Development prompts concerns

Sunflower subdivision residents called plans to erect a buffer between their homes and a new strip mall another "Berlin Wall." Residents are concerned about increased traffic as well as the looks of the proposed wall.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

One resident called a masonry wall designed to buffer a proposed shopping center from Sunflower subdivision homes another Berlin Wall. Other residents questioned the wisdom of yet another strip center in Canton.

"Do we need another Arbor Drug?" Sunflower resident William Ballelli asked. He counted 30 vacancies in strip malls in the township. He was among 11 Sunflower residents who expressed concern about the proposed Westbrook Plaza shopping center on the northwest corner of Warren and Canton Center roads before the Canton Planning Commission Monday.

Residents said they are upset about increased traffic — including the number of entrances to the proposed center as well as other nearby businesses — at an already congested corner, as well as lighting, garbage collection in dumpsters, appearance of the center and a concrete wall between the center and homes.

Planning commissioners tabled developer Mario Tartaglia's request for site plan approval for the center until June 20. The delay will give Tartaglia and residents, as well as representatives of the existing First of America bank, which will share the corner with Westbrook Plaza, time to reach agreement on issues creating concern.

Issues to be discussed include the planting of trees on the residents' side — with the use of an easement

National Merit scholars lauded

Plymouth Canton and Salem high school seniors will don caps and gowns for graduation ceremonies Sunday at Hill Auditorium at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Canton students will receive their diplomas in ceremonies at 1:30 p.m., while Salem's commencement begins at 5 p.m.

Among those honored will be eight National Merit scholars from Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

Canton High School's merit scholars include Piyush Bharti, Kristin Clawson, Bradley Malestein and Laura Packard. Salem's recipients are Derek Clemens, Stephanie Hong, Harry Lee and Michael McClain.

Dr. Jerry Morris, area coordinator at PCEP, gave the students high marks.

"What I like about them is not only are they very bright and self-motivated, but they work well with other kids and are well-rounded. They're involved with a lot of activities and sports, and they're really nice people," he said.

9 trees planted at site

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

If you drive by the New York Carpet World Center and notice something different, you're seeing trees.

Developer Carmen Naccaratto had nine trees planted at the center, some in front of New York Carpet World — where they were illegally removed earlier this year — in compliance with a revised site plan for the shopping center on Ford, just east of Lilley Road.

Naccaratto has requested the required landscape inspection to determine if the plantings comply with the revised plan approved by planning commissioners and township trustees in March. Four of the nine trees must be 6 inches in diameter, which are larger than the minimum 4-inch diameter required in township ordinances. Two of the nine must be 4-inch diameter and three must be 2 1/2-inch diameter.

Naccaratto has had a temporary certificate of occupancy and if the plantings pass muster he will be awarded a final certificate, which will allow him to lease the remaining vacancies, said Paula Preston Bratto, township landscape architect, who will inspect the plantings.

The developer's temporary certificate of occupancy expired recently. But township building officials gave Naccaratto some leeway. "They gave him a little lead time to get the trees in," said Jeff Goulet, township planner.

Township officials held Naccaratto responsible for removing two mature silver maples. The action was in violation of his site plan for the center, which called for preserving the trees. He also received credit for the mature trees, allowing him not to have to plant other ones on the property.

Naccaratto maintains New York Carpet World and the previous leasing agent, American Commercial-Industrial Realty Co. of Southfield, removed the silver maples.

"Like I told township, from the beginning we didn't know what was going on. People do all kinds of crazy things," Naccaratto said, adding he felt he was stuck in the middle between New York Carpet World and the township. "The city (township) has been bad-mouthing me. They are really hurting me with all the newspapers and television. This cost me $3,000 to $4,000 in attorney fees."

But Naccaratto said he is optimistic he can lease the remaining space in his center. "I worked seven days a week to get this center up."

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said he isn't anticipating anymore problems with the center, as long as the new trees are maintained. "If he doesn't, we will be right back at him."

Foundation has 52 applicants for director's job

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

A small group of Canton Community Foundation board members plan to dig in and make their way through 52 applications for the now vacant job of executive director.

"We will look at how we work our way through the 52 names," said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, a foundation board member and member of the screening committee that will sort through applications. The committee was expected to meet Tuesday.

The committee is expected to choose a new executive director by the end of June to replace former director Bill Joyner, whose contract was not extended by board members who said they preferred to have an employee instead of a contractor.

"For the most part, the foundation will remain doing the same things," said board president Mitch Howard. "We are committed to the Canton Family Services, Economic Club, Live Wednesday (a TV show) and the scholarship programs."

The decision not to renew Joyner's more than $30,000 a year contract coincided with decisions to make some changes, such as making the foundation more of an endowment organization. But some board members grew unhappy with Joyner, including his political activities at a time when the foundation is soon to be registered under the Michigan Community Foundation Act, which would allow contributors to receive an income tax credit on state tax returns.

Switching to a full-time employee, board members said, also will cut the foundation's overhead costs. The position would pay $15,000-$18,000.

While the steering committee reviews applications and later conducts interviews, the foundation board has hired Joan Noricks, who has been involved with the foundation, as acting director or temporary administrator. Noricks took the post as of Monday. Joyner continued as executive director through the foundation's annual golf outing June 2. Joyner did not apply for the position.

"I am keeping the status quo," said Noricks, who also applied for the executive director's position. Two foundation staffers also left as of last week.

"They asked for clarification about their futures," Howard said.

Residents object to strip centers

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Some Canton planning commissioners laid it on the line: The township hasn't had the best of luck with strip centers.

Developer Mario Tartaglia, who wants to build the Westbrook Plaza at Canton Center and Warren roads, defended himself. "My projects are all 100-percent leased," he said, adding Arbor Drugs is committed to the center. "If they were all family-type tenants, I would agree (with a poor track record)."

But planning commissioners and Sunflower subdivision residents weren't convinced. "I'm not questioning your credibility, but we have heard this before," said planning commissioner Cathy Johnson. She also questioned — without getting an answer — whether Arbor Drugs was leaving another Canton site for the Westbrook Plaza.

Two other strip centers with Arbor Drugs are proposed. One is an 18,000-square-foot center on the northeast corner of Sheldon and Cherry Hill roads. The other, Century Commons, is proposed for 25,000 square feet at Haggerty and Palmer roads.

Sunflower residents told planning commissioners Monday there's no need for more strip centers. "All of our residents moved out here because we wanted free and open spaces," said resident John Vincenti. "Why don't you have three-four more places signed up (for Westbrook)?"

Resident Rick Atwell referred to Harvard Square shopping center at Sheldon and Ford roads with an Arbor Drugs and Kroger — and several vacancies. "Where are we going? How many is enough?"

Sonia Culver, who lives behind the proposed Westbrook Plaza, spoke about the number of Arbor Drugs coming into Canton, as well as how the center will affect property values. "I can't believe you as a planning commission can't say anything about six Arbor Drugs coming into Canton."

Ted Innis, Sunflower Homeowners Association president, said a majority of complaints he received about Westbrook were about the masonry buffer wall. He also said residents feel there is a lack of commitment about the Running for the four-year seats being vacated by incumbents Les Walker and Carl Battistilli are Carol Bollman, Carolyn Bradley, Susan Davis, Mark Horvath, Peggy Kalis and Steve Kijijanczyk.

The one-year seat is the remainder of trustee Dean Swartzwelder's term. Feiten was appointed last November when Swartzwelder resigned due to health reasons.

Man killed in accident

A 19-year-old Dearborn Heights man was killed in an industrial accident Tuesday afternoon at K-Omega Corp. in Canton.

The man was transported to St. Mary Hospital, Livonia, where his death was confirmed following an accident in which his head was trapped in a forklift at the industrial company, 7780 Ronda, said Tammie Collins, Canton community relations police officer.

Canton police were still investigating the accident late Tuesday. It was unknown how the accident occurred, Collins said.

Playscape organizers seek community support

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Organizers of Canton's proposed volunteer-designed wooden playscape are moving the project along with a fund-raiser and plans to ask area children to design a logo and name for the project, which will likely be in Heritage Park.

"We will have a booth at the Liberty Fest Saturday and Sunday (June 25-26). We're going to ask children of all ages to come up with a name," said Lynne Eckert, who with fellow Sunflower subdivision resident Jan Pickard is spearheading publicity for the playscape. Prizes, one of which will be a hand-painted shirt bearing the new name and logo, will be awarded.

The beauty of the project — unofficially dubbed the Canton Community Playscape — is that adults and children design the structures, which can be as small as 10,000 square feet or as large as 20,000 square feet. Volunteers also raise money for the playscape and when materials are ready will put it together in the manner of traditional American barn-raising.

Township parks and recreation staff will get children who are signed up in park programs and summer camps involved. "We will get kids involved in the schematic designs for the playscape," said Mike Gouin, parks and recreation superintendent.

A fund-raiser for the playscape, which is expected to cost $65,000 to $85,000, will be hosted by Fran Mintz of Jazzercise 9:10-10 a.m. Saturday, July 9, in Heritage Park. All proceeds from the $10 per person registration fee will be donated to the playscape. Before the fund-raiser, Mintz will demonstrate Jazzercise at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, June 26, at the Liberty Fest.

In addition to a publicity committee, residents have jumped on the fund-raising and children's committees. But more involvement is needed, especially someone to lead the special needs committee.

"Ideally that would be a parent of a special needs child who could serve as an advocate and who could steer us to what handicapped accessible equipment we might need on the playscape," said Christine Donaldson, who has spearheaded the playscape effort.

Other committees in need of members are food, child care, donated or purchased materials, tools and volunteers. Most of these committees won't play a significant role until a design for the playscape has been hammered out and work is about to begin, Donaldson said.

Anyone who would like to join the effort should call Donaldson, 397-5909, Eckardt, 454-9745 or Pickard, 416-9428.

Donaldson and other organizers plan to ask Canton trustees June 14 for a donation to help pay an architect from the Leathers company, which has produced more than 1,000 similar playscapes around the country. Organizers will then meet to get the project off the ground July 21 in the south pavilion at Heritage Park.

Organizers who man the booth at the Liberty Fest also plan to provide residents with straight information about the project.

"Some people think Canton is paying for the playscape. People are actually confused by it all. This is not just another park," Eckardt said.

Organizers are certain they want to work with the Leathers company and are certain Heritage Park is the place for the playscape.

"I haven't received any objection to Heritage Park," Donaldson said.

Gouin said the township will donate the land for the playscape though there are a number of sites in the park that would be acceptable. "The architect (from Leathers) should look at the site," he said.

Veteran's D-Day memories still vivid even though a half century has passed

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

It was three days after D-Day — 50 years ago today — when former Plymouth mayor Eldon "Bud" Martin landed at Omaha Beach.

"It was a junkyard of human bodies and material. The water was red from blood; it was terrible," Martin said.

"It was a sad experience, seeing young people lying there in all kinds of places. I've never really talked about it with anyone."

Martin was a machine gunner and private first class serving in the 35th Infantry Division in England. "We were assigned to Patton's 3rd Army. He told us at that time we would be part of the invasion," Martin recalled.

The first week in June, the soldiers were told to waterproof their equipment. But when it was announced June 6 the invasion had begun, Martin and his division were still in England.

"We were looking forward to it; he let us down," Martin recalled.

Then at 4 a.m. June 9, the order came to move out. The soldiers drove in convoy to Plymouth, England and loaded onto landing crafts.

"I thought it ironic that I was from Plymouth, Michigan, and I was leaving from Plymouth, England, to my probable death," Martin said.

Martin said it was rough landing on the beach with a 60-pound pack on his back and water up to his chest, stepping around fallen soldiers.

His assignment was to take the town of St. Lo, but progress was slow because of land mines and snipers. As a machine-gunner, "You'd set up a position on high ground, for me to shoot over the men," he said.

Did Martin then think he was helping to make history? "You don't really feel you are the one to survive. You don't think about history."

Of the advance inland, Martin said, "It was a terrible feeling — what's on the other side of that fence, you can't see it."

Three days after the landing, on June 12, Martin was pinned down along a hedgerow, trying to hold a position. "I started digging a foxhole; the next thing I knew I was 20-30 feet in the air — I was numb," he said.

A German shell had exploded nearby, and his back was struck by shrapnel. As he lay injured, Martin's unit had to move on. He recalled worrying about being left behind, and whether he'd be paralyzed.

Credit union founder was there when help was needed

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

George Lawton will be remembered for nurturing Plymouth's Community Federal Credit Union from its infancy to its status as a statewide institution with branches throughout Michigan.

But his big heart is what people admired most about Lawton.

Lawton, 67, of Northville, died at home May 27. He suffered from emphysema.

Plymouth-Canton Schools Superintendent John Hoben said Lawton was there to help, whether the need was money, shelter or a shoulder to lean on.

He often granted unsecured loans.

Lawton once took in a family of four young children whose parents were in alcohol rehabilitation, said Hoben. He put through school a young man whose mother committed suicide. "Those were kinds of good things George did you never heard about," he said.

Sometime after Lawton left the credit union in 1987 to pursue real estate, appraising and consulting, he talked about his old job.

"I miss the sharing of dreams, accomplishments and problems; the single mother who never had credit in her name, but who needed a mortgage to buy a condo; the couple who came from a doctor's appointment where they found he had a short time to live and wanted to get their finances in order; and the man who left his industrial management job to buy a hardware store in the north."

"Perhaps most of all, I miss the local business owners who had their credit sources dry up in '82 and who came to the credit union for help. Also, I miss the warmth of friends in the North District, and sharing members' personal experiences."

Lawton, who helped found the Plymouth YMCA, served as president of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce and the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education. He served numerous organizations, including the Plymouth Industrial Development Corporation, Plymouth Symphony Society and Plymouth City Commission.

He also was chairman of the Canton Township Planning Commission and served on the Canton Economic Development Board.

"He cared a lot about helping people in the community, and he certainly did do a lot of that through the years," said Tom Vargo, a senior programmer and analyst at Community Federal. "He was someone who was very forward-looking as far as what he did with his work here. He was not averse to change."

Lawton was the first general manager of the Plymouth community credit union, established after Daisy Air Rifle moved to Arkansas.

After his retirement, Lawton lived in Northville in a salt box cottage built in 1850, devoting his time to his family, grape arbor, raspberry patch, flowers, and his Dorset sheep farm on the Leelanau Peninsula.

Funeral services were private.

George Lawton

He is survived by his wife, Doreen Davies Lawton, an art teacher in Livonia Public Schools; daughter Sue Holway; sons William and Colton Lawton; grandchildren Christopher, Thomas, Colton and Jacob; brother Mollie Lawton; and sisters Bessie Weatherston, Louise Lawton and Diana Al-drige.

A family memorial will be scheduled at a later date.

A memorial scholarship fund is being established. Checks may be made payable to the George Lawton Scholarship Fund in care of Community Federal Credit Union, 500 S. Harvey, Plymouth 48170-8050.

