The Canton Connection

Holiday help

Concerned that a certain videotape or compact disc is the right gift for Aunt Imelda? Well, you know she doesn't need shoes but are unsure if "E.T." is her cup of tea.

The Canton Public Library can help you preview records, compact discs or videotapes before you plunk down some hard-earned cash.

The library also has more than 250 magazines so you can check to see if the publication is worth a holiday subscription. But please, don't rip out the subscription cards.

And of course the library has 9,000 books with more coming in continuously.

The library is open 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

For more information, call 397-0999.

Hoop action

So everyone has jumped on the Pistons' handwagon. Show you are different. Show you don't want to hear George Blaha tell us "Vinnie scoops it off the glass for two."

Instead, tune into WSDP-FM, 88.1 for some different hoop action. The station plans to broadcast Canton and Salem boys basketball games during the season. The next broadcast is Friday when Walled Lake Central visits Salem.

Sports director Lane Beatty and sports programming director Joe Ryan are behind the mike.

In addition to Salem and Canton action, WSDP also will air its first broadcast of a Plymouth Christian Academy game Friday, Jan. 20.

Playoff games and tournament games involving the Rocks and Chiefs also will be broadcast.

White hot cold

It's less than two weeks until Christmas and your kids are clamoring for more snow in the yard.

The Canton Parks and Recreation Department is issuing a guarantee for a white Christmas. The deadline for the fourth annual contest is Friday, Dec. 16.

The winner will have his or her yard covered with snow Tuesday, Dec. 20. The winner also will receive a copy of "White Christmas."

Entry forms are available at the parks and recreation department at township hall.

If snow covers the ground, the winner will still receive the album. The winner will be selected Monday, Dec. 19.

Casually elegant

We're not sure what casually elegant means but if you have clothes to fit that description you may attend the first Celebrate Canton.

The dinner dance will honor all former and present Canton Township officials and help kick off a new era in the community, according to Supervisor Tom Yack.

The festivities are part of an effort to improve Canton's image, he said.

The evening starts at 7 with cocktails followed by dinner at 7:30. Dancing starts at 9 p.m.

Celebrate Canton is Saturday, Jan. 14, at Fellows Creek Golf Course. The cost is $25 per person. Interested residents can send a check to Celebrate Canton, in care of James Gillig, party chairman, 43894 Ford Road, Canton 48187.

Only the best

Funeral homes taking interest in Canton area

By Diane Gale
staff writer

You won't find a funeral home in Canton this year. But there's talk the township will have two next year.

Jerome Pawlus plans to open Pawlus Funeral Home on the north side of Warren east of Canton Center in about four months, "depending on the weather."

Less than a mile down the road on the north side of Warren between Canton Center and Sheldon, Christopher Ziomek said he will begin building Risko-Ziomek Funeral Home in the spring.

DAVE NICHOLSON, Canton community and economic development director, said he was unaware of the Ziomek project, because the land has not been rezoned and a site plan has not been submitted. Pawlus has cleared both steps.

Pawlus said the Risko-Ziomek building won't go up. And Ziomek

'Canton is really overdue to have a funeral home.'

said he will have "to see the building" before he believes the other will be built.

"Canton is really overdue to have a funeral home," Ziomek said. "It's overtime. I think there is room for two funeral homes, but not necessarily" that close.

Pawlus also sees a strong market, but touches on a sensitive point inherent in the business.

"There's 60,000 people and it's a growing community," he said. "How do you promote death? I've been on seminars all over the world dealing with it. Death is a robber. It's rob-

Nankin wants half-mill levy

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

When presented with a request from the Nankin Transit Commission last Tuesday, Canton Township trustees said they are supportive of the organization. They just don't want the bus company to careen out of control.

Nankin — which provides low-cost transportation for senior citizens in Canton, Garden City, Inkster, Wayne and Westland — wants each participating community to put a 0.5-mill levy on a ballot as soon as possible.

For a homeowner with a $90,000 house, that would translate into an additional $22.50 worth of property taxes a year.

NANKIN MUST take on the legal status of an authority to be able to spend money raised through local levies. It is that aspect of its request

We're following survey, leader says

Mary Dahn criticizes 'yes-men'

By Susan Buck
staff writer

A member of the Community Researching Educational Workings for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools says the group is ignoring important issues in the community.

Mary Dahn said Annette Remsburg, chairwoman of CREW, simply wants a "rubber stamp" group consisting of "yes-men."

But Remsburg said CREW is studying areas identified as important in a survey of school district residents.

The mission of CREW, which is composed of parents and educators, is to develop an action plan to capitalize on the strengths and eliminate the weaknesses of the Plymouth-Canton schools.

Dahn faults the curriculum committee because it does not plan to review any R-rated movies, films with role models that demonstrate Satanism or the Michigan Health Model, a health curriculum.

"I BELIEVE major concerns expressed by the community are being ignored and they are limiting themselves only to the concerns of the results of the survey," she said. "That survey surveyed 400 people."

Dahn was referring to a report prepared by the consulting firm of Fullerton, Merz & Associates for CREW. The survey listed strengths as the curriculum, teachers, a round-ed education and facilities.

Weaknesses were identified as communication, perceptions of money management, property tax concerns; class size, perceptions of discipline and problem resolution.

The confrontation between Dahn and Remsburg stems from a curriculum subcommittee meeting in November.

"SIX PEOPLE got involved and after they expressed their opinions, they were asked to leave because of new rules set up that were never mentioned in any press releases," Dahn said. "People in the communi-

Employee Assistance Program may be added to benefit plan

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Canton Township employees may soon be getting an additional item in their benefit package.

Besides the current coverage, which takes care of their physical well-being, the proposed plan would cover several different emotional needs that may arise.

Trustees last Tuesday discussed buying into an Employee Assistance Program, offered by Catherine McAuley Health Center, the township's current HMO provider.

"IT'S A system that you set up to help troubled employees," said Carolyn Stark, director of the program.

Services include counseling for employees — and their family members — who suffer from depression, stress and eating disorders, as well as marital, chemical abuse, financial and legal problems.

"I think most people realize that when you are troubled or preoccupied with some kind of concern . . . it's very hard to concentrate on work," Stark said.

Offering such counseling services to workers makes for more productive employees, who are less likely to have accidents and less likely to require the use of other health benefits, she said.

"I think that most places decide to invest in the EAP for the humanitarian issues," Stark said. "It's very painful for us to see co-workers . . . so depressed that they can't work."

THE PROGRAM would cost the township some $4,100 per year, or $2 per month per employee.

Township department heads expressed support for the establish-

Nankin asks for levy

that troubled some trustees, especially treasurer Gerald Brown.

"I'm not against the program. I'm against setting up a new government," Brown said.

He called the creation of another governing body "the last thing the people of Canton need."

Becoming the Nankin Transit Authority, which is the organization's plan, would also mean that it could go directly to the public for future levy appeals.

WHEN CLERK Loren Bennett said that situation has "the potential for getting out of hand," a Nankin representative responded: "Our history shows that we do not throw money away."

The services of Nankin have been "scaled down considerably" in the last few years, said the representative, Glenn Shaw Jr.

The Southeast Michigan Transit Authority decreased its financing to Nankin when SEMTA's federal and state money was cut. Two years ago, Nankin asked the participating communities to provide some financial assistance. Canton's share was $6,000.

Nankin was given a one-time grant during the current fiscal year, with the stipulation that its managers solve the financing problem.

"Our solution to this problem is let us go out and ask the people if they will give up a half mill," Shaw said.

SHAW CHARACTERIZED the work Nankin does as a "social service need." The company will pick up older adults at their door and bring them to a doctor's office or shopping center, for instance.

"Is there a need out there that has to be filled... or is this thing in business to create a need?" Brown said.

"There is a need," Shaw responded. If the trustees agree to put the matter on the ballot, the public will construe that act as trustee support for the measure, Brown said.

"I shouldn't be too concerned because I don't think the millage will pass," he said.

Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter disagreed, saying she is in favor of letting the voters decide.

The matter was discussed during a trustee work session, and no action was taken.

thing you of a loved one. It's a hard business."

One or more funeral homes in Canton is bound to affect other facilities.

JIM VERMUELEN of Vermuelen Lambert Funeral Home in Plymouth Township said two funeral homes in Canton, with a large number of young families, is a mistake.

"I've been in Plymouth 12 years with our funeral home," Vermuelen said. "I don't see how they will get a return on their investment. As a businessman, there are many areas that you can invest money and get a better return with a lot less effort."

He said he is not against other funeral homes coming in.

"Competition keeps you on your toes," Vermuelen said. "This is the first I've heard about it," said David Griffin, of L.J. Griffin Funeral Home in Westland.

Dr. James Stamp, of Oakwood Canton Health Center on Warren at Canton Center, worried about traffic problems funeral processions could have on emergency cars wanting to get into Oakwood.

Last week, he said he was less worried than he was when the project was proposed more than a year ago. But he still has some concerns.

"A CAR coming east on Warren would be our only problem," Stamp said. "The police said they would direct traffic."

Pawlus operates two other funeral homes: Pawlus Chapel Funeral Home in Belleville and Pawlus-Cylkowski Funeral Home in Detroit.

Risko-Ziomek operates a facility in Livonia. The company was established in 1935 at Cecil and Michigan Avenue in Detroit by the Risko family. That facility was sold earlier this year.

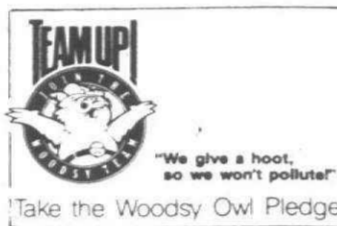

"Basically we're moving out of the city and moving west to follow our customers," Ziomek said.

Christmas tree business branching out

"No, I want one a little taller." "We don't have a cathedral ceiling." "How about that one? No, that side has no branches." "We can put that side toward the wall."

Somewhere in the Plymouth-Canton community, a conversation similar to the one above has occurred at one or all of the local Christmas tree lots.

It's just part of the holiday tradition. But that tradition could be changing. Artificial trees account for about one-third of the market. A man in Redford is now delivering Christmas trees.

And a Michigan State University scientist is on the verge of discovering how to clone the perfect Christmas tree.

But don't worry, yet. The scientist said perfecting the process will take about five years.

UNTIL THEN, families will have to troop around to various Christmas tree lots scouting out the best specimens at the best prices. Michigan Christmas tree growers expect to harvest about 6 million trees this year. About 700,000 evergreens will end up in Michigan homes, according to growers.

The summer's drought did not damage most of the Christmas tree crop, according to AAA Michigan.

So that means consumers can expect to pay about the same amount for trees as last year.

Some retailers have trees for under $15 but consumers should expect to pay up to $4 a foot, the AAA Michigan survey indicated. Edward Cole, owner of Ed-Mar Tree Farm in Mayville, said a 6-7-foot Scotch pine should sell for about $20 while firs of the same height would cost about $30.

And for those who don't want to bother with shopping, just give Brian D'Addazio of Redford a call at 489-8953 or 937-3384. The cost is $29.95, delivery included.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Pair clashes over CREW mission

ty who want to get involved cannot get involved."

More than 50 volunteers willing to serve on CREW, including Dahn, were approved by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education in October.

Remsburg was appointed chairman by Superintendent John Hoben. Both Dahn and Remsburg were unsuccessful school board candidates in the last election.

Membership was set when CREW was divided into subcommittees Nov. 9 to study finance, communication, teachers, curriculum, discipline, organizational structure and class size, Remsburg said.

Remsburg said Dahn overstepped her bounds by not telephoning either herself or Leslie Corpolongo, chairwoman of the curriculum subcommittee, before bringing unexpected guests, interrupting the agenda, and attempting to serve on both the finance and curriculum committees.

BUT DAHN said the six people, who represented a variety of religions but all have a Christian philosophy, just wanted to get involved.

They six are Maureen Breslinski, Camilla Cockrum, Barbara Belyk, Eva Roberts, Valerie Brown and Marilyn Alf.

According to Breslinski and Cockrum, they and the others received telephone calls from Corpolongo the day after the meeting indicating that they could not participate.

Both said they were surprised because at the time they read in local papers that volunteers were sought.

"I came in objectively," said Breslinski, who said she rode with Dahn to the meeting. "I definitely am not a person who can be considered humanistic. I don't want to get a name for being a rabble-rouser. There were no harsh words or fighting at the meeting. The thing that I don't like is that it has been pretty much hand-picked."

THE PERSONALITY struggle came to a head Dec. 2 when Remsburg wrote Dahn: "The work that CREW volunteers have begun must go on without further interruption. Choosing to undermine their work and make public accusations, you have effectively given your resignation from the committee."

