K SIGN-UP: Kindergarten registration will be held the week of Feb. 16-20 in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Children are eligible to attend kindergarten if they will be 5 on or before Dec. 1, 1987. To register, bring the child's birth certificate and immunization record to the school your child will attend. If you are unsure, call the school nearest you or Ginnie Murdoch, pupil accountant, 451-3137.

Immunization requirements include: four doses of diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus; three doses of polio vaccine; one dose each of measles, rubella and mumps vaccine which must be given on or after the child's first birthday. Immunizations are available from local physicians or free from the Wayne County Health Department, Merriman near Michigan Avenue, city of Wayne.

Birth certificates for children born in Michigan can be secured from the Office of Vital and Health Statistics, Michigan Department of Health, 3500 N. Logan St., Lansing 48914.

All parents are urged to register their children Feb. 16-20 to permit adequate planning for fall kindergarten and bekindergarten classes.

DISC RENTALS: Canton Public Library recently started a compact disc collection and now has both classical and popular selections available for rental at 10 cents per day. The library also recently has added titles to its audio cassette collection which now numbers about 100. More information may be obtained by calling 397-0062.

ACADEMY BOUND? Congressman William D. Ford, D-Taylor, (whose 15th District includes Canton) has nominated 30 youngsters from the district to enter the class of 1987 at the Air Force, Merchant Marine, Army and Naval academies.

Young people from Canton nominated include: Bradley Drogosch, son of Janet and Don Drogosch, nominated to Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs; Kevin Krasko, son of Rosemary and Gerald Krasko, Air Force; David Sebuck, son of Veronica and Lawrence Sebuck, Air Force; Akshey Vij, son of Aruna and Yash Vij, Military Academy at West Pointe, N.Y.; Theodore Welling III, son of Karen and Damon Welling, Air Force; and Eileen Meath, daughter of Marie and Michael Meath, Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

IN LA MANCHA: Maria A. Bortell, 1986 Plymouth Salem High graduate, will appear in the role of Aldonza in the Marygrove College musical production of "Man of La Mancha" on the weekends of Feb. 12-15 and Feb. 19-22. Maria, a vocal music major at Marygrove College, Detroit, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Bortell of Plymouth. For ticket information, call 862-8000, Ext. 420.

WRITTEN VOWS: There's no turning back on New Year's resolutions for Gallimore Elementary first graders from Canton. Their vows are on paper and posted in the hallway.

"In 1987, I want to open my club house that I wanted," wrote Stacia. Jason: "In 1987, I want to be able to play darts without my brother yelling." Chisa: "In 1987, I will quiet down." Shaun: "In 1987, I am going to try to stop being bad." Joe: "In 1987, I want to learn how to be born again sow(sic) I can be better at things."

Here's hoping we get a progress report mid-year.

Boys blame each other for killing

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Two 16-year-old best friends, charged with murdering a 13-year-old Canton girl, accused each other of killing Mary Anne Hulbert.

In separate taped statements, the boys told police basically the same story about how the girl died, except they said the other directed the scenario and pulled the trigger.

Each boy said Hulbert was forced to strip to her underwear and stand by a tree. They said she was laughing and seemed to think it was a joke as her hands were bound and her eyes blind folded. Once shots were fired she began to scream and run, they said.

"He shot a couple of times and missed her," one youth said. "He shot again and hit her coat. He said, 'Shoot her.' I said 'I can't shoot her.' I can't kill no one. I took mine (rifle) and shot in the ground and she went off screaming."

HULBERT'S MOTHER weeped as she listened to taped statements given to Washtenaw County deputies. The tapes were played in Washtenaw Juvenile Court Wednesday.

"I heard shots about eight of them — I didn't know what to think," he continued. "He said, 'She's dead . . .' I took off my hat and asked the Lord's forgiveness."

The boy said Hulbert called him and said she was pregnant by the other youth. The boys decided to take her to a field, with loaded rifles and planned to scare her enough to make her miscarry the fetus, he said. An autopsy showed Hulbert was not pregnant.

"(The other suspect) said on the phone he wanted to cap her, that means shoot her. I said we had to talk about it."

The boy told police they took two rifles from his basement and talked about what to do.

The boy said he had no idea the other suspect would murder the girl. He said Hulbert wanted his friend to pay for an abortion. She also mentioned money and talked about going to Florida, he said.

THE STATEMENT by the youth contradicts information he gave police earlier on Jan. 7, the day Hulbert's body was found in a Superior Township field. Deputies interviewed both boys separately that day.

The youth changed his story after police played a taped statement by the other suspect naming him as the murderer.

Deputies said the boy — who had been cocky and carefree during earlier interviews — was visibly angered hearing about his friend's statement.

"He said: 'I'm going to kill the (other suspect),' " a deputy testified.

During a court break the suspect had tears streaming from his eyes and left the room.

"The reason I didn't tell you before about this is because I had no participation in shooting her," the boy told police during a second interview Jan. 7.

"He (the other suspect) was supposed to be like a brother to me. If something like this happened (police investigation) he said he would tell that he did it."

The other suspect told basically the same story except he said his friend shot the rifle that killed Hulbert.

At first Hulbert was facing a tree, the other suspect said. She released her hands, which were bound with bandages and lowered her blindfold, he said.

"She said what are you two guys doing. Then he shot at her and she fell."

THE SECOND youth said he implicated his friend "so I don't get blamed for something that I didn't do."

Both boys said Hulbert's body twitched after she was shot and indicated they weren't sure whether she was dead. During the interviews it was learned one of the boys had threatened Hulbert's mother if she continued to search for her daughter, a detective testified.

The court hearing is to determine whether statements given by one of the suspects should be ruled inadmissible. Another hearing will be held to determine if statements given by the other youth should be ruled inadmissible.

The first hearing will continue Tuesday before Washtenaw Juvenile Court Judge Judith Wood.

District fund hits $4 million

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Increased enrollment and state aid, plus the financial boost of a bond issue, have contributed to a $4 million fund balance for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools in the 1986-87 budget year.

School board members unanimously approved the $57.2 million budget Monday night.

"This is a much-improved forecast since the initial 1986-87 budget was adopted . . . in June, due primarily to increased state and project fund revenues," said Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent for business, in his report to trustees.

"State aid revenues are projected to increase $600,399. Project fund revenues have increased by $298,014 due to some new funding, and improved funding in existing projects."

A bond issue approved last year by voters has freed up about $817,000 in the operating budget that previously was earmarked for capital improvements.

LOCAL, STATE and project fund revenues add up to $53.2 million.

Coupled with a fund balance of close to $4 million, a total of $57.2 million is available.

Costs per student this year are $3,329, up 6.7 percent from last year, Hoedel said.

Enrollment is up 111 students from a projected 15,820 students.

General fund and project fund revenues are $658,413 higher than forecast. And general fund and project fund expenditures are down $437,277 from projections. The revised budget reflects a $4.1 million fund balance.

BEING ABLE to collect taxes twice a year has brightened the financial picture for Plymouth-Canton schools, Hoedel said.

"By this time last year, we'd collected 77 percent of summer taxes. This year we've collected 86 percent. We're getting our money quicker, and that helps our cash flow," said Hoedel.

The 1986-87 food service budget, also adopted Monday, totals $1.5 million. Food sales are up 4.1 per-

Viewer gripes over TV delay

By M.B. Dillon

Somehow or other, signals are getting crossed.

And one Plymouth city official isn't pleased.

It irks him that he's paying more for Omnicom Cable TV's basic service, yet not receiving extra channels as promised when a rate hike went into effect Jan. 1.

His complaint is news to Omnicom general manager Frederick Collman.

"If anyone for some reason is not receiving those five channels (MTV, Video Hits One, CNN headline news, the Weather Channel, and Lifetime), we certainly would like to hear from them.

"All they have to do is give us a phone call and we'll be happy to credit them for services they haven't been getting," Collman said.

The official, who asked that his name not be used, said he's called Omnicom, and "I still haven't got the channels.

"Why should people have to call to begin with if everyone is supposed to have the channels?" he asked.

COLLMAN SAID hooking subscribers up to the extra channels went "according to schedule," and

Team leads Salvation Army

By Doug Funke

Maj. Robert J. Geddis, recently appointed commander of the Plymouth Salvation Army Corps, is looking forward to a little stability in his new position.

This stop is the 16th in a 29-year career with the Army.

Geddis and wife, Betty, also a major, took charge just two weeks ago of the local corps that services Canton, Plymouth and Northville.

Prior to that, the couple and son, Jeremy, 11, spent seven months in Detroit at the Adult Rehabilitation Center and 22 months in Wichita, Kan.

"You're commissioned, called by your superior, pack up and leave," Geddis said. "It's like brother Abraham. He didn't know where he was going but he packed up his goods and family."

Although known as a troubleshooter during his career with the Army, Geddis said he isn't aware of any specific problem that resulted in his transfer to Plymouth.

"WHENEVER I can help somebody, that's where I want to be."

Pedestrian killed in accident

A Canton man, who allegedly drove into and killed an elderly Plymouth woman Monday evening, stood mute to charges stemming from the accident during arraignment in 35th District Court.

John E. Pary, 31, was charged Tuesday with leaving the scene of a personal injury accident and driving with a suspended license, second offense.

Mary Froczila, 80, who lived in the Sheldon Park Apartments, was struck in the far right lane of southbound Sheldon Road a few hundred feet north of Ann Arbor Road.

She died at the scene at about 6:30 p.m. said Chip Snider, deputy police chief in Plymouth Township.

DEATH WAS attributed to multiple injuries and ruled accidental, said a spokesman for the Wayne County Medical Examiner.

"It's ill-lit, it was dark," Snider said. "We believe she was attempting to walk across the street to Family Discount Drugs and was hit.

"The vehicle fled the scene and was apprehended a short time later by Officer Raymond Hall who, while on routine patrol prior to knowledge of the accident, observed a vehicle fail to observe a stop sign.

"He affected a traffic stop, the driver got out and spontaneously made the statement, 'I hit a woman,' as soon as he exited the vehicle," Snider said.

Noel Keane, Pary's lawyer, said his client is upset about the accident. "He is obviously very remorseful, afraid, nervous."

Pary did stop after the accident at a nearby drugstore, Keane said. "I don't know what his intentions were or why he suddenly left."

Neither of the charges brought against Pary were attributable to the accident itself, Keane added.

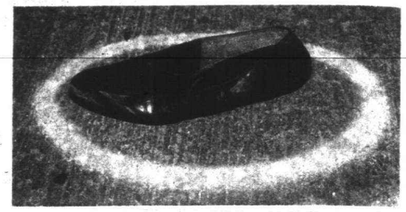
During arraignment, Judge James Garber entered pleas of not guilty for Pary and set a preliminary exam date of March 12.

Pary was released on $5,000 personal bond after arraignment.

Funeral services for Froczila were to be conducted today at Lynch & Sons Funeral Home, Clawson, and St. John the Baptist Church, Detroit.

Private burial services were to be at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, Southfield.

Froczila is survived by a daughter, Mary Leist of Plymouth; a son, George Jr., of Sterling Heights; a brother, Mike Paul, of Dearborn; a sister, Florence King, of Kinde, Mich.; nine grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.



The victim's shoe is circled as police investigate evidence at the scene in an attempt to reconstruct what occurred.

Film eyes energy

A new film, "Powering Michigan's Progress", is now available from Consumers Power Co.

The seven-minute film looks back to the days when wash tubs were on every porch, irons were heated on the cook stove and auto workers strained to tug cars along the assembly line by hand.

The film was produced to honor the company's centennial year and Michigan's 150th birthday.

Service clubs, business organizations, professional associations, and fraternal or civic groups looking for speakers for their meetings should contact Consumers Power Co. communications department.

High technology joins vocational education

The vocational technical training programs of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are being highlighted as part of Vocational Education Week this week.

One of the programs is Unibody Construction where students receive training in bumping, metal finishing, sheet metal, painting and assembling. Working with damaged cars also is an important part of this course.

Among the processes learned is KOREK, an anchoring and pulling system where a bench is used to repair the unitized-body and front-wheel drive vehicles.

THE HIGH-TECH luster is rubbing off on vocational technical education.

Two courses the district offers is computer design and repair, and robotics.

The computer design and repair class covers operating principles of digital equipment, computer logic, circuit design, testing techniques, clocked logic, memory control circuits, machine language programming, interface design, and troubleshooting of major systems including Apple and IBM personal computers.

Robotics introduces students to basic robotic principles. Topics include robot control, mechanisms, hydraulics, pneumatics, and electrical motor applications.

Students have the opportunity to research the ever-growing influence of robotics on industry.

AMONG THE courses offered by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are:

Commercial art; clerical laboratory; junior electronic office procedure; senior word processing; salesperson; sales management; health assistant; dental assistant; medical office; health occupations; cosmetology;

Advanced machine shop; advanced automotive technology; Unibody construction; construction technology; welding; architectural graphics; computer design and repair; robotics; commercial foods; and child care.

A career assessment and support service also is offered in these areas for both disadvantaged and handicapped students who need extra assistance to complete the vocational program.

Cable delay sends crossed signals that the work was completed "mainly during December. There may have been a few whose poles got missed but I don't think there's a lot."

Probably 100 people called about not receiving the channels, said Collman. "Everyone who called up should now have them."

A resident of New England Village, the official said his neighbor also has complained to Omnicom about not receiving the channels, formerly included in a satellite tier.

"When he called, he was told that was impossible — that the whole city was hooked up," said the dissatisfied subscriber.

"Who knows how many subscribers are without the added channels?

"Omnicom is taking a real good posture (regarding credit for service not rendered), but if no one knows, who's going to call and get it?"

Stephen Larson, Canton Cable TV Committee chairman, hasn't received such complaints. But if Omnicom missed a few subscribers, it's understandable, he said.

"What probably happened is that these people weren't paying for the satellite tier."

To service an estimated 7,000 subscribers with the extra channels, "a filter needs to be pulled off. When you have that many, you may miss a few," Larson said. "If people aren't getting those channels, their bill should be reduced."

> 'If people aren't getting those channels, their bill should be reduced.'
> — Stephen Larson, cable TV committee

Subscribers with problems may call 459-7300.

OMNICOM RAISED its basic-only monthly rate to $10.95 in Plymouth Township, and to $11.99 in Plymouth and Canton after federal law stripped municipalities of their power to control cable television rates.

All subscribers were notified in writing about the rate and service changes, Collman said.

Larson predicts deregulation will give operators "a lot more profit than in the past," and prompt them to add services.

Rate regulation in the past forced Omnicom to raise rates for cable options including premium services, Collman said.

Omnicom, owned by N-Com, had a "successful year last year." 1987 should bring "continued success. We're growing, building and investing capital in our plant in this area," said Collman. "Deregulation will have some effect but I don't think it will have a major effect."

Omnicom fits a post-deregulation, nationwide trend.

Free now to set their own rates, cable operators across the country are trying a variety of strategies that generally include higher prices for the limited basic service, lower rates for premium channels like Home Box Office and the Disney Channel, and elimination of charges like second-set hook-ups.

The net effect in many systems will be higher prices for customers receiving the lowest range of services and sometimes lower prices for top-of-the-line customers, say cable operators.

cent, with a 12 percent decrease in the number of free and discounted meals served.

Trustee Roland Thomas complimented the food service staff on its performance, but asked that a long-range capital improvement plan be prepared to avoid "surprises."

Other budget highlights:

- Liability insurance costs are expected to increase by $191,891, or 82 percent over 1985-86, according to early estimates. "We have had meetings with our insurance agent regarding these increases, and, at the same time, are investigating a new 'insurance pool' concept," school officials have said.
- The special education budget is up $171,019.
- The district's direct purchasing of natural gas has dropped costs in that category from $970,000 to $711,000.
- Electric bills will be $34,224 higher than first thought.
- At $204,057, telephone costs will be $6,600 higher than projected.
- Water costs will be $33,038 lower than projections. Utility savings will total $231,625 less than forecast.
- Operating costs will total $839,619 more than planned.
- Total revenues are 4.7 percent higher than last year.
- Expenditures are 7.7 percent higher than 1985-86.
- State equalized valuation is projected at $1 billion, a 5 percent increase over last year.
- Teacher-student ratios show little change.
- Outlays this year will reflect a $265,000 staff development budget.

THE BUDGET INFORMATION presented probably would have interested resident Lynn Ehrle, who left after addressing the board on a few issues — among them, finances.

Couple takes over

Both Geddis and his wife completed two years of study at a Salvation Army training center to prepare for their ministry.

"If I were to die, she could carry on," Geddis said. "We're a team."

Betty said she intends to spend much of her time here with the Home League, a women's group focusing on worship, education, fellowship and service, and the League of Mercy, which makes nursing home visitations.

She also expects to continue with two favorite hobbies — adding to a butterfly collection and ceramics.

Geddis at first said work is his only hobby, then indicated that he's an inactive rockhound.

The couple, married 20 years, met at a Salvation Army center in Highland Park.

GEDDIS SERVED in the U.S. Marine Corps for 7½ years before formally joining the Salvation Army. He admits to being a carouser before "converting" in a bar on Eight Mile and John R in 1955 in Detroit.

A couple of years later, Geddis said he was personally touched by Jesus in a dream and persuaded to enter the ministry.

"I was so terrified I got out of bed and was shaking."

Geddis promptly left his job at Chrysler to prepare for the ministry and has been at it since.

Lawyer said Canham was shocked by arrest

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Former Wayne County Circuit Judge James Canham was portrayed as an honest, if unwitting, middle man during a hearing Monday before the Michigan Attorney Discipline Board.

Canham, a Redford Township resident and former Redford justice of the peace, could be disbarred for allegedly taking part in the bribe scheme.

James Canham

The Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission has charged that Canham is "unfit to practice law."

Based upon a taped telephone conversation, Canham, a former chief judge of the Wayne County Circuit Court, was linked to a bribe attempt involving former Michigan Appeals Court Judge S. Jerome Bronson. But Canham's attorney urged the three-attorney panel to keep Canham's tape recorded statements "in context."

"CANHAM BELIEVED he was working with (informant) James Finn," attorney Sheldon Miller of Detroit said. "He was shocked by his arrest. He thought Bronson set him up."

The panel hearing the Canham case includes attorneys J. Robert Sterling, Deborah Mela and John Shantz. All three practice law in Oakland County.

The hearing is handled under rules governing circuit court bench trials.

Miller challenged the prosecution to produce evidence showing his client would have received a payoff.

Bronson was charged with soliciting a $20,000 bribe from Finn in return for upholding a $3.2 million verdict won by Finn in a negligence suit against the Ford Motor Co. The veteran jurist committed suicide shortly after his Nov. 14 arraignment.

Though granted immunity from criminal prosecution by state police — in return for helping trap Bronson — Canham faces disbarment as an alleged co-conspirator.

CHIEF DISCIPLINARY prosecutor Michael Alan Schwartz is using a Nov. 6 telephone conversation between Canham and Finn as evidence.

In that conversation, Canham told Finn to write an opinion Bronson could adopt.

According to transcripts, Canham said: "Just leave that, that way and, and, I'll tell ya, you're going to have a winner. You are going to have won. And, and I don't know, I don't know whether or not he can be reversed . . . And the, you gotta hell of a opportunity to come up with a, a masterpiece and that should fly, he'll get another vote and you, you should fly and you'll be home free."

But Canham's attorney argued his client was working with Finn — not Bronson — at the time.

"If you're going to put Jim Canham in a category, he belongs in the James Finn category," Miller said.

Schwartz, however, argued the statments indicated a Bronson/Canham conspiracy.

"(It was) a very simple scheme whose antecedents go back into history. Finn was to pay Bronson in order to influence Bronson on the Harrigan appeal," Schwartz said. "This case, unfortunately, is a sordid matter."

FINN IS expected to be a key witness when testimony resumes 9 a.m. Monday, March 10. No witnesses were questioned Monday.

The commission filed charges against Canham in December, calling him "unfit to practice law."

Panel members also heard Canham's Nov. 13 statements to Robert Ianni, chief of the attorney general department's criminal division and assistant attorney general Mark Blumer.

At that time, Canham told his questioners he showed Finn a copy of the pre-hearing report he had received from Bronson.

They also received transcripts of a telephone conversation between Canham and Bronson about five hours after Canham's statements to investigators.

During that conversation, Canham said: "Remember, I didn't want to get in the middle."

Miller said Canham didn't tell investigators about the bribe attempt because he was afraid Bronson would have withdrawn the bribe.

"If he had told Bronson to bag it, Bronson would have ruled against Finn's client," Miller said.

In the case being appealed, Kentucky resident Michael Harrigan was awarded $13 million in damages after being left paralyzed when the brakes on the Ford-built tractor-trailer truck he was driving failed near Pikeville, Ky.

Though damages were later reduced, Ford appealed the verdict. Attorneys for the auto company argued the case should have been decided under Kentucky law, which would have made it virtually impossible for Harrigan to have recovered any damages.

EMU open house slated for Monday

Resident leads junior high . . .

. . . Stone appointed to post

Student of month

Sarah Dupret, a senior at Plymouth Salem High School, has been named Student of the Month by Plymouth Elks Lodge 1780. Active in student government since eighth grade, Dupret serves as mayor of Salem High student government. In that role, she is responsible for overseeing homecoming ceremonies and helping guide the student council. She is a member and secretary of the National Honor Society and serves as a tutor of mathematics and French. She is a member of the varsity volleyball team. She also has an interest in vocal music and works part-time at Bill Knapp's.

A Canton resident and 15-year employee of the Wayne-Westland Community Schools has been promoted to assistant principal at Stevenson Junior High School in Westland by Superintendent Dennis O'Neill.

Terrence Campbell replaces Wayne Parsons, who asked to be reassigned to classroom duties.

Campbell, 39, joined the school district in February 1972 and spent his first 11 years working in the district's alternative and adult/community education programs. He was a supervisor for summer school and leisure programs and also an ACE location manager before being assigned to teaching duties at the junior high school in September 1983.

Campbell received his bachelor of arts degree, with a major in history, in 1970 from Eastern Michigan University. He also holds a master of arts degree, with majors in educational leadership and adult education, and education specialist degree, with majors in educational leadership and community education, from that university.

His appointment was made effective immediately. He will receive a salary of $41,696 annually.

Campbell was selected from a field of 12 candidates for the position and his selection was lauded by board members Kathleen Chorbagian and Mathew McCusker.

Both agreed with O'Neill that Campbell has "tremendous rapport with people," with McCusker saying he was "very impressed with Terry Campbell in his work with parents and students."

Judy Stone is West Middle School's new principal.

Stone, who's acted as principal since Pat O'Donnell became director of special programs and student services, was appointed by the Plymouth-Canton school board Monday night.

"I look forward to being both the principal and instructional leader at West to help provide the best possible education for our youngsters," said Stone, West assistant principal for three years.

"This age level is one that needs special care in both the affective and cognitive area."

Stone began teaching in 1964 after earning her bachelor's degree in English and master's degree in social studies.

With the district for nine years, Stone helped start the Talented and Gifted and computer education programs in middle school while teaching English and social studies.

Stone was a university instructor for seven years in charge of student teachers at Eastern Michigan University and the University of Michigan.

For three years, Stone taught in Belleville schools.

Stone is married and has two daughters, both of whom attend Plymouth-Canton schools. She is a 19-year Canton resident.

State rock show will be Sunday

Minerals and rocks from Michigan will be featured at this Sunday's sesquicentennial exhibit and show of the Plymouth Rock and Mineral Society.

The show will be from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 15, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer at Theodore. Admission is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children.

Exhibits for the show include rocks and minerals hand-collected in Michigan to displays of faceted stones.

Dealers from the tri-county area will be on hand with fine gems, books, mineral specimens, and finished jewelry.

Among the exhibitors will be: Alexander Iwanow of Time Trips with fossils and artifacts; Marjorie Morris, Tom's Minerals, micromounts; Dennis Demerly, D. Demerly's Rock and Art, finished jewelry; Al Temple, Plymouth Metal Detectors, metal detectors and specimens; Joyce Hanshu, Michigan minerals; Edward Wilson, fossils and books; John Santeralli, woodcarving demonstration.

Rock Exchange Club members will operate a silent auction table to present mineral specimens for experienced and amateur collectors alike. There also will be games for the children in which prizes might be anything from a sample of copper ore or a Petoskey stone.

David Thomas will have students from his geology classes at Washtenaw Community College working an an identification table. They will show how rocks and minerals are identified by weight, content, and hardness.

Movies will be shown at various times, including films on "Michigan Mining" and "Copper-Iron-Salt."

"Minerals found in the great state of Michigan have played an important role in bringing many people and industries here after statehood was attained," said Phillip Hruska, show co-chairman for 1987.

"Us rockhounds find it exciting to rediscover such rocks and minerals that so amply contributed to our state's progress."

Money woes

District approves vote on bond, tax hike

Teen fakes murder

Canton Police suspected murder Sunday after finding an abandoned car, with the engine running and blood on the seat and window.

A massive search was conducted until the Garden City driver of the car told police she staged the scene.

Police searched the area from 9-12 p.m. — when the anonymous caller reported the car — until Monday morning. A Detroit police helicopter was called in for an aerial search.

While the search continued, the 17-year-old driver was found in Ann Arbor at a friend's house.

She confessed to staging the scene and told police she planned to go to Florida. However, police had not determined why she faked the murder by Tuesday afternoon, said Dave Boljesic, Canton police information officer.

THE 1976 blue two-door Oldsmobile was partially in a ditch on the west side of Denton Road north of Proctor. The window on the driver's side of the car was smashed and the glass was about 15 feet from the vehicle.

During the search, police also found a blood-covered crowbar.

The car was registered to the girl's mother.

Police will continue the investigation and talk to the Wayne County prosecutor's office to decide if a warrant should be issued for criminal charges against the girl, Boljesic said.

Man charged in assault

A Wayne man is being held on three charges resulting from a dispute in Canton about his ex-girlfriend last weekend.

David Alan Harter, 48, was arraigned Jan. 7 on one count of felonious assault, one count of carrying a concealed weapon, and one count of using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

A plea of not guilty was entered in Wayne Circuit Court Annex in Westland by Judge Lawrence Emmert of Wyandotte's 27th District Court.

Harter failed to post bond for $10,000 or 10 percent and was taken to the Wayne County Jail.