Farmer's Market in Canton could become thing of the past

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

For what may be the last year, George Skorina and other Canton farmers will sell their produce at the annual Farmer's Market in the New Towne Plaza parking lot beginning in July.

"There are about three to four farmers that participate steadily. There are other ones who come and go," said Skorina, who has farmed in Canton for about 25 years.

He is planting five to six acres and will be in the parking lot toward Skmar beginning the last Saturday of July. The market is open noon to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturdays.

"We will have just about everything that grows around here," said Skorina, one of the farmers who initiated the market.

Corn, beans, potatoes, tomatoes, and later in the season, squash and pumpkin, will be available at the market. "It has to be grown in Canton and you have to live in Canton (as a farmer to participate)," Skorina said.

But this could be the last year. Skorina said he is planning to sell 11 of his 20 acres and is uncertain whether the market will continue, particularly with fewer farmers left in Canton, which used to be known as the sweet corn capital.

— of the barrier wall to further buffer and improve the appearance; reducing the number of entrances and exits to the center and possibly connecting First of America entrances — perhaps with a boulevard — with the center.

Also to be discussed is increased greenspace and landscaping perhaps by reducing some of the 140 parking spaces (40 more than required); lighting at the center entrances; inside trash storage and traffic safety lanes from the center.

"We are not requiring the sponsor (Tartaglia) to come back with changes," said planning commissioner Tom Sullivan, who stressed that Tartaglia already meets township requirements.

Westbrook is one of three shopping centers planned with Arbor Drugs as an anchor. The L-shaped 25,000-square-foot center will feature brick 10 foot up the wall and plaster facades capped with a green metal seam roof.

Planner Jeff Goulet told residents Tartaglia has made concessions such as improving the center's rear facade to make it look nicer for residents.

Despite residents' concerns about more commercial development, the corner has been zoned commercial since 1959. But planning commissioners attempted to make some improvements to the plan.

"I'm concerned about traffic and safety issues," said planning commissioner Melissa McLaughlin, who suggested reducing the number of entrances and exits onto Warren and Canton Center roads.

Tartaglia complained to planning commissioners about the costs of the center, especially with improvements to the nearby Travis drain. A detention pond won't be necessary.

"We don't want it to be another empty center in our community. We have enough," said planning commissioner Cathy Johnson, who suggested tabling the issue.

Man found dead in motel room

A man in his 30s, believed to be an out-of-state resident, was found dead with a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head Tuesday afternoon in the Motel 6 on Haggerty in Canton.

"Detectives are investigating all the particulars. Nothing is confirmed at this point," said Tammie Collins, Canton police community relations officer.

The man was found by a housekeeper or hotel maintenance worker. He had not checked out by the usual check-out time, Collins said.

It is believed the man used a rifle to shoot himself in the one-story motel, which is the former Knights Inn, just west of I-275 and the Ford Road exit.

Yack said Naccaratto had asked to put the trees on the north end of the center so they wouldn't block the center. "We finally had to say no. Put the trees were they approved," Yack said.

In addition to being taken to 35th District Court for violating the site plan and forest preservation ordinance, Naccaratto's site plan was revoked in February, halting his ability to lease space in the center.

Rouge Rescue

Volunteers flock to river for cleanup

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW

Redford Township resident Joyce Caudill has a compulsion to thrash around in the Rouge River this time of year, battling the tree limbs, bicycles, batteries and bowling balls for primacy of the waterway.

"She's always in the river," said Caudill's sister, Karen Hicks. "Every year she gets in the river, pulling stuff out."

Caudill has exhibited this behavior annually since 1989, when she and Hicks got involved with the Rouge Rescue cleanup. "I started out being good this year and said, 'I'm not going to get grubby,'" she said, "but I have to. I've gone under a few times, but not by choice."

Caudill, Hicks and a crew of 200 or so labored at three sites in Redford Township Saturday, pulling debris from the Rouge. "We got a lot more (volunteers) here than I thought we were going to have," said Hicks, the Redford site coordinator for the past six years.

At the Farmington site near Middlebelt and Eight Mile, city officials, city employees and more than 100 volunteers broke up a tremendous logjam. "This is a perfect example of how a community pulls together for the common good," said Farmington Hills resident Aldo Vagnozzi, who has attended eight of the nine Rouge Rescues and has the T-shirts to prove it. "It's just a very responsive community. I hope we're making a dent."

Vagnozzi reports that a bowling ball was found, but alas, "It wasn't my size."

Farmington Hills resident Helen Hamecky attended her first Rouge Rescue Saturday. "We heard the trucks," she said. "We saw them coming through the woods, so we walked over." When she says "we," Hamecky means herself and her dachshund "Schnazz," who doesn't like to be picked up.

In Westland the volunteers toiled alongside, and in the Tonquish Creek, a tributary of the Rouge, clearing three logjams, 30 tires, car parts and a barrel. Perhaps the most youthful of all Rouge Rescue crews, this group was primarily comprised of teenagers from Livonia's Churchill High School earning an extra 15 points toward their grades in science, sociology and physics.

These students included Tonya Martin, ("I'm kind of excited. I want to be in the river."), Scott O'Connor, Dave Quinn, Rob Loreto and James Hakim, all of Livonia.

Hakim said extra credit in physics class is the carrot that drew him to the worthy effort. "It's a little early on Saturday morning if I'm not getting something else for it," he said.

FINE FURNITURE WITHOUT THE FRILLS A Look at What You Will Find

The rustic ambience is part of the appeal of Charles Furniture Warehouse. When Cyma Carn's customers drive their luxury cars to the Royal Oak warehouse they're looking for good furniture and a good buy. They are not inconvenienced by the low overhead look of the well-built 1920's warehouse in Royal Oak - it suits them just fine.

"People come in here not knowing what to expect" says Cyma Carn. "Maybe they think the furniture will be in crates or something."

In fact, it's well-lit and Ms. Carn's low overhead is one of the reasons she is able to offer at least 35% off list price and attract so many well-informed customers.

The warehouse was opened 10 years ago and has expanded in size and number of manufacturers represented.

"The people who come here have shopped and can spot the best value. They know what's out there and they know they're getting the quality and service at a very good price."

Cyma Carn at the Charles Furniture Warehouse

she said adding that about half of her new business is acquired through recommendations.

"The concept of no-frills quality really works. After completing a room, our customers return for advice and assistance on second and third rooms, then their friends and other family members come to make purchases for their homes."

The warehouse isn't completely without frills. The staff includes six experienced people who are adept at zeroing in on exactly what the customer needs. The arrangement is well suited to the busy person with little time to shop.

Now that most people are creating interiors that reflect their own sense of style, the range of furniture styles are diverse enough to accommodate taste and pocket book. There is something for everyone and many unusual accent pieces. Designers have created lots of choices.

"What matters most though," says Ms. Carn, "is not that you choose a particular style but that you create a home that has the look of today and is warm and inviting."

Charles Furniture Warehouse at 222 E. Harrison in Royal Oak discounts all furniture to at least 35% below list price and is open Monday through Thursday and Saturday from 10:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., Friday from 10:00 A.M. to 9:00 P.M., and Sunday from 10:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. The telephone number is 399-8320.

CEO says Kmart fine despite losses

By DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

A controversial plan to raise capital and a poor 1993 financial performance brought criticism from several shareholders upon Joseph E. Antonini, Kmart chairman and chief executive officer during the retail giant's annual meeting Friday in Troy.

While some investors expressed unhappiness — Kmart and its subsidiaries lost $974 million last year on sales of $34.2 billion — Antonini said he believes the company is still highly regarded by customers and employees.

"I travel in stores all the time," he said. "We're perceived very well. Nationally, customer complaints were down for the fifth straight year. We had 188,000 compliments last year and 75,956 customer compliments to date this year.

"Is that outstanding? Yes. Is it surprising? No. But when you have 5,000 stores and a couple million customers, you're not going to please everyone all the time," said Antonini, a Bloomfield Hills resident.

And of the shareholders or corporate owners?

"It's like being the coach of a basketball team. When you have a good year, they cheer you, a bad year, they're down on you," he said.

Antonini's comments came during the meeting and a press conference at corporate headquarters.

An unscientific survey of customers outside of a Kmart store in Plymouth the day before the annual meeting would seem to reflect some of those observations.

"It's my primary place I shop," said Ron Bowling of Plymouth. "They're clean, neat. They finally did make them big enough but not oversized like some of their competitors."

Bowling, however, offered a piece of advice. "Put more brand names in. Give people more choice."

Jean Voran of Dearborn Heights said she often shops at Kmart.

"It's clean, kept up. I'm impressed with cleanliness. Quality is fine," she said.

"It's good to me, the only store I come to," said Dennis Simonds of Plymouth. "It has everything I need. I get good service every time. If something doesn't work, I bring it back and there's no hassle."

"It's generally well stocked, unlike some hardware stores I can think of," said Ewart Schultz of New Hudson. "As long as a store provides good service, is clean in appearance and prices have adequate value, people will go."

Schultz's only complaint, and he admitted it's minuscule — interior lighting is too brash.

Billy Seiber of Belleville said he sometimes has problems getting in and out of Kmart in a timely manner.

If you're a recent high school graduate or want to go back to school and follow a business career path, here is my advice. Make your local community college your first choice, then transfer to Walsh College for your last two years.

Charlie Cathcart of Westland said he's attended four consecutive Rouge Rescues as a member of the Holiday Park Nature Preserve Association. "I just come out to get my hand in it," he said. "The Rouge is something we've got here that we've got to keep, got to clean up."

In Livonia the volunteers congregated at Levan Knoll along Hines Drive for the annual ritual. "It's a good project, definitely necessary," said Plymouth resident Steve Labister, the grandson of former Plymouth/Canton schools superintendent Russell Labister. "It's too bad (the cleanup) is just once a year."

Labister was part of a group of eight organized by state Sen. Bob Geake, R-Northville, who works at a different site each year within his district. Said Stacy Murphy, who answers phones in Geake's Lansing office, "I don't like getting dirty too much, but it's fun and it's serving a purpose."

Hard work: Rouge Rescue volunteers at Levan Knoll in Livonia included Livonia resident Susie Roberts (foreground) and Jurgen Zuziuk of Livonia.

INTRODUCING
The New Life Center at Providence Park
Where families are born...close to home

A COMFORTABLE ATMOSPHERE

Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A UNIQUE APPROACH

It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births*. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

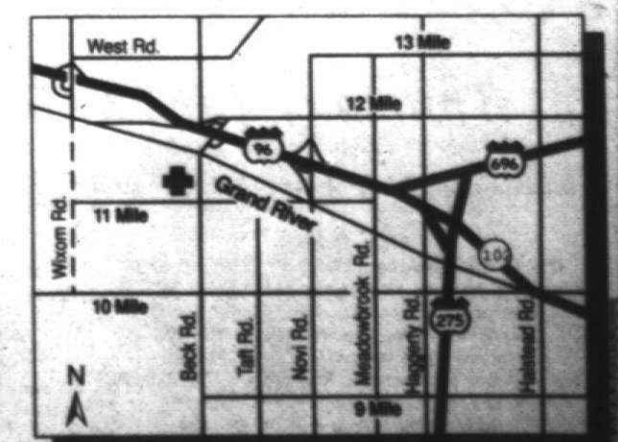

THE CHOICES ARE MANY

From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF. But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

"They're slow," he said. "I like the prices. I try to come here on my lunch hour. I can get my shopping done faster than I can go through the line. I like the prices. My advice — hire faster people."

Two employees, who both requested anonymity, said there's plenty of room for improvement. An employee at Sports Authority, a Kmart subsidiary, said she believes the service is better there and at other umbrella operations, Borders/Waldenbooks, Builders Square and OfficeMax, than in Kmart stores.

"If I rated (the company) on a scale of one to 10, it probably would be somewhere in the middle," she said. "They have a lot to work on. Customer service, for one. Employee morale is very low."

The other employee, a Kmart worker, said competition seems to have paralyzed management. "Now they don't know what to do. They're stymied. I feel sorry for the guy (Antonini)," she said.

The first Kmart opened March 1, 1962, in Garden City. That store is still operating. Other local Kmart stores are in Livonia, Canton, Westland, Farmington and Farmington Hills.

Antonini outlined a four-point plan to shareholders during the annual meeting to turn things around.

"Number one is restore our earnings power by boosting sales in the core U.S. Kmart store divisions," Antonini said. Specific steps include new stocking methods so sales people can concentrate on customer service, quicker distribution of merchandise, more control for managers at the store level and consolidation at headquarters.

"Number two is complete the modernization of our Kmart store base," he said. "Third, is strengthen our commitment to give customers the merchandise they want at the right time and right price. Fourth, is to build a culture within Kmart that fosters and thrives on positive change."

"We are not just completing a project," Antonini said. "At Kmart, we are building a whole new way of doing business."

Fifteen people spoke during the shareholder question portion of the agenda.

Their comments included criticism of the stock split capitalization plan involving the subsidiaries and criticism of management and directors salaries and bonuses.

Kmart drew compliments for looking into its firearms sale policy and charitable work.

An employee also urged more training for store staff.

Cats are seeking homes

The Michigan Humane Society announced it hopes to find homes for hundreds of adoptable cats during June.

Any cat adopted from an MHS shelter during June will go home with a free Soft Paws starter kit. Soft Paws is the trade name for soft nail covers easily applied to a cat's nails to prevent her or him from damaging furniture. In 1993, MHS took in more than 20,000 cats at its three area shelters, a figure significantly from recent years.

MHS shelters are at 7401 Chrysler Drive in Detroit, 3400 Auburn Road in Rochester Hills and 37255 Marquette in Westland. The MHS Paw Pourri Gift Shop is at 817 N. Main in Royal Oak. Paw Pourri hosts adoptable animals 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays. For more information call (810) 852-7420.

Carnival at SC

Circus act: These white tigers at the Livonia Free Fair at Schoolcraft College are the products of an endangered species breeding program. They are extremely rare and non-existent in the wild. The fair, open through Sunday, also includes Chinese acrobats, who balance, contort and leap through the air. Training for the acrobats begins almost before a child can walk, with formal lessons beginning at the age of 4. There are three schools for the arts that students must attend; dance, Chinese opera and acrobatics. In these schools the kids spend four hours a day in training, so that by the time they are teenagers their art has become second nature. The fair also features a petting zoo and fireworks Sunday evening. The fair opens at 3 p.m. weekdays and 11 a.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is free, but a ride pass costs $13. Call 885-2676 for more information. The fair is at Schoolcraft College on Haggerty Road at Seven Mile.

When you have a baby it should be a wonderfully close time for you and your family. That's why the Miracle of Life Maternity Center at St. Mary Hospital has you at the center of its visiting policy.

WHY A LOT OF BABIES SEEM LIKE DISTANT RELATIVES

Instead of asking you to conform to limited visiting times or placing barriers between family members, at St. Mary you decide who can visit and when.

All private rooms
We believe you know best when you want visitors and when you need time alone with your baby. That's why all the maternity rooms at St. Mary are private. So a family member can even stay overnight if that's what you want.

