TOYS FOR TOTS: Omnicom Cablevision will be participating with the U.S. Marine Corps in the annual "Toys for Tots" campaign.

Begining Nov. 30 until Dec. 18, residents of Canton, Plymouth and Northville may bring a new unwrapped toy with a minimum value of $5 and receive a $5 basic installation (save $24.95) or $10 off the installation of an additional pay service. In addition, when any resident signs up for The Disney Channel, Omnicom will donate a Mickey Mouse Santa to Toys for Tots.

Toys can be donated at Omnicom's sales office at 550 Forest in Westchester Square Mall, Plymouth. Residents can donate toys without installing cable services. Residents also can drop off canned goods at the same location for the fourth annual Salvation Army "Baskets Filled With Love" food drive.

Last year more than 80,000 children in metropolitan Detroit benefited from Toys for Tots. "This is our fifth year participating and we are pleased to support the U.S. Marines in helping needy children in our area," said Lisa Boland, marketing director.

ON SHIPWRECKS: For the third year in a row Canton Public Library is sponsoring "Great Lakes Shipwrecks" at 7 o'clock tonight in the library. Popular every year, Thursday's program will relate the search for different ships than previously seen in other years at the library. Sign up to attend by calling the library at 397-0999. The program is free and open to the public.

BOOK WEEK: Was Encyclopedia Brown a real boy? What is Judy Blume's favorite hobby? Which well-known children's author was terrified of insects? Find out the answers to these and other questions about favorite children's authors during Children's Book Week at the Canton Public Library, Nov. 16-21. Fun-filled fact sheets complete with games and book lists will be distributed all week. Library hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

SECOND-HAND BUYS: Canton Parks and Recreation will hold its third annual Used Sports Equipment Sale from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5, in the first floor meeting room of Canton Township Administration Building, 1150 Canton Center south of Cherry Hill.

Residents having items to sell may bring them between 6 and 9 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 3, and collect their money or pick up unsold items 2-3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5.

WRITING CONTEST: A script-writing contest titled "My Role in America's Future," is being sponsored by Mayflower Lt. Gamble Ladies Auxiliary 6695 Veterans of Foreign Wars. The contest is open to all seventh, eighth and ninth graders.

Requirements for the contest are: the student must be an American citizen; the script should be from three to five minutes long; the script should not contain the student's name, school or city/township; the script should be recorded on a tape without any background noises.

Judging will be based on originality, content and delivery. The script of the local winner will be entered in the Department of Michigan contest, where the top award will be a $500 bond. The deadline for an entry is Dec. 4. For further information call Alice Fisher at 453-6144.

Signs help Hunt Club keep own preserve

Signs like the one above are posted on property around Canton, but membership of the longstanding Canton Hunt Club is more diffi cult to track down than wild game.

The signs are posted at the request of members and with the permission of the land owner. Hunters are after "quite a few deer, a lot of rabbit, pheasant and some fox," said Larry Huebler, whose family owns acreage around the township, some of which are posted with the signs.

"Our biggest problem is all the people deer hunting without permission," Huebler said. "That can be dangerous but that will be over soon, anyway."

The club has been around more than 30 years and some of the original members fill a list that reads like the Who's Who of Canton's early days. But not many people know who is in the club now and The Observer would like to 'hunt' them down. If you know of someone in the Canton Hunt Club please call the Observer at 459-2700.

Theater delays may end soon

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

If you were in Canton a few years ago, you may remember hearing about American Multi-Cinema's plans to break ground for a 12-screen theater and retail stores in October 1985.

AMC Canton was to be the first 12-plex cinema in the Detroit area. Shops and restaurants were to neighbor the theater in the $10 million L-shaped development.

Two years later, construction on 27 acres at Ford and Haggerty has yet to begin.

AMC, of Kansas City, Mo., recently went to Canton Township trustees seeking a site plan extension, and received a year's reprieve.

The company has scaled down its plans, and now intends to build an eight-screen, 1,896-seat theater and retail stores encompassing 170,000 square feet.

John Bernard Jr. works in planning for Schostak Brothers and Co. Inc., the project developer.

"There have been postponements simply because AMC theaters made two major acquisitions and owns 16 theaters in the major metropolitan area, and there are new ones under construction," said Bernard.

"Other projects took precedence, and the sewer ban shoved back the progress." The Michigan Department of Natural Resources delayed the issuance of sewer permits when Canton began experiencing flooding problems.

"Construction we hope will begin sometime in 1988," said Bernard.

The project will take 10 months to build, so it's anticipated construction will start this spring, he said.

The theater will occupy 30,000 square feet. Four adjoining retail businesses will range in size from 25,000 to 42,000 square feet.

"There are out lots where you could put a restaurant or a myriad of things," added Bernard.

There's no chance the cinema, which will be about a mile east of Cinema-Canton 6, will be further downsized, Bernard said.

"The minimum they build now is an eight-screen theater. The three- and four-screen theaters have gone the way of the woolly mammoth."

Dave Nicholson, director of community and economic development in Canton, was unavailable for comment.

Skateboard fans seek local track

By Diane Gale

Some say they're hell on wheels; others say they're a vastly misunderstood sport.

Kids on skateboards.

Residents — especially young ones — want a facility where they can practice flipping, spinning and turning on the controversial board balanced on wheels.

"Maybe we can get a person from the township or a business person to open a go-cart-type park for skateboards," said Mike McKeon, the Canton father of an avid skateboard rider.

Based on calls to area police departments, skateboards have become common nuisance complaints overshadowing the old time concerns placed on scooters and mini bikes.

And a lot of residents want the skateboards — especially those ridden on sewer culverts or interfering with car and sidewalk traffic — out of their neighborhoods.

COMPLAINTS LEVIED against skateboarding youths in downtown Plymouth pushed the city to adopt an ordinance earlier this year banning anyone skateboarding or roller-skating in the central business district.

"There's probably 10,000 kids who need a place to skateboard," McKeon said. "The kids doing skateboarding aren't doing drugs and I'd like to keep it that way. It's a way to vent their emotions."

But most municipalities have shied away from sponsoring a skateboard ramp because of the liabilities involved.

Dan Durack, Canton's personnel director and the township's representative for liability insurance, is leary about providing a public ramp for skateboards.

PC Schools benefit from athletic trainers

Canton athletic trainer Sue Heinzman tapes a student's ankle. 2 women limit injuries, grief of area teams

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

"If you were to poll each coach here and ask them what one thing do we appreciate more than anything, we'd say our trainers," said Gary Balconi, faculty athletic manager at Plymouth Salem High School.

"Treating injuries takes a lot of a coach's time. With our trainers around, the coach is free to keep coaching. We've all had our first aid but, of course, there's a big difference between that and the knowledge an athletic trainer has."

Balconi is talking about Sharon Bouchard, trainer at Salem, and Suzanne Heinzman, trainer at Plymouth Canton High School.

IN THE FIRST two months of this school year, Bouchard saw student-athletes 1,526 times. She's taped fingers and ankles, designed rehabilitative, nutritional and weightlifting programs, and provided first aid.

Heinzman estimates she's seen a similar number at Canton, where 20 varsity and 26 junior varsity sports are offered.

From 2-6 p.m. each school day, Bouchard and Heinzman staff their training rooms and attend practices. They're on hand at football, basketball and soccer games to tend injured players.

The trainers' services are contracted through the Center for Sports Medicine & Fitness in Ypsilanti, where both women work in the morning.

With doctors and physical therapists, Bouchard and Heinzman rehabilitate post-operative patients, make playing casts and orthotics, and help patients with strength training and range of motion exercises.

WHEN SCHOOL is out, there's time to pursue related interests.

At the U.S. Olympic training center in Marquette last summer, Bouchard worked with boxers, gymnasts, hockey and soccer players.

Heinzman treated volleyball players from 11 countries at the Pan American Games in Indianapolis.

Bouchard and Heinzman say misunderstanding surrounds their profession, but that thankfully, it's lessening.

"When I tell people I'm a trainer, and some people think I train horses," said Bouchard.

Man sought in 11 area gas station robberies

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Police are searching for a robber linked to 11 gas station armed robberies in area communities since the end of September.

In each of the cases the robber brought his own bag to carry away the money, covered his face with a brown towel, and threatened the clerks with a blue steel automatic gun. No one was injured.

He's described as being in his 30s, 6 feet tall, with wavy brown collar-length hair and he has robbed gas stations in Canton, Plymouth Township, Livonia and Westland.

He usually entered the station in early evening immediately after a customer walked or drove away and the clerk was alone.

An exception was the sole incident in Canton at a Clark gas station, at 1:30 p.m. Oct. 24 at the corner of Ford and Sheldon. However, it was raining and the visibility was reduced but similarities involved in the other cases were present. He stole $320.

AN UNRELATED ARMED robbery was reported at 12:20 a.m. Monday at the Union 76 gas station on the northeast corner of Ford and Haggerty in Canton.

Police are searching for the robber believed to be in a local bar earlier in the evening.

The man is described as black, about 6 feet tall, 240 pounds, black hair, red cloth hat, tan short jacket and blue jeans. He was armed with a long-bladed knife.

He walked into the station and saw the clerk sweeping the floor behind the counter, said Dave Boljesic, Canton Police information officer. The man approached the clerk and pulled the knife from a case attached to his left hip. He demanded: "Give me your money. Put the money in a paper bag." He stole $320 in bills and $78 in coins.

The assailant forced the clerk into the back room and demanded more money but there was none, Boljesic said. He told the clerk to lay on the floor and count to 50 and "if he got up he was going to die." The man cut the telephone line before leaving.

The clerk waited and called police from a pay telephone outside the station.

After the incident, police interviewed patrons in nearby lounges, Boljesic said. A witness in BJ Bowery's, on Ford east of Haggerty, told police he saw a man who matched the robber's description in the bar earlier that evening.

Anyone who might have seen a man fitting the description is asked to call Canton detective bureau at 397-3000.

Woman found walking naked on Napier, tells of ride, repeated rape

A 40-year-old Detroit woman — who was found Saturday afternoon walking naked on Napier north of Cherry Hill in Canton — told police she was raped and dropped off in the area.

The woman said she was walking near Fenkell and Lahser in Detroit about 1 p.m. when she accepted a ride from three people in a maroon compact van, said Dave Boljesic, Canton Police information officer. Police are unsure why she took the ride.

The people in the van were described as: a white man, about 30 years old, with brown hair, mustache and a slight build; a white man in his late teens or early 20s with brown hair and bad acne; and a woman in her 30s with dyed blond shoulder-length hair.

She told police it was the first man that repeatedly raped her in the back seat of the van with the other people present, Boljesic said.

The woman told police the suspects dropped her off in the Canton neighborhood where she was found walking naked.

agement (township insurance carrier) and I would tend to doubt they would look favorably on it because of the obvious potential of liability problems with injuries from falling off the skateboard," Durack said.

"It involves heights, going off the ground and making turns. People tend to fall. Gravity takes effect."

A representative from Canton's insurance carrier said the company is reviewing requests for skateboard ramps for "four or five" communities.

THE PUBLICLY RUN skateboard ramp in Ann Arbor is an exception.

A group of dedicated youths decided last spring they wanted a place to skateboard. They completed necessary steps for city approval, volunteered 3,000 hours, received materials through donations and convinced the city to pay $16,000.

With the supervision of the Ann Arbor Parks and Recreation Department, they have installed a ramp at the Ann Arbor Veteran's Ice Arena facility on Jackson Road.

For 75 cents anyone may use the 20-foot high, 60-foot long, 40-foot wide U-shape half-pipe outdoor ramp as long as the rules are followed, said Christina McCown, Ann Arbor Parks and Recreation manager of recreation facilities.

Participants must wear shoes, a skateboard helmet, knee and elbow pads and sign a waiver form if 18 or older.

Spiritual home

Friars live, pray at Duns Scotus

By Carol Azizian
staff writer

CALLING IT HOME

Brother Tony Augustine, 39, wearing blue jeans and purple/black plaid cotton shirt, escapes to his dormitory-style room after a long day of religious education studies.

He slips a Moody Blues disk on his record player and winds down on his wooden rocker, amid hanging plants and Pueblo Indian pottery.

The Rev. Marcan Hetteberg, 60, slides his wheelchair closer to his monstrous oak desk in a small, musty office cluttered with reminders from his past life — a tom tom, photographs of Navajo Indian women and children, a wedding basket.

Brother Didacus Casanave, 80, in thick, wire-rimmed glasses and friar's robe, wanders down the dark corridors en route to his cloister where he flips on WQRS, listens to opera and pens articles for St. Anthony Messenger and National Geographic.

The three men are Franciscan friars at Duns Scoutus — a huge, dinosaur of a complex nestled in the deep, dark woods at Nine Mile and Evergreen in Southfield, just south of modern glass office towers and cookie-cutter subdivisions.

A statue of St. Francis guards the tree-lined circular entrance to this Medieval fortress, patterned after 13th century churches in Assisi, Italy.

THE 24 friars and three lay people, live in a communal setting" — sharing the same food, sleeping under the same roof and praying together. They're brothers — in the spiritual sense — with a common faith in the gospel of Jesus Christ and common vows of chastity, poverty and obedience.

But they're also individuals with different ways of living out their Christianity — both inside and outside the friary.

"We have our fights like every family," said the Rev. Frank Jasper, leader of the community. "The problems of daily living — who's going to do the dishes, where are the screwdrivers."

"Some of the younger guys play rock 'n roll music loudly or type at 2 a.m., and some of the older guys like classical music."

The friars wake up early and recite morning prayers at 7:30 a.m. They attend Mass at either 6:45 a.m., 8 a.m. or noon in the chapel, an Italian-style edifice built in 1929 by American architect Wilfred B. Anthony and modeled after the Basilica of San Francesco in Assisi.

The chapel's ornate interior contrasts sharply with the stark simplicity of the dormitories. Stained glass windows, Moorish arches, a 50-foot high vault ceiling, a marble altar made in Italy, oak pews with walnut stain and terrazzo floor add to the mystical aura.

A red brick hallway, decorated with religious paintings on one side and potted plants on the other, is the passage into another world — an austere, Spartan environment with few 20th century trappings.

A formal dining room — more than 100 feet long — with narrow oak tables, candle lights overhead, an oil painting of the Last Supper and wooden pulpits near the ceiling — looks like the perfect place for a medieval feast.

THE FRIARS prefer to eat their simple meals at circular formica tables in the basement cafeteria. Cereal or eggs for breakfast, soup and sandwiches for lunch, chicken, meat or fish for dinner.

One floor above the formal dining room is the library with 45,000 volumes — everything from a 7th century papyrus fragment to Metropolitan Detroit magazine.

"That's my alcove," said Jasper. "I like it because it has a nice view of the chapel and grounds. I don't get distracted because there are really boring books on church history (in the alcove)." He holds a doctorate in psychology and counsels adults four days a week at the Dominican Consultation Center in Detroit.

In the recreation room, friars read the newspaper at oak tables or sit on "imitation" leather chairs planted in Kelly green carpeting.

"Green is the liturgical color of hope and eternal salvation," said the Rev. Aloysius Moran, flipping through the pages of his morning paper.

Living in the friary keeps him out of trouble, he jokes. "I haven't killed anybody yet. I don't get drunk on weekends. We don't poison one another."

The friars provide emotional and spiritual support to one another despite their age differences. The youngest is 21 and the oldest, 80.

"We have fraternal security — not social security," said Hetteberg.

PARALYZED from the waist down, he spends most of his time in his office, receiving telephone requests for financial aid from needy people in the Detroit area.

Hetteberg was transferred to Duns Scotus in 1981, after working as a missionary to the Navajo Indians in Arizona for 26 years. He was shot by a worker in the compound who had a vendetta against him. "I was ready to go back, but they told me it wasn't safe."

A Franciscan since 1946, he has lived in more modest surroundings than the Southfield friary. Compared to his first home — a mission with no running water and a one-cylinder generator for electricity — Duns Scotus is a luxury hotel.

On the mission field, he learned to dig wells, build roads and put in septic tanks. "There are more conveniences here," he admitted.

When he's not in his office, Marcan prays or watches television on his egg crate mattress, designed to prevent bed sores. "If I need something, all I have to do is ask somebody. Brother Mike brings me a cup of coffee every morning. If my legs bother me, I just call down to the dining room and somebody fixes a plate."

The Rev. Marcan Hetteberg spends most of his day receiving telephone requests for financial aid in his office decorated with Navajo artifacts.

Brother Didacus Casanave, a Franciscan for the past 37 years, is an institution at the institution. Born and raised in the Philippines, he joined the order when he was 43, after working as an engineer.

He ventured outside the Duns Scotus walls for one year during a novitiate period — from 1953-54 — in Cincinnati.

"I felt it was better to be in a religious (order) than in the world," he said. "I can go to church even when there's a snowstorm or a hurricane.

"I'm never lonely. I read, write, type. I wrote some articles for National Geographic and St. Anthony Messenger, but they were all rejected. (He has published a few in "Cord," a Franciscan scholarly journal.)

"They say I write mostly about the 16th century and they want something more modern."

Brother Tony leads a more contemporary lifestyle than most of the other friars.

His room is decorated like a college student's dormitory — a stereo with Moody Blues, John Denver and Cat Stevens albums, Navajo rugs and Pueblo pottery, a "Kiss me, I'm Italian" mug, ceramic statues of monks reading comics, a hanging lipstick plant, family photos and a teddy bear collection.

This is his retreat after a long day of attending classes in the religious studies program at the University of Detroit. He hopes to graduate in May.

He enjoys concerts — Neil Diamond, the Four Seasons, James Taylor — movies and visits with friends. The last flick he saw was "The Name of the Rose," a mystery about monks.

Brother Tony came to the friary after spending 10 years as a missionary with the Navajo and Pueblo Indians in New Mexico. He doesn't plan to stay at Duns Scotus the rest of his life.

"I think institutional-style living should be obsolete," he said.

"I wouldn't mind living in an apartment or a grass hut," he added. "I think I've come to the point in my life where I'm working toward the notion of strict poverty."

K mart employees plan special feasts

Workers in Canton store to help needy

For the third year more than 2,100 "Good News Committees," groups of K mart employee volunteers, are busy preparing Thanksgiving feasts for some 42,000 needy families nationwide.

The main ingredients of the feast will be turkey, potatoes, stuffing, vegetables, bread and pumpkin pie.

Joseph E. Antonini, K mart chairman, said the positive response to the two previous food basket programs has prompted the stores to continue this program.

The K mart store at 5725 Sheldon at Ford Road in Canton will provide 20 needy families in Canton with Thanksgiving dinners.

On Tuesday, Nov. 24, the Canton store will participate in the nationwide program. In preparation for Tuesday, employees will be collecting and packaging canned goods and other food items. R.J. Clark, store manager, said other businesses and organizations can donate food to sponsor additional families.

"We wanted to work together with the community to make sure those in need have enjoyable Thanksgiving dinners this year," said Clark. The Salvation Army in Plymouth will help identify needy families in the area and K art employees will deliver the food baskets.

The Canton K mart employs 200 persons and is one of about 50 K marts in Michigan.

EMPLOYEES OF K mart Corp.'s Canton Distribution Center recently participated in the "Good News" program.

The Distribution Center is participating in a separate "Good News" program, which will provide 100 needy families in western Wayne County with special gifts for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Five communities in the immediate surrounding area of the distribution center on Joy between Haggerty and Lilley, were selected to receive 20 gifts each.

Each family has been given a turkey, an assortment of personal and household products, and a large clothes basket filled with food items.

"Individual employee contributions helped finance this project," said Charles Bierwiler, general manager of the Canton Distribution Center.

In addition to financial support the center employees also volunteered to sort, package and deliver the gifts to area families.

Carl Wilson was Good News committee chairman at the Distribution Center.

Tri-Mount wins rezoning for homes

By Doug Funke
staff writer

A developer received the green light to build houses on one-acre lots when the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees Tuesday rezoned a 130-acre parcel at Powell and Ridge roads to residential from agriculture use.

Zoning classifications, designed to promote orderly growth, determine how land may be used.

The township's willingness to consider changes in requiring advance payment of all water and sewer benefit fees is just as important to Tri-Mount Development Co. as the rezoning, according to Raymond Cousineau, vice president for project development.

Requiring payment of all utility benefit fees, estimated at $750,000 for the Ridge-Powell development, in advance of construction would put the project at risk even with the rezoning, Cousineau said a couple of months ago.

BENEFIT FEES are used by municipalities to maintain and improve local water and sewer systems. Developers and builders pass those costs on to home buyers.

The township board substantially boosted benefit fees last January to the point where they're now the highest in the area.

Cousineau said he expects a rate adjustment downward to go along with an extended payment option for benefit fees.

The township board is expected to consider changing its water and sewer ordinance next month to allow pro-rated payment of benefit fees.

"We feel we have ironed out most of the stumbling blocks," Cousineau said. "We're prepared to move ahead quickly. We do feel the township has worked with us. There has been some compromise."

TRI-MOUNT plans to build about 130 houses, which Cousineau projected would sell from $200,000 to $250,000.

He expects that utilities and roads will be installed by late spring or early summer, with models open by late summer.

Rouge Rescue '88 seeks more civic support

Group targets Bingham Farms, Garden City in cleanup effort

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Like its two predecessors, Rouge Rescue '88 will rely on community spirit and elbow grease.

Friends of the Rouge, the volunteer agency planning the event, hopes more communities — and elbows — get involved this time around.

Rouge Rescue '88 is scheduled for Saturday, June 4. Friends of the Rouge seeks volunteers who are willing to spend the day cleaning the heavily polluted Rouge River.

It wants to double the 2,100 people who attended last year's event.

"We're looking for more than 4,000 people," executive director Bonnie Anderson, a Birmingham resident, said.

The group also seeks involvement from every community in the Rouge's path. New volunteers are sought from communities that haven't formally participated in the two previous cleanups.

"We're looking at involving all riparian property," Anderson said. "That means all communities within the river's path."

Friends of the Rouge will step up recruiting efforts in Bingham Farms, Garden City, Lincoln Park and River Rouge, Anderson said.

Birmingham, Canton Township, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Livonia, Southfield and Westland were among the communities that participated in this year's Rouge Rescue.

Friends of the Rouge will unveil plans for Rouge Rescue '88 tomorrow at the Radisson Plaza Hotel, Southfield.

The 2,100 who participated this year hauled away more than 2,000 cubic yards of debris and cleared 72 log jams during the one-day event.

Though cleanup boosters were happy with the output, the total number of volunteers was down substantially from the inaugural Rouge Rescue '86.

Official community participation was up, however, as municipal employees removed dead trees, stumps and other debris before and after the one-day volunteer event.

Friends of the Rouge seeks to focus government attention on the river's plight. Numerous state legislators and city council members have been invited to tomorrow's kick-off luncheon.

According to Friends of the Rouge, the river won't be fully cleaned until communities build new sewers. Combined sewer overflow, including waste as well as storm water, is considered the main reason the rouge Rouge continues to be polluted.

The group has also applied for a $30,000 National Science Foundation grant to expand its classroom program. Students from 16 area high schools are helping monitor water quality at various points along the Rouge.

Participating high schools include Detroit Country Day, Garden City, Livonia Churchill, North Farmington, Plymouth-Salem, Redford Union, Southfield and Troy Athens.

"We've got everybody back, plus we hope to include 16 more high schools this year," Anderson said.

Friends of the Rouge estimates parts of the river could be reopened for swimming and boating over the next 20 years.

But they admit it won't be easy.

A recent Michigan Department of Natural Resources report indicated water quality has barely improved over the past 13 years, despite a wave of environmental laws.

"We took a survey in 1973 and, last year, we duplicated it," DNR water quality specialist Jim Bredin said. "We found there's been little change since 1973."

Separate DNR and Wayne County Health Department studies confirm bacteria levels in the river are hazardous to swimmers, Bredin said.

The search for toxic pollutants, however, only began in the past year.

