Man nabs boy, 16, in theft

Two Plymouth-Canton high school students were arrested Friday by Canton police in connection with a series of break-ins thanks to the detective work of a Canton man

Wade Hampton, 55, told police he was in his basement on Willow Creek Street when he heard noises and saw a flashlight in the window about 8:55 p.m.

Outside he saw a boy and girl by the window. The screen was cut. The man grabbed a 16-yearold Canton boy who was wearing gloves and holding a flashlight. Canton police were called. The girl fled.

Police arrested the boy, who admitted to committing four other breaking and enterings Friday evening. The break-ins were in the Hanford and Sheldon area. Basement screens were torn at three of the four homes, police said.

Police arrested the girl at her

The boy admitted to a Sept. 30 break-in on Carriage Hills where keys to a $10,000 1978 Corvett were taken. Police found the car the following day.

Pelice found stolen goods, including a gun, coins and jewelry box, hidden in woods on Lilley north of Ford.

The suspects were released pending petitions to Wayne County Juvenile Court.

The attorney for a Canton couple who were convicted of misdemeanors for teaching their children at home said Thursday that a recent state Supreme Court decision sending the case back to the Court of Appeals is a victory for his clients.

The future of teacher certification in Michigan is in doubt," said Christopher Klicka, a Virginia-based attorney for the Home School Legal Defense Fund Association.

IN NOVEMBER of 1989, the Court of Appeals upheld the convictions of John and Sandra Bennett of Canton Township and, in another case, the convictions of Mark and Chris De Jonge of Zeeland.

Klicka appealed to the state Supreme Court, and on Oct. 16, the Supreme Court issued a two-paragraph statement ordering the Court of Appeals to reconsider its earlier ruling "in light of Department of Social Services vs. Emmanuel Baptist . . . and decisions of the Church United States Supreme Court since the issuance of the Court of Appeals decision in this case."

Klicka said it was rare for the Supreme Court to remand cases back to the Court of Appeals. "Basically, the Supreme Court said, 'You were wrong and you need to reconsider." We feel the Supreme Court was letting the Court of Appeals save face, letting them reverse their own decision instead of reversing it for them.

Election draws more absentee voters

staff writer

The word's out.

You don't have to be a senior citizen to use

More and more people are avoiding the polls and taking advantage of the absentee ballot and the election Tuesday, Nov. 6, is following suit. Since late last week, the Canton clerk's office mailed 2,259 absentee ballots.

HALF OF the people who vote absentee are senior citizens, said Judy Beeker, of the clerk's office. The other half are people who can't go to the polls on election day because they'll be out of town; are handicapped; religious convictions or they're in jail awaiting arraignment or Absentee ballots are available through 5 p.m. today at the township administration building, located on South Canton Center Road south of Cherry Hill Road.

Past elections show that if anything can beat voter apathy it's the absentee ballot.

In August 1988, 21.7 percent of Canton vot-ers used absentee ballots; in the November 1988 presidential election, 14.5 percent of all votes were absentee and in the November 1989, 14.9 percent were absentee votes.

If you plan to vote at the polls beat the crowds by planning ahead. The slowest times are between 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the longest lines are after 5 p.m., said Canton clerk Loren Canton voters will decide local races among incumbent state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton and his opponent, Dolores Carmichael; Wayne County commissioner Milt Mack, D-Wayne and his opponent Canton resident Vic Gustafson; state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth and his opponent Dennis Shrewsbury and Judge John E. MacDonald, of the 35th District Court, who is running unopposed.

VOTING SHOULD be easier for residents who cast their ballots at Field and Eriksson gerty Road, which bans onstreet parking.

Bennett said that since there is inadequate parking to accommodate voters at both schools parking will be allowed on Haggerty election day only

And the Canton police department will beef-up patrol to keep things moving in there," Bennett said.

The clerk said he expects up to 40 percent of the 34,848 registered voters to cast their ballots. Bennett said, however, that he doesn't expect that many people to show up. Election experts predict between 20 and 30 percent of the registered voters will cast their ballots.

Pickup collides with semi-truck

By Diane Gale staff writer

A Canton man and a Belleville man died Thursday when a pickup truck they were in collided with a semi-truck on Michigan Avenue near 1-275.

The accident pushed the number of fatalities on Canton roads this year to 11, four of which were on Michigan Avenue.

LAST WEEK'S accident involved a semi-truck traveling south on I-275 that exited onto Michigan during a heavy fog, according to state police. The semi-truck stopped at a stop sign at the end of the ramp and then began crossing the westbound lanes to go east bound when a pickup truck struck the trailer. The passenger of the semi-truck said the driver of the semi-truck tried to speed up, but failed to clear the way of the pickup truck, which a witness said was speeding, police

The dead are Jason Allen Voight, 23, of Canton who was driving and Paul Edward Dorsten, 28, of Belleville, who was sitting in the passenger seat.

A third person in the pick-up, Dawn Marie Manees, 23, of Westand passenger. She was taken to Annapolis Hospital and later transferred to the University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor. She was in fair condition late last week, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Two passengers in the semi-truck, the 58-year-old driver and his 18year-old son, both of Morris Chapel, Tenn., were not injured.

The high rate of speed by the pickup and "extremely poor visibility" contributed to the accident, which is under investigation, according to Michigan State Trooper Patrick Leo Sharkey.

SHARKEY COMPLIMENTED Canton police officers and fireas well as Haverstick's Towing in Westland who were at the accident scene rescuing victims and directing traffic admidst the heavy fog.

to change tradition

If there is one thing I have learned, never tamper with tradi-

I once met a fellow food writer who always cut her turkey in half before roasting it. Finally, one holiday her husband said, "Why do you do this?" and she replied, "Because that's the way my mother did it." The husband then went to the grandmother and said, "Why do you do this?" and she said, "Because my oven was Hardly a column goes by without some mention of Wyandotte where I grew up, or my momma, and, believe me, when it comes to tradition, you never argue with a woman wearing a babushka and

Last year, I tried to bring some homemade cranberry relish to dinner. Now you have to realize that this batch of cranberry relish was made with two pounds of fresh-picked cranberries culled from a recent trip to Maryland and hand carried on the airplane to avoid smashing. The bowl was leaded Austrian crystal, hand wiped with a special $6 towel purchased just for crystal from some trendy mail-order shop on the West Coast. The recipe was made without the use of my Cuisinart and the berries were hand mashed. Even the orange peel was fresh dried from a dehydrator pulled from the bowels of the fruit cellar.

WHEN MOMMA hosts Thanksgiving, as she has done for the last 39 years of my life, you learn never to ask, "What can I bring?" You just make something and bring it. Last year I said to myself, "She always serves Ocean Spray Cranberry Jelly, so I'll surprise her with a homemade cranberry jelly that will blow the Ocean Spray away.'

Momma smiled said, "Oh, that's nice." After the aperitifs, it was time to bring fact that I had to use the faciliter, Rosie, preparing to open the Ocean Spray can on the old handcranked wall-mounted swing-dropped the Corning casserole of canned yams baked with marshmallows.

"Mind your own business Lee." (Momma has always called me Lee when she is angry about something) was her retort. "Every Thanksgiving we served Ocean Spray and we will continue to do so as long as God grants me the ability to be here." At that moment she set down the bubbly casserole and whisked the can from Rosie's hand, only to open it

THIS WAS ONE dish that had come straight from the can. While watching her position it en the Currier and Ives side dish, it almost looked like she was checking for the faint indentations on the cranberry jelly made from the side of the can.

I was going to attempt suggesting that this year's Thanksgiving

When I entered, carrying the sparkling bowl and its ruby red obligatory round of pre-dinner forth the bounty. As usual, all the women scurried into the kitchen. Not wishing to feel un-macho, I kind of slithered off the couch, mumbling something about the ties. Then I turned left instead of right and headed into the kitchen. It was there I found my older sisaway can opener. "Dear sister," I interrupted, "This year I made homemade cranberry relish so there will be no need to open a today I'll be a pumpkin piel"

— a seasonal kindergarten rhyme

HEN GROWING UP, my exposure to pumpkins was either culled from a pumpkin-patch selection that later would turn into a monstrous jack-o-lantern or omething from a can that ended up in a pie gracing our Thanksgiving Day table. Little did I know (or care) that statistics claim there are four different species of pumpkins and that each species contains more than 25 various strains. The pumpkin belongs to the gourd or melon family. Their cousins include the proliferous squash and those monstrous hill-climbers, the cucumbers.

