The Canton Connection

FOR MD: Canton's Pine Tree Plaza, on Joy between Hix and Haggerty, has scheduled a party to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA).

Attending the party will be Detroit's famous and nationally-known oldies band, Benny and the Jets, to perform the Gotta Dance Co. Superdance Marathon from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Aug. 29. Also appearing will be Michigan's Modern Miss of 1987, Maria Simos, who will join students in performing a dance routine.

Chris Formigan, owner of Soft Swirl Ice Cream, has set up an ice cream eating contest and involved teens in coordinating a Skate Board Expo. "These kids have strong, healthy muscles and really want to help those with muscular dystrophy," she says. "The Skate Board Expo offers them that opportunity. Some 20 teens have been practicing routines and will display their techniques for 15 minutes each hour."

Vawn Gray, chairwoman of the MDA Party and owner of Styling Gallery Hair Salon, says that "the merchants have all joined together to help Jerry's Kids. They'll be selling balloons, hot dogs, operating a dunk tank and making this a terrific party." On the day of the party, Gray will be cutting hair in a cut-a-thon with all proceeds going to the MDA. To promote the cut-a-thon, Gray recently gave a haircut to Tammy Groth who is the MDA Poster Child of Greater Detroit West.

SPEAKING OF MD: In another fund-raising effort for the MDA, Laura Fallon, sales supervisor for Omnicom, announces that current subscribers will be able to receive free installation of their choice of any premium channel for a donation of $5 to the MDA. With the $5 donation to muscular dystrophy, the customer will save $10 on the upgrade installation fee. For information call 459-8320.

Last year Omnicom also participated in the MDA campaign, donated to the Plymouth Salvation Army, and to soup kitchens in Hamtramck.

SCRAMBLES: Canton Chamber of Commerce will have its annual Scrambles golf outing Tuesday, Sept. 15, at Fellows Creek Golf Course on Lotz east of I-275 and Michigan Avenue in Canton.

Registration will be at 8 a.m. with a shotgun start at 8:30 a.m.

Companies wishing to sponsor four golfers may do so for $180, which includes 18 holes of golf for four, the sponsorship of a hole, cart, lunch, coffee and doughnuts prior to golf, trophies, beer and pop on golf course. A company may sponsor just a hole for $50. Sponsors must provide their own sign to be displayed at one of the teeing areas.

For individual golfers the fee is $45 per person for 18 holes of golf, cart, lunch, coffee and doughnuts, trophies, prizes, beer and pop. Registration for lunch only is available at $15. Foursomes should be four men, four women, or two men and two women as other combinations will not be eligible for prizes.

Trophies will be awarded to first and second place women's, first and second place men's, first and second place mixed, closest to the pin men and women, and longest drive men and women. For information, call the Chamber at 453-4040.

BUS SAFETY: Some 250 bus drivers from Wayne County participated yesterday in an advanced school bus safety program from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Plymouth Salem High School.

Canton to hire superintendent

By Diane Gale
staff writer

It finally happened — Canton will hire a superintendent and make the clerk and treasurer posts part-time.

These changes come on the heels of trustee disputes about whether to hold a special election asking for advisory votes on the issues.

The superintendent, a professional manager appointed by the board, will handle the day to day responsibilities of the township now done by the supervisor.

Supervisor James Poole, clerk Linda Chuhran and treasurer Gerald Brown were against the proposals presented by trustee Bob Padget at Tuesday's board meeting. Trustees Steve Larson, Loren Bennett, John Preniczky and Padget voted in favor.

"They've decided this would be a takeover power plan to eliminate the elected officials out of their hair so they could take over," Chuhran said. "These jobs require more than 40 hours, and Gerry and I know that."

CHUHRAN, POOLE AND BROWN said the vote wouldn't be the end of the issue.

"I don't think the people are going to stand for this," Poole said. "This is the first step of a small elite group of people stealing the government. It makes no difference to me if I'm full or part time, I'm still going to rock some cages. I'm going to fight for things like road paving and senior citizens projects."

After debate about the changes, trustees approved a Chuhran proposal asking the merit commission to review trustees' pay — $100 for board meetings and $100 for all special meetings, which they call. Brown voted against this change.

Padget's proposal calls for hiring assistants in the clerk's and treasurer's departments and cutting the salaries of elected officials. The clerk and treasurer earn $33,000 annually and the supervisor earns $36,000.

Salaries for the elected officials would not change until their terms expire after the November 1988 election.

Brown and Chuhran argued their positions are full-time jobs with a lot of responsibilities. Padget agreed. However, he said many of those duties could be delegated to other people.

"Fortunately this can all be undone if you do this and you discover in a year from now" that it doesn't work, Brown said.

Padget's resolution calls for a committee comprised of Ted Grabbe, Phil LaJoy and Padget to work with Dan Durack, personnel director, on hiring the superintendent.

Some think the superintendent could be hired within eight months. LaJoy, a merit commissioner, earlier worked on a committee studying the strong manager format and Ted Grabbe sat on a Canton committee reviewing cityhood.

Previous plans to hold a special election asking residents advisory questions on these changes were rejected after a state attorney general opinion and court rulings indicated it would be illegal to put the issues on the ballot.

But Poole said, "I still think this should go to the people and it should go on the ballot in 1988."

Canton resident Carlie McDonald Tuesday said: "You (trustees) don't feel the people in the community can do a good job in electing officials. They (people in the appointed positions) are going to be paid employees subject to the board's wishes and not the peoples' decision."

Steve Kagowski talks about his experiences as a cabbie in the Plymouth-Canton community.

Driving ambition is a joy

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Steve Kagowski drives a 1981 Impala with 398,000 miles on it.

He's gone through four motors and two transmissions. On an average day, he uses a tank and a half of gas. In a year, he goes through two or three sets of tires, driving about 80,000 miles.

He's blown engines on the freeway and in intersections. He drives 12 hours a day, often seven days a week, and gets paid for it.

His boss is unlikely ever to hear him say, "Take this job and shove it."

"You meet all kinds of people from every walk of life. It's a fun job," said Kagowski, who covers Canton, Plymouth, Farmington, Garden City and Westland for Plymouth Cab Co.

"You don't have anyone breathing down your neck, and you don't have to punch a clock."

KAGOWSKI HARDLY fits the image of the stereotypical cigar-chomping, bearded, gruff and grimy cabbie.

The personable, well-dressed driver of Cab 467 knows most of his regular customers by their first names, or at least by their nicknames.

"467 loaded" radios Kagowski to the dispatcher.

Cab 467 is "loaded" with "Oregon man" — and Kagowski knows without asking where he's going — from Oregon Street to the Plymouth Elks Club.

"A lot of times, you don't even put the meter on. You both know what it's going to be," said Kagowski, who keeps family photos on the dash and street atlases on the seat.

The pictures are "good conversation starters" but, often, Kagowski doesn't need them. A majority of his customers are senior citizens who make regular trips to K mart, the Cloverdale dairy, or to doctors' offices.

people

"Seniors are a lot of fun. They talk to you, remember who you are and things about your personal life," said Kagowski, a Garden City resident.

KAGOWSKI IS on a first-name basis with a number of handicapped people as well.

"There's a disabled student I pick up every day. His name is Scotty and he's confined to a wheelchair. He can't move at all. I joke around with him and get him to laugh and smile. There's a girl in Northville who's in a brace that I drive . . . you get to see a lot, all types of life.

Classes start up next week

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Classes resume next week in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Some students might say that summer vacation was too short. Many parents probably would disagree.

Regardless, it soon will be time to get back to the formal business of learning.

Teachers in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are to report Monday.

Tuesday is opening day for most students. Time for a fresh start, the opportunity to see old friends and make new ones.

Students in grades one through 12 are to show up for a half day of orientation on Tuesday. Wednesday is the first full day of classes.

Kindergarteners will start Wednesday.

BUSES WILL RUN Tuesday according to regular morning schedules. Students in grades K-2 who live at least one mile from school are eligible for busing. The criterion is 1½ miles for everyone else.

Special transportation needs are considered on an individual basis.

Lunches may be purchased Wednesday. The cost is the same as last year — $1 for elementary students, $1.35 for those in middle school or high school. Milk, included in a purchased lunch, also is available as a separate item for 25 cents.

Discount weekly lunch tickets — $6 — are available for secondary students.

Children also may bring their lunches.

DESPITE SOME protestations to the contrary, students, parents and staff generally have a good feeling at the start of another school year.

"This is an exciting time to be in education because of the knowledge we currently have about learning," said Richard Egli, administrative assistant for community relations.

String program feared in danger

By Susan Buck
staff writer

The state of the string instructional program in the Plymouth-Canton school district has some people singing the blues.

In a letter to the newspaper, Janita Hauk, a former string instructor for the district and a former resident of Plymouth for 17 years, said that she is very concerned that the string program is in what she terms a "phase-out" mode.

Hauk taught beginning string players for one hour daily last year but had to reluctantly retire at year's end due to her husband's ill health. The Hauks are now living in Canada.

"Our beginning string program has gone from over 150 beginning strings in 1981 to 16 in 1987. Decisions which have been made over the last six years have caused the program to be taken out of the elementary and middle schools where it can have visibility and the ability to generate itself.

"The task at hand is to guide school administrators, school board members and the general public to recognize that the arts are not frills but are necessary to the cognitive, psychomotor and effective development of children."

Substitutes given pay raise

Pay for substitute teachers in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools this year will rise to $48 from $45 per day.

Administrators proposed the increase to keep the district competitive with surrounding school districts.

Plymouth-Canton last year spent about $315,000 for substitute teachers, said Superintendent John M. Hoben. The raise is expected to cost an additional $25,000 this year.

"What we're trying to do is stay competitive to get subs and quality subs," said Norm Kee, assistant superintendent for personnel. "Even $5 a day makes a difference when you're subbing."

Last year, substitutes were paid at a daily rate of $42 in the Livonia School District, $43 in Northville, $45 in Ann Arbor and $46 in Wayne/Westland, Kee said.

Teacher certification is required to substitute here. The district maintains a list of several hundred substitutes.

KEE SAID he doesn't believe that teacher absenteeism is excessive in the district.

On average, 35-40 of the 800 permanent teachers here are absent on a given day, he said. Occasionally, with flu epidemics and in-service training, up to 100 can be absent.

Long-term disability, such as maternity leaves, also can run up the substitute teacher bill. Substitutes earn $53 per day after 10 days in the same assignment.

"Our illness rate is quite good," Kee said, basing that opinion on conversations with administrators from neighboring districts.

Local absences are reported and substitutes found through a central telephone number at the central administrative offices. Efforts are made to accommodate requests of principals and prospective subs.

"Some do it because they figure it's an opportunity to get employment," Kee said. "Others have trained and, although they can't do it full-time for one reason or another, they want to keep at it."

An annual workshop for substitute teachers sponsored by the district was held earlier this week. The focus was discipline.

Some fear district's string program at risk

HAUK, A FORMER conductor of the Livonia Youth Symphony, said that although she left the area, she continues to worry about the fate of the string program.

For 17 seasons, she performed as a first violinist with the Plymouth Symphony and was a member of the Plymouth String Trio.

"There are so few parents involved in the string program that there are not enough people to get out and bat for it," she said.

"When something is spiraling down, it just continues. There were 150-180 beginning students in 1981. There seems to be no top priority in saving this program."

Hauk said that the string program encountered logistic and time problems three years ago when middle school students who were enrolled in the string program were bused to Plymouth Canton High School an hour before their regular classes. They board the bus about 6:30 a.m. and ride the bus with high school students, arousing some parental concern.

"It's going to be devastating," said Ruth Habel in discussing how her son, Christian, a Central Middle School sixth grader, will have to board the high school bus to Centennial Educational Park at 6:30 a.m.

"He will be dropped off at Salem High School and will have to walk clear across the field to Canton High School. It's almost as if the school district is trying to be difficult.

"And then, the students are 15 to 20 minutes late to their first class at middle school. The school district will say that isn't true but if you talk to any parent, you will find it is."

KENT BUIKEMA, executive director of secondary education, said that in some instances last year students may have been 10 minutes late.

Students can circumvent the problem by a change in class scheduling like taking a study hall first hour instead, he said.

Habel added that some parents suggested after-school classes.

With Hauk's departure, Michael Endres, the only remaining full-time string teacher, has total responsibility for the program.

Endres, who has taught 24 years in the Plymouth-Canton school district and is CEP orchestra director, said that over the last 10 years the administration has changed its approach regarding string instruction at the middle school.

Whereas band instruction is given at the home middle school, string students must be bused to CEP where he is located, Endres said.

Despite the inconvenience and small size of the orchestra, Endres said that his string students continue to earn high ratings in district competitions.

Although beginning string instruction is offered first in the sixth grade, Endres said statistics support the fact that students are more developmentally ready at grade five, or better yet, at grade four to begin string instruction.

"Inconsistency in the starting age in this district has not helped."

IN FEBRUARY, Clara Camp, then president of the Plymouth Symphony, said in a letter to the school board:

"There are currently only 52 students in grades 6 through 12 that are participating . . . Contrast this with the Livonia program that instructs over 400 students in grades 5-12."

Dick Holt, Plymouth Symphony vice president, said that he met with Buikema and Dr. Michael Homes, assistant superintendent of instruction, last spring to complain about the program's time and transportation drawbacks.

Buikema said that this year 35 students in the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth grades have indicated an interest in beginning string instruction.

"Last year we ended up with 16 beginning students," said Buikema.

Endres said that Buikema has been supportive and last year cooperated in transporting the district's fifth graders to CEP for a special concert program, assisted by Hauk, to inform the students about the string program.

Music lessons called valuable

By Susan Buck
staff writer

In an age when 25 percent of America's symphony orchestras are reporting declining audiences, studies show that there is a positive relationship between the symphony audience and the state of music education in the schools.

Achieving a student's education potential involves more than learning the three R's.

Learning to play an instrument allows a student to express himself creatively, develops self-discipline over a period of time, and fine tunes a child's auditory, visual and fine motor skills.

Both Janita Hauk and Dick Holt say that statistics show 3 percent of wind instrument musicians and 30 percent of string instrument musicians continue to play their instruments after they leave high school.

When a child learns to play an instrument, he acquires a way to make creative use of his leisure time and provides a social outlet that may affect his life style later on.

The benefits of musical instruction are further documented. In an article "Does Playing a Musical Instrument Make a Child Smarter?" Wendell Harrison, a former public school music teacher and president of the Wendell Harrison Music Corp. in Rochester, N.Y., writes: "While once it was said that smart kids are in the band or orchestra, for sometime now, neurologists have been finding that the kids are smart because they are in the band or orchestra.

"Recently a series of comprehensive skills tests was run on 5,154 fifth-graders in all of Albuquerque's 75 elementary schools. In every single test area, kids who were learning to play an instrument and were participating in the school band or orchestra received higher marks than their classmates.

"Not only that, but the longer the school children had been in instrumental programs, the higher they scored."

New school year starting up soon

"We now can have a greater impact on a student's learning ability than we ever had before," he added. "It's a time teachers really look forward to sharing with children."

Sharon Paul, a nine-year veteran, will be teaching fifth grade this year at Isbister Elementary School. She still loves her job.

"I start thinking about school a month ahead of time," Paul said. "I read things about imagery, positive thinking. I have to have them feeling good about themselves before they open up and learn.

"My main goal, I think, is to make school fun," she said. "It's never boring. Every year is completely different. That's why I think we look forward to it."

JOHN DENNISON, 23, will have a permanent teaching job for the first time this fall. He will teach English and speech at Plymouth Salem High School.

Dennison graduated from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, student taught here, and last year was a substitute teacher in the district.

"It's going to be a challenge, a lot of work," he said. "It will be fun putting into practice what I've learned.

"One of the things I'd like to do is make kids want to learn, enjoy learning."

Don't despair, kids, about the early start.

You get a break Sept. 7 for Labor Day. Christmas recess is Dec. 19 to Jan. 3, mid-winter break Feb. 13-21, spring break April 1-10 and summer dismissal June 16.

Hines Park fun sun days keep rollin'

Summer may be winding down but there's still plenty of warm-weather activities to be enjoyed in Hines Park.

In fact, some of the park's busiest Saturdays are yet to come. Upcoming events range from a diaper derby to a marathon training run.

Saturday is the WNIC/Wayne County Parks $100,000 Family Free Day. Events will include a beach volleyball demonstration, power-tanning contest, diaper derby, toddler trot, big-wheel grand prix and parade at the Nankin Mills Picnic area on Ann Arbor Trail and Hines Drive.

The grand prize winner of WNIC's secret slogan contest will be selected from among some 300 entries. Winner of the power-tanning contest will receive an all-expense-paid trip for two to Acapulco.

A DIAPER DERBY will start at 12:30 p.m. followed by a toddler trot for those age 2 and under at 12:45. A Big Wheel grand prix is scheduled for kids of all ages at 1 p.m. (youngsters will be divided into divisions by ages). A parade at 1:30 p.m. will feature WNIC disc jockey Jim Harper and his kazoo band and the Fred Hill Haberdasher Precision Briefcase Drill Team.

The $100,000 drawing will be held at 2:30 p.m. Beach volleyball demonstrations will begin at 11 a.m. and continue throughout the day.

If it rains, all activities will be held Sunday.

On Sept. 5, the parks department will host the Gone Fishing Contest 7-10 p.m. at Newburgh Lake. Grandparents and their grandchildren may participate in the derby, which celebrates grandparents day. Prizes will be awarded. Registration will be accepted the day of the derby or in advance by calling 261-1990.

Farther east along the parkway at the Nankin Mills site, the Westland Sesquicentennial Commitee will feature a two-day celebration featuring a variety of picnics, a parade, five-mile run and square dancing.

On Sept. 12 the March of Dimes will hold a bike race in the park. On that same day Parent to Parent for Prevention, a Livonia-based drug prevention group will hold a rally for parents and students at the Nankin Mills Picnic site.

On Sept. 19 the Livonia Family YMCA will host a 10K run at 9 a.m. at Nankin Mills. At noon that day farther east at Merriman Hollow, the Wayne-Westland Special Olympics will hold a bikeathon fund-raiser.

On Sept. 26, a 20-mile marathon training run will be held. On that day the park will be closed from Outer Drive to Haggerty Road to accommodate the runners. The area from Ann Arbor Trail to Haggerty will be closed until noon.

On that same day, St. Jude's Research Hospital will hold a bikeathon from noon to 3 p.m. at Helm's Haven on Hines Drive, east of Telegraph.

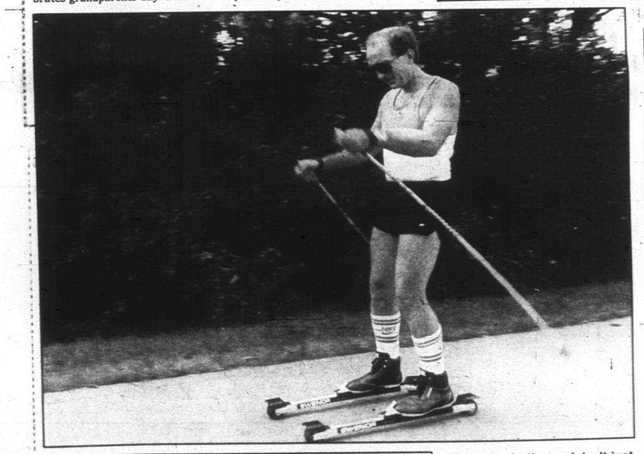
On Oct. 9 the parks department will host nursery school olympics for 3- and 4-year-olds at the Warrendale Picnic site on Hines Drive, east of Telegraph. Youngsters will compete in marshmallow shot-put, paper-plate discus and miniature-miniature golf events.

For more information on any of the events, call Vic Chiasson at the parks department, 261-1990.

The DeMatteis family of Livonia are regular bikers on Saturdays along Hines Drive. Family members include (from left) Cindy, 4; Steven, 6; Jason, 8, and mom, Debbie. Michal DeMatteis, 10, (not pictured) is another family regular, but he was home last Saturday with the flu.

Carl Rellinger of Westland (left) lends a hand to his friend John Cummings of Livonia who was busy adjusting his brakes. Cummings said he let his brother ride the bike to work and he didn't maintain it. Cummings had to make some emergency adjustments on Hines Drive just east of Middlebelt before continuing his ride last Saturday.

Staff photos by Steve Fecht



Saturday in the park isn't just for bicycle riders and joggers. Gene Van Gemert of Livonia (above) takes advantage of the carless parkway to train for cross country skiing. Gemert said he hopes to compete nationally in the sport this winter. And while Gemert was busy training, Chuck Feighner of Dearborn Heights (below) was taking a breather on a picnic table behind Perrin Field on Hines Drives just west of Middlebelt. Hines Drive will be closed to motorists from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturdays through September.

Employees back on job

Employees of the Farmer Jack store on Main Street in Plymouth this week were back on the job, stocking shelves and ringing up sales, after ratifying a four-year labor agreement on Sunday.

"I guess the big thing is people found out they didn't like striking," said Shelby Powers, an employee and union steward for the United Food and Commercial Workers.

"As long as they got job security, they wouldn't complain about the other stuff," Powers added.

Full-time employees won't be bumped to part-time status, if necessary, to enable the company to reach a 50-50 ratio between full-timers and part-timers for two years.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS of the contract include:

- A job buyout provision this year in which senior full-time employees can receive cash settlements from $18,000 to $12,000 and part-timers from $5,500 to $4,500 for resigning.

The figures are half as large for accepting the buy out option in 1988.

- Bonuses totalling $3,200 for department heads, $2,800 for senior cashiers/clerks and $1,400 for part-timers over a four-year period instead of pay increases.
- Restoration of lost vacation time and personal days.
- Increased company contribution for health insurance premiums.
- A starting wage of $4.50 per hour for new cashier/clerk hires and a maximum work week of 28 hours.

ONLY ONE person in the Plymouth store has talked about accepting the buy out offer, Powers said, and she had been thinking about retiring anyway.

"To a degree, I think full-timers have better security now," he added.

The union hopes that enough employees will accept the buy outs and enough part-timers will be added with store openings during the next couple of years so that all current full-timers can maintain their status.

Powers said he was surprised by the support shown by shoppers in the community during the strike.

"This is a friendly store. We know people here almost by name. All our customers told us before we went on strike they wouldn't shop here. Most have been back the last two days."

Skeleton crews were working this week to restock the store. Everyone expects to be back on normal schedules next week, Powers said.

Man charged in abduction

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A 36-year-old Detroit man was arraigned Wednesday on one armed robbery charge in connection with an armed robbery and abduction case in Canton.

Walter Thomas Stempniewski also is linked to similar offenses in 10 communities including Livonia, Westland and Garden City.

A plea of not guilty was entered by 35th District Court Judge James Garber, who set bond at $100,000 cash. A preliminary examination is scheduled for 10 a.m. Sept. 4.

Canton police sought a warrant for abduction and armed robbery charges, according to Dave Boljesic, Canton police information officer. However, the abduction charge was denied by the Wayne County Prosecutor's office.

Stempniewski was arrested Aug. 21 after Canton police contacted other departments about a robbery and abduction of a 19-year-old woman and the 9-year-old girl she was baby-sitting.

They were getting in their car from Canton's K mart parking lot Aug. 21 when a man pushed his way in and threatened them with a knife, Boljesic said. When the woman apparently irritated the assailant by asking too many questions he threatened to kill the girl if she didn't shut up.

THE MAN STOLE the woman's purse containing a pay envelope and forced her to drive to Detroit where he drove off, Boljesic said. No one was injured during the 45-minute ordeal.

Coincidentally, officers in other communities were meeting to discuss similarities in abduction/robbery cases the day of the Canton incident.

Information from the Canton victim and officers in that meeting led police to Stempniewski, Boljesic said.

A lineup was held Aug. 25, Stempniewski's birthday. Victims from seven of 10 communities identified him as the perpetrator in similar offenses, Boljesic said.

Victims viewing the lineup were from Canton, Westland, Garden City, Livonia, Melvindale, Wayne, Taylor, Dearborn, Lincoln Park and Southgate. Stempniewski is expected to be arraigned in many of these communities.

Stempniewski was held in the Canton jail until the arraignment. He failed to post bond Wednesday afternoon and was expected to be taken to the Wayne County Jail later in the day.

"You've got to have a lot of understanding sometimes."

In an hour's time Monday, Kagowski takes an elderly woman from her convalescent home to a senior citizen complex to visit a friend; a teen smelling of aftershave to Wonderland Mall; a senior citizen to the VFW hall to play Bingo; a man from St. Mary Hospital to his Plymouth residence; and the Oregon man to the Elks.

Some rides aren't as routine.

"I remember one guy I picked up at Livonia Mall. He wanted to go all the way to Taylor. Well, he hung his head out the window the whole time, yelling at girls. I asked him to cut it out, but he wouldn't. It was embarrassing, but kind of comical in a way.

Parks chief glad despite budget woes

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

'When I came here, it was with the intention of improving the quality of life in Wayne County. I don't feel I've failed. The quality of life is better. But I've gone as far as I can as an administrator. I need more support. People (in county government) need to realize what the park system has to offer.'

—Eric Reickel, parks chief

When R. Eric Reickel was wooed by William Lucas in 1984 to head the Wayne County Department of Parks and Recreation, he had hopes of a $7-million or $8-million budget by now. Instead, his first budget of $2.5 million has suffered through two five-percent cuts since than and is projected at just $2.28 million for 1988.

There is a hiring freeze in effect and his staff has fallen from 48 to 44. Facilities like picnic tables, park benches and trash barrels remain woefully inadequate for the 4,200-acre parks system.

Consider: In 1962, the park system had 4,000 picnic tables. Today it has 550. Then, it had 900 park benches. Today, there are none. Then, there were 2,000 trash barrels. Today, there are 100.

Yet Reickel, who had a budget of nearly $8 million when he headed the Oakland County Department of Parks and Recreation, said he is glad he left his old position for his current post and would do it over again.

Area officials and park users say that under him, the parks are cleaner than they were in the early 80s. The restrooms are again usable, rowdyism in the parks (particularly Hines) no longer makes headlines, and innovative new programs (such as closing Hines Drive to traffic on Saturdays) have drawn rave reviews and big crowds.

PART OF THE REASON is his workforce. "I've had five assignments in 26 years and I wouldn't trade my full-time people for those anywhere I've worked. And I'm not just blowing smoke," said Reickel.

Part of the reason is he is still sure he is the right person to bring the park system back to past respectability and to the point where it was decades ago as one of the best park systems in the nation.