"We lacked knowledge of the amount of toxins in the river," Bredin said. Detroit Edison made the expensive study possible by donating space in the company laboratory, he added. Data is currently being compiled.

At its best, Rouge River water quality rates only "fair," Bredin said. It's considered fair along the Middle Rouge, which passes through Livonia and nearby communities. It's also considered fair in the Birmingham area. Downriver areas are considered "poor," Bredin said.

In all, the Rouge passes through more than two dozen communities in Wayne, Oakland and Washtnaw counties.

Pursell meets area's contra aid opponents

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Local opponents of further aid to Nicaraguan Contra rebels didn't get what they wanted Friday — a commitment from U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell to oppose such assistance — but they did get to explain their position in a 90-minute meeting at his Plymouth office.

"I thought it was a good meeting. I thought the group established itself with Pursell as a legitimate group (and) did a respectable job of convincing Carl that they are representative of other people in his district," said Bill McAninch, a retired resident of Plymouth.

"He did not give us a definitive position on Contra aid, and that was obviously what we wanted . . . Not all the group's expectations were realized, but to have a member of Congress sit down with the people and have a meaningful dialogue — that was an accomplishment."

THE PEOPLE are members of Neighbor to Neighbor, a grass-roots anti-Contra group that has organized a letter-writing campaign directed at Pursell, R-Plymouth, whose district includes part of Livonia, and several other members of Congress who are considered swing votes on the Nicaragua issue.

Eighteen people, representing a wide cross-section of Pursell's constituency, crowded into his small office. Some sat on the floor. There were two high school students, an 80-year-old woman who has lived on a Wayne County farm for 50 years, several retired people, a Jackson minister, a UAW organizer, a woman who described herself as a moderate Republican, a college professor and a factory worker.

They took turns telling Pursell why they opposed Contra aid.

"I'm interested in non-military solutions," said McAninch. "Military solutions didn't work in Vietnam, they aren't working in Afghanistan and they aren't going to work in Nicaragua."

"I saw death and devastation in World War II and I've been for alternatives to war ever since," said Charles Curtis of Jackson.

Beth Stewart, a Plymouth resident who described herself as a moderate Republican and who was wearing a GOP/ERA button, said: "I don't see this as a bipartisan issue." She said she got involved after hearing pleas from Central American missionaries at her church.

Other speakers included Carl Medwedeff of Livonia, who works at the Willow Run assembly plant; Larry Ort, a professor at Spring Harbor College; Jane Ramsey, a social worker at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia; and Helen Van Dyke, the longtime farm resident.

PURSELL DIFFERED with some of their interpretations of Central American policy or history, but was gracious and attentive to their positions. When Mary Ann Buckley, a Neighbor to Neighbor organizer who lives in Washington, said "You might disagree with me, but change doesn't happen in Washington, D.C.," Pursell drew loud guffaws by responding: "You sound like a good Republican to me to me."

And he was critical of the Reagan administration and its Ollie North-type maneuvers in the region.

Pursell reiterated his support of an economic support package for the region (the Caribbean Basin Initiative), and said he supported the regional peace plan offered by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in October for his efforts.

But he repeatedly refused to say point-blank that he would oppose future administration aid packages for the Contras.

"We ought to focus on the peace plan . . . We're not voting on Contra aid. It's not an issue at this time. It's not on the table," he said when Ort asked Pursell if he would be willing to make a statement that he did not support the Contras.

"Would you be in support of Contra aid if it were on the table in January or February?" Ramsey asked.

"I don't think any member of Congress is in a position to answer that," Pursell replied.

Pursell wouldn't be pinned down on Contra aid, but he was to the point several times in criticism directed at President Reagan.

"I'm looked at as one of the people (in Congress) trying to urge the White House to get its act in shape," he said.

And, when Stewart asked him if he thought the administration really wanted the peace plan to work, Pursell said: "I can't speak for the administration . . . But in their seventh year, there's the lame-duck situation. It's a moot point."

"CARL HANDLED the meeting extremely well," McAninch said Monday. "It was not adversarial. There was a considerable exchange of views . . . I am disappointed that he won't take a leadership position on Contra aid, but I didn't expect he would.

"I'm frustrated, not with Carl Pursell specifically, but with members of Congress who are avoiding a position that might upset anybody. When he said Contra aid is not on the table, that's not entirely true. It's possible that a $30 million Contra-aid bill can be put on the table at any time, and he's got to be prepared to deal with it.

"Carl Pursell is wired in in Washington. Carl will read the tea leaves 10 minutes before a vote and do what he thinks is the most politically astute thing for him to do."

SANCHEZ'S PEACE plan was offered Aug. 7. Friday, Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, who was in Washington, offered his own 11-point peace plan, which was accepted by Nicarazguan Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo.

The plan calls for a cease-fire to begin on Dec. 5 and for rebels inside Nicaragua to moye to one of three cease-fire zones. The rebels would have till Jan. 5 to lay down their arms to be granted amnesty.

Tonquish tales

Helen Gilbert

Our 18th century journey through the Midwest has brought us back to Fort Duquesne (Pittsburgh).

On this calm and peaceful summer morning of July 8, 1754 we look out over the south bastion of the fort to see the wonderful world around us. Overhead a flock of a hundred or more passenger pigeons drift on a summer breeze. Down below we can see hundreds of ducks, fish hawks (osprey), and all kinds of other birds and creatures of the forest. Nearby a flock of woodland ducks search the shallows for their breakfast.

Running down to the water's edge, where the rain-made hollows meet the river, are many wildflowers that blend with the aroma of fresh pine to lend a most delightful fragrance to the place. Here is the Riviere Malengueulee — the Monongahela — unblemished by the thoughtless, greedy schemes of man, its pristine waters abound with fresh fish of all kind including salmon and trout.

We are not naive enough to assume that life runs on like this river. Even now in the distance we can hear the drums of war. There is an undercurrent of struggle and conflict, a power struggle for this valley, which will cost us dearly. How can we possibly win?

THERE MAY BE about a hundred thousand of us, and that's counting every couours de bois in the forest and every voyageur in his canoe, as well as every citizen in Fort Ponchartrain d'Etroit, Montreal, Quebec, and all the forts from Louisiana to Mackinac.

But the British own, lock, stock and barrel, all those little towns along the eastern seaboard. There are more than 20,000 in Boston alone. While they are divided with different ideas and religions, different goals and philosophies, trouble will unite them soon enough.

Washington's defeat at Fort Necessity is merely temporary; they know it and we, if we are honest with ourselves, know it too. We could be outgunned, outgunned, outfought, and outmaneuvered by these fiendish British.

Look to the south — beyond the bend of the river. In the distance you will see a string of war canoes stretched for more than a mile toward the southeast. Listen to that buzzing sound in the distance. Like swarming bees, they come. The noise grows ever louder and louder.

If we listen we can really hear them now. Cries of jubiliation, laughing badinage, raillery rings out over the water as clearly as the bells of Notre Dame at the coronation of the king. They have conquered! Glory be to God! This valley will be ours once again. For a while at least, but not forever. These are my thoughts on this bittersweet morning in 1754.

SUDDENLY, with a great clanking of rusty chains, the drawbridge over the moat slams down, and everyone left in the fort rushes out to greet our returning heroes.

The canoes are rapidly beached, one after the other. First to land is their leader, a man from Michigan, Louis Coulon de Villiers. He is smiling happily as he presents the torn British flag to the commandant of Fort Duquesne, Claude Pierre Pecardy, sieur de Contrecoeur.

DeVilliers, born in St. Joseph, Mich., lived in that area most of his life. Many of his troops came from d'Etroit.

The history books tells us that there were about 500 Frenchmen on board the large canoes that pulled up to the bank near the fort. Robert Alberts in his fascinating book, "The Most Extraordinary Adventures of Major Stobo," states that the canoes "carried the victorious force of 700 soldiers and savages." Of this number probably at least 200 were brown-skined natives in their own decorated war canoes.

When Villiers held up the heavy English flag — the red and white cross of St. George — the French as well as the natives cheered with great enthusiasm. Everyone seemed to participate in the celebration except for two somewhat disconsolate individuals, dressed in British uniforms, and standing glumly and silently in the background. These were the two hostages — Captain Robert Stobo and Captain Jacob Van Braam. They were Contrecoeur's assurance that LaForce and the other Frenchmen captured when Jumonville (Coulon's brother) was killed would be safely returned from the Williamsburg goal. It was for this reason that they were well guarded and their safety was assured. (For the story of Van Broam's Journey with Washington read the book, Tonquish Tales, Volume 2.)

BEFORE EXPLORING the hazardous adventures of Robert Stobo we should mention that after the cheering died down Commander Contracoeur welcomed Captain Villiers, Chevalier Le Mercier, and Captain de Longueuil to a conference at his office within the fort.

At the conference Contrecoeur expressed some disappointment that Villier's had not brought back the nine English cannon he had captured, and he implied that Governor Duquesne would not be happy with the idea that Washington and his minions could return within a year (according to the terms of the Peace Treaty) and threaten them again.

Contracoeur was aware of the impending arrival of General Braddock and thousands of English troops. But this criticism changed to jubilation after the Commandant read the "Articles of Capitulation."

According to Robert Albert's study of these events, it seemed to the commandant that Washington was extremely careless. Washington had signed a document that "confessed" that he had assassinated young Jumonville who was carrying a white flag of truce, or so the French would claim.

The fact that VanBraam's translation was faulty was not taken into consideration or, if it was, was carefully buried for the sake of creating a furor in world opinion. As a matter of fact this gambit in "public relations" was so well worked by the French that the capitals of the world were within a few weeks convinced that Washington was a "murderer," and that the colonists were unscrupulous, barbarians. It was this that caused Voltaire and other notables to desert the American cause.

MESSENGERS WERE sent to every post along the rivers and to d'Etroit, Quebec, and Montreal that church bells should ring and the Te Deum be sung at every post. This was to be followed by three rounds of musketry, in gratitude to the King of Kings for having favored the French.

Ste. Anne's in d'Etroit and every other church of importance in the territory controlled by the French posted a copy of the Articles of Confederation on the front door.

And so it was on a beautiful summer's day near a golden triangle of rivers that meet in the valley of the Ohio. So it was, they say.

The canoes are rapidly beached, one after the other. First to land is their leader, a man from Michigan, Louis Coulon de Villiers. He is smiling happily as he presents the torn British flag to the commandant of Fort Duquesne, Claude Pierre Pecardy, sieur de Contrecoeur.

Now the time has come for us to follow the adventures of Robert Stobo who, with his friend Jacob Van Braam, will find some amazingly inventive ways to help the Americans.

Even now as they stand by, watching the celebration, they are telling each other of a plan they have devised to defeat these French and to help Washington.

Their strategy and their secret plans will be revealed in the next chapter of Tonquish Tales.

Plymouth metal plant holds open house

The production of metal alloys may not sound like a hot manufacturing item.

But the process was of enough interest to attract some 800 people to Howmet Corporation recently for an open house at its Metal Products Division plant on Ann Arbor Road just east of Lilley in Plymouth Township.

The 800 visitors included the division's customers, vendors, government and business leaders from Plymouth and Canton, employees and their families, and media representatives.

HOWMET CORPORATION is a world leader in the manufacture of precision investment cast components for jet aircraft and other gas turbine engines.

Howmet's airfoils and castings are found in every commercial and military engine program in the free world.

Howmet's airfoils and castings are found in every commercial and military engine program in the free world.

The corporation is integrated from its raw material-producing facilites — here in Plymouth, in Dover, N.J., and in Exeter, England — through the entire manufacturing cycle, and to the final machining and coating of cast parts.

Howmet's alloy operations are the largest suppliers suppliers of cobalt, nickel, and iron-based vacuum-melted superalloys in the United States. The two U.S. operating divisions — the Metal Products Division in Plymouth and the Dover Alloy Division — have a combined vacuum capacity of 16 million pounds a year. In addition, the Plymouth plant also supplies high-quality air-melt products.

These heat- and corrosion-resistant materials are used by Howmet investment casting operations to produce parts for commercial and military jet aircraft engines, land-based gas turbine engines, and other uses ranging from automotive turbochargers to medical protheses.

FROM THE Plymouth and Dover divisions, some 225 superalloys are routinely supplied as well as proprietary and classified alloys and others adapted to individual requirements.

The Metal Products Division in Plymouth has been in business for nearly 40 years. Howmet has been in business 61 years. Victor Wilkinson is general manager of the Metal Products Division here.

The Plymouth plant, with 120,000 square feet of manufacturing space, is fully equipped for the production of air- and vacuum-melted specialty alloys.

Air-melt operations include one 10,000-pound, one 4,000-pound, and two 2,000-pound induction furnaces. During the past year, the division has completed installation and began operating a 10,000 unit for refining air-melt alloy.

Howmet is a subsidiary of Pechinery Corporation, the parent company for the North American manufacturing activities of the Pechiney Group of Paris.

Scarpulla improving

Joan Scarpulla, injured Nov. 6 when her car was hit by a school bus, was in good condition Tuesday at University of Michigan Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said.

She had been in serious condition with internal injuries.

Scarpulla, a city of Plymouth resident, was struck by the bus in the Linden-Harvey intersection at about 2:40 p.m. No one on the bus was injured.

Scarpulla initially was taken to St. Mary Hospital, then transferred to University Hospital.

Christmas walk set for Nov. 29 in Old Village

The 16th annual Christmas Walk in Plymouth's historic Old Village will be held noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 29.

Features of the Old Village Christmas Walk will include carolers and bell choirs, a ride on Plymouth's Double-Decked Bus, or a visit with Santa in the Friendly Persuasions Florist Shop.

Visitors will be able to meet the artists and craftsmen of Old Village, stroll into their shops in 1890s farm houses or the 1916 Buick Garage, the old greenhouse now a mini-mall, or the newly-refurbished C&O Depot.

Browse through antique shops housed in 1870s storefronts, or a 1920s former bank said to be robbed by the Purple Gang.

Shoppers also can munch on a holiday cookie with a cup of coffee or hot punch in the decorated shops. While there, visitors may register for an Old Village Shopping Spree.

"Remember, or have your folks told you, when merchants gave you personal attention?" said Diana Licht. "When Christmas presents were handmade? Christmas Chocolates were hand-dipped? When holiday dresses were lovingly sewn?"

Joins staff

Dr. Ruth Strang, a professor in the department of pediatrics at the University of Michigan, has joined the staff as a new pediatrician at University of Michigan M-Care Health Center at 9398 Lilley south of Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth. A pediatric cardiologist, Strang did postgraduate fellowships in pediatric cardiology at Babies Hospital in New York, Johns Hopkins in Baltimore and Children's Hospital in Boston.

3 Plymouth Boy Scouts earn highest rank

Three Boy Scouts from Plymouth have earned the highest rank in Scouting — the Eagle Scout rank — as members of Troop P-6 (1536).

Gregory Borich, Evan Yeung and Mark Schang were recognized in ceremonies Sunday, Nov. 15, at the Risen Christ Lutheran Church in Plymouth.

Each had to earn 21 merit badges and complete a community, church-related service project to become an Eagle Scout.

Borich designed and directed the landscaping for Risen Christ Lutheran Church. His project included planning the landscaping with help from a nursery, obtaining church approval, and removal of old bushes and trees. He organized the site preparation, purchase of new greenery, and the planting of trees and shrubs.

Yeung designed and directed the construction and installation of large maps depicting the baseball diamonds at the Plymouth Canton High School fields. Signs also were posted at each field. Yeung obtained funds and donated materials, organized the construction and painting of the signs, and the installation at approved locations.

Schang designed and directed the cleanup of the trails, placement of log borders and construction of a foot bridge at the Miller Woods Nature Trail in Plymouth. He organized the purchase of materials and construction of the bridge and two sandwich signs depicting the the Miller Woods Spring Nature Walks.

Borich, son of Carol and Earl Borich of Plymouth, is a member of Risen Christ Lutheran Church and as a student at Plymouth Salem is active in the French Club, cross country team, stage crew, WSDP Radio, and Plymouth Park Players.

Yeung, son of Peggy and Ken Yeung of Plymouth, is a member of Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church in Plymouth and as a student at Plymouth Canton High is active in the Quiz Bowl, Science Olympiad, concert chorus, National Honor Society and student council.

Schang, son of Morag and Kenneth Schang of Plymouth, is a member of Littlefield Presbyiterian Church of Dearborn and as a student at Plymouth Salem is active in the National Honor Society, WSDP Radio, and the computer club.

That's a condition for participation in the township. "We asked for proof," Broadbent said.

Municipal workers pick health option

Three municipal employees in Plymouth Township and two in the city of Plymouth have decided to forego health insurance coverage in favor of more take home pay.

The municipalities will benefit financially as well.

"Really, it's worth it if one does it," said Catherine Broadbent, administrative assistant to the township supervisor.

"Health insurance is probably the most expensive employee benefit," said Carol Stone, purchasing agent and personnel director for the city.

Projected annual savings for the township and city with current participation are $5,000 and $3,600, respectively.

Township employees who opt for cash in lieu of health coverage receive $50 per two-week pay period or $1,300 per year. City employees receive an annual "bonus" of half the premium costs saved or about $1,800.

All five employees who selected cash over health insurance are covered under policies of spouses or other relatives.

Participants in both communities must sign waivers. City employees can elect to drop health insurance for cash at any time, township employees only once a year.

Employees who drop their health insurance can re-enroll with the municipalities picking up the tab at only one time per year.

Wheelchair-bound volunteers needed

Wheelchair-using volunteers are needed for a research study at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

"I am in desperate need of additional subjects," said Dr. Barry Franklin, director of cardiac rehabilitation and exercise laboratories, and author of this newspaper's fitness column.

"The study is designed to develop a field test — that is, wheelchair ambulation distance in a given time period — of heart-lung fitness," Franklin said.

"We are seeking healthy male wheelchair users, ages 20 to 50, classes II-V paraplegics, amputees and those with selected lower extremity disabilities.

"Wheelchair users of varied fitness levels are encouraged to participate. You need not be a 'wheelchair athlete' or 'marathoner.' All laboratory testing will be provided free to appropriate candidates," he said.

To inquire about participating, call Karen Johnstone at Beaumont, 288-8148.

Santa, pet photos to be taken

Pets will be photographed with Santa Claus during a Michigan Humane Society event, Sunday.

No appointments are necessary for the photo session with Santa. Polaroid snapshots are $5.

A bake sale and craft show will be held. T-shirts, sweat shirts, Christmas cards and other items will also be sold. Proceeds will go toward humane society programs.

Timetable slow for new Meijer in Plymouth

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Don't look for a new Meijer store in Plymouth Township any time soon even though the township board Tuesday OK'd a rezoning request that allows construction here.

"In order to go through all approval stages and get a store built, you're generally looking at a timetable of two years," said Brian Breslin, a vice president for the retail giant.

"We don't have a construction schedule yet or a building timetable," he added.

Zoning classifications, established to promote orderly growth, determine how land may be used.

Meijer wants to build a 195,000-square-foot supermarket/general merchandise store on a 32-acre site at the southeast corner of Haggerty and Schoolcraft roads.

THE VACANT parcel was bought last year by a construction company that subsequently was denied permission by the township to build a concrete recycling plant.

(The Observer erroneously reported in the Nov. 16 edition that a concrete mixing plant had been operating at the site and that vehicles are now stored there.)

Some homeowners in the LakePointe subdivisions fought the request to rezone the property from industrial to commercial.

They raised concerns about increased traffic in the area and whether another Meijer is needed with stores already open at Canton Center and Ford roads in Canton and Eight Mile and Haggerty in Northville.

THE PLANNING commission unanimously recommended in favor of the rezoning in September.

The township board, however, put off a decision on the rezoning until after a special election earlier this month prompted by petition initiative. At issue — whether local property taxes should be raised to buy the land for another township park.

Both Iafrate Construction Co., the current owner, and Meijer, which has an option to buy the property, agreed to sell the parcel to the township if the proposal were to pass at the polls. It was defeated resoundingly.

Meijer has no plans to close either the Canton store, the first opened in metro Detroit in 1974, or the Northville store, opened in 1985, when the Plymouth Township store opens, Breslin said.

MOST CUSTOMERS, Meijer projects, will come from the township and city of Plymouth and Livonia.

The Plymouth store will generate up to 400 jobs with an annual payroll of $3.5 million and local property tax revenue of $150,000, according to a report prepared this summer by Meijer's real estate department.

"The proposed development will not generate significant traffic volumes to produce an appreciable impact on the servicing roadway network," the report said.

"The landscape plan provides for generously bermed greenbelts in excess of requirements," it added.

Meijer generally begins advertising employment opportunities six to eight months before a new store is to open, Breslin said.

They're pros in school sports

When Sharon Bouchard tells people she's a trainer, they sometimes think she works with horses. But as a certified athletic trainer, Bouchard helps student athletes avoid injury and to recover as fully and quickly as possible when they do get hurt.

"There's been a misperception that we just tape ankles," said Heinzman, who earned a bachelor's degree in physical education and health at Eastern Michigan University. "We're being utilized now for a lot more that we can do. Our services have become recognized."

It used to be that coaches often advised ailing athletes to play through an injury. They're now realizing that a day off and a whirlpool or ice treatment can mean the difference between playing and being sidelined by injury, Heinzman said.

Having an athletic trainer around when — and after — a player gets hurt relieves coaches of worry and school districts of liability, they added.

ASSUMING THAT responsibility is something both women find rewarding.

"Last year at a pre-season scrimmage in Flint, our starting quarterback broke his ankle in three spots," said Bouchard.

"It was his senior year and he'd worked real hard all summer. He was really depressed. The doctors in Flint told him he'd never play again. They operated on him that afternoon."

Chris Hill, after working in a rehabilitative program with Bouchard, made a strong comeback.

"We got him back on the field for the last three or four games. It was neat for me to work with him, get him through all those stages, and back playing. He and his parents were really grateful," said Bouchard, who holds degrees in health education and exercise physiology from Western Illinois University.

Cheryl Johnson's son, Ryan, a Salem football player, was injured in a game with Livonia Stevenson this fall.

"No one at Stevenson, not even the EMS people who arrived 30 minutes after he was injured, had any idea what to do. They wanted to remove Ryan's helmet, which Sharon insisted they not do," Johnson wrote in a commendation letter to Supt. John Hoben.

"The doctors at St. Joseph Hospital commented on the way in which Ryan was immobilized, therefore preventing any further damage. Sharon was the first to call Saturday morning with specific instructions on care of the injury. Her position, and that of the Canton trainer, are invaluable to the safety and care of our student athletes."

Bouchard hopes to work eventually at the Olympic or professional sports level. Heinzman enjoys orthopedics and is studying to become a physician's assistant.

At present the Plymouth-Canton schools are fortunate to have Bouchard and Heinzman, said Richard Ray, past president of the Michigan Association of Athletic Trainers.

"Very few schools in Michigan hire certified trainers."

Bank asks 2nd look at anti-takeover bill

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A lobbyist for Michigan National Corp. wants a state Senate committee to take another look at a House-passed bill to inhibit corporate takeovers.

J. Michael Busch suggested the bill defined "officers" too broadly when it excluded corporate officials from voting on a takeover attempt.

"It (the bill) should apply to the principal officers. We just don't want it excluding all kinds of officers," he told the Senate Commerce Committee.

"Unlike a normal business corporation, a bank can have a large number of officers. It can have hundreds of officers, depending on how large it is and how many branches it has," said Busch, a former Republican state representative from Saginaw.

IT WAS THE first business objection yet to any of the language contained in House Bill 4907, sponsored by Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford.

Bennett's bill provides that when a "raider" acquires a certain percentage of shares, the so-called "disinterested" shareholders may vote to limit the raider from exercising voting rights.

Company officers, however, would be excluded from the list of "disinterested" shareholders. And since a bank has many "officers," it doesn't want that definition to be too broad, because many employee-shareholders will be disenfranchised.

Michigan National, first bank holding company in the state to place all its banks under a single charter, was target to a takeover attempt by Comerica in 1983.

