OPINION

Dear readers,
New Opinion and Op-Edit pages debut today in your Canton Observer. The redesigned Opinion page allows more room for your letters and includes space for a Guest Opinion. A local photograph or local cartoon will also appear on this page.

At the bottom right hand corner of the Opinion page you will find the editor's name, address, telephone number, fax and email address. I hope you will use this information to share your opinions with the editor.

The redesigned Op-Edit page is now named Other Opinions. This is a place for columnists to express their opinion on a variety of issues.

The Observer values your opinions and encourage readers to e-mail, fax or mail us your thoughts on local issues for publication as a guest opinion, letter, or as a columnist on the Op-Edit page.

The mission of the Canton Observer is to enhance the lives of our readers, nurture the hometowns we serve and contribute to the business success of our customers. We believe that informed, thoughtful debate on the Opinion and Op-Edit pages are a necessary ingredient of this mission.

I welcome your comments and your suggestions.

I can be reached at (734) 953-2100 or by email at srosiek@oe.hometowncomm.net

Sincerely,

Susan Rosiek

"It was a perfect day and everything went off without a hitch," said Fred Hill, organizer of the Good Morning USA Fourth of July parade in downtown Plymouth.

No one really knows exactly how many people attended Tuesday's event, but police and Hill believe it could easily have added up to nearly 15,000 spectators.

"The crowd continues to grow for this event. I think people are really getting into the 7:30 a.m. start,"

METROPARK SYSTEM PROVIDES RECREATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES CLOSE TO HOME

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER
smason@oe.hometowncomm.net

Henry Curtis and Harlow Whittemore had an idea. The two men, in looking at the recreational needs of Washtenaw County, realized that those same needs existed among other counties in southeastern Michigan.

Based on their research, the two men - Curtis was the former director of New York City playgrounds and Whittemore the chair of the University of Michigan Department of Landscape Design - proposed a regional park system, stretching from Lake Erie on the south and Lake St. Clair on the north.

More than 60 years later, the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority has 13 parks in Wayne, Washtenaw, Livingston, Oakland and Macomb counties, providing recreational opportunities for more than 4 million people.

"The Metroparks were the idea and dream of some long-range thinking people, who envisioned a great need for recreational opportunities around lakes and impoundments," said Frank Sudek, HCMA director.

"The system of parks we have today were acquired and developed and are pristine today because of them."

"It was people trying to preserve open space, so we didn't lose it. It was the same issue raised today that was raised 60 years ago."

"Those men were truly visionary," said William Kreger, who has represented Wayne County on the Board of Commissioners for 39 years. "There was nothing there when we opened up Stony Creek (in 1964). It was all farm land. Now, they're building $450,000-$470,000 homes right next to the park."

Thanks to Public Act 147 of 1939 and overwhelming approval of a referendum by voters in the five counties a year later, the HCMA came into being.

HCMA makes use of the more than $23 million generated by an up to .25-mill property tax levy and more than $11 million from vehicle entry and boat launching permits, marina charges and fees for such special facilities as golf, tennis, swimming pool to purchase, develop, improve and maintain the parks.

According to Kreger and Sudek, those things are what have made the parks a success.

Police sting nets fireworks

COP CALLS

A 42-year-old Clarkston woman was reportedly cited for selling illegal fireworks to an undercover Canton police officer following a sting operation Monday. A police report stated an undercover officer visited the location on Michigan west of Hannan and offered to buy a bottle rocket for $15. After purchasing it, the officer identified himself and arrested the woman for selling illegal fireworks. Some 288 bottle rockets were reportedly confiscated.

Eight other Canton area businesses were also investigated for possible illegal fireworks sales but generated no arrests.

Equipment stolen

A forklift valued at an estimated $85,000 was reportedly removed from a construction site at Cherry Hill and Denton sometime before Wednesday. Police have no suspects.

Weapons violation

A 16-year-old Canton youth was cited for possession of dangerous weapons Saturday in the 46000 block of Geddes. A police report stated that police were responding to a complaint about someone firing a gun outside the clubhouse of the mobile home park. A .45-mm BB gun reportedly belonging to the youth was recovered from some bushes and a 3 1/2 inch butterfly knife was confiscated from him. The youth told police he was using the BB gun for target practice.

Larceny of lumber

A 48-year-old Canton man and 34-year-old Novi man were arrested for stealing lumber Monday. A police report stated the lumber had been taken from an apartment construction site near Ford and Haggerty, which has been the site of numerous larcenies.

Domestic violence

A 32-year-old Canton woman was arrested for domestic violence following an incident with a 28-year-old man living in her home in the 41000 block of Canton Court. A police report stated the pair had fought over his cashing his Social Security check. He reportedly suffered a laceration to his face, welts to his left forearm and left fingers and various cuts and bruises. The woman reportedly used a 2-foot stick during the assault.

Vandalism

Someone reportedly broke two windows of a Chevy Suburban parked outside a residence in the 41000 block of Koppernick sometime before Monday, July 3. Entry was not gained to the vehicle, according to a police report.

Motorist threatened

An 18-year-old Canton man reported being harassed by passengers in another vehicle Tuesday, July 4, while waiting at the intersection of Ford and Lilley. The man told police that the passengers and driver in the other vehicle threw bottles at his car, swerved to try to run him off the road and rammed his rear end several times while proceeding northbound on Sheldon. After pulling into the Plymouth Township Police Department parking lot the other car left. A police report stated the other car was registered to a Livonia man.

Drunken driving

A 53-year-old Canton woman was cited for operating under the influence of liquor Tuesday, July 4, just after midnight on Ford east of Sheldon. A breath test showed a .22 blood alcohol level, more than twice the legal limit.

Public urination

An 18-year-old Canton man was cited for urinating in public and for resisting police Tuesday, July 4, while in the 51000 block of Mott. A police report stated that police were responding to a fight in progress. A police officer reportedly found the man urinating on the ground. The man then fled, prompting a foot chase. A police officer reportedly yelled for him to stop, and the chase continued until the man fell on the ground. The man reportedly said he was running away because of outstanding warrants. He was also cited for minor in consumption of alcohol and for minor in possession of tobacco. He has two outstanding warrants in Romulus' 34th District Court and Plymouth's 35th District court for failure to appear in connection to an OUIL offense.

Larcenies

Someone reportedly broke into a vehicle parked in the 1800 block of Aberdeen on or before Monday and removed a $100 amplifier, $220 set of subwoofer speakers, 25 compact discs valued at $300 and a $30 neon light. Approximately $70 worth of damage was caused to the window. Other vehicles in the area also were reportedly broken into around the same time.

Someone reportedly took $1,200 worth of compact discs from a vehicle parked in an open garage on or before Monday. Another vehicle on the property was also reportedly broken into but nothing was taken.

Someone reportedly took golf clubs and a bag worth an estimated $600 from a vehicle parked in the 1500 block of Oakview on or before Monday.

Schools: 'We're in good financial shape'

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

"We're in good financial shape right now, better than in the past."

That's the assessment of Patricia Brand, the district's executive director of business services, after the board of education passed the 2000-01 proposed budget at its June 27 meeting.

"With the increase in the state foundation allowance going up $300 per student, and our projection of 111 new students in the fall, we're definitely in good shape," added Brand. "It's certainly a much better position than a declining enrollment district."

Brand said the district is expecting a revenue increase during the budget year of $5.4 million, a 4.9 percent boost. Of that amount, $5.3 million comes in the form of state funding.

The proposed budget calls for total revenues exceeding $117 million. Total expenditures are $115 million, and that includes an increase in new programs costing more than $1.5 million.

Some of those new programs include:

- $146,420 to fund district aides for medication distribution, lunchroom supervision and media center assistance.

- $117,058 to increase the number of special education staff.

- $100,000 to hire a principal for the third high school.

- $63,338 to train elementary and middle school teachers on the use of new computers and their effective integration into the curriculum.

- $40,000 to add or replace middle school and high school music instruments.

- $20,000 to help the Marching Band with increased costs.

At the end of the next fiscal year June 30, 2001, the district is anticipating a fund balance of $20.6 million, which includes more than $5.4 million from the so-called Durant settlement with the state. The district is saving the Durant settlement revenue for a rainy day, meaning the available fund balance is expected to be $15.2 million. That's 13

"Many districts are putting away 10-20 percent, so I think ours is very adequate," said Brand. "I think I would be uncomfortable in putting more away. We want to be safe in case of a decrease in the state appropriation. However, we don't want to be sitting on taxpayer money."

Brand said as a result of increased construction in the communities which the district serves, there will be a reduction of the debt millage rate. The owner of a $200,000 home will save $25 in taxes for the year.

many and France, will construct a single story building on just under three acres.

It will be used for administrative offices, training and research. Pilz makes safety equipment for companies such as GM, DaimlerChrysler and Johnson & Johnson.

The benefit of having companies like Pilz in the community are numerous, said Yack. Jobs, tax base and prestige are among them, he added.

"I think we're getting the reputation for being an office community," said Yack.

The supervisor said Yazaki's arrival might have paved the way for other firms to come to Canton.

"I think Yazaki has had something to do with it," Yack said.

Pilz will be one of the final pieces of the puzzle for Koppernick Commerce Park. Yack said one major parcel is left in the park.

"We haven't heard of any inquiries about it yet," he added.

Canton trustees also granted special land use for two "spec industrial buildings" in the commerce park Tuesday. The buildings, which will be between 30,000 and 50,000 square feet each, can house varied uses, from high-tech to office, said Yack.

He's pleased with the direction of development at Koppernick Commerce Park and the surrounding area. Yack thinks another part of the township will see similar development.

"The hope is that the I-275/Michigan Avenue, Haggerty area will be the same way," he said.

LYME DISEASE

Dogs contract Lyme disease primarily when bitten by a tick infected with the Borrelia burgdorferi bacteria. Fleas and other biting insects may also spread the disease, as can direct contact with infected bodily fluids. Common symptoms of Lyme disease include loss of appetite, lethargy, high fever, swollen lymph nodes and joints, and lameness. Treatment should be prompt to prevent permanent damage to joints or internal organs. If left untreated, Lyme disease can lead to kidney and heart disease. Antibiotics work well in most cases. A vaccination against Lyme disease is available for dogs, and prompt removal of ticks also helps prevent the disease. A tick needs to feed on the dog for about 25 hours to spread Lyme disease.

The ticks can infect humans too, so even if your dog is inoculated, check it for ticks and remove them carefully. PARKWAY VETERINARY CLINIC, our caring, compassionate staff provides complete services in a family atmosphere. We treat all our patients as if they were our own pets. Visit either of our two locations at 41395 Wilcox Rd. in Plymouth, tel. 734-453-2577, or 5750 Lilley Rd. in Canton, tel. 734-981-4400. Both locations are open six days a week for your convenience.

P.S. Various kinds of ticks, including the deer tick, black-legged tick, and Western black-legged tick, can spread Lyme disease.

It's a gas!

Or a liquid or solid, as All Saints students discover at science camp

BY SCOTT DANIEL
STAFF WRITER
sdaniel@oe.homecomm.net

Science isn't boring. That's the message elementary-age students received this week at a science camp held at All Saints school in Canton. Through activities and hands-on based learning, campers were exposed to basic scientific concepts.

"We don't do any book work," said Mary Starr, a University of Michigan-Dearborn education professor who directed the camp. "This is all hands-on. We're also focusing on writing and reading. There's no chance for the kids to get bored."

The camps were made up of All Saints' students. Children from the township, Plymouth and other surrounding communities attend the Catholic school.

Brandon Nalezty, a 9-year-old Novi resident, had mixed feelings about the camp initially.

"I didn't really know what I'd do," he said. "I looked over the form and I thought it would be fun."

Science camp started June 19 for 30 students.

Starr planned large and small group activities for the camp, which ran three hours each day. She used a hot air balloon to demonstrate density for one of the large group activities.

Starr heated air with propane to raise the tissue balloons. While several shot high in the air, one balloon barely made it off the ground.

"We want more air," students chanted. Students got to choose two topics out of four for small group work.

"Changes" focused on how some materials can transform from liquid to gas or liquid to solid. Evaporation, condensation and separation were among the areas covered.

One experiment highlighted chemical reactions. Students placed a small amount of baking soda in a cup filled with vinegar and then put a lid on top. The result was, well, explosive.

Sound ideas: Lauren Fahlan of Canton, 5, and Artef Vincenti of Novi, 8, use nails of various sizes to learn about sound pitch.

"That was cool," said one student. "It broke my lid. Can we do that again?"

Other topics focused on sound, measurement and balance. Anna Vincenti enjoyed her week learning about sound.

"When you're using a tuning fork," the 11-year Novi resident said, "you can see the vibrations."

Children were not the only ones learning at the camp.

A pair of student-teachers from U-M Dearborn helped conduct the classes. Garden City resident Lauren French said her students really liked the hands-on approach.

"They're very excited to learn," she commented. "This is how I want to teach."

Natalie Comeau said she was getting a lot out of the camp.

"It's a wonderful experience for me," the Dearborn resident said. "I'm very interested in science."

It was the first science camp at All Saints. Starr, who has a child at the school, said other parents urged her to put the two-week event together. Response has been excellent, she added.

"I had parents tell me they wished it was this easy to get their child up for school all year," Starr said.

Plymouth resident Nick Vanderlaan, 8, said he liked the camp.

"It has been pretty good," he said Monday during his measurement small-group session. "It's interesting to find out how long things are."

Hot air: Students and counselors watch a mini hot air balloon as it sails high above the school.

Blood drive set for July 10

While you're jotting down picnics, parades and vacations in your summer calendar, make a date to donate blood on July 10.

Hospitals in the area often experience critical blood shortages during this busy season, especially around the July 4 holiday. To meet the needs of local patients, St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth is teaming up with the American Red Cross to host a summer blood drive from 2-8 p.m. Monday, July 10.

All local residents are invited to participate.

Donating blood takes less than an hour, yet statistics show that only 5 percent of eligible people take the time to donate. The most common reason for not donating? "No one asked me."

Sign up today to donate blood on July 10. Make an appointment by calling St. John's blood drive coordinators Shelly Meinhardt at (313) 255-4319 or Bob Wolf at (734) 421-1652.

Firefighter charity golf outing set for July 11 at Pheasant Run

BY SCOTT DANIEL
STAFF WRITER
sdaniel@oe.homecomm.net

Canton's firefighters believe in helping those in need. But like everything else, it takes money. In an effort to raise funds, firefighters will be hosting their annual charity golf outing on July 11 at Pheasant Run Golf club in Canton. "It helps us keep money in the bank for different needs that come up through out the year," said Fire Capt. Jim Davison. The firefighters' fund was started in 1995 to help a young man receive a double-lung transplant. Since then, it has been used to help fire victims and a number of charities. Hotel fees, food and clothing are often provided to fire victims, for example. "We usually give $1,500 to Jerry's Kids each year and make a contribution to Special Olympics," Davison added. Township firefighters raise money throughout the year, but get the majority of their funds from two events. The first is a spaghetti dinner during Liberty Fest. With the help of Rose's Restaurant and others, firefighters served approximately 750 dinners and raised $4,000. They're hoping to raise nearly as much at the July 11 golf outing. The event will begin at 8:30 a.m. with a shotgun start. A four-person scramble will follow. For $100, golfers will get 18 holes with a cart, beverages on the course, lunch at the turn and a dinner banquet with open bar. Banquet-only tickets can be purchased for $50. Space is still available for interested golfers. For more information or to purchase a ticket, call Capt. Jim Davison at (734) 398-5262.

Q&A

Q: When did the U.S. acquire Hawaii?
A: On July 7, 1898, President William McKinley signed a resolution annexing Hawaii. No change in government took place until 1900, when Congress passed an act making Hawaii an "incorporated" territory of the U.S. This act remained in effect until Hawaii became a state in 1959.

Organ donation is focus of cross-country walk

Canton resident Rosemary Grobke said nothing makes a person more of a supporter of organ and tissue donation than having to wait precariously for a donor organ to save a family member's life.

Grobke's son, Kevin, 20, was put on a national organ recipient list in 1996. At age 3, he was diagnosed with non-Hodgkins T-cell lymphoma. One of the medications he took for dealing with the effects of chemotherapy made his heart become enlarged and caused it to begin failing.

Because he was deteriorating so rapidly, he was only on the recipient list for 20 days — but the transplant operation took place in the nick of time, his mother said.

"He got his heart on a Thursday," she said. "On Wednesday, (doctors) moved him into intensive care."

She was told that without a donor heart, Kevin would die within two days. A short time later, she was told a donor heart was located in the Grand Rapids area. A 17-year-old boy was the donor.

On Aug. 22 every year, Grobke said she throws a "heart party" for her son — to celebrate the date he received the donor heart.

Since receiving the heart, Kevin graduated from Salem High, received his culinary arts degree from Schoolcraft and participated in the Transplant Games in Orlando, featuring competitive athletics among transplant recipients.

He works in the Summit with his mother as a chef.

The First Family Pledge Millennium Mayorthon, part of a coast-to-coast effort to raise awareness about organ donation, is scheduled to make its way through a portion of Canton today with township Supervisor Tom Yack walking from the U.S. Post Office on Canton Center north of Cherry Hill to the St. Joseph Mercy Health Building, at Canton Center and Summit Parkway.

"It seemed to me that this was a very worthwhile and noble endeavor that would give people a second chance at life," Yack said.

The Mayorthon's opening

stretch was in San Francisco on April 16. Mayors in California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio have all participated.

By the Mayorthon's end Sept. 2 in Washington, it will have crossed 21 states and nearly 6,000 miles.

Organ transplants provide new life for more than 20,000 men, women and children each year.

The Mayorthon visited Ann Arbor, Canton, Westland, Garden City and Dearborn Heights during the Michigan stretch.

The Millennium Mayorthon is a coast-to-coast relay to encourage families to donate organs and tissues. More than 70,000 men, women and children are currently on a waiting list for donated organs and tissues.

"Many people believe that if they sign a donor's card or have a note on their driver's license, that's enough to ensure that their wishes are honored," said Nancy Ascher, M.D., president of the American Society of Transplant Surgeons. "But it's not.

The family always makes the final decision. We hope the Mayorthon will encourage families in Canton — and across America — to talk to each other, make the decision as a family to become donors and sign the First Family Pledge as a testament to their decision."

The Mayorthon was created by the American Society of Transplant Surgeons and is co-sponsored by the American Red Cross. For more information, call (800) 848-8836 or visit www.mayorthon.com on the Internet.

Man: Show organizers unfair

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

A Belleville man who spent years restoring a 1965 Pontiac GTO said he was turned away in a matter of minutes at the Canton Liberty Fest's classic car show and was not allowed to show his car.

Gary Gubacz showed up at about 1:30 p.m. Sunday, June 25, with his banana yellow GTO and was told that no more cars were being accepted into the show. But he said after he was turned away, other car owners were allowed into the park to show their cars.

"They turned me away from the gate," Gubacz said. "They said they didn't have any more room but there was plenty of spots. When I left, I'd seen a car going in there."

Gubacz said he's spent $32,000 over the past two years restoring the car, which he purchased nearly four years ago.

Brian Lawrence, president of the America's Most Wanted Car Club, which sponsored the classic car show, said he was not aware of Gubacz's situation.

"(He) probably got there after noon," Lawrence said. "If somebody got in (after that), they probably snuck in."

Canton police guarded both the entrance and exit to the area around the ponds where people displayed their cars, he said.

All literature states registration for the show runs until 11 a.m., but Lawrence said people were allowed to register until noon. Car owners paid $15 to register their wheels.

Lawrence also said Saturday night's heavy rains made the grassy pond banks too soggy and muddy to park cars.

Summit ready for parking lot repair, expansion

Two stages: Repairs to the Summit parking lot will be done in two stages to allow for some on-site parking.

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

Nearly 500,000 people visit Summit on the Park annually, with many of those visitors bringing their vehicles. Over time, those vehicles, combined with the elements such as rain, snow, ice and temperature fluctuations, cause the asphalt to simply wear out. The Canton Township Board of Trustees has approved hiring Asphalt Specialists Inc. of Pontiac for $36,664 to repair the parking lot. Debbie Bilbrey-Honsowetz, Summit manager, said the parking lot needs re-striping, crack sealing, catchbasin repair, restoration and a new seal coat. "It's just worn out from normal wear and tear caused by vehicles

■ Municipal Services Director Aaron Machnik said the township should consider spending extra money on base material before paving, similar to the Pheasant Run golf club lot.

driving over the parking lot," Bilbrey-Honsowetz said. "Considering the 400,000-500,000 people that use the building in some capacity every year, that's a lot of cars coming and going." The parking lot would be repaired in two sections, eliminating the need to close the entire parking lot. Bilbrey-Honsowetz said she would have to look at the Summit schedule to determine what time would be best to do the work, which is expected to take a couple of weeks. "We would want to pick times when the building isn't filled to capacity," she said. The parking lot was installed in August 1995 and the Summit officially opened to the public in January 1996. Municipal Services Director Aaron Machnik said the township should consider spending extra money on base material before paving. He noted that Pheasant Run Golf Club's parking lot received such treatment and has held up better than the Summit over a similar time period. "It's still in good condition today," Machnik told the board. "We will suggest putting more money up front (for base) for any new municipal buildings." Besides fixing the existing parking lot, the township is planning to add a pair of lots. Bilbrey-Honsowetz said parking is at capacity during peak times now. Between 100 and 150 additional spaces are planned just west of existing parking. The additional lots are part of an overall expansion of the Summit. The project, which will likely start late this summer, will cost approximately $2.7 million. A new fitness room, aerobics area and lockers are among the items being added. About $750,000 of the project will be paid with a state grant. Staff writer Scott Daniel contributed to this report.

RESOLUTION NO. 2000-06-66

Gorman Street Water Main

Special Assessment District (Resolution Number 4)

Charter Township of Canton, County of Wayne, State of Michigan
A regular meeting of the Township Board of the Charter Township of Canton, county of Wayne, State of Michigan, held on the 27th day of June, 2000, in the Township Hall in said Township at 7 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

Present: Members Bennett, Burdzyak, Kirchgatter, LaJoy, McLaughlin, Shefferly, Yack
Absent Members: None

The following preamble and resolution were offered by Member Bennett, and supported by member Burdzyak:

WHEREAS, by resolution adopted April 11, 2000, the Township Board of the Charter Township of Canton determined to acquire and construct the improvements more particularly hereinafter described (Exhibit A) and assess the cost thereof to the property benefited by said improvements, all in accordance with Act 188, Public Acts of Michigan, 1954, as amended; and,

WHEREAS, the Supervisor has prepared and reported to the Township Board a special assessment roll assessing the cost of said improvements to the property benefited thereby, with the Supervisor's certificate attached thereto;

Now, Therefore, be it resolved, that:

- Said special assessment roll shall be filed with the office of the Township Clerk and shall be available for public examination during regular working hours on regular working days.
- The Township Board shall meet at a regular board meeting, at 7 p.m. on July 25, 2000, at the Township Hall in the Township to review said special assessment roll and hear any objection thereto.
- The Township Clerk shall cause notice of such hearing and the filing of the assessment roll to be published twice in the Canton Observer, a newspaper of general circulation in the Township, prior to the date of the hearing, and shall cause notice of such hearing, which first such publication shall be at least ten (10) days before the hearing, to be mailed by first class mail to all record owners of or persons in interest in property in the special assessment district (Exhibit B), as shown on the last Township tax assessment record of the Township, at least ten (10) full days before the date of said hearing. Said notice as published and mailed shall be in substantially the following form:

Scores of people paid their respects to long-time Plymouth resident Johnston "Jack" Wilcox today during services at the Schrader-Howell Funeral Home for the 83-year-old man known to many as the "icon of the city."

Wilcox, who took a keen interest in municipal affairs and lived in the heart of the city, died Friday, June 30, from congenital heart failure after contracting pneumonia, according to long-time friend Allen Odell.

Johnston 'Jack' Wilcox

for becoming a city commission watchdog in 1955. He attended just about every meeting of the commission until most recently when he became too ill to attend.

Wilcox, who has been called a friend, mentor, and Mr. Plymouth by some, was probably best known

One of the highlights of his prominent life in Plymouth came April 18 when he was inducted to the Plymouth Hall of Fame. Last year he was given the city's first Citizen of the Year award, and subsequently had the award named after him.

Wilcox was a retired U.S. Navy captain who came back to Plymouth, the city he grew up in. He was a graduate of Plymouth High School, where he was senior class president in 1935, and graduated from the University of Michigan four years later.

Among his civic contributions was an appointment to the Plymouth city commission to fill an unexpired term in 1985. At various times he was also a member of the Plymouth Historical Society, the Plymouth Theatre Guild, the Plymouth Community Council on Aging, the Plymouth Economic Development Corporation, the Dunning-Hough Library Board of Directors, the Riverside Cemetery Board and the Plymouth Historic District Commission.

Wilcox was also the manager of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce in 1957-58. He also hosted "Profiles in Plymouth" on local cable television.

The Plymouth native was among the contingent of local citizens who made an official visit to the sister city of Plymouth, England, nearly 20 years ago. He was also among the first to visit China when direct travel became possible, visiting the Great Wall and the Forbidden City.

But, while he liked to travel, it was Plymouth where Wilcox spent most of his time and put most of his efforts and energy. It wasn't surprising to see him walking in Kellogg Park during most of the city's festivals, considering he lived across the street from the events. All he ever asked of the city was that the events end early enough so his tenants could get to sleep without the loud noise from the park.

He favored helping the youth gain access to downtown, often backing efforts by youth groups to organize concerts in Kellogg Park and offering his property to them for fun and games.

RUNNERS' INJURIES

A recent study sheds new light on running injuries. Stress fractures of the bones of the legs and feet are the most common problem among runners and are more frequent among those with high or low arches. Runners with tight calf muscles were found to be at increased risk of Achilles tendinitis; however, no relationship was found between foot structure and knee injuries. These findings are regarded as quite reliable because they involved Navy SEALs trainees under supervised conditions. The study also showed that 33% of the SEALs suffered at least one overuse injury during training, which is consistent with studies of civilian runners that show between 15% and 48% seek medical attention or reduce mileage to overuse injuries.

