Districts take aim at vouchers

■ Plymouth-Canton school officials have a host of concerns on state Proposal 1, including less funding for public schools and creation of a two-tiered education system in Michigan.

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

The future of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools could hinge on the outcome of Proposal 1, commonly known as school vouchers.

The proposal, which would allow public taxpayer money in seven failing districts to follow students to private or parochial schools, could force the district to operate much differently, and with less money, than it has today.

"If the Constitution of the State of Michigan is changed, the wording (of the proposal) leaves so much undefined," said Superintendent Kathleen Booher. "The fact this district is not one of the seven named... does not reassure me that there is a system in place for defining which districts (are chosen)."

The Plymouth-Canton school board went on record last month opposing Proposal 1.

"I have a concern with using public funds for private entities," said Trustee Judy Mardigian. "It's not a level playing field because if vouchers pass, the private and parochial schools can choose which students they want to educate ... not picking students that need more resources, like talented and gifted students and students with special needs."

Van Buren school board unanimously opposed

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM

The Van Buren Board of Education last week unanimously passed a resolution stating its opposition to school vouchers.

The resolution was in response to a ballot initiative that would allow state funds to support students attending private or parochial schools for parents from qualified school districts. Voters will decide on the initiative, dubbed Proposal 1, at the polls Nov. 7.

Superintendent Larry Tabor said the Michigan Association of School Boards recommended the district draft and pass a resolution opposing school vouchers.

"The key issue is you can't use school taxpayer dollars to oppose the proposal," Tabor said.

Passing the resolution, however, is legal, he said.

Board member Martha Toth said if the ballot initiative passes, it could have a chilling effect.

Four-legged sentries help golf course, park cleanup

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
STAFF WRITER

Canton Township officials have successfully taken the goose out of "duck, duck, goose" – at least as it relates to Pheasant Run Golf Course and Heritage Park.

Last June, the township contracted with Gooseworks of South Lyon for the removal of the park's 40 resident geese.

At the same time, Gooseworks was instructed to preserve other wildlife, including the ducks and blue herons.

According to Kevin Mill, operations manager for Canton Township, geese are attracted to the golf course and surrounding park because of the open areas and availability of water. The birds, protected by their endangered status, may be aesthetically pleasing to some, but they are a nuisance for others.

"One bird can produce one pound of excrement per day," said Mill. "We constantly had staff out there cleaning off the fairways."

Goose droppings are not just an irritant, they are a health hazard because of the high nitrates. With all the events the township sponsors at Heritage Park and the golf course, officials wanted the area to be sanitary for the patrons. They also feared that a goose would eventually attack someone.

For years, township officials tried to get rid of the geese by spreading grape extract

Meningitis scare closes day care center

Wee Care For Kids day care, 44390 Palmer, was closed Monday and reopened Wednesday morning because one of the infant children had contracted viral meningitis.

Director Shannon Peitz said they voluntarily closed the center Monday afternoon and reopened Wednesday morning. They spent Tuesday cleaning and disinfecting toys, walls, carpets and floors.

"We weren't forced to close," Peitz said. The day care has a capacity of 68 children ages six weeks to 5 years.

Meningitis is an illness causing inflammation of the tissues covering the brain and spinal cord. Viral or aseptic meningitis, the most common type, is caused by an infection with one of several types of viruses.

Symptoms include high fever, headache, and stiff neck. Symptoms may develop over several hours, or they may take up to two days.

Other symptoms include nausea, vomiting, light sensitivity, confusion, and sleepiness. In newborns and small infants, the classic symptoms may be absent or difficult to detect, and the infant may only appear slow, inactive, irritable, nauseous not eating.

So far six cases of bacterial meningitis, which can be deadly if not immediately treated, have been reported in metro Detroit. A Detroit Public Schools teacher's aide died of the disease last week. Four people have died, including three children.

Treasurer seeks new term, touts changes

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM

Election 2000

Incumbent Canton Treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter said people voting for her on Nov. 7 will be picking someone who not only knows her job but loves it.

"I still enjoy my job," Kirchgatter said. "It's still very exciting to me. I still have the energy and enthusiasm and interest."

Elaine Kirchgatter

Kirchgatter, 60, a Republican, is challenged by Democrat Steve Kilijanczyk. Kirchgatter has served as treasurer since 1992 and served as trustee from 1988-1992. She has three grown daughters and is married to Dick, a longtime veterinarian. She has a bachelor of science degree from Iowa State University.

If elected, it would be her final term on the board, she said last week.

Kirchgatter defined her role as treasurer as threefold – managing a seven-person staff, collecting taxes and serving as a legislator on a seven-person board of trustees.

The treasurer's department has changed from one that relied solely on paper records to one that performs nearly every function by computer.

"Nothing was on the computer" when she first took office, Kirchgatter said, holding up index cards with hand stamped dates on them from her early days as treasurer. The dates and corresponding numbers denoted tax payments.

Now there are two computers in the lobby where people can look at tax records. People also can request information about taxes on particular properties via fax.

Kirchgatter said the township has a

Patterson: Leadership and experience count

■ 21ST DISTRICT STATE HOUSE

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER
STAFF WRITER
tschneider@oe.homecomm.net

Bruce Patterson likes to sum up his re-election campaign with a rhetorical question: Why should voters in the 21st state House District give up what they've gained over the last two years?

Bruce Patterson

In the Canton Republican's view, what they've gained is this:

■ Stable representation from a legislator who places a priority on constituent services, coalition building, and accountability;

■ Progress on issues such as roads, education and technology;

■ A potential majority leader with experience in a term-limited legislature.

"You have in me a known quantity. Someone who believes it's a privilege to serve," Patterson said. "My opponent has suggested there are certain things he'd like to accomplish. But looking at his agenda I can say we've already been there, done that."

Patterson, 53, is seeking a second term in the Nov. 7 election. He is challenged by Democrat Mickey Walsh of Canton.

The 21st District includes most of Canton, Sumpter and Van Buren Townships, and the city of Belleville.