But Busch said MNC, headquartered in Farmington Hills, is not currently the target of a takeover attempt.

BENNETT'S BILLS sailed easily through the House in September. He expects fairly easy going in the Senate, although Commerce Committee Chairman Dick Posthumus, R-Lowell, intends to scrutinize the bills thoroughly.

"It does not prohibit anyone from acquiring shares. One could acquire 90 percent," said Curt Meister, representing the Michigan Manufacturers Association, supporting the bills.

Rather, the bills are designed to give Michigan-based companies tools to fight "raiders" who might sell off assets and move jobs out of the state.

A Michigan corporation is defined as one whose headquarters or principal business is within the state, and with certain numbers of shareholders who are Michigan residents — "not General Motors," said Meister.

STATE TREASURER Robert Bowman supports the bill now that his powers to recruit shareholder proxies have been clarified in a companion bill. Bowman's office acts as fiduciary for $15 billion in state pension fund investments.

Frequently, Bowman sides with raiders and against management.

"Managers have ignored the owners — those being the shareholders," Bowman said. "We like to remind the managers who owns the company.

"Ninety-nine times we have voted against management, and 98 times we have lost . . . We are against predatory takeovers, but we don't want to slow down takeovers. It's a fine line to walk," the treasurer said.

Competency test

Need exists but method faulty

Can we hold the teacher or the student ultimately responsible for learning, or is the function shared? Answer this question, then tackle minimum competencies.

COMPETENCY testing for high school students is not being met with open arms by the educational community.

A story in the Observer Newspapers in Plymouth and Canton this Monday reported school officials were balking at mandated competency testing of high school students in the state.

Opposition has surfaced from the Michigan Education Association, Michigan Association of School Administrators and Michigan Association of School Boards.

THE PENDING legislation (Senate Bill 350) suggests that:

- School districts be required to give their students a competency test in English, science and math beginning in the 10th grade.
- Students who fail the exam would receive remedial help and unlimited chances to retake the test.
- Students who pass would earn an "endorsed" diploma. Those who graduate without passing the exam would receive a "non-endorsed" diploma if all other requirements are met.

The outcry for student competency testing comes, in part, from frustrations of dealing with an imperfect educational system turning out imperfect students. The fact that the legislation is endorsed by the Michigan Chamber of Commerce is revealing.

Businessmen complained about having to train entry workers in basic skills that should have been acquired in school. The nation is taking a hard look at illiteracy and recognizes too many high school students are graduating with inadequate reading and writing skills.

A lot is expected from our public schools but it still is reasonable to expect minimum competency in basic skills for our graduates. Our graduates have a right to minimum competency; anything beyond that depends on initiative, ambition, individual potential, etc.

BUT AGREEING to the need for minimum competency falls short of resolving how to obtain that goal.

Senate Bill 350 has its shortcomings.

We agree that a single diploma is best for all graduates. Do we really want to confer "endorsed" and "non-endorsed" diplomas depending on whether students pass or fail the minimum competency exam? We think not.

One could argue that either students have acquired minimum skills or they have not. Once determining that, students either graduate or don't graduate. But that's an oversimplification.

THE PROBLEM is whether the students should bear the entire brunt for a failure to acquire minimum competencies. If, like us, you believe the educational system is partially at fault for not delivering minimum skills, than the penalty should not fall solely on students.

Should there be a financial penalty for school districts who are not graduating students with the desired minimum skills? If so, will withholding state financial support from a school district help it produce better equipped students?

What about teacher accountability? Can we hold students responsible for output if teachers are inadequately trained or under-performing? Should teacher accountabilty legislation be in place before we enact minimum competency standards for students?

Not graduating a student does not motivate teachers to perform better or the school district to revamp its curriculum. Withholding diplomas motivates students, not teachers or administrators, and so only can be effective if we believe the system is right and the blame lies with students.

While we support requiring minimum skills before students can graduate, we cannot support SB 350 because it measures only students, penalizes only students and motivates only students. Education is too complex a process to attribute failure to only one segment. More work needs to be done.

Blind justice

Court's camera rule too narrow

The Michigan Supreme Court's rules about cameras and tapes in the courtroom are far too restrictive, and the people are the losers.

SOME OF reporters' and photographers' fears about Michigan's experiment with cameras in the courtroom are turning out to be justified. In fact, the rule is worse than we expected.

A news announcement from the state Supreme Court in August said that TV cameras, press cameras and tape recorders would be allowed in all Michigan courtrooms (except juvenile court) beginning next Feb. 1 — unless a witness objected.

When the fine print was issued, however, the exception was even broader. Any party to the case — defendant or plaintiff — can demand the court absolutely shut down all coverage by cameras and recorders.

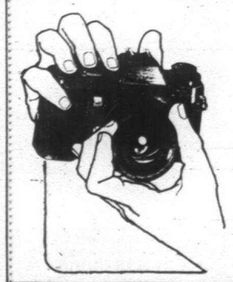
In practice, a defendant in a murder-sodomy case may be the scum of the earth, but he has the Supreme Court's own power to shut down photographic and electronic coverage. That's offensive on its face.

As an experiment, the Supreme Court instituted its new rule early, Oct. 15, in five counties — Oakland, Ingham, Grand Traverse, Marquette and Wexford.

Even this soon, it's plain to see that nearly all defendants are going to shut down the cameras. The experiment, at this point, seems doomed to flop.

THE HIGH COURT needs to start thinking about modifying its rule. We have some constructive suggestions that we hope will be considered seriously:

- Closing arguments of attorneys should be absolutely privileged material for video, film and tape recorder. No defendant, no plaintiff or prosecutor, no judge should have the power to prohibit them.



The reasons are powerful. Attorneys are experienced at oral presentations and should have no qualms about such coverage. The testimony, cross-examination and rebuttal testimony all have been delivered. We are at the summation. The public can learn much from seeing, hearing and reading better quotations of closing arguments.

- Opening arguments should be privileged, too. Again, we are dealing with an advance summary of the case from which the public can learn much.
- The right of individual witnesses to shut down cameras and recorders needs to be re-examined.

The excuse usually given for this rule is that some witnesses want protection from retaliation. It's a false protection. Friends of a gangster can attend a trial and identify a witness with no trouble. We saw a lot of this in the '70s. Shutting down cameras and tapes will protect no one.

Rather, a witness's desire to shut down cameras and tapes should be relayed through an attorney who ought to present the court some solid reason for a shutdown.

- A defendant's right to shut down cameras and tapes — particularly in a criminal case — needs to be limited if not removed. As we pointed out, the rule is being invoked far too freely — all but unanimously.

PUBLIC TRIALS close to home are a basic right in America. It was one reason we fought a war in 1776-81.

Reread the Declaration of Independence and you'll see the Continental Congress complaining about George III "for transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offenses."

These court rules aren't about the media's right to get stories and live action film reports.

They're about the public's right to watch what goes on in courts. To see the defendants. To observe the logic or shysterism of our lawyers. To learn about the wisdom or sophistry of our judges.

The Michigan Supreme Court's rules about cameras and tapes in the courtroom are far too restrictive, and the people are the losers.

The next recession: It will be a mild one

General Motors and Ford, among others, today announce plant closings many months in advance so people and communities can adjust, prepare, retrain.

Tim Richard

THE QUESTION isn't whether a recession is coming. Its signs already are with us.

The question is whether it will be severe or mild. The answer is, very mild.

This column is where you read in 1979 about the forthcoming plunge in housing sales and prices. Realtors got awfully sore when I reported, correctly, that house prices and interest rates were too high and that their slogan, "Now's the time to buy," was dead wrong.

THE BIGGEST change is that today the federal government has a handle on inflation.

Virtually all our post-World War II recessions were preceded by periods of inflation — double-digit in the late '70s. Both businesses and consumers succumbed to the psychology they must "buy now, because the price will be higher tomorrow," the litany of the real estate salespeople.

Eventually you can't buy any more, so you quit buying. If you're in business, you sell from inventory and cancel new orders. Suppliers quit producing and lay off workers. We have a recession.

Well, inflation has been in the 1.8 to 5 percent range for several years now. People under age 35 or 40 can't remember when it has been so low.

THAT BRINGS us to the second big change — business ordering.

Auto companies used to maintain giant warehouses with stockpiles of steel and parts. No more.

Those warehouses tied up construction capital. They ate up plant space. They tied up current capital in big inventories at high interest rates. The warehousing practices have been stopped.

Remember Bob FitzPatrick when he headed the Wayne County Economic Development Corporation? Fitz did enormous amounts of work training auto suppliers about "just in time" delivery systems.

You've heard about layoffs recently, but those layoffs are mild, of relatively short duration and announced well in advance. Clearly, business has evened out some of the gyrations in its ordering patterns.

General Motors and Ford, among others, today announce plant closings many months in advance so people and communities can adjust, prepare, retrain.

Maybe the companies do it out of the goodness of their hearts, and maybe they fear U.S. Rep. Bill Ford, D-Taylor, and state Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, will get on their backs with plant-closing legislation. Whatever the reason, we have far more warnings about plant closings than we used to.

Meanwhile, Michigan is getting national attention, along with Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, for developing state strategies to diversify its economy and meet global challenges. More about that later this week.

ECONOMIST ART Laffer, the guru of business tax cuts, was in town last month to speak to Michigan National Bank types and made an interesting point about our giant balance-of-trade deficit.

There is so much "protectionist" talk going around unions and Congress that importers are succumbing to the "buy now before the restrictions go on" — a variation of the old real estate fear psychology. So importers are building up their inventories for fear Congress will restrict trade in 1988. No "just in time" deliveries in the world market.

If Laffer is correct, we should see some easing of the import glut next year as inventories are sold off. That will be good news for American producers.

Our economic turndown won't be pneumonia — more like a burp or a sniffle.

Student finds, returns cash

To the editor:

At 3 p.m. on Nov. 3 the Wonderland Security office received $48 in cash that was found in the mall. Stephanie Dionyssopoulos, a student at University of Detroit and a resident of Plymouth, had discovered the money lying on the floor inside of the door she entered into the mall to shop.

The money was not inside of any container and was not marked to indicate ownership. She immediately brought the money to the mall security office.

Stephanie explained that she believed that someone who probably really needs the money had lost it and she felt that it was only right to turn it in so that it may be returned to the rightful owner. She was sincerely concerned about seeing that the money may be returned to its owner.

Twenty minutes later a man entered the security office and wanted to report that he had lost $48 in cash in an unknown location within the mall and hoped that by reporting it he may have it returned if someone found it and turned it in.

Needless to say he was very relieved to learn that the full amount of the money had already been found and turned in. The man had been quite distraught about the loss and replacing it would have been a hardship.

It is my opinion that a story with such good news belongs in the news and that such honesty and courage deserves recognition to serve as a real life example that others may admire and follow.

Stephanie certainly has my respect and that of the other members of the security staff working that afternoon when she returned the money. I hope that Stephanie feels good about her actions and realizes that she fully deserves the credit for being a true samaritan by the help she provided Tuesday afternoon.

I wish that there were many more like her and that everyone could hear about their acts as well. Good work Stef!

Climb summit with strength

To the editor:

As the summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Gorbachev draws near, there is one thing that the vast majority of Americans want to keep, and that is a strong national defense. We must never forget that the most important social service a government can do for its citizens is to keep them alive and free.

I believe in a strong national defense which helps defend our security. No one likes to spend money on weapons, but we have to face the world as the world is instead of as we would like to imagine it.

We have to face the fact that there are people out there, headed up by the Soviet Union, that hate the United States of America, and they hate our way of life. These individuals are bent on world domination, and the only thing that stands between them and that goal is the might and power of this country.

I do feel that the Soviets, who've murdered 142 million people since the Bolshevik revolution, respect strength and (that) President Reagan is approaching them from that perspective. I'm grateful for that.

Judging judges

ABA aids high court search through bifocals

Fred DeLano

AFTER SEVERAL FALSE starts, I decided not to overcomplicate the self-imposed assignment for this column: Namely, seek out a local angle to the United States Supreme Court story without falling back on such an old journalistic standby as a man-on-the street opinion poll.

My avenue of approach was stimulated by having read during the hoopla over Judge Douglas Ginsburg that hearings would not begin until the Senate Judiciary Committee received a rating from the American Bar Association's standing committee on the federal judiciary.

Aha, thought I, why not request an interview with the only Michigan attorney who ever has served as chairman of that ABA panel, a committee whose work is little known to the lay public yet which holds a mightly position in evaluating all nominees for the federal bench.

So I did. It resulted in an educational afternoon with the attorney in question, longtime Birmingham resident Frederick G. Buesser Jr., who has offices in Bloomfield Hills and the Renaissance Center. He is a former president of the State Bar of Michigan and the Detroit Bar Association and has represented Michigan in the ABA House of Delegates since 1972. The federal chairmanship that led me his way was 1983-84.

OUR DISCUSSION was academic, dealing not at all with U.S. Appeals Judge Anthony Kennedy.

"Back in the administration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, the president asked the American Bar Association to form an evaluation committee," said Buesser. Since that time all presidents have consulted with the ABA committee on the federal judiciary with regard to appointments of members of the judiciary.

"That consultation, which was originally worked out between the president himself and the president of the ABA, is now carried on pretty much through the Justice Department.

"The process is somewhat different as between the appointment of members of the federal district and appeals courts and appointment of members of the Supreme Court. The principal distinction is this:

"As to the appointment of district judges and court of appeals judges, a name is sent by the president through the Justice Department to the ABA committee, specifically to the chairman. The committee then undertakes an investigation as to the qualifications of that person, that prospective candidate. He's just a candidate at that point, not a nominee.

"The committee conducts an in-depth investigation and reports back to the Justice Department as to its evaluation. If the president then sends that name to the Senate, the committee reports to the Senate Judiciary Committee its recommendation and those recommendations are very succinctly phrased. They only give the rating; they never give the reason.

"THOSE RATINGS that are used for all, except Supreme Court justices, are 'exceptionally well qualified,' 'well qualified,' 'qualified' and 'not qualified.' With reference to the Supreme Court, the ratings are somewhat different. They are 'well qualified,' 'not opposed' and 'not qualified.' "

Buesser said the during his chairmanship the ABA committee had 14 members; now there are 15. They represent the 11 judicial circuits, plus an extra one for California, one for the District of Columbia circuit, one for the new federal circuit, and the chairman.

"When the chairman gets that name in the ordinary course of events he assigns that investigation to the member of the committee who comes from that judicial district. There is a printed brochure of 20 to 25 pages that sets forth the guidelines. At the same time that the Justice Department sends the name to the ABA they also request a report from the FBI."

Buesser added that the ABA committee's basic job is to make a recommendation as to a person's legal ability, character and temperament, with the FBI probing other matters. "Nobody sees our report, and we don't see the FBI report," he added.

"Fred, remember that the ABA committee does not select candidates. All it does it evaluate names that are sent to them.

"One of the things the committee has to understand is that they're not picking the judges; the president has a constitutional right to pick the candidate and all the committee does is evaluate the candidate that is picked. We don't suggest that there are 10 people who are better qualified than this guy; our responsibility is to measure the person from the standpoint of character, legal ability and judicial temperament and rate those qualifications."

I asked how the process differed for Supreme Court justices.

HE ANSWERED, "It is virtually impossible to keep it confidential when our committee begins an investigation pertaining to the Supreme Court because the very process of that investigation requires making 100 or more telephone calls to various people.

"So what happens is that the president makes the nomination, then the committee is asked — not so much by the president, but by the Senate Judiciary Committee — to conduct an investigation."

Further comments made it obvious, however, that while the fact of an investigation becomes public knowledge, secrecy as to the findings is all-important.

"The investigation that this committee does is the most valuable source of information about the candidate," said Buesser. "We preserve inviolate the source of the information that we get. It is absolutely confidential. Because of that, people will tell us things that they won't tell to the FBI or anyone else.

"All the Senate Judiciary Committee gets is the rating. They get one paragraph, that's all, and it sends them up the wall. The reports are only internal memoranda amongst members of the ABA committee. They cannot be subpoenaed and are exempt from the Freedom of Information Act."

Current chairman of that committee is Harold R. Tyler Jr. of New York, who is a former federal judge himself. I gather that right now he's a very busy man.

Museum goes modern

Hugh Gallagher

WE ARE a car culture.

That is made dramatically clear in the new automobile exhibit at Henry Ford Museum. The car is put into context, and its impact on our landscape, lifestyle and commerce is overwhelming.

For years, the auto collection at the museum was presented in a chronological order. The cars were labeled with brief descriptions of each vehicle and the company that produced it. Little or nothing of what the car meant to the world at large and what Henry Ford, in particular, had wrought on an unsuspecting world.

THAT MANNER of exhibition was Ford's preference. He just wanted to put the "things" out on a floor and let the visitors embellish with their own memories. Certainly many of the cars in the collection had a hair-trigger effect on memories or, in the case of stunning Bugatti Royale, drew whispered awe from visitors more accustomed to Fords and Chevys.

But modern museums and modern museum goers require more than things. They have to be shown what those things mean and how they fit in to the broader history of our country. Few things have had a greater impact on our history than the automobile.

THE EXHIBIT is stunning. Ford Museum has stepped into the modern age in museum display with video units running tapes on various aspects of auto history, a movie in a drive-in setting on "Car Culture" and a fine use of color, light and set design.

The museum has searched out buildings and auto memorabilia that tell the story of how the car helped change rural America into urban America. The first thing that catches the eye of the visitor is a giant golden arch from McDonald's. Behind the arch is Lamy's Diner, a wonderful, complete example of this early form of roadside, fast-food accommodation. Graphics tell the story of Howard Johnson's, A&W, Dairy Queen, White Castle and, of course, McDonald's.

A COMPLETE Holiday Inn room is contrasted with a primitive motor court cabin that served travelers on the road west in Michigan. The story of the motel is also the story of personal and business mobility unknown before the automobile.

A woodland setting in the center of the exhibit highlights camping equipment with examples dating back to the early 1900s.

A special feature is a trailer given by Henry Ford to Charles and Anne Morrow Lindbergh and used by them on numerous cross country trips. The trailer exhibit features a signed letter from Lindbergh returning the trailer to the museum.

Other examples include a tent top pop-up and a first-year Volkswagen Westfalia, the first mini-camper.

THE EXHIBIT also features video and poster displays on advertising, radio and television promotion and music.

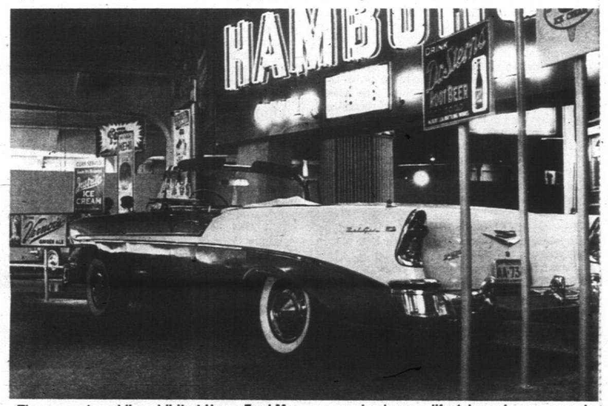
A line, reminiscent of the assembly line, guides visitors past the cars that stand as highlights in auto history from the early Olds and Fords to the luxury cars of the '20s and '30s to the world cars of today.

The video explanations and thematic order is better than the previous arrangement though Ford museum regulars might object that they aren't allowed to get as close to the cars as before.

The auto designers and the auto workers get their due in video presentations and exhibits. Race cars and innovations in engineering and styling are given special display areas.

THOUGH MUCH different than Ford's concept, it is hard to imagine that he would complain. This presentation shows that the automobile that Ford brought to the masses changed the world for better or worse.

It was more than a means of getting from one place to another; it was a machine that forever destroyed one place to create another.



The new automobile exhibit at Henry Ford Museum puts the car into context. And its effect on our landscape, lifestyle and commerce is overwhelming.

Brickley: Bar wanted strict camera rule

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Television crews told a Michigan Supreme Court justice they're angry at the way defendants can shut them down in Oakland Circuit Court.

Justice James Brickley said the courtroom camera experiment is "long overdue" and a step in the right direction.

And Brickley revealed the rules were proposed and written by the Michigan State Bar Association, whose defense-oriented lawyer-members were concerned about guaranteeing a defendant's right to shut down cameras and tape recorders.

The 59-year-old justice spoke last week at a meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, a society of TV, radio and print journalists as well as public relations persons.

"ONE THING prompted it," said Brickley, who reportedly advocated the rules change in the high court's internal deliberations.

"The American Bar Association conducted studies of people's knowledge of courts. They were appalled. There was a real decline.

"Our court was importuned by the Michigan State Bar to adopt the rules," he said. Thus, although the rules were adopted 7-0 by the justices, they actually were drafted by the State Bar.

In rural communities, trial attendance is a form of educational recreation for farmers.

"Today we have increased mobility and increased availabiltiy to news, but less direct contact with courts," Brickley said.

The former FBI agent, Detroit councilman, U.S. attorney for eastern Michigan, two-time lieutenant governor and president of Eastern Michigan University said people meet him and ask what he's doing these days. Brickley was appointed to the high court in 1982, in the final days of Governor Milliken's administration.

THE RULES provide for an experimental program in Oakland and four other counties that began Oct. 15, then a statewide one-year experiment beginning next Feb. 1.

The rules allow any party to a case to require the judge to shut down all TV cameras, tape recordings and still photography of the entire proceeding. In addition, individual witnesses may demand a shutdown during their testimony.

"The argument is that 'I'm an innocent person compelled to appear; I do not want to be a TV star,' " Brickley said.

"Here, someone puts the kibosh on it," said Ned McGrath of WDIV-TV. "In Kentucky, the judge had to decide the request. It (Michigan's rule) puts the power in the wrong hands."

IN PRACTICE, most defendants in criminal cases have shut down cameras and tapes.

In major criminal cases, only one defendant, Stacey Barker, has permitted camera coverage. That was at the request of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

This newspaper also was granted permission to tape and photograph the Circuit Court proceedings in Highland Recreation Defense Foundation vs. Michigan Department of Natrual Resources, an attempt to halt a 15,000-person "campvention." Only the right to record was actually exercised.

Rules against cameras blossomed after disruptions occurred in the federal trial of Johnson administration insider Billy Sol Estes back in the '60s.

"The U.S. Supreme Court said there was a constitutional right to use a pencil, but not cameras," Brickley said.

MODERN EQUIPMENT is less obtrusive, and around the nation, judges who feared disruption and posturing by lawyers began to change their minds about cameras.

"You're too busy to perform," Brickley said, "and the public will not tolerate any buffoonery."

WDIV's McGrath said experience in other states showed "people become oblivious to cameras. And the public overcomes its fear of courts."

Brickley said that lack of coverage actually can be prejudicial to a criminal defendant. Without fresh pictures, a TV station will often repeat and repeat old file film of a handcuffed, disheveled defendant being led by police from jail.

Brickley said only one thing made him pause before supporting the new rules. He quizzed a group of 70 Albion College students about allowing cameras in courtrooms and found only two favored it.

"People don't like to go to court," he said. "It's a very difficult moment in their lives."

Reading to kids: A special gift

By Julie Brown
staff writer

It's important for kids to know that reading is enjoyable, according to Craig Roney.

"You've got to convince them that it's appropriate and interesting now," said Roney, an associate professor of elementary education at Wayne State University.

Telling children that reading will benefit them years down the road in attending college isn't effective, Roney said. They need to know that reading is both fun and worthwhile here and now.

Roney, a Northville resident, spoke Thursday, Nov. 12, at an evening program at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth. The program, sponsored by the Friends of the Library, was held to kick off the library's "Read to Me" program for preschoolers.

READING ALOUD has become less popular in some areas in recent years in homes, schools and even in libraries, according to the speaker. That's a shame, Roney said; there's no medium that can replace reading aloud to children.

Research shows that reading aloud to kids regularly is good for them, the educator and storyteller said. It's also fun.

"It's a marvelous gift to your kids." If parents are enthusiastic about reading to children, they'll convey that enthusiasm to their children.

