EXTRA MILER: Joan Haertel, second/third-grade teacher at Tanger Elementary School, was honored recently by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education with its "Extra Miler award. In making the presentation, trustee Dean Swartzwelter commented that she always is willing to spend extra non-classtime helping her students and that she is known for being innovative and creative.

Swartzwelter summed up Haertel's ability in four letters -D for desire for excellence, D for dedication. D for determination. and D for dependability

CHICKEN TIME: Touted as the best chicken dinner east of the Mississippi, the Canton Chamber Chicken BBQ will be served up from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, June 22, at the Canton Country Festival behind Canton Township Hall, Proctor at Canto Center Road, Tickets sold at $2.75 per person in advance or $3 at the festival include a half-chicken, chips and beans. A carry-out operation will be conducted at Ford and Canton Center Roads.

FITNESS TRAIL: The World Trail Fitness Course officially was opened last week in Canton Township on Proctor Road directly behind the Canton Municipal Building on Canton Center Road.

In 1984 the Canton Rotary Club donated a 16-station fitness course to the parks and recreation department to be installed at the Canton Recreation Complex. The World Trail Fitness Course is a 134-mile course that winds through the 50acre park.

"The recent emphasis on the importance of physical fitness to the total well-being of everyone makes this fitness course. donated by Canton Rotary, a most valuable addition to Canton's largest community park," said Mike Gouin, parks and recreation superintendent. The project was started when Lee Halsted was president of Canton Rotary

Those opposing Coventry Commons East shopping center have won the latest round in a continuing battle to stop the development.

Residents convenced the Canton Township Board of Trustees that proper procedures weren't followed in posting signs announcing rezoning of the property on the southeast corner of Morton Taylor and Joy.

Canton's zoning ordinance requires posting at the site 20 days before public hearings. A&P, ACO and Arbor Drugs are proposed tenants at the 114,000-square-foot plaza.

In a special meeting Tuesday, June 17, the Canton Township Board of Trustees unanimously voted to refer the issue back to the planning commission.

"Procedurely it hasn't been done properly." Supervisor James Poole said

"In truth, I think the people have received more notification than in normal procedures," Poole said. But the bottom line is that the public hearing has been held before the sign was put up.

There was no attempt on anyone's part to sneak anything through without anyone knowing about it. It was just an honest dumb mistake on the part of a couple of people. We can only make sure that it is done properly and it doesn't happen again

If the zoning ordinance was ignored, Mayfair resident Joseph Michelin said a Wayne Circuit Court injunction would be filed Wednesday, June 18

LAST MARCH Mayfair Village

Homeowners Association and eight Mayfair residents agreed to withdraw a lawsuit against the developers and promised not to delay the development.

Plaza battle back to square one

Carol Levitte, a Plymouth attorney representing Michelin, is pursuing a decision from Wayne Circuit Court on whether Michelin's rights were signed away during the March agreement.

A decision also is being asked on whether a 1975 consent judgment gives Michelin a say in how the property will be developed, she said Mayfair residents say as property owners they are party to the consent judgment.

The consent judgment says the land is to be used for leisure and entertainment activities. Developers Nelson/Ross have requested the board amend the consent judgment to allow the shopping center

Michelin's case will set a pre-cedent for all Mayfair homeowners, Levitte said, and naming one person as plaintiff reduces liability.

Following previous public hearings, the planning commission recommended the board amend the consent judgment. Richard Anderson. the only planning commissioner who voted against the amendment, has since resigned.

In Tuesday's action the board committed to the following tentative agenda:

· Request the planning commission hold a public hearing July 14. Publish first public hearing notice June 23. · Post sign announcing public hearing at least 20 days before July

· Mail notices to property own-planning commission's recommendation to the board.

 Decision by board on amending consent judgment.

Nicholson said he was unsure whether the developers would delay construction plans pending the board's decision and the outcome of Michelin's case.

But there are some "things any property owner can do at anytime, Nicholson said, "like regrading the land."

Mayfair Village homeowners initiated the drive to stop development and have been joined by Plymouth Township and other Canton subdivi-

Gas line break a real turnoff

By Diane Gale staff writer

A gas line break on the southeast corner of Ford and Lilley roads Tuesday caused traffic to be diverted for more than 90 minutes. There were no injuries.

Natural gas was cut off for 515 residences and 12 commercial buildings south of Ford from about 3 p.m. when the line broke to 8 p.m. when the gas line was repaired.

Michigan Consolidated Gas-workers went door-to-door turning on meters and relighting gas appliances until 1:45 a.m. Wednesday.

"It was kind of scary in a way," said Donna Maas, a cashier at Speedway gas station at Ford and Lilley.

'We could have died," said Maas, noting the gas could have been ignited. The gasoline station was closed for about an hour. Maas said the gas odor was stronger in the station than outside the building. Dyer Trucking Inc. of Livonia, a contractor relocating a water main at the corner, cut through a threeinch plastic main with a back hoe, according to Kathleen Karas, Mich-Con spokesperson

Dyer Trucking is responsible for repair and MichCon crew costs, Karas said. The area was staked out and the contractor was told the depth of the line. Contractors are required to hand dig to determine where the gas line is, she added.

WILLIAM TAFT, Dyer estimator, disagrees. According to blueprints provided by MichCon the gas line was about eight feet down, Taft said. . In fact the line was about two feet deep, he added.

"It was not as they said," Taft said. "I don't feel we're responsible.

You're darn right we'll contest. They (MichCon) always say they aren't wrong.

Dyer was relocating a water main involved in the Ford Road widening project.

'The gas was moving pretty ckly,'' said Canton Fire Departquickly, ment Lt. Don Adams. "It was a sizable flow.

The gas line break did not pose a health threat, Adams said.

"If we thought it was dangerous we would have evacuated the area."

Traffic was diverted for about 90 minutes from Ford and Haggerty, Warren and Lilley, Cherry Hill and Lilley, and Ford and Sheldon, according to Canton Police Sgt. Laura Golles. State police assisted.

"It was an absolute monstrosity with traffic at that time of day." said Canton Police Lt. Larry Stewart.

Gas was shut off for residents south of Ford.

MichCon encourages calls to MISS DIG to determine where gas lines are placed.

"If you are going to do any kind of digging it's a good precaution to find out where the lines are." Karas said.

Officials seek full tax levy of school budget

By Emory Daniels staff writer

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education will be asked Monday to authorize levy of the current millage instead of reducing the rate by almost half a mill because of an increase in the tax base.

According to state law, governmental units must roll back millage rates when the taxbase grows unless taxpayers are informed through a "truth-in-taxation" public hearing of plans to keep the levy the same.

The Plymouth-Canton school board held that hearing Monday night because its taxbase has increased by almost $51 million or 5 percent. The district's total state equalized valuation (SEV) for 1986-87 is projected at slightly more than one billion dollars ($1,055,945,036).

Based on the rollback formula, which grew out of the Headlee Amendment to the Michigan Constitution, the district would have to lower its authorized operational tax rate from 37 mills to 36.52 mills. Instead, the board is expected to keep the levy at 37 mills rather than roll back by 0.48 mills.

This Monday the board will be asked to approve the budget for 1986-87 and authorize the tax levy of 37 mills. That budget is expected to be adjusted in February to make changes resulting from voter approval last week of the $13 million bond issue.

THE GREATEST increase in the tax base has been generated by Plymouth Township where total SEV increased by almost $33 million or 9 percent. The township's total SEV is now $394 million.

Canton Township's tax base in-percent for a total projected SEV of about $476 million.

The next largest taxing unit, the city of Plymouth, has a total tax base of $145 million, which has increased 1.5 percent or $2 million.

Canton contributes 45 percent of the local property tax revenues, Plymouth Township 37 percent, and the city of Plymouth 14 percent. The smaller units of the district are portions of Salem, Northville and Supeby 5 percent, student enrollment is expected to rise by 100 pupils (0.6 percent) to a total of 15,820. State aid, which is based on enrollment and SEV, will increase by some $17 per student or 3.4 percent.

The result will be a total increase creased by almost $15 million or 3.2 of 4.7 percent in income, which stacks up against an increase in expenditures of 7.7 percent.

> The difference will be excess expenditures in the proposed '86-87 budget of some $840,000 which will reduce the anticipated fund balance at the end of this month of $3.7 million to a projected $2.9 million by June 30, 1987.

> THE PATTERN of the ending fund balance in recent years has been: '83-84 actual, $1.95 million; '84-85 actual, $3 million; '85-86 projected, $3.7 million; and '86-87 projected $2.89 million.

State aid has been steadily increasing since '82-83 when the dis-trict almost went out-of-formula which, if the trend continued, would have resulted in the district's operating income being generated almost totally from local property taxes.

The largest decline in state aid was some $3 million in 1982-82. The next year state aid declined another $1.2 million, which saw the per-pupil amount reach an all-time low of $52. Starting in 1983-84 state aid has increased each year to this year's $471 per pupil level, which exceeds the 79-80 level of $429 per pupil. This coming year the state will invest $494 per pupil.

Once the state gives final approval to the debt retirement levy for the bond issue, the board hopes to reduce its expenditures by some $1 million. Items now in the operating budget, which can be removed and charged against the 1986 bond issue include: $400,000 capital outlay; $400,000 bus purchase; $135,000 roof for Allen Elementary; $17,850 for instructional computers; $26,000 for library reference materials; and $71,15Q. for flooring.

David McDonald has resigned from a committee studying cityhood for Canton only weeks before a final report is to be completed. McDonald, who chaired the committee, submitted a letter of resignation effective May 9 to Canton Supervisor James Poole. In the letter McDonald said he regretted resigning but gave no explanation for quitting the post.

A Canton resident, McDonald has been an Army major for more than two decades and is assigned to a re-" serve training division in Livonia as a comptroller. He could not be reached for comment.

In October 1985 Poole appointed the five-member committee to study the pros and cons of cityhood. Deciding whether Canton should Neihengen replaced Carol Bodenmiller who resigned. Bodenmiller served as Canton trustee from 1978 to 1984.

Proposals to form the committee were made in August 1985 by four Canton trustees - John Preniczky, Robert Padget, Loren Bennett and Steve Larson. At that time they also, called for a township superintendent mplementation committee.

That committee is to outline the process of hiring a superintendent to nandle the day-to-day administrative tasks and reducing the supervisor clerk and treasurer positions to part

'Veto-bait' housing bill keeps urban grants

Here's how area members of Con- three prime movers behind the Vietgress were recorded on major rollcall votes between June 5-12

HOUSE

HOUSING BILL - The House passed, 340 for and 36 against, and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 1) extending for several years about 50 was debated under short-cut rules speaking fees - of up to 40 percent major housing and urban development programs, at a first-year cost of $15.7 billion.

The bill's most dramatic provision, endorsed by the administration, would virtually halt construction of new public housing by diverting money for that purpose to the repair of existing units.

Also to President Reagan's liking, the bill sets up "enterprise zones" at 100 non-yet-named urban sites, expands a subsidy program that enables public housing tenants to buy their units, and addresses several ad-Federal Housing Administration.

Senate stonewalls JOA airing

By Tim Richard staff writer

The Michigan Senate stonewalled two efforts to question a proposed oint operating agreement (JOA) by Detroit's two daily newspapers.

"Politics. That's my guess," said Sen. Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield, in an interview after Wednesday's vote. "They don't want o do it (face the issue) before the primary (Aug. 5)," said Fessler, who opposed both resolutions. "Myself, I don't care one way or the other."

SEN. BASIL Brown, D-Highland Park, was the only lawmaker to argue on the floor against the legislature's attempts to dig further into the merger: "Are these public utilities? Do we have a right to interfere? Is it un-American for them to want to make a profit?"

"God help me for defending these eople," said Brown, whose history of drunk drivng and drug arrests has been well displayed by Detroit paers, "but they have rights, too." The senate rejected back-to-back efforts to take up: a resolution by Sen. John Kelly D-Detroit, to ask U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese to hold public hrearings on the JOA proposal. The vote was 18-18.

• a resolution by Sen. Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt, to ask the attorney general to pose a series of tough uestions in reviewing the JOA application. The vote was 19-16, one short of a majority.

AREA SENATORS voted same on both resolutions:

AN OPEN LETTER

From The General Manager of Tyner's Furniture

Why would Tyner Furniture offer a beveled plate glass door mirror for only $25 when it would cost far more to bring that same mirror back into our store?

Why would we offer a generously proportioned sofa and love seat in a tough velvet fabric and sell both pieces for only $788, when we once hoped to get more than twice that amount for the two?

Why would we take a Colonial plaid high wing back Sofa and Love Seat and sell both pieces for only $999 less than we originally priced the sofa alone?

There has to be a reason, and there is. A good one!

This is a critical time of year at Tyner's. When we change our displays to bring in the new merchandise from our Spring buying trip, almost a third of the merchandise in our store and warehouse suddenly becomes expendable.

SO FOR 20 HOURS, FROM 9:30 A.M. TO 9:00 P.M. FRIDAY, AND 9:30 A.M. TO 6:00 P.M. SATURDAY, YOU WILL FIND HUN-DREDS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF FINE FURNITURE, LAMPS AND ACCESSORIES AT SAVINGS OF 20% TO UPWARDS OF 70% OFF!

Even though prices are extraordinarily low, the merchandise in this sale is highly desirable. For example: A Simmons Early American style Hide-A-Bed® you may have seen around at $1,170 has been marked down to just $655; A Pennsylvania House solid Cherry Curio Cabinet ticketed at $2,256 will go for $1,298; A complete Burlington House Storage Bedwall with two Pier Cabinets, Lite Bridge and Headboard has been reduced almost $1,900 to sell at $866; We've reduced a 6-piece Thomasville contemporary Dining Group in light, golden Oak from $4,414 all the way down to $1,988 ... an we're discounting a genuine leather Italian Contemporary inspired Sofa from $1,499 to an unbelievable $755.

Is some cases, our buyers, bless them, bought way too much of a good thing to get an exceptionally low price. We've got Lane Action® recliners, most of which were sold at a much higher price, and they'll all go now for only $233. The same thing is true of our Rattan and Glass End Tables ticketed at $319.95 . . . our remaining quantity will sell out fast at $144.

Even though we originally priced a Selig 4-piece contemporary Sectional at $3,056, we'll put it in your living room for $1,488. We've got more Danish imported Teak Bookcases than we need. We've got four sizes - and they're all priced at savings of 32% to 38% off. What a bargain!

Famous names don't necessarily mean success for a furniture item. Our Henredon contemporary Sofa hasn't sold at $2,525, so we'll try $1,366. Our Pennsylvania House striped Tuxedo Sofa and Love Seat in blue, pink and white ticketed at $2,879 will undoubtedly do better at $1,755.

We're selling a regular $2,074 Early American pillow-arm-Sofa and Love Seat at a giveaway price of $998. A sofa and Love Seat we thought was going to be our best selling group of the year with its smart, contemporary styling and rugged fabric turned out to be less than a rousing success. Regular price $1,249 . . . our price for the week-end $788. Finally there are many other exceptional values that we must not have displayed properly. They should have been sold out by now. However, a Hammary 4-piece Bookcase Wall in a rich traditional finish priced at $1,688 is now more than 40% off. A Clayton-Marcus colonial plaid Sofa and Love Seat, originally priced at $2,124 is now a mere $988 - a pittance for such high quality. Assorted Bar Stools, originally priced from $179 to $199 are now just $88.

Of course, the items described to you here are just the "tip of the iceberg". There are many, many other values . . . at equally impressive reductions. And Tyner's offers you lots of ways to take advantage of these savings, including our own budget plans and maior charge cards! But please keep in mind that quantities are strictly limited to stock on hand, and while most items are brand new, some may be floor samples . . . so once they're gone, they're gone for good.

It all comes down to this: Tyner's must sell out thousands of dollars worth of stock . . . and we must do it in the next 20 hours. And YOU have an incredible opportunity to save on some of our most beautiful furnishings for every room in your home! But you must shop Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. or Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Be here!

