Jury finds Machacek guilty

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

A Washtenaw County jury found Christopher Machacek, 18, of Ypsilanti Township guilty Wednesday of first-degree murder in the death of Mary Anne Hulbert, 13, of Canton Township.

The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated for six hours after an 11-day trial.

Circuit Judge Henry Conlin set a sentencing date of Friday, Oct. 7. First-degree, or premeditated, murder carries a penalty of life imprisonment without parole.

A withdrawn, pale Machacek sat expressionless as the jury foreman announced the verdict. Machacek's mother and Hulbert's grandmother, the only immediate family members of the defendant and victim in the courtroom, cried as the verdict was read.

Machacek and Steve Stamper, also an 18-year-old Ypsilanti Township resident, were charged with open murder after the Dec. 30, 1986 slaying of Hulbert, a seventh-grader at Stevenson Junior High School, Westland. Stamper's trial begins Monday.

In taped statements to sheriffs, both youths admitted to being at the scene. They blamed each other for the shooting. Machacek and Stamper have been jailed without bond since Jan. 7, 1987, when Hulbert's bullet-ridden body was found in a Superior Township field by hunters.

The youths, both 16 at the time of the killing, were ordered to be tried as adults by a Washtenaw County juvenile judge.

Margie McGarry, Hulbert's grandmother, said sitting through the trial "was terrible."

"I didn't think anyone who heard the tape could have let him go," she said wiping away tears. "It was scary to think they could have gotten away with something like that. That was the bad thought, that they could do it again — and the fact that they showed no remorse."

DEFENSE ATTORNEY Richard Digon said Machacek had nothing to say upon hearing the verdict. "I did most of the talking. I told him not to worry — that we should be reversed on appeal on a number of grounds, even though it's difficult to regard that as consolation," he said.

Digon — who told the jury his client was at most guilty of accessory after the fact — said he was surprised by the conviction.

"I think a lot of people are surprised. I thought the fact that they (jurors) were out so long was a good sign."

Prosecutor Robert Cooper described Machacek's taped statement as "the song of the executioner" in his closing argument. Only the executioner would be able to recount the order and pattern of shots fired, as Machacek did in his statement, said Cooper.

Machacek shot Hulbert because she was pregnant by him and therefore "a problem," Cooper contended. An autopsy showed Hulbert was mistaken in her reported belief that she was pregnant.

Tax rates go down, but you'll pay more

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Since property values rose an average 8 percent this year, taxes for Canton are up even though the rates dropped slightly.

The township's general, police and fire tax rate will be 9.79 mills for 1989. The rate is slightly lower than the 9.80 levied this year.

By a 5-2 vote Tuesday, the Canton Township Board of Trustees approved the lower tax rate. Clerk Linda Chuhuran and Supervisor James Poole voted against the rates.

"My main concern is we pay a lot of taxes in that area, and so far I have nothing to show in that area," said James Sharp of Barr Road, during a public hearing before the decision to set taxes. He said his home was broken into 12 times this year, and he didn't want to spend more for police protection.

TOWNSHIP OFFICERS are assigned to districts that "encompass the entire township such that the police do not allow any portion of that township to go unpatrolled at any time," said John Santomauro, public safety director.

The "bottom line" is that taxes are rising, because property values continue to climb, said Dorothy DeVenny of Craftsbury Court. Special taxes are eating away at incomes especial-

Community center is subject of brochure

A brochure featuring a proposed community center will hit Canton doorsteps before the November election asking residents whether they want to foot the bill to build and operate the facility.

By a 4-3 vote, the board approved paying $2,800 to prepare and distribute an 8 1/2-inch-by-11-inch three-fold informational brochure. Supervisor James Poole, clerk Linda Chuhuran and treasurer Gerald Brown were against the expenditure.

BROWN AND Poole questioned the legality of the township issuing a pamphlet that could affect the outcome of the vote. The ballot question will ask voters whether they want a 20-year 1.2-mill tax increase to pay for an $8-million community center.

State aid Schools seek more money

By Neal Haldane
staff writer

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education is exploring a trio of options in an attempt to increase the amount of money the school district receives from the state.

The school board decided Monday to explore joining two associations representing school districts that receive money from the state, said David Artley, board president.

In addition, the school board plans to meet with local Michigan legislators to see if anything can be done to improve the state aid formula.

A loss of approximately $5 million in state aid for the 1988-89 school year and the defeat of Headlee override requests have forced the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools to lay off teachers, increase class size and add participation fees for student activities.

Joining with other in-formula districts could create more clout in Lansing, Artley said.

"WHAT YOU have had in the past is a voice here and a voice there," Artley said. "Now many school districts have had difficulty passing Headlee overrides and increases in millages. There are many school districts in the same boat."

"If enough people get upset and demand change from the state Legislature they're going to have to do something," he said. "If we start working now for the fall of '89 we may be able to effect something."

Japanese stay was an education

By Diane Gale

Pamela Burton learned a lot about the people and culture of Japan during the year she was there, but her real goal was understanding more about herself.

"There's a lot of experts on Japan, but what's really important is how you integrate that experience for yourself," said Burton, 21.

"The challenge is asking yourself how will I live from now on," she said.

The blue-eyed blonde is striking in any setting, but on the streets of Tokyo she is, to say the least, unusual.

AFTER SUBMERGING herself in the language, culture and lifestyle of Japanese life during the year she spent at Tokyo's Keio University, Burton started to forget that physical difference.

"When you go to Japanese University and live in Japanese housing, you assume you're like everyone else," she said.

"Sometimes I would look in the mirror and shock myself. Or, I'd say: 'Oh my God who is that foreigner?' Or, I'd see another foreigner and just stare," she said, admitting even her English has a slight accent now.

Sitting in her mother's apartment, the 1984 Canton High School graduate points to her school picture. The old Burton had light brown hair and ironically appears much older.

Earlier this month she returned to Brown University to start her senior year in East Asian studies. The time in Tokyo serves as her junior year.

Relax, Garfield, and hang on there

By Neal Haldane
staff writer

As Garfield would say, "Big fat hairy deal." That's how local law enforcement officials view a Battle Creek crackdown on stuffed animals — most notably Garfield — suction-cupped to car windows.

Few people are aware that Garfields, "Baby on Board" signs and hanging dice, for example, are illegal if the items block the driver's view.

Battle Creek police have stepped up enforcing laws aimed at eliminating those items from car windows as part of their department's "violation of the month" program.

"It's a growing problem," said Bud Gryszen, executive director of Michigan Sheriff's Association. "If people were aware it's against the law, probably 90 percent of it would be removed."

BUT INCREASED enforcement is not likely to spread to this area.

"If they are foolish enough to stick it on the windshield, they get a ticket," said Plymouth Chief Richard Myers. "Most people I've seen have them on the left-side, rear window. I don't see them posing a serious vision obstruction in that position."

"I never gave it much thought," said Dave Boljesic, community relations officer for Canton Township. "We haven't determined that to be a major problem."

"I don't consider it a priority," said Plymouth Township Chief Carl Berry. "I can think of better ways of spending taxpayer dollars."

HOWEVER, POLICE do plan to ticket drivers who fail to clear their windshields of snow and ice.

"If drivers scrape off two inches of snow so they can see direct in front of them, we definitely take enforcement action," Boljesic said.

"We have problems with that," Berry said. "While they are waiting for the defroster to defrost the rest of the window, they have traveled through rush hour traffic."

The same goes for snow-covered license plates, Boljesic said.

Other obstruction problems involve "For Sale" signs, hanging dice and darkly tinted windows.

"Those to me are problems," Berry said. "But stuffed animals in windows, I don't see that creating a big problem."

Property values increase tax bill

ly for retirees on restricted budgets, she said.

In dollars and cents, the 8 percent property value increase and the 0.1-mill decrease means a property owner with a house valued at $100,000 would pay about $38.66 more in taxes for the township general, police and fire funds.

The amount is figured by multiplying the township tax rate by the State Equalized Value, which is half the market value.

The rate is broken down as follows: General fund, 1.1 mills; fire, 3.48; and police 5.2 mills.

ADD A 1.9 MILL tax for the library fund to pay for construction of the new building next to township hall on Canton Center south of Proctor. That on another 1 mill for the recently approved Wayne County assessment for a new jail.

Here are other tentative assessments on your tax bill:

Depending on what school district you live in, you'll either pay 36.76 mills (including summer collection) in the Plymouth-Canton School District, 46 mills in the Wayne-Westland schools, or 43 mills in the Van Buren school district, according to Canton treasurer Gerald Brown.

Also included in the bill is the Wayne County operating millage anticipated to be 7.02 mills, Intermediate School District, 1.10 mills; and Huron Clinton Metropolitan Authority, 24 mills.

If you live in the Plymouth-Canton School District you will pay 2.2 mills for Schoolcraft, Community College. If you live in Van Buren or Westland school districts you will pay 1 mill for Wayne County Community College.

If you live in Wayne-Westland schools the total tax rate is 70 mills. If you live in the Plymouth-Canton School District the total is 60 mills and Van Buren schools 65 mills.

With a 70-mill tax rate, the resident with a $100,000 home will pay $3,500 in property taxes, a 60-mill tax rate yields $3,000, and with a 65-mill rate, the resident will spend $3,250.

glitz," said Bob Padgett, trustee. "It should be informative — a straightforward presentation of the facts."

The brochure would show Canton residents what is being proposed, said Mike Gouin, superintendent of parks and recreation.

"My goal is to provide as much information to the electorate as possible," said Gouin in a written request to the board.

"In addition to this brochure I hope to be speaking to as many service clubs, homeowners associations and youth sports organizations as possible in an attempt to educate the voters on this issue," he said.

Anything included in the brochure would put the township "on the hook" to provide it, if the question is approved by voters, Brown said.

The township attorney will approve the brochure wording before it is distributed, as requested by Chubran. Trustees also will approve wording before it's distributed to residents.

THE BROCHURE is a logical next step, said Don Koonits, recreation commission chairman.

"A workup on the facility started two years ago," Koonits said at Tuesday's board meeting. A survey was taken asking residents what they wanted in the building and 73 percent of residents surveyed said they were in favor.

"The people said they wanted a pool and gymnasium," Koonits said. "Now we're saying to the people: Tell us now. Here's the building. Are you willing to pay for it? Let us get pure factual information in the brochure and not an ill-advised one."

If the ballot question is approved, the community center would probably include a pool, gymnasium, banquet and meeting facilities, an indoor running track and workout areas.

It will cost $335,000 to operate and annual revenues are expected to be between $100,500 and $167,500, Gouin estimated.

tax from 4 cents to 6 cents and cutting property taxes as a way to resolve school financing inequities.

The local board of education is looking at the Michigan In-Formula Caucus and a second group of in-formula schools to see if joining either or both of those organizations will lead to changes in the state aid formula, Artley said.

The meeting with state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, has been scheduled Dec. 5.

taped statement, Hulbert called Stamper the afternoon of Dec. 30. Shortly afterward, Machacek and Stamper picked her up in Stamper's truck. Machacek said Stamper drove to a field. Stamper blindfolded Hulbert, stood her against a tree and fired at her repeatedly. Machacek said he stayed in the truck during the shooting, "tripping out" and not knowing what to do.

Machacek said he agreed to help Stamper drag Hulbert's body into some bushes before they returned home. Machacek said he could think of no reason why Stamper killed Hulbert.

Cooper argued that Machacek and Stamper collaborated in humiliating, beating, terrorizing and stripping Hulbert of her dignity.

"She was summarily executed, and all of this because she mistakenly believed she was pregnant by Christopher Machacek and had become, in their minds, 'a problem,'" said Cooper.

"Neither displayed any remorse or guilt in dragging Mary Hulbert to a brush line where she was left to die. They simply didn't give a damn."

ENTERED INTO evidence were two of Stamper's rifles. State police were able to identify just two fingerprints on a semi-automatic rifle — both Stamper's.

Digon called the alleged motive absurd. "It's clear as daylight that this girl had slept with many men. Steve Stamper's relationship with this girl was clearly established."

Cooper's claim that Machacek "wore the shoes of the executioner is nonsense," Digon argued. "My client is admitting to something really bad. It's cold. But it's the coldness of an accessory of a kid."

"Obviously Mary's death is as tragic as any death in mankind. But equally tragic would it be to convict an innocent man on innuendo and unreasonable assumptions," he said.

While waiting for the verdict, Machacek's mother said her son is "really a gentle person with a lot of friends. He wanted to go into the Air Force. He wanted to be a pilot or a mechanic. This kind of shoots that out of the way, doesn't it?"

Deborah Hulbert, Mary's mother, attended each day of the lengthy juvenile and circuit court proceedings. She missed the culmination of the trial because of car trouble.

taught English for $30 an hour, so for the first time this year, she won't have to juggle work and school. It's tough to have to work while attending an Ivy League school, she said, because most other students don't need the extra income.

The money came in handy, too, earlier this year when she toured Taiwan, Hong Kong, Korea, Hawaii and California.

In the United States you confront, Burton said. Cooperation is the key in Japan. "You must be humble about everything that you do."

A Japanese person can prepare an elaborate meal, she explained, and extensively apologize for not having "a food fit for pigs. For that reason it's very frustrating," she added.

BEING AMERICAN Burton didn't believe she was fully accepted. But that has its advantages, too. You can dodge traffic tickets by pretending you don't speak Japanese and sometimes you can get quicker service in restaurants, she said.

There are other rules, too: Assertiveness is out. Looking directly into someone's eyes is considered rude. In Japan people are compared as a group, she said.

"Sometimes you have to stifle your own individuality and you have to go with the group. The Japanese culture is very oblique. You go around things. Americans go from A point to B point. You have to use totally new skills. You throw away values that aren't appreciated there."

Burton tells, however, an unusual story about a Yakuza — member of the Japanese Mafia — threatening her at gunpoint.

"I spoke to him in French — I do that a lot in Japan if I don't want anyone to bother me," she said explaining most Japanese speak English, but few speak French. Her attacker wasn't so easily tricked, she said. Luckily they passed a police car and she attracted their attention.

"Filing a police report was a good test in linguistics," she said smiling. "The police said he was involved in white slavery."

She learned the differences between the United States and Japan by trial and error.

Fall Festival gathers rave reviews from participants

Fantastic.

That's how organizers and participants described goings-on during the 33rd annual renewal of Plymouth Fall Festival.

"It was probably the best we had in years. I had that sentiment from many, many people," said Joe Bida, festival manager.

"I think it was one of the best festivals ever," said Paul Sincok, assistant to the city manager and long-time observer of the event. "The weather was great. The crowds were great. The food was great."

People especially thronged downtown Sunday and Saturday. Community service clubs — Rotary, Jaycees, Kiwanis and Lions — reported good business serving "main meals" during the event.

"People seemed to be happy, and they went away well fed," said William Stahl, spokesman for the Kiwanis.

Most street vendors also earned good money over the weekend.

"OF COURSE, the weather was with us, too," Bida said. "That makes a difference — four days of beautiful weather. You can't beat it. Not too hot. Not too cold."

Three of four fights involving young people broke out in the downtown area, said Police Chief Richard Myers.

"They weren't riots or anything like that. Just a few people fighting," he said. "One made it's way right into our police booth."

Myers said he wasn't aware of any injuries during the altercations.

The fights, Sincok said, "is nothing we don't deal with every year."

Only about 20 cruising-related tickets were issued last weekend, Sincok said.

"There were little problems here and there," Sincok added. "Parking was a premium."

The festival board will meet

Wednesday, Oct. 5, to review this year's event.

"I'm going to recommend we sell something (a main meal) on Thursday before bingo," Bida said. "I'd like to see bicycles eliminated — period — in the park. Even walking them. I saw too many close calls."

Bida said he'd also like to see a Senior Citizen Day on Thursday, the festival's kickoff, with special discounts to spice up a traditionally slow day.

Teens spend time as volunteers at McAuley centers

Kathleen Lauster, 14, of Canton broke her foot last spring and spent a great deal of time at the doctor's office.

Those trips sparked her interest in exploring a medical career.

Lauster, along with Anne Gilmore, 16, spent some of their summer hours volunteering at Catherine McAuley Health Centers.

Lauster, a sophomore at Mercy High School, worked in the admitting and radiology areas. Through her duties, she said she met new people and learned first-hand how a hospital works.

"I enjoyed volunteering," she said. "I just like the fact that I'm helping other people."

Gilmore, a Plymouth Salem High School junior, helped out at the reception desk and in the physical therapy department at the McAuley Health Building in Canton.

"I thought volunteering would be a good idea because I'm interested in science and wanted to see the medical part of science," she said.

Two other Canton teens, Rick Dang and Kim Klask, also spent at least four hours a week this summer at the hospital.

The hospital is looking for more volunteers and has scheduled informational sessions for adults and teens. The next session is 7 p.m. Monday in Classroom 1 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Education Center, 5301 E. Huron River Drive, Ann Arbor.

Another class is 1 p.m. Tuesday. For more information, call 572-4159.

No signal recommended for site of fatal crash

By Doug Funke
staff writer

A study by the state Department of Transportation concludes that a traffic signal isn't needed at the intersection of Ann Arbor and Canton Center roads in Plymouth Township.

The study, which involved a machine count of traffic on both roads as well as a manual turning count, was requested by Trustee Abe Munfakh following a fatal traffic accident at the intersection May 3.

The state recommended against the traffic signal citing:

- Lack of minimum volume of traffic approaching Ann Arbor Road from Canton Center Road.
- Lack of a significant delay problem experienced by Canton Center Road motorists.
- Lack of a correctable accident pattern.

HOWEVER, Munfakh and Police Chief Carl Berry question the validity of the data collected June 7-8.

Because seniors at nearby Canton and Salem high schools were in exams those dates and the roads were not subject to routine counts and going, driving patterns — and traffic counts — probably were affected, they said.

Also, motorists had been discouraged from using Canton Center Road at about that time due to a water main construction project in the area, they said.

"The study would not be valid in my humble opinion," Berry said. "I think numbers... on Canton Center Road aren't true numbers."

Munfakh said he plans follow-up discussions with Paul J. Riley, a traffic and safety engineer for the transportation department.

CANTON CENTER ROAD south of Ann Arbor Road is gravel with one lane in each direction. Canton Center Road north of Ann Arbor Road is paved and leads into a subdivision.

Stop signs are at each end of Canton Center Road where it intersects Ann Arbor Road.

Ann Arbor Road is paved with one lane in each direction at Canton Center Road. A flare right turn lane on westbound Ann Arbor Road leads to northbound Canton Center Road.

