Texas Star, a Texas longhorn bull, eyes its keeper, Rob Laird, on the Canton farm where prize-winning bulls are bred.

Cattle farm remains an oasis

Texas Star, a 2,000 pound brown and white Texas Longhorn bull, stands a couple hundred feet from one of Canton's busiest intersections.

His home is behind a fence on a 30-acre cattle farm tucked between a sprawling Canton subdivision on the west, a brand new office building to the east and traffic sounds from every direction.

"This place hasn't really changed," said Rob Laird, showing a visitor the land owned by his father, Dr. Robert Laird.

Canton at the crossroads

Ford Road

"Just everything around it has," he added.

"No one can see us, which is good," he said stressing that the family likes its anonymity.

HIS FATHER has lived on the farm four decades and has fended off buy-out offers to keep the land undeveloped.

"He just says this is where I live and where I want to stay," Laird said quoting his father.

"When I was born this was nothing," Laird, 26, said. "There were no subdivisions to speak of."

Three ponds, "thousands of trees" and cattle grazing are like an oasis of farm life in the midst of cement, glass and buzzing cars.

Thor, a three-month old bull named after the Greek mythology god of thunder, sits quietly by a fence resembling an overgrown dog as he greets visitors.

One day he'll replace Texas Star as the farm's breeder.

The elder bull usually breeds naturally, but has been taken to a semen

Teen injured after falling from balcony

By Keith Postler

A 19-year-old Canton man who had gathered with friends to mourn the death of Neil Carnes, 18, of Plymouth, in a motorcycle-car crash, became paralyzed after falling from the third story balcony of an apartment complex in Canton.

The teen, Kurt Hauser, was standing on the balcony of Honey Tree Apartment Complex when he told friends he was dizzy and then fell, according to police and companions.

The party to mourn the death of Carnes, a promising hockey player who was drafted by the Montreal Canadiens, was being held at the apartment of another man, who police identified as a friend of both Hauser's and Carnes.

Carnes died early Sunday, July 30, when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car in Plymouth Township. The crash occurred at about 2 a.m. and Hauser fell shortly after noon.

According to a Canton police report, Hauser told emergency room personnel at St. Mary Hospital Livonia that he felt "dizzy" before the accident occurred and does not remember falling. He was later transferred to William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

Hauser underwent surgery Friday to "fuse his vertebrae together and immobilize the injured part of his spine," said Kenneth Hauser, the youth's father. "Then the doctors will be able to make the final assessment about how badly his spine was injured, but as of now he is permanently paralyzed."

Some of Hauser's friends, shocked by the accident, said he had been good friends with Carnes and was upset by the hockey player's death.

"I think they were pretty good friends," said Tim Ott, 19, of Canton, a mutual friend of Hauser and Carnes. Ott survived the crash that killed Carnes. "They weren't best friends, but they were pretty good friends."

"They were very good friends,"

License deadline nears for landfill

By Keith Postler
staff writer

The four-month delay that has kept the Arbor Hills West Sanitary Landfill from operating may end as soon as Thursday, said Dan Nelson, Arbor Hills district manager.

Arbor Hills East Sanitary Landfill, at Six Mile and Napier, is nearly out of space. It accepts refuse from 400 customers a day, including Canton and Plymouth townships. The west site has been ready to operate since January, but differences of opinion between the landfill operator and the DNR have held up licensing, Nelson said. Arbor Hills applied for a license in March, he said.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources must grant or deny Arbor Hills' application license by Thursday, Nelson said. If the DNR does not act by that date, Arbor Hills will automatically be granted an operator's license.

"The agency will be very careful not to miss the deadline," Nelson said. "They will issue the license or deny it; if they take no action, we, by law, will be granted the operator's license — which we deserve."

THE DNR has denied granting Arbor Hills West an operator's license because the site is on a DNR list of contaminated landfills. Liquid containing low levels of benzene and vinylidene chloride has seeped into groundwater near the Arbor Hills East landfill.

Benzene is a known carcinogen. Vinylidene chloride has been found to cause cancer in some animals.

Browning Ferris Industries, which operates the landfill, has built an underground wall that extends for nearly a mile around three sides of the landfill, but the DNR contends more must be done.

THE CONTAMINATED groundwater near the east site is the source of controversy, said Lonnie Lee, an environmental quality manager with the DNR.

Lee said the DNR considers the east and west sites one landfill; if one is not in compliance with agency regulations, neither is in compliance.

"We have made a conceptual proposal in some detail that they are considering, and we hope to formalize that into a new consent order," Nelson said.

Police arrest 8, seize vehicles

By Diane Gale

Arrests by Canton Police last week led to the seizure of nine stolen vehicles and the arrest of eight Detroit residents believed by police to be operating a chop shop.

Canton Police arrested four Detroit residents at 12:10 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 2, for allegedly attempting to steal a 1986 Chevy Iroc from Honeytree Apartment complex at I-275 and Joy Road.

Three males ages 16-19 and a 14-year-old female were arrested by Canton Police, according to Canton police Detective Keith Lazar.

The adults were charged with misdemeanors and charges against the girl are pending in Juvenile Court, Lazar said.

THE INVESTIGATION was turned over to the Canton-based Western Wayne Auto Theft Elimination Effort, Lazar said.

Undercover officers discovered an alleged chop shop Wednesday on Rockdale in the Fenkell and Lahser area of Detroit. A chop shop is a location where stolen cars are stripped apart so that the parts can be sold individually.

Tanks to be replaced

By M.B. Dillon

Complying with new laws regarding underground storage tanks will cost Plymouth-Canton Community Schools at least $63,000.

While the Environmental Protection Agency is giving tank users until 1998 to replace tanks, the district plans to replace its five tanks at the end of the month. The school board will consider bids at its Aug. 14 meeting.

"The time line is to have it done before school starts," said Richard Egli, district community relations director.

"While some of the tanks have been in there longer than a 15-year period, typically tanks last longer. But we're getting to the point where they could cause problems."

Between 1957 and 1975, the district installed five tanks: a 20,000-gallon diesel tank at East Middle School, and in the adjoining bus yard, two 6,000-gallon tanks, a 10,000-gallon tank and a 1,500-gallon tank.

They hold diesel fuel and leaded and unleaded gasoline for buses and school vehicles.

"The bottom line is approximately $63,000 for replacement," said Dale

Diane Kovalik, who is pregnant with triplets, uses a monitor to keep track of the unborn children. Her son, Chuckie, 2, is sitting on her lap.

Monitor eases mom's worries about babies

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Diane and Chuck Kovalik's plans to have two children almost worked.

Diane, 37, was pregnant twice. The first time with Chuckie, now 2.

And she's pregnant a second time — but with triplets.

Triplets are born one out of every 9,000 births.

Time has softened the shock and fright the Kovaliks felt when they first learned about the trio of children.

"We're excited now — we'll have a nice little family," Diane said. "To start out with it's going to be tough.

"I want them to feel loved and the fact that we had three at one time doesn't detract from that."

KOVALIK WORRIES about the birth weights and health of her unborn.

But she's getting special help from a uterine monitor, which she said helps reduce her medical worries.

Twice a day she hooks the monitor around her stomach and a reading is printed at Tokos Medical Corp., Farmington Hills. It maps what the uterus is doing and specifically if she's having contractions.

The service is only available by physician prescription for complicated pregnancies and is commonly used for multiple births. The 24-hour service allows Kovalik to strap the unit on any time she suspects a change.

THE GOAL is to prolong her pregnancy if she goes into labor too soon.

"If a patient goes into labor, oftentimes the patient doesn't realize she's in labor, and by the time she can self-diagnose, a lot of times the cervix has changed too much and the physician can't stop labor" said Julie Suchodolski, Tokos office administrator.

The monitor has shown that Kovalik has experienced contractions "quite often," but she said she usually is unable to feel them.

Her due date is Oct. 26, however, her physician plans to deliver the children earlier. Tests show Diane and Chuck will have two boys and a girl.

AND AFTER their births, there's a whole new set of worries. For example, how to help them handle some of the psychological baggage that goes with being a triplet.

The Kovaliks joined the California-based Triplet Connection trying to avoid some of the bumps other parents have experienced. And they've picked up some advice they plan to use.

Shooting triggers cruising concerns

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Plymouth police have obtained a warrant charging a 22-year-old Northville man with felonious assault in the aftermath of a BB gun shooting on Main Street shortly after midnight Thursday.

It was the most serious incident related to "cruising" in downtown Plymouth this summer, and something Police Chief Richard Myers said he finds troublesome given the fact that up until the past few weeks, cruising hasn't been a big concern.

For the past several summers, young people in cars and on foot have congregated downtown, creating congestion and keeping police busy writing tickets for minor offenses.

According to police, the incident began when two drivers, one from Northville and one from Livonia, became involved in a disagreement on Main Street near Church. The Northville man claimed he'd been cut off.

The cars proceeded east on Main. Near 35th District Court, the Livonia man, driving in the curb lane, was struck with a copper pellet above the left ear by a passenger in the passing vehicle.

He was treated and released from Oakwood Canton Health Center.

UP UNTIL NOW, it's been a quiet summer, largely due to anti-cruising measures implemented by the city at a budgeted cost of $60,000, say officials.

"Starting in early July, we started implementing the 'mini-zone,' at the discretion of the on-duty supervisor," said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

"We prohibit left turns from southbound Main onto eastbound Ann Arbor Road. That's been done pretty regularly on weekend nights between 9 p.m. and midnight. It's effective because it immediately stops the traffic back-up from Ann Arbor Road that goes as far back as Ross Street," said Sincock.

"People gather at Taco Bell and the Dairy Go Round. This eases the party atmosphere and it keeps traffic flowing."

Three extra officers were added to the police department in anticipation of the cruising season.

The expense is a necessary evil, say Myers and acting city manager William Graham. "You can come up with any program on paper, but without the manpower it's not going to work," said Myers.

THE CITY originally budgeted $80,000 to keep cruising in check, but scaled that down to $60,000 when it appeared activity was down, said Graham. Still, it irks him that the city over the past four years has had to spend $250,000 to $300,000 on everything from police time to barricade rental and parking stickers for residents.

"As a taxpayer in this community, I'm not very happy about having to spend that kind of money to maintain control over a bunch of people who come in from the outside, to the point where we have to hire police to control it.

"If we didn't have police, I'd hate to see what downtown would look like," Graham said.

Graham lives near downtown and doesn't "appreciate being kept up until 1 or 2 a.m. when I have to go to work in the morning." Traffic noise, yelling, screaming, hooting and hollering, even gas-powered boat horns keep him awake, he said.

"Some people think this is just a bunch of happy kids having a good time, and that's what it is, but I don't appreciate people urinating and throwing beer cans on my lawn."

Area young people contend there's nothing to do at night if you're under 18.

Plymouth's Anne Currie, 19, said that before she graduated from Salem last year, she went downtown with her friends on summer nights.

"It's what we always did because we weren't old enough to get into bars.

"Kids don't have anything to do," she said. They go downtown "because they want to meet people and hang out with their friends, especially in the summer. I'm sort of sympathetic with them."

Said Sincock: the lack of activities for young people "isn't a Plymouth problem — that's a national problem."

Mourner falls, is paralyzed said John Brickman, 19, also of Canton.

Brickman was at the apartment when the accident occurred. He said he saw Hauser sitting on the balcony with his arms outstretched as he started to fall, but could not reach him in time.

"He just sat on the balcony, said he felt dizzy and fell back," Brickman said.

Brickman described the mood at the apartment as being "depressed" and "mopey" as friends of Carnes gathered to mourn his loss.

Meanwhile, Plymouth Township Police have determined that Carnes was at fault in the crash. They said Carnes crossed the center line and collided with the oncoming Firebird.

Police said they will charge the owner of the motorcycle with allowing Carnes to use it without a proper cyclist's license, which is a misdemeanor that carries a maximum of 90 days in jail and/or a $500 fine.

The motorcycle owner turned himself in to police.

Carnes and the owner of the motorcycle met at a party in Farmington Hills the night of the accident, and the owner traded the cycle for Carnes' car, said Chip Snider, Plymouth Township deputy police chief.

Carnes was dead at the scene, but a passenger, Ott, was thrown and not seriously injured in the crash which occurred on Ann Arbor Trail near Haggerty Road in Plymouth Township.

Plymouth City Police were following the motorcycle shortly before the crash, said Commander Michael Gardner. He said officers clocked the motorcycle at 72 to 75 miles per hour on westbound Plymouth Road near I-275.

He said officers had their lights and sirens on while following the motorcycle but would not call the incident a chase.

Gardner said the patrol car lost sight of the motorcycle twice, the second time shortly before the crash occurred.

"We established surveillance on it (the Rockdale home) and we were able to get enough for a search warrant," said Lt. Sandy Miller, auto theft elimination commander.

The Detroit arrest involved six men ages 16-21 years, as well as a 16-year-old girl and an 18-year-old woman.

One 1988 Chrysler van and eight late model Ford Mustangs, believed to be stolen from western Wayne County suburbs, were seized during the raid. The vehicles are believed to be worth $50,000 in total.

THE SUSPECTS were released Wednesday pending further identification of the property seized by police, according to Sgt. Barry Getzen of the auto theft team.

They are expected to be charged with operating a chop shop and receiving and concealing stolen property over $100.

Operating a chop shop is punishable by up to 10 years in prison. Recovering and concealing stolen property is punishable by up to five years in prison.

WESTERN WAYNE Auto Theft Elimination is a cooperative law enforcement organization financed by a grant provided by the auto theft prevention authority, a state body financed by Michigan insured motorists.

Schools replacing underground tanks

Goby, director of transportation and safety. "The unknown part of the plan is any spill or leakage cleanup. Those costs, of course, are unknown at this time, and would be in addition to the removal/installation changes."

Should any leakage be found, the district under the new Michigan Underground Storage Tank Financial Assurance Act would be liable only for the first $10,000 in cleanup costs, said Egli.

"If you find leakage, and you pay the first $10,000, the state will insure up to $1 million in order to take out the contamination," said Egli.

"We don't expect to find contamination. If we do, it will be a big surprise because the tanks have been tested in the last two to three years."

While the school district, financially strapped until voters passed two millages in June, doesn't relish the expenditure, it's necessary, said Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business.

"It's a financial concern, of course," said Hoedel.

"But I think when it comes to preventative measures, or potential health problems, we'll just make room for it. If we have to make adjustments in the budget, we'll do it.

"We felt eventually we'd do it, but we're taking the opportunity before we have potential problems. The tanks have been monitored, but some of them are of the age that a problem could occur. It could be a safety hazard if it were left for a prolonged period of time."

Egli couldn't say how many gallons of fuel the district consumes each year.

It's substantial, though, he said. "We drive over one million miles, and the budget for transportation is $2 million plus. We have more than 100 district vehicles, including buses."

Landfill deadline looms

If Arbor Hills can come up with an acceptable agreement to clean up the site and prevent further contamination, "then we will be in a position to recommend favorably on their license application," Lee said.

The consent order is the agreement between the DNR and BFI that would outline steps for cleaning up the site, Nelson said.

THE DELAY in opening the west site has caused some minor problems at Arbor Hills East, Nelson said. Some trash haulers must wait 10 to 15 minutes to dump their trash at the site, "but we want to do better," he said.

"It's unavoidable, because you have so many people depending on that landfill," Dave Denske, owner of Canton Recycling Inc., said of the delay at Arbor Hills East. "You've got 400 trucks coming in every day, but BFI is doing an excellent job under the circumstances. I'm glad to be doing business there."

Canton Recycling Inc. is contracted by Plymouth and Canton townships to haul 12,000 cubic yards of compressed refuse per month, he said.

Further delays would only end up costing the customers who use the landfill, Denske said.

"Regardless what the costs are, the people in each community will end up paying. More communities need to get into the fast lane in terms of recycling their waste," he said. "We would save dumping tons each year at landfills if we were more committed to recycling."

AIDS patients needed

Men and women infected with the AIDS virus through sex or intravenous drug use are needed for a volunteer research study.

The study will investigate the effects of the virus on the lungs. Free, complete lung function tests and physical examinations are provided to participants who qualify.

Close follow-up of patients means complications of AIDS may be identified early, to improve treatment. Insured patients will receive treatment for symptomatic conditions by Henry Ford Hospital specialists.

Participants must be 18 or older, infected with the AIDS virus, yet haven't developed the full-blown disease. Call the Pulmonary Assessment Clinical Study at 876-2666.

McBINGO!

Seniors sizzle at eatery games

By Keith Postler
staff writer

At 10 a.m. on Wednesdays, the Plymouth McDonald's restaurant is packed.

A dozen or so customers are lined up waiting to order breakfast, and as you pass through the golden arches into the store, you hear it. You don't believe it, but you hear it just the same.

"D2 . . . B7 . . . F36 . . . J22 . . ."

"Bingo!" a happy voice squeals, having won the first round of this week's senior bingo at McDonald's.

Yes, bingo. Coming soon to a McDonald's near you? It may already be there. It's the latest rage in senior activities. Better than playing cards. Better than shopping. Better than, well, you know, senior activities.

It's here and it's hot.

Every Wednesday morning, from 10-11, the McDonald's restaurant on Ann Arbor Road between Lilley and Main sponsors senior bingo.

On a recent morning, about 30 senior citizens were jammed around the tables and booths in the seating area, a cup of hot, fresh-brewed coffee in one hand and a fistfull of red bingo chips in the other.

"We usually have more people in here," said Teresa Saputo, head of local store marketing in Plymouth. "This is kind of a small crowd. We have about, oh, 38 regulars who stop by every Wednesday to play."

Teresa calls out a few more bingo numbers, then explains how the latest trend began. Senior bingo at the Plymouth McDonald's began six years ago with only a handful of regulars, today the seniors arrive early to get a good seat and a cup of coffee before the contest begins.

"When I took this over about two years ago, we only had about six players," Teresa says, then calls a few more numbers. "This is just a fun group. We celebrate birthdays together, I bake 'em cakes and we make'em wear hats. We also throw a party at the end of the year."

McDonald's supplies the bingo chips, playing cards, prizes — such as Big Macs, french fries and food coupons — free coffee, soft drinks and the room to play.

The seniors bring the rest, including a happy, upbeat atmosphere.

"We have some really rowdy seniors here," she said. "These guys are great, they come here every Wednesday to see me."

"Hey, we also come here to pinch you!" calls Mike Cimino of Plymouth Township, seated by the front of the store. "She's such a nice girl," he smiles, then winks.

"It's really because of Teresa. It's fun. We have an exceptionally good time," adds Plymouth resident Fran Cleveland.

Virginia Daas was a winner at bingo.

For instance, it's not a good idea to give the children names that begin with the same letter, Diane said, because it leads to confusion in school and with Social Security records.

"And you shouldn't refer to them as the triplets," she said.

KOVALIK, A St. Joseph Hospital nurse, wonders how she'll handle three babies and a toddler who "when he wants a book read he expects mommy to be there.

"There are going to have to be changes. People will make a fuss about the triplets. What's going to happen to Chuckie?"

Since Diane isn't always able to keep up with Chuckie, two neighborhood children come in to help.

CHUCK, A Wayne-Westland teacher consultant, worries about the finances and where the children will play.

"Then you want them to go to college and how do you do that? Kids have all these fancy bikes. I know that we can't do that for four kids. Are they going to feel less than the others?"

Diane said she hopes to convince a member of the Canton seniors clubs to volunteer time helping with the babies.

"I always wanted to adopt a grandma or grandpop," she said.

This gives a new twist to the idea, she added.

To help with some of the financial concerns, Diane said, she plans to write businesses hoping to solicit services.

In the meantime, "I think I'm going to have to stay positive and do the best I can," she said.

Canton home for cattle center where a unit of semen, a thin vile, goes for about $20, Laird said.

Texas Star is somewhat of a celebrity having sired Super Star, who recently won second in his class at the Mountains and Plains Texas Longhorn Association's World Qualifying Show in Colorado.

Super Star has placed first and third in other shows, as well, Laird said explaining that shows give the cattle recognition in their breed.

IT IS EASY to get attached to the animals, Laird said, but he keeps it in perspective.

"We just sent one out to slaughter," Laird said. "He got rough on the fences and he's gone."

Laird's father, a semi-retired medical doctor, has been in the cattle business for 35 years. And the father and son team raised Texas Longhorns for seven years.

Texas Star will come to the Canton farm, joining three other bulls and 22 cows, for the first time in a couple of months.

When Laird isn't fixing fences and cleaning the barn he's working on the family's hay crops.

Harvesting is "the hardest work you can imagine," said Laird. He recently brought in 1,850 bails of hay, with help.

Even though he picks up other jobs to supplement his income, Laird said, the farm lifestyle offers perks, too.

For instance, Laird enjoys being outdoors a lot.

And a pond that serves as a drinking fountain for the cattle is stocked with big mouth bass and catfish. So, Laird walks to his backyard and goes fishing anytime he likes.

"Deer used to come in all the time, until the subdivision came in. I don't think we'll see deer anymore."

The farm is a stark contrast from its surroundings. And it's an alternative the Lairds enjoy.

