Money woes hit classrooms

When the kids head back to classes Sept. 1 there will be more desks filled in each room, participation fees for sports, high prices for lunches and increased student parking fees. The reason is that the Plymouth Canton schools have $5 million less money.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Until now, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' budget problems have been felt most deeply by the nearly 100 employees who've lost their jobs.

Pink-slipped were 58 teachers, five administrators, three clerical staff, 13 custodial workers, 10 educational aides, two attendance office aides and a warehouse employee.

But when school starts Sept. 1, students, parents and the community will start feeling the pinch.

Among the changes they can expect are larger classes; participation fees for after-school activities and sports; and increased fees for student parking, adult education classes, extended day programs, lunches, and building rental fees.

"This is what happens when you go and take $5 million out of the budget," said Dean Swartzwelter, referring to the property tax freeze and the state aid cut. "The loss of teaching positions is the result, and it's going to get worse."

Voters in June rejected a 1.5-mill property tax increase. The district had asked for a tax increase to offset both the property tax freeze and a cut in state aid.

Superintendent John Hoben said there was no way out of establishing activity fees.

"We don't like the idea of charging students to participate in activities, but without sufficent funds, these programs would otherwise be cut," Hoben said. "We felt that the activities were important to some students, so the participation fee is the only logical answer."

Bus driver fails test for safety

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The bus driver involved in an accident that injured a Canton teenager on Aug. 3 was being tested by the University of Michigan for a permanent driving job and had never driven a bus on the route he followed that day, said Ann Arbor police Lt. Norman Melby.

The Canton girl, Tiffany Hopkins, 15, was in fair condition at the University of Michigan Hospital, according to Toni Shears, a hospital spokeswoman.

Her leg was injured when it was caught between a concrete rubbish bin and a concrete planter she was sitting on at the corner of Church and South University. The bus, making a wide right turn, hit the bin and pushed it into the planter.

The bus driver, a 24-year-old Ypsilanti man and U-M Hospital custodian, received a ticket for careless driving, but police don't plan to charge him with a crime. "He was new," Melby said. "They were evaluating his driving skills prior to hiring him."

However, Melby said the accident wasn't "anything you can plan on. He was just in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Smith didn't get the bus driving job, according to university spokesman Joe Owsley, and has since returned to his custodian job.

Meanwhile, doctors "have really been pleased" with Hopkins' progress to date, said Cheryle Kovach, a friend of the Hopkins family.

The accident, Kovach said, "sliced off a lot of muscle and a lot of her skin. It was a very, very freaky thing that happened."

Car washes OK'd, safety questioned

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Against a backdrop of potential lawsuits and alleged safety problems, the township board last week said it's OK for gas stations to have car washes.

Subsequently, plans by the Shell and Amoco oil companies to build gas station/car washes were approved as well.

Chief among critics of the ordinance amendment approved by the board was Canton resident and former township treasurer Jim Donohue, now representing the Michigan Car Wash Association.

"The township board is more paranoid about being sued by one of these oil companies than they are about doing the right thing," he said. "After being burned by McDonald's, they're not in the mood to be hit again."

Donahue argued that car washes operated in conjunction with gas stations are unsafe because there aren't enough attendants to watch what's going on.

Shell representative Ben Griffin wondered aloud if the car wash association is "really concerned about safety, or is this just a competition issue?"

Said trustee Bob Shefferly, "I think (the safety concerns) are a lot of hogwash. (But Donahue) made the right move there and I would have done the same thing."

Car wash attorney Bob Greenstein, a former Canton supervisor, said Tuesday night there would be a "hell of a mess" if the ordinance amendment were approved. "Suits could come out of this that would dwarf the McDonald's suit," he told the board.

Auction

Are you looking for a salt spreader, engine hoist, computer, chair or a desk?

The board of trustees recently approved an auction for a bunch of unneeded or unwanted equipment.

On the list of goods to be auctioned are 17 chairs, nine desks, four card tables, three typewriters, 17 printers, eight computers, eight dictaphones, two engine hoists, three lawn mowers and a welter of additional items.

However, according to a memo issued by administrative services director Dan Durack, "most of the items are either in bad condition or otherwise have a very low value."

Added clerk Loren Bennett, "It shows how frugal we are here. We usé stuff until it's absolutely falling apart."

The auction will occur at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. on Sept. 19 or 22 at the township warehouse on Geddes at Sheldon.

Water rate increase

Water apd sewer billing rates are expected to increase for Canton residents beginning Sept. 1.

The water rates will rise from $1.22 per 1,000 gallons to $1.32. The sewer rates will rise from $1.51 per 1,000 gallons to $1.61.

According to a township press release, the increases are necessary to offset rate increases by the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department and the Wayne County Department of Public Services, Rouge Valley Wastewater Sewage Disposal System.

Attorneys get richer

Township attorney Andrew Baran asked Canton officials for more money last week, and they gave it to him.

The board approved a rate increase for Baran and/or Gilbert Cox from $100/hour to $110/hour. Also, the township will now be billed $85/hour for work done by associates in the Cox and Hodgman law firm that Baran belongs to. The last rate increase for Cox and Hodgman came in 1989.

County charter amendments await voter opinion

BY WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

One of Wayne County's hottest fall elections might not involve candidates or taxes but a series of highly technical ballot proposals amending the county charter.

Wayne County Commissioners placed the proposed charter amendments proposals on the fall ballot Thursday, saying they would make county government more efficient by clarifying the roles of the commission, county executive and other county officials.

Commissioners approved the proposal on a series of unanimous voice votes though several commissioners, including Kevin Kelley, D-Redford and Maurice Breen, R-Plymouth Township were absent from the session.

"This should take care of at least three-quarters of the headlines we've been making lately," said Commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne.

But county Executive Edward McNamara is readying his veto pen and promises a "major campaign" against the proposals in the fall should his veto be overridden.

"This is a series of proposals designed to weaken the county executive's office," deputy executive Michael Duggan said. "It would take the county back to the days when the county commission ran everything and we're sure the people don't want that."

The proposals include:

- Amending the charter to "expressly use the separation of powers concept to determine the relationship between the executive, judicial and legislative branches of county government.
- Providing the auditor general with "the express power to conduct financial and operations compliance audits of all county agencies" as well as providing misdemeanant penalties for those who refuse "reasonable inquiries made by the auditor general".
- Requring county commission approval of compensation rates and benefits for non-union executive's employees.
- Requiring the executive's office to file an office reorganization plan within 180 days after the start of the executive's new term.

A fifth proposal, expanding commission authority to subpoena records, documents and witnesses, was tabled for further study but may yet appear on the fall ballot.

It would take the votes of 10 of the 15 commissioners to override McNamara's veto.

All five proposals sprang from disputes between the commission and McNamara.

"We've had instances where the auditor general was stonewalled," said Kay Beard, D-Westland, who sponsored that proposal as well as the one that would give the commission final say over executive office pay rates.

"Really, that's the way it should have been except for a strange opinion from the county corporation counsel giving the power solely to the personnel department."

Commissioners said they never confirmed McNamara's recent hiring of former state representative Teola Hunter because of the executive's failure to file a reorganization plan.

Hunter subsequently gained the Democratic nomination for county clerk.

Despite the political in-fighting, even some commissioners aren't sure how — or whether — the people will vote.

"It will be a long ballot," Amann said. "A lot of these items could be confusing if not explained to people."

It appears both sides will be doing some explaining before election day.

Dead-end street OK'd despite worries

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

■ The setting for all this angst was a proposed 23-acre subdivision off Lotz between Palmer and Cherry Hill called Wildwood Springs. The developer convinced ZBA members last April that the only practical way to build 66 homes in the subdivision is to put them all on a dead-end street.

Canton's elected officials approved something they didn't want to Tuesday night because the zoning board of appeals allegedly made a mistake.

With the spectre of a lawsuit coloring the conversation, board members approved an unusually long dead-end street in a proposed subdivision. At the same time, the officials agreed that the configuration they approved might create safety problems in the event of a house fire.

"I see absolutely no alternative but approving it or we'll find ourselves in a court battle," said clerk Loren Bennett. "(If we deny this) we'll probably be in court as soon as the paperwork can be prepared."

The setting for all this angst was a proposed 23-acre subdivision off Lotz between Palmer and Cherry Hill called Wildwood Springs. The developer convinced ZBA members last April that the only practical way to build 66 homes in the subdivision is to put them all on a dead-end street. (The Wayne County standard permits no more than 20 lots on a residential dead-end street.)

To this the board of trustees objected Tuesday night, arguing that fire trucks might find it difficult to reach a blaze in a subdivision with just one entrance.

Bennett said the board could have rejected the developer's proposal if the ZBA hadn't granted a variance allowing the 2,100-foot dead-end street. "That reason has been taken away from us by the ZBA," he said.

Supervisor Tom Yack, who reluctantly recommended approval of the subdivision, said Thursday the ZBA "granted an excessive variance."

However, ZBA member Jim Panos said Thursday the board of trustees erred when it rezoned the property in November, over the objections of the planning commission and ZBA, to allow more than twice the number of houses. "They should have never rezoned it," he said.

Panos added that he thought the board of trustees, by rezoning the property, was saying it wanted a subdivision there.

Trustees John Burdziak and Bob Shefferly were the only board members to vote against granting the variance Tuesday. "Even the public safety people are saying that this isn't good," Shefferly said. "In my own mind I can't imagine anyone wanting to live on that street."

Asked if the car wash association will sue, Donahue said, "We've got to put our heads together and see what our choices are."

Clerk Loren Bennett said Thursday that the safety concerns Donahue brought up might be valid, but they can legally have no bearing on the board's decision whether or not to let Shell and Amoco build gas station/car washes.

"(Safety issues are) separate and totally distinct from land-use issues," he said. "(Safety issues) have absolutely, emphatically nothing to do with land-use planning. Both issues need our attention, but they are separate issues."

Bennett also said the township had no choice but to give the oil companies what they asked for. "It's impossible for us to say no and make that no stick," he said. "A court would instantly overturn it. We would in essence be breaking the law if we said no. Legally, we did the only thing we could do."

Fees will be charged for athletics, cheerleading, debate, drama, forensics, marching band and pompon squad.

Fees will be $60 per student per sport or activity. The maximum charge for after-school activities will be $120 for high school students, with a maximum of $180 per family. Middle school students will be charged $35 per sport or activity, with a maximum per-student charge of $70 and a maximum charge per family of $105.

Parking fees for students and Canton and Salem high schools will go from $20 to $50 per year. Hardship waivers will be granted to students who qualify under federal guidelines for the free or reduced lunch program. The identity of qualifying students will be kept confidential.

The average class size will go up to slightly more than 26, with the highest class size pegged at 38, said Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction.

"These figures are preliminary. There's no question there will be changes over the next three weeks," he said.

Class size in the 42 kindergarten sections will be 21-31. "As troublesome as the kindergarten sections might be, what we see at the elementary level is even more so," Homes said.

Average secondary school classes also will be higher.

"By Aug. 24, we will have a good feel for kindergarten-through-12th-grade class sizes," Homes said.

Staffing changes will be made during August as enrollment becomes more accurate, said Errol Goldman, executive director/employee relations.

"Over the course of August, we will fine tune, depending on enrollment changes. We will switch teachers from building to building rather than add staff," he said. "We will wait until Aug. 21 to make final changes to reduce disruption as much as possible."

Some middle schools may not be able to offer foreign language instruction, Hoben said.

"There will be some differences in the curriculum at middle schools. Some may not have Spanish or German. It will vary according to the certification of teachers at each school."

Said Goldman: "We have called back many of our Spanish teachers. That's been a strong area the last few years. Within each school, we will do our best. Our priority was to protect the core program."

Most kids who play in the woods adjacent to Plymouth Township Park aren't aware there's a possibility The Selective Group will replace the climax beech and maple forest with a new subdivision.

They're preoccupied on many a summer day with escapades into a world of adventure that unfolds just a few steps into the woods north of the park between Ann Arbor Trail and North Territorial near McClumpha Road.

Chris LaFond, 11, and his brother Mike, 5, led a group of friends to their fort in the woods one recent afternoon.

"Mike and I go down here and play a lot," said Chris. "We set up forts with dead branches that have fallen. It's a nice place to play. You can climb trees, and catch fish and crayfish in the creek. There's a ton of bats. Those are cool to watch."

On their hike, the kids forded a dried creekbed and pretended they were Olympic gymnasts traversing a balance beam while walking the length of an immense fallen hardwood.

Later they happened upon a mammoth tree with a trunk eight feet around. From one angle it looked like a normal, huge beech. When they walked around to the other side, they realized it had a hollowed-out trunk so large they could stand inside it. "Do you think think is a bat cave?" asked one of the gang.

Schools delay sale of property

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

After receiving an earful from residents and Plymouth Township officials, Plymouth-Canton school board members agreed last week to give Plymouth Township more time to make an offer on acreage that contains a maple and beech climax forest.

The school district recently decided to sell 17 acres in Plymouth Township, purchased in 1968 for possible use as an elementary school site.

South of North Territorial and north of Ann Arbor Trail near McClumpha, the property borders Plymouth Township Park to the north.

The board's action gives the township until Oct. 15 to exercise its right of first refusal.

At Monday night's school board meeting, board president Roland Thomas gave the audience — nearly half of whom were residents concerned about the issue — a synopsis of what's happened thus far.

Thomas said administration determined last March the land wouldn't be needed for an elementary school and advertised it for sale.

"One bid was received from The Selective Group Inc. for $850,000, contingent upon not less than a 35-lot subdivision being approved by Plymouth Township," Thomas said. The board on July 13 accepted a modified bid indicating that if the site plan would permit up to 37 lots, the price would be increased to $890,000.

Because the board's practice has been to offer local governmental units the right of first refusal, said Thomas, Plymouth Township was offered the right for a period not to exceed 30 calendar days, expiring Aug. 12.

"Everyone must understand that Plymouth Township has control over the zoning and ultimate use of this property, not the board of education," he said.

While the township has verbally expressed its interest in purchasing the property, the first written communication of that interest wasn't received until July 13, 1992, added Thomas.

"The first indication that we had from the community that there was concern came on July 27. The board that same evening directed the superintendent to work with The Selective Group to extend the 30-day period to at least an additional 60 days, which should permit sufficient time to reach an agreement with the township."

Attorney Gordon Didier, president of Beacon Civic Association, spoke Monday on behalf of residents who want the woods spared.

"We're here to reiterate our concern, first regarding the inconsistency with the zoning, given the character of much of the surrounding area," he said.

A new subdivision would result in the creation of more traffic as well as the destruction of a climax maple and beech woods. "We would suffer the permanent loss of 17 acres, and the opportunity to preserve this woods for the benefit of generations to come."

Residents "very much appreciate the fiscal concerns the district is operating under, however as a practical matter, we don't believe the one-time sale of this property will solve the problem. It will provide funds only for the building and site fund, a short-term benefit," in contrast with the long-term benefit of a park.

"Our concern is we lose forever the opportunity to preserve that woods," Didier said. "We think that's too precious a resource to lose, and we urge you to work with Plymouth Township to reach an agreement."

Thomas said the board would ask the township to "give us a timetable for their process to evaluate what their purchase price would be.

Plight of geese has woman worried

By Kevin Brown
Staff Writer

For most birds hanging out at Hines Park, it's summertime and the livin' is easy.

But the plight of two injured Canada geese has sparked the concern of Mary Mozurkewich.

It was nearly three weeks ago that she noticed the first goose. "He was dragging his wing, like he had just got hit by a car."

Mozurkewich, a fourth-year student at Lawrence Technological University, said she routinely drives the stretch of Hines Drive from her home in Livonia to Northville, where her horse Kelga is stabled.

Not long after noticing the first goose, she noticed a second smaller, struggling goose — possibly a female — with string or netting wrapped around its legs, causing it to limp heavily.

What she's looking for is a group of people to help her catch the birds, so they can be treated.

"I just need more manpower," Mozurkewich said.

"It's a wild animal and maybe I can't help it, but at least I'm going to try."

She's called the Department of Natural Resources "and about 20 other places" about them coming out to help the birds.

"They say 'we can't do anything, you have to catch it,'" Mozurkewich said. "The DNR said it'll die, let nature take its course."

She didn't accept that.

"My boyfriend says you can't save every injured animal. But I've always had pets — birds, rabbits, dogs, turtles, hermit crabs," and more.

On a recent weekday, she visited both birds — along Phoenix Lake just north of Five Mile Road — feeding them bits of bread from a plastic bag.

Broken wing: While driving Hines Drive, Mary Mozurkewich noticed this Canada goose struggling with a broken wing. She's looking for volunteers to help it.

"Usually there's other birds out her and they won't let him have any," she said.

Farther north, Mozurkewich approaches the smaller goose with the leg problem. Along with two other Canada geese, it makes its way up a hillside as Mozurkewich shoos it away from the road. They also get a few pieces of bread.

The hillside is covered with a netting used by road crews to protect new grass. Mozurkewich said she suspects this is the material binding the small goose's legs.

"I don't think it's right for them to be putting this stuff out.

"She'll be fine if we can get it taken care of," Mozurkewich said.

the woods. His mother, Joanne Lamar, is organizing a petition drive with other residents to try to preserve the forest.

"I would hate it if they tore the woods down," said Chris Lamar. "I wouldn't like it at all. Sometimes I like seeing owls and hawks back there."

Joanne Lamar has seen the owls and hawks, too. "The owls are great. Sometimes I just sit up at night and listen to them. It's wonderful. Hawks have hovered right over us. It's interesting for the kids," she said.

Lamar, president of the Glenview Homeowners Association, and other concerned residents are working with officials from Plymouth Township and the school board, hoping the school board will agree to sell the land to the township. She envisions nature trails through the woods, and unlit soccer fields on the unwooded portion of the 17 acres.

"We want the schools to know we are voters in this community, and we are not oblivious to what is going on," she said.

Thus far, Lamar's group has collected 600 signatures from residents who support preservation of the woods for public use. John Jawor, manager of nearby Hilltop golf course, also is collecting signatures.

Lamar said a letter was sent to the district in 1986 expressing the community's interest in permitting the township to bid on the property. School officials tell her the letter must have been lost, because there's no record of it, she said.

"I've always been a strong school supporter, but I'm seeing firsthand what other people have said about the school board. I've never believed it before," she said. "They should have had the courtesy to approach the township and say, 'This is what we are doing.'"

Carol Hansz and her family recently moved here from Dearborn Heights. "When we moved here, the Realtor was pointing out what a valuable resource the beech-and-maple climax forest was. He said he'd never worry about it being developed. That's why we moved here."

Ann LaFond, another concerned homeowner, said, "I grew up north, and I really think we should save the woods for the park. The school board says we can't favor one part of the community over another. But people from all over the community use the park. We don't need a park annex halfway to Ann Arbor."

Annette Stutrud, vice president and treasurer of the Beacon Civic Association, said, "Parklands are very scarce right now. We can't replace these woods."

Stutrud fears what would happen if Glenview were extended to accommodate the proposed subdivision. "Glenview will be just a raceway; a regular thoroughfare. We have a lot of little kids in this area, and we don't have sidewalks."

Lamar points out that homes in existing new subdivisions aren't selling. "Yet there's another one going in on North Territorial. It's called Rolling Oaks, and there's not an oak in sight. What are they going to call it here? Maple Beech Cemetery?"

Plymouth fall fest will offer food, fun for all over 3 days

By Kevin Brown
Staff Writer

The 1992 version of the Plymouth Community Fall Festival is being shortened from the traditional four days to three.

"We see that as a positive move," said Marilyn Alimpich, president of the fall festival.

"The last couple of years we've been talking to the merchants, they thought closing the streets a day later would be helpful, and we wanted to be cooperative," Alimpich said.

Also, "Some of the organizations felt that dropping the Thursday schedule wouldn't cut into their profits," Alimpich said.

"I know we're planning to have more rides for the children this year — we're trying karaoke this year, and that will be a little different," Alimpich said.

Also, a jazz band has been scheduled to perform at the festival.

Gone this year is the dunk tank on Penniman run by the Plymouth-Canton Rockettes pom pon squad.

"For one thing, the insurance rates were just astronomical for them," Alimpich said.

Still, there will be plenty of activities for kids, including New Morning School exhibits, face painting, rides and the Optimists Pet Show from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

While the fall festival is traditionally the biggest event in a community where there are several big events, fest coordinator Joe Bida points to another standout feature of the fall festival.

"The money that's derived from the Plymouth Community Fall Festival is put back into the community," he said.

