Yack hits campaign trail with fund-raiser

By Brian Lysaght
staff writer

Seeking a second term as Canton Township Supervisor, Tom Yack fired a four-page opening salvo this month.

He's planning another blast Thursday — his annual fund-raising breakfast called Canton 2000.

The first blast was the newsletter he mailed to 6,000 Canton residents, mostly Republicans and likely voters, at a cost of about $2,000.

The newsletter features a picture of Yack along with articles about progress in Canton during the last four years. Homeowners and local newspapers are quoted, extolling the virtues of Yack and his leadership of Canton.

It isn't objective, but it isn't supposed to be.

"I am asking for your support for another four years as Canton supervisor," says Yack in the newsletter, which was mailed several weeks ago.

It's the third newsletter Yack has mailed in four years.

"The idea was just to let people know that I'm going to run and I'm serious about it," he says.

FOR $125 YOU CAN buy a seat at the candidate's annual breakfast fund-raiser Thursday. More than 50 people have bought tickets, and another 50 probably will. The menu?

> 'The idea was just to let people know that I'm going to run and I'm serious about it.'
> — Tom Yack, Supervisor

"Steak and eggs, same as every year," says Yack.

That may be an expensive way to start the day, but if you want cheap go to Johnson's. A portion of the ticket price, $25, will be donated to the Canton Veterans Memorial Fund, which is raising money to build a memorial.

Yack discusses his re-election efforts with nonchalance, but he is no doubt sending a message to would-be challengers. No one has filed to run against him. Challengers have until May 12 to do so.

MORE ATTENTION seems focused on the races for treasurer and trustee, which undoubtedly suits Yack fine.

The latest newsletter carries references to community spirit, improved recreation areas and efforts to limit new strip centers and other commerical projects.

There is also emphasis on civility in Canton government. For example:

"The consensus of the community seems to be that Canton Township Hall has become a place where professionally run government, not the circus of the days past, is conducted. We have worked very hard to see that this will remain true."

The reference is to previous administrations, whose antics during meetings sometimes included long-winded speeches and jumping on a table or two.

Officials size up tornado damage; homes destroyed

By Brian Lysaght

Plymouth Township officials were expected to release a tornado damage estimate today as all but a handful of Plymouth Hills Mobile Court residents returned to their homes this weekend.

About 15 trailer park families were staying at local hotels, left homeless by a tornado that struck hard, fast and without warning Thursday afternoon.

"The thing we can be most thankful for is that there were no fatalities and no more serious injuries," said Joe Ruggirello, Plymouth Hills' owner.

Moments after the tornado cut its destructive swath through the mobile home park, Rob Minehart found two-year-old Jamie Wilson pinned under a washing machine near the door of his family's trailer.

Minehart lifted the washer, freed Jamie and handed him outside to a neighbor. The boy's father, Jerry Wilson, was thrown out a window and cut by flying glass.

MINEHART WAS ONE of many heroes who followed the funnel cloud. The final count included three injuries, six mobile homes destroyed and about 100 others damaged.

Grant Drive was hardest hit.

"My roof started to lift up and it was like the walls were breathing," said Bill Schultz, a Grant resident. He ran across the street and helped bandage Wilson's leg after his trailer was toppled. Wilson was kept overnight at St. Mary Hospital.

Bill Rupp got a call at work about the tornado from his son's babysitter. He found his trailer ruined.

Kids 'hit the ditch' as twister hits

By M.B. Dillon

A bus driver dropped off about 30 Farrand Elementary School students within minutes of a tornado touching down at Plymouth Hills Mobile Court about 4 p.m. Thursday.

Billy Fysh, 6, and his sister Courtney Fysh, 10, got off the bus when "someone yelled, 'Hit the ditch,'" said their dad, Bill Fysh.

"They started screaming and running for the ditch. When they got home they were soaked. I mean you could wring them out."

A neighbor, a high school student, was waiting at the bus stop for her sister "when the wind lifted her and threw her right into a car," said Fysh, who lives on Pine a few streets away from the heaviest damage. She wasn't seriously hurt.

"ALL THIS STUFF was flying around," he said.

"One lady offered to pick the kids up in her car, but they made a bee line for home."

Ed Burney, official-in-charge at Metro Airport for the National Weather Service, said the children did the right thing by getting off the bus and refusing a ride in a car.

"If children were on that bus and it took a direct hit, the tornado would demolish that bus and anything that's in it," said Burney. "They'd have a slim chance of surviving.

BURNEY OFFERED this advice. "If you are in a bus or a car and you

Tornado hit golf course first

Doug Mily of Fox Hills Country Club in Salem Township was working in the cart maintenance barn Thursday afternoon when he spotted a funnel cloud "just like what you see down in Texas on TV.

"It looked just like a tornado. It was a blackish-grey funnel cloud coming out of the southwest part of the golf course. You could see paper and debris swirling around inside it about 200-300 feet up. It sounded like a turbine was running," said Mily, who estimated the funnel cloud's width to be a couple hundred feet.

"I went out the door, and the tornado was going right

Hearing on golf course scheduled

Canton Township officials will seek public input next month about a plan to sell some $5 million worth of revenue bonds to pay for construction of Pheasant Run Golf Course.

The board is expected to schedule a public hearing May 5 to consider the proposed bond sale, which it tenatively approved last week.

According to the township plan, the 20-year general obligation bonds would be sold after construction bids are taken on the work. Estimates set construction costs at $5.45 million.

Pheasant Run is the planned centerpiece of an upscale, 600-acre residential and golf development in the Canton Center-Cherry Hill area. The township and three private developers are planning the project.

Supervisor Tom Yack said township officials were not expecting a groundswell of opposition to the plan.

"I don't recall hearing a single negative comment," Yack said.

CANTON'S FINANCIAL director John Spencer said the bond sale would be the township's biggest in recent years.

According to a consultant's study, Pheasant Run would be a profitable enterprise. It would generate a net cash flow of $300,000-$500,000. It would pay off bond debt obligations, pay course operating expenses and equipment purchases. The course would be profitable in its third year, according to the study.

The bond debt would average $525,000 per year. The bonds would pay 6-7 percent interest.

The bonds would pay for construction of the course, clubhouse, maintenance and parking facilities, and land acquisition and planning costs.

The township board must also decide whether or not to have the township manage the new course or hand the task over to a private firm on a lease basis. Fellow's Creek, the 27-hole township-owned golf course is managed by an outside firm under a lease agreement.

Aaron Machnik, municipal services director, suggested that profit will be a major factor in deciding who operates the course.

"We want to be sure we are going to maximize our return," said Aaron Machnik, municipal services director.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS said it's not clear when the bonds will be sold. First, the golf course plans must be approved by the state Department of Natural Resources. Then, bids must be gathered, and finally, after construction costs are tabulated, the bonds could be sold.

Pheasant Run would be a more challenging course than Fellows Creek. There would be four tee placements, including a championship tee. The new course would be longer, and it would be designed by the well-regarded Arthur Hills firm in Toledo.

Luckily, no one was home when the twister struck.

"I've got a sense of humor," he said, shaking his head. "I can laugh about it now. I won't be laughing about it later." On Friday afternoon, he was picking through his toppled trailer.

Bob McPherson's arm was cut by flying glass when a window in his trailer blew out.

"It just happened all of a sudden," said his wife, Gail McPherson.

Jim Maahs said he was cooking dinner about 3 p.m. watching the dark clouds come in from Ann Arbor. He heard a loud crash and looked outside to see "stuff flying everywhere.

"You almost felt like it was in the Wizard of Oz or something," said Maahs.

Newspapers and other debris was strewn throughout the park. The porch from one unit was flung several hundred feet into a pond.

When the funnel cloud touched down, the area was under a severe thunderstorm watch, meaning no tornado had been spotted. For Plymouth Hills residents, there was no warning and nowhere to hide.

"ALL OF A SUDDEN it developed and it hit. We got no warning," said Police Chief Carl Berry.

Somehow, Mark Caruso's Grant Drive mobile home escaped major damage. Neighbors' on both sides were destroyed. Caruso's tool shed, which sat beside his trailer, was picked up and tossed into scrub brush 50 feet away. He was not home at the time.

"It's a good thing this didn't happen at midnight when everybody was in bed," he said.

On Friday, insurance adjusters were inspecting the damage. Utility company crews were restoring power where possible. Berry said that Thursday afternoon crews capped three gas leaks and an electrical short caused by the tornado.

Ruggirello picked up the tab for families forced to stay at the Red Roof Inn.

"We had about 15 adults and children. They started coming in between 10 p.m. and midnight," said inn manager Patty Rivard. "Some of them were pretty distressed. One man came in who told us he was picking his granddaughter up from the school bus stop near the park when the wind lifted the whole bus up.

"He was terrified. He could see it lift up off the ground. He was quite upset. Our desk clerk sat him down and gave him a cup of coffee. We had coffee brewing all night. Another guy said the floor of his trailer split in half, lifted up and fell back down," she said, adding that employees are making up care packages for the residents.

"We'll probably have some of them back tonight," she said Friday.

SOME RESIDENTS were upset that while the tornado touched down about 4 p.m., no siren sounded until 4:30 p.m.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Mark Caruso stands where a storage shed once stood. He found its remains in the woods behind the trailer park.

Ed Burney of the National Weather Service said that during tornado season, April through September, residents shouldn't depend on sirens for tornado warnings.

They can't be predicted, he said. It's also not possible to pinpoint where they will touch down.

"Yesterday, our radar didn't show anything that indicated a tornado," he said. "For one thing, it was too close into us and it just didn't show anything. We do not try to predict when a tornado is going to touch down.

"We pick a general area, usually about 140 miles wide by 210 miles long, and we'll tell you that anywhere in that area, tornadoes or sever thunderstorms may form." The weather service issued a severe thunderstorm watch at 1:57 p.m. which was never upgraded.

Burney said people should "use a little human instinct in trying to protect themselves. Residents should not sit and wait for a siren," he said. "If it doesn't work, you won't hear it anyway.

"If you know a watch is in effect, if you see weather conditions deteriorating, the sky getting dark and clouds rolling, that is when you should take the necessary precautions and head for shelter.

"Normally when the siren sounds it means a tornado is already on the ground."

The Red Cross served more than 100 families Thursday and Friday at a command center set up at the trailer park.

The twister knocked three under-construction trailers off their cinder blocks in a new section of the park. At least two buildings along North Territorial in Salem Township, including a metal barn, were collapsed by the winds.

Canton Police reported no serious damage in the storm, and Michigan State Police said they had no reports that the tornado touched down anywhere besides Plymouth Township.

Witnesses describe storm's fury

Douglas Moody was in his tan Corvette, heading toward his driveway when he saw a huge whirling cloud coming directly at him.

"You could see it swirling around," Moody said. "It looked to be about 50 feet wide; it was just a big mess of skirting (from mobile homes) and shingles. It was definitely a tornado. I turned right around and took off the other way. I didn't want to get my car wrecked up."

Moody could smell gas leaking from ruptured lines. "The police asked me to help stop cars from coming in. It was exciting. At least no one got hurt really bad."

The Red Cross served more than 100 families Thursday and Friday at a command center set up at the trailer park.

John Skachenko — who lives a few trailers away from the Grant Avenue mobile homes that were flipped over — bandaged the arm of an injured resident.

"I WAS ON MY PORCH, when all of a sudden the wind came up violently," he said. "Recycling bins that were full were flying all over the place. Everything was flying in every direction.

"Water lines were busted and gas lines were busted. I'd say it was two minutes max. It was here and it was gone."

When he realized a neighbor's home had been hit, Skachenko quickly went down the street. "I bandaged one guy's arm that was kind of gouged," he said.

"The experience was terrifying. I couldn't believe what was happening, really. Don't ever be in one of these."

Plymouth Hills resident Richard Sienkiewicz described the sound as "a big pop."

"I was sitting there when a big gust of wind came up. I heard a big pop like a gunshot. It was like a wall just popped.

"I ran around the house to see if I had all my walls up. There was a plastic glass sitting on the sink and that landed on the floor. I could smell gas too."

Jane Thomas, who lives 100 feet from one of the demolished trailers, said she saw a column of gray approaching eastward from a green sky.

"All I heard was a real big bang, like thunder," she said, holding her trembling miniature chihuahua.

"My dogs were going nuts. Skirting and papers were flying all over. It was blowing real hard." No sirens sounded until 4:30 p.m., the Jackson Drive resident added. Her mobile home received minor damage.

Thomas said she ran out of her trailer and saw "totaled-out trailers. They were tipped over. The chains just snapped off cement bunkers like toys."

A 20-year-old woman who requested anonymity said "my heart stopped when I heard about it" at work at Twelve Oaks Mall.

"I COULDN'T GET here fast enough. I was going 85 on I-275; there were so many accidents," she said, dragging on a cigarette and walking as fast as she could toward her mobile home.

"It would be so sad to lose my house and everything I own, but I don't even care, as long as my mom and cat are OK."

When she got home, the woman found everything was fine, aside from the fact that her cat was cowering and the phone was out. Her mother wasn't home yet.

Betty Tanguay, whose trailer escaped severe damage, described the sound she heard as "a big roar. Everyone was screaming when they realized a tornado struck down. Four or five trailers were flipped over. All the garbage cans were blowing around and the electricity was going on and off. It was scary."

by the cart barn 100 yards away," he said. "Everybody got under tool benches, and a couple of guys laid in low points outside.

SAW TREES being uprooted; it was just like pulling candles out of a birthday cake. We saw a couple dozen trees uprooted right before our eyes."

The ordeal lasted just two or three minutes, Mily said. "The tornado was moving eastward real fast. After it passed the trees, it dissipated. Then it picked up, went over the treeline and hit again near Gotfredson Road."

There were no reported injuries.

Cornstalks from a farm a quarter-mile away on Curtis Road were strewn about the course. So were green shingles. "We haven't figured out where they came from," said Mily.

"We think they came off a barn that was ripped up on Curtis a half mile away."

Being so close to a tornado "is probably a once-in-a-lifetime deal," said Mily. "I was afraid someone would get hurt. I haven't been worried like that in a long time. It's an experience I don't want to go through again."

Mily's wife Sandy, co-owner of the course, said she'd like to speak with the meteorologists who doubt that what hit was a tornado.

feel the tornado is awfully close, get out of the vehicle and get away from it. If a tornado can flip a mobile home, imagine what it can do to a bus or a car."

The reason shelter should be sought in a low area such as a ditch is because of airborne debris.

"Most of the people killed by tornadoes are killed by flying debris," said Burney. "If you are in a low area, it will shoot right over you, lessening your chance of geting hit."