While he usually votes along party lines and has been labeled a "conservative" by some, Patterson chooses to think of himself as more of a pragmatic legislator. He noted that in the past he has voted for mandatory use of seatbelts and residency requirements for "This is scary to me the kind of effect it could have on our society if we further stratify ourselves along sociological and economic lines," Toth said. "I don't understand public subsidy when there's no public oversight."

Private and parochial schools are exempt from the state's Freedom of Information Act and the Open Meetings Act, Toth added.

Among the board's concerns with the voucher proposal:

n It would divert resources from public schools and subsidize private and religious schools, which are exempt from oversight by elected officials.

■ Private and parochial schools may set their own tuition rates and have exclusive admission policies.

■ The proposal could increase discrimination and segregation by fragmenting Michigan's children along lines of religion, race, ethnicity, disability and social class.

■ Vouchers would assist wealthy families by using tax dollars to subsidize students from affluent homes who are already enrolled in private and religious schools while excluding low income students who cannot afford remaining private school tuition.

■ The proposal could spark a legal challenge as evidenced by cases in Ohio, Maine and Pennsylvania, where voucher programs were ruled unconstitutional.

■ Lack of evidence showing that students from similar backgrounds perform better in private schools than in public schools.

Purse snatching reported

A 76-year-old Canton woman was robbed of her purse Wednesday, Oct. 11 at her Royal Holiday Estates mobile home. A police report stated that the woman had returned home from playing bingo that night when she was approached by a man who grabbed her purse. She reportedly attempted to push the man but he pulled harder at her purse, causing her to fall down her steps and injure her knee. She told police the man was driving a blue or green vehicle but said she was unsure whether she could positively identify the man if she saw him again.

Officer assaulted

A Canton woman of undisclosed age was arrested for disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and assault and battery of a police officer Thursday, Oct. 12 at an apartment located in the 44000 block of Trails Court. A police report stated that officers responded to the scene because of a complaint about the woman threatening another resident with a knife. Upon questioning the woman, she reportedly began yelling and swearing at officers. She was restrained in handcuffs but police later removed them when she complained of swollen hands and so she could calm her 4-year-old daughter, who was crying. When officers attempted to put handcuffs back on the woman, she reportedly kicked an officer in the legs and groin and resisted arrest. She was lodged in the police department's jail and her daughter was sent to stay with her grandmother, who lives in Ortonville.

Break-in Someone reportedly broke into home in the 7900 block of Koppernick sometime before Wednesday, Oct. 12, causing $150 damage to the door and lock and taking two boxes of vehicle cylinders valued at $1,060. The homeowner, a 51-year-old Canton man, told police he suspected his ex-girlfriend's son in the thefts, because he visited the home recently and knew what to do with the cylinders. Police are investigating.

Concealed weapon arrest

Canton Police Wednesday, Oct. 12 arrested a man of undisclosed age and residency for possessing an unloaded bb gun that had apparently been painted black and a 3 1/2 inch butterfly knife. Police had stopped the man near Pocatello and Metaline for speeding. The man told police he carried the knife for protection because a relative had been jumped recently in Dearborn and had his jaw broken. He said the bb gun was painted black when he bought it from a friend.

Bricks damaged at school

A Canton woman of undisclosed age was cited for leaving the scene of a property damage accident Wednesday, Oct. 11 following an incident at Walker Winter Elementary, 39932 Michigan. Witnesses reportedly told police that the woman rammed her minivan into the building causing about $200 in damage, got out and inspected the damage and then left. A police report stated that an officer discovered a vehicle with front end damage matching the witness' description at Sherwood Mobile Home Park, at Haggerty and Michigan. The woman told police that she panicked because she had a crying child in the car and because she was pregnant.

Vandalism

Someone reportedly broke a front headlight of a vehicle parked in the 1600 block of Brookview, causing $25 damage, sometime before Wednesday, Oct. 11. A police report stated that a rock was found lying next to the car. Police have no suspects.

Drunken driving

Canton Police cited a 34-year-old Belleville man for operating under the influence of liquor at 1:30 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 12, near the intersection of Michigan and Beck. A police report stated that an officer stopped the man because he was speeding and that he performed poorly on field sobriety tests. He refused to take a breath test and was taken to jail.

Hopefuls campaign softly during chamber forum

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER
STAFF WRITER
tschneider@oe.homecomm.net

Like the presidential debate that followed on national TV, Wednesday night's forum for local and statewide candidates on the Nov. 7 ballot was a low-key affair.

There were no real fireworks – only a few mild jabs – in the 90-minute session sponsored by the Canton Chamber of Commerce at the administration building.

Taking some heat from their opponents were Wayne County Commissioner John Sullivan, who was a no-show, and state Rep. Bruce Patterson for his voting record.

The forum was moderated by A. Frederick Nell of the chamber's government affairs committee.

Republican Rob Bovtiz, who is challenging Democrat Sullivan in the county commission race, offered congratulations on the birth of a new child but noted that while the he might be "a great dad and soccer coach," Sullivan needs to attend to his duties as a public servant, too.

Mickey Walsh, challenging Patterson for a his state House seat, chided the incumbent for his votes on health care, senior citizen issues and other "family-friendly" legislation.

"He has voted no, no and no on all these things," Walsh said.

Other candidates appearing at the forum included Township Treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter (Republican) and her Democratic opponent Steve Kilijanczyk; and four of five candidates running for part-time trustee seats on the township board.

Republican incumbents Melissa McLaughlin, Robert Shefferly and Phil LaJoy, along with Democratic challenger Thomas Hartnett, each answered four questions from the moderator.

Incumbent John Burdziak didn't attend.

In addition to discussing their vision for the township and how they would vote on the state ballot proposal regarding school vouchers, trustee candidates were asked about making Martin Luther King Day a paid township holiday.

"I think we took an important first step (by creating a commission to study the issue)," McLaughlin said. "When looking at the issue of diversity we need to make sure the net is very broad, that there isn't anybody being left out."

Shefferly said he hadn't heard opinions from a wide enough crossection of residents to make a decision.

LaJoy supports adding the holiday.

"Perception is reality," LaJoy said. "I believe we are an inclusive community and we should be making a positive statement by adopting this holiday, rather than a negative one."