That's because a slew of civic groups have booths or run other activities at the festival to raise money — which is put back into activities they sponsor in the community year-round.

SC board may be in for change

McCotter, Stempien election wins will open 2 seats

By Wayne Peal
Staff Writer

■ 'I can make the meetings, it might be a little tight, but it should be no problem.'

Jeanne Stempien
Schoolcraft Board chairwoman

Those with an interest in serving on the Schoolcraft board should probably keep their resumes handy.

There could be as many as two openings on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees this fall, but board members won't be filling them until after the November elections.

Board chairwoman Jeanne Stempien and trustee Thaddeus McCotter were both winners in this months' primaries and have advanced to fall elections.

Both would have to resign their Schoolcraft seats if elected, but they'll stay on the board at least until then.

"I can make the meetings, it might be a little tight, but it should be no problem," Stempien said.

McCotter, too, said he'll keep attending college meetings.

"I'm not presuming anything," he said. "That's the surest way to lose an election."

Stempien faces a more competitive race for the county circuit court. She finished fourth in the primary, 2,700 votes behind third place finisher Robert L. Ziolkowski, a Detroit Recorders Court Judge, and five ahead of the fifth-place finisher, attorney Joseph V. Brennan. Detroit Recorders Judge Denise Page Hood, assistant Macomb County Prosecutor Diane Hathaway and attorney John W. Callahan are also on the ballot.

The three highest vote-getters will be elected to the bench.

New trustees are generally appointed after a series of public interviews with other trustees. Appointees would then seek election in June.

"We can't do anything until there's an opening," she said.

Jobless rate rose in June

Jobless rates rose locally and throughout most of the state in June, mainly because young people were looking for summer jobs, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

Still, local unemployment rates were lower than June 1991.

F. Robert Edwards, MESC director, said employment was up throughout Michigan in June but the number of workers entering the job market was greater than the number of available jobs.

"Although seasonal hiring increases in June, we typically have higher unemployment rates as students and other young people begin their search for summer jobs," Edwards said.

Unemployment in Canton was at 4.8 percent in June, with 1,100 workers unemployed and 21,900 employed.

The May unemployment rate was 4.5 percent, and the June 1991 rate was 5.1 percent.

In the city of Plymouth, the unemployment rate was 3.5 percent in June, with 175 unemployed and 4,800 employed, the MESC reported.

The May unemployment rate was 3.3 percent, and the June 1991 rate was 3.8 percent.

In Canton, the June unemployment rate was 4 percent, with 450 unemployed and 10,875 employed.

The May unemployment rate in Canton was 3.8 percent, and the June 1991 rate was 4.2 percent.

Among industries reporting seasonal employment gains in June were construction, services, and tourism-related industries including amusement and eating and drinking establishments.

Industries with job losses in June included auto and related industries, the clothing apparel industry, general merchandise stores and schools, the MESC reported.

Studio to host show

D & M Studios will host its 2nd Annual Children's Art Show 6-8 p.m. Tuesday at the Plymouth Cultural Center. This event is the culmination of the Summer Kids Art Camp. This year's show will have a "Medieval" theme.

The children worked in wood, clay, paper mache', paints, pencils, tin, and more to create castles, dragons, damsels, and knights in shining armor.

"We gave them the materials, instructed them in the techniques and let them create," said D & M Studio owner Sharon Dillenbeck.

The city of Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department will co-host the show this year to help kick off the fall and winter art classes. D & M Studios in cooperation with the Recreation Department will be using the Plymouth Cultural Center for a wide variety of art classes for all ages starting in October. Private and semi private classes will still be held at Dillenbeck's Plymouth Studio. With the expanded facilities that the Cultural Center will provide, D & M Studios will be able to offer convenient and extended programming for preschoolers, youths, adults and seniors.

More than 180 students ranging in age from 3½ to 16 participated in this year's Art Camp. Each student has been asked to submit two works of art for the Art Show.

Women on the bench

Judicial candidates see gains, setbacks

Nancy Diehl

Denise Page Hood

Jeanne Stempien

By Wayne Peal
Staff Writer

Female candidates did surprisingly well in this month's Wayne County judicial primaries, but is it a political breakthrough or another example of the glass ceiling?

Even the principals themselves don't agree.

One on hand, many female candidates said they sensed a changing, more receptive mood among voters.

"As I went out on the campaign trail I did hear from a lot of voters who told me they thought it was time to give women a chance," said circuit court candidate Jeanne Stempien.

Stempien, chair of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustess, placed fourth in the 12-person primary. The top six finishers now are vying for three seats on the circuit court bench. In addition to Stempien the candidates are Recorders Court Judge Denise Page Hood, Recorders Court Judge Robert Ziolkowski and attorneys, Diane M. Hathaway, Joseph Brennan and John W. Callahan.

Seven women were among the 10 candidates nominated in county races for the Michigan Court of Appeals, Wayne County Circuit Court and Wayne County Probate Court.

Still, even some winners said their success doesn't mean female candidates are successful at all levels — and may in some way be a symptom of the small number of women elected to state and national office.

PAC money, some said, rarely flows to females.

"I've seen reports from the U-M showing voters are more likely to vote for females for school board and judge but both jobs are seen as less policy making more healing, in a sense," Wayne County Circuit Judge Cynthia Stephens said. "My own earnest feeling is that the focus of power centers is not on the judiciary."

But Stephens, a Michigan Apeals Court candidate, said that could be an advantage.

"In judicial races, you have to be a self-starter, you have to meet with a lot of people and community groups," she said. "While community groups may not be as influential in state or national races they

MONITORING YOUR ARTHRITIS THERAPY

If a drug can help, it can hurt. No drug, powerful enough to fight arthritis, is yet so safe that the same power cannot harm body tissues.

Science has no test whereby a simple of your blood when analyzed, can reveal if your body will tolerate a medication or react badly to it. Only trying a drug and watching the result will tell if you can tolerate a medicine.

Certain arthritis drugs, like gold salts and methotrexate, need evaluation before you can receive another dose. Other medications, like aspirin and colchicine, require periodic review, perhaps every 6 months or year.

How often testing is in order depends on your health. If you have a peptic ulcer, then a doctor will sample your hemoglobin more frequently than is his usual practice. Arthritis medications may cause quiescent kidney or liver conditions to return. If you had such problems in the past, you would need increased surveillance now.

Monitoring is not restricted to blood testing. Some arthritic drugs can cause lung problems and necessitate a chest x-ray at regular intervals. One drug-plaquenil-can affect the eyes and calls for a periodic examination of your retina.

In arthritis, treatment means more than taking drugs. You should be prepared that care includes the additional time and expense of monitoring medications.

Spend a night in the land of 'Northern Exposure'

There's a reason for the popularity of the television show "Northern Exposure." Weird people walk around a small town during the day, bumping into each other and doing strange things. At night everybody gathers in the town pub to discuss the day's events.

A lot of us would like to live that way. That's why we watch the show. On a recent vacation, I got the chance to visit what could be the set for the TV show.

The location was an Upper Peninsula town. And, no, I'm not going to give out the community's name. I don't want it to become too popular — it could spoil the trout fishing.

Here's the scene. I'm sitting at the bar with a Michigan writer. We're talking about bourbon, writing and how Trout Unlimited has spoiled fly fishing. On my other side is a bearded Vietnam veteran whose mind unfortunately came out of the war the worse for wear. His job is the same as it was in Vietnam. He blows things up. However, he's now also a herbalist. Perhaps he's healing his soul.

Once in a while he looks up from his beer and says something like "10 of us went in and only two of us came out." I count myself lucky, along with Bill Clinton, who also didn't get drafted.

At the end of the bar, near the door, are two tables pushed together. Sitting there is a Russia kayak team. They're paddling around Lake Superior, and on this night sampling the local waters of sorts, vodka. There are toasts to Leningrad, Lenin or maybe Ross Perot. I can't remember. It doesn't matter. Anything fits in this scene.

The bets at the bar are on which local ladies will bag one of the Russian bears at the dance at the community center. "Well, it's really a pole barn," the writer said.

JEFF COUNTS

The bar owner joins us. He's an ex-biker from my old Detroit neighborhood. He's his own bouncer. We discuss mutual friends, one of whom joined the Marines in 1964 after quitting school. In our neighborhood, we were too stupid to know there was a war brewing.

During the evening, I'm talking to a woman who must have mistaken me for one of the Russians. She looked a bit like Maggie O'Connell. Maybe it was her eyes.

I wanted to tell her that dealing with the opposite sex for me now is like my trout fishing, "catch and release." I've got a keeper at home.

But on to other "Northern Exposure" characters. One my favorites is Ed the Indian who wants to be a film maker and talks about his buddy, Woody, as in Allen.

There was nobody like Ed in town, but the writer is a good substitute. He recently had lunch with Nicholson in Chicago where he was working on the movie "Hoffa."

It impressed me.

It's too bad we can't import a bit of northern Michigan to Detroit, like we have with sushi.

Oh, well, my own "Northern Exposure" town will be there next year, and probably longer than the TV series.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers who would chance a strange accidental death if given the opportunity to run away with Maggie O'Connell.

Store makes a quantum leap for our area suburbs

I hope you saw their classy move — even if it didn't run in our papers. Jacobson's, which stands to be a close competitor, ran an ad on Neiman Marcus' opening day welcoming the world-famous store to Michigan.

Under a map of lower Michigan, it said: "Thumbs up to Neiman Marcus." Then, in smaller print: "You are an affirmation to something, we've known all along. Michigan is a great place to be. Now it will be even better because you are here."

The coming of Neiman Marcus and company — Barneys New York, Crate and Barrel and the other upscale, trend-setting national retailers to Somerset Collection — is more than a chance for the well-heeled to shop till they drop.

It is a reaffirmation of metropolitan Detroit's health and welfare. And retailers, such as Jacobson's, are hoping to reap some spin-offs.

The throngs which have descended on the expanding, remodeled Troy mall, since the store's opening, are not just excited about experiencing one of the country's most sophisticated stores, its merchandise and reputation for service.

They are excited about what it symbolizes — the prospect of renewal for Detroit and its suburbs, which has seen its life blood — the Big 3 auto companies — suffer a major illness. Neiman's and the expansion of Somerset is a shot in the arm, providing impetus to our slow, shaky steps back to economic and psychological health.

Smiles were all I saw as I walked Somerset Friday. Smiles and hanging from arms, a lot of Neiman's shopping bags.

JUDITH DONER BERNE

The whole mall was buzzing: Saks was serving hors d'oeuvres. . . . A young saleswoman at Ann Taylor said she could already sense the draw Neiman's would provide. In her mind, the crowds confirmed the decision by the Ann Taylor stores to move to a bigger space on the mall's new second level. . . . The mall's restaurants as well as the small croissant/coffee bar were packed.

Beyond the fine stores and elegant mall are the jobs being created — in a loggy, metro Detroit economy. Hard-thatted workers were all about, crafting the expansion. The woman from whom I bought stockings had worked at a small advertising agency in Troy; the man from whom I purchased a shirt for my husband had been in the word processor/computer department at Sears. "I made the quantum leap," Kevin Carey said. And another saleswoman had previously been in real estate. Perhaps their job changes led to openings for others.

Rumors of Neiman's coming to the Detroit area have been circulating for years. Now, in a move well-timed for our spirits, it's happened — together with a ream of other stores we're anxious to get to know.

This is the only new store Neiman's will open this year. And they've set it in our corner of the world. Weekend figures from mall management show about one in every 5 cars had an out-of-state license plate — with Ohio, Indiana and Ontario leading the way.

Now, if we can only learn to spell it right — that's Neiman's — "i before e except after c" — and now N.

are very important in judicial and local races."

In perhaps the most-watched area race, former Oakland Circuit Judge Alice Gilbert finished a surprising third in the GOP 11th District Congressional primary.

But Wayne Circuit Judge Helene White said she didn't believe Gilbert lost votes because she was a woman.

"To me, it seemed voters were turned off by the negative campaigning between Alice Gilbert and Dave Honigman," White said.

Unlike some of her fellow nominees state Appeals Court candidate White said she believed further political breakthroughs for women are near.

"Women judges in Wayne County isn't a new thing anymore, but there are more women being elected to other offices," she said.

Others cautioned that female candidates' success in judicial races doesn't mean the legal profession is becoming more receptive to females.

"In our office we seem to see better female job applicants than males but a lot of big law firms don't hire that many females," said Nancy Diehl, head of the county prosecutor's office child abuse unit and a candidate for probate court.

"For women to make it in the field we really have to do well," said Diehl, who faces top vote-getter Cathie B. Maher of Canton Township in the fall race for Wayne County Probate Court.

Detroit Recorders Court Judge Denise Page Hood, a candidate for Wayne Circuit Court, may have put the issue in the best perspective.

"It's important that women are being elected judge," Hood said. "But the real test comes when we vote for a female county executive or governor."

Summer the season to be sweet on corn

Mention summertime cooking and immediately you conjure up thoughts about corn. Plump, juicy sweet corn, dripping with butter. Whether it be steamed, boiled or grilled, corn is one of the delights of the summer season.

Corn is indigenous to America. When it comes to culinary heritage, corn belongs right up there next to old glory. During the 13th century in southwestern United States and in Mexico, corn or maize meant life itself, and the cultivation of corn was an act of worhip. From birth through death, the economic, social and religious activities of the Hopi Indians of Arizona were bound to the growing of corn. No child could be born with security and survived the first 20 hazardous days of life without corn. For this reason, a special ear of corn was dedicated to each newborn baby as its "corn mother."

No one in Europe knew about corn until Columbus sailed to America in 1492. On Nov. 5, 1492, two Spaniards whom Columbus dispatched to explore the interior of Cuba returned with a report of "a sort of grain called maize which is very well tasted when boiled, roasted or made into a porridge."

Explorer's discovery

Later explorers to the new world found corn being grown by the Indians in all parts of America, from Canada to Chili. The Indians grew all the main types of corn that rare raised today. They prized corn with colorful kernels — red, blue, pink and black or with bands, stripes or spots. The kernels ranged in size from as small as grain of wheat to as large as a quarter. The Indians frequently used corn patterns to decorate pottery, sculpture, and other works of art.

The colonists used corn as money; with it, they paid their rent, taxes and debts. They even traded corn for marriage licenses. In many settlements, corn kept people from starving in difficults times.

Although corn is grown throughout the United States, the greatest production is in an area of the Midwest called the "corn belt," consisting of the seven states of Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Ohio. This year, almost 5 billion bushels will be grown in this area alone.

Corn products

If this sounds like more corn than one could handle, figure that of the 94 assorted supermarket items that go into most grocery carts, over a quarter contain one or more ingredients from the corn processing industry. Not to mention the corn derived feed ingredients that are so important to our animal economy. Add to that the fact that many industrial products ranging from cast metals to automobile tires depend on the use of specially designed corn starches.

The Janes Gang is a frequent user of corn and its products. A week doesn't slide by without utilizing corn meal, canned or frozen corn, corn syrup, corn flakes, cornstarch or corn oil in our culinary regime. In addition, corn is used as the major fermenting ingredient when processing whisky.

Corny memories

With summer winding down and corn prices dwindling as local markets reap locally grown products, you'll be seeing corn soon at the familiar dollar per dozen price. At those prices, it would behoove the price watching cook to take advantage of this pricing boom and to "put some up" whether it be canned or frozen to enjoy throughout the upcoming winter months. Don't forget to use those husks and cobs in the compost heap!

Growing up in Wyandotte, corn was a frequent staple in the Janes Gang household. Momma utilized corn in everything from simple side dishes to hearty soups. One of the dishes that is most memorable was her stewing muskrat in corn in the old Nesco roaster for dad. Although us kids never were interested in sampling it, the corned muskrat was usually supplanted with hot dogs. The family cottage was right off Pointe Pelee and I can remember taking walks between swims to local farmers right down the the road who grew and sold fresh corn to the Heinz factory in Leamington.

I would hand the weathered farmer a dollar bill and with "sis" and a grocer bag in tow, we would venture into the fields where the corn was twice as tall as us and fill the bag in minutes with fresh corn on the cob.

Dinner that night was corn in its true and simple form, dripping with oleomargarine. Ah, those were the days!

Don't allow summer to slip past your kitchen without enjoying the great taste of corn.

Made by families like yours, Michigan specialty food manufacturers like Elaine Houlihan of Bloomfield Hills, are gaining a reputation for outstanding products. "We're giving the country the absolutely best quality," she said. "We don't know any different."

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Not a problem if you're cooking for one, but a big one if you're cooking for the masses.

"We're standardizing all our recipes," said Elaine Houlihan of Bloomfield Hills who started Houlihan's Culinary Traditions Ltd. about 2½ years ago. Houlihan's, based in Auburn Hills, makes preserves, applesauce, pasta, tomato pasta sauces and olive oil pasta sauces. The Italian gourmet products are under the name Elena's.

When they were making a new line of Elena's olive oil pasta sauces with fresh herbs, Caroline stopped her mom to weigh ingredients, so if push came to shove, she could get the orders out on time.

The time came. Mom had to fly to New York unexpectedly when her mother became ill. Caroline and her siblings who help out at the family business, made the sauce and got the orders out.

This kind of attention to detail, quality, and caring make Michigan food products special.

"Most of us are family owned businesses," said Elaine Houlihan. "We're giving the country the absolutely best quality. We don't know any different."

Businesses like theirs are growing and starting up everyday. Houlihan's employs 10 people. Caroline, a graduate of Michigan State University, is her mother's assistant and takes care of marketing. Her sister Jill, who earned a bachelor's degree in finance, and now attends Detroit College of Law, takes care of the books. Her brother John who will be attending Oakland University in the fall to study education, helps out in the summer.

Last year, Elaine Houlihan started the Michigan Specialty Food Manufacturer's Association to promote and help manufacturers of specialty foods in Michigan.

To be eligible for membership in the association, companies must be in business at least six months and have six wholesale accounts. Membership is $125 a year. For membership information, call Michele Marshall of Mucky Duck Mustard Company at (313) 683-5750.

Many of the people who started these companies did so with encouragement from family and friends who raved about their products. Besides Houlihan's here are the other charter members.

Michaelene Hearns makes gourmet granola. She's contributing a portion of the profits from her Rain Forest Getherings, a granola made with papaya, pineapple, mango, banana chips, cahsews and Brazil nuts to the preservation of rain forests.

Celiarose Varner (Celia's Sweets) began making pizzerelles (an Italian cookie) 10 years ago when her mother-in-law gave her a pizzelle maker. Now her daughter, son, and husband help her make 10,000 pizzelles a week.

Jack and Kristin Trabue of Word of Mouth Foods in Plymouth developed their business from their small butcher shop in Plymouth. They began to sell their pasta sauce in the shop, and customers bought it, and told their friends to do the same. The company also makes barbecue sauce and seasonings.

Judy McKonnel of Wenchwork, Ltd. makes Jezebel Sauce, a sweet hot sauce, hot dill mustard, natural herbal vinegars, herbal blend and mulling spices.

First cousins Jacqui Ridley and Gail Jacob started making tea breads for Jackie's husband at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle. Soon a wholesale business developed. In 1990, they bought a retail muffin shop and developed muffin chips, available in six flavors, and distributed across the United States.

Michele Marshall of the increasingly famous Mucky Duck Mustard Co. in Franklin uses a family recipe to make Mucky Duck Mustard. She recently published a cookbook with 170 recipes. With the exception of the first chapter of all chocolate desserts, each dish is made with Mucky Duck Mustard. The cookbook is available at Merchant of Vino in Birmingham and Troy.

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

Selections:
- L. Mawby Blanc de Blancs $15
- '89 St. Julian Chambourcin $11
- '91 Good Harbor Vineyards Pinot Gris $12
- '91 Leelanau Cellars Tall Ship Reserve Chardonnay $13
- '91 Fenn Valley Gewurtraminer $9

It's not status quo in Michigan's most progressive and innovative wineries. Even the national press recognizes this. Earlier this year, "The Wine Spectator," America's most widely-read wine periodical, mentioned St. Julian Wine Company as one of the best wineries outside California in an article discussing wine across America.

Singled out for special mention were St. Julian's 1990 Barrel-Fermented Chardonnay ($14), 1989 Chambourcin ($10.75) and Solera Cream Sherry ($13.80). Barrel-fermented chardonnay is a new wine for St. Julian and the 1991 available now is in very limited supply.

Solera Cream Sherry from St. Julian was cited in "USA Today" as one of the best tastes of the region and one of the best wines made in the United States. Since its debut in 1975, this sherry has garnered 28 gold medals and brought a national reputation to the winery.

