The Canton Connection

Extinguisher scam

If someone enters your business and wants to confiscate your fire extinguisher, be wary.

Canton police say a scam in which a fire extinguisher was taken recently from a business on Ford Road also has occurred in other communities. They urge business people to beware.

In the Canton incident, a man entered the business and told the owner that an inspection of extinguishers is required yearly and removed the fire extinguisher.

"At this point the owner asked for identification and the man left the area (with the extinguisher)," Canton Police officer Tammy Colling said.

"There are yearly inspections, but they don't just pop in; they usually set up something in advance," she said.

"It appears to be directed at just the business owner and not the homeowner," Colling added.

Canton police urge business people to ask for identification and certification if they are questioned about their fire extinguishers.

Extra miler

Barbara Church, Plymouth Canton Community Schools Curriculum Coordinator for Mathematics and Science, was named an Extra Miler at the Board of Education meeting held Monday, Feb. 10.

Board treasurer Dean Swartzwelder presented the award to Church and commended her for the outstanding contributions she has made to the students and staff of the District.

Church, who has worked for the district since 1978, has been employed in a number of capacities.

She has taught math and science at Central and Pioneer Middle Schools and has worked as a media specialist. She taught in the Talented and Gifted Program at East Middle School while working as part-time science curriculum coordinator. After serving as a curriculum coordinator intern for two years, Church was appointed curriculum coordinator for math and science in 1991.

"Barb Church characterizes the meaning of the words professional and educator," said Dr. Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction. "She is knowledgeable in her field and respected by her peers. She is committed to improved learning opportunities for students and is a model of leadership for all of us."

An active member of districtwide committees, Church has worked on the Testing Task Force, the Middle Cities Science Task Force, the Middle School Computer Committee, the Math Curriculum Committee, the Science Olympiad, the Olympics of the Mind Program and the Talented and Gifted Advisory Board.

Church holds a bachelor of science degree in biochemistry and physiology from McGill University in Canada. She earned a master of arts degree in library science at the University of Michigan and a specialist degree in educational leadership and instructional technology at Wayne State University.

School employees fear for jobs

By M.B.Dillon
staff writer

With the Plymouth-Canton School District facing a $4 million shortfall next year, a growing number of teachers and school employees are fearing for their jobs. It's possible that a number of staffers won't have a job next fall.

A budget freeze has been in effect since December, and district officials have been meeting with all employee groups to find ways to save money and jobs. The district also is asking its 1,390 employees to consider modifications and/or extensions of their contracts.

"There are 100,000 rumors out there, but we have no idea yet what the district has in mind," said Chuck Portelli, teacher's union president.

BUT IT'S no secret the state has put them in a bad position, freezing property taxes, recapture money and $700,000 in Robin Hood money (by sharing Plymouth-Canton's tax base with poorer district.)

The so-called Robin Hood legislation, tied up in litigation, would require Plymouth-Canton and other affluent districts to share growth in tax revenue with poorer districts.

"They're saying they'll be $4.3 to $4.4 million in the red for next year," Portelli said.

"We're trying to figure out ways to save money without losing jobs."

The next budget meeting of district and union officials is March 5. That's two days before an all-day workshop where the school board is expected to agree on a balanced budget with substantial cuts. The open session is set for 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, March 7, at the board office, 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

"WE HAVE talked about opening contracts for negotiations, but we certainly haven't put forth any proposals at this point. We're in the process of preparing for the March 7 budget hearing with the board."

"It's still awfully early in the process. But our number one priority is saving jobs so we don't have to affect the program. It's a massive problem."

By law, school district employees who may not have jobs next fall must be notified before May 1. "Otherwise, we are obligated to carry them for another year," Hoben said. "Certain things aren't going to be known until after that date."

Any potential layoffs "will happen across the board" according to the contract, unless there is a particular job where there is not an available replacement, Hoben said.

Vocational ed classes help students

At age 17, Kristen Hallerman already knows what profession she plans to pursue.

Hallerman, a senior at Plymouth Canton High School, was in the nursing assistant program last year. She's decided to become a registered nurse and will enroll in the nursing program at Madonna University in Livonia, where she's taking a sign language class.

"I THINK it's great," Hallerman, a Plymouth Township resident, said of the nursing assistant program offered by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. "It gives a lot of people insight into what they want to go into."

Students benefit from learning about different fields and whether they're interested in going on in a particular field, she said.

Hallerman's putting the knowledge she gained to good use as a volunteer at the University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor. She rocks infants in the neonatal care unit at the hospital, and plans to work in neonatal nursing a few years from now.

NURSING ASSISTANT students are among those enrolled in a variety of vocational education classes offered by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Courses are offered in many areas, including health occupations, business education, technology education and others.

The value of vocational education was highlighted last week in the Plymouth-Canton community and throughout the country during Vocational Education Week.

Maggie Nemeck, a registered nurse, knows just how valuable vocational education is. She's an instructor for the nursing assistant and medical office assistant programs.

Registration rules confuse primary voters

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Local clerks say that despite a change in voter registration rules for the March 17 presidential primary, those rules are still confusing voters.

Plymouth city clerk Linda Langmesser said she's had to field questions from voters interested in voting in the primary. Previously, it was required that those seeking to vote for Republican candidates had to be registered Republicans prior to voting day.

The Michigan Republican Party, responding to criticism, changed that rule Feb. 10 to allow any registered voter to vote in the Republican primary election.

Still, those wanting to vote in the Democratic primary must sign a form identifying themselves as Democrats. They can sign such a form at the polls March 17, so long as they haven't declared before that they were Republicans.

Unregistered people who want to vote must register by Tuesday, no matter which party primary interests them.

"It's still confusing to a lot of the voters," Langmesser said. "I'm still trying to run this over in my mind. My election workers are still confused, they're concerned about what's going to happen at the polls."

"It seems like every four years there's a new and improved way of

If you want to vote in the Democratic primary and are a registered Republican, you must change your affiliation before Wednesday.

If you want to vote in the Democratic primary and are not a registered Democrat, you must declare as a Democrat on election day.

If you want to vote in the Republican primary, you must pick up a Republican ballot election day.

doing it," said Canton clerk Loren Bennett, laughing.

THE RULE change last week, he said, "certainly was an improvement. Anything that makes it easier gets my strong endorsement."

Yet, "We're still getting calls from people who are confused," he said.

"With a high degree of certainty, we can tell people we don't expect any additional changes," he said.

Plymouth Township clerk Esther Hulters said that despite the change, voters are "very unhappy. They talk on the phone for 15 or 20 minutes at a time."

Area women at risk to the HIV infection

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Mary Fisher's shocking, tragic announcement of HIV infection should focus new attention on a disturbing statistic already known by area health professionals:

The Detroit area ratio of HIV-infected women to men is higher than that of any other region except New York City.

Former Oakland County resident Fisher, daughter of millionaire philanthropist Max Fisher, gained widespread local publicity with her announcement last week.

Less publicity has been given a recent Centers for Disease Control study that found one HIV-infected Detroit area female for every two infected males.

"This is a major study, perhaps the most accurate information we have yet," Wayne County medical director Donald Lawrenchuk said.

Mary Fisher says she is HIV positive

"Yet, outside the medical community, it hasn't been too well publicized."

Less than 1 percent of all study samples taken from Detroit area women were HIV-positive. But the infection ratio was still an eye-opener.

"THERE ARE other areas with higher infection rates, but the male/female ratio is still a major concern," Lawrenchuk said.

The 2-to-1 ratio flies in the face of the previous statistics that showed females as much as nine times less likely to be infected than males. The ratio is for all females, including infants.

The study, compiled from a four-year test of hospital blood samples, showed nearly one in every 100 Detroit-area samples tested HIV-positive.

Samples from sexually active area adults 25-44 — the group deemed at highest risk by health professionals — showed an infection rate of 4 percent for men, 2 percent for women.

Study findings should prompt all area residents, even those outside high risk groups, to frankly discuss the issue with their doctors, Lawrenchuk said.

"EVERYBODY NEEDS to be assessed and, if necessary, be tested," Detroit-area samples were processed at Detroit Medical Center, Detroit, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor, was also among the 41 participating medical centers nationwide.

The Ann Arbor sample showed a 6-to-1 male/female infection ratio, closer to the national average.

In all studies, the highest incidence of HIV was reported in blood taken from men 24-44. No breakdown was given for lifestyle, though homosexual males and intravenous drug users are still considered the groups most at risk.

In a Detroit Free Press story, Fisher said she believed she contracted HIV through sexual contact with her husband. She added she later discovered her husband was an intravenous drug user.

Other studies have indicated the Detroit area also trails only New York City in its number of intravenous drug users.

"We've seen statistics that there's 30,000 to 35,000 IV drug users," Lawrenchuk said. "That's a walking time bomb."

FOUR PERCENT of all Michi-

Samples from sexually active area adults 25-44 — the group deemed at highest risk by health professionals — showed an infection rate of 4 percent for men, 2 percent for women.

gan AIDS cases so far are ascribed to heterosexuals who are not IV drug users, though Lawrenchuk said that figure could understate the risk to those in that group.

"I would caution people our AIDS statistics are really a snapshot of what was happening up to 10 years ago," he said.

The study is considered more telling, he said, because it traces HIV, not full-blown AIDS, which can take up to a decade to develop.

Presence of HIV, human immunodeficiency virus, means a person is likely to develop AIDS. Medical experts say an HIV-infected person can show no trace of the fatal disease for several years after infection. HIV is most commonly passed to others through unprotected sex or shared intravenous needles.

The Detroit Medical Center study included blood samples taken from January 1987 to October 1990.

Of 10,627 samples tested, 0.98 percent tested positive for HIV — 1.32 percent of all samples taken from males, 0.63 of those taken from females.

By race, 0.79 percent of samples taken from whites tested HIV-positive, compared with 1.08 percent of samples taken from blacks. Nearly two-thirds of DMC samples were taken from blacks.

Samples were identified by age, race and sex, though not by the patient's name.

The CDC/DMC study, called Sentinel Hospital and Seroprevalence Study was issued June 28, 1991.

Wayne County has accounted for 84 percent of all Michigan AIDS cases. The 1,407 AIDS cases reported to date far exceed those of any other Michigan county. Though 1,151 of those cases were reported in Detroit, the 256 AIDS cases reported in suburban Wayne County communities exceeds the figure for all counties but Oakland. To date, there have been 269 AIDS cases reported in Oakland County.

School board seats open June 8

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

If you are interested in running in the June 8 Plymouth-Canton school board election, you have until 4 p.m., April 6 to file nominating petitions.

Two seats are open — those of incumbent trustees Dr. E.J. McClendon and Barbara Graham. Both are four-year terms.

Thus far, two candidates have taken out petitions, Graham and Plymouth resident Jack Farrow, an organizer of the pro-tax 1 Care Committee.

McClendon of Plymouth Township said he hasn't made a decision. "Some days I think yes, and some days I think no," said McClendon, who has two grandchildren who will be moving into the district from out of state later this year.

