Woman is shot; husband charged

A Canton woman was in fair condition this morning at Westland Medical Center after suffering a bullet wound in the abdomen about 10

Charged with assault with intent to commit murder and possession of a firearm during commission of a felony is her husband, Gary Leon Lane, 31, of 1231 Longfellow.

Canton Police said Fontaine Lane came to the station Friday evening requesting that officers escort her home. She told police her husband had been drinking and had threatened her.

She wanted police to accompany her so she could safely take her two young children and leave, police

Whe she approached the house, Mrs. Lane was shot in her left side, according to police. Officers said

Lane fired four shots. Two officers returned fire.

Police were uncertain whether a grazing wound on Lane's chin was inflicted by a bullet or during the struggle that ensued when a third officer tackled Lane, said police.

A fourth officer retrieved a .38 caliber revolver.

Lane, an Amtrak policeman, w as arraigned Saturday in 23rd District Court by District Judge William Sutherland. He was unable to the $150,000 post bond.

Lane, who was being held in Canton's jail Monday, is scheduled to be arraigned at 9 a.m. Monday, May 11 in 35th District Court.

Sale of seminary could come soon

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

Nearly 40 Plymouth-area residents will lose their jobs when St. John Provincial Seminary closes next summer.

The facility on Five Mile just east of Sheldon in Plymouth Township has been placed on the market by the Archdiocese of Detroit.

Some 40 seminarians will transfer in the fall of 1988 to Sacred Heart Major Seminary, an institution to be established at Detroit's Sacred Heart Seminary College.

It's not yet known whether Sacred Heart will accommodate those who've come to St. John for overnight retreats and theological graduate studies. Also in question is whether the clergy of other faiths who've used the seminary can be accommodated at Sacred Heart.

THE SEMINARY'S board of trustees decided to sell in light of high operational costs and interest in the 180-acre site expressed by several large corporations.

Exactly who is interested and what the sale price is isn't being di-

"People constantly ask me but all I know is rumors. That knowledge is being carefully kept from us. All matters regarding the sale and usage of the property is being handled by the Archdiocese of Detroit," said the Rev. Robert Byrne, St. John rector/president.

"To say a little is to point a finsaid Jay Berman, spokesman for the archdiocese. "There have been a number of inquiries from a lot of different sources but not to the point where anyone has pursued a detailed inspection of the site."

Discussions with the corporations that originally expressed interest are ongoing, Berman said.

A sale within the month is unlikely but not impossible, he said.

Possible uses for the imposing Romanesque structure include senior housing, a convalescent home, a school or a conference center. Ber-

'What's unique about St. John is that it's a cooperative effort of the Catholic church in Michigan.'

Unlike the situation in many states, "Michigan's seven archdioceses all own and have operated St. John over the years. Usually seminaries are operated by a single diocese or religious order," Byrne

"So that way of operation is going to come to an end when St. John comes to an end. I don't know if we will see that kind of cooperation

Plan would discourage c

Parents of some students in Plymouth-Canton schools may receive an appeal by mail to keep their children out of downtown Plymouth at night in an effort to discourage cruisers. The mailing, to parents of high school and middle school students, is under study by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce. The chamber also is considering asking parents to sign pledges with their children insisting on "harmless and productive activities" and establishing specific sanctions for misbehavior. "Kids draw kids," said Dale Yagiela, director of Growth Works, a youth service agency. "You're not going to solve the issue of who's responsible until you reduce the number of kids down there.'

IT ISN'T always easy to determine who has mischief on their minds when thousands of young people congregate on the street at night, said Mary O'Connell, executive director of the cham-

"After you start peeling off some layers, you get to where the troublemakers are," she said. Yagiela and O'Connell both expressed concerns about the safety of curious young teens downtown as crowds swell and the hour grows late.

"There are some undesirable people who are kind of ruining it for the whole bunch," O'Connell said. "We want parents to know what's going on down there. It's sensitive. It's so volatile.

"I don't think they (parents) necessarily understand what's going on or the potential going on of congregating," said Yagiela.
"I think it (the letter) opens discussion, a real important one, about what kids do with their time and gets parents to look at their kids. Kids have rights and responsibilities.

TICKETS have been issued this spring for consuming alcoholic beverages in public, open intoxicants in a motor vehicle, urinating in public and trespassing.

Police Chief Richard Myers said he's surprised that no serious injuries - deliberately inflicted or accidental - have resulted from the crowds of young people along Main Street.

'Don't you think there's a potential for someone to get hurt when we have this density of traffic and pedestrians?" he said.

Myers said he would welcome the input of the

Mom's Day recipes for kids to fix

Funny thing. When I was growing up, the kids were never allowed in the kitchen. I pestered momma and eventually she agreed to let me watch - as long as I stayed out of her way.

Occasionally she would flip me a bit of nostalgia or technique. In all honesty, mealtime was probably the only time of solace for momma during her hectic day raising seven of us (of which two sets were twins)

I know there's a place in heaven for my momma. So here's her baby, sitting at a word processor and making his living trying recipes as basic as scrambled eggs and as excitingly different as chocolate turkey (Did anyone out there ever try that?)

Times have changed. Momma never had (and probably still would never want) Cuisinarts, Kitchen Aids, dishwashers, pasta makers and omelette pans. If it couldn't be done in cast iron, it was never attempted. I went to school to learn where pb&j and fish sticks come from.

Nowadays, kids are learning how to get around in the kitchen not holding onto momma's apron strings but by pulling up a stool and learning to measure flour, break eggs and mix dough. It is a proven fact that early positive experiences with food may lay the foundation for lifelong eating habits.

Children learn most by being actively involved. Nowadays, most preschool and elementary programs encourage children to be active both at home and at school in the preparation of their food. Creating something beautiful and tasty is indeed a rewarding experience not reserved for kids but for folks like you and me. We were a meat-and-potatoes family and the ability to make proper food choices was not always available. Not to say we suffered because the Janes gang has quite a history of battling the avoirdoupois. It certainly makes sense that in order to help children make the correct food choices, a wide variety of wholesome food should be made available.

Consider the fun and excitement in sprouting and growing wheat. How many of you have ever experienced the feel of wheat on the stalk or observed the grinding of the flour? How about the shaping of the dough, the aroma of freshly baked bread, the crackle of the crunchy crust? Can you imagine little hands taking part in this everyday miracle? So much for Wonder.