Sincerely,

S. KAY

U-D plans pre-pay tuition

Parents who wish to avoid tuition ncreases and guarantee their children a four-year pre-paid college education may do so under a Universi ty of Detroit endowed tuition program.

The pre-pay plan was instituted primarily to help U-D alumni and friends finance their children's edu cations, according to Nicholas J. De-Grazia, U-D treasurer and vice president of finance.

It will result in savings of 30 per cent to 93 percent off the full tuition rate for the participants, the first o whose beneficiaries will begin their reshman year under the plan in the fall of 1987. Enrollment at U-D aver ages 6,000-plus students a year.

The U-D annoucement follows state House passage of a guaranteed tuition plan for public universities and college.

TO TAKE advantage of the current discount schedule, subscribers would have to sign up for the pro gram by Aug. 1, 1986, regardless of when the child would be enrolling in the university. Payment for the plan can either be in a lump sum for the four years or under a privately ar ranged loan program.

The university will accept up to 645 subscribers each year. The endowed tuition plan is based on the child's age at the time the tuition sum is paid and a projection of what four-year undergraduate tuition would cost by the time the child would enter college.

A child born in 1986 whose parents invest $6,412 now will guarantee their child, starting in 2004, a college education at that figure, rather than the 2004 projected figure of $91,841. "This investment virtually

Business execs are optimistic

Business executives in Michigan are optimistic about prospects for their companies in 1986, according to results of a statewide survey.

"In nearly every significant category - from sales and earnings to hiring and capital expenditures respondents' views were positive which is an important barometer for the state's economy," said Joseph Yarabek, a partner with the Michigan Practice of Touche Ross.

Nearly 1,100 of the 3,500 business executives surveyed in April and May responded to the 1986 Michigan Business Survey conducted by Touche Ross in conjunction with Crain's Detroit Business magazine. Some 80 percent were located in Detroit and the suburbs.

RESULTS COMPARED favorably with the positive results of the 1985 survey, Examples: • 79 percent expect their sales to increase in 1986. • 67 percent expect their net income to increase in 1986. • 61 percent plan to add employees in 1986, and 83 percent of those anticipating increases in the range of 1-10 percent.

• 73 percent feel the number of small business startups will increase in 1986, but 56 percent felt the number of small business failures would increase in 1986.

Some optimism may stem from positive feelings about the nation's economy, Yarabek said.

For example, 91 percent feel the inflation rate will be 5 percent or less one year from now, and 83 percent believe the prime interest rate will be 10 percent or below one year.

Rising taxes is cityhood myth

THENEVER CITYHOOD is tire county; as a city, these funds would always seems to be taxes -'higher'' taxes, that is.

Residents generally assume that their local government will levy more taxes as a city than it does as a township. And they always assume that is a bad thing. Veither assumption is automatic.

A township can operate as a city without increasing its total millage levy. And residents may be quite willing to pay higher taxes for a variety of rea-

Both assumptions need to be tested. It is hoped, in Canton Township's case, both assumptions have been thor-- oughly tested by the study committee which is now winding down its task and preparing a final recommendation to the Canton Board of Trustees.

PRESENTLY, Canton levies slightly more than 9 mills for township pur-

The township levies 9.13 mills ($9.13 per. $1,000 state equalized valuation) which includes 2 mills designated for the general fund, 4.07 mills earmarked the fire department. Not included is the 1 mill for library which is levied by the library district.

Nine mills is not an unreasonable millage rate for a city to levy. In fact it's quite reasonable to believe that Canton as a city could operate nicely on 9 mills. One reason for the assumption is that the township, does not have to increase its level of present services just because it becomes a city. Canton's ser-(with full-time police, fire and DPW) of most cities.

considered the central issue go directly to Canton to be spent within Canton's boundaries.

> THE KEY ISSUE is not whether the millage rate will go up but what will happen to Canton's entire budget.

Canton will have increased responsi bility for road construction and maintenance if it becomes a city, but it also will get added revenue in gasoline and weight tax rebates from the state to spend on local roads. And so the local unit will be able, with public input, to decide which roads will be improved without having to haggle with the county and negotiate for a share of its limited funds

This is an example of how services can be increased though cityhood without increasing local taxes. There are other instances. These are the kinds of issues the study committee has been exploring.

City charters also have tax limits which means that the levy cannot be higher than that maximum unless voters approve — which is exactly the situation Cantonites now have, the ability for police, and 3.06 earmarked mills for to vote on taxes. Given the pattern of recent incorporations, it is reasonable to assume the Canton Charter Commis sion would recommend a tax limit of 10 mills. That assumption, of course, is premature at this point.

What needs to be understood by residents is that the reason cityhood for Canton is now being considered is that the level of services and level of taxes has indeed approached the levels of cities. That historical pattern warrants a vices already have reached the level hard look at cityhood, which is being done

That's why there is no need to assume that taxes automatically will increase if ton will receive funds from the state Canton becomes a city. Too many variables are involved to reach a conclusion Some of these monies now are allocated now but certainy it's possible the levy

BUD GUEST WOULD have liked favorite haberdahser, Fred Hill, and my limey friend from Coventry, Michael Maguire, not so much for their professional accomplishments in the workplace as for a mutual, sometimes weird, sense of humor

It's too bad that Bud never shared chuckles with them, nor had a chance to talk of their necktie problem back in his "Sunny Side of the Street" days at WJR. What necktie problems?

If you have to be told that Bud (Edgar A. Guest Jr.) was one of the most popular radio hosts this area has ever known, you haven't lived here long. He was a warm, even-tempered, delightful person who did his "Sunny Side" broadcasts for about a quarter of a century before retiring in 1972 when his eyesight was almost gone. He was 73 when he died March 29.

TWO OF the most revealing paragraphs describing Bud, whom I had known since 1933, were in Bettylou Peterson's Free Press story the next ing listeners. Such earthshaking things as which direction the water swirls when it goes down the drain or why a shower curtain always billows inward were the grist of 'Sunny Side.'

But what has that to do with neckties. Well, Maguire and I were sipping in a pub one day when for no good reason we compared neck wear. It struck me as odd that my stripes descended diagonally from right to left, while on his tie - purchased back in bloody ol' England the stripes ran downward from left to right.

He flunked, however, when asked about the necktie stripes. Had Bud Juest still been alive, we would have asked Bud to pursure the question. Instead, Hill wrote to Walter H.T. Raymond, editor of the Menswear Retailers America newsletter, who replied from Washington, D.C., "You didn't quite make my day, but getting the answers took up most of the morning."

Raymond even followed this up by writing of Hill's puzzlement in the June edition of his newsletter under the eadline, "Men's Fashion Trivia."

He said in that article. "All of the large display of U.S. made diagonallystriped ties at Arthur Adler's Washington store had the stripes running down from right to left. And, all of the equally large display of diagonally-striped dmitting "I have to plan on growing (ties) in the nearby Burberry store had left to right running stripes.

'A good story,' says Bill Keys of the 104-year-old Keys & Lockwood neckwear firm in New York. 'But, the reason for the different direction of the stripes is that in this country standard practice is to cut the cloth face down. In England, they cut the cloth face up."

Now that we've settled that burning topic (maybe), consider this final touch which Bud would have liked. It reflects Hill's business philosophy. These are lines from an Edgar A. Guest Sr. poem which Fred has committed to memory:

"The reason people pass one door to patronize another store is not because a business place has better silks of gloves or lace. or better prices, but it lies in pleasant words and smiling eyes The only difference I perceive is in the treatment folks receive.

I was the subject of a story in the Observer on June 16 entitled "Morale booster." The primary focus of my work is to teach young people to value themselves and to receive support and encouragement around this issue from family, friends and schools. I realize my talks are a public forum but it undermines my ability to build these support systems if specific names of students are mentioned in print.

I believe it serves no purpose for the boy or girl, credibility of the story or the reader to know names.

I have spent my life trying to be sensitive to the needs and concerns of young people. Therefore I do not believe in the theory: "It doesn't matter what you say, just spell the name right." The privacy of these young people needs to MOST ANIMALS in southeast Michigan are nocturnal - that is active during the night. And since most of us are sleeping at this time, we have few chances to see animals that inhabit urban areas.

An opossum is one of those nocturnal animals that has been able to survive in an urban area.

While sitting down for breakfast the other day, I happened to notice an opossum waddle across the yard toward our house. His light gray coat contrasted brightly against the green grass illuminated by the diffused light caused by rain clouds overhead.

He did not look like a large individual. Some opossum may weigh 12 pounds. His long pointed snout reminded me that an opossum has the dubious distinction of having the most teeth of any Michigan mammal 50

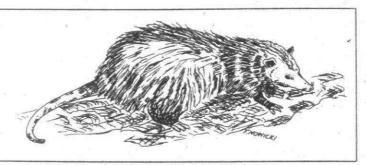

ALL THOSE TEETH are used in feeding on a diet of varied items, such as berries, nuts. small mammals, insects and, in urban areas, garbage. It is this omnivorous diet that enables an opossum to survive in a number of habitats.

Several thousand years ago, opossum diverged from populations of their now distant relatives, the kan-

In addition to a record number of teeth, opossum are also the only marsupial found in Michigan. Their young are born after only 13 days gestation.

They are no bigger than a navy bean, but they crawl three inches to the female's pouch and begin feeding. This pouch is what characterizes them as a marsupial and makes them related to the kangaroo.

The opossum can survive in an urban area - or almost any area - because it has such an omnivorous diet.

Dr. Spock: Kids need our respect

By Julie Brown staff writer

HE WORLD has changed in the 40 years since Dr. Benjamin Spock's "Baby and Child Care" was first published. Spock's "general philosophy about rearing children has, however, remained the same.

Children should be respected, according to the pediatrician and peace activist. Their intentions are generally good ones.

"They're trying very hard to grow up."

Parents are also entitled to respect from their children, according to Spock. Children should be brought up to be polite and cooperative in their dealings with others.

The pediatrician, who is 83, was in Ann Arbor Saturday, where he lectured at the Power Center for the Performing Arts at the University of Michigan. His lecture, "A Parent's Responsibilities in the Nuclear Age," was sponsored by the Coalition for Arms Control-Second District.

Earlier in the day Saturday, Spock met for lunch with children, parents and staff members from the Pound House Children's Center in Ann Arbor. A number of well-used copies of "Baby and Child Care" were given to Spock by the parents to be autographed.

SPOCK ALSO took some time to discuss his views on child-rearing. "I've been accused of being a permissivist," he said in an interview at the Pound House Children's Center.

Spock's teachings were criticized by Norman Vincent Peale in a sermon some 22 years after the publication of "Baby and Child Care." Peale said the lack of discipline and patriotism among younger people was the result of Spock's teachings.

According to Spock, Spiro Agnew, Richard Nixon's vice president, also spread the word that Spock was responsible for that lack of discipline and patriotism.

"Anyway, I can say thank God nobody can accuse me of having raised 'My own horizon has expanded to realize you can't raise children without being a part of society. People have got to be much more political, vote, lobby.'

- Dr. Benjamin Spock

Spiro Agnew," the pediatrician said with a laugh. "I'm too old." Spock's opposition to U.S. involvement in Vietnam, along with his opposition to nuclear arms proliferation, has cut into his book sales. The criticism of Spock hasn't gone unnoticed by the pediatrician and author. "It bothers me terribly."

A few years ago, a rumor began that Spock had changed his political views. The source of that rumor was a Redbook magazine press release. The release was based on a Spock article in the magazine asking why so many parents are afraid to be firm with their children.

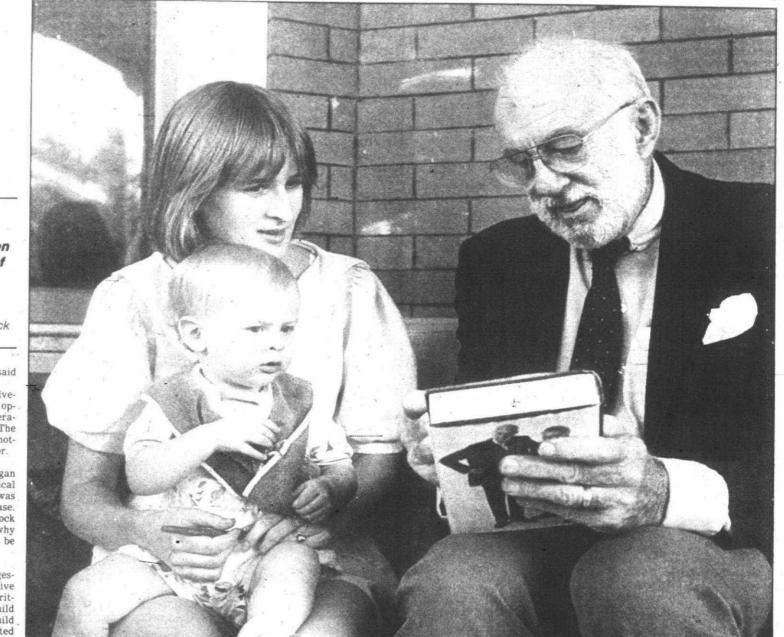

SPOCK IS offended by the suggestion that he advocates permissive child-rearing. He said that his writings — both in "Baby and Child Care" and in the other books on child care he has written or collaborated on — don't advocate permissive child-rearing.

When "Baby and Child Care" was first published in 1946, pediatric advice was extremely rigid. Parents were told that if babies were not fed right on schedule, a permanent ruining of character would develop, along with indigestion.

By the time of the first revision in 1957, there had been a radical swing toward favoring a "self-demand" feeding schedule.

By the late 1960s, when the book was again revised, Spock introduced what he called a "world view." "It's easy to bring up children if you know what you're in the world

Among those at the Pound House Children's Center meeting with Dr. Benjamin Spock were Julie Schwandt and son Nathan, 11/2. Spock, author of "Baby and Child Care" and other books for," the pediatrician said. Ideas about that vary from culture to culture, but they generally provide a helpful framework for parents. "This gives a framework, a frame of reference that makes it much easier for parents." In the mid-1970s edition, Spock made further changes.

"The 1976 edition, I tried to get rid of the sexism. Every pronoun in the book had to be changed."

LEADERS OF the women's movement had criticized Spock's teachings in the early 1970s. In "Baby and Child Care," he had written that fathers should compliment their daughters — using as examples such things as cookies the daughters had bakad or their pretty desease.

baked or their pretty dresses.

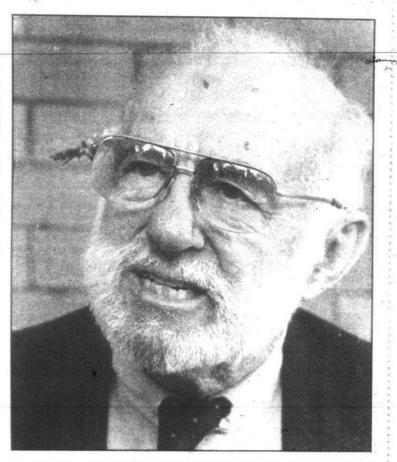

Staff photos by Bill Bresler

"It's because our priorities are all upside down. If you deprive children of emotional security, emotional warmth and emotional stimulation, they're going to be somewhat deprived for life."

THE MOST recent edition of Spock's book also discusses the problems of stepfamilies.

Spock gained first-hand knowledge of that; he remarried, following the end of his first marriage in divorce, and found himself the stepfather to a daughter. He and his first wife had reared two sons, but Spock on child-raising, was in Ann Arbor Saturday where he lectured at the Power Center for the Performing Arts.

(P.C)18

A flower was given to the guest of honor by one of the children.

"They wanted to tear me apart, limb from limb," Spock said of those leaders of the women's movement.

That opposition to his teachings, however, had a silver lining, Spock said. A few years ago, when Ms. magazine celebrated its 10th anniversary, he made the magazine's list of male heroes of the women's movement.