On Dec. 6, Dahn sent Remsburg her reply in a letter, a copy of which was also sent to each school board member.

"Please be advised that I do not resign CREW," she wrote. "Since I was approved by the school board the only group who can take me off of CREW is the school board. If they were to take me off because I disagreed with you, they will be saying in effect only 'yes-men' are allowed on CREW. Anyone who disagrees with the chairman must leave. If that were true, all of the conclusions CREW came to, would be questionable."

In a letter sent to the Observer, Remsburg wrote: "Any person who disagrees with CREW procedures to the point of publicly accusing a subcommittee of being a 'fraud' and a 'hoax' will not be expected to offer any further time or energy to that subcommittee."

Remsburg said she prefers that Dahn either concentrate her efforts on the finance committee or "bow out gracefully" from the curriculum subcommittee.

"The board would have to approve deletion of a member. We would like to have to do that," said Remsburg.

The program "would be very, very advantageous," chief building official Aaron Machnik said.

He sees a department head's role in the program as being like that of a coach, who "can say we have something available" when he or she notices that an employee has a problem, he said.

"It's hard to tell folks get the yelment for an EAP. Personnel director Dan Durack, who invited Stark to make the presentation, said he likes the confidential nature of the program.

"I think there's a need for that. Employees certainly have problems coming to someone in authority to discuss their problems," Durack said.

Middle schools may continue to teach ninth-grade classes

West and Pioneer middle schools would continue to house ninth graders for another couple of years if the Plymouth-Canton school board accepts the recommendation of its student housing committee.

Projections indicate space won't be available at Canton and Salem high schools to accommodate ninth graders from West and Pioneer until the 1991-92 school year, said Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction.

Ninth graders were moved from Central and East middle schools to the high schools for the 1986-87 school year and ninth graders from Lowell Middle School to the Centennial Educational Park for the '87-88 academic year, Homes said.

Ninth graders from West and Pioneer were to have moved to CEP this year, but those transfers were put on hold due to a lack of space.

ALL NINTH graders at one time were in the high schools, but realignments were made in the early 1980s due to soaring enrollment and overcrowding, Homes said.

"We believe the best opportunities for students lie in a K-5, 6-8, 9-12 grade alignment," he said.

All district schools are now in compliance with that housing plan except for West and Pioneer.

"We knew going in the chance of not being able to complete the three-year timetable existed," Homes said.

There were 4,330 students at CEP as of last month, Homes said. He pegged comfortable capacity there at 4,200.

There were 247 ninth graders at Pioneer and 231 at West.

"We don't think that the . . . high schools will be able to take more ninth-grade students," Homes said. "An obvious alternative is to defer unless we want to live with an enrollment size of 4,800."

NEITHER HOMES nor Richard Egli, community relations director for the schools, say they've received many complaints one way or another about ninth graders being assigned to high schools or middle schools.

"Ninth grade students at the high schools get no more opportunity than at Pioneer and West," Homes said. "The ninth grade program is pretty standard anywhere."

"Any ninth-grade course able to be taken at the high school is able to be taken by West and Pioneer students," said Egli.

Ninth-graders at West and Pioneer can participate in extracurricular activities at the high school. A bus will take them out to CEP after school, but those students, like all others, must find their own way home.

"THERE DOESN'T appear to be any problems with kids participating who want to participate," said Homes.

He couldn't provide numbers of how many West and Pioneer students get involved in extracurricular activities at CEP.

"There are good things about being a top dog there (at middle school)," Egli said. "And I've heard some concerns about having ninth graders at the park, too. It's Catch 22."

"We're striving to really maintain equity and opportunity for ninth graders," said Homes.

A report from the student housing committee to the school board is expected at the board's Monday, Dec. 19, meeting.

Airport to be bigger, quieter

Metro Airport will be a bigger, quieter, more accessible place in the 1990s, airport officials said Wednesday night.

Plans call for a new airport ring road to take traffic off congested I-94, airport director Richard Jamison said.

The north/south road would be between Wayne and Goddard Road. It would serve as a south access road off I-275.

Earth berms and flight path changes should reduce noise for most residents who live near the airport, airport officials said.

Officials announced plans during a meeting at the Romulus City Hall.

IRONICALLY, NOISE may temporarily increase for a small portion of southeastern Westland residents, if new airport approach routes are adopted for landing aircraft. Westland-area airport noise should be reduced by 1992 when two new airport runways are expected to be operating.

An estimated 420 residents living in 120 homes are expected to be affected if temporary flight changes are implemented as planned, according to an airport study.

Depending upon availability of federal financing, soundproofing grants may be available for the residents affected.

Airport officials said they would aggressively pursue buying the homes of Romulus residents on the innermost ring, generally 6,000 feet or less from runways. Home-buying could take five years or more, airport officials said.

The Westland residents, however, would be on the outermost ring of area affected by airport noise. It isn't as likely their homes will be bought on the airport's behalf.

A 20-YEAR airport master plan is expected to be released early next year. It is expected to contain plans for a new east/west runway, new north/south runway, new traffic control tower and mid-field terminal, in addition to the new road.

Metro adopted a similar master plan in 1980; however, airport officials said changes wrought by Republic Airlines' 1984 decision to make Metro a hub airport for North American flights has already made that plan obsolete. Republic has since been acquired by Northwest Airlines.

Things to do if numbers come in

A FRIEND SAYS he would quit his job, buy a cabin up north and retire. Another would buy a fleet of sports cars and spend his days just driving around, a different car for each day. My mother-in-law would take a vacation in Hawaii. My wife says she would set up trust funds for our kids, buy a new car, have the house remodeled, then quit her job and go back to school, maybe to study law. Not me. If I won the Lotto, I would: GET A HAIRCUT every three weeks instead of every three months. Fill my car with gas each time I pull into a service station instead of trying to make five-gallons last through the week. Buy two dozen of those concrete blocks that are on sale for 50 cents apiece so I could build bins for my compost heap.

If I won the Lotto, I would subscribe to all the magazines I've always wanted, even if they just pile up on the kitchen counter and don't get read.

CREW charges distorted

from our readers

To the editor: This letter is written regarding recent concerns expressed about CREW - Community Researching Educational Workings. Accusations made by those who seem determined to undermine any efforts to improve the quality of public education in this district frequently have no basis in fact.

Information is taken out of context and distorted to the point of inaccuracy. This problem presently pervades our school district in impairing the efforts of hard-working community citizens who wish to work toward a better education through increased efficiency and quality control. Our students deserve the dedicated commitment and our community should be thankful for the vision and expertise provided by CREW volunteers. The work they have begun needs to go on without further interruption.

It may help those who might feel unjustly left out to know that Christians are well represented on all CREW subcommittees. My own faith provides direction in my life, leading me to serve the community and my own three young children by working toward a more effective public school system.

We must all reconsider how valuable public education is to our country and our community. It is our continuing responsibility to provide a positive educational experience for our students now and those of the future.

Narrow-minded attempts to seek attention and gain control in order to accomplish ambiguous secular goals only serve to deteriorate the system itself. I am pleased to have the opportunity to provide leadership for the important work CREW is doing for you - all citizens of the Plymouth-Canton Community School District.

Annette J. Remsburg, CREW Co-Chairperson, Plymouth

Don't believe the 'drivel' Opinions are to be shared

To the editor: As a parent with two children in the Plymouth Canton school district, I have been reading with great alarm an indignation recently about how Diane Daskalakis, Mary Dah and the CBE wish to control the Plymouth Canton school board.

I am angered because this group of religious fanatics is insulting my intelligence with misconceptions, half-truths and lies. I am alarmed because people in our community are actually believing this worthless drivel.

I would like to see one specific example where any school representative from subcommittee work. Ms. Dah neglected to indicate that her participation had been encouraged since she volunteered. But bringing several "friends" unannounced to the curriculum subcommittee meeting was an obvious attempt to accomplish a single objective - changing the district's approach to sex education. Her approach was tactless and interruptive, insisting their views be heard while interfering with other agenda items.

Because the concerns expressed by those seven had not been indicated, names will be withheld only for the best of reasons, and the decision to do so will be made by the editor. Letters may be mailed or hand-delivered to our news office at 489 S. Main, Plymouth 48170.

Many reasons, one result — no tax reform

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The more complex the change, the more enemies it stirs up.

That appears to be what happened last week when the state House of Representatives said "no" to the 21st version of a school tax reform plan.

Suburban lawmakers of both parties had many reasons for their votes, but it amounted to a 51-46 defeat for Senate Joint Resolution K, with 74 needed to place the Senate-passed plan on the May 2 ballot.

"I don't want to run a proposal and have one of the major interests oppose it," said House majority floor leader Lewis Dodak, D-Montrose, who asked the House to reject the Senate version. Dodak, who becomes speaker next year, pointed a finger at the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, again cast a no vote.

"PART OF me says 'vote for it because it's property tax relief.' But we still don't know what the (school funding) plan is. There's no funding formula."

"And the homestead rebate is back in for low-income seniors and renters. But how do we know what 'low income' is?" Bankes said.

She said the Livonia School District, which gets no state aid and has high property taxes, would get state funds only at a year-old formula. "That's a loss."

HOUSE MINORITY leader Paul Hillegonds of Holland made the only floor speech in favor of SJR K.

"This plan puts the brakes on trends. If voters don't like the trend of rising property taxes, this will do it."

"It won't cut a lot. But if it doesn't pass, schools will get less and less from the budget, and property taxes will go up."

Appealing over the heads of Democratic leaders for bipartisan support, Hillegonds said, "We seem to be marching to the tune of one interest group (the state chamber). If we give any one group veto power, we are in deep, deep trouble."

A state chamber official said last week that the chamber had not opposed the plan, but merely suggested further study.

Rep. Gerald Law of Plymouth agreed with Hillegonds that the latest plan "was a little improvement over the other ones. We haven't been able to get a consensus on anything else."

"This would have locked funds for education into that (state general fund) budget. Corrections (prisons) is eating more and more of the budget. Our expenditures are growing faster than our revenues," said Law.

How would the Plymouth School District have done under the funding formula?

"That's hard to say. They didn't know. There are no formulas. The sales tax revenue would have grown, and the school funds and budget would have grown with it."

HOUSE DEMOCRATIC leaders wanted to appoint a joint House-Senate conference committee to make one last stab at a compromise before the Michigan Legislature adjourns sine die Dec. 29.

But Senate majority leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, sent word through a spokesman that the Senate would let the matter die.

Speaker-designate Dodak said the House in 1989 "would look at the process all over and deal with it early on. Gov. Blanchard still supports it," he said.

HOUSE TAXATION Committee chairman Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, said the final version would have:

- Cut business property taxes 10 percent but allowed voters to increase future taxes by half the rate levied on homes.
- Cut homestead taxes by 25 percent but allowed voters to increase the rate to 28 mills. The reduction would have the effect of eliminating state property tax rebates — the so-called "circuit breaker."
- Given utilities the same 10 percent cut as other businesses, at a revenue loss of $8 million across the state.

• Eliminated two House amendments requiring "equal results" in education. Many lawmakers feared that language, inserted into the state constitution, would have invited lawsuits by under-performing school districts.

Senate approval of that version came near the end of a 21-hour session that began at 10 a.m. Wednesday and closed with adjournment at 7 a.m. Thursday.

By adjourning, the Senate forced the House into a "take it or leave it" position, with no chance at negotiating further compromise in the corridors on Thursday.

Area votes divided

Here's how Observer & Eccentric area lawmakers voted on the defeated school reform plan:

Against: Democrats Justine Barns of Westland, Maxine Berman of Southfield and James Kosteva of Canton; Republicans Lyn Bankes of Livonia, Judith Miller of Birmingham and Gordon Sparks of Troy.

For: Democrats John Bennett of Redford and Wilfred Webb of Hazel Park; Republicans Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion, David Honigman of West Bloomfield and Gerald Law of Plymouth.

Absent: W. V. Brotherton, R-Farmington, William Keith, D-Garden City.

The Senate gave the measure 28 yes votes — 14 from Republicans, 14 from Democrats. But the roll call was unavailable because Senate staffers shut down work Thursday after the all-night session.

A PAIN IN THE NECK

The term 'pinched nerve' is usually used in connection with pain from compression of the sciatic nerve. However, a similar nerve impingement condition can occur in the neck.

The nerve involved in the neck is the greater occipital nerve. This structure begins at the level of the second cervical vertebrae and ends by branching over the scalp and side of the temple. Compression of the nerve can cause pain or numbness anywhere from the neck to the scalp.

The condition is confused with arthritis of the neck because both problems cause radiating pain and can result in secondary neck muscle spasms. However greater occipital nerve impingement causes pain up the neck and scalp while arthritis of the neck results in pain and weakness as far down as the legs. Neck arthritis appears in conjunction with arthritis in the joints, but nerve impingement may occur when the individual is otherwise enjoying good health.

