Settlers featured in future book

A project to preserve old tales about early Canton settlers in a book due out in 1987 is running out of

The Canton Historical Society is planning a luncheon to pick up the shortfall for the book written by Diane F. Wilson of Belleville, co-author with Cathy S. Horste of "Water Uncount of Van Buren Township.

"This book is a stepping stone and shows that Canton is finally putting itself on the map," said Frank McMurray, society member.

"It's a starting point." A sneak preview of the book's title will be revealed at the luncheon, held 11 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 6, at Fellow's Creek Golf Club House. A cash bar will be available. Tickets are $25. For more information, call Tillie Schultz at 453-6084.

THE THREE-YEAR project will cost between $15,000 and $20,000 more, which is about the amount the Historical Society has already spent The money already spent was raised by the society.

"We're asking all business people, organizations and residents to attend the lunch and support us," said Joan

The book will be roughly 500 pages and cost between $25 and $30. The society is planning to print about 1,000 copies initially. September 1987 is the printing target date.

Wilson will weave historical tidbits about the area's first settlers in the early 1800s through the 1930s. The account will reveal stories behind street names and other old-time tales, like how Fellows Creek was Politics isn't a new arena for McMurray, who lost a bid for a Canton trustee post. He ran as a Democrat during the 1984 Republican landslide.

Still McMurray, 47, persistently promotes ideas for the community. And although his suggestions sound a lot like a campaign platform, he said he's not interested in running for public office again.

Drawing from these experiences McMurray suggests the township hire an ombudsman to act as gobetween for the administration and businesses. Although he sees room for improvement, McMurray said, the present administration is more receptive to development than others have been.

Frank McMurray reviews a national report addressing insurance liability.

SITTING IN his office on Canton Center north of Ford Road, McMurray's large frame and full beard create a formidable picture that's softened by a constant smile.

While performing his job as insurance agent, McMurray often gets an inside look at the problems and successes of businesses and residential areas in Canton.

Restrictive ordinances - some eliminated and others that remain - have stopped some small businesses from opening up shop in the

Keep drugs out of schools McClendon

By Kevin Brown

Nancy Reagan's "Just Say No" approach to drug abuse among the young may be suitable for educating elementary pupils. But state educators must do more to keep drugs from undermining middle and high school education.

E.J. McClendon, president of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education, recently made these points to educators gathered at Lansing's Clarion Hotel for the annual Middle Cities Education Association meet-

A professor of public health at the University of Michigan, McClendon urged the representatives of middlesized school districts to establish policies geared to dealing with kids who abuse drugs, and to provide counseling for kids with emerging substance abuse problems and those returning to the schools from inpatie it treat-

McCLENDON - a former Wayne County director of school health who in the mid-'60s wrote the first guide for teachers dealing with student drug problems - presented a fourpoint proposition:

· While drug abuse may not originate in the schools, administrators should shoulder some responsibility for fighting it. "Kids doing drugs can't get an effective education, McClendon stressed. And because society invests heavily in the schools, suming this responsibility, he added.

kids' motives for using drugs, and McClendon said he asked the school district representatives if they knew how "crack" cocaine was made One hand went up. I asked them if they knew what 'angel dust' was nobody . . . We can't guide them if we don't know.'

 School boards should set policy geared to the premise that students with alcohol or drug problems shouldn't be allowed to "visit prob-lems on their peers," said McClendon, quoting 1973 state guidelines for dealing with students' substance abuse problems. Telling students to "Just Say No" isn't enough, "when they're saying 'where can I get it,' " he said. And warnings of the evils of alcohol, often met with laughter, may be more effective if the cumulative effects of drinking are stressed

 With concern about drugs in the schools rising among parents, school administrators should provide better education on drug abuse prevention, and also provide after-care counseling for students with substance abuse problems returning to school.

McCLENDON SAID alcohol-related problems shouldn't be downplayed in relation to drug abuse, with an estimated 11 million to 14 million alcoholics in the United States, compared to an estimated 1 million addicted to drugs.

In the Plymouth-Canton schools, 'We're ahead of the game a great deal on this," said McClendon, following a period in the late '70s when the district's two high schools "were drug stores

Tempers surge with recent basement flooding of water in their basement last week

Diana and Jon Oatley, of Brandywyne, vacuum the 2-3 inches

By Diane Gale

It's easy to tell which homes have basements that filled with water after flash floods or heavy rains.

Carpeting, children's toys, books, furniture and anything that could be stored in a basement line the streets on garbage pickup day as a clue to which blocks have sewer problems.

"It was gushing out of the drain like a geyser, and I thought there's no way I'm going down there," said Joan Taylor of Windsor Park subdivision, referring to her flooded basement last week.

Most recently, residents in Windsor Park, Carriage Hill and Mayfair subdivisions are complaining about the seasonal malady that spreads from home to home. Windsor Park is north of Warren east of Sheldon, Carriage Hills is north of Ford and east and west of Sheldon, and Mayfair is at Morton Taylor and Sheldon.

Last Thursday and Friday the Canton Water Department received 32 calls from residents reporting flooded basements, according to Carol Quinn, water department su-

"When there's a tornado warning I tell my kids to go downstairs but if the power goes out I tell them to only go half way so they don't drown," said Eleanor Lipscomb, referring to her electrically operated sump pump.

