Forum to study schools

With a tax-increase election on tap in the Plymouth Canton school district, and the state cutting the local property-tax system to fund public schools, a local state representative, Jerry Vorva, plans a forum on education. Everyone is invited.

With a millage election set for Aug. 17 in the Plymouth Canton school district and the state legislature eliminating the local school property taxes, State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, is sponsoring an open forum on education at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 10.

"I'm inviting everybody who wants to attend," said-Vorva. "I'm hoping to see members of the Plymouth Canton school board there.

The forum will be at the Plymouth City Hall, 201 S. Main, and is open to the public.

"I want to get people there from Canton and Plymouth," Vorva said. 'It's going to be an open exchange of ideas. I want to find out what kind of school system people want and then design a system to fund it.'

He said the meeting will be videotaped, with copies going to Gov. John Engler and members of the house education committee.

Vorva said he decided to hold the forum after the legislature voted to scrap the entire property tax system that has been used to fund local public schools.

Meanwhile, the Observer is asking residents to call and tell us how they will vote on Aug. 17 when a 4-mill

'Tis the season — for fruits and vegetables at roadside stands in Plymouth and Canton.

'We like to serve people Michigan products at reasonable prices," said Andy Churilla, who with his wife, Mary Hauk Churilla, just opened Andy and Mary's Farm Market, a permanent, seasonable roadside stand at Ford and Beck roads.

What's from Michigan? How about sweet corn, cucumbers, peppers, tomatoes, lettuce, radishes, pickling cucumbers, cabbage, green onions, green beans, and squash.

The Churillas used to have a temporary stand at Ford and Napier and decided to go for the permanent stand that opened July 12. The couple is about ready to landscape the Like many farm markets in the area, the Churillas' is open from 9 a.m. to 7ish at night. They also plan to keep the stand open through Halloween for pumpkins, winter squash and corn stalks.

We farm all of our own stuff," Churilla said.

Plymouth and Canton offer a variety of roadside and farmers markets. Among them are Bordine's Farm Market on Ford at Ridge; Ferrari's on the south side of Cherry Hill, west of Beck; Constantino's on the north side of Ford, west of Beck; and a roadside stand on Napier, just east of Ann Arbor Road.

Though there was a Canton Farmers Market in the Kmart parking lot in previous years, it's uncertain whether it will open this year. But the Plymouth Farmers Market is still going strong from 7:30 a.m. to noon, Saturdays, through Oct. 16, at the Gathering across from Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

There are probably even more roadside stands and the best way to find out is to drive around the more rural roads in Canton and Plym-

Salvation Army seeks baby supplies for needy

The cupboards that hold baby supplies for needy families at the Plymouth Salvation Army are bare. And you're invited to a community baby shower to help replenish them. "Throughout the year young mothers and sometimes young fathers come in and we give them what they need," according to Howard Matthews, Salvation Army director of social services The Kiwanis Club and the Salvation Army are planning the shower for low-income families mostly in the Plymouth and Canton area, as well as a small percentage in Northville. The party is between 7:30-9 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 24, at the Salvation Army office on Main Street south of Ann Arbor Road. Bring a gift, meet Kiwanis and Salvation Army workers and enjoy the refreshments.

If you can't make it to the party, send donations to Kiwanis Plymouth Foundation, P.O. Box 701308, Plymouth, Mich. 48170.

Organizers are also hoping residents will fill collection boxes at Farmer Jack, Danny's, Kroger in Plymouth and Canton and Meijer in Canton, as well as the Salvation Army office, according to Sue Clark, Kiwanis chairperson for the project. Look for bear painted on the front of the box.

"We're encouraging people to buy diapers, baby formula and clothes to put in the containers,

Clark said adding that the items should be new. "This is the first baby shower — we're trying to get the community more and more involved in this," she added.

The baby shower is part of the two-month Kiwanis service club BABY (Basic Aid for Babies and Youth) project that began July 4 and ends Aug.

31. The Salvation Army will distribute the goods. After the drive the Salvation Army room where the goods are stored is "loaded, but by the end of the year (right about now) the cupboards are bare,' Matthews said adding that last year $1,000 worth of baby goods were donated in addition to money donations. 'We helped hundreds of mothers and families with baby items," he said.

Student flies over handicap

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

Toni Trumpka is getting ready to take the trip of her life.

"I hope it's a great success. I hope a lot of other students do this. I hope it will make people feel comfortable," said Trumpka, 17, of Plymouth.

On Aug. 12, Trumpka will board a plane for Mexico - the town of Tehuacan, to be exact as a foreign exchange student through the Rotary International Youth Exchange Program. What makes Trumpka's trip a bit different is that she is the first student with a physical handicap to embark on the voyage.

"I think this is a good opportunity. Because I'm handicapped doesn't mean I can't handle it, said Trumpka, who has spina bifida, a congenital defect of the Actually, she's making history for the Rotary Club. She is the first such student in Rotary District 6400, which includes the Detroit area, as well as the region.

She always thought of becoming a foreign exchange student. "But I never thought it would happen," said Trumpka, who has studied Spanish for four vears. Her chance came when efforts were afoot to encourage a student with disabilities to travel abroad through the Rotary program. Marie Morrow, chairwoman of the Rotary exchange committee, talked to her father, Jerry Trumpka, the new chairman of the Rotary's handicapped committee.

Morrow believes Trumpka will, set a precedent for other teens with disabilities who want to travel and study abroad. "I'm pretty excited about this. Toni has a wonderful opportunity ahead of her," Morrow said.

And Trumpka knows that. She's already spoken with the family with whom she will live for the next year. She'll have three new older brothers while there. A younger sister will be in Australia as a foreign exchange student while she's in Mexico. "They seem like they are a real nice family. They are really involved in the Rotary," said Trumpka, a senior at Canton High School.

