Canton ordinance book 'hits the stands'

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

If a proposed ordinance restricting recreational vehicles is passed, this Canton resident and others will have to find storage room.

By Diane Gale
staff writer

It may never hit the best seller list, but it will tell Canton residents what they can or can't do with their property.

The new book of proposed zoning ordinances for the township is out in draft form, and it addresses everything from what materials can be used to build houses to what kind of work you can do inside your home and what you can park in your driveway and back yard.

(See related story below on recreational vehicles.)

Drafts of the bulky outline are available at the Canton administration building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

THE PROPOSED zoning ordinances likely will be reviewed by the planning commission at its next meeting on Monday, Sept. 11, and then go to the township board of trustees in October.

"Changes have been made to the zoning ordinances for more than 1½ years to better address development into the future than the current regulations do," said Dave Nicholson, Canton Community and Economic Development director, during a public hearing about the zoning changes Monday night.

Planning commissioners said Monday they would consider dividing land in Canton's northwest section and other smaller pockets of the township into two-acre parcels, or estate lots.

A Residential Agricultural designation primarily in the west central area of the township calls for 40-acre lots that would look more like a cluster of small farms than a subdivision.

THE PROPOSED ordinances also call for a new commercial zoning district, C-4, for land abutting I-275. The special designation would allow office buildings, restaurants, nightclubs and hotels similar to the Six Mile and I-275 area in Livonia.

"We're hoping it will provide a better indicator to the development world of the kind of development we want to promote in the interchange area and ultimately show them we are not encouraging fast-food restaurants and small uses in that vicinity," Nicholson said.

The township is also calling for a

Canton proposes ban on campers in driveways

If you have a recreational vehicle, start looking for a place to park it.

Strict rules on RVs were some of the proposed changes in the township's master zoning plan reviewed by the Canton planning commission Monday night.

The proposal would require RV owners to keep such vehicles at least 150 feet from property lines. In essence, the ordinance would prohibit parking the vehicles outside garages in most subdivisions.

"This is not a police state," planning commissioner Sandy Preblich, objecting to the proposal, said at the meeting.

Preblich said Canton residents have a right to entertainment and that the zoning ordinance would restrict that right.

PLANNING COMMISSIONER Cathy Johnson said the change is necessary to stop the haphazard parking of the vehicles in driveways and back yards. They are viewed as a nuisance to other residents and lower property values for the entire neighborhood, Johnson said.

"Anything that's too large to be stored in a garage should be stored off the lot," Johnson said.

"It's a shame we have to do this, but it's the few that abuse the privilege and the only way to solve it was to change the requirement," Johnson said.

A Canton homeowners advisory council, formed by subdivision residents to discuss problems common to Canton residents, fielded many complaints about where recreation vehicles are parked, Johnson said.

Preblich argued that the township should not require residents to either store the vehicles in their garages or find other storage facilities.

THE ORDINANCE would result in lawsuits, said planning commissioner Bob Shefferly.

"I don't think it's fair," he said. "I don't think it's legal. I think it's one way for our ordinances to get off on a bad start."

The ordinance defines recreational vehicles as travel trailers, pickup campers, motor homes, folding tent trailers, boats and boat trailers and other recreational equipment like

In legal limbo

Couple still seeking OK for home school

By Keith Postler
staff writer

A Canton couple who asked the state Supreme Court to rule on home schooling for their children say their case is in limbo.

The couple, John and Sandra Bennett, who teach five children at home, will ask the Supreme Court again to rule on the issue, said Sandra Bennett, adding: "It means our fight isn't over.

"We will be petitioning the state Supreme Court to hear the case, and we won't stop fighting. And, of course, I'm still home schooling. We're still in limbo. We still have a certified teacher, we're still keeping track of hours, and I still have a curriculum comparable to the local district," she said.

SINCE 1987, THE BENNETTS have been in the middle of a lengthy court battle. Their case has been shuffled between state courts as they seek a ruling on how their children can be taught at home, Sandra Bennett said.

As of Aug. 9, their case is in limbo. The Supreme Court has said it will not hear the case.

Last January, the couple asked the Supreme Court to hear the case. The court sent the case back to the Court of Appeals, which upheld a January 1987 ruling by 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald.

'There's no law that says you have to send your children to school for 800 hours or 180 days.'

— Sandra Bennett, parent

Home schools are legal, Sandra Bennett said, but how they should operate is unclear.

In January of 1987, MacDonald ordered the Bennetts to arrange for instruction by or under supervision of a certified teacher. He also ordered the Bennetts to contact Plymouth-Canton Community Schools to "comply with any requests for testing to determine their academic achievement and grade level."

The Bennetts were initially cited by the Wayne County Prosecutor's office in spring of 1986 for failing to send their children to school in the 1985-86 school year.

A major problem cited in the case is the amount of time a certified teacher is involved in the instruction.

Sandra Bennett said, "There's no law that says you have to send your children to school for 800 hours or 180 days."

The Bennetts maintain that their home school curriculum is comparable to the one provided by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

THE BENNETT CHILDREN taught at home are: Lyssa, 4, a preschooler; Krista, 11, a sixth grader; Jason, 13, an eighth grader; Erika, 15, a 10th grader and Scott, 16, an eleventh grader. The couple has one other son, Thomas, 19.

"They're doing fine," Sandra Bennett said of her children. "In fact, Scott is aiming at graduating early. And the others are coming along fine. They are at or above their grade level."

John Hoben, superintendent of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, said the real issue is how well the Bennett children are educated.

"It's obvious to me that there isn't a comparable program, and they are not getting the full range of programs, that's our major concern. They are in our attendance area, and it's our responsibility to see to it they get those programs."

Chris Klicka, the Bennett's attorney with the Home School Legal Defense Fund, said, "We are filing a petition for review. Then our hopes are that the Supreme Court will take the case and correct once and for all the problem of teacher certification."

Dog dispute disrupts mail service

By Keith Postler
staff writer

A dispute between a Canton couple and the Westland Post Office over an allegedly unrestrained dog has disrupted postal service for approximately 20 homes.

Ed and Lynn Strach, Canton residents for two years, say their mail has been delivered late to their home or held at the post office because their mail carrier is afraid of the Strach's dog, which is a male German shepherd-Irish setter mix.

"If the dog is out at the park or anywhere in the neighborhood, the mailman will not deliver the mail to the whole block," Lynn Strach said Monday.

"We've had confrontations with him in the past. He's held our mail for weeks at a time, and he's told us in so many words that he won't deliver the mail unless we get rid of the dog."

The Strachs, who moved into their home on Hanford in November 1987, said the problem with the carrier began soon afterward.

Their dog has occasionally been loose when the mailman has been in the neighborhood, but has not attacked or threatened the carrier, Lynn Strach said.

MIKE TAURENCE, postal superintendent for Westland, Wayne and Canton, said, "We do not want our carriers bit. Since May I've asked Mr. Strach to keep the dog restrained during specific times when the mail is being delivered. If the dog is loose, the carrier has the liberty of not delivering their mail. If the dog roams the neighborhood, mail delivery can be curtailed for the whole neighborhood."

Taurence said the Strachs were sent another letter last week asking them to comply with the mail carrier's wishes of keeping the dog restrained.

Tami Lamb, who lives six houses away from the Strachs, said the postal carrier failed to deliver the mail to the whole block Friday because he is afraid of the dog. The dog, she said, has never threatened anyone.

"He's been in my house, he plays

Embassy residents oppose new building

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Embassy Square subdivision residents living near a proposed office building say they don't want the noise and traffic the office will cause during the day and an empty dark building at night.

And if one has to go in, residents said, they want a greenbelt to buffer their backyards from the office building and the traffic it will bring.

More than 75 homeowners packed the township administration building Monday to oppose the rezoning request during a public hearing hosted by the planning commission.

"If this guy is going to build, another fella is going to put up more," said Shari Nash, homeowner association president of Embassy Square, located between Sheldon and Canton Center off of Saltz.

SHE ADDED, however, that residents realize Canton Center, which one day will be widened to five lanes, will be developed, but that growth needs to be done with care.

Larry Cohen, of Nelson Cohen and Associates, said the developers plan to build a one story office building on 10 acres and a subdivision on the surrounding 38 acres. The land is presently owned by Michigan State University.

"I hope they mold it and they don't just drop it in," Nash said. "We need the greenbelts and we need a real natural setting.

"It's going to be office building after office building and unless we can be compensated with a thick greenbelt we can't live that close to that kind of traffic," she said.

A Canton fencing ordinance further frustrates residents by restricting them from constructing fences on the right-of-way easement and limits them from erecting fences higher than four feet.

THE BUILDING would resemble a home more than a traditional office building, said Cohen, adding that an example of the firm's work is on Maple Road between Orchard Lake and Farmington.

After more than two hours of debate Monday the planning commission decided to recommend rezoning the land from single family residential to office.

Commissioners Richard Kirchgatter, Dick Palmer and Cathy Johnson voted in favor of recommending rezoning. commissioners Bob Shefferly and Sandy Preblich voted against the change, and commissioners John Burdziak and Victor Gustafson were absent.

More than likely, Nash said, the homeowner's association will petition the board of trustees with 296 signatures opposing the rezoning.

Carrier stops delivery because of large dog with my children. He's a big dog and I've never seen him threaten anyone, strangers or friends. He's a playful dog," she said.

LAMB SAID the dog has been loose occasionally. "But he has not been loose every day. Mrs. Strach makes concerted efforts to keep the dog indoors when the mail is delivered, but accidents happen. If the dog is out and the postal carrier sees him, he won't deliver the mail."

"He's a big dog and he's loud, but I don't see him chasing cars when he's out or anything else," Lamb said.

Lloyd Wesley, postmaster for Wayne, Westland and Canton said that attacks by dogs are the biggest problem nationwide that postal carriers face. As many as 10 postal carriers this year have been bitten by dogs in Wayne, Westland and Canton neighborhoods, Wesley said.

Taurence said the postal carrier has been challenged before by the Strachs' dog. "He's jumped the fence to go after him, he's approached him threateningly," he said.

"Since day one, he has just been afraid of the dog," Lynn Strach said. "I guess he's just afraid of dogs because he's been bitten before."

"He claims the dog is vicious, but he's never bitten anyone. He's never even attempted to bite anyone. He looks vicious and he has a loud bark, but he's never bitten anyone," she said.

Tami Lamb thinks the problem is personal. The carrier, she said, parks his vehicle in front of the Strachs' house every day.

"That only agitates the dog, which makes me think this is personal," she said.

Taurence said the solution to the problem is simple. "Keep the dog in the house during the hours that we've asked, and they will get their mail. If all the doors are closed, and the dog is indoors, the carrier will make every attempt to deliver the mail."

Home school in limbo

"I think the real issue is state control, to put it simply. The state is trying to control private education more than other states. I think it's a constitutional violation of the Bennetts' rights," he said.

Klicka said he believed the state should prove that teacher certification makes a difference in the performance of children schooled at home.

diversity in construction materials, like those used in Novi, Nicholson said, adding that would provide for more attractive fronts on businesses.

"Particularly related to commercial construction, we're requiring a reasonable mix of materials," he said, adding that the plan would sidetrack developers who try to use one less desirable material throughout a project.

Additionally, landscaping guidelines were reorganized in the new ordinance booklet.

"We're still requiring construction of berms, landscaped with appropriate shrubs, trees and sod," Nicholson said. "And we require they be irrigated with sprinkler systems.

"Over years, we've been adding to the zoning ordinances and they became more hodge-podged."

snowmobiles, all-terrain or special terrain vehicles, utility trailers and the equipment to transport them on the highway.

Residents would be allowed to temporarily park RVs in the driveway before or after a trip in order to load or unload it.

"Temporary parking is permitted for a period of not more than 24 hours prior to and 24 hours after use of the vehicle within a seven-day period," the proposal says.

No spearing

Plymouth, Canton coaches work to keep football safe

By Keith Postler
staff writer

Each year junior high and high school football players are injured as a result of illegal spearing and face and head tackling. Some of the injuries are so severe they result in paralyzing injury or a young athlete never again playing his favorite sport at the competitive level.

To help address this problem, the Michigan High School Athletic Association in August encourages junior high and high school football coaches to warn their players of the dangers associated with the sport, to stress proper, legal techniques and to inform concerned parents of their efforts.

Bob Khoenle, beginning his 13th season as head coach at Plymouth-Canton High School, said, "There's always an element of danger no matter what you do, but we always try to teach the proper techniques. We over-emphasize that the head has to come up with contact. A kid gets hurt if he's not in a proper hitting position. We stress this a lot: Head up, tail down."

PARENTS SHOULD be aware that spearing, butt blocking and face and head tackling are illegal.

The danger in these techniques is that too often a player's head is not in the proper position when contact is made with the opponent.

The neck is most vulnerable to injury. A blow to the top of the head when the neck is straightened is the most frequent cause of permanent injury.

Parents should insist — and coaches have an obligation to ensure — that players are taught only proper techniques, Khoenle said. Players should be instructed to keep their heads up and necks bulled when making contact with opponents. The players should be warned about putting their heads down and intiating contact.

"WE STESS being aggressive, not being afraid to be hit," Khoenle said. "I think if the kids follow those things and take people on in a good hitting fashion, kids won't get hurt. If they are taught well and do what they're told, I think serious injuries can be eliminated."

"I honestly don't believe that any coach teaches a kid to spear, per se, but I think a lot of kids do it unknowingly. They go to hit someone thinking they're doing it right and put their head in the wrong place.

"I just think it happens. I don't think any coach would teach a kid to do that; I know we don't. And I don't believe any kid would do it knowingly, intentionally, some kids are just more aggressive than others."

MHSAA RULES say that warning labels must be placed on football helmets, informing the player that he is taking a risk if he engages in a high contact sport such as football.

The MHSAA also sends posters to football coaches that help explain the dangers and how they can be avoided, said Plymouth-Salem head coach Tom Moshimer. now in his 23rd season at Plymouth-Salem said his players never have been seriously injured over the years and they are only taught proper techniques.

"We teach them that spearing is illegal; we tell them that using their head as a weapon is not allowed. We know there will be incidental contact but that intentional contact that may cause injury is illegal," he said.

MOSHIMER SAID his coaching staff meets each year with parents to bring them up to date with the football program and what steps are taken to teach proper techniques and prevent serious injury.

In an Aug. 14 letter to all principals and superintendents whose schools sponsor junior high and high school football programs, the MHSAA encouraged coaches to:

- Point out all forseeable dangers for each student in all prep sports;
- Follow all MHSAA rules;
- Teach correct procedures, techniques and conditioning;
- Take positive steps when disciplining a student who has violated a rule involving safety. Create a positive learning environment;
- Keep thorough records of all practice sessions and the techniques that are taught;
- Establish a set, written procedure in the event of injury during practice and games.

'There's always an element of danger no matter what you do, but we always try to teach the proper techniques. We over-emphasize that the head has to come up with contact. A kid gets hurt if he's not in a proper hitting position. We stress this a lot: Head up, tail down.'

Businesses recovering after fire in Plymouth

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Warren Bradburn, owner of Air-Tite Insulation in the Old Village section of Plymouth, was trying to make the best of a bad situation earlier this week.

Two small warehouses loaded with insulation and housing several vehicles used in the business burned to the ground Friday during a fire that investigators now believe was accidentally ignited.

"We have enough (materials) to get by with," Bradburn said Monday. "Builders understand. 'You have a fire,' they said, 'We'll put your job off a day or two.'

"We'll rent some trucks temporarily," Bradburn said. "Where there's a will, there's a way. I've got some good people working for me. It's working a lot smoother than I thought it would."

Insurance claims adjusters were due on the scene Monday afternoon.

FIRE CHIEF Al Matthews didn't have a damage estimate as of Monday. The warehouses were destroyed.

"It's still under investigation," Matthews said. "Preliminary investigation shows an accidental cause at this time."

Bradburn said he intends to rebuild. He doesn't expect any layoffs from his work force of 15 as a result of the fire.

"In all fairness, the buildings weren't that valuable," he said. "No records were hurt or lost. No one was hurt. Material loss is very high."

His supplier is cooperating, Bradburn said.

Insulation trucked from Ohio will be stored at a barn owned by his son in Whitmore Lake and perhaps in a warehouse in Plymouth made available by Torb Guenther, Bradburn said.

EMPLOYEES WHO normally load insulation on trucks on Saturday worked later Friday because they wanted Saturday off, Bradburn said.

One employee found an old book of matches and tossed the matches on the floor when they seemingly wouldn't ignite, Bradburn said. Fire subsequently broke out in thin wood bins at about 7:30 p.m. and spread in both warehouses, Bradburn said.

He had nothing but praise for the work of firefighters.

"They did a super job," Bradburn said. "That fire was big and it was hot."

No serious injuries were reported during firefighting and cleanup efforts, which lasted until about 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

SEVERAL business people who leased space from Bradburn in the warehouses and an adjacent building also were affected by the blaze.

Chuck Cash, who owns a building company, figures the fire will cost him about $5,000 after his insurance company settles on tools lost in the blaze.

Greg Blagus, who operates a two-man machine shop on the site, was in limbo earlier this week.

"The insurance guy has to look at things, see if they can rebuild buildings," Blagus said. "If my motors aren't cooked, I'll be back.

"The tentative plan now is move all machines to one side, use machines, make repairs, then move to the other side," he said. "One way or another, we'll be making crankshafts in September no matter what."

Jerry Farrell, owner of OK Fire Equipment, said he lost a truck and all of his inventory — fire extinguishers, parts and materials — in the fire.

Farrell spent most of Monday explaining to customers.

"It's kind of interesting to be in the fire extinguishing business and be burned out," he said.

Farrell projected his out-of-pocket losses even with insurance at $15,000-20,000.

Plymouth car cruising increased this August

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Cruising, the phenomenon of young people clogging city streets and sidewalks to see and be seen, is increasing on Main in Plymouth as summer winds down.

That pattern contrasts to recent years where cruising started off with a bang when warm weather arrived, peaked in July, then tailed off as the beginning of school neared.

Police were as busy with traffic and crowd control last weekend as they've been all summer, city officials said.

"It's been getting worse the last three weeks in particular," said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

'It has been getting worse the last three weeks in particular.'

—Paul Sincock assistant to city manager

Dozens of tickets were issued last weekend for alcohol-related violations and trespassing, most to people younger than 25 who don't live in the community.

THE ALCOHOL offenses included minors in possession, open intoxicants in cars and drinking in public, said Police Chief Richard Myers.

Neither Myers nor Sincock could say why cruising seems to be picking up steam so late in the season.

Left turns were prohibited from southbound Main to eastbound Ann Arbor Road and right turns from westbound Ann Arbor Road to northbound Main Friday and Saturday in an effort to deal with traffic bottlenecks.

A paint splat gun was confiscated, and two Plymouth Township teens were ticketed late Sunday night for launching a projectile from a moving car. No injuries were reported.

"We have received some telephone complaints about noise, parking, litter," Sincock said. "I think residents and business are much more sensitive to our efforts."

THE CITY this year hired three temporary officers to help respond to cruising-related problems.

Canton bank gets bomb threats crime watch

A clerk at Heritage Bank on Cherry Hill told Canton police a man with a deep voice called the bank about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 16, saying there was a bomb in the building, Canton police reported.

A caller, believed to be the same man, threatened employees July 23 saying there was a bomb in the building.

He tried to extort money at that time, police reported.

No bomb was found, police said.

HOME THEFT: A Sheldon Road apartment dweller told police a $310 video cassette recorder was stolen from his home last weekend, police reported. Damage to the unit was listed at $55.

CLEAN SWEEP: A floor buffer, valued at $1,000, a word processor valued at $2,000 and a $20 check book were reported stolen from Accurate Janitor Service on Canton Center last weekend.

Damage to the building was listed at $100, police reported. The company owners reside in the building.

SNEAKY APPLICANT: A woman, believed to be about 30 years old, applied for a job at the Dress Barn in Canton and then began shopping, police reported.

When she walked into the fitting room, store employees reported, that she removed five or six tags from clothing. It is believed the tags would have been used to return items at a later time.

Other Dress Barns have reported similar incidents, according to Canton police.

Area U.S. House delegation faces changes

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

It is certain Michigan will be a big population loser once 1990 census figures are compiled.

But it's more than a question of numbers on a page. The 1990 census could bring profound changes in the state's Congressional delegation — including western Wayne County's three Congressional seats.

Most political observers expect Michigan to lose up to two of its 18 House of Representative seats as a result of the next census.

