More trouble for complex tenant

Residents of Canton Commons have received notice - again - that the apartment complex will lose its federally-subsidized status. HUD officials changed their minds following similar notice in 1997.

Low income residents at Canton Commons Apartments will have to look for a new home next year, according to notices they received this week.

The company that owns the apartment complex at Haggerty, north of Palmer, Highland Management Company, told residents it won't renew its HUD Section 8 contract as of July 31, 1999. That means 340 of its 450 tenants won't receive federal housing assistance if they chose to stay there. "People seem to be very complacent

Last year similar notices appeared on tenants doors when HUD revoked its public housing contract with Jack Friedman and Joseph Dresner of Highland Management. The management company was cited by HUD for ill-managed properties in Colorado.

SCHOOLS

Despite the fact that two tax proposals in Plymouth Township and one in Canton Township failed in Tuesday's election, Plymouth-Canton school officials say they remain confident voters will approve a bond proposal for a new middle school Oct. 3.

'You can never take a tax increase for granted," said board President Mike Maloney. "To be successful, we need to tell voters why we need it and why it's best for the community. If we do that, we can win.

Education is the school district's strength, and that's what the pro-tax committee will use as its weapon.

"We can't approach the millage election as if it is a sure thing, despite how badly we need the school," said com-mittee Chairman Mark Horvath. "Our attack will be to make information available to the public. Educate them as much as possible.

Many of the people who voted in Tuesday's election claimed they were unsure of why the money was needed in the Plymouth Township and Canton tax issues "We can't afford to have people voting who are uninformed," added Horvath. "If people are voting from logic, then we can deal with the outcome. Horvath said his group will be speaking to as many groups as possible. That will include clubs, schools, homeowners and seniors groups

"Wherever there's a group of two or more people, I want to be telling them about the issue," he said.

"I think Tuesday people proved they're not going to vote for a tax increase unless they know why," said Horvath. "We were very aggressive in the high school bond issue, and we'll do the same with the middle school

School Superintendent Chuck Little knows it will be hard work trying to convince voters to pass the tax.

"Any time you talk about increasing taxes, it's never easy," said Little. "We need to be aggressive and informative to be successful.

eavy rains Thursday and Friday put a damper on competition at the 114th National Target on competition at the Line Championships at Heritage Park.

The tournament was suspended Thursday morning and called off for the day. Officials said the threat of lightening posed more of a problem than the rainfall. Previous tournaments have continued in light to moderate rain.

The competition resumed Friday morning with the finals and the U.S. Olympic Open Road was pushed back to the afternoon.

Some 550 archers from around the world took part in the week-long event, which concluded with an awards banquet Friday night at Laurel Manor in

Life's a screen for longtime movie house manager

As general manager of Canton Cinema 6, Timothy Jahn has a lot of responsibilities.

Staffing, ordering supplies and promoting movies are just a few. But that doesn't mean the 43-year-old sits in his office pushing paper all day.

Far from it. At any given time, you'll see Jahn helping ushers clean after a show, sell tickets at the front booth or take a turn passing out popcorn.

"If we're busy he'll jump in and help us," said employee Sarah Pratt. "He won't just sit there and order people around. He'll jump behind the concession stand if we need him, just whatever it takes to get the customers through and where they're supposed to Therein lies the beauty of his work, according to Jahn.

"My enjoyment of this job is that it's always different," he said. "No two days are the same. Projection, concessions, seating. I do it all.

He has been doing it all for a long with General Cinema back in February. From usher to GM - it's a true Horatio Alger story

Perhaps that's why he still relates so well to his employees, most of whom are 16-20 years old.

"He's a fun guy to work for." said Canton resident Ryan Abenes. "He treats everyone fairly but knows how to have fun with the people. He's not so strict that you can't stand working underneath him. He understands how to work with young people.

Jahn grew up in Livonia as one of 10 children. He graduated from old Bentley High School in 1974 and never thought about leaving his hometown.

"It's just a nice city," said Jahn. "I have a lot of family there still.

"I like living in Livonia and love the school system. We've had very good luck with teachers and principals

With two boys and a girl, ages 6 to 11, that's important. But to hear Jahn say it, his family is even a little bigger than that

Applications accepted at Learning Center

The Learning Center at Madonna University in Livonia is currently accepting applications for its fall term, which begins Monday, Sept. 21. The tutorial sessions are designed for students from the first through 12th grades who are experiencing difficulty in reading and its related skills. Individual or group instruction (two students) is available. Prior to admission, each student will be informally assessed. and a tailored remedial plan will be designed. Instruction is designed to enable the student to be a more successful and independent reader and will include strategies for reading fiction and non-fiction text, process writing and study skills. Students will develop a portfolio of their work during the session

With more than 46 years of providing service to children who are experiencing difficulty in reading and writing, Madonna University's Learning Center has assisted thousands of children, from public and private schools representing some 20 different school districts.

Is Cigar Smoking Safe? NO!

By Oscar Signori, M.D. A recent report, entitled "Cigars: Health Effects and Trends" by the National Cancer Institute, shows that smoking cigars daily causes cancer of the lip, tongue, mouth, throat, larynx, esophagus and lung. Cigar smoking may also cause emphysema and coronary artery disease. Cigar consumption in the United States has increased nearly 50% since 1993 with the greatest rise in cigar smoking occurring among men between the ages of 18 and 24. Cigar smoking has also become more "glamorous" with the media reporting cigar boutiques and parties featuring celebrities and expensive cigars Cigar and cigarette smoke contain toxins (carbon monoxide, hydrogen cyanide, ammonia, nicotine, etc.), as well as carcinogens (benzene, arsenic, cadmium, nitrosamines, etc.) Those chemicals are found in greater amounts in cigar smoke. There is 20 times more ammonia and 90 times more nitrosamines due to the larger size of cigars compared to cigarettes, the nature of cigar wrappers, aging, and fermentatio of cigar leaves. The majority of cigar smoker do so occasionally and do not inhale. This gives them a lower risk for cancer, heart and lung diseases than smokers. It also gives them a false sense of security. Smoking three to four cigars daily raises the risk of oral (mouth) cancers five times that of non-smokers, while increasing the risk of esophageal cancers fourfold Also, the lung cancer risk from inhaling moderately when smoking five eigars per day is comparable to that from smoking one pack of cigarettes per day Thus be wise, if you smoke stop. If you don't, why start"

Preserve your memories of summer produce

id-August always transports me back to early childhood days when I remember being the only one able to stand up straight in my Irish-born grandmother's cel-lar. It had a dirt floor, and a musty dampness

August and early September was a festival of foods. My grandmother would refer to this time as "putting food by." I believe that was an old Irish, or perhaps, country way of saying "food preservation."