It's not only mothers who should read to children, he said; dads and other family members can also read to children and enjoy the closeness that reading brings.

Reading aloud to children gives them an advantage when they start school. Learning to read is easier for those children; they also have a love of reading.

If children develop a love of literature, Roney said, they'll learn to read and will enjoy reading.

Roney told a number of children's stories during his presentation and also talked about his own children. He and his wife are the parents of three children, ages 7, 5 and 2.

THE ABILITY to understand something you've read is relative, Roney said. A book on astrophysics, for example, would be difficult for most adults to comprehend; a news magazine would be fairly easy for most to follow.

Children also have a relative ability to understand what's read to them. They don't, however, have the benefit of extensive life experience that adults do.

It takes time for children to understand that in reading they should move from left to right, from the top of the page to the bottom and from the front of the book to the back. In the two-dimensional world of printing, positioning makes all the difference.

Reading aloud to youngsters allows them to visit faraway places such as France without leaving home, Roney said. Children can also hear and become accustomed to different forms of language than that spoken in daily life.

It's important to read children a variety of books, he said. Poetry, folk tales, fantasy books, mysteries and others are good choices. Children can then develop a sense of story; they'll learn what different kinds of stories are all about.

It's a good idea to expose children to some quality literature, he said. There really aren't any special books or special techniques involved in reading to children. The important thing is simply to do it.

"As long as it's done on a regular basis, it has immense benefit to children."

PARENTS OR other adults can occasionally stop in the middle of a story and ask "What's going to happen next?" Doing so helps children use their powers of imagination; it also allows parents and children to talk about the book.

Plymouth Township's Beth Stewart enjoys her work at the Plymouth Historical Museum. She's the museum's chairwoman for programs and exhibits.

History

She enjoys studying the past

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Beth Stewart's work at the Plymouth Historical Museum involves a little bit of just about everything.

Stewart, a Plymouth Township resident, is programs and exhibits chairwoman at the museum. Her work includes planning, designing and setting up exhibits. Planning Plymouth Historical Society programs is also part of the work she shares with others at the museum.

Stewart, 31, was born in West Virginia and moved with her family to Ann Arbor in the late 1960s. Her father went to the University of Michigan to study for his doctorate in medieval history. He's a minister at Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church in Dearborn.

"So I guess that's where I got my interest in history." She's interested in a number of different areas of history, including U.S. history. Medieval historians, however, don't think the U.S. has much of a history.

"Two hundred years is nothing to them," she said with a laugh.

STEWART RECEIVED a bachelor's degree in history from Warren Wilson College in North Carolina. After graduation, she went to work at Greenfield Village.

Stewart was hired to work for a curator on an exhibit covering the history of technology from 1630 to 1930. Most people who work in the museum field have advanced degrees, she said, so a return to school soon followed.

Stewart received a master's degree in historic preservation from Eastern Michigan University. While she was in graduate school, Stewart did her internship work at Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

That work included time spent on the Firestone Farm project. The farm, representing the Ohio birthplace of Harvey Firestone, is set up as a complete working farm of the 1880s. It includes interpreters in costumes who describe the farm's workings.

"It's a great opportunity for some really neat interpretation."

Interpretation is an important aspect of museum work, Stewart said. There's a difference between a display and an exhibit.

"An exhibit goes the next step, tells a story and teaches." An exhibit provides the context needed to make items meaningful.

Working with seniors: It's what she enjoys

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Helen Range has a theory about what caused the stock market's recent nosedive.

Range was recently chosen as this year's "Woman of the Year" by the Plymouth Business and Professional Women. She was also honored as the American Legion's "Citizen of the Year" for 1987.

"It's no wonder the stock market crashed," the Plymouth resident said with a laugh.

Although Range likes to joke about the recent course of events in the stock market, it's unlikely she's responsible for what happened there. She is, however, responsible for getting senior citizens where they want to go.

Range is employed as the van driver for seniors at Plymouth's Tonquish Creek Manor. This is her ninth year on the job.

Range pointed out that her job on the road makes her more visible than some other people are. Others also contribute to the community but aren't as visible in their work, she said.

RANGE TAKES the seniors to various spots throughout Plymouth and Plymouth Township. She makes the rounds to doctor's and dentist's offices, grocery stores and other locations.

"Anywhere they need to go." The Plymouth resident works from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and is a municipal employee.

Range has lived in Plymouth since the early 1940s and is a 1951 graduate of Plymouth High School. She has five daughters, ages 25 to 35, and five grandsons, ages 10 months to 17.

"Quite a variety there," said Range, who is a member of the Plymouth Church of the Nazarene.

The heavy traffic and the responsibilities she faces every day can make Range's job a stressful one. She worries about the van passengers falling, particularly in the wintertime.

"It's a responsibility. It just goes with the job." She's found, however, that the job also has its rewards.

"I enjoy the seniors. I enjoy the people. They're really lovely people."

Range enjoys talking to the seniors about the interesting things they've done in their lives.

"They have done all kinds of things. They truly are very interesting people and warm-hearted. You can learn a lot from them too."

SHE HAS found that, over time, the seniors become like family to her. It's difficult for Range when one of the seniors dies.

"Everyone you lose is a friend who's lost."

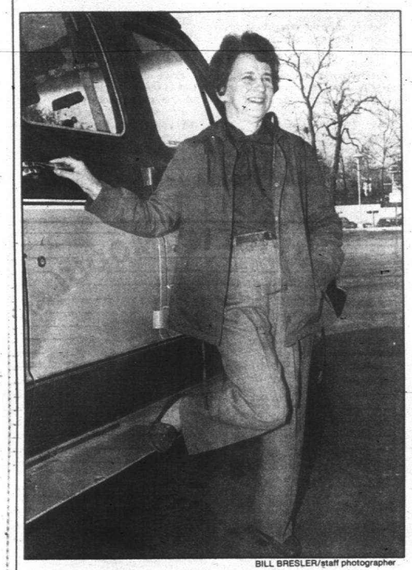
She's been on the job now for a number of years but still hasn't gotten used to that.

"It's just like losing part of your family. You do get attached."

Range's earlier jobs included work in a dentist's office and in a car dealership. She's always preferred jobs that involve working with people.

"I have always enjoyed people.

"Nobody's perfect and you have to overlook their faults. I hope they overlook some of mine."



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Helen Range was chosen as this year's "Woman of the Year" by the Plymouth Business and Professional Women.

Teaching

Every exhibit tells a story

SHE WORKED either part time or full time in various areas at Greenfield Village from 1978 to 1984. Stewart has found that her time there has served her well in her current job.

"They're tops in their field and very well respected in museum circles."

Stewart has found it to be an adjustment moving from a job at Greenfield Village to the Plymouth Historical Museum. She receives a salary for her part-time work at the museum in Plymouth and has a budget to work with.

"Money is always a problem, no matter where you are." Even staff members at large, well-established museums have to keep an eye on the budget.

"We've got a really good setup here."

The museum, owned and operated by the Plymouth Historical Society, is funded through society memberships and private donations. Barbara Saunders is director of the museum.

Stewart would like to see the museum collect more materials representative of the 20th century. As time passes, the 19th century becomes less and less familiar to people, she said.

At Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum, there's been a recent emphasis on more modern history, Stewart said. The new exhibit on the car's impact on U.S. life is an example of that focus.

MUCH OF the focus at Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum is on the history of the common man and woman, Stewart said.

"That's a lot of what we show here." The Plymouth Historical Museum's "Main Street" includes a number of shops and offices representing Plymouth in an earlier era. A train depot is part of the street exhibit.

"Plymouth wouldn't have been here if it wasn't for the railroad."

Stewart would like to have a new exhibit at the museum every two months. Museum exhibits include a number of borrowed items from collectors; she is also interested in looking into traveling exhibits from other museums.

The Plymouth Historical Museum is heavily dependent on a repeat audience, Stewart said, so it's important to have new exhibits regularly.

A planned exhibit for next April will focus on the flapper era of the 1920s. An April Plymouth Historical Society speaker will discuss the flapper's role.

Stewart plans to do a preservation tour, in the spring, of Plymouth's downtown district. That tour, a fund-raising project, would focus on the architecture of local businesses.

"Everyone I talk to has been enthusiastic about participating." She'd also like to look into applying for grant money for museum activities.

Stewart would like to do an oral history project involving older residents of the community. Their taped recollections would become part of the museum's archives.

STEWART AND her husband, John, have two daughters, 2-year-old Sarah and 5-year-old Laura.

"Laura has a lot of fun over here. Everything for her now is an exhibit." Laura collects items at home and announces that she's setting up an exhibit.

Stewart has found her part-time work at the Plymouth Historical Museum is easier to manage than a full-time job would be. Her husband, an attorney with offices in Plymouth, is also busy with work and family responsibilities.

Beth Stewart works a couple of days a week at the museum at 155 S. Main St. in Plymouth. She also does much of her work at home.

"You get ideas in your head of what you want to see."

Stewart enjoys working with staff and volunteer people at the museum. She'd like to see the museum become more involved in the Geer School restoration project. Such involvement would be mutually beneficial, she said.

"This has such a good start," she said of the museum in Plymouth. Some small museums have served as depositories for just about everything and can be boring. That's not a problem in Plymouth, however.

Collecting for a museum calls for some discretion, she added.

"You can't turn into a storage facility for the community. That's hard to do, I realize." It can be difficult to say no to someone offering an item to a museum.

Stewart is interested in having a quilt exhibit at the museum. She's also on the lookout for other exhibit ideas and is interested in hearing suggestions.

"That's the way to keep the interest up."

Books: A gift for kids

Libraries are a good source of children's books, Roney said. Librarians can help parents pick books for kids. Children also have a good eye for books; they're drawn to quality illustrations and will pick good books.

The Dunning-Hough Library's "Read to Me" program is for preschoolers. Parents are asked to read 25 books to their children between Nov. 12 and Dec. 12. The program's theme is "Raising a New Crop of Future Readers."

Forms to list the books read are available at the library, 223 S. Main St. in Plymouth. For each five books read, children will receive an animal stamp to be placed on the form's farm scene; book bags and discount certificates for books are also included in the program. For more information, call 453-0750.

Wayne State University's Dr. Craig Roney believes reading aloud to children helps them learn to enjoy reading and to love literature. Roney, a Northville resident, spoke recently at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth.

Mangiapane-Thomson

Kimberly Ann Thomson of Plymouth and Duane Albert Mangiapane of Dearborn Heights were married Aug. 8 at the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. The Rev. Mark Morningstar performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Charles and Beverly Thomson of Plymouth and Frank and Elizabeth Mangiapane of Dearborn Heights.

The bride is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and of Eastern Michigan University, where she received a bachelor's degree in interior design. She is employed as a designer in climate control with the Ford Motor Co.

Her husband is a graduate of Annapolis High School and of Henry Ford Community College, where he received an associate's degree. He is employed as a designer in climate control with the Ford Motor Co.

Sister of the bride Jill M. Thomson was the maid of honor. The bride's other attendants were sister of the bride Lynn S. Thomson and Nancy J. Fox.

Brother of the bridegroom James Mangiapane was the best man. The bridegroom's other attendants were brother of the bridegroom Frank Mangiapane and John Mattiucci. David Jacokes and Kenneth Pool were the ushers.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white taffeta gown with lace and beads on the bodice. The gown had short, puffy sleeves, a straight neckline and V-back with a full skirt. She wore a hat and carried an all-white bouquet of roses and carnations.

A reception was held at Fairlane Manor.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the newlyweds are making their home in Dearborn Heights.

Zorney-Staebler

Victoria S. Staebler of Ann Arbor and Nicholas Zorney of Ann Arbor were married Oct. 3 at the Zion Lutheran Church in Ann Arbor. The Rev. Charles Akre performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Honke of Dexter, Byron Staebler of Ann Arbor and Ronald and Karen Zorney of Plymouth.

The bride is a graduate of Ann Arbor Huron High School. She is employed at the National Center for Health Promotion in Ann Arbor.

Her husband is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. He is employed at Hutzel Plumbing and Heating in Ann Arbor.

Traci Shaffer was the maid of honor. The bride's other attendants were Traci Winisky, Suzanne Fairchild, Kim Huner and sister of the bridegroom, Mary Zorney.

Pat Hoelscher was the best man. The bridegroom's other attendants were Mark Stremich, Joe Buda, brother of the bride Don Staebler and brother of the bridegroom Pete Zorney.

A reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Plymouth.

Following a wedding trip to Tennessee, the newlyweds are making their home in Ann Arbor.

The Plymouth branch, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, will sell wreaths, boxwood, holly and baked goods. The sale will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, Dec. 4, at Westchester Square in Plymouth.

● LUMINARIES

The Plymouth Symphony League will sell Christmas luminaries this year. Luminaries will be sold from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays, Dec. 5, 12 and 19, at K mart on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth and at the Westchester Mall in Plymouth. Price is $2.50 for 10 bags with candles; additional bags with candles are priced at 25 cents each. Luminaries will be used on Christmas Eve, beginning at 6 p.m. The holiday event is based on the Spanish custom of lighting the way for the Christ child. Paper bags, filled with sand, kitty litter or top soil, will hold candles. Bags will be placed approximately 10 feet apart along the curbs. For more information, call chairwomen Mary O'Connell, 459-1999, or Marcia Barker, 455-3448.

● NATURE WALK

Free year-round nature walks are offered at the University of Michigan Matthaei Botanical Gardens. Walks are held on the first Sunday of each month. The 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6, walk will be "Winter Buds and Berries." Trained guides will meet with visitors on the front steps of the conservatory at the gardens. Walks last approximately 1½ hours; boots are recommended. The gardens are at 1800 N. Dixboro Road, one mile south of the Plymouth Road-Dixboro Road intersection. For more information, call Margaret Vergith, program coordinator, 763-7060.

Kivell-Mapes

Cynthia A. Mapes of Northville and Glenn Mitchell Kivell of South Lyon were married Sept. 11 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Northville. The Rev. Thomas Lubeck performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ted Mapes of Northville and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kivell of Plymouth.

The bride is a graduate of Northville High School and of Schoolcraft College. She is employed at Michigan Tractor in Novi.

Her husband is a graduate of Livonia Franklin High School. He attended Western Michigan University and is a graduate of Schoolcraft College.

Sister of the bride Cathleen Veit was the matron of honor. The bride's other attendants were Janise Mapes and Amy Veit.

James LaFevere was the best man. The ushers were Tom Coseo, Bill Singer and brother of the bride Gary Mapes.

For her wedding, the bride wore a tea-length ivory dress with lace over satin. She wore a fingertip-length veil with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet with ivy, baby's breath, roses and miniature carnations.

A reception was held at Fellows Creek Golf Club in Canton.

Following a wedding trip to northern Michigan, the newlyweds are making their home in South Lyon.

Local woman in pageant

Pre-pageant activities are underway for the 1988 Miss Michigan USA Pageant.

Among the contestants in this year's competition is Wendy Kulczycki of Plymouth. Kulczycki, 18, is a student at Eastern Michigan University.

Should she be crowned Miss Michigan USA for 1988, the Plymouth resident will represent Michigan in the 1988 Miss USA Pageant, to be telecast live on CBS March 1.

The Miss Michigan USA Pageant will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 29, at the Novi Hilton. The show will be hosted by Debbie Grant, Miss World USA 1978, and by Sam Kirkland, a Detroit model/actor. Elizabeth Puleo, Miss Michigan USA 1987, will be on hand to crown her successor.

Tickets for the pageant may be obtained by calling pageant headquarters, 851-2315.

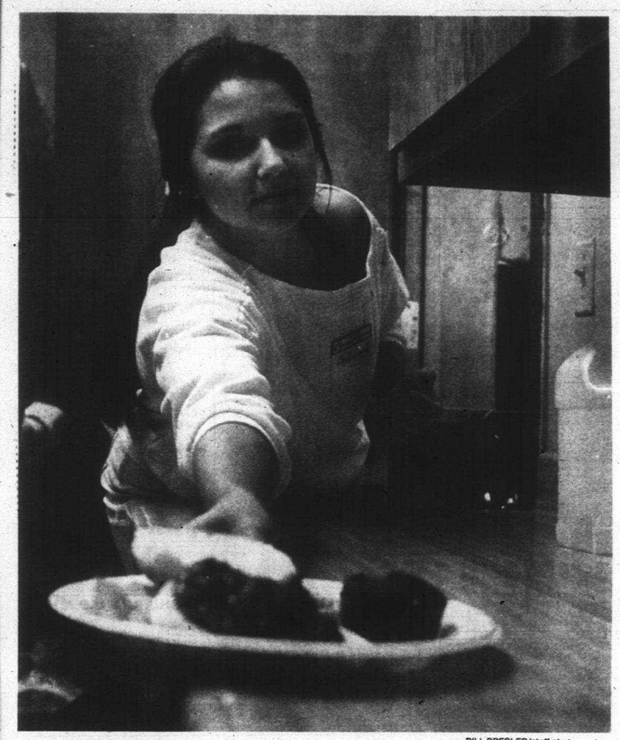
Helping the hungry

Plymouth church operates inner-city soup kitchen



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Toni Goud of Plymouth serves a plate of food at a soup kitchen First United Methodist Church of Plymouth operates at Cass Community United Methodist Church in Detroit. Goud coordinates soup kitchen activities for the Plymouth church.

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

THE LINE stretched along the outside of the church. It was a sunny day, but the rays were having a difficult time finding those in shadows of the building.

Some were elderly, and others were in their teens and 20s.

For the number of people, there was surprisingly very little chatter. The traffic from Cass Avenue, in the heart of the inner city, provided the only noise.

All of it seemed a million miles from the suburbs. But in reality, it was only 20 miles from Plymouth.

INSIDE THOSE who made the journey from First United Methodist Church of Plymouth were furiously trying to keep up with serving food to the multitude of hungry people.

For many in line, it was the only warm meal they would eat all day.

An older gentleman in his 60s came up to the window where Toni Goud of Plymouth was serving sloppy joes, potato chips, coleslaw and cupcakes on paper plates. She told him there would be a slight delay while they were making up some more plates.

"That's OK," he said with a warm smile. "Take your time. I'm very thankful for the food."

Five times a year, people from Plymouth First United Methodist operate a soup kitchen for the needy. They load up Ted Kuhns' motor home and travel to either Baldwin Methodist Church in Pontiac or Cass Community United Methodist Church in Detroit.

THIS PARTICULAR DAY it was Cass Community Church, where 13 volunteers served more than 300 people in an hour.

"We keep serving until everything is gone," said Kuhns, who is the chairman for the church's Outreach Committee.

And by the time they left, all the food was gone. When the sloppy joe mix ran out, volunteers were left with potato chips and cupcakes to give to those in line.

For some volunteers, it was the first time they worked at the soup kitchen. Needless to say, it was an eye-opening experience.

"We don't realize how there is a need for things like this, a soup kitchen for the needy," said George Thompson of Plymouth. "People tend to put it in the back of their minds."

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Volunteers Bill Von Glahn, Carole Sweet and Jerry Sweet work furiously as the church group served food to more than 300 people in an hour.

SAID BLANCHE Fernald of Plymouth: "Today has made me thankful for what I have. It was a real nice experience."

The spirit of those who were in line is what amazed Toni Goud, who was with her husband, Bob.

"People who you'd figured that would be caught up with their own day-to-day survival are concerned about you and ask you how you're doing and offer their prayers," said Goud, who coordinates the Outreach Committee's soup kitchen activities.

The committee also works with the Salvation Army, Straight Inc. (a drug abuse counseling organization), First Step, along with various missionary programs at the church. They've been involved with the soup kitchen program since 1982.

Nine people prepared the sloppy joes and coleslaw at the church the day before. This time out, the Kroger supermarket on Sheldon and Ford roads provided the buns, and the McDonald's on Ann Arbor Road contributed orange juice.

PERSONAL GIFTS came from Bev McCasaland of Plymouth, who gave apples, and Jimmy Whitley of Detroit, who donated his time by playing the piano for some dinner music.

"I come in every Saturday," said Whitley, who played some contemporary jazz numbers on the old church piano. "The idea is to keep the people entertained and relaxed."

The Rev. Edwin Rowe, pastor at Cass Community, said various groups from the suburbs work the soup kitchens every Saturday.

Suburban involvement in the hot lunch program came about when Cass Covenant ran out of money for the soup kitchen. Rowe sent a letter to Methodist churches in the area, seeking help.

Rowe said the response has been tremendous. It's a spiritual along with a learning experience for those churches who volunteer.

"Christianity cannot be practiced only through preaching and conversation," Rowe said. "They begin to understand what those words really mean.

"A lot of people in the subs don't think people are going hungry anymore," he added. "They think that the problem has been taken care of."

Goud said she would like to see more of a variety of volunteers, especially teenagers.

"It would be good for them to see how sociable and friendly these people are . . . It would give them a broader view of the situation other than the stereotypes they see on television," she said.

Cass Community United Methodist Church is need of food for meal programs during the holidays. Those interested in contributing food can call the church office at 833-7730.

● ECUMENICAL SERVICE

An ecumenical Thanksgiving service will take place at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 25, at Our Lady of Loretto, Six Mile and Beech Daly roads, Redford. A combined choir from four churches, Our Lady of Loretto Catholic, Good Shepherd Lutheran, Village Presbyterian and St. Martin Episcopal will be joined by the Youth, Junior and Handbell Choirs of Our Lady of Loretto to provide special music.

A collection will be taken for the area poor and needy at the service. Proceeds will benefit The Redford F.I.S.H. Organization, an inter-faith help group.

The service has taken place since 1966. Two people, the Rev. Robert Ryan, a Catholic priest, and the Rev. James Crawford, a Presbyterian minister, started the service to bring about Christian unity.

● LECTURE SERIES

Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church USA will be hosting a Sunday evening lecture series through November on societal issues. At 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 22, "Alcohol and Drugs: Use and Misuse" will be presented by Kathy Kallio from Henry Ford Hospital's Maplegrove Community Education Program. The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call 422-0494.

● DINNER

Rosedale Gardens United Presbyterian Church, 9601 Hubbard, Livonia, will host a Madrigal Dinner at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Dec. 4-5. Cost is $15. Seating is limited, so it's suggested that reservations by made early. Reservations can be made by calling 422-0494.

● THANKSGIVING PRAISE

The Faith Bible Church, 34541 Five Mile, Livonia, will have a Thanksgiving Praise Service starting with a pot-luck meal at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 24. The service will be followed by a special musical presentation by the Sanders family. For more information, call 464-7990.

● MOVIE

"Cry From the Mountain," a movie featuring the Rev. Billy Graham, will be shown at 6 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 29, at Calvary Baptist Church, 43065 Joy, between Main Street and Lilley roads. The film is open to the public. A nursery will be provided.

● The film will also be shown at 6 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 22, at Covenant Community Church, 25800 Student St., one block north of Fenkell at Beech Daly, Redford.

● COLLECTION

Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia is again sponsoring its annual Deacon Harvest Home ministry. Non-perishable food and money are being collected to be distributed to the needy during the holidays. A table is set up in the narthex to take donations on Sundays and Wednesday evenings. For more information, call the church at 422-1154.

● FALL SERVICES

Late fall services will be held at the Detroit Laestadian Congregation, 290 Fairground, Plymouth, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 21, and 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 22. Raimo Savolainen of Toronto will be the guest speaker. The services will be in both Finnish and English languages.

● SEMINAR

Women for Jesus will present the Rev. Margie Grotto Fleurant Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 19-21, at the Corner Lighthouse, Dix and Outer Drive, Melvindale. Times are 7 p.m. Thursday, 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Friday and 7 p.m. Saturday. Saturday's gathering will be a dinner meeting. Cost for the dinner is $7.50. For more information, call 538-0937.

● SEMINAR

The First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, 701 Church, is sponsoring a four-week adult seminar, "Growing as a Christian Family in 1987," at 6 p.m. Sundays, through Dec. 13.