LIPSCOMB HAS lived on Brandywyne in Windsor Park for 15 years and has had problems with flooding now I'm looking at getting a battery generator. It gives me a real yuck that we get our sewer bills, they charge us for sewer service and they use our basements for the sewage. Her neighbor, Joan Taylor, has lived in Canton for about 15 months and is shocked that her basement floods regularly.

"The basement smells terrible, and I can't stand it," Taylor said. "It's not only a hassle but a health hazard.'

Everytime her basement fills with what she believes is backed-up sewage she cleans it out and scrubs with disinfectant. Canton Building Director Aaron Machnik said in May 1986 he developed a policy that all new homes must have sump pumps. It was a response to "reduce the impact on the sanitary system."

Diana Oatley, also of Brandywyne, asked: "Why isn't there some program to help us?"

DEPARTMENT OF Public Works Director Jake Dingeldey doesn't guarantee solutions but does offer

At Annapolis Hospital, we know that vital signs are an important measure of progress, for a hospital as well as a patient. That's why at Annapolis, we're constantly monitoring our own vital signs in order to determine how we can help serve you

Right now, Annapolis is completing an addition which will house the hospital's new CT Scanner, a project designed to further improve diagnostic services. Future plans include extensive remodeling of the pediatric and obstetric units. These and other planned improvements, combined with medical and surgical advancements and new services such as adolescent substance abuse and occupational health programs, enable us to respond to all patient needs.

At Annapolis Hospital, we're dedicated to the progress of family health care. And that's a good sign for everyone.

Sewer politics raises big stink come adjusted to the political maneuverings of county government, particularly the county Department of Public Works and drain commission office. Until recently the state government had removed itself from that nonsense. Last week the Michigan Department of Natural Reources entered the fray of backroom

The latest is a threat from the DNR to fine Canton $10,000 a day for violating the Water Resources Commission Act unless the community agrees to participate in Son of Super Sewer. Actually the threat is not as ominous as it sounds. Canton could pay the $10,000-aday fine for more than four years and still not reach the $17 million cost the state and county want to assess.

True, Canton would pay all that money and not have a sewer at the end of live years. Yet Canton has tried being a 'participant" for the past 20 years with Super Sewer and doesn't have a sewer been waiting for two decades for Super Sewer and the county and state have been unable to deliver. For two decades the quality of water in western Wayne has been threatened by lack of Super Sewer, now, at the midnight hour, the DNR would fine Canton $10,000 a day and absolve from guilt itself, the county, and 15 other "participating" com-

For two decades, throughout western Wayne combined sanitary/storm systems have existed — to the full knowledge of the state and county - and there has been no outcry from the state that the threat to public health is such that it warrants a $10,000-a-day fine.

The truth is that Canton's refusal to 'participate" in Son of Super Sewer does not represent any significant threat to water quality or public health in comparision to the collective harm done by 15 other communities over two decades with combined systems and/or under-capacity sewers. The truth is that the DNR's threat is politically motivated blackmail aimed at forcing "participation" instead of facing reality and dealing logically with the issues.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of irrational olitical maneuvering by the DNR is etters of "non-compliance" to 11 alleged "non-participating" communities to force review of their individual sewer systems. More nonsense

Wayne County DPW when it tried to much sense as last week's posturing. blackmail the city into participating in Super Sewer. Under such pressure, the Sewer over two decades, being a "parthat it had all the sewer capacity it perpetuating a myth.

ESTERN WAYNE County needed for the future and would not communities long have be benefit in the future and would not By agreement, though, the city signed some sort of statement of need (for the benefit of the federal government) making it a "participant" on paper. In return the county agreed the city would not participate in the cost since it would not reap any benefit.

Now the DNR apparently is suggesting the city of Plymouth might be at or ear or closer to capacity and somehow ought to review its position as a "participant." The reality is that the city's population has declined over the past decade. If it was under-capacity a decade ago it clearly remains under-capacity today. The only reason the compliance letter was sent is that the DNR is fishing for a 17th community to share in the cost. What's involved is not need but the politics of finance.

And like other evils, money is at the root of what stinks about the present Son of Super Sewer shenanigans.

Look at the numbers. The project cost is some $110 million of which Canton's share" as one of 16 "participants" is That's one reality the DNR and DPW $17 million. If Canton drops out, the need to recognize. Western Wayne has DNR pontificates, the share to the other 15 will increase 17 percent and that wouldn't be fair or equitable.

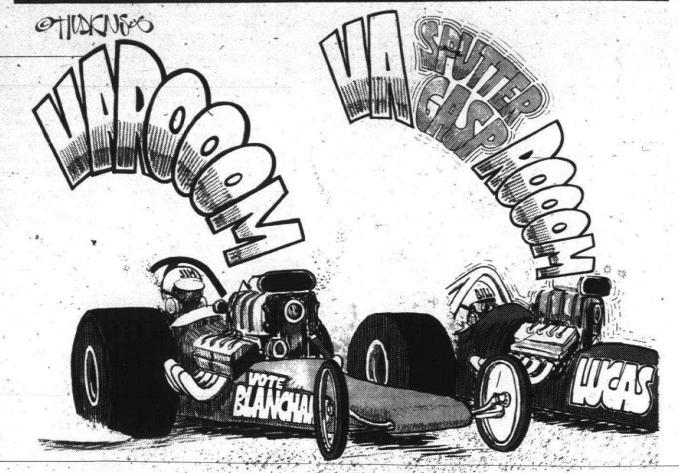

The DNR does not address the equity or fairness of a downstream muncipality paying $17 million to dispose of sewage, part of the volume of which comes from upstream. Yet Novi, one of 16 participants farther upstream, is being assessed much less. Has Novi experienced less development than Canton over the past 10 years? Has Canton somehow contributed that much more to the problem than Novi that it warrants a $17 million assessment

But the county and state do not want to discuss fairness and equity. Instead both allowed Plymouth and Canton townships to file lawsuits, both failed to work out a compromise during those intervening months, and then at midnight both cock the gun and hold it to the head of "non-participants."

