PC Schools seek millage hike

A $5.6 million budget deficit prompted the Plymouth Canton school board to put a 1.5-mill property tax increase on the June 8 ballot. Meanwhile, teachers rejected a proposal to accept a 5-percent pay increase this fall instead of a scheduled 7-percent increase.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Voters visiting the polls June 8 will be asked to approve for one year a property tax increase of 1.5 mills to raise operating revenue for the Plymouth-Canton school district.

The schools, with a budget next year of about $75 million, face a projected deficit of up to $5.6 million.

Meanwhile, the districts' 824 teachers by a 2-1 margin rejected reducing a scheduled salary increase for the coming school year by 2 percent, from 7 to 5 percent. The district offered a deal that would extend the current contract through 1993-94, with pay raise of 5 percent each year.

The property tax proposal, approved unanimously Monday by the school board, would raise about $2.8 million, enabling the district to make fewer cuts than proposed. Thus far, 156 teachers have been pink-slipped, and four administrative positions will go unfilled.

One mill is equal to $1 per $1,000 of the SEV, or state equalized valuation, which is half of the market value of a taxable property. For the owner of a $120,000 home, the levy would mean an added $90 in taxes. The district levies 36.15 total mills.

School officials say the revenue shortfall is the result of legislative actions including the property tax freeze, tax-base sharing with other districts, and a cap on Social Security payments to schools by the state.

The financial picture is further clouded by uncertainty surrounding "Robin Hood" proposals which would entirely phase out state funding of retirement and Social Security. The revenue from better-off districts would be given to poorer districts.

The teachers' negotiating team recommended that teachers reject the proposal. When asked if approving the 2-percent pay cut would save the jobs of pink-slipped teachers, "we were told they couldn't guarantee that," said Chuck Portelli, president of the teachers' union. "That's like putting a knife in our heart.

"It's a hard issue. Teachers want to help, but there has to be something in it for them.

Township government race heats up as 3 file for treasurer's office

■ Republican Supervisor Tom Yack remains unopposed for re-election, but clerk Loren Bennett, another Republican, has a fight on his hands in the person of Democrat Carol Bodenmiller. Three residents will tussle for the treasurer's job recently vacated when Jerry Brown resigned for health reasons. Democrat Elaine Kirchgatter, a current trustee, will take on Bruce Phillips in the August primary to see who gets to face Republican Tim McCurley in November's general election.

Ready, get set, go!

With Tuesday's filing deadline passed, Canton Township's slate of candidates have moved up to the starting line, ready for a six-month distance run. The prizes? Four years of opportunity to manipulate the township government.

Republican Supervisor Tom Yack remains unopposed for re-election, but clerk Loren Bennett, another Republican, has a fight on his hands in the person of Democrat Carol Bodenmiller.

Three residents will tussle for the treasurer's job recently vacated when Jerry Brown resigned for health reasons. Democrat Elaine Kirchgatter, a current trustee, will take on Bruce Phillips in the August primary to see who gets to face Republican Tim McCurley in November's general election.

Six Canton Republicans will square off in the primary for that party's four trustee slots. They are incumbents Bob Shefferly, John Burdziak and Phil LaJoy, and challengers Melissa McLaughlin (a planning commissioner), Catherine Tyree and Jim Panos (a zoning board of appeals member).

The four Republican winners will face Democrats Stuart Schuch and John Cleaver in the general election.

For the library board, incumbents Kathy Baldrica, Dave Bone, Jim Gillig and Bill Simmerer have filed, as has challenger Greg Stachura. With just five candidates for the six-member library board, it's conceivable that a write-in candidate could win election with one vote.

Six other residents took out petitions, but didn't return them. They are Sandra Preblich, Tom Hartnett, Bob Rowe, Ralph Shufeldt, Tom Blazer (all for trustee) and Patrick Haggerty (for treasurer).

Yack only candidate on ballot

Answer: "My brother is not named Bob Law," Yack said. "I think maybe that has something to do with it."

ELECTION

Although both Yack and Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Law are involved in the Western Townships Utility Authority's sewer project that has gained attention, Gerald Law has taken most of the heat.

Law announced last week that he wouldn't seek election as Plymouth Township supervisor, a post to which he was appointed after resigning from the state Legislature.

In his announcement, Law didn't cite WTUA as a reason for not running. He said he has spent 15 years in government and that it's time to move on.

Law's brother Bob is a partner in the firm that represents Canton, Plymouth and Northville townships, and does work for WTUA.

In recent months, Law and Plymouth Township trustees have come under fire from township residents after allegations were made that WTUA had incurred cost overruns and some connected to the township board had been employed by the project.

Law has rejected the allegations, claiming that those making them "have played loose with a lot of facts."

Canton trustee Bob Shefferly agreed with Yack. "I think (Gerald Law's) problem is that he's associated with his brother."

Shefferly also said Yack has "just been doing a good job and people realize it. He's close to the people."

In a light tone, Yack said he's probably unopposed because of "my good looks."

More seriously, he said, "I would hope it's because (the residents) think we're doing a good job."

It's not a surprise to him that he's unopposed. "If there were people interested, there would be lots of rumors," he said. "It would be a bigger surprise at this point if somebody did file."

Canton candy sale uncovers counterfeit bill

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

■ Canton police spokeswoman Tammie Colling said the bill was confirmed counterfeit. A Secret Service agent who requested anonymity said the $20 bill originated in the Middle East. The first counterfeit bill of that type was confiscated in the U.S. two years ago, he added.

Canton school teacher Denise Gimpel knew there was something odd about one of the $20 bills a student turned in during last month's candy sale.

"It was noticeably different from the rest of the money," she said. "It felt very different (and) I was asking other people what they thought about it."

Gimpel took the questionable bill with her to lunch one day at Pizza Hut and talked about it with friends.

A bank manager eating nearby overheard the conversation, introduced herself and examined the bill. She said the money was definitely counterfeit, Gimpel said.

The teacher then turned the funny money over to Ken Jacobs, the school district's area coordinator in charge of security matters. Jacobs gave the $20 bill to Canton police. Police then gave it to U.S. Secret Service agents in Detroit.

Canton police spokeswoman Tammie Colling said the bill was confirmed counterfeit. A Secret Service agent who requested anonymity said the $20 bill originated in the Middle East. The first counterfeit bill of that type was confiscated in the U.S. two years ago, he added.

The Secret Service tries to trace counterfeit money back to its source, the agent said. But this case is likely a dead end because none of the kids involved in the candy sale remember taking the counterfeit $20 bill, Gimpel said.

Plymouth primary to be crowded

By Brian Lysaght
Staff Writer

It's been a long time since Plymouth Township voters have evaluated so many candidates and so few incumbents.

There will be fewer incumbents on the August primary ballot than there have been in years. Come November, when new terms start, the township will have a new supervisor, a new clerk and at least two new trustees. But because all the candidates are Republicans, the Aug. 4 primary will decide the race.

Township officials and politicos say this election is unusual for the number of candidates. Among the reasons cited are dissatisfaction voters are feeling across the country toward elected officials, and, closer to home, changes about improprieties at the Western Townships Utilities Authority.

"I think some people saw vulnerability because of the WTUA thing," said Judith Horton, a long-time trustee who is not seeking re-election. He cited his wife Jeanne's health, and possible plans to move out of state. He had earlier announced his intention to run for supervisor.

There are four remaining supervisor candidates. Seven people are seeking four seats on the board of trustees (see related story), and two more are running for clerk. Treasurer Mary Brooks is unopposed.

Among the changes, Esther Hulsing is stepping down after 14 years as supervisor. Gerry Law, whose brother Robert Law was linked to alleged WTUA misdeeds, is leaving office after 1½ years. The former township trustee and state representative 1982-91 said he is leaving politics to seek a new career, but denies that WTUA charges has anything to do with his decision.

He also said that "if voters know the facts" about the sewer system, it won't be an issue in the election.

The last time an incumbent supervisor candidate was not on the ballot was the mid-1970s when Notebeaart took over from J.D. McLaren, who resigned.

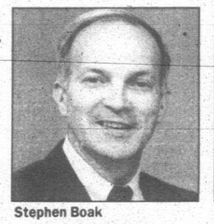
It is this summer's supervisor race that may be the most heated. It features Plymouth attorney Stephen Boak, 50; township building official Charles McIlhargey, 56; Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, 39, who challenged then-state Rep. Gerald Law in 1990; and township trustee and Plymouth attorney John Stewart, 42.

The job pays $64,000.

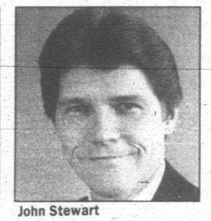
The candidates have until Friday to pull out of the race and not appear on the primary ballot. All four said Tuesday they were in the race for good.

Stewart fired a few opening salvos. He challenged Keen-McCarthy to detail her job history since 1972, and he suggested that McIlhargey will have the political support of Law and former township Supervisor Maurice Breen.

Law said he is not endorsing any candidate, though he may eventually. Breen, asked outside township hall Tuesday which candidate he will back, replied: "Me."



Stephen Boak



John Stewart

Kathleen Keen-McCarthy

Charles McIlhargey

Breen put together a formidable campaign organization during his tenure as township supervisor, 1970-72 and 80-91. He is now a Wayne County Commissioner, and faces three Republican primary opponents.

All the candidates suggested they plan to campaign vigorously but cleanly.

"I don't want it to be dirty," McIlhargey, said of the campaign. "I don't think a community like this deserves it."

Boak agreed.

"I don't think there's going to be a lot of mudslinging," he said.

Keen-McCarthy said rumors about the campaign, including who will run and who won't, "have changed hourly. I don't pay any attention to them."

"Teachers gave the bargaining team and the district a strong message," he said. "Take care of our needs today, this year, or you will use our money to repair dilapidated buildings so class size will be kept manageable as possible. Over the course of the agreement, keep our salary in line with other Wayne County districts."

"We are disappointed," said Superintendent John Hoben. "However, we understand and respect the right of this group to vote to accept or reject any offer. We will now be pursuing the other options available to us in trying to overcome the deficit which faces the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools."

Board members were reluctant to pass the millage request, but saw no other option.

"I think all of us are aware that 15 mills are not going to solve all our problems, but we have to something," said Trustee E.J. McClinton. "I think we should offer this as a means to limit cuts."

Said Trustee Dean Swartzweiter: "We don't know where we will end up, but in my judgment, based on everthing we have available right now, this covers half the projected deficit we will have. I view this as a way to get input from every voter who votes June 8."

Trustee Dave Artley said, "I don't think anyone has the deire to raise taxes, but the bail-out the state is doing leaves us with very few options at this point."

Trustee Les Walker said "We all recognize the timetable is short before the election. But I think our obligation is to educate and give people their opporutnity to help if that's what they're inclined to do. We are really asking the community in their insight to help us where they can."

The district's legislative liaison, Ray Buckman, urged the board to delay the millage proposal until August. It's impossible between now and June 8 to educate the public about the need for the increase, he said. Buckman's suggestion didn't fly with the board.

Filings yield no surprises

There were no last minute surprises among candidates filing petitions for Plymouth Township elected offices.

By the 4 p.m. Tuesday deadline, seven people filed for four open seats on the board of trustees, four people filed for supervisor and two for clerk. No one will challenge Treasurer Mary Brooks. All candidates are Republicans, meaning the Aug. 4 primary, not the November general election, will decide the contests.

The trustee hopefuls are:

- Kay Arnold, owner of a Plymouth collision shop and Republican activist.
- Charles Curmi, a Plymouth native and relative newcomer to local politics.
- Carol Davis, a member of the Plymouth District Library Board and former school board member.
- Ron Griffith, incumbent, a trustee since 1988 and dean of education services at Schoolcraft College.
- Abe Munfakh, incumbent, a trustee since 1984, and an engineer with the Ann Arbor firm of Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May, Inc.
- K.C. Mueller, a local real estate broker, who ran unsuccessfully for school board recently.
- Joseph VanEsley, who owns a Plymouth real estate company.

The candidates for clerk, a job Esther Hulsing has held since 1978, are:

- Marilyn Massengill, a township native and township employee for 23 years. For the last seven years she has been deputy clerk and an administrative assistant to Hulsing.
- Denise Radtke, an aide to Congressman Carl Pursell since 1977 who has been active in the Republican Party and community groups.

Running for supervisor, a position being vacated by Gerry Law, who was appointed last year, are:

- Stephen Boak, a Plymouth attorney and U.S. Army reservist.

Rude awakening

Group has volunteer upset

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

'I almost went out and did my collecting. I finally found out a lot. I was angry and astounded.'
Marlene Christie

Marlene Christie is disgusted.

When the Plymouth resident first received material from the Cancer Fund of America asking her to solicit funds door-to-door, she assumed she was being contacted by the American Cancer Society, for whom she's volunteered for five years.

When Christie, a registered nurse, took a closer look at the mailing, it rang a bell. She remembered seeing a televised "60 Minutes" investigation of the Cancer Fund of America. It revealed that while lots of money was coming in to the Cancer Fund, very little was being spent on patient services. Its president, Jim Reynolds, paid himself and his wife more than $100,000 last year, "60 Minutes" reported.

Cancer Fund door-to-door campaigns are under way this month in Plymouth, Canton, Garden City, Royal Oak and Grosse Pointe.

"I almost went out and did my collecting," said Christie, who works with cancer patients. "I finally found out a lot. I was angry and astounded."

Christie was so upset she wrote a letter to Reynolds at his Kansas address saying she did not want to be affiliated with his organization in any way.

"To use the disease of cancer for personal financial gain is unmerciful," she wrote. "The American Cancer Society is doing a fine service and to disservice them will be a price you will be accountable for sometime in your life."

Christie said she hopes homeowners approached by Fund volunteers will be assertive enough to ask, "Who are you with?"

The Cancer Fund, which also operates a sweepstakes contest, has been investigated by states including Georgia, Pennsylvania and Michigan, as well as the Council of Better Business Bureaus.

The letter Christie received asked her to visit five of her neighbors, "putting all contributions in the enclosed Volunteer Cancer Drive reply envelope and send them to our Volunteer Drive Processing Center.

"With your help, the Cancer Fund of America hopes to educate as many people as possible about the causes of cancer, as well as raise the needed funds to assist our neighbor Americans who are already suffering from this dreaded disease.

"If for some reason you are unable to visit your neighbors, I hope you will read and follow the enclosed cancer education materials. And please make your own contribution of at least $10 to support CFA's efforts."

Included in Christie's packet were pamphlets on diet and its link to cancer. Other information indicated the Cancer Fund took in $15 million last year, with 47 percent of the funds being spent on patient services and 28 percent "to public education in conjunction with fund-raising appeals."

Patti Avery of the American Cancer Society said when people asked the ACS about the Cancer Fund and other "look-alike" organizations: "We always give them the same advice. You need to ask for the annual report. That will delineate how much money is raised and how much is spent. If you want your money to go to patient services, you will be able to see that, as well as what they say they're going to spend on overhead or management.

"If people in Michigan need services such as hospital beds and transportation, they can get these services through the American Cancer Society," added Avery, who heads up the ACS door-to-door Community Crusade program. "If they can get them through the Cancer Fund, that's great, but I don't know of anyone who has been able to get these services."

The ACS does all its volunteer recruiting by phone. All CFA recruiting is done by mail.

Chris De Witt, spokesman for Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley, said Kelley took action against CFA when one of its fund-raising campaigns "ran afoul of Michigan's lottery laws.

"They were recommending that you won a prize in a lottery, and that you could send them a voided check made out for $7. A lot of people ended up sending them a contribution." The cost of sending the check back exceeded the winnings — just 10 cents, DeWitt said.

Disgusted: Nurse Marlene Christie, approached by a "look-alike" charity to solicit funds door-to-door, urges residents to ask questions before they donate to any organization.

Checking on charities makes good business sense

Carmel Weems of the Southfield-based Better Business Bureau says the Cancer Fund of America is considered a "copy cat charity that's been the subject of actions by attorneys general offices throughout the country."

They ask people to work as volunteers, going door-to-door asking their neighbors if they're willing to make contributions. That's the problem.

"They siphon off the reputation of legitimate charities. A lot of people mistake the Cancer Fund for the Michigan Cancer Foundation or the American Cancer Society," she said.

"We advise people to take a look at their canceled checks to make sure they're donating each year to the same organization."

Also, Weems said, "Check with the attorney general beforehand and look at the piece being sent to you. Have a clear understanding of who you're making a donation to."

Carolyn Mills works for the Georgia Office of Consumer Affairs which also has investigated the Cancer Fund. Her office offers these tips:

- Don't give on the spot. Think about it. Find out the exact purpose of the charity.
- Ask who is in charge of the organization, and get specific names.
- Request the organization's most recent annual financial report and ask what percentage of the gross contributions will be used to cover fund-raising. If it is more than 30 percent, don't contribute.
- Don't be influenced by celebrity endorsements. Sometimes the celebrity doesn't even know their name is being used.
- Don't contribute to organizations that use questionable techniques such as sending unordered merchandise after you've turned them down.
- Ask if the organizaton is registered in the state to do business, and whether or not they have tax exempt status with the IRS.

Law calls Stewart on his 'ethics'

By Brian Lysaght

ETHICS DISPUTE

In what could signal the start of an intense election for Plymouth Township supervisor, candidate John Stewart came under fire this week for hosting an alleged campaign fundraiser at township park.

Stewart and supporters say it was a birthday party featuring pizza and birthday cake.

Supervisor Gerry Law says tickets and mailings to the May 8 party show it to be a fundraiser, a violation of the township's ethics policy.

"The question has to do with Mr. Stewart using township property for personal gain," says Law. That's prohibited by the township's ethics policy.

The township Board of Ethics, better known as the Board of Trustees, will meet in coming weeks to consider the matter. The Board of Trustees voted 4-1 Tuesday to convene as the ethics board. Stewart cast the lone "no" vote, and Treasurer Mary Brooks and Trustee Abe Munfakh were absent.

Referring to Law, Stewart says he was "set up by the lowest of politicians, a man who I have asked to resign."

Stewart is one of four candidates for supervisor. Law surprised many by deciding not to run when his term expires in November.

Noting he is "not running for anything," Law says his motives were not political when he asked the township board to convene the ethics committee. It's the township's obligation to look into the matter, he says.

"One person asked me why they couldn't use township park to promote their candidate," the supervisor says.

Political fundraisers are banned from the park just as campaign literature is banned from township hall, he says.

Tickets to the party were $10 per couple or $15 per family, and about 125 people attended. The tickets were labeled "John Stewart for Supervisor," and in smaller print read: "John's 43rd Birthday and Fun(d)raiser."

"There was no profit to be made," says Robert Zaetta, an organizer.

In his application to use the park pavillion, Zaetta listed the gathering as a "birthday party," which Law suggests was misleading.

After holding a meeting or meetings to consider the complaint, the ethics board issue an opinion. There is not penalty if a violation is found. Stewart, because he is the subject of the complaint, will not take part in board deliberations.

Canton police arrest speeder, find gun

Canton police arrested a man shortly after 1 a.m. May 8 who was speeding, driving on a suspended license and carrying a loaded concealed weapon.

The man's 1987 Honda Civic was clocked at 68 miles per hour on eastbound Michigan Avenue. Upon checking the driver's record, the officer found the man's license was suspended, the police report says.

The man was asked if he had any weapons. "I might as well tell ya. I've got a gun," the police report says the man replied.

He pulled up his sweat shirt to reveal a Glock .40-caliber semiautomatic pistol stuffed into the waistband of his sweat pants.

The police officer checked the gun and found a magazine inside it containing 10 bullets. However, there was no bullet in the firing chamber, the report says.

CRIME

Flying bottle

She had been driving north on Haggerty Road near Palmer at 1:30 a.m. last Sunday when it happened. The bottle came from a car southbound on Haggerty.

Irate ex-babysitters

The car of a 26-year-old Canton woman was bombarded with raw eggs last weekend and she suspects two teenage babysitters she fired recently, the police report says.

The woman told police she has received "annoying telephone calls" from each of the ex-babysitters (a 12-year-old and a 14-year-old), who were fired for "stealing and snooping," the police report says.

The woman also told police that her car is not running right and she suspects the ex-babysitters put a contaminant in her gas tank.

Break-ins

A Honda lawn mower worth $700, a Black & Decker saw worth $150 and a set of First Flight golf clubs worth $350 were reported stolen Saturday from the garage of a house in the 46000 block of Polo.