Spock's more recent writings on child-rearing have also taken into consideration the rising divorce rate and the prevalence of the two-earner household.

Women have as much right to careers as men do, the pediatrician said. The question of how to care for children, however, hasn't been resolved in the United States.

Good, inexpensive day care is much more difficult to find in this country than it is in European countries, he said. wife had reared two sons, but Spock found step-parenting to be a new challenge.

"Instead of realizing what I was up against, I kept trying to make her behave in certain ways."

The 1985 edition of the book also includes a mention of the threat of nuclear warfare. It was put into the preface, Spock said, "so it would be harder for people to ignore."

"My own horizon has expanded to realize you can't raise children without being a part of a society," he said. "People have got to be much more political, vote, lobby."

Parents are surrounded by a number of books offering child-rearing advice. Many of those books, however, are either full of warnings or condescending in tone, according to Spock.

Precautions help reduce threat of heatstroke

By Julie Brown staff writer

H EATSTROKE REQUIRES prompt medical attention. The condition can result in heart attack, stroke, bleeding disorders, liver or kidney failure, abnormalities in body salt and potassium levels, seizures — and even death.

"All these things can happen while they're treating you for heatstroke," said Dr. Gail Dawson, medical director of McAuley Urgent Care at the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth. "It's a true medical emergency. It kills people."

An estimated 4,000 people die in the U.S. each year as a result of heatstroke, she said. It's the second most common killer among athletes, following head and neck injuries.

Certain preventive measures, however, can reduce the likelihood of heatstroke developing, Dawson said during a Monday afternoon program at the Arbor Health Building. The program, offered by the Catherine McAuley Health Center, covered prevention and treatment of heatstroke and other heat illnesses. Acclimatizing or getting used to the weather in hot, humid climates is important, Dawson told those at the program.

ALTHOUGH MICHIGAN doesn't have as much hot, humid weather as some other states do, just one 90 degree day can cause problems for Michiganders.

"You're not acclimated, you're not used to that," Dawson said. "You need to give your body time" to adapt to the weather.

It's important to limit exercise in hot, humid weather, she said, and to rest frequently. Light, loose clothing is the best during the summer months.

Plenty of fluids should be consumed. It's important, however, to avoid alcohol consumption in hot, humid weather.

Several signs indicate that an individual may have heatstroke. A high fever, near 105 degrees, develops. The skin will be hot and dry, with an absence of sweating or reduced sweating.

Other signs of heatstroke include weakness, confusion, vomiting and difficulty in speaking.

The following steps should be taken if an individual appears to have heatstroke:

• Try to arouse the individual. Feel the skin. • Call for emergency medical help.

If the individual can move, get him or her into a cool environment.
Cool the skin with cold, wet sheets and an ice water sponge bath.
Massage the arms and legs frequently to improve circulation.

CERTAIN PEOPLE are more likely to develop heatstroke, Dawson told those at the Arbor Health Building program. The elderly and the young are more likely to become victims.

Exercise and other exertion, particularly in hot, humid weather, also make heatstrcke more likely. Alcohol, infection, agitation, obesity and heavy clothing increase the likelihood of heatstroke developing. Certain medications, such as di-

Certain medications, such as diuretics, also increase the likelihood of heatstroke developing. Stroke victims and those suffering from cardiac disease are at a greater risk.

Children may develop heatstroke if they're out in the hot weather for too long, Dawson told those at the Monday program. Children should not be left in cars while their parents run errands.

"You've got to be real careful to give them shade and adequate ventilation."

Several other less serious heat illnesses were also covered during the Monday program at the Arbor Health Building.

Heat cramps — painful contractions of muscles — can develop if an individual loses salt as a result of exercising strenuously in hot weather.

"That's a very common benign disorder," Dawson said. The treatment for heat cramps includes rest in a cool environment and replacement of lost salt, generally from a cool juice drink.

HEAT SYNCOPE, or fainting, can also appear in an individual who is not used to the hot, humid environment. Once again, the treatment is rest in a cool environment.

Heat exhaustion can also develop as a result of water and salt depletion; it is often seen in older people who are on diuretics.

Its symptoms include weakness, dizziness, headache, vomiting and anxiety. The skin will be pale and clammy.

HE AMERICAN family has a tough time of it these days, according to Dr. Benjamin Spock. The gradual disappearance of the extended family in the United States has led to a loss of a sense of community. The emphasis on "getting ahead" has led to a belief that a job or career should be the first priority. Lack of adequate day care during a time when most parents are working outside of the home contributes to stress. Divorce is also on the rise, with those who do divorce likely to remarry and to become stepparents as Spock himself did. "I think it's (the rising divorce rate) partly the tensions in our socifivist said Saturday evening during a lecture at the University of Michigan. Scouts plan adventures

Six Girl Scouts from the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council have been selected for the Wider Opportunities program.

Wider Opportunities offers special travel and participation activities for Girl Scouts ages 13 to 17. Girls explore careers related to comput ers, horses, the arts, working with the disabled and other areas.

Participants can learn about archaeology, ecology, auto racing, photography or the performing arts. Sailing, canoeing, backpacking and travel are also included among the Wider Opportunities activities.

The activities the local Scouts will participate in are varied. Carol Jasmer, a Senior Girl Scout from Troop 501 in Plymouth, will attend "Studio '86" in Evansville, Ind. Performers and artists from the Institute for the Fine and Performing Arts will help her develop her skills drama, dance, music, crafts, ainting and drawing.

Trio learns rigors of missionary work

staff writer

HREE MISSIONARIES for the Church of Christ are home on extended visits with families in Redford Township and Northville after years away in Africa and Europe.

Former Livonia resident David Bush, his wife, Mary Helen Bush, and their three children, Joshua, 11, Michelle, 8, and Adam, 6, are spending six months with David's mother, Mary Jean Bush, of Northville. They returned in January after five years n Kisumu, Kenya.

Carolyn "Kelly" Fletcher is home for a year with her mother. Louise Persons of Redford Township, after two years in Switzerland and six years in Nantes, France.

The visits are sabbaticals, temporary periods away from what all three describe as "lifelong commitments" to missionary work. When the designated periods are over, the Bushes will return to Nairobi, Kenya and Fletcher will return to Nantes. There Fletcher will continue the work she started, known in missionary vernacular as "planting." Fletcher will continue teaching Bible study classes, attempting to bring working Christianity into the lives of people otherwise not practicing their relignew project inspired by Mary Helen's interest in the deaf. They will teach manual communication or sign language to Kenya's deaf, using unique Kenyan hand signs Mary Helen painstakingly compiled from three years observation of the deaf. Until now, the deaf were required to use only lip reading in the 28 different schools for the deaf in Kenya. Signing was forbidden, a fact that disturbed Mary Helen.

She and David submitted a proposal to the Kenyan government, requesting permission to teach signing in the schools. The request was finally granted, providing permission was obtained from individual headmasters

TO PREPARE for their work, the Bushes and Fletcher learned the languages of their host countries. Fletcher speaks French and the Bushes speak Swahili, languages each used extensively.

"At first (returning to the United States). I had difficulty remembering to think in English," David Bush said. Bush always spoke Swahili when visiting in the homes of tribal members, where he established worship centers or congregations.

The Church of Christ missionary program is a loose-knit organization without benefit of a central clearinghouse. All information, such as areas of need in the world for missionaries, is passed along by word of mouth. Financing is totally dependent upon pledges from individuals or congregations.

When a member expresses interest in the work, it is left to him or her to identify where there is a need as well as an opening, and to obtain personal financing for the work.

Fletcher said 75 percent of the $14,000 it costs each year for her to work in France comes from the Church of Christ, Livonia. The remaining costs are paid by pledges from individuals Fletcher solicits herself. In the event an individual pledge is not paid, members of the Livonia church assume the unpaid

The Bushes are supported by Northside Church of Christ in Oklahoma and many other individuals. They estimate it cost $60,000 to establish the family their first year in Kenya.

Because of the expense, they have returned to the United States only once before. During that trip Mary Helen said the family drove 11,000 miles to visit with pledgers who support their African work.

Keeping heads cool

Architect adapts space device to build race drivers' helmets

By Tom Henderson staff writer

If Sunday is a hot, sweltering day in downtown Detroit, many of the Grand Prix drivers will thank a local architect for the funny little cap that keeps them cool.

Dennis Carlson is the architect. The little cap with the tubes running out the back has become a full-time business that grossed $230,000 in its first fiscal year, which ended May 30. He runs the business, Carlson Technology, out of a small office in the McLaren Engines building on Eight Mile in Livonia.

Autos used to be Carlson's hobby. For a living, the Farmington Hills resident was an architect for Harley, Ellington, Pierce, Yee and Associates of Southfield.

Carlson designed the pediatrics department at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, the chemistry lab addition at the University of Michigan and the Dalton Center at Western Michigan; he was heavily involved in the Volkswagen of America headquarters on Big Beaver in Troy, the Wharton Center for the Performing Arts at Michigan State and the Energy Control Center for Consumers Power in Jackson; he was in charge of site selection for the Oakland Technology Park in Auburn Heights, which will be the location for the new Chrysler and EDS headquarters.

WHILE YOU can take the man out of the car, you can't always take the car out of the man. As a sophomore at Livonia Bentley in 1962, Carlson won a national contest for model-car designing and building; cars have been a passion for him since.

But it wasn't until 1977 that Carlson began easing into the business of auto racing.

"I was listening to J.P. McCarthy after (Bruce) McLaren had won the Indianapolis 500 in 1976, and he said McLaren operated out Livonia," said Carlson. "I thought, 'Jeez, wouldn't that be fun to be part of an Indy team?' I drove up and down Eight Mile, but in those days there wasn't a sign on the building. So I went to a phone booth and looked up the phone number and address. I kept driving by saying, 'No, there'd never be any need for someone like me.' It took me until 1977 to get up enough nerve to stop by even."

It turned out there was at first a litle need for someone like Carlson, and then a big need. He began hanging out doing odd jobs just to be part of a racing team. In 1978, one of McLaren's drivers, Patrick Tambay, passed out from heat during the Brazilian Grand Prix, and McLaren asked Carlson if he could design a cooling system for the drivers to wear.

Carlson had worked with NASA on solar heating projects in the mid-70s and asked NASA for advice on how they kept astronauts cool in space. NASA used a glycol solution running through tubes into a cap fitted over the astronauts' heads.

What was good enough for NASA was good enough for Carlson, who designed a system involving tiny pumps, tubes and a tight-fitting cap for Grand Prix and Indy drivers and incorporating a vest for drivers of the much-larger stock cars.

THE RESULTS ARE, as they say, history. As word of mouth spread among the drivers, so did demands for more systems. Up to 10 of the 24 Grand Prix drivers in Sunday's race will use his $2,500 systems if the weather is hot. He has sold up to 200 of them over the years to all types of racers, including 74 in his first year of full-time labor, and expects to sell 100 this year.

Among Grand Prix teams that have bought his systems are McLaren, Lotus, Tyrrell, Renault and Williams. Indy drivers using it are Bobby Rahal (who wasn't wearing it when he won this year's Indy), Al Unser Jr. and Geoff Brabham. Stock-car drivers include Geoff Bodine, Dale Earnhardt, Cale Yarbrough, Bill Elliott, A.J. Foyt and Richard Petty, who recently won his 1,000th race in one.

The most telling example of Carlson's success was perhaps in the Dallas Grand Prix in 1984. Keke Rossberg drove to victory on a day when it was 142 degrees on the track and 115 in the pits and credited the system for staying cool.

Ironically, one of the drivers who didn't use it — "we can't afford the 8 pounds," said his crew chief, whom Carlson tactfully refuses to name collapsed from the heat; a photo of him sprawled unconscious on the ground next to his car adorns a wall in Carlson's office.

Said Bodine after winning the Budweiser 500 in 90-degree weather in Delaware in May: "I might not be not be here if I hadn't had it . . . the suit had me fresh at the end when we had a sprint situation."

ALL OF WHICH has Carlson looking ahead and not back. Though he walked away from a wellpaying job and 15 years of seniority when a sixmonth leave of absence expired last year, he has no regrets.

"When Rossberg won the Dallas Grand Prix and I picked up a New York Times and Dallas Herald and they had segments saying Rossberg was wearing one of my cooling systems, that gives me more satisfaction (than architecture)... Things haven't slowed down for me to regret it or even think about it," said Carlson, 40.

He admits to 80-hour work weeks, which include building units at McLaren at night when the engine builders go home and traveling the world ministering to the needs of his clients.

(He employs two part-timers and one full-time employee, Barry Reynolds of Redford.)

"The only regret I would have had is if I had decided to remain an architect and never found out what I could do with this," he said.

Detroit chamber taps suburbanites

Area residents are among those named directors of the Detroit Chamber of Commerce at the organization's annual meeting Tuesday. Serving their first three-year terms are William L. Aiken, president and chief executive officer of ACO Inc., Robert B. Carlson, president and chief executive officer of Crowley Milner Co., and A. Robert Stevenson, vice president of government and public relations of K mart Corp., all of Birmingham; Richard M. Gabrys, partner in charge, Deloitte, Haskins & Sells, of Bloomfield Hills; and George H. Hill, president of Diversified Chemical Technologies of Farmington Hills.

Confirmed for second three-year terms were Richard H. Bierly, senior vice president of human resources management services for Burroughs Corp. of West Bloomfield; and William F. Pickard, owner/operator of McDonald's restaurants and president of Regal Plastics of Bloomfield Hills.

State venture funds go to AA, suburban firms

High technology companies in the suburbs and Ann Arbor are the biggest receivers of state venture capital investments, according to the Michigan Department of Treasury.

Treasurer Robert A. Bowman said the state retirement system has invested $48 million in the past three years in 23 companies. About onethird went into Oakland County suburbs, and another one-third went into SUBURBAN FIRMS receiving $15.3 million in state invesments are:

• Perceptron Inc., Farmington Hills, maker of machine vision systems - $6.2 million in December of 1982. It was the largest single investment in the state.

• ALC Communications, Birmingham, telecommunications, $3.4 million in July of 1983.

Bowman called that area the "Silicon Valley of the Midwest."

They are Synthetic Vision Systems Inc., $5.4 million; Condor Computer Corp., $1.2 million; Irwin Magnetic Systems, $1.9 million; Applied Intelligent Systems, $2.6 million; PC Technologies, $1.3 million; Attache Software, $2 million; and ST Systems, $300.000.

Cover of current women's directory.

Women's directory readied

Preparations for the 1986-87 "Tri-County Women's Yellow Pages" are under way.

The directory will contain listings from women in Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties. Publication is set for the fall. New material should be submitted by July 1.

Some 40,000 copies of the directory are distributed free to women's organizations, women's centers and bookstores.

Last year's "Women's Yellow Pages" listed 280 women in 95 occupational categories, including private detectives and veterinarians. The largest groups were attorneys, counselors and certified public accountants. Best represented areas were Birmingham, downtown Detroit, Southfield, Livonia and Farmington.

Copies of last year's "Yellow Pages" are available free by calling publishers Maggle Hostetler and Lorri Sipes in Ann Arbor at 662-2957. Both work at other jobs — Hostetler as a freelance writer and Sipes as an architect.

The tri-county publication is an outgrowth of their four-year-old Ann Arbor directory. Across the nation, 50 such directories are published, they said, and the publishers have organized a national association.

Top honor for Flower

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Things were looking mighty grim for Andy Flower last week

He had smashed his father's car, and his hand, coming home from the prom (not his fault). He had shown up late for work (his fault). And his incensed mother wasn't speaking to him

Then his high school swim coach called.

"Andy, what's going on with you," said Hooker Wellman. And Flower thought, here we go again. "You smash up the car, you're late for work, you're an All-American, your mother

"What was that, what was that," Flower exclaimed "The third thing, the third thing!"

