Fourth celebrated in style

BY JULIE BROWN

At 1½, Ethan Christensen's probably too young to remember much about Plymouth's Fourth of July parade. Even so, his parents, Karen and Lou Christensen of Canton, decided to bring him to the Monday afternoon parade.

"This'll be his first parade," Karen Christensen said. They were sharing a shady spot on the Plymouth Historical Museum's lawn with other paradegoers. Nearby was Virginia DeVic of Livonia, who attended the parade with her hus-

Water limits remain

■ Canton is among 117 metropolitan communities asked to continue restricting use of outside water. Residents and businesses are asked to follow the odd-even address sprinkling schedule.

Canton residents and businesses are asked to continue restricting their outdoor use of water for the next month.

"Detroit would like to have the communities to continue the restriction," said Joe Teramino of Canton Public Works. "With residents abiding by the restriction it helps other communities with their water problems."

Canton residents have been lauded for reducing their water consumption by 50 percent during the voluntary ban that began June 10 in response to a broken watermain in Ferndale and low water reserves.

"The residents have cooperated a whole lot," Teramino said.

In one of the larger of four pits where Canton gets its water from Detroit, consumption dropped from 4.5 million gallons to 2 million gallons. A fifth pit is planned to be built, Teramino said.

Throughout the early-to mid-June ban, Canton's water pressure was stable. "We never lost any pressure. We never got any complaints from residents," he added.

Following a recent meeting with Detroit water officials, Teramino said 117 metropolitan communities were asked to continue use restriction in anticipation of a summer of drier and hotter than normal weather.

The restriction, however, is only on outdoor use. Residents may continue to use water inside without restriction. Residents and businesses are asked to only use outdoor water on the odd-even system that was used recently during the ban. Those with property with an even address should water the lawn, for example, only on an even calendar day.

The odd-even system also applies to homeowners who have automatic sprinkling systems, which can be turned off or retimed.

Trustees give nod to two new subdivisions

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

Two new subdivisions are proposed for the Canton Center-Cherry Hill corner.

Township trustees approved a preliminary plat for a 10-lot subdivision to be called Pine View Estates. The subdivision will sit between Glengarry Village to the south and the vacant Top Value Muffler building to the north.

The 10 lots will be an average 90 feet wide and 125 feet deep. A boulevard will serve as the single entrance off Canton Center to the subdivision.

Township trustees also approved a tentative preliminary plat for Kingston Estates, a 21-lot subdivision on 9.4 acres south of Cherry Hill, between Canton Center and Sheldon roads. Glengarry Village subdivision is south of the proposed subdivision, while Pine View Estates meets it at the southwest corner.

Pine View developer Gerald Schopper was asked to enlarge a landscape buffer facing Canton Center Road. Schopper presented his plans for the subdivision before township officials changed the subdivision control ordinance, which now requires a 50-foot buffer. Schopper had planned a 25-foot buffer.

"This will break the continuity of what's going on on Canton Center, between Cherry Hill and Palmer," said township trustee Melissa McLaughlin, a planning commissioner, referring to the smaller buffer. "We are working hard on Canton Center to maintain the beauty."

Glengarry Village, south of Pine View, and Fairway Pines, across Canton Center, both have 50-foot buffers.

McLaughlin assured Schopper he would not have to plant more trees or bushes on the berm that would be on a lot where Schopper plans to build a house. "You still have a large building envelope to put your house on it," McLaughlin told Schopper, who plans to have side-entry garages on the new houses.

Forum prompts flurry of questions on schools

BY M.B. DILLON

Residents attending a recent town meeting on education hosted by United We Stand America, 13th Congressional District, questioned school administrators on the way in which children are being taught in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Topics at the Canton Public Library ranged from outcome-based education to business's impact on instruction.

Dr. Thomas Tattan, executive director for instruction, and curriculum coordinator Sheila Alles outlined Public Acts 335 and 339, laws passed by the Legislature Christmas Eve and referred to as "the midnight massacre" by educators.

School administrators will be required to submit detailed improvement plans under the legislation. Schools will risk accreditation if they don't provide a core curriculum as required by the state Board of Education. Students will take more standardized tests, as well.

"There's going to be accountability to the local community, state and federal governments," said Alles.

Plymouth-Canton schools are getting a head start by offering K-8 enrichment classes through its new academy this summer.

Aspects of the new state laws remain unclear. "They're trying to figure out what they meant by what they passed," said Tattan. "What the dialogue really needs to be is, 'What are the adult roles schools are supposed to prepare students for?' " he said. "If you listen to some futurists, our children will have to change careers four to six times. We should be comparing our students with their counterparts in Asia and Germany, not Belleville and Northville," he added.

Tattan also outlined the Goals 2000 Educate America Act, passed by Congress and signed into law by President Bill Clinton.

It provides that all children in America will start school ready to learn; the high school graduation rate will increase to at least 90 percent; and every school in America will be free of drugs and violence and will offer a disciplined environment.

July 16 Race Day

By Jill Halpin
Staff Writer

Runners and walkers, mark your calendars: Saturday, July 16, is officially Race Day in Canton Township. Beginning this year, racers of all ages are invited to Heritage Park to participate in three races sponsored by Canton Township Parks and Recreation. This year marks the 14th year of the popular township event.

In a departure from the department's annual five-mile race, this year's Race Day will feature a half mile fun run for children ages 12 and under and a 5K (3.1 miles) walk for all ages in addition to the five-mile run, said Bob Dates, Canton Parks and Recreation supervisor.

"We wanted to make some changes and encourage the whole family to come out this year. We've had a lot of interest in our five-mile run in the past and some requests for other activities. This will add some variety to the event," Dates said.

Also different this year will be the course of the five-mile race. Construction in the area has forced race organizers to temporarily re-route the race course through Glengarry subdivision adjacent to Heritage Park. Runners will begin in the park, travel through the subdivision and finish the race back at the park. The fun run and the 5K walk are scheduled to be held in the park.

Previous race days have attracted as many as 240 runners from the community, Dates said. Due to the variety of events offered, he expects the number of participants to be even larger this year.

Participation in the races also has its bonuses; awards donated by local businesses are offered for top finishers and race participants will also receive some perks. Runners in the five-mile run will automatically get a Race Day T-shirt, and fun run participants will get a ribbon.

New Developments

Editor's note: Listed below are some of the construction projects, including residential and commercial developments, as well as road projects, proposed or underway that may interest Canton residents. This column will be published intermittently to keep residents abreast of development in the community.

- Road work: The state of Michigan is planning to provide a new road surface on Ford Road from Marlowe, just east of Sheldon Road on the east, to Napier on the west. The project will be bid in July and likely start sometime in August.
- Water lines: Installation of water and sewer lines are planned in the area of Palmer Road, between Lotz and Hannan, with paving scheduled for late summer.
- Construction route: Residents in the Maben Road/Sunflower area have been notified of a specific route for heavy construction traffic to the new Sunflower number 11 subdivision. The route will use a temporary access road north off Maben and Canton Center. Heavy construction traffic will not be allowed to travel on Maben Road between the temporary road and Beck. The route will begin to be used as soon as the temporary road can be installed by the builder, Pulte Homes, which must coordinate with Wayne County and the subdivision developer. Building in Sunflower number 11 is scheduled to be done by the end of the year.
- New plans: Planning commissioners are scheduled to review site plans for Cavalier Corners (formerly known as Sheldon Cherryhill Shopping Center) on July 11. The 19,080-square-foot center is proposed of an 8.1-acre site on the northeast corner of Cherry Hill and Sheldon. It will include a new Arbor Drugs.

The Century Commons shopping development at Haggerty and Palmer is back on the agenda for planning commissioners. Also scheduled for July 11 is consideration of site plans for the Sierra Heights subdivision, a 23-lot subdivision south of Cherry Hill and east of Lilley. Foxcreek South, a 38-lot site condominium project, is also on the agenda July 11. The project is west of Haggerty, south of Warren.

- Holiday Park: Sewer inspection and cleaning work is scheduled to be completed soon in the Holiday Park neighborhood by Canton Public Works staff. Residents with questions should contact Public Works, 397-5441.
- Ford Road delays: A sewer repair project and the Downtown Development Authority streetscape are causing intermittent lane closures on Ford Road, between Sheldon and Morton Taylor. Work is continuing on the sewer project on the south side of Ford Road, east of Sheldon. Work is expected to be completed by mid-July.

Information on any projects planned in Canton, including the DDA streetscape, can be obtained by calling planning services, 397-5390. Questions about infrastructure improvements, including subdivision development and water and sewer installation may be directed to Canton Engineering Services and Public Works, 397-5405. For questions about building-related and ordinance issues, call Building and Inspection Services, 397-5400.

Police chief finds car phone missing

Listed below are some of the Canton police incidents, fire calls and court cases reported during the past week:*

■ LARCENY

Thieves stole Northville police Chief Chip Snider's cellular phone from his 1992 Ford Taurus as it was parked outside his Canton Township home last week. Snider reported the theft of the $369 Mitsubishi phone to Canton police on June 30. Snider discovered the phone missing upon entering his car on June 30.

■ CAR THIEF APPREHENDED

Police were on a routine patrol at a Michigan Avenue gas station when they observed a 17-year-old man attempting to leave the station after pumping gas without paying for it. When police moved in behind the man, the man exited the car and claimed that he had no money and had left his wallet at home. A vehicle check revealed the car to be stolen from a Dearborn resident.

As the suspect was being handcuffed, another man exited the car from the passenger side and ran into the woods. He was apprehended in the area of Palmer and Sheldon and taken to the Canton police station. He was later questioned and released to the custody of his grandmother. The first suspect admitted to police that he was transporting a stolen vehicle and expected to receive "seven G's" for the delivery of the car to an unnamed location. He was turned over to the Wayne County youth home pending investigation.

■ ROLLER BLADES STOLEN

A Plymouth woman reported that the rear window of her 1991 Ford Escort was broken while she was inside Pogo's Bar and Grill in Canton Township on June 30. The 19-year old woman told police that her $220 Roller Blades were missing following the break-in.

■ EMBEZZLEMENT

Police are investigating embezzlement charges against a Builders Square employee. Police were called to the Canton Township store on July 3 after store employees apprehended a woman drawing merchandise refund checks made out to herself. Store managers observed the woman cashing a refund check for a $262 garage door and pocketing the money. After being questioned by store security, the woman admitted that she had cashed three other merchandise refund checks, although store managers could only find evidence of two checks. The woman had worked at Builders Square as a senior cashier responsible for supplying money to cash registers.

Volleyball league meets

Canton Parks and Recreation is accepting applications for a new sand volleyball league set to get under way in mid-July. Applications for men's, women's and co-ed teams may be filed with the department with a $40 fee for the six-week league. The games will be played at the new sand volleyball court located in the township's Heritage Park. An organizational meeting for all teams will be held as soon as registration is done. For more information, call Canton Parks and Recreation at 397-5110.

The DeVics started bringing their older grandsons, now in their 20s, to the parade many years ago. This year, they came to the parade with their younger grandsons, ages 8 and 7.

"We've been instilling this in our grandchildren because this is our heritage," Virginia DeVic said. "This is our day of patriotism and what we really stand for."

The annual parade, sponsored by the local Jaycees, features patriotic music and flags, something DeVic finds inspirational. "It brings tears to my eyes. I think it's just so important that we commemorate the people that have gone before us."

The parade featured as grand marshal the Fred Hill Briefcase Drill Team. Many political candidates participated, as did such groups as the Vietnam Veterans of America, Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, YMCA Indian Guides, Boy Scouts, Canton and Salem cheerleaders and others.

Michigan Gov. John Engler was present, marching behind a car that carried his wife, Michelle, who is expecting triplets. Representatives of Basic Aid for Babies and Youth, a Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth program, participated, as did the Salem Rockettes, Canton Chiefettes, Polish National Alliance Centennial Dancers, Plymouth-Canton Steelers, Plymouth Playscape project representatives, local police and firefighters and others.

Paul Sincock, Plymouth assistant city manager, was among those who helped get things set up for the parade. It's "going very well," he said. "The usual little problems here and there. We resolve them."

Attendance was good, said Sincock, a Plymouth resident, adding that the day's pleasant weather was a contributing factor. "It's warm but not too warm. In years past, we've had it just stifling hot."

The Jaycees deserve credit for putting on the parade, he added, and for presenting the annual fireworks display the evening of the Fourth of July. The city helps by providing a fireworks site and security assistance, along with some security help from Plymouth Township. "But the Jaycees put the event on," said Sincock, who was enjoying his 38th Plymouth parade Monday afternoon. The parade lasted just over an hour.

"It is the election season," Sincock said of the number of politicians in the event. "I think the parade's improved every year. It just makes it a positive event for everybody."

Emerald Aviation owner gone, but his hard feelings remain

By Joanne Maliszewski
Staff Writer

After about three years at Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport, Dan Malone closed the doors to Emerald Aviation on June 30.

His final day at the airport was agreed to in a consent judgment between Malone and Desert Sand before 35th District Court Judge Charles Kaufman June 14. Desert Sand — from which the state bought the airport — continues to manage the facility while state officials hammer out a contract with Doug Kitze, the new manager and new fixed base operator, who replaces Malone.

Malone still has some bad feelings. Right after the consent judgment he received a notice from the state Bureau of Aeronautics that he had to stop providing his flight school because his license was revoked and he no longer had a lease for Emerald Aviation.

"They had only two weeks to leave me alone," said Malone, who is headed to Australia. "I pursued a settlement to end arguments. Now they've inflamed it. They take punitive action and vicious tactics against me. Is it because I resisted their authority?"

The consent judgment ended a disagreement between Malone and Desert Sand. Both sides said the other owed money. But at issue was a 1991 lease for 15 years, which Malone said had a 90-day termination clause. In mid-1993, Desert Sand notified Malone that there would be a 30-day termination notice. But Malone said he never agreed to that.

When Malone was notified he didn't get the FBO/manager bid at the end of March, he received a 30-day notice to get out. Desert Sand and Malone filed suit against each other, including for money owed each other for rent and utilities.

"We don't have to wait 10 days for him to leave," said Randy Coller, state bureau of Aeronautics licensing and enforcement manager.

Tova Shaban, attorney for Desert Sand, acknowledged that after repeated attempts to reach agreement before the June 14 court date, negotiations broke down. "The parties after June 30 will part their ways," she said.

The consent judgment makes a wash of the money Desert Sand and Malone owed each other. But Malone wanted some dollar value for improvements he would leave behind in the Emerald Aviation hangar. He received approximately $4,000 in value for the improvements, which took care of about $2,000 rent. Malone valued the improvements at more than $7,000. In a tentative agreement, Malone was to rent a T-hangar where he could repair a plane. That wasn't included in the consent judgment.

"They've taken more merchandise for less value. They have taken more from me than I have from them," Malone said.

Before the court date, a tentative agreement was reached between Desert Sand and Malone. When the state — which is involved because it owns the airport — sent him a formal agreement, which was drafted by state attorneys, Malone rejected it.

"They wanted me to sign off all liability on the process they used that put me out of here," Malone said. "They also wanted me to sign off the rights of my employees."

Malone continues to take exception to the way he feels he has been treated, including the attempt to get him out before his time was up, as well as compensation for the improvements he made, not to mention the manager/FBO bidding process and the latest notice that he couldn't continue his flight school until June 30.

"When it comes to dealing with the little guy like me, they give you a hard time," said Malone.

Coller doesn't believe the state or Desert Sand gave Malone a hard time. "We bent over backward to reach an agreement," Coller said.

Meanwhile, Malone said he has worked with Kitze who is operating out a part of the hangar in which Emerald Aviation was housed. "I've referred some of my customers to him," Malone said.

Coller said he expects to have a completed contract with Kitze sometime this month. "We really would like to get Kitze in place. He's offering maintenance and fuel sales and flight school already," Coller said.

cal of the mandates.

"Anyone who's worked in quality knows you can mandate nothing," said Tattan. "Motivation is intrinsic. It comes from people themselves; not from mandates in the middle of nowhere."

Bobbie Cleary, a one-time school board candidate from Canton who participates in home schooling, pointed out that the federal department of education exists illegally in a constitutional republic. "The right of education belongs to the state and local communities," she said.

"I encourage people to home school. People don't seem to see what's going on. I don't think we can salvage the system."

Cleary said American students lag behind their counterparts from other countries because American schools spend less time on academics. "De-centralized decision-making sounds good," she added, "but how can we have that when our core curriculum is aligned with the state and federal government? The federal government has complete control."

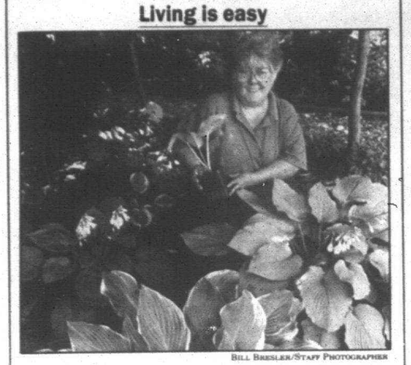

Tattan said individual schools have the power to decide how to improve the delivery of services.

"The real important things we have no control over. The curriculum is what's most important to parents," said Cleary, who's disturbed by the lack of textbooks and what she calls the "dumbing down" of students.

Tim Dobson, a resident of the district from Salem Township, said to Tattan: "I see everything you're saying as social manipulation. You're trying to develop society with rules. You will pick any free-thinking individual and put them in a place where he or she has no affect at all."

Another resident described the changes as "a bunch of rhetoric. How do you propose to enforce this? Arrest parents?"

plies to businesses, as well as commercial and industrial facilities that sprinkle lawns. The odd-even address restriction applies, even though many of the business and commercial facilities have automatic sprinkling systems.

"They do have the means to reset their timers (on sprinkling systems)," Teramino said.

Communities, such as Canton, are expected to meet again with Detroit water officials at the end of July, Teramino said.

Approval from page 1A

The developer agreed to cooperate but questioned the number of restrictions and regulations. "You are making the rules. Can you afford to buy one (a house in new Canton subdivisions)?" Schopper asked the township board, referring to costs associated with regulations.

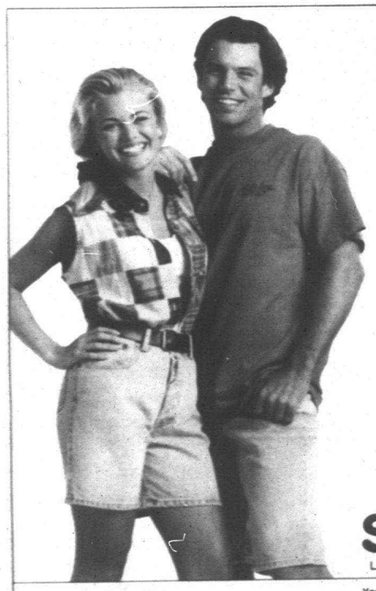

Supervisor Tom Yack responded: "We are looking for a balanced community," referring to homes in a variety of price ranges.