Also, a Sears Rototiller worth $600 was reported stolen Sunday from the garage of a house in the 7500 block of Embassy Drive.

Shoplifting

An employee of Richardson's Drugs on Ford Road told police last Saturday that he caught a male customer stealing three packages of Trojan condoms. The man was arrested for retail fraud and taken to the police department, but released on bond.

Indecent exposure

A 21-year-old Canton woman told police she was victimized by a flasher at 3:10 a.m. last Saturday in a hallway of her apartment building on Nectar.

While she stood outside the apartment, a man entered the hallway, "took his pants/underwear down and began to masturbate," the police report says.

The man reportedly walked toward the woman, who ran to her car. The man ran after her, but she got away.

DO YOU KNOW THIS WOMAN?

Happy 40th, Linda!

Oakbrook Common—"It's Home"

"When my son suggested that I move from my large family home into an apartment at Oakbrook Common, I thought I would have to leave behind many of my things and give up my active lifestyle. After visiting Oakbrook Common I took my son's advice and I'm so happy I did."

"Nothing has changed. I was able to bring all of my things and I can be as active as I choose. Each morning, I enjoy watching the sun rise over my backyard and I have made many new friends. There's nothing I don't enjoy about living here. It's not an apartment, it's home."

City business owners didn't duck this rescue

A mother duck and her eight babies are safe now, after some caring people spent 4½ hours May 4 rescuing them from busy downtown Plymouth.

Charlene Miller, former owner of Baskets and Bows, 995 Ann Arbor Trail, said the excitement began when a mother duck leading her ducklings walked along Forest.

"A year ago at this time we figure it was the same mother — or maybe this year one of her offspring — was walking along Forest Avenue and the babies fell in the drain last year," Miller said.

Employees of Empra-Care IV, Inc. and others along Forest joined in the effort to rescue the ducks.

When the mother and her ducklings neared the drain again this year, "We wondered what could we do?"

The first thought was to put the ducklings in a box and take them to Wilcox Lake as they did last year.

"We went to Penniman Deli and asked Russ (Webster) if we could borrow a box, he jumped in his car and came over to help."

The next step was trying to get the mother to go with the babies. "But when he went to put an apron over her head, she flew up on the building," Miller said.

Calls to the Humane Society and other animal control places brought no response, until someone from Specialty Pet suggested they call Glen Cutright of Ann Arbor Wildlife Relocation.

After returning from a run in Ypsilanti, Cutright "got his net and took the babies and her to Tonquish Creek. At least the babies didn't end up in the drain again," Miller said.

"You hated to see something happen to them. She (the mother duck) wasn't scared of the cars.

"The moral of the story is we should have something local when something like this happens," Miller said, adding, "Some people do care."

Geake bill sets guidelines for rails-to-trails projects

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Cities and towns would have to be involved in planning rails-to-trails projects under bills moving through the state Senate.

"Nothing prevents the state from creating linear parks. But this sets specific criteria," said an aide to Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, sponsor of a key bill.

"Local units would have to be involved in plans for land use, law enforcement and facilities.

"There is liability protection for landowners (from suits by hikers or bicyclists who cross their property).

As railroads and the state have abandoned tracks in Michigan, hikers, bicyclists, equestrians and even snowmobilers have sought to convert them to trailways.

One parallels Paint Creek in northeastern Oakland County. Another runs from Livingston County to Jackson. A third goes from Kalamazoo to Grand Haven.

Adjacent property owners in Green Oak Township of Livingston County have stymied trailway plans by acquiring former railroad strips before the state could do so.

At the same time it advanced Geake's bill, the Senate moved a companion measure to make it easier for the state Department of Transportation to transfer unused rail lines into the trail system.

Sponsor James Barcia, D-Bay City, cited bad experiences in Bay County where adjacent property owners bought property and extended their lots before trailways could be established.

Geake's aide cited a Penn State University study showing trailways enhance the value of adjacent private property.

Senate passage is due this week.

Geake's bill declares that a system of trailways will provide public enjoyment, promote fitness, protect open space and preserve the land for future possible public use.

It lets the state Natural Resources Commission designate state trailways "only if potential negative impacts of trailway development on owners or residents of adjacent property are minimized" by:

- Promulgation and enforcement of rules.
- Maintenance of crossings for farmers.
- Fencing, where necessary.

NRC may contract with local units for maintenance and law enforcement. Two or more local units of government may establish a management council to run a trailway.

NRC may collect user fees, seek federal grants, accept gifts and charge private vendors such as utilities for use of the land.

A year-end surplus in the trailways fund cannot go into the general fund.

New fee to fund children's trust

For the first time since it was started a decade ago, the state children's trust fund will have its own source of funds.

The state Senate last week approved two bills to place a $4 charge on the issuance of birth certificates.

Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, sponsor of the bills, said it would produce an estimated $612,000 annually for state grants to combat child abuse.

So far the children's trust fund has been paid for only by voluntary checkoffs on state personal income tax returns.

An aide to Geake said donations reached $1.3 million in 1987 but tapered off to $1.1 million last year.

The state was running recession deficits when the fund was begun in 1982, so the Legislature adopted the voluntary contribution system.

Senate Bill 208, to impose the fee, was passed 31-1 with support from all area senators. SB 209, allocating the money to the children's trust fund, won 32-0 approval. Six senators were absent.

SC center offers free business advice

Schoolcraft College's Business Development Center (BDC) now has resources to help local businesses diversify into the government or international marketplace. Any business in Wayne, Oakland, Washtenaw or Livingston county can take advantage of the free assessments that are available.

For government contracting, the BDC offers a session every first and third Thursday entitled "How to Become a Government Contractor." This session answers questions on what it takes to become a successful government contractor, and what services and resources are available to a small business pursuing the government market. No fee is required to attend the session. However, registration is required.

For exporting, the BDC offers the CORE II assessment. CORE (Company Readiness to Export) II is an evaluation tool for companies interested in assessing their readiness to export products beyond domestic borders. The assessment was developed by S. Tamer Cavusgil of Michigan State University International Business Center. There is no fee for the assessment, but an appointment at the BDC at Schoolcraft is required to complete the assessment.

For more information on either program or to register, contact the Business Development Center at (313) 462-4438.

Early ambitions are not always realized

By Ralph R. Echtinaw

If there had been more music majors at Kent State University in the 1960s, Plymouth's police chief would probably be a band director today.

You see, Bob Scoggins played the trumpet while working toward a degree in music education at Kent State, and even studied for three years with the first-chair trumpeter of Cleveland's symphony orchestra.

However, three of Scoggins' classes were cancelled in his senior year because too few students signed up for them. Scoggins' draft standing subsequently metamorphosed from exempt status to that of grade A prime soldier material.

"From there my life changed," Scoggins said.

In short, Scoggins was drafted by the Air Force and compelled to become a military policeman. Although he left the service after one hitch, Scoggins never seriously played the trumpet again, and not at all in at least 10 years.

"It's a little loud and it gets on people's nerves at home," he said.

Like Scoggins' experience, the career aspirations that most people held in their youth bear little resemblence to the profession they ultimately landed in.

Take John Hoben, for example. The Plymouth/Canton schools superintendent "wanted to be a professional athlete" in his salad days.

Growing up in Adrian in the 1930s, Hoben trod the boards of the basketball court with great frequency. Upon graduation from college, he spent six years as a Marine Corps artillery officer in World War II, then played basketball for two seasons with the Toledo Jeeps, a professional hoop squad.

Hoben was even drafted by the Boston Celtics in the late '40s, but refused to report. "I gave (basketball) up when I found I was only 6-feet, 5-inches tall," he said.

Soon thereafter, Hoben went into teaching and coaching, which led to his current job.

Lisa Boland, general manager of Omnicom Cablevision, began her college career with visions of scalpels gaining primacy over her lesser dreams. "I wanted to be a doctor," she divulged. "I always had an interest in how the body works and the amazing things that medicine can do."

However, Boland had the misfortune to encounter three poor teachers simultaneously at Michigan State University in the late '70s.

"After three courses of horrendous professors, I said, 'No, this isn't for me.' It was very uninteresting and killed my desire to go into the medical field. Looking back, I'm sorry that I let my interest wander."

Boland proceeded to take a cable TV course, "fell in love with it," and climbed to the top of a major franchise.

"I was one of those kids that probably ran through a different career every two weeks," she said. "I was interested in everything, (but) it usually involved the medical field."

Johnson grew up in Detroit and graduated from Redford High School in 1969. From there she became a secretary, met her husband and bore a couple children (as opposed to delivering them).

"It's not a disappointment to me that I didn't pursue any of these (former dreams)," she said. "I find myself awfully busy. I really do not have any boring moments. My life has sort of taken over me."

Russ Webster, owner of Penniman Deli in Plymouth, "wanted to be a lot of different things" while growing up, but an attack of agricultural aspirations are what come to mind most readily.

"When I was very young I wanted to be a farmer," he revealed. "All it took (to change my mind) was a garden in the back yard."

But not everyone ends up doing something entirely different from what they thought they'd do.

Tom Yack was a school teacher in Westland until four years ago when he got himself elected Canton Township supervisor.

"I only remember thinking I was going to be a teacher," Yack said.

Growing up in the 1950s in Wyandotte, Yack had an inkling of artistic talent, but a vast resevoir of respect for Jim Taskof, his elementary school art teacher.

"(Taskof) was a warm individual you just wanted to be close to," Yack said. "He had more to do with me becoming a teacher than anybody."

Yack has even visited Taskof periodically since leaving grade school, most recently about five years ago. As for the supervisor's innate artistic talent . . . "I had a little artistic ability; just enough to be scary."

Myers took French, German and Spanish in high school and college in the '60s and '70s, but knows no tongue but English at present.

By Mary Klemic
Staff Writer

You didn't hear anyone singing "Happy Days Are Here Again," but those at the Arts Alive '92 rally Wednesday morning on the lawn of the state Capitol in Lansing weren't singing the blues, either.

The rally was sponsored by the Concerned Citizens for the Arts in Michigan and Michigan Advocates for the Arts. This is the third year a demonstration of support for the arts took place.

Last year's event, called Art Attack, solemnly noted cuts in state aid for the arts. This year's rally celebrated the strength of the arts in Michigan. Those present pledged and encouraged advocacy on behalf of the arts and seeking financial support from other sources.

"The arts are alive and well in Michigan," Judy Rapanos, chairwoman of the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, told the gathering of 200 people.

The committee, formed by Gov. John Engler in September 1991, will develop a new agenda of art support, Rapanos said.

"I expect and hope that you will see a blend of public and private support. I think you will see an emphasis on education. It is essential for young people to have creative opportunities in the schools. Creative problem solving helps all students in all areas of their curriculum.

"I think you will see a further development of partnerships. . . . A flourishing cultural environment is essential to this state."

Staying strong

The feeling was shared among comments from area representatives before the program began.

"I think we'll all persist. I think we're just going to see a rather conservative period," said Kenneth Gross, executive director of the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association. "I hope to see something exciting happen, some new energy from the recent graduates. I'm very committed to restoring some of the networks."

"I think we're going to stay as strong as we possibly can," said Susan Froelich, former interim executive director of the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

"(The past year proved) the arts have a lot of staying power."

"I don't know that funding will be better but I hope that things will be better, that communities will start coming together and talking about how to fund the arts," said Wally Klein of Birmingham, past president of Cultural Council of Birmingham Bloomfield and now with Business Volunteers for the Arts.

Challenges

Arthur Ellis, Department of Commerce director, explained how the arts council is a part of the department. The arts organization reports directly to him, he said.

"I make no attempt to influence, control or affect policy. The citizens are free from political encumbrances from me.

"Once we got the system stabilized we have been able to hold firm for no more reductions (in arts grants or appropriations in the state)."

Ellis pledged to change the process of the Michigan Equity Program to its original intent. Engler recommended that the grant program be eliminated. The House rejected the elimination.

Caucus formed

MAA president Alan Suits introduced members of the recently formed Legislative Arts Caucus. They include Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield; Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham; Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills; Sen. William Faust, D-Westland; and Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

"Thirty-three legislators have agreed to be not only supporters of the arts but genuine advocates of the arts," Suits said. "The best thing you can do is make your physical presence known to them."

The caucus is to, "try to build bridges to the Capitol and the community," Dolan, one of five caucus co-chairmen, said apart from the gathering. "Try to be more active locally, (have) arts promoted locally."

Arts Alive featured a student competition. Poems, drawings, photos and collages carried the theme, "What the Arts Mean to Me." Among the winners chosen from the 172 entries were Alec Sanger, 5, of Troy and Rebecca Berdy, 17, of Birmingham.

Alec said in a drawing that "Art Means Coloring." Berdy's poem, "Senses," declared that "Art is not only a word, but a feeling, moving and gripping. Dripping with substance, emotion."

"What would the world be like without art? It would be a pretty miserable place," the Seaholm senior said after the rally.

Those attending had the chance to sign a "Declaration of Arts Support," meant as a visual symbol. Free posters were distributed, and T-shirts, mugs, buttons and videos sold.

Funding fought

A counter demonstration was staged by a few protesters near where Arts Alive took place. The protesters, who said they supported art education but not taxpayer financing for the arts, carried signs with such messages as "The Bleeding Art State," "Tax money should buy roads, police and school books not 'art,'" "I don't need your money . . . why do they?" and "Real art doesn't need public funding."

"We are protesting public funding for the arts. Art should be self-supported," said one of the group, Greg Brodeur of Flint, a professional novelist.

The rally included time for constituents to meet with their legislators. Architect William Kessler gave a tour of the Michigan Historical Center, two blocks from the Capitol. The center featured art work by Michigan artists David Barr, Sergio De Giusti, Al Hinten, Richard Kozlow, Gerhardt Knodel and Glen Michaels.

Winning words: Rebecca Berdy of Birmingham, 17, was awarded a certificate signed by Governor John Engler. Berdy won in her age division in a competition. She wrote a poem telling what the arts mean to her.

Signs of support: Rosanne and Cameron Duncan, Concerned Citizens for the Arts president, look on as state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, examines buttons proclaiming "arts alive" and similar slogans. Mugs, T-shirts and videos were also sold at the rally.

Drawing dissent: A few protesters were on hand to say that art shouldn't be funded with public money. The protesters, including two professional novelists, said they did support art education.

Bills aim to boost retail, high-tech

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Cities would get new powers to promote retail commerce and high-tech industry under two bills before the state Senate.

The retail bill was pushed by Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, and high-tech bill by Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

"I have the same concerns in my district," said Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, whose Corporations and Economic Development Committee reported out the bills last week.

Bouchard's SB 582 was the more controversial. It more tightly defines the rules under which cities may use special assessments in areas defined as "principal shopping districts" to promote them.

The sticking point: the cap on the largest assessment, set in the bill at $20,000 for one store.

The Michigan Merchants Council, prodded by Jacobson's department stores, sought a $5,000 limit and refused Bouchard's offer to compromise at $12,500.

"We're back to a special interest bill. Our group views it as Birmingham retailers who couldn't bring it together in one focused front," said Chris Hindstratter of the Merchants Council.

But Peter Kuhnmuench of the Michigan Retailers Association liked it. "It's not limited to promotions. It can affect economic development activities."

"It's vital to economic development. It's not limited to one city," said Bouchard, adding that northern Michigan towns like Petoskey are supporting it as well as small cities in the metropolitan area like Royal Oak and Plymouth.

Bouchard's bill amends a 1963 act allowing special assessments for malls, pedestrian walkways and other physical improvements. Besides the $20,000 cap on a single assessment, changes include:

- At least 10 retailers must be affected.
- They could do market research, coperative advertising, public relations and promotions such as fashion events.

Mall owners can organize such projects, Bouchard said, but older downtowns lack such mechanism.

Clarifying amendments limited the assessment to the businesses, not property owners, and to the retail portions of buildings with upstairs apartments.

The $20,000 cap cost Bouchard one committee vote.

"It makes me, as a senator from Detroit, feel good to help those poor folks in Birmingham and the suburbs," said Sen. Michael O'Brien, D-Detroit.

But he voted no after the cap was raised to $20,000.

"I thought you wanted to help us," said Dillingham.

"I changed my mind," said O'Brien, and the bill came out on a 3-1 vote. (Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, was absent.)

Faxon's SB 677 extended for five years the time that high-technology firms — such as research, engineering and product development — can qualify for tax increment financing.

"We endorse the bill, and the Michigan Development and Financial Association endorses it," said Don Gross, Southfield's director of community developemnt.

High tech was "sunsetted" from the TIFA (Tax Increment Financing Act) last Dec. 31. If Faxon's bill becomes law, the new sunset-date will be the end of 1996.

With TIFAs, a city may "capture" an increase in property taxes in a defined district for city improvements within the district.

Eligible property includes real estate, machinery, equipment, furniture and fixtures used in agricultural processing, energy production, manufacturing and now high technology.

AROUND CANTON

Magic Ride

Bicycle riders raised more than $35,000 in pledges for child abuse and neglect organizations in four counties last Saturday in Canton's third annual Magic Ride, said Bill Joyner, director of the Canton Community Foundation.

Riders should be warned that the money they raised must be turned in by June 1.

School plan

Plymouth-Canton school district representatives told the Canton Planning Commission Monday what the new elemeatary school, on Warren between Beck and Canton Center roads, will look like.

Although commission Chairman Vic Gustafson had expected a controversial meeting, all was quite civil, according to commissioner Melissa McLaughlin.

The school representatives appeared as a courtesy to the township, seeing as how state law says school districts needn't comply with local zoning ordinances.

However, school district spokesman Dick Egli said Tuesday he "can't think of a zoning ordinance that we wouldn't comply with." And McLaughlin said the school district doesn't plan to put curbs alongside the new driveways, something the zoning ordinances require.

But overall McLaughlin is happy with the school district's stance. "I have no qualms with anything that's going on at this point," she said. District officials hope to begin construction this summer, Egli said.

Boy meets goalie

Gallimore Elementary School first grader Brian Finnerty is still waiting for Bryan "The Goose" Finnerty, Detroit Rockers goalie, to become famous so that they can be mistaken for one another.

But Brian met Bryan recently at Cobo Hall, and now Brian wants his personal number changed to 22, which would coincide nicely with Bryan's number. It seems that Brian plays soccer in Canton's parks and recreation league.

Literary laureates

PC schools honor budding local Shakespeares

■ The Plymouth and Canton area has its own budding Shakespeares in the schools and for the 11th year, the Laureate Prizes for Literature have been awarded in the schools.

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

There could just be another William Shakespeare or Emily Dickinson living in the Plymouth-Canton community.

If the quality of writing produced by winners of this year's Laureate Prizes for Literature is any indication, an abundance of literary talent exists in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Awards are given each year to elementary school students, and the winning entries are published in an anthology.

The program, now in its 11th year, was established "to just encourage young writers to keep writing and be creative," said Nancy Weycker, a fifth-grade teacher at Fiegel Elementary School in Plymouth Township and a laureate board member.

Students produce poetry, short stories, drama and other kinds of writing. They compete in the primary division, for kindergartners through third-graders, and the intermediate division, for fourth- and fifth-graders.

"We notice we're getting more and more poetry, which I think is interesting," Weycker said. Students are exposed to more poetry in the classroom, and thus are more likely to consider submitting such entries.

The judging process for awards begins the previous spring at each elementary school, and continues on through the district, with the laureate board making final decisions. That board includes teachers and learning specialists from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"By the time a book makes it that far, you can be sure it's high quality," she said. "It's really fun to be a judge. It's interesting. With kids, you just never know."

Themes of student work are varied, ranging from getting lost to having a family pet die. Students share their work in author circles, reading excerpts and offering feedback. One boy in Weycker's circle wrote a science fiction story.

"He loves to write in that genre." In recent years, more boys have been among the medalists, she said. Some honorees from previous years are among the 1991 winners.

Could any of the student writers go on to fame and glory as literary giants?

"Oh sure, why not? We've got all different kinds of styles of writing that were outstanding. We have a lot of really creative, bright kids in this school district," Weycker said.

Medalists in the primary division whose work will be published include: Devin Burnstein; Elizabeth Filios; Sarah Holmes; and Shauna Young. Intermediate division medalists are: Jane Glaza; Sara Harris; Amy Anderson; and Heidi Anderson.

Other medalists whose collections will be published in the anthology include: Matt Bright and Shanna Foley, both in the intermediate division. Special certificates for recognition went to Beth Goodhart and Tim McDonald in the intermediate division. Ryan Gairdner and Amy Retherford received special certificates for separate poems to be published, primary division, and Alysa Remsburg received such a certificate in the intermediate division.