"We'll try to keep it (the farm) for as long as we can," Laird said.

Doctors open Plymouth office

Two physicians on staff at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor are opening new obstetrics and gynecology practices in the Plymouth-Canton community this summer.

Dr. Yvonne Manber opened her practice to new patients in the McAuley Health Building, Canton on July 31. Dr. Luis Gonzalez will open his practice August 21 at the same center in Canton.

Gonzalez received his undergraduate and medical degrees from the University of Puerto Rico and interned and completed his residency at University Hospital in Puerto Rico. He comes to Canton from Florida Rural Health Services.

Manber received her bachelor's degree from the University of Illinois and her medical degree from Washington University in St. Louis, Mo. Manber interned and completed her residency at the University of Michigan Medical Center in Ann Arbor.

Both physicians are on staff at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, which has the largest maternity service in Washtenaw and western Wayne counties.

Housing sought for exchange students

Families are needed to provide housing for high school exchange students from Spain, Germany and Japan.

The students will be arriving in late August and will remain until the end of June. The students, ages 15-18, are fluent in English.

The students have enough money to pay all of their personal expenses, including school lunches. The sponsoring organization, American Institute for Foreign Studies (AIFS), also offers scholarships for foreign travel and study to all members of families that provide housing for AIFS students.

Call the AIFS local Lynne Levenbach, of Plymouth, at 453-8562, for more information.

● SOCCER TRYOUTS

The new Plymouth Kicks "80" boys select soccer team will be having its open tryouts for the fall season 6-8 p.m. at the Hines Park Soccer field on Tuesday, Aug. 8. Boys born in 1980 and living in the Plymouth-Canton School District may attend. A scrimmage game will be played on Aug. 8. After this the team will be selected. For further information contact either coach, Jeanne Martin, 459-5997, or Craig Evans, 455-2041.

● FAMILIES ANONYMOUS

A self-help program for those concerned about drug abuse and behavioral problems of a relative or friend will be held at 8 p.m. every Thursday at St. John Neumann Church, 44800 Warren in Canton. For more information, call 453-2811.

● FREE BOOKLET

The Canton Public Library has just the booklet for you, "What to do With Your Kids During the Dog Days of Summer." This booklet was compiled by the Canton Public Library staff and is updated each spring. It lists day trips in the area that would be enjoyable for children. Each entry includes location, hours, admission price and a short description. To pick up your free copy of this booklet, stop by the Canton Public Library, 1200 S. Canton Center in Canton.

● TIGER GAME

Wednesday, Aug. 9 — The Canton Senior Citizens are sponsoring a trip to a tiger game. The cost of $10 includes lower deck seating along the first base line and transportation. Detroit will be playing Milwaukee. The bus will leave the recreation center at noon. They will be returning at 5-5:30 p.m. Any questions call 397-2434.

● SUMMER PARKS PROGRAM

The City of Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department will offer a summer playground program for children. The program is for residents only. It started Wednesday, July 5, and will run through the week of Aug. 18. It will be operating out of four parks this year: Kiwanis Park, Jaycee Park, Firehouse and Garden Club Park. Each park will have two park leaders who will supervise the children in a variety of activities, such as sports, games and arts and crafts. There are also special activities planned: swimming at Central Middle School, bowling at Plaza Lanes, ice skating at the Cultural Center and a number of field trips including a Tiger game. For more information on the park program call the Recreation Department at 455-6620.

● DAY CARE FOR SENIORS

Plymouth Family Service is taking referrals for supervised care and a day of planned activities for people 60 and older living in Wayne County. For more information, call 451-1455.

● CANTON LIBRARY

Young adults, ages 13-18, put the computer to work for you. In conjunction with the Wayne Oakland Library Federation, the Canton Library will offer computer pix, a computerized summer reading program. Interest forms for you to complete will be available at the library through Aug. 11. The library will send them to the Wolf computer, which will print out a personalized list of up to 20 titles for you based upon your reading interests.

● SAFETY TOWN

The Plymouth Canton Community Schools will offer Safety Town, a nine-day program that includes instruction in all areas of safety for 4- and 5-year-olds going to kindergarten. They will learn about safety on the streets, on buses, with strangers, on bicycles, on playground equipment and about home medicine, fire, rail road crossings, emergency vehicles, safety belts, toys, parked cars, etc. The child's parent or guardian is to stay for a half hour the first day. The following sessions are now open: July 31 to Aug. 10, 1-3 p.m. Canton Cafeteria. For more information, call 451-6660. Registration fee: $20, City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township residents; $30, Canton Township residents and non-residents.

● CEDAR POINT TRIP

Saturday, Aug. 19 — The Canton Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring a family field trip to Cedar Point Amusement Park. You will leave Canton Township Administration Building at 8 a.m. and return approximately 10 p.m. The cost is $15.50 per person; includes bus transportation and Cedar Point admission. Register in person at Canton Parks and Recreation Department, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

Doug Ross: Rocking on down the highway

> "The best training for my job didn't come from school or graduate school. Rock and roll turned out to be the ideal preparation. It teaches you about group dynamics, public speaking and blends in a little showmanship."
> — Doug Ross, Michigan's exiting commerce director

By Philip A. Sherman
staff writer

Doug Ross, the man who once played bass for a group that backed the Supremes and later led his own band, The Classics, through a decade of rock and roll, was having one of his last breakfast meetings as a Southfield resident.

He said he'll miss being commerce director. He thinks he's leaving Michigan with a drastically improved relationship between government and private sector business. He knows Jim Blanchard will run for and win another term as governor. That's a job Ross, 47, clearly has his eye on in the future.

But for now, he's heading to Washington to become president of the Corporation for Enterprise Development. His successor is supposed to be chosen before Ross leaves Sept. 1.

"I have no individual in mind" regarding someone he'd like to see as the new commerce director, Ross said. "For reasons of continuity and for what I believe to be the truth, I'd like to see someone with a strong belief in private and public partnership."

THAT PARTNERSHIP is something Ross has a stake in and would like to see developed even further. Even his critics, who say he's used his office to cheerlead for Blanchard, readily acknowledge Ross has brought Michigan's business climate around.

"There are two things that may endure and make a difference. One is the relationship between the government and private sector of Michigan. Once that was a real adversarial relationship. Now it's good, and I think that's permanent — unless we get someone in government who doesn't understand it and unravels it.

"Two, we (Michigan) were the first in America to understand you did not have to get out of industrial activity — the business of making things — to be successful. They said you had to be in services. We concluded that wasn't true. Our challenge has been to help it transform itself," Ross said.

At 47, Ross is philosophical about change. He thinks author Alvin Toffler "still has the best broad overview of what's happened to us, to Michigan." His own personal philosophy is something he's practicing in his move to Washington.

"You can't plan life around 'what ifs.' Since you don't know how long you're going to be around, you have to live each day, if not each year, as though it were your last."

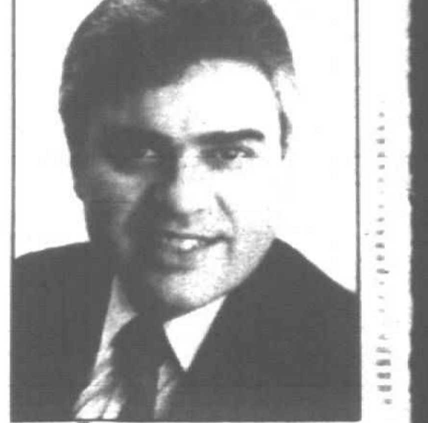
THE JOB IN Washington doesn't seem overwhelming to him. 'We're going to have to get Washington to understand what states have been experiencing — figuring out how to compete with the Asians and Europeans."

He'd also like states, particularly Michigan, to rethink their approach to public school education. "The role for business and commerce is the reinvention of the public education system to fit this economy.

"They'll have to do two things. Students will have to be taught to learn to learn," he said, instead of just retrieving and sorting facts. "And schools will have to help students operate as teams that are constantly solving problems. When we went to school, we went through talking to nobody and that's the wrong preparation."

Part of his move to Washington with his wife, Karol, and Julie, at 15 the youngest of their three children, was based on a promise they made to Julie about the years she would spend in high school. "We told her we wouldn't move during those three years, which meant we had to do it now or wait until 1992."

His wife is a psychologist specializing in marriage and family counseling ("a brilliant move for a politician, eh?"). If they move again after Washington, Ross said the next move will be her call.



Doug Ross

"We're really just Michiganians going away for a couple years," he said.

Homes to 'light up' in fight against crime

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Homeowners are being asked to turn on outdoor lights and turn off crime for the sixth annual National Night Out on Tuesday, Aug. 8.

Sponsored by the National Association of Town Watch Inc., national night out is designed to heighten crime prevention awareness, generate support for local anti-crime efforts, strengthen neighborhood spirit, and send a message to criminals that neighborhoods are organized and fighting back.

"We've taken part in the past and we will again," said Lt. Leon Dater of the Livonia Police. "Any effort to increase crime prevention awareness is something we can endorse citizens to participate in."

Dater said additional police units with lights on will patrol subdivisions between 8-10 p.m., the designated hours for national night out. Dater hopes homeowners will keep outdoor lights on during those hours.

"Neighbors should watch out for each other and report any suspicious activity by calling 911," he said.

LAST YEAR, the campaign involved 7,000 cities and towns from all 50 states. Nationally, 18.5 million people took part.

Along with traditional outdoor lighting and residents spending the evening outside with neighbors, many areas feature special events such as block parties, parades, visits from police, cook outs, safety seminars and youth crime prevention activities.

"The project is an enjoyable and effective way to promote neighborhood spirit, increase awareness and strengthen police community relations," said Matt A. Peskin, project coordinator.

A spokesman for the Westland police is encouraging city residents to participate.

"I THINK it's a good idea for the people of this city to publicly show support against crime," said Sgt. Michael Terry, community relations officer.

Westland has 17 Neighborhood Watch groups, some a single block and others encompassing almost the entire stretch of a subdivision, he said.

"Lighting is the single best deterrent to crime. You reduce your risk of being a burglary victim with lights on," Terry said.

Like several other local communities, Redford Township hasn't made official plans to participate in national night out.

"I haven't planned anything, but we are planning a picnic in September in Capitol Park for our (Neighborhood Watch) block captains," said Don Moore, township crime prevention officer.

"Our Neighborhood Watch program is fantastic. We have 214 groups and we're working on other blocks."

Police spokesmen for Garden City, Canton Township and Plymouth Township said no special plans have been arranged. They had not received literature from the sponsoring organization. But everyone is in favor of stamping out crime.

"National night out is not an end unto itself," said Linda Kennedy, a spokeswoman for Town Watch. "Rather, it must be viewed as the start of another year of partnership between police and residents in the fight against crime."

Residents respond to survey

A village is needed

Thank you for the opportunity to share our views related to the future growth and development of Canton. We feel that Canton should work on keeping and making our community a great place to live for the people who already live here rather than building more subdivisions.

The population of our community has grown enough. Just because there is more undeveloped land, we do not need to have people living on every square inch of our space!

We are originally from the northern part of New Jersey where there literally is no more land to develop, and we would not want to see that happen to this area.

We moved to Canton from Ann Arbor because we enjoyed being in a rural community and at the same time being near the quaint Plymouth downtown area. We strongly suggest if you want people like us (two-career couple with plans to start a family soon) to stay in Canton rather than save for a move to Plymouth that you:

1. Develop a downtown area of Canton similar to Plymouth, maintaining the quaint and historical character of this area, including nice shops, places to eat, maybe a theater and a town square park and farmers' market area. Suggestion: a village-type area with cobblestone streets for pedestrians only with an ample parking lot adjacent. A very successful example of this is Liberty Village in Flemington, New Jersey (or even Holly, Michigan). In this way, we would have something different than Plymouth, but something just as nice and just as desirable. If you mention the possibility of a downtown area in the newspaper when you discuss the results of this survey, please suggest ideas for its location.

2. Stop strip mall development! We have more than enough! We personally never shop at strip malls and feel that it brings down the value of properties and the community in general. We either shop in a regular enclosed mall for the convenience of having everything under one roof or downtown Plymouth/Northville. The convenience of K mart, Meijer's, Target, F&M, and the excellent choice of supermarkets is great. But we both agree that it is time to stop for awhile and concentrate on maintaining the quality of life for the current residents of Canton. We do not believe strip malls add to the quality of life.

3. Retain rural character!

Again, thank you for this opportunity to voice our opinion.

Joanne and Don Gibson

Greenbelts are needed

You ask in recent articles what residents would like to see in Cantons' future. Much of what will happen in, and to Canton's future has already been determined by the actions of three local governmental bodies: the Board of Trustees, the Planning Commission, and the Zoning Board of Appeals. A new master plan will be unveiled sometime this fall. Hopefully the new plan will restrict the growth of convenience stores or strip malls to the bare minimum needed to service new subdivisions as they develop.

I would like to see new subdivisions planned with either greenbelts or outer borders that will be both eye appealing and functional. Tree shaded areas which can be used by joggers, walkers and cyclists alike. I would also like to see new subdivisions planned so that at no location will the back of a house face onto a major roadway like we have on Sheldon and Lilley roads now. Our planners merely need to look at Six Mile road in Livonia to see how it should be done. Beautiful home fronts facing the street with landscaped islands between major roadway and the access roads. Please, no more roads where all we see is one stockade fence after another, many of which are in need of repair.

We must plan now for development west of Canton Center and in that planning we must consider homes for all classes of people capable of home ownership. Some areas must be designated for upscale housing while others must be set aside for the middle income ranges. But at all times developers must be made to remember the aesthetics. Canton has come through a period of almost explosive growth over the last 20 years. Let's stop for a moment and catch our breath. We now have to carefully plan for future growth and development.

I only hope that we are capable of learning from our past mistakes. We also have to plan for our future commercial and industrial growth. Tax abatement will have to be judiciously considered, not passed out to every company coming in to our township merely because they have requested it. Homeowners were not given 50 percent tax relief for a period of 12 years, why should businesses be given this privilege capriciously? If business wants to settle in Canton Township then let them share the tax burden equally.

As far as developing a downtown area is concerned, I wholeheartedly agree that one is very desirable. As a recent appointee to the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) I must say that our board is at a stand still as to what to do with the land that has been designgsted for this purpose. Maybe something good will come out of the next meeting. Because the remaining land is in the hands of private owners, it is going to be difficult in developing a consensus.

Personally I would like to see the township buy all of the available land within the Downtown area. Then maybe we could build a central park zone similar to Kellogg Park in Plymouth.

The question is, will our Board of Trustees commmit the funds needed for such a project? We are now at the point where we can attract both commercial and residential development. As commercial growth advances we should also provide good places to live for their employees. We can and must do both.

Ralph H. Shufeldt

Let's keep rural flavor

I would like to see Canton retain its rural flavor west of Canton Center Road. There has been too much growth too fast and it has been too haphazard. The farm country west of Canton Center Road is beautiful and should not be destroyed. Less tax breaks should be given to new businesses and more incentives given to farmers to keep their land agricultural.

The tax breaks given to new businesses should be examined carefully. Will the businesses leave Canton once their 12 year tax break runs out?

Canton does not need any more office buildings. There are plenty of doctors, dentists etc. We do not want to become another Southfield with its traffic congestion and crime problems.

I think there are enough recreation areas in Canton and that Canton does not need a downtown area either. There is shopping close by at Westland Mall and most any office, in the suburbs or downtown Detroit can be reached via the expressways running through Canton.

I think there should be absolutely no more apartment buildings. Condominiums are OK, but I would like to see any future housing be single homes with no more than two homes per acre; one home per acre would be better.

Keep the farmers

Our first 14 years in Canton have been great. Good friends, people and access. Predictably, we're bursting and growing too fast. Let's make efforts to subsidize farmers/land before "car wars" and frustration replace benevolence.

T.J. Rivard

Preserve the farms

I think Canton should retain its rural setting. The Farmland Preservation Act should be reconsidered. Where will the people drive? You can hardly get down Sheldon Road. There are too many people! Too many people! Help the farmers.

Leave rural lands alone

I think that Canton has reached its growth potential and should not be allowed to lose the farms west of it. I think that the rural lands must be left alone and preserved for future generations.

Canton at the crossroads

SURVEY - SURVEY - SURVEY - SURVEY

Canton is a developing city at the crossroads. Businesses are moving in at a rapid rate. Developers are eyeing property west of Canton Center Road with visions of subdivisions dancing in their heads.

But what kind of community should Canton be? Should it be another Livonia? Another Southfield? Should the township plan a downtown area? Should more recreation areas be developed? Should it try to retain its rural character?

There are lots of questions. We're asking Canton residents for some answers. We'd like to hear what residents would like to see their community become. Include your name and telephone number if you choose. Don't feel obliged to do so.

The Observer will publish the responses during August as part of a month-long project called "Canton at the Crossroads." We will be looking at development and social issues Canton faces as it grows.

'Optimism' greets county change

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Election of Arthur Blackwell II as the new Wayne County Commission chairman could strengthen ties between the commission's urban and suburban members, according to one local commissioner.

"I feel optimistic," said commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne. "With the election of Arthur Blackwell (as commission chairman) and Bernard Kilpatrick (as chairman of the commission's powerful Metropolitan Caucus) there's the opportunity to engage in new dialogue."

Earlier this year, a rift developed between the commission's suburban and urban members, with Blackwell and Mack on opposite sides of several issues. One key issue involved the assignment of committee chairmen.

Members of a newly formed suburban caucus, headed by Mack, said they were being shut out of leadership posts in favor of Metro Caucus members.

Mack and Blackwell, then Metro Caucus leader, subsequently met to smooth out disputes.

AS COMMISSION chairman, Blackwell will have to resign his post as leader of the committee on roads, airports and public service. That plum assignment, Mack had said, should go to a suburban commissioner. Mack's district includes Canton Township.

Allegedly higher office budgets awarded by Arthur Carter to Metro Caucus members prompted another dispute. On Tuesday, however, Carter imposed new budget restraints on all commissioners.

In his last official act as chairman, Carter froze staff hiring and salaries and maintained travel restrictions designed to help the commission contribute to a balanced county budget.

"I leave the commission with a balanced budget, but it's tight," Carter said.

COMMISSION SPENDING had been a sore point between Carter and County Executive Edward McNamara. McNamara, however, praised Carter's commission tenure.

In a prepared statement issued Tuesday afternoon, McNamara called Carter "extremely helpful in leading the commission in the resolution of many tough issues facing Wayne County."

If any dispute still exists between suburban and urban commissioners, it wasn't apparent during Tuesday's selection process.

Carter, who resigned his commission seat to accept a post as a deputy Detroit Schools superintendent, was warmly greeted by his fellow commissioners. Commissioners gave a standing ovation to the Detroit Democrat, a 14-year commission member and chairman since 1987.

NEW CHAIRMAN Blackwell is the son of former Highland Park Mayor Robert Blackwell. As leader of the Metro Caucus, as well as the roads, airports and public services committee, he was long considered one of the commission's most powerful members.

He has also gained a reputation as an outspoken commissioner who doesn't shy away from controversy.

In recent actions, Blackwell proposed payment to Highland Park as runner-up in the site selection process for the new county jail — a controversial proposal vetoed by McNamara. Blackwell also headed last year's ballot proposal banning casino gambling countywide, a proposal overwhelmingly approved by county voters.

Blackwell declined to opportunity to make a speech Tuesday, "because of the uncertainty of today's activity."

THOUGH LONG rumored, Carter's acceptance of the Detroit Schools post wasn't confirmed until one hour before Tuesday's commission meeting.

Blackwell, the only candidate nominated, was unanimously selected Carter's replacement as chairman. Commissioners also unanimously elected Carter's wife, Deborah, as interim replacement for his 7th District seat.

Kilpatrick's post as Metro Caucus leader wasn't subject to a full commission vote. That group meets informally to discuss commission issues, among them committee assignments.

CARTER'S RESIGNATION was mandated under state law.

"It falls under what's known as the 'incompatibility statute,'" said county legislative affairs director Ben Washburn.

Carter was forced to resign because the county holds contracts with the Detroit Board of Education, including one for jail inmate education, Washburn said. In his new post, Carter is a Detroit Board of Education employee.

"This isn't conflict of interest, but the statute bars people from serving more than one public public body."

Under specifics of the law, those same rules didn't prevent Carter from serving on the board while holding his previous positions with Wayne County Community College.

Blackwell must resign his committee chairmanship under commission procedure.

"The chairman is an ex officio member of every committee," Washburn said. "But that means he can't vote or be chairman."

A SPECIAL election to fill the balance of Carter's commission term will soon be scheduled, vice chairwoman Susan Heintz said.

Heintz, the commission's highest ranking suburban member and sole Republican, said earlier she wasn't a candidate for the chairmanship.

"Traditionally, that's not the way it's been done (elevating the vice chairman)," said Heintz, whose district includes Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Heintz, though, assumed the post during the brief period between Carter's resignation and Blackwell's election. Much to her amused delight, the three-minute period made her the highest ranking Republican county official in several decades and, conceivably, for several more.

