The charity season is upon us

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

If you want to help someone in need, the Goodfellows need you.

"It is a charity so close to my heart," said Nancy Spencer, Canton Goodfellows president.

Spencer is looking for more volunteers to sell Goodfellows newspapers 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3. The sale provides the organization with money to give 82 food baskets for needy families and toys for 156 children. Families are identified by the Salvation Army in Plymouth.

The Goodfellows annual effort ensures that there is "No Child Without A Christmas." The paper sale is the only fundraiser by the organization. Volunteers are needed to sell the newspapers at 23 locations in Canton. Anyone who would like to volunteer should call Spencer, 397-8975.

The Goodfellows also are collecting food for the baskets from other organizations and individuals. Early Monday, Spencer, Sgt. Dave Champagne of the Canton Fire Department and John Spencer, Canton finance director, collected food from Dr. Robert Potter,

No joke, acid bombs pose threat

■ Police are investigating at least five incidents in which homemade acid bombs have exploded or been found in Canton.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton police and fire officials are warning the unidentified makers of homemade acid bombs — one of which caused a woman minor injuries — that serious damage and injuries, as well as possible felony charges will result.

"Kids or whomever is doing this think they are just playing. But there is a seriousness to this," said Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer. "They have to recognize that dealing with explosives can bring some serious penalties and serious incidents."

The homemade bombs are contained in plastic soda pop bottles. Police are waiting for official confirmation of the bombs' contents. But Fire Chief Mike Rorabacher believes sulphuric acid (battery acid) and tin foil are being used.

"The acid reacts to the tin in the bottle," Rorabacher added. "They have been using only plastic bottles so far."

At least five incidents have been reported in which the homemade bombs have exploded or been found. Police are investigating the incidents.

Locations of the incidents include Fantastic Sam's hair salon in the 44000 block of Ford Road where an acid bomb was thrown inside the door.

"The bottle was thrown through the air, hit the ground and exploded," Colling said of the bomb at Fantastic Sam's. "The contents of the bottle splattered on a woman (customer). The woman was hurt but it wasn't serious."

Police also received reports of the bombs either found or exploded on the side of a house on Bartlett; on the lawn of a house on Woodmere and two bombs in a backyard on Whittier.

"Anytime acid is involved it's bad," Rorabacher said. "There is the danger of the acid and the danger to the people the bombs go off around."

Rorabacher said he is also concerned about the safety of those making the bombs because of the short reaction time for the tin and acid, which is easy to purchase. Not only can injuries result from the explosion but sulphuric acid burns clothing and skin.

Police have no suspects but witnesses to two of the incidents said they saw a Mustang in the area, Colling said.

Streetscape project takes on a turquoise hue

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

By now you've probably noticed the new light poles dotting the streetscape project along Ford Road, between Sheldon and Morton Taylor.

The turquoise lights will decorate the Canton Downtown Development Authority streetscape on the north and south sides of Ford Road, as well as the east side of Sheldon, north of Ford, along the Harvard Square shopping center.

"I think the intent was for them (lights) to weather and look like tarnished brass," said Angela Wolosiewicz, DDA project coordinator. "I'm not sure how bright the cast will be. But I have to imagine it will be subdued lighting."

Construction crews are wrapping up the project, which includes the brick wall on the north and south sides of Ford, as well as brick pavers, new sidewalk and landscaping.

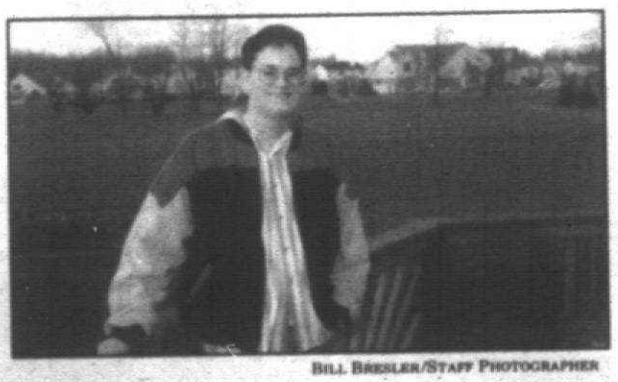

Right now limestone caps are being placed on top of the brick wall and a little more sidewalk must still be constructed. Trees are being planted along the streetscape. But sod and perennial plantings, as well as junipers, will be planted in the spring, Wolosiewicz said.

"The project will be substantially

Salem student hits mark: 'Bowling for Trees'

Environmental effort: Jason Pino, a junior at Plymouth-Salem, has organized a bowling tournament to raise money to buy historical trees for school.

Jason Pino, 17, of Canton has two loves in life: science and bowling. So when it came time for the Plymouth-Salem junior to submit a semester project for his environmental studies class, he decided to combine the two.

The Plymouth-Salem Environmental Open resulted. It's a "bowling for trees" tournament scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 4 at Superbowl in Canton. Proceeds will be used to buy historically significant trees to be planted on school grounds.

"Science has always fascinated me — planets, astronomy, rocks and minerals, chemicals, stuff like that," said Pino. "The way I got the idea was combining what I like to do for fun in order to use it as a semester project."

According to Pino's science teacher, Sally DeRoo, Pino had expressed interest in environmental issues regarding lack of trees, global warming, and rain-forest destruction. So when she issued her project guideline — "Identify a problem at home, school or community that you can effectively

Santa comes to town

Santa Claus will arrive in Canton at 9 a.m. Friday, Nov. 25, at Canton Cinema Six on Ford Road. All kids are invited to the event coordinated by the Canton Chamber of Commerce, Canton Township and chamber volunteers.

Santa will arrive in town on a Canton fire engine. Kids will get a chance to talk to Santa and receive a goodie bag for themselves and adults who also attend. Refreshments will be available.

The annual event will include a free admission to the movie, "Beethoven's 2," at the cinema. Door prizes also will be available.

For more information contact the chamber, 453-4040.

Santa on Wheels

Santa will be stationed in a recreational vehicle in the parking lots of Canton shopping centers in December. A package of goodies from Canton Chamber of Commerce merchants will be given to each child who visits with Santa. The events are sponsored by the Canton Chamber of Commece retail committee. For more information contact the chamber, 453-4040.

Santa will be at the Golden Gate shopping center, corner of Joy and Lilley, 1-4 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 3; 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4, at the Coventry Commons shopping center at Joy and Morton Taylor; 1-4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 10, at Home Depot on Ford Road, east of I-275; 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 11, at the Canton Corners shopping center at the corner of Ford and Lilley; 1-4 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 17, at Harvard Square shopping center at the northeast corner of Ford and Sheldon; 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 18, at New Towne (Kmart) shopping center at the northwest corner of Ford and Sheldon.

completed by the end of the year," she added.

At the entry of the DDA district — at Morton Taylor and Sheldon — inset signs made of stone will be placed into the brick wall. The sign will bear the township's logo and will feature the words "Canton Community." The stenciled letters will be in a color similar to the decorative lightpoles.

Shoppers probably also have noticed construction of islands in the parking lot at Harvard Square shopping center. The islands are part of the DDA project. Renovation work on the center buildings is being done by the private owner, Wolosiewicz said.

Work began in earnest on the streetscape project in May, including putting utility lines underground. Financing for the approximately $1.7 million project comes from money collected through tax increment financing — siphoning off property taxes already levied — in the district and from the sale of bonds.

Tyburski gets sentence cut in half

Leonard Tyburski, convicted of the 1985 murder of his wife, had his sentence cut in half Friday and could now be eligible for parole within three years.

The former Canton resident was found guilty of second-degree murder in 1989 and at that time received a 20- to 40-year sentence.

According to his own testimony, Tyburski killed his wife, Dorothy, after an argument about an affair she had with their daughter's 18-year-old boyfriend. He put her body in the basement freezer, where it was discovered by their daughter Kelly, then 20, on Jan. 2, 1989. She said that she had been haunted by dreams about the freezer.

In September, Tyburski agreed to plead guilty during his second trial in exchange for a reduced sentence. On Friday, Judge Dalton Roberson of Detroit Recorders Court ordered him to serve 9- to 20- years in prison. Taking into account the time he has already served and time off for good behavior, Tyburski could be paroled as soon as 1997.

impact on" — Pino made a quick observation: Centennial Park simply didn't have enough trees. The next step was to do something about it. However, the scope of his project took DeRoo by surprise. "What this kid has done to my amazement is organize this bowling tournament," she said.

DeRoo, a board member of the Michigan Science Teachers Association, endorsed the cross-curriculum aspect of Pino's project, which she said involved "history, social studies, science and mathematics, as well as the environment." And certainly, Centennial Park could use a few trees. "Our school site is devoid of trees. It was once a beech-maple forest in the 1800s," she said.

For Pino, organizing the tournament was just another of the many challenges he has taken in stride throughout his school years. "He's never let anything ever hold him back," said his mother, Rosanna. "If he has a down day, he just handles it and goes on." Pino's parents moved to Canton six years ago because of the school district's excellent reputation. "We lived in a school district that didn't have the services. We came out here, and it was a hundred percent better. We've never looked back. He's had some tremendous teachers," Rosanna Pino said.

But even tremendous teachers need willing students. Catherine Campbell, Pino's fifth-grade teacher and current counselor at Hoben Elementary School, said of her former student: "He has got a spirit that's just so special. He always brought a sense of joy to the classroom. I would take a million of Jason because he was so teachable."

■ The Plymouth-Salem Environmental Open is a "bowling for trees" tournament scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 4 at Superbowl in Canton. Proceeds will be used to buy historically significant trees to be planted on school grounds.

Campbell, who plans to bowl in the tournament, commented on the motives behind Pino's project: "He's really an unselfish person. This project is not about Jason Pino. It's about helping a whole community out."

Pino had no problem selling his idea of bowling for trees to potential sponsors. "Well, I'd go in and give them my little speech, tell them what I was doing and how I was doing it. Then I give them one of my entry forms," he said, describing his soft-sell approach.

Several area restaurants, businesses and residents already have donated. The only person Pino had a difficult time convincing was his 12-year-old sister, Laura, a seventh-grade cheerleader for the Canton Lions football team. However, he's not worried. "She'll be attending whether she wants to or not," he said in typical big-brother tone.

Except for some help with the computer, Pino did all the organizational work for the tournament, from contacting the bowling alley, to printing and distributing the entry forms, to soliciting donations. It was more than a matter of communication skills and determination. It involved vision.

Sally Dureau said of Pino, "It's his enthusiasm and that he stopped and took a look at what he, as one person, could do. We are so busy looking for what's wrong, we don't look for what's good, and every young person has something to offer of significance."

The community will see the results of Pino's project this spring. That's when the offshoots of trees from Walden Woods, Mt. Vernon, Civil War sites, and other historic locations will spread their young branches across the grounds of Plymouth-Salem High School. The trees will be purchased from American Forest Famous and Historic Trees, a nonprofit conservation project based in Jacksonville, Fla.

The Plymouth-Salem Environmental Open will be held Sunday, Dec. 4 at Superbowl, 45100 Ford Road in Canton. Check-in time is 1:30 p.m. Cost is $6 per person. For additional information, contact Superbowl at 459-6070.

Those responsible for the homemade bombs and explosions could face felony charges with as much as 15 and 20 years in prison for a variety of charges, such as placing an explosive with the intent to destroy, aiding and abetting and possession of explosives, Colling said.

"They have to realize they are not just facing destruction of property, but serious injuries," Colling added.

chiropractor, on Ford Road.

Potter sponsors "Community Appreciation Week" Nov. 14-18 during which he donates services to patients and friends who donate non-perishable food items for the Goodfellows effort.

"Our patients have been very generous to us. There is a $10 minimum but I'm sure they have exceeded it," said Kathy Page, chiropractic administrative assistant.

A thankful Spencer said Potter "is our largest single contributor of food." East Middle School students again are collecting food for the effort. Spencer also has been notified that Boy Scout troops are interested in volunteering.

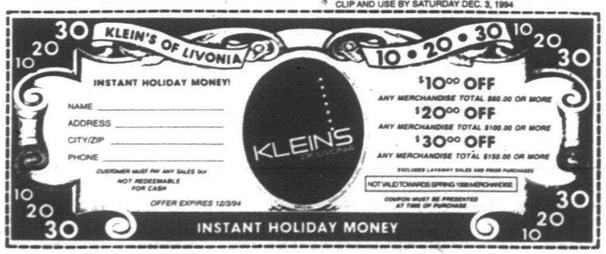

The food donations and paper sales will allow the Goodfellows to buy toys for the kids and provide a traditional Christmas dinner of turkey and all the fixings in the food baskets.

Again this year, women in the community will buy or make clothes for dolls that are donated for the Goodfellows effort. The annual doll judging contest is scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday, Dec. 9 at Canton Township Hall, where the dolls will be displayed.

Everyone is welcome to donate to the Goodfellows effort, including food, cash, socks, underwear and mittens. Items may be dropped off to the receptionist on the first floor of township hall. If you are making a large donation of items or a cash donation, contact Spencer first.

Youngsters cook up wild turkey day recipes

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Could you use some new recipes for this year's Thanksgiving dinner? Kindergartners at Hoben Elementary School and first-graders at Bird Elementary School and their teachers, Bonnie Goodrich and Carol Carr, respectively, took time out of their day Monday to share some of their favorite holiday recipes.

Gregory Wisniewski's Turkey

For a family of five, buy a six-pound turkey at Meijer. Put it in the oven at 30 degrees and cook it for 15 minutes. When it's dinner time, we eat it.

Ashlie Forchione's Sauerkraut

Get some sour stuff and mix it up with a fork. Cook it in the oven for 10 minutes at 9 degrees.

Kate Staley's Stuffing

Put cheese, lettuce, onion, beans and pepper in a pan inside the oven at 8 degrees for 13 minutes.

Tyler Simescu's Corn

Get corn from a field. Wrap it up in foil with some water. Put it in the oven for 20 minutes at 10 degrees.

Katie Moran's Salad

Mix together cheese, lettuce, apples, carrots, tomatoes, apples and carrots. Put taco dressing on top.

Jennifer Cockburn's Meatloaf

water

Put it in the oven for two minutes at 10 degrees.

Evan Winter's Stuffing

carrots
little pieces of celery croutons
a little bit of onion

Mix it around in the mixer and put it in the turkey.

Mark Gleba's Mashed Potatoes

You could take some potatoes and squash 'em and they'll be potatoes. Or, put the potatoes in the microwave for two minutes and smash 'em with a potato masher or a fork. Mix in pepper, butter and sour cream.

Alyssa Mattei

Buy sauce in a jar at Meijer and cook it in the oven.

John Griffin's Plain Salad

Mix up cucumbers, mushrooms, croutons, carrots, tomatoes, olives, lettuce, "Caesar," cheese and bacon bits. Use ranch dressing.

Michael Galarowic's Turkey

Buy a humungous, 90-pound turkey. Cook it in a fireplace like in the olden days for 10 minutes.

Scott Porter's Pumpkin Pie

pumpkin seeds

Smash a pumpkin and mix in whipped cream and pumpkin seeds. Make the dough homemade. Take two cups of milk, two racks of butter and two cups of flour. Mix it up with water, sugar, brown sugar and cinnamon and keep it in the frig.

J.P. Spencer's Smashed Potatoes

You need five pounds of potatoes. Take the skin off and smash 'em with a big wooden hammer like the olden days. Put them in the oven for 52 minutes. The temperature is 35 degrees.

Lauren Novak's Pasta

meatball meat sauce
onions
noodles

Put in the refrigerator and eat it cold.

Wendell West's Ham

Buy a 20-pound ham, a big one, at a pig farm. Cut it and put it in the oven. Cook it at 89 degrees for 40 minutes.

Molly Motley's Chocolate Cake

Mix chocolate, eggs, butter, milk, and flour. Put it in the oven at 5 degrees for five minutes. You don't want to eat it raw. Add chocolate icing.

Christopher Davis' Cranberry Sauce

sugar

Cook it and cook it and cook it until it smells delicious.

Matthew Smokovitz' Jello

milk watermelon Jello mix grapes

Put it in the freezer for a long time.

Ashleigh Harding's Applesauce

Get apples and cut them. Put them in a little machine that grinds the big parts you didn't cut. Cook it in a big pot for 10 minutes and put it in cups with cinnamon. It tastes really good.

Michael Hurley's Turkey for 11

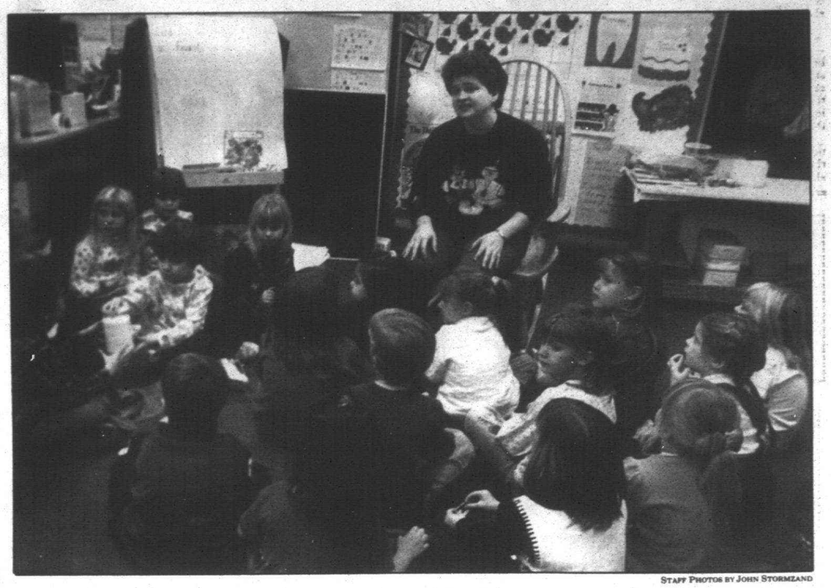

Get a 2 lb. turkey at a farm. Put sauce in it and stuff it. Cook it for 25 minutes at 25 degrees in a big bowl. When it's done, dig for the wishbone.

Catherine Sassanelli's Cranberries

You get cranberries in a can. Add pepper and a little sugar and cook 'em in the oven for 5 minutes at 8 degrees.

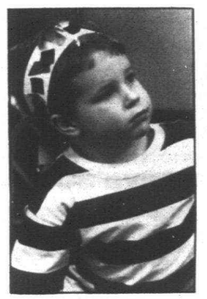

John McKinnon's Green Beans

You don't make 'em, you just buy 'em. Cook 'em in the oven in hot water, maybe at about 10 degrees for 10 minutes.

Teachers no closer to contract

Seven hours of mediation Thursday night failed to bring the Plymouth-Canton school board and the local teachers' union closer to a settlement on contract issues.

"Nothing crucial occurred," said Chuck Portelli, president the teachers' union. "Except the board met with the mediator. That's a first for Plymouth-Canton."

Still in dispute are teacher salaries for this year and next, and the calendar for the 1995-96 school year. Also unresolved is contract language regarding school improvement and decentralized administrative procedures that allows individual schools in the district to make more of their own decisions.

Bargaining between the district and teachers, cafeteria workers, custodians and paraprofessionals has been stalled for some time. All four employee associations have turned to mediation.

Thursday, representatives of the district and the union waited in separate conference rooms in the district's administration building. A state mediator shuttled between them relaying proposed terms, but by 10:30 p.m. no agreement had been reached.

A second meeting was scheduled for last night. In the meantime, representatives for both the union and the district declined to comment on the possibility of a walkout.

"I want to give the process a chance to work," said Tom Cotner, the teacher's bargainer and a Plymouth Salem teacher.

Plans set to give hotel a facelift

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The Mayflower Hotel is in line for some restoration work.

Hotel general manager and part-owner Matt Karmo said the plan is to renovate the restaurant, bar and public areas of the hotel, and the exterior.

"It's mostly a facelift," Karmo said. "We're trying to maintain the theme of the Mayflower, we just want to update it."

Karmo said the lease on the kitchen cabinet store on the corner has not been renewed. "We want to make it part of our bar and restaurant. We want to try to link the whole building, we want to give it one uniform look.".

Of the hotel's interior, "It needs to be more airy," he said.

"We want to maintain the historic look. It's a landmark for the city of Plymouth and we want it to stay that way."

Karmo also plans to sell cappuccino and pastries at the space on Ann Arbor Trail once occupied by the jewelry store.

The architectural firm working on the restoration is Victor Saroki and Associates of Birmingham. The architects have started photographing the building, making drawings, taking measurements and researching the history.

Saroki and Karmo say no schedule has been set for when work will happen or when it will be completed.

Karmo and his partners took ownership of the hotel from a bank-appointed receiver on July 31.

The Plymouth and Canton Observer Christmas Cheer Club is back.

Starting Friday, we'll be taking new unwrapped toys and canned and boxed food for needy kids and families this Christmas.

Then, in mid-December, we'll call up the Plymouth Salvation Army office and load up the toys and food on their truck.

The items will be taken to the Salvation Army's Plymouth distribution center and grouped with other collected donations.

And there needy families from Plymouth and Canton who qualify to receive food and toys by Salvation Army guidelines will be invited to take your donated gifts.

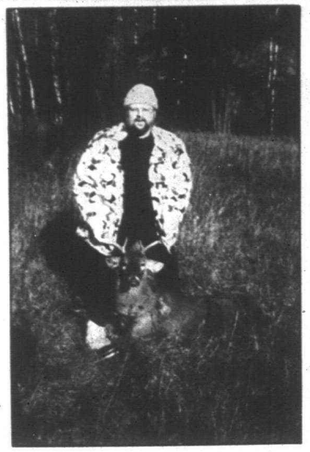

In each issue of our newspaper during the Christmas Cheer Club drive, we'll list names of donors who bring things in. We'll also run a photo or two of folks dropping by our office to donate.

Our office is at 744 Wing just east of Main Street, and office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

We've recorded as many as 200 donors to the Cheer Club during the Christmas season.

We hope you can join the Cheer Club this year. For more information, call the Plymouth and Canton Observer office at 459-2700.

Buck pole: Tim Cross of Canton shows the eight-point buck he shot while hunting northwest of Mio on Nov. 15.

Township man bags 2 in 1 day

The firearms deer season is in full swing, and we're asking successful hunters to report their kill to the Observer Buck Pole.

Hunters can call us between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday-Friday, to report their deer. Also, we'll take a photo of you with your buck or doe and use it in the newspaper. To report to the Buck Pole, call us at 459-2700.

Our most recent reports came from several residents. John Kamph of Plymouth Township got a doe on the last day of bow season. On opening day of rifle season, Kamph bagged a 6-point buck.

"Two deer in less than 24 hours — I probably never will do that for the rest of my life," said Kamph who hunted four days in Charlevoix County.

Canton resident Jerry Putin bagged a spike-horn deer on his property in Delta County in the Upper Peninsula. "I saw a spike-horn on the first day. I couldn't get a shot. On the second day I saw a different one and shot it," Putin said, adding that spike-horn are probably 70 percent of the deer harvest. Putin has been hunting since 1966.

Canton resident Tim Cross got an 8-point buck while rifle hunting Nov. 15 northwest of Mio. Cross said this was the largest 8-point rack he ever bagged.

Engler challenges local user fees

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Voters in Wayne County and many suburbs would decide the fate of an airport tax and recycling fees under a recommendation endorsed by Gov. John Engler.

"Mandatory user fees" for recycling are used by Bloomfield Township; the cities of Rochester Hills, Novi, Farmington, Farmington Hills and Wixom; and the village of Milford.

"There are a lot of communities with 'mandatory user fees' that this report says must be voter-approved," said Patrick L. Anderson, deputy state budget director and a member of the governor's commission.

Wayne County's 30-percent tax on parking at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, 5-percent charges for 911 emergency telephone service, and Detroit's utility users tax also should be approved by voters, not imposed by governing boards, the report said.

The 12-member Blue Ribbon Commission for Review of the 1978 Headlee (tax limitation) Amendment included Anderson, a Farmington Hills resident and chair of the 11th Congressional District Republican organization; his boss, budget director Patti Woodworth; state treasurer Doug Roberts; and Gary Wolfram, Hillsdale College economist and member of the State Board of Education.

Wolfram chaired the panel.

Dissenting on the user-fees section were three local-government members: Elaine Skarritt, Milford Township clerk and president of the Michigan Townships Association; Gene Thornton, lobbyist for the townships association; and John Logie of the city of Grand Rapids.

The dissenters said it's impossible to prove that a user fee isn't a tax. "How does one prove a negative? And to whom?" they asked rhetorically.

The dissenters said local recycling programs "have been established in good faith on the basis that the user-fee approach was acceptable and valid. A retrenchment now would not only cause a likely disruption of existing programs, but also stifle further advancement and development of this socially desirable goal."

Despite the dissent, Engler told the commission he would direct the treasurer, his legal counsel and budget director to address the administrative concerns. "I will also ask our legislative leaders to work with us on legislation addressing other recommendations," he said.

The report covers all facets of the 1978 lengthy Headlee amendment to the financial article (IX) of the Michigan Constitution. The report's section on local government fees is likely to stir the most controversy in the 1995 legislative session.

The report defines a "fee" as payment for a voluntary service, including fines for violations of law. But the panel said a charge for mandatory services such as recycling and 911 emergency service are unconstitutional unless approved by voters.

"The commission recommends that the Legislature amend each statute that authorizes establishment of a jurisdiction-wide assessment district to finance general government services" to require voter approval.

Among other recommendations:

■ Wayne County's 30-percent tax on airport parking — which ranks with Montana's 30-percent tax on coal sold to Detroit Edison Co. as one of the highest levies in the nation — also should be approved by voters, because "The revenue from this tax, although ostensibly imposed by the state, flows directly back to the cities and counties in which a regional airport is located."

■ Convention bureau marketing taxes of one to two percent on hotels and motels with more than 10 rooms should be subject to a vote of the people, not just hotel-motel owners. "These statutes effectively create local authorities that levy taxes and make expenditures without any control by the citizenry," it said.

■ A very similar statute, the "Tiger Stadium Tax" act (PA 180 of 1991), authorizes an explicit excise tax on hotel and motel accommodations in municipalities or counties constructing or reconstructing a stadium or convention facility.

Commission elects chief

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County commissioner Ricardo Solomon, D-Detroit, was elected chairman of the county commission Nov. 17.

Solomon replaces commissioner Arthur Blackwell, D-Detroit, who announced his resignation as chairman last month.

Solomon was elected by a vote of 14-0 with one abstention, commissioner Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe.

Observer-area commissioners all voted in favor of Solomon.

They are: Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford Township and part of Livonia; Kay Beard, D-Westland, who also represents Garden City, and Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, who also represents Canton Township.

Solomon, 39, represents District Seven, which encompasses the northwest corner of Detroit.

Solomon has spent the majority of his adult life in government employ. His experience includes stints as the assistant director of the Economic Development Corp. of Wayne County, an employment specialist at Wayne County Metropolitan Community Action Agency, an aide to U.S. Rep. George Crockett and a contract compliance officer for the Detroit government.