"It isn't cheap to develop lots anymore," Schopper said. "You can't keep growing and growing and adding and adding. Pretty soon you won't be able to sell your house."

Attempts also had been made to attach both Pine View and Kingston Estates subdivisions because they touch at the southwest corner. But Pine View was further along in the township review and approval process, Yack said.

Township officials also have approved a site plan for the Coves of Canton, which is an attached condominium development on 20.47 acres on the northeast corner of Warren and Lilley roads.

The development will have 148 units ranging 1,350 to 1,650 square feet. The units will be ranches with two or three bedrooms. The units will be offered in either two condos per building or four condos per building, said Kevin Spizizen of the Admiral Development Company.

ST. MARY HOSPITAL

You share the same body, the same life-giving nutrients for nine months. Each of you affects the other in countless ways.

Why is it then that many hospitals treat you and your baby like completely unrelated people?

OUR NURSES SEE THEM AS STILL BEING ATTACHED

You stay in your room. Your baby stays in the nursery. And you're each cared for by a different nurse.

A better way

At St. Mary Hospital we offer a better way to begin. A personal nurse takes care of you and your baby together to encourage the best possible start. So your nurse can tell how your comfort level, moods and medication may be affecting your baby. And how your baby's behavior influences you. This new way of caring is called mother-baby nursing.

Mother-baby nurses

With mother-baby nurses, you can learn by watching the nurse care for your newborn at your bedside instead of out of your sight in a nursery. If you have a question about your baby, the nurse can answer it immediately. You won't have to wait for the "baby nurse."

The Miracle of Life Maternity Center at St. Mary Hospital has mother-baby nursing all the time.

More support, more education. It's a better way of caring.

To learn more about the benefits of mother-baby nursing call 313-591-2882. Ask for a free brochure, tour, or physician referral.

Domestic violence

Laws promote greater awareness, more help

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

To attorney Henry Baskin, "25 years of neglect" came to an end July 1 with 15 new laws to combat domestic violence and his task force's plan to make sure everyone enforces the laws.

"That's how long I've been trying to get uniform enforcement," said the noted Oakland County divorce lawyer who headed Gov. John Engler's task force on domestic violence.

"He's the most knowledgeable domestic relations lawyer in Michigan," Engler said last week in a Southfield news conference, "and I thank his group for doing it so well and bringing it in on time." By "on time," Engler meant the July 1 effective date of the new laws.

Said Baskin: "We no longer will be able to blame judges. Judges will no longer be able to blame police. Police will no longer be able to blame prosecutors.

"This is not a reaction to recent events," said Baskin, referring to the murder charges in California against football great O.J. Simpson. "It's a reaction to 25 years of inaction."

Baskin went to work on it three months ago at Engler's request, with a task force that included Wendy Potts, new Oakland County Bar president; Andrea Fischer, Birmingham attorney and political activist; Lucille S. Taylor, Southfield attorney and member of Engler's administration; Oakland Circuit Judge Edward Sosnick; and former judge Robert B. Webster.

Sosnick also heads the Michigan Domestic Violence Prevention and Treatment Board. "The board Judge Sosnick chairs will spend more than $4 million this year to make comprehensive domestic violence services available to survivors," Engler said.

"The board is also working closely with police, prosecutors, judges, social workers and doctors to provide training and other vital services," the governor added.

"We'll expand the training for new police officers from four hours to 14 hours in how to deal with domestic violence," said Anne Mervenne, former Birmingham resident who now directs the Michigan Women's Commission. "We'll also be encouraging police departments to provide in-service training for veteran officers."

A key goal, she said, is uniform implementation. Many counties, cities, townships and judges don't take the serious approach of Southfield.

"We've had this in place for three years," said Southfield public safety director J.E. Thomas. "We educate. We have human resources professionals to deal with cases. We have a police policy with a supervisor and two officers to deal with them."

Mervenne, Engler's former appointments chief, said the Women's Commission is working on educating the public about shelters, hot lines, family stress centers, religious groups, legal assistance centers, and other agencies.

Among area hot lines, operated 24 hours a day and accepting toll calls, are:

Oakland County — Haven, (810) 334-1274.

Western Wayne County — First Step, (313) 459-5900; YWCA Interim House, (313) 861-5300; My Sister's Place, (313) 921-3900.

Livingston County — Livingston Area Council Against Spouse Abuse, (313) 227-7100.

Eaton County — Battle Creek Area Safe Place, (616) 965-7233.

New violence laws make many changes

Here are some of the new tools police, prosecutors and judges may — and sometimes must — employ to halt domestic violence:

■ Court injunctions in divorce cases to restrain one party from threatening to kill or hurt the other. (Public Act 57 of 1994)

■ A new, prepared form a nonlawyer can fill out in the court clerk's office asking for an immediate circuit court injunction against a threatening party (Baskin task force). A judge who declines to issue an injunction must explain why, on the record, and thus is under pressure to issue it. A judge is required to issue the order when certain criteria are met. (PA 68)

■ Immediate court placement of a domestic relations injunction into LEIN (law enforcement information network), alerting police agencies statewide to the situation.

■ Harsher penalties for assault and battery performed on a spouse, former spouse, individual with whom one has had a child in common, resident or former resident of a household. (PA 64)

■ Expanded power for police to make warrantless arrests in domestic violence cases. (PA 66)

Sheriff set to impound drunks' vehicles

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano has another weapon to use against drunken drivers.

A new ordinance adopted unanimously by the County Commission gives Ficano permission to impound the vehicles of drunken drivers and require that a $500 cash bond be posted to retrieve each vehicle.

If the suspect is convicted, the bond will be applied to payment of court fines and costs, Ficano said. The sheriff's department patrols Hines Park and Eight Mile Road, and has limited patrols in Detroit, River Rouge, Inkster and elsewhere.

The program was patterned after the sheriff department's "Push Off" program, in which the vehicles of individuals arrested for possessing drugs while driving are impounded.

The ordinance was drafted by county commissioner Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe, and sponsored by commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

"The sooner offenders pay their fines and court costs, the sooner that money can be used for drunken-driving enforcement, and the safer our streets will be," said McCotter.

Detroit Bar rates judge candidates

■ The committee, consisting of attorneys who practice in Detroit and Wayne County courts, rated 101 of 107 candidates who are seeking election or re-election in district, probate, Detroit Recorder's, and Wayne Circuit courts.

The Public Advisory Committee of the Detroit Bar Association has released its ratings of judicial candidates in contested elections in Wayne County for the August primary and November general election.

The committee, consisting of attorneys who practice in Detroit and Wayne County courts, rated 101 of 107 candidates who are seeking election or re-election in district, probate, Detroit Recorder's, and Wayne Circuit courts.

The ratings are based on an interview of each candidate by a panel of committee members, and a questionnaire returned by each candidate. Six candidates received no rating because they did not participate in the process, and the committee determined it lacked sufficient information to rate them.

Each candidate received one of four possible ratings: outstanding, well qualified, qualified, or not qualified.

In the case of a sitting judge seeking election to a higher court, the rating is the committee's opinion of that candidate's ability for the position he or she is seeking.

For the Third Judicial Circuit Court in Wayne County (10 vacancies): William Leo Cahalan, well qualified; Robert J. Colombo Jr., outstanding; Richard L. Cunningham, well qualified; Andrea J. Ferrara, qualified; Sharon Tevis Finch, well qualified; John H. Hausner, well qualified; Arthur J. Lombard, well qualified; Cynthia Diane Stephens, outstanding; Michael J. Talbot, well qualified; Paul S. Teranes, outstanding; Kaye Tertzag, outstanding; Deborah A. Thomas, not qualified; Carole F. Youngblood, well qualified.

For the 3rd Judicial Circuit Court in Wayne County (one vacancy): John William Callahan, well qualified; Amy Patricia Hathaway, qualified; David J. Szyinanski, qualified; Isidore B. Torres, outstanding.

In addition to other information and the personal interview of each candidate, the committee uses the following as a guide in its evaluation process:

Outstanding: To be rated outstanding an individual must stand at the top of his or her profession; and must rank among the very best qualified judges or lawyers available for judicial service. They must have an outstanding legal ability and background, and wide experience, wisdom, intellect, insight, and impartiality. To be accorded the highest rating, a candidate should generally have the breadth of vision and outlook which derives from participation in the civic, charitable, religious or political activities of the community and the work of the organized bar or other professional organizations. In short, they should be a person whose pre-eminence in the law and as a citizen is widely acknowledged and whose qualifications for the position are virtually unanimously hailed by judges and lawyers.

Well Qualified: A candidate must exhibit essentially those qualities indicated for the rating of outstanding. Although this is a rating which is lower than outstanding, it is nevertheless a high rating.

Qualified: A candidate must exhibit a fitness for the jurticial office which he or she seeks. A candidate given this rating would be considered average on an overall analysis of the factors set forth above.

Not Qualified: A candidate must be considered well below average on an overall analysis of the factors set forth above.

The "not qualified" rating indicates that a candidate is not qualified for the judicial office which he or she seeks, but the rating should in no way be construed as an adverse reflection on the qualifications as an attorney.

Not Rated: If a candidate does not submit a questionnaire or attend an interview and there is insufficient information available to the committee on the candidate's fitness for the judicial office which he or she seeks, the committee shall make no rating of such candidate.

Schoolcraft trustees question furniture purchase

■ 'I'm uncomfortable spending this amount of money and not having anything on here that says we've had a competitive bid.'

Carol Strom

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

Schoolcraft College trustees recently approved the purchase of about $550,000 worth of furniture for the college's new student services building.

A total of 514 Kreuger International classroom chairs and 14 stacking carts will be purchased from Educational & Institutional Cooperative Service of Illinois for about $50,000.

Three-hundred Vogel Peterson computer task chairs will be purchased from Hospital Purchasing Service of Middleville, Mich. for about $22,000.

Eighty-eight Nucraft Furniture Co. wooden bookcases will be purchased from Stacey Grimes & Associates of LaSalle, Mich. for about $24,000.

Seventeen Kwik File cabinets will be purchased from Remco Office Systems Equipment Co. of Southfield for about $18,000.

The big ticket item is an unspecified amount of Steelcase office furniture for $415,000 from Educational & Institutional Cooperative Service.

Installation of the furniture will be performed by Business Installations Inc. of Detroit at a cost of $17,500.

Trustees expressed concerned about buying furniture from consortiums and cooperatives without competitive bidding.

"I'm uncomfortable spending this amount of money and not having anything on here that says we've had a competitive bid," trustee Carol Strom said.

Adelard "Butch" Raby, the administration's vice president for business, said it would be very difficult to compare the bids of dealers and manufacturers with the price he can get from a purchasing cooperative. "It's like comparing apples to oranges to grapefruits," he said.

The trustees accepted the administration's explanation, but considered reviewing the college's purchasing guidelines in the future.

Law imposes fee on insurance firms

State Capitol capsules:

Insurance consumers will get more protection, Gov. John Engler said as he signed House Bill 4871 into law. The "insurance fee" act will assess companies fees on the basis of their volume of business, using revenue to fund the Insurance Bureau, a regulatory arm of the Department of Commerce.

In the past, Engler said, the Insurance Bureau sometimes received insufficient funds in the budget process. If this continues, Michigan could fail to gain accreditation from the National Association of Insurance Commissioners and offer weak protection for consumers.

Engler said the new law will "encourage more companies to base their operations in our state, and thus give consumers more choices."

Jail rent

County sheriffs will be able to charge jail inmates more for their stays under another act signed by Engler.

PA 212 doubles the daily amount that can be charged from $30 to $60. It also extends from six months to 12 months the time during which a county can seek reimbursement.

The sponsor, Rep. Sal Rocca, R-Sterling Heights, said his home base of Macomb County spends about $56 r day. He said other counties may follow Macomb's lead in seeking reimbursement.

Fall session

The Michigan Legislature has adjourned until Tuesday, Sept. 13, though a few committees are continuing to meet.

It is scheduled to meet for three weeks, until Sept. 29, then break again until Nov. 10, after the general election.

In the Senate, Sept. 15 is the final day for reporting Senate bills from standing committees, and Sept. 22 is the final day for committee action on House bills.

Fall registration continues at Madonna

Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Classes begin Sept. 6.

Non-admitted students must get a permit to register from the admissions office.

Madonna offers associate and bachelor's degrees in more than 50 majors.

The university is at Schoolcraft and Levan in Livonia.

Social workers group endorses Lynn Rivers

Lynn Rivers, a Democrat from Ann Arbor seeking Michigan's 13th Congressional seat being vacated by William D. Ford, received the endorsement of the National Association of Social Workers.

"Ms. Rivers' record reflects a real commitment to investing in human well-being, the basis for a stronger and more secure future for all Americans," said Betty Franklin-Hammonds, chair of the NASW-PACE, the political action arm of the association. "She brings a valuable perspective on the needs of families to the public debate and decision-making in Congress."

The 13th Congressional district includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, part of Livonia, Garden City and Westland.

Cyclists hit the road to aid good cause

A Plymouth and a Westland resident are accepting pledges for their ride on vintage high-wheel bicycles in the ninth annual Michigan MS 150 Bike Tour on Saturday and Sunday.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Not only do Karen Turner of Plymouth and Bill Smith of Westland have big hearts, they have big bikes - high-wheel bicycles Big Wheelers would die for.

They'll display both their largesse and their 1890-vintage bikes Saturday and Sunday when they join 1,500 cyclists at the ninth annual Michigan MS 150 Bike Tour, a 150-mile trek from Northville Downs to Michigan State University and back.

Cyclists are raising pledges for the Michigan Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. About 300,000 Americans have MS, a chronic, often disabling disease that attacks the central nervous system.

MS afflicts 15,000 people in Michigan and between two and three million worldwide. Its symptoms can range from numbness and balance problems to paralysis and blindness.

Most people with MS are diagnosed between the ages of 20 and 40. The MS Society funds services including self-help groups, counseling and educational programs.

Turner, 47, is a systems engineer with EDS who's raised $195 in pledges. She's completed five 100-mile rides in the past, but this will be her first MS 150 on her 51-inch, 1889-vintage high-wheel bicycle.

"We love to ride our high wheels, and we're always looking for rides to be in," said Turner, who serves as national membership chairwoman for The Wheelmen club.

The Wheelmen is a nonprofit, international organization dedicated to the preservation, restoration, collecting and riding of pre-1918 bicycles.

"I've never done a pledge ride, and I thought this would be a neat opportunity for a very good cause," said Turner. "I heard about it when Joel Alexander was interviewing Fred Schaafsma on WJR. Fred is with GM and has been real active on this tour for a couple of years."

Cyclists are raising pledges for the Michigan Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. About 300,000 Americans have MS, a chronic, often disabling disease that attacks the central nervous system.

Said Smith: "A lot of people have bikes like this and park them. They don't ride. We like to ride them as well as show them to the public. Doing the MS ride is a good way to show the public, and MS is a worthy thing."

Smith, Michigan state captain for The Wheelmen, rides a 54-inch, 1890 Columbia Highwheel. Also known as the penny-farthing, the high-wheeler was developed in England in 1871. It was considered a significant improvement over the "boneshaker," the first true bicycle. Unlike earlier designs, the boneshaker was propelled with the rider's feet off the ground.

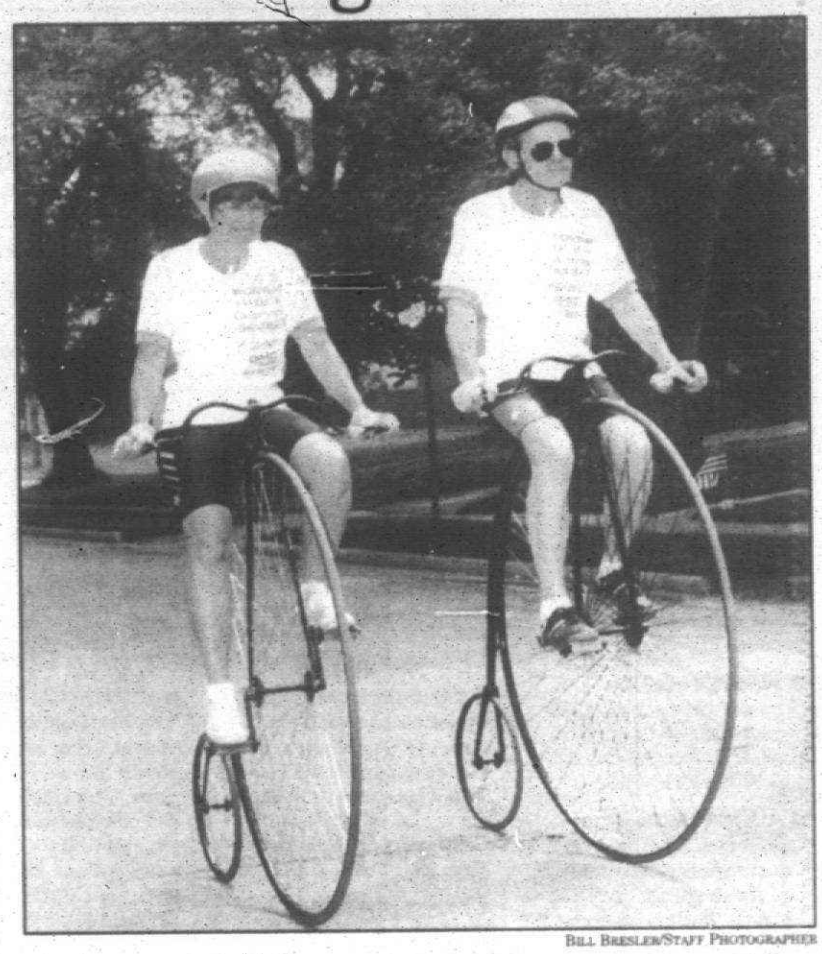

Jim Keskeny, 50, of Pinckney, has MS and is among those who genuinely appreciate those who give of themselves to raise pledges and partake in the MS 150.

Keskeny, who with help from able-bodied runners has completed several marathons in his wheelchair, helped establish the ride. "Our first ride drew 125 bikers who raised $50,000. Now we're up to nearly 2,000 who raise $600,000 or $700,000. To see it come along is really gratifying," said Keskeny, who rain or shine volunteers at the ride every year, cheering riders on at rest stops.

Keskeny serves as the U.S. representative on the Persons with MS International Committee of the International Federation of MS Societies. He is among those who've directly benefited from the MS Society. Through the society, he met others who have MS and had his car equipped with hand controls enabling him to drive.