"I think that's a pretty good prediction — two seats," said David Geiss, a spokesman for Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, whose district includes Garden City, Westland, Canton Township and southern Livonia.

Which seats will be lost is uncertain. Yet each of the area's three seats — the 2nd, 15th and 17th — were projected as population losers in a nationwide survey compiled for Congressional Quarterly.

That means they are vulnerable, if not to elimination, then to boundary re-drawing. If either happens, area residents currently represented by Ford, Sander Levin or Carl Pursell might find themselves annexed to someone else's district by the time the 1992 elections roll around.

"It's fair to expect every district will face some kind of change," said Pursell, R-Plymouth, whose district includes city of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and northern Livonia.

THE BIGGEST population loser — and most vulnerable to change — appears to be the 17th District, which includes Redford Township. The seat is held by Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

"He's very concerned about the census," Levin spokeswoman Cynthia Mann said. "The Congressman is meeting with the governor and the state Congressional delegation to assure we can come up with a way to make sure everyone is counted."

A survey of the nation's 435 House districts found Levin's the sixth biggest population loser, by percentage, for the years 1980-86. District population shrunk by nearly 6 percent over that period, according to the survey.

"Obviously, that concerns us greatly," Mann said.

Ford's district, the 15th and Pursell's, the 2nd, were not ranked among the top 10 population losers. They are, however, included in the list of Frost Belt seats expected to see population decreases.

That group includes almost "all House seats in a straight line from western Pennsylvania and New York State to western Iowa.

"It's not surprising," Pursell said. "The Sun Belt is growing and that's where our party is concentrating its strategy."

The burning question in all this is whether the GOP will pick up House seats as population dwindles in large cities and their older, industrialized suburbs — traditional Democratic strongholds.

THE ANSWER depends upon who's doing the drawing.

Congressional districts are drawn up by governors, state Houses and state Senates. "That's what happens if they agree," Geiss said. "If they don't, it winds up in (state supreme) court."

With the governorship and state House in Democratic control and with a 20-18 GOP edge in the state Senate, next year's state races take on even greater importance.

Even though they aren't required to follow geographic boundaries, boundary plans must be roughly equal in population. A 1983 U.S. Supreme Court decision ruled districts must be drawn to assure the smallest possible variance.

A 1982 amendment to the nation's Voting Rights Act is seen as protecting districts with heavy minority populations against widespread re-districting.

MET: Safe bet or risky wager?

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Is the Michigan Education Trust in trouble?

Figures released Wednesday show it will cost at least 8.8 percent more to enroll in the MET program this year. Both program supporters and detractors long knew increases were coming.

They disagree, however, on whether increases will mean a short future for the 2-year-old program.

•Financial planners, skeptical from the outset, are even more skeptical now that enrollment costs are expected to rise. One planner, Walter Curtis, of Livonia-based W. Curtis and Co., predicted the state would eventually eliminate the program.

"TUITIONS ARE going up at a much faster rate than they've projected," Curtis said. "What does that tell you about MET?"

A local MET board member, however, said the state-sponsored program is still the best guarantee of a college education a parent can give a child.

"We're working with the colleges, and I expect there will be some meeting of the minds on tuition," said Schoolcraft College president Richard McDowell.

A pet project of Gov. James Blanchard, MET was introduced to guarantee higher education would continue to be affordable for middle and lower income students.

One year ago, parents of newborn children paid $6,756 to guarantee four year's state college tuition for the youngster. This year's Oct. 2-6 enrollment period seeks a payment of $7,664.

•Rising tuition at Michigan's 15 public universities is the driving force behind the expected MET increase. The problem, board members admit, is keeping enrollment fees low enough to attract mid- to low-income parents while keeping the trust fund solvent.

"We feel very confident with everything we did last year, but now we're a year more knowledegable," state Treasurer Robert Bowman said.

Financial planners, however, said Bowman's original estimates may have been overly optimistic.

"I THOUGHT they were aggressive with their actuarial tables last year," said Bert Whitehead of Bloomfield Hills-based Cambridge Associates. "My gut feeling is this year is not going to be so good."

Tuition increases are a problem, McDowell said, but they are to be expected.

"I wish they weren't there, we all do," he said. "But, as a college president, I know they are sometimes necessary. Tuition is a direct response to the ability of the state to provide appropriations to its colleges."

Richard McDowell

'It's still the way to go because of that (tuition) guarantee.'
— Richard McDowell, MET trustee

Because MET can also be used for lower-priced community colleges, McDowell said, many parents might opt to have their children spend their first two years at a community college, then transfer to a four-year institution.

If MET fails, Whitehead said, the problem may lie more in competitive rival programs than in flaws with MET itself.

"U.S. Savings Bonds are now an attractive option," Whitehead said. Savings bonds deferred for education are now tax exempt, he said, making them a viable option for parents concerned about MET's future.

Another option, according to Curtis, is a revocable living trust.

Financed through stocks, bonds, real estate, or any other investment source, the trust would revert back to the donor if not used for a designated purpose.

"If it was for education, it would have to go for education," Curtis said. "If your daughter turned 18 and decided to run off to California with her boyfriend rather than go to college, she wouldn't be able to touch that money."

McDowell, though, said MET's guarantee of tuition at state colleges will continue to make the program attractive.

"It's still the way to go because of that guarantee," McDowell said. "I have three daughters of my own so I'm well aware that, no matter how hard you try, you can never save enough to get the job done."

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

County guide available

Suburban Wayne County's population exceeded that of the city of Detroit in 1986, the first time that has happened in the post-World War II period.

A mid-term census showed there were 1,088,780 residents in Wayne County suburbs, compared with 1,086,220 Detroit residents.

That information and other tidbits about Wayne County and its government is contained in a newly-published League of Women Voters county guidebook.

It is the first time the league has published a county guide since 1974.

County history, government, finance, courts, social programs, public services, regional governmental authorities and elections are discussed in successive chapters. The history of the newly-refurbished Wayne County building is described in the book's appendix.

All county government departments and their functions are described.

The guide also includes maps of state, federal and county commission election districts.

Copies of the guide can be reserved by calling the Livonia League of Women Voters chapter, 476-8846, or the Northville-Canton-Plymouth-Novi chapter, 349-3555.

The project was financed, in part, through a grant from the Michigan Council for the Humanities.

Sweet celebration

No, it isn't a Lincoln Town Car but this 2,000-pound, almond chiffon cake is a tribute to the soon-to-be-deleted car line and marks the start of production of the new 1990 model at Ford Motor Co.'s Wixom Assembly Plant. Student chefs from the Schoolcraft College culinary arts department baked the cake, using 3,600 egg, 1,000 pounds of flour and 1,000 pounds of sugar. The tasty car rolled off the assembly line, with lights flashing, Wednesday. The paint job is actually 120 pounds of Swiss molding chocolate. Windows are made of gelatin. The trim includes over 400 pounds of frosting, cherry, apricot and apple fillings. A master carpenter, father of one of the chefs, assembled a wooden chassis to hold the cake. Chefs worked around the clock for three days to assemble the car. They hope their efforts land them in the Guinness Book of World Records. Chef Larry Pizzorni (left) cuts the cake for Ford employees on hand for the celebration.

Legislators brace for changes

Through that amendment, aggrieved parties aren't required to prove there was an intent to dilute their particular voting bloc; they need only prove dilution will occur.

That fact could become an issue in Michigan re-districting. Rep. George Crockett's downtown Detroit district was listed as the nation's top population loser, with a 13.6 percent decline from 1980-86. The 1st District seat held by Detroit mayoral candidate John Conyers Jr. ranked fourth in terms of population loss with a 6.3 percent decline.

When state politicians actually sit down at the table to re-draw boundaries, however, those factors may matter less than the seniority of the House members whose districts they are carving.

"Generally, you don't find long-time House members losing their districts," said Pursell, a House member since 1977. "That generally happens to freshmen."

But given the heavy seniority of most Michigan House members, Pursell said, anything could happen.

"You might find some veteran members retiring and that could alter the picture," he said.

Ford has been a House member since 1965. Levin has served since 1983.

Michigan's House delegation stood at an all time high of 19 after the 1970 census, but dropped to 18 after the 1980 census.

Pay raises

A better system is needed

High-quality work deserves high-quality pay. Without it, there wouldn't be too many people lining up to run for public office. Good pay scales help attract the best and the brightest. And that's what Canton deserves.

WHEN ANYBODY starts talking about pay raises for those who hold political office, the air seems to automatically become cloudy.

The media always runs to report any hint that there will be a pay raise or cut. It's our job. But often we wonder if all the fuss over pay raises is really in the best interest of the township and its residents.

High quality work deserves high quality pay. Without it, there wouldn't be too many people lining up to run for public office. Good pay scales help attract the best and the brightest. And that's what Canton deserves.

But while we have reservations about the manner in which salaries of public officials are discussed, we do support 100 percent the full disclosure of salaries and benefits.

The public airing of officials' salaries benefits us all.

But then there's the proposal by Canton trustee Robert Shefferly to scrap scheduled pay raises for the Supervisor Tom Yack, treasurer Jerry Brown and clerk Loren Bennett.

We think the pay raises should come off as scheduled. Things shouldn't be changed in midstream. However, we do think that there's much room for improvement in the way salaraies are set for elected township officials.

SHEFFERLY SAYS that instead of granting the raises, the township board should start a compensation commission to set salaries.

But while Shefferly's idea sounds good, it doesn't always work. State government salaries are set by such commissions, and there are loud howls each year when salary increases are announced.

Such commissions can only work properly when designed correctly. The appointments to such commissions are what determines what happens. And by starting such a commission, a whole new system evolves.

And often, with such commissions there's less control of salaries than there was before.

We think that the proper forum for salary increases for elected officers is at the township board level. Sure, there's politics involved, but better to have pay issues discussed in an open meeting than to have committees dealing with them.

Also, by having the township board take responsibility, there's somebody to shoulder the blame.

One of Shefferly's contentions is that the current system of granting elected officials pay raises isn't good. We agree with him.

Under the system, salaries for elected officials are tied to those of department heads. Shefferly says that linking the two is like comparing apples and oranges.

He says that department heads are executives who are experts in their fields, career people who should be judged on their accomplishments.

We're opposed to linking salaries because it spreads the responsibility for raising them. When salaries are raised people point to the formula or the linking as being responsible for the raise.

We agree with Scheffery that the linking system should be scrapped, but we think that the pay raises already scheduled should take effect. But after that, the pay policy should be revised.

We'd suggest that a salary commission composed of members of the public, business people and elected officials be appointed. They could look at salaries and make recommendations to the township board.

However, the township board should make the final determination. It's a tough issue for them to deal with. There's a lot of politics involved. But at least it's out in the open, and the it will be clear to the public who is making the decision.

Silverdome

Time to cut money loser loose

If the Silverdome is to make it, it should be made to do so on its own, without burdening taxpayers or hotel owners who benefit little.

THE SILVERDOME should be cut adrift. Time has passed it by. The Detroit Piston's have moved, the Michigan Panthers are history, and the Dome experienced a $1.5 million deficit last year. Now baby boomers who crammed the facility to watch rock concerts, are seeking a seat in a more intimate setting.

That's why we believe that Pontiac State Rep. Charlie Harrison's legislation to increase the hotel tax in Oakland County to shore up a struggling concern is nothing more than throwing good money after bad.

FOR YEARS the taxpayers of Michigan have been forced to subsidize this business to the tune of $800,000 annually. Initially, many supported the concept with good reason. Pontiac was a struggling city. The Silverdome, it was argued, would attract new businesses, create jobs and bring a renewed prosperity to the area.

But none of that has happened. Although Oakland County has experienced a breath-taking economic expansion, Pontiac still struggles. And the area around the Silverdome is barren.

To add insult to injury, struggling Pontiac residents have been forced to fork over $1.2 million a year to support what has become the white elephant of arena's in the Detroit area.

And that $1.2 million would go a long way in helping out a city badly in need of more cash.

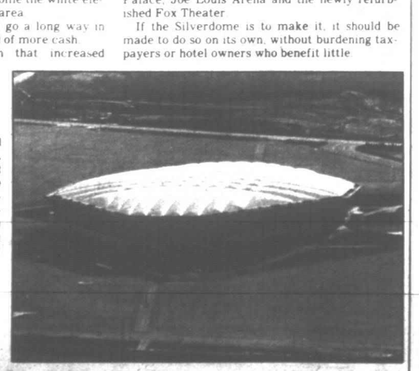
Silverdome officials claim that increased funding will enable them to bring new events to the Silverdome. But taxpayers shouldn't be forced to gamble on what has proven to be a risky investment.

When first constructed, the Silverdome was a state-of-the-art facility. Seating 80,500, with 102 private suites and an inflatable roof to keep out the cruel Michigan winters, it was a sight to behold.

But nine football games from a perennial loser with a few tractor pulls in between a financial success does not make.

Bringing new events to the Silverdome will be nothing more than window dressing. In truth, the Silverdome was built in a location destined to fail. It is like an aging automobile, out-of-style and run down. Fans are flocking to more sophisticated and contemporary facilities such as the Palace, Joe Louis Arena and the newly refurbished Fox Theater.

If the Silverdome is to make it, it should be made to do so on its own, without burdening taxpayers or hotel owners who benefit little.



The Silverdome experienced a $1.5 million deficit last year. That's why we believe that Pontiac State Rep. Charlie Harrison's legislation to increase the hotel tax in Oakland County to shore up a struggling concern is nothing more than throwing good money after bad.

Lone crusader seeks support for just cause

Steve Barnaby

I'VE NEVER been one for petitions. But join me in helping Sharon LeMieux get her's signed.

Her cause is just.

Chances are you've seen her around town. She's a photographer who works with the Observer & Eccentric on occasion. But a bigger story lurks behind the camera work she does for this newspaper.

You ought to know about it.

Sharon, a former Oakland University student, is fighting to save the reputation of an organization to which she is very committed. Unfortunately, some in that organization feel Sharon's concern is unwarranted.

She is one of the many young women who signed up with the Jaycees earlier this decade after the courts struck down the all-male membership barrier.

As a young businesswoman, Sharon was anxious to join a group which offered contacts with other people her age who share similar interests and ambitions. The Jaycees sounded like the right choice.

She takes the organization and its bylaws seriously. And one section of those bylaws say the Jaycees oppose discrimination.

Now, Sharon thinks the organization should give this issue more than lip service.

HER CONSCIENCE was jogged earlier this year after listening to a report on National Public Radio which chronicled a blatant case of racial discrimination by a local chapter of the Jaycees in Salud, S.C.

Outraged, she brought the tape to my office. To make sure I listened, she also dropped off a tape player.

I, too, was outraged.

In short, black children were forbidden the use of a swimming pool owned by the local Jaycee chapter. The children were part of an interracial group from a local Methodist Church.

The incident, she says, gives a black eye to Jaycees around the country.

"It goes against what the Jaycees stand for," she says. "Here we are with bylaws which say we don't believe in discrimination. Now, what's wrong with saying (to the public) we don't believe in discrimination?"

And the best way to say it, she believes, is by launching a recruitment program to encourage minorities to join the Jaycees.

"We think this is a moral issue. Now is a good opportunity to make a statement against racism," she says.

But she has met resistance. An attempt to make a statement about her concerns at the recent state convention in Traverse City was rejected. A call to a national Jaycee officer brought a ho-hum reaction.

But she has had better luck on other levels. Along with a hand full like-minded Jaycees, she is calling upon local chapters to speak out on this issue. Some chapters have been receptive.

"Everyone who isn't a state official says 'get on the bandwagon,' she says.

She hopes that the local chapters can bring state and national officers to their senses by submitting petitions expressing their concern.

If you want to help out Sharon, give her a call at 584-4288.

Give freedom to choose

To the editor:

Last week, Patricia Shea, who is against abortion, wrote, "(Women) have a choice . . . not to get pregnant."

What would Ms. Shea say to the women whose birth control fails them? What would she say to the women for whom the IUD is the birth control of choice? An IUD prevents the implanation of a fertilized egg — some groups pushing to outlaw abortion are also working to outlaw the IUD. What would Ms. Shea say to the rape victim who finds herself pregnant as a result of her attack? Or to a woman who learns through prenatal testing that the fetus she is carrying suffers from handicaps she is incapable of handling?

I am the mother of two children; I have had one miscarriage. I grieve over the latter as I rejoice in the lives of the former. But if I ever found myself in any of the above situations I want the choice to make my own decision! It is not a decision made lightly and it is one that a woman lives with forever. However, I would prefer to take responsibility for living with my choice than to have my life ruled by a group of people whose beliefs I DO NOT SHARE.

Outlawing abortion will not stop women from seeking them. Better we should work to find new methods of safe and effective birth control for women and men. Better we should make honest efforts to educate our children about taking responsibility for their sexuality. But the above will never come to pass in the absolute. Safe and legal abortions must be available.

I know I cannot win Ms. Shea to my side any more than she can prevail upon me to support hers. But the beauty of a pluralistic democracy, as we once had, is that there is room for both of our beliefs.

Ms. Shea, let your conscience guide your reproductive decisions. And please, allow me the freedom to have my conscience be my guide as well.

Drunk driving laws are joke

To The editor:

It is no wonder that the citizens in the Tri-County Area think our drunk driving rules and drug related offenses are a joke. We have recently had three cases that have been very prominent in the media both locally and out of state and are considered very, very serious offenses of the drunk driving laws of our state and our community. I am referring to (state Rep. Dennis) Dutko, (Detroit Red Wings Robert) Probert and (Petr) Klima.

Students Against Driving Drunk and Mothers Against Drunk Drivers must feel very frustrated. How can you expect students, athletes or the youth of our communities to pay any attention to your laws or the threat of punishment. You have Mr. Dutko with his drunk driving record. He is finally caught, he finds religion (so to speak), and is remorseful until he realizes he was not going to get his sentence changed or lessened. He, therefore, has reneged on his promises. Mr. Klima and Mr. Probert have lied consistently about their remorse. Each time they are given another chance by our extremely liberal judges who do not have the foresight or guts to sentence according to what these serious offenses necessitate.

When it comes to drunk driving, our entire judicial system and laws are a joke. How do you expect athletes to be told not to do steroids, drugs or alcohol because if they do they will be penalized. The Red Wings took Klima and Probert back at every opportunity, for the sake of winning.

It's very sad and frustrating when you're working with our youth or even adults in trying to impress that when you do drugs it's bad for you.

Like classical music? Tune to WQRS today

Tim Richard

MY FISHIN' buddy hoisted a cup of java and said, "I learned to like classical music from the radio, too.

"When I was a kid, my mom would listen to the soap operas on the radio, and they had classical themes. I would play with my toys and listen to the music. Those were pleasant associations."

That was similar to how I learned to appreciate the classics. I'll share some of those delightful explorations with you at 9 this evening on WQRS, 105.1 on the FM dial.

Yep, I'm the guest Bach jock on "Guess Who's Playing the Classics" with Charles Greenwell, a cascade of knowledge on the subject. But more of Chas. later.

MY FAVORITE radio program as a kid was "The Lone Ranger," which used a lot of classical music between acts, not just the finale of Rossini's "William Tell" overture.

"The Lone Ranger" originated 50 years ago in Detroit. The reason I know that is because WQRS played "William Tell" earlier this year on the anniversary. I called Dick Wallace, the mid-day DJ, and suggested one could do a whole program of "Lone Ranger" music. He allowed as to how it was a good idea. Little did I realize I'd get to do the program myself tonight.

As the plot developed, they'd play Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" overture. For Indian scenes, they'd play a minor key excerpt from Borodin's "Polovtsian Dances," originally intended to describe Mongol tribes on the steppes of Asia.

As the Lone Ranger and Tonto wised up to the bad guys and closed in, they'd play Liszt's "Les Preludes."

A LOT OF old-time kids' programs used classical themes. "Challenge of the Yukon," about Sgt. Preston and his dog King, used Reznicek's "Donna Diana" overture. "The Green Hornet" theme was Rimsky-Korsakov's "Flight of the Bumblebee."

You could get a tremendous schooling in the classics on AM radio in those days.

Monday evenings you could catch "The Telephone Hour" with guest artists like Lauritz Melchior and the legendary violinist Fritz Kreisler. The latter helped turn me into a violin zealot.

He programmed a full two hours and 12 minutes, with intermission, of high quality opuses. The kids didn't run up and down the aisle to the restroom. They didn't twitch and fidget or buzz to each other. They didn't slump and doze off. Everyone paid rapt attention.

That was superb programming.

