Proposal A's value up in the air

While Proposal A would lower property taxes and raise the sales tax, Plymouth-Canton school officials say the district won't benefit or be hurt by it. One school board member contends that neither Proposal A nor a backup plan would be good for the schools.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

If a parent of a Plymouth-Canton student went to Las Vegas looking for answers concerning the two school finance choices on the March 15 ballot, the response would probably be "Pick 'em."

Don't look to the school board for direction, either.

"We won't take a position on this one; it's up to each individual person to decide," said school board president Roland Thomas.

Voters will be asked to decide whether Michigan schools should be financed with a sales tax increase (as outlined by Gov. Engler-backed Proposal A) or an income tax increase (the backup statutory plan as described in the accompanying story).

Neither is good

"Both are bad for schools," said Thomas. "Neither the sales or the income tax is stable enough to support schools."

Both plans will raise $10.1 billion for schools and provide the same amount of per-student revenue for Plymouth-Canton students.

Either way, the district's per-pupil foundation grant will be $5,548 in 1994-95. That's up from $5,343 this year, an increase of $205.

Home's a hole-y terror

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Emma Crawford wants to know why residential builders can't be more like the auto industry. General Motors recalls its defective vehicles. She'd like to see the same in the housing industry.

"I'm asking why builders aren't checking when they hear there's a problem," said the Canton resident. "If they know so many people are having a problem, you think they would do something."

For more than a month now, Crawford and her family have been living with a hole — about a foot in diameter — in their living room ceiling. During sub-zero temperatures in late January, a pipe in the master bathroom in the front of the house above the living room burst, spewing water into the living room, dining room and eventually the family room.

Damage to the more than $180,000 home, purchased from Lenwal Builders in the Glengarry subdivision, on Canton Center Road, is estimated at $75,000. Crawford lost her living room furniture. Carpeting throughout the living, dining and family rooms had to be removed, as likely will happen with the floorboards. Hardwood flooring in the adjacent foyer and hall also was damaged, as was the drywall.

Mark Farber, president of Lenwal in Farmington Hills, did not respond to the Observer's inquiries about residents' complaints.

According to the township building department, no state complaints have been filed by homeowners against the builder in 1993 or 1992.

"My complaint is with him (Farber) directly. That's who I bought this house from. When my husband walked in the house, water was still spewing from the ceiling," Crawford said. Three inches of water had built up in the rooms on the first floor and the alarm system had burned out hours earlier when water began leaking through the ceiling.

But Crawford isn't alone. Other neighbors have had similar — if not as catastrophic — experiences. Other neighbors have complained about wet cracks in the basement

Housing rehab program on chopping block

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton's housing rehabilitation program for low- and moderate-income families — financed by federal money — will likely end in a few years.

"It's an administrative issue. Housing rehabilitation is very difficult to administer," said Gerry Martin, township development specialist.

But in 1994, at least $15,000 is being proposed for the program, with the possibility that money will be left over from the 1993 program. "We may have a range of $20,000-$25,000," Martin said.

The housing rehabilitation program is only one facet of the township's total Community Development Block Grant program. A public hearing is scheduled on the proposed distribution of the federal money at 2 p.m. Monday, March 14, in the municipal services conference room in Canton Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road. The Canton Community Development Block Grant Advisory Council will make recommendations to the township board

Bring the family and enjoy an "Italian Night Out," which will include all the spaghetti you can eat. The cost is $5 for adults. Call Jennifer Griffith, assistant director, for reservations at 981-4774.

Event to include abundant honors

It's time again for the sixth annual Celebrate Canton Dinner-Dance.

"If we are here to pool people's resources both with their intelligence and finances, then we also need to do it socially," said Bill Joyner, executive director of the Canton Community Foundation, which sponsors the event.

The public is invited to the dinner-dance Saturday, March 26, at Fellows Creek Golf Club on Lotz Road. Tickets are $35. Cocktails begin at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m. To make reservations, call the foundation at 981-3002.

But the dinner-dance is more than a party. It's the night that community members are honored for their contributions to Canton.

The Canton Hall of Fame Committee has chosen resident Joan Palmer, co-author of three books on Canton history, and longtime member and officer of the Canton Historical Society, as this year's one and only recipient of the Hall of Fame award. Her husband, Richard Palmer, was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1991.

The committee also chose five people and one group to receive the Community Achiever awards for deeds and actions during 1993. The community achievers include business leaders Tom Adamusik and Janet Volante, Girls Scouts organizer Barbara Svec, longtime Canton Lions and Canton Goodfellows member and founder Ray Schultz, and former Salem High School basketball star Dena Head.

The only group honored this year for their efforts in 1993 is the Canton High School Quiz Bowl Team, led by teacher Scott Beaman. The team won the state title and finished eighth in national competition.

about how the money will be spent.

For 1994, Canton expects to receive $408,000, compared to $375,000 last year. That's about a 9-percent increase for the township.

The money is proposed to be allocated to administration, public service agencies, improvement projects, and housing rehabilitation. Some of the projects proposed include Harrison Drain improvements, park improvements for Sherwood Village Mobile Home Park, and a handicap-accessible play area and equipment for Heritage Park.

Another $150,000 will be set aside for senior adult and handicap-accessible portions of the proposed Summit on the Park community center. A total of $750,000 in block grant money will be set aside for the facility over five years.

Martin said representatives of the federal department of Housing and Urban Development have looked at the housing rehabilitation program. About two or three homes a year receive code and building improvements. Residents may receive no-interest loans, based on income, to make home improvements.

"We've never really had interest in the program," Martin said. "We want to make it available but not force it on people. We are not knocking on doors."

Income, based on family size, determines eligibility for the housing rehabilitation program. In the low-income category, one person can have an income of no more than $16,350; four-person family, $23,350; eight-person family, $30,800, for example. Moderate-income eligibility includes a maximum of $26,150 for one person, $37,350 for a family of four, and $49,300 for a family of eight. Moderate-income people are asked to make a small cash contribution, Martin said.

The program is designed to help eligible families make code improvements and health and safety improvements. "Roofs is a typical rehabilitation job," Martin said.

The problem with the program is the amount of paperwork and inspections involved and the township's lack of time and staff to operate the program.

"We don't do rehabs on a scale where we have it down to a routine," Martin said. "It is a minuscule portion of our budget. But it is a time-consuming problem."

An independent inspector is used for the program.

walls, problems with rooms that need space heaters because heat doesn't come through the vents and problems with kitchen floors.

"My pipes are leaking. It's the same location where her (Crawford's) pipe problem is," said a homeowner who asked not to be identified. "They (the builder) keep insisting it's a caulking problem in the shower area. They came and patched the ceiling and caulked the shower."

But the homeowner says there's more. Her kitchen floor has been replaced twice and she's got leaks in her basement.

"It's frustrating. When I first moved in, we had water leaking through the light fixture," the homeowner said, adding these problems didn't occur in her former home, which was also a brand-new house when she moved in.

Annoyance is what Crawford is feeling. "We have had nothing but frustration and aggravation since we bought this house."

Crawford said it was determined that the pipe from her master bathroom running above the living room ceiling burst. "We speculate it must have froze," she said, adding that she leaves the heat in the house at 70-73 degrees.

Just before the pipe burst, they were having trouble with the water pressure. "We left the faucet on a bit. When the weather got warmer, the pressure came back."

Another neighbor had pipes burst while they were on vacation. But they turned their heat down to 65 degrees.

The experiences have left Crawford wondering. "This isn't Florida. You expect severe weather," she added, questioning why pipes aren't insulated at all, or enough, to withstand Michigan's weather.

Crawford said her husband left a message on the builder's answering machine and spoke with someone at the company the next day. "They said they would allow one of their contractors to come in and work on it."

But Crawford said she preferred to find her own contractor and has three bids for the work. "This shouldn't release anybody from the liability of this problem," Crawford said.

The family also plans to contact the township for an inspection, as well as contact an independent inspector to determine just what happened in the ceiling.

"This has just been more than I can take. I tend to be a patient person. But this is not what I spent a lot of money for," Crawford said.

Free tax guide provides assistance

A guide to assist Michigan taxpayers with their 1993 tax returns is available free of charge from the Lansing office of state Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton.

The 21st District lawmaker said local residents also can obtain a copy at area libraries and township halls.

"The up-to-date information in the 1993 Michigan Taxpayer's Guide is concise and practical," said Whyman. "This helpful booklet will make filing returns easier and relieve some of the worries associated with tax time."

The guide contains the latest information on many Michigan tax laws, including property taxes, homestead property tax credits, farmland and open-space tax relief, home heating credit program, the single business tax, and the senior citizen prescription drug credit. Also included are sample tax forms and a list of phone numbers for assistance.

Constituents may obtain a copy of the 1993 Michigan Taxpayer's Guide by writing to Whyman at the State Capitol, P.O. Box 30014, Lansing, Mich. 48909, or by calling her office at (517) 373-2575.

Canton has a new logo

The third time is a gem.

Canton Township has revised its municipal logo for the third time. The new logo features a redesigned tree, now rooted in the earth and the words, "Canton Community."

The former logo boasted a solid green tree standing alone with the words, "Canton: A Charter Township" below it.

But don't worry. The new logo doesn't mean township officials are going out and ordering new stationery or new signs with the new logo. "There's no plan to take down our existing signs," said Township Supervisor Tom Yack. "I don't see any costs related to the modification at all."

The word "community" replaced "charter township" for a reason. "We're trying to develop a sense of community," Yack said.

Community Foundation maps strategy

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

After its first five years, the Canton Community Foundation is looking to its future with some changes in store.

"We have to see where we want to be. The process is focused on where we want to go," said president Mitch Howard. "The focus has been prospective rather than retrospective."

Foundation board members are working to make changes that will help the organization become self-sustaining for the future, as well as determining the direction of programs and services.

"We have solved the immediate," Howard said, referring to the last five years. "We are continuing our talks with agencies and we'll see how we can enhance what we do."

Endowment will be emphasized. Plans call for setting aside 50 percent of revenues or contributions to an endowment fund, which can earn interest and serve as a financial base for the future, said Township Supervisor Tom Yack, a foundation board member.

"In name - we have had an endowment. But it comes down to discipline," Yack said.

The goal over the next five years is to have approximately $300,000-$400,000 in an endowment fund, Yack added.

Of the remaining 50 percent of revenues and contributions, some will be dedicated to grants for community members and groups to advance goals in the community that dovetail with what the foundation would like to accomplish. Volunteerism will be a large facet of the foundation. Groups or individuals may apply for grants from the foundation, Yack said.

At a meeting Tuesday morning, the board of directors will make a decision on whether to go with a contracted executive director - as it has in the past five years - or hire a full-time employee.

"Whatever we have done, we have tried to divorce ourselves from personalities," Howard said. "We want to perpetuate the good that's been done. None of this is directed against an individual."

While the foundation's programs, such as Canton Family Services and the Canton Economic Club remain in place, they - like other programs - will be evaluated over time to determine if they need modification.

"We're examining everything. It's a strategic planning program," Howard said. "We have met some of the immediate needs in the community. It doesn't mean if there's an emergency, we won't be there. But it's time to get in touch with what we want to be."

Another facet of change includes serving as an organization that can work with businesses, families or individuals who have a charitable interest, such as establishing scholarships.

"They have the money but not the wherewithal to link their dollars. So they could give the money to the foundation to invest it and administer their charitable interest," Yack said.

Howard said the effort would allow the foundation to act as an agent to accomplish goals in the community. "Hopefully, we can create a partnership."

Governor comes to Canton to pitch tax plan

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

■ On Friday, Engler was at Fellows Creek Golf Course in Canton to make his own personal pitch for passage of Proposal A. About 50 people, including Canton Supervisor Tom Yack and Plymouth city commissioners Bob Jones and Dennis Shrewsbury grilled the governor on the plan.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Proposal pitch: Gov. John Engler brought his campaign for passage of Proposal A to an audience of Canton and Plymouth residents on Friday. The visit was part of the blitz in anticipation of the March 15 election.

Canton Township was a target of a pro Proposal A blitz last week, as the March 15 vote on the plan draws near.

Gov. John Engler was in town making his own personal pitch for the proposal and on Wednesday Joe Graber looked at the two school financing initiatives - Proposal A and a statutory backup plan - as a school board member, employee and taxpayer.

"I threw out the statutory plan because it can all change," said Graber, 22, a state Senate policy assistant in Lansing and board member for the Schoolcraft School District, south of Kalamazoo.

Graber told members of the Canton Chamber of Commerce Wednesday that he will vote for Proposal A because it's a constitutional amendment. On the other hand, the statutory plan can be changed.

"It (Proposal A) is as solid as a rock. It's not going to change unless I, as a voter, want it to change," said Graber, a Western Michigan University student.

On Friday, Engler was at Fellows Creek Golf Course in Canton to make his own personal pitch for passage of Proposal A. About 50 people, including Canton Supervisor Tom Yack and Plymouth city commissioners Bob Jones and Dennis Shrewsbury grilled the governor on the plan.

Engler took note that cigarette companies are spending more than $3 million to defeat the proposal. "We don't want Joe Camel deciding on our educational system."

He said Proposal A makes sense because it will bring more tax money into Michigan from outside of the state. "Tourism is on the increase. There are two million Canadians who visit our state each year."

Graber said that while the state Legislature can later change the sales tax - it would be increased to 6 percent under Proposal A - it can't go higher than 6 percent because of the constitutional amendment.

Instead of a sales tax increase, the statutory plan proposes an income tax increase from 4.6 percent to 6 percent. Proposal A would retain the personal exemption at $2,100 for general taxpayers and $3,000 for seniors. The statutory plan would increase the exemption to $3,000 for general taxpayers and $3,900 to offset the proposed income tax increase.

"If you make only $6,000 a year, it's still a tax increase," Graber said about the statutory plan provision.

Graber also explained the difference for state property taxes and local school district taxes between the two plans. Both plans would allow districts that spend more than $6,500 per pupil to ask voters for supplemental millage. The ballot plan would apply the supplemental mills first to homestead property, up to 18 mills, then uniformly to all other property.

"Our school district is not at $6,500 per pupil," said Dick Egli, Plymouth-Canton School District spokesman.

Under Proposal A, the single business tax would remain at 2.35 percent. Under the statutory plan, the single business tax will increase from 2.35 percent to 2.75 percent. Graber said a business owner told him that with the proposed tax increase, "he would be making more money by downsizing and laying people off. He will make more profits then."

The statutory plan maintains current law as far as school districts' bonding ability for improvements. Under the ballot plan, bonding for remodeling, improving, furnishing and equipping of existing buildings is not permitted unless it's part of a complete renovation.

"They failed to put in a definition of complete renovation in the law," Graber said.

Some voters are saying that since there aren't a number of organizations jumping on Proposal A's bandwagon, it must be a good deal, Graber said.

"If we vote this in, the fight will get smaller for the money for your schools," Graber said. "If you don't vote for it, the fight will get bigger."

Like Thomas, Plymouth-Canton director of finance Diane Barnes says it's a toss up.

"The formula that was passed and in force right now is not dependent on the March 15 outcome. The primary difference is that under the ballot plan we're depending on sales tax, and under the statutory plan, the income tax," said Barnes, who agrees the property tax is the most stable tax.

Taxes go down

One thing that is certain is that school property tax bills will go down. Plymouth-Canton schools currently levy 35.6 mills; 33.3 operating mills and 2.3 debt retirement mills. For the owner of a $100,000 home, that amounts to a current tax bill of $1,780, not including the homestead credit. Under the ballot plan, under which the state would levy 6 mills, the owner of a $100,000 home would pay $415 (6 mills plus 2.3 debt retirement mills).

