Teachers to vote on raise

Teachers in the Plymouth Canton district will vote Tuesday and Wednesday on a one-year contract that calls for a 3-percent pay hike.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton teachers will decide as they cast ballots tomorrow and Wednesday whether to ratify a one-year tentative agreement that grants a 3-percent raise and maintains all fringe benefits.

Superintendent John Hoben had hoped teachers would agree to a settlement of no more than 3 percent and an increase in their $2 prescription co-pay. Health care costs are projected to go up 20 percent districtwide next year.

"We are pleased with the agreement. We think it was a fair settlement for both the district and for teachers, and we are recommending ratification by all teachers," said Chuck Portelli, president of the teachers' union. Portelli said teachers across the district were adamant that there be no changes in their health-care benefits.

Portelli said he's "very confident" the contract will be ratified, given the district's financial situation. To stave off cuts, the district is asking voters to approve higher property taxes in June. An informational meeting for teachers is set for 4 p.m. today in the Canton Little Theater.

Tom Cotner, chief negotiator for the teachers, also is optimistic teachers will approve the tentative agreement.

"I think it will be ratified," he said. "I think teachers understand that the district is having some money problems, so I don't think they're interested in trying to rob them."

Reaching an early agreement wasn't easy, Cotner added. "I sincere-

Crime stats rise and fall

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

Larceny was the only type of serious crime that increased in Canton in 1992.

The increase in that one category, however, managed to statistically increase serious crimes overall by 3 percent in 1992. Decreases were seen in criminal sexual conduct, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, motor vehicle theft, and arson.

"The number of larcenies reported compared to everything else throws the numbers off," said Canton police Capt. Laura Golles.

Total number of serious crimes reported in 1992 was 2,144 compared to 2,077. Total calls for service, which is all the calls police received in 1992, topped 29,800 — compared to 26,725 in 1991, or an 11-percent increase.

"I would like to feel that law enforcement has an impact on crime, and we do," said Canton Public Safety director John Santomauro. "But I would really need to see the national figures to better analyze what is happening."

There's little doubt the state of the economy plays a role in crime — and a much larger role in urban areas, he said. Canton's economy has been and is in good shape. "When the economy gets bad, crime seems to pick up," Santomauro said.

Larcenies are preventable

In 1992, larcenies totaled 1,919, compared to 1,697 in 1991. That's a 13-percent increase. But some of those larcenies — theft of snowblowers, bicycles, stereos — could have been avoided.

"To some extent these can be prevented," said Capt. Laura Golles. "Garage doors should be closed. Bicycles should be locked. And things are left in cars. Radar detectors and

Volume of assessment appeals taxes Canton's board of review

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Working hard is what the three-member Canton Board of Review has been doing as more than 400 taxpayers filed in — on extended meeting dates — to complain about their property assessment increases.

"We extended our time for public appearances because of the large amount of people this year," said board chairman Richard Palmer.

When the doors were closed on public appearances, the three members — Palmer, Pat Bunnell and Marcia Barker — found themselves extending the time to accept written appeals. "They get as much consideration as if they made a public appearance," Palmer said.

He expects the number of petitions, written and in-person, will far exceed 600. More than 400 appealed in person. According to Tom Yack, township supervisor, appeals reached 637, with 512 of them assessment appeals, 89 hardship appeals, and 36 both assessment and hardship appeals.

But Palmer said the verdict is still

■ 'What's happening this year is of no surprise.'

Richard Palmer

out on the exact number of appeals. The board has until the first week of April to make decisions on the appeals and give the assessment rolls to Wayne County.

"If the assessor doesn't agree with what the Board of Review does, he can go to the (Michigan Tax) Tribunal," Yack said. Assessor John McLenaghan of the Wayne County Appraisal Co. could not be reached for comment.

Canton homeowners were hit with an average 9.7-percent property tax assessment increase this year. But they live in one of the few Wayne County communities that was not hit by average increases in double digits.

That doesn't mean everyone got less than a 10-percent increase. And many of those property owners were at the board, as well as those who thought their assessments just weren't right.

Palmer is certain that the 1992 assessment freeze helped to bring taxpayers out of their homes this year. The increases handed out this year cover two years because of the freeze.

"That sort of compounded our problems this year," Palmer said.

Though still difficult to say just how many are hardship appeals, Palmer believes that number will be up this year. "Hardship is a relative thing. It looks like some people are trying to get their houses in order."

Property owners who added decks or family rooms, for example, also appeared before the board. This was the year those improvements appeared on assessment notices.

"They looked at that and said, 'my God!'" Palmer said. "But I see that as part of my role (on the board), to explain things like that."

Palmer also believes a lot of misinformation in the media, as well as elected officials' tax shift for the schools, also brought taxpayers out.

"What's happening this year is of no surprise. But there isn't one particular factor," Palmer said.

Airport meeting

The Canton and Plymouth township boards will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 25, in the Canton Township Hall board meeting room to discuss the state's proposed purchase of Mettetal Airport.

Canton's attorney — Andrea Fischer of Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone in Detroit — is expected to discuss the state's authority in the proposed purchase.

Republican state Reps. Deborah Whyman of Canton and Jerry Vorva of Plymouth will be invited to the meeting, as well as Wayne County Commissioners Bryan Amann and Thaddeus McCotter, and retired U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell.

Chamber seeks nominees

The Canton Chamber of Commerce is seeking nominees for Small Business Person of the Year for 1993.

Candidates can be submitted by any area business. To be eligible a candidate must be the owner or manager of a Canton business and have contributed significantly in community service, economic development, or general interests of the community.

The award is designed to encourage and acknowledge those who participate in the economic and socioeconomic growth of the Canton community. The award is presented in conjunction with National Small Business Week in May.

The award will be presented at the Small Business Person of the Year Awards Banquet at 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 12, at Fellows Creek Golf Club. For reservations call the chamber office at 453-4040.

No charges filed in fatal accident

The Wayne County prosecutor will not file charges against two drivers who hit a 40-year-old Belleville man in a pedestrian-car accident on Michigan Ave., March 11.

Walter S. Bratkiewicz, who was pronounced dead at the scene, was walking on the north side of eastbound Michigan when he was struck by a Ford Ranger, driven by a 34-year-old Dearborn man traveling south on Lilley.

After Bratkiewicz was knocked down by the Ranger, a second vehicle, a Toyota pickup driven by a 48-year-old Ypsilanti man, ran him over.

Neither of the drivers will be charged in connection with the death of Bratkiewicz, said Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer. Police are awaiting further information from the Wayne County Medical Examiner, Colling said.

Tires cut

Canton police received reports of vehicle tires being cut or punctured March 12-18. Owners of three cars parked on Michigan Ave. reported that their tires were punctured. Damage ranged from $150-$400, according to Canton police reports.

Owners of two cars parked on Village Green West reported a similar problem. Damage to one of the cars was estimated at $400 and $800 to the other.

Suspicious situation

A woman told police that she saw a man sitting in a 1976 light blue Oldsmobile outside the Barbu Motel, 47000 Michigan Ave., March 18, aiming a long gun with a scope at another man at a public pay phone, according to a Canton police report.

The man at the pay phone then got in the car with the man aiming the gun and both drove west on Michigan Ave.

Farrand test shows radon

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Farrand Elementary School in Plymouth Township is among the Detroit-area schools in which radon levels exceeded those considered permissible under federal guidelines in testing done last fall.

Just one of 32 areas at the school in the Lakepointe subdivision registered above-normal radon levels.

Results were recently released by the Environmental Protection Agency, which conducted a national school survey.

Radon is a colorless, odorless gas believed to cause cancer with prolonged exposure. But unlike asbestos, which cost districts billions to remove from school buildings, radon can be eliminated with actions as simple as improving ventilation.

While the district will take whatever steps are needed, Dick Egli, associate director for community relations, likened the test results to the saccharin scare.

"They found that mice developed cancer if they ate whole batches of it. This isn't too dissimilar. No one eats pounds and pounds of saccharin," he said, adding that radon levels in homes would be more of a concern.

Prevention helps control fires

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton Fire Chief Michael Rorabacher is convinced. Without an aggressive fire prevention program, the community would have more fires and more injuries.

As with the police, calls for service and help to the Canton Fire Department increased slightly in 1992 over 1991. Altogether, the fire department received 2,856 calls in 1992 compared to 2,726 in 1991 — a 5-percent increase.

phones are left in full view. People need to be a little more cautious."

In other words, close and lock your garage door, conceal your cellular phone in your car, lock your car, and don't leave items such as snowblowers and bicycles in your driveway.

Looking at statistics can throw you off. It's better to look at the real numbers. Criminal sexual conduct incidents, for example, dropped from 57 in 1991 to 44 last year, a 23-percent decrease. The same goes for robbery — the forcible taking of something with or without a weapon — with 17 incidents last year and 27 in 1991.

That doesn't mean each call was for a fire. Seventy-one percent of the calls were for medical emergencies.

In 1992, the number of fire calls for single-family homes remained on top as compared to multiple-family, commercial and industrial.

"When you get into single-family and multiple-family, a lot of these fires are started accidentally by children," Rorabacher said.

In 1992, 33 fire calls were from single-family homes compared to 45 in 1991. Multiple-family calls decreased also, from 20 to 12.

Commercial calls decreased slightly from 13 to 11, and industrial increased from three in 1991 to five in 1992.

The key to what was actual fire, however, is to take a peek at property value loss. Again, the single-family category had the highest loss at $345,200 in 1992. That was followed by losses in mobile homes at $34,420. The next highest was industrial with $13,000.

"No matter what the numbers are, we would have had more without an aggressive fire prevention program in place. Without it, the numbers still would be higher," Rorabacher said.

The number of people reached through such programs was 1,616 in 1992. The programs include the fire safety house, school programs, fire safety, CPR and first aid classes, and extinguisher training.

a 37-percent decrease.

"I do like to believe that with high-visibility patrols and with the cooperation of people in the community, law enforcement can have an impact on crime as far as statistics," Santomauro said.

Relatives and friends

When looking at criminal sexual conduct incidents, residents should be aware that the numbers don't necessarily mean street rapists are lurking behind trees. The majority of incidents are between people related or acquainted. If the number of reports so far this year is an indication, Golles predicts 1993 will see increases in this category.

In other part II and part III, or less serious crimes, Canton saw an increase in weapons violations and family/children complaints.

Statistically, weapons violations increased 96 percent, but in real numbers 1992 saw 55 incidents compared to 28 in 1991. The violations include guns, knives, and brass knuckles, for example — people possessing them, using them and selling them.

Again, Santomauro points to the national trend. "We are seeing more weapons on the street and more weapons used in the commission of crime. That's a national thing."

Golles also reports an increase in the number of people applying for gun permits. "We have just been running into a lot more guns."

In the family and children category, 1992 saw 34 incidents compared to 21 in 1991. "I think a lot more people are reporting incidents than they did in the past," Golles said.

Many of the incidents are "home alone" complaints. Others are those that attorneys ask clients to file when involved in divorce. "Lawyers recommend that in any kind of incident, call the police," Golles said.

ly thought both sides worked pretty hard to get it done," he said. Cotner worked with Portelli and district negotiators Sharon Belobradich, Joann Gustafson, Dave Wert and Michigan Education Association director Maryann Ligato-Freydl.

Errol Goldman, chief negotiator for the district, said he hopes reaching an expedited agreement will improve chances of the 4-mill increase being approved by voters in the June 14 election.

"We are real pleased we were able to do that (reach agreement after the third day of bargaining). We're glad we were able to do it when we did," he said. Negotiating with Goldman for the district were administrators Mike Homes, Tom Tattan and Pat Patton.

As to whether teachers receiving 3 percent will hinder the chances of the millage passing, Goldman said, "I'm not going to be able to comment on the content of tentative agreement. We are hopeful that the fact we have a tentative agreement will be helpful to the millage."

Highlights of the agreement include these provisions:

■ "Two teachers who wish to switch positions may do so prior to the beginning of a school year," subject to administrative approval.

■ "Two teachers who wish to job-share a position may submit a request. Time and benefits will be appropriately reduced and the commitment is for a full year."

■ "Effective with the 1993-94 school year, part-time employees will receive a full day of seniority for each day worked."

■ "Five minutes of contact time with students will be added to each school day at each level: elementary, middle and high school."

'West Side Story' Students to stage classic

Gangland: Cast members show the tough side, getting ready for the production that gets under way on Friday at 8 p.m.

The Sharks will be rumbling with the Jets.

But there will be no need to call the cops on these street gangs.

That's because it will all be on the stage starting at 8 p.m. Friday at Plymouth Salem High School.

Students are putting on a production of "West Side Story," with performances set for Friday and Saturday, April 2 and 3.

More than 150 students, members of the Plymouth Park Players, have been rehearsing for several weeks for the production, which portrays street gang life in New York City.

Similar to Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," a girl, Maria, from the Shark side falls in love with a boy, Tony, of the Jets. The hatred between the groups can't deter their love, even after Maria's brother, Bernardo, and Tony's best friend, Riff, fight with switchblades.