Airport makes changes

A first step toward boosting international travel from Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport has been completed.

Federal Inspection Service facilities in the Romulus airport's international terminal have been increased by more than double, county officials said, in anticipation of new overseas flights originating from Detroit.

The $13 million expansion project was dedicated last week by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

Additions to the international terminal include 16 new inspection stations for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service and three new stations for U.S. Customs employees.

A new baggage belt, three bag claim devices and international signs were among the items added.

Foreign cities served by non-stop flights from Metro include: Frankfurt, London, Montreal, Paris, Seoul, Toronto and Tokyo. Cities with direct or seasonal service include: Amsterdam, Ottawa; Rome; Stanstead, England; Taipei, Taiwan; Warsaw and Belgrade and Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

DRUGS AS THE CAUSE OF ARTHRITIS

Arthritis can develop as the result of infections, accidents, heredity, and altered immunity. Not so well known is the fact that arthritis can arise as a side effect of medication.

For example: hydralazine, a drug used to treat high blood pressue, and procaine amide, drug used to stop abnormal heart rhythm, can cause a joint condition that mimics Lupus arthritis. The possible side effect of a medication useful in decreasing cholesterol and serum triglyceride levels, gemfibrozil, includes muscle and tendon aches that can be incapacitating.

Why medication produces such side effects is not completely understood. In some instances, the body makes antibodies against the drug. These antibodies have an affinity for the tissues in the joints and tendons; once attached to the joints these antibodies set off an inflammatory reaction.

The treatment of medicine-induced arthritis is to stop the offending drug. No other treatment will suffice. Thus, when you see a doctor about joint pain, be prepared to list not only the medicine used to treat your joints, but include all the medication you have taken in the last six months.

Recipes a family treasure

A few weeks back, I discovered a buried treasure in my basement.

Before I elaborate on the treasure I found, here's what led me to go treasure hunting.

A few weeks ago, my brother-in-law's mom died. Maria Keller will surely be missed. She passed along her old recipes to her daughter, Anna Pickett of Livonia, and daughter-in-law, Rose Keller (my sister).

Maria Keller was from the old country, and could she cook. There were never enough occasions when I got my fill of Maria's chicken paprikas.

I always looked forward to the holidays when I knew there would be ample platters of pfferneuse and assorted other German pastries prepared with care and devotion to detail.

With Maria's passing, I spent a hot summer's eve last week in the cool confines of my basement, searching through tattered cookbooks, scribblings on yellowed paper and shoebox upon shoebox of old, Janes family recipes that were passed down from the Janes gang culinary archives. Fortunately, I found a few of the old family favorites, but I also came upon a wealth of information about my culinary heritage and tradition.

TO THIS DAY, my frequent ventures down to Momma's house in Wyandotte yield an over-the-shoulder glance while I watch her prepare and take mental notes on the pinches of this and handfuls of that that make up satisfying dinners, salads and desserts.

The day after I found the culinary treasures, I took my 3-year-old son, Jeff, and my dad out fishing to Breast Bay in Monroe. We caught a pail full of perch. I sat in awe as I watched my dad return to the campsite we had set up earlier and perform the scaling and gutting ritual that so many times before just sailed right over my head.

His 74-year-old fingers handed that razor-sharpening knife with skill and ease. A slice here, an incision there, and within an hour, there was a platterful of perch fillets awaiting Momma's special cornmeal and seasoned-flour mixture after a quick bath in an egg wash.

WHILE THE FILLETS were drying out, I observed Momma heating up the old cast-iron frypan with just a spoonful of bacon grease and a dot of pure butter adorning its bottom. There was no need for coleslaw, potatoes or a salad. These special perch, caught by a group of guys spanning three generations, were all that was needed for a special dinner.

With today's emphasis on fast foods and foods-to-go, this was one of those "comfort" moments that, unfortunately, many of us don't take the time to savor.

To this day, I don't know who was more proud, my dad for delicately cleaning and preparing the catch; my Momma who was pleased as punch with the fresh-caught taste of the catch; my son, who called the treat the "best fish sticks he had ever eaten;" or me, who fought back tears enjoying the moment. A moment I will cherish in my heart till I, too, pass on to that big kitchen in the sky.

THE BEST part of this story is yet to come.

For the most part, many of us still have the opportunity to spend some cherished moments together with folks who, like Maria Keller, my Momma and my dad, have legacies to pass along. If you haven't talked with your folks or another senior in your lives, make a mental promise to do so, now.

Whether the opportunity arises over a cherry strudel or a Dunkin' Donuts cruller, many a generation gap can be bridged with one of the most common denominators in history — food.

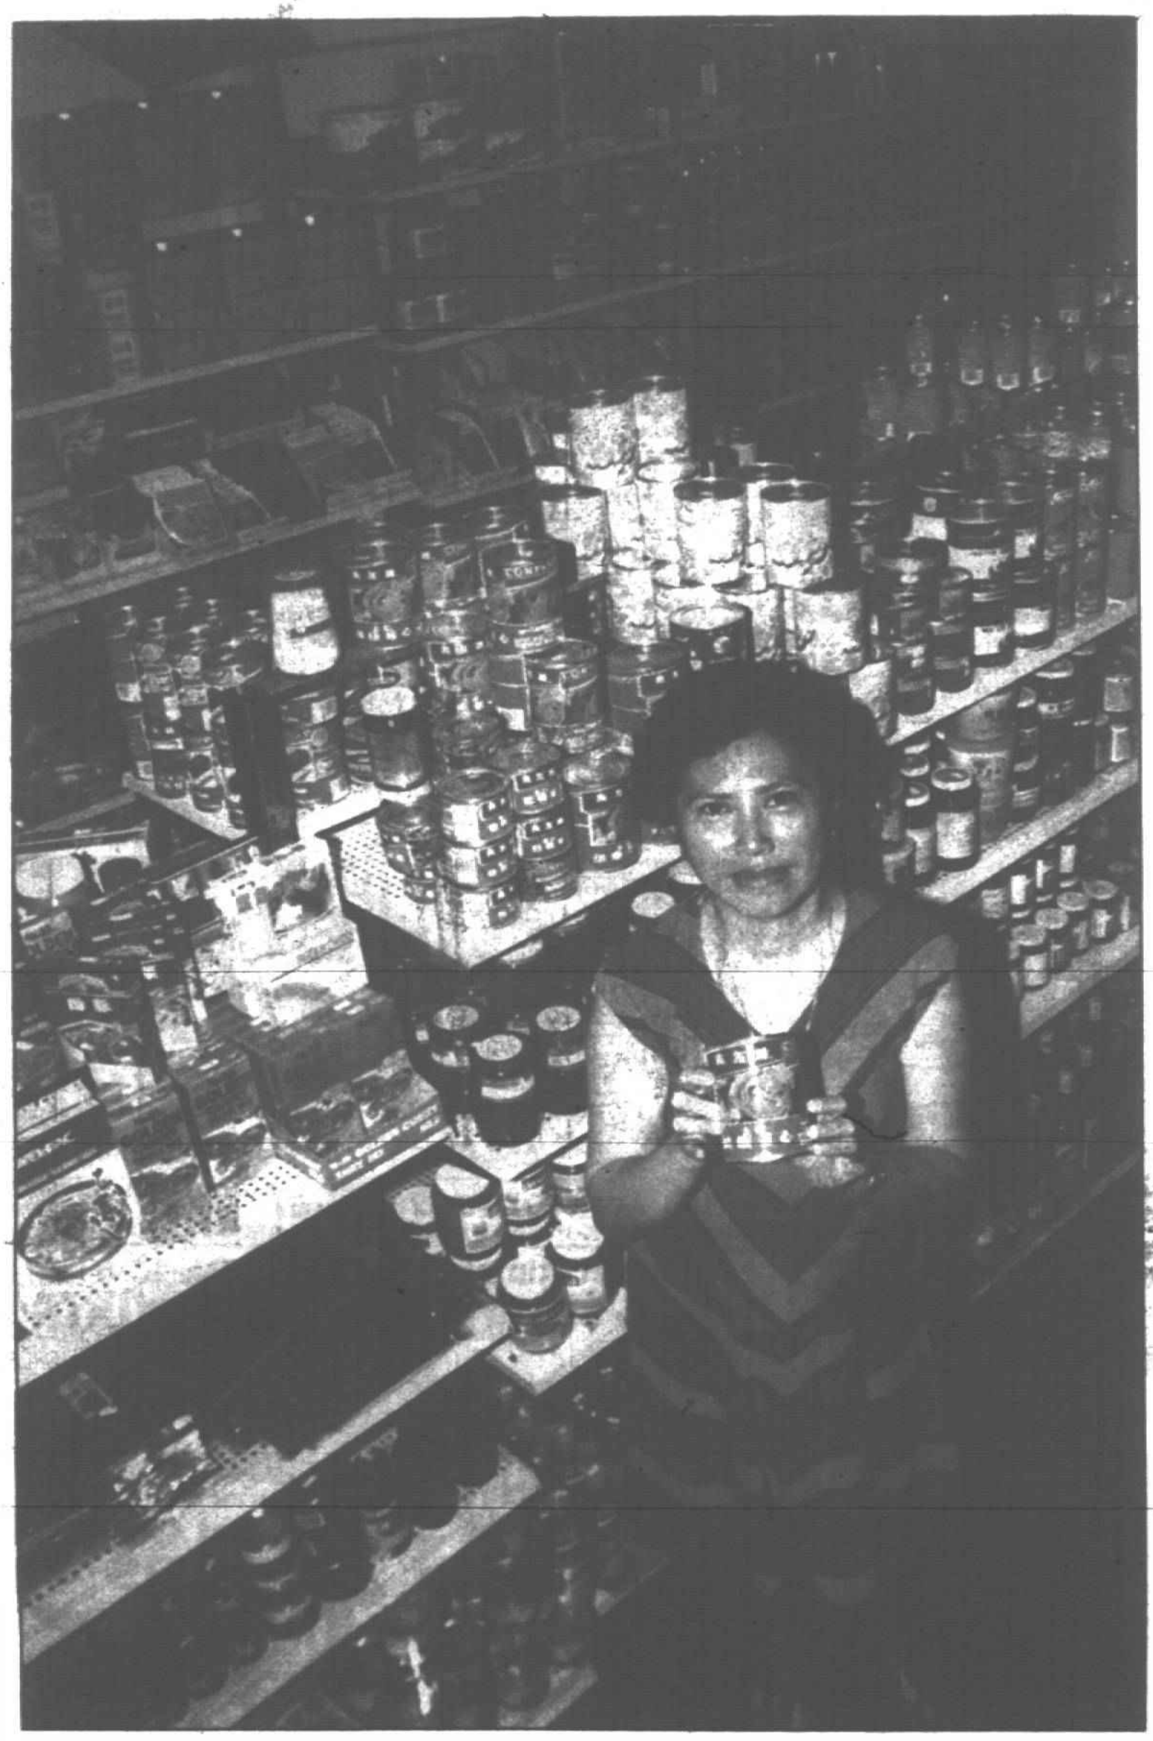
Where to find it

Specialty stores carry unusual foodstuffs



ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Owner Elvie Magat shows some of the Chinese canned goods available in her Westside Oriental Grocery in Garden City.

By Larry Janes
special writer

WHETHER IT BE Mucky Duck Mustard or Petrossian Caviar, the northern and western suburbs have a bounty of small, independent stores that can cater to just about every whim.

One would think it easy to just pick up a yellow pages and thumb through gourmet food listings, but unless you know what you're looking for, and keep your ear to the pavement, finding unique and avant-garde foodstuffs isn't as easy as letting you fingers do the walking. Many of the area's speciality foodstores are looking to keep a low profile, concentrating mainly on serving that one-of-a-kind customer who will travel miles for canned lichee nuts and Udon noodles. And the best part is that it won't necessarily mean a trek downtown or to Ann Arbor to find it.

There is an incredible number of Oriental foodstores in just about every community the Observer & Eccentric reaches. Three days were spent just hopping from one Oriental store to the other, and that didn't include specialty gourmet shops, Middle Eastern stores or restaurant supply houses that also service customers in our area.

GRANTED, YOU STILL have to venture down to Bagley and 24th streets in Detroit for the best tortillas and Mexican foodstuffs, but other than that, many small mom-and-pop operations in our suburbs can supply you with everything you need to make dishes ranging from Kim Chee to a Mongolian Hotpot.

One of the most fun Oriental stores is Westside Oriental Grocery at Ford and Middlebelt roads in beautiful downtown Garden City. In addition to being stocked with a wide assortment of Oriental foodstuffs, this shop also is like visiting the Hong Kong mainland, mainly because the walls are brimming with Samurai swords, fans, and tons of the most extensive arrays of teapots and rice steamers one could ever dream of.

It has coolers stocked with an array of intriguing fresh Oriental produce and freezers stocked with specialty fish, squid and assorted other sundries. The store stocks the best-tasting imported soy sauce for a stir-fry. Sorry, LaChoy, this has you beat, hands down.

Of course, not to be outdone is Cho's Oriental on Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield, Mt. Fuji Oriental on Ten Mile Road in Southfield, Hana Oriental on Dequindre Road in Troy, Seoul Oriental at Nine Mile and Beech Daly roads in Southfield and, last but not least, the Asia Mart on Big Beaver Road in Troy.

A call to Toula Patsalis, owner and CEO of the much-heralded Kitchen Glamor chain, had her singing the praises of Cho's, mainly because it supplies all the Far Eastern goodies for the many Oriental classes Kitchen Glamor offers.

IF WANDERING through stores from the Orient gets the blood pumping, then you would really get a kick out of an equally exciting trip to one of the area's Middle Eastern markets. The International Market at Five Mile and Inkster roads in Livonia, along with the Oasis Mart on Woodward Avenue in Royal Oak and Patel Brothers on Ford Road in Garden City also stocks this area's finest collection of everything you need to make baba ganoosh and kibbee.

Don Carlos is a Mexican standout

DISHING IT OUT
By K.C.

It wasn't long ago that patrons seeking really good Mexican food would wait patiently to get into Don Carlos, a place the size of a postage stamp in Dearborn.

Today, Maria Shaffran's Don Carloses have branched out. You may still have to wait on a weekend night, but at least there are several locations, including one in Garden City. And the business' first franchise just opened in Redford Township, on Telegraph Road north of West Chicago Road.

Mexican is hot. Amazingly, dozens and dozens of Mexican restaurants are operating successfully around town. Many, however, aren't worth the price of a margarita.

Don Carlos is one of the exceptions. All the entrees are Shaffran's carefully guarded recipes. Even though the restaurant is branching out, it still delivers fantastic food at modest prices.

WE RECENTLY DINED at the Redford location, a spot which for years was a New-Orleans-style restaurant. The brick has been painted the pinkish mauve that characterizes Don Carlos, and is trimmed with grey. Even the lampposts outside look a little Mexican with the new color scheme.

Inside it is bright-light and colorfully decorated — and the service staff is extraordinarily pleasant. Owner Sandy Sulkes says, "We have a good time" — and it shows. You almost feel like part of the family by the time your meal is over.

We enjoyed everything we tried, from the margaritas to the sopapillas (a dessert of gently fried tortillas covered in honey, cinnamon and sugar). An easy way to get a sampling is to try one of the combination plates, such as the Fajita Suprema with shrimp, steak and chicken sauteed with vegetables and topped with muenster cheese.

We really enjoyed the Fajita Don Carlos, which combines strips of tender steak with green peppers, onions, mushrooms and tomatoes and is covered with melted muenster cheese. You can customize your fajita by stuffing your flour tortilla with the main entree and portions of the three side dishes: refried beans; a delicious, slightly chunky guacamole; and diced tomatoes, onions and peppers. As you start eating, your tortillas are kept warm in a pink fiberglass-like dish. A nice touch to a delicious entree. All for $8.95.

Equally tasty were the enchiladas suizas, three corn tortillas stuffed with chicken and green tomato salsa and topped with cheese, sour cream and salasa. Very good, not too spicy — and very hearty portions of chicken.

THE MENU FEATURES the standard selection of tacos, burritos, enchildas, tostadas and fajitas as well as a wide selection of seafoods, including pickerel, perch and (when it's available) red snapper. Everything has Maria Shaffran's stamp on it in the form of specially formulated sauces and fresher-than-fresh ingredients.

The chicken noodle soup is, by all accounts, "very, very special" as is the flaming cheese appetizer with a special sauce and chorizo (Mexican sausage).

For lunch, you can order from the main menu or select from the day's specials, generally the same entrees in smaller portions, priced at just $2.95 and promised to arrive within 15 minutes.

This is one restaurant that is destined to grow. It's good and inexpensive. Shaffran has no intention of letting quality slip as Don Carlos expands. She has been known to anonymously order carryout from one of her restaurants — or show up unannounced with her tasting spoon in hand.

Details:

Don Carlos, 9565 Telegraph, Redford, 533-8000. (Also locations in Dearborn, Garden City, Mt. Clemens, Melvindale and Detroit.) Monday-Thursday, 11 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.; Friday, 11 a.m. to 11:30 p.m.; Saturday, 3-11:30 p.m.; Sunday 3-9 p.m.

Prices: $5.95-$9.25. Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Diner's Club.

Value: Very good meals at modest prices.

Treasured recipes found in basement

MOMMA'S CHERRY DELIGHT
3 cups sour cherries, pitted
1 cup hot water
2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons butter, melted
½ cup milk
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

Combine cherries, hot water and 1 cup of sugar in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 30 minutes. Make a batter with the remaining ingredients. Pour the batter in a lightly greased baking dish and pour the cherry sauce over the batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Serve warm or cold with whipped cream or ice cream, if desired.

THREE-BEAN BAKED BEANS
1 can pork and beans
1 same-sized-can lima beans
¾ cup catsup
½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
¾ teaspoon dry mustard
2 small onions
6 slices bacon
1 small clove garlic, chopped fine

Pour the batter in a lightly greased baking dish and pour the cherry sauce over the batter.

Dice bacon and cook until crisp. Add remaining ingredients. (Do not drain beans.) Mix well. Pour into an ovenproofed casserole and bake for 2 hours at 350 degrees, covered. Remove covering and bake for 20 minutes. Serve immediately.

FRIED SKILLET CABBAGE
4 cups shredded cabbage
1 green pepper, cut into thin strips
2 cups diced celery
2 large onions, chopped
2 medium tomatoes, chopped
¼ cup warm bacon drippings
2 tablespoons sugar
pepper to taste

Combine all ingredients in a large skillet. Cover and cook for 5-8 minutes, depending on how crunchy you want the cabbage to taste.

Shelf-stable meals are fast

Lois Thieleke

home economist, Cooperative Extension Service

"Is it ready?" "Can we eat?" "Let's go." are busy phrases for the eat-and-run families.

Busy lifestyles have demanded foods that are quick-cook, easy to store, with no mess and no clean-up. Even though these foods have been designed to benefit working parents, singles, older adults and children, do you get the feeling you're cooking with a stop watch?

No refrigeration and two minutes in the microwave can provide a meal from a shelf-stable package. No need to worry about storage as these packages can sit on the shelf from 18-24 months because of heat sterilization. This makes the food as safe as if it were in a traditional metal can. The oxygen-free environment created by this process makes the survival of most food-poisonings bacteria impossible.

The manufacturer claims that these shelf-stable products are more fresh-like and retain more nutrients because this process is done so quickly. Check the package for a "see by" or "use by" date, and use as a guideline.

These packages are really a portable food. Put them in your purse or briefcase to take to work, school or anywhere there is a microwave.

Single-serving frozen entrees are not new. However single servings of one food, especially side dishes, are new. These foods are designed for people who eat alone. You heat in them, and eat from the container and throw away. No messy cooking, no messy clean-up or dishes to wash.

HOWEVER, THE COST is a little more than other frozen foods. Another advantage of the single servings is that you can buy all kinds of ethnic foods that add a lot of variety to meals. No leftovers to have to reheat the next day, either.

Safety is always a concern with food and working with appliances. "Crisping cards" have been added to fish and potato products and to pizza so that the food will be crispy, not soft. These cards made of aluminum-coated plastic become extremely hot and can burn you easily, If children are making these for snacks, caution them about the heat also. Whether food is designed for a microwave or a conventional oven, take care with safety.

Fresh refrigerated foods are now reshaping the meaning of convenience. • The foods have that just-cooked flavor more so than frozen or canned. These foods are spared the extreme heat of canned foods and extreme cold of frozen, both of which damages the cell structure of the food. They also retain fresher flavor, texture and color. Compared to frozen and canned, the nutrient quality is also better.

Unlike canned or other shelf-stable foods, refrigerated foods are not heated to a sufficient temperature for a long enough time to destroy all possible bacteria. Refrigeration temperatures will slow or prevent multiplication of most bacteria but do not prevent all bacterial growth.

TEMPERATURE IS absolutely critical for fresh, refrigerated foods. Recognize the packages that contain the fresh, refrigerated foods. They sometimes look like shelf-stable products. Foods purchased in the deli, dairy case or refrigerated meat sections in the store have to be kept at refrigeration temperatures at all times.