Real family care

Your baby can stay in your room even when family members are visiting. We accept your definition of family. Grandparents. Children. Aunts and uncles.

Your best friend. If you call them family, so do we. It's that simple. Our physicians even examine babies at your bedside so you and your family can watch and ask questions. So if you want real family-centered care, call St. Mary Hospital. Call 313-591-2882 for a free brochure, personal tour, or a physician referral.

Take The Next Step At Wayne State University...

If you are ready to take that next step toward earning your four-year degree, we are ready for you.

Last year approximately 5,000 students transferred to WSU from some 500 community colleges and four-year schools across the country. They are taking classes at our main campus in the University Cultural Center in Detroit or on one of our satellite campuses while others go to our University Center at Macomb Community College.

Some of the reasons students come to Wayne State:

- Strength of our academic programs — international reputation
- Cost — the only Michigan public university with a negative increase in tuition costs over the past decade based on inflation
- Financial aid — During 1991-92 WSU awarded $50 million in aid to students

So go ahead and take the next step. Simply clip and mail the attached coupon and we will send you more information about transferring to Wayne State.

District has $6.5 million to spend

The Plymouth-Canton schools have $6.5 million more to spend this coming school year than last year. Two new schools mothballed will be open, but other cuts will be made

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' 1994-95 revenue picture is cloudy but brightening.

School officials expect to know more about state funding by June 27, when the Board of Education holds a public hearing on the budget. But the latest figures show an 8.2-percent increase in revenues.

"Overall revenues of $85.8 million represent a $6.5 million increase over the current year," said Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business. Federal project revenues are up. Ameritech has made a grant to the district of $535,000, he added.

Also projected is an extra $300,000 in the school's rainy day fund, up from $1 million to $1.3 million. "This is due to the district's latest state aid status report of May 20, which showed our recapture amount going down almost $200,000," said Hoedel. "Also, just received on May 19 was the latest billing from Blue Cross, which is also down, and we are projecting additional savings of $100,000."

The district will open the two new elementary schools, boarded up after shortly they were built and the millage failed last year.

"The per-student state foundation grant is about $21 more than we expected," said Hoedel. "The initial state foundation grant is $5,507 per student and the district's estimate is $5,486. We believe they are a little bit high."

"We are using enrollment of 14,850 for next year. The state is using 14,888. We are perhaps a little bit conservative. We have a great deal of tax refunds not reflected in their figures," Hoedel said.

State equalized valuation rates are still uncertain, he added.

"All districts can expect adjustments to funding as they get more precise data," Hoedel said.

It's likely students will see a decrease to between $50 and $100 in pay-to-play, co-curricular fees. Board members discussed charging a one-time, annual fee, regardless of how many activities students participate in. A decision is expected June 27.

Board members also discussed added spending to reduce class size; assess early elementary students; accommodate an added number of gifted students; institute a reading intervention program for first-graders; and hire a development grant writer.

"The idea would be to have someone who would do nothing but write grants. That position could more than pay for itself," said Dick Egli, community relations director.

If the district spent money to reduce class size, it likely would be done in early elementary. "It's pretty well agreed that if you don't have the money for reducing class size across board, your first shot is best shot, so you go with the early grades," said Egli.

Expenditures are pegged at $85.3 million. "This represents an $8 million increase, (of which $4.4 million is new state retirement match expenses) over the 1993-94 budget, or a 10.3 percent increase," said Hoedel. "Included in our expenditure are budget reductions of $386,000."

The following are some of the cost-cutting moves planned: moving the Talented and Gifted Program from Allen to Miller Elementary to save $10,900 in transportation costs; improving bus route efficiency, $16,000; opening Tonda and Bentley elementaries, and saving $42,000 in transportation costs; custodial-maintenance cuts, $45,000; special education adjustments, $26,000; not replacing a retiring employee, $50,000; cutting the capital outlay budget, $56,000; cutting the Hepatitis B budget, $70,000; and cutting summer tax collection fees, $70,000.

Developer pushing for senior housing at site

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Three months after Archbishop Adam Maida announced plans for an archdiocese-run family life center at the former St. John's Seminary, a developer said he still plans a retirement village there.

Eric Lindquist, who in 1992 signed a purchase agreement with the church to develop a senior housing center at the seminary site, said he still plans on his project happening.

"He still feels he has a binding agreement," said H. Rollin Allen, a Plymouth attorney representing Lindquist.

But Ned McGrath, director of communications for the Archdiocese of Detroit, said the time for discussion of Lindquist's project has come and gone.

McGrath said that since the family-life/youth-center plan was announced on St. Patrick's Day, "There has been great interest and great excitement among people in parish- es that work with youth; it's a very exciting and well-received plan."

"Some of the excitement is because so many of our priests trained there for the priesthood, they hold it in very fond memory," McGrath said.

Since the plan was announced, church architects and staff "have been out there several times," McGrath said, adding construction should begin soon.

The church in November canceled a purchase agreement with Lindquist and his firm St. Anthony Interests Inc., saying the developer failed to provide information about project financing by a specified deadline.

Lindquist responded that this was a misunderstanding and that financing was in place.

Asked if he would seek to file suit against the church, Lindquist said,

"We're proceeding on all aspects, including architectural, construction and legal - everything that's needed to put a project of this magnitude together."

Lindquist suggested that the family life center and his retirement community could exist on the same site.

McGrath responded, "It would be a shame for people, because their idea didn't work out, to stand in the way. A lot of people are making plans to use this facility; there's certainly a need."

The seminary is on a 175-acre site at the southeast corner of Sheldon and Five Mile roads.

A.P.R.

If you're in the market for a new home or to refinance your mortgage, you're probably looking at both fixed and adjustable rate mortgage loans.

First of America Bank has something that combines the best of both—our Adjustable Rate Mortgages. You'll benefit from a five-year period with a low, fixed initial rate. Which means you can get more house for your money.

After the initial five-year period, your interest rate will adjust annually based on the U.S. Treasury Securities rate in effect at that time. If rates increase, your interest rate is protected and cannot rise more than five percent. So whether you plan to move to another home within five years or stay for a while, our Adjustable Rate Mortgage Loan should be your first step.

And use our pre-approved loan option to find out how much of a mortgage you qualify for prior to writing an offer to purchase.

Cub Scouts participate in Pinewood Derby race

St. Robert Bellarmine School in Redford was the scene in May of the 17th annual Gemini District Pinewood Derby race for 142 Cub Scouts representing 46 packs from seven communities.

The boys were winners from their local packs' Pinewood Derby races and had qualified to compete in one of the three age classes (Wolf, Bear, Weibelo) for the top honors in the districtwide competition.

A total of 19 awards were presented to the top six finishers and runner-up in each class.

This was the 41st year for Pinewood Derby races in the U.S., with the first race being in California in 1953. Since then, some 32 million Cub Scouts have built and raced more than 81 million Pinewood Derbys nationwide.

The Gemini District boys built their miniature race cars from a block of wood, with the assistance of an adult family member. No two car designs were alike. Some of the car designs looked like real race cars and some were futuristic advance designs.

The cars were raced on a three-lane wooden track, with gravity providing the only means of propulsion.

Some 450 parents and friends were present May 7 to cheer their favorite entries on to victory. The winners represented 15 packs and earned a total of 19 trophies. Each winner was rewarded with a plaque with a photograph of themselves with a new Dodge Viper sports car.

The awards went to seven boys from Livonia, seven from Redford, two from Canton, and three from Plymouth.

Brandon Lambert, Pack 781 of Plymouth, kept his string of wins alive by repeating as the fastest Weibelo car. He previously won in the Wolf, Bear and Weibelo categories in 1991, 1992 and 1993.

Elsewhere in the Weibelo class, three other previous trophy winners battled for third place by edging out old-time rivals Adam Jeziorowski of Redford Pack 435 and Andy Brissette of Livonia Pack 870. Newcomer Nathan Meernik rounded out the top six finishers in the Weibelo category for ages 10-11. Meernik's younger brother, Tim, placed third in the Wolf category.

Four Cub Packs had winners in two classes, including Redford 366 and 435, Plymouth 781 and Canton 898.

Other Wolf winners were Jonathan Chapman of Livonia 1535, fourth place; Ryan Cotton of Livonia 880, fifth place; and Kyle Stutzman of Livonia 907, sixth place.

Other Bear winners were Ross Jones of Northville 721, fourth place, Nick Gamble of Redford 345, fifth, Kevin Mason of Livonia 1382, sixth, Joel Evans of Redford 435, runner-up, and Andrew Davies of Redford 547, hard luck.

The boys were treated to a close-up look and being photographed with a new Dodge Viper sports car, courtesy of Chrysler Corporation.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Farmers' produce Canton needs site for market

For what may be the last year, Canton farmers will sell their produce at the annual Farmers' Market in the New Towne Plaza parking lot beginning in late July.

It's too bad that the tradition could come to an end, especially as Canton Township officials are looking for ways to enhance the quality of life in this growing community.

A ground-breaking ceremony was recently held for a $13 million community center behind Canton Township Hall. The center will include swimming pools, workout facilities and meeting rooms.

But meanwhile, the farmers' market is kept in a parking lot. There's a message here.

Canton is looking for high-profile project in which to become involved, but is not paying attention to what it has in place.

Canton Township should look at putting together a good location for a farmers' market that would attract both farmers and customers. Nearby Plymouth has The Gathering, which attracts shoppers every Saturday morning.

Canton Township should do the same on land it owns behind the township hall. Such a market would help to enhance a sense of community in the sprawling township.

It's time for Canton to get the farmers out of the parking lot and into a market that would benefit them and the community.

Elect Feiten, Kilijanczyk, Horvath

Voters in the Plymouth-Canton School District on Monday go to the polls to cast their ballots for school board members in what is one of the most important elections in recent years.

The new school board composed of two or three new members will face the challenges of putting a new school superintendent in place, new educational mandates, and a new financing system.

Voting is complicated. There are three races: Two candidates are vying for election to a one-year term; six are seeking two four-year terms in the June 13 election.

In the race for the one-year term we recommend Susan Feiten of Plymouth Township. In the race for the two four-year terms, Steve Kilijanczyk of Canton Township and Mark Horvath of Canton Township are solid choices.

Feiten was appointed to the school board and has gone on to be a solid performer with the ability to balance cost with quality.

Kilijanczyk is a bit strident when it comes to school finances, but such a voice is needed to restore the board's role as a watchdog of public finances. Horvath is an engineer with the Ford Motor Co. and has a good grasp of what knowledge and skills students will need to become part of the work force.

But whatever the choice on Monday, don't forget to vote. It's the only way residents can have an impact on local government.

Tough justice works for kids

Tough action, but with alternatives, is our communities' best strategy in dealing with youth gangs and youth violence.

We must mete out punishment and discipline offenders. But we must also do what we can to make young people welcome in our communities.

Unlike other suburban areas, community leaders throughout western Wayne and parts of Oakland counties have been open and faced up to the issue.

Schools, in cooperation with local police departments, have sponsored training sessions and awareness programs for parents and other community members on the subject of youth violence.

Area police have been quick to acknowledge but not overreact to the problem.

But the problem exists - even in nice suburbs. From a gang-related drive-by shooting involving youths from Farmington Hills, to a tragic fight at a high school, youth violence has recently been front-page news in many local communities.

What to do? First, be tough. Punishment must be fair, but it must be meted out.

One suburban middle school recently suspended three students for the rest of the school year for placing an exploding device in a school trash can.

The kids involved weren't gang members and their action qualifies more as destructive mischief than actual violence, but taking tough action and making kids responsible for their action is important.

But if we are to mete out discipline and punishment, we must also offer alternatives.

How many of our local communities feature teen centers, financed by either public or private sources?

How many offer comprehensive sports and social programs for area youngsters?

How many local communities and businesses offer summer and after-school job programs?

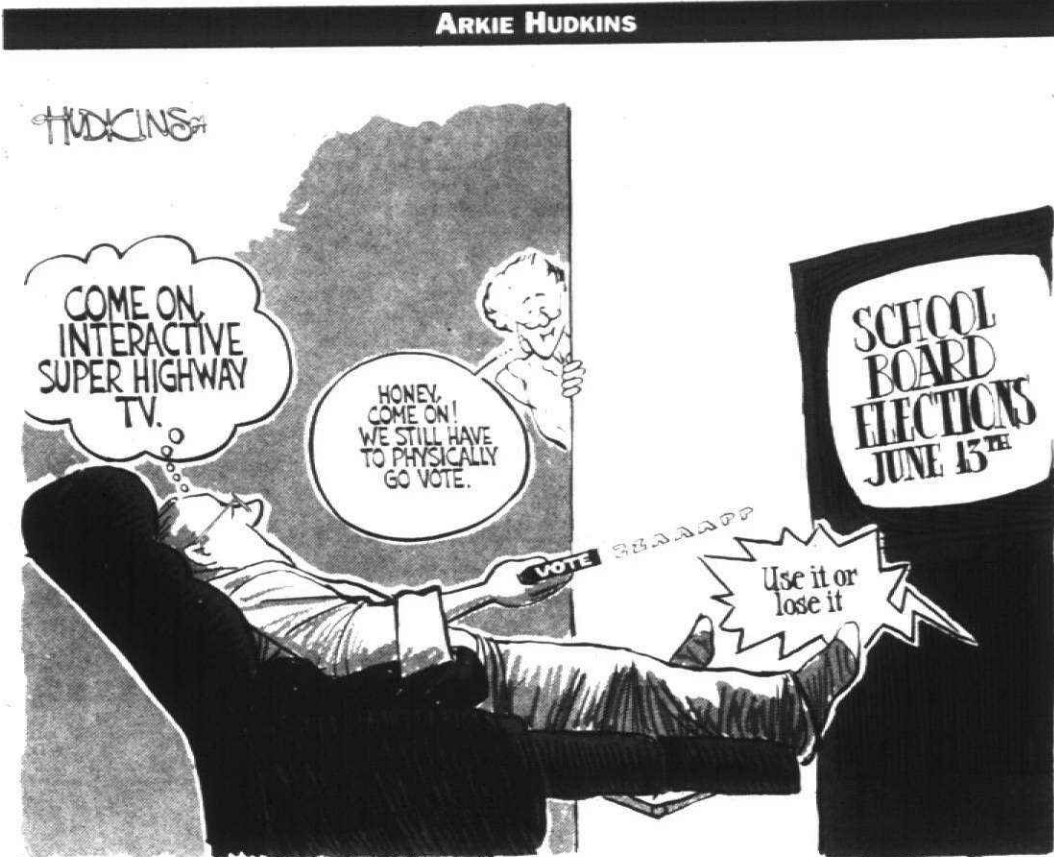

Now contrast that to the programming local communities provide for senior citizens.

The point here isn't to pit one generation against another, merely to underscore that our young people are a special constituency with special needs.

Opening youth centers, adding youth programs, and providing youth jobs won't prevent youth violence and youth gangs.