The owner of a $200,000 home, currently paying $3,560, would pay $715 in taxes (12 mills plus 2.3 debt retirement mills).

State Reps. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, and Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, both favor Proposal A, and say the ballot plan, while not ideal, is a better bet for Plymouth-Canton and better public policy.

"What we have is a difference between a bad plan and a terrible plan," said Whyman. "Personally, I'm supporting Proposal A because it has taxpayer protection with a cap on assessments which will be in the Constitution."

Proposal A will put in place an assessment cap of 5 percent or the inflation rate, whichever is lower. There's no cap under the statutory plan.

None of the school reforms originally proposed by Engler are included in either plan, though lawmakers did pass recent legislation allowing charter schools. "Quite honestly, many of the changes we've made aren't going to amount to improved test scores." said Whyman. Cost containment measures will be considered later in the year, she said.

Whyman is making available to her constituents spread sheets "so people can work the numbers and see financially how each plan affects them. I'm encouraging people to take a look at their own situation," she said.

Interested voters may obtain a spread sheet by calling Whyman at (517) 373-2575 or 453-5744.

A wash for schools

While Proposal A "isn't exactly what I would do, it's heads above the other proposal," said Vorva, adding that whether Proposal A passes or not, "it's pretty much a wash for Plymouth-Canton.

"Proposal A puts a cap on assessment so you can't have runaway assessments.

"Now," he added, "only about 50 percent of education revenue goes to the classroom. Rolled into the per-pupil grant are Social Security and retirement costs that up until now the state has picked up.

"In the past, school districts could give raises with impunity. Now you will see raises much more in line with what the private sector is getting. Plus, there's a limited ability to go for extra mills," Vorva said.

The Michigan Education Association is lobbying hard against Proposal A "because teachers don't pay income tax on their retirement. Income tax can go up as high as it wants and it won't affect their retirement," he said.

Plymouth-Canton schools are looking at a possible deficit next year not because of action Lansing has taken, but in part because of pay raises the district has granted and a $1 million rainy day fund it wants to establish.

"Because of local control, they are in the red, by their numbers. It's they're own doing," said Vorva.

The opposition

Opponents of Proposal A include Ted Bohlen, coordinator of the 13th Congressional District of the pro-Ross Perot United We Stand America. Bohlen, an attorney retired from General Motors, also serves on the school district's superintendent's advisory committee.

A prime reason he opposes Proposal A is because it takes tax-levying power from the people and hands it to the state.

"In 1978, people voted in the Headlee Amendment which required increases in revenue to schools to be no greater than the last year's revenue plus the inflation rate," he said. "Under Proposal A, the Legislature and governor can work around these supposed Constitutional guarantees on the basis that if people think they are violating the Constitution, they have the right to sue, and they have the right to defend a suit with your money."

A key element of Proposal A is that with a "three-fourths vote of the Legislature, the Legislature can increase the 6 mills. That means if the Legislature chooses to raise the rate to 106 mills, it can. Now, under the current Constitution, with Headlee, only voters can raise the millage."

Lastly, said Bohlen, the sales tax increase puts the burden on lower-income people, who by necessity spend a greater percentage of their income on taxable items such as paper products, pet food, soap, clothing, and prepared foods.

"Senior citizens get no break at all," he added.

While the same amount of revenue will go to schools, what will change "is who pays for it," he said. "Proposal A puts a greater burden on lower income people and benefits ones with higher incomes. They're going to stick whoever is most vulnerable."

Middle school students and staff throughout the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will participate in "Take Our Daughters and Sons to Work Day" on Thursday, April 28.

Sponsored by the Business-Education Partnership Program, this day is being held in conjunction with the nationally sponsored "Take Our Daughters to Work Day."

"The Partnership Program is sponsoring this event for middle school students as part of our mission to increase career awareness," said Betty Bloch, coordinator of the program. "Parents, teachers, girls, boys and local businesses are being urged to participate."

The purpose of the day is to demonstrate to girls and boys the realities of work, employment opportunities and the education and training required for various careers. This program was endorsed by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education by a formal resolution which was approved unanimously at the board meeting on Monday, Feb. 28.

Information packets containing a permission slip, evaluation form and suggested activities for the day will be available in middle school offices by April 1.

Administrator named 'Extra Miler'

■ Hoedel began his career in Plymouth-Canton in 1973 as assistant superintendent for business.

Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent for business and operations, was named an "Extra Miler" at the Plymouth-Canton school board meeting last Monday.

Hoedel began his career in Plymouth-Canton in 1973 as assistant superintendent for business and was promoted in 1984 to associate superintendent for business and operations.

The award was presented to Hoedel by board treasurer David Artley. The award includes a certificate, a cloisonne pin of the Flag of Learning and Liberty and dining certificates for two donated by the Roman Forum in Canton.

Hoedel is responsible for overseeing the district's $80 million budget. He led the district through a change several years ago when it went from an in-formula to an out-of-formula school district.

"The upcoming 1994-95 budget process has been, and continues to be, one of the most complicated in recent years due to the completely changed method of financing public education in Michigan," Hoedel said.

Hoedel is involved in a number of professional activities, including membership in the Michigan School Business Officials and the Wayne County School Business Officials. He is a member of the board of directors for the Michigan Association of School Boards' SET-SEG, an insurance trust which serves school districts throughout Michigan. He also is a longtime member of the American Association of School Administrators. In addition, he serves as the vice chairman of the Michigan Liquid Asset Fund, which is an investment program for school districts in Michigan.

Hoedel and his wife, Beverly, have lived in the Plymouth community for more than 20 years. Their children, Karen, Kathy, David and Deborah, all attended the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. They have six grandchildren, two of whom attend Bird Elementary School.

Hoedel oversees and participates on many school district committees, including the finance committee. He is active in the Trinity Presbyterian Church in Plymouth. He also is a former member of the Kiwanis Club.

Hoedel holds a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in business from Michigan State University. He earned an education specialist degree from Wayne State University. He also is certified as a chief business official by the State of Michigan Department of Education.

Commission enacts residency ordinance

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The Wayne County Commission adopted an ordinance Thursday requiring that all future county government employees live in Wayne County.

Currently, of 5,137 county employees (not including the courts), 439 live outside Wayne County.

There was no word by press time on whether Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara would veto the ordinance. Even if McNamara does veto the ordinance, it appears the commission has enough votes (10) to override the veto.

Although a residency requirement has been in effect for Wayne County civil service employees since 1977, commissioners wished to set a policy that would also apply to upper-echelon appointed officials, like, for example, the personnel director.

The ordinance, introduced by commissioner Bernard Parker, D-Detroit, says, "Each person who is hereafter hired to a position as an employee of the county of Wayne shall maintain their principal residency within Wayne County. The chief executive officer shall place the highest priority upon implementing this policy when bargaining with each (union) of Wayne County employees."

Furthermore, Parker's ordinance gives the commission and the executive the leeway to waive the residency requirement "in those cases where particular skills are required which are not possessed by a county resident."

The ordinance passed 11-4 with the following commissioners voting no: Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township; Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford Township and part of Livonia; Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, who also represents Canton Township, and Edward Boike, D-Taylor.

At Thursday's meeting, McCotter said, "I find it ludicrous to use the '70s for a public policy paradigm for the '90s. We're hurting the people who can least afford to be hurt."

Amann said he supports the "spirit" of Parker's intent, but "I'm not alarmed that less than 10 percent of our employees live outside of the county."

Amann complained that very little background information was given to commissioners on Parker's ordinance. He said he didn't know how many county employees lived outside the county until he read it in the Observer, and he didn't know about the 1977 residency requirement until the commission meeting.

Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Westland, who also represents Garden City, supported the ordinance. "If the community is good enough to work for, it should be good enough to live in," she said. "If you work for Wayne County you should live in Wayne County."

Boike said he fears that neighboring counties will adopt similar ordinances, thereby limiting the job possibilities of Wayne County residents.

The governments of Oakland, Washtenaw and Macomb counties don't have residency requirements for their employees. Monroe County does.

Palace takeover concerns employees

With the recent acquisition of Oakland University's Meadow Brook Music Festival, the Auburn Hills-based Arena Associates now stands to be more competitive in the already crowded Detroit music market.

President Thomas Wilson doesn't see Meadow Brook and his company's two other properties, The Palace of Auburn Hills and Pine Knob Music Theatre, as competing with each other, however.

"Although Pine Knob and Meadow Brook are outdoor amphitheaters operating during the same season, we see a complementary — not a competitive — situation," Wilson said.

"With the increased popularity of outdoor tours during the summer months, having two facilities gives us the flexibility to provide the appropriate size facility for a show as well as offer more entertainment during the time of year people want to enjoy the Michigan outdoors."

The move will allow the organization to develop a variety of acts, he said. At a 7,500-seat capacity, the woodsy Meadow Brook stands nearly half the size of Pine Knob and offers a third of The Palace's seating.

The Oakland University Board of Trustees voted Thursday to approve the organization's bid to operate and manage Meadow Brook beginning this summer. Former managers Brass Ring Productions and Olympia Arenas Inc. — which book shows into and run Detroit's Fox Theatre, Joe Louis Arena and Cobo Arena — "chose not to renew their contract under the existing conditions of the agreement," said Paul Bissonnette, Oakland University's vice president for finance and administration. Brass Ring and Olympia Arenas, which had run the venue since 1992, refused to comment, referring all calls to Oakland University officials.

University President Sandra Packard said every attempt was made to hammer out an agreement with the Livonia-based Brass Ring and Detroit's Olympia Arenas.

"We have gone out of our way to get them to stay on, but they had other business decisions that they had to make," Packard told the trustees at their meeting.

The move will allow Arena Associates more leverage in booking shows, Wilson said.

"It will be fun because, first of all, it's a wonderful place to watch shows. It's a great niche for us because we can go to artists or managers and sort of say, 'In this stage of your artist development, where do you see them playing, a small amphitheater . . . or a bigger amphitheater?' "

Arena Associates will be responsible for all event bookings, marketing, group sales, public relations, parking, security and ground maintenance for the festival.

Before Brass Ring and Olympia Arenas began operating the venue in 1992, Meadow Brook had been operating on a $1.5-million deficit. Meadow Brook has been on the upswing financially since then; however, last year longtime summer tenant the Detroit Symphony Orchestra moved its shows to Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

Despite that, Arena Associates' Wilson said with Meadow Brook he hopes to duplicate the success he has had with The Palace and Pine Knob.

Since its opening in 1988, The Palace has been voted "Arena of the Year" by Performance magazine and twice by Pollstar magazine.

The group took over Pine Knob 3½ years ago and put $12 million in improvements into the amphitheater. It has become the nation's highest-grossing and most-attended amphitheater.

"We will put improvements into it and program it and book it and breathe a lot of life back into it like we did up north," he said comparing Meadow Brook to Pine Knob.

Concert goers will not see too many major improvements this year, however. Because Arena Associates got involved so close to the summer season, the changes will be aesthetic, he said.

"This year it will mostly be

Tardy commissioners tee off local woman

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

A Westland resident chewed out Wayne County government's 15 commissioners Thursday for starting their meeting a half hour late.

"I've been sitting here 32 minutes looking at a cocktail party," said Dorothy Smith, referring to the way commissioners and officials invariably mill about before meetings begin. "I'm not interested in watching people standing around having a good time. Every time I've been here (the meeting) has not started on time."

Noting that the commission's agenda says the meeting will start at 10 a.m., Smith said, "Somebody here is a big liar."

Commission Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, who also represents Garden City, told Smith that at least eight commissioners must be present to have a legal meeting. The meetings begin late, Beard said, because that's how long it takes for at least eight commissioners to show up.

Said Smith, "If they can't get here you're going to need some new commissioners somewhere."

Said Beard, "You echo my sentiments exactly."

County commissioners are paid $43,000 a year in base salary. Each of them is entitled to spend an additional $60,000 a year in office expenses.

ST. MARY HOSPITAL

You share the same body, the same life-giving nutrients for nine months. Each of you affects the other in countless ways.

Why is it then that many hospitals treat you and your baby like completely unrelated people?

OUR NURSES SEE THEM AS STILL BEING ATTACHED

You stay in your room. Your baby stays in the nursery. And you're each cared for by a different nurse.

A better way

At St. Mary Hospital we offer a better way to begin. A personal nurse takes care of you and your baby together to encourage the best possible start. So your nurse can tell how your comfort level, moods and medication may be affecting your baby. And how your baby's behavior influences you. This new way of caring is called mother-baby nursing.

Mother-baby nurses

With mother-baby nurses, you can learn by watching the nurse care for your newborn at your bedside instead of out of your sight in a nursery. If you have a question about your baby, the nurse can answer it immediately. You won't have to wait for the "baby nurse."

The Miracle of Life Maternity Center at St. Mary Hospital has mother-baby nursing all the time. More support, more education. It's a better way of caring.

Photography relates story of homeless

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Where words fail, art communicates.

Photojournalist Guy M. Warren documents the homeless with hopes that furthering awareness of their pains and struggles will trigger the concern to find long-term solutions.

For those brave enough to look, Warren puts the word homeless into human terms. Using the stark, stripped-down elements of black and white photography, he graphically illustrates what it means to tough it out on the streets of Seattle, San Francisco, San Diego, Boston, Washington, D.C., New York City and Detroit.

Urban Park-Detroit Art Center will exhibit this powerful 45-piece series, "Living on the Edge: Homeless in America," March 11 through April 4 at the Greektown gallery, 508 Monroe in Trapper's Alley.

At an opening reception 6-9 p.m. Friday, March 11, Warren will talk about the stories behind these images that haunt. He asks all who plan to view the exhibition during its run to bring a can or two of food, a blanket or a few dollars to benefit the homeless in a Detroit area shelter.

"I began the project because I recognized a need to bring a greater awareness to the problem of homelessness in the U.S.," he said. "I also felt a need to contribute whatever I could to help. In this case it is through my craft.

Warren

"Granted the problem of homelessness is of enormous proportions all across the United States. It's obvious that I can't even begin to scratch the surface of the problem, but I can help."

Through the lenses of 35mm Nikon and Leica cameras, Warren focuses on a kaleidoscope of people in order to straighten out misconceptions: disabled Vietnam veterans, the unemployed, mentally ill, young as well as old, and those who've simply fallen through the cracks after suffering a series of bad breaks.

Hersh goes solo for 'Makers'

■ Throwing Muses has always been Kristin Hersh's band. Last week, however, she stepped out to promote her solo record "Hips and Makers."

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Kristin Hersh fights other people's notions that being a housewife is a bad thing. For her, a family life and music career go hand in hand.

". . . I think working makes me a good mother and being a good mother makes me a good musician," said the dimunitive Hersh. "I also think being a housewife is a job everyone should do, at least for a little while — it gives you a great big dose of humility. You have to work hard in your life. I don't trust people who don't know that."

Hersh, in town last week for a pre-tour performance at Record Time in Rochester, has worked hard. For the last decade, she has been the catalyst behind Throwing Muses, which formerly included step-sister Tanya Donelly. Her new project is a recently released 15-song acoustic solo album "Hips and Makers." Although she thought at the time that acoustic music was "wimpy," Hersh is pleased with the project and had a simple reason for doing it.

"My husband (manager Billy O'Connell), he made me do it," she said with a chuckle during breakfast at the Omni Hotel in Detroit.

The album, which includes a guest appearance by R.E.M.'s Michael Stipe, hasn't found its way to too many radio stations' playlists. Locally, CIMX and WDET have played cuts off her album, but program directors in other areas have chosen not to play it because they were already "playing too many women," she said.

"They can't play too many men, though. . . . I never had to worry about it (with Throwing Muses) because I always sounded too much like a guy," said Hersh, who sounds nothing like a man. "Good music is all the same and bad music is all different — like good and bad families.

