The Canton Connection

VOLUNTEERS: Twenty-four members of Girl Scout Troop 205 of Canton spent long hours last week assembling and delivering greeting cards perched on top of Thanksgiving dinner trays to patients at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia. Scout co-leaders Nancy Perry and Karla Long said the girls were determined to make a favor for every patient in the hospital, which amounted to almost 200. St. Mary thanked the Scouts by giving them a special tour of the facilities, including the hospital nursery. The girls learned how blood is stored in the pathology lab and saw what happens to tonsils after they are removed. The girls donned surgical hats and masks and were escorted by tour guides Sherri Fletcher of Canton, volunteer coordinator at St. Mary, and Audrey McConachie of Plymouth, public relations director.

WEST BUSY: Students at West Middle School recently have been busy spreading holiday cheer in various ways. The West Middle Chorus, directed by Mary Anne Martin, performed last Thursday with a variety of Christmas songs and sing-along with senior citizens at Tonquish Manor in Plymouth. The West Middle Student Council, under the direction of Michael Shay, conducted a Christmas Cheer Drive in which each homeroom collected canned goods and money to donate to the Plymouth Salvation Army to help provide food for the hungry during the holiday season. The entire student body collected 44 boxes of food and $520. Students involved organizing the drive were Jim Bigelow, Cheri Woodward, Chris Tebbin, Eileen Balatico, Ellyn Belobradich, Nicole Theodore, Alissa Huth, Michelle Minton and Meridith McCann.

A WINNER: George H. Lovell of Canton was a sweepstakes winner in the Coca-Cola Bottlers of Detroit $50 million Gold Rush promotion. He won a Delta Air Lines Golden Island Vacation for two people to Nassau in a recent contest at Westland Mall. Three 1986 Pontiac Trans Ams and 10 Delta vacation packages were the major awards in the contest.

IN THE MARKET: Two local schools are among 43 Michigan schools competing in the fifth annual Stock Market Game promoted by the Michigan Economic Education Council. The game was started to involve individuals in "real life" simulation of investment in the financial markets. The object of the game is to take an initial $100,000, trade against the real market, and try to make as much money as possible during a 10-week period. Local classes involved include Scott Beaman's civic classes at Plymouth Salem High School and Pam Oberti's classes at West Middle School. Nationally more than 100,000 students in 28 states are competing. The reward to the winner will be a trip to Chicago or New York to visit the stock exchange.

ACHIEVER: David Koziol, son of Leo and Diana Koziol of Wedgewood, Canton, is one of eight students at Catholic Central High School in Redford who finished in the top 5 percent of the more than 23,000 high schools students taking Part I of the 13th annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition. He is a senior at Catholic Central. The competition is sponsored by the Michigan Section of the Director to head police, fire

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Reorganization of the top brass in Canton's fire and police departments is expected to get under way Tuesday with the creation of a public safety director position.

When the reshuffling ends Canton Police Chief John Santomauro is expected to have the job.

Canton Township Board of Trustees is scheduled to vote on the position at its regular meeting at 7 p.m. The director would head the police and fire departments as suggested in a fire department study conducted by Bartell and Bartell, Ltd.

THE STUDY, initially budgeted for $14,000, cited organizational and administrative problems in the fire department headed by Chief Mel Paulun, who is eligible for retirement when he turns 55 at the end of January.

According to Dan Durack, Canton personnel director, Paulun has, in the past, said he is interested in retiring when he becomes eligible, but more recently he has seemed uncertain.

Canton Firefighter Local 2289 has not taken a stand on the proposed changes, according to Tom Battistone, treasurer.

"We're waiting to see what happens," said Battistone, adding he has a "99 percent feeling" Santomauro will be named public safety director.

Short-term benefits of the change will be to provide "new administrative direction" in the fire department, according to Durack.

"Rather than bring in someone new the board recognizes there's someone on board who has a proven record of making positive changes in an organization, like our police department."

The Pennsylvania-based consulting firm also handled Canton's massive police department study leading to the resignation of the police chief and appointment of Santomauro in September 1985. Since that time Santomauro has been at the forefront of reorganizational changes in the department.

He served as public safety director of Pittsfield Township and deputy director of public safety for the city of Farmington before coming to Canton.

IF THE BOARD creates the public safety position Tuesday the job will be posted internally until the first week in January as required by the Canton Merit Ordinance covering employment rules and regulation, Durack said.

By the end of the month test results will be given to the board, which must appoint a qualified candidate and if there are none seek outside applicants.

The study recommends that the police and fire chiefs report to the public safety director. If Santomauro is chosen, he would serve as police chief and director.

His students wouldn't dare goof off

He's single and that helps. But history teacher Scott Beaman reminds people at Plymouth Salem High School of a roadrunner.

"First off, we call him Mr. Salem," said principal Jerry Ostoin. "The guy's here day and night. I'm sure there are teachers as good as Scott Beaman but none better."

"He's extremely knowledgeable, very sincere, and his dedication to the educability of students is unquestionable. His intensity draws kids to him — they wouldn't think of screwing around," said Ostoin.

STUDENTS IN Beaman's government, modern European history and advanced placement American history classes (honors courses that earn college credit) agree with their principal.

"He's a very dynamic lecturer in class, and he really cares about what you're learning — more than most teachers do," said Andy Dennison, a Salem senior and Beaman's student assistant.

"He demands an awful lot out of his students. Some people don't like that because they like to come and drift. I work really hard for him because I like to learn."

"You do lots more work for him than for any other teacher but it's probably worth it," said junior Gary Vercruysse, a Salem runner who adds that Beaman is a real sports fan. "He always comes to our cross country and track meets — even when it's raining."

Beaman, who's instructed more than 3,000 students since joining Plymouth-Canton Community Schools 21 years ago, is at work by 7 a.m. Many nights he doesn't leave until 8:30 or 9 p.m.

That's because Beaman, among other things, heads up the National Honor Society ("and doesn't take a penny for it," says Ostoin.) coordinates Quiz Bowl competition, serves as athletic business manager and does daily public address announcements.

BEAMAN IS best known, though, for a rather unusual extracurricular activity.

For nearly 10 years, he's spent spring break with his students in places they've learned about — Williamsburg, Gettysburg, Boston and Washington, D.C.

"Students who go set their own itinerary, within a framework," said Beaman, a University of Michigan graduate who still lives in Ann Arbor. "We've walked the Freedom Trail, visited the U.S. Constitution and Bunker (Breed's) Hill, Lexington,

ton, Concord and Walden Pond."

This year, students will arrive in Massachusetts on Patriot's Day — just in time to watch the Boston Marathon. That rekindles memories for Salem psychology teacher Gene Kramer.

Kramer visited his colleague's entourage in 1979, minutes after running the 26.2-mile marathon.

"I remember taking a shower at their hotel — one of my big motivations to finish," said Kramer, recalling the cold April day.

Lately, it's Beaman's pace that concerns Kramer.

"I'm being real candid. I worry about the guy being too dedicated. He does everything a teacher could possibly do to motivate and help his students. Two-thirds of his room will stay after school for extra tutoring."

"I don't know how he does it — it overwhelms most of us."

BEAMAN WAS a Grand Rapids kid in knee pants when he decided on his career, and time has hardly dimmed his passion for teaching or his love of history.

"History is people, and some of these people (students) will shape history. They'll become supervisors, school board members, senators, holders of higher offices, the presidents of corporations, lawyers and doctors. They're going to be the shakers of history," said Beaman.

"They'll have the opportunity but will have to know something about what has happened in order to know something about what can happen. To understand how we can change, we have to understand how we got here."

Group targets hospitals 'unfair' practices

By Susan Buck
staff writer

A group of Michigan business people concerned about what they call unfair competitive practices from non-profit hospitals and community institutions has formed a group to deal with the issue.

The Michigan Durable Medical Equipment Crisis Committee based in Plymouth was incorporated Dec. 10.

Eighteen companies that sell home health care products and services like wheelchairs, hospital beds and oxygen equipment that are set up in the patient's home according to physician's orders, were quick to sign on.

"When you have an idea that satisfies a real need, it sells quickly. Membership in the organization is not limited to DME companies but is open to any business person who faces unfair competition by non-profits," said Robert Mayer of Plymouth, committee president.