Tickets are $5 for general admission and $6 for reserved seats. For more information, call 459-3518.

Police officials say they already share services

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Officials in Canton and neighboring communities continue their study of combining community services. But police in those communities already share many services.

"Formally, I will tell you we are already moving in that direction," said Canton Public Safety director John Santomauro.

The Canton chief, as well as representatives from Plymouth, Plymouth Township and the Northvilles, met with township trustees Tuesday to discuss how police are already regionalizing their efforts.

"This is not an attempt to promote or influence the regional study group," Santomauro added.

In December 1992, elected leaders from Canton, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township kicked off new talks about possibly consolidating certain services.

Police service in the five communities is getting the first look from the intergovernmental study group.

"If we are looking for areas of long-term savings, we thought public safety would be a good idea," said Tom Yack, Canton Township supervisor. "Nobody has an ego in this."

Elected leaders say it's too early in the review process to make specific decisions on consolidating police services. A subcommittee studying police issues and costs will meet again with elect officials today in Northville.

"Everybody is suffering from potential losses of revenue," said Plymouth Mayor Robert Jones. "I feel this is progressing very well. It's a giant step to get together and discuss this openly."

Regardless of the joint services study, Santomauro said police service in western Wayne County is already nabbing the regional concept.

"We in law enforcement and fire service recognize we have to do things better than we have in the past," he said. "The mood in western Wayne County is philosophically moving toward regional-type programs," Santomauro said.

Already consortiums exist between local police and the Michigan State Police, such as a combined auto theft and narcotics task force. Mutual aid pacts are in place to provide agencies additional manpower and equipment as needed. HAZMAT, a hazardous materials response team, is another example of regional cooperation.

Police chiefs in western Wayne County have agreed to look at buying hi-tech equipment. In 1992, a Wayne County Mobile Data consortium was formed with 18 law enforcement agencies to provide officers with computerized terminals in their patrol cars.

Michigan State Police Lt. Sandy Miller and Inspector Joseph Koenig, who work with the narcotics and auto theft consortium, told trustees that a major crimes task force also is needed.

"Criminals are better organized than we are," Santomauro said. "This has to be a multi-jurisdictional effort, including the state police."

Koenig reminded trustees what happened in the investigation of the so-called Oakland County Child Killer of the 1970s. Three children had been killed before police — working on their own investigations — realized there was a common denominator in the murders.

"When you're dealing with serial criminals, you're dealing with different jurisdictions," Koenig said.

A major crimes task force would pull resources, information and officers together to investigate crimes that cross community lines. "What you're looking at is a more sophisticated approach to bigger crimes," Koenig said.

Possible school budget cuts on board agenda tonight

When the Plymouth-Canton school board meets at 7:30 p.m. tonight, cuts in the 1993-94 budget will be discussed. Also on the agenda is an Extra Mill Award presentation: Plymouth Salem High School renovation and construction design; and an Educational Excellence Foundation report.

Bids will be awarded for construction and renovation at Allen, Bird and Smith elementary schools and Plymouth Canton High School.

Also on the agenda are the awarding of bids for the building technology infrastructure cabling at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park, bond projects for site work at PCEP, and a resolution to authorize contractors to proceed from design development to working drawings for work at PCEP.

The expulsion of a student also is on the agenda. In a closed executive session, negotiations and a legal issue will be discussed.

Spring breakers create own style

What's hot for spring break? Ask any teen what her favorite new fashion trend is and you'll get as many answers as there are styles.

Actually, you'll hear ideas that the top designers haven't even dreamed of yet, or haven't had the courage to express.

That's because teens defy the boundaries of the fashion world. Seventh Avenue may tell us that the look this spring is retro, meaning low beads, crochet, bell-bottoms and peasant dresses.

Or an ethnic-inspired "world beat" look — a global bazaar of exotic print vests, head wraps and long skirts.

Teens however, with an uncanny ability to create their own personal style statements, combine the best of all the fashion trends to emerge with a totally individual look.

Smart savers

Unwilling to part with a comfortable pair of cutoffs and a favorite white T-shirt, a typical teenager might update with strands of glass beads, an ethnic print vest and a pair of platform sandals. Voila! She's successfully combined all of the new trends without spending all of her baby-sitting money or sacrificing her own brand of comfort.

Meredith Adler of Bloomfield Village is a good example. Just add a waffle-weave knit shirt from the Gap to her favorite jeans, and she'll be happy. She'll top off the outfit with Doc Martins and a leather anklet tied with little silver bells.

They hear bells

Stacey Patton of Warren loves all of the Indian-beaded jewelry and her choice wardrobe essential is an Earth Day T-shirt. Her friend Heather Ryan had her eye on some trend-setting bell bottoms when I spied them shopping at Hudson's in Oakland Mall. "I really think these would be fun," she said, anxious to try the lace-up wide denim bells ($42 by Paris Blues).

Another of the popular new looks is the sheer, flowing dress and long skirt, favored by Erica Densel of Birmingham. "I love baby-doll dresses in flowered prints," she said, though she's not sure she'd wear one to school. These romantic dresses, also called peasant dresses, are available at Jacobson's and it's the Ritz in Birmingham. Try a bodysuit underneath. You'll find racks of them in every color and style.

The long crinkle skirts in multi-color Indian prints are great with fringed vests or full-sleeved white ruffled blouses. See a wide selection of patterns at Jacobson's and Hudson's.

Nellie Lim, a student at Fitzgerald High School, is contemplating a pair of platform shoes. "They're comfortable but weird," she said of the sandals she tried on. Unlabeled and Sam & Libby offer good-looking casual platforms. Or check out the suede clogs.

Hats still hot

Bloomfield Township resident Lia O'Connor has a flair for dressing stylishly as evidenced in her newest purchase from Express. She opted for flowing palazzo pants in a rich coral color, then made the look more classic by choosing a sleeveless button-down shirt to complete her outfit. Lia is a hat lover and when asked her favorite hat of the season, she replied, "whatever fits your personality."

Lots of class

Speaking of classics, they never go out of style and teens are savvy shoppers who know how to buy timeless wardrobe elements with contemporary updates. Maria Carretero, for instance, longs for a sleeveless linen sun dress to add to her closet this spring. Express interprets this dress smartly in a short, button-front style with a belted back for added shape.

Maria, a Seaholm High School sophomore, can choose from black, navy, coral, butter, white and flax ($49).

Classic looks also abound at J. Crew in the Somerset Collection. A favorite shopping destination of college students, J. Crew combines cotton tees with silk pants and chiffon skirts, and jeans with relaxed linen jackets and richly textured sweaters.

Classic is never boring here. In fact, the basics from J. Crew are good building blocks for effortless and stylish outfits.

Just ask my daughter, Mary-Brennan. Since she's the fashion-forward teen in my household, I thought she should have the final word. Her picks: a J. Crew bodysuit ($28) or floral tank ($54), topped with a bell-sleeved sheer blouse, worn with cutoffs or a cotton voile paroo ($28). Sounds original to me.

Mall managers appreciate the chance to pick up extra cash by renting out mall space.

And shoppers like the opportunity to sample products hands-on.

Russell, 33, of Rochester Hills, figures he's come up with a winner in his 3-year-old marketing concept, Mallworks. The Michigan State University communications graduate left a promotions company where he was creative director, to step out on his own.

"Mallworks custom designs and produces multi-site, simultaneous promotional tours in shopping centers complete with exhibitory, entertainment, participatory activities, staffing and publicity support for clients of any size," he said.

He describes with pride the Nissan Sentra Mall Launch which took place in 101 malls on Thanksgiving weekend reaching an estimated audience of 20 million consumers. Before the weekend was over, according to Russell, 70 Sentras were sold from the exhibit area and hundreds of additional customers visited showrooms after seeing the Sentra at their malls.

Another successful national Mallworks promotion, The Working Woman Tour, brought together Working Woman Magazine, Lean Cuisine, AT&T, Levi Strauss, local hospitals and entertainers for a sensory exhibit which included health testing, urvicut samples and fashion seminars directed at female shoppers.

Michael Buescher, director of marketing at Laurel Park Place, had words of praise for a Mallworks exhibit at "his" center.

"The company is good to work with," he said. "Attention was paid to details. Everything went smoothly. Mallworks was very organized."

Mallworks places clients in super-regional malls that attract more than 200,000 shoppers a week with the following marketing profile: Shoppers have incomes 30 percent above the national average, 60 percent are women with jobs outside the home, the average age is 38 years, 54 percent have

Making it fun is all part of the marketer's job

This third-in-a-series report about mall workers and their jobs, focuses on the mall marketing director. Also known as the promotions manager, this job requires the bearer to wear many hats. Next week: A day in the life of a mall manager.

They book the Easter Bunny. They promote the health fair in the local press. They direct tired toddlers to the stroller rental.

Who are these stalwart purveyors of mall amenities?

Ever hear of the mall marketing director?

Behind the scenes, down the hall, and upstairs in the management office sit men and women dedicated to securing prosperity for their shopping centers.

Marketing directors report to the mall managers. They head small departments that create special events, issue press releases, buy advertising, conduct market research, and handle public, customer and tenant relations. Many walk their mall each day, checking in with store managers, moving sale signs out of the right of way, picking up trash that missed the barrel, or sitting behind the information booth.

"The best part of my job is creating children and more than 70 percent say they visit the mall once per week. "Both magazine and television marketers have found that malls are an excellent vehicle in which to promote their properties," Russell said. "Mail exposure offers advertisers added value merchandising opportunities."

From a warehouse/workroom in Redmond, Ore., a team of designers and builders construct custom displays using video monitors, brochure racks and other eye-grabbing devices. The displays are assembled and shipped to destination malls. Extras are hired and trained to staff the displays. Prompt strike-downs move the exhibits along from mall to mall.

The latest Mallworks project targets grocery shoppers. Magazine On Wheels will promote the fast-growing Tim Wamers Inc. publication, Cooking Light nationally in May.

A specially designed tractor/trailer will park in front of targeted supermarkets and country fairs throughout the United States, providing product samples, recipe ideas, nutrition information and coupons to shoppers who walk through. Visitors will see 10 advertiser-sponsored kiosks featuring products from Healthy Choice, Contadina, Stouffer's Lean Cuisine and Wasa Crispbread, to name a few.

Yvon Russell
owner of Mallworks

In Michigan, the first stop is a Kroger in Lansing.

"We're doing well," said Russell from his offices above Musicland on Maple Road in downtown Birmingham. "Last year we billed $2 million — not bad for a 3-year-old company. We plan to continue working on winning new contracts with new clients."

"I get the most satisfaction from the creative side of putting together a promotional program, but it's also fun to watch the consumers interacting with the exhibits. We've got some shows on tape. We see that Mallworks — works."

Dirty air?

Officials hope to avoid federal pollution restrictions

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

There's a chance southeastern Michigan could be off the "non-attainment" hook if its air quality.

If so, drivers wouldn't have to pay more for "reformulated" fuels, tougher auto emissions tests and vapor recovery devices at the fuel pump.

All might be required if the federal government says the seven-county region's air is too dirty.

"The Michigan Department of Natural Resources did air sampling. Last summer we did not exceed standards. That makes us eligible to say, 'Hey, we may not be a non-attainment area,'" said Chuck Hersey, staff air specialist for the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

SEMCOG's executive committee last week agreed to hire Radian Corp., a nationwide consulting firm, to make its case to the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

EPA earlier had said the region would have to reduce air emissions by 15 percent from 1990 levels.

SEMCOG will use up to $900,000 from the Michigan Department of Transportation. MDOT director Patrick Nowak, former deputy Oakland County executive, asked SEMCOG to coordinate the effort.

Radian is doing a similar project, called the Lake Michigan Ozone Study, for southwestern Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin.

1992 no accident

"We have to prove that it (last year) wasn't an accident — a poor economy or the weather," Hersey said.

"We must provide a 12-year air quality maintenance plan that forecasts economic activity — growth in industry and growth in travel."

"It could save us the need to do emission reduction programs," Hersey said.

MDOT liaison Marsha Small told SEMCOG leaders that "EPA has two years to respond" to the request for redesignation. Meanwhile, she advised SEMCOG to go ahead with plans in the state Legislature to set up laws to deal with attaining air quality.

"You're between a rock — and a rock," Small said. SEMCOG's executive committee approved the grant receipt and Radian contract with little discussion and no dissent.

Powder paints eyed

Meanwhile, the Big Three automakers are working on a new low emission paint system to reduce hydrocarbons in the air at assembly plants.

"The consortium's work will impact paint systems at more than 50 Big Three car and light truck assembly plants in the U.S. alone," said Don Wal-kowicz, executive director of the United States Council for Automotive Research (USCAR).

The General Motors/Ford/Chrysler consortium listed these research areas:

- Powder paint technology.
- Common industry databases for low emission paint information.

"By working together, our three companies will be able to reduce the overall cost of developing this important new technology," said John Young, Ford's executive engineer for paint who is serving as first chair of the consortium.