If you are in a regular home during a tornado watch, the basement is the safest place. "If you don't have a basement, then go to a small, interior room. A bathroom or a closet is your safest place," he said.

"If you are in a trailer, the safest place is into a structure — a tornado structure, a regular constructed home or a building."

FARRAND PRINCIPAL Ann Kuhn said students have been taught about what to do in case of a severe storm.

She was told a parent at the park helped kids into the ditch. "You certainly would not want to be on a bus in a situation like that," she said. "Luckily, we have been doing tornado safety kinds of things. A year ago we had that big storm, and kids had to be under cover for quite awhile. So we've taken precautions."

The weather was rainy and chilly, but Shelly Ryan and Jeanine Lenaghen of the parks and recreation service made sure they was plenty of candy for the kids who showed up.

Weather puts chill on hunt

The calendar says it's spring, but there were more than a few doubters on Saturday as tots and their parents showed up at Easter egg hunts in Canton and Plymouth.

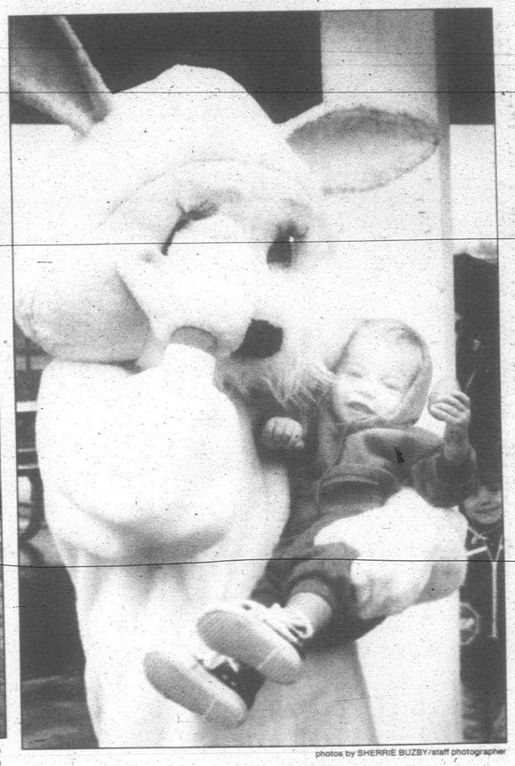

Rain turned Griffin Park in Canton and Plymouth Township Park into fields of mud and temperatures in the 40s put a chill on things.

But it didn't dampen the enthusiasm of the children, who didn't even have to work for the eggs. Organizers of the events handed them out to the kids.

The Canton event was hosted by the Canton Parks and Recreation Service, while the event in Plymouth was sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees.

Woman loses fight with polio

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Sandra K. Angel Sagear of Canton had every reason to complain, but didn't. She had every right to be bitter, but never was.

Despite battling polio and its complications for the 42 years she lived, she was a cheerful, loving and devoted daughter, sister, aunt and employee, said her family and co-workers.

Sagear died April 2 at her parents' home in Canton of post-polio syndrome.

She was buried from Pawlus Funeral Home in Canton April 4 and buried at Knollwood Cemetery.

"HER HOSPITALIZATIONS, all told put back to back would have been measured in years. In the midst of all this suffering, she could have chosen bitterness. She could have soured on life," said the Rev. Bill Myers of Faith Moravian Community Church, who officiated at her funeral.

"I know from my experiences as a children's hospital chaplain that many of these children become spoiled and incredible manipulators. Not her. She put all this stuff behind her. Her choice instead was to be warm.

"She experienced so much adversity, yet she was not selfish. She was generous and loving."

A 1968 graduate of Plymouth High School, Sagear was office manager at McMahon Helicopter in Canton.

Her co-worker, Mary Nachtweih, said Sagaer made such a good impression she was hired the minute she walked in the door 6½ years ago.

"Sandy was totally devoted to her job. It meant a lot to her. She was more worried about her job and whether she was here than whether she stayed home when she was sick. You couldn't have gotten a more loyal employee.

"She learned a lot here and grew with the company. We miss her very much; I miss her a a lot. She was terrific."

Sagaer was a March of Dimes poster girl for three years in LaCrosse, Wis., 1954-56.

She was Miss Sparkle for the United Foundation in Plymouth in 1966.

As an expression of her faith, Sagaer often quoted the poem "Footprints in the Sand," said Myers. "That was the way she viewed God as helping her through her life."

Sagaer lived in Florida for 12 years and worked as a girl Friday for a cable franchise. "She mastered all the technical ramifications of the cable operation, and became pretty much of a computer whiz at work," said Myers.

"At home, she was an avid lover of music. She had tapes and CD's all over the place.

"She was collecting crystal, and she was kind of a fragile person. I just wonder what sort of symbolism there was in the crystal."

Her sister, Vonnie Bench, said Sagaer had a special relationship with her children. "She was able to relate to them like no other person on earth," she said.

Sagaer is survived by her parents, Howard and Darleene; brother Timothy of New Hampshire; and sister and brother-in-law, Yvonne and Jim Bench; one niece and one nephew.

Attorney to run for comission

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Calling himself a reform candidate, attorney Thaddeus McCotter of Livonia is challenging incumbent county commissioner Maurice Breen, R-Plymouth Township, for the GOP 10th District nomination.

Breen, a former Plymouth Township supervisor, is one of several area officials involved in controversy for allegedly awarding contracts related to a Plymouth/Canton/Northville area sewer project to friends, relatives and political supporters.

"It's a question of public interest," said McCotter, a Schoolcraft College trustee. "I'm not saying these people are criminals, but you do expect more from your public officials." McCotter also said he wouldn't seek PAC contributions.

Breen was unavailable for comment, though involved parties have publicly denied the allegations. Allegations stemmed from a Detroit Free Press investigation earlier this year.

The commission district includes Plymouth, Northville, Plymouth and Northville townships and Livonia, west of Middlebelt.

WHILE THE 10th District race promises to be spirited, challengers so far are few in other area districts.

- No candidates have filed for the new Redford/Dearborn Heights 9th District seat. The 9th District is represented by Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, who is leaving the commission to challenge incumbent Robert Ficano in the Democratic primary for county sheriff. The district also includes Livonia neighborhoods east of Middlebelt.
- Incumbents Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, and Kay Beard, D-Westland, are the only candidates thus far to file in the 11th and 12th Districts. The 11th includes Canton. Garden City is part of the 12th.

Candidates have until 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 12, to file.

MCCOTTER HAS been a Schoolcraft trustee since 1989.

The University of Detroit Law School graduate is also chairman of the Wayne 2nd District GOP organization, a grassroots fund-raising and campaign unit for Republican candidates in the Livonia/Plymouth/Northville area.

McCotter said he is leaving the GOP 2nd District post to run for the county commission.

McCotter, son of Livonia Clerk Joan McCotter, has also been involved in city politics.

Last year, he headed a charter amendment drive that altered the way city council vacancies are filled.

THE CONTROVERSIAL Western Townships Utility Authority sewer project is expected to play a major role in the Breen/McCotter race.

Those facing charges of nepotism and political cronyism include Breen, whose brother worked on project land acquisition.

Similar charges were raised against current Plymouth Supervisor Gerald Law, whose brother's law firm performed project legal work. Law is a longtime ally who replaced Breen as supervisor.

Charges were also leveled against township trustee Abe Munfakh, vice president of an engineering firm that worked on the project.

Law denied allegations against all involved parties at a March press conference.

Law also said the estimated $2.7 billion sewer project, which ties into the Ypsilanti treatment plant, would save Plymouth/Canton/Northville property owners money, compared with neighboring communities that tie into the Detroit plant. Potential savings are the focus of a separate, though related, controversy.

County commission districts await review by the Michigan Supreme Court, though little variation is expected from revised boundaries approved this month by a county apportionment panel. Districts were revised due to the 1990 census.

Senate OKs anti-stalking bill

An anti-stalking bill passed by the state Senate can't be used against newspeople who track news sources.

"A prosecutor wouldn't touch it" if a reporter followed a township official to see if she actually resided in the township or elsewhere.

"We've taken care of it two ways," said an aide to Sen. R.-Robert Geake, R-Northville, sponsor of SB 719.

"First, there are constitutionally protected activities, such as reporting, protected by the First Amendment. Second, harrassing must have an illegitimate purpose."

THE SENATE recently gave the bill 30-0 approval with six absent. All area lawmakers supported it except David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, who had an excused absence.

Geake's bill provides for up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. It was sent to the House Judciary Committee.

Most stalkers are male and most victims female, Geake said. Often stalking is a result of domestic violence.

Geake said the bill, if enacted, would put teeth into court injunctions and restraining orders designed to keep stalkers away from their prey.

"SB 719 will put teeth into what today are almost useless temporary restraining orders," Geake told the Senate.

"The bill's passage will make Michigan the second state to give law enforcement officials this important tool to protect victims of stalkers."

MY BACK HURTS. WHY DOES THE DOCTOR EXAMINE MY KNEE?

Strain occupies a major role in the pain of arthritis:

If you have a joint condition and come to your physician complaining of back pain, he may spend scant attention to it. Rather, he may conduct an examination of your knees and even take x-rays of them and not your lumbar spine.

Back pain often results from knee arthritis. You spare strain on your knees by walking in a forward flexed position; however, you pay a price. This change in posture often places sufficient stress on the back to cause it anguish. Your doctor knows that it's such circumstances. His attention to the back will bring no resolution of that pain. In contrast, treatment to your knee alone, if successful, will resolve your back ache.

The same applies to heel pain, rarely is the discomfort the result of heel spurs. More frequently heel ache results form a dooting a gait that the body anticipates will spare the forefoot. Thus, the appropriate examination begins in the front, not the back, of the foot.

The instances vary endlessly, but the principle remains: pain in one place may represent inflammation occuring somewhere else. The doctor is correct when he examines places other than where you are aching. He is responding both to what you have just experienced and what he has learned from past training.

Seminary still for sale

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

No matter how a court case is decided on the former St. John Seminary in Plymouth, the Archdiocese of Detroit plans to sell it.

"It's the intention of the Archdiocese to sell the property pending the resolution of the case," said church spokesman Richard Laskos.

His comment followed U.S. District Judge Avern Cohen's action April 6, to continue a hearing on a dispute over the property.

Judge Cohen is expected to rule in the dispute as early as next month.

In October 1990, the archdiocese terminated a $5.5 million purchase agreement signed with Retirement and Health Services Corp. of Baltimore, Md., to convert the buildings into senior citizen housing.

THE BALTIMORE FIRM sued the church, charging it broke the purchase agreement, while the Archdiocese maintains it can legally end the agreement.

Shortly after the agreement was terminated, church officials said a new buyer had been identified. But during the past year, church officials say they haven't identified a potential buyer.

There has been speculation that Livonia's Ward Presbyterian Church was interested, as church officials toured the seminary in 1991.

And because Detroit Tigers owner Tom Monaghan is a high profile Catholic, there has been speculation he might seek to locate a new Tiger stadium on the property, near M-14 and I-275 and therefore accessible to metro Detroit motorists.

But former township supervisor Maurice Breen and the township board passed a resolution proclaiming no Tiger Stadium would be built there, to end speculation. "It's not the type of facility we encourage in Plymouth Township," he said then.

Does Retirement and Health Services Corp. still plan a facility there if they win the case? "I certainly would like to take a look at it again," said John Erickson, president of the firm.

"I haven't talked to township officials for more than a year. I want to make sure where they would be on it," he said.

The 40-year-old seminary was closed in June 1988. The land is zoned residential, for one-acre or larger lots. Township officials have said a buyer could seek another use for the property, as it's not likely to go to a house builder.

Township officials last year assessed the site including buildings — 175 acres at Sheldon near Five Mile Road — at about $3 million. Because the land is church-owned and tax exempt, sale to a private owner could mean around $170,000 annually in new tax revenue for the township.

CITY OF

Superlatives

Art stretches her scepter over Munich and smiles

By John Dornberg
New York Times Syndicate

Munich is a paradox these days, one-and-a-half years after German reunification.

Long regarded as Germany's "secret capital" because it offers the most and best of nearly everything and, with a majority of Germans, according to surveys, wanting to live there if they could, the city and its burghers seem steeped in self-doubt now that a "real capital" — Berlin — is in the making.

Its inhabitants worry about reverting to the rather provincial image Munich had in the 1920s when Berlin was the cultural, scientific, commercial and political focal point of Germany, if not all Europe.

They fear being regarded as just a beautiful city, of which Thomas Mann wrote, "Art blooms, art reigns, art stretches her rose-clad scepter over this city and smiles." Indeed, art exhibitions, concerts and opera, always plentiful, seem to reach their peak during the spring.

Munich is clearly a city of superlatives: more culture, glitter, fashion, chic and conspicuous consumption, more restaurants per capita (one per 240 inhabitants), fine-food shops and open-air markets than any other city in Germany. Even its new airport, scheduled to open on May 17, is being hailed as the world's most efficient and convenient.

On the other hand, Munich also has the highest rents, the most exorbitant real-estate prices and Germany's densest and most choking traffic jams.

Despite, and maybe because of, all this, Munich draws more visitors than any other German city. This year more than 3.2 million people are expected to visit.

MUSEUMS AND ART

Only Berlin, with 32, has more major museums than Munich, and no other German city has as many commercial galleries — about 230.

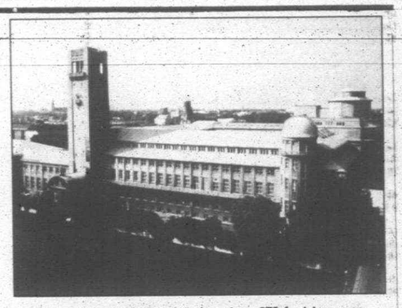

The newest museum is ZAM — Sentrum fur Aussersrgewohnliche Museen, which translates as Center for Unusual Museums, at 26 Westenrieder strasse. Unusual they certainly are: the world's first Pedal Car, Chamberpot, Bourdalou and Corkscrew museums, are among the seven under one roof.

Through next Jan. 10, ZAM has a special show, "The Wonderful World of Metal Toys," a collection of mechanical trains, cars, merry-go-rounds and animals from 1850 to 1950.

In May the Deutsches Museum, one of the world's largest science and technology museums, at Auf der Isarinsel, will open its new astronomy section. In a 10,000-square-foot area it will have exhibits on astronomical science from the earliest times to the latest research.

The Deutsches Museum is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $5.30; $1 for the planetarium. For more information call 21791.

The small, privately funded Jewish Museum, at 36 Maximilianstrasse, has a special documentary exhibition running to Aug. 27 on Raoul Wallenberg, the Swedish diplomat who saved the lives of tens of thousands of Hungarian Jews in 1944, when he was arrested by the Russians and disappeared in captivity.