Hartnett, who is on record as supporting the move, wasn't given the chance to respond to the question.

On the issue of development, Hartnett said the board needs to be careful in granting approval to projects that would have an adverse impact on the quality of life in Canton or in getting involved in partnerships with developers.

"I don't believe the role of township government is to become financially involved. The role of government is to determine whether something should or should not be done," he said.

"I feel like I can't get from one end of Ford Road to the other," he added.

Kirchgatter and Kilijanczyk answered questions about investment strategy and the role of the treasurer.

Kirchgatter pointed out that she was instrumental in drafting the township's current investment strategy, which she said was conservative by nature and fit in with what other municipalities were doing. "We look at four things: safety, diversification, liquidity and then return on investment," she said.

The township has $78 million in investments, she noted.

Democrat Kilijanczyk said the township needs to look at electronic fund transfers and other steps to modernize the treasurer's department. "We need to bring ourselves up to the level of (comparable) communities," he said.

The Canton Chamber of Commerce Election Forum is being cablecast by Americast (Channel 10) and MediaOne (Channel 12). Broadcast times are 5 a.m., 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily.

over the 215-acre course, knowing that the geese disliked the flavor. "But that only worked until we cut the grass," he said.

At $100 an acre, the grape extract method proved expensive and short term. Then they tried using fire crackers, but that was ineffective. Results have improved with Gooseworks owner, Kirk Mehlhaff

The property, which once boasted more than 300 geese at one time, is virtually goose-free, he said. "We've been without geese for five or six days."

Mehlhaff uses a combination of trained border collies, remote control boats, mylar balloons and noise makers to rid the property of the geese. He checks the golf course and surrounding park three times daily in an attempt to keep the animals at bay. If he sees them, the collies are instructed to move in on the birds.

"Our goal as a company is to promote a zero-geese policy," Mehlhaff said.

"In the '60s, there were no geese in Michigan," he explained. "Now, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) says there are over 700,000 geese statewide."

Since geese nest and reproduce in the same location year-after-year, he has two lines of defense in the goose battle. First, he is hoping to catch the geese already there and relocate them or scare them off. Secondly, he will keep new geese from nesting there by removing the eggs.

"If they nest in this environment (on the property) and have 12 eggs, then those 12 babies will return next year," he said. "We need to change their nesting location."

A controlled hunt is one alternative to Mehlhaff's methods, but not in Canton because of homes scattered throughout the golf course. Even the use of dogs was first met with disapproval by area homeowners concerned about the safety of the geese. However, the birds are not harmed.

The dogs are trained to scare the birds off, not to hurt them. In fact, anyone who harms a goose, other than during a controlled hunt, is subject to 90 days in jail and up to $10,000 in fines.

"Once we told people what we were doing it was OK," said Mill. "We couldn't ask for better results."

Mill estimates the cost for Goosework's services at $5,000 for this summer. Subsequent summers are expected to be a little higher since service will begin earlier in the year.

"But if you look at the man hours we put in to clean up after the geese and to chase them off, this is well worth it," Mill said.

They also looked into buying border collies, but changed their minds once they discovered each dog cost $5,000 to $10,000. Had the township purchased the collies, additional money would have been expended to hire a handler and board the dogs.

"It's been a real relief to not have as many issues with geese this year," said Mill. "It took a couple of years to get everything in place, but it's exceeded all our expectations."

The term is "cream skimming," picking those students who are considered the cream of the crop.

"Eventually we would have a two-tier system, kids who are easier to make a profit from going to private schools, and the other kids who are more costly to educate would be left in the public schools," added Trustee Mark Slavens.

The ballot proposal would allow for students in failing school districts to get approximately half of a $6,600 per-pupil state grant, and use that money to transfer to another school district. However, the proposal also lets 10 percent of those who voted in the last school board election petition the district to put the issue on the ballot in the local community. Vouchers could also become reality in a local district if a majority of the school board votes in favor of the issue.

Mardigian doesn't like the lack of accountability vouchers afford private schools.

"They are taking public money and not having to disclose their balance sheets or budgets," she said. "They deliberate in private, and parents and taxpayers would have very little say on how the money is spent. I would want to be part of a system where I could be part of the solution and make changes.

"I also think it's unconstitutional to use public funds to teach religion," added Mardigian. "I fully expect we'll have a legal challenge if it passes."

'They are taking public money and not having to disclose their balance sheets or budgets.'

–Judy Mardigian,
Plymouth-Canton school board member

Along with vouchers, Proposal 1 also calls for a per-pupil state funding minimum of $6,600 (Plymouth-Canton receives $6,505 in state funding per student) and regular testing of teachers in schools where vouchers are accepted.

"There are a number of items rolled into the proposal that are also undefined," added Booher. "It seems some of those items are tacked on to appeal to people who have particular concerns. Should we change the state constitution for those individual issues? I don't think so."

"Teachers are already tested before they are certified. Every five years teachers earn continuing education or college credits, and they are evaluated regularly," said Chuck Portelli, Plymouth-Canton Education Association president. "Proposal 1 is nothing more than parochiaid, taking money from the public and giving it to private and schools for profit. I'm against the Catholic church spending $1.5 million to take money from public schools."

Board president Darwin Watts believes the threat of Proposal 1 won't come from present schools, but new start-ups.

"Potentially, somebody could start a school, qualify for funding and take kids from the district without being on the same guidelines and restrictions that we are," said Watts.

Slavens' fears carry that thought a bit further.

"There would be nothing from anyone starting the Michigan Militia School or American Nazi School, or even a witches school," he said. "Once you start down that road and have private schools open, it opens the door past traditional religious schools."

Slavens believes vouchers could lead to segregated schools.

"Public schools bring kids of different economic backgrounds, different religions, different colors and creeds together in one setting where they learn together and learn about each other," said Slavens. "If you have a bunch of different private schools, you'll have kids of like groups together and it will fragment our community. We need to continue the melting pot society."

Ballot plan is all about 'fairness,' say local churches, charter school

BY TONY BRUSCATO

While public school administrators and school board members are fighting against Proposal 1, the Catholic church has spent more than a million dollars in efforts to get the proposal passed.