Having come to this country as a young girl from Ireland, and then liv-ing through the Great Depression, she was used to saving today for what she would need tomorrow. In grandmother's time, you couldn't get fresh peaches in the middle of winter. Imagine a winter without peaches apple sauce, cherry chutney, or toma-toes. However, by "putting food by," all these fabulous foods, and more, would sit dormant in the dark cellar waiting for you to open them and unleash the memory of summer.

Inspired by memories, I started gardening when I purchased my home in Royal Oak six years ago. At last count, I've already harvested 31 tomatoes. This season, my Beefsteaks are slotted for an Italian style Olive Tomato Bruschetta. I'll let you know how my new concoction fared this Preserving fruits and vegetables appears to me to be part of America's renewed passion for homestyle favorites from our grandmother's tables. If you don't have a garden, visit local farm markets, which offer a huge variety of organic produce at reasonable prices. Home preservation can bring tastes to your table that you never thought possible. Be creative, take notes on combinations. You're limited only your imagination, and some basic chemistry rules

If you're canning for the first time, pick up the home canner's bible – the "Ball Blue Book Guide to Home, Canning, Freezing & Dehydration," available wherever canning supplies are sold, or call 1-(800)-240-3340.

Here are some basic canning tips:

■ Hot pack fruit verses raw pack - Fruit has very porous tissues that contain the juice we love. These pores also hold air, which, if not exhausted from the fruit, can cause floating, or discoloration in home canned fruit. Hot packing fruit helps exhaust this air. The prepared fruit is added to boiling syrup or liquid, brought back to a boil, and simmered for a few minutes. Removing air from the jars is one of the goals of canning. The less air in the jar, the better the results. Removing air from the fruit tissues shrinks the fruit allowing you to pack more in each jar. Raw or cold packing fruit results in inferior products.

■ Lids - Always use new lids for every home canning project. Never attempt to reuse a lid that has been previously placed on a jar for storage or processing. Once the sealing compound on the lid has taken the imprint of a jar, it will not seal properly a second time.

■ Mason jars - Use only mason jars for home canning. Because these jars are made of a heavier weight of glass than commercial food jars, they are more tolerant to the high processing temperatures reached in boiling water and pressure canners. Mason jars can be reused several times. Always check the rims of your jars for nicks and imperfections before beginning a home canning project. Discard jars that have imperfections or nicks.

■ Air bubbles - When filling jars, air bubbles may become trapped between pieces of food, or between the glass and food. If left inside the jar, air bubbles can cause food to discolor. During processing the air bubbles ealthy eating in childhood promotes lifelong good health, optimal growth, intellectual development and helps prevent long-term health problems. It saddens me to see overweight children struggling, and huffing and puffing on the play-

I want to intervene when I see kids guzzling soda pop and eating empty calorie junk foods. These chil-dren will likely have physical, intellectual and emotional problems.

You can help your child attain their full educa-tional and health potential by providing them with the tools and reinforcement they need to make healthy food choices.

Children who are hungry or undernourished have difficulty resisting infection, and are more likely to be irritable, get sick, miss school, fall behind in class, have low energy, and trouble con-

Here are some USDA guidelines for children:

Eat a variety of foods - You can't always control what your kids eat when they're out, but you can control what you put in your cupboards. Take your time grocery shopping, and choose foods from all the food groups. Yogurt and oranges are healthy choices, but not if your child eats them day in and day out. Variety is the key. Don't purchase the same foods all the time. For example, fruits can be purchased whole, cut up, frozen, canned or dried. Try them all. Variety is probably the most important aspect of food

Balance the food you eat with physical activity – I believe watching TV is a major contributor to childhood weight problems. Children who are slumped in front of a TV for hours miss out on the benefits of play such as strengthening muscles and improving coordination. Turn off the TV. Get your kids to play outside.

Choose a diet with plenty of grain products, vegetables and fruits - Encourage your children to eat unprocessed foods. Some studies have found that 50 percent of school-age children eat fewer than two servings of fruits or vegetables daily. There are lots of good options such as breadsticks, ready-to-eat cereals (watch out for those with artificial coloring), mini-bagels, muffins and all kinds of interesting fruits and vegetables. Keep these out and hide the chips and pop. Enjoy seasonal fruits, grow your own vegetables, get your children interested in the bounty from Choose a diet low in fat, saturated fat and cholesterol - Some kids aren't good meat eaters, and we may tend to think their fat intake is low, too. However, packaged cookies and chips are loaded with fat, and can contribute substantially to your child's fat intake. Fast food is high in fat and calories relative to the nutrients it provides. Try to get your kids to accept low fat milk and cheese. Look for alternatives to high fat snacks.

Choose a diet moderate in sugars - Soda pop is probably the worst evil in a child's diet. Regular soda has 9 to 12 teaspoons of sugar per can. These aren't just empty calories

Making edible memories

Helping children understand where food comes from can be fun and interesting. Here's ways you can bring your kids closer to the source of their food:

Buy Ice cream cones and milk at a dairy farm Watch apples being pressed into cider at a cider mili Pick blueberries, raspberries or strawberries Buy produce at a farmer's market, or corn at a road

Go fishing and eat a fish you catch

Plant vegetables and fruits in your backyard

Bake bread Roast a chicken

Make a ple from apples you picked together

If your child tries something new because he grew it, picked it, or helped make it, it's worth the extra work involved. You'll have fun together and make good memories too. In my work with seniors I find that memories about food are some of their best.

left brain's salad creativity center. It's becoming increasingly difficult to devise new recipes that will tempt jaded summer appetites. I've turned to revamping my favorites to take advantage of the season's bountiful produce. The farmers tell me that the fruits and vegetables are a month ahead of schedule due to the early and lasting heat.