Honorable mentions went to: Lauren Pine; Sean Rahman; Lauren Burniac; Heather Thompson; Jennifer Wagner; Mike Schultz; Kirsten Pine; Elizabeth Isakson; Lindsey Root; Faye Sheridan; and Vanessa Morsman.

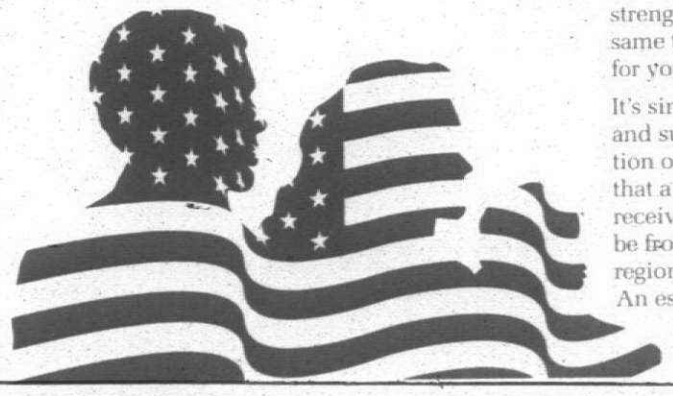
Runners-up are: Erin Harleton; Derek Lineberry; Matthew Fair; Kathleen Banks; Kathy Heskett; Chris Williams; Jason George; Katie Middlestead; Jill Oury; Alysa Remsburg; Magdha Kelkar; and Mike Mester. Special certificates went to Melanie Mester and Natalie Wood.

Weycker and other educators in the district are impressed with the quality of work produced even by very young students.

"It was just really surprising to me. You forget to challenge them as much as you can."

Many parents get involved in the project each year, helping students produce the best work possible. "They get encouragement and they just keep at it," Weycker said of the young authors.

SelectCare and WJR Radio ...
Salute the American Family
Nominate someone to win the $10,000 Spirit of Achievement Award ...



PRIZES
One $10,000 cash prize, two $5,000 cash prizes, and six family vacations at the Grand Traverse Resort will be given away.

American family members are reaching out to each other and to the community, making the world a better place to live.

We are offering a way for you to embrace the-American tradition and salute an American family that is making a contribution to strengthen family life. At the same time you may win prizes for your family.

It's simple. Fill out the entry form and submit written documentation of an honor or recognition that a member of your family has received. That recognition may be from a civic, community, regional or national organization. An essay of 150 to 200 words must accompany the application indicating why the family deserves recognition for achievement.

SelectCare, WJR Radio, Grand Traverse Resort and Better Homes and Gardens® Magazine are proud to be a part of an American family tradition, and to be honoring 100 families in the state of Michigan who exemplify the spirit of achievement.

selectcare® WJR The Leader Better Homes and Gardens

Official Rules for the Spirit of Achievement Award

1. All families residing in the State of Michigan are eligible to enter. Limit one entry per family.
2. A family member must submit documentation of an honor or recognition received by a member of that family. That recognition must be from a civic, community, regional or national organization.
3. This recognition should acknowledge that the family, or a member within the family, has demonstrated admirable accomplishments through community involvement, humanitarian, educational, environmental or other societal achievement that provides inspiration and/or example to others.
4. This documentation must be on official letterhead and verifiable. No entry will be accepted or deemed eligible unless this documentation is provided. Documentation of at least one honor or recognition is required.
5. An essay of 150 to 200 words must accompany the entry indicating why this family deserves recognition.* Entry must be original and previously unpublished.
6. Complete the official entry form or a 3½" x 5" card by printing your name, address, phone number with area code, city, state and zip code.
7. Entries with documentation and essay of 150 to 200 words must be mailed and postmarked no later than midnight June 30, 1992 to WJR Radio, Spirit of Achievement Award, 2100 Fisher Building, Detroit, Michigan, 48202. No responsibility for misdirected, lost, late or illegible mail.
8. On or about July 1992, a panel of independent judges not affiliated with SelectCare, WJR Radio, Grand Traverse Resort or Meredith Corporation will review all eligible entries and choose 100 families from the State of Michigan as winners of the Spirit of Achievement Award. The first place entry will receive $10,000, 2nd & 3rd will receive $5,000 each and 4th thru 9th will receive a one week family vacation at Grand Traverse Resort (Valid for 4 nights, 5 days Sunday - Thursday, room only, from date of award through April 15, 1993 subject to availability). Their decisions are final. Their criteria is based on sincerity and integrity of essay in equal weighting with quality of documented accomplishment.
9. All winning families will be notified by certified mail or phone.
10. All winning families will be invited to a banquet at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Dearborn, Michigan on Wednesday, September 16, 1992. A plaque will be presented to each winning family at this banquet. No substitution of prize permitted. All federal, state, and local taxes are the sole responsibility of the winner. Acceptance of prize offered constitutes permission to use winners name and/or likeness for purposes of advertising and trade without further compensation. Employees of WJR, Capital Cities/ABC, SelectCare, Grand Traverse Resort and Meredith Corporation are not eligible. All winners must sign affidavit of eligibility. Subject to all federal, state & local laws and regulations. Void where prohibited.

*This essay must demonstrate how the documented honor or recognition exemplifies traditional American family community service values.

The all-new program at Addison Oaks allows visitors to reserve a primitive or modern campsite through Labor Day. All summer reservations must be made by Monday, June 1.

"Campers can reserve a site for a minimum of two nights, but no more than 14 nights at a time. This program offers the convenience of securing a campsite early," Rob Coffey, park supervisor, said.

Participants can make reservations by mail or in person, Monday-Friday, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. The $4 reservation fee is payable by cash, check or VISA.

Friday and Saturday night dates must be reserved as a unit. No reservations for holiday weekdays are accepted.

The seven-day regular camping season begins Friday, May 15 at both parks.

Additionally, both Addison Oaks and Groveland Oaks will offer a special $2 off discount on single night camping fees, boat rental or all-day waterslide use. (Waterslide is only at Groveland Oaks).

The discount is valid only with a coupon from the Oakland County Parks. Coupons are available at both parks. The offer is good through Monday, Sept. 7.

The Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission is a member of the Michigan Association of Recreational Vehicles and the National Campers and Hikers Association.

It actively seeks and supports participation by persons with disabilities in its recreational programs and services. Participants are asked to call well in advance so their needs can be accommodated.

For more information, call Addison Oaks at 693-2432 or Groveland Oaks at 634-9811.

Addison Oaks County Park is on West Romeo Road, nine miles north of Rochester, near Oxford. Groveland Oaks County Park is on Dixie Highway, north of Grange Hall Road, near Holly.

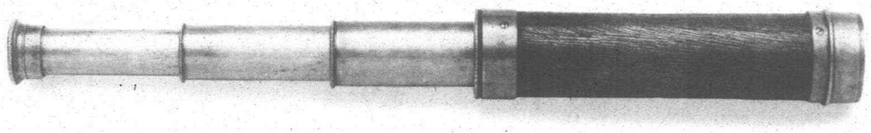
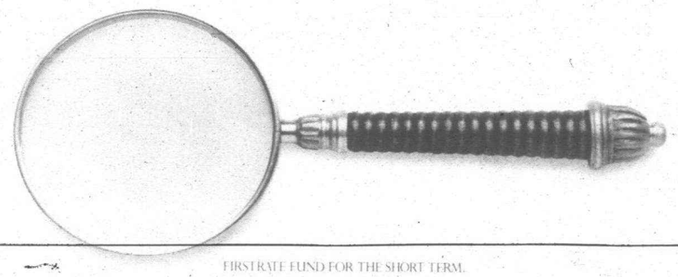
THE LONG AND SHORT OF MAKING MORE ON YOUR MONEY, WHATEVER YOUR ECONOMIC OUTLOOK.



RISING RATE CD FOR THE LONG TERM.



FIRSTRATE FUND FOR THE SHORT TERM.

The economy is recovering. But even the experts can't agree on what interest rates will do.

So First of America has two shrewd ways for you to invest. No matter what your strategy.

The long view.

If you think rates will drop or stay flat, you should go with a longer-term investment and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.*

It starts at a bonus rate of 5 percent per annum. And you'll end up earning 6½ percent for the final term. You can withdraw part or all of your money in the first ten days of every six-month interval without penalty. All it takes to get started is a $1000 deposit.

The short view.

If you predict rates will keep going up beyond this election year, invest short term with the FirstRate Fund.*

You'll make a bonus return of 5¾ percent per annum from the day you sign up through July 31.

So the sooner you invest the more you'll make. After July 31, the per annum rate is based on the weekly Treasury Bill. So if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it.

A new deposit of $10,000 is required, and you can get your money seven days after notifying us.

It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in these uncertain times.

Of course, your investments are FDIC insured up to $100,000 per depositor. And bonus offers are good through July 31.

5.75% FirstRate Fund Rate

*Sign up now and earn this bonus per annum rate through July 31.

Student exchange group seeks host families

The students include a girl from Brazil and a boy from Germany.

Lynne Levenbach of Plymouth Township is local coordinator for the non-profit American Institute for Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation. She is interviewing potential host families.

Levenbach has applications for several boys and girls who would like to live in this area next year. They are 15-18 years old and have solid academic records. They have studied English for at least three years and have the maturity and flexibility required for a year abroad.

A family can select a student from Germany, France, Brazil or one of 30 other countries. The students have their own spending money for personal expenses and full medical insurance. Host families are asked to treat the visitors like their own son or daughter.

Students arrive this August to begin the year with their new American classmates. They attend the local high school and carry a full course load. After families decide to play host and choose a student, letters are exchanged and the friendship begins.

Madonna sets sales class

Car salespeople seeking to polish their image may be interested in a Madonna University course beginning June 17.

The course is called "Do You Want to Sell Cars? How is Your Customer Service Index?" It is designed to hone the skills of salesmen and women and to bring dealer personnel in line with today's customer.

The class will be 6-10 p.m. on consecutive Wednesdays, June 17 through July 15, at a cost of $250. For more information, call 591-5188.

Seminar targets harassment

Sexual harassment in the workplace is the subject of a seminar offered June 8 at Madonna University.

Millage

Teachers hurt its chances

Just when you thought it was safe to send your kids to the Plymouth-Canton schools, the teachers and administrators showed they're not much better than a pack of Wall Street bankers intent on sucking every penny out of the school district with no thought to parents, students or taxpayers.

The district's 824 teachers rejected taking 2 percent less of a raise this fall in voting on Friday and Monday. The plan called for teachers to take a 5 percent raise this fall instead of a scheduled 7 percent pay hike. However, that 2 percent would be added to the following year's pay raise. That would mean teachers would receive a 5 percent pay increase for the next two years.

That's not bad in our current economy.

The district sought the contract concession from the teachers as a way to deal with a projected $5.6 million shortfall that has prompted the district to pink slip 156 teachers. Another part of the plan is a 1.5 mill property tax proposal on the June 8 ballot.

The teachers' vote turns the 1.5 mill proposal into an endangered species. But they aren't totally at fault. School administrators, most of whom are making $70,000 a year plus, are also to blame.

When quizzed about such freezes, administrators said they wouldn't ask the teachers to do anything they wouldn't do. They didn't deliver. If administrators were serious, they would have announced they were taking pay freezes before teachers voted.

The administration and board also bear some responsibility for the teacher rejection of the wage proposal. Union members sought assurances from the administration that if the teachers took a wage reduction, the jobs of some of the 156 pink-slipped teachers would be saved.

The board and administration dropped the ball. They couldn't come up with assurances that any certain number of jobs would be saved, if teachers took the hit in their salaries.

The result is another school mess. With less than a month to election, voters have little time to digest the budget deficit situation, the teachers' refusal to cooperate, administrative foot dragging and the proposed lay off of 156 teachers.

We suspect voters will reject the millage increase. But that wouldn't be all bad.

The school board could come back to the voters in the fall after the teachers and administrators put their pay freezes in order. Also, the situation with the state's budget and spending on education would have time to settle down.

Right now, voting for any school millage increase is like trying to hit a moving target.

Require female restroom equity

Whether a new Tiger Stadium is built or not, the Michigan Senate should adopt the bill to require more women's restrooms in public buildings.

The House, prompted by Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, overwhelmingly passed House Bill 4319 in mid-April. Complex in detail, it's simple in principle. The various plumbing codes should be amended by a single law that will require more stalls in women's restrooms. The goal is to avoid the long lines we've seen in theaters, stores, convention halls and stadiums.

It's a greater issue than the sight of women, eyes shielded, invading the men's room and causing giggles. It's greater than women's discomfort.

It's a health problem. Women get urinary tract infections from infrequent voiding, according to a 1979 study by a University of Michigan urologist.

A Virginia Tech study found that women require nearly 150 to 180 seconds versus 84 seconds for men to use a restroom. The Virginia Legislature in 1989 responded by requiring a 2-1 ratio of women's to men's stalls.

When female toilets are in short supply, their overuse tends to make them dirty, uncomfortable, plugged or broken. The problems are compounded.

Dolan pushed the bill this session because of heavy discussion over construction of a new baseball stadium in Detroit. Last weekend the University of Michigan announced it will renovate Hill Auditorium — a hall renowned for its acoustics but notorious for its shortage of female facilities. U-M should take note.

■ Dolan's bill addresses the problem of the sheer shortage of women's facilities. But as many mall shoppers have noticed, the problem is greater. Department stores have public restrooms but many stalls are cramped. Women shopping with toddlers have a terrible time.

Long known to women, the problem was publicized in many Observer & Eccentric newspapers seven years ago this week in a series by freelancer Penny Wright Steele. We made her documents available to state lawmakers.

Dolan's bill addresses the problem of the sheer shortage of women's facilities. But as many mall shoppers have noticed, the problem is greater. Department stores have public restrooms but seem to hide them. Many stalls are cramped. Women shopping with toddlers have a terrible time.

It's hard to write legislation dealing with those additional problems. Store managers and architects should face them as a matter of conscience and profit rather than because of the force of state law.

COMMUNITY VOICE

QUESTION:

The Plymouth-Canton school board will seek voter approval for a 1.5 mill property tax increase. Would you be inclined to vote yes or no?

We asked this question at the Canton Post Office.

"No. I think we should get more people in there who better utilize the money they already have."

Church lot not safe

The article written recently by Jeff Counts regarding traffic tickets (another form of taxation), received some criticism from your readers.

However, I agree with Mr. Counts.

I was stopped by an officer in Northville because I was going the wrong way on a one way driveway in a church parking lot. I received a ticket for not wearing a seat belt.

I was on private property coming onto a public street.

A church official where the ticket was issued said they have heard numerous complaints from parishioners who get ticketed in the parking lot. The police officer frequently sits across the street from the church.

I felt so strongly about the ticket that I went to court to challenge the ticket. The court sided with the officer.

I cannot help but think that the officer is taking advantage of a traffic situation that is confusing to the average driver.

It would seem fairer if the police just issued tickets for traffic offenses that take place on a public street instead of in a church parking lot.

Egg hunt a success

On behalf of the Plymouth/Canton Jaycees and the children of the Plymouth Community, I would like to thank the following individuals for helping to make the Jaycees 1992 Easter Egg Hunt a success:

1. Gary Hall, Plymouth Dental Associates.
2. Craig North, Kroger Food Store, Plymouth.
3. Foodland Distributors, Livonia.
4. Ann-Stark, Spartan Food Stores, Plymouth.
5. Douglas Dick, toy manager of Meijer, Westland.

I would also like to give a special thanks to Ron and Chris Lynn, without whose help the Easter bunny would not have been able to deliver the candy to the park on time.

Despite the drizzle, an estimated 500 children participated in the Easter egg hunt. It is only because of the efforts of non-Jaycee members like those above, that the Jaycees are able to put on successful events of this nature.

Minorities thrive in business

PHILIP POWER

For those old enough to remember the Detroit riot of 1967, seeing the violence in Los Angeles on TV was like a recurring nightmare.

I remember it vividly. Some of these newspapers were printed in the old Polish Daily News plant on Canfield Street. I took a crew of volunteers downtown to put out the papers while the riot raged. The sight of corner stores blazing and armed National Guardsmen patrolling the streets is forever burned in my memory.

What Los Angeles burned into many minds was that a lot of the burned and looted shops were owned by Koreans. Like Detroit 25 years earlier, many black store owners displayed "Black Owned" signs to avoid destruction.

This raises an ugly question we must ask if we are to avoid a continuing cycle of urban violence: Why are blacks less successful in starting businesses than Koreans, Chaldeans or Vietnamese, immigrants who arrived penniless and voiceless in America but now dominate commerce in many inner cities?

If the answer is blacks are unwilling to work hard to build a business, then the only appropriate response is to continue dependence on welfare and hope for the best.

I don't believe this is true. And neither does Larry Doss, a tough-minded Coopers & Lybrand partner who happens to be black and who ran the successful Inner City Business Improvement Forum in Detroit in the '60s and '70s.

Doss points to two business problems affecting blacks more than recent immigrants:

- Capital. Most black families have not accumulated enough wealth for business capital. Venture capital isn't easy to come by. That's true for many immigrants, too.

But many immigrant communities are very effective in financial networking, providing long-term and low-interest loans to their members. Think of Mike George and his enormous support to the Chaldean business community.

- Labor. Most immigrant businesses employ family members who work fantastic hours at very low pay to support a collective family enterprise. The structure of black families is much less stable than immigrant ones: 66 percent today are headed by single parents, up from 36 percent in 1970.

These factors suggest what can be — and has been — done in Michigan to help create a stable, thriving, urban middle class and prevent another explosion.

A minority business and industrial development company (BIDCO) was started last year and is lending to black entrepreneurs.

Banks in metro Detroit have put up $600,000 to help inner city folks build businesses.

For children, the Buddies in Business program at Greater Christ Baptist Church this summer will develop products, market them and learn the skills to make a business work.

Doss said the seeds planted two decades ago by ICBIF have grown. Today the Detroit area is "probably one of the top four cities in the country for black businesses — much better than Los Angeles."

Government programs have failed because they're blunt and imprecise, not targeted at the problems of real people.

People are realizing that resolving the problems of inner cities will come through thriving local businesses and a growing middle class.

POINTS OF VIEW

Can our suburbs serve up equal justice?

I wouldn't wear that if I were you, a passerby said to my husband at a Pontiac mall last week.

He was wearing a button denoting he was a juror, as instructed by the court during a lunch break from his duties in a murder trial in Oakland County Circuit Court.

It was the week following the verdict in the Rodney King beating, and apparently the backlash against that jury was so strong as to roll all the way across the country to splash up against a juror deliberating a completely unrelated case.

His was a case in which one drug dealer was charged with the murder of another drug dealer in Pontiac. There was no video but there was a body and a lot of conflicting testimony. The defendant was found guilty of the lesser charge of manslaughter, although the prosecution went for Murder 1.

But the trials had one thing in common: Both juries — the one in a suburb of Los Angeles and the other in a suburb of Detroit — were white and suburban. And they were being asked to try cases which involved inner city blacks.

A jury of their peers? Can the haves fairly try the have nots?

Our legal system relies on us all having a common vision of justice.

These days that vision may have broken down, a byproduct of unequal education, diminishing family life, less spirituality.

Our justice system also relies on the presumption that the police are our protectors.

Yet, blacks from Detroit say they are afraid to drive to our suburbs, because they are stopped by police merely for being black.

Our black suburban residents have been stopped — even in their own subdivisions — on the suspicion that they don't belong there.

It will be interesting to see how Philip Eagleson, a black resident of Troy, makes out in his law suit against the Troy police for violating his constitutional rights.

Last December, Eagleson was on his way home from graduate studies at Wayne State University when he was pulled over on Long Lake Road, ordered out of his car, questioned at gun point about his residence and told to hand over his driver's license.

After searching his car, Eagleson says, the officers told him there had been a robbery and he matched the description of the suspect because he was a black male.

Eagleson's suit contends illegal search and seizure, violation of his rights to equal protection under the law, racial intimidation and assault because a loaded gun was pointed at him.

Troy police maintain they followed proper procedures. Unfortunately, for suburban police, that often includes a predilection for stopping cars driven by blacks.

Whether or not Eagleson's suit is successful, it can serve to sound a warning to police in our suburbs — a warning that is overdue.

JUDITH DONER BERNE

■ The trials had one thing in common: Both juries — the one in a suburb of Los Angeles and the other in a suburb of Detroit — were white and suburban.

