Canton trustee wants pay raises scrapped

By Keith Postler
staff writer

A proposal to scrap pay raises for Supervisor Tom Yack and two other township officials was unveiled last week by Trustee Robert Shefferly.

The pay raises are slated to go into effect Nov. 20. The increase would increase Yack's annual salary from $43,200 to $51,000. The other increases would hike the salaries of Treasurer Jerry Brown and Clerk Loren Bennett from $39,600 to $42,200.

Shefferly said that instead of granting the raises, the township board should establish a compensation commission to set salaries. He said the township charter allows for such a commission.

Also, he proposed that the compensation commission review current salaries for elected employees and present a recommendation or compensation by Oct. 20 that would be effective Nov. 20.

The proposals would need board approval before they could be put into effect.

Salaries for elected officials are tied to those of department heads, but Shefferly said that linking the two is like "comparing apples and oranges."

"Department heads are executives that are experts in their fields. They have earned degrees or have long-term experience — or both — that give them the expertise that elected officials must rely on for short and long-term decisions," he said. "The department heads are career people who will probably be in the township

Attendance policy returns

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Last year's budget crunch did away with the high school attendance offices — and as absences at Plymouth Canton and Salem increased, grades went down. Average weekly absences climbed from 6 percent in September to 11 percent in June. The percentage of students receiving D's and E's climbed from 14 percent to 24 percent, according to Committee Researching Educational Workings, a citizen study group.

School officials are hopeful that reinstitution of an attendance policy, conditionally approved at a school board meeting last week, will improve the situation. Voter approval of two millage proposals in June provided funding to re-establish a policy.

Beginning this fall, the attendance offices will re-open. Some of the new rules:

- Parents have until 2 p.m. Friday, during the week of an absence, to call the attendance office.

- The office will inform teachers once a week as to the number of excused and unexcused absences from their classes.

- There will be a cap on a total of 10 absences, with no separate cap for unexcused absences. After 10 absences, students will lose credit.

- Parents will be called after eight absences, at which point students will be placed "on contract."

- Students exceeding the number of allotted absences will be assigned to audit the class, not removed from class.

First grade curriculum tailored to suit young minds

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

First graders and their teachers will be swapping workbooks and worksheets for hands-on, go-at-your-own-pace learning this fall.

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education voted at last week's meeting to extend the "developmental" program from kindergarten to first grade, but not without a few reservations.

Shirley Spaniel, executive director of elementary education, said research shows children learn more and develop higher self-esteem when the curriculum is tailored to them.

"Current research is saying that kids learn best when education is activity-based, rather than curriculum-based. Workbooks have made teachers lose confidence in what they know."

"This is placing responsibility back with teachers, entrusting them to see how children learn rather than using materials printed in New Jersey or wherever they're printed," Spaniel said.

"First or second grade is a better year to have to repeat or use as a growth year than kindergarten," she added.

Trustee Jeanette Wines said, "I think it's a terrific approach, but how does a second grade teacher cope with children who are at 30 different stages of development?"

"We hope they can adjust just like our kindergarten teachers did," said Spaniel.

Added Smith Principal Claudia Kulnis, part of the developmental curriculum team, "Second grade teachers have had that range to deal with anyway. We're all different people, with different birthdays and IQs and different stages of development."

Trustee Roland Thomas fears developmental first grade may fall prey to the same traps "new math" did.

"We have to find a measurable way to determine the success of the program," said Thomas.

"I don't know how we do it, but if we don't, like new math, we won't know how we're doing. We have to build in some accountability. That's up to you — to find a mechanism."

"I want to assure you we're looking at that; we really are," said Spaniel. "We want children to be able to read. That's what we're all about in first grade."

"We are working on an accountability system for teachers in that we are developing a literacy file," said

Kulnis. "Teachers are going to be automatically more accountable making all these narrative statements about children. They truly will be more involved in children's development because they will be looking at that child holistically."

"In that assessment package, we will use real examples of children's writing. In that way, an educator and parent can sit down together and see the growth. I think parents will

Woman to face homicide charges

Dorothy L. King, 58, of Belleville, will be arraigned Sept. 11 in Records Court on two counts of negligent homicide in the April 13 traffic deaths of a Canton couple.

Donald and Nancy Harms of Canton died of injuries they suffered when the car they were driving east on Cherry Hill at Charterhouse was struck head-on by King's car, which was travelling west on Cherry Hill King, whose car crossed the center line, told police she was momentarily blinded by the sun.

District Court Judge John E. MacDonald ruled last week that there was enough evidence to bind King over to Records Court for arraignment. She was released on a $5,000 personal bond.

King's car also struck a car driven by Garden City resident James D. Gentry Jr., 19, who was driving east on Cherry Hill behind the Harms' vehicle.

Developer to tee off on golf course condos

One developer got good news, the other bad, from the Plymouth Township board last week.

Marcello and Silvio Scappaticci's request to rezone 461 acres in the southwest corner of the township from agricultural to residential so they can build luxury homes, condominiums and a private golf course was granted.

Aaron Katzman's bid for a cluster housing option to construct 14 condominiums on 3.3 acres at I-127 and Terry was denied.

The Scappaticci's project, in an area bounded by Powell, Ridge, Ann Arbor Road, Joy and Napier, would be the largest single development ever in the township in terms of land area, said James Anulewicz, planning director.

The development of 461 housing units — detached homes and condos — and the golf course could take up to five years to complete, said Marcello Scappaticci.

HE ANTICIPATES spending upwards of $18 million just to buy the land, put in utilities and build the golf course and clubhouse. That doesn't include a single housing unit.

spring, the brothers need site plan approval from the planning commission and residential unit development and plat approval from the township board.

Scappaticci estimated that home models will be available sometime next summer and that it will be at least two years before the golf course is ready for play.

The houses and condos, projected at 3,500 square feet, would sell for between $375,000 and $600,000, Scappaticci said.

"This area here is what they (buyers) are looking for now," he said. "They're people with money."

THE TOWNSHIP board went along with the recommendation of its planning commission that 14 condo units on just over three acres of land would be too many and not compatible with homes in the area in denying Katzman's request for a cluster housing option.

The planning commission indicated that it would consider 10 units during hearings, said trustee Smith Horton.

Katzman's lawyer, Michael Pollard, said that 14 units were necessary to make the project workable from an economic standpoint. Estimated market price of the condos was $105,000-125,000.

Pollard argued that the parcel,

Schools crack down on student absences

Following the audit period, students may be awarded credit at the discretion of the teacher.

Students continually absent from class will be subject to in-school suspension, out-of-school suspension and expulsion.

TRUSTEES QUESTIONED

Why the leeway of almost a week for parents to phone in absences? We were getting daily calls," said Trustee Jeanette Wines. "I think this is lax. I can see someone forgetting to call. I'm not so sure I agree with the generous attitude you're taking."

"With two clerical staff, we can't scan on a daily basis. My hope is that with two staff people, the magnitude of calls may be spaced out through the week to handle the volume of calls," said Rita Ringer, attendance supervisor.

"To take a tougher approach would take more money," said Trustee David Arley.

"The message to the parents is, 'Please do call each day, or at least once each week to let us know what's going on,'" said Mike Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction.

"All factors were taken into consideration," said Ringer. "We felt the thrust of the efforts of people in our clerical office, in addition to contacting parents, should be to develop a data base and work with area coordinators. While I do feel prompt notification ought to be a goal, this might spread out resources in the best way."

TRUSTEE ROLAND THOMAS said there's not an onus of responsibility on either party. "I'm troubled by the lack of specificity in this policy. It's too general in nature. I think we need to go through this with a fine tooth comb. I realize time is running out on these folks. It's a dilemma."

A motion to adopt the policy failed, 3-3 after the initial vote. Trustee E. J. McClendon was absent.

The board then moved that the board adopt the policy, and that we receive updates as appropriate throughout the school year.

The resolution passed, 6-0. Homes said administration will offer feedback and advise you as to the policy's success and how it's working.

JOAN CLAEYS chaired the committee that studied discipline in Plymouth-Canton schools, comparing policies to those in Novi, Northville, Walled Lake, Livonia, Wayne-Westland and Farmington schools.

"The districts we looked at all had attendance officers and limits that were quite strict, something we found to be a major strength," said Claeys.

Claeys, who says Plymouth-Canton's proposal "looks good on paper," thinks one of its pluses is the redemption clause.

A real advantage to the new procedure is the redemption clause. If before a student was removed from the class at whatever our cap was, now the student will remain in the class with failing grade, but if he participates and does the assignments — which is what is expected — the teacher may, by end of semester, give him a passing grade. In Livonia, that isn't an option.

Parents' weekly versus daily phone call requirement doesn't bother Claeys.

"I think it is very important we have phone call within the week of the absence. We're just going to feed information into the computer one day a week, anyway."

It's not uncommon, with two working parents, for a parent not to be able to call from the workplace, said Claeys.

"In the past, parents simply did not make call within the time lines, so absences would not be excused. This is a little more realistic."

Canton trustee wants to reconsider pay raises hail long after most current elected officials have left.

He also said they should be judged on their accomplishments, experience, education and time on the job — not those of others.

Shetterly outlined some criteria that he thinks the salaries of full-time elected officials should be based on findings based on Canton's SEV, the salaries of other elected officials in southeastern Michigan, longevity on the job, accomplishments, and the stage of their community's development.

Yack and Bennett were unavailable for comment.

Brown called the current pay raise system equitable. "I think it's fair," he said. "It's as fair as anything we've had."

"I'm not sure where Bob is coming from. It's not clear what he has in mind. This is a tough one when public officials have to talk about their own salary," Brown said.

He also said that he believes his position is comparable to those of department heads in the township, but salaries are generally lower than private sector jobs with similar responsibilities.

Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter said there is "no perfect way" for determining salaries and pay increases for elected officials.

"I happen to believe their salaries should be tied to something, but I don't know what. Frankly, I'm not sure I agree with Bob's proposal to set up a compensation commission. I think the salaries of the supervisor, clerk and treasurer should be tied to something. I'm not opposed to the idea of establishing a compensation commission but that it can be more political, that the current practices he added. "It's not perfect. Personally it's not fun to sit up front and set your salary. A commission is a coward's way out. It means the board doesn't want to face the issues."

He also said that he believes his position is comparable to those of department heads in the township, but salaries are generally lower than private sector jobs with similar responsibilities.

Trustee Henry Whalen agreed with Shetterly's proposal. He said, "I'm all for it. I think we ought to have an elected compensation commission. There's a danger in establishing a commission of political hacks because they may only answer to whoever appoints them. Without the commission, the full-time elected officials can pretty much name their own salary. I'm concerned that these raises would get out of hand unless we have a compensation commission."

I have no objections to raises for all of our elected officials but I believe they should be presented on their own merit," Shetterly said. "If the compensation commission is approved and after a study is conducted, the commission determines raises are in order, I would vote for them. If the study indicated the increases were deserved."

which fronts on I-275 is appropriate for cluster housing because of its unusual triangular shape, on-site vegetation and its proximity to the freeway.

Township ordinance allows for a maximum of 16 units on the 3-acre site with a cluster option.

Katzman could still build up to eight houses in the site without getting a cluster option. Another project is projected.

Gentry, unable to stop in time, collided with the passenger side of the Harms' car. He wasn't seriously injured.

King and Gentry were wearing seat belts, however, Donald and Nancy Harms were not.