Any type of physical exercise carries a certain amount of risk of injury due to accident, incorrect form, or overuse. At the HANDS ON CENTER FOR PHYSICAL THERAPY, we treat athletes of ages with all the latest physical therapy methods to ensure a speedy recovery. We also offer occupational therapy, treatment for bone and joint problems, and pre- and postpartum back pain. Ask your physician for a referral, or call 455-4370 to learn more about our wide range of services. You'll find our facilities located in Plymouth, at 470 Forest Avenue, Suite 20.

RS. The study mentioned above contradicts some previous research that suggested common problems in runners' knees (including kneecap pain and pain in the side of the knee) could be traced to abnormal foot structure.

CLASSIC WHITE

White has been the choice for traditional wedding bouquets since Queen Victoria selected white for her wedding in 1840. Ann all-white bouquet is symbolic of purity and serenity. For the classical elegance that comes with an all-white wedding bouquet, think of a cascade of orange blossoms, roses, violets, carnations, and lilac. Or, consider a posy of white stock, lilies of the valley, peonies, astrantia, and freesia in a loosely wired arrangement. Another option consists of a nosegay of stephanotis and hyacinth. The introduce a hint of color, try mixing some Stargazer Lilies into the arrangement. Their deep red centers will draw attention among the traditional bridal whites. For a less stark arrangement, choose cream-colored flowers for your arrangement.

Whatever colors or styles you desire, HEIDE'S FLOWERS & GIFTS, can create special floral arrangements for a wedding, anniversary, birthday, new baby, sympathy piece, or just to say "I was thinking of you." Prices May Vary After July 20, 2000 If There Are Market Variations. See Store For Details Regarding Product Warranties. We Reserve The Right To Limit Quantities.

*Some companies that make the appliances Lowe's and other appliance retailers sell set a "Minimum Advertised Price" for many of their products. This means that appliance retailers-Lowe's included-can only advertise such items at that price or higher. So, if you see the "Below Any Advertised Price You'll See" symbol (shown here) next to an advertised appliance item, we are confident that our price is less than any other advertised price you'll see on the same model. If you happen to find a lower price, we'll match it PLUS take off an additional 10%. Why do you think we're called Lowe's?

Special Buys are products that we have been able to obtain at an unusually low price from our supplier for a specific quantity or for a limited time, and we pass the savings on to you. We make every effort to have sufficient quantities on hand to meet reasonably anticipated demand. Special Buy price no longer applies once those quantities are exhausted. *Price Guarantee Policy: We guarantee our everyday competitive prices. If you find a lower everyday or advertised price on an identical item which is in stock at any local retail competitor, we'll beat that price by 10% when you buy from us. Just bring the competitor's current ad to your local Lowe's store, or we'll call to verify the price and identity of the item. Offer is subject to verifying that competitor's item is in stock. Cash and credit card purchases only. Competitor's closeout, special order, discontinued, clearance, liquidation and damaged items are excluded from this offer. Limited to reasonable quantities for homeowners and one-house order quantities for contractors. Current Lowe's in-store price, if lower, overrides advertised price. Labor charges including charges to install products under our Installed Sales Program or Sell, Furnish and Install Program are excluded from our price guarantee offer. added Hill. "And the weather was really on our side."

One thing is for certain: Everybody loves a parade.

"I liked it all," proclaimed Kristen Selasky, 9, of Plymouth Township. "It was all fun."

Dan Gordon and Carole Good-fellow make it a point to see several parades on the Fourth of July, with Plymouth the first stop.

"We've been coming here the past three years," said Gordon. "It's always good, but we look forward to seeing the (Fred Hill) Briefcase Drill Team."

For some, being in the parade is just as much fun as watching it.

"The crowds cheer from both sides of the street and it really pushes us to be good," said Chris Petersen of Northville, a member of Hill's briefcase brigade for 16 years.

"We've been in the parade for 25 years and it's still fun," said Matt Lee of Plymouth Township, who drove his restored 1929 fire engine. "It's a tribute to the firemen, after all they still make house calls."

Community Federal Credit Union employees guided the clown balloon down Main Street.

"We almost didn't make it in the parade because it wasn't completely filled with helium," said Amber Hosler. "We had about thirty seconds worth of training with it, and we had him do a belly flop while going under the traffic lights."

Lisa Valentine, 8, of Plymouth Township marched with the YMCA Indian Guides and may have put it best.

WAYNE COUNTY COMMISSION ELECTION • DISTRICT 11

In the Aug. 8 primary election, voters in Canton, Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron townships and the cities of Wayne, Romulus and Belleville will decide which of two Republican candidates will face incumbent county commissioner John J. Sullivan for the 11th District commission seat in the Nov. 7 general election. Sullivan is unopposed for the Democratic nomination. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

FRED A. BOLDEN

ROB A. BOVITZ

JOHN J. SULLIVAN

29 - Wayne - Democrat - Elected county commissioner in November, 1998 - Vice chairman, county committee on public safety and judiciary - Member, county committee on the roads, airports and public services and the committees on general government, economic development and the audit - Chairman, county community corrections advisory board; member, E9-1-1 - Attorney, notary public.

QUESTION 1:

What would be your goals as county commissioner?

Policy-making is a definite course of action selected from among all alternatives in light of given conditions. My role will be to provide overall organizational leadership and create a path to better management. As a commissioner, I will work to learn from studying our county's fund structure and learn which programs are funded from each fund.

QUESTION 2:

Name the three biggest problems facing the county commission and/or the county government and what you would do to resolve them.

Tax reform: publish audits and challenge the services provided. Economic development: Put a comprehensive long- and short-term plan in place. Road improvements: I will continue fighting to let townships and cities decide spending priorities. At Metro Airport now, you can't get information without legislation. This will change; the commission can no longer vote "yes" on (Metro's) continued mismanagement.

QUESTION 3:

Do you favor the proposed 0.5-mill regional arts tax to provide funds for major area institutions and local communities? Why or why not?

I favor increasing area institutions but not at taxpayers' expense. A classic example of a back-door increase. My concern is for the elderly and poor who will face increased property taxes. I propose leveraging local resources for the arts; expanding support for government's role in distributing taxes for the arts; and move forward with an arts endowment.

QUESTION 4:

Do you support renewal of both the one-mill general operating levy and 0.25-mill parks levy? Why or why not?

I want to know where and how we spend $36 million (on general services). We should be providing tax incentives to businesses willing to relocate to Wayne County and provide job training and placement. How can we sustain (the other services) without continued tax renewal? (Parks millage): You can't keep putting these proposals before voters without explanation.

QUESTION 5:

Where should tax money go - to rebuild roads and highways or to improve mass transit, such as buses and light rail? Explain.

I feel the current focus should be on fixing what needs to be fixed first: our local roads and freeways. Then move over and create the mass transit system that we need to continue to expand economic growth.

My primary goal is to make Wayne County more accessible to the citizens - its services (roads, airports, parks, etc.) and necessities (licensing, assumed name filing, court system, etc.). My being an advocate to and for the people, rather than a politician primarily concerned with re-election, will help accomplish this.

Property taxes are too high, roads are inferior and the airport is not world-class in terms of operations or image. The solution is to maintain focus on solving the problems with the department heads and administration. You must be a "bridge builder" and work pro-actively to accomplish positive problem-solving.

I wholeheartedly support the quality-of-life implications of arts and culture on the citizens of Wayne County. However, I cannot support a mandatory tax assessment on everyone, unless it can be proven that taxpayers will benefit entirely and that administrative overhead costs will not eliminate the positive benefit to the people.

My personal philosophy is three-fold: lower taxes, less government and more empowerment to the people! I cannot support any additional tax assessments or millage renewals if there is waste avoidable in government spending and administration.

Roads and mass transit definitely need improvement and enhancement. District 11 has over 30 percent of Wayne County's total land area and the majority of unpaved roads. We must fine-tune the mass transit system to more efficiently use tax dollars. Increased utilization of alternative mass transportation will also help solve road congestion.

Work to retain the nearly one-third allocation in the county roads budget so as to continue improving district roads; continue improving county-community relationships; continue helping Metro Airport become friendlier, more convenient and attractive; make county procurement procedures more open, fair and easier to understand; and bring county services to western Wayne County.

To reduce poor service and overcrowding at Metro, work to assure the new terminal and parking open soon as possible. To correct the perception of improper contracting by the county, work to adopt a new contracting ordinance. To correct the projected $8-$10-million deficit, continue making across-the-board cuts and tighten belts without affecting mandated services.

The Commission has yet to get details on this; therefore I have not taken a side. I would probably let voters decide it, but I would not encourage passage and would vote against it as most funding would go to institutions outside of Western Wayne County and it likely will not lower most admissions.

I voted to let people decide via ballot whether to continue paying for improvements, since most parks are outside the district. I will vote for it because I enjoy what it provides. I support renewing the 1-mill services tax, levied since the 1950s. Without it, the county would have to cut back numerous vital services.

You can't just pick one or the other. Roads and highways must be rebuilt. However, we need increased spending to improve metro-Detroit mass transit for those, including the elderly, depending on it. Improvements also will reduce road wear by cars, thus saving rebuilding dollars, and will provide out-of-staters easier access to metro attractions.

WAYNE COUNTY COMMISSION ELECTION • DISTRICT 12

In the Aug. 8 primary election, voters in Westland, Garden City and Inkster will decide which of two Democratic candidates - incumbent Commission Vice Chair

Kay Beard or her challenger, Westland Mayor Robert J. Thomas - will face Republican William H. Steele for the 12th District commission seat in the Nov. 7 general election. Steele is unopposed for his party's nomination. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

KAY BEARD

79 - Westland - Democrat - Wayne County Commissioner, 12th District, since 1978 and vice chair since 1993 - Chairwoman, audit committee - Vice chair, committee of the whole - Member, public safety and judiciary committee - Vice chairwoman, E9-1-1 task force - Chairwoman, permanent subcommittee on veterans services - President-elect, National Federation of Democratic Women - Founding member, Hospices of Michigan.

A western Wayne County satellite office in the Kay Beard Building for the county clerk, treasurer, register of deeds and the Friend of the Court - which they also want. Auditors at Metro Airport to ensure appropriate and effective public funds use. Prescription drug coverage for seniors. Road construction coordination to improve traffic flow, reduce injuries.

Budget - With a $10.25-million shortfall this year for juvenile justice/child care, all county departments must operate cost-consciously. Metro Airport - Keep it on a steady course through constant, measurable oversight; a new procurement ordinance being developed should help. Crime reduction - Making our area safe and attractive will help our jails, courts and budget.

This is the first time the major art institutions have joined to try for such a tax. I would prefer seeing a few more counties involved in this effort, to spread cost among all users of the facilities. It is a worthwhile effort for being a first time on the ballot, however.

I strongly support renewing the operating millage because it supports existing county services and programs (law enforcement, senior citizens, juvenile court, job training plus public health for seniors, low-income and disabled citizens). Also, we have seen excellent improvements to our parks from that millage and I support its renewal.

The state needs the funds to catch up on fixing our roads. But it also is very important to try for additional federal money for public transportation; our area is hampered by its lacking and our economic resurgence may also suffer if we can't get people who don't have such transportation to good-paying jobs.

ROBERT J. THOMAS

49 - Westland - Democrat - Serving third four-year term as Westland mayor. Licensed builder - Musician - Conference of Western Wayne chairman in 1997 - Westland city employee since 1970.

Improve basic county road services (snow blowing, street-sweeping, roadside mowing, pothole patching, etc.); pursue advanced road construction projects; support continued Metro Airport expansion and seek resulting development for Westland and Inkster; protect the 60-percent majority vote on new county taxes; support the new county prescription discount program; support joint park projects between district and county.

Seek more county Department of Public Services appropriations (and) more state and federal road money. We will need some form of mass transit system. Find how to merge or coordinate SMART and D-DOT, but (also) have a completely new transportation system, either bus or rail. Continue improving and expanding handicapped and elderly programs and services.

Not in the present form. I have said before and I repeat: When they make it a 50/50 split, I will endorse the regional arts tax. Taxes raised in each community need to benefit that community. I don't understand why anyone thinks it unfair to let a community keep half of what it raises.

I support both. They've spent the (operating millage) money wisely, as far as I know. The county has done some great things with the parks millage so far, so they have proven to me the last three years that it benefits all communities. The county has sought to share the money with all.

There is no easy answer to this question. You need to set priorities. I think in the immediate future, (we need funds for) roads and highways. However, for the future, we do need to totally restructure our bus system and look at some light rail. A good study is essential.

WILLIAM H. STEELE

56 - Westland - Republican - Member, Brotherhood of Teamsters Local 51 - Member and former officer, Western Wayne County Republican Club - Member, 13th Congressional District Republican Committee - Shipment stockhandler.

My goals are to (1) find where and how to reduce county spending to cut the tax burden; (2) much more aggressively pursue ongoing auditing of all county departments and operations; (3) outsource the work of any department that's over budget and under-performing; (4) establish a western Wayne County satellite office for licenses, filings, etc.

Gain more co-operation from the county executive and his staff by using the commission's budget-power and ability to override vetoes; free county government from the undue influence of labor unions via federal and state actions; solve the growing public distrust of the county's government by voter action at the ballot box.

No, I do not support this tax. It turns support for the arts into another political football. Art is in the eye of the beholder and is best left for the beholder to support. Also, the state government just increased its support of major metro cultural groups by more than $9 million.

I probably would support the general levy. I am very much interested in senior citizens, public health and juvenile justice, but would still look for ways to trim the operating budget. Our county parks have recently been restored and I would favor paying this tax rather than seeing them fall again into disrepair.

The county should have enough revenue from the state road program to do necessary work without mass transit money. But SMART and Detroit's DOT need to merge into a unified regional transit system. Also, a long-term, functioning metropolitan rapid transit system is needed, with a Detroit - Metro Airport - Ann Arbor light rail as priority.

State launches tax free education savings plan

Michigan lawmakers have launched a new tax free education savings plan they say will be within the reach of all state residents because the accounts can be started with as little as $25.

Previous state sponsored education savings plans, like the Michigan Education Trust, required substantial down payments.

Gov. John Engler has signed into law a bill creating the Michigan Education Savings Program, proposed by Sen. Mike Rogers, R-Howell, allowing Michigan families to save tax-free to provide college and technical training for their children.

The accounts can be started for as little as $25 by anyone interested in saving for college or technical school; are tax-exempt - both principal and interest - in Michigan; and taxes on the interest are deferred at the federal level. The money can be used to cover all costs associated with enrollment, including room and board. Further, the money can be used for any college or technical training institution nationwide.

Total contributions made on behalf of any one beneficiary may not exceed $125,000.

"Even if a family can afford to save only a small amount, the power of compounding can turn that account into a substantial sum to pay the costs of an education, including tuition, books and other fees, or room and board," Rogers said.

"Families who start early in making contributions can turn even small, regular contributions into substantial savings," Engler said. "In its first year alone, this program will save taxpayers $4.6 million."

Rogers pointed out that families can put away as little as $10 a week over the first 18 years of a child's life and have about $20,000 by the time he or she is ready for college.

The education savings program will be administered by the Michigan Department of Treasury, which will contract with a private firm to manage the investments.

Cultural institutions seek arts tax

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

What would you pay for an original Rembrandt? Three cents a day?

If that price is not enticing enough, the Local Education and Recreation Network and the Southeast Michigan Cultural Coalition are willing to sweeten the deal by tossing in the rest of the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the Detroit Zoo and Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, along with 12 other local museums and institutions.

These groups are hoping to place a half mill property tax on the ballot this November in Wayne and Oakland counties to raise money for the support local cultural facilities.

If they can win agreement from the county board of commissioners in Wayne and Oakland, along with the Detroit City Council, to place the question on ballot, the $36 million tax would go before voters in the general election.

Some $24 million would be divvied up between the 16 institutes. The remaining $12 million would go to cultural activities in local communities. Municipal officials would determine how the money would be allocated there. The tax would run for 10 years before coming up for renewal.

It is all an attempt to create a stable source of funding for southeast Michigan's cultural institutions, providing them with a source of revenue to pay for growth, updating exhibits and increased outreach programs.

But according to Steve Hamp, president of Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village and chair of the Cultural Coalition, the emphasis will be on education.

More than 1.2 million children visit the Detroit area's major cultural institutions annually. If voters approve such a tax, the institutions involved are looking for ways to "add value" to their programming. Among the proposals being considered, for example by Greenfield Village, are discounts or waivers of admissions fees for "prescheduled K-12 groups," explained Dave Waymire, executive vice president of Marketing Resource Group Inc.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Hamp said, plans to add free summer public concerts. And the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts will add several performances in the parks.

In addition, the museums and institutes would concentrate on the creation of more programs for youngsters, Hamp said.

The increased emphasis on education has spurred the institutions to create curriculum guides for the use of local school districts. The guides give teachers an idea of what students will see at those institutions, so they can prepare students for the trip. Additionally, the guides give teachers ideas on how to incorporate field trips to the institutions into their class work.

Needs vote

To get the tax proposal on the ballot, the Wayne and Oakland county boards must vote to put it there and approve identical articles of incorporation for the creation of a special council which would distribute the money. According to Dave Doyle, vice president of Marketing Resource Group, the deadline for placement on the ballot is Aug. 30.

Detroit City Council must also approve the articles of incorporation.

The new council would consist of nine appointed members, Doyle explained - three from Oakland County, three from the City of Detroit, and one each from western Wayne, downriver and the Pointes.

Of the major institutions to be included, "the big four," including the DIA, the Detroit Zoo, the DSO and Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village would each be limited to $4 million each. The remainder would be distributed to 12 other institutions based on size. Included would be the Center for Creative Studies, the Cranbrook Art Museum, the Cranbrook Institute of Science, the Museum of African American History, the Detroit Historical Museum, the Detroit Science Center, Meadow Brook Hall, Meadow Brook Theater, the Michigan Opera Theater, the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts, WTVS Channel 56 and the Holocaust Memorial Center.

How the local share would be distributed would be up to the municipal board in each individual community in Wayne and Oakland counties, Doyle said. Each would have to devise its own system. The money would have to go to cultural or recreational activities in those communities.

Most residents of Wayne and Oakland counties visit the institutes from time to time. When polled, 80 to 90 percent of area residents say they have visited the institutions themselves or have children who have gone to them.

Macomb County is not included because the state legislation that allowed for the creation of the council requires a population of 780,000 residents to be included, Hamp said.

SpaceCamp has openings

The National SpaceCamp 2000, one of the summer day camps for children offered by Schoolcraft College, has opened additional sections. There are openings for camps beginning Monday, July 10 and Monday, July 24, for ages 10-12 and 7-9.

SpaceCamp 2000 is one of more than 100 classes for children aged 5-17 Schoolcraft offers during the summer. Students can study computers; learn science and math through classes on hot air balloons, bugs, rockets and weather; hone their performing arts talents; and learn new languages.

SpaceCamp 2000 is a collaboration of the Smithsonian, NASA and the Voyager space program. Campers explore the depths of space as they journey through an adventure that spans history.

With an emphasis on math skills, the campers apply for the space program and upon graduation are assigned to the International Space Station.

Aug. 8 vote crucial, even in uncontested Canton

Monday is the last day to register to vote in the Aug. 8 primary. Of course Canton residents – those already registered and those planning to – may be thinking, “Why bother?” The township will hardly be a hotbed of political activity in the days leading up to the primary.

Canton Clerk Terry Bennett figures primary turnout is likely to hover around 15 percent, with many of those votes coming in by absentee ballot. (Applications for absentee ballots are available from the clerk's office; the last day to pick up a ballot is Saturday, Aug. 5, and the deadline to cast an absentee vote in person is 4 p.m. Monday, Aug. 7.)

Clerk Terry Bennett

Yes, it's a presidential election year. But you won't get a chance to vote for George W. Bush or Al Gore, the presumptive Republican and Democratic nominees, until November. Most local races, too, won't be decided until the fall general election.

No township board candidates face primary opposition. Only one full-time township board seat – treasurer – will field two candidates in November, with Democrat Stephen Kilijanczyk challenging incumbent Republican Elaine Kirchgatter. There are five candidates for the four part-time trustee positions.

Neither is there a contested primary in the 21st State House District, where incumbent Rep. Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, will run against Michael Walsh, a retired UAW official from Canton.

But there are at least two races worth noting where primary voters will make a difference.

Two Republicans, Fred Bolden and Ron Bovitz, are seeking the nomination for the 11th District Wayne County Commission seat. Both are Canton residents.

The winner will run against incumbent John Sullivan, who has come in for some criticism since winning the seat in 1998. Canton officials and others have questioned Sullivan's accomplishments and his commitment to the western portion of the district.

Meanwhile, voters will be choosing a successor to longtime Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair, who is retiring after more than two decades in office. The power of incumbency and the partisan nature of county politics make changes in the prosecutor's office a rare occurrence and voters should take advantage of any opportunity to help set its direction. Five candidates, all Democrats, are facing off in the primary. They include: George Ward, chief assistant prosecutor; Mike Duggan, deputy county executive; lawyers Sharon McPhail and Jennifer Colthirst; and state Sen. Virgil Smith.

If that weren't enough, there are other reasons to vote in primary, according to Canton Clerk Terry Bennett: making a statement in favor of democracy and maintaining the integrity of the American political system. “We tend to take elections for granted,” Bennett said Monday. “But it's one of the few and better opportunities you have to voice an opinion on the direction government takes.”

The primary is a chance for people to make sure their party is well represented in November, Bennett said.

“The more voters we have, the more credibility there is to an election and the less likely it is that results will be swayed by a small group of people or a single issue,” she added.

With Americans taking time off this week to celebrate Independence Day, it's a good time to remember what our country is all about – and how individuals can play a vital role in the decision-making process.

GUEST OPINION

Save Kiddie Kampus for the next generation

This letter is twofold, to thank you and to ask for your help. The P-CEP Kiddie Kampus Program was established 28 years ago and has been an integral, positive and beneficial part of our community.

Over 1,600 high school students and over 5,000 preschool children have learned and worked together successfully in this award-winning program. I am proud to have been both a parent and teacher for 12-1/2 years bringing quality opportunities to children at both ends of the educational spectrum.

I was so proud to introduce timid 4-year-olds to the joys of public education and share my experience and knowledge with eager high school students who were becoming comfortable working with children and about to graduate. I have gone full circle; now former high school students living and working in our community think enough of our program to trust their young offspring to the capable hands of the Kiddie Kampus staff.

It is time for me to “pause” and take some time with my family. I will not return to Kiddie Kampus and my beloved preschoolers in the fall. I truly am blessed to have been a part of the lives of 1,000 children in our community and I thank their parents for waiting in lines to enroll them.

But your help is also needed to ensure the quality and future of Kiddie Kampus so other families may enjoy the benefits. The two preschool teachers in the program are the only two certified preschool teachers not contracted or part of the PCEA.

Strange, isn't it? We touch so many lives each day, we have the same education, certification, dedication and enthusiasm as the other preschool teachers in the district, but are paid hourly and with no benefits. We have tried for three years for recognition, but to no avail ... not even a response from the “Powers That Be!”

As I leave my career, I am sad to say there are very few applicants for this outstanding position. Why? The qualified teachers are applying for contracted jobs in the district and are not ready to consider this one. This is very disheartening.

If you are a true supporter, perhaps a call or note to Superintendent Kathleen Booher at 416-3045 and the board members Sue Davis, Elizabeth Givens, Judy Mardigian, Darwin Watts, Stephen Guile, Mark Slavens and Roland Thomas may inspire “The Powers that be” to take a look at this inequality so we can save our Kiddie Kampus Program for the next generation or two!

■ Wall was inspirational

The Moving Wall, the scale representation of the National Vietnam Memorial that is on the National Mall in Washington, D.C., was here in Canton June 22-26.

As a Member of the Vietnam Veterans of America, Plymouth/Canton Chapter No. 528, I was proud, humbled, quizzed about it, explained why it was made, to more than 10,000 visitors, who came to visit the “Healing Wall,” as it was first called.

The effort to bring it to Canton was an enormous undertaking, we as a chapter met that challenge. The beautiful layout of landscaping was breathtaking. The visitors who had a special reason to attend and ask questions and just to touch the wall were met by a well prepared volunteer staff. I would like to thank all the friends, family, boys and girls who came to see that special name.

I hope we did a good job, I again thank you.

■ Stirring tribute

The Vietnam Veterans Moving Wall Memorial Display that Canton hosted from June 22-26 has been packed-up and moved on to another community. On behalf of the Moving Wall Committee, I would like to thank everyone involved in bringing this stirring tribute to the men and women who served and sacrificed their lives to the Canton community. Wall organizers stated that the display setting here in Canton was one of the finest that they had ever seen.

During the Liberty Fest weekend, more than 13,000 people stopped and visited the Moving Wall display in Heritage Park. A special note of thanks to the Plymouth-Canton Vietnam Veterans Chapter 528 for countless hours of volunteer work and to Keller and Stein for the beautiful landscaping around the wall. Another special tribute to the Canton Township Grounds staff who took real pride in the construction of the wall setting and it showed by the finished display. All of Canton can be proud that this community was chosen to host and display the Moving Wall. Job well done.

■ Favoring term limits

There was a cartoon in the June 8 Canton Observer which implied that term limits were nothing more than the same old faces, but obviously just changing from one chair to another.

In spite of the continual barrage to repeal term limits in our state, I believe that time will prove its necessity and importance. This is a factor not yet recognized at the national level, but again it is hoped that time will eventually see it become a reality.

Although the importance of term limits is always open to satire there are nevertheless many factors in its favor:

■ Being in public office too long breeds arrogance.

■ Salaries and perks today are of such a nature as to inculcate a heavy desire to stay in office.

■ The continual campaigning for election funds while in office has been a deterrent to effective representation to all but the special interest groups. It minimizes the time spent for devising ways of getting re-elected and furthering their own public careers.