"I think bad music should be killed. So I guess that means I'm competitive."

If that wish were to come true, there would be plenty of artists wiped off the map.

"We're in Throwing Muses; we hate everyone," she said mocking a common belief in the music industry. The problem with modern music, the 27-year-old Hersh said, is that it misrepresents her generation. She cringes at the title "Generation X."

"Before people started talking about Generation X, our generation was a quiet generation that didn't want to get married if we were going to get divorced. We didn't want money or fame. Now it's all 'Reality Bites' and the Pearl Jams of the world that they call Generation X."

The music industry, she added, is "just selling this horrible candy and it's just bad for you."

She does like a few bands — namely Sugar, Pond and the Meat Puppets.

"Whenever I'm pregnant, all I want to hear is the Meat Puppets," said the mother of Dylan, 7, and Ryder, 2. "I even went into labor during one of their shows but I never told them that."

Her strong sentiments about music is what caused her to temporarily break up the Throwing Muses in June 1992.

"I cared so much about music. I was so sick of it being trashed."

She wasn't about to change Throwing Muses' direction in order to widen her audience, she said.

"I didn't want us to turn into a trendy band. Tanya really had ambitions. The songs she was doing weren't really Throwing Muses songs."

Hersh pursued a solo career. Donelly, also a former member of the Breeders, formed Belly, last summer's darlings of the music scene.

Soon afterward Hersh, the self-described "nicest person in the world," drummer David Narcizo, bassist Bernard Georges reformed the band without Donelly. Having been in Throwing Muses since she was 14, Hersh realized how theraputic her band was for her.

"If I couldn't write songs, I would get really sick. They would just get stuck inside of me," the Rhode Island resident said.

Later this year, the band will release its next album "University." The title is a play on the fact that most Throwing Muses fans are college students but it also works well in the marketing area. Her record label has already made up sweatshirts that read "Throwing Muses University."

"University" was an album that Throwing Muses almost didn't record. Due to financial problems, the band was going to break up again. Fortunately, she said, she was able to work out the band's problems and continue her career that she desperately loves.

"I'm in my favorite band. I love it. I really, really love it."

In his teens, Tim March was inadvertently prepared for the attention he would receive as Sweaterfish's flamboyant lead vocalist.

Living in Northbridge, Mass., the self-described "local freak" turned heads with his carring and long black hair, shaved on the sides.

"The first time I wore all black, my teachers asked me if somebody died," the 24-year-old said.

As March grew older, his anger festered. Meanwhile junior high school kids admired him for his individuality and began to mimic his clothing style.

"It was cool but . . . a lot of kids were really obsessed with it. This little girl, she was the sister of a friend, I went into her room and there was a shrine. People took pictures of me at school in the hallway. I wore this trench coat with all kinds of pins all over it so they called me the 'Button Man.' There were pictures of me on her mirror. She had papers I had thrown away, a rock I had kicked. It became the 'Cult of Tim,'" he said.

Although he feels uncomfortable about the situation, it taught him a valuable lesson in human relations.

"It's so hard when things like that happen. You have to stay humble. You have to make sure that your ego doesn't go 'lump, lump, lump,'" the soft-spoken March said extending his hands from his head.

■ 'If I were digging in the trash cans, I wouldn't want the world to see me.'
Guy Warren, photographer

Warren shows great compassion for the less fortunate, hiding their faces whenever possible to preserve their dignity.

"One guy is totally silhouetted; you can't see who he is. It could be anybody," Warren said. "If I were digging in the trash cans, I wouldn't want the world to see me. There's people walking by, but nobody says here's a couple dollars for a hamburger. Another guy is sleeping in a shopping cart. I watched people walk by. They ignored him like it was commonplace."

Warren began the series in earnest the spring of 1991 as a book project, but the stimulus dates back to 1984. A focal point in the exhibition, the photograph is one of two color blow-ups. Warren took it in New York City while touring with ZZ Top and Detroit's own Iggy Pop as a photographer's assistant.

Large concrete columns loom above a small heap of a man asleep on the steps. It is daylight.

"There's a lot of violence in the shelters so they spend the nights wandering the streets and sleep during the day," he said. "Living in groups, the younger stronger ones take care of the weak."

Warren's wife Elaine, who has provided support throughout the project, points out that the problems of Phoenix's homeless differ greatly from those in Anchorage. However, they all share a common need, the need for human companionship, a little kindness, a nod to their existence.

"Many migrate with the seasons; many in southern California had come from up north," she said. "It's so easy to be homeless. Most people are scared of them because in the backs of their minds they realize that could be them. Who doesn't live from paycheck to paycheck?

"The photographs show they're touchable, that they're brothers, they're sisters. We all go through life seeding, planting and watering seeds. If you realize it will come back to you, it's easy to give."

Warren's inspiration for the series came from photographers who recorded the plight of Americans during the Great Depression. Dorothea Lange, Margaret Bourke-White and Walker Evans serve as heroes. In spite of the fact he suffers periodic bouts with depression, Warren plans to continue his social documentary until the homeless cease to exist in this country.

"Why does anyone go out and document this horror? Because they're living less than dogs. Stop world, look," he said.

Two years of searching for a space finally brought Warren's exhibition to light. Gallery owners balked, fearing it would be unprofitable. Arts commissioners declined; the subject matter was too depressing.

Urban Park gallery director Dave Roberts makes it his policy to show work on the cutting edge. But his reason for exhibiting Warren's documentary series on the homeless came straight from the heart. The images moved him.

"I was compelled to exhibit the work of Guy Warren because not only are the images compositionally strong but also because Warren is attempting to educate and motivate his audience," said Roberts. "The black and white photographs in this exhibit are on one hand technically superb and on the other hand urge an audience response.

"Here we have an example of the inherent literal interpretation of the photographic image being used in a manner that transcends the traditional art exhibit."

Thanks to Roberts at Urban Park, Laura Hardy at Nelson's Gallery in Livonia who provided frames at cost plus volunteered to cut the mats, Detroit artist Janelle Agar for framing assistance, artist/illustrator, Gwen Dietrich and typesetter Monica Zander of A.R. Brasch Advertising in Southfield, 50 percent of the sales of Warren's prints will be donated to a homeless shelter in the Detroit area.

"The minute I saw Guy's photos I knew I wanted to be a part of this project," said Hardy.

He carried his image into his 20s and his band Sweaterfish. Musically, Sweaterfish — which also includes guitarist Eric Livingston, bassist John Hobbs and drummer Paul Valente — reflects all of their styles. The band has been compared to a string of groups ranging from Bauhaus to, strangely enough, the Kinks.

Sweaterfish fan Mark Chownyk describes the band as "refreshingly melodic and disturbingly surreal." It's the classification of "Goth pop" that annoys March.

"Since I have a slim vocal range . . . there's not too many famous people out there (with voices like that)," explained March whose band covers Bauhaus' "Bela Lugosi's Dead." He describes his band's moody feeling as "brooding with dark overtones."

Although their blend of gothic rock and shoegazer pop is many times considered "retro," March believes that their music is valid today.

"I think it's kind of timeless," said March, while seated in Hobbs' lavish black and white Royal Oak apartment which ironically blends modern and classic art. Hobbs added that Sweaterfish is representative of the music each member enjoys.

"We're just attracted to music that's just kind of timeless. I'm still a big Bauhaus fan and I'm also a big Cure fan . . . Hopefully that influences our music, too," said Hobbs who personally is flattered by comparisons to Bauhaus.

An unexpected fan of the band turned out to be the legendary New York club CBGB. Sweaterfish was asked to play CBGB only a month after Hobbs submitted materials about the band. That's amazingly quick for any club.

Their September 1993 show was taped by video director Peter Wallach of Peter Gabriel's "Big Time" fame and son of actor Eli Wallach. Hobbs met Wallach while the two were working on a TV commercial in New York. Sweaterfish was flattered but slightly uneasy that someone of that stature was at their gig.

"I was nervous because I know he's worked with some big people . . . with huge budgets. We were all nervous being in the club in the first place," Hobbs said. Although Hobbs used his connections to get Wallach to film their show, they got the CBGB show based on their talent alone, he said.

Part of Sweaterfish's attraction is their down-to-earth attitude and realistic lyrics — two traits that many people can relate to.

"Our shows are pretty angst-filled. There's real power behind them. A lot of people can associate with it," March said.

Both stripper and 'Playboy' for kids are in poor taste

STREET SENSE

BARBARA SCHIFF

Voice Mail Message:

Barbara,

Here's one more comment on "Playboy" for kids. Couldn't the Mom who's 12-year-old son wants a subscription to this magazine find herself charged with a crime, if she gave in? Wouldn't providing pornography to a child be considered contributing to the delinquency of a minor, or as child sexual abuse?

The situation reminded me of the parents who were in the news last year for hiring a stripper for their 12-year-old's birthday party. I hope this Mom took your subtle advice and told the kid to forget it.

Dear Caller,

Before I answer your call, let me expand on the situation to which you refer. These parents hired an exotic dancer to entertain at their 12-year-old son's birthday party. They were arrested and charged with two counts of permitting the sexual abuse of a child. The party activities included allowing their son to lick whipped cream off the dancer's bikini clad breasts.

Besides being against the law, behavior like this is also unethical and immoral. These parents are trying to gratify their own needs. It would be enlightening to know how the boy felt about it.

In response to your question, I asked a prominent attorney knowledgeable in this field. He said the answer is no, parents can not be charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, or with child sexual abuse for providing their son with a subscription to "Playboy." In this case the law is sensible, which is more than can be said for the parents who hired the stripper.

I do not agree with you that hiring a naked dancer for one's son and getting him a subscription to "Playboy" are equally poor parenting. Both, however, are in poor taste.

■ These parents are trying to gratify their own needs. It would be enlightening to know how the boy felt about it.

Commenting again on parents' intentions, the subscription buyers could have good intentions, albeit thwarted by poor judgment. In the case of the first parents, good intentions are hard to find.

Find art on silk and chiffon walls

The trees are not yet leafy, nor are the daffodils peeking through the snow, yet a change is in the air. The March winds blow, refreshing our spirits as they signal the coming of spring.

There is a cold, crisp edge to the breeze, however, and its briskness invites us to cover our heads, not with the thick wool of winter, but with an elegant silk scarf.

Cause marketing

Tiffany & Co., in the Somerset Collection in Troy, captures springtime's sense of renewed hope with a limited-edition scarf and fragrance set that inaugurates a new program entitled "A Decade of Promise to The Twenty-First Century." This program, launched in concert with the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, is dedicated to advancing breast cancer awareness in the United States. Tiffany's is one of the national sponsors of "Race for the Cure," scheduled for Saturday, April 9, at The Detroit Zoo.

The artfully designed gift set pairs a 3.4-ounce Tiffany eau de parfum spray with a symbolic silk scarf featuring pink ribbons and golden suns on a pink-and-gray background ($100). The design embodies the spirit of hope and optimism as a new decade dawns. A portion of the proceeds from the sale of this gift set will benefit the foundation.

If you collect scarves or frame them as art, you must discover Kitty Green's creations. An award-winning graphic artist and illustrator, Green meshes those artistic disciplines in her new venture — painting on silk.

Taking a cue from nature, each of her original design scarves reflect her love for the forms and colors of the landscape that surrounds her. The vibrant floral and organic "canvases" are painted with fiber-reactive dyes to become permanent works of art. "They're paintings that just happen to be wearable scarves," says Green.

Scarf smarts

Though they are decorative enough to dress a table or drape on the back of a chair, Green prefers them worn inventively as accessories tied in non scarf ways. She offers her tying expertise to all who are interested. Kitty Green scarves are available by calling Green at her Royal Oak studio, 398-1942.

So you can't afford a Picasso or Matisse or Gauguin. Why not frame one of their masterpieces silk-screened on a cotton or silk scarf? The Print Gallery, 29203 Northwestern Highway in Southfield, floats the scarves in shadowbox frames. My favorite is Van Gogh's "Irises" ($176). The artful border substitutes as matting for the "painting." Wear Lautrec across your shoulders or tie Monet's "Lilies" around your waist. The cotton scarves are $25, silks are $49.

For the male art lover, the Print Gallery also displays art ties, including Markus Pierson's "Romantic Encounters" ($35) and DaVinci designs.

Other dealers in tie art include Hudson's and Jacobson's department stores where famous and not-so-famous images come down from museum walls, leaving their frames behind.

Mervyn's and Penney's have ties with cartoon characters that evoke a smile or two in even the most serious of board rooms.

Hail to the chiefs

Wall of presidents: Presidents' Day has passed, but shoppers can still view Lawrence William's oil paintings which salute the presidents' memory near Target at the Wonderland Mall in Livonia. The 20-foot-long exhibit is on display through March 20 and also features portraits of the first ladies — including Hillary Rodham Clinton. Williams has an international reputation as a portrait artist.

Trunk show suits hard-to-fit men

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Portly gentlemen and those who need the longer lengths will get special attention during Burberry's semi-annual trunk show March 10-14.

"It's their chance to customize our standard product at no extra charge," said Cynthia Feemster of Burberry's at the Somerset Collection in Troy. "We will have four tables filled with hundreds of fabric swatches from which customers can select suits, slacks and blazers in different patterns and solids in silk, linen and wool. For the customer who likes to purchase two pair of pants with every coat, this is the time to order."

Burberry's has offered the trunk service for the past four years each spring and fall, Feemster said. The company's buyer-representative, Paul Goring, attends to ensure that Burberry's customers get the custom-tailored looks they are after.

There is no official "trunk" with the trunk show, just binders of the season's color and fabric samples spread out for customers to feel and peruse. At the trunk show, shoppers can see the complete set of samples available to Burberry's tailors.

Sales consultant Alan Rosen said the suits are priced between $595 and $795. All are made of 100-percent natural fabrics no blends. Since all Burberry's suit pants come with pleated slacks, the trunk show takes special orders for plain front pants.

Burberry's suits are made under license agreement by J. Schoeneman of Fifth Avenue in New York. Suits can be special ordered within a few days if they are in stock in New York. The trunk show suits take six-eight weeks to deliver.

When these suits are completed, the customer must return for a final fitting where minor tailoring is performed in house to hem pant legs and shorten or lengthen sleeves.

Spring fashion remains neutral

■ Designers are in agreement on fashion's direction for spring 1994 — the season is softer and prettier than it's been in some time. Textured neutrals lead the way.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

"Hudson's has found that most customers are choosing a more relaxed and individualized look in what they wear, how they decorate their homes and even in what they eat," said spokeswoman Chris Morrisroe. "So Hudson's spring '94 collections are about options. Shoppers can exercise what we call The Rights of Spring — The Right Mix, The Right Patterns, The Right Textures."

In the store right now are natural fabrics such as cottons, linens and silks, in natural colors such as beige, bone, and ivory. These are accented with infusions of misty green, sage, blue, butter yellow and pink.

Natural materials are also prevalent in accessories. Necklaces, earrings, bracelets and hair goods are made of wood and beads. Even scarves are accented with natural materials.

Morrisroe suggests the right mix of fabric and silhouette is as individual as each customer.

"Gone are the days of having to match," she said. "Mix structure with softness, texture with crinkle, solid with pattern, ribbed with flat, pattern with pattern, and texture with texture. Wear short over long, long over long, sheer over layers, loose over tight."

Confused? Layering is the key.

Primitive motifs

Hudson's has added a wide variety of non-traditional pattern work on woven shirts, knits and jacquards to add excitement to men's wardrobes by breaking away from traditional plaid and striped shirts. Designs range from Bali prints to batiks to Aztec designs. Mini-checks in suits, including houndstooth, come in a wide range of colors and fabrics. Colors overall are lighter, with olive and brown tones.