Nancy Harms, 49, died at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne, while Donald Harms, 33, died at Westland Medical Center.

At the preliminary hearing, Wayne County Medical Examiner Ljubisa Dragovic testified that the couple died from injuries they suffered in the head-on collision.

The secondary impact of Gentry's car was insignificant and didn't contribute to the Harms' death, Dragovic said.

If convicted, King could face up to two years in prison, MacDonald said.

Homeowners win beautiful yard awards

Thirty-five Canton homeowners were chosen as recipients for this year's Home Landscape Awards, sponsored by the Canton Beautification Committee.

The awards will be presented 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Canton Township Hall by Thomas Yack, township supervisor.

Tim Jeffries, who won an award for August with his wife Karen, said of the award "I think it's really neat. We were one of 36 homes chosen out of 60,000 and we're very happy about it. I didn't think our yard was that spectacular, but it must be. We work on it a little bit each year."

Said July co-winner winner Ginny Slater, "I'm excited about it, it's a real honor to be recognized for doing work on your yard. We work hard, and it's always nice to be honored with an award."

Lynn Clark, a June co-winner with husband Denis, added, "I think it's really nice. It's nice that our efforts were noticed for all the work we've put in."

For July: Chester Saczyk, Chuck Paszkowski, Susan Thomas, William Covington, Linda Van Lente, Gary Kruecher, Joyce Kapp, Jerry Maslak, Jay Brandt, Clara Jimmerson, John La Grow and Joe and Rose Bianchi.

For August: John and Jill Leeper, Carol McGaw, Robert and Julie Walker, Loretta and Larry Barczewski, Andy and Mary Ann Pilszak, William McWhirter, Darwin Foxworthy, James and Sheryl Downs, Denis and Lynn Clark, Geromino Martinez and Homer and Sharon Whitt.

just be amazed at the growth that children make.

"We're changing report cards to reflect the curriculum," Kulnis said. "We never use letter grades for first grade, anyway."

Students would benefit greatly if there were more parent-teacher contact in kindergarten and first grade, Kulnis added.

Kulnis: "We're looking at what students can do, the positives, and building on them."

"This is kind of like a come-again-to party with experiences from kindergarten, the teacher will match the curriculum to you and make concessions."

"We don't chastise, we celebrate. Perhaps in the area of reading, the child must first speak the story. Then they write it, then they read it."

"We really celebrate the steps through that process, instead of expecting all children to come to school the first day and write all those letters. We celebrate their accomplishments at their level and make them feel good about it," said Kulnis, who'd like to see the program continued through fifth grade.

"It's wonderful. Self-esteem is lifted and children are more excited to do more and learn more."

Contaminated landfill will continue operating

A landfill cited by the DNR for being contaminated will be allowed to continue operating and will be brought up to DNR's standards.

The landfill, Arbor Hills West Sanitary Landfill in Salem Township, has received a license from the state Department of Natural Resources to expand the dump, but won't do it until January 1990. It is operated by Browning Ferris Industries.

The landfill at Six Mile and Napier Roads is nearly out of space. It accepts refuse from 400 customers a day, including Plymouth and Canton townships.

The west site has been ready to operate since January, but differences of opinion between the landfill operator and the DNR held up licensing until last week.

The DNR had denied granting the landfill an operator's license because the site is on a DNR list of contaminated landfills. Liquid containing low levels of benzene and vinylidene chloride have seeped into ground water at the site, according to the DNR. Benzene is a known carcinogen. Vinylidene chloride has been found to cause cancer in some animals.

The DNR granted BFI a license to open the west site after the landfill agreed to clean up the contamination. Cleaning the site will involve removing contaminated dirt and water and regrading the area, said Lonnie Lee, of the DNR. The work could take two years.

Liquid containing low levels of benzene and vinylidene chloride have seeped into ground water at the site, according to the DNR.

The nearly filled east side of the landfill will continue to operate, said Mike Stallard, Arbor Hills district manager. That portion of the landfill is expected to be filled in October.

The DNR will allow the dump to overflow the east site until the west portion is open. Once the west site opens next year, the landfill will be required to transfer excess waste from the east landfill to the new site, said Lee.

The delay in opening the east site will not cause significant problems because Arbor Hills West can be over filled.

Stallard said Arbor Hills decided to add extra layers of clay and a synthetic liner to the landfill to ensure environmental quality and prevent contamination in the future.

The DNR was not involved in that decision, he said.

"It was absolutely on BFI's behalf. We're looking at long term environmental quality. It's our corporation's intent to ensure the integrity of the existing landfill," he said. "This was not required by the state, it is well above DNR standards. This isn't a demand by the DNR, but it would be required in the future."

The landfill has taken out a $2.5 million insurance policy with the state that will allow the DNR to remove excess waste from the west site if the firm fails to do so, Lee said.

Landfill operators built an underground wall that extends for nearly a mile around three sides of the landfill, and will add a clay dike to the wall that will prevent more water from getting into the contaminated area.

Arbor Hills East Sanitary landfill is licensed to operate until January, 1990. The west site is licensed to operate until August, 1991.

Heritage Bank was evacuated during police search for bomb

The manager of Canton's Heritage Bank on Cherry Hill called township police Wednesday to report a man who said a bomb was planted in the bank.

The bank was evacuated while police searched for the alleged bomb, but none was found.

The man, apparently a white male with a deep voice, is suspected of making a similar call to the bank on July 23, the manager said.

GLIDER MISSING: A 50-year-old Canton woman told police Wednesday that a glider-type swing had been stolen from her residence in the 42000 block of Redfern between Aug. 1 and 3 and was still missing.

The swing, taken without permission, is valued at $500, she told police.

DETECTOR VANISHES: Wednesday was not a good day for a 25-year-old Canton man who told police that an unknown person smashed the driver side window of his 1989 Mercury and stole a radar detector worth $150.

crime watch

The man discovered the theft Wednesday morning. When police arrived at his home in the 46000 block of Maidstone, they found the driver's window smashed and a red brick on the passenger side floor.

The damage to the window was about $100, police said.

ORNAMENT STOLEN: An argument over an ex-girlfriend apparently led to the theft of a car's hood ornament and damage to a side ornament, Canton Police said last week.

A 17-year-old Belleville youth, employed at a store on Michigan Avenue, told police another teen came into the store Wednesday and argued with him about an ex-girlfriend. The other teen then left the store.

The Belleville youth told police that when he went to his car, he discovered the hood ornament missing and a side ornament valued at $40 damaged. The hood ornament cost about $13, police said. Apparently, the teen had threatened to take the ornaments the week before.

A treat so sweet is corn

Mention summertime cooking and immediately, you conjure up thoughts about corn. Plump, juicy sweet corn, dripping with butter. Whether it be steamed, boiled or grilled, you just can't enjoy summer without corn.

Corn is indigenous to America. When it comes to culinary heritage, corn belongs right up there next to Old Glory. During the 13th century in the southwestern United States and in Mexico, corn or maize meant life itself, and the cultivation of corn was an act of worship. From birth through death, the economic, social and religious activities of the Hopi Indians of Arizona were bound to the growing of corn. No child could be born with security and survive the first 20 hazardous days of life without corn. For this reason, a special ear of corn was dedicated to each newborn baby as its "corn mother."

No one in Europe knew about corn until Columbus sailed to America in 1492. On Nov. 5, 1492, two Spaniards whom Columbus dispatched to explore the interior of Cuba returned with a report of "a sort of grain called maize, which is very well tasted when boiled, roasted, or made into a porridge."

Later explorers to the New World found corn being grown by the Indians in all parts of America, from Canada to Chile. The Indians grew all the main types of corn that are raised today. They prized corn with colorful kernels — red, blue, pink and black or with bands, stripes or spots. The kernels ranged in size from as small as a grain of wheat to as large as a quarter.

THE INDIANS frequently used corn patterns to decorate pottery, sculpture and other works of art.

The colonists used corn as money. With it, they paid their rent, taxes and debts. They even traded corn for marriage licenses. In many settlements, corn kept people from starving in difficult times.

Although corn is grown throughout the United States, the greatest production is an area of the Midwest called the corn belt, consisting of the seven states of Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Ohio. This year, almost five billion bushels will be grown in this area alone.

If this sounds like more corn than one could handle, figure that of the 94 assorted supermarket items that go into most grocery carts, more than a quarter contain one or more ingredients from the corn processing industry. Not to mention the corn-derived feed ingredients that are so important to our animal economy. Add to that the fact that many industrial products ranging from cast metals to automobile tires depend on the use of specially designed cornstarches.

The Janes Gang alone is a frequent user of corn and its products. A week doesn't slide by without utilizing cornmeal, canned or frozen corn, corn syrup, corn flakes, cornstarch or corn oil in our culinary regime.

In addition, corn is used as the major fermenting ingredient when processing whiskey.

With summer winding down and corn prices dwindling as local markets reap locally grown products, you will be seeing corn soon at the typical dollar-per-dozen price. It would behoove the price-watching cook to take advantage of this pricing boom and to put some up, whether it be canned or frozen, to enjoy throughout the coming winter months.

Don't forget to use the husks and cobs in the compost heaps.

Sizzling side dishes for meals from grill

By Larry Janes
special writer

ALL TOGETHER now, "Summertime — and the livin' is easy. Summertime, and the grillin' is fun!"

If you can't remember that one, how about "Roll out those, lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer. Those days of soda and pretzels and beer."

Who in their right mind would enjoy spending a humid summer afternoon or evening slaving over a hot stove, cooking entrees and vegetables? Especially when the grill is hot and the coals are just beginning to turn from an amber-colored red to a molten white.

If the thought of cooking hot dogs, burgers, fish or whatever on the grill for dinner seem like a cooling alternative, why not toss on a few of summer's great bounty of vegetables and really keep the kitchen cool. It's not as difficult as you might think, and the flavors imparted into grilled vegetables can turn a plain old zucchini into a gourmet vegetable delight. Or, for that matter, corn, onions, peppers, eggplant or potatoes.

COOKING VEGETABLES on the grill requires the backyard barbecue enthusiast to have on hand an ample supply of cool water.

Period. The garden hose will do nicely, as would a sprinkler for those times when the beads of a good summer sweat roll down the back and begin saturating a T-shirt. A clean spray bottle filled with H₂O, or maybe a blend of your favorite vinegar and oil combination, will only increase the amount of raves received by those partaking of the meal.

In order to garner raves, simple kitchen logic must prevail. If those wily zucchinis have grown to gargantuan lengths, rule numero uno requires the backyard chef to slice or cube said vegetables into the same size and thickness. This will keep little Bobby's vegetables just as crisp and thoroughly cooked as little Annie's.

After a short soaking to help keep them moist over the intense heat, you can add vegetables directly on the grids or, if steaming is more in your line, a simple wrap in foil will suffice.

One of the Janes Gang summer vegetable favorites is baked onions, which are first peeled, then dotted with butter and sprinkled with a twist of fresh ground pepper. They are then wrapped in foil and added to the grill, about 25 minutes before the entree is served.

Smaller yellow cooking onions work best, especially for such a short cooking time. Larger onions (especially Vidalias) can be done the same way but for a longer cooking period. How can you tell when the vegetables are done? Simply pierce them with a long-handled barbecue fork, and when they are tender and the fork inserts and pulls out easily, dinner is served.