"That (human contact) was the big thing for me; getting in touch with other people who had MS. You realize you're not alone," he said.

Anyone interested in pledging may call Turner at (313) 556-6128 or Smith at (313) 455-2610.

School buses

Lawsuit could recover money

The Plymouth-Canton schools have a perfect opportunity to recover money from bus firms convicted of overcharging school districts for buses.

The Milan Area Schools have asked the Plymouth-Canton district to join a class-action lawsuit aimed at recovering the money.

According to Plymouth-Canton school attorney Errol Goldman, "Milan is looking for other districts to join their class-action suit. They're not sure whether there is any money to be regained." He told the board he would research the issue.

We urge the school board to seriously consider joining the suit, if there is a potential financial reward. Such an action would have several benefits. First is the money. That's important, but there's also the credibility of the school board, which needs to assert its role as a watchdog over public tax money. Joining such a suit would tell the public the board is serious about watching its tax dollars.

Also, going after those who have taken advantage of government contracts sends a message to others. We won't be overcharged.

The overcharging for school buses came to light last August when Hoekstra Truck and Equipment Co. of Grand Rapids, a Plymouth-Canton supplier, and five other Michigan school bus distributors pleaded guilty in federal court to rigging the price paid by school districts for buses. The firms were ordered to pay $2.3 million in fines.

The school bus issue has been pressed by Plymouth attorney Ted Bohlen, who has taken Plymouth-Canton schools to task for failing to solicit more than one bid for school buses.

His point is a good one. The schools should have required more than one bid.

The school board is to blame for this. Most governments require at least three bids before a purchase is made. Such a requirement may not have had much effect if the firms selling buses in Michigan were fixing prices. However, if three bids had been required, the school board would have been doing its job, and there is the possibility that the price fixing would have been detected.

Since 1988 the Plymouth-Canton schools have purchased about 35 school buses at a cost of slightly more than $65,000 each from Hoekstra. This is about $8,000 more per bus than paid by the Livonia schools.

The point here is that because of the price fixing, Livonia was also probably paying too much for school buses.

The school board should seriously consider joining the class-action suit against the bus distributors, and it should also look at the way it handles such contracts in the future. But above all, it needs to see itself as the caretaker of an $85 million budget made up of our money.

Police take aim, miss justice

■ Having penalties imposed before a court date is set just smacks of guilty until proven innocent, which used to be a foreign thought in this country.

In another attempt to make the streets safer, a number of police departments are taking advantage of a new state drunken-driving law that allows municipalities to pass on costs of making arrests, performing investigations and all related staff time.

Many area communities are considering joining this group to allow police to come down hard on people arrested for drunken driving or involved in accidents while under the influence.

At first glance, it doesn't seem such a bad thing. No one wants to see irresponsible drinking and driving.

After mulling the issue, though, people should begin to wonder whether such philosophies as equal treatment under law and checks and balances on potential abuses are being practiced. For instance, why are drunken drivers targeted and not spouse abusers?

The concern is that enforcement and judgment come from a single level of government - the police officer. Having penalties imposed before a court date is set just smacks of guilty until proven innocent, which used to be a foreign thought in this country.

The issues of fairness are enough to make one dizzy.

As is the case with taking away drivers' licenses from people arrested for drunken driving, the bills for the alleged offenses are mailed out before the person arrested even sees a judge.

Who is going to check potential abuses? Few politicians or individuals would want to go against the stream and, heaven forbid, protect the rights of such lowlife as those accused - not convicted - of drunken driving.

That leads to other scenarios. Suppose there's a budget crisis; who's to say that sending three police cars instead of one isn't more a vehicle for raising money for the coffers as opposed to a need to arrest a dangerous person weaving down the road?

It's difficult for any student of municipal budgets to understand why police departments need the extra revenue stream, as they call it. Public safety generally accounts for about 50 percent of the total budget. Everyone pays to ensure that they're in a safe community. Creating a new way to raise funds seems excessive, especially since the same departments rake in bucks from other arrests, such as the drug forfeiture cases.

This is an easy fee to get past the general public. It's politically acceptable to treat those suspected of drunken driving differently than others, and municipalities are taking advantage of that sentiment.

If there is such a strong feeling that drunken driving convictions don't carry enough of a penalty, the appropriate method of dealing with that is asking state legislators to increase the fine structure currently in place. That legislation would set a standard penalty (unlike the bill-what-you-will ability now in place) and the end would be the same.

It's the means that would change, and they should. Just because something is politically acceptable shouldn't mean that civil liberties are abandoned, with people looking the other way to something that becomes a potential source of abuse.

Don't use tax money

The unflagging arrogance of residents in Sunflower Subdivision, those living in the phase northwest of Canton Center and Warren roads, who would suggest that township dollars be spent to buy them a neighborhood park in an effort to stymie development of a new strip mall - virtually in their back yard.

The 3.2-acre parcel, zoned for commercial development since 1959, is proposed by developer and property owner Mario Tartagglia to house 12 retail stores in a 25,000-square-foot plaza.

It's America! And thank God it is!

Mr. Tartagglia has every right to develop that land in accordance with township ordinances. He has the zoning. Size, entrances, exits, signage, landscaping, are all dictated by local law. He's even restricted by who he can take as a tenant. Not by company name or affiliation, but by use alone.

He enjoys the same laws, rules and regulations that allowed a developer to build your homes 20 years ago. Zoning allows for that. It provides for a planned community. Some order amid chaos. A blueprint for civilized living.

And every once in a while, every so many years, that blueprint is updated.

The township looks at what's proposed on undeveloped land, looks at how it's zoned, and decides if that is still an appropriate use. Those meetings are all advertised. The public is invited, and encouraged, to attend.

Where were the residents from this phase of Sunflower these many years that the land sat vacant?

Did they think it would remain so as development squeezes the life out of each farm field and empty corner like a slow-moving boa constrictor?

It's a part of life in urban sprawl. It's our order amid chaos. Any proposal to amend the evolving, inexact science of planning would be welcome.

But to suggest that my tax dollars be spent to buy you a park, and to infer that you enjoy muscle because you say you have the "highest average income levels in Canton" and pay big taxes and haven't gotten your "fair share" - is the height of arrogance shrouded in selfishness.

It ignores people who have lived in the township longer than you. And have paid more. It ignores people who own larger parcels than you - and pay more.

It ignores people who live in less. And pay their fair share as well. It ignores all the tens of thousands in this community of almost 60,000 who no doubt do not live in your phase of Sunflower, but do live near an undeveloped corner parcel, who would like to see the township bankroll a park within walking distance of their back yard.

When a township braces to take on a developer, they have to pick their fights. We would lose, and be doubly punished for wasting the court's time, paying not only Mr. Tartagglia's attorney and legal fees, but ours, any judgment he got for the "pain and suffering of a frivolous lawsuit," - and money for all the money he loses when the mall is not up and running.

God forbid he should lose a tenant in the interim. We'd take it on the chin for that as well.

The township Board of Trustees and the Planning Commission made the right decision in approving the mall.

I suggest that to change the status quo, the people in that particular phase of Sunflower pool their collective highest average income levels and make Mr. Tartagglia an offer.

After all, it's America!

Fish gone

The surging Pacific salmon and steelhead are gone; there are no smelt running in Oregon this spring. Nine of the world's 17 major fisheries are in serious decline and four others are depleted. The only hope lies in creating a strong international board to manage the fisheries.

There is a real risk that shellfish will become extinct, as well as many other kinds of fish. Oysters are filter-feeders, straining algae and other tiny organisms from the water. In the past, they processed a volume of water equal to that of an entire bay, such as the Chesapeake, every couple of days. Now it takes them a year to filter that much.

Pollution, drained wetlands, overfishing, dams, factory trawlers and deforestation along streams and bays are all to blame. Trees keep soil minerals and nutrients from washing downstream. Wetlands provide water quality maintenance.

Banning phosphorous detergents, improving stormwater-control engineering and upgrading sewage treatment plants would help clean the rivers, and the rivers are the roots.

The family tree is a cherry

Ancestors live on in old photos and a recipe for pie

My father died last December. So in addition to sorting out legal and financial details, I've been looking through a lot of old family photographs.

Two strike me in particular, probably because we are now entering into the cherry season, one of the great glories of summer in Michigan.

One is a picture of my great-grandmother, Celestia Power, sitting on the porch of the old family farm in Elk Rapids, a tiny town near Traverse City. I suppose the picture was taken around the turn of the century, as she is wearing the full-busted long cotton dress fashionable at the time. She's sitting in a rocking chair on an old-fashioned porch with Old Joe, the family English setter, sleeping on the grass below.

The other is a picture of great-grandfather Eugene Power, in a white shirt and tie, dark suit and Panama hat, standing in the middle of his cherry orchard. He's surveying the newly planted cherry trees, with a farm hand holding a pruning knife standing behind him.

Family legend has it that great-grandfather Power was one of the first farmers to plant Montmorency cherries (called "sours" to distinguish them from the dark red eating cherries, "sweets") in northern Michigan. For a time, they became the dominant crop in the region, thriving on the sandy, well-drained soil and the moderating influence of the lake. Even today, most land that hasn't been raped by the developers is in cherry orchards.

My father remembered his first job was out on the family farm, picking cherries for 10 cents a lug. He thinks his father, Glenn, who started out as a surveyor, helped great-grandfather Eugene lay out the cherry trees in long, straight lines.

I suspect it wasn't easy to be a pioneering farmer way back then. You couldn't be sure the trees, once planted, would thrive or bear well. And there was always the risk of a late frost nipping the fruit. And your capital, once lost, was so hard to regain!

But originality (often in practice hard to distinguish from mere eccentricity) always ran deep in the Power family.

My great-great-great-grandfather, Nathan Power, came to Michigan from Farmington, N.Y., in 1824. I suspect his neighbors thought him a bit queer when he went way out west to found what became Farmington, Michigan. And his son, Gideon Power, was no doubt regarded as a bit odd when he moved from Farmington way up north to Elk Rapids.

PHILIP POWER

But that was their way — and the way of countless pioneer families like them. They made our state and our nation what it is, and it gives me a feeling of family continuity to think of them in the aftermath of my father's death.

And, just in time for the sour cherry season, here's our family recipe for Montmorency cherry pie:

MONTMORENCY CHERRY PIE

For the crust:
1½ cups all-purpose flour, plus additional for rolling
¼ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup lard
3 tablespoons unsalted butter
2 tablespoons vegetable shortening
2 tablespoons ice water
1 teaspoon white vinegar
2 eggs

For the filling:
4 cups pitted red sour cherries
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon almond extract
¼ teaspoon mace
3 tablespoons butter, cut into small pieces
1 tablespoon kirsch (optional)

For the crust: Combine the flour, baking powder and salt in a mixing bowl. Add the lard, butter and shortening and mix with your fingers or a pastry cutter until mixture forms coarse crumbs. Whisk together the ice water, vinegar and one of the eggs. Add to the flour mixture and mix with a fork just until combined; do not overwork the dough. Refrigerate for 30 minutes.

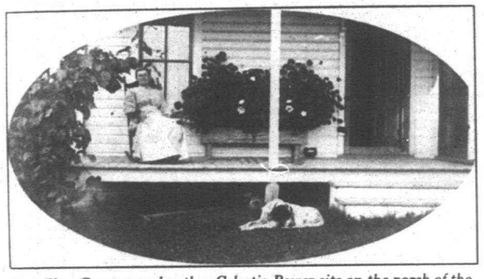

For the filling: In a large bowl combine the cherries, sugars, tapioca, almond extract, mace and optional kirsch, if desired. Allow to stand for 15 minutes. Preheat the oven to 425 degrees.

Roll out ⅔ of the dough on a lightly floured surface. Line a 9-inch pie plate with the dough and trim the edges. Place the filling in the pie shell and dot with the butter. Roll the remaining dough and make into a lattice top. Whisk the remaining egg with 2 teaspoons of water and brush the egg wash onto the top.

Bake for 10 minutes, then lower the temperature to 350 degrees and continue baking for 30 or 40 minutes longer, or until the juices are bubbling up in the center of the pie. Cool briefly and eat warm.

My father preferred vanilla ice cream with his pie. I'm more of a purist. Either way, it's a delicious way to celebrate Michigan cherries and the family that grew them.

Farm life: Great-grandmother Celestia Power sits on the porch of the old family farm in Elk Rapids. Old Joe, the English setter, rests on the grass below.

The orchard: Great-grandfather Eugene Power, right, and a farm hand look over the newly planted cherry trees. Family legend has it that he was one of the first farmers to plant Montmorency cherries in northern Michigan.

■ For a time, Montmorency cherries became the dominant crop in the region, thriving on the sandy, well-drained soil and the moderating influence of the lake. Even today, most land that hasn't been raped by the developers is in cherry orchards. My father remembered his first job was out on the family farm, picking cherries for 10 cents a lug. He thinks his father, Glenn, who started out as a surveyor, helped great-grandfather Eugene lay out the cherry trees in long, straight lines.

Feminism enriches life for women of all backgrounds

GUEST COLUMNIST

KATHY KEENMON

Feminism isn't a four-letter word. The mention of this word conjures up visions of bra-burning, men-hating, lesbians. Some would say this is simple, narrow-minded thinking. Nevertheless, these images exist and not only in the minds of (some) men, but I am forever surprised to hear women babble such nonsense.

I was reminded of this as I visited with my aunt recently. Aunt Marie is in her 60s and from another generation. When she told me "feminists approve and promote lesbian relationships," I knew something was amiss.

The definition of a feminist can be argued. All groups have what I call "radicals." Common sense would dictate that we mustn't judge an entire group by the actions of a few.

As the Equal Rights Amendment suffered defeat (we knew it would), I wondered, as I do now, why those 11 words threatened so many.

Let's look at our gains. Politically, in the House of Representatives, the congresswomen now total 47, up from 28. Four states have women governors. President Clinton named a record five women to his cabinet, and we now have two women on the Supreme Court.

On education, 12 percent of colleges and universities now have women presidents. Women today get 53 percent of master's degrees, up from 40 percent in 1970. Law schools today boast student bodies that are 44 percent female.

That's good news for my daughter, who wants to become a prosecuting attorney, then have her own law firm. At 14 she has the choice, the dream to become anyone she wants. How vividly I remember career day (1970) in school. My options were secretary, teacher, nurse, or beautician, all very fine professions; but how wonderful it would have been to grow up in a society thinking, knowing, and believing that we can become anything we choose.

We have indeed come a long way . . . (forgive me as I delete the "baby" part). We're not babies, nor do we want to be men in drag.

We're still fighting for equal pay scales. In 1993, top female sales executives earned earned roughly 20 percent less than their male counterparts. In the general work force, women earn approximately 30 percent less. Equal?

The "powers to be" have created and lodged a war; career women versus the stay-at-home moms. While we concentrate on this, the real issues, important issues, are being decided by others. So forgive me if I don't even dignify that with a response.

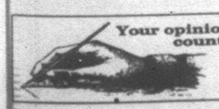

But we know this; a true feminist, like myself, believes all women, all people, have value.

The real issues are sexual harassment, domestic violence, reproductive rights, child support, health issues, and much, much more.

Do you know that government funding of research on women's diseases, such as breast cancer, has received about $625 million over the past 14 years? Did you know that this is roughly the same amount the government puts toward military spending in a single day?

So if you've never thought of yourself as a feminist — it's time you thought again. It's not about dungarees and hating men. Feminism is relevant, positive, powerful, sexy and strong.

Polecats soaring

The Plymouth-Canton Polecats combined the strong pitching of Brad Clifton with some timely hitting to edge the Ann Arbor Cubs 5-3 last Wednesday (June 29) in a Washtenaw Amateur Baseball Association Sandy Koufax League game.

The win was the Polecats' sixth in a row, improving their record to 9-6. Clifton went all seven innings, striking out nine in improving his won-loss record to 5-2.

Three Polecats led the attack with two hits apiece. Brian Boyd had two hits and two runs batted in, Joe Saah had two hits and an RBI, and Brad Volas had two hits.

Motion slowed

The Mid-American Motion 14-and-under girls softball team started their run in the Smokey Baker All-American NIT Tournament with three victories, but it ended there last weekend in Cincinnati.

On Saturday, the Motion exploded offensively for an 18-3 victory over the Lazers. Gina Yaquinto, Annie Bolognino and Sarah Talbot each had three hits, and Stefanie Volpe, Becky Uryga, Jenny Trott and Tiffany Bako scored three runs apiece.

In their second game Saturday, the Motion defeated the First Settlement Cougars 15-9. Melisa Thompson was 4-for-4 at the plate, with Uryga and Diana Jastrzebski scoring three times each.