Well, station manager Dave Wagner has approved, with compliments, my list of recordings for this evening. Here's hoping I can do for others what "The Lone Ranger" and Valter Poole did for me back in the Pleistocene Era of my youth.

TRIVIA QUESTION: On the "Lone Ranger" radio program, who was trumpet soloist in the "William Tell" overture?

First clue: Since the program originated in Detroit, you can guess which orchestra was employed. Second clue: The musician is still active in the Detroit area, though not with the DSO.

Stay tuned.

Seeing profit in fear

Jack Gladden

LISTEN, BOSS, it's not that I don't like working here, but I think I've figured out how to make it big with that desktop publishing program my wife gave me for Christmas.

So if I don't show up at the office some day, it probably won't be because I won on the Lotto, but because I have cornered the market on what I predict will be the Hula Hoop of the '90s, the pet rock of the Regressive Era, the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles of the Age of Panic.

I'm going after government contracts to produce and market danger signs and warning labels. The way I see it, Sam Walton will be coming to me for loans in a matter of months.

If I succeed in becoming the Croesus of Doom, the Sultan of Fear, I'll owe my inspiration to the Livonia City Council. That august body has decided that Livonians who choose to (gasp! choke!) use liquid chemical fertilizers to green up their lawns must first have a warning sign posted to alert their neighbors to the danger involved.

"FAILURE to give notice to neighboring residents that a chemical fertilizer will be applied to a lawn is deemed to be a menace to the health, safety and welfare of children and others in the city," the ordinance reads in part.

Significantly, the ordinance doesn't deal with the potentially more hazardous applications of pesticides and weed killers. The state is working on that one. If a bill now under consideration by the Legislature becomes law, lawns across Michigan will be sprouting signs warning of the hazardous elements lurking among the blades of bluegrass and fescue.

And that's where I come in. Custom-made signs, frivolous or fearful, stern or startling, with or without skulls and crossbones. One hair-raising sign for a particularly threatening lawn or a hundred gross of signs with generic warnings. You name it, I'll supply it. There's money to be made here.

When the killer-lawn business is exhausted, there are plenty of other voids to be filled. I've already missed out on the cigarette business. Too bad. Opening a carton of cigarettes today is like breaking into a case of misfortune cookies. The surgeon general has a different warning for every occasion.

Business places in California are now required to post warning signs if smoking is allowed anywhere in the building. The signs have to say something to the effect that "This facility permits smoking and tobacco smoke is known to the state to cause cancer." The warning is required under Proposition 65 that requires California businesses to warn anyone who might be exposed to chemicals known to the state to cause cancer or birth defects.

As of April 1 of this year, the California list included 224 such substances, ranging from snuff to testosterone. I'm thinking about a warning label on a belt buckle for that one.

The liquor business is another fertile field, but I'm probably too late for that, also. Starting this fall, alcoholic beverage containers will contain labels warning pregnant women against drinking and telling others that alcohol can impair driving ability. And I never knew that.

CLOSER to home, some of the newer gasoline pumps around the area are sporting signs that proclaim "Inhaling gasoline vapors has been shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals." Another opportunity missed.

But there's still enough to go around. I envision cholesterol warnings on milk cartons, egg crates and ice cream bars. I'm working on a stamp — "Too much cholesterol can be hazardous to your health" — to imprint on those little butter patties used in restaurants.

And I'm also thinking about a dye marker for meat processing plants. Right under the blue ink that says "USDA inspected" on that top sirloin would be smaller letters: "Too much red meat is bad for you."

I think I can get a lock-up on caffeine warnings for the coffee, tea and soft drink industries and several food service companies have expressed interest in similar labels for their vending machines and the cups in which the drinks are dispensed.

But my first project is for the auto companies. I'm working with a tool and die maker to get a label to be imprinted on the front of all cars and trucks: "Warning: Stepping in front of this vehicle while it's in motion can be hazardous to your health."

Once I sell Roger Smith on that one, I'll get back to dealing with the killer grass in Livonia.

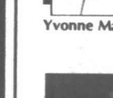
Use peers for homework help



Doc Doyle

Q: Our oldest child will be entering the ninth grade this fall and we have always prided ourselves in being able to help him with his homework. Our son does quite well in school. He carries a 3.5 average. However, looking over the materials he will be working on in math at the 10th grade level and looking at our neighbor boy's books in science and math at the 12th grade level, I do not see how we will be able to help with his homework. In fact, it gets more difficult each year for us even though we both graduated from high school. We worry about this because when he was in elementary and middle school, we could help him with his school work. Do you have any suggestions?

A: Join the crowd. My homework services for my children — in some areas — peaked at about the 11th grade, especially trigonometry.

Recognize that you are one of many parents who go through this metamorphosis. For instance many basic concepts of geometry we parents had at the 10th grade level years ago are now being taught at the middle school and even upper elementary level. Many high school chemistry concepts taught today were college chemistry concepts taught 20 years ago.

Nevertheless, since your son has maintained a 3.5 average, you obviously have been doing many things right over the years. Your question is, what can you now do to help your son as he moves into the higher level curriculum areas which you have little background in or have forgotten.

First, your son needs to continue in the established regular study schedule you indicated he follows. Indeed, all children/students need a set-aside study period — and no TV. By having a regular study time set aside, children will view this time in the same manner as they view dinner time: "It's time to eat," "it's time to study." Be consistent, but not compulsive if some special event comes up.

Next, your son should find a peer tutor who is a "star" in Algebra II, his present problem. Forming a peer study group for those courses that are giving him trouble is ideal. Encourage these peer study sessions at your home (serve pizza, make it fun). We had many brainstorming peer study sessions in our home for our children. After the usual adolescent gossip about boys, girls, teachers and parents, the work session always became productive. Adolescent peers have such loyalty to each other (peer group loyalty) that the atmosphere tends to be a non-threatening, nurturing experience for those students in the group who may be struggling with a certain course.

Not only does a peer tutor or a peer support study group do wonders for the students who are falling behind but also crystallizes the knowledge for the "star students" by the very nature they are acting as teachers.

Finally, know your child's teachers, know their expectations, set up meetings with teachers if needed, attend parent-teacher conferences and demonstrate a continuing interest.

Cooler summer still drives up electric use

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Air conditioning, once considered a luxury, is becoming a summertime necessity.

Despite cooler temperatures, spokesmen for Michigan's two largest utilities said there were more air conditioners than in past years. They were running longer too.

Detroit Edison and Consumer's Power spokesmen said electricity sales could approach 1988 records by the time final figures are compiled.

"I'd guess this summer's overall figures would be less," Detroit Edison spokesman Marty Bufalini said. "How much less, I can't say. While we've had fewer peak days, we're finding daily use is up."

Edison, electricity supplier for metropolitan Detroit, recorded its all time peak Aug. 2, 1988, with over 9.1 million kilowatts of electricity used.

WHILE IT didn't top that record, this summer's peak — 8.7 million kilowatts on July 10 — was the second most active day in company history.

"We're seeing our records being broken fast," Bufalini said.

The trend isn't limited to the metro Detroit area.

Consumer's Power is also listing above-average energy use.

"Even with last summer in mind, this July was our busiest in 103 years of doing business," Consumers Power spokesman Don Bishop said.

Last year's hot summer may be responsible, he said.

Court upholds single business tax

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The state Treasury Department had an unusual ally — the Michigan Manufacturers Association — as it won a $200 million tax case.

Losers were Trinova Corp. (formerly Libby-Owens-Ford) and 14 major corporations such as Caterpillar, Amoco, AT&T, Gillette, Lorillard, Shell and Union Oil.

The state Supreme Court ruled Trinova failed to produce "clear and cogent evidence" that the state's single business tax (SBT) was unfairly applied to their Michigan operations.

"OUR THEORY was that for Michigan companies it would have hurt us if Trinova won," said Dwight Vincent, general counsel for the Michigan Manufacturers Association.

"Some $200 million in revenue — for one year — would have been made up by Michigan manufacturers," he said. A Dearborn Heights resident, Vincent is a former chair of the 15th Congressional District Republican organization.

"They argued that it was not constitutional to tax them because they did not manufacture here — just sold here. But the court ruled the (SBT) formula meets constitutional muster," the MMA attorney said.

JUSTICE PATRICIA Boyle, writing the 6-1 majority opinion, said multi-state corporations can use an alternate — and less expensive — method of figuring their Michigan SBT, but only if they can prove the Treasury's standard is grossly unfair and unconstitutional.

SBT is a kind of value added tax, applied to the payroll, property and sales of a firm doing business in Michigan. The court viewed it as a tax on the privilege of doing business here. Adopted in the 1970s, SBT replaced the corporate income tax and seven other state business taxes.

Ingham Circuit Judge Robert Holmes Bell had ruled in favor of Trinova. Bell was reversed by the state Court of Appeals, which was upheld by the Supreme Court.

"The tax is computed by determining the taxpayer's tax base, and then allocating the value earned to the state where the business activity of the taxpayer can be fairly attributed," said the high court.

Trinova can be granted relief only if apportionment provisions fail to represent the firm's extent of business activity in Michigan, it went on. But the company's evidence must be "clear and cogent" that the state tax formula is "grossly distorted," Boyle wrote.

The Single Business Tax is a kind of value added tax, applied to the payroll, property and sales of a firm doing business in Michigan. The court viewed it as a tax on the privilege of doing business here. Adopted in the 1970s, SBT replaced the corporate income tax and seven other state business taxes.

She was a federal district judge before joining the state Supreme Court.

BOYLE'S OPINION was signed by Chief Justice Dorothy Comstock Riley and Justices James Brickley, Michael Cavanagh, Dennis Archer and Robert Griffin.

In a separate opinion, Justice Charles Levin said the case should be remanded to the Court of Claims for a hearing on factual issues.

Levin noted that several hundred other cases are pending in the Court of Claims.

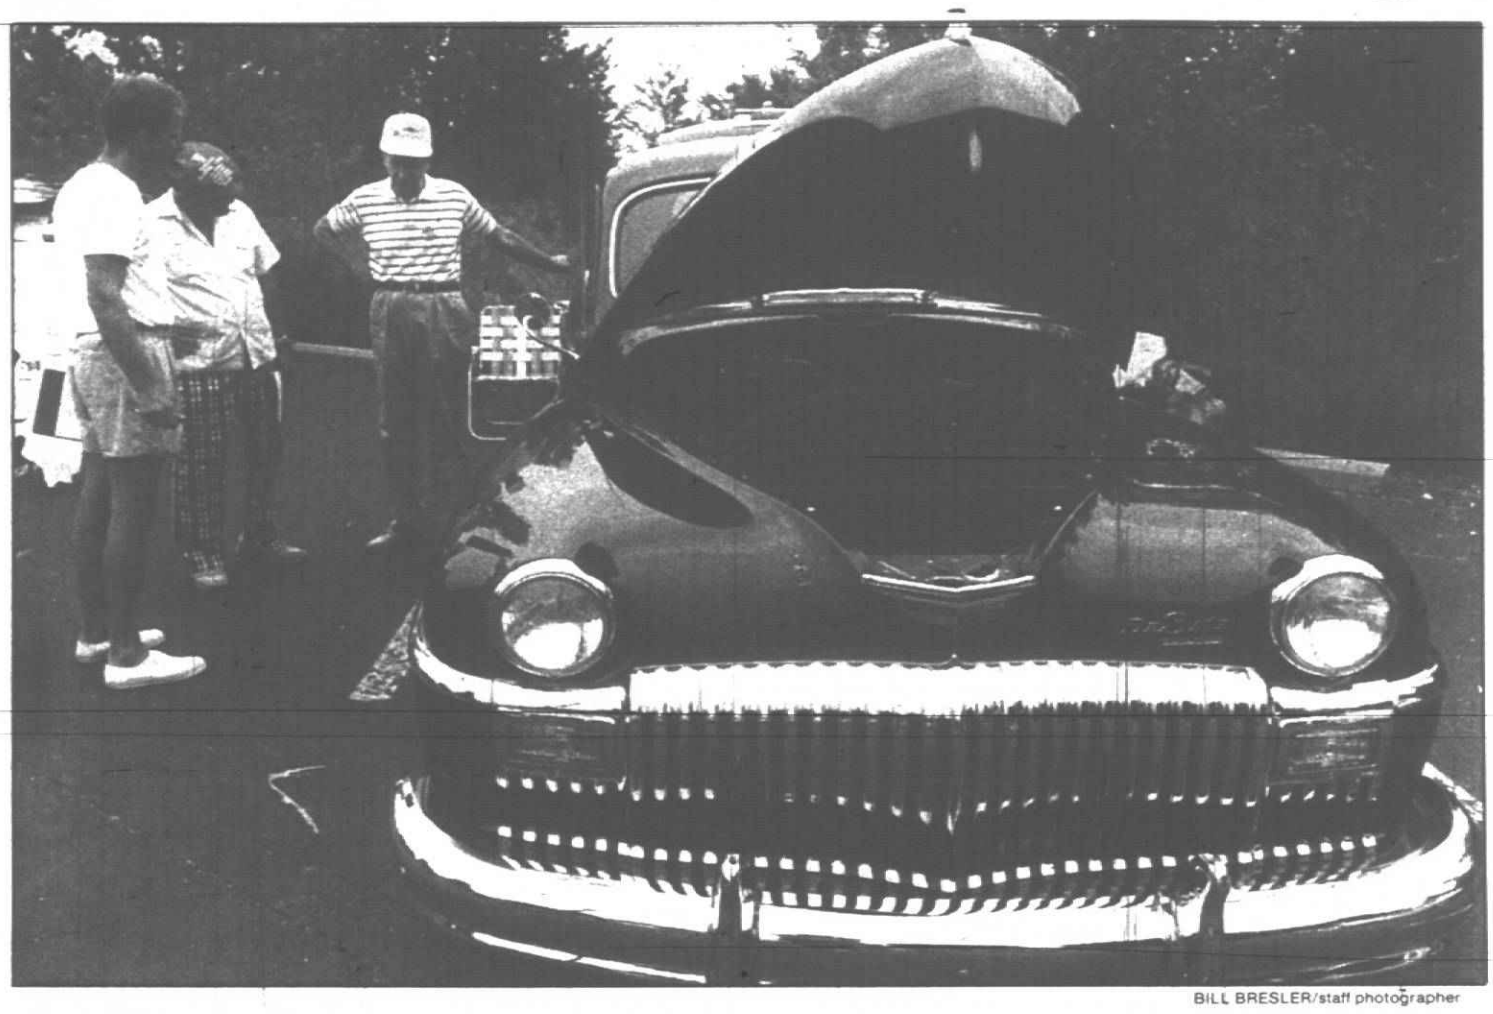
DeSoto: It wasn't just so-so



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Judges Ted Grachek and Gary Hill look at Robert Johnson's 1948 DeSoto. Johnson, a Troy resident, has spent 10 years restoring his car. The National DeSoto Club held its national convention and show recently at the Radisson Hotel Plymouth.

MEMBERS OF the National DeSoto Club have lots to talk about when they get together.

"We all have something in common," said club President Tom Atkins of Redford. "We all own a DeSoto."

Club members came to Plymouth Township for a gathering Thursday through Sunday, Aug. 17-20, at the Radisson Hotel Plymouth. About 225 club members attended the national convention and show.

The first DeSoto, a Chrysler product, came off the line in 1928 and was titled as a 1929 model, Atkins said. The DeSoto was manufactured through 1961.

About 85 cars were featured at the Plymouth get-together. A show for the public at the hotel Saturday gave curious visitors a chance to see the cars and talk to proud owners.

Atkins owns two DeSoto cars, a 1948 Club Coupe and a 1955 Firedome, a two-door hardtop. He and other club members spend many hours working on their cars.

"I do it just for the enjoyment," said Atkins, who works in construction as a pipefitter. "It's kind of a hobby."

A FEW CLUB members buy and sell auto parts for a living, but for the majority, "it's just a hobby," he said.

Club members at the show came from some 25 states and Ontario. Only a handful of the cars arrived by trailer, with some coming a long distance.

'I do it just for the enjoyment. It's kind of a hobby.'

— Tom Atkins
National DeSoto Club

Michigan owners of the cars are by necessity "fair-weather drivers," Atkins said.

A two-mile line of cars driven by club members traveled by caravan to Domino's Farms near Ann Arbor last Friday. Car owners also went to Greenfield Village in Dearborn Thursday, Aug. 17, and visited several other area sights.

The DeSoto appeals to some owners in part because models tend to be less expensive than Fords or Chevrolets, Atkins said. Some models have big, powerful engines, another selling point.

Driving the cars attracts attention. Drivers stop and hear comments such as "I haven't seen one of those in years" or "My dad had one of those," he said

People of a certain age have fond memories of the bright, shiny chrome and the fins found on cars of the 1950s and 1960s.

"I think it's just nostalgia more than anything," said Atkins, 40. "They really miss those kind of cars."

The DeSoto models are fun to look at, but can be difficult to drive.

"If you don't have power steering, they are," he said.

Crossroads

Changes create concern

By Julie Brown

Joanne and Don Gibson have some thoughts about Canton's future.

The Gibsons have lived in Canton for just over two years. They grew up in New Jersey, met through friends there, and have been married since October 1986.

They were among Canton residents who responded to the Observer's "Canton at the Crossroads" survey. Their letter outlined their thoughts on future growth and development in Canton.

Both attended Montclair State College in New Jersey. Joanne Gibson earned a bachelor of arts degree in psychology and early childhood education and Don Gibson a bachelor of science degree in chemistry.

The couple moved to Michigan when Don Gibson's work with a pharmaceutical company brought him here. They lived in an apartment in Ann Arbor and decided they were ready to become homeowners.

"We knew we liked Plymouth, so we came out this way," she said. "We wanted a good investment too, that was important to us."

THE GIBSONS, who plan to start a family soon, wanted to live in an area with good schools. Their real estate agent suggested they look in Canton.

"We didn't really know much about Canton at the time." They wanted more house for their money and a larger lot than they could find elsewhere, she said.

Canton's a convenient location for the couple. Joanne Gibson, 32, is a vice president for Financial Concepts, an employee benefits consulting firm in Ann Arbor. Don Gibson, 30, works for Parke-Davis in Ann Arbor. His work with that pharmaceutical company includes study of how a drug metabolizes in the body, is broken down and eliminated, and possible side effects.

They enjoy living in Canton, and have found it's quite different from New Jersey.

"A lot less traffic, a lot less stressful," he said. Housing is more reasonably priced in this area than on the East Coast.

"You can't buy a house out there," he said. "You can't afford it."

They hadn't heard that Detroit was the place to be.

"You don't hear good things about Detroit," Joanne Gibson said. "I think there's better things about it than you hear."

They occasionally visit Detroit for various activities and aren't nervous about that. When they lived in New Jersey, the couple visited New York City.

THEIR COMMUTES to work are pleasant, although that could change if the area between Canton and Ann Arbor becomes more built up.

They're concerned about the abundance of strip malls in Canton, and the impact of those malls on the community and its property values.

Canton has some nice stores, she said, but those stores are scattered and can be difficult to get to.

"You have to think about it." In Plymouth, she's able to park her car and go shopping.

The Gibsons would like to see some landscaping along Sheldon Road in Canton to improve the appearance of the barrier-type fences. More generally, they're concerned about the township's rapid growth and its impact on the quality of life for current residents.

A possible improvement would be a central area at the township's complex on Canton Center Road, "something that people from other towns will come to," he said. "Something different, maybe not exactly the same as Plymouth. You've got to create a new image. You can't copy Plymouth."

That village-type area could have cobblestone streets and be limited to pedestrians. It could include a petting zoo, a farmer's market, a bandshell and a multi-purpose area for antique shows and other events.

Canton at the crossroads

LIBERTY VILLAGE, in Flemington, N.J., has amenities along those lines, including a variety of unusual shops and outdoor cafes. People from Canton and surrounding areas could enjoy visiting such a place close to home.

"Whenever our families come out here, we take them to Plymouth or Northville," Don Gibson said. They'd like to have a place in Canton to visit.

The Gibsons don't visit Canton's parks much, because they have no children, but have found the parks adequate. They enjoy the quality of life in Canton, and don't want their community to lose its rural character.

The couple plans to stay in Canton, although a move north to Plymouth is a possibility at some point. Their decision will be based in large part on what happens in the area near their home.

"I think they're building too much too fast," she said.

Joanne and Don Gibson have lived in Canton for a little more than two years. They're originally from New Jersey.