First elected in 1988, Graham of Plymouth Township is running again, not because she has a particular agenda, "But I just want to continue doing what I've been doing, helping students and parents and serving as a watchdog over what's going on," said Graham, who is employed at Meijer and served as a trustee on one of Detroit's regional school boards for six years in the 1970s.

"I decided to try it one more time. A lot of people in the district need to be represented with a different voice, and I feel I have that voice. I don't feel they're represented well enough."

In Graham's view, district leadership is "doing a real good job communicating, but I think part of it is we may be communicating, but not listening well enough. We are not taking in the needs of all the people in the community," Graham said, adding she often hears from people who want advice or assistance who come from females.

McClendon, a WORLD Health Organization consultant and an emeritus professor in the University of Michigan's School of Public Health, said that if he runs again, he will be "very much interested in and committed to the idea of modernizing technology and the full utilization of technology in the teaching and learning process. That is on the cutting edge of the future, and we've just begun to learn the things you can do with that."

McClendon said he also is "very much committed to the notion of outcome-based education, looking not at what you tended to teach, but what students know when they leave."

Improving student achievement would continue to be a priority with McClendon. "I disagree with some of the critics. Achievement in Plymouth-Canton is not poor. Could it get better? Yes, of course we can get better. But the people singing about disaster I think are somewhat mistaken."

Farrow says he has "close to 100 different reasons for running that can be broadly put into three categories."

"The first is citizen's duty. I feel it is the duty of every citizen to do something outside their regular employment for the betterment of the community. I'm quite interested in education, so the school board is what I have chosen," said Farrow, who has four children, aged 5-19.

"I'm extremely pleased with the education my two older children

Graham

feel uncomfortable approaching other school officials.

"I think in some respects, we are foisting as a district our beliefs and our values and imposing some of those perhaps on people who would prefer that they be the sole leaders in their own families and guide their children the way they want to be guided. I think we've stepped into the family role too far."

McClendon, a WORLD Health Organization consultant and an emeritus professor in the University of Michigan's School of Public Health, said that if he runs again, he will be "very much interested in and committed to the idea of modernizing technology and the full utilization of technology in the teaching and learning process. That is on the cutting edge of the future, and we've just begun to learn the things you can do with that."

McClendon said he also is "very much committed to the notion of outcome-based education, looking not at what you tended to teach, but what students know when they leave."

"The first is citizen's duty. I feel it is the duty of every citizen to do something outside their regular employment for the betterment of the community. I'm quite interested in education, so the school board is what I have chosen," said Farrow, who has four children, aged 5-19.

"I'm extremely pleased with the education my two older children have received. I want to try to keep that quality for the sake of my two younger children who are in kindergarten and fourth grade at Allen.

"It sounds idealistic, but another reason is that I want my children to grow up in a better world than I live in right now. I'm convinced education is the right way to have some affect on that."

Farrow said his third reason for running has to do with "a set of ideas I think can be used to improve education. What I would view as a number-one priority would be to improve communication. A second thing is we need to work on getting the community and schools to work together."

"One of the sort of harsh realities we have to face is if we are going to improve education in this community, we can't look to Lansing or Washington to do it for us. We have to do it with the people and resources we have right here."

Farrow is an engineer/innovator with Medar, Inc. of Farmington Hills. Medar makes industrial process control equipment and compact disc inspection systems.

Nominating petitions are available for any registered voter in the school district at the administration office at 454 S. Harvey Street in Plymouth. Trustees earn $30 per meeting.

School employees fear for their jobs

"I come back to the idea that the number one priority is to preserve programs to keep as many staff as possible. We want to keep as much of the program as we can without affecting students."

RAY HOEDEL, associate superintendent for business, said employees have come up with "a lot of good ideas to save money. In fact, we have 25 areas, potential things we can look into." A price tag has yet to be attached to the savings, Hobes said.

Truste E.J. McClendon said these are scary times for Plymouth-Canton schools. "When inflation and salaries continue upward and you get hit with a freeze, it becomes an enormous challenge, and it is scary when there doesn't seem, at the moment, to be any solution out there."

Voters confused

"They think it (declaring a party affiliation) is an invasion of privacy, that it's violating the secrecy of the ballot," Hulsing said.

Still, she said, "It's a help to be able to just hand them a ballot," rather than determine if a voter seeking to vote Republican has already registered as a Republican.

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out—STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

Dads, daughters dance night away

IT WAS A NIGHT just for a dad and his daughter. For more than two hours on Friday 174 dads and daughters showed their best dance steps at St. Thomas A'Becket Family Life Center in Canton.

The event was a St. Valentine's Day dance organized by the Knights of Columbus and open to fathers and daughters who ranged in age from 3 to 18.

"It was the first one we've had," said Ralph DiFazio of Canton, who helped organize the dance. He brought daughter, Deirdre, 5.

A disc jockey provided the music and "the girls loved the oldies," he said.

Although the dance floor was crowded, there was also time for picture taking.

"The girls loved it. I think they enjoyed being out with their dads and away from their mothers," DiFazio said.

And who can blame them?

School funding

Engler says it must focus on equity

By Tim Richard
staff writer

"The time has come that if taxpayers are making the same local effort, we should have the same opportunity for every child in school. We've changed the focus to the child rather than on complicated formulas."

—Gov. John Engler

Courts will take over the school funding problem unless Michigan achieves per-student equity, Gov. John Engler warns.

"We've seen that happen in a number of states, and that's the worst possible outcome for education," Engler said in a wide-ranging interview.

In his second year in office, Engler said he's willing to abandon tax-base sharing, a law tied up in the courts, but insists school funding needs to focus on per-pupil equity.

So he's advocating a "fair trade":

- Eliminate tax base sharing, under which suburban school districts share half the growth in their commercial-industrial tax base.
- Let the state pump the Social Security and retirement payments it makes on behalf of school districts into the state aid formula.
- Engler also would phase out several special purpose grants. And he would eliminate "recapturing" — the process by which the state takes back categorical aid to richer school districts.
- The governor said he has rejected the idea of ending all categorical aids. Some, such as special education, are required by federal law. Others are required by the Headlee Amendment, which says the state must pay for any programs it mandates from local government.
- Here are the questions and answers.
- Q. Some out-of-formula school districts are saying that if the state cuts Social Security and retirement, they may as well be "private." The state will have no lever to require the local district to do anything.
- A. They recognize there are two sources of funds for schools today — local and state — and they're both raised by taxes.
- Because of the way we tax property locally, there are tremendous disparities between districts. If one district has greater wealth than another — side by side — they could be raising dramatically different amounts of money, even if the taxpayers are paying the same number - of mills.
- We've raised the question, how should the state use state funds? Should we recognize you have these inequities at the local level and compensate for it? Or should we ignore it?
- The time has come that if taxpayers are making the same local effort, we should have the same opportunity for every child in school. We've changed the focus to the child rather than on complicated formulas.
- Q. Rep. Bill Keith (D-Garden City, chair of the House Education Committee, says in so many words that he wants to eliminate categorical aid and put the money into general state aid.
- A. We've stopped short of recommending that. There are certain categorical aids that, because of federal requirements or the state's responsibilities under the Headlee Amendment, the state finds itself committed to.
- Two are special education and transportation. In special ed, although we exceed the minimum requirements of federal law, it's clearly something where the state has a special obligation. I accept that. The same with transportation.
- Q. Generally, it sounds like you want to beef up general school aid and get rid of special items.

Builders Square coming to Canton

A new store is scheduled to open in Canton Thursday, Feb. 27. Builders Square, a national chain of warehouse-style home improvement centers, will open at 11 a.m. at its location at 4200 Ford Road. Township officials will join Builders Square staff and management for a ribbon cutting ceremony.

Builders Square was founded in 1983 as Home Centers of America. Just over a year later, with nine stores in the chain, the company was purchased by Kmart corporation and its name changed to Builders Square.

The Canton Township store occupies 80,000 square feet, includes a Decor Center and offers name-brand merchandise at discount prices. Over 30,000 items are stocked in nine different departments including lumber, hardware, seasonal, building materials and kitchen cabinets. On the average, each Builders Square store records over 10,000 transactions per week.

Mark Henry is the store manager. Several important features have contributed to the growth of Builders Square since it was founded in 1983, according to Glen Mielke, president and chief executive officer of Builders Square. "Our massive selection of home improvement merchandise, brand-name, superior customer service and low discount prices have made Builders Square a formidable force in the home improvement industry," said Mielke. "While Builders Square offers the convenience of a modern warehouse, it still offers the personalized service of an old-fashioned hardware store." Special events on grand opening day will include hourly merchandise giveaways and a special appearance of the Owens Corning Fiberglass Pink Panther on Saturday and Sunday.

On Sunday, March 1, there will be drawings for a $1,000 Shopping Spree and a "Workshop" Prize Package. There will also be special drawings the next three Sundays including a "Painter's Paradise" Prize Package, "Bath Remodeler" Prize Package, "Total Organization" Prize Package, and three $500 Gift Certificates.

Builders Square stores are open 90 hours a week. Hours are from 7:30 a.m. until 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Sunday hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Pursell will seek re-election

Rep. Carl D. Pursell, R-Plymouth, will seek re-election in the Second District, as drawn in the state GOP redistricting plan.

"Although we are awaiting final court action on redistricting, it appears highly likely the Second District will include western Wayne County and a large part of Oakland County," Pursell said.

"I have represented western Wayne County for more than 20 years as a county commissioner, state senator and congressman. The people of the Plymouth-Northville-Livonia area have been the base of my support and I am confident this tradition will continue."

"At the same time, I have continued to keep close ties with Oakland County — having represented southern Oakland as a state senator, and being Michigan's only Republican on the House Appropriations Committee," he said.

"I remain committed to my battle against deficit spending — which is one of the recurring concerns I hear during my travels back home," said Pursell. "The congressman has authored two Republican spending freeze budget plans and is a recognized leader in the fight against business as usual in Washington."

Pursell also is the Republican chairman on the Health and Education Appropriations Subcommittee, where he oversees funding for the nation's education and health care, treatment and research programs.

Voc ed starts students off right

NEMEC REMEMBERS having Kristen Hallerman in a ninth grade health class and seeing that Hallerman wanted to pursue nursing as a career. "She really wanted to go for it."

Health occupations students learn about research and gain practice with skills, Nemecek said. They learn such basics as what salaries to expect in a given field.

"It really allows them to have time for some change in thinking about their career," said Nemecek, a

Livonia resident. "Students are able to gain some work experience or experience for work."

SOME STUDENTS put the knowledge they've acquired in vocational courses to use right away in part-time jobs or volunteer work. Some, such as Hallerman, go on to college, and others go to work following high school.

Even those who don't go into health-related fields benefit from knowing such things as CPR. "These things are basic to everyday living," Nemecek said.

Courses and career counseling help students prepare for the future, said Dorothy Sincock, special population coordinator for the school district. Courses offer help with auto mechanics, welding and many others — help students prepare for the workplace of the future.

'We're doing OK,' say mayor, supervisor

By Kevin Brown staff writer

The city faces challenges, "but they're not insurmountable," Mayor Robert Jones told business leaders Thursday.