IF YOU ARE planning on grilling smaller or cubed vegetables, skewer them first, on just about any kind of bamboo or metal skewer. To keep veggies from sliding off the skewer while grilling, yours truly utilizes two skewers set side by side like railroad ties.

When the vegetables are impaled, even the most slippery mushrooms will stay intact during the grilling process. You can try this with just about any cubed vegetable, but experience has shown that mushrooms, peapods, zucchini and eggplant slices works best.

For added-dimensional flavors, baste with a wide assortment of herb butters or margarines. If you're trying to keep on the slim side, a generous splash of wine, lemon juice, broth or bouillon can suffice.

If the thought of cooking vegetables on the barbecue has piqued your interest, you also can soak assorted vegetables in a marinade before grilling. Again, the old standby vinaigrette can be used, but for an intense flavor that will cook through a simple blend of olive oil, sesame oil and a generous splash of lemon juice works nicely.

Never underestimate what the flavor of a few fresh herbs does to an outdoor vegetable-grilling session. Wrapping zucchini in a large sprig of fresh basil or a sliver of dill can do wonders for the ordinary. Contrary to popular belief, adding fresh herbs to the hot coals does

Healthy appetites at Italian Cucina

Tim Coyne loves healthy food — and it shows in the entrees at the Italian Cucina (kitchen) restaurant.

There's no microwave in the kitchen. No deep-fried foods. No heavy sauces. Only olive oil for sauteing and salad dressings.

"I'm concerned about good, clean eating," says the graduate of Schoolcraft College's culinary arts program who has worked in several area restaurants.

In December, he and his wife, Libby Eaton, opened their Italian kitchen in a modern, new building on Ann Arbor Trail, just east of I-275, in Plymouth Township. It has been serving healthy foods ever since.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Tim Coyne, executive chef and part owner of Italian Cucina in Plymouth Township, shows salad with radicchio, calamari, artichokes and pasta (left) and chicken stir fry with pea pods and wontons

LIKE THE chargrilled salmon ($13.50) covered with toasted almonds and raspberries, one of the special seafoods offered recently. The fruit was a refreshing alternative to sauces, and it added an interesting, sweet flavor to the salmon. It was served with delicious tortellini with a light coating of tomato sauce and a mixture of crisp, lightly cooked pea pods and zucchini.

Everything is prepared on site, from the pastas and breads, to the sauces, sausages and desserts. The breadsticks, which are more like rectangles of deliciously fresh bread, are reason enough to stop in. The pastas are reason to keep returning. We found the pasta fresh and cooked to perfection, the sauce delicate and light. The baked pasta shells ($9.25) stuffed with ricotta and mozzarella cheese were delicious.

The veal scallopini, sauteed with wild forest mushrooms and artichoke hearts, sounded wonderful. We expected slivers of veal and a touch of the Marsala wine sauce. Instead, the veal was a thicker cut, a little tough and smothered in sauce. The heavy hand with the sauce left the veggies and redskins tasting like wine too. At $14.95, this was the most expensive item on the menu — and disappointing.

All the main entrees come with a great house salad, made of various greens, olives, peppers, onions, mushrooms and sprouts, lightly-coated with a good Italian dressing. You could easily make a meal of the award-winning minestrone soup, a house salad and the breadsticks.

The desserts are good, but not as special as the breadsticks and pasta. The carrot cake was tasty but lacking in texture. The chocolate flan was very good and topped with blueberries and raspberries that almost melted in your mouth.

IF FAMILIES and Sunday dinners are synonymous to you — or even if they aren't — try the seven-course family-style dinner. That's all that is offered Sundays, but the entrees vary enough each week to keep you coming. You can count on delicious bread, salad, a chicken entree, a beef or pork entree, potatoes and vegetables. Cost: $9.95 for adults and $4.95 for children age 10 or younger.

The restaurant is large — it presently seats 200 in two rooms, though one room will become a small cafe in September, where guests can go after their main meal for coffee, dessert, after-dinner drinks and a little piano music. The main dining room is sectioned off by lattice-covered planters, making the room feel smaller despite its cathedral ceilings.

Details: The Italian Cucina, 39500 Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, 454-1444.

Hours: Lunch, Tuesday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Dinner, Tuesday-Thursday, 4-10 p.m.; Friday-Saturday, 4-11 p.m.; Sunday noon to 8 p.m. Carryout available.

Prices: Lunch, $4.25-$8.95; Dinner, $6.25-$14.25.

Value: Very good, particularly for pasta dishes.

Veggie sides from the grill little, if anything, to impart flavor. The herbs will burn, and the only thing that will affect the flavor of the vegetables will be the black soot. Trust me, you don't want that.

ANYONE WHO has ever tasted fresh-grilled corn on the cob can appreciate the taste a grill adds, when the corn is properly prepared. You can leave the corn right in the husk (it's best to remove the silk beforehand). Allow the corn to soak in plain water for at least an hour. The soaking will help keep the product moist and "steamy" the cobs right in their own husks.

Over good, hot coals, figure on at least 30 minutes for this delectable treat. If you are in a hurry or choose to make a more showy presentation, the corn can be shucked and cut into chunky cobs, and then skewered for grilling. Since the husks have a tendency to keep the corn moist, skewered corn on the cob will require frequent basting and turning to keep from drying out.

A summertime vegetable that has a tendency to be shunned because most folks are a little intimidated is the amazing eggplant. It is bountiful and inexpensive during the summer. Just slice it and pop it on the grill, keeping it moist with a herbed marinade or baste. Just before serving, shower it with a handful of parmesan cheese, and your dinner guests will ask for more.

As with most summer vegetables, cooking times vary, depending on thickness and density. General rule for cooking times is to continue the cooking process until a fork or knife, inserted, pulls out easily. Skewered vegetables will cook faster, especially when the skewers are metallic and conduct heat more readily. Of course, the temperature of the coals and heights of the rack vary greatly from grill to grill, so when cooking your summertime veggies be sure to have a keep-handled barbecue fork to avoid singed arms.

CAESAR MARINADE
OR BASTE FOR VEGETABLES
3 large eggs
2 tablespoons dijon-style mustard
2 teaspoons Worcestershire
2 strips anchovies, mashed
1 cup olive oil juice from one fresh lemon dash tabasco
2 tablespoons fresh grated parmesan cheese

In a glass bowl, combine egg with mustard, garlic, Worcestershire and anchovies. Mix well. Slowly drizzle in olive oil, whisking constantly. Add lemon juice, tabasco and parmesan cheese. Mix well. Use as a marinade and marinate vegetables in mix for at least two hours or use as a baste, basting frequently during cooking.

GRILLED ZUCCHINI
WITH RICOTTA FILLING
4 medium zucchini, split lengthwise
1/4 cup cottage cheese
1/4 cup ricotta cheese
1 egg

Scoop out a small amount of pulp from the zucchini, making a "boat." Set aside. Combine remaining ingredients and mix well. Stuff zucchini boats with mixture and place on grill and cook, until zucchini are tender, about 20 minutes. Cover with foil for the last five minutes to help melt filling.

GRILLED TOMATOES
4 firm, ripe tomatoes
1/4 cup oil (olive, vegetable or sesame)
1 teaspoon fresh chopped dill or 1/2 teaspoon dried dill weed
1/4 cup parmesan cheese

Core tomatoes and slice in half. Drizzle each half with oil and sprinkle with dill. Cook, uncovered, on the grill, until tomatoes begin to shrivel, about 5-10 minutes. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese just before serving. Caution: tomatoes cook fast because of their high water content.

Larry Janes gives recipes with corn

EASY CORN ON THE COB
8 ears of corn, as fresh as possible

Husk and remove silk from ears. Place corn in a large pot with just enough water to cover. Cover pot and heat over high heat to boiling for 2-3 minutes. Drain and serve hot with butter and salt.

CORN BREAD
1 1/2 cups all purpose flour
1/4 cup cornmeal
1/4 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1/4 cup vegetable oil
1 egg, beaten

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Lightly grease an 8-or-9-inch glass baking pan. Combine dry ingredients. Stir in milk, oil and eggs, mixing until dry ingredients are moistened. Pour batter into a prepared pan and bake for 20 minutes or until golden brown.

CHICKEN CORN SOUP
6 cups good chicken broth
1/2 teaspoon saffron
2 cups shredded cooked chicken
1 cup fresh or frozen corn kernels
1 cup egg noodles
2 hard-boiled eggs, chopped
salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons minced parsley

Heat the chicken broth in a saucepan and stir in saffron. Bring to a boil and then lower the heat to a simmer. Add the chicken and the corn. Raise temperature to a slow, rolling boil, then add the noodles. Cook over medium heat for 10 minutes or until noodles are tender. Remove from heat and stir in the chopped hard-boiled eggs. Correct seasonings with salt and pepper. Ladle into soup bowls and top with parsley.

Chef's suggestion: This is one of Momma's old recipes that when I made it, I thought it was better with a dash of Tabasco and the juice of 1/2 lemon added in for a little extra zing.

Nine Hudson's stores including eight in the Detroit area will host heart-healthy cooking demonstrations Sunday, Sept. 17, in cooperation with the American Heart Association of Michigan. Demonstrations will begin at 1 p.m. in the Marketplace in each store and be repeated several times until 3 p.m. Those attending will get to sample the food prepared and will receive a copy of the recipe, along with cooking and baking tips, and brochures on how to eat heart-healthy, including the American Heart Association dietary guidelines. Metro-area Hudson's stores participating are Northland, Eastland, Southland, Twelve Oaks, Oakland Mall, Lakeside, Briarwood and Fairlane.

CANNING TIPS

"Old-time canning methods, including open-kettle canning, paraffin sealing of jars and jellies, the inversion method and use of zinc, antique or commercial lids are unsafe," says Sylvia Treitman, home economist of the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service. New, updated canning procedures and recipes should be carefully followed to assure a safe product with a good shelf life. If you are a new canner or just find you are confused on which new procedures to follow, help is available. The Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service offers a hotline for all your food preservation question. Mondays-Fridays, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Roadside stands, farmers markets handy

By Chris Rizk
special writer

No, you don't have to drive to the Eastern Market at 6 a.m. to buy fresh produce. Try the other direction — west — and you will find corn, tomatoes and cantaloupes plucked right from the vine.

This time of year, more people are buying produce from the backs of pickup trucks, roadside stands or from tables set up for the Michigan farm season.

The reason for the mass exodus from air-conditioned aisles of supermarkets to highway stands and open-air markets? The summer bounty is in, and local farm markets are touting the biggest and best of Michigan's produce at lesser cost and fresher quality.

In the words of one farmer who has been in the business since 1977, produce sold in open-air markets throughout western Wayne and Washtenaw counties "is the best."

"Up since 4:30 a.m. 'pickin' all the stuff," John Goetz, 30, was busy arranging what little was left of his produce and flowers at Ypsilanti's Depot Town open-air market.

"This time of year," Goetz said, "you've got to be here before 1 p.m. The early bird gets the worm."

Squash, cucumbers, melons and cauliflower adorn his tables.

ACROSS THE market, Goetz's brother-in-law, Jerry Marks of Brighton, pushes berries closer to the tables' edge. It's nearing noon and few people are still out looking for morning legume and fruit bargains.

Marks sells "unsprayed" fruits and vegetables at Depot Town on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Just in his first year selling in the Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor area, Marks is convinced produce — that sold in open-air markets — is a priority for weekend shoppers.

"We sell a lot in this area here," he said. "Flowers sell better here, too."