In arthritis and occipital nerve impingement, initial treatment includes heat, traction, and head up posture. Time helps, as the body then has an opportunity to adjust; in rare instances, surgery is necessary.

Cook up old-fashioned Christmas

By Larry Janes
special writer

LOOKING FOR A DICKENS of a way to celebrate the holidays? Do thoughts of Tiny Tim and sleigh rides and the smell of a goose roasting in the oven conjure up pleasant memories of Christmas past?

With all the electric hubbub and scurrying from store to store, wouldn't this year be the perfect time to plan an old-fashioned, sit-down, family holiday dinner, complete with winter vegetables, chestnuts, a hearty stuffing and a golden-brown roast goose?

A goose? Random polling of friends and associates recently revealed that more than 95 percent had never tasted, let alone attempted to cook, a goose. The preparation and cooking of a goose conjures up thoughts of extensive procedures, coupled with the prospects of ill-tasting results.

So like the Archangel Gabriel sounding his trumpet, just in time for a traditional Dickens of a dinner, here's everything you ever wanted to know about cooking your goose.

First off, you must venture out, with cash in hand, complete with a scarf, fur hat, muffler and long coat. Hitch up the horse and travel over the countryside in search of a purveyor of fine geese. In the metropolitan area, that means a visit to a local poultry store or full-service market.

CHECK THE yellow pages under "poultry." The best and most reasonable sources will be the market areas where the fine purveyors of fowl will undoubtedly have a gaggle of geese from which to choose.

A live goose can be bought at Capital Poultry in Detroit's Eastern Market Area for some $1.99 per pound (live weight), which figures to some $2.49 per pound dressed out and ready for the oven. A check of local full-service supermarkets in the area had similar prices for the "best-dressed" geese in town.

Unfortunately, modern sanitary procedures prohibit our local poultry purveyors from "stringing them up" in the storefront window as in Tiny Tim's day. But be forewarned, the Ghost of Christmas Present says to look for a goose and not a gander, for "the flesh of a young goose is delicious and tender, but that of an old wild gander will be tougher than leather."

THE SECOND step requires stoking a hot oven, complete with hardwood and hard coals. Allow the fire to settle so that the oven reaches no more than 375 degrees

DAVID FRANK/staff photographer

Geese and other poultry hanging in a shop window was a common sight in Dickens' day, especially at the holiday season. Today you can't see such sights in the United States, due to health regulations, but across the Detroit River, it's a different story. Here are roasted ducks in a window at Ly Hoa Tran, a Vietnamese barbecue restaurant in neighboring Windsor.

Dickens inspires recipe for roast goose

A DICKENS OF A ROAST GOOSE WITH TRADITIONAL STUFFING

4 cups water
goose giblets, chopped
2 cups chopped onions
1 cup chopped celery
2 cups bread, soaked in milk, squeezed dry
1 egg, lightly beaten
¼ teaspoon marjoram

a few gratings of fresh nutmeg
1 tablespoon crushed sage
1½ tablespoons salt
½ teaspoon fresh ground pepper
1½ tablespoons flour
¼ cup dry red wine or sherry

Make a stock with water and ½ cup of chopped vegetables and giblets. Cook until reduced to two cups. Combine remaining vegetables with bread, nutmeg, sage, salt and pepper. Stuff the goose and truss if desired. Place the goose on a rack in a shallow roasting pan and place in a 375-degree oven for one hour. Remove the goose and pour off all the fat drippings. Return the goose to the pan. At this time, goose can be surrounded with potatoes and additional vegetables, if desired. Lower the oven temperature to 350 degrees and continue cooking the goose for 1½ hours, basting frequently with the stock prepared earlier. Remove cooked bird and rack from the roasting pan. Cover and set aside to sit before carving, for at least 10 minutes, to settle the juices. Place the roasting pan on the stove and heat all juices in pan. Deglaze the pan with the addition of dry red wine or sherry and use the flour to make a gravy. If desired, serve gravy with goose.

Nothing will fill the entire house faster than the aroma of a roast goose being basted every 15 minutes.

in heat. Domestic geese are very fatty and must be prepared on a rack so the fat will drip off.

Wash the goose, both inside and out, and pat dry. As with those crazy turkeys at Thanksgiving time, you must reach in all the way to remove little paper bags of giblets, livers and necks.

Sprinkle the inside cavity with salt and freshly ground pepper. You can prepare a stuffing, if desired. Now, with the goose firmly impaled on a roasting rack, place it in a large roasting pan. Use a shallow pan that will allow heat to brown not just the top but all sides.

Dickens would roll over in his grave if he knew folks today covered their geese while cooking. Juices exuded from the bird while roasting give its texture a golden-brown skin with just the right crispness that will crackle lightly when bitten.

COOK THE goose for one hour and then remove all the fat drippings from the bottom of the roasting pan. At this time, you can add potatoes, carrots, onions and what have you to the pan. After the initial hour of cooking, it will be necessary to baste the bird frequently with stock, wine, melted butter or a combination of them all.

Nothing will fill the entire house faster than the aroma of a roast goose being basted every 15 minutes. For a 10-pound bird, add an additional 1½ hours of cooking time for a total cooking time of some 2½ hours (unstuffed: some two hours).

As with normal poultry, picking with a needle after the prescribed cooking time should yield clear juices. If not, return the bird to the oven for additional cooking. If you're hosting the Cratchit clan, you can figure on an 8-pound dressed goose to serve five or six people. A 14-pound dressed-out bird will amply feed a family of 10 with just enough left for father's midnight snack of a sandwich.

And you thought it would take the Ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Future to prepare, eh?

This holiday season, put everyone to work in the kitchen. Bake bread. Strain the soup stock. Chop the vegetables. Cook the goose and flame the plum pudding. God bless us — one and all!

Shop at home With gifts from your own kitchen

Wouldn't it be great if all our holiday shopping was done? Presents for all and all great presents! Sure, and you probably think that credit card company will omit a few postings till next August, right?

With only a few shopping days left before the biggest day of the year, are you still looking for the perfect gift for the Sunday school teacher, mailman and dog groomer? What on earth would your hair stylist enjoy that wouldn't send your credit limit somewhere over the rainbow? How about something homemade from the kitchen?

Forget the old notion that homemade goodies have to include the proverbial plates of cookies or Saran-covered cakes. Holiday gift ideas that can be made with little mess or fuss will be cherished and welcomed by everyone who is lucky enough to receive them.

Potl-wrapped fruitcakes are passe. This year, well-dressed kitchen gift-givers have their baskets filled with tiny pouches of kitchen potpourris, scented nuts, flavored oils and vinegars, homemade soup mixes and even made-from-the-heart gourmet doggie biscuits that can be enjoyed by both Fido and his faithful owner.

If you have friends who love to cook but find themselves lacking the cash for those gourmet touches that can transform simple dishes into spectacular ones, fill jars with basic oils such as olive or pure vegetable.

USING A SHORT wooden or bamboo skewer, skew a few fresh cloves of garlic or hot tiny peppers into the jar. A sprig of fresh herbs will transform a quart of plain oil into a fragrant batch of homemade goodness, with an attached recipe for an herbed vinaigrette.

Do the same with a gallon of plain white vinegar. Fill clean, decorator jars with the vinegar and add a cup of raspberries, strawberries or a piece of cheesecloth tied and filled with fresh herbs and spices. Label the jar with its contents and garnish with a holiday bow. Include a tiny gift card with a recipe for your secret salad dressing.

A favorite gift I have received in years past, and look forward to getting every year from a close friend, is a hinged storage jar filled with various rice blends — sweet, glutinous rice from the Orient, wild rice from Minnesota and a homemade herbed rice mixture that has me boiling water and dumping in the contents, stirring and waiting for 45 minutes to enjoy with no fuss.

Large, cookie-jar-type glass bottles are great when filled with a mixture of split peas, dried green peas, yellow peas, garbanzos and colored beans. Include a simple recipe or a jar of restaurant-style soup base available at local restaurant supply houses and you have a winter warmer that will be remembered long after the holidays.

EVEN THOSE with little or no time to spare between their holiday shopping and work can visit a local greenhouse and for a small investment of dollars pick up tiny pots of fresh herbs. Wrap the tiny

Trifling changes are made

In a quaint, little farmhouse south of Michigan Avenue in Dearborn, old-fashioned English trifle is being prepared this holiday season, much the way it was done 100 years ago.

Pound cake for the trifle is baked in the oven of an authentic, wood-burning cookstove that is continually stoked with wood kindling from an old-fashioned woodbox.

Heavy cream for the custard filling is whipped by hand with a wire whisk. And all the dishes and utensils are washed in tin washbuckets.

Of course, some minor changes have taken place. Jam used in the trifle comes out of a Smucker's jar, and the butter and cream are picked up at a local supermarket.

Although the women in the kitchen wear long dresses reminiscent of the 19th-century period, they change these clothes at the end of the day, and go home to cook on ultra-modern electric ranges and microwaves.

Real as it seems, this is, after all, Greenfield Village, and the women who work here are paid to preserve the flavor of 19th-century Michigan.

But the farmhouse, transplanted from Vienna, Ontario, is the actual home of Thomas Alva Edison's grandparents.

And the trifle, as well as other delicacies on exhibit at the farmhouse through Sunday, Jan. 1, are replicas of foods that would have been baked there in the days when the young Edison visited his grandparents in Canada.

Gifts from your own kitchen make holidays memorable

pot in colored foil and you have a windowsill garden that looks great and will be enjoyed by anyone who cooks.

Even Fido gets into the act with the enclosed recipe for homemade doggie biscuits. This is a yearly favorite of the James gang dog-groomer who is really disappointed when a recipe isn't enclosed so that he can make them himself throughout the year.

Getting out of the kitchen a little, something homemade like tiny sachets of herbed potpourri as drawer scents are always welcomed by those grandma types who collect hankies from everyone. I've included a homemade recipe for moth repellent that smells as good as a herbed potpourri and works as well as those smelly moth-balls.

So this holiday season, it doesn't take a lot of bucks to do some great holiday shopping and gift giving. Remember, when giving something homemade, never forget that a gift of love is a gift from the heart. Happy holidays and bon appetit!

HOMEMADE DOGGIE BISCUITS
3/4 cup hot water or warm meat juices
1/2 cup margarine
1/2 cup powdered milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
1 egg, beaten
3 cups whole wheat flour

In a large bowl, pour hot water or meat juices over margarine. Stir in powdered milk, salt, sugar and egg. Add flour, one half cup at a time, mixing well after each addition. Knead 3 minutes, adding more flour if necessary to make a very stiff dough. Pat or roll to 1/4-inch thickness and cut out using a dog-biscuit cutter or roll into logs. Place on a lightly greased cookie sheet and bake at 325 degrees for 30 minutes. Allow to cool and dry out overnight before bagging. Do not store in airtight containers.

HOMEMADE 5-BEAN SOUP

Fill a quart jar with alternating layers of dried navy beans, dried pinto beans, dried garbanzo beans, dried split peas and dried yellow peas. At the top include a bay leaf, 2 cloves of garlic. Seal and garnish with a ribbon. Include this recipe:

Soak beans for 1 day in half water and add 2 quarts of water. Include 1 ham bone or 2 ham hock (if desired) or 1/4 cup flavored bouillon. Cook, covered, for 3 hours on low heat, stirring occasionally. Correct seasonings with salt and pepper and enjoy.

EASY CHOCOLATE TRUFFLES
12 ounces milk chocolate, chopped
1/2 cup heavy cream
1/4 cup (1/4 stick) butter
3/4 cup cocoa powder

In a large heavy saucepan, combine chocolate with cream and butter. Heat on low heat, stirring until smooth. Transfer to a bowl and chill till firm, about 4 hours. Form the mixture into small balls, about 1 tablespoon each and roll in powdered cocoa. Keep in an airtight container. Can be kept for 2 weeks. Makes about 35.

KITCHEN POTPOURRI

Place this in a small saucepan of water on your stove on the lowest heat possible for a lovely holiday smell:

1/2 of 1 orange, cut into strips (can be dried)
1/2 of 1 lime, cut into strips (can be dried)
2 cinnamon sticks, broken in half
1 tablespoon whole allspice berries
2 bay leaves
1 teaspoon whole cloves

These items can be wrapped in cheesecloth and tied with a bright holiday bow for gift giving.

HOMEMADE MOTH REPELLENT (OR DRAWER SACHET)

Look for these ingredients at an herb shop or natural foods store.
1/4 cup lavender
1/4 cup pennyroyal
1/4 cup tansy
1/4 cup wormwood
1/4 cup southernwood

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Place in small cheesecloth pouches or cut nylon. Tie with colorful bow and make sure to label: For drawers or closets only (non-edible).