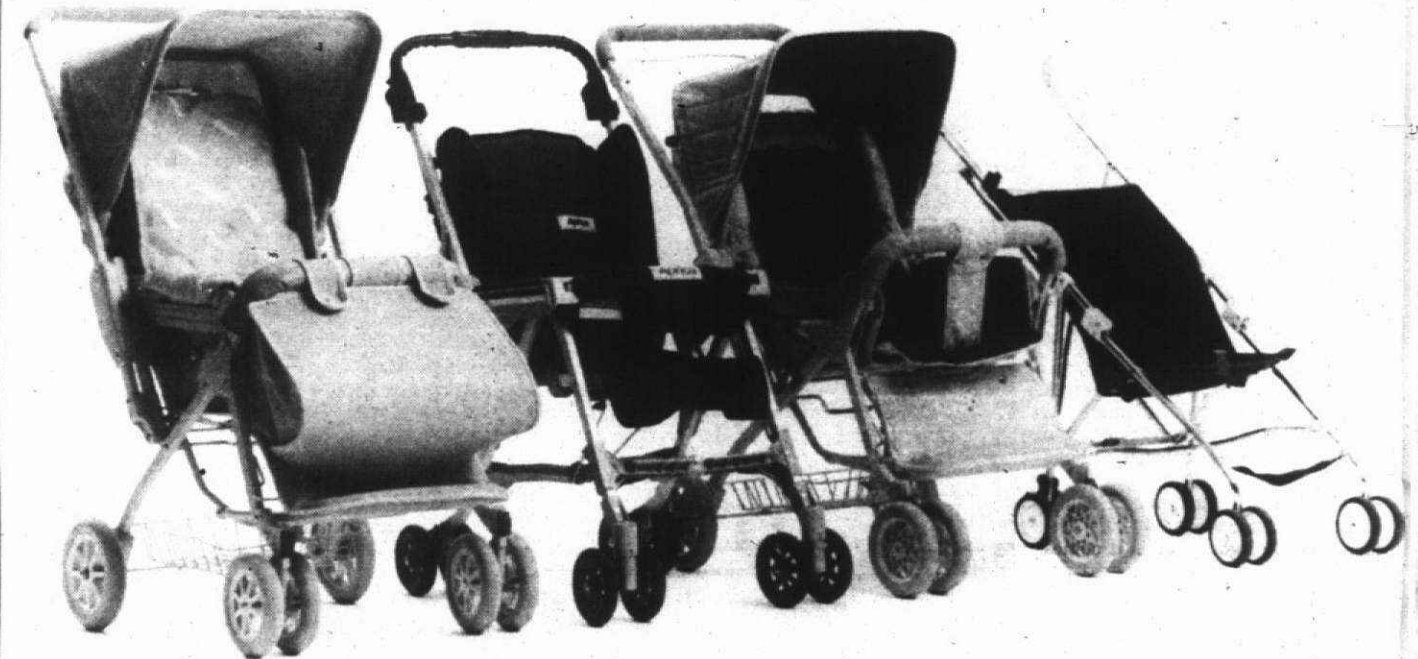

The speed limit on Ann Arbor Road there is 45 miles per hour.

"Certainly the traffic on Ann Arbor Road, does meet sign volume warrants," Riley wrote in letter to Munfakh. "But traffic entering the major street from the minor street (Canton Center) doesn't meet minimum warrants."

Twenty-six accidents were reported in the intersection from Jan. 1, 1980, through Dec. 31, 1987, Riley wrote.

Fifteen were right-angle accidents — "generally considered the type of accident that would be susceptible to correction by traffic signal control," he indicated.

"We find when we reduce some type of accidents (right angle), others (rear end) increase. I'd say we have more rear-end accidents after the signal goes in than we'd reduce right-angle accidents," Riley said.

County's trash plan seeks major changes

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County's proposed waste disposal plan is so up to date, supporters said, it even contains provisions for medical waste.

The county's solid waste implementation committee released the plan Tuesday. It will be presented to the public in November. Committee members hope to have the plan operating by mid-1989.

Illegal disposal of medical and other highly contaminated waste is currently the state's major environmental issue, but it's only one small part of the overall plan.

The county's overall waste problem is much less spectacular; it is running out of landfill space.

"THE KEY to all this is that space won't be available much longer," county commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, said. Mack, whose district includes Canton Township, is a committee member.

Toward that end, the plan calls for a 75 percent reduction in county waste by the year 2000.

The plan seeks to reduce county communities' reliance on landfills. It places responsibility for solving waste problems squarely on communities.

Under its provisions, cities and townships would be required to develop local waste reduction plans.

Recycling and incineration are among recommended solutions.

Two-thirds of the county's 43 must approve for the overall plan to be implemented, though county officials believe that won't be a problem.

"If they don't have a plan of their own, they won't be allowed to use county landfills," Mack said. "That's a big incentive."

Plans would also be required of other communities using Wayne County landfill space, including Oakland and Macomb county communities, as well as those in New Jersey and other states that ship waste outstate.

"We're not sure how much waste from New Jersey is being sent here," Mack said. "But communities would have to have a plan."

According to county projections, each county resident produces as much as 3.5 pounds of waste per day.

The county's chief role would be in providing technical assistance, lobbying the state Legislature for a battery disposal law, authorizing drop-off days for small amounts of hazardous household waste and ensuring that medical waste and other infectious waste is safely handled.

County officials said all county landfill space could be filled as soon as 1991. While some landfill industry professionals disagreed with that assessment, all sided believe severe waste disposal restrictions could begin if the plan weren't adopted.

PUBLIC HEARINGS on the plan will be held Nov. 10 and Nov. 15, though time and places haven't yet been confirmed. Copies of the plan are being printed and will be available to the public within a few days, county public works director James Murray said.

The 135-page plan lists four key goals:

- To ensure the county can meet disposal needs, at least through the year 2000.
- To encourage joint ventures between communities and greater community-business cooperation in reducing county solid waste.
- To foster creative landfill alternatives, including recycling and incineration.
- To assure dangerous waste is handled safely.

Committee members are expected to issue a final draft in December, after gaining public comment. That draft will be given to the county executive, county commission and Michigan Department of Natural Resources, before being sent to individual communities, Mack said.

Communities without waste reduction plans won't be allowed to use county landfills, County Commissioner Milton Mack said.

Anti-casino vote puzzles locals

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Suburban officials are more puzzled than pleased by a proposed ban on casinos in their communities.

Wayne County Commissioners approved a ballot proposal last week calling for a ban on casino gambling in Detroit suburbs if casinos were banned from Detroit.

Supporters of the ballot proposal said it could prevent other communities from luring casinos at Detroit's expense.

Suburban officials, however, said they were unfamiliar with the proposal and surprised the issue was raised at all.

"It (casino gambling) hasn't even been talked about out here," Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said. "Really, it's Mayor Young's controversy."

Andrew Spisak, assistant to Westland Mayor Charles Griffin, agreed. "I don't know anybody out here that's interested in having it," he said.

CITY MANAGER Jon Austin of Garden City said he'd be shocked if anybody approached him about putting a casino in his community.

"We're pretty small," Austin said. "I don't think anybody would even be interested."

Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett said some people expressed concern about "Las Vegas-style entertainment" when the shortlived Omni Star theater opened in his community earlier this year. "But I think that had more to do with the potential for nudity than gambling," Bennett said.

Commissioners approved the issue 9-0 Thursday, though one local commissioner absent from the meeting said he doubted the ban would have any force.

"I don't think it would have any effect," Milton Mack, D-Wayne, said. "The county really has no authority to tell individual communities what to do in a circumstance like this."

Mack, who represents Canton Township, also said he was unaware of any county community, other than Detroit, interested in casinos.

"I don't see any support in the suburbs or the city for casino gambling," he said. "But it seems to me this says that if Detroit can't have it, you can't have it either, and I'm not sure I like that kind of reasoning."

Detroit voters approved a city ordinance banning casino gambling Aug. 2, though state legislators are still debating the issue.

Teacher's goal: positive attitude

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Liking yourself is the first step toward having others like you, according to a local specialist in self-salesmanship.

Liking yourself — maintaining a positive, self-confident attitude — is the key to gaining others' friendship and admiration, Schoolcraft College instructor Fred Richter said.

Though not a Ph.D., the friendly, outgoing Richter is Schoolcraft's resident "Dr. Feelgood" when it comes to giving student attitudes a boost.

He's held his "Selling Yourself" class at least once each school year for the past three years.

The former Livonia resident is also one of the college's men for all seasons. He teaches sales and real estate courses throughout the school year. But the self-salesmanship course is his pride and joy.

"That's my favorite," he said. "I don't think I've had a student yet who's gone out of it without developing a more positive attitude."

When it comes to likeability, Richter said, little things mean a lot.

"A SMILE, saying hello in the morning — these are things that mean a great deal to other people, yet we sometimes forget them," he said.

Richter bases his course on three principles.

"First, I tell students they have to like themselves," he said. "I ask them to sit down and make a list of the things they like about themselves. You'd be surprised how many people have never given much thought to these things."

Liking others more, being more open to other people and their needs, is the next step, he added.

"Sometimes, we get suspicious of others, especially in a big place like Metropolitan Detroit," Richter said. "But we have to realize that the other person is just a scared little pussycat, too. Beneath it all, everyone wants to be liked."

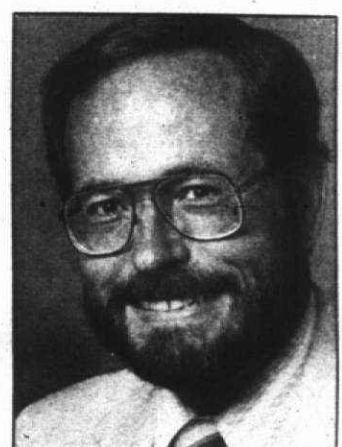

The final step involves getting others to like themselves.

"THE PEOPLE we like best, the ones we respond to most, are those that make us feel good about ourselves," he said.

The course doesn't limit itself to business relationships.

"We also deal with family relationships," Richter said. "Self-awareness is a relatively new area of college study. Students don't receive credit for Richter's class. And, as far as he knows, no college offers a degree in such studies."

Turnout has been good, Richter said, "but my real estate classes draw far more students."

'We have to realize that the other person is just a scared little pussycat, too. Beneath it all, everyone wants to be liked.'

— Fred Richter
Schoolcraft instructor

Richter's own experience was gleaned from the pages of self-help authors such as Dale Carnegie, Wayne Dyer and Leo Buscaglia, coupled with nearly three decades practical experience in product and real estate sales.

"As a salesman, there were things I witnessed over the years that gave me insight into human behavior. Good salesmen seemed to share certain traits," he said. "Plus, I read every self-help book I could get my hands on."

At one time, Richter owned Red Carpet Realty in Livonia. He now runs a real estate office out of his Northville home.

Richter took the self-improvement lesson to heart. After more than 20 years professional experience, he decided to go to college. He first received an associate's degree from Schoolcraft, then earned an accounting degree five years ago from Walsh College, Troy.

"I'm in my 40s, so I guess you could say I was a late bloomer," he said.

Now, it's helping other bloom that gives him his greatest satisfaction.

Selling Yourself will be offered again in November through the Schoolcraft College Continuing Education Services. Additional information is available by calling 581-6400, Ext. 410.30.

Sheriff seeks disqualification

Sheriff Robert Picano has asked chief Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman to disqualify himself from hearing motions in the jail control dispute between the sheriff and County Executive Edward McNamara.

The motion was made because Kaufman is also hearing a prisoner lawsuit involving the jail.

"We felt because he has been so involved with the jail issue, that this would represent a conflict of interest," sheriff's department spokeswoman Nancy Mouradian said.

Commission rejects plan for elected deputy exec

By Wayne Peal
Staff writer

Wayne County Commissioners rejected a ballot proposal Tuesday calling for an elected assistant to county executive Edward McNamara — giving an indirect vote of confidence to the man now holding the job.

elected deputy CEO was a "flaw," said Beard, who represents Westland and Garden City.

But other commissioners saw the motion as a waste of voters' — and their — time.

Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, said he doubted changing the post from an appointed to elected position was legal under state law governing charter counties.

"FRANKLY, I think this is much ado about nothing," said Mack, who represents Canton. "It's a waste of our time."

Beard denied the motion was a referendum on Michael Duggan, McNamara's hand-picked choice for the job.

"This isn't being done because of personalities," she said. It was done, Beard said, to allow voters the chance to select the person who might have to step in as executive.

Duggan, however, saw it differently. "I think it does reflect Kay's attitude toward me," he said. "But the fact that only one person voted in favor of it shows that I do have support among the commissioners."

Appointed by the executive and confirmed by the commission, the deputy executive is Wayne County's "vice president."

The deputy executive would assume the executive's post should the executive leave office for any reason. The deputy would serve as executive until the next general election. As liaison between the executive and commission, Duggan has attempted to sway commissioner opinion on controversial issues such as the county's December solvency package.

He's also handling legal arguments on the executive's behalf in the jail control dispute between McNamara and Sheriff Robert Flcano.

While some have called Duggan's style blunt and abrasive, Duggan defended his record.

"NOBODY'S EVER said I've stabbed them in the back," he said. "My first job is to see the budget is balanced, and I'll do whatever is necessary to get the job done."

At least one commissioner gave the Livonia resident a public vote of confidence.

"I happen to think the deputy county executive is doing a good job," Commissioner William O'Neil, D-Allen Park said. "If I didn't I might feel differently about this motion."

Commissioner Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, said she believed the charter didn't need amending regardless of legality or personality.

"I believe the people are pretty comfortable with the document they approved," she said.

In the end, Beard cast the only vote in favor of the ballot proposal. The motion failed 7-1. A bare majority of commissioners attended Thursday's special meeting, called to debate the single issue.

Commissioners also rejected a second proposal from Beard calling for a special primary and election to fill a CEO vacancy by the same 7-1 margin.

Beard, however, said she might someday raise the issue again.

"I THINK the issue received a good public airing and that's what I wanted," she said. "I think voters will eventually see the need for having an elected deputy county executive."

Duggan is the county's first deputy executive. Former executive William Lucas declined to nominate anyone for the post. Had Lucas been successful in his 1986 bid for governor, county commissioners would have appointed an acting CEO.

IMAGINE DYING FROM A DISEASE YOU NEVER KNEW YOU HAD.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it. Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene. And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

Rally planned for Olympic torch run Friday

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

It's being billed as a giant pep rally for the Stars and Stripes. Cheering, flag-waving patriots lining the streets are what organizers of the metro Detroit Olympic torch run have in mind for the weekend event.

"We'd like to get as many people as possible out to the Livonia Civic Center on Friday evening between 7 and 9 p.m.," said Ron Reinke, director of Livonia Parks and Recreation. Livonia is one of 60 communities between Toledo and metro Detroit to host a jog of the run, which will culminate Saturday in downtown Detroit's Hart Plaza. Saturday is opening day for the summer Olympic games in Seoul, South Korea.

Several former Olympic medalists and local professional athletes will carry the torch for a segment of the 216 kilometer run.

"The run will raise funds for the U.S. Olympic team, but just as importantly, it will show our spirit," Reinke said.

The route includes Westland, with runners traveling north on Wayne Road to Plymouth Road, then west into the city of Plymouth, and turning around and heading east on Plymouth Road to Farmington Road, where the runners will continue north to Eight Mile.

Host and sponsor John Rogin of John Rogin Buick in Wayne said the committee is hoping to raise $60,000 and show the nation enough enthusiasm to consider the Detroit/Toledo area as a possible future Olympic game site.

Local Olympic athletes who will be torchbearers include Norbert Schernansky, a weightlifter and gold, silver and bronze medalist; Cindy Schroeder, a gold medal swimmer; and Shirley Mates, a gold and silver softball medalist at the Pan Am games.

Detroit sports celebrities include Rick Zombo of the Detroit Red Wings, Detroit Tiger Pat Sheridan and marathon runner Doug Kurtis. The Redford Road Runners, with 48 runners under president Randy Step, will accompany and protect the flame along the route.

The Telephone Pioneers of America, Wolverine chapter, provided much of the work necessary to execute the event, which was two months in the planning, according to Rogin.

GMC truck and the Buick motor division are providing vehicles for the motorcade. Motorola the two-way radios, and Little Caesars pizza will feed the participants, Rogin said.

"If it was in one location, (organization) would be a piece of cake," he said. "But it stretches over 216 kilometers and moves through 60 communities."

Rogin praised law enforcement efforts, under the direction of Wayne County Sheriff Ficano, as well as mayors and parks and recreation departments across the metro area for their efforts.

"Without them, there would be no torch relay," he said. "Our main emphasis is not to sell cars and trucks and pizza, but to sell patriotism."

The torch will be lit in Washington, D.C.

4 named to Madonna College board

Madonna College, Livonia, announces four three-year appointments to the college board of trustees.

New to the governing board are Sister Mary Carolyn Ratkowski and Sister Mary Renetta Rumpz. Sister Ratkowski, director of vocations for Presentation Province, the mother house, is responsible for recruiting sisters to the convent. She is a former grade school and special education teacher and a former principal.

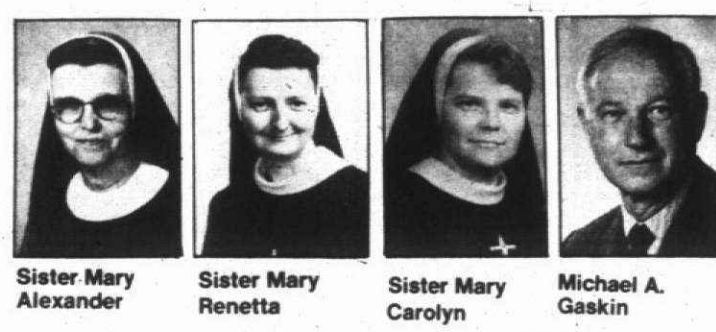

Sister Rumpz is executive vice president of St. Mary Hospital, Livonia. As part of her responsibilities, she coordinated the recent expansion and renovation program at the hospital.

Veterans returning for new terms are Sister Mary Alexander Mikolajczyk and Michael A. Gaskin. Sister Mikolajczyk is principal of Ladywood High School, a post she has held for the past four years. She was an assistant principal at Ladywood for two years prior to that appointment.

Sister Mikolajczyk served as chairman of the Madonna College board from 1965 to 1968.

Gaskin is president of Taylor & Gaskin Inc., a St. Clair Shores company specializing in the material handling and parts washing field. He is returning to the board after a one-year absence, having served from 1981-87.

The board of trustees advises and assists in advancing Madonna College by determining priorities and policies with respect to reviewing academic programming, setting investment guidelines, planning and achieving resource development goals, and approving the annual operating budget.

Recreation

Combine resources for center

ATREMENDOUS OPPORTUNITY exists for a combined effort to resolve some long-standing recreational deficiencies in the Plymouth-Canton community.

But the opportunity could quickly pass if community leaders continue to view their world wearing blinders.

Right now, a number of factors are in play that could lead to a recreation center in Canton and a new YMCA in Plymouth Township. Why not combine the two to create a recreational facility for the entire Plymouth-Canton community?

The idea is at least worth some serious discussion to detail the advantages and disadvantages of such a plan.

And considering what could transpire in the coming months, now is the best time to examine this alternative.

The Plymouth Community YMCA — which serves the city and township of Plymouth along with Canton Township — is moving ahead with plans to build a new facility that would contain a pool, gymnasium and meeting rooms.

A PARCEL of property has been identified in Plymouth Township and Y officials are looking at starting a fund-raising drive in the near future.

While this is occurring, Canton residents are faced with a tax increase request on the November ballot.

If approved, residents would pay an additional 1.2 mills in property taxes for the construction of a community center complete with pool and gym.

Add to these developments the lack of recreational offerings available to Plymouth Township residents.

And throw in the fact that the city of Plymouth has limited land available for expanded recreational programs.

All of these inter-related concerns illustrate the need for a regional approach. The question that needs to be answered is would a combined facility be feasible?

Why not combine the two to create a recreational facility for the entire Plymouth-Canton community?