Solomon has a bachelor's degree in political science from Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga., and a master's degree in business management from Central Michigan University.

Commissioner lands 'plum' county post

Michelle Plawecki

Suburban Wayne County gained an edge last week as county commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, was named chair of the Committee on Roads, Airports and Public Services.

Plawecki, 27, also represents Redford Township and Livonia east of Middlebelt.

As chair of "CRAPS," Plawecki succeeds commissioner Ricardo Solomon, D-Detroit, who was named chairman of the whole commission Nov. 17.

Suburban commissioners think western Wayne County will benefit greatly from having a fellow suburbanite in the CRAPS chair.

The committee has oversight responsibility for the Wayne County Department of Public Services, which does all the county road work, runs Metro Airport and the operates the county park system.

Because a portion of Plawecki's district is a township, she has a strong incentive to see that county road maintenance is efficiently performed.

Doris Colling has multiple sclerosis, but she is determined not to surrender her mobility.

Colling is credited with putting together the first area exercise program for people with MS.

A former employee of the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Colling drew on business contacts at St. Mary Hospital and the Livonia Family YMCA to put her plan into action.

"I was fortunate enough to know the right people and they were kind enough to say yes," said Colling, who has suffered with MS six years.

Combining the resources of St. Mary's medicine and rehabilitation department with the Y's swimming pool, the 14-month-old program offers participants a combination of aquatic exercise and education.

MS is a chronic, slowly progressive disease of the central nervous system which can result in muscle weakness and loss of coordination and balance. The cause is unknown and there is currently no known cure. Treatment includes physical therapy and medication.

What began as a program for a dozen people with MS has grown to a weekly session for about 40, with interest growing all the time.

"We've kind of become an advocacy group," said Colling.

For years Colling was content to listen to her neurologist, who discouraged exercising.

"Heat is the enemy. Becoming overheated is dangerous for someone with MS," she said.

Finally Colling decided to take the matter into her own hands.

"I just thought I'd like someone to exercise with, for motivation," she said. "In the pool you cannot get overheated. My balance is bad and I can't move well, especially my left leg. In the water I can bring my left knee to the top of the water. Also, if you fall, you don't kill yourself.

"If I wasn't doing this, my walking would be so much worse. With MS, tendons shorten up. They need regular stretching."

Jan Estes of Redford couldn't agree more. Estes was diagnosed with MS in 1992. Her priest told her to start swimming — he'd read somewhere that it was helpful. So she joined the Livonia YMCA and became acquainted with the group accidentally just as it was forming.

"It's a wonderful group," Estes said. "We're all very supportive of one another. It's not just a bitch session. We have special guest speakers and we socialize."

She credits the swimming with keeping her mobile.

"I don't walk with a cane now," she said.

For more information on the program, call the Y at 261-2161 or St. Mary's at 591-2955. Sharon Terkins, also of Redford, looks forward to the Friday class.

The money will pay for a lift to help the wheelchair bound in and out of the pool and also will provide for water equipment and a physical therapist to work with the group for a few sessions.*

Environment is topic for public hearings

STAFF WRITER

Environmental officials from Lansing and Washington are listening to the public discuss a broad range of issues in a series of meetings in November and December.

"We're stepping out of the traditional role so we can develop long-range goals," said Denise Mogos, spokesperson for the state Department of Natural Resources' regional office in Livonia.

"The EPA (federal Environmental Protection Agency) has done this in other states. This is the first time it has been done in Michigan. We're having a series of nine meetings in eight counties.

"We had our first one in St. Clair County (Nov. 16). The loss of wildlife habitat was brought up a couple of times. Other people noticed an increase in bladder cancer. There were questions about groundwater and air quality.

"Much of the focus was on the St. Clair River — foreign ships emptying their ballast.

"We're organizing the meetings around five watersheds — the Detroit River, the Rouge River, the Raisin, the Clinton and the St. Clair River," Mogos said.

Usually DNR hearings are on a fixed topic, such as underground storage tanks or wetlands permits. In this first-of-a-kind series for Michigan, DNR and EPA say they will use public input to establish budget and enforcement priorities.

All meetings run from 7-9 p.m. Here is the full schedule for the remainder of the meetings:

- Detroit, Tuesday, Nov. 29 — Wayne County Medical Society dining room, 1010 Antietam.
- Wayne County, Wednesday, Nov. 30 — Melvindale High School auditorium 18656 Prospect.

The farmer and his wife

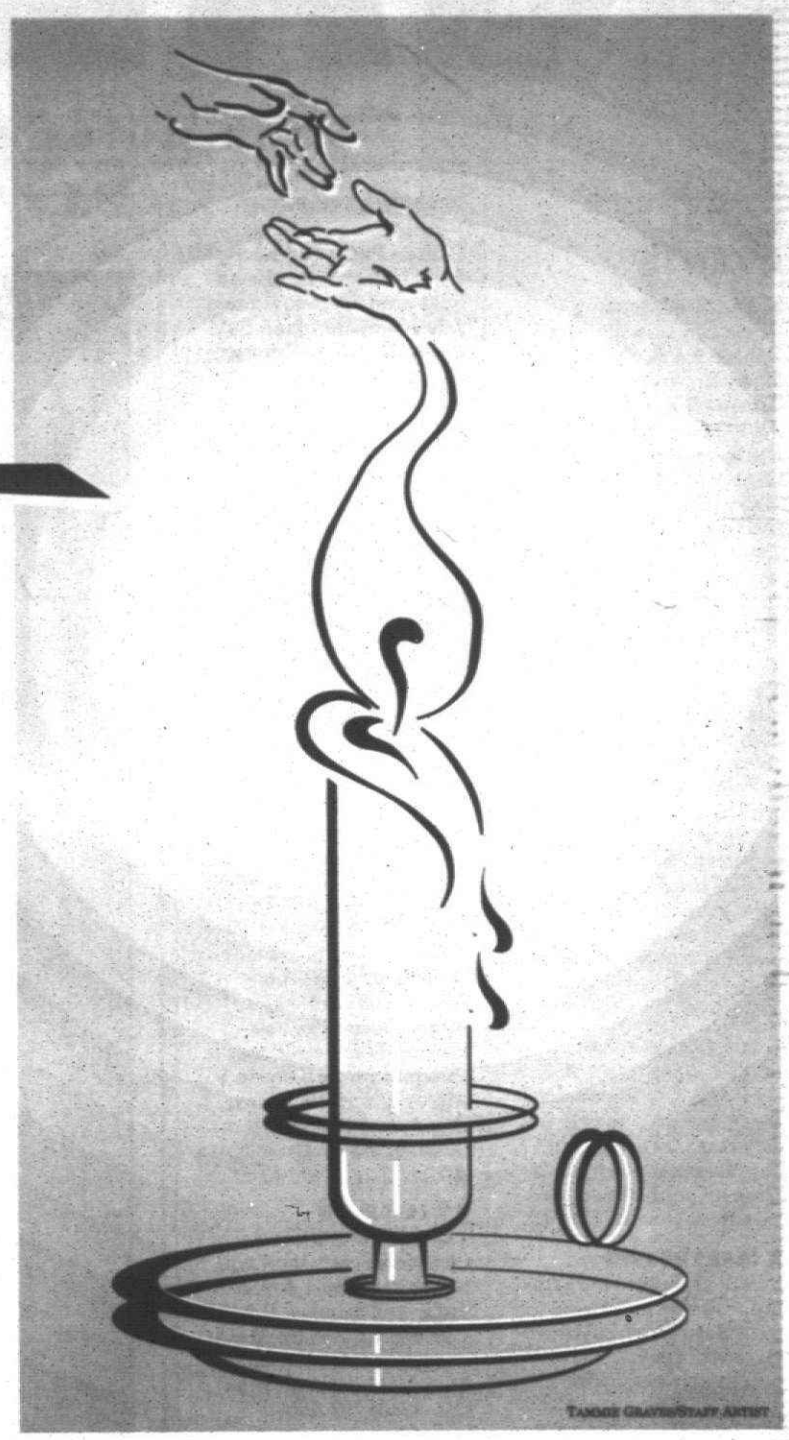

Fifty years and four days ago a young farmer from North Dakota got married. The weather was mild that day, unheard of for late November in North Dakota. But mild it was as the young man and his bride began making their way in this world. Together.

Farming the land with its rocks and hills, tending the fields of waving, golden wheat, milking the cows and gathering eggs from the chickens were the tasks filling the days of the young couple. And then the children started to come along. Their marriage was blessed with five of them, three boys and two girls. Those five children, all born on the North Dakota farm, are, of course, grown now. And they're doing all right for themselves. None of them, though, turned out to be farmers. And not a one calls North Dakota home anymore.

'62 was their last good year on the farm. After that came the funnel cloud which drowned the crops and sliced open their barn. Later on, droughts and wild prairie fires destroyed fields and hope. Then a late March blizzard unleashed its fury. The snows began in the middle of the day. The fierce wind soon drifted the roads closed. The school bus couldn't make it through at the end of the day. The farmer and his wife, who was now pregnant with their fifth, wouldn't see their other children for three days. After the storm broke, the farmer hitched two horses up to the sleigh and brought his children back home. He broke the news to them: The cows and pigs had perished in the pasture.

'House of rest' in a time of need

November is National Hospice Month, a time to reflect on the services provided to the terminally ill and their families and a time to learn more about what once meant "house of rest."

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

It may be an odd subject to consider in the waning days of November, when we gather to reflect on family. It's a time to give thanks for the love, the caring and the sharing for which "family" stands.

But those familial feelings may be the reason November has been designated National Hospice Month.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of hospice in America. Hospice - a patient- and family-focused, cost-effective way of caring for incurably ill people when curing their diseases is no longer possible - was introduced to the United States by Dame Cicely Saunders, founder of the modern-day hospice health care concept and St. Christopher's Hospice near London, England. It has grown from a single program established in New Haven, Conn., in 1974, to more than 2,000 organizations across the country.

There is much in common among hospice organizations. The care they provide is covered by Medicare, Medicaid and most private insurers. They also provide 13 months of bereavement counseling and services for families following a patient's death. Their differences reflect the philosophy that guides them.

Original hospice

The Hospice of Southeastern Michigan was the first licensed and certified hospice in Michigan. Opened in 1980, its original hospice was a 48-bed inpatient unit in Southfield.

Today, most of HOSM's care is delivered in the home, with most patients remaining under the care of their own physicians. Hospice nurses visit the patient at least once a week to check the patient's physical condition, review medications and make recommendations for ongoing care.

A social worker visits the family to see if they need help with any non-medical problems. If the person caring for the patient needs help, the hospice will assign a home health aide to assist with such tasks as bathing, dressing and feeding the patient. And home service aides are also available to

Family Room from 11A

The farmer and his wife finally conceded to Mother Nature. Their farm, their lives on the farm, had been ruined. So with their baby daughter only months old, they said goodbye to the only life and the only people they knew and packed their belongings up. They headed east in their car full of children and full of cartons of eggs. The chickens, they could always count on them.

They traveled through Minnesota, over the Mississippi River, through Wisconsin, Illinois and then Indiana. Finally, they made it to their new home, Michigan. The North Dakota farmer and his wife were in their early 40s. It was a big change for the couple who had worked the land and lived in wide open spaces under a big sky for so long. They now found themselves tooling in factories and living in a cramped two-bedroom apartment. The sky no longer seemed so big.

They slowly regained their footing after the terrible storms back home. They moved from their apartment into a house on a street filled with many houses just like their own. Their yard was now a patch of land no bigger than the vegetable garden used to be back home. Neighbors of theirs were so close you could hear their business from where you stood in the kitchen.

They moved again, but in the same city, to a house with two levels just as their next to youngest headed away to college. The baby girl was now in middle school.

Little by little, the man and his wife saw their family changing. It was growing again. Two of their sons had found brides of their own. And one daughter became a bride. It was only a matter of time before that house with two levels heard the happy noises of grandchildren coming to visit.

The man and his wife weathered many storms over the years. And after storms they couldn't weather, they simply picked up what was left and made it all right again. To do it was never easy. To do it was next to impossible at times. But they always did it.

I've got a picture of this remarkable couple on my fireplace mantel. The black-and-white photograph has yellowed a bit over time. The old silver filigree still gleams, though. And the young farmer all scrubbed and polished in his only suit holds the hand of his bride, dressed in white.

I look at that old picture every week as I dust the frame off and put it back in its spot on the mantel. And I wonder if those two impossibly young people in that yellowed photograph could ever have imagined what roads they'd travel and what storms they'd see and what the words spoken that day really meant, "For richer, for poorer, in sickness and health, till death do us part."

How could they have known? They were so young. But now they know. And they're much older. And they're together. After 50 years and four days. And on this Thanksgiving Day, I've got that to be very thankful for.

After all, they are the parents of the young man in the handsome suit who stands next to me and holds my hand in that other photograph on my fireplace mantel.

Thank you, Ma and Dad Meier. And Happy Anniversary.

If you have a question or comment for Karen Meier, call her at 953-2047, mailbox number 1883, on a touch-tone telephone, or write her at The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

do light housework and errands.

Some patients may prefer to live in a nursing facility because they can't get the care they need at home, so HOSM contracts with hospitals and nursing homes — such as Westland Convalescent Center in Westland, Annapolis Hospital in Wayne and Garden City Hospital in Garden City — for such services.

HOSM has established several new programs, including a residential unit in Detroit that provides a safe haven for people who have no home or who cannot get the care they need at home.

Its Children's Hospices Services has a team of pediatric nurses and social workers, specializing in the care of terminally ill children and their families. It also helps the children of adult patients and others who have experienced a loss.

Islamic Hospice Services is one of HOSM's several culturally specific efforts. The hospice staff has been trained to understand and respect Islamic laws and traditions. It also has a Fundamental Christian Ministry and Jewish Hospice Services.

For more information about the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan, call its Taylor office at (313) 291-9700.

'House of rest'

Hospice comes from the Latin root hospes, meaning host. In medieval times, a hospice was a house of rest and entertainment for pilgrims, travelers, the destitute and the sick.

Joining the modern-day movement to provide a "house of rest" was Community Hospice Services, established in July 1981 as Hospice Support Services Inc., an all-volunteer hospice serving western Wayne County.

The grass-roots organization began with a handful of dedicated health care professionals whose only purpose was to serve. That philosophy has remained as the cornerstone of the hospice's mission.

CHS changed its name to Hospice Services of Western Wayne County Inc. in 1986 to reflect the full services provided by the organization and to indicate the communities served. It formed an affiliation with Amerigard Corporation (Garden City Hospital) to continue a hospice service in the area.

This August, the organization struck out on its own, becoming Community Hospice Services.

The CHS philosophy is, and has always been, to provide compassionate care to people living with a terminal illness and their families, with no exception, but to serve.

Under the direction of an interdisciplinary team, including professionals and volunteers, a full range of physical, emotional and spiritual care is provided 24 hours a day in the patient's home or contracted inpatient facilities.

CHS is well known for its ongoing commitment to bereavement counseling, offering specialized groups and memorial services. A unique and comprehensive children's bereavement program began in 1993, culminated with Camp Phoenix, a weekend camp for bereaved children.

Community Hospice Services maintains offices at 32932 Warren Road, Suite 100, Westland, and at 127 S. Main St., Plymouth. For more information, call (313) 522-4244 or (313) 459-0548.

Not for profit

In 1984 Arbor Hospice/Personalized Nursing Service began serving southeastern Michigan. A not-for-profit, community-based organization, the needs of the patients and families come first at Arbor Hospice. It strives to create an environment where patients can achieve the highest quality of life possible within the limitations of their illness.

The mission of Arbor Hospice is to give comfort, assurance and care to families and patients and to educate and nurture others in this care. It works with an interdisciplinary team. The patient and the primary caregiver, usually a family member, are consulted at every step of the way about the patient's care.

Arbor Hopsice views the patient and the family as a unit, and Arbor Hospice is there to support the family and the patient. It is the goal of Arbor Hospice that no one should walk the last mile alone.

Its hospice team is lead by the nurse, available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to provide help for the patient and the family. The home care aide is the eyes and hands of the hospice team at the bedside, providing needed personal care to the patient.

The social worker coordinates any special needs that the family may require and is concerned with the emotional health of all family members. The patient care volunteer is there to provide support to the patent and family.

Arbor Hospice provides adult bereavement groups as well as children's groups. The adult groups are open to all individuals who have experienced the death of a loved one. The loved need not have been a patient of Arbor Hospice. It also has an extensive children's services program. The Children's Support Network includes bereavement support groups for children who have lost someone they love.

Arbor Hospice maintains offices at 3810 Packard Road, Suite 200, Ann Arbor, and at 7445 Allen Road, Suite 230, Allen Park. For information, call (313) 677-0500 or (313) 383-8800.

The 'new kid'

The "new kid on the block" is Angela Hospice Home Care, established by the Felician Sisters in 1985. Ready to celebrate its 10th anniversary, the organization is set to become one of the most comprehensive hospice programs in the state.

Beginning in 1995, Angela Hospice will provide hospice home care, residential inpatient care, patient day care, home health care and pediatric care.

At the heart of the Angela Hospice philosophy is caring for people with limited life expectancy in the warmth and comfort of their home. The home care team, consisting of chaplains, dietitians, doctors, nurses, social workers, therapists (occupational, physical and speech) and other specialists as required, is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

For those people unable to receive home care, the Angela Hospice Home Care Center provides a home away from home for patients who have no one to care for them or nowhere to go. The center is the first free standing inpatient hospice facility in the state, providing residents with room and board and direct care in a home-like setting.

The first hospice in the state to offer patient day care in 1989, Angela Hospice will offer an expanded version of its original program at its care center. The day care program will allow primary caregivers to bring their loved ones for the day so that they can continue to work, run errands or just receive respite.

During its 9½ years of service, Angela Hospice has cared for patients as young as 6 months of age up to age 107, and members have realized that children have a very different need than adults. Beginning this fall, it began providing services to children who face a life-threatening illness through its new pediatric program, "My Nest Is Best."

The name of the program reflects the belief that children feel better in the comfort and familiarity of their own home and is named for P.D. Eastman's children's book, "The Best Nest." It supports the physical, emotional and spiritual needs of the children as well as their families.

LORENE GREEN

Dear Ms. Green,

After reading your column for the first time yesterday, I thought I'd write.

Because you ask readers to state age and handedness, I am 39 and right handed.

I would appreciate reading your analysis of my handwriting.

M.M. Northville

I visualize a warm, responsive, kind, gentle and sympathetic woman in today's handwriting.

Good line spacing, such as this, has its roots in a sense of order. She can organize her daily routine very capably. I can visualize her planning ahead and exercising self-direction.

This is a conscientious, dependable and thorough worker. She also has the ability to maintain drive and proceed toward her goal. She is not easily deflected by inner or outer influences. When she accepts a duty she expects full involvement and is not afraid of hard work. Neither does she rebel against routine or repetitive details.

Hers is a good mind, and she is a logical thinker. She does not often rely on intuition for her answers. She tends to be a little on the serious side.

Our writer is approval-seeking in all things. This includes approval from both peers and superiors.

Seemingly, she is willing to accept responsibility that will enhance her self-esteem. An underlayer of anxiety concerning self-worth may be present. Growing up, it appears she didn't feel she was first in the family constellation.

She was raised in a traditional home where she heard lots of "shoulds" and "should nots." Continued adherence to this early training and moral discipline is seen in her handwriting. Her conscience is alive and well, and she probably experiences guilt feelings if she does not live by her early training. Rudeness in others is most distasteful to her.

She has a good memory that furnishes the mind's eye with information and eliminates the need to search it out again. This is both a convenient and useful tool in saving time and effort.

A little bit of self-consciousness can be observed, and it suggests her concern about being judged by others. She has a need to look right and be right.

By nature, she is a little cautious. I don't see her as a big risk taker. Some apprehension about the future or the challenges it holds seems to be present.

She is not a pushover. Some resentment over past experiences has her on guard to avoid being vulnerable again.

There is loyalty in her writing. She can be counted on to remain faithful to her friends. I suspect she has some she has kept in contact with since school days. She believes with H.G. Bohn who said, "Friendships multiply joys and divide griefs."

This is a neat, clean and tidy person, both in her person and in her home. She probably has a place for everything and is happiest when everything is in its proper place.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. And objective feedback is welcome.

Thankful
Canton has many blessings

When Canton residents sit down for their Thanksgiving dinner, they will have plenty of things for which to be thankful.

Here are a few:

■ Summit on the Park, a $13 million, 83,000-square-foot recreation building under construction in Heritage Park southwest of the Canton municipal offices. The building will house meeting rooms, gyms, fitness equipment, a walk-jog track, racquetball courts and swimming pools. The community center will be a facility that will benefit all Canton residents, providing recreation in the community. Residents also should be thankful that it is being paid for mostly with money from state and federal grants, along with money generated from fees from landfills.

■ A new tone at the Plymouth-Canton schools. Superintendent Charles Little has only been on the job since July, but he has been able to send a message to the community that he is more concerned about the education of children than he is in propping up the old educational bureaucracy. He was able to scrap the pay-to-play system by not replacing an assistant athletic director at a cost of nearly $70,000. Little took that money and put it into the programs. It's an act for which we should all be thankful.

■ Beautification projects. Four such Canton projects were awarded honors in October during a Keep Michigan Beautiful awards ceremony. The award recipients were nominated by the Canton Beautification Committee, and included one to Canton Township for its streetscape project on Sheldon Road and a second to the Northwest Homeowners Association for its work on natural beauty road designation.

■ Tax rates. Not only did Proposal A lower property taxes, but officials in Canton Township have kept the property taxes for municipal services from going up significantly.

■ The construction of Pheasant Run Golf Course has attracted new residents to Canton who want to live near a golf course. The course is being constructed by Canton Township.

■ The Ford Road Downtown Development Authority project is sprucing up the township's major traffic route. Brick walls, new sidewalks and landscaping are softening the look of Canton's major business artery. When the Pilgrims first sat down to give thanks that their community had survived, they started a tradition of giving thanks for the benefits of community life.

Take time to share this season

Thanksgiving ushers in the holiday season, and it's a time to celebrate, enjoy and share.

It's a very human need to let the best in us surface and extend a kindness to someone else. Today, the Observer pauses to pay tribute to a few of those who show others what sharing and caring are all about this season.

Earlier this year, Dan Bergstrom, president of Bergstrom's Inc. of Livonia, came to this newspaper because the family business wanted to give something back to the communities which had helped to make it so successful over the past 37 years.

So The Good Neighbor Team - a program designed to keep the heat on for needy people in western Wayne County, Farmington and Farmington Hills - was born.

Bergstrom enlisted our support to publicize the program. The business worked in conjunction with the Salvation Army which offered its services as a clearinghouse for requests.

The requests poured in from area families.

Bergstrom's is located on Schoolcraft Road between Middlebelt and Merriman. It has 25 trucks to service customers' plumbing, heating and cooling needs.

It's a good feeling to have people like Dan Bergstrom and his family business who are are saying thank you in a responsible and caring manner.

Similar in spirit to Bergstrom's efforts is Detroit Edison's commitment to The Heat and Warmth (THAW) Fund.

Electric bills can sometimes be a big problem when times are tight, and Edison realizes that. The utility first encourages customers with payment problems to call (800) 477-4747 to arrange for special programs. When other options are exhausted, though, there is THAW.

The fund gives one-time assistance for energy payments starting Jan. 9, using donated money. And Detroit Edison has pledged to match gifts to THAW. In fact, between THAW donations and bill credits to homeless shelters, the utility is prepared to donate up to $1 million. That could make this winter a whole lot warmer. THAW donations may be sent to The Heat and Warmth Fund, P.O. Box 1000, Plymouth 48170.

Yet another example of the private sector helping charities this holiday season is the annual WNIC/American Red Cross Blood Drive, set for 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Nov. 25 at Wonderland Mall, Plymouth and Middlebelt roads in Livonia.

We all know the day after Thanksgiving is a big shopping day, but this drive asks that shoppers take a little time out to give a special holiday gift. That particular day is chosen because of increased needs for donated blood, partly because of a drop-off in other blood drives during the holidays.

The Red Cross gets help from WNIC in the form of time donations and gifts for donors. Wonderland Mall plays host, and also gives away a $100 gift certificate to drive attendees. And SelectCare helps out, too, giving T-shirts to the first 275 donors.

Enjoy the holidays, but please remember to take some time - even if just for a moment - and extend a kindness to someone else.

Candidate thanks

Please let me take this opportunity to thank the many people involved in my campaign to become Michigan's 8th District state senator.

From the full-time campaign staff (who weren't paid anywhere near what they deserved) to the hundreds of dedicated volunteers, to loyal friends, to my own family who put up with it all and more, I cannot say enough about what they all have meant to me and how important every one of them was in getting me through the campaign both victorious and sane.

As Canton Township Clerk, I have run many elections myself, and I know what a grueling time they are for so many people. I am very grateful to the dedicated Westland election workers who worked all night and into the next morning counting absentee ballots - by hand - after their equipment failed them. Thank God we didn't have that problem in Canton this year, but we've been there, done that, and we empathize. I thank them for their diligence.

Finally, I want to thank all of the voters - even those who did not choose to support me - for their patience and courtesy in the face of all the door-to-door visits, campaign literature, and phone calls. I'm sure they are ready for a break from elections. So am I. But I look forward to serving every resident of the 8th District, and I hope that each of my new constituents - whether they are my supporters or not - will feel they have a senator who listens and does what he says he will do, and whose door is always open to them.

After all, they have spent these last few months opening their doors to me. It's the least I can do. Thank you all so much.

Loren N. Bennett, Canton

What citizens need

On NBC's "Dateline" they told the story of a town, Northfield, Wis., where the police were out of control, causing problems rather than controlling problems among townspeople.

Among other things, they were beating and torturing young men who had done nothing wrong. Their town government was set up on the same principles as that of Farmington Hills, with one exception. They have a town ombudsman who is a former police officer.

The problem had been going on for some time and the people were never able to get it corrected by going to the town manager, the chief of police or the City Council. Finally, one of the young men who had been tortured brought his story to the ombudsman, who was outraged. Others then came forward with their stories.

The ombudsman had to go to the state police and U.S. attorney to finally get action, which resulted in three police officers and the chief of police being suspended from their jobs.

In Northfield, the City Council hires the town manager and the town manager runs the Police Department.

In Farmington Hills, the arrangement is much the same, except the entire city government, police, court, everything is pretty much one and the same body. We have a closed bureaucracy which answers to no one except themselves.

Go against them, whether you are right or wrong, and chances are you will lose. They can do almost anything they want whether you like it or not.

Would it not be a good thing for Farmington Hills citizens to have an independent ombudsman or grand juror to go to bat for them?