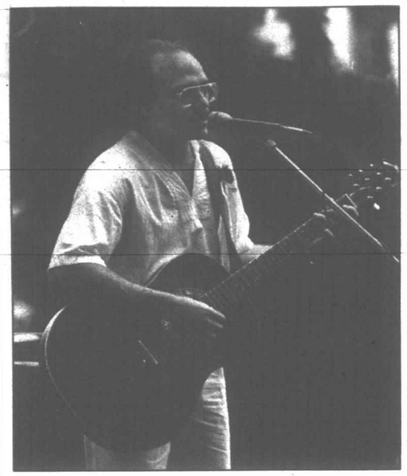
Summer sounds draw a crowd



Ron Mladjan of Livonia performs for the crowd in Kellogg Park. He enjoys outdoor performances. "I love it. It's my favorite thing to do."

PLAYING MUSIC outdoors doesn't bother Ron Mladjan at all.

"I love it," he said. "It's my favorite thing to do."

Mladjan, who is known professionally as Ronnie J, lives in Livonia. He came to Plymouth the afternoon of Wednesday, Aug. 16, for a "Music in the Park" concert sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

The annual concert series, which ended this week, attracts many music-lovers of all ages to Kellogg Park. This was the second year Mladjan had performed in the series.

"I've done a lot of that kind of thing in Livonia." He's been performing for more than 12 years.

Mladjan's concert included the sounds of an acoustic guitar, a harmonica and singing. He performed songs by such artists as Neil Young, Rod Stewart, America and the Eagles.

"I did a few of my own."

Mladjan, 30, grew up in Livonia and graduated in 1977 from Livonia Franklin High School. He studied music at the University of Michigan.

HE OWNS A music production company, and performing is part of his business. He and the other musicians perform at a number of weddings.

"It's been real busy. I've got 13 booked just in September right now."

At wedding receptions, he and the other musicians perform mostly popular songs from the 1930s through the 1980s. "Color My World" by Chicago is among the songs frequently requested at weddings.

Outdoor concerts such as last week's provide a different performing environment. Mladjan was able to play some original material, and some other songs not among those artists' most well-known.

Mladjan, who's primarily a keyboard player, has more than 200 songs in his repertoire for solo work. For last week's concert, he picked a selection of songs, some fast, some slow and some in-between. He included some with a country sound and some pop selections.

The Plymouth concert included some "good old Woodstock kind of music," frequently heard in this 20th-anniversary summer.

"Almost anything with real good vocals I like."

His work includes teaching music in the Plymouth-Canton and surrounding areas. Mladjan is a student at Eastern Michigan University, where he is finishing a bachelor's degree in business/marketing with a minor in music. After graduation, he'd like to concentrate more on commercial/advertising work.

Erick and Pat Carne of Plymouth enjoy their time at the "Music in the Park" concert. The concert series, sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council, is held each summer and features a variety of musical performers.

THE STAR OF DETROIT
Experience the City Like Never Before

Tea room employee Shelly Carson does the pouring for visitors Viola and Kenneth Whalls of Sterling Heights and Stella and John Collins of Southfield.

Preparing tea is serious business for Sylvia Thacker and her employees at the Sweet Afton Tea Room. The tea room, in Plymouth's Old Village, opened in December.

Haven

This tea room offers visitors chance to relax

Sylvia Thacker worked for many years as a registered nurse. She found that the skills she developed in that profession have served her well in her new endeavor.

By Julie Brown
staff writer

The nicest compliment Sylvia Thacker can get from people visiting her business is "It's so relaxing."

Thacker is the proprietress of the Sweet Afton Tea Room, on Mill in Plymouth's Old Village. Her business opened Dec. 1, 1988.

"I've had over 8,000 people, which is a wonderful response for a small place," she said. "We get busloads from all over. It brings a lot of business into the Plymouth area, actually."

Thacker's establishment seats 32. It's open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday until Labor Day. After Labor Day, hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

From 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily, reservations are required. After that, walk-in visitors are welcome. No smoking is allowed at the Sweet Afton Tea Room.

Tea and light lunches are among the items available.

"We make everything here, except our bread."

SOUPS AND sandwiches are among the menu offerings. There's also heartier fare, including the ploughman's lunch — bread, cheddar cheese, pickled onions and soup.

"The shepherd's pie has gone over wonderfully well," Thacker said. "That is also a British dish."

The shepherd's pie is made with ground round and a mashed potato topping.

Some 11 teas and three gourmet coffees are served, along with sparkling alcohol-free juices, milk and pop.

"We have wonderful tea," she said. Many Americans are accustomed to tea made from tepid water with a bag swirled through it. Thacker and her employees make tea properly, taking the time and effort to prepare it just right.

Scones and tea sandwiches are served. Devon cream, imported from England and obtained through a supplier, is available, along with tasty desserts.

There's a small gift area at the Sweet Afton Tea Room featuring baked goods, tea and such British gifts as foods, books, magazines, cups and saucers.

Thacker was born and raised in Canada, and has a Scottish and English background. She taught elementary school in Canada for a couple of years before moving to the United States.

SHE RECEIVED her training as a registered nurse at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. Thacker worked for 17 to 18 years in that field.

"Every kind of nursing. Hospital, private duty, pediatric, geriatric."

She's found the skills she developed as a nurse have served her well.

"You're taking the same skills you're taking from any kind of profession." She's still caring for people, but sees them now in a happier state than she did as a nurse.

"I really try to make people feel welcome, just like at your grandmother's house."

Thacker's working about 90 hours a week. She has the assistance of six hand-picked employees who share her beliefs about the importance of caring for people.

Before opening her establishment, she'd taken trips to England and had seen tea rooms there.

"My tea room idea's actually more from Canada than from England."

The tea room was in the planning stages for about three years, with one year of intense thought and effort. Thacker got help from her family.

Her daughter-in-law, an artist, did the logo design and art work. Thacker's daughter, a freelance writer, did the writing for the menu.

Both men and women visit the tea room.

"We do get all age groups, too." Young couples visit the tea room, as do women in their 90s celebrating birthdays.

Thacker leases her facility, which required more decorating than extensive renovation. The pink-and-white decor encourages visitors to relax and enjoy the pleasure of each other's company.

'I've had over 8,000 people, which is a wonderful response for a small place. We get busloads from all over. It brings a lot of business into the Plymouth area, actually.' — Sylvia Thacker, Sweet Afton Tea Room

Her business takes its name from a river in Scotland. Scottish poet Robert Burns wrote a poem, "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton." A picture of Burns is posted by the door, making it the final thing visitors see when they leave the tea room.

Thacker has no plans to expand her operation into other communities. She's had offers, but doesn't plan to sell her business.

Among the people visiting the Sweet Afton Tea Room are some who live in England or Scotland.

Growing in faith takes time, effort

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Len and Pat Bloch of Canton are coordinating the RENEW efforts at St. John Neumann Parish in Canton.

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Pat and Len Bloch know about the benefits of spiritual renewal.

They worship at St. John Neumann Parish in Canton. The Canton couple used to live in Westland and worshiped at a church there.

"We were involved in a faith sharing community, a small community of other couples. We benefited from that experience," said Len Bloch, who recently retired after many years teaching English in the Dearborn Public Schools and at Henry Ford Community College.

The Blochs, Canton residents, were excited when they heard about the RENEW process at St. John Neumann, a Catholic church. They agreed to serve as coordinators for that effort.

"It's a very warm and welcoming parish," said Pat Bloch, who works for the parish as a pastoral minister, a job she started Aug. 1. "This parish is great. It's a great community. We want to make it better with RENEW."

RENEW HAS several aspects, including a prayer network that has been in place for several months. On Sunday, Aug. 27, parishioners will dedicate a tree, the symbol of RENEW, on the church grounds. A 2 p.m. picnic will follow.

The Rev. George Charnley, pastor at St. John Neumann, is excited about the RENEW process.

"It's fantastic," Charnley said. "Because we are so large, it's a great advantage to get people to share faith in small groups."

St. John Neumann has shared in Canton's growth. It currently serves more than 2,800 families, or 10,000 people.

That size has made it difficult to fit people in for Sunday liturgies, Len Bloch said. There currently are seven liturgies per weekend, with two 11 a.m. Masses held on Sunday. Often, it's standing room only.

The RENEW process will help people develop a closer relationship with Christ.

"Everyone's going to be involved in some way or the other," Charnley said. "It's going to be a big boon to the parish and to the community at large."

RENEW got started in New Jersey in the late 1970s. Since that time, it has been used successfully by a number of dioceses. Some 38 parishes in the Detroit area are starting the RENEW process this fall.

PARISHIONERS AT St. John Neumann will meet in small study groups with facilitators trained to lead discussion. Composition of those groups will be determined by geography, giving members a chance to get acquainted with their neighbors.

One small group is for ninth through 12th graders. Those teenagers are free to join other small groups if they choose, but RENEW coordinators thought they'd be more comfortable with people their own age.

Other groups will include people of all ages. That will provide for sharing of the wisdom of older people and the energy of youth, Pat Bloch said. RENEW materials will also be made available for homebound people.

The members of the small groups will pray and study together. In addition to that aspect, there will be special Sunday liturgies with take-home materials.

Large group activities are being planned as part of RENEW. The musical group Destiny will perform at 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 1, at the church, 44800 Warren in Canton. The public may attend the performance.

The Rev. John Zenz will speak on "The Power of Prayer" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 7, at the church. The public may attend.

RENEW has been in the planning/organizing stage for some time now at St. John Neumann. RENEW is a three-year effort, with evaluation of its progress taking place during that time.

CHARNLEY, THE Blochs and others working on RENEW don't know exactly how many people will participate, but hope many become involved.

The process isn't limited to St. John Neumann members. Others from the community, Catholic and non-Catholic alike, are encouraged to participate.

(For more information on RENEW, call 455-5910.)

moral perspectives
Rabbi Irwin Groner

We must choose to do what's right

Our society is becoming increasingly amoral. From Wall Street to Main Street, from Major League baseball to government agencies, scandals of corruption and wrongdoing have become part of the daily chronicle of our time.

Our world values comfort, security and success and does not condemn wrongdoers so long as they win the prize and emerge victorious.

This has had an impact on our lives. It is unsettling to realize that how much we once decided was forbidden is, now appeals to us. With a little effort of will and intelligence, we may have new thrills without great cost.

What once seemed to have a high risk or to be taboo is only "another way to live." This experience of the possibility of encountering the forbidden or what was once forbidden, is called temptation. It shakes us. It dismays us, because we find that we are not as sure as we thought we were of our most cherished beliefs.

IN AN AGE of changing values and disappearing landmarks, how do we determine the rightness of a moral decision?

The first question we should ask ourselves is: Can the decision I make stand the test of public knowledge? What if everybody knew what I was going to do? This decision about which I am uncertain — does it need secrecy? Does it require cover-up? Could I tell my family what I did?

A golfing friend pointed out that nothing increases your golf score like witnesses. "It is an awful hour," wrote a wise counselor, "when the first necessity of hiding anything comes . . . When there are questions to be feared and eyes to be avoided and subjects which must not be touched, then the bloom of life is gone. Put off that day as long as possible. Put it off forever, if you can."

The second question is: What if everybody did what we are contemplating? What kind of society would it be? Would we like to have our action become a universal law? Do you think it right to tell a lie? What do you think would happen if all persons told lies whenever it was to their advantage to do so?

Do you argue that sexual promiscuity can be indulged in without harm? What do you think would become of our homes, our families, our children, our society if promiscuity and not fidelity became the universally recognized standard?

AN INSTRUCTIVE story tells how a revered teacher invited the people of a legendary town to a banquet. He told each guest to bring a flask of wine, and informed each that his wine would be poured into a large vat. Each guest thought: "What will my small flask of wine mean? I will bring a flask of water, and no one will know the difference."

When the guests were assembled at the banquet, the teacher summoned his servants to serve the guests with the contents of the barrel and out came water. For they all had said, "What will my small flask of wine mean? No one will know the difference."

● DELEGATE

The Rev. Edward Zell of Lola Park Evangelical Lutheran Church, Redford Township, was a delegate to the 50th biennial convention of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod. The five-day convention took place recently on the campus of Martin Luther Preparatory School, Prairie du Chien, Wis.

During the week, Zell and the other 433 voting and advisory delegates heard reports from the synod's five divisions concerning the church body's activity for the last two years.

The convention established a $16 million special offering during 1990-93. This special offering will develop a gift trust fund for mission expansion and for the ongoing work of the WELS.

The delegates adopted a "Vision 2000-Plus" statement to direct the synod's plans and growth into the 21st century.

After a two-year study called for by the WELS 1987 convention, the delegates decided not to change the church body's name. The 739-year-old Wisconsin Synod has always had the word "Wisconsin" in its name. The 420,000-member WELS has congregations in all 50 states and three provinces in Canada.

Grace & Wild technicians prepare to film the company's bread and butter: a car commercial.

Turning cars into stars

Grace & Wild stages Detroit's best models

By R.J. King
special writer

Farmington Hills is better known for housing than Hollywood.

But Farmington Hills has one thing few cities in the Midwest has — Grace & Wild Studios, which many in the production business consider one of the top video production facilities for transforming cars into stars.

"It is one of the premiere studios in the Midwest, and one of the few places specifically set up to do car settings," said Paul Sparks, a producer with Edward Ditterline Entertainment, which has offices in Hollywood and New York.

James B. Jurson, executive producer for Southfield-based Image Zone Inc. agreed. "Anybody can purchase equipment, but with great studios, it comes down to people and ability, and Grace & Wild has both."

By all accounts, Grace & Wild has one of the largest studios in the Midwest. But what attracts clients to the two studios here, which are almost always bustling with personnel sporting short-sleeve, Hawaiian shirts, is an exacting attention to labor-saving devices designed to minimize time and money.

In the facility's new sound stage, for instance, a vehicle prep area allows workers to clean and wax cars without a worry to weather. Once polished, the cars are pushed inside the studio and set in place. Then lighting and camera crews adjust reflection boards (bounce tabs and flying flats, as they are known in the business) to enhance and give cars shape.

THE NEW SOUND stage also has a men's and women's dressing rooms, a two-story viewing room, control and tape rooms, a camera pit area and more than 15,000 square feet of space. Dick Clark, Chuck Yeager, the Coasters and Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons have filmed here.

"We can do a lot of different things, but the whole idea of building a new sound stage to complement our other studio was to shorten the set-up and tear-down time for clients, and allow them to optimize their shoot time," said Keith Neff, Grace & Wild's vice president and general manager. The sound stage was completed in April 1988.

"Viewing a commercial on television may take 30 to 60 seconds, but a tremendous amount of prep time goes into the shoot, which often takes hours and days to bring together. We couldn't necessarily limit a producer's creativity, but we could limit the amount of time a crew needs to prepare a shoot."

To make shooting as efficient as possible, Neff said the new stage was equipped with a computer controlled, pre-wired dimming system to "save people from wiring the world for every shoot." The stage also has catwalk access for any additional lighting and a 240-foot prehung drape — black on one side, white on the other — so lighting can be subdued or illuminated on command.

THE REASONING behind expanding into the automotive advertising field, Neff said, was a growing trend of consolidation by the automakers. A new sound stage, it was reasoned, designed with the automotive client in mind, would attract advertising agencies and independent producers who found their work loads increased as automakers strove to cut in-house budgets.

But coupled with additional work came the news of lower sales commissions for advertising agencies which served to put a premium on savings. Any time saved in renting studios, which at Grace & Wild costs $1,800 a day for the sound stage and $600 for the smaller studio, brought a larger profit margin.

When Grace & Wild bought the facility from CBS/Fox Video in November 1984 with just one studio, so small it could accommodate two cars at best, and offered four walls, limited overhead lighting and virtually no amenities, the company was already thinking of expansion.

But for a new studio designed almost exclusively to accommodate automotive-related clients, the question becomes: Is the concentration too much?

"There is definitely a seasonal business because the automotive clients are here in spring and summer shooting for model introductions in the fall," said Mary Benjamin, director of marketing. "But retail and commercial clients, who may not require all the amenities of our automotive clients, are finding the studios adapatable to their needs as well."

GRACE & WILD also has three editing suites, where producers can combine graphics, film and sound in one location. CBS/Fox Video, with offices in Livonia, also uses the edit suites to transform films into a video format.

Once duplicated, many of the videos wind up in video stores for rental or purchase. Recent transfers include "Diehard," "Big," "Star Wars" and "The Empire Strikes Back."

And if clients can't find what they need here, chances are it will be available from the nine other independent companies situated within Grace & Wild's location at the Studio Center, which offers to producers what malls offer to Christmas shoppers — one-stop shopping. Adjacent companies offer such services as equipment rental, film editorial and audio sweetening.

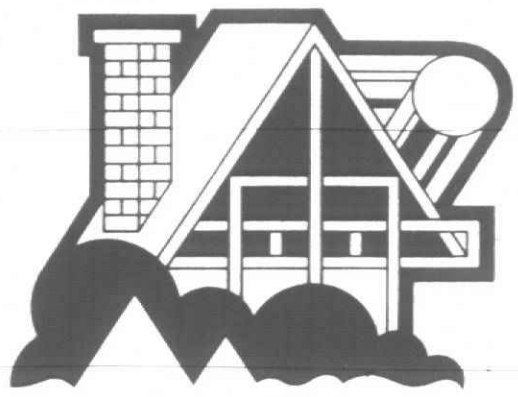
While Grace & Wild declined to give sales figures, Steve Wild, company president, said revenues had increased 19 to 20 percent in each of the last four years. He predicted 1989 would see the same kind of increase.

Wild also declined to reveal the cost of the new sound stage, saying only that is was build for several million dollars.

Future Projects include exploring the increased use of high-definition television, which offers a much sharper picture than what is available on today's screens.

"Obviously, the communications industry is very strong, and we are planning to be very competitive in the future," Wild said.

Home: business or pleasure?



The old saying that "time is money" is as true with vacation homes as it is with any other business. Extending or reducing the number of days spent at a vacation home can mean a savings — or loss — of thousands of tax dollars for a property owner.

If a vacation home is rented a portion of the year and used for pleasure for another portion, calculating the amount of allowable deductions can be a major task.

Both the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants and the firm of Coopers & Lybrand advise people with rental vacation homes to determine whether that home qualifies as a second home or as a rental property.

COOPERS & Lybrand said that there are three alternative sets of rules for determining exactly what a vacation home is and the determinant of definition generally is based on time.

- Primarily personal use with minimal rental.

If a vacation home is rented less than 15 days during the year, the rental use is effectively ignored. There is no tax on the rental income and no rental expenses may be deducted. Itemized personal deductions (mortgage interest, real estate taxes and casualty losses) may be taken as they could be taken if there were no rental at all.

- Significant personal use and significant rental use. If personal use of a home is more than the greater of 14 days or 10 percent of the number of days it is actually rented for the year, the home is considered a residence rather than a rental property. In this situation, the rental cannot show a loss for tax purposes, and deductions have to be taken in a certain order. First, interest and taxes (the part allocable to the rental period). Then, out-of-pocket operating expenses such as repairs and utilities and, finally, depreciation.

- Primarily rental with minimal personal use.

If personal use is not more than the greater of 14 days or 10 percent of the number of days the property actually is rented during the year, the home is considered rental property and not a residence, and the vacation home rules do not apply. All expenses allocable to the rental period are deductible, even if they exceed rental income and produce a loss. A loss would be subject to the passive activity rules.

The Farmington Hills-based Michigan Association of CPAs explained that the passive activity rules mandate that a loss can be deducted only from "passive income." But if the vacation home owner actively participated in renting that property and the individual's adjusted gross income (AGI) is $150,000 or less, rental losses of up to $25,000 can be deducted from income. If the AGI is more than $100,000, the $25,000 active rental loss allowance is reduced by 50 cents for every dollar of income above $100,000. Once the AGI exceeds $150,000, the allowance is phased out.

DETERMINING WHAT is personal use and rental use is another area of contention. Cottage owners should be aware of the gray areas that constitute personal or business use, especially if the average person could argue a use either way.

Under the vacation home rules, a day of personal use is used, for any part of a day, by: any owner or part owner of the property; any member of the family or an owner or part owner, even if the family member pays fair market rent; any individual who pays less than fair market rent for the use; and, any individual who uses the property under a barter or exchange arrangement that allows the owner to use another property, even if the owner pays fair rent for the use of the other property.

Days spent cleaning or repairing the home for rental are not counted as personal use days, but owners should maintain meticulous records because the IRS may question this. And, if the owner continues to use the home while renting it to a family member at a fair market rental, the owner's use still is considered personal use.

