The Canton Connection

PLAN ESCAPE: "Play It Safe, Plan Your Escape" is the theme of Fire Prevention Week to be observed Oct. 4-10. Fire Prevention Week has been observed annually since being first proclaimed by President Warren G. Harding in 1922. Each day the Canton Fire Department will have an open house between 2-8 p.m. at either one of the Canton fire stations. Large groups should call 981-1113 for an appointment; individuals can just stop by. Handouts will be distributed and the EMT personnel will provide blood pressure checks.

The Canton Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with the Canton Fire Department, is sponsoring a poster contest for grades 1-6. The chamber is providing $50 Series E Bonds to the first- and second-place winners for each grade and a traveling trophy for the winner's school.

ASK YOUR LIBRARY: This is "Ask Your Library" Week in Canton, the culmination of Literacy Action Month as proclaimed by Gov. Blanchard and a joint resolution of the state legislature.

You can find a New Reader Collection at the Canton Public Library, and if you are looking for more information on programs for adult literacy, ask your library.

The Canton Public Library is located on Canton Center Road south of Proctor in the township administration building. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday; and noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Call the reference desk at 397-0662 to ask about literacy programs.

IN HONOR OF: An open house and dedication ceremony for the Joyce M. Massey Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) Day Treatment Service was held last week at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. The public may attend and tours will be taken.

The facility was made possible by a gift from Donald E. Massey, owner of Massey Cadillac in Plymouth, in honor of his wife, Joyce. The center is a component of the McAuley Rehabilitation Program in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, 5301 E. Huron River Drive. The program allows patients to live at home and get treatment during the day. Occupational, physical, speech and recreational therapies, along with psychological and social work services will be offered for those who have suffered a debilitating injury or illness.

TRAINING PATROLLERS: Students at Bird Elementary School of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools were trained recently to be Safety Patrollers by AAA Michigan. The training on Thursday, conducted by AAA traffic safety consultant Jerry Spray, ended with a swearing-in ceremony.

"We explain what is expected of Safety Patrollers and teach them how to perform their duties," said Robert Cullen, AAA Michigan safety and traffic manager. Each year about 30,000 students receive Safety Patrol training through AAA Michigan. There are about 50,000 Safety Patrollers in Michigan who donate an average of 300 hours each school year protecting fellow students.

Pedestrians accounted for 42 percent of the 96 youngsters age 5-14 who died in traffic accidents in Michigan last year. More than 90 percent of the pedestrian fatalities occurred at locations unprotected by a Safety Patroller, adult crossing guard, or police officer.

Garbage fee increase approved

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Canton Township residents will pay more for garbage disposal beginning Thursday.

A 20 cents per month, per household rate increase was approved unanimously by the Canton Township Board Tuesday.

That brings to about $600,000 — or three-fourths of Canton's general fund — the amount paid by the township for annual garbage collection.

The increase reflects an increase in dumping rates being charged by the Browning-Ferris Industries landfill.

WASTE MANAGEMENT, which operates Woodland Meadows landfill in Canton, raised its prices Aug. 1 and other companies followed suit, said David Denski, the township's garbage hauler.

Denski, who owns Canton Waste Recycling, said the fact that area landfills charge similar rates is more than coincidence.

"It has finally come to where the big companies own landfills and they dictate to us the increases... the landfills will control the landfill prices," said Denski.

"It's the same system as the free agents of baseball uncovered. (Major league owners recently were found guilty of collusion in dealing with free agent players). It's something that everyone talks about, but who can prove it?"

Beginning next month, BFI of Salem Township will charge $4.60 per cubic yard of delivered refuse. Woodland Meadows charges $5 per cubic yard. The city of Ann Arbor Landfill also charges communities $5 per cubic yard.

Managers of the above-mentioned landfills denied price fixing.

"I can see why they might think that... but we would absolutely deny it," said Dan Nelson, district manager of BFI's Arbor Hills landfill in Salem Township.

"You would expect that the same service would cost similar amounts, but I didn't realize they were that close.

"We're looking at some significantly high new site development costs," added Nelson. "Landfill costs are skyrocketing. Even with the price increases, we're not certain where we stand.

"Our rate increase simply is a matter of looking at our costs and trying to price our service so that we can serve the marketplace and still make a profit."

JIM KING, site manager of Woodland Meadows Landfill in Canton Township, said price fixing "is something we would never want to do. It's against the law to start with. It would not be our policy to violate the law in any way."

King said he felt the reason rates are similar is because costs are similar. "We're all using basically the same equipment and we all are trying to operate as economically as possible."

John Newman, director of Ann Arbor's solid waste department, said price hikes "are due to the new requirements placed on landfills, and the difficulty in opening a landfill in the state.

The state is moving into a critical area in waste disposal at a time when environmental laws are be-

North Farmington noseguard Mike Sinanis stops Plymouth Salem's Garrett Bowie at the scrimmage line in Friday night's game between unbeaten Lakes Division football teams. Both defenses played superbly, but the visiting Raiders came away with a 10-0 victory at Centennial Educational Park. The Rocks are 3-1 overall and 1-1 in the division, North 4-0 and 2-0.

School land at CEP sold by mistake

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

There's egg on the face of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, and that's bad news for Verginio Persicone of Dearborn Heights.

Persicone paid $16,000 at a recent state auction for a lot behind Centennial Educational Park.

The sale was a mistake. The land belonged to the schools and shouldn't have been sold.

Students and parents use the lot, traversed by a sidewalk, to reach Centennial Educational Park from the Sunflower subdivisions. The only other direct route to CEP is via private property or through the woods.

CANTON TOWNSHIP treasurer Gerald Brown, who attended the Sept. 10 auction at Detroit's City-County Building, said the state Department of Natural Resources didn't realize the 70-by-120-foot lot was school-owned and placed it on the auction block with other foreclosed property.

He tried to stop the sale but it was too late.

'Somebody is going to have to buy it back. They have to have it for access to the high school.'

Gerald Brown
township treasurer

"Somebody is going to have to buy it back. They have to have it for access to the high school," said Brown, who also faulted township officials for failing to buy other state-seized Canton parcels. Foreclosed property is sold at a discount to cities and townships.

Brown said Persicone, who was unavailable for comment, plans to build a home on the site.

Ray Hoedel, the schools' associate superintendent for business, chalks up the snafu to miscommunication. He said that after the district received a letter in 1979 from Canton Township, it was assumed the parcel was off the tax rolls.

Workload determines superintendents' pay

Position may share power in township

By Susan Buck
staff writer

The salary paid to township superintendents in Michigan communities varies according to the number of duties assigned.

"In some communities, some are paid as much or more as $40,000 depending on how much work" the township board gives them, said Herbert Norton, director of township services for the Michigan Townships Association.

He speaks from experience. Before being hired by the MTA 20 years ago, he was superintendent of Lansing Charter Township.

"I don't know if you have a cost savings but you have continuity" by hiring a superintendent, said Norton. "A superintendent can keep the direction going, especially if you have an election and all seven board members are wiped out.

"Many times a supervisor has to play politics as well as do his job. A superintendent doesn't have to play politics. You know and I know that people have friends, and they all want special help from the top. The township board determines if a superintendent is doing a good job."

THE CHARTER Township Act allows the township board to appoint a superintendent and assign any or all duties ranging from enforcement of ordinances to managing and supervising utilities.

In Canton, an implementation committee was formed two years ago to develop a plan to hire a superintendent. It recommended, and apparently it is the intent of the township board, that all duties, except the position of personnel director held by Dan Durack, be transferred to the superintendent.

The superintendent, a professional manager appointed by the board, will handle the day-to-day responsibilities of the township now done by the supervisor.

Supervisor James Poole would keep, by law, the following duties:

- Member and moderator of the township board meetings.
- Chief assessing officer of the township.
- Secretary to the Tax Board of Review.
- Agent for transacting all township legal business.
- Official who appoints members of various township commissions and boards.

Poole's annual salary is $36,000.

The first meeting of the superintendent selection committee will meet Wednesday. The committee is comprised of: Tom Yack, Canton library board member; Phil LaJoy, merit commissioner; Bob Padgett, township board member; and Durack.

TEN MICHIGAN townships listed in the 1985-1989 MTA directory, which was published in 1984, have a supervisor/superintendent form of government.

These include, with population totals: Hampton Charter, Bay County, 10,418; St. Joseph, Berrien County, 4,302; Breitung Charter, Dickenson County, 4,669; Fenton, Genesee County, 11,744; Meridian Charter, Ingham County, 32,000; Holland Charter, Ottawa County, 15,000; Bridgeport Charter, Saginaw County, 14,000; Buena Vista Charter, Saginaw County, 12,768; East China, St. Clair County, 3,122; and Pittsfield Charter, Washtenaw County, 12,997.

According to Norton, superintendent

Sewer expansion approved; Belleville Lake dumping cut

By Anita Crone
special writer

The Western Townships Utility Authority got some guarded good news Thursday but it will be at least a month before any action is taken.

The Michigan Water Resource Commission meeting in Bay City suggested that the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority pursue plant expansion but without sending its treated sewage into Belleville Lake.

The commissioners also directed YCUA officials to meet with the Department of Natural Resources to determine whether the alternative would meet the expansion needs of the Ypsilanti treatment plant to service the non-contacted flows of Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships.

Commissioner Delbert Rector, the DNR's representative on the seven-member water resource commission, offered the compromise suggestion after nearly three hours of discussion involving the DNR's facility plan for Belleville Lake and YCUA's request to expand its plant capacity from 29 million to 58 million gallons per day.

Eldon Ahles, YCUA executive director, withdrew the expansion request before a vote could be taken; however, it was apparent from earlier discussions that the request was doomed.

Only one commissioner, Clem Lay, indicated any support for the YCUA request.

THE DNR, which is serving as a staff resource for the water resources commission, had recommended that the YCUA expansion request be denied, based on an attempt to clean up Belleville Lake.

"It is clear that the phosphorus level in Belleville Lake could be lowered significantly if the YCUA and Ann Arbor plants were removed from the system," said Fred Cowles, testifying in support of the DNR effort to reduce pollution in the lake.

Group endorses sewer expansion

Cowles noted that removing the two plants, both of which were built within the last 20 years, was not a viable alternative. "But increasing the discharge from the YCUA plant will not help the lake."

But Ahles contended that Belleville Lake was not a lake at all. "It is an impoundment with extremely short detention time, 11-13 days as an average. Nevertheless, the fishing is reported to be one of the top five in the state of Michigan. Applying the general goal of 30 micrograms, lagoon to Belleville Lake is therefore inappropriate."

Ahles contended that YCUA officials could meet the phosphorus levels requested by the DNR with the increased flow.

"And with the addition of the communities to the system, it allows us to spread the cost over a greater number of communities, so from an economic standpoint, the expansion makes sense."

A number of prospective developers also made their case with the commission.

"For the past two years we have been told that a solution to the wastewater treatment problem is possible," said James Abernethy, site development coordinator for Ward Presbyterian Church. "If you feel you have enough information, then please make a decision."

Rick Lorenz of Plymouth, president of RTL Inc., which is hoping to develop condominiums in Plymouth Township, told the commission that he had one of five sewer permits already approved by Wayne County but not by the DNR.

"I find it unusual that, in other areas, people are getting sewer permits but developers in Northville, Plymouth and Canton townships are not."

"I'm ready to start today. I have equipment on the job site and I'm ready to go. But a 'no' vote today would certainly force me to go back and re-evaluate my position in terms of holding up development over the winter."

Rector, after listening to fisheries biologist Ron Spittler explain the effect of DNR stocking on Belleville Lake, said he was not prepared to authorize the 35,000 pound phosphorus loading but not to the Belleville Lake system. Maybe it could flow to the Rouge. It's not that far away."

"I'm aware of the western townships' need for a solution. And, while I'm not prepared to authorize the total expansion, I would be willing to authorize the 35,000 pound phosphorus loading but not to the Belleville Lake system. Maybe it could flow to the Rouge. It's not that far away."

Teachers vote on union pact

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

Wayne-Westland Community Schools teachers and the school board are expected to ratify a three-year contract today, approving an 18 percent salary increase for teachers over the course of the agreement.

The district's 900 teachers will vote on the agreement at their respective schools. (The district includes a portion of Canton Township.)

If the proposed contract is approved as expected, school board members will vote on it tonight during their regularly scheduled meeting.

In a separate action, board members are expected to grant similar pay increases to non-teaching employees.

"We anticipate ratification by both the school board and the teachers," Tom Svitkovich, district assistant superintendent for communication and finance, said Wednesday. "I think both sides feel we've got a fair contract."

Svitkovich said the teachers received written copies of the proposed agreement last week and they would have well over the required 48 hours to read the document before voting on it.

THE PROPOSED agreement was reached earlier this month, three hours after the strike deadline set by the Wayne-Westland Community Education Association.

Teachers overwhelmingly approved the contract in an informal voice vote Sept. 7.

The agreement averted a walkout by teachers during the second week of classes for 17,000 students.

UNDER THE tentative agreement, teachers will get a 6 percent raise annually for three years.

In the first year of the agreement, salaries for teachers with bachelor's degrees will range from a starting wage of $20,305 to $34,565 for a teacher with 10 years of experience.

Teachers with a master's degree will earn between $22,435 and $40,720 in 1987-88.

In the second year of the agreement, the salary range for teachers with a bachelor's degree will be $21,525 to $36,640, while those with a master's degree will get $23,780 to $43,165.

In 1989-90, the final year of the contract, the bachelor's scale will range from $22,815 to $38,840 and the master's scale will range from $25,205 to $45,755.

The proposed contract also includes a new category for people coming into teaching from other fields. These people would be given full salary credit for experience gained in a profession other than teaching.

PAUL ZUGGER, commission executive secretary, said the DNR staff had not studied the socio-economic impact of YCUA's expansion program.

"We are not charged with studying that. What we have here today is just one proposal. I believe that there are other alternatives. But I cannot make an assumption that if the commission denies this proposal, there will or will not be others," said Zugger.

School property mistakenly sold at DNR auction

"Despite the issuance of this letter, the DNR erroneously listed the property for sale," said Hoedel.

The district's attorney is obtaining "a certificate of error to ensure that ownership will remain with schools. Hopefully it will all be taken care of."

Brown and Supervisor James Poole said the schools most likely failed to file the sale with the county register of deeds.

"That had something to do with it, I'm sure," said Hoedel.

"Someone assumed it was recorded with the register of deeds. But even so, we should have found out sooner."

Brown said the township probably will condemn the lot and deed it over to the schools.

"But someone's out $16,000 bucks. Somebody will have to pay the man his money back, that's for sure."

THE TOWNSHIP also goofed. It could have bought prime parcels for $100 or $200 but didn't. Brown said at Tuesday's township board meeting.

"You're only talking $5,000 if we bought 50 parcels. We should buy

Postcards offer glimpses of Canton's past

An old-fashioned threshing expedition takes place 30 years ago on Joy Road in Canton.

The Morton home and family is shown in 1888 on Michigan Ave. east of Sheldon.

SIX vignettes of Canton's past are yours for $1.50 or 30 cents each.

The sepia-toned postcards, sold by the Canton Historical Society, offer glimpses of days gone by.

The 3-by-5/4-inch postcards carry through the antique theme with script type on the address side.

With burgeoning development in Canton, the scenes of yesteryear are ideal reminders of where the community's roots lie.

Profits from sales go to the society's coffers for future projects like printing a book about Canton's history, to be called "Corner Stones a History of Canton Families" and to hire someone to give tours of the historical museum, on Canton Center Road, south of Proctor.

Florence Tonda, historical society director, says the postcards are ideal for Canton residents to jot notes to out-of-town family and friends.

The cards are available at the historical museum, Canton Township administration building, Meijer Thrifty Acres, Sunny Daze card and gift shop, Elias Brothers Big Boy of Canton and other locations.

Other historical society fundraisers have been rummage sales, ice cream socials, arts and crafts sales, and DuMouchelle antique appraisals, said Tillee Schultz, historical society president. She also stresses that memorial contributions are vital to the society.

Pollack announces bid for Congressional seat

A Michigan state senator has tossed her hat into the Second Congressional District election.

Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, who is in her second term in the state Senate, plans to seek the Democratic nomination for the second district to challenge incumbent Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

The second district includes northern Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

"I believe one person can make a difference," Pollack said. "I have made a difference in the Michigan Senate and can make a difference in the nation's Congress."