■ By the nature of the position of public office, incumbents can effectively develop a political machine as well as a war chest which is too difficult for new aspirants to equal.

■ A limited tenure encourages the office holder to remember that his or her justification for existence is to uphold the Constitution and the rules of order.

■ A limited tenure discourages bribery as well as making the incumbent less vulnerable to bribes.

■ A limited tenure incumbent will not be intimidated as much by the polls or tempted as much by the moneyed lobbyists.

■ It would encourage real and active reform where needed since the coterie of lawyers and lobbyists would have less sway.

■ It would be an automatic and continual blood transfusion into a state Legislature or a Congress which too often has one foot in quicksand and the other in a bear trap.

■ Increasing their own wages and perks would cease to dominate their agenda since there would be enough resistance in the ranks from those on their way out.

■ They would be in office only long enough not to have lost touch with reality and the outside world.

■ The tenure is short enough that it doesn't give them the time necessary to learn how to use your money to build buildings with their names on it.

■ People new to the game will have more tendency to regulate the regulators.

■ Term limits would most likely have kept our Congress from becoming the largest extortion machine on the planet.

■ Term limits would minimize the risk of paternalism, which appears to be a common disposition of the career politician.

■ It is reasonable to believe that a whole political party would not have prostituted itself to save a scoundrel, if about one third of them were up for term limits.

■ A limited period of time does not give them a sufficient period of time to bloat their staffs.

■ With a limited period in the Legislature, there is strong reason to believe that in the cases of tough and necessary legislation principle will outweigh political risk.

■ With term limits, we will find that there will be more individuals with definitive goals and laudable convictions.

For those who are constantly bemoaning the fact that we need experienced legislators in order to effectively govern it is well to keep in mind that this is exactly what we have had and take a look at the result.

What we need are inexperienced people who are fresh with the energy to represent their constituents and who have not as yet learned the loopholes and pathways of how to further their political careers and/or circumvent our Constitution.

There are many more compelling reasons but possibly the best eulogy for their abysmal track record was written by Canadian publisher Margaret Murray in 1981 when she wrote that, “Governments are like underwear, they start smelling pretty bad if you don't change them once in a while.”

■ Doing their part

On Friday, June 16, over 500 participants gathered at Stevenson High School to combat one of the biggest health issues facing Americans today, cancer. Participants did their part by forming teams, raising funds, and walking for 24 hours in the second-annual Relay For Life. The Relay For Life is the nationwide signature event of the American Cancer Society that involves individual communities taking up the fight against cancer.

Livonia raised $51,408, which will be spent by the American Cancer Society on research and fulfilling the needs of local cancer patients and their families.

Nationally, the American Cancer Society has spent over $2 billion on cancer research since 1942, and, as the largest public health organization in the country, we take our role in the fight against all cancers very seriously. By hosting Livonia's Relay For Life, we are able to do more for the residents in and around the community.

We are proud of all the team captains, cancer survivors, participants, and volunteers for taking part in such a successful event.

The American Cancer Society would like to extend its sincere appreciation to the individuals, teams, and companies who participated and made Livonia's Relay For Life a tremendous success. Specifically, we would like to thank Johnson Controls, St. Mary Hospital, Wal-mart, Time Warner Cable, Botsford Hospital, Residents of Park Nursing Home, as well as Stevenson High School for the wonderful site for the Relay. The overwhelming support put forth by those who took part in the festivities certainly showcases the determination of the community to help end cancer.

To the community of Livonia, we respectfully say “Thank you.”

Electing folks doesn't always mean they are competent

"There is a natural aristocracy among men. The grounds of this are virtue and talents."

— Thomas Jefferson, 1813

David Adamany left Michigan last week. He spent the holiday in Toronto, where the art galleries are plentiful and the living is easy, certainly a lot easier than he's been accustomed to. He then went on to Philadelphia to take up the presidency of Temple University.

Phil Power

The folks in Philadelphia are lucky. Since he arrived here in 1983, newly appointed president of Wayne State University, Adamany has by virtue and talent built a remarkable record of service to the people of Michigan.

When he took over at WSU, the place was OK but nothing to write home about. Under Adamany's presidency, Wayne State became a serious research university with a precise focus on the needs of urban communities like Detroit.

When he retired, instead of taking his ease teaching constitutional law, he took up the cudgels as the interim CEO of the Detroit public school system.

Recognizing that his job was to do the heavy lifting that would allow his successor some freedom to operate, Adamany cut costs, outsourced a range of services, removed principals and central managers from unions and pushed for accountability.

In both jobs, he was abrasive, relentless, intelligent, suffered fools badly, kept his eye on the main purpose and got the job done. We all owe him, big time.

I first met David Adamany at Harvard in 1956, when he and I were both undergraduates. Slim, passionate, ambitious, astonishingly well informed, he was the sort of upperclassman that I (a freshman) thought could rule the world. He went on to a career in law and politics in his native Wisconsin before coming to Michigan.

We worked together on a range of issues from time to time, mostly having to do with our shared passion for higher education. We once testified before a legislative committee; he was poised, persuasive, supremely articulate.

In addition to admiring his accomplishments, however, reflecting on David Adamany's career gets me to another place. There are important limits on institutions that are too political, too democratic and therefore too badly managed to achieve their purposes. Direct democracy is not necessarily the best way to run a railroad.

Take the Detroit schools. It is now perfectly clear that the fundamental cause of their deterioration was a succession of shamefully political and remorselessly meddling elected school boards, members of which considered various parts of the school system little more than private fiefdoms to be micromanaged for pleasure and profit.

Central staff administrators were hired at the insistence of individual school board members. Contracts to provide services to the system were let to political cronies or campaign contributors. Incompetence was tolerated — encouraged, for God's sake! — as long as the personal political objectives of board members were achieved.

Wisely, Gov. John Engler and the legislature finally recognized that the longstanding political culture of the elected Detroit School Board made successful schools impossible. When the elected board was abolished and an appointed CEO set into place, the air was filled with screaming about the violation of Detroit voters' rights.

Sometimes democracy doesn't work very well. It doesn't work when elected officials use their election to justify micromanaging, as in the case of the Detroit schools.

Nonsense! What had been violated were the rights of the kids of Detroit to a decent education. Does anyone for a moment believe that a school CEO chosen by the elected Detroit School Board could have cleaned up the system as effectively as David Adamany has?

Sometimes democracy doesn't work very well. It doesn't work when elected officials use their election to justify micromanaging, as in the case of the Detroit schools. It doesn't work when elected officials are so inexperienced and so ambitious they can't do their job properly, as in the case of the term-limited Michigan House of Representatives. It doesn't work when elected officials don't understand the difference between policy making and hands-on management, as in the case of many city councils around Michigan.

Electing folks doesn't necessarily make them competent. David Adamany, never elected but appointed by wise, elected officials, makes the point compellingly.

Phil Power is chairman of HomeTown Communications Network Inc., the company that owns this newspaper. He welcomes your comments, either by voice mail at (734) 953-2047, Ext. 1880, or by e-mail at ppower@homecomm.net

ACLU suit against MEAP is wrong case

Yes, the Michigan Education Assessment Program test "discriminates."

It's a test, and so that's its job, to "distinguish, separate and differentiate" students who know the stuff from those who don't.

What the Michigan chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union alleged when it filed a lawsuit last week in federal district court was that the test discriminates inappropriately on the basis of race and ethnicity.

When the ACLU leveled the charge in its action against Gov. John Engler, the Michigan Merit Award Board and the Michigan Board of Education, it offered some compelling numbers. One in three white test takers scored well enough on the test, meeting or exceeding state standards in all four segments of the test — mathematics, reading, science and writing — to receive a scholarship. But only one in five Hispanic test takers did as well. Only one in five Native Americans got the scholarships. And only one in 14 African Americans earned the money. Further, wealthy suburban school districts consistently produced higher test scores than those in large urban or smaller rural districts.

So the ACLU is asking a federal judge to put an end to a program of passing out money for college based solely on the results of this one test. Rather, it is asking the scholarship fund to be distributed based on other factors, like grade point average and other achievements.

The problem with all this is that the ACLU has filed the wrong case. Evidence of this can be found in the fact the civil rights organization also argues that the test discriminates against the "educationally disadvantaged."

I quote from the brief filed with the court: "Furthermore, the scholarship program has had a substantial discriminatory impact on educationally disadvantaged students, defined as those who attend unaccreditable public high schools. Only 5 percent of those students taking all four MEAP tests in 1999 who attend unaccreditable schools qualified for scholarships. Thus, while they represented 10.1 percent of students taking all four tests, they were only 1.6 percent of the 20,138 students who qualified under the scholarship program."

It's the wrong case because it never addresses the question of how a student in Michigan today can go through 13 years of public schooling, K-12, yet turn out "educationally disadvantaged."

Sure, $2,500 — the scholarship test takers stand to earn if they pass the High School Test of the MEAP — is a lot of money. Perhaps enough to be worth fighting over. But it still pales in comparison to the value of an education.

It has long been apparent to me that we've come to take public schooling for granted precisely because it is "free." Of course, it really isn't. We pay for it through taxes. Although it is hard to put an economic value on it, you can start by considering that the state allocates "foundation grants" of $5,700 per pupil per year. One only has to do the math to see that a K-12 education is worth at least $74,100 in today's dollars.

Now if folks were paying that out-of-pocket and getting less for their money — be it because they were attending unaccredited schools, urban schools or rural schools, or whether they were Hispanic, Native American or African American — it would be clear to the ACLU, I think, what lawsuit should be filed.

Of course, that is exactly what the state is trying to achieve through its MEAP test, to make schools accountable for delivering the kind of education they should be delivering.

Gov. Engler and the state Board of Education have been attempting to reform schools by using the MEAP as a proficiency test. Although it should be compulsory, the Legislature has decided not to go along with that. And Engler proposed the Merit Awards to encourage more participation by students.

That was my original complaint with the Merit awards, that it could change the goal from learning to learning enough to earn a little bit of money.

And the ACLU has gleefully fallen right into the trap.

Grumpies wax poetic about all manner of political ills

I recently attended a meeting of the Grumpies. One was noticeably missing — their resident poet.

I know you remember the Grumpies, that group of inveterate writers of letters-to-the-editor. Their names are probably as well-known on metro-Detroit editorial pages as some columnists' bylines: Patti Alspach of Farmington Hills,

Judith Doner Berne

George Haddad of Franklin, Neil Fraser of Novi, Ralph Bolz of Livonia, Glynette Wolk of Farmington Hills to name a few.

Eighteen or so strong, they keep up on the issues of the day and debate them at their monthly meetings, where they also recognize whose letters to the editor have been published since last they met.

Sadly, Ross Rhinehart doesn't think he'll be attending any more of the Grumpies' lively sessions, though he lives relatively close to the Carl Sandburg Branch of the Livonia Library where they gather.

"Ross advised us that he would not be able to make this meeting, and perhaps would never again be able to attend any Grumpies' meeting due to breathing problems," Tony Brehler sadly reported in June. The Grumpies don't have officers, but Brehler, a Livonia resident, runs the meetings.

Rhinehart, who suffers from both emphysema and diabetes, has been a member of the Grumpies since 1994. It was difficult, but he traveled with 13 Grumpies and their guests to Lansing May 17, where they were introduced on the floor of both the Senate and the House. They also received updates from a trio of government administrators on mass transit, vouchers and charter schools, and the monitoring of nursing homes in Michigan.

"I hope you appreciate the sacrifices Ross has made just trying to be here," Ray Dubin of Farmington Hills, reminds the group. Dubin, the youngest male member of the group by as many as 30 years, later tells me how much he has learned from Rhinehart.

"Ross is a very balanced thinker," Dubin says. "When I started, Ross was the more liberal. He taught me how to think more fairly. He's a very strong person, but he accomplishes it in a very nice and humble way. He never wanted to upset anybody. He has certainly impacted the entire group."

Dubin and I have something in common. He and I both attended our first meeting of the Grumpies in January 1994. He was recruited based on letters to the editor he wrote goading the MEA and warning about the Clinton health care plan. Brehler saw them — and Dubin's been a Grumpy ever since.

As for me, I thought I might get a good column. I had no idea that through the years, as they moved their meetings around from Southfield to Bloomfield Township and finally to Livonia, I would get material for several. In fact, I was honored last month as an "Honorary Grumpy." There are just three of us: Jack Lemmon (of the film Grumpy Old Men from which the group took its name), Michigan Attorney General Jennifer Granholm and me. Good company, don't you think?

Rhinehart reportedly has been e-mailing Granholm poems and comments ever since the Grumpies visited with her in May 1999. One day last month she stopped by his home with a plaque honoring him as the Grumpy Poet. He also received an official Michigan Mug. "He told me this was the highlight of his six years as a Grumpy," Brehler said.

Rhinehart is invariably the first to arrive at each month's meeting. "He defended Bill and Hillary against EVERY accusation made by any Grumpy," Brehler reports.

Besides which, he's rather a good poet. He has composed many poems for and about the Grumpies and on such subjects as patriotism, politics and government waste. And, if you click up www.poet.com and enter his name, you can read poetry of his that reveals both his sense of humor and humanity.

But if he's been important to the Grumpies, it works both ways. He recently wrote:

"I think time has caught up to me, my movement is depleting

It's very likely that I will never make another meeting.

My thoughts are with you even though my presence I can't lend

ELLEN HERSCHER

Today's teen is much like parents were

Crossing over from pre-teen to the wondrous age of 13 was a monumental event in my life — right up there with vowing to be a good wife and giving birth.

"Teen" is a magical word that makes kids feel suddenly adult and affirms that the cradle of humanity is finally theirs to rock. Becoming a teenager meant that I was entering the coveted world of mystery, romance and parties of which I had so often fantasized. In contrast, this new path was littered with many obstacles and fear of the dreaded unknown, augmented by my eminent shyness.

I became a teenager in the 1950s. Except for eclectic fads and fashions, teens are basically the same. Throughout the generations, these free thinkers have developed their own styles, language and music. Many parents view their teenage mavericks as slightly insane and cannot understand their craziness. All that fretting is usually for naught, as most of us have turned out to be responsible citizens who have learned to enjoy a variety of music, even classical and opera. We dress in appropriate attire, attend meetings and lectures, and go to church because we want to, not because we are told to do so.

Admittedly, teen years brought social problems and frustrations that weighed heavily like a knapsack full of bricks; yet, the scale tipped favorably with added freedom, raging hormones, and incessant energy. We thought of ourselves as non-conformists, although fitting in with our peers was paramount. Essentially, we were conforming to non-conformity.

During my school years, teenagers wore sweatshirts wrong side out, bobby socks rolled like doughnuts, black and white saddle shoes, circular felt poodle skirts. Denim jeans went from wide rolled cuffs to narrow hems. Boys and girls alike struggled to stuff themselves like sausages into skin tight Levi's. We were announcing to the world our right to individuality and the beginning of our convoluted journey toward adulthood.

Because most parents did not allow makeup, girls applied Mentholatum to their lips so they glowed like dew covered cherries and Vaseline to eyelashes for dazzling allure. Hoping to smooth away conspicuous scarlet zits, we went through tubes of Clearasil, applying it faithfully every night. Boys carried combs in hip pockets to maintain glistening slicked-back ducktails. Being cool, they strolled with an exaggerated gait. Much to their chagrin, the boys' changing voices involuntarily ran the gamut from shrill grating to guttural croaking and anywhere betwixt. We girls found this cute.

First rebuff hurts

The first time I had to invite a boy to a Sadie Hawkins dance, he said he had another date. It had taken a lot of courage on my part to ask him, so I was quite devastated by his rebuff. It was a lesson in compassion. From that experience, I understood the risk of rejection that boys had to withstand. Years later, when a girl invited my teenage son to a dance, he told her he didn't want to go. Consequently, we had a poignant dialogue about rejection, feelings, and friendships. Deciding that staying home was less important than boosting this girl's self-esteem, he called her back. Together, they went to the dance, had a great time and became good friends.

Trying to be older

Until we reach the age of 21, we spend our lives trying to be older than we are, wanting to prove to our parents that we can do anything. Once we have grown up, I don't think our parents really want us there, either. They seem to pick a time in our lives when we were what they liked best, then hold us in limbo inside their minds. Look what happens — we do the same thing with our children.

Why can we not see in them what was in us? As long as teenagers aren't harming themselves or others, why not allow them to be individualists? They want to be special. You know something, they are indeed very special.

For all you teens who think adults are prehistoric, remember that time does not stand still and you will one day be there, too.

Top dog, cop battle crime

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

Shilo, a canine officer with the Canton Police Department, isn't so great at catching balls, but he sure knows how to nab criminals.

"He can't fetch anything — it usually hits him in the face," explained his trainer and partner, Officer Todd Koch. The 85-pound, 3-year-old German shepherd has tracked down 15 suspects and played an important role in more than 200 narcotic arrests.

"We'd catch more people if they didn't get into cars," Koch joked.

Shilo, who comes from East Germany and had no training, has lived with Koch since the dog was 18 months old. "We select them from a group of dogs, and we see which are the most highly driven and high-energy dogs," said Koch, who worked for four years handling bomb-sniffing dogs in the Air Force.

That experience helped Koch shape Shilo into his police partner and backup in life-and-death situations. Shilo is also his buddy and the pet who lives with him, his wife and two children (a 3-year-old girl and 18-month-old boy). Koch chuckles as he explains how Shilo seems to roll his eyes and sigh as he tolerates the children tugging at him and trying to give commands like their dad. Two years ago Shilo replaced Boss, who retired from the Canton force and also lives with the Koch family.

"If Shilo's sick, I try to call in sick, too," Koch said. "If he's sick at home, I want to stay with him. We have a really close relationship, because he relies on me to keep him safe and I rely on him to keep me safe. We've gotten a really tight bond. "When we're working, I can read his mind real well," Koch added.

Sprawled contentedly at Koch's feet in the lobby of the Canton public safety department, the dog looks like any pet. But this canine sees a lot more action than chasing a few birds or cats. Shilo has criminals on his mind and all he needs are slight traces of their scents to keep him chasing.

On the beat

Working the night shift, Koch and Shilo get into a squad car and ride the 36 square miles of the township. They're called to help in the most dangerous situations — armed robberies, felonious assaults and narcotic searches.

Shilo is especially valuable in building searches where criminals are hiding. "He's a huge asset," Koch said. "We send a dog ahead of us and he locates the suspect. He goes into that dangerous situation for us."

The man-dog team is also summoned to neighboring communities in a mutual aid arrangement. An average night's work for Koch and Shilo is to inspect three to five cars for drugs.

"We find narcotics just about every night we work," Koch added.

The only time Shilo will bite is if his partner is attacked or if he barks the order. Koch said the only time he would tell Shilo to grab a suspect is in "extremely serious crimes" or if the suspect refuses to stop running after warnings.

"There's only one case in the U.S., that I know of, that a dog has killed a suspect," Koch said. "That's outstanding, when you think about how many suspects are killed with batons, choke holds" and other police tactics.

Shilo's only pay is food, a few treats and "a lot of love." His favorite treat is popcorn with his family. A good day for the dog, Koch said, is working. "Tracking bad guys is what he likes to do."

Other days, Koch and Shilo give demonstrations at schools and during the Liberty Fest. Shilo isn't the only dog on the force: He's joined by Maverick, who was trained by Officer Matt Jenkinson. The dogs learned their police skills through conditioning that stresses controlled situations with lots of praise and rewards.

Koch said he hoped that people understand that Shilo and Maverick are social dogs and shouldn't be thought of as "mean or vicious." They're working out there to protect us and you.

FROM THE HEART

Redford student lends a voice to help others

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homecomm.net

Joe O'Connor gives new meaning to the idea of music from the heart.

At the tender age of 11, this Redford youth uses his love of song and his tender nature to reach out to his friends, family and community.

"The big thing with Joe is his really kind heart," said his father Tom O'Connor, who nominated Joe as an Observer & Eccentric Friday's Child. "He's willing to help other people." That kindness shows in all he does.

DARE-ing

Joe began working with the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program in 1999, using music to spread the word about the reality of violence and drug use. His father brought him together with Sgt. Kim Sivyver, a former DARE officer.

"He is just a fine young man," said Sivyver. "He is respectful and he is a product of his family. It is an honor to be associated with them."

Sivyver was approached by his friend Tom O'Connor with the song he and Joe would later sing together. I DARE You, was recorded in Canton by RJ Music Productions and reproduced at Wing Street Studio in downtown Plymouth. It includes a full and instrumental version of the song and a public service announcement about DARE. Together, Joe and Sivyver called themselves The Cop & The Kid.

"It really took off," said Tom O'Connor, a lifelong Redford resident, of the collaboration. "I'm big into causes. I wrote a MADD song. We were thinking of doing a bunch of cause songs."

Sivyver calls Joe a friend. "I think it has had a profound impact on him, it's made him more outgoing," said Sivyver. His classmates look at him in a different way. I think it has had an impact on the DARE community. It's used for DARE graduations."

Joe also thinks singing brings more attention to DARE, a cause he sees as a good way to keep kids off drugs.

"Instead of listening to people talk, they have something to entertain 'em," said Joe.

Dedicated

If anyone knows about entertaining, it's Joe O'Connor. His interest in music began early. "It was about five years ago my dad told me and my mom to sign up for piano lessons. She signed me up for guitar instead," he said.

Taking to the instruments almost instantly, Joe keeps progressing. His parents say Joe spends time upstairs in the music room "jamming every day."

Though he's an entertainer at heart, Joe O'Connor is also known to be a very good friend.

"I know he's big into helping other kids," said Tom O'Connor. "He's not such a superstar student, but if somebody needs a friend (he'll be there)."

His mother, Carrie, agreed: "He's a very good friend to all the kids."

Joe proved it this past March, when his friend and peer at St. Valentine's School in Redford, Joey Pegloski, died of complications from a brain tumor.

Joe raced home from school and penned a song in his honor. Using music to begin the healing process for himself and the friends and family of Joey, Joe was even asked to sing his tribute at the funeral. Joey's Song took only a short while to write, but means a lot to him.

"It was from the heart," said his mother, Carrie.

Joe never imagined he would be pursuing music at such an early age.

"I always liked singing," he said. "But I never knew I was going to grow up and take voice lessons. The best part is when I accomplish a song and I feel proud of myself."

He named Kid Rock and the Red Hot Chili Peppers as a few of his favorite bands right now. Friends and acquaintances at school compliment Joe on his singing and boost his self-confidence. One of his songs was even played during a school dance.

Joe has had the opportunity to meet a few of his idols, like Weird Al Yankovic who once signed the ear of his Star Wars Yoda mask.

A friend of his father's got him Kid Rock's autograph when he spotted the star at Metro Airport. Someday Joe hopes to join the ranks of those stars.

But music isn't Joe's only passion, he recently told his parents he'd like to write a book. They support his endeavors and say they've learned a lot from their son.

What words of wisdom might Joe give to his fellow aspiring musicians? "Never give up, that's probably the main thing," he said. His wish is to sing I DARE You at a Detroit Viper's game sometime.

"I'm really focused on music," he said.

The couple's seven children are Craig, Keith, Vicki, Brian, Mark, Diane and Sheryl. The family also includes 20 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The family celebrated the occasion with a party at the Willow Creek Apartment Clubhouse in Westland April 30.

Kozma

Joseph and Mary (Truhon) Kozma of Livonia celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary this month. The couple wed June 14, 1930 and have lived in the area for 43 years.

Joseph Kozma worked for General Motors for 40 years and his wife is a homemaker. The couple have two children, Betty Dixon and the late John Kozma. The family includes 10 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Joseph enjoys bowling, golfing, and volunteers as an AARP tax preparer, while Mary spends time gardening, crocheting and cooking.

To celebrate the event, the family organized a special gathering.

Boni

R.C. and Winifred (Hutchinson) Boni will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary next month.

The Livonia couple wed on July 4, 1950 in Detroit and have lived in the area for 35 years. R.C. was born in Ohio and lived in Italy for six years. Winifred was born in Detroit and has remained in the Detroit area her whole life. In 1976, they founded the Boni-Hutchinson Scale Company.

The couple's two children are Ray Boni and Lynn Henman. The family also includes five grandchildren.

Winifred is active in the Livonia Garden Club and is a past president. Both R.C. and his wife enjoy gardening and working in their yard.

Cocke

John H. and Frances (Hargrove) Cocke celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary this month.

The Plymouth couple wed on June 23, 1950 in Clarksville, Tenn. and have lived in the area for 34 years. John owned a tool and die shop, Form Flow, Inc., but is now retired. Frances is a homemaker.

The couple's three children are Deborah (Karl) Lewis of Chicago, Larry (Judy) Cocke of Farmington and Karen (Joe) Schiffman of Livonia. The family also includes seven grandchildren.

The Cocke's both golf and spend their winters in Florida.

To celebrate the occasion, the couple will be spending an entire weekend with their family on Mackinac Island in July.

Hein

Timothy and Valerie (Buha) Hein celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary in May.

The Wolverine Lake couple wed on May 27, 1960 at Zion Lutheran Church in Detroit. Timothy Hein works as the co-op coordinator (marketing) and a teacher at Walled Lake Central High School and Valerie works as an art teacher at Garden City High School.

The couple's two children are Dawn (Cash) McGuffin of Whitmore Lake and Kimberly (Bill) Ray of Highland. The family also includes six grandchildren: Tim, Alex and Joshua Woychowski and Kyle, Megan and Katelynn McGuffin.

Both Timothy and Valerie enjoy spending time with their family and keep busy by traveling, reading, golfing and painting.

To celebrate the occasion, Timothy and Valerie took their daughters, son-in-laws and grandchildren on a southern Caribbean cruise.

Hartke

E. Michael and Toni (Ehlers) Hartke celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary last month.

The Plymouth couple wed on June 13, 1970 in Richland, Mich. and have lived in the area for 22 years. Michael is the president of X-fer International in Ann Arbor and Toni is the projects director for Head Start at Detroit Public Schools.