Wellman wasn't kidding. Plymouth Canton all-stater Andy Flower is indeed an All-American diver. What's more, he was graded by the National Interscholastic Swim Coaches Association (NISCA) as one of the five best divers in the country.

"At first I thought, well maybe he would make it as one of the 30," Wellman said. "Then I called Ernie Cajet, who handles the diving for NISCA. He said that Andy did-a great job and was among the top five. He said Andy had better form than any of the other All-Americans selected. The only thing that beat him was the degree of difficulty of the top diver.

NISCA SELECTED its 30 All-American divers from 90 entries.

Flower, only the second person from Canton to win All-American honors (Paul Peterson was the other), accepted the honor much like a laborer accepts a paycheck at the end of the week

"You know. I think I deserved it." he said. "I don't want to sound conceited about it, but it's something I've strived for. It's something I worked really hard for.

Flower, unlike the laborer with his paycheck, is willing to share his honwith many people.

Wellman, of course, gets a large share of credit. He provided Flower with the fundamental training in the early years and nurtured his growth through high school.

Mike Lyden, the diving coach at Eastern Michigan University, provided Flower with the high-tech training he needed to become a state champion. Flower dived every summer at Lyden's camp.

And, surprisingly, Plymouth Sa-lem swim-coach Chuck Olson and Salem diving coach Jim Schinn also played a big part in Flower's suc-Cess

Although Flower likes to share the credit. Wellman sets the record straight: "Andy deserves 99 percent of the credit and the rest get 1 percent. Andy did all the work, he put in all the time, he was the one jumping off the board.

AND WHAT did all the work get him besides the medals, trophies and recognition? How about a near fullride scholarship to dive for the University of Kansas'

Actually, Flower had his pick of schools. Pennsylvania and Eastern Michigan wanted him badly, Wyoming and Yale also beat the bushes for his service. It eame down to Kansas and Penn

"It was not any one particular thing," Flower said of his decision. "I made a list of things that I liked and disliked about the schools, and I ranked them. I was looking for how, comfortable I was with the school and the people, how they were in my program of study (computer science) and the diving program."

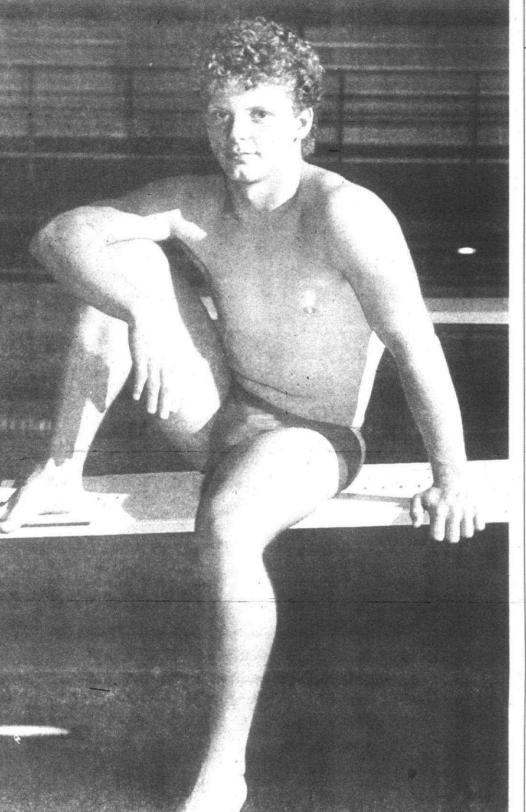

One of the inducing factors for Kansas was diving coach Barry Susterka. He is a native of Belleville and dived against Hooker Wellman in their prep days. He has been following Flower for three years.

FLOWER SEEMS eager to tackle the next batch of challenges. He must adjust to a new environment and to new and tougher competition.

'As far as moving away, I think I'll be all right. The people there are so nice: The team really becomes your family. I'll be able to adjust. I'll probably get homesick in about three months, then come home for Christmas," Flower said.

The final target: an NCAA diving championship.

"He can do it," says Wellman, who said something similar four years ago when asked if Flower could make all-state

Andy Flower's diving prowess for Plymouth honors. He is only the second swimmer from Canton last season earned him All-American Canton to achieve that distinction.

soccer United, Cougars win kick crowns

(P.C)1D

A pair of local youth soccer teams brought home Michigan Cup titles June 7

The WSSL United, a 1972 girls team sponsored by the Northville Soccer Club with players from Northville, Plymouth, Canton and Farmington Hills, won the Michi-gan State Cup championship in Sterling Heights, beating Troy 2-

Marcie Dart, on an assist from Sara Hayes, and Amy Trunk scored for United.

The team advances to the Midwest Regional Tournament in Carmel, Indiana July 19-20.

Earlier this year, United won the prestigious Buckeye Invitational in Ohio, considered the largest youth tournament in the Midwest.

The team plays in the Bonanza Premier Soccer League and is coached by Bob Dart of Northville and George Martin of Farmington Hills.

The players are: Margaret Martin, Anne Scullen and Amy Trunk from Farmington Hills; Sara Hayes, Renee Lanzon and Jennifer Marshall of Canton; Jennifer Degenhardt, Debbie Pondant and Jennifer Russell from Plymouth: Andrea Barber, Nevsa Colizzi, Marcie Dart, Liz DeMattia, Jennifer Howland, Dana Lehmkuhl and Kristy Turner from Northville

THE CANTON COUGARS, a boys under 12 team, also brought home a Michigan Cup title from Sterling Heights.

The Cougars beat the Livonia Strikers 1-0 to clinch the title. Earlier this season, the team won the Boys Premier Division title in Bonanza play.

The Cougars will also be on hand at the Midwest Regional.

The Michigan Cup trophy is on display at the Trading Post Sporting Goods Store and will later be stored at Canton Township Hall.

The year of the Pats

DID YOUR AIR CONDITIONER

Tracy and Ron Lectka share a happy hug after Tracy's no-hitter earned Livonia Franklin

the state Class A softball championship Saturday.

Lectka and two Salem players are among the All-Area

honorees on Page 4D.

Noies from the title chase

T'S FUNNY what goes through your mind at times: While Livonia Franklin was determinedly marching toward its first state softball championship last Saturday, I couldn't shake the image of a photograph we ran last year after the Pats fell short in the state championship.

Remember? The one of a crying Franklin pitcher Tracy Lectka wrapped in her father's arms. The photograph captured the hurt and frustration felt by all close to the Franklin team.

I witnessed the same scene Saturday, only the emotions, equally intense, were of a different origin.

While the Patriot players waited to accept their championship medals, Ron Lectka stood in the background watching, fighting desperately, unsuccessfully, against the tears of pride welling up in his eyes.

Finally he gave up the fight and called out to his talented and gritty daughter. Again a tear-stained Tracy lost herself in her father's arms.

The caption read: "Same Place Next Year, How Sweet It Is."

I SEEM TO notice subtle moments like that more so than the nuts and bolts goings-on at such activities.

Like when Maria Vasseliou swatted her triple in the top of the 20th inning against South Lyon, breaking up the 0-0 madness - I didn't pay much attention to Vasseliou or the two runners preceding her. My attention was glued to South Lyon's centerfielder. The poor girl could not escape her grief and I felt sick for - I would have offered to help her dig the hole she was dying to crawl into if I could.

She reminded me of Curt Flood in the 1968 World Series. Flood misplayed Jim Northrup's fly ball into a Chris McCosky triple, which ultimately decided game seven.

I secretly felt sorry for Curt Flood, too.

I NOTICED Carolyn Smith a lot Saturday. I spent a lot of time watching her reactions to things. Smitty was (is) one of the best athletes to come out of Franklin.

When she was a junior, she helped Franklin stun favored Livonia Stevenson in the district semifinals. The Pats were then blasted by Bishop Borgess in the finals.

In her senior year, Smitty came within one game of winning the state title.

Last Saturday she watched her Patriots win it without her. It was both a happy and sad day for Carolvn Smith

LEE CAGLE is a good man. I don't care what anyone says. You know him as the successful volleyball and softball coach at Stevenson. know him as someone who gets a big kick out of helping young people succeed in athletic competition.

He played the role of batting practice pitcher for Franklin this weekend. He threw BP and offered helpful advice to the Patriots from the regional tournament through the final out Saturday.

Cherie Mascarello had made eight straight outs before coming to bat in the 20th inning Saturday morning. Cagle, sitting behind the backstop. yelled out to her: "Watch her (the pitcher's) hips and get the bat out in front." Mascarello nodded to Cagle and rapped the next pitch into left field for a hit. She quietly thanked Cagle afterwards, as did Franklin coach Joe Epstein. Franklin, by the way, is the team that eliminated Cagle's Spartans from the state tourney.

UNSUNG HEROES: Kim Godfrey, the sophomore catcher who played JV ball until the state tournament, then played near perfect ball for six games. She had only one passed ball in 27 innings Friday-Saturday.

Shelly Lankford, who opted to skip her ACT tests to play left field for the Pats on Saturday.

Maria Vasseliou and Kris Roman, two steady players who solidified Franklin both in the field and at the plate

Gayle Cheadle, who always seems to have a smile on her face and who stepped into the third base role without flinching after Patty Wixson was injured.

And last. Joe Epstein. The man probably doesn't have all the answers when it comes to the Xs and Os of the game, although he has most of them. More importantly, Epstein built a sense of trust and confidence between himself and his players. He kept his team together despite an early slump, and in the end he had his players convinced they could not get beat at the wire this year.

A FITTING CONCLUSION: As the raindrops fell upon Ranney Field, as players, parents and fans hugged, high-fived and prepared to high-tail it home, two veteran Franklin coaches shook hands at home plate. Armand Vigna, the football coach who won Franklin's only other state crown, slapped skin with Epstein.

"Congratulations, coach, great job," said Vigna.

'You know the feeling, Armand,' Epstein said. "You know the feeling.

Fighters chase dream at Young Center

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Noon, June 11. Vince Hopper was the first boxer to arrive at the small, surprisingly bright gym with the glass brick ceiling at the Coleman Young Center in downtown Detroit.

The young light-heavyweight from Westland was wrapping up preparations for his fight Tuesday night at the Premier Center in Sterling Heights. The fight was an eight-roun der, his last before moving up to 10rounders and better iighters.

To help get him ready, he will spar this day with a man who once fought for the light-heavyweight world champions

Jim MacDonald may have lost to Michael Spinks - he suffered a broken nose in the eighth round but wasn't knocked down or out - but he had previously knocked cold the world's No. 1-ranked light-heavyweight and is a big man at the Coleman Young Center. Big biceps, big right hand, big reputation.

Hopper? Going into Tuesday's fight, he was 9-0 as a pro but still wet behind the ears; as boxers go, he's a pup.

"I used to fight on the streets," said the 24-year-old as he taped his hands in the silence of the empty gym, "I heard there was a boxing ness finishes taping his hands. Mac club in Livonia. That brought in the National Geo graphic Society and Earthwatch (Educational Expeditions International).

Earthwatch offers serious amateurs the opportunity to participate in hard-working but adventurous expeditions worldwide, and serious paleontology students were soon digging, brushing and scraping at what came to be known as the Mammoth Graveyard.

When the new building opened last fall, Jim Jensen, a former Graveyard digger from Englewood, Colo., stood in front of a huge skull with 10-foot tusks and said: "I found that fellow in 1976 and named him Gunther. It seemed like a good name for a mammoth.

JENSEN WAS also there in 1983 when the team found a rare shortfaced bear, considered one of the highlights of the dig.

These people all understand this drama, 26,000 years in the making, but a greenhorn like myself could be forgiven for asking how a nice short-haired bear like that got into a place like this, along with enough mammals to keep the scientists exicted for another 50 years.

Repeat the scene a few hundred times, interspersed with sandstone deposits, and you end up with a sinkhole full of mammoth bones, most of them scattered around, a few in skeleton form.

ALLOW TIME for the softer ground to wash away, leaving only a core of bone-cluttered earth, and you get a hill just outside the town of Hot Springs, S.D., sitting in the sun waiting for Phil Anderson to build a housing development.

By the way, everybody in South Hot Springs. Dakota gives Phil Anderson credit for being more interested in preserving the site than he was in making real estate money.

tally funny humor about the deadend love parents feel for a hopelessly handicapped child.

This challenging, innovative play won two Tony Awards in 1985.

"Joe Egg" is the spastic daughter of Bri and Sheila, and the play never evades the anguish of what it's like for them to care for a child who is a "vegetable." The author, Peter Nichols, deliberately chooses to bring Joe on stage to insure that members of the audience confront their own gut reactions to this subhuman person.

Leyla Franklin, who believably plays Joe, is often on stage moaning and twitching in her wheelchair. Only once does she escape the sentence of her disease in a poignant scene showing "how it might have been if she'd been normal."

Humor eases the emotional pain as Bri and Sheila role-play and do impersonations in comic routines they've developed to explain to others how Joe happened and how they live with her. They ask the inevitable, "Why did it happen?" The author offers no clear-cut answers because there usually aren't any. Still, guilt compounds Bri and Sheila's pain.

Striving for realism.

Soaring imagery 'Birdman's' flights captured on porcelain

By Arlene Funke special writer

ILL THOMPSON'S admirers call him the "birdman."

Thompson, editor of a Livonia-based magazine for hobbyists, paints bright, lifelike birds on porcelain tile. He also writes books, gives demonstrations and teaches people his love for paint-

"ANYTHING I DO, it's wholehearted," Thompson said.

He began researching birds, gaining knowledge about their habits. He would first sketch the bird on paper, then paint its likeness on the porcelain. So far, he has written an estimated 400 magazine articles and five books dealing with china-painting, ceramics and birds.

Thompson recently completed a full-time job. While teaching ceramics classes part time many years ago, Thompson was hired as editor of "Ceramic Arts and Crafts" and "Ceramic Projects," magazines for hobbyists. According to Thompson, the former owners of the publications enrolled in his class, took a liking to him and hired him to edit the magazines. At the time, Thompson was working as an estimate assigner

In addition, Thompson has judged art shows, demonstrated his china-painting at fairs and taught many classes.

"A few years ago, after an ill-ss, I learned how to do ness, needlepoint," Thompson said. "I wasn't allowed to go down into my shop, and I had to have something to do

"I'M THE TYPE, if I wanted a new nouse, would myself," he continued. "I think that's why I try so many things just for the satisfaction of seeing if I can do it."

The Canadian church will join with the Detroit church at 10:45 a.m. celebration June 29 with the Detroiters returning the favor on July 6 at the same time.

ANOTHER facet of the International Freedom Featival will be Children's Day "Salute to Liberty," 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Friday, June 27 in Detroit's University Cultural Center, Woodward and Kirby. Sponsored by ANR Pipeline, the program will proclaim children as America's best natural resources A kickoff parade of children's celebrities will winds its way through the cultural center and ide at the Detroit Recreation Department bandstand where continu entertainment will be featured throughout the day.

Although Thompson is multitalented, his favorite artistic endeavor is painting birds and flowers on porcelain.

"I got started because I was a bird-watcher," said Thompson, 62, of Wixom. "They (birds) always seem so free, and they are beautiful and interesting."

The fascination with birds began more than 40 years ago. Bird watching wasn't enough. At one time, years ago, he kept up to 40 imported and domestic birds as house pets.

"I started years and years ago oil painting," Thompson said. "I switched to this because I could get better effect. I strive for realism.

According to Thompson, the porcelain is fired between three to eight times, between coats of paint, to bring out the clarity and color

Like many artists, Thompson's hobby of ceramics worked into a

THOMPSON HAS BEEN with the publishing firm, Scott Publications of Livonia, for the past 19 years. The company also publishes his books.

It seems Thompson isn't content unless he has an outlet for his creative energy. He has taught ceramics and leatherwork. He enjoys oil painting. He has crocheted afghans. He used to build furniture.