"Nothing," he said, "sells the best" at his stand. He carries a variety of melons and vegetables because "one person's gonna want this and another's gonna want that."

August is the month for "maters and corn," Goetz of Riga (Mich.) said. Riga is a little town almost at the Michigan-Ohio border. "Maters," he said, is farmers' lingo for "tomatoes."

Hundreds of customers each Wednesday and Saturday crowd around his few stands to pick the biggest and best of Michigan's crop.

He said prices vary depending on current market value and the time of year.

So many people return to Depot Town's farm market that Goetz said he "probably knows more people here than in my own town."

GARY and Martha Slauter of Ypsilanti said the prices are less expensive and the food is "better quality" than what is sold in supermarkets.

Having traveled Europe "in search of the best open-air markets," Gary Slauter said jokingly, he agreed that Depot Town offered a good variety of summer produce.

Produce stands pop up like weeds during the summer, most farmers agree. How close they are to heavily populated areas depends upon local ordinances. Gary Coleman, owner of one of three Coleman's Farm Markets, said, Coleman, who runs an 8,000-square-foot market in Ann Arbor while his brother and mother operate two other in Ypsilanti, has a master's degree in urban forestry.

He ended up selling produce when he couldn't find a job in his field, he said. At 33, he has been peddling fruits and vegetables since he was a youth.

His earlier surroundings weren't quite as impressive as his open-air market, which he operates from May to October. Coleman used to sell produce out of the back of his family's pickup truck.

"I do well here," he said. "July and August are good months. Sweet corn's out and tomatoes are coming in, and August is a big canning month."

Coleman's produce is direct from Michigan growers, he said.

Despite the expense of running an open-air market (Coleman said local ordinances are so strict that in addition to having to be seasonal, state Department of Agriculture inspectors scrutinize health conditions), Coleman is preparing to expand.

THEY SEE a fly or bird buzzing around, they'll write you up, he said. "If you're out in the boonies, where if the city enforces its zoning codes, they won't leave you alone."

Why should his customers shop at his market?

For parking "right at the door" and higher quality, Coleman said.

People who shop open-air markets are those who shop specialty stores, Coleman said.

They are the kind who go to the meat market for fresh meat and to places like my store for fresh produce," he said.

Vito Sambrone of Plymouth said he has been shopping or working at open-air markets for 50 years. He said he would stay at Sayre's Red Barn Market on Ecorse and Morton-Taylor roads in Van Buren Township until "I fill that bushel basket with string beans."

He pointed to his left at a partially filled container of 29-cent-a-pound beans.

"My wife does the canning," Sambrone said. "I pick the beans and help prepare them."

SAYRE'S RED Barn Market is red but it's not a traditional barn. It's a three-sided, wood-frame open-air market where Joan Sayres (her name differs slightly from the market's name) sells 100 bags of corn a day, beginning this week, from her 100-year-old farm in town.

SHARON LE MIEUX

Vito Sambrone of Plymouth has been coming to Sayre's Red Barn Market in Van Buren Township for eight or nine years. He has been picking beans for more than 50 years, and freezes and cans them.

"You're going to see some cheap corn now," Sayres said. "But prices, like everything else, tend to go up." Corn is selling for $1.95 a dozen.

Regular customers shop at her place "year after year," she said. Others simply look for value.

Perhaps more popular because of its location within the heart of a more health-conscious university town is the Ann Arbor Farmers Market.

Produce stalls set up Wednesdays and Saturdays from May to December cater to passersby spilling over from or heading to Kerry Town.

Kerry Town, a Trappers-Alley-style shopping mall, lies between Fourth and Fifth streets, three blocks north of Huron Street.

"Kerry Town would like to think it's because of them that we're so busy," manager Maxine Rosocco said. "But we know we help attract customers to Kerry Town because they don't get the business on the other days we're not open." Ann Arbor's farmers market is unique. It is open 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. January-April. Apples, dried and baked goods are sold.

"It's profitable and popular," Rosocco said. "People come down as a routine thing on a Saturday."

Gary Coleman summed up the annual ritual of open-air markets. "Summer is so short in Michigan. Some of the pleasure is in outside shopping."

Eggplant can be prepared in a great variety of ways

Eggplant is in season again. Don't miss the opportunity to add it to your menus for exotic (erotic?) excitement.

Eggplant is believed to be a really effective aphrodisiac. There is no end to the number of delectable recipes you can prepare using this vegetable.

I have heard some people say that they don't like eggplant. But there are so many different ways to prepare it I'm sure you can find one that appeals to almost anyone.

Eggplant originated in India and came to our country by way of France, where it has been cultivated since the early 1600s. It is also known as aubergine and morelle.

Eggplant comes in many varieties, both purple and white. There are long thin ones, very large round ones, and very tiny ones that are perfect for cooking whole and using as a garnish on the side of the dinner plate or meat platter.

MOST POPULAR, of course, is the medium-sized, plump, egg-shaped variety. The white ones do not have as strong a flavor as the purple ones.

When this vegetable is to be fried, grilled, or baked in the oven, you should sprinkle it heavily with salt and let it set, covered, for about an hour before using it. This makes its excess water ooze out.

Then wash it well with clear water, and dry it before proceeding with your recipe.

When properly prepared, the skin of the vegetable is also delicious. I especially like the tiny ones sautéed in their skins and the larger ones that have been stuffed and baked.

STUFFED EGGPLANT
To prepare eggplant for stuffing, you may use either of the following methods.

Method I
Cut the eggplant in half lengthwise, prick lightly with a fork and sprinkle thickly with salt. Allow them to stand about 30 minutes to an hour. Then rinse them thoroughly, dry them, and fry them in sizzling hot oil until tender.

Drain them well and scoop out the pulp, being very careful not to damage the skins. Reserve both the skins and the pulp.

Method II
Cut the eggplants in half lengthwise and boil in salted water for about 15 minutes or until tender.

Drain and remove the pulp with a spoon, being very careful to keep the skins intact. Save both the pulp and the skins.

There are countless ways to prepare the filling. Here are just a few you may choose from.

Filling I
Add to the pulp some lightly fried, chopped onions (about one tablespoon per eggplant), one hard-boiled egg (finely chopped), two tablespoons bread crumbs, chopped parsley, and salt, pepper and garlic to taste.

Fill the skins with this mixture and sprinkle the tops with finely grated bread crumbs, and oil or melted butter.

Place them in a buttered baking dish and bake at 350 degrees until kitchen witch

Gundella

golden brown on top.

Filling II

Mix seasoned sausage meat or ground lamb and bread crumbs with the pulp. Fill the skins. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake until meat is thoroughly cooked.

Filling III

In a skillet, lightly sauté in oil or butter chopped green peppers and onions. Add chopped tomatoes, garlic, parsley and seasoning to taste. (I like to use Greek or Italian herb mixtures.)

Mix this with pulp of the eggplant and add a few bread crumbs. Fill the skins, and bake about 10 minutes at 350 degrees. Top with your favorite cheese and continue baking until cheese is bubbly and lightly browned.

Filling IV

Mix together with eggplant pulp 1 cup cooked rice, 1/2 cup seedless raisins, 1/4 cup pine nuts, salt and pepper to taste.

Pack the mixture into the eggplant skins and dot the tops with butter. Bake about 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

FRIED EGGPLANT

In a paper bag, mix together the following:
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup very fine bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon onion powder
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/4 teaspoon thyme
1/4 teaspoon basil

Cut up one large, or two smaller eggplants, in round slices 1/2 to 3/4 inches thick. Or, you may cut it into thick strips about 3 inches long.

After these have been soaked in salt water and dried (see above), place them in the bag with the flour mixture and shake until each piece is evenly coated.

Fry in hot oil a few at a time, until golden brown and tender (about 3-4 minutes). Make sure the pieces do not touch each other. Drain on paper towels and serve immediately.

Optional: Sprinkle lightly with powdered sugar before serving.

ARMENIAN EGGPLANT

1 eggplant
1/2 cup flour
3 tablespoons olive oil
4 large tomatoes, sliced
1 small onion, chopped salt pepper
buttered bread crumbs

Wash eggplant. Peel and cut into cubes. Dredge with flour and sauté in hot olive oil until lightly browned. Arrange alternate layers of eggplant, tomatoes and onion in a well-greased baking dish. Season each layer with salt and pepper. Cover with bread crumbs and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. (serves 4-6)

Chipmunk's call shows how animals use nature's 'tools'

WALKING along Deer Run Trail at Kensington Metro Park one day I heard a sound that I could not positively identify — short bursts of sound which were very penetrating and quite loud.

It was the intensity of the sound that perplexed me. The sound was so loud that I anticipated seeing the animal right around the next tree. Yet, it was even too loud for that situation.

I do not remember how far away from the source I actually started hearing the sound, but it was much farther than I would have heard a normal chipmunk calling. Yes, my mystery caller was a chipmunk, which I have heard many times but no like this one.

This chipmunk was in the hollow of a large tree which opened in the direction from which I had been walking. There, perched in the opening near the bottom was the resounding vocalizer. By positioning itself in the hollow, the cavity served as a reflector and resonating chamber, which amplified the sound.

CHIPMUNKS CALL to warn others of danger and to establish territories. This individual apparently discovered that the hollow of a tree intensifies the sound, which could help in communicating to others.

Though I did not return to see if the animal used this location regularly, or to see if it used other hollows, this animal could be defined as a tool user. It was using an object to help it perform a necessary function.

Actually, tool using in animals is not extremely rare. Everyday I watch woodpeckers take sunflower seeds and wedge them in the crack of a wooden pole. Once securely wedged, they hammer at the seed to break open the husk and extract the seed. Behavior like his reminds me of when I use the vice on my bench.

Herring gulls have been observed dropping clams and snails on hard objects in order to break open the hard shells. They did not use just any hard object; they repeatedly returned to one specific place.

Animals have both physical and behavioral adaptations to their environment. In combination, they enable animals to adapt to changing conditions.

The writer is a naturalist at Independence Oaks Park in Oakland County.

ARTHRITIS DRUGS & THE ELDERLY

With so many drugs available, why do doctors continue to depend on aspirin to treat joint conditions in the elderly?

First, as an individual ages the liver loses its ability to metabolize drugs, and the kidneys become less efficient in excreting drug break-down products. Arthritis drugs are detoxified by the liver and removed by the kidney. Thus a number of medications readily handled at a younger age, in the elderly remain longer, at higher concentration, and at a potentially dangerous level.

Second is the problem of drug interaction. Many people over age 65 are taking a number of medicines, and the addition of an arthritis drug may cause untold effects. It has happened before that arthritis medications thought to have thorough testing were released for general use. Later these drugs were withdrawn because they caused toxicity, even death, when interacting with other medications commonly used by the elderly.

Aspirin is an exception to the above. One hundred years of use has demonstrated its safety in the elderly. Furthermore, its increasing indications in stroke and heart disease are evidence of its effectiveness, even in the aged.

Karl Wukie returns as the starting quarterback on Canton's varsity football team, which hopes to pick up where it left off last season, winning three of its last five games.

Wukie holds Canton key

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton experienced a football revival the latter half of last season, and quarterback Karl Wukie was largely responsible for the turnaround.

For that reason, the Chiefs are counting heavily on the talented junior to keep the program headed in the right direction this fall.

Canton, which won three of its last five games a year ago, was 0-4 when Wukie took over and led the Chiefs to an upset victory over Northville. Good fortune shone unexpectedly on the team with Wukie's promotion to the varsity.