Fr. George Charnley, pastor at St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Canton, said the church is looking at the proposal as a fairness issue, and not an effort to increase student populations at area Catholic schools.

"It's a justice issue, giving people in impoverished areas an opportunity to get a good education," said Charnley. "Put yourself in the shoes of a family in a failing school district, without the means to send your child to another school, and you can't move out of the area.

"We're not trying to attack the public schools. The schools in our area are fantastic," he added. "But, something has to be done in those seven failing districts that are identified in the proposal, and this will give immediate attention to those families. The real issue is an alternative way to put kids in schools that aren't failing."

Charnley said while the voucher system may help Catholic schools located in the areas of failing districts, the others, like All Saints in Canton, won't be affected. That's echoed by Ted Behn, principal of Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth.

"We get 98 percent of our students from Plymouth and Canton, so I don't expect vouchers will do anything for us," he said.

Canton Charter Academy is financed with state funds, and could someday be affected by vouchers just like Plymouth-Canton Schools. However, academy president Bill Case said he's in favor of the voucher proposal.

"It's consistent with my belief in allowing students schools of choice, and that includes vouchers," said Case. "Anything that enhances the choices parents can make for their children's education is a good thing."

Sheriff warns to beware of computer identity theft

BY RICHARD PEARL
STAFF WRITER

rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

The Internet Crimes Task Force's most recent sting operation – which has broadened into investigations in three other states – has prompted Wayne County Sheriff Robert A. Ficano to again warn the public about identity theft.

"It could be happening to you right now and you don't know it," warned Ficano on Friday after announcing details of the investigation.

"Someone could be using your name to open credit accounts, take out bank loans, and even buy a car," Ficano stated.

Identity theft is "considered the crime of the future" because, with the "astronomical advances made in technology every month, the criminals of the future do not need to steal from you ... they will become you," the sheriff said.

Ficano said many people don't realize they are becoming victims because they don't check their credit card statements closely enough.

"The thief will start by purchasing a couple of items" with the victim's credit card and the victim won't notice. Then it will escalate, Ficano said.

The latest case involved a 20-year-old Detroit man who confessed to being involved in such credit thefts.

He also provided names of cohorts in Minnesota, South Dakota and California, prompting a broader investigation, Ficano said.

The thefts are estimated to total over $10,000.

The Detroit man's name was withheld so as not to compromise the investigation. "He was not arrested, based on the cooperation he gave us," the sheriff said.

Ficano's office had received tips about someone believed to be stealing credit-card numbers from the Internet and then using them to order thousands of dollars in goods and services online.

Task Force deputies executed a search-warrant and, camouflaging themselves as delivery men, made a "special delivery" to the man.

Ficano said the man thought he was getting more illegally ordered goods, but the package contained a deputy sheriff's uniform. The man then provided the information about the others.

11 cards found

Recovered were 11 Social Security cards, four Michigan driver's licenses, two Visa cards, transaction receipts leading to several American Express Cards, a sawed-off 12-gauge shotgun, a sawed-off .22-caliber rifle and an unregistered .25 caliber semi-automatic handgun.

Victims have been identified in the other states.

Ficano said his department's identity theft investigations have more than doubled in the past year.

"We thought that after all the publicity" in past months about arrests made, thieves "wouldn't' be so bold," he said.

"But here we are, 27 arrests later, plus 15 other arrests across the country stemming from our investigations," he noted.

Ficano said that, although identity theft "is hardly new – con men have been doing it for ages, the Internet is making it one of the signature crimes of the digital era."

Identity theft is one of the fastest-growing crimes in the United States, with roughly 500,000 new victims each year.

Ficano said any Internet Web-surfer can find sites selling all sorts of personal information – everything from Social Security records to Veterans Administration data, to health information and driving records.

With such information, thieves can acquire credit, make purchases and even secure residences.

Fake IDs made

A criminal may make a fake identification card with his/her picture and your name and other personal information, Ficano said.

The sheriff said corporate computer-network break-ins are as common as home burglaries today.

According to a recent survey, 85 percent of such break-ins occur internally and insiders are the most serious threat, he said.

The sheriff said that identity theft is easy to prevent "if you know what to do before a criminal ever finds your personal information."

His recommendations:

■ Always read your statements very carefully.

■ Add fraud alerts to your credit files – a two-sentence statement in your credit report mandating that, before any new credit account can be opened or card issued, the credit grantor must call your designated phone number to verify the account's legitimacy.

■ Remove your personal information from the major commercial marketing databases (there are over 100 such). Eliminate nearly all the junk mail to your physical address, too.

■ Create an emergency phone list of creditors to use in notifying them immediately after your wallet is stolen. The list should be accessible from any on-line computer in the world. But DO NOT list your credit card numbers, just the 1-800 numbers necessary to cancel your existing credit cards, if they're stolen.

An alternative, he said, is to use the services of a trusted agency that has all your numbers and automatically contacts all of your creditors when you tell them to.

■ Never carry your Social Security card in your purse or wallet. "And it's never really a good idea to giver your SS number over the Internet," the sheriff said.

■ Make sure you're on a secure Web site by checking for the padlock icon on the bottom of the screen – or call the company first and ask for the exact Web address.

■ Learn the facts regarding Internet security: Browser security settings, SSL encryption, e-mail encryption and cookie technology.

There is a lot of misinformation in cyberspace, the sheriff said, but the Internet itself is a safe and valuable tool, if you know how to use it securely.

"The bottom line is simply that anyone can become a victim of stolen identity credit fraud," Ficano said.

With the knowledge ID crime exists, "It is your choice to either protect your identity or depend on luck to let you slip through the next century," he said.

"I feel we're probably making the best use of money that comes into the township," she said.

In her role as legislator, she said one of the biggest issues she faces is that of development. But balancing between a developer's request to build and the residents' request for preserving open spaces can be difficult.

"We can help steer development," she said, referring to the township's master plan. "I think most people that are coming to the community realize that it's no longer the rural community it once was."

Canton's tree ordinance requires developers to pay the township $300 for every tree that is removed and not replaced and that money is put into a tree fund dedicated to buying trees.