The pumpkin is one of those lowly fruits (caught you — it's not a vegetable) that subscribes to Andy Warhol's theory that everyone is famous for 15 minutes of his or her lifetime. Seems that the pumpkin's popularity peaks during the last two weeks of October and then is rarely seen or heard from until next year.

The pumpkin has even been mocked during the Thanksgiving holidays. When you see pumpkin in a can, it better say 100 percent pumpkin because some crafty old geezer of a food processor seems to think it doesn't taste very good alone and therefore must be mixed with butternut and acorn squash.

THEN AGAIN, you probably never knew there are two basic kinds of pumpkins. The first and most widely known is, of course, the jack-o-lantern pumpkin, grown exclusively for table decoration. The flesh of the jack is very stringy and has about as much flavor as a ball of kite string

The jack's counterpart is known as the "sugar brown haby" because instead of being grown for its girth, it is harvested small. The edible meat is only stringy from whence the seeds are attached. Once the seeds and seed strings are removed, the meat can be cooked into a very

It's anyone's guess as to why pumpkins are so popular around the end of October, but rumor has it from a few local pumpkin growers polled about their stock that the harvest moon makes cooking pumpkins so flavorful.

Apparently the "light" frosts make the fruit of the pumpkin sweeter. As the vines begin to wither, all of a sudden the pumpkin gets these shots of adrenaline, causing all the natural sugars to give it one last shot. But the sugar pumpkin grower has to work fast.

Perhaps sugar pumpkin growers meet and secretly sit around their television sets, watching the weathercast. When the almanac and weather reporters beckon a "hard" frost, growers click into a frenzy trying to get as many pumpkins out of their fields as possible before the frost begins to destroy what's left of the crop. Many pumpkins are left in the field to help seed next

IF YOU THINK pumpkins ultimately end up gracing the front porch or in a pumpkin pie, try again. Trendy gourmands who enjoy eating turtle eggs and eel liver prize the pumpkin blossom as a true delicacy. These trendoids look for fully opened blossoms to make sure no bees are trapped inside. They then dip the blossoms into a batter and deep fry for one minute.

Next to the meat of the pumpkin itself inevitably ending up in pies, soups, breads and muffins, the next important by-product is the seeds. Some purists like to boil them first while some claim the only way to make good pumpkin seeds is to dry them for three days before roasting.

Proud as Peacocks of Amish turkeys

By Joan Botam special writer

It's always a pleasant feeling to anticipate a trend, especially when you're 20 years ahead of the rest of the world.

Marilyn and Jerry Peacock are much too nice to act smug, but Peacock's Poultry Farm has been selling Amish poultry and beef, supplied by the same 12 Amish farmers, since 1970.

"It was before Amish was 'in,' " says Jerry Peacock, "and before people were concerned about chemicals and additives. My father, Thomas Peacock, was looking for a reliable source of farmraised poultry and beef, and someone put him in touch with the Amish in Indiana.

The chickens, turkeys, ducks and beef we sell are raised and sold without any chemicals or preservatives. It takes a full 12 weeks to raise a chicken without chemical help, as opposed to eight weeks with injections."

Jerry and wife Marilyn are the third Peacock generation to run the business. Located next to the Peacock home, which was formerly the Peacock farmhouse, the store also sells Amish jellies, jams and relishes, as well as Amish potato chips, butter, cheese and brown eggs. There's even Amish popeorn in small burlap bags. All are produced without chemicals or preservatives.

"WE HAVE a family policy," says Jerry. "We don't sell any-thing that we don't like, so we can give an honest opinion. If one likes something and one doesn't, we'll carry the item."

"There's just one exception to the rule," adds Marilyn. "The candy. It was so good, we ate it all. The Amish women make it by hand, and the chocolate was so creamy and the mint so fresh that we just couldn't keep away. Finally, we just quit carrying it."

"People have to be careful about poultry that's called Amish," she cautions. "Federal Compliance Law states only that a bird has to be killed in Amish country. It can be raised anywhere, under any circumstances.

"One of our longtime customers, who is allergic to chemicals, bought some Amish chicken at a large grocery chain and reacted to the chemicals in it. Consumers should ask for some proof that the poultry was actually raised by The Peacock family - including Lora and Cyndi (fourth generation) and Cyndi's kids (fifth-gen-Nicholas, 16 weeks) - is gearing up for the holidays. Nicholas is a mite young to get into the spirit of the season, but Shawna is already adept at helping her mother put the eggs on the shelf.

HOLIDAYS MEAN "turkey" at Peacock's, which sells at least 30,000 of them, wholesale and retail, in a seven-week period. This year, for the first time, the Peacock turkeys, raised especially for them, are wrapped in a cryovac vacuum bag. Each bag carries the Peacock name and specifies "Amish raised."

'It's important that the turkey be sealed in an air-tight bag because they're not frozen and there are no preservatives," says Cyndi, as she feeds Shawna slivers of creamy Baby Swiss cheese.

Every Peacock turkey has an oven timer that pops up when done. Amish turkeys cook faster than ordinary turkeys - about 12 minutes per pound, and they're much jucier than others, as well.

"You want to see a madhouse? Come out here the week before Thanksgiving. Cars are lined up on Rochester Road with their parking lights on, waiting for someone to pull out of the park-

Ninety nine percent of holiday orders are special order, and many customers have their orders in already. And - you won't believe this the store just got a telephone for the first time ever.

"WE HAD TO," says Marilyn. "There's another store with a name similar to ours, and she was getting all of our calls. Then Cyndi called

If you haunt you every Thanksgiving for life. Shake the bird dry. Season inside and out with salt and pepper stuff with sage and onion stuffing.

Place bird in Nesco roaster. Since bird is larger than roaster, it will be necessary for someone to go behind the garage and find cinder block. This cinder block must be washed well, first by the outside hose. (Thiscan only be done on a 28-degree Thanksgiving morning.) The cinder block then must be scrubbed in the asement washtub and shaken dry. The cinder block should be wrapped in newspaper (preferably the food section) and wrapped again in three layers of tinfoil. Place the wrapped block on the lid of the Nesco roaster hopefully to cover the bird. If the lid fails to keep closed, repeat steps using a second cinder block.

directories aren't beginning to replace cookbooks. What with the fast pace of life today, many people opt for dialing "M" for meals, preferring to order out for a dinner that will be delivered rather than prepar ing it themselves.

Frozen dinners also have had their impact felt in the kitchen, with meal preparation often consisting of pull ing a tray out of a box and zapping it in the microwave for the allotted Although these are fast ways to get food, all of this dining and order ing out does change the way in which we live and eat, as well as the way we cook. Ultimately, it is bound to have an effect on the way in which we share and pass on recipes from one generation to another. It was with great pleasure received a letter from Gina Morgante-Raupp, who included a recipe for a dish that has been a family tradition through four generations. Originally prepared by Morgante-Raupp's Italian-born Grandma Di Leo, this dish has successfully withstood not only the test of time but also the test of many tummies. Based on that information, I knew it had the right stuff to qualify for being this week's Winner Dinner.

Hailing from Farmington, Morgante-Raupp is a buyer in purchasng in the Climate Control Division of Ford Motor Co. Currently she is one month into what will be a sixmonth medical leave, the first time in years she hasn't been working or going to school. Besides housebreaking her brand-new English springer Bread Crumb Roast. spaniel, she has attended training sessions presented by the Oakland County Literacy Council and is looking forward to spending a few hours ach week helping to teach another adult how to read.

WITH SO MUCH spare time on her hands while she has been convalescing, she also has been doing some sewing at home for the Dominican Monastery in Farmington Hills. ## Canton controls Rockets, 22-16

staff writer

Coach Bob Khoenle obviously believes that variety is the spice of

The Plymouth Canton Chiefs used some imaginative play-calling Saturday to make their first state playoff appearance a successful one, downing host Westland John Glenn in the Class AA Region II semifinals, 22-16.