"It was a freakish thing," coach Bob Khoenle said. "We never intended to move him up."

"But one of our quarterbacks was ineligible. We worked him in gradually, and he got some confidence. It was a trial and error thing that worked out right."

THE 5-FOOT-11, 165-pound Wukie entered preseason camp with veteran status and the job as No. 1 quarterback this year. Khoenle likes what he's seen and makes no bones about Wukie's importance to the ballclub.

"The kid can do things so naturally and instinctively right," he said. "He's a game player. He does OK in practice, but when the whistle blows and the game starts he does things much better."

Besides the optimism created by the return of an experienced quarterback, 1989 could be different for another reason.

For the first time in its history, Canton defeated rival Plymouth Salem in the '88 season finale and has the memory of that win with which to begin the new campaign.

"The Salem win helped us in a lot of ways," Khoenle said. "We could see it in the attitude of the kids in the weight room during the winter and

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Jason Bielec (with back to camera) tackles teammate Trond Darby during practice drills last week. Bielec and Darby are slated to start at inside linebacker for the Chiefs.

'I think our offense will be more than adequate because of Wukie, but defense worries me. I don't know how tough we'll be . . . The defense has to grow up quick or we'll be in trouble.'

football

spring. If nothing else, that win made the kids believe in themselves a little more.

"We had a young team last year. Young teams usually get better as the year goes on, and I think that showed in the last half of the season."

Khoenle also is excited about Jason Riggs' potential at tailback. The 6-1 Riggs, a beefier 175 pounds, played varsity as a sophomore, too, and another year has made a difference, according to Khoenle.

"AS A COACHING staff, we think Jason Riggs has really come along in early practices," he said. "I think we expected too much of him last year and forgot he was a sophomore playing with juniors and seniors."

Senior Brian Riggs (5-5, 160) will be the fullback and lead blocker for his younger brother. He was injured much of last year but is a good runner, Khoenle said.

A flanker and replacement for graduated wide receiver Mark Barrette will likely come from a group that includes seniors Jeremy Rheault (5-6, 160), Dave Makara (5-10, 155) and Chris Robinson (5-8, 140) and junior Del Williams (5-7, 145).

"They're fast and can catch the ball, but they're small," Khoenle said. "We don't have the imposing receiver like (6-foot-4) Barrette. We call our team the Smurfs."

The tight end and Wukie's backup will be the player Wukie replaced at midseason last year, senior Jason Dembny (6-1, 185). Khoenle had to find a place for someone with Dembny's size and athletic ability. Dembny also will do the punting.

Walter's did LCBL proud in tourney

LET'S SEE, what did I miss on the local sports scene while I was in Johnstown, Pa., at the All-American Amateur Baseball Association tournament?

Bill Freehan is the new baseball coach at the University of Michigan. What about the gunfire at St. Cecilia? Rodney Peete may be for real. Another Michigan State football player has put ex-teammate Tony Mandarich in his place.

But while I was gone, here's some things you may have missed in Johnstown during the past week at the AAABA:

- Walter's Home Appliance, which finished 3-2 overall, turned in one of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League's most successful AAABA tournament stints. In 14 tournament appearances, the LCBL representative is 19-27 overall. Baltimore is No. 1 and Detroit is No. 2 on the all-time winning list.

- The Johnstown Oldtimers Association, the officials who run the big college-division tournament, don't mess around with bad apples.

If the manager is ejected, it's a $50 fine. If a player is caught chewing tobacco, it's an automatic ejection. If girls are caught in the dorm, the team is sent home. If players are caught drinking, as was the Washington, D.C., team this year, the franchise forfeits a trip next year to the tournament.

Three Buffalo players were involved in a downtown scuffle, reportedly making a racial slur to a "townie." One was taken to a hospital after he was thrown through a windshield. Buffalo will also be absent next year.

- The sons of major leaguers Mark Belanger, Terry Crowley and Ed Goodson competed in the tournament.

Robbie Belanger, who played for Maryland State, drew the most attention with some Brooks Robinson-type fielding plays at third.

But I'll take former Redford Catholic Central High product John Gotts, the third baseman/catcher from Walter's who seems to make all the right plays. He also hits in the clutch. I just hope Roger Coryell, the Eastern Michigan University coach, gives the underrated Gotts a good look this fall.

Brad Emons

- And speaking of Mark Belanger, the former Oriole shortstop still looks like he could field his position. The slender built figure hasn't changed much. He now works for the Major League Players Association.

Dave Racer, the Hines Park Lincoln Mercury coach who came down to see Walter's play, was a former teammate of Belanger in the minors. The two got reacquainted when Walter's eliminated Maryland State, 11-1.

"We played together in Bluefield, West Virginia and he (Belanger) was one of the best damn poker players around," Racer recalls.

- Also good to see John Moraitis, the Little Caesars coach, down for the tourney along with his friend Larry Kirchner, a faithful fan during the season at Ford Field.

- Johnstown has a Flood Museum, but one of the Walter's players couldn't understand. "All those people died, why should they remember that," said the player.

Good point, but this year was special. They were commemorating the 100th year of the famous flood (1889-1989).

- The Walter's and Detroit Adray Appliance players stayed at dormitories on the campus of the University of Pittsburgh-Johnstown.

The Pitt football team was holding training camp on the secluded mountain campus. All visitors were chased away from the practice site.

The big question about Pitt football is who is going to replace academically ineligible quarterback Darnell Dickerson? The ex-Detroit Martin Luther King High great who has since signed a minor league baseball contract.

Dickerson, a raw talent, was signed after Detroit Adray Appliance coach Stu Rose threw him batting practice a couple of months ago before a slew of scouts at the University of Detroit.

"He'd whiff eight times in a row and then send a shot off the wall at Calihan Hall," Rose said of Dickerson. "He didn't have the right footwork down on throwing from the outfield, but he could throw it a mile."

- Here is just a few of the former players who have played in the AAABA tournament: Reggie Jackson, Orel Hershisier, Al Kaline, Rod Carew, Rocky Colavito, Willie Horton, Chris Sabo (Redford Catholic Central High), Barry Larkin, Bernie Carbo (Livonia Franklin High), Joe Torre, Mark Fidrych, Pat Sheridan (Wayne Memorial High), Rick Clark (Redford Union High) and Bill Fahey (RU). Joe Theismann also played in Johnstown.

An impressive list.

- Twenty-two teams started in the tournament with three of the final eight teams (Livonia, Detroit and Lansing) coming from Michigan.

- Speaking of players, former North

Feigner will hold court at Canton softball park

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Eddie Feigner is as much showman as he is softball pitcher. On both counts, he's pretty amazing and quite successful.

Feigner has combined the two into one of the greatest shows in sports entertainment, and area fans can see his act on Friday, Sept. 8, at Canton Softball Center.

The King and His Court, as Feigner's world-famous four-man team is known, will play Pat Boyle Chevrolet, the Livonia modified fast-pitch champion, at 7:30 p.m.

It will be the second meeting in four years. Boyle Chevrolet, playing under the FGS Radiator name, was on the losing end of a 7-6 score in 1986.

"It's a tremendous opportunity to play against a guy who has struck out some of the greatest names in baseball," Boyle Chevrolet's Dave Brubaker said.

"I'M PLANNING to have a good time, because (Feigner) is quite a clown around. He's into having fun, and he puts on quite a show. It's not every day you brush elbows with a legend."

Proceeds from the game will benefit Caring Athletes Team for Children's and Henry Ford Hospitals. Charity is always a key part of the Feigner program, and he estimates his team has helped raised $4-5 million over the years.

But that wouldn't be possible without the show, the love of which has kept the 65-year-old Feigner going for 44 years. His longevity is virtually unequalled in sports, and his travels have taken him to six continents and nearly 100 countries.

"I'm interested in doing the show as long as the crowds continue to enjoy it," said Feigner via the telephone from Boston. "When you're a ham, you feed off the show and keep enjoying it."

Feigner and his crew began the current season in March with a stop in Hawaii. Along the way, they played 15 games in Korea against the U.S. Army and gave a demonstration on the flight deck of an aircraft carrier in the Pacific.

"You could play a game up there all right — as long as right field is a ground-rule double," Feigner said.

Being a ham is part of the show, though Feigner calls it horse play. During a game, he'll pitch behind his back, through his legs and from second base. It's never to embarrass the opponent, Feigner adds, and it's an expected part of the act by now.

FEIGNER WILL pitch to a couple of Boyle Chevrolet batters while blindfolded, too. He does that every game. It's something he started in the 1940s when he was looking for a gimmick.

"It's not dangerous — if you don't mind being hit with a line drive now and then," said Feigner, who was hit in the eye while doing that in 1984.

Feigner believes most sports events are too serious. In fact, he thinks there ought to be more comedy in sports.

"(The fans) would like to see that in regular games," he said. "Baseball and football have become so austere if a guy does any showing off they call him a hot dog."

Jon Molesky of Southfield is captain of his own charter boat, "Wa Hoo."

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

Ahoy mates, here's yer captain

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Jon Molesky would probably never be cast for the role of Captain Ahab in "Moby Dick."

Well, maybe, if he grew his whiskers (for a couple months) and started saying things like "Ahoy mates" and "Shiver me timbers. Yaaa miss anoth'r un an yaaa'll work the plank."

Nah! He'd still resemble a college student... which he is.

But, Molesky is also the owner and captain of a 27-foot Sportcraft, the "Wa Hoo." He charters trout, salmon fishing trips on Lake Michigan with the boat (which is docked in Muskegon) each summer.

"This is my office. This is my summer job," said the 1986 Birmingham Groves graduate who now lives in Southfield. "It's a great way to help pay for my schooling and have a little fun over the summer. It's definitely more fun than work."

Molesky began running charters out of Muskegon four years ago, while a freshman at the University of Michigan. He has been doing it ever since and could very well be the first political science major to fish himself through college.

Although Molesky doesn't fit the mold of a gruff, old charter captain, after a few hours aboard the "Wa Hoo," it becomes obvious he's no rookie to the trade.

On a day when few boats were reporting any luck at all, Molesky, who is also a field tester for Speedtroll Downriggers and Silver Streak Spoons, worked and worked until his passengers each caught a dandy lake trout.

HE CHANGED lures. He changed lure depth. He changed trolling speed. He changed fishing areas. He tried every combination until there were finally fish in the boat. The only thing that didn't change was his attitude.

"The key is to get people out here, get a fish and have fun," Molesky said. "I like to stress the whole package — get out on the lake, relax and catch some fish."

Molesky, and first mate Bud Wood, only run trout salmon charters. They don't bother with perch or walleye, a couple of abundant game fish charter captains often pursue.

"If you want to be good at something you have to stick with it," Molesky said. "Set your sights on one thing and become good at it. If you spread yourself too thin, you're mediocre at everything."

On those slow days, days when the fish just aren't biting, charter captains must become entertainers. According to Molesky, that's when the real work begins.

"I think charter captains rate right up there with air traffic controllers and police officers as far as stress is concerned — especially if the fish aren't biting," Molesky said. "People come out here and want to have fun. You have to entertain them and keep them happy until the fish start biting."

Aboard the "Wa Hoo," that entertainment comes in the form of jokes, the "Blessing of the Rods" (a light-hearted ritual performed by Wood to entice fish into biting), and stories of past fishing adventures.