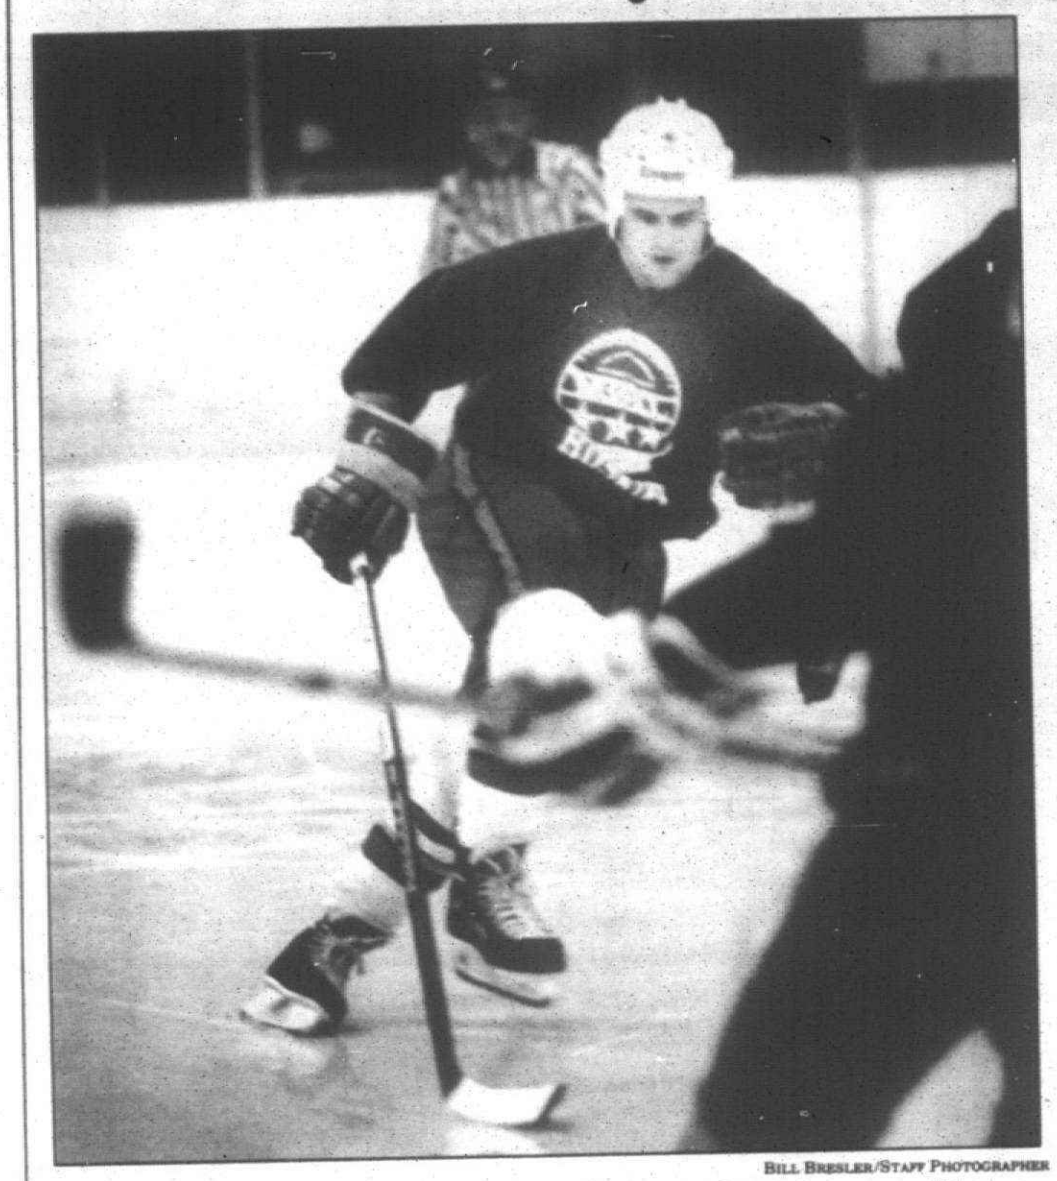

In their final game Saturday, the Motion twice came from behind to beat the Martinsville Angels 10-9. Down 8-5 with two out in the seventh, Volpe slugged her second homer of the game — a three-run shot — to tie the score and force extra innings.

Martinsville went back in front with a run in the top of the eighth, but the Motion got a two-run homer from Lynn Livernois in the bottom half of the inning to win it. Bolognino and Jastrzebski also hit homers for Motion.

The dramatics ended there for Motion. Eventual champion Hit N Misses handed them an 8-2 defeat Sunday, then Finesse put them out of the tournament with a 7-1 victory.

Goal count just keeps soaring

Bill Bresler/Staff Photographer

Gathering speed: As Joe Sellers of Plymouth shows, the early games of the Metro Summer Hockey League have been highly offensive. Sellers, who plays at Ohio State, had a goal and two assists Tuesday.

This league is, without doubt, already warmed up — at least offensively. The puck kept finding the net in the early stages of the Metro Summer Hockey League, with the Wolverines overcoming a three-goal deficit by scoring seven-straight.

The Huskies overcame an early Wolverines' lead and seemed on the brink of victory Tuesday in a Metro Summer Hockey League game at Plymouth Ice Arena. After spotting the Wolverines a 2-0 lead, the Huskies went on a rampage, scoring five goals in a row.

But if nothing else, the first few weeks of the MSHL season have proven that no lead is too big or too safe. The Wolverines answered the Huskies' three-goal lead with a streak of their own, scoring seven in a row in less than six minutes en route to an 11-6 win.

Mike Kneiding scored twice and assisted on another, and Tony Guzzo had a goal and two assists in the seven-goal Wolverine streak. Kneiding finished the game with three goals and an assist; Guzzo had a goal and three assists, and Scott Lock added two goals and three assists.

Other Wolverine goal-scorers were Paul Schloss, Mike Lanspeary (from Livonia Stevenson), Eric Bilyeau, Adrian Straka and Krikor Arman. Bilyeau added two assists.

For the Huskies, Joe Sellers (Plymouth Salem/Ohio State) scored once and collected two assists to lead the attack. Chris Smith (Michigan State) and Damon Whitten each chipped in a goal and an assist. Other goals came from Alex Boyle, Dominic Catanzarite (Livonia Franklin) and Rich Kelly.

Thomas Best started in goal for the Wolverines; Kris Kubalak started for the Huskies.

■ WILDCATS 11, REDSKINS 3: The Wildcats may have taken a while to get going, but once they started they were nearly impossible to stop Thursday at Plymouth.

A total of 10 goals were netted in the third period — and, unfortunately for the Redskins, eight of them were by the Wildcats. Bobby Davis, Ian Crockford and James Mitchell accounted for two goals apiece; Davis added three assists and Mitchell got two.

Jeff Mitchell added a goal and three assists, Dale Domas had a goal and an assist, and Ben Blackwood chipped in with two assists. Other Wildcat goals came from Kevin Berger (Livonia Stevenson), Matt Nihranz and Brady Priest.

For the Redskins — who trailed 3-1 going into the final period — goals were scored by Jack McCoy, Mike Nicholas and Jay Sole.

Wolverine set to kick off

■ SOCCER

Suffering from World Cup withdrawal after the U.S. was bounced by Brazil and now that the grass has been laid to rest at the Pontiac Silverdome?

Then try soccer at the grass roots level again, as the 15th Ford-Wolverine youth age-group tournament kicks off at 6 p.m. Friday (through Sunday) at Schoolcraft College and Bicentennial Park.

A field of 131, including club teams from Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ontario, are expected to converge this weekend on Livonia.

Boys titles will be up for grabs in the following age groups: under-10 (includes recreational), -11, -12, -13, -14, -15, -16, -17, -18 and -19.

Meanwhile, girls crowns will be contested at under-12, -14, -16 and -19.

Jan Callaway, who serves as publicist for the Wolverine Tournament, said the Girls under-19 division could be the most competitive.

Four Michigan State Youth Soccer Association champions will vie for that title.

Livonia Youth Soccer Club's United under-19 team, an MSYSA champ coached by John Boots, will face a number of stiff challenges from younger clubs.

The Michigan Hawks '76, coached by Paul Scicluna, is the under-18 state cup winner. LYSC United '77, the under-17 state champs coached by Pat McCaul, will also play up an age group along with the Birmingham Blazers, the under-16 state champs coached by Mary Kay Hussey.

Add the Beechmont, Ohio, Spirits and the Dearborn Heights Celtics to the mix, and Sunday's 4:45 p.m. final should be interesting.

After Friday's opening round, all-day action resumes at 7 a.m. Saturday. Finals will begin at approximately 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Also on the card is coach Paul Dugan's Michigan Hawks, a Little Caesars premier team from the Livonia Family Y. The Hawks recently captured the U.S. Youth Soccer Association's Region II Girls under-14 crown in Rockford, Ill.

Club Dynamo of Columbus, Ohio, will be sending both its state champion under-19 and under-18 boys teams.

Admission and parking are free for the three-day tournament. Concessions and souvenirs will be available at both sites. The Holidome of Livonia will serve as tournament headquarters.

Other attractions include the Henry Ford Hospital Athletic Mobile Unit, the area's largest sports medicine facility on wheels.

The 1994 XV Ford-Wolverine is also a Chiquita Fair-Play Tournament. One boys and one girls team will be saluted for sportsmanship.

Hines Park still holds 1st

■ COLLEGIATE

Garden City continued its climb in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League standings with a pair of impressive wins before the Fourth of July break.

Garden City, a winner of five straight games, is 8-9 overall. Garden City on Wednesday defeated Westland Federation 3-1 at Westland John Glenn and on Friday rallied for a 4-3 win over Delwal at Garden City Park.

"Hopefully we (will) stay on a roll," Garden City coach Fred Holton said.

Westland Federation, which was a 16-7 loser on Friday against Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury, fell to 10-6 in third place.

Hines Park Lincoln Mercury is in first place at 13-4, followed by Caesars at 12-9.

Wednesday's win against Westland Federation, the early season league leader, was sparked by the pitching of right-hander Mark Rutherford (Livonia Churchill/Eastern Michigan University).

Rutherford scattered six hits and walked five and was able to pitch out of trouble, leaving eight runners on base. His record is 2-2.

"Rutherford is as good as there is in the league, and I figured I needed to win, so I threw him," Holton said. "Of course, when it comes to him and Dan Pydyn (Madonna University), it's a toss-up."

Garden City scored two runs in the fourth inning and one in the seventh. Westland's lone run came in the sixth.

Mark D'Antonio suffered the pitching loss for Westland despite allowing only five Garden City hits. Garden City benefited from three Westland errors.

Marcus Saranovsky (Livonia Churchill) had two hits and an RBI. Brian Hicks (Redford Catholic Central/Garden City) and Justin Black (Garden City) had one hit each.

In Friday's comeback win over Delwal, Saranowsky was the winning pitcher with a complete game. He allowed seven hits, walked four and struck out 10 to move his record to 2-2.

Garden City trailed 2-0 after five innings before scoring one in the sixth and three in the bottom of the seventh.

Consecutive singles by Josh Reeber, Jason Holton and Hicks scored the first run in the sixth.

That part of the lineup helped Garden City win the game in the seventh.

Garden City loaded the bases with Reeber, Holton and Hicks, and Rutherford came through with a two-out single up the middle, scoring the two lead runners for a 3-3 tie.

Delwal center fielder Sean McDonald (Oakland University) made a fine throw to home plate but the second run scored after the ball popped out of the catcher's mitt.

After Hicks stole third, Black singled to break a 3-3 tie and keep Garden City's win streak alive.

Terry Hayden was the losing pitcher in a complete-game effort.

Tony DiLaura hit a solo home run in the first for Delwal and Kelly Dransfeldt (University of Michigan) hit a solo homer in the seventh.

In a makeup game played Thursday at Henry Ford Community College, Delwal got only three hits but beat Wendy's 7-3.

Gary Mroz (University of Detroit-Mercy) went the distance, scattering five hits with six strikeouts and one walk.

Mike Muir (Michigan) had an RBI single in the first and Dransfeldt contributed an RBI on a fielder's choice. In one of the innings, three passed balls and a wild pitch by Wendy's contributed to Delwal's scoring.

Delwal is now 7-10 overall.

■ CAESARS 5, WENDY'S 0. Little Caesars used a 14-hit attack and pitcher Dave Roman's one-hitter Friday to beat Wendy's in a game at Ford Field.

Roman, who struck out 13 Wendy's batters, also contributed two doubles and scored two runs.

Brian Theobald led Caesars with three hits in four at-bats, including a pair of doubles. J.R. Taylor, Dennis Madden (Livonia Franklin) and Brian Schroeder contributed two hits each.

Caesars remains in good position to make the four-team playoffs with nine games remaining, but several opponents have rain outs to make up and could gain ground.

"At this point, Hines Park should be favored to wind up in first place with Westland pushing right up behind them, but also looking over their shoulders at Little Caesars, Walter's, Garden City and Delwal," Caesars coach John Morattis said. "The next four weeks are going to be very interesting. It is down to the nitty gritty now, and the teams that come to play every game will get into the playoffs."

Morattis believes it's an advantage to Caesars not to have to make up any remaining games.

"It can be a headache to some of them (who have makeups) because when you have to go with your best pitcher in a game and you know you have to win, you give up something going into the next game," Morattis said.

On Wednesday, Caesars beat Walter's Appliance 5-1 as winning pitcher Brian Gearhart scattered six hits with four strikeouts and one walk.

Mike Sylud (Madonna) hit a two-run home run and Jason Sizemore had a two-run triple as Caesars scored two runs in the fourth inning and a pair in the fifth against losing pitcher Brad Morgan (Livonia Stevenson).

Morgan allowed five hits, struck out six and walked four to fall to 1-1. Tim Piccini had an RBI double for Walter's.

Walter's fell to 6-9 overall.

Students do research

Research projects by Brian Moss and Ed Charles Wilson of Canton were displayed at a Central Michigan University student exposition.

The Undergraduate Research and Creative Endeavors Exposition featured displays and computer and video demonstrations of class projects, senior theses, and other research projects.

"The exposition recognized the excellent scholarly work being done by undergraduate students at CMU," said Carole Beere, dean of graduate studies and assistant vice president for research. Moss, a May 1994 graduate of CMU who majored in psychology, investigated the social support network of fathers. The study examined the effects that education, yearly household income, and occupations have on the type of social support fathers use.

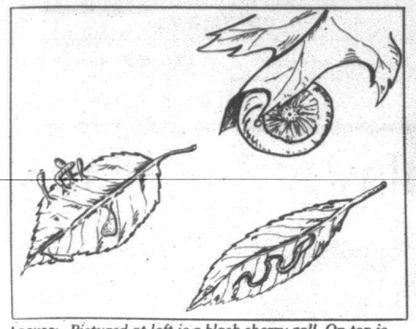

A graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, Moss is the son of Richard and Rosemary Moss.

Wilson, a senior majoring in geology, hydrogeology and environmental studies, was a member of an eight-student research team that analyzed rock and mineral samples from Michigan's Iron County. Wilson graduated from Plymouth Salem High School and is the son of Wilfred and Sandra Wilson.

CLARIFICATION

The Plymouth Salem High School 1994 graduation list was missing four names:

John Harold Speier, Jessica Marie Spence, Samantha Lynn Spencer and Gretchen Lynn Spielman.

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

The leaves of summer are numerous and varied. They may be big or small, shiny or dull, fuzzy or plain, edged with teeth or just notched with bumps. No matter what their appearance, they give us life.

All green leaves take the sun's energy and convert it into food. Food either for the plant or food for other animals. If you look closely at a leaf it will likely show some signs of damage from an animal using it as food.

Many insects will eat the leaf as food. Most caterpillars will eat away large sections of a leaf, giving it a completely new appearance. Sometimes holes may be seen in the body of a leaf. Various types of beetles will eat the leaves too.

By eating leaves, insects and other animals get energy from the sugars and carbohydrates produced by the plant. Gall making insects use the leaf for both food and protection.

Examining leaves of black cherry trees will often reveal small finger-like projections protruding from the leaf. They result when a mite lays its egg on the leaf. In response to the disturbance, the plant grows the finger-like projection around the developing mite. When cylindrical in shape they house a small mite. After the developing mite inside matures, the cylinder opens along one side and the mite emerges.

While the mite, or other gall insect, is inside the gall it is protected and it eats. A single gall on a leaf will not seriously affect it. In fact some researchers feel they stimulate the leaf to produce extra amounts of growth material. But some leaves I have seen have been covered with galls. Those individual leaves will probably die sooner than normal. The tree, however, can survive without a few leaves.

Some galls are big as pingpong balls. These are called oak apple galls. A small wasp lays its egg on an oak leaf. The leaf grows a spongy ball around the young wasp and later in summer the wasp will emerge as an adult.

Tiny moths start as caterpillars so small they eat between the upper and lower surfaces of a leaf. Leaves with small snake-like patterns in them were infected by a leaf miner. Other leaf miners excavate large contiguous areas that appear as blotches.

Green leaves produce food for all kinds of animals, either directly or indirectly. They produce oxygen for animals to breath and they provide protection for animals big and small.

Detroit Zoo day camp series gets going

Children age 4-12 are invited to the Detroit Zoo's summer day camp series, which runs through August.

The 1994 Summer Safari Series, which allows children to explore and experience the animal world, is conducted by zoo staff and offers single day, week-long and overnight adventures.

The following is a run-down of the programs that still have limited spaces available. To register, call (810) 541-5717. Only a few places remain open.

Rattling tails and erect quills have distinct messages in the animal world. "Animal Speak" (ages 6-9) teaches children to recognize these intriguing communication methods. Offered as a single-day adventure from 9:30 a.m. to noon July 6 or July 26. Cost is $17 for Detroit Zoological Society members, $20 for nonmembers.

"Zoo Quest" (ages 4-9) is a passport to summer adventure as children travel the ends of the earth to learn about zoo animals from every habitat, from icy polar regions to African grasslands. Offered as a week-long adventure 1-4 p.m. July 18-22 and Aug. 1-5, 9 a.m. to noon Aug. 8-12. Cost is $65 member, $75 nonmember.

"Zoo Sleuth" (ages 4-9) transforms campers into experienced field biologists, conservationists, paleontologists and ethologists who work as detectives to discover the secrets of the animal world. Offered as a week-long adventure from 9 a.m. to noon July 11-15, July 18-22, July 25-29, August 1-5 and August 15-19. Cost is $65 member, $75 nonmember.

The Detroit Zoo is located at the intersection of 10 Mile Road and Woodward Avenue, off I-696 in Royal Oak.

BOWEL DYSFUNCTION AND THE ELDERLY

A variety of bowel-related complaints in the elderly warrant further in-depth evaluation. It is common in people over the age of 65 to complain of abdominal pain, changes in the bowel movement habit, gaseous distention and bloating.

To some degree these complaints can be influenced by environmental factors such as dietary alteration, social economic status, physical activity patterns, psychological factors and frequency of intercurrent illness. Functional bowel disorders account for most of these complaints. Other conditions such as spastic diverticular disease of the colon, constipation, straining at the stool, and fecal incontinence are notable.

Nutritional deficiency and depressive reactions are seen with increasing frequency in the elderly. Colo rectal cancer and colonic polyps are a lot more prevalent in the elderly.

Appropriate investigational tests should be considered, and the bowel complaints have to be clearly defined. Subsequently appropriate treatment plans are directed toward the specific diagnosis.

Win two tickets to Tom Jones concert

Congratulations Michele Bittokofer of Livonia! She was one of two contestants who raced to blow out 218 lit candles on top of giant six-square-foot U.S.A. birthday cakes at AMC Old Orchard Theatre in Farmington Hills on Tuesday, June 28.

The event was in celebration of our country's 218th birthday, and the release of the new MGM action-thriller "Blown Away," now playing at metro Detroit movie theaters. Bittokofer won a "Blown Away" movie prize package.

■ Fifty lucky readers will win two tickets to see Tom Jones perform Wednesday, July 20 at the Meadow Brook Music Festival. See the ad in this section for contest details.

Jones reached success in the 1960s with a string of hits including "It's Not Unusual," "What's New Pussycat," "Delilah," and "Green, Green Grass of Home." After a long absence from the charts, Jones' career was revived with "Matador," a musical play that spawned the single, "Boy From Nowhere."

■ Tickets for the 16th annual Michigan Chili Cookoff are $32.50 per person and available by

Alexander Zonjic to play at Big Fish

Jazz artist Alexander Zonjic who found his first flute at a street corner swap, has come a long way. He has achieved success both on the road, and in the recording studio. Don't miss his upcoming concerts.