COMBINING PRIVATE and public dollars and expertise could create a cost-effective solution to the recreational dilemma.

Perhaps the private sector, through donations, could handle the cost and construction of a new YMCA.

Then, local governments could rent space for some of their programs, satisfying demand and providing the Y with some income.

And the Y would finally be able to provide a wider range of recreational programs in its new home.

This plan should satisfy almost everyone. Residents who don't want a new community center won't have to pay higher taxes. Residents who do want to participate can pay the fees and become members.

And maybe this cooperative effort could open the door to future joint operating agreements.

Maybe this approach won't work. But the only way to find out is to review the options.

Ignoring a combined approach could be counterproductive in the long run and leave the communities without any type of recreational facility.

After all, Canton residents have not been known to embrace tax increases. And plans for a new Y have been on the drawing boards for quite a while.

Those involved in these projects owe it to residents to explore the alternatives and come up with the best way to satisfy this recreational need.

Autumn

A time to savor state's beauty

THE ESSENCE of a Michigan autumn can be summed up in one sentence: It's the most brilliant two weeks you'll ever experience.

OK, we admit that may be stretching things a bit. The point is a valid one though.

Fall in Michigan — arguably the best season to savor the state's beauty — is a feast for the senses. Unfortunately, Mother Nature usually steps in and serves up a frosty blast of winter just as we're getting comfortable with "sweater weather."

But Detroit-area residents are also lucky when it comes to fall. Short as the season may be, we're blessed with a long list of autumn activities and events.

Between this weekend and the end of November we can choose from:

The Canton Country Home Tour (Saturday); the Autumn Fest at Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills (Oct. 1-2); "Amadeus" at the Meadow Brook Theater in Rochester (Oct. 6-30); an evening of cabaret at the Farmington Community Center

Fall in Michigan — arguably the best season to savor the state's beauty — is a feast for the senses.

(Oct. 16); and craft shows at Roma's of Garden City (Sept. 25, Oct. 23 and Nov. 27).

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony and other local orchestras begin their seasons each fall, as do most regional theater companies.

For sports fans, high school and college football seasons are kicking into high gear as the professional baseball season winds down.

Then there are the cider mills. A half-dozen dot the map between Plymouth and Rochester.

The best thing about fall in southeastern Michigan is that it's usually just a short walk, bicycle ride or drive away.

Patriotism

Pledge flap raises false issue

WITH ALL of the pressing issues facing a presidential campaign, it is unfortunate that misguided allegations of patriotism — in the guise of mandatory school recitations of the Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag — have received such prominence.

The pledge is a wonderful tool both as a tradition and a reminder of the freedoms that form the bedrock of this community.

But what good is a pledge that must be forced upon countrymen? Does it carry the same value as a loyalty oath signed under duress? Is there not an obvious contradiction between the freedoms in the Bill of Rights and a law demanding that school teachers lead their children, too often in mindless rote, in the Pledge of Allegiance?

There are other troubling aspects of a mandatory pledge: the fact that Jehovah's Witnesses, for instance, abhor such pledges. And what about the children of parents who do not believe in the God mentioned in the pledge?

More important in all of this is the meaning of the pledge. Would it not be better to teach children the meaning of this nation and its Constitution than to force a chant that many don't comprehend?

We should recall that patriotism is not proven by how well one recites a pledge but in how well we carry out the duties of a democracy.

No such mandate in Michigan encourages school teachers to recite the pledge. A mandated pledge is an issue that should be left behind by Republicans. This includes George Bush, whose war record alone shows that he understands the obligations of patriotism well enough that he should not be chiding Michael Dukakis for failing to support a mandatory pledge law.

In this country we applaud figures such as William Tell who refused to bow before a prince, and we recoil from stories of spoon-fed nationalism in the schools of totalitarian states.

We should recall that patriotism is not proven by how well one recites a pledge but in how well we carry out the duties of a democracy. One of those duties is casting an informed vote. Candidates can help us discharge that duty by not being so eager to raise false issues.

Vintage Romney talk rekindles the spirit

THE FLAME is still there. The fire that ignited the Michigan political scene for that short time in the 1960s burns just as bright — just as intense.

Earlier this week, at the Beverly Hills Bar and Grill over on Southfield Road, a group of business folks gathered to listen to former governor George Romney. And they weren't disappointed.

His message was just as clear, just as full of determination and more important, as crucial as ever. For those of us who share his dream, who lived through that time, we walked away feeling a little better about ourselves.

You see, a morning dose of George Romney, the citizen-soldier of American politics, reawakens your commitment to society.

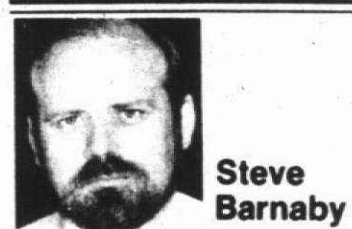

While commitment is passe in popular crowds today, when Romney talks about it, you know better.

For those of you who may have missed the Romney era, we're not talking about some starry-eyed idealist.

Oh no. We're talking about a pragmatist with a dream, a man so full of determination that he rose from humble beginnings to become a leader in the auto industry, Michigan's governor, the secretary of Housing and Urban Development and a sneeze away from becoming president of the United States.

But for the Bloomfield Hills resident, those accomplishments pale next to his work in his church, where

With jaw set, Romney goes on the attack, always on the attack. He jams his finger into the air, piercing it here with an idea and there with another.

Steve Barnaby

he is a national leader, his dedication to his family and his commitment to making the American people realize that they have a role in collectively working together to make the American democratic process work for them.

TODAY he heads a national volunteer organization that he is bound and determined to see transcend the special interest "PAC democracy" that dominates today's political landscape.

When you see George Romney, it's difficult to believe you're listening to a man in his 80s.

With jaw set, Romney goes on the attack, always on the attack. As has always been his style, he jams his finger into the air, piercing it here with an idea and there with another.

Not everyone has always loved this messenger, but they listen to the message. More often than not, business and union leaders wilt under Romney's wrath — much to the delight of white collar workers and rank and file, alike.

His eyes blaze and he implores his audience to action while shaming business, civic and political leaders for being too timid about theirs.

Vintage Romney, some call it. Not everyone has always loved the messenger, but they listen to his message. Romney believes that America will only stay strong if all of us become involved in the decision-making process. If we let special interests dominate the power structure we have only ourselves to blame.

If we want our problems solved, really solved, we must dedicate the time.

George Romney has dedicated his life to solving problems. And you and I are better off for that dedication.

Frankly, today's national leaders pale next to the likes of George Romney. In this case, we can easily answer "Where's George?"

He's out there seeing to it that we take care of business.

Cost figures can mislead

To the editor:

I have read in the Aug. 25 Canton Observer that "Board OKs ballot item for center" by approving language that will appear on the general election ballot, Nov. 8, whereby the voters in Canton Township will be asked to approve a 20-year, 1.2-mill tax increase to pay for an $8 million community center.

You report that a 20-year 1.2-mill tax increase to pay for this proposed community center would cost the owner of a house with a market value of $80,000 (the average price of homes in Canton) $48 per year. This could be totally misleading figure to the voters.

True, the cost of 1.2-mills is $48 per year on a $80,000 assessed value home in 1988. Next year the $80,000, fair market value could have increased $2,000-$3,000, and again the year after that, and year-after-year throughout the next 20 years. The assessment on my home has increased 210 percent during the past 15 years, going from a $19,260 assessed value in 1973 to a $40,410 assessed value in 1988, an increase in dollar value for tax purposes of $21,150.

Should this spiral continue, the 1.2-mill tax increase in 1988 at $48 per year could in reality end up costing a taxpayer over $100 per year at the end of a 20-year period.

For those of your readers who are fully aware of how the tax structure is computed, you would do us a favor to bring to light the facts. Perhaps the facts would motivate complacent taxpayers to register and vote at the polls on election day and voice their choices.

Additionally, I wonder how many Canton Township taxpayers realize that:

1. The 13-15 percent increase in the 1988 assessed valuation as reported by Feb. 22 (and later notified by the township assessor's office) will be reflected in our Dec. 1 tax billing.

2. Also reflected in that tax billing will be the 1-mill approved by Wayne County voters in the Aug. 9 primary election for the building of the Wayne County jail space (1-mill, which on the average $80,000 assessed value home in Canton means $40 additional).

3. I understand that the requested 1-mill for Special Education which did not pass in the August primary election may again be placed on the Nov. 8 general election ballot.

Should this be approved, this will be another $40 added to the December 1 tax bill for the owner of the aforementioned home.

Any tax billing information is not yet available to the taxpayers of Canton Township from the treasurer's office at township hall, and will not be available until after the general election.

In view of the above information which I believe should be published to the taxpayers I wonder if this is the time for our township officials to be considering asking the voters to approve a 20-year 1.2-mill tax increase to pay for a community center in Canton?

Taxpayers, brace yourselves.

Dorothy F. DeVanny,

Traffic woes top concern

To the editor:

We have read several articles recently about further development on Haggerty near I-275. As residents of the subdivision that is located between Ford and Warren on the west side of Haggerty we have several concerns.

1. Residents of this subdivision have voiced numerous complaints regarding traffic using this subdivision as a shortcut through to Haggerty. The cars are cutting through here at high rates of speed to avoid lights at Haggerty and Ford and at Lilley and Ford. With increased development and inadequate roads and traffic signals, it would seem this problem is only going to get worse.

2. Warren between Haggerty and Lilley is not paved. When is this work going to be done — before or after we have hundreds of new vehicles trying to get in and out of that area?

3. Can we expect that employees and trucks from these companies will continue to be allowed to use our neighborhood as a shortcut, disregarding the speed limit and endangering children on bicycles, skateboards, etc.?

4. Is the township council going to take the concerns of area residents seriously before there is any further development?

We sincerely hope that these concerns can be taken into consideration.

Mail's manipulators seek a chain of fools

THE CHAIN letter artists are at it again and, sure enough, as a person whose name seems to be on most of the nation's sucker lists I was among this week's targets. It was a sales pitch mailed with first class postage from New Orleans, telling how I could earn $50,000 or more whenever desired.

Tears of sympathy welled in my eyes in reading the alleged letter writer's tale of woe that in 1983 his car had been repossessed, he was laid off from work, his unemployment had run out and bill collectors were hounding him "like you wouldn't believe."

Ah, but wait. By 1984 he was able to buy a Cadillac for cash, take his family on a 10-day cruise, build a new home in Virginia and now expects to become a millionaire "within the next four to six months." At least, so he says, "Anyone can do the same."

Maybe you got one of these letters too. It defines the gimmick as "a legitimate business opportunity," a perfect legal money-making program. It also claims that by following instructions exactly any participant will receive "well over $50,000 cash, all yours," in 20 to 60 days.

Where have I heard that song before?

THE LYRICS had the familiar line, "Immediately send $1 to each of the five names listed below. Send cash only please."

Then it tells how to change the order of the names, adding your own in the fifth position before sending out 100 copies of the same letter, and even gives the name of a source in Fort Lauderdale where a person can buy sets of names printed on pre-glued labels for $13 per 100.

It strikes me that this price is a mite high, but maybe that's part of the game. In front of me now is an ad from a New York printing company offering self-stick labels at the rate of 250 for $1.99, but there's no "mailing list" come-on involved.

It seems to me that I first heard of the chain letter scam back in my boyhood, and I recall that even my mother fell for it many years ago, much to her enlightened disappointment. It's a ho-hum, here we go again file in any prosecuting attorney's office, but with every new generation there are those who are suckered by it.

I was amused this time by the advice not to put a name and return address on those 100 envelopes, for "this will pique the curiosity of the receiver and they will open it immediately."

"Remember, as 100 copies are through bifocals

mailed by each person that you mail to, the numbers of $1 orders that you receive will grow and grow — it really works," I was told. Sorry, but I have broken the chain.

The five individuals to whom I was instructed to send dollar bills were D.C. Floyd of Odessa, Texas; L.L.M. Ahlquist of Rockford, Ill.; D.C. Wallis of Lancaster, Calif.; Jean W. White of Anand, N.C.; and M.M. Pettis of New Orleans, La.

I never have heard of any of the five, but if you will I'll happily turn my letter over to you and you can become the link they are seeking.

But my curiosity about them did prompt one specific step. Although I haven't printed the individual addresses, I do have them, and I wondered to myself whether these are real people. After looking up the telephone area code for each, I checked to see how many of the five have telephone listings.

The answer was just two, which doesn't prove anything but does make me suspicious and glad I didn't waste the five bucks.

Nursing home residents need companionship too

WE FIGHT to prolong life, but we often drop the ball when providing quality living for the people who make it.

The thought struck hard when I read a letter to the editor earlier this month in the Farmington Observer.

"It's spotless and I get wonderful care," said Margaret McClain, an 80-year-old Williamsburg, Connecticut Center resident. "It's just that it's so lonely. I believe there are 112 patients; few have visitors other than at Christmas time."

"Does anyone out there care?" asked McClain who is clocked 60 years of volunteer service work. Even now that McClain is in a wheelchair and "can hardly see," on Sunday afternoons she plays records for fellow patients.

About a week after her letter ran, McClain received 10 letters, three people called to volunteer time and a Girl Scout troop plans to visit on a regular basis.

"We could always use more people — perhaps to entertain or just to sit and talk," said Sandy Chadek, Williamsburg activities director.

The average daily payment for each skilled and basic care nursing home resident covered by Medicaid is $49.21. That figure doesn't include one. But there are thousands of Margaret McClains in other nursing homes, and statistics show the numbers will be even higher in the future.

By the year 2025, one in five Americans will be at least 65. The fastest growing population group is people 85 and older. One in four people 85 and older will enter a nursing home, the U.S. Census Bureau reports.

Nursing home deficiencies must be addressed now.

The average daily payment for each skilled and basic care nursing home resident covered by Medicaid is $49.21. That figure doesn't include physician care, physical therapy, pharmacy costs and other miscellaneous services, said Dennis Madalinaki, Michigan Department of Social Services director of long-term care settlement section.

In comparison, the state Department of Corrections receives about $58 daily for each prisoner, said Gail Light, corrections spokeswoman.

A YEAR ago, I toured area prisons and was impressed by the extensive work-out areas, educational offerings and other perks.

On the other hand, many Medicaid dependent nursing homes I've visited are less inviting. Some need more recreational opportunities and more staff to provide the extras. Too often even the essentials are forgotten.

Granted, caring for nursing home residents and policing prisoners are different games in different arenas. Prisons have far higher employee costs and security threats are far more costly.

Better care now is like an insurance policy baby boomers can cash in later.

What Farmer Jack Is Doing To Help Protect Your Family...

From Pesticide Residues In Fresh Produce!

Chemical manufacturers and some farm organizations feel dietary dangers from pesticides have been exaggerated, while consumer groups, farm workers and some scientists feel the danger has been understated.

We don't know who is right or wrong on the issue. It's going to take more time and research to accurately determine what adverse health effects, if any, may result from long-term dietary exposure to pesticides. In the meantime, Farmer Jack prefers to be on the side of safety.

Our goal is to offer our customers fresh fruits and vegetables with minimum levels of detected pesticide residues.

Beginning immediately pesticide residue levels on many of the most popular produce items will be tested as a supplement to the testing currently performed by the U.S. Government.

These sample tests will be conducted by NutriClean, an independent scientific certification company, that uses the most advanced technology to provide accurate results.

This will involve samples of fresh produce taken from our warehouse and sent to NutriClean for pesticide residue testing and analysis.

You'll see the NutriClean seal of approval on fruits and vegetables in our ads and in our stores. More items will be added as the certification program grows.

Festival provides fun for all

THERE'S MORE to the Plymouth Fall Festival than food.

The four-day festival is known for its food booths, set up by various community organizations. Meals served by service clubs — including the grandfather of them all, the Plymouth Rotary Club's barbecued chicken dinner — are also an integral part of the fun.

Even so, a walk along Main Street and the surrounding area reveals there are other things to choose from. Entertainment is offered throughout the festival; many festival booths offer something other than food.

The Plymouth-Canton Civitans chose to sell photo buttons. Their booth on Main Street was among those doing a brisk business.

"Business is excellent, the best Friday we've had in years," said Joe Henshaw of Plymouth Township. "We have lots of old friends that come back every year to see us."

Proceeds from the festival fundraising project support "a variety of things in the area," said Henshaw, who represents the Civitans on the festival's board of directors.

PROCEEDS SUPPORT the Special Olympics program and senior citizen projects, among others. Civitans provide some help with medical bills, "to the extent of our budget," he said.

This is the 16th year the Civitans have had such a booth at the festival. Working at the booth is enjoyable for Henshaw, who retired in 1987 from his position as a biology teacher at Plymouth Canton High School. He taught in the local school district for 25 years, and enjoys seeing former students during the festival each year.

"It's marvelous. I enjoy every bit of it." His former students seem to be doing well and progressing in their lives.

"They hardly ever throw things at me," Henshaw said with a smile.

Members of the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women, were selling paperback books from their booth on Main Street. The AAUW also holds a larger book sale each May at Westland Center; proceeds from both sales support AAUW scholarships and fellowships.

Community benefits from her presence

The Plymouth Fall Festival has come and gone for another year. Even so, Lorna Nitz will be busy in the months to come.

Nitz served as a vice president on the festival's board of directors, representing the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women. She also coordinated entertainment for the four-day event.

Other organizations Nitz is involved in include the Friends of the Dunning-Hough Library, the Plymouth Community Arts Council and the Ascension Lutheran Church in Livonia. She's a substitute teacher at the elementary level in the Livonia Public Schools and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Nitz and her husband, Dean, have lived in Plymouth Township for about nine years. They moved here from East Lansing.

"We just love it here." She likes the friendly people and the small-town attitude and atmosphere; there's also a feeling of professionalism.

Nitz came here with negative feelings. She left behind a teaching position she found rewarding.

NITZ WAS teaching kindergarten and first grade in the East Lansing school district. When she left, she and her colleagues were developing a curriculum for non-English-speaking first graders.

The feelings Nitz had when she moved here have disappeared.

"They're going to have to drag me away now."

This is her second year coordinating entertainment for the Plymouth Fall Festival. That involves organizing the schedule and contacting performers.

Most of the performers are non-professionals; the emphasis is on local talent.

"Somehow, they find me." Nitz has found there's plenty of talent in this area; her own contacts help her find performers.

"I do aim for a great variety, things that will appeal to people of all ages."

Nitz will continue to serve on the festival board, although not necessarily in the same capacity. She also represents the Plymouth branch, AAUW, on the festival board and has been an AAUW member for about 24 years.

Plymouth Township resident Lorna Nitz coordinated the entertainment for this year's Plymouth Fall Festival.

For two years, she was that organization's UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund) chairwoman. Nitz has served as a study guide leader, historian and photographer for AAUW. For about five years, she's been the chairwoman for old and rare books for the Plymouth AAUW's used book sale.

NITZ IS A vice president of the Friends of the Dunning-Hough Library. She's been special events chairwoman, coordinating such activities as the children's bookmark contest.

She plans to be active in any organization she joins, and limits herself to four organizations or so.