The Town Hall at Marienplatz boasts a 279-foot tower as well as ancient statues of Bavarian dukes and electors.

The Jewish Museum is open Tuesday and Wednesday from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.; Thursday from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Admission is free. For more information call 297453.

Munich's municipal gallery, the Stadtische Galerie im Lenbachhaus, at 33 Luisenstrasse, will show 23 Multiples by Claes Oldenburg, dating from 1964 to 1990, until May 10. This will be followed from May 20 to July 5 by an exhibition of work by the American Catherine Lee.

MUSIC

Mishaps continue to plague Munich's National Theater, which will be closed from July 31 to repair six miles of piping in the stage's new hydraulic system. Even some of the performances during the July 6 to 31 opera festival will be concert versions.

This spring's most exciting production will be Antonin Dvorak's "Dimitrij," directed by Tony Palmer, which had its Munich premiere recently and will continue as part of the repertory through April and May.

Concerts of note: New York Chamber Symphony, Gerard Schwarz conducting, Gil Shaham as violin soloist, on May 4; Bavarian Broadcasting Symphony Orchestra, Sir Colin Davis conducting, on May 8 and 9; and Staatskapelle Berlin, David Zinman conducting, Sharon Sweet as soprano soloist, on May 14.

The Third Munich Beinnale of New Music, an international festival founded by and under the direction of Hans Werner Henze, will be from April 29 to May 30. Ensembles taking part will be the Amsterdam Opera, Bremen Theater, Babarian State Ballet, Stuttgart State Theater and the Teatro Communale of Florence.

Opera performances, concerts, discussions with avant-grade composers and exhibitions will be held all over the city, including the Gasteig Philharmonic Hall, Carl Orff Hall and Block Box Theater, the Theater am Gartnerplatz and Theater im Marstall.

Opera-festival tickets — very hard to obtain and best bought in the United States through a travel agent — range from $15 for standing room under the roof to $175. In Munich one either stands in line at the ticket office, at 11 Maximilianstrasse, or tries the hotel concierge.

For ticket information call 221316. Or write to: Vorverkauf, Bayerisches National Theater, 11 Maximilianstrasse, D-8000 Munich 22, Germany.

For concerts at the Gasteig Philharmonic Hall, ranging from about $15 to $75, go to or telephone the Gasteig ticket office, at 5 Rosenheimer Strasse. The phone number is 48098614.

Ride back in history on the Orient-Express

Mature Traveler

By Gene and Adele Malott
special writers

Where travelers go on the Orient-Express is not as important as getting there.

The freckle-faced porter at our London hotel had already spotted the gleaming blue Orient-Express tags on our luggage.

As he tucked us into the cab headed for Victoria Station, he said wistfully:

"It's a trip that's really half in the mind, isn't it? I mean, that was the only way to travel back then, wasn't it? And all the grand people did it, didn't they?"

Indeed, for mature travelers the original Venice Simplon-Orient-Express provides a trip into the not-too-distant past, into the world of Edward VIII and Mrs. Simpson, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Lillie Langtry, Enrico Caruso, Harry Houdini, Mata Hari and Agatha Christie and her constant companion, the dandy Hercule Poirot.

Where travelers go on the Orient-Express is not as important as getting there. The trip itself provides the joy.

Since its inaugural run in 1883, the Orient-Express has been ballyhooed as "the train of kings and the king of trains."

This year, celebrating the 10th anniversary of its restored service, it again offers one of the world's greatest train rides.

The basic journey on the Orient-Express is in three sections: a two-hour rail trip from London to the English channel port of Folkestone, a channel crossing and a grand rail journey southeast across Europe from Boulogne, France to Venice, Italy.

Out of London's Victoria Station, passengers may occupy reserved seats at luncheon tables on chocolate-and-cream color Pullman cars. These cars were built in the decades before World War II.

Perhaps travelers will ride in what was once Charles de Gaulle's private car or the one that carried the body of Winston Churchill in 1965. Restored now, the cars are a thick-carpeted realm of polished wood and shiny brass.

At Folkestone, passengers board the Sea Cat, a giant catamaran, for a 90-minute crossing of the Strait of Dover to Boulogne.

Waiting there, drawn up near the dockside, are elegant blue-and-gold coaches — the sleepers, diners, bar car and crew cars — that make up the continental section of the Orient-Express.

These cars are the originals, restored to gleaming life. A plaque in each car gives its heritage.

The car we rode in was built in 1929 and served on the classy Train Bleu to the Riviera, on the Rome Express and on the crack Nord Express to Riga, Latvia. After serving as a hotel car for the German army in World War II, it resumed service on the Orient-Express.

The first-class accommodations consist of private compartments that turn into sleepers. The train has space for 168 passengers. It's possible to get a good night's rest — the cars are comfortable and quiet — as long as passengers aren't afraid of upper berths and crawling up ladders.

Only a few compartments are outfitted as doubles; travelers must book well in advance to get them. The upper berths are warm at night. Our car had no air conditioning.

Interiors in the diners, as in the other cars, are inlaid wood and brass, with partitions in Lalique crystal.

Southbound, the train rolls through Dijon, France, and the vineyards of Burgundy by night. To see the fields, travelers must take the Orient-Express north. In that direction the train passes through the Alps by dark.

At dawn on the southbound trip, travelers can catch a glimpse of the Alps and taste a freshly baked croissant.

The train no longer goes through the historic Simplon Tunnel into Italy. Rather, it takes the more scenic Arlburg route to the north, through Zurich and Innsbruck, then dips south into Italy through the Brenner Pass.

From February through November, the Orient-Express leaves London for Venice at 11 a.m., usually twice a week. Arrival in Venice is approximately 7 p.m., the next night.

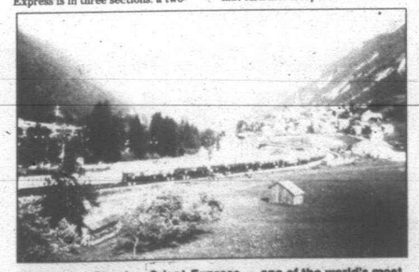

The northbound trip departs Venice at 10:50 the next morning.

The one-way fare is $1,525 per person, based on double occupancy. Passengers may also book journeys to other points on the route — Paris, Zurich and Innsbruck.

Travelers age 60-plus and their companions age 50-plus can get 10 percent discounts on Orient-Express fares — as well as on airfare, stays in London and Venice and other tours — by joining British Airways' "Privileged Traveller" program for $10 a year.

For an application contact a local travel agent or British Airways at (800) 247-9297.

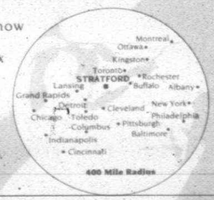

For information contact the Venice Simplon-Orient-Express, One World Trade Center, Suite 2565, New York, N.Y. or call (800) 524-2420.

The Venice Simplon-Orient-Express — one of the world's most luxurious trains — speeds through Switzerland en route to Paris.

We women must champion own causes

Judith Doner Berne

SOME PEOPLE, including some women, were ticked off that the Race for the Cure April 11 at the Detroit Zoo — a run/walk to fund breast cancer research — was limited to female participants.

I thought it was perfectly fine.

It's high time women stepped up and took charge of their own issues. Sometimes there is a need to exclude men, if only for the publicity surrounding it.

That race, which drew 3,400 metro Detroit area women and raised close to $78,000, is symbolic of a second wave of the Women's Liberation Movement, which now is hitting our suburbs.

The gains women made in the '60s and '70s have been absorbed, and many feel the status quo must be rattled once again.

Women can wait no longer for the male establishment to get the message — particularly about women's issues. Women must create the changes themselves.

The issues are all around us — from abortion rights to potty parity, from child care at the work place to the routine coverage of mammography by all insurance companies.

RIGHT NOW the local spotlight is on potty parity — a bill introduced by state Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, and passed Tuesday by the House.

Now, the long lines at women's rest rooms are known to both men and women, but although men overwhelmingly outnumber women in the Michigan Legislature somehow it took a woman to provoke action.

"The lack of adequate commodes to accommodate women's needs results in long lines, physical distress and rightful annoyance," Dolan said.

The bill requires the installation of enough toilets to ensure equal speed of access to public restrooms for men and women in new or renovated theaters, galleries, restaurants, libraries, stadiums, amusement parks and passenger terminals.

If the nearly all-male Senate fails to OK it, just guess who will have voted against it.

THE KEY IS getting more women into the power structure.

Women wield the power in a number of our Observer & Eccentric communities. Three western Wayne County women represent residents in the state House. They are Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia; Justine Barns, D-Westland; and Georgina Goss, R-Northville.

In Oakland County: Billie Ireland is mayor of Rochester Hills; Sandra Draur, supervisor of West Bloomfield Township; Jean Stine just won election as mayor in Troy; and Penny Crissman, mayor of Rochester, has just announced she will seek the state House nomination from that area.

Women recently have won the top jobs at Oakland University and Oakland Community College, and female superintendents run the sizeable Detroit, Pontiac and Southfield school districts.

Female members of the state House from Oakland County include Dolan, Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, Barbara Dobb, R-West Bloomfield, and Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak.

There are only three women in the state Senate, and both U.S. senators from Michigan and all U.S. representatives from Wayne and Oakland counties are male.

WHAT TO DO?

Join the local chapter of WAND. I know, you thought it stood for Women's Action for Nuclear Disarmament — and so it did. But then Desert Storm showed how obsolete war is and communism got sick and died.

WAND expanded to Women's Action for New Directions — focusing on increasing women's political power and redirecting national priorities away from war and toward human and environmental needs.

WAND holds its annual Mother's Day brunch from 9 a.m. to noon Thursday, May 7, at The Community House in Birmingham, featuring national president Bobbie Wrenn Banks. Call 626-4332 for information and reservations.

Although women have come a long way from being identified only as mothers, that is still central to WAND's vision: "Children ask the world of us." Powerful women are needed to make that vision come true.

Fishing, hunting would eliminate welfare

Jeff Counts

IT'S TIME TO get priorities straight in Michigan. Everybody is whining about Engler's welfare cuts and school financing troubles. But the real solution isn't increasing taxes, it's fishing and hunting.

The problem with our society, as we all know, is that we're waiting around for government to do everything for us. We send politicians to the state Legislature or Congress with the idea they should take other people's money and provide services for us.

That would change if we took up fishing and hunting. If we did, our problems would evaporate and liberals would become an endangered species.

Fishing and hunting take us out of the cities, away from our slack ways, and back to our common rural roots. Killing fish and animals for their flesh makes us deal with the gritty reality of living.

Hunting and fishing even for a short time put the power of supporting ourselves, without the consent of our fellow man, in our own hands. Even if it's just one meal of brook trout, we don't have to go to the store and buy it. We skip the money grubbing middle men.

AND IT'S no wonder that animal rights goof balls oppose hunting and fishing. They're reformers who want to tell other people what to do; they're pro-government dolts who want to take away the power people have to feed themselves.

George Bush knows well how to use the symbol of hunting and fishing. Not long ago he stood clad in fishing clothes at a bass fishing event handing out trophies. And in the fall he makes a trip to Texas for quail hunting, the bird not the vice president.

While we see images of Bush with a rod or shotgun in hand, we see the Democrats in cities worrying about cuts in federal spending to whatever the flavor of the week happens to be.

My theory is that we should cut all welfare spending. That includes the arts, farm subsidies, aid to education and other federal and state handouts. I'd then put that money into planting fish and releasing game on public lands.

That way the folks who suck off the public tax dollars would at least have to head to a river, lake or field to find supper. For most, the walk would do them good.

Once in the field or stream, they would learn about an honest day of work. It could also solve social problems. Folks like Ted Kennedy would be less inclined to engage in night time hunting trips.

ARTISTS WHO earn their living drawing sappy social protest pictures or abstract art would perhaps start doing real art: hunting and fishing scenes. That's what the first artists depicted when we lived in caves.

There would be humor, too. Perhaps the most amusing scene would be an elected official tryihg to figure out our state's hunting and fishing regulations. They would certainly be made simpler if politicians accustomed to free lunches had to thumb through the complex maze of trout fishing regulations before deciding if they could keep the salmonoid or not.

Of course this is a troublesome scene. A politician whose free lunch has been taken away can get pretty ugly. It's a scene to which no fish, especially a trout, should be subjected.

But while the stomachs of politicians would be grumbling, the environmental movement would benefit. Folks forced to get their dinner from a nearby river or field would certainly want to make sure the water wasn't contaminated or that the deer weren't eating PBB.

While such a plan would get folks accustomed to earning a living by lying to folks at free lunches to do an honest day's work, there is a down side. There probably would be too much competition for the fish and animals and some humans would end up starving.

My guess is that it would be the politicians and others cut from the same cloth.

But maybe that wouldn't be all that bad.

2 teachers are worth a 'super'

To the editor:
Subject: Your editorial "Educators become problem, not solution"

This is to let you know that, along with many friends and neighbors — some of them former teachers and principals — we were very pleased with your recent editorial concerning the mis-use of "per-pupil-spending" and the proliferation of a non-teaching empire of administrators.

It is also interesting that, according to a front page item in the same April 13 issue of your paper, school officials (note: officials, not the board!) are quoted as saying that the current "revenue shortfall" must be met by laying off "up to 150" teachers. There is no mention of laying off a single administrator, although it seems that two teachers could be retained for every superfluous assistant "super."

House Dems charged with 'voodoo bookkeeping'

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Local governments will get $35 million in state aid a month later this fall amid some Republican charges of "voodoo bookkeeping."

The House of Representatives voted 65-30 to delay paying local units their cut of single business taxes. They'll be paid in October, the first month of fiscal 1993, instead of September, the last month of fiscal 1992.

"The compromise we worked out in committee will allow the state to bring its books for this year closer into balance," said Rep. Dominic Jacobetti, D-Negaunee, chair of the House Appropriations Committee.

"SMOKE AND mirrors," replied maverick Republican Rep. David Jaye of Utica. "It's like extending the fiscal year in the Milliken era."

"It's happened before," warned Rep. Tom Mathieu, D-Grand Rapids, a protector of community college funding. "We deferred payments to the colleges, and the colleges never got it."

But Jacobetti insisted that "the local governments will be assured of their fall revenue sharing payments."

Jacobetti's panel rejected Gov. John Engler's proposal — to cut more than $34 million from fiscal 1992 revenue sharing.

"We didn't think it was right to try and balance the state budget at the expense of the operating funds the local governments rely on.

"The inconvenience of waiting a month for the money is small in comparison to the damage that would have been done to local services if the payments were eliminated altogether," he said.