■ PREVIEW

BY MARK E. GALLO
SPECIAL WRITER

With a schedule that has him on the road much of the year, it's becoming more of a rarity to find Alexander Zonjic playing for hometown fans. On Wednesday, July 13 he'll be playing 6-10 p.m. at Big Fish, a C.A. Muer Restaurant at 700 Town Center Drive in Dearborn. Call (313) 336-6350.

He'll also be performing at Jazzfest '94 in downtown Birmingham on Thursday, July 28, (see related story), and at the Gem Theatre in Detroit on Friday and Saturday, July 8-9. Call (313) 963-9800 or Ticketmaster, 645-6666 for information.

Zonjic, a native of Windsor, has been a fixture on the local jazz scene for so long we sometimes overlook the stature he enjoys on the global stage.

Since releasing his eponymous debut in 1978, local jazz fans have known that Zonjic was destined for the adulation this is now his throughout the world. That conviction was more firmly sealed with the releases of such highly acclaimed gems as "Elegant Evening" (from 1982, and still the classic Zonjic recording for many), "Romance With You" (1987) and "When It Is Real" (1988).

By the time he signed with Warner Bros., in 1991, releasing "Neon," voted one of the year's top 50 albums by "Jazziz" magazine, his reputation had far outgrown the relative confines of the Detroit-Windsor axis that has been his musical base of operations for so long.

For a Canadian kid who got his start playing rhythm and blues in a series of garage bands, he's certainly come a long way.

Having found his first flute at a "street corner swap," Zonjic lived a double life in the mid-'70s. While attending the University of Windsor as a music major, he played guitar in Windsor rock clubs and was tutored in the classics by Erv Monroe, principal flutist in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and a pivotal figure in the metamorphosis of Zonjic's musical persona.

Over the years, certainly, there have been a string of highlights for the flutist, including frequent world tours and being surrounded by stellar musician friends both on the concert stage and in the recording studio.

His most recent outing, last year's "Passion" (Reprise) found old friends Earl Klugh and Bob James along with vocalist Angela Bofill (singing a beautiful "Angel of the Night") and saxophonist/arranger Kirk Whalum lending their assistance.

His most polished and diversified collection to date, the disc was recorded everywhere from Studio A, in Dearborn Heights, to Nashville, New York and Hollywood and sees Zonjic indulging his "passiona" for rhythm & blues, classical and classic jazz.

If you like to plan far ahead, mark Oct. 20 on your calendar. Zonjic will be the headline performer at a Project SMILE benefit at Laurel Manor Banquet and Conference Center in Livonia.

The charity for St. Mary's Hospital Foundation in Livonia will benefit women's and children's health care. Call (313) 591-2980 for details.

Flutist: Alexander Zonjic brings his jazzy sound to Big Fish in Dearborn on July 13, and Jazzfest '94 in downtown Birmingham on July 28.

Tom Hanks, Sally Field star in fable

PHIL CARUSO

Reunion: Forest Gump (Tom Hanks) right is reunited with Lieutenant Dan Taylor (Gary Sinise) in Paramount Pictures' "Forest Gump," adapted from the novel by Winston Groom.

"Forrest Gump" is the romantic, rollicking tale of an innocent at-large in an America that is losing its innocence.

In the title role of the film which opened Wednesday, is Tom Hanks as a very simple man who, over the course of three decades, leads a most extraordinary life.

Hanks' Gump is a slow-talking, slow-witted Southerner who, through the generosity of his heart and indelible optimism, becomes a star football player, war hero, athlete, millionaire and the truest love a woman could ever know.

Directed by Robert Zemeckis, and distributed by Paramount Pictures, the film also stars Robin Wright, Gary Sinise, Mykelti Williamson and Sally Field.

The screenplay is by Eric Roth, adapted from the novel "Forrest Gump" by Winston Groom.

Forrest Gump first came to life as a character in Groom's novel, a madcap parable peppered with his savory Southernisms and wide-eyed observations about everything from the absurdity of football to sharing scars with the president in the Rose Garden.

Producer Wendy Finerman was drawn to this unconventional hero. "I saw an incredibly cinematic story of a man who is inseparable from the events we've all grown up with," Finerman said. "In the same way that children can say the most brilliant things, Forrest Gump is able to bring a rare clarity to what we went through in the 1950s, 1960s and 1970s. He's a remarkable character who is just as good at making you cry as he is at making you laugh."

The use of history as a backdrop, and Forrest Gump as a persistent embodiment of American tenacity and hope throughout, was also integral to screenwriter Eric Roth's take on the story.

"In Forrest Gump's time, the events that really took place — assassinations, wars, scandals — are almost more unbelievable than Forrest's fictional story," Roth points out. "Because of who Forrest is, he lets us look back and see the high and low moments for what they were without taking them too seriously. I think there's a lot to what his Momma says: 'you gotta put the past behind you before you can move on.'"

What sets Forrest apart as he makes his way through history, aside from his comic ineptitude, is his unrelenting sincerity, a quality that, even to his special friend Jenny, seems to belong to a slower, simplier era in American life.

He is an especially true son to his momma Mrs. Gump (Sally Field), a woman of Southern gentility and iron resolve who supports her son by taking in boarders at their home in Greenbow, Ala. It could not possibly faze Mrs. Gump that her son's spine is as crooked as a politician and his IQ falls just below normal on the charts.

Her boy will get the same opportunities as everyone else, no matter what she has to do to secure them.

Throughout his life, Forrest finds himself coming into contact with legendary leaders, ranging from Richard Nixon to John Lennon. He unintentionally travels the globe, from Vietnam to Washington D.C., from the People's Republic of China to New York's Times Square, from the great roads of the American West to the bayous of Alabama.

He moves through every conceivable phase and fad, from soldier to protester to lonely, long-distance jogger. But wherever he goes, and whoever he is with, Forrest is always just Forrest.

"Forest Gump" is rated PG-13 (Parents strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13) for drug content, some sensuality and war violence. (Rating information provided by the Classification and Rating Administration, Motion Picture Association of America, Inc."

Teams need 'Angels in the Outfield'

"Our Angels In The Outfield" contest was a hit! We received over 30 responses, many of them by fax.

To enter, contestants explained why their team needs an angel. The four winners received tickets to see a screening of "Angels in the Outfield" opening Friday, July 15 at metro Detroit movie theaters.

Thank you for entering our contest. Here are the winning essays.

First place — Adam Royle, Farmington Hills.

My name is Adam Royle, and I play on a South Farmington 1994 baseball team called the Angels. The players are 9 and 10 years old. My team has not won one game. We need an angel on our shoulder to win games.

Once we won a game because the other team didn't show up. The good thing about being a losing Angel is we have a lot of fun and good coaches like Mr. Johnson, Mr. Ostin, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Killeen.

I wish we could all be on the same team in all the years to come, maybe with an angel on our shoulder we could be the champs. That would show those teams that laughed at us. Still we had a great season.

Second place — Debby Berner, Garden City

My name is Debby Berner. I coach a Little League team called the Pirates. The children are seven and eight years old. They have 18 games in the season. They are on their 14th game and have lost every game. What amazes me is that they still show up for all the practices and give it their all at every game.

They have not given up. They all show very good sportsmanship. I am very proud of all of them for not giving up and still trying 100 percent.

Third place — Mary Jo Housley, Troy

Our Troy Little League baseball team is hoping for divine intervention to continue their undefeated season, but to date a multitude of "Angels in the Outfield" have taken them to their current 7-0 record.

Our "angels" have come in many forms beginning with three mothers who volunteered to run after school practices for the father coaches who could only attend the night practices and games.

Although the team is much more talented than the "Bad News Bears," the mom coaches helped these newcomers to the league to understand the fundamentals of the game and to get them in shape.

Another angel soon stepped forward as a sponsor of the team — Moutain Jack's restaurant — and the ball started rolling.

Our typist angel, Shirley, organized the rosters, schedules, information, etc. to keep us on top of everything. The father coaches are taking time they probably don't have from their busy schedules to guide their future all stars.

And then there are those devoted angels who scrub the grass-stained uniforms; tend to the bumps, bruises and sore elbows, and bring treats to every practice and game to reward and encourage the little ones.

The nicest result of our "Angels In The Outfield" is the wonderful spirit that is present in the families of the team members — fathers finding a common interest to enjoy with their sons, sons realizing their "old" moms and dads can still play ball, kids finding their hidden talent and enjoying well-deserved success, and parents rekindling their own youthful memories.

Even the little siblings have had fun watching their big brothers while the moms have held practices. Of course it helps that there are playgrounds next to all the diamonds.

Our little boys may not seem like angels at home, but get them on the diamond and they're our favorite "Angels In The Outfield!" And if a few real angels wouldn't mind sticking around for the rest of the season, we could sure use the help!

Fourth place, Jamie and Kevin Harley — Redford

Our team needs "Angels In The Outfield" because they don't know how to catch. The ball moves faster than they do, so it goes over their heads.

If we had angels helping our team, maybe they could get to the ball faster and could stop the runners.

My grandfather died recently and maybe he could help us to be a better team.

We have players from first to fifth grade playing on our team. Some teams in our league have more older kids, which gives them a better chance of winning. Our team is called the Panthers. My mom is the assistant coach. If you think our team needs "Angels In The Outfield," please call us.

FAMILY ROOM

KAREN MEIER

The other place

I sure hope we get a chance to go to Cedar Point this summer. I just saw that commercial on TV for Raptor, the new roller coaster they have there where your feet hang free and you swing wildly all over the place and you go upside down and you scream forever! I can't wait!

If we do go, one thing is certain, it'll be a day trip. No overnight! No motel! No way! Not this time. You see we did that last year and what a thing that was.

It was the 11th day of our family vacation and on that day we drove through three states. The next day, the 12th and final one, would be spent in Cedar Point. As that afternoon wound down, we all felt flat and lifeless, just like the Ohio landscape whizzing past our van windows. But we all rallied 'round as soon as we hit the Sandusky city limits.

The excitement built. We knew it was only a matter of minutes now before we could all move our legs again, check into a room, change out of our rumpled, crumpled travel clothes, and jump into a pool. Then we'd dry off with towels stacked neatly by the pool and get little bags of potato chips and cans of pop out of the motel's vending machines before sprawling on the big beds in the room to watch something like "Buffy, the Vampire Slayer" on the motel's movie channel. It was going to be so great!

The only thing we had to do was find a motel. And that would be a snap. It was, after all, smack dab in the middle of the week. In Sandusky, Ohio.

So shortly after 7 p.m. our search began.

Some three hours, 27 motels, two noteworthy scuffles involving Tony and Carmen, one screaming Joey and 30 miles beyond Sandusky, we were still being told, "NO VACANCY." But then our luck turned.

A desk clerk in a "no vacancy" motel told us, "Sorry, we have no rooms. But I'm sure there are rooms at the other place in town." Something about the other place, though, not only made the clerk's jaw set in an odd way, but provoked a strange arch in one of her eyebrows and put a strain in her voice. But with the still crying 1-year-old, the 6-year-old well past crabby, the 9-year-old quite unglued, and my husband and I on the verge of becoming a statistic, we decided to overlook the desk clerk's eyebrows and go to the other place.

A room at last

Minutes later my poor husband trudged into the dimly lighted front office of The Other Place. He told them we desperately needed a room for five (two adults, two children, one baby). He came out of the office triumphant. He had a receipt for $62.09 and a room key.

"It's around the back," he said and started the van up. We drove around to the back of this squatty, one-story place to Number 126, our long-awaited home away from home for the night.

My husband turned the key in the lock as the rest of us eagerly pushed and shoved behind him! We all wanted to be first in the room. The door opened! Here we were at long last. The topper to our summer vacation!

Tony burst through the open door. "Gross," he yelled from inside the room.

I poked my head in. Yes, there was a distinctly unsavory smell to the place. And, yes, the general appearance was rather unpleasant. But we were here, and this was ours. We'd make do.

"Oh, it's just really stuffy in here," I said and flipped the switch for the air conditioner. That was not good, not good at all. Everyone blamed Joey for the noxious odor. Poor little guy, he had nothing to do with it. It was that doggone air conditioner. It smelled B-A-D. And once it really kicked in, the air in our room turned positively polar.

But the control panel had only two settings, ON and OFF. So, stinky air, stifling hot? Or stinky air, arctic cold? We voted. Arctic won. But the bed in the room, the ONLY bed, would have to be moved since it was right up against the air conditioner. And we all knew that that smelly air could easily kill someone in their sleep.

So we pushed the bed away. We were only able to move it six inches before the legs and the headboard gave way. And there on the stained carpet, where the bed had just been was a pile of something . . . potato chips . . . we think. The baby spied this stuff and in a flash he had plucked some bits up and brought them perilously close to his little mouth. We saved him.

A 'sofa bed?'

The two other children, in the meantime, had been pulling out the "sofa bed." They pulled and tugged, trying to get it open to its full size. But, sorry to say, it was not a "sofa bed." No amount of tugging or pulling was going to open that thing. How can this be? We have five people here in this room, and enough sleeping room for three?

Painful lesson: Caught from behind, a woman uses her fist and a side step, coupled with a head quickly thrust up and back, to aim painfully crippling blows at her assailant.

There's a way to thwart a rapist

Dennis Korby is a man with a mission. Spurred on by an attack on his sister, Korby has spent three years writing a book that provides women with the information and techniques to avoid becoming victims of rape.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

On Sept. 11, 1989, a 31-year-old woman was walking to her car in the parking lot of Oakland Mall in Troy when she was grabbed from behind. Snatching the woman off her feet, the attacker tried to carry her off to a waiting car.

Unable to scream, she did manage to struggle free, making a mad dash for a store entrance and help. He attacker fled but was captured by police several weeks later. A convicted rapist, he had kept a record of the women he stalked; she was the 21st entry.

The emotion can be heard in Dennis Korby's voice as he relates the story. His sister, he says, did everything right. She did the typically American "parking lot routine." She had her car keys ready, walked confidently, was aware of her surroundings, walked out with other people, and looked in the back seat of the car.

"She went through a series of precautionary measures and they w[illegible]n't enough," the former Livonia resident and reserve police officer said.

That incident has been a catalyst for much of what Korby does now - teaching women simple techniques which can "distract, confuse and deter" a would-be attacker. A technical writer by trade, he also has spent three years writing a book which serves up self-defense for women meant to doesn't require expensive lessons or chemical sprays.

Due out this month, the locally published tome, "What Part of No Don't You Understand - Avoiding and Defending Against Rape," serves up a healthy dose of how to "outwit and outsmart" an attacker.

"My contention is that you are not as safe from being raped as you are led to believe; you are not physically and psychologically prepared to defend yourself," Korby said. "Rape is a serious, serious issue and I'm dedicated to preventing women from being raped."

Compelling stats

When compared with other countries, the U.S. is the most violent and self-destructive nation on earth, Korby added, citing statistics presented to the Senate Judiciary Committee in 1991:

- The reported U.S. rape rate is eight times worse than France, 15 times worse than England, 23 times worse than Italy, and 26 times worse than Japan.
- One out of four females over the age of 12 will be the victim of a criminal assault in her lifetime.
- For women over age 30, there's a 50/50 chance of being raped, robbed or physically assaulted.

"The bottom line is we don't protect our women," Korby said. "Look at the level of psychological and physical defense women have, and you can see it's sorely lacking."

Korby generally starts out his rape-prevention seminars by asking a few questions, and he does the same in the book. They are meant to test the reader's level of awareness about rape prevention.

He then goes on to provide readers with the tools to do their homework. Much of the information he includes in the book, Korby acquired from behind bars, not as a convict but as a prison chaplain.

"In talking to them (the convicts), I learned they do their homework," Korby said. "They are well-trained; they are manipulative, patient and very successful."

But, according to Korby, they are vulnerable. Yes, the rapist has several advantages - the element of surprise, his size and weight, a weapon, and the victim's tendency to panic. However, he has his share of what Korby calls fears.

The rapist is afraid of an audience. He either attacks when the victim is alone or abducts the victim in public and takes her to an isolated place. He's afraid of surprise because of something he's not prepared to deal with or overcome. And he's afraid that gaining initial control will take too long. The rapist wants to get control of the situation as quickly as possible.

A place to go

A case in point? A parking lot. The attack generally comes from behind while the woman is opening the car door. The rapist knows she has only one place to go - into the car - and she's not going to be quick enough to close the door behind her.

His techniques? Get into the habit of looking around one last time before unlocking and opening a car door. Once the door is open, lock it. If an attack occurs, the woman should shut the car door and throw the car keys away.

Why? If you chose to stand your ground and fight with keys in hand and car door open - and lose - you have given the rapist everything he needs - you, your vehicle, and a way of taking you to an isolated area.

"Eight of 10 women who are abducted are abducted in their own cars," Korby said. "By locking the car door and throwing away the keys, you've exploited his vulnerability."

Another technique? Many attacks come from behind, with the rapist pinning the victim's upper arms at her side. Korby tells women to clench their hand in a fist and raise it while at the same time crossing their right foot over their left foot and tucking their head to their chest. The position change leaves the attacker's crotch exposed to a sharp blow from the fist, coupled with smashing blow to the face when the head is thrown back quickly.

"They're simple things you don't have to practice for a long time," he said. "Overnight, you don't learn to be assertive and crafty, but you have to learn how to detect a problem and distract an assailant . . . And how to keep calm and cool."

Calm and cool, according to Korby, is just as important as knowing how to disable your attacker. Lose control of your breathing in a physical confrontation and you will panic. And panic is the number-one advantage a rapist has.

Alzheimer's patients respond to summer camp experience

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

Alzheimer's disease, that merciless mind stealer, gradually robs its victims of their abilities, talents and even personalities over a period of time.

The disease is insidious and sometimes opens a window in the cloud of confusion to permit a glimpse of the person who once existed. But that window can close at any moment.

But Karen Ross, chair of Madonna University's department of gerontology and dean of the College ~~of Social~~ Sciences, has discovered a way to breathe some new life into Alzheimer's patients . . . by taking them camping.

"It really is different," Ross said. "No one has heard of an opportunity like this."

While nursing home camping trips are not new, some Alzheimer's patients in the area have been participating in the yearly trips for the past five years. Ross attended the first nursing home camping trip that Alzheimer's patients from Boulevard Temple Retirement Community in Detroit went on in 1990 and was amazed by the patients' response.

The next year, Alzheimer's patients from Bellewoods Continuing Care Center in Belleville and Leisure Village in Wayne also participated.