A major reason he has no regrets is that he is a Wayne County native, remembers the park system fondly and is still eager to keep things moving forward, budget or not.

"Hindsight is 20-20," said Reickel. "When I came here, it was with the intention of improving the quality of life in Wayne County. I don't feel I've failed. The quality of life is better. But I've gone as far as I can as an administrator. I need more support. People (in county government) need to realize what the park system has to offer.

"But I don't regret the move. No way. I was right to leave Oakland County and to come here. I only hope I'll be able to continue what I started here."

Reickel said Lucas told him a millage for the parks was a possibility. The current administration is dead set against a millage.

"(Edward) McNamara's record in Livonia proves he is very pro parks. Yet his hands are tied because of the budget," said Reickel. "The present administration isn't interested in a millage, though I still think we need an outside source of funding.

"Mr. McNamara has been very upfront with me. We have to hang in there until we get caught up on the budget. When we do, we'll go full speed ahead toward making the county what it should be. ... My peers in the state and across the country find this hard to believe, but I'd rather be here in Wayne County than anywhere else in the country."

DON'T MISTAKE Reickel's willingness to be a team player for complacency. "This is a hold-your-own department. That's very frustrating," he said. "I'm not a caretaker. I was never meant to be and I'm having a problem dealing with it personally."

Yet, slowly, things continue to improve in the parks.

Reickel credits his director of recreation, Vic Chiasson, with many of the program improvements. Hines Drive is closed to traffic on Saturday mornings six months a year and is filled then with runners, bikers and picnickers.

In Hines Park, company picnics are up substantially. Last weekend there was a horse rally by the sheriff's department. This weekend there will be a power-tanning competition as part of a $100,000 give-away promotion by radio station WNIC.

Two beach volleyball courts are under construction across from Nankin Mills, and in late September, 1,000 runners will run 20 miles in the park as part of their training program for the Free Press International Marathon. And a new 18-hole golf course will be built soon in western Wayne County.

"There's continually more and more activities, but this is where we get 2 of Catch 22," said Reickel, who believes his budget should be at least $5 million. "We've attracted more people, but that generates more garbage and the need for more comfort stations. I tell you one minute that we don't have any money to do things; then I tell you the next about all the things we're doing.

"I'd like to have the road shoulders groomed once a week. I'd like more picnic tables and more comfort stations. But it's a hell of a lot better than it was three years ago. There's no question about it."

Parks system's future debated

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County's park system needs money, a recent task force report said, but how much it intends to raise could determine park use for decades to come.

A first-ever park tax, user fees and park entry fees are among the fund-raising ideas suggested by the county's special parks task force.

"Quite frankly the county parks system needs money to bring it up to par," Livonia parks director Ronald Reinke said.

Other officials said the financing debate will seal the parks' fate as active or passive recreation units.

"The question is always what to do about the parks," county commissioner Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, said. "Should they be places where you have softball diamonds or just places you walk through?"

There currently isn't a county parks tax. The parks system competes with other county departments for shrinking transfers from the county's general operating budget.

"WHEN THE general fund gets squeezed, the parks feel the pinch," said Reinke, a task force member.

But while no one wants to return to the overgrown lawns and youth gangs of several years ago, not everyone is happy with all task force recommendations.

"I think they're going to have a hard time selling a parks millage," Heintz said. "I think that's especially true in western Wayne. Here, people like to take a good, long look at tax increases."

Heintz, who represents Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Livonia, served as task force chairwoman last year before being elected to the county commission.

Likewise, a recommendation that would transfer two county parks to Redford Township is considered a mixed blessing by township officials.

"We've been interested in Bell Creek for years, but we aren't interested in Lola Valley at all," Supervisor James Kelly said. "Bell Creek is flatter, more similar to the kind of parks we already have. We don't have the equipment to handle a hillier park like Lola Valley."

Bell Creek, in the Inkster Road/Five Mile area and Lola Valley, on a winding flood plain between Five and Six Mile roads, are both recommended for transfer.

County park use has been up in past years, after an early 1980s low because of unkempt fields and teen cruising.

"I know I've talked to several people who said they've just gone back to using the parks," said Westland Department of Public Service director Ralph Tack, also a task force member. "And there's a good, professional staff out there that's bringing the people back."

Local officials said they didn't see their parks competing for use with county parks.

"I don't see them as a competitor at all," Reinke said. "They have things we don't. They have bike trails and the ability to close the park just for riders. They also have a lake system for inland fishing. We simply can't provide those kind of things."

But there are indications that not all suggestions carry the same weight, even among task force members.

"As far as charging tolls to enter parks, I don't think that's possible on Hines Drive," Reinke said. "There's just too many entrances."

THE TASK FORCE report estimated Hines Park toll gates could add as much as $200,000 annually to the park system. Entrance fees at Elizabeth park, Trenton, were estimated to add another $75,000.

Additional long-term sources such as golf courses and wave pools should also be considered, he added.

"The golf courses are a big revenue producer for us in Livonia," Reinke said.

The county department of parks and recreation recently announced plans for a new 18-hole county golf course between Inkster and Middlebelt roads, north of Michigan Avenue.

Task force members estimated it would take $20-$25 million to renovate county parks.

County parks listed

Wayne County operates eight park areas. They include:

Middle Rouge Parkway, a winding 17½-mile parkway that includes nine miles of bike trails along Edward Hines Drive. The parkway stretches from Northville, just north of Seven Mile to Michigan Avenue in Dearborn Heights. It includes 27 softball diamonds, six baseball diamonds, five soccer fields, 16 tennis courts and four fishing lakes — Wilcox and Phoenix in Plymouth Township, Newburgh and Nankin in Livonia. It also includes two toboggan runs.

Lower Rouge Parkway, additional open space along Michigan Avenue. The Lower Rouge includes four softball diamonds, two baseball diamonds, a soccer field, tennis courts and a nature trail. The parkway stretches from Canton Center Road, Canton Township to Oakwood Boulevard, Dearborn Heights.

Bell Creek Park, a Redford Township site including two softball diamonds, a baseball diamond and four tennis courts.

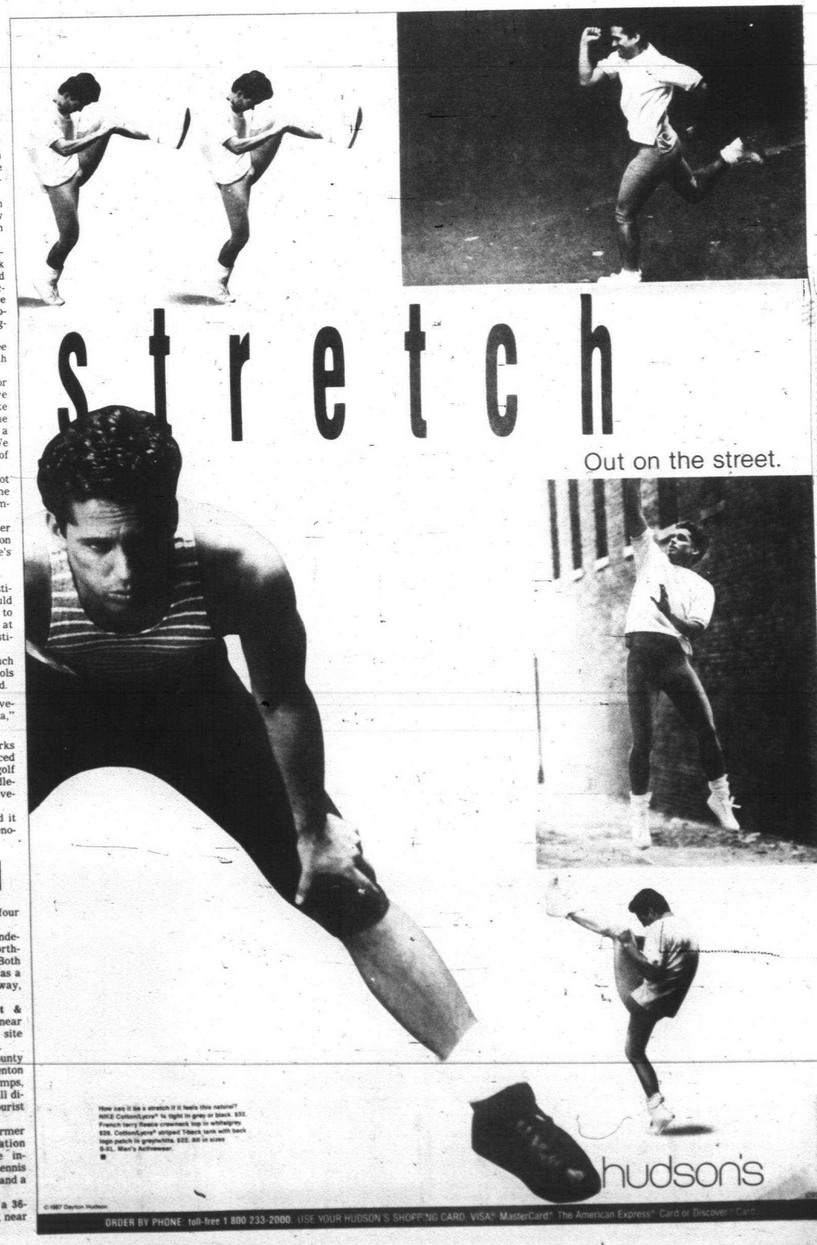
Lola Valley Park, a winding, undeveloped area less than a mile northeast of the Bell Creek site. Both parks were once to have served as a northern Rouge River parkway, county officials said.

William P. Holliday Forest & Wildlife Preserve, 500 acres near Tonquish Creek, Westland. The site includes 12 miles of hiking trails.

Elizabeth Park, the oldest county park dating from 1919. The Trenton site includes boat launching ramps, two softball diamonds, a baseball diamond, four tennis courts, a tourist lodge and a speed skating rink.

Veterans Memorial Park, a former Works Progress Administration project, the Hamtramck site includes a sports stadium, six tennis courts, three softball diamonds and a baseball diamond.

Warren Valley Golf Course, a 36-hole course on Warren Avenue, near Telegraph, Dearborn Heights.



Swings, songs, sharing significant for child

(The author of this five-part series, Peggy Price Heiney of Plymouth, is a teacher for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools who has taught kindergarten for 25 years. A teacher at Bird Elementary, she earned her bachelor's degree at Michigan State University, master of arts at Eastern Michigan University, and a specialty in early childhood education from EMU.

The series, particularly helpful for parents of small children, suggests ways of creating a less stressful existence for children in today's world.)

(Part III)

Whether at home watching my own children and their friends in past years, or watching kindergarteners on the playground, past and present, I don't think I have ever seen children happier or more at ease than while swinging.

Up and down, up and down, sometimes trying to go higher than anyone else, sometimes simply shutting out the world around them; this is the place one sees the most smiles during play.

Simple swings can be constructed with rope and tire or rope and board. In fact, these seem to be the envy of those who do not have them as the child can go higher and whirl around faster than on most swing sets. You must, of course, have, for this type, a suitable tree or wooden structure from which to hang the rope.

Ordinary swing sets serve the same purpose; a place where children can take time to think, to dream and to sing or chant (one can often hear them singing or chanting rhymes to the rhythm of the swing).

ART, DRAMA AND MUSIC as well as having aesthetic value for children, play an important role as stress relievers. They serve to calm the aggressive, bring out the shy and provide a happy atmosphere for all.

I have many times, seen a little face light up during the singing of a favorite song. I have also witnessed a bully being calmed by the singing of his favorite song.

Singing to your child in early infancy and with him later on can help to establish a closeness, one he can think about during the times he has to be away from you during the day or evening hours.

Taking your children to free concerts in the park during the summer months is an invaluable experience. They can sit, lie or move about while they are listening to the music.

Many types of musical recordings for young children are available in stores and in libraries. I often use classical selections in the kindergarten (those geared to the listening pleasure of the young child). I play them during snack and relaxation time and sometimes even as background music for work or play activities. The children love the recordings and will often remind me to "put them on."

What a pleasant way to relax children at bedtime, also; to allow them to listen to a favorite selection for a few minutes, before going to sleep. It is an especially good substitute for a parent who can't always take the time to sit with, read to, or just have a short talk with the child, while tucking him in.

Certainly better than using an "anti-demon and monster spray" I recently saw advertised in a magazine (yes, believe it) as "an aid to parents who can't get their kids to fall asleep." This green-apple scented spray is supposed to last two hours, according to the advertiser, "long enough for a frightened child to fall asleep."

How fortunate are the children who have parents who will sit with them for a few minutes at bedtime, listening to the telling of an important day's activity, reading them a story (or a part of one, to be continued), or simply enjoying with them, a favorite recording.

I know personally, how much children enjoy music and drama when young men and women come back to talk with me about their role in the kindergarten operetta (some telling me that they still have part of the costume stashed away somewhere).

This past spring some tender and nostalgic memories were enjoyed by my first Cinderella (1975), and me, when she returned to her kindergarten room to see "Cinderella 1987." After the performance, we hugged, shed some tears, then had cookies and lemonade, just as we had 12 years before.

THE CARING FOR a pet should be a part of a child's life. To love and care for a live animal is a happy way to learn responsibility and is a great stress reliever.

For several years we had Bernard, a lovable Basset hound who followed our boys everywhere he could, lavishing them with affections. He would run to the fence, wagging his tail and whimpering until he saw his own children (sometimes at an incredible distance).

He was a pillow by the fireplace, a play companion for not only our own but for all of the children in the neighborhood, and someone to hug when troubled. He was always there for them and that was important.

Children who are very allergic to certain pets could have other types to care for, which would not bother their allergies. Even though these usually cannot be hugged, they are still living creatures and something to care and be responsible for.

ONE WINTER, I conducted a survey among my kindergarten parents, concerning the effects of T.V. on the young child.

I asked the parents if they would give me their point of view on the following questions:

(1) Do you influence your child's T.V. viewing? If so, in what way?

(2) Do you feel there is too much T.V. violence during children's viewing hours? If so, have you ever written a letter of protest to a network of local channel?

(3) Do you feel that T.V. programs affect your child's behavior? If so, in what way?

(4) Do you feel T.V. has created a "consumption environment" for your child? If so, in what way?

All stated that they influenced their children's viewing in one way or another; most, in amount of viewing time and types of programs viewed.

The answers to the questions concerning T.V. violence during children's viewing hours were, interestingly enough, divided almost in half, with more feeling that there was too much violence. Some had written or called local channels and several had simply turned the set off, in protest.

The majority felt that T.V. programs did affect the child's behavior. Some stated that T.V. increased vocabulary and made the child more aware of his or her environment.

Clerk attacked

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A man described as in his late 30s attacked a clerk at Quik Pik in Canton early this week.

The man was walking across the parking area of the party store on Joy about 4:30 a.m. Aug. 24, a Canton Police report said. She said he was nude except for shoes, socks and a white jersey.

The man apparently was masturbating as he was walking. The clerk tried to lock the door but the man pushed it open, a police report said. He pushed the clerk against a counter and spoke obscenities.

WHEN THE CLERK told the man the manager was in the back room he ran eastbound into a nearby woods. Before leaving, he wiped the door, window and door handle.

The man had a bushy mustache, a one or two day beard, about 5 feet 6 inches tall, 135 pounds, reddish hair and blue eyes.

The clerk suffered a three-inch scrape on her wrist, the report said.

Anyone with information about the case is asked to Canton Police at 397-3000.

In a separate incident, two Canton men were arrested for drug charges at 1:40 a.m. Aug. 21.

Canton officers working on surveillance for another case, saw two "suspicious" men standing by an occupied car, according to Dave Boljesic, Canton Police information officer.

When the officers approached to ask for identification, they saw one of the men throw something to the ground.

POLICE CONFISCATED an undetermined amount of cocaine.

Bryan Macek, 19, of Canton was charged with possession with intent to deliver and Michael Pilley, 18, of Canton was charged with one count of possession of narcotics. The first charge is a felony that carries up to 20 years in prison and the later is a felony that carries up to four years in prison.

Both men were arraigned in Westland's Out Wayne County Circuit Court before Judge Michael Russell of 24th District Court.

Russell entered a plea of not guilty for each. Bond was set at $1,500, Boljesic said.

A preliminary examination to determine if there's enough evidence to hold a trial is scheduled for Aug. 31 in 35th District Court.

In another incident, a burglary was reported at the B & N Party Store on Lilley and Ford. The police report listed $7,000 worth of merchandise was stolen sometime between 5 p.m. Aug. 21 and 1 p.m. Aug. 22. The business was closed at the time of the theft, Boljesic said.

The suspects apparently pri ed open a rear door, Bolsesic said.

Mostly beer and wine were stolen. However, a cash register, cigarettes, tapes, batteries, pop, juice, magazines, beer signs and a fire extinguisher were among the items reported stolen. Police are without a suspect.

Witness: Gun fight followed officers' deaths

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

The owner of the motel where three Inkster police officers were shot to death said Tuesday he was engaged in a gun battle with a suspect in the slayings shortly after the officers were shot.

In testimony before 16th District Judge Robert Brzezinski, motel owner Charles Marleau said he exchanged shots with suspect Roy Lemons Jr., after hearing gunfire coming from one of the two motel rooms occupied by Lemons and his relatives.

Lemons, 47, his brothers, George Lemons, 45, and William Lemons, 43, and mother, Alberta Easter, are charged in the July 9 shooting deaths of Inkster Police Sgt. Ira Parker and Patrolmen Clay Hoover and Daniel Dubiel. The three were discovered shot to death inside Room 105 of the Bungalow Motel, Inkster. Hoover and Dubiel were Westland residents.

THE EXAMINATION for George Lemons was postponed two weeks because, according to his mother's attorney, Charles Campbell, he underwent blood clot removal surgery Tuesday morning at Mount Carmel Mercy Hospital.

A hospital spokeswoman said she "wouldn't confirm" Lemons' presence or condition at the family's request.

Marleau said gunfire began shortly after Parker, the last of the officers to arrive, entered the room.

"As soon as the door closed, I heard gunfire," Marleau said during the opening day of the examination for Easter, Roy Lemons Jr. and William Lemons.

At first, there were "about 25" rapid-fire shots, Marleau said. "Then, there was a definite bang-bang-bang-bang of a different caliber," he added.

Despite being in a self-described "state of shock," Marleau said he grabbed his revolver and exchanged shots with what he called a rifle-wielding Roy Lemons Jr., after calling Inkster police to tell them the officers had been shot.

Marleau said "about 10" shots were fired at him, while he fired six shots at his alleged assailant.

INKSTER POLICE dispatcher Winona Ponder, one of the last people to see Parker alive, said the veteran officer appeared calm while talking on the phone with a woman — allegedly Easter — who told him the only way she'd leave the motel was "by stretcher."

"He turned to me and said, 'I'll be back in a minute,'" Ponder said.

Easter has maintained her family's innocence in interviews with media representatives, some of whom she called from jail. She has said the family was threatened by the officers.

Her attorney repeatedly questioned Ponder about Sgt. Parker's state of mind before he left for the motel.

Three of the four suspects, including Easter, had earlier been found competent to stand trial after psychological examination.

Judge Brzezinski of Livonia found Roy Lemons Jr. competent to stand trial Tuesday, after testimony from Detroit Recroder's Court psychiatric examiner Steven Miller.

Miller said tests showed Lemons displayed "odd, eccentric speech patterns" but could understand charges filed against him.

Brzezinski, a district court judge, is sitting in on the case for Inkster District Judge John McCartney, who disqualified himself because of his professional relationship with the three officers.

The preliminary examination was moved to Detroit Recorders Court after the suspects' jam-packed, emotionally charged arraignment in Inkster.

In another ruling, Brzezinski allowed Easter to retain the high-profile Campbell as her attorney. Campbell replaces court-appointed attorney Monsey Wilson of Detroit.

Attorney Juan Mateo of Southfield is representing William Lemons. Samuel Churikian of Detroit is representing Roy Lemons Jr. Henry Scharg of Detroit is representing George Lemons. All are court-appointed.

Wayne County assistant prosecutors Timothy Kenny and Douglas Baker are bringing the case against the family.

SECURITY WAS tight during Tuesday's opening session. As many as 10 Wayne County sheriff's deputies stood watch over the courtroom, accompanied by Sheriff Robert Ficano. The courtroom is adjacent to a sheriff's department branch office.

Family members, friends and reporters lined up outside for nearly 90 minutes before court opened.

The officers' bodies were found after a 10-hour siege at the motel, on Michigan, east of Middlebelt. Police allege all three officers were taken hostage by the family. Easter and her sons had lived at the motel since late February.

The officers arrived on a bad check complaint filed against the family by a car rental agency.

Testimony is expected to continue to the end of the week.

The preliminary examination will determine whether there is sufficient evidence to bring the suspects to trial. It won't determine guilt or innocence.

Security tight for family's hearing

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

Tight security and piqued interests greeted the principals gathered Tuesday for the preliminary examination of family members charged in the July 9 slayings of three Inkster police officers.

The exam for defendants Alberta Easter, 69, and her sons, Roy Lemons Jr., 47, and William Lemons, 43, is expected to last through today (Thursday). The preliminary exam for a third son, George Lemons, 45, was delayed until at least Tuesday, Sept. 8, for medical reasons.

Regular court watchers, and others who said they came out just for this case, began gathering in the corridor outside a basement courtroom in the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice in downtown Detroit shortly after 7 a.m., two hours before the scheduled start of the hearing.

To get to the courtroom, they had to pass through airport-style metal detectors set up in the lobby of the building. The extra security was one reason the hearing was moved from 22nd District Court, Inkster, to Detroit Recorder's Court.

SEVERAL FRIENDS and family members of the dead officers — Clay Hoover and Daniel Dubiel, both of Westland, and Sgt. Ira Parker of Inkster — attended the hearing but declined to comment on the proceedings.

Most of the 50 or so spectators weren't at a loss for words though.

"I came down to see Alberta Easter, see what she's really like," said George Johnson of River Rouge.

Johnson, 68, and retired after 35 years as an employee of Great Lakes Steel, said he found it hard to believe that a woman "old enough to be a grandmother" could have played a role in gunning down three police officers during the July 9 siege at the Bungalow Motel on Michigan Avenue.

Latonya Morgan of Detroit thought the hearing would be a good chance for her 8-year-old son, Gregory, to get a first-hand look at the U.S. criminal justice system. And Gregory, after looking at the defendants' downcast faces, agreed that he'd rather experience things from the spectators' side of the courtroom than as an accused criminal.

For veteran court watcher Essie Andrews of Detroit, Tuesday's highly publicized hearing was just another chance to turn a modest profit. Andrews has been selling bags of peanuts to those who travel through the doors of Detroit's courtrooms for nearly 20 years.

"I always sell out (my supply)," she said. "But today I'll probably sell out a little faster than usual."

Educators question 'free choice' of schools

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

A "freedom of choice" concept that would allow parents to choose to send their child to any public school in their district is raising lots of questions from administrators who would be responsible for implementation.

Transportation hassles, overcrowded schools, and athletics recruiting are a few worries local public school officials voiced in response to the proposal made last week by a state Board of Education subcommittee.

Approved on a preliminary basis, the plan gives parents the right to choose which public school their children attend instead of being forced to go to the neighborhood school. The school of choice must remain within the district's boundaries.

"This forces each school to compete effectively in order to survive and flourish," the report said.

The thrust of the panel's plan is to reward districts which try out the idea. Ultimately the state Board of Education would have to recommend legislative changes to put the plan into practice.

SUPPORTERS, citing a similar program already in place in Minnesota, indicate it would improve education across the board as each school would be forced to compete for students.

Spokesmen for several districts in western Wayne County indicate that open enrollment is already in practice to a degree — provided that parents shuttle their own children to other than the neighborhood schoolyard and as long as the change doesn't cause overcrowding.

"Rather than create competition, I can see one school becoming college prep and another general curriculum," said Dennis O'Neill, superintendent of Wayne-Westland Schools, which has just two public high schools.

O'Neill believes transportation and other details would add further financial strain on already beleaguered districts.

"I can see where (the committee) is coming from, but it has definite drawbacks," O'Neill said.

Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich told an audience at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus earlier this month how the program works in his state. Among other things, Perpich said it has encouraged students from low income families to try college and has resulted in Minnesota boasting the best high school completion rate in the country.

Perpich's talk was sponsored by the Metropolitan Affairs Corp., a regional affairs research group advocating choices in education.

"People are not willing to put more money into the same old things," said Donn Shelton, MAC member and freedom of choice advocate.

HE CITED an open enrollment program in East Harlem, N.Y., where 32 junior high schools created their own format, boosting the district's performance record from rock bottom to mid-level among regional districts.

Plymouth-Canton School Superintendent John Hoben expressed the most optimism among local school administrators.

"Kids do better, parents feel better, teachers feel better about their work. I'm very supportive — you can't deny the success in Minnesota — but I don't know how you'd regulate it here," Hoben said.

"We're in a growth pattern. It would be very difficult for us to accommodate (open enrollment). We have no elasticity."

The district is currently using 13 portable classrooms, renting a building from Livonia, and building an elementary school with completion targeted next year.

Even supporters suggest the concept would do best in large metropolitan districts with many schools and much diversity. One of the larger area districts, Livonia, is already providing several options for high school students.

SUPERINTENDENT James Carli noted that Livonia students are shuttled between a variety of programs housed in the three public high schools — vocational education, computers and math, careers program, an alpha beta alternative program, and courses for gifted and talented students.

Options at the middle school level "are not nearly as numerous," Carli said.

Redford Union School Superintendent Kenneth Erickson believes students and parents are "generally happier attending school closer to home."

"(Open enrollment) would be more valuable in a large urban area."

Garden City Superintendent Michael Wilmot, who oversees administration of one high school, one junior high, and five elementary schools in his district, said "my general reaction is let's wait and see. I want some details."

Jan Jacobs, superintendent of South Redford Schools, said a number of details in the proposal remain unclear.

"It might be a good thing if we can work out the mechanics," he said.

Pets of the week

Bridgette, a 3-year-old calico cat, and Snoopy, a 10-month-old mixed-breed spaniel need homes. Bridgette (Control No. 220313) is a full-grown 7½ pounds and has been declawed. Snoopy (Control No. 188528) is a nearly full-grown 40 pounds, housebroken and good with other animals and children. To adopt these pets or others or to check for lost pets, contact the Westland Kindness Center of the Michigan Humane Society, 721-7300. The center is at 37255 Marquette, Westland.