THE GROUP has hired Walt Au- vil, an attorney employed by the Quim, Racusin, Jenkins and Rutten- berg law firm in Washington, D.C. He specializes in health care issues, specifically the non-profit vs. for-profit issue, which Mayer called a national problem.

Au vil will research the situation in Michigan to see which hospital the group could sue with the highest probability of success. "We have not identified any hospital. Almost all of the major hospitals own for-profit ventures, and we are going to investigate all of them."

The group is contemplating federal litigation, said Mayer.

They have also hired Les Milam, a former West Virginia news reporter who will serve as a consultant.

Mayer, a Canton father of four, is part-owner and public relations/marketing director of Prescribed Oxygen Specialists Inc., in Plymouth. He said that he has first-hand knowledge about the situation, which has caused his company to lose about three patient referrals a month from St. Joseph Hospital, Ypsilanti. The hospital has opened up Amicare Resources in the Catherine McAuley Health Center in downtown Plymouth.

Mayer attributes the situation to the different business methods hospitals began using about three years ago.

"Previously hospitals operated under a cost-plus system. They got paid for whatever they spent, plus they had profits added on to it. Hospitals had no motivation to hold down costs in that kind of a system, and it was very expensive because they got paid for whatever they spent."

"A couple years back, they instituted the Diagnostic Related Group Codes. Basically what that system does is, if a person is admitted to a hospital with a particular diagnosis, say, left lung pneumonia, Harvard University research statistics tell the federal government that a person who has that kind of condition should be in the hospital three days and it should cost $3,000 to administer health care to the patient."

"It doesn't matter if the person is there four days or two days, hospitals get paid $3,000. So now there is some motivation for hospitals to control costs because if they can come in under the $3,000, they make extra profits. If they don't they will lose profits."

"People are now discharged sooner and sicker. Therefore they need some kind of ancillary services in the home."

HOSPITALS ALSO became very aware of public relations, said Mayer.

Originally they thought they would be losing money and started looking toward alternative means to make money, said Mayer, who has a bachelor's degree in business administration from Eastern Michigan University.

"What has subsequently happened is that now the name of the game is to control the patient; to become the patient's total health care provider through nursing homes, outpatient clinics, labs, physical therapy and durable medical equipment companies.

"What we have a problem with is that hospitals have gotten into the for-profit arena. They have opened

District's speech therapy being challenged

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

Eleven-year-old Jamie Parker has a happy disposition. Her big smile flashes often. She beams at a compliment about her pretty dress. She steps up and shakes hands when she is introduced to an adult.

But Jamie isn't in a very happy situation right now, according to her mother, Susan Kauffman. The little girl is the center of what looks like a big question for the Livonia Public Schools District.

The question, when settled, could set a precedent in the state of Michigan and have repercussions in school districts across the state, including Redford.

At issue is whether the Livonia district is providing the speech therapy that Jamie needs. It is the first such case in Michigan concerning the speech disorder called developmental apraxia, her mother said.

A formal hearing began last week in Livonia Schools' central office on Farmington Road but was adjourned until Jan. 21.

"It's a matter of standing up for what's right," Kauffman said. "That is just the bottom line — to do everything you can for your child."

JAMIE HAS developmental apraxia, which limits her speech ability, said Charles Simkins, the Northville attorney representing her.

"She's functioning at the 2-year-old level," he said. "She knows what she wants to say, she just can't say it."

Kauffman contends that the only way to help Jamie speak is through individual sessions with a therapist. Jamie receives this one-on-one at tention with a private therapist at her parents' expense. But at the Northwest Wayne Trainable Center at Webster School in Livonia, which Jamie and students from the Livonia, Redford Union, South Redford, Plymouth, Garden City and Northville districts attend, she is one of four or five youngsters in group therapy, Simkins said.

"With four or five kids in there that's five minutes of teaching time," he said.

UNDER STATE law, the individual sessions should be provided at the center, Simkins said. The law says that school districts must provide students with "the best education that will maximize their potential," he said.

And, he added, one-on-one sessions were recommended for Jamie in a 1981 letter to the Livonia Schools district.

"(Children with apraxia) are highly distractible," Kauffman said. "So when they're in a group situation, they are distracted by the other children. When Jamie is in a private session, the therapist cleans everything off her table. She (Jamie) has to speak back."

"The apraxic child needs many, many responses. They have to do it over and over again."

"(The school) just keeps saying, 'What we're doing is OK.' They haven't really gotten into the definite 'why's' to me."

AN INDIVIDUAL education planning committee (IEPC) determines what treatment is appropriate for a student, said Robert Dietiker, director of the Department of Special Services. If parents disagree with the IEPC, the matter is reviewed and may be discussed at a hearing. The hearing is being conducted like a court session, featuring testimony from experts and the parties involved. A hearing officer presides over the session instead of a judge.

Usually in these cases, the hearing officer takes the matter under advisement after testimony is heard and renders a decision within 30 days, Simkins said.

The hearing began Tuesday. It was to be open to the public and news media. But when Simkins asked Tuesday that the district's witnesses be sequestered, the officer said that they would be sequestered only if the hearing was closed to everyone. Simkins agreed to the hearing being closed, but put a "vigorous objection" on record. He said Thursday that he is seeking a court order to open the hearing to the public.

Police cadet is arrested for rape of store clerk

By Sue Mason
staff writer

A 22-year-old Dearborn Heights man was arrested Friday night by Westland police for the Sept. 24 hold-up of the Clark gas station and the sexually assault of a female employee.

Jeffrey Duncan, a Dearborn Heights police cadet, was arrested while working at the Dearborn Heights police station.

He was arraigned Sunday on two counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct and one count of unarmed robbery before Redford District Judge John Dillon. Duncan is being held in the Wayne County Jail in lieu of bond. A plea of not guilty was entered on his behalf by the court at the arraignment.

At the arraignment, his attorney asked that Duncan be separated from other jail inmates for his own protection.

An examination on the charges has been set for Jan. 5 in Westland's 18th District Court.

DUNCAN HAS been tied into nine robberies and assaults that occurred in Westland, Livonia and Canton since August. He was identified by several of his victims during a lineup Saturday afternoon at the Westland police station, Sgt. Robbin Crosby said.

The robberies and assaults occurred in the late afternoon or late at night at gas stations, flower shops and fast food restaurants where female employees were working alone.

Police had been stymied in their investigation until a Dec. 3 holdup of the Quick Stop at Ford and Wayne roads in Westland. The robbery was recorded by a wall-mounted video camera.

Working from the tape and after talking with several of the victims, a State Police artist was able to come up with a sketch of the suspect. That sketch appeared in several newspapers and on television. A Dearborn Heights police officer who saw the sketch was able to provide police with information that led to Duncan's arrest, Crosby said.

Police from the three cities will be meeting with the Prosecutor's Office to discuss further charges against Duncan, Crosby said. All will seek warrants against him.

Duncan, who is single, could face up to life in prison if convicted of the sexual assault charge. If convicted of the robbery, he could receive up to 15 years in prison.

Canton and two more in Livonia. Westland had five such incidents, including one they discovered while checking back through other robberies that had been reported. The robbery was Sept. 18 at the Flower Shop, 7877 Middlebelt.

The female employee was man-handled — but not sexually assaulted — and placed in a cooler, Crosby said.

The woman was able to provide police with a description of the car the suspect was driving as well as another car he drove when he showed up at the shop a second time in October. The suspect left after finding another employee in the shop with the woman, Crosby said.

Police from the three cities will be meeting with the Prosecutor's Office to discuss further charges against Duncan, Crosby said. All will seek warrants against him.

Duncan, who is single, could face up to life in prison if convicted of the sexual assault charge. If convicted of the robbery, he could receive up to 15 years in prison.

...House!

ONE HAPPENING that will attract crowds of onlookers almost as quickly as a fire is a house moving.

Last week in Plymouth, in the midst of the Christmas shopping period, crowds of spectators gathered along Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street to watch a house enroute from the city of Plymouth to Plymouth Township.