HERE IS HOW Observer & Eccentric area representatives voted:

YES — Democrats Justine Barns of Westland, John Bennett of Redford, Maxine Berman of Southfield, William Keith of Garden City, Wilfred Webb of Hazel Park; and Republicans Lyn Bankes of Livonia, Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills and Gordon Sparks of Troy.

NO — Democrat James Kosteva of Canton and Republicans Barbara Dobb of Union Lake, Georgina Goss of Northville and Tom Middleton of Ortonville.

ABSENT — John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township.

The bill goes back to the Senate for concurrence in the House amendment.

'The compromise we worked out in committee will allow the state to bring its books for this year closer into balance.'
— Rep. Dominic Jacobetti D-Negaunee

SC sponsors honors recital for students

The Schoolcraft College Honors Recital Division of the Department of Music will hold auditions for its first annual string, classical guitar and voice honors recital/competition Saturday, May 2, in the college's forum building.

Auditions are open to all junior and senior high school students (grades 7-12). More than $1,000 in cash prizes will be awarded among the top winners in each division.

The purpose of the event is to encourage excellence in solo performance and ensemble playing, as well as provide students with an opportunity to be instructed by world renowned pianist and chamber music coach Eugene Bossart, artist-in-residence at Schoolcraft College.

String and classical guitar repertoire must be from standard literature and must be performed from memory. No more than two pieces may be performed. If two pieces are programmed they must be from different historical periods. Playing time for junior high is five minutes; senior high is eight minutes.

Voice repertoire is open to senior high students only, and must be appropriate for this age group. Selections must consist of two contrasting pieces (for example — one 20th century selection by an American or British composer sung in English and one song or aria including German Lieder, French songs or Italian arts songs.) Pieces must be performed from memory. No music theater. Performance time is three minutes.

All contestants in string, guitar or voice repertoire must provide their own pianist, if needed.

Judges will select a winner from each division and cash prizes will be awarded as follows: strings, junior high, $150; senior high, $250; classical guitar, junior high, $150; senior high, $250; voice, senior high, 250.

All winners will participate in an open master class with Bossart from 2-4:30 p.m. Sunday, May 10. In addition, the winners will perform in an honor recital at 5 p.m. Sunday, May 17, in the Forum Building Recital Hall at Schoolcraft.

Entry/registration is $15 per student and is nonrefundable. To obtain an application or more information, call Donald Mlorelock, honors recital competition director at 462-4400, Ext. 5218; or 5225.

Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads.

Dip into ~~bucket of~~ tasty smelt

I long for these wonderful spring days. Gorgeous warm days sprinkled with the rays of the sun and cool nights, just right for a long, hearty after dinner stroll.

I also love this time of year because days like these beacon the proliferous smelt, long a delicacy of any Michigan sportsman.

In addition to being a tasty dish that can be prepared in a multitude of ways, smelt are also a major budget stretcher. They can allow the cook to prepare a meal for a large family and still have enough money left over for those delayed payment options now appearing from Christmas past. Expect to pay about $1.50 per pound for fresh smelt.

ANYWHERE ALONG the Great Lakes in the metro area where you can find a beach, you can expect to see smelt dippers. Our weather this year has been nothing short of perfect. Department of Natural Resources spokespeople say if the weather holds out, this should be another bumper crop for the tiny delicacies.

Smelt are already appearing on many local grocers and fishmongers shelves, but in this sportsman's eye, a bucket just dipped from the still frigid waters, cleaned in the morning and fried in the evening, can't be beat.

Catching a few pounds of fresh smelt at your local grocery store will never beat the excitement of netting your own. Smelt dipping does not necessitate the experience and investment that regular fishing incurs.

WATERPROOF WADERS and a fine seine net, coupled with the ability to withstand a spring night chill are all that's needed to guarantee a good catch. Granted, Mother Nature does have something to say about weather conditions, but when the word gets out that "the smelt are running," a net and waders are all that's required. No boats, no poles, no bait, no lines, no lures.

Whereas a flashlight and/or lantern are optional equipment, you won't be alone. If the night is right, and the moon shines full, expect to fill those buckets with minor effort.

When it comes to preparation, smelt are just about as easy to prepare as they are to catch. A bucket can easily be cleaned in no longer than the time it takes to cook them. Simply remove the head behind the gills and slit the belly removing the entrails, rinse and cook. Of course, smelt purchased from your local market will probably have the first two tasks taken care of.

James Beard once said he preferred his smelt deboned, but to any Great Lakes angler, the bones are so tiny that it seldom necessitates deboning.

SMELT FREEZES well and to this day I remember milk cartons drunk of their contents and filled with smelt and water, and then frozen for many a Friday smelt fry.

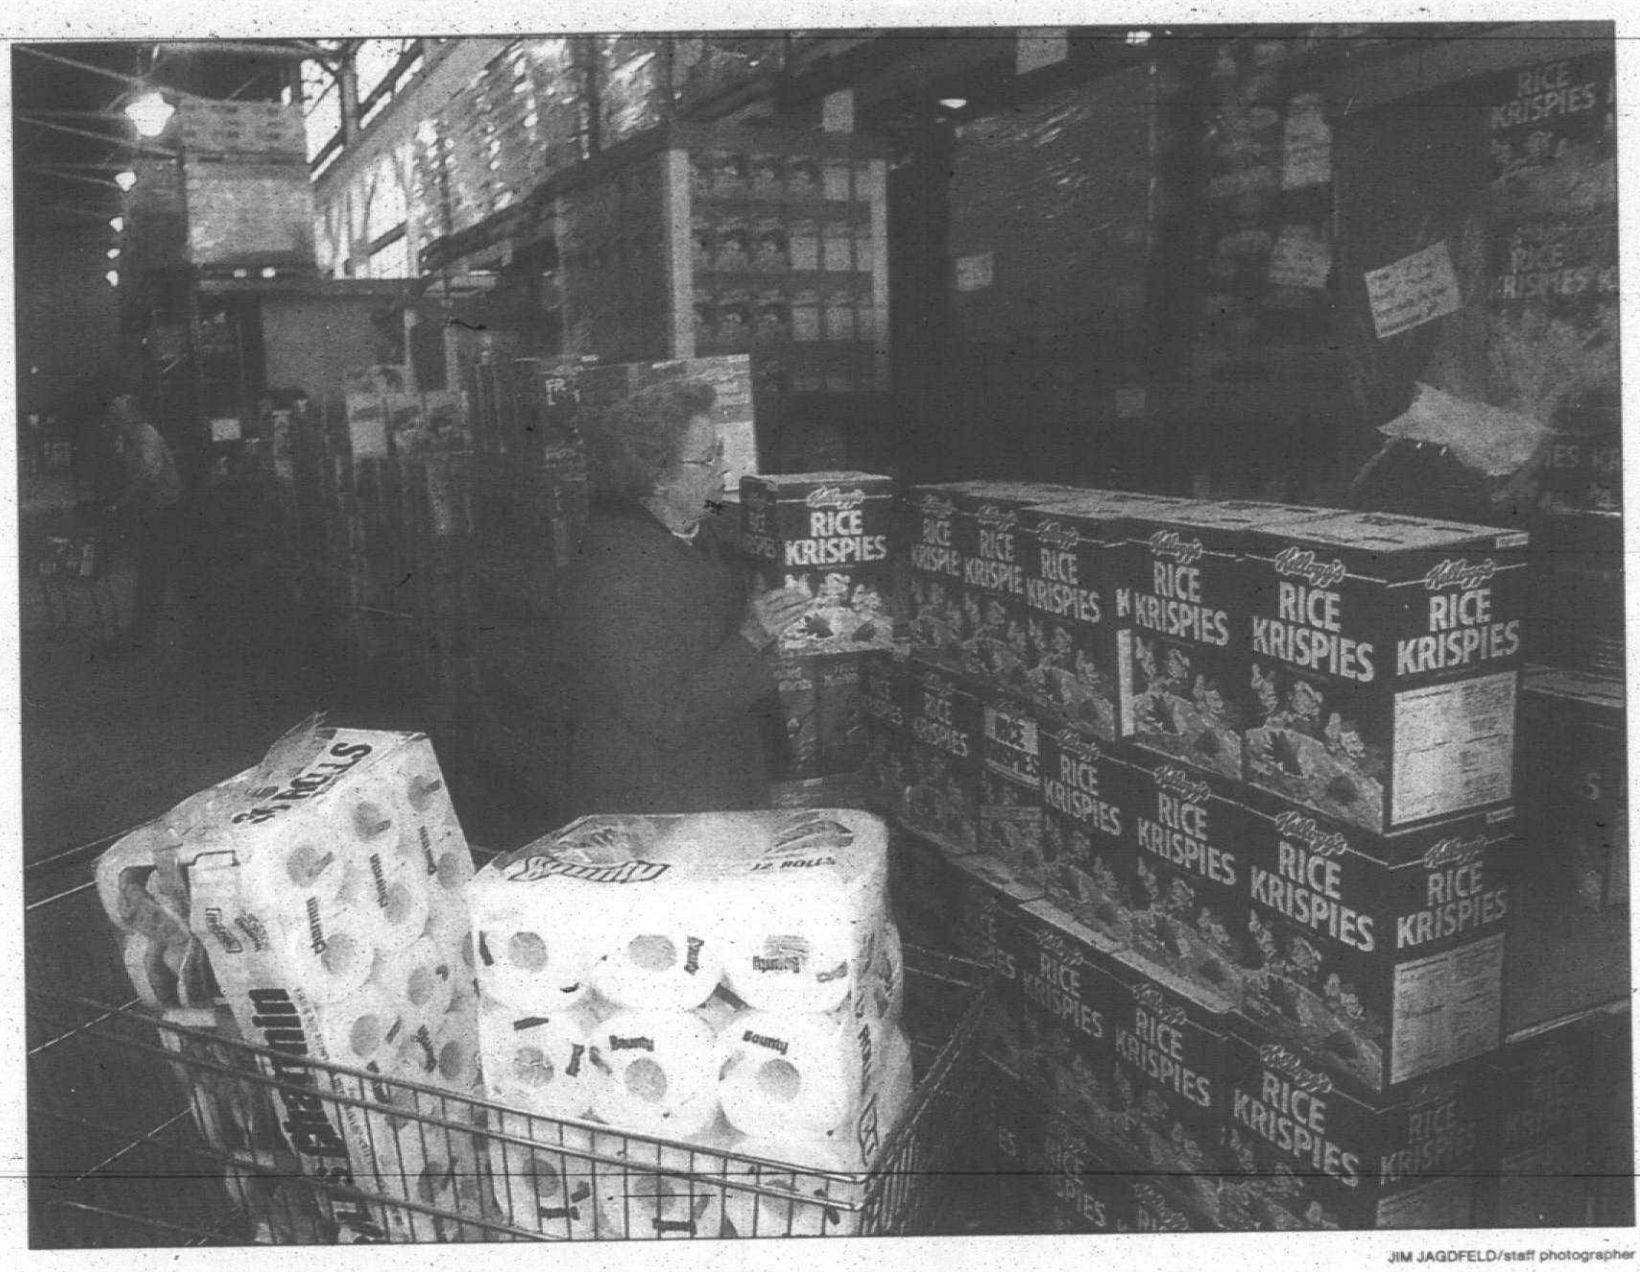

Smelt are, in my opinion, best when coated with fine cracker crumbs and lightly fried for a few minutes in hot oil. For the more health conscious, they can be baked or broiled with minimal effort.

Anyone who considers themselves a smelt aficiondo knows about the tasty smelt frys available at the legendary Bluebird Inn in Leland. There, the smelt is dipped in a lighter-than-air batter and fried until golden. With the recipes inside, you, too, can make a delectable pan fried or batter fried smelt, again, keeping costs down and efforts minimal.

Look for smelt frys now being offered at various churches and restaurants. A little closer to home, and a personal favorite of mine, is Frank's Bar in Wyandotte which also specializes in a wonderful pan fried perch.

It's a shot and beer joint, and they only serve on Fridays. It's well worth the wait.

Armed with a shopping list and pencil to calculate prices, Helen Barnes stocks up on cereal, toilet paper and other groceries at the Warehouse Club near her Redford home. Barnes, who does much of the shopping for her family, likes to compare prices.

No frills warehouses thrill shoppers

Impact on the suburbs: The shrinking Auto Industry

Editor's note: Weathering the recession, worsened by the auto sales slum and planned closing of the Willow Run assembly plant in Ypsilanti, is not easy, but we'd like to help. Our series continues with shopping at warehouse clubs.

By Arlene Funke
special writer

WHEN HELEN Barnes wants to stock up on Cheerios and frozen ~~chicken breasts~~, she shops at the Warehouse Club near her Redford home.

Barnes, who does much of the shopping for her five-member household, likes to get her money's worth.

"For the most part, it's cheaper," Barnes said. "I like to compare prices."

Huge stores such as Warehouse Club and PACE Membership Warehouse Inc., appeal to people who shop for quantity and value, foresaking frills. Customers must apply for membership to shop there.

Warehouse Club's Redford location is in a former industrial building on Plymouth Road west of Telegraph. Other local outlets are in Hazel Park and Allen Park.

PACE LOCATIONS include Westland, Farmington, Ypsilanti and Madison Heights.

Neither company accepts manufacturers' coupons. Shoppers won't find the variety of brands available in chain markets.

Packages generally are large, or multi-pack.

"You don't have to buy a case," said Buddy Lee, director of marketing at Warehouse Club's Skokie, Ill., headquarters.

"You may have to buy five or six cans of green beans, or three packages of Ultra SlimFast," Lee said.

PACE, which has an in-store bakery, has its own brand of garbage bags and laundry soap. Warehouse Club carries name-brand items.

Both stores also sell all kinds of other merchandise.

Today, Barnes is shopping for paper toweling, cranberry-apple drink, cereal and frozen chicken breasts.

Weigh advantages of volume buying

Shopping at a warehouse can be both convenient and economical.

~~A few points to keep~~ in mind before signing up:

- Make sure the no-frills, volume shopping concept suits your lifestyle and tastes.
- Will you shop often enough to pay a membership fee? Visit the warehouse and look around before signing up.
- Bring your shopping list and be prepared to break down the price when buying multi-pack items.
- Buy only what you can use in a reasonable amount of time, or can store adequately.
- You must be flexible. Although warehouse stores carry many items, brand selections may be limited.

Stretch wine dollars with values

By Eleanor and Ray Heald
special writers

True, many wines are too expensive. What historically was the common man's beverage, wine has taken on value-laden terms like "premium" — credited to the California wine industry. Once every cork-finished bottling acquired the name premium, the "super-premiums" became the sought-after pours.