"We need a change in the second congressional district instead of staying with someone who switches his vote with the latest poll," Pollack said Pursell isn't "dependable" because of his vacillation on major issues.

Pursell, she said, started his congressional career with a relatively moderate voting stance but has changed to an inconsistent conservative position during the Ronald Reagan presidency.

"He flip-flops on issues important to all of us," Pollack said.

Pollack said she will focus her campaign on environmental protection support for senior citizens' health care, an adequate but not extravagant defense budget, jobs and economic well-being of workers, elimination of Contra aid and support for education and research.

"THESE ARE issues I believe in, issues people can depend on me to fight for," she said. "We need to invest more of our resources at home and on our children. We must stop supporting a jungle war far away and meddling in other people's problems instead of solving our own."

Pollack has a bachelor of arts degree in political science and a master of arts degree in education, both from the University of Michigan. A former teacher, she served on the Ann Arbor Board of Education from 1979 to 1982 when she was elected to the state Senate.

She managed the Second Congressional District Democratic campaign in 1980 and co-managed the 18th State Senate District campaign in 1978. She also chaired the Ann Arbor Democratic Party from 1975 to 1977.

As Friends of the Rouge president, James Murray has been centrally involved in restoring the long-polluted Rouge River as a recreational waterway.

While he carries that commitment into his new job as county Department of Public Works director, Murray also faces fresh challenges.

Bringing county sewage treatment facilities into compliance with state and federal environmental regulations is one. Boosting morale among his new charges is another.

Restoring the Rouge, however, isn't likely to get lost in the shuffle of Murray's new duties.

"It's one of my priorities," said Murray, who intends to maintain his position as Friends of the Rouge president.

Parts of the Rouge could be navigable for canoeists within three years, Murray said, if government and volunteer cleanup crews could be marshaled into action.

"Right now, the river is so full of debris that it would be impossible to pass through even if it was in good shape," Murray said. "But it doesn't have to stay that way."

HAVING MICHIGAN Conservation Corps workers spend a year clearing Rouge log jams is an important first step, Murray said. Rouge Rescue '88, the third in a series of volunteer cleanups, is also being planned.

Future cleanup efforts should concentrate as much on the river's banks as on the river bed itself.

"Not only do we need to clear out tree stumps, we need to clear out debris trees before they fall into the river," Murray said. "Riverbanks are literally being eaten away."

A member of the Area-wide Water Quality Board, Murray helped draft guidelines calling for a useable Rouge by the year 2005.

While the Rouge remains a top priority, Murray said it shares billing with his other objectives.

"Wayne County does have some compliance problems," he said. "And we intend to rectify them."

Building team spirit among the department's nearly 200 employees is another of Murray's goals.

The department includes many former drain commission workers, Murray said, whose morale suffered during the long-running controversy capped by a public vote that abolished the office.

"I'd like to restore confidence, even a kind of pride in ownership among our workers," Murray said.

"For a long time there had been charges of mismanagement involving the drain commission. While I don't know if that was true, I do know that couldn't have done much for worker morale, even though it wasn't their fault."

MURRAY SAID he intends to pursue construction of the Middle Rouge Interceptor, the major sewer that would replace the controversial, long-dormant Super Sewer that would have connected western Wayne and southern Oakland counties.

But he doesn't intend to pressure western Wayne communities that have opted out of the project into rejoining.

Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships are joining with Ypsilanti in an effort to increase sewage capacity.

Lack of adequate sewer capacity has stifled development in each community.

"It's really their decision on how they want to go on that," Murray said.

Murray, 41, assumes his new duties the first week of November provided his appointment is confirmed by the county commission. He leaves his current post as Washtenaw County Drain Commissioner at the same time.

Murray was elected Washtenaw Drain Commissioner in 1980 and re-elected four years later.

He holds a bachelor's degree in political science and public administration from Eastern Michigan University and is working toward a master's degree.

A former Garden City resident, Murray lives with his wife and two children in Ypsilanti Township. The family is looking for a home in Wayne County.

Can You Find The Hidden Value in This Home?

Equi:Money™ makes your home more valuable than ever!

Look closely. There's a boat, an education, and an RV hidden in that house. There's money in home improvements or bill consolidation, too. These are just a few of the things a homeowner could purchase with a convenient, affordable Equi:Money credit line from Michigan National Bank.

Apply today and, once approved, you may never have to fill out another loan application again. Just write yourself a special Equi:Money check in any amount up to your approved line of credit, which could be from $5,000 to $100,000 or more! Whenever and for whatever reason you decide.

From now until December 31, 1987, you pay no application fee! Equi:Money interest rates are lower than most other home equity loans, only 2% above prime as published in the Wall Street Journal, an independently established rate that may vary monthly. For example, on September 1, 1987, the prime rate was 8.25%, and the Equi:Money Annual Percentage Rate was a low 10.25%. And, after checking with your tax advisor, you may find that your interest is tax deductible. As an added bonus, appraisal fees are normally not required on credit lines of $40,000 or less. And, we'll waive the usual $40 annual commitment fee for the first year!

Equi:Money makes your home more valuable than ever. Call toll-free today, or return the handy coupon for your Equi:Money application!

City's Old Village showing signs of new life

There's a Renaissance taking place at the north end of Plymouth. New blocks of retail stores, bright new condominiums, renovation of historic old homes and fresh coats of paint are beginning to brighten up the area.

Shucking off the name "Lower Town" in favor of a new one with more favorable connotations — "Old Village" — the north end is showing signs of renewed vigor.

Even the old railroad station, once a daily stopping place for up to 18 passenger trains but dormant for the past 15 years, has a new lease on life. Not as a depot, but as the home of the Country Crossing Gift Store and the old freight station, moved across the tracks several years ago, also houses several business establishments.

IF ALIVE today, leading citizens of the north end in times past — Henry Holbrook, George Starkweather, Peter Gayde, Jake Streg and Frank Pierce, among others — would welcome the regeneration apparent in their old stamping ground.

Holbrook, who platted Plymouth in 1837, cast his lot with the north end when he became an early owner of the Plymouth Flour Mill (later the Wilcox Mill).

Starkweather thought the arrival of the railroads and the building of the depot there in 1871 signaled the end of Kellogg Park supremacy. For that reason he built the business block still existing on the south side of Liberty Street.

Gayde, a leader in the north end's German community, agreed with Starkweather and established a retail business in Starkweather's building.

In later years, Jake Streg thrived in the north end when his restaurant, across the tracks from the depot, drew customers from as far away as Detroit, attracted by Jake's Sunday chicken dinners.

Frank Pierce also did well in the restaurant and hotel he conducted just east of the depot during the years when the railroads were a vital part of the local economy in terms of the number of residents employed in the round house and other facilities.

THESE ENTREPRENEURS of the past are all gone, but a new generation is infusing money, enthusiasm and ideas into the business life of the north end.

Typical of this new breed are the Osbornes, Bob and Sharon. The Osbornes have renovated a number of buildings in Old Village and have made them available for retail and office rental. Included are the old Buick Building, the railroad station, and two houses near the railroad tracks on N Mill Street.

The Osbornes, who are residents of Livonia, purchased the old Buick building at 638 Starkweather Street several years ago. Once owned by Carl Shear who took over the Buick agency from the Bently Brothers in 1920, the building was later owned by Doug Blank from whom the Osbornes acquired it. It now houses Kathy's Korner, LaDonna's Apparel, Rainbow Connection and the Beginnings Bridal Shop.

The Osbornes bought the old railroad station early in 1987 after a year of negotiation with the C&O Railroad. It had not been used as a station since 1972. They bought it without seeing the inside because no one could find a key. The basic structure was sound, but the building needed work. It has been completely renovated and now sports bright yellow vinyl siding.

Nancy Anderson's Country Crossing Gift Store occupies part of the building; another part is available for rent.

ANOTHER OSBORNE purchase in Old Village was the house at 875 N. Mill Street, acquired in January 1986. Sharon Osborne has been told that was once the residence of George Springer, a local cigar maker and village marshal from 1912 to 1922.

Completely renovated, with grounds nicely landscaped, the old Springer House, at the corner of Mill and Division Streets, has been renamed: "Carmody's Corner" (Sharon's maiden name was Carmody).

Converted into business spaces, the house is now rented to R.J. Montgomery liquidators, the D. and M. Art Studio, an American Casualty Insurance office, Wayne Janitorial Service and an office of the Old Village Association, of which Sharon is treasurer.

The Livonians also purchased the house next door to the Springer place, the home at 745 N. Mill. That also has been refurbished and is rented by Harold Sneath who operates the United Securities business there.

Bob Osborne served in the U.S. Navy during World War II, worked in the Detroit area for Michigan Bell, and was director of the DFW for the city of Livonia.

The Osbornes, along with other Livonians, are owners of the Oasis Golf Course and Driving Range on Five Mile Road.

Asked why they had decided to invest in Plymouth, Sharon says: "Bob and I were both raised in small towns, Bob in Crosswell, Mich., and I in a small town near Waukegon, Ill. I guess we have nostalgia for small town life. And the Old Village is near Livonia where we live."

Sharon is enthusiastic over the revival of Old Village. "Once you start to fix up, paint up and renovate the idea catches on and others begin to brighten up. It needs to be promoted as part of overall Plymouth."

Task force says county parks need cash now

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County's parks system is crumbling and can only be saved by a massive infusion of cash, including a tax increase, the chairman of the county's special parks task force said Thursday.

"The county has to do something or it should get out of the parks system," task force chairman William Kreger said.

Kreger, former mayor of Wyandotte, presented the task force report to the county commission's committee on roads, airports and public service.

A tax increase is one of several financing options mentioned in the task force report, but apparently is the group's major recommendation.

"If this is presented correctly the people will really go for it," Kreger said. "It's a quality of life issue."

Task force members said $20-$25 million is necessary to upgrade county parks.

Wayne County executive Edward McNamara remains opposed to a tax increase for any purpose, an executive's office spokesman said.

"Any recommendation to raise taxes is going right in the trash can," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said. "I don't think we can be much clearer than that."

There are indications county commissioners may spearhead a ballot drive if the county executive fails to do so.

"The people have a right to say yes or no," committee chairman Arthur Blackwell II, D-Detroit, said.

The task force reported parks funding rose from $1 million to $2.5 million in 1985, but has declined steadily since. Parks received $3.6 million a decade ago, according to task force figures.

PARKS ARE a part of the county's general operating budget. Task force members said the lack of an independent budget forces parks to compete with other county activities for decreasing county revenue.

"The Huron-Clinton Metroparks are funded by their own millage, so are Oakland County parks" Kreger said. "They don't have this problem."

Though parks also receive state and federal grants, Wayne County's financial crisis has left several grants in limbo because the county cannot provide matching funds.

A $1 million state Urban Water Fund grant hasn't yet been received because the county hasn't provided a supplemental $344,000 contribution, county parks director R. Eric Reickel said. A $400,000 Michigan Land Trust grant is also pending because the county hasn't come up with $100,000 on its own, he added.

It took action by the state legislature to secure the matching $125,000 needed to secure a $125,000 federal grant for Elizabeth Park, Reickel added.

Pasta fanciers are legion

No one ever said this job was going to be easy.

I mean, in all honesty, how did I know that one day the Detroit Tigers would be pitted against the Toronto (Canada) Blue Jays for what, by the time this piece goes to press, could be the most exciting inter-division playoffs the Midwest has ever seen?

Of course, it makes it especially difficult when you happen to write for both Canadian and American papers. One thing to be thankful for, the topic is always food and I promise to stay out of Dave Halls' (Windsor Star sports) and C.J. Risak's (O&E sports) area of expertise calling the games if they grant me the same and stay out of the food pages.

So what do baseball and food have in common? Any true diehard baseball fan can appreciate the ritual of chowing down a few red hots at the old ballpark.

"Chowing down" is the appropriate term in this case. The red hots served in the ballpark are "red" because of the paprika used for coloring and supposedly "hot," but they seldom are by the time they are boiled or steamed; placed in an aluminum, non-insulated storage box; placed on a soggy, steamed bun, topped with a unique yellow mixture that is supposed to resemble mustard, and passed along through the masses of beer-clutched fists.

Any fan who has visited Tiger Stadium in the last decade expecting decent chow should know by now that the level of food quality has slipped to the level of alcohol in the 3.2, so-called beer that you are forced to shell out $2.25 for.

IT'S A RIPOFF. Wanna know how Tom Monaghan can afford all those classic cars and Jack Morris' salary? Just check out the cashboxes at the vendors' stands. Even if the guy only gets 10 percent, he can pay off his helicopter in a three-game series, easily.

If I sound like I'm on a soapbox, I get more angry the more I think about how we fans are getting ripped off at the concession stands. Considering the Tigers are owned by a pizza magnate, wouldn't you think the quality of what is served at the stadium would at least be equivalent to what is home-delivered in 30 minutes or less?

With the long lines and security guards who don't know whether to make us stay to the left or right, I've waited in line longer than it takes to call and get home delivery. And then, you get the 8-inch box back to your seat and open it to find you just paid $5 for 12 ounces of bread dough, 3 tablespoons of tomato sauce, 2 ounces of shredded cheese and 4 pepperoni. It makes you want to drown your sorrows in more of the $2.25 "beer."

Even our old, trusted friend, Cracker Jack, is a joke at the ballpark, gouging people a buck for what can buy three boxes in the grocery stores. (And the concessioners get it wholesale yet!) Would you believe, at a game I attended last month, I was told by a vendor to please put my peanut shells in empty cups to make it easier to clean? When I'm paying more than $4 per pound for peanuts in the shell that sell formally for $1 per pound, I get rather incensed when told what to do with my shells. Maybe we should all save our shells, combine them and toss them at the vendors. Better yet, bring your own munchies to the ballpark.

Whew! Now that I got that off my chest, here are a few red-hot recipes that are sure to please the family more than what's available down at the old ballpark. Eat hearty before the game so all your energy can be used cheering on the Tigers or the Blue Jays.

Would it be fair to look to George Bell or Alan Trammell and ask them what they recommend we fans eat at the stadium? Not-so-hot hot dogs, pizza that resembles a Frisbee, beer that looks (and tastes) like dishwater, and some help that could probably benefit from it? Keep your mind on baseball, guys, and let the food people do their thing — you do yours!

Bless you, boys!

CORN DOGS

1 lb. frankfurters
vegetable oil for frying
1 cup flour
2 tbsp. cornmeal
1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
3 tbsp. shortening
3/4 cup milk
1 egg, beaten

Pat frankfurters dry. Heat 2-3 inches of oil in a fryer to 365 degrees. Mix the flour, cornmeal, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening. Stir in remaining ingredients. Dip frankfurters in the batter. Fry, turning once until browned, about 6 minutes.

SLOPPY FRANKS

1 green pepper, chopped
1/2 cup onion, chopped
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1/2 cup bottled barbecue sauce
8 oz. tomato sauce
1 lb. frankfurters, cut into 1/4 inch slices

Alfredo Nenciarini, who learned the art of pasta-making at his mother's knee, places spaghetti on a rack to dry. As a child, Nenciarini was treated regularly to homemade pasta with tomato or meat sauce. It was the first course of every Sunday dinner.

'Dough' popular with rich, poor, through history

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

"It knows no social, political or economic barriers or influences. It is a Godsend for the poor, and the richest of the rich have enjoyed it with equal gusto. It may well be the most democratic food in the world, because it does the most good for the most people."

That's Carlo Middione — scion of an ancient line of Sicilian innkeepers and the Italian specialist on the faculty of the California Culinary Academy — speaking of pasta.

That's not to say pasta hasn't taken its punches.

Public campaigns in Italy have been launched against excessive pasta consumption.

"Some authorities have tried to tell the Italian people that pasta was no food for fighters, for virility or for those who didn't want to get fat," says Middione, a regular on "A.M. San Francisco," a popular Bay Area television show.

"However, the Italians, especially those in the south, have gone right on eating it every day. It does seem that these southern Italians know something that we don't."

RECENT MEDICAL studies have reported a lower incidence of heart disease and cancer among those who eat pasta daily. A comparable study of Italian-Americans shows that those on pasta and wine diets showed virtually no incidence of heart disease below the age of 40, and after that an incidence of 25 percent of that found among the general U.S.

Mother taught him how to make pasta

Not only is pasta good for you, it's fun to make.

It takes less than an hour, and the results are delicious.

Livonia's Alfredo Nenciarini, a first-generation Italian, learned to make pasta at his mother's knee in northwest Detroit's "Little Italy."