According to police, a 46-year-old Detroit resident said a man threatened him at 12:15 a.m. in the Mobil Lounge on Michigan Avenue. The victim said a man came up to him and began a heated argument about his ex-girlfriend. He allegedly pulled out a .32 caliber revolver from his back pocket or waistband, police said.

The Detroit man said the man pointed the gun at him and said: "I'll kill you."

Officers were called to the lounge and arrested Harter who was lying in the back seat of a car.

Wayne-Westland School District

The district serves southeast Canton.

By Sue Mason
staff writer

The Wayne-Westland Community Schools will be asking residents to dig deeper into their pockets to help resolve a money problem.

The school board Monday night unanimously approved two ballot proposals for an April 2 special election.

The proposals are a $12.5 million bond issue and a three-year 2.75-mill tax levy for general operations.

The two proposals would total 3.65 mills, with 2.35 mills representing a transfer of debt millage, scheduled to expire in June for property owners in the Wayne-Westland portion of the district. As a result, the proposals represent only a 1.3-mill increase.

However, the district would hold the increase to the 2.75 mills for residents in the annexed portion of the former Cherry Hill School District by paying off the bonds over a longer period of time.

ONE MILL represents $1 for every $1,000 of assessed valuation.

For a resident in a $44,000 home, the levies would cost Wayne-Westland homeowners about $28 a year. In the former Cherry Hill district which was annexed to Wayne-Westland last year, the cost would be about $60 a year.

The district includes most of Westland and part of Canton Township.

The board vote came a week after the district received approval from the state Department of Education to seek voter approval of the bond issue.

The bond money would be used to defray the cost of remodeling, renovating, re-equipping and refurnishing buildings, to purchase additional equipment and school buses and improve and develop sites in the district.

THE 2.75 mills would be used to balance the district's budget, which, according to projections by Woody London, associate superintendent for business services, will be short $1.1 million this year and $1.5 million next year.

Monday's vote marked the third time in 18 months that the district has asked the voters for a tax increase. The other two, both for 2 mills, were rejected last year.

In discussion Monday, board trustee Sylvia Kozorosky:

"I took a long, hard look at this because the people have told us twice they don't want higher taxes," Kozorosky said. "I've come to realize that this is very serious for our kids and I'm going to support it."

TRUSTEE Kathleen Chorbagian said it "never occurred to me not to support this."

"This community has always been very supportive of education," she said. "I will do everything in my power to see that the people get what they want, a quality education for their children.

"I think working together, we can do it (get the millage approved)."

"Up until tonight I wasn't enthusiastic that something like this could be approved," board secretary Kenneth Barnhill said. "Our work is cut out for us, but by giving proper and truthful information, I think the citizens will support quality education."

IN A prepared statement read after the board vote, Superintendent Dennis O'Neill called the board's vote "crucial and courageous," and said that "if the needs addressed in these proposals aren't met, we are going to oversee the demise of the Wayne-Westland schools."

"No one advocates increased taxes, if at all avoidable, but the alternative in this situation is disastrous and therefore, your vote to place these issues before the public is the only solution," O'Neill said.

"Our challenge over the next few weeks is to explain that a small investment today could save a tremendous cost later on, in addition to meeting our responsibility of making productive citizens of today's youth.

"We have both a telling and a selling job, but working together, we'll be successful on April 2."

4% pay increase on line in Canton

Non-union Canton employees will receive a 4 percent pay increase this year costing the township $20,266.

The Canton Township Board of Trustees approved the wage hike Tuesday in a 6-1 vote. Supervisor James Poole was the only dissenter.

The merit commission recommended the pay increase, which is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1987.

Non-union employees also received a 4 percent increase last year.

Canton union employees, which have settled contracts, received a 4 percent increase this year, said Dan Durack, personnel director.

THE NON-UNION positions and the 1987 wages are as follows:

Police chief, $41,101; fire chief, $40,013; finance director, $37,499; superintendent of parks and recreation, $37,614; building official, $37,614; personnel director, $37,614; DPW superintendent, $37,482; DPW foreman, $31,300; and DPW inventory control supervisor, $29,465.

Other non-union positions and new wages are as follows:

Deputy building official, $28,080; deputy finance director, $28,356; engineer, $33,721; assistant community and economic development director, $28,356; two research associates, $22,727; recreation supervisor, $29,106; and water division supervisor, $26,832.

Ford opens new center in Canton

The Henry Ford Medical Center in Canton will open the doors at its permanent site Monday.

The center's physicians and staff have moved from a temporary location on Canton Center Road to the permanent center at 42680 Ford, just west of Lilley Road.

The 5,000-square-foot building includes 12 examination rooms, laboratory and X-ray services.

The center offers family-oriented primary health services by Henry Ford Hospital physicians, including specialists in internal medicine, family medicine, pediatrics, and obstetrics/gynecology.

The Canton center was opened to serve the overflow of patients from the Plymouth center, located on Main Street just north of Penniman Avenue, and to better serve the needs of the Canton community.

The Canton center will be open 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. Same-day appointments for sudden illness can be scheduled by phoning 981-3200.

The physicians at the Canton center are: Adrian Sheremeta, internal medicine; Eric Loranger, pediatrics; Gary Wozniak, family practice; Clark Kirkman, obstetrics/gynecology; and Mohammed Tabbaa, obstetrics/gynecology. Manager of the center is Irene Koncius.

The center participates in Blue Cross/Blue Shield, Medicare, major commercial insurance companies, Preferred Health Plan, and Health Alliance Plan.

The Canton facility brings the current number of Henry Ford medical centers to 16. Other centers are located in Plymouth, Ann Arbor, Dearborn, Detroit, two sites in Sterling Heights, Rochester, Royal Oak, Southfield, St. Clair Shores, Taylor, Troy, Warren, West Bloomfield, and Harbor Beach.

Student musicians earn honors

Several Plymouth and Canton musicians recently earned first and second division ratings at the annual high school district solo and ensemble festival.

The festival, sponsored by the Michigan School Band & Orchestra Association, was Feb. 7 at Livonia Franklin High School.

More than 1,500 different musical selections were performed by high school band and orchestra students from southeastern Michigan.

Ratings form one through five (one being superior) were awarded the competing students by professional musicians/adjudicators.

Those students who received the blue ribbon for first place now are eligible to compete at the state level March 28.

FIRST DIVISION prizes were won by these Plymouth Centennial Educational Park students:

Lisa Gasparott, clarinet solo; Debbie DeJohn, clarinet solo; Lynn Cail, clarinet solo; Julian Sell, clarinet solo; Christina Harrell, oboe solo; Sarah Naaski, French horn solo; Laura Dahlke, flute solo; Laura Dahlke, piano solo; Bradley Nottle, saxophone solo; Karen Luelleman, flute solo; Barb Krug, flute solo;

William Schnoes, alto sax solo; Sara Erickson, oboe solo; Lesley Carmichael, flute solo; Brad Flowers and Kevin Hinks, trumpet duet; Jeff Samarziya, bass clarinet solo; Kevin Hinks, trumpet solo;

Karen Warmbier, clarinet solo; Rochell Patterson, trumpet solo; Brian Krug, trumpet solo; Jane Gerke, clarinet solo; Risako Takahashi, flute solo; Danielle Walquist, violin solo; Leslie Capozzoli, violin solo; Leslie Capozzoli and Emily Zinn, violin duet.

SECOND DIVISION ratings were awarded to these CEP musicians:

Jennifer Jencks and Dawn Immerfall, flute duet; Kevin Hinks and Brad Flowers, trumpet duet; Greta Schnurstein, flute solo; Lisa Alcock, clarinet solo; Michelle Smith, flute solo; Steve Dickie, bass clarinet solo; Vicky Crutchfield, flute solo;

Jeff Sobell, trumpet solo; Shelly Ketchem, flute solo; Sue Kemnitz, clarinet solo; Daniel Stacey, violin solo; Emily Zinn, violin solo; Emily Zinn, piano solo; Sue Long and Ann Gilmore, violin and viola duet.

Pay taxes on time or pay more

A change is being made this year in applying a penalty for late payment of taxes in Plymouth Township.

In the past, the township treasurer and county treasurer allowed taxes to be paid late — after Feb. 16 and before March 1 — with no penalty being levied.

Starting now, all taxes not paid after Feb. 16 will be considered late and a penalty will be applied. All taxes not paid after Feb. 27 are delinquent and become payable to Wayne County.

In prior years, said township treasurer Mary Brooks, the township has waived the late penalty on all tax bills paid after Feb. 16 but before March 1.

"Due to the insistence from the county of Wayne, the treasurer's office is being required to enforce the tax collection requirements as stated on the back of your tax bill."

All taxes not yet paid can be paid, without penalty, at the township treasurer's office, 42350 Ann Arbor Road at Mill. Allow five days if taxes are paid by mail.

Those taxes not paid by Feb. 27 cannot be paid at township hall but must be paid at the Office of the Treasurer of Wayne County, including penalty fees and interest charges. After Feb. 27, the county applies a penalty of 4 percent with an additional one percent added each month.

Health care group buys Westland Center

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

A consortium of Wayne County hospitals will sublease Westland Medical Center — with the intention of buying it — while providing indigent health care at all member hospitals.

The agreement was announced Tuesday afternoon by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and Westland Health Network Inc., a consortium including People's Community Hospital Authority, Oakwood, Garden City Osteopathic and Southwest Detroit hospitals.

"Basically, it takes this building off our hands and puts it to good use," McNamara said.

Indigent health care emerged as a critical issue in the proposed sale of Westland Medical, the former Wayne County General Hospital.

UNDER THE purchase agreement, indigent care will be provided at all member hospitals for four years. Garden City Osteopathic and Annapolis hospitals will provide indigent care in western Wayne County.

The consortium will pay $7.56 million over the next three years to buy the facility. The final payment is expected Dec. 1, 1989. The facility has been leased to the Southwest Detroit Hospital Corp. since 1984.

The transaction is subject to county commission approval and issuance of a certificate of need from state health officials.

Two local commissioners present during Tuesday's announcement praised the sale.

"'It appears in the best interest of people in western Wayne County,' said Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, whose district includes Canton Township.

Added Susan Heintz, R-Northville: "From what I've seen it should pass."

Kay Beard, D-Inkster, who joined the facility's union workers in a Jan. 19 picket line protesting the coalition's formation, and Richard Manning, D-Redford, were unavailable for comment.

MCNAMARA SAID that Beard, who was attending a conference in Lansing, had been made aware of the sale but answered questions regarding her reaction by repeating: "She's been made aware of it."

The county executive said negotiations had been continuing "six days a week" since the beginning of the year.

Emergency care will be provided to indigents at Westland and all affiliated hospitals. In all, nine hospitals will participate.

Garden City Osteopathic and Annapolis will also provide indigent pediatric and disease control services currently offered solely at Westland.

Westalnd will retain its 46-bed mental health care unit, though officials would apply for an additional 50 beds.

Westland Health Network will have its own board of directors, separate from individual hospitals.

While there are no immediate layoff plans, officials said they offered current workers "no guarantees" of keeping their jobs.

While officials also said Westland would remain a "full-fledged hospital for now" they offered no promises to continue it as such.

The agreement is expected to become official within two to four weeks. Indigent care will be expanded "within a month," according to Vernice Davis Anthony, assistant county executive for health and community services.

Westland lost an estimated $1 million last year, though it recorded an $18 million deficit in its last year as a publicly managed hospital.

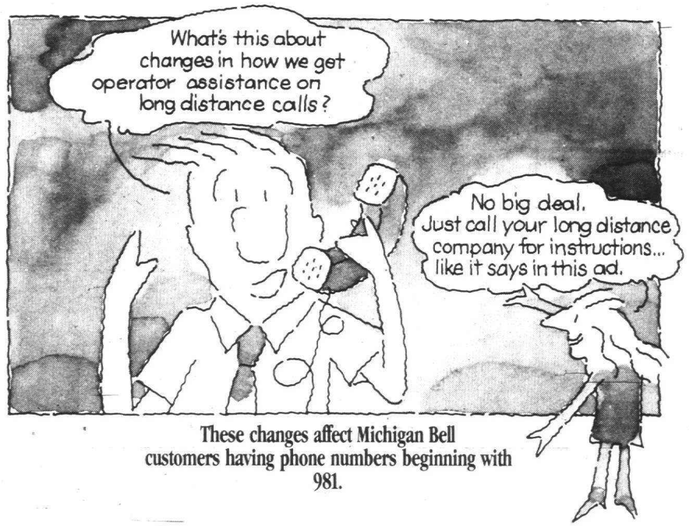
Changes are being made in the way long distance users in your area place some operator-handled calls.



These changes affect Michigan Bell customers having phone numbers beginning with 981.

This is an informational message about your phone service from Marcia Buhl, your Michigan Bell Corporate Affairs Manager.

"These telephone service changes concern only operator-handled long distance calls outside your Michigan Bell long distance calling area. They apply to collect, credit card, person-to-person calls, calls billed to a third number, and requests for assistance. Some customers will need to contact their long distance companies for new instructions on how to place such calls. To find out if and how the service changes may affect your service, we ask you to read the following explanation."

An explanation of the changes in your operator-assistance service for calls outside your Michigan Bell long distance calling area (interLATA calls).

How operator-assisted calls were placed before. If you wanted operator assistance to place a long distance call, you dialed "O," or "O" plus the area code (if required), and the phone number you wanted and an operator put the call through for you.

How these calls are placed now. If the long distance service on the phone you are using is provided by a company that offers operator services and you want operator assistance to place a call, you dial "O," plus the area code (if required), and the phone number and an operator will assist you. To reach the long distance operator for additional assistance, you must dial "00." (Important: If you dial "O" without the phone number, you will get a Michigan Bell operator who can place calls within your Michigan Bell area only.)

If the long distance service on the phone you're using is provided by a long distance company that does not offer operator services, you must contact that long distance company to get instructions on how to place operator-assisted long distance calls.

Please note: If you dial "O," plus the area code, and the number, you may get a recording or no response. Further, if you dial "O" without the number, you will get a Michigan Bell operator who will refer you to your long distance company for further instructions.

If you are calling from a pay phone, continue to use the instructions posted on the phone.

Again, you should contact your long distance company for new instructions on how to place operator-handled long distance calls outside your Michigan Bell calling area. If you have any other questions about the changes, please call Michigan Bell's Let's Talk Center. The toll-free number is 1 800 555-5000.

Please watch your Michigan Bell bill inserts for further information.

Congress overrides clean bill water veto

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes during the week ending Feb. 6.

HOUSE

VETO OVERRIDE — By a vote of 401 for and 26 against, the House overrode President Reagan's veto of a bill authorizing $20 billion through 1994 for federal clean water programs, including $18 billion to help communities build sewage treatment facilities.

The Senate followed suit and the measure (HR 1) became law.

Arlan Strangeland, R-Minn., who voted to override the veto, said "I believe President Reagan has listened to the wrong advice on clean water."

Robert Michel, R-Ill. who voted to sustain the veto, said he agrees with Reagan that the bill provides "excessive spending at a time of high deficits . . ."

Members voting yes wanted the bill to become law.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Voting no: William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

SENATE

CLEAN WATER VETO — By a tally of 86 for and 14 against, the Senate joined the House (above) in voting to negate President Reagan's veto of legislation reauthorizing the Federal Water Pollution Control Act at a cost of $20 billion through 1994.

Congress now has voted to override seven of the 60 vetoes the president has sent to Capitol Hill since 1981.

Senators voting yes wanted the clean water bill to become law.

Voting yes: Carl Levin and Donald Riegle Michigan Democrats.

Murray: More water aid needed

AP — Michigan would get $104 million a year for five years under the water-quality legislation passed by Congress over President Reagan's veto. But a key local official called the amount too small to help clean up the Rouge River.

The legislation also would set up an office within the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to coordinate water quality programs and research for the Great Lakes.

"It's good news for anybody in Michigan because it means we're going to have cleaner water sooner," said Tom Martin, director of Michigan's Office of the Great Lakes.

But James E. Murray, chairman of the Michigan Water Resources Commission, said the clean water bill doesn't go far enough to meet the state's anti-pollution needs.

"Although the funds Congress has authorized are crucial to Michigan, more money still will be needed to tackle the problem with combined sewer overflows, such as the Rouge River basin," said Murray, a leading figure in the Rouge cleanup campaign.

The bill provides $20 billion for water quality programs and strengthens the Clean Water Act of 1972.

U.S. job aid welcome, says Howe

AP — Michigan welcomes President Reagan's proposal to increase job-training money in his 1988 budget, says state labor director Betty Howe.

The state needs more money to help displaced workers since a number of industries are cutting back and layoffs are increasing, said Howe, a former corporate executive and one-time Oakland County Democratic chairman.

Michigan has 41 different programs to retrain workers and upgrade their skills, said Larry Good, associate director of the governor's Office for Job Training.

"We will be very interested in additional federal money," Good said. "Michigan is a leading-edge state. But it has barely touched the surface of what needs to be done."

Howe said Michigan spends about $500 million on job training to reach about 5 percent of the number of eligible workers in the state.

Nationally, $3.6 billion in job-training money reaches about 8 percent of workers in need.

Gary Watson, president of UAW Local 652 in Lansing, said he feels it's more important for Reagan to propose legislation to protect American workers than to propose more money for retraining.

Roll Call Report

55 MPH LIMIT — The Senate adopted, 65 for and 33 against, an amendment enabling states to raise the speed limit on rural interstates from 55 mph to 65 mph.

This occurred during debate on a $52.3 billion, four-year continuation of federal highway programs, a bill (S 387) later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Supporter Steven Symms, R-Ida-ho, said "There has been no law since Prohibition that has been broken and ridiculed more than the 55 mph speed limit."

Opponent Carl Levin, D-Mich., said the lower limit benefits the country by saving lives and fuel.

Senators voting yes supported the 65 mph limit.

Voting no: Levin.
Voting yes: Riegle.

BILLBOARD CONTROL — By a vote of 57 for and 40 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to hasten the removal of billboards from alongside interstates and other federal-aid highways.

The amendment sought to reform the Highway Beautification Act, which environmentalists say protects rather than polices the outdoor advertising industry.

To speed the removal of thousands of non-conforming billboards, it sought to ease the requirement that federal and state governments pay cash compensation whenever they force a billboard to be taken down.

Among other provisions, it makes it illegal to cut trees and vegetation on federal land to make billboards more visible.

The amendment was proposed to S 387 (see preceding vote).

Senators voting yes were opposed to toughening the Highway Beautification Act.

Voting yes: Levin and Riegle.

"BUY AMERICA" — By a vote of 65 for and 33 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to S 387 (above) adding cement to the list of components of the federal-aid highway system that must be American-made.

Supporters of the requirement said it would help the U.S. cement industry combat unfair foreign competition, while foes said it would make federal highway construction even more costly to taxpayers.

Senators voting no supported the 'buy America' amendment.

Voting no: Levin.
Voting yes: Riegle.

TRANSIT WORKERS — The Senate rejected, 30 for and 70 against, an amendment to the highway bill (above) concerning unionized transit workers' rights under the Urban Mass Transportation Act (UMTA).

Sponsor Phil Gramm, R-Tex., said his amendment would stop unions from blocking efforts by public transit authorities to legally 'contract-out' certain functions, such as bus service to an outlying suburb, to a private company that is non-union.

Opponent Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., said the amendment would infringe on transit worker's protection under UMTA "against subcontracting away of their jobs to private operators."

Senators voting no sided with organized labor and opposed to the amendment. Voting no: Levin and Riegle.

County drug plan requires further study

A proposed ordinance that would have allowed parents to seek damages from anyone who supplied their children with illegal drugs was handed a setback Thursday by Wayne County Commissioners.

Citing concerns over the ordinance's legality, comissioners sent the ordinance back to county legal offices for further study.

The move disappointed the ordinance's sponsor, commissioner Richard Manning, D-Redford.

"Nothing (else) addresses what happens to the family when a child is dragged into the drug scene," Manning said.

Other commissioners, however, argued the ordinance would be quickly overturned.

"While it's laudable, it might not stand," George Cushingberry, D-Detroit said.

Manning argued it was the courts' responsibility to determine whether the ordinance would stand.

The ordinance received unanimous support during a meeting of the public safety and judiciary committee last month.

It would have established civil liability for the sale or transfer of an illegal drug to a minor, or for supplying any person with an illegal drug which could be made available to a minor.

Among area commissioners Kay Beard, D-Inkster, voted with Manning to keep the ordinance alive, while Milton Mack, D-Wayne and Susan Heintz, R-Northville — both of whom expressed concerns about the ordinance's legality — voted to send it back for further study.

Levin: Protect 'whistleblowers'

AP — A proposal to discourage vengeful bosses from retaliating against federal workers who blow the whistle on waste or fraud has been introduced for a second time in the Senate by Sen. Carl Levin.

Levin, D-Mich., introduced a bill that would stress the responsibility of the federal Office of Special Council to protect "whistleblowers," give the agency stronger tools to fight mistreatment of whistleblowers, and broaden protections for employees who claim they were the victim of reprisal.

"It is ironic that in this deficit-conscious era, our system frequently ignores or discourages — or sometimes even punishes — individuals who are trying to help us cut wasteful spending," said Levin, who chairs the Senate subcommittee on oversight of government management.

Many federal workers don't report fraud or waste because they fear retaliation by their bosses or don't think their action would do any good, the senator said.

Levin, who introduced similar legislation last year, said that under current rules, the Office of Special Counsel pursues whistleblower-reprisal cases only when "there is virtual certainty that the evidence provides sufficient facts to ensure success."

The agency has closed 99 percent of whistleblower-retaliation cases without taking any disciplinary action against the federal employer, he noted.

"Whistleblower cases are already complicated and difficult enough to win without employees being told they must have a guaranteed 'winnable' case," Levin said.

"While we do not want employees who are poor performers to escape sanction by manufacturing a claim of whistleblowing, we also don't want to discourage whistleblowers by allowing agencies to use any possible flaw in an employee's work background as an excuse for relatiation."

A similar bill passed the House last year, but died in the Senate.

DRC names new president

Ladbroke DRC's new president boasts an ability to "bring (racing) to the racing fan," including a background in off-track betting.

William Bork, 53, was named the Livonia-based race track's president last Friday. He takes office Monday, Feb. 23.

DRC officials praised Bork's efforts in bringing off-track betting to Illinois and in establishing telephone wagering on cable televised races during his 1974-84 tenure as president and general manager of Penn National Race Track, Grantville, Pa.

While he said he had no immediate plans to bring either concept to DRC, ("What plans do I have for DRC? I haven't the slightest idea.") Bork said he supported efforts to bring off-track betting to Michigan.

"There's a movement afoot and we would support that," he said.

Off-track betting allows people to wager on races without attending. Though long popular in New York state, the concept has only gradually gained acceptance elsewhere.

"The Illinois concept, where the tracks run it, is best," Bork said.

Bork replaces Donald Drew, who left to become executive director of the Ak-Sar-Ben Race Track, Omaha, Neb., in January.

He was selected from 14 candidates interviewed over three weeks, said Paul Silvergleid, Ladbroke's president of North American development.

Bork had been general manager of three race tracks: Waterford Park, Chester, W. Va.; Wheeling Downs, Wheeling, W. Va. and Fairmont Park, Collinsville, Ill. but stepped down when Ogden Corp., the tracks' parent comapny, opted out of race track ownership.

The British-based Ladbroke Group purchased the track in 1985. At the time, Ladbroke was called the world's largest off-track betting entrepreneur.

County commission to study budget cuts

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's plans to reduce county red ink might not receive an immediate green light from county commissioners.

Commissioners say further study is needed before they approve the $3 million sought in McNamara's first round of budget cuts.

A special sub-committee is expected to be added to the commission's ways and means committee to study McNamara's requests.

McNamara announced his first round of proposed budget cuts Monday.

Included are:

- Eliminating the county's cooperative extension service contribution, $408,000.
- Spending Cobo Hall liquor and hotel tax money on indigent health care, instead of for substance abuse programs — $397,000.
- Discontinuing the county youth development program — $262,000.
- Eliminating vacant and temporary positions in the treasurer's office — $265,000.
- Eliminating the drain comissioner's office, as approved by voters last November — $315,000.
- Removing vacant health administration positions — $140,000.
- Cutting the general operations park budget — $100,000.

"Many of these cuts are painful," McNamara said. "But there just is not any choice."

Reaction among local county commissioners was mixed.

"The only thing I have some questions about is what some of these cuts stand for," said commissioner Susan Heintz, R-Northville. "The non-profit agency cut hasn't been made clear to me. And if it involves the Cobo Hall tax, I don't know if it's legal."

Milton Mack, D-Wayne, said he was sorry to see cuts proposed for the cooperative extension service, which aids agricultural businesses ranging from farms to floral shops.

"Wayne County has substantial agricultural industry," Mack said. "It's one of the leading counties in Michigan with regard to truck farms."

The county traditionally contributed 25 percent of program costs. Michigan State University and other sources pay the rest.

Mack, however, acknowledged Wayne County's financial straits may make it difficult to continue many programs.

"I recognize the county's situation is not sufficient to pay for all the things we'd like to do."

Commissioners Kay Beard, D-Inkster, whose district includes Westland and Garden City, and Richard Manning, D-Redford, were unavailable for comment earlier this week.

The cuts will take effect within 30 days, unless commissioners come up with an alternative plan.

Barry A. Franklin, Ph.D., Observer & Eccentric Newspapers fitness columnist, has been elected president-elect of the American Association of Cardiovascular and Pulmonary Rehabilitation.

The West Bloomfield resident is director of cardiac rehabilitation and exercise laboratories at William Beaumont Hospital.

The new, national organization he will head includes 1,200 physicians, nurses, physiologists and physical therapists. Its goal is to disseminate educational information and research dealing with the prevention of, and rehabilitation from, cardiovascular and pulmonary disease.

Expert to discuss teen suicide

A two-day workshop will be offered on the topic "Suicide: Intervention with Suicidal Individuals and with Survivors after a Suicide."

The workshop will be offered 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, Feb. 23, and Tuesday, Feb. 24, at the Radisson Hotel in Lansing.

The presenter will be William Steele, a nationally recognized authority on suicide prevention. He is the director of community services for New Center Community Mental Health, where he counsels thousands of teens each year. His television program "Let's Stop Teen Suicide" won an Emmy for Best Children's Program.