But people of all ages welcomed by their society are rarely the ones who commit violent acts.

Put another way, youth violence is a form of rebellion. But how can you be a rebel when there's nothing to rebel against?

Traffic

After reading the article in the May 26 Observer, "Annual cruising season kicks off in Plymouth," I was not only confused as to how closing up streets and making detours would cut down on traffic problems, but also distressed about the inconvenience this would cause local residents, although it is probably less than the distress teens and their rowdiness and rowdy music cause these citizens.

So, I got to thinking about how to stop these uproarious hooligans and their dastardly deeds. And the answer is so simple, I'm surprised no one has thought of it.

Caring. We can position police all over Main Street writing down all license plate numbers on cars as they pass by. If a certain plate passes by more than once within 10 minutes, this can result in one immediate public lashing with a cane (at the scene of the crime, of course) on the buttocks.

This number could be adjusted, depending on the particular case. For instance, a perpetrator driving a red convertible with neon lights underneath the car would receive two lashes.

An old jalopy without a muffler would result in four. Repeat offenders would receive eight. If the cruisers are under 18, they would get 16. And playing rap music out the window would result in death by caning.

Of course, this could cause shoppers to be wary of venturing downtown to go shopping, but who wants to risk going there now with all the raggamuffins wandering the streets?

And a few innocent adult cruisers may receive a lash or two, but I believe the benefits of ridding Plymouth of all teens outweigh these minor setbacks.

Just think how much money the schools would save by not having any school-aged children to deal with. And we residents would never again have to worry about being forced to listen to Salt-n-Pepa on a Friday night.

Bill Chaplin, Plymouth

Appalled

I was appalled Saturday, June 4, when I observed a roadblock on Main Street at Ann Arbor Road. This was reminiscent of countries I have visited where freedom is a rare commodity. Movement is restricted except of course for the privileged few. Of all cities and towns I have visited across the country, never have I seen police and residents alike treat area teens so viciously as I have witnessed since moving to Plymouth.

Just two nights ago, my son and I went to the grocery store. Upon leaving the store's lot he forgot to turn on his headlights. Of course this immediately magnetized the local police. He asked my son if he was drunk, then asked what brought us to town, even though my son's license indicated we are residents of this "town."

I could go on and on, citing incidents that are obviously petty and intended for maximum harassment of area teens.

When is this town going to wake up and do something for the kids instead of alienating them? When are the police going to realize these teens have no respect for them, only contempt, because the police serve as prime examples of how not to treat residents?

Robert Cohen, Plymouth

Thanks

We would like to express our appreciation to you and your newspaper for the promotions prior to and for the front page photo publicizing the Pops Concert Dinner and Auction held by the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra on April 29 at Fox Hills Country Club.

We appreciate the community awareness of our organization, and for the publication in the Observer of the quality programming we are able to provide the residents of the Plymouth-Canton community.

We are also delighted that you provided on-the-spot reporting by Julia Hoglen and the column space for the review of the entire event, the auction, the pops benefit concert music, and the setting at Fox Hills.

It was a sellout, and we had inquiries for tickets from 200 others who we had to turn away. Stronger community interactions and community pride benefit all of us.

Linda Alvarado, Plymouth

Support

We would like to voice our support for Peggy Kalis for the school board. Peggy has always been recognized as a leader in school involvement. She has earned many well-deserved awards for the volunteering she does in our schools. Peggy and her husband are wholeheartedly behind our kids. We will be voting for her on June 13 and encourage you to do the same.

Family visit provides enrichment for soul

Not long ago I gathered up my children, drove across Michigan, and visited my mom and dad. The first night I offered to make supper.

"Oh, honey, don't be silly. Dad and I can manage in here just fine. Besides, look at you. Seven months pregnant and running after your other three. We'll tend to this."

A little while later I overheard dad say to mom, "Dear, you've always known the way to my heart." I peeked in the kitchen and saw my mother close the freezer then kiss dad lightly on the cheek. Then she handed him the bag of frozen peas. While she retrieved the measuring cups, he turned the package of peas over and read the directions aloud to his wife of 49 years. Dad, I wanted to scream, nobody reads the directions for cooking frozen peas. But I held my tongue.

I saw my mother measure the water precisely and my father measure the peas precisely. Then she asked, "How long does it say to cook the peas?" The same amount of time you've been cooking the peas for the last half century.

He again read aloud. Mom turned the burner on and pushed dad. She had to hear the bubbling of the boiling water because she couldn't see it what with all those peas in the way. I was drawn to this scene like a moth to a bug zapper.

"Your children like rice, don't they?"

whispered mom as she listened for the pea water. I silently nodded. She then emptied a can of chicken broth into a pan. Dad was bent close to the pea pot.

"Did you hear anything yet?" Dad shook his head and continued to strain to hear that first bubble as mom turned to me and again whispered, "I couldn't find the Campbell's so the broth will have to do for tonight."

What? The broth will have to do what tonight? And you couldn't find the Campbell's? How could you not find it? Every store in America is piled high to the rafters with Campbell's. I don't understand.

"Oh, I'm sure chicken broth will be just fine," I meekly replied.

"It's boiling, dear. I heard a bubble. Time for them to simmer." Dad grabbed for the kitchen timer on the counter. The pea timing was about to commence.

Presently, dinner was served. The Peas of Perfection. The Not Campbell's Broth Soaked Rice. And meatloaf. Meatloaf? Where did that come from?

Oh, well. I was hungry and I began eating. I started with the meatloaf. The top seemed a bit congealed, but I stabbed it, brought it to my lips and opened my mouth. The meatloaf was cold. Stone cold. Ice cold.

Mom had been watching me. She had noticed my expression. "Oh, I didn't hear the meatloaf up. We'll just eat it cold tonight." I saw dad nod his approval.

Joe, my 2-year-old, spent the better part of that meal tossing rice on the floor which I felt obliged to pick up right then and there. Every last piece.

After mom and dad went to bed that night, my children and I, driven by a vague sense of hunger, raided their dishwasher for boxes of crackers and packages of cookies and bags of pretzels. (Yes, the dishwasher. It's their second pantry.)

The next day mom opened two cans of soup for lunch. Both Campbell's, I noticed. One, tomato. The other, chicken and stars. She combined them in one pot. Egads. Yucky.

Soon, we sat down to have soup and sandwiches.

"Make a fish salad sandwich for yourself," mom suggested.

Fish salad? What exactly is fish salad anyway? It wasn't tuna. I could see that. It wasn't salmon. Dad dug in, enthusiastically.

"What recipe did you use for the fish salad?" I gently inquired.

"Oh, it's cod. And other things." Cod? This stuff is mushy, rather liquefied. How did it get like that? Visions of the Bass-O-Matic whirled in my head. Joe began throwing crackers on the floor. I had to pick them up. Good old Joe.

Later that afternoon, when mom napped, we raided the dishwasher again. Dad suggested Pizzeria Pizza that Wednesday night. Mom suggested pepperoni for that pizza. My mouth watered. My stomach growled. And then my eldest, such a good Catholic boy, reminded me it was Ash Wednesday.

Ah, yes. Indeed, quite right. No meat today for us. But for mom and dad, OK. They're not Catholic. "Well, how about pepperoni just on your half of the pizza?" I suggested. "And double cheese on our half?"

Mom wouldn't hear of it. "Just get cheese for the whole thing, dear," she told my father. "The meat on our side would contaminate their side." Contaminate our side of the pizza? What? They're pepperonis, not cooties.

"Well, OK, Mom. If you're sure that's what you want," I pleasantly responded.

Dad and I picked up the pizza while mom stayed to set the table. Just as we returned, she was putting a jar of sweet pickles and a plate piled with pie-shaped wedges of cold, thick sandwich salami on the table. We all sat down. Mom handed dad the plate of salami and said, "It's not pepperoni, but it's close. Put some on your pizza." No, don't do it, dad. He did. And he smiled. They ended their meal of double cheese cold sandwich salami pizza with a few sweet pickles. He congratulated her on another fine meal.

And then he kissed her, ever so lightly, on the cheek.

My stomach was rather empty at the end of the visit, but somehow, somehow, an odd little spot in my soul had been filled.

Proposal A plus triplets spells out a good year

When we have something to announce, Tim, you'll be the first to know," Gov. John Engler told me a couple of years ago.

I didn't expect he would keep the promise, and he didn't. Mark Hornbeck of The Detroit News was first to stumble across the rumor last week that Michelle was pregnant with triplets.

My conversation with Engler occurred during an interview in which we concentrated mainly on school finance, the biggest single news topic in our circulation area.

I recalled that Engler announced his engagement to Michelle only after the 1990 election and that some of my brothers and sisters in the media were miffed because they didn't even know Engler had a steady girlfriend. "You never asked me," Engler told the news conference.

That was why I resolved to ask Engler about the prospects of children. Although I think it's distasteful to ask people if they're expecting, I overcame that aversion and asked Engler, at the end of the interview, if there were any news on the family front he wanted to reveal.

"Huh?" he asked, not grasping what I meant.

Sharon Condron, a Northville Record reporter who was with me, asked bluntly, "He wants to know if Michelle is pregnant yet."

That's when Engler promised I would be the first to know.

I asked the governor once a year after that but gave up, out of consideration for his feelings. I figured that if I missed the big story — tough.

Well, Hornbeck got a tip last week and called Agnes Engler, the governor's mother, who blurted out enough to verify the tip. Engler reportedly was upset with Hornbeck. Michelle had miscarried a couple of times, so the governor was touchy, and I could see why. But Hornbeck had been forthright and fair, identifying himself and his paper to Grandma Engler. Hornbeck's conscience should be clear.

The point today, however, is not who got the big, big news first but what are we going to name the offspring?

Getting Proposal A passed and begetting triplets are two of the biggest things any Michigan governor has done in 157 years. Moreover, John Engler did both in the same year. Moreover yet, they both occurred about the same time, March 15.

My humble suggestion is that all three Engleries be given names with the initial A — as in Proposal A.

Suppose they're girls. The Englers are big on family names, so they might want to name one after his mother, though Agnes isn't a popular name anymore. There could be Alice, Amy, Abigail (for the outspoken wife of President John Adams), Ann, Annette, Angelina or Amelia. Don't forget the Sleeping Beauty — Aurora. And so on.

For boys there is a glut of Celtic names beginning with A — There's the fisherman saint, Andrew. And dozens more.

Bearing triplets would be tough for any healthy woman, and Michelle Engler is going on 37. At this point, I will drop the intrusion and offer her a non-partisan, non-denominational, heavy-duty prayer.

MEA must replace scare tactics with solutions

You don't have to be a rocket scientist to figure out that Michigan's system of public education is facing a crisis.

Most parents, teachers, employers, administrators — even the kids in school! — share a strong desire to have world-class schools able to prepare all students to compete successfully in a global economy. And most also agree that our schools, by most measures, are failing to reach this standard.

This contradiction between hope and reality has opened the door to a wholesale assault on our public schools at just the time when public education needs all the help it can get.

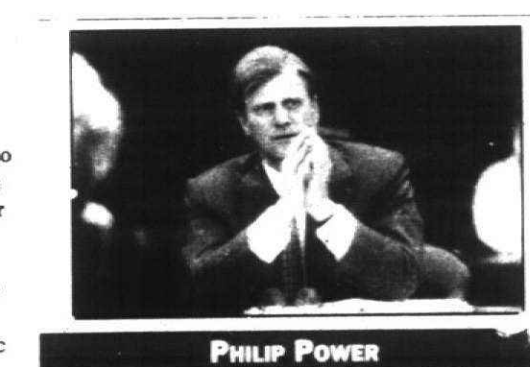

Item: Most of the heat in the debate over Proposal A was generated by a bitter conflict between Gov. John Engler and the Michigan Education Association, the teachers union. The governor in effect accused the union of causing the deterioration of our schools, while the MEA charged Engler with scapegoating, not to mention being anti-union. The conflict is now the main driving force in Michigan politics.

Item: At the heart of this animosity is a law passed last December authorizing new charter schools outside the regular public school system and without MEA-represented teachers. Financed by the same per-pupil support provided to other schools, charter schools are supposed to allow experimentation free of the clumsy rules and ossified bureaucracies of the public school system. The MEA calls charter schools union-busting, plain and simple.

Item: Organizers of the Noah Webster Academy — a charter school — propose to link home schools across the state to a core of supporting teachers in Ionia County. Supported by $5,500-per-pupil state funding, the academy will offer back-to-basics lessons stressing traditional values. "This is a school that will be using public dollars to sanction a certain type of morality," says Kim Brennan Root of the MEA.

Item: The Pinckney school board is virtually certain to turn over management of its schools to Education Alternatives Inc., a for-profit firm that asserts privatized schools can improve educational performance at reduced per-pupil cost. A lot of people are pretty skeptical of EAI's track record, but even more are so frustrated that they're willing to take a chance on privatization.

To top it off, last week saw release of an astonishing letter from David Sabedra, MEA regional director, to Eric Gilbertson, president of Saginaw Valley State University, which:

■ Threatened to refuse student teachers from SVSU if the university authorizes charter schools that don't meet MEA standards.

■ Urged local school superintendents and boards of education to end their involvement with Saginaw Valley programs.

■ Suggested MEA members who are Saginaw Valley graduates quit donating money to the university.

Now I know and admire a lot of teachers who are MEA members, including those who teach my son, now in sixth grade in the public schools. And I know and admire a lot of leadership people in the MEA.

But the stonewall tactics the union is now using expose it to the terrible risk of being considered largely irrelevant in resolving the overall public policy issue of what happens to K-12 education in this state.

There's an old slogan that goes: "If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem."

It's axiomatic that teachers in this state — the majority of whom are currently MEA members — must become part of any solution to the problem of how our kids can learn at a world-class level. For that to happen, the MEA needs to do more thinking about educational solutions and less writing of inflammatory and threatening letters.

Y plans day, sports camps

The Wayne-Westland Family YMCA, which serves Canton Township, is planning its annual summer day camp program, to be held June 20 through Aug. 26.

There will be a theme for each week's camping experience, starting with Super Summer, Leap Through Time, Famous Americans, Amazing Animals, Earth and Me, Dino-Mania, Carnival, Around the World, Mystery Week and Last Blast.

The program will include educational experiences through outdoor education, crafts, group projects, and special trips.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each weekday. Extended child-care services are available on an hourly basis.

A new program offered by the Y is a "Summer Wonder Camp," which will have children from 6 to 12 learn about the outdoors, sports, projects, arts and crafts, as well as fun games, songs and developing a love of nature. Youngsters should bring a lunch daily, with the Y to provide a drink.

Fee is $70 a week for Y members and $80 for program members. Fee for two days is $28 and $32, respectively, and $41 and $48 for three days.

The Y will also sponsor a two-hour sport skills camp to cover soccer, street hockey, basketball, fitness and volleyball. Youngsters will learn a sport's basic skills, teamwork and conclude the program with one hour of swimming at the Y's indoor pool.