Many families eat foods which come in boxes, packages, bags bottles and vending machines that have been designed for eating on the run. Carefully prepared food invites us to come and savor. Misleading advertisements that glamorize eating in the car along with poor dietary habits encourage children to eat junk foods which may and can undermine their health.

Forget the formulated, fabricated fake foods and spend some time this week in honor of mother's day with your kids to show them how to plan, shop, prepare and finish the cycle to include clean up and reorganization. Make it a family affair involving dad and even the youngest to help stir and measure. Weave in tales of yesteryear on how foods were made "way back then." Let's face it, good food habits are not acquired naturally, they must be learned

Big deal you say? Other than making a royal mess of the kitchen and chowing down on dry, overkneaded bread, what can a child learn from working with food? First off, consider the awareness of nutrition. Don't just open the can of soup. Discuss it's ingredients and what they specifically do to the body. Even spaghettios have certain properties that include high carbohydrates essential for growing bodies and vegetables for healthy skin.

In addition, when cooking, the child can learn positive social and emotional development. Food comforts. Food nourishes. Momma made a dish we called "sliders" that was mainly broth, chicken bits and dumplings. Probably the cheapest, fatteningest, carbohydrate-laden food she could make, but it warmed every heart, was fun to eat and filled us.

Food is a great vehicle for communication. Through food, we can discover that in some ways, people are alike and in some ways, people are different. Joey likes coconut. Jessica doesn't.

If all this isn't enough, there are many opportunities for children to learn new concepts and language skills as they prepare and eat the food. Squeeze the oranges. Melt the butter. Pop the the corn. Freeze the ice cream. Notice the bitter taste.

Today's hospital cafeteria offers many options for employees. Healthy, tasty food is the goal of the dietary department. Salad bars are especially, popular for employees who want to eat light.

Hospital menus have become more varied as dietary departments try to offer patients a more tasty selection. This dinner includes roast pork, carrots, green beans, cream of broccoli soup, milk, a cottage cheese/fruit/jello salad, vanilla pudding and coffee.

Osteoarthritis is the most common form of arthritis

The condition occurs because of wear and break down of the cartilage that covers the bone at the joint surface. When cartilage is lost, bone rubs against bone, resulting in pain and immobility. The joints usually involved are the knees and the wrist

Previous injury predisposes to osteoarthritis; for that reason professional athletes, particularly football players, are at risk for osteoarthritis of the knees. Heredity plays an important role in women, many of whom develop osteoarthritis of the thumb or knees with no history of prior accident or exercises such as walking and biking. Present thinking is to encourage all activities as you can undertake without undue joint pain. Aspirin or similar drugs are useful to decrease inflammation at the site of joint wear, and joint injections are appropriate ways to remove excess fluid and end flares

Edison's plan: build less, stengthen operations

build additional major power plants through the end of this century, chairman Walter J. McCarthy Jr. told shareholders last week.

"Construction efforts are being directed to strengthening and improving our distribution system - our network of lines and substations that deliver electricity to the customer," McCarthy said.

"So, the more electricity we can sell without adding new generating capacity, the lower the unit cost will be, and the better off our customers will be," the Birmingham resident McCarthy, President Charles M. Heidel and vice chairman Ernest L. Grove Jr. reported on Detroit Edicon's record earnings, sales and production performances in 1986 and the outlook for 1987 and beyond.

They said the company has taken many steps to strengthen its operations and management structure, to reduce expenses and to rally its 10,800 employees to improve customer service and increase sales.

McCARTHY reported on three goals set in 1986:

• Increased sales - This was met when Edison set an all-time company record with more than 38 billion kilowatt hours sold. "A major reason for our increased sales was the greatly expanded and much more aggressive marketing and customer service effort," McCarthy

• Reduced expenses - This was done through reductions in both the numbers and levels of management.

 Bringing the Fermi 2 nuclear plant at Monroe into commercial operation in 1986 - It wasn't achieved and was a major disappointment, but the plant has made considerable progress. Officials announced they will write off at least $428 million of its investment in Fermi 2.

McCarthy also noted that several new senior managers joined the Fermi 2 staff in 1986; incidents reportable to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) decreased; the plant's 1986 emergency training exercise received high marks; and the company's relationship with the NRC has improved.

HEIDEL, EDISON'S chief operating officer, said record sales were achieved through security lighting, electric heat processing, watersource heat pumps and commercial food service

Heidel said the company also is devoting more resources to such economic development efforts as special incentive rates, services, technologies and programs to encourage businesses

Grove, chief financial officer, pointed to records in operating revenues of $2.9 billion, total earnings of $378 million, per-share earnings of $2.58 and a return on average common equity of 14 percent.

Edison officials said 1987 earnings may dip as low as $2 a share, but they will try to maintain the $1.68 dividend for common shares. Meanwhile, first-quarter earnings this year actually were up - 90 cents a share compared to 71 cents for the first quarter of '86.

CAPITAL SPENDING, meanwhile, continued to decline from the early 1980s levels of $1 billion per year, Grove said. In 1986, capital spending was $645 million. It should be about $500 million in 1987 and below $300 million in 1988 and beyond.

He said Detroit Edison also replaced high-cost debt issues with securities bearing lower interest rates.

But an increase in the current common dividend of $1.68 is impossible, Grove said, because of two serious problems: 1) an expected decline in earnings when Fermi 2 goes into commercial operation until an additional rate increase is granted and 2) the impact of new rules adopted by the Financial Accounting Standards Board.

Coach Gary Balconi had a plan for success, and his Plymouth Salem boys track team followed it to perfection Saturday night.

Even without the benefit of a first place, the Rocks accumulated enough points with a balanced effort to win the Observerland Relays at Livonia Churchill High School.

"We scored in 14 of the 15 events we competed in, so that says it all," Balconi said. "We felt it was the seconds, thirds and fourths that were going to be important."

There were other quality teams competing, and that was why Balconi told his team it would have to score points "all over the field." There were teams with more strength in certain areas, but none could match the Rocks' overall abili-

SALEM ENJOYED a good start in the field events, finishing second in the long jump and high jump, third in the discus and fourth in the shot put. The Rocks emerged from the afternoon competition with 26 points, two more than their goal of 24.

"We had a team meeting at 5 o'clock, and we said half the team did its job," Balconi said. "Now the guys on the track have to do it and they did."