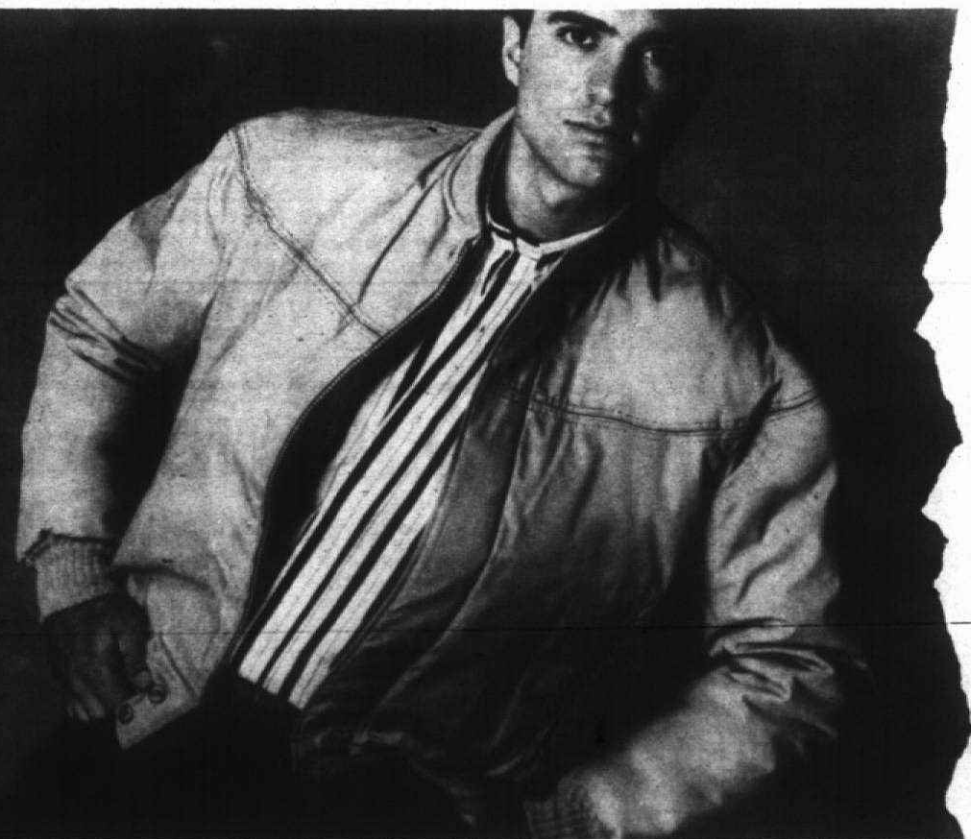

"I certainly like the contact with a variety of people, and I like the actual organizing of events."

Nitz is involved in activities at the Ascension Lutheran Church in Livonia. She works on church history with students ages 11 to 14 or so, covering confirmation-type materials.

Through her church, Nitz teaches a class for adults on the changing family.

Resource Guide covers day care and preschools

Information on day care and preschools is available for the asking at the Canton Public Library and at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth.

Copies of the 1988 "Canton and Plymouth Area Day Care/Preschool Guide" are available free of charge at both libraries.

Copies of the 1988 guide have just arrived at the Canton Public Library, said Sally DeGraff, children's librarian. Information on Plymouth-Canton area day care and preschool programs is included.

Last year, DeGraff and Mary Lou Curtin, then a children's librarian at the Dunning-Hough Library, worked together on the 1987 edition of the guide. The joint effort was a first-time project for staffers of the libraries.

This year's guide includes corrections and updates, along with a few additions, DeGraff said.

LAST YEAR's guide was popular with area parents, she said.

"It went over real well. We've already had a few requests for the new edition," she said.

Mothers make most of the requests for the booklet, DeGraff has found. Many are working outside of the home either part time or full time.

"They're concerned about the quality of the child care," DeGraff said. "There is a great concern out-there about quality child care."

LIBRARIANS AREN'T able to endorse or recommend any day care facility or preschool. Decisions about what facility is suitable are left to parents to make. Information in the booklet was gathered through the use of a questionnaire.

Among the items listed are: location, telephone number and contact person, type of school, hours, ages of children accepted, cost, adult/child ratio, program description, teacher qualifications, transportation arrangements and recommended time to apply.

Work on this year's guide wasn't as involved, DeGraff said.

"But it was still a satisfying project to work on."

Most likely, the guide will continue to be updated each year, she said.

STAFFERS AT the Dunning-Hough Library are also encouraging parents to pick up copies of the guide.

"We have quite a few," said Pam Rawlinson, assistant director. "We do have it available if anyone needs it."

Last year's day care and preschool guide was popular at the library in Plymouth, she said.

"So most people are aware of it." (For more information, call the Canton Public Library, 397-0999, or the Dunning-Hough Library, 453-0750.)

Involvement is her credo

"A lot of my volunteer work is in adult education," Nitz enjoys teaching adults; she also enjoys her substitute teaching at the elementary level in Plymouth-Canton and Livonia schools.

"I had wanted to be a teacher since the second day I started first grade," she never changed her mind.

"I love teaching."

Nitz grew up in Sturgis, Mich. She attended Michigan State University, where she earned bachelor's and master's degrees in education.

SHE AND HER husband moved to Sacramento, Calif., from East Lansing after his graduation from Michigan State. Dean Nitz, a civil engineer, works for the Federal Aviation Administration.

About eight years after that move, the couple moved back to East Lansing. Lorna Nitz returned to Michigan State to work on her master's degree.

Nitz has about 18 years of teaching experience. She's found that experience has made her more confident when speaking to groups. Nitz has been working the last few weeks as a tour guide at Domino's Farms.

She has found that as she speaks to tour groups, she's teaching them about Tom Monaghan's organization.

"It's really an interesting history," she is paid for her work there.

Lorna and Dean Nitz have three children: Joel, 22, a senior at Michigan State studying finance and economics; Susan, 24, a computer engineer with EDS; and Laurie, 26, an assistant vice president at First National Bank in Chicago.

Their daughter, Susan, lives in Dallas, Texas. Laurie and her husband, Stephan Petersen, live in the Chicago area.

"He's certainly a very important part of our family," Nitz said of her son-in-law. A Plymouth native who's an insurance underwriter. Lorna and Dean Nitz aren't grandparents yet, although she's looking forward to that someday.

THE NITZES are in close contact with their children, even though their daughters live out of state. They enjoy visiting their children.

"We've always encouraged them to be independent." Seeing their children be happy and independent is rewarding.

"They've done so well in their personal lives."

When the children were younger, Nitz stayed at home to take care of them. At that time, there wasn't any question that couples would have children. Women didn't generally work outside of the home unless financial circumstances dictated that they do so.

Nitz enjoyed the years she spent with her children. She credits her husband as being a help to her throughout the years.

"He was super-supportive. He encouraged me now and then to do whatever I wanted to do at any time."

When Nitz first joined the AAUW, she'd been out of college for about a year. She and her fellow AAUW members were active in the organization; their work and other responsibilities didn't take up all their time.

"So we had a different kind of time to commit." These days, not as many young women have the time to commit to AAUW and other organizations.

Nitz is pleased young women have expanded career opportunities these days.

"I envy them having those opportunities, but I don't envy the personal choices they have to make." Those choices involve conflicts between taking care of a home and family and pursuing a demanding career.

Festival's full of fun

bers Pamela Dean of Canton and Mary Fritz of Plymouth were working at the booth.

"It's going well," Dean said. "It seems to be people are finding some things they're looking for."

AAUW MEMBERS were selling paperbacks by the inch, something Fritz described as "a new concept." Members measured the books the short way, charging $1 per inch. Customers were given the benefit of the doubt.

"We don't get into pennies," Dean said.

Some people at the AAUW's festival booth were looking for specific titles or authors. Books weren't organized that way, however.

Books by Danielle Steel, Sidney Sheldon and Judith Krantz were among those being sought. Fritz fielded a request for "The Rosary Murders" by William Kienzle, a Detroit-area mystery writer.

Down the street at the Plymouth Historical Museum, members of the Plymouth Historical Society were having a busy day Saturday.

"We've been doing pretty well," said Beth Stewart of Plymouth Township, exhibits and programs chairwoman for the society. The museum was open Saturday and Sunday for the festival; crafts demonstrations were held both days.

"We try to do something a little different than the craft show across the street," Stewart said, referring to the Artists and Craftsmen Show of the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

At the museum, the emphasis is on demonstrating crafts, although some of the craftspeople also sell their work. Sewing, tin-smithing, rug-hooking, printing and lace making were among the crafts on display at the museum.

MEMBERS of the Plymouth Piece-makers, a local quilting group, were demonstrating the art of quilting. A total of 22 craftspeople were hard at work at the museum at different times.

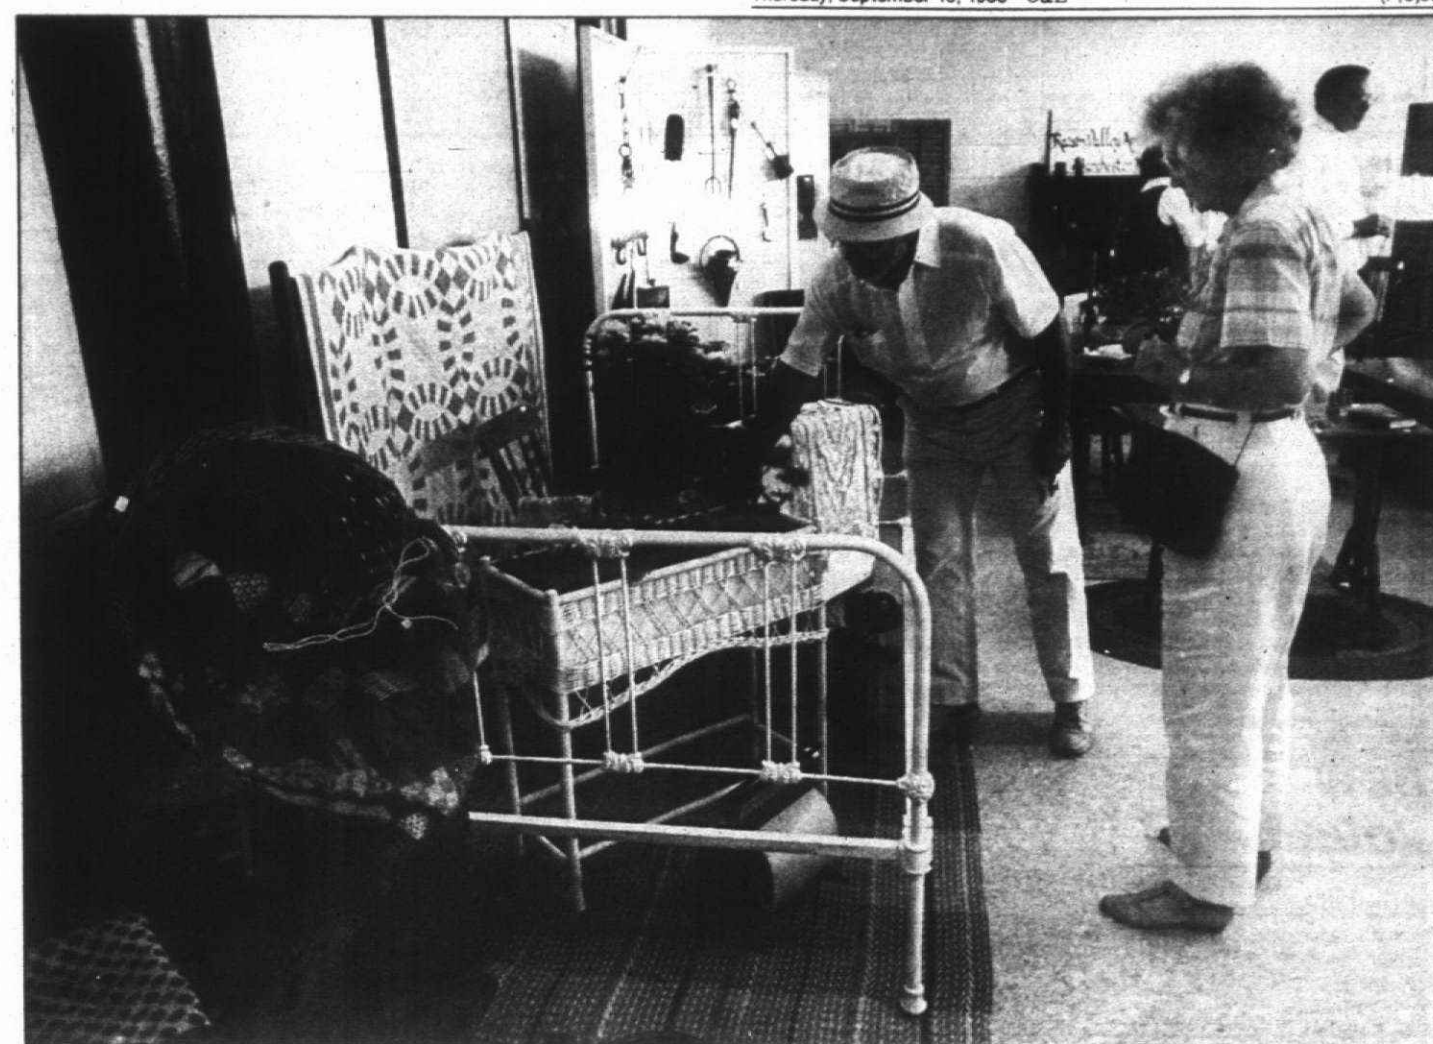

Volunteer guides from the Plymouth Historical Society were also working during the festival, showing visitors around the museum. The historical society is celebrating its 40th anniversary this year.

Across the street at Central Middle School, volunteers from the Plymouth Community Arts Council were putting in a full day Saturday. Saturday and Sunday, the arts council held its Artists and Craftsmen Show.

A total of 92 artists and craftspeople participated, said Carolyn Simons of Plymouth, co-chairwoman with Chris Szary for this year's show. Some of the participants were stationed on the lawn outside the school, although most were indoors.

Many artists and craftspeople from Michigan participated, as did some from South Carolina, Ohio and Arizona. This is the 17th year the arts council has held the fund-raising show, Simons said. She was pleased with the crowds Saturday.

"The weather has been cooperative, and it's been a very nice steady group of people. We're very pleased."

It takes about 200 volunteers — working anywhere from two hours to 150 hours — to put the show together, she said.

SOME OF THE artists and craftspeople at the show were also in earlier PCAC shows. The show is juried each year, Simons said, and participants from previous years aren't automatically invited back.

She found show visitors were in a buying mood.

"They buy the country things, they buy the Christmas things," Dealers Simons talked to were pleased with the show.

When the show started 17 years ago, most participants were home-makers with a hobby, Simons said. These days, many participants have businesses. The show has also grown in size each year.

"It's a large undertaking." Members of the Plymouth Symphony League were pleased with the crowds Saturday during their "Antique Mart." The event, held Friday through Sunday at the Plymouth Cultural Center, featured 22 dealers with a variety of antiques.

"Very good, very very good," said Peggy Blaisdell of Plymouth Township, dealer co-chairwoman for the antique show. "The preview was wonderful."

"I think the preview was very nice," said Cathy Kirkpatrick of Plymouth Township, treasurer for the antique show. "I think the show gets better every year."

This was the 26th annual "Antique Mart." Members of the Plymouth Symphony League are also planning a winter "Antique Mart," to be held the final weekend of the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular in January.

Meredith Pedersen, 16 months, checks out her grandfather's stoneware. Roy Pedersen was among those participating in the Artists and Craftsmen Show at Central Middle School.

Speaker shares the secrets of her success

During her term as president of the Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women, it was Shirley Zeller's goal to increase legislative awareness.

"That's where you can really make a difference," Zeller, who served as Michigan BPW president in 1984-85, worked on that goal throughout her term in office. Among other activities, the Michigan BPW participates in the Michigan Women's Assembly, a coalition of women's organizations.

Zeller, a Jackson resident, was also appointed to serve on the Michigan Transportation Commission while she was state BPW president. She continues to serve on that commission, which sets policy for all transportation in Michigan and approves many contracts.

ZELLER is a quality specialist for Gilbert/Commonwealth, an engineering firm. She was in Canton Monday evening to speak at a meeting of the Canton Business and Professional Women at the Roman Forum Restaurant.

Zeller, a Republican, was an unsuccessful candidate for the Michigan Senate in 1986. She currently is serving as convention chairwoman for the Business and Professional Women's national convention, to be held July 22-27, 1989, in Detroit.

Among other things being involved in BPW helped Zeller become more comfortable when speaking in front of groups. When she first joined the organization, she would speak to the others at her table but was reluctant to speak to the entire group.

For her, the greatest benefit of membership "is the self-confidence that it's built for me and that I've seen it build for others."

The friendships made through membership have also been helpful. "Any place you go, you can find someone from BPW," Zeller said.

"It's just a wonderful network, and I think that's the most important thing."

DURING THE Monday night get-together, Zeller talked about BPW benefits at the state and national levels. Kay Baldrice, Canton BPW president, talked about membership benefits at the local and district levels.

The Monday night meeting was held "just to try to draw women in the community in," said Baldrice, a Canton resident who teaches English, journalism and publications at Franklin Junior High School in Wayne.

Canton BPW meetings are held the second Monday of each month at the Roman Forum Restaurant, 41601 Ford Road, Canton. Social hour is at 6 p.m., with dinner at 6:30 p.m. and the program following.

For Canton BPW membership information, call Mary Breckon, 961-2242, Ext. 307.

The Plymouth Business and Professional Women will meet Monday, Sept. 19, at The Pied Piper Restaurant, 39305 Plymouth Road, Livonia. Cocktails will be served at 6 p.m. with dinner at 6:30 p.m. The speaker will be Dorothy E. Jones, chairwoman of the Michigan Women's Commission and assistant director of the UAW's Women's Department.

At the Plymouth BPW meeting, Jones will discuss "How to have it all — or is that a myth?" Deadline to make reservations is Friday, Sept. 16. For reservations, call Shirley Nair, 349-2969.

Meet one of our toughest customers.

Don't let this innocent look fool you. A sick child can be the most demanding of patients. One that requires care that goes beyond medical science. Care that includes a reassuring touch. A calming voice. The ability to explain procedures in terms you and your child can understand. And we even encourage a parent to stay overnight.

It's all part of the care your child will receive at Oakwood's Women and Children's Health Care Center. Where our pediatricians, nurses, and specialists in family practice are committed to make your child comfortable. By taking the time to get to know your child, we can deliver the necessary treatment in a way he or she responds to most favorably. And we urge parents to participate in their child's health care program—because it can help both you and your child feel better, sooner.

To care for acutely ill children, Oakwood has a Close Observation Room. It is equipped with special pediatric monitors and other sophisticated equipment that makes it easier for us to give those with serious illnesses or injuries the extensive care they need.

When you choose one of our pediatricians or family practitioners, you'll have available all the sources of Oakwood Hospital, a 615-bed teaching facility in Dearborn. For a physician specializing in women and children's health care, call our Physician Referral Service at 1-800-543-WELL.

And get in touch with the people who find their greatest satisfaction in treating tough customers like this one.

Sister elected to head order

Sister Mary Cynthia Strzalkowski of Livonia was recently elected superior general to head the Felician Sisters (Congregation of the Sisters of St. Felix of Cantalice) at the close of the community's 19th General Chapter in Rome.

Strzalkowski will administer the affairs of the congregation and its membership of more than 3,100 sisters ministering nine countries in four continents.