Despite being out-gained 316-206 in total yardage, the Chiefs kept Glenn off-balance all afternoon and played almost mistake-free football to chalk up their ninth win in 10 games, while assuring themselves a spot in next Saturday's Region II final (against Saturday night's Redford Catholic Central-Ypsilanti winner)

Quarterback Karl Wukie, who completed 10 of 17 passes for 128 yards, orchestrated Canton's creative attack, throwing a pair of touchdown passes. He also made several big plays, particularly in the first half, to help give Canton a 22-0 lead.

The Chiefs threw everything but the kitchen sink at Glenn, running screens, draws, options, short pass es, long bombs and halfback pass-

"We knew we had to come in and mix it up," said Khoenle. "You go with what you've got. These kids have confidence in what they do and they do it well. We were maybe a little more so (wide-open) today because of John Glenn. They're strong. We try to do what they don't expect."

out on a fourth down-and-6 play, spotting Roger Eaton wide-open in the end zone for an 8-yard TD toss.

The Chiefs then lined up for the extra point, but Wukie, the holder, faked and ran in for the twopointer, increasing the lead to 8-0.

After stopping Glenn near midfield on its next possession, Canton cranked up its offense again.

Wukie hit Brett Howell with a 32-yard pass to open the six-play, 80-yard drive, and Jason Riggs fin ished it, breaking loose on a 32yard draw play for a TD.

But the score stayed at 14-0 when Tad Quattlander busted through to block Jeff Nafe's extrapoint attempt.

At the outset of the second quarter, Wukie was picked off by Jason Gould at the Canton 44 (with 9:49 to go), but Glenn, which racked up 94 yards in penalties, was set back by a personal foul call.

'It seemed like every time we had something going, we get a pen-alty or something," said Glenn coach Chuck Gordon.

Stopped for minus-2 yards in three plays, the Rockets were forced to punt.

CANTON WENT to work again, marching 89 yards in 11 plays (helped along with another Glenn penalty), capped by Wukie's 15-yard strike to the 6-foot-2, 195pound Howell, who outdueled a pair of Glenn defenders for the

Canton lined up for the extra point, but Wukie faked it again, waltzing into the end zone untouched for the two-pointer, giving the Chiefs a stunning 22-point advantage with four minutes left in Glenn, however, refused to fold, crossing the goal line with 44 seconds left in the half on a 21-yard TD pass from Lawrence Scheffer to Steve Fuller.

Fuller held onto the ball despite taking a heavy lick from a pair of Canton defenders. (The drive covered 69 yards in eight plays.)

John Ward, who led all rushers with 115 yards on 15 carries, then blasted in for the two-pointer, cutting the deficit to 16.

We got on the board right before the half and we thought we had a chance because we had moved the ball," said Gordon. "But what we really needed was to score early in the half."

KHOENLE, meanwhile, said the Glenn TD may have benefitted his

"In a way it was a good thing they scored because it kind of put a burr in our pants," said the Canton coach. Just when it appeared Glenn had gained some momentum in the third quarter, Canton's defense answered with a big play.

The Rockets marched down to the Canton 33 on their first drive, but Riggs came up from his safety spot to recover a fumbled Glenn lateral pass.

Glenn also got down to the Canton 29 at the end of the quarter, but Riggs was the man again, gather-ing in a tipped Scheffer pass in the end zone for an interception.

"You win with defense," Khoenle said. "We had a couple guys out (injured), but we'd always seem to come up with a big play, or a big interception. They played it tough.

"THEY'VE DONE it all year, said Gordon. "They keep you off-balance and mix it up well. They're a well-coached team and they have good athletes.

"Wukie is an excellent athlete. He has great feet and escapes some things when he's pressured."

After Canton was forced to punt with just over six minutes left, Glenn tried to make a game of it. Scheffer began finding the range hitting five passes on an 87-yard

17-play drive, capped by a fourth down pass of 11 yards to Fuller with 1:22 to go. Glenn was also successful on the two-pointer as the two - Scheffer and Fuller hooked up again. Things then got interesting.

Glenn's Chris Bandy tried the onside kick. The ball bounded high around midfield, and when the dust cleared, the Rockets thought that they had recovered the ball.

But after a conference among the officials, Canton was given the ball on an illegal touch before the required 10 yards. They (the officials) told us that it was touched early," Gordon said. 'It was close."

Canton then sat on the ball to run out the clock, ending Glenn's sea-tremendous because they had a real challenge this season with pay-to-play (because of millage failures)," Gordon said. "We couldn't afford to get away from the team concept, be selfish and worry about playing time. They (the seniors) kept the focus on the team. It was a very hard-working team. This is one of my most enjoyable years I've had in coaching." On the other side, Canton's Khoenle can enjoy another week of practice with his merry band of confident Chiefs.

"I started getting nervous about Wednesday," he said. "But these guys were 'loosy-goosey' all week. I wasn't too happy with them at practice yesterday (Friday). I gave them hell because they were screwing around too much, but come game time they came ready

Rocks were ready for North this time

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Plymouth Salem coach Fred Thomann didn't have to say much to get his girls basketball team ready for its first-round game in the Western Lakes Activities Association

North Farmington gave the Rocks all the incentive they needed a week ago when the Raiders stunned Salem 37-34. The top-seeded Rocks, playing their first game since that Oct. 25 defeat, showed up in a big way Thursday and pounded North 66-25 at Salem.

"All we had to tell them," Thomann said, was 'We've got North Farmington. They you going to respond?'

"That seemed to work real well. Tonight our players did a much better job preparing mentally to play the game."

SALEM IS 15-3 overall and plays at Northville in a semifinal game Tuesday. The Raiders are 8-10 and visit Livonia Steven-

The big challenge facing the Rocks was stopping North's Eve Claar, who scored 30 points in the previous meeting with Salem.

She still got 19 points Thursday, but 14 came in the second half after the Rocks were well on their way to winning the re-

"We did a better job of finding out where just played you a heckuva game. How are Eve was, getting to her and not allowing her girls basketball to have free reign on the court," Thomann said. "We were much more in tune defensively to the task at hand."

On the other side, Sarah Ruete played a big role in Salem winning the game. After missing the previous game, she contributed 19 points Thursday, and junior post Darcie Miller led all scorers with a career-high 23 points.

"We knew we couldn't play like last week," Ruete said. "We came ready to play this game. We were focused and ready to win. It was good incentive, knowing we got to play them again and redeem ourselves."

son at 8-2.

RUETE SCORED 11 points-in the first half, leading Salem to a commanding, 30-8 halftime lead. Her outside shooting early in the game rendered North's zone defense ineffective.

That contrasted with the previous game when the Rocks weren't hitting the perimeter shots and the Raiders were successful in that defense.

"I think they had one extra player in Sarah Ruete, and that was one heckuva player," North coach Lance Davis said. "Take those (19) points away and this game is entirely different.

"She made their defense that much tougher, too. Our baskets came much harder to-night. That's the coach getting them ready and the players doing it.

Thomann agreed Ruete's presence made a difference for the Rocks. "Sarah adds a nice dimension to our team," he said. "She's a good perimeter shooter; she's a good defender. And she's a senior and a veteran.

"It was a bonus to have her here and playing. She added to our perimeter game, and that took away their ability to sag inside."

WITH THE lead, the Rocks could stay in their zone, and this time they were aware of where Claar was at all times. She was held

Salem, Chiefs conclude with dual-meet victories

Livonia Ladywood's Malia Dixon won the individual title, and Redford Union took first place in the team standings Saturday in the Class A girls cross country regional meet at Marshbank Park. RU took first place with 82 points, followed by second-place Livonia Stevenson (103) and Plymouth Salem in third place (110). The Panthers, still running with-out their top runner, Liza Mockeridge, at full strength, won their first regional since 1982 when the Panthers scored a record low total of 16 points. The top three teams qualify for the Class A state meet, set for 11 a.m. Saturday at the Eastern Michigan University Golf Course in Ypsi-

All RU coach Bob Quellette wanted to do was finish in the top three in order to qualify for the state meet. So naturally, he accepted first

"Our kids did a nice job," Ouellette said. "The key for us was the fact that at the two-mile mark we did a quick score and found out we were in fourth place. The issue was not as much to win the regional as it was to qualify for the state meet. At the two-mile mark, we decided to go after them. The better teams will run better the last third of a race."