This recipe has been a favorite fall. winter dish that I serve warm, but not hot. The heat wilts the out-ofseason expensive fresh basil. It makes a popular hors d'oeuvre for me because I can prepare it ahead of time. Leftovers are not a problem. never have any. I'm going to share the winter version with an update for the summer. You'll want to serve the summer version slightly chilled or even at room temperature to capture the full flavor of the herbs and tomatoes.

I prepare my own sun-dried tomatoes in oil with garlic. It's much less expensive than buying them, and they have more flavor. Dried tomatoes are available in the produce section of most grocery stores. Simply wash and plop them into hot water to rehydrate. Dry them, and layer in a glass jar with garlic and oil. I've included my recipe in case you need more specific information

For the summer version, nothing tastes better than home-grown cherry or plum tomatoes, quartered and seeded as a stand-in for the dried tomatoes. Be liberal with the fresh basil. Triple or quadruple the amount. Take advantage of the summer price. Substitute fresh oregano for the dried herb in the dressing. Three teaspoons of chopped fresh oregano leaves is not too much Nutritionally, the fresh tomatoes and herbs add vitamin C and lots of cancer-fighting phytochemicals. Dietary fiber is also increased. Be sure to wash the vegetables well. Washing fruits and vegetables thoroughly has become important to prevent food borne diseases. Even packaged salads need another dunk-

I chose tuna for this recipe because it's something I keep on hand in my pantry. But you can substitute shrimp, scallops or other cooked fish. I like to rinse the tuna several times. It reduces the sodium by almost 75 percent. Both shellfish and water-packed albacore tuna are good sources of Omega-3 fatty acids. These help to lower cholesterol and triglycerides as you know.

I used ready prepared nonfat Italian salad dressing, but spiked up the flavor with olive oil, lemon juice and oregano. I am a lazy cook, as you know, par-

The salad can also be served mixed with other summer greens such as romaine, leaf lettuce, Boston or bibb lettuce, for a main course or as an appetizer. Don't count on leftovers.

A PASTA SALAD FOR ALL SEASONS

1/2 pound bow tie pasta

2 cans (6 ounces) White Albacore Tuna, water packed, rinsed, drained and chunked

1/4 cup (3/4 cup for summer) fresh basil, chopped

3/4 cup Special Italian Dressing (see recipe below)

2 ounces prepared sun-dried tomatoes, or 1 quart fresh cherry or plum tomatoes (see recipe below) Salad greens, optional

Cook pasta according to package directions. Drain and cool to room temperature. Drain sun-dried tomatoes, reserving I tablespoon of oil for Special Italian Dressing. Cut sun-dried tomatoes into wide strips. If using fresh tomatoes, wash, quarter and seed

At serving time, toss pasta, tomatoes, tuna and basil with Special Italian Dressing and optional greens. Serves 4 as a main dish, 10 as an appetizer

"Rounds" are favorites with kids in our area. They're sandwiches in the shape of a ball, great for car trips, picnics, or school lunches. Ten-year-old Analena Iacobelli of Clarkston created this recipe for Pizza Rounds. From her idea we developed the Tuna Rounds and PB&J Rounds. All have been kid-tested, and overwhelmingly approved.

Coffee cup crud

A study from the University of Arizona cites your coffee cup as a potential hiding place for coliform bacteria. "Hippocrates" magazine's February 1998 issue reports on the efforts of food specialist Ralph Meer and his colleagues, who collected 53 coffee mugs from office kitchens around campus and discovered 22 hosted the

How to avoid coffee cup crud? Meer suggests staying away from the office sponge. Commonly shared sponges or dish cloths provide a good environment for germs from all over the office. The study noted that mugs cleaned with these items often were more contaminated than before they were washed.

If you must use the sponge, run it through a dishwasher regularly or dampen it and throw it in the microwave for a few minutes to kill any bacteria.

Viagra

Is Viagra the newest wonder drug, or are there some important issues being overlooked in all the media hype? That's the topic Botsford General Hospital's HIM (Help for Impotent Men) Support Group in August.

The nation's No. 1 prescription treatment for impotency - reportedly used by over 100,000 men - Viagra will be examined by a panel of experts, including Botsford urologist Steven Roth and Ed Czarnecki, a therapist and psychologist who specialize in sexual dysfunction. A representative from the pharmaceutical firm Pfizer Inc., the drug's manufacturer, also will be at the meeting.

This free HIM Support Group meets at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 11, at Vladimir's Banquet Hall, 28125 Grand River in Farmington Hills. For more information on HIM, which meets the second Tuesday of every month, call (248) 477-6100

Elderly worriers

"What? Me worry?" is the inexhaustible topic of discussion for Botsford General Hospital's ElderMed luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 11. Botsford Chaplain Kurt Stuzz and ElderMed Director Sandy Baumann team up to talk about the effect of worry and anxiety on health. They will offer coping strategies that include positive self-talk, prayer and meditation, relaxation, physical activity and journal writing. Cost; $8 members and $9 others. Wayne State University is one of 36 sites across the U.S. participating in a study to assess the effectiveness and safety of a hormone replacement skin patch to treat hot flashes associated with menopause. The study will involve 400 subjects nationwide and test the effectiveness of the patch on the frequency and severity of hot flashes. The patch is a type of hormone replacement therapy that releases a combination of estrogen and progestin, a synthetic version of progesterone.

"The best treatment for hot flashes is estrogen, but many people have concerns about risks associat ed with this hormone," said Dr. Wulf Utian, lead investigator and director, department of obstetrics and gynecology, University Mac-Donald Women's Hospital, Case Western Reserve University.

"This study looks at the benefits of combining estrogen with synthetic progesterone to alleviate hot flashes and reduce the risks that may come with using estrogen alone," Utian added.