And while the township is in good shape financially, Supervisor Gerald Law said the township tax rate "is quite low," adding it's "one thing we have to look at" as development growth slows in Plymouth Township.

The occasion was the annual state of the city and township address by Jones and Law, before 75 business leaders and residents at the Mayflower Meeting House.

TALKS ON MERGING city and township services drew more attention from Plymouth's mayor, who said merging fire departments "can be accomplished with some very serious negotiations."

Law meanwhile saved mention of shared services for next to last, saying, "We are willing to talk to local units of government, to try to economize and make services more efficient for taxpayers."

When an audience member asked for more specifics on shared services talks, Law said this was "an easy concept to talk about but not easy to accomplish."

TALKS ON MERGING the two fire departments have stalled over the issue of what rank to assign city firefighters brought into the township fire department. To bring city firefighters in at their current rank would violate the contract between the township and its firefighters.

Jones said commissioners and city manager Steve Walters were reviewing the proposed 1992-93 budget, and if items are unnecessary "we're going to do away with them," he said.

While the troubles of some prominent city businesses have drawn attention to Plymouth, "many malls are feeling the same pinch that we are," Jones said. "We have to have a plan to retain and attract new business."

YOUNG PEOPLE cruising around town in their cars "can't be stopped but must be kept under control," he said, adding the city spends more than $60,000 a year to deal with cruisers.

"We are planning some refinements that will hopefully provide better control and less aggravation for merchants and citizens," Jones said.

Law said township taxes have been kept low thanks to continuing residential and light industrial development. "We continue to grow but not at the rate we did three, four or five years ago," Law said, adding residents still demand good police and fire protection, and that costs tax money.

ON THE former St. John's seminary property, "No one's approached the township formally with any proposal," he said.

Law said the township would reject a large development there, preferring "something as attractive as what's there now."

"We are in desperate need of soccer fields," he said, adding township officials are discussing a partnership with schools officials to create more soccer fields on school property.

Medical examiner sticks by murder ruling

By Pat Murphy staff writer

Neither of the two women who died in the presence of Dr. Jack Kevorkian last October could have taken their own lives without help, according to the Oakland County medical examiner who classified their deaths as homicide.

The women may have taken active roles in their own deaths, but neither could have committed suicide by themselves, testified Dr. Ljubisa J. Dragovic, the medical examiner who performed autopsies on Marjorie Wantz and Sherry Miller and signed their death certificates.

Testifying Saturday at Kevorkian's preliminary examination on murder charges, Dragovic said forensic pathology does not address the term "assisted suicide. That's a contradiction in terms."

And in the case of Wantz and Miller, the person or persons who set up the complex system enabling each to take her own life committed homicide, testified Dragovic.

The medical examiner was a key witness in the examination of Kevorkian Friday and Saturday in Rochester District Court before Judge James P. Sheehy.

The examination is scheduled to continue today although no ruling is expected for weeks. Sheehy can rule a crime was committed — and order Kevorkian into circuit court for possible trial.

Or, he can dismiss the charges, as a Clarkston District judge did in 1990 when Kevorkian was accused of murdering Janet Adkins.

It was irrelevant that each woman might have wanted to die, said Dragovic. The actions of either woman would not have necessarily ended their lives if each had not been hooked up to a complex system designed for death.

The person who set up those systems committed homicide, he insisted.

Is the person who sells rope used by someone to hang himself committing homicide? asked Fieger.

No, said Dragovic. But the person who ties the rope around the neck of someone precariously perched on a stool does, even if that person wants to hang himself.

Dragovic bristled at Fieger's suggestion someone else — possibly sheriff's Sgt. William Harvey or Prosecutor Richard Thompson — influenced his findings.

"I ruled the deaths homicide," Dragovic said repeatedly, "nobody else influenced my decision."

Fieger, sometimes all the way on the verge of rage — tried to suggest the medical examiner's approach, and definition of homicide, was unique — and somehow not acceptable.

LAST OCT. 23 is the night Wantz, 58, from the Benton Harbor area, and Miller, 43, of Roseville, died in a remote cabin in the Bald Mountain Recreation Area in Oakland Township. Kevorkian has admitted assisting each in taking her life.

During the three hours Dragovic was on the witness stand, there was an undercurrent of animosity between him and defense attorney Geoffrey N. Fieger, who previously suggested the medical examiner was unduly pressured by the prosecution.

Fieger repeatedly asked if Wantz and Miller would have died if each had not taken a final step — Wantz activating the machine that injected a fatal sodium chloride and Miller turning the valve admitting carbon monoxide gas into the mask over her face.

On several occasions during the examination Friday and Saturday, Kevorkian was asked to autograph his book, "Prescription Medicine."

Both times Kevorkian went to lunch at the Olive Garden Italian Restaurant, about a block away from Rochester District Court, the waitress favorably acknowledged his presence, according to Michael A. Schwartz, a West Bloomfield lawyer who is one of his defense attorneys.

"Today (Saturday) one of the waitresses asked for my autograph," said Schwartz. "Yesterday, the waitress said it is an honor to take our food order."

Even one of the prosecution's witnesses admitted having some regard for Kevorkian. James M. Brown, an Orion Township fire fighter, said on Oct. 23 he was one of the first people to arrive at the secluded cabin in the Bald Mountain Recreation Area after the deaths of Wantz and Miller.

In response to questions from assistant prosecutor Larry Bunting,

Brown said he was waiting for sheriff's deputies to allow him into the cabin he recognized Kevorkian.

"What happened?" asked Bunting. "I went over and shook his (Kevorkian's) hand," said Brown.

KEVORKIAN SAID he has received "hundreds" of phone calls since June 1990, when he kicked off public debate on the right to die by helping Alzheimer's patient Janet Adkins end her own life.

"All but two have been supportive," he said. "Most people agree that if it's done correctly, assisting a suicide can be beneficial."

Throughout his numerous interviews — some for national and international television and others for local newspapers — Kevorkian said he is a confirmed bachelor and has been throughout his 63 years.

Asked about romantic overtures since becoming a household figure, Kevorkian responded, "There haven't been any."

After a pause he added with a smile, "I think it's the nature of the notoriety."

Spotlight brings out admirers

By Pat Murphy staff writer

There have been no proposals of marriage — as with the man convicted as the notorious "Hillside Strangler" in southern California.

And no amorous women were lurking in the court corridors — as during the sanity hearings of Jeffrey Dahmer.

But "Doctor Death" has his admirers, including four teenagers who identified themselves as the "Rochester girls," Sarah, Valerie, Jen and Fess.

During his examination on murder charges Saturday in Rochester District Court, "the Rochester girls" gave Dr. Jack Kevorkian a single, long-stemmed rose, along with a short note saying, "you'll always have our support."

"I don't know who they are," Kevorkian said. "But I chatted with them during a break. They're very nice."

AND THEY weren't the only ones with kind words for the retired pathologist charged in the Oct. 23 deaths of Marjorie Wantz and Sherry Miller.

On several occasions during the examination Friday and Saturday, Kevorkian was asked to autograph his book, "Prescription Medicine."

Both times Kevorkian went to lunch at the Olive Garden Italian Restaurant, about a block away from Rochester District Court, the waitress favorably acknowledged his presence, according to Michael A. Schwartz, a West Bloomfield lawyer who is one of his defense attorneys.

Engler: Colleges must do more

To Gov. John Engler, the question of double-digit college tuition hikes is less important than what colleges are doing for so-called "non-traditional students." Engler said his administration's thrust is better management of facilities rather than tuition restraint. His budget for fiscal 1993 contained virtually no new money for the 15 state universities and 29 community colleges. That led some higher education leaders to predict double-digit tuition hikes to keep pace with inflation. Engler portrayed his chief Democratic rival, House Speaker Lewis Dodak, as an economic illiterate for proposing that college tuition hikes be capped at the rate of consumer price inflation.

Here are the questions and answers: Q. When your higher education budget came out (no increase), some universities immediately said there would be "double digit tuition increases." Any reaction? A. We certainly are urging restraint. I try to appoint men and women to boards who will exercise restraint. Q. That's my next question. Should tuition restraint be an issue at the Republican and Democratic state conventions when they nominate university board candidates? A. I think it's something they may wish to raise, and they're certainly free to do that. Really, it's a broader question than that — the management of the university itself. It will run or not? Is it user-friendly or not? What's important to me is to see all our universities become more accessible to the non-traditional student who cannot be free to go from 8 to 3 Monday through Thursday, because they work, and need to get to a professor in the evening and on weekends. That's going to be a real challenge. It runs contrary to the image of a university. Yet if we're going to meet the needs of the public who's paying. I recently asked the Department of Management and Budget to do a utilization study, part of trying to make decisions on capital outlay, of the buildings out there, how frequently they're used — 8 to 5 or 8 to 8 and on Saturday from 8 to 1? I have one school, which shall go nameless, that said they have 100 percent utilization. I said, how can that be? It turned out that somewhere on campus during those hours, a class was being held. Sort of missed the point. (Laughter.)

Democrats want a ballot proposal to cap tuition increases at the consumer price index. Are you in favor? A. The speaker doesn't know economics very well. That's been one of the problems for nearly a year. While we're at it, why not cap the price of all goods we buy? Price controls don't work. They're discredited right now in eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. They're scrapping price controls because they're facing shortages and inefficient systems, and that's the way it would work here. We have in our universities a good deal of freedom of choice for students, and we also have ample evidence a college education is a kind of investment. So I think his proposal, while having some surface political appeal, can't be taken seriously upon campus.

Gov stresses 'equity'

Continued from Page 3 let the local districts keep the money they raise locally. I'm prepared to support the immediate repeal of tax base sharing in return for putting up the state's ability to redirect some of the retirement funds. So it's a quid pro quo, but it's a fair trade. The local districts are free to do what they want with their dollars, and the state is free to budget how you wish. When the average expenditure is under $4,000 per student and one that is spending $7,000 is pleading poverty, one has to wonder where the money's going.

Q. Kentucky, Texas has had two or three plans turned down by the supreme court, there are challenges in other states, they're expensive and very counterproductive. I would prefer to act now and blunt the threat of that happening. Q. You've got certain legislators who actually want a lawsuit. A. (Nod) Q. Do you support the Michigan Model (for comprehensive health education)? A. I don't oppose it. I mean, it's an option available for schools. I support its being an option. I don't support its being mandated. I've not studied specific components in detail because that's a decision that's made locally. They don't have to use any of it. They may use all of it if they wish. The concern I've had that emerged quite by accident. The previous administration used substantial dollars of drug monies to pay for the Michigan Model, which has aspects of drug education, yet it is not focused on drugs, it's much, much broader than that.

Q. Speaker Lew Dodak says the board. The previous administration (James Blanchard in 1985) tried to control the price of tuition while winking and nodding as fees were raised and new fees created across the board.

Summertime in Sydney

Sydney's Harbor Bridge adds an imposing presence to parts of the Australian seaport's skyline. If skylines aren't enough, culture thrives at the famed Sydney Opera House

The Sydney Opera House, with its odd roof, is home to theater, opera, ballet and symphony productions.