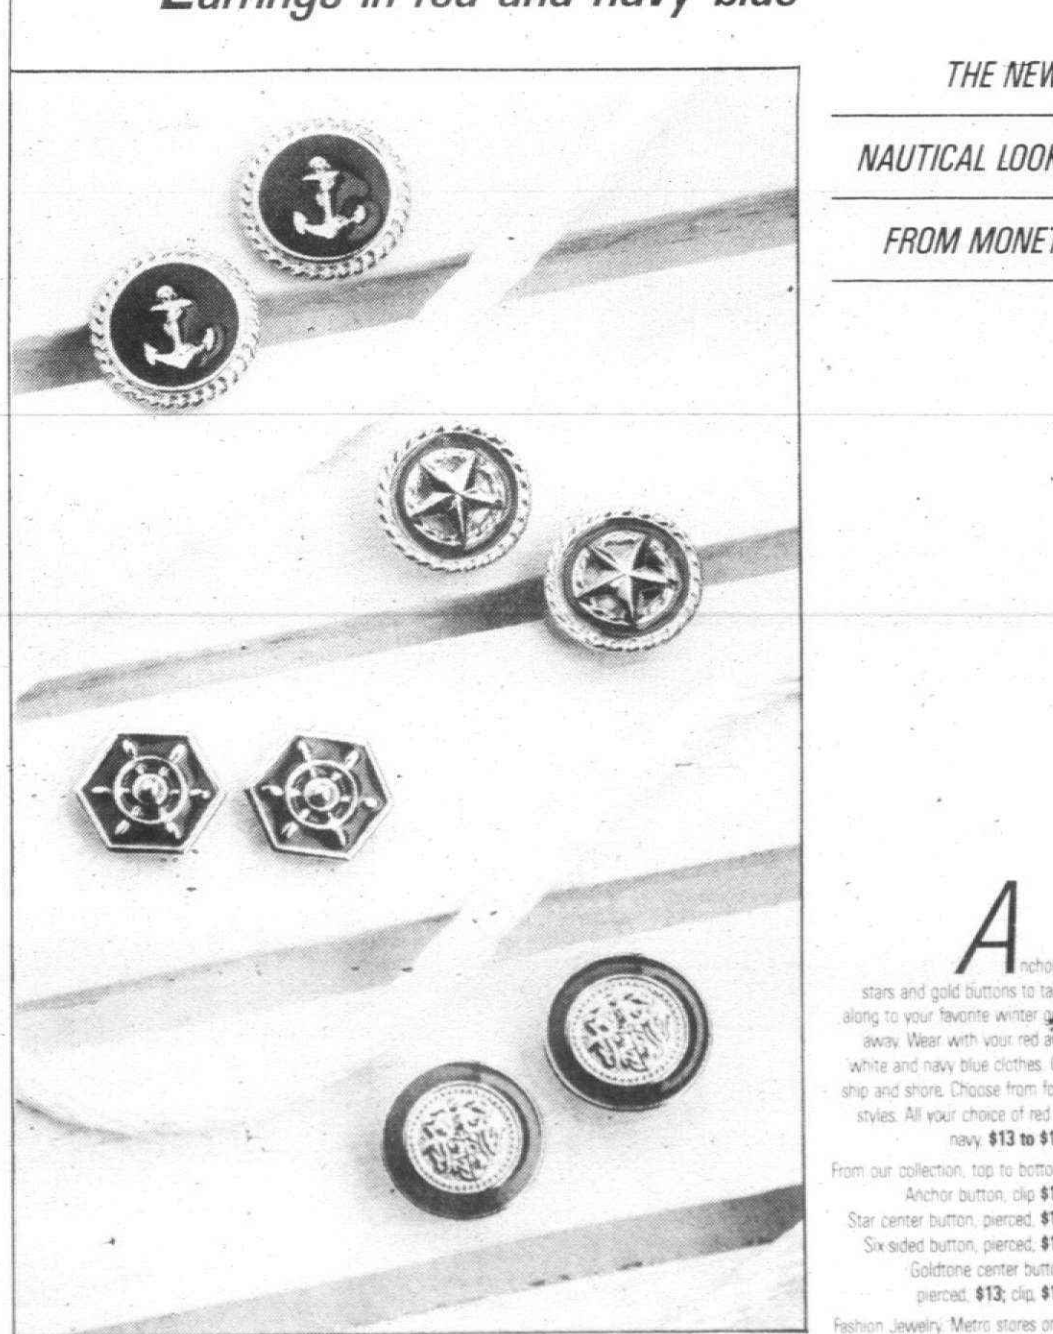

The house, owned by Cindy and Greg Ash, was moved from Ann Arbor Trail just west of Harvey to its new location on Northern Street west of Main between Ann Arbor Road and Joy.

Once lifted from its foundation, the house moved east on Ann Arbor Trail to Main, south on Main to Ann Arbor Road, and west on Ann Arbor Road to Northern. Each stretch of street was blocked off by Plymouth Police until the house cleared.

The actual moving was done by Richard Raynor of Ann Arbor. Raynor was a farmer 10 years ago when he needed a house moved but wasn't willing to pay the price the movers quoted. So Raynor learned what was involved and moved the building himself. He has been moving buildings for a living ever since.

This is the second time the Ashes have been involved in a house-moving as Greg once helped his brother-in-law move a house.

up for-profit restaurants, fast food restaurants, travel agencies, etc. It almost has become that hospitals are operating as brokers to invest in for-profit ventures.

"What hospitals are doing now is transferring non-profit assets into for-profit ventures. This, we believe, is unlawful."

Mayer said this information was obtained through the Michigan Department of Commerce as printed in the Articles of Incorporation.

Mayer criticizes the "captive referral" policy of many hospitals. When a person is going to be discharged, the primary physician approves the discharge and the discharge planner arranges for any outside medical services that might be required, like Mayer's, he said.

Since hospitals have acquired DME companies, companies like Mayer's have received no referrals because the hospital often refers its patients to its own for-profit DME company and other companies no longer have access to those referrals.

"What they are supposed to do by federal law, the Social Security Act, is guarantee the patient freedom of choice. Typically, this does not happen. The hospitals regard control of the patient as their greatest resource. The average patient is not fully aware of what is available to him as far as quality of products and level of service involved."

"People don't know that there are competing companies out there."

"It's not fair. Why do some hospitals have representation in the patient's room while the rest of us are locked out? We can't go to the patient's room."

Mayer said this is another unfair business practice. Other DMEs have contact only with the discharge planner, he said.

THE GOAL of the group is to develop a fair and equitable system.

"Consumers will suffer and private businesses will close their doors if non-profit community institutions are allowed to continue to use vast amounts of tax-free dollars to undercut the state's free enterprise system."

The DME industry does not have a toll free number, he said.

The DME Crisis Committee also plans to sponsor legislation in Michigan to guarantee fair competition. Mayer has contacted Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, the Internal Revenue Service, the Federal Trade Commission and the attorney general.

"Hospitals are supposed to be non-profit. What we are going to ask for is that 40 percent of the hospital's board of directors be made up of people from the community like senior citizen, consumer advocacy, labor and minority groups. This will give consumers more of a voice in what is supposed to be a community-responsive hospital."

Too much to drink? Let deputies drive

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department will repeat its "Give a Friend a Ride" service on Wednesdays, Dec. 24, Christmas Eve, and Dec. 31, New Year's Eve, between the hours of 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. The program is coordinated with local police departments in Garden City, Livonia, Taylor and Westland.

Drunk driving is a national problem that kills and maims many innocent victims each year, said Sheriff Robert Picano. Any citizen who feels he should not be behind the wheel should call Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol at 942-2222.

The program is paid for by a federal grant through the Michigan Office of Highway Safety and Planning.

"A drunk behind the wheel leaves a legacy of sorrow forever," said Picano. "Be a friend, this holiday season offer friends non-alcoholic beverages."

"Transportation and business interests are natural allies. Businesses are willing to pay something, particularly when it's in their own financial interests," Richard Beaubien, city of Troy transportation engineer, told the Michigan Institute of Traffic Engineers.

"You may have noticed we're running a little short of money to build roads," Beaubien said in a wry understatement. It brought smiles of understanding from several dozen traffic engineers from state and local agencies attending a workshop this month in the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

THREE KINDS of methods are being used across the nation, Beaubien said, as an explosion of sub-

Cities eye business for 'traffic cash'

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Michigan traffic engineers are beginning to look at road funding plans which other states have used to raise money from business.

"Transportation and business interests are natural allies. Businesses are willing to pay something, particularly when it's in their own financial interests," Richard Beaubien, city of Troy transportation engineer, told the Michigan Institute of Traffic Engineers.