Salem netted second places in the 800-meter, sprint medley and shuttle hurdle relays, third place in the 6,400, fourth in the 3,200 and 400, fifth in the 1,600 and sixth in the distance medley.

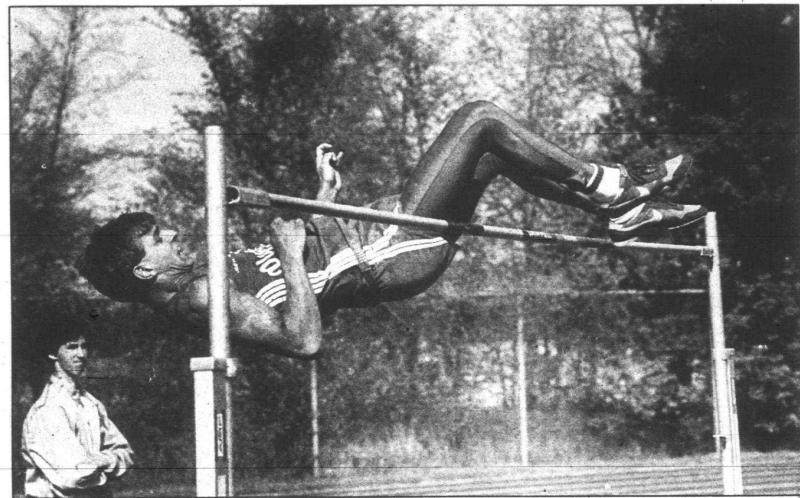

In addition, the Rocks' Keith Smith finished third in the 110 high hurdles, and Sean Hunter took fourth place in the open 100 dash. Brian Neuhardt also figured in Salem's runner-up finishes in the long jump, 800 and sprint medley relays.

"We knew if we performed like we could and didn't make any errors we could win it," Balconi said. "But we also knew if we stubbed our toe along the way we could lose it. There just too much competition

By winning the title, Salem managed to keep the trophy in Plymouth. Defending champion Canton was sixth this year.

"Considering the talent level at this meet, you have to give Salem credit for outdistancing the field," Canton coach Rob Neu said.

SALEM'S CLOSEST challenge came from Wayne Memorial, which finished second, 11 points behind the Rocks with 68. The Zebras got a bad break when their No. 4 hurdler fell in the shuttle event and precluded a possible second-place finish.

"We lost some momentum," Wayne coach Joe Grasley said. "I have no sour grapes; our kids ran a great meet.

"Since we have a lot of young kids, to do this well, I'm ecstatic."

Westland John Glenn made a good showing, too, taking third. The Rockets were led by Dan Liedel, who won the open 1,600 run and gave Glenn a come-from-behind victory in the 5,400 relay, and Marcus Lowe, who captured the 100 dash, anchored the team's 400 relay victory.

"What can you say about Dan?" Glenn coach Richard Gordon said. "He's doing a lot of things for us because he's such a strong runner."

REDFORD BISHOP BORGESS was thought to be the meet favorite but ended up fifth, two points behind Churchill. The Spartans demonstrated their outstanding speed by winning three of the sh ting one meet record in the 800, but

In the preliminaries, he ran the high hurdles for the first time since the Spartan Relays and then tied an Observerland Relays record of 14.7 in the final.

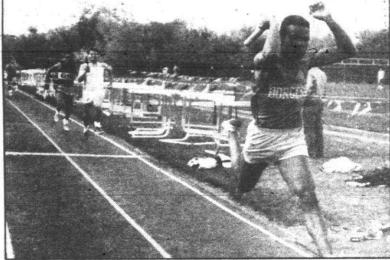

"I was real scared before the meet," Kelly said. "The state meet is three weeks away, and I didn't want to hurt it again. I don't have time to sit around anymore.

"After I ran well in the prelims, I wanted to get 14.7 real bad," he said. "After my leg held up, I was determined.

Chiefs take impressive victory from Spartans

Jen Saul recorded her third shutout in goal for Plymouth Canton as the Chiefs took an impressive, 2-0 victory from perennial soccer power Livonia Stevenson Friday.

Saul made eight saves, and the Canton defense turned in an excellent performance in limiting the Spartans to only two shots on goal in the second half. Canton goalies have allowed just eight goals in seven games this season.

Canton had 11 attempts in each half, and goals by Julie Stabnick and Shannon Meath were all the scoring the Chiefs needed.

Stabnick, with an assist from Jenny Steinhebel, scored one minute into the second half, and Meath's goal came at the 25-minute mark of the second half. Lori Stoecklein assisted on Meath's goal.

Canton's defensive standouts included Chris Zawacki, Cheryl Nippa, Erin Morgan and Tricia Green-halg, coach Don Smith said. The Chiefs' centers, Molly Menard and Renee Rice, also played well, he added

Canton improved its record to 4-2-2.

Julie Anger scored two goals Friday to lift Northville to a 5-1 victory and hand Farmington its first soccer defeat.

The Falcons slipped to 7-1-3 overall, but Farmington and Northville are in separate divisions in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Thus, the loss won't affect the Falcons' title hopes. Carrie Maier scored Farmington's lone goal, cutting Northville's lead to 4-1, with an assist from Leslie Martin. The Falcons had an earlier goal called back.

MERCY 0, TROY 0: Farmington Mercy turned in an outstanding defensive effort Wednesday as the Marlins battled Troy, the No. 2ranked soccer team in the state, to a scoreless tie.

'The kids are playing great 'D' to hold a team like Troy scoreless," Mercy coach Gene Fogel said. 'We're still struggling offensively, but we're coming around." ~

Fogel had to move one of his top scorers, Margaret DeMattia, back on defense to compensate for the absence of injured players Leigh Clancy and Maureen Scullen. De-Mattia, Leigh Ann Gallagher, Stacey Murdock and Erica James were standouts on defense, and Kelly Beaudry excelled in goal for the Marlins, Fogel said. On Friday, Mercy defeated Redford Bishop Borgess 10-0 to run its record to 3-2-3. The tie left Troy with a 7-0-1 mark.

CANTON 12, HARRISON 0: Michelle Lonigro scored three goals, and Michelle Fortier had three second-half assists as Plymouth Canton shut out Farmington Harrison 12-0 Wednesday.