Fee is $21 for members and $36 for non-members.

A mini all-sports camp for 5- and 6-year-olds will be held the weeks of June 20-24 and July 18-22 to enable them to learn different sports and activities daily. Fee is $18 for members and $34 for non-members.

All camps will be at the Y's main complex, 827 S. Wayne Road. Interested people may contact the Y, 721-7044.

State's best

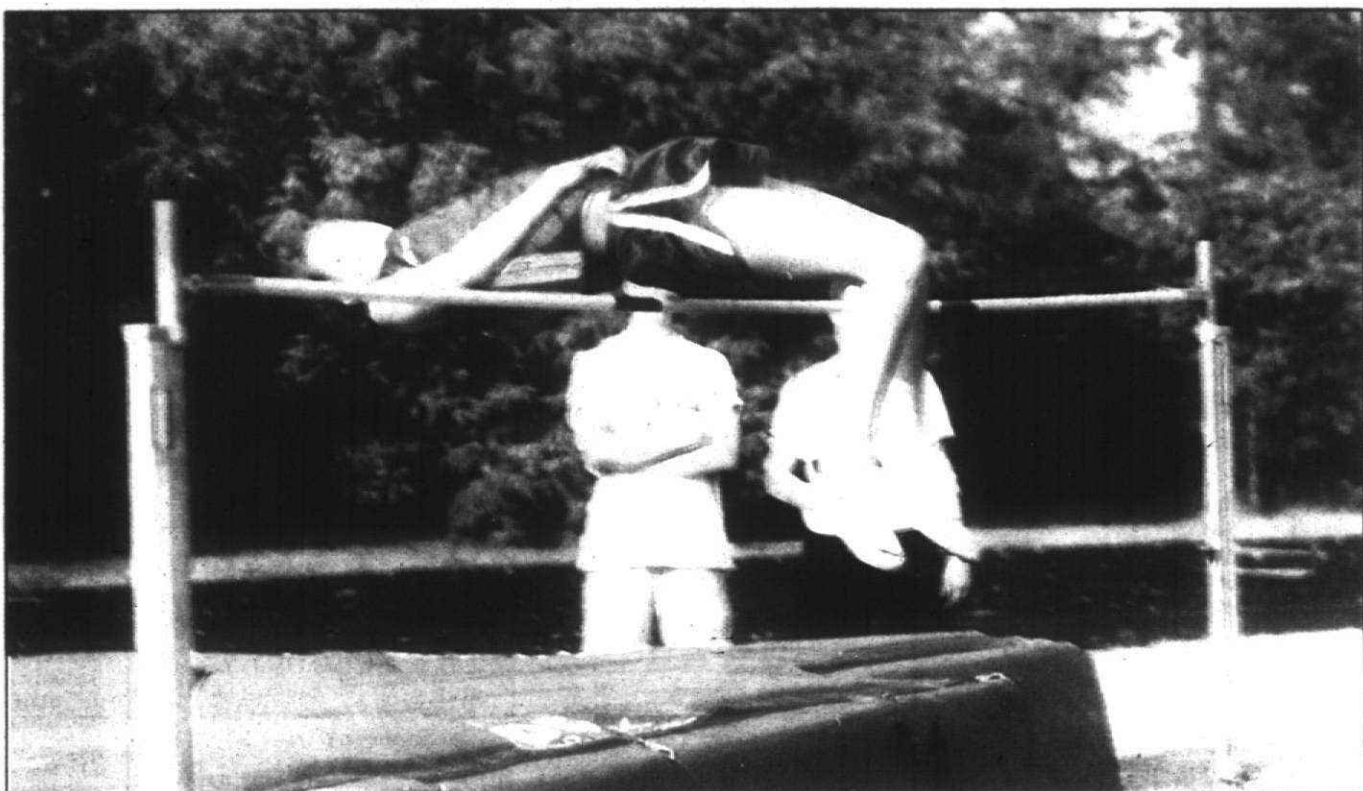

Plymouth Canton can now boast of having the state's top two gymnasts.
Last winter, freshman Katey Gilles proved herself in state high school competition by winning the state's all-around championship.
Now Shay Murphy, a senior at Canton who trains and competes with Blake Acronauts in Bloomfield Hills, has been named the state's gymnast of the year. Nominations for the honor came from club coaches whose gymnasts were seniors.
Murphy has received a full gymnastics scholarship from the University of Alabama.

Hole-in-one

After 20 years of golf, Canton resident Dan Sewesky got what he wanted — a hole-in-one.
The 54-year-old Sewesky used a five-wood to ace the 200-yard 17th hole at Rolling Meadows May 31. He finished with a 44 for his nine-hole round, recorded while playing in the Sunflower Village Golf League.

Soccer champs

After a pair of seconds, the Plymouth Lightning '81 under-13 girls premier soccer team turned in a championship performance and won the second annual Creek Classic Soccer Tournament last weekend in Beavercreek, Ohio.
The Lightning '81 rolled to shutout victories over Ohio-based teams from West Carrollton, Cincinnati and Beavercreek in preliminary rounds. They faced the '80 Lady Warriors from Huber Heights, Ohio, in the final and came away with the title by a 6-2 score.

State meet a struggle for Chiefs

The surprise surrounding the performance of Plymouth Canton's girls track team at the Class A state meet Saturday was how high expectations were, not the final results.

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

After having recorded impressive victories in the Western Lakes Activities Association league meet and the Class A regional, a lot was expected from Plymouth Canton's girls track team at Saturday's state finals at Midland HS.

Except from coach George Przygodski.

The Chiefs scored in just one event: the 800-meter run, in which Tracey Cavin finished seventh in 2:19.9.

The question: What happened to distance standout Lana Boroditsch, and sprinter/high jumper Ndu Okwumabua, and the Chiefs' relays?

"Nothing happened," Przygodski answered. "They did the best they could."

Fact is, injuries kept both Boroditsch and Okwumabua from competing at their best. Boroditsch had been nursing a recurring leg injury for the past month; it had bothered her last fall during cross country season as well.

And Okwumabua suffered a hamstring strain during the WLAA championships May 31. The injury limited her to just one event (she would have been in four), the high jump, in which she didn't score.

"You have to have the big horses when you get into a meet like that," said Przygodski. "We rode them all year."

Indeed, the Canton coach refused to acknowledge any disappointment regarding his team's performance this season. "We probably ran our best meet of the year at the regional," he said, quickly adding, "Not that we fell off at all, we just did not perform at that level."

Salem sizing up Saline

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

He has more than 200 career wins, so it's safe to assume Plymouth Salem baseball coach John Gravin's approach to the Class A state regional tournament Saturday at Brighton is strategically sound.

He didn't want it to be easy. How could it be? Salem (23-8 this season) goes into the four-team regional ranked 10th in the state — and that's no better than third-best in this field, which also features No. 3 Westland John Glenn (26-3 for the season) and No. 5 Brighton, the region host.

Furthermore, the fourth team is unranked Saline, Salem's first-round opponent. Unranked, maybe, but the Hornets advanced by upsetting ninth-ranked Ann Arbor Pioneer 7-0 in the Ann Arbor Huron district final last Saturday.

Eagles gain 1st district title

The final chapter has not yet been written in Steve Ritchey's softball coaching career at Plymouth Christian Academy.

Ritchey had announced this would be his final season coaching the Eagles. He was pleased with their effort, finishing 11-5 during the regular season. He had just one wish: To experience a measure of success in the state tournament.

Now they have.
PCA collected the first state district championship in school history Saturday when it defeated Whitmore Lake 6-2 in the Class

CLASS A BASEBALL REGIONAL
Saturday at Brighton

- Semifinals: Plymouth Salem vs. Saline, 10 a.m. Westland John Glenn vs. Brighton, noon.
- Championship: approximately 2 p.m. (Winner advances to the state quarterfinals, Tuesday vs. Temperance Bedford regional champion at Carlton Airport).

CLASS D SOFTBALL REGIONAL
Saturday at Adrian Madison

- Semifinals: Plymouth Christian Academy vs. Adrian Lenawee Christian, 10 a.m.; Ottawa Lake-Whiteford vs. North Adams, noon.
- Championship: 2 p.m. (Winner advances to state quarterfinals Tuesday against Climax Scotts regional winner).

Still, this scenario would be mighty tempting to many coaches: an easier first game, which could allow a coach to save his ace for the second game (pitchers are limited to 30 outs, or 10 innings, in the regional).

"No," Gravin insisted. "I did that once and it backfired. I learned my lesson."

His lesson came in 1987. His ace was Todd Marion (who went on to become a standout reliever at Michigan). Salem played Livonia Franklin in the regional opener, a team they had defeated handily twice during the season. The region's other teams were Redford Catholic Central and Taylor Kennedy.

D final at Whitmore Lake. The victory propelled the Eagles into Saturday's regional tournament at Adrian against Lenawee.

In Saturday's district semifinals, PCA clubbed Westland Huron Valley 18-3 in a five-inning mercy and Whitmore Lake topped Ann Arbor Green Hills 4-1.

"It was the best defense we've played all year," said Ritchey of his team's performance against Whitmore Lake.

It came at a good time. The Eagles managed just four hits against Whitmore Lake, but they came at the right time. Three walks loaded the bases in the second inning, and Nancy Kobernick singled to drive in two runs. Lisa Erickson followed with another single to re-load the bases for Karin Reed — who promptly unloaded them with a three-run triple.

That completed the scoring for both teams. PCA had scored in the first on a walk to Kobernick, two stolen bases and a passed ball on strike three to Christy Walker.

'Big Fish' expands outdoor dining area

Warm days, cool nights, spring in Michigan is heavenly. I visited Chuck Muer's Big Fish at 700 Tenthon Center Drive, on the perimeter of Fairlane Mall in Dearborn, Saturday to check out their expanded patio dining area. It's very nice. The chairs are comfortable, and landscaping creates a buffer from mall traffic.

The outdoor dining area now accommodates 200 guests. Jazz pianist Ernie Swan performs 5:30-10 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, and 5:30-8 p.m. Fridays. From 6:10 p.m. Wednesday, Big Fish offers a Patio Jazz Summer Concert Series. The restaurant is also presenting musical performances by the Hans Muer Trio 8 p.m. to close on Fridays, and other local artists on Saturdays nights. Order from the special patio menu of appetizers and entrees. Call (313) 336-6350 for reservations.

What's your favorite summer outdoor dining spot? Call or leave me a Voice Mail message at (313) 953-2105. Throughout the summer we'll be featuring new restaurants and sharing reader tips on good places to eat out.

Rest, relaxation and romance are the top reasons Americans dine out, according to the 1994 MasterCard Dining Out Study, recently released at the National Restaurant Association Hotel-Motel Show in Chicago.

Eighty-two percent of the respondents said that going out to eat is the number one way they unwind and relax, and 60 percent view dining out as a way to treat themselves. Celebrating anniversaries and birthdays are other occasions for eating out. Mother's Day and Valentine's Day ranked third and fourth behind anniversaries and birthdays. Followed by Father's Day and New Year's Eve.

Traditional family holidays such as Christmas, Thanksgiving and Easter are rarely spent in restaurants, with people preferring the comforts of home cooking on these days.

When does your family eat out? Do you agree with the survey? Call me.

St. Dunstan's shines in challenging musical

BARBARA MICHALS

St. Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook presents an outstanding production of "City of Angels," a musical about Hollywood in the 1940s. Talent abounds in the large cast, all of whose members were night, June 3.

The musical is a play-within-a-play. It pokes fun at the hard-boiled detective genre of the 1940s as it shows a film in progress, and it also takes a more serious look at the inglorious maneuvers going on behind the scenes of the film.

Stine (Jamie Richards) is a young novelist who has sold out his artistic integrity for the big bucks of Hollywood. As he struggles to complete the screenplay to one of his detective novels, he also struggles to keep his self-esteem on track, his libido in check, and his marriage intact. He's losing the battle until Stone (Jim Andres), his fictional alter-ego, slips over into the real world and gives his creator a pep talk.

Each scene that Stine writes is acted

ON STAGE

"City of Angels"
★ Theater: St. Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook, outdoor Greek Theatre, 400 Lone Pine Road, on the Cranbrook Educational Community campus, Bloomfield Hills.
★ Curtain time: 9 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through June 18.
★ Tickets: $12, students and senior citizens, $10. Call 644-0527.

ed out on stage, including rewrites. Scenes in the "real world" of the movie script are presented in all black-and-white, while those in the "real world" are in color. Aside from the male leads, each cast member plays two characters, one in Stine's real life and one in the film. Add to that the problems of 31 scene changes presented in the outdoor venue of Cranbrook's Greek Theatre.

Director Nancy Brassett has deftly coordinated the cast and crew of this large undertaking. Assisting her are musical director Marlene Loucks, choreographer Dee Dee Johns-Charlton and assistant director Paul Gillin.

REVIEW

Richards is perfect as Stine, whether struggling to keep his frustrations in check or venting his sardonic humor, and vocally he's magnificent, belting out his solos and duets.

Likewise, Andres is marvelous as Stone, giving a wonderfully droll delivery to absurdly corny lines and adding strong vocal ability. The Stine-Stone duet "You're Nothing Without Me" is a real tour de force.

Kappy Pennington is convincing as the movie's seductive Alaura Kingsley and looks stunning in all white as she vamps around Stone's office. Kendall White is well-cast as Mallory Kingsley, the sexpot daughter in the film and sexpot starlet off-screen.

Janie Castagna so thoroughly individualizes her roles as Gabby, Stine's long-suffering wife, and Bobby, the lost love of Stone's life, that it is hard to remember whether they are played by the same actress. Vocally she shines in her sexy torchsong "With Every Breath I Take," and the duet "What You Don't Know About Women."

Ed Guest is very believable as Buddy Fidler, the unscrupulous real-life womanizing producer-director, and Irwin S. Irving, his exact movie counterpart.

Amy Lynn Smith is excellent as Dolie, Stone's wise-cracking, long-suffering secretary, and as Gabby, Buddy's real-life secretary. She belts out a rousing "You Can Always Count On Me," first as Dolie, then as Gabby, with a split-second change of set and costume.

As Munoz, the Latino cop with a giant chip on his shoulder who hounds Stone with a vengeance, John Marshall is so terrific it is hard to remember that his accent is assumed. His song-and-dance routine with three other cops is hilarious. Playing pop singing star Jimmy Powers, Andrew McMechan croons beautifully, backed up by the "Angel City 4" of Krystyn Loucks, Linda Fisher, Laurie Jerrell and Kim Brown.

In smaller roles, Mark Nathanson and Ara Basharian are delightfully silly as mobsters, as are David Rau as guru Dr. Mandril and Roz Basharian as a flamboyant masseuse.

Set designer Michael Gordon and art director Ann DeMan accomplish wonders given the limitations of the outdoor setting. Costumes by Theresa Resigh and Linda Watson work very well, as does Obie Burch's lighting.