At the time of election, Strzalkowski was serving as provincial superior of the Felician Sisters of Livonia. She will conclude her duties with the Felician Sisters of Livonia and leave for Rome on Oct. 11.

"I think it gave me a good insight into the ministry that we Felician Sisters give to the church," said Strzalkowski about her 12 years as an administrator in the Livonia province. "That's the prime thing. I'm very much looking forward to the challenge of this."

STRZALKOWSKI SAID one of her first tasks as superior general will be to discuss the recent revisions in the constitution of the Felician Sisters with a team of six general coun- cillors recently elected by the 45 delegates representing the congrega- tion's 12 provinces. Her main goal will be to provide "service and leadership" to the congregation.

"I hope I can do that successful- ly," she added.
Prior to becoming provincial su- perior in 1982, she was provincial councilor and director of education for the Livonia province and had been principal and high school teacher at Felician-staffed schools in the Archdiocese of Detroit.

Strzalkowski attended Detroit St. Hyacinth School and Felician Academy before earning a bachelor's degree from Madonna College along with master's degrees from the University of Notre Dame and Stanford University.

The new general superior will be assisted in her responsibilities by six general councilors.

FELICIAN SISTERS of the Livonia province attending the general chapter as elected delegates included Sister M. Francine Van de Vyver, Sister M. Janice Ziokowski and Sister M. Dennis Glonek.

The Felician Sisters are represented in seven provinces in the United States, three in Poland and one each in Canada and Brazil and have founda- tions in France, England, Italy, Kenya and the Northwest Territory.

The Felician Sisters of the Livonia province currently serve in the Archdiocese of Detroit and the dioceses of Saginaw, Lansing, Kalamazoo, Gaylord, Marquette, Fort Wayne, South Bend and Toledo.

Loved one leaves the gift of life

My father died this week. He died in a hospital intensive care unit where he had spent the last 75 days of his 84-year life.

He was hospitalized in June with a diagnosis of viral pneumonia, and with the complications of emphyse- ma, was put on a respirator within three days. He was given all the medicines known to have an effect on such conditions of body, but the pneumonia was as invasive on the day of his death as it was on the day of diagnosis.

Death did not come quickly for my father. There were moments, and even days, where the practice of medical arts and care offered a respite of his struggles, and a slight glimmer of hope. The power of death and disease is relentless, and in the end, it permitted no challenge to stand unchallenged.

Hospital intensive care units do not pretend to offer the comforts of life. One must be alive before one can live. One must be able to survive before one can prevail. Breathing tubes, feeding tubes, suction tubes, injection tubes, discharge tubes, heart monitors, et al. will not provide the delight and fullness of life. They only try to make it possible for one to survive for that in another day.

Rev. Lloyd D. Buss is pastor of Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester Hills.

My father was a farmer. Born on a farm, he lived his entire life, except for his last 75 days, within a mile of his birthplace. He is not listed in any published list of famous or promi- nent people. His death and burial is an event of family and local dimen- sions.

The legacy my father leaves to life is of ultimate meaning and purpose. His struggle for life in the midst of death's way is a gift of hope and grace. All that he had used in a testimony to life's worth and blessedness. My father has died, but life goes on. Life is the gift he leaves in death.

The Rev. Lloyd D. Buss is pas- tor of Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester Hills.

Bea Cole and Melvin Gibson cut the 50th anniversary cake recently at the Church of Christ of Plymouth.

Plymouth Church of Christ marks 50 years of worship

Some 50 years ago, people of Church of Christ of Plymouth met for the first time in the apartment of two of its members.

Recently past and present mem- bers of the church gathered to com- memorate that spring day in 1938 with an array of activities. They also marked 25 years at the present loca- tion at 9301 Sheldon. Charter mem- bers Bea Cole and Melvin Gibson participated in the festivities.

The celebration began Saturday with an informal gathering of the congregation to welcome back six former ministers: Milton Truex,

Identity management

Creating a graphic symbol to tell a corporate story

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

When two Troy-based publishers merged earlier this summer and formed the Yellow Pages Publishers Association, the familiar walking fingers used to promote the phone book's yellow pages nearly took a final hike.

After lengthy consideration, the fingers were relieved, subtly altered to better reflect the merger and the future of the new firm.

When four entrepreneurs went into direct competition with a former employer last year and launched a computer leasing company in Bloomfield Hills, a strong corporate identity was essential to set the new firm apart.

The firm, Encore International, adopted a geometric logo.

And when Detroit City Airport, recently renovated and expanded, needed a new image to announce increased airline flights, it adopted a logo displaying an encircled aircraft ready for landing.

Corporate logos — walking fingers, stylized geometrics or landing aircraft — are the graphic identifiers of a firm, the design trademark by which consumers, employees, financiers and others identify and respond.

Time tested, logos are making a comeback after nearly two decades of flagging use, witnessed by the re-emergence of Borden's Elsie the cow and Mobil's flying horse.

LOGO DESIGN involves a "search process" aimed at corporate identity, according to George Sepetys of Farmington Hills, president of the Comark Group. Comark is a graphic design subsidiary of the Detroit-based public relations firm, Anthony M. Franco Inc., and has full access to Franco's services.

"The question is how far do you go in the search?" Sepetys asked.

"The key is strategy. The better the criteria, the more successful the search," he said, answering himself.

Typically, Sepetys and associates follow a three-step process, beginning with the gathering of corporate information and concluding with a developed design.

The middle step, developing design criteria, is the heart of the search in which "we list a half dozen (corporate) attributes reduced to one-word adjectives like conservative or liberal, soft or hard."

The criteria serves as a "scoreboard" by which each design is measured, according to Sepetys.

In deciding to alter the walking fingers for the Yellow Pages Association, eight criteria were considered, including possibly the most important factor, the association's future flexibility.

As the electronics industry continues to grow, today's printed yellow page is apt to become tomorrow's phone call or television screen. The new walking fingers reflect the possibility. They are displayed in a contemporary electronic field.

IN ANOTHER INSTANCE, the design used by the Farmington Hills-based Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance, a cameo of the firm's namesake, was "tailored to fit" corporate offices. Script type was added to Alexander Hamilton's familiar cameo.

Combining the two is a move away from industry influence of the past 20 years in which it was considered "basically wrong" to combine design and wording into a single, two-part logo.

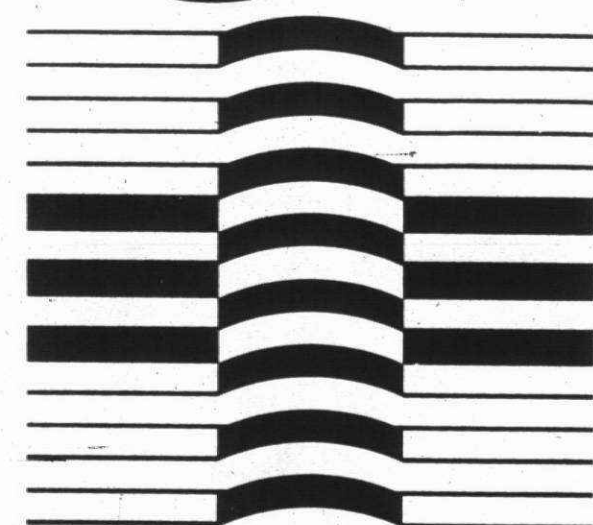

A research study published in the late 1960s called two-part logos confusing, requiring twice the comprehension on the part of the public. Design cannot stand alone, the report continued, unless millions are spent to explain its meaning.

The Red Cross and the swastika are the only two designs of the 20th century in which design alone successfully communicates the information that is intended, according to the report. Sepetys adds the peace sign to the list.

The trend away from graphics influenced such corporate giants as Xerox Corp., Allstate Insurance and Montgomery Ward, firms that adopted now familiar logos containing only unique name configurations.

The trend also influenced Sepetys. Comark has no design logo.

WHETHER A NAME is used alone or with a graphic, a logo design must include consideration of the socio-economic system, the corporate structure and how it relates to the audience, according to Sepetys.

Developing a firm's logo is "much more than sitting at a drawing board and drawing pictures. The process must define corporate culture and then implement it."

"A good graphic has a quality, a charisma that is somewhat engaging. It's an abstract qualifier that's difficult to describe," he said.

It must also be adaptable to stationery, literature, signs, vehicles or any use as required by the company for which it is designed.

Comark is one of only a handful of area firms able to perform services leading to logo design, according to Sepetys, who said Comark is in a unique position because of the company's relationship to Franco. Franco is able to provide specialized backup services.

The corporate-identity concept was founded in 1946 by the New York-based firm of Lippincott & Margulies, now considered the "grandfather" of the industry, according to Jill Gabbe of the firm.

"The identity business and identity management is a very small, very specialized niche in the world of communications. While many firms claim to offer full-service identity programs, few have the means to provide it," Gabbe said.

Most major companies in Michigan, such as Comerica and Unisys, go out-of-state for such services.

Brokers couple personal, professional relationship

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Last November, financial consultants Dorothy Cruger and Jim Bond forged a double partnership.

First, they married.

Then the pair combined their financial expertise to form an account team, merging client lists and providing expanded services at Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. in Southfield where both are brokers.

"Investors are more sophisticated today. At least, they're asking better questions. And one broker has a hell of a time keeping track of everything," Jim Bond said of the team approach. He is credited with being one of the first in the industry to implement the concept when it first evolved in the mid-1970s.

Dorothy said the team approach is "positive" because investors receive twice as much information.

"If one of us misses something, the other can pick up on it," she said.

The Bonds' clients are privy to the experience of Jim in options, bond portfolios and annuities, and of Dorothy in personal and group retirement and investment planning.

WHEN WORKING with new clients, they begin the process by submitting separate investment proposals. Jim's are normally more conservative than Dorothy's. He concentrates on annuity investments. She includes stock investments.

A surgical nurse, a novice in investments, told the Bonds the separate proposals were useful. By providing her with two approaches, it became a learning process.

The approach is also well received by couples, according to Dorothy, because each has a financial adviser of the same sex.

Jim's list of clients, forged over 19 years in the business, include physicians, attorneys and an occasional pilot, professionals who earn salaries enough to permit investments, and small business owners who have extra cash.

Dorothy's clients tend to be engineers and others in high-tech jobs, many of whom were developed as clients in Dallas where she worked for E.F. Hutton for three years before marrying Jim.

BOTH BONDS list a number of single women as clients, new divorcees or widows who tend to be middle-aged and have investment cash from settlements or insurance. And 15 percent of their business is corporate retirement accounts.

The Bonds describe their investment style as cautious, their financial outlook as conservative.

Their clients also tend to be fiscal conservatives: attorneys whom they describe as ultra conservative, physicians and engineers who are becoming more so than ever before and business owners who are cautious but once committed, remain loyal. Pilots tend to be risk-oriented.

Today's investor is also nervous, wary, confused and scared, according to the Bonds, due to the Oct. 19 crash of the stock market, world trade imbalances and new U.S. tax laws.

Of the stock market crash, "Nobody up here jumped from the win-

Heating firms fight Consumers

A Farmington Hills heating and cooling firm and a statewide coalition of small businesses want a court to stop a proposed Consumers Power Co. residential service plan.

The suit was filed in Ingham County Circuit Court by Day & Night Heating & Cooling Co. and the Michigan Coalition Against Unfair Utility Practices (MCAUUP). It charges that the plan would violate antitrust and consumer protection laws and would mislead the utility's customers.

"If allowed to proceed, Consumers Power Co. could totally dominate the home heating repair business in a short period of time and drive hundreds of small companies with thousands of employees out of business," said MCAUUP co-chair Clifford R. McCourt, owner of Day & Night, the Farmington Hills firm.

Consumers Power Co. is expected to make the $49 Heating Security Program available to its customers later this month.

A HEARING to seek a preliminary injunction against Consumers Power is scheduled for Oct. 26 before Circuit Judge Lawrence M. Glazer in Ingham County.

"We think their case is totally without merit," said Consumers

Power spokesman Kelly Farr, "and we will fight it vigorously in court."

Farr said three other gas utilities

— Michigan Consolidated in Detroit, Southeast Gas in Port Huron and Citizens Gas in Adrian — "have had similar programs for quite some time" without driving small companies out of business.

The residential service plan initially would be offered to customers in the suburbs of Detroit, including the Oakland communities and the Livonia-Plymouth area of Wayne County, and the tri-cities of Saginaw, Bay City and Midland.

MCCOURT SAID that for a one-time fee, the residential service plan would replace defective parts for up to a year, at no extra charge, if a covered customer's gas furnace or boiler fails to operate, according to Consumers Power documents provided to MCAUUP.

MCAUUP represents hundreds of heating, cooling, electrical and plumbing contractors, suppliers, and related trade unions and associations. Its complaint says that Consumers Power's heating security program would result in violations of the Michigan Antitrust Reform Act and the Michigan Consumer Protection Act.

"The law prohibits Consumers Power from using its monopoly advantages, such as mailing lists, billing and credit information and equipment purchased by ratepayers, to compete against free enterprise businesses," said Edwin M. Bladen, Lansing attorney representing MCAUUP and Day & Night Heating & Cooling.

McCourt said he believes Consumers Power does not intend to maintain the low price of the program, but intends to raise prices, once competition is suppressed, to recoup losses it incurs, according to the complaint.

ACCORDING TO the complaint, Bladen said, Consumers Power's customers subscribing to the program:

- Will be falsely led to believe they are purchasing an insurance plan approved by Michigan law.
- Will be falsely led to believe that the program has greater coverage than it really has.
- Will not be fully informed of the terms and conditions of the heating security program in clear and simple language.

Bladen said Consumers Power representatives have stated that the start-up costs for the plan are subsidized by the utility's ratepayers — a charge the utility previously denied.

dows," but not from lack of trying. Jim quipped, "Up here" is a windowed office on the 18th floor of 2300 Town Center.

"OCT. 19 was a very humbling experience for the American public. Mental attitudes have changed. It's a different market with different players. If you want to be a player and be protected, you have to be conservative."

"Today's climate is not how much you make. It's how little you lose. Investing is a mental thing, a comfort level," Jim said.

Today's investor, according to Dorothy, "wants a reasonable return without a whole lot of risk." Jim likens the investment process to "mathematics. You find those people looking for a return and you help them get there."

Depending upon investor needs, Dorothy recommends zero coupon treasury bonds in IRA accounts and zero coupon municipals in regular accounts for the compounded rates of return that are earned. Jim recommends annuities because they are simple, safe and defer income until it is needed. They call certificates of deposit, good short-term investments because they offer a "high comfort level" and current interest rates are good. Both Bonds advise investors to diversify and caution against stock speculation.

"I've never seen anybody make money as a trader," Jim said. The Bonds prefer blue-chip companies that are "undervalued or overlooked," like Ford Motor Co., Digital Equipment or AT&T.

He attributes the volatile nature of the stock market to international trade imbalances and currency rate exchanges.

THE BONDS caution against buying a second home purely for investment reasons. "With the new tax law, the second home up north is no longer such a good deal," according to Jim.

Dorothy said that under the new law, "the only shelter you really have is your home. The only real deduction is kids."

Both say new laws mean less cash in the pocket.

Jim, a vice president at Shearson Lehman Hutton where he is one of the firm's top annuity sales executives, has a master's degree in business administration from Wayne State University.

Dorothy, a second vice president at the firm, has a degree in business administration from Pace University in New York City.

Both have conducted numerous seminars throughout the country, he on option strategies, annuities and conservative investment planning and she on financial planning and preparing for retirement.

Odds favor Japanese in auto partnerships

American auto manufacturers have been lining up Japanese "partners" lately the way middle school students eye members of the opposite sex across the gym at an after-game mixer. There's some potential but not much of an idea about what's going to happen next.

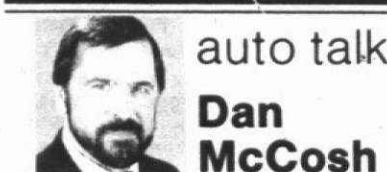

Ford's deal finalized last week with Nissan Motor Co. Ltd. to build a joint-venture plant near Cleveland to build front-drive mini-vans sets up a slightly different scenario for the so-called "transplants," as these Japanese-capitalized U.S. manufacturing facilities are being called lately.

For one thing, rather than make a big deal about learning the way of the Japanese in building cars, Ford has retained management control of the plant. This may not be too significant because the only other Nissan facility in the United States, the big truck-car plant in Smyrna, Tenn., was set up by former head of Ford manufacturing Marvin Runyan, with the assistance of a bunch of guys from Ford of Mexico.

It might be more significant that Ford's current management took the joint-venture approach, which costs less but likewise limits profit potential, particularly for a type of vehicle that is one of the hottest things going in today's auto industry. This is a repetition of the deal with Mazda to build Probes in Flat Rock in yet another joint-venture facility.

FORD IS SIMPLY sticking with its game plan not to get into the plant-building game of chicken that is being led by General Motors and Japanese manufacturers, which could well lead to severe overcapacity. This kind of discipline was something Msrs. Peterson, Poling, et al learned the hard way during the 1970s when gonzo plant building led to a collapse and considerable vacant real estate — including the building eventually occupied by Mazda.

Regardless, it's ironic that Ford today has the hottest product lineup of any single company in the U.S.

market, much of it in limited supply but maintains strict control on expansion.

In fact, it may be even more significant that the new mini-van will be designed and engineered by Nissan. It's partially a reflection of the curtailment of Ford's domestic engineering activity during the 1970s recession. Later, Ford has been engineering two cars overseas for every one in Dearborn, and the trend is likely to continue. But up to now, the major programs have gone either to Ford divisions overseas or Ford affiliates such as Mazda, rather than direct competitors such as Nissan.

There are other reasons why the joint-venture plants make for some uneasy hand-holding. GM's highly publicized effort with Toyota in Fremont, Calif., is stumbling for the old-fashioned reason the cars somehow missed their intended market. Even more interesting is the upcoming Chrysler-Mitsubishi joint venture in Belvedere, Ill., where both Mitsubishi and Chrysler are counting on the new sports coupe being produced there to create a bright image for their respective sales operations — the problem being that both companies are selling the identical car.

Since the output of the joint-venture plant is not restricted under Japanese export agreements, and sometimes opens a route to export to Europe as well, the benefits to Japanese manufacturers are obvious. The benefit to the domestic partner likewise is obvious — it saves investment money and reduces risk.

But I'm starting to think the setup is like walking into a casino. Win or lose in the short run, the odds eventually will favor the Japanese.

Good distribution system is no fluke

The best distribution system does not happen automatically. Someone must plan the system to ensure that ideal market exposure occurs.

Generally, ideal market exposure should make a product or group of products available to satisfy targeted customer needs but not exceed them. Too much exposure would only increase total distribution and marketing costs.

There are three degrees of market exposure: intensive distribution, selective distribution and exclusive distribution.

Intensive distribution is selling a product through all suitable wholesalers or retailers who will stock or sell the product. Cigarettes are typically handled through intensive distribution by at least a million outlets nationwide.

SELECTIVE distribution is selling through only those wholesalers or refocus: small business

tailers who will give the product special attention. This method covers the broad band of market exposure between intensive and exclusive distribution.

Selective distribution policies might be used to avoid selling to wholesalers who have a poor credit rating, requests too much service or does not have a strong marketing orientation.

Exclusive distribution means selling through only one middleman in a particular geographic area. Rolls Royces and Lalique crystal are handled by only a limited number of middlemen across the country.