If you add up the days a typical child with a healthy immune system may be ill, it seems like a fair propor tion of the year simply because ... it IS a fair proportion of the year. Given these statistics, when should a parent become concerned at the frequency of infections his child has? The following information is a general guideline I use, but any parent who is concerned should see a board-certified allergy and immunology specialist. Some of the information is based on the absolute number of infections and some is based on what kind of infection the child has and how well the child responds to antibiotics: Greater than eight individual ear infections within one year or repeated ear infections with complications such as perforated tympanic membrane (ear drum) or mastoiditis (infection of the bone around the ear).

infections have normal immune systems. Often the cause of the increased rate f infection is allergic in nature. Nasal allergies can cause inflammation swelling) and increased mucus production in the nasal passages, blocking the sinus drainage points and interfering with the function of the eustachian tube going to the ear. The blockage of these pathways can increase sinus and ear infections

If allergies are found to be a contributing factor, then avoidance measures and treatment of the allergies with medication, allergy shots, or both can reduce the number of infections. Keeping small children at home or enrolling them in small-group day care reduces exposure to other ill children. ### Couple finds fine investment data online ed and his wife, Lynne, have a New Year's Day tradition. After breakfast, while their two kids watch the Rose Bowl parade on television, the couple sit down at the kitchen table over coffee and make a list of goals for the new year.

You could call them resolutions," says the 34-year-old engineer,

"we prefer goals. We've been married 10 years now and we are both very busy. People laugh at us because we both carry around these Franklin Planners, but we've learned that if you don't write something down, it gets lost. So we discuss and write down our goals every year. Then we prioritize them and do our best to reach them during the year."

In 1988, when the Bartons started the tradition, their top goal was a new house. It was the same goal in 1989, 1990 and 1992. In 1993, they moved into a new colonial in a nice suburb in Western Wayne County (they don't want their city publicized). In 1994, their No. 1 goal was furniture for the new house. In 1995, the Bartons set a goal to become financially independent by the time Ted turned 45.

"That meant we had to learn to save and invest wisely," he said. "But neither one of us knew beans about the stock market or investing. I had a 401(k) at work, Lynne contributed to an IRA at her job, but all our energies up to then had been concentrated in getting out of debt, paying bills and buying the Ted earns about $65,000 a year from his job. Lynne gets about $32,000 as a buyer for a large retail chain. They had about $6,000 in a savings account that they decided to invest and they budgeted $800 a month as a continuing investment. But where to learn?

"We met with a couple of brokers and financial planners, but they basically talked in circles," Barton recounts. "We figured, Why pay them to take care of our money when we should be taking care of it ourselves?' So I turned to the computer and did a search one night on personal investing. That led me to a site on the Internet called Motley Fool."

Motley Fool (www.fool.com) bills itself as an online financial forum for the individual investor and it is an immensely popular site that attracts both novice investors and Wall Street veterans. "I think its better than a college economics class," says Barton.

There are all sorts of tips and suggestions about money and the economy and how to use them both when investing. When I first got online, I probably spent two weeks reading everything I could find on the site and then I started going through the message boards where individual people write in tips and stuff. I asked a few questions, got answers and started to understand things. It was all very laid back."

The first thing Barton learned was to increase his contributions to his company's 401(k), up to the maximum rate. They have this little guide on Motley Fool for getting ready to invest and it showed how investing tax-deferred in a 401(k) is the best single way to accumulate a big nest egg. Lynne did the same with her IRA."

Next, the Bartons went shopping for a discount broker, following advice from other people online to stay clear of the full service brokers if they wanted to save money. They used e-mail to request information from a dozen or so discount brokers they found online, made a few phone calls and used more e-mail to sort out the field before finally settling on the company who, for low fees, would execute the trades the Bartons wanted.

"The big factor in choosing the broker we eventually went with was that they let me do my trades right over my computer," Barton explains. "They sent me special software and because I was doing all the work, they even discounted their regular discount fee."

Barton studied several investment strategies before settling on a plan called the Dow Dividend Approach, in which he took the initial $6,000 investment stake and divided it into four stocks carefully chosen from information found on Motley Fool and other Internet financial sites.

"In about a year and a half, our initial $6,000 has increased in value to over $20,000," Barton says. "The monthly amounts we've budgeted has given us close to another $20,000. I think that's pretty impressive after about 18 months. I'm learning more and more every time I go online. I can't tell you how many great sites there are out

One site Barton particularly recommends is the Trader's Financial Resource Guide (www.stocks.com ), a Web site maintained by a Pennsylvania investor named Jack Beausang, a veteran institutional broker and a stock trader who maintains an extremely detailed list of links to various online sites geared towards personal investing.

"Our family is more secure financially because of the information I've found from the Internet," says Barton. "I can't think of any better testimonial than that."

Although the U.S. unemployment rate edged up in June, chiefly due to the General Motors strike and Asia's economic woes, "the employment market remains extremely tight and job growth continued with 205,000 new jobs created nationally last month," said Loraine Stover, branch manager of Snelling Personnel Services in Livonia.

Stover said the unemployment rate in June was well below the percent rate (seasonally adjusted) of a year ago. "There are more jobs available here than qualified individuals to fill

Love and revenge: Raymond G. Roberts sings the lead tenor role in "Carmen" Aug. 28 at the Henry Ford Centennial Library in Dearborn.

Friends bring love and passion to stage, audience

aymond G. Roberts finds language the most challenging part of singing the lead tenor part in "Carmen." The 37-year old Redford resident struggles not with portraying an obsessive love for Carmen that eventually leads him to kill her, but with the French in Bizet's romantic, but tragic opera.

Roberts sings the role of Don Jose, the soldier brought to ruin by his passion for the gypsy girl, in a concert version presented by the Friends of the Opera of Michigan Aug. 28 at the Henry Ford Centennial Library in Dearborn. Roberts began rehearsing with Dorothy Duensing, (Carmen) and the rest of the cast members in

"It's more the language than anything else," said Roberts. "I prefer to sing in English."

Language is never a barrier in opera because the drama of the music tells the tale.

they're exposed to opera, they like it," said Roberts, "and 'Les Miserables' and 'Phantom of the Opera' have done a lot for opera. But even more important to exposing them to opera, we need to give them the chance to perform it. Also musicals are a good step toward opera."