The seminar leader will be Dr. William Greenman, who is a psychologist in private practice in Livonia. Greenman will bring to each session his wealth of experience of over 30 years of counseling adolescents and their families.

Seminars will be "Family Stress," Nov. 22, and "Dealing with Social Pressure," Dec. 13. Babysitting will be provided. Donation is $2.

Accepting our handicaps can help us overcome them

Rabbi Irwin Groner

Rabbi Irwin Groner is with Congregation Shaarey Zedek in Southfield.

SOMERSET MAUGHAM, an outstanding novelist of a generation ago, indicated in his autobiography that his stammering was one main reason why he started writing.

A physical defect, he pointed out, can be of the utmost value to anyone, especially one who is striving in the arts. It may increase the depth and range of his insight. In his struggle to overcome the handicap, the artist becomes something he otherwise might not have been.

To prove his point, Maugham cited the testimony of other lives and made a convincing case.

The poet Byron had a clubfoot, novelist Dostoevsky suffered from fits of epilepsy, scientist Pasteur was crippled by a paralytic stroke.

Beethoven, the genius of music, became deaf. Milton, a supreme poet, was blind. Moses, the highest of the prophets, was slow of speech.

SO RUNS THE record of biography — much of the greatest in the world is the product of handicapped people.

How did they do it? Each of us needs to learn their techniques because all of us are handicapped in some way.

Creative personalities have shown us how great and useful life can be despite apparent limitations. What counts is the spirit in which we live.

Rare indeed is the person who does not feel a sense of inadequacy, failure of deficiency in some aspect of ability or function. To sink into self-pity is not the answer. It simply means deterioration and barrenness.

We must accept ourselves, our powers and our limits, not grudgingly, but graciously.

SINCE WE ALL have difficulty in accepting the given and are reluctant to face facts, we engage in hypothetical thinking: If things were a little different . . . if my nose were not so . . . if my parents were not so poor . . . if I had chosen a different profession or vocation . . . if I had seized the right investment opportunities . . . if I had not made the mistake of marrying Harry (or Gwendolyn).

How much better the whole prospect would have been if some of the "details" were different.

Maturity involves acceptance. Each person enters into life with handicaps and imperfections.

A central task each of us faces in the formation of any identity is acceptance of those defects and limitations that are our destiny.

Self-acceptance is a prelude to responsibility and creative change.

It is impossible to delete those deformities and weaknesses that we are all tempted to despise, without completely altering the person. If we do not like our lot in life, there are many others like us.

WE MUST BEWARE of the subtle ways in which we cripple ourselves by rejecting the given terms in which life is granted to us.

Furthermore, there are usually some parts of any particular given world which can be changed or mastered by our will. There is almost always an area of freedom available to everyone.

Those creative personalities indicated above — the ones who have suffered from obvious handicaps but succeeded in the arts — have shown us how great and useful life can be despite apparent limitations. What counts is the spirit in which we live — our courage, determination and imagination, our mastery of ourselves and our sympathy for the plight of others.

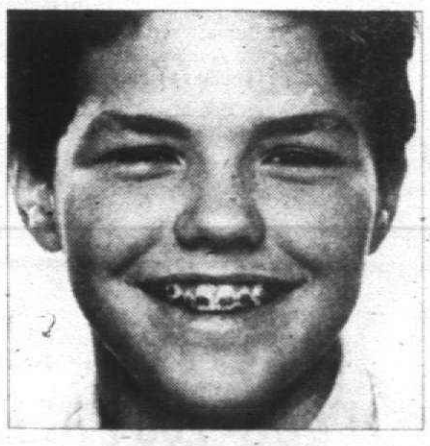
Smile Now. Pay Later.



It's The Orthodontic Treatment Center's Second Annual Smile Now, Pay Later And Save $1000 Plan.

If you don't waste any time getting braces for your child's teeth, you can take your time paying for them at the Orthodontic Treatment Centers.

It's quite simple, starting right now, and through the entire month of January, 1988, our complete orthodontic care program, consultation, braces, retainers, the works, is available to you with no money down, and no payments until March 1st, 1988.

Now, doesn't that sort of coincide with the Holiday season when you have earmarked your hard-earned dollars for a lot of other things? But, that's the Orthodontic Treatment Centers for you. We're not just professional and reliable orthodontists. We want the whole world to have a beautiful smile. Without paying through the nose.

Time to modify investment strategies

By Alan Ferrara and Daniel Boyce special writers

"A penny saved is a penny earned" as the old saying goes. Some people take this idea to heart with highly satisfying results. This month's financial profile focuses on Barbara and John Evans, a Farmington couple who are nearing retirement and who will be reaping the benefits of all the pennies saved during their working years.

John writes:

"I believe my circumstances are somewhat different than your typical respondent. For better or worse, I have already accumulated my kitty — I expect to retire on April 1, 1988. When I was in the midst of my saving period, which began a little over 20 years ago, financial planners were, at least to me, unheard of. Had I had the advantage of such services my current net worth might possibly be considerably greater."

Perhaps. But by following the well-known advice to "pay yourself first" and prioritizing their remaining income over the years, the Evanses have done very well.

John, 62, works in an auto company personnel department and has a salary of $53,000; Barb, 58, is a part-time sales clerk with an income of $7,500. They live comfortably, though not lavishly, in a house that is paid off. They have no outstanding debts. Their philosophy on consumer purchases has always been to make purchases only when the money is available in the bank. Credit card balances are paid in full each month.

Given this conservative, but successful, outlook, it is perhaps surprising that almost half of their accumulated assets are in the stock market. By taking some risk in the investment area over the last several years, they have seen substantial growth in their assets, even after the recent market drop. Our advisers suggest that they may want to modify this strategy by becoming somewhat more conservative as they move into retirement.

JOHN HAS a generous pension plan at GM, his employer of 38 years. His desired retirement income is $5,000 a month, of which the GM pension will provide $3,000. Social Security should add another $1,000 per month in income, leaving them with only $1,000 needed from investments. An inflation-adjusted calculation indicates that they should be able to withdraw more than $2,500 per month from investments without depleting the principal over their lifetimes. They are sitting pretty.

They state:

"Our immediate concerns are: (1) How to invest the money and securities in the company savings plan ($255,000) which I will receive upon retirement in April 1988, and (2) what changes should be made in my present portfolio to maximize earnings to supplement the pension I will receive from GM."

Our advisers address the first issue regarding the lump-sum distribution from his company savings plan. Certified financial planner Dan Boyce of the Center for Financial Planning in Birmingham explains that there are three viable options:

- He can roll over the entire taxable portion of the distribution into an IRA.
- He can withdraw the money and pay a favorable 10-year special averaging tax.
- He can leave the money with the company and withdraw it any time prior to age 65.

In an analysis of the rollover vs. the 10-year averaging, Boyce concludes that the IRA rollover is the better option. "The faster growth of assets due to the tax deferral in an IRA more than offsets the higher tax due upon withdrawal. The only exception would be if he needed a large portion of the distribution for an immediate major purchase. Next April, he should weigh the advantages of the IRA rollover with those of leaving it at GM."

Certified financial planner Steven J. Winkler of the Capital Consulting Group in Southfield covers the advantages of leaving the money at GM for now. "Retired employees have the opportunity to leave assets in their savings plan until age 65 while retaining the monthly right to transfer between investment options or making a complete withdrawal. Since the guaranteed income option is a conservative and appropriate product for a retiree, you can have your cake and eat it too. You're locked into a currently competitive interest rate with the right to remove your monies without penalty when your average rate falls below other alternatives."

THE EVANSES' other major question deals with changing their investment strategy and restructuring their portfolio. Both financial planners stress the need to move toward a more conservative position. Winkler advises, "Diversify and stay conservative! Your standard of living is well within your means under virtually any assumption for future inflation. Given your projected expenses and your current savings, there is only one way that you will not achieve your fiancial objectives and that is by being overly aggressive.

"Preservation of capital becomes far more important than growth of capital. Limit stock exposure to 25 percent of net worth with no more than 5 percent in the stock of any one company. Concentrate on stocks which will react favorably to inflation. In the area of fixed income securities, I would prefer short-term vehicles to long-term bonds.

"I have yet to see a client get into trouble being too conservative. I define a conservative portfolio as one which will not measurably change your lifestyle under any economic scenario."

Boyce concurs. "When does 'more' become 'enough?' " he asks. "Far too much of his portfolio is in company stock, and he doesn't need to take on additional risk. He should transfer assets in his 401(k) plan from stock into the guaranteed income option." Boyce also stresses the need to maintain liquidity. "I think the time is over for major commitments to limited partnerships and other non-accessible investments."

OTHER ISSUES should also be addressed by the Evanses. Though their basic health and property insurance packages are sound, they are lacking coverage in two major areas. First, in the personal liability area, their homeowners coverage stops at $300,000. "They should purchase an umbrella liability rider to the policy which would provide another $1 million in coverage," suggests Boyce.

In the health area, they should consider buying a long-term care policy in case either one needs to go into an assisted living or custodial care arrangement. "There are now excellent policies available," explains Boyce, "which cover the cost of extended care facilities. Generally, the cost of long-term care is not covered by hospitalization policies or Medicare. These costs can be devastating to even a well-designed financial plan. I recommend purchasing the policies prior to age 65 since premiums rise rapidly after that age. Expect to pay $400-$500 per year for such a policy."

Their estate plan can also use some attention. Although they have simple wills, a more thorough estate plan would include a trust arrangement. Attorney Alan Ferrara, a partner in the Southfield firm of Couzens, Lansky & Roeder, explains: "Their combined estate, including $100,000 in insurance proceeds, is approximately $750,000. No estate taxes would be due on the first death since property passing to a surviving spouse is not subject to estate taxes. However, on the second death, over $55,000 in estate taxes would be levied.

"This tax can be completely avoided under present law through proper estate planning. In brief, revocable living trusts are established in a manner which allow the couple to shield up to $1.2 million from estate taxes." But he warns that they must act before one of them dies. "After that occurrence, only half of that figure, or $600,000, can be shielded from estate taxes."

The Evanses can look forward to a comfortable, secure retirement because they live within their means and started a savings plan years ago. Our advisers urge them to avoid unnecessary risks while enjoying the fruits of their labors. "Enjoy them to the fullest," they urge, "you have richly earned them."

The Bottom Line

Financial Strengths

- Considerable savings and investment accumulation
- Excellent benefits package at work, including retirement pension
- No debt
- Adequate health, life, auto, and homeowners insurance
- Up-to-date wills

Financial Weaknesses

- Unbalanced portfolio - too much stock generally and too much in GM in particular
- Risk exposure in investments is unnecessarily high
- Revocable living trust needed in estate planning
- No umbrella liability policy
- Need to purchase a long-term care insurance policy

Pharmacists join alcohol, drug awareness campaign

It's evening. You've had a drink and now you wonder if the combination of the drink and the new medication might be why you feel knocked out.

You don't want to bother your doctor, and you don't see this as a reason for a trip to the emergency room.

The solution is as close as the corner drugstore. Pharmacists routinely respond to such drug-related questions, according to Hadar Granader, a member of the board of directors of Sav-Mor Drugstores.

Granader helped initiate a joint project through which the 51-store Sav-Mor chain and Henry Ford Hospital's Maplegrove Chemical Dependency Treatment Centers will bring drug and alcohol information to dozens of communities in southeastern Michigan.

The project began Nov. 9 when the drugstores launched a five-week radio public service campaign airing on several local stations.

Greg Kuehnle, vice president of the Toledo-based advertising agency that put together the campaign, said he hopes it will reach families who may be concerned about a family members misuse of prescription drugs or alcohol in conjunction with drugs.

Renee Gerger of Southfield, Maplegrove Intervention Specialist, discusses the pharmacist's role in combatting drug abuse with the center's administrative director, Thomas Groth of Livonia, and Sav-More pharmacists Skip Siegel (far left) and Hadar Granader (far right).

"PEOPLE MAY feel more comfortable talking to their pharmacist rather than the police if they think there is a drug dependency," he said. "The druggist won't offer cures, but he can suggest places to go to for help."

The 60 second spots will continue to air through mid December.

"Pharmacists know how the drugs

Drug abuse campaign begins

work. What they have learned already through this project is what addiction to drugs does — not only to the individual who uses but to the family of that individual," said Granader.

"The project will provide information to store customers about drug and alcohol misuse, and it will help store personnel know better how to guide customers to help they may need," said Thomas Groth of Livonia, administrative director for the Maplegrove Centers.

Included in the project will be point of purchase displays and free information in all stores.

Easy-to-read information will be included in Sav-Mor monthly circulars, which reach 600,000 residences — including those in the tri-county metropolitan area, and some in Ann Arbor, Flint, Fraser, Grand Blanc, Tecumseh and Ypsilanti.

Topics may include: signs and symptoms of dependency on chemicals, how to make the holiday season easier for the person recovering from dependency, teens and drugs, why we call alcoholism a disease, intervention, and cocaine.

"We've reached more than 200,000 people in the metropolitan area since 1980 through our formal community education program," said Groth.

"But that's a drop in the bucket compared to the number of people who need to receive information from a trusted source. We are especially pleased with the eagerness of Sav-Mor personnel to learn more about the disease of chemical dependency."

AN INTRODUCTION to the drug and alcohol awareness campaign was a five-hour seminar at Maplegrove attended by close to 100 Sav-Mor pharmacists and pharmacy technicians. Given by Maplegrove professional staff members, it provided information on chemical dependency as a disease, how it affects the family, how intervention can convince the chemically dependent person to accept help, and how to access the different kinds of help available. Participants received continuing education credit for the seminar through the Michigan Pharmacists Association.

"We all got a lot out of the seminar," said Neil Bluestone, pharmacist at Maple Village 4 in Farmington. "I've only been here six months. Before that I worked at my family-owned business which sold to Arbor Drugs. So I'm fairly new at this."

Renee Gerger, a social worker from Southfield and seminar speaker, told the assembly that neighborhood pharmacists have the chance to be almost a social worker.

"You can do a lot of good by listening. You may be hearing problems and complaints, but you may not know that the cause may be a dependency on a chemical," said Gerger, who is married to a pharmacist.

Discussing chemical dependency and the family, Gerger pointed out that one child who has grown up with a chemically dependent parent may deal with the situation by becoming a hero — being so successful that others think his or her home is perfect.

"It could be the kid in your store who is your best worker," she said.

Sav-Mor is a chain of independent drugstores linked since 1958. It has grown from 31 to 51 stores in the past two years.

In addition to the alcohol and drug awareness project, the chain will cosponsor the New Year's Eve "lifer-ide" program this year with WOMC radio and Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Henry Ford Hospital's West Bloomfield-based Maplegrove Centers have provided treatment for more than 5,000 teens and adults dependent on chemicals since 1981. Its community education program, which has a corps of more than 300 trained volunteers, provides speakers for groups ranging from kindergarten to senior citizens.

Some of the participating drug stores include Bel-Aire Drugs, Maple Village 3 and Maple Village 4, and Warren Prescriptions in Farmington; Andrews Pharmacy in Garden City; Fairlane Royal in Livonia; Drug Mart Avon in Rochester; and Checker Drugs, Maple Village 6 and Westland Maple in Westland.

Ford just can't kill Mustang

By Dan McCosh
special writer

The scramble to claim credit for the Mustang wasn't much of a contest in 1962, although the guy who ended up on the the cover of Time magazine as its father found out 20 years later maybe you ought to let your boss take credit for a good thing.

Today finding someone to claim credit for the decision to kill the Mustang is as easy as, say, finding the guy who thought the Edsel would sell if you just put a distinctive grille on the car.

That Ford was — at least for a time — serious about dropping the car that is one of just a handful in the industry selling better today than it did a year ago, is reluctantly confirmed by those who granted it a reprieve.

THE THWARTED plot could have ended the longest-running sales success story in the United States. It was an offshoot of a deal between Mazda Motor Corp., Ford's Japanese affiliate, and Ford's domestic automotive operations. Mazda was to have built a front-wheel drive sporty car in a plant near Ford's Rouge plant, and a restyled version of the car was expected to replace the Mustang in Ford dealerships.

Ford still plans to introduce the Mazda-designed-and-built car, now called the Probe, early next year. But Ford scrapped plans to use it as a direct replacement for the Mustang after a letter-writing storm generated by Mustang enthusiasts and continuing strong sales made the original plan more or less idiotic.

PART OF THIS was a name game anyway. Today's Mustang isn't exactly the same car that created the sensation it did some 25 years ago. In fact, the Mustang was nothing but a spiffed-up Pinto for five years, and a lots of buyers didn't even notice.

But the "real" Mustang, the cheap source of V-8-powered kicks that spawned the Mustang cult following and the awesome letter-writing campaign, sticks to the same theme that has worked since its beginning: two bucket seats in a sporty two-door, a relatively large engine and a relatively low price.

The formula has been so simple and so effective it has defied most efforts to change it. In the past few years, Ford engineers made some subtle refinements that are important to enthusiasts. But mainly the Mustang stays a Mustang.

WHICH MEANS that Ford is now facing a problem shared by only a handful of auto companies: The Car That Wouldn't Die.

Ford went through this once before with the Model T. Another company that faced the same problem was Volkswagen, whose Beetle finally went out of production in South America only a couple of years ago. Citroen has been making the 2CV for so long that old cars have been rigged with jib and mainsail and are being sailed on the beaches of southern France.

Cars that live too long wear out their factories, put advertising agencies out of business and make a mockery out of the whole automobile business.

The Mazda-built Probe is part of a strategy at Ford to build or develop a significant portion of its cars overseas. The idea is to buy foreign cars and sell them through domestic dealerships, thus taking advantage of lower costs or "foreign technology" to compete with the flood of imports that has decimated the domestic auto industry for the past decade.

THE MAIN REASON that the strategy is risky is that is has been tried a dozen times before and hasn't worked yet. Ford was the most successful of the American importers when it brought in the Fiesta from West Germany during the mid-1970s. But it will have to double peak Fiesta sales with 180,000 Probes annually to make its "new" strategy work.

Not that it's impossible, or that the Probe is a bad idea or a bad car; it's just that it's never been done before by anyone.

To make room for 180,000 Probes in its marketing strategy, Ford already is planning to cut production of Mustang at the Rouge plant — which ought to make them scarce.

So can they raise the price? In the long run, maybe that's what it will take to make the folks stop buying them.

Trinity House Theatre picks play 'God's Favorite'

By Victoria Diaz
special writer

EVERYBODY KNOWS the Biblical story of the beleaguered, put-upon Job.

The trials and tribulations of one of God's most faithful followers don't seem exactly the stuff of comedy. But, back in 1974, playwright Neil Simon sat down and, using Job's story as his inspiration, put together a contemporary comedy based on precisely that. He called it "God's Favorite."

Livonia's Trinity House Theatre will present Simon's play, beginning Friday. Performances continue through Saturday, Dec. 12. For ticket information, call 464-6302.

"We try to pick plays that provoke people to think," says publicist Mary Lewis, when asked why Trinity House had chosen to do "God's Favorite," one of Simon's rarely done, lesser-known plays. "It's pretty much the way we choose all the plays we do. And we also liked the way the play was crafted.

"We want to produce plays with the added dimension of portraying some aspect of Christian life that the general public can relate to. We're a Christian ministry, and we try to answer questions from a Christian perspective, without preaching."

The group consists of about 50 members. It was founded in 1980 at Livonia's Trinity Baptist Church on Middlebelt, when then-youth pastor Paul Patton co-wrote a play with wife Beth, in which interested church members could perform or work behind the scenes.

Lewis says about half the current members are not affiliated with Trinity Baptist, however. "Some aren't affiliated with any church," she adds. "We're here to express Christianity through the dramatic arts, and anyone is welcome to join the group."

THE PHILOSOPHY of alternative Christian theater upon which Trinity House is based was strongly influenced by Paul Patton, says Lewis. Patton, in turn, says he's been influenced by Christian writers and thinkers like British philosopher and author John Peck and actor Nigel Goodwin.

"Real artists are driven away (by the) predictability of Christian plays that provide a neat ending," says Patton. "(A play shouldn't) manipulate an audience or tell them what to think. Art should not be used to pound truths into people's minds."

"God's Favorite" will feature Greg Presley in the role of Joe Benjamin, Simon's modern-day Job, who faces poverty, plague, pestilence and the heartbreak of psoriasis in the course of the play. (The role was originated on Broadway by actor Vincent Gardenia.)

Cast as his materialistic wife Rose, who has a tendency to go out for doughnuts when the going gets tough, is Beth Patton. Bob Zahara is Joe's unbelieving son, Ben; Gayle Glowacki and Gary Brda play the Benjamin twins (with, according to the script, an IQ of 160 between them). Rounding out the supporting cast are Laura Niesen, Jeff Hedeen and Sarah Hope.

SIMON IS the creator of more than a dozen mega hits on Broadway including "The Odd Couple," "Plaza Suite" and "Barefoot in the Park." He has said that "God's Favorite" is probably his most personal work. It was the first play Simon created after the death of his first wife, who died at 39, of cancer, and it served as a kind of therapy for Simon as he worked his way through a personal crisis of faith.

"I was in the middle of the ocean, looking for a log to hang onto," Simon has said of the experience, "and 'God's Favorite' was the log that I grabbed."

The question in 'God's Favorite' is whether or not man will continue to serve God, even when it appears that serving God does not pay," says featured actress Sarah Hope. "It's a play for anybody who has ever felt pain and wondered why. It's also a message of hope."

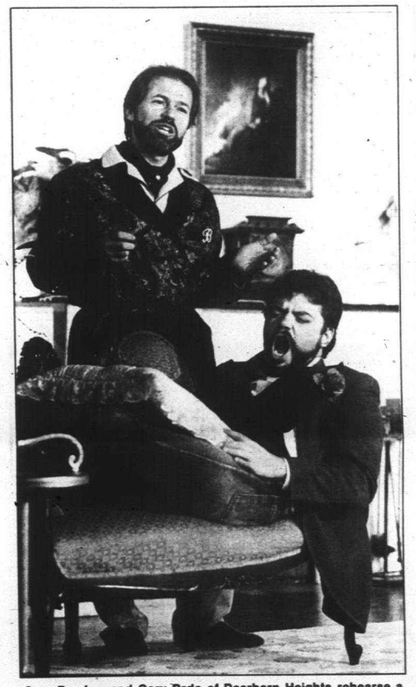
Lewis says one of the most significant problems faced by the group in this production of "God's Favorite" had to do with sets and props.

"It is probably one of the most elaborate sets we've ever had," she says. "And, in the middle of the show, you have to create a shambles because the mansion burns."

AFTER SOME garbage-picking to ferret out pieces of old scrap lumber, props manager Laura Nieson and her crew created the aftermath of the conflagration by artfully spray-painting the wood with flat black paint.

But with finances to rival Job's poverty, how to create the illusion of the sumptuous Benjamin mansion on the tiny stage of the Trinity House auditorium (once a Quaker meeting house)? A back wall of the stage was removed to "open up" the set, and two stained-glass windows behind the wall were incorporated into the set itself, adding an eye-catching accent to the surroundings of the contemporary Biblical story.

Art deco and Victorian pieces will be used to suggest the rich lifestyle of the Benjamins when the play opens, along with specially constructed French doors and balcony, put together by the props department during the last weeks of rehearsal.



Grey Presley, and Gary Brda of Dearborn Heights rehearse a scene from "God's Favorite," opening Friday at Trinity House Theatre in Livonia.

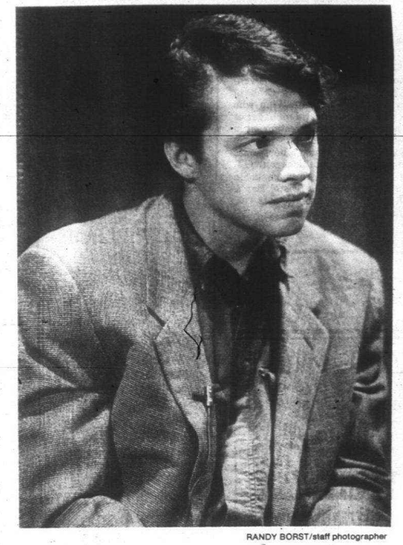
Playing older man is difficult



RANDY BORST/staff photographer

On a swing through metropolitan Detroit recently, Jon Cryer talked about the comedy "Hiding Out." As fast-track stockbroker Andrew Morenski, he recovers his idealism after he sees life through the eyes of a high school student.