"I'm conservative," St. Julian's President David Braganini said. "When I was a little kid, I wasn't the first one to jump into the water. The American palate is geared to a more sophisticated style of chardonnay, and we can make that style from grapes grown in southwest Michigan in the Lake Michigan Shore appellation."

STEPHEN CANTRELL/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

To meet the growing demand for Michigan chardonnay, St. Julian is planting additional acreage. Braganini also wants to plant merlot. "Cabernet sauvignon won't ripen in our climate," he maintains.

In our opinion, the best sparkling wine in the state is produced by Larry Mawby at L. Mawby Winery in Suttons Bay. The 1986 Bien de Village ($30), a sparling blend of 70 percent pinot noir and 30 percent pinot gris is a classically produced rendition with toasty and yeasty notes over cherry-like fruit. It's creamy and delicious with all the style and elegance of a rich French champagne.

A bargain at $15 is Blanc de Blancs, the other bubbly from Mawby. Produced for 52 percent seyval, 37 percent vignoles and 11 percent chardonnay, it's lighter and crisper than the Bien de Village. In a blind tasting of world-class Blanc de Blancs, this wine would show at the top.

Mawby's innovations are showcased in his 1991 Pinot Gris ($10.20) from 100 percent estate-grown grapes. Also 100 percent barrel fermented, this wine was aged on the lees for added complexity. It is in limited production and represents the very best in Michigan winemaking.

Doug Welsch, winemaker for his family's Fenn Valley Vineyards in Fennville, is excited about a new grape named chardonel resulting from the cross of seyval by chardonnay originating at the New York State Agriculture Experiment Station in Geneva. The 1991 Fenn Valley Chardonel ($9) is a good rendition and shows much promise for the future.

Also impressive is the 1991 Fenn Valley Gewurztraminer ($9) full of floral spice with a delicate palate impression.

The ever-gregarious Bill Skolnik, winemaker at Leelanau Cellars in Omena has pulled out all stops with reserve-style chardonnay and two new blends named Vis a Vis.

2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 egg, beaten

CHICKEN CORN SOUP

½ teaspoon saffron
2 cups shredded cooked chicken
1 cup fresh or frozen corn kernels
1 cup egg noodles
2 hard boiled eggs, chopped
salt and pepper to taste
2 Tablespoons minced parsley

Heat the chicken broth in a saucepan and stir in saffron. Bring to a boil and then lower the heat to a simmer. Add the chicken and the corn. Raise temperature to a slow, rolling boil, then add the noodles. Cook over medium heat for 10 minutes or until noodles are tender. Remove from heat and stir in the chopped hard boiled eggs. Correct seasonings with salt and pepper. Ladle into soup bowls and top with parsley.

Chef's suggestion: This is one of Momma's old recipes that when I made it, I thought it was better with a dash of Taobasco and the juice of ½ lemon added in for a little extra zing!

Plum sauce tops on ice cream

In summer, we all scream for ice cream, preferably topped with a rich fudge sauce. Unfortunately, most fudge sauces and ice creams are high enough in fat that they should only be eaten as an occasional treat. For more everyday fare, cook up a hot sundae topping of sweet and juicy plums, then spoon it over ice milk or low-fat frozen yogurt. For a plum parfait, layer the cooled plum sauce with granola and ice milk or yogurt.

ROSY PLUM SAUCE

¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
5 or 6 fresh plums, pitted and sliced (2½ cups)
2 tablespoons water
Vanilla ice milk or low-fat frozen yogurt
Plum wedges

In a medium saucepan stir together sugar and cornstarch. Stir in sliced plums and water. Bring to boiling, stirring occasionally; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 6 to 8 minutes or until the sauce is of the desired consistency. Cool the sauce slightly. Serve warm over vanilla ice cream. Top with fresh plum wedges. (Or make parfaits by layering sauce and ice cream.) Makes 2 cups sauce, 6 to 8 servings.

Wineries from page 1B

Leelanau Cellars 1991 Tall Ship Reserve Chardonnay ($12.95) is highlighted by varietal apple and pear fruitiness with complementary barrel-fermentation aromas. Substantial palate breadth and superior balance makes this wine a winner that will bring you back for more.

If blending makes superior wines, then Skolnik has done it with Vis a Vis ($10.95). The white wine version is a 50/50 blend of chardonnay and vignoles that brings these two varietals "face to face" as the French name implies. They are not strange bedfellows, but are a harmonious marriage of solid flavors and complexity.

In the red Vis a Vis, Skolnik has paired pinot noir and baco noir to create a tasty, easy-drinking wine for roast chicken, hamburgers, pizza or picnic fare.

At Good Harbor Vineyards in Lake Leelanau, Bruce Simpson continues to produce well-made, excellently priced wines. He has a limited supply of knockout 1991 Pinot Gris ($12) highlighting apple, pear and apricot fruitiness with attractive wood accents. It's superior with broiled swordfish.

Good Harbor Rieslings, under $8, are a must try if you don't know them.

Easy tuna salad super light meal

Nutrition awareness is at an all-time high. According to the Food and Drug Administration, the public's understanding of the link between heart disease and a healthy diet — one that's rich in complex carbohydrates and low in dietary fat and cholesterol — has nearly doubled in the past decade.

Foods high in complex carbohydrates like pasta and potatoes — are the primary energy source for our bodies.

For additional healthy eating tips and recipes, send a self-addressed stamped business size envelope to: No Yolks, Dept. 250, 520 E. Church Street, Libertyville, IL 60048.

EASY BASIL TUNA SALAD

¼ package (3 ounces) No Yolks cholesterol-free noodles
1 can (6½ ounces) chunk light tuna, packed in water, drained and flaked
½ cup sliced celery
2 Tablespoons minced chives
¼ cup each: Plain nonfat yogurt and reduced-calorie, cholesterol-free mayonnaise
1 Tablespoon lemon juice
1 Tablespoon chopped fresh basil or 1 teaspoon dried basil leaves, crushed
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 cup cherry tomato halves

Cook No Yolks according to package directions without salt. Meanwhile, combine tuna, celery and chives in medium-size bowl. Drain noodles. Add to tuna mixture; toss gently. In small bowl, combine yogurt, mayonnaise, lemon juice, basil and pepper. Add to tuna mixture, stirring gently until ingredients are evenly coated. Add tomatoes; toss to combine. Serve immediately or refrigerate covered. Makes 4 (1 cup) servings.

Fire up the grill for lean roast beef

AP — In the roundup of lean beef options, the eye of round roast makes the cut. Each 3-ounce serving of cooked meat contains less than 4 grams of fat. It's that very same leanness that makes the eye of round ideal for grilling. There's less fat to drip onto the hot coals, meaning less chance of flare-ups. Cook this roast to rare or medium doneness, then slice and serve it with a tropical-style salsa.

EYE OF ROUND WITH PINEAPPLE SALSA

2 pound beef eye of round roast
Two 8¼-ounce cans crushed pineapple, drained
2 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
2 Tablespoons lime or lemon juice
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Several dashes bottled hot pepper sauce

Trim any excess fat from roast. Insert a meat thermometer in the center of the roast. In a covered grill arrange medium coals around a drip pan. Test for medium-low heat above the pan. Place the roast on grill rack over drip pan but not over coals. Lower the grill hood. Grill for 1 to 1¼ hours or until meat thermometer registers 140 degrees F for rare; 1¼ to 2 hours or 160 degrees F for medium.

Meanwhile, for salsa, in a medium mixing bowl combine pineapple, tomatoes, lime or lemon juice, sugar, soy sauce, garlic powder, dry mustard and hot pepper sauce. Cover and chill until serving time.

When the meat is done, cover it with foil and let stand for 15 minutes before carving. Serve salsa with sliced meat. Makes 8 servings.

Roasting Directions: Place roast on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Roast, uncovered, in a 325-degree F oven for 1¼ to 1¾ hours or until thermometer registers 140 degrees F for rare; 1¾ to 2¼ hours or 160 degrees F for medium. Serve as directed above.

Amazing grace: The Drovers may have had their start playing jigs and reels, but they've been able to go on to blend the sounds of their Irish-American heritage with rock stylings with a good deal of grace.

Drovers blend rock and tradition

Tin whistles, bodhrans, accordions and fiddles make music steeped in the traditions of Ireland. But don't look for an Irish lilt in talking to The Drovers, a band of Irish-American musicians who've been creating their folk-rock sounds in Chicago. Now they're bringing it to Michigan for us to enjoy.

BY LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

By design or out of desperation, the Drovers' sound is damp with the mist of the Emerald Isle.

Tin whistles, bodhrans, accordions and fiddles find their way into the Drovers' folk-rock frolic. Such instrumentation set against edgy pop melodies may make the band something of an anomaly, but also leaves the Chicago-based alternative outfit to constantly slug it out with several unwanted comparisons.

One of the most common is being likened to the bawdy balladry evocated by the Pogues.

Perhaps a more cynical view would go as far to say the Drovers are merely trying to cash in on the current Irish musical phenomenon wrought with U2 megatours, Sinead's love affair with Frank Sinatra and film characters named Decco thinking they're black soul singers. Not so, says fiddle player Sean Cleland.

Many of the group's members were reared on Irish traditional music as Irish-Americans growing up in Chicago, he says. As accomplished musicians, they later went on to perform jigs and reels at ceilis in social halls and parishes.

"For whatever reason, we stuck by that music," said Cleland, whose band performs Thursday, Aug. 20, at Rick's Cafe in Ann Arbor.

"We didn't want to do jigs and reels anymore. We want to play the music for everybody. The question was, 'What do you do with this stuff?' "

Avoiding the typical teary-eyed pub band laments, the Drovers manage to pull off their synthesis of traditional and rock stylings with a good deal of grace.

Undoubtedly, part of the charm of the band's muse comes from an unfettered reverence for Irish folk music heroes such as the Clancy Brothers, the Chieftains and the like.

That said, the Drovers establish a distinctive sound filled with adroit musicianship, intoxicating acoustic-strummed melodies and, most of the time, breathless vocals provided by Kathleen Keane. Keane shares singing duties on the band's CD "World of Monsters" with Mike Kirkpatrick and Dave Callahan.

Songs such as "Love Won't Be" and "Held Your Hand Like Yesterday" are crafted with a spirited pop demeanor and gently flavored with Irish folk whereas "Trad Reed," a bodhran-tin whistle instrumental pays homage to their musical roots.

The Drovers formed on St. Patrick's Day in 1988, staking out as a club act in Chicago's vibrant alternative scene.

"We came from playing all the time, at (Irish) dances . . . it's a real hands on type of thing," said Cleland, who has been performing Irish traditional music since he was a child. "It's not like we said, 'Let's start a band and do a demo.' It's not like that."

Though the desired result is the same for the Drovers. The band received an enormous amount of exposure in the firefighting action drama, "Backdraft," which was set in Chicago. Director Ron Howard caught the group's act in a North Side club and became infatuated with the band's traditional alternative dance sound.

In the film, the band is featured kicking out some Celtic jams in the scene of the fire chief's retirement party. "It was good for getting press," Cleland said of the group's cinematic debut. "You can't tell what we're about, though."

Those who have difficulty figuring out what the Drovers are about would be advised by band members to simply listen and enjoy the music. Comparisons, such as the one to the Pogues, need not be applied.

STREET SENSE

Advice about harrassing phone calls 'missed the boat'

BARBARA SCHIFF

Dear Readers:

Today's letters refer to a column about teenage girls calling boys, which was printed about a month ago. Others like these were printed with my response several weeks ago. Because they are so well-written and contain an important message, these needed to be heard as well.

Again, thank you for your contribution to this important issue.

Barbara

Dear Ms. Schiff:

I have just read your column, "Street Sense," in The Eccentric for Monday, July 6, 1992. I can't believe your answer to Michelle, a single mother asking your advice about her son's harrassing phone calls from a girl in his class.

You, in essence, told Michelle that it was OK for this girl to have made the harrassing phone calls just because she is going through difficult years as an adolescent! How can you in good conscience say that this girl's behavior is "within the normal limits of current teenage mores?" Since when is calling at all hours to someone's residence acceptable?

Barbara, you, who is supposed to be a trained therapist and experienced counselor, "missed the boat" in your answer!

The problem with this generation is they are told that it is OK not to listen/obey their parents, or God forbid, be acceptable to other adults. Why do you think families are disintegrating so fast now?

It's people like you who give inept advice to say: "It is important not to feel frustrated, embarrassed or angry. If the mother who called you intended to make you feel that way, do not let her be an accomplice to your loss of self-esteem. When you talk it out with your daughter, it is important that you understand what she is going through and that you tell her you will support her through these difficult years. This would be a victory for both of you."

Michelle should not have "loss of self-esteem," but should be grateful that someone took the time to inform her that her daughter is wrong to annoy and harrass people. Her daughter needs to be kept busy, i.e., play sports, read books, perform volunteer work, clean her room. Then there would be no "useless free time" to make unwanted phone calls!

Wake up and smell the roses, Barbara, and start giving out some "common sense" in your answers.

A.K.

Dear Barbara:

Have you completely lost your mind or what? Are you a . . . fruitcake or what? Your answer to Michelle, the single mother with the pre-teen daughter who called a boy on the phone to the point of harrassment, was so totally off base! I'm surprised the paper is keeping you on their staff.

Obviously, you have never experienced this type of phenomenon or you, perhaps, do not yet have a teenaged child. I can tell you directly from experience that a pestering phone caller can and will make your life a living nightmare. We had such a "Caller from Hell" waking us up at 4 a.m. just to talk to my then 11-year-old son.

Age and sex have nothing to do with common courtesy and consideration for other people. You are sending out the wrong message to this poor adult woman who has turned to you for guidance. Instead your answer is about as useful as a screen door on a submarine!

Where do you got off saying this is the sign of the times? I definitely fall into the age category of 30-50, but my daughters do not. They have been instructed that calling a friend, both male and female, is perfectly normal for reasons as homework information, missing assignments or rides or just to talk. The conditions stated by the boy's mother to this single parent is not what would fall into the above category.

We had to have our phone number changed and a restraining order put on this particular female who was harrassing my son at all hours of the day and night. I now speak from experience and, however extreme this case may sound, it could have probably been prevented by a little intervention from a strong and insistent parent who imposed a little control over a pre-teen's phone habits.

You really need to reassess your answer and realize part of the problem with the way society is going is that there are counselors out there like you who give half-ass advice like that! Why don't you publish your home phone number in the paper and let us call you at odd hours of the night and day to harrass you?

I consider myself independent and aggressive, but there is a place and time for this type of behavior to exist in society. I like to think that my own daughters and my son have learned to distinguish between when to use their independence and their aggressiveness so as not to overtake their thought processes and their behavior.

Get with the program yourself, Barbara!

Eastwood resurrects western with 'Unforgiven'

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

He may look like it when wrestling squealers, but Billy Munny is a cowboy with a dark past and a nasty reputation.

Legend has it that the outlaw-turned-pig farmer once shot his way out of a showdown with three lawmen. During a drinking binge, he would gun a man down over the slightest provocation.

In "Unforgiven," Munny, now a widower who's seen the error of his ways, wears years of sorrow beneath Clint Eastwood's trademark squint. His final brush with wickedness leads to the best western Eastwood (or anyone) has made in years.

On the surface, "Unforgiven" has all the elements of a standard horse opera. Munny, his old partner and an eager young gunslinger ride off to collect the bounty offered by prostitutes who want dead the man who scarred the face of one of their girls.

Look deeper and you'll find a heavy moral exercise in Western justice. What is proper punishment for cutting up a woman? Is $1,000 enough justification for taking anyone's life? How many must die to avenge the loss of your best friend?

Gene Hackman has a great character role as Little Bill Daggett, the sheriff who's not at all thrilled about bounty hunters descending on his town. He requires every man to surrender his guns before entering his jurisdiction.

English Bob, played with hammy theatricality by Richard Harris, tests local law when he blows in, spouting off about the English monarchy and packing a six-shooter, Little Bill, who knew the flambouant assassin previously, personally kicks the stuffing out of Bob before riding him out of town on a rail.

You spend the next 20 minutes anticipating the confrontation between Little Bill and Munny. Their meeting takes some truly fateful twists that make even murkier the definition of western hero.

For his part, Eastwood paints a vivid and understated portrait of a man just one drink away from sinking back into the meanness he has worked so hard to overcome. It's light years ahead of his Shane redux in the aptly titled "Pale Rider."

As a director, he has the sense to steer clear of the visual tricks used by the strong directors (Sergio Leone, Don Siegel) he's worked in the past. He and cinematographer Jack Green have a clever way of mixing Technicolor hues with the kind of shadows too rarely used during the golden age of Hollywood westerns.

While it may not have the emotional punch of the classic western, "Unforgiven" has little to apologize for. It proves again that Clint Eastwood is the only man alive who can keep breathing life into the traditional western.

Hensen's puppets capture scary side of Alice's childhood

LeANNE ROGERS

In 1932, an elderly British widow, Alice Hargreaves, arrives in New York to participate in an academic function and finds herself engulfed by a mob of reporters and photographers. She's impatient with the intrusions and baffled by all the attention.

But the 80-year-old was once a 10-year-old who was regaled with fanciful stories by clergyman Charles Dodgson, who later published the stories as "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland" under his pen name of Lewis Carroll.

A Victorian dowager, Hargreaves, played by Carol Browne, has accepted an invitation from Columbia University to speak at a celebration of the Lewis Carroll centenary. Despite her protests that she really doesn't remember much about Mr. Dodgson, childhood dreams and memories return when she is alone in her hotel room.

In "Dreamchild," Alice remembers the very slow fall into the hole. Then the elderly woman is talking with the Mad Hatter, the March Hare and the Doormouse. Other times it's the precocious young Alice, played by a rather solemn, dark-haired Amelia Shankley, who is in Wonderland.

Other scenes recall young Alice with her family and Dodgson, who clearly had an inappropriate infatuation for the child. The film certainly raises questions about Dodgson and his impact on the child.

Young Alice's mother questions why Dodgson would confide so much in the child. The adult Alice remembers her mother burning all the letters Dodgson had sent her and speculates she wouldn't have done that if there hadn't been something wrong.

As played by Ian Holm, Dodgson clearly is lovesick for the child who he tries to woo with stories, presenting her with a first printing of his tales. He's a stuttering, shy man, jealous of the attention Alice receives from a young boyfriend. He's a rather sad character, who knows his infatuation with the child isn't proper or at least will never be what he wants.

For the first time, the elderly Alice confronts her long buried feelings and memories about her experiences with Dodgson, who called her the dreamchild. Her thoughts start to subtly surface when she talks pragmatically to reporters who want to talk about dreams. They aren't interested in her, Alice tells them, but the girl she was and who Dodgson made her out to be.

"Its hard enough to be what I was at my age let alone what I never was," she says.

The film is rich and vividly made, with the story characters designed and operated by Jim Henson and his company. These aren't cuddly cut little figures, they capture the scary edge that is one side of a child being lost in strange and dangerous land.

The subplot involves the elderly woman's companion and a young reporter, who for a sizeable commission sets her up to do some promotions. It's fun to see the imposing widow Hargreaves recording some radio commercials.

WINTER WAKEUP

Vermont gets vibrant in summer

BY SALLY JOHNSON
NEW YORK TIMES SYNDICATE

Summer is the reason most Vermonters put up with the winters. For three months, after the rain ends and before the frost turns the leaves, the world becomes a vibrant, lush green and the residents, aroused from their hibernation, venture forth, remembering once again why they live here.

The town of Middlebury on the western side of the state is an ideal jumping-off point for forays into the Green Mountains, because nothing is far away. Lake Champlain, 20 to 25 minutes to the west, offers swimming, boating and fishing. The mountains, with hiking trails, swimming holes and waterfalls, are a short drive to the east.

A college town of 8,000 people, Middlebury is far more cosmopolitan than its size or setting would suggest, with a variety of restaurants and inns that are often included on the recommended lists of national guidebooks.

From mid-June through August the streets and stores sound like a rural United Nations, with people chatting in languages from French to Arabic to Chinese, all of them students at Middlebury College's Summer Language Schools, where English is the only forbidden tongue.

Summer days begin with a rosy sunrise over the Green Mountains and end with a spectacular display of pink, purple and orange as the sun descends over the Adirondacks of New York state to the west.

For three weeks in July the weather turns hot (by local standards hot is anything above 90 degrees) and humid. When that happens relief is — literally — in sight: the Green Mountains, reliably 10 degrees cooler than the Champlain Valley floor, are a 20-minute drive east and up.