Discovering opera

Roberts grew up in Livonia listening to country music so it wasn't as if he'd heard opera from an early age. Even after performing opera for the first time while a student at Albion College, Roberts never thought seriously about singing the role of The Duke in "Rigoletto." It wasn't until after he received a bachelor of music degree and was teaching school in Nebraska that Roberts apprenticed with the Des Moines Opera Company.

Married five years ago in October, they became interested in architectural tiles after buying a 1939 bungalow in Livonia's Old Rosedale Gardens. An appreciation for Pewabic tiles and the Arts and Crafts movement led them to take classes at Pewabic Pottery to learn more about crafting tiles for their home. The Coopers, along with more than 60 artists from Seattle to Boston, will sell their tiles at Pewabic Pottery's Antique and Contemporary Art Tile Fair Aug. 16.

"Tile making is really important because our jobs keep us separate," said Lisa, 31. "We really enjoy it. It keeps us happy all around." "It's a good way to be together and share," added Rodney, 35.

The Coopers exhibited in the first Pewabic tile fair three years ago. The show was in conjunction with a symposium held by the Tile Heritage Foundation, a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting an awareness and appreciation for the history and preservation of ceramic surfaces in the United States.

Among the items the Coopers will sell Aug. 16 are iris and sea shell tiles, a cafe-style table for indoors or outdoors, and ceramic flowers which were best sellers at Art in the Park in Plymouth in July.

Rodney grew up in Toledo and has bachelor and master degrees in visual communications from Bowling Green State University in Ohio. He's always had an interest in art and design and worked in the graphic arts field in Ohio before moving to Michigan. Both he and Lisa are inspired by the wooded setting of Old Rosedale Gardens.

He's currently making preliminary sketches for a bear who's just caught lunch out of a river. Lisa is carving clay for a mold featuring a porcupine. They're also working on a ceramic sign to be placed on the brick pillars leading into their subdivision.

"The thing with ceramics is the options are endless," said Lisa, who graduated with a business degree from the University of Florida. "The difficult part is settling on one particular idea at a

Kathy Rae

Kathy Rae, an antique dealer from Bloomfield Hills who will sell vintage tiles from the 1880s to 1950s at the fair, says tiles have grown in popularity in the last few years, not only as framed art, but decorative surfaces for furniture. She retrieves antique tiles from Victorian homes about to be demolished. Tiles were at the peak of their popularity during the Victorian period in America. Tile stoves, friezes, and surrounds for fireplaces decorated many homes built in Grosse Pointe and Indian Village earlier this century.

"Arts and Crafts is very popular but Victorian was the height of tiles," said Rae. "In England, they tiled everything. In hospitals, it was the walls, the floors, for sanitary reasons because it can be washed down so

According to Rae, Art Noveau tiles are gaining respect for their floral themes. But tiles of all designs can be found in homes and businesses today including the 55 tiles above the food court at Somerset Mall in Troy.

"A lot of people install them in contemporary homes," said Rae. "We're having a big revival of tiles. A lot of architects and builders are using them. Tiles are as big now as during the Arts and Crafts movement."

Livonia tile makers Nancy Guido and Diane Dunn will join the Coopers and Rae for the Aug. 16 fair presented by Pewabic Pottery. Other artists include Deborah Hecht and Sarah Frank of Bloomfield Hills; Elaine Goldman and Debbie Liberman, Southfield; Dianne Stewart, Troy; and numer-

It may be endearingly loony, but collectors simply call it "Art"

At any moment, you expect the sound of carrot-chomping, and a lovable, cocky white-tail rabbit to pop up from beneath the polished hardwood floors at the austere Park West Gallery.

With a casual disdain of James Dean and the cool appeal of a perturbed rock star, you expect that wascally wabbit to look around at the paintings of Renoir, Monet and Miro and pronounce the three most recognizable words in the Looney Tune lexicon: "What's up, doc?"

But even Bugs Bunny's cool defiance would melt just thinking about the emergence of animation as a collectible, perhaps the definitive American fine art.

The recently opened exhibit of animated art at Park West in Southfield offers a compelling case that Bugs and his loony colleagues Daffy, Porky, Wile E. Coyote, Road Runner, Pepe LePew, Sylvester and Tweedy aren't just satirical products of their smart-aleck cre-

Rather, perhaps the wacky world of these all-too-human cartoons reflects a universe of symbolic truths about our own wacky world.

If pop art raised awareness of the relationship between advertising images and art, then animation art slam dunks any vestiges between amusement and "serious art."

With the prodding of his son, Marc Scaglione, merchandise manager at Park West, the elder Scaglione became a believer.

"Davey Alden turned out to be one of those wildflowers that miraculously spring up from the cracks in the concrete," the story begins. "In this case, the concrete was the Laffler County

Davey Alden, a beautiful, redhaired woman who sometimes seems strangely childlike, is in jail because she has recently committed perjury in a Laffler County court. She has done so, she says, in order to protect her small daughter - and what she is trying to protect her from is sexual abuse at the hands of the child's own father, the respected community stalwart, Joel Alden. Jack Brenner, a disenchanted public defender who has just moved to the Michigan community from Chicago, is appointed to defend Davey Alden. As he every chapter, though Latreille find "Perjury" to be one of the swiftest novels you have read in Lawyers are a long time - a kind of paradox, really, since it is also highly not exactly the thought provoking, raising weighty questions that have no creatures on glib and simple answers: What, exactly, is innocence? What's the difference between facts and the truth? Is justice sometimes truly beyond the law? At the center of this legal drama (and narrating the story)

Brenner, the middle-aged, do a whole lot to recently divorced attorney who finds himself caught in a kind of spider's web, having to face his all-too-human weaknesses on the one hand and, on the other his yearning for a kind of truth and justice that is somehow larger than himself. Much of the strength of this novel lies in Latreille's convincing portrait of this well-meaning, but limited, individual, and who is, in his way, a reflection of ourselves and the legal system we have devised. ### Naked pots await your artistic flair

I f you liked art class as a child, then you'd have a great time at any of the contemporary ceramics studios that have popped up in the area over the last few years.