City celebrates 150th birthday

By Andrea Anderson-Ribadeneira New York Times Syndicate

Summertime in Sydney, Australia, is a brilliant affair. The city, always enhanced by the harbor's deep blue, is further brightened with the colors of wattle, jacaranda and flame trees in bloom. The harbor comes alive with fleets of striped spinners and windsurfers dancing from bay to bay. Beaches, quiet and dignified in the autumn and winter (March through August) turn to festival grounds full of boisterous sunbathers and surfers. They arrive in hordes, many in neon bathing suits with matching zinc sunblock on their noses. Broad strips of pristine white sand are patterned with beach towels from the promenade to the water's edge. With this year being the 150th anniversary of the city, residents of Sydney celebrated Australia Day (Jan. 26), commemorating the arrival of the first European settlers in 1788, and the celebrations will continue right through December. Between 1788, when Capt. Arthur Phillip moored off Sydney Cove with the first fleet of convicts, and 1842, when Britain first granted the city a right to representative government, Sydney was considered nothing more than a rough colonial outpost. With establishment of a partially elected legislative council, Sydney was on its way to becoming more than a dumping ground for England's outcasts. To celebrate the sesquicentennial the current city council has coordinated a series of events that involve almost every area and cultural institution in Sydney. The highlights include Queen Elizabeth's arrival for the opening of the refurbished Victorian-era Town Hall on Feb. 20.

symphony productions held at the Opera House can be obtained by calling 250-7777. Half-price tickets for that day's performances are sold for cash only at the Hallett booth on Martin Place from noon to 5:30 p.m. Monday to Friday and noon to 5 p.m. on Saturday. For more information call 0055-20580. The summer opera season runs through March 2. Out of the six scheduled works, two, "Fidelio" and "The Marriage of Figaro," are new productions. The winter season runs from June to October and contains twice as many productions. Tickets cost $20 to $91. All prices are in U.S. dollars at an exchange of 75 American cents for one Australian dollar. A play by Australia's foremost contemporary playwright, David Williamson, started off the year for the Sydney Theater Co. "Money and Friends" is a comedy about modern Australians facing the recession and runs through Feb. 29. Tickets cost $19 to $25. To celebrate the 60th anniversary of its opening, the Harbor Bridge is going to invite the city aboard for a huge party on March 15. Traffic will be banned and the bridge transformed into a stage with entertainment from one end to the other. Top Australian and international musicians will congregate in Sydney for the International Jazz Festival from March 19 to March 29. James Morrison, the multi-instrumentalist who is one of Australia's contemporary jazz stars, opens the festival in concert with the American Ray Brown Trio. For more information call 265-9554. An Easter parade through the city opens this year's Royal Easter Show, a farming exhibition of grand proportions that offers visitors an impressive introduction to rural Australia. Events range from livestock parades to cake decorating contests. The show will be from April 10 to April 21 at the Sydney Showground in Paddington. Tickets are $9. For more information call 0055-21111. For information on these and other events check The Sydney Morning Herald's Friday Metro section.

Hostel trips for the young at heart

By Everett Potter special writer

Consumers searching for a real travel bargain in 1992 would do well to reflect on the late 1960s. During those heady days of student travel, all that was needed for a lengthy European vacation was a cheap charter-airline ticket, a couple of hundred dollars and an American Youth Hostel card. The AYH card, more than anything else, allowed students to spend night after night in major cities and small towns throughout Europe for just a few dollars a day. A hostel provided overnight, dormitory-style accommodations in a simple but clean facility, with separate bedrooms and bathrooms for men and women. These cheap charters may be a distant memory, but AYH lives on. And membership in the non-profit AYH is not restricted to the youthful backpacking set either. "The youth" in AYH really means "young at heart," said David Kaller, program education manager for American Youth Hostels. "There has never been an upper age limit for members of AYH. In fact, we have members of every age, from 5 to 80 on up. Since AYH is affiliated with the International Youth Hostel Federation, members of AYH have access to more than 5,300 hostels worldwide, at prices ranging from 35 cents a night in India to $18.75 a night in New York City. The average accommodation ranges from $7 to $10 a night. The hostel itself might be a log cabin, a Victorian mansion, a renovated lighthouse or a modern high-rise building in a major city center. The hostel movement was started in Germany in 1909 by a schoolteacher named Richard Schirrmann, who was fond of taking groups of students on mountain hikes. Schirrmann wanted to extend the hikes but was unable to find affordable overnight accommodations. His solution was to persuade schoolmasters in neighboring towns to allow their schoolhouses to be used for the night. In return, the young hikers would rise early and tidy up the place in time for the first classes. The idea "spread like wildfire throughout Germany and to other European countries," said Kaller. "Although schoolhouses aren't used these days, the idea of getting up an early departure is still practiced by some hostels. AYH's most popular domestic trip is the "Salty Dog," a 12-day cycling trip that covers the Cape Cod National Seashore, Nantucket, Martha's Vineyard and Boston. The cost is $700, which includes hostel accommodations, three group-prepared meals a day and extras. For information contact American Youth Hostel, P.O. Box 37613, Washington, D.C. 20013 or call (202) 783-6161. While dormitory-style accommodations are still the norm — and members still need the inexpensive sheet known as a "sleep sack" that eliminates the bedding cost for hostels — some things have changed. An increasing number of hostels have private "family rooms" for families traveling together. Others have separate rooms for single travelers. These rooms rent for a higher fee. It's now possible to reserve a hostel bed ahead of time by fax for a nominal fee — which varies by location. Credit cards are even accepted by some hostels. 'Tomatoes:' refreshing film fare

Had I known how refreshing "Fried Green Tomatoes" truly is, I would have seen it much sooner. By now, almost a month after release, it's no secret that this is the most satisfying and moving film to reach screens this year.

The story, according to the advertisements, centers around the relationship between Kathy Bates and Jessica Tandy. This isn't surprising, since the two back-to-back Oscar winners, usually seen on stage, are at the height of their powers at the box office. Actually, they become something of a framing device in the adaptation of Fanny Flagg's novel. Tandy's character, who resides temporarily in a retirement home, begins to reminisce about life in a tiny Alabama town in the 1930s. Here, Ildge, a tomboy, and the more demure Ruth strike up a deep and lasting friendship. They open a restaurant, the Whistle Stop Cafe, which becomes the main pulse of the town. Problems

tickets please John Monaghan

arise, however, when Ruth's estranged husband returns out of nowhere and tries to kidnap their baby. When his car is dredged up from the local pond years later, Ildge is still a prime suspect. THE CAPTIVATING saga, told during several visits, inspires Bates, who has been suffering the strain of a mid-life crisis. She gets a new image of herself and starts to assert herself with her oafish and insensitive husband. "Fried Green Tomatoes" has a wonderful message about individuality and just for life that really works. Sure, if you pick the movie apart it can be seen as sentimental and contrived, but it also works in a rare and deceptively simple way. Bates and Tandy are brilliant, as usual, so the real surprises come from Mary Stuart Masterson, who has her best role to date as the non-conforming Ildge. At first she seems too pretty for the role, but overcomes that beautifully by the time "Fried Green Tomatoes" reaches its surprising conclusion.

noir' world in black-and-white where characters walk in and out of shadows and disembodied footsteps always seem to be just behind you. AS IN THE current "Naked Lunch," the film places the writer as the central character in a story that mixes biographical elements with dialogue and imagery from books. Fans of the great Czech writer will recognize references to such works as "The Metamorphosis," "The Penal Colony," and "The Castle" within the framework of a murder mystery story. Visually, there are moments of great power here. Most of it is shot in stunning black and white (with a treat) except for 20 minutes or so when Kafka enters the government headquarters where scientists hope to create a race of zombie-like humans. Jeremy Irons, his natural paleness accentuated through heavy makeup and a trace of lipstick, tries his best to bring some life to what inevitably becomes a tedious exercise in style. The film has been hailed for its witiness, but to me it was nothing more than a pretentious in-joke from an already overrated young director.

'Cat:' Something's missing

Sitting on the beachfront in sunny Florida, things are pretty quiet around the less than glamorous Coconut Palm Resort Apartments. There are a few guests and no palm trees at all as someone points out to the owner, former Marine and ex-Detroit George Moran.

That's how a 1988 film "Cat Chaser" based on a novel by Elmore Leonard begins. Anyone familiar with Leonard's work knows it won't be long before a variety of characters and their own personal and often criminal agendas start crossing paths. Played by Peter Weller, Moran of ten dreams of his Marine experiences being wounded and captured by insurgents during the 1965 U.S. invasion of the Dominican Republic. A war that probably won't be remembered the voice over narrator notes.

On a return visit to the Dominican Republic, Moran tries to contact the woman rebel soldier who didn't kill him during the invasion. He also renews a relationship with an old friend from Detroit, a woman (played by Kelly McGillis) who is married to a former head of the Dominican secret police.

McGillis is rather brittle as the mercenary wife of a man who waxes nostalgic about successful interrogation techniques. It's kind of puzzling

What Moran sees in this woman who seems to lack depth and truly cares most for money. THE SUBPLOT about Moran's efforts to connect with his female captor is given short shrift. Characters are added in connection with the subplot and dispatched rather quickly, connections with the main story hinted at but never explored. Another small point was when the story was supposed to have taken place. The Dominican military action was in 1965. The film has a fairly current look but Weller and other characters aren't old enough to have been adults 25 years ago.

February's moon is frigid

THE NEARLY FULL moon approaches the star Regulus, in Leo, on the evening of Feb. 17. The moon is officially at full phase at 3:04 a.m. on Feb. 18. The moon, fully lighted by the sun, rises as the sun sets and is visible all night.

Native Americans had various names for the February Full Moon — Snow Moon, Hunger Moon, and Wolf Moon to name a few. (How about 'Frigid Moon?')

The bright star above and to the right of the moon, in the west on the morning of Feb. 19, is Jupiter. It is nearly at opposition (opposite the sun as seen from the earth) and rises shortly after sunset, is visible all night long and sets at sunrise. Opposition officially occurs on Feb. 28.

Venus passes within 0.9 degree (about two full moon diameters) of Mars on the morning of the 19th. The next visible conjunction between these two objects occurs on the evening of Nov. 22, 1995, when they will be a mere one-sixth of a degree apart! (A conjunction between the two occurs on Jan. 6, 1994, but it is too close to the sun to be seen.)

Venus and Mars are still within one degree of each other on the morning of Feb. 20.

THE MOON is nearing the star Spica (SPY ka) on the morning of Feb. 21. On the following morning it has passed that star.

Spica is the brightest star in the constellation of Virgo.

It may be possible to glimpse Mercury, 30 minutes after sunset on Feb. 23. Mercury will be nearly mid-way between the west and west-southwest compass points, only a few degrees above the horizon. Using binoculars will help you spot it. Mercury will get higher in the sky and be easier to spot during the next few weeks.

Last quarter moon is at 2:56 a.m. on Feb. 25. You will find it located near the bright star Antares (an TAREES) in Scorpius. It is beginning the last quarter of its orbit around the earth.