RU, RATED FOURTH in the latest Class A state rankings, was led by Tracey James, who took fourth in 20:40. Other finishers for RU included Jenni Sturdevant, who took 13th in 21:13; Melissa Still, 20th (21:23); Michelle Daraban, 21st (21:24); and Kelly Murray, 28th (21:41).

"Tracey and Jenni have come on like mad for us," Ouellette said. They took over and it's very important because our seniors are really tired."

Stevenson, champion of the Western Lakes Activities Association, was led by Stacy Prais, who finished third in 20:34.5, and A.J. Koritnik, who was fifth (20:41.5). Stevenson's Carrie Creehan took eighth (20:51.7).

The Spartans' Gail Grewe took 31st

"We were very hopeful of qualifying for state and would have been very disappointed if we hadn't," Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg said. "I thought we had a chance to win it. Our first three kids ran extremely well, and you couldn't ask for anything more from them. We didn't seem to follow up after three.

"All season our success has depended on what happens with our fifth runner. This was the only off meet Gail Grewe had; she's capable of being in the top 15."

SALEM, WHICH does not have a senior among its top five runners, was led by sophomore Corey Gulkewicz, who took seventh (20:50). Sophomore Stacy Witthoff was 12th (21:02), freshman Julie Cutting 27th (21:40), freshman Emily Farrell 29th (21:46) and junior Beth Turomsha 39th (22:03).

"That was the meet we were shooting for all year," Salem coach Mike Krafchak said. "We have a young team and nobody counted us in all year. The only teams to beat us this year were Canton and Steven-We beat Canton in the regional, and we almost beat Stevenson

Marlins let Marian off hook

The third time was not the charm for the Farmington Hills Mercy basketball team Thursday

Jamie Racine's third three-pointer of the game with three seconds remaining in regulation lifted Birmingham Marian to an overtime, 52-49 victory in a Catholic League semifinal game at the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall. It was the third time Marian has beaten the Marlins this year. The win put Marian (17-1) in the hip game Sunday night against Harper Woods Regina, Mercy is 13-5.

Racine's last triple culminated a remarkable comeback by the Mustangs, who found themselves down 44-35 with just 1:44 on the clock. The high, arching shot sent the game into overtime at which time Marian's defense took over and Mercy's free throw shooting woes continued. The Marlins converted seven of their first 10 free throws in the fourth quarter, but three missed attempts gave Marian the opening it need-

EARLIER THIS year, the Mustangs nipped the Marlins by one point in overtime and won for a second time by five points. The third loss was no easier for Mercy coach Larry Baker to take.

"This is a great team to coach, but I'm not happy with them tonight." Baker said. "I don't think we're snake bit. It's easy to break down the game and see they ended the game and overtime by hitting their shots and free throws and we didn't. "This is the second time we've outplayed them girls basketball cine triple to close the margin to 44-38. After two free throws by Mercy's Laure DeMattia, Racine hit what looked like another the e-pointer, but the referee nullified it with a traveling call.

"First, I couldn't believe it went in, but then when they called traveling, I wanted to cry," Ra-, cine said. "I didn't think I traveled, but that's not Dana Hudson stole a Mercy pass and laid it in while being fouled. Her free throw made the score 46-42, but it looked like Mercy would put it away with Kathleen Berrigan on the free throw line with just under a minute left. Berrigan made the first free throw but missed the second.

AFTER MARIAN'S Michelle Coughlin's basket made it 47-44, Mercy's Susie Atchinson missed the front end of her one-and-one free throw attempt and the Mustangs had :20 left to tie the game. Racine launched a three-point attempt only to have it swatted out of bounds by Carrie Walton. But when the senior got the ball back, she made "It was, without a doubt, the biggest shot I've with 15 points and seven steals. ever made," an exuberant Racine said. "We had confidence that we could come back, beacuse we've been down to them before and come back."

Livonia Churchill coach Mark Mason didn't even have time to enjoy the Chargers' Class A regiona boys soccer championship Friday at Ypsilanti High School.

Shortly after Churchill's 3-0 win over city-rival Livonia Stevenson, an angry parent confronted Mason with another one of those nit-picky items. Seems the first-year coach omitted a player's name accidently from the post-season program.

A loud exchange ensued between the two, with Mason having enough sense to walk away from the unfor giving parent. So he made a mistake. Give the guy a break. At least his players are behind

"He's a good coach," said junior midfielder Mike Gentile, who scored two goals to raise his season total to 20. "He works us hard, but

There may be a nip to the air, but the water is a nice 102 degrees in the hot tubs at the Oasis.

By Anahid Derbabian

Imagine lounging comfortably in a basin of rapidly bubbling water, while the sun shines brightly over-

Or, picture snowflakes gracefully falling downward on a cool winter's eve, as gurgling, steamy water envelopes your body

This exhilarating fantasy is actually no fantasy at all. At the Oasis Hot Tub Gardens in Ann Arbor, cific, Asian and Mexican. secluded hot tubs provide pleasure to people of all ages

"It is a place for friends and families to come and relax, a place to escape from the mundane, daily routine," said Kathryn Burns, manager of the Oasis Hot Tub Gardens.

Dan Antor, Bob Lakey and Ken Schroder are the owners. They started the company in Kalamazoo in August 1983. Its prosperity prompted them to start a second one in Ann Arbor. This new place, on South State Street, has been open for about six months.

The owners picked up on the hot tub idea during their travels to Arizona and New Mexico, where hot tubbing is a prevalent activity. They felt people would enjoy a "one hour vacation."

There are 12 hot tubs at the Ann Arbor locale. Sunlit days, moonlit nights and delicate breezes accompany hot tubbers who choose one of the Garden's 10 outdoor spots. Two indoor tubs with skylights are also available.

EACH TUB offers complete seclusion, whether tubbing alone, with the family, with a group of friends, or with that special someone.

'It is a place for friends and families to come and relax, a place to escape from the mundane, daily routine.'

— Kathryn Burns

Each outdoor tub has a theme, and the decor reflects it. Themes include northern (winter themes), South Pa-

We have people who come back and try every garden," said Burns.

Choose a garden, and step inside. A private, spacious dressing room with shower, mirror, cushioned seating, and hangers for clothes provide comfortable arrangements for before and after hot tubbing. A second door opens to the outdoors, where the hot tub gurgles refreshingly. High walls ensure absolute privacy. A wooden deck surrounds the tub and simple decorations reflect the garden's theme.

When entering "Casablanca," hot tubbers behold a multi-colored tarp draped above the square hot tub, resembling a caravan tent. The tarp permits the sky to be seen above. Patterns in pink, yellow and turquoise decorate the walls and tarp.

"Bali Gardens" features bamboo branches and branch-woven baskets next to a square tub. A yellow, turquoise, red and black print of a bamboo tree hangs on the wall.

Hot tubbers may choose either jets or bubblers with the push of a button. Jets provide a strong water force to relieve aching muscles and can be enjoyed simply for basking in the energy of the waves. Jets shoot out from the sides of the tub.

SHOULD HOT tubbers prefer a softer, more tranquil experience, they may press the bubblers button. Bubblers spurt out from the tub's bottom.

Young children all the way to those in their 60s appreciate the Oasis Hot Tub Gardens. Young children must be accompanied by par-

Normally, Sundays bring families in after church. Friday and Saturday nights generally attract couples. Groups of friends and single tubbers come in at all times to take part in this rejuvenating activity, Burns said.

"Families come here because they're not watching TV, and it's not your typical evening of going to the movies, eating a bag of popcorn, and sitting in a row not talking with each other," Burns said. "Our hours are set up for people who work any type of shift. It's a great get-away especially when you've had a real hard

'Not only are you away from it you plan to or not, you're forced to

The Oasis Hot Tub Gardens in Ann Arbor follows strict swimming pool regulated by the health department which checks the water regularly, and conducts surprise water samplings.

BROMINE IS used to disinfect the water, eliminating chlorine's strong odor. In addition, water in the tubs circulates constantly. Every eight minutes each tub goes through a filtration system.

"If you're in the water for one hour, the water has turned over six to seven times, and when you get out the water turns over again," said Burns.