Nenciarini starts with all-purpose, unbleached flour, eggs and an electric pasta maker.

"Proportions vary slightly according to the size of the eggs and liquid content of the eggs, but a good rule of thumb is one cup of flour to one egg. It makes enough pasta for one person," says Nenciarini. "We put it into a food processor, and within 20 to 30 seconds we have a ball of dough.

five to 10 minutes. After the dough is made, there are three methods of producing the pasta. You can stretch it — normally a hand process; roll it with a rolling pin, or compress it with a handcranked or electric machine."

Nenciarini opts for the machine for convenience sake.

"It looks like a streamlined sewing machine with two rollers. One is a flat roller that compresses the pasta into sheets, the other a ribbed roller that cuts the pasta into different sizes.

"The ball of dough is rolled out flat and pressed through the rollers until it's stretched and thinned out. You let it dry for a few minutes — till it gets to be the consistency of population, says Middleton, who writes cookbooks and teaches cooking in his San Francisco restaurant, Vivande.

Though pasta — Italian for "dough" — seems to have been around since the Etruscan civilization of the fourth century, it's just lately receiving its due as a nutritional powerhouse.

"Durum wheat and vegetable-based pastas are high in complex carbohydrate, protein, vitamins, minerals and amino acids. There's even more food value when properly cooked vegetables, fresh herbs and proper oils are added to pasta."

Runners have known about energy-packed pasta for a while — hence the flyers that blanket Boston the week of the marathon. "Eat pasta — run faster," they say.

The advice is well-heeded. Italian restaurants in Beantown's North End are filled to capacity on nights leather, yet still pliable. You then can change rollers and cut it into the particular size that you want. Or you can use sheets for lasagna, or for making the top and bottom layer for ravioli."

Use up vegetables in pasta primavera

Pasta Primavera is a nutritious meal that can be made with any fresh vegetables you happen to have on hand.

"Livonia cooks Alfredo Nenciari and Frank Tonarelli — whose parents perfected pasta-making in their native Italy — like to "clean the refrigerator of whatever vegetables" they have.

"They usually begin by steaming for five minutes broccoli florets and one-inch asparagus pieces and blanching for one minute snow peas, corn and sliced, unpeeled zucchini or summer squash.

They then add mushrooms, diced tomatoes, sliced, shredded carrots, and parsley, seasoned to taste with black pepper.

In a skillet, they saute in olive oil three large cloves of garlic (chopped with a butcher knife). The mixture is then added to the vegetables.

Variety of pasta shapes enlivens a meal in itself

Elisa Celli, author of "The Pasta Diet," calls pasta salad "the all-in-one" meal.

"Pasta salad is popular because it's ideally suited to today's lifestyle, easy to prepare, carry, eat and serve. It's light, an unsurpassed diet food, exciting, satisfying, and always in style," says Celli, also an actress and New York food consultant.

Celli suggests using a variety of short-shaped pastas — such as ziti, shells, elbows, wheels, swirls, bows and gnocchi — and mixing the shapes and colors.

Cook the pasta and cool it under cold water. Drain well and transfer to a large bowl.

Toss with fresh herbs and two to three tablespoons of olive or safflower oil, being careful to coat but not saturate noodles.

Add dried fresh vegetables, diced seafood, chicken or your heart's desire to the cooled pasta, and enjoy.

PASTA'S POPULARITY has transcended Italian and runners' circles into the population at large.

The flour-and-water-based staple, which comes in more than 100 shapes and sizes, has been elevated from a low-cost belly-stuffer to haute cuisine.

Americans are eating 2 billion pounds of pasta annually — double what they consumed a decade ago. That's about 10 pounds per person per year. It's served as an appetizer, an entree, in salads, and is even covered with chocolate for dessert.

Capellini, vermicelli, spaghetti, spaghetti, trenette — it all can be awkward to eat.

Pasta fan Sophia Loren offers this tip to those reluctant to slurp the strands of pasta that inevitably end up hanging outside one's mouth.

"Spaghetti can be eaten successfully if you inhale it like a vacuum cleaner," says the Italian star of the screen.

Prepare and serve pasta that's perfect

AP — Both China and Italy claim to be the birthplace of pasta, but it gets all-American honors from millions of U.S. families. Here are some tips for perfect pasta.

Recipes often call for a weight of pasta. If you don't have a kitchen scale, four ounces of uncooked elbow macaroni or shells measure about 1 cup. Four ounces of uncooked medium noodles measure about 3 cups, and four ounces of uncooked 10-inch spaghetti held together in bunch have about a 1-inch diameter.

PASTA DONENESS. Your teeth are your best guide to pasta doneness. They can tell when the pasta is al dente — tender but still slightly firm.

KEEPING COOKED PASTA HOT. Drain it quickly. Don't let it stand in the colander but return it to the hot cooking pan. Cover the pan. The heat of the pan will keep the pasta warm. If the pasta must wait longer than a few minutes, toss it with a bit of oil to keep strands from sticking together. Serve pasta on a warm serving dish. Run hot water into the dish and let it stand a few minutes until the heat is all right; use the one that absorb the heat. Then empty the dish and wipe it dry.

Use up vegetables in pasta primavera

The vegetables are served over pasta, with a cream sauce gently poured over the vegetables. See accompanying recipe.

Pasta usually takes between five and 10 minutes to cook. It's done as soon as the hardness at the center of the noodle disappears. If it's mushy, it's overdone.

Buon appetito!

Cream Sauce for Pasta Primavera

2 tsp. butter or margarine
1 tsp. flour
1 cup skim milk
1/2 cup chicken stock
1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 cup finely minced fresh basil

In a small, heavy saucepan, melt the butter or margarine. Add the flour, whisking it over low heat for one minute. Gradually add milk and chicken stock, stirring constantly until sauce thickens slightly.

Stir in Parmesan and basil, and heat sauce over a medium low flame until cheese melts.

Pour gently over pasta.

the entire recipe the first time around, here it is again:

LEMON BARS

2 cups flour
1 cup margarine
4 eggs
2 cups sugar
2 Tbsp. flour
4 Tbsp. fresh lemon juice
1/2 cup powdered sugar

Work 2 cups flour and margarine together with a pastry cutter or fork until mixture resembles coarse cookie crumbs (like pie crust). Pat into bottom of 9-inch by 13-inch baking dish and bake in 350-degree oven for 20 minutes.

Beat eggs well with electric mixer. Add sugar, 4 tablespoons flour and the fresh lemon juice. Pour over baked bottom crust. Bake for 25 minutes in 350-degree oven. Sprinkle cooled cake with powdered sugar and cut into bars (makes at least two dozen).

Leave pre-cut bars in the pan for trip to the stadium so they won't dry out.

HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.

This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you do.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed.

Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

thick, golden syrup. Sorghum can also be bought at the farm to use in cooking at home.

Everyone can turn the smells and tastes coming from a modern kitchen into those that came from country kitchens at the turn of the century. All you have to do is follow these recipes, but it wouldn't hurt if you let a few live chickens walk around the kitchen to add to the ambience.

That doesn't mean that our sweet tooth will disappear, however. This fact is known at Upland Hills Farm in Oxford, where the art of producing sorghum, a thick, rich syrup that tastes like a mixture of molasses and maple syrup, is still being practiced.

Prior to World War I, sorghum was the farmer's main source of sweetener, with more than 20 million gallons produced annually in the United States. The introduction of refined sugar from sugar beets and production of sorghum to less than 50,000 gallons annually. Mostly produced in the lower Midwest and upper South, sorghum came to the United States from Africa and China.

At the Upland Hill's Harvest Festival, held every Sunday in September, visitors will have an opportunity to observe the methods used by early settlers to process sorghum — using a horse to provide the power to crush the cane and extract the sap, which is then boiled down to produce a

New S'craft chef has gold medal touch

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Jeffrey Gabriel, Schoolcraft College's new culinary arts instructor remembers his first time in front of an oven.

"I was washing dishes at a barbecue shop on the east side of Detroit and one night the cook didn't show," Gabriel recalled. "Just like that, I became the new cook, even though I was only 15."

There'll be no such trial by fire for his own students. Rather than learning from scratch, they'll be receiving instruction from a gold-medal-winning chef who has worked in the kitchens of some of metropolitan Detroit's most exclusive clubs.

Gabriel, most recently executive chef of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, said he's looking forward his new job as a teaching chef.

"I think I can relate better to students because I've been on the outside," he said. "I know what it takes to be a professional chef."

FROM ITS near-accidental start, Gabriel's career took off. He was a seagoing chef during a stint in the U.S. Navy. Upon his return, he attended the Culinary Institute of America, Hyde Park, N.Y.

The Detroit native was also chef manager at the Detroit Athletic Club and executive chef of Sugar Loaf Resort, before his eight-year affiliation with the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

In his new post, he'll teach up to four classes a day while also supervising Le Gastronomique, Schoolcraft's student-staffed restaurant.

'I think I can relate better to students because I've been on the outside. I know what it takes to be a professional chef.'

— Jeffrey Gabriel
new instructor

Gabriel will also work with the Schoolcraft Culinary Team, 10 hand-picked students who will enter their creations in national competitions.

No stranger to national and international competition, Gabriel brought home two gold medals from the 1984 Culinary Olympics in Frankfurt, West Germany.

A wild game platter designed by Gabriel was one of the items selected to grace the event's commemorative cookbook.

In all, he's won nearly a dozen gold medals in various culinary events. He is also a regional captain for the 1988 U.S. National Culinary Olympics.

"WITH AN event like that, they give you a basket of ingredients, and you go in cold," he said. "It's a test of every skill you have."

Gabriel is also a founding member of Michigan Chefs Against Hunger, a charity group that raises money for the Capuchin Soup Kitchen in Detroit.

The organization is co-sponsor of a Monday, Oct. 5, black-tie dinner at Novi Oaks that will feature comedian Bob Hope.

The Schoolcraft job isn't Gabriel's first; teaching experience. For the past three years, he's been a part-time instructor at Wayne County Community College.

Like his charges, Gabriel hopes to line up a summer job as well.

"I want to keep my hand in," he said. "Working in a resort kitchen would be ideal."

It's back to school for new Schoolcraft College culinary arts instructor Jeffrey Gabriel.

They're Better... You can be Too!

KAY WILLIS
"My son and husband have also received good results."

JIM DROSTE
"I was hurt in an auto accident. Dr. Mashike helped me."

TOM & RUTH DOUGHERTY
Tom - "Always feel good."
Ruth - "After my bad fall, Dr. Mashike helped me."

CHERYL MORIN
"I feel 99% better. Chiropractic is extremely helpful."

BARB SHORT
"I've told all my friends how much Dr. Mashike helped the numbness in my arms."

ED & LARISA ROTH
Ed - "Dr. Mashike has done wonders with our health."

ROBERT BOURASAW
"I feel great. No more low back pain."

GLADYS SHOLLACK
"When I follow Dr. Mashike's instructions, I feel better."

JUDY KESSLER
"Headaches gone and have more energy at work."

MR. & MRS. D.E. BILLS
"Bill can walk again and my shoulder problem is gone."

See Their Complete Stories in Future Issues.

These people and thousands more have gotten great results. We don't give drugs or medication. We find and remove the cause of their problem, thus allowing the body to return to health.

Don't make a mistake and think Chiropractic is for back pain only...Chiropractic is for good health.

If you are sick and in pain, you need us at the Mashike Chiropractic Life Center. Don't wait! The most common statement made to us is "I wish I had not waited so long to come in. I'm so much better." Do it now and feel better tomorrow.

MAKING A CHANGE
Aspirin and similar drugs are the treatment of first choice in rheumatoid arthritis. In light of the variability of arthritis to flare and subside, how do you know when this therapy has failed?
The decision that current treatment needs change, comes out of an agreement between yourself and your doctor.
Your part is to assess your pain. Is it keeping you from undertaking your job, obtaining adequate sleep, maintaining good relations with your family and friends, or enjoying reasonable leisure activities? If so, then you are correct in considering a change in therapy.
The doctor's role is to examine your joints for evidence of swelling, fluid accumulation, loss of function and progression of the arthritis into previously healthy joints.
The combination of your feelings, with your doctor's findings, provides a basis for a change in medication.
My next column will discuss the choices and concerns associated with such a change in therapy.

Salem streak stopped in defensive struggle

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

You had to have an appreciation for good defense to enjoy Friday's football showdown between North Farmington and Plymouth Salem.

The defenses dominated this clash between undefeated teams, but the visiting Raiders had just enough offense to eke out a 10-0 victory and extend their record to 4-0.

North upheld its reputation for stopping opponents, but the Rocks were equal to the task, keeping the Raiders out of their end zone until 1:37 remained in the game.

Coach Jim O'Leary's squad, which leads the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association with a 2-0 mark in the wake of North's victory and Westland John Glenn's loss to Livonia Stevenson, held Salem to 64 yards in total offense.

The Raiders have scored just 55 points in four games, but the defense is allowing an average of less than five per game.

"YOU CAN see that our defense is pretty tough," O'Leary said. "The defense has held us in every game and given us a chance to win it."

"The thing is the kids keep their poise. Even though we didn't score (on earlier possessions), they knew (the Rocks) weren't going to."

Salem managed only 27 yards rushing as the Raiders shut down its wishbone attack, and the Rocks found themselves in real difficulty when they were unable to pass.

Salem, 1-1 in the division and 3-1 overall, didn't get a first down until late in the first half and had five for the game. North registered 14.

football

"I expected we could move the ball more effectively," Rocks coach Tom Moshimer said, "but they flew people up to stop the option and we couldn't power them."

"WE COULDN'T do anything inside. We had to establish a threat inside to keep them from doing that and we couldn't. It's not that we weren't prepared for what they were doing, we just couldn't handle it."

"They were very quick defensively," added Moshimer, paying a tribute to the North defense. "If they play like that, they're going to be hard to beat."

The Salem coach was no less impressed by the play of his own defense, however. The Rocks held North to minus yards rushing until the Raiders put together an effective drive late in the fourth quarter.

Of North's 226 yards total offense, a mere 48 came on the ground, and the Raiders had 65 rushing on the possession that led to the game's only touchdown.

The Raiders' big advantage was their passing game. Unable to run with any success, North went to the air, and quarterback Scott Simon was 14-of-23 for 154 yards and a touchdown. Vanoy Hill added a 24-yard completion.

"WE ANTICIPATED that," Moshimer said. "In fact, we thought we were good enough against the run to make them throw the ball.

"They've got great receivers, and Simon is a helluva thrower. Their skilled athletes did it for them."

"Our defense did a helluva job," he added. "We did everything we felt we had to do, but we just couldn't do it well enough."

O'Leary said the absence of tailbacks Matt Suchecki and Warren Johnson due to injuries limited what the Raiders were able to do on the ground. He added all of North's running backs also play defense, putting further strain on the running game.

But Simon's passing and the play of his receivers helped to offset that. Todd Gesund had six catches for 93 yards, and Ryan Meador had as many receptions for 56 yards, including an 11-yarder for the TD.

"GESUND made some great catches," O'Leary said. "He has fabulous hands. And the one Meador caught for the touchdown was a great catch, too."

Thoughts of overtime began to surface when the teams struggled to a 0-0 halftime score, but North broke the deadlock with Chad Henry's 39-yard field goal on its first possession of the third quarter. He missed one earlier from 23 yards — the closest either team came to scoring in the first half.

Simon passed 27 and 17 yards to Gesund to put the Raiders in scoring position, but the Salem defense refused to give up the TD. North had a first down at the Rocks' 14, but Jim Lamb sacked Simon on third down and forced the Raiders to at-

Plymouth Salem's Garrett Bowie looks for running room against a stingy North Farmington defense. He had just 25 yards in a game in which the defenses dominated. The teams had 75 yards rushing between the two of them.

Rocks have another close call in win

Plymouth Salem's luck continues to hold out on the soccer field. Or rather its defense does.

The Rocks held on to win yet another close battle Wednesday. Salem's defense held Farmington scoreless and made Randy Balconi's goal stand up as the game-winner in a 1-0 victory.

While the Rocks have not been overwhelming from an offensive standpoint, the defense has certainly passed the test.

The latest game marked the fourth time Salem has survived with a one-goal margin. The Rocks have beaten Livonia Franklin and Plymouth Canton by 2-1 counts, Grand Blanc and the Falcons by 1-0 scores.

"We're playing well from the goalkeeper down to the other team's penalty area," Salem coach Ken Johnson said, "but we're not putting the ball in the goal when we get the chances."