Today, there are so many super-premiums, that the chic 1990s term is "ultra-premium." Are these terms a guarantee of high quality or merely a sales gimmick? Are these loaded sales terms persuasive marketing devices for the uninitiated winedrinker?

OUR ANSWER is "yes" because with each succeeding tier of supposed quality, the price rises significantly. A $40 chardonnay? That's ultra-premium pricing that is frequently not backed by ultra-premium taste.

What has happened to an everyday wine — the stuff we used to call jug wine? First of all "jug" is a wine reference that makes us sound cheap. As Americans, we don't want to pay a lot, but we don't want to appear cheap!

Today's premium wines are yesterday's jug wines. They are cork finished and the good news is that there's a host of good ones available locally. In today's tough economic times, it is still possible to please both palate and purse.

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

A white wine from the Cotes de Gascogne that's crisp with citrusy aromas and a solid taste treat, 1990 Domaine de Pouy ($6). This wine can be found only at Cloverleaf Market in Southfield. 1989 Cypress Merlot ($7) has fresh cherry aromas characteristic of the merlot grape. The wine is soft and supple with bright fruit flavors.

High-quality $5 bottles of wine are few and far between, so we're looking at palate pleasure all under $10 in our recommendations. We've placed the real winners as Wine Selections of the Week.

To heighten your spirits, we're starting off with two Latvian bubblies, produced like the best French champagnes and California sparklers from grapes grown in the Crimes. Riga Brut and Riga Bravo (both $9) are not only tasty sparkling pours, but the Riga Brut still has the old "Cobetckoe" label. Now that the Soviet Union is dissolved and Latvia has regained independence, the bottle is a collector's item!

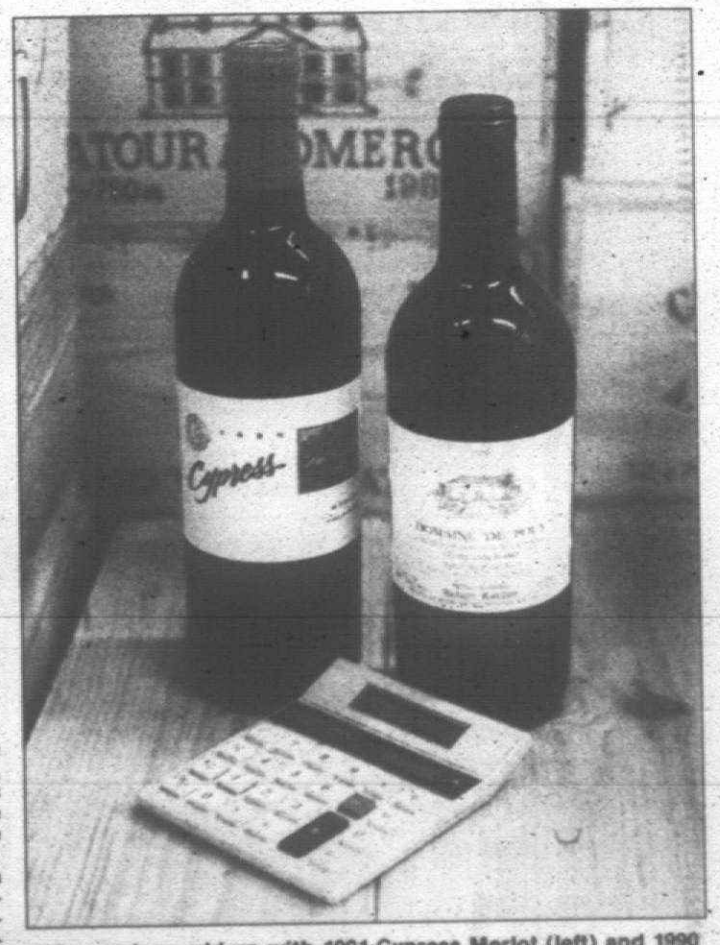

WHILE WE champion the "buy American" sentiments, we have to lay some of the blame for the high price of domestic wines squarely on the shoulders of California producers and their myopic view of wine purchasers. The majority of North Coast wine producers have generally ignored the segment of the market seeking wines under $10 per bottle.

This is not true of The Monterey Vineyard. Here sights are focused on this majority section of winedrinkers. The Classic White and Classic Red wines are flavorful and generous for around $6.50. The Monterey Vineyard varietally labeled bottlings can be purchased for around $9 and represent true expressions of the grape variety.

The same can be said of Bel Arbors wines, Fetzer Vineyard's second label. The reds in the Bel Arbors line are the best buys. Equally quality-price conscious are the offerings from Foppiano Vineyards bottled under its second label Riverside Farms.

French country wines or "Vin de Pays" are some of the best values available. They originate principally in the region known as the Languedoc-Rousillon and carry the following major viticultual regions on the label — Coteaux du Languedoc, Cotes du Roussillon, Vin de Pays d'Oc, Corbieres and Minervois. The 1989 and 1990 bottlings from these regions are very tasty buys.

White wines (1990 vintage) from the Cotes de Gascogne (Gascony region of France) are crisp and delicious. Drink these wines young because they quickly lose their freshness.

Grains, vegetables give salads a healthy boost

When added together, the componente of colorful Buffalo-Style Chicken Salad equal salad savvy. A crunchy blend of wheat germ and zesty seasonings coats broiled skinned chicken breast halves. Mixed salad greens, carrot and celery sticks and fat-free blue cheese dressing complete the healthy equation.

We tend to think of a salad as being one of the most healthful of menu choices. But is it? The answer depends upon what you put into the salad bowl.

A salad can be high in calories and fat. According to a study conducted by Mississippi State University, an average salad bar salad contains 1,000 calories. And it's no wonder when you consider that every tablespoon of Italian dressing adds 83 calories and 9 grams of fat.

To maximize nutrition and minimize calories and fat, opt for a low-fat or fat-free salad dressing and concentrate on the vegetables and grains. You'll be amazed at the number of options.

● Skip the iceberg lettuce and fill your refrigerator crisper with salad greens that are more nutrient dense such as dark green romaine, spinach and Swiss chard.

● Carrots and beets are good sources of vitamin A; bell peppers, broccoli, cabbage and tomatoes contribute vitamin C.

● Cooked beans and lentils are low-fat protein sources.

● Venture beyond pasta to brown rice, barley, couscous, bulgur and quinoa. All of these grains are flavorful, easy to prepare and filling.

● Turn a side dish salad into a main dish by adding just two ounces of a lean protein food. Try skinless chicken and turkey, broiled lean beaf, salmon or water-packed tuna, nonfat or part-skim cheese.

For an extra nutrition boost, skip the croutons and sprinkle on or stir in a few tablespoons of wheat germ. One serving, about two tablespoons, of Kretschmer wheat germ has eight essential vitamins and minerals, dietary fiber and just 50 calories.

Discover wheat germ's naturally nutty flavor and crunchy texture by trying two main dish salads created in the Quaker Kitchens.

Like its namesake, Buffalo-Style Chicken Salad offers zesty flavor and a variety of textures and temperatures. Skinned and boned chicken breast halves are coated with a spicy wheat germ mixture, broiled, sliced and arranged on top of several different kinds of lettuce. Celery sticks and fat-free blue cheese dressing add to the authenticity.

Each bite of Garden Turkey and Rice Salad features wheat germ and cooked brown rice, crunchy vegetables and lean turkey breast. Freshly squeezed lemon juice added to the bottled fat-free Italian dressing zips up the flavor. Serve over salad greens, sliced tomatoes or a cantaloupe half, or spoon into pita pockets. Any way you serve it, this salad's a winner.

BUFFALO-STYLE CHICKEN SALAD

1 cup toasted or honey crunch wheat germ
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
½ cup water
1 egg white
2 boneless skinless chicken breast halves (about 3 ounces each)
3 cups mixed salad greens
1 cup celery sticks
½ cup fat-free blue cheese salad dressing

Combine wheat germ and seasonings; set aside. Combine water and egg white. Dip chicken into egg white mixture and then into wheat germ mixture, coating chicken thoroughly. Place on broiler rack sprayed with no-stick cooking spray. Broil 3 minutes; turn. Broil an additional 2 to 4 minutes, or until juices run clean. Slice into strips and serve over mixed greens with celery sticks and salad dressing. Makes 2 servings.

ness in cosmetics. Other members of her household are her daughter Madeline Worischeck, 38, an accountant; Madeline's husband Rick, 40, who is starting a lawn-care service; and the two Worischeck daughters, Monique, 7, and Misty, 17.

"With the size of our household, it doesn't take long to go through (groceries)," said Barnes, a widow.

THE HUGE store resembles a typical utilitarian warehouse, with rows of tall shelves, filled with merchandise. Hi-lo drivers, beeping horns and flashing lights, regularly arrive with more stock.

Barnes is armed with shopping list and pencil to calculate prices.

A 12-roll package of Bounty paper towels, at $9.90 averages 82 cents a roll. A twin-pack of Cheerios, 35 ounces, is priced at around $5.65.

Boneless chicken breast, $9.49 for a 4-pound package, breaks down to around $2.35 per pound.

Potential warehouse shoppers must be approved for membership and are issued an I.D. card. Business members receive certain perks, such as special shopping times.

PACE charges all members an annual $25 fee, and everyone pays the wholesale prices posted in the stores.

At Warehouse Club, business members pay a $25 annual membership fee and shop at the posted wholesale price.

People who belong to a qualifying group pay no membership fee; they pay 5 percent above the wholesale price. These groups include certain large companies, labor unions, banks and credit union members.

GROUP MEMBERS of Warehouse Club can upgrade to paid membership. People over age 55, or members of American Association of Retired Persons, pay a $15 membership fee.

Flip over pancakes for breakfast, lunch or dinner

Lois Thieleke
home economist, Cooperative Extension Service

A pancake should be more than a sponge to soak up butter and syrup. A pancake should be tender, slightly moist and moderately dense. A bad pancake tastes like raw dough or cardboard and has a texture that's gummy, tough and chewy.

Pancakes lend themselves to many occasions, as an hors d'oeuvre, for breakfast, lunch or dinner; or to glamorize leftovers. Pancakes are very versatile, you can stuff, roll or glaze them.

Making pancake batter yourself is just as easy as a mix, besides homemade tastes better. If you are interested in lower fat, calories, cholesterol and sodium, make your own batter and leave out the egg yolk, salt, sugar and some of the fat. Use skim milk as the liquid.

Buttermilk gives the pancake a little tang and makes them extra tender. Making these changes will make the batter a little thinner but then you will be, too.

No matter what name you use, blintzes, crepes, flapjacks, johnnycake, griddlecakes or batter cakes, they are all made with a thin mixture called a "pour batter." This means that the liquid and dry ingredients are about equal and they are just wet enough to be pourable.

Pour batters are usually classified as a quick bread because they do not use yeast as the leavening agent. The exception is the popular Russian blini which is a yeast-risen buckwheat pancake. These are usually made in a smaller size and are topped with sour cream and cilutney, sour cream and herring, smoked trout or with butter and caviar.

There are three very important things to have to make the perfect pancake.

First, the consistency of the batter is important. Dry ingredients such as flour, baking powder or soda, salt, sugar and other spices are blended together, mix the liquid ingredients together, and quickly add into the dry ingredients. Then just give it a few quick strokes to moisten the dry ingredients. A batter bowl which is a large liquid measuring cup is a very convenient way to make pancake batter, as it can be easily poured from this on the griddle.

Forget about the lumps, do not overbeat! For just a basic pancake recipe, for best results mix the dough and then let it rest, covered and refrigerated the night before. If the batter gets too thick, dilute with a little water, if too thin add a little flour. For a very light and delicate finished product separate the eggs. Add the yolk with other liquids and beat the egg whites to fold into the batter as the last step.

THE SECOND important item to remember is the surface of the griddle or pan you're using. If you have a new griddle or pan it may need to be seasoned before using. If the pan you are using isn't reserved just for pancakes and it isn't seasoned, you'll have to add a little oil during preheating.

The third important point is the evenness of the heat. Always preheat the griddle. Test the griddle by dropping a few drops of cold water, the water should bounce and sputter. If the water sits there and boils the griddle is not hot enough. A pour batter will spread in a widening circle until set by heat. When the bubbles appear on the upper surface, the cake is ready to turn over. If it is bubbling only in one area of the pancake, the heat is not evenly distributed, check your heat source.

Pancakes are turned over once. Serve them at once but if this is not possible, put a towel on a cookie sheet and make sure the pancakes are separated. Place in a 200 degree oven until ready to serve. Don't stack them on top of each other without a cloth between or the steam they produce will make them all flabby.

FRENCH PANCAKES or Crepes are served as a snack, for lunch, a supper dish or a dessert depending on the flavoring. Mixtures for crepes include chopped tomatoes and onions, sausage and cheese, grated cheese and crumbled bacon, asparagus or thin sliced smoked ham or turkey, or spread with just plain jelly and butter.

A crepe needs to be beaten until smooth, rest the batter for at least one hour, reblend batter and cook until set, turn over cook until done. Do not stack until completely cooled. After they are completely cooled, stack, wrap in foil refrigerate or freeze for later. Frozen crepes should be thawed in a cool oven.

Blintzes are a more lengthy process, however they can be made a day ahead and when you're ready to serve, brown quickly and serve hot. They are also higher in calories since they are browned on one side, filled and fried again to brown the outside.

The batter can be seasoned or add chopped nuts, candied fruits, wheat germ or flaked bran. Let the cereal or fruit rest in the liquid for about half an hour before cooking for best results. A lower calorie batter is very easy to do, and also cut down on the butter and syrup when eating. No matter, whenever you eat pancakes make sure they are perfect and a real taste treat, something different for dinner.

Pan-fried smelt springtime treat

See Larry Janes' taste buds on Taste front.

BEER BATTER FOR SMELT

2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 small clove garlic, finely minced
black pepper
about 1 cup beer

Sift together the flour and the baking powder. Add garlic and a twist of the peppermill, about ¼ teaspoon. Add just enough beer to make a batter, whisking with a wire whisk until smooth.

To cook smelt: Heat oil in fryer to about 375 degrees. (An electric skillet or deep-fat fryer works best, as will an electric wok). Dip smelt in batter and drop into hot oil. Cook, stirring occasionally until golden brown, about two minutes. Drain on paper towels and serve immediately.

CRACKER COATING FOR PAN FRYING

Chef's note: Momma always used Drake's batter mix both in it's dry form and as a wonderful ready-to-make batter, but this recipe is just as easy.