Saturn enters the act on the morning of the Feb. 26. Locate Venus in the east-southeast. Three degrees to the left of Venus is Saturn, while three degrees to the right of Venus is Mars. The Abrams Planetarium Sky Calendar describes the scene as 'a brilliant diamond between two lesser gems.'

Venus is 0.6 degree from Saturn on Feb. 28, just to the right of Saturn. On Feb. 29 Venus is 0.5 degree to the left of Saturn. Their next conjunction, in the evening sky, occurs at the end of this year.

An excellent aid for learning constellations and keeping up to date with the sky is the monthly 'Sky Calendar.' A one-year subscription is $6 and is available from the Abrams Planetarium, Michigan State University, East Lansing, 48824.

Canton keeps rolling toward playoffs

Tony Coshatt, pulling down a rebound in an earlier game with Walled Lake Western, was a force on the boards Friday in Canton's victory at Harrison.

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton hasn't yet reached the mountain top in Western Lakes Activities Association boys basketball, but it's king of the hill for now.

Following its latest victory, Canton will remain as such for the start of the league tournament even if North Farmington and Livonia Franklin should do the unlikely this week and upset the Chiefs.

In winning its 10th consecutive game Friday, Canton established a two-game lead with a 53-48 victory over host Farmington Hills Harrison — the last remaining challenger for the No. 1 seed in the tournament.

Harrison and Walled Lake Central have two losses but could tie the Chiefs for first place; however, Canton has beaten both and wins any tie-breakers.

The Chiefs lead the WLAA with a 9-0 record and two regular-season games on the schedule before post-season play starts Friday, Feb. 28. The Hawks slipped to 7-2. Both teams are 12-3 overall.

"WE'RE JUST ecstatic to come out of this place with a victory," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said, knowing the big prize will be the tournament title to be decided Saturday, March 7. "It's still early. We have a lot of improvement to do before the year is over."

Harrison will be in the playoffs, too, and coach Mike Teachman figures the Hawks can't avoid Canton and still have a successful tournament run.

"I don't think there's any way, if you're going to win the league, that you're only going to play Plymouth Canton once," he said. "We proved even when we're not at our best we can stay with them."

Despite the loss, Teachman was not displeased with his team's performance, especially when considering many of his players were still fighting the effects of the flu.

"As sick and physically down as our team is, I'm glad to be this close, because they have the stuff to bury you," he said. "They spread their scoring around, and you can't concentrate on one guy."

basketball

'Derrick McDonald can take over a game in the fourth quarter, which he has done many times. He does that time and again. He makes me look like a good coach.'

— Dave Van Wagoner
Canton basketball coach

One of those guys was senior guard Derrick McDonald, who had another big fourth quarter when he scored eight of his 14 points to help the Chiefs win another come-from-behind win.

"Derrick McDonald can take over a game in the fourth quarter, which he has done many times," Van Wagoner said. "He does that time and again. He makes me look like a good coach."

SENIOR FORWARD Hal Heard matched McDonald's scoring output, and senior center Tony Coshatt, returning to action after missing the last three games, had 13 points, including a monstrous slam dunk as the game ended.

Senior center Paul Gilvydis scored a game-high 23 points for Harrison, and senior guard Dan Hight finished with 16. Only four Harrison players scored as Mike Pesci and Justin Romans combined for the remaining nine points.

With a share of first place at stake for the Hawks and two of the WLAA's biggest teams going head-to-head, the competition was intense and often times physical as the big men banged under the boards.

A minor scuffle broke out as the players exchanged handshakes after the game, and McDonald and Hight were quickly separated by coaches and teammates.

"It was just a hotly-contested ballgame, and emotions got away at the end," Van Wagoner said.

Harrison led 34-32 entering the final quarter, but 6-7 guard Mike Brennan hit a three-point shot that put Canton ahead to stay. The Chiefs scored the first seven points of the period and 11 of the first 13 to lead 43-36.

The Hawks missed some early shots and went scoreless for more than four minutes until Gilvydis sank two free throws with 3:49 on the clock.

"THOSE THINGS do happen when you have tall people around you, and most of the game they had three 6-5 players out there," Teachman said, regarding the misses.

"Their height at guard was an obvious factor. Brennan has done a lot for them, because he's 6-7 and guards a guard. They've been playing a 2-3 zone, and he disrupts a lot of shots."

Hight kept the Hawks in the game with a pair of triples, the first cutting Canton's lead to 45-43 with 1½ minutes left and the second making it 51-48 with 12 seconds remaining.

The Chiefs missed the front end of a one-and-one, leaving the door open for Harrison to tie, but Hight failed to sink a third triple with :02 to play. A quick outlet pass led to Coshatt's finishing touch.

"I have a lot of faith in my team, and I thought we were going to start playing good basketball," said Van Wagoner of Canton's fourth-quarter resurgence. "I didn't know if it would be enough to win, but I knew my team would turn it around and play well."

The Chiefs hit eight of 11 shots in the fourth period, Harrison four of 13. After scoring 15 points in the middle quarters, Gilvydis was held to one field goal and four free throws in the final.

"Paul would flash to the high post, and that is where he was getting his shots," Teachman said, adding Harrison adjusted it off to get three men moving in the paint after taking too many outside shots in a 3-of-15 first quarter. "Then they collapsed on him. Brennan or McDonald would be guarding our point and then drop down on him."

Salem cagers rout Spartans

Plymouth Salem's boys basketball team limited Livonia Stevenson to three first-quarter points and rolled to a 69-45 win Friday over the visiting Spartans.

Salem improved to 9-5 overall and 6-5 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Stevenson lost to 8-6 overall and 4-5 in the WLAA.

Salem led 13-3 after one quarter and used an 18-9 second quarter advantage to lead 31-12 at halftime. The second half was about evenly played as Salem coach Bob Brodie substituted freely.

Stevenson is a team that thrives on three-point shooting and transition but the Rocks never let the Spartans get comfortable.

"Stevenson is one of those teams that if it's not hitting its transition and getting transition, they have a tough time," Brodie said. "We mixed it up on defense quite a bit and that might have thrown them off tempo. We were pretty steady the whole game."

Ten Salem players scored, led by junior guard Mike Slone, who tied his career-high with 20 points, including four three-pointers. James Head, Bob Schneider and Don Johnson scored eight points each and senior Mike Abraham grabbed a team-high 14 rebounds.

Head grabbed 10 rebounds and Schneider made two three-pointers. Ryan Furkas led Stevenson with 10 points and Adam Roy contributed nine.

Pilots buzz Shamrocks, 57-42

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Redford Catholic Central's 57-42 basketball loss Friday night to visiting Warren DeLaSalle was painful in more ways than one.

Not only did the host Shamrocks end up sharing the Catholic League's Central Division title with DeLaSalle, but they also lost their top seeding for the eight-team playoffs, which start Sunday at the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall.

Both teams finished 8-2 in the Central, but DeLaSalle earned the Central's No. 1 spot for the playoffs under the league's complicated tiebreaker system.

Under the tiebreaker format, the Pilots needed at 15-point margin of victory and got it when Jeff McGavin nailed a three-pointer with only 11 seconds left in the game. No. 2 seeded CC will play Dearborn Divine Child (11-4) at 2 p.m. Sunday in a quarterfinal game at Calihan Hall.

"It's hard to swallow in your own gym when you get taken to school," said CC coach Bernie Holowicki, whose team fell to 13-3 overall. "We put players in and out. We were looking for a spark, somebody with fire in their eyes, but it never happened."

The Shamrocks' two main sparkplugs, 6-foot-5 Chad Varga and 6-6 Bob Kummer, each averaging over 20 points per game, were handcuffed by DeLaSalle's defense for a combined 20 points.

VARGA, the University of Richmond-bound center, scored 32 in CC's 83-60 victory Jan. 28 at DeLaSalle, but finished with only 11 on 5-of-12 shooting.

He had to share team-high scoring honors with junior forward Brian Paluk, who came off the bench to net 11, generating the only offense CC could muster.

Kummer, meanwhile, was plagued by foul problems from start to finish, recording an uncharacteristic nine points on 3-of-9 from the field.

The senior forward, headed for UNC-Charlotte, had a chance to protect CC's top seeding for the playoffs, but missed two shots in the waning seconds.

"A lot of teams the last three or four games, especially after seeing us play U-D Jesuit (a 64-53 loss), have been clogging the paint with a zone and daring us to beat them with outside shooting," Holowicki said. "Most teams now are going to try and shut down Chad and Bobby because they think the rest of our team is mediocre. And it's not a myth. It was proven tonight."

The Shamrocks shot only 31.2 percent from the field (15-of-48).

Outside of Varga and Kummer, the remaining CC cast connected on just 7-of-26 shots from the floor (26.9 percent).

"We wanted to take Varga and Kummer out of the game and obviously we were successful at doing that," DeLaSalle coach Tim Turner said. "But we know how good they'll be the next time, if we're fortunate to meet them in the playoffs."

THE PILOTS, who raised their overall season record to 11-4, ran their game plan nearly to perfection, controlling the tempo and taking away CC's vaunted inside attack.

"It was absolutely the best game we've played all year," Turner said. "I can't remember a better performance. We did exactly what we set out to do. We were patient offensively, their (CC's) press didn't bother us, we wanted our No. 11 to take the ball to the basket and our No. 12 to shoot the three-pointer when he had the opportunity."

No. 11 was 5-10 junior guard Don DeDonatis, who led all scorers with 18 points. He gave CC fits all night long with his spin moves to the basket, challenging the Shamrocks' big people.

And No. 12, McGavin, a senior guard, chipped in with 15, including four 3-pointers, the biggest coming at the 11-second mark.

"Being co-champs (in the Central) was our No. 1 goal," Turner said. "We didn't want to focus on that (15-point margin), we just wanted to win by one."

Two other DeLaSalle players netted double figures including 6-7 senior center Ron Anikewich, who tallied 11, and 6-4 senior guard Craig Abraham, who added 10.

"Abraham is an excellent point-guard, but we ask him to guard Kummer, break the press and score, too," Turner said. "If he didn't have so many responsibilities, he could really show his true worth, and I think he's a Division I point-guard."

For the Pilots, it was a victory sweeter in more ways than one.

Jeff Silverman used to be a regular at Tiger Stadium and Joe Louis Arena.

"I'm a sports junkie, and I've been all my life," said Silverman, a 34-year-old Farmington Hills resident. "I was one of those 35 to 40 games a year Tiger fans, I went to 25 to 30 Red Wings games a year. . . . I can't do that anymore."

Silverman now spends evenings sitting in bleachers at smaller venues across the metro area and beyond — watching players who dream of someday playing in larger stadiums. Silverman runs Farmington Hills-based scouting service that helps high school athletes have a better chance of earning a college scholarship.

Silverman, a three-sport athlete at Farmington Hills Harrison in the late 70s, never played collegiately, but he's hoping to give high school boys and girls that shot.

FOR $630, Silverman will make sure every college in the country hears about a potential recruit who may not be as well known as other blue-chip athletes. After joining the service, the athlete will tell Silverman which 10 schools he or she is most interested in. Those colleges will receive more in-depth personal profiles.