Once the number of personal and rental days are determined, add them together to find the amount of total use. To calculate the percentage of deductible operating expenses (such as maintenance, utilities and depreciation), multiply all expenses by the number of rental days, then divide that sum by the total use figure. The result is the tax deductible amount — subject to the passive loss rules.

For example, noted the Michigan Association of CPAs, if your operating expenses were $5,000 and you rented your property for 90 days and the total-use figure came to 100, your deductible amount would be $4,500 ($5,000 times 90, divided by 100).

The association pointed out that, in some cases, a vacation home owner may benefit more by extending the personal use so the owner can claim the deductions allowed to a second home as opposed to those for a rental.

Both the CPA association and Coopers & Lybrand remind vacation homeowners that the various passive-income provisions are extremely complex and can have different impacts depending on personal circumstances.

Japanese try for crowded luxury car market

auto talk
Dan McCosh

P.T. Barnum might have discarded the nonsense surrounding the introduction of Toyota's Lexus and Nissan's Infinity by noting that there is a luxury car owner born every minute.

The new Japanese luxury cars are the first Japanese luxury cars introduced in the United States — unless you count Honda's Acura Legend and have been the recipient of rave reviews from the enthusiastic press — before the first one gets here.

This recognition by the auto journalist pack is unusual, as it's supposed to take years to establish a top name in the auto business.

MERCEDES SORT of crept into the postwar U.S. car market through the back rooms of Studebaker dealerships and took two decades or more to reach the point where New York street gang members found it worthwhile to steal their hood ornaments.

BMW was even more low key. Early BMWs ran around disguised as Corvairs for eight years or so until the company finally got around to selling some regular-looking cars in the late 1970s.

Still BMW didn't emerge full blown as an icon until the stock madness of the 1980s, when the same guys buying BMWs were buying pink suspenders. Go figure.

REGARDLESS, THE attention paid to the launch of the two new Japanese entrants into the luxury car market guarantees some notoriety on the street — an important aspect of any luxury-car sale and a quick sendoff for some future image.

Much of the attention paid to the new Japanese entrants stems from the obvious comparison to the top German nameplates. In fact, not being fools, the Japanese studiously studied German engineering and marketing savvy, likely saving years of development time by not repeating German mistakes. No Studebaker dealers for Toyota.

EARLY IMPRESSIONS of the cars themselves are something close to slobbering, which likely is at least partly justified by the development work that went into them — although the Japanese also learned a lesson from the Germans about wining and dining auto journalists in Europe on a new-car junket.

Like most automotive ventures, the Japanese push into the luxury-car field is less an engineering exercise than a gamble on a shift in popular culture. The Japanese bet isn't based on their ability to make cars but on an appraisal of seemingly boundless wealth in the United States, which continues to grow despite among other things, the struggle to compete in the auto business.

NISSAN FOR example believes there are 37,000 37-year-old women in the United States making better than $80,000 a year waiting to buy their new car. It's a relentlessly optimistic view.

Market analysts at Mercedes are looking at better than a 10-percent slump in the same market — which would have to double in size to sustain the sales predicted for the new Japanese luxury marques. And Mercedes still is doing better than Porsche or Saab, two other cultural icons of the generation.

As it turns out, one of the few upscale brands not struggling these days is Volvo, which went after the granola market rather than the stock market.

Now that I think about it, has anybody seen a Bentley lately?

Build your income tax return on solid deductions

By Sid Mittra
Special writer

In a five part article I will discuss the four-D of tax planning techniques: deduction, diversion, deferral, deflection and diminution.

The forgotten deductions Many taxpayers assume, somewhat naively, that since there are 7.5-percent and 2-percent floors imposed on medical and miscellaneous expenses, respectively, they possibly cannot pass the threshold at which these expenses become deductible. This is usually not a good assumption.

For instance, medical expenses not only include doctor and hospital bills but also medically required home improvements, special schooling for a physically or mentally handicapped child, travel for medical care, eyeglasses, cosmetic surgery and health insurance premiums.

Even the difference in rental expenses if someone is forced to move to a larger house to accommodate a live in nurse is deductible.

Like medical deductions, miscellaneous deductions also offer valuable tax reduction strategies. For instance, cost of membership dues, financial planning and accounting fees and unreimbursed business expenses are examples of often-overlooked deductible miscellaneous expenses.

Estimated savings are approximately $560 for a household bunching $3,500 worth of deductions into one year with $75,000 adjusted gross income.

Flexible spending account Flexible spending accounts have been available since 1978 and in recent years have become quite popular. The money deposited in FSAs comes off the top of the salary through payroll deductions or from employer contributions or from both.

These contributions completely escape taxes, including Social Security and most state income taxes as long as the money is used within a single year for medical expenses or dependent care not covered by employee benefits.

Annual limits for dependent care are $5,000. Medical cost maximums are not set by law but by employers.

While FSAs provide an excellent tax-reduction strategy, they do have one important drawback. The money set aside in this account during a given year must be used during that year or it would be forfeited.

Moving expenses The tax treatment of moving expenses is different from the treatment of most employee business expenses in that this deduction is not subject to the 2-percent floor that applies to other miscellaneous deduction.

The expenses and company reimbursements must be accounted for separately on tax returns. All company reimbursements for personal moving expenses are considered taxable.

However, the related expenses may be deductible, subject to limitations, as an itemized deduction if the move is incidental to beginning full-time employment in a new location. Deductible moving expenses include moving personal effects, traveling, house hunting, meals, lodging and incidental expenses.

Prepayment strategy When a taxpayer's itemized deductions are close to the standard deductions, prepaying certain expenses can not only lower overall tax liability, but it can also be useful if the tax rates were to decrease in the future.

Some deductible items can be prepaid, such as charitable contributions, miscellaneous items, property taxes and so on. This will allow the taxpayer to claim an amount greater than the standard deduction in the current year and will minimize current tax liability.

Of course, if appropriate, in the following year the standard deduction can be used to minimize the tax burden.

For example, if in 1989 Bill Jones, a single taxpayer, had itemized deductions of $2,900, he could claim the standard deduction of $3,100. However, a more profitable method of managing deductions would be to prepay in 1989 as much of the 1990 deductions as possible, raising the total itemized deductions from $2,900 to say, $3,900.

This would allow Bill Jones to claim the excess itemized deductions in the first year and still claim the standard deduction amount in the second year. This strategy would successfully reduce the overall tax liability for both years.

Absentee owners must set firm guidelines from the beginning focus: small business

Mary DiPaolo

If achieving long-term professional success meant no more than starting a business, everyone would do it. But experienced entrepreneurs realize that opening a business is easy compared to the task of keeping it open.

This may be even more applicable for business owners who are involved with more than one venture, have families and pursue a variety of outside interests. As a result, the need to maintain a proper balance between the demands of business endeavors and personal life becomes crucial.

As a solution, a growing number of entrepreneurs have become absentee owners. In this arrangement, a manager is given complete power to act on behalf of the owner in the affairs of the business.

Although this arrangement has the potential to work out well, it requires that the business owner develop and maintain an open communication line with his or her manager designate.

"There's always going to be some decision you've made that the owner questions or doesn't agree with," says one former manager of a Southfield computer graphics company. "But it's definitely worse when the owner can't decide on the level of authority he's willing to delegate or keeps changing his mind about it."

John Henke, professor of marketing at Oakland University, believes absentee owners cannot expect their companies to succeed when they aren't sure of their own expectations or are inconsistent about providing the necessary guidance and support.

"Owners must be very clear right from the start about what they want and expect, otherwise the business is bound to suffer," Henke said. "The whole point is to be available when you're needed, and yet confident that the business is in good hands when you're not there."

Mary Ellen Lemire, former officer manager for a downtown Detroit law firm, agrees with Henke, adding that some owners are not able to function as absentee owners.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series "Chamber Perspectives."

Daddy Warbucks

Bill Hayes enjoys grown-up role

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

IT'S BEEN A LONG time since Bill Hayes appeared on television's "Your Show of Shows" and the young singer of those days is now a mature performer, whose newest role is as Daddy Warbucks in the musical "Annie."

"It's going to be a wonderful show," Hayes said with enthusiasm, in a phone interview last week from "the Muny," nickname for the Municipal Opera Theatre Association in St. Louis. "Annie" opened there Monday for a seven-night run. "Then I fly Monday, the 28th, to open in Detroit," he said.

The show starring Jo Anne Worley of "Laugh-In" fame will be presented Wednesday, Aug. 30, through Sunday, Sept. 3, at Meadow Brook Music Festival's Baldwin Pavilion, on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. Three members of the original Broadway cast are featured in the show, and 11-year-old Danielle Findley plays Annie, with Moose, a dog from the Staten Island ASPCA, as Sandy.

The handsome, dark-haired singer from "Your Show of Shows" has gone gray in real life. On stage in "Annie," Hayes' hair will be covered with a bald cap, to give him that Daddy Warbucks look so familiar from the comic strip.

"I TRIED one on the day before yesterday, to take a picture," he said. "It takes a while to get it fitted to your head. It's glued to your head."

Since getting his start on "Your Show of Shows," the Sid Caesar-Imogene Coca sensational hit of TV's early days, Hayes has gone on to continued success in show business. He has performed in many stage productions but also has a loyal following from the many years he was on television in "Days of Our Lives."

Hayes joined the cast in 1970 and played on the soap opera until 1987. "It was a happy experience," he said. Hayes and the life of costar Susan Seaforth were permanently entwined when they married in 1974.

He played Doug, the owner of a nightclub (he got to sing on the show), and she was Julie, who started out as a teen-ager who grew up and became a designer. "The whole country watched us fall in love," Hayes said.

"Sixteen million people came to our wedding," he continued, referring to the on-air ceremony when their two characters married, in 1976. "We used the same ceremony on the show as in real life."

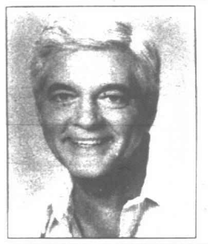
HAYES AND his wife also made history by appearing on the cover of Time, in January 1974. "Time did a big story on soaps," he explained.

Although Hayes had never watched soap operas before he got his chance to be on the popular "Days," he quickly became impressed with the show's quality. "All through the '70s we had great storylines and wonderful lines," he said.

Appearing as a regular on "Your Show of Shows," from 1950 to 1954, was a lucky break for Hayes who was hired by producer Max Liebman who had seen him on a summer-replacement TV series starring Olsen and Johnson.

Hayes grew up in Chicago, studied English and music at DePauw University in Indiana and then got a job in the summer of 1947 with the National Touring Company of "Carousel." This led to joining comedy stars Olsen and Johnson on tour, as a singer, which in turn led to television.

Describing his costars on "Your Show of Shows," Hayes called them "the most talented group of performers every seen anywhere." Besides Caesar and Coca, the 90-minute Saturday night show also starred Carl Reiner and Howard Morris. This was live television, and Hayes remembers the night Caesar, playing a general, forgot to put a pad under his jacket and when a medal was pinned on him in one scene, "they stuck the pin in his skin."



'I saw the show on Broadway and the movie. I'm having such a ball . . . It's very real. If we do it right, it's very moving.'
— Bill Hayes

Bill Hayes and Jo Anne Worley costar as Daddy Warbucks and Miss Hannigan in the Broadway hit musical "Annie," opening Wednesday, Aug. 30, at the Meadow Brook Music Festival.

HAYES SANG on the show, often doing duets with Judy Johnson. Other singing regulars were opera stars Marguerite Piazza, Robert Merrill and Jan Pearce. Because their show was followed by "The Hit Parade," Hayes said he didn't sing many pop songs but mainly "old Rodgers and Hammerstein and old film songs."

Those were good times for the boyish-looking performer but, "It's wonderful to grow up," he said, because of the variety of roles open to him now. In the last five years he has played the priest, Father Farley, in "Mass Appeal;" Solieri in "Amadeus," George, the nightclub owner, in "La Cage aux Folles;" and Scrooge in "A Christmas Carol."

Davy Jones' belief: Don't monkey with success

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Davy Jones feels like The Monkee in the middle.

Apparently, not all is well with the fab three (which is already minus Mike Nesmith). A seed of discontent has grown into a wild weed of inner squabbling that could very well make this the last Monkees' tour for awhile.

According to Jones, Micky Dolenz has brought in a manager with the ultimatum that he either manages the group or Dolenz won't participate.

So, subsequent tours, an album and a film featuring the 1960s television music group could be on hold. The situation has the normally happy-go-lucky Manchester, England, native in a tizzy.

"That's the bitterness, if any," said Jones, who will perform with The Monkees on Sunday at Meadow Brook Music Festival. "Micky's brought in this guy who is not qualified.

"(We've been) like brothers. That's why this is so confusing. Micky's brought this manager in, which is very selfish of him. After doing it on our own and trusting one another all these years, he wants to have a central clearing-house.

"Every time we need to speak to him, we have to go through this guy. And I've known Micky for 20 years."

THE HARSH realities of the music has finally smacked The Monkees upside the head.

The discord won't be music to the ears of the legion of Monkee fans. Unlike The Who, The Rolling Stones and other groups of that era, The Monkees were mama's boys seemingly immune to controversy such as drug busts and break-ups.

The were Hollywood's creation, a video band before MTV. The Monkees were a TV sitcom of a rock 'n' roll group, who were actors playing musicians.

The first album, "The Monkees," was released to coincide with the premiere of the TV series. The disc sold an amazing three million copies in a three-month span.

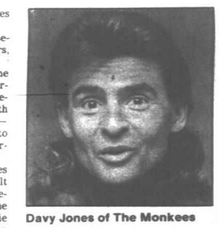
After winning Emmys for the series, and several successful tours, The Monkees called it quits.

In a short amount of time, The Monkees garnered a cult status, further fueled by MTV rerunning the series. The group — minus Nesmith because of business commitments — hit the concert trail again in 1986 to commemorate their 20th anniversary.

That tour was a success. Jones said things are a bit more difficult this time around. Rock 'n' roll reunion business is booming, with The Who, The Beach Boys, The Doobie Brothers and Chicago cashing in on the nostalgia craze.

"There's a lot of people out on the road," Jones said. "We're withdrawing our horse from the race at this point because there is too many people . . . If we would've known there were so many people out there this year, we wouldn't have gone out.

"WE DON'T have a single out. We don't have an album out. It's getting kind of hard to have fun singing the old tunes."



Davy Jones of The Monkees

The Monkees is only one part of Jones' career. He's returned to "Oliver!" to play the role of Fagin. He started in the famed theater production in 1961, playing the role of the Artful Dodger.

Jones, who will be 44 this year, lives in England with his wife Anita and two daughters, 22 and 18. He collects cars and breeds racehorses. He admits there's a few more lines on the face, but adds, "It makes me feel good when my daughter's friend says, 'Your dad is a major babe.'"

One of his latest projects is an autobiography, "They Made a Monkee Out of Me," chronicling The Monkees. The book is filled with photos and anecdotes from the early days. Jones also goes into great detail about the phenomenon behind The Monkees, sometimes poking fun at himself.

"I just wanted to explain to myself what happened," said Jones, who financed the release of the book himself.

The book also was designed to bring a close to that part of his career. He looks back on The Monkees with a sense of pride.

At the time some people, mainly music critics, had a difficulty with the group's credibility because they were a creation of television. Some believed The Monkees were merely a TV rip-off of The Beatles.

"We heard all that," Jones said. "John Lennon said it best. He thought we weren't like The Beatles. We were more like The Marx Brothers. The more we thought about it, the more we began to think it was true.

"Our show ("Oliver!") was on the same night as The Beatles were on 'Ed Sullivan,'" he added, "and I said what was happening and I knew I wanted to be a part of it. I knew if they would scream for these long-haired weirdos, I wanted a piece of the action."

The Monkees will perform at 8 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 27, at the Meadow Brook Music Festival in Rochester Hills. For information, call 377-2010.

Bill Hayes enjoys role

Enjoying the opportunity to be Daddy Warbucks in "Annie," Hayes said, "I saw the show on Broadway and the movie. I'm having such a ball." Of the story about the little orphan and the millionaire who adopts her, he declared, "It's very real. If we do it right, it's very moving."

In the musical, Hayes has only a few lines to exchange with Jo Ann Worley, who plays the mean-spirited orphanage operator, Miss Hannigan. His relationships develop with Annie — "She's lonesome and needs her parents. He's lonesome and needs someone." — and Oliver Warbucks' secretary — "An interesting little love thing. Is he ever going to figure out she's a girl?"

The show's Annie — Broadway and TV actress Danielle Findley — "has played it before, and it helps," Hayes said. Lisbe Larson, Warbucks' romantic attraction, is "a very pretty young blonde. She sings nicely."

He mentioned the three actors from the original Broadway production of "Annie" they are Raymond Thorne, who plays F.D.R.; Edwin Bordo as Drake, the Butler; and Robert Fitch as Rooster Hannigan (Fitch won a Best Feature Actor award for this role).

Performances of "Annie" will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday, Aug. 30 to Sept. 3, and at 2 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 31, and Saturday, Sept. 2. Ticket prices range from $9 to $27.50, depending upon performance. For more information, call the box office at 377-2010.

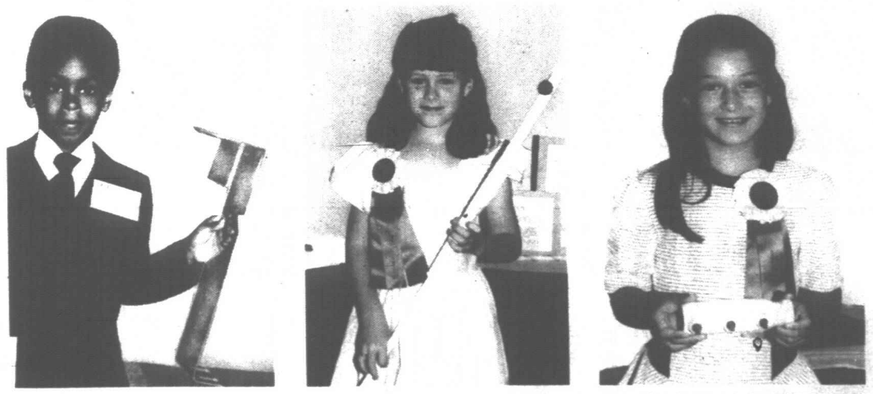
What kind of a kid do you suppose Thomas Edison was?



Bet he looked at problems and saw solutions. Like Maurice Scales who invented Baby No-Mash to prevent doors from closing on little fingers.
Bet he saw how things were done, and imagined better ways to do them. Like Lillian Lukas who invented the Puddle Detecting Cane for the blind.
Bet he watched how things work and thought of ways to avoid wasting time or effort. Like Caitilin McCracken who invented the Orphan Kitten Feeder for Three.
Maurice, Lillian and Caitilin were three of the thousands of winners in the Invent America! education program.
And you know that small genius can grow up to become big genius—with the capacity to make America number one again.
To participate, just write Invent America!, 510 King Street, Suite 420, Alexandria, VA 22314, or call 703/684-1836.
If you're wondering if it's all worthwhile, just imagine what Edison would have said.
Invent America!
For now—as never before—our country needs an inventive spark.

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

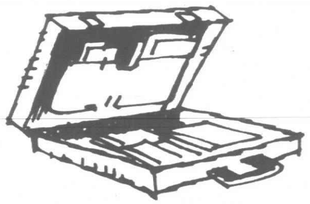
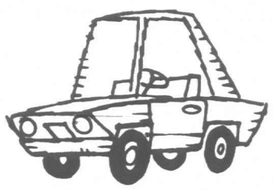
WRITE IT AND REAP!

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!



2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.



4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Taking control

Horning's putts place her on top of O&E

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

When Trish Waldecker missed a 25-foot par putt on the 18th and final hole of the Observer & Eccentric/Whispering Willows Womens Golf Tournament, it assured three-time champion Ann Lauer would add another title to her collection.

Or so it seemed.

Lauer, a Birmingham native now living in Auburn Hills, and Waldecker, from Livonia, were the only two playing in the championship flight at Wednesday's tournament. It was taken for granted that whichever one scored best would be the O&E champ. After all, doesn't the title always go to the championship flight winner?

When Waldecker — recovering from reconstructive surgery she had on her jaw July 19 — weakened (this was the second time she's golfed since her operation), Lauer pulled away to beat her by three strokes, 82 to 85.

Not a great score — Lauer won in '88 with a 77 — but respectable. "I guess 82 was an OK score," she said.