Sound designer Susan Joliffe has made a huge improvement in what has always been a major problem at the Greek theater. Unfortunately, the very capable orchestra still overpowered the singers a few times, particularly at the very start and end of the show.

Overall, "City of Angels" is a real triumph for St. Dunstan's, both artistically and technically.

DSO to play at Greenfield Village

Two of Michigan's major cultural institutions, Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall and Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village, will present an encore to last summer's highly acclaimed, sold-out concert on the museum's Village Green. For tickets to DSO concerts, call 833-3700.

Expanding on last summer's successful July concert collaboration, the DSO and Henry Ford Museum will now present three concert programs over two weekends in July and August. Two holiday celebrations, "July 4th on Broadway" on July 1, and the "Second Annual Salute to America" July 2 and 3, will be followed by "An Old Fashioned Concert in the Park" on Aug. 12 and 13.

Also in the DSO's summer plans are concerts at the Masonic Temple with superstar tenor Placido Domingo (June 30), the Interlochen Center for the Arts (July 6-9), performances at Metro Beach and Kensington Metro-parks (July 8-9) and an appearance at Detroit's Riverfront Music Theater at Chene Park (date to be announced).

"July 4th on Broadway" will feature conductor Joel Levine leading the DSO and guest vocalists Katherine Terrell and Lewis Dabie Von Schlanbusch in an evening of American popular music and Broadway show stoppers, including works by George M. Cohan, Rogers & Hammerstein and Meredith Willson.

Greenfield Village will present special pre-concert activities from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The evening will conclude with a rousing rendition of Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture and a spectacular fireworks display.

For the "Second Annual Salute to America" concerts on July 2 and 3, the DSO will be joined by the U.S. Army Field Band and Soldier's Chorus. The program will include the DSO, the 65-member Army Band and the 30-member chorus performing an armed forces medley; the DSO and chorus in "The Battle Hymn of the Republic"; and the Army Band alone in a medley of popular songs from the World War II era.

These concerts will end with the patriotic music of the Army Band and more spectacular fireworks.

"An Old Fashioned Concert in the Park," Aug. 12 and 13, will take Greenfield Village concertgoers on a musical tour of turn-of-the-century America. The "Prince of Pops," conductor Erich Kunzel, will lead the DSO in the music of Americans: Scott Joplin, John Philip Sousa, Stephen Foster and Herbert L. Clarke. A special guest appearance will be made by trumpet and cornet player Charles Daval, former principal trumpet for the Boston Pops. Entertaining pre-concert activities beginning at 7 p.m. include role players in period costumes, strolling musicians, barbershop quartets and square dancing.

Reader comments on PTG review

Editor's Note: While I was away on vacation, Frank E. Ross of Livonia sent this letter. It refers to another letter submitted by a reader about Vickie Diaz's review of the Plymouth Theatre Guild's recent presentation of Wendy Wasserstein's "Isn't It Romantic."

Dear Entertainment Editor:
Anyone for a tempest in a tea cup?
What is this nonsense about your drama critic's review of the Plymouth Theatre Guild's production of "Isn't It Romantic," recently?

The review was studded with words of praise: "This talented group," "attractive actresses," "intriguing to watch," "display a certain appeal," "definite bright spots," "dressed in electric colors and looking pretty much like a million bucks," "laser beam energy." Jerry Salas succeeds and is always a pleasure to watch," "one of the night's best moments," "costumes are first-rate."

Does one want the directors of community theaters to write their own reviews?

I think Victoria Diaz is an adroit critic and far more generous to community theaters than the daily newspapers, which generally ignore it.

Cop faces greatest challenge on runaway bus in 'Speed'

Jack Traven (Keanu Reeves), a Los Angeles Police Department cop on SWAT detail, has a fearless nature and a keen understanding of the criminal mind. That and some luck have kept him alive.

But Jack's luck is being put to the ultimate test. He's trapped on a runaway city bus that's set to explode if it falls under 50 mph.

Get ready for rush hour.

"Speed" also starring Jeff Daniels, Dennis Hopper, Sandra Bullock and Joe Morton opens Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters. The Twentieth Century Fox release marks the directorial debut of Jan De Bont. The screenplay is by Graham Yost.

The moment producer Mark Gordon finished reading Yost's screenplay he knew that "Speed" would be his first action project.

"The story feels real," said De Bont. "Most action films are so elaborate with so much fantasy, you can't go along with them. 'Speed' is about these normal everyday people on their regular bus ride downtown who are suddenly faced with their worst nightmare."

The bomb-laden city bus was actually 10 identical vehicles each outfitted with different driving, camera and lighting rigs. For instance, one bus, affectionately known as the "Pope-mobile," contained an enclosed Plexiglas platform fitted on its front which held three cameras, operators and sound equipment.

For the elaborate action set pieces Gordon turned to stunt coordinator Gary Hymes, a noted race-car driver and veteran of several Steven Spielberg films.

The other vital element to the success of "Speed" was the cast, particularly Keanu Reeves and Sandra Bullock who plays Annie, a passenger who unwittingly becomes the driver of the runaway bus.

De Bont was meticulous about his casting choices, selecting actors who would bring just the right tone to the film.

"Keanu and Sandra bring a contemporary look and attitude," said De Bont. "Because Keanu wanted to do most of his own driving and stunt work, it made his performance all the more compelling."

Bullock brings an edge of much-needed humor to the tense film. "The audience needs to laugh within the context of this story," said Gordon. "And Sandy provided that. Her performances is incredibly honest and funny."

What is a heroic film without a great villain?

"Action films live and die by their villains," said Gordon. "And we have a terrific one in Dennis Hopper."

Hopper, as the sociopathic Howard Payne brings the same air of menace and touches of evil to his performance that characterize his chilling work in "Blue Velvet" and "True Romance."

In battling Payne, Reeves is assisted by two noted stage and screen actors, Obie Award winning Jeff Daniels as Harry Temple, his partner, and Emmy Award nominated Joe Morton, as Captain McMahon.

Daniels first came to the attention of film audiences in the Oscar winning "Terms of Endearment." Since then he has starred in a wide variety of roles, most memorably "Gettysburg," "Ragtime," and Woody Allen's "The Purple Rose of Cairo" and "Radio Days." He is currently filming the comedy "Dumb and Dumber" with co-star Jim Carrey.

The Michigan native alternates film and stage work. He is the founder of The Purple Rose Theatre Company in Chelsea, which is devoted to developing Midwestern actors, playwrights, directors and designers.

After attending Central Michigan University, Daniels joined New York's renowned Circle Repertory Theatre.

'Get Even With Dad'

Here's an early Father's Day gift idea for dad — take him to a special afternoon sneak preview of "Getting Even With Dad" on Sunday, June 12. At select theaters including Star John R, Star Winchester, AMC Laurel Park Place, Showcase Pontiac and Movies at Fairlane, the purchase of a children's ticket will also buy an admission for dad. Call theaters for show times.

"Getting Even With Dad" stars Macaulay Culkin and Ted Danson in a hilarious and heartwarming comedy about an enterprising kid who finds the perfect way to make his father into the dad he never had — a little love, a little kindness — and a little mischief.

Directed by Howard Deutch ("Pretty in Pink," "Some Kind of Wonderful") from an original screenplay by Tom S. Parker and Jim Jennewein ("The Flintstones," "Richie Rich"), the film was produced by Katie Jacobs and Pierce Gardner, with Richard Hashimoto executive producing.

'Midnight Cowboy' rides again at select theaters

In honor of the 25th Anniversary of the original release of "Midnight Cowboy," MGM Pictures will be presenting this film June 10 to 14 at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor and July 15 to 21 at the Main Art Theatre in Royal Oak.

Originally released May 25, 1969 at the Coronet Theatre in New York City, "Midnight Cowboy" stars Joe Buck, (Jon Voight) a good-looking, uneducated Texas youth, who is convinced that he is the answer to the prayers of many lonely, love-starved New York women.

Joe quits his dish-washing job, outfits himself in synthetic cowboy regalia and heads East. In New York, he meets Ratso (Dustin Hoffman), a sickly, undersized Bronx-born con man, who first victimizes then teams up with him.

This unlikely pair of loners join forces to bilk a hostile world which rebuffs them at every turn.

In the movie history books, the Jerome Hellman/John Schlesinger production of "Midnight Cowboy" rates landmark status not only as a multi-Oscar winner, but the first major studio production to be branded with an X by the MPAA's then brand new Code and Rating Administration in 1969. In 1971, the rating was commuted to an R, according to "Variety," "In light of evolving rating standards and the film's acclaim."

When the rating was changed to an R, rumors persisted — and still do — that the film had been edited, but, in fact, the movie has never been cut from the time of its original release.

Survivors revisit 'nightmare'

Bernard Offen has spent a lifetime trying to deal with the nightmare that has contorted his life. This spring he returned to its origin in a documentary that records the atrocities of the Nazi death camps for the Holocaust Memorial Center.

BY TOM DELISLE
SPECIAL WRITER

Spring came early to Auschwitz this year.

By the first week of March, faint blades of grass started to show themselves across the vast barbed-wired Birkenau complex near the Auschwitz camp headquarters in southwest Poland.

"There was no grass here then, even in summer," said Bernard Offen, staring at the wet ground. "Nothing green, just sand. Anything green was eaten."

Offen was brought to Birkenau as a 15-year-old prisoner in 1944. He is one of the few inmates to survive the Nazi murder machine that claimed the lives of 59 of his relatives.

Now a 64-year-old retiree, Offen has spent a lifetime trying to deal with the nightmare that contorted his life. He went back to the scene of his agony and loss as part of a Detroit-based documentary, commissioned by the Holocaust Memorial Center of West Bloomfield.

September Moon Production Network of Southfield is producing a video, "When Restraints Are Removed," a historical and moral examination of the Jewish persecution in Nazi Germany scheduled for showing this fall.

HMC director Rabbi Charles Rosenzweig of Oak Park and September Moon president and executive producer Rosalind Lullove Cooperman of Farmington Hills headed an 8-person crew, that included cameraman Kevin Hewitt of Livonia and lighting director Ron Jaszczak of Detroit.

Cooperman, producer Will Lawson Sr. of Royal Oak and Rosenzweig have accompanied Holocaust survivors back to the ghettos of Warsaw and Krakow and the desolation of such places as Treblinka, Plaszow, Majdanek and Auschwitz-Birkenau.

Provides a lesson

They have conducted extensive oral history interviews with the survivors, four of whom live or have lived in the Detroit area, and have videotaped international witnesses.

The documentary will ask viewers: "What would you have done?" The film is intended, said Rosenzweig, "to provide a lesson to individuals to ensure that all societies will be protected from the evils and hatred that are unleashed when moral restraints are removed."

At Birkenau, known as Auschwitz II, the major killing field of all the death camps with possibly a million fatalities, the video crew set up its equipment by the fearsome arch, or "Death's Gate," through which trains passed into Birkenau. Offen, a former Ferndale resident, slowly shuffles along the rails, his head down. He walks along a rail line that abruptly stops about a half-mile ahead.

This short track, literally the end of the line, completed a network of tens of thousands of miles of railroads that spanned Eurasia and the Mediterranean, ultimately connecting them to an earthly hell. It stretched from Norway in the north to Athens in the south, Caen in the west to the ravaged villages of the Soviet front.

These are the same rails that brought Offen and his 50-year-old father in a cattle car wash in human waste and jammed with other terrified Jewish "prisoners" in August 1944. Indeed, their nightmarish 3½-day journey in that suffocatingly hot car was itself a death sentence for some.

Auschwitz-Birkenau spreads across some 430 acres of former Polish farmland. Its crude barracks once held more than 100,000 prisoners stacked, in its commandant's words, "in swarming ant-hills."

Painful story

Now, the quiet serves to mock the sounds of terror that had filled the air of Auschwitz-Birkenau 24 hours a day from March 1942 to November 1944. Today, Offen tells his simple and infinitely painful story.

Jacob Offen, a simple shoemaker, had lied about his son's age to pass him off as older, and more likely to be selected as a camp laborer. SS men quickly made a cursory decision about the new arrivals' physical capacity for back-breaking work. Those who qualified were pointed to the right and were doomed to crushing labor and eventual death. The old, the young, most women, the weak, were waved to the left and were doomed to immediate death by gas, then burning in crematoria or an outdoor pit.

Jacob Offen instructed his youngest son, "Get behind me, and stand on your toes." The SS man pointed past Jacob at Bernard and signaled "right" to join the laborers. Offen looked back to see his father motioned to the left to death. Their eyes met in a last moment of desperation, love and goodbye, and it was over.

When Offen was having his identification number, B-7185, painfully tattooed on his forearm later that day, he asked of another inmate, "Do you know what happened to my father?" "He went up the chimney," was the man's reply.

At least, if it can be of any solace, Offen knows where and how his father died. His mother, sister, grandmother and grandfather were abducted by Nazi troops in separate raids of the Krakow ghetto and never seen or heard from again.

Rosenzweig was a teenager in one of the many thriving Jewish communities of Poland when war struck in September 1939. He fled to Russia and escaped.

This trip is his fourth trip to the death camps. Poland was once the home of an estimated 3.3 million closely knit Jews; today the estimated is between 4,000 and 20,000. Nearly 90 percent of Polish Jews died in the Holocaust, and hundreds of their survivors were murdered in Poland when they returned to reclaim their property after the war.

Very difficult

As Offen told his story at Birkenau, the camera crew taped the gas chamber and crematorium at the main Auschwitz grounds. As the team stares in silent shock at the mountains of shoes, suitcases and Jewish prayer shawls accumulated at the prison camp called Majdanek, the rabbi paces, his head down, in constant aimless motion.

"It is very difficult," said Rosenzweig. "Very difficult."

Golfers tee off for scouts

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Not wanting to rely solely on profits from cookie sales, the two local Girl Scout councils are asking area golfers to hit the greens at Plymouth's Fox Hills Country Club.

Friday, June 10, the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, which administers Girl Scouting in Washtenaw, Livingston, Western Wayne and Monroe counties, is hosting the 1994 Juliette Low Golf Open. For $110 per person, golfers can spend the day golfing at the Scottish-style golf course.

Verna George, a longtime Girl Scout volunteer from Canton, is organizing the three-year-old event for the second time.

"We're just trying different things," said George, who said the organization is hoping to raise $7,500 from the event. "The council doesn't want to be dependent on girls selling cookies. All the money goes right into the Girl Scout program. It goes directly to the girls."

Aside from golfing at the Juliette Low Golf Open, golfers who may not be too happy with their game can learn a few tips from LPGA pro and Livonia resident Lynn Waldecker. She will be on hand for most of the day conducting a golf clinic and providing pointers for the golfers.

George said that she gets a kick out of watching men golfers perfect their game with the help of a woman pro.

"The majority of the people who were golfing were men; they had a woman telling them how to correct a problem and they loved it," George said. "We were thankful that she was able to give us a day again. She's a professional. She knows what she's doing."

Between golfing and dinner, co-chairman Bill Thompson will host "Beat the Knucklehead," where golfers pay $2 to try to beat him putting.