CHANNEL SYSTEMS compete with each other. The "battle of the brands," for example, can be seen in a broader context as only a small clash in the battle between various channel systems.

Ultimately, a successful channel system must deliver the goods and services demanded by targeted customers at reasonable prices.

From an organizational standpoint, involvement in an existing channel system should also prove profitable over both the short and long term.

Engel's another sweet character

Georgia Engel, who won two Emmy nominations for her TV role of Georgette, stars as Charity in "Sweet Charity" at the Birmingham Theatre. Musicals are nothing new to her — she's played in many of them, including shows on Broadway and Off-Broadway.

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

GEORGIA ENGEL, fondly remembered as Georgette in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" — one of television's finest comedies — doesn't look a day older than she did when playing the role of the flirty innocent with a practical bent.

She's in Birmingham now, starring on stage as another sweet character, Charity, dance hall hostess of the Broadway musical hit "Sweet Charity." Charity, though, is maybe not as bright as Georgette but she's certainly lovable.

"Charity runs all the depths of emotion," Engel said backstage in an interview during a break in long rehearsals for the Birmingham Theatre show. Engel has a fresh quality and being wide-eyed is just a part of her natural expression, except when she closes her eyes while responding thoughtfully to a question.

She's also got a dazzle of a constant smile. Hey, she sounds just as sweet as the characters she plays.

And the way she sounds — that voice, tiny and wistful. "People have been telling me all my life I sound peculiar," she replied when asked about her vocal quality. But to Engel, she sounds just like herself, and just like anybody else.

"I love my work," she said repeatedly during the interview. Engel described herself, "I'm a very private person. I'm active in my church and I teach Sunday school." She didn't go into detail about her private life.

DAUGHTER OF A Coast Guard admiral, she and her family moved every two years when she was growing up. She was born in Washington, D.C., and has lived in many other places, even including Michigan for two early years.

As an adult, she has lived in New York, commuting to the West Coast as TV or other roles have required. Her performing career began early, and in high school she attended a special school for the dance. "I started heavily into dancing by the time I was a teenager," Engel said. She appeared in many high school productions.

"In high school, my last two years were at the Washington School of Ballet, which is now defunct. We had academics in the morning, dance in the afternoon and rehearsals at night."

Her dance teacher encouraged her to go into musical comedy. While her friends were rehearsing for ballets, she was sent on casting calls for musicals. When Engel went to college, "I did tons of productions." She was a good student and graduated after three years, a year ahead of her class.

Following graduation at 20, she worked at the Washington Theatre Club, then went into an Equity Library production of "Lend an Ear."

THAT ROLE LED to an audition for the Broadway production of "Hello, Dolly," starring Ethel Merman. Engel got the role of the hatshopkeeper's assistant. Then she appeared Off-Broadway in the original production of "House of Blue Leaves," which went to Hollywood.

That resulted in her being cast as Georgette in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." She joined the show in the third of its seven years on television. The show ended in 1977. "That was 11 years ago," she said, as if to emphasize the time was much further back than we realize.

Did she help develop the character of Georgette? Engel gives most of the credit to the writers. "They were brilliant writers," she said. "It was a collaborative effort. They took a little seed of all the people and magnified it to make it larger than life."

"Sweet Charity" had only a week of rehearsal in New York and a second week in Birmingham before the scheduled opening. The show runs through Sunday, Oct. 16. It's a big show, with "a marvelous group and a marvelous ensemble — the dancers. There are 26 in the company. Charity can't do it without everybody's help," Engel said.

Others in the cast have lots of costume changes, but Charity stays in the same dress. "It's her uniform, a little black dress." In one part of the show, 15 local children selected from a group of about 60 who auditioned recently will appear. "It's when she (Charity) says, 'Someone loves me' — a big brass band number," she said.

BEFORE COMING TO Birmingham for this show, Engel worked on a movie in Maine called "One for Sorrow, Two for Joy." She said, "I have a small character role in it. I look about 20 years older. I have a Tammy Wynette red hairdo. My friends didn't recognize me."

Engel, who looks impeccably groomed, said, "It's a great, wonderful character, kind of bedraggled looking." She hopes that role, of a woman who owns a diner, will lead to other character parts.

Before the movie, she was in Canada, appearing in a Broadway comedy "The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940." Prior to that, Engel was in Atlantic City for four months, starring in "My One and Only." She played the lead role. Previously, on Broadway, she had played a smaller role in the same show.

Engel said her specialty is comedy. "I love the way I love to make people laugh." Beyond that, when it comes to what kind of roles she plays, she said, "I take whatever job I get."

She doesn't have anything lined up right after her stint in "Sweet Charity," but said whatever job she has, a few weeks into it. "I usually have something else pop up."

Sonoma wine auction keeps guests together

More than a year ago I reported observations of the 1987 Napa Valley wine auction in California, a highly polished, organized, civilized and sometimes glitzy event. Just the kind of thing one would expect from this enclave of prestige and wines.

The Napa auction is more than an auction. It is a series of intimate parties and showpieces hosted by individual wineries to display their largesse and allure.

The auction itself, the culminating event, can at times seem anti-climactic to the evening's spreading over four carnival-like days and nights.

This year it is Sonoma's turn to be reported, and a most different kind of event it is. Instead of a four-day bash of events, parties and dinners, lectures, outings and luncheons scattered over the valley, the Sonoma event has a more homogeneous flavor.

Only once during its four-day duration do the guests separate to go their separate ways to luncheon or other activities. The rest of the time, it is a 500-800 people party, changing venues from mountaintops to sedate hotel grounds to an auto rally, all the while holding the audience together as a community, loosely federated.

BECAUSE of this Sonoma became a place where friendships are formed and participants are made aware of being part of an extended family operation.

People have more fun at the Sonoma auction. I suspect that this is true for the valley residents as well. Things are more serious in Napa. Wine is all they have. Sonoma is a vast, sprawling farm community where grapes are important but share the attention of its residents with extensive production of grain, meat, poultry, seafood and dairy products. The new Prohibitionist movement is an irritant in Sonoma, in Napa a nightmare.

Nearly $300,000 was raised for the Sonoma County Wine Library and the Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital from the auction itself, a separate barrel auction for wine futures and the registration fees paid by people from around the nation. Top bidder for the white event was a gentleman from Sun Valley. The event and his paddle cost him $14,300. The top single bid was $4,200 for a poolside barbecue for 40 people and a full pallet (60 cases) of wine, all offered by the Glen Ellen Winery.

Sonoma is a vast, sprawling farm community where grapes are important but share the attention of its residents with extensive production of grain, meat, poultry, seafood and dairy productions.

A Santa Fe resident bid $8,700 for a barrel of Iron Horse 1987 pinot noir. Let's see, at six ounces per serving that is... As they say, "Don't think that way. This is for Sonoma!"

Those interested in attending next year's event, a truly fine show, should contact Linda Johnson, Sonoma County Winegrowers Association, 50 Mark West Springs Road, Santa Rosa 95403. Telephone 707-527-7701. The dates, Aug. 10-13, are sure to sell out well in advance.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to spend this time, and more, in Sonoma and Napa and not acquire several nuggets, facts and opinions. For example, there are again some new wineries opening in both in spite of the rigorous controls that county officials are imposing in a fervent attempt to prohibit expansion of the industry beyond that land's ability to accommodate it.

Sonoma now has a showpiece operation that will soon rival and perhaps surpass neighbors Jordan and Domaine Michael for opulence in the just-opened Ferrari-Carano property on Dry Creek Road.

Top of the line technically, it will shortly boast an entertainment center, culinary delights abounding and beautifully maintained grounds and vineyards around its huge but tasteful winery building. And the chardonnays they have so far produced are among the finest to come from Sonoma. A family operation, its scope is phenomenal. And open for visitors.

OF AN ENTIRELY different scope are two other family operations: Richard Arrowood's (of Chateau St. Jean) winery in the upper valley and the Melim Vineyards on Chalk Hills Road are now releasing wines, the former demonstrating conclusively that he can still make superb chardonnay and cabernet sauvignon on his own as well.

Fastest-growing winery (exploding) is Chalk Hill, turning into a giant. Just a couple of years ago it was a second label from a small producer.

Salem sinks struggling Canton, 5-2

Marc Lipke of Salem beats Canton opponent Rick Menary to the ball in Monday's soccer contest. The Rocks were on the offensive most of the night, eventually taking a 5-2 victory and improving their record to 4-2.

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Salem no longer has a youthful, inexperienced soccer team. Just six games into the season, the Rocks have quickly become a poised, veteran ballclub. At least, they are playing that way.

Salem won its third straight game Monday night and avenged its loss in the consolation game of the Plymouth Invitational by defeating Plymouth Canton 5-2.

"I knew we could take Canton after Brother Rice," said coach Ken Johnson, who saw his team improve its record to 4-2.

After losing to Redford Catholic Central in a shootout and dropping a 4-2 decision to the Chiefs on Sept. 3, the Rocks bounced back to beat Livonia Franklin and Birmingham Brother Rice, both by 2-1 counts, on back-to-back nights.

"THIS TEAM IS incredible," said Donovan Nichols, one of only three seniors on Salem's team and a true veteran, after he scored two goals Monday. "Everybody goes 100 percent."

"We've got a lot of young players, and there was some doubt at first. They were nervous, hesitant, but they're really coming around."

Canton, a team that began the season with much promise and still expects to contend for the Western Lakes Activities Association crown, has slipped to 2-3-2.

"This is going to give us a big boost," Nichols said. "If we had lost, we would have been down. But we feel nobody will be able to beat us if we play the way we did tonight and against Brother Rice."

Johnson began the game using Nichols, a defender, to mark Canton standout Kerry Zavagnin, but a sore leg that kept Nichols out of the tournament game, prevented him from fulfilling that role.

Johnson, realizing that "wasn't going to work," recalled the job senior Troy Giacherio did in the first meeting and assigned him to cover Zavagnin, putting Nichols in the forward line.

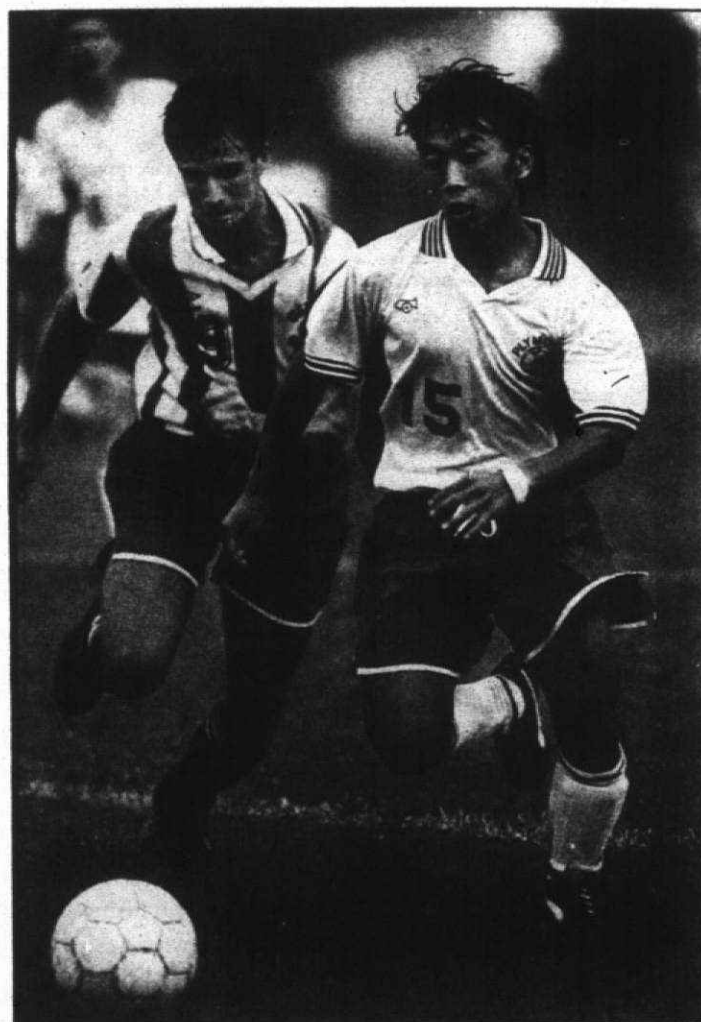

THE RESULT was Giacherio kept his opponent from scoring, and Nichols notched a debut for the first time in his high school career.

The Chiefs pulled even with 24½ minutes left in the game when John Cortese scored from close range, making the score 2-2.

That happened less than 30 seconds after Salem's Bill Joker slammed a shot off the left post, and the sudden reversal gave the Chiefs the momentum and a needed lift.

But the advantage gained from that sequence was short-lived as the Rocks recovered and scored the last three goals, putting the game farther out of reach for Canton each time.

"We died; we went to sleep," Canton coach Mike Morgan said. "I was expecting to ride that emotion, but Salem held its ground. They kept firing; they were hot."

"Out of 80 minutes, I'd say they controlled the play for fully 60."

THE DEADLOCK lasted for the next six minutes until Salem's Jason Santos rushed up and fired a rebound back at the net after teammate Jake Baker hit the right post.

Andy Cosenza made it 4-2 when he lined a ground shot from the right side at 11:13. With 3½ minutes left, Nichols finished off the Chiefs with his second goal, drawing out goalkeeper Marty Adamian and knocking it past.

"There are things you do and don't do when you're deep in your own end," said Morgan of the fact Canton has struggled defensively. He noted the Chiefs have given up 18 goals thus far. "That's not a team that plays real air-tight defense."

"We've just been getting beat to the ball," he added. "We're a ball-control team, and if we don't have the ball then we're chasing. And that's what we did — chased all night."

Salem struck first and led 2-0 before Dave Presley's high, careening shot got under the top of the net late in the first half. The freshman also scored three goals Saturday as Canton tied Brighton, 3-3.

Marc Lipke converted a pass from Greg Christensen to open the scoring, and Nichols boosted the lead with his straight-on kick with 15:24 remaining. Matt Gold had two assists, Santos and Chris Olson one apiece for Salem.

THE ROCKS, WHO have six new starters on a team dominated by juniors and sophomores, have made fast progress without one of their top players, junior Jeff Gold, who has been out all season with a broken ankle. He is expected to have the cast removed next week, Johnson said.

Ocelots prevail in opener

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

The Eastern Conference season-opener for Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team, at Lakeland Community College, arrived last Saturday, bringing with it a valuable lesson in perseverance.

"We were just dominating," claimed SC coach Van Dimitriou. But it didn't show up in the scoring column until the two squads battled through overtime. Only then did the Ocelots' superiority count, in the shape of a 5-3 final score.

"It was frustrating," said Dimitriou. "The way our guys were coming at them . . . we had 15 shots (on goal) to their five."

But at the end of regulation, the score was knotted at 3, thanks to some lucky bounces off several players that put the ball on the foot of LCC's Todd Atkins, with only Chris Moore between him and the game-tying goal. Atkins won the showdown, although Moore disputed it.

"HE THOUGHT (Atkins) was offside, so he let up," said Dimitriou of Moore's play. "But the ball had deflected to (Atkins) off one of our players."

Which negated the offside and, with five minutes left, allowed him to tie the score. But in OT the Ocelots prevailed, putting the ball past substitute LCC keeper Steve Shields twice.

Left midfielder Jason Potvin got the first, converting a pass from Todd Nichols — who had a spectacular day, scoring two goals himself and assisting on two others — five minutes into the first extra session.

Center midfielder Pete Ritsema punched in an insurance goal from in front of the net after a pass from Brian Thomas.

Chances for victory took a sharp turn downward for LCC early in the second half. Goals by left wing Brian Rich and Tony Viscovic put LCC in front 2-0 early; Nichols' first goal, on a rebound of a Joe Messier shot, cut the deficit to 2-1 at the half.

Open champ juggles life at home and on the road

SUCCESS HASN'T SPOILED Carrie Cunningham. Not yet, anyway.

That's not to say it hasn't had an effect on her. It would be impossible to remain unchanged by the fast-paced lifestyle engulfing her.

Cunningham, just two weeks into her junior year at Livonia Churchill, is leading a charmed life. She is the envy of her classmates. And, as such, it should be no surprise that she will never be — nor can she ever be — your typical 16-year-old.

She is something special.

On Sunday, Cunningham routed 15th-seed Rachel McQuillan of Australia 6-3, 6-1 to capture the U.S. Open girls' singles tennis championship at Flushing Meadows, N.Y. Cunningham was seeded ninth, yet steamrolled through the tournament without losing a set.

IT WAS the biggest victory of her still-young career. But by Tuesday, it hardly showed.

"When I played in the main draw, I was really nervous," said an almost-bored Cunningham. She lost her first match in the open division to Terry Phelps. "I was intimidated by the professionals, but I grew more comfortable, more confident as I went on (in the junior division)."

"I wasn't nervous because I wasn't expected to go far, so there was nothing to be nervous about."

Listening to Cunningham talk Tuesday about a case of nerves seemed as silly as listening to politicians talk about balancing the federal budget. Nerves and Cunningham were foreign to each other.

C.J. Risak

WITHOUT DOUBT, she is a girl living two lives — one on the road, traveling the world to the beat of a bouncing tennis ball, and one at home, studying, talking to friends and playing with Fila, her cat.

On Tuesday, two days after her biggest victory, she was in mid-metamorphosis, transforming from Cunningham-the-tennis-star to Cunningham-the-high-school-kid. Which may explain why she seemed so detached from her stunning accomplishment.

Yes, she is a prodigy. She not only leads two lives — traveling tennis star and high school student — but she handles both with exceptional prowess. She was ranked No. 2 in the 16-and-under division nationally entering this year and was seventh in the nation in the 18-and-under group.

Her career took her to Australia for 1½ weeks in January, to Miami for a week in March, to Houston for a week in April, to Europe for the month of May . . . and then summer, the busy part of her schedule, arrived.

"I WAS ONLY home for three weeks the whole summer," she said. Hardly time to develop like a normal 16-year-old, right? Not that Cunningham minds.

"I wouldn't know what its like any other way," she said. "But I like the way it's turned out (for me)."

"Actually, I think it's been good for me. A lot of my friends sit at home with nothing to do. My parents got me into tennis to occupy my time. But I never thought it would be like this."

With such a budding athletic career, it would be almost excusable if Cunningham-the-high-school-kid was shoved into the shadows and forgotten. After all, she misses large chunks of school while on the road. Her academics are bound to suffer, right?

"I've got a 4.1 grade point," Cunningham-the-high-school-kid confessed. "It's over 4.0 because I've taken some honors credit classes."

ODDLY, SHE receives no private academic tutoring, and in spite of her lack of time in the classroom she still excels. Her private lessons are all athletic.

Cunningham-the-tennis-star has three coaches — Joe Fodell, Armand

Big day on tap for prep teams

Big weekends are in store for many Observer-Lakes swimming and cross country teams. The Western Lakes Activities Association will have its annual girls swimming relays at Plymouth Salem, and Schoolcraft College will host its 22nd cross country invitational.

The swim competition begins at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The cross country gets started earlier the same day with the girls race at 9 a.m. and the boys event at 9:50 a.m.

North Farmington won the WLA swim relays last September and went on to claim the league championship in November.

The Raiders, who became the only team other than Livonia Stevenson to win the relays and later unseated the Spartans as WLA champion, are minus All-America Cindy Cramer this year and don't have the veteran team they did a year ago.