■ 'I feel we're probably making the best use of money that comes into the township.'

–Elaine Kirchgatter

It is one of several ways the township is working to preserve land, Kirchgatter said.

One of her most significant accomplishments over the past eight years is being certified as a municipal finance administrator.

"It's a recognition that not a whole lot of treasurers have," she said.

The training she received emphasized not only money management but people skills.

"It's not just dealing with money and investments but how to deal with people," she said of her job. "First and foremost we are there to serve the public."

police officers and firefighters – opposing conservative positions on those issues.

"I do believe government has a responsibility to carry out certain, legitimate delegated responsibilities," he said.

Patterson lists successful legislation to increase the state foundation grant for school districts, revisions to the telecommunications act and an amendment blocking runway expansion at Willow Run Airport as accomplishments during his first term.

He was also a co-sponsor of a law requiring more stringent health standards for businesses offering tattoos or body piercings and helped steer a $750,000 Clean Michigan grant for expansion of the Summit community center.

The first-term representative points to his perfect attendance on days the House was in session in 1999 and so far this year; and missing only six of more than 2,000 roll call votes since his election.

Additional gains in school funding, particularly in Plymouth-Canton, is a second-term goal, Patterson said. He has introduced House Bill 5814, which if passed would eventually bump per-pupil spending in the district to $9,000.

Patterson said a key issue will be making sure Michigan townships receive adequate funding for roads and aren't hurt when it comes to changes in any state-shared revenue formulas. "When the census is finished, I think for the first time you're going to see a situation where there is a greater percentage of the overall population living in townships compared to cities," he said.

He is also seeking an amendment that would put the 35th District Court first in line for a third judgeship. The court handles more than 40,000 cases per year and generated more than $4 million in revenue during 1999, he noted.

That bill remains in committee.

Patterson is opposed to all three citizen initiatives on the ballot.

He will vote against Proposal 1, which would allow state-funded vouchers to help students from "failing" school districts attend private schools, because "vouchers are a different animal from charter schools" and they don't help all students.

"We're supposed to be providing an educational opportunity for the next generation and the generation after that. This proposal doesn't do that," Patterson said.

He views Proposal 2, which if passed would require the legislature to pass certain laws pertaining to local issues by a two-thirds margin as setting up a system of "minority rule."

Patterson said he will also vote against state Proposal A, a new tax for arts institutions and groups. New funding for those endeavors should come from the private sector, he said.

Before his election to the House, Patterson represented the 11th District on the Wayne County Commission, where he served two terms. Formerly a lawyer in private practice, he also worked at Eastern Michigan University as the Director of Planned Giving.

Patterson holds a BA and law degrees from Wayne State University.

He is a longtime Canton resident and still serves as president of the Canton Republican Club.

He is married to Phyllis and has three children, Justin, Denise and Lauren.

CORNS & CALLUSES
Corns and calluses are accumulations of dead skin that grow to protect foot bones from excessive trauma. Friction can stimulate the skin to grow faster than the body can shed it. Callus forms over diffuse areas such as the ball of the foot or the heel. Corns develop over smaller precise locations such as on or between toes. Corns and calluses have no roots and are not contagious. Elective toe surgery is a routine procedure, performed under local anesthesia, that can correct a problem in one visit. It eliminates repetitive visits to the podiatrist.

Is proposed arts millage a cultural boon or tax burden?

AND KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITERS
rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

So just what is Proposal A, anyway?

A public forum held Wednesday night by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers at Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills helped to define it.

On its face, the Metropolitan Arts and Culture Council Cultural, Arts and Recreational Programs Millage Proposal is a half-mill property tax that, if passed Nov. 7, will provide millions in financial support for 17 of metropolitan Detroit's major cultural institutions (such as the Detroit Symphony, the museums at Cranbrook, Henry Ford Museum and the Detroit Institute of Arts) and for the cultural and recreational programs in local communities.

The proposal – which took 10 years to go from the state legislature to the general election ballot – would raise $44 million its first year, with two-thirds ($29 million) helping support those 17 institutions and the remaining one-third ($15 million) going back to the cities, townships and villages to be spent on local cultural and recreational programs as each decides.

The 0.5 mill levy will mean a tax of 50 cents per thousand dollars assessed valuation. The owner of a house valued at $100,000 will pay $37.50 per year.

It is not on the ballot in Macomb, Washtenaw and other neighboring counties because they are below the 750,000 population minimum set by the state.

Its supporters claim the proposal means much, much more: It will go a long way, they say, toward defining quality of life in southeast Michigan, the responsibility for supporting culture here, and how both area residents and those outside the region view metropolitan Detroit.

Whether you play soccer or a trombone, they say, the proposal has something for you.

Proposal A also will go a long way toward helping continue the region's economic growth, they said.

"What we're finding," said Paul Hillegonds, president of Detroit Renaissance, which promotes regional economic development, "is a tremendously broad-based support (for Proposal A) which reflects ... community support for our arts and culture."

"There is also a growing awareness" in metro communities that quality of life issues "are very important to our economic health and our economic future," he said.

It's a burden

But Proposal A, detractors say, merely supports the fancies of the well-to-do while being a new burden on the elderly and the poor, as well as on area businesses.

David Galloway, Oakland County commissioner and former state legislator, said he personally has always supported the local cultural institutions.

But he noted that a similarly-named proposal of a few years ago – Proposition A, which offered a tax cut – "definitely passed overwhelmingly" because people didn't want to fund the schools with property taxes. Prop. A shifted the burden to the sales tax.

Nonetheless, he said, people have since found their property taxes "going up increasingly through local initiatives and this (Proposal A)," Galloway stated. "If it passes, it's definitely going to be a burden on some people.

"Thirty-seven fifty (dollars) on a $100,000 home is a lot of money to some people," he said.

His constituents have given him a "resounding 'no'" about the proposal: "They do not want to be taxed for the arts.

"People that want to go should be paying (for it) themselves" or through donations supporting cultural groups, Galloway said.

The other eight panelists Wednesday night supported Proposal A. They stressed it won't be a cure-all for financing culture and recreation and emphasized that local arts and recreation supporters will need to step up and be heard by their elected governmental officials.