Defending champ Ann Lauer was a single stroke shy of retaining her crown.

"I've done better here, though."

SHE NEEDED to do better this time, as it turned out. When the top foursome in first flight finished, Debra Horning, from Birmingham, had torched the back nine with a two-over par 38 — taking just 13 putts — and, combined with her front-nine 43, edged Lauer for the overall title with an 81.

Although Horning's score resulted in her winning the overall championship, it made no difference in prize distribution. Lauer collected the championship flight trophy and first-place gift certificate of $25; Horning's winnings were the same, only in first flight.

"I never shot better on this course," said Horning, who works in Farmington Hills. "I have not played well the last month. Saturday, I shot 91 here; that was my first time out here this year.

"I didn't drive the ball well at all (today). What saved me was my chipping and putting. If I needed a 10-foot putt for par, I made it."

THE WAY her round started gave no warning of what was to come. Horning bogeyed the first hole and followed that with a pair of double-bogeys, putting her five-over par after three holes.

"I was real nervous," she admitted. "I get my adrenalin flowing for these tournaments, and it can hurt me. I really get myself up."

Horning had herself under control by the midpoint of the front nine, but it wasn't until the ninth hole that she got her game turned around. "The key was the ninth hole," she said. "I played that hole beautifully. I was 173 yards away and hit a five-wood that carried to the back of the green. That pumped me up."

Her par on No. 9 also set the stage for her second-half rally. Horning putted a total of four times on five consecutive holes, Nos. 11 through 15. Her best was No. 13, a 297-yard par-four — she didn't putt there at all.

"I hit a bad drive," she said. "Then I topped a five-wood, and I hit my iron shot right of the green into the rough."

Horning called on her eight-iron once again. Smart move — her pitch rolled into the cup to save par. Two one-putt greens followed; not once over the back nine did Horning three-putt.

IT WAS UNFORTUNATE Horning was relegated to the first flight. She was notified — too late — that her handicap had dropped a staggering six strokes, from a 16 to a 10, according to the Michigan Womens Publinx Association. That would have put her in the championship flight (Lauer was a six, Waldecker an eight) had the tournament committee been notified.

Neither Lauer nor Waldecker were playing up to par, either. Because of her jaw surgery, Waldecker was on a liquid diet. By the end of the round, her shots were coming up short.

"I felt it on 13," Waldecker, the second-place low gross winner in championship flight, said. "I really started to feel tired. That's why my shots were so short."

Lauer was also in some pain. A recently discovered childhood back injury will put her in the hospital next month for vertebrae fusion surgery. Lauer said she'll be out of work between four and six weeks; the O&E tournament and a small tournament with work associates this weekend will probably be her last golfing days this year.

The back injury is bothersome. "I have to keep telling myself to finish my swing," she said, adding, "I know I can shoot better."

A little better and she would have had her fourth O&E title.

OTHER PRIZEWINNERS were: in first flight, Angela Ford, who will enter her senior year at Rochester High as one of the golf team's top players, shot a 94 to claim low-gross second prize, while Sally Hering (from Farmington Hills) won low net with Jeri Foley second low net. Both shot 96s.

In second flight, Michelle Stohler (Livonia) shot her "best score ever" — a 99 — to claim the top low-gross prize. Lynn Pahl (Birmingham) was second low gross with 101. Virginia Sexton (Westland) had a 109 and the best low-net score, with Dolores Delaney (Livonia) second low net, with an actual score of 103.

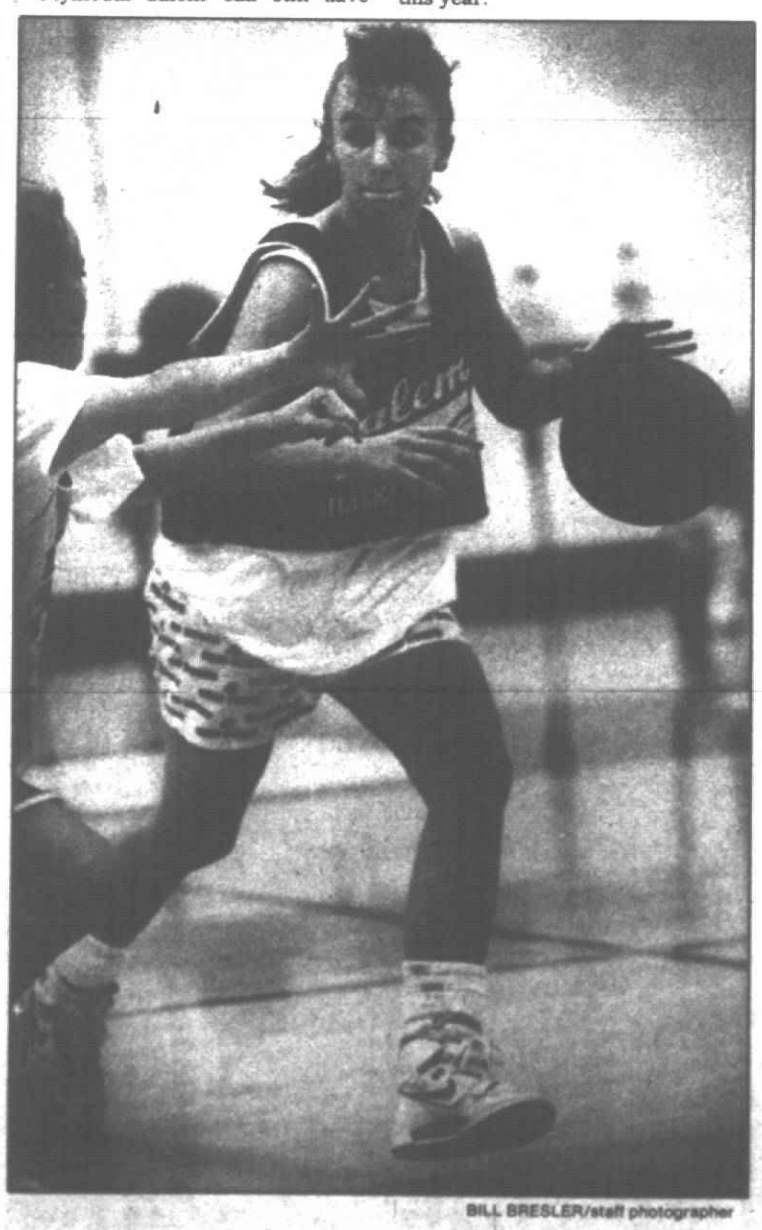
Salem emphasizes need for team play

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Salem can still have only five players on the court, but the team game will be emphasized more than ever in girls basketball this year.



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Sarah Ruete started as a sophomore for Plymouth Salem's basketball team and will be a key player this year, starting again at a wing position.

For the first time in several years, the Rocks don't have a bonafide all-stater to build their team around. Salem experienced life without Dena Head last year, and now Jill Estey has graduated to the college ranks.

The Rocks, however, do return five players from last year's 18-5 ballclub and enough talent to be considered a contender again in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"The difference between this team and last year is we had a great player to be the nucleus of that team," coach Fred Thomann said. "This year we have 3-4 good players who are going to be that nucleus.

"Jill was the focal point to hold everything together. We'll build around several players, and the whole will be better than the individual parts."

THE VETERAN players are seniors Lydia White, Wendy Bailey, Tracy Shough and Chris Simpson and junior Sarah Ruete.

Together with Estey and Teri King, the only other player lost to graduation, they produced a typical Salem team — somewhat surprisingly after major losses from the '87 state semifinal squad — that swept through the Lakes Division undefeated and captured a district championship.

Junior Betsy McAllister and sophomore Kelly Austin, who will replace Estey as the point guard, spent the latter part of last season on the varsity. The true newcomers are sophomore Emily Giuliani and freshman Yolanda Jackson.

"We've grown accustomed to being without great players," Thomann said. "Now it's the next group of players' turn to step in and get ready."

Salem has an abundant number of post players with all of the seniors playing that position primarily. The 5-foot-10 Giuliani, who was the top rebounder and No. 2 scorer on the junior varsity behind McAllister, will be a key player in the middle, too.

Bailey, the team captain who averaged eight points, is quicker and playing at a higher skill level, ac-

Ex-Spartan star boosts Adrian

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

A year ago, he was a question mark — and a big one at that. How well Pete Mazzoni, then a sophomore, performed at quarterback could easily make or break Adrian College's football season.

Spectacular might not be enough to describe Mazzoni's debut. The 6-foot-3, 195-pounder from Livonia (Stevenson) connected on 106 of 191 passes (55.5 percent) for 1,461 yards, with 11 touchdowns and just five interceptions.

More importantly, he guided the Bulldogs to a Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association co-championship; their 4-1 league mark tied them for first with Alma. Adrian also reached the NCAA Division III playoffs, losing in their opening game to Augustana (Ill.) College, 25-7. The 'Dogs finished 7-3 overall.

But as any of the coaches at the MIAA preseason media meeting would quickly point out, that was last year.

THE SITUATION has changed for Mazzoni, who earned first-team all-MIAA honors and was the 14th-ranked passer in Division III in '88. Last year he wasn't expected to accomplish nearly so much, although he had an experienced unit to work with.

This year, Adrian has just nine starters back, but because Mazzoni — together with the MIAA's most valuable offensive player, senior fullback Bill Badour (772 yards, 12 TDs) — returns, the Bulldogs are touted as top challengers.

Co-champ Alma (6-3 overall) was selected to win the MIAA championship; Adrian was the No. 2 choice. Albion, 3-2 in the MIAA and 6-3 overall last season, was picked to finish third, followed by Olivet (2-2-1, 4-4-1), Hope (1-4, 1-7-1) and Kalamazoo (0-4-1, 0-8-1).

Adrian coach Ron Labadie thought last season could have gone either way. Mazzoni's ability, not just on the field but in helping the team blend together, was instrumental in the 'Dogs success.

"We could have had a losing season," said Labadie, noting Adrian's two straight losses after a 3-0 start. "The canoe had tipped over, no question about it. The kids could have given up, but they didn't."

WHAT HELD them together, according to Labadie, was chemistry. "You have to have a certain amount of talent," he said, explaining his formula for success. "After that, it's how well the kids come together."

Adrian was third in the league in both offense and defense in '88. The team's greatest weakness was stopping the run; the 'Dogs allowed 151.2 yards per game, fifth in the MIAA.

This year, the defensive line and outside linebackers are more experienced. Juniors Mark Kerpet (6-0, 195), from Westland (Livonia Franklin), and Kevin Messner (5-11, 195), from Redford (Union), could be the starters at outside linebacker. Messner had 32 tackles, made two interceptions and recovered a fumble last season.

Inside linebacker and the secondary are Labadie's greatest defensive concerns. Junior Tony Boucher (5-10, 165), from Plymouth Canton, may land a starting spot in the secondary. He had one interception last season.

HOWEVER, ALMA may be too tough for Adrian to catch. The Scots have 10 offensive and seven defensive players with starting experience, including junior quarterback Steve Kinne, rated 12th in Division III passing efficiency in '88.

In addition, five of their starting offensive linemen return, and they are giants, weighing 260, 245, 270, 295 and, at tight end, 230. Their defense is equally bulky, with returning defensive linemen going 265, 265 and 240. No wonder Alma was No. 1 in both offense and defense last season.

Albion coach Pete Schmidt figures the 1989 campaign will be "one of the tighest races in years. Who plays who at home will be the key factor in the race." The Britons host Alma and play at Adrian.

Schmidt must replace quarterback Jan Firek and all-MIAA linebacker Steve Freier (from Garden City), and that won't be easy. The defense was second in the league in '88, and the defensive line returns. Also, Schmidt called the outside linebacking group "one of the best, as a group, we've assembled."

Junior Scott Bissell (6-0, 190), from West Bloomfield (Farmington Hills Harrison), will challenge for a spot in what Schmidt called "a solid secondary."

football

HOPE is rebuilding. After ruling the MIAA (seven titles in 11 seasons, through '87), the Flying Dutchmen have just 12 starters coming back from a team that was last in offense and next to last in defense.

At Olivet, second-year coach Dominic Livedoti is trying to take his Comets one more step up the ladder. "I think we will be (better)," the former West Bloomfield coach predicted. "It just depends how much better everyone else is." Livedoti has 15 starters and 36 letterwinners back to build with.

At Kalamazoo, rebuilding seems to be an annual event. Ed Baker, in the second year of his second stint as coach (he previously served from 1967-83), will have his run-and-shoot offense in gear again and more experience to work with.

"OUR NUCLEUS was made up of freshmen and sophomores last year," he said. "This year there is significant weight and strength gains. I expect us to be much improved."

Among those Baker is counting on is junior tight end Eric Johnson (6-3, 210), from Livonia (Stevenson), who — in a run-and-shoot offense — got little attention. "He'll see more this year," Baker promised. Sophomore wide receiver Mick Minard (5-11, 160), from Livonia (Franklin), could from Livonia (Churchill), is solid in also see some playing time.

On defense, Baker is hoping junior linebacker Jim Naif (6-0, 205), from the secondary.

However, the Hornets were last in every defensive category in '88, and second to last in offense, so there's lots of room for improvement.

Alumnus Klimes returns to coach soccer at North

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Earlier this month, Henry Klimes reacquainted himself with employees at North Farmington High.

Klimes, a 1982 North graduate, is the Raiders' new boys soccer coach. Soccer coaches have come and go at North, but Klimes hasn't changed much.

Well, ...

"He doesn't have as much hair and he's put on a few pounds, but he's a nice young man," said North secretary Judy Jones, who remembers Klimes from his high school days. "I remembered the face. He told me he spent a lot of hours in here (the North office). He must have been quiet."

Klimes, a vocal sort on the sidelines, replaces Jim Duggan, who resigned after guiding North to a Class A district final and a 4-7-3 overall record in his only year.

KLIMES HAS been on the job only two weeks but already he's having fun coaching his alma mater.

"It brings back old memories," he said. "It's weird going back through the halls. The funny thing is, when I went into the office the first day, there were the same ladies working in there. They've given me a 'Welcome home, whatever you need' greeting."

As for the comment about his hair, Klimes joked, "No roses for Judy (Jones) on Secretary's Day this year."

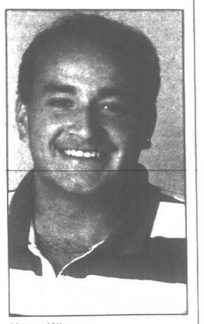
Klimes was a member of North's first soccer team in 1980. The highlight that year came when the Raiders finished third in a Detroit Country Day Tournament.

"We were always under .500," recalled Klimes, who coaches the Farmington Hills Mercy team in the spring. "Both years, we had about three guys who played soccer before and the rest of the team was made up of guys who didn't play football and wanted to get a letter in another sport.

"I DIDN'T mind, as long as they gave their all. It's like what I expect from these guys. All I can ask is that they give 110 percent. It comes from the heart. It depends on how much you want it."

North lost seven starters to graduation, including All-Observer first-team midfielder Jon Hauser, but Klimes is excited about the list of returnees and newcomers.

As of Monday, 42 players have attended North practice sessions, and nine have varsity experience. The most talented figures to be senior midfielder Todd Menko, an All-Observer honorable mention pick last year.



Henry Klimes
will coach at alma mater

Another promising returnee is goalkeeper Roger Johnson, who made great strides at the end of the '88 season.

"They have a great work ethic," said Klimes, who starred at Schoolcraft College after high school. "Menko will probably be my captain, and I'm really impressed by my keeper. I like his height, he has a long reach and he's a gutsy keeper."

OTHER SENIOR returnees include forward Bob Sedki and midfielders Sanju Baluja and Ryan Regan. Leading the junior class are forwards Aaron Lawrence and Joel Lattin and defenders Pat Beresh and Mike Ober.

Klimes is pleased by the turnout, especially among the freshman class. Among the 16 freshmen is Eric McClelland, who is 5-feet tall if he's lucky. McClelland's brother, Ken, played for North last fall before graduating.

"If I can get him (McClelland) to drink some milk, by his senior year he should be a premier player," Klimes said.

The Raiders open the season Friday, Sept. 1, at home against West Bloomfield. Klimes looks forward to a .500 season and the meeting Monday, Sept. 18, at home against rival Farmington High.

"Farmington is the tough game. It was always emotional, even when I played," Klimes said. "It's like Michigan-Michigan State.

"I'm really happy to have coaching jobs at North and Mercy. Their close to home and I'd like to make both powerhouses, no matter how long it takes."

Can Rocks float in Lakes?

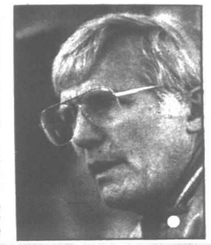
By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Ken Johnson has built a successful program in eight years as boys soccer coach at Plymouth Salem, but there's one record he's not proud of.

Salem is 0-11-2 overall against Class A heavyweight Livonia Stevenson, and unless the Rocks can beat the Spartans they might never win a Lakes Division title.

Salem, 11-5-2 overall last year, finished second (what's new?) to eventual Class A champ Stevenson in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Johnson said Salem would like to claim a Lakes Division title this year to boost its confidence heading into the state tourney.



'Our big goal is to win the division. I don't know how many times we've finished second. Our goal is to beat Stevenson and then challenge Churchill for the WLAA championship.'
— Ken Johnson
Salem soccer coach

SALEM'S SEASON ended in the first round of the district tournament last year when Plymouth Canton edged the Rocks, 3-2.

"Stevenson lost a lot of powerhouses, like (Kurt) Will, (Pete) Galea, and (Eric) Schwed; so this is as good a year as any," Johnson said. "Our big goal is to win the division. I don't know how many times we've finished second. Our goal is to beat Stevenson and then challenge Churchill for the WLAA championship."

Anything can happen during the season, but those in the know have named Salem as one of the state's top four teams along with Redford Catholic Central, Stevenson and Troy Athens.

The Rocks lost forwards Donovan Nichols and Marc Lipke (who combined for 17 goals) to graduation, but Johnson has plenty of weapons returning.

"We have experience, fitness and great team spirit this year," Johnson said. "We have a good team and feel very good about ourselves."

And the Rocks have a healthy Jeff Gold. Gold played only one game in '88 because of a broken leg, but he is one of four midfielders returning for their senior seasons, and he may be the best of the bunch.

THE OTHER senior midfielders are Matt Gold, Greg Christensen and Bill Joker.

Johnson said he is employing a 4-4-2 lineup instead of a 4-3-3 to accommodate the strong play at midfield. The lone senior up front is Chris Olson, and he'll be flanked by junior Andy Cosenza.

Already the new formation has paid dividends, as the Rocks last Saturday defeated Detroit Country Day, Dearborn Edsel Ford and West Bloomfield by a combined, 5-0 score in a four-way scrimmage at Canton Recreational Complex.

The Rocks began the day by defeating Country Day 2-0 and holding Yellow Jacket All-America Joel Russell scoreless. Senior Matt Tudor, who had six shutouts and a 1.13 goals-against average, will be one of the state's best goalkeepers this year, Johnson predicted. Jeff Gold and Tudor are co-captains.

"Matt's better than last year and he could be all-state," Johnson said. "He's gotten a little tougher, this being his senior year, and he's matured more."

Salem has a young, yet talented fullback group, led by juniors Jake Baker, Ryan Fitzpatrick and Brad Fisch. Also challenging for time will be freshman Tom Baker, Jake's brother.

JAKE BAKER, a starter on the Rocks' WLAA championship basketball team, has grown an inch to 6-foot-6, and Johnson said "He's better than ever. He's good and for a big guy, he's got quick feet and is very dedicated."

Some promising newcomers include juniors Chris LaJoy, Todd LaJoy, Joe Tippmann, Derek Olson and Joe Nunez. Tippman scored two goals in last weekend's scrimmage.

Sophomores expected to compete are John Truskowski and Eric Stemmer.

soccer

Salem opens the season Saturday, Sept. 2, in the annual Plymouth Invitational at 10 a.m. against defending champion Grand Blanc at Centennial Educational Park.

Plymouth Canton plays in the other bracket at 10 a.m. against Portage Central, and the winners will meet at 5 p.m. to decide the title. CC beat Salem 2-1 last year in the first round, and Canton defeated the Rocks in the consolation game.

Coach Fred Thomann instructs senior Wendy Bailey during a Salem practice. Bailey's increased role will have her rotating between the post, which she played last year, and the wing. The Rocks begin their season Friday in Traverse City.

Rocks start early in hoop tournament

cording to Thomann, who has Bailey learning to play the wing, also.