NONETHELESS, the Raiders, with swimmers such as Kerry Doran, Laurie Oswald and Christie Duthie, will be one of the teams to watch in the relays, which serves as a tune-up for the dual-meet season.

In addition to Stevenson, other top contenders appear to be Plymouth Canton, which features two all-area swimmers in Nicole Drake and Cassie Cummings, Livonia Churchill and Northville. Farmington, the host Rocks and Farmington Harrison are other capable teams.

North, which edged the Spartans 226-224 last year, won the 400 medley, 200 breaststroke, 400 individual medley and freestyle relays. Salem's Dawn Shaek and Jodi Thomas return from the team that won the 200 freestyle.

Churchill was third, followed by Canton, Northville, Salem, Harrison and Westland John Glenn in the top eight places.

In cross country, Farmington will attempt to win its fifth consecutive boys championship at Schoolcraft. Coach Jerry Young is optimistic after his team finished third in the West Bloomfield Invitational.

"We have a couple kids with knee problems," he said. "If we keep them healthy between now and Saturday, I think we've got a pretty good shot."

The Falcons are led by seniors Brad Moore and Paul Brandt and sophomore Ben Goba. Walled Lake Western may have the best runner in the state in senior Brian Grosso, who was runner-up last year.

OTHER CHALLENGES could come from Plymouth Canton, the 1987 runner-up, Plymouth Salem and Wayne Memorial.

Defending WLA champion Canton looms as the favorite to repeat as the girls winner. Fourth-place Lori Penland, Lydia Schendel, Missy Jasnowski, Sherry Figurski and Cathy McCabe scored for the Chiefs last year, and all but Figurski are back this season.

Farmington, second a year ago, should be among the contenders again, and Michelle Gayne of Redford Bishop Borgess returns to defend her individual title.

Madonna schedules tougher foes

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

If final records are as far as you go in deciding a team's success, then it's safe to say you'd rate last season's Madonna College volleyball team as something special. But this season's team would come up far short of your expectations.

Such an impression would be wrong. In its initial season of volleyball, Madonna posted a 20-9 mark in '87. Impressive, sure, but it came against rather mediocre opponents. It will be different in '88, according to coach Jerry Abraham, when Madonna embarks on its first NAIA season. "The schedule is really going to be tough," said Abraham. "We're really an inexperienced team, and this is our first year in the NAIA. We're playing a lot of tough teams."

AMONG MADONNA'S NAIA opponents are Northwood Institute, Aquinas, Hillsdale, Saginaw Valley

volleyball

State, Siena Heights and Spring Arbor. Hillsdale and Saginaw Valley are both members of the Great Lakes Conference, a highly regarded NCAA Division II circuit that produces two NCAA II tournament qualifiers in '88.

But Abraham is not discouraged. "Next year," he said, "the schedule will be twice as hard as this."

On Thursday, Madonna played Kalamazoo College at Redford Bishop Borgess and lost the best-of-five match in three straight games, 16-14, 16-14, 15-7. "We had five freshmen out there," said Abraham. "We're almost starting over again. We have three returnees, and they're only sophomores."

But Abraham has recruited some talent. One of his top players is sophomore Marie Cervantes, a 5-foot-7 do-it-all from Redford Bishop Borgess ('85 grad). "She's the most experienced player we have right now," said Abraham.

HIS OTHER sophomore returnees are Roseanne Krach, an outside hitter, and Joy Pitrono, a backup setter and defensive specialist. Both are from Trenton.

Two freshmen who have been impressive so far are Livonia Stevenson grad Jenny Sladewski and Borgess grad Kristy McFadden, the team's tallest player at 6-1.

A player Abraham is anxious to get into action is Wendy Spencer, a junior outside hitter who will become the team's elder statesman when she becomes eligible. Spencer played the last two seasons at Schoolcraft College, but there is currently a problem with transferring some of her credits.

Yet, as Abraham noted, "There's not a lot of standouts, so we've got to emphasize the team."

And he must keep building. "The recruiting process is difficult. Madonna isn't known for its sports. It's going to take a little time, and I'm a little impatient myself."

A winning record would probably be too much to ask for from Madonna this season. But with a couple of good recruiting years, Abraham could change that in a hurry.

Rocks nearly upset Okemos

Anybody who thinks Plymouth Salem isn't still a force to contend with in girls basketball should take a close look at Tuesday's result.

Though the Rocks lost on the road at Okemos, they gave the unbeaten Chiefs and No. 8-ranked team in Class A a good fight before falling 58-51.

"We played well enough to win," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "We just couldn't finish the game out."

The Rocks, 2-2, had the lead late in the first half but trailed 26-25 at halftime.

Salem reversed that and led 40-39 entering the final period, extending its margin to 43-39. But Okemos came from behind and was ahead by 12 points before the Rocks closed the gap at the end.

"I thought the effort was there, the desire was there," Thomann said. "The skill level has to get better."

"We never got both (the team offense and defense) cooking for long periods of time, and that against good teams."

basketball

Senior guard Jill Estey was at the forefront of Salem's upset bid, scoring 16 points, and senior forward Teri King had her highest scoring output of the season with 13 points. Lydia White added nine. Center Joann Poletas scored a game-high 29 points for Okemos, 5-0. The former perennial Class B power got another 11 from Amy Zack and 10 from Lynette Rasmussen.

"We're still a little bit away from being able to deal with the top teams in the state," Thomann said. "Hopefully, we'll be able to correct that and keep coming."

The Rocks are idle until Tuesday when they play Walled Lake Central in the Lakes Division opener.

Canton harriers 3rd

Plymouth Canton placed second and Salem third at the Ypsilanti Early-Bird Invitational for boys cross country teams last Thursday.

Monroe won the meet, scoring 15 points, followed by Canton (66) and Salem (70).

Mike Ream, a sophomore, had Canton's best time, recording 17:40 for ninth place. Brian Beach came in 11th, clocking 17:51. Four other Canton runners finished under 19 minutes — Matt Hall (18:02), Brian Callon (18:05), Jim Gallagher (18:25) and Jason Napolitano (18:46). Canton's Brad Hibner crossed the line at 19:13.

Fourth-place Temperance Bedford accumulated 109 points and Livonia Stevenson, Observerland's other entry, came in fifth with 125. Host Ypsilanti failed to get a wake-up call for the Early-Bird meet, dropping out of the competition without enough runners.

Wayne cagers topple Rams

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Gary Schwan could only smile following the hair-raising finish.

His Wayne Memorial team scrapped and battled to a hard-fought 50-49 overtime victory over Wendy Jamula and Taylor Center in final Saturday of the Romulus Girls Basketball Tournament.

"I told them they had to play 32 minutes as hard as they could and as it turned out they had to go 35," said Schwan. "We paid the price to win this game. It was a great win for us."

The game was a rematch of last year's district finals when Taylor Center prevailed in a four-point spread.

Both teams returned for the 1988 season with basically identical starting casts, but it appears Wayne has made the greater strides during the off-season.

Wayne went into the game with a distinct height disadvantage as the Rams' front line consisted of the 6-foot Jamula, one of the top juniors in the state, 6-3 junior center Jennifer Miller, and 6-1 sophomore forward Tila Thomas.

JAMULA DID everything for state-ranked Taylor Center including dribbling the ball up the floor against Wayne's bounding man-to-man defense. She led all scorers with 24 points before fouling out with 1:56 left in overtime.

But Jamula had little help from her teammates until the latter stretches of the game.

After Carlatta Dancy sank two free throws with 3:06 remaining in regulation play to give the Zebras a 43-38 advantage, Taylor clawed back with seven seconds to go when Miller sank her first free throw to make it 44-41.

Miller then missed her second attempt as Jamula grabbed the rebound, only to miss a short baseline jumper with only two seconds remaining.

maining, sending the game into OT. In the overtime, Wayne got baskets from Antoinette Hixon and Maya Lewis to grab a 48-44 advantage, but both fouled out shortly after as Taylor Center answered with four straight free throws to tie it with just under 1 1/2 minutes to play.

That set the stage for a nail-biting ending as each team was hampered by turnovers.

Dancy's two free throws with 1:21 remaining provided the final margin of victory. But Taylor got the final crack at the game-winning shot (thanks to a Wayne turnover) after closing the gap to one on a free throw by Sis Guth with six seconds remaining.

Both teams returned for the 1988 season with basically identical starting casts, but it appears Wayne has made the greater strides during the off-season.

DANCY, a senior guard, paced the Zebras with 20 points, while the 5-6 Hixon, assigned to guard Jamula all evening, added 13. Center Shontel Spires, who also fouled out, contributed 10 points.

"We had two people on the floor at the end of the game that had never played for us," said Schwan, who is on the verge of turning around Wayne's program. "We needed a tight game like this because this can only help us later in the season. We're only going to get better."

"The Wayne coach called Jamula a 'big-time player.'"

"Antoinette did an outstanding job on her (Jamula)," he said. "She's our best defensive player."

"Our plan was to make it hard Jamula to get in position to score. We just hoped we didn't have to guard when she was posting up."

"And offensively, we felt we could be aggressive because we're small. Against better people you've got to gamble."

Surprisingly, Wayne held its own on the boards thanks to the relentless rebounding of the Dancy sisters (Carlatta and her 5-5 sister Carlatta, along Lewis, Spires and reserve forward Doris Bathwell).

It wasn't quite David over Goliath, but it was pretty close.

Modano leaves Stars in contract dispute

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The Minnesota North Stars, last in the Norris Division and one of five teams that failed to make the National Hockey League playoffs last season, appear off to a bad start even before they play their first exhibition game tomorrow night.

Westland's Mike Modano, the top pick overall in the June NHL draft, walked out of camp last Friday. He and Dino Ciccarelli, the team's top returning goal scorer, are absent. Both are embroiled in contract disputes with North Stars general manager Jack Ferreira.

Modano's agent, Howard Gourwitz of Southfield, was scheduled to meet with North Stars management early Wednesday.

But according to Ferreira, the two sides are "still a long way apart."

"Every time we think we have one part closed (in the contract), something else crops up," Ferreira said. Modano reported Friday to the North Stars' training camp facility at Wings Stadium in Kalamazoo. The 18-year-old center, who played juniors last season for Prince Albert, Saskatchewan in the Western Hockey League, went through a physical examination, but returned home shortly after the evaluation.

"Mike and I decided, and we

Steelers open with 3 victories

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers opened their 1988 season Sunday with a triple victory over the Canton Lions.

The freshmen posted a 15-6 win, highlighted by touchdown runs of 23 and 15 yards by Randy Mack.

Steve Mydlowski, Eric Yaklin and Mike Hirth combined for a quarter-back sack that gave the Steelers a 2-0 lead to start the game.

In the junior varsity contest, Scott Valmont decided a close game when he broke loose for a 60-yard scoring run in the fourth quarter, the Steelers winning 6-0.

The varsity never looked back after Jason Krueger returned a punt 60 yards for a first-quarter TD as the Steelers claimed a 26-6 victory.

Matt Horn scored twice on runs of 21 and 15 yards. Eather Renz added a 9-yard scoring run and Joe Herman booted a two-point conversion.

Ocelots succeed in opener

BUT SHORTLY into the second half, LCC had to find a new keeper. Pete Barac went up to block Nichols' attempt to head a corner kick in front of the net. There was a collision and Barac landed on the side of his foot, fracturing his leg. Without a proven backup, LCC turned to Shields — normally a defender to take over in goal.

Ten minutes later, SC had tied the score, and 15 minutes after that, the Ocelots were ahead. Nichols accounted for the first score, thanks to another through pass from Messler. They went ahead 3-2 when Thomas, who played both wing and midfield, knocked in a pass from Nichols.

Which might have been a crowd-pleaser, but just served to extend SC's day. The final result, though, was pleasing enough. Dimsion will try to keep his Ocelots on track Saturday when they play at Detroit College of Business.

line and what are they going to think the longer he stays out?

"And every day he's not in the competition (at training camp), that's going to make it that much more difficult. The longer he stays out, the tougher it's going to be making our club."

GOURWITZ SAID he is trying to negotiate a pact for Modano "that is commensurate with being a No. 1 pick."

Modano's agent reportedly asked originally for a $1 million, four-year deal, which would put him above what NHL All-Star Mario Lemieux got initially from the Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Southfield attorney said that Ferreira, who became the North Stars' GM replacing Lou Nanne (now the club president) shortly after the draft, was bogged down in other business all summer.

"This process should have started a lot sooner, but the difficulty with Jack is that he didn't give us very much time to get the job done," he said. "Starting in August was too late."

Ferreira, who came to the North Stars from the New York Rangers, said he would not entertain any type of trade offers for his young holdout.

Gourwitz said the Ciccarelli situation has no bearing on Modano's deal, but did say that "I've never had problems like this before."

"I've negotiated with the Red Wings, the Rangers and I just got Alie Turcotte (a former No. 1 pick with Montreal) a good contract with the Winnipeg Jets," said Gourwitz.

Meanwhile, Modano is working out and skating at home, waiting by the phone to hear about the next move.

The North Stars leave tonight for Saskatoon, Saskatchewan for an exhibition game with the Canadian National Team. Minnesota then plays Saturday in Calgary and Sunday at Winnipeg before coming back for a game Monday against Winnipeg in Kalamazoo.

"Mike was looking forward to playing in Saskatoon because all his buddies were going to be there," said Karen Modano, Mike's mother. "It's looking more and more like he'll be back in Prince Albert."

A fourth passenger, 20-year-old Rodger S. Vaughn (also of Linden), survived the crash after being thrown from the car. He was taken to a nearby Perry County hospital with two broken ribs.

Ex-SC star dies in crash

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Family, friends and former teammates are mourning the death of former Schoolcraft College women's basketball star Kim Chandler, who died last week in a one-car automobile accident in central Tennessee.

The 22-year-old Chandler died early Friday morning, Sept. 9. She was one of four people killed in the accident on state Route 13, three miles outside Lovelville, Tenn.

A 1980 Pontiac Grand Prix, driven by 23-year-old Doug Guinn of Linden, Tenn., was traveling at a high rate of speed around 12:40 a.m. when it flew through the air 32 feet, slamming into a tree before flipping over and exploding, according to the Tennessee Highway Patrol.

Chandler and Guinn died along with two other passengers, 18-year-old Bob Warren and 20-year-old Dan Rogers — also of Linden.

A fourth passenger, 20-year-old Rodger S. Vaughn (also of Linden), survived the crash after being thrown from the car. He was taken to a nearby Perry County hospital with two broken ribs.

SERVICES FOR CHANDLER were held early this week at both McFarland-Poss Funeral Home and St. Clement Church in Dearborn.

She is survived by a sister, Mandy, who is a former basketball standout at Livonia Ladywood and is now a sophomore at the University of Detroit. Other survivors include her parents, Ron and Colleen.

Chandler was a prominent All-State athlete at Dearborn Fordson High School where she averaged 22 points and 11 rebounds per game during her three-year varsity career. She was an All-Wolverine A League and two-time team Most Valuable Player. Chandler was voted All-Wolverine A League Player of the Year in 1983.

She also was a standout in track and volleyball at Fordson.

During her two years at Schoolcraft Community College, Chandler averaged 20 points and 10 rebounds per game, leading the Lady Ocelots to a pair of Eastern Conference championships. She was an All-Region 12 and All-Eastern Conference first-team pick both seasons.

"I'd say at the time she was here, she was the backbone of our program," said Ed Kavanagh, the school's athletic director and former coach.

"She was only 5-foot-6, but she played like a 6-footer. She was a player we wanted the other players to look toward."

"She was very enthusiastic. I never saw her in a bad mood."

CHANDLER, who played guard and forward, accepted a basketball scholarship to the University of Detroit, where she played a key role off the bench during the '86-87 season, averaging 6.5 points per game as the Titans went 21-6 overall, winning the Midwestern Collegiate Conference title.

As a senior, Chandler was joined on the team by her sister Mandy, a former All-Observer player from Livonia Ladywood.

And despite a disappointing 4-24 season, Chandler was voted team Most Valuable Player after leading the Titans' scoring with a 16.1 average. She set a U-D and MCC women's single-game scoring record with 40 points against Butler. (Chandler received second-team All-MCC honors last year.)

"We're all really saddened and shocked at the events," said U-D coach Dewayne Jones. "Kim was always cheerful and full of life."

Kim Chandler had set a University of Detroit and Midwestern Collegiate Conference single-game school scoring record with 40 points against Butler.

David Einstein has a lot of his new work on the walls of his studio. The series began with three-dimensional constructions and the new (two-dimensional) works still carry that feeling of depth and space.

Tide turns Organic forms inspire new series

By Corinne Abatt

DAVID EINSTEIN of Beverly Hills is one of those highly regarded, low profile artists who works quietly in his studio turning out paintings for clients around the country with little fanfare.

In the days when Peggy DeSalle's Little Gallery of Birmingham was the only game in town for showing contemporary works by outstanding local artists, Einstein's work was more accessible. He had six-one man shows there but hasn't shown locally since Little Gallery closed about six years ago.

But that doesn't mean he isn't working, he's going at a furious clip, judging from the amount of new work in his Ferndale studio. As they often have in the past, Einstein and his wife, Mary Jane, spent a month this summer on the coast of Maine. This year was particularly significant.

"For many years, my works were pure abstractions. Then I was sort of lost for subject matter. Now I've turned to nature forms."

HE WAS IN HIS studio with the new works mounted on the walls all around him. Einstein, always a colorist, has filled these new watercolor works on paper with gestural and organic derivative forms, using a brilliant build-up of color, with splendid rich edges. These paintings reflect the random, quixotic forms of nature with their underlying orderliness. They move beyond the barriers of time. He fills his palette with the moods of twilight, of early morning and hot, sun-dappled afternoons.

'Now, I feel I've hit the stride, I love doing this, it's me. The infinity of forms I've found in nature, especially by the ocean is wonderful. . . . I love the rawness of these new works.'

"Now, I feel I've hit the stride, I love doing this, it's me. The infinity of forms I've found in nature, especially by the ocean is wonderful. . . . I love the rawness of these new works. The calligraphy is very personal, a very important part of me. The inspiration has really been Maine and the coast of Maine."

The paintings are done on 200 pound handmade watercolor paper from France. Einstein likes to work in multiples — diptychs, triptychs — often to six parts to a single painting. They are interrelated, of course, but the edges of each part remain distinct. Their relationship to the surface is an integral part of the whole.

He often goes from opaque to translucent to create an inner luminosity, a light source from within "that keeps them alive."

EINSTEIN, a Cranbrook Academy of Art graduate, has been on the art faculty of many local institutions. He is well organized. He plans ahead. The size of the work and the number of panels along with the palette is established before he begins. Yet, with the careful planning, comes a freedom of spirit and an almost sensual delight which Einstein says is, "not in reproducing, but in recreating the colors I have seen in nature."

As he watches the activity in the tide pools, the changes in the sky, in the light and in the ocean on the coast of Maine, Einstein sketches and does small drawings in preparation for the larger ones when he will do from his mind's eye when he returns to Michigan. But his on-location works are also the stuff that exhibits are made of.

Among the many painters Einstein has long admired are the late John Marin and Marsden Hartley, both of whom worked in New England in the 1940s. Einstein and his wife made a trip to the Maine fishing village of Corea to see if they could find the place where Hartley lived and painted for several years in the early '40s.