The issue is complex. To insist on participating without realistically looking at the equity of how the costs are assessed is high-handed. And to attempt to drag in municipalities like the city of Plymouth, with no demonstrated need, at the midnight hour is a sham.

Many regionalists argue against Super Sewer or Son of Super Sewer because increasing sewer capacity will foster further development in the western suburbs at the expense of Detroit and its inner city. Maybe the solution the state should accept is for Canton to The city of Plymouth, a decade ago, was brow-beaten and maligned by the $10,000-a-day fine. That makes as

SOME REPUBLICANS decry the general appearance of the Lucas campaign. Too nice, too soft, a critic complains. It's not a smashing tackle that leaves the opposing runner sprawled on the ground. It's more like a beauty conrace for example. It's not the stuff that enables an Blanchard is responsible for the fact underdog well behind in the polls to overtake an incumbent governor.

The critics have a point. There may have been a time when pollsters were way off, but not in recent years. There may be some truth to the statement that polls only measure attitude on the day they are conducted and that public opinion can have shifted in between the day the poll is taken and the day the campaign. Alas, there is none that will capture the public's imagination. The problem is that despite every candidate's effort to speak to issues that will influence voters, voters pay little attention to most so-called issues. They mostly vote for candidates they feel comfortable with. The governor does not make people feel uncomfortable.

In this political contest, there are seemingly no issues that will enable a candidate to pick up the kind of ground Lucas needs to make up. Even the oftdiscussed 38-percent tax increase that Blanchard wrested from the state Legislature in 1983 fizzles as an issue. According to the same Detroit News poll, 50 percent of the voters contacted approved of the tax increase.

WHAT'S LEFT for Lucas to come out with? He can't compare his record in office with Blanchard's because Blanchard's statistics are better. He can say that this is a chance to make history, but are voters really ready to throw out an incumbent governor during relatively good economic times to make history for some future generation to

Liability issue probed

Job providers in Michigan blame attorneys and jury awards for skyrocketing commercial liability rates. That was the result of a recent survey sponsored by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce and the Michigan Association of Insurance Cos.

Cos.

"The results of this survey indicate that the legal profession is perceived as having the greatest negative impact on the liability crisis in Michigan," said James Barrett, president of the Michigan State Chamber.

"This statement by Michigan business should give the Legislature and administration the encouragement and support they need to take the next step toward tort reform—product liability legislation."

CONDUCTED BY Marketing Resource Group, Lansing, the survey

But 81 percent of those responding to the survey said rates should be set by free market competition, not through state government control.

"The liability crisis remains a major problem for Michigan businesses," Barrett said. "Although the recently passed tort reform package was an important first step, more has to be done. The issue is far from being resolved."

THE TELEPHONE survey of 370 Michigan State Chamber members was conducted in mid-August. Respondents included business and industry of all sizes representing all areas of the state.

Taste of success is sweet

RIDAY NIGHT'S performance of "Harry and Sylvia" at Centennial Educational Park was a good one for the Plymouth Park Play-

"It went fine," said Gloria Logan, theater arts director. "They did a really good job of coping with the dangers of live performance."

Richard Strand's "Harry and Sylvia" is both an actor's dream and a nightmare, Logan said. Its wonderful characters make it a good play to perform. The unpredictable props — such as cigarettes that must shoot out of the pack just so — make it a difficult production.

"They were absolutely wonderful with that, thinking on their feet," the theater arts director

The comedy featured four young actors: Ryan Slavin as Harry Shorr, a television clown; Dana Pressede as Sylvia, his ex-wife; Karen Massey as Doris Goldberg, Harry's agent; and Shannon Silve as the studio prop kid.

Children can learn to put their money to good use right from the start. Opening a savings account can help a child learn to save money.

Saving for a rainy day is a good habit

By Julie Brown staff writer

AN ALLOWANCE is more than a collection of coins or dollar bills given to a child or teenager. It's also a learn-

"It teaches them an appreciation, first of all, of the value of money," said Vanessa Harris, extension home economist for the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service. Receiving an allowance can help children learn the basics of money management.

The amount of an allowance will vary from family to family. Generally, children in the second grade or thereabouts should receive a maximum allowance of $2 or $3 a week, Harris said.

That amount can be increased to approximately $5 a week by the fourth or fifth grade, particularly for children who are responsible for paying for their school lunches.

Household chores can be combined with receiving an allowance.

"That certainly could be a part of it," Harris said. Doing such chores also helps give youngsters an understanding of what the world of work

CHORES FOR younger children can include taking out the trash, keeping children's bedrooms neat, picking up toys and helping with dishes. Younger children can also help with the care and feeding of a household pet:

Older children can tackle more demanding tasks, such as doing heavier cleaning, mowing the lawn, doing laundry, cooking, "perhaps even helping with the grocery shopping," Harris said.