Thompson also makes stainedglass boxes, fixtures and lamps. He gives away most of his creations

Although Thompson has taught many classes, among his most loyal students are a handful of women whom Thompson has been teach-ing for around 17 years.

All have, at one time or another, been associated with Scott Publications. The classes, which focus on china-painting, are held weekly at the Scott offices on Eight Mile Road. A reporter was invited to attend a session.

"HE ALWAYS MAKES you feel you can do it," she said. "He makes you feel it (the work) isn't all that bad."

Christine Crowner of Saline, another longtime student, looked up from a china teapot she was painting and asked: "Bill, would you put any background in that?'

"It's a bit insipid," Thompson agreed. He suggested she put a bit more green on her painted flowers

"He is kind and generous about passing along his talent to other people," Crowner said. "He is nicer than his painting, and that is saying a lot, because his work is so great.'

Desire is the most important factor in pursuing a hobby of interest, according to Thompson. "The rest is practice," he said.

"I'm of the opinion that almost anybody can do anything they want if they try hard enough. I'm very interested and I want other people to enjoy it as much."

In addition to writing, Thompson has taught many classes. Among his most loy-al students are a handful of women whom Thompson has been teaching for around 17 years. One of them is Christine Crowner of Saline.

While many work on the road, Ben Tasich works in the parking

n away," said Ben o as his fish grew cold

He has been an assistant principal in the Ypsilanti public schools and a championship tennis player; he is talkative, energetic, introspective and opinionated.

Ask him a question, any question, then sit back as his discourse hops in and out of parentheses, bounces tangentially from here to there and maybe back again, and touches on such diverse subjects as newspaper mergers. prep school philosophies in Massachusetts, the state of retailing, politics in public school education, the history of the capitalists' struggle against Tito in Yugoslavia during World War II and the lastest New Balance running shoe.

-Tasich-

TASICH IS quotable the way fish are float-

"Detroit is the Beirut of retailing: a free-fire zone."

Or, "How can a (censored) or a (censored) sell shoes so cheaply and make money? 'Cause they cheat. There is more and more dishonesty in the trade. They're selling closeouts, irregularities and seconds and not telling the consumer. How often have I had a sales rep come in and say, 'Hey, I've got some seconds for you. You want 'em? You can make $10 more on a pair.'"

Or, "I can make a more lasting contribution as an educator than as a seller of sneakers and stringer of racquets. But I can make more money selling sneakers and stringing racquets. I guess you can say I sold out."

Tasich came to this country in 1952, when he was 11. His father, Nikola, who owned several meat-packing plants in Yugoslavia, unsuccessfully fought the Communists, then fled to Italy after World War II. He eventually emigrated to the United States and summoned his family, from whom he'd been separated since 1940.

TASICH WAS so naive, so cut off from the world in eastern Europe, that when he landed in Boston and saw a black man in the airport, he thought he must have been taken to Africa by mistake.

Though his father was a capitalist, Tasich got into retailing almost as an afterthought. He began teaching at Ferndale in 1966 and taught tennis at the Livonia Y in his spare time.

He began moonlighting merchandise out of his home, becoming successful enough for his wife, Patricia, to suggest he open a store. He did, in 1979, and three years later took the plunge completely and retired from teaching.

Ben Tasich strings a racquet in his Racquets Unlimited store in Livonia.

He had known his days in education were numbered, anyway, he says, when he was ordered not to suspend a girl caught with drugs because her father was an Ypsi school board member.

"I got out because I couldn't play political games," explained Tasich. "I hated making decisions that were politically sound and educationally bankrupt."

JUST AFTER his tennis store opened, the tennis boom became the tennis whisper. Courts that had been full became empty overnight. Cracks formed in the asphalt; weeds grew. Racquets sat unused in closets, playthings for spiders.

Tasich did the smart thing: He expanded into the running market, where sales quickly peaked and are, he says, off 25 percent the last two years, another boom busted.

These days, Ben is in turmoil. Should he sell the business? Should he expand? Should he franchise? Should he go back to teaching? Should he do that deal with WCAR for a live broadcast from his store?

"I'm kind of at the crossroads. On the one hand, I'm 45 and I'm doing what I want. On the other, I'm almost as old as Tom Monaghan and don't have anywhere near his kind of money. Seriously, I'm excited. It's time to make some changes."

A BIG CHANGE was dropping his racing team, which was highly successful the last three years in terms of wins, and an utter bust in terms of business generated. At $5,000 a year, the team was more for his ego than his bottom line, Tasich decided.

Instead, he has decided to become a runner himself. "I'm walking three miles a day and it's killing me," he said. "But this is a promise: By the end of the summer Ben Tasich will have run his first three-mile road race."

(Though he has yet to run a race, he is at them all the time, passing out flyers and meeting would-be customers. "You only get a response of half a percent on the flyers," he explained, "but that's half a percent I didn't have the day before.)"

A bigger change is the realization that he had to stop pushing his younger daughter, Becky, so hard at tennis. "I realized I was gaining a tennis star but losing a daughter. It's got to be her needs that are fulfilled and not her dad's. And you don't know how hard that is for me to say."

Becky, 16, was All-Catholic as a sophomore for Farmington Mercy last fall, and has been ranked in the midwest. Though she will continue on the Mercy team, she cut back on her tournaments, took up skiing and put her racquet in the closet for the winter.

"It was killing me," said Tasich. "People were no longer coming up to me saying, 'Your daughter the great tennis player, how is she doing?"

On the run

The loneliness of the long-distance runner is unknown to many recent newcomers to road racing. What once used to be a solitary sport is no longer. Races, once rare, are seemingly ubiquitous. The state motto soon may be: If you seek a pleasant race, look about you.

Every weekend there is at least one race, and often three or four, in the metropolitan area. They range in size from the 20,000-plus extravaganzas of Emily Gail to fun runs drawing 90 or 100. The courses can be as short as a mile, as long as 26.2. They come level, over hills, on dirt, concrete or blacktop. They start in the morning and finish with yogurt, and start at night and finish with pizza and kegs of beer. Always they include men and women, young and old, fast and slow.

The following is a listing of some area races of interest. A few of the best outstate races are also included. Race fees vary, as do entry deadlines, starting times and what's included (from T-shirts and all you can eat and drink to nothing at all). For a complete listing of upcoming races — some runners even plan their vacations around interesting resort-locations runs — look for Michigan Runner magazine, a monthly available at many newstands:

Backpacking

Sweet sounds, sweeter sights

'I've never packed up and left. I've always stuck it out. In olden days, people lived out of doors and had to deal with it.'

Doris Sherwood heads out with a heavy load and a light heart.

ficionados call it paradise. Detractors call it crazy. 'Most everybody else calls it backpacking.

Torrents of rain turn a dusty uphill trail into a slippery stream of water. Hot sun and sandy soil twist legs into rubber.

Bugs bite, nights turn cold, canteens run dry. Food gets scarce. Loads dig into the shoulders and back Ouickly becoming one of the most popular outdoor pursuits in the country, backpacking is attracting thousands of Americans to the nearest woods to test their endurance and skill against the best, or maybe worst, of what nature has to offer.

Backpackers are becoming known as one of the staunchest bands of adventurers in this age of fitness and triathlons.

Doris Sherwood counts herself among that group.

What may seem to others like hassle and pain is part of the reward for these necessarily hardy athletes. But unlike some of the other individual endurance sports, backpacking has an added bonus.

The sight of a hidden waterfall or a boggy glen or a snowclad mountain top or a misty lake doesn't come easy - but at the end of every well-planned trail, the reward lies.

"It's all part of the adventure, the good and the bad," says the 47-year-old Rochester Hills resident

"I've never packed up and left. I've always stuck it out. It's all part of the adventure. In olden days, people lived out of doors and had to deal with it," she says.

"The payoff," adds Sherwood, "is when you get to see something few people get to see."

Backpacking became a major focus of her life 12 years ago, after divorce interrupted her life. Since that time she has hiked many of the most challenging and beautiful trails in North America

Now it has become a major building block in keeping her family together.

One day years ago she took her four children - Phillip, Valerie, Richard and David on a trip into the Great Smoky Mountains in Tennessee. That trip gave a new direction to their lives.

Her love of the outdoors has carried over to three of her children.

Valerie, 22, is an avid rock climber, canoeist and sailor. She studies recreational therapy at Michigan State University.

15.99. Bright, bold and barely there, Clark Chang thongs are the hot new footnote for summer. Go for the flat-out comfort of the wedge, or dress it up a bit with the low heel. So many super colors...at this price you'll want to buy a bunch! Sizes 5-10 in Women's Shoes at all stores.

Richard, 19, is studying wildlife management at Michigan State University.

David, 15, spent a chunk of last summer in Virginia's Shenandoah National Park.

Working as a psychologist for Lutheran Social Services in Detroit, she often vacations in the White Mountains in New Hampshire or on Isle Royale National Park in Lake Superior or on the Bruce Trail in Canada.

Rejecting comfortable motels, she opts for a tent along wilderness trails.

And while close proximity to nature can make a hike tantalizing, heaven can easily turn into a hellish experience.

A "real back country" hike near the Tennessee-North Carolina border brings back such memories

The first night out was great. They listened to the rustling of foxes and the rushing of a nearby brook. They felt they were next door to heaven.

The next night, heaven changed to misery. After hiking into a "murky, trashy, dark campsite" the adventure began.

"After supper, we heard the crunch, crunch of a bear in a bush. We jumped up and ran down the trail, tooting a whistle. My daughter fell. The kids started to cry. We were scared and didn't know if we should go back or go to a ranger station."

Deciding it was too dark to hike out, the group made a fire hoping to keep away the bears. They bedded down for the evening.

"About 1 a.m. it started to storm. It rained till 4 a.m. We had to set up the tents, dragging the wet sleeping bags into them.

"Everything got wet."

The next morning their fear of bear was replaced by a boar.

"We were hiking down the trail when we met a black boar. By that time, nothing fazed me. The boar didn't scare us. Later on, the ranger told us we had nothing to fear from the bear — it was the boar that we should have been worried about.'

Neither bears nor boars nor bugs ever kept the Sherwoods from returning to the wilderness. "We all liked the adventure," says Sherwood.

To backpackers, hypothermia is a more realistic fear than an attack by wild animals.

If not countered by dry, warm clothes, it can kill.

Wet clothes and cold weather drain heat

The road to the wilderness begins with physical fitness.

The quickest way to make sure you'll never do it again is to put heavy shoes on gour feet, 30 pounds on your back and take off for a week's worth of hiking without first being in good physical shape.

· Walk, swim, jog or find some other exercise to strenghten your heart and lungs before you put on a backpack

 Put off buying new gear until you go on a weekend trip and know for sure backpacking is something for you. For that first weekend trip, borrow gear from friends or rent it from local outfitters.

 Roughing it is fun, but pamper your feet. Correctly fitted hiking boots are a must. They should be "broken in" around the house or on subdivision streets long before they ever see a trail. If you wear a new pair of hiking boots on your first outing, your feet will scream for mercy. Boots absorb the extra weight of a backpack and cushion ankles and delicate toes against jutting rocks and hidden stumps.

 Shop around for your equipment. You don't have to be a millionaire to get the proper equipment. On the other hand, employees at the speciality stores can give you some helpful hints on what is and isn't the best kind of equipment for you.

· Hitching up with a local group is a great idea. Experienced backpackers love to talk about - and show off - their lightweight gear. From them, you'll get a good idea what works and what doesn't.

Group backpacking has another bonus. The cooking gear - stoves, food, pots and fuel - is split among the hikers. Dividing the gear takes some of the load off your back and gives you some trailside camaraderie as well.

Two local backpacking groups that sponsor day trips, weekenders and lengthy outings are American Youth Hostels, 3024 Coolidge, Berkley, and the Sierra Club, Mackinac Chapter, 590 Hollister Building, Lansing.

n the woods-away from the body. This exposure can lead to chills, drowsiness, irrationality and even un-. consciousness.

Sherwood had a near bout with hypothermia on a 4-H outing. She had been canoeing through a damp, cold drizzle.

"The group became immobilized. Several people were on the verge of hypothermia. We just stood around in the cold, doing nothing, instead of putting up our tents. It could have been very serious. We finally got into our tents and into some dry clothing."

Despite days of "unremitting rain and cold," Sherwood has never cut a trip short because of bad weather.

The Sherwood clan has backpacked four times in the Smokies, in North Carolina's Linville Gorge, in Canada's Algonquin Provincial Park, three times on Isle Royale, on Mount Desert in Maine and twice in Shenandoah National Park.

With friends, she's climbed down the Grand Canyon in Arizona, up the White Mountains. hiked the North Country Trail in the Upper Peninsula and backpacked the remote Pukaskwa Provincial Park in Canada,

She puts Isle Royale on the top of her "must return to" list because of the island's allaround beauty and wildlife.

"I'd like to go back to each one because each has a beauty all its own. But the scenery is spectacular, gorgeous on Isle Royale. Moose and wolves call at night. The birds are tame.

"There, you can gorge yourself on berries in the summer. And it's well patrolled. There's enough people that if you have problems. there's someone to help you.'

As do most backpackers, Sherwood has stories to tell.

- Marie Chestney

his summer, some ice cream lovers will go gaga over Goo Goo - Goo Goo Cluster, that is, a new flavor made by Stroh Ice Cream. Others will scream for Guernsey Farm Dairy's new Creme De Novi. And others may settle for nothing less than a heavenly DoveBar. But for many, it may be hard trying to select a favorite in a market reflecting an unprecedented effort by makers of the frozen delight to come up with new concepts, varieties and flavors. The peak ice cream sales months are April through June, so to help you decide what your dip will be, some of the hot new ices were sur-

The ice cream novelty segment, which includes fruit juice bars, ice cream sticks, sandwiches, pudding, and other single-serving items, is one of the fastest-growing segments in the ice cream industry.

Into this previously kid-oriented domain, the DoveBar last year descended on national markets in a cloud of mouth-watering glory that would appeal to any discerning adult.

Featuring a chunk of premium, all natural ice-cream on a stick, and covered with a hand-dipped coating of bittersweet chocolate, the DoveBar successfully spans the super premium and novelty ice cream segments.

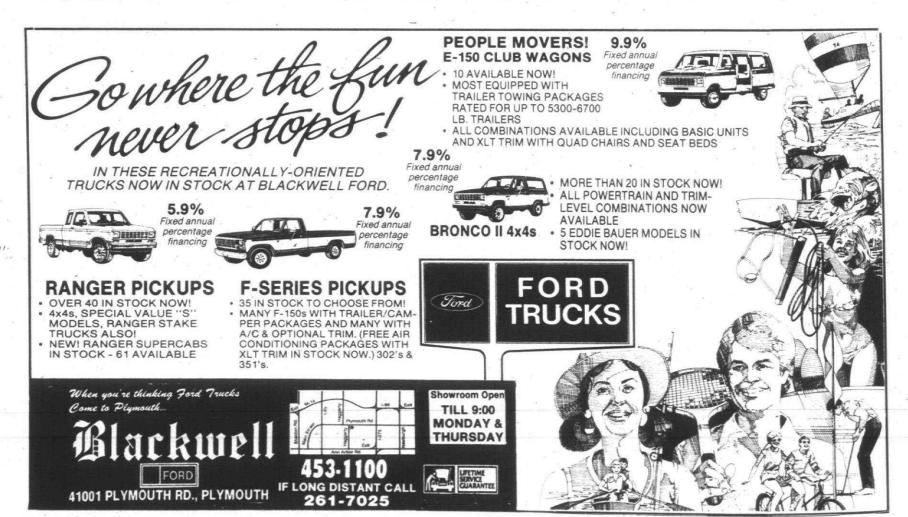

Made by DoveBar International Inc., in Burr Ridge, Ill., the DoveBar comes in three flavors vanilla, chocolate and coffee. The ice cream has 14.5 percent butterfat, while most ice-cream has 10 percent, but some say the ice cream is only the chaser to the thick chocolate shell.