"If you do, you get a box of Girl Scout cookies; if not, we get to keep the two dollars," George said.

Participants in the open will also be treated to a steak dinner at the clubhouse. They will have the opportunity to win round-trip airline tickets from Southwest Airlines, an autographed Pistons basketball, two tickets to the Buick Open, a signed, framed lithograph from David McCall Johnston, two daily admission passes to the Ford Senior Players Championship, four World Cup Soccer tickets, two one-day tickets to the First of America Classic, and two daily tickets to the U.S. Women's Open.

Minister begins work on new church

If a friendly stranger shows up, at your front door this summer, it will be the Rev. Kenneth Roberts.

A Lutheran minister, he has begun canvassing Plymouth Township in preparation to start the New Life Lutheran Church, a new congregation of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

Roberts will be canvassing through September or October to gather up members for the new church in northwest Plymouth Township. Plans are to begin worship, Bible study and services in 1995.

He had been working as manager of periodicals sales for Augsburg Fortress, a Minneapolis, Minn., publishing house, prior to beginning his mission work.

Roberts received his bachelor's degree in divinity in 1969 and his master's degree in divinity in 1971, both from the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Seminary in Columbus, Ohio. He received his bachelor of arts degree in mathematics in 1965 from Capital University, also in Columbus.

Writer is tolerant of others' opinions

Dear Ms. Green,

I have been enjoying your column in The Observer for a long time, and I am very interested in what you might have to say about my handwriting.

I am 36 years old and right-handed. Much of my writing time is spent taking shorthand notes. I normally print in the interest of efficiency/legibility.

Thank you for your time.

C.R., Plymouth

This young woman enjoys people. She probably believes in life and let live. She seems to be more easygoing about rules and regulations. Problem solving and new information are done by accumulating the facts in a methodical and orderly manner. She draws conclusions from known and proven facts. Decisions are made slowly and carefully. This caution tends to impede impulsive behavior. She wants to be certain of her answers; so they are not arrived at quickly.

Cumulative thinkers like this are usually gifted with good manual and finger dexterity. Often, they are adroit in working with tools, computers, instruments, etc.

Mentally, she wants time to work things through. Deadlines or time limits may cause her to feel pressured. Working with individuals who process their thoughts faster than she does might also be a little unsettling. Although she absorbs information more slowly than some, she rarely forgets what she has learned.

This is a practical woman. She believes in taking precautions and does not leave success to chance. Before undertaking a new venture she studies the possible ramifications and accumulates the necessary knowledge.

About certain aspects of her life, our writer is inclined to be secretive. She can also rationalize and make excuses when things do not turn out as she would like.

Most of her goals appear to be set at a level that does not require a real challenge on her part. However, she means to achieve these goals.

The totally illegible first name in her signature tells us there is something about the status quo she does not like. Anonymity and/or concealment is further suggested.

If she would like to make her handwriting more legible, I would like to suggest that she omit those cup-like lead-in strokes on her words.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48154. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are all helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome.

To J.C. of Livonia, Please send another letter written in ink. The pencil copy was too light to reproduce well. Thanks.

Do you believe anyone deserves God's forgiveness? When we were ENEMIES, we were RECONCILED to God by the death of His Son. Romans 5:10. It is Jesus who re-establishes us with God in a justified standing. And the does this when we were ENEMIES. Amazing grace! We seek a church to keep our foot on Christ. Come and worship Him with us!

Questions concerning the total number of those put to death and imprisoned, the work of both collaborators who helped Nazi persecution and the "righteous" in various countries who aided the hunted; the relative numbers of Poles, Russians, Germans and Gypsies who disappeared in the killing apparatus; the position of the Vatican regarding Jewish oppression; and allegations of inadequate response by the Allied powers to the emergency have served to make the Holocaust a highly sensitive subject.

That the Soviet Union liberated Poland and most of the key concentration camp sites, often juggling historical facts to fit political ends, aggravated the problem. Then there was the revision and heartache the civilized world felt on viewing the gruesome images of the camps when they were liberated in 1944 and 1945. Winston Churchill said it was "probably the greatest and most horrible crime ever committed in the whole history of the world."

While the lessons of the Holocaust seem etched in the stone of Majdanek, where a granite memorial that covers a sea of ashes and human bone fragments intones, "Let Our Fate Be Your Warning," controversy continues about the actual numbers of the terrible toll.

The traditional number of estimated Jewish dead in what is called the "Shoah," or catastrophic destruction, has long been 6 million. More recent figures, based on delayed Soviet information, indicate the number could be closer to 5.2 million dead. However, some believe that a new counting process currently under way will reveal that up to 7 million Jews perished, out of an estimated 8.9 million who lived in Europe in the 1930s.

Rosenzweig, his historian colleagues and Holocaust survivors stress that in considering the enormity of those numbers, it is important not to ascribe the crime merely to Adolf Hitler or to a lunatic aberration of the human soul. The Holocaust existed as a public function of a sitting government, with tens of thousands of bureaucrats employed in the daily eradication of a race of people.

At Auschwitz, functionaries as diverse as doctors, train engineers, poison gas manufacturers and victim-tabulating accountants helped to make up the far-flung killing machine. Other nationalities, particularly the Poles, suffered terribly under the Nazis. Patriots, the intelligentsia and priests were crushed in the conquered countries. But the Jews alone were targeted as a race.

No exit
Many heard the official welcome offered to inmates of Auschwitz by SS commandant Karl Fritzsch: "You have just arrived not to a sanatorium, but to a German concentration camp, from which there is no exit but through the crematorium chimney. If there are among you Jews, they don't have the right to live longer than two weeks; if priests, not longer than four weeks; the rest — three months."

In the words of liberated prisoner Dr. Zalman Grinberg: "We unlearned to laugh. We cannot cry anymore. We do not understand our freedom yet, all this because we are still with our dead comrades. We are not alive. We are dead."

The eloquence of the survivors videotaped for the project is overwhelming. West Bloomfield resident George Vine recounted how his father kept assuring his son that the real Germans, the good Germans, would soon come along to renounce the actions of the SS few. His father admired the Germans beyond any nationality in Europe. Only Vine survived of his family.

Eva Kor, who with her twin sister, was used for medical experiments by infamous SS doctor Josef Mengele, spoke to her late mother at the very site at Auschwitz where she last saw her alive.

Abe Bomba, who lost his family at Treblinka, said, "I was ashamed to tell that I was in a concentration camp. (People thought) you must have done something wrong. The German people were intelligent people, doctors, professors; they wouldn't do something like that."

"Very, very fine people perished here; people believing in God with all their hearts, and they come to a place like this, and they knew that five minutes after they will all be dead"

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

Do's and don'ts when growing an herb garden

Last February, I designed an herb garden for a semi-shady location and have had several questions about caring for the plants. Here are some tips about horticultural practices, culinary and crafts, for those specific herbs:

Herbs don't require much fertilization. If they are strong and healthy, they won't need the boost. But, if you want, it's time to fertilize the garden now with a 5-10-5 solution. Miracle-Gro in a hose-end sprayer works well. If the ground is dry, water it before fertilizing to prevent burning the roots.

Keep the garden weeded and the plants trimmed to avoid possible pests and diseases, although herbs generally aren't bothered too much. Crop rotation of some such as tarragon, thymes and sages benefit from this practice. Use a mulch to deter weeds. Clean the garden in the fall and work a layer of compost into the soil.

If you see white-fly, place a yellow board coated with oil to attract the flies. Slugs can be hand-picked or repelled with diatomaceous earth, stale beer or traps. An insecticidal soap or a cold water spray will keep spider bites at bay.

Drying directions

When harvesting, remove only one-third of the plant so that it continues to grow. Use the fresh herbs, as soon as they look big enough, in culinary dishes. If they are clipped often, they will reward you with more growth. As the supply increases, they can be prepared for winter use.

Herbs can be dried by laying them on a screen or basket, or securing the ends with a rubber band and hanging them until dry in a dark area that has good circulation. A paper bag with holes punched in it over the herbs will keep the dust away.

Place the herbs on a paper towel and microwave them at 50-percent power. Always put a cup of water in the unit. An oven temperature at 180 degrees Fahrenheit works - if you smell them, it's too hot! A few can be placed in the refrigerator on a towel on a plate and left uncovered to dry. Before storing, be sure they're corn flake crisp.

One-half cup herb used singly or in combination in an eight-ounce tub of soft margarine with one-half teaspoon lemon juice can be frozen for use on veggies or for French bread. Freeze a single layer and then bag. LABEL EVERYTHING!

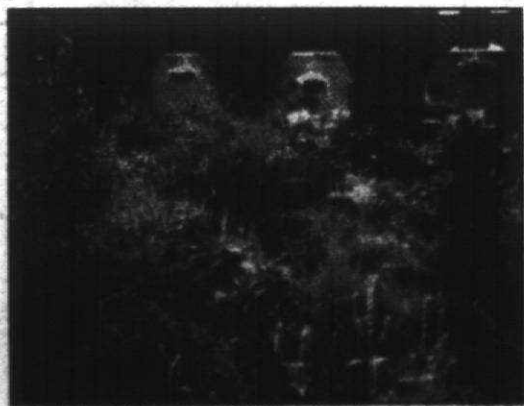

Now for the specific herbs from the February design:

■ Lavender - Prune plants back as new growth is starting. This fall, don't prune the spikes off so they can protect the plants during winter. In mid-spring, trim off the old spikes and one to two inches of last year's growth. Lavender is pretty in floral arrangements and is used for moist and dry potpourris. Lavender cookies are unusual.

■ Thymes - Don't let them get woody; in spring, cut back dead growth. Cut the sprigs for drying, then run your hand backward up the stem to remove the leaves. Remove the leaves the same way when they are fresh. Thyme is good with green beans and a sprinkle of lemon juice.

■ Sage - Prune in mid-season so it doesn't sprawl. Hard pruning will result in a bushy plant with lots of bloom. Fresh sage is used in wreaths and cooking. After drying, rub it between your hands, then store - great for stuffing! Harvest any time. Lavender, thyme and sage can be propagated by layering.

Irish charm: Cathy Hankey's color photographs will bring the beauty of Ireland landscape and architecture to the Livonia Arts and Crafts Festival this weekend.

Livonia photographer captures Ireland

See Ireland through the lens of Cathy Hankey when she displays its majesty in an exhibit of full-color prints at the Livonia Arts and Crafts Festival at Greenmead Historical Village June 11-12.

A touch of Ireland descends on Greenmead Historical Village Saturday-Sunday, June 11-12, as Livonian Cathy Hankey brings the landscape and architecture of the Emerald Isle to life in a series of color photographs exhibited at the 18th annual Livonia Arts and Crafts Festival.

The juried show, featuring more than 200 exhibitors, runs 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. Greenmead is at Newburgh and Eight Mile in Livonia. Visitors can walk through the historical village during the show, but the buildings won't be open for tours due to a lack of volunteers.

A sneak preview of Hankey's work is on display through June 30 in the Livonia Arts Commission's circular showcases on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library. The arts commission also sponsors the festival.

Hankey's images are primarily of Ireland, but she also captures the beauty and charm of Scotland, England and Wales on film. From a small lighthouse near Waterford to the sheep of Magillacuddy Reeks in County Kerry, Hankey spotlights these places and more, including Windsor Castle, home of the royal family; Blarney Castle, and the magnificent stone structure that is Kylemore Abbey, which is on one of lakes of Connemara, County Galway.

"When you do scenic photography, you're out there where it's beautiful. You get to go to a lot of neat places," Hankey said. "Kylemore Abbey is one of the prettiest castles in Ireland. It's now a girls' school."

Hankey took up photography 10 years ago as a way to relax after long, sometimes grueling days as an accountant for Montgomery Ward, a position she has held for the past 29 years.

She acquired the basics of photography, including how to develop black-and-white film and retouch photos, in adult education classes at Stevenson High School in Livonia.

Exhibitors sought for Plymouth school benefit

New Morning School in Plymouth is looking for artists and crafters to exhibit in the fourth annual Celebration of the Arts, running 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 12, at the Northville Community Center, 303 W. Main.

All work must be of original design and execution for the juried show. A limited number of exhibitors will be accepted in each category. Booths will be reviewed during the show to select artists who will be invited back next year. Booth fee is $65. Deadline for entry is June 30. Observerland artist are especially invited.

The $1.50 admission collected at the door goes toward operating the nonprofit preschool through eighth grade parent cooperative. New Morning School is state-certified and serves students of all abilities from the learning disabled to the gifted.

Last year's show spotlighted 70 Michigan artists displaying a variety of media, including pottery, jewelry, paintings, mixed media, collage, fiber art, photography, wood, and adult's and children's wearables.

"We're looking for quality, the unusual, holiday items because the show is right before the holidays," said chairwoman Plymouth resident Leslie Stolaruk, stressing this is a top-of-the-line fine arts and select crafts show.

"It's truly a unique show to the area because these are gallery-type items, a neat collection of artistic expressions, reasonably priced," she added.

Last year's exhibited fare included kaleidoscopes, vintage reproduction clothing, wildlife photography, wheelthrown pottery, baskets, hand-blown glass, wood collage, birdhouses and handmade paper.

Fiber artist Linda Haderer of Petoskey exhibited colorful earth angels and wall hangings at last November's show.

"It's a great mix, a unique show because of the blend," Haderer said.

New Morning School provides individualized skill development, encourages student responsibility and positive interpersonal relationships, and fosters parental involvement in all aspects of the school.

For more information and an application, call Stolaruk: (313) 420-3467.

IN FOCUS

The nature works of Monte Nagler, the Observer & Eccentric Newspaper's Focus on Photography columnist, will be displayed noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday, June 11-26, at Pine Creek Ridge Lodge, 5317 Hidden Pines Drive, south of Brighton Road, two miles west of downtown Brighton.

Pine Creek Ridge is a 700-acre residential development by Burton-Katzman Development Co., Bingham Farms.

Art Beat

"Monte Nagler's photograph's are exquisite in terms of capturing nature," Katzman said. "His philosophy toward his profession is similar to what we have done at Pine Creek Ridge, which is allowing nature to be the driving force behind the creation of a unique residential environmental community."