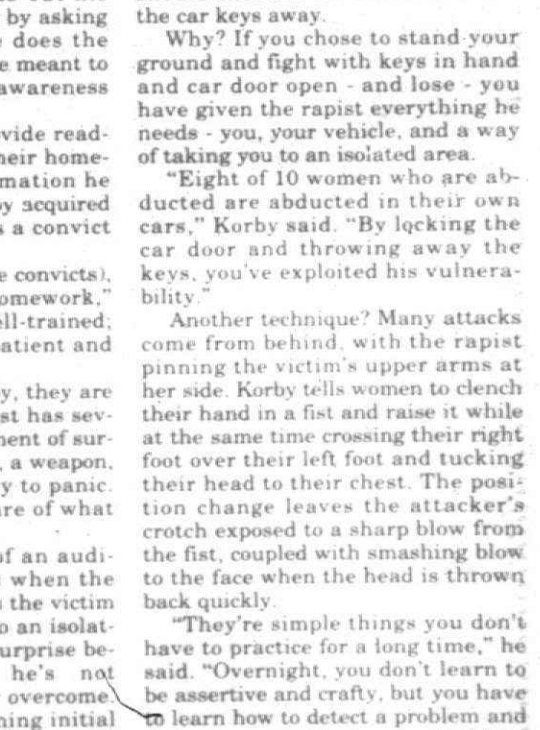

"The response was just so amazing," said Rosemarie Shim, social worker and former Alzheimer program director at Bellewoods. "Skills came back that you didn't see every day in the residents. They were speaking more clearly. They were eating better. They were walking better. They were just doing everything better. They were telling jokes.

"Alzheimer patients' speech goes sometimes, and they can't put full sentences together. They're just not able to do all these things on an everyday basis. But while they were on the trip and even for awhile after they came back, the results lasted."

Memorial ready for addition

At Memorial Church of Christ in Livonia, the motto is "God's plan is our vision" when it comes to a new addition.

The church broke ground for a 20,000-square-foot addition Sunday, June 19, the culmination of a $1 million fund-raising campaign that began in January. Church members were asked to make three-year pledges during January and February. The goal was $1.2 million and at the campaign's conclusion, pledges totaled $1,016,000.

R.A. DeMattia is the project architect and construction firm for the addition which will double the size of the present building and add new classrooms, a family life center, new nursery and kitchen facilities and a large foyer/welcome center. Parking will also be expanded. It will cost $1.4 million.

The expansion is the latest in a number of growth spurts the church has gone through during its 52-year history. Memorial Church of Christ was established in March 1942 when a group of Christians met in the Detroit home of Wilfred McIntosh for Bible school and church services. Joel B. Hardigree was called to be the first minister, and charter membership opened in August 1942, and closed with 84 members in January 1943.

Between 1943 and 1959, the church grew and underwent many changes. Sites for worship included Burns Elementary School, an American Legion Hall and D.J. Healy Elementary School, all in Detroit.

Lee Doty served as minister from June 1944 to September 1953 when property was bought at Schoolcraft and Virgil in Detroit for a new building. On July 30, 1947, the first prayer meeting was held in the new building.

Ralph Stinson followed Doty, serving as Memorial's minister from October 1953 to July 1954. Lloyd Taylor was then called to be minister and remained with the church until March 1962.

During that time, the congregation outgrew the building, so in July 1956, a two-acre site at Schoolcraft and Fenton in Detroit was chosen for a new church. Ground was broken in 1959, with the congregation meeting for worship in the new building in February 1960.

Charles Matthews joined the church as interim minister from March through July 1962 when Max Copeland became minister. With the impending construction of the Jeffries Freeway, the church had to move to its present site at 35475 Five Mile in Livonia.

On June 14, 1970, the congregation held its first meeting at the new Livonia site. May 1972 brought Mark McGilvrey to Memorial as its first full-time associate minister, moving up to senior minister in July 1973 when Copeland accepted a call to be a minister in Ohio. Steve Allen joined Memorial as associate minister in 1987, and Brad Stroetz became weekend youth minister in 1993.

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. KATE THORESEN

I never knew that one rock could make such a difference.

This is what happened. Almost every year since 1980 I've gone with family and friends to Montreat Conference Center which is nestled around Lake Susan in the Blue Ridge Mountains near Asheville, N.C. Often we would share the same old white house that was on the grounds there. It was one of those big old things — built in the 1910s with 11 bedrooms, four kitchens, and large dining area where 15 of us would gather for dinners and swap stories. There was a huge old porch with lots of rocking chairs, and we'd spend hours in the evenings discussing issues and exploring solutions. We became the "World Council of Porches."

It was always a real battery charger to return to that same old place and spend five days there — with the beauty of the surroundings, the stimulations of the classes and activities and the open warmth and comfort of relaxing with good friends. It was the kind of place where you felt you could get a handle on things — at least for a while — and where you experienced the kind of timeless hope and a peace that comes from being touched by timeless values. It was a concrete place where you knew you'd be fed body, mind and spirit.

Two years ago we were about to venture forth on our annual pilgrimage to Montreat. I received a phone call the evening before we were about to leave. The owners had started up the furnace on the old white house. Suddenly, the furnace malfunctioned. The old white frame house went up like tinder. Gusty winds fed the fire and soon the log cabin next door and even the yellow cottage next to that one were consumed with flames. The big old white house was no more.

The owners graciously found another place for us to stay, but it was with a real sadness when we went to Montreat that year and saw "our" home, our deep ties to Montreat simply gone. No more. It was devastating.

That week at the conference center just wasn't the same for me. I kept thinking about that house and what it meant to our family. I walked back to its site and remembered how our friends immediately delighted in its unique personality and how each person felt wanted and welcomed and "at home" in its embrace. Now all that was gone.

This year we returned again to Montreat. I didn't want to, but had to walk back to where the old white house used to stand. Remnants of the fireplace remained, but all else was cleared away. Then I saw one of the big, old mica laden rocks in all that rubble. Some of it was charred from the fire. And a thought struck. "If it's OK with the owners, I'll take this piece of history back with me to Michigan and place it in our garden. And our place away from home will now be part of our home. Even though it's changed, a solid part will still be with us."

Writer is active woman who can become too involved

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Lorene,
I find your column very interesting. I heard that some executives are using handwriting analysis when interviewing a candidate for a position to determine what kind of personality and performance potential they may have. I'm curious. I want to know anything you can tell me. I'm 36 years old and right handed.
Thanks a lot.
M.M., Garden City

Yes, indeed, some companies are utilizing graphology as a tool for assessing an employee's potential and ability to relate to coworkers harmoniously. Research has shown that more people lose their jobs because they cannot relate to other people, than because of a lack of job skills.

Vertical to backhand handwriting like this is often done by people who have experienced more female than male influence during the formative years. It seems our writer was a tad rebellious growing up, and may still have an aversion to authority figures.

This is an active woman. At times she finds herself too involved. Is she having difficulty sorting out her priorities?

Heavy pressure in this handwriting suggests an intense young woman. Her patience is easily strained and she harbors deep feelings. Emotions, be they sad or happy, remain with her for a long time. Forgiving and forgetting does not come easily to her.

Dominant seems to be an appropriate word to describe our writer. She is probably happier giving orders than taking them. She has some skill at influencing others and getting them to do things her way. Sometimes, however, her need to be in charge can cause her to become overbearing or gloomy.

Our writer is direct in speech and action. Efficiency is a priority. Determination is also a strong trait. She is practical and matter-of-fact. Her focus is on the essentials, and she can sift out the important from the unimportant.

Basically, our writer desires love, comfort and companionship. Yet her demeanor may result in frustration and rebuff at times.

There is a certain level of stress or anxiety evident in this handwriting. Unresolved anger is also here. Much of her anger seems to be directed right back to her. This inner frustration tends to impede progress and definitely dilutes her happiness. Currently, she may not be finding life too rewarding.

Reticence is also pervasive here. She is often defensive trying to conceal personal problems. Either she chooses not to discuss the personal side of her life with others, or she cannot. So she makes a concerted effort to hide her problems. She tends to be suspicious of the intentions of others.

I can't help wondering what has happened to our writer. Perhaps she might benefit from talking to a trained counselor or religious adviser to resolve what is troubling her. It might also help her self-esteem to grow so she can mature into the beautiful flower she was meant to be.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, please write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are all helpful, and objective feedback is always welcomed.

As I read the headlines, and hear debates within our churches and communities about all the changes that are happening and the sense of loss many feel about our familiar structures crumbling, I think back about the rock from the old white house. Yes, many of our familiar systems are flying apart — technological, economical, political, financial, environmental. But still our religious systems — in whatever new forms they may take can provide a bedrock, a core of meaning, direction and value which can undergird community life that we can take with us wherever we may be.

Like that old weathered rock in our garden, we can still rescue those solid things of the past that add meaning and value to our present lives.

We need to keep these foundational rocks that undergird our society and teach them to our children so that they can carry them with them to whatever new surrounding they may encounter.

We tried all squishing together, but too many elbows and knees and toenails made the whole thing absolutely unworkable. The baby and I would sleep on the floor in the back of the van. But first we all would go to the bathroom, brush our teeth, and wash the road grime off our faces.

Carmen was first to go in. The toilet paper holder gave way, and the toilet paper went rolling across the dirty tiles. She came out screaming. Next Tony was sent in to brush his teeth. But there was something about the sink, I won't go into it, but teeth went unbrushed.

Next was the baby and me. I first rinsed the offending something down the drain and got about the business of cleaning Joey up a bit. Now I had held on admirably through stinky air alerts, bed shortages, carpet surprises, rolling rolls and sink somethings. But the towel trauma was too much for me. The towel (one of only two provided) had not been laundered sufficiently. That was putting it delicately.

Anyway, while the baby and I had been in bathroom purgatory, the rest of my family had switched on the TV in the other room. At 11 p.m. they couldn't even find the Ohio equivalent of Bill Bonds, let alone "Buffy, the Vampire Slayer" on that two channel, fuzzy picture, rabbit-eared TV. And the only chips available in that motel were those despicable things on the floor next to the bed.

The baby and I went out to the van. He slept fitfully; I didn't.

Come morning I was furious. My back was sore. My eyes were bloodshot. And my hair was snarled. I stumbled into the front office, lugging the baby. I can't really remember what happened next. I'm a little fuzzy on that. But two weeks later I received a check for $62.09.

Synod of the Lutheran Church. Started in 1972, Project Compassion is a ministry with a variety of programs for nursing home residents. It has two offices — in Detroit and Saginaw — that work with 150 nursing homes in southeastern Michigan.

Project Compassion has sponsored the three-day vacations for the past 14 years for nursing home residents and for Alzheimer's patients for the past five years. The Rev. Ed Einem, project director, is encouraged by the patients' responses.

"There's some ingredient there that, if we could translate it into their daily care, it would make a big difference," he said.

The mini vacation for the Alzheimer's group is held in June each year at the Lake Huron United Methodist Camp Grounds in Port Huron. Lodging is in cabins with residents sleeping in the bottom bunks and staff and volunteers in the top bunks.

This year, 37 residents and 33 staff and volunteers attended the camp. Participating nursing homes included Cambridge East in Madison Heights, Bellewoods in Belleville, Beechwood Living Center in Taylor, Chelsea Retirement Community in Chelsea and Mercy Bellbrook in Rochester Hills.

Ross would like to see more participation in the future, not just from nursing homes, but from senior centers as well, and see it implemented elsewhere.

"One of our hopes is that this type of an outing becomes expected rather than an exception," she said, adding that if vacations were a part of the patient's life, "this part of their life should continue."

To that end, Ross along with Shim and Alzheimer's unit directors Jennie Boyd from Mercy Bellbrook and Geralann di Domenico, who also served as this year's camp director, presented the idea to the National Conference on Aging in Washington, D.C., in May.

Some of the camp volunteers are former or current gerontology students at Madonna University. The university has made the trip a one credit course for that curriculum.

Best experience

"It's the best experience that you could possibly get," Shim said. "It's better than a textbook course. You're getting 24 hours a day, observing what these Alzheimer patients are like. That would have been a great thing when I was back in school, to take that in the field with me."

Ross, who also volunteers her services on the trips, conducted a training class for the students and volunteers. Consisting mostly of former students and nursing home staff, the volunteers and staff pay their own $75 fee to participate in the outing. Many also take time off from work.

"The group of people who organize it, the group of people who spend those three days together are very, very special," Ross said. "There is a bond that is developed between the residents and the staff and between the residents and the volunteers and between the volunteers and students that is unmatched by any other.

"It changes your life. It changes the way everyone who attends looks at life. It's just really neat."

Of course, the real change, the real benefit is evidenced in the Alzheimer's patients. A debriefing the last night of camp "made us cry; we literally were crying when we were talking about some of the changes in behavior," Ross said.

And the change in scenery and sense of freedom for the nursing home residents was a great advantage for both the residents and the caretakers.

"When you're not a nursing home resident, and you're just a person who looks like anybody else, and after three days out in the heat, we all looked the same, the level of respect shown to residents escalates," Ross said. "When you are walking on the beach with someone, your level of conversation is different than when you are walking down the hall with someone who is a resident in a nursing home."

Each year there is a wide variety of loosely structured activities for the residents to take part in, including Bible study, craft classes and a talent show. Entertainment for the talent show is provided by the residents, staff and volunteers.

"We had some of them do singing and dancing, and one (of the residents) recited a poem that she had written," Shim said. "It was just so amazing the talent that was among that small group of people. It gives you chills. It was so incredible."

Sometimes, patients who grew up bilingual will revert to their native language even though they may not have spoken it for a long time, according to Shim. One of her residents did speak some Greek and sang a Greek song.

"She started clapping her hands and stomping her feet and got the whole group to join in singing this Greek song," Shim said. "To be able to draw that kind of reaction . . . these are special things."

For the moment

The whole philosophy of the Alzheimer's camping trip is "living for the moment," Ross said.

"Tonight they may not remember the bonfire they had; they might not remember the marshmallows or that they made S'mores," she said. "Today they might not remember it. Tomorrow they might not remember it. But they lived for the moment and they laughed and they talked and they ate and they had sticky stuff all over their fingers just like they used to and they licked each one of their fingers. It was just beautiful."

Korby believes strongly in the book, so much so that he formed his own publishing company, Koto Press, to print the book. Trained in six martial arts, he also has involved a few friends, brought together by way of a martial-arts studio in Westland.

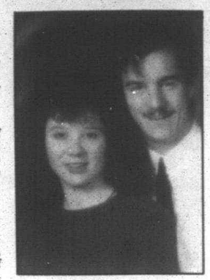

Janine Smith, wife of the instructor Tom Smith, helped illustrate the techniques in photographs for the book, and sometimes does demonstrations at Korby's seminars. Earl Tugg, who trains at the studio, is the prepress operations manager and is handling telephone orders for the book.

Korby hasn't set a price for the book but believes it will be somewhere between $13 and $18. Orders may be made by calling Tugg at OEM Research Service at 476-6060 or by fax at 476-9274.

Dennis Korby will conduct a rape prevention seminar at 7 p.m. Monday, July 18, at The American Polish Cultural Center, 2975 E. Maple, Troy. The cost is $5 for the seminar and an additional $10 for dinner, served 6-7 p.m. To register, call (810) 689-3636.

July skywatchers expecting conjunctions, anniversaries

SKY WATCH

RAYMOND E. BULLOCK

■ Venus and Regulus will be 1.5 degrees apart on the evening of July 9. Look toward the west, 45 minutes after sunset, and you will find the planet located to the right of the star. On the following evening, Venus will be one degree above Regulus.

July promises to be a month with numerous conjunctions and alignments, "firsts," surprises and anniversaries.

This is the first full month of summer, which should come as no surprise to anyone. What may be a surprise is the weather. If the unseasonable heat in June is any indication of what's to come, we could be in for a sweltering July.

New Moon phase will occur at 5:37 p.m. on July 8. The moon will be located between the earth and the sun and will not be visible.

Venus and Regulus will be 1.5 degrees apart on the evening of the 9th. Look toward the west, 45 minutes after sunset, and you will find the planet located to the right of the star. On the following evening, Venus will be one degree above Regulus. Venus' motion during a single 24-hour period is very apparent when compared to the position of a "fixed" star.

An anniversary will be marked on July 9: The launching of Telstar, the first private telecommunications satellite, occurred in 1962. It was the precursor (or just "curser," depending on your point of view) of today's telecommunications revolution.

Face west on the evening of the 11th and notice the waxing (growing) crescent moon. It will be located below the close grouping of Venus and Regulus. Tonight Venus will be above and slightly to the left of Regulus. By the end of the month, the two objects will be 18 degrees apart.

It was on July 11, 1979, that Skylab, NASA's first space station, reentered the earth's atmosphere with catastrophic results. The orbit of Skylab had been deteriorating, and NASA had hoped to use a space shuttle to boost it into a higher orbit. Alas, it was not to be. When Skylab entered the atmosphere it burned up. (Which is what will happen to Comet Shoemaker-Levy in Jupiter's atmosphere.)

Coming up in the next Skywatch: Jupiter and Comet Shoemaker-Levy have a close encounter of the catastrophic kind, the 25th anniversary of Apollo 11 and a meteor shower.

An excellent aid for learning constellations and keeping up to date with the sky is the monthly "Sky Calendar," available from Abrams Planetarium, Michigan State University, East Lansing, 48824. A one year subscription is $7.50.

Raymond E. Bullock, formerly associated with Cranbrook Institute of Science, is a Troy resident who is now in a leadership position with a company producing lasers.

Dear Dr. Beitman:

I would like to commend you and your staff on a job well done. I am very pleased with my experiences with you and your staff. Being a Manager of a Customer Support Department, I expect the best from my employees when it comes to providing good customer service. I also expect excellent service whenever I am the customer. I felt that the service received at your office exceeded my expectations.

Starting with my initial phone call requesting a consultation, my experiences were very pleasant. After watching the video, reading the various pieces of literature and talking with Peggy and yourself, I felt very comfortable with my decision to have RK performed at your office. Julie, Carla, Nat and Sue just made the experience even more pleasant (I hope I remembered all their names correctly). The personalities of these individuals actually made the experience fun (it's hard to believe that going to a doctor's office can be fun). During the tests and examinations, your staff was professional and personable. The conversations and joking that we had made the testing process go very quickly.

The actual surgery itself was painless and much quicker than I had imagined. I am definitely a "big chicken" when it comes to having anyone (including me) near my eyes. I was amazed that I made it through the surgery on my first eye, and still had the desire to have my second eye done. In the back of my mind, I thought for sure that I might not have enough nerve to return to have my other eye done. Considering I actually was looking forward to my second surgery, you and your staff must have done a good job.

It has really been fantastic to be able to do whatever I want without wearing glasses. I am still not used to going through the day without them. I find myself trying to adjust my glasses, even though I am not wearing them. Hopefully, I will be able to break this habit soon. Having people watch me reaching for glasses that don't exist is getting very embarrassing.