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

CAN A 22-YEAR-OLD actor play a 27-year-old stockbroker hiding out from the mob by pretending to be a high school senior?

"Yes," says Jon Cryer — best known as "Duckie" in "Pretty in Pink" — "but the hardest part was playing the 27-year-old because I've never grown up."

That spritely response characterizes Cryer, who toured the Detroit area recently to promote "Hiding Out," his new film, which has gathered top marks from this writer.

Not only is "Hiding Out" suspenseful, comic and romantic, but it also has a number of interesting layers that say a lot about people growing and maturing in adversity.

CRYER IS THE SON of actress-playwright Gretchen Cryer and actor David Cryer. He has appeared on and off-Broadway and studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London. In addition to "Pretty in Pink," his film credits include "No Small Affair," the title role in "Morgan Stewart's Coming Home," "O.C. Stiggs," "Superman IV," and "Dudes," which will be released this fall.

Of the last, Cryer noted, "It's a pop-fantasy western, which should be a lot of fun for everyone."

"Hiding Out," as well, should be a lot of fun. As the story develops, yuppie stockbroker Andrew Morenski (Cryer) is under FBI protection as the sole surviving witness against a mob chieftain for whom Andrew has laundered bonds.

Patrick has all the high-school-senior problems: girls, cars, clothes. He is in awe of his older cousin who speaks out boldly, at least by comparison to most students in a conservative high school.

THE FILM'S high-school sequences are more sophisticated than the typical youth-oriented film and never demean either the students or their teachers. That in itself is unusual.

The story's greatest appeal, however, is Andrew's maturation as a human being who learns that there is more to life than stockbroking and scoring in the Boston singles scene.

Cryer proves that a 22-year-old playing a 27-year-old hiding out as a 17-year-old can teach us all a good deal about what it means to be a nice human being.

The film's high-school sequences are more sophisticated than the typical youth-oriented film and never demean either the students or their teachers.

Hot young actor Jon Cryer (right) is cast as a 27-year-old stockbrocker who masquerades as a high school student to escape the mob in "Hiding Out." Keith Coogan portrays the 16-year-old cousin who admires him. Cryer gained popularity through roles in such films as "Pretty in Pink." His next movie, "Dudes," will be released soon.

Tasting tour

Sample wines from many famous growing regions throughout the world will be featured at the Michigan State University Club of Oakland County's annual wine tasting 8-11 p.m. Friday at the MSU Management Education center in Troy. Fruits, cheeses, breads and gourmet crackers will be served as guests visit eight or more wine tasting stations. The tasting is open to the general public. Tickets are $12 per person at the door.

Omni offerings

Omni Hotel in Detroit is serving French Beaujolais Nouveau, including Chateau LaCarelle, beginning today (Thursday, Nov. 19). In another event, Tim McCarlty of Cost Plus — Detroit will preside over a wine tasting 2-5 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $5, with all proceeds going to Easter Seals. Reservations must be made by today. For more information, call 468-7000.

Turkey to go

The Kingsley Inn in Bloomfield Hills has "Turkey to Go," a complete Thanksgiving banquet for up to 15 people, ready for pickup and take-home Thanksgiving Day. The meal is $75. Orders must be placed by noon Monday; phone 644-1400. Prepaid orders may be picked up from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thanksgiving Day.

Westin doings

First wine of the season will be introduced at a Beaujolais Nouveau tasting 5-7 p.m. today (Thursday, Nov. 19) at the Lobby Bar of the Westin Hotel at the Renaissance Center in Detroit. A two-ounce taste is $1. Complimentary hors d'oeuvres and music will be featured. On Thanksgiving Day, a traditional Thanksgiving dinner will be served from noon to 8 p.m. at the hotel's revolving restaurant, the Summit. For reservations, call 568-8600. "Breakfast with Santa" will be offered Saturdays, Nov. 28, Dec. 5, 12 and 19, at the 71-story-high Summit. Seatings are at 8:30, 10 and 10:30 a.m. Breakfast is $6 for children, $7 for adults, plus tax and gratuity. For reservations, call 568-XMAS.

Holiday plans

Detroit's Hotel St. Regis will offer a Thanksgiving Day Buffet, with seats at noon, 1, 3, 5 and 7 p.m. Thanksgiving Day. The first seating may have special appeal for families returning from the Thanksgiving Day Parade. Fare is priced at $23.95 for adults, $15.95 for children aged 6-15. For each adult, one child under the age of 6 will be admitted at no charge. "Christmas Carol Feast" will be held Monday-Thursday, Dec. 7-10. Charles Dickens' 19th century will be recreated in the hotel, with a six-course Victorian meal and festive period entertainment. "A Christmas Carol" will be read throughout the meal by local professional actors. Cost is $65 per person. For reservations for the Thanksgiving buffet or the Dickens feast, call 873-3000.

Santa lunches

Santa Claus will make a stop for a series of luncheons Friday-Sunday, Dec. 4-6, at the Farmington Community Center. The center tradition includes lunch, "entertainment and a "For Kids Only" boutique featuring inexpensive handmade items for holiday giving. Lunch of all-beef hot dogs, potato chips, Jello, carrot sticks, brownies and beverages, is served at 11 a.m. or 1 p.m. each day at $4 per person.

Botsford Inn

Now offering bed and breakfast, the Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills includes a made-to-order breakast, along with any overnight stay. Breakfast is served in the Coach-room restaurant of the 151-year-old inn. Another change at the Botsford is the appointment of Sondra D. Baker, in the newly created position of chef/manager. She will be responsible for the "back of the house," which includes the kitchen, restaurant and banquet operations. Baker formerly worked three years as pastry chef, sous chef and executive at Jack McCarthy's restaurant. During the holiday, the Botsford Inn will serve dinner Thanksgiving Day 1-7 p.m., with seatings every hour. Special menus also will be offered on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve.

Szechuan style

Sze-Chuan West in Ann Arbor offers authentic Szechuan cooking. The restaurant was opened in 1981 by Frank Tsou and his wife, Helen Du. At that time, they sold their first restaurant, Sze-Chuan in Canton, to her sister. Sze-Chuan Canton, which originally had 45 seats, recently completed a major renovation, more than doubling its size. Sze-Chuan West seats 154 people. Its interior is resminiscent of mountain-top caves of Szechuan Province in China and features the largest (natural or otherwise) waterfall in Southeastern Michigan.

Medallion opens

The Medallion, formerly the Aristocrat, has reopened at Crosswinds Mall, formerly Pine Lake Mall, in West Bloomfield. Avelina Laxta, owner, said the Medallion serves creative American cuisine. New chef is Scott O'Dell, who worked at the Orchard Lake Country Club for eight years. Sous chef is Hasan Altaie, from the Renaissance Club. The Aristocrat closed five months ago due to storm damage. Now remodeled, the restaurant is serving dinner and will resume lunch soon.

Raisin biscuits

Hardee's has teamed up with the California Raisins to promote its new breakfast treat, Cinnamon N' Raisin Biscuits. Made from Hardee's Rise and Shine buttermilk recipe, the biscuits are filled with natural California raisins and spiced with a dash of cinnamon.

New manager

Robert Jones has been named general manager of Charley's Crab in Troy, replacing Paulette Winn who was promoted to general manager of the new Charley's Crab restaurant in Jupiter, Fla., scheduled to open in January. Before joining Muer, Jones held management positions with Gilbert Robinson Co. restaurants in Kansas City, Mo.; the Bristol Bar & Grill in St. Louis, and Hogates restaurant in Washington, D.C.

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village
ANNUAL PASS
Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village Presents Yet Another Great Invention.
The new Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village Annual Pass might pale in comparison to the first Model T Ford or Edison's original light bulb. But, we think you'll agree, it's still a pretty nifty invention.
Not to mention a great deal.
Because during our introductory offer, from November 6, 1987, to January 4, 1988, you can pick up an Annual Pass for $18 (that's only a dollar more than one-time admission to the Museum and Village!). There's even a Pass for children priced at $9. Each lets you visit us every day for one full year, stay as long as you want and start saving money after just one visit.
And we guarantee you'll visit the Museum and Village again and again.
After all, there's more to see and do here than ever before. Including a completely new $6 million "Automobile in American Life" exhibition. Our special "Streamlining" exhibit. The authentic Firestone Farm. And Edison's newly restored Menlo Park Lab.
That's in addition to our changing displays and special events. Like our Christmas celebration and The Howard Brothers Miniature Circus.
So start thinking about buying an Annual Pass. Start thinking about who'd like one for Christmas. Start dialing 271-9363 to order by credit card. Or start the car and head out to Dearborn for the great American museum that's also great fun.

Oakwood Health Services

When you or someone you love becomes ill or injured, the time it takes to get medical treatment can seem to last forever. But if you live, work or play anywhere in western Wayne County, Oakwood's comprehensive health care network is nearby and ready to help.

Complete medical care, just around the corner.

Oakwood's health centers are located throughout western Wayne County. So no matter where you are, you're just moments away from doctors in family practice, obstetrics and gynecology. Pediatrics. Internal medicine. Experts in industrial medicine. Our centers are equipped with x-ray and laboratory support. Even a special center for the treatment of injured athletes.

Help where you need it–backed by Oakwood.

Local Oakwood health centers provide medical care that's complete and readily accessible. But should you require more extensive treatment, you'll rest easier knowing each Oakwood health center is backed by the complete medical capabilities of Oakwood Hospital–the sixth largest hospital in Michigan, with 615 beds and 450 affiliated physicians.

Oakwood has specialists in virtually every area.

Oakwood Hospital has vast medical capabilities. There are intensive-care units and specialists for both newborns and adults. A new outpatient surgery center. Plastic surgeons. A large cardiology department. Psychiatric care. Experts in oncology and neurosurgery. And many more resources that can help you get well. And to keep you well, Oakwood offers a wide range of health programs, such as older adult services, home care assistance, health education, even a health information center.

Call on us for help.

There's never been an easier way to obtain quality health care than through the comprehensive network of Oakwood health centers and Oakwood Hospital. They're capable, complete, qualified–and just minutes away.

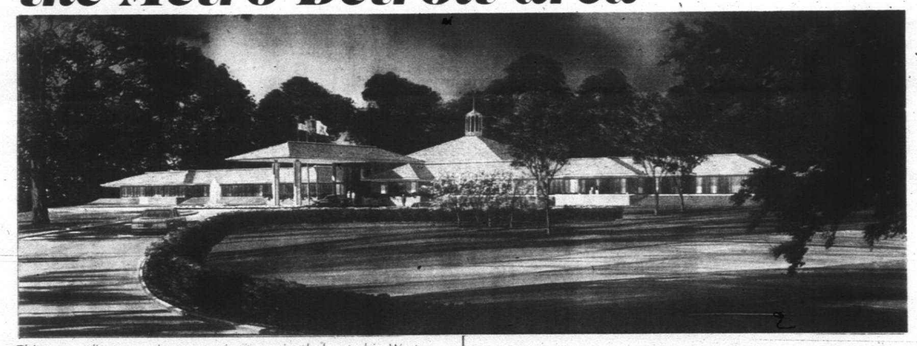
3 West Bloomfield Nursing and Convalescent Center
The most luxurious convalescent facility in the Metro Detroit area
WERE OPEN



This extraordinary nursing center is conveniently located in West Bloomfield. It offers outstanding medical, nursing and rehabilitative care in an elegant setting. While the facility specializes in providing skilled nursing care, it also has accommodations for those in need of "assisted" or "supportive" care.

Spacious Mini-Suites and Deluxe Semi-Private Accommodations
All have private baths and are professionally decorated. Some of the suites have their own walk-in spa-tubs! Every suite has a magnificent view of either the enclosed courtyards or the wooded park-like grounds. The entire center is 100% equipped with a sprinkler system for maximum safety.

The Unique "Town Center Plaza"
The Plaza is a cluster of special shops inside the facility where residents and visitors can enjoy each other's company. • A Pub • Snack Shop • Beauty Salon • A Flower and Gift Shop • An Old-Fashioned Ice Cream Parlour. No other facility has anything like it for socialization and enjoyment.

Fine Dining
Delicious appetizing meals are graciously served at well-appointed tables in our beautiful dining room by a friendly and attentive staff. All therapeutic diets are meticulously prepared and carefully monitored under the direction of executive chef Paul Wolshon, formerly of the Marriot Hotels. Linger over your dessert, as you would in a fine restaurant.

Exciting and Varied Activities
The facility has a full range of varied activities and planned recreational opportunities to keep residents involved and mentally stimulated. Residents can participate as much or as little as they choose. Our programs fit the individual — not the other way around.

Seeing is believing. Honor us by a visit. Let us show you the most extraordinary facility in the area. Our courteous admissions staff is available to discuss the proper and most appropriate placement for the resident.
Weekdays: 9:00 a.m. - 8:00 p.m.
Saturdays and Sundays: 12 Noon - 5:00 p.m.
Appointments can always be made to suit your special needs or convenience.

• Deluxe semi-private rates begin at $55 per day
• Private mini-suite rates begin at $99 per day

A Letter From Robert C. Gurwin,
President of West Bloomfield Nursing and Convalescent Center

Dear Friend,

As the president of the West Bloomfield Nursing and Convalescent Center, I want to give you my personal assurance that all residents of this beautiful new convalescent center will receive the finest medical, nursing and rehabilitative care possible.

In designing this unique facility and in selecting its staff members, we aimed for the best - and I am certain we achieved that.

I have been in the business of providing nursing home service to the elderly for over 27 years and I am very proud that nursing homes I have operated in this area were recognized by Good Housekeeping Magazine as NO. 1 in the Detroit area and among the top nursing centers in the country.

All of us at West Bloomfield Nursing and Convalescent Center are committed to continuing that tradition of care and concern in our elegant new facility.

Please call me personally or either of my partners, Jack Bell or Timothy Spiro, at 661-1600 if we can answer any questions or help you in any way.

Sincerely,
Robert C. Gurwin

Lady Ocelots hope to gain national title

By C.J. Risak

Pardon Nick O'Shea if he is beginning to feel snakebitten as a soccer coach. It's a feeling he's earned.

O'Shea took over for Ed Dudek as girls soccer coach at both Livonia Churchill and Schoolcraft College early this year. Both are contenders. Churchill made it to the state finals before losing to Plymouth Salem last spring.

SC is doing just as well on a higher level. The Lady Ocelots are ranked second in the NJCAA; they have a realistic chance of bringing SC its first-ever national team title when they travel to the eight-team NJCAA tournament, which starts Thursday in Trenton, N.J.

But it won't be easy. Because — just as Churchill had to battle its way through an extremely tough draw, playing the top five ranked teams in the state to get to the finals — SC must now wade through the most difficult draw in the tournament if it is to capture the championship.

"I must be some sort of jinx," a frustrated O'Shea said.

THE LADY OCELOTS are the second seed in the NJCAA tournament with a 4-1-1 mark against junior college teams. They are 10-2-3 overall. Nassau (N.Y.) CC is the top seed with a 9-0-3 JC mark. Meramec (St. Louis) CC is seeded third at 3-0-0, and Essex (Baltimore) CC is No. 4 at 8-0-0.

So far, so good, right? Problem is, the bottom half of the draw isn't seeded. First-round games are drawn. And SC drew, as its first-round opponent, defending NJCAA champ Monroe (N.Y.) CC.

"I can't believe it," said O'Shea. "With Churchill I had to play the top five teams in the state, now I draw the defending national champions."

Wait — that's not the worst of it. Should the Lady Ocelots survive their opening-round game, they will meet the Meramec-Mitchell CC winner Friday. Meramec, a heavy favorite to win its opener, is the only JC team to beat SC this season.

Wins in those two games would put them into Sunday's finals for a possible showdown with Nassau.

"WE'VE GOT the talent to do it," said O'Shea. "But we have a rough road, three tough games. We have to avoid injuries. We've had a long layoff while others in the tournament had to play regional tournaments."

Because SC is the only JC team in its region, it has no regional tournament to worry about. That can work both ways, however; a team can get pretty flat when it doesn't play tough competition for a month.

The Lady Ocelots enter the tournament with high hopes because they have beaten the toughest teams entered. On Sept. 20, they knocked off Monroe 3-0 at SC; on Oct. 10 at Nassau, they beat the top-ranked team in an overtime shootout. But because the NJCAA does not recognize shootouts as tiebreakers in regular-season games, the final outcome was officially a tie.

O'Shea downplayed the significance of both wins. Monroe, he said, had eight freshmen starters when the two teams met in September and they have improved immensely since. Monroe tied Nassau 1-1 at the end of the season. When Nassau and SC met in October, both teams had key players out with injuries.

ALTHOUGH THE lengthy layoff may affect SC's sharpness, it hasn't hurt their injury situation. Shelly Tudor and Cheryl Saunders have missed most of the season with injuries and won't play; Kelly Holzwart is questionable. Mary Kay Hussey returned to practice last Monday after missing a month with a knee injury.

Hussey's return is essential to SC's title chances. If she is able to play, she gives the Lady Ocelots another strong scoring threat. Most of the team's goals this season have been scored by Jennifer Huegli and Jennifer Flowers.

Three strong scorers present a major problem for opposing defenses. "No team out there can mark all three," said O'Shea, adding that Huegli and Flowers are "better than anybody the other teams have."

They — and their SC teammates — will have to prove it if SC is to capture a national championship.

SC NOTES: In its final regular-season match, the Lady Ocelots traveled to Central Michigan and won 5-0 Nov. 7. The score was 3-0 after 10 minutes of play.

Goal-scorers for the winners were Huegli, Flowers, Jamie Kubacki, Maureen Frampus and Laurie McLaughlan. Amy Weber was in goal for SC.

WLAA champ Rocks, Canton meet in opener

girls basketball

There will be no preliminary games before the big showdown, no suspenseful wait, in the Class A girls basketball district tournament at Plymouth Salem High School.

The tournament begins tonight, and the competition gets serious right away as the host Rocks and Plymouth Canton go head-to-head in the first round at 7:30 p.m.

"In my opinion, the championship game is being played the first game instead of the last game," said Salem All-Stater Dena Head after the Rocks defeated Canton just five days ago to win the Western Lakes Activities Association championship for the third straight year.

The Chiefs, who have been league runners-up each time, come in with a 15-5 record. Salem is ranked No. 4 in the state and 19-1 overall.

The winner of tonight's game plays Northville, which finished down the line behind Western Division champion Canton in the WLAA, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

NOVI PLAYS Livonia Churchill at 6 p.m. Saturday for a spot opposite the winner of the second game in the district final at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

"I think we've just got to prepare," said Salem coach Fred Thomann of having to play the Chiefs for the fourth time this season and second time in one week.

"We knew we had to play them somewhere in the district. I wish we were playing them for the championship, but the schedule says it has to be the first game. So we'll go and play it."

The Rocks have had a lock on the WLAA title, and Head helped maintain that grip last Saturday by scoring 26 points, including 21 in the first half when Salem raced to a 35-16 halftime lead.

"Every championship is special because of the amount of hard work that goes into winning it," Thomann said. "But I've always thought the last one was most special, because that's the one that just happened."

CANTON HAS lost all three meetings with the Rocks, and the 57-42 score in the league final was the most lopsided. Salem got out to early leads of 11-0 and 18-2 as the Chiefs went without a field goal in the first quarter.

"I don't think it's the toughest loss," Canton coach Rob Neu said. "We've made a lot of gains. We're an improved basketball team since the last time we met.

"I thought we played well. Salem just played extremely well.

"Eventually, we got used to the game and started playing better," he added. "It's hard to come back from any kind of deficit when you're playing a team as good as Salem."

While Head was the only one in double figures, Keri McBride, Jill Estey, Barb Krug and Teri King combined for 28 points for the Rocks, who went as far as the state semifinals last year.

Livonia Stevenson is the only school to have won the Western Lakes Activities Association girls swimming championship, but that record of perfection could be severely challenged this year.

North Farmington won the WLAA Relays early in the season, though by a narrow, two-point margin over the Spartans, and then won the Lakes Division dual-meet crown.

Furthermore, Livonia Churchill has come on strong this year, capturing the Western Division title with a 5-0 record, and runner-up Plymouth Canton also has a strong team and is capable of winning the championship.

The league swimming finals will be contested at 7 p.m. Friday in the Plymouth Salem pool. The preliminaries took place Wednesday, and the diving results will be determined at 4 p.m. today, also at Salem.

Stevenson coach Greg Phill said he hates to think his team can't win it again, but acknowledges the Raiders to be the favorite.

"North Farmington has got a great team this year," he said. "I'm hoping for second to be honest.

"We could win it if we swim great and North Farmington doesn't, but I don't see that happening. It would be so uncharacteristic of them not to swim well at the end of the year.

"We'll have to swim awful fast to (finish second), because Churchill has a real good team, too," he added. "I tell you there's not a better league

CC tries for 2nd win over Rice

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Here we go again.

Back on Sunday, Oct. 11, prep football fans just assumed that long-time rivals Redford Catholic Central and Birmingham Brother Rice would be meeting again 12 months later, around the same place at the same time.

But in a little over a month the two Catholic League Central Division rivals will be going at it again, and this time the stakes are much higher.

It had to be hard to imagine that Walled Lake Central High School would be playing host this Saturday to these two Titans.

Usually the gathering place for these Boys Bowl foes is Wisner Stadium in Pontiac, or the Silverdome for the Catholic League title.

Rice comes into Saturday's Class A semifinal (game time 1:30 p.m.) seeking its fourth trip to the state finals. Rice captured the coveted crown in 1977, 1980 and 1983.

But history may be on CC's side. The Shamrocks will be seeking their second state title (CC won in 1979) under coach Tom Mach, who ironically is one of the few coaches around who can claim a winning percentage over Rice coach Al Fracassa.

MACH CAN'T EXPLAIN why he has a 7-6 record over Fracassa, including a 10-7 double-overtime victory over Rice in this year's Boys Bowl. In 1982 CC beat Rice twice, once during the regular season and again in the Catholic League finals. (Rice, however, leads the series, 14-11, with one tie.)

But when it comes to Rice-CC, no matter what sport, the teams usually prepare a little longer and concentrate a little harder. Mach and his team are no exceptions to the rule.

This week, CC practices started around 3 p.m. and lasted until dark.

"We're approaching this game like any other game, but you always want that little extra," said Mach. "We're always aiming at them. We're taking them as our arch-rivals and that means a little more. The game usually generates a lot more in-school publicity and it creates a lot of excitement around school."

But Mach doesn't really notice his players' mood changing, despite the fact that it's Rice again.

"We've had good practices all year," he said. "I think we're pretty intense every week. This team always does a real good job of preparing mentally and physically.

"I think we'd get the kids' attention anyway at this time of the year (the playoffs). You don't have to work as hard to get them motivated."

AS FOR THE upcoming game, Mach predicts "a little more scoring."

During the regular season double-overtime battle, CC had five first downs and Rice only two. But Rice outgained CC in total yardage, 136-70.

It was a real defensive battle.

"I think Rice will do more throwing this game," Mach said. "But they won't change as far as running the ball. The key to their success is still using Jason Wolf."

In the first meeting, Wolf, a breakaway threat, was held to less than 80 yards.

"They'll throw to him in the backfield and use him in different ways," Mach said. "They'll still use him 95 percent of the time."

CC's offense, meanwhile, has perked up in the past two weeks. The Shamrocks threw for 133 yards in last week's 10-7 win over Sterling Heights.

Three players — Ted Rieple, center Kurt Ross and Mike Firestone — are unsung heroes on an offensive line who are joined by two blue-chip, Division I-caliber lineman in Toby Heaton and Pete Dankert.