What is a contemporary ceramic studio? It's a place where people of all ages can buy and paint ceramic items, just for fun.

vou'll see shelves filled with bisque ware - "naked" ceramic items that have been fired once in a kiln and are ready to be painted Dinner plates, bowls, mugs, statues and these studios and

seasonal decorations are just some of the many things to

You pick out the item you want and then decorate it with stencils, paints and glazes. When you're done, you leave the item at the studio, so that staff members can apply a final glaze and fire the item once more. The finished item is usually ready to be picked up in about a week to 10 days. You pay for the ceramic item ($5 or less for a small tile or kiddie statue to $60 or more for a large vase or lamp), plus a per-hour fee for the amount of time you spent painting the item in the studio (usually about $6-$8 an hour, depending on the place). In-store party packages are available for birthdays, bridal showers, corporate team-building exercises, etc. The difference between "contemporary" and "regular" ceramics studios is that at contemporary studios, all of the hard work - shaping, smoothing and cleaning the pre-fired clay item you have to do is paint. Local contemporary ceramics studios include: Kaput Kapot at 151 S. Bates in Birmingham, The Painted Pot at 421 Walnut in Rochester, and You're Fired at 6925 Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield

You're Fired recently was chosen to participate in a pilot project by Mitsubishi Material Corp. in Japan. As a result, customers now can make silver jewelry at the studio in addition to painting ceramic pieces. The project involves a new material that Mitsubishi developed, called Precious Metal Clay (PMC). The material consists of precious metal particles (in this case, silver) that are suspended in a clay-like binder. PMC can be shaped any which way. Afterwards, it is fired in a kiln. The clay binder burns away, leaving a precious metal object that is the same shape and about half the size of the original clay piece. The cost is $40 per ounce, plus $8 an hour for studio time or about $4 per object if a customer works on the PMC at home and then brings it back to be fired.

In the Livonia-Plymouth area, Wayne Plastercraft and Bisque. located at 2379 Venoy in Westland, sells bisque and plaster items for customers to paint at home. Customers can bring the painted piece back to have it glazed and fired for a small fee. Party packages are available. One-on-one painting lessons are also available. Phone (313) 729-9282.

"It's a good creative outlet," said Stacey Laker, owner of You're Fired, explaining the studios' popularity. "It's something anybody can do. A good mother-daughter project. A good place to bring the monthly book club. It's the perfect thing to do on a date. You're not eating; you're not going out for coffee. You can just sit and have a conversation and be creative, all at the same time."

STREET SEEN

M At this year's Fash Bash, British Isles Style filled the runway with modern pinstripe suiting, mod-rocker outerwear, romantic velvets, Gaelic tweeds, tartan plaids and opulent furs. But the sidewalks outside the Fox Theatre teemed with Detroit's fashionista who turned heads in original creations. While hardly fit for the Queen, the innovative street wear was astoundingly outrageous and refreshingly improper.

TRAVEL

Frequent flyer shares strategies in travel class

BY HUGH GALLAGHER

Be Kind to Gate Agents!
After logging numerous flight hours on Northwest Airlines, hovering for several hours over airports and playing air fare roulette, Bob Cowen has learned that the agent at the gate can be a time saver and a money saver.

Cowen of Farmington Hills is sharing this and other travel knowledge in three-hour classes for the Southfield and Farmington community education pro-

As a salesman for a communications software company, Cowen does a lot of traveling and he's taken notes on his experiences from "Halifax to Mexico and the southern Caribbean to Vancouver."

"I feel sick when I see people paying what they are paying for air fares and hotels and know they don't have to if they know what they're doing," he said.

Two years ago, he decided to do something about it.

"I like selling and I like teaching, so I developed a class. I went to Southfield schools and they said OK, so I taught there for a year and then went to Farmington," he said.

His original plan was to help businesses save money on their necessary travel expenses. Though he originally designed the class for business, 80 percentof the students were leisure travelers.

Using an overhead projector, Cowen has carefully planned his class to combine the humor borne of traveller frustration with a planned attack that as one student phrased it in a survey card "Puts me on a level field with the airlines."

And Cowen finds that he often learns as much as teaches.

"The class is three hours but it often runs 3-1/2 hours and more. There is a real interchange of ideas in each class," he said.

Cowen outlines his class on two of his transparencies under "Travel Secrets": Save up to 50 percent on air fares, more frequent flyer mileage, first class seating, best seat on the airplane, eliminate connecting flights, get to the front of any line, find the best travel agent, preview resort/cruise, get lower hotel rates, reduce rental car charges, travel smarter, avoid delays and cancellations and change a "no change" ticket.

Cowen said there is no one way to get the best air deal, but. offers several strategies that he has found to be helpful.

"I have a top dozen ways to get the best fares," he said.

Among his suggestions is to drive a little and fly out of Lansing or Toledo, where fares are cheaper; split your ticket and fly to a midway city on one airline and complete your flight on another airline, carefully planned it could save you hundreds of dollars; fly into a nearby city that is less fashionable, for instance fly to San Jose rather than nearby San Francisco.

"On trusting airlines, my advice is never trust airlines," Cowen said, only half facetiously.

"If you call Northwest directly, each time you will get a different price. They don't have time to work with you. A travel agent will work with you," Cowen said. Another Cowen rule is use a travel agent.

"I talk about how to find the best agent for you and for your type of travel," Cowen said.

He said recent cutbacks in agent fees paid by airlines have forced travel agents to charge for their services, but he said the work they do is worth the fee.

Cowen also teaches how to "survive and thrive" at airports, a subject that has become especially important in light of recent labor problems at Northwest, Detroit's hub airline.

"I have a Plan B if a flight is delayed," he said. "Who is the most powerful person at the airport and who can help you the most."

Cowen said he has been bumped twice from Northwest flights but has received credits and meal vouchers while others got nothing.

"Keep asking, keep asking, keep asking," Cowen said. He calls it his Mommy-Daddy strategy. If Mommy says "No," go ask Another bit of advice Cowen offers is to avoid E or electronic tickets. He says get a paper ticket so that if you have to change airlines you can do it at the gate rather than waiting in a line at a ticket counter. Airlines aren't required to exchange E tickets until late 1999.