I would be happy to talk to any of your future clients regarding you, your staff and RK. Feel free to give them my number.

Sincerely, Joseph K. Chriss

For summer adventure, look for country roads

"Country Roads of Ontario," by Iris Sanderson Jones (150 pp., Country Roads Press, $9.95.) "Country Towns of Michigan," by Doris Scharfenberg. (107 pp., Country Roads Press, $9.95.)

I know you didn't ask, but I think it's high time you took a stop-and-smell-the-roses vacation. You know the kind I mean.

No long lines. No jostling crowds. No big, noisy cities. Also important: something you won't still be paying for this time next year.

Sound promising? If so, pick up a copy of "Country Roads of Ontario" and "Country Towns of Michigan" and you'll be convinced this is the way to go during the summer of '94.

In "Country Roads of Ontario," Jones (former Travel writer for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and a native of Canada who lives in Farmington Hills) takes us on one of her country roads miles north of the U.S. border to beautiful Lake of the Woods country, at the cutting edge of Canadian wilderness. If you love to fish, this may be the place you'll go to when you die.

"Locals tell outrageous fish stories here, as they do in every fishing area," writes Jones. "The difference is that here the tales are probably true."

On other jaunts (a bit closer to home), Highway 18 meanders out of Windsor and then alongside the Detroit River, headed for the north shore of Lake Erie and Point Pelee. (Take a short, delicious detour in summer and fall at Exxex 50, if you're hungry for plenty of picked-by-your-own-hand fruits and veggies.

Other rustic routes include the Afro-Canadian Heritage Trail (also out of Windsor, this follows several points along the Underground Railroad), some off-the-beaten-paths to Ottawa, and hiking and ski trails to die for.

Jones, whose nitty-gritty knowledge of her native country shows through on every page of this guide, will help you find your way to Canadian history at just about every stop.

Take a new look at some of Ontario's numerous locks and canals. Visit Honey Harbour, Coney Island, and a town once known as Rat Portage. Find The Carrying Place. Explore Grimmons Wood ("spectacular with trilliums in the spring"). Try buffalo burgers for lunch.

All this and more, plus some recommended spots to eat and sleep as you "mosey and poke" (Jones' watchwords) along Ontario's lesser-traveled roads. Bring your own maps, though. Sorry to say, really useful ones are missing here.

For an off-beat (but always lively) travel adventure in Michigan, you couldn't find a more suitable guide than Scharfenberg, also a Farmington Hills writer. Her delightfully off-beat humor and lively style are equaled only by her knowledge of the Great Lake State's past and present.

Take Bad Axe, for example, at the tip of Michigan's "thumb." Approximately 3,300 people call "The Axe" home. It is, according to Scharfenberg, "simple, unpretentious, homey, plain, and neat." Even its roads and streets "run as straight as yardsticks across a tabletop." But look closely and you'll find that Bad Axe has a rather intriguing history, even down to the way it acquired its peculiar name. It is dull, she emphasizes, "only to the unseeing," a kind of travel motto that she seems to have adopted wherever she goes, uncovering information everywhere, and opening these little treasures up to the traveler.

Next stop: Calumet, in the UP, where greats like Sarah Bernhardt, Jenny Lind and Harry Houdini once performed at the opera house - now the Calumet Theatre. Be sure to take in a performance and a backstage tour of the recently refurbished, glittery place. And don't leave the little country town behind without a visit to its Copper Town Museum on Red Jacket Road.

Scharfenberg also suggests you discover the little villages of the UP's Huron Mountains. Don't look for a U.S. highway, though. There are none in this neck of the woods. (Be sure to take maps along. This guide has none.)

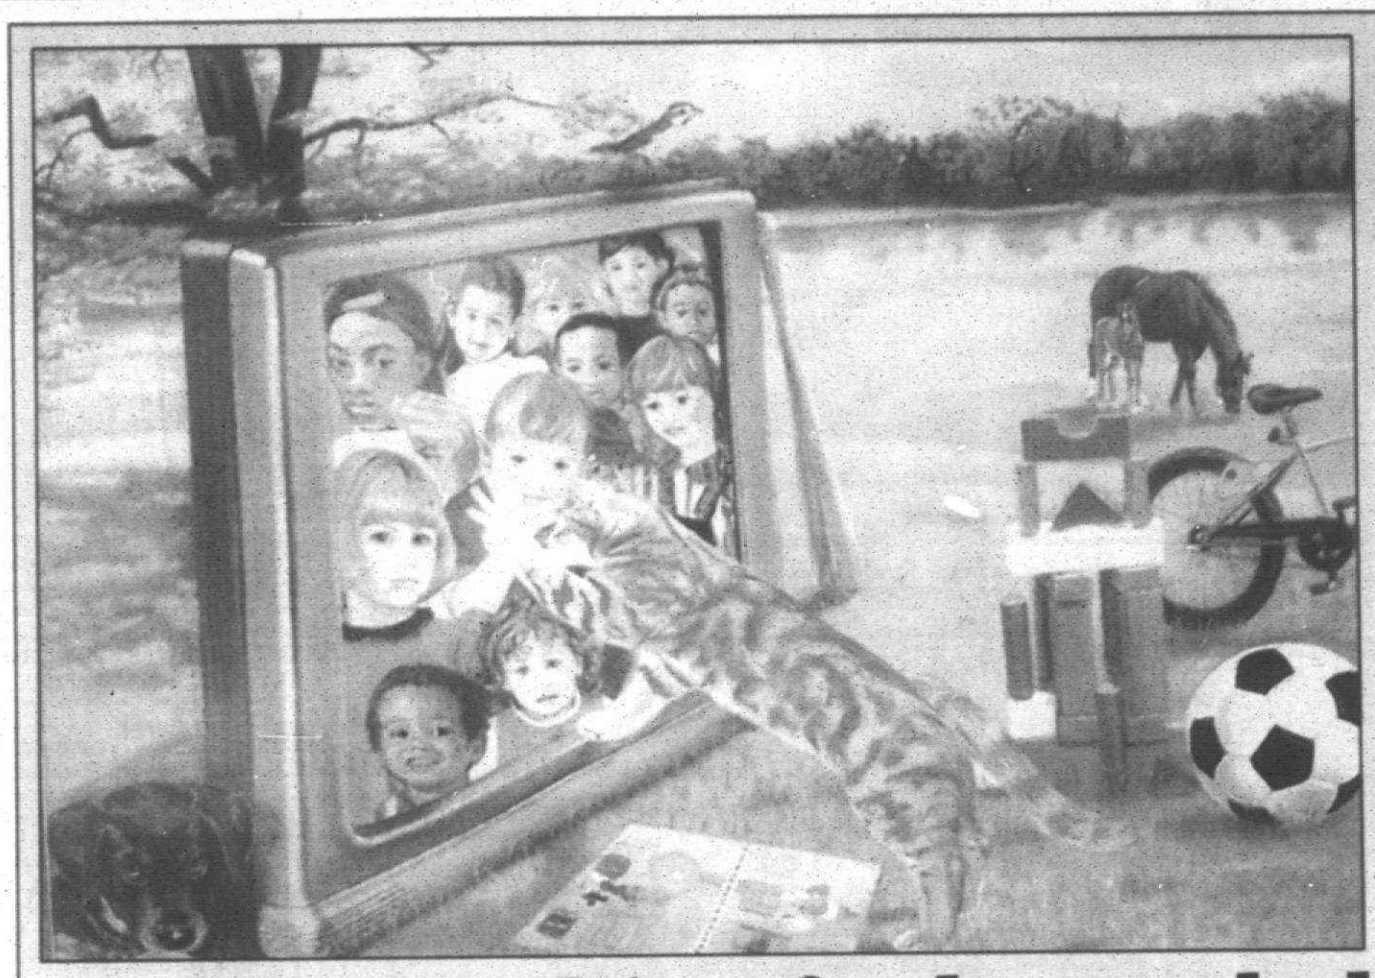

At other times, check out the lovely little town of Leland, trying to stay small on Michigan's glorious, inviting Leelanau Peninsula. Find out where Harrisonville is (you've probably been there and never knew it). Explore the beautiful

Artist searching for happy balance

■ Sparky Anderson, Cecil Fielder, Steve Yzerman, Secretariat and Seattle Slew come to life in Laurel Raisanen's pastel portraits in a one-woman exhibition July 11 to Aug. 20 at Nelson's Gallery, a forum for emerging as well as established Michigan artists.

By Linda Ann Chomin
Special Writer

Award-winning Westland artist Laurel Raisanen captures the essence of children, sports celebrities and animals in pastel portraits.

In recent months, Raisanen has searched for a new direction in her artwork, one illustrating and combining these talents as a professional portrait artist with commentary on contemporary society.

Both elements come to play in a one-woman show spanning nearly 20 years of Raisanen's pastel paintings. The show runs July 11 to Aug. 20 at Nelson's Gallery, 16376 Middlebelt in Terrence Corners, Livonia.

The vibrantly colored exhibit, featuring portraits of athletes Cecil Fielder, Steve Yzerman, Secretariat and Seattle Slew, as well as children and animals, opens with a reception to meet-the-artist 5-8:30 p.m. Thursday, July 14. The public is invited. Admission is free.

"When you do a portrait, you become intimate with your subject matter. You're studying it intensely, taking what you see and putting it down. When you study a piece of art, you're looking at what the artist chose to highlight: the eyes, a certain expression," said Raisanen, who produces about 25 commissioned portraits a year.

"When I do portraits, I try to capture the essence of the person or the moment so they get to see them in a different light. When I did Steve Yzerman, I made his face larger than life because it's so expressive, the eyes and the features."

Although there is a smattering of oil and acrylic paintings in the exhibit, pastel dominates. Used by masters like Degas, pastel is an intense medium where the artist puts down pure pigment onto the paper. There is a sensuality emanating from the silky texture of the surface. Although growing in popularity, pastel is not often seen as it requires the touch of a skilled artist who has mastered the materials to successfully manipulate the medium.

Studying under master portrait artist Josef Diftler in Hawaii in 1968, Raisanen learned the basics techniques of working with pastel like how to keep a drawing clean and how not to muddy the color. By believing in her abilities,

City scenes inspire Garden City artist

It had been a long time since he had returned here, Jack Keijo Steele said recently as he walked down the steps of the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomfield Hills.

"What a way to come back," the Garden City resident said, smiling.

Steele was on hand for the opening reception of "Jack Keijo Steele: Urban Realist," a rare exhibit of 27 paintings and drawings he made between 1937 and 1960. The show continues at the art museum, 1221 N. Woodward in Bloomfield Hills, through Sept. 25.

Steele saw the human drama unfold on such stages as street corners, mission houses, assembly lines, junkyards, schoolyards, coney islands and pool halls. He transferred it to canvas, paper, board and other surfaces.

"At that time, I was in my early 20s," said the artist, who has been a Garden City resident for 46 years. "I thought I was looking for the truth. I found out, just paint, that's all. Forget the philosophy."

Detroit artist and art historian Michael Hall and Cincinnati art dealer David Lusenhop were guest curators for the exhibit.

"Steele's art captures the life of a city," Hall said. "For Steele, the stuff of painting is to be found around every corner in the streets of Detroit. The characters in his pictures are a colorful lot including factory workers, pool sharks, strippers, news carriers, vagrants and nuns.

"Steele celebrates the vitality of a city's streets but he knows that de-

■ ART ENTHUSIASTS
Canton Project Arts will hold a juried gallery showing of fine arts again this October. Last year's show proved a major success, thanks to the dedication and enthusiasm of the volunteers.

Canton Project Arts is looking for volunteers to help plan and work at this year's show. If you are enthusiastic about art and are interested in the Canton arts scene, consider attending the next Canton Project Arts meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 14, at Canton Township Hall, Canton Center Road, south of Cherry Hill. Call Tim Haber at (313) 455-5045 with questions.

■ WOMEN OF ARTISTRY
Women of Artistry will host an exhibit and sale of their work to July 29 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

The Livonia Arts Commission exhibit features fine art created in five different styles and in a variety of media.

Sharon Lee Dillenbeck of Canton offers watercolors, freshly painted with light impressionistic strokes of broken color.

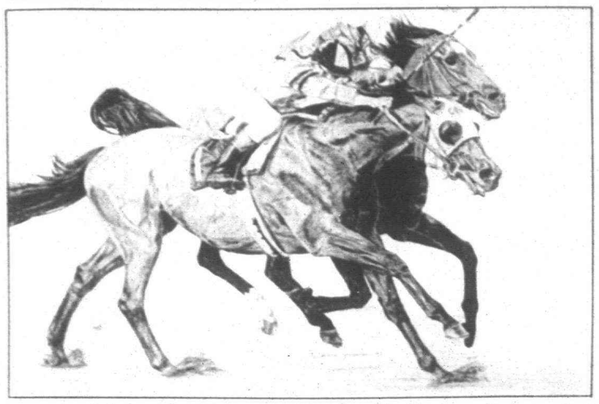

Julie Giordano of Northville has a new series of firefighting apparatus painted in watercolor or drawn in pencil.

Susan Argiroff of Livonia has created classic and contemporary marbling techniques on paper and cloth.

Caorl Lynn McCreedy of westland uses watercolor in a lifelike approach to her garden paintings.

Norma McQueen of Garden City has a style all her own in oil paintings and watercolor.

Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

High-energy athletes: Taut muscles race neck and neck in this charcoal action portrait "Down the Stretch" by Laurel Raisanen.

Diftler taught Raisanen to set a standard of excellence for herself, a goal she passes on today in classes taught at The Art Gallery in Garden City.

A time-consuming medium, pastel itself, taught her patience. One of Yzerman's gloves alone took three hours to render.

"When I first saw Laurel's hockey piece, I thought it was a photo. It was so lifelike," said gallery director/owner Laura Hardy.

"The creativity and colors, the composition are excellent. What I see from Laurel's work is a lot of seriousness. You get the feeling from her work, there's a lot of feeling in it."

Raisanen's love for horses shines in "Down the Stretch," an 18- by 24-inch charcoal drawing. The Pennsylvania native, who grew up on a farm, had the opportunity to study firsthand the animals' bone and muscle structure while working as a groom at the Detroit Race Course in Livonia for several years. Taut muscles race neck and neck in this action portrait.

Raisanen, whose work has been exhibited in shows throughout the Detroit area, believes art should communicate something to the viewer.

"The art shows make me stretch and get into telling a story with my work. The portrait of my son is capturing the moment of every child's childhood."

"It's My Birthday" creates a universal vignette of a child licking an eggbeater. Raisanen's 14-year-old son, Chet, who was 2 at the time, serves as the focal point in this amusing but satisfying piece.

■ 'Sometimes, it's the only thing that lasts. Artists take history and immortalize it. I look at Rubens, and he recorded history.'

Laurel Raisanen

Her latest pastel takes Raisanen's work in a new direction. "Trapped" is a commentary on the addictive nature of television that is robbing society of its youth. The work is surrealism at its best. Set amidst a colorful meadow sporting a soccer ball, building blocks, baseball bat and bicycle is a black and white television with children trapped inside its screen. A playful cat stretches to reach the multiracial boys and girls but is hindered by a barrier of non-glare glass.

This is where our children will be in the year 2000, Raisanen says, addicted to television, watching instead of participating in life.

With the upcoming showing of this work that kindles the imagination, the conscientious single mother of two is curious to see if people will get the message. As a board member of Wayne-Westland Community Schools, Raisanen feels an obligation and responsibility to enlighten and alert parents to the dangers of the medium, which has become an eletronic sedative.

"I wanted to convey a visual message to parents and kids to help explain that they are being held captive by television," said the Garden City Fine Arts Association member.

"When I put the critters in there, it was mainly to attract the kids, attention, to make them start thinking."

Raisanen believes much of today's art is too lightweight. Florals and landscapes are all-right for decorative purposes but art needs to have substance. It needs to deal with serious subject matter.

"Portraits are very satisfying to do. However, I won't really consider myself an artist unless I make an effort to reflect our contemporary society. After all, serious subject matter has historically been depicted by artists.

"Sometimes, it's the only thing that lasts. Artists take history and immortalize it. I look at Rubens, and he recorded history."

Raisanen will demonstrate the art of pastel portraiture and answer any questions people might have about the procedure involved with commissioning one of her reasonably priced portraits. The sessions, scheduled at Nelson's, run 6:30-8:30 p.m. July 21 and Aug. 18.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. For more information, call (313) 427-0325.

Rains don't ruin art lovers' vigor

By Linda Ann Chomin
Special Writer

Despite a deluge of rains darkening skies at the fourth annual Liberty Fest fine arts and crafts show at Heritage Park in Canton Township June 25-26, everyone had a good time.

Inside two huge tents more than 50 exhibitors displayed a variety of media, including watercolor, oil, pastel, clay, photography, jewelry, clothing and wood.

Canton Township artist Sharon Dillenbeck, co-producer of the show, demonstrated experimental watercolor techniques. Her latest florals, in particular the purple irises, were strong on line and vibrant color.

"We have wonderful fine artists and crafters this year. It's a shame we've had all this bad weather, but at least when it rains the people who are here run inside the tents," said Dillenbeck, ever the optimist.

Norma McQueen of Garden City was selling her new T-shirts featuring seven different designs modeled after her paintings of flowers, vegetables and cats.

"We've sold quite a bit," said McQueen, who was manning the Women of Artistry booth with fellow artist Carol McCreedy of Westland.

McCreedy's watercolors of the flowers and vegetable subject matter found around her family's business, Clyde Smith & Sons, were so vivid you could almost smell, touch and taste them.

Just a few booths down, award-winning portrait artist Laurel Raisanen of Westland was busy capturing the likeness of a little boy in pastel as a steady stream of people dropped by to see her renderings of sports celebrities Steve Yzerman, Secretariat and Seattle Slew.

"When people express interest in portraits, it's because somewhere along the line they've been exposed to one. They've always wanted to have a portrait done and not a photograph," said Raisanen, whose portraits are more than reasonably priced at $65 for a 12- by 18-inch head and shoulders of a single subject.

Across the aisle from Raisanen sat Plymouth's legendary painter Hugh Burley working away on an oil abstract.

Other Observerland artists in the show included Ed Allen, Tom Erle, and Susan Argiroff of Livonia; Lynnette Anderson of Canton Township, and Nancy Walls Smith of Plymouth. Smith, best known for her portraits of the stars, was showing work as part of Pam Grossman's drawing students. She raved about the drawing classes she's taking with Grossman in Plymouth.

The experience really showed in Smith's drawings of a wrinkled Shar-Pei and English Setter.

Also represented in the fest was Canton Project Arts, 3 Cities Art Club and Dillenbeck's painting students from the Canton Senior Citizens Center and Plymouth Cultural Center.

crepitude waits for both the buildings and the people littered through those same streets."