In addition, another 90 schools that fit the players' needs will be chosen from a computer, and those schools will receive personal profiles. The profiles will be updated periodically (including statistics), Silverman said, and he also will put together a video on the athlete that shows what he or she can do.

Silverman, who quit his job in the sales field two years ago to start the service, provides help for any athlete who shows college potential, including those involved in non-revenue sports. Silverman has 28 athletes in his program, and there's at least another 1,500 out there," he said.

"The blue chip athlete who gets scouted by every school in the country doesn't need this," Silverman said. "It's the 1,000 kids every year who are good enough but are not being recruited that do. Especially in the case of non-revenue sports, where you have schools using a recruiting budget that consists of stamps."

SILVERMAN ESTIMATES there are about 15 students in each high school who are potential clients.

The best way for Silverman to recruit athletes to join the service is to be at high school events, whether it be a track meet, wrestling match or basketball game.

"The best way I generate leads is from a kid who sees me at games," he said. "The other night I was at Groves High School, sitting in the stands with my 'Scouting Report' jacket and hat, clip board in my hands. Kids just swarmed around me. I'm on the phone all day talking to colleges and out every night of the week at a game of some sort, whether it be a track meet, wrestling meet, whatever."

"I love kids and when the opportunity came up, it was almost one of those 'too good to be true' things. I don't guarantee exposure, and if you do get a scholarship, you'll look back on the $650 as the best money you've spent in your lives. The reason it's the best money ever spent is because a college education runs from between $35,000 and $100,000."

Some of the editions of the Observer and Eccentric last week featured a 95-year-old bowler, John Cencer, a resident of Livonia, bowling in two leagues at Woodland Lanes and Merril Bowl.

John still averages 125, still drives his Buick and still makes it to church every day.

It's a nice story, a tribute to human the spirit and certainly a great testimonial to our sport.

In addition to letting the colleges know about one of his athletes on the program, Silverman lets the athlete know as much as he or she can about the college. Athletes can join the program at any time in their high school career, and Silverman promises to promote those players until they graduate from high school or junior college.

"This is not a one-shot deal. It's a full service to help the kids and their family with the entire recruiting business. I think they've got a right to know the answers. By knowing them it will help you make a better decision."

Among the athletes on the program are Birmingham Groves hockey player Matthew Greenberg, 18, Walled Lake Western baseball player Mike Zielinski and Erin Lucas, a West Bloomfield resident who plays three sports at Livonia Ladywood. Lucas, a sophomore, joined the service two months ago.

"I talk to Jeff about once a week, and he makes sure my grade point average is up and stays on top of us," Lucas said. "Without this, I could not get as much exposure, writing colleges on my own. I want to go out of state because I just want to see how I'd do on my own. For me, I feel I can make it better out of state."

"My biggest dream is to watch kids on the program have a great college career," Silverman said. For information on the service, call Silverman at 788-7710.

Future of relationship with Devoted to Dad is up to you

Dear Barbara,

I am a single woman in my early 40s with three teenage children. I have been dating a man, about the same age as me, for several years. He is a wonderful person both to me and my children.

My problem is this — he has never lived away from home. He lives with his elderly, albeit healthy father and tends to his every need from cooking to laundry to companionship. His mother died, several years ago and he seems to have taken over her role where his father is concerned.

He gets no help from his siblings, both of whom are married with families, but he doesn't ask for any either. His father is able to do for himself, but no one encourages any independent behavior from him. It seems he has never been able to adjust to the fact that he is a widower. Instead, it's like my boyfriend is his wife.

There have been times that my children are gone on weekends and I would love to have him stay with me during those times, however, he won't because he says his father wouldn't permit. I find it hard to understand a man of this age needing parental approval for anything.

I care very much for him, but I feel this situation with his father dysfunctional at the very least and even borders on unhealthy. I wonder if he'll ever be able to break away and not feel guilty about it. I've tried many times to discuss my concerns with him, but it only results in an argument. I have been accused of being jealous of his father.

I'm beginning to think I'm crazy. Are my concerns about the future of this relationship valid? Do you see, this situation as abnormal or am I being overly sensitive? I'm confused.

Dear Barbara,

Last week my neighbor died. She was a 30-year-old woman with two young children, ages 2 and 6.

Her husband brought the 6-year-old to the funeral parlor and to the funeral. That seems so morbid to me. Of course, I didn't say anything to him, but I wonder what do you think is 6 too young for a child to attend a funeral?

Kathy

Dear Kathy,

To answer your question, I spoke with David Techner, funeral director at the Ira Kaufman Funeral Home. He is active locally and nationally in educating parents and children on death and funerals. He says the critical aspect of deciding whether a child should attend a funeral is relationship, not age. He has children as young as 3 attending funerals.

I told him that I have always advised parents to ask their child whether they want to attend. He agrees but adds that the child should be properly educated first. He does this by taking the child to the funeral home and walking him through the procedure. He explains where everyone will be sitting and what they will be doing.

He rehearses the child, all the while looking for signs of comprehension and interest. After the tour and explanation, then the child is given a choice. Children are never forced to attend nor are they forbidden to go.

He agrees with you that this is morbid. But the reality is morbid and children, too, must understand reality. A child needs to understand that their parent or other close relative is gone.

Because children are concrete, they need to witness that the body of the loved one is somewhere else and that this is final. Techner says that without the actual witnessing of the event, children are left with questions that are far more confusing and harmful than the morbidity of the reality.

This outlook confirms my experience working with adults who lost parents when they were children. When they were shielded from events and feelings surrounding death, they were less able to go on with their lives. When they were appropriately involved and educated, they felt free to go on.

Beef dish warms cold winter day

It might possibly be the weather. Then again, it is February and spring is still a good seven weeks away. It's nights like these that make a pot of traditional beef bourguignon so heartwarming. You know what I mean.

I COULD blame it on the howling winds or maybe even the fact that the snow has yet to melt in my driveway from last month's blizzard.

IT'S ON a night like tonight that I uncork a bottle of Gallo Hearty Burgundy, get out my heaviest Calphalon saucepan and crank up the electric blanket to a notch above "7."

I SILENTLY give thanks that the tiny pearl onions have waited to sprout after more than a few weeks in the cellar.

I remember how good red wine is now that it's been proven that a glass or two really is good for the body, and tonight, equally as good for the soul.

Unwrapping the package of tenderloin tips from the butcher, I must remember to applaud his trimming and uniform cutting, leaving me with nothing more to do than brush the mushrooms and peel the vegetables.

AS DARKNESS descends while Bill Bonds does his 5 p.m. newscast, I begin to notice faint signs of frost beginning to form on the bottoms of my elderly aluminum windows.

Before long, the frost is transformed into steam while the beef sizzles in a healthier substitute for butter.

CULINARY PURISTS might question my addition of cooked bacon, opting instead to cook the bacon with the garlic after removing the beef from the pan.

Tonight is the night to relish and replenish, certainly not to clean.

Frying bacon is not on my agenda when four minutes between paper towels in the microwave can suffice.

It takes all the strength I can muster just to pare and slice the carrots. Furthermore, back issues of foodie magazines await me under the electric blanket.

Yes, there's a bottle of Stag's Leap Cabernet in the wine rack. But since beef burgundy needs to be kept nary to a simmer, and, since the name is burgundy, we will opt for a 1990 Gallo hearty Red Burgundy.

It was one of those "three for $10" bargains at the corner deli that was impossible to pass up.

THE RECIPE calls for cheap red wine. At just $3.33 a bottle, I can't imagine finding anything cheaper than that.

While some might not agree, in all honesty, the wine drinks as well as it cooks.

An hour or so has passed and the time to prepare a starch has arrived. Class beef burgundy begs to be presented over a bed of buttery wide noodles.

But I have, on many occasions, enjoyed it over rice, fettuccine, barley and once, with polenta.

FROM EXPERIENCE, you can skip the polenta as it made for a feeling one gets having a gold brick sundae after a two pound lobster dinner. Ditto for the barley.

The fettucini was acceptable and the rice was, how do we say it politely? OK.

Classic beef bourguignon begs to be ladled over wide real egg noodles so that the noodles can stand up to piece of meat and vegetables on nothing less than a full-sized dinner fork.

A salad would have been refreshing but as I snuggled under the blanket with a steaming plate, a full glass, and the TV remote primed for Murphy Brown, I felt a hearty warmth overtake my senses.

Beef burgundy is to winter what ice cream is to summer.

See recipe inside.

Finns like food that is tasty and eye appealing. Coffee, a plate of freshly baked Nisu and raspberry jam, await guests at Grace Nayback's home. A Finnish embroidered tablecloth, glowing round candles in tiered Finnish crystal candlesticks decorate the table.

FRESHLY BREWED coffee, and slices of Pulla or Nisu — a cardamom-flavored, sweet braided yeast bread — await visitors at Grace Nayback's West Bloomfield home. Nisu is the old-fashioned Finnish word for wheat.

ON A recent visit, her dining room table was covered with a Finnish embroidered tablecloth. Two round candles in tiered Finnish crystal holders glowed, matching coffee cups and plates completed the picture.

"Finns like to make a pretty table," said Nayback, whose husband Ruben is the Finnish Consulate for southeastern Michigan. "The food has to be tasty, as well as eye-appealing."

EMMA AND Arno Alholina of Livonia agree. Arno grew up in Finland, and has taken his wife, Emma, home to visit.

"Every where we went in Finland the coffee table was set beautifully," said Emma, who added it's almost a national law in Finland that you do not leave a home without being offered a cup of coffee. It is served with lump sugar and real whipped cream.

Nayback makes delicious Nisu. It's a big seller at the Finnish Center

Northern spirits

Aquavit, vodka, Scandinavian favorites

By Eleanor and Ray Heald
special writers

Nearly all regional beverages developed due to an abundance of a given raw material or because the beverage paired so well with the region's food.

Scandinavian aquavit and vodkas are no exception. Vodka and aquavit are primarily associated with northern European countries. They are well suited to the region's hearty fare.

AQUAVIT TRANSLATED "water of life," is the national beverage of the Scandinavian countries and has been considered a cure for various ailments since the 16th century.

Production methods for aquavit are similar in Denmark (where it is called Akvavit), Norway and Sweden, although there are some variations in the proportion of the principal flavoring, caraway seed.

Danes have been producing a nearly neutral, colorless spirit from both grain and potatoes for about 400 years. Today's Akvavit from Aalborg is typical of the Scandinavian favorite drink.

Each potato used in its production has sufficient starch for a single shot. Aalborg makes more than 10 types of potato spirits, using the flavored caraway as well as dill, coriander, bog myrtle, fennel, angelica and cinnamon.

At their inception, Scandinavian vodkas were distilled in primitive alembics from any available carbohydrates, grains as well as potatoes. They probably had little appeal by today's refined standards.

ALL SPIRITS are perfectly colorless when they run off the still. In whisky, color comes later, by extraction from wooden casks during aging or by addition of caramel.

It may be assumed that northern Europeans did not practice aging and thereby mellowing their spirits in wooden barrels because the rigors of the climate made it impractical.

Eventually, improved production methods and strict quality controls allowed even northern Europeans to produce colorless spirits like vodka that have a singular character.