Jeffries Freeway improvements aim for fall finish

Pin and hanger replacement and painting of bridge overpasses along the I-96 Jeffries Freeway in western Wayne County will be completed by the end of October, according to a spokesman for the metro district office of the state Department of Transportation.

Problems developed on the freeway, constructed in the mid-1970s, because of the type of steel used.

"It's called rusty steel because it's supposed to rust to a point and then form a protective area," said Al Williams, chief engineer of the metro district office, located in Southfield.

"The problem developed sooner than anticipated in areas down low exposed to salt spray."

Excessive rusting of the pin and hanger, part of the bridge's expansion system, necessitated replacement and repainting.

"We inspect each year to prevent this from becoming a serious problem," said Williams, who added that the type of steel used, popular since the 1960s, has been discontinued.

Other problem areas caused by rusty steel include I-275 in Romulus and I-275 at Eight Mile Road as well as Eight Mile Road at the John C. Lodge Freeway.

"We've been aware of the problem for a number of years," said Williams.

Traffic disruptions along the Jeffries has been kept to a minimum by restrictions on the road crews, who can't work inbound lanes during morning rush hour or outbound lanes during evening peak hours, according to Williams.

The Good News:
Chevy Astros are selling as fast as we can build them.

The Bad News:
We can't quite build them fast enough.

Chevrolet wishes to apologize for the popularity of its Astro passenger van. Because, quite frankly, people like the Astro so much, it can sometimes be tough to find one.

Maybe if Ford or Dodge had a van with Astro's torque, power and towing capacity, things would be a bit easier. Or perhaps if there were a compact van outside GM that could carry as much, the demand for Astros wouldn't be as great. Or just maybe if, after all this time, Ford or Dodge had made swing-out rear doors standard on their vans too, there would be an alternative to Astro.

But until that happens—if it happens—Astro will continue to be very, very popular. Which means we'll continue trying to keep up with the demand.

So if you find that you have to wait a bit for your Astro, we apologize. Just keep telling yourself you're not really waiting. You're merely investing some of your time into what could be the best compact van available today.

Best-backed Chevy ever. 6-year/60,000-mile powertrain warranty and 6 years or 100,000 miles of outer-body rust-through protection. Solid proof of the quality built into every new Chevy Astro.

GM 6/60 QUALITY COMMITMENT PLAN Let's get it together buckle up. See your Chevy dealer for terms and conditions of the limited warranty.

THE Heartbeat OF AMERICA TODAY'S CHEVY TRUCK

State prisons 'bottom of barrel' — Welborn

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Pick any prison issue you want — sites, management, construction, philosophy. Sen. Jack Welborn probably will dissent from the prevailing thinking in the state Department of Corrections.

"I've not found any that are worse," said Welborn, a Republican from Kalamazoo who chairs the Senate committee that handle prison legislation. He bases that on visits to prison systems in five other states and two foreign countries.

He knows people in Plymouth and Northville townships of western Wayne County and in central Oakland County oppose more prisons in their backyards.

"There are more communities that want prisons than there are prisons to build. Many are in the Upper Peninsula, many in northern (lower) Michigan. They're far to visit, but we don't build prisons for the convenience of visitors."

ONE TOWN in Welborn's district — Ionia — loves prisons. It has five and has been a prison site for 110 years.

Mayor Fred Thwaites says his city associates prisons with jobs and economic growth.

One story in the history books is that when Michigan was organizing as a state, the cities were divvying up the institutions. Kalamazoo took the insane asylum, as mental hospitals were called, and Marshall thought it would be the state capital.

Jackson won a draw over Ann Arbor and elected the prison over the university on the theory that a prison would mean more jobs.

"Ionia grew up with them," said Welborn. "It was a prison town before the modern era with its problems. Ionia, however, is at the saturation point.

"I introduced and we passed a bill that the people (near a proposed prison site) should have the right of referendum. There are too many shotgun marriages."

MICHIGAN HAS been on a prison-building binge in the last five years, and at times it has had to release inmates early because of overcrowding. But to Welborn that's not the big trouble.

"Overcrowding is not the No. 1 problem. Lack of management, lack of real tough discipline, is the No. 1 problem. The No. 2 problem is overcrowding," he said on WXYZ's "Spotlight on News" program and an off-camera interview.

The philosophy of the five-member Corrections Commission, which sets prison policy and hires the director, is that "being in prison is punishment enough," he said. "And the rights we give prisoners — their own radio and TV and typewriter . . . Other states cannot believe we do that.

"We need a work ethic and a discipline ethic.

"Guards say the prisoners run Jackson and allow the staff to operate," Welborn went on. "(Other) prisoners don't like what's happening because, remember, 85 percent of 'em are going to be back on the streets some time. They'd like a tighter ship than what we've been running."

WELBORN CAME back from a March visit to Georgia advocating a "boot camp" type of prison with three months of military drills and hard labor. He has introduced a bill to set up one in Michigan.

"I've seen prisons in Taiwan and Japan. They have tough discipline, but they're humane. I've visited prisons in Georgia, Ohio and Indiana. Ours are the bottom of the barrel."

He has won Senate passage of another bill to eliminate the Corrections Commission, making the department director directly accountable to the governor. Gov. James J. Blanchard likes that one.

"That's the primary thing that needs to be done to put discipline in the prison system," Welborn said.

His idea of strong management is "where the boss gives an order and it's followed through the chain of command." With the commission system, he said, a policy comes down and it has a different interpretation by the time it reaches the officer "at the bottom of the totem pole."

WHEN A FEMALE guard at Jackson was raped and murdered, Welborn was quick to renew his criticism of hiring women to guard men, and vice-versa.

"It's asking for trouble," he said, because it results in sexual harassment and security problems.

Welborn, 54, was a dairy farmer who started his political career as a township supervisor in 1967. He was elected to the House in 1972 and the Senate in 1974.

In 1982 he sought the Republican nomination for governor, trailing in a field of four. His brother, Robert, succeeded to his Senate seat that year but died in 1985, and voters returned Jack to the Senate.

While the outspoken, controversy-hunting, conservative Welborn's name has figured in speculation for a 3rd District congressional run against Democrat Howard, Wayne, the senator is less than enthusiastic about a job in Washington, D.C., where he can't commute daily from his 80 acres in Kalamazoo County.

Fort Necessity hostages moved to Fort Duquesne

Overhead rapacious buzzards circle around and around the smoking fort. The waters of the nearby creek run red with the blood of the wounded men. Slaughtered horses and cattle are strewn nearby. It has rained for nine days and the survivors stand knee-deep in the muck. What a pitiful sight!

Today is July 4, 1754 and we are witnesses to the fall of Washington's Fort Necessity on the plain called the "Great Meadows." It is midway between the two Pennsylvania mountains — Laurel Hill and Chestnut Ridge.

Across the meadow in the northwest corner is the opening of a trail, which runs toward Duquesne (Pittsburg). Nearby we see the French collecting the loot and the two hostages, Captain Robert Stobo and Captain Jacob VanBraam.

You may recall that VanBraam walked with Washington last year all the way to Fort LeBoeuf near Lake Erie. And Stobo entered the pages of history when he joined Washington on June 9, 1754. (See Tonquish Tales, Observer, July 23).

THESE TWO gentlemen, Stobo and VanBraam, were delegated by Washington to be hostages under the terms of the peace parley with the French.

The French required two prominent officers to serve as warranties for the safe return of their Captain LeForce and others who were captured at the time of the death of Coulon Villiers, or Jumonville as he was called.

We see them now being moved out along the trail toward Pittsburg, some 70 miles toward the west.

Tomorrow a fresh wind will clear the valley of the acrid smoke but it will never remove from Washington's mind the memory of today's defeat. Nor will he ever forget the two hostages.

Of this bitter time Douglas Freeman in his biography of Washington wrote: "Eighteen years later, in days still darker, George was to write of the anniversary of the capitulation — 'I did not let the 3rd . . . pass off without a grateful remembrance of the escape we had . . . . The same Providence that protected us . . . will, I hope, continue His mercies . . . .'"

Before we research the incredible life and the amazing adventures of Captain Stobo, whose military career extends for seven long years and whose adventures made him an international figure, let's look back for one last time at Washington and his pathetic little army.

(Tonquish Tales will not attempt to review the entire career of George Washington. In placing these foundation stones for Michigan's Sesquicentennial history, the primary concern is Michigan and Fort Ponchartrain d'Etroit.)

Tonquish tales

Helen Gilbert

There are more than 2,000 books and articles about Washington in the Library of Congress. Various historians have struggled with this subject and have met with varying degrees of success. Some lack authenticity and even simple honesty, and so I would advise interested readers who wish to explore this subject in more depth than is allowable in a brief newspaper column to read for themselves "George Washington" by Douglas Southall Freeman, and James T. Flexner's series of books "The Father of Our Country." For a lighter touch read "George Washington's Expense Account" by Marvin Kitman.

The books I have reviewed in preparation for this column are listed on page 180 of "Tonquish Tales, Volume II." You may find this book at your local library or bookstore, including The Little Professor on the Park in Plymouth, Bookstore-on-the-Main in Northville, Book Connections-at-Valley-Oaks Mall, and at all 17 Borders Bookstores.)

GEORGE WASHINGTON was a proud man who wore his medals in defeat.

He demanded of the victorious French and was granted "the honors of war." This meant that these poor, battered Virginians were allowed to march away with drums beating and a flag flying in the breeze. They also were allowed to keep their guns and enough ammunition for one protective round against any enemies they might meet along the trail.

These war-weary men carried about 70 wounded on their backs and left behind about 100 dead or wounded beyond help. The French prevented the Indians, who came rushing into the valley seeking loot, from further depredations.

According to Freeman it was "close to 10 o'clock that 4th of July when the survivors march out" of the so-called fort. They stepped to the "beat of the drum with colors flying."

That night they had only covered about three miles from the fallen fort when they dropped from exhaustion. They were too weary to carry their wounded another step. Only Washington on his weather-beaten gray horse toiled on to Williamsburg to report to the governor of their losses.

Indeed, they lost a battle but fortunately they did not lose the war. Washington's blunders were grievous and costly but not much has ever been made of them because he was only 23-years-old and a complete novice trusted with responsibilities beyond his experience or capacity.

He was a fast learner and his future success saved this country from foreign domination.

WE ARE ANXIOUS to return to our home by the river and Fort Ponchartrain d'Etroit.

Ahead we see Roger's Rangers, hundreds of them in whale boats and canoes, rounding the bend beyond Bois Blanc (Bob-Lo) Island. These Yankees will make a tremendous change in our lives here in Detroit.

And before long we will hear the drums of Chief Pontiac's warriors who begin a long and almost successful seige of our home place. The seige of Detroit takes place in 1763. Before we meet these events head-on we will walk with Stobo to his imprisonment at Fort Duquesne. What a clever fellow he is! The French will not imprison him for long, or will they?

One of Stobo's contemporaries writing in the Virginia Gazette claimed that the 27-year-old gentleman of style and wealth rode to Fort Necessity in a coach-and-four. We do not quite believe this story. It must be apocryphal.

However, authorities do seem to generally agree that his wealth permitted him to bring ten servants, some in very fancy uniforms, to the seige of Fort Necessity. He also was able to pay for his own army of about 100 troops, fully-equipped with guns, uniforms and ammunition.

Stobo rode on a fine horse along his covered wagon, which contained many "goodies" he regarded as necessary. Among his possessions was a full butt of excellent Madeira. This is the equivalent of 130 gallons. Later chapters will describe Stobo's adventurous career as a double agent.

George Washington demanded of the victorious French and was granted "the honors of war." This meant that these poor, battered Virginians were allowed to march away with drums beating and a flag flying in the breeze.

Your neighbors need, can get help

THE PEOPLE who need help the most won't learn how to get it from this or any other newspaper.

The only way they can get the needed help is through you or friends, relatives or neighbors.

The reason is the people are illiterate and can't read this editorial — or anything else in any publication.

While the federal government has no problem in providing $100 million to South American freedom fighters, local educational agencies have to resort to car washes or candy sales to fight another type of freedom battle.

That battle is for American adults who are functionally illiterate and can't get ahead in the work world or socially.

They can't read job postings at their plants or offices.

They can't comprehend important safety warnings on newly installed equipment.

They can't understand what President Ronald Reagan or their local city council or school board is doing for them — or to them.

IN MANY cases, those people without reading skills are skillful in not exposing their problems to others, either coworkers or relatives.

On the job, a person who can't read will look at a work order and call over a co-worker to "clarify" it.

In a restaurant, non-reading adults will fumble with a shirt pocket or purse and then announce to a nearby relative that they left their glasses at home and could someone please read the menu for them.

The reasons for the adults' problems are many and varied — but they are all history now.

What has to be done is to find an effective program where they can get help.

One local group is the Western Wayne County Literacy Council, which held a modest fund-raiser last week that will continue this week at a Ford-Wildwood tavern.

"Donations are welcome at the door," said a council announcement two weeks ago.

WHILE THE Pentagon's generals and admirals don't have to embarrass themselves by panhandling for money in public, the literacy council and other related groups don't have the same federal government support for a national problem.

The money problem is only one frustration in the battle to eliminate adult illiteracy.

Another frustration is the public's general unawareness of the scope of the problem.

Surveys show that about 25 million adults are functionally illiterate, or unable to read at a fifth-grade level.

Another 35 million are estimated to be unable to read at a ninth-grade level.

The literacy council was created five years ago using one approach.

While there are other ways to fight the problem, the council has recruited volunteers who have donated about 3,600 hours working with adults.

The council schedules volunteers to work one-on-one with adults, using phonetically-based materials.

THE COUNCIL is based in Garden City's Cambridge Adult/Community Education Center, 28901 Cambridge, behind Garden City High School.

When they gain the needed reading skills, those adults can get a better job, improve their productivity and performance in their current position, read to their children and/or continue their education.

Volunteers may contact the literacy council at 427-6644.

Whether the students want to read the U.S. Constitution, understand their paycheck stubs, or merely want to read the sports sections of newspapers, reading skills will help them improve the quality of their lives.

MMM, MMM, Mmm, Michigan as just one big industrial park.

Now that's kind of an interesting perspective state commerce director Doug Ross has envisioned.

Frankly, driving around western Wayne and Oakland counties, it's easy to see why he feels that way. If light industrial buildings aren't being built on somebody's old farm acreage, an office complex or two is filling in the space.

Rarely has Michigan experienced such a sustained economic upturn. It sure feels good.

But most of Michigan really isn't an industrial park. Rather it's a tourist mecca waiting to happen, a resource that could, if properly cultivated, be the number-one industry in the state.

Right now tourism is one of the state's major industries, bringing in more than $13 billion annually and employing better than a quarter of a million people.

CERTAINLY, NOTHING to be sneezed at. Ross employee John Savich, director of the Michigan Travel Bureau, has done a great job with the resources at hand. He believes in his cause, bringing more tourists' dollars into the state, and has come up with some really innovative ideas to spread the word.

But much, much more has to be done.

Building Michigan into a giant industrial park guarantees obsolescence. We should have learned that through our many years love affair with the automobile industry. The economic ups are nice, but the downs are nothing short of horrifying for many people — especially blue-collar workers who often find themselves firmly stuck in the unemployment line. The big bucks earned in the good times are quickly eaten away for those folks.

Let's face it. Tourism is a much more stable industry.

● Although it has its ups and downs, the dips are less severe.

● During downturns in the economy, tourists stick closer to home and states like Michigan could actually benefit.

● With proper marketing, the Michigan tourist industry has a potential world-wide market.

● Michigan tourism has yet to be fully developed. By concentrating on tourism, the state has a built-in growth potential, unlike some of the other raist built industries.

STRANGE AS it seems, thousands of Michigan residents have yet to travel north of Flint. Millions outside of Michigan have yet to hear about what this state has to offer.

But a down side does exist.

Underdeveloped air travel service is a big disadvantage. Flying north of Grand Rapids is incredibly inconvenient and unbelievably expensive. Even a city as well-defined as Traverse City has inadequate terminal and runway space to handle major jet service.

Forget it, when it comes to flying to the upper peninsula, the real hidden gem in Michigan tourism. You could fly to California cheaper and more quickly.

The potential exists to treble the bucks and the employment provided by tourism. So, Doug, how about a little more attention on the tourist front? Michigan needs it.

Local is our beat twice every week

THIS STARTED as a note to the editorial staffers. But as I focused on my reasons for praising their outstanding effort in localizing coverage of the terrible crash of Northwest Flight 255, I thought you, our reader, might also appreciate my comments.

As you know, we are non-daily newspapers. We specialize in you, your family, your friends and community. Even though we publish but twice a week, we have deadlines every day.

The fateful events of last week illustrated so clearly just how professional our staff is in coping with deadline stress. The story of the Northwest Airlines disaster was succinct. It was comprehensive.

THIS INFORMATION was collected and packaged in a little more than three hours. This is a fact that can be especially appreciated by our colleagues on competing daily newspapers.

Anyone who has ever tried to collect information during any kind of mishap understands how difficult it is to get accurate information quickly. This catastrophe defies comparison.

Yet the Observer & Eccentric Newspaper staffers got the information, generated a graphic illustration to make clear the location and met delivery deadlines at the post office.

And for each edition thereafter — that's 12 deadlines in 12 hours, they worked tirelessly to update the story at every angle.

THIS WAS no small task. Whenever a tragedy of this magnitude occurs, media from across the county swamp the scene. There is a tendency on the part of emergency officials to play favorites with major media representatives. This is offset at the same time by officials who feel they can show no favoritism.

In short, getting information is a nightmare. But this newspaper's staffers got it. And you benefited.

Most importantly, you benefited because they understand our role in your lives. You expect a little more from us. You expect a little sensitivity. If someone from your neighborhood was on that plane you expect us to provide the information in caring, respectfully accurate terms.

THESE STAFFERS feel very strongly about their responsibilities as community journalists. I think their subsequent stories stood as worthy as that very first edition. As a reader you should feel proud that this same high professional standard is used week in and week out to bring you news of your community.

The things we deal with on a regular basis are not quite so dramatic as events of last week. But they are important to you, your friends and your community. Our staffers work this way every week. I'm proud of that. I'm proud of them.

John Reddy is vice president of editorial operations for Suburban Community Corp., the parent company of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Reporters are intrusive, but there are good reasons

Rich Perlberg

BACK IN THE heyday of Chicago journalism a young rewrite man took a story for a police reporter about a 2-year-old who died after eating a Christmas tree ornament. Even though it was Christmas Eve, the cub knew the paper demanded quotes from families in such stories.

He made the phone call, talked to the distraught parents and filed the story. His crusty desk chief threw it back at him.

"What color was the ornament?" he demanded. Dutifully, the rewrite man called the parents once more.

HAPPILY, SUCH stories are more legend than fact these days. Despite a myriad of complaints, the American press is generally far more responsible than at most previous times in the nation's history.

Still, the vision that many people have of a reporter sticking a microphone into a grieving parent's face is not totally inaccurate. Why is this?

The answer can be found in the fact that there are so many reporters out there. As the victims from Sunday's airline crash slowly became known, large numbers of reporters were suddenly unleashed on grieving families. Those who lost a loved one could expect a call from the Eccentric, the Detroit Free Press, the Detroit News, the Oakland Press, the Daily News, the wire services and numerous television stations.

Most of these people behave sensibly and courteously, but if even one person was boorish or rude — or perceived to be so — then that is the impression that will be left with most of those involved.

IF THAT is understood, the question still remains: Are these interviews necessary? Is there really anything that important to come from these stories? After all, the families are grieving. We all assume that.

As one who has made such calls, and who hates every minute of it, I can defend the process.

For one thing, many families do appreciate the chance to talk about their loved ones and to have a more complete story told. It is cold reporting to just say that John Doe, 33, lived in Birmingham and worked in Southfield. It is far more to say he was a loving father, devoted family man, Little League baseball coach and avid gardener.

When a close family member dies, most people want the attributes of his or her life to be shared with the reading public who otherwise will read only the black-and-white details of the death. To get this more complete portrait, it usually requires talking with close family members and friends.

There is another reason for these stories. Although it should be obvious, we all need to be reminded of the very human stories behind these often numbing tragedies.

As pervasive as the Northwest airline crash has been this week, in a few weeks it will be a faint memory for many of us. New stories, new disasters, will compete for our attention.

Stories that touch the human loss help us remember longer that there are many people who cannot forget.

Sept. dates set off colorful memories

Fred DeLano

WE REMEMBER dates in history for different reasons, sometimes for more than one. I find this true of Sunday, Sept. 3, 1939. That was the afternoon I first discovered I am color blind.

However, of the many millions of words published during the intervening 48 years concerning that day's events, never until right now has this optical fact been mentioned in print. As anniversary week approaches, I am tempted to look back.

Older students of this column, if any, will recall that Sept. 1 that year brought messages such as this over the world's news wires, and I quote from an International News Service dispatch:

"War in Europe that civilization has feared since the day Reichsfuehrer Adolph Hitler rose to power in 1933 broke out today on the frontiers between Germany and Poland.

"German aircraft bombed Warsaw, the capital of Poland, and Cracow that nation's oldest and most beautiful city, according to information received in London and Paris and partly confirmed by Hitler.

"He announced to the German Reichstag that he had ordered his air force to bomb Polish military objectives, but to spare women and children. The war will be prosecuted, he said, until Poland agrees to his conditions."

It didn't take the world long to learn what a crock that was, but you can see why my color blindness hardly was neat for page one.

WHEREVER THERE WAS a radio two days later, Sunday the 3rd, it was tuned to hear the worldwide broadcast of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain announcing in his distinctive English accent that the British Empire was now at war with Germany. Thus began an era that probably caused more far-reaching changes than any war in history.

It was stiflingly hot and humid in Michigan that Sunday, just like so many this summer. I know because I had to wear a suit that afternoon for a wedding in Chesaning.

Three of us who had lived together as fraternity brothers at Ann Arbor were in the wedding party in this little town nestled between Owosso and Saginaw and best known for its picturesque "Showboat," still an annual attraction that many of you undoubtedly have attended.

We were there for the best of all reasons: it was the bride's hometown. The wedding took place in the home of meat-packer Farmer Peat.

Pearl Harbor still was an unsuspected two years and three months away, but the Chamberlain broadcast did give us pause in the realization that the storm clouds of war were increasing all around the globe.

I had not endeared myself at all to the mother of the bride the previous evening when over-indulgence with old buddies had led me to misidentify some of the table gee-gaws as salt and pepper shakers during a lovely dinner in her home. I do think I told her I enjoyed the food.

ANYWAY, WE WHO were to stand together at the living room altar when a preacher named Isherwood earned his fee had been advised the motif would be blue, so please dress accordingly.

These were friends, right? So as a $29-per-week reporter in FLint, I blew the budget and at Crawford & Zimmerman's men's store bought a height-of-fashion double-breasted, dark blue suit with a faint pin stripe off the rack for $45. When I walked into the Peat home I was gorgeous.

This was long before air conditioning became a household must and as the guests awaited the bride's descent down a curving staircase, all were perspiring profusely.

Whether the bride's mother ever was able to recall much of the actual ceremony I know not. What I do remember vividly is that after being escorted to her place of traditional honor she took a look around and with aghast exclaimed to all, "My God, he's wearing a green suit."

Elsie, may you rest in peace.

A report given on Peace Pole status

To the editor:

(An open letter to the mayor, city manager and city commissioners.)

We hope the following facts concerning the status of the Peace Pole in communities across the country might assist you in reaching a decision to allow Plymouth's Peace Pole to remain permanently in Kellogg Park.

This information was obtained from the Peace Pole Project Team, (Route 1, Box 253, East Jordan, Mich. 49727) which keeps detailed records of all Peace Pole "plantings" worldwide.

● There are over 60,000 Peace Poles in Japan. The first and original Peace Pole was placed there after WWII as a memorial to the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombings.

● The U.S. has over 1,000 Peace Poles.

● Virtually every state in the union has at least one.

● Michigan has 108; Ohio has over 200.

● The governor of Utah recently requested enough Peace Poles for Salt Lake City so that every major language would be represented.

● Over 200 city halls in the U.S. have Peace Poles on their front lawns.

● In Flint a Peace Pole was dedicated along with a Japanese garden to honor Flint's sister city, and the city gave another Peace Pole to the attending Japanese delegation to bring back to Japan.

● Charlevoix has seven Peace Poles within the city limits, including one next to the Veterans' Memorial and one in front of the Chamber of Commerce.

● In Lansing the State Sesquicentennial Commission endorsed the Peace Pole as an "official sesquicentennial project" and the chairman of the historical commission presided at the dedication on the banks of the Grand River. Marcel Marceau was a speaker at the ceremony. He captured this headline in the news account of the event: "Marcel Marceau Breaks Silence For Peace!"

● Detroit's oldest church, First Methodist, has a Peace Pole in its front yard.

● Christ Church Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills, has had a Peace Pole and surrounding Peace Garden for two years.

The Peace Pole is a gift to the city of Plymouth. It is not meant to represent a political party, a religious group, or an ideology. It is meant to symbolize every person's hope for peace: in families, communities, nations and the world. It is meant to remind every citizen of his or her responsibility to work for a peaceful world in whatever way he or she can.

Carl Sagan, professor of astronomy at Cornell University and creator of the "Cosmos" series, said:

"What a waste it would be after 4 billion tortuous years of evolution if the dominant organism contributed to its own self-destruction. We are the first species to have devised the means. There is no issue more important than the avoidance of nuclear war. It is incredible for any thinking person not to be concerned with the issue. No species is guaranteed tenured life on this planet. We are privileged to be alive and to think. We have the privilege to affect the future."

We believe the Plymouth Peace Pole is a small but important step in affecting that future.

Praises reporting on drunk drivers

To the editor:

I wanted to thank the Observer again for its article on Plymouth Family Service's Phase II Program for drinking and driving offenders arrested for the second and third time.

Your staff writer, Julie Brown, did a good job capturing in the article the essence of our program and the issues involved. It was good to share with the community, through your article, this issue and our attempts to be a part of addressing it.

However, the community also should be aware that the Plymouth Community Fund has made it possible for Plymouth Family Service to develop this program and other related services for substance abuse problems.

Plymouth Family Service has been a Community Fund agency for almost 25 years, and has enjoyed, through the years, continuous support for various programming needs from the Plymouth Community Fund. We would not be able to do many of our activities without the Community Fund.

Thank you again for the fine article by your paper.

Plant closing laws won't save jobs — Blanchard

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Laws to regulate plant closings won't work — at least not as well as a joint government-business team effort to save America's machine tool industry.