Stars and Stripes is the biggest pattern statement for Juniors'. Merchandise with embroidered charac-

The Burberry's Troy location leads the nation in the number of orders taken during trunk shows, Feemster said.

"Which is pretty amazing since one of our locations is in the business-suit capitol, Washington D.C." she said. "Of course, our sales staff has cultivated our trunk show invitation list over the years. When hard-to-fit customers stop in, we refer them to the shows and then send them reminders when the show date approaches.

Burberry's also makes house and office calls. There is shopping by appointment for men who can not visit the store during regular business hours. The Burberry's staff is prepared to make style and coloring recommendations to its customers. A complete line of shirts, ties and other accessories is available.

'When hard-to-fit customers stop in, we refer them to the shows and then send them reminders when the show date approaches.'

Cynthia Feemster
Burberry's

There is no trunk show for female customers, Feemster said, because there is not a common vendor supplying their women's clothing.

The trunk show hours run 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. daily, Saturday until 6 p.m. Sunday until 5 p.m.

Interested shoppers can call (810) 643-8555 for more information.

■ MALL WINS MASONRY AWARD

The Masonry Institute of Michigan will award the Farmington Hills-based firm JPRA, the "M Award" for its Excellence in Masonry Design of the Somerset Collection in Troy. The exterior of the mall, according to the masonry judges, "has a timeless building palette which includes a richly colored Cranbrook brick, broken by strong horizontals of buff-colored Mankato stone."

The new main entry, "rotunda court" includes free-standing columns, soffits and fascias clad in various thickness of Mankato stone. The entry drive, area walkways and landscape walls were designed to encompass brick masonry. A jury from Cornell University selected the Somerset Collection from 36 entries.

■ JOAN VASS AT SOMERSET

Group B, a Minneapolis-based retail operating company, will open its second Joan Vass Boutique April 7 at the Somerset Collection in Troy. The lines are classically inspired, featuring a coordinating wardrobe of primarily solid and softly textured colorations, with occasional accents of stripes and pattern. Most fabrics are made of pure combed cotton in interlock, rib and mesh.

For spring, Vass introduces fluid styles in washable rayon. Oversized design ensures a comfortable fit and fluid drape.

The Polo Sport fragrance is a clean, citrus scent enhanced with woody notes. The products come in a bright, cobalt blue bottle inspired by the shape of a water bottle with the top patterned after the design of a bar bell weight. It features the red, white and blue RL pennant. Some of the products include cologne spray, face and body soap, hair and body wash, post-shave relief balm, alcohol-free hair gel, deodorant, and face and body sports cream. Prices range from $10 for a lip balm to $45 for a 4.2-ounce cologne spray.

Spring looks

ters such as Mickey Mouse and Betty Boop are also shown.

Espadrille shoes make the biggest statement this spring, a must for all wardrobes, according to Morrisroe. The shoes feature fabric uppers with flexible soles. They come in many varieties: rope bottoms, mules, ankle wraps, oxfords, flats and platforms.

Sunglass shapes

If it's time to invest in a good pair of sunglasses, oval shapes and iron-looks are popular at Hudson's now. Iron-looks includes burnished and antique finishes, matte finishes and engraved detailing.

For kids, Hudson's will have soccer shops that offer merchandise, including World Cup-licensed merchandise, beginning in May. Hot colors include yellows, greens, oranges and blues.

For the home, look for earth, sea and gardens to inspire the themes with rich colors and natural designs. Merchandise features painted fruit, flora and wild herbs; the color and texture of clay pots; basketry; vegetable dies and earth pigments.

Jackets jive

At Lord & Taylor, LaVelle Olexa, vice president of fashion merchandising. said jackets remain the focus of all wardrobes with the longer-line jacket, often Cardigan style, unconstructed and worn with ease of an unlined skirt.

"It is a season of softened silhouettes with an interest on textured neutrals," Olexa said. "The simplicity is refreshing — sophisticated with an air of classicism . . . easy, relaxed, a spring to enjoy."

Helen O'Hagan of Saks Fifth Avenue's fashion office said the key to dressing this season is collecting the best pieces to create a personal style that is current and appropriate.

"Length is not an issue," she said. "Choose from long or short skirts and dresses or pants. Even the sheerest styles can be layered to deal with the issue of bareness."

The shirt is key at Saks. According to O'Hagan, the season's layering staples are the skinny ribbed tank and the white T-shirt. Other new looks: shirts that borrow from menswear with a clean-cut styling, bib front or French cuffs, the wrap-around shirt, tie-front shirt and the asymmetrical shirt.

The crop shirt offers a hint of bareness under a tailored jacket or provides a touch of modesty under a lingerie dress. A shirt can be reconfigured as a dress, tunic or short coat over a tank or slip dress.

POINTS OF VIEW

Silver medalist warms to pride of local folks

Unless you were a particularly close observer of the Winter Olympics in Lillehammer, you probably never have heard of John Coyle — even though he's from Oakland County.

But like Nancy Kerrigan, of whom you may have heard more than you care to, he won a silver medal for skating.

Coyle, a West Bloomfield resident, Southfield Christian graduate and frequenter of the Birmingham Ice Arena, was a member of the U.S. men's 5,000-meter short track speed skating relay team which took the silver Feb. 26.

Coyle, 25, was honored Thursday, not by a parade through Disney World, but by a ceremony in the Birmingham Public Schools' bus garage, where his mom, Dorothy, works.

He was surrounded not by hordes of strangers trying to decide whether to shake hands with Mickey Mouse or a skating doll, but by friends, family and local officials who are genuinely proud that he represented their corner of the world so well.

Coyle, unlike Kerrigan, who quickly traded the cold of Norway for the warm, monied skies of Orlando, stayed for the closing ceremonies — a ceremony that imparts the history and spirit of the Olympics upon participants as well as those watching from the stands and from televisions around the world.

Coyle, unlike Kerrigan, didn't have a television crew following his every move, even so close as to pick up ungracious remarks. Kerrigan's disappointment in losing was overheard by the world.

She complained that Oksana Baiul was delayed because the 16-year-old Ukranian orphan probably had to redo her make-up after her emotional response to winning.

JUDITH DONER BERNE

In truth, it was because Olympic officials had trouble locating a rendition of the Ukranian National Anthem for play at the ceremony.

It's very hard to imagine Coyle making such a remark.

After marching in to the red, white and blue-decorated bus garage, with his girlfriend, Billie Thomas, getting a hug from his mom and a pat from his dad, he confessed: "This is great. I never expected anything like this."

And unlike Kerrigan, he didn't talk of should haves, would haves. Perhaps his expectations weren't gold, as hers surely were, but perhaps they were — or will be, in a future Olympics.

He too has trained — 15 years worth in a type of skating that never holds the pot of gold at the end that figure skating promises — particularly as a member of a relay team.

So along the way he also picked up an engineering degree from Stanford.

"There were a lot of times when things didn't go well and money was tight," Coyle acknowledged. He said his dad kept him at it — never wavering in his support.

Like Kerrigan, after all that effort, Coyle may have initially been more in touch with his personal feelings. Most of her interviews have revolved around her own views of her performance ("flawless") and seemed to have little relationship to her representation of the United States.

'When you win it, you think, 'That's great,' " Coyle said.

Then: "But when you come home (to the U.S.) you find out you didn't do it just for you but for all these people. I really feel happy about it."

And in that spirit, Coyle may actually end up richer than Kerrigan. Because whether she will be able to feel the pure happiness of the American people through all that silver is a real question.

John Coyle gave his silver medal to his dad for safekeeping. Nancy Kerrigan gave hers to Mickey Mouse.

Dual finance plans neglect needed school reform

Michigan's politicians have shown scant leadership in planning and implementing public school reform. For the most part, so have Michigan's universities.

Rather, the state's stalwarts in this revolutionary arena have been present and recent-past school district executives from the greater metropolitan area such as Bill Keane and Mike Flanagan of Oakland and Wayne County Intermediate School districts; John Schultz, Deborah Anthony, and Beverly Stone of Rochester; Gary Faber of West Bloomfield; and Observer & Eccentric columnist Jim "Doc" Doyle of Troy; soon-to-be Farmington superintendent Bob Maxfield and his past and present Berkley colleagues Sam Flam, George Blaney, and Tresa Zumsteg.

Others have included John M. Hoben, Mike Homes and Shirley Spaniel of Plymouth-Canton; Dave Snead of Detroit; Terry Follbaum of Centerline; Marian Ginopolis of Oxford; George DePillo of Warren Consolidated; Beverly Geltner and Karen Roth of Southfield; Betty Davis of Pontiac; and Bob Docking, Gary Doyle, and Dan White of Bloomfield Hills fighting the good fight for reform.

I included the ideas of most of these educators in my Third Annual Telford's Telescope publications when I was Rochester's assistant superintendent of schools (although I doubt many of them wanted this fact publicized at that controversial and tumultous time). Public school chieftains, though, can't reform the system without help from higher education — nor can they do so without the active good will and good faith of legislators.

JOHN TELFORD

Michigan's government in general, and its governor in particular, have failed monumentally to provide the education to which all of the children in this state are entitled. Even so, I've met with one former legislator — gubernatorial candidate Howard Wolpe — and am impressed.

I specifically liked his metaphor about not removing the patient's heart until a replacement is available — reference to Gov. John Engler's and Sen. Debbie Stabenow's opportunistic initiative to remove the property tax as school support without having a ready replacement.

The "replacements" our Lansing leaders finally came up with (which we'll be forced to choose between on March 15) are like Tweedledum and Tweedledee in that each offers schools the same amount of money. What is really needed, however, is still more money for districts with large pockets of deprived students — and much more creative short- and long-range planning for the state's entire educational institution.

Since I'm obliged to support either Proposal A or its backup, I will vote for A — the sales tax specified in the Engler-supported ballot plan. It appears to do the lesser harm to Detroit, which can absorb no more damage. Unlike the backup statutory (income tax) plan, Proposal A gives the voter a say in what he will pay by choosing what and whether to purchase.

The statutory plan lacks the 5 percent cap on tax increases, and it also immediately hits hapless Detroiters with a crushing 9 percent income tax.

Still, what I'd really like to vote for right now is a new governor. And I'd also like to vote for a new legislature, almost without exception. We need new leaders who have the rare courage to face up to hard choices — and the uncommon wisdom to envision them.

John Telford, a Rochester Hills resident, is a former assistant superintendent in the Rochester School District.

Edison plans area tree trimming

In March and April, Detroit Edison will trim trees in 39 communities, including Canton Township and Livonia.

The work is part of the company's $236 million reliability improvement plan to reduce the number of power outages and storm damage restoration time. Trimming trees to provide a 10-foot minimum clearance with electrical wires helps to reduce the impact of storms on the utility's electrical system.

Trees that touch energized lines can carry electricity and pose safety hazards. In addition, interference from just one tree can cause outages that affect hundreds of customers served by the same electrical circuit.

Line clearance crews, in the final year of an accelerated program, trimmed 800,000 trees in 1992 and 750,000 trees last year. The utility will trim trees beyond 1994 on a three and a half to four-year cycle. During the past year, Detroit Edison has reduced the number of customer outages by 50 percent and shortened the length of unavoidable outages by 79 percent, compared with a three-year average prior to the program's start.

Trees are trimmed according to National Arborist Association standards, which are designed to protect the trees and keep them healthy. The utility's reliability improvement program also includes adding new circuits, installing more lightning protection for lines and replacing worn or damaged equipment.

Callers can ask the principal

School blues? Now is the time to talk about it with an informed confidant.

Kids, parents and teachers can call a principal on a toll-free confidential hot line, (800) 944-1601, to ask their toughest and most personal questions about the classroom. Calls will be accepted until 7 p.m. Monday, March 7, and 7-11 a.m. Tuesday, March 8.

The National Principals' Hotline, sponsored by the National Association of Elementary School Principals, will operate from the group's annual convention site in Florida.

The hot line offers 150 experienced principals from across the country who can discuss concerns and offer advice on any school-related topic, including kindergarten readiness, special education, ability grouping, testing, disciplinary problems, and career paths. All types of questions are encouraged: Why does my teacher always call on me? What help is available for my learning-disabled child? How can teachers have more input in the school's decision-making process?

A free educational guide, "Now We're Talking: Keeping in Touch with Your Child's School," will be sent to all callers.

cosmetic things that we would do with landscaping. Hopefully we can improve the concession situation. We're coming in so late that it's almost impossible to do anything else," Wilson said.

When his organization begins the planning of major renovations, Wilson said it is going to consider the problems that ticket-holders once encountered with Pine Knob.

"We're going to address the things that were of a concern to people when we took over Pine Knob. You couldn't get there, you couldn't get out, you couldn't go to the bathroom, you couldn't eat. Other than that, it was, 'Nice show.' "

One thing that will remain is the type of acts that are booked into Meadow Brook, which has ranged from pianist/composer Marvin Hamlisch to British pop star Morrissey.

"We foresee keeping many of the traditional types of shows that have become Meadow Brook staples — children's shows, jazz, classical concerts, rock 'n' roll reviews, and cutting edge-type new music — but we certainly won't limit ourselves strictly to what has worked in the past," said Jim McCue, director of events for The Palace and Pine Knob.

There's a vinegar for every style of cooking

Remember when buying vinegar meant choosing between distilled, cider, red or white? Now, as grocery carts whiz up and down aisles, shoppers stand with profoundly puzzled looks as they stare at an enormous selection of vinegars.

What's a person to do when confronted with raspberry vinegar selling at $4 a pint on a shelf next to Balsamic vinegar that sells for $12 pint. A a few inches away is distilled white vinegar, which costs just $1.39 a gallon.

And those selections, friends, are at the local grocer. Have you checked out the vinegar shelves at gourmet food stores lately? Although there seems to be as many vinegars as wines, there is no reason to feel catatonic in the presence of such abundance.

Vinegar still simply means "vin aigre," sour wine, and is a by-product of fermentation. The production of wine is merely a way station in the process of making vinegar, and the number one job of a winemaker, according to Bob Trinchero of Sutter Home Winery, "is to stop about halfway through the natural progression to vinegar."

Like wine, vinegar can be made from anything that ferments, including molasses, berries, melon, maple syrup, potatoes, barley, malt, beets and even whey.

Prehistoric beginnings

Vinegar has been around since someone accidentally discovered it in prehistoric times when a barrel of fruit was forgotten in a far corner of some cave. We know that Babylonians used it as a preservative and were canny enough to flavor it with herbs. Vinegar is frequently mentioned in the Bible. Greeks and Romans kept vinegar vessels and dipped their bread in it.

There are several types of vinegar. Distilled white is the sharpest and strongest and is made from ethyl alcohol. It is as colorless as water and has no flavor other than its acidity. It is used primarily in pickling, and, in the case of the Janes Gang, as a Mr. Coffee cleaner. Legendary for its cleaning properties, distilled vinegar makes windows sparkle, removes spots, stains and odors.

Malt vinegars are produced from malted barley and potatoes that are first made into a crude beer that is often converted into acetic acid. It is filtered and aged. The British douse malt vinegar on fish and chips, and is one of the main ingredients in Worcestershire sauce.

Most popular variety

Cider vinegar, made by the first settlers from hard cider, is the most popular variety in America. The cider is aged and fermented in redwood casks for one-two years. It ends up in everything American from catsups to pickles. Cider vinegar is also a great salt remover for snow-dampened shoes.

The Chinese and Japanese are known for their rice vinegars, made from sake with a subtle tang and lightly sweet taste. Rice vinegars are used in hot and sour soup, for pickling, and sauce for spring rolls and pot stickers.

The Germans are known for their potato vinegar, and the French have fruit and overpriced wine vinegars made from what else? - overpriced wines. The saying in France is "you can't make good vinegar from bad wine."