Production methods for vodka differ from one country to another and from one producer to another. Basically, as in the case with whiskey, the grain is made into a mash, fermented and put through a continuous still.

The distillate is collected at about 190 degrees F. and is almost entirely free of the congeners that impart distinctive flavor characteristics to whiskey.

INGESTION OF these congeners, or flavor elements, also happen to be the root cause of the headache experienced by many people, even those consuming at moderate levels. Died in the wool vodka drinkers claim they never experience headaches. This is not a myth. The headache claim has its basis in scientific fact.

Absolut vodka from Sweden is our personal favorite. It has distinctive, yet delicate aromas with substantial body and elegant, sophisticated finish. Finlandia from Finland has slightly more body and flavor than American vodkas.

It's clean and dry, but in our opinion, lacks a taste distinction. Denaka from Denmark is similar.

Finlandia vodka (left) and Aquavit from Denmark are popular Scandinavian spirits. Both are well suited to the region's hearty fare.

Finnish hospitality chases chills away

"It keeps forever," said Nayback who stores hers on a kitchen counter in a decorative tin.
The Finns, originally drawn to Michigan by the mining communities up north, are known for their thrift, warmth, hospitality and simple, hearty fare.
Nayback describes Finnish food as "pretty simple, not spicy, that has a tendency to be bland."
While spice is not a hallmark, there are two that no Finnish cook could do without — allspice and cardamom.

ALLSPICE, which Emma describes as having a nutmeg flavor, is commonly used in Finnish stews, meatballs and cabbage rolls.
Freshly ground cardamom seeds, which grow in small pods like peas, gives Nisu its unique flavor. Nayback grinds hers in an old coffee grinder.
Emma puts hers in the corner of a dish towel, lays it on a cutting board and whacks it with a hammer. "You get coarse chunks, it gives the bread a good flavor," she said.
Other foods that are typically Finnish include buttered potatoes, sprinkled with parsley, beets, pea soup, a fish casserole made with chunks of salmon, onions, potatoes and milk, and open face sandwiches.

"The sandwiches are like little works of art," said Emma. "A typical sandwich consists of a slice of sour rye bread, topped with a slice of hard salami or ham, cheese and decorated with circles of hard boiled egg, cucumbers, radishes, or tomato, and sprigs of dill."
FINNS ALSO love berries, said Nayback, all kinds — brambleberries, cloudberry, cranberries, blueberries, lingonberries, strawberries and raspberries. After dinner, some Finns like to have a glass of Lapponia, a sweet liquor made with berries.

"During berry season you'll see big bins of them in Finland," she said. "Everything has berries in it, even salads."
This year the Finns are celebrating their 75th anniversary of independence.
As part of the celebration, the Hokiak Folk dancers, who rehearse 7:30-9:30 p.m. every Wednesday at the Finnish Center, will visit Finland July 17 to Aug. 2 to perform.
"Our members come from all over the metro Detroit area, including Birmingham, Farmington and Southfield," said group member Matt Tilley of Waterford. "We're always looking for new members. You don't have to be Finnish to join, but you must have an interest in dancing." For information on joining the group, call 478-6939.

TO RAISE money to pay expenses for their trip to Finland, the dancers are having a party sale every month through June. The small crusty pies filled with beef and vegetables cost $2.25 each.
On March 3, excerpts of the Kalevala, the national epic of Finland will be recited at the Finnish Center. The poems, composed orally over centuries, were first published in 1835 by Elias Lönnrot, a Finnish country doctor and literary scholar.

Throughout history, the Kalevala has served as a guide to values, traditions, beliefs and customs of the Finnish people.
This excerpt from the Kalevala, says a lot about Finnish hospitality. "Ask the guest to sit, and rest him. With the guest converse in friendship. With thy talk amuse the stranger till dinner shall be ready."

Cardamom pods to make Nisu is available at Middle Eastern and Indian stores. One local source is Patel Brothers, 2884 Ford Road, Garden City, 427-4445.

CARDAMOM COFFEE BREAD
(Makes 3 loaves)
7 whole cardamom pods
2 cups milk
1 package active dry yeast
4 eggs
¼ cup sugar
2 sticks butter or margarine, softened
2 teaspoons salt
6½ cups 7 cups all-purpose flour

Crack open cardamom pods and heat in a small pan for several minutes. Grind or pound seeds, set aside. Heat milk to lukewarm. Add yeast and stir until dissolved.
In a large mixer bowl, beat eggs and sugar until foamy. Add milk, cardamom and 2 cups flour. Beat at medium speed for 2 minutes until smooth and elastic. Stir in softened butter, salt and enough flour to make dough stiff enough to knead.

Knead on floured surface until smooth and satiny, about 5 to 10 minutes. Place in a greased bowl, turning to grease top.
Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size. On floured surface divide dough into three parts. Form each part into a strip 18 inches long. Braid three together, sealing ends.
Repeat for remaining two loaves. Place on greased cookie sheets. Cover loosely and let rise about 30 minutes until less than doubled in size. Brush loaves with egg; sprinkle with almonds and sugar. Bake at 375 F. for 20 to 25 minutes.

FINNISH MEATBALLS
Serve with lingonberries or cranberry sauce. Makes 6 servings
¾ cup soft bread crumbs

1 cup light cream or milk
1½ pounds ground lean beef
1 onion, minced
1 egg, slightly beaten
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
2 tablespoons butter for frying
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk

Soak crumbs in ¼ cup of the cream. Blend in the beef, onion, egg, salt and allspice. Shape into balls about 1 inch in diameter. Melt butter in skillet and brown the meatballs a few at a time.
Shake pan to roll meatballs around so they brown evenly. After all the meat is browned, remove from pan; add flour to drippings, stir and brown over medium heat.
Slowly add the second half cup of cream and the milk, stirring to keep mixture smooth. Add water if necessary to thin out the gravy. Strain if necessary. Return meatballs to pan, cover and simmer 25 minutes over low heat.

PEA SOUP
(Makes 3 quarts soup, 10 to 12 servings)
2 cups whole dried yellow peas
2 quarts water
6 whole allspice
2 cups cubed ham, or 1 ham bone with meat on it
1 cup diced carrots
¼ cup diced onion
2 cups diced potatoes
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

Rinse whole peas and cover with water. Soak overnight. Next day, drain peas. Simmer peas, allspice and hambone in 2 quarts water or until pea skins pop.
Remove bone, scraping meat into soup. Add carrots, onion, potatoes, salt and pepper and simmer over low heat for 1 hour.
If using cubed ham, add meat during second hour.

Low fat chicken cooks fast

AP — Sometimes I wonder how we ever survived before the days of ready-to-use skinless, boneless chicken breasts. They need no preparation. They cook fast. Even better, just 12 percent of the calories in chicken breast comes from fat. To keep the fat low in this 15-minute recipe, cook the chicken in a skillet sprayed with non-stick coating and top each serving with a fat-free sherry-apple glaze.

GLAZED CHICKEN AND GRAPES
4 skinless, boneless large chicken breast halves (about 1 pound total)
Non-stick spray coating
¼ cup seedless red grapes
3 parsley sprigs
¼ cup apple jelly
2 tablespoons dry sherry
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt

Rinse chicken; pat dry with paper towels. Spray a cold large skillet with non-stick coating. Heat the skillet over medium-high heat. Add chicken to skillet. Cook for 8 to 10 minutes or until no longer pink, turning once during cooking. Meanwhile, cut the grapes in half lengthwise and snip the parsley, set aside. Transfer the chicken to four serving plates; cover to keep warm.

For glaze, add apple jelly, sherry, lemon juice and salt to the skillet. Cook and stir until jelly is melted. Stir in grapes and parsley; heat through. Spoon glaze over chicken. Makes 4 servings.

Tasty bananas are a good source of potassium

Happy President's Day to everyone who has today off and is home relaxing.

YOU'VE HEARD the saying "an apple a day keeps the doctor away." Add bananas to the list. They're nutritious, and provide complex carbohydrates, fiber, vitamins and minerals, especially potassium, said Mary Helen Gunkler, registered dietitian and staff nutritionist for Total cereal.

Recent studies show a diet high in potassium and low in sodium may help to control high blood pressure. Other potassium-rich foods include tomatoes, oranges, grapefruit and all citrus juices. IF YOU'RE wondering who to blame for raising prices of fresh tomatoes and other salad vegetables, it's the weather. According to the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, cloudy skies and rain over Texas, Mexico and southern California are to blame. Look for prices of carrots and onions to increase next month as the usual Texas supplies are absent.

But, on the plus side, broccoli and cauliflower are now available at reduced prices. Meat prices, especially poultry and pork are lower too, reports Ada Shmabarger, MSU food marketing specialist. Here are some food storage tips from Sylvia Treitman, home economist for Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service. Vacuum-packed deli-meats have to be kept in the refrigerator.

Bologna keeps three to five days, turkey, or roast beef, two to four days, hard salami and dry sausage, four to six weeks. Use all pre-heated cooked foods from the gourmet or deli sections quickly.

Bulletin E2297 is available for $1.25 to cover postage and handling. The pamphlet outlines safe storage times and storage tips for the newer foods found in the market today. Call 856-0904, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, or write the Cooperative Extension Service, Food and Nutrition hot-line, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac, MI 48341 to request this publication.

WINE SELECTION of the week from Ray and Eleanor Heald — 1990 Beringer Vineyards Proprietor Grown Chardonnay. Feb. 19 Australian wines from "Kooka Wines" Feb. 26, delicious red wine buds from Portugal and Spain. Reservations are not necessary for any of these tastings.

Betty Crocker Tip of the Week: Store leftover chicken or turkey in large pieces so they won't dry out in either the refrigerator or freezer. Cover with chicken broth. Cut them into bite-size pieces just before adding to a recipe.

Garlic puree boosts the flavor of many foods

AP — Creative cooks agree that garlic boosts the flavor in many non-fatty foods. If you'd like to use fresh garlic more often, but find the chopping too much of a hassle, make your own garlic puree and keep it on hand. Steaming and crushing garlic once to make the puree provides a convenient supply for as long as two weeks.

Use garlic puree to make the Garlic Butter, Garlic Croutons and Creamy Garlic Salad Dressing below. Or substitute the puree in almost any recipe calling for garlic. Use 1/2 to 1 teaspoon of the Garlic Puree to replace one clove of garlic.

1 tablespoon olive or cooking oil
1 teaspoon vinegar

Put garlic bulbs in a steamer basket, place over boiling water in a saucepan. Cover and steam for 30 minutes. Remove bulbs from steamer, let cool. When cool enough to handle, separate and peel the garlic cloves. In a blender container or a food processor bowl, blend or process the cloves until pureed. In a screw-top jar combine crushed garlic, oil and vinegar, cover and shake well to mix. Store, covered, in the refrigerator for up to two weeks. Makes 1/2 cup.

Garlic Butter: In a small mixing bowl stir together 1/4 cup softened butter or margarine and 1 teaspoon Garlic Puree. Use as a topping for hot cooked vegetables such as potatoes, beans and zucchini. Makes 1/4 cup butter. Store in the refrigerator for up to 2 weeks.