An electronic, chemical water monitoring system continuously measures the pH and bromine levels in the water, maintaining a constant level. Water is also physically monitored every two hours.

Tub water levels are three feet deep. The maximum water temperature - 102 degrees - is a comfortable temperature for hot tubbing in the winter. "This is what keeps you warm in the winter, especially when there's freezing temperatures outside," said Burns. In summer, tub temperatures are turned down to 98-100 degrees. In the winter, a maintenance crew clears fallen snow off the decks surrounding the tubs, so entering and leaving the tub is an easier task. Burns anticipates a similar pattern of success at the newly opened Ann Arbor location, as Kalamazoo experienced. From September all, no one can reach you by phone. It through May, Kalamazoo's hot tub has a therapeutic effect. Whether demand is at its peak.

PRIMARILY FALL, winter, spring has been the main season," Burns said. "Basically, more people guidelines for cleanliness. It is also hot tub when the weather is colder.

It's the next best thing to being in the South Pacific; the only thing missing at the hot tubs is hula dancers and exotic fruit drinks.

For an absolutely sensational, riveting film experience, see "Jacob's Ladder" (A, R, 115 minutes). It will leave you limp but redeemed and rewarded.

Bruce Rubin, associate producer and scenarist of "Ghost" - destined to be this year's top box office draw performed those same chores on 'Jacob's Ladder," once described as the best unproduced script kicking around Hollywood.

"Jacob's Ladder," however, is a very different film, appropriately described as the dark side of "Ghost," which it ultimately will replace at the top of the box office charts. The reason is simple 'Jacob's Ladder" will appeal to virtually every segment of the viewing

EVEN SHIRLEY MacLaine can't save "Waiting for the Light" (C-, PG, 95 minutes) from its heavy-handed and simple-minded satire of human guillibility

Meet the Rockers . . . as in soccer

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Detroit Rockers: Rock'em, sock'em soccer has arrived. Professional Indoor game returns to the Motor City on Saturday, Nov. 10, at Cobo Arena. The Rockers host the Milwaukee Wave. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Yes, that's right, we said returns.

Remember the Detroit Lightning of the Major Indoor Soccer League who played at Cobo in 1979-80?

Don't feel bad, judging by the low attendance, only the players seemed to remember to show up at the games. That hastily assembled outfit only lasted one season.
Ten years later, the newest entry in the National Professional Soccer League opens the its home campaign a whole lot wiser and better prepared.

Never heard of indoor soccer? Well, think hockey on Astro-Turf. Better yet, think Steve Yzermanlike marksmen blasting a leather, hexagonal ball into the net. Think of more carooms than a pinball game. Think of battle-weary goalkeepers facing more point-blank shots than wooden ducks at a National Rifle Association-sponsored gallery.

For people already familiar with the indoor game — after all plenty of sophisticated soccer people live in the Observer & Eccentric area — this is a chance to see some of the best players in the country.

More importantly, though, this is yet another opportunity to see if professional soccer will float or sink in Detroit.

The cemetery of professional soccer franchises is quite crowded. Tombstones with Detroit markings read: Detroit Cougars (1968); Detroit Express (1978-80 resurrected again in the American Soccer League 1981-83) and the Detroit Lightning of the Major Indoor Soccer League (1979-80).

AT ITS height in the late 1970s, pro teams such as the New York Cosmos and the Tampa Bay Rowdies played before crowds of 70,000.

Today, professional outdoor soccer has been largely relegated to high school stadiums before crowds of a few hundred diehards. Soccer, they told us, was the sport of '80s. They were wrong.

"Soccer never failed," said Paul Scicluna, part owner of the Detroit Rockers. "Soccer was never given a chance. American people were given a recycled product."

Indoor soccer is seen as the short-term answer. Unlike the out-door game, goals come in bunches ather, indoors where the action is fast a Think furious.

The game is played on 200 for

The game is played on 200-feet by 85-feet surface (same as ice hockey), surrounded by dasher boards and Plexi-glass.

Scoring in the NPSL is similar to basketball. Most goals are worth two points with shots outside the yellow line (blue line in hockey) worth three points. Penalty shots are good for one point.

Also, the nets have been enlarged this season to eight feet high by 14 feet wide.

Along with the high-paced action, soccer's indoor cousin has taken on the look of rock music video production. Teams are usually introduced amid dry-ice smoke, strobe lights and the theme from "Star Wars."

"I DON'T know about the dry ice," said Ian Parratt, director of public relations. "We'll probably just stick with the lights."

The game also has its fair share of characters. One easily recognizable player broke the league scoring record last season with 167 points (two three-point goals, 39 two-point goals, 16 one-point goals and 67 assists).

Drago did all that without so much as two hairs to rub together on his head. The chrome-domed Yugoslovian has signed with the Rockers this season, joining an already formidable offensive threat that features former Express star Andy Chapman and NPSL veteran Dan O'Keefe.

"We've got some really good players," said Brian Tinnion, coach of the Rockers. "Dan O'Keefe has to be one of the most underrated players in the league Drago and Andy (Chapman) speak for them-

"I think we have firepower and goal scoring ability."

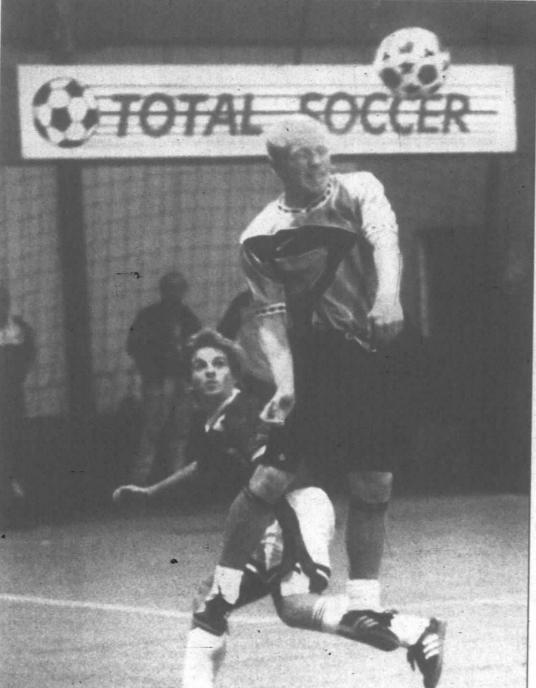

The Rockers displayed Detroit's latest venture into professional soccer with a sneak-preview party at Cobo Arena. An estimated 800 people turned out, watching the Rockers play two intra-squad matches.

Afterwards, kids swarmed onto the field to get autographs. Lines around Drago and Chapman were particularly long.

ALL OF which served a heavy dose of optimism to the team's owners. Gus Moffat, Scicluna and Tinnion have all been involved in soccer — both on an amateur and professional level.

Instead of talking about championships, though, Rockers personnel speak of sticking around long enough to establish a base of support.

Reservations are booked back-toback at the Oasis Hot Tub Gardens. Hot tubbers can call one day ahead of time during the summer months to book a tub.

"People would be well advised to call about a week in advance during the winter months; it's a drag for us and for them when we have to say, "Sorry, we don't have anything available," said Burns.

And Valentine's Day was exciting at the Ann Arbor Gardens.

"Between noon and 4 p.m. half the hot tubs were filled; from 4 p.m. until 2 a.m. we were booked solid, all 12 tubs, even with the terrible weather outside," said Burns.

An intercom is available in the dressing area should hot tubbers have questions or desire a change in water temperature. Intercoms provide hot tubbers with a link to the outside world without leaving their garden seclusion.

Prices vary, depending on the day of the week and the number of hot tubbers. For two people, the price is $9-13 per person, per hour. Weekdays are less than Friday and Saturday nights. The more hot tubbers in the group, the lower the per-person OASIS HOT Tub Gardens will open four new tubs in the fall. Eventually, each garden will receive more decorative attention.

The gardens will soon bring in a licensed masseuse. Fruit juices, fruit drinks and mineral water are sold at the desk.

"There is a man who comes to Oasis all the way from Ohio. We also have regular people who come from

Ann Arbor, Toledo, Jackson, Ypsilanti, Lansing and the Detroit area,"

The owners believe the gardens' growth can be attributed to more than the comfort of hot tubs and pleasant surroundings.