And should it rain, Burlington, with its array of cultural and culinary offerings, is an hour to the north.

Events

Mozart under the lights at Lincoln Center is an enchanting musical experience. Mozart under the stars at Shelburne Farms near Burlington, is something else again. The Farms is the grand, turn-of-the-century, lakefront summer home built by Dr. William Seward Webb and Lila Vanderbilt Webb.

For three weeks each year the musicians of the Vermont Mozart Festival play on the South Porch to the people seated on the grounds around the Shelburne House. Although other festival venues include downtown Burlington and the Lake Champlain ferry, this is a perennial favorite.

The Vermont Equestrian Summer Showcase, which began with two weeks in Killington, ends with two weeks at the Trapp Family Lodge in Stowe Aug. 12 to 23. Spectator fees are $5 ($7 on Sundays) and $2 for children under 12 and seniors ($3 on Sundays). Call (802) 496-7469 for schedules.

One of the more unusual summer treats Middlebury has to offer is the Bread Loaf Writers' Conference, where each night from Aug. 11 to 23 well-known authors give readings. Authors range from Jay Parini and Ron Powers to Hilma Wolitzer and Linda Pastan.

The readings at 8:15 in the Little Theater at the Bread Loaf college campus above Ripton are free. For information call (802) 388-3711, ext. 5286.

Overview : The view from a rocky ledge of the Green Mountain National Forest overlooks Branbury State Park and Lake Dummore, both in the town of Salisbury, Vt., just south of Middlebury.

Outings

When Joseph Battell, the wealthy but eccentric Middlebury resident who built the Bread Loaf Inn around the turn of the century, was alive he banned all automobiles from the road leading to his mountain retreat. If that seems extreme in these times it is still an idea that has merit. Hiking and cycling are better choices.

Two valuable sources of information are the "Day Hiker's Guide to Vermont," which covers hikes off the Long Trail, and the "Guide Book of the Long Trail." Both are published by the Green Mountain Club and both are sold in the Vermont Book Shop in Middlebury for $9.95 plus tax.

One relatively easy half-day hike begins at the top of the Appalachian Gap where state Route 17 crosses the Long Trail, which bisects the state from north to south, following the ridges of the Green Mountains. Park in one of the pull-offs at the top and follow the Long Trail signs, headed south.

The trail climbs steeply for a mile or so, then levels off in a clearing. Follow the path through the bushes and out onto a aerielike cliff.

Although Vermont is correctly thought of as mountainous, there are long flat stretches throughout the Champlain Valley that make it a cyclist's paradise.

Biking has become a wildly popular sport here over the past two decades, in large part because of the efforts of John Freidin, the founder of Vermont Bicycle Touring. Freidin, who no longer owns the business, has encapsulated his knowledge into the helpful "25 Bicycle Tours in Vermont," also for sale at the Vermont Book Shop and well worth the $8.95 it costs.

For those more comfortable with some outside guidance, Bruce Burgess, the owner of Bicycle Holidays in Middlebury (802-388-2453), will provide either a highlighted map or a custom-designed tour for as many days as you wish. Burgess rents mountain bikes for $29 the first day and $20 a day after that.

Helmets cost an additional $3 a day and reservations are recommended.

Vermont Bicycle Touring (802-453-4811) in nearby Bristol offers two-day weekend tours in addition to the longer variety. Reservations are usually necessary.

For drivers there is a very scenic loop that takes you over the mountains and back again, with opportunities for antiquing, shopping and dining along the way.

Head north out of Middlebury on Route 7, turn right onto Route 17 at New Haven Junction and follow the road through Bristol. Coming out of town, take the second right and follow the road to the top of the Appalachian Gap, making certain to pull over and turn around at the top.

Wind down the mountain past Mad River Glen and Sugarbush to Route 100, go right on Route 100 to Hancock, stopping for lunch and browsing at Warren Country Store.

In Hancock turn right on Route 125 and climb the mountain, turning in at the sign for a look at Texas Falls. Then continue over the mountain, back to Route 7.

Shopping

Over the years Middlebury has evolved into a browser's paradise. The best strategy is to park somewhere around the Green and walk. Nothing is very far.

Along Main Street the Vermont Book Shop (802-388-2061), in residence at the same location for years, is declared by even urban bibliophiles to be a treasure.

Treasures crystallize at Swedish glassworks

BY EVERETT POTTER
SPECIAL WRITER

Shopping Around

A visit to Sweden is not complete without a stop in the area known as the "Kingdom of Crystal."

Situated in the southeastern province of Smaland, a rural area with deep blue lakes and thick pine forests, the kingdom is home to 16 major glassworks.

Among them are Kosta Boda and Orrefors, names that have become synonymous with the acclaimed tradition of Swedish craftsmanship and design.

Visitors flock to the area to see glassblowers at their craft and to take advantage of bargains.

With few exceptions, the local Swedish factories offer large selections of seconds that are far less expensive than first-choice pieces.

In many cases it takes an expert's eye to distinguish the small flaws that mark a piece as a second.

But it doesn't take an expert to become excited about the prices. They are about 50 percent less than first-quality pieces sold in Stockholm and 70 percent less than those sold in the United States.

All the factories welcome visitors. This year Kosta, the oldest glassworks, is celebrating its 250th anniversary.

Kosta was founded in 1742 by two noted generals — Anders Koskull and George Bogislaus Stael von Holstein — at the request of King Fredrik I, who was intent on building a crystal trade for the country.

The Kosta factory acquired the nearby Boda and Afors glassworks more than 40 years ago, forming Kosta Boda. In 1990 Kosta Boda merged with Orrefors. But each firm retains its own designers and production facilities.

Now 900,000 visitors wander through the Kosta glassworks every year.

"It's rare that a piece of glass is broken, and you'll never see a 'don't touch' sign here," says Diana Hansen, a Kosta spokesperson.

"About 15 percent of a team's production is seconds," she says, adding, "firsts would be enormously expensive if we couldn't sell seconds."

Each year the company introduces two new collections. They discontinue others and offer favorites for as long as they sell.

Amid deafening noise and constant heat, workers maintain a rhythmic pace — blowing, turning and shaping pieces of glass. A six-man team can make between 800 and 900 wineglasses per day.

Unlike most factories, which keep visitors at bay, Kosta lets guests up close to watch and talk to the workers.

The shop is a large, well-lighted warehouse with thousands of pieces of glassware for sale. About 95 percent of the pieces are seconds; the rest are discontinued firsts.

They include art-glass pieces that are signed and can be bought for a good discount. But finding such pieces takes luck.

The shop carries all the classic Kosta pieces, including the Pippi line of glassware, a favorite for 60 years. These narrow, heavy items include sherry glasses for about $16, pilsner glasses for about $27 and champagne glasses for about $18.

A perennial Kosta favorite is the Snowball, a thick, hollowed-out piece used as a candleholder. It's about $8.50.

Among the newest art-glass designs is the Pandora series. It features clear-glass with a satin finish. A Pandora candlestick is about $75. Whimsical pitchers are about $94.

The Texas series of glass cacti designed by Gunnel Sahlin are very popular, says Hansen.

"Only later did we find out that these cacti are natives of Arizona," she says. The pieces are priced at about $66.

Sweden's best-selling glass, Kostals Chateau wineglass, has delicate beveled facets on the bowl and costs about $12.

All these prices include Sweden's whopping 25 percent value-added tax (VAT). About 15 percent of that tax is returned when the buyer leaves the country — under Sweden's Tax Free for Tourists plan.

The price of shipping glassware — especially heavy pieces such as vases — to the United States can be as much as the amount of value-added tax that is refunded.

The ultimate glass experience is a "Hyttsil" evening. In this traditional fest, participants have dinner in the factory — Baltic herring which are cooked in the glass furnaces.

Dinner is followed by local folk entertainment. Of course, there is time for shopping. Getting to Kosta involves an overnight trip from Stockholm. There are good accommodations in the nearby cities of Vaxjo or Kalmar.

For information contact Kosta Boda, Kosta S-360 52, Sweden or call 011-46-478-503-00. Or contact the Swedish Tourist Board, 655 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017; telephone (212) 949-2333.

Madonna class aims to help supervisors sharpen skills

Supervisors and managers, whether new to administration, anticipating a supervisory role, or just wishing to sharpen their skills, can take advantage of a 13-week course, leading to a supervision certificate program, at Madonna University this fall.

The program is designed to provide supervisors in any area with awareness of their role, and acquaint them with the theory and vocabulary of supervision. Developed for Level I supervisors, those in higher levels of any organization may benefit from the series. Participants may select any or all of the modules and those completing all will be awarded a certificate of completion for the entire program. A continuing education certificate will be awarded for each class. All courses are held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays. Cost is $45 each or $500 for all 13 courses.

The first course, "Selection of Supervisors," will be held Sept. 12 and will hold exercises that assist participants in choosing individuals for a supervisory position.

"Motivation of Supervisors," held on Sept. 26, will focus on the latest techniques for self motivation and inspiring others and study the works of Maslow and Herzberg and Graves.

The third module will identify "The Marginal Performer," and examine standards for performance, while stressing improvement of these workers. It will be held on Oct. 10.

"Discipline for the Supervisor," held on Oct. 24, will distinguish problems in the work force and apply techniques which are most effective for supervisors. Appraisal of performance will be simulated at this workshop.

Held on Nov. 7, "Discipline in the Work Force" will examine behavior of employees and assist in identifying successful or troubling performance. The course will focus on skills which control the work force and increase satisfaction and productivity.

"Handling Organizational Change," held on Nov. 21, will deal with the massive change taking place in the work force in the corporate area, the departmental area of work and in the individual performer. Modern methods are examined including the use of team work, group decision making, and continuous improvement and value analysis.

Additional workshops include: "Resolving Conflict in the Work Place," on Dec. 5; "Time Management," on Jan. 9; "The Coaching Process for Supervisors," on Jan. 23; "Roles and Duties of the Supervisor," on Feb. 13; and on Feb. 27, "Communication With Individuals," addressing written and oral communication of supervisors.

In March the final two courses, "Communication with Groups," and "Leadership," will be held on March 6 and March 20, respectively.

For more information, or to register by phone with credit card, call (313) 591-5188. Madonna University is located at 1-96 and Levan Road in Livonia.

Fans should not miss Johnston's Sports Den

There's a sign on Plymouth Road west of Telegraph that needs to be changed.

The sign with green background and white letters promotes both Giacomin's Bar and Ram's Horn Restaurant. And while the Ram's Horn is still there, former Detroit Red Wings goalie Eddie Giacomin no longer owns the bar.

It belongs to Larry Johnston, another former Red Wing who bought the bar five years ago from his friend Giacomin. It's now called Johnston's Sports Den in Redford Township.

"One of these days I'm going to go over and change it (the sign on Plymouth Road)," said Johnston, a Red Wings defenseman from 1971 through '74. "As long as people come and spend money, I don't care what you call it."

I spent about a half hour interviewing Johnston last week and leave it to me to accidentally call him "Eddie" as we finished our talk. Johnston was good natured about my mistake, saying, "OK, Frank," as we shook hands.

Then I remembered Johnston saying earlier in the interview: "Real hockey fans remember me."

A rugged Red Wing

OK, so I don't stay home on Saturday nights to watch "Hockey Night in Canada," but I am a hockey fan. I even went to the old Olympia several times with my family during Johnston's era to watch the Red Wings.

Johnston played with Mickey Redmond, Nick Libett and Red Berenson, but the guy I remember most from that era was Tim Ecclestone.

One guy in the row behind us always used to scream "Hit him with your purse, Ecclestone" — a reference to Ecclestone's less-than-rugged play.

No one had to say that to Johnston, a tough guy who miraculously lost only one tooth in all his years in the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association.

But he almost lost an eye against the Chicago Blackhawks.

"Pit Martin was chasing me, his stick hit me in the eye and I was in the hospital five days," said Johnston, a West Bloomfield resident. "I was flat on my back four, five days. My eyeball was cut and they said if the bleeding stopped it would be no problem. I was lucky that happened."

Johnston spent seven season in the minor leagues and his NHL career started in 1969 with the Los Angeles Kings. He was traded to the Red Wings in 1971 and left Detroit in '74 to join the fledgling Michigan Stags of the WHL.

Johnston spent less than one season with the Stags before moving back to the NHL and finishing his career with expansion teams Kansas City and Colorado (now the New Jersey Devils).

Johnston never played with the legendary Gordie Howe, who retired for the first time from the Red Wings in '71, but he exchanged quite a few elbows with No. 9.

"Personally, he's a nice man, but he's a mean Son of a Bitch on the ice," Johnston said of Howe. "Not too many guys fooled with him. He was nasty with the stick."

Trading a stick for a spatula

Johnston plays for the Red Wings' Old-Timers on occasion but a spatula is in his hand more often than a hockey stick. Johnston mans the grill just about every day at Johnston's Sports Den, while son Craig provides help at the bar. Besides selling 34 ounce beers, Johnston's menu is long.

"You name it, we do a little bit of everything," said Johnston, who has been married for more than 30 years to wife June. "I like it (owning a bar). It has its days that are aggravating but most of the time I like it. I really do love it here (in Detroit)."

There's still some paraphernalia and pictures that belong to Giacomin hanging on the walls but Johnston has decorated the bar mostly with his hockey memories.

Johnston has no thoughts of expanding the business.

"This is plenty big for me," said Johnston, 49. "When you get to be 50 you want to start down-gearing a bit."

Shags split 2 with Diamonds

■ The Cobras can breathe easier after the Salem Shags split a twin bill Thursday with the Diamonds to fall in the Incredible Girls Fastpitch Softball League standings.

The Salem Shags lost ground in their bid to catch the front-running Canton Cobras by splitting a double-header with the Farmington Hills Diamonds in Incredible Girls Fastpitch Softball League play Thursday at Northville's Ford Field.

Salem won the first easily, 12-3, but the Diamonds bounced back to take the nightcap, 5-4.

With the league season entering its final week, the Cobras retain their hold on first with a 14-2 record. The Farmington Hills Majestics are second at 11-3, followed by the Farmington Hills Hornets (12-4), the Shags (13-5) and the Diamonds (9-7).

Amy Ruthig hurled a two-hitter for Salem in the opener, and both hits came in the opening inning. Amy Kelman's two-run single gave Farmington Hills a 2-0 lead.

But it was all Salem after that. The Shags scored three in the first and added seven more in the second. Amanda Tubagh and Jennifer Lock each had two-run doubles in the seven-run rally, and Lisa Girardia drove in a run with a base hit. Tubagh had two hits for Salem.

In the second game, timely hitting carried the Diamonds. Megan Stephan was the winner, pitching one scoreless inning in relief of starter Courtney Carlson. Rachel Allard finished up, going two innings and surrendering two runs.

Allard and Kelman each had a hit and scored twice for the Diamonds; Kelman drove in a run, too. Kate Mackie contributed a hit and an RBI, and Jenny Holtzman had a base hit.

Salem scored twice in the fifth to make it close on a two-run single by Kathi Fitzpatrick, who usually plays for the Diamonds but switched sides for this game so the Shags would have enough players. Ruthig started and went all four innings for Salem, absorbing the loss.

The league all-star game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Drake Field in Farmington.

You're out: Salem Shags catcher Lisa Girardin squeezes the ball and gets ready to tag out the Diamonds' Amy Kelman at home plate in Thursday's battle at Northville High School. The Shags won the first game 12-3 and lost the nightcap, 5-4. Amy Ruthig allowed just two hits to win the opening game, but took the loss in the second tilt.

Gaza in sync, brings home Junior gold

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Michele Gaza didn't travel to Barcelona, Spain this summer but she still brought home Olympic medals.

Gaza, a Garden City resident who will finish high school this year at Farmington Hills Mercy, won both a gold and bronze medal for synchronized swimming at the recently-completed Junior Olympics in Rochester, Minn.

Gaza spent the last year training and going to school in Midlothian, Va. and it was there that she made a team called Briarwood that won the gold. Her bronze medal came in trio competition with teammates from Briarwood.

"It felt good to stand up there (on the medal platform) as a team," Gaza said. "It all paid off."

Gaza is thrilled about winning the medals but the most proud might be her parents.

"They want to frame the medals," she said. "My dad took the gold to work."

Gaza placed seventh as a solo synchronized swimmer at the 1991 Junior Olympics but she figured she had a better shot at the gold by going out-of-state to train. There were a lot of lonely days in Virginia but training with coach Fred Day and assistant Pat Easterling, whose house she stayed at, was worth it.

Besides attending the local high school, Gaza practiced at least 20 hours a week with Briarwood.

Gaza had the option of returning to Virginia but she decided she'd rather finish up high school where she started — at Mercy. Gaza will have to travel to East Lansing or Flint to work out but that's fine.

"Mercy is just a wonderful school, my friends supported me the whole year and I want to be around them," she said. "(Virginia) was a great experience and I learned a lot from it. At first it was real hard and I wanted to come home, not because I didn't like swimming but because I was home sick.

"It was a struggle because I always thought what my friends back home were doing and what I was doing and if I was doing the right thing. I owe it to my parents (Michael and Marlene), they're the best."

Another of Gaza's supporters was best friend Tatum Ames (Garden City), who would keep in touch over the telephone.

"Every Sunday there, I would call her or she would call me, exactly at 9:30," Gaza said.

"Yeah, my parents didn't appreciate it (all the phone calls)," Ames said. "They're so happy she's home because she only lives a couple blocks away and I can drive there."

Gaza plans to compete on Mercy's swimming team this fall but she knows her niche is as a synchronized swimmer. She started synchronized swimming at age 7 after watching her sister Beth in the sport.

Gaza would like to continue synchronized swimming in college and she hopes to attend Ohio State University, which has the sport.

"I want to try to make the Olympic team, but if not, make the first national team," Gaza said. "But first I just want to survive college swimming."

Gaza said some people don't understand the struggles of a synchronized swimmer.

"A lot of people have misconceptions that synchronized swimmers just do shows and goof off," she said. "But it's very structural, we have to do 20 hours a week in the water, do aerobics, take dance lessons.

"We don't have goggles to wear, we have to listen to underwater music, do counts to everything. That's why everything is synchronized. We're not just guessing."

New Orleans stops upstart Walter's

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Walter's Appliance opened and closed the All-American Amateur Baseball Association tournament with losses, but its seven-day stint in Johnstown, Pa. was the most successful ever by an entry from the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

Walter's bid for a national title came up short Sunday, as New Orleans, La., known as NORD Boosters, rallied for five runs in the final two innings, erasing a 5-4 deficit, to claim its 10th AAABA title and first since 1989 in a 9-6 win at Point Stadium.

Tournament MVP Steve Bourgeois, who bats fourth in the order, literally cleaned up for New Orleans, clubbing a pair of two-run homers in the eighth and ninth innings, respectively. The Hinds (Miss.) Community College junior also pitched the final four innings in relief, allowing one earned run on two hits, to pick up the win.

Bourgeois, ironically, had gone 0-for-5 in Walter's stunning 8-7 victory Friday (see related story) over previously unbeaten NORD (New Orleans Recreation Department).

Walter's had been riding a crest, having captured five straight wins in the 16-team double-elimination format after an opening-round 11-7 loss to last Monday to Schenectady, N.Y.

"We made a helluva run," Walter's manager Mike Keller said. "We only threw three bad pitches all day, but they (New Orleans) took advantage. Outside of that, we had them guessing.

"Overall, our pitchers did the job the whole week, along with our hitting and defense. We were behind in quite a few games, but we never gave up."

Walter's held a 4-2 lead until the top of the sixth when Chad Crespo connected for a two-run homer off Walter's starter Derek Wirebaugh.

But the Livonians forged ahead with a run in the bottom of the inning, only to have Wirebaugh victimized by another two-run shot by Bourgeois in the eighth.

Reliever Sean Henkel, who had two victories and a save to his credit during the week, finally ran out of bullets himself, tagged for three earned runs, including Bourgeois' second two-run blast. The tourney MVP had five RBI on the day.

New Orleans out-hit Walter's, 15-11.

Outfielder Kevin Young, who led all tourney players in doubles and triples, had two hits and two RBI for Walter's, as did Friday's hero, Craig Overaitis.

Third baseman Jeff Pendell, Walter's leading hitter for the tourney, also contributed two hits and scored twice.

"Up and down our lineup nobody was an easy out," Keller said. "Everybody contributed and did the job. The kids and the coaching staff represented the City of Livonia well. I think we gained a lot of respect down here."