Shoppers can find wine vinegar, sherry vinegar, champagne vinegar and fruit-infusion vinegar, compliments of the French. Of all the vinegars available today, none occasions more comment or popularity than the aceto balsamico.

Balsamic vinegar is the rich, viscous vinegar that is made only in a tiny section of northern Italy around the city of Modena.

There are others that claim to be Balsamic, but good cooks know that the best comes from Modena. What makes Balsamic vinegar from Modena such a find? Sweet grapes are cooked down and filtered and allowed to ferment slowly in a series of wood casks. Its name refers to its health-giving properties as in balm of Gilead, and to the flavors extracted from the barrels of the various woods in which it has aged. It is transferred each year to one of a series of successively smaller barrels of oak, juniper and chestnut, among others.

Darrell Corti, food importer and one of the most knowledgeable Americans on the subject of vinegars, says that "in 10 years it's a reasonable vinegar, in 70, much better."

Celebration nourishes healthy habits

■ Swimsuit weather will soon be here, so shape up during National Nutrition Month with help from dietitians at local hospitals.

"Nutrition Fuels Fitness" is the theme of this year's celebration of National Nutrition Month, which is sponsored by the American Dietetic Association.

Exercising good nutrition is a weighty matter in Michigan. According to the Michigan Department of Health, we have a lot to lose. Only two other states, West Virginia and Mississippi, have a more overweight population than Michigan.

It's time to shape up. Dietitians at your local community hospital can help. In celebration of National Nutrition Month, they are hosting programs to whet your appetite for low-fat food including a nutrition fair and healthy cooking demonstrations.

Learn why diets don't work at a nutrition clinic hosted by St. Mary Hospital in Livonia 7-8 p.m. Tuesday, March 15. The fee is $8. Call (313) 591-2983 to register.

At Garden City Hospital, registered dietitians will answer your questions about healthy food choices 9 a.m. to noon Thursday, March 10, and 1-3 p.m. Tuesday, March 22. Call (313) 458-4330 on those days to talk to a dietitian.

Another way to get answers from a dietitian is to call the toll-free Nutrition Hotline for the American Institute for Cancer Research 1-(800) 843-4114 weekdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Importer selects finest wines from France's southern Rhone

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

Robert Haas, owner of Vineyard Brands, typifies an importer with impeccable standards. He has been traveling the world since 1950, hand-selecting wines for U.S. import. Vineyard Brands exclusively imports wines from the Perrin family in the southern Rhone. Brothers Francois and Jean-Pierre Perrin are renowned for the wines of Chateau de Beaucastel, Coudoulet de Beaucastel, and La Vieille Ferme.

"We use the traditional grape growing and winemaking methods established by my grandfather," said Francois. "There are two essential concepts: organic grape farming and heating the whole grape before fermentation to extract flavor and color without using sulfur dioxide. Additionally, it should be noted by the consumer that Beaucastel wines are not filtered." A statement related to this is made on the label on the back of the bottle.

At Cheateau de Beaucastel in Chateauneuf-du-Pape, all 13 permitted grape varieties are planted. However, the mourvedre grape at 30 percent of the blend, sets the Perrin style for Chateau de Beaucastel Chateauneuf du Pape. The dominance of mouvedre keeps Beaucastel unique among its neighbors who tend to prefer a greater percentage of grenache and less mourvedre.

Coudoulet de Beaucastel is vinified in the same manner as Chateau de Beaucastel but is made from just four grape varietals: mourvedre, grenache, syrah and cinsault. The vineyards are adjacent to those of Beaucastel across a road separating appellation Chateauneuf-du-Pape from the Cotes du Rhones. This makes Coudoulet de Beaucastel an excellent value for those in the know. Include Coudoulet in a blind tasting of Chateauneuf-du-Papes and you will be convinced.

La Vieille Ferme is a negociant firm created by Jean-Pierre Perrin. He has been able to produce wines of style and distinction at reasonable prices because he is very adept at selecting grower's wines for blending to a consistent style.

"With the 1992 vintage we changed the vinification of La Vieille Ferme Cotes du Luberon Blanc," Perrin reports. "We now employ 10 percent barrel fermentation, which makes the wine rounder and fuller with greater length."

Haas and the Perrin brothers have teamed up in a joint California venture called Tablas Creek Estate Vineyard in Paso Robles. The winery will produce Rhone-style wines exclusively. All budwood necessary for the 85 acres of vineyard comes directly from Chateau de Beaucastel

Wine selections of the week

The wines of the Perrin family imported by Robert Haas through his company Vineyard Brands span the price gamut. La Vieille Ferme wines find few peers in their price range and the wines of Chateau de Beaucastel are at the wine pinnacle in the southern Rhone.

From La Vieille Ferme we recommend: 1992 Cotes du Luberon Blanc ($7); 1992 Reserve Blanc, Cotes du Rhone ($8.75); 1990 Cotes du Ventoux Rouge ($7); and 1990 Rouge Reserve, Cotes du Rhones ($8.75). You can find lower prices than those quoted in several area wine stores.

Not to be missed under the Coudelet de Beaucastel label are 1992 Cotes du Rhone Blanc ($22.75) and 1991 Cotes du Rhone Rouge ($15.75).

Best selections from Chateau de Beaucastel are 1991 Chateauneuf-du-Pape ($28) and 1990 Chateauneuf du Pape ($40). On second release special order, your retailer can get both the 1986 and 1983 Chateauneuf-du-Pape at $42 and $57 respectively. Ask about these if you're interested.

Development Network in Novi, will explain antioxidents — Beta carotene, and vitamins E and C. There is a $3 fee. Call 477-6100 to register.

Join local chef Robert Jurek at Kitchen Glamor at Great Oaks Mall in Rochester, 7 p.m. Thursday, March 17. He will explain how to prepare low-fat meatless entrees during a program sponsored by Crittenton's Weight Management Center. The fee is $5 per person. Call 652-5626 to reserve your place.

Crittenton Hospital is also hosting a Nutrition Health Fair, 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, March 24, and a program titled "Nutrition Facts: The New Food Label," 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, March 30. Both programs will be at the hospital, 1101 W. University Drive, Rochester.

Reservations are required for the food label program. The fee is $10 per person and includes an information packet. Call 652-5630 to register. No reservations are required for the nutrition health fair.

"During the nutrition fair, we'll give people a chance to sample some healthy food items to see how good some of the products are," said Vikki Lasota, clinical nutrition manager at Crittenton Hospital. "There's been a radical taste improvement in low-fat items." The fair will also feature healthy cooking demonstrations, games and contests to get people excited about nutrition.

The label workshop on March 30 will clear up a lot of the confusion that exists over new labels required by the U.S. Food and Drug Adminstration on all food packages by May.

A registered dietitian will lead participants through the maze of new terms and explain how to choose healthy food products.

"Studies show that 78-80 percent of us look at food labels when we shop, but we have a hard time interpreting them," said Lasota.

While the Great Pyramid is visually appealing, consumers are also having difficulty understanding the concept of the new USDA Food Guide Pyramid.

At the bottom is the bread, cereal, rice and pasta group. You should have 6-11 servings a day. The next level has two groups — vegetables (3-5 servings a day) and fruits (2-4 servings a day). The third level also has two groups — milk, yogurt and cheese (2-3 servings a day) and meat, poultry, fish, dry beans, eggs and nuts (2-3 servings a day). At the very top are fats, oil and sweets, which you should use sparingly.

"The overall message is to select foods that together give you all the essential nutrients you need to maintain health, without eating too many calories," said Lisa Martin, registered dietitian at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

vineyards. Planting will be completed in 1994-95. "The first vintage will not be released until European vine stock represents 70 percent of vineyard production," Haas reports. The first commercial wines are expected to be available in 1999 — a Haas milestone to usher in a new millennium.

Perrin assessed vintages of the 1990s. He considers 1990 "one of the best" from the southern Rhone and projects optimum drinking of Chateau du Beaucastel Chateauneuf-du-Pape in 2010. There was a difficult harvest in 1991. "We bulked out 50 percent of the juice," he said. "The wine we bottled is soft and fruity and good to drink now." Better fortunes were experienced in 1992, and Perrin used the words "ripe, extracted, elegant and pleasantly soft" to describe the wines. He expects the 1993 wines to show better than 1992s and rates them "more in the style of the 1988."

Mark your calendars to meet Vineyard Brands' Robert Haas at the Ann Arbor Art Association's annual Winefest, Saturday, April 23, at Radisson on the Lake Hotel in Ypsilanti. The reception starts at 6 p.m., followed by a live auction at 7:30 p.m.

Haas is serving as this year's honorary chairman. Tickets are $75 per person. For advance ticket information, call the Art Association, (313) 994-8004. In past years, ticket sales have been brisk, so reserve early if you're interested.

Reduce calories, exercise to lose weight

"The way to lose weight is really very simple," said Peggy Everts, a registered dietitian for Farmington-based HDS Services a food service and hospitality management company. "The best advice I can give you is to listen to what your mother said: 'Eat your vegetables, drink your milk and go out and play!' "

According to U.S. Dietary Guidelines, many older adults require about 1,600 calories which can be obtained by eating the lowest number of recommended servings from each of the five major food groups in the new Food Guide Pyramid.

- Bread, cereal, rice, pasta group — one slice bread, one ounce cereal, ½ cup cooked cereal, rice or pasta, three to four small crackers.
- Vegetable group — one cup raw leafy vegetables, ½ cup other vegetables cooked or chopped raw, ¾ cup vegetable juice.
- Fruit group — one medium apple, banana, or orange, ½ cup chopped, cooked or canned fruit, ¾ cup juice.
- Milk, yogurt, cheese group — 1½ ounces of natural cheese, 2 ounces of process cheese, one cup milk or yogurt.
- Meat, poultry, fish, dry beans, eggs and nuts group — two-three ounces cooked lean meat, poultry or fish, ½ cup cooked dry beans, 1 egg, ⅓ cup nuts or 2 tablespoons peanut butter.

Tips for storing convenience foods

"There is a 'whole new world' of foods on our grocery shelves nowadays," said Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Michigan State University Extension Service, Oakland County office.

Many types of packaging materials are being used now that were unheard of a few years ago. Also, many sugar- and fat-substitutes are incorporated in our food.

"It used to be simple to know which groceries should go in refrigerator or in the cupboard and how long to keep them," said Treitman. "Today, however, the new ingredients and packaging makes it very confusing. The new shelf-stable microwave meals are an example of modern technology. They can remain on the shelf for 18 months because of special packaging."

Since storing these new foods can be confusing, here is some information to help you keep your foods safe.

- Look for the words "refrigerate" or "freeze," "do not freeze," or "refrigerate after opening."
- "Sell by" — means the last day the item should be sold by the store.
- "Best if used by" — the food should retain top eating quality until that date.
- "Expiration date" - the last date a food should be eaten or used.

To help you with ways to store some of today's convenience foods, a new bulletin (E2297 — "Storing Designer and Convenience Foods") is now available.

Order your copy by sending $1.25 to cover postage and handling, specifying booklet name and number, to MSU Extension — Oakland County, 1200 N. Telegraph Road Dept 416, Pontiac, Mich. 48341-0416.

Pickled veggies simply delicious

See Larry Janes column on Taste front.

Balsamic Vegetables

- 1 quart white wine vinegar
- 2½ cups water
- ½ cup extra virgin olive oil
- 1 tablespoon coarse salt
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon fresh ground black pepper
- 1½ teaspoons chopped fresh basil or ½ teaspoon, dried
- 3 medium bell peppers, cut into strips
- 3 medium yellow bell peppers, cut into strips
- ½ medium head cauliflower, cut into bite sized flowerettes
- 10 pearl onions, peeled
- ½ cup balsamic vinegar

In a 4-quart heavy non-aluminum saucepan, combine the wine vinegar, water, olive oil, salt, sugar, pepper and basil. Bring to a boil and simmer 2-3 minutes.

Drop the peppers and cauliflower into the vinegar and return to a boil. Cover and cook 2 minutes. Remove vegetables with a slotted spoon, leaving the marinade in the saucepan.

Place the vegetables in 2 one quart jars. Add the onions to the hot marinade and cook 5 minutes. Remove onions with a slotted spoon and add to the vegetables. Boil the marinade, uncovered for 5 minutes. Remove from the heat and stir in balsamic vinegar and pour the marinade over the vegetables in the jars. Cover all pieces, adding a little more white vinegar, if necessary. Cool, cover tightly and refrigerate. Makes 2 quarts.

Balsamic Vinaigrette

- 18 large cloves garlic, cut into ¼ inch dice
- About ⅔ cup extra virgin olive oil
- 3-6 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
- 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon dark brown sugar
- Salt and fresh ground black pepper to taste

In a medium skillet, slowly cook the garlic in the olive oil over very low heat for 8 minutes or until barely colored. Remove garlic with a slotted spoon and reserve. Turn the heat to medium high and add the vinegars to the oil.

Cook for 1 minute or until the acid has diffused slightly. Add the brown sugar and allow the mixture to bubble slowly for 1 minute. Taste for a sweet/tart balance. You might wish to add a little extra brown sugar or balsamic vinegar to taste.

If the dressing is too sharp, boil for a few moments to boil off some of the vinegars acid. Stir in the reserved garlic and season with salt and pepper. Set aside until ready to serve. Serve over greens, Parmesan Reggiano and Prosciutto and toss lightly. Makes about 1 cup.

A SNACK WITH A LITTLE POP

Popcorn has been enjoyed as a popular food for as long as native Americans have inhabited the Americas. One of five types of corn, popcorn orginated on this continent and was used by the Aztecs (among others) as both a food and a decoration. During the first Thanksgiving at Plymouth in 1621, Massasoit, leader of the Wampanoags, offered popcorn as an after-dinner treat. Popcorn gets its pop from the fact that each kernel contains a tiny amount of moisture. When heated, this moisture turns to steam and expands sufficiently to explode its housing. The soft starch inside the kernel expands to give popcorn its characteristic shape and texture. One ounce of plain popped popcorn contains only 100 calories and 1 gram of fat.

Popcorn not only offers more fiber than such snack foods as potato or corn chips, but it is also low in fat. But if chips are your snack food of choice, come in and try one of the many brands we carry that are made without artificial flavoring or linseed oil. Some of our brands are lower in fat, too. The GOOD FOOD CO., a natural food supermarket, is Michigan's largest discount natural food source. We offer greater variety and better prices on natural foods than you will find in any other supermarket. We are conveniently located at 42615 Ford Rd. If you have any questions, please call us at 981-6100, Monday through Saturday from 9:00 to 9:00, and Sundays from 10:00 to 6:00.

P.S. One ounce of plain popped popcorn also provides 4 grams of fiber, as well as some iron and niacin.

Select foods that will help you fortify your health

Food fortifies our bodies in an amazing number of ways. Certain nutrients help our immune systems (the series of barriers that protect against invasion from bacteria, viruses and other harmful organisms) slow down changes that can occur with aging, and lower risk of cancer and heart disease.

Some of the most fortifying foods are fruits and vegetables. Citrus fruits, cantaloupes, sweet red and green peppers and papayas are especially nutritious because they are all packed with vitamin C, an important antioxidant. Antioxidants lower the risk of cancer and cataracts by preventing damage to vital cell structures that can come from substances produced during normal body reactions. Vitamin C also blocks the formation of cancer-causing nitrosamines, reducing the danger of stomach cancer.

Leafy green and dark yellow vegetables have other important health boosters: beta-carotene, the form of vitamin A found in plant foods; and folate, a B vitamin. Both are important to a strong immune system, and both work to lower cancer risk.