Her days will be filled with going to school, meeting new friends, as well as trips around the country, and visits to local

Engler seeks educational changes over more funding

Like a fellow who just won $5.6 billion in a school funding custody battle, Gov. John Engler is eagerly anticipating the birth of a new and improved public education system, but trying not to talk too much about how we'll pay for

"We're on the verge of some really exciting things happening," he said Monday to several reporters at the Southfield Radisson. 'You're going to see tremendous change taking place.

The problem is that Engler, in concert with the state Legislature, just torpedoed $5.6 billion in property tax revenue for every Michigan school district, and must replace that money with Furthermore, it's almost essential to produce a plan, find a way to pay for it, then squeeze it through the Legislature before

Tick, tick, tick

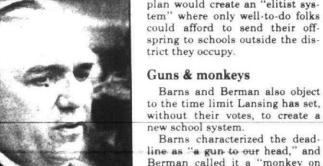

According to the state constitution, anything the Legislature passes and Engler signs before the end of 1993 will go into effect early next year. But new laws that get passed in 1994 can't go into effect until 1995 unless they pass by a super majority; something no one expects to get on the school funding issue.

School districts are permitted to collect property taxes through August 1994, so the 1993-94 school year is safe, but after that there's no money for them until Lansing wrings it out of us with new taxes.

Asked what sort of new taxes he recommends, Engler changed the subject to what form the new education system will take. Build the system, then find a way to pay for it, he said.

"Isn't the real concern to get the best return on our investment? If we just keep the focus on the kids we're doing the right

When pressed, Engler said that voters will "likely" be asked to approve a sales tax increase, but doesn't believe we need to re place school funding on a dollar cost of education will drop. As an example, Engler said the state could get a better deal on health insurance for school employees than each district can get

Regarding the system he hopes to create. Engler said it's a virtual guarantee that parents will be permitted to enroll their kids in any public school district they want to. Whatever amount of money Lansing decides to spend per student would follow each kid around to whatever school he or she attends

'The school has no right to old onto that kid and keep him a captive," Engler said. But Barns and state Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, don't think the House will go along with that. Berman called Engler's assumption "extraordinarily presumptuous," and noted that a imilar Engler idea has already been defeated in the House.

"No one here (in Lansing) has talked about schools of choice being a sure thing," Berman said. Barns contended that Engler's could afford to send their offspring to schools outside the dis

Barns and Berman also object the time limit Lansing has set,

Barns characterized the deadine as "a gun to our head," and Berman called it a "monkey on our back.'

Engler's main interest is in seeing that competition for students between school districts will compel districts that lose students to mprove the quality of the education they offer. School districts will have an incentive to enroll as many students as possible, he said, because more money would, come from the state with each

The Minnesota school system is like that, Engler said, and 'makes a hell of a lot of sense.' Berman said the Minnesota sys-

Engler also believes that some Michigan school districts would be better off to merge with adiacent districts. "We could try to marry them off to each other," he said, "force them to merge."

Power & authority

Engler likewise hopes to give greater autonomy to school districts. "My attitude is going to be to keep the mandates to an absoute minimum," he said. "(School boards) end up with the all-important role, more power and authority than they have today."

Other ideas Engler tossed out ncluded:

No cuts were made in the executive department's budget while the county commission trimmed $200,000 from its almost $7 million budget.

The absence of cuts in the executive budget is a sore point with Beard, who said that jail overtime is a public safety issue that puts the county at risk legally. The Hot temperatures in July drove Consumers Power Co. to its highest electric sendout record for any month in the utility's 107-year history.

Electric sendout for July was 3.1 million megawatt-hours, a 1.5-percent increase over the former all-time monthly electric sendout record set five years ago. The new monthly record is also 2.6 percent higher than the former record for Temperatures during July averaged 72.1 degrees Fahrenheit, compared to a 30year normal average temperature for the month of 70.8 degrees. Record monthly electric sendout records have been established in 1993 for January. February, March, April and July.

In addition to a July sendout record, an all-time hourly peak demand record for the month of 5,879 megawatts was set on July 9. The utility's all-time hourly peak demand record for any month is 6,084 megawatts, set Aug. 29, 1991. Affordability is a key selling point at Arbor Village condominiums in Canton Township. That's also the reason there's a big turnover rate.

Sitting in front of a bay window on the deck of his townhouse condo, Rocco Tutino explains that because they're affordable, a lot of people starting out turn to the development at Palmer and Sheldon.

Units are 1,000 square feet and cost between $68,000 and $87,000. Occupancy is limited to four residents in each unit.

portion of its rural heritage instead of lotting out development to the Washtenaw County line.

The entire government machinery maintained at township hall is aimed at turning every square inch of Canton into an entity that pays the most taxes possible.

That's OK to a certain point, but no where in Canton's bureaucracy is there a spokesperson or office that acts as a caretaker for the community's heritage

Sure, there's a historical district at Cherry Hill and Ridge roads, but we're not talking about just preserving a few old farm buildings in museum form. We're talking about maintaining the rural landscape in the western portion of

It's quickly disappearing and is apparent in two recent actions. First was a farm auction of old cars and equipment prompted by the township's citing of the farmer for having the equipment on the land. That sent a message to farmers that the township is after them. The second action is the seeking of Scenic Highway designation for a portion of Napier Road and other nearby rural roads by residents. But Yack and township officials are limited partly because of the mindset of government, which is to expand, not contract.

That's why Canton needs to appoint an ombudsman of sorts who could be given township resources to stave off total development in western Canton Township.

To be realistic, public land purchases are the only way to preserve land. And a township om-budsman could look for federal, state or even private money to purchase open agricultural land. Such land could even help pay for itself by leasing it to farmers.