"Everybody knows what we should be doing, and it's just a matter of time before they get their timing and realize we have to get a quick kick as we approach the penalty area."

"They're so proud of the way they're passing the ball," he added, "they may be doing it a little too much."

The Rocks, 4-0-1 in the Western Lakes Association and 7-0-1 overall, scored the game's only goal in the first half when Don Koontz fed a pass to Balconi, whose ground shot from 8 yards out penetrated the net.

Balconi is Salem's point leader, having scored six goals and recorded nine assists for a 21-point total.

The Rocks, who were outshot by Farmington 10-6, had one other excellent scoring opportunity but were denied. Dennis Reynolds lifted the ball to the opposite side of the Falcon goal, and Balconi's header from 10 yards in front missed by inches.

"It just went by the post," Johnson said,

"but the defense played very well to give us the win."

"Farmington is a pretty good team, so I was happy. It could have gone either way. They played very well."

The victory also marked Salem goalie Dave O'Malley's fourth shutout. Mike Ulaszek, Donovan Nichols, Pat Hayes and Rick Najarian also stood out on defense to make the victory possible, Johnson said. Ulaszek and Nichols recently switched positions, with Ulaszek becoming the sweeper and Nichols the stopper.

"O'Malley had some saves that were just out of this world to save it for us," said Johnson, describing a play in which he thought the Falcons had scored but O'Malley made a twisting, reaching stop. "It takes a lot to beat him. He's a terrific goalie."

Salem begins an important week of play, which should go a long way toward determining the WLAA champion. The Rocks play host to Livonia Churchill today, travel to Walled Lake Western Wednesday and return home for matches against non-league foe Troy and Livonia Stevenson Thursday and next Monday, Oct. 5, respectively.

SALEM 2, NORTHVILLE 2: The Rocks thought they were headed for another Western Lakes victory, but Northville forced them to settle for the season's lone tie instead Sept. 16.

Salem tied the game 1-1 in the second half on Balconi's penalty kick, and Jeff Gold, with an assist from Balconi, gave the Rocks the lead midway in the half.

"It looked like we were going to make it, but they tied it with six minutes left," said Johnson of Dave Zyback's tying goal.

NORTHVILLE 2, CANTON 1: Canton coach Mike Morgan wishes he had the problems Johnson and the Rocks do.

The Chiefs haven't been scoring many goals, either, but it's been costing them. Canton, 2-4 in the WLAA and 3-7 overall, has lost four games by a goal.

Adding to the team's frustration Wednesday was the fact it outshot Northville by the whopping margin of 36-9.

"We controlled the ball; we controlled the play," Morgan said. "All they did was keep blasting out of their end, and we'd get it, bring it back and not be able to score."

The Mustangs led 2-0 at halftime after scoring twice in the first 15 minutes. Canton averted a shutout when Todd Nichols scored

Salem cagers roll over North

Nobody has officially conceded the Lakes Division girls basketball title to Plymouth Salem, but some opponents may want to discuss surrender terms.

That might not be too far-fetched after the way in which the Rocks mowed down two division foes last week, outscoring two pretty good ballclubs by a combined 162-73 score.

Salem followed Tuesday's rout of Walled Lake Central with a 78-26 trouncing of North Farmington. The Rocks are 2-0 in the division and 6-1 overall; the Raiders slipped to 1-1 and 4-2.

Dena Head paced the winners with yet another 30-point night, tossing in 31 while teammates Jill Estey and Barb Krug added 14 and 10, respectively.

Lost in the overwhelming victory was the fact Salem attempted only three free throws, making two. North was 2-of-11 at the line.

The Rocks raced to a 21-7 lead in the first quarter and commanded a 43-12 advantage at halftime.

Suzi Butcher and Jeny Basford scored eight points apiece for North.

CANTON 54, NORTHVILLE 36: Plymouth Canton also is off to a fine start in division play after trimming the Mustangs in a Thursday road game. The Chiefs are atop the Western Division with a 2-0 mark.

"This was a real big week for us," said coach Rob Neu, whose team improved to 3-4 overall. "We beat two pretty good teams after a real tough start."

girls basketball

"We feel real good about being able to bounce back and get two games."

Canton's decisive edge did not come at the free-throw line, but the Chiefs nonetheless had a near-perfect night shooting freebies. Canton was 15-of-16, with Heather Miller going 8-for-9 and Karen Boluch 4-for-4. Northville made 14 of 23 to keep pace in terms of points.

Miller scored all of her game-high 16 points in the second half as the Chiefs, after leading 22-14 at halftime, finished off Northville.

"She's starting to play really well," Neu said. "She's playing with confidence, she's finishing off her scores nicely at the basket."

Boluch ended up with 12 points but didn't play in the fourth quarter after hurting a knee. The injury was not believed to be serious, according to Neu.

After a slow start for both teams,

Jill Estey demonstrates her dribbling skills while looking over the defense. The junior scored 14 points Thursday as Salem overwhelmed North Farmington.

Rocks rebound with league win

Plymouth Salem got back on the winning track in girls swimming Wednesday, and it was the meet the Rocks preferred to win.

After dropping a non-league meet to Brighton on Tuesday, Salem bounced back with a 107-64 trouncing of Western Lakes foe Farmington Harrison.

Heather Bunch paced the Rocks with victories in the 50- and 100-yard freestyles, posting respective times of 28.6 and 1:02.0.

Salem's Carrie Vanderweele, Erin Olson, Andrea Alex and Stacie Anderson won the medley relay (2:10.2), and Jennifer Ezzo, Jenny Syria and Susan Wooters went 1-2-3 in diving. Ezzo had 152.75 points for first place.

The Rocks' Tracy Meszaros captured the individual medley (2:30.4) and Sarah Andrews the butterfly (1:12.7).

Liz Tucker paced the Hawks with a pair of firsts and a relay victory. She won the 200 freestyle (2:10.6) and breaststroke (1:13.4), and she swam the lead-off leg for Harrison's freestyle relay team.

Jill Murany, Jenni Fitzgerald and Julie Farabee combined with Tucker to post a 4:09.6 time.

Farabee also won the 500 freestyle (5:46.4) and Danielle King the backstroke (1:12.7).

CANTON 96, FARMINGTON 76: Canton's Nicole Drake won two events and teammate Danielle Dickinson led a sweep of the 100-yard freestyle and anchored the medley relay team.

Drake won the individual medley in 2:23.4 and the 500 freestyle in 5:14.7. Dickinson won the 100 freestyle in 1:01.7 and was followed by teammates Kristy Brugar and Sarah Schmitz.

Jean McLenaghan, Val Gildhaus, Kelly Rische and Dickinson captured the medley relay in 2:04.8.

In addition, the Chiefs' Cassie Cummins won the 200 freestyle in 2:05.9 and McLenaghan the backstroke in 1:08.7.

Canton's dual-meet record stands at 1-1.

MERCY 98, A.A. HURON 74: Farmington Mercy's second dual-meet victory wasn't as lopsided as its first, but the Marlins still won rather easily Thursday.

Mercy, which trounced Rochester Adams 66-17 in its first meet, won both relays and was helped by its team depth in beating Ann Arbor Huron 98-74 last Tuesday.

Mary Quinn was on both relay teams and also won an individual event, the 50-yard freestyle (27.23).

Salem harriers triumph

Things seem to be falling nicely into place for Plymouth Salem's boys cross country team. After finishing second in the Schoolcraft Invitational, the Rocks got another boost Thursday by starting Lakes Division competition with a 24-35 victory over Walled Lake Central.

"I think the guys are in good shape and ready to meet some more division opponents," coach Geoff Baker said. "I think the schedule is set up so that we'll be ready when we do."

Salem won't meet division rival and defending Western Lakes champion Farmington until Oct. 15 and on the Rocks' course.

Doug Vergari ran a "great time" of 16:14 against WLC and set a school record in the process. He broke teammate Bill Watt's time of 16:21, which was set a year ago.

Vergari won a foot race to the finish line with the Vikings' Mike Jensen to take first place and set the record. Jensen was clocked at 16:15.

"Both kicked it out at the end," Baker said. "Doug had a lead, but (Jensen) started kicking and Doug held him off."

W.L. WESTERN 27, CANTON 28: After an encouraging start to the season, Plymouth Canton's debut in Western Division dual meets was a disappointment.

The Chiefs suffered their first loss after four straight victories after being clipped by the Warriors, who had the first-place runner in Brian Grosso (16:10).

The Chiefs captured the top five places and seven of the first eight to dominate the Warriors.

Linda Schendel paced Canton with a 21:29 time for first-place in overtime, but missed its extra-point attempt after being penalized on its initial try.

Canton pulled even with Roger Trice's 7-yard run, and Krejcar's boot won it for the Chiefs, 1-1 in the Western Division.

The visitors were in good shape early as they scored 14-0 in the first quarter to grab a 1-0 lead.

Quarterback Neil Hubert passed 57 yards to Joel Riggs, and Trice plunged over from 1 yard out. Krejcar added both PAT kicks.

But the Mustangs came from behind to tie, scoring touchdowns and converting the extra points in the second and fourth quarters.

Northville won the status battle, outgaining the Chiefs 309-185. The Mustangs had 203 rushing and 106 passing to 110 and 75 for Canton.

Joe Riggs rushed for 55 yards to lead the Chiefs, and Trice had 48. Hubert was 3-of-9 passing with two interceptions.

Glenn's Darlene Manning slipped into the No. 7 spot before Farmington's Wendy Cinnard (24:12) and Heather Glennie (24:16) captured the next two positions to serve as efficient blockers for the Falcons, 1-0 in the division and 4-0 overall.

Three of the team's top five runners had their best times of the season as Farmington narrowed the difference between its leading performers.

John Glenn's Ginger Roland was the meet winner in 20:54, but the Falcons took the next five places with one minute, 15 seconds separating the quintet.

Bonnie Stecker was Farmington's first runner across the finish line with a second-place time of 21:21. She was followed in consecutive fashion by teammates Jennifer Kiel (21:31), Amy Trunk (21:35), Judy McKeever (22:08) and Margaret Martin (22:36). Trunk, McKeever and Martin posted their best times to date.

Glenn's Darlene Manning slipped into the No. 7 spot before Farmington's Wendy Cinnard (24:12) and Heather Glennie (24:16) captured the next two positions to serve as efficient blockers for the Falcons, 1-0 in the division and 4-0 overall.

Canton Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring its sixth annual Punt, Pass and Kick contest for boys and girls age 8-13 on Oct. 3 and 4 at Griffin Park.

The standard of play varies from intermediate to advanced, according to Henderson, but beginners who have only previously played the game in their backyards are welcome as coaching is available.

The Canton Soccerdome is accepting registrations for its first season, which begins Nov. 1. Openings are available in youth, co-ed, adult men and adult women divisions.

The Men's Recreation Night Basketball League begins a new season Wednesday, Oct. 28, at 7:30 p.m.

Games will be played every Wednesday at Erikson Elementary School from 6:45 to 9:45 p.m. The fee is $10 for 10 weeks.

Anyone interested in playing badminton is welcome to participate in Tuesday night competition at Plymouth West School, at the corner of Sheldon and Ann Arbor Trail roads.

The Chiefs upped the tempo and increased its lead. Canton's man-to-man defense in third quarter forced the Mustangs to take some bad shots, and the Chiefs were able to maintain a lead.

Canton's Amanda Bell scored her 10 points, which included a pair of three-pointers, in the first half. Candice Jones had 11 rebounds and Boluch eight.

Handled their pressure extremely well and finished off some easy scores," Neu said.

Defenses dominate contest

The Rocks stopped Meador, who ran at tailback most of the night, on fourth-and-1 at the Salem 27 in the first play of the fourth quarter, and they stopped the Raiders once more before North put it together the TD drive. The Raiders got the ball at their 34 with 6:09 to play and needed 10 plays to get the insurance score.

Surprisingly, North advanced the ball on seven straight-running plays, which was very uncharacteristic of the way the game had progressed to that point.

Senior tailback Rick Witte, the Hawks' leading rusher, suffered a broken arm on the second play of the game and reportedly will be sidelined for the remainder of the season.

In the wake of that setback Yaverski came on to rush for 195 yards and score a pair of touchdowns to lead unbeaten Harrison to a 31-15 victory over the Warriors.

The Hawks' 4-0 overall and 2-0 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association, went ahead to stay on quarterback Millard Coleman's 5-yard run later in the first period.

On Monday, it was a different story for North as coach Cathy Cole's team came out on the winning end of a 3-0 score with Walled Lake Western.

On Tuesday, Diane Benson's 12 points and 12 rebounds carried the Eagles to a lopsided 52-19 triumph over Grace Bible.

The Eagles led 20-4 after one period and never looked back in a game played at Pioneer.

Rocks win yet another close game

Probably the worst thing that happened to us was that holding penalty down there - giving them room to throw the ball," Moshier said.

"The defense played well, the offense couldn't move it," he said in summation of the night's performance.

Joe Sturtz rushed for 45 yards and Meador 40, but Simon was sacked for a minus-41, Garrett Bowie gained 25 yards rushing for the Rocks.

"The kids hit pretty hard," said O'Leary of his defense. "They're real intense kids, real hard-nosed."

STEVENSON 8, NORTH 0: Kurt-Wilf scored three goals, and Eric Schwed and Bill Madden had two apiece as the Spartans blanked North Farmington Wednesday.

Mel Karfis added two assists for Stevenson, 5-0-1 in the Western Lakes and 6-0-1 overall. The Raiders saw their record fall to 2-6.

Highlights such as Greektown are a must when tour buses take out-of-town visitors on the grand tour of the Detroit area.

Going tourist: How visitors see us

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

You say you're tired of finding closed expressways, dealing with endless one-way streets, paying by the minute (or through the nose) for parking, and getting lost in the Ren-Cen?

You say not even the lure of Trapper's Valley, the People Mover, dinner at the Whitney, or the Detroit Tigers in contention will ever get you into downtown Detroit again?

For shame. Maybe you oughtta take another look at Detroit, the way the tourists do — by tour bus. Strike that. We mean, of course, "via deluxe motorcoach."

WE BOARDED a deluxe motor-coach at the Westin Hotel for a three-hour late-afternoon tour of Detroit. The trip was arranged by Upbeat Detroit tours for a group of 16 Midwestern conventioners. The 16 were early arrivals of 300 registered at the Westin in the Renaissance Center for the north central meeting of the American Urological Association.

They reflected a membership of urologists from Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota. Their last Detroit convention was a decade ago, and from the comments and questions, it appeared Detroit was a pleasant surprise.

Mary Ellen McCormick of Upbeat Detroit was tour escort for the customized, chartered tour. The doctors-and-wives group, McCormick said, wanted a compact overview of Detroit and Windsor, no off-and-on-the-bus business, just a ride through the cities with highlights pointed out.

Tours later in the week would take them to Meadow Brook and the General Motors Lake Orion plant, the Grosse Pointe home of Edsel and Eleanor Ford and the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club.

AFTER A SHORT delay waiting for someone lost in the RenCen restroom, the bus departed for the Ambassador Bridge under overcast skies.

"It isn't going to rain on our tour, is it?" McCormick began. Of course it did.

The zip trip through Detroit and Windsor often slowed to a crawl in heavy traffic, but the loquacious McCormick kept up a steady pace with nonstop rhetoric on the history of the cities. She fielded all questions with the expertise of an experienced Trivial Pursuit player.

First question out of the gate: How do you board the People Mover?"

McCormick supplied the answer along with a brief history of the project.

Is this where baseball is played?"

That was asked as Cobo Hall was passed. The enquirer received a reply along with background on Albert Cobo, statistics on Detroit's status in the top 10 convention cities and details on the expansion project.

Halted in traffic passing Hotel Pontchartrain, McCormick gave a mini history lesson on the 1701 founding of the city by Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac and his relationship to Count Pontchartrain.

"Where is the lake?"

"Do you mean the river?" McCormick responded with a short geography lesson on the Great Lakes and their relationship to the Detroit Riv-

Each week Street Scene travel writer Iris Sanderson Jones will be answering your travel questions. Direct questions to Iris Sanderson Jones, Street Scene, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

We would like to find our own fantasy island where we can be alone for a week without too much tourist activity. No casinos or high-rises, but just enough civilization to give us some diversion when we want it. Is there such a place?

I.E.S.,
Farmington Hills

A South Sea island is too far away for a week's trip, but you can still find an island like that in North American waters.