Broccoli is a good combination source of vitamins A and C, as well as a cancer- fighting substance called sulphoraphane. Broccoli is a cruciferous vegetable, as are cabbage, cauliflower and Brussels sprouts. Protective substances in cruciferous vegetables, called indoles, have been linked with lower cancer risk.

Whole-grain breads and cereals provide dietary fiber, which seems to lower risk of colon cancer, and vitamin E, an immune system booster and another antioxidant that can lower cancer risk. Grains also contain selenium, another type of antioxidant that is also found in seafood and lean meats.

Fish are good sources of omega-three fatty acids, especially fish from cold waters such as salmon, tuna, and sardines. These fatty acids help protect against heart disease and may lower cancer risk. Fish and shellfish also contain zinc, vital to the immune system. Getting zinc from seafood and other foods (lean meats, whole grains and low-fat dairy products) is safer than taking large doses of zinc supplements, which can actually weaken the immune system.

Easy Seafood Stew, a recipe from the American Institute for Cancer Research, combines carrots, garlic, onion, and other vegetables with fish to provide a wealth of nutrients. Serve it with whole-grain bread or rolls.

Easy Seafood Stew

2 cups tomato juice, preferably salt-free
1 cup water
2-3 medium potato
1 cup carrots, slice
4-6 green onions, slice
1-2 cloves garlic, mince
1 cup celery, slice
I bay leaf
½ teaspoon basil
½ pound fish fillets (preferably white-fleshed fish such as cod, flounder, or sole
¼ to ½ pound sea scallops
Pepper to taste

Combine the tomato juice and water in a large saucepan or pot and bring to a boil. Meanwhile, peel the potatoes and chop them into half-inch cubes. Add them to the juice mixture when it is boiling,and lower the heat to a simmer. Chop the carrots, onions, garlic and celery and add to the pot. Add the bay leaf. Simmer the mixture for 15 more minutes, or until potatoes are tender.

If the scallops are large, cut them in half. Cut the fish into chunks the same size as the scallops, and add the fish and scallops to the stew. Add more water if necessary for desired consistency.Simmer for about 5 minutes, or until the seafood is white and opaque, but not over-cooked and rubbery. Season with a dash of pepper, remove the bay leaf, and serve.

Each of the four servings contains 1 to 2 grams of fat and about 215 to 240 calories.

Easy stew: Seafood stew combines carrots, garlic, onion, and other vegetables with fish to provide a wealth of nutrients.

Cranbrook hosts syrup festival

Forget counting calories! Natural cooking is the rage these days, according to Vera Ambrose of 2 Unique catering in Bloomfield Hills.

"With all that measuring, weighing and counting calories, people who diet seem to lose sight of what's good for them. I can't imagine that low calorie diet drinks, for example, are going to benefit you in the long run," Ambrose said. "Natural foods, without preservatives, give your body what it needs."

Pure maple syrup is an ingredient that can add a naturally sweet taste to any dish and, according to Ambrose, can easily take the place of plain sugar or artificial sweeteners.

The perfect opportunity to learn more about the maple sugaring process and buy 100 percent pure maple syrup is during Cranbrook Institute of Science's Maple Syrup Festival. 1-4:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, March 12-13, and 19-20. Admission is included in the regular museum fee of $5 for adults and $3 for children 3-17 and senior citizens. Children under three are free. Dress warm and wear comfortable, water-resistant shoes or boots.

During the festival, visitors will learn how to identify and tap maple trees, collect fresh sap, use an evaporator to boil the sap into syrup, and make maple candy.

Here's a recipe to try from Vera Ambrose and Kelli Lewton of 2 Unique Catering.

Baked Midwest Apples

6 Granny Smith apples, cored and cut into pieces
2 cups of water
12 ounces maple syrup
12 ounces dried cherries
½ cup walnuts, toasted
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Put apples and dried cherries in a glass baking dish. Mix together water, ½ of the maple syrup and cinnamon.

Pour mixture over top and bake at 350. Continue basting apples with maple syrup until apples become tender. Garnish with walnuts.

Baked Midwest Maple Apples is a great side dish for baked chicken or pork.

Cereal adds crunch to snacks

Fiber is an important part of a healthful diet. A good way to include fiber in the diet is eating a bowl of whole-grain or high-fiber cereal.

Another way is snacks. Snacks are as varied as your imagination. Keep track of foods you're likely to snack on, then switch to more healthy choices, such as cereal based snacks. You can give added flavor and crunch to any snack by using high-fiber cereal as an added ingredient or topping.

Tips for baking yeast breads

AP — The satisfaction of baking your own bread scores twice. First, there's the pleasure of working the dough with your hands. Then comes the delight of biting into a still-warm slice of wheaty goodness.Your satisfaction is guaranteed if you follow the yeast-bread baking primer below.

Getting a Rise from yeast

Working with yeast requires care and attention, whether you're using regular or quick-rise yeast. (Quick-rising yeast can be a great shortcut for bread bakers, as it can cut the dough's rising time by a third.)

Temperatures that are too hot or too cold will kill the yeast, so the bread won't rise. Use a thermometer to make sure the liquid mixture is just the right temperature, and choose a warm, but not hot, area for rising. Find a draft-free area with the optimum temperature of 80 degrees F to 85 degrees F for raising your dough. Our test kitchen recommends the oven for rising.

To use your oven, place the bowl of dough in an unheated oven on the upper rack, then set a large pan of hot water under the bowl on the oven's lower rack.

Kneading tips you need

Kneading develops good bread texture, and the amount of flour you use on the kneading surface will affect the moistness of the dough. You can have a sticky problem if you use too little flour or a tough task if you use too much. Many bread recipes give a range for the amount of flour, so start by using the minimum amount as a guideline. If the dough seems sticky, knead in more flour, a little at a time, but do not go over the maximum amount given.

Terms such as soft dough, moderately soft dough, moderately stiff dough and stiff dough are standard terms used to describe the consistency of bread dough. To achieve the proper stiffness, knead the dough for the suggested length of time and identify the stiffness specified in the recipe.

To double-check that you've kneaded the dough long enough, set a timer for the time period suggested in the recipe. You can take a break during the kneading time; just be sure the total kneading time is as long as the recipe suggests.

Here is how to identify the stiffness of dough:

■ Soft dough is very sticky and is used for breads that don't require kneading, such as batter breads.
■ Moderately soft dough is slightly sticky and may be kneaded on a floured surface. It is used for most sweet breads.
■ Moderately stiff dough is not sticky but yields slightly to the touch. It kneads easily when on a floured surface, and is used for most unsweet breads.
■ Stiff dough is firm to the touch and kneads easily on a lightly floured surface. It will, however, have some resilience and will hold its shape after it is kneaded. Chewy-textured breads, such as French breads, are made from this type of dough.

Judging doneness

Baking the bread to golden perfection also makes for great bread. You easily can check your bread for doneness by tapping the top of the loaf with your finger. When you get a hollow sound, the bread is done. Rolls and coffeecakes don't need to be tapped. When their tops are golden brown, remove them from the oven.

Solving problems

The final measure of success lies in looking at the baked loaf. If you notice any of the following problems, try some of these solutions next time you bake. If your bread is heavy and compact:

Be sure the liquid added to the yeast is at the temperature recommended in the recipe. Check the accuracy of your thermometer.

Don't exceed the maximum amount of flour given in the recipe. Add just enough flour to make the dough the proper stiffness.

Use an oven thermometer to check the temperature of your oven. Baking at too low a temperature can result in heavy bread. If the top crust separates from the bottom of the loaf:

Shape into a loaf by gently pulling dough into a loaf shape and tucking edges beneath.

Loosely cover the loaf with a dish towel or waxed paper during rising.

Let the loaf rise just until nearly double, then pop it into the oven.

If the crust is thick:

Use an oven thermometer to check the temperature of your oven. Baking at too low a temperature can result in a thick crust.

If the texture is crumbly:

Be sure not to add too much flour. Use the amount of flour called for in the recipe.

Let the dough rise just until double for the first rising, then until nearly double for the second rising.

Don't leavé food on counter to defrost

"My mother still insists on defrosting her meat on the counter, how can I convince her that this isn't safe?"

This is a very commonly asked question on the Food and Nutrition Hotline, said Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Michigan State University Extension, Oakland County office.

There is good reason to be concerned. Food should never be defrosted at room temperature because bacteria can multiply rapidly and may cause food poisoning. Some "old time" methods of food handling may no longer be safe.

Call the Food and Nutrition Hotline for help, 858-0904.

Festive ice cream cake has minty taste

AP — What's green as a shamrock, zesty as an Irish jig and perfect for St. Patrick's Day on March 17? A mint ice cream cake.

This festive cake has a rich, luxurious taste that belies its easy preparation: a simple matter of refreshing mint chocolate chip ice cream nestled in a quick buttery shortbread cookie crust. The finishing touches consist of a crown of sweetened whipped cream and easy-to-make chocolate shamrocks.

Mint Ice Cream Cake

5½-ounce package shortbread cookies
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
¼ cup butter, melted
½ gallon mint chocolate chip or pistachio ice cream, slightly softened
½ cup heavy (whipping) cream
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
3 Chocolate Shamrocks (recipe below)

In the bowl of a food processor, place cookies; process until crushed; transfer to a small bowl. With a fork, stir in sugar and melted butter until crumbs are moistened.

In a 9-inch springform pan, press crumb mixture over the bottom; place in freezer until set; about 30 minutes. Spread ice cream evenly over crumb mixture; cover and freeze until firm, about 3 hours.Fifteen minutes before serving, in a medium bowl with an electric mixer, whip heavy cream and the 1 tablespoon sugar until stiff peaks form. Remove cake from freezer; pipe whipped cream around edge.Arrange three Chocolate Shamrocks in the center. Let cake stand at room temperature for 10 minutes before serving. Makes one 9-inch cake (12 servings).

To make Chocolate Shamrocks: Line a baking sheet with waxed paper. Make a shamrock template by drawing a 2-inch shamrock on cardboard; cut out. Using the shamrock template, trace three shamrocks onto waxed paper; set aside.

Melt 2 squares (2 ounces) semisweet chocolate. Scrape into a small, resealable plastic bag; snip off one corner from the bag to form a very small hole; trace shamrock outlines with chocolate, filling in centers with chocolate. Freeze until firm. When ready to use, remove carefully from waxed paper.

Produce pointers

Here are some answers to your produce questions from the Produce Marketing Association.

I've heard that excess handling of fruits and vegetables can cause them to shrivel or wilt. Why does that happen?

Fruits and vegetables are made up of mostly water. In fact, water accounts for 80 to 90 percent of the composition of most items. Obviously, rough handling, which causes damage, will promote significant water loss.

Most fruits and vegetables are covered with a natural wax. Excess handling, even if done gently, can remove the natural coating of wax and again will promote moisture loss.

Mechanic puts fix on tourney

Mr. Goodwrench has opened shop in Observerland, just in time for March Madness.

How about a little diagnostic work, for starters, from your certified auto mechanic? Open up the hood, please.

And speaking of starters, let's rev up some high school basketball information as the state boys tournament unfolds (not to be confused with manifold) tonight.

I've put in some exhausting hours handicapping each area team.

Let's go over the checklist before we turn the ignition and give it a go. (Records are through Friday).

OIL, LUBE & FILTER

Redford Catholic Central (14-4): Probably the area's most surprising team after winning the Catholic League championship. Detroit Henry Ford, with shot blocking and rebounding whiz Maurice Taylor, provides a major obstacle in Class A district at Southfield. This Shamrock team should keep on humming into the regional.

Plymouth Canton (14-6): Shortly after the holidays, somebody mounted a V-8 engine in this vechicle. This is another team with a lot of get up and go. Kudos should go to coach Dave Van Wagoner for getting the Chiefs this far. Rival Salem stands in the way at Northville, but Canton, led by sharpshooter Matt Paupore, is ready to roll.

TUNE-UP

Redford Bishop Borgess (13-7): The Spartans are playing in their own garage and could get through in Class C, but Catholic League A-East West champ Orchard Lake St. Mary may be the favorite. Guard Charles Smith is quiet, but silky smooth for Borgess. The loss of Perry Robinson (left team) won't make a difference.

FRONT-END ALIGNMENT

Plymouth Salem (17-3): Won several close games throughout the year, but late season tailspin, plus adversity, has the Rocks feeling a bit shaky. If healthy, senior center James Head needs to play more with the fire of a Dennis Rodman if the Rocks are going to get through the Northville district.

Westland John Glenn (15-4): We know 6-foot-9 Guy Rucker can block shots and rebounds like a Cadillac (not Anderson), but how about getting him the ball more in post position? The Rockets have a tough road to hoe at the Romulus district with the likes of the host Eagles, Livonia Franklin, Wayne Memorial or state ranked Belleville (in the final).

COOLING SYSTEM

Farmington (13-7): Want to drag? Check out that dual exhaust. Let's squeal some tires. This is by far Observerland's most hot-headed group, but the talent is there if they play together. Coach Denny Mikel's team is the favorite at Bloomfield Hills Lahser. A rare trip to the regional is not out of the question.

WHEEL BALANCING

Wayne Memorial (15-5): Coach Chuck Henry has had to change the sparkplugs a few times this season. If the Zebras are firing on all Pistons (not Detroit), they could challenge Belleville and Glenn. Wayne needs to connect more on a consistent basis from the perimeter. Watch out for freshman Lorenzo Guess.

MUFFLERS & TAILPIPES

Livonia Franklin (10-10): The Patriots are capable of giving just about any Observerland team a battle, but a weak bench a lack of team defense keeps them from pulling off that big upset. A dangerous team, however, because they can run the floor and score.

Farmington Harrison (11-9): The Hawks did not make the Western Lakes playoffs, but belonged there anyway. Calvin Pruitt is a formidable post player. Farmington can't overlook this team Wednesday night.

North Farmington (10-10): Another team capable of winning the wide open Lahser district. They have size (Evan Ellis and Scot Lord) and a capable guard in John Pennala running the point. Lost to Glenn last week by only two.

STRUTS

Redford Thurston (16-4): Joining the Mega Conference's Blue Division did wonders for this team. The Eagles have enjoyed a banner season, but getting through the Class B district at Bloomfield Hills Andover district is remote. Waiting in the wings is Birmingham-Detroit Country Day, which lost Chris Webber to Golden State, but signed a sensational freshman named Shane Battier.

BRAKES (DRUM & DISC)

Livonia Stevenson (6-14): Believe it or not, the Spartans have a shot of reaching the Northville district final with a victory tonight against a mediocre Novi team (the winner plays Churchill). Coach Jim McIntyre and assistant Tim Newman, however, will have to reach deep into their bag of tricks to pull that off.

Livonia Churchill (6-14): The Chargers are trying to lay a foundation for the future under coach Tom Lang. But the new models are not in just yet, so Churchill must use the same old parts that have lacked offensive consistency all year long.

TRANSMISSION

Redford Union (7-12): The Panthers open district play at Southfield against arguably the state's premier inside player — Maurice Taylor of Detroit Henry Ford. The Michigan signee is the Detroit Public School League's best shot blocker since Terry Tyler. If Taylor doesn't show up, however, RU has a chance.

Garden City (5-15): Coach Greg Williamson has a monumental task ahead of him tonight against state ranked Belleville. Can't we bring the old timers like Rick Drewitz, Dave Jackson, Harold Slade, Jack Hayes and Dave Niles back one more time to teach this Belleville team a real lesson?

SHOCKS

Lutheran High Westland (9-11): The Warriors won the West Division of the Metro Conference, but now they're playing against the big boys (Tuesday against host Bishop Borgess). Chris Tiernan, John Smolka and Jimmy Hoeft can score, but can Lutheran Westland withstand the Spartans' full-court pressure.