Not only did they find the very chicken coop that he had turned into a make-shift studio, but they found and talked with several townspeople who remembered him well. And they reveled in watching the ocean from his exact point of view.

This experience, said Einstein, was exciting and stimulating. Like many fine artists, Einstein is happiest when he is at work in his studio. He said it would be difficult to conceive of another way of life, especially now that he has discovered a prime source of inspiration at a time when he is so well prepared to take advantage of it.

Junior Council hosts TGIF art gathering

Oktoberfest, the first "TGIF," will be held at the Detroit Institute of Arts from 5:30-8:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 7.

"TGIF" stands for "Three Great Innovative Fridays" in the Detroit Institute of Arts.

"Come alone or with friends after work for the start of a new Detroit tradition complete with oom-pah-pah band, bratwurst and other German-style hors d'oeuvres, and beer — and, what no other Oktoberfest can offer — the DIA's collection of German and Flemish art," said Cara L. Kazanowski, president, Founders Junior Council, a DIA Founders Society auxiliary.

"People need not be Founders Society members to attend; in fact, our hope is to attract young adults who aren't participating in DIA activities and to introduce them to the wonders of the museum and all it has to offer."

RESERVATIONS ARE suggested. They should be received by Oct. 5, by mailing $10 per person to TGIF, Activities Office, Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit 48202. Admissions also are available at the door for $15 each. Phone 833-7966 for information.

Reservations will be held at the Farnsworth entrance. Parking is available in the Cultural Center garage (corner of Woodward and Farnsworth).

Bettye Arrington Martin of Bloomfield Hills is Oktoberfest chairwoman of all three TGIF parties.

The other TGIF events — all highlighting parts of the DIA's permanent collection with entertainment, cocktails and hors d'oeuvres geared to a special theme — are a Chinese New Year Celebration on Friday, Jan. 27, and King Arthur's Birthday Party on Friday, May 12.

Ars Musica concert at Christ Church

Ars Musica, a baroque orchestra, will open its 18th season with a concert, "An Evening of Concertos" at 8 p.m. Friday at Christ Church Cranbrook, Lone Pine and Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills.

Ars Musica, 18 musicians who perform early music on original instruments, will be joined by the Oberlin Baroque Ensemble, for this program of works by C.P.E. Bach, Sammartini, Albinoni, Telemann and J.S. Bach.

Guest conductor will be violinist Marilyn McDonald of the Oberlin Baroque Ensemble. Other members of that group are James Caldwell, baroque oboe; Lisa Goode Crawford, harpsichord; Catharina Meints, viola da gamba; and Michael Lynn, recorder and baroque flute.

The musicians are members of the Oberlin Conservatory faculty and have played an important role in the teaching of baroque performance practice throughout the country. The ensemble has performed at major colleges and universities, at the Smithsonian Institution and the Cleveland Museum of Art. In 1979, it toured Japan.

Penelope Crawford of Ars Musica will join Lisa Goode Crawford in a performance of C.P.E. Bach's Concerto for Harpsichord and Fortepiano.

The concert will be repeated at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Michigan Theater at Ann Arbor and at 4:30 p.m. Sunday at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio. Tickets are available at the door on the evening of the performance.

Church celebrates 60th anniversary

The public will be treated to free concerts next weekend in a festival celebration of Christ Church Cranbrook's 60th anniversary.

A concert of baroque choral and orchestral music will be played on 18th century instruments at 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 23. The premier performance of the winner of Christ Church's international 60th Anniversary Carillon Composition Competition will be performed in a carillon program at 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 25.

The concert of English music will feature the Christ Church Choir with baroque orchestra performing on period instruments. Christ Church music director and organist Charles Raines will conduct.

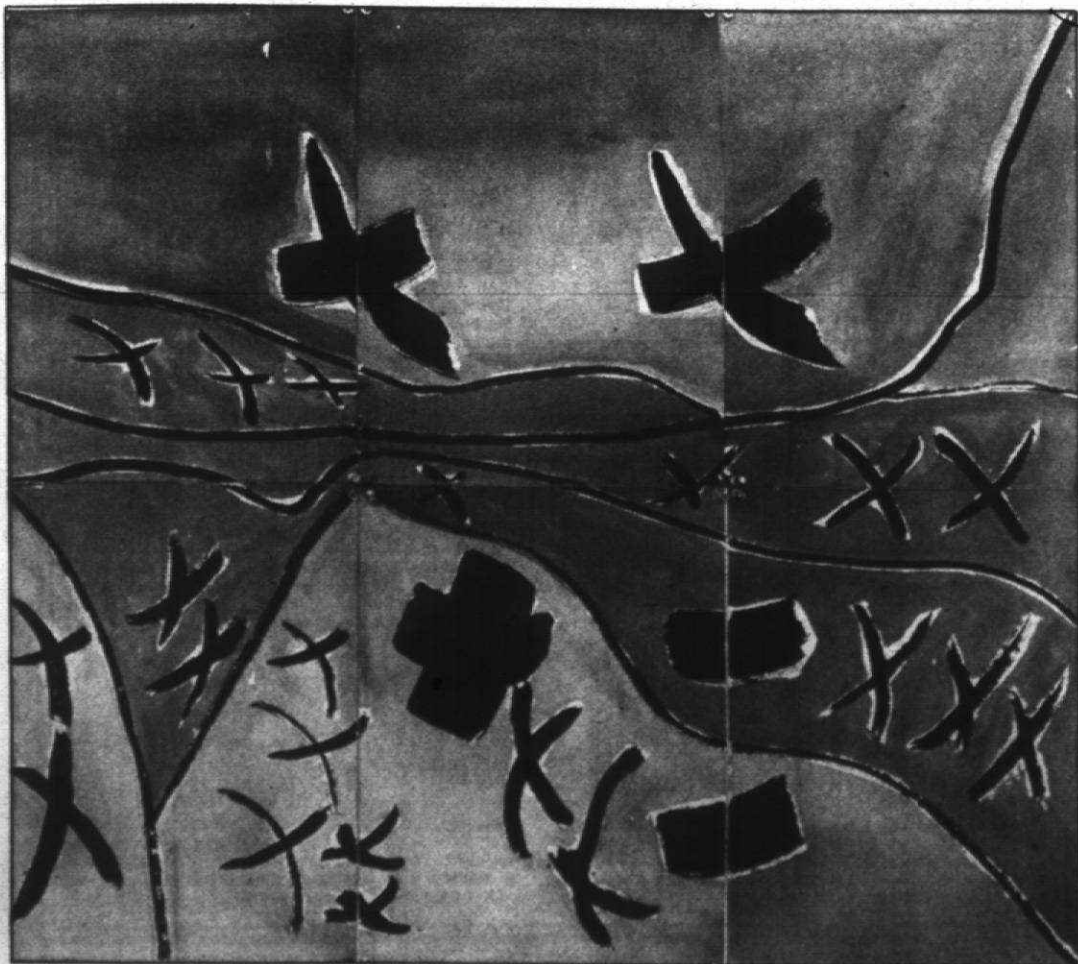

The program includes Symphony No. 5 in D with trumpets and timpani by William Boyce and Handel's Organ Concerto in G minor, Opus 4, No. 1 with Raines as organist. Music for choir and orchestra includes Henry Purcell's "Rejoice in the Lord Always," Handel's famous "Utrecht Te Deum" for choir, soloists and orchestra will conclude the program.

The carillon recital by Christ Church Carillonneur Don Cook will feature the first performance of the competition winner Prelude and Fugue on Old 104th, by Ronald Barnes, University of California at Berkeley carillonneur. Subtitled Homage to Johann Sebastian Bach, the piece is written in the style of a Bach prelude and fugue. Judged by a national jury, the entries had to be based on hymns important to the history of Christ Church.

Other works on the program include carillon arrangements of hymns sung at the Consecration Service Sept. 29, 1928, and selections from the two dedicatory carillon recitals performed by Anton Brees later that day.

The public is invited to listen from the church lawn or, in inclement weather, from inside the church, Cranbrook at Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills.

It is the rawness of his new works that excites the artist. All, like this six-part painting, are done in watercolor that is deep and rich from layers of undercolor.

Set aside bad experience

WHERE IS that dumb pull chain? I asked myself in disgust.

For some reason, I went half way down the stairway into the basement before I realized that I had forgotten to turn on the basement light.

"Well," I thought to myself, "I might just as well feel my way into my work room and turn on my work light."

So there I was, standing silently in utter darkness, waving my arms in the air feeling for the elusive pull chain.

While I was feeling my way around my workroom, I heard Kevin, my 16-year-old son, trotting down the darkened stairway. Apparently he had the same idea, so there we were, both silently shuffling around my small workroom feeling for the pull chain.

The funny part of this story is that I knew Kevin or someone was there, but Kevin didn't know I was there. It just never occurred to me that he didn't know I was in that same pitch-black room.

After some 30 seconds of silence, I said, "matter of fact, I can't find that dumb chain either."

Then like a gunshot, there were slams, bangs and gasps of air followed by heavy breathing. Tools were knocked off my workbench as Kevin reacted to the shock and I reacted to his surprise.

"Oh, (gasp) Dad! Is that you down here?"

"Gee, Kev," I said, "I, uh, didn't know you didn't know I was down here too."

Of course, by the time we found the pull chain we were gut laughing. And Kevin's hysteria was instantly transformed into hysterical laughter.

"Well, Kev," I said after gathering the fallen tools and stool, "this is one of those stories we are going to talk about for years, at family get-togethers."

I guess you couldn't call it a bad experience because it was so funny. I could say, however, that we both have negative feelings about going into the basement if the lights are out.

SO OFTEN artists have a bad experience with a medium or technique and never try it again.

True, Kevin and I found it necessary to go downstairs almost immediately for whatever reasons.

But if an artist has a bad experience with, let's say, pastel, there is little reason or motivation to ever try it again. Many times the bad experience is because of a technical or procedural error and has little to do with the medium itself.

NOT TO say that there is only one way to use a medium. Let's again use pastel as an example.

There are probably 10 ways or procedures to execute a successful pastel painting. It is to the detriment of an artist's repertoire if he or she simply refuses to use a medium because of a previous, if not ancient, failure.

Often an adult student will say, "No, I don't want to do scratch board. I hated that in high school." Then I would follow with, "Did you use white or precolored, textured or plain: did you know you can watercolor over scratch board? Did you use a scratchboard scraper or just a knife or pin?"

All of these variables have a direct effect on the outcome of the piece and your opinion of the media.

One goal in art worth striving for is to be able to use whatever medium best suits the subject you wish to render.

What a limitation it is to force every subject you encounter into one or two media for representation. Of course, there are media which can handle most subjects but it just isn't fun to do.

I IMAGINE how much fun musicians are having on stage when they switch from one instrument to another. By the end of one or two songs they have used several instruments.

Well, I can only guess in music but I can tell you in art, the use of many media is a thrill.

Every time I start a picture I fall in love with the medium I have chosen and learn something new about it. Then, by the completion of the piece, I am ready to try a different medium.

It's like eating. My doctor wants me to eat oat bran for breakfast every day.

Oat bran has no flavor and gives me heartburn, and after I have eaten it, it feels as if I have ingested a ground-up patio stone. Most of all, it's boring. I guess I don't mind being bored with breakfast but I can't run the risk of being bored with art.

Labor history tours offer glimpse of past

A central element in the story of Detroit's emergence as America's industrial capital is the evolution of labor unions. This fall the Detroit Historical Department will offer a series of tours featuring sites that are significant in Detroit's labor history.

The tours will be held Saturday, Sept. 17, Oct. 15 and Nov. 12 and leave from the Detroit Historical Museum at 10 a.m. promptly. The first tour in the series will trace Detroit's industrial development from approximately 1850 until the advent of the assembly line and focuses on the riverfront district as well as the Milwaukee Junction area. The second tour in the series will feature a labor history perspective on the famous murals by Diego Rivera at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The final tour in the series will explore the automotive industry's growth on the west side/Dearborn area including a discussion of the rise of the UAW-CIO in the 1930s and '40s.

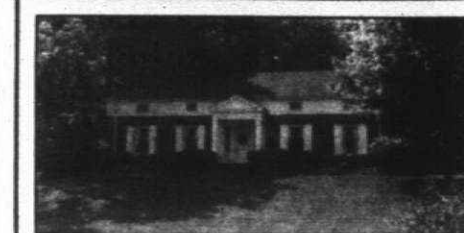

Tickets for the labor history tours are $6 per person per tour or a package price of $15 for all three tours. Reservations can be made through the mail. Make checks or money orders payable to Detroit Historical Society, 5401 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, 48202. Telephone reservations cannot be accepted and no tickets will be sold the day of the tour.

The tour will leave the Historical Museum promptly at 10 a.m. Each tour will last from 2-2 1/4 hours. For further information call Fred Stubbs at 833-1475.

Build your shots with a strong foundation

In photography as in life, good relationships are built on a solid foundation. There's a way to add strength and impact to your photographs by a technique I call "adding foundation to your shots."

It's easy to do, and I think you'll be pleasantly surprised at the difference in your finished prints. By "foundation," I'm referring to foreground objects that add a basis of footing to your composition. For example, a dazzling sunset settling on the lake will produce a stirring shot. But it will be much stronger if you include a bit of shoreline or that gnarled piece of driftwood as a "foundation."

The distant snow-capped mountain sure looks dramatic, but don't you think a pile of boulders in the foreground would be an improvement?

The old fishing cove is indeed charming, but how about making your shot even better by including photography

some fishing boats or a bit of netting as a foundation? Adding a base to your scenic photographs is like adding footing and support to a structure. Your pictures will be aesthetically more pleasing and will also help to show a scale of reference. Often times a foundation will help to complete your photo by giving more information to the viewer.

The most important way you can find a foundation to add to your pictures is to slow down and really look. Carefully study your subject and analyze its surroundings. Ask yourself how you can enhance the subject and show it in its best light. What complements it and how can these elements be used effectively in the composition? It's almost like accessorizing that new set of clothes so that they are worn and shown in the best possible way.

Remember that in adding a foundation to your photograph you must pay particular attention to depth-of-field. You'll ruin what otherwise may have been a dynamic picture by having the foreground out of focus.

Use your depth-of-field scale on the lens barrel and your depth-of-field preview to make sure everything is going to be sharp.

Monte Nagler's shot of Indian Harbor, Nova Scotia is enhanced by the foreground boats which form a foundation. Careful attention was paid to depth-of-field so everything appears sharp and in focus.

California discoveries

I SPENT the last two weeks in California. One week in San Francisco, the other in Los Angeles. We stayed in Bel Air, a suburb of Los Angeles. Bel Air is considered to be one of the posh areas. I loved to walk at night and peek into the windows. Plantation shutters, curtains and draperies seem to be the popular cover for windows. I saw very little in vertical blinds. Mini-blinds and draperies were used together.

I spent one day covering the Pacific Design Center in Los Angeles. The original building is about 10 years old. They are completing an addition. Many of the showrooms are open in the new building. I felt very much at home when I spotted Sherill Upholstery. Their showroom has the elegance of the one we have here at the Michigan Design Center.

I was very impressed with a line of occasional chairs that are imported from Spain and Italy. The company name is Ialmond. The chair frames are made of solid beechwood, handcarved and available in a number of finishes. Their finishes are in grades just as fabrics are from manufacturers of furniture.

I WAS SO IMPRESSED that I asked if they had a representative in this area. They do not, but they have a catalog that is available to interior designers. If you are working with a designer, I suggest you ask that person to write this company. I found the prices very moderate considering the fine quality of the construction and finish.

Signatures in Acrylic has a spiral staircase in its showroom on the main floor of the Blue building in the same center. The entire staircase is acrylic — even the tread, which has a stainless steel cover leaving three to four inches of acrylic on either side exposed. Their work is spectacular. This is all custom work. Send them your specifications and they will not only send you the finished product, but the installer to do the job. Needless to say, it's very costly, but if your budget allows it, what a look!

Eve Garvin has been an interior designer in the area for many years. She welcomes comments and questions from readers. Send those to her in care of this newspaper, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia 48150.

6 homes in Old West Side tour

Sunday from noon to 6 p.m., the Ann Arbor Old West Side Association is sponsoring its 16th annual homes tour. Placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1972, the Old West Side neighborhood provides tour-goers with a pleasant Sunday afternoon in a setting once typical of the turn of the century Midwest.

This year's tour includes six homes and one commercial property. They are: 706 Third, home of Kathy Wistrum and Jeffrey Taggart; 448 Fifth, home of Barbara and David Hall; 313 Seventh, residence of Eileen Grady and Hendrik Shaur; 703 W. Jefferson, residence of Sandy Herberston; 839 W. Huron, home of Pat Thompson; 12 Ridgemon Drive, home of Lynda and Robert Overhiser; and the Allmendinger building at S. First at Washington.

Tour headquarters are at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 420 Liberty. Bus transportation between homes on the tour will be provided. Tickets are $3 for seniors, $4 in advance, and $5 on the day of the tour. Since children under 12 are not permitted on the tour, child care will be provided at St. Paul's for $2 per child. Also, guests will be asked to remove their shoes before entering homes.

THE OLDEST HOUSE on this year's tour will be the 100-year-old Grady-Shurr residence at 313 S. Seventh. It has the dubious honor of having the last outhouse in Ann Arbor. The current owners removed asbestos siding and have done extensive restoration including sanding and finishing of the original wide pine floorboards that had been covered with linoleum and carpet. The house is furnished with family antiques and heirlooms including a highchair once used by the owner's 101-year-old grandmother.

At the other end of the spectrum is the Overhiser home at 12 Ridgemon. Just one year old, this contemporary shows how new houses, when sensitively designed, can fit into the existing neighborhood. Careful placement enabled this house to be built without removing any trees.

The interior has few walls, with posts used for support when necessary. The open floorplan, floor to ceiling windows and two balconies create visual flow and spaciousness.

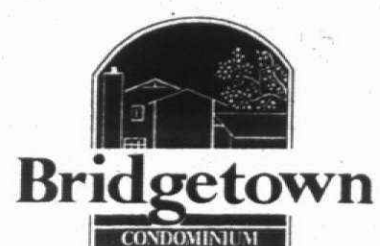

The commercial building on the tour is the Allmendinger building, built in 1888 as the home of the Allmendinger Organ Co. The structure is a well-preserved example of 19th-century factory architecture. The organ company flourished until 1916 when competition from phonographs and the closing of European markets in World War I forced it out of business. Since 1916 the Allmendinger building has had a variety of tenants. The current owner began renovation in 1984 leaving the exterior essentially the same but gutting the interior, exposing brick walls, joists and columns, and replacing windows and lighting. It is now a spacious, well-lit office building.

For more information on the tour, call 665-4087 or 662-2187.

Two homes on the Ann Arbor Old West Side Homes Tour include the residence of Barbara and David Hall (above) at 448 Fifth, representative of many Old West Side houses that started out as a single family home, later converted into a two-family unit, then restored to its original one-family status. At the left is the Thompson home at 839 Huron. Built in 1901, this house, once noted for its gardens and manicured lawn, is another example of an Old West Side house that has been restored to its original condition after a 1950s conversion to two-family.

Bus transportation will be provided between homes. Child care will be provided for children under 12 — and you'll have to take your shoes off before entering homes.