The workshop is sponsored by the Michigan Association of Children's Alliances, a non-profit organization serving children and families.

The workshop will cost $75 for association members and $90 for others.

Continuing current taxload

NEXT TUESDAY the polls will be open so voters can decide on two proposals, one a property tax millage renewal for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The school district is seeking voter approval to continue the levy of 10.36 mills ($10.36 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation or SEV) for operating purposes.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 17. Residents will vote at regular school district precincts in school buildings — not necessarily the same locations of precincts for state elections. If you aren't sure of your voting precinct, call the school board office.

There also will be another issue on the ballot, Proposal II, which seeks approval "to levy authorized millage."

BALLOT PROPOSAL I seeks approval to renew 10.36 mills. That represents about 28 percent of the district's operating budget.

Passage will not result in a tax rate increase. If any individual's school taxes increase, it would be the result of increased debt retirement millage or increased value (SEV). An individual's school tax payment will not be increased, however, by passage of Proposal I.

Defeat, on the other hand, would result in a tax cut of 28 percent. For the owner of an $80,000 home, defeat would lower school taxes by almost $415 a year or some $35 a month.

The "tax savings" would not be a windfall. For anyone who owns and operates an $80,000 home, a savings of $35 a month or $9 a week is not that meaningful. The savings certainly is not significant when compared to the impact renewal defeat would have on the district.

For the school district, renewal of the millage represents almost $11 million this year in operating income. Loss of $11 million would result in major losses in programs — losses that we cannot afford at a time when we are demanding more from our schools.

The Observer urges a "yes" vote on Proposal I, the millage renewal proposal.

BALLOT PROPOSAL II is a request to levy the authorized millage.

If you remember, Michigan voters in 1978 approved the Headlee Amendment to the state constitution. It requires that when the tax base (SEV) increases faster than the cost of living, the tax rate (millage) will be decreased proportionately. The purpose is to keep tax payments roughly the same.

Boiled down, Proposal II is a request to levy the same millage rate this year as last year. If it is approved, there would be an increase in tax payments because the tax base is expected to increase.

We don't know how much that increase will be because the city and townships don't finalize their SEV figures until March 1. Likely, the amount involved would be the equivalent of 0.5 mills or less, but we don't know.

We do know the operating fund benefited by some $800,000 because of passage earlier this year of the 1986 bond issue. Whether this amount is enough to offset the loss if Proposal II is defeated, we don't know. The attorneys recommended placing Proposal II on the ballot for Tuesday's special election even though we don't know all the facts yet.

Frankly, the electorate might as well wait until June's annual election and vote on Proposal II when the facts are known. The amount involved is relatively small, and no harm was done by asking now. But no harm will be done if voters say "no" at this time.

The Observer recommends a "no" vote on Proposal II.

Steve Barnaby

A COLLEAGUE of mine here at the newspaper, a Mexican-American, tells some disheartening stories of what it is like to be a Latino in a gringo world.

I wish Birmingham's U.S. Rep. William Broomfield could talk to my friend. Maybe he would understand better why he is making a mistake in introducing an amendment that would prohibit Spanish from being adopted as this country's second language.

Being stopped for a minor traffic violation often threatens to end in major ethnic confrontation. Store clerks often watch closely as he looks over the merchandise. The air of discrimination always is lurking in the background.

He laughs when telling the stories. But the tone in his voice says the wound never quite heals.

"You own this car?" says the cop.

"Yes, sir."

"What year is it?"

"1980."

"When did you buy it?"

"1980."

"You mean to tell me you bought this car new?"

"Yes, sir. Would you like to see the registration?"

"I'm the one asking the questions here."

"Yes, sir."

"Let me see your registration . . ."

My friend, the Mexican-American, resents that because of the color of his skin and Spanish accent he is treated rudely.

My friend is known for his politeness and never is rude to anyone, even to those who are discourteous to him because they fear his ethnicity.

PERHAPS HE KNOWS some things that folks like Broomfield should realize.

We live in a hemisphere where the majority of people share the same religious belief, similar culture and speak Spanish.

That's potent stuff.

Perhaps he knows that by the year 2000, U.S. Hispanics will number 30 million — the largest and one of the most economically affluent groups in this country. Today most of the 18.9 million U.S. Hispanics live in states with large numbers of electoral votes — California, Florida, Illinois, New York and Texas.

That's power.

Perhaps he knows that in the last 20 years U.S. Hispanic-owned businesses have increased from 100,000 to 400,000 and that in the next decade Hispanic elected officials will double to 3,200.

We should take a lesson from our neighbors to the north who recently adopted bilingualism as a way of life. After decades of battling each other, French- and English-speaking Canadians are uniting to build a stronger country.

We can avoid the struggle and turmoil now by adopting Spanish as America's second language. And we'll be a stronger country for it.

They beat on Liberace

Tim Richard

"WHY CAN'T they let him die in peace and dignity? He made so many people so happy."

More than one Liberace fan echoed that complaint against the news media last week as the colorful pianist lay gravely ill, died and was buried. They deserve an answer. I'm not certain I have it.

After the announcement that Liberace was ill, every single news account — bar none — mentioned that a Las Vegas newspaper reported he had a loathsome disease, and that the entertainer's spokesman denied it. Even the story of his funeral rites carried that charge-denial paragraph.

My friends weren't unbelieving. Back in the '50s it was widely whispered that Liberace wasn't heterosexual. So what? He behaved properly in public, he didn't march in any oddball demonstrations, he played piano elegantly, and he had a marvelous sense of audience. Why repeat and repeat and repeat about his personal life and ailment?

WE HAD A case like that in these suburbs back in the '70s. A young man killed the wife of a prominent Wayne County official in Plymouth Township. The arrest, court appearances, trial and sentencing dragged on a long time.

It so happened that the young man's father was an elected suburban official. In most stories, we mentioned that fact. It was standard news procedure — identify the accused.

When a reader occasionally objected to the repetition, our reply was that it wasn't to embarrass the suburban official — who was one of the best — but to answer a logical question. One noticing the familiar surname would be bound to wonder if there was a connection.

Covering the 15th installment of a continuing story, we never assume you have read stories 1-14. So writers insert background each time. In the murder case, the fact that the accused had a prominent father added to the human tragedy. We weren't picking on the father — not by a long shot.

A FRIEND tells of the time he went deer hunting one November weekend in the boonies around Gaylord. There was no radio in the cabin.

Not until he was driving home late Sunday did he learn that President Kennedy had been murdered at midday Friday, that his assassin also had been killed, and that funeral details were being announced.

Without the repeated background — that sniper Lee Oswald had killed Kennedy in a Dallas motorcade — he might have been puzzled as to why the Kennedy family was planning a burial at Arlington.

Never assume the reader has followed installments 1-14.

BUT WHAT was the justification for repeating, repeating, repeating the alleged cause of Liberace's demise?

No violence requiring police action was involved. What he might have done in private was between him and God. Two mentions would have been enough: once when the Las Vegas paper broke the story, once when the coroner confirmed he had AIDS.

I think my industry wronged Liberace.

But let's end this on an upbeat note. Next week I'm going to write about the finest young classical pianist I've heard in a generation. She will perform locally. Stay tuned.

Teachers' union is convenient target

Rich Perlberg

SALLY REED IS bright, attractive, articulate and prone to see red when she talks about that nation's largest teachers' union.

That's red as in Joseph Stalin's favorite color, although the former Texas public school teacher is quick to say that she would never paint the National Education Association with a Communist brush. She opts for a lighter shade.

The NEA, she says, is "the primary vehicle of the radical left to gain control of the political process." She says the NEA pursues this task with a half-billion-dollar budget gleaned from a membership of 1.8 million teachers, most of whom wrongly think their union leadership is concerned with smaller class sizes, bigger paychecks and duty-free lunch periods.

Reed now works for a private agency in Washington, D.C., where she tirelessly wages a conservative war against so-called liberal public schools. Her campaign takes her on cross-country tours, such as the one that brought her to the Northfield Hilton in Troy last Friday, and to national audiences, such as the time she debated an NEA spokesman on the Phil Donahue Show.

HER ARGUMENTS are both predictable and familiar. Schools are liberal breeding grounds for sex because they teach about sex education, their textbooks explain evolution but not creationism, teachers play into Soviet hands by scaring students about the threat of nuclear bombs and students are urged to reject parental teachings through such insidious methods as keeping daily journals.

Someone has to be to blame for these affronts to decency, so why not the NEA? This is not the space in which to defend the NEA; suffice it to say that Reed's arguments rely heavily on tailoring reality to a foregone conclusion. For instance, she criticizes teachers who instruct students to put their fears of nuclear destruction into writing. Somehow, that becomes a liberal practice even though students in the '50s practiced civil defense air-raid drills so they could protect themselves when the cold war heated into an atomic war.

THE INFALLIBILITY of people who zealously promote one end or the other of the ideological spectrum is fascinating. So is their logic. Reed castigates as name-callers those who criticize her; she says they are people who need to create an enemy in order to garner support. Then she calls Jane Fonda "our favorite commie" and spends an hour building a case of perceived sins by the "thems" of our world who want to destroy our way of life.

What is the motivation for such verbal attacks? It is at least partly the frustration of people who see the world changing and believe it is both possible and feasible to return to what they recall as a simpler and better way of life.

When Reed says the schools' demise is "the public's fault" for losing sight of what schools did "when mothers went into the work force," she may be more revealing than she intended. It's not the NEA's fault that women no longer buy the Donna Reed Syndrome, but the NEA is a much more convenient target.

Michigan

150 years old

OUR MODERN freeway system was laid out in the territorial period, years before Michigan became a state. Much of it followed old Indian trails.

First on the drawing board was a road from Detroit to Pontiac and Saginaw — paralleled by the present I-75. A trail branched off the Detroit-Pontiac road and went to Grand Rapids. It was known as the Grand River Road and now is I-96.

WHEN I BROKE out with a case of "Haig fever" last week, it sent me scurrying to Ann Arbor — not to a hospital for an allergy injection but rather to the Gerald R. Ford Library to see what Al Haig looks and sounds like close up.

If that seems too informal a way to refer to Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., who lists supreme allied commander in Europe, chief of staff and secretary of state among former titles, it's because you don't realize how close my mission carried me. Neither did he until I told him two days later.

Just because I searched out this one potential candidate for the presidency of the United States for eyeballing doesn't mean I intend to do the same with the whole lot as they pass the hat among us. But the general catches my fancy and has ever since the day Ronald Reagan was shot in 1981 and Haig seemed so ready to step into the breech.

WHAT'S MORE, I needed fodder for a column.

Here was one of our most prominent citizens on his way to address the Oakland County Republican Lincoln Day Dinner and who, two days earlier, would pause 30 minutes from my home for the television taping of a discussion with such figures as former President Ford himself, Attorney General Edwin Meese, Sen. Alan Cranston, former CIA director Stansfield Turner, commentators Sam Donaldson and Dan Rather, and the president of Yale University, among others.

The same character who coined the line about newspapermen meeting such interesting people probably is to blame for the theory that fools walk in where angels fear to tread. Anyway, I thought to myself, what the hell, why not?

The Ford Library is a new structure on the north campus of the University of Michigan and I had to ask instructions. Also, I was late, overlooked the proper entrance and walked in through a back door.

IT LED DIRECTLY onto a set where six TV cameras were focused upon a horseshoe-shaped table at which were comfortably seated some of the most important thought-shapers of the free world.

For the rest of the morning, fortunately out of camera range, I quietly shared space with a potted palm and a couple of couldn't-care-less TV guys, within first down distance of the back of Jerry Ford's head and with profile views of the others.

Although I'm happy I apparently don't look like an assassin, I was amazed at the ease of access and at not being stopped, queried and perhaps checked for weapons. At the Kingsley Inn when I told the experience to Haig, he verified what I already had found to be a fine sense of humor when he joked, "Maybe the laxness you describe suggests it was a roomful of has-beens."

Pat Wierzbicki of the Oakland Conty Republican staff tells me that the attendance of about 950 at Saturday evening's Lincoln banquet was the second largest in the 98 years these rah-rah GOP feasts have been held.

Slim and trim in a well-tailored pinstripe suit, Haig was not the bombastic, long-winded orator some may have expected. He spoke in a positive, upbeat manner for about 20 minutes, much of it about what he calls the "renaissance of American spirit" during the Reagan years.

He makes no bones about the seriousness with which he is considering throwing his hat into the ring in quest of the GOP presidential nomination, and is well rehearsed in speaking effectively on the route he thinks the nation must travel to solve its problem.

But, of course, Haig has no lock on ideas.

When we came face to face, he didn't prove quite as tall a man as I had envisioned, nor was he a haughty know-it-all. If he's power hungry, he shields it. He answered questions in a straightforward, down to earth manner and in his press conference took the time to move about the room, firmly shaking one hand after another.

I feel he would be a fantastically stimulating all-night conversationalist in a group before a glowing fire. But I'd hate to be his rival in a poker game.

Urge state tax remain the same

To the editor:

Currently there is a debate over what to do about a possible state tax windfall as a result of the changes in federal tax policy. One suggestion is to cut the state income tax rate to make up the difference. We are bothered by this suggestion.

For some time now, a dominant theme in this state has been complaints about taxation. It seems to us that we have lost sight of the tremendous value we get from our taxes. Taxes provide for our safety, quality education, road systems, and courts, to name just a few of the benefits. In fact, taxes are the basis for the orderly conduct of our society.

Equally important, taxes provide protection for many in society who are disadvantaged: those who are handicapped, displaced or mentally ill.

We can understand the resistance to adequate taxation on the part of individuals living on fixed incomes that have been undercut by inflation and other economic forces out of their control. But this does not account for the anti-tax mania that has gripped this state in recent years.

We suspect that much support for inadequate taxation comes from that segment of our society who are deeply in debt and living beyond their means. Recently the media has begun to explore the shocking extent of credit card indebtedness. This is just one aspect of the problem. We have a serious, national problem concerning debt and debt management. It applies not only to individuals but governmental units as well.

We must have adequate taxation to cover our responsibilities to everyone in our society. We need additional taxation, both state and national, to begin to undo the ravages of irresponsible deficit spending.

As individual taxpayers, each of us needs to get our financial house in order. At the same time, we need to demand that government follow suit. Taxation is not a burden to those of us who live prudently. It is one of the best buys available.

Suggestions for improving ice fest

To the editor:

(An open letter to Henry Graper and Scott Lorenz)

This letter is a response to your request for additional citizen comment concerning the recent Ice Festival. That it was a success for the business community is an appreciated given. That it attracted numerous people to our city is also a known; the justified compliments have been expressed.

The following ideas are presented in an effort to enhance this endeavor further. The suggestions are both my own and those of visitors.

It would be nice to see the sculptures presented in Kellogg Park in an environment that could be even more effective. I suggest they be placed further inside the park (on platforms, if needed, to protect the grass) while clearing the snow from the sidewalks to be used. The area inside the park could then be roped off using red ribbon tied to ice sculpture pillars.

Additionally, ice sculpture pillars with "No Parking" signs posted on them could be used on Main Street or along other areas so designated. This could eliminate the need to use those ugly sawhorse barriers with the yellow "Police Line" tape.

Place the show-stopper sculptures on or near the fountain, or on a blocked-off street, so those who wish may gather around it and not be concerned with traffic whizzing nearby.

Plan to take a stipend from the festival to keep our city cleaned up throughout the festival. Often our city was filthy with litter from the Styrofoam cups, the snack packs, the cigarette butts, the Kleenex, and general trash which occurs when large numbers of people gather. The area from Farmer Jack up to the railroad tracks was littered.

I suggest that many more litter baskets be placed about during the festival. We could employ teams of students to pick up the litter during the day as is done at Cedar Point. This could be an opportunity for our athletic teams or band members to earn some money.

As I strolled through the city I noted sagging coverlets over concrete block stands, and missing coverlets exposing ugly concrete blocks. It looked unsightly. And do the maintenance vehicles have to be parked right next to The Gathering display? That area was littered as well.

One visitor commented that they wanted to know more about what they were seeing. Perhaps a brochure with background information about the contest, the contestants, and some history about our city could be provided.

It was suggested that there be uniformity in the signs designating the sculpture's name and school represented, and that each sculpture be so listed. One visitor wished the actual sculpting could be more easily seen — perhaps throughout the area so more could view it.

A complaint was made that on one Saturday when visitors wanted to see the sculptures in The Gathering, they were being removed to be placed about the city. Could the timing of those activities be different so on the busiest days the sculptures are in place for viewing? It was noted that with the extensive advertisement and hype the festival receives, it was important that it be presented in a manner that compliments those expectations. There are those who felt this had not been accomplished.

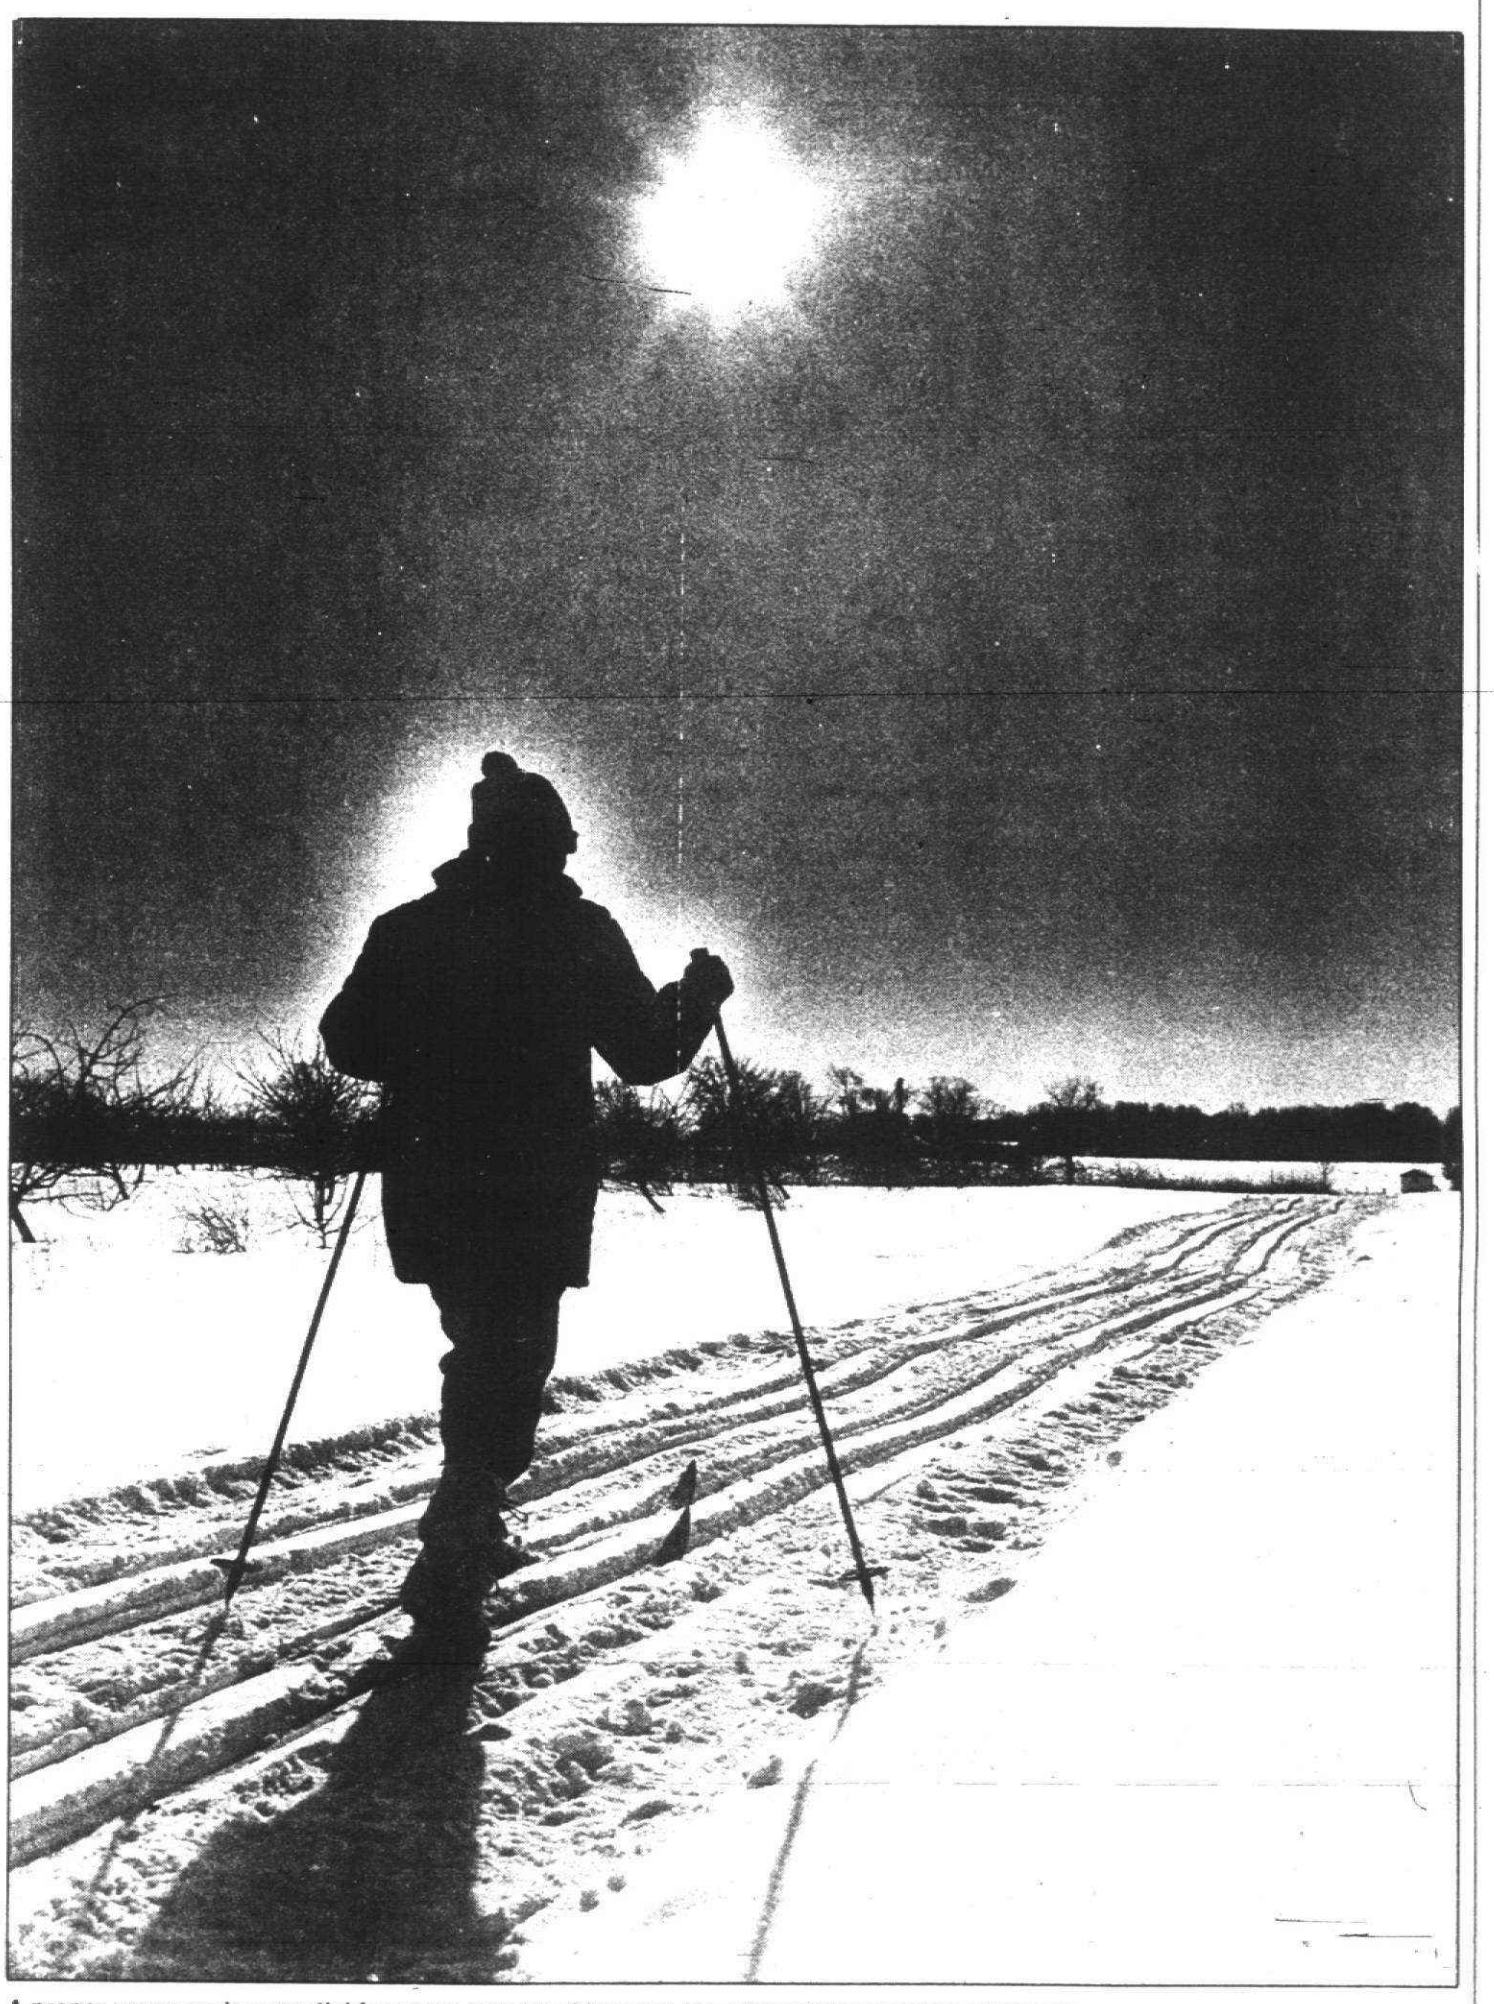
Avoiding winter's injuries



A proper warm-up is essential for cross country skiers and for other winter sports participants.

By Julie Brown
staff writer

WINTER DOESN'T have to be spent cooped up indoors.

Winter sports, such as cross country and downhill skiing, can make the season more enjoyable. They allow participants to enjoy the great outdoors.