Jobs outside of the home can help teach teenagers how to manage money wisely. Such jobs also help teach other levels of responsibility.

Teenagers with baby-sitting jobs can learn how to care for young children and how to handle emergency situations. Jobs outside of the home also help teenagers develop their interpersonal skills.

"It's a good learning experience,"

Confining the hours of work to Friday through Sunday is ideal, she said, in that it leaves the rest of the week free for school responsibilities. If that's not possible, it's best for teenagers to work no more than three or four liours a day during the week.

Having some days without any work hours also will help teenagers keep up with their schoolwork.

Once teenagers or younger children have earned that money, it's important to put it to good use.

OPENING A savings account is a good idea, Harris said, although parents will have to help younger children keep track of the account and handle transactions. Having such an account will help children learn to save money right from the start.

Older high school students in the 11th or 12th grades may want to open their own checking accounts. They're more likely than younger students to have sufficient earnings to merit opening such an account.

"Again, (it's) teaching them the responsibility of a checking account," Harris said.

Teenagers can also assume some responsibility for paying their own way in recreational activities, she said. Doing so will help them understand that if they want to go to the movies on Saturday night, they can't spend all their money by mid-week.

Learning to save money will help teenagers who wish to purchase a high-cost item, such as a stereo.

It's also helpful to have teenagers take some responsibility for the cost of proms or other special activities, she said. They can also pay for an item of specialty clothing, "as long as it has their parents' approval."

Teenagers should also participate in major financial decision-making in a family, Harris said. Doing so will help them understand the family's financial situation.

Parents need to communicate with their children, she said, helping youngsters learn how to handle money wisely.

"They have to be the guiding force."

Auctions clinch home sales

By Carolyn Smith special writer

A Livonia businessman has sold 380 homes in the last six months. Matching efforts could have posed quite an endurance test to several real es-

But James Hess, president of Bankers Real Estate Outlet, did his work in a new-fashioned way: He sold all the homes at auctions.

Products of foreclosures, they are considered "real bargains" on the auction block, Hess said. The bank, savings and loan institution or mortgage company saves about $1,000 per month in holding costs, plus the expense of repairs and other contingencies by selling the houses at auction. "That means a big savings to the buyer as well." Hess said.

The typical second- or third-owner home will require about $6,000 for repairs including new carpeting, paint, modest decorating and remodeling. "We tell the bank not to repair, just mow the lawn. Let the purchaser do it. That alone is a tremendous saving to the seller and the buyer.

Hess has been in the auction business for 15 years, netting more than 2,500 home sales. He opened the Livonia office about 11/2 years ago. "I wanted to start managing house auctions better than I'd seen them done here and elsewhere in the country," he said.

Although Hess holds most auctions in the metropolitan Detroit area, selling an average of 70 each time, he also manages auctions out of state.

He lists the homes much like a real estate agent

- with newspaper and direct mail advertisements. He holds one- or two-day open houses, depending on the weather and time of year. A prospective buyer may bring any real estate special-It or inspector to the home. There are no price

At the auction, bidders view slides of the homes. There are no minimum bids, and the highest bidders win property rights. The average sale is for $17,000. Bidders must post $2,500 in earnest money which is used to supplement the down payment on a successful bid.

Hess cautions every buyer: "If you back out, we'll take your money and keep it." And he tells sellers before each auction: "Without fail, there are four or five properties on which you're going to have to take a loss, make it up on others." More often than not, he added, the buyer and the seller are pretty happy.

Bankers Real Estate Outlet also arranges for home financing. Buyers intending to live in the home must post a 5 percent down payment; others must post 10 percent. A closing date is arranged at auction, and closing is usually within 40 days.

MAJOR ADVANTAGES of buying a home at an auction include price savings and an ability to control spending, Hess said. "If your budget won't allow you to spend more than $30,000, you won't be bidding $50,000."

There are four different types of buyers: • The speculator, who repairs and resells the

• The investor, who rents it for specific returns on the investment

• The casual investor, who usually lives in the same neighborhood where the home is located. Often, the person buys the home for a relative or rents it for additional income. Forty percent of all home auction sales are made to casual investors.

 The owner-occupant, who wants to save money on a home purchase. "We try to market the homes to this type of buyer, but he or she represents only 25 percent of our sales," Hess said.

"I take a certain segment of the population out of the real estate market on the sound assumption that everybody likes to save money," Hess said. But he thinks there are certain people who should not buy homes at auction.

"If they don't have a grasp of a value - or what it costs to get repairs done - they shouldn't bid. And if they're not ambitious or skilled in home repairs, they should seek other ways to purchase a home."

Although most homes Hess sells are in the city of Detroit, he said every scheduled auction includes homes in the suburbs. Within the Observer & Eccetric circulation area, he has sold them in Plymouth, Livonia, Garden City, Westland, Farm-

Real estate rebel heads own

By Carolyn Smith special writer

J.R. Paine worked three years for two major real estate companies before deciding what she and her colleagues were doing was "a ripoff" to people whose homes they sold.

So Paine, a self-described maverick who prefers using initials to her first name, Joyce, founded Home Marketing Specialists in Southfield. Only a few months old, it is an association of 10 real estate specialists including attorneys, brokers and marketing, advertising and financial experts who have "200 years of real estate experience among us."