Cholesterol is both good, bad

LDL, HDL, polyunsaturated, monounsaturated, good cholesterol, bad cholesterol.

What do they mean to us as we prepare foods at home or eat out? No one should make major changes in the diet without consulting a physician. Know your cholesterol level and do not settle for being told it is normal.

A limited amount of cholesterol is important for the regulation of certain body functions, but high levels in the bloodstream may form fatty deposits in the arteries. These deposits may slow or block the flow of blood through the body resulting in a heart attack or stroke.

Eating less total fat is a safe way to reduce calories and cholesterol consumption. Losing weight and exercise can reduce the effects of other heart-disease risk factors and improve overall health.

SIMPLY PUT, LDL — cholesterol (low density lipoprotein) — transports the cholesterol in the blood and is referred to as the "bad cholesterol" and linked to coronary risk. HDL — cholesterol (high density lipoprotein) — is called the "good cholesterol," so keep the low as low as possible and the high as high as possible. You need to know these levels; when you have a cholesterol test, ask for these numbers.

In general there are three kinds of fats in our diets. Saturated fats tend to increase blood cholesterol. These are usually solid fats. Some foods high in saturated fat are whole milk, cream, some cheeses, butter, meat, coconut oil, chocolate and lard. To keep the saturated fat down, select lean cuts of meat (white meat contains less fat than dark). Avoid anything packed in oil. Restrict use of fatty luncheon meats. Use skim milk instead of whole milk. Polyunsaturated fats tend to diminish blood cholesterol. These are usually liquid oils such as corn, sunflower, cottonseed, safflower, sesame and soy oils, besides fish and poultry (without the skin). They are liquid at room temperature.

home economist, Cooperative Extension Service

Nearly all fats from plant sources are unsaturated. The exceptions are palm oil and coconut oils, which are highly saturated. These are usually present in prepackaged foods, such as baked goods, mayonnaise, salad dressing and snack foods.

Read the label to make sure these are not listed. If baked goods leave an oily stain on the paper bag, they're rich in fat — beware! MONO-UNSATURATED fats have no direct effect one way or the other. Some scientists consider them neutral or think they can lower cholesterol. Olive oil and peanut oil are this type of fat. These fats are derived from olives, almonds, peanuts and grapeseeds. Avocado is also monounsaturated fat.

When choosing margarine, the first ingredient on the label should be liquid vegetable oil. Don't buy one that lists the first ingredient as partially hydrogenated or hardened oil. Continue to eat dairy products, just switch to the low fat varieties. Keep the salads, use a vinegar (no oil) dressing.

Trifling changes made in preparing old recipe

though it takes longer, she said.

As for the stove, "You don't know how many people wish they had a stove like that," Dillingham said. "They say bread never tasted as good as it tastes in that stove."

"They get so caught in the atmosphere," Riley said, adding that it isn't as simple as it looks. There's no temperature control, she said. You just keep adding wood from a box in the kitchen all day long.

But if you ask Dillingham how she would make English trifle given her choice, she said she would make it 1988 style.

"I'd use an electric mixer," she

For a really special occasion, it's worth your while to try this real English trifle. Dillingham says it's the best made the day before and kept in the refrigerator until time to serve.

The trifle dates back to the 17th century, when it was made in the following way, according to C. Anne Wilson in "Food and Drink in Britain."

"Take a pint of thick cream, season it with ginger and rose water, so stir it as you would then have it, and make it lukewarm in a dish on a chafing dish and coals. And after put it into a silver piece or bowl and so serve it to the board."

By 1751, she writes, trifle was being made with broken biscuits or macarons, boiled custard in the middle and a syllabus over it. (Webster's New World Dictionary of the American Language defines a syllabus as a dessert or beverage made of sweetened milk or cream, mixed with wine or cider and beaten to a froth.)

"Subsequent recipes replaced the syllabus with whipped cream, and the modern trifle was established," Wilson said.

"The trifle you will find in Greenfield Village is a fabulous dessert made up of layers of cake spread with jam and boiled custard. The entire concoction is topped with whipped cream and garnished with nuts."

It's best served in a deep, footed, clear, glass bowl called a trifle bowl.

During the month of December, the costumed staff at Greenfield Village is demonstrating the preparation of different recipes each day of the week.

Saturday is designated for pound cake, molded hard candy, lemon tarts and spiced nuts. English trifle, as well as ginger cookies, mints and spiced nuts are prepared on Sunday.

Due to health department regulations, the public isn't allowed to do any tasting, said Anne McIntosh, a productions coordinator in the public relations department at Greenfield Village.

However, you can use the village's recipe to make a trifle of your own.

EASY TRIFLE

For a super-simple holiday dessert, try this easy version of English trifle, from Marge Dillingham, historical interpreter at Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

1 ready-made pound cake (or substitute ladyfingers or macarons)
1 cup jam, any flavor as long as it's red
2 boxes vanilla-flavored instant pudding mix
1 pint of whipping cream, whipped

fresh or frozen raspberries or strawberries
1 banana
chopped nuts

Slice the pound cake, spreading each slice with jam. Prepare the pudding and fold in some whipped cream. Layer slices of cake on the bottom of a trifle bowl, then pour on a layer of pudding. Continue layering until the cake and pudding are gone. Garnish with whipped cream, raspberries or strawberries, banana and nuts.

ENGLISH TRIFLE

1 pound cake
1 cup jam
rich custard
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
nuts for garnish

Slice cake and spread with jam. Place a layer in trifle dish. Cover with layer of rich custard. Add another layer of jam, spread cake with custard. Garnish with the whipped cream. Sprinkle chopped nuts on top. Chill.

Rich Custard
1/4 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
1 cup heavy cream
4 well-beaten egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter

Mix sugar, cornstarch, salt. Gradually stir in milk and cream. Cook until thick. Add eggs and butter. Cook for about 2 minutes. Add vanilla. When cool, add the whipped cream. Fold gently and chill.

2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Mix sugar, cornstarch, salt. Gradually stir in milk and cream. Cook until thick. Add eggs and butter. Cook for about 2 minutes. Add vanilla. When cool, add the whipped cream. Fold gently and chill.

POUND CAKE
1 cup soft butter
1 cup sugar
4 eggs
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder

Cream butter, gradually add sugar and beat thoroughly. Beat in, one at a time, the four eggs. Add flour and baking powder and beat just until smooth. Pour into buttered bread pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 60-75 minutes.

Ox tails make up Rib roast heightens supper flavorful stew

AP — Ox tails may not look like much at the meat counter, but they deliver lots of good flavor after slow simmering. Plan to buy 1/2 to 1 pound of ox tails per serving because there's a good bit that's not edible.

ONION OXTAIL STEW

1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
dash pepper

2 pounds ox tails, disjointed
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 cup peeled onion
1 tomato, chopped and chopped
1 large carrot, finely chopped
1 medium turnip, pared and finely chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
5 fresh sprigs parsley
1 bay leaf
1 cup water
1 cup dry white wine
1/2 teaspoon salt

Combine flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt and dash pepper. Coat ox tails with flour mixture. Coat ox tails with oil. In 10-quart Dutch oven slowly brown half the ox tails at a time in hot oil, turning often; drain off excess fat. Add onion, tomato, chopped carrot, turnip, garlic, parsley, bay leaf, broth, water and half the wine. Cover and simmer 1 1/2 hours. Remove and discard parsley and bay leaf. Skim off fat. Add remaining wine, 1/4 teaspoon salt and dash pepper. Return to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer, covered, 30 minutes. Add sliced carrots and onions; simmer, covered, 30 to 25 minutes more. Makes 5 to 8 servings.

This recipe is from a menu for an English Country House Supper for Six in the article "Feasting in Style" in the December issue of Bon Appetit magazine.

CLASSIC STANDING RIB ROAST WITH CLARET PAN SAUCE

Simple and sophisticated. Start this about three hours before you plan to eat. Six servings.

1 6-8 pound standing rib roast
2 large garlic cloves, split
1 large onion, thinly sliced
salt and freshly ground pepper
1 1/2 cups dry red wine, such as Bordeaux or Cabernet Sauvignon
2 cups chicken stock or canned low-salt broth
fresh parsley sprigs

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Trim all but 1/2 inch layer of fat from meat. Place meat bone side down in shallow roasting pan slightly larger than meat. Rub garlic over meat. Leave garlic in pan. Arrange onion around meat in pan. Sprinkle meat with salt and pepper. Roast meat 20 minutes. Pour 1/2 cup wine over meat. Roast until thermometer inserted in center of meat registers 125 degrees for rare, basting frequently with pan juices, and pouring about three tablespoons wine over meat every 30 minutes; about 2 1/2 hours.

Transfer meat to heated platter.

reserving drippings in pan. Tent meat with foil to keep warm. Skim fat off pan drippings. Set pan with drippings over high heat. Add stock and boil until syrupy, scraping up any browned bits and stirring frequently about eight minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Strain sauce. Garnish meat with parsley. Serve, passing sauce separately.

Ladyfingers used with rich mousse

AP — Surprise! Slice through the whipped cream frosting and you'll find a layer of ladyfingers and rich chocolate mousse.

Prepare this scrumptious mocha loaf — except for the whipped-cream frosting — and freeze for up to a week before guests arrive, remove from the freezer, transfer to a serving plate, and pipe or spread the whipped cream.

For most occasions plan for 12 servings from this dessert. After a big meal, or if you plan more than one dessert, cut into eight slices and halve each slice lengthwise for 16 servings.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE CHARLOTTE
18 ladyfingers, split
3 tablespoons rum
2 egg yolks
3 tablespoons rum
3 tablespoons hot strong coffee
8 squares (8 ounces) semisweet chocolate, melted
3 egg whites
1/2 cup whipping cream
1 1/4 cups whipping cream
3 tablespoons hot strong coffee
chocolate curls (optional)
chocolate-flavored syrup (optional)

In a mixer bowl beat 1/4 cup whipping cream until stiff peaks form. Gently fold into chocolate mixture. Pour into lined pan. Top chocolate mixture with remaining ladyfingers. Cover with plastic wrap. Freeze overnight or until firm or up to 1 week.

Three hours before serving, remove cake from freezer. Whip 1/4 cups whipping cream until stiff peaks form. Unmold cake from pan. Frost with whipped cream. Return cake to refrigerator. Garnish top of cake with chocolate curls, if desired. Pass chocolate-flavored syrup, if desired. Makes 12 servings.

Salem earns split decision in mat debut

Plymouth Salem experienced the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat in its first wrestling competition of the 1988-89 season Thursday.

The Rocks lost a 49-20 match to perennial power Hazel Park, dropping several close bouts that might have tipped the scales along the way.

But Salem rebounded with a 72-6 triumph over Saginaw in the second half of the double dual. Westland John Glenn trimmed Hazel Park 37-30 and also trounced Saginaw.

"I thought we had a good chance (against Hazel Park), but we had a lot of young kids in the lineup," Salem coach Ron Krueger said. "You're never as bad off as you think you are" after the Saginaw match, he added.

The Rocks recorded 10 pins in their victory. Brian Burlison and Matt Konenski had the fastest falls and only sub-minute pins.

Burlison pinned Arthur Carpenter in 44 seconds at 171, and Konenski stopped Myrice Brown at :45 of their 103-pound bout.

Other Salem pins were posted by Ken Stopa, 125, over Pat Britton, 1:43; Mike Shumate, 130, over Jacob Sampson, 2:20; Ron Miller, 135, over DeLong Wells, 1:12; Ed Barlage, 140, over Daryl White, 1:50; Mark Addy, 152, over Ron Albertson, 1:50; Steve Burlison, 160, over Elijah Hughes, 2:56; Anthony Perkins, 189, over Reggie Tillman, 4:51; Scott Breithaupt, heavyweight, over Robert Carpenter, 3:48.

In addition, Salem's Ian Kage (112) and Craig Richardson (119) won by forfeit when Saginaw voided those weight classes.

In the Hazel Park match, Richardson and Stopa pinned their opponents. Richardson, wrestling at 112, stopped Wayne Cupp at 3:41, and Stopa pinned Steve Knute at 3:06 of their 119-pound contest.

Barlage won a 14-7 decision over Mark Chaddock at 140 pounds, and Brian Burlison defeated Clark Durbrow by a 20-5 score at 171.

Matt Konenski of Plymouth Salem grapples with Hazel Park opponent T.J. Baughman in Thursday's season-opening dual meet at Salem. Baughman won the 103-pound bout, but Konenski later evened his record by pinning Myrice Brown of Saginaw. The Rocks lost to Hazel Park but defeated Saginaw.