"You may have noticed we're running a little short of money to build roads," Beaubien said in a wry understatement. It brought smiles of understanding from several dozen traffic engineers from state and local agencies attending a workshop this month in the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

THREE KINDS of methods are being used across the nation, Beaubien said, as an explosion of suburban office building strains two-lane roads, not only in Oakland and western Wayne counties but outside Washington, San Francisco, Miami and Baltimore.

One is negotiation — sometimes dubbed "enlightened extortion." A city uses its clout — building permit, rezoning, site plan approval, density regulations — to persuade a developer to contribute substantially to traffic improvements.

The money is used for turning and passing lanes, interchanges, freeway ramps and the like. Orange County, Calif., for example, persuaded a developer to provide $60 million for transportation improvements.

"We're not too bashful in our city about asking," added Beaubien.

THE SECOND method is "traffic impact fees" — not yet legal in Michigan. Similar to sewer tap-in fees, traffic impact fees are flat amounts charged to a developer on the basis of square feet of office building.

For example, developers of the Howard Hughes complex west of Los Angeles will contribute $20 million to off-site road and freeway improvements which will add about $1.125 per square foot to annual office rents. In Dade County, Fla., a developer pays 4 percent of its annual gross income and dedicate an acre of its property for rapid transit.

Beaubien praised a bill by state Sen. Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield, to authorize such fees in Michigan. Fessler's bill is apparently dead for this session of the Michigan Legislature but could be re-introduced in 1987.

"It's a fixed fee — not negotiated. There is more certainty and, we hope, more fairness. You tie them into the complete planning process — defining service areas, assigning traffic impacts, evaluating the adequacy of facilities," Beaubien said.

But it's not fair to expect a developer to pay everything, he said, stressing the need to assign business development only a fair share of costs.

THE THIRD method is the familiar special assessment district, which Troy has given "a new wrinkle."

"We proposed a special assessment district on office-zoned land," he said. The district surrounds the Long Lake-Crooks road intersections near I-75 freeway, an area of explosive growth which has given Troy the biggest tax base of any community in Oakland County.

The going rate is $25,000 per acre over 15 years. Total cost of road improvements will be $13.5 million, with the city providing $2.7 million, he said.

Another wrinkle, Beaubien said, is that a city is providing money for what actually are Oakland County Road Commission roads.

"We looked at exotic ways to allocate costs," he said, "but were advised by our bonding attorneys we could use only front foot or area. We chose area."

TRAFFIC ENGINEERS this year compiled a booklet of examples of how suburbs, in particular, deal with the problem of raising funds from business to pay for road, drain and public transit improvements. Whereas big city downtowns grew up gradually over decades, suburban office, industrial and research parks have popped up fully grown, like Topsy, with an accompanying spash of hotels, restaurants, shopping malls and conference centers.

Some examples of how other areas have dealt with the problems:

• Texas allows landowners to form "road utility districts" to finance highway construction with tax-exempt bonds.

• Developers in Montgomery County, Md., proposed "impact fees" to raise half the $187 million needed for highways and transit. Fees are based on the number of trips a development will generate during the evening rush hour.

• Dallas charges an impact fee of 50 cents a square foot to finance traffic improvements for Dallas North Parkway Center.

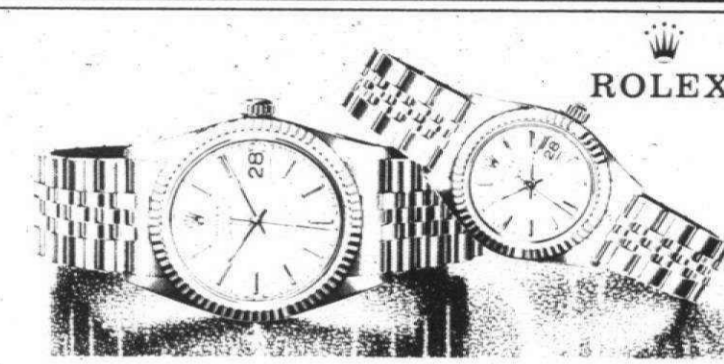

• A Los Angeles ordinance grants office developers reductions in the code-required number of parking spaces in return for employer commitments to ride-sharing and park-and-ride programs.

Sherman gets John Glenn High promotion

John Glenn High School's new assistant principal is Charlotte Sherman. She was recommended for the vacancy by Superintendent Dennis O'Neill and confirmed recently by the Wayne-Westland school board. Sherman replaces Werner Frazer, who earlier was named principal of Kettering Elementary School. A 12-year district employee, Sherman was one of seven teachers to apply for the position and was the unanimous choice of the interview committee. O'Neill told the board. She also was "enthusiastically recommended" for the appointment by O'Neill.

The district serves southeast Canton.

reputation of an outstanding teacher," O'Neill said. "She is a very well organized and detail person and highly respected by her colleagues."

Sherman, 37, of Livonia holds a bachelor of science degree, with a major in mathematics and a minor in political science, and a bachelor of business administration degree, both from Eastern Michigan University, and a master of arts degree in education from the University of Michigan.

She began her teaching career in 1971 with the Crestwood School District, moving to Wayne-Westland in 1974 as executive secretary for deputy superintendent Thomas Blacklock.

SHERMAN, WHOM O'Neill said "is anxious to assume the responsibilities of the assistant principalship," will be paid $42,565. Board President Mathew McCusker, who made the motion for board approval of the appointment, noted that "I've been a part of the Glenn gang for seven years and met her the first year. She's an excellent teacher."

"I'm so glad to have a female on the staff at John Glenn," added Trustee Kathleen Chorbagan.

The school board also approved O'Neill's selection of Kathleen Arbin as executive secretary for deputy superintendent Thomas Blacklock.

Arbin was one of 13 school district secretaries to apply for the position. She joined the school district in 1977 after two years as a secretary in Madonna College's emergency medical technology department.

A Westland resident, she has worked as a switchboard operator and receptionist in the district's central offices and has filled in for other departments as needed, O'Neill said.

15th GOP group backs Reagan in arms dispute

Local Republican leaders came to the defense of President Ronald Reagan, center of a foreign policy controversy on military equipment being sold to Iran with profits reportedly used to finance the contra rebels in Nicaragua.

A resolution backing the president's foreign policy was overwhelmingly adopted recently by the 15th Congressional District Republican Party's executive board.

Garden City, Canton Township and the south half of Livonia.

The board's resolution "urges all Americans, especially Republicans, to voice their support for our president."

The resolution was prompted by unfavorable media coverage of the controversy with the Republican board resolution referring to press reports which were "intended to discredit the president for pursuit of legitimate foreign policy objectives."

"THE BOARD (of the 15th District GOP) stands firmly behind the president's policies and his record of accomplishment shouldn't be diminished by recent events."

The resolution noted that "Reagan was re-elected in 1984 with support of 61 percent of the voters in the 15th district; that the party supports his efforts to secure the release of American hostages in Lebanon; the board backs Reagan's policy of battling communism in Latin America; and that media reports of the arms sale and contra support are deplorable.

The resolution concluded that the 15th District Republicans appreciate Reagan's record of accomplishment "in dealing with a hostile world."

Party leaders said in their resolution that the president should continue to seek ways to secure release of American hostages and fight communist aggression in the Western hemisphere.

Some tips for first-time Santa seekers

FOR MOST children, a visit to Santa Claus is the first chance to network with a significant adult other than mom or dad. Yet few parents properly prepare their children for this important one-on-one meeting that could have far-ranging consequences on their future climb up the corporate ladder.

I have devised the following tips to help youngsters through this trying first interview. You might wish to read these tips aloud to your children, with the young people gathered at your feet or in other suitable adult-to-preadult dialoguing position.

Your first visit to Santa Claus.

When greeting Santa, look him squarely in the eye, grip his hand firmly and say, "Hello, Mr.

Rich Lech

Claus, I'm (YOUR NAME HERE). It is indeed a pleasure to meet you, and I look forward to working very closely with you in the weeks ahead."

At this point, he may say something that will take you aback, such as, "Ho, ho, ho, little one. Are you a boy or a girl?" Or "There, there, don't look so sad. Smile. You can smile, can't you? Smiiiiiiiile." Do not take offense at this. Roll with the punches. Humor him. Remember, he is the one in the power position.

Do not be upset if you cry or wet your pants on that first visit. These are normal reactions. What matters is what you do with them. Can you turn a negative into a positive?