Fortier, a sophomore, spent the first half in goal for the Chiefs and was followed by Shelly Tutor in the his team before the game.

"I've been stressing the point all week that we were playing a good team, the state champions last year, and had to get an early lead to win," Willette said.

THE ROCKS did just that, combining four hits, two Patriots errors and two walks into the seven-run outburst. Willette's squad added two second inning runs to lead 9-0 before the Patriots finally answered, with single runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

Winning pitcher Berrie allowed nine hits in a route-going performance, while Franklin pitcher Patti Wixson war victimized by the early Rocks assault.

The Patriots turned the tables somewhat in the second contest, scoring the game's first seven runs before hanging on for a 8-7 triumph.

Cherie Mascarello tossed an eighthitter and chipped in with a pair of hits to lead Joe Epstein's team to the win. Rose Obey also helped Franklin's cause with two hits in two trips to the plate.

After falling behind 7-0, the Rocks fought their way back into the game with three runs in the fourth, two in the fifth and two in the sixth. But it wasn't enough.

Salem's Pam Austin went 4-for-4 in a losing cause. On Wednesday, Franklin defeated visiting Walled Lake Western, 7-3, behind the three-hit pitching of Wix-Karen Schoeninger belted a three-

Meadow Brook's production of Agatha Christie's "Go Back for Murder" focuses on the meat of the mystery and gives the audience what it came for — a good mental workout. Motives run the gamut of passions in the six suspects who were on hand when Amyas Crale was poisoned in the late 1930s. Crale's wife was convicted of the crime. Before her death in prison, she wrote a letter to her daughter, Carla, insisting on her in-

BLACK HOLES and BAKLAVA - If your head's in the clouds and you're seeing stars, you're either in love or inside the Cranbrook Institute of Science observato-

Admission to the observatory is free with each $3per-person admission to the institute, Lone Pine west of Woodward, Bloomfield Hills.

Skygazers can use the observatory telescope 9-10 p.m. Saturdays.

Or you can light up your night with the institute's Lasera, laser lights performing to music.

The popular weekend attraction has Friday shows at 7:30, 8:30, and 9:30 p.m. and Saturday shows at 8:30 and 9:30 p.m. Tickets are $4.50 for adults, $3.50 for students under 17 and that includes admission to the museum. A WRIF discount card knocks another dollar off the cost. Tickets go on sale the night of the shows: 7 p.m. on Friday, 6 p.m. on Saturday.

Now playing: History of Rock and Roll.

After watching lots of lasers or billions and billions of stars, head for Hershel's Deli in Troy for billions and billions of calories.

Desserts include pastries, cookies, custards, cheesecake, carrot cake and range from 35 cents for a cookie to $2.50 for Hershel's top-of-the-line dessert, the Brownie Mountain, a tower of brownie, vanilla ice cream, hot fudge, whipped cream and a cherry. The 24-hour deli is located at 585 Big Beaver between Liverois and Crooks.

FILM AND GRUB — In Farmington, a cheap date at the movies could well be called a tradition. The Civic Theatre is a downtown landmark and the last chance to see a first-run movie. All seats are $1.50. But arrive early as the lines start to form along Grand River, east of Farmington Road, a good 30 minutes before the two evening showings. After the movies, leave the car in the no-fee parking lot and take a two-block walk west through the city's historical district to Dunleavy's Pub and Grub.

We'd be hard pressed to recommend better than the Pub Burger at $3.50 or the Grubwich at $3.25. Split a side of onion rings, $1.75, and a carafe of Chablis, $7.

How to lower boom on persistent pests

By Sharon Dargay staff writer

When you were 7 years old the neighborhood pest was a kid named Neal.

He teased and needled and bugged you, until you gave in and lent him your best Wonder Woman comic books - and he dribbled ice cream all over them. When you were 11 years old the school pest was a kid named Wanda.

She hung around the baseball diamond whining, "C'mon, can I play?" until you gave in and lent her a bat - and she smacked the ball straight through a gymnasium window

In high school the classroom pest was a kid named-

She badgered you - her lab partner - until you gave in and let her present the final project - and she failed to show up for class the day it was due.

In college, the dorm pest was a guy named Art. He called incessantly until you ran out of excuses, gave in - and experienced the most horrible date of your life.

NOW YOU'RE an adult. You still feel pestered.

'Usually we give these persistent personalities an inroad. We're not firm and honest enough to say, "No, I don't want you to call me." '

> — The Rev. Andy Morgan Single Point Ministries

And guess what? You're partly to blame.

According to the Rev. Andy Morgan of Single Point Ministries, Ward Presbyterian Church, Livonia, learning to say "NO" is the best way to rid yourself of unwanted pests.

By Jartice Brunson and Diane Gale staff writers

So you think you want to learn how to dance. You're in good company.

Ballroom dance teachers in metropolitan Detroit say they are seeing increasing numbers of younger people in their classes. Where ballroom dancing once appealed only to the older set, the Broadway revue, "Tango Argentino," are spreading its appeal across generation lines. Jack Henley of Redford Township wrote the book on ballroom dancing. Really. It's called, "Dancers Delight: Learn the Latest to exposure during high school. Some 20 years ago, big band orchestra leaders toured schools to give students a taste of the music and to try and drum up business, he said. "It's such a nice form of music, and it's such a shame people don't get to hear it as much," Korte said. "It's music that swings and it's a pleasure to listen to. It almost makes you want to keep rhythm and dance."

Step aside, funky chicken. Make room for the swing and cha-cha. You don't have to be collecting Social Security to admire the grace and style of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers gliding across a ballroom

In fact, local entertainers report more and more young people are sidestepping rock and roll and New Wave - at least now and then - to "trip the light fantastic."

Dancing to Glenn Miller and other orchestras from the '40s and '50s has a different kind of attraction: It's romantic, energetic and to 19-year-old

Susan Pepera, "it's special." "Rock and roll you can get any time," the Garden City big band enthusiast said. "It's fun because there's so much of the New Wave and rock and roll that it gets boring for me. The danc-

"Some of the dancing today is outrageous and can be offensive. Big band is more relaxed, and at the same time it's got a steady rhythm that never lets down."