Chargers gain court victory

Two teams with plenty of incentive met on Livonia Churchill's basketball court Friday night. This was how Churchill coach Fred Price described the ensuing action:

"It wasn't a beautiful game. They played tough, we played tough. We were both after that first win of the season. It's not going to get any easier, so it's nice to get that first one to get some confidence."

The team that emerged with the confidence and something to help balance its ledger a bit was the Chargers, who edged Garden City 71-57. As Price said, the victory (after two setbacks) didn't come easily. The two teams were tied at 15 after one quarter; Churchill led by four (35-31) at the half.

The Chargers increased their advantage to six (51-45) heading into the final quarter, but it took solid free throw shooting down the stretch to ensure the win. Churchill made seven-of-12 foul shots in the fourth quarter (the Cougars were three-of-four). For the game, Churchill canned 25-of-33 to GC's 13-of-20.

The Chargers handled GC's fourth-quarter pressure well, a key factor in their victory. Jason Belaire was the pivotal player. He stationed himself at the top of the key and, when he got the ball, either shot or penetrated and dished the ball off to one of two teammates stationed in the low post.

Price's strategy worked well, thanks to his triggerman, Belaire, who notched 22 points. Chad Campau

River Rats top Canton

Ann Arbor Huron used a combination of height and perimeter shooting Friday night to fight off a scrappy Plymouth Canton opponent in non-league basketball action, 65-55.

Behind a frontline standing 6-7, 6-9 and 6-8, the River Rats raced to a 34-25 halftime lead, but the Chiefs, who were led by Brian Paupore's 26 points and 10 rebounds, bounced back in the second half.

"We were really hurt on the boards," Canton coach Tom Niemi said of the first-half play. "They triangled the board, released a guard and threw deep. That hurt us early."

But the Chiefs adjusted their defense at halftime and took away Huron's inside game. Canton held the River Rats to just nine third-quarter points and climbed to within four, 43-39, with one period remaining.

Huron, however, countered by hitting three 3-point field goals to begin the last quarter and offset Canton's tough inside defense. The Rats outscored the Chiefs 22-16 in the finale.

James Davis scored 21 points and 6-foot-8 Carlos Williams had 18 to lead Huron, 2-1. Waldron scored 19 points for Canton, 1-1. The Rats had a 37-22 advantage on the boards.

chipped in with 15 points, Mike Juodawlkis added 14 points and nine rebounds and Eric Osen came off the bench to get nine points and eight boards.

Jason Wynn and Paul Donaldson scored 13 points apiece for winless GC (0-3).

ST. AGATHA 86, MT. CARMEL 51: Redford St. Agatha coach Jim Murphy's job was over early Friday. "We played a tough man-to-man defense, and we pressed effectively," Murphy said. And for how long? "We pulled (the press) off after one quarter."

By that time the Aggies had constructed a 30-10 lead, and the only question left unanswered was how big the margin of victory would be over visiting Wyandotte Mt. Carmel. Senior forwards Mike Boyle and Matt Haran led the attack, Boyle getting 29 points and 12 rebounds and Haran adding 23 points.

Neither played in the fourth quarter, after three, St. Agatha (2-0 overall, 1-0 in the Catholic C-D League) led 70-30.

Mt. Carmel (0-2 overall, 0-1 in the league) got 13 points from Greg Kazmieriski and 11 from John Lipinski.

THURSTON 70, ANNAPOLIS 61: Fernando Merida had a monster of a game, collecting 24 points and 21 rebounds as Redford Thurston outscored visiting Dearborn Heights Annapolis 35-22 in the second half Friday.

It was a tighter game than the final score indicates. With two minutes left, the two teams were tied at 61. Thurston (now 2-1) scored the game's final nine points to claim the victory.

Jason Muller added 15 points and Matt Farris had 13 for the Eagles. Kevin Barhoff's 18 points was best for Annapolis (1-2); Mark Cifaldi added 13.

Thurston trailed 39-35 at the half.

MONROE 66, WAYNE 50: The second quarter doomed Wayne Memorial Friday. Visiting Monroe pulled away from a 14-14 tie with a 17-8 second-quarter surge, and never let the Zebras get back into it.

Three players sparked Monroe, the defending Wolverine A League champion: Jason Harter (16 points), Cody Dickerson (15) and Willie Jones (12). Wayne got 13 points and six rebounds from Chris Hebner and 10 points from Leonard Wade.

N. FARMINGTON 58, RU 54: Redford Union had two triples in the fourth quarter. Unfortunately, those were the only baskets for the Panthers in the period. Visiting North Farmington outscored them 17-13 in the final quarter and that was the difference in the game.

"North's inside game hurt us," said RU coach Tip Smathers, whose team fell for the first time in three games. "(Eric) Carlson and (Bill) Chwalik were effective. We played hard but our offense wasn't what it was in our first two wins."

Carlson finished with 10 points and nine rebounds and Chwalik chipped in with six points and 10 boards. Bryan Temple's 19 points led North (1-2).

RU led 46-45 early in the final quarter, but couldn't hang on. Joe Delfgauw's 17 points was best for the Panthers; John Burdick added 15.

GC UNITED 55, SALINE CHRISTIAN 47: Garden City United Christian went into a press in the second quarter, which led to a 22-13 surge and a 33-25 halftime lead Thursday at Saline.

Once the Eagles got the lead, they nev-

Orris shatters pair of records

Ron Orris and his Plymouth Salem teammates couldn't have asked for better results in their 1988-89 swimming debut Thursday.

In his first opportunity, Orris qualified for state in two events and shattered pool and varsity records while leading the Rocks to a 105-67 victory over Dearborn, always one of the state's best Class B teams.

Orris swam an impressive 1:56.1 in the 200-yard individual medley, eclipsing the pool record set by Tom Szuba of Ann Arbor in 1972.

The time also was a varsity record, as was Orris' winning time of 52.1 in the butterfly. The old mark had stood even longer than the former IM standard, having been established by Pat McCord in 1968.

"Those are scary times," Salem coach Chuck Olson said. "They are fast. He just blew that (butterfly record) away."

"He's for real. Those are good times. Besides, Ron has looked forward to the season."

"I would imagine, if things work out the way we hope, he'll qualify in every individual event."

In addition, Orris helped the Rocks win the medley relay, hooking up with teammates Sean Fitzgerald, Mark Erickson and Mike Hill to post a 1:45.0 time.

Hill was the 50 freestyle winner with a 23.2 time, and another veteran, Fred Seidelman, a senior tri-captain along with Hill and Fitzgerald, won the 200 freestyle in 1:53.5.

Pat McManaman scored 157.3 points to win the diving, and Rick Steshetz captured the 100 freestyle in 54.4.

The Rocks also swept the relays with Steve Wells, Rob Shimmel, Craig Wilsher and Chris Caloia winning the freestyle in 3:46.0.

An improved hitter and defensive player, SC's Nikki Stubbs was an All-American and a unanimous selection as NJCAA player of the year.

All-American Talent carries Stubbs to national honor

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Schoolcraft sports

Nothing in all of sports is as surprising as how far effort can carry talent.

Just ask Nikki Stubbs.

The Garden City graduate entered the Schoolcraft College volleyball season as a good player, a talented player, a player hoping to have a season solid enough to allow her to continue playing at a four-year college in 1989.

She ended it as the best player in the NJCAA.

Stubbs, the key component in SC's NJCAA championship, was chosen as an NJCAA All-American last week. That was not unexpected. After all, Stubbs, a sophomore, had already been named all-Eastern Conference and all-Region 12, and was the most valuable player in the NJCAA tournament.

But another tribute was added to her list of accolades. Stubbs was selected as Reebok player of the year in the NJCAA.

THIS MARKS the first time the Reebok award has been presented. It will be given to the outstanding volleyball player in each NCAA division

(I, II, III and NJCAA) every year. The presentation will be made at a banquet honoring the All-Americans in Minneapolis next weekend, during the NCAA I final four tournament.

"Last year, I would never have thought she would have attained this," said Teeters of Stubbs. "I would definitely say she's one of the best players around."

The 5-foot-7 Stubbs did a lot of everything for SC, which made her a logical choice for the Reebok award. She led the Lady Ocelots in kills with 451 and had a .327 kill percentage. She also collected 31 solo blocks and 52 block assists.

But her contributions didn't end with hitting. Stubbs had 52 aces in 521 serves, 93 percent of which were good; she excelled in serve reception, with just 29 errors in 355 tries; she collected 393 digs; and she tallied 387 assists-to-kills in 1,176 sets.

THE REEBOK award was an unexpected pleasure for Stubbs. "I was pretty surprised about that," she admitted. "I found out about both awards (Monday), so I was pretty happy."

Stubbs figured her improved play in several areas earned her the Reebok award. "I think my hitting and passing was better, and my serve reception," she said.

But that wasn't her biggest source of pride. "I take pride in (my all-around play) because it shows I'm not a one-thing player," she said. "It makes me feel better that I can do a bit of everything."

Long hours spent honing her skills through the summer paid off for Stubbs, who hasn't decided where to continue her education and volleyball career yet. She is considering several Mid-American Conference schools, but said she probably won't decide until February.

"I take pride in (my all-around play) because it shows I'm not a one-thing player. It makes me feel better that I can do a bit of everything."

Area hunters pursue elk

MICHIGAN'S 1988 winter elk hunt is in full swing and runs through Tuesday. Of the 145 hunters selected by computer to participate in the hunt, eight are from the Observer & Eccentric coverage area.

Dennis Jelley of Farmington, David Lovie of Birmingham and Wilby Stupl of Livonia each received a hunters choice permit, which allows them to shoot a bull or a cow elk.

Marion Walker of Orchard Lake, Charles Gordon of Redford Township, Richard Lyttala of Troy, Dennis Smith of Plymouth and William Lindber of Farmington each received an antlerless-only elk permit.

The 145 successful applicants were selected randomly by computer from 40,166 applications for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources received.

The DNR issued 85 antlerless-only permits and 60 hunters-choice permits.

The October elk hunt, held for the first time this year, wasn't as successful as the DNR had hoped. Of the 90 licenses issued only 72 hunters returned with an elk.

"In the two areas in which we held the hunt there is a lot of private land," explained Ed Langenau, big game specialist with the DNR. "Hunters had to spend a lot of time going from door to door trying to get permission to hunt."

The recent elk hunt began in 1984, and the success rate has been phenomenal. In those four years, 395 permits were issued and 390 elk were harvested.

Bill Parker outdoors

BUZZLOADING DEER season is upon us. And not surprisingly, the popularity of the season — much like the archery and firearms seasons — has been on the rise in recent years.

In 1986, 60,280 hunters took 6,510 deer during the muzzleloading season. In 1987, 81,650 hunters bagged 8,360 deer. Of which, 4,570 were bucks. The DNR expects 100,000 hunters to take to the field this year for the muzzleloading season, which runs through Dec. 11 in the Upper Peninsula and Dec. 9-18 in the Lower Peninsula.

A few changes are in store for muzzle hunters this year including the legalization of the use of conical balls.

In the past, only round balls and a patch were allowed during the muzzleloading deer season.

The advantages of using conical balls differs, depending on who you talk to," explained DNR big game specialist Ed Langenau. "Some people say the conical ball is very accurate and shoots a little further. Personally, I've shot nothing but round balls, and I've found them to be very accurate."

The use of a black powder substitute such as pyrode is also legal beginning this year. DNR policy had allowed the use of substitutes in the past, but the law specified black powder only. That terminology has now been changed to include black powder substitutes and hopefully eliminate any confusion.

It will also be legal to hunt with a black-powder handgun this year as long as it is a .44 caliber or larger.

mation received will be kept confidential.

POACHERS WERE at it again recently, and this time the damage was done practically in our own backyard.

Carl Sams, an Ann Arbor photographer, found the carcass of a deer with the head removed on Nov. 3 in Kensington Metropark.

Sams believes it was the same eight-point buck he had photographed in the area earlier that day. A $1,500 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons involved in the shooting.

"We urge any person who has information to call us immediately," said DNR law enforcement chief Herd Burns. "Poachers who commit such acts usually boast about their action. Someone undoubtedly knows who killed this animal, we hope the reward will encourage them to come forward."

Anyone with information should call the DNR's 24-hour RAP hotline at 1-800-292-7800, or the Pontiac District office at 666-1500. All information received will be kept confidential.

Doctor should make decision on orthotics

Dear Myrna: I am a very active person. I take both low-impact and high-impact aerobic classes. I've just purchased orthotics for my shoes. My doctor claims it will help eliminate the stress my feet are feeling. I also run three times a week and take at least five to six classes a week. Can you explain more about orthotics?