Molesky has plenty of stories.

HE WAS BORN in Maryland and spent much of his childhood fishing in Chesapeake Bay.

As a young teen, his father brought him to Lake Michigan where the youngster caught a 16-pound chinook salmon.

"I was hooked after that," admitted Molesky. "I spent all my money as a kid buying fishing equipment. I

Time to squeeze in one last trip

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Labor Day weekend will be here in 10 days and everybody I know is panicking. How do we squeeze that last trip out of the summer? Labor Day changes a lot of things. Kids and teachers go back to school. College students take a last fling before the semester starts. Business travel and business conventions heat up. Organizations start a new season, keeping some people at home.

Most of the people who ask me for last-minute advice don't take full advantage of the toll-free 800 numbers available. Cities, states, hotels etc. spend a lot of money on telephone lines that you can call without charge. You find them by calling the toll-free information operator: dial 1-800-555-1212 and ask for the area or the hotel chain you want.

Q: I'm a divorcee with a 5-year-old and I want to take him to a theme park before school starts. I'm thinking about either King's Island, Cedar Point or Sea World, and we want to stay a couple of days. How do I find a reasonably priced hotel or motel with a pool?

S.H.
Farmington Hills.

MICKY JONES

Amusement parks such as Cedar Point are some of the places where travelers visit in that one last trip before the summer ends.

A. You don't have much time so you need to make some telephone calls. Cedar Point doesn't list a toll-free number (call (419) 626-0380) but you can call the other two toll-free. King's Island is (800) 543-3290. Sea World is (800) 637-4268.

Hotel Breakers, the on-property hotel at Cedar Point costs $77 for an unremodeled room with one double bed, remodeled rooms are $93.50, including tax. You can call the Sandusky visitor's bureau at (419) 625-2984 and they'll give you names like the Mecca, Maples or Best Budget. But you are still going to pay about $90; rates drop Labor Day weekend.

Holiday Inn has been advertising low rates for the summer months so call them toll-free at (800) HOLIDAY, about their special $29-$59 rates, price depending on location and subject to availability.

Eriksson (Michael J. Fox) refuses to join Meserve (Sean Penn) in his brutal treatment of a Vietnamese girl (Thuy Thu Le) in Brian DePalma's film "Casualties of War."

Vietnam revisited

After several slow weeks while audiences soaked up early summer blockbuster releases, there's a new crop, a half-dozen films, some of which may be avoided without damaging your entertainment quotient.

"Eddie and the Cruisers II: Eddie Lives!" (PG-13) features John Cullum and the Beaver Brown Band in what threatens to be another interminable string of sequels, this one justified by the fact that rock star Eddie Wilson's body was never found after he drove off New Jersey's Raritan Bridge in 1964.

Michael Pare appears as Eric Rob- erta's Marina Orsini, his girlfriend, Diane Armani. Rock music fans may appreciate such unimaginative fiction while others pass on to more exciting fare. After all, there's the '60s resurrected, strange relatives, coming at the race track, African animals and still another rehearsing of the Vietnam tragedy.

Despite a commendable premise — awareness of global ecological problems — "Rude Awakening" (R) reeks of sappy sentimentality and is an arduous and bumpy trip unworthy of the ride.

Two hippies from the '60s, Jesus (Cheech Martin) and Fred (Eric Roberts) have been hiding out in Central America. Draft evasion, inciting riots and drugs were their crimes in the '60s. After 20 idyllic years, a secret document is entrusted to them and they begin an idealistic mission that takes them back to New York and confrontation with FBI Agent Brubaker (Cliff DeYoung), their nemesis of the '60s. He's still after them.

Jesus and Fred are shocked to learn that their hippy comrades of the '60s are the yuppies of the '80s, and generally blame social problems. This clever premise is developed poorly as Cheech mugs his way through, seemingly unrelated to the rest of the action. The staging of a '60s-style campus take-over is flat and unconvincing in these days of routine terrorism — "film at 11."

When questioned if Jesus and Fred are terrorists, FBI Agent Brubaker sums it up: "Worse. They're idealists." Unfortunately the sophisticated concept behind that statement is not supported by this weak production which falls in its exploitation of Cheech's status with audiences of another era.

"Uncle Buck" (B+, PG, 112 minutes), on the other hand, has a lot more going for it. Tia (Jean Kelly), Maury (Gaby Hoffman) and Miles Russell (Macaulay Culkin) are forced to move to a Chicago suburb Tia, deeply rebellious, had to be forced along at gun point. John Hughes' answer to adolescent angst is Uncle Buck (John Candy).

Most of "Uncle Buck's" good things are delightful because, despite their improbability, a lot of us would like to think we could do them. An "Uncle" inexperienced with kids isn't likely to win a battle of wits with a teenage girl in a week nor is he likely to abduct her sleazy boyfriend with a power drill. But one can always hope.

Candy makes even the clumsy moments interesting while Macaulay Culkin is unassuming and natural — and he steals most of the scenes in which he appears. "Uncle Buck" is sure to please both the kids and grownups. Heck, they might even enjoy it together. Reviewed by Susan Finchem.

Turning from the comic to the grim, "Casualties of War" (A-, R, 105 minutes) graphically details the kidnapping, rape and murder of a Vietnamese girl by a small American reconnaissance patrol. Based on an actual incident first reported by Daniel Lang, the David Rabe screenplay was based on Lang's book and directed by Brian DePalma.

The patrol is led by Sgt. Meserve (Sean Penn) and includes Cpl. Clark (Don Harvey) and three privates, Hatcher (John C. Reilly), Diaz (John Leguizamo) and Eriksson (Michael J. Fox). Eriksson alone refuses to rape the girl and thereafter must stand alone amidst the madness of that jungle war and the insanity of his comrades. The military system itself isn't helpful either.

In the best or is it worst? Brian DePalma tradition, "Casualties of War" is particularly violent and the gore is graphic. Much of the violence, as is DePalma's style, is directed against women. Certainly this film is not for the faint of heart or stomach.

But this incident is a true one and there can never be enough reminders of the terrible, tragic consequences of war. In addition to that political worth, the film's production values are generally excellent, in particular the acting.

Sean Penn captures the essence of that brutishness war and violence engenders with intense, manic behavior. Don Harvey's Cpl. Clark is also appropriately psychotic and reminiscent of Lee Marvin in "The Wild One." Michael J. Fox, they say, is at risk, switching from light comedy to heavy drama but he is generally successful in the movie.

His one impossible moment — and it's not really his fault — comes about two-thirds of the way through when DePalma gives him a set speech on values and ethics that sounds straight out of a Depression era political drama or a naive World War II propaganda film.

Not hardly something you'd hear even an educated grunt declaiming in the middle of the Vietnam jungle.

There are also problems understanding some of Penn's mumbled jargon, unnecessary and annoying facial close-ups and a framing opening and close which ends the film on a pretty dippy note.

Despite these difficulties, "Casualties of War" is a major addition to the body of Vietnam war films, movies that remind us of war's tragic impact. That is important. "Cheech" (D-, G, 75 minutes) is one of the laziest excuses for a movie in quite some time. Except for 3 to 5 year olds who enjoy footage of wild animals in Africa, it's hard to imagine anyone staying awake for this slow-paced, predictable story of Brother Ted and Sister Susan Johnson (Keith Coogan and Lucy Deakins) visiting their parents in the middle of Africa where Earl (Timothy Landfield) their dad, runs some kind of radar station.

As is to be expected, Ted and Lucy, typical LA kids, are amazed by the marvelous African veldt and immediately adopt a baby cheetah whose mother was killed by poachers. "Look what followed us home Mom!"

The kids also make friends with a local Masai boy, Morogo (Collin Mochugi). Coogan also matured too much to pull off kid brother roles and Ms. Deakins hardly fits the childish character given her Morogo seems to be having fun with these crazy Americans but everybody else is distant and uninvolved. In particular Mr. and Mrs. Johnson (Breon Gorman) who must have studied at the Lethargic School of Acting. To be missed it's strictly from dull city.

"Let It Ride" (B-, PG-13, 90 minutes) is Richard Dreyfuss at his gritty, grimy, manicky best in this story of a broken-down cabbie whose wife, Pam (Terri Garr), is leaving him, in part because of his compulsive gambling.

But this is not the story of a loser, this is the story of that one day when fate shines on a poor schmuck. It all starts when Trotter's buddy, Looney (David Johansen), overhears two guys in the back of his cab fixing a race. As it turns out, Trotter believes that the fix is in — and it is.

One thing leads to another and it's quite a day at the track for Trotter. There's all sorts of Runyonesque characters around and they are, as Damon Runyon would say, considerably more than somewhat. But they — and the film — don't hand together too well.

This is director Joe Pytko's first narrative feature film, having made his mark in documentaries and commercials. That 60-second experience shows and "Let It Ride" is filled with nifty cameos. But they need some greater glue than Trotter having a good day at the track. All in all, though, it's still fun and five will get you 13 they line up at the box office for this one.

STILL PLAYING

The Abyss (D) (PG-13, 133 minutes). Despite excellent underwater sequences, this muddled and murky sci-fi saga sinks.

"Parent Hood" (A-) (R, 120 minutes). Large, talented cast in complex but entertaining story about a family which includes Jason Robards, Steve Martin, Tom Hulse, Martha Plimpton and Diane West, among others.

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

Short films pack punch

By John Monaghan
special writer

"Egg," from the Netherlands, and the locally-produced "Forever My Dog" prove an old adage — it's not the length of the film but how you use it. Both short films screen this weekend at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor.

"Egg," at 58 minutes, is a gentle film set in a quiet Dutch village. Life moves slowly. Here, big excitement means the arrival of the daily bus or the birth of a neighbor's puppies.

Johan, a child-like baker, still lives with his mother at 35. When he's not amusing himself by setting eggs on their ends or petting dogs, he spends hours skipping stones with his friends in the village square.

Peter and Paul, only slightly more worldly than Johan, decide the it's time for him to meet a woman. They help him set up correspondence with Eva, a teacher from "foreign climes," through a personals ad.

When Eva arrives on the afternoon bus, Johan doesn't know what to do. He takes her home to his mother and drops her there. The road toward love and acceptance, with both Eva and Johan as nervous as children, promises some great comic moments.

Critics have compared "Egg" to the early works of Jacques Tati. The story is told mostly through the camera, with dialogue provided by egg-shaped title cards.

"Egg" never treats its characters with condescension or plays cheap jokes off their "quaintness." Israeli-born director Daniel Daniel obviously loves Johan and friends and creates a charming world for them to inhabit.

Ultimately, the film leaves you with the feeling that life — like an egg — doesn't necessarily have to break in order to change. Daniel has gone well beyond his original intent of making a film that "sends people home feeling nice."

THE SECOND film, the 29-minute "Forever My Dog," evokes a different response. During recent screenings at the Maple Theatre in Birmingham, the story of pet loss has left audiences in tears.

Director Ron Senkowski, who lives in Ann Arbor, got the idea for the film after the death of his own family dog. His brother stars in the film as a 14-year-old facing the trauma of putting his dog to sleep.

He has nightmares about a sadistic veterinarian played by the director, and even packs up the dog and runs away from home. He eventually realizes that his lost pet will be "forever my dog."

It's refreshing to see a pair of movies well into their messages at the time it takes most directors to set up an establishing shot.