"We also will be able to reduce the time required to develop and introduce new paint systems by two to three years."

Automakers currently use powder paints on engine blocks, chassis parts and wheels — all of which don't have such demanding appearance standards as car bodies.

Manufacturers of metal furniture, lawn and garden equipment also use powder paints.

"These days mall management requires marketing directors to have degrees in marketing," he said. "And most require two or three years experience on top of a degree. I came to this job after 23 years in advertising with J.C.

Penney. You need experience, creativity, and the ability to see a project through from beginning to end. Most marketing directors serve apprenticeships as assistants before becoming directors themselves."

Salary depends on the size of the mall, range of duties, years of experience and corporate policy of the mall's owners. Some pay well, others not so well. One marketing director who wished to remain anonymous, said salaries of local marketers range between $17,000 to more than $50,000. A portion of that salary comes from the fee mall tenants pay toward the promotions and advertising budget.

Cable television to show boating safety course

Omnicom Cablevision presents "Michigan Pleasure Boating Safety," presented by the Law Enforcement Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources beginning this week.

The six-lesson video course covers the required elements of Michigan watercraft laws and regulations, required equipment, proper selection of balanced boats and motors, rules of the road, aids to navigation, safe small boat handling, water sports, and first aid.

Beginning this week, Omnicom will present two consecutive programs a week of the six-part series, starting with programs one and two 7-8 p.m. Tuesdays and 8:30-9:30 p.m. Thursdays.

The six-part series will be aired in its entirety 3-6 p.m. Saturday, March 27, and 3-6 p.m. Saturday, April 3.

Students will take a written exam after finishing the course. If they complete the required home work and receive a minimum passing grade of 70 percent on the exam, they will be awarded Boating Safety Certificate.

Although this series is targeted to minors, the in-depth information presented is applicable for adults who would like to expand or review their knowledge of pleasure boating safety.

Boating safety booklets and test sheets are available in the lobby of Omnicom Cablevision, 8465 Ronda, near Joy and Hagerty roads.

Area woman returning to Poland, 32 years later

Ukrainian good-bye: A banner on the window of the second-floor dining rooms bids a fond farewell in Ukrainian to resident Marie Kolyk from the staff at the Middlebelt Nursing Care Center in Livonia.

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Thirty-two years after she left her native Poland, Marie Kolyk is going home . . . for good.

While many Poles might yearn to come to the land of plenty, Kolyk has yearned to go home, to be with her family, to freely speak in her native tongue rather than in broken English.

"When he started working here, things were so much better than home where it was so hard," said Kolyk through friend/translator Lisa Barna. "I wanted to go back, but he wanted to stay. He told me 'if you want to go, go,' but I stayed."

"Steven always had the final word." Steven (her husband) died last August, so Kolyk with the help of her "very best friend" Irene Herman, has decided it's time to go. At age 84 and confined to a wheelchair after having both legs amputated above the knee due to complications from diabetes, Kolyk will board a plane Thursday for Chicago and transfer to a Polish LOT flight to Warsaw.

There she will be met by a niece who will drive her to Zagor, where she will live with her sister, Julie Chomiczak, 85, and her unmarried daughter Natalia Matuz, a college instructor, and Adriana Kasyk, a pharmacist.

"I'm not surprised because she was always wanting to go back, all ways," said Herman. "She has no one here. Her husband is dead, she had no children, but she has a big family over there."

Kolyk was in her late 40s when she met Steven. He had lived in South America and had come to the United States while in his late teens. He returned to Poland to visit relatives when he met and married her in 1960, Herman said.

Kolyk stayed behind when he returned to the U.S., making it to Detroit a year later, leaving behind a job and her family.

Eight years her senior, Steven worked for Ford Motor Co. and even after he retired, refused to return to Poland.

Three years ago, after losing one leg, Kolyk was placed in the Middlebelt Nursing Care Center in Livonia. Her husband, who walked with a cane, would hire a cab to drive him to the center to visit her.

It was at the center that Kolyk met Barna, who comes in three days a week to cut, wash and set residents' hair. The daughter of Ukrainian immigrants, Barna was someone Kolyk could talk to in her native tongue. For Barna, Kolyk helped her keep up with her Ukrainian.

"I'm really going to miss her," Barna said. "She would wait for me by the door. She'd come in and we'd cry and we'd laugh."

On Aug. 10, 1992, Steven's badly decomposed body was found in their Detroit home. He had died four days earlier at the age of 92. Because of the condition of his body, Kolyk never got to see her husband one last time, making it all the harder, Barna said.

When Kolyk made the decision to return to Poland, Herman stepped in to help. It took three months and the help of the Polish consulate in Chicago to get a new Polish passport, an effort that included obtaining a copy of her birth certificate.

Herman also made the travel arrangements and hired a companion who will travel with and care for Kolyk during the trip home. Herman also is working with the center's doctor to get a medication schedule to cover the trip and a month's worth of prescriptions to tide her over once she gets to Zagor.

But her labor of love won't be over when she waves goodbye to her friend of 20 years. She still has to work on getting her husband's Ford pension and social security payments directly deposited into her Polish bank account.

"She'll probably need me even more when she's over there than before," Herman said. "I hope everything will be all right. I'm very happy for her."

And happy is what Kolyk is, although she can't understand what the fuss is all about.

POINTS OF VIEW

Absolutes disappear in war over abortion

When George Bush ran against Ronald Reagan in 1979, Bush called Reagan's monetary platform "voodoo economics." When Bush became vice president, he changed his mind. Reaganomics suddenly became viable and no one heard the word "voodoo" leave George's lips for the next 12 years.

Some said that was two-faced hypocrisy in action. Others said it was politically astute on George's part. The latter argument prevailed and for the next 12 years it was acceptable to say any old damn thing, so long as you didn't mean it — and could instantly, if cornered, reverse field.

Lynn Mills, a Livonia pro-life soldier, is an organizer of protests at abortion clinics.

Her group is against abortion. In other states, group members operating under the same name — Operation

Rescue — have let their own children lie down in the street to prevent patients from keeping appointments at abortion clinics.

Locally, Operation Rescue, under Mills' guidance, has used protest tactics ranging from ringing clinics to block traffic in and out, to forcing police to carry limp demonstrators from clinic doorways.

They hold parking lot prayer sessions, do their best to shame clinic patients by plastering their names on placards and carrying them in public view, and chant about the "murderers" inside the clinic who, in their opinion, kill for money.

Maybe they do; maybe they don't. We're not going to settle that here. However, calling someone a "murderer" is an irreversible absolute. Even those in the law enforcement business are careful with that label because they know the weight and one-way stigma it carries.

Yet Mills' supporters had no problem running around with signs proclaiming doctors were murderers because they performed abortions. Sometimes, they even took their protests to the foot of the driveways of the doctors' homes in West Bloomfield, Bloomfield Township and Farmington Hills.

Last week, things changed. A man in his early 30s walked into a Florida abortion clinic. He shot and killed the doctor, walked out of the clinic and surrendered to the first police officer he saw.

The gunman told police the only way to save the unborn was by killing the doctor. All of a sudden, Mills and Operation Rescue members are worried about being labeled "murderers." They say that's a terrible thing to call someone.

Somehow, Mills and her followers haven't had a problem labeling others, but they've become deeply upset when others label them.

Likewise, picketing a private home in a neighborhood was fair game for Operation Rescue, but when picketers ringed Mills' home, she became very unsettled.

I do not think for a moment Mills condones the gunman's actions. It's interesting, though, to watch Mills' reaction when her own weapons are turned against her.

Perhaps in the future, Mills and the Operation Rescue members will use the foundation of their beliefs — compassion — to resist doing unto others as they would not like to be done unto themselves.

Narrow view of society's roles hinders progress

Clinical psychologist Dr. Judith Kovach of Bloomfield Hills is married to my friend Dick Lobenthal who, along with me, founded MOSAIC, the new Michigan organization for social advocacy and interculture. I'm privileged to sit with them on its board of directors. My primary reason for founding this organization was to fight ethnic and religious discrimination.

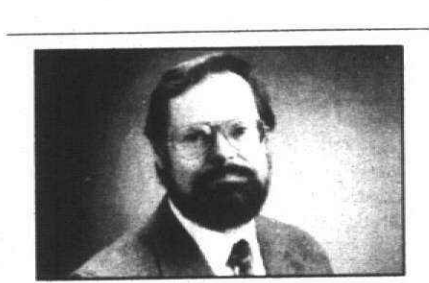

But Dr. Kovach's gentle rebuke when I addressed a piece of mail to "Mr. and Mrs. Lobenthal" reinforced my determination to combat sexism as well, including my own.

Even after 19 years of raising a daughter, and considering all my battles against bigotry, I still catch myself behaving in subtly sexist ways. As anti-sexism researcher Dr. James Gruber of the University of Michigan-Dearborn asserts, "We men have a long way to go to root out our own sexism." And our journey has been lengthened immeasurably by society's narrow view of sexuality.

Take the Kimba Wood case. Wood, a fine jurist, was rejected for the post of attorney general due partially to her early training as a Playboy Bunny. Had she been a man who had modeled bathing suits as a teenager, would that have disqualified her for the post? Not only did I model bathing suits as a teen, I also modeled nude for college art classes and elsewhere as an undergraduate athlete. So did many of my teammates who needed money. This fact, if known, wouldn't have prevented my later rise to the executive level in education.

Sadly, I can't say the same with as much certainty regarding any coed with similar employment experience who subsequently sought prominent public status. (A further example of sexism was that the male student-models in life-drawing classes were allowed to wear jack straps, but the female models, who were non-students, were nothing at all.)

An unexamined aspect of sexism in many heterosexual males is their antipathy toward homosexuals. Some self-declared homosexual MOSAIC members have helped me, as a flaming heterosexual, to modify my own views regarding the complex problems of homosexuals, who never asked to be born "that way."

A glaring contributor to those problems is our reluctance as heterosexuals — particularly heterosexual males — to speak out in defense of homosexual rights for fear we'll be suspected of being homosexuals, too. A white man who speaks out in defense of black men is fairly obviously not black. The equivalent point cannot be made regarding the heterosexual man who speaks out in defense of homosexual men.

Women continue to be victimized, socially and professionally, by sexism. When those women are also non-white or homosexual, their difficulties can increase even to the point of death; e.g., the two local lesbians recently gunned down by a homophobic male neighbor.

As a MOSAIC official, I'm advocating for a black Royal Oak woman subjected to residential discrimination and a Korean restaurateur harassed by bigoted residents of the Detroit hotel where her restaurant is housed. In both cases, the sex of the victims is a factor.

Open meetings act prevails

Schoolcraft board to review rule change on taping

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Open! Schoolcraft College's board of trustees almost did something illegal.

The board was all set to adopt a rule requiring that permission be granted by itself before anyone was permitted to tape record a meeting.

The suggested new rule said, "Any person wishing to record any proceedings of the Board of Trustees may submit a written request to the Board prior to the convening of the meeting."

However, the Michigan Open Meetings Act says that "the right of a person to attend a meeting of a public body includes the right to tape-record, to videotape, to broadcast live on radio and to telecast live on television the proceedings of a public body at a public meeting. The exercise of this right shall not be dependent upon the prior approval of the public body." (Italics added.)

When told about that passage in the Open Meetings Act, Schoolcraft spokeswoman Sandra Florek said: "That certainly is in conflict with what we wrote."

The new rule had been on the agenda for the meeting of Wednesday, March 24, but it has been removed. "We're going back to the drawing board until we get this thing right," said board chair Mary Breen. The taping issue, however, is still scheduled to be discussed

Wednesday. It's unclear what the board intends to do about it now.

Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell said he's to blame for the illegal rule being drawn up. "It was my error in not researching that," he said. "We always want to abide by the law."

The whole thing was first brought up when a reporter for the Schoolcraft Connection, the student newspaper, was denied permission to tape a meeting last January, said news editor James Lee.

Lee remembered a prior meeting in the same month when the Observer was permitted to put a tape recorder right on the board table. He felt the Connection was being denied permission to do something the Observer was allowed without question. "When (the Observer) put that tape recorder there it gave us a certain amount of impetus," Lee said. "It can be done. It's important that we have the same access as the Observer."

Breen said that trustees don't mind being taped, and would probably give their permission every time if there were a rule requiring it, but they are uncomfortable when someone abruptly begins taping a meeting unannounced.

Said Lee, "We didn't do this to be a nuisance. We simply did it as a way of reporting accurately and more efficiently. It's legally our right to do it."

Like nothing you've ever seen before.

BONUS LOTTO

The new Bonus Lotto!
It's an all new game with bigger jackpots and a bonus ball that gives you more chances to win than ever before!

More money than ever before!
Bonus Lotto starts with a guaranteed $4 million jackpot - and rolls over by $4 million every time!

More chances to win!
Players win the Grand Prize by matching the 6 numbers drawn from 47. BUT, if you don't match all six, there are still more chances to win. Because a 7th ball is then drawn - called the Bonus Ball. The Bonus Ball gives players even more chances to win more cash prizes. Here's how:

Match all 6 numbers drawn and you win the Jackpot!