The company's fee for selling any home is a flat $1,400 "or less if the selling price is under $50,000,

Paine also wrote and had published this year a 77-page paperback guide, the "Smart Homeseller's Sale by Owner Kit," which she markets from her office for $19.95 plus sales

The book details steps to take to sell a home - from pricing and advertising to financing arrangements, tax laws and the closing. It offers tips on "action ads" and holding open houses. It spells out essentials elements of a valid contract and remedies if a buyer breaches it.

James Hess: Houses he sells at auction typically require $6,000 in repairs and redecorating.

SO WHY DID Paine leave the traditional real estate fold? She begns slowly.

"For 95 percent of the people, a home is the largest single financial investment. Let's say a home was purchased five years ago at $65,000. The owner put in an average $10,000 in improvements over those five years, boosting the value to $75,000. The home sells for $100,000, leaving a total capital gain of $25,000.

"But," she says, raising a finger. The pace quickens, her tone a bit more strident. "But out of that $25,000 comes a $6,000 commission to the Realtor (based on a 6 pecent fee), and the seller is left with only Paine recalls her days as an agent: "I saw unhappiness on the faces of my clients, which made me feel miserable. I and some of the other Realtors felt our system was unjust. No one, myself included, had put in that kind of time and effort to warrant that kind of money . . . We've got a helpless public. It's time a wrong be righted.

She calls the 6 percent commission made by real estate agents "a ripoff" and "an unfair tax." Why a tax? "Well, what else is it? A tax also can be levied without passing a law. This is taxation without representation."

Paine stressed it is illegal to set a standard rate of commission for real estate agentss. "But in practice, everyone charges 6 percent. That's been the case for years.'

Another complaint of Paine's is that real estate agents are not properly trained, saying that they take 30 hours of classes and "a simple test."

Paine's business and her book were met with mixed reactions, she said. There were some threats against her. There was some quiet praise from people in the business. But mostly, "there was this 'How But mostly, "there was this 'How could you do this to my bread and complaint

JEROME DELANEY, vice president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, said he hasn't heard of Paine or read her book. But he called her thinking part of "a long, ongoing debate" between the real estate industry and its adversaries.

An associate broker for Weir, Manuel, Snyder & Ranke in Plymouth, Delaney denied Paine's claim that Realtors aren't working hard enough to earn their money for clients.

"The real service is getting the job done and the expertise involved . . . All businesses should be run like our ours. We get paid for our perform-

Delaney produced an internal memo to office colleagues in which he suggests they point out several services available to those selling their homes themselves. Among them is a weighty list of legal services Delaney claims can't be done by homeowners themselves.

"That's the tack they always take," Paine said. "They are trained to tell clients how stupid they are, to intimidate them.

Delaney takes issue with Paine's charge that most Realtors charge a -percent commission. "Some charge more or less than 6 percent, depending on the situation. There are so many types of business transactions, it's hard to say what the commission rate should be." --

The Realtor's greatest advantage, Delaney said, is the ability to communicate with buyers and sellers as an objective third party. "If I were seling my own home, I don't think I'd be objective," he said. "That kind of communication is very important. And we happen to do it very well.'

Housing sales vary

Residential sales data collected by the Western Wayne-Oakland County Board of Realtors shows a 9 percent gain in sales over 1985, with prices rising 17 percent over last year. The South Oakland board reported sales slipped by 4 percent, while prices increased 20 percent. The Traverse City area leads the state in increased sales, registering a gain of 39 percent. But prices there have fallen 3 percent since last year. Statewide totals, reported by the Michigan Association of Realtors, show an increase in sales volume of 14 percent, with the price of the average home rising 10 percent over 1985 figures.

Stocks analyst bullish on economy

By Tedd Schneider staff writer

"Wall Street Week" panelist Frank Cappiello, disputing current pessimism among economists, told a seminar at Oakland Community College Saturday that the U.S. economy's glass is half full, not half empty.

"You're hearing a lot of recessionary talk now," Cappiello told approximately 175 people attending a Financial Independence Week seminar at the college's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills.

"But there is a minority of us who believes this is nonsense

Cappiello said his upbeat prediction for the next 12-18 months was based on the current "bicoastal boom" and a midwestern industrialagricultural sector that has hit bottom and will soon rebound.

Cappiello, who delivered the keynote address at the daylong seminar, said that the New England states were the "hottest area of the country" in terms of economic growth. And the western U.S., with the exception of oil-dominated Texas, continues to hold its own. But because the emphasis of America's economy is shifting away from heavy industry and toward

'Ten or 15 years ago, if we had these conditions the country would have been on the throes of a deep recession. But the service sector on the west coast and heavy consumer spending on both coasts are responsible for keeping the rest of the country afloat.' - Frank Cappiello Wall Street analyst high-tech and services, the midwestern "recession" hasn't dragged the entire country down with it, Cappiel-

"TEN OR 15 years ago, if we had these conditions the country would have been on the throes of a deep recession," Cappiello said. "But the service sector on the west coast and heavy consumer spending on both coasts are responsible for keeping the rest of the country afloat. At the same time, the nationally known financial analyst said conditions in the energy, agriculture and manufacturing segments of the economy have "bottomed out."

He predicted a rebound in the price of oil from the current $12-$15 per barrel to the low-$20 range by the end of next year.