On the other hand, pass right by the rack where "A Time of Destiny" is stored, unless you enjoy the perverse pleasure of watching major talents in minor, poorly structured movies. In this case it's William Hurt, Timothy Hutton and Stockard Channing plus a host of excellent European actors and actresses. But their talent doesn't save "A Time of Destiny" — whose time will never come — and for a while you'll have the same feeling about the ending.

MR. YAMAZAKI is her nemesis as Mr. Gondo, one of the finest, funniest lechers ever to appear on screen. He's a consummate artist when it comes to "minimizing his taxes." His attractive mistresses are inch-pins in his scam while the great success of his adult love hotels, classy oriental equivalents of X-rated motels, gives him plenty income to hide all this adds up to some pretty clever commentary on businessmen and their methods.

Gondo's success attracts Tax Agent Itakura and she doesn't let go. Eventually she busts him but with a good deal of oriental style. The film is lots of fun although there are several loose ends and unexplained twists with the film ending on the strangest of those plot flaws.

Nonetheless, "A Taxing Woman" is well worth your time.

REVIEWS

— James Ingram

"It's Real," James Ingram's recent piece of work, is an excellent example of how an album should be put together. Side one of the release is dubbed "It's Real Hard," and side two is dubbed "It's Real Soft."

So this simply means one side is fast beat R&B dance music and side two is slow ballads. This well thought-out album lets the listener build up with the mood of the music by keeping the tempos in order.

Production on the album is superb. Ingram's powerful voice is well heard through the loud drumming, upbeat songs. Dances come automatic when these tunes are heard. The title track "It's Real" has pizzazz. It's one of those songs you can hear over and over again without getting tired of it right away.

The softer tunes of side two again display Ingram's style. Ingram is known for, Ingram's remake of the Goffin/King song, "You Make Me Feel Like A Natural Man," is sung with pure pride as his voice bellows out each word.

THE SWAMP
BOOGIE QUEEN
— Katie Webster

Granted, swamp boogie is a musical strain not native to our high and dry suburbs. Katie Webster's brand of boogie comes from Louisiana, via Texas, having been well-seasoned through the years.

But even we highlanders can pick up on swamp boogie real quick. That's good because Webster's bluesy singing and piano styles, at times pounding, like some rollicking roadhouse, and at times sweet, like a sentimental mood, deserves some attention.

She is not a household name, though arguably should be. Houston-born, she is the daughter of pianists. She was spotted by soul great Otis Redding and played with the Redding band 1964-67, until the singer's untimely death.

"The Swamp Boogie Queen" (Alligator) features two wonderful versions of Redding tunes, one he co-wrote ("Fa-la-fa-fa") and one he made famous ("Try a Little Tender"). Here too is Webster's rendition of "Sea of Love." She played piano on the original hit version by Phil Phil-

Ronnie Earl comes clean to play passionate blues

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

He didn't play guitar until he was 23, was single until a year ago and has been looking at life through unblurred eyes for only the last six months.

Ronnie Earl's story has been one of late starts. Onstage, though, the blues notes that pour through his Fender Stratocaster are quick and pointed.

"I got straight in your city," said Earl, who will perform his guitar-slinging style of blues Thursday at Sully's in Dearborn. "Years of being on the road, I got to be an abuser of certain things. In Detroit, I woke up, Detroit is a special place for me."

Earl won't elaborate too much on the actual circumstances that led him to see the light in the Motor City. "It's personal, man," he said.

Those who've seen Earl perform usually have been treated to a personal show of passion and sincerity. Unquestionably, the New York City native loves the blues.

Earl speaks in the tone of awe when mentioning names like Muddy Waters, Earl King, Eddie "Cleanhead" Vinson and Walter Horton — all blues greats he's either recorded with or produced.

EARL GARNERED a reputation as blues guitarist in his own right. He performed for eight years with club favorites Roomful of Blues before venturing out on his own with Ronnie Earl & The Broadcasters.

With three solo albums already, Earl recently released another installment on Black Top Records "Soul Searchin'." An apt title for a man who is still searching for some of the pieces of life's puzzle.

Onstage, though, the package is complete. Earl's style of guitar playing is straight-forward blues. He's backed by a tight outfit that includes harmonica player Johnny Sansone (formerly with Jumpin' Johnny & the Blues Party), bassist Steve Gomes (formerly with John Lee Hooker's band), keyboard player Dickie Reed (former Roomful of Blues members) and drummer Per Hanson.

On his latest LP, Earl also enlists the services of well-known guitarist Duke Robillard and harmonica player Jerry Portnoy. One of the biggest names in blues, Muddy Waters, set Earl on his way. As Earl tells it, he was with a friend at a Waters show when he felt something of a spiritual awakening.

"I looked at my friend and said, 'We're missing something in our lives here,'" Earl said.

One of those things, in Earl's case, was a guitar. At 23, he picked up an acoustic guitar first time and started by playing Lightnin' Hopkins material.

EARL SOON soon gave up his career teaching mentally disabled children in Boston and began performing in clubs.

"The advantage when you start playing anything late in life is that you're more focused, you're more grown up," Earl said. "You know what you want. I said I want to play the blues... I don't play the blues because I'm limited but because I want to."

That commitment has inspired numerous raves, including those from many guitar greats such as Eric Clapton, Robert Cray and B.B. King. Earl said he's continually evolving as a guitarist.

Camping without going on the trip

By Bill Parker

Lee Trotter doesn't let a handicap slow her down. Despite poor circulation, which keeps her from walking very far or driving an automobile, the Rochester resident gets out "three or four times each summer" to pursue one of her favorite outdoor activities: camping.

And this modern day pioneer doesn't camp in a big luxurious travel trailer either. No sir! It's strictly primitive, as in a tent and a sleeping bag.

"I love the outdoors, I love to get out and I love to go fishing," explained Trotter, who was on a solo camping trip recently at Addison Oaks County Park, north of Rochester in Oakland County.

"This is the first time I've been here, but I'll definitely be back. It's really great out here and it's only nine miles from Rochester. The OPC (Older Persons Center in Rochester) van will bring me out here. Then they'll come back in a few days and pick me up."

Other than the proximity and the availability of transportation, there were other things that lured Trotter to Addison Oaks.

"I really like it here," Trotter said. "Everything is pretty close. The showers are close, the fishing is close, the campsites are nice and clean and they're big. You have your privacy, but you're never too far away from others. They even have handicapped showers, which are nice. The only thing that blew my mind was that it costs $.25 to take a shower."

MARK AND BEV Pangrace drove all the way down from Algonac to spend the weekend at Addison Oaks with their three sons, 8-year-old Adam, 7-year-old Joey and 2-year-old Andrew.

"We used to live in Rochester, but we moved to Algonac three months ago," explained Mark. "We've been here before and we really liked it so here we are, back again."

Bev, a cautious mother, was happy with the facilities the park offers children.

"The beach is really nice for the kids. It's well guarded and the kids can have a lot of fun," she said. "They also have a lot of other things for kids to do. They had a hay ride on Friday night and a movie on Saturday. They have a playground with swings and bars and slides."

Added Mark, "They even come around at night with firewood for anyone who needs it."

MARY MILMINE, of Mt. Clemens, arrived at the park with her three children — 18-year-old Anthony, 16-year-old Tracey, and 14-year-old Louann — on Friday afternoon under stressful conditions. Her car broke down at the park entrance and she was scheduled to set up camp, then pick her husband Richard up from work in "less than two hours."

But, since campers are usually always ready to lend a helping hand, it only took a couple minutes to find help. A few moments later, the Milmines were back on the road, heading for their primitive campsite.

"I've never met a camper that wasn't ready to help," observed Trotter, who admitted she usually needs a little help setting up her tent. "I've never had a hard time finding help. That's the nature of campers."

By Saturday afternoon, the Milmines were relaxing and enjoying the weekend.

"This is a really nice park," said Richard. "It's one of the nicest I've ever seen. Everybody is not right on top of each other. You have your privacy. The beach is nice — they have boat rental and fishing. For rustic camping, this is really a nice campsite. I certainly want to come back here again. It's the only park I know of that delivers wood (for fires) right to the campsite. I'd rather come here than go to a state park."

OAKLAND COUNTY PARKS accept no reservations. Camping is strictly on a first-come first-serve basis. Still, the park fills up nearly every weekend.

"We're usually a little slow early in the year, but by mid-season we're filling up pretty steady," explained Addison Oaks park supervisor Frank Ostrowski. "We get about a 50/50 mix of county resident and non-county residents. The thing that's nice is that you don't have to drive all the miles (to go up north) and you can still go camping in the woods."

And woods they are, with deer, rabbits, raccoons and even an occasional skunk roaming the park grounds.

"There are a lot of (wild) animals here," Ostrowski said. "We even have one little skunk that shows up every now and then looking for handouts (food). A lot of people have seen him, but he has never bothered or sprayed anyone."

Spots to pitch your tent

Driving hundreds of miles to a secluded campground somewhere in northern Michigan is a tempting thought to most avid campers.

But to make a trip like that you need time. Time to drive up and time to drive back. A weekend jaunt is almost out of the question. Even a three day weekend seems a little cramped when you have to spend hours on the road.

But there is a solution. There is a way to beat the clock and avoid a timely road trip. Camp close to home.

JUST BECAUSE the parks are close to home, don't expect to camp in an urban environment.

Oakland County Parks offer quality camping at both Addison Oaks, north of Rochester, and Groveland Oaks, in Holly.

"What makes our campground popular is that you don't have to drive 100 miles to go camping," said Groveland Oaks park supervisor Clyde Herb. "We have a lot of people that camp here and commute back-and-forth to work. It's a good place for the kids in the summer, too. We have a lot of activities for them out here."

"The thing that's nice is that you don't have to drive all those miles and you can still be out in the woods," said Frank Ostrowski, park supervisor at Addison Oaks.

Both parks offer a variety of facilities including modern campsites (which include a cement slab for recreational vehicle parking, on site electricity and running water), semi-modern sites (wooded lots and on site electricity) and primitive sites (no luxuries). The parks are open to the public, with Oakland County residents receiving a small break in usage fees.

"We get a pretty good mix of county and non-county residents," Ostrowski said.

ADDISON OAKS, nine miles north of Rochester on Romeo Road in Oxford, is a 770-acre facility with 140 campsites (50 modern, 23 semi-modern, 23 primitive and 44 group campsites). On holidays and crowded weekends there is also a two-acre boy scout camping area that can be opened and used as a primitive camping area.

The park also features boat rental, fishing (pike, bass, pan fish), a sandy beach, picnic shelters, charcoal grills, hiking trails, a concession area (complete with milk, bread, ice and goodies) and showers. Most of these facilities are handicap accessible.

There are also volleyball courts, a baseball field, horse shoe courts, hay rides and a popular movie on week-end evenings at the concession stand.

Semi modern and primitive campsites are very private, surrounded on three sides by wooded lots. Fire wood is available and can be dropped off right at the campsite.

GROVELAND OAKS, at 5990 Grange Hall Road in Holly, is a 365-acre facility featuring 600 campsites. The campsites aren't as secluded as those at Addison Oaks, but the park is equally clean and uncluttered.

Groveland Oaks features 112 modern sites, 85 semi modern sites, 103 primitive sites and 200 group sites.

Groveland Oaks also offers fishing and boat rental (canoes, paddle boats and row boats) on 30 acre Stewart Lake, picnic shelters and charcoal grills. There is a sandy beach for swimming, the only water slide in the county that empties into a lake, a volleyball court, a basketball court, arts and craft activities, an evening movie, a disc jockey, hay rides, showers, a concession stand, playground equipment and a games area.