Kenneth Kemp, Farmington Hills

Waste is at root

Our society is beset with so many problems one hardly knows which one to address."Country-club type prisons," "pork-barrel tactics in Congress," and overall government waste.

However, government waste is really the root of most of the problems.

As a taxpayer I am up in arms at the way Congress pours our money down a rat hole.

It's hard to believe that a country with such a large gross national product is operating in the red.

How can our representatives, in good faith, spend our money wantonly and plunge us deeper in debt?

The old saying "the squeaking wheel gets the grease" is proven daily in Washington.

The lobbyists supply the grease to swing everything in their favor, mostly programs which are not important to you or to the country in general.

The national debt would not exist if government waste was cut to the bone.

I recently read that the Department of Agriculture has three offices in, of all places, Las Vegas. How much farming is done around Las Vegas, or all of Nevada for that matter?

This is just one small example of the thousands of ways our dollars are misused.

It's high time that we start to squeak, louder and louder, and our big squeak must be made at the voting booth, and perhaps we can drown out some of the lobbyists.

POINTS OF VIEW

Story of the season still rings with relevance

BY STEVEN R. ROTTGERS
GUEST COLUMNIST

GUEST COLUMN

It's November and he's coming! There is no secret about his arrival. The signs have been evident for a long time now. You can hear it in places crowded with people, and you can sense by the smells and visual symbols that it is the right time for him to set things right in people's hearts one more time. Icons of his face and stature are placed in houses, yards, and other important scenarios for veneration.

The trees, wreaths, lights, songs and colors of the season herald his arrival. He's already here! I saw him at the parade in New York. Santa has arrived once again!

An adult of middle age interrupts, "It's more of an adult thing, not so childish. The signs are more subtle and speak of the ultimate return of the king himself. You see, I think that he never did die and will come back when the time is right, bigger than ever. Elvis is alive and well! He's been seen by some and is going to make a comeback!"

NOT!

There are so many hopes, needs and expectations to be met by the promised arrival of a special king, a savior. Each individual or collective group of concerned persons has a specific idea of what that person would be like. What would they do? What would be their program agenda? Will that savior meet my needs? Will they answer my questions — the way I want them answered?

As we start our preparations to celebrate the original birth of the king of kings this Advent, we need to remember how these same hopes, needs and expectations were in place to greet the messiah. Imagine and explore the wide range of awe, wonder, excitement, disappointment, confusion, and even hatred that focused on this "babe" in a manger, a carpenter's son, a servant king and his radical, yet simple message of love.

I bet the same scenario would greet our lord today if he made the promised "Second Coming Tour" this year. It's hard to imagine how any human being could be able to stand up under such an expectant burden. Yet, who better than the one who bore all the sins of the world on a cross? It needs someone who could turn an instrument of shame, suffering, and execution into a radiant throne and symbol of redemptive hope. It would take someone special who could break open a "new life" with the possibilities of making real the substance of things hoped for by all humankind. Truly, it would necessitate a king of kings, a lord of lords to pull it off.

Such a need today brings us to a fevered pitch of anxiousness for the savior's answers to our questions, healing to our pain, acceptance to our isolation, forgiveness to our guilt, and gracious love to our troubled souls.

It would be so much better, and we could breathe so much easier, if our lord would just come back and set all things right! This holy spirit/prayer/discernment process is hard, long, and doesn't bring clear-cut answers in all cases that are presented. It's again like wanting a great ruling savior king and getting someone who wanders around the countryside, with a band of reprobates, and talks in stories that counter local custom and the authorities.

There are many images conjured up in the minds of people all over the metro area and in the world today as this Advent/Christmas season comes into full swing. Like pharisaic Scrooges, we can yell and curse it as the parade of lights, evergreens, packages, carols, treats, greeting cards and credit cards that precede Santa in his sleigh. We can scream, "That doesn't fit our image of what Advent is about! They don't meet our spiritual needs!"

I believe that the simple gift of Love that pierced through the confusion at the time of Jesus' birth is still the message to pierce our confused lives, symbols, and images of Advent/Christmas today and in years to come. He's here now, today, if we will take the time to look out from behind our own agendas and expectations and look for the holiday in all things around us.

It's a time of being expectant servants who can help others see the "reason for the season" in stories about St. Nicholas, or how Martin Luther started the practice of lights on an evergreen tree. We can unfold the mysteries of the season's symbols like messenger angels, shepherds, radiant stars, gold, frankincense, myrrh and places named Bethlehem, Jerusalem and Nazareth. We can share expectant stories around an Advent wreath or Jesse Tree about others who looked for a Savior in their times and are recorded in the Old Testament. We can refresh clouded memories about "the one crying in the wilderness," a carpenter named Joseph and his young bride, Mary, who gave birth to a child and named him Jesus.

Dear Lord, help us to sort through the many confusing issues in our lives and to seek you in humble simplicity as we await your coming. O Come, O Come, Emmanuel! For we know that if we look too hard, and in the wrong places, for the wrong reasons, we will miss you as others have done in times past. If we don't allow you to be the center of our hope, as another king put it into words, it will be "a blue, blue Christmas without you!" Thank you, for coming to us in our time of need. I look forward to greeting you in all the faces I meet each day.

Yesterday's thinkers offer best response to today's critics

The Detroit papers got bamboozled. They failed to spot the skullduggery of the "antis" during the Department of Education hearings on the state's proposed new core curriculum standards.

The critics, passing themselves off as mere parents with no religious axes to grind, raised a stink about teaching of "politically correct values" vs. their version of "academics."

In August, the Michigan Family Forum, part of the Religious Right, threatened publicly to "major input" against "multi-culturalism" and "constructivism," according to MFF spokesman Randall Hekman. No one should have been surprised at the shrill nonsense that was spewed at the hearings.

One critic professed there was "nothing in the law" authorizing the elite to "determine social attitudes" of kids.

Wrong, of course. From the very beginning, Isaac Crary, first superintendent of public instruction, envisioned a state-decreed, state-inspected system of locally run districts.

Crary's successor was Franklin Sawyer Jr. In his 1841 report to the Legislature, Sawyer deplored some parents' attitudes toward teachers — "disdain and contempt . . . The parents regard the teacher as a mere servant, hired to do a job that nobody else can do, and fit for nothing else . . . "

His words could describe the Religious Right today.

Sawyer saw the state school inspectors as a major ingredient in assuring educational quality: "Whenever these official visitations have been frequent, and the examination of both pupil and teacher thorough, the schools have sustained a better character . . . "

The school inspector was to judge the teacher's moral character: "The question is not whether he (the teacher) is a Protestant or a Catholic, a Trinitarian or Unitarian, a Perfectionist, Latter-day Saint, Mormon or Transcendentalist; but whether he has an unblemished moral character."

TIM RICHARD

Sawyer responded beautifully to the religious bigots who would "take back" public schools for their sect:

"Sectarianism never will infuse its poisonous virus into the great veins of our educational system . . . A school without moral instruction lacks the essentials of a right education, as evidently as the school opened to sectarianism exceeds them."

Sawyer summed up his approach to bad teaching in words that live today:

"In too many of the schools, the character of instruction is behind the age. In them, the mind is treated precisely as if memory were its only attribute . . . Education's true office is to discipline the mind; to call into action and unremitted exercise the affections of the heart; and to develop and invigorate the physical powers . . . If you educate the mind and body but neglect the heart, you may raise up a giant frame and giant intellect, but you do it at the peril of all that's most holy and attractive in spiritualized human nature . . . "

Teaching values has a long and honorable place in Michigan public schools.

There are many pages in the new core curriculum standards, but two paragraphs summarize the thrust:

"Constructivist" education "emphasizes concepts. Students learn how to use and apply important ideas . . . exploration of student questions . . . authentic tasks calling for problem solving and critical thinking . . . expressing divergent points of view . . . dialogue in a learning community where students and teachers work cooperatively."

On the way out is the "traditional" approach — "relying heavily on textbooks, workbooks and drill sheets . . . a hierarchical and authoritarian structure in which students work alone . . . students memorize basic facts . . . there is one correct answer to every question."

The new curriculum standards, developed in 1994 under the leadership of Robert E. Schiller, are faithful to Michigan's Constitution, traditions and the standards set nearly 160 years ago by Isaac Crary and Franklin Sawyer Jr. The critics, with their fanatical exaltation of parental authority, just don't know Michigan very well.

There's a middle ground on schools

PHILIP POWER

When we passed Proposal A, we switched the main source of school finance from local (66 percent in 1993) to state (possibly as much as 79 percent this year). Whether we knew it or not, we also set in motion a process that will replace local control with state-mandated educational standards and state-defined ways to measure results.

By law, all schools will be required by 1997 to implement an academic core curriculum as promulgated in standards set by the State Board of Education. The state board is conducting hearings around the state to invite public comment on its proposed draft.

That's why you are hearing so much sound and fury during last week's public hearings about the dangers (advantages) of "outcome-based education," "the Michigan Model" and "dumbing down." To assist you in sorting through the welter of claims and counter-claims, below is a short guide to the three main points of view in this debate.

On the right are conservatives who see the whole thing as a dangerous plot by bureaucrats in the state Department of Education to brainwash our kids.

Beginning with wholly reasonable concerns about academic rigor and the wholesale elimination of values and patriotism from our schools, some would turn back the clock by advocating a curriculum stressing rote memorization of the Three R's and McGuffey's Readers, with a dose of creationism thrown in.

The big problem with this point of view is that kids leaving such schools would lack almost entirely the kind of critical thinking capability that will enable them to compete in a global economy. The business leaders who advocated outcome-based education in the first place should come out of the closet and say forthrightly that they want to hire kids who can think competently for themselves.

On the left are those who would have you believe that schools are appropriate instruments to transmit various kinds of social advocacy, from multiculturalism to ethical relativism and from various versions of political correctness to multilingualism.

Again, the big problem with this point of view is that kids leaving schools would lack almost entirely the values, character and socialization as Americans with their fellow workers to enable them to compete in a global economy. Business leaders who employ such kids have an obligation to speak up now.

There is a broad center position in this debate, to which I happen to belong. It holds roughly:

■ Our schools need much improvement. The best way to get it is to define what kids are supposed to learn to enable them to compete, and then measure whether they in fact learn it. Therefore, a new, rigorous curriculum and system of measuring outcomes are good and deserve support.

■ Our schools have become ethical wastelands. The constitutional prohibition against state-imposed religion does not mean that the schools should be purged of ethics, religious concerns or moments of silence for prayer. Therefore, let's try to find ways (without inviting the lawyers to run the schools) to allow teachers to expose children to values and, if they wish, prayer.

■ Our schools should encourage students to become Americans. The United States is unique, a nation almost entirely made up — and still being run by — immigrants. Over the past two centuries, these immigrants have helped create a distinctly American ethos, based in large part on a common language — English — and a common culture — Western and Christian. Therefore, let's focus on transmitting to our children these elements of American culture as the basis of our social fabric and as the jumping-off point for an appreciation of what other cultures offer.

The stakes in this debate are large. Remember Alexander Pope (a dead English male), who wrote:

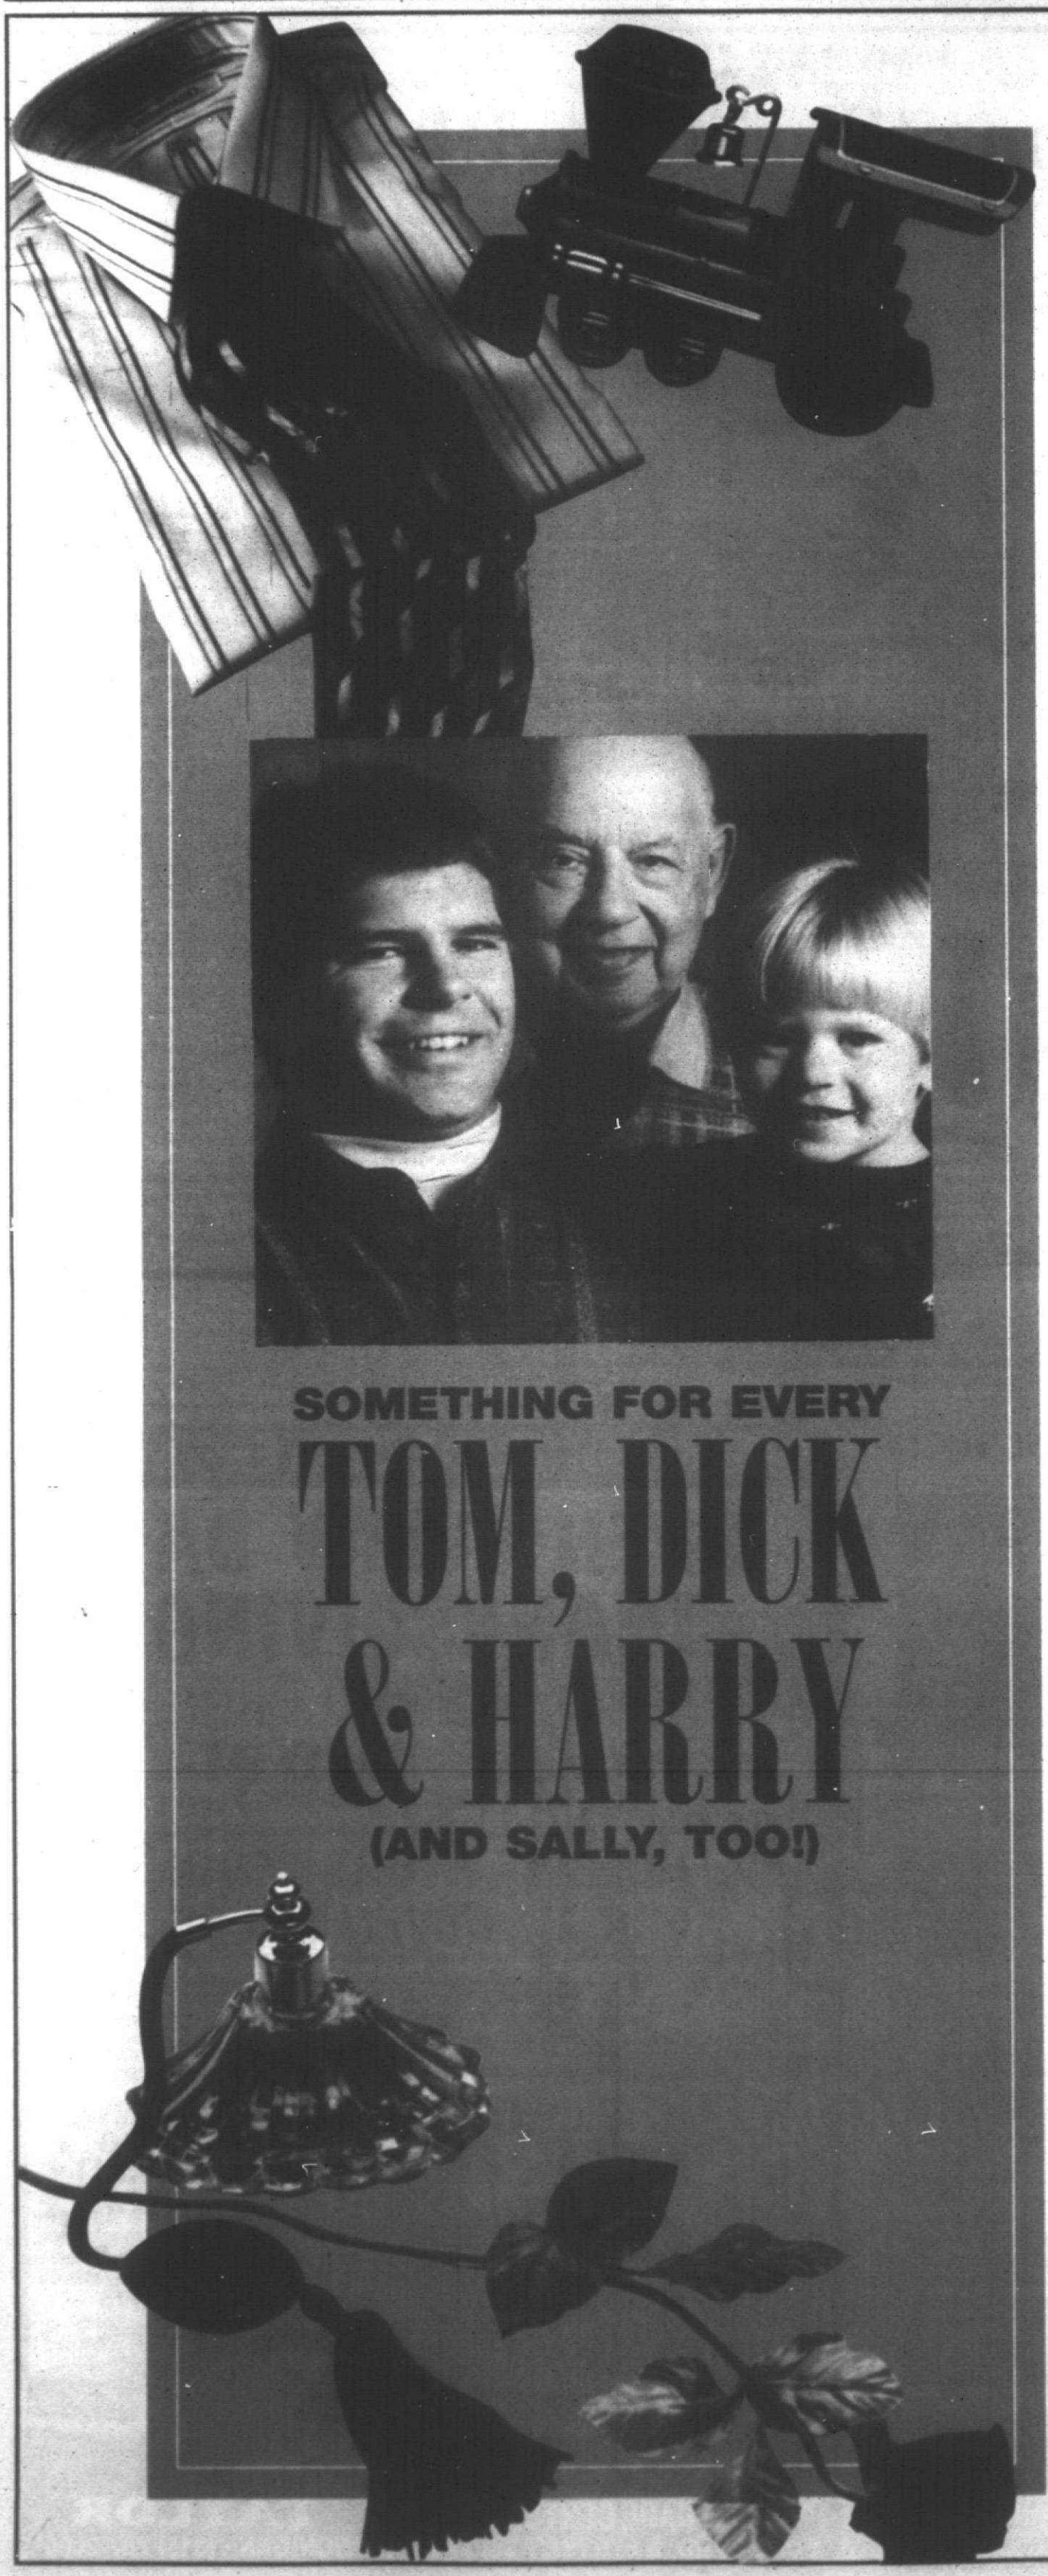

"'Tis education forms the common mind; Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined."

Happy Thanksgiving, and thank-you for all the kind letters about our new section — Let's Go! We've been very pleased with the response, and are looking forward to this winter.

We are truly blessed with an abundance of talent in our communities. While it's nice to go downtown once-in-awhile to a show at the Fisher Theatre, Fox or Masonic Temple, we can be thankful for the Farmington Players, Livonia-Redford Theatre Guild, and Plymouth Theatre Guild who entertain and enlighten us. Be sure to look inside Let's Go! for Bob Weibel's review of Plymouth Theatre Guild's current production, "The Dining Room."

Music lovers can be thankful for our fine community orchestras including the Farmington Area Philharmonic, Livonia Symphony and Plymouth Symphony who are busy rehearsing for their upcoming holiday concerts. Be sure to pick up Let's Go on Dec. 1 for information about local holiday concerts.

- I've gotten a few calls from readers who wanted to know if we were still collecting vacation snapshots for our Travel page. The answer is yes! We're eagerly awaiting your winter vacation photos of you and your family holding your hometown Observer in scenic snowy and sunny places.

Ballet is a family tradition

BY SANDRA DALKA-PRYSBY
SPECIAL WRITER

For many families attending a performance of the "Nutcracker" is a holiday tradition.

For some families, the tradition is to go to every performance of this ballet masterpiece.

There's a reason for their dedication. They're among the dancers, young and old, short and tall, who perform in one of the many presentations offered throughout the area this time of year.

Mary Link of Farmington Hills has danced in the "Nutcracker" continuously for the past six years. However, this West Bloomfield teacher hasn't kept up with her 12-year-old daughter, Marya. The younger dancer is preparing to perform for the 10th year in the holiday classic.

The Links perform in the "Nutcracker" with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at the Fox Theatre, Dec. 9-23. They are students at the Lascu School of Ballet in West Bloomfield.

"I started out as a 'doll' when I was three," said the younger Link. "Over the years as I got older and have become a better dancer, I've been placed in better roles."

This year she will perform in at least six different roles, including a "child" at the party in the first act.

"While my daughter performs as a child, I am cast as a parent," said the Link family's other ballerina. "There have been times in this ballet when Marya and I have been cast as mother and daughter. This is extremely special."

Talented cast at your service in 'Dining Room'

BOB WEIBEL

Playwright A. R. Gurney's favorite subject is the family. In "The Dining Room," he provides the sort of challenge performers love — the chance to create several characters — as they explore the social aspects of this very special room and what it means to the family.

The Plymouth Theatre Guild meets the challenge and then some, in its stylish production of "The Dining Room."

An elegant Greek Revival setting provides the perfect backdrop, as if to say the dining room is the temple of the home. When combined with tasteful furnishings, you have the sort of room performers can step into and create a variety of interesting characters.

And do they ever. The Guild's talented cast of six creates 57 characters in a sequence of scenes that overlap and dissolve. There is a "cinematic" quality to it, and director Sally Dubats does a superb job of typing a term paper in the dining room.

The performers are James Dereniak, Jason Corney, Ken Pletzer, Deborah Kandler, Bobbie Judd and Ariana Schrader. They are called upon to do everything from farce to drama. Except for a time or two when they went a bit over the top, all do a fine job.

James Dereniak is especially good in roles ranging from a child at play to a stuffed-shirt father and doddering grandfather.

The play shows how, in an earlier time, (before the modern cyberspace community) "The Dining Room" was where really important family events occurred — like eating dinner together.

If the family happens to be stuffy and too formal, well, that's perfect for comedy. "The Dining Room" has great fun with our peccadillos and non-conformist behavior — such as typing a term paper in the dining room.

REVIEW

There also are more serious moments, like the failing memories of the elderly at holiday dinners and making plans for funerals.

Of course, just plain silly events also occur in dining rooms. The children's birthday party is a scream, especially the wild and crazy hats. In fact, all of the costumes are excellent, and kudos to the small army that must have been employed to make changes.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

This proud mother enjoys sharing her interest in dance with her daughter, a seventh grader at Power Middle School.

"I danced as a child and up until I was pregnant with Marya. Now we dance together."

Marya said that she, too, enjoys dancing with her mother.

"We have to spend a lot of time in rehearsal and at the performances. I like it better because my mom's here with me," she said.

While the two Link dancers usually enjoy the holiday season, there are some drawbacks to the exhausting performance schedule.

"I have to make sure that I get my holiday shopping done in the summer," said Mary Link. "That's the only time I can do it because Marya starts rehearsal in September, and I begin in October."

The Links aren't the only family members performing in the Fox production.

Erin Eagen, in her third "Nutcracker" at age 13, is joined for the second year by her four-year-old sister, Shannon.

Jeanne Eagen, their mother, Shannon watched her older sister with interest, then declared that she wanted to do it, too.

"And she loves it," Jeanne Eagen said.

Erin, an eighth grader at Berkshire Middle School in Birmingham, said she loves to watch her little sister dance.

"Shannon looks so happy when she performs her role as a doll," Erin said. "I also feel happy because I can help her with her dance steps and her makeup."

While Erin helps her little sister, most of her time is needed preparing for her many roles in the "Nutcracker." She's a child, a soldier, a page and a Chinese dancer.

"I just love doing this," Erin said. "I get to work with many of the same people year after year, and dancing with them is like getting together for a family reunion."

Jeanne Eagen said she is happy that she has two of her three children in one place.

"Although it's hard keeping up with the hectic schedule, it's good that the girls and I can be together."

She added that the "Nutcracker" commitment also allows her husband, Mike, to spend some time with the third Eagen child, 11-year-old Ryan.

"And of course, dad and brother spend a lot of time in the "Nutcracker" audience," Jeanne Eagen said.

None of the patrons served by TIPS-trained servers became intoxicated.

"It's a very lovely production and it gives kids an introduction to classical music," Borg said.

The Greenfield Village Company promises an exciting show as Hansel and Gretel encounter the fairy-tale characters and meet up with the wicked witch. There's the Gingerbread House with real candy and cake decorations and songs from the opera by Englebert Humperdinck.

The intrigue and illusion of Mardi Gras and Halloween will hover over the stage at Music Hall Center, 350 Madison at Bruch, Detroit 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3 when Youtheatre presents "The Mask Man."

Tickets are $7. Call (313) 963-2366.

Generations' launches a whole new Star Trek series

JOHN MONAGHAN

Kirk dies. By now that's no secret. How the filmmakers are going to resurrect him is a lingering question that will keep you guessing through the first half of "Star Trek Generations," the entertaining seventh entry in the ever popular science fiction series.

Instead of trotting out the original Enterprise crew, the movie focuses on the "Next Generation" cast. Though technically they lived a century apart, James T. Kirk and Jean Luc Picard, Starfleet's two most famous captains, serve together and save the universe one more time.

And if nothing else, it's fun to see such different actors strut their stuff. William Shatner, who originally helmed three seasons of the NBC series in the late 1960s, still chews up the scenery while the Shakespearean-trained Patrick Stewart speaks volumes through his wise and steely eyes.

Scotty and Checkhov (Patrick Doohan and Walter Koenig) also appear in the opening scenes, where the old gang accompanies a new Enterprise on its maiden voyage. The captain (yes, a third one) looks to Kirk for advice when an undulating ribbon of electricity threatens to destroy the ship.

The scene, perhaps the best in the movie, works because you can see Kirk half-rise from his chair as the green captain makes wrong decisions. You know Kirk just itches to retake command.

From here, however, "Star Trek Generations" isn't much better than an above-average episode of the television series. The conflict this time: a mad scientist (a surprisingly limp Malcolm McDowell)who casually blows up stars in an attempt to get closer to intergalactic Shangri-La.