Cappiello said the falling U.S. dollar is helping heavy industry in its fight with foreign competition because American-made products represent a better buy both here and in Cappiello, who has served as both host and a panelist on PBS television's "Wall Street Week" and as a financial expert on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," was chief investment officer of a New York insurance holding company for 12 years, He also served as research director for a major stock brokerage firm.

In addition to Cappiello's address, the seminar featured workshops on basic financial planning, retirement needs, evaluating investment options, tax planning and insurance.

JANICE SCHWEIZER, a certified financial planner with offices in Plymouth, said planners are not a tool only used by the wealthy.

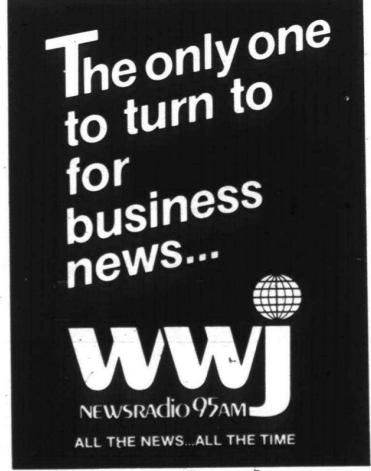

In fact, Schweizer said it is middle-income people who should seek out a good financial planner because they are the ones who "can't afford to make mistakes with their money.

Schweizer said a planner will go through six steps with a client: collecting data, setting goals, analyzing data, providing a written plan, implementing the plan and periodic review and revision.

Another organizer of the seminar, Thomas Brubaker, presented participants with a list of 10 questions they should ask when hiring a financial planner

Golf, fishing or B&B—state has a book on it

The Michigan Travel Bureau has published several guide books about special travel interests in Michigan. State tourism director John Savich has sent these books about fishing charters, golf courses and bed-and breakfast inns to editors nationwide. Most Americans werel within their own state or to adjoining states, so these practical guides will be of even more interest to Michigan travelers than they will be to out-ofstate visitors. All of this activity is a warmup to the sesquicentennial ac-tivities that will be held when Michigan celebrates its 150th birthday

GOLF IN MICHIGAN, a guide to the 10,000 greens of the Great Lakes State, lists golf courses region-by-reout Michigan. A quick count of golf courses listed in the index, from A-Ga-Ming in Antrim to Ye Olde CC in non, looks more like 500 than 10,000 to me, but I guess it is OK to exaggerate a little when you are celebrating your birthday.

Hey, Plymouth say hello to your new hockey club

By Chris McCosky staff writer

The Hennessey Engineers' North American Junior Hockey League season opens tomorrow - that loud sigh of relief you just heard came from A.J. Baker.

It has been a long, long struggle for Baker and all others concerned with the Junior A club since Baker accepted the head coaching job after last season.

Talk about having to start from scratch. First thing Baker had to do was find a place for his team to play. The Engineers, the successor to the Redford Royals, moved out of the Redford Arena where it had played for nine years.

After an agonizing search, the Engineers were taken in by the city of Plymouth and will play their games out of the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Secondly, the club lost its financial backing. Hennessey Engineering, who had put up close to $38,000 to run the club last year, backed out

Baker set out, virtually alone, to find a sponsor. He's still searching.

Meanwhile, the Engineers Hockey Club, in effect, has gone into receivership. The North American Junior Hockey League will allow the team to play this season. If no sponsorship is gained, it could be the Engineers' final season.

BUT THAT is in the background for now. Baker's attentions, at last, focus on the ice. And happily, what Baker has on the ice is far more encouraging than the club's financial

The Plymouth-Canton community should have itself an exciting Junior A hockey team.

"I'm very optimistic about this team," said Baker, who helped coach year in the four-team NAJHL. "We have two outstanding goalies and with some work, the defense will be strong. Our team speed is good. We're not big up front, by any means. But our defensemen make up for that."

Baker has brought together a solid mixture of experience and youth. He has six players back from last year, plus eight high school-aged draftees.

"Hockey Weekly Magazine made a big deal about the fact that we drafted a lot of high school players," Baker said. "They were comparing Midget AAA hockey to high school hockey in Michigan. They feel that Midget AAA is head and shoulders above high school.

"I disagree. If you put the topnotch high school players together, they would have no problems competing with the Midgets. The trick is knowing where to find the top-notch high school players."

Baker ought to know. He organizes the annual All-Stater High School Hockey Classic and keeps very close tabs on the high school talent

"A LOT OF the players we drafted ended up going to college or are playing in Canada," Baker said. "But many players that had fallen through the cracks, the unknown quantities, ended up in our camp. Those players, even though they weren't drafted, will benefit our team and the league."

If a team's strength can be determined this early, the Engineers might be tough to score on. Goalies Dave Church, who played last season, and Doug Brown from Ann Arbor Huron are expected to be among the league's toughest

On defense, Baker has Tom Mad-

THE LEAGUE

The North American Junior Hockey League is the only Junior A hockey league in Michigan. The league is for players be-tween the ages of 17 and 20. Teams may keep three 16-year-olds on the roster. The league has been in existence since 1975. It was formerly called the Great Lakes Junior A Hockey League It became the North American Hockey League in 1984 when teams from Buffalo and Chicago joined. This year, the league features the following teams: Compuware (Oak Park), the Fraser Falcons, the Chicago Patriots and the Hennessy Engineers (Plymouth). Teams will also play games with Miami University, West Point and a team of Junior B

THE PURPOSE

The North American Junior Hockey League exists for two reasons: to prepare players to compete at the college level and to provide players exposure to both college scouts and NHL scouts.