"WENDY IS OUR jack-of-all-trades," Thomann said. "King and Ruete played inside-outside last year; Keri McBride and Dena the year before. In case of foul trouble, you need players who can play multi-positions. That will be Sarah and Wendy this year."

Thomann hopes for some big games from the 5-10 White, and Shough and Simpson will provide backup in the post. Simpson is attempting to come back from a serious knee injury that caused her to miss half of last season and required reconstructive surgery.

"She's done the rehabilitation, she's got her brace on and she seems to be OK," Thomann said. "Hopefully, somewhere along the way, she'll step in and give us some good minutes."

Austin, who is the same height (5-3) as Estey, who received a basketball scholarship to the University of Illinois, takes over the duties that were Estey's responsibility for three years.

"One thing Kelly has to understand is there will be a lot of comparisons to Jill," Thomann said. "It's not her thing to get caught up in that but to do the things she can do. How good she will be only the test of time will tell."

The 5-9 Ruete, the second-leading varsity scorer behind Estey, is the anchor on the wing where she started last year and averaged nine points. Jackson and McAllister will likely rotate at the other wing position with Bailey.

ESTEY AVERAGED 16 points last year, and Ruete, King and Bailey were even in their scoring support. Ruete figures to be a key scorer this year, but just who will emerge in that capacity is speculative. Ideally, the load will divided equally between the post and the perimeter, Thomann said.

"I don't think this team will be as high scoring as ones we've had in past years," he said. "I think the tempo will be a little less this year.

"The post-up game will be one of our strengths. We've really stressed being able to take it in there and do something with it.

"Obviously, the perimeter game will be a key, too," he added. "We have a veteran player in Ruete, and the other four who will be playing most of the minutes are a converted post (Bailey), a former JV player (McAllister), a freshman (Jackson) and a sophomore point guard (Austin)."

Thomann said the Rocks will be better late in the year, and Salem will find out early where it stands. The Rocks play Ludington in a tournament Friday night in Traverse City and face the winner/loser of the Traverse City-Sterling Heights game Saturday.

"We're playing early enough that we can test ourselves and find out where the deficiencies are," Thomann said. "We're a young team and we've got a chance to come together as a group and play a couple games with officials and a crowd."

With a nucleus of players returning from a successful team, Salem again will be considered a WLAA contender without the benefit of a great player.

"Every team I've ever coached I expected to contend," Thomann said. "I feel very strongly this team can be a very competitive basketball team."

Hornets capture title

The Canton Hornets under-11 boys soccer team won last weekend's Maumee (Ohio) International Festival Soccer '89, outscoring the opposition 18-1 during the four-game tourney.

The Hornets finished their two-day title run by defeating Dayton Le Veck 2-1 Sunday on a goal with time running out in the second overtime. There were 116 teams invited to the tournament, with eight teams in each division.

The Hornets reached the final round of their division by disposing of the Queen City Navigators 3-0 in the semifinals.

The Hornets opened tourney play Saturday, ripping the Grand Blanc-based Genesee Star Wings 4-0. They came back later in the day to rout the Rossford Dawgs 9-0 in a second-round encounter.

The Hornets are coached by Phil La Joy, who is assisted by Jerry Parent, Don Kearney and Brian Konley. Dennis Ras is the team manager.

Members of the team include: Ryan Blanzy, Adam Borsos, Jason Gibson, Shawn Kearney, Brett Konley, Scott Loewe, Tim Makins, Tim Parent, Michael Pedrys, Andy Power, Alec Ras, Eric Sarrault, Billy Scherle and Ryan Winkler.

Two other Canton representatives did well at the tourney. The under-12 Strikers, coached by Wes Shasko, and the under-9 Express, coached by George Demergis, each finished second.

exercising options
Myrna Partrich

Dear Myrna: I'm a very athletic man. I weight train, play soccer, tennis and run. I do have a big problem with headaches. I sometimes get them after I weight train or overdo a sport. I do take my sports seriously. Could it be that I'm creating the tension and therefore getting a headache?

Have you seen a doctor about this problem? It may be a medical problem and, if so, should be dealt with accordingly.

I can only give you an answer relating to exercise, which should not be sufficient for you.

Headaches are usually thought to occur in people who are under extreme stress and tension. In addition of course, there are those who are prone to migraines or headaches.

Athletes are no exception. Athletes can develop headaches that are activity-related.

When weight training too hard, the athlete can be at risk for an exertional headache. The exertional headache comes on quickly and lasts for a relatively short time.

Doctors do not all agree as to the causes of headaches of athletes. Though it is generally accepted that strenuous activity can trigger both migraines and muscle contraction headaches.

According to Michale Selvitella, there are two popular theories as to why exercise can cause headaches.

- During the activity, the blood vessels within the head expand and stretch due to stress. This is the dilation that produces pain.
- There are pain centers located within various parts of the brain. These centers are stimulated when a valsalva maneuver is performed. This occurs when you hold your breath when lifting or straining during an activity. There is an increase in pressure within the chest cavity and head which stimulates the pain centers.

In my research, I've discovered that most athletes who are prone to headaches, develop headaches that are caused by muscle tension across the shoulders, neck and into the base of the skull.

Also, headaches can occur after a sudden increase in weight-training loads. Are you slowly increasing your weights? Do you have an expert in weight training overseeing your program?

If you are a competitive sportsman, you might be tensing up before a game, causing your headaches. Sounds like that to me.

See a doctor, though, and check it out regardless.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Send your letters to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi 48009).

Eagles try to soar in new division

Plymouth Christian boys soccer coach Ed Olshansky likes his team's chances in 1989.

The Eagles will be playing in the American Division of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference, made up of the league's smallest schools. That means they won't get beaten up as often by teams twice their size.

Christian was 5-12 last year; 1-11 in league play. This is Olshansky's second year at the helm.

"We will be in competition against other schools our size, and this will improve our chances of winning a title," Olshansky said. "We have a lot of freshmen coming in, but they all played as they've grown up. The team might be young, but they've got soccer knowledge.

"It's just putting it together and playing as a team. Blending the freshmen with the juniors will be a challenge."

Christian performed well outside the difficult MIAC last year, earning a second-place trophy in the Association of Christian Schools International Tournament in South Bend, Ind.

OLSHANSKY BELIEVES the biggest challenge this fall inside the division will come from Warren Bethesda Christian. Other teams, such as Inter-City and Oakland Christian, will offer challenges outside the division, he said.

Christian must overcome the loss of Kyle Mavin, an All-MIAC goalkeeper who earned team most valuable player honors. Also gone are All-MIAC honorable mention choice Jason Anthony and Ben Odum, Christian's most improved player.

The other graduation casualties include Scott Bennett, Kevin Breier and John Pierce.

Leading the cast of returnees are fullbacks John Sutter and Jeff Smith. Sutter is a senior, while Smith begins his junior campaign.

Sophomore Jon Hawley and junior Kevin Mueller also bring back impressive credentials.

THREE PLAYERS — Jeff Bennett, Jeff Campbell and Kevin Campbell — spent a year's hiatus playing for Christian's golf team but return to lend support to Olshansky's squad.

A group of newcomers is led by Paul Bachman, a native Brazilian who begins his sophomore campaign. Others to watch include sophomores Brant Crain and Seth Heller. Freshman forward Jason Neil was the leading scorer for his middle school team, and freshman Jim Eldridge has a "great foot," according to Olshansky.

"Neil is a very good athlete," Olshansky said. "Hopefully, he'll get a lot of goals this season. He's one of the school's best athletes and should make an impact in any sport he plays. He knows what he's doing, and that should help the team a lot."

All in all, things look much more promising for the Eagles.

"We will play a European style game and will be competitive," Olshansky said. "Watch out for us next year."

Macker: Hoop for fun's sake

C.J. Risak

In keeping fun at the fore of the spectacle, teams that lose their first two games drop into competition for the Toilet Bowl. Winner of the Toilet Bowl bracket wins a trophy.

BEFORE THE BIG-TIME sports seasons begin, the serious stuff with all the accompanying ballyhoo — I mean high school and college athletics — before all that stuff gets in gear again, there's time for one last blast of summer.

Not that the nearly 3,000 backyard basketball players who will flood Oakland University's campus this weekend aren't serious about their sport. Maybe not as serious as the folks downtown who bet thousands on summer league roundball games, and use high-caliber hardware to enforce their wagers.

But most of the throng that will gather for the first-ever, OU-hosted, Gus Macker 3-on-3 Tournament will be focused as they play for pride and bragging rights.

There's no major cash prizes or fabulous trips to exotic locales awaiting the winners. No promises of pro tryouts. All the winners get is a trophy and an individual award, as well as their official tournament T-shirts, programs and newspapers (called the "Mackerville Gussette"), which are presented to every team.

THE GUS MACKER tournaments — OU's is the 18th in the series, which stretches coast to coast — are the ultimate topping to the summer for a hoop fanatic. Three against three, half-court basketball, the kind most kids grew up playing in their backyards or in a dingy gym or on a playground.

By the way, in case you're interested, entry fee for the four-man teams is $50, and are being accepted from 4 until 8 p.m. Friday at the registration tent, located in front of the Oakland Center on OU's campus.

The brainchild of this summer spectacle is Scott McNeal. He started it — where else? — in his backyard in Belding 15 years ago. Since then, the Belding tournament has remained the all-time Macker attraction — a record 4,014 teams jammed the tiny town near Grand Rapids for this year's event.

At OU, tournament officials (which includes OU womens basketball coach Bob Taylor, who grew up in Greenville, a neighbor of Belding) are expecting a first-year record of more than 700 teams.

That means, OU folks figure, crowds between 10,000 and 15,000, both Saturday and Sunday.

THERE WILL be 46 divisions of competition with approximately 16 teams in each. Divisions are decided by age, experience and height, with play for both male and female. Each team is guaranteed three games; the tournament is double-elimination.

In keeping fun at the fore of the spectacle, teams that lose their first two games drop into competition for the Toilet Bowl. Winner of the Toilet Bowl bracket wins a trophy.

There's more. The Macker sponsors a Best of Your Team Trivia Award contest, with one winner per host city. Questions on the trivia entry form include best team nicknames, best team trade, best team mascot, best cheerleader, best water boy, best team bus, best team controversy to make the news — well, you get the idea.

The winning trivia team gets an autographed Macker game ball. Entries are judged on humor, uniqueness, originality, creativity — but not honesty.

GAMES ARE PLAYED to 20 baskets, must win by two, with a maximum of 25. Baskets count as one point, with long-range shots scoring two. Only open division games have officials, but each court will have a "gusbuster" to oversee disputes and keep games under control.

And to keep the Macker's central theme firmly in force. Which can only be discovered by carefully examining the 1989 Official Macker Team Brochure.

Under the Fun Facts to Know and Tell section are the six Ws (a warning about gambling, followed by who, what, where, when and why). The why lists seven reasons for having the Macker, stuff like "to provide the country with a kinder and gentler 3-on-3 basketball tournament," or "to prove that the bigger and better Gus Macker events are the result of natural growth, not steriod use," or even "to make the world a better place to live (and dribble)."

But another of the whys actually comes relatively close to the truth. "Because life is not a spectator sport." And the Macker isn't for watchers.

There is no admission charge for spectators. The Macker starts at 9 a.m. Saturday, with the divisional championship games played between 5 and 7 p.m. Sunday.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

TO: The residents, taxpayers and property owners of the Charter Township of Northville, County of Wayne.

Please take notice that by resolution adopted on August 10, 1989, the Township Board determined a proposed additional millage rate as defined by 1982 PA 5 to be 1.776 mills.

Please take further notice that on the 31st day of August, 1989, at 7:15 p.m., the Township Board will hold a public hearing at the Township Hall, located at 41600 Six Mile Road, Northville, Michigan for the purpose of receiving testimony and considering a levy of the additional millage rate as defined by 1982 PA 5 for the ensuing fiscal year.

On Tuesday, November 8, 1988, the electorate of the Township voted to accept a levy of an additional 2 mills to be used solely for the operation, maintenance, improvement and capital expenditures of the police and law enforcement services of the Northville Township Police Department.

The Township's total operating tax rate for 1988 was 3.1534 mills ($3.16 per $1000 SEV). Because of state law (Act 5 of 1982), the Township's base tax rate is reduced to 2.8002 mills for 1989.

The Township proposes to levy the newly voted millage rate, reduced per Act 5 of 1982 of 1.7760 mills for a total operating rate for 1989 of 4.5762 mills.

Please take further notice that the proposed additional millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies as permitted by operation of subsection (2) of 1982 PA 5 by sixty-four (64) percent.

Please take further notice that the Township Board has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied from within its authorized millage rate.

Public comments on this proposal increase are welcome at the public meeting.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED,

Some turtles prefer to stay on land

nature

Timothy Nowicki

When we think of turtles we think of rivers, lakes, and ponds. Wetland areas such as these are places where we find most turtles found in Michigan.

There are two exceptions to this rule. Box turtles and wood turtles spend more time out of the water than in the water. Wood turtles are not as terrestrial as box turtles, but they are frequently found in fields basking in the sun.

Of the nine native species of turtle found in Michigan, wood turtles have the most distinctive shell. In fact, the name wood turtle comes from the similarity between the ringed sculpturing of the upper shell plates, to the concentric rings of a tree trunk. Some may argue the name refers to its woodland habitat, but no matter which description you prefer, they are both true.

While traversing woodlands, wood turtles eat a variety of items. Their menu consists of insects, various plant leaves, fruits and mushrooms. They are particularly fond of earthworms.

THIS FONDNESS for earthworms has led to a very interesting behavior which is reminescent of those professional worm grunters. Man grunts for worms by driving a stake into the ground and then rubs it with a notched stick or a coil spring. Vibrations created force the worms to the surface and away from the disturbance. Every year Florida has a national worm grunting championship to see who can collect the most worms in a given time period.

Wood turtles are more subtle in their methods, but just as effective. They gently but firmly stomp their feet on the ground. First stomping with their right foot for a while, and then with their left. A researcher imitated this same action with his fingers and was able to force earthworms to the surface.

Researchers have also experimented with a wood turtle's ability to run a typical maze. Food was placed at the end of tunnels which had three or four right and left turn choices. Their results indicated that the wood turtle mastered the maze as readily as a rat would under the same experimental conditions.

Next time you walk along wetlands in northern Michigan, look on the ground for the unexpected wood turtle; maybe you will catch it grunting for worms.

Tips for keeping your pets cool, comfortable in summer

The Michigan Humane Society (MHS) offers some helpful tips for pet owners during hot summer weather. While the heat and humidity is uncomfortable for us, it can be potentially dangerous for pets. Providing extra care can help to avert an accident or injury.

The MHS has the following suggestions:

- Never leave a pet unattended in a parked car. Even when the windows are left partially open, the temperature can rise to unbearable levels in a very short time, creating the conditions for heat stroke, and even death.
- If your pet is outdoors, make sure he is confined and that shade and fresh, clean water are available at all times. Also, watch for any insect bites. They generally appear on the face and the ears. Consult with your veterinarian if you notice any irregularities.
- Exercising and walks are best done in the early morning or late evening when temperatures are cooler.
- Be very careful about the use and storage of fertilizers, pesticides and cleaning products to avoid accidental poisonings.
- Don't let pets hang their heads out of the car window while you're driving and never let them ride in the back of a pick-up truck. Eye and ear infections can result from blowing airborne particles, as well as severe injury or death, from leaping or being thrown out of a moving vehicle.
- Panting is a dog's way of "sweating." Never bind a dog's mouth closed. As crazy as this sounds, some people tie or tape their dogs mouth closed to stop them from barking. This unacceptable training measure has resulted in heatstroke and death.
- Be sure your dog has been tested for heartworm and is on preventative medication from April until the first frost. Unprotected dogs can get heartworm from an mosquito. Animals love the outdoors and you and your pet can have a terrific summer with a few precautions. The Michigan Humane Society urges you to contact them at 872-3400 if you have any questions or concerns about your pets well-being, or if you spot any animal distress.

The Michigan Humane Society is a private, non-profit organization that operates three shelters, three veterinary clinics and a wildlife rehabilitation clinic.

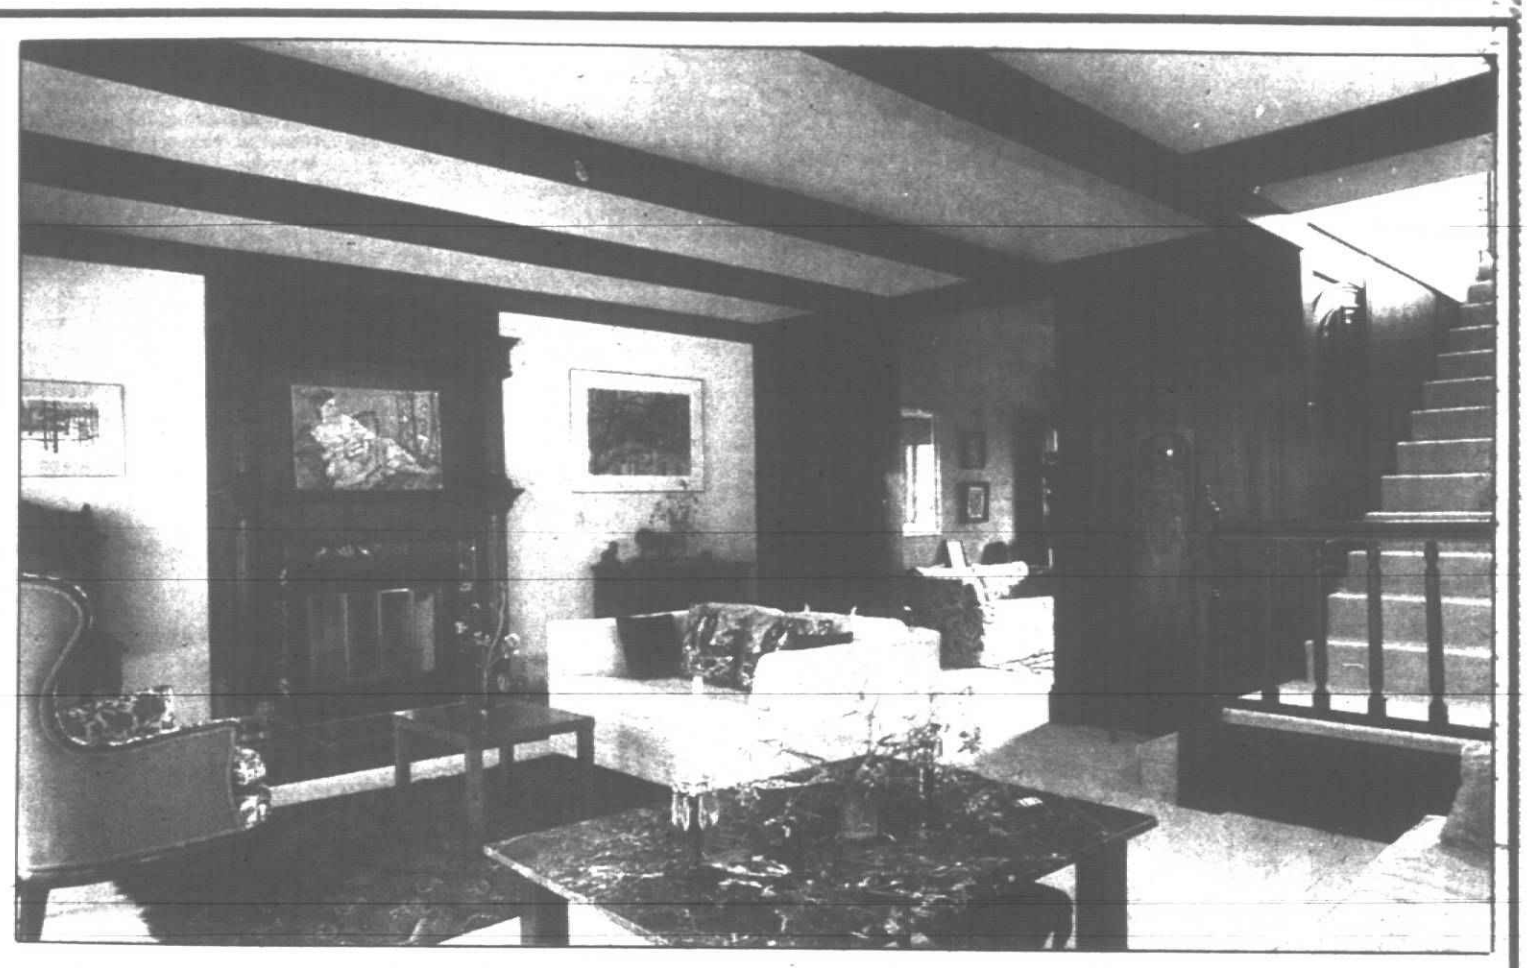
Fred and Dody Simper pause for a moment in his studio in their new home north of Leland.