New Orleans, behind the shutout pitching of Mike Romano, reached the final with a 4-0 triumph Saturday over three-time defending champion Baltimore, setting up a rematch against Walter's, which earned a bye into the championship.

AL HARRISON

More than 100 competitors from around the country competed last week for cash and prizes in three days of action at the Michigan Masters Wheelchair Tournament, sponsored by the Michigan chapter of the Paralyzed Veterans of America.

The event, held at Super Bowl in Canton Township, was put together by Livonian Bob Calderon, sports director of the PVA.

Runchey came through the war just fine, only to be injured later on in an industrial accident.

Now wheelchair bound, Runchey is active in all kinds of sports including track and field, billiards and table tennis. He has won several medals for his efforts, even though considered a quadriplegic.

His high game in bowling is a 193 (he carries a 104 league average). He's also been past president of the Michigan PVA and is very active in various programs for the handicapped.

He's resided in Garden City since 1972 where his daughter, Le, graduated from GC High.

For Runchey and the rest of the Wheelchair bowlers who participated in this tournament, it provides a great example of human spirit and courage. It's also another example on how the sport of bowling reaches out to any and all who wish to take part.

• The second annual mini-camp will take place from 9 a.m. until noon. Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 22-23 at Town 'n Country Lanes in Westland.

The event is open to all bowlers (free) and sponsored by the Western Wayne Youth Traveling Classic. Instruction to bowlers of all levels is also free.

Also, sign-up for the Youth Traveling League will be held at the same location, 12:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 23.

• Last Wednesday was the final night of Summer League president Joe Belanger finished with a flurry, capturing high series with a 796. Most of his points were rolled up in the final game as he threw the first 11 strikes on his way to a 299, only to be foiled by the stubborn 10-pin on his last ball.

• Many of the local leagues are getting set for an early start this fall due to the late Labor Day (Sept. 7) date, not wanting to stretch the season out too long in the spring.

This is particularly true for any Friday leagues which forfeit a pair of dates (Christmas and New Years). Thursday night leagues will also be affected.

There are many openings for new bowlers.

In the next two or three weeks, this column will compile a list of leagues that need bowlers to complete rosters.

Openings normally run the anywhere from toddlers to senior citizens, beginners and experts, daytime leagues for housewives (complete with baby sitting), mixed (couples) leagues (to socialize), money leagues (for big shooters), youth traveling leagues (for future stars), and special leagues for the disabled.

Your local bowling center can tell you exactly what openings exists and who to contact.

Academics attract players

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Before.

What attracted Scott Myrand to Kalamazoo College? "It really didn't have much to do with football," the Livonia Franklin graduate answered. He wanted to enter medical school; a senior defensive tackle, he will graduate with a major in molecular biology.

"Basically, the academics part of it," was how Tony Prey, an offensive lineman from Westland John Glenn, replied to the same question. Prey is about to enter his sophomore year and is considering a major in psychology.

Now, both have found another reason to attend Kalamazoo. The Hornets have, for the past few decades, been near the bottom of the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association. They last won a title in 1963. The last time they had a winning season was 1983.

Winning season

Until last season, when Kalamazoo posted a 5-4 overall mark. The team's 2-3 MIAA record wasn't spectacular, but it got them out of the cellar.

Now, with 15 starters back, the Hornets are looking for more. "Our goal is the same as everyone's in the room, and that is to win the championship," said coach Dave Warmack at Thursday's MIAA pre-season media meeting in Albion. "We are not content to be improved. We want to win."

That's a different attitude for Kalamazoo. But attitudes and bold predictions don't win games; talent does. And the Hornets are compiling it.

Their defense was sixth in the NCAA Division III last year in points allowed (76 in nine game). Seven of those starters return, including Myrand, who had 51 tackles, three for losses, and recovered three fumbles.

Certainly, players like Myrand deserve credit for Kalamazoo's success. The 6-foot, 250-pound tackle didn't play football until his junior year at Franklin; he started only twice on the Patriots' varsity.

But both Myrand and Prey heap the credit for Kalamazoo's turnaround on their coach, Warmack. "We're trying to turn it around, get a tradition going," said Prey. "Coach Warmack is a good coach. I think he's already turned it around."

Myrand said much the same. "I really think Coach Warmack has done an excellent job. He sure is setting a tradition."

The question now is, can the improvement continue, as Warmack forsees? Or was '91 just an aberration?

Glenn grad important

Much could depend on Prey. Rated the strongest of the Hornets, Prey stands 6-2 and weighs 276. At John Glenn, he played guard as a junior and center as a senior. At Kalamazoo as a freshman, he started eight games — usually at tackle.

Now, he could be switched to guard — a position he'd rather play — as the Hornet coaching staff searches for ways to fill holes on the offensive front. "I like to be in the middle more," Prey said.

The defense could be just as tough, but that wouldn't satisfy Myrand. "Our goal is to better (last year's performance)," he said. "I think it would be a disappointment if we didn't."

Such play would elevate Kalamazoo into the contending class. Prey and Myrand believe they belong there. "I think we should have a chance to win it," Prey said confidently.

Myrand was more optimistic. "I think we have a great chance. With last year's performance, we were just short of having an excellent season."

True enough. Kalamazoo lost its four games by a total of 14 points. On the other hand, the Hornets shut out perennial powerhouse Hope 14-0.

Albion favored

Now another hurdle must be cleared: Albion, the three-time defending MIAA champ. "We've never beaten Albion since I've been here," said Myrand.

Nobody's beaten Albion much in the past few seasons, and it could be the same this year. The Britons have a strong nucleus returning, including all-MIAA quarterback Mike Montico.

FOOTBALL

MIAA FOOTBALL 1992 PREVIEWS

Adrian College

Last year's record: 4-5 overall, 1-4 in the MIAA.
Local players: Joe Papazian (Garden City), sophomore offensive tackle, 6-1, 240; Paul Rockwood (Livonia), sophomore outside linebacker, 6-2, 190; Scott Brigmon (Redford St. Agatha), freshman tight end, 6-2m 210; Scott Dziedzic (Inkster/Wayne Memorial), freshman defensive back, 5-11, 190; Jay Ierman (Farmington), freshman tight end, 6-3, 230; Vern Ratliff (North Farmington), freshman offensive lineman, 5-10, 225; Peter Zantop (Canton/Plymouth Salem), freshman defensive back, 5-11, 180.
Returning starters: Eight offensive, seven defensive.
Outlook: The Bulldogs suffered their first losing season since 1976 last year. With 15 starters returning, one might think that trend could be quickly reversed. But four of their five losses came in MIAA play, not a good omen. Neither is coach Jim Lyall's hope to "improve week by week." Respect and improvement are Lyall's goals for the season, and in a league that's become toughtoo to bottom, victories will be hard to come by — particularly for Adrian.

Albion College

Last year's record: 8-1 overall, 4-0-1 and a tie for first in MIAA.
Returning starters: Seven offensive, eight defensive.
Outlook: The bad news for the Britons is the loss of tailback Hank Wineman (1,629 yards rushing, 16 TDs). Unfortunately for the rest of the league, that's about all the bad news there is. Albion has won or shared first place in the MIAA three straight years, and is picked to make it four. With all-MIAA quarterback Mike Montico (Country Day) and his top three receivers returning, together with most of the defense, the Britons are already planning a return trip to the NCAA III playoffs.

Alma College

Last year's record: 4-5 overall, 1-4 in the MIAA.
Local players: Jeff Sanner (Farmington Harrison), senior defensive lineman.
Returning starters: Five offensive, five defensive.
Outlook: Jim Cole begins his second season as the Scots' head coach on the bottom looking up. Since tying for the MIAA title in 1988 (their first in 16 years), Alma has struggled. Cole said he was excited about carrying on the tradition of Alma College football. That tradition is lagging. The defense needs strong play from seniors Keith Christinger and Wade Hanna on the line and outside linebacker Dave Johnston.

Hope College

Last year's record: 5-4 overall, 2-3 in the MIAA.
Local players: Chris Marting (Farmington Hills), freshman running back, 5-10, 175.
Returning starters: Four offensive, seven defensive.
Outlook: Ray Smith, the dean of MIAA coaches (22 years), says the "cupboard is not bare, but we have a lot of spots to fill. Most are on offense, where, for starters, the Dutchmen must find a quarterback. The defense looks tough, but all-MIAA linebacker Scott Jones must be replaced. All things considered, Hope's hopes for a title don't look good.

Kalamazoo College

Last year's record: 5-4 overall, 2-3 in the MIAA.
Returning starters: Eight offensive, seven defensive.
Outlook: This could easily be the "Olivet" of '92. Coaches often recite that defense wins championships, and the Hornets' contingent was sixth in the NCAA III, surrendering just 76 points last season. Scott Myrand and Bryan Schultz are key members of that unit. Still, if coach Dave Warmack's team is going to challenge, the offense must improve. A key: restructuring the offensive line, where Tony Prey roams. The MIAA schedule has what may prove to be the biggest game of the season in its opening week (Oct. 10), when Kalamazoo visits Albion.

Olivet College

Last year's record: 7-1-1 overall, 4-0-1 in the MIAA and co-champions.
Local players: Rob Karbowski (Farmington Harrison, junior placekicker, 6-4, 200; Bill Thams (Plymouth-Plymouth Canton), senior offensive lineman, 5-11, 225.
Returning starters: Seven offensive, five defensive.
Outlook: Last year capped coach Dominic Livedon's rebuilding process and gave the Comets something they hadn't possessed since 1974 — a title. Although they still have a lot of talent, repeating won't be easy. Olivet must play its three toughest MIAA games — Kalamazoo, Albion and Hope — on the road. The offense looks good, with the entire line back to protect returning quarterback Nick Leone. In all, six of those coming back received all-MIAA mention. But holes in the offensive and defensive backfield will make it difficult to match last season's record.

Overaitis' homer saves Walter's

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Craig Overaitis delivered the "Shot heard 'round Johnstown."

The former Livonia Franklin High and Henry Ford Community College standout cracked a dramatic three-run homer with two-out in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving upstart Walter's Appliance a stunning 8-7 victory Friday over New Orleans at Point Stadium.

Overaitis' heroics, off NORD Boosters reliever Chris Wescott, enabled the first team ever from the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League to play for the coveted All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament title, held annually (since 1945) in the western Pennsylvania steel town. (See championship story).

"I didn't see it land," said Overaitis, who is headed for Madonna University this fall. "I didn't know it was out until the team got up and started yelling.

"I got ahead on the count and I was looking for a pitch. I felt focused and relaxed, instead of nervous and tense. I felt I was in a zone. I'd say it was my greatest thrill, especially in a tournament like this."

It was Walter's fifth straight victory in the 16-team double-elimination tournament and it couldn't have come at a more opportune time against the tourney's lone unbeaten team (among four still alive) in the double-elimination format.

"It was a 3-1 count, he (Overaitis) went with the pitch and sent it over the left-center field screen," said euphoric Walter's manager Mike Keller. "I'm almost speechless. It was unbelievable."

Walter's overcame a 5-0 first-inning deficit, clawing back into game with a 13-hit attack.

Time Never Runs Out!

NOW...

Here's how it works:
First, you must have a touch-tone telephone.
Then, all you do is call us – remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here – to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed earlier.
Let's say it's eight o'clock at night and you've just realized that the cupid on the clock you're selling plays a tin whistle. It's a good selling point, so you punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it.
If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers.
Pretty neat, huh?
Of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday throught Friday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad – at your convenience.

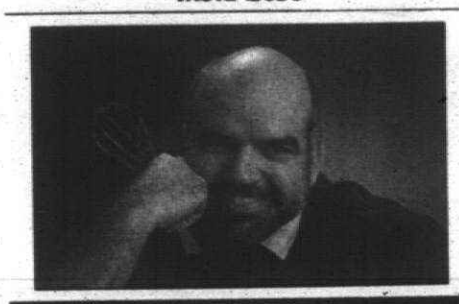
TASTE BUDS



CHEF LARRY JANES

Summer the season to be sweet on corn

Mention summertime cooking and immediately you conjure up thoughts about corn. Plump, juicy sweet corn, dripping with butter. Whether it be steamed, boiled or grilled, corn is one of the delights of the summer season.

Corn is indigenous to America. When it comes to culinary heritage, corn belongs right up there next to old glory. During the 13th century in southwestern United States and in Mexico, corn or maize meant life itself, and the cultivation of corn was an act of worhip. From birth through death, the economic, social and religious activities of the Hopi Indians of Arizona were bound to the growing of corn. No child could be born with security and survived the first 20 hazardous days of life without corn. For this reason, a special ear of corn was dedicated to each newborn baby as its "corn mother."

No one in Europe knew about corn until Columbus sailed to America in 1492. On Nov. 5, 1492, two Spaniards whom Columbus dispatched to explore the interior of Cuba returned with a report of "a sort of grain called maize which is very well tasted when boiled, roasted or made into a porridge."

Explorer's discovery

Later explorers to the new world found corn being grown by the Indians in all parts of America, from Canada to Chili. The Indians grew all the main types of corn that rare raised today. They prized corn with colorful kernels — red, blue, pink and black or with bands, stripes or spots. The kernels ranged in size from as small as grain of wheat to as large as a quarter. The Indians frequently used corn patterns to decorate pottery, sculpture, and other works of art.

The colonists used corn as money; with it, they paid their rent, taxes and debts. They even traded corn for marriage licenses. In many settlements, corn kept people from starving in difficults times.

Although corn is grown throughout the United States, the greatest production is in an area of the Midwest called the "corn belt," consisting of the seven states of Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Ohio. This year, almost 5 billion bushels will be grown in this area alone.

Corn products

If this sounds like more corn than one could handle, figure that of the 94 assorted supermarket items that go into most grocery carts, over a quarter contain one or more ingredients from the corn processing industry. Not to mention the corn derived feed ingredients that are so important to our animal economy. Add to that the fact that many industrial products ranging from cast metals to automobile tires depend on the use of specially designed corn starches.

The Janes Gang is a frequent user of corn and its products. A week doesn't slide by without utilizing corn meal, canned or frozen corn, corn syrup, corn flakes, cornstarch or corn oil in our culinary regime. In addition, corn is used as the major fermenting ingredient when processing whisky.

Corny memories

With summer winding down and corn prices dwindling as local markets reap locally grown products, you'll be seeing corn soon at the familiar dollar per dozen price. At those prices, it would behoove the price watching cook to take advantage of this pricing boom and to "put some up" whether it be canned or frozen to enjoy throughout the upcoming winter months. Don't forget to use those husks and cobs in the compost heap!

Growing up in Wyandotte, corn was a frequent staple in the Janes Gang household. Momma utilized corn in everything from simple side dishes to hearty soups. One of the dishes that is most memorable was her stewing muskrat in corn in the old Nesco roaster for dad. Although us kids never were interested in sampling it, the corned muskrat was usually supplanted with hot dogs. The family cottage was right off Pointe Pelee and I can remember taking walks between swims to local farmers right down the the road who grew and sold fresh corn to the Heinz factory in Leamington.

I would hand the weathered farmer a dollar bill and with "sis" and a grocer bag in tow, we would venture into the fields where the corn was twice as tall as us and fill the bag in minutes with fresh corn on the cob.

Dinner that night was corn in its true and simple form, dripping with oleomargarine. Ah, those were the days!

Don't allow summer to slip past your kitchen without enjoying the great taste of corn.

Made by families like yours, Michigan specialty food manufacturers like Elaine Houlihan of Bloomfield Hills, are gaining a reputation for outstanding products. "We're giving the country the absolutely best quality," she said. "We don't know any different."

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Not a problem if you're cooking for one, but a big one if you're cooking for the masses.

"We're standardizing all our recipes," said Elaine Houlihan of Bloomfield Hills who started Houlihan's Culinary Traditions Ltd. about 2½ years ago. Houlihan's, based in Auburn Hills, makes preserves, applesauce, pasta, tomato pasta sauces and olive oil pasta sauces. The Italian gourmet products are under the name Elena's.

When they were making a new line of Elena's olive oil pasta sauces with fresh herbs, Caroline stopped her mom to weigh ingredients, so if push came to shove, she could get the orders out on time.

The time came. Mom had to fly to New York unexpectedly when her mother became ill. Caroline and her siblings who help out at the family business, made the sauce and got the orders out.

This kind of attention to detail, quality, and caring make Michigan food products special.

"Most of us are family owned businesses," said Elaine Houlihan. "We're giving the country the absolutely best quality. We don't know any different."

Businesses like theirs are growing and starting up everyday. Houlihan's employs 10 people. Caroline, a graduate of Michigan State University, is her mother's assistant and takes care of marketing. Her sister Jill, who earned a bachelor's degree in finance, and now attends Detroit College of Law, takes care of the books. Her brother John who will be attending Oakland University in the fall to study education, helps out in the summer.

Last year, Elaine Houlihan started the Michigan Specialty Food Manufacturer's Association to promote and help manufacturers of specialty foods in Michigan.

To be eligible for membership in the association, companies must be in business at least six months and have six wholesale accounts. Membership is $125 a year. For membership information, call Michele Marshall of Mucky Duck Mustard Company at (313) 683-5750.

Many of the people who started these companies did so with encouragement from family and friends who raved about their products. Besides Houlihan's here are the other charter members.

Michaelene Hearns makes gourmet granola. She's contributing a portion of the profits from her Rain Forest Getherings, a granola made with papaya, pineapple, mango, banana chips, cahsews and Brazil nuts to the preservation of rain forests.

Celiarose Varner (Celia's Sweets) began making pizzerelles (an Italian cookie) 10 years ago when her mother-in-law gave her a pizzelle maker. Now her daughter, son, and husband help her make 10,000 pizzelles a week.

Jack and Kristin Trabue of Word of Mouth Foods in Plymouth developed their business from their small butcher shop in Plymouth. They began to sell their pasta sauce in the shop, and customers bought it, and told their friends to do the same. The company also makes barbecue sauce and seasonings.

Judy McKonnel of Wenchwork, Ltd. makes Jezebel Sauce, a sweet hot sauce, hot dill mustard, natural herbal vinegars, herbal blend and mulling spices.

First cousins Jacqui Ridley and Gail Jacob started making tea breads for Jackie's husband at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle. Soon a wholesale business developed. In 1990, they bought a retail muffin shop and developed muffin chips, available in six flavors, and distributed across the United States.

Michele Marshall of the increasingly famous Mucky Duck Mustard Co. in Franklin uses a family recipe to make Mucky Duck Mustard. She recently published a cookbook with 170 recipes. With the exception of the first chapter of all chocolate desserts, each dish is made with Mucky Duck Mustard. The cookbook is available at Merchant of Vino in Birmingham and Troy.

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

Selections:
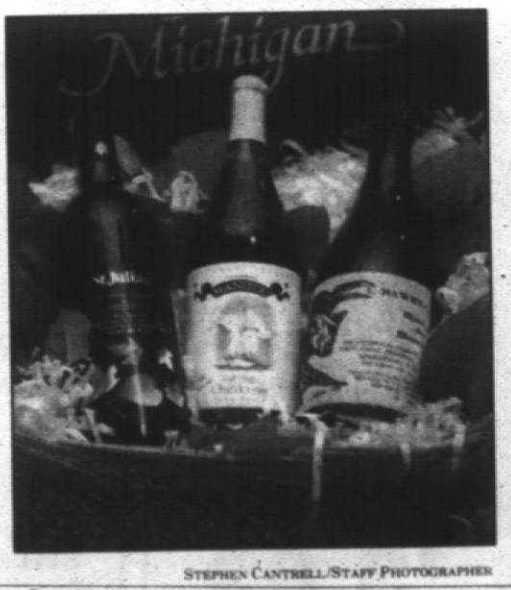
- L. Mawby Blanc de Blancs $15
- '89 St. Julian Chambourcin $11
- '91 Good Harbor Vineyards Pinot Gris $12
- '91 Leelanau Cellars Tall Ship Reserve Chardonnay $13
- '91 Fenn Valley Gewurtraminer $9

It's not status quo in Michigan's most progressive and innovative wineries. Even the national press recognizes this. Earlier this year, "The Wine Spectator," America's most widely-read wine periodical, mentioned St. Julian Wine Company as one of the best wineries outside California in an article discussing wine across America.

Singled out for special mention were St. Julian's 1990 Barrel-Fermented Chardonnay ($14), 1989 Chambourcin ($10.75) and Solera Cream Sherry ($13.80). Barrel-fermented chardonnay is a new wine for St. Julian and the 1991 available now is in very limited supply.