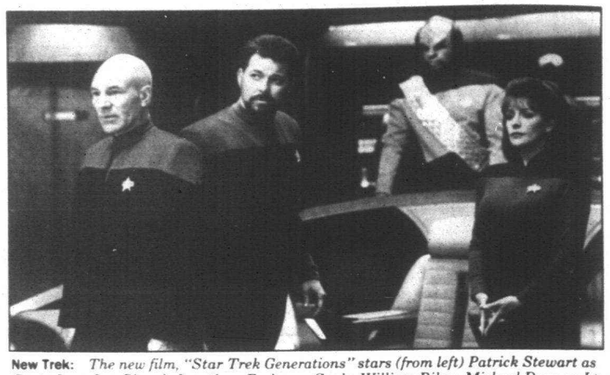

Klingons also appear; this time as a pair of smelly female commanders who think they've found a weak link in the Enterprise. Surprisingly, the primitive warrior race has more for its women to do than on the Enterprise, where Counselor Troy (Marina Sirtis) and others only offer their shoulders for crewmen to cry on.

In an entertaining twist, android crewmate Data (Brent Spiner) installs a computer chip in his brain that will give him human emotions. Now he laughs hysterically at jokes he heard years before but only now understands.

Data also discovers the meaning of fear when he's under fire and loses best friend Jordy (Ben Vereen) in the process.

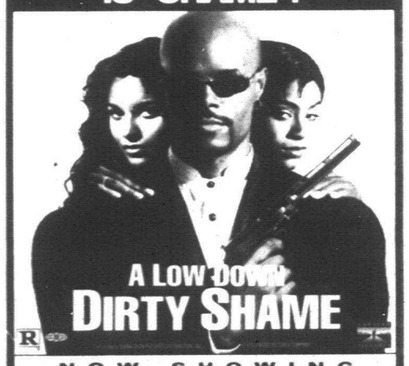

The rest of the crew, including Jonathan Frakes as Number 1, don't seem too out of the place on the big screen. And that's just dandy with Paramount, who pulled the series from television after several successful seasons in the hopes of making more money at the movies.

Campy and clever, "Star Trek Generations" officially passes on the baton to the "Next Generation." Yet you still wonder, after Spock's unlikely comeback in "Trek III," can another rebirth of Captain James T. Kirk be too far behind?

'Little Jo' takes viewers on an interesting journey

LeANNE ROGERS

The old frontier days in the American West would seem to have been a pretty hard place for anyone and particularly hazardous for unescorted females. That's a lesson learned quickly by a young woman, thrown out by her wealthy family for having an illegitimate child, who makes her way West.

Pretty Josephine Monaghan, faced with limited job opportunities and abusive treatment, decides to take matters into her own hands. She chops off her long hair, cuts herself to scar her face and presents herself to the world in men's clothing. The 1994 film "The Ballad of Little Jo" follows the former Josephine, played by Suzy Amis, as she navigates her life posing as a man.

After a time working as a miner, Jo is offered a job at a stable in the mining camp and a room in the home of the local assayer, played by Ian McKellen. That ends after a time when the man proves to be a violent drunk and misogynist. Many of the men in the small town are ignorant, violent and often drunk.

Jo finds some peace, taking a new job as a sheep herder living alone for four winter months. It's a beautiful and harsh country, but Jo learns to take care of herself. After wolves attack the sheep, she learns to shoot.

Eventually, Jo is able to buy her own homestead and become independent. After she intervenes when local men torment a Chinese man, whose offense was looking for work in the town, the men insist she take him as a cook and servant. Since no one else would hire him, Jo reluctantly agrees. It's only a matter of days until it becomes clear the man, played by David Chung, has figured out Jo's secret.

It's ironic that the two, both outcasts, develop a close relationship but one that can only be open at the seclusion of their cabin. As they are both aware, it's only as Little Jo, a free white man, that either has any control or rights.

All of the performances are good and writer-director Maggie Greenwald doesn't present a romanticized story. The life choices which are to some extent forced on Jo have a heavy cost. The characters are complex — often contradictions.

The man who first harasses Jo, then becomes an employer and loyal friend, has no qualms about trussing up the Chinese man to be tortured in the name of having some fun.

"The Ballad of Little Jo" is a compelling and interesting journey.

"The Ballad of Little Jo" is available on tape at local video stores. If you have a question or comment, call LeAnne Rogers at 953-2103 or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

"The Pagemaster," which opened at metro Detroit movie theaters on Nov. 23 tells the story of Young Richard Tyler who thinks he sees danger everywhere: in his backyard treehouse, in the streets where his friends play — even in his own bedroom. He can quote the exact percentage of accidents which happen in the home, and he's rigged his bicycle with more safety features than a 747.

But the magic in books is about to change all that.

When Richard takes refuge from a storm in an empty library, he finds himself stepping into a wondrous new world. In no time at all, he's sent on an amazing animated adventure by The Pagemaster, keeper of the books and guardian of the written world.

In a place whre imagination runs wild, three unforgettable characters representing — Adventure, Fantasy and Horror — help guide Richard through some amazing adventures.

He will meet, among other literary greats, Captain Ahab and then confront Moby Dick; sail the seven seas with Long John Silver; and meet Dr. Jekyll and his alter-ego, Mr. Hyde.

Both political speech writers, they are unaware that they share the same profession — and work for opposing candidates. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presents "Speechless," a Forge Production of a Ron Underwood Film distributed by MGM/UA Distribution Co.

Gender-bending play good for laughs

THEATER REVIEW

VICTORIA DIAZ

In case you haven't heard, the zany 1959 screen comedy, "Some Like It Hot," has been made into a zany musical for the stage, called "Sugar." The Village Players of Birmingham are currently offering up the confectionary treat for area audiences.

Though it may not be the slickest, smartest comedy ever staged and though most playgoers won't leave the theatre humming any of these Jule Styne-Bob Merrill tunes, this "Sugar" — directed by Barbara Anne Gowans — makes for some delicious fun.

"Sugar" (and "Some Like It Hot") tells the story of two hapless musicians, Joe and Jerry, who, as the play begins, find themselves out of work in Prohibition-era Chicago. Things get a lot worse, though, when the klutzy pair stumble into the right garage at the wrong time, only to witness the infamous St. Valentine's Day Massacre. (Here, the Massacre is cleverly choreographed by Martha Lamb.)

What to do when the perpetrators discover you've seen it all? Run for your life, of course, and get out of town fast.

But how to do that when your pockets are empty, and no jobs are to be had for the likes of you?

Luckily for our heroes, an all-girl orchestra, "Sweet Sue and Her Society Syncopators," are desperate for a bass and a saxophone before they move out for an extended engagement in sunny Florida. Here's a bright idea: Why not dress up like girls, change your names to Josephine and Daphne, and apply for the jobs?

This being musical comedy, Joe/Josephine and Jerry/Daphne do just that, get the jobs, hop on the train with all those Society Syncopators, and move out for sunnier climes. Little do they know (this being musical comedy still) that their troubles are just beginning.

As the jobless musician, Jerry, Dan Castle fares OK. But as the dimply, dumpling-ish Daphne, he does a knock-out job. Looking about as subtle as a fire engine in his raspberry-red costumes (they match his cute, rosy cheeks), he certainly makes the most of gender confusion whether he's onstage or making one of his grand (and flirtatious) entrances from the audience. Carousing with the smitten millionaire, Osgood Fielding (played charmingly by Tom Spriggs), is a special delight. And don't miss his curtain call.

As his sidekick, Joe/Josephine, Dave Springer has his winning ways, too, especially as that blonde vixen, Josephine. Though not the boisterous comic that Castle is here, he definitely has his own brand of humor, in a somewhat lower key, and he's always an eye-catching performer to watch. (Impersonating Cary Grant is not his strong point, however).

In the title role, pretty Sally Savoie — although a little heavy on the doll-like mannerisms — lends a soft, comedic touch of her own, and always adds a certain dotty charm to a scene.

For the most part, a large supporting cast performs well. Watch especially for Dianne Nowland as Mrs. Spats Palazzo, villain extraordinaire. Her big death scene is like nothing you have ever seen before, and she possesses a real knack for bringing it off.

Musicians rally for injured singer

The industrial bands HAL and Skinhorse will play a benefit at Alvin's in Detroit on Saturday, Nov. 26, for Skinhorse frontman bassist Andre Royster who, according to their press release "suffered a terrible accident. He wasn't maimed or paralyzed but he did fracture two elbows after he fell off a speaker during a performance at the Dome Room in Chicago during the Independent Label Fest last month. It's been a rough year for Royster who was electrocuted earlier in the year at Alvin's. For effect, Skinhorse, who will release a CD in January, poured club soda on the drums with black lighting overhead and Royster stepped in a puddle of it. Aside from raising money to pay for Royster's medical expenses and lost wages, Skinhorse's manager Sue Summers said she hopes to bring awareness to the fact that musicians need to have affordable medical insurance.

The show is part of Alvin's 27th anniversary. The weeklong celebration also includes an acoustic showcase on Thanksgiving, and a show on Friday, Nov. 25, by Knitting Factory recording artists Blue Dog and newly reformed group Fundamental Extremists, formerly Broken Yo Yo. For more information, call (313) 832-2355.

Spin Doctors will have a new look when they visit the Pontiac Silverdome Dec. 1 with the Rolling Stones. Guitarist and founding member Eric Schenkman amicably left the band in early October due to artistic and creative differences. He has been replaced by Anthony Krizan.

If you have a question or a comment for Christina Fuoco, call her at (313) 953-2047, mailbox No. 2130 on a touch-tone phone, or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, Mich. 48150.

Bad Religion: Patience pays off

■ It's taken 14 years and a major-label deal but mainstay punk rockers Bad Religion finally have a hit on their hands. "21st Century (Digital Boy)" checks in frequently on MTV and the radio.

Melodic punk rock may be near the top of the charts but Bad Religion guitarist expects that phase to crash and burn as fast as it took off.

"The punk rock thing's just a fad," guitarist Greg Hetson said in typical punk rock fashion.

"I'm kidding. I think people were turned off in the mid-'80s because of all the bad press — punk rock riots, people getting injured (at shows), or people were afraid of what the bands were saying. I think people aren't really afraid of it now."

Afraid they aren't. Upstarts Green Day and the Offspring came out of nowhere and sold millions of albums this year. Tickets for Green Day's show on Friday at Cobo Arena in Detroit sold out in about 10 minutes. Even punk rock family siblings like Pennywise, Rancid and Black Train Jack are creating a stir for themselves by touring incessantly.

But it took 14 years for Bad Religion to emerge from the punk rock static and score a hit. A song by the band — the incredibly hook-laden "21st Century (Digital Boy)" off the band's Atlantic debut "Stranger Than Fiction" — has finally hit commercial airplay. This is also the band's first foray with an outside producer, Andy Wallace who has also worked with Nirvana, Sonic Youth and the Rollins Band.

It's not that past Bad Religion songs weren't worthy of airplay. Allen Liggett of Harmony House's Farmington Hills store said success is all in the timing.

"From my point of view it's the old adage: It isn't who or what you know — it's timing. Green Day happened because it happened. The timing was right, the song was there, people caught on to it and boom it was there. Look how long it took Soul Asylum — 11 years. They played (Royal Oak nightclub) 3-D in 1989 when they were on A&M. This industry has no rhyme or reason."

Liggett said that although the album was released in September, it's just now getting hyped.

"On the retail level, it has to be marketed properly. Maybe it just wasn't marketed enough."

Hetson, a part-time member of newly signed major leaguers the Circle Jerks, agrees that timing is part of the success equation.

"I have a theory that people who started and grew up with the punk rock scene are now the people that are programming the stations and working at labels. Maybe that's why."

Other longtime fans of the band include Pearl Jam perpetual moper and lead singer Eddie Vedder and ex-Concrete Blonde vocalist Johnette Napolitano, both of whom made appearances on Bad Religion's 1993 album "Recipe for Hate."

"We've known Johnette for a long time, and Eddie we met a couple years ago. Eddie used to come see us all the time. He even snuck backstage once to meet the band. He was nobody back then," Hetson said.

To "Stranger Than Fiction," Napolitano contributed the song "Television" which features the snarling vocals of mohawked Rancid singer Tim "Lint" Armstrong. MC5 guitarist Wayne Kramer, and Pennywise vocalist Jim Lindberg also make cameos on the record.

The appearances of Armstrong and Lindberg show the band's dedication to ex-guitarist Brett Gurewitz's label Epitaph Records, whose lineup also boasts Gas Huffer, and the Offspring. "Recipe for Hate" was Bad Religion's last album for Epitaph (although it was repackaged and re-released by Atlantic). Collectively, the Epitaph records "Recipe for Hate" as well as "Suffer" (1988), "No Control" (1989), "Against the Grain" (1990), and "Generator" (1992) have sold more than a million copies — something that the Offspring has pulled off on its own.

A band with an indie frame of mind, Bad Religion made sure they could keep their "hands-on band" status when they signed with the massive Atlantic Records.

"We are really a hands-on band. We pretty much know what's going on all the time. We have as much as say as what's going on with Atlantic as we did with Epitaph."

Bad Religion — who replaced Gurewitz with former Minor Threat guitarist Brian Baker — makes sure their fans are aware of that when they're slagged for "selling out."

"When we get a little slack from some of the fans (we tell them we) put out the best record we could. It (signing to Atlantic) wasn't the end of Bad Religion as we know it."

Bad Religion performs an all-ages show with Supersuckers and Samiam at State Theatre, 2115 Woodward Ave., Detroit, at 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 26. Tickets are $10. For more information, call (313) 961-5451.

DJ goes from one 'Club' to another

By Christina Fuoco

Slammin': WHYT (The Planet 96.3 FM) DJ and "Club Connect" host Jerry Millen (above) initiated a west side alternative music club at Graffiti's in Westland.

A self-proclaimed "geek" in high school, Wayne resident Jerry Millen never imagined himself on the pages of Teen Beat magazine.

"When I saw it I thought, 'I was some nerd in high school and now I'm in Teen Beat.' It said I'm the stud of the show. It was really weird," said Millen, who is modest but a little more outspoken than in his school days.

"I'd get all these letters from teeny boppers saying they wanted to come to Michigan and marry me. They'd send me necklaces. . . . For me to experience that (that) was just weird," he added.

That's what Millen experienced during his 3½-year stint on the internationally popular, Detroit-based PBS teen show "Club Connect." The very tall, jovial personality also shopped with Salt 'n' Pepa in New York.

"They stripped me down to boxer shorts right in the middle of the store. We didn't bother with dressing rooms. It turned out to be quite interesting," he said with a laugh.

He hung out with the MTV spring break crew, and played in children's playlands. Millen's favorite assignment was going to Sea World and playing with Shamu.

"I've always wanted to touch a killer whale. (But) I was always the kid in the audience who never got picked. That was the coolest thing I ever got to do."

Now that the series has officially ended, he's moving on to other things. A career as an MTV VJ has always been on his "A" list. Technically, he already has achieved that goal. He said a few words to his friend, former VJ Steve Isaacs, after appearing during a fashion show on Isaacs' segment. He also chatted on camera with his friends "Ed and Dre" from "Yo! MTV Raps."

Instead of moving to New York or Los Angeles and waiting tables until he's offered a more permanent MTV job, he's focusing his attention locally.

For the past 3½ years, Millen has been a part-time DJ at WHYT 96.3, now called "The Planet" after changing its format from Top 40/urban to alternative. Being a west-sider and having seen alternative music's effect on the music industry, he thought it was about time it came to his hometown area. He and a few friends were able to convince the owners of Graffiti nightclub in Westland to offer alternative music, instead of sugary sweet pop/dance hits, a couple times a week.

The bar — splattered with neon graffiti, mannequins and catwalks — took a 360 degree turn with "Club Slam," held every Wednesday in conjunction with "The Planet." Besides hard alternative dance music by acts like the Beastie Boys and Prong, "Slam" offers free tattooing and body piercing and, despite its name, no slam dancing. To hammer home its point, they added a lip ring to their lip-lined DJ booth.

The first few weeks were so successful that the club's management had to temporarily lower the capacity to get a handle on the crowd. They hired the security firm ESI and raised the age requirements. The kinks have been ironed out and Graffiti decided to expand the alternative lineup by adding the college night "Club Y" on Friday nights with special guest DJ Gynyp from 89X— CIMX 88.7 FM. Saturdays offer retro music.

Graffiti is planning to make a few more changes, but Millen won't be. He's satisfied with hanging around Detroit and taking it one day at a time — for now.

"I'd rather have happiness and learn all my lessons than make it overnight," he said.

Everyone's Got One — Echobelly

I'm a big believer in the theory that you can get a pretty good idea of what a band is all about by looking at the album's artwork. When you open the CD case of Echobelly's "Everyone's Got One" (Fauve/Rhythm King/Pandemonium), the letters "E.G.O." (the title's initials) are staring at you. The press materials name the first single as "I Can't Imagine the World Without Me." Without listening to the CD, you can only guess what you're going to get into to. More pompous British pop, perhaps?

The British darlings du jour throw those assumptions aside and rock. Madan, a waif-like ex-kick boxer of Anglo-Indian descent, sounds like Debbie Harry with Bjork's yodels.

Echobelly was to be the opening band on Morrissey's ill-fated tour and it's easy to see why — Madan's drawn-out vocal delivery is similar to Morrissey's. She's been on the cover of the British music magazine Melody Maker twice.

She's outspoken. Take "Give Her a Gun" for example: "In a lifetime full of changes a woman's group is still a second class convention. Look around, who has the power. Am I big mouth with a fix of paranoia on your side, on your side, not here for the ride."

And Echobelly is an equal opportunity employer. Besides the Anglo-Indian Madan, the band is made up of the Swedish co-songwriter Glenn Johansson, the "token black lesbian" (according to the press materials) guitarist Debbie Smith, bassist Alex Keyser and former Polly Harvey bandmate drummer Andy Henderson.

(Echobelly and Scarce will perform Sunday, Nov. 27, at Industry, 15 S. Saginaw, Pontiac. Call (810) 334-1999 for more information.)

Short Fuse — The Blazers

When the most important chicano rock band this side of Los Lobos signed with Rounder Records, no one in their Southern California home-base was surprised. This, after all, is just the latest manifestation of a lineage that traces itself back to Ritchie Valens. Having been mesmirized by their live sets many times over the years, most recently at the Festival of Arts this fall, I'm happy to report that that energy comes through with both barrels smoking on their recording debut.

From the opening "Yeah! Yeah! Yeah," with its Texas Tornados-meets-the Beat Farmers riff, to the closing, sashaying "Miss You Lil' Girl," this is a band that delivers the goods. Much of the formula at work here has to do with the 20-year partnership between guitarists/vocalists Ruben Guadarrama and Manuel Gonzales, and the fact that drummer Ruben C. Gonzalez and bassist Lee Starr art sound like they've been with them for as long a time.

Like Southern California compadres the Blasters, Paladins, Big Sandy and, certainly their spiritual big brothers, Los Lobos (whose Cesar Rosas produced), the territory that the Blazers call their own is generally pegged as roots rock. Rockers like the title cut and the radio-ready "So Long Time Sally" will do wonders to bolster that reputation. Their versions of the Mexican language "El Ano Viejo," "Mi Ultima" and, especially "Tiburon, Tiburon" put them in an even more refined subgenre that, for these ears, makes them a more delicious aural candy.

As much as this amazing disc is recommended from these quarters, the live shows are not to be missed. The Blazers are set for Club International, 6060 W. Fort St., Detroit, on Wednesday, Nov. 30. For more information, call (313) 841-0020.

LET'S GO! TRAVEL

Hop on an Amtrak train for weekend in Chicago

BY CAROLE STRONG
STAFF WRITER

The best thing about Amtrak travel is the spontaneity.

Decide today that you need more choices for holiday gifts, and by tomorrow, you and some like-minded friends can be chugging toward Chicago and its multifarious shopping sources.

Amtrak requires no reservations — you can buy tickets on board or at the station. There are other pluses for train travel: Several stations to choose from (Detroit's New Center, Birmingham and Pontiac are new, Royal Oak is coming soon and Dearborn and Ann Arbor remain), two daily departures and affordable fares.

Amtrak does the driving, "landing" you at Union Station, just blocks from Chicago's downtown stores.

You can even make the most of the six hours' travel time. Edit your list for Santa, or dash off your holiday cards, posting them in Chicago. There are some minor irritants: for example, the new Detroit suburban stations are unmanned and parking is not secured, so plan to be dropped off and picked up.

First stop in Chicago, by taxi from the train station, will be your hotel to stash your luggage. Book ahead and try to get a room on or near North Michigan Avenue, which is safe, lively and fun night or day.

The Allerton and the Lenox Suites offer $79 doubles; the Richmont and the posh Fairmont are $90 and $99 on weekends.

If you haven't had time to send for tourist information, check your hotel for a free copy of "Where — Chicago," an excellent and timely guide.

Now, get those shopping bags ready.

"The Magnificent Mile," as North Michigan Avenue is called, starts at the river, marked by two architectural sentinels, The Tribune Tower and the Wrigley Building, joined by the historic Water Tower further up the avenue.

The way north is lined with dozens of intriguing shops (Gucci and Cartier among them), four malls and trees adorned with over 30,000 holiday lights. The flagship store of Crate & Barrel, a glass-fronted, four-story looker, is an Oprah Winfrey favorite, reportedly.

For the bargain hunter, there's a clearance Crate & Barrel at 800 W. North Ave. — a short taxi ride away.

Two atrium malls are standouts. They are Chicago Place, anchored by Saks Fifth Avenue, and Water Tower Place, featuring Marshall Field's and Lord & Taylor. Together they offer over 180 shops and boutiques. Bloomingdale's and Neiman Marcus are here, too.

FAO Schwarz grabs your attention with three floors of toys. There's everything from stuffed gorillas to Barbie and her exer4cise video and musical "foot" notes you play with your feet. The ultimate street for shopping, Oak, has over 70 exclusive boutiques and salons.

The North Pier on East Illinois Street is a waterside warehouse-turned-trendy-festival-marketplace with interesting specialty shops, restaurants and nightlife.

When you're ready to change shopping venues to downtown's State Street, you can walk (only for the hearty) or ride a bus or taxi. Newly renovated at a cost of $115 million, Marshall Field's is the queen of retail stores, the second largest in the U.S., with 145 departments on nine floors. Best of all, you can use your Hudson's charge card.

Marshall Field's was established in 1852 during a rebirth that followed a big city fire and it can't be topped in architectural elegance. Marvel at the soaring atriums — one with a blue mosaic Tiffany dome, another decked out with a skyscraping Christmas tree in the Walnut Room Restaurant.

Lunch here (chicken pot pie is the favorite) is a cherished tradition, like strolling past the outdoor windowns that each year tell an animated Christmas tale. This year it's an all-new Pinocchio.

Also on State Stree is Carson Pirie Scott & Co., a full-line department store famous for its scrolled ironwork entranceway that was designed by Louis Sullivan in 1904.

Only half a block north of Field's is the restored Chicago Theatre, currently staging Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," with Donny Osmond, no less, through December. It's a tempting respite from shopping.

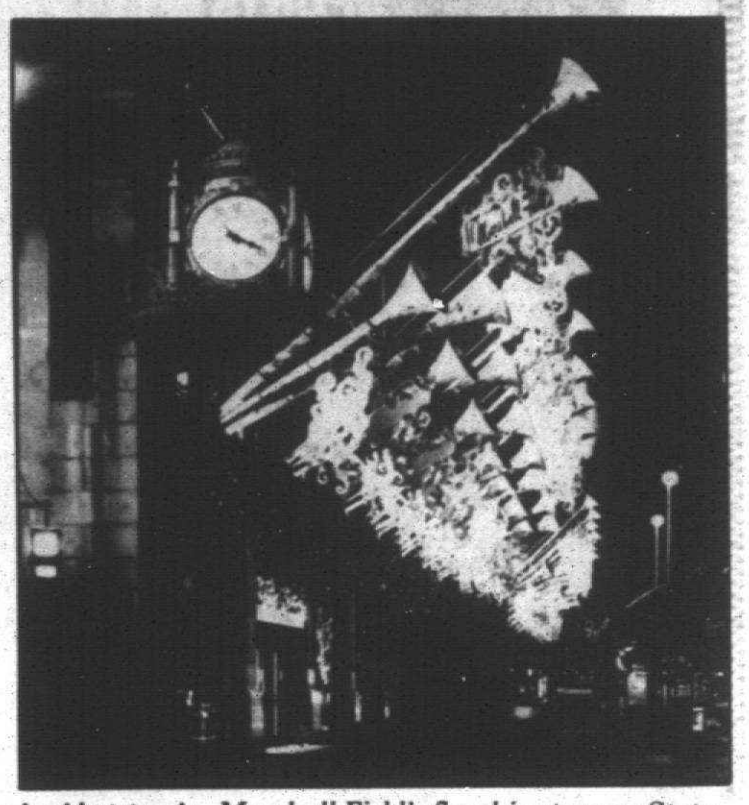

Another refreshing time out is afternoon tea at a landmark hotel like the Drake, Ritz-Carlton or Hotel Inter-Continental. The Fairmont is selling gingerbread houses, signed by the chef/artist.

Too many packages to tote home? Make one last trip to Mail Boxes Etc. or one of its competitors; they'll pack up your loot and ship it home.

CANTON SPORTS SCENE

Scott Pengelly turned in a strong performance at the U.S. Track and Field Association's Junior Olympics Region Five Cross Country Championship Saturday in Lexington, Ky. It earned him a shot at the USTFA National Championship, which is Dec. 10 in Reno, Nev.

Pengelly, a junior at Plymouth Salem, placed fifth out of 80 runners in the 17-18 age division at the region meet, finishing the 5,000-meter course in 16:20.

The top 20 finishers qualified for the national championship. Pengelly made it to the region meet by placing 19th at the USTFA state meet Nov. 13 in Ann Arbor.

Pengelly needs sponsors to help pay for his trip to Reno. Anyone interested in a sponsorship can call Salem cross country coach Geoff Baker (595-4250); Tom Pengelly (981-4859); or Salem assistant athletic director Gary Balconi (416-7766).

Standout performances

Danielle Meyka, a junior at Siena Heights College, was named to the all-Wolverine Hoosier Athletic Conference women's soccer team.

A Plymouth Canton graduate, Meyka, a defender, helped the Saints reach the NAIA regional semifinals, where they lost to Tiffin University 3-1. She was one of four Saints named to the all-WHAC team.

Julie Nicastri, a junior at Saginaw Valley State from Plymouth Canton, was named to the all-tournament team after the Gannon (Pa.) University Tip-Off Tournament last weekend.

Nicastri, a center, scored a career-high 17 points in the Cardinals' tournament-opening win over LeMoyne. SVSU went on to beat host Gannon 76-72 in Saturday's final.