We acknowledge that this isn't the best time to be looking for public money to preserve land, but there are such groups as the Nature Conservancy which uses donations to buy and preserve land. There is also money available to historical

And Canton has a person on its township board, Melissa McLaughlin, who could pull off the role as ombudsman. McLaughlin has a deep sense of Canton's history and has long been an advocate for non-subdivision residents.

nothing to do with the school board's actions, teachers' demands, or anything else. They are simply going about getting educated and ultimately receiving a high school diploma. But school is more than just classes. It's all the above and the socialization that is aided by the above. It is the creation of memories that will stay with them for a lifetime

I have an advanced degree from Wayne State with an undergraduate degree from Eastern Michigan, but the reunions that I have gone to are with my high school graduation class. Outrageous abortion limits show government as unfair

BY ELSA M. SHARTSIS GUEST COLUMNIST

ichigan just became one of several states that require an adult, competent woman seeking an abortion to make at least two trips to a health care facility, read state-mandated propaganda, to view drawings of the fetus at its supposed gestational age, and endure a delay of at least 24 hours, ostensibly "to reflect on her decision." I am thoroughly outraged by this law, and find it difficult to write coherently about it. Having long believed that the abortion controversy is the most profound privacy issue of modern times, and that it is not 'just a women's issue," I am aghast at this latest government interference in personal decision-making. That our state Legislatue can so cavalierly mandate a woman's exercise of her fundamental right to an abortion is chilling indeed. I sometimes wonder about the abortion patient. Does she decide, unilaterally, to have an abortion? In my experience, she does not. Staff at abortion facilities tell us that the typical abortion patient is accompanied by a friend (male or female), her husband, her mother or other confidante. Virtually all abortion facilities provide counseling, as prudence, ethics and professional standards demand.

And no facility would knowingly accept a mentally incompetent woman as a patient. Obviously, then, the typical abortion patient has already thought about her condition and reached an informed decision based on her personal, private situation.

To quote Carol King, executive director of the Michigan Abortin Rights Action League, "It is a myth that women do not understand what abortions are, or that they wander into clinics without having given their decision a great deal of thought." Well said.

Adults enjoy a legal presumption of mental apetence. This presumption shields them from state interference in virtually all import ant life decisions. Society trusts competent decision-makers to make reasoned choices and to accept the consequences of their choices. One hopes, and common sense suggests, that such decisions are made prudently and on the basis of all available facts. Yet state-mandated indoc trination, prescribed reading material and an enforced waiting period are unknown except as to abortion.

Ordinary people make important decisions every day, sometimes life or death decisions. They marry, move. buy property, drive, enter vocations, become parents, raise children, get divorced, invest savings, care for infirm rela-

They make definitive decisions for themselves and often for others - their parents, their children - such as declining therapy for a terminal condition, or terminating life support. The law permits, even encourages this.

Similarly, one may marry with a minimum of state involvement . . . Even if a marriage license reveals that an applicant has already been married and divorced many times before no county clerk remarks (as did Samuel John son) that the contemplated marriage is but a triumph of hope over experience. No county clerk sends the applicants home to reflect on their decision or to consult friends or family

American law and society, then, trust compe tent decision-makers. Michigan's new informed consent law is a glaring exception to this tradition of trust. It is insulting and demeaning, and ought to alarm everyone.

If the state can obstruct the exercise of a fun damental right - a woman's access to a simple medical procedure — can it next tell us whom to marry? Where to live? Which profession to enter? Which not to enter? When and whether to have children? With whom?

our recent editorial berating the Plymouth Canton School Board and lack of turbing to me for several reasons. First, the last two weeks in Michigan have set the course for great change in education

The school board has not had a chance to react to that change, but you continue to judge them based on old actions. By doing so, you place them at further risk, since probably under any new school finance plan, districts similar Plymouth Canton will be hurt the most with inadequate time to react.

Why should the school board verballs have t respond to the survey done on the reasons why eonle voted "no" on the June 14 millage?

The board tried to rectify the teacher contract negotiations to no avail. They would be idiots not to change their course in the next teacher contract negotiations for 1994-95. What has been done this year is done, and it could have been much much worse. The good news is the contract is for one year, and the opportunity to restore school programs in far shorter time than we thought. With the assurance that there will be changes in the educational system, we can now focus on short term solutions. The students of this district will be seriously harmed by losing programs while the state is trying to map new changes in the educational systems of this state. It is time to forget the past short term mistakes, and move on to the future from the same excellent point we finished in June in Plymouth Canton Schools - not step backwards in programming for kids before the new educational frontier begins. The children of this district and the school board of this school district deserve your support for the August millage.

Children are not the only people who add levity to working with the public. One evening I was presenting a program on bats. Lou Pirronello made good on his promise to shave his mustache after his Concealed Security 18-and-under team won the American Amateur Baseball Congress district tournament last weekend in Flint.

And now the Concealed manager may have to join the Hair Club of America if his team gets through this week's AABC regional at Bailey Park in Battle Creek (opening Wednesday against the

here as sneaky and underhanded

 Juicy character parts for Steve Buscemi and Harvey Keitel. So what goes so horribly wrong? Plenty, but not at first. The opening scenes, with the ancient Japanese tribal drums underlying the good manners at a corporate parv. have plenty of energy. Then "Rising Sun" quickly enters the land of the boring buddy movie

Connery and Snipes play Los beautiful young woman, appears to have been strangled following kinky sex on a corporation board

The Japanese bigwigs who own the new skyscraper where the murder took place want to avoid the negative publicity. They start to plant clues that Connery's 'Senpai' (or wise older man) knows are too good to be true.

The story portrays American animosity for the Japanese, who in their billion-dollar business conquests. Americans, business people or cops, compete in a constant game of "catch-up."

It doesn't take a genius to figure out who was with that woman on the table. How she died becomes another mystery, but after a while we don't care, sickened to the point of desensitization after seeing her strangled again and again on a clue-filled surveillance Visually, the movie is a Angeles police detectives investi- stunner, thanks to cinematogragating a murder. The victim, a pher Chapman, who employs a palette of deep reds. A standard car chase takes on the richness of time travel in "2001: A Space Odssey" when colored lights shine in windshield reflections.

Snipes appears weighed down by the movie's endless chatter and the usual cop movie baggage of a nagging ex-wife and a kid to support. He shares the audience's desire to get on with the action.

The ever-wise Connery character, meanwhile, has links to the Japanese that make his motives suspect - the only element in the film that sustains some mystery. Despite his thick brogue (which only gets deeper with age. Connery reads much of his dialogue as if it came from fortune cookies.