Solera Cream Sherry from St. Julian was cited in "USA Today" as one of the best tastes of the region and one of the best wines made in the United States. Since its debut in 1975, this sherry has garnered 28 gold medals and brought a national reputation to the winery.

"I'm conservative," St. Julian's President David Braganini said. "When I was a little kid, I wasn't the first one to jump into the water. The American palate is geared to a more sophisticated style of chardonnay, and we can make that style from grapes grown in southwest Michigan in the Lake Michigan Shore appellation."



STEPHEN CANTRELL/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

To meet the growing demand for Michigan chardonnay, St. Julian is planting additional acreage. Braganini also wants to plant merlot. "Cabernet sauvignon won't ripen in our climate," he maintains.

In our opinion, the best sparkling wine in the state is produced by Larry Mawby at L. Mawby Winery in Suttons Bay. The 1986 Bien de Village ($30), a sparling blend of 70 percent pinot noir and 30 percent pinot gris is a classically produced rendition with toasty and yeasty notes over cherry-like fruit. It's creamy and delicious with all the style and elegance of a rich French champagne.

A bargain at $15 is Blanc de Blancs, the other bubbly from Mawby. Produced for 52 percent seyval, 37 percent vignoles and 11 percent chardonnay, it's lighter and crisper than the Bien de Village. In a blind tasting of world-class Blanc de Blancs, this wine would show at the top.

Mawby's innovations are showcased in his 1991 Pinot Gris ($10.20) from 100 percent estate-grown grapes. Also 100 percent barrel fermented, this wine was aged on the lees for added complexity. It is in limited production and represents the very best in Michigan winemaking.

Also impressive is the 1991 Fenn Valley Gewurztraminer ($9) full of floral spice with a delicate palate impression.

The ever-gregarious Bill Skolnik, winemaker at Leelanau Cellars in Omena has pulled out all stops with reserve-style chardonnay and two new blends named Vis a Vis.

Make a meal out of fresh picked, juicy sweet corn

EASY CORN ON THE COB

8 ears, fresh corn
butter, salt to taste

Husk and remove silk from ears. Place corn in a large pot with just enough water to cover. Cover pot and heat over high heat to boiling, then boil for 2-3 minutes. Drain and serve hot with butter and salt.

CORNBREAD

1¼ cups all purpose flour
¾ cup cornmeal
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 egg, beaten

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Lightly grease an 8 or 9-inch glass baking pan. Combine dry ingredients. Stir in milk, oil and egg, mixing until dry ingredients are moistened. Pour batter into a prepared pan and bake for 20 minutes or until light golden brown.

CHICKEN CORN SOUP

6 cups good chicken broth
½ teaspoon saffron
2 cups shredded cooked chicken
1 cup fresh or frozen corn kernels
1 cup egg noodles
2 hard boiled eggs, chopped
salt and pepper to taste
2 Tablespoons minced parsley

Heat the chicken broth in a saucepan and stir in saffron. Bring to a boil and then lower the heat to a simmer. Add the chicken and the corn. Raise temperature to a slow, rolling boil, then add the noodles. Cook over medium heat for 10 minutes or until noodles are tender. Remove from heat and stir in the chopped hard boiled eggs. Correct seasonings with salt and pepper. Ladle into soup bowls and top with parsley.

Chef's suggestion: This is one of Momma's old recipes that when I made it, I thought it was better with a dash of Taobasco and the juice of ½ lemon added in for a little extra zing!

Delicious appetizer has hint of sherry

SOLERA CREAM MUSHROOMS

2½ Tablespoons butter
12 medium mushroom caps
3 Tablespoons St. Julian Cream Sherry
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
3 Tablespoons heavy cream

In a medium skillet, warm butter over medium heat until sizzling. Add mushrooms and saute, turning once, until golden brown and tender, about six minutes. Add sherry, salt and pepper, stirring for one minute. Add the cream and cook, stirring until reduced to a thick sauce, about 1½ minutes. Serve warm.

Rich and tender, these sauteed mushrooms are speedily prepared for four servings, but the recipe is easily doubled.

Zesty burgers have Cajun flavor

AP — One of our Louisiana Cajun readers created these zesty burgers wrapped in bacon to satisfy her family's love of spicy food. Whether you grill these burgers or broil 'em, I guarantee your family will relish every bite.

CAJUN TURKEY BURGERS

1 beaten egg
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon onion powder
½ teaspoon ground red pepper
½ cup seasoned fine dry bread crumbs
1 pound ground turkey
6 slices bacon
6 hamburger buns
Tomato slices (optional)
Chili peppers (optional)

In a large mixing bowl combine egg, Worcestershire sauce, salt, garlic powder, onion powder and red pepper. Add bread crumbs and turkey; mix well. Shape turkey mixture into six ¾-inch-thick patties. Wrap a strip of bacon around outside of each patty; fasten with wooden toothpick.

Grill, uncovered, directly over medium coals for 15 to 18 minutes or until no pink remains, turning once. (Or, place patties on the unheated rack of a broiler pan. Broil 3 to 4 inches from heat for 15 to 18 minutes or until no pink remains and bacon is done, turning once.)

Remove toothpicks before serving. Serve on buns. Top with tomato slices and chili peppers, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Plum sauce tops on ice cream

In summer, we all scream for ice cream, preferably topped with a rich fudge sauce. Unfortunately, most fudge sauces and ice creams are high enough in fat that they should only be eaten as an occasional treat. For more everyday fare, cook up a hot sundae topping of sweet and juicy plums, then spoon it over ice milk or low-fat frozen yogurt. For a plum parfait, layer the cooled plum sauce with granola and ice milk or yogurt.

ROSY PLUM SAUCE

¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
5 or 6 fresh plums, pitted and sliced (2½ cups)
2 tablespoons water
Vanilla ice milk or low-fat frozen yogurt
Plum wedges

In a medium saucepan stir together sugar and cornstarch. Stir in sliced plums and water. Bring to boiling, stirring occasionally; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 6 to 8 minutes or until the sauce is of the desired consistency. Cool the sauce slightly. Serve warm over vanilla ice cream. Top with fresh plum wedges. (Or make parfaits by layering sauce and ice cream.) Makes 2 cups sauce, 6 to 8 servings.

■ CRACKER JACK

Cracker Jack, the international snack food favorite for nearly a century, now has a partner, Butter Toffee Cracker Jack, the first new confection in 99 years to carry the famous Cracker Jack name, is available in stores throughout the country.

Leelanau Cellars 1991 Tall Ship Reserve Chardonnay ($12.95) is highlighted by varietal apple and pear fruitiness with complementary barrel fermentation aromas. Substantial palate breadth and superior balance makes this wine a winner that will bring you back for more.

If blending makes superior wines, then Skolnik has done it with Vis a Vis ($10.95). The white wine version is a 50/50 blend of chardonnay and vignoles that brings these two varietals "face to face" as the French name implies. They are not strange bedfellows, but are a harmonious marriage of solid flavors and complexity.

In the red Vis a Vis, Skolnik has paired pinot noir and baco noir to create a tasty, easy-drinking wine for roast chicken, hamburgers, pizza or picnic fare.

At Good Harbor Vineyards in Lake Leelanau, Bruce Simpson continues to produce well-made, excellently priced wines. He has a limited supply of knockout 1991 Pinot Gris ($12) highlighting apple, pear and apricot fruitiness with attractive wood accents. It's superior with broiled swordfish.

Good Harbor Rieslings, under $8, are a must try if you don't know them.

Easy tuna salad super light meal

Nutrition awareness is at an all-time high. According to the Food and Drug Administration, the public's understanding of the link between heart disease and a healthy diet — one that's rich in complex carbohydrates and low in dietary fat and cholesterol — has nearly doubled in the past decade.

Foods high in complex carbohydrates like pasta and potatoes — are the primary energy source for our bodies.

For additional healthy eating tips and recipes, send a self-addressed stamped business size envelope to: No Yolks, Dept. 250, 520 E. Church Street, Libertyville, IL 60048.

EASY BASIL TUNA SALAD

Fire up the grill for lean roast beef

AP — In the roundup of lean beef options, the eye of round roast makes the cut. Each 3-ounce serving of cooked meat contains less than 4 grams of fat. It's that very same leanness that makes the eye of round ideal for grilling. There's less fat to drip onto the hot coals, meaning less chance of flare-ups. Cook this roast to rare or medium doneness, then slice and serve it with a tropical-style salsa.

EYE OF ROUND WITH PINEAPPLE SALSA

2-pound beef eye of round roast
Two 8¼-ounce cans crushed pineapple, drained
2 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
2 Tablespoons lime or lemon juice
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Several dashes bottled hot pepper sauce

Trim any excess fat from roast. Insert a meat thermometer in the center of the roast. In a covered grill arrange medium coals around a drip pan. Test for medium-low heat above the pan. Place the roast on grill rack over drip pan but not over coals. Lower the grill hood. Grill for 1 to 1¼ hours or until meat thermometer registers 140 degrees F for rare; 1½ to 2 hours or 160 degrees F for medium.

Meanwhile, for salsa, in a medium mixing bowl combine pineapple, tomatoes, lime or lemon juice, sugar, soy sauce, garlic powder, dry mustard and hot pepper sauce. Cover and chill until serving time.

When the meat is done, cover it with foil and let stand for 15 minutes before carving. Serve salsa with sliced meat. Makes 8 servings.

Roasting Directions: Place roast on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Roast, uncovered, in a 325-degree F oven for 1¼ to 1¾ hours or until thermometer registers 140 degrees F for rare; 1¾ to 2¼ hours or 160 degrees F for medium. Serve as directed above.

Amazing grace: The Drovers may have had their start playing jigs and reels, but they've been able to go on to blend the sounds of their Irish-American heritage with rock stylings with a good deal of grace.

Drovers blend rock and tradition

Tin whistles, bodhrans, accordions and fiddles make music steeped in the traditions of Ireland. But don't look for an Irish lilt in talking to The Drovers, a band of Irish-American musicians who've been creating their folk-rock sounds in Chicago. Now they're bringing it to Michigan for us to enjoy.

BY LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

By design or out of desperation, the Drovers' sound is damp with the mist of the Emerald Isle.

Tin whistles, bodhrans, accordions and fiddles find their way into the Drovers' folk-rock frolic. Such instrumentation set against edgy pop melodies may make the band something of an anomaly, but also leaves the Chicago-based alternative outfit to constantly slug it out with several unwanted comparisons.

One of the most common is being likened to the bawdy balladry evocated by the Pogues.

Perhaps a more cynical view would go as far to say the Drovers are merely trying to cash in on the current Irish musical phenomenon wrought with U2 megatours, Sinead's love affair with Frank Sinatra and film characters named Decco thinking they're black soul singers. Not so, says fiddle player Sean Cleland.

Many of the group's members were reared on Irish traditional music as Irish Americans growing up in Chicago, he says. As accomplished musicians, they later went on to perform jigs and reels at ceilis in social halls and parishes.

For whatever reason, we stuck by that music," said Cleland, whose band performs Thursday, Aug. 20, at Rick's Cafe in Ann Arbor.

"We didn't want to do jigs and reels anymore. We want to play the music for everybody. The question was, 'What do you do with this stuff?' "

Undoubtedly, part of the charm of the band's muse comes from an unfettered reverence for Irish folk music heroes such as the Clancy Brothers, the Chieftains and the like.

That said, the Drovers establish a distinctive sound filled with adroit musicianship, intoxicating acoustic-strummed melodies and, most of the time, breathless vocals provided by Kathleen Keane. Keane shares singing duties on the band's CD "World of Monsters" with Mike Kirkpatrick and Dave Callahan.

Songs such as "Love Won't Be" and "Held Your Hand Like Yesterday" are crafted with a spirited pop demeanor and gently flavored with Irish folk whereas "Trad Reed," a bodhran-tin whistle instrumental pays homage to their musical roots.

"We came from playing all the time, at (Irish) dances . . . it's a real hands on type of thing," said Cleland, who has been performing Irish traditional music since he was a child. "It's not like we said, 'Let's start a band and do a demo.' It's not like that."

Though the desired result is the same for the Drovers. The band received an enormous amount of exposure in the firefighting action drama, "Backdraft," which was set in Chicago. Director Ron Howard caught the group's act in a North Side club and became infatuated with the band's traditional alternative dance sound.

In the film, the band is featured kicking out some Celtic jams in the scene of the fire chief's retirement party. "It was good for getting press," Cleland said of the group's cinematic debut. "You can't tell what we're about, though."

Those who have difficulty figuring out what the Drovers are about would be advised by band members to simply listen and enjoy the music. Comparisons, such as the one to the Pogues, need not be applied.

STREET SENSE

BARBARA SCHIFF

Dear Readers:

Today's letters refer to a column about teenage girls calling boys, which was printed about a month ago. Others like these were printed with my response several weeks ago. Because they are so well-written and contain an important message, these needed to be heard as well.

Again, thank you for your contribution to this important issue.

Barbara

Dear Ms. Schiff:

I have just read your column, "Street Sense," in The Eccentric for Monday, July 6, 1992. I can't believe your answer to Michelle, a single mother asking your advice about her son's harrassing phone calls from a girl in his class.

You, in essence, told Michelle that it was OK for this girl to have made the harrassing phone calls just because she is going through difficult years as an adolescent! How can you in good conscience say that this girl's behavior is "within the normal limits of current teenage mores?" Since when is calling at all hours to someone's residence acceptable?

Barbara, you, who is supposed to be a trained therapist and experienced counselor, "missed the boat" in your answer!

The problem with this generation is they are told that it is OK not to listen/obey their parents, or God forbid, be acceptable to other adults. Why do you think families are disintegrating so fast now?

It's people like you who give inept advice to say: "It is important not to feel frustrated, embarrassed or angry. If the mother who called you intended to make you feel that way, do not let her be an accomplice to your loss of self-esteem. When you talk it out with your daughter, it is important that you understand what she is going through and that you tell her you will support her through these difficult years. This would be a victory for both of you."

Michelle should not have "loss of self-esteem," but should be grateful that someone took the time to inform her that her daughter is wrong to annoy and harrass people. Her daughter needs to be kept busy, i.e., play sports, read books, perform volunteer work, clean her room. Then there would be no "useless free time" to make unwanted phone calls!

Wake up and smell the roses, Barbara, and start giving out some "common sense" in your answers.

Dear Barbara:

Have you completely lost your mind or what? Are you a . . . fruitcake or what? Your answer to Michelle, the single mother with the pre-teen daughter who called a boy on the phone to the point of harrassment, was so totally off base! I'm surprised the paper is keeping you on their staff.

Obviously, you have never experienced this type of phenomenon or you, perhaps, do not yet have a teenaged child. I can tell you directly from experience that a pestering phone caller can and will make your life a living nightmare. We had such a "Caller from Hell" waking us up at 4 a.m. just to talk to my then 11-year-old son.

Age and sex have nothing to do with common courtesy and consideration for other people. You are sending out the wrong message to this poor adult woman who has turned to you for guidance. Instead your answer is about as useful as a screen door on a submarine!

Where do you got off saying this is the sign of the times? I definitely fall into the age category of 30-50, but my daughters do not. They have been instructed that calling a friend, both male and female, is perfectly normal for reasons as homework information, missing assignments or rides or just to talk. The conditions stated by the boy's mother to this single parent is not what would fall into the above category.

We had to have our phone number changed and a restraining order put on this particular female who was harrassing my son at all hours of the day and night. I now speak from experience and, however extreme this case may sound, it could have probably been prevented by a little intervention from a strong and insistent parent who imposed a little control over a pre-teen's phone habits.

You really need to reassess your answer and realize part of the problem with the way society is going is that there are counselors out there like you who give half-ass advice like that! Why don't you publish your home phone number in the paper and let us call you at odd hours of the night and day to harrass you.

I consider myself independent and aggressive, but there is a place and time for this type of behavior to exist in society. I like to think that my own daughters and my son have learned to distinguish between when to use their independence and their aggressiveness so as not to overtake their thought processes and their behavior.

Get with the program yourself, Barbara!

Eastwood resurrects western with 'Unforgiven'

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

He may look like it when wrestling squealers, but Billy Munny is a cowboy with a dark past and a nasty reputation.

Legend has it that the outlaw-turned-pig farmer once shot his way out of a showdown with three lawmen. During a drinking binge, he would gun a man down over the slightest provocation.

In "Unforgiven," Munny, now a widower who's seen the error of his ways, wears years of sorrow beneath Clint Eastwood's trademark squint. His final brush with wickedness leads to the best western Eastwood (or anyone) has made in years.

On the surface, "Unforgiven" has all the elements of a standard horse opera. Munny, his old partner and an eager young gunslinger ride off to collect the bounty offered by prostitutes who want dead the man who scarred the face of one of their girls.

Look deeper and you'll find a heavy moral exercise in Western justice. What is proper punishment for cutting up a woman? Is $1,000 enough justification for taking anyone's life? How many must die to avenge the loss of your best friend?

Gene Hackman has a great character role as Little Bill Daggett, the sheriff who's not at all thrilled about bounty hunters descending on his town. He requires every man to surrender his guns before entering his jurisdiction.

English Bob, played with hammy theatricality by Richard Harris, tests local law when he blows in, spouting off about the English monarchy and packing a six-shooter. Little Bill, who knew the flambouant assassin previously, personally kicks the stuffing out of Bob before riding him out of town on a rail.

You spend the next 20 minutes anticipating the confrontation between Little Bill and Munny. Their meeting takes some truly fateful twists that make even murkier the definition of western hero.

For his part, Eastwood paints a vivid and understated portrait of a man just one drink away from sinking back into the meanness he has worked so hard to overcome. It's light years ahead of his Shane redux in the aptly titled "Pale Rider."

As a director, he has the sense to steer clear of the visual tricks used by the strong directors (Sergio Leone, Don Siegel) he's worked in the past. He and cinematographer Jack Green have a clever way of mixing Technicolor hues with the kind of shadows too rarely used during the golden age of Hollywood westerns.

While it may not have the emotional punch of the classic western, "Unforgiven" has little to apologize for. It proves again that Clint Eastwood is the only man alive who can keep breathing life into the traditional western.

Hensen's puppets capture scăry side of Alice's childhood

LeANNE ROGERS

In 1932, an elderly British widow, Alice Hargreaves, arrives in New York to participate in an academic function and finds herself engulfed by a mob of reporters and photographers. She's impatient with the intrusions and baffled by all the attention.

But the 80-year-old was once a 10-year-old who was regaled with fanciful stories by clergyman Charles Dodgson, who later published the stories as "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland" under his pen name of Lewis Carroll.

A Victorian dowager, Hargreaves, played by Carol Browne, has accepted an invitation from Columbia University to speak at a celebration of the Lewis Carroll centenary. Despite her protests that she really doesn't remember much about Mr. Dodgson, childhood dreams and memories return when she is alone in her hotel room.

In "Dreamchild," Alice remembers the very slow fall into the hole. Then the elderly woman is talking with the Mad Hatter, the March Hare and the Doormouse. Other times it's the precocious young Alice, played by a rather solemn, dark-haired Amelia Shankley, who is in Wonderland.

Other scenes recall young Alice with her family and Dodgson, who clearly had an inappropriate infatuation for the child. The film certainly raises questions about Dodgson and his impact on the child.

Young Alice's mother questions why Dodgson would confide so much in the child. The adult Alice remembers her mother burning all the letters Dodgson had sent her and speculates she wouldn't have done that if there hadn't been something wrong.

As played by Ian Holm, Dodgson clearly is lovesick for the child who he tries to woo with stories, presenting her with a first printing of his tales. He's a stuttering, shy man, jealous of the attention Alice receives from a young boyfriend. He's a rather sad character, who knows his infatuation with the child isn't proper or at least will never be what he wants.

For the first time, the elderly Alice confronts her long buried feelings and memories about her experiences with Dodgson, who called her the dreamchild. Her thoughts start to subtly surface when she talks pragmatically to reporters who want to talk about dreams. They aren't interested in her, Alice tells them, but the girl she was and who Dodgson made her out to be.

"Its hard enough to be what I was at my age let alone what I never was," she says.

The film is rich and vividly made, with the story characters designed and operated by Jim Henson and his company. These aren't cuddly cut little figures, they capture the scary edge that is one side of a child being lost in strange and dangerous land.

The subplot involves the elderly woman's companion and a young reporter, who for a sizeable commission sets her up to do some promotions. It's fun to see the imposing widow Hargreaves recording some radio commercials.