Brian Paluk, a sophomore forward at SVSU from Plymouth (Redford Catholic Central), also had a strong start to the season, netting a career-best 16 points in the Cardinals' winning effort in their opener against University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Citrus sale

The Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem wrestlers, and the Salem swimmers, are having their 17th annual orange and grapefruit sale through Dec. 1.

Navel oranges and pink grapefruit are available in 20-pound ($15) and 40-pound ($25) boxes. Mixed boxes are also available ($16, $26).

Call Ron Krueger (416-2876) or Dan Chrenko (455-6991) to place an order.

Used equipment sale

The Canton Parks and Recreation Services will sponsor its annual used sports equipment sale from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, at Coventry Commons Shopping Center, on Joy and Morton Taylor.

The public is invited to sell their sports or recreational equipment at this sale. Sellers should bring their items to the Coventry Commons Shopping Center on Thursday, Dec. 1, to be priced and tagged for the sale. The seller sets the prices, and gets the money (minus 15 percent, which goes to the Parks and Recreation department).

Volunteers will handle the sales; sellers needn't be on hand. Money or unsold items can be picked up 1-2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3.

For more information, call 397-5110.

Chiefs cruise past Central

■ Basketball coaches are fond of saying "Nothing comes easy at tournament time," but Canton's regional game against Detroit Central Monday proved an exception to the rule.

By C.J. Risak

The lull before the storm?

Or should it be Storen!

Plymouth Canton's girls basketball team got some extra time to contemplate that question, since the Chiefs' opponent in the first round of the regional tournament — Detroit Central — offered such little resistance.

The outcome of the game was decided well before halftime, when Canton went to the locker room with a 37-11 lead. The Trailblazers never led, never figured out how to play defense and never really posed a threat in suffering through a 66-27 trouncing at the hands of the Chiefs Monday at Birmingham Seaholm.

The win raised Canton's record to 17-6; next up is Julie Storen and Birmingham Marian in Wednesday's regional final, 7:30 p.m. at Seaholm.

"We just got off to a good start and got a lot of easy baskets," summed up Canton coach Bob Blohm.

No kidding. It looked like the Chiefs were still practicing layups during their pre-game warm-up. And to be honest, at the start they weren't executing very well; they missed five puppies in the first quarter.

And Canton still led 18-7 after one, thanks to a defense that forced nine Central turnovers.

Some of the Chiefs' starters may have played a total of one half; Blohm started subbing in the first quarter. Everybody played, and nearly all of them scored. Amicie Crayton led Canton with 14 points; Kristi Fiorenzi had 12 and Tiffany Williams scored 11.

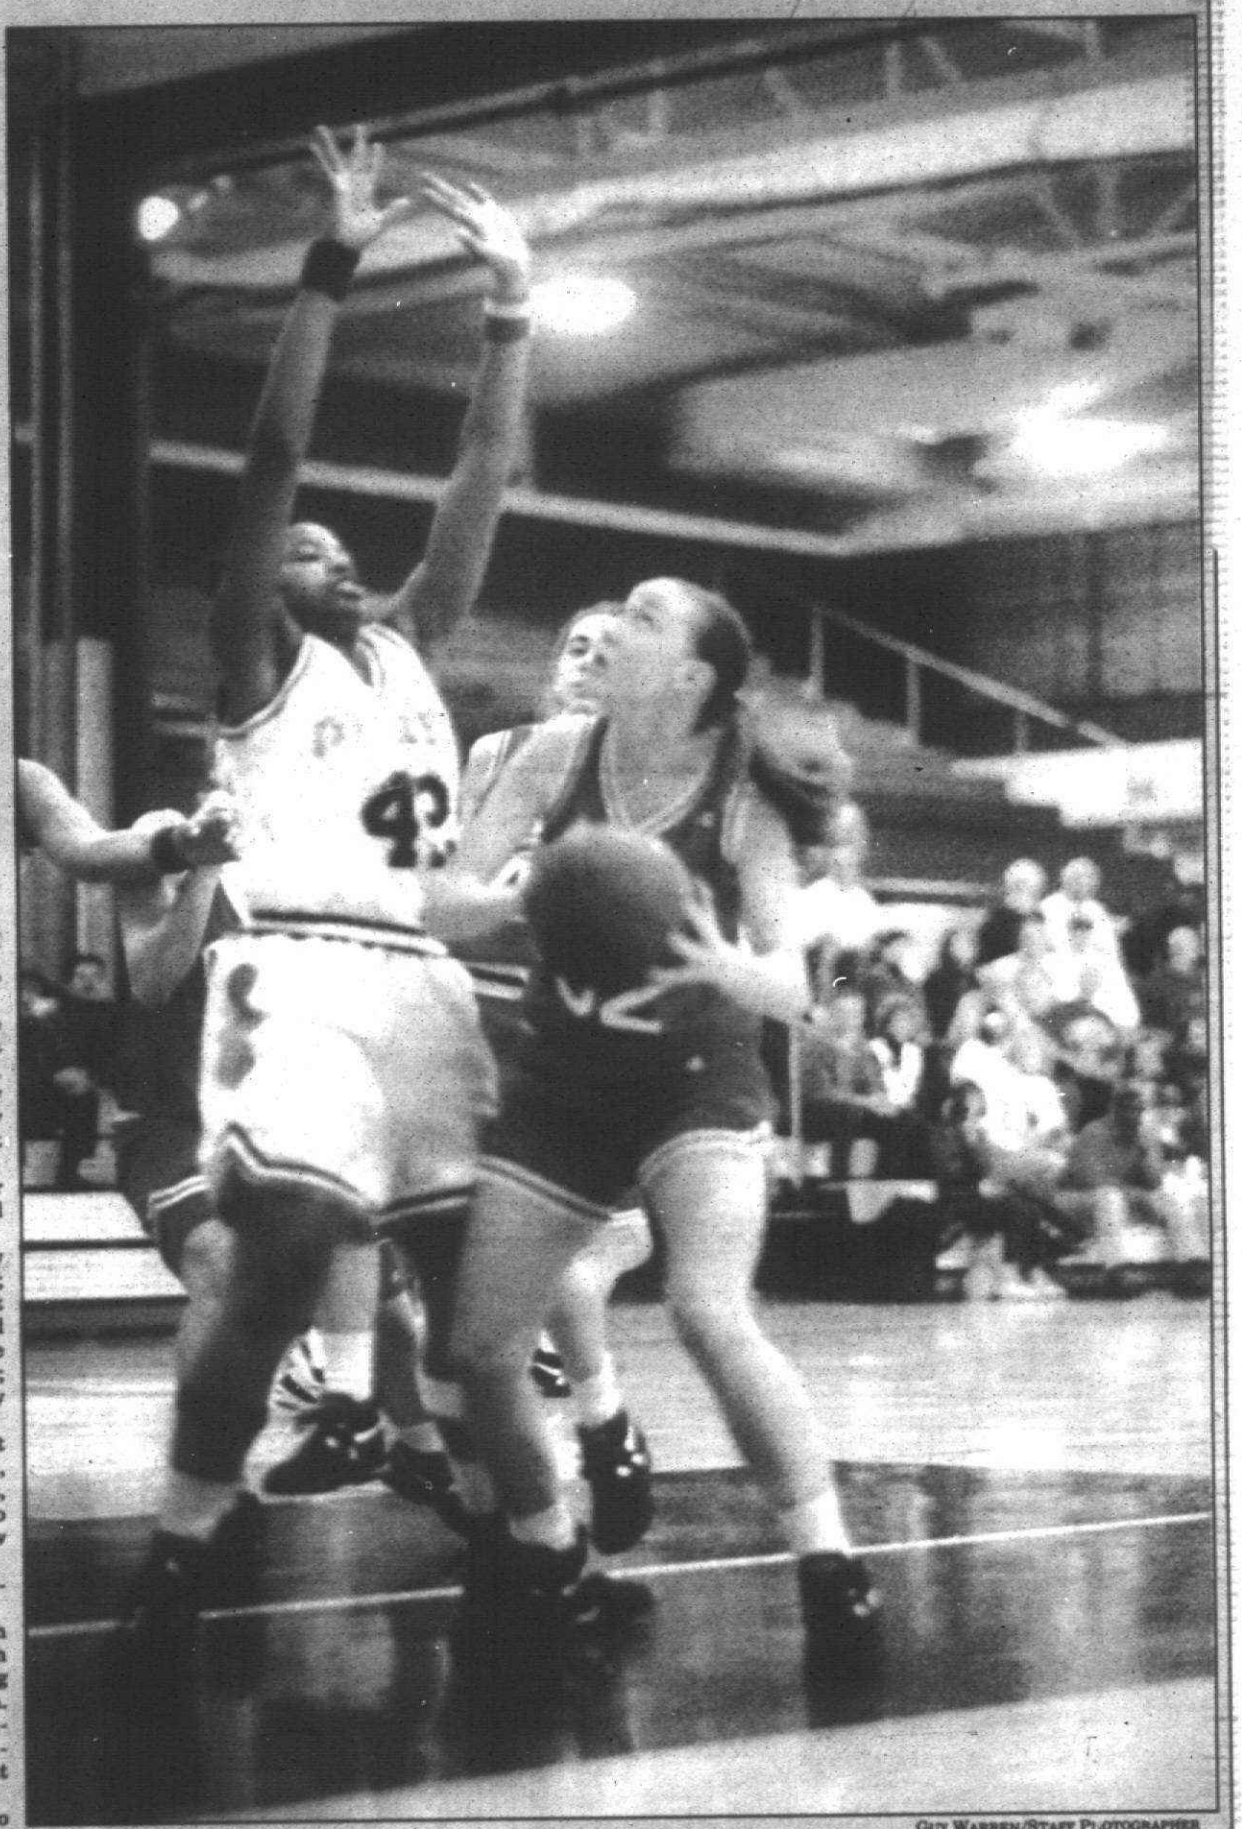

To be fair, it should be noted that the Trailblazers, who finish 9-11, started five sophomores. In fact, they had just one senior and two juniors on the team — and they saw limited action.

Ayesha Muhammad topped Central with 10 points.

So. The early exit to the bench provided Canton's starters with some additional time for musing over their next opponent: Marian. The Mustangs advanced by eliminating Farmington Hills Mercy 41-36 in Monday's first game at Seaholm.

They'll bring a 15-7 record into Wednesday's game — which includes a 49-40 victory over Canton

Slone's shot lifts Madonna

■ BASKETBALL

It was a moment to be treasured.

Certainly the rarity had something to do with it — Madonna University's men's basketball team enjoyed few successes in its first season. But it wasn't just the outcome, a 96-89 come-from-behind overtime win over Pillsbury College (from Minneapolis) in the consolation final of the Cedarville (Ohio) Invitational Tournament.

As coach Bill Sharpe explained, "For us, the greatest thing was that, what we've been teaching them for the last two years, the light finally went on.

"We saw a turning point in this game."

Maybe so. It took the Fighting Crusaders nine games to get their first win last year; this season, it took just three.

And it took a fair amount of determination. Madonna (1-2) trailed 45-44 at the half and, with three seconds left in regulation, was still behind 79-76. The Crusaders called timeout to set up a play, but according to Sharpe there was never any question whose number would be called.

Mike Slone, the 6-foot-5 sophomore swingman from Plymouth Salem, fills the role perfectly because, as Sharpe put it, "He has the two things necessary: He never feels guilty about shooting, and he has no conscience."

Slone took the inbounds pass into the corner and launched. Swish — a three-pointer. Game tied, 79-79. Overtime.

Pillsbury scored the first five points of OT, but it was all Madonna after that. The Crusaders outscored their foe 17-5 the rest of the way to claim a victory.

Jay Dimes, who was named to the all-tournament team, led Madonna with 20 points and 11 rebounds. He also blocked two shots. Slone finished with 18 points and eight boards, with Christian Emert adding 16 points and four assists; Mike Maryanski 15 points and eight rebounds; and Brandon Slone 12 points and six boards.

Barry Jones' 35 points led Pillsbury; Greg Snow had 14, Adam Taylor 13 and Jacob Hodge and Dan Brower 10 apiece.

Madonna won the battle of the boards, outrebounding Pillsbury 48-47. Also, the Crusaders had just 11 turnovers; both factors helped them overcome a 32-of-85 (38 percent) shooting night.

"We gutted it out," said Sharpe. "We did everything we said we had to do to win."

The Crusaders did some of those things in their opening game of the tournament, Friday against Indiana Wesleyan. What they didn't do was score (20-of-58 from the field, 34 percent), and this time neither the turnover ratio (23 turnovers for Madonna, 20 for Wesleyan) or the rebound factor (44-39 Wesleyan) worked to their favor.

Which is why they lost, 72-58.

The final minutes of the first half were Madonna's downfall. A six-point Wesleyan lead blossomed into a 45-29 halftime advantage. The Crusaders never got closer than nine in the second half.

Mike Slone's 25 points topped Madonna. Dimes totaled 12 points and eight rebounds, and Brandon Slone netted seven points and nine boards.

Wesleyan got 25 points from Darrell Smith, 22 from Matt Shade and 11 from Ryan Biegel.

Madonna falls in region semis

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

■ VOLLEYBALL

What finished Madonna University's volleyball season was the same thing that plagued the Lady Crusaders most of their campaign.

Inconsistency.

Madonna reached the semifinals of the NAIA Great Lakes Regional Saturday at University of Michigan-Dearborn, but the trip was fruitless. The Crusaders were thumped by Mount St. Joseph's (from Cincinnati) 15-1, 15-7, 15-2.

St. Joseph's proved less than best, too, falling in the regional final to third-ranked St. Francis College (Fort Wayne, Ind.) 15-11, 15-6, 15-2. St. Francis advances to the NAIA Tournament Dec. 1-3 in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Madonna finished its season with a 30-21 record and some unfulfilled goals.

"We didn't play a very good match and they played outstanding," said Crusaders' coach Jerry Abraham of the St. Joseph's match. "We played great on Friday. But it's been an inconsistent year for us."

Injuries and the loss of two starters from last year's team, both All-Americans, caused Madonna's problems. A pair of starters on this season's squad, Erin Comment and Nikki Scherrer, were both lost to injuries and missed the last half of the season.

Two others, Kelly McCausland (from Redford Union) and Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson), missed sizable portions of the campaign due to injury.

On Friday, Madonna won its three-team pool to advance to the regional semifinal. The Crusaders beat Edgewood College (Madison, Wisc.) 15-5, 15-5, 15-11 and Grace College (Winona Lake, Ind.) 15-6, 14-16, 12-15, 15-11, 15-5.

But all that went right on Friday came undone on Saturday.

"We just did not block them very well," said Abraham — and that started the Crusaders' problems. St. Joseph's kept them off balance with a varied attack.

"We do better against power teams, but for some reason we've had trouble with teams that change up on us. We didn't flow defensively at all.

"(St. Joseph's) did everything they needed to do to keep us off balance."

Lady Ocelots post another easy win

■ SC BASKETBALL

Another game, another lopsided win, and more high praise from the coach — right?

Not with Schoolcraft College's women's basketball team. After ripping visiting Moraine Valley (from Chicago) 85-57 Saturday, here's how Lady Ocelots' coach Ed Kavanaugh described his team's performance:

"We're doing OK."

Well, let's not go overboard, coach. In the win over Moraine Valley, which ran SC's record to 2-0, the Ocelots led 37-24 at the half and were never really in danger.

Leandra Hoffman (from Livonia Clarenceville) led SC with 18 points. Dawn Newlin scored 15, and Megan Heslip and Shawn Krause (Westland John Glenn) each had 12.

Mary McCarthy led Morraine Valley with 18 points.

"They're adapting to my style of play real well," said Kavanaugh. Which is: "Pressure defense and pushing the ball up the court, which allows us to convert a lot of easy baskets."

■ Glen Oaks 95, SC 84 (men): The Ocelots were up by four with 12 minutes left Monday against visiting Glen Oaks, but free throws led to their downfall.

Glen Oaks was 28-of-38 (74 percent) from the free-throw line, including 24 makes in the second half. SC was 10-of-16 (65 percent).

"In the second half, for whatever reason, we started fouling," said SC coach Dave Bogataj. "We stopped moving our feet (on defense), stopped going inside (on offense) and started shooting the 10-12 footers instead."

The Ocelots (now 0-4) were led by Tony Maciejewski with 29 points and 13 rebounds, including 10 offensive boards. Jason Maschke (Livonia Franklin) contributed 10 points and seven rebounds, and Fadi Bazzi had six points and 10 assists. Dave Pavlak finished with nine points. Fred McLang led Glen Oaks with 32 points. Andrew Kiess had 19.

Shamrocks rebuild to defend Class A title

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

■ HOCKEY

Redford Catholic Central coach Gordie St. John knows all too well the 1993-94 hockey season is going to be a tough act to follow.

St. John, in his first year after taking over for longtime coach John Gumbleton, led the Shamrocks to the coveted state Class A championship and a 24-1-2 record last season.

CC clobbered Midland 8-1 in the finals after surviving several close games en route to the tournament title.

Gone are three first-team All-Observer players including goalie Mike Brusseau, who sported a 1.35 goals against average; forward Jon Heady, who racked up 57 points on 32 goals and 25 assists; and Mark Holdridge, a smooth skating defenseman who had 30 points.

Holdridge, who was eligible to come back this season as a senior, opted to play in the junior select ranks.

"We just can't step onto the ice and expect it to happen," St. John said. "We're going to have to work hard.

"And we've got to be careful after having the kind of year we had. It all depends how they fit together. We have a long way to go."

The cupboard is not completely bare, however, for CC.

"Couture played on a line with Heady and he was our sniper," St. John said. "We got hit hard (by graduation) and you just don't replace a guy like Brusseau, who was arguably the best in the state last year."

Once again, Birmingham Brother Rice and Trenton will have a say in the Michigan Metro race as well as the state tournament.

"Rice is loaded and Trenton has a strong team," St. John warned. "Both teams are going to be hard to beat. We'll really be challenged to do well in our league."

Sept. 1. The Chiefs had trouble manufacturing points in that game, but had survived a 9½ minute drought to regain a 29-28 lead in the third quarter.

Which is when Storen, their 5-foot-10 senior forward, took command. She led a 12-0 Marian run to end the third, scoring eight points to put her team in control. Canton never got closer than nine after that.

Storen finished the early-season meeting with 18 points, despite early foul trouble that limited her to about 2½ quarters.

"I just hope we can deal with Storen under pressure," said Blohm. But that's just one concern.

"The key thing is, we've got to deal with their pressure (on defense). And then we've got to figure out our match-ups against them defensively, how we're going to defend them in their half-court offense.

Storen, who can play anywhere on the floor, certainly creates a match-up problem. "You can't guard her with one player," said Blohm.

Lady Crusaders split at Hope tournament

■ BASKETBALL

The weekend started well for Madonna University's women's basketball team, but the ending could have been better.

The Lady Crusaders clubbed Trinity Christian 72-47 in the opening round of the Hope College Classic Friday in Grand Rapids, but in Saturday's final against Hope it was the Crusaders who came up short, losing 67-54.

In the loss to Hope, poor shooting (21-of-58 from the field, 36.2 percent) and turnovers (30) plagued Madonna. Only Vikki Koenig managed to reach double-figures in scoring, with 14 points. She also had 10 rebounds. Meegan Marlatt had nine points and four steals.

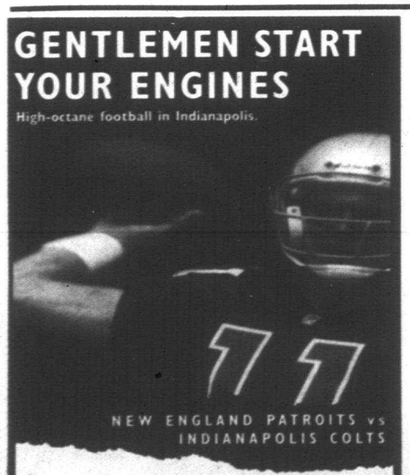

Hope got 15 points and 11 boards from Kristin Carlson, 13 points from Nicki Mannes and 11 points from Dana Smith.

Friday's game was far more satisfactory. The Crusaders shot a bit better (28-of-74, 37.8 percent), rebounded better (39-37) and did a whole lot better job taking care of the ball (11 turnovers). They led 34-21 at the intermission and cruised in the second half.

Marlatt's 18 points topped Madonna; she also nabbed six rebounds and had five steals. Koenig had 11 points, eight boards and three steals, and Stephanie Crelley finished with eight points, five rebounds and three assists.

Final showdown for Harrison, Central

Coach credits staff for Hawks' success

By Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

John Harrison, as head coach of the Farmington Hills Herrington football team, receives much of the credit for its long-running success.

Oops! It's Herrington who coaches Harrison! That seems an easy mistake to make as the two have become synonymous since Herrington has run the program all 25 years.

But he also has always been quick to share the spotlight with his assistant coaches.

The continuity and cohesiveness of the coaching staff is a big reason the Hawks will play in a record ninth state final and try to win a seventh championship Friday.

Harrison plays first-time opponent Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central at 1 p.m. in the Pontiac Silverdome. Both teams are 11-1.

"This year I think my staff has done one of its best coaching jobs ever," Herrington said.

Bob Sutter has been at Harrison 24 years, John Witkowski 17, Jim Weston 15 and Steve Dollaway 14.

Sutter once again has gotten the maximum effort from a small line, and Witkowski has overcome numerous setbacks as special teams coach.

"Coach Witkowski had to make so many changes because of injuries," Herrington said. "I don't think most teams could be down to their third punter and snapper and still be effective.

"That's because he prepared in the summer for anything, and he had those kids ready."

Weston, who coaches the JV team, and Dollaway do a lot of the behind-the-scenes work scouting opponents.

"Coach Dollaway's work in the playoffs has been tremendous," Herrington said. "He spent unbelievable hours preparing reports, because we thought we'd be playing Brother Rice and then Midland. He stayed up long hours getting reports ready for us."

The plans took a U-turn when Central toppled Midland in a semifinal game, 12-7.

So the Hawks have spent the week getting ready for the Rangers, who are grounded in two basic tenets of football: defense and ball-control offense.

"In our big games, Nick (Williams) has been able to be very dominant, but their defense looks like it can stop the run pretty well," Herrington said. "Anytime you play a good defensive team you worry. But our offense has been our strength, and hopefully we'll find enough seams to break some."

That's what has Central coach Tim McGee worried. He fears Harrison using its speed to make the big play.

"That's what we're going to look for as our advantage," Herrington said. "We're a good team on turf."

McGee won't like this stat: Harrison tailback Jason Granger's older brother, Roy, holds the state-finals rushing record of 295 yards. He had that and 355 yards of total offense in 1991 when the Hawks defeated Cheboygan in Class BB.

"They go pretty well together," said Herrington of a Granger and artificial turf. "Jason runs well on turf; he just has to quit laying the ball down on turf."

In three playoff games, Harrison has made them more suspenseful than necessary by giving the ball away with late turnovers.

"We should put teams away, and we let them back in," Herrington said, "so the kids have to protect the ball. If we fumble it back to them, we're not going to win."

Granger has rushed for 1,469 yards and 12 touchdowns and Williams, who runs at tailback when the Hawks need hard-earned yards inside, 1,218 and 20.

Granger, who ran for a 76-yard TD on the first play of the Brother Rice game in the Silverdome, averages 9.4 yards a carry, Williams 6.3.

The Rangers average 218 pounds on the defensive front, but the Hawks are used to working against a bigger opponent.

"They put a good pass rush on, but I think we can do a pretty good job of protecting the quarterback," Herrington said. "The fact our linemen have stepped up and done the job, we look for them to do it again.

"Their coach has been around a long time, and they'll adjust to what we do the best. It will be decided by the kids out there who make the blocks and the tackles."

Harrison must have the ball to score, and Central complements its defense with a good running game, using two tight ends to run mostly power.

"Our major concern is that we don't let them have the ball all day long," Herrington said. "That's what they tried to do against Midland, keep the chains moving and don't make mistakes.

Rangers' defense will create a big obstacle

By Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

Forest Hills Central does it with defense.

The Rangers take a reputation for being stoppers into the Class A championship game against Farmington Hills Harrison at 1 p.m. Friday in the Silverdome.

The Grand Rapids team has allowed just 13 points in three playoff games, held seven opponents to a touchdown or less and given up no more than 20 points in any game.

"The strength of our team has been our defense," Central coach Tim McGee said. "We have some kids who are fairly strong and physical. They work hard and like to play the game.

"In some games, other teams have had better stats offensively, but we managed to win the game with defense."

That was the case Saturday when the Rangers upset No. 1-ranked Midland in a semifinal game at Central Michigan University, 12-7.

"They had twice as many yards, and we were kinda lucky," McGee said. "The kids played well on defense, and we had five interceptions. One was returned back to the 1; we were able to punch it in, and that was the go-ahead TD.

"They had a number of chances to score, and we were fortunate to be able to keep them out of the end zone."

Central's leading tackler is linebacker Brian Griffin with 170-plus. Defensive end John Roark has 21 tackles for a minus-130 yards, and tackle Mike Miller has contributed to more than 100 stops.

On paper, it looks as if the game will turn on the matchup of Central's defense against Harrison's offense. The Hawks average 30½ points per game while the Rangers allow only nine.

McGee isn't sure No. 5 Central can master that task, however.

"They have so many weapons it's about impossible to defense them," he said, adding the No. 2-rated Hawks have an "outstanding passing attack, excellent defense and very good kicking game."

And that's in addition to an offense already centered around the potent one-two rushing combination of senior Nick Williams and junior Jason Granger.

"They can do it all," McGee said. "They have speed like we've never seen. They have so many weapons and speed it's a different level of competition. They're a step above the rest.

"Granger is very fast; the big back, Williams, also has speed, and the wide receiver (Kevin Bryant) who is going to U-M also is very talented."

Dylan Karczewski of defending Class BB champion East Grand Rapids rushed for 220 yards as the Pioneers gave Central its only loss in the second week of the season.

"We can't handle speed," McGee said. "The key factor for us is keeping (Harrison) from breaking the long touchdowns by Granger, Williams and (Bryant). I think if we had about four more players on the outside and up the middle we'd have a better chance."

The real key could be what the Rangers do offensively against a Harrison defense that usually stops opponents just long enough for the offense to outscore them.

Central averages 24½ points per game; the Hawks have given up an average of 19 in the playoffs.

A ball-control offense could be Central's best defense. The Rangers don't want to get into a scoring contest and try to match Harrison point for point.

While his defense is good, McGee doesn't want to leave it on the field and give Harrison a chance to break the big play any more than he must.

"How well our offensive line plays against Harrison will determine whether we get blown out, because we need to keep the ball away from them," McGee said.

"I don't see us having the ability to shut them down like we have some other teams. Our offensive line has to step up and play better than it has all year."

The Rangers employ a run-based, power offense, which would be suited for such a task.