Steele was born in Ironwood in northern Michigan in 1919 and moved with his family to the Detroit area when he was 8. He worked on the assembly line at the Ford Motor Co. before going to the Cranbrook Academy of Art on a scholarship in 1940.

He studied with Zoltan Sepeshy, who was the academy's second president (1959-66). Sepeshy pushed his students to observe nature and develop their individuality.

"(Sepeshy) could be a little bit mean," said Steele, who later visited him on campus.

The exhibit includes "Cement Worker at Cranbrook," which Steele painted while a student there.

"I could look out my studio and see him working."

Steele was a war artist in the military in World War II (one of the featured paintings is "Soldiers in New Guinea"). After the war he completed his studies at Cranbrook, married and worked on an auto plant assembly line and in the styling department at Ford. He made time to paint every day at home, in the bedroom he converted into a studio.

He always preferred the urban setting for his art.

"The human factor is more important to me than the greenery."

The artist would store street scenes in his head and take them back to the studio, where he brought the images back to life on the surface before him with oil, watercolor, acrylic, pencil and other media.

"I could concentrate better from memory than doing (the work) from life.

"It was up to the painting to become itself."

Steele's scenes are full of energy, motion and emotion. In many of them, the surface is packed with figures and buildings. Clouds seem to swirl and roll. People in crowds jostle each other, straining to hear or see or take part. A man alone in a junkyard searches through the jumble with dedication.

Quiet, majestic power characterizes many figures in Steele's art. The arms and neck of an auto worker, and the swollen, battered body of a boxer, are muscular. Faces of people in the audience in "Union Meeting" are intent and their bodies are still as the agitated speaker in the far distance continues.

Details can touch the heart, as does the single yellow rose on the ground in "The Mission House," offering the only spot of color in the scene. Others make their appearance subtly, such as the printing on a newspaper read by a man or the letters on a building.

Humor and good spirits can be found. A nun in "Recess at St. Boniface School" runs with the children, her habit and veil billowing in the breeze.

The "McGregor Bay Lumberjack" looks more as if he is dancing in the dim lantern light than dressing or undressing, his smiling face leaning toward a victrola and his arms and feet almost flying.

"Pool Room (Joe Wins)" is sparse compared to other scenes but the joy over what has just been heard on the radio is infectious. "The Picnic" is a colorful collection of sunny moods.

This latter painting is 48 by 60 inches, the largest in the show. Many of the featured works are large.

"I prefer big so I can walk into it."

Steele is still painting. He is planning a series focusing on the hippie movement of the 1960s.

"Humanity doesn't change that much.

"I was very interested in the hippie movement, young people at that time, what they were protesting against."

Does he have a favorite painting?

"What is the favorite is the last one I'm working on."

Hours are 1-5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday. Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for senior citizens, children and full-time students, free for children under age 7 and museum members. Call (810) 645-3323.

Energetic: Like many of his works, Jack Keijo Steele's "Recess at St. Boniface School" is full of motion and packed with figures and buildings.

■ LARGE BROKER
Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate ranks among the top 100 in terms of sales transactions along with six other franchise organizations across the country, according to Real Trends, a national real estate publication.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer, which has offices in many Observer & Eccentric communities, ranked 69th in the Big Brokers Report with 4,775 residential transactions closed last year.

Real Trends is endorsed by the Realtors National Marketing Institute's Real Estate Brokerage Managers Council.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer has 17 offices and 500 sales associates serving southeast Michigan.

The 250 largest residential real estate brokerage firms in the nation controlled 1.3-million residential sales transactions in 1993. The transactions represent 17 percent of all home sales completed by brokers during the year yet the Real Trends Top 250 Brokers represented less than one-twentieth of 1 percent of all brokerage firms.

The 250 mega-brokers closed $1.35-million home transactions with a value of $129 billion during 1993, according to Coldwell Banker Schweitzer.

First impressions sway buyers most

Before you can move into that new home of your dreams, you have to sell your current digs.

Where do you start? Are you going to have to spend a lot of money and time getting your place ready for market?

"First, look at your house through the buyers' eyes to get a feel for marketing your house," said Robert R. Jones, a West Bloomfield residential builder and president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

"This will help you see some quick-fix projects that will sell your home faster. If you don't have time to do the repair work or give it a thorough cleaning, hire a professional. In the long run, it will save you time and money," Jones said.

"The vast majority of homes that have been built for at least 15 years haven't been touched," said Bob Lokey, an agent with Coldwell Banker Preferred in Plymouth. "They (owners) aren't aware of what they have to do because they live there."

You only get one chance to make a first impression on prospects drawn to the for-sale sign on your lawn. One way to tackle the project is start on the outside and work your way into the house.

A bad roof can chase buyers away before they even get out of their cars. "Roofs today last 15 to 20 years," Lokey said. "If it's not done, that's a detriment to the house."

"What I advise people at this time of year is take the opportunity to plant flowers," said Judy Walker, broker owner of Red Carpet Keim-Walker & Associates in Southfield. "It enhances curb appeal."

Here are other guidelines to help make your home a buyer's choice:

■ Declutter. If the house and yard are cluttered, it will give the impression of being small and not very well maintained. Clean out unwanted and unneeded items with a moving sale or by putting them into storage for a short time.

Clutter also includes excessive family memorabilia. It keeps buyers from imagining themselves in the house.

■ Clean. A clean home gives the appearance that it has been well kept and maintained. Clean isn't only having everything picked up and dusted, but also a fresh, clean smell.

"Make sure you leave the home in as clean a state as possible," Walker said. "There is a difference between being late for work today and not making the bed and cobwebs hanging down from the ceiling."

"If you have pets in the house, please remove them," she added. "The weather is conducive."

"A little fresh paint where needed and a thorough cleaning job can make your house look like new," Jones said.

"First paint,"Lokey agreed. "You can buy cheap carpeting for almost nothing and it will return double what you paid for it."

■ Repair. Buyers who see something that needs to be repaired generally see lots of dollar signs, more than the repair will actually cost. By making all necessary repairs, you will eliminate the objections buyers tend to dwell on.

"Those things noticed in the house by you should be the first things rectified," Walker said.

Drippy faucets, faulty on-off electrical switches and chipped or cracked lighting fixtures tend to leave a bad impression.

■ Finishing touches. This is the special feature that will stick out in buyers' minds as they shop for a new home. Look in magazines for decorating ideas that sell the product — your home.

It can be fresh flowers in the entry hall, scented soaps or candles in the bathrooms, logs in the fireplace, a basket of fresh fruit in the kitchen or on the dining room table.

"Brighten, cheerier, more open is the way to go," Lokey said.

"Displaying your house as a product will help you sell it for the best price and in the least amount of time," Jones said.

Some real estate offices have free pamphlets available to help sellers get their property ready for market. Check them out if you feel you need some extra assistance.

Your rights may extend to limiting bird feeding

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. I live in a cooperative. Every summer, I am plagued by bird seed littering my deck from bird feeding stations on the deck above me.

It is so bad that I cannot use the deck for fear of having bird seed blow into my hair by the prevailing air currents.

This matter has been brought to the attention of the board by me and other shareholders several times. The board tried a few corrective procedures that did not work and then forgot about the problem.

At my own expense, I installed plywood panels between the floor joists on the deck above with the board of director's approval to keep the bird seed from falling through the cracks. It helped some but did not completely rectify the nuisance.

I am assuming that as long as the board continues to do nothing to alleviate the problem, that anybody in the complex has the privilege of feeding the birds on their deck, regardless of having any consideration for their neighbors below.

I think these birds are creating a nuisance and I have every right to fight back and resort to some method to repel those birds as long as it does not infringe upon the rights of other neighbors in close proximity.

What can I do?

A. It is, of course, difficult to comment with any degree of specificity without reviewing your cooperative documents, including your bylaws.

You must also take into consideration the fact you cannot do anything unnecessarily to harm the birds that would be in violation of any local or state ordinance or statute.

On the other hand, I believe that some rules should be passed in the cooperative that would limit the homeowner's rights to feed the birds, to the extent that they cause damage to the common areas of the cooperative project, including your deck.

Perhaps a rule prohibiting bird feed stations to only certain locations would be appropriate. You may well have a good argument that the birds are causing a nuisance.

The problem seems to be that they are causing a nuisance because of the inability of the board to fashion a rule or regulation concerning the control of these birds.

Therefore, I would strongly recommend that you advise the board of the fact that unless it takes remedial steps to take care of the problem, you will have to assert your legal remedies against the cooperative.

How interested are you in selling your home?

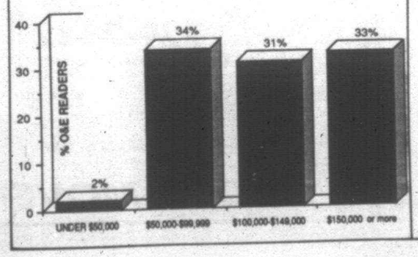

Interested enough to spend a few moments and discover the best place to advertise the fact that your home is for sale?
Good. We knew you were intelligent.
In fact, more than 40% of our readers have college degrees or better.*
And if knowlege is power, let's look at a few powerful facts: this newspaper, the one you're reading right now, reaches some of the most affluent households in Wayne and Oakland counties:

That's a median household income of more than $50,000—$10,000 more than the income of the people who don't read our newspapers.So when you advertise in your Observer & Eccentric newspapers, you not only reach thousands of smart people, you reach people with substantial incomes.
Now, that's something to smile about.

Our circulation area has 90% home ownership and look at the value of our reader's homes:

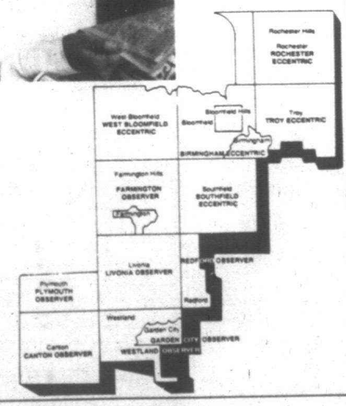

FACT: When you advertise with us you will reach 9 out of 10 adults in the Observer & Eccentric market area who have read weekly classified advertising.*

FACT: 91% of the adults in our market area who had read classified advertising in the past seven days had read it in the Observer & Eccentric*.

So, we can offer you one quarter of a million adult readers and a very rich market, what else do we have for you? How about an award-winning newspaper— a newspaper that people trust and look forward to reading? One that reaches 25 communities with important local news that's not available anywhere else.
That's us.

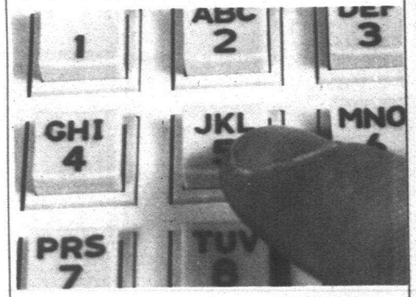

By the way, did you know that all those little ads in the back of this newspaper—the ones placed by people like you—are published in all 12 newspapers? Therefore, when you advertise anything from a horn to a home, you will automatically reach this huge, interested reading audience.

What else can we say? We've had years of experience in publishing newspapers and are proud of our record for successfully putting home buyers in touch with home sellers.

In fact, we've just introduced HOMELINE,* a great new way to find out about open houses simply by using your touchtone telephone.
Be sure to mention it to your Realtor® so that when it comes time to show your home, it will be described on HOMELINE.

Easy maintenance: Units at Meadow Creek feature vinyl siding and brick. Each unit has two decks and two of a lot of other things.

Meadow Creek long on convenience

Two of everything would be a good way to summarize the goodies in all units at a small condominium project under construction in western Wayne County. Another bonus: all appliances are included.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Two bedrooms, two baths, two-car attached garage, two skylights and two decks.

Each of the 28 ranch units at Meadow Creek, a condominium community under construction off Sheldon just north of Warren in Canton, will feature all of those amenities as standard items.

But that's not all. A full complement of new appliances also is included.

The 1,250-square-foot unit costs $129,900. The slightly larger model, with upgrades in the master suite such as a separate tub and shower and double-sink vanity, carries a price of $134,900.

"It's kind of a small development, which makes it nicer for the association," said Clayton Miller, developer/builder at the 5½-acre site. "Everyone knows each other.

"Condo living is mostly for conveniences," he added. "We don't have any age restrictions. Our main market is the empty nester. We do get some single people, younger couples."

Miller mentioned another selling point: "Development all the way around it is pretty well settled, not unknown like some places here."

St. John Neumann Church is to the west, wetlands and a day-care center to the south and existing residential neighborhoods to the north and east.

Miller said he believes he has a pretty good handle on what buyers want.

Standard features include air conditioning, fireplace, skylights in the kitchen and foyer and 10-foot ceilings in the combination great room/dining room. First-floor laundry and full basement also are standard.

A direct-vent gas fireplace enabled Miller to build a recessed opening over the fireplace for use as an entertainment center.

New appliances included as part of the basic package are oven, microwave, dishwasher, side-by-side refrigerator/freezer, garbage disposal and washer and dryer.

"It seems that people prefer we include all the appliances," Miller said.

"We offered vaulted ceilings last time (at Meadow Hill in Plymouth) but 11 of the first 12 buyers chose a flat ceiling. Maybe the empty nesters who paid utility bills were conscious of energy saving and made trade-offs.

"What we find here is people like the smaller development and don't want the overhead of a pool, the upkeep, liability, that sort of thing," Miller said.

Prospects appreciate that they're getting all new appliances with the purchase of a unit at Meadow Creek, said Dawn Miller, Clayton's wife who is marketing the property.

"They like the concept of having everything on one floor," she said. "I've had quite a few comments on quality of workmanship."

The monthly association maintenance fee of $85 includes water.

Meadow Creek is in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The property tax rate for township, county and school services is about $31 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owner of a $130,000 condo in Meadow Creek would face an annual tax bill of about $2,000.

Eight of the 28 units have sold.

Pete and Lorraine Frola were among the first to arrive.

"We were in a four-bedroom home. We wanted to downsize. It's a nice change," she said. "With us busy running our own business, we don't have time to do all the grass cutting, upkeep.

"Our office is in Livonia. We didn't want a long ride to work every day," Lorraine continued. "We moved from Canton to Canton. The community is growing so much and so much is available, we decided we couldn't do bad by staying in the area.

"I wanted a first-floor laundry and didn't want to walk up and down stairs," she said. "My husband is extremely impressed with the high-efficiency furnace and air. I think there's more a feeling of this being a home with a front porch and deck on back."

Rod and Carol Rubus also have bought into Meadow Creek.

"I thought construction here is of high quality," Rod said. "Fixtures chosen trimming, windows were tastefully done. I thought the I-275 corridor was a good investment. It's a booming area.

"Dawn and Clayton were personable and responsive to our needs," Rod added.

The sales model (454-0270) at Meadow Creek is open 1-5 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Top entrepreneurs include local execs

What do chief executive officers of companies that make manufactured houses and mid-size buses, sell/lease video display systems and get involved in the larger community have in common?

How about 1994 Michigan Entrepreneur of the Year designation.

Three of the nine selected this year have local connections.

Walter Young Jr., chairman, president and CEO of Champion Enterprises headquartered in Auburn Hills, was judged Turnaround Entrepreneur of the Year.

Lynn Matson Kazanowski, president of Business Television Video in Walled Lake, was selected Wholesale/Distribution Entrepreneur of the Year.

Joel Tauber, president of Tauber Enterprises in Southfield, was chosen Socially Responsible Entrepreneur of the Year.

Innovation, financial performance and personal commitment were evaluated.

Judges included Thomas Landry, president of A.J. Etkin Construction and the Associated General Contractors Association, Florine Mark, president of the W.W. Group, Lloyd E. Reuss, former president of General Motors, and David Brophy, University of Michigan finance professor.

When Young became CEO at Champion in 1990, the company, which makes manufactured housing and buses, had just posted a $13 million loss and was filing for bankruptcy.

Young put more than 80 percent of his personal net worth on the line in a restructuring and insisted that the new management team and directors also buy into the company.

He closed six plants, decentralized many departments and decreased corporate staff from 125 employees to 12. He also liquidated company-owned real estate, inventory and receivables to raise cash. He also personally sold 1,800 manufactured houses to Israel to prime the cash pump.

Young's turnaround strategies resulted in a $12 million profit within three years. The publicly owned company's stock has risen from $2 to $30 per share. Revenues this year are projected at $525 million.

"I am a change catalyst with sufficient intellect to recognize that encouraging and rewarding individuals is more productive than controlling and containing them," Young said.

Matson started Business Television Video in 1986 with a $5,000 loan and a part-time high school trainee as her assistant to fill a niche in the audio/visual presentation field.

The company has since evolved into a full-service organization that helps clients develop, implement and manage their information and communication systems.

Sales that first year were $750,000. Most recently, they've exceeded $7.5 million.

Matson is high on service, including rotation of product, repair response and preventive maintenance.

She has pulled together a team of creative individuals who are encouraged to step beyond their perceived roles and take an active part in nurturing growth.

BTV's motto — Large Enough to Service, Small Enough to Care.

Tauber owns and operates Key Manufacturing, Key Plastics, Keywell Corp. and several spinoff subsidiaries. His enterprises last year employed more than 2,000 and posted combined sales of $430 million.

Recently, however, Tauber has spent more of his time on philanthropic endeavors. His efforts have ranged from the United Jewish Appeal to United Way to the Interfaith Round Table of Christians, Jews and Muslims.

His private foundation provides college scholarships to children of his employees.

Tauber's fund-raising efforts translate directly to action programs such as relocating people from world trouble spots and helping immigrants here adjust to their transplanted communities.

"Every entrepreneur and/or successful person owes it to his community to participate, to contribute and to help others who haven't been as fortunate," he said.

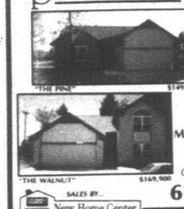

"The primary beneficiary of these efforts, however, is really the person, himself," Tauber added.

"The depth of meaning, self-respect and spiritual worth transcends anything else one can do. In the end you know that you have made a difference and have left this world a little better place."

The Saturn SL

No matter what income bracket they're in, it's hard to believe that anyone would consider any of their money disposable. Which may explain why we all want to buy things that are actually worth what they cost. Like the Saturn SL. It has the kind of technology you'd find on a more expensive car, like a steel spaceframe with crumple zones, flexible paint and panels that resist chipping, and even a stainless steel exhaust system. Because if there's one thing that's not disposable, it's money.

M.S.R.P. of the 1994 SL is $9995 including dealer preparation. Tax, license, transportation and options additional.

"We also have a fine selection of previously pampered Saturns!"