Match 5 of the 6 numbers drawn plus the bonus ball and you win $50,000!

Match 4 of the 6 numbers drawn plus the bonus ball and you win $1,000!

Match 3 of the 6 numbers drawn plus the bonus ball and you win $100!

Match 2 of the 6 numbers drawn plus the bonus ball and you win $4.

$2 is all it takes!
Each Bonus Lotto wager costs $2.00 and is valid for the next Lotto drawing unless multiple drawings are selected. If multiple draws are played, a player can play up to 20 consecutive draws.

One drawing, once a week!
Bonus Lotto drawings are now held just once a week - every Saturday at 7:30 p.m. on the Megabucks television show. Check your local television listings for the television station in your area.

See your Lottery retailer for details today!

House OKs fetal tissue amendment

ROLL CALL REPORT

Here's how Observer & Eccentric area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending

HOUSE

Approved Fetal Tissue Research: By a vote of 253 for and 173 against, the House approved an amendment to advance fetal tissue research to combat diseases such as Parkinson's and Alzheimer's.

The amendment was added to a National Institutes of Health funding bill (HR 4) that already contained language helping President Clinton lift a longtime ban on the research. It removed obstacles placed by anti-abortion lawmakers in the path of government-sponsored research involving fetal tissue transplantation.

Supporter Dan Glickman, D-Kansas, said "in the area of diabetes, we probably will have a cure sooner rather than later because of research using fetal tissue."

Opponent Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said "I am all for fetal research" but only if done "in an ethical way" on fetuses resulting from involuntary abortion.

A yes vote was to advance federally sponsored fetal tissue research. Area representatives voting yes were: Bob Carr, D-Pontiac, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Ford, D-Ypsilanti. Voting no: Dale Kildee, D-Flint and Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham.

Rejected Freeze: By a vote of 193 for and 234 against, the House rejected an amendment to freeze the $6.9 billion National Institutes of Health fiscal 1994 budget (above) at the 1993 level. The measure sought to save at least $1.7 billion.

Sponsor Doug Bereuter, R-Nebraska, said the bill "is not just about health research legislation, it is a spending issue."

Opponent Henry Waxman, D-Calif., said "support for health research is a worthy legacy for the 103rd Congress. NIH is a national treasure."

A yes vote was to freeze the new NIH budget at 1993 levels. Area representatives voting yes were: Knollenberg. Voting no: Carr, Kildee, Levin and Ford.

Endorsed Ban on Immigrants with AIDS: By a vote of 356 for and 58 against, the House endorsed a ban on the immigration of HIV-infected persons to the United States. The non-binding vote urged acceptance of Senate-passed language writing the ban into the National Institutes of Health budget (above).

Supporter Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., said allowing bearers of the AIDS virus into the United States would "place healthy American citizens at higher risk (and) strain existing resources that already are overtaxed."

Opponent Jerrold Nadler, D-N.Y., said whether to impose the ban is "a scientific decision for the health profession to make, not a political decision for Congress."

A yes vote was to ban HIV-infected immigrants from the United States. Area representatives voting yes were: Carr, Kildee, Knollenberg, Levin, and Ford.

licans were Durenberger of Minnesota, Hatfield of Oregon, Jeffords of Vermont, Packwood of Oregon and Specter of Pennsylvania.

Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said Republican foes of the bill prefer a system "that is passive and leaves it to chance that citizens will be registered on election day."

Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said Democratic supporters want to "crum down the throats" of states a costly federal mandate designed to swell their party's voter rolls.

A yes vote was to move toward passage of the bill. Michigan Sens. Carl Levin and Donald Riegle voted yes.

SENATE

Tabled Registration Issue: By a vote of 55 for and 42 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to S 460 (above) that sought to prohibit voter registration at public agencies such as welfare and unemployment offices.

Paul Wellstone, D-Minn., said the amendment has "enormous bias against low-income people."

Sponsor John McCain, R-Ariz., said his amendment would keep officials who dispense aid from coercing recipients into registering to vote.

A yes vote was to permit voter registration at public agencies. Levin and Riegle voted yes.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Tap into maple tree to make pure syrup

How many times have you read a story in the food section and thought "yeah, sure, do they really cook and do that stuff?" So lo and behold, as I sat quietly in my Laz-y-Boy recliner, thumbing through a mountain of food magazines, and I get this phone call from friend, and fellow cooking aficionado, John Cargill of Westland. He said that his family had a pot of boiling maple sap on the stove, and that the spring-like weather we've been enjoying between snow storms has spurred the annual "flowing of the sap."

"That's nice," I respond, knowing that I'd be content to read about it. Not knowing anyone except John with a sugar maple tree in their backyard, I secretly wished for a sample.

About 30 minutes later, there's a knock at my door, and as I straddle a laundry basket of towels, I am greeted by John and his son, Jamie, who have already bored a 3-inch hole in my silver maple tree, attached a spigot, and are searching for a gallon plastic milk jug to attach to the tree to collect the sap.

Flowing sap

I am somewhat impressed as I watch John and Jamie securely tie the jug to the spigot and see a steady stream of sap begin to flow from my tree.

About 3 hours later, I venture out to check the tree, and am surprised to find the gallon jug overflowing.

Suddenly, I got this incredible urge to don a red plaid sweat shirt ala Euell Gibbons. I empty the jug into a heavy 8-quart pot and scramble to search for the multi-mimeographed sheets that the Cargills offered me about what to do with my bounty.

I reattach the jug while sap continues to drip from my tree. I am not only hooked, I swallowed the bait hook, line and sinker. Three days and seven gallons of sap later, I stop to make pancakes for lunch and serve them with homemade maple syrup.

Never in a million years did I think that I would ever be making homemade maple syrup. Now I can't stop.

American tradition

The art of making homemade maple syrup and maple sugar is uniquely American. It started with the Indians who in turn taught early settlers. Small scale family sugaring has long been an American tradition, and recently the rising cost of maple syrup has provided additional incentive for the backyard sugarer.

A good maple tree is said to yield 15 to 20 gallons of sap during a single sugaring season — enough to make about 2 quarts of pure, preservative-free maple syrup.

Making syrup

This isn't the stuff in plastic bottles that sells for about $1.89 in the local grocery folks, this is real pure maple syrup, the kind that sells for about $10 per quart.

In all honesty, I didn't even know I had a maple tree, let alone the patience and capabilities to make real syrup. Anyone with a sugar maple, black maple, Norway maple or silver maple tree can make syrup.

For the uninitiated, if you have a tree that produces those crazy helicopter seeds that clog gutters and sprout all over the garden, you can tap for the sap.

Supposedly there are several sap flows, but by far the best time to tap is late winter or early spring before the buds open — sugar content is high, flavor is at its peak, and the cool nights inhibit bacterial action.

Cargill claims that the best place to tap is the south side of the tree (the side that gets the most sun). After the initial hole is drilled no deeper than 3-inches, a tap or spile is inserted.

Good luck at trying to locate a spile, the hardware and landscape shops suggested I use a 1/4-1/2-inch galvanized pipe angled at one end that has a notch cut in it to hold the rope that holds the bucket. Tap holes can be placed anywhere from 2-6 feet above the ground.

Once you have collected about a gallon of sap, Cargill suggests you pour it into a heavy saucepan and heat it over low heat, allowing the water in the sap to evaporate.

I collected 7 gallons of sap and ended up with about 2 cups of syrup after 2 days of steady slow cooking, and trust me here folks, it was well worth the effort. No more corn syrup, sugar and maple flavoring for this guy, now that my lips have tasted real homemade maple syrup!

Healthy start: Homemade, low-fat muffins are a delicious way to start the day. They can be made ahead, frozen, and reheated for breakfast or snacks. Ingredients like skim milk, yogurt, and fruit cut calories, but not flavor

Muffins

■ Not all muffins are the same. Some contain almost as much fat as a candy bar. Learn how to make flavorful low-fat muffins.

An oat bran muffin and glass of orange juice sounds like a healthy way to start the day.

But according to a recent Tufts University Diet and Nutrition Newsletter, a 4.4-ounce Mister Donut "Good for you Oat Bran Muffin" contains 436 calories and has 12 grams of fat. That's only 3 grams of fat shy of a 2-ounce Hershey bar.

Muffins can be part of a healthy, low-fat breakfast, if you choose the right ingredients. "When I first began to make a no-fat muffin it was quite a challenge," said Sharron Masselink of Troy. "It has to taste good."

Leonore Baum of Farmington Hills has been teaching natural-cuisine cooking classes for over 20 years. Every week she teaches two to three classes for beginning natural and vegetarian cooks, including one called Marvelous No-Fat and Low-Fat Muffins.

"I don't use refined sugar; some of the muffins are sweetened with brown rice syrup especially for diabetics, or with maple syrup," said Baum. "I use very little oil in a basic recipe, no more than 2 to 3 tablespoons of canola oil or unrefined corn oil, and no eggs."

Most of the time Baum said she uses an egg substitute called "Ener-g," which is a gluten-free base made of potato starch and leavening. After mixing the powder with water she adds it to the dry ingredients in a basic muffin recipe.

For more information about Baum's cooking classes, call 478-4455. There are still openings in Marvelous Muffins I which meets 6-9 p.m. Monday, March 22 and Beginning Cooking, 6-9 p.m. Monday, April 26.

WINNER DINNER

BETSY BRETHEN

A noteworthy event is about to take place in Plymouth. On Friday and Saturday, April 2 and April 3, the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra is hosting a benefit dinner and pops concert at Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. with the concert to follow at 8 p.m.

Tickets for concert and dinner are $45 adults, $25 students in kindergarten through 12th grade. Tickets for concert only are $28 adults and $13 for students in kindergarten through 12th grade. For ticket information, call 451-2112.

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra was founded in 1946. On April 2 and April 3 they will present a concert of Cole Porter favorites featuring guest artist Dennis Smith, trombone.

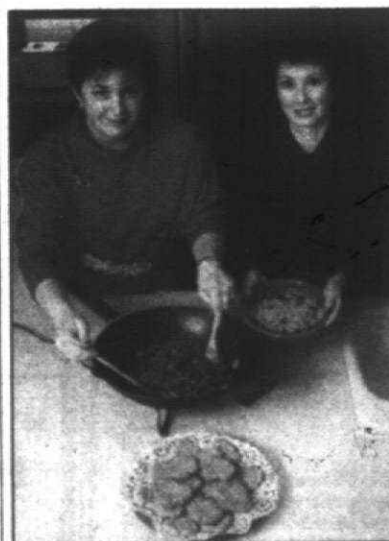

This week's Winner Dinner Winner, Jill Licata, Symphony League president, will conduct one of the tunes at the concert. The group is the fund-raising arm of the orchestra.

With the help of her neighbor, close friend and business partner, Cathie Layman, Licata has cooked up a menu that is quick and easy to prepare. It will have your family begging for an encore. Licata and Layman have much in common.

Both are parents of teenagers. They work together selling fashions from the Doncaster clothing line, and volunteer a lot of their time to support the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. On busy nights, when they have spent the day working together, they will often pool their resources and prepare this dinner for both families. The cookie recipe is so easy. It is usually delegated to one of the teenagers. Now that's what I call working in concert.

Nominate a friend to be a Winner Dinner Winner, or submit your favorite recipes to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere to: Winner Dinner Winner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham, MI 48012.

Winner Dinner Recipes

BEEF WITH BROCCOLI AND MUSHROOMS

1 1/4 pounds beef flank steak, thinly sliced across grain
4 1/2 tablespoons low sodium soy sauce
1 1/2 tablespoons sherry
3/4 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon brown sugar
3/4 teaspoon onion powder
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 stalks broccoli, cut into 1-inch pieces
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced
2 green onions, shredded
4 tablespoons oil

In large bowl mix steak slices, soy sauce, 2 tablespoons oil, sherry, ginger, brown sugar, onion powder, and pepper. Add cornstarch and mix well. Cover and set aside in refrigerator to marinate at least one hour.

Heat remaining 2 tablespoons oil in wok or frying pan. Add marinated beef and stir-fry until browned. Add vegetables and continue stir-frying until vegetables are crisp-tender and meat is done. Serve with rice pilaf. Serves 4 to 6.

AUNT EVELYN'S QUICK RICE PILAF

1 medium onion, chopped
1/4 cup margarine
1 1/2 cup dry Minute Rice
1 1/2 cup beef bouillon
1/4 teaspoon salt, if desired
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup pine nuts
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Saute onion and butter five minutes. Add rice and saute three more minutes. Add bouillon and raisins. Bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Cover and let stand five minutes. Stir in nuts and parsley. Serves 4 to 6.

NO FLOUR PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES

1 cup sugar
1 cup peanut butter
1 egg
1 teaspoon baking soda

Mix ingredients and roll into one-inch balls. Place balls on lightly greased cookie sheet and press with fork. Bake at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes or until browned. Cool cookies at least five minutes, or until firm, before removing from cookie sheet. Makes 2 dozen.