And it won't replace traditional appeals to the wealthy and the business community for continued financial support.

But it will help reduce the emphasis on fund-raising for organizations both large and small, they said, while also expanding the major institutions' reaching out to school children through programs such as reduced or free admissions. That improved outreach, they said, will go a long way toward stimulating youngsters' interest in learning and improving what the schools can do.

"As an educator, I need to tell you that these schools are not going to improve on their own," said Mike Flannagan, superintendent of the Wayne County Regional Education Services Agency (RESA), which serves the county's 600 public schools.

Not only place

"They're not going to improve if we only use that as the only place where the kids are going to learn. Kids learn in these institutions in ways we are only beginning to measure.

"If this thing (Proposal A) goes through, you're going to see a quantum leap in kids' achievement ...

"Kids today are wired differently right now and they need to be connected to real-world things and other opportunities," he said. "Kids learn math from (studying) music. They get motivated about science when they can visit a science center and then apply some of the principles they've learned."

Besides, he said, families wanting to move into the region

"to work for Compuware instead of Microsoft ... want to see the (achievement) scores. They're very conscious of that and they want to see that their kids are doing well.

"I can't tell you how much I believe this is going to make a gigantic difference in the lives of about 700,000 students" in the two counties, he said.

Supporters said Proposal A will also enhance Detroit's image to the outside world and improve businesses' ability to attract the highly skilled and educated people they need.

Businesses will pay the tax, too, said Hillegonds, a former speaker of the state House of Representatives. "Business leaders ... see this as an investment in our civic infrastructure," he said.

Maryls Vickers, supervisor of marketing and research for Oakland County's economic development and planning division, said her department's aim is to show southeast Michigan as an attractive and desirable area for businesses and employees.

"In the past," she said, spouses of prospective new residents "have viewed the Detroit area as a cultural desert."

Communities decide

John Chamberlin, professor of political science at the Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy at the University of Michigan said the one-third funding returned to local communities is "an important part" of the issue.

It will allow communities to decide what they'd like to support and help them share resources.

Wayne County Commissioner Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, who has pushed the proposal from the beginning, predicted "a huge fight" in such as Northville and Plymouth Townships, "where they have no recreational tax and there's a big push for local parks" and other programs.

The question will be whether the groups will "form coalitions to support things" together, she said.

But Nancy Coumoundouros, cultural arts coordinator for both Farmington and Farmington Hills, said, "Groups will have to be very forceful and they have to let people know they want to share the money, and make proposals to their communities and talk about it.

"Some play with soccer balls and some play with trombones. Everyone enjoys things together."

TV schedule

Time Warner Cable has scheduled four telecasts of the Cultural Arts forum in October and November in Wayne County.

The forum, presented by the Observer & Eccentric and videotaped at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus on Wednesday, will be aired 4 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 24; 4 p.m. Monday, Oct. 30; 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 31 and 4:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 6.

It also will be aired in Oakland County at noon on Friday, Oct. 20, and at other times to be announced next week.

The forum discusses Proposal A, the regional cultural arts levy.

Local control issue'

"It is a local control issue, though," noted Bankes. "It's what the people want."

She and others, such as Detroit City Councilman Nicholas Hood III, noted elected officials will be accountable.

"Culture and recreation go hand in hand," said Hood. "In my family, we always wanted to make sure the children are exposed to everything.

"There's a large number of kids in Detroit who go back and forth between the cultural programs at Wayne State University, the Center for Creative Studies, the Detroit Institute of Arts, the museums – but who also play sports.

"I see a natural connection between those," Hood said.

However, he noted, "I don't think we should build up Proposal A to be something it's not. The real challenge for Detroit is to clean up its own act, to clean up its own streets and to tear down its dilapidated old buildings which surround the DIA

"The better job we do of that, the more attractive those venues are going to be. And I would not want to mislead anybody into thinking that a Proposal A, if it passes, is going to, in just one stroke, paint the town. It's not going to do that.

"What it is," said Hood, is something that will give the cultural institutions "a little extra so they can do a better job."

What about those not using the institutions bit paying taxes?

John McCulloch, chairman of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners, said it's like the mass transit act, which supports the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation (SMART) bus system: "The majority of voters don't use the system, but ... they wanted to preserve it. And they certainly know it was good for Oakland County and the region."

Tax renewed

Once the public saw the success of the transit tax, it was renewed, he said.

"One of the reasons why we have local, state, county and national governments is because there are some things we can do collectively that we cannot do individually," said Hood.

"If we try to fund these arts solely on the user fee, it would be arts for the rich, and I think that would be a sad day," he said.

McCulloch explained that major changes in the workings of the arts council, which will administer the funding to the major groups, can only be made by a two-thirds vote.

The council is made up of three members each from Oakland County, Wayne County and the City of Detroit.

"It's a very interesting experiment in regional government," said U-M's Chamberlin. "We don't have a lot of experience with that.

"I suspect it will only work well in the long run if most of the decisions are made by consensus and the group works hard to formulate that consensus.

"If there are a lot of county-line votes here, this may well be an experiment ... that won't be a good lesson to the rest of the country," he warned.

Hood noted that "to get Oakland County, Wayne County and the City of Detroit to agree on anything, I think, is a major accomplishment."

Court candidate says he wants to protect precedents

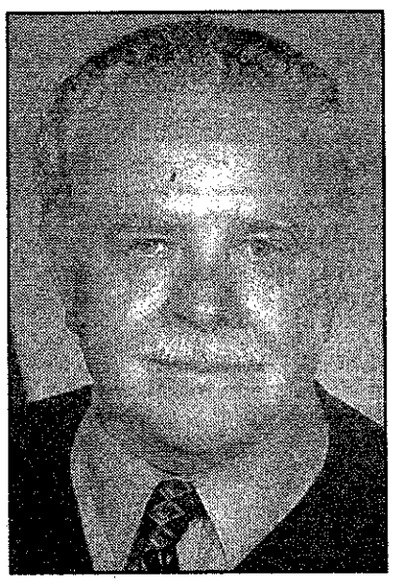
STAFF WRITER
rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

Judge Edward M. Thomas' opponents say he's running for Michigan's Supreme Court to help trial lawyers like Geoffrey Fieger and that Thomas is "bad for the court."