"Ultimately, it is the continuing efforts of our staff that is responsible for our past and future success," they said.

The Oasis Hot Tub Gardens is open noon to 1 a.m. Sunday-Thursday and noon to 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday. To reserve a hot tub, call 863-9001.

She shares her love for Southwest

staff writer

T'S A paradox that Michigan born and bred artist Cathy P. Aten should create and bring an exciting exhibit of her Southwestern art back to her home area.

But she did, and her vivid paintings on wool at Mesa Arts of Franklin, make a strong dramatic statement about that part of the country.

How did that happen? Why isn't she painting lakescapes, harbor scenes and sand dunes and with overtones of Chippawa Indian designs? Where did she pick up the Southwest influence?

Questions such as that come to mind before meeting her. When she tells her side of the story, it becomes perfectly natural.

Aten, in her mid 30s, grew up in Bloomfield Hills. She attended Kingswood School, where studied art with Robert Kidd and Ray Fleming.

She has a degree in textile design from Center for Creative Studies of Detroit. Her father, Roger Aten, was head of styling for GM before he died about 16 years ago. Her mother, Beverly Aten, still lives here as does her grandmother Mary Whiting.

ATEN HAD a successful career as a fabric designer going in Boston, but when some friends returned from a trip to the Southwest and told her about it, she was immediately interested.

'I didn't know what it was like, but I felt a call to go. I drove there and it felt like home, I just knew everything would be taken care of.

"I didn't worry as soon as I moved to the Southwest. My aesthetic changed so much that a gallery in Boston wouldn't take my work because they said they couldn't sell Southwestern art. My life changed so much for the better," she said, adding that she still wonders how it happened that she has such a wonderful like.

Her perspective on life changed and that, in turn, changed her art.

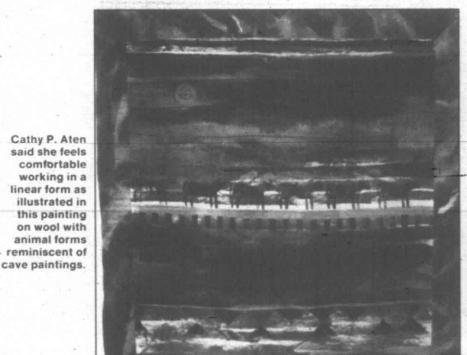

"My spirit gets very big there . . . My first reaction to the southwest was that I felt very vulnerable, the land was so big. It gave me a perspective of what we are in the world, which is not much. I like that."

She lives in Santa Fe, "in Billy the Kid's mother's old house," and she likes that, too. She still does her large paintings on wool as she did in Boston, but now they reflect her environment, her love of the wide outdoors, the ancient marks or drawings she may find on a rock as she rides her horse in the desert, the brilliance of the sunsets, the geometric designs of the Plains and Pueblo Indians and her own inner responses.

WHILE HER paintings on wool may be, as she says, "very much like a journal," they can be enjoyed and interpreted by the viewer in a variety of ways. When she found hand prints and foot prints carved into a rock on one of her long rides, she brought her strong impressions to her painting using her own handprints much as the earlier art-

She recalls that her father, who channeled his artistic talents into a highly successful career in automotive styling and design, always encouragered her, his eldest of four children, to have a wide vision.

Zoning perplexes land owners

staff writer

People don't have unrestricted rights to do whatever they want with their property. And there's no guarantee that a community will retain its flavor at one particular moment for all time.

Those are the big lessons Ron Figlan tries to impress upon students in his adult education class on zoning and land use at Oakland Community College.

"There are a lot of people who don't realize zoning is a binding and legal document," he said. "It controls the use of land. A lot of older people feel, 'It's my land, I pay taxes. Why can't I do what I want with

"There needs to some control by the community so uses will be compatible," he said.

Figlan, a planning technician for the city of Troy for 20 years, has taught a six-week course at OCC for several years.

"I would go up to the counter every day (at work) and talk to real estate people," he said. "They wanted to know, 'What's zoning, how do you change it?' I found myself standing up there a half hour giving them les-

"I SAID, 'I wish I could talk to them all at once.' I called Lawrence Tech, OCC, Wayne State. They said they didn't have a class that offered that," Figlan said.

"OCC called back and said, 'Would you like to teach?' I said, 'Why Figlan described the class as general rather than specific because procedures are different in every community. Initially set up for real estate professionals, students have included plan commissions, architects, landscapers, zoning inspectors and builders.

Figian's course outline addresses kinds of land uses, zoning districts, variances, site plans, and municipal departments involved in the process.

We look at a site through the eyes of of the owner, the eyes of a real estate agent and the eyes of the city," he said.

FIGLAN SPENDS a lot of time answering real-life questions posed

There might be a problem with dogs or a teenage boy working on cars keeps me up all night — what do I do?" Figlan said. "They ask questions getting into concepts and philosophies, social aspects of planning. Concrete and steel vs. trees. "I like to hear other peoples" views, their side of the story," he said. "I guess you could look at planning as very precise - a building must be set back X amount of feet, there has to be X amount of trees.

"There's another aspect of planning, the psychological and sociological effect building has on planning

Figlan said he's surprised by how

'There are a lot of people who don't realize zoning is a binding and legal document.'

naive many people are about zoning

"WHAT I'VE heard often is, 'I bought this house and property behind me was nothing but trees and woods. Now you're proposing a sub behind there.

"What can you do to a developer who meets all the requirements for whatever zoning you're looking at? How can you deny him?" Figlan

Another situation that often surfaces - not enough attention is given to potential growth or change before moving in.

"A majority of people look at that house and property and take a casual look around the area and that's it. Especially if you're going to spend $250,000 for a house, look at what's going on or what could go on."

Some propety owners don't become aware of development and rezonings that may impact their lifestyles until it's too late to have effective input, Figlan said.

"YOU GET in right at the beginning when it goes to the plan com-mission for public hearing," he said. When you get in earlier, it's possible the plan commission may make a recommendation subject to Joe Blow's recommendation or ques-

Judith Anderson, a West Bloomfield planning commissioner, recently took Figlan's class to see how other municipalities approach the planning process.

"It's a fun class for anyone interested in the community," she said. "It gives insight into what's done and why and how planning for the future is done as far as zoning, roads and things.

Dennis Randt, who accepted a job last summer as a zoning inspector for the city of Farmington Hills, took the course to get a perspective on suburban zoning issues.

"He didn't stick to zoning issues," Randt said. "He went into other issues - tax bases, assessments, etc. Land management, in general, was the most enjoyable part. He gave perspective on that."

Figlan expects to start the next session of his course in January at OCC Orchard Ridge, Farmington Hills. Contact the office of continuing education at 471-7541 um association who has been closely observing the actions of the board of directors as they relate to several contracting firms hired by the board on major projects. I believe that the company is giving kickbacks to at least the president of the association. I don't have any direct proof except a strong gut feeling. How do I confront the board about my suspicious?

Like corruption in government, there is always the ugly possibility of corruption in the governance of a condominium association, but it is hard to prove and, hopefully, very rare. Contractors who offer kickbacks to general contractors may also offer them to board members. Often service-related entitities may also be inducing these uncompensated volunteer directors to look their way for business.

I would learn as much as you can about the relationship between the contractor you suspect and the board or managing agent that competitors bid, how was the decision made to hire him, who made it - the board as a whole, the president or managing agent, if there is one. Put your questions in writing but be careful because you don't want to slander someone by falsely accusing him or her or it of taking payoffs. Be discreet but thorough. Your inquiry may itself have a chilling effect on any imprudent conduct that may be going on under the table.

distrubances is commendable and legally sustainable if these rules are enforced uniformly and consistently and were properly passsed in accordance with the condominium documents and not for discrimination purposes. Can you explain what is meant by the phrase — obtaining a title policy "without exceptions" when buying a condominium? Aren't all title insurance policies the same?

Not all title policies are the same; not all title insurance companies are the same. But there are certain expectations to most standard title insurance policies that are issued to ensure the owner that he or she has marketable title to arry bi liens or encumbrances except as listed on the "schedule to the title policy - the purchaser" mortgage.