That was Gov. James J. Blanchard's message this week as he toured three cities to announce Michigan had landed an office in Ann Arbor to fund generic research for individual companies that can't afford to do it alone.

"I think advanced notice for plant closings, which those bills incorporate, is reasonable and a good thing," Blanchard said.

"THOSE BILLS would not have stopped the recent plant closings we've seen in the Midwest," the governor said.

He was asked to comment on a legislative bill by Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, and a congressional bill by U.S. Rep. John Conyers, D-Detroit. General Motors plant closings were the target of a weekend UAW rally in Dearborn, not far from where Blanchard spoke in Greenfield Village.

"Even in the case of General Motors, they have given us a year, two years, in some cases three years advance notice. Most of those bills ask six months advance notice.

"The key is what do you do about it? Where do you draw the line between trying to save something that is uncompetitive, isn't going to make it, and isn't needed and finding new opportunities training workers and managers for new jobs in new locations.

"That's something this country hasn't done very well, something we in Michigan are working very hard to improve," said Blanchard, who then turned to his announcement of the National Center for Manufacturing Sciences.

THE NCMS will be set up Oct. 1 in an office building with the help of $15 million from the U.S. Defense Department and $10 million from the Michigan Strategic Fund.

The industry will make continuing contributions for a budget of $50 million a year.

"Remember consumer electronics? They're not being made in this country any more. They went out without a whimper, whereas our auto companies are fighting back and succeeding," the governor said.

"It gets down to new ideas, new ways of doing things, new technologies, which appear at first to eliminate jobs but eventually end up saving jobs, creating jobs.

"Without brain power, we will be nothing," said Blanchard. Michigan firms employ more than 130,000 in machinery manufacturing. The state has more than 15 percent of the nation's metalcutting tool jobs and 23 percent of the tool and die jobs.

THE IDEA was born in 1985 at a machine tool builders conference.

The Defense Department recognized the industry as vital to U.S. economic and strategic base.

Because the companies couldn't organize for product research without running afoul of anti-trust laws, they decided to engage in generic, scientific research.

Peter Plastrik, who heads the Michigan Strategic Fund for Blanchard, described the center as "an industry-led consortium to create and finance an R&D agenda to make U.S. firms internationally competitive."

Fifteen states and two cities were in the running for the center. It will be a series of office jobs administering research contracts. Employment will start at four or five and grow to about 50.

DANIEL SHAHAN, president of the Engineering Society of Detroit, said other states offered more than Michigan in the way of financial inducements. "But in the end the Michigan offer prevailed, largely because of numerous non-economic benefits," including proximity to:

- Major airports — Willow Run and Detroit Metropolitan.
- Freeways — I-94, US-23 and M-14.
- The University of Michigan.
- "Quality of life features."

BLANCHARD said it is unclear whether the Defense contribution will be a one-shot item or continuing. The state contribution of $10 million will be paid in over five years, he said.

Shahan cited three Wall Street Journal articles in a single edition, Aug. 17, on the decline of American's manufacturing and machine tool industries. Among the headlines: "Machine Tool Makers Lose Out to Imports Due to Price, Quality" and "In 1990s, U.S. Will Have Fewer Shops, More Foreign Names in Machine Tools."

The center is funded by contributions from member companies ranging from $2,000 to $250,000. Members must be based in the U.S. with U.S. citizens holding majority ownership.

Restaurants hunt for managers

AP — As lifestyles change, Americans will eat more meals away from home — an average of two out of three by 2000, a Florida State University professor predicts.

Today the average American eats one out of two meals away from home, said Dr. Dante M. Laudadio, chairman of the hospitality administration department in the university's College of Business.

"We will spend increasingly less time at home as our fast-paced lifestyles continue and our already-busy schedules get even fuller," said Laudadio.

EATING AT home used to be the norm, but it is becoming the exception, he said.

The increased demand for meals in restaurants also will create a need for more managers trained in the business of food preparation and serving.

Laudadio said estimates show the industry will need up to 250,000 new managers by 2000.

But only 3,000 students are now graduating nationwide in that field. They will create a pool of 45,000 managers by 2000. Even the most conservative estimates show 110,000 new managers will be needed, he said.

Laudadio said eating more meals away from home doesn't necessarily mean eating more meals at fast-food restaurants.

"We're not necessarily turning to more fast food," Laudadio said. "We have meals at work using cafeterias and vending machines, at dinner theaters, in schools, prisons and hospitals, on business trips, on planes, trains and boats and on vacations."

THE INDUSTRY'S rapid growth is a reflection of changes in the way such establishments are managed, he said. Next to customer satisfaction, it is expertise in accounting, marketing and finance that counts.

Large restaurant chains hire hundreds of managers in a single year, Laudadio said.

He said the industry is already experiencing labor shortages, not only among managers but among people performing the minimal-skill jobs for minimum wage.

Interest rates on Adjustable Rate Mortgages are the lowest ever at Standard Federal.
15-Year ARM
7.25% Interest Rate
9.57% Annual Percentage Rate*
30-Year ARM
7.50% Interest Rate
9.79% Annual Percentage Rate*
Before you buy or refinance your home, consider the advantages of our Adjustable Rate Mortgage (ARM).
Many of our ARM loan customers have saved a lot of money in mortgage interest costs over the past few years. And, at present interest rates, borrowers are finding our ARM loans to be an even better bargain. The first-year interest rate on our 15-year ARM is now only 7.25% compared to much higher rates on fixed-rate loans. What's more, with the 2% annual and 6% lifetime interest rate caps that we have placed on our ARM loans, you'll pay less interest and have greater principal reduction over at least the first four years of your loan.
The lower initial interest rates on our ARM loans result in lower initial monthly payments. And, the lower monthly payments mean that it will be easier for you to qualify for the loan that you need to buy or refinance your home.
So, come to any Standard Federal branch office and learn more about our ARM loans. We'll help you find the loan that is just right for you.
*All annual percentage rates are calculated based on a 2% loan discount fee, a loan amount of $50,000.00, a 20% down payment, and monthly principal and interest payments of $456.43 for the 15-year loan and $349.61 for the 30-year loan. These estimated annual percentage rates are subject to increase or decrease on an annual basis after the loan is closed based on the formula set forth in the loan contract.

Recreation

Program provides fun for all

By Julie Brown
staff writer

DAY CAMP, roller skating, going to Tiger games.

For kids, summer is a perfect time to enjoy all of those activities. Just hanging around with good friends is also a great way to pass the time.

Local youngsters and adults have had a chance to enjoy those activities and many others this summer through the Western Wayne County Therapeutic Recreation Program.

The program provides recreational opportunities for mentally impaired and physically handicapped people of all ages. It is sponsored by the parks and recreation departments of Canton and Plymouth.

Meeting the recreational needs of people of various ages is a challenge, according to Greta Schellenberg, therapeutic recreation director.

"They have needs just as anyone has needs."

THERE IS A tendency for some people to push the handicapped aside, Schellenberg said. Mentally and physically handicapped people need opportunities for recreation, however, just like everybody else.

"It helps teach the kids social interaction."

The emphasis in the program is on recreation, she said. Competition and winning aren't emphasized.

It's thumbs up for symphony grant

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Those involved in Plymouth Symphony Orchestra activities got some good news in recent days.

The local symphony received a $13,000 staffing grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts. The grant will allow the organization to hire a full-time general manager.

The symphony's grant is for the total amount requested.

"Most of the time, granting agencies don't do that," said Kiyo Morse, president of the Plymouth Symphony Society board of directors. "Of course, we're all ecstatic."

The general manager's primary responsibility will be raising funds, Morse said. He or she will also have other responsibilities related to the orchestra and its management, including business and personnel concerns.

PLANS ARE to finish putting together a job description and post the position in September, said Morse, a Plymouth Township resident. Those involved in the process hope to have their decision made by some time in October.

"We'll probably put it in one of the national magazines." The position will also be posted through music management programs in colleges and universities, she said. Most likely, those who are interested will be from the local area.

The salary for the position would be the full $13,000. Ideally, the salary will increase next year, provided the general manager is successful in raising funds, she said.

The general manager will need to be organized and efficient, the board president said, and will also need to have some knowledge of music. The manager will need to get along with others and work with orchestra personnel.

The person hired will also need to have some poise and maturity and be able to deal with corporate representatives in raising funds, Morse said.

"So they've got to have some presence too."

The person hired for the position will work out of a local office. A two-room office at 9430 S. Main in Plymouth has been donated for the symphony's use by Dr. Roger Bookwalter, a local orthodontist, and his associates.

Having the office space donated has been a tremendous help in allowing the symphony to centralize its operations, Morse said.

THE SYMPHONY currently has several paid orchestra management people. A personnel manager, librarian and operations manager work on a "very part-time" basis. The musicians and conductor are paid on a per-service basis, including rehearsals and performances.

The local symphony is now in its 42nd season, Morse said. It has some 70 to 75 musicians; Russell Reed is the conductor.

Those involved in symphony activities hope to increase the salaries paid, said Morse, who is director of the Steppingstone Center for the Potentially Gifted, a school for first through eighth graders in Northville.

"That's just the next step that we have to work on."

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's salaries will never reach the level of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra or other big-city orchestras, she said.

"This is a community orchestra. They will never pay that much."

The symphony has received grants from the Michigan Council for the Arts in the past. This is the largest MCA grant ever received by the local symphony, Morse said.

"We were very happy. It just solved so many problems."

DURING THE past five years, the orchestra has gone through transitions, she said. Receiving the grant and having the office space donated have helped the organization pull things together.

"We're starting to do the things we had planned."

Starting in September, plans are to have the symphony's office staffed at least three mornings a week, said Morse, who has played the second violin for 11 years. This is her third year on the board of directors.

The orchestra is helped considerably in raising funds by the efforts of the Plymouth Symphony League. Typically, the league raises $15,000 each year to donate to the orchestra.

"They're our primary source of financial support."

Center to offer luncheon series

The Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College will present a luncheon series this fall.

The series will begin Friday, Sept. 25, with astrological consultant Evelyn Button discussing "The Dynamics of Astrology — What the Future Holds."

On Friday, Oct. 30, Ruth Messinger, M.A., a wellness image specialist, will discuss "Getting Older, Getting Better — What Every Woman Should Know About Taking Care of Herself."

On Friday, Nov. 13, Cory Gillman, M.A., will speak on "Bye, Bye Butterflies, Hello Confidence — Speak Up For Success." Gillman is a speech instructor.

Luncheons will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the LeGastronomique Restaurant in the Waterman Center on the Schoolcraft College campus. The college is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six Mile and Seven Mile roads in Livonia.

Price is $7 per luncheon. Reservations must be received at least five days before the luncheon. There will be no refunds unless notification is received five days before the luncheon.

The luncheons will include soup du jour or salad, croissants, gourmet entrees, fresh garden vegetables, French pastries and beverages. The food is prepared by the college's culinary arts department.

Reservations may be made by mail or by telephone; Visa and MasterCard are accepted.

For more information, call the Women's Resource Center, 591-6400, Ext. 430.

During the last fiscal year, the Plymouth Symphony League donated about $26,000 to the orchestra, Morse said. The league worked under the leadership of Sue Decker during that fiscal year, which ran from July to the end of June.

"They just outdid themselves," Morse said of the league's efforts in raising funds to support the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Another local arts organization, the Plymouth Community Arts Council, also received a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

THAT SUPPORT grant is for $6,400, "for which we are eternally grateful," said Pat McCombs, PCAC president.

The grant money will be allocated among various PCAC programs, McCombs said. The Plymouth Community Arts Council is involved in a number of local arts activities, including an Artists and Craftsmen Show to be held during the upcoming Plymouth Fall Festival.

The most-recent grant is the third one the Plymouth Community Arts Council has received from the Michigan Council for the Arts, McCombs said. Previous MCA grants allocated to the local arts council have been for $5,000 and $5,700.

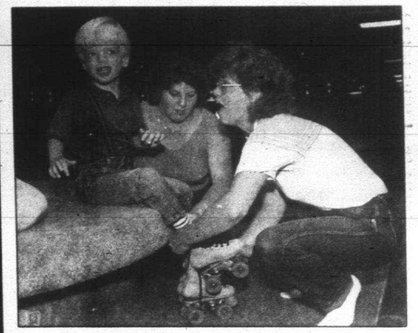
John Chestnut and his mom, Pam, enjoy their time together roller skating.



Drew Hiner's looking forward to his time on the rink with his mom, Donna, and with Barb Trinosky (center) of the Western Wayne County Therapeutic Recreation Program. Trinosky, an Eastern Michigan University student, will continue working with the local recreation program this fall.

Program offers fun for all seasons

Participating in recreational activities with other handicapped children can help ease children's fears, she said. Youngsters may, for example, be afraid to roller skate with a general group, but enjoy a skating session offered by the Western Wayne County Therapeutic Recreation Program.

Schellenberg has worked on the program in recent months, along with Barb Trinosky, therapeutic recreation assistant. Both women are Eastern Michigan University students in the therapeutic recreation program.

Most of those participating in this summer's recreational activities have been Plymouth-Canton residents. Some others come from surrounding communities.

During June and July, a day camp was held at Farrand Elementary School in Plymouth Township. The day camp was for mentally and physically handicapped people ages 5 to 16.

More recently, some of the program participants went ice skating at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

"It was a lot of fun," said Trinosky, who is from South Lyon. "The kids really loved it."

LAST WEEK, a group met for roller skating at the Skatin' Station in Canton. Open gym is held from 6 to 8 p.m. Saturdays at the Salvation Army, on Main Street in Plymouth.

A group went to Tiger Stadium this summer to cheer for the home team. Family members came along for that outing; families are also included in a number of the other activities.

"We'll be starting a bowling league in the fall," said Schellenberg, who is from Milford. A variety of other fun activities will take place in the fall.

The program started in 1983, but had become inactive.

"We had to start over from scratch," Schellenberg said.

This fall, Schellenberg will be leaving to participate in an internship program at Sinai Hospital of Detroit. Trinosky will take over the job Schellenberg has now.

Among other activities, Trinosky hopes to hold a mini day camp on a fall weekend. At that day camp, participants would learn a new sport or a craft activity. She also hopes to hold an arts and crafts day in October.

Other activities planned for the fall are: a dance program, roller skating and ice skating lessons, Scout troops for the handicapped, horseback riding lessons and group home activities.

Yardmaster Rod Godsey of Redford Township directs which rail cars go where at the CSX Transportation Rougemere Rail Yard in Dearborn.

Working on the railroad

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

YES, EVEN freight trains have to stop for red lights.

But the signal takes only a few minutes to turn green. Then the Lincoln-Detroit Local train is off after getting its final clearance from the CSX Transportation Rougemere Rail Yard in Dearborn.

After that minor detail, there's nothing to impede the 700.2-ton train on its journey to Plymouth.

Al Markell of Plymouth doesn't say much. He's the engineer of this 18-car freight express carrying cereal to a local supermarket chain. He's traveled down these tracks many times before in his 31 years in the railroad business.

"To me, it's not as fascinating anymore," said Markell, who estimates traveling the same route "thousands of times. It's a job, it's a good job. I enjoy what I do."

Understandably, the excitement has waned. He sees the same sights every day.

ON THIS ROUTE, the train goes behind a remote dumping ground for stolen automobiles in Detroit, passes the Detroit Race Course where you can see some thoroughbreds in action and stops near Middlebelt Road to let off some rail cars.

And occasionally there are breaks in the routine — the automobiles that try to beat the train at crossings and the kids who throw rocks or bottles or play chicken.

But that's as exciting as it gets. On a clear summer day, the ride is very peaceful.

One only needs to watch Markell ("Everyone calls me Al"), calmly operating the 1,453-foot train to get a feeling of serenity.

He occasionally pokes his head out the window, making sure everything is on course. But he knows where this train is going. A Detroit Tigers cap serves as his engineer's hat.

Dale Calkins of Carleton, with walkie-talkie in hand, is with Markell in the small engine compartment. Calkins, 42, keeps in communication with the caboose.

The clicking sound of the metal track giving way to the train and an occasional whistle only add to the ambience.

THE FREIGHT TRAIN: A reigning symbol of industrializaton. We swear at them when they make us late for work.

Yet trains spark a fascination in people unlike any other piece of machinery.

For those who work on the railroad, there's a definite love affair with the train. Many have had family — for many generations — who've worked for the railroad.

Jim Horner, 39, of Livonia oversees operations at the Rougemere rail yard. He started working on the railroad as an 18-year-old in Walbridge, Ohio.

Just the sounds of a freight train fascinate him.

"At night, it's just spooky," said Horner, whose father, grandfather and great-grandfather were employed in the railroad business.

"It's completely black out and all you can hear is the noise, the cars moving on tracks and the clanging of steel when they collide as they hook up.

"You figure up until 10 years ago, everything was shipped by train. Food, perishables . . . everything was shipped by rail. I think why people get so enthused about trains is because they are a part of history."

ROD GODSEY, 36, of Redford Township couldn't care less about the history at the moment. His main concern as yardmaster at Rougemere is supervising which cars go where.

It's not an easy job. Godsey sits in a wooden tower high above where he can keep tabs on the multitude of box cars and engines in the yard.

He works frantically at times trying to keep everything in order. His job might be second in difficulty only to an air traffic controller's.

"Yeah, sometimes it's like that," Godsey said. "In one move, you can tie it all up or loosen it all up."

On this particular run, Godsey has helped line up 18 cars. Only three box cars are filled with cereal. The others are empties that will be refilled in Plymouth or Wixom.

Once the ride starts, so do the stories. Calkins recalls one night when the train hit a pedestrian behind DRC in Livonia.

"We found him four cars down," Calkins said. "His clothes were all ripped, and he was bleeding from the forehead. I said, 'Hey let me call for some help.' He said, 'Naw.' He dusted himself off and started walking

Health Day set for Oct. 24

Oakwood Hospital will present "Women's Health Day — Today's Choices, Tomorrow's Health" from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24, at the Hyatt Regency-Dearborn.

The fourth annual conference on physical and psychological health issues is designed for women of all ages. Advance registration for the event must be completed by Oct. 16.

The featured speaker will be Dr. Penny Wise Budoff, a pioneer in the development of women's health care, an author and lecturer. She will discuss "New Developments in Women's Health."

The day will also include a variety of workshop sessions. Participants may choose two of the sessions.

Workshop topics will be:

- "Straining Family Ties: Drugs and Alcohol." The workshop will be presented by Jane Spisz, a limited licensed psychologist and certified addiction counselor, Human Growth Center Inc.
- "The Essentials of Communicating." Cathy Malito Vestrand, a General Motors Corp. training consultant, will present the workshop.
- "What Everyone Should Know About AIDS," presented by Susan McCreedy of the Special Office for AIDS Prevention, Michigan Department of Public Health.
- "Overcoming Depression," presented by Gail Parker, a psychologist, formerly of WXYZ-TV and radio.
- "The Sandwich Generation," presented by Susan Ganote, director of day care services, Oakwood Hospital.
- "Exercising for the Good Life," presented by Dwight Gaal, director of health and fitness, Bon Secours Hospital.

Price for the program is $28, including registration and luncheon. For more information, call Oakwood Hospital's department of community health and health education, 593-7205.

John Gray of Westland grew up near the Michigan Central station in Detroit, now he makes his living riding the rails.

They've got stories to tell

away. I guess he just wanted to get back to the track."

MARKELL PIPES in with one about the time he and the crew saw what looked like a kid on a bike sitting on the track in the distance. They hoped the kid would move out of the way. When he didn't, panic set in.

"The guy on the radio said, 'Oh no, I'm going to him,'" Markell recalled. The train then passed over where the "cyclist" had been.

". . . At first, nobody wanted to look. Finally I got the guts to look.

"It was a dummy. I damn near had a heart attack."

Both Markell and Calkins remember a simpler time. There's more technology involved in operating a train today.

They recall when flags and lanterns were used instead of radios to direct trains.

Markell pulls out a book out of his duffle bag. It's a rule book.

"We have exams on this stuff," he said with a grimace.

THINGS HAVE to run orderly. Railroads now have to compete with airlines and trucking for business. To keep up, for example, CSX Transportation will be using truck trailers which have rail wheels in addition to regular truck wheels, so they can be transported directly by rail.

The business aspect, though, seems far removed from John Gray's end of it.

The Westland resident leans against the rail and looks out from the caboose. He grew up living only 200 feet from the Michigan Central station in Detroit.

With a puff of a cigarette, he remembers "walking over and talking to the switchmen" as a youth. Now 55, his life is still the railroad.

Safety, security are concerns

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The moving figure in the distance has crouched by the side of the railroad tracks.

The person has something black in his hands.

Nervousness can be detected in the voices of those in the engine.

"They're liable to throw a bottle or rock," said Al Markell, 57, of Plymouth and engineer of the Detroit-Lincoln local freight train that is traveling from Dearborn to Plymouth. "No telling."

Apprehension grows as the train gets closer.

THEN A collective sigh of relief is breathed in the small engine compartment. The person near the tracks turns out to be a photographer, snapping away as the massive engine approaches.

A smile and a wave from the 30ish-looking railroad aficionado greets those in the engine.

"Railroad buffs help us out," said Jim Himes of Livonia and road foreman for CSX Transportation. "They tell kids to stay away from the tracks."

But some kids apparently don't heed such advice. Reports of vandalism along with deaths resulting from kids playing "chicken" with trains have increased.

The object of chicken is to stand in front of an oncoming train, jumping out of the way at the last second. Losers of the game usually don't live to tell about it.

Recently a teenager in Novi, apparently playing chicken, was struck by a train and killed.

In a recent vandalism incident, more than $1 million in damage occurred when a train derailed in Brighton. Someone switching the track is suspected as the cause of the accident, Himes said.

THE MOTIVATION behind such acts is hard to explain. A 700-ton freight train at full throttle is an awesome sight.

Perhaps for some misguided souls, stopping one of the mighty pieces of machinery might provide the ultimate challenge.

At any rate, Himes said CSX Transportation, which has offices in Livonia, sends representatives to area schools to warn kids about the sometimes fatal results of playing around railroad tracks. He believes education is the key.

"Kids don't realize the danger that is involved," he said. "The safety of everyone could be involved, especially when a train is carrying flammables."

Something as simple as throwing a rock at a passing train or placing large objects on the track can cause serious damage to both the occupants and the products on board.

"We've had rocks thrown at us, bottles thrown at us," said Himes, who worked as an engineer before being promoted to foreman. "We've had guys who've had eyes put out."

Himes said the company has few problems in Livonia in terms of vandalism.

In Detroit, however, it's a different story. One stretch of track in the city has the dubious distinction of being labeled the "Ho Chi Minh Trail."

TEENAGERS LURKING around the tracks aren't the only ones who cause dangerous problems for the railroads, however. Drivers who ignore signal crossings are playing their own brand of chicken. Trains at full speed normally don't have time to stop for cars trying to make it through the passing.

"We usually don't stop until after we've struck an object," Himes said. "We have to worry about the safety of the people on the train, plus the commodities that it's carrying."

Another problem is theft from the rail cars. Break-ins usually occur while the train is awaiting clearance from the control tower in the railroad yard, according to Himes. Each rail yard has its own security force that tries to prevent thievery.

New pastor joins Nativity United

The Rev. Donald Lintelman has accepted the position of pastor at Nativity United Church of Christ in Livonia.

Lintelman will begin serving as pastor Sept. 6.

Lintelman served as pastor at the Community United Church in Erie, Pa., since 1979, and was chaplain at the Sarah Reed Retirement Center. Before 1979, he was an executive director at the YMCA, a district director of the Boy Scouts, and a pastor at a United Methodist church. Lintelman was born in Pittsburgh.

Lintelman, ordained by the United Methodist Church, has a master's of theology degree from Wesley Seminary in Washington, D.C. He has completed post-graduate work in counseling and has finished a two-yeag course of study in pastoral care.

Lintelman and his wife, Joan, have three children.

Papal visit raises hard questions

Rev. Lloyd Buss

Most people agree that it will cost $1 million to have the pope visit Detroit.

Some are saying that this is a bargain considering the publicity and media attention generated by the papal visit. Others are saying that this money could better serve the community by keeping archdiocesan schools open.

Contributions to cover the expenses are being received from a variety of sources. Offerings in archdiocesan churches, special appeals to selected contributors, corporate gifts et al are being used to raise the necessary funds. Archdiocesan officials are confident the money will be raised.

Critics of the $1 million expenditure for the papal visit say that the schools need the money. Declining revenues have caused the closing of a number of archdiocesan schools in recent years. The money spent on educating youth would have a longer-term effect than a one-time papal visit.

No one would want to dispute the media effect the papal visit has generated. And generally a pleasant one at that. Papal schedules and activities are always more enjoyable news than gruesome murders and profligate community life.

Displacing news items, however, is not the same as improving public life. The net effect of the papal visit has yet to be determined.

NO ONE would want to dispute the continuing financial needs of our public and private schools. The very nature of our support systems for public and private schools insures austere and unadorned programs.

More money for education has always been considered salutary. Money, however, does not always translate into programs. Diocesan officials have stated that additional funds would not change official decisions to close selected diocesan schools.

Discussions on the cost of papal visits have not been limited to Detroit. Phoenix wants to turn a stadium into a cathedral; Miami wants to build a 100-foot cross and San Francisco has to provide a tarpaulin to protect the playing field at Candlestick Park.

As a member of the religious family, I have followed the discussions with interest. The explanations used by both sides to support their positions are compelling ones. Choosing between the kind of abstract symbolism that a papal visit exhibits and the practical features of teaching children how to read and write is more involved than first imagined.

The discussions, however, have been only for effect. No one believes that the papal visit will be canceled and the funds saved transferred to diocesan schools.

THE IRONY is that a great portion of the money required for the papal visit to Detroit will be spent on security and media needs. Spending large sums of money to protect religious leaders and promote their presence is surely a sign of how much we have to do in our public life to make our communities experience peace and good order.

We want the papal visit to go well. It can be a time of refreshing and remembering the ultimate values of our life together. And when the papal visit is over we will have to attend to those practical issues that often prevent the ultimate values from ever being realized.

Teaching children how to read and write is not something our community can afford to neglect. Perhaps the next papal visit will then not require massive expenditures for security and promotion.

The Rev. Lloyd D. Buss is the pastor of the Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester Hills.

Madonna series to look at aging

"Report on Gerontological Perspectives in Spiritual Awareness" will be the first of four lectures on aging, at Madonna College in Livonia.

The first lecture will take place from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 25, at Madonna College.