And a Happy Un-Mother's Day to all of you, too!

"Happy Father's Day!" said the voice on the phone. It was the mother-in-law.

"Aren't you a little confused?" I asked. "It's Mother's Day. I'm supposed to be wishing you a happy day."

"Well, I just figured that since it's Mother's Day and you're doing all the cooking and cleaning and laundry and stuff, that it's sort of a Father's Day, too."

"Right," I said. "I'll let you speak to your daughter."

"Hi, Mom."

"Happy Mother's Day!"

"Uh, Mom, aren't you a little confused? I'm supposed to wish you Happy Mother's Day."

I didn't hear the rest of the conversation. But if the mother-in-law had things a little mixed up, it's no wonder.

Mother's Day — the second Sunday in May according to a proclamation signed by Woodrow Wilson in 1914 — is one of those Hallmark occasions whose primary purpose has been to sell lots of greeting cards, flowers and dinners out.

It's the one day of the year when — in traditional families — mom is served breakfast in bed (burned toast and spilled orange juice), presented with flowers and homemade greeting cards and taken to dinner at Bill Knapp's (GOOD things to EAT at a reasonable price). The next day she gets to clean up the mess made by her attentive husband and kids.

It's the time of year when hard-boiled male columnists feel compelled to write heart-wrenching soliloquies about that "silver-haired momma of mine."

An Episcopal priest I once knew referred to the day as "St. Oedipus Day." He was a cynical sort.

But this is the '90s and traditions aren't what they used to be. Neither are families. More women (including mothers) work today than ever before. (Work outside the home, that is. I don't want to get any of those "household engineers" who write letters to Ann Landers on my case.)

Divorce is more common than it has ever been, "test tube babies" are about to become teenagers and genetic engineering is no longer limited to science fiction novels. Surrogate mothers have become the subject of philosophical treatises, religious ruminations and civil lawsuits. Single-parent families are not necessarily the result of divorce or death.

Mother's Day has become symbolic for a variety of special interest groups. The anti-abortion people like to use it as a time to hold vigils mourning the death of the unborn. Other groups use it as a time to protest violence against women. In Plymouth Township on Sunday, a group of activists staged a rally outside the Scott Regional Correctional Facility to demand equal rights for women in prison. A newspaper headlined the story: "For Moms in Prison."

And in Omaha, Neb., of all places, one woman ended up in the hospital and her mother in jail after they got into a fight over who was the better mother.

It's the '90s, all right. And the greeting card companies are right on top of things.

When I took the third-grader out to buy a card for her mother — and, yes, it was on Saturday before the Big Day — even I got confused. Now the "For Someone Who's Been Like a Mother to Me" variety has been around for years. So has "To a Dear Aunt on Mother's Day" and "To My Wife on Mother's Day."

But I had never before seen one that said "From One Single Mother to Another." It was there. A variety of cards said "To My Daughter on Mother's Day," and there were even more "For a Darling Granddaughter on Mother's Day."

So I figured that's why the mother-in-law was confused. If St. Hallmark says you should send your daughter Mother's Day greetings, it must be so.

Now I can't wait until Father's Day. I'll send cards to the mother-in-law, to The Feminist and to The Third Grader. Heck, I'll even send The Architecture Major a card: "To a Dear Son on Father's Day."

And if anyone tells me I'm confused, I'll say, "No way! It's the '90s. Silliness isn't only acceptable, it's the norm."

GOP, Dems agree on adoption points

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld's Commission on Adoption went over some of the same ground covered by a legislative panel headed by Rep. David Gubow.

On two key points, Republican Binsfeld's group and Democrat Gubow's group agreed:

- Adoptees should have greater access to medical and genetic information about their birth parents.
- Health insurers should be required to cover adopted children from the day they enter their new homes rather than a year later when the adoption becomes final.

A key difference is that Gubow's report calls for shortening the time for adoptions to be finalized from a year to six months. It also advocates permitting direct placement adoptions between birth parents and adoptive families.

Gubow of Huntington Woods headed a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee that worked 14 months before issuing its report in mid-March.

His bipartisan group held 13 public hearings and produced an agenda for legislative action.

Binsfeld, whose office isn't covered by the Open Meetings Act, met in closed session with her group for a year, producing its report at the end of April.

Binsfeld's report contains some items requiring legislative change but has a greater orientation toward social agency and administrative speedups.

They agreed Michigan's system is better than most others but still can stand improvement.

The direct placement question divided the two groups. Gubow's panel said:

"Almost all states allow biological parents who wish to place their child for adoption to choose the adoptive couple.

"Michigan remains only one of a few states to require a child placing agency to make the choice in all non-relative adoptions. Parents must release their child to the agency, which assumes the responsibility of finding satisfactory parents for the child and consenting to its adoption."

"Many agencies and workers feel black children 'only' should be placed with black families," said Gubow's panel. They argued that a black child needs to develop a strong racial identity and be prepared for inevitable racial bias. Lawmakers noted "there are more black children than available black homes."

Gubow's panel recommended only that DSS monitor agencies to assure they are following the law where there are insufficient numbers of black foster care and adoptive homes.

Binsfeld's group, after calling for recruiting of ethnically matched families, urged that "placement practices assure that children bonded with a family not be removed based on race."

S'craft alumni bowling benefit raises $6,500

Schoolcraft College alumni recently raised $6,500 in pledges during their fourth annual bowling benefit.

The money will be divided between the Juli Titmuss Endowment Scholarship Fund and the Chris Pykosz Olympic Fund.

The Julie Titmuss Scholarship was established by friends and family of the late college secretary. It is awarded each year to students who demonstrate a commitment to student and community service.

The Chris Pykosz Olympic Fund was established by the college student programming board to assist Pykosz, who has been selected to compete in the 1992 Disabled Olympics. Donations are still being accepted and can be made by calling 462-4400, Ext. 5047.

Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

Schoolcraft alumni group sponsors trip to zoo

Visit the Detroit Zoo with the Schoolcraft College Alumni Association on Saturday, May 16. The trip includes admission to the zoo, a covered tram tour of the zoo complete with docent guide, refreshments and balloons for the kids.

Canton golfers eye repeat

Plymouth Canton hopes to defend its title as Western Lakes Activities Association champion in girls golf Tuesday at Huron Meadows in Brighton.

The Chiefs, who improved their dual-meet record to 6-3 with a victory over Plymouth Salem at Brae Burn Golf Course Monday, will have to outshoot Northville to repeat, according to coach Dan Riggs.

But Canton lost by only eight strokes to the Mustangs in a dual last week, 206-214, and Riggs believes anything happen in the league meet. Northville is undefeated in the league.

"We're looking at the regional (Friday), but we're anxious for Tuesday and a chance to redeem ourselves," Riggs said. "The kids know it and I know it — you can't count out Canton. If we play well, we can sneak in there and win the league."

The Chiefs, who were unbeaten in dual meets last year and won their first WLAA title, have put together another successful season under the leadership of senior tri-captains Katie Konovaliv, Ann Vernon and Melissa King.

In the 211-244 win over Salem, Konovaliv shot 49, with Vernon one stroke back at 50. King, junior Audrey Meissner and sophomore Laura Schilling finished at 56 apiece.

The Rocks were led by Melissa Solberg's 54. Alicen Partain shot 60, Becky Koehl 63 and Jennifer Winkler 67.

"My senior kids have been with me four years and have always been consistent," Riggs said. "It's been a good season — obviously not as good as last year — but good. People are talking about Canton golf, and it's been a long time coming."

The regional meet begins shortly after 9 a.m. Friday at Oak Pointe in Brighton. The 18-hole WLAA event will have a 9:30 a.m. tee-off time. Huron Meadows is on Silver Lake Road, a quarter mile north of 23 Mile Road.

"The kids have talked about (winning the WLAA again) all year," Riggs said. "Like any sport, you hate to bring up the R word — repeat — but my girls have been pointing to the conference and want to do well."

Chiefs chase soccer title

The Plymouth Canton girls soccer team will attempt to win its second league championship in four years when it plays at Livonia Stevenson tonight in the Western Lakes Activities Association final.

The No. 2-ranked and undefeated Chiefs have an earlier 3-0 victory over the Spartans to their credit, but Stevenson all-stater Ragen Coyne didn't play in that game because she was overseas with a national team.

"They'll have their star back, so it will be a good test for us," Canton coach Don Smith said. "We played well the last time, and we're playing well against good teams.

"(Coyne) controls play for them a lot, but if we play as well as we did the last time I can't see one player changing things that much. If we play with the same intensity, we'll be hard to beat.

"But she is a very good ballplayer. She does a lot of things with the ball, and the other girls play better around her."

The Chiefs upped their record to 11-0-2 when they defeated visiting Troy 1-0 Saturday.

Melissa Tomei scored the only goal midway in the first half with an assist from Mandy Salin. Canton goalkeeper Jori Welchans got her ninth shutout of the season.

The Chiefs lost another starter to injury, this time sweeper Kathy Bahr, who might be done for the season with a knee injury. Forward Leah Hutko also is recovering from a knee injury but is not ready to return, according to Smith.

"The team is playing well as a group, and other girls have been filling in nicely," he said. "It's had some effect on the team, but sometimes the other girls play a little harder."

Chiefs capture WLAA

Canton junior Kelly Holmes was the losing pitcher two years ago when the Chiefs lost to Walled Lake Central in the WLAA softball final. The opposite happened Monday as Holmes pitched Canton to the title, 10-3 over the Vikings.

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Kelly Holmes easily recalled the last time she pitched a softball game against Walled Lake Central.

"I started and we lost 5-2, so this was a sort of payback," Holmes said after she hurled a one-hitter at the Vikings and guided host Plymouth Canton (18-2) to the Western Lakes Activities Association championship Monday, 10-3.

In what might be the worst outing of a three-year varsity career that has had few bad ones, Holmes gave up four runs in 2⅔ innings as a freshman when the same teams played for the title two years ago.

With the help of her teammates in the field and at the plate, she avenged the memory of that defeat with a stellar performance this time.

"She is probably the best pitcher we've faced this season," Central coach Gordon Glennie said. The Vikings have played seven of the top 10 teams in Class A.

Holmes coasted through four innings when, getting eight of her nine strikeouts and allowing just one baserunner, that because of an infield error.

But the Vikings (12-8), who lost to Livonia Franklin in the final last year, scored their only runs and cut the Canton lead to 4-3 in the fifth without a hit. After successive walks to Kathy Rabaut, Laura Drapal and Carrie Lacascio, two passed balls and a wild pitch led to the runs.

"My (right) side has been hurting, and both players who came home slid into my side with their knees," said Holmes, who walked only one other. "I just had a tough inning; I don't know how much that had to do with it."

But Holmes still had her no-hitter going until Danielle Roy spoiled that with an infield single in the sixth. Roy hit a line drive that glanced off the glove of an extended Holmes and rolled between first and second base.

"I wasn't really thinking about the no-hitter," Holmes said, "because the main goal was to win the conference — and, if I had a no-hitter, too, that would have been great."

Also playing key roles for No. 5-ranked Canton were Julie Nicastri, who was 3-for-4 and drove in four runs; Nicole Sequin, who reached base every time and scored four times; and Dani Mortiere, who took away some potential hits at shortstop.

The Chiefs responded with three runs

Hopson's HR wins for Salem

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Justice prevailed on behalf of Plymouth Salem baseball player Jeff Hopson Monday.

After seeing six potential homers stay in the park in reeent games, Hopson finally hit a ball over the fence to give the host Rocks a 6-5 win over Plymouth Canton.

With the Chiefs just two outs away from a victory, Hopson provided the seventh-inning heroics with a two-run homer, ending the game in favor of Salem.

"He said he didn't get it all, but this game has a way of paying you back for all the great swings you had with nothing to show for it," Salem coach John Graylin said.

"He probably won't have a bigger at-bat in his life than to hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh to beat Canton. Though the game didn't have a lot of significance, it's still a knock-down, drag-out game."

The Rocks trailed 5-4 going into the last inning. Chip Wadowski started the rally with a base hit and, following a strikeout, Hopson sent the ball over the left-field fence.

"We had the guys coming up in that inning who had the best shots," Graylin said. "I asked (Wadowski) to hit the home run, but he decided to single and give the glory to Hoppy."

Curt Singleton's RBI single gave Salem a 1-0 lead in the first inning, but the Chiefs got a three-run homer from Ben Hendricks in the third.

The Rocks tied it in the fourth. Eric Kida doubled and scored on a throwing error, which sent Jeff Kotlarczyk to third. Kotlarczyk went home on a wild pitch.

Canton loaded the bases in the fifth and scored two runs on a passed ball and a pop fly. Salem got within 5-4 in the sixth on Dan Hutchinson's RBI single.

Jeff Thursby pitched the last inning to get the win. Singleton started and allowed four runs in four-plus innings before Chris Tomas took over.

Jon Stimac also went four innings for Canton, but reliever Frank Learned got stuck with the loss. Mike Stafford was 3-for-4.

On Saturday, the Rocks suffered an early knockout in a single-elimination tournament in Midland, losing 3-0 to the host Chemics. Wadowski struck out six and gave up five hits while taking the loss.

Salem also missed senior shortstop Ed Gundry, who missed the tournament and Canton game with mononucleosis and is more than likely done for the season, according to Gravlin.

Rice scored five runs off CC starter and loser Bob Kummer in the bottom of the first for a 5-2 win in Game 1. Reliever Dan Guscff allowed one hit and no walks in six innings of relief, but Paul Kuhn's two hits were about all CC managed on offense.

Canton tourney champ

Sarah Schimmelpfenneg's grand slam served as a metaphor for Plymouth Canton's roll through the Farmington softball tournament Saturday.

The fifth-ranked Chiefs won four games, including a pair of mercy-rule victories, with relative ease to capture the championship.

Schimmelpfenneg, a senior outfielder, hit her home run in the second game — a 10-0 rout of Farmington in five innings. Overall, she was 4-for-8 with eight RBI and scored eight runs.

Nicole Sequin was another offensive leader, going 8-for-14 at the plate, scoring seven runs and driving in five runs with her bat. Michelle Metzger had four hits and seven RBI.

The Chiefs opened with a 5-0 win over Plymouth Salem in which Holmes pitched a one-hitter. She struck out 12 and walked two. Julie Nicastri and Laura Ciantar (two RBI) had two hits apiece.

"The Salem game is always a big rivalry, and the girls were ready to play them," Canton assistant coach Larry Bober said. "Getting that one out of the way set us up for the rest of the tournament."

Canton steamrolled the Falcons as Baker tossed a three-hitter, struck out six and didn't walk any. Renee Dory, Sequin and Metzger had two hits each.

The Chiefs mercied Birmingham Groves 19-3 in the next game. Baker allowed only three hits again, walked four and fanned two.

Schimmelpfenneg hit a three-run triple and Nicastri a two-run homer. In addition to those players, Metzger and Sequin had two hits also.

Canton defeated North Farmington 7-1 in the final. Holmes three-hit the Raiders, struck out seven and walked one. Karrie Drinkhahn and Sequin were 3-for-4, and Kate Strahan knocked in two runs with a triple.

For the tournament; Drinkhahn was 4-for-8 with four RBI, Strahan had three hits, collected four RBI and scored three runs and Nicastri was 4-for-8 and scored five runs.

in the bottom of the fifth to all but clinch the win. Nicastri, who also made several key plays at first base, had the big hit — a two-out, bases-loaded full-count, two-run single. The third run scored when a ball hit by Holly Miller was mishandled for an error.

"I said to myself 'If this is a strike or anything close, I'm going to hit it,' because that was what we needed," Nicastri said.

"I was in a slump for quite some time. But playing in the (Farmington) tournament last weekend, with all the at-bats, helped me get out of it."

The Chiefs gave Holmes a 3-0 advantage in the second, scoring on two walks and consecutive hits by Nicastri, Kate Strahan and Miller. Sequin made it 4-0 in the fourth when she raced home on a wild pitch and was safe when a collision with Central pitcher Carrie Cassinski knocked the ball loose.

"I felt a little at ease, but I remembered Salem was beating them 7-0 in the sixth inning and they came back with nine runs," Canton coach Jim Arnold said. "I told our kids to stay focused and play our game.

"This is probably the best team as far as a group of kids playing together. There are no individuals on this team; they're all very supportive."

Raiders romp in baseball final, 14-3

By Mike Rosenbaum
Staff Writer

None of the North Farmington batters hit the ball out of the infield in their first at-bat Monday in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship baseball game against visiting Walled Lake Western.

Given that fact, one would think the Warriors were in good shape at that point. They weren't.

After sending nine hitters to the plate, the host Raiders were still batting in the first inning, with a 4-0 lead and the bases loaded, on their way to a 10-run inning and a 14-3, five-inning mercy victory.

North, which won the Lakes Division title with an 8-2 record, improved to 12-3 overall. The Warriors, who took the Western Division crown with a 7-3 mark, fell to 9-8.

All of North's first-inning runs were unearned, thanks to three Warrior errors and a wild pitch. Another error and a passed ball allowed the Raiders to secure the victory with four, third-inning runs.

"We got lucky early," North coach Irv Horwitz said. "I don't think we could do this again to them. If we play 10 games, they'd probably all be one- or two-run games."

Even though the game wasn't pretty, Horwitz enjoyed the victory and seeing the Raiders win their first WLAA championship.

"It feels fantastic," he said. "It's the first time we've won the division. I didn't know what kind of chance we had to win the title."

North's leadoff man, Jack Wilks, started the decisive first inning by reaching base on an infield error, then stealing second. Mike Jehle drew a walk from starter Eric Christensen, and the pair advanced to second and third on a wild pitch.

With one out, Mark Temple grounded to third, but Matt Payton's throw home was too late and Wilks scored the game's first run.

"Christensen is an outstanding pitcher," Horwitz said. "We got on him and he got wild." Zielinski, he added, "was just not ready."

Zielinski, who had been playing first, enjoyed an extended warm-up but didn't look sharp as he walked Adam Stein and Jeff Barany, making the score 4-0.

Wilks batted for the second time in the inning and became the first North hitter to put a grass stain on the ball when he cleared the bases with a sharp double down the left-field line.

Jehle's double scored Wilks and made it 8-0. Jason Horwitz walked and Temple singled home Jehle. Horwitz scored the inning's final run on another infield error.

The Warriors scored twice against Temple in the second. With runners on first and second with two outs, Zack Budden singled home Payton. Craig Jenkins also scored on the play, following an outfield error.

In the top of the third, Derek Lindsay singled and Joe Kalhorn scored to trim North's lead to 10-3. But the keystone duo of shortstop Barany and second baseman Jehle turned a double play to stifle the Warriors' rally.

Kapla paces CC victories

Scott Kapla swung a mighty bat in both ends of a double-header Monday as Redford Catholic Central won two games from Harper Woods Notre Dame at Capitol Park, 14-5 and 13-5.

Kapla led off Game 1 with a solo home run and finished the 14-5 victory with three hits in four at-bats and two RBI. The senior went 2-for-3 in the second game, which ended in a 13-5 win for CC.

The Shamrocks are 16-3 overall, 11-3 in the Catholic League's Central Division.

Brian Paluk picked up the win in the opener in relief of starter Dave Susalla. The Shamrocks jumped out to a 3-0 lead after two innings but ND scored five off Susalla in the top of the third for a 5-3 lead.

Paluk allowed only two hits, no runs and seven strikeouts in the last 4⅓ innings.

Aaron Babicz had a solo homer in the first for the Shamrocks and Brian Hicks had a two-run homer in a four-run seventh.

Senior right-hander Brett Waller earned the win in the nightcap with a three-hitter over four innings of work. Pat Casey was 1-for-2 with a solo homer in the fifth. Aaron Rumberger clubbed a three-run homer in the fifth and finished with five RBI.

■ WILDCATS WIN TITLE

The Western Wayne Wildcats, an 11-and-under girls basketball team, won the state AAU championship Sunday with a 56-38 win over the Grand Rapids-based Western Lakers in the finals at Sandusky High. Nineteen teams competed in the weekend tournament.

Coached by Gary Schwan and Gary Warner, the Wildcats also defeated the Troy Angel- (68-6), Lakeside Hoops (63-24), Western Lakers (49-29) and Motor City Blazers (65-44) en route to the title.

The Wildcats will take a 13-game winning streak and 15-1 record into the AAU Nationals, beginning July 3 in Salt Lake City, Utah. They also won the Waterford St. Patrick's Tournament and UM-Go Blue Invitational.