CRANBERRY OAT BRAN MUFFINS

2 1/4 cups oat bran
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup cranberries, washed, coarsely chopped
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup orange juice
1 cup honey
2 tablespoons Puritan oil
3 egg whites, lightly beaten

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Line 12 muffin cups with paper liners. In a large bowl, combine oat bran, nuts, cranberries, baking powder, salt and brown sugar; mix well. Combine remaining ingredients; mix well. Stir into the dry ingredients, stirring just until moistened. Fill prepared muffin cups until almost full and bake in the middle of the oven for 15 to 17 minutes. Do not overcook or they will become dry. Best served warm. Makes 12 large muffins.

You can use other berries such as blueberries in which case you would gently fold the berries into the batter last in order not to crush them.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

1 egg
1/2 cup skim milk
1/4 cup canola oil
1/4 cup flour
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries or raspberries

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Spray bottom of muffin cups with cooking spray. Beat egg, stir in milk and oil. Stir flour and blend with dry ingredients. Stir in berries. Stir batter until flour is moistened. Do not over mix. Batter should be lumpy. Fill muffin cups 3/4 full. Bake 20 to 25 minutes depending on size of muffin tin or until golden brown. Makes 12 muffins.

ZUCCHINI-LEMON MUFFINS

2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup granulated sugar
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 1/2 cups shredded zucchini
1/4 cup thawed frozen egg substitute
1/4 cup vegetable oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Line 12 — 2 1/4-inch muffin-pan cups with paper baking cups; set aside.

In large mixing bowl combine flour, sugar, baking powder, and baking soda; set aside. In medium mixing bowl combine remaining ingredients, stirring to combine; add to flour mixture and stir until moistened (do not beat or over mix). Fill each baking cup with an equal amount of batter (each will be about 1/4 full). Bake in middle of center oven rack for 20 minutes (until muffins are golden and a toothpick inserted in center comes out dry). Remove muffins from pan to wire rack and let cool. Makes 12 muffins.

BANANA WHOLE-WHEAT MUFFINS

Vegetable-oil cooking spray
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup whole-wheat flour
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup low-fat or nonfat plain yogurt
1 cup mashed ripe banana (approximately 2 medium)
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 extra-large egg (one large egg may be used in place of extra-large)

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Grease measuring cup, combine the yogurt, banana, oil, egg, vanilla and lemon zest; whisk to blend. Pour the wet ingredients over the dry ingredients; stir just until blended. Do not over-mix. Spoon into the prepared pans, filling each cup about three-fourths full. Sprinkle the tops evenly with the chopped nuts.

Bake until muffins are lightly browned and a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean, 20 to 25 minutes. Cool slightly in pans. Turn out and cool on a wire rack. Makes about 12 muffins.

In the beginning class series participants learn how to prepare balanced natural meals. The fee for the muffin class is $25; the beginning cooking class series is $110 for four classes.

When you're making muffins, Baum recommends mixing the wet ingredients separately, and then folding them by hand into the dry ingredients until moistened. She uses an ice-cream scoop to fill paper muffin liners with batter.

Before serving, Baum lets the muffins cool completely on a baking rack. She stores leftovers in a glass jar or freezes them. She defrosts muffins in the refrigerator, and steams them for a few minutes on an oven rack to reheat.

If you don't have time to bake your own muffins, read labels when you shop for them at the grocery store.

The best choices are those made without fat, said Nelda Mercer, a registered dietitian and assistant director of preventative nutrition at the University of Michigan Medsport Preventative Cardiology Program. The second-best choice is a muffin made with unsaturated fat like safflower or sunflower oil.

Tips make kneading dough easier

Here are some Kneading dough basics from Betty Crocker to use or share with a friend.

■ To knead, fold dough toward you. With heels of hands, push dough away with short rocking motions. Give the dough a quarter turn; repeat.

■ When dough is properly kneaded, it will feel elastic and smooth with some blisters on the surface.

■ Dough should rise until double. Test by pressing fingertips 1/4 inch into dough. If indentation remains, the dough has risen enough.

■ Punch down center of dough with your fist. Fold dough over and form into a ball. This releases large air bubbles to produce a finer texture.

Muffins win prize

So many top notch bakers entered the 3rd annual Quaker Oats "It's The Right Thing To Do" recipe contest, the judges' job was a difficult one. After hours of delicious tasting, a moist muffin with the flavor of pralines and cream was awarded honors in one of the contest categories.

Martha Davis of Imman, S.C., a veteran baker, mailed her recipe for Warm Pralines 'n Cream Muffins the first day the contest opened because she thought it might be a winner. Her favorite ice cream flavor — pralines 'n cream of course — served as inspiration for this prize-winning muffin.

She combined whole wheat flour with either quick or old fashioned Quaker oats and all-purpose flour for a wholesome flavor and tender texture.

Moist muffins: Warm Pralines 'n Cream Muffins are moist and tender with just the right amount of buttery pecan flavor.

1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup wheat wheat flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
3/4 cup chopped pecans, divided

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Grease bottoms only of 12 medium muffin cups or line with paper baking cups. In medium bowl, beat brown sugar, margarine and cream cheese until creamy. Add milk, egg and maple extract; mix well. Add combined dry ingredients and 1/2 cup pecans; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened. Fill prepared muffin cups 3/4 full. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup pecans. Bake 20 to 22 minutes or until golden brown. Cool; serve slightly warm. Yield 12 muffins.

To freeze muffins, wrap securely, seal, label and freeze.

To reheat frozen muffins, unwrap muffins; microwave at High about 45 seconds per muffin.

Substitute frozen fruit for fresh

AP — Cherry pie, peach cobbler, blueberry muffins. Even in the dead of winter, you can still enjoy these summer-fruit foods, without paying a premium price for fresh. Simply substitute frozen fruits for fresh, following these substitution techniques:

As a direct substitute for fresh fruit, buy unsweetened frozen fruit. When shopping, you'll find that some frozen fruits (such as strawberries and peaches) are available both sweetened and unsweetened. Read the label and ingredient list to see whether the product you're buying contains added sugar.

If a recipe calls for chopped fruit, chop the fruit while still frozen and use it immediately. If the fruit is allowed to thaw, the juices may discolor batters. Rinse frozen fruit in cold water, as necessary, to break up large ice clumps.

Favorite Fruit Desserts

■ Baked pies: Mix the frozen fruit with the sugar and thickener (flour, cornstarch, or tapioca) called for in your recipe. Let this mixture stand about 30 minutes or until a syrup forms, then fill the pastry shell. Bake the pie 25 to 30 minutes longer than a fresh fruit pie. To prevent overbrowning, cover the crust with foil for part of the baking time.

■ Crisps: Thaw the frozen fruit, but do not drain. Mix the fruit and juices as directed for fresh fruit in your recipe and continue as directed.

■ Cobblers: It is not necessary to thaw frozen fruit, because it will thaw during cooking. Follow your recipe as directed for fresh fruit.

■ Muffins, quick breads, pancakes: Stir chopped frozen fruit into the batter. Do not thaw or the juices will cause the batter to discolor.

Outstanding chef trailblazer for women in culinary arts

KEELY WYGNIK

She seemed an unlikely person to be talking about the glass ceiling that prevents women from getting "good jobs" in restaurants. But there she was, Madeleine M. Kamman, a mother of two grown sons, the teacher many area chefs told me about, and cookbook author.

"I say things that seem totally outrageous, and 10 years later it's common," she said during a luncheon at the Rattlesnake Club in Detroit. According to Kamman, it will take a little longer, probably about 15 years, before women are given the same opportunities as men to succeed in the culinary arts field. It's true what they say —most of the best chefs are men, and when they go home their wives cook them dinner.

March is Women's History Month, a time when women reflect on their accomplishments. Kamman wasn't visiting Detroit to talk about the lack of respect women chefs are given, or their accomplishments, she was here to explain what she and Beringer Vineyards are doing together to develop the skills of young chefs.

Kamman is in her fifth year as director of the School for American Chefs at Beringer Vineyards in the Napa Valley of California. During her slide presentation, she proudly pointed to students, some of them women, who have since opened restaurants or been promoted.

Their successes, are her successes. After listening to Kamman for a while, you realize that her career has not been a ladder to be climbed, but a journey to develop her potential, and do what she wanted to do.

It wasn't easy. Born in Paris and educated at the Sorbonne, Kamman was introduced to the world of food at the age of nine in her aunt's restaurant in Loire Valley. In 1960 she married Alan Kamman and moved to Philadelphia.

"I realized there was a need for learning in this country," she said. "I taught my neighbors how to cook, and when I found out that the adult education department at the school was looking for a French cooking teacher, I applied."

Besides teaching, Kamman was busy raising two sons. In 1969 the family moved to Boston where she established Modern Gourmet, a professional school for chefs. The first of her five books, "The Making of a Cook" (Atheneum Publishing) was published in 1971.

Two more books will be published in 1994 — "The Chicken and Other Poultry Home Companion," (William Morrow) and a revision of "The Making of a Cook," (Atheneum Publishing).

Although her name is not a household word, Kamman has done a lot, and influenced many well-known area chefs including Jimmy Schmidt and Elwin Greenwald.

Kamman operated a catering service, restaurant, cooking school in France, and had her own TV series "Madeline Cooks," 52 shows which aired on PBS.

In her cooking classes, Kamman said she told her students they weren't housewives, but household executives. "It's a big endeavor to feed children, budget. An awful lot of thinking goes into running a household."

Kamman said she tells women to not be jealous of successful, strong women like Hillary Rodham Clinton, but to look up to them as role models.

Kamman is proof that you can do or be whatever you want. For information about the School for American Chefs, write to Beringer Vineyards, 2000 Main Street, St. Helena, Calif. 94574. (707) 963-7115.

"Mem-Be-Hem." No, it's not an entree. It just happens to be the Mongolian Barbeque's fictional greeting or cheer in celebration of a feast. And that's what you've set yourself up for when you visit this all-you-can-eat make your own stir-fry eatery.

You can count on a 20-minute plus wait when you get there, because even the usual restaurant "off hours" are hopping here. But it's definitely worth the wait.

When you first walk through the doors of this place (and even outside in the street) the first thing you'll notice is the smell of everything sizzling on the huge gas stir fry slab. It's great!

One side of the restaurant is dedicated to the raw meat and fish bar, fresh raw vegetable selection, and extensive array of flavored oils, assorted sauces and little clay pots of fresh spices. The whole thing is all set up for you to pick and choose the ultimate stir fry concoction.

Behind the food bar are tried and true recipes of success for putting together tasty dishes, but if you happen to have a knack for this sort of thing, you're free to create your very own delicious made-exclusively-by-you stir fry extravaganza.

After you've decided on a creation, there are two stir-fry extraordinaires who take your bowl of raw stuff and throw it on a gas slab (heated at about 600 degrees) and sizzle it around with two big oak-wood planks.

Rice and flour tortillas are served at your table, and you have the option of eating with chopsticks, if you so inclined. Chalkboards on the wall boast a pretty extensive imported beer selection, and some very choice wines are served either by the glass or carafe.

The Mongolian Barbeque also offers some very tasty desserts, brought in from The Sweet Shop in Birmingham and The Cheesecake Factory in Grosse Pointe. They feature a "Dessert of the Month," and also have daily specials.

There's one thing to remember, just to save yourself some embarrassment. If your waitress asks you how your food is, make sure you tell her it's the best you've ever had. After all, if it's not, you only have one person to blame. Remember? You made it yourself!

Huge red chili peppers line the neon-lit sign outside the Monterey Restaurant on Main Street in downtown Royal Oak, and, if you happen to get into some very unique lighting and unusual decorative embellishments, you're in for a real treat once you've stepped through the doors of this restaurant.

The dining area is a true "mecca of entertainment." Huge sparkling red chili peppers (yes, more!) are hanging from the ceiling, along with marionettes and other interesting "stuff." This place has done more creative things with carrots, peppers and squash than any other restaurant around, and I'm not even referring to the menu.

Oh yes, the food that's edible! If you happen to find a moment in between soaking up all the unusual surroundings, check out the menu. Most of the choices are pretty typical, as far as Mexican food goes, but there are a few off-the-beaten-path items.

The "cangrejos" (jalepeno peppers stuffed with crabmeat) are excellent and they also offer a fantastic black bean soup, made with bacon and Chorizo sausage, topped with two different cheeses and served with a dollop of sour cream.

The vegetables served with some of the entrees are creatively put together and you get an interesting variety (very similar to the combinations hanging on the walls).

One unique thing about the food at the Monterey is that certain element of surprise when it comes to actually eating your food. There I was, happily chomping on my cheese enchilada, when I tasted something very strange. I don't know if it was supposed to be there, but somehow a big chunk of cauliflower had made it's way into my enchilada.

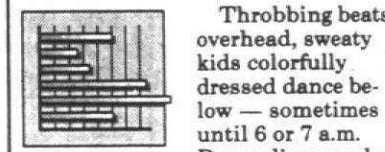

I kind of like surprises, so it really didn't bother me much. It was actually quite fun. I just hope it came from the garden and not from the ceiling.