Garlic Croutons: Gradually stir 3 tablespoons cooking oil and 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon Garlic Puree into 1/4 cup softened butter or margarine. Spread mixture onto both sides of eight 1/2-inch-thick slices of French bread. Cut bread into 1/2-inch cubes. Spread cubes in a 15- by 10- by 1-inch baking pan. Bake in a 300-degree F oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until crisp. Store in a lightly covered container in the refrigerator for up to 1 week. Makes 1 1/2 cups croutons.

Creamy Garlic Salad Dressing: Stir together 1/4 cup dairy sour cream, 1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese, 1 teaspoon Garlic Puree and 1/4 teaspoon paprika. Cover and chill for up to 1 week. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

Good-for-you muffins healthy way to start day

AP — Here's a muffin recipe that lives up to its good-for-you name. The fiber-rich fruits and whole grains hiding inside are morning meals, but even more appealing is how low in fat they are. Two more fat-minimizing tips: use egg whites in place of whole eggs and low-fat cooking spray in place of shortening to grease the pans.

1/4 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup milk
1/4 cup cooking oil
2 slightly beaten egg whites

In a large mixing bowl stir together oats, whole-wheat flour, all-purpose flour, brown sugar, oat bran, baking powder, cinnamon, baking soda and salt; mix well. Add currants or raisins, banana chips, dates and nuts. Stir to coat with flour mixture.

In a 2-cup measure combine milk, oil and egg whites. Add milk mixture to flour mixture. Stir just until moistened (the batter should be lumpy). Spray 12 muffin cups with non-stick cooking spray or line with paper bake cups. Spoon batter into cups, filling cups full. Bake in a 400-degree F oven for 18 to 20 minutes or until light brown. Cool slightly on a wire rack. Serve warm. Makes 12 muffins.

GOOD-FOR-YOU MUFFINS
1 1/2 cups rolled oats
1/4 cup whole-wheat flour
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
3 tablespoons oat bran
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup currants or raisins
1/4 cup broken dried banana chips

Stir-fry quick, healthy dinner

Stir-fry suppers, those colorful quick-cooking combos of vegetables and meat, poultry or seafood, point the way to light and healthy eating.

WHEN SERVED atop mounds of fluffy rice, they're right on target with nutrition experts' recommendations that we boost carbohydrate consumption to at least 55 percent of daily calories and limit fat to no more than 30 percent.

An excellent source of energy-giving complex carbohydrates, rice contains virtually no fat or sodium and provides only about 100 calories per satisfying half-cup serving.

WHEN RICE is a bigger part of the daily diet, light and healthy eating is easy enjoyable and, importantly, satisfying.

See for yourself how delicious healthy eating can be with two new savory stir-fry recipes to serve over rice from Uncle Ben's Converted Brand Rice.

STEAK AND SNOW PEAS Stir-Fry boasts a bright mix of Oriental vegetables and the vivid flavors favored at Chinese restaurants.

Rosemary Chicken Stir-Fry stars all-American flavors and vegetables, and it's ready to serve in only about 15 minutes.

STEAK & SNOW PEAS STIR-FRY
3/4 pound lean, well-trimmed boneless beef top round steak
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup rice
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1/4 cup water
1 can (8 ounces) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
1 package (6 ounces) frozen pea pods, thawed
2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onions with tops
2 tablespoons diced red bell pepper

Light and simply delicious Steak and Snow Peas stir-fry served over scallion and bell pepper flecked rice is as satisfying as supper can be, yet provides only 255 calories per serving.

Heat oil in large non-stick skillet until hot but not smoking. Add meat, cook and stir until lightly browned, 3 to 4 minutes.

Combine remaining 1 tablespoon cornstarch and the water with meat marinade, mix well. Add to skillet with water chestnuts and pea pods. Cook and stir until sauce is thickened and clear.

Stir green onions and bell pepper into rice. Serve meat mixture over rice. Makes 4 servings.

Add carrots, celery and rosemary; stir-fry until vegetables are crisp-tender. Push vegetables to one side and add chicken; stir-fry 3 minutes or until no longer pink. Add mushrooms and green onions; stir-fry 3 minutes.

Grammys track evolution of musical culture

Awards keep up with times (almost)

By Dan Rice

In a culture that seems to be award-happy, the ever-growing variety of statuettes, plaques, trophies and obelisks almost cheapen the tribute, to everyone but the honoree, of course. Fortunately, there are awards recognized by everyone as the pinnacle of accolades: Pulitzers for journalism, Oscars for motion picture achievements. For the music industry, nothing beats a Grammy. "The 34th Annual Grammy Awards" will be presented on CBS Tuesday, Feb. 25, live from Radio City Music Hall, with Whoopi Goldberg acting as host.

Besides bestowing acclaim upon artists, composers and engineers, the Grammy awards serve as a mirror for popular musical culture. Looking back at the awards' history of categorization, one can determine the relative importance and acceptance of disparate genres, as well as the musical climate of the time. While we may wax nostalgic to recall that the Best New Artist of 1964 was the Beatles, it is hard to believe that 1962's Best Rock 'n' Roll Recording was "Alley Cat" by Bent Fabric.

The evolution of Grammys categorization since those first ceremonies for the year 1958 has largely been the distillation of catch-all divisions into its specifics. With the exceptions of the years 1961 to 1964, Rock 'n' Roll was lumped into the Contemporary/Pop divisions until 1979, when it was granted four categories of its own. (Hard Rock/Metal was defined in 1988.) Folk yielded Polka in 1985 and Bluegrass in 1988. Other divisions, such as Rhythm & Blues in 1968, were expanded along with their audiences.

Some categories have been created to embrace new or newly popular genres (Jazz Fusion, 1970; Reggae, 1984; New Age, 1986; Rap, 1988), but only one flash-in-the-pan category was ever deleted because the musical form lost its relevance: 1979's Best Disco Recording. (Its ironic title was "I Will Survive" by Gloria Gaynor.)

Michael Greene, president and CEO of the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences, explains that category revisions are done by committee vote.

A prime example of change is in one of this year's new categories.

"World Music was a problem in the terms that those artists were being thrown into either Latin or Pop, and they really didn't have any chance of competing in those areas because they just weren't appropriate," Greene said. "As the record companies got more involved in World Music internationally, then it was the appropriate time to add the category."

Coming full circle, the once omnibus division of Pop will reach maturity this year with the addition of the Traditional Pop category, which will accommodate the likes of Harry Connick Jr. And the Grammys still are playing catch-up, consider the long-overdue Lifetime Achievement awards granted this year to the late guitar virtuoso Jimi Hendrix and bluesmaster Muddy Waters, and the belated entrance to the Hall of Fame of Patsy Cline's "Crazy" (1961) and Ravel's "Bolero" (1937). In an industry in which the product is timeless, sometimes recognition comes a little late.

Host Whoopi Goldberg holds the most prestigious award in the music industry: the Grammy. On Tuesday, Feb. 25, "The 34th Annual Grammy Awards" presentation will be broadcast live on CBS from Radio City Music Hall.

Dame on NBC Saturday, Feb. 22, the Bruins will be led by a 6'10" senior who hopes to return his team to its former glory. In three seasons, forward Don MacLean has emerged as the Bruins' most prolific scorer since Alcindor, and last year he became the fourth UCLA player ever to score more than 700 points in a season. At his present pace, MacLean will hold both the school and PAC-10 career scoring records by NCAA Tournament time in March.

But the Bruins, who became the PAC-10 frontrunners when they upset preseason favorite Arizona, are far from a one-dimensional team. With players Tracy Murray and Derrick Martin in supporting roles, they may be the ones to put a stop to the current nonsense about a Duke Blue Devils dynasty when the final four meet in Minneapolis.

TIME OUT

UCLA Bruins seek new glory

By Steve Paschal

It all started in 1964, the year a future NBA Hall of Famer named Walt Hazzard led UCLA to its first NCAA basketball championship. The Bruins continued to dominate the game for the next 12 years, winning 10 national titles under coach John Wooden.

Players Lew Alcindor (Kareem Abdul-Jabbar) and Bill Walton led their team to numerous victories during those years, but since then, the Bruins have never again reached the heights attained by their illustrious alumni.

LET'S TALK

'T-2' stars top of talk

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Some information please on three of my favorite showbiz people: Linda Hamilton, Arnold Schwarzenegger and Paul Reubens. Are they married? And an address to write them at? Also, how come none of the Q & A columns will answer my questions on Reubens? Is his name taboo now because of the so-called scandal he was involved in recently?

—Lynda, Anaheim, Calif.
A: Schwarzenegger is married to Maria Shriver. You can write to him care of ICM, 8899 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90048. Hamilton is divorced and can be written to care of Triad Artists, 10100 Santa Monica Blvd., 16th Floor, Los Angeles, Calif., 90067. I don't think Paul Reubens' name is taboo exactly, but following the incident in Florida, he has maintained a low profile. I tried to get some information on him, and was given a contact number in Los Angeles, but when I called, there was no answer. I do know he is not married. Sorry, wish I could be of more help.

Q: I am a fan of Karen Black. I would like to write to her. Please give me her address and some information on her.

—Judy Perez, Anaheim, Calif.
A: She was born July 1, 1942, in Park Ridge, Ill. She dropped out of high school to get married, but was soon divorced. Following the dream she had since she was 7 years old, Black (who was born Karen Blanche Ziegler), headed to New York, where she studied with Lee Strasberg and supported herself with various odd jobs. In 1965, she landed a role in the Broadway production The Playroom. In 1966, she started her Hollywood career, and in 1969, she appeared in Easy Rider. It was her performance in 1970's Five Easy Pieces opposite Jack Nicholson, however, that really sparked her career. She has been divorced three times and was married in 1987 to her fourth husband. The couple lives in California with their daughter and Black also has a son from a previous marriage. You can write her care of Epstein Wycoff, 280 South Beverly Drive, Suite 400, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Q: I would like you to help settle a bet my husband and I have. I say Tom Selleck and Sam Elliott are brothers. My husband says no. Could you settle this for us? —A Wisconsin Fan, Ashland, Wis.

A: They are not related. Perhaps your confusion arises from Selleck and Elliott's portrayal of the Sackett brothers in the films The Sacketts and The Shadow Riders, both based on characters created by Louis L'Amour.

Q: Could you give me some background on Chuck Norris? I met him in Las Vegas just walking down the street. I am a fan and hope to one day own all his movies. Do you have an address also? —Betty Stump, Camp Verde, Ariz.

A: The actor was born Carlos Ray Norris in Ryan, Okla., in 1940. In the early 1960s, he joined the Air Force and was sent to Korea, where he learned martial arts. After earning his black belt in karate and obtaining his discharge, Norris pursued karate professionally. In 1968, he became the World Middleweight Champion. He held the title until he retired from competition in 1974. He then opened a karate school in Los Angeles, which attracted many celebrity students. Steve McQueen helped him get his start in an acting career; Return of the Dragon with Bruce Lee marked his film debut. From there, his career kept rising. He is married and has two children. You can write him care of ICM, 8899 Beverly Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif., 90048.