The Wildcats' Laura Schneider of Canton Township was named MVP of the state tourney. Kristin Lukasik (Canton) and Laren Metaj (Northville) also made all-tourney.

Rounding out the Wildcats' squad are Lukasik, Ellen Stemme, Jenny Nowsone, Laine Sterling and Anne Kijek, all of Canton; Cassie Moore, Amanda Abraham and Angela Sillmon, all of Plymouth; Julie Warner, Livonia; Carrisa Gizicki, Taylor.

"It was neat how they developed as a unit," Schwan said. "And it was a team of local kids who were able to win and compete at the state level. They were able to put points on the board and they were fun to watch."

■ SINGLES TENNIS

The Spring Singles Tennis Tournament will be played June 5-7 at Canton High School. The entry fee is $8 per person and includes a T-shirt.

The age groups will be 14-under, 15-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49 and over-50 for males; 14-under, 15-19, over-20 and over-40 for females. USTA rules apply with two out of three sets. This is a single-elimination tournament.

Rocks anticipate district game

The Rocks got two goals apiece from Caryn Tatterton and Julie Thomas. The scoring was divided among eight players as Kris Goff, Mandy Drummond, Jodee Wilsher, Sue Parrish, Erin Bagozzi and Julie McGurrin tallied single goals.

Salem, 9-3-2 overall and ranked eighth in the state, played host to Northville in a WLAA crossover game Wednesday and will face No. 2 Plymouth Canton in the first round of district play Monday at Centennial Educational Park.

"We've had kind of a disappointing season," Salem coach, Ken Johnson said, meaning the Rocks had hoped to play Canton for the WLAA title instead of Livonia Stevenson.

"It's been pretty decent, but we haven't played to our potential. (The district game) will be the last chance to show what we can do. It's our chance to make something good happen."

The Rocks won't have all-state goalkeeper Jenny Emmett for the tournament, however.

She has not played since her doctor withdrew his consent from the medical card several weeks ago, thus ending her high school career.

Emmett will have a bone marrow transplant in June, and her doctors considered it too great a risk for her to continue playing. Mesha Chicon has been the full-time keeper in the absence of Emmett.

"Mesha is getting better each time," Johnson said. "I think it came early enough the other girls are resigned to it and getting confidence in her."

Goff, Mackenzie Emmett and Kelly Lukasik had two assists apiece in the rout of Western. Alexis Marinos, Sara Stubblefield and Drummond assisted on one goal each.

The Rocks also won a non-league game Saturday, 1-0 over Dearborn at CEP. Tatterton scored the goal with an assist from Shelby Carey. Salem outshot the Pioneers 15-6.

■ SOCCER

Marlins advance in soccer playoffs, 4-1

Farmington Hills Mercy, the regular-season Catholic League champ, scored four unanswered goals and rallied for a 4-1 win over visiting Madison Heights Bishop Foley in a first-round playoff soccer game Monday.

The Marlins (9-3-3 overall and 5-1-2 in the league) played a semifinal game Wednesday, with the winner advancing to the 2 p.m. title game Saturday at the University of Detroit-Jesuit High.

Trailing 1-0 at the start of the second half, the Marlins got on the scoreboard with a goal by Heather Richards. Mercy took the lead when Margaret Wirth set up Tania Maciocce for the second goal.

Theresa Cisco made it 3-1, with assists going to Maciocce and Flannery Campbell. Wirth finished the scoring off a pass from Maciocce.

Amy Watroba played the first 65 minutes in goal for Mercy before leaving the game with a thumb injury. Beth Chmielewski finished for the Marlins. Beth Ziobro played a good game at sweeper for

N. FARMINGTON 4, HARRISON 1: Two second-half breakaway goals by freshman Ali Lord clinched the win for the Raiders Monday.

North (4-6-1) opened the scoring when Jenny Kahn found the net on a corner kick by Lord. Later in the half, Angela Meluzió squeezed the ball by the Hawk goalie on a penalty kick from 25 yards out.

Harrison cut North's lead to one by scoring on a penalty kick early in the second half. Lord's two goals scored about 10 minutes apart, decided the issue in favor of the Raiders.

"I'm happy with our defensive line," North coach Kris Galczyk said. "We dominated the entire game. Most of the action was on the Harrison half of the field."

Trout need chance to survive

GREAT OUTDOORS

BILL PARKER

Ron Spitler leaned against the forest green pick-up truck and breathed a small sigh of relief. "It sure feels good," he said, as a smile slowly appeared on his face. And the Michigan Department of Natural Resources District 14 fisheries biologist had good reason to smile. After all, there were brown trout swimming in the upper stretches of Paint Creek.

The DNR has planted brown trout in Paint Creek since the early 1960's, but the fish never ventured into the upper four miles of the creek. Not until Monday that is, when the DNR planted 500 brown trout just beneath the dam at Lake Orion.

The construction of a bottom draw pipe at the base of the dam last year has lowered the water temperature in the upper part of the creek enough to enable the delicate trout to survive.

"The trout just love it," said Spitler, watching some of the browns dimple the surface of the cool water Monday afternoon. "We just ask that people will enjoy looking at them for now while we establish a population for fishing later on."

The planted fish are sub-legal size when released in the creek and won't reach the legal size of eight inches until later this summer. Anglers who insist upon fishing for the little ones stand a very good chance of killing the fish before it even reaches a legal size. You can't keep them anyway, so stay away from the creek for a month or so and give the fish a chance to acclimate themselves with the area.

Trout are cold water fish and thrive when stream temperatures hover in the 60's. Water in the lower section of the creek rarely gets above 65 degrees in the summer. But with warm surface water from Lake Orion flowing over the dam, the water temperature in the upper four miles of stream often reached 80 degrees during the middle of the summer — a temperature lethal to trout.

Paint Creek starts at Lake Orion and flows southeasterly through the Bald Mountain Recreation Area and into Rochester where it empties into the Clinton River. The creek is planted annually with brown trout and received 5,500 fish this spring.

Through the combined efforts of Trout Unlimited, the DNR, the Paint Creek Trailways Commission, the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation and many others concerned organizations the creek has been the recipient of a major facelift over the past few years. Log jams and debris have been removed and erosion control devices such as riprapping and log shoring have been added. The abandoned railroad grade which runs the length of ther creek has been upgraded and several stairways have been added to provide easy access to the stream for anglers and hikers alike.

In the spring of 1991, the DNR completed a major improvement by sinking the bottom draw pipe at the base of the dam. The pipe runs out 740 feet from the base of the dam and is anchored in 62-feet of water. The bottom draw only operates when water is flowing over the top of the dam but is expected to drop the temperature of the water in the creek by up to 10 degrees.

Unfortunately, due to bridge construction in downtown Lake Orion just 100-yards downstream from the dam, the bottom draw was not in operation last summer and Spitler and his staff had to wait until this year to analyze the water and stock trout in the upper stretches of the creek.

Paint Creek isn't the only stream in the area in which trout were introduced this spring. Earlier this month the DNR and members of the Western Wayne County Conservation Association planted 4,500 browns in the Johnson Drain, a tributary of the Rough River, in western Wayne County. It was the first trout plant in this section of the Rough River system in recent history.

Hopes are that the introduction of trout will create a sustaining fishery, but no fishing will be allowed this year.

(Anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi., 48009 or call Bill Parker Monday evenings at 644-1101, ext. 241.)

Alcock region's top golfer

Alcock totalled 225 strokes to outduel golfers from nine other junior colleges and win the NJCAA Region 12 Tournament, held Sunday and Monday at Bedford Valley Country Club.

Alcock carded rounds of 73, 75 and 77 to win by a single stroke over Tom Foster of St. Clair County CC. Alcock's performance landed him a spot on the all-region team and will allow him to travel to the NJCAA Division II National Tournament June 2-5 at Jekyll Island.

SC finished fourth in the 10-team regional. Lansing CC was first with a team total of 939, followed by Grand Rapids CC (945), St. Clair (954), SC (956), Vincennes (Ind.) CC (957), Lake Michigan CC (961), Sinclair CC (962), Muskegon CC (970), Oakland CC (997) and Cuyahoga (Ohio) CC (1,007).

Other Ocelot scorers were Darrin Kent, 76-77-85/238; Rick Quiton, 81-78-89/248; Troy Denomme, 81-87-81/249; and Scott Sandusky, 84-85-87/256.

At the Michigan Community College Athletic Association Golf Tournament May 5-6, held at Gull Lake View Golf Club near Kalamazoo, SC finished sixth out of 15 teams, a placing that qualified the Ocelots for the regional (the top seven advanced).

Lansing dominated the MCCAA tourney, winning with a 943 total. Grand Rapids was second (950), followed by Lake Michigan and Muskegon (968 each). Other regional qualifiers were St. Clair (979), SC (981) and Oakland CC (990).

SC's top four scorers were Kent, 82-79-86/247; Quiton, 82-81-88/251; Denomme, 80-86-87/253; and Sandusky, 77-88-90/255.

CC trackmen win division

Redford Catholic Central clinched the Central Division title Monday with a 99-29 win over Harper Woods Notre Dame in a dual meet at Redford Thurston.

Double-winners for CC (3-0-1) were Joe Suhajda, shot put (42-feet, 7-inches) and discus (127-7), and Freddie Taylor, long jump (18-8½) and 100-meter dash (11.6).

Other CC firsts: Kevin Roslinski, high jump (6-0); Marc Eden, 110 hurdles (15.2); Patt Paison, 300 hurdles (44.8); T.J. Kitchen, 400 (53.1); Steve Witek, 800 (1:59.1); Brian O'Reilly, 1,600 (4:47.1); and Jamie Fitzgerald, 3,200 (10:11.1).

Andy Radzialowski, Brandon Dalziel, Chris O'Keefe and Mike Dorrington added a win in the 3,200 relay (8:47.0).

The CC foursome of Brian Smith, O'Keefe, Radzialowski and Dorrington also won the 1,600 relay (3:47.0).

Taylor, Eden, Kitchen and Brady Pankow contributed a first in the 800 relay (1:36.7).

CC finished third with 73½ points in the Oxford Invitational behind Pontiac Central (75) and Pontiac Northern (74½).

Double-winners for the Shamrocks included Eden in the 110- and 300 hurdles in 14.8 and 40.2, respectively.

Other firsts for CC: Witek, 800 (2:01.2); and the 3,200 relay squad of Aaron Sheposh, Dalziel, O'Reilly and Witek (8:10.1).

Eric McKeon added a second in the 400 (50.1) and thirds in the 100 (10.9) and 200 (22.4).

Canton girls 2nd in relays

Plymouth Canton was second among 16 girls track teams Saturday in the Troy Athens Relays. Troy scored 59 points to win the meet, the Chiefs 45.

Canton won three field events, with the team of Selena Bastine, Stephanie Gray and Dawn Kersten taking first in the shot put (90-10½) and discus (268-9) relays.

Gray also teamed with Ndu Okwumabua and Olive Ikeh to win the high jump with a school-record total of 14-11.

The Chiefs, who placed in all but one of the 14 events, were second in the shuttle hurdle relay. Angela Fountain, Erin Olenech, Erin Shriber and Karina Kilpelainen had a combined time of 1:10.4.

Kim Gudeth, Christie Saffron and Lana Boroditsch helped Canton get third place in the 3,200-meter and distance medley relays.

They were joined by Jennifer Warnke in the 3,200 (10:16.7) and Kathleen Landelius in the medley (13:26.6).

Amateurs have super time at MOT

It's alot of fun and a lot of work for amateur performers in Michigan Opera Theatre's presentation of "Samson and Delilah".

Michigan Opera Theatre presents "Samson & Delilah" May 16, 20, 23 at Masonic Temple in Detroit. For times and tickets, call 874-SING.

BY BILL COUTANT
STAFF WRITER

Nikki Fayne most certainly will have opening night jitters when she takes the stage in Michigan Opera Theatre's production of "Samson and Delilah." Haven't heard of her? Can't find her name on the playbill?

That's because she's not listed. She's not even an opera singer. She's not a super star. She is a supernumerary.

Fayne, a 16-year-old junior at North Farmington High School, is one of the many unknowns who populate the Masonic Temple stage in Michigan Opera Theatre productions. Some, like Fayne, are interested in an acting or singing career. But most perform as amateurs in the true sense — for the love of it.

"I want to be an actress," she said. "Anything you can do to gain experience will help."

Shawn McIntyre, art administrator of a computer sales firm, would also like to further her part-time dancing career.

"I had heard through friends about it," she said. "I knew my dance background would be a plus for some parts."

Others, who have long given up on any dreams of an acting or singing career are still susceptible to the allure of the stage.

"I had performed in some high school productions and I liked being on stage again and being part of the action," said Jim Szalony a travel agent who lives in Farmington. "I was put into some roles that had a lot to them. As a soldier in 'La Boheme' I walked Musetta around the stage."

Szalony, who had not seen an opera before becoming a super, said his roommate, a member of the MOT chorus, talked him into trying the Masonic stage. He now considers himself a fan.

"Unfortunately, when you're a super, you don't get to see the opera," he said. "I saw acts one and three of "Romeo and Juliet."

Al Wisnieski, a systems analyst for Ford Motor Co. from West Bloomfield, had not attended an opera before becoming a super along with his wife Sally.

"It is a whole lot different than what I'd thought," said Wisnieski. "I thought it was a bunch of people yelling at the top of their lungs. But when you see the principals warming up and performing on stage, it's incredible."

Lots of fun

Supers can play almost any part in an opera, depending on the director's needs. MOT's production of "Samson and Delilah" requires eight body builders, "Candide" used supers to portray animals, the ever popular "Aida" uses large numbers of supers, while some operas use none at all.

"Some of the parts require certain skills," said Dee Dorsey, MOT production coordinator. "We have a core group of supers that we've used for many years. They usually call me."

"People just do it for the fun of it," Dorsey said.

"I've always loved opera," said the 28-year-old custom clothier. "I was talking to one of the performers about singing and decided I'd like to be a super. I had a wonderful time. Listening to the singers practice is great, even during rehearsals when they warm up their voices. You can tell that it takes so much training to sing like that."

Perniciaro's versatility was put to the test in "Candide" where she played two roles — a sheep and a Spanish dancer.

"I considered it to be a priviledge," she said. "Besides, I got free tickets for friends."

But, like the professional performers, stage hands and directors they work with, supers have to put in the hours. There can be 10 or more three-hour rehearsals for just three performances.

Lots of work

"It was a lot of fun — and a lot of work," said Mary Hall of Livonia. "We rehearsed for seven weeks. We did it so many times, by the time it came time to perform, it was like nothing."

Wisnieski said after long hours of practice, supers know their parts by heart, but there is still the occasional faux pas.

"You're working with the director," Wisnieski said. "If you make a mistake, nobody knows except you and him."

Well, usually.

"In Carmen, one of the Spanish dancers tripped going off the stage," Wisnieski said. "It was just on the corner of the stage. He was almost off, but it was comical."

The rehearsals are necessary, if only because of the number of people needed to bring off a performance.

"I never realized how many people it took to put something like that on," said Szalony.

"We'd been in community theater productions before," Wisnieski said. "But that was small scale. It takes so many different people. There are costume people, set people, painters — there are probably 150 people working on one production."

A super couple: Neal and Mary Hall of Livonia dressed the part for their performance as supernumeraries in Michigan Opera Theatre's "The Magic Flute." It was their first time performing as extras in an opera.

BBSO to salute freedom in Eastern Europe

Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony performs 7:30 p.m. Sunday, May 17 at Temple Beth El, 14 Mile & Telegraph Roads. For tickets, call 645-2276. Tickets also available at the door the night of the performance.

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra and conductor Felix Resnick close the 1991-92 season with a salute to "Eastern European Freedom" on May 17.

Dmitri Shostakovich's "Festival Overture" begins the program and represents Russia. Representing Poland, in his second appearance with the BBSO, pianist Leszek Bartkiewicz will perform Chopin's "Piano Concerto No. 2 in F minor." This composition was the last piece Bartkiewicz pefromed before he left Poland.

"Dances of Galanta" by Zoltan Kodlay symbolizes the country of Hungary. And a seldom heard composition by Estonian-born Edward Tubin, Symphony No. 4 in A Major, "Sinfonia lirico'",is also programmed.

This work, as the subtitle suggests, is very lyrical, almost pastoral in its overall feeling. The music was composed in 1943 when Estonia was occupied by the Germans.

JET's 'An Evening of Schisgal' memorable

Performances of the Jewish Ensemble Theatre production of "An Evening of Schisgal" continue through May 24 at the Aaron DeRoy Theatre at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield.

BARBARA MICHALS

Murray Schisgal's "A Need for Brussel Sprouts" and "74 Georgia Avenue" are two very disparate one-act plays paired under the boring title "An Evening of Schisgal" at the Jewish Ensemble Theatre.

As a playwright, Schisgal is best known for "Luv" and as a screenwriter for co-authoring "Tootsie," but his name is not a household word. So "An Evening with Schisgal" gives little hint of what to expect.

"Brussel Sprouts" is an urban romantic comedy, pleasant but unaffecting and uninspired except for its clever title. "Georgia Avenue" is a deeply moving comic drama about a man's need to believe in something stronger than himself.

In "Brussel Sprouts," struggling actor Leon Rose (Glen Allen Pruett) is a new tenant whose loud stereo annoys his upstairs neighbor. Unknown to Rose, his neighbor is an attractive policewoman (Annette DePetris) who is finally driven to pounding on his door and handing him a summons for noise violations.

In an effort to avoid the fine, Rose starts to court the officer. Soon each confesses a mistrust of the opposite sex based on their backgrounds of multiple failed marriages. Too bad, says Schisgal that men and women are stuck having to get along with each other when they are so very opposite, but there's just no choice but to keep trying.

As officer Margaret Heinz, DePetris nicely conveys the tough facade that hides the vulnerable woman underneath, while Pruett does a good job of capturing Rose's slightly inept quality.

"74 Georgia Avenue" is an address in an all-black section of Brooklyn that was once a Jewish neighborhood. Marty Robbins (Paul Hopper) has come back to the spot where he was born and raised in a vague effort to find himself by renewing his roots.

His sudden appearance, suitcase in hand, seems a nervy imposition to current occupant Joseph Watson (Harold Hogan), but the latter soon warms to his strange visitor.

As a youth, Watson hung around the old neighborhood synagogue a lot because his father was the janitor there. When Robbins and Watson reminisce about acquaintances from the past, Watson shows some old clothes and prayer books he rescued when the synagogue was torn down.

Whenever Watson dons the clothes of the old Jews he is mystically transformed into one of them. Demonstrating, Watson uses his assumed personage as a refuge from the pain of losing his beloved wife, while the transformation enables Robbins to relive conversations from his youth, and come to grips with a lot of his suppressed anger. Man, says Schisgal, has to have something strong to fall back on in order to survive the harsh buffetings of life.

As Watson, Hogan gives an extraordinary, moving performance both as the warm, sensitive husband devoted to his dying wife, and as Robbins' aged, crotchety grandfather.

While "An Evening of Schisgal" is uneven in many ways, Hogan and director Michael Tolan make "74 Geogia Avenue" a very worthwhile and memorable stage experience.

Pro Mozart Society prepares for concert

Pro Mozart Society of Greater Detroit, 33rd annual concert, 3 p.m. Sunday, May 17, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Freis Auditorium at 32 Lakeshore Drive, Grosse Pointe Farms. For information, call W.S. Palmer at 884-5113 or 885-0744.

Alice Haidostian of Bloomfield Hills has a love affair with music that goes back to her childhood. She was just four years old when her parents brought a piano into the house. Immediately, she discovered she could play by ear.

Her parents nurtured her talent by supporting a formal musical education and music has been her treasure ever since. Her brother is famed opera basso Ara Berberian of the MET who lives in Southfield.

Haidostian, married to Dr. Berj Haidostian, has never stopped appreciating music and is active on the Detroit Symphony board and the Pro Mozart Society of Greater Detroit where she is the board president.

Presently, the society is preparing for their 33rd annual concert which will pay tribute to Mozart and Gioacchino Rossini who was born 200 years ago in 1792.

Founded by Marguerite Kozenn Chajes, an Oakland County resident and Mozart devotee, the Mozart Society's purpose is to further educational and cultural activities, to grant scholarships to talented young musicians, and above all, to encourage appreciation of the music of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

The Observer & Eccentric NEWSPAPERS

Looking for someone special?