The taste is so rich, they could easily be served as the grand finale to a gourmet meal - but it may take more than one sitting to finish one.

Although they have taken the market by storm, the "incredible DoveBar" - which also sells at an incredible price, $1.50 to $2 per six-ounce bar - is not new.

They were, in fact, invented in 1956 by Leo Stefanos, proprietor of the Dove Candies and Ice Cream Shops in Chicago. For years, they were enjoyed at country clubs and sold to gourmet shops in the area.

It was only in 1985, with the formation of DoveBar International, that they were distributed on a wider scale, and national distribution is expected to be completed this summer. Now, some 100,000 are churned out daily.

Summer, 1986

M-melt in your mouth

Gone are the days when ice cream was anemic. Savor its decadent richness.

Those who love Dove will probably also be delighted with the soon-to-be-introduced Dove Delight. Advertised as "an exquisite ice cream confection" it is the same ice cream and chocolate shell, minus the stick, and combined with a dessert wafer. They will be available in raspberry, peppermint and caramel flavors.

"It's one of the few ice-creams in the ice cream freezer that is not a kid's item," said Seymour Greenstein, president of Golden Valley Dairy in Oak Park, which distributes some 20 ice cream products, including the DoveBar.

Other new novelty ice creams are Bon Bons, by Carnation, which are ice cream nuggets with chocolate flavored coating, and Kraft Polar Bars, which are ice cream squares checkered with vanilla, strawberry and vanilla chocolate combinations.

Also soon to be introduced are Tofutti Love Drops, according to Greenstein. These non-dairy, tofubased frozen snacks will come in vanilla, cappuccino and chocolate. Tofutti contains no cholesterol or lactose.

Greenstein guesses that they will all do well, based on his observations over 21 years in the ice-cream business. During that time, he said, the biggest change he has seen is that "People are willing to spend money on interesting new products.

Another change he has seen is the demand for premium ice creams.

"When I started out, ice cream was only sold on price - how low can you sell it," he said. The result was low quality, air pumped ice cream, full of additives. "Ice cream had become anemic." he said.

Now, his top three sellers are the premium Breyers and Haagen-Dazs brands, and DoveBars.

Premium ice creams have a high percentage of butterfat. By law, ice cream must contain 10 percent butterfat for vanilla, 8 percent for chocolate - a minimum common to low-price store brands.

However, a high butterfat content does not necessarily mean it will taste better than a lower butterfat variety.

Premiums also contain less air, and use only natural ingredients, such as vanilla beans, real chocolate, fresh fruits and liqueurs.

Breyers is coming out with no new flavors this year, said Greenstein, but is introducing a cellophane wrapped package, which will pervent air from seeping in.

Haagen-Dazs remains the top of the line for many.

Cappuccino is the newest of the 30 Haagen-Dazs flavors.

Another new Haagen-Dazs item is the $1.45 Ice Cream Bar. These chocolate, coffee or vanilla ice cream bars are hand-dipped in dark or imported Belgian chocolate, and smothered in one of six toppings.

The bars will soon be introduced in food stores, along with the pint sizes already available.

The most esoteric of all the ices distributed by Greenstein, he said, is the classy, Califor nia-made Tres Chocolate.

The concoction invites the question, "Is it chocolate, or is it ice cream?" Either way, it should put chocophiles in ecstasy. Made like a fine candy, the eight flavors include Chocolate Raspberry, Chocolate Decadence and Chocolate Chocolate Chunk, which blends bittersweet chocolate ice cream with hunks of dark, bittersweet chocolate.

Ice cream parlors have also responded to demands for new tastes and textures.

Baskin Robbins Ice Cream Company, the world's largest franchised ice cream operation with 2,500 stores worldwide, has just introduced "the International Creams," "following a worldwide expedition" to find original recipes.

The collection, boasting 16 percent butterfat, includes two liqueur-based ice creams, made for "increasingly sophisticated palates."

The flavors are Chocolate Raspberry Truffle (England), Grand Marnier (France), Almond Amaretto (Italy) and Cappuccino Chip (Italy).

The Almond Amaretto has .98 percent alcohol, the Grand Marnier, 1.7 percent.

By producing the Grand Marnier flavor, which features pieces of mandarin oranges soaked in the liqueur, the company becomes one of the world's largest consumers of Grand Marnier.

While Baskin Robbins went worldwide to find their flavors, some delicious and original recipes are being made right around the block at local ice cream makers.

At the Novi-based Guernsey Farms Dairy, a flavor made at the request of the city manager, and then named in a local contest, has just been introduced.

Called Creme de Novi, the mint flavored ice creme blends the flavor used in Mohawk Creme de Menthe, made by Mohawk Liqueur Corp., with a premium vanilla base and chocolate chips.

The family-owned Guernsey Farms Dairy was founded by John McGuire in 1940. His son, Marty McGuire, conceived of and produced the flavor.

Guernsey sells its approximate 50 flavors at their location, where customers line up every weekend to scoop up 82-cent dips. It is also available at many Detroit area outlets.

Another area ice cream-maker. Cloverdale Farms Dairy in Plymouth, now has a new pistachio flavor available, 'according to plant manager Jim Tomlinson.

Cloverdale makes about 40 flavors, all premium and all natural, he said.

Who can pass up the all-American Dairy Queen on a hot day? There, the new product is called The Blizzard.

Similar to a thick milkshake, the treat blends a choice of goodies together with a traditional soft-serve vanilla DQ ice cream. Made in a special "Blizzard" machine, it is served in a cup, and eaten with a spoon.

Blizzards may be made with popular snacks like Oreo cookies, Heath Bars, and M&Ms. A Peanut Buster features cold fudge and Spanish peanuts.

The fresh fruit blizzards include Banana Pudding, which glops together vanilla wafers and fresh bananas.

Tasting all the ice cream options available — and there are hundreds more — should pave the way for a delicious summer adventure - unless, of course, the whole subject leaves you cold. - Susan Steinmueller

Summer time: long days, vacations and picnics.

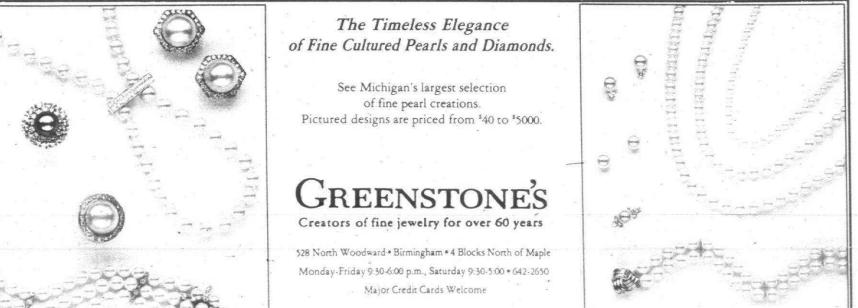

Ah, picnics. Maybe the sweetest time of all.

Not the family picnics, with Cousin Harry's brats fighting the day away, and Uncle Joe burning the chicken again because no one dares tell him he always uses too much charcoal, and the family softball game that leaves you hobbled for weeks. No, not those, which are fine in their own way, but magical picnics, the kind spent with one special person, in a special place, the two of you alone with good food and fine summer wine, romance thick in the air, as thick as the smoke from Joe's barbecue, but sweet and invigorating.

Romantic picnics seemed to fall out of fashion for a while.

Brothers to start didn't count. Neither did the family reunions.

But, PACE declares, this is the year of the romantic picnic. Want to melt a lover's heart? Want to turn a friend into a lover? Need a proper setting to pop the magic question? Then southeastern Michigan is the place for vou

Lakes and parks are more abundant here than any metropolitan area you're likely to find. There are forests, streams, rivers, lakes and flowering hillsides: there is an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables and ethnic eateries with tasty, fresh food to go; there are wonderful inexpensive wines and plenty of local experts to help you select them.

With a minimum of effort and a modicum of money, the sensuous delights of the romantic picnic can be yours. A $100 dinner at the best restaurant in town won't impress a date as much as a picnic with a little planning. And if it will, get another date.

What will you need? A blanket that will stand up to grass stains and food crumbs. You can get one cheap at garage sales or army surplus stores, and one will last for a lifetime of picnics. A corkscrew and glasses for the wine. A real picnic basket (a-plastic Playmate is great for Pine Knob but we're talking romance here). Plastic utensils, paper plates and napkins. Good food. A great spot.

If you want the romance, but none of the work, let the Merchant of Vino take care of it for you. For $50, they'll even loan you the basket festooned with ribbons and will fill it with food guaranteed to warm the heart of a mum-

What will you and a date get for the $50? A recent picnic basket purchased by PACE included a wonderful Chardonnay made with grapes grown and bottled in the Leelenau Peninsula near Traverse City; a cheese and fruit course that included fresh stem strawberries and seedless green grapes; a fruit salad with watermelon, peaches, apricots, grapes, strawberries and dried cherries; chicken Carolina salad with grilled chicken marinated with herb de provence, sliced grapes, pecans, shallots and baby pita bread; pasta primavera with a wide assortment of fresh vegetables and spinach pies; homemade chocolate chip cookies, pecan tortes, French bread, California sandwich rolls and fresh mint.

Or you can assemble a fresh fruit and veggie basket at:

· Windmill Fruit Market, on Plymouth in Livonia

• Paul's on Six Mile in Redford; or get Middle Eastern at the Majestic Market on Lahser in Southfield;

• Jewish deli food at Star Deli on 12 Mile in Southfield or the Stage Deli on Orchard Lake in West Bloomfield:

• ribs and chicken at the Boneyard on Telegraph near Warren in Dearborn Heights, the Boneyard No. 2 on Orchard Lake in Farmington Hills or Mitch's at Cass Lake and Elizabeth near Pontiac.

Whatever your taste, there's a place to fill it in metropolitan Detroit, from Chaldean to Pakistani to Scottish to good old hot dogs and beans

And there's a good, inexpensive wine to go with each dinner. How about a sparkling zinfandel with a gorgeous peach color, a $5 bargain that goes wonderfully with ribs and chicken? Or a Weinstock kosher savignon blanc ($5.99) to accompany the deli food? Whatever your food, there's a proper summer wine.

Golfers here can be excused for high scores. Not only are the courses challenging, but the views are so spectacular that who can blame you for not concentrating completely on that

There are two dozen golf courses here in the north woods, most of them carved into forests. with doglegs twisting around stands of hardwood, early morning mist rising from creeks, brook trout hovering in the shade of icy pools, cherry orchards blossoming in spring and glowing deep red in early summer, hills and ravines and views that take your breath and leave it on the next elevated green.

Woodpeckers tat-tat and doves coo as you pause before a tee shot - no respectful silence here. Deer rustle in the rough, dancing out of sight over dried leaves as you walk down the fairway. Sun sparkles through leaves, shining out of intensely blue sky and clear air, cities far from thought and far away.

There are courses here as pretty as any in . the world. And as tough. But until recently they were some of Michigan's best-kept secrets. Golf? That was just something the ski resorts did so they wouldn't have to lay their employess off in the summer. It was an afterthought to the lucrative winter season, and nothing more.

All that has changed. Five years ago, if you'd asked a writer or an editor for one of the national golf magazines for his impressions of Michigan, he or she may have said "Oakland Hills." Or something like: "Concrete" or "factories." Now, they're likely to say "The Bear" or "The Legend." They came, they saw, they were conquered by the beauty of the area, as a casual reading of the golf literature over the last year shows.

From Boomer Martin, former president of the Golf Writers of America, to Leonard Scandur, retired travel editor of the New York Daily News, to well-known golf photographer Brian Morgan, the praise has been effusive.

"If a golfer dies and can't go to heaven, he or she has an alternative - a golfers' paradise in northwest Michigan," writes Scandur.

Two people who share much of the responsibility for the growing national awareness of the area are an engineer who had a passion for golf, and a promoter who had grown tired of peddling wax.

Doug Paul of Lathrup Village is the engineer, a golf nut who decided to promote northern golf when no one could help him arrange a vacation

Dave Richards of Plymouth is the promoter and public relations man, a go-getter who sold skis 50 hours a week while going to college full time and who quit a good job as regional sales manager for Johnson's Wax in 1984 because he was bored. They are two key pieces in the public relations machine that is helping to boost the area golf business to record levels.

They have dubbed the area the "Northern Michigan Gold Coast" and are determined the Summer, 1986 name should fit. They are also determined to see that another of their slogans fits, as well: Michigan will, they say, become "a summer golf destination." It seems a natural to them and it seems a natural sitting out in the middle of such incredibly beautiful courses as "The Legend" in Belleair, Schuss Mountain or the new "Monument" at Boyne Mountain . Of course, golfers will pay good money to flock here once the word gets out.

Hilton Head, watch out. Myrtle Beach, move over.

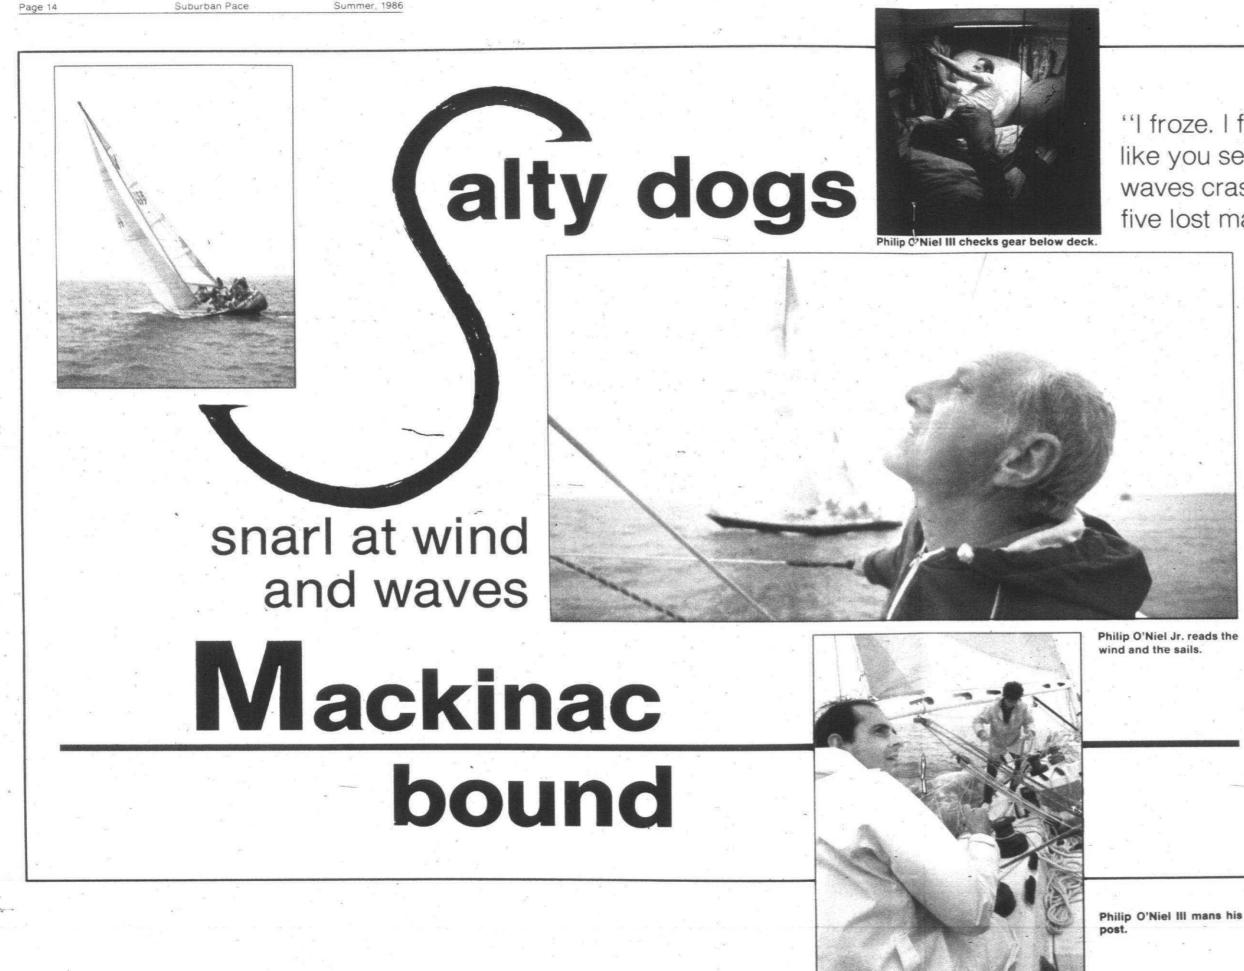

But what seems natural, now, didn't always seem a natural, or even remotely possible. In 1980, when Paul decided to begin packaging golf vacations to northern Michigan, the idea of marketing the area as a whole - of a bunch of individual courses ending their fierce competition to unite in a promotional campaign - was a remote possibility, at best.