Even Buscemi and Keitel owerhouses in "Reservoir Dogs." don't have much to do here. Bus cemi's investigative reporter, dubbed "The Weasel" by police s supposed to cause trouble by digging up an old bribery charge against Snipes, but it doesn't add up to much, just like so much of the movie.

intriguing part as a Japanese milionaire playboy singing karaoke to Cole Porter's "Don't Fence M " in the opening scene. He also eats sushi off the stomachs of na ked bimbos, one of many reason; why the movie should rile women as much as the Japanese.

The moviemakers try to appease both groups by inserting a Japanese woman (Tia Carrere from "Wayne's World"), an expert in high-tech video doctoring, who helps the detectives crack the case. Not surprisingly, she also these suburban movie theaters: provides love interest for both AMC Americana West, AMC

Much of the blame here must fall on Kaufman, the director of The Right Stuff," "The Unbearable Lightness of Being" and 'Henry and June," who has always had trouble keeping his movies under two hours. He picked up the script when Crichon lost interest, inserting an overly complicated narrative de-

MARK D'ALLEVA

■ What is it: D'Alleva, 37, a West Bloomfield beauty expert, creates looks and images for some of the area's most prominent and influential businesswomen - when they need them. Example: Julie, a General Motors executive, has been up all night preparing a major presentation that she has to deliver to the board of directors the following morning. She can probably drag herself out of bed in time, but getting her hair, makeup and wardrobe just right may be a little rough. She calls Mark for a "pop-in." He will meet Julie at 8 a.m. and make her confident and attractive in time for the presenta-

What else: D'Alleva not only will create the right look for you, he will teach you to maintain and enhance it.

■ Who is it for: Although, D'Alleva's shop is open to all - "Everybody needs an image," he says - he specializes in high-profile businesswomen and those starting their careers.

What's so special: D'Alleva knows which looks work for the various corporations. He knows that GM tends to be more understated in its fashion preferences than Ford and Chrysler. He knows how to give a woman a sense of power without diminishing her femininity.

■ The mastermind: D'Alleva has 16 years of experience as a hairdresser and makeup artist. He's studied with re-

JOHN STORMZANI

NANNY AND THE PROFESSIONAL

■ What is it: A complete personal service company. Services include house cleaning and laundry, nanny service, party and special event planning, serving and clean-up, house sitting (mail and newspaper pickup, plant care, lawn maintanance and security checks), pet care services, errands and shopping basically, they do everything.

What is it for: For the busy (and wealthy)

Who can use it: Anyone.

What's so special: The diversity of the services and the fact that they are specifically tailored to the clients' wishes and needs. Some services can be set up on a routine basis, others on an emergency, on-the-spot basis.

■ The germination: Said Smith: "I just knew there was a need for this. There are so many dual-career families and people with busy careers who don't have the time to take care of that and everything else in their lives

■ The cost: It's flexible and negotiable. You can get hourly, daily, weekly, even monthly packages. Basically, the cost is $30 per hour for a two-person cleaning. $15.50 per hour, per worker for parties (planning is free), $15.50 per hour for miscellaneous services.

The availability: Nanny and the Professional is based in Auburn Hills and services virtually all of Oakland County. Call 373-6857 for an appointment.

■ The germination: With the Big Three, Kmart and other major businesses and corporations headquartered in the area. D'Alleva knew there would be a need for his services. "Women today are taking the top spots in all fields," he said. "And with the rise in competition between men and women, women need more than just a haircut. We maximize the clients' ego and make them confident that their look will fit the environment they are in."

■ The cost: Consultations are free, but figure around $200 for the total package. Figure $45-$50 for the hair, $40-$150 for color or perm and $40-$50 for makeup.

■ The availability: D'Alleva's shop is at 6219 Orchard Lake Road, north of Maple in West Bloomfield

ometimes you hear an idea and you just want to kick yourself. "Why didn't I think of that?"

That's what provided the impetus for this page. Featured here is just a small sampling of the many creative and ambitious business minds that are at work in the Observer & Eccentric area. These are people who have taken an existing business practice, or an existing product, and put their own spin on it. We've chosen four, we could have chosen 40.

Mark D'Alleva, a beauty expert, peered inside of some of the largest corporations in the world to find out what looks, styles and attitudes worked and didn't work for the professional woman.

Gayle Smith and Cynthia Ann Wheaton have taken the maid service field to new dimensions. Laura Hampton Bostick not only came up with a unique new greeting card, but she's using it to help disadvantage children. And Merrill Shapero has invented something that should make him a hero among all bird lovers. What a concept!

DAN DRAN/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

THE GUARD

■ What is it: A lightweight, wire device that hangs from tree branches and is harmless to plant and animal life.

What is it for: Used in combination with baffles above or below bird feeders. The Guard prevents squirrels from jumping into feeders and eating the seed. Who can use it: Bird enthusiasts who can pinpoint exactly how squirrels attack their feeders.

What's so special: This product could resolve a major, major irritation faced by most bird feeding hobbyists at home. Also, the inventor, Merrill J. Shapero, a West Bloomfield resident and certified public accountant, and the manufacturer, Rex Hiday, a production engineer in Kentucky, have never personally met.

The mastermind: Shapero. "Squirrels are too smart. They know they can't get through The Guard. Birds have never flown into it and got hurt. Birds, when they feed, do spray seed. Squirrels will feed from the ground. It's not like we're depriving squirrels from eating.

■ The germination: Shapero grew tired of watching squirrels get fat at the expense of birds with his feeders. He wanted to develop something that wouldn't hurt the squirrels, but keep them away. After a couple years of study and testing, he came up with a screen device that squirrels see and either decline to attack or, if they do attack, they swing on the screen and can't generate enough momentum to jump from there to the feeder.

The cost: About $8.