A bowling partner, a travel companion or someone to share your life?

Every Monday and Thursday your Observer & Eccentric Newspapers will publish a PERSONAL SCENE directory—listings of people who are looking for people.

PERSONAL SCENE has five classifications—men seeking women, women seeking men, people who want to share sports interests, seniors who need companionship and people who need someone with whom to travel.

PERSONAL SCENE also takes advantage of our electronic age. When you've composed your five-line listing, which will run free for eight issues, call 591-0900 and our ad takers will be happy to help you record your message so that it can be heard by people who are interested in what you've said in your ad.

You will never receive unwanted calls at your home; all responses will be recorded and left in your electronic PERSONAL SCENE message center.

Note: It will cost $1.49 per minute to check the responses to your listing.

Readers who wish to respond to a listing in our PERSONAL SCENE directory, may use a touch-tone telephone to call 591-0900 and the special number which will appear in each ad. The cost to do this is also $1.49 per minute.

hayride, but we want to branch out and be more pro-active (in the community)," said Elizabeth Kanter, a group founder and insurance agent for the American Benefits Group in Southfield.

"The more people we get involved, the more people we can help. In the past, we've raised money on a project basis. Now, with the help of volunteers, and hopefully some area corporations, we can help the community in another way."

But organizing an event that will involve a projected 500 people who will collect an estimated $45,000 has proven to be difficult. Already, an area corporation pulled out after offering to donate $15,000 to cover printing and distribution of hundreds of mailers, as well as all other organizational costs.

So Kanter was left to pay for the effort from collected donations — a task she felt was both risky and self-defeating. But last week, a publishing company in Troy and a law firm in Southfield offered grants that will help defray a portion of the event's start-up fees.

Volunteer Impact still needs additional donations — both monetary and physical — to coordinate what it hopes to be an annual event.

"Basically for the event to work we need volunteers, not only to go out and paint and repair homes and pack food boxes for the needy, but also to ask their friends and colleagues for pledges," said Kanter, a Southfield resident and 1979 graduate of Cranbrook School in Bloomfield Hills.

Bonnie Cohn, volunteer service coordinator for the Jewish Association for Residential Care in Southfield, which provides for adults with developmental disabilities, said a recent hayride sponsored by Volunteer Impact for residents would not have been possible without outside assistance.

"In the last few years, we've really seen young people reach out and make that extra effort to help others," she said. "And no one benefits more than our residents. They really get a big smile on their face when someone takes the time to care."

7,000 used cars for sale in Metro Detroit.

"If we could grab 10 percent of the used car market, I would be very happy," said Avedian, who hired six employees to help run the operation. "We feel we offer people a very viable alternative to selling their used cars through a newspaper or at a car dealership."

John DeBrabander, used car manager for Glassman Oldsmobile in Southfield, said he doubted the Auto Bazaar would have an impact on used car sales at the dealership, as many customers prefer the convenience of trading in their old car when buying a new model.

"Many of our customers also like the fact that they can purchase an extended service contract when they purchase a used car, which offers a lot of peace of mind," said DeBrabander. "At a place like the Auto Bazaar, you really don't know what you're getting."

By comparison, a classified ad in the Observer & Eccentric, which operates 12 suburban newspapers in Oakland and western Wayne counties, is $9.45 for one day for three lines, and $18.90 for two days. Papers are published every Monday and Thursday.

Fran Gillis, supervisor of classified ads for the Observer & Eccentric in Livonia, said it remains to be seen what impact the Auto Bazaar will have on used-car advertising for the suburban newspaper chain.

"This may be a last resort for people who have trouble selling their cars due to one reason or another," said Gillis. "The other drawback is the inconvenience of driving out to the Silverdome to set up."

In addition to cars and trucks, the Auto Bazaar welcomes boats, motorcycles and recreational vehicles.

Joe Tsao, director of marketing and events for the Silverdome, said the stadium signed a contract with Avedian for 14 weekends extending through August.

Avedian said he got the idea for Auto Bazaar from a friend in Los Angeles 10 years ago, but he said it took him this long to set up a Michigan version due to resistance from individual communities and area auto dealers.

"The biggest problem was finding a landmark site big enough to hold the Bazaar," said Avedian. "And then once you find a site, the cities and car dealers fight you all the way. Certainly, the car dealers see us as a threat."

Alas poor Yugo, I knew her well

AUTO TALK

DAN McCOSH

Now that we don't have Yugo to kick around any more, I have to confess that I will miss it.

Yugo of America closed for good a couple of weeks ago, listing $600,000 in assets against $15 million in liabilities, the sort of balance sheet only a Texas S&L operation would be comfortable with.

Yugo's demise marked the end of the last foreign car in the U.S. I don't mean imported — I mean truly foreign, a vehicle loaded with the kind of idiosyncrasies that used to tug at the heartstrings of the owner of, say, a Humber Super Snipe, or maybe an Austin America.

As a true foreign car, the Yugo was never any threat to anyone. It had the lousiest quality records seen in the U.S. in decades, mediocre fuel mileage, and weird handling. None of these in themselves would have kept it from at least modest success had it appeared 15 years or so ago, but it had the misfortune to appear just when the U.S. automotive scene was changing for all time.

The basic concept, to make a car so ridiculously cheap no one could afford not to buy one, ran afoul of today's staggering insurance costs and finance charges — which are so high you could give a new car away and still only the richest ten percent of the country could afford to drive it.

But even more important was the fact that it was made in Yugoslavia. Remember Yugoslavia? Americans have deep-seated prejudices about their cars, knowing that the French are cooks and lovers, Italians are only good at Ferraris, and Germans and Japanese are born with motor oil in their blood. Yugoslavia? That's the question you flunked in high school geography.

But of all the problems that plagued the Yugo, the most surprising was the hostility of the foreign-car magazines. Two decades ago, the Yugo would have been the darling of Road and Track, and Car and Driver would have been busy stuffing a 289 V-8 under its hood. Instead, the Yugo was dumped on, because it was slow, because it looked funny, because it was . . . well, foreign.

Yugo did all the right things to cultivate the media, taking them to Europe (well, all right, Yugoslavia), taking them on factory tours (big mistake); taking them to nude beaches . . . nothing seemed to work.

The magazines that coddled and promoted weird cars for all those years had changed. They saw only the flaws, none of the fun. The Yugo was an embarrassing reminder that the enthusiast magazines had grown up, sort of. Now they were owned by junk-bond conglomerates that kept an eagle eye on potential advertising revenues, and were perfectly aware of the state of hard currency in Yugoslavia.

With the Yugo folding in the midst of a bloody civil war, another question emerges. What in the world is going to pull the old Eastern bloc into 20th century commerce? It wasn't a great car, but it was the best effort ever seen in that part of the world to produce a viable export. A lot more has been lost with the end of the Yugo than just another weird automobile.

Advertisers aim at new horizons

BY GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

Talk about your captive audiences.

It used to be the only place you could escape the all-intrusive advertisements was to slip into the john.

Well, you can forget that too.

Privy Promotions, a Farmington Hills, firm specializes in getting a message across to the most captive of audiences — people waiting to use the bathroom during sporting events and concerts.

Sounds funny? Even chief financial officer Roger Avie said the company is willing to laugh a little about the concept, but be assured the business is serious about its idea and what it can do for advertisers.

The typical stadium audience is affluent, educated, and numerous. For example, if a stadium's annual attendance is roughly 3 million people, that could result in 100,000 people going through one restroom a year.

And it's worth noting, he said, "that they're going to be standing there for a long time."

"It's not a new idea," Raymond Malover, partner in Privy Promotions, said.

Other firms throughout the country are already advertising in restaurant lavatories. Generally, these advertisements take the form of poster-sized advertisements, usually split up among many smaller advertisements.

Complement, not compete

For $2,000, each advertisement gets special treatment — a 15-by-15 inch diamond with a marblesque matte border. Privy Promotions pays a royalty to the stadiums for each advertisement sold, he explained.

That price rents the space for a year and allows the advertiser to change the advertisement once a month.

"We're not looking to reinvent the wheel — we hope to be a complement to a company's other advertisements, not a competitor."

That's only part of the idea. In addition to better presentation, Privy Promotions is targeting sports arenas. By the end of this year, Malover said he expects to be in about 12 stadiums across the country, including the Joe Louis Arena in Detroit, Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Park in Philadelphia.

"A sports arena restroom is an exceptional place for advertising," Malover said. Not only do people spend a long time in them but retention for restroom advertising is higher as well.

The average time according to a recent study at Virginia Polytechnic Institute is 84 seconds for a man and 3 minutes for a woman. "That's probably not addressing sports arenas."

According to a study done by Rice University for some of the other firms that have done restroom advertising, people are more likely to remember restroom advertising.

"It's called a retention curve," he said. Since there is little to do in a bathroom, other than take care of business, people seek a distraction. The advertisement provides that distraction. When coupled with a lengthy amount of time, a person is going to remember the message.

In fact, people may appreciate the advertisement, which is another plus.

"When people stand in line, they become bored," Malover said. "But when the mind is occupied, it seems like they don't wait as long."

Gender-specific advertising

Feedback for the idea has been overwhelmingly positive, Avie said. "Especially the women, they tell me great, I'll have something to read while I'm standing in line."

"That's another plus about Privy Promotions," he said. "It's very gender specific."

If a company wants to advertise only to men, or only to women, there are few — if any — places they can advertise is as a direct a manner. "Even a woman's magazine can't guarantee that many won't see the ad — we can. It's a perfect venue to get a gender-specific message across."

But will it work?

Milton Pierce, chairman of Guardian Alarms in Southfield, said any idea has potential to work, but whether he would advertise in such a manner is something he couldn't say.

"With all advertising, you don't know if it will work until you try it," he said.

"There are plenty of people who will see it, there's no doubt about that," he said. "But there's no such thing as guaranteed advertising."

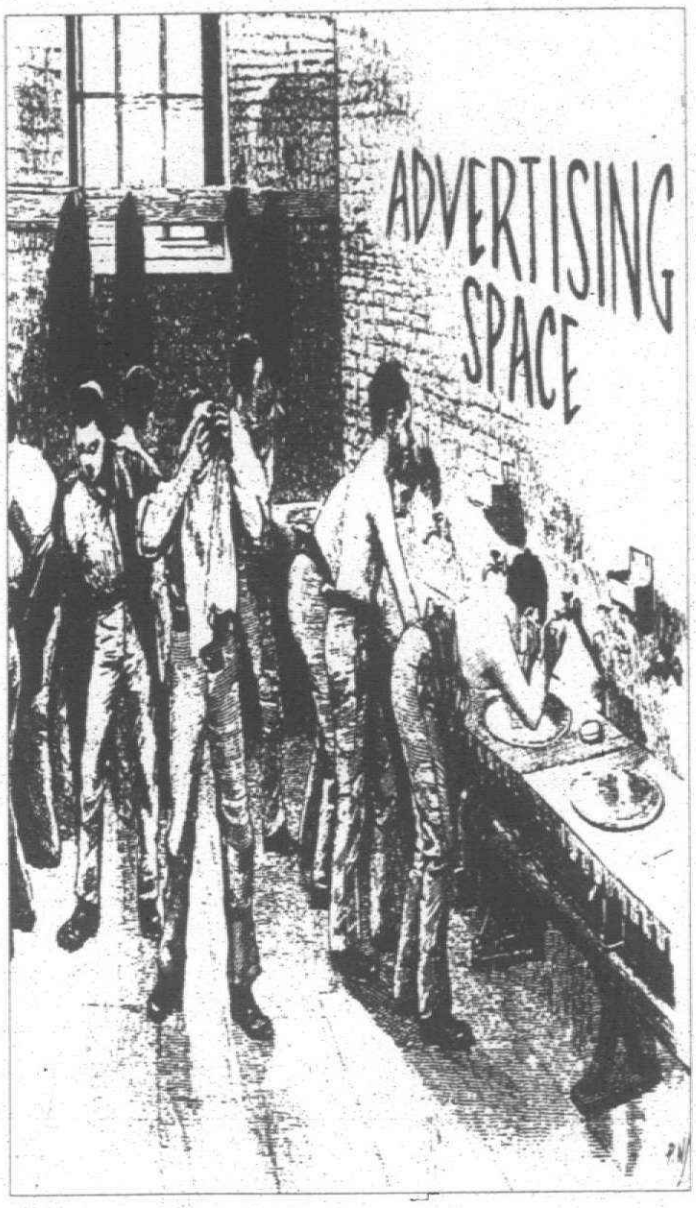
Bruce Annett, director of University Relations at Lawrence Technological University, has also seen Privy Promotions plans, but again, whether LTU would advertise using the medium is another question.

"It is innovative, I'll say that," he said. "And it certainly seems to be an economical way to reach an upscale audience.

"Looking at it from an advertising standpoint, it appears to be a very real marketing tool," Annett said.

Avie and Malover said they expect some skepticism when it comes to their idea, and the first advertisers will be pioneers of sorts, but they are confident the end-result will mean a big future for Privy Promotions.

"Hey," Malover said," everybody's got to go to the bathroom sometime."



Got the time? Volunteer Impact offers all kinds of opportunities

With a tattered leather mitt and a golf ball-sized stone, Kenny, a 7-year-old boy who lives in an area homeless shelter, dreams of one day playing first base for the Detroit Tigers.

"I use a rock 'cause my mom says we don't have money to spend on sports stuff," said Kenny, tossing the crude ball in the air before catching it. "I had a baseball once I found, 'til it got run over by a truck."

It is children like Kenny — who have everyday dreams sputtered by impossible odds — that Volunteer Impact, an active, Peace Corps-like group of mostly young professionals based in Southfield, has set out to reach.

Volunteer Impact allows for area residents to tap into a wide range of charitable programs benefiting area shelters and soup kitchens via a monthly newsletter whenever time and ambition present themselves. The two-year-old group, which has seen its membership grow from a handful to a legion of more than 900, is sponsoring its first Volunteer-A-Thon, a May 16 event where members put in an eight-hour day packing food for the needy and planting trees for the elderly while asking friends and neighbors to pledge a donation.

The resources collected will be used to take a group of homeless children like Kenny on field trips — a baseball game at Tiger Stadium, a special tour of the Detroit Institute of Arts, a children's play at the Fox Theatre — as well as sponsoring meals at area shelters.

■ 'To be honest, some people don't want a stranger coming to their home, and the Auto Bazaar provides a safe, neutral site where buyers and sellers can go about their business.'

— Bedros Avedian, entrepreneur

Trying to sell a used car is no picnic, but Bloomfield Hills entrepreneur Bedros Avedian has an idea that a site long used for tailgate parties might help.

It's the parking lot of the Pontiac Silverdome. On every weekend in which there is no major concert event or Detroit Lion game, Avedian's Auto Bazaar will rent space to people who want to sell their used car or truck in an open-air emporium.

"To be honest, some people don't want a stranger coming to their home, and the Auto Bazaar provides a safe, neutral site where buyers and sellers can go about their business," said Avedian, 45, a commercial real estate broker.

"We also provide signs sellers can place on their dashboard if they plan to be away for the day. And we have a number of pay phones on hand so a prospective buyer can call and set up a test drive."

The cost for sellers is $25 for the first weekend, and $15 for each subsequent weekend. The Auto Bazaar will be open for business from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Silverdome Security will be on patrol for those sellers who wish to leave a vehicle over Saturday night.

Avedian said he opened Auto Bazaar the first weekend of May and had 100 vehicles on display, 10 of which were sold. The event drew 150 people on Saturday, and 400 people on Sunday. On an average weekend, Avedian said there are

Editor represents local BPW clubs at state meeting

Keely Wygonik, Taste and entertainment editor of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, will represent western Wayne and part of Oakland County this weekend in the Michigan Business and Professional Women's Organization Young Career Woman Program.

Keely Wygonik

The program, which is open to women between 21 and 34 who have been employed in a business or profession for at least one year, is BPW's way of recognizing the accomplishments of successful young career women while introducing them to the goals of the national organization.

Young carer women representing BPW districts throughout the state will gather in Midland for the competition which is part of the group's state convention.

Wygonik, 33, will represent District 9 which includes local BPW clubs from Livonia, Plymouth, Canton, Garden City, Westland, Northville, Southfield, Waterford-Clarkston and Detroit.

Wygonik, who is a member of the Garden City BPW, represented that club in district competition in April.

Wygonik has worked at the O&E since July 1989. Before that she was administrative editor of The Citizen, a 14,000 weekly newspaper in Hamtramck.

As Taste and entertainment editor, Wygonik determines section content, writes and edits stories and columns, writes a weekly food column and works with freelance writers and photographers.

She holds a bachelor's degree in journalism from Michigan State University and has won several awards for local news reporting and feature writing from the Michigan Press Association.

Wygonik, a Dearborn resident, also serves as chairwoman of the Henry Ford Community College Student Newspaper Advisory Board. She lives in Dearborn.

Speaker brings message of hope

■ The Rev. Keith Butler, a Detroit city councilman, extolled the power of prayer and delivered a call to action at the recent Canton-Plymouth prayer breakfast.

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The power of prayer can go a long way toward healing the wounds of the nation's cities.

That's the message the Rev. Keith Butler, Detroit city councilman and pastor of Holy Faith Christian Center in Detroit, brought to the Canton-Plymouth prayer breakfast last week.

"God uses people. God uses ordinary people," Butler told guests at the Thursday, May 7, breakfast at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth. "We will be used by the Lord to make a difference."

Christian beliefs call for honesty in government and at home, he said. Accountability and serving one another are what hold communities together.

"It would have been easy for me to stay in the cocoon of my pulpit." He's not critical of clergy who do so, Butler said, but the needs today are so great that action is required.

The breakup of the family, an educational system that no longer teaches right from wrong, and the failure of Detroit ministers to exercise moral leadership have all contributed to the city's problems, he said.

Plymouth-Canton area clergymen and women were impressed with the message of healing and hope that Butler brought to the breakfast, the second such annual National Day of Prayer observance.

"Excellent perspective," said the Rev. William Myers, Canton Community Foundation president and pastor of Faith Community Moravian Church in Canton. "Wonderful leader, gifted leader. I was impressed with what I perceived to be his humility."

Myers was touched by the fact that Butler shrinks away from the "black leader" title, preferring instead to describe himself as a leader who happens to be black.

Many area churches are involved in Cass Corridor ministries, providing food, toiletries and other items for shelters, Myers said.

"But we're not immersed in it. I have a sense there's more we can do."

The breakup of the family unit has contributed to the city's problems, Myers said, and those problems affect the suburbs as well. "Our planet is not all that large, nor is our country."

Lt. Jeffrey Beachum, corps commander for the Salvation Army in Plymouth, Canton and Northville, was equally impressed with Butler's message.

"I thought it was excellent," he said. "I was impressed with his view of the ministry. He's got some good ideas."

Tutors and other volunteers were honored during a banquet April 30 in the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth. The tutors offer one-on-one help to adults who can't read or who have limited reading skills and to other students.

"It has been a really rewarding experience, working with the volunteers and seeing the energy people put in without being asked," said Laubacher, who has been on the job for about six months. "That is one of the most rewarding parts of this job."

Seeing students progress is rewarding as well, she said. Some tutors work with adult basic education students or English as a second language students at Starkweather Center in Plymouth.

Some volunteers work with children in the bilingual program of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Some work with students who aren't enrolled in the school district. "They don't have the teacher to go to on a regular basis," Laubacher said.

Meeting to focus on families

The luncheon meeting will be Wednesday, May 20, at the Hotel Ponchartrain in Detroit. Cost of the luncheon meeting is $20, with corporate table sponsorships available.

Johnson is president and chief executive officer of Family Service America. She will address the state of the family in the 1990s and the need to influence public and private institutions on issues concerning the welfare of families. Two recent FSA reports, "The State of Families" and "American Families in Trouble," indicate the family is weakening and experiencing many changes.

"The State of Families" report, the third in a series about American families, showed that the country's weakening economic condition is closely associated with the deterioration of the family.

"American Families in Trouble" documented a study of more than 16,000 families and demonstrated that American families are experiencing tremendous strains due to social changes, economic recession, unemployment and other societal problems. The repost stated such problems have raised the level of spousal, child and parent abuse within households.

FSA is an international non-profit association dedicated to strengthening family life through services, education and advocacy. Its 290 member agencies, including Family Service Detroit and Wayne County, constitute the largest network of community-based, family counseling and support services in North America.

Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County is a United Way agency, providing family, marital, individual and group counseling at offices in Detroit, Canton, Livonia and Trenton.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER
The Rev. Keith Butler

The ministry's not merely doctrine or principles but also involves helping those in need, Beachum said.

Black officers are still a minority in the Salvation Army, representing about 30 percent of the total in the U.S. with a greater concentration in inner city areas. The Salvation Army works with crosscultural ministries to build bridges that go beyond providing financial support, Beachum said.

"A financial donation soothes a lot of guilt. We do need to be responsible with our finances, but we need to be responsible with our other resources."

Butler's message was a thought-provoking one, particularly given its timing related to the Rodney King case. The prayer breakfast, sponsored in part with funding from the Canton Community Foundation, wasn't without its lighter moments, however.

"I sure wish we had a chief of police who could sing," Butler said. "That was just beautiful and I could listen to that all day."

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Hello, Ms. Green,

I am a 36-year-old, white female and possess a master's degree and two bachelor's degrees.

Currently, I am employed by the Department of Corrections as a lieutenant and have been employed in the field of corrections for 14 years.

I would greatly appreciate any input concerning my handwriting. Thanks for the time!

New Boston

Currently I am employed in Corrections as a lieutenant a played in the field of Correctio years.

Perhaps the most obvious aspect of this handwriting is the small size. This suggests a young woman with excellent concentration. She is able to zero in on one project at a time and can guard against distractions from outside influences. She probably enjoys working in a small area and behind the scenes.

Discipline is the hallmark of this writer. Responsibility and conscientiousness are also outstanding personality traits. She has a strong sense of direction and purpose in her life. Many of her goals are high and challenging. In her work, she is productive and thorough, helping her carry out her plans and achieve goals.

Our writer is observant and aware of what is happening around her. She is intelligent, a thinking type. She is cognizant of the importance of details. She either takes care of them or has a subordinate to handle them for her.

Seemingly, the male authority figure was a disappointment to her in the formative years. She has unfulfilled needs for affection and approval.

Empathy and amiability describe her approach to others. She is respectful of authority figures. She dislikes friction and wishes to get along with everyone. It seems as if she can adapt to the demands of the moment and to environmental attitudes.

Wasteful she is not. She is careful in the use of time and resources. And there are things she clings to tenaciously.

Our writer is open-minded in some areas. But basically a rather private person. She needs time and space to herself. Intimates are carefully selected and few in number.

Often secretive, she will side-step or evade issues she does not care to discuss with others. She may also shy away from social situations because she does not feel at ease.

Marginal spacing suggests her innate eye for beauty. She will inject it into most situations and areas of her life. She appreciates the finer things in life. And she seems to enjoy being a little different from the crowd.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome.

Heed God's wake up call to rid our hearts of racism

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. DAVID STRONG

For the past weeks you, like myself, have thought about and talked about the Rodney King case and the events in Los Angeles. What I first felt immediately was shame, shame for a nation that has avoided, ignored, pretended that the problem wasn't there. Some called the violence a 'bloody wake up call' to the nation. People across the nation have felt fear, alienation and worse of all hate and anger, worse of all because these emotions become uncontrollable and often end in violence.

Division and alienation feel more real, more in the foreground of our lives now. You and I have discussed these events. We have read and watched countless analyses. Riot, uprising, urban race war, lawlessness, a city at war, the looting and sacking of a city, all of these are phrases which point to a deep illness in the body of this nation. The pain, the continual attention to the illness this past week and a half, point to a diseased condition.

This sickness is first of all racism, prejudice, disregard for people of a different color and style of life. This sickness is secondly economic and social separation - separation between the haves and the have nots. Third, this sickness is neglect of the major social problems of our age, concentrated in the older cities of our nation. Fourth, this sickness is the breakdown of the four major pillars of a decent society: the church, the schools, the family and the neighborhood.

We have come to the borders of our nation, to the very border of freedom and slavery, of peace and war, of fear and trust, of violence and forgiveness, of life and of death. A void has appeared for all to see in the body politic, in hope for a future America. We see the gulf which can widen and lead to death. We see the possibility of healing which can lead to life.

Crisis in history

At the borders of life we can go no farther. It is a crisis in human history like that marked by the Berlin Wall. People have hit the wall again and blood is on the streets of our nation. We cannot avoid this painful reality. We must make new decisions, new directions, new movements to heal. This moment is not unlike what happens to us in our individual lives. We stand on the border of our life when we say goodbye to one thing and we face something quite different.

My father died. I experienced a border in my life in which the past is gone, my father is no longer here. I must adjust, heal, decide how I will live without a parent. A child leaves home, a marriage breaks up, a death happens, a job is lost, at such a moment we stand on the edge of void.

We contemplate life. We ask how to heal and move on? We ask where is God in all of this?

A mother told me one day that her last daughter had just left home. There was a note of puzzlement in her voice as she said, "Now I'm going to have to decide what I am going to do with my life." She had given so much to her children. Now they had gone. She stood on the edge of a gap in her life.

Special moments

Such moments, whether they be personal or an event in our social history, such moments are deeply religious events. For individuals these experiences push us to grasp the deepest truths for our lives. What is God's will in this situation? How can I overcome despair? What meaning or value calls me back to healing and wholeness?

This week I heard the personal story of an African American young man in Los Angeles. He was stopped by the police, pulled out of his car and given a body search as he was stretched up against his car. He is a respected professional person, yet he is black and he happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time. He was badly frightened. He did not know what might happen to him. Throughout this ordeal he remembered the words of his Sunday School song when he was a small child. He repeated over and over again in his mind, "Let your light shine, let your light shine."

There are moments in our lives when we are pushed up against reality. It hurts. We are tempted to push it out of our mind. If we avoid it we do not have to deal with it. Yet, this is the very border of life at which God calls for us to decide. Whom will we fear? What decision will we make? Will we change our life or try to make the old way that has failed lead to another crises and fail again?

Yes, the events in Los Angeles are a wake up call to each and every one of us. The wake up call is from God. It is a wake up call to individuals to rid their soul of racism. We must respect every human being as a child of God. It is a wake up call to our society to effectively address the multiple problems which we have ignored and allowed to multiply in the center of the cities of our nation.

No butts: District proposal would outlaw smoking

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

SCHOOLS

It's a good thing Old Joe of Camel cigarette fame doesn't teach in the Wayne-Westland school district.

No butts about it: District schools may soon be smoke-free.

The school board has unanimously endorsed a proposal to stamp out cigarette smoking on school grounds.

In a meeting Monday, the seven-member board embraced the proposal from board member Vicki Welty to make Wayne Westland schools a smoke-free place to work and learn.

Students are already prohibited from smoking in school. Teachers and other workers who smoke in designated areas would be next.

The policy would extend past school hours to include PTA meetings, special programs, socials and athletic events, though some officials already question how they'd enforce the rule at football games.

School officials cited several reasons for considering a no-smoking policy:

- It would encourage healthier lifestyles for students and employees.
- Many public buildings already are smoke-free, and the state appears to be clamping down even more.
- Officials fear potential lawsuits from non-smokers claiming health problems from secondary smoke.

Recent court decisions have favored non-smokers, noted Bill Taylor, associate superintendent for employee services.

Schweitzer Elementary has already implemented a smoke-free environment. A teacher there filed a grievance saying smoke from a nearby lounge filtered into her classroom.

Because a no-smoking policy relates to a working condition, Taylor will have to negotiate with every employee union to implement it. The board told him Monday to launch talks.

The board indicated it would offer a stop-smoking clinic for employees.

Taylor appeared optimistic about the no-smoking proposal and said: "I'm convinced that overwhelmingly a majority of our employees do not smoke."

TV comes to classroom

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Educational television that combines geography lessons and jeans commercials in an MTV-like format will be beamed into Wayne-Westland schools.

Channel One, a 12-minute news program aimed at young audiences, has been approved for local classrooms — but not without a school board debate about Madonna and rappers 2 Live Crew.

In a 6-1 decision Monday, the board voted to allow the broadcast of Channel One in junior highs and high schools that want it next fall. The controversial program from Whittle Communications has sparked a national controversy.

Supporters have hailed Channel One, saying its fast-paced, colorful format has grabbed students' attention in subscriber districts and taught them about the Soviet Union's fall, the Los Angeles riots and other news events.

Two minutes of commercials weaved into the daily 12-minute segments are a small price to pay for boosting student interest in world events, they say.

"I'm appalled by the geography skills of the students in my classes," said school board member Vicki Welty, a part-time instructor at Eastern Michigan University. "They come in and they don't know where Europe is."

But critics have raised ethical questions about beaming Channel One and its advertisers into public schools charged with educating — rather than what some fear would be indoctrinating — students.

Moreover, some critics fear Channel One will take more time away from the teaching of reading, writing and arithmetic.

LEGAL NOTICE

1954 PA 188 PROCEEDINGS
NOTICE OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENT HEARING

Charter Township of Plymouth
Wayne County, Michigan

TO: THE RESIDENTS AND PROPERTY OWNERS OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, AND ANY OTHER INTERESTED PERSONS:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that as a result of Petitions of property owners within the Township signed by the record owners of land whose front footage constitutes more than 50% of the total front footage of the hereinafter described Special Assessment District and the Township Board of the Charter Township of Plymouth proposes road paving improvements on Rocker, Marlin and Judson Streets and to create a Special Assessment for the recovery of the cost thereof by Special Assessment against the properties benefited therein.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested, that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth has tentatively declared its intention to make the hereinafter described improvement:

The project consists of 22 feet wide paving of 3,800 feet of existing gravel road along Rocker, Marlin and Judson Streets in the Township with 4½" thick bituminous concrete. The project area commences at the intersection of Rocker Street and Joy Road and proceeds north along Rocker Street to the southerly right of way line of Ann Arbor Road, approximately 2,500 feet. Also Judson Street from the easterly right of way line of South Main to 200' east of the eastern right of way line of Rocker Street. Also Marlin Street from the eastern right of way line of Rocker Street to 200' easterly to the eastern property line of Lot 97.

That it has further been tentatively determined that the following described lots and parcels of land will specially benefit from said improvement and will constitute a Special Assessment District against which the cost of said improvement shall be assessed:

The project area consists of Lots 9 and 10 of "Rocker Estates"; Lots 25b-28b, 27a-28a, 74a, 29 through 49, inclusive, and Lots 54 through 73, inclusive, of "Rocker Estates No. 2"; Lot 97 of "Rocker Estates No. 3"; and a parcel of land in the southwest ¼ of Section 35, T. 1 S., R 9 E being tax identification number P89-78-061-99-0005-001.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth shall meet on Tuesday, May 26, 1992 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall in the Township of Plymouth located at 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan for the purpose of reviewing said proposed Special assessment District, and the assessment thereon. All persons may then and there appear and make any objections they may have to such improvement and assessment. Appearance and protest at the hearing is required in order to appeal the amount, if any, of the special assessment to the state tax tribunal. An owner or party in interest, or agent thereof, may appear in person at the hearing, or may file an appearance or protest by letter. All parties or agents appearing in person at the hearing for purposes of protest should request the appearance be entered into the record of the meeting.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the plans, specifications, estimates of cost and recommendations of the engineer for said proposed Special Assessment District have been filed with the Township and are available for public examination at the office of the Township Clerk. The estimate of costs of such construction is in the approximate amount of $120,000.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that periodic redetermination of costs for the proposed Special Assessment District may be necessary and may be made without further notice to the record owners or parties in interest in property.

Special interests monitor waste, perks in Congress

BY RICHARD THOMAS
SPECIAL WRITER

Voters are mad as heck about scandal and privilege on Capitol Hill, and while lawmakers are trying to calm them down, a few interest groups are stroking the outrage.

Citizens Against Government Waste, which claims 450,000 members nationwide, is circulating what amounts to a primer on 1991 congressional votes on issues of waste and perks.

While most of the votes spotlighted by CAGW took place before problems were unearthed at the House bank, post office and members' dining room, the group says those shenanigans have added timeliness to its "voting report card" for last year.

"We try to be the leading taxpayers' organization on these types of issues," said Research Director Marlo Lewis. "Members are very upset when they find out that we've rated them 'taxpayer unfriendly' or 'taxpayer hostile.'"

Votes reported

The group's "Government Waste Watch" covers votes on such issues as returning unspent staff payroll and expense account allotments to the Treasury, raising senators' pay, spending $49 million to insure profits for beekeepers and sending $2 million to Chicago for library restoration.

The American Conservative Union's 1991 report card features roll calls on House mailing privileges and the Senate pay raise, among other "key votes" for the year.

The ACU hopes that the voter hostility now directed at incumbents will hold up until election day in November, so that the GOP can reclaim control of the House after nearly four decades of chafing under Democratic rule.

So it is preparing a one-page document titled "The Foley House," which charts each House member's use of the franking privilege, votes on perks and, if applicable, culpability in the check-kiting scandal in the three years since Rep. Thomas F. Foley, D-Wash., became speaker.

ACU executive director Bob Billings said the purpose is "to let people have a second examination on what they think of the 'Imperial Congress.' We're printing up one million copies, and we'll drop them out of airplanes if we have to to get this information to the voters."

Ron Zucker, program director of the liberal Americans for Democratic Action, said the Congress's preoccupation with its own problems "is making it much harder for bold movement on our legislative agenda, because members will be forced to do so much of their time on damage control and explaining all this to their constituents."

He said the worst political outcome for the ADA would be President Bush getting re-elected and the GOP taking control of Congress. "Right now, that looks plausible," he said.

The ADA, ACU and CAGW are three of eight interest groups whose 1991 voting report cards are included in "The Ratings Game" by Roll Call Report Syndicate.

of labor won when the House passed a bill prohibiting employers from replacing workers striking over economic issues, but was dealt a blow when Congress allowed President Bush to negotiate a "fast track" trade pact with Mexico.

● National Education Association, 1201 16th St. NW., Washington D.C., 20036. The largest education union claimed victories on roll calls to resist cuts in education and spending, but was on the losing side of the battle to keep Clarence Thomas off the Supreme Court.

● Consumer Federation of America, 1424 16th St. NW., Washington, D.C., 20036. The federation helped secure enactment of a few pro-consumer banking measures, but said it lost several legislative fights against "the combined forces of the president and large corporate interests."

● American Conservative Union, 38 Ivy St. SE., Washington D.C., 20003. ACU is a leading voice of conservatism.

● U.S. Chamber of Commmerce, 1615 H Street NW., Washington D.C., 20062. The chamber scored a victory when the House made China a favored U.S. trading partner, but lost when Congress approved unpaid "family leave" for workers because of childbirth.

● League of Conservation Voters, Suite 550, 1707 L St. NW., Washington, D.C., 20036.

The political arm of the environmental movement helped bring about House passage of a bill to preserve much of the Mojave Desert in California, but overall lameneted "a real lack of forward motion on the pro-Earth agenda."

Safety-belt use on the rise

Safety-belt use in the United States has increased 236 percent in eight years, according to the Bloomfield Hills polling firm of Research Data Analysis Inc.

Its March survey of 3,000 U.S. residents was commissioned by Traffic Safety Now Inc., an arm of the auto industry.

The survey data were compared to a national poll of 2,000 U.S. residents conducted in December 1984. Everyone interviewed in both surveys was above the age of 18.

Results of the 1992 survey show:

● 64 percent of U.S. residents "always" buckle up when driving or riding in a car, compared to only 19 percent in the 1984 poll.

● 8 percent "hardly ever" or "never" buckle up, compared to 40 percent in 1984.

Participants in Traffic Safety Now include Chrysler, Ford, General Motors, American Honda, the Automotive Occupant Restraints Council, the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association and the National Automobile Dealers Association.

Art fest spotlights restoration of mill

To help boost community interest in their restoration efforts, Friends of Nankin Mills again will host a spring art show in conjunction with a country fair, despite lack of cooperation the last three years from Mother Nature.

The fourth annual "Spring Elegance," a juried show for artists and artisans co-sponsored by the Wayne County Parks Division, will be noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, June 7, at the Westland historic site, by Nankin Lake at Ann Arbor Trail and Farmington Road.

Nankin Mills, a Civil War-era gristmill and later one of Henry Ford I's village factories, is now home to the Wayne County Parks Division. It's being restored to 1930s vintage and will feature machinery from the Ford era.

"The show's purpose is to keep the public aware of what's going on at Nankin Mills," said Bev Melasi, president since the Friends formed in 1987. "I think of it as the people's mill.

"We receive a lot of grant money so this event serves more as a recognition builder to keep people coming to the mill than it does as a fund-raiser."

Last year, the county unveiled $1.5 million in restoration and expansion plans. Expansion will double the size of the three-story mill and make it accessible to the disabled by 1993. That'll allow for a return of the nature center and the opening of a multimedia community room.

Henry Ford, who had visited it as a child and had a yen for preserving history, operated the mill from 1920 to 1947.

Variety awaits

Up to 35 exhibitors, each paying $25 for tent space, will showcase paintings, pen and ink sketches, jewelry, ceramics, sculpture, wearable art and selected crafts during the upcoming art show. Westland artist Saundra Weed, an art instructor at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, will be the juror for the show.

Other family events — square dancing, round dancing, Irish step dancing, face painting, a bake sale, and a country music concert hosted by the Westland Cultural Society — also are planned.

"I think this is going to be one of the best shows we've done, if Mother Nature doesn't doublecross us again," Melasi said.

The first year, the temperature was 30 degrees. A tornado warning came the next year.

Last year, it rained off and on. "But all of the artists came and people were square dancing in the slosh," Melasi said. "I was surprised at first, but then I realized everyone who came did so because they recognized the importance of the event to our restoration efforts."

This year, booth requests have been brisk.

"Artists are very familiar with what we're doing to preserve its heritage," Melasi said. "They've shown they care about the mill and want to preserve its beauty also."

Historic flavor

As Melasi put it: "It's been in the same neighborhood for more than 100 years. So people eagerly watch for events we host there — the art show, the fall wine and cheese reception, the Christmas tree lighting. And they also follow what we've done there — new paint, new windows, new roofing.

Melasi grew up near the mill and attended Nankin Mills Elementary and Nankin Mills Junior High.

"I think it's important for people to have a foundation of where they came from, to have something they can reflect on and identify with when they were children," she said. "Things are changing so rapidly in Westland, many things we grew up with are no longer here."

"I want to see the mill restored for my children and for my children's children so they too can benefit from it being a nature center," Melasi said.

Joe Benyo, a Westland historical commissioner and city liaison to the Friends, sees the mill gaining popularity among younger families:

"We're seeing a lot of young couples who, when growing up, came to the mill to see the animals and go on the nature trails," he said.

Whimsical: Artistic images draw a smile

■ Bold, dark and expressive, John Shannon's whimsical wood artwork deals with nature, industry and man.

Art

Canton artist John Shannon's tropically flavored totems stretch upward into space, like ancient, mythological Gods. Green snakes and alligators wrap themselves around the lyrical, magical towers.

Wild flames of red, yellow and green flow across the surface of a cat-like table nestling beneath, drawing smiles from visitors to the avant-grade Urban Park gallery in Greektown's The Alley (formerly Trappers Alley), 508 Monroe, Detroit.

All this and more, including Shannon's square cat boxes paused on four legs, remain on exhibit through May 16. Oil-painted in deep rich colors, his artwork reminds the viewer of an island in the South Seas.

"A lot of it is figurative. The images I've been using are images you can identify with — the industrial ideas and nature ideas," said Shannon, who graduated with a bachelor of fine arts degree from the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit in 1986.

"We need industrial things and we need nature."

Built from found objects, Shannon's evolutionary process of creating a piece begins once he conceives an idea, then lays down a sketch. Although the basic idea for a new work takes form on paper, it is relegated to his subconscious until the appropriate material is found.

"I get ideas from found objects, like the drawers and panels," Shannon said. "I do sketches to get ideas but it evolves with the material."

Throwaways become art

From building sites or anywhere discarded objects lie, Shannon retrieves the dreams of a throwaway society.

Once a decision is made on which material to use in the creation of his whimsical figurative friends, Shannon never realizes the pieces trail or final destination until it arrives.

"At the museums, I like the island art. I like working on the bigger pieces, like the totem. I like the confrontation of work that's taller than you are," Shannon said.

"I like a balance of using the different complementary colors, more browns, earthy and subtle shades," he said.

A popular artist

His work has been exhibited in Finland, Germany, France, Holland, Brazil and New York's Greenwich Village.