Read the label and pay special attention to key words like "keep refrigerated," "sell by" or "use by" dates. Chill foods in the colder lower areas of your refrigerator, not on the refrigerator door.

These foods need to be heated thoroughly before serving. Follow the directions and recommended cooking times and temperatures. When microwaving, always stir foods to distribute the heat evenly and allow to stand before serving. Don't worry unduly about the safety risks of fresh, refrigerated foods. However, be smart about buying, storing and cooking these products.

There is no doubt that microwaves have changed the packaging of foods. The microwave is the key cooking appliance for three out of four households, so manufacturers are designing new foods and new packages for the busy consumer lifestyle.

If there are only a few minutes on your cooking stop watch, you may want to consider some of this new generation of convenience foods.

As part of its 50th anniversary celebration, the Michigan Apple Committee is mounting a search for the perfect apple pie. The All-American Apple Pie Contest will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Sept. 4 — Labor Day — at the Michigan State Fair in Detroit.

Prizes will be awarded for the top three finishers: first place — $100 cash prize, second place — $75 cash prize, third place — $50 cash prize. Each of the three award-winning bakers also will receive a limited-edition apple print.

Contestants may enter by providing a complete recipe on a 3-by-5 card with their name, address and phone number on the reverse side and mailing it to: All-American Apple Pie Contest, Michigan State Fair, Attn: Community Arts, 1120 W. State Fair Ave., Detroit 48203. Deadline for entries is 5 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 23.

A panel of experts will judge the double-crust apple creations on taste and appearance to determine the state's best apple pie recipe.

Where to find special foods

If Japanese cuisine is hot in your repertoire of culinary tidbits, then you will surely not want to miss the Koyama Shoten Japanese grocery at Six and Newburgh roads in Livonia.

All the above-listed independents stock just about everything you need, this side of San Fransisco.

As far as Italian markets are concerned, you don't have to drive to the east side to get the best Italian foodstuffs money can buy. The Cantoro Italian Grocery on Middlebelt Road in Livonia has pasta galore, not to mention its meat and cheese deli that will fresh grate your imported Parmesan or Romano. It also will stock the new arrival of Proscuitto di Parma, which has taken a 20-year absence from American shelves, within the next 60 days.

This neat, homey market also stocks the finest selections of undried tomatoes and Italian produce that rival the Gratiot Avenue shops on Detroit's far east side.

But when it comes to intriguing markets that stock a variety of international foods, you won't have to go far to visit the fabled Merchant of Vino shops, in Southfield, Birmingham and Troy. A talk with Juliette Jonna, head of the kitchen at the Merchant of Vino, reveals that this venerable wineshop has spread its roots, now calling itself an international marketplace, with everything from Asia to New Zealand.

THE SUBURBAN grocery store carries staples from Africa, Morocco, the Far East, Australia, the Hawaiian Islands and Sweden. It has has one of the most extensive French food sections in town. All this and a first-rate deli loaded to the gills with an assortment of salads and gourmet-to-go dishes for the busy suburbanite.

Juliette Jonna was quick to point out that the Merchant of Vino is now offering complete catering services (including bar) and can arrange everything from the smallest tete-a-tete to the grandest affair. Long known for its outstanding selection of wines from around the world, the Merchant of Vino has expanded to include great foods from around the world.

By the way, it is the exclusive merchant of the most-sought-after caviar in the world, Petrossian. It also supplies restaurants and the general public, but a word of caution for the caviar enthusiast: the Petrossian Beluga caviar is presently retailing at about $56 per ounce.

There is no such thing as old caviar here, folks, Chuck Boudt at the Merchant says the shop sells upwards of 15 kilos (more than 30 pounds) per week. (Simple arithmetic has $56 per ounce times 30 pounds per week coming in at more than $27,000 — just for Beluga caviar.) Of course, for us yuppies who would rather keep gas in the family automobile, lesser qualities for much lesser prices are always available.

Trying not to let the Merchant of Vino get all the accolades for great gourmet goods, right on its heels are the Market Basket of Franklin in beautiful downtown Franklin (suppliers of this writer's most favorite Franklin Village Homemade Pasta and Mucky Duck mustard).

THEN THERE IS the Market Square markets of Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills, Oliverio's on Long Lake Road in Bloomfield Township, R.I.K.'s Total Cuisine on Telegraph Road in Bloomfield Township and the Bottle and Basket on Hunter Road in Birmingham. These are great gourmet shops stocking specialty foods that have been around for years and are weekly targets for many Observer & Eccentric readers in the northern suburbs.

In Madison Heights, but right on the border of Troy on Stephenson Highway between 13 and 14 Mile Roads, is Leone's Restaurant Supply Cash and Carry. This is a grocery store for restaurants but, fortunately, you don't have to own one to go there. Institutional packed foodstuffs for the suburban party-thrower are de rigeur.

Trust me on this one, folks. You visit Leone's for a look and I guarantee you will leave with a basket. There's a Leone's Cash and Carry on Plymouth Road in Livonia, too, but you have to order via computer catalogue.

If anything, you will want to try a small jar of the Minor's soup bases. These are concentrated soup bases with flavors ranging from chicken to beef to lobster, to clam to ham and beyond. Any soup aficionado who doesn't have the time to make his or her own stock will surely appreciate the Minor brand soup bases. Take it from experience though. Stick with the Minor brand, as the lesser-quality bases tend to be a little salty for my taste.

I would be remiss not to mention in any article regarding gourmet foodstuffs the Kitchen Glamor shops in Redford and West Bloomfield. In addition to the greatest selection of cookware and cutlery known to this area, the shops also stock an intriguing array of herbs, spices, chocolate, oils and vinegars. Be sure to check out their pepper selection, everything from Tellicherry to Schezuan.

These recipes are from the Merchant of Vino.

SENSATIONAL CHICKEN SALAD
1 bunch watercress
1 head radicchio
1 head boston lettuce
1 bunch arugula
3 cups cubed, cooked chicken
6 shitake mushrooms, sauteed
½ package enoki mushrooms
12 squash blossoms, sauteed
8 each baby zucchini, yellow squash, steamed

Tear lettuce into bite-sized pieces. Combine ingredients and toss with dressing. Makes 6-8 servings.

Dressing
¼ cups red wine vinegar
⅔ cup olive oil
2 teaspoons dijon mustard
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon leaves or ½ teaspoon dried
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

PATE SALAD
½ cup olive oil
½ cup chopped walnuts
¼ cup chopped green onion
¼ cup red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
1 ½ pounds small green beans, cooked, drained well and cut into 1 ½-to-2-inch pieces
2 medium apples
salt and freshly ground pepper lettuce leaves
12 ¾-ounce can goose liver pate, chilled and cut into ¼-inch dice

Combine oil, ¼ cup walnuts, onion, vinegar, mustard and salt in processor or blender and mix until smooth. Transfer to large bowl. Add green beans and toss well. Cover bean mixture and refrigerate overnight.

One hour before serving, remove mixture from refrigerator. Core and cut apples julienne, sprinkle with lemon juice and add to mixture with remaining ¼ cup walnuts. Add lettuce leaves on platter. Mound salad in center and sprinkle with diced goose liver pate.

Core and cut apples julienne, sprinkle with lemon juice and add to mixture with remaining ¼ cup walnuts.

INCREDIBLE SEAFOOD SALAD
8 radishes
2 white peppers
1 yellow pepper
1 purple pepper
3 plum tomatoes
1 pound sea scallops, sauteed
1 pound cooked shrimp shelled
½ jicama
½ head chicory
1 large romaine
¼ package radish sprouts
½ cup black beans

Slice or chop vegetables, tear lettuce into bite-sized pieces. Combine ingredients and toss with dressing. Makes 6-8 meal-size servings.

Dressing
¼ cup lime juice
⅔ cup olive oil
¼ cup chopped cilantro (fresh coriander)
½ teaspoon ground cumin seed
¼-½ teaspoon red pepper flakes
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Whisk together lime juice and oil. Blend in remaining ingredients.

White beans combine with shrimp in salad

SHRIMP AND WHITE BEAN SALAD
Serves 4
2 19-ounce cans cannellini beans or other white beans, rinsed in a colander and drained well (about 4 cups)
1 ½ cups thinly sliced celery
½ cup thinly sliced red onion
1 ¼ pounds (about 36) shrimps, shelled and, if desired, deveined
1 tablespoon minced garlic
¼ teaspoon dried hot red pepper flakes
6 tablespoons olive oil
¼ cup fresh lemon juice, or to taste
¼ cup minced fresh parsley leaves, or to taste
1 tablespoon minced fresh oregano leaves or 1 teaspoon crumbled dried plus, if desired, fresh oregano sprigs for garnish
8 lettuce leaves for lining the plates

In a bowl toss together gently the beans, the celery and the onion. Reserving eight whole shrimp, cut the remaining shrimp crosswise into thirds. In a large heavy skillet cook the garlic and the red pepper flakes in 3 tablespoons of the oil over moderate heat, stirring, for 30 seconds, or until the garlic is very fragrant, add the reserved whole shrimp and the cut shrimp, and cook the mixture, stirring, for 2-3 minutes, or until the shrimp are just cooked through.

Transfer the whole shrimp with a slotted spoon to a small bowl and add the remaining shrimp mixture to the bean mixture. Drizzle the salad mixture with the lemon juice and the remaining 3 tablespoons oil, sprinkle it with the parsley, the minced oregano, and salt and pepper to taste, and toss it well. Arrange two of the lettuce leaves on each of four plates, divide the salad among the plates, and garnish each serving with 2 of the whole shrimp and the oregano sprigs.

On the job

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department has enlisted the aid of 300 teddy bears in its war on drugs. The cuddly stuff animals are meant to comfort children whose parents or adult guardians are arrested in drug raids. The bears, donated by members of the Wayne County Sheriff's Local 502, will be given by sheriff's deputies to youngsters who are involved in raids conducted by the Sheriff Department. The program, thought to be the first of its kind nationally, is patterned after similar programs for children who have been traumatized by auto accidents, fires or sexual offenses.

Airport hearing set

A public hearing on plans to expand Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport will be held Wednesday, Aug. 9, at the Ramada Inn, 8270 Wickham, Romulus.

Airport officials will be present 3-11 p.m. to listen to citizen comments and questions regarding Metro Airport's expansion.

Walk-in comments will be accepted during the second 30 minutes of each hour. The first 30 minutes of each hour will be reserved for citizens who reserve speaking time in advance. Advance speaking time may be scheduled by calling airport community relations manager Michael Conway, 942-3558.

Citizens are invited to view the airport master plan and noise compatibility plan. Copies of each documents are available at the Wayne-Westland Public Library, 35000 Sims Ave., Wayne.

Deafness worsens Alzheimer's

gerontology

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

Can deafness worsen the symptoms of Alzheimer's disease?

Mrs. G.G.
Ann Arbor Senior

Dear Mrs. G.:

According to a recent study, hearing impairment does worsen the symptoms of Alzheimer's disease.

This disabling and eventually fatal disease affects about 5 percent of people older than 65. One-third to one-half of those in that age group have significant hearing loss.

The study, done by Dr. Richard Uhlmann and colleagues at the University of Washington and reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association, compared 100 older adults who had Alzheimer's or a similar condition with 100 other counterparts. They found that the hearing-impaired subjects were twice as likely to be diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease as were those who had normal hearing.

According to Dr. Ulhmann, hearing loss doesn't cause Alzheimer's, but it does make the symptoms worse by increasing the patient's isolation from the environment. He hopes that by having their hearing impairments treated, older adults will suffer less from symptoms such as forgetfulness and confusion.

Dear Jo:

Some time ago, you did a column on bar soap and the spread of germs. At the time, you said that to your knowledge, there was only one recorded study and it came out against the use of bar soap as it was proven to harbor bacteria. Are there any current studies on this?

Mrs. A.H.
Cambridge Senior

Dear Mrs. H.:

Apparently the debate about the spread of germs and bar soap is far from over. A new study indicates that a sloppy bar of soap may not be as bad as it looks.

When volunteers washed with contaminated soap bars that had been inoculated with two highly infectious strains of bacteria, researchers found that no detectable levels of the bacteria were actually transferred to the volunteers hands.

The original study that I referred to in the previous column didn't examine whether the soap actually transmitted the bacteria, let alone spread any specific disease.

It is important to remember that potentially harmful microorganisms exist on most surfaces, including money, door knobs, hand railings, etc. But because the human skin is intact, the body is defended against these germs.

To prevent the spread of disease, hand washing is essential. It's better to wash than not — even with that communal bar of soap.

Our not so great lakes!

Oxygen loss prematurely chokes life

By Bill Parker
staff writer

IMAGINE, for a moment, lakes without life. Life without lakes: no swimming, boating or fishing. No water skiing. No sailing. It's an eerie thought, but one that bears consideration.

Many lakes, especially in southeastern Michigan, are dying a premature death. The murderer is cultural eutrophication, a natural process being accelerated by man.

Eutrophication is the gradual increase of nutrients in a body of water depleting the oxygen. Without oxygen, the lake dies and turns into a mucky swamp. It's a process that happens, eventually, to every lake. But it can take hundreds, even thousands of years for nature to run its course.

When plants die, the decay process takes oxygen from the water. The decaying plants also absorb sunlight, which warms the water and limits the water's ability to store oxygen. As the level of oxygen declines, fish begin to die and decay, taking even more oxygen from the water.

All this decaying matter adds nutrients to the water, on which plants and algae thrive, further accelerating the cycle. Meanwhile, the lake is slowly filling with muck and sediment.

From a recreational view, the lake is already dead. Swimmers stay away from the brown, sediment-filled water. Boaters and anglers give up hope as the weeds become too thick to allow normal usage.

Earth-moving equipment is in the process of removing 15,000 cubic feet of muck from Troy's Lake Charnwood. Lake improvement boards across the state are keeping tabs on the project, the first large scale operation of its kind.

Citizens restore Troy lake

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Perched in the midst of an affluent Troy subdivision, Lake Charnwood was once a beautiful, 10-acre man-made lake, complete with a private community beach, a sandy/gravel bottom and plenty of room for swimming, fishing and boating.

But time and development took their toll.

Drainage from a huge watershed dumped everything from lawn fertilizers to top soil into the lake. A tributary of the Rouge River that enters one end of the lake (and exits the other) also deposited sediment along the bottom.

The lake was shallow from the start, averaging less than eight feet in depth. Slowly, but surely, it began to fill up while weeds and algae flourished — a natural sign of aging.

"There was so much (sediment) the kids didn't even want to swim in the lake anymore," said Joe Mikaila, vice president of the Lake Charnwood Home Owner's Association. "That (sediment) would get all over you. When you got out of the water it looked like you were wearing black nylons. And the weeds were really bad, too."

Troubled waters are calling for help

Bill Parker

ONE OF MY favorite fishing lakes has almost disappeared. Actually, it's just too overgrown with weeds to even think about trying to catch any fish.

Captain Jon Molesky of Southfield took us charter fishing last week in Muskegon. We caught a couple dandy lake trout, but I'm a little worried about eating them since the National Wildlife Federation's recent report which apparently links a significant cancer risk with the consumption of Lake Michigan lake trout.

I've also got a freezer full of blue gill, perch and pike. But the Michigan Health Department says I'm not supposed to eat more than one meal of these fish a week or I could develop mercury poisoning. I shouldn't give any to my 3-year-old daughter. The department issued a statewide consumption advisory against eating too much of certain predator fish from Michigan inland lakes.

Now, I don't want to sound like Chicken Little, but let's face the fact. Our lakes are dying.

I WAS RAISED in northern Oakland County in an area which I could walk no more than 10 minutes in any direction and find a lake. As a kid, I loved to go fishing, swimming, boating and water skiing. That's probably why I'm so concerned with the state of Michigan lakes. I remember when license plates used to read "Water Winter Wonderland."

Locally, there's concern about eutrophication, the natural aging process of a lake. As weeds die, they begin to decay which lowers the oxygen levels of the water. With low oxygen levels, fish begin to die, too. Algae and weeds flourish with the added nutrients from the deeaying matter. The cycle continues until the lake eventually turns into a swamp then finally dries up. Naturally, this process could take thousands of years. But with man's assistance — development along the lake without concern for the water, municipal and industrial discharges into the lakes, phosphorus-based lawn fertilizers draining into the lakes, faulty septic fields — the process is increased at a rate as much as five times that of the natural rate.

ON A WIDER spectrum, lakes are becoming polluted to the extent that they are affecting our daily life.

Lake Michigan's multi-million dollar charter industry has been all but devastated by the NWF's cancer scare. Although the specific amount of carcinogens found in fish varies depending on whom you talk to, everyone involved agrees there is a problem. The real question is: Just how big is the problem?

The Michigan Department of Public Health issued an advisory last year limiting the amount of consumption of rock bass, perch and crappie over 9 inches, large-mouth and smallmouth bass, walleye, northern pike and muskie caught in Michigan inland lakes. That's every single lake in Michigan. Results of a limited sampling of fish revealed that some fish did contain levels of mercury exceeding the state's level of public concern. Since it was not feasible to check all the inland lakes in Michigan, the MDPH issued a statewide advisory.

Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota and parts of Canada are experiencing the same problems. Experts agree, the majority of the mercury entering our lakes is entering from the atmosphere in the form of acid rain.

OUR LAKES and the condition of the water in them, are deteriorating badly. Although some of our lakes were made by man, most are natural bodies of water. But the problems afflicting them are man-made. The only actions that will save our lakes must also be man-made. These problems won't correct themselves without our help. We must clean up our act and begin to appreciate our natural resources for what they are.

Developers must be aware of the impact a subdivision will have on a body of water and do everything possible not to upset nature's balance. Lake residents must work to keep their lakes clean and free of chemicals and other pollutants.

Air pollution is entering our water and poisoning our fish. We must change our ways and clean our air.

I challenge our politicians to take a strong stand against pollution and insensitivity to our resources. Forget about all the bureaucratic baloney and the political red tape and get down to the issues that are troubling our waters.

Obviously, we can't eliminate these problems overnight. But if this generation doesn't make a serious effort to clean our lakes, our air, our environment, lake life as we know it — fishing, swimming, boating and skiing — may live only in the history books of our grandchildren.

People stay away from polluted Newburg Lake

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Ed Wisniewski, a 64-year-old resident of Wayne, says he likes to fish on Newburg Lake because "nobody bothers you there; they leave you alone."

Few boaters and no swimmers bide their time at Newburg, the only public lake in the Observerland coverage area. None of the lakes in Wayne County allows swimming.

Unlike Oakland County — where lakes are abundant and many are made available to swimmers — lakes in Wayne County tend to be occupied more by weeds and lily pads.

And an occasional fisherman.

Blue gill, large-mouth bass and northern pike are some of the fish found in Newburg.

"FISH HANG out around weeds," said Wisniewski, who has fished the Newburg waters the last decade. "There's weeds all over the place. As long as people don't throw garbage in the water it'll be all right."

Although Wisniewski likes the serenity of Newburg Lake, he says he wouldn't mind seeing the water cleaned because it "would be someplace to bring the grandkids. I've got 12 of them."

The 104.7 acres of water hasn't been open to swimmers since the 1930s because of rising pollution, said Nancy Watkins, manager of design for the Wayne County Parks Division. Boats without motors are allowed on Newburg.

Watkins said there will never be swimming allowed in Newburg because of the "no-contact water," flowing into it from the Rouge River.

There are no plans to remove weeds either by chemicals or by manual harvest, Watkins said.

SHE ADDED that no one has ever requested that weeds be removed and that the lakes in Wayne County are "actually exaggerated wet lands. There's more wildlife and you're not going to get sand-based lakes in Wayne County like there are in Oakland County.

"Mother Nature didn't make lakes in Wayne County," Watkins said. "I don't think we have any weed trouble, that's just its natural form. That's the way it's supposed to be."

Weed growth is brought on by fertilizer spillover from the shores, said Maureen Hein, an aquatic biologist in the state of Michigan's Land and Water Management Division in Lansing. Since private property is limited around Newburg, Hein said weed development might also be caused by storm drains and organic soil, which is prevalent in the Lower Peninsula.

Watkins said a master plan study is being conducted by a landscaping firm in Kalamazoo to look into the possibility of cleaning the land surrounding the Wayne County lakes.

The study will determine whether better fishing locations, launching areas, handicapped ramps and parking could be added around the lake, Watkins said.

Newburg Lake, the only public lake in Observerland, has turned into a sea of weeds and lily pads in recent years.

Former RT coach moves to Borgess

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The "Traveling Mann" is back as a varsity girls basketball coach, this time at Redford Bishop Borgess High.

Dave Mann, who last year finished with a 5-15 record at nearby Redford Thurston High, takes over at Borgess for Mike Resmer, who resigned last spring after five years to pursue other career interests.

Mann filled in last season at Thurston for Mike Schuette, who is returning this fall after a year's leave of absence.

With Schuette coming back, Mann was scheduled to serve as Thurston's JV coach.

But Borgess athletic director Mike Fusco, impressed with Mann's credentials, wasted little time in offering Mann the vacant position.

