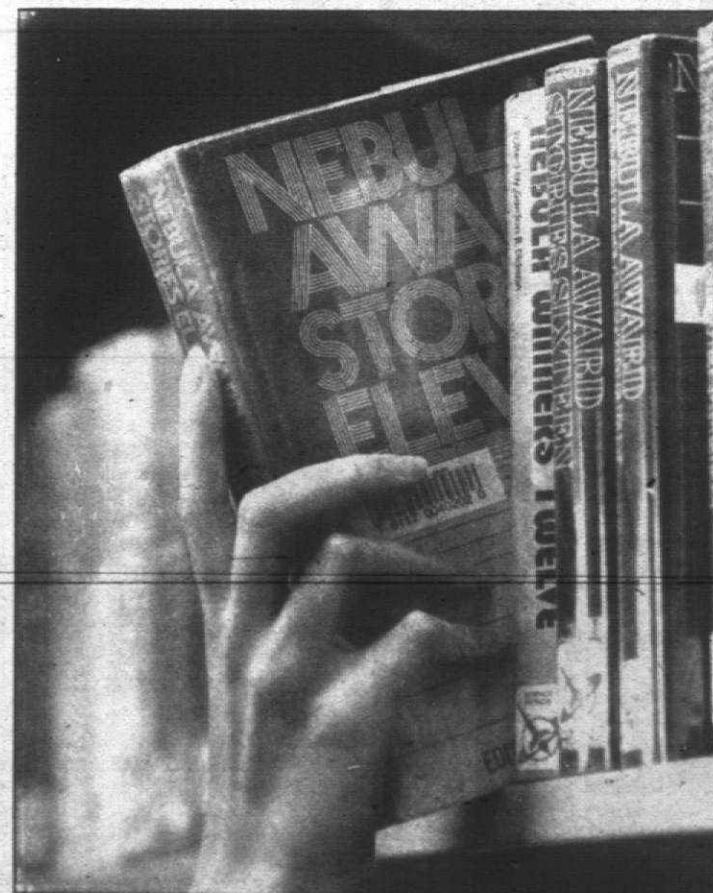

"THEY HAVE special needs," Streen said. "It's a whole series of communication skills."

The Literacy Council would like to become more of a community-based program, Streen told those at the meeting last Wednesday. Those at the meeting were asked to know more about tutoring, or who would like to learn about the help available to non-readers, should call 451-5555.

Reviewing letter sounds is a part of learning to read for Don McIntosh, who is working with Mary Greene. A number of local tutors have gone through training and are now working as volunteers, teaching area residents reading skills. Tutors and students set up their own schedules, working around job and family commitments.

The library's shelves of books are essentially off limits to adults who lack reading skills.

Giving reading a try

Don McIntosh sat down with tutor Mary Greene recently to work on the letter D. Together, the two went over words that begin with D.

The two have been working together on reading skills for approximately one month.

"I didn't have nothing to do," McIntosh said, pausing briefly from the work session at the Starkweather Center in Plymouth. He recently retired from the Ford Motor Co., where he had worked for 25 years.

"And I decided to give it a try. It's worth a try."

McIntosh is glad he decided to give reading a try.

"I'm enjoying it, yeah." He would like to be able to read the newspaper and to write songs.

A VARIETY of factors keeps some adults from learning to read, according to Frey. Some may have interrupted or ended their formal education. Some women left school when they became mothers.

"Primarily, it's leaving school," Frey said. Some adults may hold high school diplomas, but still lack adequate reading skills.

When they reach adulthood, many non-readers and poor readers go on ways to mask their lack of reading skills.

THEY MAY say they've forgotten their glasses and can't read for that reason. Some may rely on trusted co-workers to do their reading for them. In restaurants, they may order whatever their fellow diners choose.

"They're at the mercy of other people," Frey said.

Getting those non-reading adults to come in for help can be difficult. Embarrassment keeps many from seeking reading assistance.

"A lot of people will not come to a class, because they feel dumb," she said. "They often see themselves as less than everybody else."

Frey has found, however, that the adults who come in for help from Community Education and the Community Literacy Council are eager to learn.

"They're really highly motivated. They're here because they want to learn to read."