Drink has its smarts

■ A fruit-flavored drink that gives you that extra oomph to dance the night away? They call it a Smart Drink and its manufacturers say it's healthy, non-addictive and non-alcoholic.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Throbbing beats overhead, sweaty kids colorfully dressed dance below — sometimes until 6 or 7 a.m. Depending on who is asked, many things keep the "ravers" going that long but most prefer Smart Drinks.

Not only do the fruit-flavored drinks extend dance time but lives as well, according to local suppliers Get Smart Inc.

"It counteracts free radicals, which are oxidized minerals and vitamins," said Christina Rose, who runs the company with her husband James and his brother Sean C., both formerly of Southfield. "It counteracts signs of aging, everything in the atmosphere, everything in the environment. It boosts your immune system. It gives you more energy to burn fat. It keeps you slim because obesity is one of the major causes of heart disease."

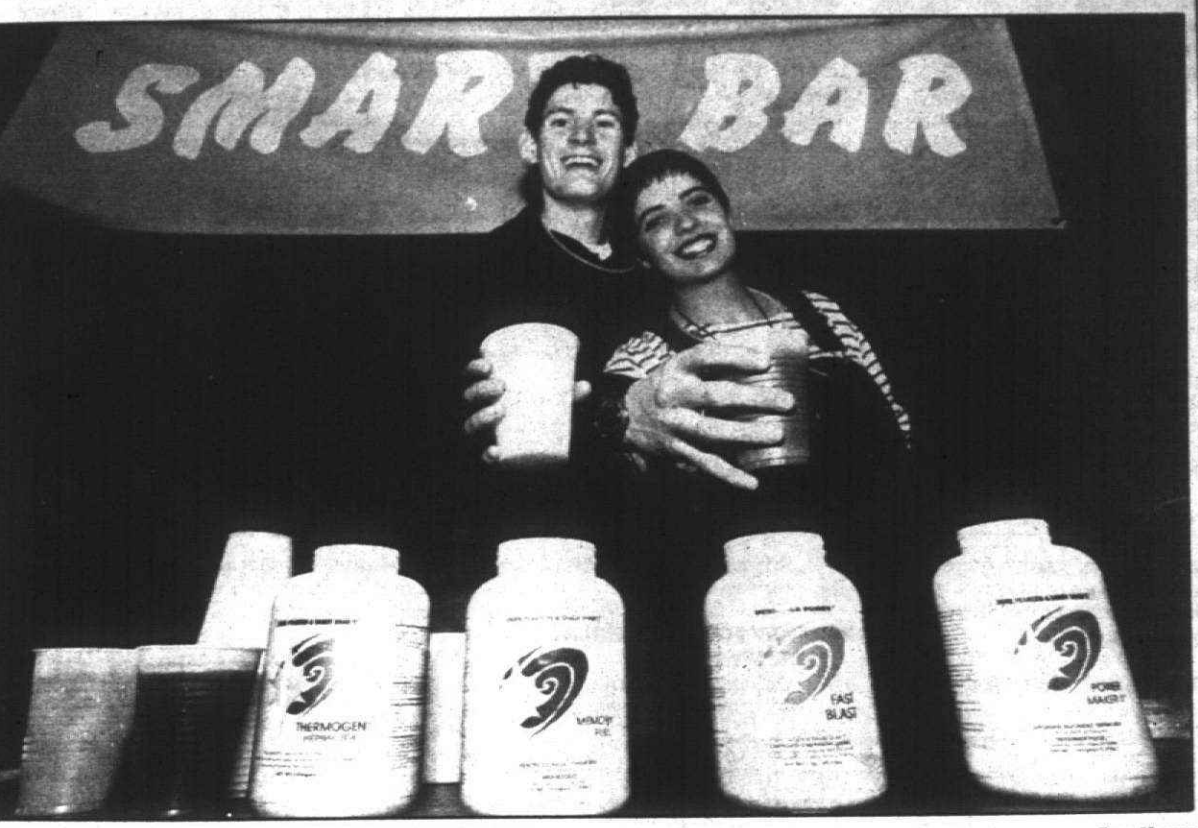

Paul Lee, who visited a recent rave in Detroit, agreed saying he considers it a work-out aid.

"It's like any high-carbohydrate fluid that helps you work out. If you notice, there's not too many fat people here," the Detroit resident said.

Jenny Bocolor of West Bloomfield tried the drink at the same rave for the first time.

"I'm just really kinda hyper," said Bocolor, an Oakland University student who had bought the drink minutes earlier. "I heard it opens up your brain. It's not like (the drug) aid. I'm not like hallucinating or anything."

It's no great why doesn't it have the stamp of approval from the Food and Drug Administration? That controversy has been the topic of conversation on "Nightline," "Donahue" and "Larry King Live" during the last year. Mike Shaffer, FDA spokesman, said because Smart Drinks are made up of food products, there's no need for approval unless people are injured by the drink. So far, the FDA has had no reports of anyone becoming ill after consuming a Smart Drink. Nonetheless, Bottled energy: Among the places Smart Drink marketers James and Christina Rose have set up shop is at Industry in Pontiac.

■ 'Smart Drinks, as far as the FDA is concerned, are of questionable safety; that is the overall concern at this point.'

Mike Shaffer
FDA spokesman less, the organization is still concerned.

"Smart Drinks, as far as the FDA is concerned, are of questionable safety; that is the overall concern at this point," Shaffer said.

"Safety is a concern because they contain some ingredients that, if consumed in large enough quantities," may have serious side effects, he added.

STREET BEATS

Christina Rose said Smart Drinks are much-needed supplements.

"It definitely works. They're (Duke Pearson and Sandy Shaw) research scientists; they've been taking the product for more than 20 years. It's formulated to keep you in optimum health for as long as they can. They're not formulated as a bar drink. That's secondary really."

According to Get Smart Inc., there are several vitamins and amino acids in the drinks. The company claims each has health benefits.

■ Arginine: An amino acid which stimulates human growth hormones, functions as a building block for all proteins. Speculated benefits include inhibiting cancer and increasing metabolism.

■ Choline: The precursor of acetylcholine which is a neurotransmitter that supposedly plays an important role in memory. Speculated benefits include treating Alzheimer's disease and lowering cholesterol.

■ Chromium: Enhances insulin. Speculated benefits include lowering cholesterol level.

■ Ephedra herb: The standard ingredient in nasal decongestants and also provokes anxiety. Speculated benefits include elevating mood and treating congestive heart disease.

■ L-phenylalanine: Produces epinephrine, popularly known as adrenaline for your brain. Speculated benefits include treating mental depression and Parkinson's disease.

■ Thiamine and pyridoxine: Vitamins B1 and B2. Thiamine is an antioxidant that can reportedly protect nerve tissue from alcohol, drugs and other neurotoxins. Pyridoxine is essential to optimal mental functioning.

Shaffer explained that the FDA has no proof that any of these ingredients do what Smart Drink users claim. Many of the amino acids or vitamins are found in food like broccoli, he said.

Christina Rose shrugs off the controversy saying that it has helped her.

"When you stop (drinking Smart Drinks) you notice that you're not functioning as well as you were; you're not thinking clearly or you're losing energy in the middle of the afternoon."

Literature about Smart Drinks also claims that the FDA is hiding facts that have already been verified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the National Institutes of Health. A spokesman at the NIH said, however, that the organization does not endorse private products.

Shaffer said the FDA can not hide information unless it's a manufacturer's trade secret.

"The FDA can't hide anything; we don't do studies on things," he said. "We review studies that outside organizations do. 'Everyone has different understandings and different opinions of what Smart Drinks do. It just comes down to who you want to believe or trust.'"

Smart Drinks are sold at raves and occasionally at Industry in Pontiac. The drinks sell $2.50 per serving. The mix, which makes 61 servings, can be bought for $45. For more information about Smart Drinks, call Get Smart, Inc., at 272-4624.

Gtoy toys around with 'mystery'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Singer/songwriter Gtoy has endured the "mystery man" complex since the release of his tape "Mansions" late last year.

He sent copies of the tape to various media and radio stations, most of whom had no prior knowledge of the singer. Nonetheless, it was played on a few local radio shows.

Christmas cards followed, as did a new tape, "12 Hours in Toronto."

Still, even with the media blitz, Gtoy maintains he likes to have a low profile.

Uncovered: Singer/songwriter Gtoy

"I don't want to be out there a lot," he said. "When you're not out front there, there is no expectation of your personality (or) of what you should or shouldn't be doing. Just the music."

"12 Hours in Toronto" marks Gtoy's fourth tape, all of which are available in local independent record stores. Now, Gtoy said, he is willing to ease up a bit on the mystery. After recording yet another tape this summer, he plans to perform in the Detroit area.

By playing gigs, the mostly acoustic performer hopes to share his sometimes painful lyrics. Most of them were influenced by his childhood years in the abusive Detroit's Cass Corridor and reading the works of Sylvia Plath.

"Everything you go through in life makes a part of your personality," said the Detroit resident who's also an artist.

Because he's witnessed poverty and child abuse, Gtoy has donated some of the proceeds from his single "Highway to Nowhere" to area charities.

"Music has a lot of possibility to change things. That's basically what my music is about. I make statements that are relevant to things that are going on," he said.

Turturro's 'Mac' is a labor of love

By JOHN MONAGHAN

MOVIES

The mass swifly and meticulously places each brick, shaves off the excess mortar, then levels it off before moving on to the next. Mac, who has been watching the process in awe, announces to his brothers waiting in the car, "It's our new bricklayer."

"Mac," opening this week at the Maple, expects its audience to share Mac's fascination with master craftsmanship. Fortunately, you don't have to be Bob Villa to appreciate the labor of love created by actor/director John Turturro.

Tired of working for slapdash contractors, three Queens-based brothers decide to start their own business and cash in on the building boom of the 1960s. The ambitious Mac (Turturro) soon discovers that brothers Vico and Lee ("Do the Right Thing") and the Coen Brothers ("Barton Fink"). He has been developing "Mac" since 1980 with co-writer Brandon Cole, staging bits of it as a work-in-progress and fine tuning for the movie project.

The realism of "Mac's" script comes from Turturro's childhood of weekends working with his carpenter father. The movie is dedicated to the late Nicholas Turturro, whose presence radiates from every frame. Over the closing credits, the loving son places the sound of his father's irritated voice on an answering machine.

As a first-time director, Turturro does leave some loose ends. Ellen Barkin's amusing bit as a beatnik poet and artist's model who steams up both of Mac's brothers, seems like an afterthought. John Amos has an emotional hospital room scene after he falls off a roof, but he's never heard from again.

Turturro instead focuses his efforts on the love-hate relationship between the brothers, all three vividly portrayed. Mac's wife is played by Turturro's real-life spouse Katherine Borowitz and not surprisingly she brings a naturalistic quality to the role.

More than just an entertaining period piece, the movie and its message about taking pride in your work, whether it's laying cement or making movies, really hits home.

If you have a comment for John Monaghan, call him at 953-2047, mailbox number 1986, on a touch tone phone, or write him care of Street Scene, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Pop, mystery, 'Generation X': Some fun stuff

By JILL HAMILTON

I found some fun stuff to play with.

"The Whole Pop Catalog" (Avon Books). This giant 608-page book is a treat for post-boomer boomers who find that our main generational identity is that—regardless of race or creed—we remember the "Oh, my nose" episode (featuring Marsha) of "The Brady Bunch." The catalog is mostly a book of things you can buy, like the $65 chic bubble-blower necklace (Madonna has one), but it's also filled with a lot of useless trivia that pop culture fans will love. (Did you know that the same guy who invented Sea Monkeys also invented X-Ray Specs?)

The topics include Slinky, lunch boxes, cereal and Mr. Potato Head. (Writers for catalog called the company that made Mr. Potato Head and asked what Mrs. Potato Head's name was before she married Mr. Potato Head. The answer? Mrs. Potato Head.)

If you're looking for an analysis of why it's really hard to build anything recognizable with Tinker Toys, this is a catalog to check out.

"Generation X" (St. Martin's Press). Douglas Coupland's "Generation X" is sort of old, but if you've never read it and you're a vaguely disas-lated "twentysomething," this is the book you've been waiting for. It tells the story of a few dropouts from society who like to tell stories, but the best part of the book are the comments about what it's like to be a young person in the Reagan-Bush era.

The margins are sprinkled with definition, like this one for "McJob"—"A low-pay, low-prestige, low-dignity, low-benefit, no-future job in the service sector, frequently considered a satisfying career choice by people who have never held one." Sound familiar?

Or this one for "knee-jerk irony." The tendency to make flippant ironic comments as a reflexive matter of course in everyday conversation.

Or this for "hyperkarma"—"A deeply rooted belief that punishment will somehow always be far greater than the crime, for example, ozone holes for littering."

This book puts into writing all those vague notions that you thought pertained only to you and a few friends.