"We think he's a catch for us," Fusco said. "He has a good feel for what Catholic League sports are all about. He's more experienced than a one-year varsity basketball coach. He really has a good feel for the X's and O's of the game."

MANN SAID he received the blessings of Jim Urick, Thurston's athletic director.

"I talked with him on the phone the other day and he's happy for me," said the 28-year-old Portage native.

The new Borgess coach will have little time to get acquainted with his new team. Before the start of practice, Aug. 14, Mann hopes to round up enough players to attend the University of Michigan's Team Camp.

"I'll basically be scrambling for two weeks," said Mann, a television producer who works camps for the U-M Athletic Department. "I've talked with some of the girls on the phone, but basically right now I don't know who is who."

Mann inherits an 11-8 team from Resmer. Four of the team's five starters have graduated. Under Resmer, the Spartans won two straight district titles, but failed to reach the Catholic League playoffs.

Ironically during last year's Class B district tournament, Mann was on the losing end of a 67-20 score against Borgess.

BUT THE CUPBOARD is not completely bare, as the Spartans return an outstanding scorer at guard, Kyra Woodard, a third-team All-Observer choice last year as a sophomore. Forward Tonya Tounsel, last year's sixth man, is also back.

"We'll man-to-man press and do a lot of things I'm comfortable with," said Mann, who resides in Ann Arbor. "I may change a few things offensively. A lot depends what kind of personnel we have."

At Thurston, Mann's teams were known for their aggressive defense.

That style of play should fit right in with the rugged Central Division, which includes the likes of former state basketball champions Livonia Ladywood, Farmington Hills Mercy, Harper Woods Regina and Birmingham Marian.

"We'll go in with the same attitude we had at Thurston when we played Taylor Center (the Tri-River League champs)," Mann said. "It was a great opportunity for our girls and we looked forward to playing them. Even though the score was lopsided, I certainly knew that we had played hard.

"Now the only difference is that we're going to play against teams, the caliber of a Taylor Center, every night. But this is a great opportunity, I'm looking forward to it."

IN A RELATED move, Fusco announced that Obie McGeorge, a science teacher at the school, will become the new boys cross country coach.

McGeorge has coached track and field at both Riverview Gabriel Richard and Southgate Aquinas high schools.

JIM STEWART, a lakefront property owner, became angered about the condition of the lake four years ago. Through Stewart's efforts, the Lake Charnwood Improvement board was formed in an effort to find a solution to the lakes' problems.

"It (the lake) was dying right in front of my eyes," said Stewart, an active member of the board. "Twenty-five years of building in the area and a watershed 43 times greater than the lake — it all took its toll."

The lake is a victim of cultural eutrophication. Eutrophication is a natural aging process that occurs in every lake. But in Lake Charnwood, the problem was accelerated by man's presence.

The increased nutrients in the water (fertilizers, decaying weeds) spawned weed growth. In the early stages, the community fought the weeds with chemical treatment, but that only complicated the problem. As the weeds died, they sank to the bottom of the lake and added to the sediment. As they decayed, they also added nutrients to the water which caused new weeds to grow faster. Drainage from the watershed also aided in filling the lake.

"WE HIRED an engineering firm to do a study on the lake and tell us what we could do," Stewart said.

The board studied several options and finally agreed to drain the lake and use earth moving equipment to remove the buildup from the bottom. The mud removed from the lake will be dried, then landscaped into the peninsula on which the community beach is located.

"Everything will be cleaned out right down to the sand/gravel bottom," explained Stewart. "We'll have an average depth of seven feet across the lake. Before we started, it averaged less than four feet deep."

The project includes the removal of 15,000 cubic yards of muck and should be completed in September. Twenty-three lakefront residents have been assessed more than $6,000 each over a 10-year period to finance the project. Subdivision residents with lake privileges were assessed 10 percent of the cost of lakefront property owners.

"It's been a long, hard struggle, but I think we're going to make it," Stewart said. "Everyone will be happy when the project is finished. We'll have a clean, pristine lake."

CULTURAL EUTROPHICATION is a growing problem in many lakes, especially in southeastern Michigan. Lake improvement boards are springing up all over the state to study solutions to the problems facing their lakes. Currently there are 70 active lake boards in the state with 40 percent of them located in Oakland County.

"A lot of people have a lot of curiosity about (the Charnwood Lake project)," Stewart said. "I think we are one of the only lakes to do this type of thing and people want to know about it. We're like a guinea pig."

Robert Fredericks, chief deputy of the Oakland County Drain Commission is pleased with the progress at Lake Charnwood, but warns: "Lakes are not uniform. Every lake is different. Some are deeper than others, some have sandy bottoms and some never did. What works for one lake may not work for the next."

Until specific solutions are found for each individual lake, property owners can help slow the process. Weeds can be manually cut and removed from the lake. The use of phospohorus-based fertilizers can be limited and septic systems in older homes should be kept in good working order. Faulty septic systems that leak into a lake increase the nutrients content and spark weed growth.

Humans increase danger to lakes

"A lake is an eco-system, and lakes do get old," said Robert Fredericks, chief deputy with the Oakland County Drain Commission. "People want lakes to be 20 years old and terrific, but they don't realize they are fighting nature. You can't freeze a lake at a certain age."

CULTURAL EUTROPHICATION occurs when man steps in and accelerates this natural process. Man may speed the process in several ways, but the main culprit is an overabundance of phosphates.

Lakes surrounded by residential development seem to be hit the hardest.

Property owners want to keep their yards looking nice so they fertilize with phosphorus-based fertilizers. The phosphorus gets into the ground water and eventually runs off into the lake, greatly accelerating weed growth.

Many houses still have septic systems. A faulty system, or a system that backs up in heavy rain and drains into the lake, adds nutrients to the water, which also increases weed growth.

Some lakes, such as Kent Lake in Kensington Metropark, are also affected by municipal or industrial discharges. There are three waste-water treatment plants above Kent Lake on the Huron River that discharge nutrient-rich effluent into the river.

"I must admit they have made great strides in cleaning up these discharges (on the Huron River) in recent years," said Howard Wandell, supervisor of the Department of Natural Resources Inland Lake Management Unit. "But these discharges are still very high in phosphates."

DEVELOPMENT ALONG a lake area can also cause problems. While land is cleared for development, top soil erodes and drains into the local lake. This soil settles in the bottom of the lake. Over a period of time, this build-up takes its toll.

Even when yards are sodded and trees planted, the natural drainage routes are often opened, helping rain water to quickly run off the homeowner's property: great for the homeowner but devastating for the lake.

Man-made lakes are hit harder since they are generally shallower and normally have soil bottoms, already rich in nutrients.

Many subdivision lakes began as a small pond or stream. But by digging and damming, these ponds and streams have evolved into shallow lakes. When phosphorus-based fertilizers, faulty septic systems and subdivision ground water drainage are introduced to these lakes, the changes can be seen in a few years.

"Something will have to be done," said Mark Brownlie, an environmental planner with the Oakland County Planning Division. "We've already altered the natural state of the lakes by living around them and using them. We can't expect them to take care of themselves now."

Craiger league champ once again

baseball

Craiger claimed its sixth consecutive Babe Ruth Baseball League title, beating the second-place Dry Clean Company 5-4 in nine innings Thursday.

The victory followed back-to-back defeats in which Dairy Junction Express blanked Craiger 2-0 on Wednesday and Dry Clean nipped Craiger 7-6 on Tuesday.

Craiger (12-4) came from behind Thursday after Dry Clean (9-6-1) put together five straight hits off Scott Kapla in the fifth inning to take a 4-2 lead.

Craiger's Kevin Goff, who was 3-for-5 with three RBI, cut the margin to 4-3 with a solo homer in the bottom of the sixth, and Phil DePrima tied it with a two-out single in the seventh. Goff produced the game-winning hit in the ninth — a one-out, bases-loaded single.

Charlie Winstel picked up the victory after relieving Chris Tomas in the ninth.

In the Dry Clean Company's win on Tuesday, Kurt Singleton went the distance, scattering six hits. Marc Pennebaker was 2-for-3 and scored the winning run with two outs in the top of the seventh when Scott Bailey beat out an infield hit between shortstop and third base.

On Wednesday, the Express scored in the first inning on an RBI double by Brian Spears and added another run in the fifth.

Brad Paskievitch shut out Craiger on just five hits, mixing an outstanding curveball with his fastball. Goff start his first game as a pitcher for Craiger, allowing seven hits over five innings.

Craiger now has a record of 91-17 over the past six seasons. This year's team is composed of Tomas, Goff, Sammy DiPrima, Steve Leiger, Mitch MacDonald, Scott Kapla, Phil DiPrima, Jeff Kley, Matt Horn, Winstel, John Lahti, Dave Kapla and J.Rosum. The coaches are Bob Ruete, Chet Kapla and John Lahti Sr.

"Please, my little girl needs blood."
Imagine if you had to ask for blood to save the life of someone you love. Next time the American Red Cross asks, give blood, please.
GIVE BLOOD, PLEASE

IMAGINE DYING FROM A DISEASE YOU NEVER KNEW YOU HAD.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it.

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

● MEN'S RACQUETBALL

A men's fall racquetball league, sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, will begin play Wednesday, Aug. 30, at Rose Shores of Canton.

The fee is $82 for 13 weeks and includes all court times (7:30 and 8 p.m.) and awards. The league is divided into divisions based on player abilities.

An organizational meeting will take place the first night of play, but players must register in advance at the parks and recreation department, 1150 S. Canton Center Rd. Call 397-5110 for information.

● CANTON SWIMMING

The Plymouth Canton girls swimming and diving team will begin preseason practice on Monday, Aug. 14, in the high school pool. The team will practice from 9 a.m. to noon. Call coach Hooker Wellman at 453-2036 for additional information.

● HOCKEY BUSINESS

The Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association will conduct a player registration for the 1989-90 season and a used equipment sale from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 27, at the Plymouth Cultural Center. For information call 454-4488.

● GOLF TOURNEY

The Plymouth Elks Seventh Annual Golf Outing is slated for Sunday, Sept. 17, at Fox Hills Country Club. The cost is $35 per person and includes 18 holes of golf, steak dinner and course prizes. Proceeds will be used to support the Major Projects Fund, which assists handicap children.

A participant need not be an Elks member. Teams of four men, four women or mixed foursomes are being accepted. The deadline to sign up is Thursday, Aug. 17. For information call Kathleen Zelek at 451-2160.

● FALL SOFTBALL

Canton Softball Center is accepting registrations for its fall softball leagues, which include men's, women's and coed teams. There is no residency requirement. The season begins Sunday, Aug. 27, and consists of 16 games. The fee is $195 per team. Call 483-5600 for information.

● MUSTANGS SOFTBALL

The Mid-America Mustangs, a 15-and-under girls slow-pitch softball team, are recruiting players for the 1990 summer season. Tryouts for the USSSA/ASA-sanctioned team will be Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 12-13. For information call Ray Knickerbocker at 455-5893.

● STEELERS FOOTBALL

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers football program has openings on its varsity team. If you are 12 or 13 and weigh 100-140 pounds or 14 and 100-120 pounds, you are eligible. For information call Sue Herman at 455-7299.

● LIONS FOOTBALL

The Canton Lions Football Club is still taking registrations for the 1989 football-cheerleading season. Openings remain for boys 9-14 in football and girls 9-11 in cheerleading. For information call Debby at 397-1720 or Katie at 981-4691.

● PUBLINX GOLF

The Michigan Women's Publinx Golf Association will have its Fifth Annual State Publinx Golf Tournament on Aug. 19, at the Huron Golf Club, the new 18-hole course at Eastern Michigan University.

The tournament is open to all amateur women golfers. The medal play tournament will be flighted by verifiable USGA handicaps. There will be one medalist in the 49-and-under age group and one in the over-50. For information call 477-2522.

exercising options

Myrna Partrich

Dear Myrna: I read your recent article on fat cells with great distress. What a depressing reply to people trying to change their body and lifestyle. In reading the article, I almost feel that the effort to lose weight is useless. I will always have fat cells that will refill.

I think in fairness to many readers, you should explain your answer more fully or explain and name your sources.

I do not claim to be an expert on weight loss, only a person spending the past year trying to lose weight, change my lifestyle and exercise. My battle isn't over, but after reading your article on body fat, I feel like I'm only wasting my time and efforts.

Perhaps you can expand on this theme, or have a medical person specializing in this field expand on the topic of body fat. I will appreciate some type of followup on this topic.

In reference to my column headlined "A couple different theories on fat cells," I feel sorry that you feel discouraged about your weight or body composition (fat versus muscle).

My column was brief and to the point. However, it did not discuss a remedy to this fat-cell problem.

The column read: "The only theory, until recently, was that a person acquired a set number of fat cells early in life, and that the number and types of cells helped determine whether that person would be fat or thin.

"Now an added theory tells us that throughout life, we may acquire an increased number of fat cells early in life, especially during periods of weight gain. Yet regardless of when fat cells appear, they are with us for life. Once they are filled with stored fat, they work to stay filled.

"In other words, a fat cell may shrink when you diet, but when you assume eating normally, that cell will strive again to regain its former capacity. This may explain why you tend to regain lost weight after a reducing diet, even though you may eat fewer calories than before."

THESE THEORIES are very well known and well researched, and yes, genetics does play a part in determining whether a person will be thin or fat.

However, this does not mean you are hopeless.

Both my partner at work and I were chubby children. Through proper diet and regular exercise, we have managed to maintain our slim bodies.

I am assuming when you say you are changing your lifestyle, you mean diet and exercise. I'm also assuming you understand the proper diet (high-complex carbohydrates and low fat intake) and you will truly make it a lifestyle, not simply a temporary situation.

I am touched by your letter and want to help you. Changing your metabolism through exercise will help keep your fat cells small. Remember, we do not lose the amount of fat cells in our body but we can keep them depleted.

If you already have an extra amount of fat cells in your body, it is your job to keep these fat cells small and depleted. I — the once-chubby child — recently was tested for fat and naturally found my fat count very low.

EXERCISE IS a key item here. For weight loss and fat control, exercise five to six days per week.

Be good to yourself. Take a little time out and exercise. You only need 30 to 60 minutes for walking, biking, aerobics classes, etc.

A few suggested books: "The Good Food Book" by Judy Brody; "Diet for a Small Planet" by Frances Lappe; and "Permanent Weight Loss Manual" by Nathan Pritikin.

Yes, weight control is a fight. Once you get the hang of it, it will become a way of life.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Co. Inc. of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Please address those questions to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009.)

'Bowling — For Fun' helps promote sport

Al Harrison

SOMEBODY WILL drive off in a brand new Buick Regal, others will be off to Chicago or Nashville on a free weekend trip.

Those prizes and others will be awarded in the "Bowling — Just for the Fun of It" promotion under way at your local BCA bowling centers around town. All it takes to enter is to fill out an entry form in the bowling center, no purchase necessary.

The Buick Regal, courtesy of Tamaroff Buick in Southfield, is the overall first-place prize. Each bowling center will have its own first-prize winner, who will win the weekend for two to Chicago or Nashville from Uniglobe Travel.

Second prize is a new bowling ball and bag, and the third prize is 12 games or two hours of free bowling. You must be 21 to enter and date of the drawing will be Sunday, Oct. 1. Radio commercials for the promotion will be aired with the spokesmen being Bill Laimbeer, Willie Horton, Greg Stefan and Chuck Long.

- The Ladies Pro Bowlers Tour has arrived at the Satellite Bowl on Michigan Avenue in Dearborn. Bowling begins Monday and will continue Tuesday and Wednesday with the nationally-televised finals taking place Thursday at 7 p.m.

For more information, call the Satellite Bowl at 278-7400. The men's pro bowlers will also be in the area starting Thursday, Aug. 10, at Rose Bowl Lanes across the river in Windsor.

- All league officers of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association sanctioned leagues are invited to attend the upcoming officers workshops. This includes secretaries, treasurers and presidents of the league. Supplies and materials will be handed out along with questions and answers regarding the operation of the bowling leagues.

The workshops are Thursday, Aug. 10, at Airway Lanes, Pontiac; Monday, Aug. 14, at Satellite Lanes, Dearborn; Tuesday, Aug. 22, at Ark Lanes, Sterling Heights; Monday, Aug. 28, at Thunderbowl Lanes, Allen Park.

The workouts are vital to the successful operation of your league. If you are a league officer, be sure to catch one of them.

- At Bel Aire Lanes in Farmington, the men's trio league had Jerry Lash with the high series last week, compiling a 663 total. High-game honors went to Bill Funke and Ross Frasure who tied with 257 each. In the "King of the Hill" eliminations, Bob Parker finished with the money by beating Ken Glinski in the finals.

In the Un-Mixed Mix League, Fred Rouhonen had a 215 game and Rob Haywood a 203. The Family Twosome League has one parent bowling with the youngster and last week 10-year-old Gary Burgess was 110 pins over average for the three game.

- At Woodland Lanes in Livonia, Dave Myers was the hero last week with a 279 game and a 939 total for his four-game series in the Men's Trio League. The "Bowlerettes" saw Kathy Robertson improve on her 159 average with a 616 series on a 187-223-206 block.

Woodland Lanes in Livonia is holding its first Children's Hospital Bowling Party and Tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday with a $1,000 cash prize guaranteed for first place, expanding as high as $2,500 based on 1,600 entries.

There will be live bands, disc jockeys and food specials. The entry fee is $15 with $5 of that going to Children's Hospital. The handicap will be 80 percent from 210, so anyone has a chance to cash in. For more information, call Woodland Lanes at 522-4515.

- The Western/Wayne Youth Traveling Classic League will have its sign-up and organizational meeting Sunday, Aug. 13, at 1 p.m. at Westland Bowl in Westland.

This is a very competitive league for the better youth bowlers. They go into action Sundays at 10 a.m., traveling between Westland Bowl, Town & Country Lanes, Wayne Bowl, Lodge Lanes and Plaza Lanes. The league also participates as a group in many of the youth tournaments in the region.

They go by bus to the tournaments. Individuals and teams are welcome to sign up. Each team is comprised of three males and one female. It is a YABA sanctioned league, and any age group is welcome with minimum entering averages of 135 for boys and 125 for girls. This league bowls on a handicap format. Uniforms are supplied to the participants. For further information, call Hal Winters at 459-5380 or Norm Kluska at 522-1243.

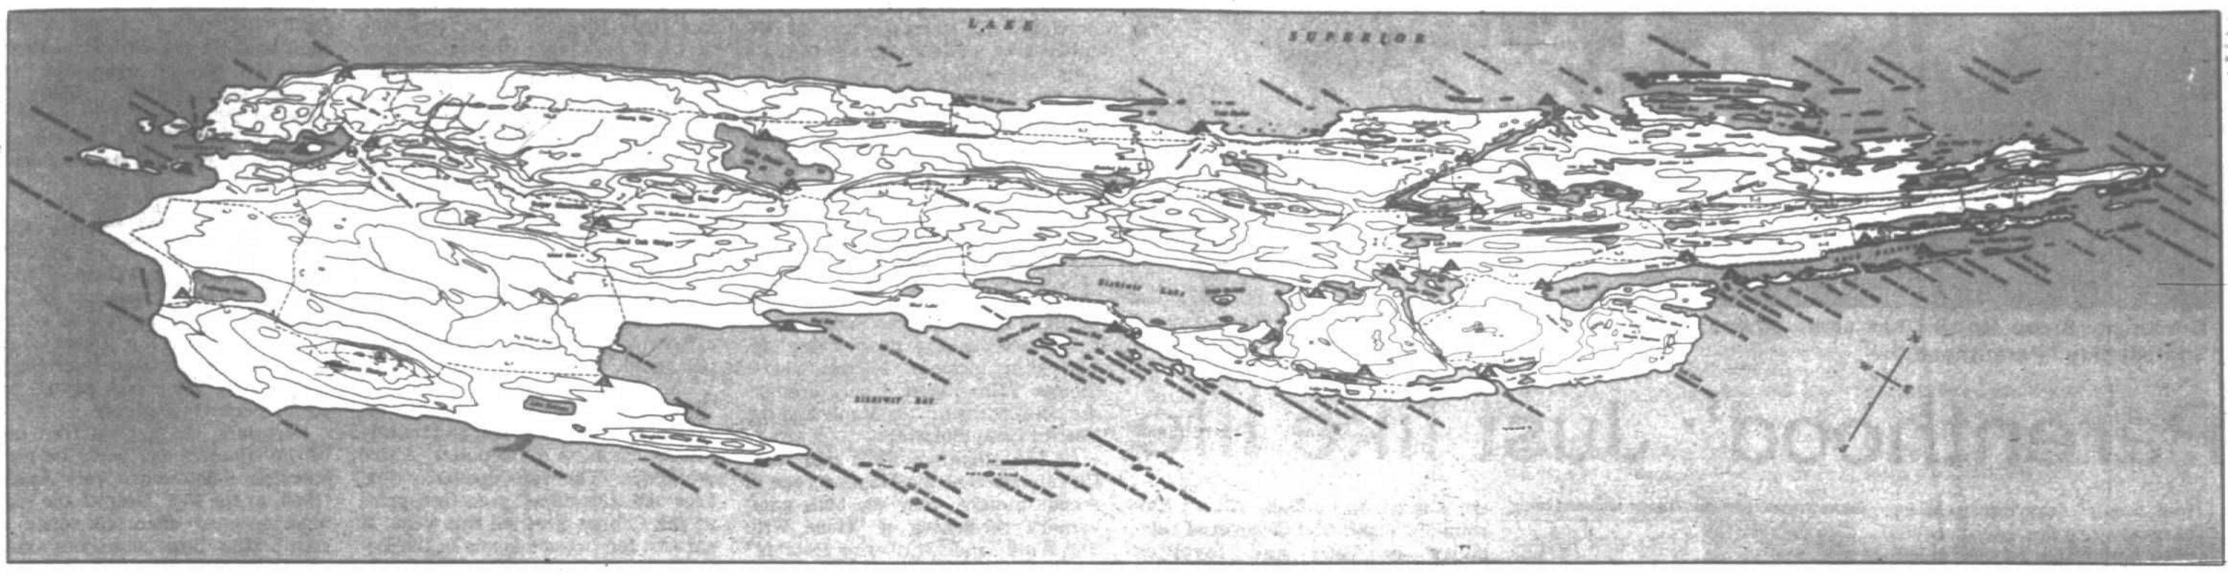
A touch of class

Think of yachting, and you immediately associate it with "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous." Monstrous boats that make your speedboat look like a dinghy are cruising the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair. And, for a price, you can experience such a lifestyle. Find out how on Page 6D.