■ The availability: When in stock, at Wild Birds Unlimited in Farmington Hills (489-4004) and Rochester Hills (852-

CARE TUNES

What is it: A greeting card that presents its message in the form of a song on a cassette. Example: An anniversary card which features "Through the Years" by Kenny Rogers. The words are written on the left side of the card and the cassette is built into a compartment on the right side

Who can use it: Everybody

What's so special: All of the profits from these greeting cards will be donated to various children's charities, one of which is the Rainbow Connection, a nonprofit group that grants wishes of children with life-threatening illnesses.

■ The mastermind: Laura Hampton Bostick of Troy

■ The germination: Bostick: "I was working with the Rainbow Connection and I just got so frustrated with the lack of funds that it was breaking my heart. One day they were going to come and take our rental furniture away and I thought, 'How can they let this happen to people who are doing so much good?' ! thought there just had to be a way we could generate some money without bugging the same people and getting all the doors slammed in our faces. That's when I thought of Care-Tunes."

■ The cost: $8.95 per card.

The availability: The cards are expected to hit the market by the beginning of 1994 and will be available at local card and gift shops. For more information, call Bostic at 641-5227

FAMILY LIFE

'Bee' careful: Taking sting out of insects

Warm weather brings with it loads of fun, but it can also literally "bug" you. Bites and stings from mosquitoes, bees and wasps can cause a lot of discomfort as well as be dangerous.

Children should be taught what bees and wasps look like; that they're attracted to sweet perfume scents, a variety of scented shampoos (especially after hair has just been washed), hair spray, scented soaps and the like. These two insects not only look somewhat similar, both are attracted to bright clothing (yes, flowery patterns), shiny things and garbage.

Encourage children not to play in high grass or areas where wildflowers may be growing. Avoid areas where there is rotten fruit lying on the ground under or nearby fruit trees. You can bet a party of bugs are at play.

Don't be an uninvited guest at such bug 'gatherings." In fact, "bee warned — bee careful, bee safe." And do so by following these tips about stings and bites:

The symptoms include localized pain, itching, hives and swelling. In extreme cases, children and adults allergic to insect stings may experience tightness in the chest, wheezing or shock.

It's a good idea to keep a bee sting kit on hand and know how to use it. These kits are available at pharmacies and contain adrenaline, which can be given in case of an emergency shock reaction. Check with your consulting pediatrician for additional directions and advice.

The first rule of treatment is not to squeeze the affected area. Apply cold compresses or ice to relieve the pain. Remove the stinger by scraping horizontally with a plastic card or fingernail.

For stings in the mouth or throat which may lead to swelling and obstructed breathing, call 911 or the local emergency number immediately and to minimize swelling, give the child or adult a piece of ice to suck on.

The symptoms are similar to those of a bee sting. Symptoms include localized pain, swelling, itching and hives.

For treatment, don't look for a stinger because a juice on the bite area. Apply cold compresses or ice to reduce swelling.

Mosquitoes

The mosquito bite results in a small, itchy, red swelling. Severe swelling occurs if the bite is near the eyes or ears. Infection can happened as the result of over-scratching.

The treatment is to apply calamine lotion to the affected area.

Spiders

Spiders bite symptoms include itching, redness and swelling.

Medical attention should be sought for treatment of the bite. And if possible, save the spider for identification. Most spiders in the United States aren't harmful, but in the south, southwest and south central regions, the black widow or brown recluse spider can cause a severe reaction.

The symptoms of a tick bite include swelling at the site of the attached tick. A rash and fever are also possible.

The first step in treatment is to remove the tick. Place tweezers or protected fingers close to the head to pull the tick away. Wash the bitten area with soap and water. If the tick's head breaks off, seek medical attention immediately to remove it.

Infected dog and deer ticks can be the carriers of serious diseases, such as Rocky Mountain spotted fever or Lyme disease. Redcay and Sue Murray were the directors of the day camp, called Kaleidascope. It's the third of four Kaleidascope camps being offered in the metropolitan area this summer and Redcay and Murray opted to hold it at Bell Creek Park in Redford.
"We really like this park," said

Murray from the camp headquarters, a collection of picnic tables under the trees at the edge of the parking lot. Sharing the tables is Terrie Schaub, the first aider who has been tending to the campers' bee stings, scrapes and stomach aches.

The 100 Brownie and Junior Scouts were divided into color-coded age groups, their colors prominently displayed on the straw hats given to them by their unit leaders. The colors represent the five worlds of girl scouting - yellow for the world of the outdoors, purple for the world of art, orange for the world of today and tomorrow, blue for the world of people and red for the world of healthy being.

The camp is set up to give the girls an overview of the five worlds as well as "push the basic eight rules for outside," basics like first aid and fire safety, Murray said.

While the camp directors offered a they decide what they want to do," said Murray, a Taylor resident. "We planned out the crafts and the things we want them to do. When they get in their groups, they decide what other things they want to do.'

"That's what we teach them in scouts . . . to be organized, to be able to plan out things and to be able to work together as a group," added Redcay, a West Bloomfield resident who met Murray through the camp program.

The all-camp project was making a paperweight. Other activities included the tie-dying (handkerchiefs for the Brownies and T-shirts for the juniors), hiking, painting bags and some cooking. The camp closed on Friday with a carnival, complete with balloons.

'We really stress that they have a good time," Murray said. The camp is staffed by volunteers,

Watch out, Japan. Here comes Dudman

If there's one thing John Pullum doesn't want to be, it's a dud even though his moniker is Dudman. When he does his schtick later this month he wants to leave his audiences rolling in the aisles.

That won't be an easy feat for the verbal Pullum. For 20 minutes three times a day, he'll be serving up his brand of comedy to tourists at the Rjutsu Resort in Hokkaido, Japan.

Pullum will do 129 shows during the 11/2 months he'll be at the resort, blending comedy and magic with pantomine and a few words tossed in for good measure. "I'll do a lot more exaggerated expressions, very comical, very slapstick," he said. "I have to get the point across without talking. The apparition room was filled with a myriad of religious statues, Precisely at noon, just as the rosary was about to begin, a Giant rosaries hung suspended on loudspeaker announced that the wall. Two large baskets near Mary had arrived. Amazingly, a the fireplace were filled with foldrecord crowd estimated at 80,000 ed pieces of paper containing fell silent. Then the rosary began. I didn't see anything unusual, but at that very moment, there was a strong gust of wind that swept through of reverence and signs ask visitors the crowd where we were sitting in low and made from rocks and front of the apparition room. It had been an otherwise still day with only mild breezes, nothing like that strong sudden gust.