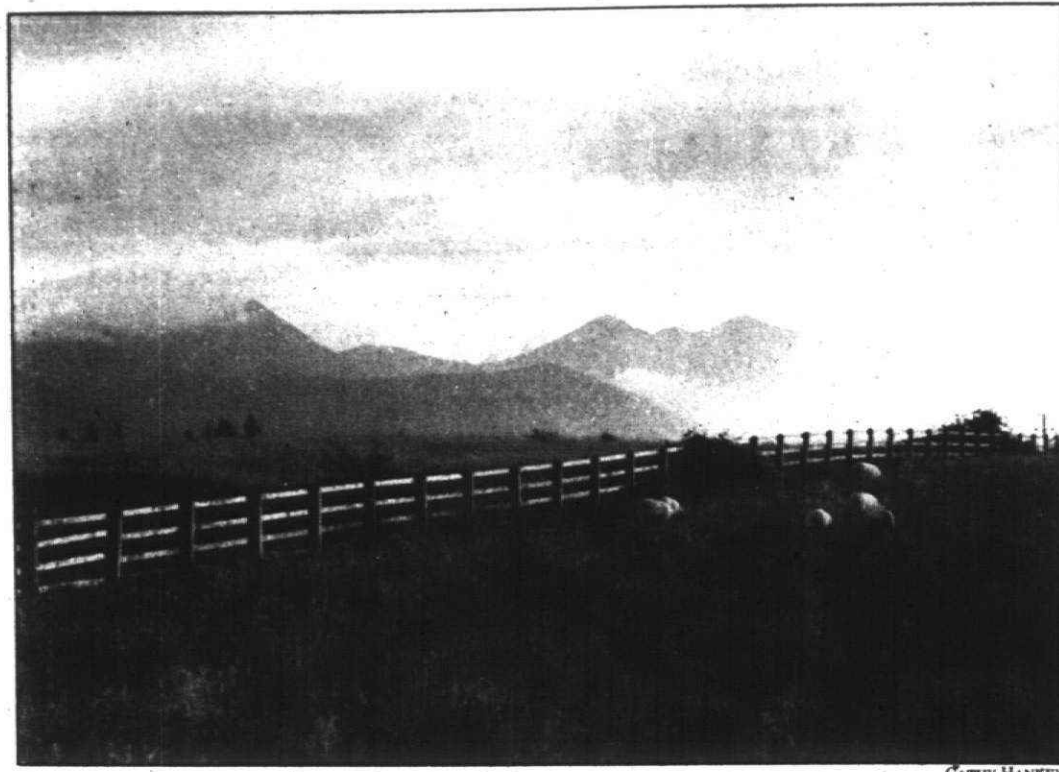

"We're honored to have Monte Nagler's work on display at Pine Creek Ridge Lodge and hope the people of southeast Michigan will take advantage of this opportunity to see the work of a true artist."

The Farmington Hills resident's photographs are in many private and public collections, including the DIA, the Brooklyn Museum, the Center for Creative Photography in Tucson, several U.S. corporate headquarters and art galleries.

CRAFTY AFTERNOON

A juried arts and crafts fair will take place alongside an auto swap meet and antique car show from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, June 12, at The Wilson Barn, West Chicago, east of Middlebelt, in Livonia.

The Friends of the Barn will host the old-fashioned country funfest.

Free rein: In County Kerry, the sheep are free to roam the countryside in the fields below Magillacuddy Reeks without regard for roads or automobiles.

"It helps me unwind, doing something different. In accounting, you always have to be right. You better balance, or you're in trouble," Hankey said.

For the last 10 years, Hankey has shared her love of landscape with art show visitors. She will display work in the Farmington/Farmington Hills Founders Festival as well as in a show at Frankemouth this summer.

But what is it that draws her back to Ireland again and again? "The people are unique. You can get pretty scenery anywhere. It's the people. They're very friendly. They want to talk, then they'll tell you anything and everything you care to know about their country."

Hankey's first husband died six years ago after 24 years of marriage. Photography kept her going during the grieving period after her husband's death. "It helped me through the down times."

■ French tarragon — Two or three harvests per year are possible. Cut when it's 18 inches tall. Use it fresh on fish dishes, or make a flavored vinegar.

■ Basils — Keep the flower stalks pinched off the plant for more foliage. When making vinegar, use white for the opal, regular cider for the green. Make a pesto base, then freeze for winter use.

■ Parsley — When harvesting, cut the foliage from the outside completely to ground level. It's full of vitamin C.

■ Summer savory — Harvest when it's about six inches tall. Frequent snipping will extend the harvest. When it insists on flowering, cut the whole plant down, dry it, strip the leaves and store.

■ Coriander — All parts are edible. Leaves are called cilantro, used in culinary dishes. Leaves, roots and seeds are used in marinades. One-half teaspoon ground coriander seed added to the batter of a loaf of ginger, carrot or banana bread is a treat.

Herbs can be found at Farmer's Markets, Telly's Greenhouse in Troy and Clyde Smith & Sons in Westland.

I'll be happy to share more of these fascinating plants with your group. Just call. And enjoy your herbs!

Out of the ordinary: By using a combination of filters, Monte Nagler was able to produce this unusual photograph of the recent eclipse of the sun.

Aim to make the ordinary different

MONTE NAGLER

Focus on PHOTOGRAPHY

Want some ideas for different kinds of photographs — pictures that will grab the viewer's attention and make him or her say, "What is this and how did you do it?"

All it takes is to make the ordinary different. For example, even everyone likes to photograph flowers, especially at this time of year. But let's make the ordinary different. A trip to your local glass shop is all it takes.

A piece of textured shower door glass placed between the flowers and your camera will produce stunning effects similar to an impressionistic painting. Textured glass is available in many styles (even colors) so the possibilities are endless. Use your imagination to shoot other subjects through textured glass.

Another way to make the ordinary different is to use a super wide angle lens 20mm or less. The distortion you'll get by moving in closer to your subjects will amaze you. Move in close to a friend or to your family pet. Try sighting straight up a tree. The resulting distortion will produce dramatic and unusual results.

We're all so accustomed to photographing people so that we can see their faces. How about shooting them from their backs or doing a photo theme of hands or feet? This would certainly make the ordinary different.

Lilley Pointe boasts amenities, value

A condominium community in Canton four years into construction still seems to be a good buy. The buildings look sharp, the grounds are well maintained and plenty of amenities are offered for the money.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

A brand new two-bedroom, two-bath condominium in Canton with all major appliances included, plus air conditioning, balcony or patio and a carport - all for $80,400 or less.

Where?
Lilley Pointe, on Lilley between Ford and Cherry Hill.

Some 80 units remain to be constructed by Thomas Burdt on land developed by his father, Richard. Nearly 150 have been completed since the two started work at the 22-acre site four years ago.

"I think basically it's a good quality product built soundly for the money in a good area," Thomas said.

"Price is always the first draw for first-time buyers," Richard said. "Location is always the second factor."

"There's nothing in Canton that compares to this in price," said Virginia R. Walsh, a sales representative at Lilley Pointe.

■ 'We're shooting for young people just getting out of college and we're shooting for retirees looking for a place with reasonable dues and a presentable place they can live summers.'

"There's very little (distance) they have to drive for conveniences," said David Castelli, whose Century 21 firm is managing sales.

Lilley Pointe offers three basic models ranging from 970 square feet, the Ashley, to 1,050 square feet, Cloverdale and Bedford.

All models offer range, refrigerator, microwave, garbage disposal and washer and dryer as standard amenities. There are heat detectors tors in every room and smoke detectors outside of each bedroom.

The rooms are fairly small but functional. The master bedroom in all three models is about 11-by-14 feet. The largest living room is 214 square feet.

But a balcony on second-floor units and a patio on ground floor units extend the living space. The two bedrooms are also at either end of each unit for more privacy. All upper-level models have cathedral ceilings and private entrances with an electric heater at the door to provide warmth on cold days.

The Cloverdale has more cabinets in the kitchen, but the Bedford more room there for a table and chairs. The Cloverdale has a walk-in closet in the master and a wall separating the dining area from the master.

Lilley Pointe is serviced by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. The property tax rate for municipal, school and county services is expected to approach $31 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation.

Global challenge

Fortune 500 setting lures new campus chief

Theory and Practice. That's the approach Lawrence Technological University takes at its Southfield campus.

Some 5,000 students from virtually every corner of the metro area study there. About half are in the day program, half at night.

Charles M. Chambers, who was installed as LTU's fifth president last weekend, actually has been on the job for about a year.

"One of the major reasons I came here is within 10 miles of where we're sitting, 40 percent of the Fortune 500 firms have headquarters or a major division," he said.

Chambers, who holds three degrees in physics and a law degree, participated in the Apollo space program that landed men on the moon. Most recently, he served as president of the American Foundation for Biological Sciences.

Following are edited excerpts from a recent interview:

What do you see ahead in the world of work?

Chambers: I envy young people today. The opportunities for creativity and exciting careers are out there in ways never seen before. It will be very challenging.

When your grandfather got a sixth-grade education, he could look forward to doing for his entire life

That means the owner of an $80,000 condominium at Lilley Point would pay about $1,240 annually in property taxes.

The association fee to maintain the common areas is $72 per month.

"We're shooting for young people just getting out of college and we're shooting for retirees looking for a place with reasonable dues and a presentable place they can live summers," Richard Burd said.

"We see a lot of blue-collar retirees who want to keep a place in the northern U.S. and go south for the winter," he added.

Prospects like the Canton area, the eating space in some of the kitchen models and the view from the upper level, Walsh said.

"You have a good atmosphere out here," Thomas Burd said. "It's quiet, relaxing. People are always walking around with their kids."

The development has a gazebo and quite a bit of grass, but no pool or clubhouse.

"We did away with those amenities due to costs for upkeep," Richard said. "We wanted to keep it as reasonable as we can."

Other factors contributed to keeping the price down, Thomas said.

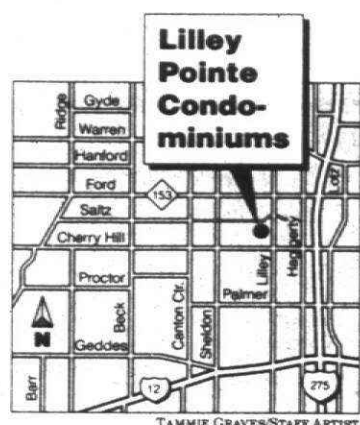

"Materials and labor have to be bought right. Something like this volume helps. You can get a good price for the dollar for construction. We have it designed so it's not complicated."

Pam Haggerty, a nurse, moved into Lilley Point about seven months ago.

"It looked well kept," she said. "I knew it had been started three or four years ago. Everything was still well maintained. It looked like everyone cared about their home and would be good neighbors."

Haggerty purchased an Ashley model.

"It's very open," she said. "The living area is all one room — kitchen, living room, dining room. When I have people over, I don't like being shut away in the kitchen."

Haggerty moved to a condo from a house.

"I noticed one down side is people aren't used to living in a community setting real close. You give up some quiet and privacy. It's not a real negative but an adjustment."

Glenn and Jeannie Fixler, retirees, plan to live at Lilley Point for part of the year and in Florida during the cold-weather months.

"We felt it was an answer to what we needed," Glenn said. "We wanted something a little smaller... and I didn't want work around the place."

The Fixlers, who liked all the models, settled on the Bedford for better access in and out of the kitchen. They added cabinets to the kitchen and utility room and upgraded the carpeting.

"It's close to shopping, very close to expressways, nice restaurants out there. The price was right, too," Glenn said.

what he was doing when he started. Your parents may change careers two or three times. A young person today is going to be changing five to seven times in his lifetime.

The role of high school and college is not to crunch out carbon-copy architects and engineers, but prepare them for lifelong learning — graduate degrees, short courses, seminars. We want young people comfortable with adapting to new things.

What has caused the change? Chambers: The basic reason is international competition. You have to be out front with what's happening now. You need more training, more education, more skill.

You hear business make a distinction between service and product. That's a false distinction in many ways. Manufacturing isn't a mechanical thing that sits in factories and hums along. It's a very agile enterprise.

To keep a competitive edge in manufacturing depends on a very careful extension of service. You need a feedback system of monitoring, controlling quality with people involved. That's service. There's a strong convergence. The best manufacturing system today builds on people skills.

It seems that a lot of educated, experienced people have lost their jobs in recent years with corporate cutbacks. What's their future and should they loyalty be a two-way street?

Chambers: A company can support a workforce only to the extent it can be competitive in the marketplace. A company has to be able to be economically strong.

That's the only real security. We're going through a readjustment that's a real painful one. Highly trained people in my view aren't nearly in as bad a situation as faced their parents who were semi-skilled.

People can move into education, helping with young people. And entrepreneurship. Big companies don't want to be everything. They're willing to contract out.

But what about the quality of life for displaced and unskilled workers?

Chambers: I've been in India, the Middle East, all through the Orient. I can tell you the standard of living we have, even if it were to flatten out, is extraordinary.

Our children may not have the four-bedroom home, three baths and a two-car garage, but when you see how life is in Europe, apartments with two bedrooms, shared baths... I think our standard of living is much superior.

I would like to compare more with quality of life, the idea that if you're not better than before or your parents, you're a failure. Our quality of life is unmatched.

They (untrained and unskilled) may have to share an apartment. They may not have a fancy car. But they will have recreation, health care, nutritious food, clothes, quality of life.

What kind of training is needed for a technology or business career in the future?

Chambers: Quite honestly, a four-year college program is still the basic entry level for professional work whether it's journalism, accounting or business.

Chill out cheapie air-cooling check

It's annual check time for air-conditioning systems and the cost has gone up a little, but cheapie checks offered by some companies can damage both the environment and one's bank account.

The home or business owner should beware of any price of $30 or lower to clean and check an air conditioning system, according to Tom Leckie, who has been in the business for 15 years.

"That figure is below the actual cost of sending out a trained technician in a well equipped van," said Leckie, vice president of Bergstrom's Inc. of Livonia.

In other words, the cheap price is a loss leader, offered as a way to get into one's home or office to eventually sell new units, expensive repairs or even worse — damage the current system so it really needs repair or replacement.

The so-called technician sent out by a disreputable company may be just a young man with a small bag of tools and very little training, out to sell more expensive repairs and new equipment. Older home owners and widows are often the easiest prey for such scams.

Bergstrom's, in business 36 years in Redford and Livonia, charges $59.95 for its 18-point, A/C service call.

It takes $30,000 to properly equip a van with freon reclamation tanks and other tools needed for A/C service, according to Leckie, who has eight of them on the road.

The new equipment, necessitated by EPA rules in effect since July 1, 1992, makes A/C service calls slightly more expensive, but does help protect the earth's ozone layer.

Homeowners can do a simple job of cleaning and checking their own air conditioner, according to Bergstrom's.

After turning off the electrical power, the homeowner should clean out the outside condensing unit of any leaves, cottonseed fluff, dust, etc., and give its coils a good cleaning. Professionals such as Bergstrom's use an acid wash to remove scum from the coils.

An A/C system also uses cooling coils inside the furnace, but they are not easily accessible to the homeowner and need not be cleaned as often.

"What the homeowner definitely can't do these days, without violating the Clean Air Act of 1990, is open the system and add freon," said Leckie.

Since freon gas is odorless and invisible, it may be a temptation to some to violate the law by letting it illegally escape into the atmosphere. If the service technician doesn't have with him a special freon discharging unit and tank, it's a dead giveaway.

Homeowners should then ask themselves what other corners are being cut by the service company, and what other laws are being violated that put the customer's health and safety at risk.

Cool down: Technician Steve Flis of Bergstrom's tunes up an air conditioning unit while assuring the freon gas is captured and recycled.