Things began modestly. Paul, who came up with the concept, a variation on his hobby of arranging golf vacations for his buddies. He and his partners, Ron Butkovich and a silent partner, began doing business with the courses in 1981. Their company - Professionally Arranged Golf - booked 300 rounds of golf that summer, or about $7,500 worth. "That's like one full Saturday," said Paul.

Paul is a 47-year-old Detroit-area native who just ended a 23-year stint at Ford to take an engineering position with Depor Industries, a firm specializing in anti-corrosion applications and processes, which is soon moving its headquarters to Birmingham. He is president of PAR, but draws no salary for his weekend and evening work.

The 1985 Port Huron to Mackinac race was turning into a fight against the worst weather in the race's 61 years.

"The wind was constantly on our nose," said Philip O'Niel Jr., owner and helmsman of the racing sailboat.

"We started a run for Duck's Island about 11 p.m. We saw the green light. We checked the Loran and it said to stay on course. We checked the depth sounder and advised to make a turn. We tried to stay as far north as possible.'

John Barker, mainsail crewman:

"We didn't have a radio on and didn't know people were dropping out. It just seemed this was a hell of a storm.

Equally unaware of how serious the situation was becoming was the race chairman, Philip O'Niel III.

The forecast had been for moderate to light winds, fair sailing. While his father and the other seven crew members battled Lake Huron, O'Niel III watched the storm on Mackinac Island and waited for word.

"I waited for a call to find out how serious it was. On the island we have no idea what's going on on the course. If you drop out, you're obliged to tell the race committee," O'Niel III said. "I got one call from a 50-foot boat about 10 o'clock and that was all.'

Back on the Natalie J., the pounding of the storm and waves was making crew members sick and cold.

"I froze. I fought off hypothermia," said Barker. "It was like you see in those movies with the waves crashing over you.'

David Otenberger, the 14-year-old junior member of the crew, became violently ill and had to be given pills to sleep.

The toll of that Saturday night was great. The Tomahawk sank, though all crew members safely made it to shore on life rafts. There were five dismastings.

The facigue of fighting fierce winds, cold and wet wore down crew after crew. Every port along the way took in race boats. A total of 93 boats were forced to drop out.

As the calls came in, O'Niel III still hadn't heard from his father. The Natalie J. was still on the course. It was coming into Mackinac Island a winner, first in its class for the second year in a row.

> t was 12 years ago that a neighbor invited Phil O'Niel Jr. to go sailing on his 26-foot boat.

O'Niel is a Beverly Hills resident who owns a beer distributorship with his son, Greg, in Dowagiac and a real estate business with offices in Farmington Hills and Livonia.

That boat trip was the start of an avocation that would bring O'Niel's family together in pursuit of sailing excellence.

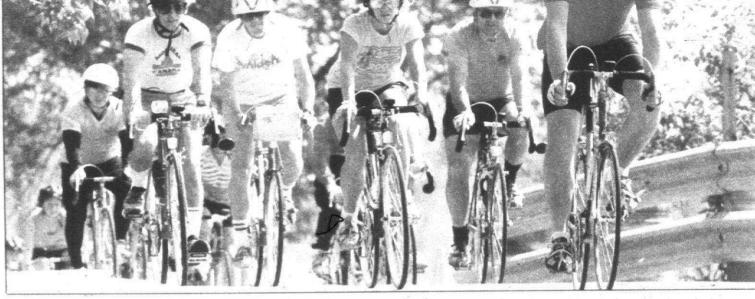

The following spring O'Niel bought a 26-foot out of college. armed with a business degree and heading into the economic recession of the early '70s. He had been rejected by several prospective employers and had little idea what he wanted to do.

He visited his sister who was attending school in Germany and discovered a sport, a business and a way of life

'We were touring in a VW bus, living on the 85 a day book on the Riviera in Nice, France," Hughes said. "It was the middle of the day, a beautiful sunny day on the Mediterranean. Suddenly, traffic stopped. Everyone got out of their cars and walked a block and a half over to the Mediterranean. I was panicking, I didn't know what was going on. We walked over with everyone else, we couldn't go any-

"I saw motorcycles, cars, TV vans and then this pack of bike racers coming down a mountain into the city. The people were cheering for their favorites as they sped by. Then they got back into their cars. I thought wow, wait till they find out about this back in the States." This was the Tour de France, a 21-day road race around France that draws hundreds of thousands of spectators along the roads and 25 million on worldwide television.

When Hughes returned home he and a friend opened a bicycle shop in Rochester. Eventually Hughes sold the bicycle shop and pursued his interest in racing as a promoter of professional and amateur races. He is on the executive committee and secretary of the U.S. Cycling Federation. Hughes is promoting a Tour de Michigan

This year the tour features five races over five. days. Next year, Hughes wants to tie in the cour with Michigan's sesquicentennial and make it a promotional venture throughout the state.

Hughes predicts that in the next few years bicycling will become a major minor sport on the level of golf and tennis. He foresees a time when every major city will have a cycling team as European cities do.

"Bicycling has all the elements to make it a major minor sport - speed, an element of danger, strategy and the venue for racing is always different. There are different kinds of racing and each race has its own uniqueness to it like the Grand Prix," Hughes said.

Bicycling has a built-in audience. The physical fitness enthusiasm of recent years has made bicyling the second most popular participatory activity in the country after swimming and number one among women. Seventy-two million Americans cycle. It is also the second most popular spectator sport worldwide after soccer

"It has the tradition of baseball and a few other sports. From 1900 to the 1920s, bicycling was a major sport in the United States with a pro circuit of indoor bike racing. In 1928 Jimmy Walthour had gualified for the Olympic team and a professional league approached him to turn pro. He turned pro for $100,000 for five years," Hughes said.

The advent of the Model T and other inexpensive automobiles changed bicycling from a necessary adult activity and preoccupation to a means of transportation for children. The trend is changing back and now the majority of bicycle sales are in adult bicycles.

The Tour de Michigan for 1986 runs July 23-27. The event offers $15,000 in prize money. On July 23 a 25 mile time trial will be run on Hines Drive. A road race covering 65 to 75 miles will be run from Lansing to Brighton on July 24. Criteriums, races around half to threequarter mile outdoor tracks, will be run July 25-27 in Detroit's Greektown, Troy and Wyandotte. The races are open to professionals and amateurs from novice to experienced.

For 1987 Hughes is proposing a program of two time trials, five road races and six criteriums over nine davs.

The tour will begin in Marquette and include races covering Sault Ste. Marie to St. Ignace, Mackinac Island, Mackinac Bridge, Cheboygan to Traverse City, Muskegon to Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo to Battle Creek. Lansing, Lansing to Ann Arbor, Greektown, Wyandotte and Troy. usiness has grown steadily. PAR expects to book as many as 10,000 rounds this summer, with an expected volume of at least $500.000. To accompany that growth, PAR branched out from strictly arranging trips to actually becoming a marketing agent for the area. It wasn't easily accomplished, with the brunt of the dirty work going to Richards, a 28-year-old graduate of Plymouth Salem who spent the winter of '84-85 up north in a frustrating series of meetings and pleadings trying to convince the various owners to agree to a joint-marketing plan.

Richards had been familiar with Traverse City, having been going to the family cottage there since he was a baby. When he quit his selling job in '84, he headed north to see if he could find a marketing position with one of the resorts. A friend of a friend told him about PAR. "Paul and I worked out a deal: 'Go up north and work for four months; we won't pay you but it'll be great in the future,' " said Richards, laughing at the memory. "And that's what I did. I started making the personal contacts. It was a little rough in the beginning.

"Getting them all together and getting them to agree was probably the hardest thing we've ever had to do," he added. "It took four months to get them to sit down in a meeting room together, of constant, every day going from one to the other, back and forth just to get them to agree to sit down and talk about maybe doing it. Even though they may only have been 10 minutes apart, many of them didn't know each other. They'd never even met '

"We were like referees," said Paul. "We were presenting the concept and everyone was sitting back, and not only were they listening to what we had to say, they were watching each other . . . When it comes to pass that Michigan assumes its place as a summer golf destination, and maybe even as an international golf destination, we'll look back and say that the toughest thing to do was to get them to accept the fact that there were other golf courses up there, and it was to their advantage to market the area."

A total of 15 courses and seven resorts decided to form the Northern Michigan Golf Council and hire PAR as their marketing agent. Small ads began appearing in the national golf magazines; promotional money was spent to bring in golf and travel writers to see what was there: the state kicked in with $11,000 in grant money for brochures.

From humble beginnings, PAR has begun hitting eagles and aces. The golf writers went bananas. Not only was the scenery all you could imagine, the courses were as billed, too. Jack Nicklaus' course, "The Bear" at Grand Traverse Resort in Acme is regarded as world class by those who know; though named "The Legend" before it even opened last summer, Arnold Palmer's course at Shanty Creek is an incredible collection of sights worthy of the name and is a wondrous string of holes snaking around the ravines and slopes on the back side of the mountainous hill overlooking Bellaire Lake: Robert Trent Jones' Heather Course at Boyne Highlands has been rated by Golf Digest as one of the top 100 courses in the country the last 11 years; and the unknown courses match them for beauty and difficulty.

The publicity has helped lead to increased awareness of the state and increased support from it. Legislative approval of a $300,000 grant for promotion this summer was considered a formality at press time, well up from the modest $11,000 of a year ago, with $950,000 in grants planned for next summer.

Why the dramatic increase in funds? Because it makes sense financially. Golfers have wonderful demographics. They make money and they spend lots of it on their hobby. That's why TV networks clamor to broadcast golf though the ratings are tiny. That's why Myrtle Beach, S.C., has grown in 20 years from a little place on the beach with a couple of decent golf courses to a mecca for golfers.

PAR studied Myrtle Beach in depth. What Paul and Richards found out made it easy to sell the resort owners and the state on an idea whose idea had come: United we boom, divided summer remains merely what separates ski seasons.

or example: In 1967 there were nine hotels and 10 courses in Myrtle Beach. Today, there are 38 courses, 40,000 rental units and 180,000 golfers generating $94 million in greens fees, cart rentals and lodging.

"Last year in Myrtle Beach, 5,000 condominiums were sold at an average of $100,000, and 90 percent of that was sold to out-of-staters," said Paul, who projects that within five to seven years, golf in northern Michigan will be an $83 million-avear business.

What makes PAR's pitch to out-of-state golfers so attractive are several factors. One. it's too hot in Myrtle Beach and Hilton Head in the summer; their boom times are spring and fall, which means they aren't in competition with Michigan courses. Two, the Golf Foundation and Golf Digest estimate that 10 percent of all golfers are willing, even eager, to take golf vacations. Three, according to PAR figures, 21 percent of the golfers in the country live in Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, within 500 miles of the so-called Gold Coast, and 45 percent of the golfers who go to Myrtle Beach are from that five-state area persistence of Paul and Richards finally swaved Bill Siebenthaler, a crusty, retired newspaperman who owns a course hardly any have heard of but who all should see and play. Siebenthaler owns a beautiful, though unknown, course known as "A-Ga-Ming," an Indian term meaning beside the water. Siebenthaler's course is on a hillside overlooking Torch Lake and the toughest part of playing it is taking your eye off the scenery to play a shot.

While the green fees at "The Bear" are $75 and are $50 at "The Legend," you can play nine holes at A-Ga-Ming for $9 or play all 18 for $16. Water comes into play on 11 of the 18 holes, nine of which have just been completed for this season. Siebenthaler once owned a newspaper in Ohio, the Xenia Daily Gazette, that won a Pulitzer for reporting. If there was a Pulitzer for building pretty golf courses, he'd be in the running for that, too. When he wants to move a green, he's likely to be in the machine moving the dirt. "I know, now, how an artist feels," he said on a golf-cart tour of his baby.

He's got a jewel and he knows it. He long resisted the idea he needed help to market it. Finally, to his surprise, he decided to hook up with PAR for this season.

"I was the toughest nut they ever cracked," he said, taking a break from supervising the crew putting in a new tee area on one of the holes. "I wasn't going to join. No way. But they convinced me that they had something that could help us. I still haven't told Chick (Harbert, a former PGA star and his pro). He's still against it. But they're sending us a lot of tee times already, and that's business we wouldn't have, otherwise."

Council pay PAR a sliding fee depending on how many courses they control and whether there are lodging facilities.)

"When they first came in. I was pretty unimpressed," said Siebenthaler. "We had a pretty good thing going here. Well, every time they came back, they were more professional. And I give a lot of credit to their persistence. There were just very good side benefits for us all. Each of us singly couldn't afford the national magazines, for one thing."

Colleen Bagley is marketing director of Grand Traverse Resort. With the June opening of its 15-story tower, Grand Traverse has 767 rental units and is the largest resort in the Midwest. Once in severe financial difficulties, the resort has resumed monthly payments of $144,000 on its mortage and business is booming on the 850 acres, with home-site and condo sales projected at $8 million to $9 million for '86. Bagley expects 250,000 guests this year with gross revenues, excluding real estate sales, of $18 million.

"You've really got to give PAR credit," said Bagley. "They got us together and that never happened before. It was hard. There were a lot of hard-headed individuals who had to be reined in. And what made it tougher was that we didn't know who they were or what their game was. Dave Richards was a novice in PR. All of us were suspicious.

"Now, with a year under our belt, I'd be surprised if everyone was not real pleased. I have been. The impact from a business standpoint hasn't been huge, yet, but they're trying to break new ground geographically and that takes time. They've expanded the awareness a great deal and the business will follow."

Bagley guessed that the out-of-state share of Grand Traverse's golf business has risen from 10-15 percent a few years ago to 25 percent today. "And it's going up all the time," she said.

sked to describe the PAR team, Bagley said: "Dave is enthusiastic. Very enthusiastic. He's learning the business real quick. He works hard at it and he cares, he really cares. Doug is an idea guy. Very enterprising. He's the kind of guy you walk up to him and you'll walk away with five new assignments. So you avoid him at cocktails.

"We've been waiting a long time to be discovered. The plan is to have the entire nation be aware of us and that is not an insurmountable goal. We're well on the way toward that."

Currently PAR is in the second year of a five-year contract with the Golf Council. "Are we getting our money's worth? I think so. I really do. But don't tell them I said that," said Bagley, breaking into laughter.

So, business is up, PAR's clients on the Golf Council seem happy, even the weather's been good. The only thing wrong is there's no time to play golf, and it's an addiction for golf that got Paul into this in the first place.

"The only time I can play now is when I'm on vacation," said Paul. "The weekends I'm always tied up with PAR."

He describes himself as "an avid golfer, not a good golfer. PAR began as a product of my own frustration in setting up golf trips. Being an avid golfer, I played different courses. In the winter we'd go to Florida, in the spring we'd go to Myrtle Beach and in the summer, we'd go up to northern Michigan. We'd been doing it for years and it always bothered me I had to make the arrangements myself. There was nobody I could call up and say. 'Hey. I want to take a golf trip. Here's where I want to go.' I'd go to a travel agent and it was apparent they knew less than I did. We got so good at it, we figured: 'Why not do it and make a little on the side, too?'