But "standard exceptions" that are excluded from the protection to the title policy include such things as unrecorded mechanic's liens, survey errors, boundary disputes. If you ask for a policy without exceptions, these "standard exceptions" to the policy will be deleted. You may have to pay more for the policy, but it is well worth it.

Check standard policy for exam-

Institute pushes builder licensing

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

The problem? Too many builders, not enough licenses It's a widespread problem, according to Bill Lawson, principal partner of the Michigan Builders Institute, based in Rochester Hills, which teaches builders licensing seminars throughout the state. Many small builders and remodelers who work on smaller projects, he said, are unlicensed and therefore working illegally. The solution? Make them take the state licensing test. Sounds simple, Lawson said, but there are problems involved. "There are a lot of builders who just don't like the tests." Many builders are either intimidated by the state test or don't see the need for it, Lawson said. "Most builders are hands-on builder types, not sit-and-read types." "I know more builders that are unlicensed than are licensed," he said.

Lawson, a partner in Michigan Home Builders Inc. and a builder himself, conducts seminars throughout the state, mostly through adult and community education programs put on by school districts. Lawson has worked in industrial design, urban planning and as a real estate broker in addition to being a builder.

Seminar participants are given a crash course in everything needed to pass the test, Lawson said, which has resulted in a 95 percent passing rate. Seminars range in cost between $115 and $150, depending on the school district sponsoring the seminar.

Seminars are either 16 or 32 hours in length, and address all areas covered by the state builder's license exam, he said.

PAUL BORK, Lawson's partner and fellow instructor, has worked as a landscape architect, a city planner and a broker as well as being a

Which isn't to say that unlicensed builders are incompetent, Lawson said. "They just aren't test-taking

Most unlicensed builders know how to construct a home, but the state exam doesn't test that ability, Lawson explained. "It measures a builder's knowledge about state laws, inspection requirements con"When you apply for the state exam, they don't ask if you know how to build from the ground up,' Lawson said. "Basically, they want to make sure you don't get into trou-Actually, a builders license may be more important for the builder than the person who hires the builder, he said. Under state law, an unlicensed builder can get stuck with the bill for services rendered over $600. "People who are in the building trades and are unlicensed are considered handymen for projects under $600," he said. "For projects over $600, an unlicensed builder can't collect if a person refuses to pay even in court because the work was done illegally.

Lawson said there are basically four types of people who take his courses. Obviously, the builder who is already active in the profession, but doesn't have a license, is a prime candidate for the class, but people considering becoming builders aiso make up a significant number of stu-count ticket for building materials, he said, adding many building material/lumber yards offer discounts for licensed builders.

The fourth type of person who may wish to get a builder's license; he said, is someone acting as a contractor to build their own home Lawson said although someone building their own home does not need a builder's license, knowing the ins and outs of building is always helpful, and getting financing is sometimes easier for a licensed builder.

Lawson also said people can also benefit from having a builder's license in slower building times, because a builder's license is also re quired for large remodeling projects which are more likely to increase.

Upcoming sessions include seminars in Brandon/Ortonville Nov. 26; Lake Orion Nov. 26; Jan. 8; and Novi Jan. 14. Call local community education groups for times and costs. The institute's number is 651-2771.

'On Thin Ice' about more than ice skating careers

Tai Babilonia hopes movie offers encouragement

November 5-November 11

By Mary Ann Townsend

For Tai Babilonia, making a TV movie about her heartbreaking figure skating career was a painful, yet gratifying experience.

On Thin Ice: The Tai Babilonia Story, airing Monday, Nov. 5, on NBC, tells how Babilonia's passion for skating eventually tore her life apart. But more importantly the drama shows how she is getting back on her feet after depression over an Olympic defeat sent her on a path of self destruction.

The film opens with 6-year-old Tai watching idol Peggy Fleming on TV and moves rapidly to her matchup with figure skating partner Randy Gardner three years later.

In just four short years, the two were setting records as the most successful pair-skaters in U.S. history. Their success continued throughout the '70s.

It seemed only natural, and perhaps even expected, that the two would walk away with a gold medal at the 1980

Olympics. However, it was then that they became known as America's "heartbreak kids." The two entered the ice ready to perform their routine at the Olympics in Lake Placid, but an earlier injury rendered Gardner unable to perform. In front of millions of fans, they had to leave the rink without having the opportunity to live out their lifelong dream.

Suburban Cable Weekly

The incident was not only a crushing blow to the pair's dreams, but it also marked the beginning of a downward turn in Babilonia's personal life.

"I got through the worst night of my life without breaking down or exposing my true feelings, and that set the pattern of behavior I would follow for the next eight years," Babilonia said.

Her disappointments and feelings of isolation sent her on a self-destructive path that included drug and alcohol abuse, involvement in volatile relationships, and ultimately a suicide attempt in 1988.

Babilonia stressed, however, that On Thin Ice is not just a chronicle of the pair's career. Instead it offers a message of hope to others who believe they have hit rock bottom.

"It was very therapeutic, and it was, in a way, a healing process," she said of working on the movie.

With that healing, however, came

"Actually the more emotional scenes for me were the drinking, the alcohol parts. Some days I wouldn't go in to watch. It was just too painful," Babilonia said.

But, she admitted, it was also fun. Gardner and Babilonia reunited for the first time in a year to perform some of their own routines for the movie. They also worked with the three sets of actors and actresses who portray them as children, teenagers and adults.

Canadian actress Rachael Crawford and actor Charlie Stratton play the duo as adults.

"It was so funny having so many Tai and Randys running around. Not only were there actors, but there were doubles." Tai explained.

"So whenever they would call Tai, like six people would turn. It was pretty funny," Randy added.

They both laughed when I asked if it was easy to get back into the swing of their routines for the movie.

"It's never easy to just step into it. I wish it were." Randy said.

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN Executive Director, SW Oakland Cable Comm.

'A Political Scholar in TV'
John Akouri is a young political scholar.
Since the summer of 1985 he has been involved with television. Although his programming is very diverse, he is still recognised for his political acumen. John is active in a political party and yet his television reputation is that he is a producer who is fair to all parties.

A graduate of Wayne State University in Politics and Broadcasting, John considers this to be his base of understanding. The combination of being on a politically liberal campus, part of a democratic society and amid the vocal era of equal rights, enhanced his determination that both sides are heard.

I asked him what it means to him to be politically involved? "You must take a stand and be certain of your political direction," he answered.

John has followed this premise in all of his television programming. His formula for general television preparation is:

 Assure yourself of confirmed guests.

 Secure location of the shoot, including reservations for equipment & facilities.

 Schedule the program on the TV Channel in advance. This will force you and your crew to follow through.

 Assemble the crew, asking grade-A people to help. These are the folks who have secured a lot of experience volunteering for other shows.

Determine your Set. Acknowledge all people and stores who contribute. ("This is just like picking out furniture," exclaimed John.) For instance, Terrace Casuals of Farmington which he has participated in are:

• 1986 Ch. 12 first live viewer

call-in candidates night
• 1987 Community Television
Annual Ceremony

• Four Annual Akouri Family Christmas Shows

• Announcing Public Service Announcements • Anchoring for Tri Outlook

News and Newscenter 12
• Project coordinator for the Morton Downy, Jr. Show

 And, he continues to produce a show on political perspectives, "The Steps to the Capitol II"

Creativity is not only a sideline but a profession for John who is a professional photographer. It is obvious that the characterisitics of keeping alert to interesting people and issues are key to innovative programming.

John always has seen himself as the "Sam Donalson of the 90s". His dream is to be a television anchor. No matter what the future holds, John knows it willinclude television.

There are many other stories like John's because the open doors of community television make the individual a top priority. Multiple careers, creative life planning to incorporate one's personal interests, innate talents and trained skills can all come together to make future dreams come true. Hopefully, all will mesh and turn into a career and a life of personal fulfillment as well as a service to the community.

has provided sets for his programs and received thanks in the credits. Everywhere the programs are seen the credits will also be seen.

 Treat the people who help you with kindness. Thank them by providing food, which may also be donated by businesses than can also be recognised in the credits. Send those involved thank you notes for giving you their valuable time.

 Do a full fledged media blitz "I do it myself", says John.

John meets President George Bush.

"I make the phone calls and write the press releases. If I want it done right, I feel that I must keep my hand in it." Making use of television, radio, newspapers, newsletters, bulletins and flyers are important. Be wherever your potential audience is.