PEPERA WAS drawn to the music by her parents, who played albums from a generation ago to their nine children. "You see these people on the album cover that look to be 90 years old, and you hear the music and it's so energetic that it's fantastic. "It helped me get a different perspective in music, because I was so involved in rock and roll - when the big band music would come on it would be extra special." PEPERA KNOWS her music. The articulate college sophomore is a disc jockey at Dearborn's Henry Ford Community College radio station, WHFR 89.3, where her bubbly personality vibrates the airwaves. The studio hides her flashing green eyes, deep dimples and long red hair. Pepera says the big band programs generate a good response "I've acquired a lot of friends through big band music," she said.

"I'll be playing a song and they'll stop in to talk about it. "Five years ago I wouldn't have believed I would be going to big band concerts."

But, she adds, the waltz does not justify "much time" in lessons because it is rarely danced elsewhere other than weddings. People who go into a class shy and nervous come out "so popular," because they're confident and know what they're doing,

"It's the greatest enjoyment and a beautiful way to spend the evening," Eleanor said.

Road racers in high gear

staff writer

When many of us were teens, we raced through the streets in GTOs, Mustangs and souped-up Chevys. We're still racing through the streets, but we're doing it now in Nikes, Reeboks and Pumas.

Michigan is one of the hotbeds of road racing, lagging behind only a few places such as Boston, Eugene, Ore., and Boulder, Colo.

The state has plenty to offer. The geography and population of southeastern Michigan assure frequent, flat, and easy courses near Detroit. Outstate, such scenic places as Ludington, Traverse City and Munising in the Upper Peninsula give the running tourist an opportunity to combine sport and vacation.

Avid road racers from Michigan can be found at every big race in the country. Nearly 300 from the state ran the Boston Marathon, for example, and even at the small halfmarathon in Key West this past winter (total field of 350), there were 13 runners from Michigan.

You may not be so avid as to travel by jet to find a race. You may not think you're accomplished enough as a runner to go to any races, even one just around the block. If so, think again. Reed-thin racing machines, many of whom starred in high school or college, can be found in the front lines of even the tiniest runs. But lining up behind them, at big and small races, alike, are slower, older, heavier runners, joggers and walkers.

For some, running is an extension of a lifetime of competition; for others it's a way of checking their progress at getting in shape; for others it is the fun part of a regular exercise regimen, the dessert to the main course of daily, solitary running; for others it is a way to meet new friends or to people watch.

Here are some upcoming local and state runs you might consider:

A drive to the future

A glimpse of the future from Dodge.

A driver's-eye view of the Pontiac Pursuit.

It's the year 2001, and you're running late for work.

You trot to your car but don't have to fumble with your keys. Instead, a computerized card opens the door for you.

Sitting in the driver's seat, you notice the seat's pushed way up and the steering wheel is nammed against your chest. The kids have been playing in the car again! You plug the computerized card into a slot on the dashboard, and the seat and steering wheel automatically are adjusted the way you like them.

Rear-facing cameras scan the driveway. The coast is clear so you back out. The car's satellite navigation system then takes over to pilot the car along the familiar course to the office.

Upon arrival, you find there's only one parking spot left, and it's aufully tight. No problem. The car's electronic system turns the car's four wheels parallel to get you in.

You race out of your car, not thinking for a moment about all the auto innovations that have made the trip so much easier.

By Dave Varga staff writer

cars today."

The above vignette features a few of the great innovations that engineers and design experts are planning for the cars of the future. But automobiles probably won't look much different as the 21st cen-

"The cars are going to be very much like today," explained Rex Greenslade, product launch manager for public affairs at Ford Motor Co. "The cars are going to evolve, but they'll still be powered by internal combustion engines. I think the revolution will be the way in which we use all the systems that are in tury approaches, they say.

THE BIRMINGHAM resident said electronics will make the entire engine work together instead of operating independently as it now

"There won't be more computers," Greenslade said, "just more the software that's taking time to

While some companies have opted to develop ideas like talking dashboards, Greenslade said Ford only works on "useful applications" of computers.

"I think there's a lot to be learned there without having a public embarrassment. You can get sucked into technology for technology's sake," he said.

Joe Dunn of Rochester is project engineer for the Pontiac Pursuit, a "concept" car. He agrees more electronic uses will be coming in cars of tomorrow.

One example, he said, is a "heads-up" display system that projects the speedometer or other information onto the windshield so the driver can see his speed without taking his eyes off the road.

"A LOT OF THESE things are available now, but they're too costly," Dunn said. "No division (of General Motors) has said let's put it into production and get the cost down. That's something in the very near future."

Electronic steering would use circuitry instead of a shaft or steering column to command direction of the wheels. That would allow a car to make a turn without the currently needed two or three revolutions of the steering wheel, Dunn

"The benefit would be you could steer all four wheels, so you can have the wheels turn parallel to one another for easier parking or easier

ELECTRONIC STEERING would also change how a car makes a high speed turn. Currently, the front wheels will turn and the back wheels skid sideways. Four-wheel steering would allow the back wheels to roll in the opposite direction of the front wheels.

The not-too-distant future will also see auto companies eyeing more personalized transportation like mini-cars for commuters and more mid-engine sports cars, according to Thomas Gale, vice president of product design at Chrysler.

"There's been a trend to specialized vehicles to reflect individual owner tastes and needs. More specialized markets have developed, see that trend continuing, said the Rochester resident.

Among the more personalized features of the future is a computerized "key card" that functions as a key. In the Dodge Daytona concept, which was displayed at recent auto shows, the card would also record the driver's preference of seating, foot pedals and steering wheel position, climate control, and entertainment.

Displaying concept cars at auto shows helps companies gauge consumer reaction to new ideas they're developing or planning to use in next year's model.

"Whatever we're going to build for the future relates to what the customer wants; that is shaping the cars of the future." said Greenslade.

Thus, some current model cars have compact disc players available and digital audio tape, the next step in high quality music reproduction, will be coming. "Whatever goes into home entertainment audio will be funneled into cars in a few years," Greenslade said.

One thing consumers apparently want in their cars is to know the latest road conditions, how to avoid traffic iams and how to find the best route to get where they're going.

Several companies are working on navigational systems. They are very expensive, Greenslade said.

Currently, there are ETAK navigational systems available for $1,500 on some cars and for some larger cities. They show the driver's car as a cursor on a screen within a map of the area. As the driver makes a turn, the map shifts so it appears he is traveling forward all the time.