Researchers in the field of gerontology will address the issues of aging in the series.

Celeste Bowman will be the speaker at the Sept. 25 lecture. Bowman is currently a graduate student of religious studies at the University of Detroit and received a certificate in aging and mental health at Madonna College.

At 1 p.m., Sister M. Ann Stamm, chairwoman of the Religious Studies–Philosophy department at Madonna, will discuss "Spirituality of Grief."

Other topics in the series will include:

● "Aging in other Cultures" will be addressed by Eva Huseby-Darvas, adjunct lecturer at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, 1-4:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 2.

● "Medical Aspects of Grief" and "Osteoporosis Prevention and Management" will be discussed by Dr. James Peggs, assistant professor at the University of Michigan Medical School Department of Family Practice, 1-4:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 23.

● "The Future of Social Security" will be the topic W. Andrew Achenbaum, director of the Aging Society Policy Studies Center at the University of Michigan, will focus on 1-4:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 16.

The lectures are free and open to the public. They will take place in Kresge Hall.

The series may be taken for college credit or continuing education units. For more information, call 591-5096.

CHURCHES OF GOD

At RIVERSIDE PARK CHURCH we believe ...in the present reign of Christ over sin and its effects. That reign is seen as persons experience God's healing power in body, mind and spirit. The kingly reign of Christ will have final fulfillment when He returns, takes His people unto Himself, judges those apart from Him, and initiates the "new heaven and new earth."
Join us in following Him!

Women's spirituality is symposium's focus

"And Sarah Laughed: A Symposium on the Spiritual Woman" is the title of a two-day symposium sponsored by Mercy College of Detroit Women's Interests Committee. The two-day spirituality symposium is Oct. 19-20 at the Mercy College Conference Center.

The concurrent sessions will include "The Language of Prayer," "If Women had Written the Stories," and "Women as Healer."

E.M. Broner, prize-winning playwright, novelist and professor, will be one of the speakers. Her works include "Her Mothers," "A Weave of Women," and "The Body Parts of Margaret Fuller." She has been honored as a Wonder Woman by the Wonder Woman Foundation for her work on liturgy.

Mary Loomis, clinical psychologist, teacher and co-author of "Singer-Loomis Inventory of Personality," will also be a guest speaker at the symposium. She is currently in private practice as a Jungian analyst.

Tivka Frymer-Kensky, visiting associate professor of Women's Studies at the University of Michigan, is also scheduled to appear. Frymer-Kensky is a poet and researcher whose works include "The Judicial Ordeal in the Ancient Near East," "In the Wake of the Goddesses," and "Motherprayer," a collection of essays and poems. She will conduct a reading from "Motherprayer" during the symposium.

Cost for the two-day event is $55, which will include lunch. Those who register before Wednesday, Sept. 2, will receive a $10 discount.

For more information, call 592-6158.

Gumbleton to speak at YW peace dedication

The YWCA of Metropolitan Detroit will dedicate itself as a "Peace Site" at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 13, at the Northwest YWCA Branch, 25940 Grand River, Redford.

Bishop Thomas Gumbleton will speak at the event.

Entertainment and a potluck supper will be part of the dedication. The event will be held in conjunction with a three-day visit of international YWCA delegates representing five countries in Europe, Africa and the Pacific. The event is open to the public. For more information, call 537-8500.

Charismatics' conference draws 35,000 participants

AP — Contingents from about 30 denominations were among the 35,000 charismatic Christians participating in the recent North American Conference on the Holy Spirit in New Orleans.

About half of the participants were Roman Catholics.

At times, their singing-in-tongues filled the Louisiana Superdome with a multitude of unrehearsed, different melodies.

The Rev. Vinson Synlan, a Pentecostal leader of Oklahoma City, predicted "the pentecostal and charismatic form of Christianity will become the predominant form of Christianity by the end of this century."

The movement claims to be the fastest-growing Christian force, now numbering 277 million Protestant and Roman Catholic adherents worldwide.

Its ecumenical aspect is based on shared experience of "gifts of the Spirit" rather than on dissecting doctrine.

Video interviews help companies hire

By Carolyn Carman
special writer

When you're called for your next job interview, smile. You just might be in front of a camera.

Videotaped interviews performed by the Corporate Interviewing Network are the latest method used by employers to screen candidates for jobs.

The advantages of video interviewing are many, says Steven Opperthauser, president of CIN.

"The Corporate Interviewing Network dramatically reduces the cost per hire because employers can now reduce the number of people brought in for on-site interviews," Opperthauser said.

Local companies using videotaped interviews include Federal-Mogul's World Headquarters, CBS/Fox Video, Warner-Lambert, Parke-Davis, Eastern Michigan University, General Motors Tech Center and GMI Engineering and Management Institute.

"The companies seeking candidates will contact us and give us the names of candidates they have screened by resume," Opperthauser said. "They give us a list of questions they want asked, and we schedule and conduct the interviews in our office and send the taped interview on to the company."

Management can then review the interviews at its convenience and decide who will be brought in for on-site interviews.

The savings can be substantial. Victor Rutana of Warner-Lambert/Parke-Davis said using CIC saved $3,000-$5,000 in filling a personnel supervisor position.

OPPERTHAUSER says the average cost per hire for management level personnel now exceeds $15,000, according to the Employment Management Association. This includes everything from recruiters' fees to airfare and lodging expenses.

The videotaped interview is also a good tool for search committees.

"We do a lot of work for universities and municipalities, and the videotape eliminates some of the steps when considering all of the candidates," he said.

Another benefit for companies is they can review the tape again and again if they so desire.

For the job candidate there is flexibility in scheduling. Interviews can be scheduled for evenings or weekends eliminating the need to take time from their current job.

Opperthauser says the process is fair because each candidate for a particular job is asked the same set of questions.

"The questions are made up by the employer but we have an Employer Guidelines booklet which is a compendium of interviewer's questions," he said. "The questions are also screened through Equal Employment Opportunity Commission guidelines."

CIN DOES NOT edit interviews. The camera, camouflaged behind a plant, runs non-stop until the end of the interview.

"This is the same idea as an in-person interview. You couldn't say to an interviewer, 'Forget I said that' and be able to eliminate an answer," Opperthauser said.

Nor are interviewees prompted or told how to dress.

"There's no coaching primarily so the client can see them as their true selves. Employers like to see what people wear. If a person were to come in to interview for an executive position wearing a polyester suit, the client would take that into consideration."

Opperthauser was going to use CIN himself when he was seeking a job in 1985. Instead, after talking to the then owner, he decided to go into partnership with the owner.

The Southfield-based operation is located at 25160 Lahser Road where Opperthauser has a 990 square-foot suite of offices. There are three other employees, an interviewer, an office manager and an account executive, he said.

CIN generally conducts about 10 to 20 interviews a week. The videotaped interviews are available in 20- and 40-minute formats. The 20-minute interview costs a company $50 and the 40-minute interviews $100.

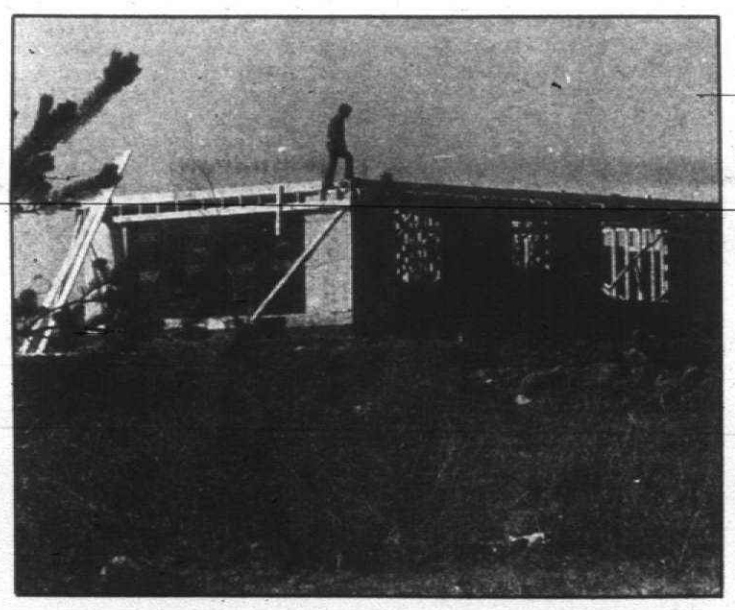
The company boasts about 300 accounts nationwide, including Arthur D. Little accounting firm in Chicago and the Mariott Corp. in Rockwell, Md.

Opperthauser says CIN fills all types and levels of employment positions.

"The positions we place vary," he said. "We have placed secretaries, internal auditors and deans for colleges and universities."

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

Video interviews can cut the cost of hiring a new person because fewer people need to be interviewed in person, according to Steven Opperthauser.



Vacant lots have become scarce — and expensive

Price of vacant lots rising as the supply is dwindling

By Philip A. Sherman
special writer

The law of supply and demand has tightened its grip on the land market. Specifically, land on which single-family houses can be built.

Commonly called lots, they measure an average of 90-by-120 feet — wide enough for a house and maybe an attached garage.

In the Farmington Hills area, that lot costs an average of $50,000.

Want trees? Add another $10,000.

That's according to Jerry Edwards, a broker for Century 21 of Michigan, who said lots are increasing in price from Birmingham to Plymouth. So few undeveloped prime parcels of land are available that buyers with big bank accounts have, and are, boosting prices into the mid five- and six-figure realms.

It's not just happening here. "U.S. Housing Markets," published by Lomas and Nettleton, America's largest independent mortgage banker, also sees the escalating lot price trend in places such as California, Chicago and Northfolk, Va.

In the Detroit area for mid-1986 to mid-1987, "Housing Markets" says prices increased 15 percent, which pushed the average single-family lot cost to $30,000 to $50,000.

For comparison purposes, the same report says Boston prices rose 20 percent during the same time period, pegging the typical lot cost at $85,000 to $100,000.

THIS ASSUMES that you can find a lot to buy. Rick Chrzanowski, owner of Appleridge Construction in Plymouth, said lot prices aren't a problem because there aren't any lots left in Plymouth.

"In Plymouth, you can just about write your own price if you've got a lot," Chrzanowski said. "I don't think there are any lots left in Plymouth Township, and maybe just a few pieces left in Canton Township." A year ago, he said the average price was in the $40,000 range; today, it's in the $50,000 range.

"I know of one lot in Plymouth that changed hands, without a sign going up, for $65,000," Chrzanowski added.

When asked why lots move so quickly for so much, Dennis Dickstein, president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, dusted off an old joke:

"Location, location and . . . location."

"Prices are climbing in some areas faster than others due to availability of choice," Dickstein said. Buyers who want to live in the Birmingham or Bloomfield Hills area will have their choices of lots and prices.

"But if they say, 'I want to live in the city of Bloomfield Hills,' then they're dealing with a diminishing supply and they'll pay for that address," Dickstein said. For the first time, he's seen lakefront lots going for $350,000 to $400,000. "And then people tear down the houses on those lots to build new ones."

ONE OAKLAND County builder who asked not to be named agreed with Dickstein. "Location is very important — proximity to transportation, the school district and the availability of land. Availability can vary tremendously in the area, but let me put it this way. It's expensive. Very expensive. There's nothing cheap anymore."

The esthetic qualities of the lot play second to location. "Even a tree brings a premium," said Barb Cohoe, community manager for The Brody Group, a Troy builder. "They all want wooded, and they want big."

Plymouth builder Chrzanowski added lots that will allow construction of walk-out basements to the list of buyer requests.

But one large real estate agency doesn't see lot price hikes as the main reason for increases in prices of existing houses.

"We think it's almost entirely due to interest rates," said Bill Barrett, senior vice president of Real Estate One. "Sales were up in January through March, and they dropped in April due to the interest rate hike.

"The market came back in June, and we're already ahead in July. We've got more listings, and homes are staying on the market a reasonable length of time as opposed to last summer when it was frantic."

Airline deregulation brings mixed benefits

By Philip A. Sherman
special writer

Among its benefits, airline deregulation was intended to help the average airline passenger with lower fares and more choices of carriers. But just how friendly are the friendly skies when stories about late departures, missed connections and missing luggage abound?

Check with Brent Garback.

Garback, president of Total Travel Management of Birmingham, was asked by state Rep. Curtis Hertel, D-Detroit, to lead a citizens' task force, which opened public hearings Aug. 18 in Grand Rapids. Before it's through, Garback's air show will have held seven open forums, the last two on Sept. 14 in Detroit and Sept. 16 in Lansing.

The 12-member task force is charged with "studying the impact of deregulation on consumers and assessing the overall economic impact as a consequence," he said. Findings will be presented by Dec. 31 to the House Transportation Committee. "At this point, we are not sure of the consumer benefit, if any, of airline deregulation," Garback added.

"Airline consumers appear to be in a better position today, with 12 asterisks after that statement," Garback said. "Is it really better? Did you know when airlines offer a $29 seat special, they really only need to offer one seat at that price?"

Garback also said that when an airline says a seat is non-refundable, "they mean non-refundable or we'll come and seize your child. And how about false imprisonment? When they put you on a plane and let you sit on the runway for 45 minutes?"

"DEREGULATION WAS supposed to generate more air carriers and more choices for the consumer. Instead, we've gone from 30 carriers to six, and we've moved from an oligopoly to a monopoly. Even if another carrier comes in and wants to offer a service, they can't find gate space," Garbeck said.

At its July 31 pre-tour meeting, the task force discussed several issues it thinks could be contributing to consumer air traffic problems. On at least one of those issues — the Aviation Trust Fund — Garbeck and the airlines are in agreement.

"Every airline ticket sold has an 8 percent tax that is paid to the government," said Jim Lundy, manager of public relations for Delta Airlines. "There's a $5 billion surplus in that fund. The tax is supposed to fund improvements for airports and airways. That money has never been spent."

Lundy said the money instead is being used to lower the country's budget deficit. Lundy and others in the airline industry are not critical of deregulation so much as they are critical of an overworked air traffic control system.

"We think one of the benefits of deregulation is that it's taken air travel and put it within economic reach of a much greater segment of the population," Lundy said. "Before deregulation, few flew on discounted fares. As demand has increased, the industry has tried to keep pace, but the air traffic control system has not been able to keep up with that demand."

Deregulation of airlines brings mixed benefits

PAUL AUGER, vice president of marketing for Midway Airlines, agreed.

"Snarls are the product of an air traffic system that's 1950s technology, not deregulation," Auger said, wondering why the surplus money in the Aviation Trust Fund hasn't been spent. "Consumer demand has put more planes and more traffic in the sky."

Auger said that in 1978, the year the skies were deregulated, 225 million flew. This year that figure will approach 400 million, which he credits to lower fares as a result of deregulation.

Responding to questions about arrival and departure performance, Auger and Lundy see safety as a good reason to slow the system when necessary.

"We try out best to operate on time, but safety comes first with us," Lundy said. "We'd never dispatch a flight unless everything was ready to go."

But delays are not the only items on Garback's list. He also wants to know how the typical passenger feels about getting bumped off a flight, carriers assessing fuels charges of $1-$9 per passenger, lost ticket applications that sell for $20-$35 and other "hidden charges."

"We're printing up a million postcards, pre-addressed to the Department of Transportation, and we're getting to get them into the hands of the consumers" so they can personally can detail their air miseries, Garback said. In the meantime, passengers can complain to the government about airline problems by writing to the Consumer Affairs Department, U.S. Department of Transportation, I-25, Washington, D.C. 20590.

Convertible bonds can offer safety, growth finances and you

Sid Mittra

Paraphrasing the old cliche, I can say that there is such an investment as the best of both worlds.

In fact, a kind of have-it-both ways flexibility is what make convertible bonds so attractive in today's uncertain world.

This chameleon of the securities industry is sparking renewed interest among investors who believe they are perfect for a volatile market climate. Real interest rates (yield minus inflation) are still very high.

Yet concern about the budget deficit, inflation, low productivity and international crisis are putting a damper on the long-term outlook for the stock market. Convertibles let you hedge your bets and play both sides of the market.

What are they?

Convertible bonds give the right to convert bonds into common stock. Usually, the number of shares for which a convertible bond can exchanged is fixed, and the conversion privelege lasts for the life on the bond.

Convertible bonds are considered a hybrid security because they combine attributes of common stock and corporate bonds in a single security holder. They can participate in the appreciation potential of the associated equities.

In addition, convertible bonds can provide the investor with downside protection in the event of a significant decline in equity prices. Equally important, convertible bonds represent an obligation on the part of the corporation to make regular interest payments.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS are usually protected against stock splits and stock dividends. The terms of conversion are flexible so that the security holder will not be shortchanged as a result of changes in the price of common stock due to stock splits and stock dividends.

For example, if a bond is convertible in to 20 shares, the conversion ratio would be increased to 40, after a 2-for-1 stock splits.

Convertible bonds generally contain a call provision, which specifies the price at which the bond can be called away and retired at the option of the issuer.

Generally, callable bonds are callable from the day they are issued; therefore, they do not enjoy a call protection. When a convertible bond is called, the holder has two options. Accept the call price or elect to convert the bond into common stock.

OBVIOUSLY, THE bond holder will elect to convert if the conversion value of the bond - that is, the market value of the stock for which it is exchanged - is greater than the call price.

Next week: How convertibles work.

Market opportunity analysis can steer business right

Mary DiPaolo

When opportunity knocks, why is it that so many of us would rather knock opportunity?

Regardless of the specific situation, the process of seeking out, evaluating and acting upon the "right" opportunities can make the difference between achieving long-lasting personal and professional success — and failing miserably at anything we attempt.

Within the small-business environment, market opportunity analysis is a very important aspect of management decision making.

Its purpose is to best match the right opportunities to a company's resources (what the company is capable of doing) and its objectives (what the company wants to do). In this way, the company can capitalize on its strengths, while avoiding its weaknesses.

DEPENDING ON nagement philosophy, the search for new market opportunities may occur in any one of three ways.

"Innovators" aggressively look for opportunities that result in the firm's standing out from its competition — allowing for the creation of a temporary monopoly in "its own little market."

"Creative imitators" are those firms that seek out opportunities based on what industry leaders have done or are doing.

Lastly, "Me-Too" organizations are those that avoid all risk associated with acting on attractive opportunities — until everyone else operating within the industry has already done so.

The accounting services industry is an excellent example of market opportunity analysis at work. Accounting services companies have undergone much change over the past 10 year period, according to Susan Robach, director of communications for the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

"TEN YEARS ago, the traditional accounting, tax, and auditing services represented all that was offered to independent business by majority."

Robach goes on to say that it wasn't until the early '80s that the larger accounting firms began to identify an existing need among clients to be provided with additional services in the areas of financial planning, management, and marketing consulting.

"Initially, the Big Eight accounting firms were the only ones capable of capitalizing on this opportunity, since they had the resources and manpower to do so."

The industry has a way to go before the majority of industry participants offer such a wide-range of services, Robach said.

"THERE HAS been much growth over the past five years with many small-to-medium sized firms offering services such as business forecasting, personal financial planning, and market analysis.

"As clients recognize what may be made available to them, we will then see more and more firms offering the services to best satisfy these needs."

Next week, we will discuss the step-by-step process involved in turning firm opportunities into a working business reality.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series "Focus: The Small Business Environment."

American Family should have bright future

today's investor
Thomas E. O'Hara
of the National Association of Investors Corp.

You answered a question some time back about American Family Corp. and were quite optimistic about its future. I bought the stock in the 20s, and it went up to 37¼ and then split two for one.

After that, the stock started down and has been as low as 10. That's equal to 20 before the split and is a drop of almost 50 percent.

The company still seems to be growing and making money. How would you explain that drop in price?

It is important that anyone who buys stock keep in mind that there are two things that determine the price at which a stock sells.

One of those things is the value of the stock as shown by the growth in the business and management's ability to continue that growth and make money on the business it does. Most of us can get a pretty good idea of that value of the business by spending a little time studying its record and thinking about the business.

The other thing that determines the selling price of a stock is the prevailing attitude of the investing public, both toward the overall stock market and that particular stock.

A LOOK at American Family's record shows the company has grown its business well above the average for most businesses. It has also made a good percent of profit on the business it does.

It did have a period when the dollar was depreciating against the yen when its profits were particularly large. That was because it does about 70 percent of its business in Japan.

This meant the Japanese business suddenly translated into a lot more dollars and consequently a larger profit. That surge in higher profits is now over and a more normal, but good rate of return is being earned.

ABOUT THAT time, the perception of the company's future seemed to change among some investors. There was some concern among institutional investors that the decline in the yen would cause a depression in Japan and that American Family's business there would suffer.

This was the reason advanced by some institutions when they sold large holdings of American Family. Their large-scale selling drove its price down.

That selling seems to be over. The company still seems to have an excellent future. Its stock will be listed on the Tokyo Stock Exchange shortly and that should enlarge interest in the stock. The basic value of the company seems strong. It's hard to guess when it will be exceptionally popular with investors again.

September offers a taste of autumn

By Raymond E. Bullock
special writer

Astronomical events for the month of September include the start of autumn, the southernmost position of the moon in 18.6 years, a rare occultation (covering) of the Pleiades by the moon, and an eclipse of the sun which, alas, will not be visible from North America.

The length of the day decreases by one hour and 21 minutes in September. On Sept. 1, sunrise is at 6:57 a.m., and sunset is at 8:07 p.m. This allows for a possible 13 hours and 10 minutes of sunlight. On Sept. 30, these times are 7:27 a.m. and 7:16 p.m., respectively, allowing 11 hours and 49 minutes of sunlight.

Face south southwest on the evening of Sept. 1, and locate the moon. The star to the west (right) of the moon is Antares, the orange-red "heart" of Scorpius the scorpion. Above and to the left of Antares is the planet Saturn. Saturn, Antares, and the moon form a large triangle.

The moon is within the "teapot" of Sagittarius on Sept. 2.

The moon will be full on Sept. 7. It may surprise many to learn that this is not the "Harvest Moon." The Harvest Moon is the full moon that occurs closest to the beginning of autumn.

This year autumn begins on the Sept. 23, which is 16 days away from Sept. 7. The next full moon, on Oct. 7, is only 14 days from the beginning of autumn, so October full moon is the Harvest Moon.

LOOK EAST about two hours after sunset on Sept. 9, and you'll see Jupiter, looking like a bright star, below and to the left of the moon. Do the same thing on the Sept. 10, and notice how far the moon has moved from one night to the next. You should be able to predict where the moon will be the following night, Sept. 11.

The moon will pass through the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster on the evening of Sept. 12, occulting (covering) a number of stars over the course of several hours. This is the best Pleiades occultation we will see this year. The moon and Pleiades will rise about two hours after sunset, with occultations beginning around 11 p.m., and lasting through 2:30 a.m. on the morning of Sept. 13.

You have to be patient watching occultations; the moon moves slowly as it passes between the earth and the stars, covering and uncovering the Pleiades. Best views will be with a low power telescope or binoculars. (For detailed information on the occultation see the September issue of Sky & Telescope magazine, page 284.)

skywatch

For people who get up before the sun, look for the moon, high in the south, on the morning of Sept. 13. To the left of the moon are the Pleiades, which the moon occulted earlier in the morning. Below and to the right of the moon is Aldebaran, the "eye" of Taurus the Bull.

The moon is approaching last quarter phase on the morning of Sept. 14. The moon is still in Taurus, forming a large triangle with Aldebaran and the Pleiades.

THE MOON moves into the constellation of Gemini the Twins and, on the morning of Sept. 17, is just to the south (right) of Pollux, one of the two stars marking the "heads" of the twins. The other star, Castor, is above Pollux. Look again on the morning of Sept. 18, and notice how much the moon has moved in one day.

On Sept. 20, the star Regulus, the "heart" of Leo the Lion, is just below the crescent moon in the east.

New moon occurs at 11:08 p.m. on the evening of Sept. 22. The moon is exactly between the earth and the sun and is not visible. Because the moon is exactly between Earth and sun, an eclipse of the sun occurs but, since the sun is not visible in our sky at 11:08 p.m., the eclipse is not visible. It is visible to people in Asia and the South Pacific.

Autumn officially begins at 9:45 a.m. on Sept. 23. But what is it that determines that precise moment? It's a combination of the earth's orbit and its tilt.

THE EARTH IS divided into a northern hemisphere and a southern hemisphere by an imaginary line called the equator. If this equator is extended out into space it cuts the sky into a northern and southern hemisphere, but now the imaginary line is called the celestial equator.

Because our earth is tilted 23½ degrees, the sun can appear to be 23½ degrees above the celestial equator or 23½ degrees below it. When the sun is at its highest point in the sky north of the celestial equator, in June when the days are long and warm, we have summer. When the sun is at its lowest, in December when the days are short and cold, we have winter.

The Plymouth Inn

The Gracious Alternative

Someone you love is growing older and needs just a bit more support than he or she can get in their current living situation. A nursing home isn't the answer. Normal activities like eating and dressing aren't a problem. But you would be happier knowing someone was there to provide gentle encouragement and firm support when needed, in a non-institutional atmosphere.

The answer is The Plymouth Inn, a magnificent residence for seniors who want their independence but need some supervision as well. Consider some of the many advantages:

- Spacious mini-suites for those who desire extra comfort and privacy.
- Deluxe semi-private accomodations, richly appointed, with private lavatories and showers.
- Easily accessible via I-96 and I-275; only 30 minutes from both downtown Detroit and the northern suburbs, including Farmington Hills, Birmingham and West Bloomfield.
- Tranquil landscaped grounds and lovely common areas.
- Three delicious meals served in our central dining room by a friendly, attentive staff of professionals.
- Extensive, varied social programs and recreational opportunities.
- Game room, chapel, beauty parlor and lounges, all designed with the special needs of our residents in mind.

The Plymouth Inn welcomes your inspection visit. When you see what we have to offer we think you will agree that The Plymouth Inn is a very special place where your loved one can feel secure, yet independent. We invite you to call today for an appointment.

Behind the bands: 'Saturday Night Live'

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

TWENTY-THREE-YEAR-OLD John Zonars is back in town, staying with his family in Birmingham. Come fall he will be in New York again where he works on the TV comedy hit "Saturday Night Live."

On "SNL," Zonars works behind the scenes as liaison between the bands that appear on the show and the program's staff. One of the reasons Zonars gets along so well with the bands is that he's a rock musician himself.

Zonars plays electric guitar with the band Pyramid, which will be headlining Friday at St. Andrews Hall in Detroit. Doors open at 9 p.m., and the band Boyhood will open for Pyramid.