WINTER WAKEUP

By Sally Johnson
New York Times Syndicate

Summer is the reason most Vermonters put up with the winters. For three months, after the rain ends and before the frost turns the leaves, the world becomes a vibrant, lush green and the residents, aroused from their hibernation, venture forth, remembering once again why they live here.

The town of Middlebury on the western side of the state is an ideal jumping-off point for forays into the Green Mountains, because nothing is far away. Lake Champlain, 20 to 25 minutes to the west, offers swimming, boating and fishing. The mountains, with hiking trails, swimming holes and waterfalls, are a short drive to the east.

A college town of 8,000 people, Middlebury is far more cosmopolitan than its size or setting would suggest, with a variety of restaurants and inns that are often included on the recommended lists of national guidebooks.

From mid-June through August the streets and stores sound like a rural United Nations, with people chatting in languages from French to Arabic to Chinese, all of them students at Middlebury College's Summer Language Schools, where English is the only forbidden tongue.

Summer days begin with a rosy sunrise over the Green Mountains and end with a spectacular display of pink, purple and orange as the sun descends over the Adirondacks of New York state to the west.

For three weeks in July the weather turns hot (by local standards hot is anything above 90 degrees) and humid. When that happens relief is — literally — in sight: the Green Mountains, reliably 10 degrees cooler than the Champlain Valley floor, are a 20-minute drive east and up.

Events

Mozart under the lights at Lincoln Center is an enchanting musical experience. Mozart under the stars at Shelburne Farms near Burlington, is something else again. The Farms is the grand, turn-of-the-century, lakefront summer home built by Dr. William Seward Webb and Lila Vanderbilt Webb.

For three weeks each year the musicians of the Vermont Mozart Festival play on the South Porch to the people seated on the grounds around the Shelburne House. Although other festival venues include downtown Burlington and the Lake Champlain ferry, this is a perennial favorite.

The Vermont Equestrian Summer Showcase, which began with two weeks in Killington, ends with two weeks at the Trapp Family Lodge in Stowe Aug. 12 to 23. Spectator fees are $5 ($7 on Sundays) and $2 for children under 12 and seniors ($3 on Sundays). Call (802) 496-7469 for schedules.

One of the more unusual summer treats Middlebury has to offer is the Bread Loaf Writers' Conference, where each night from Aug. 11 to 23 well-known authors give readings. Authors range from Jay Parini and Ron Powers to Hilma Wolitzer and Linda Pastan.

The readings at 8:15 in the Little Theater at the Bread Loaf college campus above Ripton are free. For information call (802) 388-3711, ext. 5286.

Overview: The view from a rocky ledge of the Green Mountain National Forest overlooks Branbury State Park and Lake Dummore, both in the town of Salisbury, Vt., just south of Middlebury.

Outings

When Joseph Battell, the wealthy but eccentric Middlebury resident who built the Bread Loaf Inn around the turn of the century, was alive he banned all automobiles from the road leading to his mountain retreat. If that seems extreme in these times it is still an idea that has merit. Hiking and cycling are better choices.

Two valuable sources of information are the "Day Hiker's Guide to Vermont," which covers hikes off the Long Trail, and the "Guide Book of the Long Trail." Both are published by the Green Mountain Club and both are sold in the Vermont Book Shop in Middlebury for $9.95 plus tax.

One relatively easy half-day hike begins at the top of the Appalachian Gap where state Route 17 crosses the Long Trail, which bisects the state from north to south, following the ridges of the Green Mountains. Park in one of the pull-offs at the top and follow the Long Trail signs, headed south.

The trail climbs steeply for a mile or so, then levels off in a clearing. Follow the path through the bushes and out onto a aerielike cliff.

Although Vermont is correctly thought of as mountainous, there are long flat stretches throughout the Champlain Valley that make it a cyclist's paradise.

Biking has become a wildly popular sport here over the past two decades, in large part because of the efforts of John Freidin, the founder of Vermont Bicycle Touring. Freidin, who no longer owns the business, has encapsulated his knowledge into the helpful "25 Bicycle Tours in Vermont," also for sale at the Vermont Book Shop and well worth the $8.95 it costs.

For those more comfortable with some outside guidance, Bruce Burgess, the owner of Bicycle Holidays in Middlebury (802-388-2453), will provide either a highlighted map or a custom-designed tour for as many days as you wish. Burgess rents mountain bikes for $29 the first day and $20 a day after that.

Helmets cost an additional $3 a day and reservations are recommended.

Vermont Bicycle Touring (802-453-4811) in nearby Bristol offers two-day weekend tours in addition to the longer variety. Reservations are usually necessary.

For drivers there is a very scenic loop that takes you over the mountains and back again, with opportunities for antiquing, shopping and dining along the way.

Head north out of Middlebury on Route 7, turn right onto Route 17 at New Haven Junction and follow the road through Bristol. Coming out of town, take the second right and follow the road to the top of the Appalachian Gap, making certain to pull over and turn around at the top.

Wind down the mountain past Mad River Glen and Sugarbush to Route 100, go right on Route 100 to Hancock, stopping for lunch and browsing at Warren Country Store.

In Hancock turn right on Route 125 and climb the mountain, turning in at the sign for a look at Texas Falls. Then continue over the mountain, back to Route 7.

Shopping

Over the years Middlebury has evolved into a browser's paradise. The best strategy is to park somewhere around the Green and walk. Nothing is very far.

Along Main Street the Vermont Book Shop (802-388-2061), in residence at the same location for years, is declared by even urban bibliophiles to be a treasure.

Treasures crystallize at Swedish glassworks

By Everett Potter
Special Writer

Shopping Around

A visit to Sweden is not complete without a stop in the area known as the "Kingdom of Crystal."

Situated in the southeastern province of Smaland, a rural area with deep blue lakes and thick pine forests, the kingdom is home to 16 major glassworks.

Among them are Kosta Boda and Orrefors, names that have become synonymous with the acclaimed tradition of Swedish craftsmanship and design.

Visitors flock to the area to see glassblowers at their craft and to take advantage of bargains.

With few exceptions, the local Swedish factories offer large selections of seconds that are far less expensive than first-choice pieces.

In many cases it takes an expert's eye to distinguish the small flaws that mark a piece as a second.

But it doesn't take an expert to become excited about the prices. They are about 50 percent less than first-quality pieces sold in Stockholm and 70 percent less than those sold in the United States.

All the factories welcome visitors. This year Kosta, the oldest glassworks, is celebrating its 250th anniversary.

Kosta was founded in 1742 by two noted generals — Anders Koskull and George Bogislaus Stael von Holstein — at the request of King Fredrik I, who was intent on building a crystal trade for the country.

The Kosta factory acquired the nearby Boda and Afors glassworks more than 40 years ago, forming Kosta Boda. In 1990 Kosta Boda merged with Orrefors. But each firm retains its own designers and production facilities.

"It's rare that a piece of glass is broken, and you'll never see a 'don't touch' sign here," says Diana Hansen, a Kosta spokesperson.

"About 15 percent of a team's production is seconds," she says, adding, "firsts would be enormously expensive if we couldn't sell seconds."

Each year the company introduces two new collections. They discontinue others and offer favorites for as long as they sell.

Amid deafening noise and constant heat, workers maintain a rhythmic pace — blowing, turning and shaping pieces of glass. A six-man team can make between 800 and 900 wineglasses per day.

Unlike most factories, which keep visitors at bay, Kosta lets guests up close to watch and talk to the workers.

The shop is a large, well-lighted warehouse with thousands of pieces of glassware for sale. About 95 percent of the pieces are seconds; the rest are discontinued firsts.

They include art-glass pieces that are signed and can be bought for a good discount. But finding such pieces takes luck.

The shop carries all the classic Kosta pieces, including the Pippi line of glassware, a favorite for 60 years. These narrow, heavy items include sherry glasses for about $16, pilsner glasses for about $27 and champagne glasses for about $18.

A perennial Kosta favorite is the Snowball, a thick, hollowed-out piece used as a candleholder. It's about $8.50.

Among the newest art-glass designs is the Pandora series. It features clear-glass with a satin finish. A Pandora candlestick is about $75. Whimsical pitchers are about $94.

"Only later did we find out that these cacti are natives of Arizona," she says. The pieces are priced at about $66.

Sweden's best-selling glass, Kostals Chateau wineglass, has delicate beveled facets on the bowl and costs about $12.

All these prices include Sweden's whopping 25 percent value-added tax (VAT). About 15 percent of that tax is returned when the buyer leaves the country — under Sweden's Tax Free for Tourists plan.

The price of shipping glassware — especially heavy pieces such as vases — to the United States can be as much as the amount of value-added tax that is refunded.

The ultimate glass experience is a "Hyttsil" evening. In this traditional fest, participants have dinner in the factory — Baltic herring which are cooked in the glass furnaces.

Dinner is followed by local folk entertainment. Of course, there is time for shopping. Getting to Kosta involves an overnight trip from Stockholm. There are good accommodations in the nearby cities of Vaxjo or Kalmar.

For information contact Kosta Boda, Kosta S-360 52, Sweden or call 011-46-478-503-00. Or contact the Swedish Tourist Board, 655 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017; telephone (212) 949-2333.

Madonna class aims to help supervisors sharpen skills

Supervisors and managers, whether new to administration, anticipating a supervisory role, or just wishing to sharpen their skills, can take advantage of a 13-week course, leading to a supervision certificate program, at Madonna University this fall.

The program is designed to provide supervisors in any area with awareness of their role, and acquaint them with the theory and vocabulary of supervision. Developed for Level I supervisors, those in higher levels of any organization may benefit from the series. Participants may select any or all of the modules and those completing all will be awarded a certificate of completion for the entire program. A continuing education certificate will be awarded for each class. All courses are held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays. Cost is $45 each or $500 for all 13 courses.

The first course, "Selection of Supervisors," will be held Sept. 12 and will hold exercises that assist participants in choosing individuals for a supervisory position.

"Motivation of Supervisors," held on Sept. 26, will focus on the latest techniques for self motivation and inspiring others and study the works of Maslow and Herzberg and Graves.

The third module will identify "The Marginal Performer," and examine standards for performance, while stressing Improvement of these workers. It will be held on Oct. 10.

"Discipline for the Supervisor," held on Oct. 24, will distinguish problems in the work force and apply techniques which are most effective for supervisors. Appraisal of performance will be simulated at this workshop.

Held on Nov. 7, "Discipline in the Work Force" will examine behavior of employees and assist in identifying successful or troubling performance. The course will focus on skills which control the work force and increase satisfaction and productivity.

"Handling Organizational Change," held on Nov. 21, will deal with the massive change taking place in the work force in the corporate area, the departmental area of work and in the individual performer. Modem methods are examined including the use of team work, group decision making, and continuous improvement and value analysis.

Additional workshops include: "Resolving Conflict in the Work Place," on Dec. 5; "Time Management," on Jan. 9; "The Coaching Process for Supervisors," on Jan. 23; "Roles and Duties of the Supervisor," on Feb. 13; and on Feb. 27, "Communication With Individuals," addressing written and oral communication of supervisors.

In March the final two courses, "Communication with Groups," and "Leadership," will be held on March 6 and March 20, respectively.

Fans should not miss Johnston's Sports Den

There's a sign on Plymouth Road west of Telegraph that needs to be changed.

The sign with green background and white letters promotes both Giacomin's Bar and Ram's Horn Restaurant. And while the Ram's Horn is still there, former Detroit Red Wings goalie Eddie Giacomin no longer owns the bar.

It belongs to Larry Johnston, another former Red Wing who bought the bar five years ago from his friend Giacomin. It's now called Johnston's Sports Den in Redford Township.

"One of these days I'm going to go over and change it (the sign on Plymouth Road)," said Johnston, a Red Wings defenseman from 1971 through '74. "As long as people come and spend money, I don't care what you call it."

I spent about a half hour interviewing Johnston last week and leave it to me to accidentally call him "Eddie" as we finished our talk. Johnston was good natured about my mistake, saying, "OK, Frank," as we shook hands.

Then I remembered Johnston saying earlier in the interview: "Real hockey fans remember me."

A rugged Red Wing

OK, so I don't stay home on Saturday nights to watch "Hockey Night in Canada," but I am a hockey fan. I even went to the old Olympia several times with my family during Johnston's era to watch the Red Wings.

Johnston played with Mickey Redmond, Nick Libett and Red Berenson, but the guy I remember most from that era was Tim Ecclestone.

One guy in the row behind us always used to scream "Hit him with your purse, Ecclestone" — a reference to Ecclestone's less-than-rugged play.

No one had to say that to Johnston, a tough guy who miraculously lost only one tooth in all his years in the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association.

But he almost lost an eye against the Chicago Blackhawks.

"Pit Martin was chasing me, his stick hit me in the eye and I was in the hospital five days," said Johnston, a West Bloomfield resident. "I was flat on my back four, five days. My eyeball was cut and they said if the bleeding stopped it would be no problem. I was lucky that happened."

Johnston spent seven season in the minor leagues and his NHL career started in 1969 with the Los Angeles Kings. He was traded to the Red Wings in 1971 and left Detroit in '74 to join the fledgling Michigan Stags of the WHL.

Johnston spent less than one season with the Stags before moving back to the NHL and finishing his career with expansion teams Kansas City and Colorado (now the New Jersey Devils).

Johnston never played with the legendary Gordie Howe, who retired for the first time from the Red Wings in '71, but he exchanged quite a few elbows with No. 9.

"Personally, he's a nice man, but he's a mean Son of a Bitch on the ice," Johnston said of Howe. "Not too many guys fooled with him. He was nasty with the stick."

Trading a stick for a spatula

Johnston plays for the Red Wings' Old-Timers on occasion but a spatula is in his hand more often than a hockey stick. Johnston mans the grill just about every day at Johnston's Sports Den, while son Craig provides help at the bar. Besides selling 34 ounce beers, Johnston's menu is long.

"You name it, we do a little bit of everything," said Johnston, who has been married for more than 30 years to wife June. "I like it (owning a bar). It has its days that are aggravating but most of the time I like it. I really do love it here (in Detroit)."

There's still some paraphernalia and pictures that belong to Giacomin hanging on the walls but Johnston has decorated the bar mostly with his hockey memories.

Johnston has no thoughts of expanding the business.

"This is plenty big for me," said Johnston, 49. "When you get to be 50 you want to start down-gearing a bit."

Shags split 2 with Diamonds

■ The Cobras can breathe easier after the Salem Shags split a twin bill Thursday with the Diamonds to fall in the Incredible Girls Fastpitch Softball League standings.

The Salem Shags lost ground in their bid to catch the front-running Canton Cobras by splitting a double-header with the Farmington Hills Diamonds in Incredible Girls Fastpitch Softball League play Thursday at Northville's Ford Field.

Salem won the first easily, 12-3, but the Diamonds bounced back to take the nightcap, 5-4.

With the league season entering its final week, the Cobras retain their hold on first with a 14-2 record. The Farmington Hills Majestics are second at 11-3, followed by the Farmington Hills Hornets (12-4), the Shags (13-5) and the Diamonds (9-7).

Amy Ruthig hurled a two-hitter for Salem in the opener, and both hits came in the opening inning. Amy Kelman's two-run single gave Farmington Hills a 2-0 lead.

But it was all Salem after that. The Shags scored three in the first and added seven more in the second. Amanda Tubagh and Jennifer Lock each had two-run doubles in the seven-run rally, and Lisa Girardia drove in a run with a base hit. Tubagh had two hits for Salem.

In the second game, timely hitting carried the Diamonds. Megan Stephan was the winner, pitching one scoreless inning in relief of starter Courtney Carlson. Rachel Allard finished up, going two innings and surrendering two runs.

Allard and Kelman each had a hit and scored twice for the Diamonds; Kelman drove in a run, too. Kate Mackie contributed a hit and an RBI, and Jenny Holtzman had a base hit.

Salem scored twice in the fifth to make it close on a two-run single by Kathi Fitzpatrick, who usually plays for the Diamonds but switched sides for this game so the Shags would have enough players. Ruthig started and went all four innings for Salem, absorbing the loss.

The league all-star game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Drake Field in Farmington.

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Michele Gaza didn't travel to Barcelona, Spain this summer but she still brought home Olympic medals.

Gaza, a Garden City resident who will finish high school this year at Farmington Hills Mercy, won both a gold and bronze medal for synchronized swimming at the recently-completed Junior Olympics in Rochester, Minn.

Gaza spent the last year training and going to school in Midlothian, Va. and it was there that she made a team called Briarwood that won the gold. Her bronze medal came in trio competition with teammates from Briarwood.

"It felt good to stand up there (on the medal platform) as a team," Gaza said. "It all paid off."

Gaza is thrilled about winning the medals but the most proud might be her parents.

"They want to frame the medals," she said. "My dad took the gold to work."

Gaza placed seventh as a solo synchronized swimmer at the 1991 Junior Olympics but she figured she had a better shot at the gold by going out-of-state to train. There were a lot of lonely days in Virginia but training with coach Fred Day and assistant Pat Easterling, whose house she stayed at, was worth it.

Besides attending the local high school, Gaza practiced at least 20 hours a week with Briarwood.

Gaza had the option of returning to Virginia but she decided she'd rather finish up high school where she started — at Mercy. Gaza will have to travel to East Lansing or Flint to work out but that's fine.

"Mercy is just a wonderful school, my friends supported me the whole year and I want to be around them," she said. "(Virginia) was a great experience and I learned a lot from it. At first it was real hard and I wanted to come home, not because I didn't like swimming but because I was home sick.

"It was a struggle because I always thought what my friends back home were doing and what I was doing and if I was doing the right thing. I owe it to my parents (Michael and Marlene), they're the best."

Another of Gaza's supporters was best friend Tatum Ames (Garden City), who would keep in touch over the telephone.

"Every Sunday there, I would call her or she would call me, exactly at 9:30," Gaza said.

"Yeah, my parents didn't appreciate it (all the phone calls)," Ames said. "They're so happy she's home because she only lives a couple blocks away and I can drive there."

Gaza plans to compete on Mercy's swimming team this fall but she knows her niche is as a synchronized swimmer. She started synchronized swimming at age 7 after watching her sister Beth in the sport.

Gaza would like to continue synchronized swimming in college and she hopes to attend Ohio State University, which has the sport.

"I want to try to make the Olympic team, but if not, make the first national team," Gaza said. "But first I just want to survive college swimming."

Gaza said some people don't understand the struggles of a synchronized swimmer.

"A lot of people have misconceptions that synchronized swimmers just do shows and goof off," she said. "But it's very structural, we have to do 20 hours a week in the water, do aerobics, take dance lessons.

"We don't have goggles to wear, we have to listen to underwater music, do counts to everything. That's why everything is synchronized. We're not just guessing."

New Orleans stops upstart Walter's

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Walter's Appliance opened and closed the All-American Amateur Baseball Association tournament with losses, but its seven-day stint in Johnstown, Pa. was the most successful ever by an entry from the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

Walter's bid for a national title came up short Sunday, as New Orleans, La., known as NORD Boosters, rallied for five runs in the final two innings, erasing a 5-4 deficit, to claim its 10th AAABA title and first since 1989 in a 9-6 win at Point Stadium.

Tournament MVP Steve Bourgeois, who bats fourth in the order, literally cleaned up for New Orleans, clubbing a pair of two-run homers in the eighth and ninth innings, respectively. The Hinds (Miss.) Community College junior also pitched the final four innings in relief, allowing one earned run on two hits, to pick up the win.

Bourgeois, ironically, had gone 0-for-5 in Walter's stunning 8-7 victory Friday (see related story) over previously unbeaten NORD (New Orleans Recreation Department).

Walter's had been riding a crest, having captured five straight wins in the 16-team double-elimination format after an opening-round 11-7 loss to last Monday to Schenectady, N.Y.

"We made a helluva run," Walter's manager Mike Keller said. "We only threw three bad pitches all day, but they (New Orleans) took advantage. Outside of that, we had them guessing.

"Overall, our pitchers did the job the whole week, along with our hitting and defense. We were behind in quite a few games, but we never gave up."

Walter's held a 4-2 lead until the top of the sixth when Chad Crespo connected for a two-run homer off Walter's starter Derek Wirebaugh.

But the Livonians forged ahead with a run in the bottom of the inning, only to have Wirebaugh victimized by another two-run shot by Bourgeois in the eighth.

Reliever Sean Henkel, who had two victories and a save to his credit during the week, finally ran out of bullets himself, tagged for three earned runs, including Bourgeois' second two-run blast. The tourney MVP had five RBI on the day.