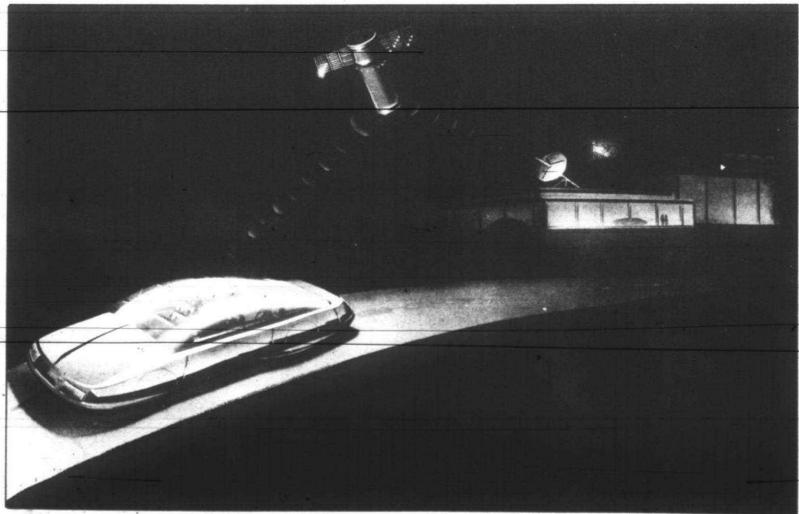

The system could be improved when auto companies can use satellites to bounce bulletins and updates to cars, telling them a street is closed for construction or there is a traffic jam.

Such an information system could allow the police or road department to suggest alternate routes to individual drivers. "The possibilities are fascinating and a little bit frightening," Greenslade

If the highway department in-stalled beams or sensors in the roads and auto companies used satellites, cars on long trips between cities could be programmed to virtually drive themselves, according to Dunn.

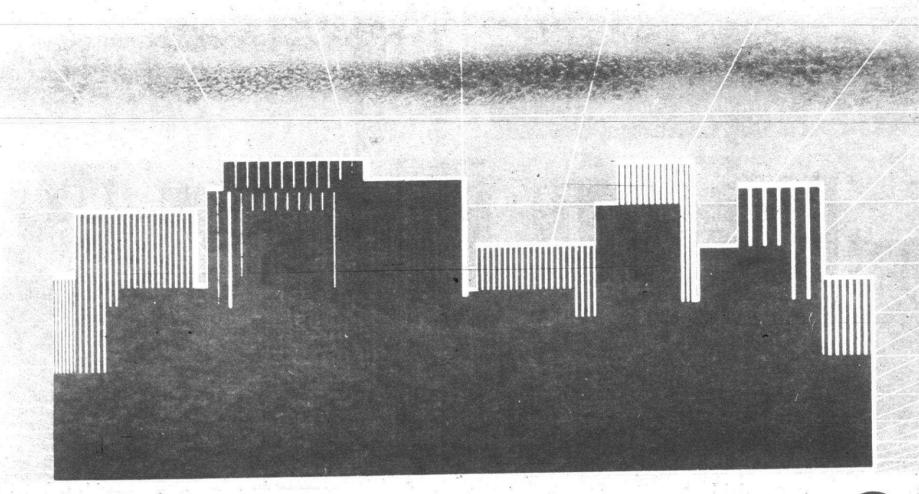

Cruise control is already a standard feature. And, sensors available today could control braking systems within certain distances of other cars or objects, he said. With a beam in the highway, the driver could set his desired speed, Dunn said, "put the car in cruise and turn around and play cards.'

"I see this as being out there a ways, but you could do it. All you need is that satellite," Dunn said. "You can use your imagination and play games with all the things you can do."

Ford Motor Co.'s futuristic car, the model T-2008, will have an that will automatically contact the nearest Ford dealership in on-board, direct-to-satellite, two-way communication system case of on-the-road problems.

But perhaps one of their toughest was convincing Schoolcraft College administrators that they should let thousands of people to traipse across the school's polished gymnasium floor during a two-day business exposition.

We had to agree to buy 2,800 yards of carpeting to cover the floor," said Skinner, a former chef who, with his wife, runs a management company out of their home at 18951 Bainbridge.

As coordinator of the first Greater Livonia Expo, the Skinners have spent the last four months trying to bring Livonia products and potential buyers together under one big roof.

The big event takes place May 6 and 7 in the physical education building at Schoolcraft College, on Haggerty south of Seven Mile.

Nearly all of the booth spots have been rented by local businesses. About 225,000 tickets have gone out to potential customers in nearby communities.

The Skinners have achieved total success on the selling of booths.

Only a count of the number of people who attend the exposition will reveal if the show reached its ultimate goal - bringing both groups together.

"WE WANT to get the right people who make the decisions to buy," Skinner said. "It's a bargain. The tickets are free. A sales presentation costs between $150 and $200. The show only costs between 10 and 25 cents per per-

They'd love to branch out in new directions, such as builders' shows. Their one obstacle to growth is the lack of another convention center in the area besides Cobo Hall.

"That's our biggest problem," Skinner said. "There's no convention center over 25,000 square feet anywhere in the area. If we had something local, we could do a lot of other

More staff on tap with Expo success

The Livonia Chamber of Commerce doesn't expect to make a profit on the Greater Livonia Expo May 6-7 and it doesn't expect to lose money, either.

But if the former happens, executive director John White knows what he would like to use the money for - an additional staff member.

The trade show is costing $85,000 to stage, with the money coming from sponsorships and booth rentals. If the chamber is going to ma money, White believes it will be from the show preview cocktail party May for show exhibitors and their guests. Tickets are priced at $15 each with $10 prices available for orders of 20 tickets or more.

The party is meant to provide exhibitors with a forum to meet with potential clients, show off their products and field questions.

White estimates that much of the business transactions that occur as a result of the trade show will happen at

"I don't know if we're going to make money; our objective is to put on a first class show," he said. "If we're going to make any money it's going to be in the cocktail party. The rest is a break even proposition.'

THE CHAMBER is a non-profit organization. It pays for itself through membership dues and the money generated through services like a business directory it offers.

As a result, the programs it offers are limited by the amount of money it has. The chamber has to depend or volunteer work to keep operating,

The Livonia Chamber has a cadre of 75 volunteers who help the regular staff keep the organization on an even

White estimates that it "would take a staff of 50 to do the job done by the volunteers."