"We went for the top. We went for St. Andrew's Hall," he said. "It's one of the best venues for bands such as ourselves. It holds 1,500 people."

With Pyramid, Zonars is promoter, manager and musical director, as well as lead guitar player. He works closely with his partner, Darius Gueramy of Midland. "He is basically the source of the band's material. He write all the songs. I'm responsible for the arrangement of the Pyramid material, which Darius writes," Zonars said.

Other band members include Christopher Crump of West Bloomfield, bass guitarist, who along with Zonars and Gueramy form the nucleus of the group; Eric Hoenicke of Midland, drummer; Anastasia Brown of Midland, keyboard player, and Jerry Roland of Royal Oak, trumpeter.

THIS IS the fifth year for the band, which Zonars and Gueramy formed five years ago at Albion College. It's Zonars' third season for "SNL."

In an interview at his home last week, the dark-eyed musician spoke enthusiastically about his participation in the TV show. "It's a great gig. I love it. I couldn't have asked for a more suitable job for myself. I have what you might call a Yuppie vein. It allows for me to emphasize any business talent I have."

Zonars first joined "SNL" on a college internship. "I chanced into an internship with 'Saturday Night Live' and went through a series of little promotions," he said. "I was asked back for the second season and for the third season."

When Zonars returns to New York this fall, he will be joined by bandmates Gueramy and Crump of Darius Productions (Gueramy is president). "We will all move back together. We want to get a loft in Soho," he said.

Zonars will continue playing with the band, along with his "SNL" job. His schedule is hectic. "There are times when I work 80 hours a week or more. ON top of that, there are times I'm doing things for Darius Productions. It becomes quite involved."

DETAILING HIS schedule with the TV show, he said, "I get in around 11 a.m. and may work till midnight. We do three shows a month. The fourth week is rerun. Sometimes there are only two shows a month.

"The week there is a show, there's an intensive day-by-day schedule, usually 12-hour days for everything. The day of the show, I go in at 9 a.m. and don't leave until 2 a.m. The entire time I'm running around. I'm responsible for the house band and for any piece of music that's on the show. Any sketch with a cast member or host performing a musical number, I get the instrument there."

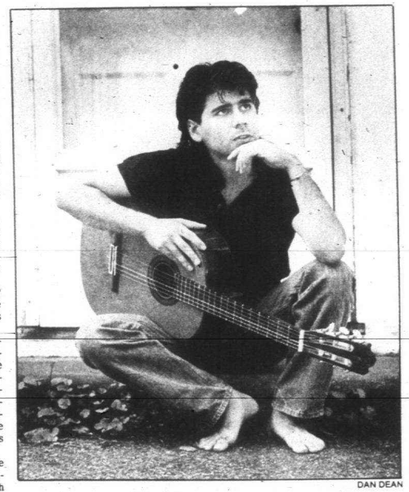
Zonars said a full dress rehearsal, about two hours in length, is held for the show, which airs from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. "We cut the stuff that doesn't work," he said.

Although he works with the bands that appear on the show, he doesn't select them. "I don't make the decisions. I act as a researcher." Each day, record companies send an average of 10 albums, of bands they would like to have booked on the show.

The major part of my work comes after the band has been booked," he continued. "I coordinate all logistics for their equipment, accommodations, or, more importantly, when that band is in the studio — at Rockefeller Center, NBC — and they need somebody to talk to (anywhere from they don't like the sound to there's no ginger ale in the refrigerator)."

ZONARS SAID he represents both sides, the band and the show. If he helps the band, "They're more relaxed. They produce better. After the show, they said, 'You're the coolest TV cat we've every worked with . . . I'm just being me . . . I'm a rock musician."

Zonars began playing the guitar at the age of 15. Earlier, he had played cornet and then piano. "I picked up the guitar and I just worked on it by myself," he said. "I cut the guy's lawn behind me for a summer for his guitar and amp."



DAN DEAN

John Zonars of Birmingham likes to sit by the side door and play his acoustic guitar when visiting his family. He plays with the band Pyramid and also is active behind the scenes on TV's "Saturday Night Live."

Movie music has his touch

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

PUTTING TOGETHER programs of music from the movies — along with film clips or slides, combined with laser lights — is the job of Birmingham resident Allen Cohen.

He's executive film music producer at Meadow Brook Music Festival, where he has prepared this weekend's Laser Light Spectacular! The concert is Friday and Saturday, at 8:30 p.m., when it's dark enough for the slides to be seen on screen. Charles Greenwell will conduct the Meadow Brook Festival orchestra.

"I've loved film music since I can remember," said the bearded Cohen, in a visit to the Birmingham office of the Observer & Eccentric. "Film music, in many respects, is the music of our time. So much music of any lasting quality has come from film."

"If people like Mendelssohn, Wagner or Beethoven were alive today, I have a strong suspicion they would be writing for film."

Cohen brought with him copies of the programs he has worked on for the festival over the last several years. "We have gone from a one-page program to a four-page booklet," he said.

EACH YEAR'S movie music concert has a theme, and for 1987 it's "Science Fiction Fantasy Extravaganza."

"There will be selections from 'Star Wars,' 'The Empire Strikes Back,' 'Gremlins' and 'Dune,' among others," Cohen said. An important feature of the evening will be four world concert premieres of pieces from films scored by Bernard Herrmann. Cohen said the music has been recorded.

"We're playing music from 'Mysterious Island' (1961), 'The Seventh Voyage of Sinbad' (1958), 'Jason and the Argonauts' (1963) and 'The Day the Earth Stood Still' (1951)."

Cohen said presentation of the music for the premieres is "due to the efforts of John Waxman and people at the Bernard Herrmann Archives of Santa Barbara, which is involved in preserving film music."

He explained that many film scores and parts are not available as sheet music, or to the general public, and that he must contact museums and movie studios to find the music and obtain permission to use it at Meadow Brook.

For this weekend's concerts Cohen is pleased to be working with Charles Greenwell, conductor and music director of radio station WQRS. He is also music director and conductor of the Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra. Cohen described Greenwell as "versatile," then added, "He's a brilliant guy."

ONE REASON science fiction movies were chosen for this year's theme, Cohen said, is because they are popular. "Look at the box-office receipts. Not only were many of these films great, music really added to the effect of the films."

"Electronics play an active part in a lot of sci. fi films. This is most apparent in 'The Day the Earth Stood Still,'" he said. The composer Herrmann, was a pioneer in this type of film, which uses such space-age musical instruments as synthesizers and electronic organs.

But not all sci. fi movies rely on modern wizardry. He noted, "The film 'Things to Come' (1936), which was a famous sci. fi film in its day, relied on a standard orchestra. And 'Star Wars' doesn't use any electronics." Selections from both movies will be presented at this year's Laser Light Spectacular!

Cohen starts working six to nine months ahead for each movie music concert, trying to obtain the music and also to coordinate efforts with the conductor, who may suggest some pieces he would like to include on the program. Another aspect of Cohen's job is obtaining the movie stills that will be converted into slides, to be shown accompanied by laser lights.

He also works with Jennifer Morris at Image Engineering in Boston (the company has a local office in Troy) on the laser light show. He sends her excerpts on videotape or the entire film from movies that will be on the program.

"THEY MAY simulate characters on screen," he said. This went over big at a concert featuring a segment on music from Disney movies. The cult classic "King Kong" also was a winner. The audience cheered in 1985, when a picture of King Kong storming New York appeared on the screen."

Cohen said abstracts also are used and that "other laser lights bounce off strategically placed lights."

In a scene from "The Day the Earth Stood Still" (1951) the robot, Gort, revitalizes a character named Klaatu (Michael Rennie). Patricia Neal looks on. Four musical pieces, including one from this film, will have their world concert premieres Friday and Saturday at the Meadow Brook Music Festival.

Earlier this year, Cohen worked on another Meadow Brook concert that offered "Music from the Great Motion Pictures." John Addison conducted the Detroit Symphony Pops Orchestra. For this concert, film clips were used instead of slides.

Besides his responsibilities at Meadow Brook, Cohen also works for Telarc Corp. "One of the leading recording companies manufacturing compact discs," he said. Cohen does artist and repertoire consulting for Telarc and helped with the recent CD "Roundup," with Erich Kunzul conducting the Cincinnati Pops and Frankie Laine on the vocals, and with another disc released last week, "Star Tracks II" again features Kunzul and the Cincinnati Pops.

Before joining Telarc, Cohen worked for two record labels as regional sales manager and promotion manager in the Midwest. He spent about 13 years, up to 1985, in classical record retailing with Discount Records in Birmingham.

In 1983, Stuart Hyke, managing director of the Meadow Brook Music Festival, asked Cohen to serve on an advisory board, giving suggestions to Sir Neville Marriner, at that time artistic director of Meadow Brook.

WHEN HYKE decided to stage a concert of music from great motion pictures in 1984, he called upon Cohen. "This was the first one to use laser lights," he recalled.

In 1985, Cohen commissioned a special arrangement from "Wuthering Heights" (1939), and in 1986, he presented a couple of world premieres, one of "Sahara Suite" (1943), composed by Miklos Roxsa for a Humphrey Bogart film, and "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" (1939), composed by Franz Waxman for a Mickey Rooney film.

A story in Monday's issue of the Observer & Eccentric should have said tickets for the third annual Champagne Gala, hosted by the French-American Chamber of Commerce, are $45 per person.

A tasting of fine French champagnes sparks the event at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 16, at Somerset Mall in Troy. Patrons may sample Bollinger, Bricout, Bruno Paillard, Lanson, Laurent Perrier, Lechere, Louis Roederer, Mumm, Perrier-Jouet, Piper Heidsieck and Veuve Clicquot champagnes. A fashion show featuring Louis Dell'Olio and his autumn '87 Anne Klein collection will be hosted by Saks Fifth Avenue, to complete the evening. For more information, call Cynthia McMahon at 964-2423. Also participating in this year's benefit is the International Visitor's Council of Metropolitan Detroit.

Pianist prepares for Juilliard study

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

The talent and potential of pianist David Strickland are very evident to those who know him. While studying at Wayne State University, Strickland had to overcome various financial obstacles in his determined quest for a fulfilling musical career. But whatever shortage there was in financial assets was made up in other ways.

Strickland had two important things going for him during these years. One of those is his own tremendous talent, without which everything else in his chosen career would be moot. The other was his teacher, Mischa Kottler, a recognized authority in piano performance for many years. Internationally famed artists such as Ruth Laredo and Cynthia Raim are two of his many disciples.

Strickland has reached an important crossroad in his life. He is going to continue his studies at the prestigious Juilliard School of Music. Moving to New York, far from his support base, will involve even more financial challenges.

review

FOR EXAMPLE, he will be without his own piano and will have to rely on the instruments at the school. As part of an effort to raise money toward his education at Juilliard, Strickland gave a special recital at the Metropolitan United Methodist Church in Detroit earlier this month.

upcoming things to do

Tracy Lee and the Leonards will appear at Detroit's New Center Park for the last concert of the 1987 season's free series, beginning at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 10. The finale also will feature Bridgett Grace and Company.

● OPEN HOUSE

"Be a Part of History," an open house, will be 6-9 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 27, at the Shafer-Wayne theater in downtown Wayne. Guests will help celebrate the 60th anniversary of the old theater's opening night on Aug. 27 in 1927. The Shafer-Wayne was originally a vaudeville theater and later a movie house. Guests will tour the building and learn how they can assist in restoring the theater to its former splendor and reopening as a regional performing arts center.

● MICHIGAN FESTIVAL

Many Michigan performers highlight the Michigan Festival, on its Folk, New Initiatives for the Arts/Jazz Kaleidoscope, East Lansing, Children's, Theatre, and Speakeasy Stages, through Monday, Aug. 31, on the Michigan State University campus in East Lansing. The festival features more than 500 Michigan performers, 10 days of events, 10 stages and Coca-Cola Main Stage performers including Peter, Paul and Mary, the Temptations, Sawyer Brown and Tommy James and the Shondells. Admission to all 10 outdoor stages and special events for the 10 days of the festival is included with the purchase of a Michigan Festival Button, at $8. Button tickets, redeemable for buttons at the festival, may be purchased by charge card through statewide Ticketmaster outlets or by calling Ticketmaster at 423-6666.

● HAMTRAMCK FESTIVAL

The Gaylords, who started their careers in Michigan in the '50s, and Borkowski and Rosochacki, another pair of local musicians from this decade, are two key attractions for the eighth annual Hamtramck Festival for the Labor Day weekend. The four-day festival centers on Joseph Campau, a Hamtramck street where visitors can sample ethnic foods and beverages and play games for prizes. All entertainment including music for listening and dancing, and ethnic dancers is free. Hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday-Monday, Sept. 5-7. Grand opening is at 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 4. There is no charge for admission or parking.

● RENAISSANCE FESTIVAL

Geoffrey and the entire Toys "R" Us family will appear in person from 1:30-4:30 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 29-30, at the eighth annual Michigan Renaissance Festival at Holly. The festival runs every weekend from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. through Sunday, Sept. 27. For more information call the festival office in Birmingham at 645-9640 Mondays-Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

● ATTIC THEATRE

"Dogman's Last Stand," a contemporary comedy, will open the Attic Theatre's 12th season Friday, Sept. 11, in Detroit. This will be the second production and the Michigan premiere of the play by Rick Cleveland, a National Endowment of the Arts' Fellow. Performances run through Sunday, Oct. 4. Tickets range from $8-$18. For reservations call the box office at 875-8284. Also on the season's schedule, which has the theme "Heroes," will be "Tom Jones," "Holiday Cabaret," "Tamer of Horses," "The Hostage" and "Learn to Fall." The summer show is to be announced.

● MONTREUX DETROIT

Stroh's Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival will be held from Thursday-Monday, Sept. 3-7, in Detroit. It's so easy to go to Windsor
And so much fun!
Just get on your car and head for the bridge or the tunnel to Canada. And as soon as you're there, you're in Windsor. If you don't have a car, take your yacht—because there's lots of places to dock a boat on the other side.
If you like sidewalk cafes, tree-lined boulevards and a lively, bustling city, you'll like Windsor. It's great for lunch or dinner with places like TIKI's, Other Place and the Hilton Park Terrace. You can walk anywhere you want in downtown, then get in your car and go shopping or sightseeing.
Go for a drive along the river. You'll find 10 miles of riverfront where the best view of Detroit is from Windsor. Think of all the things you'll find along the way—lively street fairs, flower parks, and little harbors full of fishing boats. You won't find a waterfront like it anywhere else in the country.
Go to Windsor for the nightlife. There's rock-and-roll, jazz. And the Windsor Symphony. If you're looking for a little night music, you've come to the right place. Windsor.
Enjoy shopping and spicy saving, where your dollar's worth much more. At Devonshire Mall, you shop where Canadians shop—at 150 stores just 10 minutes from downtown Windsor. Save on housewares, clothing, jewelry, gifts, cameras and sporting goods.
There's another country just a mile away from Detroit. And another city: Windsor. A blend of European charm, friendly people and plenty to see and do. It could be just the change of scene you need, and it's only minutes away.
Let's go to Windsor!

In Congress, Contra aid issue will not die

Contra aid rarely gets a rest on Capitol Hill.

After facing nearly 60 roll call votes on the House and Senate floors between 1982-86, and spending much of 1987 in the thick of the Iran-contra hearings, the issue now has been thrust into maneuvering between the White House and Congress over a newly-floated Central American peace proposal.

President Reagan reportedly will ask Congress to approve $150 million in new military support for the Nicaraguan insurgents, to take effect after Sept. 30.

His bid appears especially provocative because, for the first time, lawmakers would debate Contra funding at a time when their words and votes could change the course of ongoing peace talks.

A CURRENT $100-million appropriation for the rebels is due to expire about Sept. 30. Central American heads of state have set Nov. 7 as a target for negotiating a cease-fire in Nicaragua, the key building block of their plan to pacify the entire region.

Reagan has given only lukewarm support to the proposal, but says that out of deference to it, he will withhold his bid for new aid, at least until he can better determine how the regional peace plan effects American security.

But in Congress, foes of the Contras as well as their most ardent backers are troubled by the president's hesitant endorsement.

Opponents fear he will waylay the negotiations and cite the resulting collapse to justify more military aid, while supporters worry about a potential sellout of the Contras.

WHILE REAGAN has lost many more Contra roll calls than he has won, he has extracted $127 million in military and non-lethal aid from Congress plus untold Contra millions appropriated secretly to the CIA early in his first Administration.

His major defeats have come with congressional adoption of amendments by Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., to ban Contra aid or restrict its uses. Boland has offered at least five such amendments, beginning with one in late 1982 that drew unanimous Republican and Democratic denunciation of the Contra policy.

What follows are descriptions of key Contra aid amendments faced by lawmakers between 1982-86, each selected as perhaps the most definitive test of sentiment in its respective year.

Roll Call Report

1. BOLAND I — On Dec. 8, 1982, the House amended the fiscal 1983 defense appropriations bill (HR 7355) to include the first Congressional limits on Contra aid. The amendment by Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., banned spending to "overthrow" Nicaragua's Marxist government.

The vote was a unanimous 411-0. Republicans and conservative Democrats who usually back Reagan's foreign policy supported Boland I as the less harmful of two pending anti-Contra proposals.

A yes vote was to rein in the Contras. Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Ply., Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Not voting: Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

2. BOLAND II — The House approved this Boland amendment, 221 and 205 against, on July 28, 1983, while Contra activities were officially covert. It required Reagan to suspend the CIA operation until Congress allowed resumption.

It was attached to HR 2760 but later deleted in parliamentary maneuvering.

A yes vote was to suspend the Contra operation. Voting yes: Democrats Hertel, Ford, Levin.

Voting no: Republicans Pursell, Broomfield.

3. BOLAND III — On May 24, 1984, by a vote of 241 for and 177 against, the House adopted Boland's motion to knock $21 million in Contra aid out of a fiscal 1984 appropriations bill (HJ Res 492).

The removal took hold and the bill became law without Contra money.

Voting yes to delete the aid: Pursell, Hertel, Ford, Levin.

Voting no: Broomfield.

4. BOLAND IV — Boland failed June 12, 1985, to continue an existing ban on military aid and most forms of non-military aid. By a vote of 196 for and 232 against, the House defeated his amendment to HR 2577 and cleared the way for $27 million in non-lethal aid that later was sent to the Contras.

A yes vote was to continue blocking the aid. Voting yes: Democrats Hertel, Ford, Levin.

Voting no: Republicans Pursell, Broomfield.

5. EDWARDS — On June 25, 1986, the House approved $100 million in military and non-lethal aid to the Contras as proposed by Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Okla., in fiscal 1987. The tally was 221 for and 209 against.

A yes vote was in support of Contra aid. Voting yes: Republicans Pursell, Broomfield.

Voting no: Democrats Hertel, Ford, Levin.

SENATE

TABLING DODD — The Senate's first roll call on the issue occurred Dec. 18, 1982, when it voted 56 for and 38 against to table (kill) a tough anti-Contra amendment by Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn. Proposed to HJ Res 631, it sought to prohibit American aid to rebel forces in Central America during the last eight months of fiscal 1983.

A yes vote endorsed the Contra operation. Voting yes: Levin.

INOUYE — By a vote of 42 for and 57 against, the Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, to spend $6 million assisting the Contras while banning fiscal 1985 spending by intelligence agencies to support their insurgency. The vote occurred on Oct. 3, 1984, during debate on HJ Res 648.

A yes vote opposed the Contras.

Voting yes: Levin.

LUGAR — By a vote of 53 for and 47 against, the Senate on March 27, 1986, approved language by Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind., to provide $100 million in Contra aid to be first released in July 1986. This occurred during debate on SJ Res 283. The money later was provided through HR 5052 (see Edwards above).

Chiefs take aim at school's first winning season

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

The only thing standing between Plymouth Canton and a winning football record is the belief it can be done.

Otherwise, the Chiefs are in possession of the talent and physical tools needed to accomplish that goal, according to coach Bob Khoenle.

Canton has never been above .500 in its 14-year history, and Khoenle would like nothing more than to see the Chiefs break that negative tradition.

The team posted a 3-6 mark last year — Khoenle's first as head coach — but he saw the beginnings of a change in attitude. When the going got tough, the team maintained its focus.

"WE DIDN'T win as much as we thought we could have," Khoenle said, "but everybody was going in the same direction — and that's what was so fun about it."

"The record doesn't indicate it, but we really improved a lot; it was a fun year. Maybe the kids sensed that and picked up on it."

Having seen signs of progress and heartened by indications of a deeper commitment, Khoenle said he hopes the current group of Chiefs believe in themselves and are ready to do what no other Canton ballclub has done.

"The kids don't know what it takes to win," he said. "They have never seen a team before them win and seen what it takes to do that. It's not that they can't, because they're very capable.

"AS LONG as I've been at this school, we've had the talent, but we've never been able to win. The difference between our being successful and not being successful is the attitude."

football

Another reason to be optimistic is that Canton will be a senior-dominated team with plenty of veterans from a squad that often played well, but lost a number of close games.

The Chiefs have a good supply of running backs, led by senior tri-captain Roger Trice, the leading rusher a year ago. Trice (6-0, 180), an all-division player, has 4.5 speed as well as great hands for pass receiving.

Senior Joel Riggs (5-10, 155) replaces Tony Boucher at the other halfback in Canton's Wing-T offense, and senior Scott Browne (6-0, 180), another of the tri-captains, takes over at fullback after excelling on the Chiefs' stingy defense last season.

"WE HAVE good halfback depth and speed, and we're going to make good use of it," said Khoenle, adding that halfbacks Wilt Watkins, Kevin Stackpoole and Jim Young and fullback Brian Detrich will provide much of that backfield depth.

"I really think we've got good kids and talent. What concerns me and the coaching staff is the mental approach. I think we got it started last year, and I hope it keeps on."

The Chiefs have a quarterback with experience in senior Neil Hubert (5-10, 165), who started the last four games of '86.

"He can run and throw real well," Khoenle said, "and that's how we're going to use him — rolling and throwing."

THE THIRD tri-captain, senior Jim Crews (6-1, 220), anchors the offensive line from his tackle position.

Senior Mike Flynn (6-3, 220) could give the Chiefs a pair of bookend tackles if he were to start on the other side. But he is a key defensive player, and Khoenle would prefer to limit the number of players going both ways.

Therefore, seniors John Cole (6-0, 180) and Jim Patterson (5-11, 185) and juniors Bruce Hermanson (6-0, 180) and Bob Quinn (5-11, 175) also are tackle candidates.

Senior Jerry French (6-0, 260), another regular on defense last year, is one of half a dozen players who will start the season as two-way players, doubling as the center.

COLE, SENIOR lettermen Glen Allen (5-11, 180) and Dave Feierfeil (5-11, 175) and junior Bill Thams are the guard prospects.

Ed Bardelli (5-9, 150) will be the wide receiver with senior Jeff Simmons (6-1, 160) and junior Mark Barrette (6-2, 170) giving him a rest so he can concentrate on defense.

Sports auction Sparky's baby

C.J. Risak

BY NOW, it should be apparent that Sparky Anderson could sell anything to anybody around Detroit.

His believability had been stretched to its limit early this baseball season when he proclaimed, with a straight face, that this Detroit Tiger team was his best ever. This he said when the Tigers were languishing in fifth place, out of sight of first and far below .500.

Now that Sparky has validated what seemed a rash statement, he could probably sell pencils to a blind man. Or obstructed-view Tiger tickets to Mike Ilitch.

Which is what puzzles me about Saturday's one-time-only sports auction at North Farmington High School.

Anderson put this thing together. It was his brainchild and his tireless efforts that made it possible. No one else associated with Detroit could have accomplished it (with the possible exception of Lee Iacocca).

SO WHY BRING in all these other guys — Ernie Harwell, Paul Carey, Jim Northrup, Larry Osterman, Al Ackerman, Joe Falls, Jerry Green, Mitch Albom, Bill Bonds, Dick Purtan, Steve Garagiola — to do the auctioneering?

It's a job Anderson was born for.

"I have so much stuff, it's embarrassing," the Tiger manager said. "I contacted everybody I knew. I just got off the phone with Joe Morgan. He's sending me his World Series bat and his all-star bat.

"It's gone beyond anything I ever thought."

What Anderson was thinking about when he devised this money-making scheme for Henry Ford Hospital's Children's Hospital was an autograph session. While managing the Cincinnati Reds (where Morgan was his starting second baseman), Anderson used to pay regular visits to the city's Children's Hospital.

Last spring, he started thinking about doing the same thing in Detroit. When he visited a friend, Hank Simonvic, a Detroit storeowner, and found out Simonvic's grandson was hospitalized, Anderson was spurred into action.

His first idea for a fund-raiser was an autograph session, which seemed good but too ordinary for a major moneymaker. Then Anderson thought about running five autograph sessions at once at different locations.

THAT PLAN evolved into something entirely different early one morning in a Seattle hotel room. Why not have an auction of rare sports memorabilia?

"I know a lot of people," Anderson said. "I could start writing them, contact them (about contributing items)."

Good ideas usually attract a horde of volunteers willing to contribute. Add Anderson's name to it, and it's hardly surprising that his idea skyrocketed.

A foundation was established for an annual fund-raising event for the hospital. Loads of people got involved in collecting items to auction off. Among the more unique:

- A hunting trip to Texas with Tiger pitcher Jack Morris;
- A fishing trip to northern Ontario with Jim Northrup;
- A two-hour cocktail cruise for a party of six on Tiger owner Tom Monaghan's yacht, the Tigress II;
- Two innings in the radio booth with Harwell and Carey;
- Two innings in the television booth with George Kell and Al Kaline;
- Two innings in the PASS television booth with Osterman and Northrup;
- A collection of Kirk Gibson jerseys (football from MSU, baseball from Toledo and Detroit);
- Tommy Hearns' robe from his last fight.

And yet, no one put in as much time as Anderson. "Every day, I

Salem grad hopes for big payday

Roth battles state's best in Skins golf

By Marty Budner
staff writer

Jeff Roth forfeited a pay raise this year for more playing time on the Michigan PGA circuit.

That move may pay dividends twofold.

Roth, an assistant professional at Birmingham Country Club, is having one of his best summers ever.