In the Detroit area, it has graced the space of the Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit Artists Market, Willis Gallery, Michigan Gallery, Detroit Focus Gallery and 55 Peterboro Gallery. It also has appeared in statewide competitions like the Plymouth Community Arts Council's Michigan Art '89.

"I love John's work — the quality, the appealing fantastic nature and bold use of color and form in creating narrative imagery," said Dave Roberts, Urban park director.

Light up your life with original artwork

Garden City Fine Arts Association invites you to attend its 10th annual spring art exhibit and sale through May 16 in the Garden City Public Library, 2012 Middlebelt.

Juror for the show was Plymouth artist Sharon-Dillenbeck, owner of D & M Art Studios and Gallery.

"There's new members in the show, a few new artists and a few more abstracts," said Garden City resident Carol Santelio, event publicist.

April artist-of-the-month at Garden City Hall, she recently graduated from Eastern Michigan University with a bachelor of fine arts degree.

Her "Landscape I" breathes expressionistic emotion through a crimson monochrome palette. "I like doing a lot of abstraction and still life. I'm looking forward to the feedback and to have it on display."

Nature spotlighted

Canton artist Donna Enders and Ken Barbb of Inkster never fail to create works without striving for strength of statement, the troubled environment and endangered wildlife always uppermost in their minds.

■ ARTISTS TEAM UP

The first meeting of the Canton Art Association will be 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 18, at The Art Store, 42727 Ford at Lilley, Canton.

Wildlife artist Donna Enders of Canton will continue to take calls from interested area artists until the organizational meeting.

Once papers are filed giving the new fine art association non-profit status, the township will provide space for meetings and exhibitions, Enders said. Call Enders at her Wilderness Studio: 451-7591.

■ SHE SHARES INSIGHT

Canton artist Gwen Dietrich addressed visual arts students in the creative and performing arts program at Livonia Churchill High School May 6.

The two classes were comprised of 38 students from Stevenson and Churchill high schools.

Topics included preparing an art portfolio for college or the job market, art careers and day-to-day life as an art director/illustrator. Dietrich also discussed her personal experiences as an artist.

■ ARTSY HONORS

People's Choice winners were Rhonda Hargrave's "The Bird Feeder" and Sherry Eid's "Cuna Indian," both colored pencil. New club member Mary Celano placed third with her watercolor, "Foul Weather."

Crimson palette: Redford painter Kim Prezesmycki's "Landscape I" is an oil painting in the tradition of abstraction. She was Artist of the Month in April at Garden City Hall.

Barbb's acrylic paintings dramatically rebel in purples, while Enders' working in oil and pastel uses colors found in nature. Barbb paints in a graphic style, Enders in realism.

"I like to evoke emotions and put some kind of message in my painting. I did it for dramatics. The earth is disintegrating because of man. We know we're polluting the earth and we continue to do so without regard for future generations," Barbb said.

Enders' work speaks gently of man's destruction. She paints because she feels if she can't raise people's consciousness about the destruction of wildlife and their habitat, by the end of her life, none will remain.

She now works in pastel to render the keepers of the land, the true founding fathers of our country, the Native Americans.

"Keeper of the Dreams," a pastel portrait of a Native American with violet background, presents the original landowners in a regal light. Lines in the Indian maiden's predominantly white blanket lead the viewer's eye upwards to an aged face that has weathered untold cruelties.

"It's a new medium that I'm working in. I'm looking for comments from people about the piece," Enders said.

The majority of artists in the show seek the same.

"I like to have other people look at it to see if they see what I see in it," said Westland resident Art Fallert, art club vice president.

Fallert is working toward a graphic arts degree at Henry Ford Community College. It's apparent in his work — he likes design.

"I was really fascinated by the city. One morning, I got up early to take photographs of the wonderful park in the middle of the city," Fallert said.

A stone bridge over a walkway provides contrast to the background with watercolor blocks of luminous pastel colors portraying lights in the windows of background buildings. "I do care if they like it," Fallert said.

Library hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Tuesday and Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. Closed May 15.

In February, Shannon's work had been part of "Voices From Within," a two-person show with Royal Oak painter Karen Hansen. His work was so popular, Roberts asked him back, albeit on a somewhat smaller scale.

"I've been familiar with John's work for some time. His work is underexposed and deserves to be shown," said Roberts, who formerly directed the Willis Gallery. "When it was here in the gallery, everyone loved John's work. It was so popular."

Urban Park opened its 3,500-square-foot gallery, spotlighting Michigan artists, Dec. 6.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday-Saturday and noon to 7 p.m. Sunday.

Exhibitors sought for Canton art fest

The juried show is part of Liberty Fest '92 from June 26 to 28, a family weekend fair including a classic car show, music and entertainment, fireworks, youth sports, food and dedication ceremonies for the new Canton Recreation Complex.

There's a $50 booth fee, which includes a hospitality booth for artists and hostesses to provide relief from your booth.

For an application, call Sharon Dillenbeck at D & M Art Studios and Gallery 453-3710.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

It's said that in spring, "a young man's fancy turns to love." Well, springtime is one of the best times for your fancy to turn to photography. It's one of the most exciting times for capturing images on film.

Flowers are, of course, associated with spring, but few people manage to photograph them successfully. They tend to point the camera quickly and shoot.

First, get down low on the flower's level. Concentrate your viewfinder on just a few blossoms, maybe even one, and move in close. A tripod will help steady the camera.

Remember that the closer you get to your subject, the more depth-of-field you'll lose, necessitating a smaller aperture.

One of the most common errors in photographing flowers is a distracting background. Use a piece of black cloth or cardboard behind the flowers and you'll be amazed at the difference in the results.

As in most photography, try to shoot flowers in the early morning or late afternoon so that the crosslighting will highlight the color and texture of the petals.

To photograph bees or butterflies on the flowers, shoot in early morning when the insects are sluggish and won't fly away.

Springtime is usually marked by changeable weather that will reward you with impact-filled shots if you're alert.

It cn be raining one minute, then suddenly the sky will clear and the sun will burst through. This moment along with wet pavement, raindrops trickling down a window, or a rainbow itself will offer you excellent photographic opportunities.

How about photographing the progression of spring? A series of pictures of that special tree in the back yard as it gets progressively thicker and thicker with darker and darker leaves will produce an exciting picture story.

Don't overlook other springtime photographic possibilities. Festivals and celebrations are usually in abundance. People become more active in spring both at work and leisure, so look for picture potential here.

Animals become more active, too, so a trip to a nearby farm or zoo will reward you with shots of our animal friends.

Lampworker at Family Day

Plymouth glass artist Donald Schneider will demonstrate his lampworking skills on Family Day, Sunday, May 17, at the Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward.

May is National Museum Month. In celebration, Detroit Edison Foundation will sponsor free admission to the DIA on Family Day.

Activities will include magic, mime and puppetry, storytelling, turn-of-the-century music, a treasure hunt and drawing activities for children, family tours and adult tours.

The "Cranes, Peace and Children" family program, focusing on Asian culture, will feature a talk at 1 p.m., a film at 2 p.m. and a hands-on origami demonstration.

Museum hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday. Call 833-1717.

Have you heard about Personal Scene?

"It's the Observer & Eccentric's great new Personal Directory that helps you find the special person your'e looking for—a partner for sports, a friend to travel with, or someone who enjoys the same things that you do. And they've made it really easy to place your message and get your replies. It's all done electronically with voice mail so you never get a call at home. Another great thing is that the first five lines of ad are free and you only pay $1.49 a minute to listen to your responses. Check it out in today's paper!"

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Some participate in canned food drives. Others contribute to shelters which help displaced families. Still others raise money for playground equipment.

This Saturday, the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors will encourage its members to join hundreds of participants in a six-mile Walk for Hunger sponsored by Lighthouse, a Pontiac-based human services agency.

"I think it shows their concern for the whole homeless issue that's before all of us today," said Judy Blackadar, a spokeswoman for Lighthouse. "Our thrust is hunger and homelessness prevention."

Peg Pearce, a Realtor with Max Broock in Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham-Bloomfield board spokeswoman for the hunger walk, expects a good turnout from her colleagues.

"We take money from the community by virtue of commissions. We feel we have to give something back," she said. "If you have breaks yourself, you want to help others."

Walkers collect and donate monetary pledges for miles completed.

The Birmingham-Bloomfield board's involvement in helping Lighthouse this year goes beyond the walk for hunger, Pearce said. Proceeds also have been directed from a luncheon and collection of deposit cans.

Members in other area professional real estate associations also are encouraged to get involved in service activities outside of the normal scope of their jobs.

"It's definitely important," said Chris Sheldon, director of member services for the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors. "The community obviously supports our industry. It's important for Realtors to get out there and give something back."

The Western Wayne/Oakland association raised some $2,700 for the Wayne County Family Center in February in a joint fund-raiser with Home Sweet Home restaurant of Novi.

That board specifically wanted the money applied to security deposits and first month's rent for families who want to move from a temporary shelter to more permanent quarters, Sheldon said.

The Western Wayne/Oakland association also conducts canned food drives for the Salvation Army in conjunction with free homebuying seminars it sponsors.

The South Oakland County Board of Realtors has provided college scholarships to students in its service area for many years.

Some 25 to 30 scholarships valued at upwards of $300 will be awarded this spring, said Gil Holliday III, president of the association. Nearly 150 applied.

"We want people to be aware that we're doing things other than soliciting their business," he said. "We're trying to put energy back into the community. Rewarding youth, I think, is a worthwhile endeavor."

The South Oakland board also has supported Realtors Park, a recreation area in Royal Oak, Holliday added.

The Rochester Board of Realtors has an ongoing relationship with Neighborhood House, a food and clothing bank. Members donate Thanksgiving and Easter baskets with food, clothing and other living necessities, plus cash donations of several hundred dollars from an annual Christmas Party.

"Even in an area as prosperous as Rochester is . . . there's still a need, a segment of people with special needs," said Mary Moore, a Realtor with Real Estate One and president of the board.

The Dinosaur Hill park/nature area also has benefited from Realtors in the Rochester association.

Vehicle restriction key in campground

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

We are building a campground condominium and want to solicit your suggestions as to how we might avoid potential liability. Do you have any comments?

It has been my experience in representing campground condominiums that many times the developer will be lax in terms of enforcing the restrictions regarding the types of vehicles that may be brought into the condominium project. For example, a vehicle may be allowed to be placed in the condominium campground that draws an excessive amount of electricity over and above the requirements of the park.

It also is important that adequate electrical, water and sewer utilities are provided to ensure the proper operation of the condominium project. I would be concerned about the amount of assessment being levied and that there are adequate reserves available to the association at the time of turnover to deal with potential emergencies.

Can you clear up whether points are deductible for my federal income tax and what exactly points are?

Points are additional interest charges made by lenders. One point generally equals one percentage point of the mortgage. Points are deductible, but whether you can deduct the points in the year you pay them depends on whether the loan is for the purchase or improvement of a principal residence.

Assuming tests are met, points paid on a mortgage to buy your principal home, or on a home equity loan to finish the basement on your principal home, would be deductible in the same year you paid them. Points paid to buy a vacation home or the refinancing of the mortgage of your principal home would not be.

Points that are not deductible in the year paid can be amortized — that is, deducted evenly over the term of the loan. To be deductible at all, points must be interest, a charge for the use of the lender's money. They cannot be payment for other services such as broker's or appraiser's fees. You may wish to consult with your tax adviser on this.

A free seminar on How to Buy a Home will be presented by the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors Tuesday, June 2, in Livonia.

A panel of speakers including Thomas Ervin, a syndicated columnist in Royal Oak, and David Wood, a Farmington lawyer, will address such issues as steps in the buying process and financing options.

An informational packet will de distributed and questions will be answered.

The seminar is scheduled for 7-9 p.m. at Holiday Inn-Livonia West. Reservations may be made through Kristy Kramer at 478-1700, ext. 241. Participants are asked to bring a canned good that will be donated to the Salvation Army.

"There's no pressure involved," said Chris Sheldon, director of member services for the Western Wayne/Oakland association. "I know a lot of agencies put on these kinds of seminars. This one is strictly generic."

NO PANE no gain

At Homearama it's a glass act

■ Ideas are the main commodity of Homearama, a showcase of the latest in architecure, landscape and decor. Doors will be open through May 25.

BY MARILYN FITCHETT
STAFF WRITER

This month's Homearama is enough to make a Windex salesman beam.

Huge windows in non-traditonal shapes and sizes abound in the Homearama houses, which are open now through May 25 in the Meadows at Oakland Farms subdivision in Oakland Township. Consider:

- A two-story family room in the Franklin accommodates French doors leading outside to the deck. The French doors are flanked on each side by windows the size of a single door with additional glass above, all of which is topped by a centering semi-circular window. The Franklin was built by Pinnacle Residential Homes of Rochester Hills, architecture by Bryce & Palazzola, West Bloomfield.
- Seven skylights brighten the master suite, second floor and exercise room of the Albertville, a house by Classic Custom Homes of Bloomfield Hills, Jannis Vann & Associates architect.
- Two-story, floor-to-ceiling bay windows in the living room and dining room and half-round top windows in the family room and breakfast room in the Knorrwood, a house by Robert R. Jones Associates of West Bloomfiled, architecture done in-house.
- Triple-glazed, argon-filled Weathershield windows in the Smart House by Wake-Pratt Construction Co., Troy, architecture by Bowers & Rein Associates.
- A huge transom window above the entry in the two-story foyer of the Sussex by S.R. Jacobson Development Corp., Birmingham, Bryce & Palazzola architects. The kitchen is accented by walls of windows.

In other features, visitors are likely to notice the shrinking of the formal areas of the home such as the living and dining rooms, and the expansion of the informal: the kitchen and family room. Architects seemed to favor positioning the formal rooms in the front of the house, and the informal in the back. But they were split in placement of the master suite, with some on the first floor, others on the second.

To help with the traffic, builders have installed double staircases so family members have access from either the formal or non-formal areas from both the front and back of the house.

Interior pillars or columns are also in vogue, adding some decorating flair while serving to isolate an otherwise open room.

Homearama hours are 3:30-10:30 p.m. weekdays, noon to 10:30 p.m. weekends and on Monday, May 25. Meadows at Oakland subdivision is on Gunn Road west of Rochester Road, four miles north of downtown Rochester. Tickets are $6.

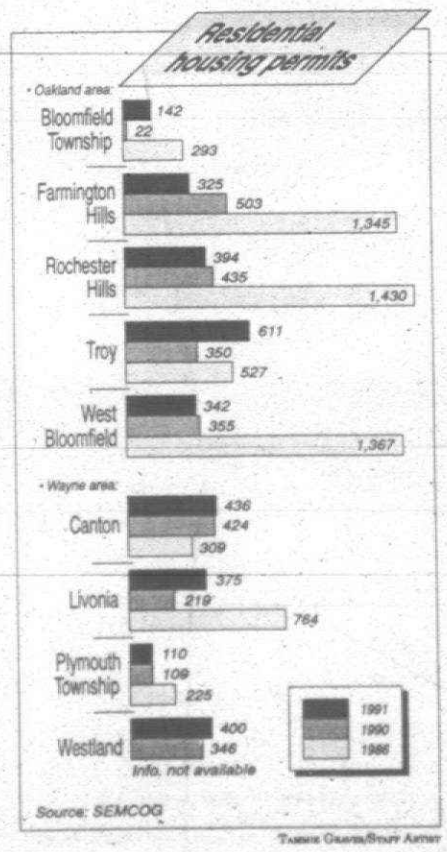
Housing begins to hum



TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

Last year was a mixed bag for O&E communities in terms of residential building permits issued, according to an annual survey compiled by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

Troy, Bloomfield Township, Livonia and Westland were up substantially from 1990 figures. Rochester Hills and Farmington Hills were down substantially. Canton, West Bloomfield and Plymouth Township remained about the same.

This year is shaping up to be a good one, several building officials have reported.

"Single family was up at the end of March about 11 percent," said William Dinnan, director of planning for Rochester Hills.

"I'm not an economist. I can only tell what I hear from builders. They're getting a lot of traffic. It appears that things are stabilizing," Dinnan said.

Permits were pulled for 66 single-family detached units and cluster units in West Bloomfield during the first quarter of this year. That's more than double processed during the same period in 1991,said JoAnn Kochanowski, office coordinator for the township building department.

Room for growth

John Weyer, building official in Canton, predicted that more than 500 permits will be issued for single-family detached units there this year, a 30-percent increase from 1991.

"Canton has the growth capacity if you compare it to other communities," he said. "It's at the stage Livonia has gone through, other communities have gone through."

Building permits issued in Troy are running at a clip 50 percent greater than last year, said Gary Shripka, chief buildfng inspector for that municipality.

"Last year, in general, there was a lot of uncertainty. Used housing is moving better this year," he said. "A lot of areas in the city are mid-priced now, $150,000-and-up market. Last year, everything was in the large (expensive) market."

"We're up from last year, not a great amount, but we're up," said Al Gilhuly, plan examiner for the city of Westland. "Builders keep telling us the economy is bad.

"Apparently, we're putting up houses in a price range people can afford, $100,000," Gilhuly added. "I have a feeling interest rates have something to do with it. Money is a little looser, too. They (builders) don't seem seem to have trouble getting money. Commercially they do, not residentially."

"People in this area obviously are optimisitc about the economy," he said. "We probably offer the greatest value for each housing dollar to be found in the nation and, despite a slight rise, our interest rates are the lowest they've been in nearly 20 years."

Building leaders

Pulte Homes of Michigan, Royal Oak, was identified as a major builder in both Rochester Hills and Canton.

"We had a very good year last year. We didn't experience a slowdown," said Deen Hyde, director of marketing for Pulte. "This year, we're doing about the same.

"I think a lot of it is our ability to make large land purchases and do our own development without being dependent on outside financing," Hyde said.

More residential units last year were permitted in Troy, 611, than any other Oakland County community, SEMCOG reported.

Other major players identified by Shripka were Gulf Construction of Troy, Fairway Estates, Rochester Road south of Square Lake Road, and Woodland IV, Northfield Parkway and Wattles; S.R. Jacobson, Crescent Ridge subdivisions III and II at Square Lake and Crooks; and Divine Homes of Mt. Clements, Somerset North, Big Beaver at Coolidge, and Crescent Ridge.

Canton issue more residential building permits, 436, than any other community in Wayne County, SEMCOG reported.

The American

The American model by James Joseph Enterprises of Rochester Hills was the overwhelming favorite of Homearama showgoers who last weekend voted for the Peoples' Choice Award.

The 4,400-square-foot house with a traditional French exterior, four bedrooms, three bathrooms, and three half baths was decorated by JC Penney and Dramatic Design of Rochester Hills.

Homearama, a showcase of idea homes sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, features 10 models by 10 builders in the Meadows at Oakland Farms Subdivision in Oakland Township. It continues through May 25.

"Comments were almost all on the basement in that home," said Nancy Rosen, spokeswoman for Homearama.

The American features a lower level with neon lighting, a theater, pool table, jukebox, Pepsi bar, Coke machine, neon lighting, half bath with toilet, urinal and two pedestal sinks accented by black and white tile in a '50s motif.

The model also has the latest in gas technology, two staircases, three fireplaces, two islands in the kitchen, nook and garden room seating areas off the kitchen and several different ceiling styles.

"The basement was nice, very memorable, but without the upstairs being as phenomenal as it was, it never would have come through," said James Rutkowski, builder of the Peoples' Choice.

"I'm damn proud of it. This obviously tells me I did a great job, people are accepting what we have there," he added.

Rutkowski conceded that both the design of the house and the decorative touches played equal parts impressing visitors. He described his model as the largest and most expensive — $575,000 including lot but without furnishings — in the show.

- Pinnacle Residential Homes of Rochester Hills.
- Classic Custom Homes of Bloomfield Hills.
- Robert R. Jones Associates of West Bloomfield.
- Wake-Pratt Construction of Troy.
- S.R. Jacobson Development of Birmingham.
- Robertson Brothers of Bloomfield Hills.

The Wake-Pratt model is the Smart House, sponsored by Detroit Edison, the first of its kind in Michigan with totally integrated automated utility systems. The Robert R. Jones house, the Knorrwood, was second in the Peoples' Choice survey.

Homearama is open 3:30-10:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon-10:30 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays through Memorial Day. Admission, which includes a plan book, is $6.

Discount coupons $1 off the regular price good Monday through Friday are available at Standard Federal Bank, Consumers Power and Detroit Edison offices.