The television show "Fantasy Island" was filmed on the Hawaiian island of Kauai, which looks exactly the way a tropical island should look. Exotic trees laced with brilliant flowers cascade down steep mountainsides to bright sand beaches and the sea.

Rent a house or condo in a remote setting, a grass-roofed villa in a seaside resort or check out the rustic cabins in Kokee State Park, wandering into low-rise civilization when the spirit moves you. Divert for dinner at Cocoa Palms, a romantic hotel set amid palm trees on what was once the grounds of the Hawaiian royal family.

Stanley Kubrick's entry in the Vietnam film wars is really two movies — recruit training and Vietnam combat. Paris don't hang together well, with narrator-journalist, Pvt. a counting for taste

There are very few appetizers available, but we tried the Texas-style chili ($1.75 for a cup). Was it hot? It came with plenty of beef, onions and cheese and a really BIG taste. Although it was more spicy than expected, we enjoyed it a great deal. The onion soup, baked with cheese (95 cents for a cup), was also quite good. It should have been served hotter, but there was a rich, full, fresh flavor, which was nicely enhanced by the Swiss cheese on top. Salads are served with dinner en-half chicken ($4.95). It was a treat, as juicy and fresh-tasting as we could have hoped. The sauce was sweet and mild, but added flavor and zest. The potatoes were also very good. The mesquite-flavored lake trout with lemon tarragon butter ($6.25), a special, turned out to be not so special. The lemon tarragon butter, served — thankfully — on the side, did not belong with the fish. The fish itself was slightly undercooked, had almost no mesquite flavor and was uninteresting. Entree, Vegetables and Garnishes — 30 points maximum. Points awarded — 13. The desserts were a mixed blessing. The pecan torte ($1.50) was good, however, it was more like a thin cheesecake with a pecan top than a torte. This combination was surprisingly pleasing as the sweetness of the pecan glaze was balanced by the cheesecake. The lemon mist torte ($1.50) seemed to be a white cake topped with a lemon pudding concoction. Dessert — 10 points maximum. Points awarded — 7. At just $22 per couple, it included, at the price is quite reasonable. The portions are large, with plenty of extras included with dinner entrees, and — if you order the barbecue — the food is quite good. Still, a better job of training the servers would be helpful for an even nicer experience. Price/Value — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 12. A COUNTING FOR TASTE — 100 points maximum. Total points awarded: 73. Blue Sky does a nice job with the basic "outdoor" foods, such as chili and chicken. It is a tempting choice for families and casual groups searching for good food and reasonable prices.

Charlton Burch has waded into some bizarre and provocative themes as editor of Lightworks, an art magazine published in Birmingham.

Magazine has the stamp of avant-garde innovation

By Elsa Frohman
staff writer

For Charlton Burch, it's all about postage stamps. Lightworks is art. It's puzzling. It's provocative. It's the oldest visual arts publication in Michigan. It's published in Birmingham.

It can be purchased in bookstores on both coasts, or in area stores like Paperback Unlimited and Metro News Center. It's mailed to subscribers internationally. But for Burch, a lifelong Birmingham resident, postage stamps are a symbol for what Lightworks is all about. The concept that became the magazine, Lightworks, grew out of what Burch calls "mail art."

"Back when I was a student in Ann Arbor, an instructor, Diane Kirkpatrick, turned me on to the whole world of mail art," Burch said. "That was exciting stuff for me. And it formed the network base for what we present today."

MAIL ART is art that is distributed through the mail. That is, an artist produces a piece, then instead of trying to get it displayed in a gallery or museum, he mails it to people he knows. There is an international network of creative people who exchange their ideas this way, Burch explained.

Mail art does not tend to consist of oil paintings of fruit and flowers, or seascapes with a lighthouse, or crashing waves. The mail artists are generally outside the mainstream, and their work tends to be avant-garde and, to some, unfathomable — even weird.

"Who needs another boring oil painting?" Burch said. "People have fixed notions about what art is. They see an impressionist painting, a Monet, and they know this is art. We're trying to foster a new awareness. We're not into couch art (paintings to hang over the couch). We want things that are challenging

'Playfulness is a real element in this type of art. Let's not have something that takes itself too seriously.'

— Charlton Burch
Lightworks editor

that stretch traditional notions of art. The latest issue of Lightworks, the 18th issue in the magazine's 12-year publishing history, includes an article on xerography, art done on photocopy machines; selections of Joel Lipman's poetry, written on envelopes; and a lighthearted piece by David Buchan titled "Menswear: A Brief History," which puts some familiar classical statuary in jockey shorts.

"Playfulness is a real element in this type of art," Burch said. "Let's not have something that takes itself too seriously. We might come up with something new."

The magazine is financed through grants from agencies such as the Arts Foundation of Michigan and the National Endowment for the Arts and private contributions. When Burch, Martin and Vasiliash have found financial support and artwork for an issue, the magazine is published. That works out to about one issue a year, though in its early days, the magazine was a quarterly. It all started in 1975 when Burch and then-partner Eric Keller set out to publish a quarterly tabloid for and about the Ann Arbor art scene. They soon found out that to survive, they would have to broaden their base. "If we limited ourselves to local content, we would have exhausted the supply by now," Burch said. "We have very diverse artists who are separated by thousands of miles."

TODAY, Lightworks is a slick, magazine-format publication that compares to any professionally published magazine in production values. It is printed on high-quality paper with fine attention to detail, and surprising extra touches — never seen in larger magazines — are added. In the current issue, an actual, original and unique xerograph is glued into every copy to go along with the article on xerography. A real envelope with a poem printed on it is glued into the collection of envelope poems. A previous issue had a specially printed book of matches glued to every cover.

Not everyone understands or applauds the avant-garde art Lightworks heralds. Issue No. 13, printed in Maine while Burch was a student on the East Coast, almost didn't get published because the strippers (production workers in the print shop) walked off the job, offended by the content of the magazine. "I'm not sure what offended them," Burch said. "But in the end, they came back, and we got one of the best printing jobs we ever got."

THE SHOCK, and sometimes anger, people feel when they see avant-garde art is a part of the artistic pro-

This feature on "Alphabets of the New World" is an example of some of the offbeat offerings to be found in Lightworks.

"We, the artists, with serious concerns, have to face reality, wake up, move out of the art world, and embrace the void."

College radio

On the cutting edge of musical trends

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

College radio: First on the beat with a new beat.

Without collegiate disc jockeys spinning their albums during the fledgling portions of their careers, hard telling where some of today's hottest musical acts would be.

Heck, U2 might still be playing the Dublin pub circuit. Suzanne Vega could be strumming her guitar in some Greenwich Village coffee house. Los Lobos would be "La Bam-ba"-ing in some remote desert inn.

Yet college radio, in some cases, is a trendsetter with less power than most light bulbs. There are stations that operate with a power of 10 watts.

Some maybe weak in signal, but strong in singing out music of the future.

YESTERDAY, COLLEGE jocks played Billy Idol, the Bangles and the Psychedelic Furs. Tomorrow, who knows what band will make it big after exposure from collegiate radio.

Judging by one station's play list, it could be Broken Bones, Lime Spiders, Screaming Broccoli or Throwing Muses.

"I'm not too sure what a 'Muse' is," said Jimmy Stoddard, 25, program director of WORB-FM 90.3 at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington Hills.

One thing Stoddard does know, though, is what separates college radio from the commercial brand. He worked at WLLZ-FM for two years and at WRIF-FM for six months in various capacities.

"THEY CAN'T take chances really," said Stoddard, who's worked a number of jobs at WORB including as a DJ. "They go with established artists. They will sell a million copies of their album to the public."

Campus stations don't care about how many albums a band sells. If it's good, they play it.

"I'd get letters from older people saying, 'We really appreciate you playing ethnic music,'" said Susie Pepera, 20, of Garden City, who is one of the station's more popular DJs, going by the on-air name "Susie Q."

JAY KORINEK, the general manager of WRRF and a former Livonia resident, said she still receives a couple of letters of week from listeners. Pepera now attends Wayne State University but continues to work at the station.

While Pepera is still a listener favorite, another DJ certainly stands out in Korinek's mind.

"One student had to fill in and do a live show," Korinek said. "He was so nervous, that at times he'd break into song. He sang a cappella ... and actually sang really well."

Another thing that makes the station unique is that it has much more broadcasting power — 270 watts — than most college radio stations.

ZANINESS ISN'T uncommon among the collegiate radio fraternity. Nor is social concern.

Susan Kraft of Rochester, who is general manager of WOUX-AM 640 at Oakland University, describes her staff as "politically active."

"Half of them are vegetarians," Kraft said. "They are very active in animal rights."

At least half of the staff wants to make radio a career, Kraft said. College radio certainly offers an excellent training ground for aspiring professional DJs, production managers and engineers.

There are plenty of obstacles to overcome. College radio stations have to send out play lists every two weeks to a multitude of record companies in order to receive records.

AND, OF course, small budgets can be a problem.

"Being a part of a school, there's a lot of red tape," Kraft said. "When you want a roll of Scotch tape, you have to fill out a million forms. It's even worse when you want a new piece of equipment."

"We have student engineers. If something breaks down, and you have a term paper to do, you have to wait. We can't afford professional engineers to come in and fix it."

"We finally got a phone after six years of trying," said Mark Casmer, 22, of Canton and general manager of WUMD at the University of Michigan-Dearborn. "It's the little goals that are accomplished that keep you going."

For Casmer, obtaining records and getting new equipment is more difficult.

WUMD doesn't broadcast on any frequency, using the student mall's public address system instead.

Casmer said they are looking into the possibility of a time-share arrangement with another station.

"They would broadcast part of the time, and we would broadcast part of the time," Casmer said.

The current situation doesn't deter the enthusiasm around the station, which has a varied format of jazz, funk, new music and classic rock.

Casmer, who's worked as a news staffer, DJ, and assistant program director prior to becoming general manager, looks upon college radio as a learning experience.

"It greatly improves your communication skills," said Casmer, who doesn't plan to enter radio broadcasting when he graduates. "It gets people involved."

Disc jockey Jodi Mackley of Rochester is busy at the controls while broadcasting on the Oakland University radio station. Although their signals usually are weak, college radio stations have been powerful trendsetters in music.

Disc jockey scans the world for wax

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

In gauging the uniqueness of John Harnois' radio show, WORB-FM program director Jimmy Stoddard perhaps sums it up best.

"Weirdness is the norm around here," Stoddard said. "But his show is really weird."

Harnois of Farmington Hills will take that as a compliment, thank you. Harnois, 32, plays only "progressive rock with artistic integrity" on the Oakland Community College station.

Which certainly leaves Harnois flexible to play whatever he darn well pleases on his show, 8-11 p.m. Mondays on FM 90.3. He scans the globe in search of albums that fit the diverse mold.

ONLY RECENTLY, Harnois went to London tracking down rare independent record labels that have even rarer bands on them for play on his show. He regularly goes to Toronto and New York shopping for discs.

The major coup on his record-recovery journey to England turned out to be a 12-inch single by The Anti Group. The group is not expected to reach Billboard's Top 10 in the next week.

Altogether, Harnois estimates owning 1,300-2,000 records. "I've been thinking I need to count them," he said.

Harnois sees his show as a public service.

"The biggest thing I like about being a DJ is showing people what's out there," said Harnois, who is on his fourth year of college radio DJ duty. "It's like being a teacher. And part of being a teacher is showing people what's out there in the world."

"There's a lot of garbage out there, like anything," he added later. "But there's also a lot of good stuff out there."

GOOD STUFF was hard to come by, which originally inspired Harnois to become a DJ at the OCC radio station. One night, while turning the dial, he came across WORB.

He called in and requested a song by Bow Wow Wow. To his surprise, they played it.

OCC disc jockey John Harnois strikes a far-out pose in keeping with his reputation for tracking down the offbeat and unusual in music.

"Bow Wow Wow is no longer with us," said Harnois.

But the disbanded British band indirectly led him to the right people. Harnois soon struck up a rapport with several DJs at the station.

Finally, he was asked to come in and do a show.

"I was scared," he said about his first time on the air. "I read the news, and I was so nervous."

Nervousness soon turned into new music nirvana for Harnois. Being a DJ with his own show has opened him to a whole world of different music.

And he wants to share it with anyone. The station's 10-watt signal can reach. His play list, which he recycles in rapid fire fashion, can include Al-pairs, B-52s, the English Beat, Birth-day Party, Billy Bragg, Kate Bush, Cabaret Voltaire, Sonic Youth and Clock DVA.

Plus, Harnois gives considerable air play to local bands.

"There used to be a sign up at the station that said, 'If you haven't heard it, play it,'" Harnois said. "But someone took it down."

Harnois obviously lives by it, though.

'The biggest thing I like (about being a DJ) is showing people what's out there. It's like being a teacher. And part of being a teacher is showing people what's out there in the world.'

How to make new turf your turf

Dear Joan:
Many times I represent my company at outside meetings. What are my responsibilities as a participant at another company's meeting?

J.D., Rochester

The participant's manners are as important as the chairman's. The successful two-way meeting is definitely a win-win street. The participant has certain obligations and can demonstrate his/her good manners in a number of ways.

Arrive on time, even several minutes before the meeting is scheduled to begin.

If on new turf introduce yourself in a friendly, informal manner to anyone also waiting. Explain to the others who you are and why you are there. Hand out your business card, if those with whom you are talking ask you about yourself and your company.

As an outsider do not take a seat until someone who knows why you are there designates a chair for you. It's bad politics to plunk yourself down next to the chairman of the meeting. The seats to the right and left of the chairman are for that person's peers or honored guests.

Arrive prepared for the meeting with all your homework carefully done. Rehearse your remarks well if you are to do a presentation. Ask the manager to let you try out any audio-visual and electrical equipment needed in your presentation.

In other words, be ready!

Dear Joan:
I am the proud new owner of my own small business. I now have a staff of three. The need for staff meetings is obvious, so we can all stay in touch with what is going on in the business. Can you give me some general rules concerning staff meetings?

R.B., Troy

America is a nation of meeters. Our system of business uses the meeting as one of its basic tools, whether for the purpose of selling, informing, instructing, critiquing, planning, or exhorting. Every well-run meeting has a combination of a chairman with good manners and participants with good manners.

Good manners, smooth management, and efficiency all fit together, resulting in a meeting that is productive, pleasant to attend and finished either on time or early.

An office meeting may be called for any number of reasons, but it will not be productive unless the need to call the meeting is properly communicated and unless everyone leaves it understanding the signals and the lines of responsibility and takes appropriate action as a result.

Dear Joan:
I have been appointed planner of the company's annual sales meeting. This will be my first time handling the responsibility, and I am determined to do it right. What is the checklist I can use to know I've accomplished the goals of an annual sales meeting?

P.B., Bloomfield Hills

The annual sales meeting of any company is considered a success if business etiquette

Joan K. Dietch

These needs are met:

The objectives of motivating the sales force were achieved; the executives understood the new technology presented in the training sessions and are eager to begin working with it; everyone received a nice pat on the back; those who had fallen short during the past year were encouraged and are now willing to try harder; those who had excelled were properly recognized and felt sufficiently rewarded; everyone perfectly understands the plans and the new products and is eager to get going; all participants came away with increased respect for the company; and everyone had a good time.

Joan K. Dietch of Rochester Hills is a sales and market consultant who lectures on business etiquette and has written a business dress book. Address questions to her at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Find yourself a fantasy isle

There are canyons, hiking trails, lonely beaches and all the other things that you need for a hideaway vacation, with music and dancing around the next set of palm trees. That's the good news. The bad news is that you need to find a good off-season flight and research your rental carefully to come in under $2,000 for two people.

OR 'WITCH' your sights to the Caribbean. The best fantasy island I know, one your travel agent may not mention, is Grenada. Nobody talked much about Grenada when the Cubans were building their airport there, and there has been little travel el talk about it since the American armed forces went in four years ago.

The army is gone. The cruise ships stop regularly at the funky little town of St. George's, and you can find wonderful small hotels in private settings.

Grenada, like Kauai, looks exactly like a movie version of a tropical island. Spice trees grow up and down the mountainous slopes, scenting the eastern Caribbean air with nutmeg, mace, cloves and other spices.

Hotels in Grenada are no higher than a tall palm tree. You can stay in a small hotel right on the beautiful sand beach at Grand Anse Bay just south of town, up the hill from the beach in a private house or condo, or in a hideaway on the south coast.