The couple's children are Jennifer and Brandon Hartke of Plymouth. The Hartke's are members of the First United Methodist Church.

To celebrate the occasion, the couple will be traveling to the Olympics in Sydney, Australia and visiting New Zealand and Hawaii.

East staff goes back to class

This summer, four East Middle School educators will break the technology barrier. This four-person team, East Principal Ellison Franklin and teachers Jan Coratti, Jenny Melvik and Betty Smith will turn into students at the Ameritech Technology Academy (ATA). These "students" will learn how to better incorporate today's technologies into their classrooms.

Today the ATA announced the program's first participants. The 100 teams were selected from 250 applicants and were selected from all regions of the state. The program will kick off with two-day workshops in late July and early August. The East Middle School educators will attend the workshops held in Novi.

"The team from East Middle School is ready to take a significant step toward the effective integration of technology throughout the school curriculum," said Jim Wiljanen, project administrator, Ameritech Technology Academy.

Funded by the Ameritech Foundation, the year-long project will train educators to make better use of technology within their

CAMP

■ The Epilepsy Foundation of Michigan is sponsoring its first annual Camp Hakuna Mattata from 10:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 12, at the Detroit Zoo. The cost is $25 per family (four members), which includes zoo entrance and an all-you-can-eat lunch with pizza and soda. This program is to help children with epilepsy deal with communication jitters and also deal with the fear of having a seizure and worrying about what to tell their friends about epilepsy. For more information, or for registration, call (800) 377-6226, ext. 232.

SUMMER CONCERTS

■ The Plymouth Community Band begins its 40th year of outdoor summer concerts at 8 p.m. Thursdays through July 27 at Kellogg Park, downtown Plymouth. These free outdoor park concerts have become a traditional summer offering in Plymouth. Bring a blanket or a lawn chair and enjoy a variety of easy listening music, guest performers and conductors. The Plymouth Community Band, under the direction of Carl Battishill, is a volunteer organization bringing a love of music and performing to the community. For more information, call Vickie Krause at (734) 455-9635.

TEEN PROGRAMS

■ Books & Bites Book Discussion will be held noon-1 p.m., Saturday, July 22. Discuss Armageddon Summer by Jane Yolen and Bruce Coville, while munching on pizza.

Advance copies of the book and all munchies provided by the library. Young adult programs are designed for teens who are in the sixth grade or higher, or who are 12 or older. To register, call Stefanie at (734) 397-0999 or e-mail her at stefanie@metronet.lib.mi.us.

SUMMER STORY TIMES

■ Parents and their children are invited to experience free interactive 20-30 minute programs of storytelling, music and movement during "Story Time with Miss Karen." The first class is at 9:30 a.m. Monday, July 10, at the Plymouth Coffee Bean, 884 Penniman, downtown Plymouth. Favorite children's books, simple instruments and imaginative songs and chants highlight the story times. Registrations are suggested, but not mandatory. Karen Onkka Schanerberger is a licensed Kindermusik instructor at Evola Music in Canton. For more information, call (734) 454-0178.

ARK AVENUE

■ The Ark is parked 9 a.m.-noon, July 10-14, at 45000 N. Territorial Road, just west of Sheldon Road, for those ages pre K-fifth grade. Register at First Baptist Church of Plymouth to explore this Vacation Bible School adventure. For more information, call (734) 455-2300.

SOCCER SUMMER CAMP

■ Britannia Soccer USA will host its summer soccer camp in Plymouth July 10-14 at West Middle School. Early registration is recommended. Individual players and teams are encouraged to attend customized coaching programs. Additionally, free coaching seminars will be available for local coaches and parents. To register or for more information, call local coordinator Pat VanDusen at (734) 416-4927.

GOLF FUND-RAISER

■ The Canton Firefighters Charity Foundation will hold a golf fund-raiser for the Canton Firefighters No. 2289 Charity Foundation on July 11 at Pheasant Run, Canton. The shotgun start outing begins at 8:30 a.m. and is a four-person scramble. Cost is $100 per person, which includes 18 holes of golf with a cart, beverages on the course, lunch at the turn, chances to win great prizes and a banquet with open bar. Banquet-only tickets can be purchased for $50. Banquet starts at 1:30 p.m. For more information, call Capt. Jim Davison or Mike Caruso at (734) 398-5262 Station No. 1. RSVP by July 1.

DELAYED ENTRY

James D. Ankofski has joined the United States Army Reserve under the Delayed Training Program at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station, Ann Arbor.

Ankofski, a 2000 graduate of Belleville High School, reported to Fort Jackson, Columbia, S.C., for basic training on June 9. He is the son of Sharon K. and James D. Ankofski of Canton.

Paul P. Berner and Robert G. Davis have also joined the Army under the Delayed Entry Program. Berner reported to Fort Jackson, Columbia, S.C., for basic training on June 22. He is the son of Kathy L. Kaiser of Walled Lake and Mark S. Berner of Canton.

Davis, a student at Belleville High School, reported for basic training at Fort Sill, Lawton, Okla., June 20. He is the son of Helen J. Graham of Canton.

The Delayed Entry Program gives young men and women the opportunity to delay reporting for basic military training for up to 270 days. Enlistment in the Reserve gives many new soldiers the option to learn a new skill, serve their voluntary and become eligible to receive more than $7,000 toward a college education and $20,000 for repayment of college loans.

GRADUATED

Army Pvt. Jessa N. Scott has graduated from the unit supply specialist advanced individual training course at Fort Lee, Petersburg, Va. The student was trained in receipt, storage, issue and accountability of individual, organization and installation supplies and equipment and included training in maintenance of small arms. She is the daughter of Susan and Daniel Scott of Canton. The private is a 1989 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School.

Air Force Senior Airman Katherine E.

Smith has graduated from the Airman Leadership School at Cannon Air Force Base, Clovis, N.M. The five-week course focuses on preparing and better equipping senior airmen to serve as supervisors, managers and rating officials as they progress in their enlisted military careers. It is the first of three levels of professional military education programs used to develop and cultivate leadership and supervisory skills, and is a required course for airmen to complete prior to being promoted to the rank of staff sergeant. Smith is a biomedical equipment technician assigned to the 27th Medical Support Squadron. She is the daughter of Rober G.K. Naugle of Livonia and Mimi Naugle of Canton.

Library dedicated in honor of Christian Science founder

The Christian Science Board of Directors recently announces plans for a new multi-million dollar library and program center, "The Mary Baker Eddy Library for Betterment of Humanity."

The new library's purpose is "to further health and human progress." It will house the largest, multi-disciplinary collection of an American woman and her life, ideas and achievements.

Upon completion, the library will provide general and academic open access to the collections and over 500,000 pages of unpublished writings and documents of Mary Baker Eddy. Best known as the discoverer of Christian Science, she is also the author of the still best-selling book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and founder of the daily newspaper, "The Christian Science Monitor."

Scheduled to open in spring 2002, the library will be housed in the newly renovated Christian Science Publishing House on Massachusetts Avenue in the Back Bay area of Boston. A satellite library will be opened in 2003 in Seneca Fall, NY, site of the first Woman's rights Convention in 1848.

The facility itself will provide over 23,000 square feet of space to house state-of-the-art exhibits on Eddy's life, her writings about mind/body medicine, journalism and other subjects related to the library's purpose.

Boss Hog: Canton resident Bob Thompson chose to receive two Harley-Davidsons as winner of the recent Farmington/Farmington Hills Chamber of Commerce raffle at the Farmington Family Festival.

Impulse move proves lucky for raffle winner

STAFF WRITER
tsmith@oe.homecomm.net

Impulse buying usually means picking up a CD, supermarket tabloid or Big Mac. But Bob Thompson's craving led to a major bonanza.

Thompson won two Harley-Davidson motorcycles, his $34,000 take for a spur-of-the-moment yearning to buy a pair of tickets for the 2000 Fantasy Cruisin' Raffle. The raffle is an annual feature of the Farmington Area Family Fest.

"I was driving by and saw the bikes and I thought, 'Gee, I think I'll buy a ticket,'" said Thompson, a 53-year-old Canton resident who fixes boilers for the state of Michigan.

He actually bought two tickets, priced at $100 each, on Friday, June 23, from the Farmington/Farmington Hills Chamber of Commerce festival booth, which was located in front of the downtown Farmington Metrobank.

The drawing took place last Sunday at Shiawassee Park. But when chamber President Carleigh Flaharty made the call to notify Thompson about winning the Grand Prize, his wife, Dee, was on the computer. The message was not heard until the following morning.

Bob and Dee Thompson were at Motor City Harley on Grand River near Drake in Farmington Hills on Thursday to pick up the motorcycles: a "Fat Boy" Harley and Dyna Wide Glide.

This was the second year that Motor City Harley participated in the festival's raffle and plans are to continue "as long as they want it and we've got the bikes," said Motor City Harley owner Dick Rose, who was at the showroom when the Thompsons picked up their winnings.

According to Rose, who moved Motor City Harley from Westland to Farmington Hills more than two years ago, the two bikes won by Thompson are very popular models.

"There's a little more than a year wait on both of those bikes," Rose said.

Flaharty noted that the chamber has already been added to the waiting list to have the Harleys available for next year's raffle.

Thompson opted for the Harleys as his Grand Prize. But he could have selected a Corvette from Holiday Chevrolet in Farmington, $30,000 in cash, a Mediterranean cruise or Mercedes ML-320 from Mercedes Benz of Novi.

"I have an older Honda at home, but it needs some work," he said, sitting comfortably in the showroom on one of his Harleys. "I've always wanted a Harley. The Honda is a nice-moving bike and quiet. But it doesn't sound like a Harley. Nothing sounds like a Harley."

The Thompsons didn't ride their new bikes home from the showroom on Thursday; they soon will be delivered to their residence. First needing to be dealt with were various insurance costs, taxes and license fees, a combined investment of about $2,000.

"For the investment, it was worth it," said Bob, noting that he can't wait to get back on a motorcycle and return to the road after a couple years of being idle.

Bob said Dee also was looking forward to riding, "basically behind me," he said with a laugh.

Firm pays for employees' pain at the gas pump

BY KURT KUBAN
STAFF WRITER

A Redford Township business has come up with a generous plan to help its employees cope with the high gas prices that are plaguing Metro Detroit.

Western Creative Inc., an advertising agency and television production company, began a policy last week to reimburse its employees $1 for every gallon of gas used driving to and from work.

Located on Plymouth Road, Western has a number of high-profile clients including Chuck Woolery, who hosts the show "Greed," and David Nelson of "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" fame. The company is also the nation's leading ad agency for the home improvement industry.

"Redford is kind of an uncommon location for our type of business. Most of our competitors are located in Southfield or Bloomfield Hills," said Western CEO Mark Young.

"As a result, many of our employees have to drive long distances to get here. In fact, one has to drive 43 miles each way."

Young said he came up with the idea for the new policy after spending $80 to fill his new Ford Excursion.

Happy haircut

Mom reluctantly gives in to girl who donates her locks to charity

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

A 9-year-old Canton girl recently won a tug-of-war over a haircut with her mother – by volunteering to donate the tresses to a charity that provides wigs for children receiving cancer treatments.

On Memorial Day, Stephanie Cogo went into Fantastic Sam's and cheerfully had a 14-inch ponytail lopped off.

"I'm free, mom," Stephanie reportedly said to her mom after the haircut.

Stephanie's former ponytail was donated to Wigs For Kids, a Rocky River, Ohio, charity that donates wigs to children.

It was Stephanie's generosity that was key to winning the tug-of-war, according to mom Cathy Cogo. They received a letter from Wigs for Kids thanking them for the donation.

"We want you to know that you have truly made a difference in another child's life," a letter signed by founder/president Jeffrey Paul stated.

The decision to let her cut her hair still wasn't an easy one. Many mothers develop a fondness for long hair – and Stephanie Cogo's mother Cathy was no exception.

"I didn't want her to cut it because I loved it so much," Cathy Cogo said. "It used to be down all the way to her butt."

She said she enjoyed brushing and styling Stephanie's long hair while they watched cartoons in the evenings. It was so long and thick she would braid it before bedtime to prevent it from tangling up.

But having such long and thick hair interfered with Stephanie's active lifestyle – because it had to be braided or pulled into pigtails before she could go out and play.

"It took me so long to brush it and I didn't like having it brushed (by mom). I didn't like my mom playing with it."

She said she's happy with her sporty new 'do. It makes it easier for her to swim, play soccer, play softball and strap on the helmet for bicycle riding and in-line skating.

"I like it a lot – it's fun to play with," she said, smiling and flipping her chin-length bob from side to side.

"She's always flipping it around," her mom said.

Cathy, as a 15-year-old, shocked her own mother when she suddenly traded in her long tresses for a short boy cut – which she still wears today. During her 20 years in the U.S. Army Military Police, she learned having shorter hair really was better.

"I just never grew it out," she said.

YMCA launches safe swimming campaign

With the summer here, the YMCA of Metropolitan Detroit is calling for additional attention to swimming safety for children.

The danger is clear, especially for children. According to recent statistics, drowning is the third leading cause of accidental death for children under 15. An estimated 1,150 children under 15 die each year from drowning.

Each year, an estimated 5,000 children under 15 are hospitalized due to near drowning. Drownings are reported in bathtubs, buckets, toilets and fish tanks as well as pools and natural bodies of water.

It's happening in our own back yards. An alarming 50 percent of child near drownings occur in residential pools; 65 percent of actual drownings happen in the home pool.

The YMCA has outlined several important precautionary measures that should be taken to ensure children's safety around water.

■ Swimming safety lessons for all children who will be exposed to water.

■ Proper parental or adult supervision at all times.

■ Proper fencing around pools and sturdy pool coverings.

Briggs signs Clark

Schoolcraft College men's basketball coach Carlos Briggs added another recruit to the fold last week, signing Javon Clark, a 6-foot guard who played 1998-99 at Detroit Cass Tech.

Clark did not play last season at the University of Toledo where he was a red-shirt freshman.

"Javon can really shoot the ball," Briggs said. "He can play either the No. 1 or No. 2 guard spot. He's a tough kid who comes from a winning program at Cass. He's also a solid student."

Briggs, whose team finished 24-7 last year and won the Eastern Conference championship, has four other recruits signed.

Among new recruits scheduled to play next season for the Ocelots include Redford Bishop Borgess product Sam Hoskin, a 6-8 transfer from Eastern Kentucky University, who led the Colonels in scoring and rebounding averaging 15 points and eight rebounds per game; 6-2 guard Colin Wilkinson, a transfer from Hillsdale College; Keanan Weir, a 6-6 transfer from ECU; and Emir Medunjanin, a 6-6 first-team All-Observer forward from North Farmington.

Mike is entering his freshman year at Redford Catholic Central High School. Brian is a seventh-grader at St. Michael's in Livonia.

•Shannon Warner, a fifth-grader entering Randolph Elementary School in Livonia, shot a 62 on June 26 at Chemung Hills Country Club in Howell to qualify for one of four slots in the upcoming Michigan PGA Junior Championship July 12 at Bedford Valley Golf Club in Augusta (girls 11-and-under division).

In the Oakland County Parks Junior Golf Tournament (June 29-30), Warner shot a 63 at Springfield Oaks and a 56 at White Lake Oaks to place first in the girls 11-and-under title.

On June 16, Warner captured the 12-and-under division at the Southfield Junior Optimist Tournament with a 52.

She also won the Child-Parent title June 10 in Southfield with a 52 and the Golf Channel Drive, Chip and Putt competition on Belle Isle in Detroit.

Livonia ace for a Day

Using a 3-wood, James Day, 56, of Livonia, carded an ace on the 213-yard, No. 15 hole this week at Whispering Willows.

Day shot 37 for nine holes.

Autumn baseball league

Space is limited as the Great Lakes Autumn Baseball League is forming 12-and-under, 13-and-under and 14-and-under leagues.

Saturday double-headers will be from Aug. 26 through Oct. 7 at the Canton Softball Center and Heritage Park in Canton.

The cost is $1,100 per team (10 games and playoffs, game balls, umpires, awards included). The first six teams in each division to register with full payment will be confirmed.

Rheault takes over as Canton coach

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS WRITER
cjrisk@oe.hometown.com

There was always a plan, and part of it was that Jeremy Rheault would become a varsity basketball coach at Plymouth Canton HS.

It just wasn't supposed to happen like this. And not now.

Rheault accepted the position as Canton's boys varsity coach this week. The junior varsity coach for the Chiefs' boys and girls teams, Rheault — a 1990 graduate of Canton — has been coaching at the school in some capacity or another for the past eight seasons.

The resignation of Dan Young as Canton's basketball coach was certainly sudden, but fortunately it didn't take long to fill the position. Jeremy Rheault, the Chiefs' junior varsity coach, has been selected to fill the vacancy.

It's his first varsity position. He will, however, remain for at least one more season as the Canton girls JV coach.

It's a dream come true for the 28-year-old Rheault, certainly. But his feelings about taking it were mixed.

"I was hoping to be coaching the girls team and helping Dan," Rheault said. "But the future got skewed. I had to look in the mirror and say, 'Dan's gone.'"

"It was a shock, it was a surprise. But it was all about opportunity."

Rheault remains a close friend of Dan Young, who coached Canton's boys team for the past six seasons before abruptly resigning five weeks ago for personal reasons. Some of those reasons could have kept Rheault from applying for the position.

"The first issue was my loyalty to Dan," Rheault said. "The first thing I had to do was tell him I was applying. He supported me."

Support and loyalty have always been a major issue with these three: Young, Rheault and longtime girls coach Bob Blohm. Although no retirement date is set, Blohm has given the matter some thought. Since Young was merely 32, it seemed more likely Rheault would take over for Blohm when he left.

Not that he was in any rush. "If I stayed at Canton, I wouldn't have minded being their assistant forever," Rheault said. "They are my mentors."

"They've allowed me to make decisions. Bob's so good at that. He allowed me to be very creative."

It's hardly surprising Blohm was all in favor of the selection. "He's perfect," Blohm said. "Jeremy's got a great work ethic and he's paid his dues. He gives it his all. He's an excellent teacher and a good coach."

He also wasn't surprised Rheault hesitated to apply for the job. "Loyalty was an issue with Jeremy," Blohm said. "But it was Dan's choice to step aside. I supported (Rheault's decision) 100 percent, and I know Dan feels the same way."

Cup contender

Canton driver takes aim at racing's oldest prize

BY MONICA PUGNO
STAFF WRITER

Mark Tate was the first hydroplane racer to surpass speeds of 170 miles per hour on the Detroit River.

Although the two-time Gold Cup winner knows he can't reach those speeds again, it doesn't diminish his desire to win another Gold Cup.

"After I set it (the record), they made some rule changes to make boats safer and make the races more competitive," Tate said. "There's weight restrictions now."

Boats are heavier. They can't run those types of speeds any more. I think my record is safe for years to come."

This weekend, the Canton resident is returning home after spending the previous two weekends in Indiana to race in the 2000 Chrysler Jeep Detroit APBA Gold Cup Unlimited Hydroplane race.

"Detroit is the biggest race of the year," Tate said. "It's my hometown. To race in front of my friends, family and business associates, it's exciting."

"Each race has its own challenges. What I like about the Detroit race is I get to go home every night and sleep in my own bed. It's a little more relaxing."

"However, it's real tough to keep focus because family and friends require a lot of your time. But it's always a pleasure to be home."

Tate replaces long-time Miss Chrysler Jeep driver Steve David, who retired last year. Tate drove the final four races of last season and scored a third, fourth and fifth.

So far this season, Tate has two top-three finishes. He opened the season with a second-place finish at Lake Havasu, Ariz. He finished third at a race in Evansville, Ind., on June 25.

"It's like starting over again every time," Tate said. "You come in with a baseline, you run tests and make changes as you go. It's a learning curve. It's a good relationship. There's a lot of hard work and focus on the team."

The Gold Cup is the oldest trophy in American motorsports and was first awarded in 1903.

"I've been fortunate enough to have my name on the prestigious Cup twice," Tate said. "There are a lot of great racers who haven't won it once. There are a lot of elements to overcome to win it."

"My goal is just to put my team in the best position to win the event."

This year's race begins today with the first day of practice. The opening heat races begin Saturday on the Detroit River between Waterworks Park on Jefferson Avenue and Belle Isle, just east of the Belle Isle Bridge.

The final event, a race of the top point-earning boats during the heat races, is set for 3:45 p.m. Sunday.

Like father, like son

Tate, a native of Wayne County, has been hydroplane racing for 28 of his 40 years and is a third generation boat racer. Both his grandfather, Joe,

Sr., and his father, Joe, Jr., were hydroplane drivers.

"I've been around it (hydroplane racing) since the day of birth," Tate said.

Tate began racing J-stock hydroplanes at the age of 12. In 1978, at age 18, he moved into the cockpit of his father's limited hydroplane and drove it for the next 12 seasons.

In 1990, Tate switched to unlimited racing and was named Rookie of the Year. The following year, he began driving for the late Steve Woomer, a relationship that lasted until Woomer

Anderson's back as coach

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS WRITER
cjrisk@oe.hometown.com

If time does indeed travel in a circular motion, then what has happened with Plymouth Canton's volleyball program can only be described as a "Back to the Future" trip.

For two seasons in the mid-90s, Steve Anderson guided the Chiefs to superb records. In his first year on the job (1995-96) as head coach, they posted a 24-14 record, finishing second in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division and fifth in the WLAA.

The next year, Canton captured the division championship and placed third in the conference, finishing 34-10 overall. Anderson managed this with a team that featured a 5-foot-8 middle hitter (Jessica Orleman).

A restructuring of his job with the city of Plymouth recreation department and his position as assistant volleyball coach at Henry Ford Community College forced Anderson to resign as Canton's coach.

For the last three years, the Chiefs have labored to regain their status as one of the WLAA's top teams under the tutelage of Cynthia Montgomery. Now it's Montgomery who's departing, leaving an opening for Anderson to return.

VOLLEYBALL

"Initially, when I was looking for somewhere else to coach, I was just hoping something would open up," said Anderson. "It's very exciting to be going back to Canton. To get to walk back into the gym you had success in . . . it's just so exciting."

In Anderson's — and Canton's — case, timing was certainly everything. He left the job he held for the past eight seasons as assistant volleyball coach at Henry Ford CC (the entire staff resigned) in the spring.

That left an opening in his schedule. When Montgomery departed, Anderson seemed the logical choice to succeed her.

Anderson, now 32 and a 1984 graduate of Livonia Stevenson HS (where he played soccer), isn't making rash promises regarding the Chiefs' program. "Canton has always had the same problem," he noted. "They've always been short. Heck, when I was there our middle hitter (Orleman) was just 5-8."

"They're in the same boat. I guess it's one of those cycle things. It's tough going up against Walled Lake Central when you don't have anyone over 5-9."

Travel team bounces Lookouts in Shores tournament title game

Livonia Travel had plenty to celebrate over the Fourth of July weekend.

On Monday, the 18-and-under team won the St. Clair Shores Baseball Tournament at Kyte Monroe Field with a 6-0 win over the Livonia Lookouts.

Joe McCrohan (Livonia Stevenson) pitched a six-hit, seven-inning shutout in the championship game. He struck out four and walked three.

Brad Buckler (Stevenson) and Dan Wilson (Stevenson) combined for four of Livonia Travel's 10 hits to lead the offensive attack.

Catcher Brian Campbell (Stevenson) threw out a pair of base stealers, while shortstop Pete Pinto (Stevenson) and second baseman Steve Stiles (Plymouth Salem) turned a double play in the

SUMMER LEAGUE BASEBALL

Big week for Bulldogs

Marsack's homers lead to mercy victory; Stars muffle Milan, 7-5

Billy Marsack (Livonia Stevenson) went 3-for-3 with a pair of homers and four RBI as the Livonia Bulldogs ran their Little Caesars Amateur Baseball Federation (Mantle Division) record to 8-2 with a six-inning, 12-1 mercy-rule win Tuesday over host Dearborn Heights Annapolis.

Gary Zielke (Stevenson), the winning pitcher, added two hits and scored three runs, while Josh Stack contributed two hits and three RBI.

Zielke is now 4-1 on the year. The Bulldogs finished 4-2 last weekend in the Beast of the East Tournament (ages 15-16) in Wheeling, W.V.

The nationally-ranked Maryland Patriots (20-0) ousted the Bulldogs in Sunday's quarterfinal, 10-0 (mercy rule).

On June 29, the Bulldogs won their division with four wins, beating national powers Boys of Summer-South (4-3) in St. Clairsville, Ohio and the Maryland Lakers (3-2) on July 1 in Barnesville, Ohio.

On June 30 in Wheeling, the Bulldogs took out the Rocky River (Ohio) Black Sox, 8-0, in a mercy rule victory and Pittsburgh Traveling Tigers, 4-1. They also fell to the Chicago South Shore Black Sox, 12-6, July 1 in Barnesville.

BASEBALL

Tournament pitching wins came from Jeff Niemiec, Daniel Wilks and Eddie Conz, all of Redford CC, and Zielke.

The hitting attack was led by Zielke, who batted .545 with five runs; Matt Humenay (Livonia Churchill), .429 with three RBI; Jake Ghannam (Farmington Hills Harrison), .417, six RBI and three extra base hits; Marsack, .375 with two triples; Conz, .375 with three RBI; and Stack, .308.

Other team members include Bernie McDonnell, Kevin McKee and Sean Sugrue, all of CC; Brett Burton, Royal Oak Kimball; and Andy McKellar (Birmingham Groves).

Stars beat Milan

Brad Kaufman (Canton) pitched three innings of two-run relief and singled in the tie-breaking run June 29 to lead the Plymouth Canton Stars to a 7-5 victory over Milan in the second game of a doubleheader called after four innings by darkness.

A two-run rally by the Stars in the seventh inning of the first game fell short and Milan escaped with a 6-4 victory.

On June 27, Howell took a pair of tight games from the Stars, 11-8 and 3-1.