Such sports do, however, entail certain risks. Fractures can be the end result of a trip to the slopes for downhill skiing, particularly for an inexperienced skier.

"You really can't get injured too badly cross country skiing," said Sue Heinzman, a certified athletic trainer. Although cross country skiing is less risky than downhill skiing, it still has its risks.

Cross country skiers may experience tendonitis and muscle strains, said Heinzman, who has a bachelor's degree in physical education with an emphasis in sports medicine from Eastern Michigan University.

"They don't stretch well. That's a common problem."

HEINZMAN WORKS for the Center for Sports Medicine and Fitness at the Reichert Health Building in Ann Arbor. She's also a trainer for the men's and women's teams at Plymouth Canton High School.

"Every sport," she said of her work at the high school. "Soccer, the whole bit."

In her work, Heinzman emphasizes prevention of sports-related injuries.

"We're real big on prevention." It's important for those participating in athletic activities to learn the proper stretches and to do a proper warm-up.

A good source of ideas on stretching activities is Bob Anderson's "Stretching." (See related story.) The book includes a number of stretching activities designed for specific sports, Heinzman said.

Cool-down stretching activities should also be done after participating in a winter sports activity.

Bob Dates, recreation supervisor for Canton Township, agreed that a proper warm-up is essential.

"You really need to limber up. Cross country skiing especially, you tend to be out for longer periods of time."

Cross country skiers may not be aware of the strain they're putting on their muscles, he said. They may only find that out later, when their muscles begin to ache.

IN THE SKIING trips Canton Township offers for teenagers, bumps and bruises are the most common injuries.

"We haven't had any broken bones, fortunately," Dates said.

Some winter sports participants may think they're in mid-season form for the season's first snowfall or their first time out, according to Bob Dates, recreation supervisor for Canton.

'They don't stretch well. That's a common problem.'

— Sue Heinzman athletic trainer

Canton's parks and recreation department staffers hope to offer cross country skiing on weekends next season at the Fellows Creek Golf Course. Equipment rentals and possibly lessons would be offered if the interest is there.

"It looks promising for next winter," Dates said. Unlike downhill skiing sites, however, snow can't be manufactured for cross country skiing.

"You have to rely on the natural snow."

In addition to the presence of sufficient snow, aerobic fitness is essential for those participating in an activity such as cross country skiing.

In order to be effective in enhancing fitness, an aerobic workout needs to be done for 20 minutes at a time three times a week. To determine the heart rate needed for a workout, it's necessary to subtract your age from 220, Heinzman said. That figure will be your maximum heart rate per minute.

"You would never want to exceed that," she said. For the general public, workouts should be done at 50 to 70 percent of that rate for at least 20 minutes at a time. For athletes, the rate would be 60 to 75 percent of the maximum heart rate.

IT'S BEST to do aerobic activities on alternating days, to give the body a chance to rest and rebuild, she said. A Monday-Wednesday-Friday program, for example, is better than an exercise program concentrated on the weekends.

Aerobic fitness activities include running, riding a stationary bicycle or swimming.

"If you have access to a pool in the winter, that's an excellent all-around exercise," Canton Township's Dates said.

Too often, people tend to think they're in mid-season form for the first snowfall or their first time out, the recreation supervisor said. Cross country skiers may stay out for too long, rather than starting out slowly.

"You tend to take advantage of the good days."

Strength work is also needed for winter sports participants, Heinzman said. In cross country skiing, arms and legs are both used for power. The upper body is also used for balance. Downhill skiers rely primarily on the strength of the legs.

In strength work, a program can be designed by a professional. Sports participants must train for their specific sport.

Lessons are a good idea for winter sports participants, particularly for beginners. As with any athletic activity, it's best to start out nice and easy.

"They should work into it slowly, pace themselves," she said.

A good skier needs to stay in shape year-round, rather than waiting for the winter months to begin working out.

A VISIT to the doctor prior to beginning a winter sports program is also a good idea, particularly for middle-aged and older people.

"They should be checked out by their family physician," Heinzman said. An EKG can be done to check for any heart problems; if necessary, a stress test can be administered.

"A good physical never hurts anyone," she said.

Winter sports participants also need to give some thought to their choice of equipment and clothing. Some of the synthetics are good clothing choices for sports participants.

"Polypropylene is one of the best because it allows you to breath and it's very warm," Heinzman said.

When buying clothing and equipment, it's best to stick with stores that have knowledgeable salespeople, she said. Salespeople that participate in those sports can help customers make wise purchasing decisions.

Recent improvements in the design of ski boots have cut down on the frequency of "boot top fracture" of the tibia (the inner and larger of the two bones of the lower leg from the knee to the ankle). The boots now go up higher on the leg and thus provide greater stability for skiers, Heinzman said.

(Additional information is available from Heinzman and her colleagues at the Center for Sports Medicine and Fitness, 434-8334, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.)

Stretch

Routines help boost fitness

WHEN DONE properly, stretching can do wonders for exercisers.

The right way to stretch is a relaxed, sustained stretch with attention focused on the muscles being stretched. The wrong way is to bounce up and down or to stretch to the point of pain.

Those methods can actually do more harm than good, according to Bob Anderson's "Stretching" (Shelter Publications, 1980).

Staff photos by Bill Bresler

Anderson's book includes before-and-after stretches for such winter sports activities as cross country and downhill skiing, figure skating and ice hockey.

Stretching routines for a number of other athletic activities are also included, along with stretches designed for specific muscle groups. Sketches show the proper way to do the stretches.

According to the book, there are a number of reasons for including stretching in a fitness program. Stretching will:

- Reduce muscle tension and make the body feel more relaxed.
- Help coordination by allowing for freer and easier movement.
- Increase range of motion.
- Prevent injuries such as muscle strains. (A strong pre-stretched muscle resists stress better than a strong, unstretched muscle.)
- Make strenuous activities like running, skiing, tennis, swimming, cycling easier because it prepares you for activity. It's a way of signaling the muscles that they are about to be used.
- Develop body awareness. As you stretch various parts of the body, you focus on them and get in touch with them.
- Help loosen the mind's control of the body so that the body moves for "its own sake" rather than for competition or ego.
- Promote circulation; stretching also feels good.

Commitment: key to success

By Julie Brown
staff writer

If Tom Peters wanted to find a successful manager and leader, he wouldn't head for the high-tech world of Silicon Valley.

Instead, Peters would travel to Bentonville, Ark., to meet Sam Walton of Wal-Mart fame. Walton's company has enjoyed tremendous success — simply because he recognizes the importance of keeping the customer satisfied.

Walton's success can also be attributed to his frequent visits to his many stores. He knows the secret of MBWA — managing by wandering around.

That technique is the key to effective management, according to Peters, who is the co-author of "In Search of Excellence."

A tape on "A Passion for Excellence" featuring Peters was shown at Monday night's meeting of the Canton Business and Professional Women. The meeting was held at the Roman Forum Restaurant in Canton.

According to Peters, managers who spend more than 25 percent of their time in their offices aren't doing their jobs.

IF NOTHING else, managers who regularly get out of the office do less harm than might otherwise be the case; simply by getting out, they generate fewer memos and thus leave their employees free to do the real work of the organization.

Peters' presentation on excellence focused on four areas: customers, innovation, people and leadership.

Although marketing is recognized as an essential aspect of business, it's important to remember that the individual customer is the key, according to Peters.

"In the history of humankind, a market has never bought anything."

The same "customer first" thinking should apply to the public sector or to any organization, he said. Whether they're students, patients or paying customers, the needs of the people footing the bill should be the top priority.

Any organization that treats its customers with common courtesy and decency will have the lion's share of the market, he said. Such treatment is so rare these days that it guarantees that any such organization will stand out from the crowd.

Innovation is also lacking in far too many businesses and other organizations, according to Peters. Instead, what has passed for management talent has been the ability to soothe conflicts, to make good presentations and the like.

IN ORDER to succeed, any idea needs a persistent champion. Ownership and commitment are the key words in any organization in turning people into such persistent champions, Peters said.

Enthusiasm, fun and zest also have their place in the workaday world. Such enthusiasm isn't encouraged, however; in fact, smiling while on the job is often seen as being somehow un-American.

"American business is real serious stuff," Peters said. Such overwhelming seriousness can, however, suppress the growth and success of an organization and its people.

Monday night's presentation was given by Canton BPW member Laurie Uhl. Uhl is owner of the Cutting Corners beauty salon in Canton and also works as a secretary at Detroit Diesel in Redford.

Uhl had seen a film of Peters' presentation and thought it would be useful for her fellow BPW members.

"He really picks you up and gets you moving," she said of the presentation on excellence, which is used for employees at Detroit Diesel.

Candy sale under way

Detroit Area Council Camp Fire girls and boys will be selling candy throughout the area during their annual candy sale. The sale continues through March 9.

The Camp Fire youngsters will wear their red, white and blue uniforms.

This year's sale features five products priced at $2.50 each. Those products are Peanut Crunch, Chocolate Covered Mints, Cashew Caramel Cluster, Peanut Butter Delights and Assorted Nuts with Sesame Sticks.

Friday, Feb. 27, and Friday, March 6, are Downtown Sales Days when Camp Fire youngsters will sell candy at locations in the downtown Detroit business area. Camp Fire girls and boys are selling candy in neighborhood stores and will also take individual orders.

The annual sale is the largest of the council's fund-raising activities. It is conducted to supplement the allocation received from the United Foundation.

The council's ability to provide programs, services and camping experiences for area girls and boys depends in large part upon the success of the event.

A Special Place
Concerned sons and daughters know there comes a time when an elderly parent is getting a little slower in step and needs a little more support and supervision. A nursing home is out of the question. Too expensive. Too much care and confinement. Now there is a gracious alternative - the luxurious Plymouth Inn, an assisted-living facility.
Opened in January of 1987, this magnificent 50 room facility is the first of its kind in the community. Designed for those elderly who are basically independent who can bathe, dress and feed themselves yet need some encouragement and motivation. The Plymouth Inn meets their needs, budget and lifestyle. It's a special place.
The Plymouth Inn provides 3 delicious meals, graciously served in a beautifully appointed dining room. Spacious mini-suites or deluxe semi-private accommodations overlook tranquil landscaped grounds. Extensive social programs and varied recreational opportunities keep minds involved and stimulated. A game room. Chapel. Beauty parlour. Many quiet cozy corners. The latest in fire and safety protection. All this and more await those who select the Plymouth Inn.
Call today. Arrange to visit our special place. Make it yours. It's here in Plymouth - just 30 minutes from everywhere.

Scruggs-Dehring

Bonita Gail Dehring of Port Clinton, Ohio, and Steven Richard Scruggs of Plymouth were married Nov. 21 at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. The Rev. John Grenfell Jr. performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Les and Wilda Poff of Port Clinton, Ohio, and Richard and Carol Scruggs of Plymouth.

The bride is a graduate of Port Clinton High School. She is employed with the U.S. Navy as a personnel clerk at Naval Air Station Jacksonville.

Her husband is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. He is employed with the U.S. Navy as an aviation electrician at Naval Air Station Cecil Field.

The bride's attendants were Dawn Tavey, Linda Olds, Nancy Reinhackel and Jessica Dehring.

The bridegroom's attendants were Karl McNulty, Richard Gladstone, Mark Scruggs and Jason Kendizon.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white ballerina-length gown. Her fingertip-length veil was plumed on a white derby; pearls and lace complimented the hat. She carried a dozen peach roses entwined in English ivy and baby's breath.

A reception was held at the Wayne County Conservation Club.

Following a Frankenmuth, Mich., wedding trip, the newlyweds will make their home in Jacksonville, Fla.

Zylka-Orasin

Patricia Ann Orasin and David Lawrence Zylka were married July 26 at St. Ambrose Roman Catholic Church in Endicott, N.Y. The Rev. John E. Fetcho performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Josephine Orasin of Endicott, N.Y., the late Frank J. Orasin, and Zygmund and Arleen Zylka of Canton. The Zylkas are former Westland residents.

The bride is a graduate of Marywood College in Scranton, Pa. Her husband is a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. He is a lieutenant in the Army at Fort Ord, Calif.

Linda Orasin, sister of the bride, and Debbie Richards were honor attendants. Carolyn Ford, Anne Caezza, Jodi Dinga, Rosemarie Varzaly and Eileen Harrington were bridesmaids.

Timothy Riehl was the best man. Michael Flemming, John Wheeler, Patrick Giblin, Scott Taylor, Sam Eden and Curtis Hunter were the ushers.

A wedding reception was held at the Banquet Masters in Endicott, N.Y.

Following a wedding trip to Barbados, the newlyweds are making their home in California.

Farnham-Krumm

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Farnham of Allentown, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Cynthia Gail Farnham, to Thomas Peter Krumm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Krumm of Plymouth.

The bride-elect, a journalist, and her fiance, a combat engineer, both serve in the U.S. Army at Fort Riley, Kan.

A May wedding is planned.

Brandon-Willette

Clarence and Rachel Brandon of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Tonya Lynn, to Robert John Willette, son of Robert and M.J. Willette of Plymouth.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and is a business student at Oakland Community College. She is employed as a customer service representative at Total Foods Corp. in West Bloomfield.

Her fiance is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. He received a bachelor's degree in education from the University of Michigan and is attending Wayne State University for his master's degree in sports administration. He is employed by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

A June wedding is planned at the Plymouth Church of Christ.

Colaluca-Oleszkowicz

Albert and Arlene Colaluca of Canton announce the engagement of their daughter, Laurie Lynn Colaluca, to Joseph Paul Oleszkowicz, son of Joseph and Janet Oleszkowicz of Redford.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School. She is employed as an administrative assistant with the Ford Motor Credit Co.

Her fiance is a graduate of Thurston High School. He is employed at Ford Reprographics as a shipping/receiving clerk.

A March wedding is planned at St. Valentine Church in Redford.

● SENIOR TAX COUNSELORS
The Plymouth-Canton-Northville branch of the American Association of Retired Persons will help prepare tax returns for senior citizens — low income and shut-ins. Tax preparation will be now through April 15 at sites in Canton, Plymouth and Northville. For information call 474-1645 or 397-1000, ext. 278.

● FREE TAX PREPARATION
Free tax preparation for the elderly, low income persons and shutins will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. now through April 15.

Canton residents may call Diane, 397-1000, Ext. 278, for an appointment.

Bring a copy of your 1985 taxes and statements for all income received in 1986.

● TRAINING MENTORS
Youth Development is a diversion program, in cooperation with the Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township police departments and Growth Works, for juvenile first-time offenders. The program is designed for both the youth and his/her parents as an alternative to the juvenile court system.

Growth Works trains volunteers to work on a weekly basis with the youth. The training covers communication skills, empathy listening skills, building and bonding relationships, alcohol and substance abuse, decision making, consequences of behavior, parenting skills, and crisis intervention. Training sessions totaling about 20 hours is open to all interested people willing to commit to at least six months of about three hours per week. For information, call Sue Davis, 455-4902 Monday through Friday.

● FISH NEEDS HELP
Plymouth-Canton FISH needs new volunteers. For information, call 420-2046.

● CEP VOLUNTEERS
Teachers at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools need volunteers to type, make bulletin boards, help in the reading lab, input for computer circulation in the library, or serve as speakers and resource people in the areas of social studies, German and French. Native French and German speakers also are needed. If you can donate an hour a week, call Cyndi Burnstein 1-10 p.m. at 459-9435.

● AMATEUR PERFORMERS
The Plymouth Community Arts Council is updating its list of amateur performers who are willing to share their time and talent with students. The resource list is provided by the PCAC to all elementary teachers in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Particularly needed this year are dancers, singers and musicians. If you or someone you know has a special skill they are willing to share, call Pat MacIsaac at 453-8051.

● VOLUNTEERS SOUGHT
Canton Care Council, an affiliate of the Ann Arbor-based Community Councils Association, is seeking volunteers interested in enhancing the quality of life for nursing home residents.

Volunteers serve on the council, which meets once a month to plan social, service or educational activities for residents at Canton Care Center. The time commitment is three to six hours per month. For more information, contact Kathy Belisle at 981-2382.

● EMERGENCY VOLUNTEERS NEEDED
The Plymouth Township Office of Emergency Preparedness needs volunteers to be trained in skills that will be used during an emergency or disaster. Training includes damage assessment, shelter management, first aid, emergency operating center support and service weather spotting.

Training meetings are held from 9 a.m. to noon on the fourth Saturday of each month in Plymouth Township Hall at Ann Arbor Road and Mill. Township residency is not required. All training is free.

● HELPING SKILLED TRADES
Focus: HOPE needs active retired toolmakers, pipefitters, millwrights, machine repair, electricians and auto mechanics for full-time, part-time and temporary positions at Focus: HOPE Industry Mall — a 25-acre industrial center for high skill training, new employment and creation of minority ownership in machining and manufacturing.

Retired master craftsmen, who want to remain active, make use of years of knowledge and pass their skills on to another generation, can become involved in passing on their skills and work habits to others. Those interested can contact Focus: HOPE, 1200 Oakman Blvd., Detroit 48238 or call 883-7440 from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday.

● WANTED: CIVIC RADIO HELP
Plymouth Area REACT Team is looking for members for emergency radio communication (no experience necessary) and other community programs. All residents from Plymouth, Canton, Northville and surrounding areas are invited. The group meets at 8 p.m. the second Thursday of each month at Plymouth Township Hall, Mill at Ann Arbor Road. For more information, call 455-9609 or 453-7641.

● 'RIDE WITH US'
Plymouth Area Citizens Team program is made up of volunteers from Plymouth and surrounding communities who patrol the Plymouth area. The organization is looking for volunteers to devote one night (four-five hours) per month to be the "eyes and ears" for the community. Those interested in going on an observation ride with a PACT member should call 459-2075.

● HISTORICAL MUSEUM
Volunteers are needed at the Plymouth Historical Museum. Are you interested in antiques and Plymouth history? Come in and visit your museum and see what's there. The museum needs volunteers for changing displays, helping in the gift shop, typing, printing, sewing and helping in the educational program for school children. Call 455-8940 or stop in from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday or Thursday to ask what you can do to help.

● DELIVERING MEALS
Residents are encouraged to volunteer their time to deliver meals one day per week to the homebound elderly in the city of Plymouth and in Plymouth Township. Delivery takes about one hour, 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. Drivers are needed daily except Thursday. Mileage reimbursement of 23 cents per mile is available. For information, call Margaret Foster, 453-9703, 10-11 a.m. Monday-Friday.

● MEALS ON WHEELS
The Senior Nutrition Program, "Meals on Wheels," needs clerical volunteers for its main office at Five Mile and Sheldon roads in Northville. To volunteer, call 453-2525.

● TEEN VOLUNTEERS
Teens can volunteer year-round at Catherine McAuley Health Center and not just during the special summer program as in the past.

Teen volunteers can help out at the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth, St. Joseph Hospital, Mercywood Health Building, Maple Health Building and at Reichert Health Building working directly with patients or in non-patient contact positions during weekday, evening and weekend hours. Orientation and training is provided to all volunteers. For information, call the volunteer services department at 572-4159.

● MEDICAL HELP
Henry Ford Hospital is looking for men and women 18 and older as volunteers at the Plymouth Center on Main Street east of Penniman. Needed are people with all types of skills to help with patients or to perform clerical and other tasks. Nurses also are needed for blood pressure screening. For information, call the volunteer services department at 876-1876 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

church bulletin

The church bulletin is published every Thursday in the Observer. Information for the Church Bulletin must be received in our office by noon the Monday preceding publication. Send information to Suburban Life section, Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

● SCANDINAVIA ALIVE
"Scandinavia Alive" will appear at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 15, at Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia. Lars Dunberg, international executive director of Living Bibles International, will be the keynote speaker for "Scandinavia Alive."
Marta Svensson will be the featured soloist and Hans-Lennart Rassk will perform on piano.

● FILM SERIES
"Making Things Right, When Things Go Wrong," a full-color film series will be shown at 6 p.m. Sundays, through March 1, at Livonia Baptist Church, 32940 Schoolcraft, Livonia. The movie features the humor and practical advice of Dr. Paul Faulkner and is based on his years of counseling experience and major research studies.
For more information, call 422-3763.

● ANNIVERSARY
Christus Victor Lutheran Church, 25535 Ford, Dearborn Heights, will be celebrating its 40th anniversary Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 21-22.

On Saturday, there will be a dinner dance at the Karas House in Redford. The University of Michigan-Dearborn Stage Band will perform. Tickets cost $20. For more information, call 278-8878.
On Sunday, at 10:15 a.m., Reginald Hollie, bishop of the Michigan District of the American Lutheran Church, will preach at an anniversary service.

● PATIENT PROGRAM
A patient education program to help people cope with cancer will be offered from 7-9 p.m. Mondays, starting Feb. 23, at Ward Presbyterian Church, 17000 Farmington, Livonia.
The objectives of the series are three-fold: To increase the patient's and family's knowledge of the disease; to increase the patient's control of his/her life; and to decrease anxiety about the disease.
The program is sponsored by the American Cancer Society and will include guest speakers and community professionals to discuss diet, medicine and treatment. It's open to the public.
People can register by calling 422-1826. There is no cost. Class size, though, is limited.

● MARRIAGE ENRICHMENT
Marriage Enrichment, a weekend workshop for married and engaged couples, will take place Friday through Sunday, April 3-5, at St. John Seminary in Plymouth. Cost is $140 a couple, which will include room, meals and materials.
The program is designed to help couples deepen their communication skills and increase the level of personal satisfaction in the relationship. For more information, call 887-7602 or write: 4916 Cedar Island, Milford, Mich., 48042.

● WOMEN'S FOCUS
Women's Focus, featuring well-known Christian speakers, will meet at 10:30-11:30 a.m. Fridays in Farmington Hills. For more information, call 851-0310.

● REVIVAL
Harvest Temple Worship Center Church of God in Farmington Hills will be hosting a week of revival with the Rev. Troy Ogle Sunday through Friday, Feb. 15-20. Services will begin at 6:30 p.m. Sunday and continue at 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. The revival is open to the public. For more information, call 478-1511.

● CONCERT
Westland Free Methodist Church, 1421 Venoy, between Palmer and Avondale roads, Westland, will host "Cornerstone," at 11 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 15. The musical group from Greenville College in Greenville, Ill. plays a family-oriented brand of music.
The group includes six vocalists, a pianist and a keyboardist. For more information, call 728-2600.

● SPIRITUALITY INSTITUTE
Brennan Manning, author and minister of evangelization from New Orleans and Bishop Thomas Gumbleton, will be guest speakers at the Spirituality Institute Monday through Friday, June 15-19, at Madonna College.
The program, which is open to the public, will take place in Madonna's Kresge Hall. Registration fee is $10; lecture fee is $5 a lecture or $10 a day. For college credit, it costs $178.
For more information, call 591-5006, or write: Campus Ministry, Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia, 48150.

● WORKSHOP
Good Shepherd Reformed Church, 6500 N. Wayne, Westland, will present a Praise & Worship Workshop 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 21. Registration will take place from 8:30-9 a.m.
Advance registration costs $2.50 a person, $10 a church. At the door, it costs $3 a person, $12 a church.
The workshop will feature Grace and Colleen Reinders of Unity Music Ministries of Toronto. Also, special teaching will be given by Gerrit Verstraete, president of the Christian Communications Center in Toronto.

● BLOOD DRIVE
The Red Cross will be operating a Blood Drive 2-8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 20, at St. Edith Church, 15089 Newburgh, Livonia. The drive is open to walk-in donors. For more information, call 464-2027.

● HOME STUDY
At 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 15, home study groups will meet at Village Presbyterian Church, 36350 Six Mile, Redford, in the church parlor. Charles Swindoll's book, "Three Steps Forward, Two Steps Back," will be used. The groups will be meeting every other week from 7-8:30 p.m.

● FAITH MISSIONS CONFERENCE
Bethel Baptist Church, 29475 Six Mile, Livonia, will have a Faith Promise Missions Conference Wednesday, Feb. 18, through Sunday, Feb. 22. Wednesday through Friday, the conference starts at 7:30 p.m. and 7 p.m on Saturday.
Sunday, the conference will meet 10, 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Missions to Japan and Bolivia will be discussed along with a prison ministry and a rescue mission.

Ministers feel ads promote wrong idea

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

CHURCH LEADERS, for the most part, are not too keen on condoms being advertised on television.
At least that's opinion of some ministers in the area who were questioned about the recent airing of condom commercials.
Some wonder about the taste of airing such ads.
But mostly they are concerned the commercials, which WXYZ-TV Channel 7 has been broadcasting locally, encourage sexual promiscuity.
The ads have been aired mainly in response to the recent epidemic outbreak of AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome). Many medical experts say condoms help prevent the spread of sexually transmitted diseases.
"When you advertise condoms, it's like we're still trying to get away with something that's against God's law," said the Rev. Gene Sorensen of Unity of Livonia. "Thou shalt not . . . 's still a law of God."
"I'M NOT in favor for advertising on television of condoms in that there would be no educational control over what is being advertised," added the Rev. Kerry Hettinger of Canton Free Methodist Church in Canton. "The advertising (on television) usually emphasizes the spectacular rather than any educational benefits involved."
But as one other minister confided, "The church is between a rock and a hard place."
"On the one hand, the church doesn't want to condone anything which would promote sex outside of the marriage. Also, they want to be supportive of those type of programs which help stop the spread of the disease AIDS."
One minister in New York has went a step further. The Rev. Carl Titchener of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Amherst distributed condoms Sunday at services because AIDS, he said, is too serious to ignore.
"If not here, where?," Titchener said.
THE ROMAN Catholic Church has taken a hard-line view on condoms and on their being advertised on television.
Abstinence is the No. 1 — and only — preventative for stopping AIDS, Catholic Church spokesmen said.
"We're quite cynical about that (condoms being a main preventative)," said Jay Berman, director of communications for the Archdiocese of Detroit.
The archdiocese, according to Berman, has publicly protested the broadcast of the ads.
Some, like the director of the Michigan Pro-Life Action League, think the archdiocese's efforts could be more involved. The league's director, Lynn Mills, of Livonia said the archiocese could take a more active role and perhaps join the league in boycotting Channel 7.
She said several unsuccessful attempts have been made to contact the archdiocese on the matter.
"I'm a little tired of the Catholic Church sitting back on this," Mills said. "The pope is going to be coming in September. I know he probably wouldn't have the time to sit down and watch TV.
"But what if the pope does and a condom commercial came on? It would be embarrassing."
Berman, who feels Mills' assertion about the archdiocese's role is unfair, said the archdiocese would have to look at the details of any boycott before officially joining it.
"We've fought this battle for four years since I've been here," Berman said. "In many cases, we've fought it alone."
Jeanne Findlater, general manager of WXYZ-TV, said the commercials have received an even number of positive-and-negative response since they've aired. When it was first reported the ads would run, callers were 2-to-1 in disapproval.
"I know through community ascertain(ment) there is a significant number of people who could benefit from the information that condoms are an inexpensive and effective way to stop the spread of disease," Findlater said. "With that in mind, we've started to broadcast the commercials."
She added the station will continue to air the commercials.