On your subsequent visit, for instance, you might refrain from liquids one to two hours before the interview. During the interview itself, you might overcome your apprehension by transposing the face of someone you know and trust for Santa's face. Youngsters have told me they find the faces of their father, Lee Iacocca or Roger Smith are effective substitutes.

BY ALL MEANS present Santa a written list of the toys you wish to receive, but keep it short. A more detailed proposal can be sent as a followup to the initial meeting. That second letter ought to lead off on a cheery, personal note before getting to the heart of the matter.

You might write, "Dear Santa. How are you? I hope it is not too cold at the North Pole for you, Rudolph and the other reindeer. As per our conversation of Dec. 15, I am submitting this follow-up letter setting forth in further detail my wants/needs to be fulfilled in your upcoming visit, slated for the late evening of Wednesday, Dec. 24, 1986."

When listing the requested toys, it always is wise to throw in a few articles of clothing, such as "a nice sweater" or "some really smart socks for school." Even though these are hardly items that you really want, it impresses upon whoever reads the letter that this is a mature youngster with a sophisticated concern for his/her appearance. You come across as, "Someone to Watch in the Years Ahead."

Another important concern is what gratuity to leave for Santa's on-the-premises consumption during his Christmas Eve visit. The thoughtful child will not leave milk and cookies. With a belly that, to quote eyewitness accounts, "shakes like a bowlful of jelly when he laughs," Claus already is carrying way too many pounds for his height and body frame.

It might be better to leave him a selection of leafy green vegetables or perhaps a non-food item such as a copy of "Megatrends." Whatever you leave, be sure to have your business card attached as an added reminder where the gift came from.

If you follow this advice, your next visit to Santa Claus ought to be a positive, life-affirming experience. This, in turn, will ensure a merry Christmas and a happy second half of fiscal year 1986-87.

How Middle Rouge Parkway grew in 1920s and '30s

(Part I)

Fifty years ago the Middle Rouge Parkway Drive was renamed in honor of Edward N. Hines, 1936 marked the 50th anniversary of Hines' appointment as a Wayne County Road Commissioner. He had been one of a trio of commissioners who made the initial effort to develop a parkway along the Middle Rouge River.

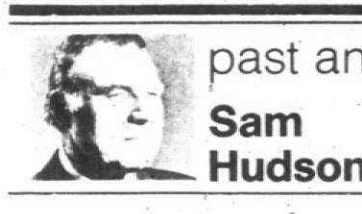

Hines is one of a number of names connected with the Middle Rouge Parkway. Others include John Haggerty, William Butler, Leroy C. Smith, Jesse Bennett, Cassius R. Benton, Sophia Benton, Henry Ford, the William-Henry family, the Burroughs Adding Machine Company, and the Village of Plymouth.

HAGGERTY and Butler, along with fellow commissioner Hines, began to think about a county park system as early as 1915 in spite of a paucity of funds to acquire property and do the construction.

Leroy Smith came aboard in 1918. An engineer for the state highway commission, Smith was named manager of the Wayne County Road Commission. He continued to push for a county park system long after the early commissioners had retired.

During the construction of the parkway, Bennett was the man who introduced the landscaping and planning programs that were to give the system its attractive appearance.

Cass Benton's name enters the picture in 1922, the year he died. He will left Benton Woods, on Northville

past and present

Road, to the County Park trustees. Title was not to be conveyed until the death of his widow, Sophia. Benton Woods had long been an appurtenant picnic area, with permission of the Benton family.

The importance of Benton's request is emphasized in a recent paper prepared by the Wayne County Park System. "The Benton Woods," it declares, "are particularly important in the early history of Wayne County Parks because this large parcel is among the first pieces of land given to the county that would later become part of the Middle Rouge Parkway."

Benton, a descendant of early settlers of what was then greater Plymouth Township, and is now Northville Township, was a former township supervisor, county tax commissioner and state legislator. His property was on the west side of Northville Road near today's Kings Mill subdivision.

In 1925, Benton's widow, Sophia, offered to relinquish her lifetime rights to the 16-acre woods and the property was made part of the Cass Benton Parkway. In 1928, six acres of property was donated to the county for the parkway system by the Burroughs Company.

Burroughs had not yet built its factory in Plymouth Township but owned the property here. The area donated by Burroughs was later incorporated into the Gonsully Mill section of the Middle Rouge Parkway.

part of the Middle Rouge Parkway.

Village Manager Adolph J. Koenig's annual report, dated Dec. 31, 1929, has only an oblique reference to the transaction. It reads that the village commission pledged to "co-operate with the authorities of Wayne County in the work of improving and developing Plymouth Riverside Park."

That was the nation's first parkway, a limited access affair with picnic areas and landscaping, along the length of the Bronx River. I am familiar with it because I was just entering high school in Peekskill, in Westchester County, at the time the Bronx River Parkway was being built.

Hines Drive, from Phoenix Lake to Cass Benton Woods, was completed in 1931. During that depression year the Civilian Conservation Corps was used to mow park grounds, build trails, and plant trees and shrubs. In 1933, when Ford built his dam in the Middle Rouge at Newburg Lake, he donated land surrounding the reservoir to the parkway system in exchange for free use of power generated by flow of water.

The dam Ford built at Wilcox Pond later in 1933 replaced an earlier dam north of the intersection of Wilcox Road and Mill Street. The new dam raised the level of the pond, and it became a popular skating center. A small frame shelter was put up on the shore of the pond.

Readers help support MDA

To the editor:

All of us at the Muscular Dystrophy Association would like to offer our sincere thanks to your readers who gave their generous help to MDA during 1986.

Their support of MDA is really making a difference. MDA-funded researchers recently made their most exciting discovery yet — they located the gene that causes Duchenne muscular dystrophy, the most common and severe form of the disease.

This breakthrough doesn't mean we've beaten this neuromuscular disease, but with the isolation of the gene we can begin finding out everything there is to know about the disease — including how to cure it.

Your readers, along with millions of others across the country, are helping make this work possible. That's why we say — on behalf of "Jerry's Kids" everywhere — thanks for caring.

Ho, ho, ho? Printing bill stays unpaid

Christmas spirit or not, outgoing Wayne County Commissioner Stanley Rozycki won't be reimbursed for more than $4,000 in printing costs generated on behalf of himself and fellow Commissioner Richard Manning of Redford Township.

Rozycki, who leaves office Dec. 31, signed an affidavit directed to the commission last week that stated he awarded the two printing contracts to a company he owns. He owns Fireside Printing in Detroit.

Rozycki told commissioners last week that he gave the work to his company because he could do it at a cheaper rate than other firms.

Both contracts involve printing costs for literature/newsletters mailed to the two commissioners' constituents.

Manning's bill was for $3,086 and Rozycki's was for $1,482.

According to a state statute, disclosure of business involvements is required when a public official attempts to contract with that firm. Approval also must follow from two-thirds of the board members, or 12 members in this case.

But commissioners, complaining that the printing contract was a conflict of interest, tabled the issue. Because Thursday was the last official meeting date before the new commission term starts in January, tabling means the issue is shelved.

Commissioner Milton Mack of Wayne called the payment request "extremely inappropriate."

Mack said Rozycki had tried for months to get the bill before commissioners but former chairman John Hertel wouldn't allow it on the agenda. "This was his last chance," said Mack.

Hertel objected to the bill again at Thursday's board meeting.

Manning replaced Hertel when commissioners voted Hertel out last summer.

Free vo-ed training offered to low-income area residents

Low-income Wayne County residents may enroll in free vocational courses to begin in January at four campuses of Wayne County Community College. In addition, the Northwest campus offers special clerical training for young adults and handicapped adults.

The free winter semester training is for auto mechanics, heating, ventilation and air conditioning and culinary arts. Training for medical office assistant and electrical/electronics video technician jobs also will be offered.

"These courses could be a ticket to a new beginning for many persons," said Sharon Lagina, testing and assessment coordinator. "The program includes books, materials and job counseling at absolutely no cost to the student."

The training classes are scheduled in Detroit at WCCC's Eastern Campus on Conner near I-94, in Belleville at the Western Campus on Haggerty Road and in Taylor at the Downriver Campus on Northline Road. Details are available at 496-2860.

Some GM workers eligible for benefits

General Motors workers laid off just prior to Thanksgiving because of a strike at a GM plant in Kokomo, Ind., have a limited amount of time remaining in which they can file claims for unemployment benefits.

Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) Director Richard Simmons Jr. said Michigan GM workers who became unemployed as a result of the Kokomo strike may be eligible for flexible week unemployment benefits.

Some 7,900 Detroit-area GM workers may be eligible for these unemployment benefits. Those who have not yet filed claims have only until Wednesday, Dec. 24, to do so, he advised.

THE EIGHT GM plants affected by the Kokomo strike, Simmons said, were: Buick, Oldsmobile, Cadillac (BOC) Detroit Hamtramck, BOC Cadillac Detroit, BOC Fleetwood Detroit, AC Spark Plug Flint, BOC Willow Run, BOC Orion Assembly, Truck and Bus Pontiac, and Truck and Bus Flint Assembly.

"Among the eight affected GM plants, virtually all of the workers who qualify for benefits work at three Detroit-area plants — BOC Fleetwood, BOC Hamtramck and BOC Cadillac," he said.

Flexible week unemployment benefits are payable, Simmons explained, if a worker is unemployed for seven straight days during a two-week period, and the worker earns an amount at least equal to what he would receive in unemployment benefits for those weeks.

TO RECEIVE the flexible week unemployment benefits, Simmons said GM workers had to become unemployed no later than Wednesday, Nov. 19.

The Kokomo plant strike began on Nov. 17. Michigan workers affected by the strike became unemployed later in that week. The strike ended on Nov. 21.

VERSATILITY IN THE USE OF ASPIRIN
Most rheumatologists consider aspirin as the drug of choice in treating inflamed joints. One of the reasons is its safety. If you are taking large amounts of aspirin, you know without a doctor's consultation when you have reached the point of overdose. You will note deafness or ringing in the ears, feel lightheaded, or become slightly unsteady on your feet. Because coated aspirin is available and inexpensive, the possibility is small of aspirin associated stomach ulcer.

If you reach a point of an excessive aspirin level, the inherent safety of the drug requires that you need only to reduce your dose by one or two tablets to reach a safe concentration. This feature gives you a freedom in the use of aspirin not present with other anti-inflammatory drugs: you can vary the amount of aspirin with your need for it.

If your usual dose does not suffice on painful days, you can take more aspirin. However on good days you can decrease your aspirin intake. Thus you have a degree of control over your condition, rather than waiting for it to takeover at its whim.

Airport-bound travelers have number to call

Detroit Metropolitan Airport has a hotline number to call for updates on parking conditions during the Christmas and New Year holiday season.

Travelers can call (313) 942-3838 to learn which airport parking lots are full. A temporary parking lot, opened across from the International Terminal on Rogell Drive, will add 1,200 spaces during the holidays. Entrance to this lot is from the right lane of Rogell Drive.

Overall, there are 13,000 public parking spaces and another 14,000 private spaces nearby. There is free shuttle service from these sites.

WWJ-News Radio 95 in Detroit will broadcast hourly updates.

Airport officials advise travelers to arrive one and one-half hours before departing. Call ahead, and plan to use commuter transportation or a taxi if lots are full. Fill luggage tags out in advance.

Because of congestion problems, unattended cars will...

Have A Blessed Christmas

May the gentle spirit of the season fill your hearts and your homes with peace and love. May you and yours prosper and grow during the holidays like the trees of the earth and be content with your place in the world. It has been our purpose and privilege to serve you. We look forward to a continued relationship in the years still to come.

Planning leads to guilt-free holiday eating

The holidays offer taste-tantalizing foods that tempt even the most strong-willed dieter. High calorie seasonal dishes served at family dinners, parties or potlucks can put a strain on anyone's waistline. Take healthful measures and practice saying "No more gravy for me, please pass the veggies!"

Planning ahead when cooking or indulging in holiday foods is the first step to holding the weight line. Prepare well balanced menus and low calorie eating strategies before the holidays begin.

If a heavy entree is served, balance it with a light dessert, such as fresh fruit, a soufflé, fruit flan or poached fruits. Low calorie ingredients also should be included whenever possible.

Lower fat and calories in holiday recipes by using nonfat dry milk for sauces, drinks, breads and desserts; substitute almonds for pecans; mustard for mayonnaise; matzos, rye krisp and melba toast for snack crackers, imitation cream cheese for regular cream cheese. Look at the recipe and make adjustments to help trim the calories without sacrificing seasonal taste.

Lower the sugar in recipes using up to ¼ less sugar than called for in a recipe. (The exceptions would be jellies, very delicate baked goods and meringues.) If you don't want to experiment, find recipes using the least amount of sugar. Use a little more vanilla and spice, as both give the impression of sweetness.

If you're the host

Don't snack while cooking. You can consume hundreds of calories doing this. Nervous snacking is likely to occur during a hectic holiday schedule, so beware and relax before cooking. Before you start to cook, eat a light snack, such as a small salad, to deter tasting later.

If you're doing a lot of cooking and baking, check the labels and make sure they do not contain lard, other meat fat, coconut oil, palm oil or cocoa butter. Health-wise, these are not good choices.

When cooking, choose corn oil, safflower oil, sunflower seed oil, sesame seed oil, cottonseed oil or soybean oil. Always choose a margarine that lists one of the above as the first ingredient on the label. The amount of fat or oil can often be reduced by as much as ¼ to ½ in recipes for baked products. Reducing fats in recipes may require a little more liquid for a proper batter consistency.

Guests welcome nutritious munchies. For appetizers, provide raw vegetables with an herb dip using dry curd or low-fat cottage cheese instead of sour cream. Mix it in the blender. No one will know. Other healthful snacks are sliced cucumbers, fresh green beans or mushrooms marinated in a wine vinegar and dill dressing, or fresh fruit on skewers with a low-fat yogurt dip. Serve guests unsalted nuts and popcorn as snacks before dinner.

Holiday meals can remain flavorful without butter, oil, cream, heavy sauces or salt. Avoid serving cream soups and sauces on vegetables or meats. Serve simple and light foods. Your guests will appreciate it, too.

Try using lemon juice to sharpen the flavor of vegetables, salads, soup, poultry and fish. Mustard adds a piquant flavor to salad dressings and meat sauces, while wine vinegar with herbs adds a zesty taste. Poultry and fish dishes served with a lightly seasoned tomato sauce are high in protein yet low in calories.

For dessert, choose skim milk sherbet, fruit ice, angel food cake, ice milk or little meringues instead of pie, pastry or ice cream.

If you're the guest

Try to eat light, but regular and balanced meals before and after holiday get togethers. If you anticipate eating out, make a special effort to eat prudently the rest of the day.

If the hectic season doesn't always allow time to make lunch, store already-made "mini meals" in the refrigerator. Have three or four plates ready with cheese slices or a cup of yogurt, fresh fruit and a few crackers wrapped in foil on each plate. Grab for these rather than a few pieces of chocolate, a handful of potato chips or a couple of cookies. Remember, unfortunately, all calories count!

Take a low-calorie dish to a potluck get together. Spicy seafood soup made with red snapper and vegetables, hot curried fruit compote, baked apples or homemade cinnamon spiced applesauce are excellent possibilities. Another idea is to splurge and bring fresh, out-of-season fruit. Papayas, cantaloupe and pineapple are good alternatives to heavy holiday treats.

Be selective about foods you taste during cooking or dining out. Try for a slimmed-down season, where either as the host or the guest, favorite foods can be enjoyed without feelings of guilt.

Stuffed veal roast is elegant entree

Start a new tradition for holiday celebrations and special occasion meals this year — serve a stuffed veal rib eye roast.

When it's time to select an extra-special entree for holiday celebrations and special occasions, choose a prized veal rib eye or boneless loin roast. Look for a roast with a fine grain, velvety texture and a light pink color.

Lean veal roasts are most flavorful and juicy when cooked to a medium degree of doneness. Place the roast in a 325°F (slow) oven and cook for 22-26 minutes per pound, or until a meat thermometer registers 155°F. Remove the roast from the oven and let it stand for about 15-20 minutes in a warm place before carving.