Basically, you must understand that all of our bodies are a little off balance. There are few of us who are created evenly on both sides of our bodies. Of course, our feet are not created equal either, nor are they perfect. For those less than perfect feet, orthotic custom-fitted foot supports fill in the spaces that nature left out.

Properly fit, orthotics can dramatically improve a person's balance, agility and endurance. Orthotics can eliminate the stress that causes stress fractures and shin splints. They also can relieve foot-related problems like corns, calluses and bunions.

The question is how can you tell if you are a candidate for orthotics?

Some exercisers can tell by the fact they are experiencing foot, leg or back discomfort. Studies have shown that 80 percent of the population have foot imbalances. A survey on runners has shown a significant relationship between foot imbalances and susceptibility to injury.

Your doctor, as you have said, is the one to make a decision on whether a person may or may not need orthotics. The decision should not be made by the exerciser. Remember, they must be custom made with a prescription from an orthotist. I recommended Progressive Orthopedics.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Please send your letters to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 1225 Bowers, Birmingham 48012.)

The Canton Soccer team is accepting second-session team registrations. The session begins Tuesday, Jan. 3, and is open to youth and adult teams. The entry deadline is Thursday, Dec. 29.

The cost is $600 per team for eight games. For information, call 483-5624 2-9 p.m. weekdays or noon to 6 p.m. weekends.

● INDOOR SOCCER

Anyone interested in playing indoor soccer may call 397-1000 or 455-6620 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily before Saturday, Dec. 24.

● CANTON SOCCER

Coaches and parents of players in the Canton Soccer Club are requested to submit registration forms for the spring/1989 season as soon as possible.

Completed forms may be returned to the coach or the Canton Township Recreation Office. They also may be mailed to the club at Box 87244, Canton, 48187.

Registration forms are available at the recreation office. Open registration will take place on Saturdays, Jan. 14 and 21, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at the Canton Township Hall. Forms will not be accepted after March 13.

The fee is $20 for returning players and $25 for newcomers. $30 for premier and others who didn't play last fall.

Senior guard Tim Blatter led United Christian with 26 points. Senior forward Ted Dillow added nine points and 17 rebounds, and Pat Avery came off the bench to contribute eight points and six boards. Junior forward Luke Miller paced Saline (2-5 overall, 1-3 in the MCC) with 19 points.

er gave it up. The win was their fifth straight, against two losses. They are 1-0 in the Metro Christian Conference.

Senior guard Tim Blatter led United Christian with 26 points. Senior forward Ted Dillow added nine points and 17 rebounds, and Pat Avery came off the bench to contribute eight points and six boards. Junior forward Luke Miller paced Saline (2-5 overall, 1-3 in the MCC) with 19 points.

Dearborn stamped on visiting Livonia Franklin from the start, outscoring the Patriots 18-8 in the first quarter and 22-8 in the second Friday.

"We were badly outbounded," said Franklin coach Rod Hanna. "The players were not ready. They were nervous and didn't start playing until the fourth quarter."

At least the Patriots showed up in the second half. Trailing 40-16 at the half, Franklin put 22 points on the board in the third quarter — but fell further behind, 66-38. A 37-24 fourth-quarter rally salvaged somewhat for Franklin (2-1), which got 28 points from senior forward John Shea.

Senior guard Roy Hall added 17 points, junior guard Craig Overattis had 16 and sophomore center Steve McCool grabbed eight rebounds. Rob Serlich's 22 points and Tim Naiskud's 21 topped Dearborn. Rob Borysiak added 13.

HAMTRAC 65, LUTHERAN WSTLND. 32: Hamtramck clubbed Lutheran Westland with 49 points in the middle quarters Friday at Hamtramck.

The loss kept Westland winless after three games. On Thursday, Ann Arbor Greenhills ripped Westland 71-45 at Greenhills.

In the loss to Hamtramck (2-1), Westland was outscored 49-19 in the second and third quarters. Clabe Flinty (14 points), Dwayne Thompson (13) and Tyrone Weatherbee (11) led Hamtramck. Bryon O'Droski (11) and Chris Habit (10) were high scorers for Westland.

ROEPER 57, TEMPLE CHRIST. 47: David Best poured in 13 fourth-quarter points to spark a Bloomfield Hills Roeper comeback Friday against visiting Redford Temple Christian.

The Patriots (1-3) led 35-34 entering the final period but were outscored 23-12, with Best doing most of the damage. He finished with 18 points. Rob Winkworth led the unbeaten Roughriders (3-0) with 26 points and six steals.

Rob Laven topped Temple Christian with 17 points.

Marian wins girls state cage title

The Mustangs tied the score when senior forward Jennifer Shasky — who had an outstanding tournament — was denied its first state title of any kind in the school's history. They ended the season with a 26-1 record.

"I was tired and I know the girls were tired (after Friday's game)," said Lillie-Cicerone. "We were so high after beating Murray Wright there had to be a little letdown."

"But (on Saturday), when we got in the gym the two Class D teams had the place rockin' and that helped to get the adrenalin going," she said. "They were ready to play when the time counted and that's all that mattered."

And play they did.

POWERS, WHICH defeated Trenton by four points in its semifinal game Friday, scored the game's first basket when junior forward Jenny Aveyrey took the tip and went in for an uncontested lay-up. It would be the only lead the Chargers would own all afternoon.

Marian came as close to perfection as possible over the next five minutes.

Senior guard Patty Boyle ran the offense to perfection — finishing with six assists — and played a key defensive role at the top of Marian's 1-3-1 zone. Shasky hit jumpers with amazing consistency, shooting 66 percent on the afternoon, while scoring a game-high 30 points.

But Shasky and Boyle had plenty of help.

Sophomore center Trina Govan played with tremendous emotion around the basket, junior guard Hazel Olden hit a few timely jumpers and played aggressive at both ends of the court, and senior forward Julie Fleisher helped keep the offense running smoothly. Juniors Carin Graat and Kris Baiardi played dependable roles as substitutes in clutch situations.

LILLIE-CICERONE could not have asked for a better effort as the Mustangs became just the third team to lead by at least 70 points in a Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) state championship game.

"I think that as a team, the way they worked the ball around that floor...bing, bing, bing. We found the open person," she said. "I think they were just so smart tonight basketball-wise at finding (the open person) and reading that defense."

"I would have to say, yes, as far as the whole first five out there and even the two substitutes who went in, they knew exactly what their roles were and they did it," she said.

Marian's active zone defense neutralized Powers' main weapon — senior center Nikki Beaudry, who averaged 22.8 points per game this year and set school records in season, career and individual scoring. Beaudry tallied just one basket in the first half and finished the game with 10 points before fouling out.

EVERY FINISHED as the Chargers' leading scorer with 17 points. The next highest Powers scorer was Katie Kalahar with 7 points.

"We came out with a darn good aggressive defense. I don't think they got into the flow of their offense at all," said Lillie-Cicerone. "I think our defense was the key as far as we forced them out of what they like to do — get the ball to Nikki."

"Then we went down and did exactly what we wanted to do — work the ball around, get the open jumper and can it," she said. "I just think once we got on a roll we just stroled from there."

Shasky opened the third quarter with three straight jumpers as Marian built its lead to 44-19. Powers had little chance after that, and both squads had the opportunity to get all its players into the state championship game as the final moments ticked off the clock.

SUCCESS REPORTS from local deer hunters have been coming in slowly, but we have received a few.

Livonia's Mike Foley opened the 1988 season in style by shooting the first buck of his eight-year hunting career. Foley bagged the 8-year-old, 8-point trophy buck at dawn on opening day while hunting near Stockbridge in Jackson County. The buck dressed out at 180 pounds.

Mark Grodi of Oakland Township (north of Rochester) shot a 9-point buck with a 17-inch inside spread on the third day of the firearm season in north Oakland County. Grodi, a carpenter, was supposed to work that day, but after arriving at the job site he found there were no supplies available and was forced to take the day off and go hunting. He arrived at his favorite hunting spot at 9 a.m. and had filled his tag within the hour. The trophy buck dressed out at 185 pounds and was estimated to be 2 1/2 years old.

A couple of Oakland County hunters who reside in Oxford but work in the area also celebrated opening day success.

Bill Edwards dropped the third buck of his career at 7:22 a.m. on opening morning. The five-point buck dressed out at 140 pounds and was estimated to be 1 1/4 years old. Edwards has also shot a four- and a six-point buck.

November 15 must have been Dean Caddick's lucky day. A friend of Caddick's was going hunting and didn't want to hunt alone so he bought Caddick's license and shells and took him to a hunting spot in north Oakland County. Caddick dropped "the first buck I've ever seen in the wild," at dusk on opening day. The 4-point buck dressed out at 160 pounds. "It should have been a 6-point, but one side of the rack was broken off," Caddick said.

"It's not too late to report your success. Send or call in your story from the early archery, firearm, muzzle-

Thanks to these terrific young men and women who are our 1988 Carriers of the Year.

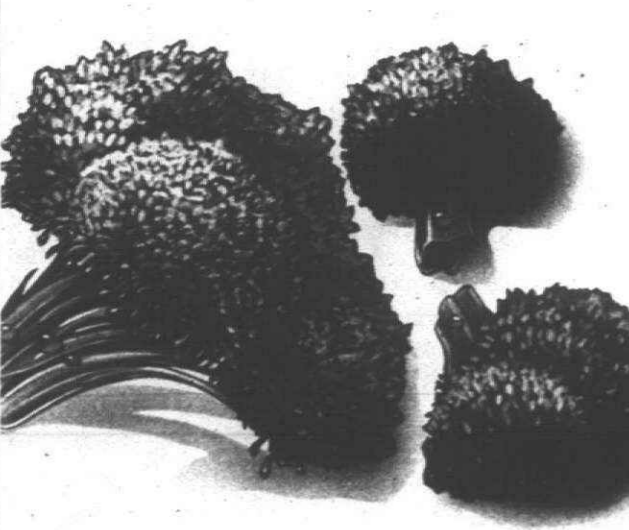

Throughout this year our 12 Observer & Eccentric carriers have delivered their hometown news twice each week in all kinds of weather. They have done a super job in keeping their collections organized and settling their accounts promptly. We select carriers who have exceptional collection records, carriers who have been Carrier of the Month. Their length of service, their diligence, character and commitment to their work are all qualities that we consider when the time rolls around to honor these special carriers with a trophy and a dinner.

Here they are and Thanks! again.

A defense against cancer can be cooked up in your kitchen.

Foods that may help reduce the risk of gastrointestinal and respiratory tract cancer are cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi, cauliflower.

There is evidence that diet and cancer are related. Some foods may promote cancer, while others may protect you from it.

Foods related to lowering the risk of cancer of the larynx and esophagus all have high amounts of carotene, a form of Vitamin A which is in cantaloupes, peaches, broccoli, spinach, all dark green leafy vegetables, sweet potatoes, carrots, pumpkin, winter squash and tomatoes, citrus fruits and brussels sprouts.

fish and types of sausages smoked by traditional methods should be eaten in moderation.

Be moderate in consumption of alcohol also.

A good rule of thumb is cut down on fat and don't be fat. Weight reduction may lower cancer risk. Our 12-year study of nearly a million Americans uncovered high cancer risks particularly among people 40% or more overweight.

Now, more than ever, we know you can cook up your own defense against cancer. So eat healthy and be healthy.

No one faces cancer alone.

Fruits, vegetables, and whole-grain cereals such as oatmeal, bran and wheat may help lower the risk of colorectal cancer.

Suzanne wears a lace bustier by Jezebel ($25) along with a sheer top by Ganzo ($36) and Lycra and lace skirt by Ayntonio ($24) at the recent "Fashion Obscure: A Sphere of Indulgence" presented by Noir Leather in Royal Oak and Luis G recently at the Majestic Theatre in Detroit.

The punk era of the late 1970s has evolved into a sleek look of the 1980s with fashions made of leather, Lycra, vinyl and rubber.

FASHION OBSCURE

A look of rebellion

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Leather wear has been around for awhile, going back to the days of the wild, wild west. James Dean and Marlon Brando further enhanced leather's rebellious image with their motorcycle jackets in movies of the 1950s.

Then there was the punk movement in the late 1970s in which leather jackets and boots were the standard uniform along with mohawk haircuts and safety pins through the ears.

Those who wear it were and are still considered on the outer fringes of avant-garde, people who're brash and aggressive.

But lo and behold. Leather fashions have found their way into the mainstream. Honest to goodness professionals such as writers, commercial artists, photographers . . . you name it they're wearing it.

Don't think so? Well perhaps you should have attended the recent fashion show, "Fashion Obscure: A Sphere of Indulgence," recently presented by Noir Leather and fashion photographer Luis G at the Majestic Theatre in Detroit. The historic theater was jammed with leather-clad followers of fashion as they scoped out what's new in the line of cowhide and other assorted dark wear.