Rev. David Strong

Our faith is something to be discussed openly

VINCENT DONOVAN tells about an occasion when he went to a Masai tribal chief in Tanzania, Africa. He asked to speak to the chief about something important. The chief came and inquired what it was he wanted. Donovan said that he wanted to talk with him about God. The chief answered, "Who can refuse to talk about God!" Then with a puzzled look he added, "If that is why you came, why did you wait so long to ask that we talk about God?"
As Donovan went to other tribal chiefs with the same request he met with the same response, "Why have you not come to us before ?"
Donovan reflected upon the fact that Christians had come to this part of the world for more than 50 years starting schools, hospitals and churches. Apparently they had never gone to the people with the request, "Let us together talk about God."
Some believe that they are very religious when by other standards they are not religious at all. For some building a medical clinic is a very religious act. For others it is not as important as talking about God. We all define in our own way what it means to be faithful to our beliefs.
THE CURRENT revival of Islamic religion, especially in Iran, reveals a radical return to practices that conflict with most of what our Western society is all about. We are shocked by what we hear is going on in Iran. We are even more shocked when we realize that it is largely a religious revival.
The spiritual leaders of Islam condemn what they call "the failed ideologies of the West." One such leader, M. Yehia says, "Nationalism, socialism, Marxism, capitalism, they have all been tried and they have all turned against us."
Many Islamic leaders want to return to their religious foundations. For them this is a "holy war."
I find that many of us are shocked by such a view. We hold that one religion cannot so dominate a society that it is used to coerce people. The founders of our nation came from societies where religion was a tool of the state. People were persecuted, even killed because they did not conform. Many fled to the new world and here established a principle that state and religion must be kept separate. This we currently celebrate in the United States Constitution.
Someone has said that America is the first nation in history that has instituted this idea: The state and religious institutions must be kept separate.
To keep something separate does not mean that we cannot talk about these things. Do we talk about God? Do we talk about values or institutions in our society that our faith would challenge?
I REMEMBER one minister telling me how he worked for a year to move the American flag away from the pulpit where he preached each Sunday to a place across the room. He felt that the implication was that he must always agree with what is considered "American." Another minister tells me that leaders of his congregation recently said to him, "We don't want to hear you talk about peace in this church."
Our older generation recalls that when they were young their parents failed to tell them anything about sex. There are still things that the most religious people do not want discussed. It may be the subject of peace, or it may even be the subject of God.
We do not want this nation to become another Iran. Yet we must be open to dialogue with others concerning the important issues of life.
No mortal human can have the full and final word. Nevertheless, it is important that we seek truth and seek to share even in those areas that are usually kept silent.
Our greatest freedom is our opportunity to speak. Let us talk about God. Let us talk about what our faith means in facing the problems of our society. Let us risk speaking from our own experience and conviction. Let us cherish this wonderful desire to share, to know and understand.
The Rev. David Strong is the pastor of St. Matthew United Methodist Church in Livonia.

Misusing household cleaners poses risks

Terry Gibb

Q. Are household cleaners as hazardous as my son claims? He attended one of your school programs and says most cleaning products are hazardous. Is that true?

Detroit

A. Because of your questions and a recent incident where a woman nearly died when she accidentally mixed two household cleaners, some information about household products would be helpful.

Many products we commonly use in our homes contain chemicals that fit the description of a hazardous and/or toxic substance. These products include: pesticides, adhesives, paint products, cleaners, auto products. Some of their chemicals are known or suspected human carcinogens.

In most cases, the amount of chemical contained in the product is low enough to be "safe." However, the potential for accidents does exist as in the case above.

FOUR MAIN causes of exposure to hazardous chemicals found in household products.

1. The most common reason for exposure is "misuse" of the product. Not reading the label and/or following the directions causes much of the misuse.

2. Home energy conservation measures while reducing energy use also reduce air exchange between indoors and out. Chemicals used in an air-tight home have no way to escape or be diffused into new air.

3. Inadequate labeling of these products can cause misuse or accidents. Two areas of inadequate labeling are:

- Inert ingredients are not required to be listed by name.
- Vague or confusing terms may be used on labels.

4. The chemical components of these products has increased. There are more chemicals in the average home today than there were in most laboratories 100 years ago. It is increasingly difficult to distinquish between these vast numbers of chemicals.

CHEMICAL EXPOSURE exists, so we must practice ways to reduce exposure to these common household chemicals.

1. Read and follow directions exactly. Use only the amount you need.
2. Keep the product in the original container.
3. Do not over-use the product.
4. Do not leave the containers open or unattended.
5. Never mix chemicals.
6. Clean up immediately when you're finished using these chemicals.
7. Store these products away from kids and pets and according to label recommendations.
8. Use chemicals in a well-ventilated area.
9. Wear protective clothing during use.

ECO-TIP: For a handy, hang-up reference Guide to Household Hazardous Products, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Concern at the address below. The guide outlines disposal and alternative suggestions for many commonly used household products.

The Consumer Mailbag answers your questions. Address mail to The Consumer Mailbag, Concern Detroit, 1025 Shelby, Detroit 48226.

Bianca Lemon's franchise has jobs to 'sell.'

Franchise seeks respect as employment service

By Todd Schneider
staff writer

They're the new kids on the block, faced with trying to shake a somewhat shady reputation.

But Bianca Lemon remains confident that J.O.B.S., the latest employment information service to set up shop in the Detroit area, can erase the black eye created by similar agencies.

Lemon is manager and co-owner (with her husband, Robert) of the first J.O.B.S. franchise to open for business in Michigan. The Livonia office opened its doors Jan. 12.

The Clearwater, Fla.-based company currently has 30 branches in about a dozen states. New offices in Pontiac, Ann Arbor and Lansing are planned by the end of the year.

"We're trying to break a barrier that has been created in Michigan by similar agencies which basically hand the customer a list of classified ads clipped from local newspapers," Bianca Lemon said.

The concept behind J.O.B.S. is to use a computer to bridge the gap between the local workforce and employers seeking semi-skilled and unskilled labor, while bypassing traditional avenues such as the newspaper's help-wanted section.

Their targeted clients are seeking jobs paying less than $25,000. The franchise was started based on the belief that semi-skilled workers are remaining unemployed, despite the efforts of government-funded employment offices, while some employers are unable to find janitors or housekeepers.

For a fee of $75, the company provides the client with a list of prospective employers stored in a computer. The service is free to local employers. J.O.B.S. lists nearly 200 different employment categories, mostly in blue collar, clerical and medical fields.

THE FEE entitles clients to use the service for three months.

"We are not an employment agency in the traditional sense," Lemon said. "We provide the client with a list of contacts, but they are on their own as far as setting up interviews with prospective employers."

The computer lists the company name, job opening, job duties, experience required, hours, pay range and benefits, and the name of a contact person. The listing is somewhat more detailed than a typical classified advertisement.

Lemon said 75 percent of the franchise's current listings don't appear in other media. The goal is to get local employers to list with J.O.B.S. exclusively. She said the franchise regulations prohibit J.O.B.S. from taking information out of the classified section and putting it into the computer.

THE PRIVATELY HELD franchise is also competing with government-funded agencies such as the Michigan Employment Securities Commission, which offers the same type of employment "matchmaking" service free.

MESC spokesman Norman Isotalo said the agency doesn't object to companies like J.O.B.S., as long as they operate above board and let the public know exactly what it's getting for its money.

Lemon said J.O.B.S. does just that.

Although the company can't guarantee a job will still be open when the client calls, Lemon said she encourages employers and clients to call once a position has been filled so the listing can be removed from the computer.

She said the job categories are updated daily, with each category being checked at least once a week.

The franchise is licensed by the state and bonded.

So why should someone pay $75 for J.O.B.S. services when they could probably get a similar list of prospective employers by dropping a few coins into their local newpspaper box?

"The majority of people don't have the connections we do," Lemon said, adding that with J.O.B.S. as a go-between, the "cold call" aspect of answering a classified ad is eliminated.

THE FRANCHISE does some pre-screening of applicants, and applicants may authorize J.O.B.S. to release that information — which includes education and experience — to prospective employers. Clients also receive an interview "tip sheet."

Lemon said the computer network is set up so that people will be able to seek employment in other states with J.O.B.S. franchises. The company hopes to use the system to help spouses of transferred employees find work in their new locales.

Lemon, a Livonia resident with a degree in psychology from the University of Michigan, said she saw J.O.B.S. as an opportunity to work in a computer environment that was still "people oriented."

Lemon goes over computerized job listings with Lisa Apczynski.

SBA escapes budget's ax but charges for its programs

By Rebecca Haynes
staff writer

In 1985 the SBA approved $54.4 million in Michigan loans. Wayne County businesses received $5.1 million in 1986 SBA loans, and Oakland County received $5.2 million.

Proposed changes for the Small Business Administration may make it more difficult for area businesses to obtain advice or a guaranteed loan.

President Reagan's proposed budget calls for several changes in the way the SBA operates, including a fee for SBA counseling services, doubling the borrower's fee in the guaranteed loan program, issuing a fee to banks who lend money through the guaranteed loan program and decreasing the government's amount of the guarantee from 90 to 75 percent on loans greater than $140,000.

Although these proposed changes could have a negative impact on the federal agency and the clients it serves, the budget does leave a majority of the SBA intact, unlike last year's proposed budget which called for the agency's elimination.

"There was such an outcry when they wanted to do away with the programs that they (the Reagan administration) had to back off of their stance," said Edward King, a certified public accountant and faculty member of the Wayne State University School of Business Administration who teaches classes to aspiring small-business owners. "To use an old phrase, it's sort of a benign neglect. They're not actively behind the destruction of the SBA, but they're not out there supporting it and backing new programs."

ONE OF THE proposed changes is to begin charging a fee for SBA counseling and training services.

"The small businessman needs someone to talk to," said Raymond Genick, executive director of the Small Business Development Association at Wayne State University. "We saw 389 new clients through this office last year and have more than 800 people in our client base.

"The SBA is here to stay, at least for the next couple of years," he said. "I know here we're booked at least two weeks in advance for our counseling services."

If forced to charge a fee, Genick said he thinks most people still would use the service.

"I think the majority of clients would be willing to pay something, but most are in a financial crunch and we'd try to keep those fees as low as possible."

RICHARD TEMKIN, Michigan's SBA deputy district director, said the Reagan proposal calls for a $25 charge on SBA training seminars. The agency currently charges $10 for these one-day sessions.

"We don't really know what the impact of this will be," he said. "The (federal) budget as a whole proposes a number of user fees; some probably would have a great impact and others wouldn't."

More than 400 people applied for SBA loans in fiscal year 1986, Temkin said, adding this number includes both guaranteed and direct loans.

"We make relatively few direct loans, which are given to people who've failed to meet bank criteria for the guaranteed loans," he said. "We use the same basic information as the banks, so if a person did not qualify for a guaranteed loan their chances for a direct loan are not that high."

About 45 percent of the guaranteed loans are approved, he said. Last year the SBA guaranteed $47.6 million in Michigan loans. In the SBA guaranteed loan program, the government basically co-signs on a bank loan and guarantees to pay the lender should the businessman be unable to repay the debt.

"This number is down from prior years," he said. "The number of loans has been on a decline, but the numbers have been going up in terms of people getting counseling and training. We don't really know why."

Agencies help businesses start

By Rebecca Haynes

The Small Business Administration offers other financing options aside from guaranteed and direct loan programs.

The 504 program is left untouched in President Reagan's proposed budget but saw changes in July that increased the cost to the businessmen applying for assistance.

"I think they (the Reagan administration) were so happy with the changes made in July they left us untouched now," said Marianne Kure, a loan officer for the SBA 504 program with the Oakland County Economic Development Corporation.

The 504 program is packaged and operated by these local development companies, which are county agencies. It differs from the direct and guaranteed loan programs because only a portion of the needed funds are acquired through the SBA.

"Under 504, 50 percent of the total borrower's needs comes from their bank, 40 percent comes from our program and 10 percent from the businessman himself," Kure said. "Our 40 percent comes from a bond, guaranteed by the SBA and sold on the market."

In the past, the SBA did not collect fees for this program. In July, the Reagan administration instituted a one half of 1 percent fee, determined from the amount of the borrower's loan.

An additional five-eighths of a point was added to the amount charged by the underwriter who sells the bond.

"What this did was add a full point and a half in cost onto the loan," Kure said. "This has negatively impacted our program because it's passed more cost onto the small business person."

LOANS UNDER the 504 program range from $50,000-$500,000, she said. One and a half percent of the loan is charged as a fee from the county, and legal costs involved in closing the loan typically range from $2,000 to $2,500.

"Someone who takes out a $50,000 loan would have to pay $3,600-$4,100 in fees just to close my portion of it. Then the bank charges a fee also," she said.

Although Kure said she has seen some businessmen just getting started who apply under the 504 program, most are usually existing businesses that need to expand.

"The 504 program will only fund for land, building and equipment expense," she said. "Typically an individual approaches the bank and us at the same time. As soon as the borrower provides us with the required information and we get a commitment from the bank, we fill out all of the necessary paperwork and take it to the SBA for approval."

The whole process usually takes 60-90 days, she added.

Marketing is a must for big, small business

Mary DiPaolo

It isn't an easy task to find time as business owners and managers to carry out the market planning process for small business. As the old saying goes, "I thought there were 24 hours in a day until I went into business for myself."

There are so many responsibilities and duties to be taken care of on a day-to-day basis, not to mention any "crises" which occur and require immediate attention. Market planning helps put an end to feeling overwhelmed by, and not knowing how to react to, those anticipated and unanticipated events affecting the success (or failure) of the operation.

The goal of any business, be it large or small, is to best satisfy its current and potential customers on a regular basis . . . at a profit to the enterprise. If this is not already the primary goal of your business operation, it should be. Market planning focuses on the customer groups (or markets) that the current or proposed business venture hopes to attract and satisfy on a regular basis. There are a variety of information sources that can provide the "who, what, where, when, why, and how" trends associated with customers' decisions to do business with a particular firm.

The business owner also need to be aware of and understand how external environmental activities affects the success of the operation. No matter how well a business works to best satisfy its customers across all areas of the operation, significant changes in the external environment can jeopardize even the best of these planning efforts.

Keeping the above in mind, the entrepreneur can begin to structure the business to best take advantage of these internal and external forces affecting success. The major areas of the operation that the owner controls regarding structuring include: (1) all product or service-related decisions areas (what to offer, packaging, brand names, warranties, service levels.) (2) All price policies (flexibility, discounts, terms, allowances.) (3) Promotion (use of advertising, publicity, sales promotion, personal selling, message.) (4) Place decisions (use of people, selection, training, salary, motivation, incentives, role of employee(s).)

In structuring (or re-structuring) any or all of these aspects of the operation, remember that the focus should be on providing what you can sell, not selling what you can (or choose to) provide.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based small business consulting firm. She is also the producer and host of the cable television series, "Focus: The Small Business Environment."

SBA asking for user fees

IN 1985 THE SBA approved $54.4 million in Michigan loans and in 1981, $86.3 million. Wayne County businesses received $5.1 million in 1986 SBA loans, and Oakland County received $5.2 million.

"We really have a different lending philosophy today," Temkin said. "Our quality lending program began in 1981. Before this the lending philosophy, which is based on Congress and the executive branch of government, was more liberal and the SBA had a higher loss rate than people wanted to see.

"In 1981 this policy was changed by the executive branch," he said. "They wanted to make a better quality loan with more emphasis on repayability."

Temkin said the default rate on an SBA guaranteed loan has dropped substantially since the quality lending program began.

Part of Reagan's proposed budget calls for a fee increase for loan applicants as well as charging a fee to the bank. The proposal also asks to decrease the government guarantee from 90 percent to 75 percent on loans totaling more than $140,000.

"Obviously, the tighter the constraints, the more difficult it becomes for people to get these loans," King said. "It's usually the people who need the loans the most who don't get them."

CURT WILLNER, spokesman for the National Bank of Detroit, the largest participant in the Michigan SBA's guaranteed loan program, said some of these proposed changes would force the bank to scrutinize loan applicants even closer.

"We typically look at the four seeds of credit (when considering an SBA loan application) just as a normal bank loan would be looked at," he said. "Most individuals who are referred for loans haven't established any type of operation, so they don't have a past record to look at.

"Lowering the guarantee rate might have an impact, but we really can't say," he added. "These changes are only proposals. We really haven't taken a stand on what we'll do if the proposals go through."

Should the SBA program make it difficult to lend, Willner said NBD would encourage potential borrowers to examine other options. A popular one with NBD is to sponsor participatory loans, where several institutions fund a loan, reducing the risk of each should the borrower default on payment.

The proposed fee the Reagan administration would like to charge banks who participate in the SBA loan program would probably be passed onto the borrowers in the form of a higher fee or interest rate, he said.

"Unfortunately, any increase in fees most likely would be passed to the borrower," he said. "If the program becomes difficult to work under we might look into other areas to try to accommodate small businesses."

Calculating yield isn't that difficult finances and you

Sid Mittra

Part 1

A friend recently asked me what was the yield on one of his investments. Embarrassed by my inability to answer him in simple language, I decided to do some research and publish a three-part article on this important topic.

The technique of calculating the yield on an investment is directly related to the type of that investment. Examples are CDs, money market funds, treasury bills, bonds and bond funds, mortgage-backed securities such as GNMAs, and stocks. We will discuss the methods of calculating yields on these investments.

CDs

Two variables determine how much you will earn on your CDs: the annual rate of simple interest and the effective annual yield, which refers to the rate your money will earn if the interest is compounded. And herein lies the confusion: a five-year CD earning 10.77 percent simple interest is comparable to a five-year CD earning only 9 percent compound interest. To the uninformed, the former looks far more attractive than the latter, but that is simply an illusion.

The situation gets more confusing when some banks start interest calculations immediately while others delay the start-up period by several days. Another distorting factor is the minimum balance requirements, which determine how much your money will earn during a given period. Only a small group of banks uses a progressive interest scale which means that the higher your minimum balance the higher the interest your money will earn. Yet another variable factor is the low-balance method in which the bank pays interest on the lowest balance on deposit each day.

The simplest way to compare yields on various bank CDs is to ask the bank how many net dollars (after fees and charges) you will receive when the CD matures. Then calculate the yield by dividing the net dollars received by the principal invested in that CD. This will make all CD yields comparable.

money market funds

Money market funds have peculiarities of their own. Some funds report higher yields merely by extending the date before the dividends are credited, while others increase their yields by temporarily paying the expenses normally paid by the shareholders. Since these measures are only temporary, the best way to compare the yields on different money market funds is to calculate these yields over a thirty-day period.

treasury bills

T-bill yields are quite confusing because of two reasons. First, since T-bills are discount issues, you pay less than the face amount but receive the face amount upon maturity. This makes the yield calculation cumbersome.

For instance, if you pay $9,677 for T-bill and receive $10,000 six months later, your (bond equivalent) yield would be 6.69 percent.

Second, T-bill yields are quoted on an annualized basis. Consequently, if you receive a 10 percent yield on a three-month T-bill, you would in fact receive only a 2.5 percent yield for the three-month period.

If for the balance of the year your money is invested at a lower interest rate, your yield would be less than 10 percent you expected to earn. Since there is no simple way to make the yields on different T-bills comparable, the simplest thing to do is to look under the heading "Yield" in the third column of the Treasury Bill section of the Wall Street Journal or the business section of any daily newspaper.

Next Week: More on yields.

"UNDER THE guaranteed loan program the borrower is responsible for filling out all of their paperwork, which can be very complex and require legal assistance," Kure said. "Under our program we do all of that for him."

Since its inception in 1983, the Oakland County Development Corp. has seen $11,490,000 in total project dollars for the 504 program. Of that total, ~~$10~~ $5,000 was the agency's 40 percent portion, while $307,800 was collected in new property taxes and 942 jobs were created.

The agency is waiting to close on another $10,187,000 in project dollars, $3,977,000 of which is the SBA's 40 percent portion. If these loans go through, it will provide an additional $250,000 in new taxes and an addition of 550 jobs.

RUTH BIENIAK is a community loan officer for the SBA 504 program with the Economic Development Corporation out of Wayne County's Metropolitan Growth Association.

Although the rates to participate in the program are higher, she said she hasn't seen a drop in clients since the July changes.

"It's still going the way it used to. I haven't seen a drop in clients," she said.

The Metropolitan Growth Association deals with clients in both Wayne and Oakland Counties. Bieniak said her agency has seen $9,191,000 in total project dollars for Wayne County businesses and $3,426,000 in Oakland County. The 40 percent SBA portion adds up to $3,401,000 in Wayne County and $1,409,000 in Oakland County.

This has created a total of 1,339 new Wayne County jobs and 210 in Oakland County, as well as $276,829 in Wayne County property taxes and $101,237 in Oakland County.

George & Alice just got a raise

George and Alice depend on the earnings from their investments to supplement their monthly income. In the past, they kept all their savings in CDs and other taxable investments. But now, George and Alice have a combination annuity. Their annuity offers a competitive return on their savings and dependable monthly income checks.
Plus, the majority of their monthly annuity income is not taxable. This means they pay less in taxes and have more money to spend. It's like getting a raise!
Give yourself a raise.

Elaborate gowns created by the costume crew are worn by Lucinda Hawkins (left), Cynthia Betley of Canton, Nancy Delewsky of Livonia and Elsie Rippel, in the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford production of the musical "Nine." The show's flashiest sequence is the "Grand Canal" number in Venice. Warren Reinecker, who stars as Guido Contini, designed and executed all the detail on the mosaic set with number 9.

For 'Nine'
Costumes are black or white, or else colorful

COSTUMING A LOCAL production of a lavish Broadway musical hit isn't easy. But the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford has gone all out, with its "big" costume budget of $500, to recreate the fantasy of the show "Nine."

Judith Pierson, TGLR's executive director, is costumer for "Nine," which will have its Michigan premiere at 8 p.m. Friday at the guild playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly Road in Redford Township.

The engagement will continue at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 14; Friday-Sunday, Feb. 20-22, and Friday-Sunday, Feb. 27-28 and March 1. For tickets at $7 call 522-8057.

The Tony-Award-winning musical by Arthur Kopit and Maury Yeston is based on Federico Fellini's film, "Eight and a Half."

"It's basically autobiographical," Pierson said. "It's about the crisis in his career and the women in his life, in his memory or imagination."

The production features a cast of one man, three little boys and 15 women (the Broadway show originally had 21 women). During most of the show everyone is dressed in black, and later when the lead character, Italian movie director Guido Contini played by Warren Reinecker, imagines he is dead, everyone except his wife, Luisa, who is real, wears white versions of their black clothes.

THERE'S ALSO an elaborate 'Grand Canal' number in Venice, during a sequence on a film he imagines about Casanova. "Twelve of the 15 women are onstage in very showy, colorful costumes," Pierson said.

In the 'Grand Canal' number, Lilianne LaFleur (played by Elsie Rippel), who at one time was in the Follies Bergere, changes out of a black suit to reveal a Follies Bergere costume, actually a bathing suit. "She does a number with a 24-foot-long black boa," Pierson said. "Because we couldn't afford real feathers, it's

Things amiss at Hunters Run

Your traveling taster visits area eateries and rates them on a 100-point scale. Up to 30 points are awarded for ambiance, which includes general atmosphere and service, 55 points for food, and 15 points for price/value rating. A total count of 59 points or less indicates a restaurant is not recommended; 60-74 points signify from passing to good; 75-89 points designate very good with some extraordinary features, and 90-100 points show that a very special dining experience awaits you.

This problem of not preparing our entrees as we ordered them detracted considerably from our enjoyment of the main dishes.

HUNTERS RUN, 15800 Middlebelt, Livonia (522-5600), provides a cozy lodge-like atmosphere with subdued lighting and shuttered windows. The beamed ceilings and outdoor prints add to this sense of country dining. Unfortunately, the restaurant could use some good, old-fashioned country cleaning. Our vinyl tablecloth was dirty when we sat down. One water glass and a coffee cup had to be replaced for the same reason. Relatively casual dress (sweaters and slacks, for example) is appropriate, and customers included both younger and older couples. Our reservations were honored, and we were courteously and promptly led to our table. Dinner took an hour and a half. General Atmosphere — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 10.

Our waitress was extremely pleasant, and she did a very good job of serving us and pacing our meal properly. However, the busboys were as bad as she was competent. Long delays in getting water, taking our dirty silverware from our dishes and putting it on the table, not clearing all the dishes at the end of a course — these and similar problems could not be forgotten even though our waitress tried to remedy one thing after another when asked. Service — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 10.

The selection of appetizers included some unusual offerings. We tried the baked mushrooms, stuffed with roquefort cheese ($3.25), and enjoyed the interesting taste blends. The steak slices on garlic toast were tender and came cooked medium rare as ordered, although some of the garlic toast was burned. Both the sauces served with the steak were disappointing. The barbecue tasted like a popular supermarket brand and the bearnaise was thin and unexciting. Also, even though this was an expensive hors d'oeuvre, priced at $7, canned mushrooms, instead of fresh, topped the beef. The drinks were weaker than average.

A salad is served with entrees, and the house creamy garlic dressing was quite good. Although there was not a lot of variety or imagination used, the salad was large and fresh. The Greek salad ($5.95) had a few unusual additions (artichoke hearts) and a peculiar omission (red onions), but it was also fresh and tasty though not cold when it came to the table. Before the Entree — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 11

The prime rib ($10.95) was overcooked, with very little seasoning added, but it was a large portion, very tender and worth the price. The scampi, flavored with garlic and cooked in wine ($11.95), had a gentle flavor and was a good choice. The cottage fries, which we ordered especially crisp, came undercooked and very greasy. This problem of not preparing our entrees as we ordered them detracted considerably from our enjoyment of the main dishes. Entree, Vegetables and Garnishes — 30 points maximum. Points awarded — 21.