But Thomas says his candidacy is aimed at stopping his opponents from overturning rulings establishing precedents that have guided the lower courts for the past 30 to 40 years.

"It's what I perceive of as a dismantling of the present system by this court," says Thomas, a Wayne County Circuit Court judge who is running in the Nov. 7 general election against incumbent Justice Stephen Markman for the four-year seat on the state's highest court.

Markman and his colleagues, Justices Clifford Taylor and Robert Young, are "overturning precedents at such a rapid rate that it's causing instability and uncertainty" both in the legal community and for the public at large, claims Thomas, a Democratic Party nominee.



Judge Edward M. Thomas

■ 'What the justices lose sight of is that (personal injury) cases come (before the courts) due to clients who are injured.'

Judge Edward M. Thomas
Supreme Court candidate

The three Republican Party nominees claim that "the prior court misread the statutes," Thomas says. They vow they are "not going to let the trial lawyers line their pockets" with big settlements and say they are going to be "tough on crime and criminals."

But Thomas says Markman, Taylor and Young are taking a "simplistic view and it's not a simplistic process, it's a very complex process.

"Everyone should be treated fairly no matter who they are or where they live," he says, "and it's up to the court that they be treated fairly.

"What the justices lose sight of is that (personal injury) cases come (before the courts) due to clients who are injured," Thomas says.

He says the justices already have re-opened and overturned three police-chase cases in which third parties won settlements due to injuries. The new rulings favor municipalities and the police and say third parties now have no recourse for their injuries if hit by a stolen vehicle, according to Thomas.

Thomas says cases won by attorney Fieger, one of Michigan's most outspoken and successful trial lawyers, are among those due to be heard by the three justices he opposes.

With their "obvious bias against Fieger and trial lawyers ... I don't see how (accident victims) can feel comfortable. They (victims) don't have even a ghost of a chance, let alone coming out 50-50.

"I think that's something the average person needs to take a close look at in this election," Thomas says.

A Detroit native and resident, Thomas was a Detroit Recorder's Court judge for 12 years before then-Gov. James Blanchard appointed him in 1990 to the circuit court.

His three top cases, he says, were a 1990 trial in which he sentenced two men to life in prison with no chance of parole for kidnapping and setting on fire a 19-year-old woman, who survived the ordeal; the 1987 sentencing to life in prison of a woman who conspired to kill a previous husband – a Detroit police officer – for his life insurance; and the 1984 sentencing to life of a burglar who killed the investigating Detroit police officer "execution-style."

The winner of the Thomas-Markman race will seek an eight-year seat on the court in 2004. Markman was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1999.

Clifford Taylor, appointed to the court in 1997 and elected to it in 1998, is being opposed by Marietta Robinson, a Detroit attorney. Both are seeking an eight-year term.

Young, appointed to the court in 1998, is facing Thomas Fitzgerald, a state Appeals Court judge elected to that bench in 1990 and re-elected in 1996.

Brilliant fall color reaches peak across northern Michigan

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 11 /PRNewswire/ -- Fall color is brilliant across the northwest and northeast regions this week. Best locations for peak viewing in the northwest include Boyne City, Gaylord, and Petoskey. Radiant shares of yellow and orange represent 75 to 85 percent of the trees within Traverse City, Frankfort, Cadillac, and Manistee.

The northeast color show remains excellent again this week. Peak is taking place around Roscommon, Alpena, Grayling, Cheboygan, and Mackinaw City. More than 80 percent of the leaves have turned beautiful hues around East Tawas, Harrison, Gaylord, and Rogers City.

Leaf peepers headed to the west side of the state can expect 25 to 40 percent of color adorning trees in Muskegon, Grand Rapids, and Ludington. Trees in the southwest are changing a little more rapidly. The hot spot for best viewing is at the Holland State Park where peak is expected this weekend. Maples and Oaks are brilliant – sporting red, yellow, and orange shades in the 80 percent range. Leaf peepers to Kalamazoo and Hastings will find trees turning at a rate of 50 to 60 percent.

The Thumb area is experiencing terrific fall color in the Caseville area, particularly at Sleeper State Park. Peak is expected this weekend. In the Port Austin area, 50 percent of the leaves radiate yellow hues, especially near the shoreline.

Best locations in the southeast region include Port Huron and Tipton, where leaf change is 60 to 75 percent. Peak is expected in one week for both areas. Leaves are luminous around Milford and Holly. Maples are turning at a rate of 25 to 30 percent, and sporting good tints of orange and red. Peak is still a good week away.

In the Upper Peninsula, peak fall color surrounds Sault Ste. Marie and St. Ignace. The majority of the U.P. is past peak this week, however, excellent color remains on the trees throughout Newberry, Copper Harbor, and Tahquamenon Falls.

For a recorded message about Michigan fall-color conditions, travelers may call 888-78-GREAT (784-7328), 24 hours a day. Information is updated weekly by AAA Michigan during the fall-color season.

Madonna honors Judge Gene Schnelz

After 23 years teaching legal assistant students at Madonna University, Judge Gene Schnelz is retiring from teaching.

Judge Schnelz has educated more than 600 legal assistants

Jennifer Cote, chair of the legal assistant department at Madonna University, said she is sorry to see him leave the teaching profession.

"Graduates routinely say that Judge Schnelz not only taught them about Law Office Economics and Management, but he also taught them invaluable lessons about life. He was an early and vocal advocate for the legal assistant profession," Cote said.

Judge Schnelz began teaching in the legal assistant program in 1977 when legal assistants were an unknown commodity. In 1989, he chaired the State Bar Study group that recommended creation of the Legal Assistant section of the State Bar of Michigan.

With his leadership, Michigan was one of the first states to recognize the value of legal assistants by creating the section. Judge Schnelz has seen the legal assistant field grow dramatically over his 23 years of involvement in teaching. Several years ago, a quote attributed to him in Legal Assistants Today, a national publication, raised some eyebrows. He stated that in his opinion it was legal malpractice for an attorney to go to trial without a legal assistant.