As a software salesman, he is also a promoter of using the computer as a travel tool.

"On the first day of class, one of the things I ask is what kind of travel do you do and do you have internet access. I talk about what sites are good and which aren't." Cowen said.

HIL

The internet can be used to preview trips, find special travel agents, track down the latest changes in air fares and check the Department of State for travel advisories.

Cowen also shares some tips on hotel accommodations and car rentals. He advised taking advantage of every available discount such as AAA and AARP, sending for city brochures that often contain discount coupons and calling a hotel directly rather than calling a central 800 number.

On car rentals, Cowen advises walking the counters after you've called to get a price quote. He said rental companies will often have cheaper rates later in the day.

Several Cowen slides approach travel with humor to break the ice as the class begins. He advises you are traveling too much if: You go to a movie and reach for the seatbelts when you sit down; you don't mind coach to Europe because it's a short flight; the flight attendant recognizes you and knows your name.

But despite the humor, Cowen sees the traveler as a warrior who has to be properly armed.

"Beat them at their own game when it's coming out of your pocket," he said.

And, of course, once at the airport be nice to gate agents.

"They have to turn a plane around, unload and turn around in 30 minutes. You have to know when to leave them alone and when to hit them up for first class upgrade," he said.

Class upgrade," he said.

Cowen will be teaching his class 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Sept. 26, in Southfield and Saturday, Oct. 3, in Farmington and 6:30-9:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 19, in Farmington and Monday, Oct.

Barrett bids adieu to Stevenson

Coach resigns to take EMU assistant's job

BOYS SOCCER

Livonia Stevenson's Walt Barrett, one of the nation's winningest high school boys soccer coaches, is headed to the collegiate ranks.

Barrett, who compiled an impressive 125-15-23 record in eight seasons with the Spartans, will join Eastern Michigan University's staff as an assistant coach under Brian Tinnion.

The move, rumored to be in the works for several months, was finalized early last week.

Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer announced that Barrett will be replaced by former Stevenson great and Detroit Rockers indoor professional Lars Richters, who has served as an assistant and co-coach the past four coach years. See related story.

Barrett leaves Stevenson with two state championships (1991 and '96) and one runner-up finish (1993).

"It was slow torture for three months," Barrett said. "I couldn't take it because was the toughest decision I've ever made in my life.

"I enjoyed Stevenson and being part of the program. That's why it was so hard. It was a huge decision which took until the last moment.

"But this was a wonderful opportunity I couldn't pass up."

Barrett hopes to bolster EMU's recruiting efforts.

The Eagles finished 4-13-4 in Tinnion's fourth season.

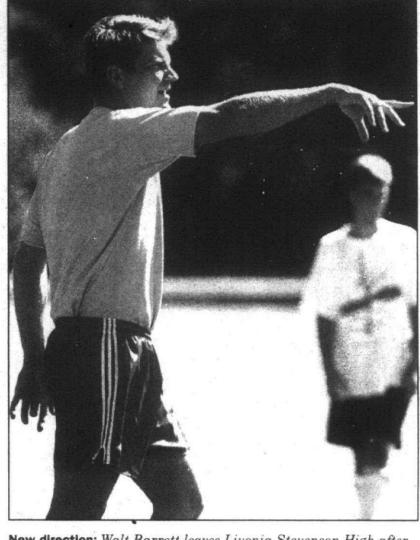

"I'm excited to have him on board,"
Tinnion said of 37-year-old Barrett.
"He will definitely help recruiting. He's been an Olympic Development Program coach at the regional level and obviously he's been a successful high school coach.

"I've known Walt for years and he's a good fit."

Barrett, a former player at Schoolcraft College and club player at Wayne State University, will pay strict attention to defense.

"I was disappointed last year because we gave too many goals away," Tinnion said. "Tve watched him (Barrett) play, and although he was not the most gifted of talents, he was smart and had the physical attributes which compensated against more talented players.

against more talented players.
"We plan to step it up defensively."

New direction: Walt Barrett leaves Livonia Stevenson High after compiling an impressive 125-15-23 overall record in eight years.

In 1997, Barrett took the Birmingham Blazers, an under-16 boys team, to the U.S. Youth Soccer Association championship game. His ODP under-17 regional teams have won national titles three of the past four years.

"I thought my soccer appetite had been satisfied with youth. Maybe I got too comfortable and I needed to be challenged. I had pretty much achieved all my goals in club and in high school.

"I was looking for something else. But I realize this (EMU) is going to be an uphill battle."

Barrett, who led unheralded Southfield High to an upset of Stevenson in the 1987 regional final, spent two seasons as a JV and assistant coach under the legendary Pete Scerri.

Scerri, who won four state titles and had two runner-up finishes, won his last state title in 1998, Barrett's first-year as an assistant.

"I will always be grateful for Walt — who was a successful coach at Southfield — for coming over and being JV coach until Pete Scerri left," Stevenson athletic director Röger Frayer said.
"Not a lot of coaches would be willing to take a step back before taking a step forward.

"He took us to the same heights that Pete Scerri took us and hopefully Lars can continue at the same level."

The EMU assistant's position is not full-time. Barrett will continue to work for Telephone Support Systems of Farmington Hills, commuting back and forth to Ypsilanti.

Barrett told the Stevenson players last spring that the EMU position had been offered.

"I set the table early and I didn't want it to be a shock to them," Barrett said. "I just hope they keep tradition going"

Richters new varsity coach for Spartans

Livonia Stevenson High will fill its boys varsity soccer coaching position from within.

Lars Richters, one of the school's all-time greats, will begin his first practice Monday as head coach for the Spartans.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer.

"I wasn't sure until the last minute that Wally would be leaving, but this is certainly a dream come true," said Richters, who led Stevenson to state championships in 1985 and '86, and played at Yale University. "I've been in coaching awhile, but some day I thought it would be really great to coach back at Stevenson. It's really exciting."

Richters spent the past seven

Richters spent the past seven years playing professional indoor soccer for the Detroit Rockers where the defender was among the NPSL leaders in blocks.