Roark doubles as the tailback and is tough to tackle at 220 pounds. He has 920 yards and 15 touchdowns on 170 carries. Jay McKellar has added another 700 yards and 14 scores.

Miller is the tight end and another key two-way player. The offensive line is led by tackle Luke Stepanovich and guard Ben Greeman.

John Millhouse replaced Greg Wood at quarterback when the latter was injured at midseason, but Wood is expected to be the starter this week.

"I hope we at least learn something," McGee said. "We're going to the Dome to have fun and enjoy it. It's a tall order to beat a fine Harrison team."

GRID NOTES

SOME HITTING: How's this for a batting average? .854! That's the Harrison winning percentage in post-season playoff games. The Hawks are 35-6.

Or how about this number? .750. That represents the Harrison winning percentage in state finals. The Hawks have won six of eight times. They can make it seven-of-nine and .777 Friday.

Nobody has been in the finals more times (nine) than Harrison, which has advanced to the final round for the sixth time in eight seasons (1987-94).

"One of the things I'm proudest of is our playoff record," Harrison coach John Herrington said. "It's not just making the playoffs that's a sign of a good team; it's what you do in the playoffs.

"Against that kind of competition, we can be as proud of that as anything we've done."

ONE FOR THE COACH: Forest Hills Central has never won a state title in football, but Rangers coach Tim McGee has.

He was the coach at Forest Hills Northern in 1978 when the Huskies won the Class C championship.

That was the year Northern running back (and future Michigan player) Kerry Smith ran for a final-game record 278 yards in an 18-16 win over Bad Axe.

The record stood until 1991 when Harrison's Roy Granger ran for 295 yards.

BUDDING TRADITION: Forest Hills Central doesn't have the history of playoff success to match Harrison, but McGee has turned the program into one of the best in the Grand Rapids area since arriving in 1988.

McGee is 52-16 in seven seasons at Central, 43-7 the last five. In nine seasons as head coach at Northern (1975-83), his record was 69-15; his teams were 59-7 the last seven.

McGee left coaching for five years and worked in business sales until taking the Forest Hills Central job.

PLAYOFF REVIEW: The Rangers are in the playoffs for the second time. They qualified in 1991, beating Portage Central 14-3 but losing to South Lyon 22-12.

Central was 8-1 last year but failed to make the playoffs despite having the 10th highest computer point total among Class A teams.

"(The success this year) can make it up for those of us who are back this year," McGee said, "but not the 13 seniors who didn't make it last year."

Two teams with 6-3 records qualified in other regions, he added, but this year the top 16 teams all made the grade.

"It doesn't mean we were better than a 6-3 team," McGee said. "Harrison was 7-2 and won the state championship, and they're an awesome team again."

COACHES CORNER: McGee on playing Harrison: "They offer a challenge I'm not sure we're up to. They're definitely among the elite with six state championships.

"They're a classy football program with a lot of tradition. Kids go there because they know they're going to have success; they're going to win and have fun."

Herrington on playing Central: "They started to scout us the first game of the playoffs, so they knew they had a good chance to play us. Despite what Tim says, you know he's going to be ready and his kids are going to come in ready.

"They play with a lot of enthusiasm, and you can tell they're tough mentally. They only lost to East Grand Rapids, which is the team everyone says is the best in the state — them or (Orchard Lake) St. Mary's."

1993 REVISITED: Nick Williams carried the ball a state-finals record 28 times, rushing for 168 yards and the winning touchdown as Harrison downed Midland 12-9.

His rushing total was 1 yard shy of the Class A record set by Midland Dow's Scott Alexander against the Hawks in 1976.

Harrison led 3-2 at halftime on Brock Gove's 35-yard field goal, but the Chemics went ahead 9-3 on Dwight Twomley's 16-yard touchdown catch.

A 46-yard run by Williams set up his 1-yard scoring run, and Gove's extra-point kick gave Harrison a 10-9 lead. Midland gave up a late safety rather than punt from deep in its own territory.

HARRISON CHEERS: The Hawks had their first pep rally at the school Wednesday morning before the team left for Ann Arbor and a practice session at the University of Michigan.

"I like to keep things on the same level all the time, but for the state championship we're going to have one," Herrington said Monday.

The people in Grand Rapids are football fanatics, and I know they'll have a lot of people there. So I hope the Farmington community gets behind the team and comes to the Silverdome."

COACH OF YEAR: Herrington will receive the 1993 Coach of the Year award in the sport of football Saturday from the Michigan High School Coaches Association.

Herrington and coaches in 21 other sports will be honored at the 36th Annual Coach of the Year Banquet in the Main Event at the Silverdome between sessions of the state football finals.

Murray Wright sinks Spartans

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Livonia Stevenson couldn't ground Detroit Murray-Wright's Lady Pilots in Monday's Class A regional girls basketball semifinals.

The Spartans, one of only five Observerland teams to win a district, bowed out of the state tournament following a 60-38 defeat in the first game of a doubleheader Monday at Detroit's Communication Media Arts High.

Murray-Wright, the Public School League runner-up, improved to 15-4 overall with the victory.

Stevenson, who got 14 points from senior guard Jill VanTiem, finishes its season at 12-11.

Ebony Dickinson, a 5-foot-9 senior guard, led Murray-Wright with 19 points, including eight in the opening quarter as the Lady Pilots jumped out to a 20-6 advantage. Sparkle Smith, a 6-foot sophomore center, also had eight during the surge.

BASKETBALL

Stevenson made only two of nine shots in the first eight minutes while committing eight turnovers against Murray-Wright's press.

The Spartans were able to adjust to the pressure somewhat in the second quarter, but Murray-Wright increased its lead at halftime to 38-16 after Dickinson and Alshirie Davis each scored layups in the closing seconds.

Stevenson coach Wayne Henry was disappointed with his team's defense, particularly after the Spartans held Redford Union to 21 points and Detroit Henry Ford to 28 in last week's district tournament.

"We lost focus on what we were doing," said Henry, whose team opened up in a matchup zone. "Instead of sliding and helping out, we turned and watched. We didn't step out in front of the cutters like we had been before.

"To beat them, we had to play better than we did against Henry Ford (a 61-28 victory)."

The Spartans played evenly against Murray-Wright in the second half (22-all), but the damage had been done in the first half.

"We see a lot of zones and you don't find many people that play us man-to-man," Murray-Wright coach Virginia Lawrence said. "We had a little bit of a plan and it was working for the most part.

"When you've got the (fast) break), you take it. And we were able to get some good shots."

Dickinson, who is considering Michigan State among a number of schools, ranks right up there with some of the best players to come out of Murray-Wright, according to Lawrence.

"Ebony can play all the positions," Lawrence said. "She has a repertoire of skills. She can handle the ball, shoot with either the left or right hand, drive to the basket, and shoot the three-pointer."

Had it not been for the ball-handling and passing of the 5-11 VanTiem, the score may have been worse.

"We had a lot of shots in and around the basket, but they had people altering our shots," Henry said. "Early on, we got a little impatient after we broke their press."

Junior Jenny Dulz and senior AnneMarie Aquino each added eight points for the Spartans.

Stevenson shot only 14 of 46 from the field (30 percent) and while committing 23 turnovers.

Murray-Wright had 17 turnovers and made 28 of 72 field goal attempts (38 percent).

Borgess revives in 2nd half to reach region final

Redford Bishop Borgess continued its drive toward a second-straight Class C girls basketball state championship with Monday's 57-41 regional semifinal win over Riverview Gabriel Richard.

The victory sends the Spartans, 22-2 overall, into tonight's 7 p.m. regional championship against Detroit Benedictine at Petersburg-Summerfield. Benedictine, led by Marlena Walker's 34 points and a three-point shot at the buzzer by Patrice Hearns, was a 70-69 upset winner against Sand Creek.

Borgess trailed 13-12 after one quarter and 26-25 at halftime, before dominating both ends of the court in the third quarter. Borgess outscored Gabriel Richard 17-5 in the third quarter to open up a 42-31 lead.

The Spartans outscored Richard 15-10 in the fourth quarter.

"We were down a point at the half and didn't expect to be," Borgess coach Dave Mann said. "We weren't ready to play at the start and they made us pay for it. Defensively, we just worked a lot harder in the second half."

Three Spartans scored in double figures, led by junior guard Adriane Bryant with 19 points. Senior center Marrie DuBose had 15 points and junior guard Maxann Reese added 13.

Julie Carafelli had 14 points, including four shots from three-point range, to lead Richard. Carizza Gizicki, a freshman guard, added nine points for Richard, which finished the season 13-9 overall.

Mann said the Spartans received further inspiration watching the Benedictine victory, which was played immediately following Borgess' game.

"That game got the girls' attention," Mann said, "because they expected all along to be playing Sand Creek for the regional title like last year. It showed them what can happen if they start looking ahead."

The current deer season marks Michigan's 100th year of licensed deer hunting.

"This is a landmark in the responsible management of wildlife for public benefit," said Department of Natural Resources Director Roland Harmes. "By commemorating this 100th licensed deer season, we're recognizing an important part of our Michigan heritage."

Before the end of the previous century, there were no regulations on the killing of deer. Early Michigan residents depended on deer for hides and food, and deer were taken by whatever means were practical. Snares and deadfalls were common, dogs were used to drive deer out of thickets, and deer were shot at night and while swimming or mired in deep snow.

As the herd decreased, people became concerned. The first deer regulation made it illegal to take deer during the nursing season, but this did not stop the decline of the deer population, which disappeared from southern Michigan in the 1870s.

Meanwhile, the deer herd in northern Michigan increased as logging improved deer habitat. The Michigan deer population peaked at about 1 million in 1880, and commercial interests quickly capitalized on this resource. Market hunting became a major industry, as hundreds of thousands of deer were shipped by rail to ready markets throughout Michigan and other states. In 1880, an estimated 66,000 deer were taken by market hunters, compared to 4,000 by recreational hunters.

Out of concern for this heavy commercial hunting, Michigan hunters formed the Michigan Sportsmen's Association. Through their lobbying efforts, a law was passed in 1881 to prohibit the sale of Michigan game meat in other states. The deer season was shortened from seven to five months, and it became unlawful to kill a deer while it was swimming in water. Then in 1887 a law was passed to prohibit the use of dogs or artificial lights to take deer. However, the deer herd still declined.

There were as few as 50,000 deer when, in 1895, a law was passed to establish the first deer hunting season Nov. 1-25, the first deer hunting license, and a bag limit of five deer of either sex per hunter. The significance of this law was that hunters themselves demanded this regulation. Individuals became organized to request action on the part of their state government to protect the welfare of the deer herd.

In 1895, a total of 14,499 hunters participated in the first licensed deer season and harvested 12,000 deer. This year, DNR staff expect 50 times as many hunters to participate and 20 times as many deer to be harvested. However, no change is expected in the level of hunter interest in Michigan's deer herd, and deer management continues to be an important year-round effort.

Church's annual creche exhibit grows to 600 displays

A local church is trying to bring out the Christ in Christmas again this year with The Creche, its annual display of Nativity scenes from throughout the world.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will display the creches along with handmade quilts and provide Christmas concerts 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Monday, Dec. 2, 3 and 5, and 1-9 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4, at the Livonia church at Six Mile and Merriman roads in Livonia.

"This is our gift to the community to bring our many cultures together in celebrating the true meaning of Christmas," said Leslie Snow, co-chair for this year's exhibit. "We hope that we can help the community, including ourselves pay more attention to the Christ in Christmas."

More than 600 Nativity scenes, ranging from dime-sized to life-sized and from more than 30 countries, will be represented at the church. The Nativity scenes are made of many materials, including clay, stone, porcelain, fabric, metals, gingerbread, chocolate, corn husks, shucks, Israeli olive wood and even mud and dung.

A creche is an artistic representation of the birth of Jesus. Whether called the French creche, the Italian presepia, the Spanish nacimiento, the German krippe, the Irish manger or the British crib, the re-creation of the Nativity scene is one of the oldest and most sacred Christmas traditions.

St. Francis of Assisi created the forerunner of modern creche in the Italian village of Greccio in 1223. One December night, he saw shepherds sleeping in moonlighted fields and recalled the first Christmas. Inspired by this sight, and desiring to see the Baby in the manger with his own eyes, he set about to re-enact the Bethlehem scene with real people and animals.

The invited villagers lighted the sky with their candles and torches and all were greatly moved by the tenderness and beauty of the scene. This portrayal of the Nativity prompted many others to depict the birth of Jesus, using their own materials and images.

During the succeeding centuries the tradition spread from Italy to France and throughout the world. The art form flourished in churches and homes, inspiring both kings and commoners.

People seek to capture the Nativity in a personal, meaningful way. A creche may be an elaborate, jeweled masterpiece, or a child's simple creation fashioned from clay. Many creches are an unusual reflection of differing cultures, but each expresses the artists' awe and joy in the birth of Jesus Christ.

"This is the seventh year for the creche display and each year more and more people are visiting," said Richard Thorderson, an associate provost at Wayne State University and co-chair of the display. "It's great to see our community pull together for something so important, yet virtually unrecognized worldwide — not Christmas but the actual birth of Christ.

"The creches all belong to private collectors. With the missionaries for our church serving around the world, it brings in some very unique Nativities."

The concerts this year will be 7-8 p.m. Friday, Sunday and Monday and 3-4 p.m. Saturday. According to Karen Spencer, chair of the musical programs, there will be several special features, including slide presentations and new music along with the traditional group vocals, solos and instrumentals.

Scheduled to appear are the Livonia Stevenson High School Village Singers, Livonia Churchill High School Choralation and members of the Livonia Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and surrounding cities, Spencer added.

Also on exhibit will be handpieced, hand-appliqued quilts. Sue Cleary of Livonia is one of the many women providing the quilts along with her mother Eunice Clevenger, who currently lives in Ohio.

"All who are within traveling distance are invited to share this special occasion with us," said co-chair Kathy Facione, a teacher at McKinley Elementary School in Livonia. "Each year attendance has doubled. We're excited that the creche has caught on so quickly in our community.

"It's a great time to bring the community together and appreciate others' arts and talents along with celebrating the birth of Christ."

Blessed event: Porcelain dolls depicting The Nativity, issued by Ashton Drake Galleries, will be on display Dec. 2-3 and 5 at Livonia's Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints.

Create your own holiday spirit

Thanksgiving weekend is the official starting time for decorating the home for the holidays. Florists are stocking up on greens, pine cones, poinsettias, and silk to create fresh arrangements, wreaths and silk centerpieces. These designing experts have up-to-the-minute information on what's in for trimming your home this season. Here are their holiday decorating tips:

According to the folks at My Lady's Florist in Westland, poinsettias, fresh greens and silks will be popular again this year for decorating homes.

"It's a great time of year for traditional. Poinsettias, people have come to know that's a Christmas item. They still want the Christmas greens, the bulbs. A brass horn or Christmas sleigh can be recycled in an arrangement next year," said owner, Lawrence Derderian.

"A fresh arrangement fills their traditional need to have that holiday quality, something that's alive. With so many people having silk and artificial trees now, a fresh arrangement can still give the scent of Christmas. We use only pine because of the scent. Not only is it Christmasy looking, but it smells nice."

Pink and white poinsettias were a big seller last season as were white and gold Christmas trees. Many more people are draping garland, fresh and fake, over fireplaces and staircases to add a touch of spice. A potted poinsettia placed on each step of a staircase creates a dramatic vista leading to an upper level.

"It's not as traditional as it used to be. Fresh greenery is expensive because the roping is hand-tied. With the silk, you can use it again next year," said Pam Prough, a designer for the full service florist.

Prough expects this holiday to see a lot of pink, mauve, gold and silver decorations. Having been in the business for 11 years Prough has noticed that today, less is more.

"People want to be more elegant, but want less on them (wreaths). Less is better. If they're too elaborate, you can't close the door. People want things they can keep and add to next year," said Prough of Westland.

As far as arrangements, the reverse is true. Christmas picks are becoming more popular every year to add a little pizzazz to all that greenery.

"Christmas picks like boxes, reindeers, snowmen and candy canes are popular. Frosted pine cones are in this year, anything that adds height and dimension."

Oddly enough, My Lady's Florist sells a lot of Christmas arrangements for Thanksgiving. As Miss Manners will tell you, it is proper to bring flowers or a little gift for the hostess when asked to dinner.

"Christmas greens last forever if you keep them watered. A dish garden or terrarium is nice for just the sentiment itself. It's a nice

CHRISTMAS WALK

Soak in the sights and scents of the season at the sixth annual Christmas Walk to benefit Greenmead Historical village Saturday, Dec. 3. From the smell of bayberry and pine to sleigh bells ringing in the air, it's all bound to be there.

by Linda Chomin – staff writer

The Friends for the Development of Greenmead will host a Christmas Walk featuring seven Livonia homes 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3. Proceeds will benefit the restoration of the Alexander Blue House at Greenmead Historical Village in Livonia.

Tickets are $7 in advance or $8 on the day of the walk, and are available at the Livonia Civic Center Library, Five Mile east of Farmington.

Homes on the walk range from a 3,500 square foot contemporary with alabaster fireplace to an all solar home. Five of the homes will be decorated by local florists.

"I'm excited about the variety from the two spacious contemporaries to our old 1850s farmhouse, it's amazing," said Friends president, Janet Bennett.

"Because we have seven beautiful homes on the walk, when they get done they will want to start decorating," hostess chairperson, Rosemary Farobaugh added enthusiastically.

Greeting visitors

Seven of Santa's reindeer will greet visitors to the 3,000 square foot home of Guilia and Vitto DePalma. Guilia handcrafted the ceramic creations resting on the floor of the two-story foyer in preparation for their Christmas Eve flight. Directly to the left is a Christmas tree decorated with peach and teal ornaments and ribbons, all handmade by Giulia. Beginning Thanksgiving weekend it will take two days to decorate nearly every inch of the DePalma's four bedroom home built in 1990.

"Christmas time is great to have a family, the togetherness including all the grandchildren. We're a very close family anyway, but the holidays make it more so," said Vitto DePalma.

Thirty-two family members including daughter, Grace, 25 and son, Paul, 23 will gather this Christmas in the DePalma's Great Room where the focal point is a marble fireplace reaching almost to the ceiling. The newest diners at the table will be a less fortunate family from their parish, St. Aidan's in Livonia.

"It was my daughter's idea, instead of exchanging gifts this year," said Guilia. "After all, that's what Chistmas is, to do some good charity for other people."

Special touches

All around the expansive home you will find Guilia's touch from silk arrangements to swags. Even the skirt beneath the Christmas tree, and a ceramic lighted wreath over the fireplace are hers. In the music room, a Christmas nativity scene surrounded by a white wonderland village is Guilia's work as well. While the interior is her decorating domain, Vitto will festively deck the exterior with two beautiful wreaths.

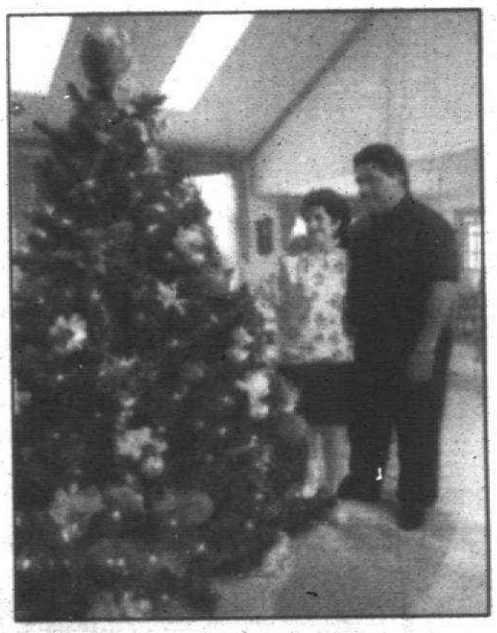

Not to be missed is the breath taking master bathroom. Throughout the house, the work of Guilia's green thumb can be seen in the myriad of thriving houseplants. As part of the walk, Cardwell Florist in Livonia will accent the decorations in the DePalma home.

A house of light best describes the 3,500 square foot home of Michaila and Jerry Burt. A large expanse of windows in the Great Room brings the woodland-like backyard indoors. Throughout, the home is decorated in a palette of mauve and rose which works well with the exquisite white-washed oak wood work marked by rosettes at every turn.

The English Country style decor, Michaila's handiwork, was in place six weeks after they moved in. A Christmas tree in the Great Room is decorated in off white, gold and burgundy. Green velvet bows at the ceiling circle the kitchen. A Victorian Father Christmas dressed in mauve awaits half way up the staircase.

A native of Connecticut, Michaila returns frequently to the East Coast. Through the years she has acquired many decorations from her trips to Williamsburg. Carolers by Byer's collectibles were annual gifts from her sister. This Christmas Eve the Burt's three children and granddaughter will gather to share their holiday with those alone this season.

Positive traditions

"I love the holidays, the fact that there's a reason to celebrate life and you accentuate the positive," said Michaila Burt. "A nice tradition is that we always invite people who don't have other places to go, whether they're newly-divorced or widowed, or whatever the reason they're not able to be with with their families."

Premier Designs & Gifts will decorate the Burt's home for Christmas.

Other homes sure to be popular on the walk include an 1850s Greek Revival farmhouse with a brace frame construction distinguishable by the lack of nails used during construction and large beams forming the main part of the structure into which smaller beams are notched to form the frame. Andrea and Glenn Schuldt purchased the home in 1984 in poor condition. Previous owners had installed paneling and acoustical ceiling tile throughout, hiding a sliding oak door. The Schuldt's stripped the house down to the beams, and restored the original flooring in the kitchen, 15 foot continuous strips milled from local trees.

The Christmas tree in the kitchen is decorated with cookie cutters and kitchen items. Brightly-colored wallpaper and many Victorian touches will be accented by decorations from Leslie's Flowers & Gifts in Redford.

"Because it is a benefit for Greenmead, we wanted to help in any way possible. My wife works a lot with Questors and I'm on the Historical Preservation Commission," said Glenn Schuldt.

China theme

Built in the 1920s, an English Tudor in Old Rosedale was updated and decorated by the present owners in an eclectic manner. They have used their China theme as a focal point to build their color scheme around. A magnolia theme will be worked into the Christmas decorations by the owners.

Decorated in an elegant traditional style, a ranch house sports many antiques. The owners will decorate their home themselves.

An extensively remodeled Cape Cod home is set amongst mature trees and a running stream. Wide flooring boards in the kitchen were brought from northern Michigan. Market Place Florist of Livonia will be working with the owners on the decorations.

A three-level solar home built into a ravine on a wooded lot is sure to be a major attraction on the walk. The owners will be present to explain the aspect of heating the home by using energy from the sun and a wood burning stove. Village Green Florist will assist them in decorating the home.

Besides the Christmas Walk, Friends for the Development of Greenmead hold an annual garden walk in June. A white clapboard, two story Italianate farm house, the Alexander Blue House was built more than 130 years ago by Judge Blue, a Justice of the Peace. It is one of 11 structures in the village of Greenmead.

"Last year we donated $25,000 to the house for a new furnace and to have the basement floor poured," said walk hostess, Dee Dee Ditmar.

"People drive by and wonder what's been done, but the inside, it's being redone first."

At Ribar's Flowers in Plymouth owner, Pat Ribar says the deep rich tones are in, the jewel tones. Fresh greens in arrangements are fragrant, but there's always a use for artificial with everyone's busy lifestyle these days.

"There's a lot of interest in permanent arrangements, wreaths and garland with pomegranates and cones. We do a lot of the winter look with branches and vines. That way it can be up through March," said Ribar.

"The new look is latex, kind of a silk leaf. It looks so real it almost has fragrance."

Gay Burns, a floral designer at Garden City Florist says when it comes to creating your own decorations you can't go wrong with Christmas greens, pine cones and cinnamon sticks.

"Centerpieces with hurricane lamps were popular last year with greens. The fresh greens last longer especially if they're put into a container in an oasis with water." Poinsettias are always popular as holiday decorations at Leslie's Flowers & Gifts in Redford.

"We sell a lot of fresh. When someone thinks poinsettias they think red but there are 100 and some varieties from blush and peach to two-tone pinks, salmon and white. There's even a variety called yellow," said owner, John Merlino.

Five or 10 years ago, silk was unpopular for decorating. Today's much-improved product has changed that," he said.

"Silk is wonderful. It's a nice idea because they can use it next year. You can add to it. You can stick in pine cones. Now with all the pot pourri, you can have silk and have your home smell nice, too."

A few final tips from Scott Smith at Penniman Showcase of Arts and Crafts in Plymouth as to what's in this year.

"Things with a spiritual theme are popular. Angels are everywhere. The trend in decorating is elegant. Fyrmal is in, incorporating strange objects like an old door, painting it gold and arranging it to look like a page out of a storybook."

Art fair seeking promotional design

The Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair will celebrate its 25th year in 1995 and is now searching nationwide for a promotional design for the upcoming fair.

Sponsored by the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair is one of three simultaneous art fairs that take place on the streets of Ann Arbor each July. This fair is the largest and most diverse of the three, featuring the work of 560 artists and craftspeople.

Each year, the Michigan Guild produces and sells T-shirts and other promotional items as part of their fund-raising efforts. A different design is used each year. All entries for the 1995 design must follow the guidelines and procedures listed in the guild's brochure in order to be eligible. The design will be chosen by members of the guild staff.

Potential uses for the design include advertising posters and postcards, T-shirts, buttons, magnets, tote bags, hats, newspaper advertising and signs.

Artists can enter more than one design. All entries must arrive at the guild office no later than Wednesday, Nov. 30.

A $500 honorarium will be paid to the artist of the chosen design. In consideration for the monetary payment, the recipient will be required to tender all ownership and copyrights for the chosen design.

For more information, call Marilyn Gouin at (313) 662-3382 or write the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, 118 N. Fourth Ave., Ann Arbor 48104-1402.

More than 400,000 visitors attend the fair, a four-day extravaganza. The visual artists are joined by musical performers, a free family arts activity area called The Imagination Station, unusual food booths from local eateries and sidewalk sales.

The fair showcases a diverse assortment of fine arts and contemporary American crafts, ranging from traditional baskets to contemporary gold jewelry. Other art works exhibited include sculpture, painting, photography, fiber arts, ceramics, toys and glassworks.

■ ART EXHIBIT OPENING

The Garden City Fine Arts Association will present its annual Holiday Exhibit and Sale Dec. 12-17 at Sheridan Square 30116 Ford Road in Garden City.

Nearly 45 original artworks in a variety of mediums will be on hand. The show will be judged by Gary Wilson, associate professor of art at Monroe Community College. Earlier in the year, Willson was a guest speaker at a GCFAA meeting.

The public is invited to attend an opening reception and awards ceremony beginning at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 12 at Sheridan Square. Refreshments will be served.