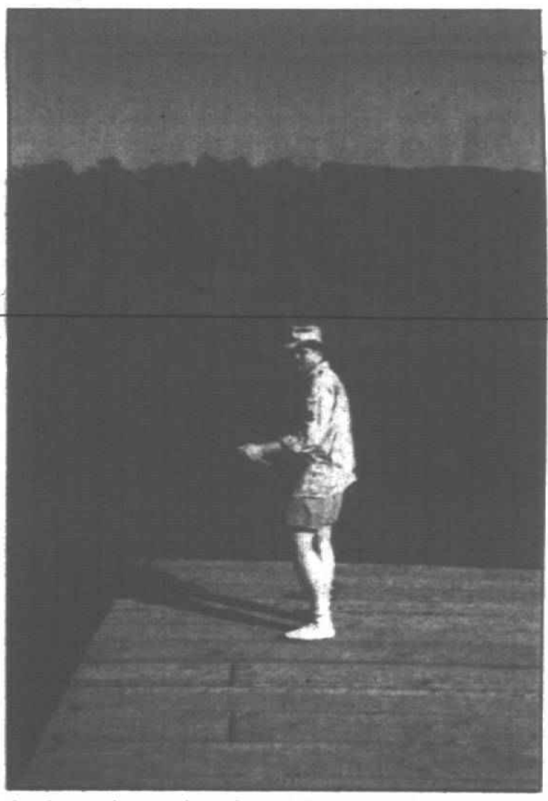
ISLE ROYALE

Michigan's gemstone island

By Jeff Counts
staff writer

Isle Royale is Michigan's gem in the rough. For those who venture to the island that sits in the west end of Lake Superior, it offers a chance to spend time away from the civilized world.

There aren't any roads or cars on the 45-mile-long island, but that doesn't make it another Mackinac Island.



A clear sky and a clear lake was too much for vactioneer Jeff Counts to resist, so out came the rod and reel for a bit of fishing.

There aren't any bridle paths, horses, bikes or fudge shops. The only way to get around is by boat or foot. Also, Isle Royale isn't for the day tripper, it's for the devoted. There's one lodge, one restaurant and one gift shop. You can see them all in about 15 minutes.

It's the rest of the island that attracts those who venture by boat and plane to the national park. The main attractions are the stately moose, the wolves who prey on the moose, the greenstones — Michigan's official gem — and the scenery. The island has 1,400 moose and 11 wolves.

But it's the relationship between the moose and the wolves that attracts biology students and academics to the island. The two animals are in ecological balance and depend on each other for their survivial.

The wolves kill and feed on the weaker moose, keeping their numbers in check. That way the island isn't over populated by moose. If there were too many moose, their sources of food would quickly be depleted.

MOOSE SPEND much of their time in the inland lakes and swamps of Isle Royale, and those are the destinations for backpackers in quest of moose.

It may seem like a lot of work, but seeing a moose in its natural habitat or hearing a wolf howl is worth the effort. For those who may be afraid to walk around an island with wolves on it, park rangers say there's nothing to fear. Few people are even lucky to see a wolf.

During the last 20 years, I've made five trips to the island, and each trip has been different, even through I've seen some of the same country more than once.

The weather and my companions have changed, but I feel the same thrill at seeing a moose or hearing the howl of the wolf as I first did at 19 years of age.

Hearing that howl or watching a moose pull its head out of the water to look at you is worth the aching muscles, sweating and work that is backpacking.

But while backpacking has its devotees, it's not the sport for everyone. For those who don't choose to spend a week without a shower and their dinner hours eating freeze dried foods, there is a lodge, housekeeping cabins and boat trips. There are also marinas on the island for those with large enough boats to make the trip from the mainland to the island.

Rates for rooms at Rock Habor Lodge start at $65 per day, while the rates for housekeeping cabins start

The pristine beauty of Isle Royale can be seen even at the end of a dock jutting out into one of its many inland lakes.

Getting there is such fun

Because it's an island, get ready for either a boat ride or a plane trip. Both have their advantages.

Here's a round-up of the transportation options from Houghton:

- The M.V. Ranger III is a 153-foot, 123-passenger boat that sails from Houghton to Rock Harbor Lodge at Isle Royle on Tuesdays and Fridays each week during the lodge season and returns the next day. The lodge season is from mid-June through early September.

The boat, operated by the National Park Service, leaves at 9 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time and the trip takes six hours. Advance reservations for passage should be made with the superintendent, 87 North Ripley Street, Isle Royale National Park, Houghton 49931. For more information call (906) 482-0984.

- The Isle Royale Queen III, an 81-foot, 90 passenger boat that sails from Copper Harbor to Rock Harbor Lodge from mid-May through September. The boat leaves Copper Harbor 8 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time and leaves Rock Harbor Lodge at 3:30 p.m. The trip takes about 4½ hours. For more information contact the Isle Royale Ferry Service, Copper Harbor 49918, or call (906) 289-4437.
- Isle Royale Seaplane Service Inc., the on demand charter service to Isle Royale operates from mid-May through September from Houghton. For more information, call (906) 482-8850.

While most Michigan residents tend to travel to Isle Royale from either Houghton or Copper Habor, there is the Minnesota connection. Here's the line up from that state:

- M.V. Voyageur II, a 63-foot, 49-passenger craft makes two-day round trips from Grand Portage, Minn., to Windigo and Rock Harbor Lodge on Isle Royale each Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. The boat leaves the mainland at 9:30 a.m. Central Daylight Time. The boat remains overnight at Rock Habor Lodge, departing at 9 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays for Windigo and Grand Portage. For more information write or Sivertson's Grand Portage, Isle Royale Transportation Lines Inc., 1332 London Road, Duluth, Minn., 55805, or call (218) 728-1237.

The white water way to see nature

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Q: Do you have any information on how I would start researching white water rafting trips? I'm interested in programs for novices as this will be my first trip.

S.B.,
Plymouth

A: I got my feet wet briefly on the Rio Grande in Big Bend National Park, Texas, and have always wanted to pursue it further. That trip was run by Far Flung Adventures (P.O. Box 31, Terlingua, Texas. Call (915) 371-2489.)

I can tell you that it was great fun to take a day trip with half a dozen on each of several rafts in the Elena Canyon, with a riverside lunch along the way.

I also visited Jim and Jeanine Greiner, who run Wildwater Ltd. Rafting on the Chatooga River, right on the border of Georgia and South Carolina (Wildwater Ltd. Rafting, P.O. Box 100, Long Creek, S.C. 29658. Call (803) 647-9587.) An entirely different rafting style than you'll find in the west.

There are several large adventure-travel companies. I talked to Rick McMahan, vice president of operations for American Wilderness Experience, (AWE) which advertises itself as "the civilized way to rough it." (P.O. Box 1486, Boulder, CO 80306. Call toll-free (800) 444-0099.)

White water rafting can be found throughout the United States, including on the Rio Grande in the Big Bend National Park in Texas.

MOVING PICTURES

Gil Buckman (Steve Martin) has some advice for his son Kevin (Jasen Fisher) in Ron Howard's latest film, "Parenthood."

'Parenthood': Just like life

Dan Greenberg

"Life is messy" says Karen (Mary Steenburgen).

"I liked that roller coaster ride," says Grandma (Helen Shaw). "It went up and down, not like the merry-go-round that just goes 'round and 'round. Some people like that but I like the roller coaster."

Well, life is messy and it does go up and down — and the same may be said for "Parenthood" (A-, R, 120 minutes). It's got everybody in it, and it goes up and down for two hours. But at the end of the ride, I think you'll agree, the trip was worthwhile.

Frank (Jason Robards) is the patriarch of this rather large and strange clan — and he's not very good at patriarching, if you can take the word of his compulsive son, Gil (Steve Martin), who's trying to be a good father and avoid Frank's mistakes.

But he tries too hard — with the aid and support of his wife, Karen (Steenburgen), — so they wind up with three kids in trouble — or at least they are so convinced by the school principal.

The important lesson they have to learn is that life is messy and, like the roller coaster, has its ups and downs. Happiness is accepting those imperfections and, if you abide by the movie's imperfections, you'll enjoy it. Try it.

But, don't get cocky. For example, you don't have this family sorted out yet. Now, pay attention; this is going to be on the mid-semester: Gil has three siblings. Susan (Harley Kozak) is married to Nathan (Rick Moranis) and their marriage is strained by Nathan's weird ideas about their daughter, Patty's (Ivyann Schwan) education.

Then, there's another sister, Helen (Dianne Wiest), whose husband left her with two children to raise — Julie (Martha Plimpton) and Garry (Leaf Phoenix). Julie has a boyfriend, Tod (Keanu Reeves). Tod wants to race cars, but Julie wants him to paint houses. Helen isn't doing too well in the child-rearing department either.

Finally, the kid brother shows up. Larry (Tom Hulce) has some pretty serious gambling debts and a black son, Cool (Alex Burrall).

There's much more and it's to director Ron Howard's credit that he keeps all those story-lines clearly threaded through the film's fabric. Consistently good performances by all certainly helps a great deal despite occasional silliness.

Some also may be bothered by sudden shifts from traditional Steve Martin routines and other farcical goings-on to very serious stuff.

But if you think about it, life's like that. Messy and constantly shifting gears. So enjoy life, and the movie, as best you can. That's the name of the game.

"Young Einstein" (D+, PG, 90 minutes), an Australian film, is the sort of movie that could have/should have been much better than it is and probably will be appreciated by those who like off-the-wall stuff even when it lacks the sparkle of wit and good pacing.

What we have here is a film typical of our times — no restraint. Someone gave Yahoo Serious free rein and he abused it. Yahoo Serious, by the way, is the name used by the film's lead actor and producer/director/writer.

The story is that of a fellow from the Australian outback, Albert Einstein (Serious), who discovered relativity in 1905 and invented rock'n'roll in 1906. The film tries, unsuccessfully, to mix old-time melodrama, distorted and satiric history, a hillbilly hoedown, rock exuberance and the Monty Python style. It doesn't work.

Although the music track is entertaining, there's more to Monty Python, to satire and to melodrama than slow-paced mugging and anti-establishment statements.

Unfortunately, no one informed Serious of that and "Young Einstein" drags along with a few good sight gags, but mostly it meanders with an infantile lack of restraint. Its one good quality, a rousing concluding musical number.

STILL PLAYING:

"Babar: The Movie" (G).

Delightful animation of Babar stories.

"Batman" (C+) (PG-13) 120 minutes.

Michael Keaton is a dud in the title role but Jack Nicholson's Joker is terrific.

"Dead Poets Society" (A+) (PG) 124 minutes.

"Do the Right Thing" (B+) (R) 120 minutes.

Sharp, incisive and entertaining commentary on today's urban America.

"Field of Dreams" (B+) (PG) 111 minutes.

Friday the 13th: Part VIII - Jason Takes Manhattan" (F) (R), 110 minutes.

"Ghostbusters II" (C-) (PG) 102 minutes.

It's less funny the second time.

"Great Balls of Fire" (C) (PG-13) 105 minutes.

"Honey, I Shrunk the Kids" (B+) (PG) 105 minutes.

"Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" (B+) (PG-13) 120 minutes.

"Karate Kid III" (D-) (PG) 105 minutes.

"Lethal Weapon II" (B+) (R) 115 minutes. Glover and Gibson do it again in high, albeit violent, style.

"Licence to Kill" (B+) (R) 105 minutes.

Grading the movies

A+	Top marks - sure to please
A	Close behind - excellent
A-	Still in running for top honors
B+	Pretty good stuff, not perfect
B	Good
B-	Good but notable deficiencies
C+	Just a cut above average
C	Mediocre
C-	Not so hot and slipping fast
D+	The very best of the poor stuff
D	Poor
D-	It doesn't get much worse
F	Truly awful
Z	Reserved for the colossally bad

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

Maple, DFT plot for fall

By John Monaghan
special writer

The AMC Maple Theatre in Birmingham has spent the past decade cultivating an educated and upscale suburban audience willing to take chances on offbeat films.

In the past year, however, the theater has turned up an amazing amount of truly wretched titles. The gourmet candy counter has become infinitely more exciting than what's happening on screen.

It's a global crisis. Where the '80s saw a marked increase in the production and distribution of quality foreign and American independent titles, sources are now drying up. The slim pickings at this year's Cannes Film Festival only brought the point home for the Maple and the Detroit Film Theatre.

Of the countless films that have flickered across the Maple screen in recent months, only the 50th anniversary rereleases of "Gone With The Wind" and "Wuthering Heights" have been worth the celluloid.

New releases have ranged from the almost watchable ("Miracle Mile") to the bottom of the barrel ("Warm Nights on a Slow Moving Train"). There hasn't been a really decent new picture since "Dangerous Liasons" last winter!

MOREOVER, THE Maple recently lost Tracy O'Conner, a conscientious manager who probably tired of hearing complaints about bad movies. It's especially frustrating to hear Maple booker Sonny Gorley tell me that "The Rainbow," Ken Russell's new D.H. Lawrence adaption, probably won't screen because of box office fears.

The Maple used to vie for the big titles with downtown rival The Detroit Film Theatre. Now the DFT opens films for a weekend or two before the Maple gets its chance. It happened most recently with "Au Revoir Les Enfants," "Jean de Florette," "Manon of the Springs," "The Thin Blue Line," "Babette's Feast" and "Women on the Verge of a Nervous Breakdown." It will happen again.

The DFT season — its 32nd — offers a few big releases, but rarely allows them to monopolize entire weekends. The fall opener, "Sex, Lies and Videotape," won first prize at the Cannes Festival this year. It screens for two weekends in the Detroit Institute of Arts auditorium, starting Aug. 18.

Other highlights include "A Taxing Woman Returns" (Sept. 1-2), the sequel to Juzo Itami's popular Japanese comedy; "Little Vera" (Oct. 13-15, 20-22), a controversial new Soviet sex comedy; and "The Little Thief" (Nov. 24-26), based on the late Francois Truffaut's final screenplay.

Most exciting is the series of wide screen films scattered across Saturdays and Sundays.

This film fan will finally get a chance to experience "La Dolce Vita" (1961) in its original ratio and then bask in the campy heaven of "Bye Bye Birdie" (1963) and "High School Confidential" (1958). This may be the most unashamedly fun series Elliot Wilhelm has compiled since his 3-D tribute almost a decade ago.

THE TELE-ARTS Theatre, now in its second year, gets an occasional windfall in its Grand Circus Park location. Recent screenings of "The Navigator" — described as an Australian episode of the "Outer Limits" — have been perhaps their biggest coup. Yes, "The Navigator" may soon screen at the Maple.

Certainly, the biggest film event of the summer has been the reconstructed "Lawrence of Arabia" (1962) at the Fox. Despite the major annoyance of distorted sound and film breaks, large audiences extended the run and have been clamoring for more movies. The Fox hopes to oblige — but not until next summer.

Meanwhile, film fans are still catching up on mainstream summer releases, which have been suprisingly entertaining but provide little food for thought. Meaty movies are coming up this fall — just be prepared to drive downtown to see them first.

ANN ARBOR SILENT FILM SOCIETY, Berkshire Hilton, I-94 at State, Ann Arbor. Call 761-8286 for information. Starting at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 7. ($2.50 general, $1.50 members)

The society continues its festival of foreign silent films with a salute to Germany. In "Faust" (1926), director F.W. Murnau adds an expressionistic touch to the Goethe classic about a man who sells his soul to the devil. Followed by "Variety" (1925), about an acrobatic duo whose marital bliss is disrupted by a young man who joins the act. With the short "Ghosts Before Breakfast" (1928), a Dadaist comedy about flying hats and nonsensical humans. A highly recommended night at the movies.

CINEMA GUILD, Modern Language Building, Ann Arbor. Call 994-0027 for information. ($2.50 single feature, $3.50 double)

Craziness? — "The Gods Must Be Crazy" (Africa — 1984), 7:30 p.m. Aug. 11. In which a Coke bottle dropped from a passing airplane wreaks havoc on a peaceful African tribal village. With "Repulsion" (Britain — 1965) at 9:30 p.m., Roman Polanski's study of insanity, starring a young Catherine Deneuve as a virginal woman whose fear and fascination with men leads to a bizarre murder.

Screwball comedy — "Dinner at Eight" (USA — 1933), 7:30 p.m. Aug. 12. Lionel Barrymore, Billie Burke, Jean Harlow and Wallace Berry attend a society dinner party with wild results. Featuring a prophetic John Barrymore as a down-on-his-luck matinee idol. With "You Can't Take It With You" (USA — 1938), Frank Capra's crazy comedy about an eccentric family during the Depression. Based on the Kaufman-Hart play.

HENRY FORD CENTENNIAL LIBRARY, 16301 Michigan, Dearborn. Call 943-2330 for information. (Free)

"Comedy Teams Night," 7 p.m. Aug. 7. A selection of shorts, including The Marx Brothers, Rowan and Martin and The Three Stooges.

LIVONIA MALL CINEMA, 29415 Seven Mile, Livonia. Call 476-1166 for information. (Free)

"The Philadelphia Story" (USA — 1940), 10 a.m. Aug. 8. Reporter Jimmy Stewart is assigned to cover a society wedding, but ends up falling in love with the beguiling bride (Katharine Hepburn). Cary Grant also stars as the ex-husband determined to win her back. Continuing the mall's ambitious tribute to Jimmy Stewart.

MICHIGAN THEATRE, 16301 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. For information, call 669-8397. ($4 regular and $3.25 students and senior citizens)

"Warm Nights on a Slow Moving Train" (Australia — 1989), Aug. 7-12 (call for show times). Ponderous drama about a school teacher (Wendy Highes) who moonlights as a prostitute on weekend train trips. How could subject matter like this be so boring?

"Tampopo" (Japan — 1987), 7 p.m. Aug. 7. Director Juzo Itami's hilarious look at the Japanese obsession with food — centering around an ambitious noodle shop.

"The Year of Living Dangerously" (Australia — 1983), 9:15 p.m. Aug. 8 and 7 p.m. Aug. 9. Peter Weir's flawed but fascinating study of an Australian journalist's (Mel Gibson) odyssey during the military coup in Indonesia in 1965. Linda Hunt bizarrely cast as photographer Billy Kwan.

"The Road Warrior" (Australia — 1982), 9:15 p.m. Aug. 10 and 9:45 p.m. Aug. 11. The most exciting of the Mad Max films as vagabond Mel Gibson reluctantly assists a desert community pursued by gasoline-hungry maniacs.

The Tom Russell Band appeals to both rock'n'roll and country tastes.

Urban cowboy

Brooklyn is home on the range for singer

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The honk of a Brooklyn cab is not the same as a moo from a Texas steer. But Tom Russell is a cowboy nonetheless.

No honky-tonks, no railroads running down the avenue . . . what's a country artist to do? Well, Russell gets along just fine.

In fact, Russell's address might be considered one of the reasons he's considered one of the most progressive country artists around today.

"I'm living in a pretty marginal area of Brooklyn, right on the street actually," said Russell, who will perform with his band Friday at Alvin's in Detroit. "All you have to do is open the door. It's a pretty alive area. You can walk up the block and there's always a story happening."

Stories are Russell's forte. He's been referred to by critics as one of the finest country songwriters around today. Yet, you'll be hard pressed to find him on your country radio dial.

Then again, we are talking about a guy who lives in Brooklyn, records in Norway and writes songs about people like author William Faulkner. Not exactly the whiskey, women and railroad ditties that usually makes up country music.

Nor is Russell the pop prince that Nashville seems to crave of late.