THE BIGGEST HOTEL is the Renaissance Ramada, two stories and a pool on the beach. If you want to stay within a mile of civilization, I recommend the Spice Island Inn 300 yards down the beach.

For high-class, high-priced privacy, check out a room with a pool, your room and your own private full-sized pool are hidden behind a high wall only 100 feet from the main building.

More remote, less expensive, digs are available at Horse Shoe Bay Hotel. Spanish-style suites on a hill high above the sea, it's a long way down to the beach. The Calabash has 22 suites on its own tiny bay five miles south of St. George's. Or rent a room for $75 a night at Twelve Degrees North, a private home with maid service, tennis courts and the works.

SECRET HARBOR on the south coast is a couples-only, all-inclusive hotel $390 per person per week double occupancy including meals, drinks and all tips through Dec. 20 when high season starts.

When that need for diversion strikes you, visit St. George's for casual seaside dinners and a little music, or a trip to the wonderful Saturday market.

Rent a car or taxi for a day tour around the island. Watch fishermen pull in nets, tour a spice factory and call ahead for lunch at Morne Fenue. Betty Mascoll's private home restaurant in St. Patrick on the northern tip of the island.

'Guys and Dolls' fete set

"An Evening on the Aisle," a gala benefit Wednesday, Oct. 7, will open the fall season at the Meadow Brook Theatre. The benefit will feature the premiere performance of the season's opening show, "Guys and Dolls," and it will be hosted by the Meadow Brook Theatre Guild. The party will begin with a cocktail buffet at 6 p.m. in the foyer of the theater and the adjoining Meadow Brook Art Gallery. In keeping with the setting of the play, a Salvation Army band will perform in front of the theater, and the ushers will wear Salvation Army uniforms. The door prize is a New York weekend supplied by Suburban Travel in Rochester. The opening curtain for the show will be 8 p.m. Tickets for the black-tie optional event are $60. Proceeds will continue the guild's gifts to the theater. "Guys and Dolls" will continue through Nov. 1. Ticket prices range from $11.50 to $17. The Meadow Brook Theatre is at Oakland University in Rochester Hills. For information on starting times, call the box office at 377-3300.

5 reasons to go to Windsor next Saturday

1. Like beaches? There's over a dozen of them in Windsor's Essex County. In fact, there's over 25 miles of beachfront on our Lake Erie coast and Lake St. Clair. Get a great tan. Watch the waves roll in. Or just woggle your toes in the sand. Where else are you going to find beaches like these?
2. Kids of all ages love Bob-Lo. When you take the boat from Amherstburg, the ride's a little shorter and costs a little less.
3. Imagine a place where lush tropical vegetation grows in profusion. It's not the Amazon, it's not deepest Africa, it's Colasanto's Tropical Gardens.
4. Go to Windsor for the the nightlife. Like jazz? Like rock-n-roll? How about bluegrass or bagpipes or pop or symphony? If you're looking for a little night music, you've come to the right place: Windsor!
5. You can have lunch or dinner right on the water at places like Windsor Hilton, Smitty's on the River or Lakeshore Terrace Hotel down in Kingsville. Because Windsor Essex County is practically the world capital of waterfront restaurants.

Actually, there are more than five reasons to go to Windsor next weekend. In fact, no one really knows how many there are. Go to Windsor for a walk along the beach, a stroll in the park or take a ferry ride to Pelee Island. It's more than a way to get out of the house. It's a way to have a good time. Just say...

Many of Detroit's old churches were pointed out along the way on the Upbeat Detroit tour. This is Holy Rosary Catholic Church on Woodward Avenue.

The tour bus took a quick trip past the Detroit Institute of Arts.

er and shipping. (The name Detroit means straits 28 miles long... at one time more shipping traveled there than both the Suez and Panama canals.) "How wide is the river across to Canada?" "One-half mile at its narrowest point, across from Hart Plaza," the tour guide replied, along with an explanation on why the fort was founded where it was and the relationship between Detroiters and Windsorites. Some trivia thrown in while crossing the bridge and touring Canadian style. Both the Ambassador Bridge and the Detroit-Windsor tunnel were built between 1928-1930 and are privately owned. The Lansdowne is a former train ferry circa 1881, converted to a restaurant. The Ambassador Bridge is 1 1/4 miles long and experienced its first serious accident this summer.

"This is the site of Houdini's last jump," McCormick told the group, the preface for a litany of Belle Isle trivia. Among them: The Isle of 1,000 acres is visited by 50,000 to 75,000 persons per summer weekend. The Whitcomb Conservatory has one of the finest collections of orchids anywhere. Belle Isle's aquarium is the oldest public aquarium in the country. Passengers were treated to a peek at a portion of Belle Isle's albino deer population after passing the children's zoo. Back on the mainland, the tour guide pointed out features of Detroit's Medical Center, Cultural Center and Greektown. Little gems were thrown in about Lafayette Clinic, Pewabic Pottery, Elmwood Cemetery, Mies van der Rohe architecture, the Ferry Seed Co., Holy Family Church, the Smiley Brothers piano store and Brunch with Bach. Right on schedule, the tour bus returned to the Westin Hotel three hours later, where an appreciative group congratulated McCormick on her presentation. "I was losing a couple of them," she said after all departed. "They were nodding off. That's what happens after lunch."

Japanese futon bed gets an American twist

Visitors to Japan would sleep on futon mattresses placed on the floor. But an American twist to the traditional firm futon bed is a wooden slat frame that allows the piece to be used as a well-padded bench (left) in its upright position.

By Mary Rodrigue staff writer

The Green Bay Packers, Milwaukee Brewers and Mexico City Ballet use futons. Pregnant women, allergy sufferers and apartment dwellers with limited space are also finding them attractive. The latest trend from Japan is a new car or an electronic gadget. It's a bed with a history dating back at least two centuries. "I think futons have been around as long as cotton," said Asaki O'Neill, vice president of marketing for Great Lakes Futon in Ann Arbor. "But, O'Neill reports, the trend is starting to catch on with mainstream America. "They're warm in winter, cool in summer — and they are very fine quality furniture," she said. The Great Lakes showroom is heavy on Oriental accents, with bright kites hanging from the ceiling and kimono adorning the walls. The futon beds and accompanying furniture — end tables, coffee tables and big comfy chairs — also have a Japanese look, clean and low to the floor. Visitors to Japan would sleep on futon mattresses placed on the floor. An American twist to the traditional firm futon bed is a wooden slat frame that allows the piece to be used as a well-padded bench (left) in its upright position. "You might see them in K Mart some day." Great Lakes sells designer futons, handcrafted by designers based in Milwaukee. Besides the basic frame, of maple, oak or British Columbian pine, and futon mattress, accessories include futon covers (sheets), natural fiber pillows, and quilts. "The average customer buys a standard futon and frame for a guest room," O'Neill said. "That runs about $320. When you add accessories the price is about $400." MORE EXPENSIVE ensembles, which include futon bed, frame, chair, and table run more than $1,000.

It's sort of a new furniture concept," O'Neill said.

FUTON MATTRESSES made their way to the United States and Canada in the mid-1970s, rolled up and placed in a cupboard or pushed against a wall behind a low table when not in use. The frames are a newer invention, circa 1985. "Sales are up in the U.S. and starting to come down in Japan, where Sealy Posturepedic (mattresses) are gaining popularity," O'Neill said. Futons are still the primary type of bed used in the Far East, she said. Although some stores, such as Pier One, carry futons, they generally are not found in traditional furniture or department stores here. O'Neill thinks that will change. "You might see them in K Mart some day."

"You can use a sheet but (futon) covers are more practical," she said. Like a mattress, futons can't be thrown into the washing machine for cleaning. But they can be fluffed and sewn into a muslin casing. The overall effect is uniformly firm but comfortable, no soft spots or lumps in the middle of the bed. "The health and comfort value is what makes them," O'Neill said.

O'NEILL SUGGESTS a buyer judge the quality on seams, corner filling, firmness and "just like you're buying clothing." "It's good for people with allergies to dust, because of the cotton batting," she said. O'Neill started in the industry in Lansing, when she accompanied a futon wholesaler and sold $1,000 worth of products in a single day. Great Lakes Futon, at 205 N. Main, has been in business one year. In Ann Arbor, futons are also sold at the Dragon's Lair, 410 N. 4th Ave. (in the basement of the Work Bench furniture store) and at Evening Star Futons. Futons also are available at Bright Ideas, with stores in Rochester and Royal Oak.

Early birds get the workout as others sleep

By Tom Henderson and Evelyn Baran staff writers

When most of us are reaching for the alarm, or groping in the dark for a bathrobe and trying to remember where the kitchen is so we can put on a pot of coffee, when the sun is still sleeping and the worms are safe from the early bird, there are pockets of energy in the metropolitan area.

High-intensity energy, the energy of women in tights bouncing at aerobics, of men at the Y reversing a dribble and going in for a layup, of weightlifters at Vic Tanny's straining against free weights or Nautilus machines, of swimmers kicking through pools.

While many of us get up whining and groaning because we can dream no more, or fight for bits of extra sleep — getting our exercise from repetitions of the snooze-alarm press — a busy subculture of fitness enthusiasts has long since bounded out of bed and driven to the club, where they begin their day, not with groans and complaints but with vigorous exercise.

"You get addicted," said Jack Kingsbury of Westland, who at 7:30 a.m. on a typical day will have already taught a tennis class at the Livonia Family YMCA and finished his morning run around the neighborhood. His dad, Jud, also a fine tennis player, is wailing away against a ball machine, working on his strokes.

"He's 69 or 70, but he'll probably tell you he's 42." Anne Hershey of Birmingham moved to the United States from France 11 years ago. For the last year she has worked out daily at Vic Tanny Executive Club in Bloomfield Township, usually arriving at 6:30 for aerobics class, a mile run and a swim. Her workout done, she goes home to get her children, ages 7 and 4, ready for their day.

"As you get older, you have more energy in the morning," said the trim 35-year-old. "I'm addicted. If I don't come, I don't feel right. I feel that if I exercise, I have a better chance to get older safely."

SOME OF THE AVID exercisers are lawyers priming themselves for court, some are businessmen and businesswomen about to cut a big deal. Some are in stylish Spandex tights, others in cutoff shorts and raggy T-shirts. Some are in posh clubs, other in bare-bones joints that serve the purpose and nothing more.

At Vic Tanny's Executive Club, they arrive in Porsches, Mercedes and Cadillacs; their cars turn their own headlights off as the owners stroll away in business suits. At the YMCA in Livonia, folks come in Chevys, Fords and Chryslers, and if they leave their lights on, their battery goes dead.

What they have in common, the rich and the middle class, the old and the young, the yuppies cutting deals and the oldsters killing time, is a love for fitness. Health clubs in the evenings are often an '80s version of singles bars, with mingling and ogling and trading phone numbers higher on the agenda than elevated pulse rates or increased muscle mass.

In the morning, though, fitness comes before preening. It is serious business. You don't pop out of bed at 5:30 a.m. looking for new phone numbers.

GEORGE KALABAT rarely misses a day at the Vic Tanny executive club. A Bloomfield Hills resident, he owns the Villa Wine Shoppes in Madison Heights and Rochester Hills and also helps out with another family business, Kalabat Construction Co. of Southfield.

Originally he worked out at the Troy Somerset Vic Tanny's but found it too much of a singles' scene. With a relapse or two, Kalabat has been working out regularly since 1977. He says it has changed him from an overworked, overstressed unhappy man.

"It was my third year in this country," said the Iraq native. "I was working too many hours. I was frustrated. It wasn't good for me."

Now he begins his day with racquetball, burns off the stress of the day before, then heads to the store.

His sister, Nedal, a West Bloomfield resident, is in the aerobics room. "I love it. It's in my blood. If I go all day without it, I cannot do a thing. It gives me energy for the day."

Jack Scheer of Garden City credits exercise with turning his life around, too. He had been in a serious car accident, needed three skull operations and was left paralyzed and unable to talk. Long therapy was needed, and when the insurance ran out, he wasn't yet fully recovered. Since then, three workout sessions a week at the Livonia Family Y have led to a complete recovery.

"I give a lot of credit to this place," he said. Another retiree, John Kell of Livonia, joined Scheer. It was 7:30 a.m. and they were already done with their swim class.

"I retired a couple of years ago, and I had to find something to keep out of trouble," said Kell. "It makes you feel wide awake. You feel good. You feel like going out bowling or golfing when you leave. And we have a lot of fun with the women here. We must be outnumbered 15-1, you know?"

The Livonia Y opens at 6 a.m. If Chris Campbell isn't there promptly to open the doors, those waiting on the porch, "start knocking. They run me over when I open the door."

There are tennis leagues at 6, a cardiac exercise class at 6:15, swimnastics at 6:45 and pickup basketball at 7. There are racquetball courts and weight rooms available too. Just reading the early-morning schedule is tiring enough to send a normally late riser back to bed.

THE CONVERSATION at the executive club in Bloomfield Township runs more to courtrooms and boardrooms than it does to bingo and retirement plans.

"I have to be in one court at 9 and another court for a trial at 1:30. I don't know what I'm going to do," said one attorney after a brisk 6:30 workout.

Another man comes into the locker room. He says he's a social worker with problem children and must work out to keep stress to manageable levels.

"Those kids don't need help, they need their asses kicked."

Instead of kicking butts, which would get him fired, he kicks up his heels on the aerobics floor, takes a sauna, gets into a new car and heads off down Telegraph to another day with the kiddies.

It is 8 a.m. The morning rush is over. The next boom will be a lunch time. Those who haven't had to rush off to work sit in the juice bar, munching on hard-boiled eggs, fresh fruit, nut-bars or yogurt.

Down the street and a world away, the snooze-alarm pushers have finally made it out. The sun is up and the early bird is stuffed with worms. Cars line up at the McDonald's carryout, ordering Egg McMuffins and coffee to go.

'As you get older, you have more energy in the morning . . . I feel that if I exercise, I have a better chance to get older safely.'

— Anne Hershey
early-rising exerciser

Ellen Rigby of Southfield doesn't waste a second of her time before work as she reads the paper while using a treadmill.

Sweat shops let you rise, shine before the sun

If you're looking for a place for an early-morning workout, you won't have to look long or hard. Everywhere in the Street Scene area there are places to get that heart pumping before the sun comes up.

"I've opened up here for two years, and there are only two weeks a year when the sun's up — the two weeks before they change to daylight-saving time," said Chris Campbell, the receptionist at the Livonia Family YMCA.

That Y opens at 6 a.m., and by 8 a.m. up to 150 members will have come through the door to swim, do aerobics, lift weights, or play racquetball, basketball or tennis.

MOST AREA Vic Tanny's (Troy, Southfield, Plymouth), open at 6 a.m. too, with the Livonia club a notable exception, opening at 10 a.m. Other 6 a.m. openers include Bodyworks Fitness Center in Livonia, University Racquet and Health Club in Auburn Hills, the Court Time Racquet and Health Club in Farmington Hills, Samson and Delilah's Fitness Center in Canton, the Beverly Hills Racquet and Health Club in Birmingham and the Franklin Racquet Club in Southfield.

Vic Tanny's Executive Club in Bloomfield Township opens at 6 a.m., but membership at other Vic Tanny's isn't honored there. It even has its own dress code. Men must dress in navy blue warmups and women in tan or brown.

"This is beneficial to maintain the high standards of your club," solemnly warns a sign. High standards, higher membership fee.

The United Health Spas in Livonia and Rochester open at 6:30, with the Forum in Westland and the California Concept Figure Salon for women starting at 7.

Many clubs require yearly memberships, but those that do usually will allow first-time walk-ins to work out as part of a sales pitch. Some clubs accept non-members for a daily fee. Bodyworks in Livonia charges $3 a day, with yearly memberships at $199 a year. Daily visits to the Forum are $5 for non-members, and walk-ins are welcome at Samson and Delilah for $4 a day.

AS WITH most things, it pays to shop around. Let the consumer beware is particularly applicable. Memberships at Vic Tanny's, for example, vary wildly, depending on what special is in effect at the moment.

What are the renewal rates? One club may charge more than another for the first year, and a much lower price for succeeding years. Some clubs give breaks on family memberships. Some clubs charge extra for things such as tanning or racquetball that come included in the membership at other clubs.

Membership at some clubs includes membership in a national association of health clubs, so when you go on vacation to Florida, for example, you can work out at clubs there at no charge.