The scene looked like something out of a futuristic nightclub. Everyone was dressed in black and socializing to the continually loud dirge of computerized music. For the most part, though, the people attending looked very businesslike.

Even the recent turn of events surprises Keith Howarth, owner of Noir Leather in Royal Oak.

David sports the casual look of stretch jeans by Lip Service ($50) and a sheer top by Ganzo ($36).

Winter tips for upscale driver

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

When outdoor temperatures go downscale, those on the go need to make some lifestyle changes.

Some more upscale folks will simply plunk down their gold credit cards and charge a couple of first-class airline tickets to the Caymans. But pity the poor yuppies — who under threat of impending corporate takeovers or whatever reason — must stick around town when the snow blows 'round.

For them, there are no more sidewalk cafes, sailing days or outdoor soirees.

And what self-respecting businessman or businesswoman would fail to suitably outfit his car for winter — to at least make winter car travel more comfortable?

Because, yes, when the snow does fall, you can still have it all.

For starters, the Brookstone store at Somerset Mall in Troy offers a "Hot Spot Pen Light" for $10.50. It melts ice in door locks and even writes and lights.

The ice-melting function is performed by moving a slide along the pen, said manager Maureen Sabiston.

A thin metal probe, which becomes hot to the touch in 15 seconds, fits in the lock and de-ices it faster than you can say "condominium."

Practical folks can take advantage of traditional gadgets and sprays to make winter car travel easier.

THESE INCLUDE lock de-icer spray or pressurized lock de-icers, gas line de-icers, window spray, which improves visibility in snow or rain, magnetic windshield covers and warmed, plug-in dipsticks, available at hardware and auto stores.

The Detailed Designs heated dipstick — $7.99 at Murray's Discount Auto Stores — is popular among Upper Peninsula yuppies, or "Yoopies."

Murray's also carries rear window defrosters-defoggers. The hot-air-blower model sells for $19.99, while replacement electrical window strips go for a few dollars more.

But an especially practical person may consider even more dynamic, upscale survival strategies.

To cut the glare of sunlight reflecting off a snowy landscape, the store carries $150 Revo sunglasses, "coated with more than 25 micro-layers to keep colors sharp and outlines crisp," McCampbell said.

One might also be glad the car was equipped with the $843 Panasonic EB362 cellular phone, with "every feature that you can possibly think of," said Westland Highland Appliance salesman Ed Zammit.

"It's got a speaker phone, two different kinds of locks, it's totally portable, with back-lit numbers, an electronic scratch pad, auto redial, it's got everything," he said.

And after making the call while awaiting a tow through the snow, one could pop a CD into the $737 Pioneer DEH-66 car CD player with random play, or listen to the $527 AIWA CTX-5600 car stereo-cassette player with Dolby B and C, music search, and more.

And consider the Caymans will still be there next winter.

Visionary VENTs

Everything you wanted to see but often missed because of foggy conditions is offered in new ski goggles called VENTs that incorporate an inclusive patented fog-free air-flow system. In three styles, the one shown is called the SV2 model, styled for fashion and function with a slightly smaller lens without sacrificing peripheral vision. Serious skiers might want SV1, featuring a large lens for vertical and downward field of vision. Coming in January is a VENTs model that will work for snowmobilers, motorcyclists and ATV users. Made in Brighton. For more information, call 1-800-274-VENT(8).

Whirls of swirls

Designer Jhane Barnes continues to be one of the most award-winning designers this season. Her men's sweaters continue to gain national acclaim for their simple, yet different look. This one has soft geometric swirls of black and grey with some soft specks of blue and pale pink. $200. The Broadway, downtown Birmingham.

High stepper

There's always excitement when the ultimate shoe designer Maude Frizon does her number. This black suede pair has a very "in" 2 1/2-inch hourglass heel and accents of red and mustard suede appliques. $335. Roz & Stern, Bloomfield Plaza, Birmingham.

Weighty subject

This set of overweight folks is just what many of us will end up looking like after devouring too many holiday goodies. But if those two are willing to fight the battle of the bulge, all of us can, if not, we can look at them and wish we had. Great pieces for setting on the table — or near the cupboard where the munchies are kept. $99.95 each. Gorman's Inner Circle, Southfield.

Sci-Fi Film

It came from... Michigan? Well wouldn't that make Orson Wells do a few tumblers. Yes, it's made in the Great Lake State sci-fi movie. "Moontrap," a new science fiction film starring Walter Koenig, will premiere at 7:30 p.m. at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor. Those folks at the Detroit Producers Association (DPA) are making this special presentation possible. All but a handful of the 200 creative people behind "Moontrap" live in the Detroit area. For this reason, the DPA is arranging a showcase of this movie here prior to its European run. This adventure blends robots, lost civilizations and space travel with sensitive presentation of contemporary issues. In the lobby of the Michigan Theatre, the audience will have the opportunity to view props, artwork and other memorabilia from the film. Director/producer Robert Dyke will speak and introduce key artistic personnel, including Koenig. Tickets are $10 and available at the Michigan Theatre, 603 Liberty, Ann Arbor.

Mexico visited

"Face to Face: Cranbrook/Mexico" is currently on exhibit at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum now through Feb. 5. The exhibition includes 17 student works and one piece by Cranbrook artist-in-residence, Gerhard Knodel. The works were produced in response to a recent visit to Mexico City by the Cranbrook Fiber Department. For most of the students, this was their first trip to Mexico and the responses of the individual artists are as diverse, colorful and enigmatic as the culture that influenced their creation.

Whether it's Christmas past or Christmas present, clearly not much has changed in the "Village That Time Forgot."

Franklin Village

Franklin Village, founded in 1825, became Michigan's first historic district listed in the National Registry of Historic Places in February 1969. Today, as throughout the centuries, Franklin is rich with warmth, tradition and culture. As this season's holidays grow closer, the tiny village that is situated one mile west of Telegraph just south of 14 Mile, is gearing up for another festive year. Said Sandy Barr, a resident of the village since 1954 and co-owner of the Village Bar, "Christmas is a wonderful time to be in Franklin." Her store alone is filled with hundreds of Christmas items ranging from ornate tree ornaments to leather collars covered with large jingle bells. In an effort to bring the small community ever closer (population is 1,000 families), several store owners got together recently, brainstormed and came up with "Holly Day." Recently, villagers and outsiders alike gathered for a one-day event that rekindled the spirit of the holidays with a variety of events. The fun-filled day included a buffet lunch and dinner, Christmas tree lighting, horse-drawn carriage rides through the historical district and a visit from St. Nick. In addition, area businesses rendered their talents with numerous demonstrations and services. Included was bow making at the Curiosity Shoppe. Christmas nail decorating at Gayle's Nails, jewelry casting at Michael Pomroy Custom Jewelers, and personalizing Christmas ornaments at the Village Barn. Many of the items that are for sale can be made by visitors with the materials sold at the Christmas Shop. "One year we got tired of customers saying, 'I can make that,'" she said. "So we decided to carry all the stuff so that they could copy what we made themselves. It's worked out great. People love it." Sharing some of those thoughts is longtime Franklin Village resident Gerald Haynes. "Being in the village during this time of year is truly wonderful," said Haynes, owner of Gerald's Salon in the village. "People that come to our village come here to get away from the beaten path and the strip malls." Specializing in hair color and styling, Haynes has been in business for more than 30 years and in the village for 29 years. "I was one of the first people to start a business here," he said. "I've always loved it because it's quaint, picturesque and beautiful during the holiday season."

with items made of stretch material such as the synthetic fiber Lycra blended with cotton along with rubber and vinyl. Materials such as Lycra hug the body, yet are lightweight and comfortable. "Even rubber is comfortable," Howarth said. "You just put talcum powder on the insides and it slides right on." AND WHETHER it's made of leather, vinyl, rubber, Lycra or out of Hefty bags, you can count on it being black. For women, there's an array of styles from which to choose. Let's There's the Aquagirl rubber skirt ($60), Marlow studded bustier ($52) with a sheer top by Ganzo ($36) a combo guaranteed to turn a few heads. Also, there's the combination of the English leather miniskirt ($99) with the Lady Marlene bustier that is studded at Noir ($100). The sleek-minded woman might be inclined to go with the form-fitting cotton Lycra strap dress made by Lip Service ($78). Of course, the look can be accentuated with studded wrist bands ($5-$20) or a spiked collar ($8-$30). Noir also sells sterling jewelry, leather and lace lingerie and hosiery not to mention the latest shoes and boots from England. For the fellows, there's some fashion for you, too. Want to impress the parents the first time you take out their daughter? Well, try striding up to the door wearing a Scottish kilt ($98) (just like the one Scotty would wear back in Glasgow, Captain Kirk), a T-shirt and a Brooks elite leather jacket ($185). A little too bold, perhaps. How about a combination of black stretch jeans by Lip Service ($50) complete with a sheer top by Ganzo ($36)? Of course, no look is set without the black leather jacket. While leather fashions are wild and diverse, the zip-up jacket has basically stayed the same through the years. But even those can take an individual look. People can add studs around the collar or the sleeves and paint slogans or band names on the front and back. style of jacket," Howarth said. "But everyone is going to make it look different." SOMETHING DIFFERENT is what Howarth wanted when he started Noir Leather. He worked for awhile as a restorer of antique furniture. But when the recession hit in the early 1980s, business dried up. "I had to do something to make some money," he said. "I was always intrigued by leather and thought it would be easy to manufacture since I was already a craftsman." Howarth adds studs to some of the garments to enhance their appearance, and assemblies boot chains. He also makes spiked wrist bands and boot straps in the store. Business is going well. But there's always the fear that the leather look could become too commercialized. "I've been in the leather business for many years, but I've always been a craftsman. I've always been a craftsman. I've always been a craftsman."

Car salesman Howard Andress, 32, has found a way to keep active in acting without leaving for the bright lights of Hollywood or New York.

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

His star search stays at home

By Amy Ross
special writer

Once an actor is not an actor, and it doesn't matter if you don't live in Hollywood.

Take it from 32-year-old Howard Andress — newlywed, car salesman and, yes, actor. His days of college theater ended, Andress has found a way to keep a hand in his profession right here at home in the Metro area. And he even gets paid for it.

Because he hasn't gotten rich yet selling cars at a West Bloomfield dealership, Andress has been supplementing his income with work in local and national TV commercials. Add to that the countless number of automotive training films and print advertisements he's appeared in, and you have one recognizable face in the neighborhood.

But he doesn't do it for the "fame," he said — only as a hobby. Because he enjoyed a more serious type of acting as a student at the University of Michigan, and then later at a school for acting in New York, the commercials are "not real satisfying to do full time." But they do put money in his wallet.

Andress said he never "got the bug" to go the Hollywood route, even though he might have had a better shot at stardom than most. Talent, looks, personality — he has it all. Except for the desire to become a part of the New York or California rat race.

"I once had a professor tell me I could be in soap operas," he said. "But I said, 'I don't want to do that, that's not serious acting.' I was more idealistic then."

Then with a far-off look he added with a smile, "It was probably foolish in retrospect. I could have earned a lot of money."

BUT DON'T let that fool you, for Andress admits he is nothing more than a homebody at heart. "What I want now is a conventional life. You know, wife, house, dog."

And he has all of that in Rochester. It's a comfortable life, much resembling the environment he grew up in, in Waterford Township. But there is another reason he hasn't made the jump to the coastal bright lights of film and TV cameras — the probabilities.

"(Being an actor) is really a struggle to make ends meet," he said. "Only about 5 percent of actors actually make a living at it full time."

And unfortunately, he said, it isn't always the most talented who get the work.

"To be a TV actor you just have to project yourself and communicate well. If you have a good personality and are good looking you're in. Some of the best actors I knew in college won't amount to anything because they aren't marketable — it's too bad that that's how it works."

For now though, that scenario has no effect on the amount of TV or advertising work he can get. And the best part about it is he can get it right here at home. "In my heart I'm a small-town sort of guy."

But that doesn't mean he's missed the boat as far as film parts go. For instance, when the movie "The Rosary Murders" was being filmed in Detroit two years ago, Andress picked up a "bit" role.

"Not as an extra," he said. "But I got cut out of the film during editing."

It wasn't a total loss though because he still got paid, but he never did go see the film, he admitted. "I don't know why."

STAGE WORK and community theater are second nature to Andress. He said he began in the fourth grade by putting on plays for his school, during which he played the role of both actor and director. Later, as his talents developed, he remembers "never going six months without having a lead role in something" throughout junior high, high school or college. Shakespeare is his favorite.