His popularity has reached a peak in Scandanavia and Canada. His last album, "Road to Bayamon," sold well in those areas. In the U.S., though, the disc didn't exactly rocket to the top of the country charts.

"THE MAIN problem, to be frank, is that country radio format seems to be quite stiff and closed," Russell said. "I think we could be played on country radio, but we don't have a pop sound. I'm willing to play along, but I think our market might be with the rock crowd."

"I don't think there is a tremendous amount of art coming out of Nashville," he added. "I think they've settled on a format that works in a small way. There's a bigger market they're not hitting — the people that buy a Mellancamp or Springsteen that would buy a hip country album and not be turned off by it."

Russell's fortunes are starting to change. Countless tours have garnered a strong grassroots following here.

Russell even talks of a record deal with a major label, one that would be to his liking.

"I think it's a good position to be in," he said. "The door is starting to open and we're right there."

If the spotlight finally gets around to Russell, it will be the culmination of several years of hardship. He released two folk albums in the late '70s that didn't go anywhere.

Russell later latched onto a carnival in Puerto Rico. Then the bottom fell out.

"I remember when I woke up in a ditch about 8 in the morning with water rising up and (then) walking back to the trailer soaking wet. I found my guitar shot up by some drunken security guard," he said. "I knew it was uphill after that.

"THE EXPERIENCE was like you think you've hit rock bottom and there's a trap door to hell."

Through with music for the time being, Russell went to New York. He bumped into the Grateful Dead's Paul Hunter, who "kicked me back into the business."

"Road to Bayamon" was released in the U.S. in 1988, covering his experiences in Puerto Rico. Russell has since released another LP in Europe, "Poor Man's Dream." He's waiting for the possible major label deal before putting the LP out here.

In the meantime, The Tom Russell Band continues to build a ground swell with some gritty blend of country and rock'n'roll in clubs. The group features noted guitarist Andrew Hardin, fiddle and accordion player "Fats" Kaplin, bass player Billy Troiani and drummer Charlie Caldarola.

Band members hail from such unlikely country ports as Las Vegas, San Francisco and New York.

"It doesn't matter," Russell said. "They're all steeped in honky-tonk music. They've all paid their dues playing in the bars."

The Tom Russell Band will perform along with Steve Young at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 11, at Alvin's, 5756 Cass, on the Wayne State University Campus, Detroit. Tickets are $10. For information, call 832-2355.

LIVE

SKANKING VOODOO DOLLS — Hamtramck Pub

Instead of lights, perhaps ropes and turnbuckles should have been strung up around the stage Saturday at the Hamtramck Pub. Reggae meets rock'n'roll?

The concept of blending reggae and rock'n'roll is an ambitious undertaking, Especially when you have a guitarist who looks like he's been kidnapped from Motley Crue.

Yet, if anything, Skanking Voodoo Dolls should be commended for at least trying to put a different twist on what has become fairly standard fare called "new music."

An amiability exists when this four-person outfit is onstage. Call it warmth; call it not being obnoxious. But Skanking Voodoo Dolls have an easiness about them that can make a person feel downright homey at times.

Part of that is due to the steady, reggae-fied beat provided by drummer Perez and bass player Jim Megerian. Also, lead singer Beaux Mitchell also contributes to the ambience, gliding along with her rhythm guitar and sweet vocals.

But while those three caress with the musical feather, lead guitarist Brian Smith wields the axe. He provides the edge to the beat, venturing out into the bar with his wireless guitar (He was careful not to disturb the guys playing pool, though.).

Thus the edge is provided. Sometimes, however, it cuts the band off from the listener.

The heavy metallish tone of his playing is dandy for the black leather and mousse haired crowd, but runs against the grain of the heartbeat of reggae.

That's not to say rock'n'roll and reggae are unlikely bedfellows. Nor is it to imply Skanking Voodoo Dolls is a failed experiment. Quite the contrary.

If there is a middle ground for the reggae and rock'n'roll, Skanking Voodoo Dolls will undoubtedly be the one to find it.

REVIEWS

one
BEE GEES

Inside the mind (and notebook) of a reviewer:

What's this thing on my desk. Hmm . . . plain brown wrapper, too. Uh oh, it's the new Bee Gees album. Can't let anybody see me looking at this thing. I'll just sneak it out.

Back home, I'm feeling adventurous. I think I'll slip "One" (Warner Bros.) on the turntable.

The first cut, the title track, isn't half bad. Kinda catchy. Paula Abdul could dance to this thing. Here's comes the bridge. There are those carry-you-up-to-heaven Bee Gees harmonies. "We are one . . . we are onnnneeeeee . . . " I give it an 80.

Next up, "Ordinary Lives." Not bad, either, even if it does sound a little like Stevie Winwood's last beer commercial. "Bodyguard," "It's My Neighborhood" — kinda forgettable. "Tears" — there's that big Bee Gees ballad, even if it isn't quite up there with "More Than a Woman" or "Too Much Heaven." (Not that I've listened to either song in the past decade, of course.)

"Tokyo Nights" — a winner, even if it does show where the brothers Gibb may take their act, if they can't break back into the American market. "Flesh and Blood," "Wish You Were Here," "House of Shame" — gee, I can't remember these at all.

"Will You Ever Let Me" — doesn't this song ever end? "You Win Again," there's that flop single from a couple of years back, these guys don't give up easily, I'll say that for them. Tell ya the truth, this one still could be a hit.

Okay, let's total it up. Three decent songs. A couple more that aren't too bad, either.

Here's the dilemma: This isn't a bad album, but I can't really tell people,I like it. C'mon, this is the Bee Gees.

COSMIC THING
— B-52s

The B-52s return after a three-year hiatus prompted by the death of founding member, Ricky Wilson. Despite his absence, there is no noticeable difference in the "wacky dance" B-52s sound. B-52s are B-52s.

With the distinctive spoken-sung vocals of Fred Schneider and the easily recognizable and attractive harmonies of Kate Pierson and Cindy Wilson, the sound remains the same.

While the Bs may still be looked upon as the "party dance" band, on this album, "Cosmic Thing," (Reprise) they are lyrically more overt in their dealings with the world around them, On previous albums they have been more subtle with their environmental commentaries, e.g. "Private Idaho" or "Juicy Jungle." The first single from "Cosmic Thing," "Channel Z," is a pretty straight forward social commentary; "Space junk, laser bombs, ozone holes/better put up an umbrella/giant stacks blowin's smoke, politicrits pushin' dope."

Or from "Bush Fire" this, "Rolling through a field of molten flowers/there's a bushfire burning."

With the creditable B-52 history on albums like "Mesapotamia" and "Whammy" along with singles such as "Rock Lobster," "Give Me Back My Man," and "Legal Tender," mixed with the solid dance-oriented experience of producers Nile Rodgers (Chic, Sister Sledge) and Don Was (Was Not Was), it is easy to understand why "Cosmic Thing" is tight, punchy and funky.

Highlights of the LP are "Dry County," "Love Shack," "Channel Z," and, not to belittle their lyrics, mention must be made of the beautiful instrumental "Follow Your Bliss."

Here's looking forward to hearing them live at the Royal Oak Music Theatre on Wednesday.

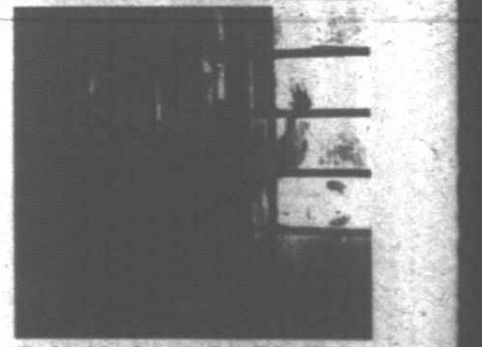
QUEEN ELVIS
— Robyn Hitchcock 'n' The Egyptians



Robyn Hitchcock is pop music's equivalent to a ring master and his albums are a circus of sounds, images and whimsical lyrics.

"Queen Elvis," (A&M) the British singer's latest effort, fits the description. Except, unlike his last LP "Globe of Frogs" (A&M), he drives it home in more of a rocked-out fashion at times.

His songs can be rich with orchestration or acoustically bare, but he brings home the lyrical bacon. He sings about cold women ("Madonna of the Wasps"), questions the human nature of the Queen ("Veins of the Queen") and takes a swipe at a British showbiz person ("Wax Doll").

Electric guitars soar, drums boom and bass lines thunder from the opening cut, "Madonna of the Wasps." The song exemplifies what a true pop genius Hitchcock is when he works within the boundaries of conventional pop.

The musical parts provide some of the best hooks, whether it be the extra guitar work of R.E.M's Peter Buck on "Swirling," the overdubbed piano by Andy Metcalfe on "One Long Pair of Eyes," or the trumpet on "Veins of the Queen."

But when talking Hitchcock, we're talking lyrics. And, as usual, there are plenty of insightful lines suitable for framing. From "Veins of the Queen" we hear Hitchcock ask some questions about ole' Elizabeth, "Oh the Queen and her cellar full of dogs/Wonder has she any frogs?/Does she ever chop up logs?/Woah oh no — no I don't suppose she does/Anyway she'd have a private detective with her."

Some guidelines for stepparents

Dear Barbara,

What is the best approach to disciplining a stepchild who is living at home?

R.W.

Dear R.W.,

You have given me very little information with which to give a reply. But because this is such an important topic, I'm going to list some general guidelines that I hope will be helpful:

1. Except when the child is very young, try to leave the discipline to the child's natural parents. Children become more resentful of restrictions imposed by stepparents.

2. Let the relationship between you and your stepchild develop naturally. Don't push or fake affection that has not yet happened between the two of you.

3. In general, don't get involved in discipline that your spouse or the other natural parent is imposing. If asked by your spouse to support him or her, evaluate the request very carefully before responding.

If you want further advice on this topic, please write me with more information so I can evaluate this situation more carefully.

Barbara

Dear Barbara,

I am 18 years old and have been seeing a doctor with whom I am very uncomfortable. He does not have a nurse in the office with him when he examines me. He often sits and talks to me while I am still undressed. He is a good friend of the family and so I am afraid to say anything to anyone about my discomfort in his office.

Julie

Dear Julie,

Get another doctor. Perhaps because you are only 18 and still in adolescence, your indecisiveness is understandable, but start now to mature. You are old enough to be responsible for yourself and not need your parents' approval for each action.

Maybe you have a friend that has a doctor they like and trust, or if you are going to a university, there will probably be a student health service.

The American Medical Society in Oakland — 646-5400 — will also make a referral.

at $36 per day. There is a small grocery store near the lodge where basic food stuffs are available.

EXCURSION BOATS head out from the lodge Monday through Saturday. Those trips are often guided by a National Park Service ranger and include hiking trips to various points of interest on the island.

Chances of seeing moose on those trips is good because they often swim to the dozens of smaller islands that surround Isle Royale.

But for those who want to escape the crowds, the path is walking the islands trails. Because it's a national park, there's no fee for camping; however, backpackers must register with the park service before heading out. Campers are asked to provide an itinerary for their trip.

Maps of the island showing the campgrounds, trails and distances are available from the park service on the island. The cost is $1.

For those who land at Rock Harbor, the best bet for the first day's hike is the 5.5-mile jaunt to Daisy Farm. It's a good shake-down tour for the days to come.

Daisy Farm, like most campgrounds on the island, has shelters and tent sites. The shelters are wood on three sides and screened in the front. They have a wooden floor and there's usually a picnic table at each one.

Some purists who engage in backpacking eschew the use of a shelter, believing that it doesn't give you a true wilderness experience. Myself, I like using the shelters. They keep you off the wet, cold ground and they are good places to dry off and spread out your equipment after being caught in a rain.

But while I usually depend on a shelter, I always carry a tent because the shelters are often taken at the more popular campgrounds.

Campgrounds on Isle Royale offer facilities for tents and also have wooden shelters with screened fronts and wooden floors.

DAISY FARM IS one of the more popular places on the island but it's a good stop over because from there it's a nice day hike to the island's more remote spots.

Moskey Basin is about 4.5 miles, or about a three-hour walk, and McCargoe Cove is about eight miles. Both are favorites of mine. Moskey Basin has shelters on rock at the edge of the Lake Superior shore where you can see the sunrises.

But if you favor sunsets, a bit of history and good moose country, McCargoe Cove is a six- to eight-hour walk. That trek takes you across to the island's north shore. And there's plenty to see on the walk which takes you across the rocky ridges and onto the Greenstone Ridge Trail which traverses the island.

On a clear day you can see Thunder Bay, Ontario, from Greenstone Ridge. And in late summer there are blueberry patches on the ridges that can help supplement your diet of freeze-dried food.

If you could select one place on Isle Royale to obtain the full experience of being on the island, it would be McCargoe Cove. On the three visits I've made to the place, we've always seen moose there.

One afternoon I sat in front of my shelter watching a bull moose feed across the cove. It only decided to move when an excursion boat nearly hit it.

The cove is really a ghost town of what was once a copper mining village. Also, nearby are ancient pits where Indians once mined copper. The island was mined in the second half of the 19th century and the trailing from the Minong Mine is still there. The remnants of a blacksmith shop and narrow gauge railroad can also be seen.

THE COVE ALSO offers fishing from the dock and swimming for those who decide they are dirty enough to brave the cold waters of Lake Superior. I tried briefly once.

During a trip to the island this summer with my son and two of his friends, we spent an evening at the cove with a camp fire and the northern lights in the sky.

And it's nights like that, with your muscles aching, a warm fire, hot coffee, a pipe in hand and a display of the Aura Borealis overhead that you know you're roughing it on one of Michigan's gems.

Royale things to see

Here's a list of some of the things on Isle Royale:

- Ryan Island is the largest island in the largest lake on the largest island in the largest fresh water lake in the world.
- Edisen Fishery is a historic fishery that shows how commercial fishermen lived in the 1930s.
- Rock of Ages Lighthouse is one of the most powerful on the Great Lakes. It's off the western tip of the island.
- Suzy's Cave on the trail between Daisy Farm and Rock Harbor Lodge is an ancient inland sea cave.

According to the park service, the temperatures range between 65 and 75 degrees during the day. Nights are cooler. We saw our breath freeze during several nights during June.

For information, write the Isle Royale National Park, Rock Harbor Lodge, P.O. Box 405, Houghton, Mich., 49931-0405, or call (906) 337-4993.

VIDEO VIEWING

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

If you had all the time in the world, two VCRs and could watch one with each eye, you'd still probably have trouble keeping up with the incredible flow of movies available on videotape.

The 1989 "Video Source Book" lists 54,000 titles and there ought to be at least 60,000 by next year. In case you don't live at your local video store, here's the word on a couple of interesting films that haven't had heavy coverage or major publicity.

Turning 40 may be tough but "Middle Age Crazy" (A-, R, 1980, color, 95 minutes) makes it easier by treating the problem with intelligent good humor. It's the entertaining story of a successful Texas construction executive, Bobbie Lee Burnett (Bruce Dern), whose wife Sue Ann (Ann-Margaret) is bound and determined to combat the onset of middle-age through sexual performance. Bingo.

Now Bobbie Lee has been a hard-working, down-to-earth, faithful husband who drives an Oldsmobile, wears three-piece suits and does his duty. Shortly after his 40th, Bobbie's father (Eric Christmas) dies suddenly and Bobbie Lee finds himself the patriarch to whom everyone turns.

His recently widowed mother (Helen Hughes) can't decide which condo to buy, his son, Greg (Geoffrey Bowes) doesn't want to go away to school because his girlfriend, Becky (Vivian Reis), is pregnant.

His raunchy partner-foreman, J.D. (Graham Jarvis) wants to expand the business and their best customer — they build taco stands for Senor Abe (Michael Kane) — wants them to remodel his private box at the Dallas football stadium.

THE PRESSURE is too much and Bobbie Lee goes "middle age crazy" — buys boots and jeans, leases a Porsche and takes up with a Dallas Cowgirl, Nancy (Deborah Wakeham).

Carl Kleinschmitt's screenplay is witty, John Trent's direction tight and well-paced, good music by Matthew McCauley, Burt Bachrach and Carole Bayer Sager as well as terrific performances by the entire cast add up to a very entertaining show.

In particular Dern and Ann-Margaret — who have most of the screen time — make this film work well. Ann-Margaret is most effective as the simple-minded but sincere southern belle. She adds enough dimension to the role and avoids cliched performance of a stereotypical character.

Dern is one of the better actors around even though he hasn't had the choice roles and widely publicized success his talent deserves. Here, he's particularly good as a mature individual in a new and unusual situation. He plays it with the wide-eyed wonderment of a kid in a candy store and there's a lot of humor in that.

Dern's unassuming manner is carried over to the very clever dream/fantasy sequences that emphasize Bobbie Lee's predicament. Unlike the often pretentious, annoying and over-obvious dream sequences so common in Hollywood films, Dern flows smoothly into these sequences as he fumbles humorously into middle-age.

Another fine actor, Alan Alda, may now be seen in an unusual role, his early film, "The Mephisto Waltz" (B-, R, 1971, color, 109 minutes). This classy story of the occult features a top cast, good photography and some pretty slick music.

MYLES CLARKSON (Alda) is a failed pianist who writes about music. His loving wife, Paula (Jacqueline Bisset), and daughter, Abby (Pamelyn Ferdin) are the joys of his life. He interviews the world famous pianist, Duncan Ely (Kurt Jurgens), who thinks Myles has promise as a pianist. Myles is flattered by Ely's attention and by his daughter, Roxanne (Barbara Parkins).

Well, Duncan and daughter are two pretty strange folks, and lovers of occult films can figure it out — it's a pretty straightforward story, at least until the end. However, it's well-told, with some interesting photography, particularly Paula's dream sequences.

Although there's a fair amount of gore, "The Mephisto Waltz" is classy and doesn't rely solely on fear and fright for its appeal.

Some weeks ago, Bunuel's "Diary of a Chambermaid" was discussed in this column. Now the Hollywood version is available and the two are interesting to compare.

The latter was filmed in Hollywood just after World War II and was directed by the famed French director, Jean Renoir. It stars Paulette Goddard and Burgess Meredith. Although Bunuel's version was filmed almost 20 years later (1964), it doesn't look it.

Both have the dark and brooding style of Europe in the '40s. The difference is, Renoir notwithstanding, Paulette Goddard and Hollywood triumph in the Republic version from 1946 and the tragic implications of Bunuel film and Mirbeau's novel (upon which both films are based) is lost.

Despite the happy Hollywood ending and the more typical European conclusion of Bunuel's film, both versions of "Diary of a Chambermaid" are interesting and entertaining. Makes an unusual double-bill.

Hardin brings laughter to the Fisher

By Bob Sadler
special writer

It's easy to understand why Carl Hardin is excited.

Hardin, a native Detroiter, is the man responsible for putting together a comedy show at the Fisher Theatre called "Laugh Jam 1989," under the auspices of his CRH Productions company.

Assembled for this Friday's show are a funny combination of local and national talent, including the headliner Chris Rock (from "Beverly Hills Cop II and "I'm Gonna Get You Sucka"), Tommy Davidson, Detroit comic "Downtown" Tony Brown, recently named best comic in a Metro Times reader poll, and one other local funnyman ... himself.

"I'm probably the only comedian with an MBA," said Hardin. He received both his bachelor's and master of business administration degrees in finance from the University of Michigan.

After feeling restricted creatively in the normal business world, Hardin now has an opportunity to combine his business savvy with his desire to perform on the comedy stage.

"What I was doing in business was too formal," Hardin said. "It was inhibiting. I had to break out.

"LIFE'S A gamble. If you don't take chances, you'll never get anywhere."

He's been doing the comedy circuit for a couple of years and is now in the process of trying to sell a television special called "Cheap, But Funny" to stations in a few markets. The special stars himself.

On the business side of things, "Laugh Jam 1989" is a show that will tour briefly after its debut in Detroit. The other cities slated for shows are Toledo and Chicago.

Hardin is "highly optimistic" about the show and hopes that it can become an annual Detroit mainstay, as well as a national tour. He chose to have the show downtown at the Fisher because he wants to bring comedy to a slightly different audience — those who don't travel to the suburbs for the conventional comedy clubs.

"The location was one of the things I was looking at," Hardin said. "I asked myself 'Why isn't there more comdey in Detroit? Would people come downtown to check out comedy?'

"I was thoroughly convinced that they would."

A PORTION of the proceeds from the show will also go to benefit the fund to save Detroit Public School athletic programs, which Hardin, a graduate of Cass Tech, supports wholeheartedly.

"Having grown up in Detroit, I can empathize with what's going on," Hardin said. "I realized when I was there (Cass Tech) that the school system didn't have the resources to compete."

"Hopefully, the show will make a dent."

"Laugh Jam 1989" comes to the Fisher Theatre in Detroit at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 11. Tickets are $16.50 and are available at all TicketMaster outlets or by calling at 645-6666.

Picture perfect: High tech comes to photography

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The art of photography is going through some high-tech upheaval.

Electronic photography, just being made available to consumers, could revolutionize photography by the year 2000, some industry watchers say.

With electronic photography, "It's a lot easier to store images,"said Ken Easdon, industrial sales manager for Adray Appliance in Dearborn.