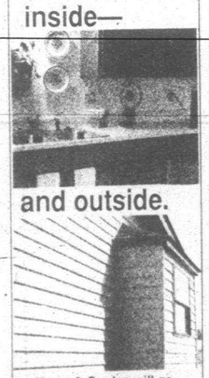

2 cups saltine cracker crumbs, finely crushed
2 eggs, beaten
¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons peanut or olive oil

Combine the cracker crumbs with the pepper and mix well. Dip the smelt in the egg wash, roll in crumb mixture, gently dip in egg wsh again and re-roll in crumbs. Set coated smelt on waxed paper lined plate until ready to pan-fry.

To pan-fry, heat butter or margarine in a heavy skilled until butter begins to sizzle. Stir in oil, and add coated smelt, being careful not to crowd the skillet. Cover over medium high heat for 2 minutes. Turn smelt over and continue to cook for 2 more minutes. Drain on paper towels and serve immediately.

For a wonderful addition, add ¼ cup slivered almonds to the skillet while cooking the smelt.

ADS THAT TELL ARE ADS THAT SELL.

Think of a kitten. Now think of a cute, cuddly, playful kitten that's just the perfect pet for your children. Which image is more inviting? Which copy would convince you to call about the kitten?

Ads that tell are ads that sell. Whether you're selling kittens or cars, camping gear or guitars, if your ad says more, it'll sell more. And writing a classified ad that gets results is easy when you follow the simple guidelines below.

Details do the work:

Include specific information about the item or service that you're offering. Put yourself in the shoes of a potential purchaser and provide that person with all of the information that you would desire when shopping for something. Describe the item in detail including color, size, age, condition, brand name and other attributes that would be of interest to people reading your ad. Avoid exaggerations and stick simply to the facts. Honesty is absolutely the best policy!

How and when are winners:

Make it easy for people to contact you about your classified ad by including your phone number and the hours that you're available to answer calls. Then commit those hours to taking calls remembering that, realistically, even the most persistent purchaser is frustrated by an unanswered phone. Don't risk missing the sale!

Price improves performance:

Always include the price of the item in the ad. Readers associate the value of an item with its price; by stating upfront what you're asking, you help shoppers make buying decisions. Surveys show that readers are more apt to call for more information when the price is included in the ad.

Consistency is the key: If you run the ad only once, you may miss the buyer most in need of what you have to offer. New readers refer to the classified columns every day, and a consistent ad program will provide better returns on your advertising message.

We're here to help:

Call us today for more information on how you can put an ad to work for you. We're here to help you create ads that will turn clutter into cash—quickly! We'll help you tell it so you're sure to sell it!

Imagine this:

Aid the reader in visualizing how he or she might use the item. You'll reap rewards much more quickly if you answer this all-important question asked by every buyer: "What's in it for me?" If you're selling a truck, for example, put the reader in the driver's seat by outlining the advantages—such as good gas mileage or hauling capabilities—offered by the particular make or model you have for sale.

Avoid abbreviations:

Confusing is not amusing! Don't turn off potential buyers by abbreviating the item's attributes. Although you may feel you're saving money by cutting down on the number of characters in the ad, your ad will only be economical if it gets results. Most readers will not take the time to decipher confusing ad copy and will move on to other ads that offer more complete information. Remember, if it's worth telling about, it's definitely worth spelling it out!

No Hazy days in L.A.

Band chooses to stay home in Detroit

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Grady Hazy band members hold up their EP as testament to their quest of mixing the most divergent styles — from reggae to thrash to pop — into four separate evocative musical statements. The band kicks off a series of shows in the metro area starting Friday, April 24, at Blondie's in Detroit.

Their bags were packed and ready to go, L.A. was outside their door. But Grady Hazy was smarter than that.

They could see through the smog, peer beyond the pretension and realized broken dreams and psychic fallout was what Los Angeles was all about. Grady Hazy came to their senses and stayed put in Detroit.

"The whole L.A. scene turned us off," said Alexander Scott, the band's guitarist and vocalist who was one of the leading proponents for the group to head west only a year ago.

Oh, there were other factors that turned the minds of Grady Hazy from California dreaming into Midwest realism.

For one, the band didn't have the money to fulfill their destiny. Also, Scott said they got a good deal to record at The Disc in Detroit.

And, yes, Scott is quick to add, he got a good job here after receiving his degree in industrial design from the Center of Creative Studies.

THINGS HAVEN'T been so bad in the less surreal, more subdued Detroit area, really.

Grady Hazy has a new bass player, an accomplished musician from Germany named Svez (replacing Alan Wigley). Club owners are calling them for bookings and they've just released a self-titled four song EP.

Four-song releases are usually to be mentioned in passing, often an interim project produced as a hint of things to come from a soon to be released all-encompassing major studio effort.

Grady Hazy is holding up their EP as a testament to their quest of mixing the most divergent styles — from reggae to thrash to pop — into four separate containers of virulent, evocative musical statements.

On "Grady Hazy" (Chaos Network), guitarist Terry Trout, drummer Mick Stone and Scott build solid structures using some of the aforementioned styles only to revel in their subsequent self-immolation within the base of the song.

Normally this would lend itself to a discordant, wholly fractured sound. Grady Hazy has mastered subtlety in their two-year existence, playing the tautness between a deliberate reggae-like pulse and the impulsiveness of a thrash guitar silo as in a number like "Lost Space" to ear-rendering extremes.

As a result, a semblance of a melody swaggers forward or an engaging lyric protrudes through the fray. There's nothing homogeneous here, no "Grady Hazy" sound per se.

At the very least Grady Hazy's songs ferment in their diversity, laying vulnerable to a complete re-interpretation at the whims of their creators. Band members, who all contribute in the songwriting effort, like it that way.

THE PROCESS of composing such material is obviously very painstaking, though.

"Maybe that emphasis (on completely different songs) is why we're only coming up with one new song a month," said Scott, providing insight to why the band released four-song EP. "To come up with substantive ideas, we scrap a lot of stuff. We're very critical of ourselves.

"There's a lot of pulling and tugging, but it's worth it."

A solid recording project should auger well with an established stage presence. Grady Hazy has long been lauded for their frenzied live shows in this area.

The band kicks off a series of shows in the area, starting Friday, April 24, at Blondie's in Detroit in support of the new EP.

"We get really wild onstage," Scott said. "We don't smash our instruments. Even if we could afford to buy new ones, we wouldn't smash them."

L.A. can wait.

Grady Hazy performs with Daddy Stitch and Mushroom Head Friday, April 24, at Blondie's, 21139 W. Seven Mile Road, east of Telegraph, Detroit. For information, call 535-8108.

STREET SENSE

It takes courage to travel the road of self discovery

Dear Barbara:
(I've read your interesting Livonia Observer column.)

HELP! I'm a healthy, bright, college-age male (23) with a big problem. I think I'm gay though my friends and family would never guess it. Of course, I'd like to change my sexual preference; who wants to be shunned by our "open-minded" society as a "faggot" or "queer"?

I know that many homosexuals write off their lifestyles as unchangeable or genetically based, which entitles them to act without guilt. While I find it horrid that we, as a society, chastise our own friends, family and neighbors who may be gay (as this causes needless suffering and helps nobody), I wonder whether homosexuality is a product of low self-esteem or neuroses based in childhood (as Ellis hypothesized).

What do you think? How would one, especially a virgin such as myself, "learn" to become heterosexual? I'm anxiously awaiting your answer!

Thanks!!

Confused and Closeted

P.S. I'm not religious and do not suffer from homophobia as far as friends are considered. I just fear the way society treats homosexuals and want to have the benefits of a "straight" relationship and marriage (including children).

I can't tell you in words how much agony this problem has caused me.

Dear C and C:

Yours is another courageous letter; I am honored to have received many in the past year.

Books have been written on the topic of homosexuality and its causes. Most recently a theory was developed by Simon LeVay, a biologist at San Diego's Salk Institute. He found that a small section of the brain in the gay men he studied was like the same section in women, and different from straight men's. He concludes from this research (it is very controversial) that homosexuality is genetically predetermined.

This position (not necessarily the research) is the official position of P-FLAG (Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays). They cite such statistics as the historically constant percentage of homosexual men in the population as proof.

Books have been written on the topic of homosexuality and its causes. Most recently a theory was developed by Simon LeVay, a biologist at San Diego's Salk Institute.

A different viewpoint has been put forth by various psychotherapists, most notably Charles Soccarides in New York. He says that he has successfully treated men like you who were highly motivated to be straight.

My own opinion is that the complicated nature/nurture equation is at work here as it is in most other aspects of human development. The relative impact of inheritance and environment is not measurable and is probably different for each of us. Often, motivation accounts for the difference.

I empathize with your anxiety over the exclusion and prejudice you will suffer if you are gay. It is an unfortunate reality of the world in which we live. On the other hand, I have known some gay men and women who, even with these bad odds, have happily found their niche.

Right now what is most important for you is that you stop running away and start finding out who you are. In the "Power of One," a recent movie, a young boy finds his courage with the help of a medicine man. His demons came from his environment; yours come from inside yourself. But you need to find your courage to stand up to them just as he did.

At present, your anxiety is blocking you from any real enjoyment in life, whether as a gay person or a straight person. Some people have gotten stuck in this position. It is painful and scary to begin the journey of self-knowledge, but it also offers the possibility of eventual relief. You will need a guide on this journey and so I recommend that you begin seeing a therapist.

In your letter, you stress that you are highly motivated to be heterosexual and live a conventional lifestyle. Your high motivation may put you in that group for which intensive psychotherapy has resulted in a heterosexual rather than homosexual orientation.

In most responses, I would say that the therapist should be unbiased. In your instance, I am sensitive to your goal and therefore recommend someone who truly believes it is possible to achieve it. The attitude of the therapist contributes greatly to the outcome.

If you will send me your name and address, which will be completely confidential, I will send you some names of therapists who can help you.

'The Babe' goes down swinging

tickets please

John Monaghan

After all these years, Hollywood still hasn't learned how to make movies about America's favorite pasttime. "The Babe," the new biography of slugger George Herman Ruth, strikes out despite the best efforts of star John Goodman.

The amazingly versatile actor has the size, good nature, and depth to play a convincing Bambino. Unfortunately, he is saddled with a script so full of standard baseball cliches that "The Babe" never makes good on its promise.

The movie opens with sweeping aerial shots of Yankee Stadium, often called "the house that Ruth built." Cinematographer Haskell Wexler lovingly careens over the seats and around the bases.

We are then thrust into grainy, sooty images of Ruth's early years at a Baltimore correctional facility for boys. The other kids mercilessly tease the ox-like Ruth until he picks up a bat and slugs a ball squarely through a church window.

THE REST of the film covers the basic periods of Ruth's up-and-down career, from record-breaking seasons with the Red Sox and Yankees to his waning years with the Braves. When he applies to be manager, his reputation as "incorrigable" catches up with him.

The movie has all the psychological answers. Rejection as a child, especially from his mother, fuels the problems that make Ruth nothing more than a grown-up baby. He wants to give children the love he missed. Dressed in a long fur coat, he piles kids into his expensive car and buys them new shoes. One little girl asks if he's Santa Claus.

And of course, there's the legendary story where Babe hits two homers for a dying boy, handled here in the schmaltziest manner possible.

At home, Babe's taste for the high life in the city costs him his country-loving first wife (Trini Alvarado). He finds a more understanding mate in a former Ziegfield showgirl (Kelly McGillis.)

Aside from the superb "Eight Men Out," baseball movies rarely let the sport speak for itself. Much of Ruth's time on the field is depicted in faked newsreel clips, slightly sped up, showing his lumbering skip around the bases. It would have been more interesting to run actual footage of Ruth, since we're seeing him basically from the stands anyway.

DIRECTOR ARTHUR Hiller delivers more corny scenes at the plate. We watch Babe swing in slow motion, hear the crack of the bat, then take in the awed expression of the fans, including freshfaced rookie Lou Gehrig who says, "he really is a God." Give us a break.

"The Babe" didn't necessarily have to rewrite the book on baseball movies, but it should give us a brighter picture of the golden days of the game. This image of the Babe is no different than that found on any baseball card — two-dimensional and very flat.

John Goodman has all the right swings as the legendary Babe Ruth in "The Babe." And although Goodman's great in the starring role, the movie strikes out.

"The Road to Rio"..(USA - 1947). April 22-26 (call for showtimes). Perhaps the best-loved of the Bob Hope-Bing Crosby "road movies," with Dorothy Lamour and a special appearance by the Andrews Sisters.

Looking the image helps make a band

By Joseph Hoffmann
special writer

Lucy's Alibi deems itself an alternative band, but a lot of their material comes across in the spirit and style of the late '60s.

They are a band that is just beginning to make its way onto Detroit and Canada's alternative sector.

"There are so many variables that go into choosing for your band members, it's not how well that they play. That is a real small factor, even though they should play well," said Keith Walsh, bassist and vocalist and founder of the local band.

"They have to look the image, have their own resources and be dependable. That is a real hard trait to find among musicians."

The look Walsh speaks of is visible in Lucy's Alibi's latest video, which is running on the Livonia Access Channel 13's "Half Hour Bower Hour." The video show features four of the band's songs: "Looking for Lucy," "A 100,000 Volts of Donna's Love," "Carol Ann" and "To the Bone."

All four songs are from the band's demo tape, "Where Were You When," which has led to some local gigs at places like Jamie's on 7, Walsh said.

THEIR SOUND is an exotic conglomerate of the new and old. At times, they sound like the Kinks, the Knack, the Smiths and the Clash all loosely rolled into one.

This comes out, in part, because of the multiple talents of each member. Ken Talbot, lead guitarist, believes in a direct approach to the instrument, citing Adrian Belew, Robert Fripp and Joe Satriani as influences. Robbie Vince, keyboardist, has a background playing Top-40 music and started out in the band playing guitar.

Tony Mitchell, who handles drums and back-up vocals, is the most seasoned musician in Lucy's Alibi having performed in a number of blues bands including Code Blue and Alisha and Allies.

Although they concentrate a considerable amount of their efforts on original material, they also rework their cover repertoire to give it their own trademark.

For instance, they do a reggae version of Jimi Hendrix's song "Fire," also a New York Dolls' version of the Beatles "I Saw Her Standing There."

Considering the divergent nature of these remakes they come across — for the most part — with a new enhanced flair.

Whether it's the hard driving "jungle beat" derived from Mitchell's syncopated drumming, the direct and permeating guitar of Talbot, the lambent keyboards of Vince, or the structural bass of Walsh, Lucy's Alibi has put together a broad approach to alternative music.

Lucy's Alibi performs Tuesday, May 5, at the Studio Lounge, 6921 Wayne, south of Warren Avenue, Westland. For information, call 729-2540.

Creating a whirlwind, alternative sound in Lucy's Alibi is Keith Walsh (left), vocalist and bassist; Ken Talbot, lead guitarist; Robbie Vince, keyboards and guitar; and Tony Mitchell, drummer and back-up vocalist.