Richters, 29, has also coached for the Livonia YMCA Premier Soccer Club's Hawks and Wolves programs, and worked the Rockers summer camps.

Richters takes over for Barrett, who won a pair of state championships with a career record of 125-15-23 in eight seasons. He also played under Pete Scerri, who won four state titles and finished runner-up twice.

"Stevenson has a great tradition and my job is to build on that tradition," Richters said. "Both Wally and Pete had good ideas on how to be successful at the high school level. They've been doing a lot of things right for a lot of years.

"I have some ideas to add to what they've done. And I know it's not going to be easy."

Richters, who will do his student teaching this year, will likely retire from the professional ranks.

Turkish archer gobbles up field

Elif Altinkaynak overcame a lot of hurdles to win the U.S. Open at the National Archery Championships in Canton on Friday.

Oppressive heat and humidity. Nerves. And her own teammate, who went into the tournament ranked No. 1 in the world.

But Altinkaynak, a native of Antalya, Turkey, rose to the occasion. She overcame a two-point deficit in the final two rounds to defeat fellow countryman Natalia Nasaridze 114-109 for the gold medal.

"I'm very happy," said Altinkaynak, who spoke through an interpreter. "But I was expecting to win."

If that sounds like cockiness, it isn't. Altinkaynak, 23, took a bronze medal in the 1996 Atlanta Olympics using a recurve bow. She came into this week's action ranked No. 5 in the world.

Nasaridze bested Altinkaynak by 50 points in qualifying competition to earn the top seed for Friday's Open.

Nasaridze looked unbeatable as she mowed through four opponents to make it to the final. She then jumped out to a 57-55 lead after the first two rounds against Altinkaynak.

Both competitors shot three arrows, worth a maximum of 10 points each, from 70 meters for a total of four rounds. Altinkaynak made her move in round three by launching three perfect shots.

She, in fact, scored 59 out of a possible

60 points in the final two rounds to edge Nasaridze.

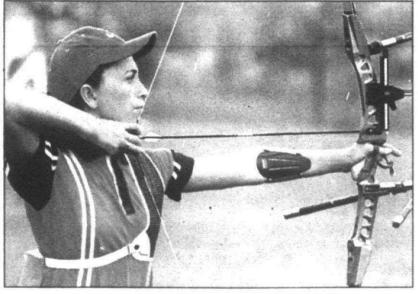

"It was not so easy," Altinkaynak said of shooting against her friend and teammate. "But we expect to have many more good competitions."

The U.S. Open culminated a week's worth of competition at the 114th U.S. National Archery Championships at Canton's Heritage Park.

More than 500 archers from all over the world and America took part. The U.S. Nationals, which featured competition in six classes with both recurve and compound bows, went from Monday through Friday morning.

She's No. 1: Recurve shooter Elif Altinkaynak of Turkey captured the gold medal in the Ladies U.S. Open Friday at Heritage Park in Canton Township.

National champions were supposed to be crowned Thursday, but rain canceled shooting that day

The top 64 point getters in recurve and compound, regardless of age or class, earned tickets into Friday afternoon's U.S. Open. Archers then went head-to-head until only one was left standing.

While the two Turkians took gold and silver in recurve, Norway's Wenche-Lin Hess garnered the bronze. She beat Connecticut-native Karen Scavotto 109-102 In ladies compound, Sally Wunderle of Illinois won the gold. Ashley Kamuf got the silver and Tara Swanney earned a bronze.

On the men's side, Victor Wunderle defeated Barry Weinperl for the recruve gold. Butch Johnson, who was ranked No. 1 in the world going into the tournament, won the bronze Roger Hoyle was the men's compound gold medalist. Matt Kleelan got the silver and Chris Hansen the bronze.

While taking home hardware was the ultimate goal for every competitor at the Open, many archers were pleased to simply make it that far.

U.S. TARGET MEET

Cleveland, Ohio shooter Kim Armitage was one. She made the field of 64 by scoring 2,280 points in Nationals competition.

"I shot pretty well today," said Armitage, despite dropping her first round Open match

She began shooting just four years. A college roommate got her to try the sport and she has been hooked ever since.

Even though she distinguished herself as one of the top 64 female archers in the U.S., Armitage doesn't take it too seriously. The idea, she said, is to have a good time.

"I have to keep in mind to have fun." Armitage explained, "because it's only a game."

Canadian archer Jacquie Saito takes the same attitude. But she also has some serious goals.

"I'm trying to make our world championship and Pan Am teams for next year," the 20-year-old said. "I'm hoping to be on the Olympic team in 2000."

Saito is a good bet to do just that. She won two straight Canadian junior championships. Saito also has two Canadian indeer titles to her credit.

dian indoor titles to her credit.

The Edmonton, Alberta-native said she enjoyed the one-on-one format of the U.S. Open. She said she still has to focus on her shooting and not her opponent in such competitions.

"It's a mind-game for yourself," she added "You can psych yourself out if you're thinking about the other person too much"

The left-hander made it to the final 32, but was then eliminated. She was proud to have won a match at the Open.

"I was definitely the underdog," she said.

Grand Masters champions

Once again: The Livonia Stevenson pom pon squad was named Grand Champi ons at Grand Valley State University's camp. Sponsored by Mid-American Pom Pon, the camp was held July 8-11. To earn the title of Grand Champions, the Spartans had to take first place in three categories: speed learning, kickline and original routine. Not only did Stevenson show excellence in its ability, it also took the Squad Unity Award. The Spartans also had five squad members named to the Mid-American All Star Team: Katie Serge, Beth Guenzel, Jackie DiPonio, Jodie Perrin and Joanne DuMont. Other squad members include: Michelle Baiocco, Steffanie Dalian, Laura DiPonio, Erin Ennis, Whitney Girard, Amy Hartunian, Jessica Kurzeja, Jessica Lwrenchuk, Deana Lynch, Amy Markowski, Emily Marolla, Ashlee Miller, Marla Patlow, Katie Porath, Stephanie Rothenberg Liz Tyndell, Barb Wolfe and dedicated coaches Bridget Regan and Teresa Brooks.