Three-acre work of art takes shape

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

IT TOOK FRED AND Dody Simper 37 years to complete their six-acre painting in West Bloomfield. Now, they're doing a second major work — a three-acre painting on high ground with Lake Michigan on the west and Lake Leelanau on the east.

That's the way this husband and wife team of artists think — the world's their easel and all activities are creative. After seriously considering retiring to a site on the Pacific Ocean near Carmel, Calif., they chose instead this corner of Michigan, a mile north of Leland on the Leelanau Peninsula.

Dody designed their "painting" is a home built last spring under careful supervision.

The couple had been collecting antiques, especially architectural pieces, for more than 25 years. They moved several garages full of the stuff up north and Dody incorporated much of it into her basic plan — turn of the century (and before) newel posts, balusters, church doors, roof supports or corbels, sinks, stoves and lots of furniture.

A sizable collection of furniture and treasures from their long-time summer home on Bois Blanc Island was merged with that from their southern home.

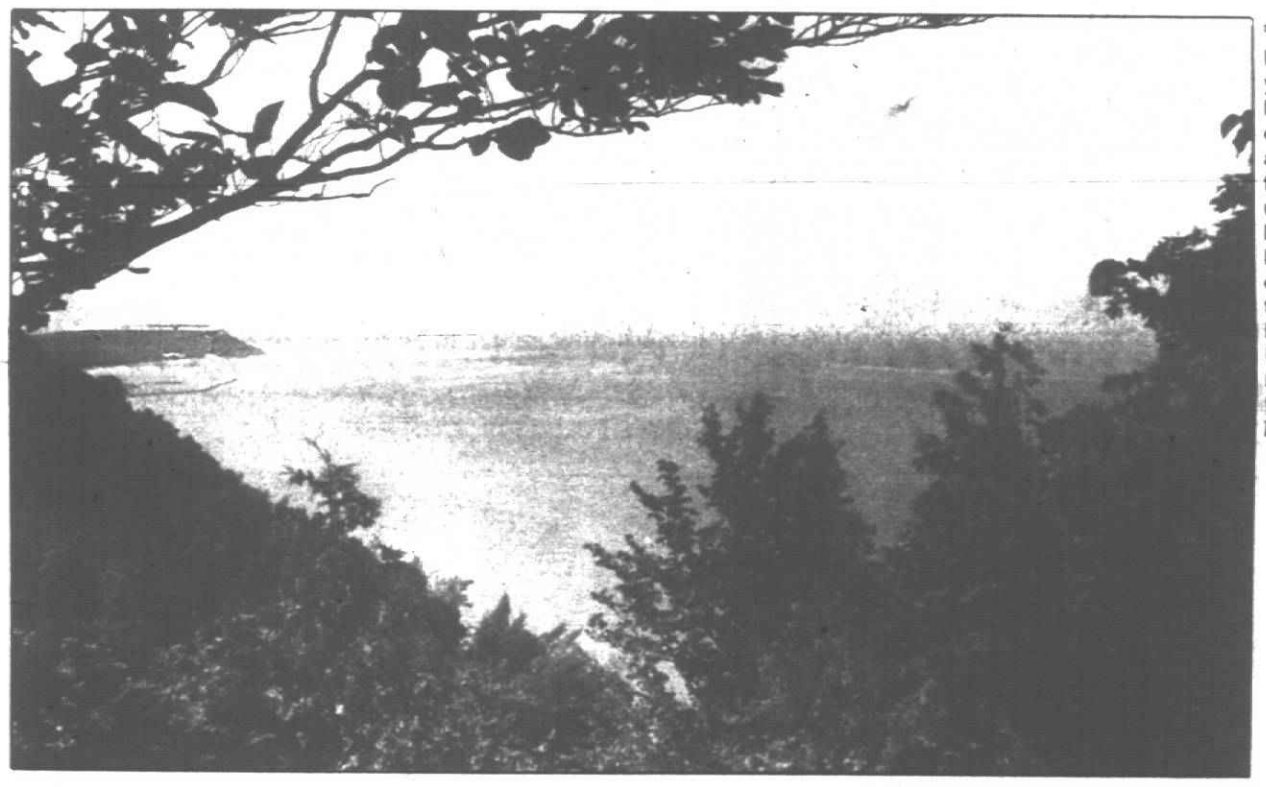
"Most people go to smaller houses — when we retired we went to bigger," said Dody. "It works for our kind of life."

THEIR KIND OF LIFE includes studios for each with a floor between. "Fred likes to be high and look out," she said. "What we love are rolling hills and water — Lake Michigan and Lake Leelanau. I like to be secluded, I need absolute silence. We like to see each other's work, but we don't like to hear each other's brush strokes."

So his studio, where he turns out beautiful nature oriented watercolors, is on the second floor, facing west. It has white walls and dark woodwork (his preference), door walls leading to a deck with a magnificent view of woods and water.

"I look out the window a lot," he said with a smile, "the pattern of aspens is like looking at a painting."

Her studio is snuggled into the lower level. It faces east and around dawn or dusk, she may see deer grazing from her ground level windows. Her work table is an old, doubled over, wood-burning stove. It is beautifully restored with lots of interesting storage areas.



The Simpers had been collecting for years for their new house — fireplace, church doors, posts and balusters and furniture. It is all used in their new house. A painting by Dody Simper over the fireplace is flanked by two by her husbands. At left is their view of Lake Michigan from their private deck in the woods.

The house, which Dody describes as "beauty on a budget, "is basically a three-story square, built into the side of a hill, with a board and batten exterior and front and rear decks on two levels, with magnificent views of the lakes and countryside.

There are gas burning fireplaces in the living room and master bedroom directly above and a free standing one in the library. The mantels are supported by carved-wood, antique corbels. Beautifully-carved, antique church doors form two walls of the library. Behind the free-standing stove is a floor-to-ceiling mural of woods and blue sky, which Fred painted.

THE BALUSTERS AND elaborate posts of the center stairway were stored in West Bloomfield before being called into action. While she designed all the architectural elements into her plan, the actual fitting was done by their two young builders from Suttons Bay, Jeff Haenlein and Eric Miller. They said it was a work of art in itself.

'I look out the window a lot, the pattern of aspens 's like looking at a painting.'
Fred Simper

The church doors had to be cut to fit (they had square nails), and some new balusters had to be cut and turned to match the old ones. They found a local resident who wanted to help with that.

Dodie wanted the deck off the living room to have a swooping curve on the outer edge. Haenlein and Miller weren't sure it could be done and then did it.

"They said it looked like a grand piano," Dody said.

"In buying all this crap there was never a decision," Dody said while standing in the living room. "We both always went for the same thing. And there was no problem in doing this house, we always agreed."

The home with the white walls, dark woodwork, and beautifully-arranged artifacts and antiques has become is a great setting for their art. Each has an outstanding work in the dining room. An arrangement of their paintings is on the fireplace wall of the living room. While they work in completely different styles, approaches and media, all go well together, because of the eclectic nature of the house.

"The DNR (Department of Natural Resources) told us where to put the house," said Fred, "they don't want people building on erosion-risk property."

Consequently, their house is well back from the end of the cliff overlooking Lake Michigan. But, to savor fully the site, they built a separate square deck about 50 yards through the woods that can easily accommodate a half dozen chairs and a table. Here they can sit with a beautiful view of the lake through the bushes and trees.

FROM THE CLIFF, 135 feet above the narrow beach, the Manitou Islands can be seen straight ahead. To the east are the Fox Islands, to the west is Whaleback Point, and beyond is the Manitou Passage. The colors in the water change almost hourly, from as apple green as the Caribbean and as azure as the Mediterranian to shades of slate gray and off white.

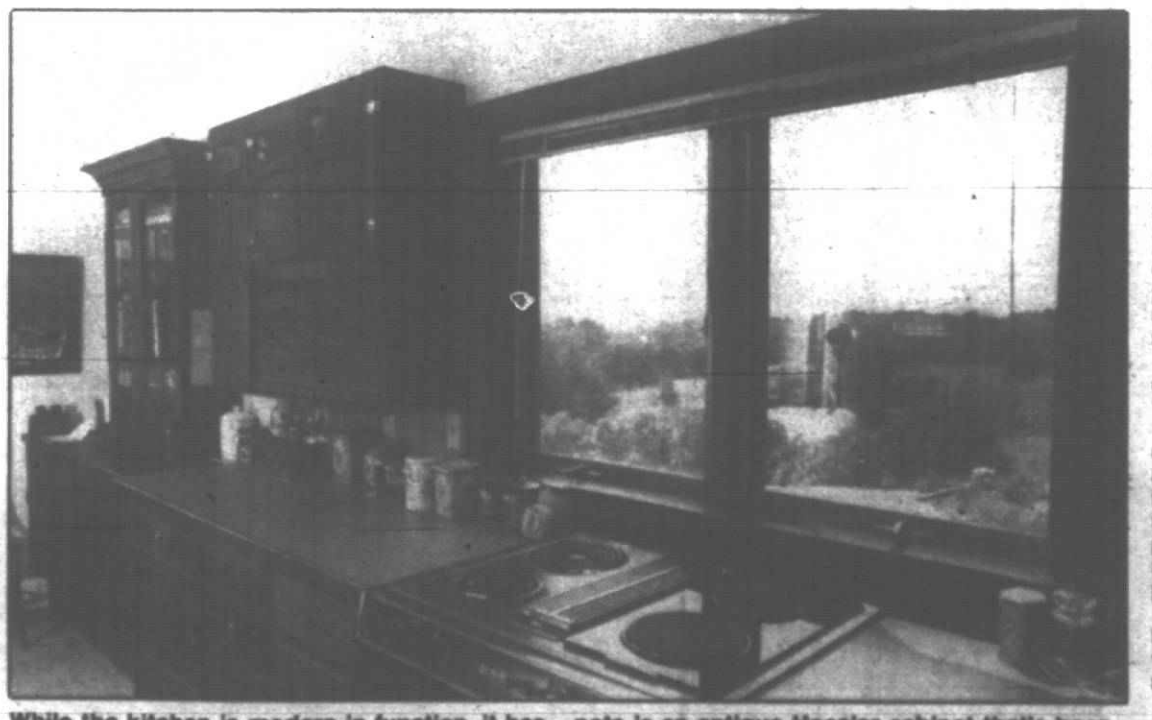
"We both love gray weather, you can see color better," Dody said. "Sun is overrated."

As they sat together on the hidden deck with a magnificent view and a breeze rustling the leaves of the stand of quaking aspen behind them, Dody said, "We think Michigan's the most beautiful place in the world. I love it better than any place I've ever been."

"We love winter," Fred said. "So many people don't like Michigan winter, but the rolling hills with snow are made to order."

But then, so was the house — and so is the setting and the lifestyle which they nourish with loving care.

View from the deck off the master bedroom to the deck off the living room below gives an idea of the feeling of space that is so much a part of this lifestyle.



While the kitchen is modern in function, it has a timeless look. At the end of the row of cabinets is an antique Hoosier cabinet that's been in Simper kitchens for years and years.

Don't abandon old color standards too quickly

all about color

Helen Diane Vincent

Q. I'm just getting to know and like a very attractive man who is also showing an interest in me. He's a very quiet person who holds a good job and seems to be responsible. The only thing out of the ordinary is his strong preference for black. He not only wears a lot of black, but it also dominates his apartment. I've asked him about this obvious preference. He doesn't see it as anything unusual. Would such a strong preference for black indicate an undesirable psychological trait or problem that might come up in the future?

A. The strong preference for black, especially at the exclusion of other colors indicates both positive and negative personality traits. How extreme or potentially dangerous the negative qualities become depends on what other traits or circumstances reinforce or balance them.

The positive aspects of choosing black include a sense of reserve and capacity to defend himself and others in matters of principle. He is possessed by a striving for power that can be used for either good or bad. The negatives emerge when normal channels for expression are blocked, forcing emotions to become even more internalized and intensified. Then the reserve could turn to aloofness and the defiance revert to violence.

So it comes down to what balance he has in his life whether or not he'll be a good partner for you.

Q. We're just completing an addition to our home. We've designed the room so its large windows overlook a spectacular view of a lake and surrounding trees. We were wondering what colors would be best? The adjacent living room is in deep rose and blue-greens and somehow don't seem right for the new addition.

A. The key to the whole approach is not to try to upstage Mother Nature. Use colors that are like faint echoes of what you see, season after season. Include a soft white to reflect nature's clouds and snow; use very contained terracotta and gold to complement the fall. Selectively add celadon green and a light blue to welcome spring. Leave exposed brick if possible and place a rug on a wood or slate floor instead of wall-to-wall carpeting.

A soft harmony of balanced warm and cool tones such as this just a few steps away from being neutrals, will provide an appropriate and relaxed setting for enjoying, and not competing with the view. And it shouldn't conflict with the adjacent living room colors.

Q. I'm a 63-year-old man, recently divorced, who would like to think I'm current with the times. Recently I've been dating a 28-year old woman who has brought my attention to a design movement variously called post-modern or New Wave. I find the color and design expressions of this movement difficult to understand, but don't want to appear old-fashioned. What can you tell me about it, especially regarding the unconventional color arrangements.

A. Welcome to the contemporary world and a preview of things to come. The various style expressions identified as post modern have already become the signature of the younger generations."

Although you won't find complete agreement on exactly how to define this movement, certain underlying attitudes make it different from both traditional and early modern styles. Central to this attitude is the incorporation of design elements no previous cultural movement would have seriously considered. Everything from motifs of 1950s' diners to the glitz of Las Vegas, from a rustic Southwest pueblo to a formal French chair are appropriated. But it isn't as chaotic as you may think. In the process new rules are bing formed, altering our familiar sense of proportions and color harmonies.

The whole matter is a natural response to the multiplicity of changes in our times, and the variety of cultural influences that surround us. Older cultural movements were invariably linked to some kind of absolute, or pure standard. The new rules are trying for a broader accomodation of circumstances.

Color is drastically affected. Carefully spaced arrangements of dark, medium, and bright colors, identified as harmonies from centuries ago, are now being challenged by a new color sense, more interested in unconventional color choices, more intuitive, and less reasoned.

By all means explore the new styles. You'll enjoy it and achieve an insight into how not only younger people think, but also those on the cutting edge of new ideas. But don't abandon your standards too quickly. My calculated guess is that what your young friend finds attractive in you is the very stability and conservatism you could be questioning.

Novel approach

Boy meets a demon-ridden wheel chair

book break

Victoria Diaz

Thomas Sullivan has written a strange book.

At the center of the Lathrup Village author's second novel, "Born Burning" (E.P. Dutton, $18.95), is, of all things, a chair. Not just any chair, mind you, but a chair carved from the heart of a 2,000-year-old teak tree in China's forbidden forest.

A tree which apparently had its roots in hell and even acquired a kind of consciousness in its lifetime. The elaborate chair was created to be the throne of a 17th century Chinese ruler so evil that he was said to have dined on his own male children.

Many years after the despot's death, the chair is purchased one day from a sinister bone-boiling merchant in Calcutta by a wealthy, young Englishman, who takes the chair home with ideas of making it into a symbol of his own dynasty.

From there, it is passed from generation to generation, from eldest son to eldest son, wreaking havoc as it goes, bringing tragedy to those male children in the Whitehall family who are privileged to sit upon the patriarch chair (as a kind of rite of passage) on their 7th birthdays.

Eventually, the chair ends up in Michigan — suburban Detroit, as a matter of fact, and here, the plot of "Born Burning" thickens considerably.

Joey Whitehall is a small, mouse-like boy with "big, nocturnal eyes," who is expected, like those before him, to sit in the revered patriarch chair on the occasion of his 7th birthday. But, unlike his predecessors, he senses, has sensed from even before his birth, the malevolent spirit of this bizarre piece of furniture — and, if he can help it, is having none of it.

When Joey's father dies, his Uncle Lucien steps in as a kind of surrogate father to the boy and, make no mistake about it, Uncle Luce intends to see to it that Joey goes along with family tradition, or else.

As far-fetched as all of this sounds, Sullivan actually makes it work most of the time. His deft writing style makes for a taut, suspenseful page-turner, some of his images are as surprising and unique as any you'd find in a John Irving novel, and Sullivan is especially adept at depicting the ways in which adults try — and often fail — to communicate with children, and vice versa.

What's most effective about this book, though, is what was most effective bout Sullivan's first novel, "The Phases of Harry Moon" — his characters. Sullivan's portrait of the desperate Joey — alone, abused, and sick with fear — is so vivid that "Born Burning," at times, is painful to read. And his depiction of the Jekyll-and-Hyde Lucien is, in its way, just as impressive. Lucien smells nice, eats popcorn, performs delightful magic tricks, likes to watch "The Cosby Show," helps out with school science projects — and secretly inflicts a merciless kind of torture upon his young nephew.

What's least effective here is the book's linchpin. The idea of a chair that is ridden with demons often comes across as little more than a cartoonish image, not melding at all with the plausible nature of Sullivan's nicely-wrought, life-like characters.

A slightly-confusing ending is also a disappointment.

Still, "Born Burning" is a smartly-paced, entertaining experience, perhaps especially well-suited for a summer's evening when you're in the mood for something off-beat. When you settle down into that old easy chair, however, you may want to keep one eye on all that naugahyde. Where does that stuff come from, anyway?

Last words:

Chosen as an alternate selection of the Book-of-the-Month Club for fall, "The Harbinger Effect," Author is Livonia's Sarah Wolf Shoemaker, writing as S.K. Wolf. The suspense thriller, published by Simon & Schuster, has a November publication date.

Ray Buck and Hugh Culik (shared pseudonym Charles Buck), both of Grosse Pointe Farms, will see their collaborative effort, "The Master Cure," in bookstores this week for the first time. The science-fiction novel, in paperback, is about a plague engineered to rid the earth of "undesirables." Publisher is Jove.

Council condemns censorship

The Michigan Council for the Arts has announced a "Declaration of Principles" condemning censorship of the arts.

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES

The arts are under attack. Such attacks are not new. History is replete with efforts to stifle artistic freedom and to have the arts conform to the notions of a few. Our museums, our libraries and our concert halls are filled with works of art which were once condemned as outrageous, blasphemous or immoral, but today are recognized as treasures.

By law the Michigan Council for the Arts is mandated "to encourage a freedom of artistic expression essential to the well being of the arts." (MSA 3.517(4). In furtherance of that statutory responsibility, the Council adopts this statement of principles.

● The arts must be free. Censorship of the arts in whatever form, and by whatever means, will be vigorously opposed. This includes efforts by government and governmental agencies to control artistic expression or content through the allocation of public funds to artists and arts institutions.

● Political attempts to control the arts offend the American spirit. For this reason, we reject as abhorrent current efforts in the United States Congress to set politically mandated artistic standards through the allocation or curtailment of funds to the National Endowment for the Arts.

● The Michigan Council for the Arts has a great obligation and public responsibility in granting public funds to the arts. We fulfill that responsibility with the adoption of and adherence to a rigorous system of peer review and panels composed of art experts to recommend grants on the basis of artistic merit. Attempts to interfere with that process should be strenuously opposed.

● The arts community must recognize, of course, its own responsibility to maintain the highest standards, to encourage the best in all fields, and to understand the realities of public funding.

● We will do all in our power to make certain the arts flourish in Michigan and that they flourish in an atmosphere of freedom.

LIVE AMONG THE RARE AND BEAUTIFUL.
Aldingbrooke — West Bloomfield's premier rental community — has always attracted its own special flock.
Our magnificent estate-like grounds are home to a collection of geese and swans. And to many of metropolitan Detroit's most discerning individuals and families.
Set in a gated community, residents appreciate Aldingbrooke's world of privacy and custom options, with all the services they've come to expect from a luxury apartment community.
Residences up to 2800 square feet include such desirable features as private entryways, split-level or ranch-style designs, dens, breakfast rooms, cathedral ceilings, fireplaces and attached garages.
All for much less than you'd expect to pay for such luxury. From $650 to $1650 per month.
Whatever your mind can imagine in luxurious living, you can discover on your first visit to Aldingbrooke.
It is indeed rare and beautiful.