Facilities vary greatly, even among different Vic Tanny's. Some workout places, such as Samson and Delilah, are no-frills operations, with a weight room (Nautilus, Cybex and free weights), shower and lockers.

Others include steam and dry saunas, racquetball courts, co-ed whirlpools, snack bars, baby-sitting, running track, aerobics rooms, weight rooms, stationary bikes and rowing machines.

WALL-TO-WALL carpeting in the home has given leave to tile, marble and wood. While carpeting is still the most practical for bedrooms, we see other surfaces in the other living areas of the home.

I love the look of a hardwood floor — what ever the finish. It lends warmth and character to a room. For myself, I have lived with plank, parquet and pegged wood floors and enjoyed them all. I will say that there was some maintenance but I felt it worth the care.

If you love wood floors and are afraid to try, I have the greatest find for you. It is not only beautiful, but indestructible as well. It is Nordic oak, a bleached oak with a white wash stain, factory prefinished with a polyurethane coating that won't wash out. Vinegar water will clean it with no buffing and no waxing. It is great for heavy traffic areas. I have it in my kitchen as well as living room and dining room.

The manufacturer is Boen and it is distributed locally by Erickson Floors in Ferndale. Ask your floor covering dealer to get a sample from them.

This floor can be used over other surfaces, i.e., tile or cement. The floor is placed over a layer of foam that is glued at all corners. Should you prefer a finish other than white oak, any number of other colors are available.

Q. I have a traditional home and have enjoyed a wool twist carpet. I want to change the carpet. I feel Berber is too contemporary. I have plush in the bedroom and dislike it. What can I use?

A. There is a new nylon frieze twist carpet on the market that has longer strands than have been used in the past. It has a plush look but will not show foot prints. It is made by DuPont. One of the places it is available is Riemer Floors in Bloomfield Hills.

Q. I have antique white walls and light crown moldings, almond kitchen cabinets with oak trim. I don't know whether to use a wheat color or a gray blue.

A. Wheat color will blend with any color and will go well with your light oak molding.

organizing

Lehmkuhl

"I've got to get organized."

As life becomes more complex, even formerly well-organized people begin echoing that familiar refrain. With that in mind, the Observer and Eccentric Newspapers is introducing a new column, "Organizing," to help in that direction. The writer is Dorothy Lehmkuhl, who has 15 years experience in a wide range of business situations that have given her an in-depth knowledge of business practices. For the past six years, she has taught seminars on the subject. She was recently elected president of the Professional Speakers Association of Michigan. The column will appear here each Monday.

Q. I am an excellent detail person and manage a large number of projects, yet I can't seem to remember where I left my car keys or other personal items.

A. For certain people, remembering where they left items is one of the more frustrating aspects of organizing. An aptitude test called "Ideaphoria" may hold a key to the problem.

Ideaphoria is the rapid succession of thoughts and ideas through the brain. This is a wonderful talent for many occupations. It helps people think of ideas for keeping children entertained, writing novels, creating craft items or brainstorming corporate strategy.

In the Ideaphoria test, scores range from 1 and 100. Scores between 25 and 75 are said to be in the normal range. Below 25 means extra low. The low scorer would probably excel in jobs that require long periods of concentration. Above 75 is considered the extremely high category. My bet is that you would test in the over-75 group.

How does this affect organizing? People who score high in Ideaphoria are often so involved in their voluminous variety of thoughts that (1) they bounce quickly from one task to another and (2) their minds are focused on their ideas, which often seem to have no connection whatsoever with that their hands are doing.

As example, one woman used to feel a failure because she could never focus on one task for very long. While doing dishes, her mind would dash from one thought to another. Suddenly a particularly great idea would prompt her to make a phone call right then to put the idea into action. Later she would almost be surprised to find she had forgotten to finish the dishes.

After testing, she realized she was blessed with the "curse" of Ideaphoria. For while the ability to think so quickly is indeed a talent, it makes concentration on mindless task next to impossible. This woman learned, first, to feel proud about being so talented and second, to force herself to finish one task before allowing herself the "reward" of getting to do something more interesting.

Dorothy Lehmkuhl welcomes comments and questions from readers. These can be forwarded to her in care of Organizing Techniques, 6125 Worthington, Birmingham 4810.

Design odyssey

Finding new ways to present traditional patterns

By Carrole L. Rugenstein
Special writer

EVERYTHING OLD is new again" could describe rug designer Teddy Sumner's life recently as well as his new collection of custom-made Oriental carpets.

Sumner, whose grandfather was legendary carpet manufacturer and importer Michael "Frank" Michaelian (Michaelian and Kohlberg) was in Troy for the Design Center's fall preview for the interior design trade. He talked of his roundabout entry to the family business that has supplied custom made carpets for the White House and the king of Saudi Arabia among others.

"I became involved in this business relatively late — only five years ago," said the 34-year-old Sumner. "Matter of fact, if someone had asked me when I was 25 what the chances of my becoming involved in it were I would have said 'very remote!'" he said with a grin. "I respected the family business, but like most kids I felt I had to do my own thing!"

DOING HIS OWN thing meant earning a degree in botany from Oregon State University then teaching plant identification in Corvallis, Ore. Later he added a fine arts degree in painting from the University of Washington, Seattle. There he worked as a professional artist, exhibiting his work in local galleries.

When his grandfather died in 1978, leaving the company to Sumner and his siblings, his brother, Jason, asked him to revive and take over the waning import side of the business. Sumner reconsidered his non-involvement and joined only to discover how well his diverse background had prepared him for it.

As senior designer and colorist, a role he relishes, Sumner is responsible for finding new ways to present traditional designs for the ever changing interior design market. He does this by keeping in touch with long standing suppliers, carpet makers in other countries. Several times a year he visits China (where his grandfather built a factory at Tien-Tsin in 1914), India, Pakistan and North Africa.

"We commission rug makers to supply so many designs, at so many square feet, to be shipped over a certain amount of time," he explained. He checks their work, discusses designs, suggests changes by color graphs on the spot to show them what he has in mind.

THE PERSONAL contact, the "physical presence" as Sumner puts it, "is quite important in this business. There's a lot of trust. These contracts that you have, the money that goes back and forth is really only as good as the handshake behind it." And that's not just because it's old-world tradition Sumner suggested tongue-in-cheek but because "If you try to sue someone in India, you'll never get anything."

Sumner's collection, offered for the first time at Ghiordes Knot in the Design Center is an example of old-world designs renewed — or recycled.

Called the Old World Collection, it consists mainly of rugs based on traditional designs from the Empire, Directoire and Victorian periods (late 18th and 19th century) in Europe. Floral motifs predominate with bouquets and wreaths of flowers on black or light backgrounds.

There are both hand-knotted ("fuzzy" rugs, Sumner called them) and needpoint rugs. "We're currently developing and copyrighting 27 needpoint designs made in China," he said. "They're exceptionally fine — 100 stitches per square inch as compared to the 38 stitches-per-square-inch in Portuguese cross-stitch rugs."

But imports like the Old World Collection are only one side of Michaelian and Kohlberg's business. The other side is the hand-tufted custom wool rugs manufactured at their Hendersonville, N.C., facility, called Spinning Wheel Rugs.

Sumner said that his company does not deal directly with the public but through design companies like Ghiordes Knot. Customers take their unique carpeting require-

"My father gave me some good advice when I went to college — it had little to do with the rug industry. He said, 'When you go to school, don't just learn one thing. If you're a good welder and you know insect identification, you will be unique.'" ments to interior designers or architects, who come to Michaelian.

"An odd size, cut-out, a penguin at two o'clock or some weird thing they won't be able to find elsewhere," Sumner explained.

CONSEQUENTLY THE rugs are very expensive because of the work involved — commissioning someone to do the rendering, dyeing special colors, submitting samples for approval.

"It's a small market, but a very real one," Sumner explained. "You never get bored because you never make the same rug twice."

Carpets like the Orientals of the Old World Collection are all originals as well. And, Sumner pointed out, "an Oriental rug need not be an Oriental design. It's a medium you can make any design you want."

A good definition of an Oriental rug he feels is that it's "a hand-knotted pile or flat weave area rug made on a loom in a Middle East or Far East Country."

Sumner is pleased with the way his educational background worked into the family business.

"It really has been quite satisfying, to somehow bridge the historical gap family-wise, yet also use the training I've had."

"My father gave me some good advice when I went to college — it had little to do with the rug industry, but he said, 'When you go to school, don't just learn one thing! If you're a good welder and you know insect identification, you will be unique.'"

"And oddly enough, here I am doing all these floral designs." Perhaps not so oddly.

Area rugs make personal statements

AP — Area rugs are a good alternative to wall-to-wall carpets. Better Homes and Gardens Decorating magazine says in its fall issue.

The rugs are usually distinguished from carpets in that they are single pieces not intended to cover the entire floor.

The magazine says the advantages of area rugs are that they are often less expensive, they can make more of a personal statement, many of them are reversible and, because they are portable, can be rolled up and taken when moving.

Area rugs can also be placed on top of wall-to-wall carpet, either as a visual break from a solid color or as a practical disguise for stains and worn spots.

Decorating magazine cautions, however, that poorly placed rugs can be safety hazards and advises using non-skid pads underneath to keep them in place.

AMONG TYPES OF area rugs are Orientals, needpoint, dhurries and rag rugs.

Only a hand-knotted rug can technically be called an Oriental rug, although machine-made designs will give color and warmth without the expense of the hand-made rug, Decorating says.

The quality and price of Oriental rugs are judged partly by the number of knots per square inch; a medium-quality rug will have some 160 knots per square inch. Price is also determined by its beauty and intricacy, its age and condition, rarity, size and materials.

Oriental rugs are made in many grades of wool and can be found in silk, too.

Oriental rugs are either Persian (made anywhere from India to Romania) or Chinese. The Persians feature traditional Middle Eastern designs in warm colors and are sheared smooth and flat. Chinese rugs have simple designs with motifs such as flowers, birds or Chinese characters. They are clipped to give a sculptured effect.

DHURRIE RUGS have been produced in India for centuries, Decorating magazine says, but are relatively new to the United States.

These area rugs are richly colored with splendid motifs and vivid geometry. Decorating says. They are flat-woven and reversible and less expensive than authentic Oriental rugs.

Rag rugs are now being sought by collectors as prime examples of American folk art; non-collectors like them for their colorful decorative appeal.

Renewed interest in traditional crafts has also made needlepoint and hooked rugs more popular in American homes.

These rugs, like any others, are only as durable as their materials and content, Decorating says, and colorfastness should be considered before buying.

Proper tires important for winter

The arrival of winter weather heralds the time of year when many drivers scramble to equip their cars with radials, snow tires or studded tires for added traction in snow and slush.

The right choice depends on the weather conditions and the snow emergency rules where you drive, advises the Tire Industry Safety Council.

"Before motorists begin to debate whether they need snow tires, they should check with authorities to find out the rules for their area," Donald G. Brotzman, council chairman, said.

In snowy areas, many cities and counties have "snow emergency" regulations that are invoked during heavy snowfalls.

tires that have "mud and snow" or "M/S" molded on the sidewall meet the industry's definition of a snow tire.

In some mountain pass areas, chains are required during heavy snowfalls.

"Studded snow tires are effective on ice, but before having your tire dealer install studs make sure they are permitted in your area," Brotzman said.

Many states have time limitations for their use or ban them altogether.

The tire council chairman said that if studded snow tires are mounted on the front axle of front wheel drive vehicles, studded tires must also be placed on the rear axle for proper handling.

LOCAL RULES VARY

"Under some rules motorists are subject to fines if they block traffic and don't have snow tires of their cars," Brotzman said.

He noted that all-season tires and more traditional snow

TIRE TIPS

The Tire Industry Safety Council lists these tips for cold-weather driving:

- Never reduce tire pressures in an attempt to increase traction on snow, on ice or in mud. It doesn't work and your tires will be seriously underinflated.

- Check your tire pressure more frequently during cold weather. Every time the outside temperature drops 10 degrees Fahrenheit, the air pressure inside your tires goes down about one pound per square inch.

- Don't make sudden turns if the road is slippery. Make smooth, gradual changes, being careful not to oversteer. When you want to slow down or stop, pump lightly on your brakes, gradually slowing the car. If you begin to slide, keep your foot off the brake until you feel you are in control.

- If one of the drive wheels becomes stuck, never race the engine because the free spinning wheel will spin at twice the speedometer reading. This develops tremendous centrifugal force, which could cause the tire to explode or disintegrate and cause personal injury.

- Never stand near or behind a spinning tire while attempting to push a vehicle that is stuck. You could be seriously injured.

- Avoid spinning wheels at high speed on ice or snow. If your car gets stuck, gently rock the vehicle back and forth by alternating between forward and reverse gear. If that doesn't work, get a push or a tow.

Wise investment
Installing a new set of battery cables is good insurance for dependable winter starting, especially if the present set of cables shows any wear.

Getting in gear

Winter starting no half-way matter

THERE IS no such thing as a "half start." At that moment of truth when the key is turned, either a car does or it doesn't.

And despite continuing mechanical improvements in the vehicles sold today, millions of cars — at that moment of truth — fail to start.

According to Champion Spark Plug Co., which has been studying starting troubles for more than 20 years, one out of every four cars in America last year had at least one occasion when it failed to start. This 25 percent starting failure percentage has been relatively stable for a decade, the company said.

The American Automobile Association says that more than 18 million motorists seek emergency road service annually, most often because of starting problems.

ACTUALLY STARTING an automotive engine depends upon the ignition system being able to come up with enough voltage to cause a spark that will ignite the fuel-air mixture and get the vehicle under way.

To start, or not to start, is a matter of how much voltage is available vs. how much is needed to do the job under the prevailing conditions. Ignition reserve is the critical factor.

Simply stated, ignition re-

The Car Care Council has prepared a "stitch in time" checklist to help car owners get ahead of the game as they prepare their cars for the challenges of winter.

serve is the difference in kilovolts between how much the ignition system can develop (voltage available) and how much voltage it takes for the coil to discharge across the spark plug gap (voltage required).

In cold or damp weather, the voltage available is reduced and voltage required is increased, thus causing reduced efficiency or possible breakdown.

ACCORDING TO Champion Spark Plug, the following are major factors that stand out in determining adequate voltage levels:

The condition of the ignition system components is important. Check whether the distributor, coil, points, rotor, spark plug wires and spark plugs are in good working order.

Check engine compression ratio. As compression ratios increase, so do voltage requirements. Thus, ignition system condition is even more important in a high-compression engine.

Check spark plug gap spacing. The wider the gap the more voltage is required to make a spark jump across. Periodic inspection and regapping is recommended.

Not only is proper gapping important to good ignition, but the condition of the spark plug electrodes also is a factor. Sharp electrodes concentrate the gap ionization by concentrating electrons. Therefore, spark plugs can be expected to require progressively more voltage as the sharp corners of the electrodes wear away and become rounded in normal service.

Tests by Champion show that a worn spark plug may require three times the voltage as a new plug.

SUDDEN ACCELERATION causes a rapid but temporary rise in voltage requirements. With ignition systems in poor condition, misfire may be noted during rapid acceleration.

Fuel air ratio also is a contributing factor. Either too-rich or too-lean mixtures can increase voltage requirements. Thus, proper carburetor adjustment and attention to air and fuel filters are important.

The Car Care Council notes that it can be time-consuming and expensive trying to assure voltage requirements, as well as taking care of anti-freeze, battery, or snow tires at the last minute, when everyone else in the neighborhood is rushing to do the same thing.

The council has prepared a "stitch in time" checklist to help car owners get ahead of the game as they prepare their cars for the challenges of winter. The checklist includes:

1) Cooling system care. If it hasn't been done in a while, flush it out with a good chemical cleaner and install fresh anti-freeze.

2) Battery and electrical system attention. If your battery is over a few years old, have it checked. Cold weather is hard on batteries. Be sure connections are clean and tight. Corroded or loose connections can give the symptoms of a weak or dead battery.

3) Engine maintenance. Is it time for a tuneup? Faulty spark plug wiring, worn spark plugs, a sticking choke or emission control devices that need attention all can lead to hard starting. A diagnostic checkup of the engine can be a good pre-winter investment.

4) Oil and filter changes. Dirty oil can give you trouble in winter. Now's the time to change it. Change the oil filter, too. Your car may have several other filters that need changing at this time, including the fuel, air and transmission filters. In changing the oil, consider a light weight oil, which helps the engine to "turn over" more easily in cold temperatures, thus enhancing the chances of a sure start.