On July 3, Plymouth Canton entered a doubleheader at Belleville with a 5-10 record in the Southeast Michigan Connie Mack League (ages 16-18).

Kaufman's RBI single plus a sacrifice fly by Shea Harte broke a 3-3 tie in the third inning of the second game at Milan. Steve Ziolkowski (Churchill) drew a bases-loaded walk in the fourth and a second run scored on a wild pitch to pad the Stars' lead to 7-3.

Milan got a run in the bottom of the fourth on an RBI groundout with the bases loaded and another run scored while the third out was being made between first and second on a rundown.

The Stars scored three in the first on an RBI groundout by Andrew Davignon, a sacrifice fly by Scott Seidlaczek (Canton) and an RBI single by Kaufman.

Plymouth Canton gave up three unearned runs in a four-run second inning in the opener as Milan pinned the loss on starter Davignon.

Will Wojcik Shook (Plymouth) went 2-for-3, Davignon drove in two runs and Marshall Tucker (Canton/Churchill) went 2-for-2 with an RBI.

Milan's shortstop made a diving stop of a two-out grounder up the middle and got a game-ending force out with the bases loaded in the seventh.

The Stars were without a hit in their second game at Howell until Tucker led off the fifth with a single to center. He scored from second on a ground single up the middle by Wojcik Shook. The game was called at that point due to darkness.

Tucker allowed all three runs on just four hits in the three innings he worked.

The Stars scored five runs in the third inning of the opener to overcome a 2-0 deficit and scored two in the fourth but Howell rallied to win on a tie-breaking three-run home run in the bottom of the eighth.

Howell got a pair of two-run home runs in the fourth and sixth innings to draw within 7-6 and tied the score in the bottom of the seventh. Seidlaczek's sacrifice fly against the center field fence put the Stars ahead, but a sacrifice fly tied the score and the home run won it for Howell.

Bobby Hoernschmeyer (Plymouth) had a two-run double for Plymouth Canton while Davignon had three hits and Kaufman two.

Livonia 11 runner-up

The Livonia Travel, an 11-year old travel team, won 4 games en route to a runner up finish in the North Farmington-West Bloomfield USSSA NIT Tournament held last weekend at Founders Park in Farmington Hills.

In the preliminary rounds, Livonia Travel defeated the Sterling Heights Titans (11-10), Michigan Indians (8-6) and NF-WB Sharp (16-7).

In Sunday's semifinals, Livonia beat the NFWB Cobras, 14-8, before falling in the championship game to its Little Caesars Amateur Baseball League rival South Farmington Blues, 15-8.

Earning pitching victories for Livonia were Ben Schroeder, Luke Knochel, Brian Niemczak and Matt Loney, all residents of Livonia.

Leading the hitting brigade were Danny Rozek, Grant Lawrence, Kyle Thom, Chris Mulcahy and Alex Grimes of Livonia, Scott Sergison of Hartland and Kevin Polzin of Garden City.

Missing the tournament but contributing to the regular season success of Livonia Travel are Ryan Boyle, Sean Foreman and Colin Marquardt, all of Livonia.

bottom of the fifth inning to help preserve the shutout.

In a 7-3 semifinal victory on Monday, Buckler pitched a seven-inning complete game, allowing four runs and three walks.

Campbell had three hits to pace the offense, while Ryan Krol (Garden City) and Shawn Casey (Stevenson) collected two hits apiece. Dan Ross led the defense with several outstanding plays in left field.

Livonia opened tourney play Saturday with a forfeit victory over the Fort Wayne Chiefs followed by a 15-1 win over the St. Clair Shores Mariners in a six-inning mercy.

Starter Bill Rabe (Stevenson), the winning pitcher, went the first four innings, allowing one run on two hits. Wilson pitched two scoreless innings of relief, allowing just two hits.

Krol finished with five hits, while Campbell had three, including a homer. Tim Lawson (Stevenson) also had three hits, while Andrew Miller and Wilson each added two.

Casey then pitched a complete game on Saturday in a 12-2 victory over the Ray Township Pirates, as McCrohan had three hits, while Pinto, Lawson and Stiles each contributed two. Casey allowed two runs on four hits and struck out four.

On Sunday, the Lookouts, exploding for four runs in the fourth inning, handed Livonia Travel a 9-5 loss.

McCrohan and Wilson each had two hits in the loss.

Ronnie Williams (Stevenson) pitched three scoreless innings in relief, but the damage had been done.

For the tournament, Travel batted .422 as a team led by Campbell (.642), Lawson (.571), Krol (.555) and McCrohan (.538). Campbell threw out all attempting base stealers.

By going 5-1 in the tourney, Livonia Travel is now 12-3 over-

Anderson knew this going in, however. And he knows the problems he faces are hardly insurmountable.

"I thought the focus on serving and serve reception was missing (the past few years)," he said. "You just lob the ball over the net against a Salem or Walled Lake Central and you're not going to do too well."

"You've got to attack on your serve. We're going to reinforce our defense and our serving game."

It's a formula that's been tried, and has worked well, for years at places like Livonia Churchill (to name one). "We're putting in some new defensive schemes, and that should help tremendously," he said.

"We'll be scaring people — the 'giant-killers'. They'll be wary of us."

If anyone can indeed carry Canton to its previous standard as league contender, it's Anderson. And then the past may not be able to match what the future holds.

As far as helping out, Blohm added, "I told him I'll do anything he wants me to do. Just say it."

Other opportunities have popped up for Rheault. Two years ago he took a position as art teacher at Livonia Franklin HS. When the Patriots went looking for a new basketball coach, Rheault was one of the first people they contacted.

But Rheault wasn't ready to even consider leaving Canton for Franklin. "I'm very, very dedicated to Canton," he said.

His work for the program, as well as with it, provides proof of that. People familiar with Canton basketball have seen him on the sidelines for both the boys and girls teams; what they may not realize is, besides designing plays and defenses, he has designed the artwork that adorns the floor and walls of the Phase III gym.

All part of his job. And if Rheault has one dominating feature, it's his boundless energy.

Perhaps that's one reason he has adopted Blohm's (and Young's) style of basketball — a motion offense and pressure man-to-man defense.

"This is a continued program," Rheault said. "The system works. There may be subtle changes, things I like to do a bit more — like pick up defensively more and shoot more. But it all depends on your personnel.

"We teach kids to make plays, to read and figure things out. You're going to see Canton basketball."

Rheault's first season won't be an easy one, to be sure. Four starters have graduated, taking with them most of the point production. The only returning starter is guard Oliver Wolcott, one of five seniors.

Rheault feels ready for the challenge. "It's something I'm looking forward to."

He's certainly familiar with everything surrounding the program he will now be in charge of.

died in 1997.

In that first season with Woomer in 1991, Tate won the Gold Cup — a feat he repeated in 1994. He has won three drivers' championships and set several course and world records.

After Woomer's death, Tate drove just once in 1998 and sat out last season until Harvey called him to replace David.

"In the past, I was with one owner for nine years," Tate said. "To the layman, boats look alike. But they're very different. I'm still learning the characteristics of this boat."

"It's like when you get married. You think you know the person you're marrying. But after a couple years, you're like, who is this person?"

Tate lives in Canton with his wife, Sandy, and two sons, Andrew, 10, and Brent, 8. When he's not driving Miss Chrysler Jeep, Tate is involved in his family's business, Sun Plastics Coating, Inc., in Plymouth.

"I get home every week," Tate said. "I work at the office 3-4 days a week and then fly out to the races. It's a pretty hectic schedule."

Tate said the only thing he doesn't like about hydroplane racing is the amount of time he spends away from his family.

"The racing season lasts from May to September," he said. "It's not real long. But my boys are at an age where they're involved in a lot of activities and I miss out on those activities. That's what I dislike about racing the most. Time away from my family."

Tate has not taught his sons to hydroplane race but plans to teach them soon.

"They would love to get into racing but while their dad's out racing every weekend, it's difficult to get them into racing," Tate said. "Once I retire, we'll get them involved in some kind of racing."

"How many years do I have left? I don't know. Right now, I'm taking it year by year."

Getting started

Its first purchase in 1943 was for Metro Beach Metropark, and the authority spent 1945-47 dredging sand to raise shore level before it opened to the public in 1950.

However, the first Metropark to open was Kensington in 1948. The jewel in the HCMA crown, Kensington has the 1,200-acre Kent Lake, created when a dam was built at the south end of the park. It's the most popular of the Metroparks, attracting more than 2.5 million of the 9 million people who visit the parks each year.

In the recreational scheme of things, the Metroparks can best be described as the closest thing to being up north and still be only an hour's drive from downtown Detroit.

In fact, Sudek sees the park system as "the anchors to keep sprawl from going north" and believes their "great appeal is the mix between the developed and the undeveloped areas."

Just a step below state parks' mix of 5 percent developed and 95 percent undeveloped, Metroparks utilize a quarter of the park area for recreation. In addition to the usual picnic areas, golf courses, a wave pool, sandy beaches, trails, nature, farm and interpretive centers and marinas are part of the system's attractions.

"There are things for the family to do and there are environmental areas that are pristine areas for people to enjoy as well," said Sudek. "Local parks are intensive in development. County parks are better than local parks and do have some undeveloped areas. Metroparks are a level above that with 25 percent developed and 75 percent undeveloped. Each system tries to play a part in people's recreational needs."

"These are not just summer parks, they're year-round parks," added Kreger. "Somewhere in the park, there's something going on every month of the year. The wave pool at Lake Erie is one of the most popular attractions in the park system."

"At Kensington, we have the farm center, where you can feed the animals. The kids love it. In the winter, they have hayrides, cross-country skiing and a toboggan run."

The HCMA also has the largest interpretive program of parks in the country - 10 interpretive, 7 nature and 2 farm centers and the mobile learning center, started five years ago to bring nature to the urban areas, according to Sudek.

Within the boundaries

With about 20,000 acres set aside along the Huron and Clinton rivers, the park boundaries are pretty much set, although the HCMA does try to acquire parcels within those boundaries.

"The biggest challenge in the next 10-20-50 years is going to be completing the development plans for the 13 parks and preserve the relationship between the developed and undeveloped areas, according to Sudek, who will retire in August after 40 years with the park system.

"Land acquisition always costs more as property values increase," he said. "There's not much more to buy, and we're not aggressive about it. We wait until it becomes available."

But the other problem is sprawl. With development literally sprouting up along some park boundaries, the authority now faces the issue of becoming a local park but still keeping its regional focus.

Sudek sees that as a mixed blessing. Development around the parks means more year-round use and people who are very protective and volunteer at the parks, but the parks also have become refuge for displaced wildlife, especially deer. Thinning the parks' herds was a contentious issue last year, but was necessary according to Kreger.

"We had to do something about the deer," he said. "It's been the biggest controversy faced by the Metroparks, and we were made out to be callous and indifferent, but the deer were vandalizing the park. A lot of species of plants have been eaten up and new trees were eaten up as soon as they come up from the ground."

"I don't believe we got a black eye with the deer issue," added Sudek. "I believe people had a chance to look us in the eye and tell us what they thought."

As good stewards of the environment we have to have a balance in resources. When they become overburdened and threatened, we have to deal with it."

Sudek also foresees the park system becoming more of an urban system and facing more pressure to do things that are more urban, which he doesn't believe should be done.

"We have to decide how to maintain the developed areas, keep them fresh and updated and current, and how to preserve that beautiful balance and keep those parts pristine and undeveloped, so you don't have to go to the U.P. to get that experience," he said. "We have to think of how we can make a difference in the life of a child as they spend less time in the outdoor. Our responsibility is that we're as important to the family of the future."

"We need to provide more for them to play together. That will be our big contribution to society."

KENSINGTON

Karen Hartnett of Canton has strong ties to Kensington Metropark. In fact, she was born in 1948, the same year the park opened.

"I can even remember going with my dad before the freeway was out there," said Hartnett, a child support specialist for the state of Michigan. "We went out there for picnics."

She and husband, Tom, an attorney for the Wayne County Friend of the Court, would visit Kensington when their two grown children, Jim and Jeanne, were small. When the kids were older, they went cross-country skiing.

"We like to go there," Hartnett said. "It's a pretty big place."

She likes Kensington's beaches, picnic areas and farm center. She appreciates the accessibility and now takes the family dog, Tasha, for walks on a leash there.

Activities the Hartnetts enjoy at Kensington include swimming, walking and picnicking. They like the area around Kensington as well, but note that it's getting built up around the park.

Tom Hartnett recalled an early April visit to the park: "We walked around the different lakes. That helps us relax. It was nice."

While there, they bought their annual sticker while at the park that day. Daily admission to Kensington is $2 per vehicle weekday, $3 for Saturday, Sunday or holiday, free on Wednesday. Annual admission is $15, $8 for seniors age 62 and older.

Richard Shafer also has strong ties to Kensington, working for the past 14 years as park superintendent and for 29 years at Kensington. He confirmed Hartnett's assessment of the park as big - 4,357 acres, including lakes.

"Kent Lake is the largest," he said, with several other smaller lakes and ponds found. The park is on the Oakland-Livingston county line, in three townships: Milford, Brighton and Lyon. As many metro Detroiters know, it's readily accessible and visible from I-96.

It's the oldest Metropark, Shafer said, adding its facilities, location and beauty contribute to its popularity. About 2.5 million people visit Kensington each year.

"We have a good heritage here, people that are regular users," he said.

The park's also on its fourth generation of employees. There are some 39 full-timers, along with about 40 year-round part-timers and summer seasonal hires. Those employees attract park visitors, Shafer said, and Kensington's the most popular public park in the state. Accessibility from the Detroit area and such cities as Toledo, Lansing and Flint makes the park popular.

"A lot of it is the location," he said.

Does Shafer have a dream job, just walking in the woods all day? He laughed and noted six department heads report to him. The job has demands, but staffers can get outdoors, too - "We take advantage of that."

He envisions the future of Kensington Metropark as new development of facilities because of changing public desires. The golf course, for example, was made to be competitive with others.

Another change? Increasing numbers of programs and partnerships with organizations that lack facilities. Those include businesses, groups and individuals, such as a man with a "Colonial Kensington" program.

Shafer encourages people to visit Kensington, pointing out that "they become regular visitors."

Another Kensington visitor is Denise Mogos of Plymouth Township. She makes her living as public relations/information officer for the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority and finds her personal and professional lives combine when she visits Kensington.

"It is our most used park," Mogos said. "Wildlife watching, swimming, golf and all the amenities there draw visitors."

A recent spring day found Judy DeHondt of Berkley at Kensington's Martindale Beach. "Just the great weather and wanting to be near the water" were her reasons for visiting.

Park hours are 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. For information, call (248) 685-1561 or (800) 477-3178.

LAKE ERIE

BY RALPH ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER
rechtinaw@oe.homecomm.net

Lake Erie Metropark at the southern edge of Wayne County is a bit of a hike from western Wayne County, but it contains the only wave pool in the Metropark system.

The Great Wave is the park's biggest draw, said Assistant Park Superintendent Jeffrey W. Schuman.

More than 75,000 people per year use the pool in which 3-foot waves are artificially generated. Depth varies from 8 feet to zero, and the pool is capable of holding 1,400 people at a time.

Conveniently located near the Great Wave is a snack bar, kid's playground and picnic area. Some park patrons use the wave pool area and nothing else, Schuman said.

But there are plenty of other things to do on the 1,607 acres of Lake Erie Metropark, too.

A boat launch area has room for 200 vehicles and their trailers in the parking lot. Boaters may turn left and head up the Detroit River, or turn right and check out Lake Erie.

The marina contains more than 100 boat wells, but water there is only about 4 feet deep. Three years ago it was 8 feet deep, Schuman said. Still, 4 feet is more than many other marinas have, and it's enough to float a 25-foot motorboat.

Nature lovers will enjoy Lake Erie Metropark for its three miles of shoreline and abundance of wildlife and waterfowl. Some 500-600 acres of wetlands attract herons, egrets and ducks. Mosquitoes breed in the wetlands, but Schuman said the breeze off Lake Erie prevents them from being a major problem. Woodpeckers also are numerous in the woods.

Walkers will enjoy the hiking trails and boardwalk alongside the marsh and a bike trail accommodates cyclists. And shoreline fishing is available throughout the park wherever water depths are sufficient.

There are several large grassy areas for outdoor activities and picnic tables, grills and shelters are numerous.

The Marshlands Museum and Nature Center is "dedicated to things that happened here in the last 150 years," Schuman said.

Interpreting the cultural and natural heritage of the region, this museum features exhibits on the waterfowl hunting tradition, folkways and marsh ecology. A 1,300-gallon aquarium showcases regional fish species. Numerous donors have stocked the museum with fishing canoes, shotguns and decoys.

Outside the museum is a turn-of-the-century boathouse and a replica of an eagle's nest, which figures in the activities every September when the park hosts the "Hawkfest." Since migrating hawks fly south along the waterfront, they pass right over Lake Erie Metropark and sometimes rest there for a day before continuing south.

War of 1812 reenactors fight the Battle of Brownstown in the park for two days every August, this year on Aug. 19-20.

A golf course that opened in 1994 is getting its first permanent clubhouse and paved parking lot this year, but not until late summer. The 6,400-yard, 18-hole, par-72 public course is surrounded by natural wetlands and features gently rolling bunkered fairways and 20 acres of ponds.

Lake Erie Metropark is open 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week. For more information, call (800) 477-3189.

LOWER HURON

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

Lower Huron Metropark in Belleville doesn't lack for things to do, whether it's a hot, humid steaming day or a below zero day with a foot of ice to skate on and some snow in which to ski.

Another nice thing about Lower Huron Metropark is it's accessible.

The park, located on Haggerty Road just west of I-275, features a variety of four-season activities, including a swimming pool with diving board and 17-foot high water slide, canoeing in the Huron River, picnicking, hike/bike trails, par 3 golf, ice skating and cross-country skiing (in season).

Lower Huron also has a group camping area for organizations like church and scout groups. There, groups of up to 1,000 can set up rustic camp for a week-end or a few days.

Richard Sobecki, park superintendent, oversees operations at Lower Huron, and its two sister Metroparks, Oakwoods and Willow, which are located south of Lower Huron. The three are connected via a "hike-bike" trail, allowing bicyclists to take up to a 30 mile round-trip trek.

Sobecki said the Huron River is the park's most outstanding natural feature, but its three ponds, which become skating ponds in winter, are another impressive feature. The ponds are an offshoot of the Huron and sit in a ravine just northeast of the park office.

"They're our Currier & Ives ponds," Sobecki said, referring to the print artists known for their winter scenes.

Lower Huron Metropark was established in 1952, with Oakwoods and Willow following suit in 1972 and 1968, respectively. The three parks are operated together.

"Lower Huron is the oldest and (most mature) of the parks," Sobecki said. But the park's age also means administrators must take a hard look at improvements, including replacing the pool, which was opened in 1958. It has received several upgrades over the years, including the water slide in 1989. Pool users pay $2 in addition to the $3 motor vehicle permit fee.

Willow Metropark also has a pool, as does Lake Erie Metropark in Monroe, which has a wave pool.

Lower Huron Metropark features also include picnicking with shelters, play areas including a "play lot," canoeing (no rentals or launch), fishing, court games areas, canoe camp, paved hike/bike trails, hiking/fitness trails and nature trails.

The hike-bike connector between Willow and Oakwoods Metroparks was completed in 1998, allowing walkers, joggers, bicyclists and in-line skaters to traverse all three parks.

The par 3 golf course is designed for beginner golfers, because of its relatively small 1,300-yard size.

"No tee time is necessary," Sobecki said.

Par 3 golfing fees are $5 on weekdays, and $6 on weekends and holidays, $4 everyday for seniors age 62 and up and children 17 and younger.

For more information about the park, call (734) 697-9181 or (800) 477-3182.

WILLOW and OAKWOOD

BY RICHARD PEARL
STAFF WRITER
rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

Do you enjoy dancing under the stars? Or maybe you'd like to take a ride in an oversized canoe - one like that used by Native Americans and the early explorers - to see nature up close and get a feel of what life was like back then?

Those are the unique offerings at Lower Huron Metropark's two sister facilities, the Willow and Oakwoods Metroparks.

Together, the three parks offer practically everything for recreation and nature-appreciation that the other 10 Metroparks in the system have, plus things they don't.

"We didn't know you were here" is what superintendent Richard Sobecki and his people hear a lot from western and southern Wayne County residents just discovering the three parks. But Detroiters have used them for years, he said.

Willow, which like older sibling Lower Huron offers such a swimming pool, golf, fishing, bike-hike trails and cross-country skiing, also has a 10,500-square-foot Outdoor Dance Center.

Meanwhile, neighboring Oakwoods, which is primarily a nature interpretive area, has various trails and a nature center and is one of the few offering trips in a Voyageur canoe, which holds 10 to 12 adults ($2.50 per person, $30 per group, up to 20 people).

Willow's dance center, one of only three in the 13-park system, has 3,300 square feet of dancing area plus space for tables and chairs.

There's square dancing on Friday nights and other types of dancing and concerts on Saturday nights.

For more information about either park, call the Lower Huron Metropark office, (734) 697-9181 or 1-800-477-3182.

Seven years ago Tammy Waldrop thought she knew everything there was to know about gardening, and then she got a job at a greenhouse and realized that she hadn't scratched the surface.

"I have a lifetime of learning to do," she said.

But she knows volumes more than most backyard flower dabbles, and the result is a gardener's dream come true on 1.33 acres at her home on Geddes just east of Canton Center.

Among the 14 flower beds is one she's named butterfly hill and another the holding cell for the plants she hasn't decided what to do with yet. The remaining are a vegetable garden and a raised vegetable bed will be on display during the Canton Garden Club Garden Walk from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, July 8.

The 'bug' bites

Waldrop was stung by the gardening bug 14 years when she had an old house that needed a lot of work in Sterling Heights.

"It was a mess, and I wanted to fix it up," she said. "I bought coral bells and it all started from there."

The green plants with spiked, strong stems are topped by small blooms that look exactly like bells. Its long blooming time, usually June through September, makes it appealing to every perennial gardener.

The outside of Waldrop's house kept getting more and more attractive as she kept adding more and more flowers and plants. During the process Waldrop realized that gardening was her "calling."

"I spent years trying to figure out what my talents were, and now I know that's God's gift to me," she said.

Once Waldrop moved to Canton she had already learned what she liked and didn't like and her enthusiasm surged. Outside her home, she has more than 120 different kinds of perennials including irises, peonies, delphiniums and day lilies.

Other people have realized that Waldrop has a way of making dull areas come alive with color and fragrance using plants and flowers. In fact, she recently took the job of landscape chairman at Winter Walker Elementary School where her daughter, Danielle, was in kindergarten this past year.

In fact, Waldrop has cultivated an interest in gardening in Danielle, 6.

She's learning at a young age that plants and flowers flourish if they're given enough care. Her

When Kathleen Fischer bought her house in 1994 a peony bush was the only flower in a garden that now has nothing but blooms with a cottage-style theme featuring hollyhocks, morning glories, delphiniums and other old-fashioned dependables.

The peony bush now fights for attention among more than 200 perennials and yard art that fill her garden and awes visitors.

Fischer's garden is so impressive she was asked to be on the seventh annual Garden City Garden Walk, 10 a.m.-2 p.m., Saturday, July 22.

"I really wasn't a gardener when we moved in," she said. "I said my goal was to have so many gardens that my husband wouldn't have to mow the grass."

She almost reached her goal with three-quarters of the terrain filled with perennial flowers, stepping stones, an arbor, pond and a pathway. Best of all, most of her vast collection was found or given to her by family and friends.

"I'll see something in the garbage that I think will look neat in my garden and I'll pick it up," she said, explaining that once she spotted a pile of metal iron posts and rods in someone's trash and decided they would be perfect, if she arranged them just right, in her back yard.

In fact, Fischer believes her gardens have increased the value of her home, located south of Ford Road and east of Henry Ruff, by at least $25,000.

"I like to incorporate things in my garden that you wouldn't normally see in a garden," she said.

Like the fence and arbor she made from tree branches. Or the concrete border she crafted from pieces of broken cement left over when her parents put in a new porch.

Constant changing

Her backyard canvass is always a work in progress.

"I plant something and I get an idea and I say, 'you know I like this better here,' and I move it," she said. "Every year it's different."

She walks from bush to bush and removes the dead flowers, weeds and anything else she wants out. Meanwhile, ideas about planting new gardens are planted.

Her gardens become instant gift shops when friends leave with bouquets.

"My garden is my stress release," Fischer said. "I work full-time in a loan department and when I get home from work I work out in the garden. I wind down from the day. I turn my fountain on, and lose myself."

Her garden was an especially important diversion last May when she was diagnosed with ovarian cancer and she began having

AREA GARDEN TOURS

■ Petals and Paths, the Canton Garden Club's second Garden Walk, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, July 8, will feature six lovely gardens in the Canton area on the tour. Presale tickets are $5 and are available from Keller & Stein on Michigan Avenue, Graye's Greenhouse on Joy Road, Vanessa's Flowers on Ann Arbor Road and Mary's Farm Market on Ford Road. Tickets are also available the day of the tour for $6 at each of the hosted garden homes. The walk is scheduled rain or shine, so pack an umbrella.

■ The 7th annual Garden City Garden Walk is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, July 22. Tickets will be $6 and can be purchased at Barson's Greenhouse and Rocky's Florist, both on Ford Road. For information call Zydys Bateson at (734) 427-5452.

■ The Gardens of Northville's Seventh Annual Garden Walk, sponsored by Country Garden Club, features seven gardens from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday, July 12. (The severe weather date is July 13.) Tickets are $8 and can be purchased at Gardenviews, 202 W. Main, and Northville Chamber of Commerce, 195 S. Main.

chemotherapy. "It's really a devastating thing to go through and you need something to keep your mind off of what you're going through," she said. "The gardening got me out and not feeling sorry for myself."

Fischer planted a birch tree in her front yard to celebrate the day doctors told her they believed they got all the cancer cells.