The only other unusual occurrence that I experienced was the strong scent of roses - once on Saturday, while waiting in line to get our books (all materials are free but donations are accepted), and once right before the apparihill where pilgrims fill jugs, jars tion was to begin. The scent was strong, sweet and brief. Only a few of us could smell the roses and the temperature that day climbed into the 90s, many sat down to some standing right next to us did not smell them

Fowler talked to the crowd after the apparition. Part of the message, as relayed by Fowler, exthe farm en masse. More than 100 pressed Mary's love and concern Nancy came out and talked. The for all her children: "My dear litfunnel clouds just seemed to dis-tle children, do you understand the time in which you are living? Please children, it is time to wake up. Turn your lives around and come to my living Son. Implant His word deep within you. Know that we are with you always.

Please do not deny my Son any May's message While the weather cooperated on June 13, the weather on May 13 held its own message. Diane sponded in their own native Choquette from Port St. Lucie, Fla., came in June with her husnon-practicing Catholic who 'came for a show." The show she got was not at all what she had anticipated. "The minute that they said Mary was leaving, the second that they said it, a mass of black clouds just came out of nowhere, Choquette said. "All of a sudden.

a giant wind came along and went whoosh, just over the trees right by the apparition house There was a light like an electrifying light that was making the house illuminate like a Christmas tree would. It was so illuminated and you could hear the sound. And then the rain just dumped on us and it hailed also."

Funnel clouds formed. Choquette's sister captured the entire storm on videotape. "I was crying so bad," Cho-quette said. "Everyone was scared and everyone was crying. Then handwritten petitions tucked behind the feet on Christ on the Crucifix. appear. We have it on the videotape. They're there and they just ominous as the swirling, lightning-laden clouds that swept over the apparition site, just as Mrs. Fowler said she was experiencing the apparition. Part of the reported message from Mary on May 13 was indeed ominous: "Please children, wake come in May with her sister, a up while there is still time. You are going deeper and deeper into darkness. Again I say to you: if you refuse the peace of my Son, then you will be at war.' This month, Fowler reported that the Blessed Mother said: "I will return next month. I am preparing you for the time when you will no longer give a message to the United States.' Fowler added that "Our Lady is appearing to me daily, but many of the apparitions have become si ent. So Our Lady is telling me at this time that I may not have the same gift that I have now to hear

While it appears that Fowler's messages from Mary for the United States will soon come to an end, there may be the opportunity to make a pilgrimage closer to ome. It has been reported that a visionary from Livonia and an inner locutionist received messages at Madonna University in Livo-

VICTORIA DIAZ

Canton writer clicks as romance novelist.

eggy Hanchar finds herself involved almost constantly in a flaming new romance and her husband of some 30-plus years doesn't mind a bit.

Probably that's because all the romances are strictly fiction and, since 1985, they've helped establish the Canton grandmother as one of Michigan's most popular romance novelists.

The 53-year-old author (aka Jennifer Stevens and Peggy Roberts) began writing about 10 years ago when business got a little slow at the fabric shop she owned near Kalamazoo. Before she got down to the business of writing romances, though, she'd read dozens of them, especially those known as "historicals."

Not surprisingly, she

ended up writing her own historical the first time around. "Desire's Dream," which Hanchar describes as "my pirate book," was eventually published by Pinnacle.

Set mainly in the Florida Keys, it was inspired by a visit Hanchar had once made to that locale. Shortly after its publication, the debut novel appeared on the Waldenbooks paperback bestseller list and Peggy Hanchar was on her way.

Since that promising start, Hanchar has written and sold 20 other romances, spending about three months to travel and research each book and three months to write it.

Her latest, "Just In Time," came out in June as part of Zebra's "To Love Again" series: romances that focus on middle-aged heroines.

Set in New Orleans and Louisiana's Cajun country, the novel, like "Desire's Dream," was inspired by one of Hanchar's trips down South.

"I had gone to Louisiana the first time around to research my second book, 'Renegade Heart'," she says. "And since then, we've taken another trip there, touring the bayou country. I listened to the speech of our tour guides and to Cajun music, and I ended up buying a lot of Cajun records and bringing them home with me. (Cajun music plays a rather important part in "Just in Time.")

"One day, we happened to stop at a roadside stand in Louisiana where a woman was selling pecans and pralines. As it turned out, that woman became the inspiration for my main character, Remy, in 'Just In Time.'

"I don't think you absolutely have to visit a spot to write about it," says the well-traveled Hanchar. "But if you don't, it always feels to me a little like you're eating something without the salt."

Library research vital

Still, Hanchar spends a lot of time researching her novels via the local library. And her third book, "Creole Angel," was set mostly in Texas, a place she's yet to visit. She did almost all her research on the Lone Star State out of books, books and more books, she says.

The extensive homework paid off, though. One reviewer said readers of "Creole Angel" could "smell the dust and feel the saddle."

Until recently, Hanchar has specialized in writing historicals. But her latest literary efforts have been played out against contemporary backdrops.

"I was very nervous about doing that," she says. "I expected the contemporary novels would be much harder for me than the historicals I was used to writing. But, actually, I found it to be rather easy — and so much fun to do. Since the heroines in these later novels are somewhat older than those in the historicals, and since I am older myself, their age may have made it easier for me to get to know and depict my characters, which is always the hardest thing for me as a writer."