Livonia Clarenceville (10-9): Can interim coach Rick Larson pull a Steve Fisher at tournament time? At least we know, as Bo Schembechler once said, "He's a Clarenceville man." The luck of the draw pits the Trojans against Catholic League playoff champ Orchard Lake St. Mary's.

Hail to the Chiefs — 74-56

In a struggle between relative strangers — at least in terms of the Western Lakes Activities Association basketball final — a mix of determination and defense proved difficult to dislodge. Plymouth Canton had both, parlaying them into a league title.

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Tadarius Rachal proudly reminded anyone standing in the vicinity of the Plymouth Canton locker room that what happened Friday night — Canton's 74-56 triumph over Farmington in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship basketball game at Northville — fulfilled his prediction of a year ago.

"I told you so," Rachal said. "I told you on the last day of last year we'd win it."

Rachal's promise was filled with something the Chiefs lacked early this season, when they lost four of their first six games: confidence. Not that they didn't believe in themselves, or in the pressure defense coach Dave VanWagoner preached, or in their ability to rebound with bigger teams.

But it took a while for it all to mesh. After their loss to Plymouth Salem in their WLAA opener, it did — to the tune of 12 wins in their last 14 games.

Farmington's season followed a different flow. The Falcons, normally a team scratching to reach the break-even mark, won seven of their first eight. Their most lethal weapon: quickness.

When two teams built on speed meet for the championship, something has to give. It did.

"They're too quick for us," said Falcon coach Denny Mikel. "That's the bottom line."

The end came early for Farmington — in the first two quarters, when the Falcons managed to make just 5-of-29 shots. Canton was in control, with a 37-21 advantage at the half.

Defense again paved the path to victory for the Chiefs. The Falcons simply could not find many good shots, and when they did, they couldn't convert.

"We didn't shoot the ball well, but they did a good job of not letting us shoot the ball," Mikel said. "We got in a hole early and never did get out of it. They're too good a team to get that far down to. We have no excuses. I think the better team won today."

VanWagoner called Farmington "one of the quicker teams we've played." Then he smiled and added, "But we're the quickest team in the league."

How bad was it? Scott Menser, Farmington's long-range threat, scored 12 points but hit just 4-of-18 shots. Steve Juncaj, another top Falcon scorer, was 2-of-6, getting just five points.

The first quarter was more than half over before Menser buried a 25-foot three-pointer — and that was Farmington's first basket. It trimmed Canton's lead to 9-7 with 3:35 left.

That was as close as the Falcons got. Their only lead in the game came on Stan Lewis' two free throws 18 seconds into the opening quarter.

After Menser's triple, Canton outscored Farmington 11-4 to take a 20-11 advantage into the second quarter — which they started with a 9-1 run. By halftime it was 37-21, with Ron Hunter scoring 10, Matt Paupore nine and Rachal seven in the first half for Canton.

But the Chiefs have a multiple assault group, and it was Ted Docks that got them jump-started in the third quarter, scoring the first basket and making three steals in the opening two minutes. That fueled a 12-4 streak that dug that hole even deeper for the Falcons — 49-25.

Finding a way: Canton's Ron Hunter illustrates what the Chiefs did so well Friday against Farmington, powering past Steve Juncaj and Kevin Afflerbaugh to the basket.

They didn't give up, however; they scored the next nine points to narrow the gap to 15. But Canton closed the third quarter almost the same way they started it — with a 12-5 run, which made it 61-39 entering the fourth.

The Chiefs struggled through the first half of the final period, and the Falcons closed again, outscoring them 17-5 in the first 5:05 to make it a 10-point game, 66-56. Jason Jackson's eight points led the comeback.

But there wasn't enough time. As VanWagoner put it, the difference was "our defense and this tremendous desire to win. Our guys just wouldn't be denied tonight."

Paupore ended up with a game-high 20 points. Hunter had 14, Rachal 11 and Rob Radney nine. For Farmington, joining Menser in double figures was Lewis with 17 — but just 11-of-21 from the free throw line — and Jackson with 12.

"There's no doubt they're a quick team, and that's the only thing we have going for us," Mikel summarized. "When we play a quicker team, we're in trouble."

Against Canton, the trouble started early and never really subsided.

Rocks, minus star, overcome Mustangs

Plymouth Salem showed a great deal of grit in its final regular-season basketball game, overtaking Northville on its home court to post a 63-55 victory in the consolation game of the Western Lakes Activities Association Tournament Friday.

Salem takes a 17-3 record into the state tournament. Northville is 12-8.

The Rocks trailed 42-41 entering the last period. They were playing without their 6-foot-6 all-league forward, James Head, who was sidelined with an illness that has plagued him for the past three weeks.

In addition, coach Bob Brodie remained out of action, attending to his 14-year-old son Joe, who suffered a severe neck injury in a skiing accident 11 days ago. Surgery was performed last Tuesday.

■ BASKETBALL

Both Head and Brodie could be back for Salem's first state district game, which will be Wednesday against the Plymouth Canton-Northville winner.

In the win over Northville Friday, the Rocks started the final quarter with a vengeance. They outscored the Mustangs 14-4 in the first half of the period, getting six points from Harold Shanks and five from Doug Herriman to go up, 55-46. Northville never got closer than five after that; Salem posted a 22-13 fourth-quarter advantage.

James McDonald, working inside against the much-bigger Mustangs — their starting front line measures 6-foot-11, 6-7 and 6-6 — paced Salem with 18 points. Dan McKian netted 14 and Herriman had 10. Northville got 15 from Josh Williams and 12 from John Farrar.

■ GREENHILLS 62, PCA 44: Plymouth Christian Academy struggled in the first half, and it got the Eagles into a hole they could not clamber out of in their regular-season finale Friday at Ann Arbor Greenhills.

PCA finishes its regular season with a 9-11 record; Greenhills is 11-8.

The Eagles trailed 20-10 after one quarter and 37-17 at the half. The deficit grew to 52-27 entering the final period.

Aaron Jones' 10 points and five rebounds led PCA. Ryan Thomason had nine assists.

Salem gets just what it needs for title run

Go ahead and try — plan an intricate strategy. Leave no detail unexamined in plotting a preseason path toward winning a second straight state title.

Know what? No hypothetical map could do a better job guiding a team to that goal than the route followed by Plymouth Salem's girls gymnastics team this season.

As Rocks' coach Johanna Anderson admitted after her team easily won the Region II championship Saturday at Plymouth Canton, "We're in a good position to repeat."

No arguing that, not after examining Saturday's results. Salem won with 143.15 points, which, pending other regional results, edged the state's previous best team score this year — 143.00, posted by Birmingham Seaholm.

Canton was second with 137.25 and Ann Arbor Huron was third with 135.40. All three teams qualify for the state meet, which will begin at 3:30 p.m. Friday at Westland John Glenn.

Glenn placed sixth in the 17-team region with 133.85, and Wayne Memorial was 16th with 42.65.

OK, everyone figured Salem and Canton would finish 1-2 in the region. But going into the meet, Anderson had another concern. "It's always nice to have an extra girl or two in each event," she explained while awaiting Saturday's final results.

Teams that qualify can take their top four scorers to state. If they have more than four among the top eight finishers in each individual event (top six in the all-around), however,

Rocks crack Chiefs to earn region berth

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem reasserted itself Saturday in the Class A district volleyball tournament at Livonia Churchill, capturing the title with a 15-7, 15-1 win over rival Canton.

The Rocks, now 38-6-6 overall, looked more like the team that had gone 11-0 during the Western Lakes Activities Association regular-season schedule.

They wiped out a week's frustration on the same court after being stung the previous week in the WLAA playoffs. The Rocks were ousted in pool play on a tiebreaker by one point.

Ironically, Churchill, the WLAA playoff champion, was eliminated in Saturday's semifinals by upstart Canton, 15-10, 15-8.

Salem, meanwhile, clobbered Northville in the other semifinal, 15-1, 15-1.

"I just think the kids were refocused, that's all," Salem co-coach Brian Gilles said. "I'm not saying getting eliminated last week was the sole reason we came back and played well today.

"We had a tremendous week of practice and it showed in the way we played. I just think we were too good a team not to come through this thing."

The fired-up Rocks won their second straight district crown as junior Paula Dombrowski recorded 14 kills on the day. Teammate Julie McGurrin served nine aces.

In the final, Karen Gundry and setter Erin Koch each contributed four kills. Sophomore Shellye Sills had two blocks.

See VOLLEYBALL, 2C

they can take additional entries. Only the top four in each event count in the team's score, but the insurance could come in handy.

Salem has that insurance — in every event. As expected, Canton's Katey Gilles extended her unbeaten string in all-around competition with a masterful performance. Gilles won every event, scoring 9.6 in the vault, 9.2 in the uneven parallel bars, 9.35 in the balance beam and 9.55 in the floor exercise. Her first-place all-around total was 37.70.

The surprise came after that. The next five in the all-around standings were all from Salem: Melissa Hopson, second (36.80); Alysia Sofios, third (35.65); Sarah Makins, fourth (35.30); Zoe Yockey, fifth (34.90); and Kristen Kosik, sixth (34.65). All five qualified for each event at state.

"I didn't know that was going to happen," said Anderson. "It makes me really happy, especially to have our best (team) score now. Now we need to do that next week."

That is, was gratifying to see her team peaking at the right time — particularly after the Rocks' somewhat shaky start. "We've progressively improved all year," she said. "This has been a much more difficult year. Last season we had tremendous depth. We didn't lose all year. By the time we got to state, everybody figured we were going to win.

"But we lost two top gymnasts. This year we've been the underdogs all season. Our goal at the beginning of the year was to be in the top three at state. Now I think we can win it."

Again, depth is the key to Salem's success. The Rocks have five Division I gymnasts; Canton has one (Gilles). When Sofios returned (she missed part of the season due to a commitment to the cheerleading squad), it seemed to push them over the hump.

"She definitely adds to the team score," said Anderson. "She gives us more depth. The whole idea is to have five girls qualify."

Which the Rocks did.

Canton's Gilles, meanwhile, will be gunning to become the first freshman to win the Division I all-around championship in five years (the last was Salem's Kim Miller, in 1989).

Canton coach John Cunningham wasn't overjoyed with his team's performance — "We had a decent meet. I was pleased we got second," he said — but it got his team where he wanted it to be, the state final.

As for Salem, the stars must be in the right alignment: having to overcome the loss of two top gymnasts, battling the underdog's role, finishing poorly (for them) at early season invitationals, then getting Sofios back.

Factor in that many of the state's top teams were at the Rochester regional, which means it will be more difficult for them to qualify more than four per event, and it's easy to envision what the future holds for the Rocks.

Complete meet results will appear in Thursday's Observer.

Koch finished with a total of 36 assists in four games.

"This week we were ready," Salem senior captain Jamey Viau said. "We had to come out and play confident. Last week we came out kind of scared. We were unsure of what would happen."

The Rocks were completely sure of themselves against Canton, pulling away after struggling to a 7-5 lead in the opening game. Salem continued that momentum, dominating the second game.

"Our serve reception and passing broke down," said Canton coach Melinda Cain, whose team bowed out at 9-19-5 overall. "Salem played real well. They have a solid team and both coaches (Gilles and Allie Suffety) do a solid job."

Behind the hitting of Ndu Okwumabua and Kristie Drinkhahn, along with the serving of Amber Wells, Canton was able to stun host Churchill.

"We just clicked against Churchill," Cain said. "We set up a new defense and it worked. And we didn't miss any passes. Every pass was right there."

Churchill, which had beaten Canton in three previous meetings, bowed out with a 21-9-7 record.

"For whatever reason, we were not the same team today," said Churchill coach Mike Hughes, who loses three seniors to graduation, including All-WLAA selection Aimee Cousino. "We had four bad practices in a row and it showed. Not everybody was into playing this day.

"Ndu played really well, but their other kids did a good job of giving her the ball. Give the Canton kids credit."

Salem advances to the regional this Saturday (March 12) at Berkley. The Rocks will meet Farmington Hills Mercy in one semifinal.

"To win, we really have to keep doing the fundamental things," Viau said. "We have to keep working on our serving and our passing, and be confident."

Traylor carries Pilots past CC

By Steve Kowalski
Staff Writer

If there is a high school basketball player capable of stopping Detroit Murray-Wright junior center Robert Traylor in the low post, Traylor is still looking for him.

"It's possible (to find someone)," said Traylor, a 6-foot-9, 290-pounder. "But I can't give you the exact name."

Traylor scored 26 points and grabbed nine rebounds as Murray-Wright defeated Redford Catholic Central, 79-61, in the Operation Friendship game Saturday at the University of Detroit-Mercy's Calihan Hall.

Traylor turns 17 this year. Imagine how big he'll be when he quits growing.

Traylor made nine of 13 shots, including three monster dunks, and also helped redirect several CC shots in the paint. The Shamrocks led 14-12 after one quarter and trailed 35-31 at halftime before making only eight of 29 shots from the field in the second half.

Murray-Wright, 15-3 overall and ranked No. 1 in Class A, led 51-46 after three quarters and scored the first nine points of the fourth quarter to stop CC's upset bid.

CC fell to 14-5 overall.

Isiah Carter, a 6-7 junior forward who looks puny next to Traylor, scored 10 of his 12 points in the second half for the Pilots. Senior guard Edward Novell contributed 15 points and fed Traylor for several easy baskets, including an alley-oop dunk with 6:55 remaining that gave Murray-Wright a 59-46 lead.

Murray-Wright outrebounded CC 45-34. CC made only four of 19 shots in the fourth quarter and was 19 of 57 for the game (33 percent).

"No. 54 (Traylor) is a franchise, there's no doubt about it," CC coach Bernie Holowicki said. "We doubled on Traylor a lot and left 12 (Novell) open too much. I'm not happy with the way we played. Before the game, we were in awe of 54 and lost some edge. We had a satisfied look that what we've accomplished is fine."

Senior guard Andy Slankster and 6-6 senior center Joe Daly played gutsy games for CC.

Slankster scored 21 points, including a trio of three-point shots, and Daly did his best against Traylor, scoring 17 points on six-of-nine shooting to go with a game-high 11 rebounds.

The Shamrocks trailed by as many as 10 early in the third quarter, but Justin Hoener's three-point play cut the deficit to 44-41 with 3:01 remaining. Murray-Wright failed to score on its next possession and CC could have tied the score, but Mike Ridley's three-point shot was no good.

A layup by Novell and a putback by William Messenger put Murray-Wright up 48-41 in the last minute of the third quarter.

Ridley, a junior guard, made only two of nine shots and scored five points. Senior guard Andy Kummer was held scoreless.

Traylor sat the last 3:01 of the third period because of foul trouble but scored nine points in the fourth quarter.

Heady's late tally lifts CC past Rice

By Marty Budner
Staff Writer

■ HOCKEY

Jon Heady has scored some huge goals for Redford Catholic Central in the past couple of years.

He added to his legend Saturday evening in the Class A regional championship game against archrival Birmingham Brother Rice.

A senior winger playing over a badly injured foot, Heady notched the goal that lifted the Shamrocks to a thrilling 2-1 victory before an overflow crowd of nearly 2,000 spectators at the Redford Ice Arena.

CC (21-1-2) now plays Trenton at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Wyandotte's Yack Arena in the state quarterfinals.

Heady's goal came just 24 seconds after junior forward Danny Hunt had tied the game for CC at 1-1 with 2:17 left in regulation time.

CC fans will recall that Heady scored a goal with 12 seconds left in regulation time to force overtime in last year's regional semifinal clash against Livonia Stevenson. Then he won the game in overtime.

"I thought that was the greatest feeling last year," said Heady. "But this goal, coming against a big-time rival like Brother Rice, was even bigger. I just shot it at the net knowing anything could happen, and it went my way."