So, if he has his druthers and the show shows a profit, the money most likely will be used for new staffers.

"If we're fortunate to make money it will go into the chamber's operating budget and be used for the benefit of staff," he said. "I've been here three years and we're doing twice the number of programs with the same size

Trade 'seed' grew to Expo

How do you serve the needs of the industrial community?

That was the question Livonia Chamber of Commerce executive director John White asked of Pete Ventura of Ventura Properties and Dominic Persichini of the Air Gage Co. last

Much to his surprise they both offered the same answer - a trade show - although Ventura is the person White credits with "planting the seed."

The seed has since germinated into the chamber's first Greater Livonia Expo, which will be held at Schoolcraft Community College May 6-7.

"There are certain things a chamber does well; one of them is providing a networking opportunity for members," White said. "But there are a large number of businesses within Livonia's industrial corridor (along I-96) and I was looking at those members and saying how can the chamber serve that public.

"Pete asked if we'd ever thought of doing a trade show and that planted the seed in my mind."

Before forging ahead with the project, White decided to find out what it took to put on a trade show. What he discovered was it takes "an

That discovery eventually led to the hiring of Jim Skinner and Associates of Livonia as show manager, but not be-fore White "shopped" a Skinner-managed trade show in Macomb County and talked to representatives of the Downriver Community Conference who also hired him as their show man-

SKINNER HAS been responsible for handling the entire show - from renting booth space to scheduling advertisements for the show's program.

The expo will utilize the college's two gymnasiums. More than 100 exhibitors from in and around Livonia will be participating, including 10 major sponsors who kicked in $2,000

The sponsors — Air Gage, Allmand Associates Inc., Consumers Power Co., Detroit Edison, Ford Motor Co., Health Alliance Plan, Manufacturers Bank of Livonia, Michigan National Bank-West Metro, Reliable Companies and St. Mary Hospital - provided the seed money for the expo, which will cost an estimated $85,000 to stage, White said.

The sponsorship fee might sound steep, but the companies weren't one least bit hesitant about accepting the offer, he said.

In exchange for the $2,000, they are mately 300 square feet of prime exhibit area, complimentary tickets to the show preview cocktail party, an unlimited number of general admission show tickets, special signs during the show and a full page write-up in the expo program. White said.

"I tried to pick out business that would be willing to do this," he explained. "I especially wanted Ford and GM to come into the show more for public awareness.

"They're a big part of the community and I wanted them to display the products they make in Livonia."

WHITE ESTIMATES that 6,000 to 8,000 people will visit the two-day expo, but he believes the business of doing business will be done even before the doors open on May 6.

That business will be conducted during the cocktail party, he speculated. Participants will be able to purchase tickets for the show and give them to prospective clients, in effect bringing them to where the business can show what it does.

"They can use the things we've provided to get the prospects to come to them rather than chase after them.' White said. "This show is targeted to the decision makers of business and I

The Chamber's first such two-day show has a price tag of $85,000 that includes costs for such things as 25,000 square feet of carpeting, liability insurance and electrical work.

Show manager James L. Skinner and Associates had the task of transforming two gymnasiums at Schoolcraft Community College into show halls. And it's no easy task, White said.

To protect the hardwood floors, carpeting will be laid throughout and to accommodate the electrical needs of exhibitors, the gymnasiums will literally be rewired, he said.

White sees the show, billed the Greater Livonia Expo, as a "vehicle, a tool, an event" for businesses in and around Livonia to tout their products to prospective customers.

And when the doors open May 6. Skinner and Associates will have put together a "first-class show."

It contains: a stethoscope, pen light, reflex hammer. blood-pressure cuff, a device for looking in ears called an otoscope, another for looking into eves called an orbithalmoscope a handful of tongue depressors, latex gloves, a couple of handbooks on prescription drugs, and a tape measure.

Okav, so maybe this equipment isn't so sophisticated. Maybe you've seen it all before. The truth be known, the contents of the typical medical bag haven't changed much over the last two generations. The stethoscope, for example, is more than 150 years old. But these things perform impressive feats indeed in the hands of a highly-trained and experienced physician the kind of primary care physicians in internal medicine, obstetrics/gynecology pediatrics, and family practice that come with M-CARE

Of course, you won't find the most important tool an M-CARE physician possesses in a medical bag. That's an ability to listen to you. Through simple conversation and a well-directed physical examination, a good doctor can get a very good picture of your health, confirm the need for specific tests, refer your care and treatment to a specialist, or give you the simple assurance that everything's going to be okay.

Even with the world-renowned U of M Medical Center at our disposal, a personal relationship with a highly knowledge able, compassionate and caring primary care physician is, perhaps, still the most impressive medical technology M-CARE

Ask your employer to include M-CARE among your health care options. For more information, please call (313) 747-8700.

Seed grew to Expo

dare say the night of the cocktail party is when the business dealings will take place."

To kick off the show the monthly Chamber business luncheon will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. May 6 at the college's 'Waterman Center. Wayne County executive Edward McNamara will speak on economic development in the county, White said.

Three hundred seats, priced at $10 each, are available for the lunch and guests will be able to take in the expo, which will open at 1:30 p.m., at the end of the meeting.

White has been promoting the expo ness and civic groups - and will use the chamber's monthly newsletter to promote it even more. The 4,000 businesses that call Livonia home will receive copies of the newsletter.

"WE WANT to get as many people as possible at the show," White said. White is optimistic about the show's

"The hardest sector to service is the manufacturers and this is somthing that will do something for them," he said. "My job is to make the chamber more visible and we can accomplish that a la the trade show."

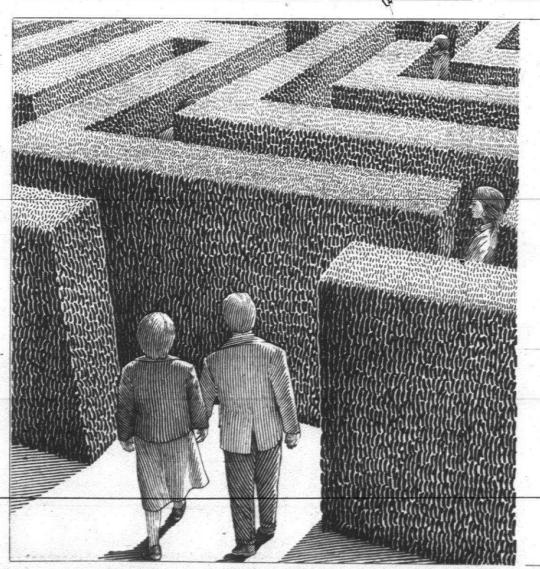

Serving Livonia and surrounding communities for over eighteen years, Dr. Clark and his staff from the Clark Dr. James A. Clark Chiropractic Center will be participating in the Greater Livonia Expo.