The pastries are not baked at the restaurant, but the lemon cheesecake ($3) was light and not overly creamy. It was one of the best tastes of the meal. The hot fudge sundae ($2.95) was large, but the sauce was so thin and runny that the vanilla ice cream alone would have been better. Dessert — 10 points maximum. Points awarded — 6.

The dinner was not costly at $40 per couple but certainly no great bargain either. Quantity cannot make up for a lack in quality and so, all things considered, this meal was disappointing. Price/Value — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 9.

A Counting for Taste — 100 points maximum. Total points awarded: 67. While Hunters Run could, perhaps, be inviting in spite of one or two of the above-mentioned problems, we found too many shortcomings to make us want to return in the near future.

Costumers work on garb for 'Nine'

made out of black illusion net, made to look like feathers."

Other women in the number add ruffled skirts with sequin trim to their black wrap dresses.

Pierson saw "Nine" twice when it was on Broadway. "I liked it so much I saw it again," she said. Some of the costumes at TGLR are very similar to those worn in the Broadway production.

"We're trying for a similar style and effect. For the 'Grand Canal,' they used thousands of dollars of brocade. They have a huge stage," she said. The show locally is being done in the guild's small house, and things are scaled down.

She said a few of the costumes for the Grand Canal number were borrowed — the number combines both period and showgirl costumes.

"It's the most elaborate show I've ever worked on," Pierson said. "It's a big challenge to me. I'm scared to death. You're afraid you'll not get everything done."

WHILE MANY of the costumes are flashy, few are scanty. "Two of the costumes in the show might be perceived as revealing," she said. "The young lady Carla, Guido's mistress (played by Jacqueline Eastman), wears a black stretch lace body suit with long sleeves and legs covered up. She appears nude but has a flesh-colored garment underneath. She also wears a nun's habit and a white lace body suit patterned after the original."

The actress' father, John Eastman of Livonia, is producer. Eastman's wife, Gail Mack, is lighting designer. Director-choreographer is Jim Posante. Musical director is Jack Pierson of Livonia.

For some of the earlier scenes, from the movie director's memory or imagination, there are slight changes in the women's black costumes. "Little bits are added to update them, and make them look like someone else — Germans visiting a spa, or Italian chambermaids."

"I think I'm overspending, a little bit," Pierson said. "We did a lot of bargain hunting. We searched for the dollar and a half fabric." Many of the costumes are trimmed with sequins, nailheads, beads and buttons.

"Some are made to look like embroidery work. It's actually done with Slick pens (found in artists' stores)," she said.

"ONE COSTUME is black with white embroidery. We used white Slick pens. We also used the pens on German bibs and suspenders."

Among the many women who worked on costumes for the show, Pierson gives special credit to Marcia Closson, Therese Duffy of Redford, Karen Lahiff of Westland, Ethel Wiedig and Barbara Haverstraw.

In making the costumes, Pierson said, "Some of the things are quite simple. The abilities vary. I have some expert seamstresses. Others are busy gluing on sequins or turning up hems. One black suit and white suit made of vinyl looks like leather and is difficult to sew."

In contrast to the women's costumes, clothes for the men presented no problem. Guido — "He is the easiest of all," Pierson said. "He wears a black shirt and pants throughout the show. He provided his own.

"His memory goes back to age 9. One of the three boys in the show is Guido at 9. He wears a black shirt and shorts throughout the show."

And Louisa provided her own black dress.

Writing an autobiography is good therapy

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

My grandmother has lived a very interesting life. I find the stories about her younger years fascinating. I have suggested that she write down some of her escapades but so far she hasn't.

I have even offered to help her as I feel a record of her life is something I would value.

She reads your column — so maybe with a little encouragement from you she may take "pen in hand."

Mr. V.M.

Dear Mr. M.:

Your suggestion for your grandmother is not only a good idea for a project for her, but it is a valuable legacy that she can leave behind for you and future generations.

It can just be a summary of facts and dates or a longer history of the interesting details of the major events in her life. She may even want to make it a major work using pictures from the family album and correspondence with friends and relatives.

So many older people seem to negate all the remarkable things that have happened to them in the course of their lifetimes. It is sad indeed that these experiences get lost in memory.

Writing one's life story is a pleasant form of therapy for a person of any age. It takes place through reminiscence, which is accompanied by feelings of nostalgia, happiness, regret and pleasure.

Many who have written their life stories have expressed a great deal of satisfaction with the project as it seemed to help them deal with some of the unfinished business in their lives. It can be a way of coming to terms with oneself — the successes, the failures and everything else in between.

The next time you approach the subject with your grandmother make sure that you and she are alone as she may get embarrassed in front of others and veto the project. A good way to get her undivided attention is to take her to lunch. Then, at the right moment, bring up the subject again. It would help if you had a notebook in hand and suggest you start it for her. You can begin by asking her date of birth and where she was born.

She may enjoy the experience so much it may be hard to get her to stop.

Good luck.

Salem maintains its headlock on WLAA

By Bill Parker
staff writer

wrestling

Ron Krueger must have a crystal ball tucked away somewhere in his office at Plymouth Salem High School.

The veteran wrestling coach knew exactly what it would take to win the Western Lakes Activities Association wrestling championship Saturday at Westland John Glenn.

Prior to the meet, Krueger said he didn't think the winning team would necessarily be the team with the most champions, but the team that placed the most wrestlers.

His prediction came true late Saturday night as the Rocks won the WLAA championship after placing nine wrestlers in the top four of their respective weight classes.

Salem won the title with 182½ points, 43 points ahead of second-place finisher Westland John Glenn (149½). Walled Lake Central finished third with 139 points followed by Livonia Stevenson with 135, Walled Lake Western with 121½ and North Farmington with 104.

Plymouth Canton placed seventh with 90½ points followed by Northville with 88, Livonia Churchill with 86½, Farmington with 52, Farmington Harrison with 36½ and Livonia Franklin with 33.

The thing is, Salem finished the tournament with three league champions while Western topped the field — in terms of individual championships — with four. But Western placed only five wrestlers in the top four while Glenn finished with no champions but placed seven in the top four.

"I'M VERY, very happy," said an exhausted Krueger after the wrestling had ended late Saturday night. "This is a well-balanced league. In order to win it you've got to place the majority of the team somewhere. We were fortunate enough to have nine wrestlers finish fourth or better.

"At the beginning of the year I said I didn't think we could win the league, and that wasn't a con job. I really didn't think we could pull it off, but the kids pulled together. They worked hard and trained hard."

Despite battling injuries and illness the week preceding the tournament (Jeff Delbeke was out with the flu, Tim Ott broke his hand and Dennis Dameron had a back injury), the Rocks captured their fifth straight WLAA title without much of a problem.

Entering the finals the Rocks were leading John Glenn 161½-135. They needed just one win the the championship round to elinch the title. They got the victory in the opening match when Richard Johnson defeated Glenn's Chris Zimmerman 7-2 for the heavyweight title.

Delbeke iced the cake for Salem in the following match, winning the 98-pound championship with a pin over Plymouth Canton's Tom Flores at the 3:59 mark.

DAMERON PICKED up Salem's final individual championship with relative ease, winning the 126-pound title with a 16-5 victory over Paul Maliszweski of Northville.

Second-place finishers for the Rocks were Sean May at 112, who lost a 7-5 decision in the finals to Western's Dave Zehnder, and Lem Yeung, who dropped a 7-6 decision to Western's Nick Papadakos in the championship match at 155 pounds.

Third-place finishes went to Todd Bourlier at 105 pounds and Bill Atwell at 138. Atwell and North's Adam Kahn wrestled to an 8-8 tie in regulation time of their match for third place before Atwell gutted out an 8-0 overtime victory.

Scott Contini (119) and Chuck Graczyk (198) picked up fourth place finishes for the Rocks.

Although John Glenn had no individual champions, it finished second by placing 12 wrestlers in sixth place or above.

Zimmerman finished second in the heavyweight division and teammate Bryan Krazel placed second at 119 pounds, dropping a 6-4 decision to Western's Pat Conway in the title match.

THIRD-PLACE finishes went to Mike Daniels at 98 pounds, Rob Matigian at 126, and Charlie Lauber at 167. Mark Stabile finished fourth at 145, as did Abe Zakhem at 185.

"I thought we had a chance at winning the title but we didn't wrestle as well as we could have, and Salem wrestled very well," said Glenn coach Tom Buckalew. "We didn't have any champions but we had a very balanced performance. That's the kind of thing we've been doing all year. We don't have any outstanding wrestlers but everyone on the team works very, very hard."

Livonia Stevenson's fifth-place finish was due, in part, to the out-

AREA FOOTBALL PLAYERS SIGNING NATIONAL LETTERS
DIVISION I COLLEGES

University of Michigan: Alex Marshall, 6-foot-5½, 225 pounds, defensive end, Redford Bishop Borgess.

Eastern Michigan: Mike Hammontree, 6-1, 180, wide receiver/defensive back, Westland John Glenn; Chris Parenti, 6-3, 213, linebacker, Livonia Franklin.

Central Michigan: Kevin Rich, 6-4, 215, end, Redford St. Agatha.

Toledo: Harold Lovelace, 6-6, 230, tight end, Westland John Glenn.

Miami of Ohio: Tom Victory, 6-6, 230, defensive tackle, Redford Catholic Central.

Holy Cross (1-AA): Matt Fras, 6-1, 205, linebacker, Redford Catholic Central.

Ferris State: Tony Svatko, 6-1, 168, kicker, Westland John Glenn.

Northwood Institute: Mike Thoms, 6-3, 255, offensive lineman, Redford Union.

Grand Valley State: Doug Streb, 6-1, 240, linebacker/nose guard, Westland John Glenn; Dave Kettler, 6-4, 240, offensive lineman, Farmington.

Hillsdale College: Joe Jouppi, 6-2, 205, outside linebacker, Plymouth Salem.

Saginaw Valley: Mike Furlong, 6-0, 230, fullback, Dearborn Divine Child (Westland).

Eastern Michigan wanted Jouppi, but only as a walk-on.

College football coaches crossed their fingers yesterday, hoping that verbal commitments would transform into signatures on the dotted line.

Yesterday (Feb. 11) was the first day colleges could offer binding national letters of intent.

Several area players, who made verbal commitments earlier this month, including Redford Bishop Borgess All-Stater Alex Marshall (University of Michigan) followed through with their John Hancock.

But for two All-Area players, Livonia Franklin linebacker Chris Parenti and Plymouth Salem defensive end Joe Jouppi, it was a painful wait right up until the signing date.

Eastern Michigan pursued Parenti, the Patriots leading hitter (28 solo tackles, 79 assists) last season, wheg another school in the Mid-American Conference withdrew its offer.

THE 6-FOOT-3, 213-POUND Parenti, a three-year starter and two-time All-Western Lakes Conference pick who benches 325 pounds, is projected as an inside linebacker.

Jouppi, a 6-2, 205 All-Western Lakes defensive end, is headed for perennial NAIA power Hillsdale. He is being projected at linebacker as well.

"They didn't think I was big enough or strong enough," he said. "They wanted me to walk on and try to earn a scholarship.

"He (coach Jim Harkema) told me that three years ago they would have signed me — no problem."

Both Parenti and Jouppi were caught in the numbers game.

With Division I schools forced to cut their scholarship allotment from 95 to 85 scholarships, some borderline Big 10 players wound up in the Mid-American Conference and some borderline MAC players were forced to play in the Division II Great Lakes Conference.

JOUPPI, HOWEVER, is not disappointed with his choice.

"I really like it," he said. "It's a nice school, and they have a great program. I'm happy. I just wanted to play football and get a good education. I think I made the best decision."

Two Redford Catholic Central players, 6-6, 230-pound defensive tackle Tom Victory and 6-1, 205 linebacker Matt Fras, also made late commitments.

Victory signed with Miami of Ohio, while Fras is headed for Division I-AA power Holy Cross.

Others making late commitments include Redford Union offensive lineman Mike Thoms (to Northwood) and Farmington tackle Dave Kettler (to Grand Valley State).

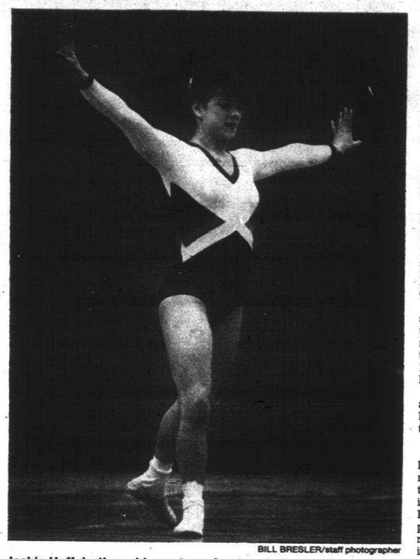
Freeland gets even

By Jim Toth
staff writer



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Jackie Huff, bothered by a stress fracture in her left foot and a sprained right ankle, came off a disappointing day Saturday to score a school-record 35.80 all-around Monday.

It's all even between Troy Athens and Freeland after two meetings.

The gymnastics powers proved again Saturday they are the two of the best high school teams in the state. But which one is tops, remains up for grabs.

Saturday, it was Freeland's turn to claim supremacy as the Falcons outscored the state's No. 1 ranked Red Hawks to win the 11-team Plymouth Canton Invitational. Freeland finished with 137.55 points, while the Red Hawks scored 136.25.

Less than a month ago, it was the Red Hawks who trimmed the Falcons, winning the Athens Invitational, 136.95-136.80.

"I CAN'T complain because we did real well," praised Athens coach Frank DiVito. "We scored a lot of nine's, and we had a couple girls turn in the best meets of their careers.

"Maybe finishing second will make the girls work a little harder," DiVito went on. "We beat them the first time and now they beat us so that evens it at 1-1. It's the next meet (state) that counts."

Plymouth Salem turned in its finest outing of the season, finishing third at 131.50. Dearborn High came in fourth at 130.35, host Canton finished fifth at 124.95, Kimball was sixth at 123.35, Farmington seventh at 122.65, Midland Dow eighth at 121.85, Vassar ninth at 113.65 and Northville 10th at 113.45.

Jamie Nieman spearheaded Freeland's victory by finishing first in three events. Nieman, who finished first in all-around with a 36.45, won the vault with a 9.7, the beam with a 9.05 and the floor with a 9.15.

Teammate Kris Kelly finished behind Nieman in the all-around with a 35.45. Kelly recorded a second-place showing on floor with a 9.05 and a fourth on bars with a 8.70.

ATHENS TUMBLER Natalie Leich turned in the best performance of her prep career, according to DiVito, as she recorded the third best all-around score with a 35.00.

Leich's highest finish came on beam where she scored an 8.75 to come in second place. The talented sophomore added a fifth-place showing on vault with a personal best 9.40, a sixth on floor with and 8.65 and a ninth on bars with an 8.25.

Red Hawk freshman Melissa Miller finished fourth in the all-around with a 34.95. Her accomplishments included a blue-ribbon showing on bars with a 9.2. Miller added a third-place finish on floor with an 8.8 and a seventh on vault with a 9.05.

Junior Janice Greff also enjoyed her best outing, DiVito said, finishing ninth in all-around with a 33.70. Greff came in fifth place on beam with an 8.50 and sixth vault with a 9.30.

Athens' Michelle Riera finished in a tie for 10th place on beam with Becky Talbot of Salem with an 8.30.

TALBOT, WHO finished eighth in all-around with a 34.30, turned in her best effort on bars where she scored an 8.75 to finish third. She came in fourth place on floor with an 8.70.

Salem also got a top 10 finish from Jennie Syria who finished tied for seventh on bars with Canton's Mary Jo Charron. Both gymnasts scored an 8.35. Jackie Huff finished eighth on floor with an 8.55 and Dana Holda wound up in tie for ninth on bars with a 8.25.

Canton's Brenda Perry finished tied for 10th on floor with an 8.35.

"The whole meet came down to the end where Freeland was on vault and we were on the beam," DiVito said. "It was pretty exciting because every time one of the girls went through their routine there would be a roar — first one way and then the other."

Huff, Salem reign in Park gym

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Two things became crystal clear Monday night during Plymouth Salem's 136.95-131.30 gymnastics triumph over Plymouth Canton.

No. 1: Plymouth Salem, despite its sluggish start, deserves its No. 3 ranking in Observerland. After the Rocks' 0-2 beginning, the feeling was prevalent that Canton was the third-best team in the area behind North Farmington and Westland John Glenn.

Nope. Last Thursday Salem outscored Canton 131.65-128.1 in a three-way meet with Ann Arbor Pioneer. Saturday, at Canton's Invitational, Salem outscored Canton 131.50-124.95. (See related story.) Monday's win erased all doubt.

No. 2: Monday's meet also served as a coronation for Salem's Jackie Huff, the queen of Centennial Educational Park gymnastics.

DESPITE a stress fracture in her left foot, a sprained right ankle and repeated warnings from Salem trainer Sharon Bouchard to stop punishing herself — lit up Canton's Phase III facility with a series of superb routines. She amassed a school-record 35.80 all-around score, topping Beth Rafail's 1986 mark of 34.85.

Where a good many gymnasts are perceived as prima donnas, Huff is a proven warrior. She had not performed up to her All-Area capabilities prior to Monday. She hadn't scored above 34.0 all-around. Yet never did she use the injuries as an excuse and never did she give up.

"I've been competing in everything, but I just haven't been able to hit anything," Huff said Monday. "I'm using a lot of new tricks and just haven't been hitting them consistently. I've been falling about five times every meet."

She respained her right ankle Saturday. If it were up to Bouchard, who had to tape both of Huff's ankles and feet twice Monday, the queen of CEP gymnastics would have abdicated her throne.

"I tell her to quit all the time," Bouchard said. "She just won't quit."

Said Huff: "I hate to sit and watch. I watched so much last year and this is my last year to compete. I had to compete today. This was Canton. I know that sounds stupid, but we really have to win this meet. We beat them twice before but this is the one that counts."

PERHAPS THE most punishing event for Huff is vault. It hurts to watch her sprint down the runway. Her feet turn inward to somehow cushion the pounding. But her strength carried her through. She performed a brilliant half-twist on, half-twist off vault. Her extension away from the apparatus was amazing and her landing nearly perfect. She scored a 9.25. First place.

She scored an 8.9 on uneven parallel bars, her best score of the year. Only teammate Becky Talbot, who scored an 8.95, was better.

On balance beam Huff pulled off a perfect aerial cartwheel, landing softly on her right foot and allowing her sore left foot to dangle alongside the beam. The crowd, Canton and Salem rooters alike, buzzed with appreciation. She scored an 8.75, first place.

She was second best on floor exercise, just missing a dynamic full-twisting back layout. She scored an 8.9, second to Talbot's 9.0.

Huff limped noticeably after the meet. She was hurting on the outside. But inside she was jumping for joy. The school record, the win against Canton, regaining her All-Area form — these things more than offset the aches and pains.

"It would have been really strange for me not to compete," she said. "This is really all I have."

HUFF'S PERFORMANCE served as the headline for a superb effort by both teams. Salem's 136.95 team score is the second-highest recorded in Observerland this season. Canton's 131.30 is a team high and the fourth-highest in the area.

"Basically, we just wanted to have fun today," Salem coach Kathi Kinsella said. "This has been a tough week. We went Monday, Thursday, Saturday and today. I'm giving them two days off. They deserve it."

Whenever two teams score above 130 in a dual meet, the question of lenient judging comes up.

"Quite honestly," said Canton coach John Cunningham, "I expected to score 130 tonight. In terms of performances, I had two or three gymnasts not score well. So we can get higher. I did think there were a couple of high scores, but there were others that I thought were too low. There was a balance. I think the scores were about right."

The Chiefs got solid all-around performances from Mary Jo Charron (33.45), Brenda Perry (32.35), Maureen McLean (31.70) and Apryl Mosakowski (30.75).

Talbot, who has been the Rocks' most consistent performer this year, scored 35.40 all-around. Amy Pastori scored 31.90.

"The scores may have been high; I don't know," Kinsella said. "But let them celebrate. They know what's coming up. They know what they have to do for leagues and regionals and states."

standing wrestling of WLAA champion Tom Tokarz.

The 138-pounder stormed through his weight class, winning all three of his matches by pin. Tokarz took out Farmington's Mark Pallo in 1:45. He stuck North's Kahn in 2:34 and won the title with a pin at 2:34 over Central's Brendan Kolb.

Second-place finishes for the Spartans went to David Wojciechowski at 105, Kurt Will at 132, and John Economou at 185. Jarod Wilkerson finished in third place for Stevenson at 145 pounds.

NORTH WAS led by second-place finishers Paul Cook (145) and Zaim Cunmulaj (198). Dave Appel (112), Kahn (138), and Mark Cassar (155) each finished fourth for the Raiders.

Flores' second-place finish at 98 pounds was tops for Plymouth Canton. Heavyweight Tony Callaway, 155-pounder Dan Dewyer and 198-pounder Jim Crews each grabbed third place honors for the Chiefs and Matt Keeler finished fourth at 105.

Mike Krause was Churchill's lone champion. At 132 pounds, he took the title with a 9-2 victory over Stevenson's Will. Brian Clemens finished second for the Chargers at 167 while Dave Zenas placed third at 185 pounds and Casey Krause placed fourth at 98.

Farmington's Rob Woodbeck was the Falcons' top scorer with a third-place finish in the 132-pound weight class. Bill Lindbert added a fourth place finish at 167.

Cliff Alcantara swept through the 105-pound weight class to capture Harrison's only individual title. Alcantara won by pin over Churchill's Brian Dudek (26 seconds) and Canton's Keeler (40 seconds) before earning a 14-3 decision in the finals over Wojciechowski.

Frank Johnson was the top scorer for the Franklin as he captured fourth place in the heavyweight division.

CC wins 7th Catholic title in 9 years

Redford Catholic Central scored a record 251½ points Saturday at Harper Woods Notre Dame to capture its seventh Catholic League wrestling title in nine years.

The Shamrocks, the No. 1 ranked Class A team in the state, captured eight individual titles and picked up a pair of second place finishes and one third.

Rounding out the team standings was Notre Dame (140 points), Southgate Aquinas (134), Birmingham Brother Rice (133), Dearborn Divine Child (98), Monroe Catholic Central (71), Madison Heights Bishop Foley (70), Pontiac Catholic (60½), Manistee Catholic Central (47), Traverse City St. Francis (44), Waterford Our Lady (33), Jackson Lumen Christi and Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard (18 each).

CC's Mitch Quint ran his team-leading record to 45-4 with a pin in 2:48 over Jim Bourdege of Divine Child in the finals of the 138-pound division.

Teammate Bob Yeager took the 198 crown with a 13-1 decision over Brian Trzcinski of Pontiac Catholic, raising his mark to 39-4.

HEAVYWEIGHT Toby Heaton of the Shamrocks made it 43-5 on the year with a pin in 5:14 over Notre Dame's Sean Thomas. Matt Helm (126) also stood out, blanking Jeff Kidder of Foley to go 33-4 on the season.

Other CC champions included Jim Raglow (98), who recorded an 11-4 decision over Rice's Jeff Bushon; Jay Helm (112), a 9-7 decision over Tom Blizman of Aquinas; Chris Rodriguez (145), a 2-0 decision over Gary Green of Our Lady; and Ted Rieple (185), a 6-5 win over Steve Knecevich of Monroe CC.

Second-place finishers for CC included Jason Wiebeck (132), who lost a 9-2 decision to Jeff Dohanyos of Aquinas in the finals; and Lee Krueger (167), a 2-0 defeat to Bob Shurmur of Divine Child.

CC's Chris Lemanski pinned Foley's Jeff Crucio in 3:18 to take third at 155.

ON TUESDAY, CC closed out its dual season at 14-1-1 by defeating Hazel Park, 43-24, before being tied by Class B power Eaton Rapids, 30-30.

Quint defeated Scot Bolan, 5-4, in the feature match against Eaton Rapids.

Rocks rip Falcons; Chiefs face title test basketball

The Plymouth Salem basketball team is a lot like the movie character Rocky. If you let either of them pound away inside your defense, you will get hurt badly.

Ask Farmington.

Tuesday night, Salem pounded the ball inside repeatedly in the early going at Farmington. The result was a 21-7 first quarter lead and eventually a runaway 65-52 Salem win.

Rick Taylor, 6-8 center, and Mike Hale, 6-5 forward, did most of the body punching for the Rocks. Taylor finished with 17 points and Hale had 16. Hale scored 12 in the first quarter, Taylor seven.

Bryan Kearis, the man responsible for getting the ball inside to the big men, found time to score 15 points.

Farmington (1-12 in the Western Lakes, 1-15 overall) had only one counter-puncher. Senior Ron Jones scored 19 points, 11 of 15 from the free throw line.

The Rocks (12-1 in the league and 14-2 overall) are gearing up for a return bout with Lakes Division leader Westland John Glenn. The unbeaten Rockets, who rolled Livonia Stevenson 58-38 Tuesday, will host Salem a week from Friday.

CANTON 75, FRANKLIN 57: Western Lakes Western Division co-leader Plymouth Canton bounced back strong after a tough defeat at Churchill Friday.

Roger Trice pumped in 21 points, Brad Carey (12) and Jeff Anulewicz (10) combined for 22 to keep the Chiefs in step with Farmington Harrison, a 73-55 winner against Churchill Tuesday.

Canton will travel to Harrison Friday to break the tie atop the Western Division. Both are 8-5 in the league.

"Psychologically, this gave us a big lift," said Canton coach Tom Niemi. "We played real well."

Mike McCool scored 14 and Chris Parenti 12 to lead Livonia Franklin (1-12 in the league, 1-14 overall).

The Chiefs are 9-7 on the season.

PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN 61, MANOOGIAN 32: Kyle Mavin scored 15 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to pace Plymouth Christian Tuesday afternoon. Mike Warmbier added 13 points.

The Eagles are 14-1 on the season, 10-1 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

Engineers hopes derailed after a Falcon twin kill

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

The up and down Hennessey Engineers may be down for good in terms of winning home ice advantage for the North American Junior Hockey League playoffs.