"That was the last tree that I wanted in my front yard," she said. "I planted it in honor of all the people who had passed on from cancer and who were going through cancer treatments."

Gardening: 'Quality time'

Kim Marquette thinks about gardening as "therapy," too. It's also a common place for her son, Alan, and husband, Jerry, to work on projects. Their work will be on display during the garden walk, too.

"It's where the family spends good, quality time," she said. "Every year we change something and add something and everyone is involved. It always has new life."

Water gardens are the focal point at their home east of Merriam and south of Ford Road on the same street where Marquette grew up. In fact, Marquette's mother, Muriel Grima, still lives six houses away, in the homestead where Marquette grew up. The Grima gardens will also be on the garden walk.

Marquette and her mother learned to love gardening from Grima's mother, Alice Johnson, who still gardens at 88 and who lives eight blocks away from Marquette in Westland.

Enter the Marquette garden through a 15-foot copper arbor made as a Mother's Day gift by Jerry and Alan. A canopy of fragrant light pink roses drape down. The breathtaking display has a second special meaning, because the bush is 60 years old and was taken from her grandmother's home in Dearborn before she moved to Westland.

"I moved a lot of her flowers from her garden and that started a lot of my gardening," Marquette said.

Pond is centerpiece

The main feature in Marquette's garden is their biggest pond, about 16 feet at its widest and four feet deep. It has 75 fish, some of which like to be hand fed. At any one time there are some 15 water lilies in bloom.

Grass varieties dominate among water and land irises. There's always something in bloom with "something dying and something coming," Marquette said.

They have a smaller pond and another one under way, which is to be visible from a screened in porch they added this year.

A fallen tree on the property that became home to woodpeckers, Marquette thought, would be perfect for a third plan that will be built. A swimming pool adds to their backyard aquatic offerings.

Alan, 11, grew up with a natural habitat in his back yard that nurtured a love for nature and science.

"A great way for him to study the different types of frogs," Marquette said.

"The frogs are so loud when they're mating that it drowns out the TV. In a couple of months there will be frogs all over hopping."

"The pond is really pretty when it freezes over," she said. "We have to keep one spot open for the fish. That's my son's job to make sure the hole stays open all winter long."

There's a turtle and at least 800 tadpoles in the big pond. They started with a few tadpoles the first year and now they come back annually.

Blue herons are among a wide variety of birds that flock to the country setting the Marquettes have carved out of their back yard.

The Marquettes have a certain artistic flare, too - like the grouping of a large lilac bush looming above a large tree trunk that was gutted by carpenter ants next to a picnic basket and a decorative adult bicycle.

The next big project is a garden train Alan is planning. The indoor-outdoor railroad train will be adorned with landscaping.

"It will be very small this year, but hopefully will grow - he loves trains," Marquette said. "We try to incorporate things that we all will enjoy."

Variety offered

Jack and Laurie Downs like a change of scenery in the gardening scheme, too.

Garden walk participants are invited to see this year's edition.

"It's a work in progress," he said. "It's taken years to develop."

East of Middlebelt and north of Cherry Hill, the Downs have a flagstone walkway, skirted by ferns, hostas, clematis, day lilies, asters, autumn joy, bee balm, peonies, hollyhock and Mexican primrose. Hummingbirds and butterflies visit the cardinal flower and butterfly bushes.

A 1,000-gallon pond at the end of the patio and a smaller pond are the center of attention. The show stealer stands in the middle of a 15-foot circle with an old Detroit lamppost, painted yellow above a green base.

"It was all rusted when we found it on the side of the road being thrown out," Jack said. "When it was being sandblasted, we said it looked like petals were on it. We discovered all of the old lamps in downtown were in the design of flowers."

A bird bath, four fountains, a smaller pond and an arbor over a park bench makes the Downs' back yard a place of tranquility with resort-like appeal. A small bog garden with cranberries and carnivorous pitcher plants attracts flies.

In a word, gardening means "tranquility" to Downs.

For the last six years by mid-July their entire fence line bursts with color presented by impatiens. This year the color is lipstick red. Laurie plants them so close they have no where to grow but up, reaching about three-feet high.

The Downs' back yard will also be featured among the seven homes in the Garden City Garden Walk.

There's more to be gotten from the walk than vistas of beautiful flowers and plants. These dedicated gardeners have lessons to teach about life.

"To me no matter how tired I am I can always garden," Bateson said.

"It's very relaxing and I get more enjoyment out of the people who walk by and question me on things."

Most of the gardens will offer refreshments. Other houses will have plants and crafts for sale, according to Zydis Bateson, co-chairperson of the garden walk with Verna Paul-Brown.

Diane Gale Andreassi is a Livonia resident and writes about homes and gardens for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

rewards are what nature gives back.

Danielle has her own flower bed with samples of snap dragons and lambs ear.

The two prize additions are a daisy she ripped out of a field and planted in her plot of land and a rose bush in honor of her middle name.

The young gardener also likes to help her father, Dan, harvest vegetables from his garden.

While Waldrop said she is constantly picking up new ideas and tips about how to make her garden grow, she said good soil is the most important element.

"I read recently that you should spend $5 on the soil and fifty cents on the plant and I believe in that," she said.

After good soil, consider adding compost to your garden beds.

"I try to work them in all my beds and around the gardens each spring," Waldrop added.

When asked how much time she devotes to gardening, Waldrop said: "Too, much. It's definitely a passion."

Life without gardens, she said, "would be very dull - I couldn't imagine it."

Critters gather

Gardening certainly makes Sandy Anselm's life brighter, too. But while the rest of the green thumbs do anything they possibly can to rid their yards of animals that nibble on their beloved plants, Anselm welcomes the creatures.

Her woodlands garden, east of Lilley and south of Ford Road, will also be on the Canton Garden Walk. Walkers might even get a glimpse of the black squirrel nicknamed Blacky whom she feeds by hand.

While book shelves are filled with advice on how to keep your gardens free from animal visitors, Anselm is setting out food for the ducks. Hedgehogs, rabbits and raccoons are also known to pay a visit.

Most interesting of all is that

Anselm doesn't seem to mind if the wildlife take a nibble of a few hosta leaves and other plants as they tramp through her shady back yard with more than 50 maple trees and a few pine trees scattered about.

She accents the greenery with a Crayola box selection of different colored impatiens. Flower islands show off ferns, hostas, hydrangea, azaleas, astilbe, poppies and an array of other blooms.

"It's definitely a hobby that's a lot of work, but enjoyable because I like nature," Anselm said. "It's rewarding and it makes every minute that I have spare, busy."

A brick paver juts out from a huge patio that hugs the house from one side to the other. She accents with potted flowers that can be moved on whim, bird baths, figurines galore and a canopy bird house.

Picking Anselm and the other five gardeners to be featured on the walk this year wasn't easy, according to Donna McDonald, vice president of the Canton Garden Club.

"It's usually through word of mouth or something I can see from the street," McDonald said. "It's actually very difficult, because you can't ask to see someone's back yard and then say, 'Oh well, never mind.'"

HOME WORK

Hang art fair finds with these fasteners

ASK DAD

HARRY JACHYM

Summer Art Fair, is Wednesday, July 19, through Saturday, July 22.

Art fairs are fun to browse, and some of us will be bringing home artwork to display on our walls.

Hanging pictures would be easy if carpenters would learn to set studs where we want to hang these things. Since they don't, we need to use the wall covering to support our art piece.

Most of us in this area live in homes covered with wallboard, more commonly called drywall. Homes built before 1960 likely have plaster walls. Both types of coverings are similar, even though plaster is harder and stronger, but more brittle.

Here are the different methods and items to use to hang your artwork:

Light weights

If the object isn't too heavy, for example a small framed print, a simple nail can work fine on plaster. Nails tend to work loose in drywall. To help prevent chipping plaster walls, either put a piece of masking tape or drill a small hole where the nail will be driven. Putting the nail at a downward angle increases the holding power.

In drywall, and even plaster, picture hangers are preferred. These are just nails with a metal piece attached which helps keep the nail from working loose. Depending on size, picture hangers can handle up to 40 pounds. Display racks show numerous kinds of picture hangers. Some are decorative, and one even claims to hold as much as 100 pounds.

For very light objects such as unframed posters and soft art, pins and needles work well on drywall. Work the pins into the wall with a pair of pliers.

Nails and pins do very little damage to the walls. The small holes are easily filled and refinished when the item is moved. Paint itself is usually enough to cover pinholes.

I like to stay away from tapes or other stick-ons to hang pictures. More often than not, these tend to leave goosy residue and stains on the walls. They can be near impossible to remove or even paint over.

There are some stick-on products new to the market. They claim to be easy to remove and not leave a mess. I've yet to try them.

Heavy weights

Hollow wall anchors, E-Z Anchors and toggle bolts will usually do the trick with objects up to 100 pounds. Wall anchors can be found in plastic and metal versions. They require a hole to be drilled in the wall.

After the anchor is inserted in the hole, turn the supplied screw. This expands the anchor inside the wall holding it fast. These are considered permanent and cause considerable damage to the wall when removed. A tap-in version of the hollow wall anchor is available. Since only a hammer is required, these are easier to use but hold less since the backside of drywall may be shattered when inserting it. The tap-ins don't work well with plaster.

E-Z Anchors are also available in metal and plastic. These nifty little devices come with their own built-in drill. Simply use a variable speed drill/driver with a Phillips bit to run these into the wall.

E-Z Anchors are removable, but unsuitable for plaster walls because they leave a good-sized hole.

Toggle bolts are best suited for plaster walls. When the toggle bolt is inserted into a hole drilled in the wall the toggles spring open. Tightening the bolt draws the toggle toward the wall back. When removed, the toggle falls inside the wall leaving only a hole in the wall. Any of the anchors and toggles work well

Try not to drill or drive holes more than 3/4-inch deep in a wall. Wires and plumbing within the wall can be damaged. This is bad thing. Water leaks are difficult and can be expensive to repair.

Cut wires spark and smoke a lot. I know this first hand. These too are difficult and expensive to repair and are dangerous. There is always new hanging hardware appearing on the market. Some are good, some aren't. Look at the packaging and ask questions.

Settlement expected over new defect in hot water tanks

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

I think most of us are aware of the defective dip tube installed by manufacturers in many millions of their tanks and how it has affected the same amount of homeowners. I said it at the beginning of the story and I will say it again - it's a crying shame that big business can do these kind of things and get away with it. But in this case, they didn't.

They were taken to task and settled a class action lawsuit in which they were to reimburse consumers. Today, just as the dust begins to settle, there is another class action lawsuit going on against a manufacturer, State Industries, a producer of hot water tanks.

This suit has nothing to do with the previous problem of the dip tube. The suit was filed because State Industries built hot water tanks without the anode rod installed and with a plastic liner instead of glass. Electric elements are prematurely failing inside the tanks. Corrosion is eating the inside of the walls and causing leaks. Is there no end to the damage being done to the image of hot water tank manufacturers by their very own stupid mistakes?

A court in Johnson County, Texas, was expected to determine this month whether a proposed settlement of a class action lawsuit involving Duron water heaters, manufactured by State Industries Inc., is fair and reasonable and whether a final judgment should be entered approving the proposed settlement. The lawsuit was filed for all persons in the United States who have purchased, for use other than resale, a Duron electric water heater manufactured by State Industries, or who purchased a home in which a Duron electric water heater was installed.

On March 10, the court made a preliminary finding that the proposed settlement is fair and reasonable and gave its preliminary approval to the proposed settlement. A Duron electric water heater used a polymer or plastic inner liner rather than a glass lining and is not equipped with a sacrificial anode rod. These water heaters were often sold under the "Duron" trade name but have also been sold by various retailers under other trade names, most often "Reliance." If the model number of a State Industries electric water heater is CD, SD, TCL, TD or PEX, it is a "Duron" electric water heater. Other model numbers, including T6 SS8 and SSX, may also be "Duron" electric water heaters.

Benefits under the proposed settlement include a certificate for a discount of up to $20 on the purchase of a new State Industries water heater, $15 for each failed heating element, up to $50 for the cost of replacing each failed heating element, up to $150 for each failed tank, and up to $150 for the cost of replacing a signed proof of claim must be mailed on or before Dec. 31, 2001.

In addition, class members can recover for compensable damage done to their homes at any time by leaking Duron electric water heaters, subject to applicable statutes of limitation. For more information, call 1-800-531-3079 or log onto www.stateind.com

Black and white photos make colorful expression

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Taking photographs in black and white can be a very rewarding experience.

Most people wouldn't think of putting anything but color film in their cameras. Undoubtedly this is because they want their photographs to record the way they remember a scene.

Yet the lack of color in a black and white photograph can make a far more striking interpretation of a scene. And since black and white is an interpretation rather than a documentation of a subject, the onus is on the photographer to create a picture through the use of textures and tones.

Textures and tones are considerations in color photography, but in black and white they are all-important. You may say that color photographs are analogous to seeing a movie while black and white is like reading the book.

If you have two cameras, try loading one with color and the other with black and white. Take a shot of the same subject. When you compare your prints, you may be surprised at the power of the black and white image.

Portraiture in black and white can be very effective indeed. Look at some good black and white portraits, study them carefully, and you'll see the impact they possess. I've always felt that color portraits show the likeness of a person while black and white brings out the character of the face.

The tonal range from black through various shades of gray to white is known as the gray scale. By using these tones in an interpretive way, a photographer can truly express himself or herself through their photography.

A black and white print using the extremes of the scale (no mid-tones) is referred to as a high-contrast print. Just the opposite, an all mid-tone print is called low-contrast.

If the tones are toward the white end of the scale, it's called a high-key picture. A photo where most of the tones are near the black end is low-key. One that uses the full range of tones is called a full-tone print.

By using the tones creatively and effectively, a photographer is able to "make a statement" through his or her pictures.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (734) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then 111, then N-A-G-L-E-R. His fax number is (248) 644-1314.

Dune deal: Sand dunes are the perfect black and white subjects. Early morning light produces tones and textures and impact just not obtainable in color.

ADOPT-A-PET

Snowball and Snowflake:

These two long-haired girls are 9-month-old guinea pigs. The previous owner's child just lost interest in them, so now they are looking for a new home. They have lived with children and are well-suited for a home with kids. Some regular grooming is required because of their longer hair. Guinea pigs make delightful pets. Please come see them at the Michigan Humane Society Westland Shelter, 37255 Marquette. Call (734) 721-7300 between 10 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Share some sensational seasonal vegetables

INVITING IDEAS

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

the Whole Foods Market in Rochester Hills.

Laurie has been a long-time committed vegetarian, since high school (a graduate with yours truly from the largest graduating class from Southfield High, 1969).

Thirty years will give you some serious non-meat experience, and that's what led this former customer of Whole Foods to become an employee.

Grilled vegetables are great cooked with only a drizzle of olive oil (basil olive oil is superb!) or a splash of citrus. Grill some garden veggies for the base of a soup, salad, sandwich or elegantly executed main course.

I often grill a selection of my favorite vegetables, then marinate them with a simple vinaigrette for in-between meal snacks, or a great topping for crostini.

Today there are great vegetarian books out on the market. My favorites include Madhur Jaffrey's newest: Madhur Jaffrey's World Vegetarian: More than 650 Meatless Recipes from around the Globe, Crown Publishing Group, 1999 (hardcover $40), and Vegetarian Cooking for Everyone by Deborah Madison, Bantam Doubleday Dell Publishing Group, 1997 (hardcover $40, but can often be found on sale).

On the topic of recipes, Stern has graciously shared some of her favorites with us. Try them or call Laurie at the store for some other ideas or a listing of her fall classes (she's a great resource). Her number is (248) 652-2100.

BASIL TOMATO TART

Fresh dough and the freshest of summer ingredients — this tart would be great for a brunch, lunch or dinner side dish or entree. Pretty as a picture on a buffet table!

Ingredients for the dough:

- 1 cup whole wheat bread crumbs
 - 1 cup whole wheat flour
 - 1/2 cup margarine or butter
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Ingredients for the filling:
- 2-3 tomatoes, thinly sliced
 - 1 cup low-fat ricotta cheese
 - 1/2 cup grated mozzarella cheese
 - 2 eggs
 - 1 cup fresh basil leaves, cleaned and dried
 - Olive oil

Directions for the dough:

Mix all dough ingredients in a food processor. When dough forms, put in pan (a 9- or 10-inch springform pan works well) with hands. Bake until golden about 10 minutes at 350 degrees F.

Directions for the filling:

Adjust oven rack to middle position. Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

Place sliced tomatoes on paper towel; sprinkle with salt and set aside.

In a food processor add ricotta, mozzarella, eggs, and basil; mix until blended.

Place 1 layer tomatoes in pan, then cover with cheese-egg filling. Top with sliced tomatoes and drizzle with olive oil. Bake for 45-55 minutes, or until golden and firmly set in center.

RED POTATO

AND ASPARAGUS SALAD

A perfect addition to a summertime barbecue or as an accompaniment to chicken, lamb or shellfish for the meat eaters. Or how about a side for a tofu hot dog or soy-based burger for the vegetarian crowd?

Yield: 6 servings

Ingredients:

- 18 small new red potatoes
- 3 pounds fresh asparagus, well washed and trimmed
- 5 teaspoons fresh minced chives
- 3 teaspoons Dijon mustard
- Juice of 2 lemons
- 1 cup olive oil
- Salt and cayenne pepper

Directions:

In a large pot of salted boiling water, cook potatoes until just tender, about 20-30 minutes (depending on the size chosen). Drain and cool.

In a clean pot of salted boiling water, cook asparagus until crisp-tender, about 5 minutes; plunge immediately in a large bowl of cold water (iced preferred) to stop the cooking process. Once cool, drain well.

Cut cooled potatoes in halves and place in a large bowl. Cut asparagus into bite-sized pieces and add to the bowl. Toss vegetables together and add chives.

Prepare dressing: In a small bowl, combine mustard and lemon juice. Whisk in oil gradually and combine ingredients until smooth. Season with salt and cayenne pepper to taste.

Pour dressing over potato-asparagus mixture; gently toss to coat. Serve at room temperature.

PASTA WITH

FRESH PESTO SAUCE

This pesto sauce stores well in the refrigerator. Place it in a glass container with some oil added to the top before closing. This sauce can also be frozen — keep the cheese out of it if freezing!

Yield: 4-6

Ingredients:

- 3 cloves garlic, peeled and cut into pieces
- 2 cups solidly packed fresh basil, washed well and dried
- 1/2 teaspoon salt, plus more for salting pasta water
- Twist or two of freshly ground black pepper

- 1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil (preferably organic)
- 1/2 cup pine nuts, lightly toasted
- 1/2 cup freshly grated Romano or Pecorino cheese
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter, softened
- 1 lb. linguine or spaghetti

Directions:

In a food processor, combine garlic, basil, salt, pepper, oil and pine nuts; blend to a smooth puree, stopping the machine once or twice to scrape sides of container with a spatula.

To the mixture, add grated cheese and butter, then process for about 15 seconds. Scrape sides again and process for another few seconds (don't overgrind or pesto will have very little texture).

In a large pot, bring 4 or 5 quarts of salted water to a boil and add the pasta. Stir immediately, and continue to stir until done. Drain, reserving some of the pasta water.

Stir 1 tablespoon of reserved hot water into the pesto sauce. In a large bowl, toss the drained pasta and pesto sauce together. Serve immediately.

Laurie suggests if toasting pine nuts to keep a careful watch. They burn quickly.

Loaf around at 'breadworld'

Fleischmann's Yeast has a new Web site, www.breadworld.com.

Click and go to the site to find baking tips and recipes, and learn more about the history of bread.

The easy-to-use recipe box has a large archive of recipes. Bakers can choose from traditional bread recipes such as Focaccia and Perfect Pancakes, or bread machine recipes like blueberry peach bread or hearty apple rye. Some recipes are available in both formats.

The site is designed to answer almost any bread baking question with just a click of a button.

At www.breadworld.com visitors will also find tips for kneading, measuring dry and liquid ingredients, enhancing the look of bread and how to store bread. There's also a page of baking terms.

Links to related Web sites are available through breadworld.com, including the home page of public television's cooking series "Breaking Bread with Father Dominic," which is co-sponsored by Fleischmann's Yeast.

SHOOTING PLANTS

Take a tour of plants in gardens and a greenhouse, while learning to capture your garden on film.

Framing the shot, using light and shadow to advantage, correcting for less-than-perfect light or subject and seasonal differences will be discussed for both manual and automatic cameras at these sessions 6-9 p.m., Wednesday, July 12; 8-11 a.m., Saturday, July 15; and 6-9 p.m. Thursday, July 20, at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens in Ann Arbor. The class costs $76.50 for members of Friends of Matthaei Botanical Gardens and $85 for non-members. For information, (734) 998-7061.

Apply for MSU Extension master gardener classes

Apply now for the fall master gardener training program.

Daytime classes will take place 12:30-5 p.m. Wednesdays, Aug. 30 through Nov. 22. Send in an application now to secure a seat. Classes are offered on a first come, first served basis.

Call (248) 858-0887 for an application.

The Michigan Master Gardener Program is a horticulture education and volunteer leader training program offered by Michigan State University Extension. It provides home gardening information to Michigan citizens through a network of trained volunteers.

Training will be provided by MSU Extension. Instructors will be Extension staff members, experienced master gardeners and other experts.

Topics

Topics that will be covered during the 40 hours of core instruction include:

- Plant Science
- Soils for Plant Growth
- Herbaceous Ornamental Plant Culture
- Lawn Establishment, Care and Maintenance
- Vegetable Culture
- Household Pests
- Small Fruit Culture
- Tree Fruit Culture
- Woody Ornamental Plant Culture
- Integrated Pest Management
- Indoor Plant Culture

To become a master gardener, each trainee must take weekly quizzes and pass a final (take-home) exam with a score of 70 percent or higher. The exam will focus on an individual's ability to collect information from class notes and other resources to solve a problem.

Attendance is required and if a participant misses more than one session without making provisions to make it up, he or she cannot become a certified master gardener.

Along with the 40 hours of core instruction, another 40 hours of volunteer time is required to become a certified master gardener. These hours must have educational value, be non-paying and be approved by MSUE.

Winter 2000 master gardener training evening classes will take place Tuesdays, Jan. 2 through April 3, 2001, or Thursdays, Jan. 4 through Sept. 1, 2001.

Classes are offered in the order the applications are received and seats are limited.

Pull weeds, not muscles when you work

PR Newswire — Many homeowners trade in their treadmills this time of year for exercise of the garden variety.

The American Chiropractic Association says bending, reaching and digging in the garden can provide a great workout, but can cause muscle injury if precautions are not taken.

"A warm-up and cool-down period is just as important for gardening or doing yard work as it is for any other athletic activity," says Dr. J. Michael Flynn, ACA's chairman of the board. "Stretching during those periods is essential to preventing injuries, pain and stiffness."

Before stretching for any activity, there are a few tips to keep in mind. Breathe in and out slowly throughout stretching exercises; stretch gently and smoothly, do not bounce or jerk your body in any way; and stretch as far as you can comfortably. You should not feel pain.

Following are a few easy stretches Dr. Flynn recommends for getting the most out of your gardening workout:

■ Stand up and prop your heel on a back door step or stool with your knee straight. Bend forward until you feel a slight pull at the back of the thigh, called the hamstring. You may need to stabilize yourself by holding onto a garage door handle or sturdy tree branch. Hold the position for 20 seconds, then relax. Do it once more, then repeat with the other leg.

■ Stand up and put your right hand against a wall or other stable surface. Bend your left knee and grab your ankle with your left hand. Pull your heel toward your buttocks to stretch the quadriceps muscle at the front of your thigh. Hold that position for 20 seconds, relax and do it again. Repeat with the other leg.

■ Weave your fingers together above your head with your palms up. Lean to one side for 10 seconds to stretch the upper body, then reverse. Repeat two or three times.

■ "Hug your best friend": Wrap your arms around yourself and rotate to one side, as far as you can go. Hold it for 10 seconds. Then reverse. Repeat two or three times.

Flynn says there are many more stretching techniques that can enhance all your physical activities. Look for stretching guides in your local bookstore.

Finally, be aware of your body's form while working in the yard. Kneel instead of bending. Alternate your stance and motion as often as possible to balance the muscles used.

If you are already feeling the aches and pains of gardening, there are ways to alleviate the pain: apply a cold pack during the first 48 hours of symptoms or a heat pack after 48 hours; but if pain persists, consider visiting a chiropractor.

For more information about chiropractic care and a list of member doctors in your area, visit the ACA's Web site at www.amerchiro.org or call (800) 986-4636.

For healthy lawn, consider a quality garden hose

PRNewswire — An unwritten law of lawn and garden care is: Nothing looks good and stays healthy unless you keep it wet.

That's why homeowners should invest in quality garden hoses to maintain the condition and value of their properties.

When the color of grass dulls or footprints stay compressed for more than a few seconds, the lawn is beginning to dry out, according to Craftsman lawn and garden specialists.

Most lawns need about one inch of water per week, either from rain or sprinkling. This can be accomplished by watering twice a week in the early morning for about 45 minutes.

Thorough but less frequent watering forces grass roots to grow longer and healthier. It's best not to water in the evening, which might encourage the spread of fungus disease.

Craftsman lawn and garden specialists advise homeowners to consider these factors when selecting garden hose:

■ Size: The most popular hose size is 5/8 inch. A 1/2-inch size is used for smaller lawns and shrubs, and 3/4-inch hose is intended for large lawns and commercial applications. Standard hose lengths are 25-, 50-, 75- and 100-foot long.

■ Most lawns need about one inch of water per week, either from rain or sprinkling.

■ Material: Garden hose is made of rubber, vinyl or a combination of both. Most hose has either three or four plies, or layers, consisting of a rubber or vinyl tube, wrapped with nylon reinforcement cord and an outer cover. The amount of reinforcement determines the kink-resistance, overall life and rating of the hose. Hose is rated by burst strength or psi (pounds-per-square-inch) tolerance.