THE ARENA

The Engineers will play their 17 home games Friday nights at the Plymouth Cultural Center, located at 525-Farmer Road in Plymouth. The arena, which seats 1,200, is supervised by Chuck Skene and the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department.

Farmington boots Canton; Rocks on a shutout spree

About the only thing harder than winning for the Farmington soccer team this season has been scoring

The team overcame both obstacles Monday, defeating Western Lakes foe Plymouth Canton 3-1.

"We're starting to get the ball into the net," said Falcons' coach Ed Bar-tram. "This was the most goals we've scored in one game this year."

Canton's Todd Nichols scored the game's first goal off an assist from Pat Frederick Farmington tied the game before the half on Tom Gammerath's goal from Darrin Magera.

"We're rolling now," Johnson said. Against the resurgent Farmington Harrison Hawks (ranked among the top 10 in Class B), Salem got second half goals from Ted Hanosh, Andy Sharma and Jeff Gold. Hanosh also had two assists. Randy Balconi also drew an assist.

Salem outshot Harrison 26-10. It was the first time this season Harrison (6-4-1 overall, 4-4-1 in the Western Lakes) has been shut out.

On Saturday, Salem blanked North Farmington 5-0.

Hanosh and Zaretti scored early to give Salem a 2-0 lead, then Dennis Reynolds and Joe Cosenza teamed up on three tallies in the final four minutes of the match. Reynolds scored one off Cosenza's assist. Then Reynolds set up two Cosenza goals.

O'Malley preserved his shoutout, by stopping a penalty kick in the Salem, which had lost to North

N. FARMINGTON 6, NORTH-VILLE 1: The Raiders ended a week of frustration with this win on Monday. Monty Najar, emerging as one of the area's premier scorers, tallied four times to lead the win.

Pete Keller and Dave McGrath also scored. Tim McMinn chipped in North Farmington is 7-3-2 on the

In front of more than 1,000 enthusiastic fans at Birmingham Brother Rice, Ladywood outlasted Mercy 62-54 in overtime. It was Ladywood's hird consecutive victory against the Marlins and Mercy's third consecutive loss this season - both firsttime occurrences in Mercy baskethall history.

"Two good basketball teams, one great game," said Ladywood coache Ed Kavanaugh. It was every bit that.

Said Mercy coach Larry Baker: "Certainly, we feel no shame in losing this game tonight. In one sense, we had some bad breaks. We executed two good offensive possessions i the overtime and I'm pleased with that even though the shots didn't fall. "But I'm mostly pleased with the heart and character we showed, giving it everything we possibly could to claw and scratch our way back into a position where we had two opities to win the game."

It was McNulty, Ladywood's 6-2 junior center, who put Mercy in the hole in the first place. In a two-minute stretch of the second quarter she blocked five shots (in five consecutive possessions) and scored six points. Her effort transformed a onepoint Mercy lead into 32-23 Lady-

End of the line? Churchill puts streak on line vs. Hawks

By Brad Emons and Chris McCosky

T'S TIME TO sit back, reassess and try to figure out what's going on in Observer-land football.

Forget the thunder, lightning and storms last weekend, which caused five games to be postponed for one day. There were some startling deopments over the weekend, and going into Week No. 5, we find ome revelations.

Livonia Churchill is the only un eaten team left in the area. And let's not be too quick to point the finger at the Chargers' weak schedule. Churchill's opponents are 5-11

Idea homes get 'lived-in' look

Don Lonski (left) and Carl Freiwald are part of the design team that did three of the 12 houses in this year's Homearama, held in Livonia this year. Believability is the design firm's trade-

LOT OF clients of the interior design firm of Perlmutter and Freiwald never live in the homes decorated for them. In fact, they never in-tended to. The Franklin firm has become of the area's foremost designers of builder/developer model

For the fourth straight year the designers have been selected to furnish model homes in Homearama. This year the showcase of homes is being held in Livonia, continuing through Oct. 12.

Three of the dozen models are

The specialty accounts for 25 percent of the firm's business according to Carl Freiwald, half of the partnership of Perlmutter and Freiwald. With Jack Perlmutter and 26 employees, the designers operate from a Franklin road address with warehouses in Oak Park and Farmington.

WORKING WITH builders requires a little more than just being a good interior designer, Freiwald

"Our objective is to sell their product - the home. We work with the same builders over and over again, so we must be successful. A lot of 'decorators' just want to show their designs."

To sell that product, Freiwald said, requires looking at the people who are likely to buy it.

"We look at the product. Who is it targeted for economically? What's the age, life style, part of town? We try to key that toward the builder's market."