Satellite News. A must for true "Mystery Science Theater 3000" fans. Get updates on the show, weird little essays and columns by robots Gypsy and Tom Servo. To order, write Best Brains Inc., P.O. Box 5325, Hopkins, Minn. 55343.

CC hockey is family affair for Ronaynes

Seven-year-old Alyse Ronayne has two brothers and a cousin who played hockey this year for Redford Catholic Central.

Which one was her favorite?
"Jamie," she said, referring to her brother Jamie Ronayne, the Shamrocks' senior goalie. "He's the one on the ice a lot."

Alyse watches Barney cartoons more than she analyzes hockey, but trust her opinion. Jamie Ronayne was a fan favorite during the Class A state tournament, almost leading CC to its first state championship since 1974.

Ronayne, who had a 2.27 goals-against average coming into the Final Four, played his best during the state tournament, allowing only 10 goals in six games.

After being held scoreless for two periods earlier this month in Flint, Alpena scored a pair of goals in the last 11:22 to win the Class A crown over CC, 2-1.

Jeff Warholik tied the game 1-1 at 4:38 of the third period, tipping in a shot from the point, and Mike Richey scored the game winner on a power play at 11:43, slapping the puck past Jamie Ronayne after a scramble in the goal crease.

"The whole year, Jamie was the backbone of our team," CC junior forward Frank Novock said. "He played unbelievable. Unfortunately, we couldn't get another one for him."

Jamie Ronayne got a chance to play full-time this year after last year's starting goalie, Mike Brusseau, opted to play this season with a traveling midget team. Ronayne's uncle, Timothy Ronayne, played on CC's last state champion team in '74 and was the star of that final, scoring four goals against Birmingham Brother Rice.

For two periods Saturday, Jamie Ronayne was the star.

"It's a goal of anybody to win a state championship and it would have been real nice," said Jamie Ronayne, whose twin brother, Justin, was a forward and cousin Brian was a defenseman at CC. "I tried and gave it 100 percent. That's all I can do. They fought for the puck (on the game-winner) and got it."

All in the family

Three Ronaynes on the same CC hockey team isn't that unusual, considering 13 Ronaynes from three generations have played for the Shamrocks over the last six decades.

The Ronaynes' grandfather, John J. Ronayne, and his brother, James J. Ronayne, played on the first CC hockey team in the 1930s. John Ronayne, who later was CC's team physician for 37 years, had six sons who played hockey at CC during the 1960s and '70s.

Pat Ronayne, the father of Jamie and Justin, played and graduated from CC in 1966. His brother, John III, played and graduated in 1964 and is the father of current CC player Brian Ronayne. Other Ronaynes who played included Mike, class of '65; Dan, '75; Brendan, '78; and Matthew, '80.

"In my family, two things were certain: We played hockey and we attended Catholic Central," said Pat Ronayne, who was the interim coach this past season at Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook.

The elder Ronaynes have coached their sons at various youth levels and were thrilled to watch them get regular shifts this season. Then to watch them almost win a state championship, well, that was even more special.

"It gave me a thrill when they introduced Jamie as the goalie, knowing my dad did it (played goalie) some odd years ago," Pat said. "We enjoy this immensely. John and I have an awful lot of pride in our kids, and it's even more enjoyable to watch them (than play)."

The Ronaynes should remember the finer things of '93 instead of the loss in the final. Among them, the 4-3 overtime victory over Livonia Stevenson; a pair of wins over Rice, one in the regional final; and the 3-2 win over Port Huron in the quarterfinal.

"The last week was somewhat nerve-wracking, but it was a lot of fun," said John Ronayne.

Keeping in touch

CC plays an exhibition game every year, featuring an alumni team against the varsity. This year's alumni had seven Ronaynes playing for it against the varsity and its trio of Ronaynes.

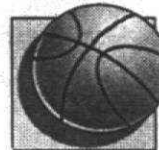

"There was a lot of joking going on, and when we left the ice, I said, 'Thanks for organizing a scrimmage for our family,'" Pat Ronayne said.

The three Ronaynes on this year's team will join the alumni, and it might be a while before there is another on the CC varsity roster.

Based on past results, it'll be worth the wait.

Rocks fall in loss No. 1 Doughboys

A fine season for the Plymouth Salem boys basketball team ended Friday with a loss to No. 1-ranked Detroit Pershing in a regional championship game. The Rocks finished with a 21-4 record.

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

It would stretch the imagination to think a high school basketball team could be any more impressive than defending state champion Detroit Pershing was Friday night.

The heavily favored Doughboys played a superb game and overwhelmed Plymouth Salem 83-52 in the final of the Southfield-Lathrup regional tournament.

Pershing (23-1) will play Western Lakes Activities Association champion Walled Lake Central (25-0) in a Class A quarterfinal game in the University of Detroit-Mercy's Calihan Hall at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The Doughboys were outstanding in every way necessary to distinguish them as a fine team against the Rocks (21-4).

"We played good, aggressive basketball," Pershing coach Johnny Goston said. "We probably had more depth than they had. My kids stepped up because sometimes in these games you have a letdown."

Salem had a total of 18 turnovers, which might have been an acceptable number, but the Doughboys still forced the Rocks to play at a faster pace with their hustling defense.

"They completely dismantled us," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "They took us right out of our game plan and everything we wanted to do."

The Rocks had wanted to control the ball and tempo, but they were unable to do that. Consequently, they got into a running game with Pershing, and it looked as if Salem had given up on doing the things it planned.

"Their pressure is so tremendous, and unless you're out there feeling the heat all the time you don't realize how they create the up-tempo game," Brodie said. "Our players were in a survival mode out there, and then you lose your concentration and sight of what you're trying to do."

The Doughboys made 36 of 78 field goals, including an assortment of showtime dunks. The Pershing trio of 6-7 senior Todd Burgan (22), 6-6 senior Carlos Williams (21) and 6-8 junior Willie Mitchell (19) accounted for 62 of the team's points.

"Those guys are great players; they had three Division I athletes on the floor," Salem senior Brandon Slone said. Burgan is going to Syracuse and Williams to Alabama-Birmingham.

"They know they're good and they don't have to show it by talking trash. You can tell by the way they do their drills they're a disciplined team and have a disciplined coach."

"You don't know how far those guys are going to go (in the sport). I might sit back some day and say, 'Yeah, I played against that guy.' I hope they go all the way in the tournament."

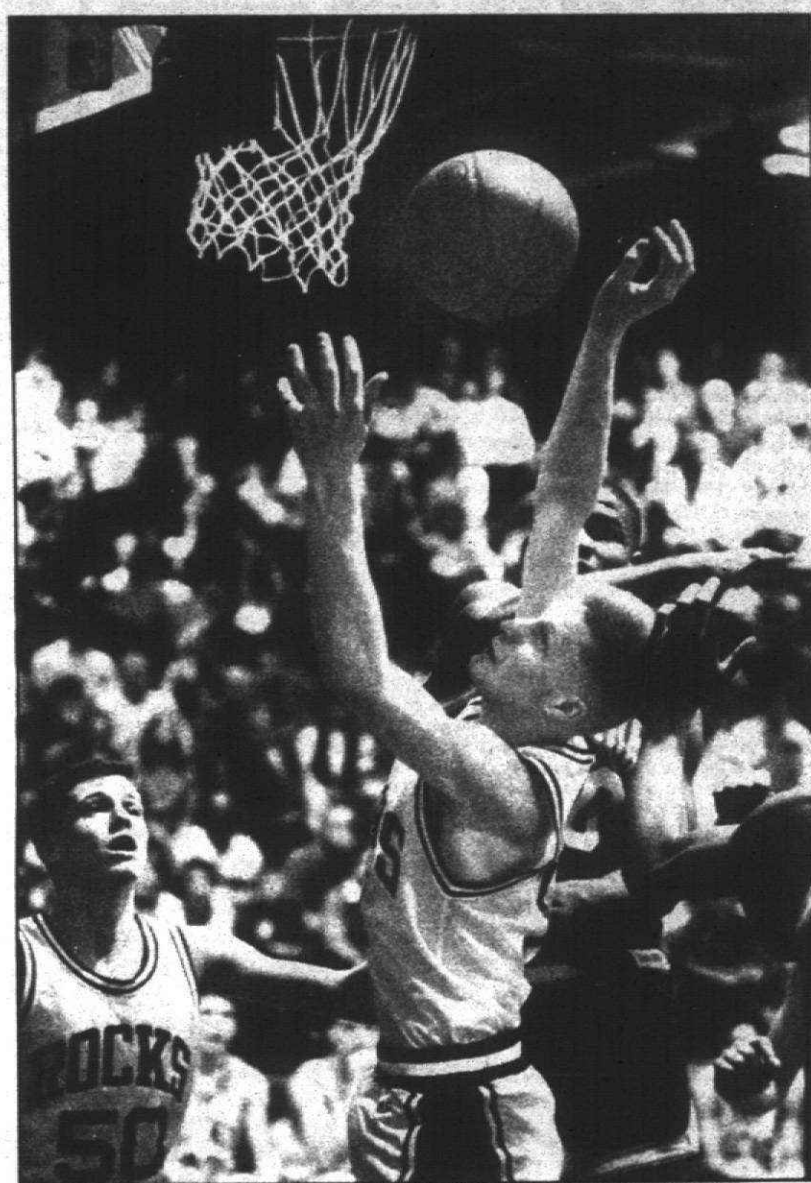

Senior Mike Slone scored 15 points and junior James Head 10 for the Rocks, who made 18 of 51 shots. Senior Brian Jensen added eight and junior Adams Hammons seven.

"We knew they had some shooters; No. 40 (Mike Slone) got some rain," Goston said. "But we take the same approach to every game. We have to contest shots and we did that today."

Goston tipped his hat to the Rocks for not trying to hold the ball and attempting to compete with Pershing.

"I give their coach a lot of credit for that," he said. "In the state tournament, he was going to play to win and not lose."

Cass Tech sidelines CC hoop squad

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

The weatherman might not be ready for the start of baseball, but Redford Catholic Central's Brian Paluk finally is.

Paluk's high school basketball career came to an end Friday night as Detroit Cass Tech defeated CC, 73-43, in a Class A regional final played at Southfield High School.

Paluk, expected to be one of CC's top pitchers on the baseball diamond, was held to 13 points on six-of-17 shooting and only six rebounds before fouling out with 3:13 remaining. But CC coach Bernie Holowicki will remember Paluk for the way he led the inexperienced Shamrocks to a 15-10 overall record despite losing All-Observer first-team players Bob Kummer and Chard Varga to graduation.

Jeff Gutt, Marc Gondek and Eric

Justice also played their last game.

"Brian played maybe three to five minutes his freshman year, breaks his hand his junior year and misses almost the entire season, then this year comes out of nowhere to be the heart and soul of the team," Holowicki said. "He was 'Mr. Everything' for us. He was a great player in the CC tradition and is a great person, one of the most likable kids in school."

Cass Tech forced 22 CC turnovers and held the Shamrocks to 15-of-50 shooting (30 percent).

CC made only three-of-16 shots in the first quarter but was feeling pretty good about trailing only 26-22 at halftime. Cass pulled away in the third quarter, outscoring CC 18-4 for a 44-26.

CC made only 2-13 shots and had seven turnovers in the third quarter. Howard White and Derrick Dial each scored six points in the third quarter for the Technicians, who ended the quarter with a 12-0 run.

"We made a good run but got carved up today," Holowicki said. "We should get maybe three turnovers a quarter, and that's about it. They trapped us all over and we held the ball, didn't hit the open man, and when we did go to the open man, we wouldn't go to the basket. Cass knows all the tricks of the trade and is very savvy."

Andy Slankster scored nine points on 3-9 shooting for CC, and Gutt played strong off the bench with six points and six rebounds.

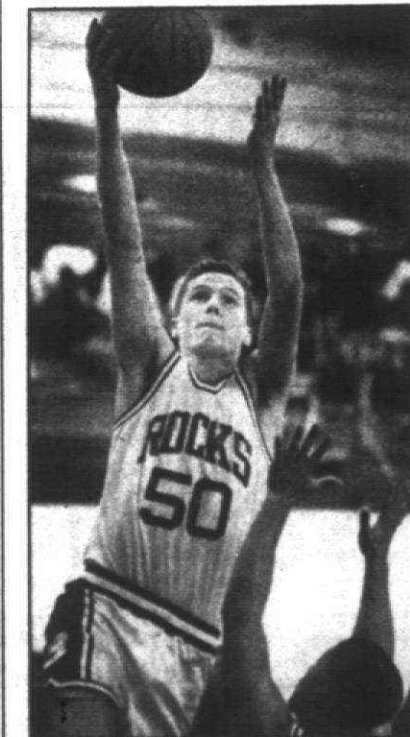

Cass Tech coach Robert Shannon said the Technicians didn't use special strategy to guard Paluk. The 21-4 Technicians have played good defense all year, holding opponents to 34-percent shooting and an average of 56 points per game. Cass has been playing without its best inside player, John Morrison, since he broke his arm in the first district game.