■ Weight: Vinyl hose is lighter weight than rubber hose. However, rubber hose generally is more durable, pliable and coils more easily in cold temperatures than vinyl hose.

GARDENING

Here's a roundup of important information

BY MARTY FIGLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

In this column I'll share some information that I feel is important.

If you've always wanted to become a master gardener, Michigan State University Oakland County Extension is currently taking registrations for the fall training program.

Daytime classes will take place 12:30-5 p.m. Wednesdays, Aug. 30 through Nov. 22, 2000. Classes are offered on a first-come, first-served basis. Call (248) 858-0887 to request an application.

The 40 hours of instruction will include Plant Science, Soils for Plant Growth, Herbaceous Ornamental Plant Culture, Lawn Establishment - Care and Maintenance, Vegetable Culture, Household Pests, Small Fruit Culture, Tree Fruit Culture, Woody Ornamental Plant Culture, Integrated Pest Management, and Indoor Plant Culture.

After the classes are complete, each trainee must give 40 hours of volunteer time to become a certified master gardener.

Winter master gardener training evening classes will take place Jan. 2 to April 3, 2001, or Jan. 4 to Sept. 1, 2001. Call the above number to request an application.

If you live in another county, call (313) 833-3412 (Wayne), (810) 469-5180 (Macomb), (517) 546-3956 (Livingston), or (734) 971-0079 (Washtenaw) for information.

Recall

The Scotts Company is recalling two Pull'N Spray containers. There is a possibility that the pump mechanism common to both containers could spray the user with contents, or (rarely) the pump cylinder may pop out of the container and strike the user.

The items are the Roundup Ready-To-Use Weed & Grass Killer and the Ortho Ready-To-Use Home Defense Indoor & Outdoor Insect Killer. Only the Pull'N Spray containers are being recalled.

Return the container with any remaining contents to the retailer from which the purchase was made, or call the Scotts consumer help line, (800) 225-2883. The Roundup PC code numbers are either 70183-58064 or 70183-58065; the Home Defense PC code is 71549-01991.

All other packages of Roundup Weed & Grass Killer and Ortho Home Defense Insect Killer aren't being recalled. Scotts and Monsanto regret any inconvenience to consumers.

Oak wilt

MSU Extension warns that oak wilt can be lethal to oak trees. Common symptoms include wilting leaves, leaves developing brown tissues and sprouts developing from the base of the tree and its larger branches. Sometimes infected trees will bud in the spring with stunted leaves or not leaf-out at all.

Manifestations start at the top of the tree and work their way down. Most infected trees will show signs by this month.

Once it is detected or suspected, the following steps are recommended:

1. Don't prune during the warm season. Instead, wait until the tree is dormant (November to February). If storm damage occurs during the warm season, clean-prune the branch 1 to 2 feet below any visible damage within days of the injury and seal with a pruning paint.

2. Infected red oaks should be removed promptly. Wood may be used for firewood as long as it is debarked or covered and sealed during the spring/summer months. White oaks often recover from oak wilt and needn't be removed. However, dead branches should be pruned before March.

3. If there is a possibility of root grafts, trenching at least 3 to 4 feet deep is recommended midway between the diseased and healthy trees.

4. Micro and macro injections of fungicides are a protective measure against infection. Injection may be expensive and often isn't a guarantee of tree survival. Injections shouldn't be attempted on oak wilt-infected red oaks.

Research has shown that once red oaks become infected with the oak wilt fungus there is little that can be done to save the infected trees. Efforts should be aimed at saving healthy trees.

GOODGARDEN TIPS

■ By participating in the many tours offered this summer, you may find new ideas for your own gardens. Take a day to enjoy the beauty.

■ July 4 is the cutoff date to pinch back chrysanthemums, so do it now! Also, keep pinching asters so they will grow into bushy plants. If you've grown asters for more than two years and they seem to be declining, divide them.

■ Gardener's Supply Company is offering a free, four-page bulletin, Making Bamboo Fences and Trellises. Call (800) 955-3370 or visit www.gardeners.com

■ Start seeds of cabbage, broccoli and Brussels sprouts to transplant for a fall harvest. To help prevent fusarium wilt, root rot, damping-off and other fungus diseases, mix SoilGard, an organic product from the Gardens Alive! catalog, with the potting soil. For a free catalog or the product, call (812) 537-8650.

■ July is an excellent time to apply an insecticide for white grub control. The eggs are hatching now and the product needs to be in the soil as this occurs.

Time to renovate your tub and wall?

INSTALLED AND READY TO USE IN ONE DAY

BATH FITTER® Tub Liners are an affordable alternative to the high cost of bathroom remodeling.

Q. Why install a tub liner instead of removing my old tub?

A. Removing a bathtub is a difficult, disruptive, messy job. The process can damage the wall, flooring and plumbing and can put your bathroom out of use for days. A custom-molded acrylic Bath Fitter® tub liner is installed right over an old tub in a matter of hours and it can be used the same day.

Q. Why shouldn't I just have my tub refinished?

A. Refinishing may look fine for awhile, but such finishes tend to chip and craze within a year or two. You may want to ask someone who has used refinishing what they thought about the results.

Q. How long will a Bath Fitter® tub last?

A. Acrylic has a life expectancy of 25-30 years. It is the same material used by leading manufacturers for their high-end whirlpool baths and spas.

Q. Will a liner make my tub smaller?

A. Putting a Bath Fitter® liner into place is like fitting one paper cup into another.

Q. How will you make a liner that fits my tub?

A. Bath Fitter® has an inventory of hundreds of molds so we can make a liner that is an exact copy of your tub. We'll simply take some measurements, then order the proper liner for your tub.

Q. Is the wall installed right over the tiles?

A. Yes! Our unique, one-piece, seamless wall is installed right over existing tiles...there's no need to remove them. If necessary, we will repair any bad spots in your wall first to ensure a solid and secure base for the new wall. We don't just cover up problems!

The Perfect Solution!

Q. I like the look of tile, but I hate cleaning grout. Do I have an option?

A. Bath Fitter® can install a beautiful tile-patterned wall that looks exactly like ceramic tile...except that there is no more grout to clean and no more grout to dry out, crumble and allow water to penetrate. Your wall will be sealed dry to stay dry.

Q. Is acrylic easy to clean?

A. There is nothing easier to clean! Acrylic features a highly polished, non-porous surface. Soil rinses right off! Bath Fitter® customers love their new, easy-to-care-for acrylic units. You will, too!

SUMMER SINGS

Choral members gather to do great works

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER
lchomin@oe.homecomm.net

Ann Burke is ready for a song. It's been almost two months since the Livonia vocalist and the University Musical Society Choral Union performed composer John Adams' Harmonium with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Burke loves to sing but during the long, hot summer, most vocal groups, including the choral union, take a well-deserved break. From September to May, Burke rehearses with the 150-member choir every Monday night after leaving her job as a laboratory technologist at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. Come July she's willing to travel to wherever there's a group united in song.

Popular attraction

Seven years ago the choral union recognized there were hundreds of singers in the area just like Burke so they decided to invite them to informal choral reading sessions of major works. A popular attraction ever since, the Summer Sings continue July 10, 17 and 24 with programs featuring Mozart's Solemn Vespers conducted by Arie Lipsky, the new music director of the Ann Arbor Symphony; Beethoven's Mass in C, led by Charles Smith, music professor and choral activities director at Michigan State University, and Berlioz's Requiem with choral union conductor Thomas Sheets.

"It's a fun thing to do," said Burke, who joined the choral group in 1968 and then took a break for several years to raise her family. "I hope singers are able to come. It's for people who love to sing and a chance for people to do great works."

Burke said she is especially looking forward to singing Berlioz's Requiem. She sang it for the first time several years ago with the choral union. The reading is the first run-through of the monumental work the choral union will perform with the Lansing Symphony Orchestra April 22 at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor.

"I've done a lot of works over the years," said Burke, "But there's some that stand out, ones that I'd drive a couple hundred miles to perform."

Surround sound

Sheets promises the April 22 Requiem will be a production to be remembered. In addition to the 150-member choral union, there will be an orchestra on stage as well as in the second balcony. Four brass bands will trumpet their parts from the wings.

"We have a track record of doing works we'll perform next season," said Sheets, a music instructor and director of the chorus at Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills. "We try to attract singers to sing it next season. It gives people a chance to get connected to the group early, take a look at the UMS season brochure and also buy tickets for the new season."

The summer sessions also give singers the opportunity to work with conductors such as Neeme Jarvi of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Leonard Ricinto, conductor of the Plymouth Oratorio Society.

"The Summer Sings are open to any singer as young as age 12 - and the oldest didn't want to tell us their age," said Sheets. "The reading sessions give people a chance to sing without the pressure of auditioning and performing. For most singers, singing in a chorus is a way of life. Usually when the season ends in May, they start twitching, and by July they're hungry to sing."

Becoming a member of the choral union requires dedication from its members, who must devote a fair amount of time to fulfilling its commitments. During its regular season, the choral union performs as part of the University Musical Society series in Ann Arbor as well as partners with symphony orchestras in the area. Summers, the group joins with the Detroit Lutheran Singers, Detroit Concert Choir, DeHaven Chorale and Brazeal Dinnard Chorale as the Meadow Brook Festival Singers. On July 16, they'll sing the music of Cole Porter at the Meadow Brook Music Festival in Rochester. Additional engagements for the choral union, appointed resident large chorus of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra six years ago, include appearances at Orchestra Hall. Originally formed in 1879 to sing Handel's Messiah, the choral union continues this tradition every December.

"In a way the Summer Sings are a reunion," said Burke. "People come back who've been in the choral union but have become too busy to continue to be a member. The commitment is significant. And everybody's busy these days."

For Judith and Bill Premin, husband-and-wife vocalists from Bloomfield Hills, the choral union is a way of life. Judith has been involved with choral music for 35 years. In addition to being a member of the choral union, she conducts the Birmingham Musicales Choral Ensemble and also teaches voice in the area.

"The sings promote and showcase the choral union and entice new members," said Judith Premin, who formerly conducted the choirs at John Glenn High School in Westland. "When we did Bach's St. Matthew Passion in April, I hadn't sung it since I was in college but it was new all over again. It's terrifically challenging, such a monumental work and to do it not just because it's fun but because it's part of our fiber."

Auditions for the 2000-2001 University Musical Society Choral Union season will be 6-10 p.m. Tuesday-Wednesday, Aug. 29-30. Call (734) 763-8997 for more information or to schedule an audition.

Layabouts celebrate diversity at 'The Concert of Colors'

BY KRISTA HOPSON
STAFF WRITER

In the early 1980s, a musical group emerged from Detroit's bohemian community and challenged listeners with its political lyrics and alternative sound.

Nearly 15 years later, the Layabouts have revived their punk rock band with a new keyboardist, percussionist and vocalist to perform at "The Concert of Colors," metro Detroit's diversity festival, 2-10 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, July 8-9, at Chene Park in Detroit.

The Layabouts, an eight-member band, will be a part of more than 40 international, national and local acts performing at the festival. It is a free event presented by ACCESS (Arab American Community Center for Economic Social Services) and New Detroit.

Concert of Colors' founder Ismael Ahmed, executive director of ACCESS and the chairman of New Detroit's Cultural Exchange Network, began the festival eight years ago to celebrate diversity and bring about cultural understanding.

The Layabouts have been attempting to do the same. Original Layabout member and bass player Ralph Franklin said the band sings about social problems and has a very particular sound.

"(Layabouts) a mixture of reggae and ska and jive and rock and roll," Franklin said.

The group's sound and songs are a result of the member's varied musical backgrounds from Central America, England and Detroit.

"Detroit is truly one of the most multi-cultural cities," Franklin said. "It's good to see so many bands come together (for the festival)."

To accommodate the large variety of musical acts this year, the festival has been extended to an entire weekend and will include four stages with continuous entertainment, said Barbara Logan, an ACCESS event coordinator.

Two main stages will have 20 musical performances from acts such as rock 'n' roll legend Bo Diddley, Dr. John, Amanponod, a 12-member African drum and dance group from South Africa, Equation, a group from Eng-

Avid classical music fans and newcomers alike can look forward to a special evening Friday as both an accomplished conductor and an extraordinary violinist debut with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Asher Fisch, music director of the highly-touted Vienna People's Opera and artistic director of the New Israeli Opera, will open the DSO's outdoor summer concert series at Meadow Brook Music Festival with Aaron Copland's Outdoor Overture, the William Tell Overture and operatic overtures from Mozart and Wagner. A summer tradition in Oakland County for more than 35 years, the DSO will perform 14 different programs in 15 concerts every weekend leading into August.

Also on opening night, Yura Lee, a 15-year-old violinist from Korea, will make her debut with the DSO. Lee, named "Debut Artist of the Year" by National Public Radio's Performance Today, began her music studies at the age of 4. Astonishingly just two years later she made her debut with Korea's leading Orchestra, the KBS Symphony, where she performed Burch's Violin Concerto No. 1. Today she lives in the U.S. to continue her studies.

The debuts and surprises don't end there. The entire DSO Meadow Brook series features some significant names in the classical music world.

"Summer is a great time for (the DSO) to make some new friends with new performers who are tested and true - like Yura Lee," Charles Calmer, DSO artistic administrator said. "The Meadow Brook series is our way of celebrating summer in Michigan - with picnic dinners on the lawns, the added bonus of fireworks on Friday nights, core classics on Saturdays and, of course, the fun hits on Sundays."

What: DSO concerts — Family Fun Fridays, Sensational Saturday Classics and Sunday Summer Pops, beginning Friday, July 7.

When: 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays & 7:30 p.m. Sundays in July and August

Where: Meadow Brook Music Festival

Tickets available in packages: $60 for five-concert packages with lawn seats or $210 in the premier pavilion. Student discounts available. Individual concert tickets also available. VIP front row table packages for four begin at $1,440. For individual concert ticket purchases call 313-576-5111. Subscription packages call 313-576-5120. VIP sales call 313-576-5130.

Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays will feature different styles of classical music.

"Family Fun Fridays" concerts will offer lighter classical music geared toward families or those new to classical music.

"Fridays are specifically an introduction to symphonic music — they are much shorter pieces and easier for a newer fan of classical music enjoy. It's geared toward families and even children."

An expected hit with both adults and children will be the Tchaikovsky Spectacular! — the only concert in the series that will be repeated — Aug. 4 and 5. The 1812 Overture will end with cannons and fireworks.

Calmer also expects the July 14 performance of Ravel's Bolero to be a favorite for children because of its percussion performance.

"Most people haven't been exposed to percussion solos," he said. "Children especially love drums. The whole audience will really enjoy one particular piece with an awesome climax in a cage of percussions — as the conductor adds one percussion at a time to build tension."

Sensational Saturday Classics

On Saturdays, listeners can enjoy romantic evenings with "Sensational Saturday Classics." The DSO will present some of history's greatest classical masterpieces featuring prominent soloists from throughout the world. The first Saturday concert, July 8, features Ludwig van Beethoven's musical description of nature in his Pastoral symphony conducted by Fisch. It will include pianist Jon Kimura Parker who will perform Rachmaninoff's passionate Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini. Parker has pleased audiences worldwide with literally hundreds of engagements.

On Saturday, July 15 conductor Roberto Miniczuk and guest violinist James Ehnes join the DSO for a concert theme of Romeo and Juliet.

The program includes Beethoven's overture to Creatures of Prometheus, Brahms Concerto in D followed by Prokofiev's compelling Romeo.

Under the supervision of Maestro Neeme Järvi, on July 29, the DSO will perform Beethoven's Ninth. It will feature the DSO's special "Mahler Edition" of this symphony. The Ode to Joy chorus will be sung by the University Musical Society Choral Union from the University of Michigan. The concert will feature pianist Max Levinson as the soloist in Franz Liszt's Piano Concert No. 1. He was the first American pianist to earn the Dublin International Piano Competition.

Sunday Summer Pops

To complete each weekend, Sunday Summer Pops features familiar Broadway, television, dance and classical music. The first Sunday show, July 9, features Motown label's The 5th

The Concerts

All Friday and Saturday shows begin at 8 p.m.; Sunday shows at 7:30 p.m. The DSO concerts are presented by Hudson's.

Dimension. The Dimension has played with orchestras nationwide and will perform "Aquarius/Let the Sun Shine and Up, Up and Away. The show will begin with a fun tribute to Diana Ross, Calmer said.

On July 16, guest conductor and trumpeter Jeff Tyzik will lead the DSO in the melodies of Cole Porter in the Anything Goes! Concert.

A Night in Vienna on July 30 highlights the melodies of Vienna with Järvi leading the DSO through waltzes and polkas. Soprano Karen Clift will perform.

Broadway diva Audra McDonald will perform in the DSO's final season show on Sunday August 6. She is winner of three Tony Awards for her roles in Ragtime, Carousel and Master Class. Her Carnegie Hall debut last year where she sang selections from Porgy and Bess with the San Francisco Orchestra was televised nationally. In 1998, her LP Way Back to Paradise was named record of the year by The New York Times.

McDonald is performing only an exclusive handful of dates this year including Washington D.C., Philadelphia and Chicago.

"We are extremely lucky to have her," Calmer said. "She is a huge, huge Broadway star with an incredibly trained voice. She really becomes the songs she's performing and the audience can feel that."

Meadow Brook Music Festival is located on the Oakland University Campus in Rochester Hills, thirty miles north of Detroit. Doors open 90-minutes prior to showtimes for picnics and early lawn seating. The series is presented through Hudson's "Project Imagine," a program to support arts and cultural institutions communitywide.

land, Bin Namara, an American Irish youth folk group and Kenny Burrell and Jihad Racy, who blend jazz with Arab melodies. "Some of the world's most renowned performers from nearly every continent will be there," Logan said. "It will be an amazing adventure." The adventure will continue on the world rhythm stage. People will have the opportunity to participate in the music by either using their own instruments or the ones provided by the festival.

The fourth stage will be designated for children's activities such as folk dancing, songs, face painting and arts and crafts. Children will have the chance to make their own totem poles and African musical instruments.

"It gives different communities in the city a chance to participate in something positive," Logan said.

The cable TV network Animal Planet is also scheduled to be at the festival. Animal Planet, along with the American Humane Association, is bringing in an animal rescue bus to teach children about world-wide animal rescue.

Shaw Festival

Plays give audiences something to laugh and think about

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

hgallagher@oe.homecomm.net

The Shaw Festival in Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario, gives theatergoers an opportunity to compare two comic writers with different personalities.

George Bernard Shaw complained that Oscar Wilde's comedies lacked serious purpose, reflected in the careless way Wilde led his life. Shaw said audiences could laugh at Wilde's witticisms but leave the theater with nothing to reflect upon.

Modern audiences would disagree. Wilde's quick wit keeps an audience laughing and thinking.

The Doctor's Dilemma

Shaw is the heart of the Shaw Festival and every year one of his plays gets the grand treatment at the large Festival Theater. Quite often the arguments Shaw presents have become outdated and the presentation tedious, which is deadly in a play that announces itself as a comedy.

"The Doctor's Dilemma" is one of these idea plays that still has some relevance and bite, even as the situation is dubious. The target is the medical profession and the choice a group of doctors make concerning who should receive experimental medical care for TB. In these days of insurance companies and organ donor programs making similar judgments, the topic is still relevant.

Director Christopher Newton plays out the story in a highly stylized, abstract set by Sue LePage. He also includes dancing "Day of the Dead" figures between the acts, an affectation that adds nothing but confusion and a brief titter.

Dr. Colenso Ridgeon (Blair Williams) has developed a treatment for TB for which he has been knighted. His colleagues either embrace, seriously misunderstand or dismiss his procedure, but all hail his society success. A young woman comes to plead with the doctor to help her husband, a famous, brilliant and controversial artist.

The doctor must choose between this arrogant, amoral young man and a kindly but inept doctor friend for the treatment.

As always, arguments go on too long and what might have been funny 90 years ago has lost its sting. But the theme is powerful and the acting excellent.

Mike Shara is especially compelling as the quick-witted, snarky young artist. He's a painter, but imagine instead that he's Mick Jagger and you get a better idea. He gets the best lines, punching holes in hypocrisy and pomposity, while revealing his own.

Seyern Thompson is glowing as the blinded-by-love wife.

Jim Mezon, who loves to ham it up, gets a great opportunity here as the dim-witted BB, your worst nightmare of a doctor. Lorne Kennedy is amusing as the surgeon who has a one-cut fits all policy, Cutler Walpole.

A Woman of No Importance

On the surface Shaw's dismissal of Oscar Wilde might seem true. Wilde made a big deal of his love for the trivial and his dislike for taking anything too seriously. He loved the epigram and was its master.

But this play is serious with a complex view on conventional morality and too-easy amorality.

The tiny confines of the Court Theater wring out the emotional conflict in a claustrophobic environment. Director Susan Ferley makes good use of these tight quarters to draw us into what is a family dispute, despite the funny lines. She might also have served us with some judicious cutting of the text to focus more on the essential conflict as the work plays a bit too long.

The setting, as always, is upper class society. Lord Illingworth, a spokesman for amorality, has invited a young man to be his clerk. When the young man tells his mother, she reacts with horror. The mother is in Illingworth's phrase "a woman of no importance," with whom he once had a sexual relationship that he refused to change to marriage.

This is the central conflict. At the heart is that the mother is the victim both of Illingworth's callousness and the brittle, hypocritical morality of Victorian England.

Mary Haney gives a strong, emotional reading to the mother, balanced against Jim Mezon's haughty arrogance as Illingworth. Voicing the carelessness of high society is the unfaithful Mrs. Allonby, played with seductive charm by Brigitte Robinson.

This is Wilde in a thoughtful mood, taking on society's most damaging assumptions.

'The Patriot' marches on as a compelling film

BY VICTORIA DIAZ
SPECIAL WRITER

Set against a backdrop of the American Revolution, The Patriot is one Yankee Doodle Dandy of a film.

Directed by Roland Emmerich (Independence Day), it stars Mel Gibson as Benjamin Martin, a South Carolina planter and widowed father of seven children. As the specter of war darkens the land in 1776, Martin — a burnt-out "hero" of the French and Indian War — wants nothing to do with bloody battles. He's packed his old military paraphernalia away in a trunk, and intends to keep it there.

But as he tries manfully to avoid trouble, trouble comes knocking at his door. His own home ends up in the midst of a major battle and, when he takes in injured soldiers from both sides, the King's troops ride in to let him know they are exceedingly displeased at his "traitorous" act. To prove it, they shoot the injured Colonialist troops, burn Martin's home, kill one of his sons and drag another away to hang. Issuing the direct orders for the murderous deeds is the odious Col. William Tavington, played with delicious aplomb by Jason Isaacs.

Now motivated to avenge his home and family — and thus, join the patriots' cause — Martin enlists the help of his two younger sons in an ambush of 20 British soldiers. As the ambush reaches its gory conclusion, we see (and so do his young sons) that Martin does indeed possess a darker, violent side. This is not a cardboard superhero but a complex character with some real frailties running deep, and Gibson plays the role with absolutely exquisite subtlety and nuance. This is a hero who sweats and, as we watch, we sweat, too, as we identify with his conflicts.

Although Gibson's sterling performance is at the center of The Patriot, it is by no means the only quality that marks this film. The young Australian, Heath Ledger turns in a performance that is not just winning but memorable as Martin's idealistic son, Gabriel, a romantic youth who is perhaps more truly the patriot than is his disenchanted father. Parisian actor Tchéky Karyo plays Major Jean Villeneuve with a delightful soupçon of humor and much élan.

Many facets of the film add to its scope: sweeping scenery (most of The Patriot was filmed on the spot in South Carolina); imaginative lighting that gives some scenes a kind of ghostly feel and others a kind of preserved-in-amber look; John Williams' background score that always strikes the right note, plus Robert Rodat's (Saving Private Ryan) crisp script.

Wrenching, blood-splattered battlefield scenes are integral to this up-close-and-personal story about war and conflict. As the "six-pounders" explode all around and the men in red, blue and ragtag march doggedly toward each other, powerful sound effects remind us that a compelling movie is always more than its visual images.

I realize there is a brouhaha right now about the negative way the British are depicted in this movie. This probably would be an even better film had their characters been more fully dimensional. The Patriot is not a perfect movie, but try to see it anyway. Though I am not a history scholar and can't say just how accurately this reflects history, I do think I can recognize a compelling movie when I see one — and The Patriot is that movie.

ANDREW COOPER

Adventure: In the emotionally-charged "Patriot," Mel Gibson (center) stars as Benjamin Martin, a reluctant hero who must draw on his courage and patriotic fervor when he is swept into the American Revolution.

'Chicken Run' is poultry in motion

BY ALICE RHEIN
STAFF WRITER

Ginger wants out. "There's a better place, a place with no fences," she tells her friends.

And day after day, Ginger (Julia Sawalha, whose voice Absolutely Fabulous fans will recognize as that of Saffron) leads them in vain attempts to escape. They try to dig under the fence, they try to catapult over it, they try clever disguises.

To any fan of The Great Escape or Stalag 17 the plot sounds strangely familiar.

Now, replace the prisoners of war with clay animation chickens (with Ginger in the role of Steve McQueen) and you have Chicken Run.

Well, not exactly. While Ginger longs to escape the confines of the chicken coup and bury her tail feathers in the green grass, her feathered friends think spending the day laying eggs is a fine life.

That is, until Mrs. Tweedy (Miranda Richardson at her sinister best), the farmer's wife, shows them their "fowl" fate if they don't make their quota.

Instead of running around like, well, like chickens with their heads cut off, this feisty brood and the sole male, Fowler, get organized. They enlist the help of a couple of rats (Timothy Spall and Phil Daniels) who work for chicken feed, but they still can't escape.

Enter Rocky Rhodes, an irresistible Yankee rooster (it is, after all, Mel Gibson) who, momentarily airborne, lands in their coup. After saving the handsome free ranger from the Tweedys and his own keepers, Ginger begs Rocky to teach the gals how to fly.

The chicks need to get their wings flapping, too, because Mrs. Tweedy has plans to turn the whole flock into chicken pot pies with her automated pie machine.