VEAL RIB EYE ROAST WITH HERBED MOUSSELINE

Preparation time: 30 minutes
Cooking time: 1 hour 26 minutes to 1 hour 38 minutes
2 ½- to 3-lb. veal rib eye roast
¼ cup each whipping cream and water
2 tbsp. finely chopped parsley
1 tbsp. each finely chopped fresh rosemary leaves and sage leaves
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. freshly ground black pepper
1 tsp. oil
½ cup each finely chopped carrot and zucchini
1 tbsp. minced onion
2 tbsp. Madeira wine
4 tsp. cornstarch
½ cup each beef broth and water

Trim veal rib eye roast; reserve 6 ounces lean meat trimmings. Butterfly the veal roast by cutting horizontally through the center (parallel to the surface of the meat) the length and width of the roast. Do not cut through the opposite side. Meat should lay flat. Place reserved 6 ounces meat trimmings, whipping cream and ¼ cup water in food processor bowl fitted with steel blade and process until light and creamy; reserve. Combine parsley, rosemary, sage, salt and pepper; sprinkle evenly over cut side of veal. Spread reserved veal mousseline over herbs to within ½-inch of edges. Starting with long side, roll roast jelly roll-fashion to enclose mousseline. Tie roast, securing with string at 1 inch intervals. Place roast, seam side down, on rack in an open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part of veal but not in mousseline. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in 325°F (slow) oven to medium. Allow approximately 22-26 minutes per pound. Do not overcook. Remove roast when meat thermometer registers 155°F.

Allow roast to stand 15 minutes in a warm place before carving. Roasts continue to rise about 5° in temperature to reach 160°F for medium. Meanwhile remove drippings from roasting pan and add enough water to measure 1 cup; reserve. Heat oil in roasting pan over medium heat. Add carrot, zucchini and onion; cook and stir 8 minutes. Combine wine and cornstarch; reserve. Add reserved pan drippings, reserved cornstarch mixture, beef broth and ½ cup water to vegetable mixture. Increase heat to high and boil 1 minute, stirring, constantly.

Calorie conscious can enjoy potatoes

Potatoes are a perfect diet food. Their natural taste goes with a wide range of flavors and seasonings. Packed with essential vitamins and minerals, totally fat-free and with only 100 calories in a medium-sized potato, health-conscious Americans are rediscovering this versatile vegetable.

Washington State's Russet potatoes are world famous. Ideal growing conditions and constant attention from planting through harvesting results in consistently high-quality potatoes. Washington Russets are high in solids and low in water. That means they bake up fluffy and flavorful.

Calorie Conscious Stuffed Potatoes combines the baked potato contents with a sprightly mixture of dill-flavored cottage cheese, chives, parsley and tomato. The stuffed potato shell gets a final sprinkle of Parmesan cheese before being heated through.

CALORIE CONSCIOUS STUFFED POTATOES

2 medium Washington Russet potatoes
¾ cup low-fat cottage cheese
1 tomato, chopped and drained
¼ cup minced parsley
2 tbsp. minced chives or green onions
¼ tsp. each salt and pepper
Dash dill weed, crushed
1 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese

Scrub potatoes; pierce with fork. Bake at 400°F 50-60 minutes or until tender. Remove lengthwise slice from each potato; scoop out pulp leaving a ¼-inch shell. Mash pulp; stir in cottage cheese, tomato, parsley, chives, salt, pepper and dill weed. Fill shell with cottage cheese mixture; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake at 400°F 15 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Makes 2 main dish servings.
Each serving has approximately 250 calories.

basketball Rocks go 3-0 in WLAA

By Ken McDonald
special writer

Maybe it's appropriate that Plymouth Salem's wrestling team plays its home meets in the Rocks' gymnasium.

It was in that same gym Thursday night that Salem and Livonia Stevenson met in a Western Lakes Activities Association boys basketball game. But for much of the contest, it appeared the two schools were locked in a fierce wrestling meet, with the opposition the center of attention.

And when the sprawling bodies were pulled from the floor, Salem came away with a convincing 71-45 win.

The victory leaves the Rocks with a 4-1 overall mark and a perfect 3-0 WLAA record. Stevenson fell to 2-3 on the year and 1-2 in the WLAA.

THERE WAS no mat, but sometimes as many as five or six players were on the floor scrambling for a loose ball. Add to that the play underneath the boards, and you couldn't blame either side for nursing a few bumps and bruises after the battle.

"I didn't think it would be as physical a game as it was," Salem head coach Bob Brodie said. "Our kids went blow for blow with Stevenson and didn't back down."

"They were pounding each other inside. There were screens that looked like blocks," Brodie added. "It was a real physical game."

Stevenson head coach Jim McIntyre agreed with Brodie.

"It was a very aggressive game. There were a lot of kids out on the floor," McIntyre said. "That's where the ball ended up and that's where the kids went."

While the teams may have battled to a draw as far as the rough stuff was concerned, it was all Salem when it came to the basketball game.

SALEM LED by three, 11-8, after the first quarter. The Rocks, then opened it up in the second quarter, outscoring the Spartans 26-15 to take a commanding 37-23 halftime lead.

The second quarter surge was led by Salem's Mike Hale and Rick Taylor. The 6-foot-5 Hale scored nine of his game-high 26 points in the second quarter. Taylor, a 6-7 center, poured in eight of his 14 points in the quarter.

Stevenson was paced by senior forward Rich Gregor with 11 points. Both Eric Johnson and Lars Richters added 10 points each.

In the second half, Salem used much of its bench and coasted to the easy 26-point win. Ten Rock players got their names in the scorebooks.

"We played catch-up all game," McIntyre said. "When you play catch-up you're always pushing, and when you do that you tend to make mistakes.

"We just never got on track tonight," he added. "Salem played awfully well. They shot real well and they definitely dominated the boards."

SALEM OUTREBOUNDED Stevenson 33-20 on the night. Hale grabbed 12 boards to pace the Rocks, including six on the offensive end.

But maybe even more important was the Rocks' shooting. Salem hit on 29 of 51 shots from the floor. And at the line, where the Rocks spent a good deal of the game, Salem was 19 of 25. Stevenson, on the other hand, shot just 18 of 46 from the floor and a dismal 5 of 11 from the line.

"We were forcing (Stevenson) to take a lot of outside jumpers," Brodie said. "Early on they were making them. But it's hard to live and die by the outside jumper."

"We've gotten better every game we've played. Out of the five games we've played, this has to be our best."

Salem gets even with Romulus

Plymouth Salem finished second to champion Romulus in the Westland John Glenn Invitational, but the Rocks turned the tables Thursday night in a double-dual meet, defeating the Eagles, 40-24, and Livonia Churchill, 45-21.

And after beating Western Lakes Conference foe Walled Lake Central on Wednesday, 45-20, the Rocks will take a 6-0 dual meet record into the holiday break.

"This put us in a good holiday spirit," said Salem coach Ron Krueger, whose team returns to action Saturday, Jan. 3, for its own 16-team invitational. "It was a combination of things (against Romulus). Either our kids are doing well, or the other kids are having problems."

"Our lower weights (classes) got us going. It was a snowball effect. The bigger guys like it and it's contagious."

In the victory over Romulus, Jeff Delbecke (98 pounds), Dennis Dameron (126), Tim Ott (132), Mark Smith (185) and Richard Johnson (heavyweight) all pinned their opponents. Dameron, now 14-0 on the season, won on a fall in just 26 seconds.

Also gaining victories for the Rocks against Romulus were Scott Contini (119), who won on a 14-3 decision; Lem Young (167), who moved up a weight class to win 5-0; Chuck Graczyk (198), a 12-10 winner. In a close match at 112, Romulus' Craig Stewart rallied past Sean May, 10-6.

AGAINST CHURCHILL, Salem winners included Delbecke, 10-4 decision; Todd Bourlier (105), pin in 4:20; May, by void; Contini, 16-1 decision; Dameron, pin in 2:55; Ott, pin in 3:28; Bill Atwell (138), 7-4 decision; Graczyk, 11-4 decision; and Johnson, pin in six seconds.

Churchill's winners included Mike Krause (138), Scott Morrocco (155), Brian Clemens (167) and Dave Zenas (185).

Salem winners against Central included Delbecke, Bourlier, May, Dameron, Ott, Young (155), Smith and Johnson. Ott's victory came on a pin in 2:43 against Central's Matt Shell, a third place finisher in last year's league meet.

Atwell, meanwhile, settled for a 10-10 tie in his match.

Central's press proves fatal to Farmington

Bad start, bad finish.

That was all there was to it Thursday night at Farmington as Walled Lake Central pounded the Falcons 57-38.