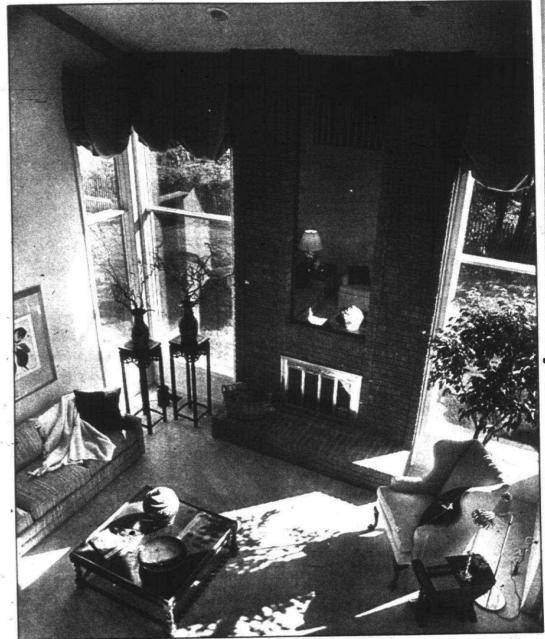

While the majority of P & F's regular individual clients own homes of $200,000 and up, Homearama models and other builders' projects undertaken have ranged $150,000-$175,000, a prime consideration in planning.
"Livonia, for instance," Freiwald said, "is a family area. We wouldn't put in slick marble and glass tables with white leather couches. We're creating warm, comfortable, family-oriented homes for Livonia.

P & F's contract with builder/ developers ideally begins before the construction crews ever see the site. The consultants often advise on architecture, room-planning and exteriors as well. Involvement in the early stages allows the principals to buy furniture and accessories specifically for a project. They visit New York, Dallas and other design centers frequently on buying trips for models.

"THE BOTTOM LINE is will the customer buy the home. A lot of times it's the interior that sells a home. We give them what they want and expect in that home. Are they expecting marble in the master bath? In West Bloomfield it's a must. Is it a $160,000 home in Farmington Hills? Ceramic baths are a must."

A potential customer must feel comfortable in the home and able to relate to living there. Freiwald said. "We have to make the models believable. We rarely use way-out furniture forms; the average customer has to be able to project show a floating bed and electronic gadgetry. It has to be conservative, within the realm of believability, without being boring."

The "gathering room" in the Newport model has a lived-in look, complete with an afghan casually positioned on the couch.

Part of the trick of believability are the little touches, said Dan Lonski, P & F's "ace in model design." Once the tone, direction and color have been selected and the floor and wall coverings and major furniture chosen, Lonski steps in to add the final touches — towels, soaps, flower arrangements. For a recent Sterling Heights condominium project, he stopped at a local flower store to see "what was desirable for that area. It was not orchids. In Bloomfield, you can get a little wilder.'

Lonski's touches are evident in the Homearama models - sports posters in a teen boy's room, a doll's tea set and fashionable bar rettes in a young girl's room, oven mitts on a kitchen counter, a knitting basket of yarn and needles.

The idea is to give it a unique character, something to remember, Lonski said. Several years ago it was a bedroom scenario bedtray with stationery on it and a half-finished letter extolling the new home. It ended "Whoops. There's someone at the door to deliver the Seville . . . " There was a Seville in the garage, and the idea, Freiwald said, was a real showstopper. "It sounds dumb, but it's interesting that people notice that attention to detail."

THIS YEAR'S showstopper is likely to be the life-size plaster monkey installed by Lonski in the greenhouse of the Dorchester model, complete with his basket of ba-

'We have to make the models believable. We rarely use way-out furniture forms; the average customer has to be able to project themselves there.'

— Carl Freiwald

Occasionally the designers are too successful and model viewers relate too well. Freiwald tells of the time they filled empty brandname perfume bottles with colored water to put on display. The bottles were pilfered. "Next time we filled them with vinegar."

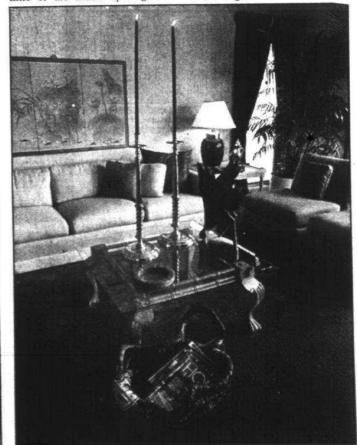

holes in lacquered bread on display and even taken bites. Small strips of wallpaper have been ripped off the walls for samples.

Builders' schedule delays have also meant times when P & F staff people have worked right up to the time of the model opening, and sometimes beyond. In one Southfield project, scheduled for a VIP open house at 6 p.m., they started bringing the furniture in at 5 p.m. while 10 guests stood around waiting for entry.

The delay posed little problem for the designers, except for the was covered couch, which was to be hand-painted. The couch was completed, guests were let in and two staff people were posted to prevent guests from sitting on the still-wet fabric.

"One lady in a cocktail dress got by," Freiwald said. "She now has a P & F original."

Rolling Mennonite interest gathers Moss fans

HE PAINTINGS of P. Buckley Moss draw the viewer into a peaceful world filled with gentle people and tame animals.

Moss, a Virginia artist who has won international acclaim for her paintings of Mennonite people, re-cently visited the Frame Works Gallery in Plymouth to publicize her work and meet with fans.

"I don't do anything to order," explained the 53-year-old artist. "I have to be inspired. If I'm inspired, I will do it."

Moss, who likes to be called Pat, grew up on Staten Island, N.Y. For the past 20 years, she has lived in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, where she became acquainted with the simple, deeply religious Amish and Mennonite people who live a bygone lifestyle.

"I WAS ATTRACTED to the Mennonites," said Moss, who expresses her own spiritual beliefs through her art. "I admire their wholesomeness

The Moss paintings of Mennonite hemes, often in pale green and purole hues, evoke peace and tranquility, a haven from the often-frantic modern pace. Moss allows the viewer insight into a private, little-