The Car Care Council also recommends that a rereading of the owners manual is a useful pre-winter activity. Follow proper starting procedures, outlined in the manual, to avoid running down the battery or "flooding" the engine.

Most people take certain steps when cold weather approaches to prevent catching a cold or the flu, if they can possibly avoid it. You could consider starting trouble to be a disease. It seems to spread through the population of cars when cold, damp weather arrives. And just like with a cold, curing it is more difficult than preventing it.

Spark plug benefits

Dependable starting is the most important "perceived" benefit of a new set of spark plugs, according to a survey in 1986 that went to 5,000 nationally representative households in the United States.

The survey, conducted by a major automotive parts manufacturer, showed that there has been no change in that perception since 1978, with 41 percent of the car owners in both years saying that they considered it to be the greatest advantage of installing new spark plugs.

Twenty-three percent of the respondents indicated that "smoother running or smoother idle" was the greatest benefit. This was an increase from 18 percent in 1978.

"Better gas mileage," however, decreased as a perceived benefit from 27 percent in 1978 to 17 percent in 1986.

Spark plugs play a more significant role in longer engine life, survey respondents indicated. "Longer engine life" was considered the most important benefit by 7 percent in 1978, growing to 11 percent last year.

Providing "more pickup, power or speed" was the most important perceived benefit by 8 percent of the survey group, up marginally from 7 percent in the earlier study.

More cars today 'strutting their stuff'

Both domestic and foreign cars today are strutting their stuff when it comes to the vehicle's suspension system. Replacing the traditional type of shock absorbers on many downsized cars, the strut-type shock absorber is lighter and takes up less room under the hood.

According to ride control experts at Monroe Auto Equipment Company, the largest producer of automotive suspensions, nearly 50 percent of passenger cars will use struts by 1990. Most rear suspensions, however, will still use shock absorbers.

Unlike conventional tube-type shock absorbers, a strut — often referred to as a MacPherson strut — is a load-bearing structural suspension unit with a shock absorber inside and usually a coil spring wrapped around the outside. Both serve as dampers to reduce vibration and provide a smoother ride, but a strut also carries the vehicle weight.

While some struts have replaceable shock absorber cartridges inside, many of the new domestic strut-equipped vehicles have struts that are sealed for life and must be replaced as a unit.

According to the Car Care Council, the best way to determine whether a car's struts or shock absorbers still are serviceable is to have the vehicle inspected on a lift by a professional mechanic. A visual examination of the parts, along with their mechanical integrity, will help determine the need for replacement.

It is a good idea to have the struts or shocks checked when the car's odometer reaches 25,000 miles, according to Monroe.

Unlike an exhaust system, which loudly and clearly lets you know when it has failed, shock absorbers wear out gradually. When not operating at their peak, struts or shocks can severely compromise the ride and handling of the vehicle.

How do you know when your struts need replacing?

The signs of wear-out are the same as for conventional shocks. Look for excessive or uneven tire wear, perhaps a "cupping" on the tire tread. Oil leaks in the struts or shocks are also possible. If the car's ride is getting too "bouncy," even on smooth surfaces, the units may be worn out.

Also notice how the car behaves in turns. A sloppy or soft feeling can mean worn shocks, which result in a loss of control when cornering. If the car rocks when you come to a stop, this is a sure sign the shocks or struts need replacing. A shimmy in the steering wheel might mean misalignment, but can also be related to loose bolts or a worn upper bearing.

According to the experts at Monroe, strut replacement will be more costly than putting new shocks on the car, due to the increased labor needed for this more complex job. However, the benefits of better braking and improved ride and handling will make doing it right worthwhile.

The Car Care Council said that shock absorbers and struts should be replaced in pairs. If the car originally was equipped with the new gas-filled shocks, be sure to replace them with units of the same type.

Car life span of 22 years?

The life span of cars will soon increase to almost a quarter of a century, according to forecasts published by editors of the World Future Society.

The average car is now about 7.5 years old. This figure, the forecasts say, will increase to 10 years by 1990 and to 22 by year 2000.

Auto spa signals a name change

James Linenger, former owner of a Tuff-Kote Dinol franchise, has announced a name change and a decision to become an independent competitor. His new outlets, one in Farmington Hills and the other in Southfield, will now be known as Beautiful Car Auto Spa.

"My 10-year franchise had expired with Tuff-Kote Dinol," Linenger said, "and I decided to give the business a new look with fresh marketing ideas for the automobile buyer."

Tire rotation differs for front, rear drive

"Let it snow," say the owners of front wheel drive cars who can enjoy plowing through winter with ease. The concentration of the engine and transmission's weight over the driving wheels greatly improves traction.

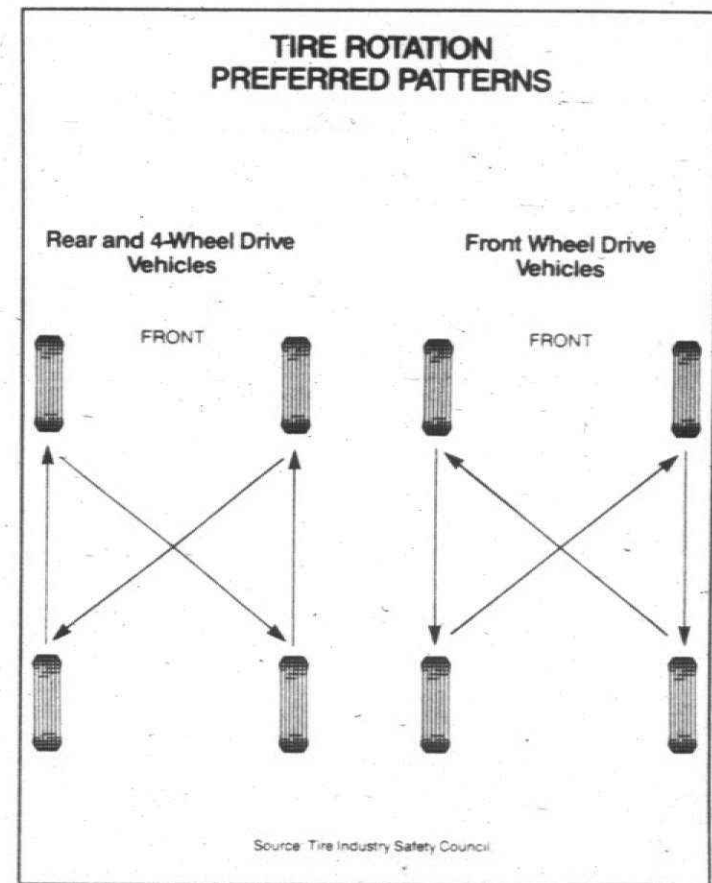

However, this feature does put a disproportionate load on the car's front tires, which not only steer and drive the car but also carry extra braking burden plus most of the weight. Front tires may wear twice as fast as rear, which is why most manufacturers emphasize the importance of periodic tire rotation (criss-crossing of tires) on front drive vehicles.

For optimum wear, says Car Care Council, tires should be rotated about every 6,000 to 8,000 miles. Look for unusual tread wear patterns, says the Council, sometimes signalled by a thumping sound or excessive tire noise on smooth roads. Such conditions may have been caused by incorrect wheel alignment, worn suspension parts or incorrect inflation. Rotating tires will help but may camouflage the real trouble which should be corrected in the interests not only of longer tire wear but safe steering control.

Recommended rotation pattern on front wheel drive vehicles is to move the two front tires to the rear, same side, then the rear tires to the opposite side on the front. The spare can be included in the rotation on cars with conventional spare tires. (See diagram.)

IF TIRES ARE wearing evenly, why not leave them be until the front (or driving) tires are worn out? There are two good reasons, says Car Care Council. First, a car handles better when tire tread patterns are evenly worn. Also, if the tires are allowed to wear out at the same rate, the new set of tires at replacement time may be of upgraded technology, giving the car the benefit of improved ride and handling. Further, it may be possible to buy a set of four more economically than two pairs at different times.

When rotating tires, be sure to check and adjust inflation. On some cars there will be a difference between recommended inflation of front vs. rear. Also, if alignment and/or balancing has not been done in a year or so, this might be the most convenient time to do so.

Brakes shuddering? Better seek service

A tip-off that you may need brake service is when you feel the pedal pulsating or moving up and down under your foot. Instead of smooth, even braking, you car will shudder to a stop.

While this condition may be due to loose wheel bearings or brake parts, the most common cause is warped brake rotors or drums that are out of round. Assuming the drums or rotors still are safe for further use, the problem usually is corrected.

The accepted cure, generally, is to have a brake service shop remove the distortion by machining the parts on a brake lathe. If the condition has gone on too long, however, you may need new parts. This is a case for taking corrective measures as soon as the condition becomes apparent.

What causes warping of drums or rotors? Heat is the most common cause, according to Car Care Council. Extended periods of heavy braking such as might be encountered on a long down-grade with a travel trailer in tow, can cause extremely high brake temperatures. This heat, in addition to damaging brake shoes and/or pads, can distort drums and rotors.

Motorists should make note of changes in braking action and, as soon as possible after abnormalities are noticed, have a qualified technician inspect the system, the council said.

When the brakes are serviced, be sure to inspect pads and linings and replace as needed. Have wheel bearings repacked. It's a convenient time to have this work done and, if an overheating condition had existed, the bearings may require repacking with fresh grease.

Quick change

Replace oil, oil filter to ensure engine life

Millions of motorists may not be changing their oil filters often enough, an analysis by a major U.S. oil company finds.

What automakers in Detroit term "normal" driving, when they make recommendations on when to perform service operations on new vehicles, actually only covers about 15 percent of the car owners in the Midwest. For example, 85 percent of motorists are not "normal" and therefore should change oil every 3,000 miles, according to the Marathon Oil Co.

Chances are good the following describes your driving habits, Marathon says: "Much of my driving is done in town with considerable stop-and-go and frequent idling. Trips are of five to 10 miles distance or less and the temperature drops to 32 degrees F. or below quite often during the winter months."

MOST AUTO manufacturers refer to this type operation as "severe" and recommend changing oil every 3,000 miles or every three months in their owners manuals. In reality this covers the type driving done by most motorists (about 85 percent) in the Midwest, Marathon says.

Because of the short distances and lower speeds, some motorists may believe their vehicles can go for longer periods without maintenance. However, just the opposite is true. Short distance, stop-and-go driving requires the engine to work harder — starting, speeding up, slowing down, idling and stopping repeatedly during a day of driving.

When the engine is cold, water and unburned and partially burned gasoline go into the crankcase from condensation and the combustion process. These products boil off and the oil cleans itself when the engine is operated long enough at high speeds.

If trips are short and at low speed with frequent stops and starts, the oil never gets hot long enough to drive off these contaminants. This results in:

Unburned gasoline diluting the oil, increasing wear;

Water and acids leading to rust and corrosion;

Sludge blocking passages and causing parts to malfunction.

Contaminants accumulate faster when the engine seldom gets very hot (due to short trip driving). Though additives help suspend sludge and neutralize acids, these properties do not boil off at lower temperatures. Therefore, your oil should be changed more often, Marathon concludes.

THE AUTO manufacturers refer to "normal" operation as over-the-highway driving at steady speeds and for longer distances. Though the vehicle is covering more miles this type of driving subjects the engine to much less punishment. Most manufacturers thus recommend changing oil every 7,500 miles or once a year, whichever comes first.

Since many motorists may think of their in-town, stop-and-start driving as usual and normal, and do not read their owners' manuals carefully, they may not be changing their oil and oil filters often enough.

'Hot key' can free frozen door locks

You're in a hurry to get to work or an important meeting and discover the car door lock is frozen.

Before you decide to just pour hot water down the side of your car, think again, writers at Road Ahead magazine advise.

Using the wrong method to thaw your lock could cause damage to your vehicle. For example, hot water might crack your window glass and ruin your car's finish. In addition, the water will freeze again very quickly, complicating the situation.

What method is recommended to thaw your car's door lock? The Automotive Information Council recommends heating your key. You can use a match, lighter, or other heating device. Wear gloves to keep from burning your hands on the hot key. If the lock doesn't thaw right away, just repeat the process; thawing will eventually take place.

Gas not light

We fill our tanks with gasoline by the gallon, not by pounds, but it is interesting to note how much weight we add when we load our tanks with fuel.

A gallon of gasoline weighs 6.042 pounds, more than two pounds per gallon less than water. Filling up with 10 gallons of gasoline adds about 60 pounds to the traveling weight of the car; 15 gallons weighs more than 90 pounds; and 20 gallons of gas check in at more than 120 pounds.

Changing or adding motor oil this winter is made quick and easy with Kendall's Fun-L-Fil resealable plastic bottle.

Women drivers are changing service

PROFESSIONAL women, busy mothers, working, even lady taxi and truck drivers — the streets are full of them, and their needs and attitudes are changing the automotive service industry.

It used to be a man's world, but the old-fashioned neighborhood garage, with its greasy bays and girly calendars, is fast becoming a relic of the past.

The growing number of women drivers is demanding more courteous service, cleaner facilities and, above all, auto technicians who can be trusted.

Today, convenient new types of automotive service are appearing and women drivers like what they see. Typical of these services are the fast oil change or quick lube centers, which provide needed maintenance service quickly and without a wait.

"WOMEN DON'T trust many auto mechanics," said Nadine Schulte, a young professional woman from Baltimore, Md. "A quick lube center is different, however. You know that you've gotten what you paid for."

The largest of these convenience chains is Jiffy Lube, where a team of three technicians provides the driver with an oil change, a new oil filter, chassis lubrication and a check of all engine fluids. It is typical of service provided by many centers in cities across the country.

In addition to the oil change, one of the automotive technicians washes the windows, vacuums the interior and checks windshield wipers and tire inflation. The complete service takes about 10 minutes and requires no appointment.

The lube bays, where technicians work on the cars, are clean; in some locations, they are paved with designer tiles. And while the service proceeds, the customer waits in a spotless lounge where coffee is served.

One thing the chain's management insists upon is courtesy. This is a rare commodity in our hectic market place but one that customers remember.

And because the service centers specialize in one type of service — lubrication and related maintenance — there is no big sell job. No mechanical works is one the menu of services so technicians concentrate on being quick and skilled.

A clean environment is one of the features that make the convenient new lube centers so appealing to women drivers.

SOME WOMEN still feel threatened by mechanics. Anecdotes abound about the garage that takes advantage of "the little lady" and her ignorance of what goes on under the hood.

Fortunately, today's woman is hard to take advantage of. She is pretty savvy about her car, and she knows to demand quality service. And more and more automotive services are learning how to serve the new breed of driver.

Booklet offers tips for starting engines

Use a hair dryer to blow-dry certain parts of an automotive engine to help it start in winter?

Sure. This is one of many tips in a new pamphlet for motorists. "How to Keep Your Car Going This Winter."

- It also recommends using:
- some thick shubbery in your yard for protection, if the car must sit outside;
 - a light bulb under the hood to keep a weak battery from freezing and engine oil from becoming too sluggish; or,
 - an auxiliary engine heater.

Published by the Champion Spark Plug Company, the eight-page booklet may be obtained by sending 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to: Winter Tips, c/o Champion Spark Plug Company, P.O. Box 910, Toledo, Ohio 43661.

THE PUBLICATION provides lists of tips in several categories, including what to do when you have a week or more to prepare for that first cold snap, what to do when you only have a few hours to prepare and what to do on that first frigid morning.

According to Champion's annual survey, 25 percent of all cars in the nation last winter failed to start at least once, compared to 23 percent the year earlier.

These statistics reaffirm the long-standing admonition to motorists: "Tune up before winter or be ready for the consequences."

Champion has been studying the hard-starting phenomenon for nearly 25 years, and last winter's nationwide survey involved data from some more than 4,600 vehicles.

Over these years, the num-

'The publication provides lists of tips in several categories, including what to do when you have a week or more to prepare for that first cold snap, what to do when you only have a few hours to prepare...'

"DESPITE THE improvement over the years by the auto manufacturers, there is just no substitute for engine tuneups and spark plug replacement prior to the winter driving season."

The Champion research information shows that newer cars generally get by without major starting problems, but as soon as a vehicle passes its third birthday, the chance for experiencing no-starts grows dramatically.

Only 9 percent of vehicles from the 1984 model year and newer had starting failures last winter, but the average for all other cars was 31 percent.

This trend has been consistent in Champion data over the years, Koles said. The average age of cars in the United States is 7.6 years.