"Defensive tenacity and our togetherness is the key; they believe they can win," Shannon said. "We didn't play him (Paluk) any differently than we played Benton Harbor's Corey Childs or Pershing's big fella (Willie Mitchell). We play them all the same."

CC sophomore guard Damien Baskerville didn't start but played about three quarters. Baskerville missed Wednesday's game against Dearborn after being ruled academically ineligible by CC. But he was reinstated for Friday's game, Holowicki said, because he finished an incomplete assignment in one of his courses.

Baskerville is the most impressive of 12 players off the varsity who will remain.

College recruit: Salem senior Brandon Slone will play for Madonna next season.

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

You coach a first-year small college basketball program. You have no players, no alumni booster group, no television exposure (except for local access cable), no scholarship money, and, because it is primarily a commuter college, there isn't much of a campus life.

How in the world do you recruit players?

Well, if you're Madonna University men's basketball coach Bill Sharpe, you sell a concept. A concept that is often the goal and rarely the reality in big-time college athletics.

"We are here for the benefit of the student-athlete. Not the other way around," Sharpe said. "And that benefit is a college education. Our role as coaches is as teachers, facilitators and motivators. The players and coaches here will work together toward one goal: academic and athletic success."

Are the players buying it? Like Elvis stamps. Here is a list of players already signed to play basketball at Madonna next year:

■ Doug Soper, 6-0 guard from Novi who spent the last two years as an invited walk-on at Central Michigan. Soper, a dangerous perimeter shooter, has been attending classes at Madonna this year and has been instrumental in helping Sharpe recruit.

■ Christian Emert, 6-0 guard who owns the career and single-season assist records at Walled Lake Central.

■ Brandon and Mike Slone, 6-5 twins from Plymouth Salem. Both earned all-Western Lakes honors this year. Mike averages 19.5 points per game and Brandon 13 points and eight rebounds.

■ Khari Hairston, a speedy 5-10 guard from East Catholic.

■ Jaulonni Dimes, a 6-4 guard-forward from East Catholic.

■ Andy Erwin, a 6-4 guard-forward from Royal Oak Kimball.

"I would say this would be a pretty good (recruiting) year for anybody," Sharpe said. "I'm very pleased. You will notice that the one thing these kids have in common is that they all come from great high school programs and were coached by great high school coaches. And every one is a good person, someone you want to be around for four years."

When asked their reasons for picking Madonna, the Slone twins and Soper mentioned the school's proximity to home and the chance to start on the ground floor of a program and help it grow.

"I think a lot of people were surprised that we chose Madonna, because they thought we could have gone higher and played Division II," Brandon Slone said. "But there were a lot more factors than just basketball. Getting an education is the most important thing because basketball is not going to take you through life."

Certainly you get an idea of the type of student-athlete Madonna is attracting — the "Good kid quotient," as Sharpe calls it — and, by looking at the players' sizes, you get a hint as to the type of basketball they will play.

"Everybody expects me to play a three-guard offense that's going to stall and take time off the clock because we are young," Sharpe said. "Maybe we will; maybe we won't. But when you look at who we're bringing in, I think maybe we might be able to get up and down the court a little bit."

The distinguishing feature of the new Crusaders will be their pressing man-to-man defense.

"Zone isn't a word we use too often around here," said assistant coach Pat Henderhan, who played in the original men's program at Madonna which was canceled in 1989. "Everything we do will work off the defense."

Sharpe, Henderhan and assistant coach Mark Poplawski (veteran Catholic League assistant coach), are still hard on the recruiting trail.

"We're going to carry 15 players," Sharpe said. "I would like to get maybe four or five junior college players

CC crowds All-Area hockey team

The victors go the spoils. That's why state Class A finalist Redford Catholic Central landed three players on first-team All-Observer hockey squad.

The Shamrocks, who finished the 1992-93 season 18-6-4 overall, won five of six state tournament games before falling to Alpena in the finals at Flint IMA, 2-1. They also finished 7-0 against their three Livonia counterparts.

Coach John Gumbleton, who guided CC into the 1983 state finals, before losing to Fraser, was also named Observerland Coach of the Year.

"I'm pleased the way our team pulled together, they worked hard and they prepared well for the tournament," said Gumbleton, who just completed his 15th year as coach. "To survive a tough week, and having to play so hard to beat teams like (Birmingham) Brother Rice and (Livonia) Stevenson, makes you happy."

Suburban High School Hockey League champion Livonia Churchill (16-6-1) also placed two players on the first team. City rival Stevenson (14-8-1), the league runnerup, put one on the first team and two on the second team.

Livonia Franklin (10-8-7) is also represented.

Introducing the All-Area hockey team:

FIRST TEAM

Daryl Chamberlain, goalie, Liv. Stevenson: The junior will not be remembered for making 43 of 47 saves in a 4-3 overtime loss to Catholic Central in the regional opener. He was named the Spar-ters' team MVP and made Class A All-State.

In 21 games, the All-Suburban League goalie allowed just 41 goals for a 1.95 goals-against average. Chamberlain notched three shutouts.

"Daryl leads by example," Stevenson coach Matt Mulcahy said. "I always had to kick him off the ice after practice because he always wanted to stay and work."

"He's an excellent student (3.7 grade-point average) and a good person."

Corey Swider, defense, Liv. Churchill: The senior was considered the Suburban League's top defenseman. He ranked fifth in the SHSL in scoring and finished the season overall with 19 goals and 24 assists for 43 points.

Swider has been selected to play in the Michigan All-State game on March 27 at Michigan Tech.

"Corey was the quarterback of our team," Churchill coach Jeff Hatley said of the All-Leaguer. "He has tremendous offensive skills and sees the game real well. He has a real knack of taking what's given to him."

Swider was a second-team All-Area pick a year ago.

Mike Kasper, defense, Redford CC: The senior was called "one of the better defensemen around" by coach John Gumbleton.

Kasper finished the season with 21 points on four goals and 17 assists. He was a second-team All-West Division pick in the Michigan Metro League.

"Mike's a steady player, a head-up defender," said the CC coach. "He's a solid defenseman who was rarely beaten."

"He has a good, hard, controlled shot," Kasper, a second-team All-Area pick last season, was also a member of CC's power-play and penalty-killing units.

Todd Siedlaczek, forward, Liv. Churchill: The senior left winger led the Suburban circuit in scoring, while racking up a total of 59 points on the year with 29 goals and 30 assists.

He was also selected state's top scholar-athlete (coaches association), carrying a 4.065 GPA. Siedlaczek was also named Class A All-State (coaches association).

COACH OF THE YEAR

John Gumbleton, Redford CC

HONORABLE MENTION

"I was very unselfish, a team player all the way," Hatley said. "He was a very good two-way player, too."

Siedlaczek is considering attending West Point.

Jon Heady, forward, Redford CC: The junior center had 26 goals and 30 assists on the year for 56 points.

Heady made second-team All-West Division (Michigan Metro).

"Jon has a lot of skills — a good skater and a good stick-handler with a knowledge for the game," Gumbleton said. "He also has leadership ability. He's quiet, but an intense competitor."

Frank Novack, forward, Redford CC: The junior center was called "a fireball" by his coach.

"He's very fast, very competitive and never quits," Gumbleton said. "He doesn't like to lose."

Novack voted first-team All-West in the Michigan Metro, scored a total of 58 points on 26 goals and 32 assists.

He was also chosen Class A All-State (coaches association).

SECOND TEAM

Jamie Ronayne, goalie, Redford CC: The senior goaltender turned the corner on Feb. 5 when he made 38 saves in a 3-0 shutout over Brother Rice.

In 25.3 games, Ronayne allowed only 54 goals (2.13 average) with a save percentage of 92.3. He posted four shutouts for the Shamrocks.

"He grew a lot this season and he played very well all season long," said the CC coach.

Ronayne was named to the coaches association Dream Team and Class A All-State teams. He was also selected the top goalie in the Michigan Metro.

Scott Johnson, defense, Liv. Stevenson: The senior co-captain and four-year starter switched this season from the front line to the blue line.

Johnson still wound up with 16 goals and 19 assists for 35 points.

"Scott sacrificed bigger numbers for the good of the team," Mulcahy said. "He's a physical player and that's why he could make the transition so easily."

"He's a hard-nosed player, the kind you don't like to play against."

Johnson also made the All-Suburban and Class A All-State teams.

Brian Ronayne, defense, Redford CC: The senior alternate-captain provided solid defense and leadership for the Shamrocks.

"Brian skates well and has a good shot," Gumbleton said. "He has a lot of skills and is offensive-minded."

Ronayne finished the year with six goals and 28 assists for 34 points.

He was also selected second-team All-West in the Michigan Metro.

Ryan Guskic, forward, Liv. Stevenson: Guskic scored in the Suburban League scoring race behind Siedlaczek.

The senior scored a total of 53 points on the year with 23 goals and 30 assists.

The All-SHSL selection was a quiet leader for the Spartans.

"Like Chamberlain, Ryan led by example," Mulcahy said. "And he played very well against the good teams. Just a quality kid."

Brian Jakowicz, forward, Liv. Churchill: The senior right winger came on strong during home stretch of the regular season for the Suburban League champions.

He tallied the game-winning goal in the league showdown versus Stevenson and added five goals and three assists in victory over Wyandotte to clinch the league title.

For the season, Jakowicz had 25 goals and 21 assists for 46 points.

"Brian came up big in big games," Hatley said of the All-Leaguer. "He always went to the net and was difficult to move out of the way."

Jeremy Klosowski, forward, Liv. Franklin: The Patriots' captain tallied 31 goals and 22 assists for a team-high 53 points. During his three-year varsity career, Klosowski racked up 102 career points, 21st on Franklin's all-time scoring list.

The senior center also had a plus-seven rating.

"Jeremy was definitely a team leader," Franklin coach Terry Jobbitt said. "He always stepped forward and was well-respected by his teammates because he was a hard hitter and gutsy."

A member of the power-play, Klosowski had four game-winning goals.

25.3 games, Ronayne allowed only 54 goals (2.13 average) with a save percentage of 92.3. He posted four shutouts for the Shamrocks.

"He grew a lot this season and he played very well all season long," said the CC coach.

Central wins regional title, plays Pershing in quarters

BY BILL PARKER
STAFF WRITER

Twenty minutes after Friday's Class A boys basketball regional championship game at Port Huron High School had ended, Walled Lake Central's 6-foot-6 senior center Chris McFarlane stood quietly in the locker room cradling the championship trophy under his arm.

"(Mike) Gluski usually takes it, but tonight I took it," he explained, with the calm, politeness of a gentle giant. But there was nothing calm or gentle about McFarlane's performance. After having his first shot of the game swatted away like a fly at a picnic, McFarlane buckled down and turned in a career performance. He finished the game with 29 points, 12 rebounds and a couple steals in helping the Vikings win a thrilling 90-86 come-from-behind victory over Port Huron.

"That (block) made me realize I had to go with more power to the hole," McFarlane said. "They were more physical than I thought they'd be."

The Vikings, 25-0 on the season, advance to the Class A state quarterfinal game 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the University of Detroit Mercy against defending state champion Detroit Pershing (23-1).

As in Tuesday's regional opening-round victory over Pontiac Northern, the Vikings had to rally in the fourth quarter to secure the win.

Led by the outstanding play of senior Keith Cates (27 points, 12 assists) and junior Tony Miller (33 points), the Big Reds scored the first four points of the contest and didn't relinquish the lead until the 4:28 mark of the fourth quarter. Port Huron led by as many as 13 points midway through the third quarter, and held a 12-point lead, 66-54, with less than 20 seconds remaining in the third before Central started another of its thrilling comebacks.

"They're seniors," explained Central coach Steve Emert, who was proud to accept his first regional trophy in 15 years of coaching at Central. "We were in a situation where we got behind, but I wasn't going to panic because then they'd get upset with me. We knew we could come back. They know they're never out of it."

With time running out in the third, Central's Adam McCarthy (17 points) hit a three-pointer and Miller was slapped with a foul after the shot giving Central the ball under its own basket. Christian Emert (17 points) hit McFarlane under the basket with the inbounds pass and McFarlane dumped in an easy bucket off the glass, drew a foul and aced the free throw to quickly pull the Vikings to within six, 66-60.

"It took us several minutes to recover from that," said Port Huron coach Jim Earley, whose team finished the season at 17-6.

The Big Reds shot 62-percent from the floor through the first three quarters of the game but struggled to shoot 36-percent in the fourth (9-of-25).

Central chipped away at the lead by converting 5-of-11 from the floor in the fourth quarter and 19-of-23 from the free throw line. They also dominated the boards, 11-5.

The Vikings maintained the lead by nailing 12 of 14 free throws down the stretch, five each from McFarlane and Thompson.

"He realized he didn't have the ball handling skill to actually hold the ball, so his thing was, 'Let's get it off, hope it goes in, and hope we're flat.'"

Slone scored 12 first-half points and gave the Rocks a 9-6 lead with a three-point basket.

The Doughboys missed nine of their first 12 shots but got hot after that. They