They are still trying to make the little on the side. All the money is being plowed back into PAR, which has yet to show a profit. But the principals feel a profit is just around the next dogleg. Meanwhile, the staff at the Dearborn headquarters has grown from one parttimer to six full-timers and four part-timers.

"We started passing out flyers at pro shops," said Paul. "Our only employee was a charming old lady who didn't know anything about golf. We did our best business when we had the recorder on and she couldn't screw UD.

For information on course and resort locations, or to book a golf vacation, call PAR at, 562-2533. PAR represents 19 courses and nine resorts; geographically, they range from McGuire's resort near Cadillac in the south, to Garland north of Vucerne in the east, to Boyne Highlands near Harbor Springs in the north, to Crystal Mountain near Thompsonville in the west.

Philip O'Niel III of Beverly Hills, who has a dental practice in Troy, began reading everything he could about sailing and the proper equipment and everything he could find about racing. He is the tactician for the Natalie J ..

A crew is needed to operate a successful racing sailboat.

Jim Hoover of Birmingham, a partner in the Kimco computer company, handles the foredeck where he is responsible for handling headsails and the spinnaker. His is the wettest and most dangerous job. O'Niel Jr. said that Hoover came aboard as a college student and for the first two years shyly accepted everything he was told to do. "By the third year, he started to yell," O'Niel said.

David Otenberger, a 14-year-old Sterling Heights high school student with a maturity that belies his years, shares the tough foredeck duties with Hoover.

Tom Hillock of Yale, Mich., a loan officer at Farm Credit Services, handles the mast and halvards.

Al Gaiefsky of Dearborn, a vice president at Standard Federal Savings, is the head sail trimmer

Greg O'Niel of Dowagiac works the cockpit and takes turns at the helm.

Ken Kerney of Traverse City, who works for Petrostar Oil and is O'Niel Jr.'s son-in-law, is the navigator.

O'Niel Jr. takes the helm and O'Niel III plots strategy.

rim, trim, trim." Gaiefsky Al worked steadily at a winch to bring the sails in tighter. It was a new boat but the years of experience were easily transferred to this newer, longer, faster

Over the winter O'Niel Jr. and O'Niel III became partners in a 41-foot racing boat, selling the successful and proud 35-footer to Ronald E. Sears.

On a cold, rainy Thursday afternoon crew members gathered to try out the new boat that the O'Niels had taken delivery on a week before

The Natalie J. is docked at the Bayview Yacht Club on the Detroit River. The club sponsors the Port Huron to Mackinac race and its members are primarily racing sailors.

The Natalie J. and other boats race every Saturday from May to September in all kinds of weather except dead calm. Over the years the crew of the Natalie J. has borne away 85 flags designating a first, second or third in a racing event. The races are over an Olympicstyle course set out in a pentagonal shape on Lake St. Clair.

The new boat features some of the latest equipment. Developed as a prototype by C&C Yachts of Toronto, the boat was owned for two years by the yacht company's president.

"It has a lot of fancy stuff we haven't used yet," said O'Niel III. "The mast is significantly different. It's bendable and can shape the sails better than with a stiff mast, but it's a lot harder to do it. You can go slower with a flexible mast if you don't turn it right, but a lot faster when it is turned right.'

A central hydraulic system operates the tension of the stay wires that control the mast. Electronic instrumentation gives readouts on wind conditions, wind angle and wind strength.

A Loran is a sophisticated instrument for finding location and marking a course. An onboard computer digests this information to give suggested courses. A computer expert will be coming in to explain how to best use this equipment.

But all the fancy equipment is only as good as the crew that uses it. A crew that depends on each other feels safe.

"That's why you sail with the same crew all the time," said O'Niel III. "Everybody has to know what they're doing. We get calls all the time from people who think it would be fun to go racing.

But it's a lot of hard work. You have to know that you can rely on the guy on the other end to know what he's doing.

A four-cylinder diesel engine is used to take the Natalie J. out into the open water. On this practice run, Peter Gobel of North Sails is on board. An excellent sailor who bears resemblance to actor John Candy and shares Candy's sense of humor, Gobel is aboard, both to promote his sails and to help the crew fine tune their teamwork.

The boat cut swiftly through the water, heeling sharply to starboard. The cold spray barely fazed the crew as they worked quickly over the length of the boat pulling ropes by hand and with winches. A colorful red spinnaker was hoisted, catching a gust of wind and speeding the boat along.

"It's a team sport, but you don't get injured like you do in basketball, hockey or football." said crewman Barker. "It's mental exercise. It gives you a chance to get out before you go home and burn off steam.'

The sails are shifted to make best use of the wind in procedures called tacking and jibing. Gobel called out the orders, crisply, firmly, When the game was afoot the crew was serious about its business. When the procedure went well, Gobel was free with his compliments. As the boat returned under gentle wind, the crew had time to sit, talk and enjoy the feeling of fresh cool air and spray.

Coming on another race boat, the Rage, the crew was set for the challenge. Hands and feet moved swiftly to trim and turn sail for a racing posture. Over on the Rage the crew frantically leaped to life, turning winches and pulling ropes to get into position. The two sleek crafts cut an arc through the water, the Natalie I. taking the inside course. The race was soon given up, a show of bravado by the two boats.

July 19. The Saturday races are fun, the regular games of summer. And Bayview holds an overnight race and the Windsor Yacht Club holds an overnight. But these are all preparation for July 19, the annual Bayview Yacht Club Port Huron to Mackinac race, This and the similar Chicago to Mackinac are the major Great Lakes sailing events of the summer. Racing crews point for those races.

A week before the race, the Natalie J. will be taken up to Port Huron where the O'Niels will try to get a good berth. Sails will be carefully folded and delivered so they come out just as they should. Natalie O'Niel and the other wives will begin preparing food on Tuesday, a well-fed crew being a happy crew.

A diver with a soft cloth will go below and carefully clean the boat's bottom. The bottom has a special smooth paint that causes water to sheet against it. O'Niel Jr. says that paint, a smooth ungouged bottom surface, is 25 percent of a boat's speed.

A safety inspection is made to be sure the boat has all the required safety items - life rafts, man-over-board poles, flares, safety harnesses. A check will be made before and after the race to be sure these are on board.

"Boats that participate in the Port Huron to Mackinac race are the safest boats on the water. Nobody cheats. Everything is backed up. Life comes first, no flag is worth winning for that," said O'Niel Ir.

he big race begins

This year the new Natalie J. has been reclassified to Class A in the Performance Handicap Rating Fleet. It will be competing with larger and swifter boats than the crew has been used to. Each boat, in addition to being classified, is also handicapped based on boat size and other factors to determine potential speed. The handicaps are computed in seconds against competition.

The success of the Natalie J. may be tried this year with a new boat and new competition. But the crew hasn't always known suc-

Chil O'Niel III grows expansive when he describes some of the setbacks that the crew has faced in the big race. In addition to last year's storm, a storm in 1981 made for a wet and rocky race.

The first year the boat was lost in a fog. The Natalie J. finished second to last.

"We didn't know where we were. We came in on the wrong side and saw these two other boats and tried to beat them in," O'Niel III said.

Then there was the time the boat was grounded. The crew had gotten off course and found themselves in shallow water, unable to move. A photographer on shore was able to get a shot of this most embarrassing moment.

The crew has learned a lot since then. With three victories under their belt, they are now going for their fourth and their third in a row.

eter Gobel regaled the crew with funny stories as the light began to die on the Detroit River. A freighter came through the deep channel. The Star of Detroit set out into the drizzly night for a cruise. Small rowboats with outboards carried carp fishers into the murky green river. And other sailboats glided by as the Natalie J. returned to harbor and the crew returned to the warm soup of the Bayview.

The crew was pleased with the workout and with the expensive new toy. Tom Hillock said he liked the feel of it, that despite the extra length it was easier to work because of its shape.

The O'Niels were also pleased with the workout and ready to make a good run at their third in a row.

"This is a crew with sheer determination," said O'Niel Jr. "They will not give up. They are a good bunch who come out to win a race. They fight no matter what."

Schuler is now one of a small group who make a living as professional_bicycle racers. He is part of the 7-Eleven team and is currently ranked fourth on the 7-Eleven Cup Series. The series features 25 races throughout the country, including the recent Millender Center-Trolley Plaza Classic in Detroit and concluding Oct. 16 in Dallas. Schuler finished out of the top 10 in the Millender race, jammed and outmanuevered by a slower team. But he was priming for other races on the circuit better suited to his style that has won him the nickname "The Plow."

The 7-Eleven team was started in 1981 to prepare amateurs for the 1984 Olympics.

"In 1985, the majority turned professionals as the focus in Europe and the U.S. became professional. As a professional you can't ride in the Olympics but you have access to the major races in Europe," Schuler said.

Schuler, a native of Birmingham now living in Minnesota, came home last year to show how much he's learned by winning the Troy Pro-Am Mens Race in the Troy Cycling Grand Prix. That race had a special meaning for him. He said after the race, "I felt a lot of pressure to do well. This wasn't Anytown, U.S.A. This was my hometown. I had a lot of family and

-Schuler-

The life of a professional cyclist is appealing to Shuler. He enjoys the crowds, but once in awhile it's nice just to ride without thought of the crowd aspect.

friends, so it was a very satisfying win."

Professional bicycle racing has a long history and ranks second only to soccer as a spectator sport throughout the world. But in the United States, professional cycling has been long dormant after a period of great popularity and adulation for star cyclists in the early years of the century.

In Europe, top cyclists enjoy the fame of baseball players in the United States.

"It's taken as a serious sport over there. It's ingrained in their culture. You can sit down with any family and bring up bicycling. They're educated on the subject of bicyling, which makes it enjoyable to race there,' Schuler said.

The reaction of Americans is not the same. Schuler said he gets funny looks when he tells people what he does for a living. Promoters of professional bicycling are betting that Americans will find the sport exciting to watch.

Unlike running, where speed is the major consideration, bicycling involves working as a team, using principles of drag to move back and forth in the pack until the best sprinters can move ahead. Going slow at certain points may be the best strategy. Schuler said you have to always know the strengths of different riders and teams, always watching their strategy while mapping your own.

Schuler said that when he began he didn't have a clue what he was doing. He raced in state and national events with the Wolverine club. He said he has good memories of winning and what it feels like to cross the finish line as a winner.

Training for Schuler means- cycling and more cycling during the season. Like many other cyclists, including Olympic skater Eric Heiden, Schuler uses skating and cross country skiing as winter training.

The life of a professional cyclist is appealing to Schuler. He said the backing from 7-Eleven makes it possible to support himself and his wife. He enjoys the crowds that attend the criteriums, races around half-mile to threequarter-mile circuits like the Troy race that drew 11,000 spectators last year.

"I enjoy the criteriums the most because of the action and crowd aspect, lots and lots of crowds." he said.

He also likes the travel and tries to see as much of a city as he can on the circuit. But he doesn't notice the scenery when racing.

"When you're racing, you don't notice much. You never look down when you're racing - you look forward - you scan 20 feet to two miles ahead. You see a little scenery but not much.

Schuler will enjoy the scenery of France July 4-24 when he competes with a 7-Eleven American team in the Tour de France. The team includes Livonia's Jeff Pierce and Olympic gold medalist Alexi Grewal. Schuler and his teammates will be trying their best chess moves on the grand masters of the cycling world.

Less pain, more gain in a group

Summer, 1986

good way to run more is to socialize more.

Suburban Pace

People who band together to discuss nagging injuries, weight loss, workouts, personal records, upcoming races, diets and such non-running topics as the Tigers and what kind of beer to drink generally find themselves motivated to run more.

The Redford Roadrunners are a prime example. The club has about 175 names on its mailing list, and at least 60 runners show up for the weekly Tuesday night runs, which are followed by gobs of pizza and pitchers of beer. To some, the highlight of the night is a stiff workout and friendly though competitive run. To others, it's the beer. Nothing says you have to run and some don't. Want to run slow? Fine. Want to walk, fine.

At one extreme is club member Doug Kurtis, a top marathoner who travels the world looking for interesting 26.2-milers to write about for Michigan Runner magazine. At the other are those for whom "marathon" is just another place to stop for gas.

The club has been meeting for four years. To join, just show up at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the corner of West Chicago and Inkster. Three times out and you're eligible for membership. A $12 entry fee covers the cost of the monthly newsletter.

Three years ago, the Central Business District Association in Detroit ran a small ad in a downtown shopper announcing an organizational meeting of a group to be known as The People Who Run Downtown.

The group has become something of a phenomenon, drawing up to 120 persons downtown for the 5:45 p.m. runs on Tuesday evenings.

Each week the group meets at a different downtown restaurant or pub, runs through the area, then returns for a night of eating, drinking and socializing.

Though many are single and the accent is on socializing, there are serious runners as well, with 12 to 15 veteran marathoners, including Tim Fox, the winner of last year's Free Press International.

Call the CBDA at 961-1403 for a schedule of upcoming runs. which include jaunts through historic Elmwood cemetery, trips to Windsor and picnics on Belle Isle.

The Oakland Runners have a membership of 160. The club sponsors a spring and fall race, winter ski trips, picnics and meets weekly for an informal run of as many as 40 runners.

"We're very loose-knit," says president Scott Heywood. Care for an 8 a.m. workout on Saturdays? Then come to the Sports Center at Oakland University. Distances vary as do abilities.

Club membership is $10 a year and includes discounts at races and area sports shops. For information, call 1-784-5033.

Last but not least, is the Motor City Striders, a venerable organization that traces its history back to the Twenties. The group is 1,000 strong, with membership throughout the metro area.

The Striders sponsor a summer series of short club runs, a picnic, fall cross-country races and put on many of the major races in the Detroit area, including the Free Press International Marathon and the Statue of Liberty 10K. The accent's on running, not socializing. For information, call Ed Kozloff at 544-use the race as a promotion for each town on the circuit.

Each kind of race in the tour offers the bicyclists different challenges and calls on different strengths.

Hughes said the time trial is a race of an indvidual against the clock, testing a person's all out strength. The road race and criteriums are strategy races.

"In a running race, you have hot-shots up front and the rest in the back. You can't do that in bike racing because there is so much strategy. A race can go very slow because they're jamming so much," Hughes said.

Cyclists use drafts to conserve energy and use the strength of other riders against the wind. In team racing, each team member may have a special ability as a rider. A sprinter, for example, may be kept to the back through most of the race so that he can use his strength at the end.

From the strategy of road racing to the quiet relaxation of touring, the appeal of cycling is in the variety of activities.

The cost of a good bicycle has been coming down, according to Hughes. As each new generation of racing bicycle is improved, the cost of quality bicycles for touring comes down. A novice racer can get a good bicycle for $1,000, Hughes said.

To get involved in bicycling, either racing or touring, Hughes recommends joining a club. Hughes said that riding with a group improves riding efficiency, whether you're racing or touring. He said the techniques used for racing are important for recreational cyclists. Wind resistance is reduced and energy conserved riding with a group. For the racer riding with the right group is essential.

"If they know they want to start racing, they should join a club with a racing program." Hughes said.

Hughes is involved with the Wolverine Sports Club, one of three racing clubs in the Detroit area. The club is coached by Mike Walden, who has coached three world champion women cyclists, nine Olympic team riders, a Pan-Am games gold medalists and 60 U.S. national champions over the last 10 years.

Hughes said bicycling is a sport that can be enjoyed at any age.

"Most sports you have to do as a kid, bicycling is the exception. Your peak years are 20 to 35 for cycling. Up to 20, you're still developing. You can be nationally ranked at 45."

Hughes calls himself an inactive racer who "never was much of a racer." But, he says, bicycling is something he can't get out of his blood.