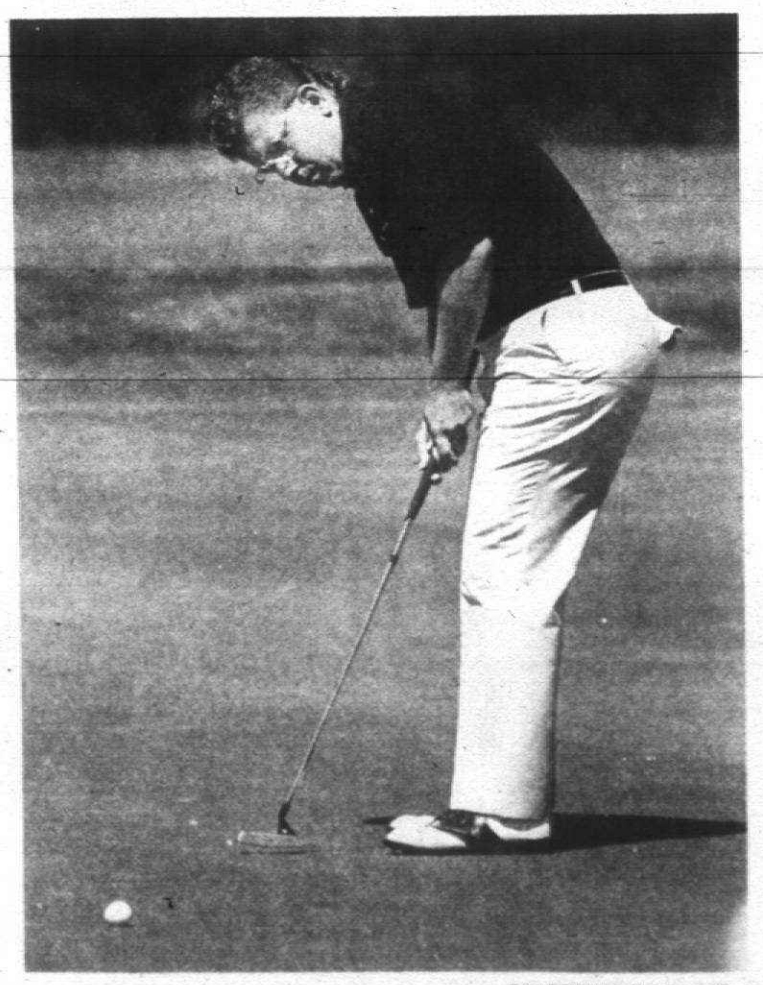
The 1975 Plymouth Salem High School graduate won the Yamaha Classic and played well at the Michigan Match Play tournament, where he made the quarterfinals before falling to Jay Horton in 19 holes. He made it past local qualifying for the U.S. Open and is in the running for the prestigious Michigan Player of the Year crown.

By winning the Match Play title, Roth qualified for the second annual Michigan Bell $18,000 'Skins' Showdown this weekend at the Grand Traverse Resort's "Bear" course.

He will be joining Michigan Open champion Jack Seltzer, Michigan Match Play champion Bob Makoski, and the Michigan PGA champion for 18 holes of serious golf. The four players will vie for an average of $1,000 per hole.

ROTH ADMITTEDLY has been thinking about the possibilities of a big pay day at the "Bear". He is definitely looking forward to the challenge.

"I've been thinking about it a lot, especially this past week," said Roth after Monday's opening round of the Michigan PGA tournament at Indianwood Country Club in Lake Orion. "Just like that you can come away with $10, $12 or $14,000 in the blink of an eye.



DAN DEAN/staff photographer

Plymouth Salem grad Jeff Roth is bumping shoulders with the heavyweights on the Michigan PGA circuit.

"You can't help but think of it. I think you're better off confronting the fact you're going to play in the Skins. If you play it down, you just put more pressure on yourself.

"You have nothing to lose so you might as well gear yourself for it," he said.

Roth, 29, is shooting for status among the state's top playing professionals, including perennial champions like Randy Erskine (Washtenaw Country Club), John Traub (Great Oaks Country Club), Lynn Janson (Green Ridge Counry Club) and Buddy Whitten (Blythefield Country Club).

He has some impressive credentials.

After graduating from the University of Arizona in 1979, Roth won a two big tournaments in 1981 — the Veterans Administration Championship and the Michigan Assistants Pro Championship. He was 15th at the Brazilian Open in 1984 and joined the Tournament Players Series (TPS) circuit in 1984, but was unsuccessful in his bid to land a PGA touring card.

golf

HE OPTED for assistant pro jobs in Michigan, where he has worked at Wabeek Country Club in Bloomfield Hills and the Tam O-Shanter Country Club in West Bloomfield. He is now in his second fling with the Birmingham Country Club.

"Carl (Patron, the head pro at the Birmingham CC) has treated me nothing but good," said Roth. "It's nice to work for a head pro who wants you to do good. It was important for me to get fixed in my mind during this past winter what I could do and not do at the club.

"I wanted a little more playing time this year and that's why I asked for that instead of a raise," he said. "Before the season started, my goal was to be one of the four players to get into the 'Skins' game."

Roth, an average hitter with an "improved" iron game, believes the key for success at the 'Skins' Showdown will be patience.

"You can't really force it in that type of situation," he said. "If you've got the ability to play, the good players will come out in the wash. You just have to try not to get too up or too down.

"It's exciting to play for that kind of money," he said. "This is kind of like the Super Bowl of Michigan golf."

Canton hopes to break cycle of losing seasons

"Bardelli is just a good athlete," Khoenle said. "He's a senior quarterback, but we're going to use his ability at split end. He's just too good a kid to let him sit around."

Canton also has two capable tight ends in seniors Shawn Koteles (6-2, 180) and Steve Fleming (6-3, 190).

KHOENLE IS excited about the potential for the kicking game, which revolves around sophomore Mike Krejcary who will handle all assignments.

"We've had kickers, but this kid just has talent," Khoenle said. "So we moved him up from the jayvee."

The Chiefs have a history of doing well defensively and hope to balance that with more offense this year. Canton had many low-scoring games last year and was never beaten by more than 10 points.

"That's what I mean," Khoenle said. "You're close, but no brass ring.

"LAST YEAR the kids started standing their ground and saying, 'That's it.' I think it will (continue). I think we have a good defensive group. I think we have a good team, period."

> 'Last year the kids started standing their ground and saying "that's it." . . . I think we have a good defensive group; I think we have a good team, period.'
> — Bob Khoenle
> Canton football coach

French (tackle), Browne (nose guard) and Flynn (end) all have starting experience on the line. Crews, senior Rich Cline (6-0, 195) or Patterson will play the other tackle. Fleming or Cole the other end.

The Chiefs lost two all-league linebackers in Wes Johnson and Brian Gothard, and Koteles and Detrich will most likely be their replacements, though Hermanson and Scott Swartzwelter are possibilities, too.

"From that standpoint, you can say we're unproven, but we think they're good kids so it's not a concern," Khoenle said. "We feel we have eight kids to pick from, so whoever comes to the forefront is going to get it."

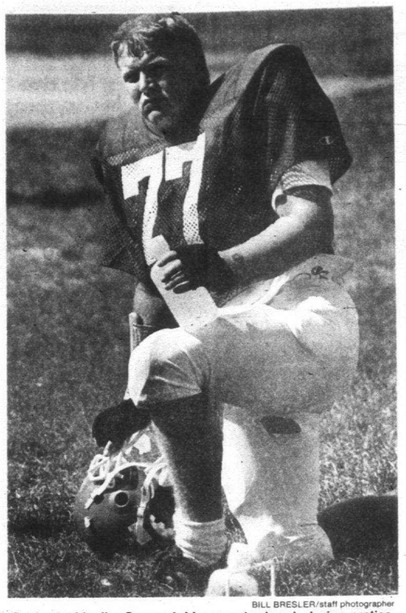
BARDELLI RETURNS at safety and Trice at cornerback, but the Chiefs hope to give both an occasional rest. Riggs starts the season at the other cornerback, and senior Tim Heamen (5-7, 160), a transfer from Redford Catholic Central, might fill the Chief/monsterback role.

"Again, we're working other kids to spell the backs," Khoenle said. "For the first game, they may have to go both ways until other kids come along."

Khoenle, who played at Massillon (Ohio) High School and later Purdue University, would like to see his Canton players develop the same positive attitude that made Massillon a success and its football tradition legendary.

"At Massillon, we didn't think anybody could beat us," he said. "We'd have a team down 42-0 at halftime, and by the time they figured out they were as good as us, they were so far out of it it was too late.

"That's what we have to get going here."



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Senior tackle Jim Crews, taking a water break during pratice, will anchor the offensive line and become a two-way player this year.

Ex-Glenn coach gets new job on U-M staff

By Brad Emons
staff writer

When the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame march into Michigan Stadium Saturday, Sept. 12, Lloyd Carr will see a familiar face or two.

Carr, the former Westland John Glenn High coach recently elevated to defensive coordinator for the University of Michigan football team, will try to devise a plan to stymie new quarterback Terry Andrysiak, all-American flanker Tim Brown and their accomplices.

"I tried to recruit Terry (out of Allen Park Cabrini) to U-M and I know him very well," said Carr. "I have great respect for his ability."

Carr, who came to U-M from Illinois in 1980, has been given more responsibility on coach Bo Schembechler's staff this season.

"Two thoughts come to mind about Notre Dame," Carr said. "First, they were ranked first or second in the nation in total offense.

"The second thing is Tim Brown. We know he's a guy you've got to contain. You can't totally stop him, but you can't let him beat you with big plays."

CARR, WHO coached the defensive backs the past seven years, will be more involved with the entire defensive scheme. He will concentrate on the linebackers.

"My job will be to coordinate on-the-field practices and game plans," said the 42-year-old assistant. "It's a great challenge and I'm really excited.

"In the secondary, you're more involved in perimeter running plays, but now there's a greater emphasis on passing. Working with the linebackers gets you more involved in the total aspects of the game."

Although Carr's job has changed, one person remains a fixture — Bo.

"The thing about our staff is that everybody works as a unit," Carr said. "We'll make changes and adjust each week, but Bo is still the head coach. There's no question in anybody's mind. Our responsibility is to have a defense that's successful."

Veteran defense key to North start

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

football

No high school can develop a football reputation like North Farmington has without playing superb defense, and the Raiders will rely heavily on that tradition to begin the 1987 season.

The need to reconstruct the offensive line, the loss of all-state running back Scott Selzer and other question marks on that side of the ball have placed added importance on that aspect of the game.

But the Raiders return the most experience on defense and, with some outstanding individual talent, look upon it as the team's strength.

"(The defense) is going to have to carry us and give us good field position," said fifth-year coach Jim O'Leary, adding the defense should be considerably improved.

"LAST YEAR we gave up a lot of points," he said. "We couldn't stop teams when we had to, and that's always been a trademark of ours.

"It wasn't bad; it just wasn't outstanding."

The latter has become the standard for the Raiders, especially when one considers only crosstown rival Farmington Harrison scored more than two touchdowns against them.

Breaking it down further, the strength of the defense is the linebackers, and the Raiders have two veterans at the all-important inside positions in their 52 alignment.

JUNIOR JOE Sturtz and senior Bill Krall started in the middle, and senior Doug Cohen, a brother of Jeff and Dan Cohen who played on the Class A runner-up team of 1978, is back at outside linebacker.

O'Leary compares Sturtz (5-9, 180) to past linebackers who have played for the Raiders such as Craig Gow (1970-71), Pat Collins (1978) and John Daubenmayer (1973) to name some.

"I can't remember a time in the years I've been here when we didn't have an outstanding inside linebacker," said O'Leary, a veteran of 22 seasons at North. "We've always had outstanding linebackers."

Krall (5-11, 180) is a fine complement to Sturtz, who was switched from monsterback the week of the Westland John Glenn game, which saw North rebound from a loss to Livonia Stevenson and hand the Rockets their only regular-season defeat, 9-6.

Donahue named SM cage coach

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Ten days ago, St. Mary's College decided to keep its basketball program. On Monday, Frank Anthonis, the college's first-year president, found someone to fill his athletic director and coaching position.

Now all that need be done is find a way to keep the players.

The college announced Tuesday that Glen Donahue, a Southfield resident and formerly the coach at Highland Park Community College, was chosen to replace Rich Zalenski, who abruptly resigned Aug. 11 to take the head coaching position at Bristol (Tenn.) College.

"We had to have someone who could step right in and do the job," said Anthonis of his decision to hire Donahue. "Glen fit the bill. I am really pleased I was able to get him.

"The recommendations coming back through all my calling were that Donahue's a good man and a good coach."

THAT'S WHAT the St. Mary's program will need to survive Zalenski's departure. When he left, Zalenski predicted the Eagle program would collapse. He then apparently aided its demise by recruiting St. Mary's players.

Zalenski interviewed for the Bristol position the weekend of Aug. 8-9, driving a St. Mary's van and taking four Eagle players with him. Last week, Theo Pearson, an Eagle starter the past two seasons, returned from Bristol with a team roster Zalenski had printed that included the names of eight St. Mary's players.

"We obviously have to get out and recruit some players between now and the start of the season," the 52-year-old Donahue said of his first task. "We have to recruit enough players to be a respectable team. We'll be a solid program — now, tomorrow and forever."

Asked who would be back for St. Mary's, Donahue said, "Who knows? I guess that verdict is out until Sept. 9, when classes start. I have not talked to all the players yet."

DONAHUE SAID he had spoken with and received commitments from six players: Jerome Washburn, James Butcher, James Lakes, Safaa Qasawa and freshman recruit Denny Butcher. Of the six, only Qasawa was a starter a year ago.

Donahue left Highland Park CC to become a part-time assistant under Don Sicko at University of Detroit last year. He compiled a 401-205 record in 19 seasons at Highland Park CC, and his 1984-85 team was ranked No. 1 in the NJCAA during the season.

Donahue was one of three finalists for the position. Another was Oakland University assistant coach Bob Lees. Anthonis listed several reasons for hiring Donahue, including his extensive experience in recruiting the area as well as his coaching success. Money, too, was a factor. Donahue has retired from his teaching post at Highland Park CC.

Does exercise help improve your skin?

Dear Myrna: Does exercise improve your skin? I am a vain woman who loves to exercise. It seems that my skin is looking better lately. Is this my imagination?

— Marcie L.
Troy

To begin on a personal note: I do think exercise has helped to enhance my "skin" although I do give my skin lots of loving care.

Precisely how exercise affects your skin is still unknown. We can presume that the increased circulation resulting from aerobic activity may, by bringing more nutrients to the skin, enable the skin to better maintain and repair itself.

By assuming when a woman improves her overall level of fitness, she improves her skin as well. In general, people who exercise are likely to eat healthier foods, drink less alcohol, not smoke and take fewer necessary drugs.

This in itself is a criteria for healthier skin. Your skin is an organ and like all other parts it becomes a barometer for our health.

Being a regular exerciser, you may have noticed the salty residue that remains on your face after you have had your sweaty workout. Always rinse your face immediately after exercise if at all possible. After rinsing, treat your thirsty skin to a good moisturizer, not just oil.

That fact that your skin looks prettier now may not just be your imagination. The benefits of exercise are certainly multifaceted.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company Inc. of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Your signed letters may be sent to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 1225 Bowers, Birmingham, Mich. 48012.)

Bill Parker

THE MOST DISCOURAGING aspect of a recent trip into the Upper Peninsula was the lack of free time to do the things an outdoorsman is expected to do when traveling to the northern section of the state: fish, hike, explore and simply enjoy the outdoors.

I was only gone for four days, two of which were spent on the road, driving to and from Marquette, and two spent covering local athletes as they participated in the Great Lakes State Games. In those two days of travel, however, and a few scattered hours of leisure time, I was reacquainted with the northern half of the state.

First, let me explain something. I was raised by an avid outdoorsman. My dad was never a big fan of professional sports. He didn't take us to baseball or football games. But he'd jump at a chance to take one or all three of his sons on a hunting or fishing trip. He used these trips to motivate us to do well in school. If we maintained good grades we were rewarded with a week-long trip up north. If we let our grades slip we'd have to stay home and study. Needless to say we worked hard at being good students and made many, many trips together up north.

ALMOST FROM the time I was old enough to walk, I was taught about woodsmanship, gun safety, fishing tactics and all the other things needed to survive in the outdoors. I could identify poison ivy before I knew what a tulip was, and I could recite the 10 Commandments of Gun Safety before I knew "Three Blind Mice."

My family moved from a jungle in Detroit — I was actually "mugged" by a 14-year-old when I was 6 — to a country atmosphere in Lake Orion surrounded by lakes and acres of woods.

As youngsters, my brothers and I hunted, fished and trapped. Sportsmanship was mandatory and we never took more from nature than what we planned to use.

As I grew older my interests turned toward athletic competition. Although I never lost my enthusiasm for the outdoors I didn't participate as avidly as I had.

I moved to Arizona for three years and didn't hunt or fish at all. In 1985 I returned to Michigan, but until my recent trip to Marquette I hadn't been up north in almost five years.

My hunting and fishing experiences, since returning to Michigan, were centered around the southeastern section of the state. I'd almost forgotten what what northern Michigan was all about.

ON THIS particular trip things just seemed to appeal to my senses a little more than what I had ever remembered. The air seemed fresher and the colors seemed brighter. Even car-killed skunks didn't seem to smell as bad as they usually do.

I've never seen an elk in the wild, so on the trip home I detoured down M-32 through Gaylord, Johannesburg, Vienna and Atlanta — the heart of Michigan's elk country. The thought of sighting a magnificent bull in velvet brought a chill to my stomach. Watching the backs of every field, in my mind, I must have spotted 30 elk. I wanted to see one so bad. At 40-mph every stump, fence post and low hanging branch looked like an elk to me. On second glance I realized none were.

I didn't see an abundance of wildlife, although I was constantly on the lookout. Three young deer, sporting their beautiful golden brown summer coats, made a cameo appearance just south of Atlanta. A few minutes later a mother turkey caused an enjoyable three-car traffic jam as she boldly walked her three chicks across the road.

I TOOK a couple of hours near sundown one evening and drove out the Pesheke River Grade, west of Marquette, to the area where the Department of Natural Resources planted moose. The Pesheke River winds back and forth across the road, which is actually more of a narrow, shoulderless, paved trail. With dark green pines in the background, beautiful white birch trees along the bank of the river and the white-capped Pesheke in the foreground, each crossing offered a beautiful, majestic view.

SC stays strong under Teeters

By C.J. Risak

volleyball

Community college coaches face a continuous struggle, season after season: rebuilding. A team must be refurbished almost every year, giving the coach little time to develop the talent he recruits.

That is, unless the incoming athlete happens to be headed for Schoolcraft College to play volleyball under Tom Teeters' tutelage.

Since Teeters took over at SC in 1985, the Ocelots haven't lost an Eastern Conference match. They've finished in the top six in the NJCAA both seasons. And even though they've lost the nucleus of those teams, they might get that far again in 1987.

One reason is the dedication Teeters demands of his players. Workouts officially opened for SC Aug. 3, but the team "was weightlifting before that," Teeters said, "six days a week."

Many of them played for Teeters' club team, SOVA — or Schoolcraft Ocelot Volleyball Association — over the summer. Point is, he starts his players working together quickly, aiming to improve their skills and their strength.

TEETERS HAS four players back from last year's squad, including Patti Kozicki at setter. Kozicki was the only setter, to one with two setters. "We had more consistency in our sets the other way, but now there'll be less pressure on one person," Teeters said.

In addition, Teeters said the "whole defensive structure will change. This year's will be a little more intricate, but it will utilize our best players near the net."

Consistency is the key to another successful season, the SC coach said. He also wants to "develop a set lineup of six or seven.

The number of capable setters has convinced Teeters to change his offense from the one he used last season, which featured Patti Kozicki as the only setter, to one with two setters. "We had more consistency in our sets the other way, but now there'll be less pressure on one person," Teeters said.

In addition, Teeters said the "whole defensive structure will change. This year's will be a little more intricate, but it will utilize our best players near the net."

Consistency is the key to another successful season, the SC coach said. He also wants to "develop a set lineup of six or seven.

The team's newcomers possess similar all-around abilities. Nikki Stubbs (5-8) from Garden City, "does a little of everything" Teeters said — including setting, blocking and hitting. "She has to pick up her consistency in hitting," he added. "That's one area she needs to improve on."

WENDY SKORUPSKI (5-5) is a "strong hitter" who can fill the middle defensively; Chris Paciero (5-3), from Livonia Churchill, is a capable defender and setter with "a great serve"; Marla Evans (5-8), from Garden City, is a solid hitter and blocker; and Jodi Dallenbach (5-4), from Westland, is a good setter.

Others who could make an immediate impact are hitters Natalie Buck (6-0), Kelly Ellis (5-10) and Sarah Heddle (5-10), and 4-10 setter Cathy Coak, from Westland.

John Krol (5-10, 170), will be opposite Cohen (6-2, 205) at the other outside spot.

The secondary is an experienced bunch led by seniors Ryan Meador (5-10, 155) and Warren Johnson (5-7, 150), both returning starters at cornerback.

Mike Filipovich (6-2, 185), a hard-hitting junior, becomes the monster, and senior Venoy Hill (6-0, 160), a transfer from Redford Bishop Borgess, will play free safety.

Chad Henry, a wide receiver who is expected to help make the Raiders a strong passing team, started a safety last year, but is sidelined with a broken collarbone.

HE IS expected to be out for three weeks, but O'Leary would like to reduce the number of two-way players anyway.

"I'm hesitant because we can't afford to lose him as a receiver or kicker," O'Leary said.

Senior Mike Sinanis (5-5, 160) returns at nose guard, and senior Mike Temple (5-10, 195) returns at tackle. Zaim Cummalaj (6-1, 210), a junior whom O'Leary is very high on, is expected to start at the other tackle.

"We're adequate but we're not big," O'Leary said. "But we've never been big, so that doesn't concern me.

"I'LL SAY this. This team hits as hard as any team I've had. In practice, they're very physical; they like contact."

The big question mark on offense is the line where North must replace all five interior players and the tight end. Furthermore, the Raiders could end up with an all-junior line instead of an all-senior unit like they had last year.

"That's going to be our big challenge," O'Leary said. "We have to come up with some linemen. We don't really have anyone back with any playing experience, so whoever we put in there will be rookies."

Either senior Tim Gonterman (5-10, 185) or junior Jerry Hakala (6-0, 185) will be the center, and juniors Ryan Seyburn (5-9, 180) and Jeff Jacobs (5-9, 185) are slated to be the guards.

CUMMALAJ IS expected to man one of the tackles, and either junior Tim Hamilton (5-11, 200) or senior Craig Barany (6-0, 205) will start on the other side.

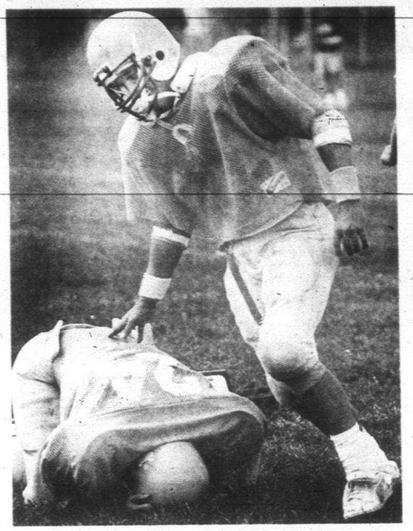
"It's critical as far as our offense is concerned, because everywhere else we're pretty well set," O'Leary said. "They have to make a lot of progress and come through for us if we're going to move the football."

North should be able to pass the ball as well as anyone with senior Scott Simon (6-0, 175) back at quarterback. He started seven games, completed 48 percent of his passes, threw for more than 700 yards and was voted to the all-division team. Recently, he fared well in the annual summer passing league at Wayne State.

Simon seldom carried the ball last year since he was the only experienced quarterback North had, but O'Leary has full confidence in Filipovich as a back-up and might run the option at times this fall.

HENRY (6-2, 175), another all-division player, caught 27 passes — the fourth best, single-season effort in school history — for 374 yards and one TD, but could miss the first game or two.

He broke his collarbone at a summer football camp and, on the first day of preseason practice, broke it again diving to catch a pass. Therefore, O'Leary isn't going to rush him back into service.



RANDY BORST/staff photographer

Joe Sturtz takes part in agility drills during a Raider practice session. The junior linebacker spearheads a veteran defense.

Henry can still help the team with his kicking, however. He made three of six field goals from 52, 41 and 36 yards and was 6-of-9 in extra points.

"He kicks the ball regularly down inside the 10-yard line, and he gives us great range on field goals," O'Leary said. "Any time we get inside the 40, we're a threat to score three points."

AS A RECEIVER, Henry is backed up by senior Todd Gesund (5-11, 165), who has 4.5 speed and great hands, according to O'Leary, who added "We're fortunate to have the luxury of a back-up who is equally as good."

Meador returns to the swingback position, and Cohen gained experience at tight end and steps into a starting role this year.

"Based on what we did this summer and the people we have coming back, I would say (passing) would be the strength of our offense," O'Leary said.

"I'm not saying our running game is poor, but I think we have a good passing game.

"THE DIFFERENCE is last year we had a great running back. We knew we could run the ball. This year it will be spread out over a few more people."

Selzer, who is now on scholarship at Michigan State, set school records for carries (206) and yards gained (1,311) and scored all but one of North's 17 touchdowns rushing.

"It's going to be a big loss," O'Leary said. "It would be foolish to tell you anything different when he was the best running back in the history of the school.

"But I think we have some kids who, combined, can carry the load."

Carr prepares for ND

Former U-M defensive coordinator Bill McCartney, the creator of "McCartney's Monsters," has been a great influence on Carr along with Gary Moeller, U-M's assistant head coach.

"BILL AND I went to the same high school (Riverview)," Carr said. "Along with coach Moeller, those two men had a tremendous impact on me."

It appears to be only a matter of time before Carr becomes a head coach at a Division I school, following in the footsteps of former U-M assistants McCartney (Colorado), Don Nehlen (West Virginia), Paul Schudel (Ball State) and Elliot Uzelac (Navy).

"I think my priority right now is to do the best job I can at U-M and let the other things fall into place," he said.

Carr was a three-sport athlete at Riverview where he earned all-state honors in football. He then played three years at the University of Missouri, serving as a backup quarterback on the Tigers' 1966 Sugar Bowl champions.

He transferred to Northern Michigan, leading the Wildcats to an unbeaten season. Carr, who was drafted by the Green Bay Packers, graduated from NMU in 1968 and earned his master's degree in 1970 under a Mott Fellowship.

spent at least an hour or two on the phone," he said. "But it's worth it."