No matter how you look at it, it wasn't pretty.

The Falcons committed 11 first-quarter turnovers, six straight at one point. But thanks to some torrid outside shooting by Steve Howell, Farmington only trailed by five at the end of the quarter and seven at the half. Howell scored 12 of his game-high 16 points in the half. He missed just three shots in the first 16 minutes.

Seven points was as close as the Falcons could get, however. Central scored six straight points to open the second half. The Falcons never recovered.

Farmington missed 14 straight shots in the final quarter and didn't score a field goal.

"WE JUST lack experience," said Farmington coach Bob Kaump. "Steve Howell is the only player we have that played at all on varsity last year. We just have to pick up our intensity some to overcome our inexperience."

In defense of the Falcons, they were without two starters. Taylor

William Reese is out with an injury and Brandon London was suspended after being ejected from the John Glenn game last week.

The loss of those players pained Farmington. Central ruined Farmington with a three-quarter court press. The Falcons struggled all night to bring the ball upcourt. Both Reese and London are guards.

"Their press hurt us really bad," Kaump said. "We couldn't get the ball down the floor. We were just too impatient."

WALLED LAKE Central's scoring was well distributed. Mark O'Hanlon scored 14 points. Steve Wright scored 12. Layne Herrington added nine and Kevin Harrelld eight.

It was Herrington, son of Farmington Harrison football coach John Herrington, who triggered the fatal six-point burst at the start of the second half. Wright hit a jumper to start it. Herrington made a steal and scored a layup. He tipped the ensuing in-bounds pass away, got it back and made a nice reverse layup — six points in less than 15 seconds.

The win improves Central's Western Lakes record to 2-1, 2-2 overall. Farmington falls to 1-2 in the league, 1-4 overall.

JOHN GLENN 48, N. FARMINGTON 43: Westland John Glenn has never enjoyed playing basketball in the North Farmington gym. Thursday night was no exception.

The powerful Rockets had all they wanted with a patient and determined band of Raiders. One lapse, as it turned out, did the Raiders in.

Glenn exploded in the second quarter with a 19-9 run. Try as it might, North could never overcome that spread.

Each team connected on 20 field goals. Glenn, however, hit 8 of 14 free throws while North made 3-of-5.

Success spoil Craig Morton: no way

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

YEP. STILL the same old Craig Morton.

He's home for the holidays and more than a little red-faced as he greets some of his neighbors and friends. You see, his proud mother has been showing everybody his newspaper clippings and the awards he won at Dartmouth this year.

Craig thinks maybe his mom might be overdoing it a bit.

Same old unassuming, unpretentious Craig Morton. Same guy who "aw-shucked" his way through a brilliant football and academic career at Plymouth Salem. Same guy who, when told he had been named the first Plymouth-Canton Observer Athlete of the Year, said: "No. You're kidding? No. Oh, that's just great, just great."

Success has not spoiled Craig Morton. Never will.

IN CASE you haven't heard, Morton had himself a pretty nice football season at Dartmouth this past fall. It was his first season on varsity. Here's what he did:

- He caught 44 passes for 1,063 yards. That's a 24.2 yards-per-catch average. Both the 1,063 yards and 24.2 average are single-season Dartmouth records.
- He caught 10 touchdown passes.

es. That, too, is a single-season record at Dartmouth.

- One of those TD catches went for 98 yards. That is an Ivy League record (the old mark was held by Gary Fencik of the Chicago Bears), a Dartmouth record and it ties the national record.

- He averaged 106.3 total yards per game and his average TD catch went for 48.6 yards.

- He is fifth on Dartmouth's all-time receiving list after one season.

- He was named Rookie of the Year in both the Ivy League and the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference. And he was the first wide receiver to win a unanimous selection to the first team all-ECAC squad. He was also first team all-Ivy League.

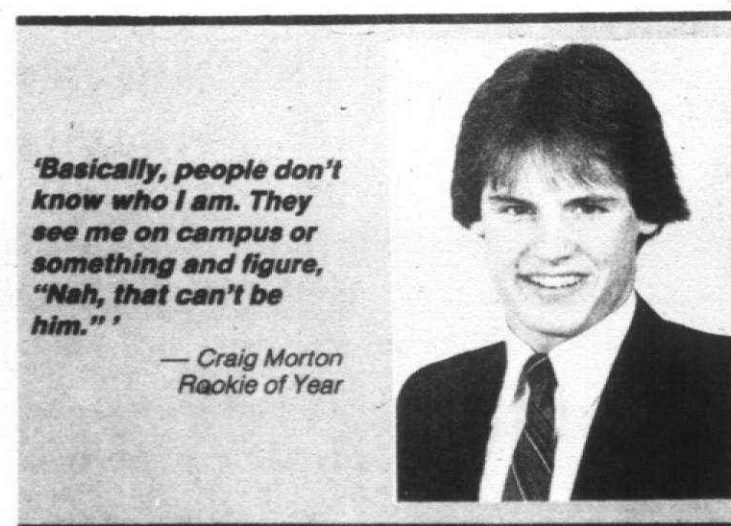

- He was named to the national all-academic all-America second team.

Yep. Pretty nice season.

FOR ALL his accomplishments, though, Craig Morton remains just another face in the campus crowd.

"It's funny, there aren't really any big newspapers out there (Hanover, N.H.). Nobody finds out anything," Morton said. "We're kind of secluded. Once in a while there might be a paragraph in the Boston Globe, especially when we play Harvard."

"But basically, people don't really know who I am. They see me on campus or something and figure, 'Nah, that can't be him.'"

"Basically, people don't know who I am. They see me on campus or something and figure, 'Nah, that can't be him.'"

— Craig Morton
Rookie of Year

Opposing coaches throughout the Ivy League know who Craig Morton is, however. Listen to this:

- "It's enough to give any coach nightmares," said Cornell coach Maxie Baughan.

- "There is just no way to cover that kid one-on-one. I'll say this about the kid, he's as fast as anything I've seen on two feet in a long time," said New Hampshire coach Bill Bowes.

- "We knew we couldn't stop him because no one else has," said Carm Cozza, Yale coach.

- "If a player can generate a legend after only a single season, then Craig Morton was a legend this year," said an ECAC official during the presentation of the Rookie of the Year award.

CRAIG MORTON probably blushed.

"I don't think I have all this in perspective yet," he said. "The quotes from the coaches were really a surprise to me."

However overwhelmed Morton may be with the array of accolades, his life away from football remains in solid order.

"It took a while for me to adjust," he said. "If it wasn't for football I would have died out there last year. I didn't know anyone at first and most of the people were into drinking and getting hammered every night and that's not me. I more or less lived for football that first year."

"This past year was much better. I have some good friends now, and I'm involved with a Christian organization on campus. I'm much more comfortable now."

Morton had to carve out his own niche socially. Eight of every 10 students at Dartmouth belong to a fraternity. Morton does not.

"That's just not my way. I just don't feel the need to belong to a fraternity. I thought that might have an effect on me in football. Most of the juniors and seniors belonged, and with me being a sophomore and not being in a fraternity, I thought there might be a problem. But there wasn't. The guys on the team were great. We got along fine."

IT TOOK awhile for the Dartmouth coaches and players to catch on to Morton's ability. By his own admission, he doesn't much look like a football player — until someone throws a football his way.

"I've got some long strides and, when I run, it's deceptive," Morton said. "At first, the quarterbacks were under-throwing me. They said it didn't look like I was going that fast."

Opposing defensive backs had the same problem.

"I don't think the cornerbacks knew I could go deep," Morton said. "But they found out soon enough."

The season wasn't three weeks old when Morton began drawing double and triple coverage.

AS IMPRESSIVE as the 1986 football season was for Morton, 1987 might be like starting over. Two key people will be gone from the program. Quarterback Dave Gabianelli, one of the finest passers in the team's history, will graduate. And head coach Joe Yukica has resigned.

"New quarterback, new head coach — it sure will be different," Morton said.

Watch Dartmouth hire a wish-bone-oriented coach, someone suggested.

"Oh, don't say that," Morton said with a laugh.

Why not. Morton broke all of Plymouth Salem's receiving records in two years and everyone knows that the Rocks run the wishbone.

The point is — regardless of who the coach is next season, regardless of who wins the quarterback job — Dartmouth College isn't likely to waste a human resource as valuable as Craig Morton.

No way.