Just about all hopes of landing in second place in the three-team league were dashed last weekend as the Plymouth-based Junior A hockey team lost twice to the Fraser Falcons.

Friday night at the Plymouth Cultural Center, the Falcons nipped the Engineers 3-2. The Falcons won 4-1 Sunday afternoon at Fraser.

The two wins pushed the Falcons past Detroit Compuware and into first place in the NAJHL. In all games, Fraser has a 21-9-5 record in 35 games (47 points). Compuware is 20-6-5 in 31 games (45 points). The Engineers are 17-4-6 in 37 games (40 points).

In games against common opponents of the three teams, which will ultimately decide the NAJHL's final standings: Fraser is 20-7-4 (44 points), Compuware is 19-7-4 (42 points) and the Engineers are 13-12-4 (30 points).

The first-place team will earn a bye in the state Junior A tournament and an automatic berth in the U.S. National Junior Tournament at the Oak Park Compuware Arena in April. The second- and third-place teams in the NAJHL will battle for the second berth in the national tournament. The second-place team will have home ice advantage in the best of seven playoff series.

"I GUESS we have to start gearing for the playoffs," said Engineers coach A.J. Baker. "All I can do is think back to last year in the playoffs."

Last year, the Falcons edged the Engineers in a seven-game playoff. The Falcons won four games at home.

"That home ice makes a big difference," said Baker, whose team has won one game at Fraser this season.

The Engineers were the home team Friday night, but the Fraser team used a Plymouth-Canton connection to pull out the 3-2 victory.

Falcons goalie Bill Pye of Canton, who appears headed to Northern Michigan University on a hockey scholarship next fall, stopped 51 of 53 Engineers shots.

"Billy Pye had an excellent game," Baker said. "We had several great opportunities. We just didn't capitalize."

Offensively, Plymouth residents Tony Esser and Tom Yockey each scored a goal for the Falcons.

Bob Mlynarek and Steve Ramberg scored the two Engineers goals. Goalie Doug Brown also played a superb game. He made 40 saves.

THE SAME problem bit the Engineers Sunday — a lack of offense — but for a different reason. The Engineers played without 11 three top scorers. Bryan Krygier (shoulder injury), Larry Pilut (flu) and Leif Gustafson (broken hand) didn't dress. Mlynarek played, but he was weakened by the flu.

Yockey added two more assists, Esser another goal and Canton resident Sean Worden scored a goal for the Falcons. Esser has scored six goals in six games.

Scott Markiewicz scored the lone Engineer goal. Dave Church kicked away 45 of 49 shots in the Hennessey net.

Ironically, Fraser won both games without any scoring from its top guns, Denny Pelsner and Don Stone. The two had scored 46 goals between them coming into the weekend.

"They must have had five or six breakaways between them and our goalies stoned them each time," Baker said.

A moral victory if nothing else.

The Engineers will host Compuware at 8:20 p.m. at the Plymouth Cultural Center Friday night.

Canton's Wynne wins a 2nd in senior pairs

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Susan Wynne is beginning to believe that 6½ years of skating with her partner Joseph Druar is finally beginning to pay off.

The ice dancing duo once won a silver medal as Juniors at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships, but never as seniors until last weekend in Tacoma, Wash., when they walked off with the bronze, finishing behind gold medalists Suzanne Semanick and Scott Gregory and silver medalists Renee Roca and Donald Adair.

Wynne, 21, is a native of Syracuse, N.Y. Her partner, Druar, 24, is a native of Buffalo, N.Y.

But the two felt there was a void in their training regimen, so they relocated to the Ice Box in Trenton, seeking the direction of nationally known figure skating coaches Sandy Hess and Peter Dalby, along with the ballet instructor Phillip Mills.

"It's the coaching and the new environment," said Wynne, who lives with relatives Chuck and Carol Miller in Canton Township. (Druar lives in Romulus.) "I consider it the best in the country and we have people (other teams) to push us. The rink is great and the ice time is always available. You don't have to worry about competing with hockey."

WYNNE MAINTAINS that Dalby and Hess have "given us a definite style."

"They've defined it and made it more clear," she said. "We now see what it takes to beat the other teams. Being in third is the closest we've been to beating them. We've changed our goals."

By finishing third, Wynne and Druar will serve as alternates for the U.S. team at the World Championships next month in Cincinnati, Ohio. (They'll also compete this summer at the Olympic Sports Festival in Charlotte, N.C). And if either the Semanick-Gregory or Roca-Adair teams gain a medal in Cincy, it would open up another position for the U.S. team for the 1988 Winter Olympic Games in Calgary, Alberta, putting Wynne and Druar in prime position to make the U.S. team.

But Wynne and Druar would have to finish in the top three again next year at the U.S. Championships to qualify. And that's no easy task with the likes of another up-and-coming team from the area breathing down their necks, Jodie Balogh (Livonia) and Jerod Swallow (Northville), who also train at the Ice Box. (Balogh and Swallow finished 10th in Tacoma.)

BUT ACCORDING TO WYNNE, she and her partner have established themselves in the eyes of the judges and could be contending for the top two spots before long.

"I plan to be here four more years," Wynne said. "We've really come along way and now we've beaten teams that were always ahead of us."

Wynne's grueling schedule has been worth the time and effort.

Besides training nearly 25 hours per week, she also works two jobs — one as a waitress at the Steak and Ale in Plymouth Township and the other as an aerobics instructor in Farmington and Birmingham. The jobs are necessary to help defray ice time and equipment costs.

"I'm lucky Canton is so close to everything," she said. "Things have worked out well here."

GC native Campbell wins national crown

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Last May, Marilyn Campbell said she agonized over the decision to send her daughter Jeri, a talented figure skater, to California to train under the astute coaching of Barbara Roice-Williams.

"It was a tremendous decision for the entire family," said Mrs. Campbell. "We were talking about separation."

But there was no second-guessing after Jeri's performance last weekend in the U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Tacoma, Wash.

The 16-year-old Garden City native finished first in the final standings for Junior Women, which took Jeri and her family somewhat by surprise.

"It was kind of a shock," said Jeri. "I really worked hard for it.

"My coach thought I could do it if I did my best."

Although she did not take first in any of the three disciplines, Campbell came away the winner. She was second in the compulsory figures and short program and fourth in free-style.

"SHE'S DONE very well," said Mrs. Campbell. "This is something everybody hopes and prays for, but realistically you just hope for the best."

The win has guaranteed Campbell a spot this summer in the Olympic Sports Festival in Charlotte, N.C. She will also most likely represent the U.S. Junior Team in a pair of international events. Next year, an Olympic year, she will compete in the Seniors against the likes of newly crowned U.S. champion Jill Trenary and last year's World Champion Debi Thomas.

"I think I'm prepared for it (the Seniors)," said Campbell from her Harbor City, Calif. residence, located 20 minutes outside of Los Angeles. "I've been in the Juniors for three years. I'm ready to move on."

Campbell calls Harbor City "nice and warm." She plans to relax for two weeks, maybe taking in a few days at the beach, before resuming her rigorous training schedule.

"I LIKE IT a lot out here," said the Junior champion. "At first I was apprehensive, but it's worked out great."

Adds her mother: "She's adjusted very well. I think the first couple of months were hard, but she wants to skate. She wants to go to the Olympics."

The Campbells — Jeri, Marilyn, Gerald (her father) and Greg (her brother) — have made a family rendezvous five times since their youngest moved to California to live the Perez family. They were reunited, of course, in Tacoma. Jeri says she talks via the phone with her family "almost every day."

Her coach, Roice-Williams, whose son Scott finished third in the Senior Men's, is described as "demanding." "I practice six hours a day," reminds Jeri. "I get tutored at the rink every morning. I start skating at 9 a.m. It's a lot more physical than I was used to (at the Garden City Figure Skating Club). It's demanding work."

JERI CAMPBELL wasn't the only area skater to earn points at the U.S. Championships.

Following in the footsteps of former Olympic ice dancers Carol Fox (Westland) and Richard Dalley (Southfield), were a pair of area teams — Susan Wynne of Canton Township and her partner Joseph Druar of Romulus, who took third in the Senior Dance; and Jodie Balogh of Livonia and partner Jerod Swallow of Northville, who finished 10th. Another Detroit-area couple, Renee Roca and Donald Adair took second.

In Senior Women, Garden City's Micki McMahon was 20th.

Georgia state parks preserve Indian heritage

By William Schemmel
special writer

Centuries before the first Europeans stepped onto Georgia's shores, Indian tribes across the state developed remarkably high cultures. As far back as 1000 A.D., Etowahs and Mississippians built colossal earthen mounds for religious and tribal rites and were part of a trading network extending to the Great Lakes and Gulf of Mexico. Early 19th-century Cherokees wore European clothes, had law courts and a bilingual newspaper read as far away as London and Hamburg.

The white man's arrival was doomsday for the Indians. By federal government decree, they were evicted from their lands in the 1830s and forcibly exiled west of the Mississippi. Memories of those lost civilizations live today through landmarks maintained by Georgia's excellent state parks and historic sites system. Several are grouped together in the state's northwest corner, convenient sidetrips from Interstate 75.

Near Chatsworth, 12 miles east of Dalton and Exit 137, the Vann House was a showplace of Cherokee achievement. The handsome two-story red-brick Georgian home was built in 1805 by James Vann, a half-Cherokee, half-Scot who helped establish Moravian mission schools for young Indians.

At his death in 1809 — he was murdered in a tavern brawl — his house and farmlands passed to his son Joseph. Joseph prospered as a farmer and merchant until 1830, when the state confiscated his lands for violating a law forbidding Indians to hire whites.

After more than a century of neglect, the rooms have been decorated and furnished as they were in their prime. The most notable feature is an elaborately carved "floating" staircase, the oldest example of cantilevered construction in Georgia. Youngsters were meant to be neither seen nor heard in their coffin-shaped attic bedrooms.

FOR A bit of relaxation, with a touch of mystery, drive 11 miles east through Chatsworth to Fort Mountain State Park. One of Georgia's most scenic parks, Fort Mountain sits atop a thickly forested 2,800-foot peak in the Cohutta Range of the Blue Ridge Mountains. You can decide for yourself whether a stone wall snaking 855 feet across the mountainside was part of an ancient honeymoon lodge or a Maginot Line erected by 12th century Welshmen who somehow found their way into this rugged wilderness.

After your history lesson, swim, fish, paddle a canoe in a clean, cool mountaintop lake; hike through the woods to awesome overlooks and set the youngsters loose on the playgrounds. Among the pines and hardwoods, 15 two- and three-bedroom cottages are comfortably furnished, with equipped kitchens and wood-burning fireplaces welcome on brisk mountain nights.

The 114 campsites are adjacent to rest rooms and hot showers. Cottages and campsites are similar to others elsewhere in the state park system, with standard rates of $38-42 a night for two-bedrooms, $44-48 for three; campsites are $7. Contact the Fort Mountain office at (404) 695-2621.

Artifacts that have been excavated from the Etowah Indian Mounds.

Further south, at Exit 131, New Echota Historic Site commemorates a peaceful people annihilated by brutality and greed. Laid out in 1825 near modern day Calhoun, New Echota at its zenith was the heart of a flourishing Cherokee Nation across the Southeast.

Here the legislature passed laws enforced by district tribunals and a supreme court. Published in English and the tribe's unique alphabet, the monthly "Cherokee Phoenix" carried news, features and gossip as far as New York and Europe. Many Cherokees dressed like white Americans of the day and lived in sturdy houses with all the modern conveniences. The more affluent owned black slaves.

DISCOVERY OF gold on tribal lands tolled the end of New Echota and the Cherokees. Under orders from President Andrew Jackson, federal troops hunted down the Indians and in 1838 expelled them to Oklahoma. Thousands perished of cold and starvation along what history remembers as "The Trail of Tears."

Since the 1950s, the state has carefully restored the heart of New Echota. After seeing a slide presentation and displays in the museum, join park historians for a walking tour of the site.

Landmarks include the authentically furnished interiors of the "Cherokee Phoenix" printing office, Vann's Tavern, the Supreme Court Building and the home of the Rev. Samuel Worcester, a Massachusetts minister who established a school and church here. Youngsters will enjoy demonstrations of arrowhead making and hunting methods.

If you'd like to break bread with the natives, head for the restaurant at the Shepherd Motel at Exit 129. This unpretentious looking cafe serves some of the best homecooking in north Georgia, with a surprising gourmet flair.

An extensive collection of Indian arrowheads is part of the collection at the Weinman Mineral Museum, adjacent to Exit 126. The small, well-planned museum also displays gemstones, crystals, minerals and fossils from northwest Georgia's own mineral belt and from as far away as the Western U.S., Africa, South America, Canada and Mexico.

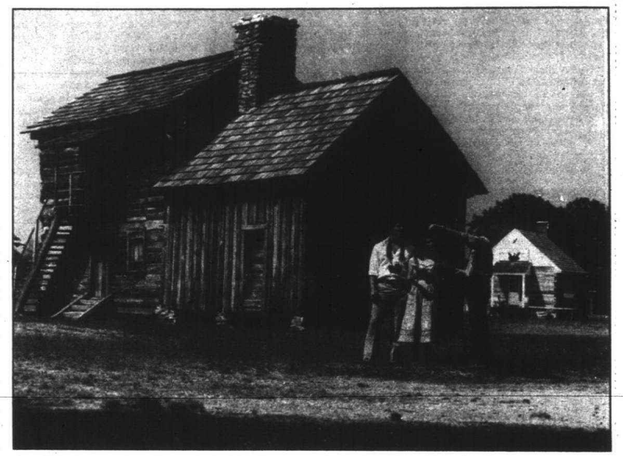
Off Exit 124 at Cartersville, the Etowah Indian Mounds Archaeological Site was the center of an advanced culture that prospered in the Etowah River Valley between 1000 and 1500 A.D. At its peak, several thousand people lived in a fortified town surrounded by a wooden stockade and deep moat.

WITHIN THE palisade, Etowahs built large mounds of packed clay crowned by temples and residences of priests and chiefs. Part of a busy trading network, they fashioned jewelry and tools from Gulf Coast shells, Tennessee flint and copper from the Great Lakes. They hunted, fished and raised fruits and vegetables. For mysterious reasons, the town was abandoned in the 16th century.

Under state auspices, the site includes an excellent museum and half a dozen earthen mounds. Among displays are a burial chamber with the skeleton of a priest or chief adorned with shell jewelry and copper insignia of rank. Marble statues of a man and woman are among the most important Indian relics ever recovered in the Southeast.

A short walk behind the museum, three major mounds may be climbed on steep wooden steps. Mound A, the largest, is 63 feet, the height of a six-story building. Others are smaller and easier to negotiate. After all that climbing, you'll be ready for a hearty lunch or dinner. The Country Place and Morrell's in downtown Cartersville specialize in tasty regional dishes, steaks and seafoods at moderate prices. You can walk that off while browsing the tempting selections of paintings, pottery, handmade quilts and weaving by local artists at the Etowah Arts Gallery, 13 Wall St.

AT RED Top Mountain State Park, off Exit 123, you can spend a few refreshing hours or an entire holiday on the shores of an inland sea. Banked by blue-green mountains, Lake Allatoona's 10,550 acres offer bountiful opportunities for water skiiing, swimming and sunning on a sand beach, fishing, hiking, picnicking and some of the Southeast's most scenic boating.



New Echota served as the capital of the Cherokee Indian Nation from 1825 to 1838. Buildings include a tavern, supreme court building, a missionary's home and the print shop where the "Cherokee Phoenix" newspaper, the only Indian newspaper in North America, was produced.

Red Top's 286 tent and trailer sites come with water, electricity, hot showers and grills. The 18 two-bedroom cottages — some of the nicest and most popular in the state park system — have equipped kitchens, fireplaces and gorgeous views of the lake. Contact the park at (404) 974-5182.

Vann House, New Echota, Etowah Mounds and other state historic sites are open Tuesday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday, 2-5 p.m. Adults, $1; 12 and under, 50 cents; under 5, free. For information call toll-free outside Georgia 1-800-5GA-PARK; inside Georgia, 1-800-3GA-PARK. Banking Is One Of Life's Necessities. The Experience Should Be A Good One.

You flip a switch and the lights go on.

Start your car and go your way.

Day in and day out, so long as things work like they should, you never give them a second thought.

It's the same with banking.

You, along with the rest of us, fully expect your bank to work right. The first time. And every time.

From our point of view, that isn't an unfair expectation.

In fact, living up to that is the best explanation of how and why we run First of America Bank the way we run it.

So in nearly 200 communities across the Midwest, our bankers are encouraged to believe that though they're part of a major banking organization, they should play a major role in their community.

They're encouraged to make their decisions locally. Which has made us one of the region's biggest lenders.

They're given all the resources of a big bank company to draw on, so they can offer customers a more resourceful bank.

And since our bankers are involved in the affairs customer matters, local issues are never far from their attention.

It's made us not just one of the Midwest's biggest bank companies.

It's made us one of its most dependable companies. Something that's as good for us as it is for us.

FIRST of AMERICA

With Community Banks First.

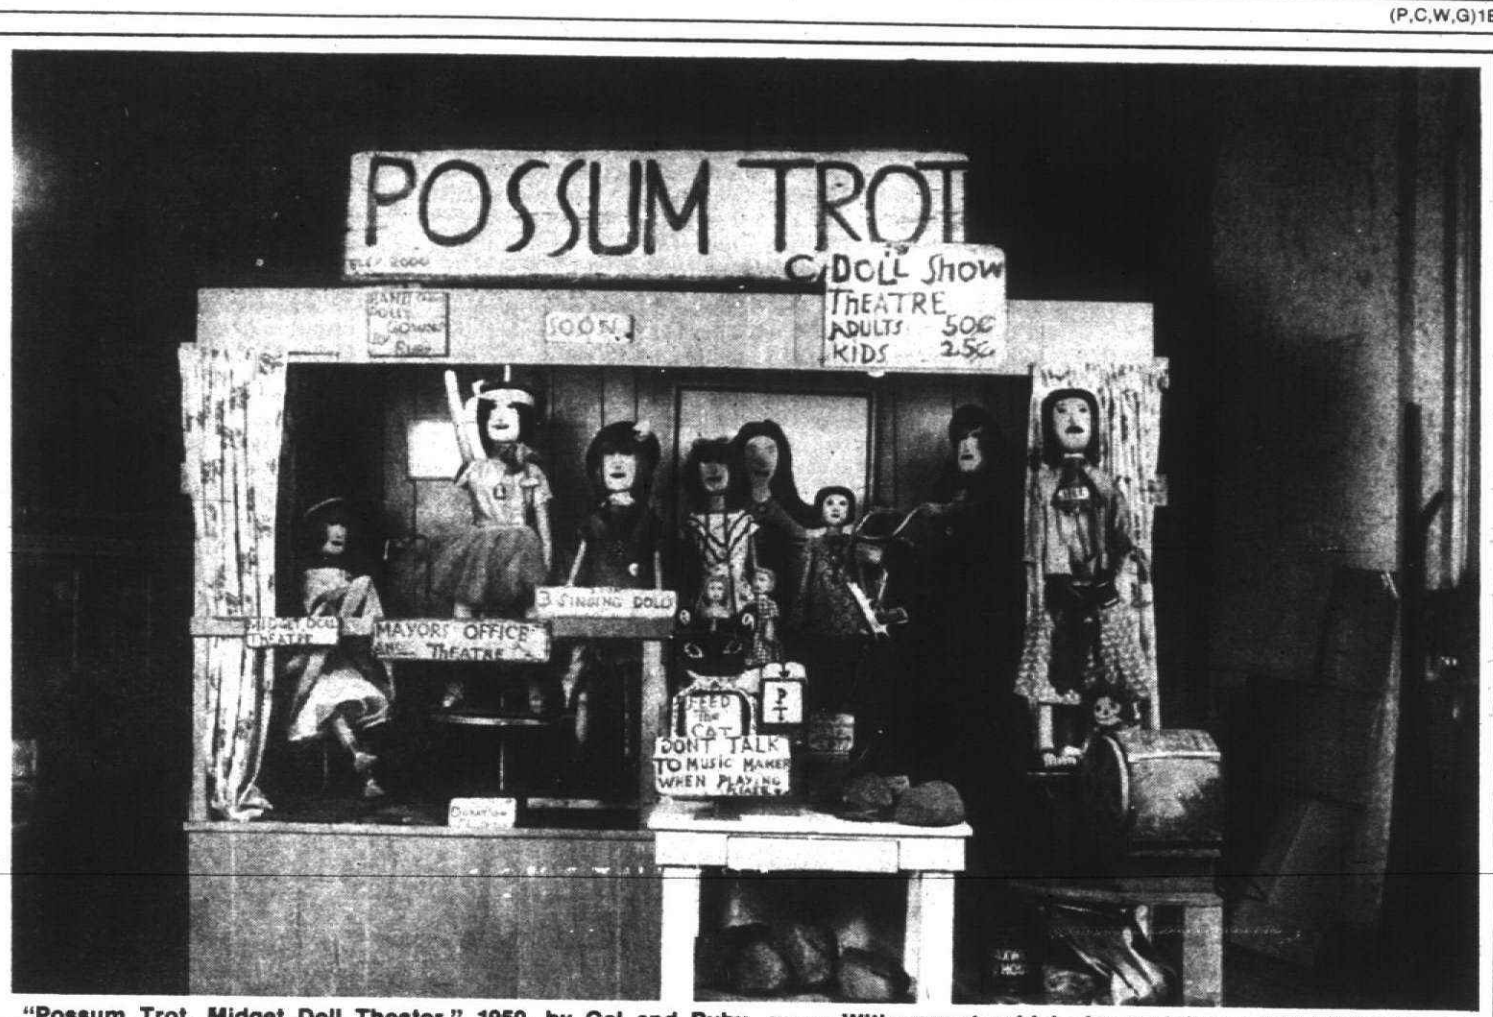
Jerry Mastin's Canada goose,"Sentinel," 1937 is one of the many stars of an outstanding exhibit of decoys at Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum through Feb. 22.



"Possum Trot, Midget Doll Theater," 1950, by Cal and Ruby Black, is one of the major works in "The Ties That Bind" exhibition of contemporary folk art at Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum. With puppets which sing and dance, it highlights the section about artists who try to reformulate the world.

Folk art

Cranbrook Museum hosts watershed event

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

FOLK ART'S APPEAL runs anywhere from cool socio-intellectual to hot emotional bordering on passion. Companion shows at Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, "The Ties That Bind: Folk Art in Contemporary American Culture" and "The Decoy as Folk Sculpture," hit on two parts of the folk art phenomenon."

If there was any doubt about the local interest in folk art, it was erased at the recent symposium held in conjunction with the exhibition at the Museum. More than 200 attended the daylong event with a roster of speakers which included curators as well as collectors, who are often one and the same.

Michael Hall, sculptor in residence at the Academy, co-curator of the "The Ties That Bind," and folk collector extraordinaire, was the moderator for the symposium.

It was Dr. Eugene Metcalf, professor of interdisciplinary studies at Miami University of Ohio and co-curator of "The Ties" with Hall, who put the subject into perspective.

"Attempts to define folk art are useless . . . the notion of folk art, as understood in the last half century, is outmoded." He said the 1972 folk art exhibit at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum set the standard and when it is coupled with this 1987 show by future art historians, "They may look back and see these as watershed events.

IN RESPONSE TO THE QUESTION so often posed to him, "what do you mean by folk art?" he drew a parallel between his subject and the variety of acts which take place under a large circus tent "spilling all over." But, he corraled it long enough to divide it into four major categories — historical, ethnographic, neo-naive and contemporary.

Since the title of Metcalf's presentation was "The Social Meaning of Collecting Contemporary Folk Art," he was more intent upon looking at the reasons people collect a certain kind of folk art than the reasons the artists made or make it.

He said historical folk art, "which does not relate to the concerns of modern society" provides an easy escape for those who want to go back to a less complicated way of life.

Ethnographic folk art obviously would appeal to those with recent European ties, and the neo-naive satisfies a need for nostalgic images. Neo-naive is essentially replicas of folk art of a former time.

"Contemporary (folk) art performs a different function. This art disrupts . . . it unsettles its audience . . . folk art, at its best, is remarkably demanding both intellectually and socially, " he said.

In the discussion which followed, Pam Hill, co-director of Hill Gallery of Birmingham said, "The folk artist does not intellectualize his art." She later commented, "Folk art is about originality and intense drive."

GEORGE MYER AND WALTER SIMMONS II, panelists talked about the excitment of the chase, the fun (bordering on addiction) of collecting and the side benefits such as folk art-oriented travel and friendships.

Herbert Waide Hemphill Jr., collector and former curator of the Museum of Modern Folk Art of New York City, who has given a major part of his collection to the Smithsonian Institute, said graffiti, neon trade signs and photographs can be folk art.

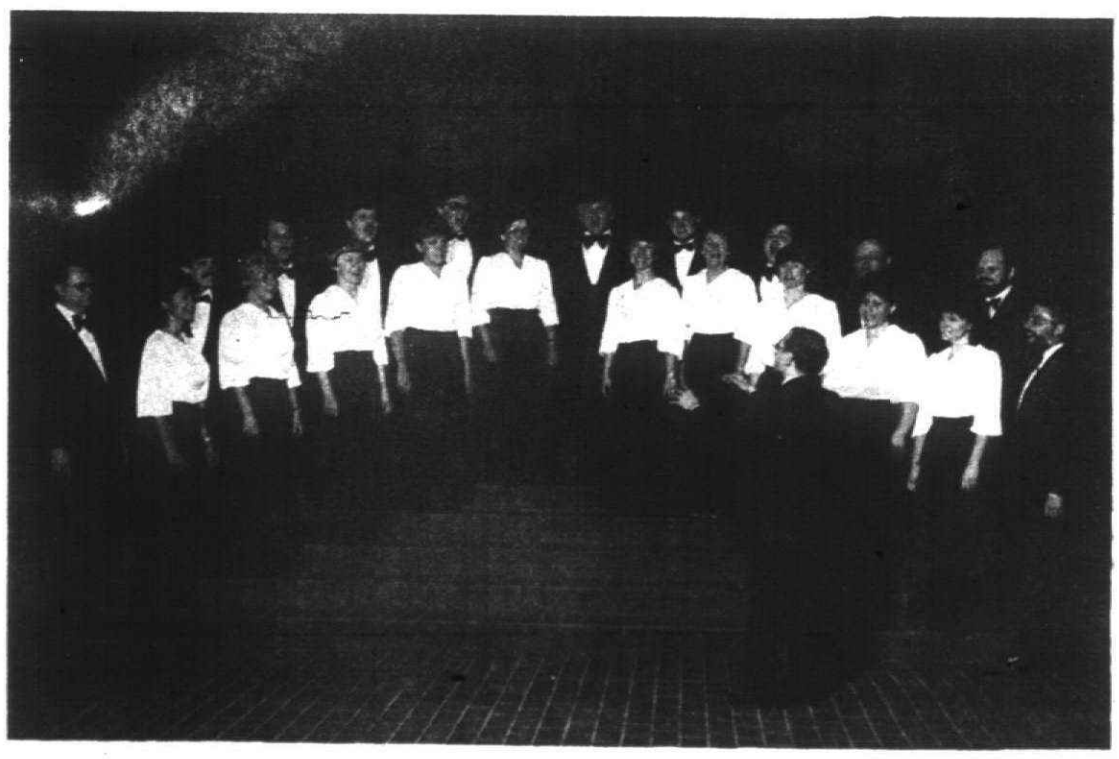
"Carnival art is a whole field of its own," he said.