"THOSE THREE aren't quite as well-known, but they're workmanlike and get the job done," Mach said. "They're intense when they have to be and just do what they have to do.

"We've been able to move the ball against some real tough defenses and they've done a real good job all year even though they don't get much recognition."

But what concerns Mach more than anything is Rice's defense.

"I haven't seen anybody drive on them," said the CC coach. "Their defense is always good. They're not as big as they usually are, but they're quick to the ball."

Charlie Brennan, the younger brother of Cleveland Browns' wide receiver Brian Brennan, leads a talented Rice secondary.

"Four of their better athletes play in the secondary," said the CC coach. "They like to use a lot of man-to-man coverage and that allows them to put eight guys up (on the line) to stop the run. They put a lot of pressure on your offense."

Pressure is the key word when these two rivals meet and mistakes may determine the final outcome.

It certainly did the last time they met.

'We've had good practices all year . . . This team always does a real good job of preparing mentally and physically.'

Ocelots answer doubters, win 2

Schoolcraft sports

Doubt will still linger in regards to Schoolcraft College's mens' basketball team, but some was erased last weekend at the Macomb Community-College Tip-Off Classic.

The Ocelots displayed a variety of skills, but most important was, first, they have absorbed enough of Dave Bogataj's system in his two weeks as coach to make it work, and second, they showed that when crunch time came, they knew how to win.

SC won both of its games on free throws with three seconds left by Steve Hawley (from Westland John Glenn). The Ocelots edged Flint Jordan 93-90 Friday and Detroit Jordan 60-58 Saturday.

"Friday was a great game," said Bogataj. "Saturday was a little bit of luck, but it goes down in the win column."

THE DIFFERENCE in the opening win was simple: "We shot the eyes out, that saved us," Bogataj said.

SC had a 38-28 lead with seven minutes left in the first half, but Flint Jordan battled back to within one (47-46) at the break. The Ocelots then got going quickly in the second half and again built a 10-point cushion, 62-52, with five minutes left.

But Flint Jordan didn't surrender. Its strong inside game supplied several shots each time downcourt and eventually the lead was trimmed to one with three seconds left. Hawley's free throws iced the triumph.

Hawley finished with a game-high 27 points, including three-of-five three-pointers. SC hit seven-of-13 from three-point range in the game. Deon Frederick had 22 points, Mike Sullivan and Ladion Tait netted 12 apiece and Mark Claiborne (Wayne Memorial) scored 10. Andy Stephens (Plymouth Christian) grabbed 10 rebounds.

AGAINST DETROIT Jordan Saturday, SC never trailed but was in trouble often. The Ocelots led by seven after four minutes despite a poor-shooting night. Against Flint, they hit 37-of-69 (54 percent); against Detroit, they were 25-of-68 (37 percent).

Sullivan's three-pointer put SC up 58-53 with a minute left. But Detroit Jordan scored, SC missed with 36 seconds left and Mike Brown sank a three-pointer to tie it at 58-58 with 14 seconds to play.

After a timeout with five seconds left, the Ocelots ran an out-of-bounds play to Hawley. He was fouled with three seconds left and hit both free throws for the win.

Hawley finished with 15 points, despite playing just 20 minutes because of foul trouble. Frederick got 12 points, Claiborne 10 (and six rebounds) and Tait eight (and 10 rebounds). Brad Ridgeway (from Farmington Harrison) keyed the defense with six blocked shots.

One factor in both wins particularly pleased Bogataj. SC had just five turnovers in the opener and nine in the second game.

"For us to win, we have to shoot well and we have to have very few turnovers," he said. "We did both.

Bogataj's unbeaten Ocelots play at St. Clair College Friday and at Wurtsmith Air Force Base Saturday.

Spartans put title on line

around. Anything can happen, but (the Raiders) are favored going in."

Stevenson can't be counted out just yet, however. The same was being said a year ago, that the Raiders were ready to dethrone the Spartans. But they produced an inspired effort in the league meet and won going away.

STEVENSON accumulated 266 points to North's 180. Westland John Glenn was third, and Canton is expected to do no worse than its fourth-place finish of a year ago. Coach Lawrence Hein's Churchill team was third in the WLAA Relays and are almost guaranteed to improve upon last year's performance when they were seventh with 92 points.

Sheila Taormina, who won the individual medley and butterfly with record-setting times for Stevenson, has graduated, but Michele McKenzie, who was on the winning freestyle relay team with Taormina, is back.

Stevenson's hopes depend a lot on what McKenzie does since she is Observerland's top-ranked swimmer in four events. She owns the best time in all four freestyle events: the 200 (1:57.33), 50 (25.5), 100 (54.6) and 500 (5:07.6).

Churchill's Audra Martin is the defending champ in the 100 freestyle after winning that with a 55.53 time, but she is not listed among the top 10 in that event this year.

But she has been heard from and will be a factor in other contests if not the 100 freestyle. She has the area's best times in the individual medley (2:11.3), butterfly (58.93) and backstroke (1:03.7). She also is among the best in the 200, 50 and 500 freestyles and the breaststroke.

BUT NORTH'S Cindy Cramer is the premier swimmer in the latter. She is the defending champ, having won the it in 1:09.10 last year, and she has the best time this season, cutting nearly a second off her winning time of a year ago at 1:08.4.

Farmington's Tina Slicker is No. 4 among area divers in the Observerland listing, but has the highest previous score of any WLAA competitor.

S'craft netters fall shy

Schoolcraft College's bid for a third-straight trip to the NJCAA volleyball championship tournament fell short of target at the Region 12 tournament last weekend.

The Lady Ocelots, ranked as high as third in the nation this season, were ousted by fourth-ranked Southwestern CC in the title match 15-12, 17-15, 15-9 Saturday.

"Our downfall was our missed serves," said coach Tom Teeters. "(Southwestern's) strength was their serve reception. Southwestern was just the better team that day."

SC lost twice to Southwestern Saturday after opening the tournament with wins over Muskegon CC (15-10, 15-5) Thursday and Lake Michigan CC (15-5, 15-7) Friday. In Saturday's first match, SC battled Southwestern through five games before losing 15-12, 6-15, 15-9, 2-15, 15-13. Eleven serving errors cost the Lady Ocelots.

The Lady Ocelots followed with a 15-5, 15-8, 15-8 win over Lake Michigan CC before losing again to Southwestern.

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Gone — and now forgotten.

Goodbye, Jon Bow, Theo Pearson, Brad Turner. So long, Clarence Jones, Anthony Strickland. Heading for greener pastures? Well, good riddance and good luck.

Those five — together with Mo Steward — were expected to be the nucleus of St. Mary's College's basketball team this season. But when coach Rich Zalenski abandoned the program in late August to accept a coaching position at Bristol (Tenn.) College, he decided to take his recruits with him.

Zalenski convinced Pearson and Turner — starters at St. Mary's last year — and Strickland and Jones, redshirts who were expected to start this season, to go with him to Bristol.

After he accepted the new coaching post, Zalenski immediately put together a Bristol roster that featured half St. Mary's team. Two other top recruits who planned to attend St. Mary's, Dave Lyerla and Dwight Garrett of Lapeer East, also changed course thanks to Zalenski and are now at Bristol.

SO — WHO'S LEFT?

New coach Glen Donahue, believe it or not, still has some talent to work with in spite of Zalenski's efforts. The Eagles put their talent on display last weekend in the Gino's Pizza Classic at Dombrowski Fieldhouse.

St. Mary's opened strongly, whipping Tiffin 86-63 Friday behind Safaa Qasawa's 18 points and Jim Butcher's 16.

On Saturday, St. Mary's played Purdue-Calumet in the championship game. The Eagles had a chance to win the tournament; they had the ball out of bounds with 12 seconds left and the score tied. But a charging call and poor defense gave Calumet a 91-90 victory.

basketball

It was the first loss in three games for St. Mary's. There will be others, certainly; Donahue is aware of that. He's already set his recruiting goals.

"We're obviously a long way from where we want to be," he said. "And yes, we do have to upgrade the caliber of players. All the players we have now are good players; what we need are some great ones."

BUT FOR NOW, Donahue — who compiled a 401-205 record in 19 seasons as Highland Park CC coach — is happy with the 10 players left him, including seven who played at St. Mary's last year and another who transferred from St. Mary's to University of Michigan-Dearborn for a year, then came back when the UM-D basketball program was canceled.

"I know we'll play hard every game," said Donahue.

St. Mary's has a good mix of talent, with both size and speed. Donahue has "always played a lot of players," which means all 10 Eagles will get time on the court.

At center, big things are expected from 6-foot-6 junior Jerome Washburn. He was named to the all-tournament team last weekend. "He can post-up, he's very strong and he plays good post defense," said Donahue. "And he's a good rebounder."

BACKING UP Washburn — who weighs 240 — is 6-5 junior Mike Moroney. Other "wide bodies" Donahue can call on for inside strength are 6-6 senior Mike Belczak (from Redford St. Agatha), the UM-D transfer, and 6-4 sophomore James Lakes. Both need to supply a bit of everything — scoring, rebounding, passing, defense — in Donahue's scheme.

At small forward is Qasawa, a 6-3 senior, and Lakes. Qasawa is a hard worker who averaged 7.2 points a game a year ago.

Two more returnees fill the guard spots. Greg Spraggins, a 5-10 senior, started most of the season and averaged 10.8 points. Bob Bringman, a 6-4 shooter, scored 4.5 points per game coming off the bench.

Also seeing plenty of action in the backcourt will be Butcher, a 6-foot junior sharpshooter who led St. Mary's in three-pointers last season (39 of 107); James Curtis, a 6-1 junior transfer from Oxnard CC in Los Angeles; and Denny Butcher (not related to Jim), a 6-foot freshman and son of former Detroit Piston coach Donnis Butcher.

THUS FAR, Donahue has been pleased with his team's "ability to set the tempo of the game. Any time we don't, we'll be in trouble."

Just like his Highland Park CC teams, you can expect lots of points in St. Mary's games. "But the high scoring will come from pressure defense," he pointed out.

Rebounding, Donahue added, "is the one area that hurt us in the tournament. We let our opponents get a few too many extra shots."

It would help if guys like Bow, a 6-5 senior (15.1 points and 6.6 rebounds a game last season), and the others had stuck around. Bow transferred to Indiana-Purdue at Fort Wayne after Zalenski quit. Steward, a 6-5 senior and strong rebounder (6.5 a game), left the team for personal reasons.

"If those players were here, this team could compete in the national tournament," said Donahue. "But there's nothing we can do about it. It's been tough, but it's in the past."

And the players who stuck with Donahue? How are they accepting the transition?

● SOCCER TRYOUTS

The Canton Soccer Club will conduct tryouts for the under-19 boys team in the Caesars-Ilitch Division from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday at the Canton Soccer Dome on Michigan Avenue.

The fee is $4 per player. For information call Don Koontz at 397-2550.

● MEN'S RACQUETBALL

A men's racquetball league is scheduled to begin play Wednesday, Dec. 2, at Rose Shores of Canton. Canton Parks and Recreation is sponsoring the league, which will have court times at 7:30 and 8 p.m.

The fee is $82 per person, which includes all court times and awards. The league will meet for 13 weeks and will be divided into divisions based on individual ability.

An organizational meeting will take place the first night. League openings are limited. For information call 397-5110.

● SPORTS SALE

The Third Annual Used Sports Equipment Sale is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5. The sale will take place on the first floor of the Canton Township Administration Building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

The public may sell its used sports or recreational equipment. Sellers can bring their equipment to the administration building on Thursday, Dec. 3, between 6 and 9 p.m. to be priced and tagged.

The seller sets the price, with 15 percent going to the parks and recreation department. Volunteers will be on hand to do the selling, so the owners need not be present.

Participants in the sale can collect their money or pick up unsold items 2-3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5. For information, call Bob Dates at the parks and recreation department at 397-5110.

● SCHOLARSHIP OFFER

The Detroit Pistons will award two $1,000 college scholarships to local high school seniors for the eighth consecutive year. One of last year's winners was Jane Klaes of Plymouth. She now attends the University of Michigan.

A senior must submit an official application, his/her transcript, SAT scores, a letter of recommendation from a faculty member and an essay of less than 500 words on the subject "The Importance of a College Education."

Applications can be obtained from high school guidance counselors or by writing Scholarships, Detroit Pistons, 1200 Featherstone Road, Pontiac, Mich. 48057. To be eligible, a senior must live within a 75-mile radius of the Pontiac Silverdome.

Brad Emons

SO YOU'RE A girls basketball team and you want to play a little Monopoly.

The ultimate real estate to buy is Grand Valley State College where the Michigan High School Athletic Association will conduct its state finals Dec. 11-12.

Where will some of our area teams eventually land on the board?

Will any pass go and collect $200? Will anybody from Observerland take a ride on the Boardwalk?

The "new season" begins tonight at numerous district sites across the state.

This is how Parker Brothers might handicap the upcoming tournament. (See tournament pairings).

PARK PLACE

Plymouth Salem (19-1): The Rocks made it all the way to the semifinals last year. They appear to be headed for rematches with Livonia Ladywood and Farmington Hills Mercy in the regional at Southfield. If the Rocks pass those two tests, they should make it all the way to the final, only to have Catholic League champion Birmingham Marian standing in their way. The play of seniors Barb Krug and Keri McBride are keys to their tournament success, but the Rocks' bench is still a question mark.

PENNSYLVANIA AVE.

Farmington Hills Mercy (12-7): The Marlins should have little trouble reaching the regional final at Southfield. Their record is deceiving because their losses have been to quality, state-ranked teams. Mercy, remember, gave Salem a battle back in September.

NORTH CAROLINA AVE.

Livonia Ladywood (15-4): The Blazers appeared tired and sluggish in the Catholic League finals, losing to Marian. But an 11-day break could be just what the doctor ordered. The bench is better than average, but the inside game of Katie McNulty and Nancy Wagner must return to the early-season Great Lakes Tournament form.

MARVIN GARDENS

Plymouth Canton (15-5): The young Chiefs are a quality team and should be riding toward Pennsylvania Avenue or Park Place next season. Their losses have been to Salem three times, while the other two have come against Marian and Mercy. Would somebody please donate to the Community Chest? Canton drew Salem in tonight's first round.

VENTNOR AVE.

Garden City (13-7): The Cougars will make the district finals at Westland John Glenn, but unfortunately they'll get to play Ladywood. GC will be paying a heavy Income Tax by making the finals.

ATLANTIC AVE.

Westland John Glenn (13-7): The Rockets got Free Parking, hosting their own district, but unfortunately they will meet Ladywood in a second-round mismatch. Glenn will be taking a ride on the Short Line.

ILLINOIS AVE.

Redford Bishop Borgess (8-10): The Spartans have had their most successful season in years under third-year coach Mike Resmer. They have a decent shot at the Detroit Cody District title, but Cooley should win it.

INDIANA AVE.

Redford Thurston (11-8): The Eagles nearly ruined Dearborn Fordson's unbeaten season last week, losing by six. They have a chance at winning the Class B district at Dearborn St. Alphonsus where they'll meet either the host team or Detroit Benedictine. Thurston also boasts one of the area's best players you haven't seen, senior center Janet Smith.

TENNESSEE AVE.

Wayne Memorial (9-10): Coach Gary Schwan has brought his young team along, but they aren't quite ready to challenge for a district title where host Taylor Center, an up-and-coming team from the Tri-River League, is the overwhelming favorite.

ST. JAMES PLACE

North Farmington (9-11): The Raiders have overcome injuries and seem to be back where they belong. But whether they belong in the district final at Walled Lake Western is a different story. Look for the host school to win it in an upset over Walled Lake Central.

VIRGINIA AVE.

Livonia Franklin (7-13): Other than Rose O'Bey, the season has been thorny for the Patriots, who drew host Glenn in tonight's district opener.

STATES AVE.

Livonia Stevenson (8-12): The Spartans, on a three-game winning streak, play Garden City in Monday's second round at Glenn. The winner gets to play Ladywood in the final. Some kind of reward.

ST. CHARLES PLACE

Farmington (7-12): The Falcons have improved on their record this season, but not enough to challenge Mercy for the RU district crown.

VERMONT AVE.

Plymouth Christian (9-11): The Eagles, led by Elaine Priebe, have an outside chance at winning the Class D District at Taylor Baptist Park.

Lutheran Westland (10-3): This team could also win the Class D tourney at Taylor, but their record as an independent is a little deceiving.

JUST VISITING JAIL

Redford Union (4-16): The Panthers rely too much on top scorer Caryn Shannon, who has limped through the season. RU should beat winless Southfield in its opener, but Mercy is eventually waiting.

BALTIC AVE.

Livonia Churchill (2-18): It's better luck next year for the Chargers, who play Novi (4-18) in the first round at Canton. Coach Tim Newman can't stem the leak at the Water Works.

MEDITERRAEAN AVE.
(going rate $60)

Farmington Harrison (1-19): The Hawks broke a 99-game losing streak by beating Livonia Churchill two weeks ago. Harrison is in the Class B district at St. Alphonsus, but their stay should be short-lived.

Redford St. Agatha (9-16): Give coach Pat Opipari credit, he still calls in all his scores in what has been a very trying season.

Harrison gets playoff rematch

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

The shoe will be on the other foot Saturday when Farmington Hills Harrison and Marysville renew their ever-increasing football rivalry.

Two of the state's perennial Class B powers collide for a second straight year in the semifinal round at 1:30 p.m. in Flint's Atwood Stadium. A trip to the Pontiac Silverdome and a berth in the state championship game Saturday, Nov. 28, will be on the line.

Unlike last year, it is the Hawks who are especially eager for the rematch and a chance to avenge a defeat. The Vikings knocked off Harrison 22-6 and went on to win the state title the following week.

Marysville had waited five years to get the Hawks on the same field after losing to Harrison in the 1981 state tournament, 23-13.

Both teams take 10-1 records into the game, and the Hawks had to get past Allen Park and Monroe St. Mary-Catholic Central before reaching this desired point in the playoffs.

"THIS IS the game we've been hoping we could get for a year," Harrison coach John Herrington said. "This is the game we wanted."

But the revenge factor is not the prime motivation, he added. Rather it is the opportunity for the Hawks to redeem themselves after a lackluster showing against the Vikings.

"It's not so much the fact they beat us, but the fact we played poorly and didn't perform well," Herrington said. "We wanted to come back and show them we can play football."

Whenever the Vikings and Harrison have played, the winner has always gone on to win the state title. The Hawks did so in 1981 and captured the Class A trophy the following year.

"The winner this year has a great chance to do the same," Marysville coach Walt Braun said. "I told the kids last year 'If we can win this game, we can win the state championship.'

"I THINK the winner of this game will win the state championship," he added, with certainty in his voice.

The winner plays either Grand Rapids Catholic Central or Frankenmuth at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 28, for all the marbles, but Harrison is concentrating on this week's game.

Nothing went right for the Hawks last year. The team bus got lost on the way, there were uncharacteristic turnovers and penalties and Marysville did a number running the ball. The Vikings outgained Harrison 236-19 on the ground.

The Hawks have prided themselves on their rushing defense this fall, allowing 11 opponents just 529 yards rushing. Herrington said they are better at defending the run this year, and Braun, naturally, agrees with him.

"I think they've got a better defense this year," he said. "I think this is one of their top defensive teams."

MARYSVILLE'S top offensive threat is senior halfback Steve Foster, who did all of the damage last year when he scored every point on three touchdowns, a field goal and an extra point. He also rushed 20 times for 153 yards.

"They broke the second play of the game (for a score)," Herrington said. "We had Foster trapped, he got loose and that set the tone for the whole night."

The Vikings don't throw a lot, but they've been effective when they have. That, plus the fact their decision to throw is an integral part of their offense and not done out of desperation, concerns Herrington.

Junior quarterback Shawn Winston, who replaced All-Stater Randy Socha, was 5-of-6 for 96 yards and two TDs in the 35-14 win over Delton last week. He has completed 60 percent of his passes, thrown 12 for scores and totaled nearly 700 yards through the air.

"They run a lot of bootleg and play-action passes," Herrington said. "If anybody stops their run, that's what they go to, and they've been highly successful with the pass."

THE VIKINGS will have to contend with a Harrison offense that can do either just as well. It was Aaron Yaverski's running that highlighted the win over Allen Park, and Millard Coleman's passing (282 yards and two touchdowns) bombed St. Mary-CC into submission.

Coleman, who has rushed for nearly 100 yards and two TDs in the playoffs, has completed 98 of 167 passes this year for 1,692 yards and 15 touchdowns. He has been intercepted seven times.

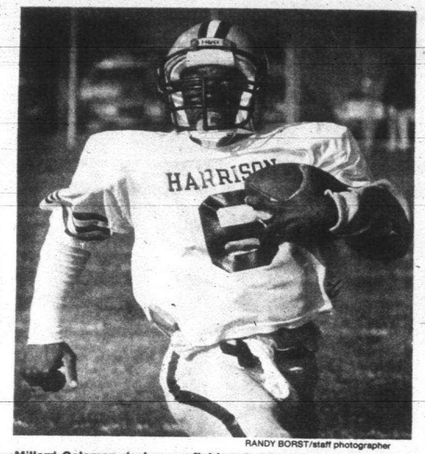
"We'll try to have a balanced offense," Herrington said. "Though they're small, they move well and hit well. But we have some tall receivers who can get there.

"If we can throw for 300, (running) won't be that important, but we don't anticipate that. We need a balanced effort."

Chad Burgess and Bryan Wauldron, a pair of 6-foot-2 juniors, have 26 and 22 catches for 505 and 516 yards, respectively. Both have five TD catches.

MARYSVILLE'S secondary is known as "The Smurfs." Nobody weighs more than 156 pounds, but they're said to be a tough unit. John Levandowski, the smallest at 5-6 and 150, is "a terror back there," according to one observer, and had three interceptions in the playoff game against Auburn Hills Avondale.

The only way Harrison's playoff opponents have gotten close to the end zone is by way of the kickoff, returing one for a TD and another to set up SMCC's only score.



RANDY BORST/staff photographer

Millard Coleman dashes up field enroute to a 28-yard touchdown run against SMCC. Coleman hurt the Falcons more with his passing, however, as he threw for 282 yards and two TDs.

Hawks recall loss

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Farmington Hills Harrison's football team was stopped one game short of its fourth appearance in the Pontiac Silverdome and a state championship game last year.

Now the Marysville Vikings, who sidetracked the Hawks and went on to claim the title for themselves, stand in Harrison's way once again.

For the second straight year, the teams will meet in the Class B semifinals at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Flint's Atwood Stadium.

"It means getting back for a loss," said senior defensive tackle Mark Bonasso, one of four players who started against Marysville last year.

"Of course, it means we would get to go further. Technically, this could be my last game, and I don't want it to end right now."

BONASSO SAID he doesn't recall much about the 22-6 defeat, possibly having blocked out what is considered to have been a less than standard performance for the usually efficient Hawks.

"My brother (John) graduated last year, and I was close to (the previous senior class), and it not only ended our season but our (football) association with the seniors we played with all year."

The last group of seniors to play for Harrison left the underclassmen with a challenge, which they have the opportunity to meet Saturday, or at least take a step toward doing so.

"The seniors told us to go all the way next year," said senior Phil Rider, who is starting in the defensive secondary again, "and 'do it for us.' We've been dreaming about the chance of seeing them again, and now it's here.

"The thing I remember is the sadness of walking off the field and knowing we wouldn't be playing again," he added. Defensive tackle Jeff Skinner and end-defensive back Chad Burgess, started as sophomores against the Vikings a year ago, too.

NOSEGUARD BOB Hird had a reserve role last year but has played a key role as a senior, harassing opposing defenses and earning all-league honors.

"I sat on the sidelines and watched, but it still hurt," he said. "We've wanted this game since last year.

"Coach (John Herrington) says there's no if whats or if I could have done this after a game. We have to do it now."