Let's just forget for a moment that for each second of action, 24 separate poses per character have to be shot, depending on the scene.

Each spoken vowel, each raised eyebrow, each ruffled feather — every tiny increment of movement has to be molded and shaped by hand. Even with 40 clay animators on staff, that's no easy feat.

On days when 28 sets were in full operation, the goal was to accomplish 10 seconds of completed film.

Insanely tedious? Yes. Worth it? Most definitely.

In this day and age of computer animation, where changes can be made at the click of a mouse, directors Nick Park and Peter Lord (the British team of Wallace & Gromit fame) choose to fly without a net and base their work in — gasp — reality.

The sets are real, the clothes are real, even the affable Babs' (Jane Horrocks) knitting is real thanks to two cocktail toothpicks and a very steady pair of hands.

Live action in miniature" is how Aardman films refers to its particular style of stop motion filmmaking. The process is absolutely painstaking, but the result is great fun.

And while it is billed as a comedy adventure, there's also a much darker level which alludes to concentration camps and mass extinction. Adults will pick up on that along with at least a dozen references to other adventure movies, but kids will simply enjoy the fast action and silly puns.

If Chicken Run isn't plucked as this summer's family hit, then there's something definitely rotten in the hen house.

STREET SCENE

'Stray Cat' proves he's still strutting

Twenty years have passed since the Stray Cats left New York for London and changed the face of pop music. But the signature rockabilly beat is still kicking, long after the trio's demise.

Last weekend former Stray Cat's vocalist Brian Setzer bounded into Pine Knob Music Theatre with his 16-piece orchestra and back-up singers, still hailing to the rockabilly alter. But the Stray Cat invasion isn't over yet. Lee Rocker, former Stray Cat bassist, swings into town tonight. He isn't planning a big production — just Rocker, Brophy Dale and the band with a stripped-down, solid style of raw rockabilly. Though the Stray Cats have gone their separate ways, those cats keep reminding the world that rock and roll is here to stay.

Rocker's latest work can be heard on two upcoming compilations: performing the title track to a Tom Waits tribute record A New Coat of Paint, and a recording of Hootenanny Live, along with the Reverend Horton Heat and Mike Ness. Here's what he had to say when he called the Observer & Eccentric Newspaper offices Wednesday, June 28 from his Southern California home:

O&E: What first drew you to rockabilly music?

Lee Rocker: "Well there wasn't really any rockabilly on the radio, besides 1959 and 1963. Really it came down to it sort of stuck out. I hated what was going on in music in the 80s, the late 1970s. I came across Buddy Guy and Willie Dixon, Carl Perkins. It just hit me. I was talking to Brian and Jim. It's been 20 years since we first moved (to London) — 1980 was when our first record came out."

O&E: So you still keep in touch?

LR: "Sometimes we talk more than others. We grew up together. We worked together."

O&E: When you set out as a solo artist, what were your intentions?

LR: "I really sang a bit more on the first few (Stray Cats) records. It got frustrating. More than that we all thought it was time to do something different, just as a player. I think it was a good thing. After the Cats I did two records with Big Blue (a more blues-based project with guitarist Scotty Moore). .. I got that out of my system and got back to really where I came from."

Lee Rocker

O&E: Last year you released Lee Rocker Live. What made you decide to do a live album?

LR: "I like live records as a rule. Live records capture the energy and power of a show, but normally they don't sound that good. I really worked on this record. I wanted also to get a chance to record some of those classics, Perkins' Restless. I thought that was a great chance."

O&E: What are you currently working on?

LR: "Working on the new record. Hopefully it will be out early 2001. As I write, I go into the studio. Over the last six months, I'm half way through. It's a little more about the song and a little less about the jamming. I think there's a thread that always keeps it in the rockabilly vibe."

O&E: How has your success and history with the Stray Cats affected your career thus far?

LR: "That's the biggest part of what I am. That was Rock and Roll High School, ya know."

O&E: What can fans expect to see at the upcoming Magic Stick show?

LR: "I've got an amazing band with me, two great guitar players (Brophy Dale and Adrian DeMain) and a great drummer (Jimmy Sage). It's a sweaty hard rock and roll, rockabilly show."

O&E: What is the state of rockabilly music?

LR: "A lot of bands are getting into it, bands like the Reverend Horton Heat. You have people doing their own thing with it. I think some people say it's not really rockabilly. But if Scotty Moore (Elvis Presley's guitarist) and Carl (Blue Suede Shoes) Perkins think it is..."

"I'd like to see it get bigger, like swing did. It's alive and well and living in the underground — which isn't a bad place to be."

Lee Rocker returns to "Rock This Town," 9 p.m. Thursday, July 6, Magic Stick, Detroit. $12. Call (248) 645-6666.

If you asked him, singer-songwriter Cole Guerra would insist that I tricked him.

I first met the Southfield native when he and his guitar warmed up an intimate crowd at Pontiac's 7th House one wintry day this year. He opened for the Boston-based trio, The Push Stars. Sauntering into the club, I watched Guerra stand confidently on stage pouring his heart out through his poignant lyrics and speaking out as if he were entertaining a group of close friends.

At the end of the night we spoke briefly. In keeping my inquisitive nature, I had to ask a few questions: "Where are you from?" "How long have you been performing?" I never bothered to mention I happen to be a popular music writer. That bit of information seeped out when he overheard someone compliment me on a piece I'd written about The Push Stars months earlier.

I didn't mean to trick anyone, really. I'm just naturally curious.

Guerra's own curiosity and interest in music began upon hearing his mother's early Beatles albums. It was that infectious pop sound that caught his ear and would eventually lead to a musical career.

But at 5, there was perhaps nothing Guerra dreaded more than being shuffled off to piano lessons. While he wasn't so committed, it did spark something in him when he first picked up the guitar at about age 17. That spark eventually gave Guerra the courage to dedicate himself to the craft.

Now living in Chapel Hill, N.C., Guerra will return home for a short stay to promote his solo debut All This and More, released independently Feb. 1. This time he's bringing along more than just a guitar. Guerra will hook up with three Ann Arbor-based musicians for a headlining gig Saturday, July 15, at the 7th House in Pontiac.

With a little help from friends Anna Gleichauf (keyboards and vocals), Matt Salter (drums) and Eric Day (bass), he'll perform songs from his album and a few new tunes he's been working on. "I wanted, the next time out, to sound more like I sound (on CD)," he said.

"Because I'm not on a label, I do everything totally on my own," he said. He organizes and promotes his performances on his own. He'll be even busier this fall, when he plans to tour Midwest college towns.

For now, though, it's a chance to come home again and visit friends and relatives he's far away from while attending graduate school at Duke University in North Carolina. Student by day, musician by night, Guerra's also completing a degree in psychology.

His influences range from the likes of melodic pop sensations like Squeeze, XTC and Elvis Costello to edgier rock like Liz Phair. It wasn't until he heard fellow Chapel Hill residents Ben Folds Five that he would return to a piano and rediscover its charm.

All This and More marks many "firsts" for a guy who graduated from the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor and left to try his hand at theater in Chicago. It was his first real acquaintance with the intricacies of an electric guitar, his first step into a recording studio and his first chance to work with engineer Jerry Kee (Superchunk, Polvo). The album was recorded over a two-month period last summer in North Carolina.

Arranging and producing the music, Guerra had a hard time pinning down just what inspires him to write music. But he knows for sure that the music comes easier to him than writing the lyrics to match. "I actually hate writing lyrics," he said. "One of the reasons I didn't write songs (in the beginning) was I didn't have the patience and desire to write lyrics."

Whatever his reasoning, it doesn't show in his work. The words to songs like My Glass Mountain shine with a day-dreamy quality of making your own way in life, of not holding back. Believer, while not obvious, hinges on religious themes and in particular "the absence of God," as Guerra describes it. Lyrics don't appear to be much of a challenge at all.

"I don't tell stories," said Guerra. "There's a theme to it more than there is a plot." While he writes with experiences in mind, don't call it autobiographical. He's simply setting the mood.

Guerra's a long way from singing cover songs with his keyboard in eighth grade. Expect nothing less than sheer sincerity from this Michigan native — it's no trick, I swear.

Cole Guerra performs with guest Lori Amey, Saturday, July 15, 7th House, Pontiac. (248) 335-3540. Check him out solo 3 p.m. Saturday, July 15, Borders Books and Music, Birmingham, (248) 203-0005. Early-risers can listen between 9 and 11 a.m. Sunday, July 9 on "New Adventures in Hi-Fi" on The Planet, 96.3 FM.

DINING

BY ELEANOR HEALD
SPECIAL WRITER

Some people are born shoppers, like some of my friends. When I asked several of them if they had tried Zodiac for lunch, I got a blank stare.

Zodiac, on the third level of Neiman Marcus in Somerset South, I repeated. Still no recognition.

In their defense, until a year ago it bore the dull name Neiman Marcus Cafe.

"We changed the name to reflect fine dining," Chef and General Manager Dan Vernia explained. "It is our aim to offer the same attention to eating that Neiman Marcus gives to all that it sells. We attempt to cater to people who know food, have traveled internationally and have high expectations."

But with so many eateries in the Somerset complex, why would Neiman Marcus want to operate its own?

Service

"We consider it a service to our customers," Vernia said. "From Zodiac's kitchen, we also do all the in-store catering for fashion shows, cocktail receptions, charity luncheons and other charity fund-raisers."

With décor done in gray, white and blond woods, Zodiac is sleek.

White table cloths, fresh flowers on each table, and soft background music set a calming mood that says stop, relax here a while and enjoy the person or friends you are with.

Welcoming touches such as house-made chicken consommé in a demitasse cup, followed by

■ In addition to a catering menu, "NM to Go," a new feature coming soon to Zodiac, offers pre-packaged foods to go. Orders must be placed 48 hours in advance. So now, if you shop 'til you drop after lunch at Zodiac, you can have a gourmet dinner at home!

warm popovers and strawberry butter, are brought automatically to your table by a server in more formal attire than most lunch spots in our area.

Just another attention to detail!

Vernia is a local, born, raised, and now making his home in Rochester Hills.

He's done "let's-build-a-resume" stints in Phoenix, New Orleans and Montreal, but when asked about creative mentors, he cited Michigan's own Brian Polcyn, chef/proprietor of Five Lakes Grill in Milford. That says a lot!

Vernia knows what we in metro-Detroit like to eat. Two popular starters on Zodiac's menu are Southwestern Chicken Soup, topped with blue corn chips and jack cheese or Maryland Crab Cakes with a roasted pepper remoulade.

Get the feel of Provence in the Beef Tenderloin composed salad with artichokes, goat cheese, and baby spinach, tossed in a sundried tomato vinaigrette. Or there's Salmon Nicoise, another composed salad, with oven-roasted salmon, asparagus, kalamata olives and new potatoes in an artichoke vinaigrette.

Try a glass of crisp Reverdy Sancerre from the Loire with an order of Soft Shell Crabs, pan-sautéed with saffron risotto and braised fennel.

Zodiac's signature dish is Roasted Medallions of Seafood

Hidden treasure: Located on the third floor of Neiman Marcus, the Somerset Collection in Troy, Zodiac restaurant is ideal for lunch and a getaway from the wonders and woes of shopping.

with fresh vegetables, lobster agnolotti, and black beans in a lobster-tomato broth.

A Warm Quiche (filling changes daily) served with fresh fruit and choice of a cup of soup or petite salad is a lunch bargain at $10.

Popular sandwiches

The most popular sandwiches, served with fresh fruit, chips and a pickle, are: Wild Mushroom on grilled grain bread with roasted vegetables, champignon cheese, and red onion marmalade and Neiman Marcus Chicken Salad

Sandwich, served with bacon on your choice of bread.

Vernia's Brioche Bread Pudding with mango sauce brings this classic to new heights.

Zodiac's menu is so mouth-watering, you may wish you could eat there in the evening.

Sometimes you can. Vernia holds theme wine dinners, where a wine personality presents the wines. Get on the list to receive an invitation to the next one.

Vernia added that Zodiac is available evenings and on Sundays for private parties, such as baby and wedding showers and for business functions.

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

I recently read your column in the Eccentric Real Estate Show-case.

My husband and I recently signed a formal offer on a home that requires extensive renovation.

Our closing isn't set until a month from now. Is there any way to get out of the deal?

The renovation costs are going to be sky high, but I think we are in this for the long haul.

Depending upon the contingencies which you placed in the agreement, if any, you may have an opportunity to get out of the deal, so to speak, from a legal standpoint.

But this is serious stuff: You must have a lawyer review the contract to see whether any of the contingencies in the contract haven't been met.

If the seller failed to meet one or more of your contingencies, your lawyer will have a talking point when dealing with the seller -- and his lawyer.

Otherwise, it is a matter of your negotiating with the seller to work out a settlement, if at all possible, where you can walk away from the deal. Such a deal may involve, of course, compensating the real estate broker, as well as the seller, if there is a broker.

Robert M. Meisner is an Oakland County area attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate, corporate law and litigation. You are invited to submit topics that you would like to see discussed in this column, including questions about condominiums, by writing Robert M. Don't let higher rates stymie you

The two most important concepts for homebuyers concerned about the rising interest rates?

One, don't wait, and two, be creative about financing.

Lock in a mortgage as soon as possible. Don't put off buying a home because you think the Federal Reserve will bring rates down in the near future. Mr. (Alan) Greenspan is clear on what he's doing and why, and whether we agree with him or not, this move upward is not likely to be reversed soon.

In an atmosphere of rising rates, both buyers and sellers need "creative" approaches to financing. One tactic is the use of a land contract, where the seller handles financing. Usually a short-term solution, this allows the sale to go forward and gives the buyer time to prepare for a conventional mortgage.

John Townsend, president of MLA Mortgage Inc., suggests asking for "seller concessions," which can be up to 6 percent of the purchase price, and use the concession to at least temporarily buy down the interest rate.

"With a 2-1 buy down, where the interest rates are staggered over a two-year time period, for example, the buyer pays 7.5 percent the first year, 8.5 percent the second year, and 9.5 percent for the balance of the loan. There are up front costs and points associated with this, but if people are concerned about payment amounts, this will help them until interest rates go down and they can refinance or their income increases."

Other strategies:

■ FHA and low- or no-down-payment loans are popular right now, but be aware of the costs of private mortgage insurance. If you bought a home for $100,000, and took a mortgage of $97,000, you would have to pay an $84 a month more, in addition to mortgage, taxes and insurance payment.

■ The loan-to-value-of-the-home can be reduced by paying a little extra each month towards the principal. When the LTV ratio is down to 80 percent or less, the PMI can be dropped. This happens faster when property values are increasing at the same time.

■ Look into adjustable-rate mortgages for low introductory rates. When interest rates do move down, refinancing is always an option.

■ Today's interest rates are really not high but have been so unusually low in the last two years.

■ Interest rates in America are terrific. In Asia, interest rates are 25-30 percent.

Buyer or seller:

Hear and heed the advice of a pro

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER
dfunke@oe.homecomm.net

Want to make your Realtor happy?

If you're a seller, keep the home clean, uncluttered and ready to show. Listen to what your agent has to say about market analysis and pricing.

If you're a buyer, get pre-approved for a mortgage from a financial institution before you start your search. Listen to what your agent has to say about market analysis and making a timely offer.

Sounds simple, right? Most people listen, the professionals say. But some don't. And those folks have trouble.

Edna MacDonald, a Realtor with Century 21 Today in Livonia, recalled a recent situation where prospective buyers dallied a bit before making an offer on their dream home and came away empty.

"People waited two days. They knew it was the house they wanted. Two other offers came in. They lost. They just were procrastinating. They were very disappointed," MacDonald said.

Helen McAllister, a Realtor with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Farmington Hills, is familiar with the hesitant buyer syndrome, too.

"Sometimes, they want to see more and more. They don't understand they will lose something they really like," she said.

The moral of the story: When a house grabs you, grab back. Make the offer contingent on a satisfactory inspection report.

Mortgage pre-approval for buyers early in the process is almost mandatory nowadays, said Betty K. Clark, associate broker and office manager for Prudential Chamberlain Stiehl in

■ 'If you want a fast sale, it has to be in very good condition. Hire a cleaning lady for the month it takes to sell the house.'

Betty K. Clark
Prudential Chamberlain Stiehl

Walled Lake.

"It's smoother ... no surprises," Clark said. "I don't know of any agent who will allow their seller to accept an offer not pre-approved. They want to make sure the transaction will close -- and a happy close."

Sellers can lose out, too.

Kathleen Trupiano, a Realtor with Jack Christenson-Orion in Lake Orion, said some sellers fumble the ball when they put more faith in what relatives, friends and neighbors believe their house is worth than professionals.

"Dad always thinks they can get more money for the house than they actually can," Trupiano said.

There's another side to the problem of unrealistic expectations.

"In a listing appointment, the main thing the prospective seller wants to know is, 'What will my home sell for?'" McAllister said. "That's not something you can tell. It will sell for what people will pay. You can tell what houses in the area have sold for."

"They think theirs is better," McAllister added. "It might be, but it doesn't matter. That's what houses are selling for."

The moral of the story: Over-priced houses, for whatever the reason, languish on the market.

"The other thing is the condition of the house," Clark said.

"If you want a fast sale, it has to be in very good condition. Hire a cleaning lady for the month it takes to sell the house."

Why don't some folks listen to their Realtors and make things easier on themselves?

"Nine times out of 10, they don't want to listen to any advice about their home," MacDonald, said. "That's their castle."

"They're only going to filter in what they want to hear," Trupiano added.

Jackie Erlandson, an associate broker with Max Broock in West Bloomfield, says communicative clients are the best clients.

"Buyers, sellers and Realtors should all make clear to each other what their expectations are so everybody can help everybody," Erlandson said.

"Try to stay open and focused," she added. "Your Realtor is there to help you. That's the only purpose. The more information you give, the more they can help."

Other practices that make Realtors smile:

■ Open sesame. "It's ideal to have a lock box on the home for easy access. Then, the owner doesn't have to be there or the listing agent." -- Pat Allmand, Realtor, Real Estate One, Plymouth.

■ Be true to your agent. "Buyers, I guess, could show some loyalty if a Realtor is putting time, energy and devotion into helping the buyer. That would help a lot." -- Erlandson.

Utility sets summer tree-trimming

Detroit Edison line-clearance crews will be working in July and August to continue efforts to provide safe, reliable electric service.

In July and August, line-clearance crews will continue or begin work in the following communities:

Oakland County: Bloomfield Township, Sylvan Lake, Walled Lake, Waterford Township, West Bloomfield Township.

Wayne County: Canton Township, Garden City, Livonia, Redford Township.

Detroit Edison maintains a 10-foot clearance between tree branches and power lines. The utility trims an average of 800,000 trees each year to reduce the potential for power outages.

"About two-thirds of power outages are caused by lightning striking trees and strong winds that blow branches and entire trees into our power lines," said Ron May, Detroit Edison vice president, Energy Delivery and Service.

"Now that we're in the summer storm season, we'll soon see the importance of our line-clearance work."

Guide helps volunteers who manage associations

A surprising number of volunteers are managing their community associations in addition to serving on the boards of those associations. Most of these people are untrained in property management, but volunteer their time because their association is too small, their resources too limited, or because there just simply are not enough professional property managers for the ever-increasing number of community associations, said Jay Polachek of the Community Association Institute. Now there's help in one handy guide that provides an overview of what and who they need know and how to comply with the many laws and ordinances that affect them.

The Community Associations Press, a division of the institute, has published Self-Management: A Guide for the Small Community Association. In it, Ellen Hirsch de Haan, a well-known community association attorney, has pulled together some of the industry's leading experts in all areas of homeowner association management to contribute their expertise. "This is the only place I know of where a volunteer can find a basic overview of just about everything they need to know to run their association from day to day," said de Haan.

There are over 200,000 community associations in the United States, and each year 6,000 to 8,000 new ones are formed. This rate of growth is outpacing the property management industry. Self-management is the only option for many associations, especially the smaller or newly created associations. But the people who undertake the role are sometimes at risk.

Although competent, some may not realize the scope of the task nor have the expertise they need. "These volunteers have a tremendous responsibility - they not only set policy as board members, but they also have to implement it on a daily basis as managers," said Barbara Byrd Keenan, president of CAI. "In addition, most of them have regular careers they have to tend to while taking care of their communities. This is the perfect book for these busy people."

Self-Management: A Guide for the Small Community Association provides advice on how to work with certain professionals like accountants and attorneys. It covers financial issues including reserves, assessments, insurance, and budgeting. It provides information on practical, everyday needs like maintenance, conducting meetings, and communications.

Perhaps of particular interest to the volunteer are the chapters on complying with the law. Fair debt collection, fair housing, and FCC rules can be serious problems for the uninformed volunteer manager. These chapters provide information on the basics in each of these areas.

Self-Management: A Guide for the Small Community Association is available for $50 by calling (703) 548-8600, or by visiting CAI's Web site at www.caionline.org. Members of CAI receive a 40-percent discount.

Cost of moving

Homeowners spend 3 times as much as renters

A new survey finds that movers spend $9,400 on purchases during the three-month relocation period, while renters spend $3,700.

Conducted by a Web company and Boston-based Atlantic Marketing Research, the survey polled 22,000 relocating Americans and yielded an average response rate of 4.1 percent. Movecentral.com president and CEO Rick Libby presents the results as spending guidelines for relocating Americans to follow throughout the 90 day relocation process.

"Most people don't realize how much they'll spend during the course of a move," says Libby. "Our survey reveals how and where people spend their money, making it easier for them to plan a budget that anticipates surprises."

The survey found the following:

- During 1998 and 1999, 42 million Americans moved, spending $102 billion on move-related goods.
- Homeowners spent an average of $9,400 on purchases; renters spent $3,700.

- 15 percent of homeowners and 12 percent of renters stated that they bought a computer within the 8 weeks surrounding their move; homeowners spent an average of $2,160, and renters spent $1,340.

- 12 percent of all moving homeowners bought a car; 66 percent of these carbuyers made the purchase within four weeks after moving.
- 57 percent of owners and 37 percent of renters bought furniture within the 12 weeks surrounding their move; owners spent an average of $3,500 and renters spent $1,220.

- 35 percent of owners and 40 percent of renters bought bedding; of these individuals, 72 percent did so within three after their move. Owners spent an average of $420 and renters $240.

- 55 percent of moving homeowners purchase at least one appliance when they move, and 57 percent of homeowners buy furniture.

Just because something is old doesn't mean it isn't valuable.

I can relate to that. maybe that's why I'm never in a rush with these guys. Sanding out a dent here and there, restoring the gears... soon I'll have all the time in the world for them, just like they have for me. That's the beauty of retirement. And now that it's almost here,

I'm grateful that I started planning early — with U.S. Savings bonds. I started buying Savings Bonds when I got my first real job, through a Payroll Savings plan. I put aside something every payday. And little by little, it really added up. Bonds are guaranteed safe, too, and earn interest up to 30 years.

In a few more years, you'll find me out here in the workshop more and more, fixing a hinge or polishing a case. I know that there's a lot of life left in these old guys. I can relate to that.

Ask your employer or banker about saving with U.S. Savings Bonds. For all the right reasons.

Keep home in shape

- Don't let your heating and cooling money go out the window. Reseal those windows instead. Remove window putty, reinstall the windows and reseal with new putty.

- It can be a cool idea to add a grill to an existing heating duct. Cut the properly measured space into the existing duct, smooth any rough edges, install the grill and you can get more heat on cold days and more cool on hot days.

- Precipitation can wreak havoc on your gutters over time. Replace leaking gutter corners with new ones, attach with rivets and seal the joints to ensure that leaks are history.

To live the easy life, clean up your gas grill before cooking

(NU) - Don't forget that your gas grill needs regular maintenance. An annual inspection and cleaning of its main components will promote trouble-free and safe operation.

Using your owner's manual as a guide, here are some suggestions to keep your gas grill in top condition:

■ Clean the grill. Remove the hood, grates, racks and burners. Clean all inside surfaces with a commercial grill cleaner or strong solution of degreasing detergent and water. Clean outside surfaces with mild cleaner, rinse and allow to dry before using.

■ Replace briquettes. For efficient heat distribution, replace the ceramic briquettes each year. If your grill has old-style lava rocks, replace them with ceramic briquettes to help distribute heat more evenly and prevent flare-ups.

■ For efficient heat distribution, replace the ceramic briquettes each year.

■ Clean the burner. Clean the outside with a grill cleaner or strong detergent solution. Use a garden hose with a spray nozzle to send a thin stream of water into the burner. Water should come out of every hole in the burner; if it doesn't, open clogged holes with a thin wire. Wait until the burner is dry before reassemble. Replace the burner if there are large cracks or holes.

■ Check for leaks. Always work outdoors when checking for gas leaks, and keep burning or smoldering material away from the grill. Make a 50/50 mixture of dishwashing soap and water. Connect the grill's gas line to the tank. Turn the gas on at the tank, and off at the control valve. Wipe the soapy water on the tank valve, tank welds, regulator, line and grill control valves. Growing bubbles indicate a leak. Turn the gas off and retighten all connections. Test again. If bubbles reappear, take the grill in for repair. If the grill is leaking from a defective part, don't use the grill until the part has been replaced.

■ Check the ignition. Shut off the gas at the tank. Press the ignition button four to five times. Each time the button is pressed, look for a blue spark between the ignite and electrode and the burner. If no spark is visible, check for moisture around the electrode. Also make sure the igniter lead wire is connected.

■ Inspect the gas control. Even if the grill has a working ignition, light it with a long fireplace match. Turn the gas on at the tank. Light the match and hold it near the burner. Keep your body away from the grill and turn on the control valve. A flame should gradually appear at all holes. As you turn the knob from low to high, the flames should increase in size. When you turn the control valve off, the flame should quickly go out.

Today's gas grills range from simple units to sophisticated models designed to make outdoor cooking an extension of your kitchen. Performing a few simple maintenance steps each year will prolong its life.