ANDERSON CALLED in a lot of favors for this deal. On each road trip, he contacted the general manager of the team the Tigers were visiting and gave him a list of what he wanted from whom. He also spoke with people connected with other sports teams to add to the collection.

"We've got 140 bats from every major star in the league," Anderson said. "We went into Boston and I got Dwight Evans' and Wade Boggs' jerseys, with autographed balls and bats to match. We got a Dwight Gooden bat.

"We got (football) jerseys from Joe Montana, John Elway, Dan Marino, Phil Sims and Marcus Allen. We got a basketball signed by Dean Smith, and two signed by Bobby Knight."

And what was the hardest single auction item to secure? "Wayne Gretzky's jersey," Anderson answered. "It's very hard to get anything of his. (Red Wings' coach) Jacques Demers got it for me."

IN WHAT Anderson called "the best idea I came up with," 200 autographed posters featuring the head coaches of all four Detroit pro teams — Anderson, Demers, Darryl Rogers and Chuck Daly — will be sold. Eight hundred others — unsigned — will also be available at a lesser rate.

"That's something that's never been done anywhere and will never be done again," Anderson, the master of understatement, said of the posters.

What could prove to be the most difficult problem to overcome is finding a way to sell all this stuff in 12 hours. The doors at North Farmington (located on 13 Mile east of Farmington Road) open at 9 a.m. Saturday; the auction begins 30 minutes later. There will also be tables featuring many items at fixed prices.

Admission charge is $10. Anderson's goal is to raise $500,000. Advertisements in sports collectors' magazines have been running for weeks in an effort to lure the most fanatic of sports collectors.

This is the only time, Anderson said, an auction of this type will be held. Next year's fund-raiser is a raffle and a dinner.

It's taken the Tigers' manager a lot of time and work to get this affair off the ground. But as Anderson — always searching for the glimmer of light in a dark room — said: "At least it keeps me from worrying about the games. I don't have time to."

Catch the Action at the Auction!

Here it is, sports fans. Quite possibly the greatest sports memorabilia and souvenir auction ever. And you've got a personal invitation from Tigers' Manager Sparky Anderson to come and be part of the action.

It's all for the benefit of CATCH — Caring Athletes Team for Children's and Henry Ford Hospitals. Proceeds will be used for young patients at these hospitals who have special needs.

It all happens on Saturday, August 29, starting at 9:30 a.m. and running continuously to 9 p.m. (doors open at 9 a.m.)

The place is: North Farmington High School, 32900 W. 13 Mile Rd., just east of Farmington Road. There's a $10 donation at the door.

Among the auction items are: Authentic jerseys worn by professional athletes from baseball, football, and hockey ■ Autographed balls, bats, and gloves ■ Two-inning visits to Tigers' broadcast booths ■ Hunting trip to Texas with Tigers' pitcher Jack Morris ■ MSU, U-M and Notre Dame memorabilia ■ plus much, much more. (Non-auction items will also be available for sale throughout the day.)

Pan-Am Games another stop for Gonzalez

IT'S A SMALL WORLD for Rob Gonzalez.

Home is Livonia, but the 26-year-old basketball player spends most of his time in residence around the world.

"I get home only once or twice a year," the 1978 Detroit Catholic Central graduate said.

Gonzalez recently returned from the Pan American Games in Indianapolis. He was starting for the Mexican National Team, which lost the bronze medal game to Puerto Rico Saturday night, 102-100.

The 6-foot-7 forward didn't play much because of a sore knee, which limited his playing time. He scored only two points.

"My knee has been bothering me because I've been playing so much," he said. "Right now I'm just resting and relaxing, taking some ultra-sound treatments at a sports medicine place."

Why is he playing for Mexico?

"I'M AN AMERICAN citizen, but I was born in Matehuala in the state of San Luis Potosi, it's about an hour north of Mexico City," Gonzalez explained. "They (the national team) had been calling me to play for them for a few years."

Gonzalez's birthplace made him eligible to play for the Mexican Nationals. (Rob's father Paul was also born in Mexico, but later moved his family to the States.)

After graduating from high school, Gonzalez spent two years at Michigan State, where he was a member of the Spartans' 1979 NCAA National Championship team. Many of Gonzalez's teammates went on to NBA fame and fortune, including Earvin Johnson, Jay Vincent and Greg Kelser.

Gonzalez then transferred to Colorado, where he finished his collegiate career.

Ironically, while in Indy, Gonzalez and his old coach at MSU, Jud Heathcote, got together for lunch. Heathcote was serving as an assistant under Louisville's Denny Crum for the U.S. team.

"I always had a good relationship with him," Gonzalez said. "I played at State, but I just needed a change. I was glad to see him."

Brad Emons

AFTER HIS STINT at Colorado, Gonzalez was drafted by the Pistons, but soon found himself playing professionally in France. He also played a year in Argentina before going to the F.C. Club of Barcelona, Spain.

"I went to Spain because the money was a lot better," Gonzalez said.

Next week he'll return to Spain and play for another team, Athletico of Madrid. When the season ends, Gonzalez will go and play in Puerto Rico.

"I like visiting other countries and it's a way to continue playing," he said. "And while I'm playing I'm investing my money."

Living aboard has not been much of an adjustment for Gonzalez.

"I studied the languages in high school and college . . . I've picked that up," Gonzalez said. "I speak fluently so it makes it easy to communicate.

"The way of living is more laid back in Spain. Everybody is not in a big rush. You can develop a lot of relationships. People are genuinely concerned. There's nothing wrong with the U.S. It's just different life."

GONZALEZ PLANS to play again for Mexico next April in a pre-Olympic tournament in Uruguay. He said the Mexicans have a legitimate shot at qualifying for the Olympics later on in the year in Seoul, Korea.

"We should have won the bronze at down in Indy," Gonzalez said. "We led Puerto Rico by seven points late in the game and couldn't hold on. I think we have a good shot. We beat Canada in the Pan Ams by 12 points."

Gonzalez said he was surprised by Brazil's victory over the favored U.S. squad in the gold medal final. Earlier in the Pan Ams, Gonzalez scored seven points against the U.S. in a lopsided defeat.

"The U.S., other than David Robinson (of Navy), didn't have a big team this time," Gonzalez said. "They usually have the more big people. They didn't have anybody like a Sam Perkins or Waymon Tisdale. I was surprised they left off guys like Rony Seikaly (of Syracuse) and J.R. Reid (of North Carolina). That was good for teams like Brazil because they weren't as physical.

"I thought the U.S. got pushed around, particularly under the boards. International ball is different than college. They let you play underneath internationally, but college is more of a finesse game."

Nicole Drake

Swimmer 2nd in Junior meet

Nicole Drake, a member of the Plymouth Canton girls swim team, finished second in the 1,500-meter freestyle in the Junior Nationals Swim Meet in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Drake also was fourth in the 800 freestyle and 13th in the 400 freestyle in the process, she just missed matching the Senior National standard by .40 in the 1,500 and one second in the 800.

Drake, who also swims for the Livonia Spartan team, was among nearly 1,200 swimmers from states east of the Mississippi to compete in the Hall of Fame Pool.

ated from NMU in 1968 and earned his master's degree in 1970 under a Mott Fellowship.

CARR BEGAN his coaching career at Nativity High in Detroit and Belleville High from 1968 through 1973.

From 1973-75, Carr was the head coach at Glenn. In 1975 he earned Regional Class A Coach-of-the-Year honors for an 8-1 season.

"We lost a tough game to Livonia Franklin that year and they went on to win the state championship the first year of the playoffs," recalls Carr. "I still think about that loss, but my years at Glenn were some of the happiest I've experienced. I get great enjoyment out of seeing them continue to have a fine program. I'm very close with coach (Chuck) Gordan."

Carr left Glenn to join Eastern Michigan University's staff (1976-77) before hooking up with Moeller at Illinois (1978-79).

At Friday's breakfast gathering, Schembechler told the media he would have "second thoughts" about getting into college coaching today, particularly in light of the numerous problems that confront football staffs (agents, unsavory figures, steroids and drugs).

"YOU HAVE to love coaching and working with young men," Carr said. "I'm sure if Bo had to do it over again that he'd still coach. He loves the relationship with young men too much.

"There are problems, no question. But the most difficult part of the job is time commitment and the insecurity. You have to be successful to keep your job, but that's the challenge."

A big challenge awaits Carr on Sept. 12 — the Notre Dame offense.

After about 18 miles the pavement ends and the road turns into little more than a two-track dirt path. Another five miles down the dirt and I was at the end of my trip, although a four-wheel-drive vehicle could have continued.

I stopped at most of the river crossings and dropped a nightcrawler harness in the water but I never saw any of the tasty, little brook trout the locals boasted of.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with You, my loved One, in your Perpetual Glory. Amen. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After 3 days your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as the favor has been granted. Thanks, St. Jude, for favors received.

Lacemaking

Leaving its stamp on history

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

By Marie McGee
staff writer

MARIAN TYLER still has to chuckle whenever she thinks about how the Great Lakes Lace Group managed to get the U. S. Postal Service to issue not one but four — count'em, four - U.S. postage stamps in commemoration of the time-honored craft of lacemaking.

"We didn't have any big money behind us," she said, "no lobbying group - nothing like that. It was done by our members who kept writing, writing and writing."

The result was a striking philatelic salute to lacemakers with a block of four 22-cent stamps issued on Aug. 14 in Ypsilanti to coincide with the Great Lakes group's 11th anniversary.

But while the Great Lakes lacers didn't have a powerful lobby behind them, they did have their own crafty dynamo calling the shots. Her name is Mary McPeek, a 77-year-old Ann Arbor resident and charter member of the lacemaking guild.

"MARY JUST KEPT after us to write and keep writing," said Tyler, of Canton who is vice president of the guild believed to be the largest and most active such organization in the U. S.

McPeek, herself, in a recent interview in Ann Arbor, admitted that the persistence finally paid off.

"I became a famous nagger," she said in that interview. When she did not have a piece of needlework in her lap, McPeek said, she had a letter to Washington in hand. She pleaded, cajoled, argued and begged anyone, from Joan Mondale, then wife of the vice president of the U. S., to anyone else who would listen. Finally the Postal Service gave in.

The four stamp designs are based on lace crafted by four Michigan lacemakers — another nice honor. Design competition was open to lacers everywhere.

They are: Ruth Maxwell, a Dearborn resident, who made a squash blossom; McPeek, who made roses; Trenna Ruffner of Grosse Point Park who made dogwood; and Leslie Saari of Cadillac who also made roses.

THE ISSUANCE OF the block of stamps was originally set for last year when the lacers were observing their 10th anniversary. However, a printing glitch surfaced and the dedication was deferred to ensure that the finished product would capture the delicate beauty of the lacemaker's craft.

It took a year to make the proper adjustments. The Postal Service explained that the lacemaking project was part of a continuing joint effort with the Bureau of Engraving and Printing aimed at developing consistently high quality stamp design and production.

Early efforts, Tyler noted, were disappointing. "They told us the stamp looked like a plate of white spaghetti" instead of the spidery and delicate lace patterns.

The final effort was the use of an offset-intaglio method. Technically it calls for two offset shades of blue ink to be used in the printing. One was used for the lettering; the second was applied to the vignette portion in two separate "coats." By applying the ink twice, through two different screen patterns, an unusually rich and even tone was achieved. The white "lace" then was printed over the blue background by the intaglio, or "engraved" method.

The Postal Service believes that this is the first time that a stamp or stamps have been manufactured with white, intaglio printing over a dark, offset-printed background.

"We were notified that it would be done in time for our 11th anniversary but we didn't know up until two weeks before the convention whether or not the stamps would really be ready," Tyler said.

"But the net result," she smiled, " was well worth waiting for."

Standing in near proximity to their respective lacework stamps are clockwise, from left, Ruth Maxwell, who used a "straight lace" technique with design and background worked in one piece; Mary McPeek, who introduced many members of the Great Lakes Lacers to the craft; Trenna Ruffner, whose dogwood blossoms typify "sprig" bobbin lace and incorporate techniques found in the Honiton and Duchesse traditions; and Leslie Saari, whose floral lace is a good example of mixing bobbin lace with needle and tatting techniques.

Mona Grigg

Zibby Oneal emerges as writer for all ages

RECENTLY, ZIBBY Oneal, Ann Arbor's highly acclaimed Young Adult novelist, spent an afternoon with a group of writers talking about the mystical, magical, downright difficult process of moving characters from the imagination onto the printed page.

"Where do I get my ideas? I think the ideas get me," she said, laughing, as she described her answers to the questions most often asked of her. (She writes with a pencil, though she's slowly graduating to a pen, she says. She doesn't like what happens to her words when she tries typing them.)

"Something haunts me, in a sense, and begins to take over. Then it's just like any job — you've got to sit down and turn out the pages and eventually you may have something that's worth keeping."

Harder to describe, Oneal says, is "the thing that is really rather mysterious about writing — the way you'll suddenly get a sentence, just like a present, and it will tell you what you need to know about where you're heading.

"Who knows where that comes from? I think it comes from just having primed the pumpline, but it feels very much like — manna. Writers talk about the characters suddenly taking over. When it happens, you think, 'How can this happen? I'm in total charge here.' Well, you're not in not charge. And it's a good thing. If you are in complete control, nothing is going to happen — the writing will be totally dead. Ideally, you keep control of the material, but still allow it the freedom to run."

Oneal is the author of "The Language of Goldfish," "A Formal Feeling," and last year's "In Summer Light," called "A beautiful piece of literature" by Kirkus Review.

In another glowing review of the book, Publisher's Weekly said, "The story is filled with wonders. Oneal's exquisite prose leaves also the indelible memory of what the word 'art' means."

Still, Oneal says she spent the better part of a year working on another book — writing and tossing out, writing and tossing. It was her first attempt at an "adult" novel, where the focus was on the problems of adults as seen through adult eyes, and, Oneal says, it simply never worked.

"There were teenagers in the novel, and they kept trying to take over. It was their voices I was hearing, their concerns, and in the end I just had to give up," she said.

"I think there is something to be said for finding a place where your voice is comfortable. I realized that I simply wasn't comfortable dealing with adult characters in depth."

While Oneal admires adult works in which young people are the central characters — like Hemingway's Nick Adams stories, "The Catcher in the Rye," "A Member of the Wedding" and "To Kill a Mockingbird," she thinks that nowadays it would be almost impossible to write a novel about a teenager that wouldn't find its way into the Young Adult rather than the adult section.

There was no Young Adult category when those early books were written, and Oneal sometimes wishes it were so today.

And if adults haven't caught on to Oneal's work, it may be because the packaging and the marketing of her books suggest that they are strictly for kids. Not long ago I spent some time with a writer from New York and we began listing our favorite writers (the usual bookpeople pastime). Zibby Oneal was at the top of her Young Adult list, and when I told her I would be meeting Oneal this summer, you would have thought I'd said Hemingway had arisen and was coming to Ann Arbor.

My friend was literally awestruck, and her reaction amazed me. I began reading Oneal and before I'd finished a few pages, I could understand why my friend Rachel was a fan. There are no tricks, no cliches, no condescension in Oneal's works. She writes with great insight and clarity — and elegance.

Here is Kate Brewer, the 17-year-old protagonist in "In Summer Light" — daughter of a famous but fading painter and an artist in her own right until her father's neglect and insensitivity served to stifle her. "Mrs. Hilmer laid down her dustcloth and squinted up at the painting. The cat, the chair, the child — all dissolving in the painting's light. . . . 'Don't you see, Mrs. Hilmer?' The objects don't really matter here. They could be anything — grapes and bottles.'

"'I don't see how. If was grapes and bottles, it wouldn't be a picture of you.'

"'It isn't a picture of me,' Kate said.

"'Looks that way to me,' said Mrs. Hilmer, and Kate only nodded, because of course it had looked that way to her, too, once. Until she had begun to see what it was really meant to be, she thought the painting was her portrait.

"She could remember clearly the day she discovered that this was not so. She had heard (her father) talking to a visitor, standing beneath the painting as Mrs. Hilmer now stood. 'If you look closely at the cat,' he said, 'or the chair, or the figure on the chair, you can see that, as objects, they don't really matter. They are colors occupying space.'

"This had baffled Kate. She hadn't guessed that in the hours she posed for him she was only a color filling space. In fact, she had imagined that, when he had finished, she would call the painting, 'Kate.' He had called it 'The Studio Morning.'"

Oh, these Michigan writers! But I've said that before, haven't I?

Women writers elect Grigg

Ramona Grigg of Westland was elected president of Detroit Women Writers. A veteran free-lance feature writer for magazines and newspapers, Grigg is book columnist for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. In addition to her free-lance and columnist work, she's also completing her first novel, "Modern Screen."

Pearl Ahnen, playwright and former newspaper editor, was elected vice president. Ahnen's play, "The Weeping Icon," premiered at Wayne State University in 1986.

Victoria Diaz of Southfield was elected treasurer. Diaz, who also free-lances for the Observer & Eccentric, specializes in art and entertainment articles. She's published fiction and poetry and taught creative writing in area schools since 1979.

Claire Korn of Ann Arbor joins the board as secretary.

Exhibitors include: Susan Holls-Naum, jewelry and Carole Berhorst, pottery, both of Birmingham; Joseph Opalinski and Barbara Gibson, both showing pottery, both of Livonia; Tom Ritter, pottery and Tom LeGault, acrylics, both of Plymouth; Fred DeMarais, photography, of Garden City; and from Rochester: Mary Frandel-Purcell, silk screen; Rick Burger, watercolor; Thomas Cameron, oils. From Southfield: Fay Herman, jewelry, and Bob Plater, photography; and from Bloomfield Hills, Mary Taros, paper mache and Meg O'Reilly, pottery. From Troy: Julie Sanco, wheatweaving; Connie Korach, folk art; Jody House, basketry; and Barbara Kilela, pottery.

The show is located on complex's northwest corner at Long Lake and Coolidge roads. There is no admission charge and ample parking.

● ART ON THE GREEN

The Franklin Community Association's 43rd annual Labor Day Round-Up will take place Labor Day, Sept. 7, in historic Franklin Village highlighted by "Art on the Green." This juried art show will have over 70 local and out-of-town artists participating. Art show hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

● VARANI CONCERT

Flavio Varani, flamboyant pianist who is an Oakland University faculty member and artist-in-residence and who has won international acclaim for his grand virtuoso style, will be presented in concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23, at Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane in the music room. Admission is $3 with no admission charge for students. For tickets, call 593-5087.

● MYS AUDITIONS

Formal auditions for Metropolitan Youth Symphony's 1987-88 season will be held Saturday, Aug. 29. Interested students should call Marthanne Stefanko at 591-1408 and reserve an appointment. Auditions are open to all string bass, French horn, viola and percussion players specifically, but all players are invited to audition, Stefanko said.

● DANCE SEMINAR

Choreographer Gordon Cragg will conduct a dance workshop and seminar on Saturday, Sept. 19, at Joanne's Dance Extension in Plymouth. Several levels and styles of dance will be offered by Cragg, who recently completed a year with the First National Tour of of the hit musical "Cats," including a month's stay in Detroit. He also toured in "Funny Girl" with Juliet Prouse.

For more information on the workshop, or arranging for seminar or workshop of your own, call Alicia Erion at 455-4330.

● CRAFTS DEMONSTRATION

The Plymouth Historical Museum will have 12 people demonstrating old crafts during the community's annual Fall Festival from noon to 7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 13.

New York folk artist Barbara Kingsbury will be demonstrating her unique clothespin dolls and there also be demonstrations of corn husk dolls, quilting, tinsmithing, rug hooking, scrimshaw, lace making, ceramic dolls and stitchery. The museum is located at 155 S. Main. Admission is $1 for adults and 25 cents for children.

● MILFORD HOME TOUR

Four historic homes, a Civil War Cemetery, a commercial building, the Milford Historical Society Museum and a log cabin will be part of the Milford Historical Society home tour Saturday, Sept. 19, and Sunday, Sept. 20.

In addition to the tour, there will be a parade of vintage autos on Sunday and a craft show both days. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Tickets are $5 for adults; $3 for students and senior citizens. Tickets for the tour may be purchased at all home tour sites the day of the tour.

● FORD HOUSE SPECIAL PACKAGE

The Edsel and Eleanor Ford House, a historic home in Grosse Pointe Shores, has announced two special rate packages for house tours and tours of the "Gold and Silver Treasures from the Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection" exhibition.

Combined tickets are now available for guests touring both the home and the exhibition on the same day starting at $7 for adults, $5 for senior citizens and $3 for children (12 and under). Normal ticket prices for each tour are $4 for adults, $3 for seniors and $2 for children. Exhibition hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Friday and Saturday; 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday; and noon to 5 p.m. Sundays.

The hourly house tours are Wednesday through Sunday from 1-5 p.m. with the last tour beginning at 4 p.m.

The Thyssen-Bornemisza collection is considered the largest and finest private collection in the world, second only in size to the royal collection of England.

● CLARKSTON CRAFTS/ CIDER FESTIVAL

The Clarkston Community Historical Society's 13th annual crafts and cider festival will be held from noon to 6 p.m. Friday-Sunday, Sept. 18-20. The charming and quaint atmosphere of the Clarkston Village Park on Depot Road will once again serve as the backdrop for the juried fair. Approximately 60 exhibitors will be on hand.

Society volunteers will again be conducting free sidewalk architectural tours of the Village of Clarkston Saturday and Sunday afternoons. The society will also sell fresh cider and doughnuts. Clarkston is located on M-15 (Ortonville Road) between Dixie Highway and I-75.

One of the exhibitors will be Plymouth artist Tom LeGault.

● VAAL WORKSHOP

"Summer finale" is the focus of the two-day watercolor workshop being sponsored by the Visual Arts Association of Livonia (VAAL) from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 27, and Friday, Aug. 28, being conducted by VAAL instructor Marge Chellstorp. Cost of the workshop is $40 for VAAL members and $45 for non-members. Classes are held in Jefferson Center, Room 24, at 9501 Henry Ruff Road, Livonia. For more information, call Shirley Ceasar, 421-3207.

TAX TIP IF YOU SELL FOR A PROFIT

Normally, taxpayers who sell their home for a substantial profit face a heavy tax load, but this burden can be avoided. If you buy another home that costs as much or more than the sales price of the old one, within a specified time, the profit from the sale is not included in your taxable income.

The second home must be bought and occupied within a period ending 2 years after the sale. A 2-year period is also permitted when building a new home. This tax deferment applies only to the sale of a home which is the family's main residence.

When figuring the amount of gain for which tax may be postponed, you may deduct for "fix-up" expenses if they were accomplished within 90 days prior to the sale, and paid for no later than 30 days after the sale. Check with your accountant or the IRS on details if this matter affects you. It could be well worth your while.

At age 55, you qualify for the big bonanza - a one-time $125,000 exclusion of capital gain from the sale of your principal residence.

Robert M. Meisner

Our condominium project is experiencing roof leaks, basement leaks and deteriorated pavement. We have asked the developed to repair these items under a warranty, but the developer has refused to do so, saying that he has other pressing matters. What is our recourse as the board of directors?

The board of directors of a condominium association generally has the responsibility to ensure that the common areas of the condominium — for which the association is responsible for the maintenance, repair and replacement — are properly constructed and maintained.

If the developer is legally responsible to the association for defective construction regarding common elements, the association has a responsibility to examine the propriety of instituting legal proceedings, if necessary, to seek recovery from the developer for damages sustained by the association because of the defects.

The legal theories upon which these claims can be pursued depend, of course, upon the facts of the case, including the representations or omissions of material facts made by the developer. The board should consult with legal counsel immediately concerning its rights and what course of action can be undertaken to attempt to reasonably resolve the outstanding disputes.

My condominium wishes to preclude anyone from moving into the condominium under the age of 25. I have told them that that is not enforceable in this state and is discriminatory. Do you have any comment?

Generally speaking, the Elliott Larsen Civil Rights Act precludes discrimination on the basis of age except for "senior citizen housing," and it would appear, therefore, that a blanket restriction on any person residing in a condominium under the age of 25 would be suspect as being in violation of the Civil Rights law.

Such provisions might also cause problems with respect to the marketability of units by those who wish to sell them. You should obtain an opinion from legal counsel as to the propriety of such restriction and whether it might invite litigation to be brought by individuals or the Civil Rights Commission against the association and its directors.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate and corporate law. He welcomes comments and questions. They should be directed to him at 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Birmingham 48010. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

Used books for sale

Members of Farmington Area American Association of University Women are on the countdown now, marking, sorting and packing used books for their annual sale, set this year for Sept. 24-29 in Livonia Mall. Betty Ritchie (at left) is in charge of transporting the books from their trailer-warehouse on the grounds of O.E. Dunckel Middle School to the sale site. Perle Briggs, Pat Isham and Dieane Elser share chairmanship duties. Proceeds from the sale provide scholarships for women.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

GRAND OPENING

The New Breed

"I never saw anything like it. Handsome, distinctive buildings on terraced land, full of intriguing angles and architectural detail. A complete change from that old 'row-house' look.

Every apartment has its own private entrance, unusual layout, and surprising extras like a washer and dryer, vertical blinds, full kitchen with dishwasher, and plenty of closet and storage space.

Some even have cathedral ceilings, oversize patio, and a large eat-in kitchen.

I look out onto lush woods and ponds . . . a jogging path . . . swimming . . . tennis . . . and a comfortable clubhouse with exercise and aerobic rooms.

It's not just a place to live; it's a place I love coming home to. You'll see what I mean."

Sandy Kearns

MORE

West Bloomfield's Best.
Enter Aldingbrooke through the private gate and you've entered a world that abounds with "more" of everything.

More Space . . .
Up To 2,800 Square Feet.
Note the spaciousness of each of Aldingbrooke's 9 floor plans. The full living space, the generous storage space, the private patio or balcony, attached garages and the lush rolling terrain. Aldingbrooke residents demand spaciousness — so each Aldingbrooke unit is designed with their needs in mind.

More Community . . .
130 Acres.
Aldingbrooke is more than an apartment — it's a community. A clubhouse with pool, tennis courts, walking/jogging trails, library, billiards and other activities galore. Aldingbrooke residents demand more than just a place to live, they demand a lifestyle — and Aldingbrooke provides it.

More Value . . .
From $.52 Per Square Foot.
Compare the Aldingbrooke community. The gracious residences are available from $.52 per square foot. Where else could you get so much for one of the lowest costs per square foot around?

We invite you to tour all of the beautiful 1, 2 and 3 bedroom terrace homes of Aldingbrooke. Rentals begin at $650. We know you'll see a community as unique as its residents.