Senior center-linebacker Chris Cox is another who has come to play a prominent role this fall. He also recalled the disheartened feeling after last year's loss to Marysville and said a rematch is something the Hawks have had in the back of their collective mind all season.

"We've been watching the papers and how they were doing all year," he said. "I had a feeling we were going to play them again, and now it's here.

"I REMEMBER how poorly we played, and I couldn't wait to get another chance."

What are FLOATERS?
Many people complain of black spots and specks floating and darting around in their vision. Sometimes they appear and disappear, other times they are stationary. At times, they are only seen while gazing at a light colored wall or looking at a light blue sky. Usually they appear more frequently with age. No, it's not dirt or a smudge on the glasses — it's a floater.
Inside the eye is a gel-like liquid called "the vitreous." With age or injury, condensation material accumulates in the vitreous. These fibrils are floaters. They are usually white, but because their shadow is cast on the retina from the light rays projecting through the lens of the eye, the floaters seem to be grey or black.
Most floaters do not cause problems and are not associated with eye disease, however, there is one situation where floaters are a warning sign. Sometimes a floater or flurry of floaters is the first sign of a retinal detachment. In that situation they are usually accompanied by flashing lights and decreased vision. Retinal detachments are true eye emergencies and require prompt diagnosis and treatment in order to save the eye.
For more information on floaters or any other eye care problems, please contact The Coburn Clinic.

Schoolcraft Foundation increases contributions

The Schoolcraft College Foundation increased its financial support of college programs by 5 percent this past school year, according to the foundation's annual report.

The foundation, a private fund-raising group, contributed a combined $20,000 to six college projects.

Projects included:

- A $5,000 grant to buy 10 new typewriters for the college's Radcliff Center typing laboratory, Garden City.
- A $4,000 grant to the college admissions office for a direct mail marketing campaign.
- A $1,000 grant to the college counseling department for a career/educational planning project involving Livonia Public Schools ninth graders.
- A $2,700 grant to the student activities office for portable public address and recording equipment.
- A $4,500 grant for a child development program at the Radcliff Center.
- A $3,094 grant to the college learning resources center for a printing system.

The foundation has given Schoolcraft nearly $110,000 in financial support over the past five years.

briefly speaking

● SCANDINAVIAN SYMPHONY

The Scandinavian Symphony Orchestra will feature 17-year-old Catherine Cho performing Paganini's Violin Concerto No. 1 at its concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 21, in Southfield High School on Lahser at 10 Mile.

Cho was a finalist in the Maccabees Quest for Excellence competition last year.

Also on the program will be Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 and Rossini's Overture to Il Signor Bruschino.

Tickets are $7 with a $5 rate for senior citizens. They will available at the door. For more information, call 644-9203.

● YW-REDFORD BENEFIT

The Northwest YWCA will host a benefit performance of the award-winning Australian movie "My Brilliant Career" at 7 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 13 in the restored Redford Theater.

The evening will begin with a champagne reception and organ concert on the Redford Theater pipe organ by Sharon Patterson. The film, which was the winner of six Australian Academy Awards, including one for best picture, will begin at 8:15 p.m. Money raised from the gala evening will be used to maintain the operation of the Northwest YW in Redford as a community service organization.

The public is invited. Patron tickets are $25 per person and general admission is $10. The theater is at 17360 Lahser. Valet parking will be provided. Call the YW at 537-8500 to reserve tickets.

● STENCILING DEMONSTRATION

There will be an opportunity for "hands-on" participation with a professional stenciling artist at the Laura Ashley Shop in 12 Oaks Mall from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday. Refreshments will be served. For more information, call Christina Towell, 348-9260.

● COUNTRY-IN-THE-INN FOLK ART SHOW

This country folk art gathering features a wide range of items appealing to the private collector, decorator and retailer. On sale are reproductions of 18th and 19th century handcrafted wares representing early life in America, including everything from basketry, quilts and country furniture to salt glaze pottery, braided rugs, forged iron and samplers. Admission is $3. The show is held in Meadow Brook Hall, Shotwell Gustafson Pavilion, Rochester. Hours are 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. For more information, call Kathy Yuchasz at 538-1957.

● IRISH DANCING

The premier event of Irish dancing, the Mid-West Championships, will take place this year in the Detroit area on the weekend of Nov. 27-29 at the Dearborn Hyatt Regency Hotel. Children and adults from all over the Midwest will take part in the competition. Winners will go to compete in Ireland for the All-World title. The public is invited to come and watch.

● RECEPTION-JEWELRY SHOW

The Women's Association for the Dearborn Orchestral Society will hold a benefit jewelry sale/champagne reception 7-10 p.m. tomorrow at the Hyatt Pool Terrace, Dearborn.

Detroit's Secret, a local company, will show beautiful man-made gems worn by the stars on such TV shows as "Dallas" and "Dynasty." The jewelry is all 14-carat gold, but the gem stones are man-made and include faux emeralds, rubies, sapphires, as well as cubic zirconias.

Admission is $3, including a video presentation and the champagne reception. For more information or to make a reservation, call 271-8189 or 565-2296.

● HUMANITIES CLUB ART SHOW

The annual fall art show and sale, presented by the Arts and Humanities Club of Oakland Community College, 739 S. Washington, Royal Oak, opens with a reception at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 4. Featured artist will be Liz Thomas. The show will hang in the Royal Oak campus gallery until Dec. 17.

● ANTIQUE CONTEMPORARY PRINT EXHIBITION/ SALE

Henry Ford Community College, in conjunction with Lakeside Galleries, will hold an antique and contemporary print exhibition and sale now through Friday, Dec. 18 in the Sisson Art Gallery, on the campus of the college, 5101 Evergreen Road.

Lakeside is a nationally known studio and print dealer who offers its collections of American, European and Asian prints for viewing and sale. Images executed in intaglio, relief, lithography and silkscreen will represent a cross section of printmaking from the 20th century and before.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; 6-8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. For more information, call Martin Anderson, guest curator, 845-9634, Ext. 488.

● CERAMICS INVITATIONAL

The Eastern Michigan University Art Department will present the 11th Invitational Ceramics Exhibition through Wednesday, Nov. 25, in the Ford Gallery of EMU's Ford Hall.

Cranbrook connection

Functional training lead to design success

By Barbara Ziemba
special writer

WITH THE dexterity of a skilled magician performing an illusion, Gretchen Bellinger obligingly whipped the sample of her latest textile design into a neatly folded rectangle for the benefit of the photographer.

"We even have a special way of folding the samples when we're showing them to clients," she said, illustrating the same attention to detail that has brought her company, Gretchen Bellinger Inc., into the forefront of the textile design industry.

Bellinger was in the area recently to speak at the Michigan Society of Architects' annual convention at the Fairlane Manor in Dearborn.

An alumna of Bloomfield Hills' Cranbrook Academy of Arts, Bellinger earned a master's degree in fine arts after completing undergraduate work at Skidmore College.

After graduation from Cranbrook, where she first stirred the interest the art community for her work in textile design, she joined the interior design staff in the Chicago office Skidmore, Owings and Merill, a leading architectural firm.

AFTER A MOVE to New York, where she managed textile development for Knoll International, Bellinger took the plunge and opened her firm in 1976. Flying in the face of entrenched marketing formulas, Bellinger launched her company using only natural fibers in her collections. At a time when synthetics swamped the market, it was a bold move by budding entrepreneur.

"I just sort of jumped in," Bellinger recalled. "The things I want to sell (natural fibers) I was advised not to. Now that doesn't seem so strange, but 12 years ago we were in the heyday of the synthetics.

"I think if you analyze it too much, you would probably never do it. If you did too much of a market study, you would never go ahead. The idea that I wanted to start a company with only understated, tailored, natural fiber fabrics, well, competitors told me I'd never be able to make it."

But the young designer followed her own instinct and was rewarded when her company became a success — almost overnight.

"I've been very blessed," Bellinger said. "We really took off instantly. I was acutely aware of it when everyone started copying us."

Learning to trust one's own intuition was very much a part of the teaching philosophy at Cranbrook. "Learning to work on your own and develop your own point of view was the most important thing I learned there. When I was in undergraudate school that wasn't stressed as much as perhaps it would be right now."

It was during her Cranbrook days that Bellinger became thoroughly grounded in textile work and design. She acquired a reputation as a "functional" weaver, rather than a "creative" weaver, and in the pop artmad '70s, Bellinger's road was definitely the one less traveled.

"A LOT OF pre-form artistic pieces were being done, but I knew that I wanted to do woven textiles. And that's not so negative anymore. Now being a functional woven textile designer has a lot more status than it did then."

Bellinger, tall, slim and fashionably dressed in a simple black dress accented with a print scarf and plain gold jewelry, looks more like a designer of haute couture rather than textiles.

Why textiles and not fashion? "It wasn't a conscious decision. It just sort of evolved, step by step," she said. "At Skidmore, I won an award for textile design and at the time I wasn't even aware of this award. I hadn't planned on going to graduate school, but during the summer after I graduated from college, I decided to apply. Cranbrook called and said there was a space available and I took it."

AFTER CRANBROOK, Bellinger moved to Chicago and a position with Skidmore, Owings and Merrill. "Working at SOM was almost like getting my doctorate degree," she smiled. "I wasn't familiar with much of the terminology, but I worked in an excellent office with superior designers and learned on the job."

The graphics of architecture had a profound influence on the young designer, an influence that helped form the basis for her concepts of textile design. Today as well as in the past, many of Bellinger's fabrics are based on the architectural grid.

In fact, during her presentation before the Michigan architects, Bellinger said that when her firm introduced a new fabric, "Can Can," a Swiss dot pattern on woven cotton, a young mill owner familiar with her work said, "Just as I associated Bellinger with the grid, you do dots."

"Vieille Garde" and "Diva" are two examples of the architectural influence in Bellinger's textile designs. The first design, woven from wool, is shot through with strands of bronze, gold and silver lurex in a classic windowpane effect. The popular "Diva," two years in the designing process, is woven from 100 per-

Young patients who visit the Metropolitan Associates in Pediatrics offices in Livonia are being treated to an art show by their peers — thanks to the efforts of a Plymouth art teacher. Through the efforts of Sharon Dillenbeck and D&M Art Studios in Old Village, Plymouth, 22 art pieces have been hung on the walls for all to enjoy — maybe even to lift a few droopy spirits. Artists ranged in age from 2½ to 11 years of age. The exhibit is part of a traveling show that will be in the doctors' offices for another month before moving on to another location. Some of the artists who participated were Leanne Savola, 11; Erin Dillenbeck, 2½; Jennifer Vermeulen, 4; Tracey Kelly, 9; Emily Gaubatz, 7; Kristen Dillenbeck, 5; all of Canton.

Writers-in-residence a well-kept secret

THE MICHIGAN Council for the Arts announced the winners of the 1988 Creative Artists awards recently.

Seventy-two Michigan artists — writers, filmmakers, playwrights, dancers, musicians, photographers and craft and visual artists — will share $402,000 in grant money awarded from both state and federal coffers.

Sixteen grants went to writers alone for a grand total of $93,100 — up from last year's total of $74,000 for the same number of grants. The grants, to cover the creation of new works or works in progress, run from $2,000 to $7,000 each.

Livonia poet and short story writer Lorene Erickson received a $4,000 grant to continue work on a series of interrelated stories revolving around a single character, Grace Pauline.

Erickson describes her as a "feisty, comic, middle-aged woman — too old to be a yuppie or a baby boomer, too young to be a conservative."

Erickson's field was poetry, exclusively, until she went to the Breadloaf Writer's Workshop a few years back. She wandered into John Gardner's workshop one day, and was fascinated by the things he had to say about writing.

The rule during the workshops was "no writing," Erickson said, but Gardner, as you might expect, broke the rules.

The upshot was, he liked what Erickson wrote, told the poet she should think about writing prose, and asked her to send him more.

Erickson was so excited, she drafted a short story in the car while driving back to Michigan. Two weeks later, Gardner was killed in a motorcycle accident.

Erickson, named Creative Writing Teacher of the Year in 1977 when she taught at Livonia's Churchill High School, now teaches creative writing at Washtenaw Community College and is the editor of the college literary magazine, "Northern Spies." (This year's issue, on slick, quality paper, is hot off the press and available for $3 through the campus bookstore.)

Erickson is also on the roster of the MCA's Creative-Writers-In-Schools (CWIS) program — possibly the best-kept secret in Michigan.

CWIS is a dandy idea — the MCA division finds writers throughout Michigan who are qualified and willing to establish short-term writing residencies in schools throughout the state.

The writers work with classroom teachers to put togther programs to introduce students to contemporary writing, or to teach them to express themselves through writing, and to simply pick the brain of an already established writer.

The best part of CWIS is that it's absolutely free to the schools — the writers are paid through CWIS grants after the three-to-10-day residency. The writer is "in-residence" and available to students and staff for a minimum of six hours a day.

How do I know so much about this? Because I am also on the roster — though I've never had so much as a nibble from area schools.

From the informal surveys I've done about CWIS, it seems the only schools that seem to know about it are in areas where CWIS writers have gone out and arranged their own residencies.

The CWIS office says it'll send out rosters and grant applications if someone requests them, but can't afford to send them to each school district. Funds for residencies are limited, too, though it tries to serve as many schools as possible.

A quick look at the CWIS writer's biographies reads like a Michigan literary Who's Who — Stuart Dybek, John Ditsky, Janet Kauffman, Dan Gerber, Linda Nemec Foster — and dozens and dozens of others not as well-known but eager to work with young people to reinforce the joys of reading and writing.

The deadline for residency applications is Dec. 18. Residencies are available from March through June. Write Arts Project Support Services, Michigan Council for the Arts, 1200 Sixth Avenue, Detroit 48226, or call 256-3717.

VETERAN TIGER baseball announcer Ernie Harwell will be at Westland's Bailey Recreation Center at 11 a.m. Saturday to kick off the Westland Cultural Society's book fair.

The fair begins tomorrow at 10 a.m. and runs until 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

A good supply of both children's and adult books (hardcover and paperback, including current best-sellers) will be discounted for Christmas buying. Proceeds will go toward sponsoring children's activities throughout the year. (I'll be there, too, so come in and say hello.)

The Bailey Center is located behind City Hall at 36651 Ford Road.

THREE MORE speakers for the U-M Visiting Writers Series:

William Matthews, poet and visiting professor in the U-M English department, will read from his works, "A Happy Childhood" and "Foreseeably Futures" on Tuesday, Nov. 24.

Novelist Joan Silber ("Household Words" and "In the City") reads on Tuesday, Dec. 1.

Novelist and MFA program director Nicholas Delbanco ("The Sherbrookes Trilogy," "Group Portrait") reads on Tuesday, Dec. 8.

All three programs begin at 4 p.m. in the Rackham East Conference Room. Admission is free. Call 764-6296 for information.

AT 7:30 P.M. Wednesday, Dec. 2, "The Son of Rock 'N' Read" takes over the Old Miami Bar, 3930 Cass on the Wayne State University campus.

More than 40 poets will take part in the "sequel" to this spring's original "Rock 'N' Read," organized as a benefit for the Poetry Resource Center. Name a poet in or around Detroit and he or she is apt to be there. Admission is $3 at the door. Call 399-6163 or 577-7713 for information.

OVER OR UNDER-SPENDING

Some people spend more than they can afford when buying a house. Equally painful is the mistake of buying the cheapest possible house and then suffering through its shortcomings.

I have no intention of stating how much anyone can afford for a house. This is a very personal decision. There are guidelines of monthly averages that lending institutions use for housing expenses. But — like "height/weight" charts printed on scales — these are only averages.

Don't hold back if you feel you can exceed the guidelines. When you are willing and sufficiently disciplined to economize on other expenses, you can get a better house than the average calls for. A good house may seem costly, but the rewards are well worth it. Investing in a house that's a little more expensive gives you an excellent inflation hedge while your whole family enjoys a better place to live. And often, the resale opportunity is brighter.

Robert M. Meisner

Q. Our real estate salesman, who is representing us in regard to the purchase of a home, secured the signature of the husband but not the wife on the purchase agreement but said the wife would be signing later. I mentioned something about a power of attorney and the broker said that was not necessary. Do we have a potential problem?

A. Yes. If the house is owned by both and husband and wife, they both must sign the purchase agreement. As a matter of fact, it is a good idea to ensure that the wife has signed the purchase agreement, even if she does not have a direct ownership interest in the house, in order to bar her dower interest.

More important, the husband cannot sign in behalf of the wife unless he has an adequate power of attorney in writing from her. The real estate salesman should know that. You are well advised, therefore, to bring this matter to the attention of the broker in charge and to make sure that your rights are protected with respect to the purchase of the property.

Q. I am thinking about organizing a business to develop real estate and wonder what is the best form of business to establish or partnership, corporation or sole proprietorship. Can you help me?

A. Depending on what you are planning to do with the real estate that you are going to be buying and/or renting, you may be best advised to incorporate in order to insulate you from potential liability. Be sure, however, to examine the tax ramifications of your incorporation to ascertain whether or not you can still take advantage of a Subchapter S selection or other provisions of the Internal Revenue Code that would provide you an opportunity to have any losses incurred in the business flow through you individually.

I would recommend against operating as a sole proprietor and/or partnership unless the tax consequences mandate such. Considering that operating as a partnership or proprietorship removes the veil of corporate protection from personal liability.

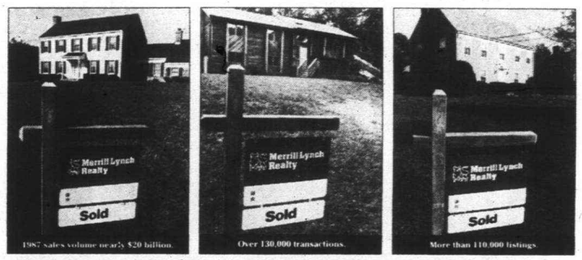
If you want to measure how successful we are, here are some yardsticks.



We know what you want in a real estate company. Activity, productivity, success.

The signs of our success are everywhere; sales volume approaching twenty billion dollars for 1987; over 130,000 transactions; twenty percent growth year after year; plus more offices, more advertising presence, and better real estate marketing.

The people who sell with Merrill Lynch Realty are well-trained, full-time, thoroughly professional.

They handle considerably more business than the industry average. They're 64% more productive. (Based upon 1986 NAR data)

And they sell a home every 2 minutes of every business day.

If you're buying or selling a home, doesn't it make sense to work with the people who know how to succeed?

Team up with the best. Merrill Lynch Realty.

Better training, better management, more advertising, more referrals. That means more productivity and more income. If you sell real estate for a living, don't sell yourself short. Find out about career opportunities with Merrill Lynch Realty. Call today.

cent silk and is scattered with rhinestones or faux pearls. Accented with a matte finish line tracery grid, the stones are clustered only in the corners of the grid to allow workers to have a cutting and sewing area.

Not stopping with traditional woven textiles, Bellinger even fighted out a way of weaving 100 percent stainless steel into a window and wall treatment. Her "Architectural Screen," an extremely fine mesh that comes in only one color — steel — won her a 1985 Roscoe, an award given by the fabric industry in recognition of outstanding product design.

Not all of Bellinger's fabrics follow a grid pattern. Along with "Can Can," "Garlands" and "Buzz Buzz" are making their bows in the Bellinger fabric lineup. "Garlands" is a 100 percent silk jacquard floral weave, while "Buzz Buzz" sports a stylized bee woven in wool, although clients are not limited to bees as a design. Names or company logos can be woven into the cloth according to the client's design and color specifications.

Bellinger's inspiration for her designs and color palettes come from many sources, and she christens them with names rich with mood-evoking sensations. Bold "Camp," buffalo plaid, pastel "Skimmer" Belgian linen and dreamy "Pastille" pointelle, "Blue Suede Shoes" blue and "This Is the Army" khaki reflect her sense of humor and independent spirit. Bellinger creates her own eyes and gets hot use color forecast bureaus or color market analysis for her palettes.

"One of the things that's unique about Gretchen Bellinger Inc. is that we do consciously work on stylizing every single fabric and we completely color every fabric," she explained. "Everything we do is made exclusively for us on a speciality basis. I understand the principles of weaving and I can talk to mill people."

While the emphasis has been on Bellinger the designer, she is also a savvy businesswoman with a product to promote and sell. She is closely identified with her fabrics, and on the advice of the advertising agency that handles her account, she has participated in photography shoots for magazine layouts.

ONE SHOT HAS Bellinger reclining languorously on a pile of huge pillows upholstered in "Skimmer" fabric. The day the ad ran coincided with an industry party, and Bellinger gathered a lot of attention, pro and con. "Whatever people said, it generated a lot of controversy and made people stop and comment," she said.

Producing speciality items that reach only 2-5 percent of the market means that Bellinger must choose with care the fabrics, designs and colors her firm will manufacture. She loves all her designs, but they must be able to stand on their own merits.

"When you begin, you jump in just thinking about what you want to do," the designer explained. "But we also have to consider that we are a small firm and cannot introduce a fabric in say, nine colors. We can do three."

Most companies view expansion as a desirable goal, and Bellinger isn't ruling out that possibility for her own firm. But she said that staying small permits her greater quality control and keeps her tightly focused.

What direction is texture design heading in the future? "I'm really playing with bringing texture back and recalling glamour and the kinky attitude," said Bellinger, citing "Buzz Buzz" as as example. "Everything we were very instrumental in (introducing) were flat things, like Limosine cloth and Yachting Cotton."

As for herself, Bellinger never tears running out of design ideas. "My grandmother is 102 and she's full of ideas. Every spring she plants her seeds and she knows they're going to come up again. I think I come from that strain."

Birmingham Temple's 15th annual Art Show and Sale will feature more than 100 artists.

Monte Nagler, recent recipient of the 1987 artist in residence award by the Farmington Area Arts Commission, will be on hand, displaying his photography.

Another unusual artist in the Temple Art Show is Netherlands born doll maker, Ingrid Dijkers.

Her 2-foot-tall dolls are a blend of mythology, folklore and imagination. Head, hands and feet are stoneware, with costumes fashioned of fabrics and trim gleaned from markets and fairs throughout Europe and the United States.

The show, co-sponsored by WQRS, FM 105, will continue 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 21 and 22. Admission is free until noon each day and $2 thereafter.

Birmingham Temple is at 28611 W. 12 Mile between Inkster and Middlebelt, Farmington Hills.

Young Artist competition

Oakway Symphony of Wayne and Oakland counties is finalizing plans for its 1988 Young Artist Competition for the 10th annual year.

Competition, open statewide, includes all instrumental, piano and vocal students.

The Arts Foundation of Michigan has awarded a $1,000 prize for the competition which also will include a $300 Nelda DiBlasi Vocal Award plus additional awards by the Oakway Symphony.

Auditions will be held at Madonna College, Livonia, on Jan. 16-17. Winners will appear as soloists with the Oakway Symphony on Feb. 28 in concert at Madonna.

To obtain rules and application forms, write to the Oakway Symphony, 18549 Levan Road, Livonia 48152 or call 471-7049. Application deadline is Dec. 31.

ANTIQUE ENTERPRISES, INC.
After 5 years of safely removing, transporting and delivering antiques and fine art objects we wish to thank the many loyal customers who have supported us. Our experience in handling your DRESDEN CHANDELIERS, MEISSEN MIRRORS and STUBEN CRYSTAL is exceeded only by our unblemished record in safely conveying the hundreds of paintings, bronzes and wide assortment of delicately crafted pieces of furniture entrusted to us. Your satisfaction with our reasonable rates has sent us to 45 states. (Apparently antique collectors are not attracted by Mississippi, Wyoming or W. Virginia).
Next time you need reliable transportation of your treasures, deal with a small and growing firm that naively believes a customer is not unreasonable in asking for a precise time and date of delivery. Your prized possessions required a skill craftsman to create them. Protecting them by engaging an experienced mover to move them frequently saves grief and money.
By-weekly trips to N.Y.C. make delivery of items to or from Gotham, quick, convenient and reasonable.
If a service like ours is of interest to you, please give us the opportunity to serve you by calling 822-4412