John took the cable company's television workshop. (MetroVision) "It may seem difficult when first introduced. Keep an open mind to learning and assist others before you venture out to do your own show."

With these basics in mind, I asked John how he applies his political knowledge to his television shows. "Very Carefully" he said in all sinceerity. He went on to discuss how the Kennedy/Nixon television debates changed the political environment. We now see one issue candidates and viewers feel that they really know those whom they see on TV.

'Cheers' remains a success for variety of reasons

Comedy's 200th episode set

By Mary Ann Townsend
A certain something special has had the customers — and viewers — coming back to 'Cheers' for eight years,

Now in its ninth season, the show last week celebrated its 200th episode with an hour-long special. The actual 200th taped episode airs Thursday, Nov. 15, on NBC.

That certain something special isn't the beer. Actor George Wendt, who plays Cheers patron Norm Peterson, confirms the stuff on the set is near beer. No, there is something more that has kept the show in the top of the Nielsens for nearly a decade.

First and foremost is the writing, as Wendt and actress Rhea Perlman, who plays saucy barmaid Carla Tortelli LeBec, agree. The team of Glen and Les Charles is hard to beat, as is director and coececutive producer James Burrows. (One of the team's past credits was the successful series "Taxi".) Wendt attributes the show's success to those even further up the ladder.

There weren't any weak links in the chain. The ultimate answer is the writing, but also it was a real good time to be at NBC, with (Grant) Tinker and (Brandon) Tartikoff allowing us to be a failure for a year and a half, two years, ratings wise. It's a good studio, Paramount. Everything just sort of fell together," he said.

The show has bounced back from some major cast changes, such as when Nick Colasanto died near the end of the third season and when Shelley Long left as her five-year contract expired.

"When Nick died, that was a big blow, a really big blow," said Perlman. "I think he was kind of the Daddy of the show. He was a gredat actor and he ... was the heart of the show. No one could imagine who was going to be able to take over for that part."

Woody Hfarrelson managed to step into the role as the naive bartender, even though the character of Woody is not the father figure Coach was.

"And (about) Shelley leaving, Kirstie just took off. It just worked, it just did," Perlman continued. "Of course everybody was scared because the show was about Sam and Diane. It was a scary thing for us all. Abut I guess the show was really about more than that or it wouldn't have worked. We felt it was about Sam and Diane, but it was about the bar. It was about Same and the people at the bar." She added that she didn't know whether the show could survive if Ted Danson left. Danson won an Emmy this year for his portrayal of Sam Malone, a former baseball player who has owned the neighborhood bar off and on through the series' duration.

One of the writers' biggest successes is the chemistry that has developed between the characers. THE Cheers regulars and workers are a family that has stuck together through unforeseen situations. That, according to Burrows, was a concept the producers had from the beginning.

"The show has always been an evolutionary show", he said. "We never could predict how we would end up at the end of the year."

Perlman's character has gone through marriages, births and loved ones' deaths, but her ascerbic character has really changed very little. The actress likes that.

"I'm just real happy to have the lives to say, because in real life, I'm not real quick with lines," she said. "That's the great thing about Carla, she's always got the right thing to say at the right moment."

Jennifer, Jack's dialogue could be improved

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I am so tired of the horrible lines the writers give Jennifer and Jack on Days of Our Lives. It is a shame that with two such talented actors the writers give them such stupid lines. I don't really object with the actual storylines, though they are a stretch. But the conversation between the two characters is so absurd, I turn off the show every time they come on. -Disappointed in Days, Conroe,

Dear Reader: I must say that many other viewers share in your dissappointment. What amazes me is, most of the people who write in say Jennifer (Melissa Brennan) and Jack (Matthew Ashford) are two of their favorite characters. People are simply disgusted with the dialogue that takes place between the two characters. We can only hope the writers of Days will see the light, and soon.

Dear Candace: With all the talk about Steve and Kayla leaving to take a trip. wondered if that meant they were leaving Days of Our Lives. Little Stephanie is such a beautiful baby, is her daddy really Steve? - Martha Bauch, Deming, N.M.

Dear Martha: Stephen Nichols has left the show to go on to other things. Mary Beth Evans will continue on the show, and it has been rumored that she will be paired with another leading man. Nichols is not the real-life father of Stephanie.

Dear Candace: Is the same girl who plays the FBI agent on One Life to Live the one who played Olivia on General Hospital? They look exactly alike. If not, are they twins? They are both very beautiful. -Tom in S.D.

Dear Tom: Tonja Walker did play Olivia Jerome and is currently the FBI agent working with Bo on OLTL. Walker originally auditioned for the part of Tina, but wasn't exactly right for the character. Paul Rauch, the executive producer of the show, was impressed with Walker and cast her in the part of the FBI agent instead.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

'Winnie the Pooh' still strong at 65

By Amy Schmidt

Winnie the Pooh turns 65 this year. The old bear's been a hit ever since author A.A. Milne first created him back in 1926.

Inspired by Milne's 4-year-old son Christopher Robin, the name "Winnie" came from a bear in the London Zoo and "Pooh" from Christopher's pet swan. The author created a host of winsome characters - Tigger, Piglet, Eeyore, Owl, Rabbit and Kanga - to scamper about "Hundred Acre Wood," a pastoral setting similar to Milne's home of Sussex, England.

What has explained Winnie's success? ABC story editor Bruce Talkington has an idea: "Little kids love Pooh because they can really relate to not being able to make the connection to some of the adult things that are always going on. And adultslove Pooh because it touches some kind of hidden memory - that childlike thought that you never really lose." The ABC cartoon The New Adventures of Winnie the Pooh is now in its third season. It has won two Emmys, a Humanitas Award, an Action for Children's Television Award and a Parents' Choice Award.

Milne's first book, Winnie the Pooh, sold 150,000 copies its first year. The House at Pooh Corner, the second book about Christopher Robin and friends, was published in 1928. Today, the books have sold more man 14 million copies. at TV Lesting Inc.

Matthew Broderick found early success in acting

By Polly Vonetes

O: I have become very interested in the career of Matthew Broderick, star of the movies Freshman and Glory. I would like personal information like marriage, children and date of birth. -Ernest Johnson, De Ridder, La.

A: Matthew Broderick was born March 21, 1962, in New York City. His father, actor James Broderick, was best known from 1976 to 1980 as Kristy McNichol's father on the TV series Family. Matthew had a phenomenal rise to stardom at an early age. He became involved with acting while attending the Walden School in New York City. After graduation he chose acting "as a great way to not even apply to college." A year later he was cast in an off-Broadway play, and soon after, an audition for Neil Simon led to a co-starring role in Max Dugan Returns and the lead role in the hit Broadway play Brighton Beach Memoirs. He has been kept busy ever since. As of this writing he is neither married nor the father of any children.

Q: I am interested in writing to Jimmy Stewart regarding the recent video release of the movie Harvey. Would you please send me his address? -Lucy Dover, Nacogdoches, Texas

A: You may write to Jimmy Stewart at P.O. Box 90, Beverly Hills, CA

Q: On the TV show Webster, was the character George Papadoupoullis patterned after a fictional character, or did someone really have a friend or relative by that name that the character was honoring? - Action Line, Watertown,

A: George Papadoupoullis is a fictional name. The character, as I understand it, was created in the writer's mind. He could be a composite of many people the writer may have known or heard about.

Q: I am writing for some information on my favorite actor Richard Grieco. Not only is he a good actor but he's the best looking guy on TV. Please tell me all you can about him. -Lisa Jasso, Hemet, Calif.

A: Twenty-five-year-old Richard Grieco was born in Watertown, N.Y. He comes from a large, close-knit family. A gifted athlete, he excelled in such sports as hockey, lacrosse and football. An All-American high school football player, Grieco attended Central Connecticut University on an athletic scholarship. With his sights set on a career in law, he chose political science as his major. While in college, he was entered in a national competition known as the "Best Face of the '80s" and emerged as a clear-cut winner. The contest led to a modeling contract in New York City. It was during this time he realized his desire to act and shortly thereafter began two years of intensive theatrical study. His first audition led to his first professional role as Rick Gardner on the daytime drama One Life to Live