New Orleans out-hit Walter's, 15-11.

Outfielder Kevin Young, who led all tourney players in doubles and triples, had two hits and two RBI for Walter's, as did Friday's hero, Craig Overaitis.

Third baseman Jeff Pendell, Walter's leading hitter for the tourney, also contributed two hits and scored twice.

"Up and down our lineup nobody was an easy out," Keller said. "Everybody contributed and did the job. The kids and the coaching staff represented the City of Livonia well. I think we gained a lot of respect down here."

New Orleans, behind the shutout pitching of Mike Romano, reached the final with a 4-0 triumph Saturday over three-time defending champion Baltimore, setting up a rematch against Walter's, which earned a bye into the championship.

AL HARRISON

More than 100 competitors from around the country competed last week for cash and prizes in three days of action at the Michigan Masters Wheelchair Tournament, sponsored by the Michigan chapter of the Paralyzed Veterans of America.

Runchey came through the war just fine, only to be injured later on in an industrial accident.

Now wheelchair bound, Runchey is active in all kinds of sports including track and field, billiards and table tennis. He has won several medals for his efforts, even though considered a quadriplegic.

His high game in bowling is a 193 (he carries a 104 league average). He's also been past president of the Michigan PVA and is very active in various programs for the handicapped.

He's resided in Garden City since 1972 where his daughter, Le, graduated from GC High.

For Runchey and the rest of the Wheelchair bowlers who participated in this tournament, it provides a great example of human spirit and courage. It's also another example on how the sport of bowling reaches out to any and all who wish to take part.

• The second annual mini-camp will take place from 9 a.m. until noon. Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 22-23 at Town 'n Country Lanes in Westland.

The event is open to all bowlers (free) and sponsored by the Western Wayne Youth Traveling Classic. Instruction to bowlers of all levels is also free.

Also, sign-up for the Youth Traveling League will be held at the same location, 12:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 23.

• Last Wednesday was the final night of Summer League Trio at Town 'n Country where league president Joe Belanger finished with a flurry, capturing high series with a 796. Most of his points were rolled up in the final game as he threw the first 11 strikes on his way to a 299, only to be foiled by the stubborn 10-pin on his last ball.

• Many of the local leagues are getting set for an early start this fall due to the late Labor Day (Sept. 7) date, not wanting to stretch the season out too long in the spring.

This is particularly true for any Friday leagues which forfeit a pair of dates (Christmas and New Years). Thursday night leagues will also be affected.

There are many openings for new bowlers.

In the next two or three weeks, this column will compile a list of leagues that need bowlers to complete rosters.

Openings normally run the anywhere from toddlers to senior citizens, beginners and experts, daytime leagues for housewives (complete with baby sitting), mixed (couples) leagues (to socialize), money leagues (for big shooters), youth traveling leagues (for future stars), and special leagues for the disabled.

Your local bowling center can tell you exactly what openings exists and who to contact.

Academics attract players

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Before.

What attracted Scott Myrand to Kalamazoo College? "It really didn't have much to do with football," the Livonia Franklin graduate answered. He wanted to enter medical school; a senior defensive tackle, he will graduate with a major in molecular biology.

"Basically, the academics part of it," was how Tony Prey, an offensive lineman from Westland John Glenn, replied to the same question. Prey is about to enter his sophomore year and is considering a major in psychology.

Now, both have found another reason to attend Kalamazoo. The Hornets have, for the past few decades, been near the bottom of the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association. They last won a title in 1963. The last time they had a winning season was 1983.

Winning season

Until last season, when Kalamazoo posted a 5-4 overall mark. The team's 2-3 MIAA record wasn't spectacular, but it got them out of the cellar.

Now, with 15 starters back, the Hornets are looking for more. "Our goal is the same as everyone's in the room, and that is to win the championship," said coach Dave Warmack at Thursday's MIAA pre-season media meeting in Albion. "We are not content to be improved. We want to win."

That's a different attitude for Kalamazoo. But attitudes and bold predictions don't win games; talent does. And the Hornets are compiling it.

Their defense was sixth in the NCAA Division III last year in points allowed (76 in nine game). Seven of those starters return, including Myrand, who had 51 tackles, three for losses, and recovered three fumbles.

Certainly, players like Myrand deserve credit for Kalamazoo's success. The 6-foot, 250-pound tackle didn't play football until his junior year at Franklin; he started only twice on the Patriots' varsity.

But both Myrand and Prey heap the credit for Kalamazoo's turnaround on their coach, Warmack. "We're trying to turn it around, get a tradition going," said Prey. "Coach Warmack is a good coach. I think he's already turned it around."

Myrand said much the same. "I really think Coach Warmack has done an excellent job. He sure is setting a tradition."

The question now is, can the improvement continue, as Warmack forsees? Or was '91 just an aberration?

Glenn grad important

Much could depend on Prey. Rated the strongest of the Hornets, Prey stands 6-2 and weighs 276. At John Glenn, he played guard as a junior and center as a senior. At Kalamazoo as a freshman, he started eight games — usually at tackle.

Now, he could be switched to guard — a position he'd rather play — as the Hornet coaching staff searches for ways to fill holes on the offensive front. "I like to be in the middle more," Prey said.

The defense could be just as tough, but that wouldn't satisfy Myrand. "Our goal is to better (last year's performance)," he said. "I think it would be a disappointment if we didn't."

Such play would elevate Kalamazoo into the contending class. Prey and Myrand believe they belong there. "I think we should have a chance to win it," Prey said confidently.

Myrand was more optimistic. "I think we have a great chance. With last year's performance, we were just short of having an excellent season."

True enough. Kalamazoo lost its four games by a total of 14 points. On the other hand, the Hornets shut out perennial powerhouse Hope 14-0.

Albion favored

Now another hurdle must be cleared: Albion, the three-time defending MIAA champ. "We've never beaten Albion since I've been here," said Myrand.

Nobody's beaten Albion much in the past few seasons, and it could be the same this year. The Britons have a strong nucleus returning, including all-MIAA quarterback Mike Montico.

FOOTBALL

MIAA FOOTBALL 1992 PREVIEWS

Last year's record: 4-5 overall, 1-4 in the MIAA.
Local players: Joe Papalian (Garden City); sophomore offensive tackle, 6-1, 240; Paul Rockwood (Livonia); sophomore outside linebacker, 6-2, 190; Scott Bragnon (Redford St. Agatha), freshman tight end, 6-2m 210; Scott Dziedzic (Inkster/Wayne Memorial), freshman defensive back, 5-11, 190; Jay Jensen (Farmington), freshman tight end, 6-3, 230; Vern Ratliff (North Farmington), freshman offensive lineman, 5-10, 225; Peter Zantop (Canton/Plymouth Salem), freshman defensive back, 5-11, 180.
Returning starters: Eight offensive, seven defensive.
Outlook: The Bulldogs suffered their first losing season since 1976 last year. With 15 starters returning, one might think that trend could be quickly reversed. But four of their five losses came in MIAA play, not a good omen. Neither is coach Jim Lyall's hope to "improve week by week." Respect and improvement are Lyall's goals for the season, and in a league that's become toughtop to bottom, victories will be hard to come by — particularly for Adrian.

Albion College

Last year's record: 8-1 overall, 4-0-1 and a tie for first in MIAA.
Returning starters: Seven offensive, eight defensive.
Outlook: The bad news for the Britons is the loss of tailback Hank Wineman (1,629 yards rushing, 16 TDs). Unfortunately for the rest of the league, that's about all the bad news there is. Albion has won or shared first place in the MIAA three straight years, and is picked to make it four. With all-MIAA quarterback Mike Montico (Country Day) and his top three receivers returning, together with most of the defense, the Britons are already planning a return trip to the NCAA III playoffs.

Alma College

Last year's record: 4-5 overall, 1-4 in the MIAA.
Local players: Jeff Skinner (Farmington Harrison), senior defensive lineman.
Returning starters: Five offensive, five defensive.
Outlook: Jim Cole begins his second season as the Scots' head coach on the bottom looking up. Since tying for the MIAA title in 1988 (their first in 16 years), Alma has struggled. Cole said he was "excited about carrying on the tradition of Alma College football." That tradition is lagging. The defense needs strong play from seniors Keith Christnagel and Wade Hanna on the line and outside linebacker Dave Johnston.

Hope College

Last year's record: 5-4 overall, 2-3 in the MIAA.
Local players: Chris Marting (Farmington Hills), freshman running back, 5-10, 175.
Returning starters: Four offensive, seven defensive.
Outlook: Ray Smith, the dean of MIAA coaches (22 years), says the "cupboard is not bare, but we have a lot of spots to fill. Most are on offense, where, for starters, the Dutchmen must find a quarterback. The defense looks tough, but all-MIAA linebacker Scott Jones must be replaced. All things considered, Hope's hopes for a title don't look good.

Kalamazoo College

Last year's record: 5-4 overall, 2-3 in the MIAA.
Returning starters: Eight offensive, seven defensive.
Outlook: This could easily be the "Olivet" of '92. Coaches often recite that defense wins championships, and the Hornets' contingent was sixth in the NCAA III, surrendering just 76 points last-season. Scott Myrand and Bryan Schultz are key members of that unit. Stat coach Dave Warmack's team is going to challenge, the offense must improve. A key restructuring the offensive line, where Tony Prey roams. The MIAA schedule has what may prove to be the biggest game of the season in its opening week (Oct. 10), when Kalamazoo visits Albion.

Olivet College

Last year's record: 7-1-1 overall, 4-0-1 in the MIAA and co-champions.
Local players: Rob Kartowski (Farmington Harrison), junior placekicker, 6-4, 200; Bill Thams (Plymouth/Plymouth Canton), senior offensive lineman, 5-11, 225.
Returning starters: Seven offensive, five defensive.
Outlook: Last year capped coach Dominic Livedoti's rebuilding process and gave the Comets something they hadn't possessed since 1974 — a title. Although they still have a lot of talent, repeating won't be easy. Olivet must play its three toughest MIAA games — Kalamazoo, Albion and Hope — on the road. The offense looks good, with the entire line back to protect returning quarterback Nick Leone. In all, six of those coming back received all-MIAA mention. But holes in the offensive and defensive backfield will make it difficult to match last season's record.

Overaitis' homer saves Walter's

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

The former Livonia Franklin High and Henry Ford Community College standout cracked a dramatic three-run homer with two-out in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving upstart Walter's Appliance a stunning 8-7 victory Friday over New Orleans at Point Stadium.

Overaitis' heroics; off NORD Boosters reliever Chris Wescott, enabled the first team ever from the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League to play for the coveted All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament title, held annually (since 1945) in the western Pennsylvania steel town. (See championship story).

"I didn't see it land," said Overaitis, who is headed for Madonna University this fall. "I didn't know it was out until the team got up and started yelling.

"I got ahead on the count and I was looking for a pitch. I felt focused and relaxed, instead of nervous and tense. I felt I was in a zone. I'd say it was my greatest thrill, especially in a tournament like this."

It was Walter's fifth straight victory in the 16-team double-elimination tournament and it couldn't have come at a more opportune time against the tourney's lone unbeaten team (among four still alive) in the double-elimination format.

"It was a 3-1 count, he (Overaitis) went with the pitch and sent it over the left-center field screen," said a euphoric Walter's manager Mike Keller. "I'm almost speechless. It was unbelievable."

Time Never Runs Out!

Here's how it works:
First, you must have a touch-tone telephone.
Then, all you do is call us – remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here – to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed earlier.
Let's say it's eight o'clock at night and you've just realized that the cupid on the clock you're selling plays a tin whistle. It's a good selling point, so you punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it.
If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers.
Pretty neat, huh?
Of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday throught Friday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad – at your convenience.

BITS AND PIECES

The Three Stooges: a primer in violent art

Don't try this at home. He doesn't hit you over the head with it, but magician Penn — of Penn & Teller — has strong feelings about the television he viewed as a child.

"The Three Stooges taught me the most important lesson a kid could learn, which is the difference between fantasy and reality. They taught about a kind of friendship that lived outside of society.

"And they also taught me by the age of 5 or 6 that you could do wonderful violence in art, and it didn't have to spill into life at all — which has been an important crusade of ours. I've never hit anyone in my life, nor has Teller, and yet we do violent art."

Penn & Teller

It's not just the birds and the bees anymore. Sex education is more complicated than it used to be. Today, parents have to make sure their children understand the threat of AIDS, along with the other consequences of sexual behavior.

An upcoming special for parents and teens alike is Understanding HIV: Does Teen America Know the Facts? Airing on or after Sept. 3 in many parts of the country, the one-hour syndicated program will feature the stars of several popular prime-time series, as well as teens who have tested positive for HIV.

The "King of All Media" is how controversial talk-show host Howard Stern describes himself. After earning a string of citations from the FCC for violation of decency standards on his radio and TV shows, Stern is now set to make his mark in motion pictures. Hitching a ride on Stern's ego trip is Michael De Luca of New Line Cinema, which is developing a comedy feature starring Stern. De Luca claims, "We predict that this film will be the most original, the most outrageous and the most talked about comedy motion-picture event of the '90s."

'2000 Malibu Road' not open to view

More promising series slated for fall debuts

CBS' six-part, end-of-summer series 2000 Malibu Road is the tale of a career woman (Lisa Hartman) who's mortgaged to the hilt and "can't sell her house because of the bad real estate market," according to executive producer Joel Schumacher (Flatliners). It's a show about "real life," says Hartman. As long as your idea of real life is an exclusive piece of beachfront property and a career in prostitution.

"So she takes in roommates because she's going to stop hooking," Schumacher explains. There's an aspiring actress (17-year-old Drew Barrymore), her "Svengali-like" sister (Tuesday Knight) and a lawyer (Jennifer Beals). Each woman has her secrets (the prostitute was abused by her stepfather; the lawyer's fiance just died and she has a drinking problem), which we'll discover as this part-time soap works up a lather in the weeks ahead.

From all appearances, CBS has gone slumming with 2000 Malibu Road, which debuts as a two-hour movie on Sunday, Aug. 23. The remaining hours will air in a Wednesday-night slot beginning Aug. 26. In fact, the behind-the-scenes drama may lead as much interest to the show as its titillating plot lines.

After four weeks of production Schumacher and co-executive producer Terry Louise Fisher (L.A. Law) presented three scenes to the press. The scenes emphasized cleavage, the sisters' intense bond (which include an unusually sensual foot rub), and a business transaction in which Hartman's character raised her price from $3,000 to $4,000 when her client brings along a second woman.

Is all this integral to the plot? That's impossible to say since advance episodes of Malibu Road have been withheld by CBS. During their press conference, Schumacher, Fisher and the lead actresses expressed dismay at the aggressive reception the clips received. While the reporters used words like "exploitive" and "sleaze," Fisher defended the show as "romantic."

"If it's just sleaze to you," said Schumacher, "I'm sorry, 'cause we don't see it that way."

When one reporter observed that most people "don't charge $4,000 for sexual favors," Hartman snapped, "That's your problem."

Notably absent from the slugfest were production partner Aaron Spelling, who was on hand during similar press events for Fox's Melrose Place and NBC's The Round Table; and the CBS executives, including entertainment chief Jeff Sagansky. (In cases where a favorable or even mediocre press reception is anticipated, network executives line up along the sides and back of the room.)

According to Schumacher, Sagansky approached him several months ago about developing the series. In Schumacher's words, "He wanted something with exciting young women and glamour."

In view of the results why doesn't the network simply air Malibu Road as part of its steady late-night lineup? Probably because it fears damaging its relationship with hit maker Spelling, series drawing card Hartmanh (Knots Landing) and Fisher, who was hailed for her originality as co-creator of L.A. Law. Instead, Malibu Road is praised with another summer ensemble drama, Freshman Dorm.

Dorm is ostensibly about college life, but there's little time for classes for its trio of coed roommates. In the first episode, one of the young women loses her virginity, and her evidently more wordly pals offer excited congratulations. Episode two is titled, "Sex, Truth and Theatre."

With the mystique of college life strongest among teens in junior high and high school, the network clearly hopes to bring in young viewers, and to keep them for Malibu Road in the second hour of prime time. Freshman Dorm executive producer Steve Tisch, whose family owns CBS, candidly says he expects the network "to use this show and milk it for all it's worth."

LET'S TALK!

Streep's throat, in this case; 'Just Imagine' it's good

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Were we listening to the actual singing voice of Meryl Streep in Postcards From the Edge*? —Mrs. L.C. Blair, Sun City West, Ariz.

A: Yes, that's actually Streep singing her heart out as the credits roll, with backup sound from the band Blue Rodeo.

Q: After seeing Batman Returns*, I've become interested in Christopher Walken, who plays Max Shreck. Could you please tell me about him — personal facts and what he's done in the past? —L. Slater, Royal Oak, Mich.

A: Walken was born the son of a baker on March 31, 1943, in Astoria, Queens, N. Y., and attended Hofstra University.

Walken is perhaps best known for his Oscar-winning supporting role as one of the three Pennsylvania buddies whose life is shattered after making the fateful decision to enlist for duty in

Meryl Streep

Vietnam in The Deer Hunter. His typical, soft-spoken modesty was never more evident than just before the Academy Awards when, lavished with praise by everyone in the business, he simply said, "I know what I'm doing on stage, but in films, I have to depend on the kindness of strangers."

A short list of films of interest starring Walken might include: Annie Hall (1977), Brainstorm (1983), At Close Range (1986), The Milagro Beanfield War (1988) and The King of New York (1990).

Q: Back in 1969, I made a Western movie with Gregory Peck and Eva Marie Saint, and I would like to write these very special people. I played the half-breed son of Saint in the movie, called The Stalking Moon*. It was produced by Alan J. Pakula and directed by Robert Mulligan. The movie was made in the state of Nevada. —Noland Clay, Whiteriver, Ariz.

A: What a thrill that must have been! You may write to Peck in care of International Creative Management, 8899 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90048, and you may write to Saint in care of Borinstein, Oreck and Bogart Agency, 8271 Melrose Ave., Suite 110, Los Angeles, Calif., 90046.

Q: I have written and inquired about the movie Just Imagine *to many places, but I have never heard back. I was just a teenager when the movie came out (I'm 74 now), and I'd like to know who the actors were, what year the movie came out and any other information you can find. —Martha Paschen, Jacksonville, Fla.

A: Just Imagine made quite an impression on theater audiences in 1930. Disillusioned with the condition of America in the present, they soaked up the futuristic settings and characterizations of this escapist musical. The picture concerned the resuscitation of a man (El Brendel), supposedly dead since 1930, in 1980, where he is unable to cope with contemporary conditions. Maureen O'Sullivan, John Garrick, Marjorie White and Frank Albertson are among the co-stars. Be warned, Martha, the story and the sets will probably enthrall you much less today than they did as a child.

SOAP TALK

Geary and Samms: soap supercouple?

By Candace Havens

First there was Luke and Laura, then Luke and Holly, then Holly and Robert. Now General Hospital is hoping to add Bill and Holly to its list of soap supercouples.

In the early '80s, the romance between Luke (Anthony Geary) and Laura (Genie Francis) was a phenomenon. Ten years later, GH is hoping to spark the same kind of fireworks between Holly (Emma Samms) and Bill (Geary) on General Hospital.

Are Samms and Geary banking on supercouple status? Not really, but executive producer Wendy Riche thinks there's a chance for a hot romance between their characters.

"I think that the chemistry is undeniable both on-screen and off-screen between these two," says Riche.

The two stars are glad to be back on the show that made them so popular in the first place. Geary is back as Bill, a different character than he played before. He couldn't resist the challenge to prove he could play another character, but fans weren't happy about the change at first.

"Luke Spencer was an exciting and compelling character ... and people were disturbed when I came back as a different character. But it's been a year now, and people aren't as resentful as they were before," says Geary.

Samms had other reasons for coming back. "I was given a very, very nice money deal and was given the opportunity to do other projects during the year," says Samms. "But it was more than that; I really missed the sense of family you have working on the soaps and the ability to really grab hold of a character over an extended amount of time."

So what about the rumors of Genie Francis returning to GH now that she is off All My Children? "I've been hearing that for 10 years," says Geary. "I have never had a conversation with anyone, with Wendy, or anyone at ABC, regarding Luke and Laura."

Is there any truth to the rumor that Mary Beth Evans (ex-Kayla, Days of our Lives) and Stephen Nichols (ex-Steve, Days) could turn up on GH in the near future? Riche leaves the possibility open, answering, "I have photos and cassettes from a lot of people on a lot of shows, both prime time and daytime."