That's because images are stored not on film but digitally on magnetic floppy discs.

"It's valuable for professionals in the medical field, for newspaper photographers," Easdon said.

"It gives them abilities to send things across wires," he added.

Besides saving storage space, electronic photography could aid in surgery.

"If a doctor is actually in surgery and if somebody is greater versed in an area, he could put it (the electronic photo image) on a phone line and have another surgeon look at the situation."

For those reasons, Easdon said Adray is talking with Henry Ford Hospital management about the hospital adopting electronic photography.

This technology can also aid the newspaper business, in saving storage space, and in speed of photo selection and transmission.

FOR EXAMPLE, after taking several photographs in the field, a newspaper photographer could review photos on a portable video monitor then transmit by telephone the best shots for printing in the newspaper. USA Today and some news magazines have begun using the process.

But for consumers, electronic photography "is still a long way off," said Brad Jacobs, manager of Lysinger Photo Supply in Troy.

Jacobs and others in photography equipment sales say this is due partly to the price — in the thousands of dollars — for equipment used to shoot and print photos taken by electronic cameras.

And to date, the quality of electronic photography doesn't come close to the traditional kind.

"It's a good two years down the road," Jacobs said. "People want the quality of a 35mm," he said, adding the quality of electronic imaging doesn't match traditional, or silver imaging.

If photo quality is measured in the number of pixels — points of resolution which make up a photographic image — an electronic photo has only about 300 pixels. That's compared to 25 million in a Khodacrome image, said Rich Hammill, camera department supervisor at Adray.

"The picture image must improve," Hammill said. "They're scratching the surface right now. "It reminds me of the original autofocus camera six years ago."

Still, several major photography companies are introducing still video cameras on the market, in the $650-$800 range. Both Cannon and Sony are banking on the idea that convenience and novelty will create a demand for still video cameras, which resemble one-eyed binoculors and show photos on home TV screens.

AND ROUGHLY six years since their introduction, auto-focus cameras are now being accepted by professionals and serious hobbyists.

While some serious hobbyists early on shunned auto-focus cameras, today, "that's all that's selling," Jacobs said.

Some are offered as cheap as $100, while the auto-focus version of the Nikon F-4 retails for about $2,300 and is winning acceptance among professionals.

Susan Small of Woodward Camera in Birmingham said one reason professionals now accept auto-focus cameras is because they're now able to take continuous shots of a moving subject, without having to manually re-focus.

One of their big sellers are autofocus bridge cameras, selling in the $300-$500 range.

"They're filling the gap between the 35mm camera and the point-and-shoot," she said. "They have autofocus, built in zooms and a built in flash."

White water rafting has adventure, exotic sites

AWE is a booking and promotion agency for several rafting companies. Holiday River Expeditions do 75 percent of their trips. You can raft from Alaska to Peru, but most of their trips are in the Colorado River plateau near the Colorado-Utah border, where the Colorado River drains toward Lake Powell.

"You have a lot more water around Michigan than we have," Rick said, "but you need elevation to make it white water. There is a rating system from one through six. One is a lake, six is a waterfall. Most of our trips are two and three, sometimes four, and they are available to both beginners and advanced rafters.

"A FIVE rating would be getting pretty technical, and they would expect you to be experienced and have helmets. We don't do fives."

A typical trip with AWE would be 15 to 25 people of various ages in three rafts, each with an experienced guide, for anywhere from two to 12 days. You would camp at different places along the river each night. It is wilderness camping, so they pack everything in and out for you. A single traveler would be matched with a tent mate.

McMahan said rates are roughly $100 a day, plus your air fare and probably one night's lodging before the trip starts. Costs depend on how much equipment they provide.

Jim Greiner of Wildwater describes the Chatoogee River, which runs between Chattahootchee National Forest in Georgia and the Sumter National Forest in South Carolina, as the "only river in the eastern United States where you can really experience wilderness."

"On a two-day trip you pass only one human spot, and that's the bridge you drove over from Georgia. If you have been in Colorado, you are used to a larger volume of water. Our volume is smaller, but the drops are steeper. Most rafters don't paddle in the west, but everybody paddles on our four- and six-man rafts.

"The Chatooga is a technical river, with a lot of turns, twists. Difficult to navigate."

Wildwater does other rafting trips, especially on the Ocoee River. The Ocoee Rafting Center is 2.5 miles west of Ducktown, Tenn., on US 64 at the edge of Cherokee National Forest. The Chattooga Center is a mile north of Long Creek, S.C., on Academy Road. (That's half an hour south of Clayton in Rabun County, Ga., an interesting mountain town. The Fox Fire books, which recorded mountain crafts, were written there.)

CHECK YOUR library for a back issue of River Runner Magazine, which ran an article entitled "Top 10, America's Favorite Rivers" in May 1987. The Ocoee and Chattooga are both listed.

You can also raft on the New River in West Virginia, but I don't have any names or addresses there. Maybe one of our readers will send us information about it, or any other rafting trip they recommend for beginners.

Some of the other adventure travel organizations are SOBEK, Angel's Camp, Calif. 95222. They do exotic trips all over the world, including rafting in Alaska and China.

Dvorak Kayak and Rafting Expeditions, 17921-B, U.S. Highway 285, Nathrop, Colo. 81236, will send you their brochures. Call them toll free at (800) 824-3795.

Also, Western River Guides Association has a free Outfitter Directory — 7600 E. Arapahoe Rd., Suite 114, Englewood, Colo. 80112. Call (303) 771-0389.

And Adventures Afloat (P.O. Box 542, Grangeville, Idaho 83530, telephone (208) 983-2414) just received permission from the U.S. Forest Service to do one-day rafting trips on the Snake River in Hells Canyon.

There are also two organizations that do adventure trips for women only. Woodswomen (25 West Diamond Lake Rd, Minneapolis, Minn. 55419, telephone (612) 822-3809) does outdoor trips for women of all ages. They had a White Water School this spring for $140 in Wisconsin. They canoe and raft in the west, northwest, Minnesota and Costa Rica.

RAINBOW ADVENTURES (1308 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill. 60201, telephone (312) 864-4570) does adventure trips for women over 30. They have rafted in Utah and Wisconsin this summer and go down Utah's Green River Aug. 6-13 for $750 plus air fare.

After you have tried the American rivers, you can start expanding, maybe to the Kicking Horse River in the Canadian Rockies or overseas in Mexico, Asia, the South Pacific, South America.

Let us know what its like when you have taken your first trip.

If you have a travel question, send it to Iris Sanderson Jones, Travel Editor, Observer Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Yachting — Detroit style

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Rippling waves lapping against the bow, gentle breezes, glistening teakwood and attention to detail — the elements of a memorable gala staged especially for you by Great Events aboard a yacht on the Detroit River.

"We took our parties out of the office and onto the water," said Pat Dupont of Castorri & Company, a Southfield-based film production company that for five consecutive years has staged its annual company party for 150 favored clients aboard a yacht.

"It's an evening just for them, a thank you from us," Dupont said, made all the more special with the unique touch of a floating ballroom.

Dupont normally reserves the Infinity, a 100-foot charter yacht specially outfitted for social events with two complete bars, a sky lounge, an open-air dance floor with room enough for a band and lavishly outfitted restrooms.

In recent years, party themes have featured the 1950s and Motown. On Aug. 11, guests will revel amid Hawaiian decor, complete with a buffet supper based on genuine luau fare.

All in all, it's a classy way to entertain, according to Dupont. Best of all, she no longer spends hours of time in preparation.

"THE MOST UNIQUE thing about this is the incredible attention to detail (by the catering staff), right down to the kind of special sparkling water I want," Dupont said.

In eight years of business, Great Events, a full catering firm capable of service for any size group, has emerged with a reputation for perfect detail, according to catering manager Sheila Brabant, who said each event is tailored to fit.

"We've celebrated 21st birthdays, 50th wedding anniversaries, bar mitzvahs, many weddings, just about anything you can think of that can be celebrated," Brabant said.

Most customers are metropolitan businesses like Castorri.

Yachts may be rented for day or evening affairs, overnight or even longer from Great Events sister company, Great Water Yachts of St. Clair Shores. In addition to the Infinity, the firm also owns and operates the 110-foot Brownies Three. By summer 1990, the 162-foot Brownies Four is expected to be ready for use, Brabant said.

The firm also operates seven additional yachts, less imposing but equally as lavish as Infinity or Brownies. The smaller boats are privately owned, leased to Great Water for rent as floating party halls.

Yacht rentals range from $200 to $1,400 an hour. Catering charges are separate.

All trips originate at the Jefferson Beach Marina in St. Clair Shores, the largest privately owned marina in the country, according to Brabant.

Their "sailing adventure" at an end, guests receive farewell from the yatcht's crew members.

"ARE YOU crazy?" was the thought that crossed the mind of Joan de Spelder of Bloomfield Township when her daughter Renee said she wanted to wed aboard the Infinity, complete with three attendants, dinner for 150 and dancing to a six-piece band.

"The groom's mother was apoplectic at the idea," said the senior de Spelder. "But as things evolved, the idea started sounding better and better.

"For one thing, it limited the number of guests, kept things in proportion."

And, because neither bride nor groom are church goers, it also solved the problem of where to wed, according to de Spelder.

The end result: "Oh God, it was nice. Elegant. Fantastic. Think of Jackie and Ari and then scale it down a bit."

The wedding was hosted in the main salon on the middle deck. Afterwards, guests moved to the top deck for a champagne toast while busy caterers prepared the salon for hors d'oeuvres, a lavish supper and cutting of the traditional wedding cake.

"The food service was out of this world," de Spelder said, accomplished with "virtually no commotion." A video of the wedding carefully records the sumptuous meal.

Following the ceremony, the yacht set sail on the Detroit River, wished well by strangers ashore who waved greetings to the festive wedding party.

Total cost? Approximately $12,000 and well worth it, according to the mother of the bride.

For more information or costs on catering an affair aboard a yacht, call 573-8530.

Q. I have two questions: Why did you start your "Less is Better" campaign against excessive bulk mail, when intrusive telephone sales calls are so much more irritating? Also, what can be done about telephone hustlers?

A. Several people have asked me the same questions. I became interested in the bulk mail problem in the early '80s when I began teaching my time management and organizing seminars. Since the beginning, every time I mention mail handling — ecspecially junk mail — the feedback from my audinieces is loud and clear: They groan, mumble, roll their eyes — anything to convey they consider junk mail a royal pain in the neck. Although I teach 12 to 15 hours of material, this is the only time within my seminars that I receive such a strong reaction. Despite the positive effects touted by advertisers, my audiences have confirmed my belief that bulk mail is a very real irritant to many, many people.

Yes, I too consider invasive telephone marketing calls an even greater irritant. I chose not to address that issue for two reasons: 1) I wanted to focus on one specific problem without diluting it into two entirely different areas. (That is also why I did not address radio, TV or newspaper advertising, as a few others have questioned.) 2) Other people are working on the telemarketing problem. For instance, the National Asssociation of Attorneys General, along with the telephone companies, are supporting the Federal Trade Commission to control these calls.

According to the FTC, consumers lose $1 billion annually from deceptive peddling of goods and services over the phone. Besides just hanging up, about the only thing you can do with unwanted calls is to say, "Sorry, I'm not interested. Please remove my name from your calling list." Here are some tips to protect yourself against fraudulent calls:

1. Ask the caller's name along with the name, address and telephone number of the firm calling. 2. Be extremely cautious about giving you credit card number over the phone. 3. If you want more information, ask to have it mailed to you. If the caller resists or insists on immediate action, be suspicious. 4. Be wary of offers for free merchandise or prizes. Handling fees may be higher than the value of the stuff. 5. Ask for names and numbers of satisfied customers in your area or check with your state or local consumer protection office if you have doubts.

Q. A friend of mine was recently attacked in a fast food store and was wondering whether or not he can sue the owner of the establishment. I'm wondering if you could give me any advice concering the law in this subject.

A. Michigan courts have recently confirmed the proposition that the owner of a commercial establishment is not an insurer of the safety of the occupants of the establishment, particularly with respect to criminal acts or conduct of patrons. Obviously, the owner of a commercial establishment has some reasonable duty to maintain safe premises in regard to those things which are freely reasonable, including keeping the floors free from debris, etc. On the other hand, the owner of a commercial establishment is not liable, in general, for an armed robbery or an assault perpetuated on a patron, unless the owner had notice of the fact that this would likely occur.

Q. The wife of my next door neighbor insists upon hanging her undergarments outside of her condominium unit overnight. I think she tends to be an exhibitionist, and her husband does not seem to care. The condo association board is not willing to get involved being comprised of five men. What can I do about the situation?

A. There is generally a prohibition on the hanging or the drying of personal property and/or clothes on the common elements in most condo documents. And if that provision is not contained in your documents, you should request the board of director's to seek an amendment of your documents and/or promulgate the rules and regulations concerning the same. To the extent that your board is unwilling to take any action, you may wish to write a letter to your neighbor requesting her to keep her personal attire to herself, and that you believe that it diminishes the quality of the condominium. I would not necessarily recommend, however, that you avail yourself of self-help.

Earl Aronson

THE NATION'S huge corn surplus could disappear as research uncovers new uses for cornstarch, including products to cut farming costs, fight water pollution and protect against crop pests.

Cornstarch, which can be found on supermarket shelves, is often used in the kitchen as a thickener for gravies and pie fillings. But, says a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist, surplus corn could be used to make dozens of controlled — release products, ranging from almond flavoring to zinc fertilizer.

Chemist Robert E. Wing and colleagues have applied for a patent on their new process for encapsulating liquids or solids in a cornstarch matrix for slow release.

"If a pesticide is encapsulated in starch, farmers or gardeners could apply less of the pest-killing chemical than if they used a spray or powder," Wing relates. "The starch-based granules also would be safer to handle than a concentrate that has to be diluted before being applied.

"THE NUMBER OF products that could be starch-encapsulated is limited mainly by one's imagination. Besides pesticides, they might include insect lures, plant growth regulators, fertilizers, medicines, and even food ingredients such as flavorings, colorings and vitamins.

Wing says that a market for a few hundred million pounds of cornstarch may develop from the new process and from earlier ideas related mostly to encapsulating pesticides.

The corn surplus is estimated at 137 million tons, not counting the 1987 crop. About 3,600 pounds of corn are used to make a ton of cornstarch, says William M. Doane of USDA's Research Center in Peoria, Ill.

Wing says that an encapsulated pesticide could mean less pollution of ground water, lakes and streams because it would be less subject to being washed into streams or leached deep into the ground by rain than are pesticides sold as liquid or solid concentrations.

According to Doane, starch—based processes from USDA research will lead also to biodegradable plastic mulches and soil stabilizers to stop erosion.

"By inventing new processes for starch — a commodity that sells for about 10 cents per pound — we're endeavoring to add value to it and perhaps improve farming efficiency," he says.

Doane adds that a 1974 invention, "super slurper," a starch derivative that absorbs 1,400 times its weight in moisture, is still finding new uses.

"AS A COATING FOR seeds, super slurper absorbs water and increases the number of seeds that germinate. That helps farmers and gardeners," he says.

Super slurper is currently used in body powder, diapers, sanitary napkins, electrical conductors in batteries, and medical and recreational cold packs. It is also used in filters for removing moisture from industrial fuel tanks and in a slurry to prevent roots of small transplanted trees from drying.

Chemists in Doane's Plant Polymer Research group are developing starch-based soil stabilizers to prevent the erosion of topsoil by wind and water. He says the stabilizers bind sand, silt and clay into larger granules that improve soil's ability to resist erosion and absorb rainwater.

Doane expects that highway departments and construction contractors will use the new starch-based soil stabilizers before they become commonplace on farms. They can speed the establishment of soil-hugging grasses.

(Earl Aronson is the Associated Press garden writer.)

By Andy Lang

Q. I plan to finish my attic soon. I intended to use gypsum board for the walls, since I had heard it was cheaper than most other wall materials. I now have been told I should use plasterboard instead. Is that information correct?

A. There may have been a slight difference in plasterboard and gypsum board many years ago, but the terms have meant the same thing for a long time. If you have never used gypsum board in the past — and your query indicates this is so — be sure to have your dealer supply you with a brochure on how to handle the material.

Q. We have a large stain on our living room floor, which is made of oak. We don't know how it got there, but we have tried all of the usual methods without being able to remove it. Is there some drastic treatment that might work with an especially difficult stain?

A. You probably will have to use wood bleach. Use it very carefully to avoid discloring the wood that is not stained. Wear rubber gloves when applying the bleach with a damp cloth. Let the bleach stand for a few minutes, then wipe with a damp cloth which has no bleach on it. You will have to refinish the area to blend in with the other surface. Sometimes this means wiping on a finish more than once until you get a reasonably good match.

Had it up to "here" with the real estate market?

Today's real estate market can be very frustrating, especially if you're selling your home. We've all heard the bad news about interest rates and the scarcity of qualified buyers. But don't give up! There are many different ways to find qualified buyers, and many different types of financing. Observer & Eccentric area Realtors are selling homes by using creative financing methods you may never even have heard of. They're trained professionals, and they can find the home-buyer you're looking for.

The Green Hill difference:

Do you come home to an apartment or a 75-acre estate?

Most apartment living measures 600+ sq. ft. Ours measures over 3,000,000 sq. ft. Green Hill residents enjoy a gorgeous 75-acre estate setting of park and woodland, peace and tranquility. You're right next door to the I-275 corridor, Michigan's multi-billion dollar explosive growth area and just minutes away from I-96, a direct route to downtown Detroit. See our 1- and 2-bedroom luxury apartments, terrace residences and country townhouses on 9 Mile, 1½ miles west of Farmington Road in Farmington Hills.

Retail

We are looking for Great Employees And We Want You To Be One Of Them!
Leewards

Leewards, the country's largest chain of craft stores, is opening its first store in Westland soon.

The store will be stocked full of kits, components and supplies to delight every crafter in Westland. From stitchery to yarns, floral to frames, art supplies to latch hook, we've got it all.

Just as important as the merchandise is the service. Our stores are full-service stores, a phrase not heard very often any more. Our employees are nice, friendly people who really enjoy helping customers. They are always eager to show a customer where something is in the store, or answer a question about a craft project, or tell a customer what's new this month.

Does This Sound Like You?

We're looking for:

- ASSISTANT MANAGERS
- SALES ASSOCIATES
- DEPT. MANAGERS
- CRAFT CLASS INSTRUCTORS
- STORE SECRETARY
- FLORAL ARRANGERS
- CUSTOM FRAMERS
- CASHIERS

Assistant Manager qualifications are: prior experience as Store Manager, Assistant Manager or Group Manager in a high volume operation that deals with a large number of sku's. A college degree, availability for relocation and hardlines experience preferred.

Our Sales/Cashiering positions require enthusiastic individuals who have craft knowledge, maturity and a strong customer-service orientation. Prior retail experience is desirable.

For the Department Manager, Store Secretary, Floral Arranging and Custom Framing positions, we seek individuals with related experience and excellent selling skills.

We are also interested in individuals who can teach and demonstrate crafts to our customers.

We offer an excellent compensation package. Applications will be distributed and interviews conducted on Tuesday & Wednesday, Aug. 8th & 9th between 10am-6pm at West Ridge Shopping Center, 35667 Warren Rd. (next to Maternity Limited), Westland.

Join Macy's exciting new specialty store... Aeropostale

Explore a unique Specialty Store environment, opening soon at the Twelve Oaks Mall. Aeropostale. An exclusive collection of men's and women's active sportswear inspired by the spirit of French aviation's early pioneers.

As a FULL OR PART TIME SALES ASSOCIATE, you'll be dealing with a very special clientele, people like you who share your sense of adventure in specialty clothing. Helping customers make selections, coordinate outfits and develop their own style.

But there's even more. You'll be part of a team, creating displays, tracking merchandise movement and contributing to the welcoming tradition that turns customers into loyal friends who keep coming back for more.

Your eye for a distinctive fashion look and genuine interest in people will further our success...and yours. We know we expect a lot, but because we are part of the Macy's organization, we offer a lot:

- excellent starting salary
- flexible full & part time schedules
- attractive benefits
- generous merchandise discount
- training
- paid holidays & vacations
- responsibility that can grow with our expansion.

WE WILL BE HOLDING OPEN INTERVIEWS MONDAY & TUESDAY, AUGUST 7 & 8, 11AM-8PM, IN FRONT OF THE STORE LOCATION ON THE UPPER LEVEL OF THE TWELVE OAKS MALL. For more information, or if unable to attend, call the Macy's Specialty Store Fantasies in the Somerset Mall, (313)649-2669. We are an equal opportunity employer.

PRAYER to the Holy Spirit. Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who showed me the way to reach my ideal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Say for 3 consecutive days without mentioning your petition and your prayer will be answered. Promise to publish this prayer. AG

ST. JUDE NOVENA
May the Sacred Heart Of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved & preserved throughout the world, now & forever. Sacred Heart Of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. Say this prayer nine times a day, by the eighth day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised. My prayers have been answered.