The Shamrocks, who lost and tied Rice during the regular season, were very fortunate in this game.

Brother Rice dominated the first two periods, outshooting the Warriors by a 22-7 margin. The only Rice tally came early in the game when Mike Jalaba wristed a shot home after a scramble in front of the net.

The Warriors could have had four more goals had it not been for the fine play of CC's senior goalie Michael Brusseau. One of the best saves came just before CC's opening goal, when Brusseau stopped Rice forward Dale Romiski from five feet out on a hard wrist shot.

CC finally started to attack midway through the final period. The pressure paid off when Hunt scored on a breakaway late in the period off assists from Eric Vaquera and Jeffery Lachapelle.

Then it was Heady's time to shine. Heady picked up the puck at his own blue line, skated hard down the right side, beat a Rice defender and cut into the net, where he shot the puck toward Rice goalie Kris Arthur. The puck deflected off of Arthur's stick and into the upper corner of the net.

COLLEGE SPORTS

■ SOUTHERN STARS

The University of Alabama in Huntsville has the distinction of being the No. 1-ranked team in the nation — in NCAA Division II hockey.

The reason for their lofty status (the Chargers were 19-4-1 entering last weekend) is largely due to northern influence. Nine of their players are from the Detroit/Windsor area, including All-America candidate Tony Guzzo of Canton.

A 20-year-old freshman right wing, Guzzo ranked sixth in the NCAA II in both goals (17) and scoring (38 points). He is also tied with teammate Garry Symons for seventh in short-handed goals with two.

A Plymouth Canton graduate, Guzzo attended Henry Ford CC and played junior A hockey for Michigan National, where he was coached by A.J. Baker, who runs the Michigan Summer Hockey League in Plymouth.

Guzzo isn't the only Observer-land connection. There's Mark Hernandez, a 23-year-old junior right wing from Livonia (Redford Catholic Central). An honor roll student majoring in electrical engineering, Hernandez has nine goals and 13 assists.

Alabama in Huntsville has a good chance to host the NCAA II playoffs this weekend. If it does, it will be the first NCAA ice hockey tournament south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Lady Ocelots look sharp in splitting regional pair

■ SCHOOLCRAFT

Well, the performance of Schoolcraft College's women's basketball team at the NJCAA II Region 12 Tournament last week proved something after all.

It proved something could be accomplished in what might have seemed a meaningless, wasted trip.

After the Lady Ocelots lost 69-49 at Henry Ford Community College in the opening round of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association Tournament Feb. 21, many at SC thought there was no reason to go to the even-tougher regional tournament and travel to Muskegon CC for it.

With coach Jack Grenan unable to get time away from work, it seemed likely SC would pass. But instead, with assistant coach Will Broner taking over the coaching duties, it was decided to give it a shot.

The decision was a good one. The Ocelots got a clutch free throw from Dawn Newlin with two seconds left to edge Flint Mott 65-64 in their first game Wednesday, then battled St. Clair CC — ranked third in the NJCAA II — all the way before falling 87-82 Thursday.

"I didn't do anything differently," said Broner. "I think it was that suddenly the players started to believe in what they can do."

Broner has been Grenan's assistant for six years; these were the third and fourth games he has substituted for him.

The win over Mott was anything but easy. The two teams had split their regular-season series, and both games were close. This one was no different; SC's halftime lead was just 33-31.

With the game tied and the clock running down in the second half, Newlin was fouled. Following a Mott timeout, she missed the first free throw but got the second one to fall for the game-winning point.

Tricia Kazyaka, playing her best basketball of the season, led SC with 16 points and nine rebounds. Alisa Wechter had 14 points, Angie Cerne 12 and Cindy Muha 10. Sonya Booth triggered Mott's attack with eight three-pointers and a game-high 29 points. Amy Pabal added 11.

Against St. Clair, which has won three straight Eastern Conference titles, SC fell behind 45-34 at the half and never caught up. However, the Ocelots battled throughout.

"We hung with the third-ranked team in the country," said Broner. "The effort was there. We made some mental errors, but we overcame them."

SC trailed by 16 midway through the second half before making a run that sliced the deficit in half. St. Clair's Karen Pruitt popped in two threes, however, late in the game to decide it.

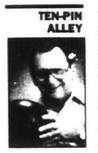
Pruitt finished with 21 points, including five triples. Alicia Kollmorgen led St. Clair with 29; Jenny Storm added 19.

For the Ocelots, who end their season 13-13, Kazyaka had 22; Julie Klos scored 13; Cerne netted 11; and Muha and Newlin scored 10 apiece.

With the possibility of eight players returning next season — Cerne and Wechter are sophomores — the lessons learned in this tournament could prove valuable indeed.

Annual City Tournament starts off DWBA's 75th year

TEN-PIN ALLEY



AL HARRISON

Last Saturday marked the kickoff of the 69th Annual Detroit Women's Bowling Association City Tournament at Cloverlanes in Livonia.

The DWBA is also celebrating its 75th year. The opening ceremonies included introductions of the officers of the local associations, the press and other notables who were on hand.

Hall-of-Famer Mary Mohacsi threw the traditional first ball in which $50 per pin was pledged by the Bowling Centers Association to the Capuchin Soup Kitchen. Mary raised $350 with a seven-count.

After the national anthem and the announcement of Let the Games Begin! the ladies took to the lanes.

The Elite from Redford Lanes was the team leader after the first week. Kimberlie A. Torchala and Cynthia M. Kuppke from Fountainview Lanes were the top doubles team followed by Debra Flake and Nina Glymph from Redford Lanes.

The top five in the singles event: Susan M. Fleck (153 average) from Mayflower Lanes with 759, including 172 pins in handicap; Deborah O'Connor (143) aslo from Mayflower Lanes with 757 (196 handicap), Nannetta Thomas (146) From Drakeshire with 752 (189 handicap), Sharon E. Schmidt (148) from Hartfield Lanes with 752 (184 handicap), and Jo Ann Harrison (140) from Redford Lanes with 750 (204 handicap).

The leader in all-events is Louise Traylor from Drakeshire Lanes in Farmington Hills with a total of 2230 pins, including a nice handicap of 813 added to her 1417 actual.

The women's event will conclude Sunday, March 20, followed by the Men's City Tournament, which begins the following weekend at Cloverlanes.

■ Garden City is the home of some of the area's finest bowlers, and this fact comes to light even more with the recent victory by Rick Eiermann in the Stroh's Beer Michigan Majors Bowling Association Tournament at Friendly Sterling Lanes.

There were a total of nine records shattered before Eiermann emerged victorious. He was perfect in his final game to complete a perfect weekend. Eiermann rolled only the second 300 game on a MMBA televised show and was the first bowler to collect the added bonus of $1,000 from the Stroh Brewery for a perfect game rolled on the TV show.

Eiermann beat Joe Hill of Battle Creek in the final match 300-239 with the added thrill of having his wife watching. He also had a 300 game in the qualifying round, set a record for the highest 12-game finals (3063 total/255 average) and averaged 253.75 on TV. Only one word can describe this performance: awesome!

Other Observerland bowlers cashing in in the event: Lee Snow, Farmington, 14th; Mike Mitchell, Westland, 32nd; Steve Klein, Canton, 33rd; Bryan Macek, Canton, 41st; Julius Maisano, Redford, 46th; Jack Treolar, Farmington, 54th; and Tony Stipcak, Redford 59th.

610 Card of Thanks

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT Holy Spirit, You make me see everything & show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive & forget the wrongs that are done to me & You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything & confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, my Loved One, in Your perpetual glory. Amen.

HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)
Good fortune is on the way, and it is just in time. A new start and a different direction will work out well for you. It will be a whole new life.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)
Business may be on an upswing, and you will be handling many different projects. Love may be where you are not looking.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Patience is not one of your greatest virtues, but that is what you need to get out of your current troubles. A new avenue of wealth will present itself.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
Things will be set in motion that will change the rest of your life. It takes time, but you will be successful in your efforts.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
You are going to have to deal with an uncomfortable issue, whether you want to or not. You will gain knowledge through this life lesson.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
Come to terms with what is happening in your life by turning away from the negative side of it. Though the future looks grim, it isn't.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

CBS' new romantic comedy stars two Oscar winners

By John Crook

Academy Award winners Katharine Hepburn and Anthony Quinn star in "This Can't Be Love," a romantic comedy premiering Sunday, March 13, on CBS.

Hepburn plans Marion Bennett, a strong-willed and renowned actress who lives with her housekeeper and her new chauffeur, Grant Landis (Jason Bateman). Although he finds his new employer demanding and intimidating, Grant begins to feel protective when Michael Reyman (Quinn) re-enters her life.

The dashing Michael once starred opposite Marion, but his career since then has slipped to B-movies and commercials. He hopes to cash in on a very brief and long-ago romance between them by revealing it in his autobiography. Abetting him in his plan is Sarah Wells (Jami Gertz), who is determined to get the "dirt" on Marion that her publisher needs to make Michael's book a success.

"They (Marion and Michael) get along quite well, until she discovers that he's writing a book," reveals director Anthony Harvey. "Then all hell breaks loose."

Harvey's enthusiasm for the project, and for working with the actress he directed to her third Oscar) for "The Lion in Winter"), is evident.

"Tony Quinn is, I think, quite marvelous in it," he says. "And, of course, 'Miss H.' is wonderful when she's up against a great, big, strong, macho actor. That's when she's always at her best. The chemistry of those two was just great."

He also has kind words for Bateman ("a wonderful actor, kind of like a young Jimmy Stewart") and Gertz ("a charming actress, really beautiful").

It's been awhile since the English-born director has been this fired-up about his work. Following "Lion" in 1968, he worked again with Hepburn on her TV acting debut in 1973's "The Glass Menagerie" ("a huge success, we got lots of Emmys," he recalls fondly). Ten years later, the pair went through a nightmare together.

"I did a disastrous film, because it was cut up so badly by Cannon Pictures, called 'The Ultimate Solution of Grace Quigley.' It got the most devastatingly good reviews in England. Then it went to Cannes for something," Harvey says. "Apparently Rex Reed saw it and told (Cannon producer) Menahem Golan that he thought it was lousy. And Menahem Golan took fright, I suppose, and then we had to reshoot a lot of stuff which didn't work."

The resulting bomb, which co-starred Nick Nolte as a thug hired by an old woman (Hepburn) to help her commit suicide, left the director shaken and scarred. "I have the original cut hidden under my bed and one day I intend...," he says, his voice trailing off. "It was a miserable experience. Terrible. That's why I really haven't done any work for some time. I really needed to go to a rest home after that."

Now, newly energized, he has plunged into his next project, a TV movie about the last days of Leo Tolstoy, to star Anthony Quinn and Liv Ullman. There also is the welcome chance that "The Lion in Winter" will be restored and re-released.

"What's happening is the negative.. is rotting," Harvey explains. "There's a guy called Bob Harris who reconstructed 'Lawrence of Arabia,' and for three-and-a-half years he's been trying to get money to get 'Lion in Winter' back into shape. So far, it's just a hopeless struggle. Too many cooks, too many people (who) have different bits and pieces of it. But things are looking up, so we're hoping in a few months that they'll get the money."

Fan thinks Lucci could be Scarlett

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I think the people who were looking for an actress to portray Scarlett O'Hara in the sequel to "Gone With the Wind" should have considered Susan Lucci (Erica, "All My Children").

I see more and more of Vivian Leigh in her every day. She would be perfect for the role. Could you please give me the address where I can write her?

I also enjoy watching "Guiding Light," but I am not very happy with the show right now. Roger Thorpe (Michael Zaslow) should have been dead and buried a long time ago. This whole story line has gone on for much too long now.

I really miss Harley (Beth Ehlers) and Mallet (Mark Derwin), and I want them to both come back. They add spice to the show.

On "The Young and the Restless," I don't understand why Nina (Tricia Cast) doesn't hire Paul Williams (Doug Davidson) to find her dad. –Dorothy, Chisholm, Minn.

Dear Reader: You are right, Lucci could have handled the part of Scarlett just fine. She has been playing a Scarlett-type character for the last 20 years on "AMC."

The lead role for "Scarlett" has gone to Joanne Whalley-Kilmer, Val Kilmer's wife. The sequel to "Gone With the Wind" will be an eight-hour miniseries on CBS. Ann-Margaret, John Gielgud and Julie Harris are a few of the top stars who will appear on the show.

You may write to Lucci C/O All My Children, ABC-TV, 77 West 66th, New York, NY 10023.

On "Y&R" Paul would be the perfect guy to find Nina's father, but that isn't the way the story is going.

Dear Candace: I am certain that I am not the only one who wishes that Dimitri (Michael Nader) and Erica would get back together before the trial on "AMC."

Dimitri knows that Kendall (Sarah Michelle Gellar) was the one who caused the trouble. –F.L. Simpson, Ridgecrest, Calif.

LET'S TALK

Striking resemblance between a Keaton and a Klingon exposed

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: My brother and I are big fans of "Star Trek: The Next Generation." We want to know the name of the little boy who plays Alexander, Lt. Worf's son, on the show. He looks a little like the boy who played Andy on "Family Ties." –B.B., Crowell, Fla.

A: Good call! Brian Bonsall did indeed play the youngest Keaton on "Family Ties" before going on to portray the little Klingon.

Q: Could you please give me some information on that gorgeous actor Michael Horse who played George Steelman on the TV series "The Untouchables"? Please include an address where I can write to him. –T.M.W. Sherwood, Ore.

A: Horse was brought up on a reservation "near Tucson," where he still maintains strong cultural ties.

He is a world-renowned sculptor, painter and jeweler. He considers himself a staunch Indian activist who lets his art speak for his convictions. His work is displayed in galleries and museums across the globe. Horse never intended to become an actor and claims his entire acting career came about as "a fluke."

One day, the talent agent Horse was renting an art studio from approached him about playing Tonto in the feature "The Return of the Lone Ranger." After careful consideration, he decided to take the role and another career was born.

Other feature film credits include "Passenger 57," "Before I Wake," "Rented Lips," "The Avenging" and "Twin Peaks: Fire Walk With Me."

He has appeared in numerous television series in addition to "The Untouchables," including "The Torkelsons," "Hearts Are Wild," "Paradise" and "Amazing Stories."

You can write to him C/O Rachel McCallister & Associates Public Relations, 5657 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90036

Q: I am at a loss for the name of a TV movie starring Art Carney and a young boy who played his grandson. They raised pigeons together, and in the end of the film the grandson went to the nursing home where Carney was and brought him home. Please help me find the name of this movie, and could you please tell me if it is available on video? –D. Kerr, Cecil, Pa.

Brian Bonsall

A: The movie you are referring to sounds like "The Undergrads" in which Carney and grandson Chris Makepeace enroll in college. I'm not sure about the pigeons, though. The movie was made in 1985 and is available on video.

Q: As a fan of "Northern Exposure," I find that Janine Turner really gives the show the personality it has. I am quite interested in seeing any other work she has done. Please print a list of her previous works. –Chris Whalen, Sedona, Ariz.

A: Turner's first love was dance. At age 12, she won an apprenticeship with the Fort Worth Ballet and branched into theater from there.

Her first television break came on "Dallas," followed by the late-night drama "Behind the Screen." From there she made her way to "General Hospital," where she took over the role of Laura. She also has appeared on "Family Ties," "The Love Boat," "The A-Team" and "Mike Hammer."

Feature film credits include "Young Doctors in Love," "Knights of the City," "Tai-Pan," "Monkey Shines," "Steel Magnolias," "The Ambulance" and "Cliffhanger."

Q: Will you please print an address where I can write to "PrimeTime Live"? –M. Stewart, Carthage, Ill.

A: Write to the show at 147 Columbus Ave., New York, N.Y. 10023.