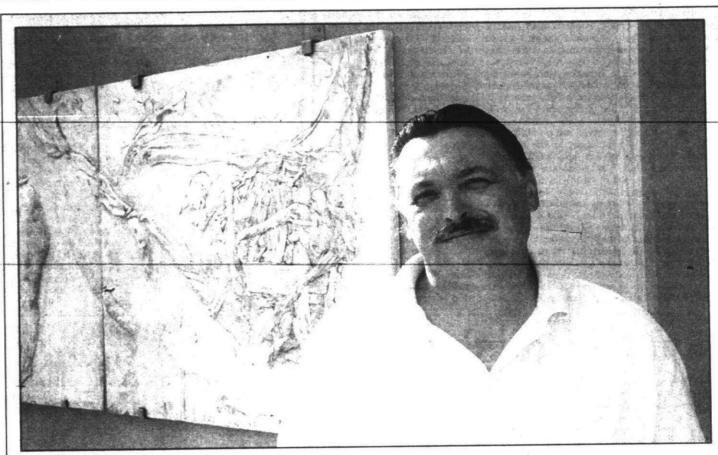

This Christmas season, Hanchar will be going in yet another new direction. Though she has always written book-length fiction, her short story, "A Traditional Christmas," will be part of an anthology, "Merry Christmas, My Love," to be brought out by Zebra Pinnacle during the holidays.

Set in Detroit, "A Traditional Christmas" tells the story of a widow who feels she's being left behind by her grown children and by life in general—until, one fateful Christmas Eve, she meets an intriguing widower. The story concludes with the happily-ever-after ending typical of most romance novels.

"I like happy endings," Hanchar emphasizes. Fans can look for her next novel, "Fancy Lady," in January 1994 from Fawcett, and "Carolina Moon" (Zebra) in February. Two more novels (including a mystery from Zebra Pinnacle, "Whispers at Midnight") are slated for publication leter next year.

All have happy endings.

Sculptors salute human spirit

Twenty Michigan sculptors, including two from Observerland, educate, inspire and unite us as kindred spirits in the fourth biennial Michigan Outdoor Sculpture Exhibition at Southfield Civic Center Plaza.

ichigan Outdoor Sculpture
Exhibition IV, which features works by two Redford Township sculptors, is a visual feast to restore the human spirit.

The invitational of abstract, realism and classical work continues through Oct. 15 at Southfield Civic Center Plaza, 26000 Evergreen, between 10 and 11 Mile (See related story, 2D).

Hosted by the city of Southfield and Business Consortium for the Arts, the exhibition spotlights the work of 20 Michigan sculptors, including Todd Erickson and Sergio De Giusti of Redford.

Large-scale sculpture, consisting of steel, aluminum, hydrostone, wood, brick, bronze and mixed media, showcase a variety of concepts and techniques in a setting where birds swoop in flight through space bounded by the contemporary architecture of civic buildings.

Overhead, a jet glides silently through the clouds above the exhibition, which gives artists a chance to produce monumental works without size restrictions. The sound of birds singing as well as the birds themselves lend to the emotions created within this garden of sculpture.

"The exhibition gives artists an opportunity to display their works where no gallery could afford to give I 'it's an important show. It might be puzzing. Some works don't fit into a traditional sculptural mode but people should make an effort to see the show because it's enlightening

"The idea behind the exhibition is to stimulate Michigan sculptors, to increase public knowledge of public art and to heighten citizen awareness that sculpture and art should be a part of the environment."

Jay Holland, a professor of sculpture at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, curated the show, which is supported by Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs and Arts Foundation of Michigan.

Livonia wood carvers to spotlight their creations

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER

For a whittle free entertainment and a chance to see wood carvers at work, consider the Livonia Wood Carvers Club's 19th annual show and sale at Eddie Edgar Sports Arena.

The show runs 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 7-8, at 33841 Lyndon, south of Five Mile, off Farmington Road, Livonia.

The juried event, sponsored by the Livonia Wood Carvers Club and Livonia Parks and Recreation, showcases the work of 150 local and out-ofstate carvers from Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Canada.

The show represents 47 categories of wood carving, including caricatures, miniatures, figures, florals, children's toys, abstracts, walking sticks and realistic wildlife and birds.

Visitors will see whittling, rough cut carvings, marquetry, wood burning and carving in the round. Some exhibitors, including a chainsaw artist from Canada, will demonstrate their craft during show hours.

Judges will award first, second and third places as well as honorable mention in all categories. They also will award Best of Show and Best Show Table.

"We'll have an excellent representation of carving done by novices and world-class carvers," said Bob Brooks, Livonia Wood Carvers Club president. "You'll see everything from a mouse to a moose."

Carvings fashioned from basswood, white pine, mahogany, walnut, butternut and other woods will sell for $5 to several thousand dollars, with most in the $20 to $50 range.

A table called Kid's Korner will offer items for $5 or less. This year's theme table will display about 100 birds that illustrate various carving styles and artistic interpretations. There will be hourly raffles for exhibitor's work.

said, 'If you can peel a potato, you can carve,' " said Lindsay, whose wares start at $6. She takes special orders, but recently turned down a biker's request for a single Harley Da-

Two years later, Jenkins and his wife, Marie, took up carving together after visiting an area of Germany that is known for its wood artists. The two signed up for carving classes at John Glenn High School in Westland and joined the Livonia Wood Carvers Club.

Jenkins will show his stylized ducks, which are handrubbed to a natural finish, with his wife's marquetry plaques.

Magnificent: How else to describe this thoroughly modern Mediterranean design by Des-Rosiers, which will soon be built in Bloomfield Hills. Its temple facade, rotunda foyer, stairs, balconies and verandas are just a small taste of what this house has to offer.

Pure residential splendor

Louis DesRosiers likes to think of himself as everyman's architect, but his wondrous residentials are clearly the mark of a special and unique talent.

immortality as a ceiling painter, DesRosiers' mark, however loudly he'll protest, will be his lavish, large-scale luxury homes, not his renovations or office buildings.

Tour de DesRosiers

"Oh, I hate the word 'luxury' home." said DesRosiers, whose architectural firm is based in Bloomfield Hills "And don't call them 'Custom' homes. I hate that word. Call them architecturally designed homes."