Wilson will award Best of Show ($50); and First ($40), Second ($25), and Third Place ($15) in two separate categories, wet and dry. There will also be five Honorable Mentions awarded. Visitors will vote on a People's Choice award to be given at the end of the show's run.

■ VOLUNTEERISM'S GOOD FOR YOU

A survey of Michigan adults regarding their volunteer activities found that 12 percent volunteered their time to arts and cultural organizations; 68 percent were males as compared to 60 percent females. The 1992 Michigan State University survey was commissioned by the Michigan Campaign for Volunteerism.

It's not hard to find arts organizations that need help. Just look around. Observerland arts councils and commissions as well as Very Special Arts, and the Detroit Institute of Arts are always looking for volunteers.

According to the Voluntary Action Center of Greater Kalamazoo Volunteer Forum, March-April 1994, as volunteering patterns have changed, so have people's perceptions of reward and recognition. Volunteers value the personal development training, interaction with others, job enhancement, and tangible rewards such as discounts on memberships, tickets or gift items that personally affect them.

Contemporary sculptor works in wood and clay

SPECIAL WRITER

Betty Marianetti sculpts abstract forms from alabaster, wood and clay. Her contemporary sculpture is on display through Nov. 27 in the Livonia Arts Commission's showcases on the second floor of the Civic Center Library, Five Mile east of Farmington.

Marianetti, an instructor at the Art Palette in Livonia, earned her bachelor of fine arts degree from Madonna University in 1993. She works part time at the Print Gallery in Southfield.

"It's mostly contemporary and it's the style I prefer. I like the fact that she works with different materials," said arts commissioner, Lee Alanskas.

A work not to be missed in this exhibition is the exquisite alabaster sculpture, "Enveloping Love II." The lyrical line of the form leads the viewer's eye in an around the head and shoulders of the work very successfully.

"I like the touching part of it. The fact you can touch and be able to feel the piece I'm working on," said Marianetti of Novi.

Marianetti usually starts with a sketch. At other times she begins directly working with the clay, wood or stone. if she hits a snag, or a wood grain that's troublesome, the only solution is to follow its, lead.

"You kind of try to listen to what's in the piece, what the piece is trying to tell you," said the 52 year old sculptor. Originally from Rochester, New York, Marianetti moved to Novi eight years ago because of her husband's job. Only in the last several years has she begun to involve herself with sculpture. She prefers working in stone.

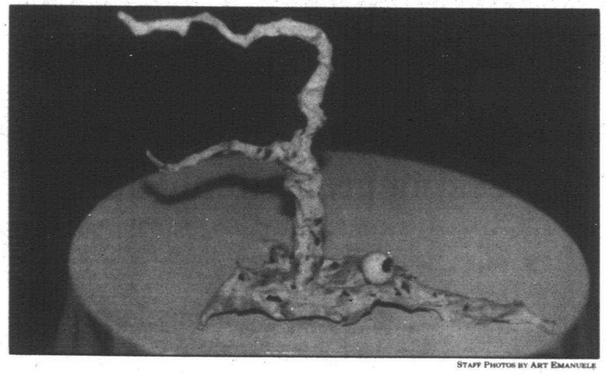

"There's so many different colors of stone. I like the translucent Italian white. When I get the stone it's very rough, then I start chipping. I like watching how the stone evolves. When I finish, it's really interesting to see the shine and color."

"Breaking Free" features an American Bald Eagle emerging from a piece of roughly hewn stone. Most of the work is non-representational abstract. But a few pieces like the eagle, and works from the Enveloping Love series give a hint of the subject matter.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

■ THE MOLE HOLE
Local photographer Karen Lueck has brought life and vibrancy to her photographs the old-fashioned way: She paints them the way they used to be before color film was developed. Lueck's work is on display at the gallery, 128 S. Woodward in Birmingham. Among the scenes and landmarks captured are Quarton Lake, the Birmingham Theatre, the falls at Quarton Lake, St. James Church and the Hunter House. Custom work is available. Call (810) 644-8233.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Informed real estate clients study up

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

'Home buying and selling is the most stressful event in a person's life — besides death — and it's probably the largest expenditure most of us will make in our lifetime,'

Kevin Berry
ERA Quality REalty

Consumers don't have to look far for up-to-date information about buying or selling real estate. In fact, some of the best researched material, geared for first-time or seasoned home buyers and sellers, is available free from real estate brokers in Observer & Eccentric communities.

In the first of a two-part series, here's a sampling of the literature available to real estate clients:

■ ERA Real Estate's comprehensive consumer guide, "Answers," is worth keeping after the transaction. The 75-page reference answers the 91 most frequently asked questions about buying or selling real estate, among them: What's a fair asking price; how to find a mortgage lender; how much house can you afford, is an older home as good a value as a new one, and do you need a Multiple Listing Service. It has easy to understand chapters on buying, selling, financing and general home maintenance.

The financing section alone is worth a look. It includes a mortgage chart with a range of interest rates; definitions and the pros and cons of six different mortgages, a rundown of typical closing fees, and a housing cost worksheet.

The glossary defines the most commonly used real estate terms. Each chapter is sprinkled with interesting buying and selling tips: before listing, give the house a gas-powered pressure wash; if commute time is important, test drive to work from the home you're considering; sellers tend to be more flexible the longer a house is on the market, so check the original listing date; appliances listed "as is" probably are on their last legs. There's a home features worksheet, an inspection checklist, refinancing guidelines and maintenance tips to help add to a home's value at resale time.

ERA, which has offices in almost every Observer & Eccentric community, said it developed the guide to make the purchase or sale of a home less stressful.

"Home buying and selling is the most stressful event in a person's life — besides death — and it's probably the largest expenditure most of us will make in our lifetime," said broker-owner Kevin Berry of ERA Quality Realty in Redford.

For a free copy, call 1(800) 362-7537, or stop in an ERA office.

■ Prudential Great Lakes Realty, headquartered in Birmingham, has a slew of consumer handouts: an estimated payment chart based on a 30-year fixed loan; home shopping checklist; buyer's financial worksheet; moving checklist; glossary of real estate terms, and tips for first-time buyers. "Here's How to Save the Real Estate Commission" is a mind-boggling, 20-step guide for selling your own home. Even if you wind up listing with an agent, the guide shows what your real estate sales commission pays for.

Prudential agents will customize an information packet for potential clients who want to begin some fact-finding.

Associate broker Jim Surret, manager of Prudential Great Lakes in Rochester Hills, says make sure the consumer information you read reflects the latest changes in real estate law, such as the Seller's Disclosure Act, Agency Disclosure Act and Homestead Exemption Act.

■ RE/MAX in the hills, Bloomfield Hills, will assemble a relocation package if you're moving from Wayne to Oakland counties or across the country. They also supply potential buyers and sellers with a checklist that includes each step in the sale or purchase of a home.

Only 30 percent of RE/MAX in the hills' clients are first-time buyers, but broker-owner Joan Downing says it's important for every buyer to understand what happens during a real estate transaction.

"Informing and educating buyers and sellers is an important job. Most of our clients have purchased before, but they still want to know what will hit them," she said.

Board backs people's interests; sellers have obligations

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Certain members of our association are concerned about a restaurant that plans to open in a commercial strip that abuts our condominium association.

Do we have an interest in getting involved in behalf of our residents to try to keep the restaurant from obtaining proper zoning?

A. The board of directors' paramount concern should be the best interests of the association and its members.

While the condominium association normally does not own real estate, per se, it does have a vested interest in ensuring that the tranquility and enjoyment of its members is developed and preserved.

To that end, our experience has been that condominium associations and their counsel can be successful in defeating what are perceived to be undesirable commercial facilities from seeking inappropriate zoning variances.

However, the association must ensure the position it takes is reasonable and is supported by the majority of the condominium association members.

Q. Is there anything I can do as a seller under the law in providing the purchaser with a seller's disclosure statement?

A. Yes, in lieu of providing the seller's disclosure statement, the seller can provide a prospective purchaser with a report prepared by a licensed contractor, if the report is provided upon the request of a prospective purchaser.

However, this exemption will not help the seller if the seller had knowledge of a known defect or condition that contradicts the report provided by the licensed expert.

In other words, if your inspector misses a leaking roof and the seller is aware of the problem from inhabiting the property, the seller would still be required to disclose the problem to the prospective purchaser.

Moreover, the seller's disclosure statement must be provided to a prospective purchaser before the seller accepts an offer made by the prospective purchaser.

If the seller's disclosure statement is not provided to the prospective purchaser until after a purchase agreement has been signed by the seller, then upon receipt of the seller's disclosure statement, the purchaser is provided 72 hours in the case of personal delivery, and 120 hours in the case of delivery by registered mail, to recind the transaction.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham-area attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate and corporate law.

Builder enters Hall of Fame

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan is one of the largest professional associations in the nation, with some 2,000 members. Several individuals receive special recognition every year for service to the organization and the building industry.

A young Dick Roeser, discharged from the Army with a degree from General Motors Institute in sales management, had an interview scheduled with GM in what turned out to be a pivotal career day in 1959.

"I sat in the lobby and waited and waited," Roeser recalled. "I've always been a high-energy person. Another thing with energy is impatience. I didn't like waiting."

Roeser had the interview and eventually was offered a job. No thanks, he said.

Later, acting on advice from a friend of his father and some personal research, Roeser got involved in selling prefabricated houses and development tracts.

He was on his way.

Now, 35 later, Roeser has been selected for induction into the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan Hall of Fame. That's the highest award the professional association can bestow on its members.

He and his partner, James C. Beachum, have built, own and manage 17 office buildings in southeastern Michigan with an aggregate size of 500,000 square feet worth more than $50 million.

Roeser is a past BASM president, and a former director of the National Association of Home Builders and the Michigan Association of Home Builders.

"The builder's association has promoted better housing, higher standards over the years," he said. "It helps the industry fight some of the anti-growth legislation and problems facing all builders.

"Networking and communication of ideas between builders is very important," Roeser said. "We have common goals, and we can all learn from one another.

Builder honored: Fred I. Capaldi, who has been involved in the residential construction business his entire life, is BASM's Builder of the Year.

Meet the Builder of the Year

Fred I. Capaldi, son of a builder, always figured he'd end up in the construction business, even while studying economics at the University of Detroit.

"Since I was 12 years old, I wanted a job in summer," he said. "I started on job sites in miscellaneous labor, sweeping out houses. When I got my driver's license, I became a go-fer.

"I guess when I was in college, I ran some jobs myself," Capaldi continued. "My dad sent me out to meet with carpenters."

However, Capaldi's mother, Louise, attempted to steer him in other directions.

"She tried to discourage me," he said. "She would say, 'Look at all the aggravation your father has.' There is aggravation in this business. There's aggravation in every business."

Capaldi, a residential custom builder/remodeler in Rochester Hills, has been selected Builder of the Year by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan. This is his 29th year in the business.

"I was surprised and shocked when told that I'd been nominated," he said. "I told myself I know a lot of builders who could be builder of the year.

"Buzz Silverman won last year," Capaldi said. "He's someone well respected in the business. The name goes back many years. My name next to it - I can't believe it."

Capaldi, who now runs the family business, builds about 10 new houses a year, most starting at $200,000. About half of his overall volume is major renovation projects.

"I think the biggest satisfaction is being able to create something," he said.

"When you sit down with someone who has dreams of a house they want built but they're not focused in - to sit down and take their dreams and put them down on paper then build them - I think that's my biggest satisfaction."

Capaldi, a past BASM president, has channeled his construction efforts in Oakland County - Rochester Hills, Birmingham, Bloomfield and Oakland Township.

"First of all, you've really got to have a dedication to the business and really have to have an understanding family," he said of his success. "In fact, my wife, Barbara, works in the business with us. She's office manager.

"I think you have to have a good sensitivity to the people you're working for," Capaldi continued. "Word spreads that Fred will go out of his way to accommodate you.

Developer wins honors

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Donald Van Every, a Bloomfield Hills resident, has enjoyed a long, varied and successful involvement with real estate.

He's sold houses, built houses and condominiums, and developed raw land into buildable lots.

This year, Van Every was selected Developer of the Year by BASM. He previously had been inducted into the association's hall of fame.

His company, Streamwood Development, is currently active in Paint Creek Ridge, Silver Bell Village and White Oak subdivisions in Orion Township. Willow Pond is on the drawing board for White Lake Township.

"There really isn't land all over the place," Van Every said. "You have to know the marketplace, have a feeling where development is going. As each (site) fills up, you keep moving out. That's what it's all about."

Van Every, 71, decided to concentrate on developing - preparing site plans and placing roads, water lines and sewers - rather than building about six years ago.

"I've got a place in Naples, Fla.," he said. "My plan now is to spend half of each month in Naples. You can't run a building operation that way. You can be in land development."

For 30 years, he and partner William Allen, doing business as Van Allen Builders, built houses and condominiums in Livonia, Southfield and Troy.

Van Every figured that real estate would surge as he prepared to leave the service after World War II.

"I was married. It was very evident a lot of housing was going to be needed with all of us guys coming back together at the same time," he said.

The first consideration in selecting land for development is to find a parcel in the general direction of population movement, Van Every said.

"Number two, is the ground usable?" he said. "You try to find a piece that's easily workable. A lot of land left today you have heavy woods or water. That's why it's been by-passed before."

Donald Van Every
developer of the year

Availability of water and sewers and the relative cost to connect are major pieces of the puzzle, Van Every added.

He's bothered by anti-growth sentiments sometimes expressed at public hearings that get-rich-quick developers don't even live where they plan to develop.

"It's hard for them to understand that we live in a community, that we're part of a community," Van Every said. "I've lived in communities I've developed in. It isn't possible to live in every community."

Profit is a two-way street, he added.

"You can make it or lose it, too," Van Every said. "The market turns. You're paying interest, carrying charges and can't sell a lot for what it's worth."

Van Every doesn't blame himself or other developers for urban sprawl.

"We don't force people to live or buy in an area," he said. "People buy the type of housing and size lot they want. We just try to re-

Here's how to subscribe to Internet listservers

EMORY DANIELS

Last week's column was a general overview of LISTSERV as a discussion forum. This week let's attack the keyboard.

A quick review. To access a LISTSERV discussion forum, we send the request to a specific e-mail address using the C for Compose command in Pine. We fill in the e-mail address of the Listserv administrator on the "To:" line and leave all other portions of the header blank. In the message area we type the command line (subscribe or unsubscribe) and then type Control X to send.

When we receive the subscription confirmation message, we write down in a notebook the one-line command instructions on how to cancel our subscription. Here are some Listserv sites, one of which you may wish to try:

■ Ballet-Modern-Dance is a LISTSERV access to the USENET alt-arts.ballet forum for those users without USENET access. To subscribe:

— send e-mail message to listserv@netcom.com

— In body of e-mail message, type subscribe ballet-modern-dance;

■ Star Wars Rile Playing Discussion is a game of adventure and interaction set in the Star Wars universe. The list is manually maintained so it will take awhile for new subscribers to be added to list:

— jae§w-rpg-request@dry-cas.club.cc.cmu.edu

— SUBSCRIBE (your e-mail address) (your first and last name);

■ PUBLABOR is devoted to discussion of unions and unionism in public sector employment, including federal, state, county and municipal levels. Topics include but not limited to local union business, legislation, contracts. Anyone welcome to subscribe, including unionists and managers:

— LISTSERV@RELAY.ADP.WISC.EDU

— SUBSCRIBE PUBLABOR (your name);

■ Netsurfer is a discussion forum on the Internet in general:

— nadigest-request@netsurf.com

— subscribe nadigest-text (for ASCII version)

— subscribe nadigest-html (for hypertext version);

■ Party of Five is a list for discussing the Fox network television series "Party of Five." To subscribe write a request with conversational sentences in the message area and address to salingers-request@wwa.com.

■ ADLAW is a moderated list for those interested in discussions and updates about advertising law:

— adlaw-request@webcom.com

— Subscribe

Adlaw apparently is the only discussion list generated from this host, which is why you don't need to list the topic. If it bounces back, though, I'd resend with "Subscribe Adlaw" command.

■ INCLASS is about using the Internet in the classroom under sponsorship of Canada's SchoolNet. INCLASS promotes the use of the Internet as a means to keep students interested in life-long learning,focusing on adapting successfully and creatively to change, concentrating on aiming for personal excellence:

— Inclass@oise.on.ca

— subscribe (your first and last name);

■ Undercover, the Rolling Stones digest. This list has changed locations and can now be joined by sending a message to a real human with a short written conversational request. Send request to undercover-request@tempest.cis.uoguelph.ca.

Before going further, an important distinction must be learned by those users who want to avoid embarrassment. Commands are sent to the List Administrator, messages to the List itself. If the discussion list name is "MacAttack," and the host of the List is McDonald University, you would send commands to LISTSERV@McDonaldU.com (a fictitious site) but you would reply to MacAttack@McDonaldU.com. Otherwise your commands end up on the forum for all to read and laugh at. So write down this reminder: Send your LETTERS to the List Address; send your COMMANDS to the LISTSERV address.

Some other commands that might be useful are:

GET (specific List topic name) FMAIL (returns a specific file to you);

SET (listname) DIGEST (sends messages in one listing, daily or weekly);

SET (listname) MAIL (receive messages individually);

SET (listname) NOMAIL (to suspend getting messages while or vacation or for other reasons);

REVIEW (listname) FMAIL (to get a list of subscribers to List);

INDEX (listname) (to get a.n archive of postings).

You can try the GET command to obtain by e-mail from the University of North Carolina a copy of Barbara Semonche's updated syllabus and reading list for her database journalism class at UNC:

— LISTSERV@ULKYVM.LOUISVILLE.EDU

— GET DBJOURN UNCSYL FMAIL

— GET DBJOURN UNCREAD FMAIL.

In the above example, note that "DBJOURN" is the file type (database journalism) and "UNCSLY" is the file name (University of North Carolina Syllabus). The FMAIL command tells the Listserv administrator to send the syllabus to you using e-mail.

Like other Internet tools, LISTSERV has more advanced functions that readers can learn on their own.

You can direct questions to Emory Daniels by e-mail with emory@econline.com, at voice mail at 953-2047 then dial 1910, or fax number 591-7279.

Van Every and wife, Jean, are parents to Donna Jean and Sandra Lee and grandparents to four. He enjoys golf and playing the organ.

"My basic kick in developing — going back through the subdivisions a few years later. Usually you're thrilled to see what's happened. You literally have an effect on the future."

Gerald Kosmensky, a builder and property manager, is a long time friend of Van Every.

"He's extremely competent," said Robert Brody, a Bloomfield Hills developer/builder. "He has experience, lots of experience.

Capaldi believes that the successful builder today needs both formal education and hands-on work in the trades. You need a business background and practical experience background," he said.

Mark Guidobono, a Northville residential builder, described Capaldi as one of the most honorable builders in the business.

A season of giving...

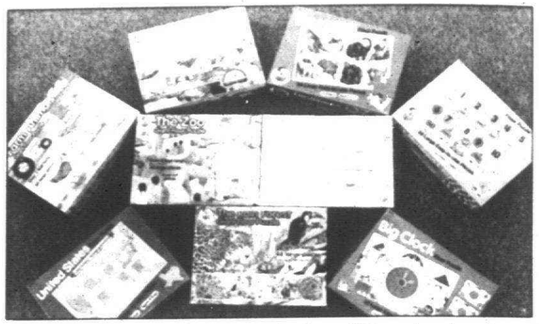

Thanksgiving weekend marks a celebration of family and food, football games and fellowship. It also heralds the start of the holiday shopping season with busy Santas making their lists, checking them twice and venturing into the crowded shops of their local communities.

Before making that annual pilgrimage to malls and main streets, however, take some time to pour over our holiday gift guide supplement. We hope it will inspire you with unique gift ideas for everyone on your list. You'll find everthing you need from gifts, to home-decorating items, to crafts at local specialty shops, department stores and shopping malls. Here's a round-up of the best-of-the-best.

The staff of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers offers you and your family the warmest wishes this holiday season.

Step off beaten path to find toys that last

By Barbara Wilson
Staff Writer

Many grandparents have been caught pulling their hair out trying to find the perfect gift for their grandchildren thus turning a jolly Christmas into a grumpy one overnight.

They are frustrated by the notion of finding the perfect gift that is just the thing the child always wanted.

Too often, however, it seems they fall back on clothing or fad toys that are not necessarily pleasing to them nor do they prompt an overwhelming response from the recipient.

Some retailers suggest that these harried shoppers relax and try out some smaller specialty toy stores, teacher's stores and even hobby shops to find a gift that will satisfy them and their grandchildren.

Educators agree that books make wonderful gifts for children and grandparents might make it a tradition to expand their grandchildren's library every holiday season. Hardcover books at the appropriate age level are a gift that keeps giving all year long.

Grandparents might also consider buying museum quality books — available at educational stores, museums and through mail order — of animal life or the solar system or prehistoric times. For school age children these books might spark some interest and influence them to read more on the subject.

By avoiding the mega giant toy stores, grandparents might find toy stores where they receive more specialized attention and are even able to play with the toys before making their choices.

Toy shoppers can solve their woes and regain some seasonal cheer by visiting a specialty toy store or even a teacher's supply store, says Peter Reynolds, president of BRIO Corp., a toy company based in Milwaukee. The specialty stores emphasize toys that encourage creative play and usually aren't available in the mass market.

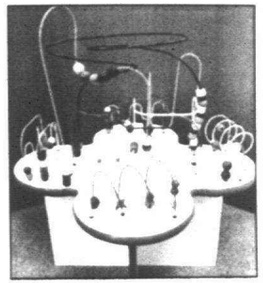

"Shoppers can turn to specialty toy retailers for personal service in selecting good toys that fit their particular children's interests and developmental needs," Reynolds said. "These retailers understand toys and play and can be good resources."

The importance of play and good toys is a message more adults are taking to heart, especially after they've been disappointed with some commercially promoted toys.

Christmas, however, can be a particularly emotional time for making toy purchasing decisions. There's a tendency for grandparents and other relatives to have a specific list from the child, and they feel under great pressure to fill it.

If consumers want to give toys that children will enjoy long after the holidays, however, they need to evaluate the toys and make informed decisions, Franklin and Reynolds emphasize. Specialty toy retailers, who know their products and are willing to work one on one with a customer, can help Pampering: Instead of the traditional sweater under the Christmas tree this year, try a gift certificate for a day of pampering at an area salon. Tamara's offers a package that includes a manicure, pedicure, champagne lunch and more.

Pamper your partner

STAFF WRITER

Finding just the right gift for that favorite person in your life who is always rushed and harried and seldom takes time out for themselves may seem complicated, but it shouldn't be.

Simply give them the gift they would never give themselves. A day in a spa or salon, a weekend trip to a luxurious hotel, a custom made shirt or suit, or how about maid service for a month.

If you're tired of buying a sweater or book for that favorite someone, try a gift certificate for pampering.

Charisma, a full-service salon in Laurel Park Place Mall, pampers many pooped moms and dads. Salon coordinator Judy Briney said they are still honoring gift certificates from last Christmas that people decided to hold onto until they were in desperate need for a "pick me up."

Charisma's Day of Beauty package for women includes a massage, facial, manicure, pedicure, make up application, hair cut and a catered lunch for $175. A similar package for men includes a haircut, shave, shoe shine and massage for $68.

Gift certificates can be purchased for individual services at about $40 each.

The Total You, on Grand River in Farmington, offers a pamper package for $145 that includes 50 minutes in a sauna or steam room, 90 minute massage, facial, manicure and paraffin dip for your hands, a pedicure and a catered lunch.

Owner Nanci Mantirri said the package has been a very popular gift for the holidays because women need real pampering especially during the cold, long months of January and February.

Tamara Institut De Beaute on Northwestern Highway in Farmington, also offers packages that will leave your haggard partner with an added skip in his or her step. Salon manager Barb Whisnant said their luxury packages are very popular holidays and are enjoyed all year long.

For women, the full package includes a skin consultation, European facial and neck firming treatment, one hour therapeutic massage with sauna, hot oil manicure with liquid nail wrap, pedicure with foot treatment, eyebrow arch, make up application, scalp treatment, finished hairstyle and champagne lunch.

For him, Tamara offers a jacuzzi, a one hour therapeutic massage, hot oil manicure and champagne.

If your partner is a hard working professional who enjoys looking their best, another great gift option might be a gift certificate for custom made suits or shirts. For the hard to fit man, a custom made suit fits the bill for feeling great.

Prices vary considerably depending on the cloth and style selected. At LaModa Tailor Shop, Six Mile and Newburgh in Livonia, a custom made suit for men or women can cost from $500 to $1,000.

Holiday crafts limited only by imagination

By Barbara Wilson
Staff Writer

The creativity bug has bitten most everyone these days. Painting, sewing, flower arranging and just about any other kind of craft can be converted into a holiday gift or a decoration for the home.

The craft is better still when children can become involved in the project. "The kids love doing the crafts," said Mary Locke, craft consultant for Frank's Super Crafts store in Westland. "We have them in for parties and demonstrations and there are so many things they can make that make really nice gifts."

Most local craft stores already have a large supply of Christmas merchandise designed to spark the imagination and get the creative juices flowing. A walk down the aisles will result in a plethora of projects to entice you, but Locke warns not to get too far ahead of yourself.

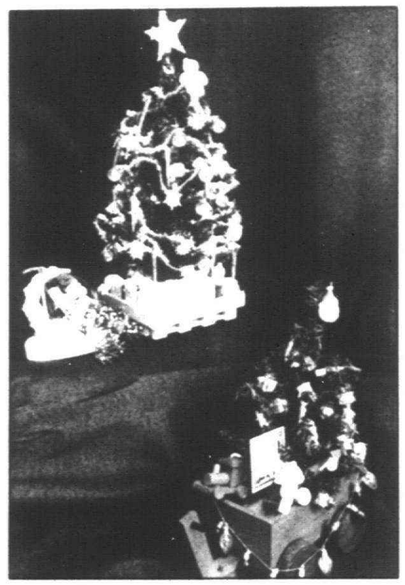

"Sometimes people buy supplies for too many projects that they will never be able to finish in time for Christmas," she said. "It's best to have realistic expectations so you can spend some time and do a good job with each project. If time allows, you can always go back and get things for another project."

Kits for needlework like counted cross stitch, crewel and embroidery can be very time-consuming, especially when making a tablecloth, Christmas tree skirt or stocking. Locke suggests these projects be started far in advance unless you have a lot of time on your hands to work on the project. Many craft enthusiasts buy these kits after the holiday season, and work on them all year long.

Some less complicated ideas for holiday gifts follow.

■ An item that first became popular with crafters last holiday season are glass and acrylic ornaments for the Christmas tree that can be decorated in almost any fashion. The glass ornaments can be painted with acrylic paints in several fashions to achieve a beautiful effect. Pictures and designs can be painted onto the outside of the ornament or paint can be poured inside the glass ball, swirled around and allowed to dry and drain in an egg carton. Locke said as one color paint dries, another can be added to make an abstract design that is simple and yet quite ele shoppers make good toy purchases based on the age and interests of the child.