We will be performing spinal screening, giving demonstrations, and showing various procedures to everyone concerned, in regards to what signs to look for in detecting spinal curvature, (scoliosis), in their children and other members of their family

We invite you to stop by and visit our booth #605, at the Expo, and we will be glad to answer any questions that you may have, concerning the spinal column, the central nervous system, and how it relates to your overall health and happiness.

See you at the expo!

Chamber aims for more services

By Sue Mason staff writer

What does the Livonia Chamber of Commerce do for its members?

Plenty, according to executive director John White. But as he sees it. there's still more to be done.

The chamber provides members with a network - an opportunity to meet other members and find out what they do - through its monthly 5 p.m. connection, an after-hours business networking program, monthly membership luncheons, business helping business seminars, and legislative breakfasts, White said.

It also works on marketing the city and its business community to outsiders and on representing its members at the legislative level

"Many pay their dues and I provide the networking opportunities, but many don't attend," White said. "Still a lot of businesses join the chamber and look to it be their legislative voice.

"We have a good rapport with our legislators and I look to them to keep me, and in a sense the chamber, informed as to what has been introduced (in the Legislature), is it pro-business. is it anti-business and who will it affect The chamber is, in a sense, the lobbyist for the business community."

Its legislative influence is through the group's legislative and public affairs council, which reviews proposals and then lets local lawmakers know what it thinks, White said.

THE CHAMBER also offers assistance for businesses looking to expand, locate or relocate in Livonia as well as professional business assistance and advice through the Metro Region Business Alliance.

It provides communication with other businesses through its participation in the West Suburban Area Council of chambers of Western Wayne County.

There are 4,000 businesses in Livonia. Of that number, between 1,100 and 1,200 are chamber members. Many of those members — about 500 - have between one and five employees and can take advantage of low cost insurance through the chamber. White

The coverage available includes group hospitalization, health maintenance organization and Select Care, dependent's life insurance, dental insurance, short- and long-term disabili-

"Some insurance companies require at least one employees to get group rates. As a chamber we can offer the small employer the buying power of larger businesses," he said. "The small guy doesn't have the buying power of the big guy who can negotiate his own rates, so we provide that power.

But the services available through the chamber don't end there.

It publishes a community directory, an industrial and business related directory, a "Starting Your Own Business" booklet, economic development booklet and the Livonia chamber Communicator, its monthly business

THE BUSINESS directory has proven to a popular item with salesmen. The directory lists businesses in the community by categories and includes information like their addresses, number of employees and name of the chief operating officer. White said.

Its an instant resource guide for salesmen and sells for $25 a copy, he said.

Miscellaneous services include pressure-sensitive mailing labels and printouts on Livonia businesses, a greeter, service for new residents, a Customer Satisfaction Service similar to the Better Business Bureau, certificates of origin, solicitation permits, the Harris Michigan Industrial Directory and maps of Livonia, Michigan and the Huron Clinto Metroparks.

White has been the chamber's executive director for three years and admits that opportunities offered to members have doubled.

White sees tourism as a possibility for the city.

Granted Livonia isn't a tourist attraction, but White believes that it can capitalize on the tourist attractions around it, attractions like Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum in neighboring Dearborn.

He points to U.S. Chamber of Commerce statistics what 100 tourists a day can do for a city's economy.

ACCORDING TO the U.S. chamber, those tourists will increase a city's population by 459, add 140 new households, provide $78,000 in tax receipts or enough to support 156 school children, increase personal income by $777,000, bank deposits by $144,000 and retail sales by $1.12 million and create seven more retail outlets and 11 new industry-related jobs.

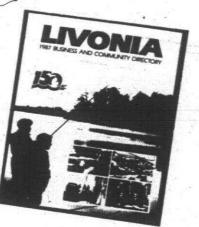

White has been lobbying to get tourism for the city and with the help of the Holiday Inn has landed the 1989 Knights of Columbus bowling tourna-

Five hundred bowlers will converge on the city over a 15-week period and White estimates it will pump $1 million into businesses' pockets.

The Livonia chamber is the sixth largest in the state and White would like to see it keep growing. The chamber has set a goal of 2,000 members by the year 2000 and has been making in-

In the last two years, 463 businesses have joined the chamber. But the flipside is that 320 have dropped their membership, leaving a net gain of 143 members. White said.

This year's goal is a net gain of 12: members and White believes that "if we can convince people we can do something for them, the more effective we'll be.

the criteria for the ideal marketing medium, you probably would fashion a trade, service or industrial show. • Prospects come to you. You don't - have to ferret out likely buyers and set appointments. They will seek you out. Often they will be people you don't know; or people you know but were unaware of their need for your product or

- In an exhibit you can control the environment. It's not someone else's office, plant or store. It's your territory which you can design to serve your needs.
- You can demonstrate product quality or superiority. You can create a laboratory to prove product strength, durability, flexibility, or special quality
- You can answer every question from a prospect because you have backup expertise right in your booth. The key sources of information in the company can be on hand.
- You can let the prospect touch the product, turn the dials, heft it, operate it, smell it, taste it (if it's edible), see it in a range of sizes or mod-

· You can have top company executives in attendance and introduce them to your prospect. "Let me introduce you to our chief engineer in charge of product quality," says the salesperson. "Meet our marketing vice president" or "Why not ask that question of the man who invented it?" What an impression a salesperson can make at an exhibit with the possibility of top company people on hand.

- You can show the product in operation (in most cases). Even if it needs special power, you can arrange for it. Even if it is huge or heavy, your salesperson has the real thing right there to show the prospect.
- You can provide samples of a piece of machinery's output. (The prospect can see it made and get the sample)
- You can dramatize your story, your message, through exhibit design by calling attention to significant points to reinforce the salesperson's presentation.
- You can use the exhibit as the start of a successful business relationship . . . invite the prospect to a follow-up breakfast, lunch, dinner or