Call them magnificent. To flip through his portfolio is like taking a drive through a subdivision of the rich and famous, you can almost picture Robin Leach doing the narration:

"And here is a splendid French Norman Chateau, where this man's home truly is his castle. The exterior is constructed of rough hewn limestone blocks and stucco with smooth limestone trim. Step inside and you are led into a three-story circular tower ascending to a skylight. You can't help but envision French royalty in the two-story Great Room set off and enhanced with arches and columns. And, of course, there's the breathtaking master suite complete with its Romeo and Juliet balcony.

"Next stop is this awe-inspiring Mediterranean. This home (which is actually being built or an in-land lake in Bloomfield Hills) is graced at the front by a temple facade into which is nestled a rotunda fover some 22-feet in diameter. Also notice the curvilinear stairs and balcony and the twin colonnaded veranda which looks out to the lake. Inside, you can travel each of the four floors via elevator. With its free standing round columns and articulated pier colonnades, its observation deck on the roof and its walkout to the lake from the bottom floor, this home is fit for a prince. "We move now to an architec tural style that is a Louis DesRosiers original, perhaps his signature piece: a modernization of the Atlantic shingle design which has

Light and white make kitchens appear larger

In almost any kitchen, light tiles, clay-red granite and warmly and white make a rejuvenating wosome, says Country Kitchen

How? When light bounces off a white surface, it appears to push boundaries outward Woodwork, too, benefits from the effects of white paint. The olay of shadow and light emhasizes architectural details.

"White is so flexible," says inerior designer Jula Sutta. "It's timeless. A kitchen is a place where there are large investments money in fixtures, countertops and the like. White lets you leave your options open in terms of being able to change the decorative scheme down the line." Rather than include permanent

Stripping: An ugly job but you can do it with a chemical stripper and a little elbow grease. Here's a quick how-to guide:

Stripper types

A semipaste stripper is generally the best choice for furniture. It works well on vertical and grooved surfaces and evaporates slowly. Follow the instructions on the container so you won't damage the wood.

Strippers come in two formulas. Those containing methylene chloride work in about 10 to 30 minutes. They dry quickly and can be hazardous to use. Caution: When using a chemical stripper, work in a ventilated area away from any open flames. Work outdoors if possible. Don't smoke. Keep children and pets away from the work area. Wear old clothes, cottonlined neoprene gloves and safety goggles. Store scrapings in a disposable can.

Water-base strippers do as good a job but take at least a couple of hours or even overnight. They are non-toxic, non-flammable and keep the dissolved finish soft for hours. However, the water will raise the wood grain, so plan on sanding the stripped wood.

Avoid the hot-lye baths used by some commercial dip-strip shops. They can discolor the wood and dissolve the glue that holds the veneers and joints in place. Shop workers may also damage the wood with excessive scraping or wire brushing. If a shop dip-strips with methylene chlo-ride, however, it may be fine for non-delicate pieces. Also, a professional hot-lye bath may e the only way to remove paint deeply embedded in open grain wood.

Some wood will retain deep blotches of old stain, water damage or other discolorations. As an example, the tannin in oak reacts with the iron in nails to form deep, dark spots. Try sanding or bleaching to remedy the Simple laundry bleach may do the job. If it doesn't, try a commercial two-step wood bleach and follow the directions on the label. When using either type protect your hands

Preparation plan

To strip the furniture you will need an ample supply of remover and several old or inexpensive paint brushes; some strippers recommend nylon bristles. Once a brush is purpose. You should also have a coffee can or painter's bucket. Pour some remover into this container and work from it while keep ing the main supply capped. Remove all hardware before you start and soak it in stripper if you need to remove paint or varnish from it.

Applying the stripper

Strip a single section at a time with methylene chloride so the mixture of dissolved finish and stripper won't dry before you can remove it. As much as possible keep the surface horizontal, turning the piece as Apply a heavy coat of stripper, brushing it on generously with as few strokes as possible and going with the grain in one direction. The thicker the coat, the better. Don't brush it out. Let the remover work for the time directed. Most strippers will blister and wrinkle the finish. Others do not and must be tested with the edge of a putty knife to see if the stripping is completed.

Next step: Scraping Scrape off the softened finish with a olunt-edge, round-cornered putty knife or wooden scraper. Work with the grain. Scrape carefully, particularly with the putty knife; the wood will be temporarily softened and can easily be scarred or gouged. When scraping pay particular attention to joints and carved surfaces. A textured plastic pad, burlap or coarse steel wool conforms to round or curved shapes to scour off softened finish. Turn the pad frequently to expose a clean surface. A stiff toothbrush, brass-bristled brush or rope of steel wool can be used to scrub finish from turned and carved work without damaging the detail. Twine or coarse string gets into narrow channels. Wrap sandpaper around a block of wood to clean finish from right angles and corners. Wrapped dowels are handy for cleaning finish from moldings.

The final steps

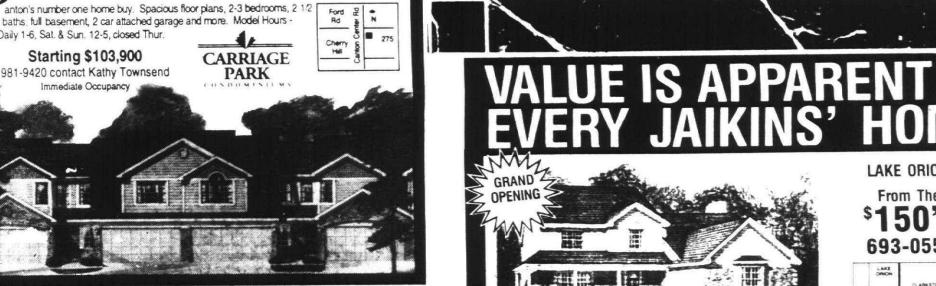

Superior Design, Super Location

Even if some finish remains on the first section, continue stripping the rest of the piece. Then, using fresh remover and clean tool, reattack the stubborn sections until all of the wood is bare. If remover drips onto a clean section, wipe it off with gum turpen-