Locally, shoppers can find this type of individual attention at several specialty stores.

Science and Things of Livonia, in Wonderland Mall, will bring back a lot of happy childhood memories for adults and provides an interesting selection of toys that kids love, but don't always ask for until they see it.

"To see all this stuff together is pretty neat," said manager Steve Worley. "There are things that kids don't realize they would like until they see it and, when they're in here they go nuts."

Science and Things carries telescopes, microscopes, kits for doing experiments, test tubes, anatomic models, magic kits, model rocket kits and much more.

"We see a lot of grandparents in here looking for an alternative to the 'normal' toys like power rangers and GI Joes," Worley said.

Construction sets like Erector and K'Nex are very popular during the holiday season and aren't necessarily found everywhere. Rock tumblers and sand art kits are also popular.

The Teacher's Store in Livonia, on Middlebelt, is not a spot many parents would think of going to buy holiday gifts, but manager Cindy Kelly said the few who do are pleased with the choices available.

A wave table is a popular addition to a child's playroom, but they are usually only found through expensive catalogs. The Teacher's Store carries it for about $89. A puppet theater and puppets are also great imagination builders for children, Kelly said.

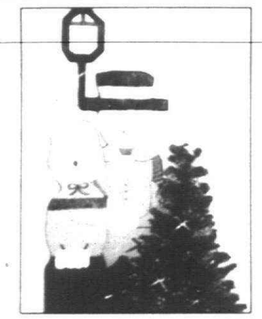

They also carry award winning floor puzzles that measure 2 by 3 feet and are durable enough to stand up to classroom use. The Create A Creature puzzle won top honors last year in Parents magazine.

GeoSafari, a popular electronic game, is also available, Kelly said. The game helps build confidence by developing skills in geography, history, math and many other subjects.

Holiday shoppers also cannot go wrong with a collection of classroom tested paints, markers, brushes, chalk, modeling clay and other supplies as well as filling stockings with stickers, notepads and many other items which fill the shelves.

Adults can take lead in selecting tots' toys

By Barbara Wilson
Staff Writer

■ 'Play is a child's work and toys are the tools you give them to perform that task. Through play children learn about the world and their place in it.'

Debbie Cortellini educational consultant

Choosing the right toy for a preschooler can be a real challenge to parents, not to mention for grandparents and childless aunts and uncles.

They are too young to really make out a list to Santa and, although they might see things that interest them in the mighty toy stores, they probably won't have their heart set on that item showing up under the tree.

This is the time in a child's life that adults can steer them the direction they want them to go in by selecting toys that will withstand the test of time and provide hours of entertainment to boot.

"Children this age tend to ask for a lot of things that they might see on television or passing through a store and many parents are willing to let them play with these things," said Debbie Cortellini, a sales director for Discovery Toys and a lecturer on the appropriateness of toys. "But as parents we still know what is best for our children and we need to put in their hands toys we think are appropriate for them."

Toys should fit into several of the categories of play for preschoolers: active and physical play, creative and constructive play, imitative play and social play. Of course they also need to be safe and should be considered an investment spanning 5 to 6 years of usefulness with the same child.

"Toys that encourage open-ended play are the best investment," Cortellini, a Plymouth resident, said. "That means every time the child plays with it, it's something different."

A simple pegboard makes a great preschool gift if pieces meet the appropriate age requirements. Children might start out sorting the colors of the pegs and just randomly placing them on the board, as they get older they might count the pegs and arrange them in geometric shapes on the board and finally they might enjoy stacking the pegs or stringing them on a piece of yarn.

Wooden beads, abacus boards and similar games fulfill the same functions for children and are often found at teacher supply stores and other educational toy locations.

Discovery Toys offers a new board game that even preschoolers can master. The game lets children test out funny facial expressions in a mirror as they try to imitate pictures on cards. They might just have fun making the faces to start, but then move on to playing the game with adults or other children. Teachers of the speech impaired have found the game valuable in showing students the various shapes they can make with their mouth.

"Play is a child's work and toys are the tools you give them to perform that task," Cortellini said. "Through play children learn about the world and their place in it."

Large, bulky Little Tykes toys are great for teaching gross motor skills, Cortellini said, but young children need little things too so they can learn to manipulate.

And even though computer software programs can be outstanding learning tools for the pre-kindergarten set, they should be offered in moderation.

"The hi-tech electronic games are great, but kids need crayons, markers and paper, too," Cortellini said. "And as they say you can't beat a cardboard box for teaching imaginative play."

Puzzles make wonderful introductions into math skills for preschoolers as do stackable cups. Discovery Toys makes a set of stacking cups in sizes that help teach math skills. The number three cup and number two cup can be filled and then poured into the number five cup filling in to the top.

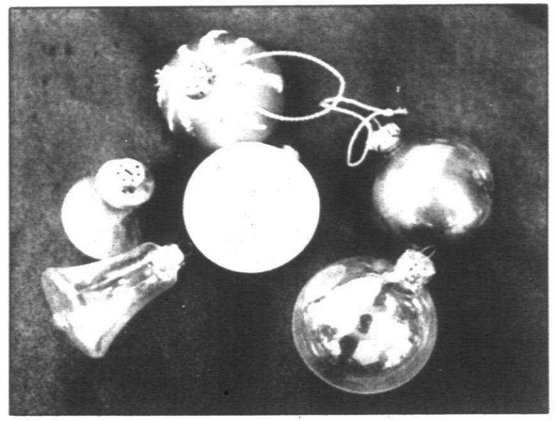

"Everyone shopping for children should remember that a book is always a perfect gift," Cortellini, a former teacher, said. "Nothing can be substituted for the time spent reading to your children or with them."

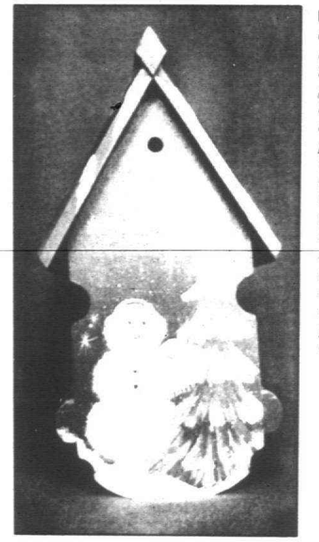

She also advises that parents not overwhelm small children with a huge toy box filled to the rafters with toys that outlive their usefulness in just a few months. It is better, she says, to purchase a few good toys with many uses and store them on shelves so they are in clear few and not so confusing.

Discovery Toys are sold through in-home demonstrations and through catalog sales. Christmas orders can be placed up until Dec. 16.

The Hide Inside fabric box by Discovery Toys was recently awarded a Parents Choice award and an Oppenheim Award for children from 12 months up and many of their toys are featured in parents magazines.

Deck the halls: Gifts and decorations made by hand always maintain their value. Simple ornaments (above) in glass and acryllic can be bought at most craft stores, and can be decorated with paints or by filling them with unusual or commonplace items. They are great for kids to make as they anticipate the holiday season. Wooden bird houses (left) have become a popular home-decorating item. If you have a steady hand, try painting one on your own or choose from a wide assortment of stencils to get you started.

gant with the right combinations of colors.

The acrylic ornaments can be opened and filled with miniature figures to create scenes or with a handful of potpourri, marbles, buttons or sequins. The ornaments are in two pieces so you can have easy access to the inside, but once they are filled Locke recommends sealing them with a hot glue gun and even decorating the seam with ribbon or snow paint which is available at most craft stores.

These ornaments make great gifts for teachers, babysitters and others because children can work on the project with minimal supervision.

■ Paper mache boxes can be used to hide a gift, or they can be the gift themselves. Craft stores are now carrying a full line of boxes made from paper mache in all shapes and sizes. Star shaped, ovals, tissue boxes and moon shaped are especially popular.

There is really no end to the potential of these boxes, Locke said. They can be decorated with regular acrylic paints and stencils can be incorporated for more intricate designs. Fabric appliques, ribbons and other items can also be used to decorate these treasure boxes that would please any grandparent.

Books always have a place on Santa's sleigh

BY BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

Everyone on your holiday shopping list, no matter what age, gender or personality, can be satisfied with a new book. With the dreary winter months of January and February looming ahead, a good "read" is just the ticket for most people.

Booksellers agree the holidays are their busiest time, and they enjoy working to match up the person with a book they'll enjoy.

Some people come in with a specific book in mind that the individual might have requested, but sometimes they come in with no ideas at all," said Mary Ann LaPointe, manager of Little Professor on the Park in downtown Plymouth. "Usually we can just ask questions about the person and find something that will meet their needs."

The angel craze continues in reading material, according to LaPointe. Books about angel healing and experiences with angels have prompted their own section in her store, and people continue to request more.

Coffee table books are good gifts for those who are not avid readers but enjoy specific subjects like gardening or cats or airplanes. These large, colorful books make wonderful gifts for the elderly who might not be able to read smaller type and who have become unaccustomed to reading. Tasha Tudor's "Garden Book" and Charles Wysocki's "Heartland" are good choices.

Books as gifts for children are especially popular with aunts, uncles and grandparents looking for something other than toys to put under the tree.

A gift of a classic children's book like Heidi or "Treasure Island" is available in hardcover at Books Abound in Farmington for just $12.99, according to Skip Rosenthal.

The following is a list of Rosenthal's and LaPointe's picks for what are expected to be the big sellers for the holidays.

For children:

■ "The Rough Faced Girl" — a Native American version of the Cinderella story with beautiful illustrations. Adults will enjoy reading it to their children.

■ "The Crippled Lamb" — a beautiful Christmas story of a lamb that is forced to stay behind in the barn when his friends go out and the lamb sees first hand the birth of Jesus.

■ "The Remarkable Christmas of the Cobbler's Sons" — another fun Christmas story.

■ "Red Ranger Came Calling" — written and beautifully illustrated by Berkeley Breathed of Bloom County fame, this book will entertain children and grown ups.

For adults:

■ "Crossing the Threshold of Hope" by Pope John Paul II. Rosenthal and LaPointe agree that this will be a popular gift this holiday season.

■ "The Hot Zone" by Richard Preston. This is a fiction book written like nonfiction which discusses deadly viruses being let loose on society.

■ "Bridges of Madison County." On the best seller list for nearly a year, booksellers agree this will still show on many holiday shopping lists especially with new interest brought about by the movie being made.

■ "The Love Cookbook" by noted relationship author Leo Buscaglia.

■ "In the Kitchen with Rosie." A low fat cookbook by Oprah Winfrey's personal chef.

■ "Insomnia" by Stephen King.

■ "Death of Honor" by Tom Clancy.

■ "Cat Stories" by James Herriott.

■ "Men are from Mars."

■ "Embraced by the Light."

Rosenthal also suggests the book "Gumpisms" as a great stocking stuffer. It features some of the sage advice of movie hero Forrest Gump.

Magic Eye books are also expected to be very popular. These books have unusual designs when studied carefully, other pictures can be seen within them.

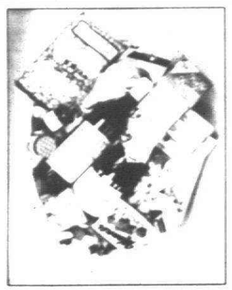

Book stores are filled with potential gift items even if books were not on the list you're trying to fill. There is a book that everyone will find entertaining, so just browse a bit.

The 'natural' trend translates for holiday

Here's the latest news in decorating, trends, facts, gift buying, etc. for this holiday season.

■ Combine holly and ivy with evergreens, pine, eucalyptus and boxwood. The combination of natural greens will add originality to your holiday decorating and the room will smell fresh and festive.

■ Hanging mistletoe is ever popular at Christmastime. Not only a festive decoration, but when the mistletoe is hung, it becomes an instrument of goodwill. Pass under it and exchange kisses of peace and love.

■ According to the National Christmas Tree Association, some 72 million trees are sold at Christmastime (36 million each natural and artificial).

■ Pointsettias are a timeless classic and make a perfect display for the home or office. Adorn your work area with several colored pointsettias: red, pink, white, orange and marbled leaves. Pointsettias are easy to care for and can be enjoyed year round.

Shopping trends

At Christmastime this year, FTD estimates that more than 1.5 million flower by wire orders will be placed, generating approximately $56 million in sales. In addition to floral gifts, other preferred gifts at Christmas time are clothes, toys/games, books, recorded music and jewelry. Here are some other trends:

■ Women are more likely than men to finish their holiday shopping by mid-December. But Americans aged 60 or older are the most likely to finish their Christmas shopping early.

■ Focusing on ethnic or geographical traditions during the holiday season can teach children the value of family; everyone will enjoy participating in games, meals and gift-giving rituals from the past.

■ The '90s are synonymous with nature, and this holiday season reflects this trend. Natural designs made of wood and other materials derived from the Earth are very popular this year.

■ Angels and cherubs are also a big influence. Appropriate year round, these items can be combined with any greenery to create beautiful holiday displays and decorations.

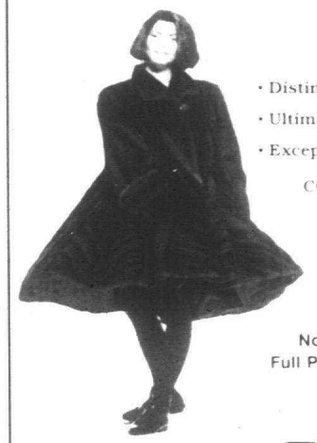

■ Candles give a natural and spiritual feel to the holiday season. Candles with a pine or cinnamon scent displayed in several rooms give the home a warm glow and a welcoming aroma.

■ The traditional red and green colors of the holiday season are still a favorite. Add in tones of blues and natural browns to create an updated, stylish look.

■ Garden centers sell $3.1 billion annually in "trim-a-tree" goods, says Nursery Retailer.

■ Gold is a key color in decorating this season. The gold is brushed rather than bright, and it combines beautifully with white as well as jewel-tone plums, reds and greens.

Glitter, shine puts smile on recipient's face

It's the gift that always fits and pleases just about any woman.

Men know that a little velvet box with something shiny inside will always put a smile on the face of their lady friend," said Orin Mazzoni, an owner of Orin Jewelers of Garden City and Northville.

That's why most jewelry stores experience a rush of last-minute male shoppers, as well as a few who plan ahead.

While jewelry always fits, it's may be a little more difficult to match a piece with a woman's personality, finding the item that she will be comfortable wearing and will enjoy for many years.

Bracelets, necklaces, rings, earrings and brooches are the basic options available, but choosing a stone and setting can be more complicated.

Mazzoni said he has several customers who work each year to put together a matched set for their partner, buying the necklace one year and a bracelet the next. Others are just interested in finding one stunning piece that will complicate their loved one.

We always remind customers that it's the stone and not the setting that is most meaningful as an investment," Mazzoni said.

Jewelry stores should have a certified gemologist on hand to explain the finer points of gemstones and to help in selections.

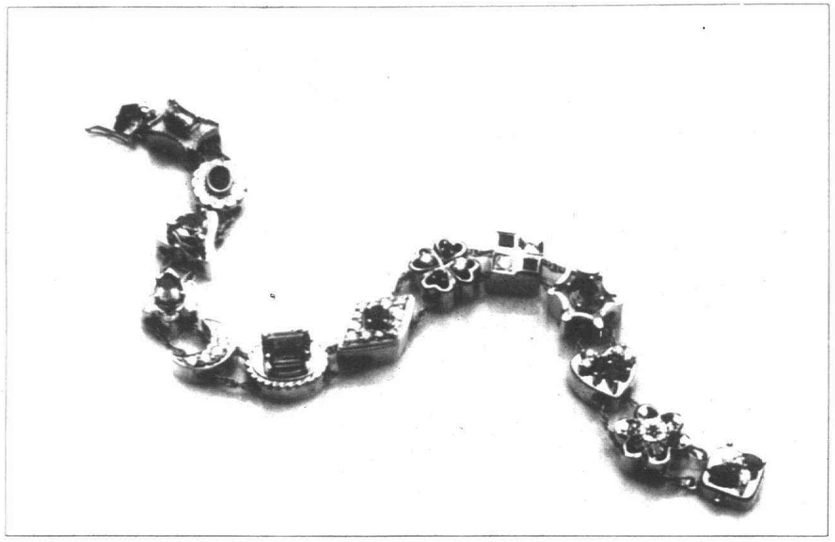

Mazzoni said diamonds continue to be the most popular gems because they go with everything and are appreciated overall by the recipient.

Rubies and emeralds are also popular, especially in combination with diamonds. Tanzanite, a bluish purple stone, is also gaining popularity as a replacement for opals, according to Mazzoni.

Pearls are also a classic choice and suit most personalities well.

Gold continues to be the most popular metal used in jewelry, but Mazzoni said they are also selling a lot of gold in combination with platinum for a two-tone effect.

Most jewelry stores offer a varied collection of settings for stones, but many also have designers on hand to create something more personal. At Orin Jewelers most selections are made directly from the cases. There are some customers who come in and want to rework a design from a piece of heirloom jewelry.

One of a kind: A slider bracelet allows the gift-giver to select from a variety of "fobs" to create a bracelet that will suit his mate. The Diamond Boutique in Farmington has specialized in these bracelets for 35 years.

"They might have a pendant or something that was handed down through the family, and the woman never cared for the setting," Mazzoni said. "Sometimes a man will come in wanting to put the stones into a new setting."

Diane Rose of Diane Rose Jewelers in Garden City has just a few pieces on display in her shop, but is well versed in designing pieces for her customers.

"They can come in and get anything they want," Rose said.

She sketches ideas for her customers and does a cast to show them what the completed project will look like.

It's really an opportunity to use your imagination and make your own style jewelry," Rose said. A certain amount of pre-planning is required when giving custom jewelry, of course.

Rose said mother's rings and grandmother's rings are very popular with her customers.

The Diamond Boutique of Farmington is offering another type of opportunity for gift givers to use their imagination in a gift of jewelry. They are well known for slide bracelets that allow the customer to select from a wide range of stones and settings to be strung onto a bracelet. The idea for slide bracelets originated from antique watch fobs and most have an antique look about them. They are a great conversation piece and start at just $80.

The holidays continue to be a popular time for marriage proposals and Mazzoni said they sell quite a few engagement rings. Usually the men come in on their own when the ring is going to be given as a holiday gift, he said. At other times of the year, the couple usually makes the decision together.

Men's jewelry has not caught up with women's in popularity, but Mazzoni said women seem to enjoy selecting jewelry for their mates.

"Women, in general, come in earlier to do their shopping," Mazzoni said. "Men seem to have a need to wait until the excitement builds and run in at the last minute. We always have things on hand for these last-minute shoppers. We know who they are."

Deck the halls with flags and feathers."

The tinsel and twinkle lights that have become the standard for American Christmas decorations were unknown a century ago, but our forbears still found ways to brighten their holidays. Flags, feathers, and even bits of fancy paper are among the innovative items that have adorned American Christmas trees since their popularity first took root in the 1840s.

During the holiday season at Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village (Nov. 25 through Jan. 1), visitors will find these and other ingenious decorations amid the inventions, homes and workplaces of innovators including Thomas Edison and the Wright brothers.

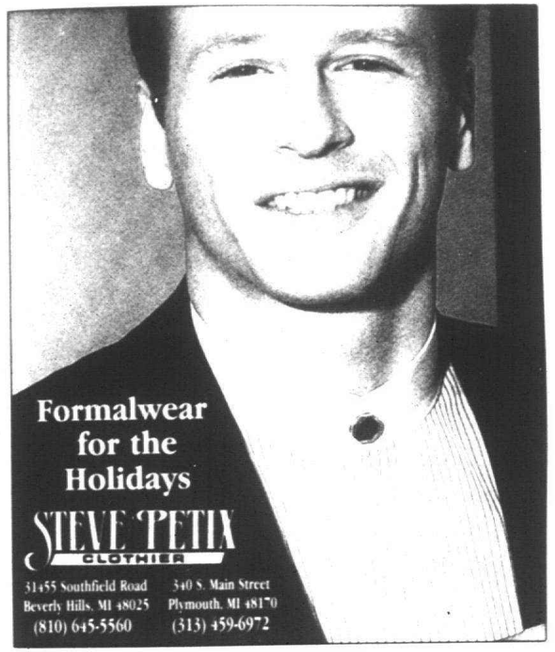

Visitors to the Village's 1880s Firestone Farm (birthplace of tire magnate Harvey Firestone) will find costumed interpreters busily making gifts that are suitable for hanging.

While Greenfield Village displays historic trees of different sizes, adjacent Henry Ford Museum shows visitors one of the largest indoor trees they'll ever see.

Among the challenges for tree decorator Gina Tomaszewski is finding ornaments big enough to suit the three-story high conifer. Instead of ornaments that resemble toys, Tomaszewski hangs actual toys that reflect Museum artifacts. The Museum has cars, so the tree features toy cars. The Museum also has airplanes, furniture and trains, which Tomaszewski seeks out in kid-sized versions. She also prospects for gold and silver globes "about the size of beach balls" to hang alongside ornaments and garlands.

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village is an independent, non-profit educational institution not affiliated with the Ford Motor Company or the Ford Foundation.

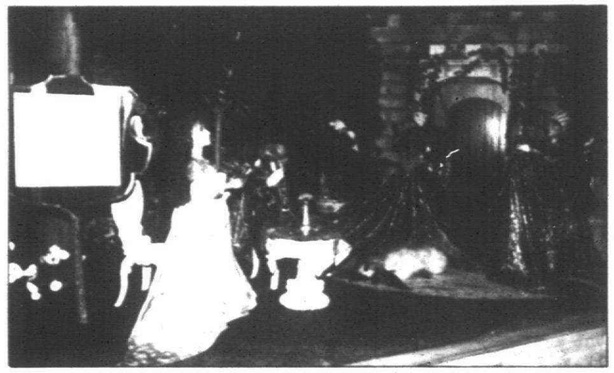

Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. They are closed Thanksgiving and Christmas day. Admission for adults is $11.50 and $10.50 for senior citizens. Children age 5-12 are admitted for $5.75 and children younger than 5 are admitted at no charge.

Hudson's sets holiday stage

The major department stores in the area take the lead in planning holiday events to drum up business and to flame the holiday spirit.

Many area stores have already put on their best holiday attire and are wrapping up their celebration plans.

Hudson's, a landmark in Detroit, has set their stage. The holiday season is kicked off with the Michigan Thanksgiving Parade Nov. 24. Hudson's will debut a 30-foot-tall Beauty and the Beast float for the 68th annual event.

A holiday Beauty and the Beast animated display will be featured at the Summit Place store through Dec. 30.

Locally, a holiday wardrobing seminar will be offered at the Westland Center store at 7 p.m. Dec. 7. The event will feature M.J. Burns, Hudson's own fashion expert.

Families can also enjoy a special morning together at "The Breakfasts with Santa." The morning affairs feature a complete breakfast, participation in a "Beauty and the Beast" skit, special gifts and visits with Santa Claus. Tickets are $7.50 per person and are available by reservation only. Santa breakfasts at Westland Center are slated for 8:30 a.m. Dec. 2 and Dec. 9 and 9:30 a.m. Dec. 11. For reservations, call 1-800-292-4429.

Easy-to-grasp handles, chunky shapes, rounded corners and bright colors — trademarks of preschool toy manufacturer Little Tikes playthings — are characteristics all children like.

They also make Little Tikes products well suited for children with disabilities. That's why the company received two national awards this year. Little Tikes was commended by the National Easter Seals Society and by the organizers of National Rehabilitation Week for its efforts to design toys that special needs kids can use easily and for including these children in its catalogs and ads.

Just in time for the holidays, the following toys make it easier for children with disabilities to learn and have fun just like everyone else.

■ Play About Walker is a sturdy, help to children who have difficulty walking. A wide leg base and large handle make this toy a very stable support. Clicking wheels provide sound stimulation and the legs fold for convenient storage. An activity panel with fun sights and sounds adds to the value. Ages: 9-24 months. Suggested retail price: $40.35.

■ Go fish! That's just what a child in a wheelchair can do with the Catch 'n Count Fishing Set. Ten colorful fish turn their tails upward so little fishermen can reach down and catch them with the fishing pole and hook. The fish and pole can be stored in the see-through tackle box. Ages: 2-5. Suggested retail price: $15.29.

■ Musical toys are great therapy and all children find the Maracas and Tambourine easy and fun to play. Colorful beads swirl inside the clear maracas, making a wonderfully loud shaking noise. The tambourine is easy to hold and produces a high-quality cymbal sound. Ages: 2-6 years. Suggested retail price: $18.29.

■ Wheelchair, Ramp and Friend takes the lead in offering a toy that features a child with a disability. Used with Little Tikes Place doll house or on its own, the toy introduces the idea of disabilities to young children and serves as a model to those with special needs. Ages: 3 & up. Retail price: $9.12.

These toys might be available through a traditional toy store, or similar ones might be found by Susan Fitzmaurice, owner of Curious Child in Plymouth's Old Village. The Curious Child has interesting things for all children and Fitzmaurice emphasizes that even toys designed for handicapped children could be purchased to make other children more tolerant.

"I consider myself an expert at finding gifts for the developmentally disabled adult and child, but I don't limit my store to those things that only that group would find interesting," Fitzmaurice said.

She carries a line of locally made dolls with beautiful detail. Some of the dolls wear glasses, some of braces on their legs or other disability. They sell for about $40.

Miniature wheelchairs occupied by cheery bears and dolls might make a good gift for the sibling of a handicapped child, Fitzmaurice suggests.

The Curious Child also offers a full line of sensitive books to help answer those difficult questions about puberty, going to the hospital, knowing someone who dies or is terminally ill, make other children more tolerant.

Send greetings, help charities with 1 stamp

Thanksgiving is here. Time to shift gears and get ready for the biggest family time of the year.

And as you begin to deck the halls and shop the malls, remember to take the time and send your season's best wishes with cards that benefit a variety of local charities.

By buying the cards, you can make life a little brighter for youngsters cared for by agencies like the Christ Child Society, Methodist Children's Home Society and Angel Place to name a few, organizations that help animals like the Michigan Humane Society and Michigan Animal Rescue League and groups that train canines to help the blind — Leader Dogs for the Blind and the physically challenged — Paws with a Cause.

The cards cover a variety of styles from traditional religious depictions to stylized drawings and caricatures, depicting the Christmas season, and several groups like the Alzheimer's Association also have a selection of cards for Hanukkah.

Offering holiday card displays are several area libraries — Canton Public Library, 1200 Canton Center Road; Farmington Community Library branches at 23500 Liberty St., Farmington, and 32737 W. 12 Mile Road, Farmington Hills, and Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road.

As in previous years, The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers have books, containing samples of participating charities' available holiday cards, in its five offices. The books can be perused during business hours at our offices at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia; 33411 Grand River, Farmington; and 744 Wing St., Plymouth.