Canton, Salem coast to easy victories

If the Centennial Educational Park girls soccer teams were frustrated after their scoreless tie last Monday, they vented those feelings Thursday with a pair of one-sided victories.

Plymouth Salem crushed visiting Walled Lake Central 9-0 while Plymouth Canton whipped host Walled Lake Western 8-0.

The No. 5-ranked Chiefs were still undefeated going into a Saturday game at Portage Central with a 6-0-1 mark.

Canton is 4-0 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association and can win the division title Monday, May 4, when it plays host to No. 10 Northville.

"I'm quite pleased with where we're at right now," Canton coach Don Smith said. "We're playing very solidly.

"WHAT WE need is some dry weather and a change of field (because the CEP field has been wet and muddy in the early spring), and we'll be ready to play when we come back."

The Chiefs built a 7-0 halftime lead against Western and coasted in the second half.

Leah Hutko scored half of the Canton goals and raised her season total to a team-leading six. Robyn Vachow, Becki Cifaldi, Mandy Salin and Rebekah Raymor scored one goal apiece.

Colleen Connell assisted on four goals, also giving her a team-high six in that category. Melissa Tomei had two assists while Alyson Noune and Cifaldi got one each.

Hutko and Salin, who has five goals and two assists, are tied for the Canton scoring leadership with 12 points each. Amy Tortora has nine (four goals and one assist), Connell eight (one and six). Britta Anderson has scored two goals and has one assist.

soccer

Junior goalkeeper Jori Welchans recorded her fifth shutout in seven games against Western and has allowed only three goals.

"THE (SALEM) game perked her up," Smith said. "I think she felt like she was on the next echelon. She made some nice saves and took the ball out of the air. She didn't make any mistakes back there, and she was under some pressure.

"She should be ready this year. At this point (in her career), she has to be one of the best goalkeepers around."

The No. 3-ranked Rocks went into spring vacation with a 2-0-1 record in the WLAA Lakes Division and 5-1-2 overall.

Salem, which resumes play Monday, April 27, at Northville, got some good news when it learned junior defender Shelby Carey's knee injury was not as serious as first thought.

Carey injured the knee in the Canton game last Monday and was thought to be done for the season, but Salem coach Ken Johnson said she might return in three weeks following a rehabilitation period.

The rout of Central was paced by junior striker Kris Goff, who also scored four goals and had one assist and became Salem's leading scorer. She has 10 goals and three assists for a team-high 23 points.

Caryn Tatterton contributed three goals and two assists, Mandy Drummond two goals and one assist, to the victory. Kelly Lukasik registered two assists and Sue Parrish one.

SALEM ATTEMPTED 20 shots while the Vikings had only three. Jenny Emmett and Mesha Chicon played one half each in goal for the Rocks.

"We passed the ball around nicely," Johnson said. "We had some shooting practice (after outshooting Canton in the second half and failing to score) and had some nice goals.

"They weren't just easy goals. We were doing some good things.

"In the big games, we've been defending well. We just need some extra goals to put us over the hump. This is a good confidence builder before the break."

Following Goff in team scoring are Tatterton with 20 points (eight goals and four assists), Drummond with 14 (five and four) and Erin Bagozzi with eight (two and four).

Jenny Garvey takes her cuts at the plate Wednesday, but her pitching played a bigger role in Salem's 5-3 victory over North Farmington.

Rocks, Chiefs earn WLAA softball wins

Jenny Garvey allowed two hits and received strong offensive support Wednesday from her teammates as Plymouth Salem beat host North Farmington 5-3 in a softball game.

The Rocks are 3-1 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association and 5-2 overall. The Raiders are 1-3 and 4-5.

Garvey, who walked six and struck out three, benefitted from three Salem runs in the second inning. Dawn Marrocco highlighted the inning with a two-run triple.

North scored one off Garvey in the fourth to pull within 3-1, but the Rocks added two in the fifth for a 5-1 lead.

The Raiders scored two more in the seventh on a bases-loaded fielder's choice by Tanya Proctor. The game and North's hopes for a rally ended with a flyout and a strikeout.

Salem collected nine hits off North pitcher Karen Seremet, who has had a decision in each North game.

"They hit the ball and we didn't," North coach Dave Brubaker said.

Emily Giuliani led Salem's attack with three hits in four at-bats and had one RBI. Kristin Stackpoole and Jenny Coleman each had two hits.

Allison Stein and Katie Bohnke had the North hits, while Jenny Holtzman received a bases-loaded walk for an RBI.

CANTON 17, WESTERN 4: Plymouth Canton junior hurler Kelly Holmes picked up her seventh win without a loss Wednesday in relief of starter Colleen Baker.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Emily Giuliani slides into home plate to score a Salem run in the softball victory.

The win kept Canton undefeated in eight games. The Chiefs are 4-0 in the WLAA Western Division and Western 1-3.

Baker allowed four Western runs on three hits and four walks before being replaced after 2⅓ innings. Holmes surrendered no hits and struck out six in her relief stint.

"I'm very pleased with Colleen," Canton coach Jim Arnold said. "She ran into trouble but it was not all her fault. We're 8-0 so it's hard not to be happy."

Junior shortstop Dani Mortiere was 2-for-2 with a double, triple and RBI. Senior left fielder Holly Miller delivered an RBI with a double.

CEP girls undefeated in track

Plymouth Canton has made a good start toward winning its eighth straight division title in girls track.

The Chiefs are 2-0 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association after waltzing past Livonia Franklin 100-28 Wednesday at Centennial Educational Park.

Karina Kilpelainen and Ndu Okwumabua won two events apiece for Canton, while Christie Saffron, Lana Boroditsch, Kathleen Landelius and Stephanie Gray had one individual victory each and helped the Chiefs win three relays.

Okwumabua sprinted to winning times of 13.6 in the 100-meter dash and 27.7 in the 200 dash. Kilpelainen won the high hurdles in 16.3 and the intermediates in 49.5.

Gray won the high jump (4-10), Saffron the 800 run (2:38.5) and Boroditsch the 1,600 run (5:40.5). Canton had one other winner, Selena Bastine in the discus (105-6).

Landelius and Boroditsch combined with Jennifer Warnke and Kim Gudeth to win the 3,200 relay in 10:59.4. Saffron, Meghan Baressi, Boroditsch and Gudeth put together a first-place time of 4:30.6 in the 1,600 relay.

The Chiefs also won the 800 relay with Shawn Champlin, Terri Scott, Gray and Alicia King finishing the race in 1:59.8. Franklin won the 400 relay (58.7).

Canton will be host for the Fifth Annual Lady Chief Relays on Saturday, April 25. The competition begins with the field events at 10 a.m.

Defending champ Brighton, Milford, Wyandotte, Dearborn Divine Child, Walled Lake Central and Plymouth Salem also will compete.

"We have five high-powered, high-caliber teams competing, and I think it could be one of the best top-to-bottom invitationals in the area this year," Canton coach George Przygodski said. "It's going to be one heckuva meet.

"I think Brighton has to be the favorite. They had an outstanding showing at the Spartan Relays and won the West Bloomfield Invitational. After that, it's up for grabs between four other schools (Canton, Salem, Milford and Wyandotte)."

PLYMOUTH SALEM also is unbeaten in dual meets after winning 93-35 over host Farmington on Wednesday.

The Rocks are 2-0 in the WLAA Lakes Division and 3-0 overall. It was the first defeat for the Falcons, who are 1-1 and 2-1, respectively.

Salem won all but two field events and had double individual winners in Sarah Makins and Tonya Wheeler, who also anchored two relays. Sarah Hamilton was part of three winning relays, Dana Driscoll and Marcia Parker two each.

Makins won both hurdles races, running 16.9 in the 100-meter high hurdles and 50.3 in the 300 intermediates. Wheeler ran times of 26.8 and 1:02.6 in the 200 and 400 dashes.

Hamilton ran the leadoff leg of the 400, 800 and 1,600 relays, and the Rocks posted respective times of 54.9, 1:53.3 and 4:20.2.

Driscoll, Parker and Benning comprised the remaining three quarters of the 400 relay team. Driscoll and Parker also were on the 800 unit, and Courtney Sheldon and Lynda Sebestyen formed the middle portion of the 1,600 team. Wheeler was the anchorperson on the latter two.

Stacey Witthoff was the lead runner on the 3,200 relay and also won the 800 run (2:29.9). Kelly Morante, Katie Heid and Nicole Zavisa combined with her to post a time of 10:47.8 in the relay.

Driscoll also won the long jump (14-½) and Benning the 100 dash (13.8). The Rocks got first places from Melissa Hopson in the high jump (5-0), Karen Boudreau in the 1,600 run (5:55.5) and Emily Farrell in the 3,200 run (12:32.4).

Becky Washnock was the only Farmington winner with first places in the shot put (31-5) and the discus (96-3).

"The girls did a super job," Salem coach Mark Gregor said. "They have a lot of momentum heading into the Easter break. We'll do some refining and hopefully came back with some hunger for continued success."

Rocks trounce Falcons

Plymouth Salem made another strong showing in boys track Wednesday, winning its second division dual meet 80-56 over visiting Farmington.

The Rocks are 2-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association and 2-1 overall. The Falcons are 1-1 and 1-2.

Salem junior Don Johnson demonstrated his versatility by winning a field event, a hurdles contest and a sprint race. He also assisted in Salem's 400-meter relay victory.

He won the long jump at 20-4, the 200 dash at 24.1 and the high hurdles at 15.5. In addition, he combined with Marcus Zevalkink, Todd Forbes and Justin Fisher to win the relay in 46.27.

Salem's Jayson McDonald won the 800 run (2:07) and anchored the winning 1,600 and 3,200 relay units.

Russ Polcyn, Mike Slone, Adam Bakowski and McDonald ran the former in 3:46.9, and it was Derek Cudini, Josh Stickney, Mike Wooters and McDonald running the latter in 8:48.

Fisher and Cudini also were individual winners, Fisher taking first place in the 100 dash (11.6) and Cudini in the 3,200 run (10:30).

The Rocks swept first place in the field events with Jeff Schumacher in the shot put (42-10), Dan Stevenson, discus (116-11), and Mark MacInnis, high jump (5-6). Salem's Brian Herc won the 300 intermediate hurdles with a 44.5 time.

Shamrocks sweep twinbill from Irish

Redford Catholic Central swept a baseball double-header Wednesday from host Harper Woods Notre Dame (7-5 and 5-1) to remain unbeaten in the Central Division of the Catholic League at 6-0. The Fighting Irish are 1-5.

Sophomore left-hander Dave Susalla was the winning pitcher in the first game, twice taking the mound in relief of starter Scott Kapla and working 3⅗ innings.

Susalla (2-0) allowed two hits but no runs, walked one and struck out four. Kapla returned in the bottom of the sixth after CC scored four times in the top half to lead 7-2, but Notre Dame used a combination of hits and errors to have a three-run rally.

Aaron Babicz, Kapla and Dan Gusoff had two hits apiece for the Shamrocks, who outhit the Irish 8-7. Babicz had two RBIs with a bases-loaded single in the sixth inning, and Gusoff scored three runs.

Gusoff pitched a complete game in the nightcap. The senior right-hander (2-0) scattered five hits, walked five and struck out six.

"He gave up a single and three walks in the first inning, but settled down after that," CC coach John Salter said. "He stepped in and pitched a pretty good game."

Kapla, George Charnley and Brian Hicks had two hits apiece as the Shamrocks outhit Notre Dame again 8-5. Charnley also had a sacrifice fly and two RBIs, and Hicks hit a solo home run.

CC was 7-0 overall going into a Saturday double-header against top-ranked Rochester, the Class A runner-up to Plymouth Salem last year.

HARRISON 6, FRANKLIN 5: Senior Mike Pesci pitched four innings of one-hit relief Wednesday as host Farmington Hills Harrison held on for a 6-5 baseball win over Livonia Franklin.

The Hawks are 5-1 overall and 3-1 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Pesci, who is 3-0 overall, came on in relief of starter Jeff Cislo, who allowed three runs on three hits and five walks in three innings of work.

"He had a tired arm today, because he pitched five innings Monday," Harrison coach John Herrington said. "But we were able to get four more innings out of him, so he's glad for the rest now (on spring vacation)."

Harrison owned a 4-3 lead at the end of three innings, but Franklin pushed across a run off in the top of the fourth to tie. But Harrison added two in the bottom of the inning to take the lead for good, 6-4.

Dan Hight started the fourth inning rally when he was safe at first base on a Franklin error. Matt Woolf sacrificed Hight to second base, and Ed Budor sent Hight home with a single for a 5-4 lead.

Budor advanced to second on a the throw to the plate and advanced to third base and then home on a pair of widle pitches for a 6-4 lead.

Bowlers plan for banquet season

10-pin alley
Al Harrison

THE REGULAR SEASON is coming to a close for most bowling leagues, if they haven't finished already.

This is the time when strikes and spares take a back seat to roast beef, chicken wings and the other usual fare that is served at league banquets. Each league has its own way of serving, whether it is a simple buffet or a sumptuous feast.

This is also when awards are handed out to the league champs and bowlers with high games and series and the pin money is distributed.

Most of the time, a hall or restaurant with banquet facilities is rented for this event. In the case of the Inter-Lodge League, a three-day weekend in Toledo with spouses will mark the end of the season. This is an example of how a large number of people and the willingness of a facility can make for a good deal.

This is the sixth straight year this league has been able to travel for an entire weekend. Some energy and hard work always goes into this effort, but the results are well worth it.

The Suburban Proprietors Traveling League has already finished the season and the banquet was held at one of the bowling centers. The buffet was paid for out of funds from the 50-50 raffle. Whatever and wherever your bowling banquet, watch those calories.

● Bill Funke bowled his third career perfect game last week in the Monday Men's League at Country Lanes in Farmington Hills.

Not bad, considering only a few months ago this bowler was ready to give up the game because of arthritis in his bowling hand. Funke found a small miracle that helped him. He was able to ease the pain and get back to excellent form, and he raised his average to more than 200 again.

I'll claim a little credit for this because I had a similar experience several years ago. The minor miracle? Simply a bit of cod liver oil every day.

It has worked for me; now it has worked for Funke as well. It can be purchased over the counter at most drug stores and there are no side effects. But there are no claims for a cure either. As in the case of Funke, it's worth a try.

HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Clark

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
A disappointment may turn out to be something that has happened for the best. Relationships may need some extra attention immediately.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Your past may be catching up with you, so perhaps this is the time to set things straight. Be honest with yourself and follow your heart.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Make those travel plans now. You need to get out of town and smell the roses, literally. Don't ask questions if you don't want to hear the answers.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)
You should take problems with co-workers and family members seriously. Your 'I know everything' attitude could get you into some big trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
Important events concerning children will send you into a tailspin. Do what you know is right without regrets. Don't worry about love.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
Domestic problems may be bothering you more than you realize. Take stock and determine the priorities in your personal and professional life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
Be wary of sharing secrets with anyone but those closest to you. Well-meaning people may think they have your best interest at heart, but they don't.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
If you are having trouble communicating, try writing down your ideas first. Spending a little time on yourself is the ticket for lagging spirits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
You are tired of broken promises, especially ones made to yourself. You will soon understand much that has baffled you in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
If you are bored, it's your own fault. Make life a game for a while. See how much you can accomplish in a short amount of time.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)
Try to see a certain situation from the other guy's point of view. You will surprise yourself with your own intuitive powers.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Throw caution to the wind and take charge of a troublesome situation. Listen to your intuition. You will accomplish a long-term goal soon.

Dual worlds collide for 'Miss Rose White'

Divided family clashes on reunion

By Dan Rice

Rose White arranged her life to fit the postwar American dream, complete with an advancing career at Macy's and the New York nightlife with the boy next door. But a family reunion shatters her illusions and returns her heritage. The Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation "Miss Rose White" airs Sunday, April 26, on NBC.

During the week, Rose (Kyra Sedgwick) climbs the Manhattan ladder alongside her Midwestern beau (D.B. Sweeney) and her fashionable friends. Every Friday night, however, Rose White reverts to Rayzel Weiss and goes to Brooklyn to share the Sabbath with her Polish/Jewish family. She has kept her dual worlds separate; her stern haberdasher father, Mordechai (Maximilian Schell), never vists her apartment and knows nothing of her Americanized identity. Rose enjoys practicing the Old World rituals with her loving aunt and uncle (Maureen Stapleton and Milton Selzer), but she is equally comfortable in her workaday ethnic denial.

Then Mordechai announces that Rose's long-lost sister Lusia (Amanda Plummer) has been rescued from a concentration camp and is coming to America, where she will live in Rose's apartment. Sketchy memories are triggered in Rose's mind of the separation from her now-deceased mother when she was 4 years old, and anxiety arises from the feeling that the Yiddish-speaking Lusia has no place in the world of career girl Rose White.

Lusia brings with her the answers to matters Rose had never questioned: Why did Mordechai leave his wife and Lusia behind when he and Rose immigrated to America, and more importantly, what were their fates in Poland? The exposure of family secrets and shame that left heartbreaking chasms between father and daughters creates an intense drama that will leave no viewer unmoved.

Barbara Lebow's play "A Shayna Maidel" (A Pretty Maiden) was the source material for the teleplay, which was penned by Anna Sandor. According to executive producer Marian Rees, Sandor, whose mother narrowly escaped her Nazi captors while en route to a death camp, brought a "sense of integrity" to the project.

Rees chose Richmond, Va., for the settings of Manhattan, Brooklyn and Poland because of its varied ethnic base and its suitable architecture. (An old tobacco warehouse was used for an Ellis Island-type immigration center.) She gives credit to the detail-minded costumers and art department, and especially cites the artful composition of director Joseph Sargent, who worked wonders with the limitations of the locales. "We had a great opportunity to create not only the look but the authentic sense of people and place," Rees says.

Kyra Sedgwick ("Born on the Fourth of July," "Mr. and Mrs. Bridge") creates a believable Rose whose guarded assimilation into American society transforms into a fervent desire to reclaim her past. She learns forgiveness, acceptance and that her father was wrong when he claimed all he could give her was his name. Maximilian Schell ("The Man in the Glass Booth") constructs an intense man who's sealed years of unspoken grief and pain within a hard exterior. But Amanda Plummer, the acclaimed actress of stage ("Agnes of God"), screen ("The Fisher King") and television ("L.A. Law"), is most memorable as the catalyst Lusia whose abandonment and suffering have not stifled her compassion. For as Lusia tells her sister, despite the years and miles, "Love never dies."

STAR NOTES

Carlin back on HBO for live performance

By Dan Rice

Counterculture comedian George Carlin, who in the 1960s created stand-up characters such as the "Hippy-Dippy Weatherman," says his material is "absolutely not" relaxing into mainstream humor. "If anything has happened," he says, "the mainstream has come to me."

George Carlin Live at the Paramount, which will air live from the Madison Square Garden theater on Saturday, April 25, is Carlin's eighth HBO special since 1977. He reports that among the topics touched on will be "man's psychosexual need to prove his potency by fighting wars, and golf courses for the homeless, which is an attack on the upper class."

The former radio disc jockey began his stand-up career in 1960, developing his style in folk clubs and coffeehouses. The late '60s brought much exposure on TV and the first of many successful comedy albums. His ultimate goal of acting was best realized with his role in Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure and its sequel, and then a fine turn in Prince of Tides.

Carlin derives his humor largely from the redundancies and oversimplifications of language. The social commentator strikes out against censorship and is amused by politics.

"I look on politics as a blood sport and high theater, and I enjoy it the same way I enjoy watching auto racing," Carlin says. "I'm in it for the accidents."

LET'S TALK

Was there romance among the 'Brady Bunch'?

By Taylor Michaels

Q: When I was growing up, my brother and I used to rush home from school to watch The Brady Bunch. I recently heard that Florence Henderson, who played Carol Brady, and Barry Williams, who played stepson Greg Brady, were romantically involved either during the series or after it was canceled. Could you clear this up? —Don Walker, Menominee, Mich.

A: Barry Williams' agent, Artists Group, Ltd., said they have "no knowledge of anything like that," but confirmed that Williams' tell-all book, Growing Up Brady, will be out in May. Perhaps it will reveal a bunch of Brady sour grapes.

Q: I'm a big fan of Alan Autry. I watch In the Heat of the Night every week. I think he makes the show worth watching. I would very much like to write him. Can you give me his address? —Kelly Humphrey, Chanute, Kan.

A: You can write the former Green Bay Packers quarterback in care of the show, NBC, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10112.

Q: I'm a great fan of Judith Light. My family and I watch Who's the Boss? every week. Where can we write her? —Ann Pellegrino, New Hyde Park, N.Y.

A: You can write her in care of the show, Capitol Cities/ABC, 77 West 66th Street, New York, N.Y., 10023. Who's the Boss? airs its final episode this Saturday, April 25, but Light has a six-episode contract for a new CBS comedy.

Q: My 7-year-old daughter is infatuated with the character Doogie Howser. Could you please send me an address where she can write to Neil Patrick Harris, who plays Doogie? She is inspired by him and wants to be a doctor when she grows up. —Connie and Allison Fellows, St. Cloud, Minn.

A: Write Neil Patrick Harris in care of Doogie Howser, M.D., Capitol Cities/ABC, 77 West 66th Street, New York, N.Y., 10023.

Q: I know the show is off the air, but could you tell me who thought up all the tricks MacGyver used to get out of sticky situations? —Laurie Johnson, Prescott, Ariz.

A: Paramount sources say the resourceful inventions of MacGyver, which airs its last first-run episode on Saturday, April 25, were usually created by the show's writers and occasionally by the producer. Star Richard Dean Anderson contributed ideas as well.

Barry Williams as Greg Brady

Q: I really love the show Designing Women, but I can't stand Julia Duffy. Actually I hate her. She has ruined every show she's been on. Will they ever take her off the show? I hope so. —A Reader, Knoxville, Tenn.

A: Many viewers are unhappy with the recent casting changes on Designing Women. The controversial exit of Delta Burke was not forgotten with the entrance of Duffy as Allison Sugarbaker. Duffy bailed out of ABC's Baby Talk following bad reviews, but that series suffered from a lame premise and poor writing. In all fairness, Duffy was generally enjoyed in her role on Newhart.

It has been reported that when CBS and Columbia Pictures Television, which produces Women, made the deal for next fall, one proviso imposed by the network was that Duffy does not return to the series. A possible overhaul of the series could include guest appearances by Jean Smart (Charlene), who had left the show to spend more time with her family, and the addition of Jackee as a regular (she will be introduced as Anthony's fiancee in this season's finale). This would mean a back-up job for the actress if The Royal Family ends its run.

SOAP TALK

Reader wants 'Days' without Vivian

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I've been a big fan of Days of Our Lives for a long time. I know all about the families and characters and so on. I just want to say that the character of Vivian Alamain should not be a part of it. The actress who plays Vivian is terrible. I don't understand why she had to come help Lawrence. Could you please explain why she is in Salem and what she is supposed to be doing?

I'd also like to know why, when Carly came to ask Lawrence for help in finding Bo and collapsed, did Vivian want to keep Carly ill? —Jody Young, Portland, Ore.

Dear Reader: Louise Sorel must be doing a great job as Vivian if you already dislike her so much. Vivian's sole purpose in life is to wreak havoc in other people's lives. In the coming weeks her devious scheming will ruin the lives of some of your favorite Salemites. Stay tuned.

Dear Candace: I've been watching Guiding Light for about 12 years and I love it. I'm so glad Mallet finally showed Harley how he feels about her. I'd also like to see Frank punch out Alan-Michael!

I'd like to know what happened to Mallet's leg. Did he really hurt it? He's been on crutches for a long time now! —Jennifer Compton, Walnut Ridge, Ark.

Dear Reader: Mark Derwin (Mallet) really did break his ankle and it required surgery. He is going through physical therapy and will be trading his crutches in for a cane very soon.

Dear Candace: I heard that Santa Barbara may be going off the air. Is this true? I hope not. I really like Jack Wagner, who plays Warren. He is a terrific singer. Could you tell me where I could write to him? —Tammy N., Knoxville, Tenn.

Dear Reader: It looks like Santa Barbara may be headed for soap opera heaven. There are some last ditch efforts going on to save the show, but it doesn't look promising. NBC is already gearing up to bring some new soaps on board.

You can write to Wagner in care of Jack Wagner Fan Club, P.O. Box 1608, St. Louis, Mo., 63188.

Send your comments to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.

BITS AND PIECES

Networks' series ideas limp along same lines

Network programmers have always tried to keep up with the Joneses, and the prospects for next fall indicate nothing different. For example, NBC recently debuted Mann & Machine, a drama revolving around a female cyborg police officer. Now ABC has produced a fall pilot called Running Delilah, starring Kim Cattrall as a spy who is half-cyborg. Both stories focus on the characters' search for their human identity. Other programming trends are found in the following projects being developed by the networks.

Both NBC and ABC think a TV kids-show host would make a good subject for a sitcom, so you might see Rise and Shine on the peacock network and Griffin Dunne as Graham on ABC.

If you can't think of anything new, go to the past. ABC will produce a pilot for the drama Charing Cross, sort of a medieval Bonanza starring Ione Skye, while Fox goes for laughs in the Middle Ages with Knight of the Realm. CBS may try out two other centuries with the 1800's frontier drama Medicine Woman, starring Jane Seymour and Mel Harris, and Ryan O'Neal as an amusing Philadelphia innkeeper in the year 1775.

Next week, this column looks at more of the silly and serious pilots the networks hope will fly.

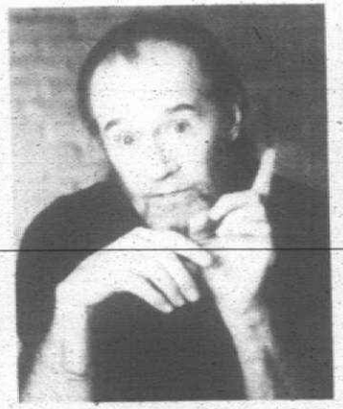

Kim Cattrall

Atta boy. The Greater New York Councils of the Boy Scouts of America has presented its annual Good Scout Award to Howard Stringer, president of CBS/Broadcast Group. Born in Cardiff, Wales, Stringer participated in scouting as a boy and earned the U.S. Army Commendation Medal in Vietnam. As executive producer of CBS Reports, Stringer helped garner 31 Emmys in six years. In 1986 he was appointed president of CBS news; in 1988 he became network head amid predictions that CBS would be the first of the big broadcasters to fold. This season, CBS is rated No. 1.

Fridays on NBC, James Coburn plays a sinister billionaire recluse in The Fifth Corner.

Debuting Saturday, George Carlin Live at the Paramount is the comic's eighth special for HBO.

Michael Ontkean plays a cop who learns an unhappy truth in Legacy of Lies, Wednesday on USA.

FAMILY FAIRE

'Bedtime Stories' nothing to snooze at

By Chris Carpenter

Shelley Duvall, who's been producing original cable programming for the little person lo these many years, is at it again. In a childlike voice that fluctuates between solemn whispers and squeaky exuberence, she introduces Shelley Duvall's Bedtime Stories, spotlighting two popular children's books per episode. The series premieres on Showtime Tuesday, April 19.

Duvall's previous success with Faerie Tale Theatre and Tall Tales and Legends paved the way for this series, which she also produces. But other than the brief observations she delivers from the midst of a pop-up book setting at the beginning and conclusion of the tales, Duvall's presence is secondary.

Primary consideration is wisely given to the delightful animation and narration, both of which brim with professionalism. From Jean Stapleton's New York dialect to Dudley Moore's unmistakably regal English, the voice-over cast Duvall assembles spins the animated tales as entertainingly as any of the actors picked to perform in her previous live-action series.

Duvall's stories are hand-picked from among the most cleverly written children's books available. At the end of the shows, she encourages kids to use their imaginations to draw pictures for stories of their own. In fact, the only thing this show may fail to do is put kids to sleep.

TIME OUT

Future NBA stars play prep ball on CBS

By Steve Paschal

Over the last decade Michael Jordan has become one of the most publicized athletes ever. So many people thrill to Jordan's NBA exploits and are eager to buy anything he eats, drinks or wears it's hard to imagine a time when practically nobody outside of Wilmington, N.C., had heard of him. That was before his first national exposure, in the McDonald's All-American high school basketball game.

Jordan is just one of many NBA stars to have played in the annual McDonald's classic since its inception in 1977. More than 97 percent have gone on to play major college ball, and 21 percent are playing in the NBA today. Selection committee chairman Morgan Wootten says those facts draw fans.

"From the fan's point of view, one of the biggest thrills they can imagine is being able to say that they saw a Magic Johnson or a Christian Laettner play high-school ball," says Wootten, who coaches DeMatha High School in Hyattsville, Md. "It gives them a chance to see some of the best players in the country compete in a game that raises money for worthy causes like Ronald McDonald House."

No one can say for sure that another Jordan will emerge from this year's game, which airs Saturday, April 25, on CBS' Sports Sunday. But with players like Jason Kidd, Rodrick Rhoades, Corliss Williamson and Othella Harrington on the rosters, it's possible.