However, stage gave way to an appearance on the nationally televised show "Star Search" two years ago. To say the adventure on the contestant/variety show was "enlightening," is an understatement, he laughed.

The show, hosted by Johnny Carson's sidekick Ed McMahon, had traveled to Detroit looking for contestants at the time, and Andress got a call from his modeling agency asking him if he wanted a shot at it. Thinking he had nothing to lose, Andress gave the go-ahead.

After passing the initial screening of pictures and resumes, he then was called to audition for the acting segment of the show. Winners were routinely picked from acting, stand-up comedy, singing and dancing categories.

For his audition, Andress chose a five-minute dramatic scene from an off-Broadway play, in which he acted with a friend. Their scene was taped and taken to New York for further screening, after which the word came back that Andress was chosen for the show — minus his friend.

"Of all the people who auditioned that day, I was the only one who made it."

He said he'll never forget getting the news. "It was the most exciting moment," he said, adding that one day, weeks after the audition ("when I was finally starting to forget about it"), he got a phone call at work from McMahon's daughter Claudia. "And I knew I was going (to California)."

WHEN ANDRESS got out to sunny Los Angeles, he discovered the role he would perform for the show was written by Star Search writers, and that his partner was another audition winner from New York.

The night of the show didn't bring on any nerves until five minutes before he was about to go on.

"That's very typical of me," he said. Although he was only performing live in front of an audience of 300 (he's had larger), it was the fact that thousands, maybe even millions would be watching him on their TV sets at home.

The moment of glory over, Andress awaited the judges' decision with the rest of the anxious contestants. The outcome? "I lost, but my partner won," he said. "Yeah, I guess I felt a little bad."

He had the homecoming of a lifetime when it was all over. "Everybody in town thought it was great. And it did help me get roles in more television films," he said. "But it didn't make me change my mind about where I want to be."

Nor did it change his mind about being an actor. Once an actor — always an actor, he said.

This Mickey Mouse trip is worth the thrill

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Q: We've bought a package to Florida that includes air fare, a hotel for three days in Orlando, three-day passes to Walt Disney World and a car for a week. Can you give us some tips on how to get the most from our first visit to Disney World?

E.J.,
Westland

A: You didn't tell me whether your trip is scheduled for early December, Christmas weekend or after New Year's. The scene is quite different off-season from during high-season.

From Thanksgiving to the beginning of the Christmas holidays is the least busy time of year — 10,000 to 25,000 people visit a day. That means you won't have to stand in long lines for the most popular attractions, but you can still enjoy the multiple pleasures of Disney along with the warm weather.

Christmas holidays through New Year's Day is the busiest season of the year — 50,000 to 90,000 people visit a day! That means long lines, but you can still enjoy it if you have the inside information you need.

FOR THE rest of the year: January through the first week of February crowds are low — 20,000 to 30,000; add 10,000 a day until the week of Washington's Birthday (Feb. 20), when it jumps again for some reason.

It drops 10,000 a day until spring break, heats up to 40,000 to 50,000 during spring break, 45,000 to 70,000 for the weeks either side of Easter Sunday. From then to early June it drops again, except for Memorial Day weekend, and then it grows to 35,000 to 65,000 a day through Labor Day.

September to late November is 15,000 to 30,000, except for Thanksgiving, which is almost as bad as Christmas.

You will get a lot more from a day's visit if you can go during low season. That does not mean you can't have fun when the lines are long, but you should plan your Disney trip a little in advance.

When you get to the Orlando airport, stop at both the Disney booth and the booth staffed by the state of Florida. Consider buying Steve Birnbaum's "official guide" to Walt Disney World. It is $8.95, and includes every detail you'll ever need to know about the property and surrounding area. The state will give you free maps and information on traveling during your final four days.

YOU WILL probably pick up your car in or near the airport. It is 28 miles to the World. If you arrive in Orlando midday, consider spending the rest of that day exploring the fun and games outside the park. If you go to Disney at 2 p.m., you've paid for a full day but you will only get half a day out of it.

Hit one of the other entertainment attractions, like Sea World, and spend the evening at Church Street Station in Orlando. You will enjoy the outdoor cafes, the noisy entertainment at Rosie O'Grady's Good Time Emporium and the street music, and you will get a full day's value out of your Disney ticket the next day.

If you drive to Walt Disney World (WDW), you will pay $3 a day to park in either the Epcot parking lot or within walking or shuttle distance of the monorail that takes you to the Magic Kingdom. (Parking is free to guests who stay in hotels on the Disney property.)

Most hotels outside the World offer regular shuttle service to Disney, so you don't really need your car. Your three-day pass gives you unlimited transportation inside WDW by monorail, ferry or bus.

YOU WILL probably spend at least one day in the Magic Kingdom and a day or more at Epcot, with occasional forays to other attractions within the WDW property. If you really want to see it all, wear very comfortable shoes and arrive half an hour before the park opens.

At the Kingdom, go straight to Space Mountain if you like to scare yourself to death on roller coasters; there's a lineup there at any time of year. Do Big Thunder Mountain Railroad early for the same reason.

They are already celebrating Mickey's 60th birthday at the new Mickeyland and with a new birthday parade. Slip into the Main Street Theater for a preview of the Disney MGM Studios; its spring 1989 opening will give you an inside look at movie making.

YOU DON'T need any instruction on how to enjoy the Kingdom, although some people go to the back of the Kingdom and work forward, in the opposite direction of the crowd. Be at Cinderella's Castle at noon for the outdoor entertainment. If the Main Street Electrical Parade is on, don't miss it; unfortunately, it usually isn't held during the off-season, when the Magic Kingdom closes at 6 or 7 p.m. instead of 10 p.m.

Go to breakfast one morning at either the Contemporary or Polynesian Village hotels, on the monorail, because many of the Disney characters will be there. Use on-property hotels for coffee or drink breaks anyway; don't miss the new Grand Floridian Beach Resort, also on the monorail.

Epcot Center requires specific strategies. Most people walk in from the parking lot or the monorail and line up at the first buildings in Future World. They work their way through the exhibits toward the lake and spend the afternoon amid crowds at World Showcase. Try reversing the process.

If you want to have dinner at one of the most popular restaurants in World Showcase, go directly from the entrance to the reservation computers at Earth Station, just south of the big white ball known as SpaceShip Earth. Reservations fill early for places like the French, Italian and Chinese restaurants. Reservations can be made only on the day of the meal.

Otherwise, consider browsing the casual eating places the first day and pick a dinner place for day two. You'll find the crowds drinking margaritas and eating nachos outdoors at the Mexican pavilion. The Yakatori House at the Japan pavilion is a great place for a light meal or snack of barbecued meat-on-a-stick. The Rose and Crown is a popular pub in the United Kingdom. Both the eating and shopping are great at Morocco.

AT FUTURE WORLD, be sure to see Journey into Imagination, The Land and Living Seas, which are almost side by side. Coral Seas is a popular upscale seafood restaurant where you look right into the underwater world of Living Seas.

The most popular food-and-entertainment place in the World is the Hoop-Dee-Do Revue at Fort Wilderness, site of the campground and water slide. Reserve a day ahead for the 5 p.m. sitting if you like gnawing barbecued chicken and stomping your feet while a group of wonderful crazy entertainers whoops it up on the stage.

Several new attractions will be opening at Walt Disney World in spring 1989. Pleasure Island is a huge entertainment center being built at WDW Village on Lake Buena Vista, just outside the World. It will have revolving dance floors, a comedy warehouse, a country-western nightclub and a 10-screen movie complex, all for a single entrance fee.

You will also pay a single fee for a 50-acre water entertainment area called Typhoon Lagoon, where they are building wave makers, snorkeling reefs, water slides etc.

It's hard to go wrong at Disney. The only thing I don't recommend is the dining and entertainment at the Top of the World at the Contemporary Hotel, not unless you enjoy talented retired musicians playing the old jazz songs your parents love to tap their feet by.

For more information, contact your travel agent or write to WDW, Box 10040, Lake Buena Vista, Fla. 32830.

Priced from $11.50 to $19. Unique Accessories, 888 Wing Street, Plymouth, 459-3040.

Try focusing on simplistic expectations

Q. I know all about goal setting and time management, but I still have trouble prioritizing my many activities. Are there some easy guidelines?

A. Earlier this year I visited my niece, a linguist in the interior villages of Irian Jaya on the island of New Guinea.

The natives there had no contact with outsiders, nor had even seen a wheel until some 10 years ago. These people still literally live in the Stone Age, using stone axes, bone knives, bows and arrows, and wear gourds or grass skirts as their only apparel.

As you might imagine, their lives are quite simplistic. Each morning the women take their nursing children to their distant gardens. There they tend their vegetables, pick fruit from the abundant trees, gather wood and trudge home about mid-afternoon carrying a heavy load of food and wood, along with their babies.

The men either hunt, repair thatched houses, gather wood for their own separate sleeping huts or clear garden plots. Older people tend the sick and the rest of the children in the village.

Later in the afternoon, the people gather together to weave net sacks, hone bows and arrows or craft other simple tools. At night they build fires in their round houses, roast their meager food and sleep. They are contented, cheerful people.

organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

What a difference from our own frenzied way of life!

Their homes are not littered because they have few possessions. They are relaxed because there are few pressures.

They have plenty of time because they are not achievement-oriented. These people eat, sleep, gather food, build fires for warmth, make only what they will use, and tend their children and elders. That's basically all they do.

While this mode of living is impossible in America and indeed sounds boring, I believe there is a lesson to be learned.

All we really need to exist is food, shelter, clothing and the care of our dependents. This is obviously a gross oversimplification, but perhaps if you can think in these terms, you can hone your thinking away from trying to "do it all" and appreciate what is really important in life.

Instead of a constant quest for having and doing everything, try to think in terms of the essentials.

When you have firm control of those, turn your attentions to a few other avenues of pursuit.

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. I am thinking about buying a condo and have read the disclosure statement. I note that there is a provision that says that the developer has not had any litigation regarding the project. Is there anything more that I should ask about the developer's history?

A. Many developers, in their disclosure statement, must recite whether, in fact, the developer entity, which happens to be developing this condominium project, has been sued. Often times you will find, however, that the principals of the developer may be operating under various legal entities in different condominium projects. Since some developers operate under a corporate veil for each condominium project they develop, there may even be instances where principals of the developer have had judgments and or lawsuits brought against them in other condominium projects. Therefore, you should ask the following question whenever you are considering the purchase of a condominium:

"Has the developer entity or any of the principals which comprise the developer entity had a judgment against them in any other condominium project at any time?"

Hopefully, you will get an honest answer. You should then inquire into the circumstances surrounding that litigation. The fact that the developer has been sued, of course, in and of itself does not mean that the developer is untrustworthy or a bad risk. On the other hand, there are some individuals who have been sued or have had judgments entered against them in numerous condominium projects in this town and the intelligent purchaser should be aware of these circumstances.

Q. I am buying a condominium in Florida and signed what was called a "prereservation agreement." The unit is supposed to be constructed in approximately a year; however, I have received a notice from the developer saying that the purchase price has gone up. It seems to me I had a binding agreement. Do you have any suggestions?

A. This writer's experience has been that, depending upon the terms and the prereservation agreement which you have signed, you may be able to force the developer into the purchase price set forth in the preliminary agreement. You should also check to determine whether the preliminary agreement was submitted to the regulatory body in Florida before it was used by the developer. Depending upon these facts and circumstances, you may have a justifiable claim to hold the developer to the original purchase price. You may wish to contact a condominium lawyer to assist you in gathering this information.

Superlative Rental Living In The Hills of West Bloomfield

NEW lavishly large 1, 2 and 3 bedroom terrace ranch dwellings of unsurpassed size that are utterly extraordinary up to 2,800 square feet and every amenity, private entrances, attached garages, fireplaces, cathedral ceilings, designer kitchens with separate breakfast areas, master bedroom suites with dressing area, double vanities, double closets and walk-in closets, in-residence laundry and storage, full carpeting, central air conditioning, patio or balcony.

Truly resort-like recreational facilities include: oversized pool in a spectacular wooded setting, a manor-home like clubhouse - ideal for private parties - tennis courts and, of course, a 24-hour manned clubhouse with package reception services. There is even a private lending library. All on over 130 incomparable private acres for estate-like living.

Unquestionably the standard for beauty and luxury. For their size, design and breathtaking setting, YOU MUST SEE the 1, 2 and 3 bedroom terrace homes of ALDINGBROOKE.

Travel Maple Road to Drake Road; turn north and drive through the woods, to the summit of the hill, and enter ALDINGBROOKE through the manned gatehouse on your left.

Note: Limited number of short term executive rentals available. 1 and 2 year leases being offered.