Addison Oaks County Park, which is north of Rochester, has plenty to offer for campers.

Gentleman's game can drive you batty

Cricket game of choice for group on Belle Isle

By LeAnne Rogers
staff writer

A game in which style is as important as scoring, a gentleman's game for which the players wear white.

That's the way cricket was described by the late Walter Heron, a leading cricket booster in the Detroit area.

One of the two cricket teams based in Detroit, formerly the Detroit Cricket Club, was renamed the Walter Heron Cricket Team of Detroit following Heron's death in later 1988.

"Walter lived and breathed cricket," said team manager Ken Mirjah. "It was a real shock to us when he died. We had never known cricket in Detroit without Walter."

Often called the national sport of Britain, cricket has been played on Belle Isle for many years. No one is sure exactly when cricket arrived in Detroit, but teams have active in the area for more than 40 years, possibly as many as 60 years.

"Basically, as long as there have been West Indians in Detroit, there has been cricket," said Mirjah. "Most of our players are from the West Indies, Pakistan and India. We get a few British guys."

Team captain Nabeel Ahmed likened the popularity of cricket in Britain and its former colonies to the popularity of baseball in America.

"Most of the players we have grew up with cricket. I've played cricket since I was three or four years old," he said. "I've always played cricket. Here, people grew up playing baseball."

MIRJAH ECHOES the comments of his teammate.

"The saying is that you get cricket in your blood," he added.

For a cricket match, each team fields 11 players along with one extra player, although substitutions are rare.

One team takes the field, including a bowler, who pitches to a batsman from the opposing team.

Two batsmen are on the field at a time, one being pitched to while the other stands near the bowler. Three sticks, known as wickets, are placed 22 yards apart at the center of the cricket field, with the bowler and pitcher at opposite ends.

The bowler wants to pitch the red leather-covered ball into the wickets, which will retire the batsman, Ahmed said. The batsman wants to hit the ball but avoid a pop up, which can be caught to get him out.

"Bowlers in cricket have different specialties," Mirjah said. "It's like a pitcher in baseball has different balls."

One difference from baseball is that bowlers and fielders in cricket don't wear gloves. After being hit with the small hardball, Ahmed said he needed stitches in his chin. Mirjah suffered a broken finger after being hit by a ball.

"The batsman hits as hard as you would a baseball," Mirjah said. "The swing of the batsman is more like a golf swing than a baseball swing."

There are several ways to score points in cricket. A ball hit into the air but not caught is worth six runs, while ground balls are worth four runs.

POINTS CAN also be earned by the two batsmen, who cross over to the opposite wickets while the ball is in play.

A run is earned each time a cross-over can be completed, but the batsman is out if the opposing team can recover the ball and knock down the wickets before the batsman reaches them.

In cricket, a batsman continues at bat until he is retired and the team stays at bat until all the batsmen are out. Under the one-day rules, one team bats until it is retired, 240 pitches have been made or 2½ hours elapses, whichever comes first.

Prior to the one-day rules being established, cricket matches could last five days. Professional teams often still play under those rules.

After a half-hour meal break, the opposing team bats and the same conditions apply.

"When an American friend, a baseball player, got involved, he thought cricket was more exciting," Ahmed said. "In baseball, if you hit a home run you are out (of action). In cricket, you keep hitting until they get you out."

For five years, what is now called the Walter Heron team has participated in the Southern Ontario Cricket Association and has taken the championship four of those years.

Cricket could become a more widely played game, Ahmed said, through school and recreational programs that would introduce the sport to youngsters.

"WE ARE talking about a whole day being tied up, and in our league we can drive up to three hours for a game," Mirjah said. "It does make it hard for some people. We do it because we love it."

The team, along with the Michigan Cricket Club, plays its home games on weekends at Belle Isle. Spectators are always welcome and people interested in playing can come to practices on Wednesdays at about 8:30 on Belle Isle.

"We are in front of the casino near where they are working on the fountain," said Mirjah. "You can't miss us. We are the guys in white."

Q: My daughter made mediocre grades in high school because she didn't try very hard. Now she's leaving for college and I'm worried she may flunk out. Could time management help her in school?

A: Absolutely. Good time management is a basic key to success in college. It simply means taking advantage of the time you have and using it to the best advantage, without procrastinating.

At 18 it's time to replace childish irresponsibility with more mature self-discipline. It would be wise for your daughter to establish a good routine right from the start. Since it's important to put To Do's in writing, she can begin by charting out each day of the week in time increments. Classes and "travel time," of course, would be blocked out first, along with regular study periods for each. Meals, laundry, getting dressed and other necessities should also be charted.

Daytime hours are often squandered in school. Many students have large blocks of time between classes but plan to do their studying at night. When everyone gathers back in dorm rooms in the evenings, however, there are so many distractions it doesn't get done. A goal of finding a quiet, non-distracting place to finish her studying before dinner each day could pave the way for success. (Research shows the sooner a student reviews material, the more information they will retain.) Nights and weekends can then serve as buffer periods to handle emergencies.

It's also important for your daughter to recognize her own delaying tactics. Many students actually retreat to soap operas just before semester exams. Others may just sit and worry about how much they have to do (often over-estimating actualities) instead of getting it done. If your daughter finds herself procrastinating, she should list everything she needs to do, estimate the time needed for each activity, and then schedule specific times to get it done.

Large tasks should be broken down into manageable units. If she has six hours of work to do on a class project due in two weeks, she could work on that project for one hour at 2 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday each week, for instance. She can finish it easily that way without wearing herself out.

Our young neighbor recently came home from summer school with straight A's. He was delighted to find that by employing good time management techniques he could make A's — for the first time in his life — and still had plenty of time for fun. Your daughter can, too, if she will follow these simple guidelines.

condo queries

Robert M. Melsner

Q: We have lived in our condominium since 1985 and in all that time it has been very difficult to find out any information about board meetings and decisions they make. Meetings are held in an individual Board member's unit which is a deterrent for others to attend and the place and time are not given. I have tried to have the board distribute minutes to the co-owners and have requested it by letter, but it has not been done. Do co-owners have a right to the minutes? Should meetings be held as described above? Thanks.

A: It has always been my position that minutes of the meetings of the board of directors are not necessarily a "record" which is open to review by all members of the association even though the condominium statute says that "books and records of the association may be inspected by members of the association at reasonable times."

Clearly, minutes of the association which deal with privileged communications between the board and counsel would not be obtainable under most instances by a co-owner. On the other hand, a co-owner may have a right to attend certain portions of the board meeting, at the board's discretion, to discuss questions or concerns. However, the board may and should conduct its meetings in executive session, particularly when sensitive issues are being discussed which, if published to the rest of the members of the association or the world for that matter, would undermine the interests of the Association.

In short, you may not have a right to a copy of the exact minutes, but a prudent condominium association should at least prepare a newsletter summarizing the salient events which have taken place at the board meeting. I would also direct a letter to the association requesting a copy of its financial statement and demand that it provide you with answers to certain questions you may have concerning the operation of the association.

Rose fanciers take Pleasure in selection

AP — One rose — a vigorous, pink floribunda aptly named Pleasure — has been chosen for the prestigious All-American Rose Selections award for 1990.

In recent years, several new rose introductions have been designated annually for the honor by the AARS, a non-profit organization of rose producers and introducers.

The selection of Pleasure, introduced by Jackson & Perkins Co., of Medford, Ore., and hybridized by William A. Warriner, was announced by AARS president Steven B. Hutton. Warriner, whose roses have won the award many times, retired in 1988 as J&P's vice president of research.

Pleasure, in widespread test gardens, was rated as very floriferous. It has coral pink buds that open to salmon-coral pink blooms of 30 to 35 large petals. The slightly fragrant blooms may reach four inches across. When fully open, the blooms, which begin as high-centered buds, are quite flat.

"Pleasure's upright bushes are ideal for landscaping," Hutton said. "The average or beginning gardener can easily grow Pleasure roses, as they are extremely fast-cycling and require little maintenance."

One prerequisite for being named an AARS rose is that it can be grown anywhere in the country. The two-year testing included conditions of heat, drought, cold wind, insects, diseases and "hard-to-please judges."

Pleasure will be available generally for planting next spring. The bushes grow three to four feet tall. Floribunda stems generally are short. Pleasure's foliage is medium green, and the plant is reported resistant to rust and powdery mildew.

EVERGREENS IN autumn: Evergreens do respond to fall weather, but not with the spectacular colors produced by maples, oaks and other deciduous trees. The oldest needles turn yellow, then brown, and finally drop gradually if the evergreen is healthy, rapidly if it is not.

For example, take the white pine, which has long, soft, bluish-green needles. The needles hold on to the tree for a year and a half. They expand in spring, hold on through the next year, and drop in the fall. The only needles that remain on the tree after drop are those that were produced earlier that same year.

Not all pines or other evergreens are as regular as white pine. In some, needle drop is influenced by plant vigor, climate or other factors. For instance, the ponderosa pine responds to environmental conditions. At low altitudes, the needles remain on the tree for three to four years; at medium altitudes, about six years; and at high altitudes, eight or more years.

On dense shrubs and trees, such as arbutus and juniper, there is needle drop in the interior, but it is little noticed. Healthy spruce may hold needles three to 10 years. Drop also is internal, and browning only becomes obvious if growth is stunted for some reason.

WATCH FOR DISEASES, insect or other damage if there is any browning of needled evergreen on new growth.

Austrian pines often drop four-year-old needles. Drooping of younger needles may indicate the presence of fungus diseases, such as needle blight or top blight. Scotch pines normally drop needles three to four years old.

Spider mites are a common pest cause of browning of needles in junipers and spruces. They do most damage during hot weather. Spraying with an insecticide is important to keep the pests from building up.

If diseases are indicated, it is important to use a fungicide spray next season as needles develop. Clean up dropped needles this fall to help reduce the spread of diseases.

Great American Yard Sale to help homeless

As the new school year begins, area families have a special opportunity to tidy up at home and, at the same time, help homeless families across the country by contributing items to the Great American Yard Sale.

Sponsored by Schweitzer Real Estate Inc./Better Homes and Gardens, the sale will be held at several locations in the area from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16. Donated items are being accepted at Schweitzer offices. Proceeds from the sale will go to the Better Homes Foundation, the nation's only organization specifically dedicated to helping homeless families.

The Great American Yard Sale will be taking place at the same time in over 135 cities and towns across the country, according to Paul Schweitzer, president of the real estate firm. "We're sponsoring the sale because we believe every American family should have a home. The homeless families have more than 500,000 children — more than half of them under age 5. It's a terrible situation and we know that people here would like to help these unfortunate kids. This is a great way to do it."

through local community organizations and service providers. Rather than simply providing emergency shelter or food, the foundation's mission is to address the long-term problems of homeless families to help get them back on their feet and on their own again.

The foundation is especially sensitive to the many needs of the children of these families. In addition to helping find housing and jobs, the foundation supports such vital services as pre-school programs; medical, dental, vision and hearing services for children; recreational and tutoring services for children; and job training, counseling and parenting workshops for parents.

The foundation was founded in 1988 by Better Homes and Gardens magazine. The magazine's readers have contributed $1 million to the effort since last Christmas, according to editor-in-chief David Jordan.