Later as slides were shown of some of the pieces Hemphill loaned for the 1972 Cranbrook folk art exhibit, he answered questions from the audience.

When asked to explain why certain pieces attracted him, he said, "I don't analyze my aesthetics about each piece. I always wanted my collection to talk for me."

Later, he said when he sees a piece and feels a chill go down the back of his spine, he knows it's something he wants, "I don't care if anyone else likes it if I think it's wonderful. It's a gut reaction."

Four highly regarded collectors and authorities on decoys, Julie Hall, Tim Hill, Ron Swanson and Klune Walsh Jr. showed slides of decoys and swapped stories about how they found them and, in some cases, how they were used and what they meant.



Singing their hearts out

For a special valentine's day treat, take your sweetie over to the Livonia City Hall auditorium at 3 p.m. Sunday when the newly formed David Jorlett Chorale will lift their voices in song. Admission is $3 and tickets are available at the door. The event is sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission. It's the chorale's first appearance in Livonia but director Jorlett is no stranger to the area. He is on the faculty of the Southfield Public Schools, Schoolcraft College and the University of Michigan. He is currently president-elect of the Michigan Music Educator's Association. Accompanist is Jane Branscom, coach/accompanist for the Schoolcraft College Community Choir.

Computerized archive takes romance to heart

IF YOU'RE LOOKING for some helpful hints for finding your true love on Valentine's Day, the computerized folklore archive at the University of Detroit suggests you take a look at our fine feathered friends.

If you see a blackbird, you will marry a clergyman. A goldfinch means that your spouse will be a millionaire, but a bluebird spells a life of poverty because your future mate will be far from rich.

If no birds are in sight, drop three balls of clay into a bucket of water. Each should contain the name of a likely prospect on a sheet of paper. The first one to rise will be your valentine.

DREAMS HAVE A magic of their own and if you want to spend a night with your true love, follow one of these dream-recipes before going to bed:

Put three bay leaves under your pillow. You're sure to dream of the person you will marry.

Or boil an egg in salt water. Then eat the whole thing, shell and all.

If that doesn't conjure up your future spouse, it might help to add some audio-appeal. Try reciting this piece of folk-verse:

Good valentine be kind to me; in a dream let me my true love see.

The archive, directed by Professor James T. Callow, is the world's first computerized folklore collection and it includes thousands of items collected every semester by students of folklore. Since 1964, informants have been steadily enlarging and refining the archive with traditions from all over the world.

EGGS, FOR EXAMPLE, are widely recognized for the important roles they play in the serious business of courtship and marriage. Unmarried Polish and Hungarian girls used to give eggs, sometimes by the dozens, to their boyfriends. In Macedonia, engaged couples exchanged eggs as gifts while Russians and Indonesians used eggs at their marriage ceremonies.

However, if you're hounded by an unwanted valentine, relief may be only a salt shaker away. Salt, according to folk wisdom, can quiet a storm, bless a new house, cure an earache — and get rid of unwanted visitors.

Romancing the tale is big business

IT TOOK A poet — Geoffrey Chaucer, in fact — to find romance in the day marking the beheading of St. Valentine, an early Christian martyr. Chaucer mentioned that Feb. 14 was the day when birds began to pair, and from there came the exchange among friends and lovers of heart-shaped beribboned cards, then candy, then flowers — or so the story goes.

And if romance is in the air this week, it's merely business as usual at the bookstores. Big business.

It's not unusual for the romance publishers, giddy with continued success, to announce first printing figures upwards of 100,000 for little-known or even first-time authors. And those books sell, often before they even hit the shelves. Romance aficionados order by the dozen, by author or byline (Silhouette Intimate Moments or Harlequin Supperromance, for example).

AND NOWHERE IS romance more evident than in the current shocking pink, valentine bedecked issue of Romantic Times magazine.

If you've never seen Romantic Times, you might not know that some of our own area writers are among the "names." This month at least four of them are featured or pictured as the magazine covered the Fifth Annual Romantic Times Convention held last fall in New York.

Southfield writer Ruth Ryan Langan and Farmington Hills' Marianne Willman were workshop leaders at the conference. Langan's latest book, "The Proper Miss Porter," is among the 100 books reviewed in what publishers Kathryn Falk calls "the biggest issue yet."

Troy writer Linda Lang Bartell rates a review plus a full-page ad. Bartell's second novel, "Alyssa," was selected by Avon as one of two novels marking the debut of their increased two-a-month ribbon line.

Set in Norman England, "Alyssa" is "related" to her popular first historical romance, "Brianna." Roland, the lead male character in her first book, is twin brother to Ranulf, the romantic interest in "Alyssa."

Bartell, a former French and history teacher, is already at work on a third novel set during the same period. She says the research, including the proper use and rhythm of the language, is what she loves best. She spends as much time at it, "it can be pretty embarrassing when all of a sudden I begin talking like my 11th-century heroines."

"Brianna should be on the shelves now," Bartell says. Romantic Times rates it as "sensual."

Bartell will be autographing "Alyssa" at the Novel Trader in Troy from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Mona Grigg

Then there's Bloomfield Hills writer Jan Greenburg, better known as Jill Gregory. RT highlights her (in a feature with the Grand Dame herself, Barbara Cartland) as Berkley Publisher's "number one bestseller." Her latest is "Moonlit Obsession."

All four writers belong to the very active Greater Detroit chapter of Romance Writers of America. On March 28 three of the four (Langan, Bartell and Willman) will serve as workshop leaders at a seminar at Oakland University's Sunset Terrace entitled "Tapping the Source — Query to Contract." Local RWA president Marianne Shock, inspirational writer Carrole Rugenstein and others will fill the program.

Craig Carver, individual artists coordinator for the Michigan Council for the Arts, is scheduled as keynote speaker. The deadline for reservations has been extended to March 15. Manuscript labs, however, are closed. For information and applications, write to Terey Ramin, 223 W. Rutgers, Pontiac 48055.

MICHIGAN WOMAN magazine is seeking manuscripts for a new literary journal scheduled for publication in the bimonthly magazine's May-June issue.

Editor Betsy Hull is looking for fiction (short stories or novel excerpts), essays, poetry or plays by Michigan writers. Hull says selections can be on any subject except pornography.

Michigan Woman is geared toward the successful, upscale business and career woman. Recent articles spotlighted Lieutenant Governor Martha Griffith; Jeanette Lerman, communications veep at Burroughs Corp.; and Catherine Comet, music director for the Grand Rapids Symphony.

Manuscripts must be typed, double-spaced and limited to 2,500 words. Include a return envelope and send before the March 1 deadline. Payment is seeing your words in print in the first installment of the slick magazine's foray into the literary world. There will be more, Hull said, if this one goes well. Send to: Betsy Hull, Editor, Michigan Woman Magzine, P.O. Box 1171, Birmingham 48012.

MAINE POET Baron C. Wormser ("The White Words" and "Good Trembling," Houghton Mifflin) will speak at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 19, in the Greek Room on Wayne State's main campus. The event is sponsored by the Miles Modern Poetry Committee, WSU's English department. It's free. Call 577-2450.

Geoffrey Wolff's Feb. 17 reading for U-M's Visiting Writer's series has been cancelled. Susan Richards Shreve, author of the recently acclaimed "Queen of Hearts," (Simon & Shuster), is scheduled to read at 4 p.m. Tuesday, March 3, in the Rackham East Conference Room. Call 764-6296.

FRIENDS OF THE Livonia Public Library will have Howard Levine discuss his book, "Life Choices: Confronting the Life and Death Decisions Created by Modern Medicine" at Carl Sandburg Library, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 20. Taking part in the discussion will be Robert Skonieczny, education coordinator of respiratory therapy at Mount Clemens Hospital. The public may attend.

Mona Grigg is a free-lance writer who lives in Westland. She welcomes comments and questions from readers. These can be directed to her in care of this newspaper at 36251 Schoolcraft.

Metropolitan concert spotlights pianist Kargul

INTERNATIONALLy recognized pianist Laura Kargul will perform in concert at Metropolitan Methodist Church at 8 p.m. Friday. She will be performing on the church's new Bechstein grand piano in a highly favorable acoustic setting.

Kargul was invited to the Eighth International Tchaikowsky Competition in Moscow last spring. Already familiar to audiences throughout the Great Lakes Region, she is now receiving high acclaim in European music centers as well.

In 1985, the Rotterdam Nieuwsblad heralded her debut in The Netherlands as "one of the most remarkable recitals given in our country" and called her "a pianist with a lot to say." In 1986, at Amersterdam's Concertgebouw, the Haagsche wrote "world class playing .n .nalmost feverishly inspired from the first to the last note . . . She belongs on the big concert stages of The Netherlands."

A NATIVE OF Redford Township, Kargul has recorded for national radio in France and The Netherlands, for Minnesota Public Radio, and was recently featured on a PBS television broadcast by the WKAR-TV Fine Arts Series.

She has won prizes from numerous American competitions, most notably a top prize in the 1983 National Federation of Music Clubs Young Artist Competition. She has also appeared at the Ordway Music Theater and Weyerhaeuser Auditorium in St. Paul, Minn., Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor, the Midland Center for the Arts, the Potter Center in Jackson, and numerous colleges in the midwest United States. From 1984 to 1986, she was artist in residence at Albion College.

Kargul started piano studies at age six with Rebecca Frohman in Detroit and made her solo debut with orchestra at age 13. After winning Interlochen's all-state scholarship to the University of Michigan, she studied with Leon Fleisher and Theodore Lettvin. She has had major classes with Gary Hoffman, Murray Perahia and Andre Watts.

Metropolitan Church is located on Woodward, five blocks north of Grand Boulevard and near all major expressways. Free, lighted and supervised parking is available next to the church. Additional information can be obtained by calling 875-7070 during regular business hours.

briefly speaking

● COMBINED CONCERT

The winter concert of the 1986-87 season of the Dearborn Youth Symphony will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Edsel Ford High School auditorium, 20601 Rotunda Drive. Highlight of the concert will be the joint performance with the Windsor International Youth Symphony.

Tickets will be available at the door and are $3 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. For more information, call 943-2354 or 278-1390. ● LINCOLN TRIBUTE

Dr. Weldon Petz of Lincoln Memorial University dispels myths and replaces them with facts when he leads a pilgrimage through the life of Abraham Lincoln in a one-time-only Cranbrook P.M. presentation at 7:30 p.m. Friday, March 6, at 500 Lone Pine Road.

Tracing Lincoln's life from his background as a country boy in Kentucky up to his assassination in Ford's Theater, Petz will reveal the human side of the legend through little-known stories, music, slide illustrations and original materials never seen before.

Cost of the lecture is $10. For more information, call Cranbrook P.M. at 645-3635.

● DRAMA JUDGING

The Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College will host ther Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association's State High School Finals from noon to 6 p.m. Friday, Feb. 20 and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 21. The contest is free and open to the public. For more information, call 471-7700.

● LIFE DRAWING COMPETITON

Life model Erma Starks will pose for a series of life-drawing classes offered by Norgrafic studios of Northwest Blueprint and Supply Co. Students/professionals who participate can then enter a competition sponsored by Norgraphic. Fee for each three-hour period is $5. Sessions will begin this month. For more information call Jeanne Poulet, 353-5525.

Starks, regarded by many as Detroit's famous life model, will be honored at a reception at Norgrafic's studios on Northwestern Highway 6-7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 26.

● BERLIN SYMPHONY

Guest conductor Einer Anderson, music director of the South Carolina Philharmonic, will join Goetz Bernau, concertmaster of the Berlin Symphony in a performance with the strings of the Ann Arbor Chamber Orchestra at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 14 in the Michigan Theater, Ann Arbor.

Tickets are $15, $10 and $6 and are available in advance and at the door. For more information, 996-0066 or 668-8397.

● CALL FOR DRAWINGS

Eastern Michigan University's Art department currently is accepting entries from Michigan artists for "Michigan Drawing '87," a competitive drawing contest and exhibit to be held in EMU's Ford Gallery March 30 through April 24.

Approximately $1,500 in cash and purchase awards will be given to winners of the competition which requires a $15 entry fee with the submission of up to three works in any drawing media.

Judging of the submissions will be by noted Michigan artist Larry Cressman. Deadline for entries is Feb. 21. For more information, call Jay Yager, professor in EMU's Art Department, at 487-0465.

● BLACK HISTORY

In recognition of Black History Month, Madonna College in Livonia will host a public exhibit of original artist's works, "African and Afro-American Art," through Feb. 28 in the college exhibit gallery. Featured artists will be John T. Scott and Frank Hayden. Displayed items will include mahogany and bronze sculpture, lithographs and more. The display will be open to the public, free of charge, and may be viewed on weekdays until 9 p.m. and weekends, 1-4 p.m.

● KARGUL CONCERT

Redford pianist Laura Kargul will be presented in concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 13, as part of the Music Guild Concert Series at Metropolitan United Methodist Church, Detroit.

Invited to the Tchaikovsky competition in Moscow, Kargul is recognized as a fine pianist. She began piano study at age 6 with Rebecca Froham of Detroit and made her solo debut with orchestra at 13. As a student of Leon Fleisher and Theodore Lettvin, she received her doctorate from the University of Michigan in 1985.

The church is at 8000 Woodward. There is lighted and supervised parking adjacent to the church. For more information, call 875-7407.

● MARTHA GRAHAM CONCERT

The University Musical Society of the University of Michigan will host Martha Graham and her Martha Graham Dance Company for performances on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 6-8, in the Power Center for the Performing Arts.

The great dance pioneer and innovative artist will accompany her dancers to Ann Arbor for three different programs. Tickets are $15-$18. For more information, call 764-2538.

● TANGLEWOOD AUDITIONS

Auditions will be held in Detroit for musicians interested in attending the Boston University School of Music or the 1987 summer season of the Boston University Tanglewood Institute 3-8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 20, in the Detroit Community Music School, 200 E. Kirby, Detroit.

For an appointment, call 273-6716.

● FACULTY EXHIBITION

The Sarkis Galleries at the College of Art and Design, an affiliate of the Center for Creative Studies, will present the photography faculty exhibition through Saturday, Feb. 21, in the galleries at 2435 E. Kirby, in the University Cultural Center.

Participating artists will be Carlos Diaz and John Ganis, Doug Aikenhead, Connie Bruner, Fred Cradder, Hugh Grannum, Amy Kahn, Bill Rauhauser and Robert Vigiletti. There is no admission charge. For more information, call 872-3118 during business hours.

● CONTEMPORARY FOLK ART

"The Ties That Bind: Folk Art in Contemporary American Culture" is the title of the exhibition of work by 32 folk artists from throughout the country that will be on view at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum until Sunday, Feb. 22.

A mix of more than 50 sculptures, paintings and mixed media are featured.

Museum hours are 1-5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday. Guided tours are available by advance notice. For tour information, call 645-3323.

● WATERCOLOR EXHIBITION

Fifty-two professional watercolorists are represented in the prestigious Annual Michigan Water Color Society exhibition now taking place at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, 1516 S. Cranbrook, Birmingham.

The exhibition is free to the public. Gallery hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday.

From stem to stern, Pinafore is smooth ride

By Mary Jane Doerr
special writer

review

THE H.M.S. Pinafore was launched 109 years ago in London and this Gilbert and Sullivan romp has been sailing full-steam ahead ever since.

It is no wonder when such lyric tenors as David Troiana take the part of the ignobly-born Rafe (the English pronouncing for Ralph) Rackstraw, the smartest lad in all of the English fleet. Troiano did that last weekend at the Marquis Theater in Northville in the newest production and latest offering of the Michigan Lyric Opera that continues this weekend.

Troiano's voice is beautiful and his acting gave enough sense to the nonsense to make his part affectionate and enough intelligence to the satire to make him believable.

In short, Troiano's voice is worth the entire ticket alone, just to hear him sing "The Nightingale," "A Maiden Fair to See" and "Farewell, My Own."

THAT IS NOT say he is the only shining star to grace Ron Diehl's black and white shipshape sets on the Northville stage. He is not.

Jane Schoonmaker Rodgers, recently heard as a finalist in the Metropolitan Opera auditions here in Detroit, was Josephine. In full command of her top notes, her voice fairly sailed over the live orchestra and chorus under capable Douglas Morrison's direction.

Rogers' "Sorry Her Lot" certainly made hope more alive than dead as her acting as her acting strengthened throughout the afternoon. When she brings her middle voice to the quality of the top, she will be singing more opera.

H.M.S. Pinafore was the first great success of the English team in 1878 combining literary and musical satire. In the story, Josephine is the daughter of the well-bred Captain Corcoran (Stephen Sell) and is being sought by the ruler of the Queen's Navy, Sir Joseph Porter, portrayed here in properly detestable fashion by George Bloomfield.

SELL PROVIDED AN amiable leader of this motley group of sailors and sang with a voice that excelled when he was in his range. As the story unfolds, it is learned that Little Buttercup has switched Ralph and the captain as babies, leaving each to live in the other's station in life.

Jennifer Hilbish, as Little Buttercup, was not so round and rosy and was too pretty to be old enough to have nursed the captain and Ralph as babies.

Nevertheless, Hilbish brought some credibility to the part with an acting style that left unmistable hints of the plot's coming events. Her mezzo-voice was clear and powerful.

As boatswain, University of the Michigan student Eric Gibson captured the very essence of the musical. Pronouncedly expressive, he enlivened an otherwise mundane men's chorus, especially with his patriotic version of "He Is an Englishman."

Mark Byars was equally effective as the voice of doom — Dick Deadeye. Dorothy Duensing took the role of Counsin Hebe and made it into a bright spot of humor among a chorus that was only adequate when all the leads were on stage.

Joyce Uzelac's stage direction offered humor and movement while being true to the traditions of the operetta. Dolly Scheibelhut's costumes were brilliant.

Tint & Splint moves to new home

Basketmaking and chair caning demonstrations will highlight the grand opening Sunday of Tint & Splint Basketry in its new larger location in Garden City.

Festivities begin at 1 p.m. and continue to 6 p.m. in the new home at 30100 Ford Road. The 2,200-square-foot building is devoted entirely to the art of basketmaking and chair caning, said Tint & Splint president Kathleen Crombie.

Tint & Splint, one of the nation's largest reed and cane suppliers, offers a full line of basketmaking materials, books, tools, chair cane, rush and do-it-yourself furniture. Materials are sold locally as well as through a nationally advertised mailorder catalog. The store also offers some of the finest basketmaking classes and workshops in the country, Crombie noted.

Conducting the demonstrations will be Plymouth basketmaker Theresa Ohno and Robyn Crombie. Special one-day only sales and door prizes are also planned.

Whatever a bride chooses for her bridesmaids, she should make sure the dresses complement her own look in length and formality. The bridal gown here is by Frank Masandre creation from the Diamond Collection at Jacobson's. The bridesmaids dresses show the option of an off-shoulder look if so desired.Back interest is captured with large, satin bows.

Wedding

Large, lavish

THE ROYAL weddings of Prince Charles and Princess Diana, Prince Andrew and Princess Sarah, and that of America's own "royalty" — Caroline Kennedy and Edwin Schlossberg, have aided the renaissance of the traditional wedding ceremony in its most elegant, formal and elaborate form.

"Large and fancy weddings are in," says Marie Rama, director of weddings and entertaining for Korbel Champagne. "Brides-to-be are returning to lavish, formal, traditional weddings."

Lavish weddings, of course, call for larger bridal parties. According to Modern Bride magazine, 98 percent of all weddings of first-time brides in 1986 were large, formal ceremonies that involved approximately five female and five male attendants.

FASHIONS FOR members of the bridal party have become elaborate and inventive.

While there's no doubt the bride is still the center of attention, the bridegroom, groomsmen and bridal attendants will be able to hold their own with fashions that catch the guests' eyes after the bride has made her way down the aisle.

One of the freshest looks for bridesmaids is the English garden print, according to Modern Bride. This style is best in chintz, with bouquets of peonies and cabbage roses in soft pastels and earth tones. Also popular is the Victorian dress with delicate embroidered necklines, lots of beading or the Lady Diana look in full-blown taffeta.

The colors for bridesmaid dresses span the color wheel, said Joan Bobrow, spokeswoman for Alfred Angelo Bridals. "Anything goes," she said. "There's a whole rainbow of colors."

– '30s touch

PALE PINKS, AQUAS and lilacs especially complement this year's popular ballerina look — filmy floating dancing skirts.

Another trend in wedding wear is a return to the 1930s look. In bridesmaid dresses, this translates into dropped waistlines, bateau necklines, cap sleeves and elegant fabrics.

Whatever look a bride chooses for her bridesmaids, she should make sure the dresses complement her own look in length and formality. She might even consider consulting her maid of honor and bridesmaids before choosing a style since they'll pay for their dresses.

There's no doubt a traditional bride will wear white or ivory on her wedding day, and in 1987, she might very well be joined by the groom. This year marks the return to the all-white wedding, according to Bobrow. Traditional grooms also will be in high style sporting dolphin gray or black tuxedos.

THE STYLE OF tuxedo the bridegroom will wear depends largely upon the time of day and formality of the wedding.

For a formal daytime affair, the bridegroom might choose a gray cutaway coat, white shirt and striped silk ascot. After 6, he might choose "white tie" formality — a black double-breasted tuxedo with matching satin-trimmed trousers, stiff-front shirt and wing tips.

The groomsmen traditionally dress like the bridegroom, but a top hat, ruby studs, gloves or cummerbund can set the man of the hour apart.

Most couples rent their wedding tuxedos. It's best for a bride and bridegroom to make their final choices six to eight weeks before the wedding so they'll get the styles they want.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

The traditional formal dress with the long train is enjoying great popularity. Shown is a Eva Haynal Forsyth gown of touch-and-glow satin, featuring an off-shoulder ruffled portrait neckline with puffed sleeves, venise lace heavily re-embroidered with crystals and pearls. Other features are basque waist, lace hem and cathedral train. In white only at Jacobson's. Price is $550.

How to avoid theft

Theft during a wedding can be a nuptial nightmare, but there are ways of dealing with the special risks that come with special occasions, says a security firm president.

"Some burglars read the society pages of daily newspapers that run announcements in advance of the wedding," says Ira Lipman, president of Guardsmark Inc., "looking for the date and time of weddings to find out when the families' homes will be unoccupied and easily accessible."

In his book, "How to Protect Yourself From Crime," Lipman writes that a wedding notice is not the only tipoff. A burglar may also be alerted by marriage plans published at church or by an employee of the caterer, florist or jeweler or others providing wedding goods or services, Lipman said.

The easiest way to protect against wedding-day theft is to get a friend, relative or neighbor to stay with your gifts during the wedding and reception, said Neil Solomon, vice president for technical services at Guardsmark.

In special cases, Solomon said, hiring a security guard might be a good idea.

He also advises that before you hire extra help for the reception or shower, check the company carefully on its insurance coverage and bonding. And, while the temptation to show off wedding gifts is hard to resist, keep valuables away from windows.

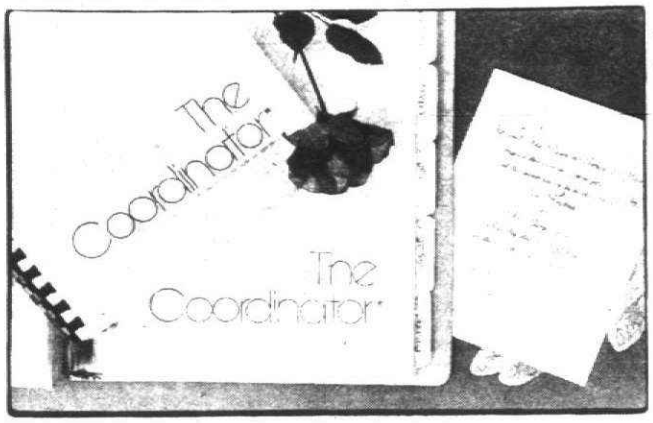
Available starting at $535. Recently available 2 bedroom apartments with 2 full baths for only $695. Beautifully landscaped grounds give you a feeling of being in the country yet you are close to shopping malls.

For information, come to the Gatehouse or call 642-9168. Open Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m., Sat. Noon-5 p.m.



The Wedding Coordinator comes in two styles — soft cover for $15 and the looseleaf model with a parchment suede cover for $22. It's available at Barbara's Paper Bag in Birmingham; Signature's in West Bloomfield; Paper Peddler in Plymouth; and Paper Place in Southfield.

Wedding planners are real 'keepers'

THE LAST GUESTS ARE on their way out the door, the wedding cake is almost gone and the band members are packing their instruments. Hard to believe the wedding that required all those months of preparation and planning is over.

Yet the memories of the day can linger on, especially if the bride and groom decide on the wedding keepsakes they want months before they finally say "I do."

One easy way is through the use of wedding planners that are now available at most bookstores and stationery stores.

THE PLANNERS HELP YOU SORT through the seemingly endless details of planning a wedding, be it a long-term engagement or a whirlwind courtship. Later, you can look back on your wedding plans. Many planners are designed in workbook fashion so you can pen in plans and include a directory section for important names and numbers, a pocket to store receipts and contracts and an index for quick reference.