Madonna University is inviting graduates and current students to an Open House to celebrate Schnelz' teaching career 5:30-7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 24, in the Madonna University Residence Hall East Dining Room at 14221 Levan Road, Livonia.

Franklin rallies to edge Salem, 25-19

Plymouth Salem's woes continued Friday in a WLAA crossover game at Livonia Franklin. The Rocks had a 12-point lead in the fourth quarter, but surrendered two touchdown passes, a field goal and the game.

BY SCOTT DANIEL
STAFF WRITER

The Irresistible Force proved stronger than the Immovable Object in Livonia Franklin's 25-19 homecoming victory over Salem Friday.

Quarterback Joe Ruggiero was the Patriots' Irresistible Force as he engineered an amazing fourth quarter comeback against a tough Rocks' defense. Trailing 19-8, the senior connected on a pair of 11-yard touchdown passes — including the game-winner to Craig Smith with 1:00 remaining.

"Craig came up big with that catch," said Ruggiero, who completed 22-of-35 passes for 286 yards and three scores. "It was the biggest game of the year. That's the way to go out your senior year at homecoming."

Franklin's winning drive came after recovering a Salem fumbled snap at its own 49. With 2:18 remaining, Ruggiero moved the Patriots quickly down the field as he hit Jamie Kuras on a 12-yard pass on first down. The duo connected again moments later as Kuras snagged an 11-yard pass to put the ball on Salem's 11.

On first down, Ruggiero rolled to his right and gunned a strike to Smith in the back of the end zone for a touchdown. The pass was typical of many of his completions.

"I like to roll out," said Ruggiero. "I felt comfortable on the out patterns. We worked it to perfection."

"Joe is a smart kid who makes great decisions on the football field," said Franklin coach Richard Lee, who also praised his offensive line and wide receivers. "Our line gave Joe excellent protection. Our receivers also ran precise routes."

Franklin improved to 3-5 and will close its season Friday with a home game against Trenton. Salem, 2-6, plays cross-campus rival Canton.

The Rocks dominated the game's first three quarters.

Salem opened scoring on its first drive. Brandon Ellison capped a 52-yard drive with a 13-yard jaunt off left tackle at 8:14 of the first quarter.

Ellison, a senior, scored again with a 45-yard burst straight up the middle at 10:49 of the second quarter. He finished with 121 yards on 20 carries.

Livonia got on the scoreboard with 5:43 to go before half-time. Kuras made a nifty over-the-shoulder catch on a 34-yard toss from Ruggiero. Smith then caught a two-point conversion to make it 13-8.

Rocks rip Spartans

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

This was no beginner biology class.

Plymouth Salem did the dissecting with the precision of a seasoned surgeon on Thursday, dismantling host Livonia Stevenson, 41-18, in a key Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball game.

Salem is now 10-3 overall and sits in second place, only a game behind unbeaten Northville in the WLAA standings with a 6-1 mark.

Stevenson drops to 8-3 and 5-2 in the Western Lakes. The loss ended a five-game winning streak for the Spartans.

"We're back in the hunt, we control our own destiny," said Plymouth Salem coach Fred Thomann, whose team still has remaining dates with Northville and Farmington Hills Harrison (6-1).

Salem's man-to-man defense put Stevenson under the knife to the tune of seven for 43 shooting from the field (16 percent).

The Rocks held Stevenson to seven first quarter points and then turned it up a notch by keeping Stevenson off the board for an astounding 14 minutes and 37 seconds.

By the time Stevenson senior point guard Lindsay Gusick made a shot with 2:08 left in the third quarter, Salem had a commanding 28-9 lead and the game well in hand.

"Our goal was to take away their three-point game," Thomann said. "Stevenson has really good athletes and they have had some 60-point games against some good teams.

"We wanted to secure the defensive end and seal them off on the boards. We also showed great patience on offense."

Stevenson second-year coach Amy Rozman said her team had trouble coping with Salem's half-court man-to-man defense.

"We've played against a lot zones lately," Rozman said. "The picks were not there and we were timid with our drives.

No place to go: Stevenson's Lindsay Gusick (white jersey) finds strong opposition from Salem's Katie Kelly on her drive to the basket. The Spartans didn't find many easy hoops against the Rocks' defense.

"Salem plays good defense — period. We had very few good looks at the basket, and as far as second and third chances, it's the fewest we've had all season. Salem dictated both ends of the game."

Although the Rocks' defense was solid through all four quarters, it took awhile for Salem to untracked offensively.

At halftime, Salem led by a touchdown, 14-7.

Things then opened up in the third quarter as Dawn Allen scored eight

FOOTBALL

Kobus scores 3 TDs, Fuller gets 2 more to lead Chiefs

It was kind of a bittersweet victory Friday for Plymouth Canton.

The Chiefs rolled over Farmington for the second time this season, burying the Falcons under a 42-0 avalanche in a Western Lakes Activities Association crossover game at Canton.

The win improved Canton's overall record to 5-3, moving the Chiefs to within a victory of the state playoffs — somewhere they haven't been since 1991. Farmington fell to 2-6.

Any possible euphoria was tempered by the loss of two key players: Brad LaVallee, a 6-foot-5, 250-pound senior defensive tackle who suffered a neck injury, and Jerry Gaines, a senior running back/defensive back who busted his middle left finger and underwent surgery to repair it Friday night, according to sources.

The Chiefs got three touchdown runs from Dane Kobus and two more from Chad Fuller in rushing for 264 yards.

Farmington, conversely, could mount very little on offense. The Falcons totaled just 158 yards, gaining 63 on 28 carries rushing, with eight first downs. Brett Brown completed 8-of-16 passes for 95 yards, but suffered two interceptions, both in the second quarter.

Which helped Canton build its 27-0 halftime lead. A long run by Kobus in the opening quarter put the Chiefs inside the Farmington 10-yard line, from where Fuller eventually plunged in from a yard out for the touchdown. The extra-point placement missed, but Canton had a 6-0 lead.

The defense again thwarted Farmington, setting up another first-quarter scoring drive — this one very short, with Kobus racing 57 yards for the score. He added the two-point conversion himself to make it 14-0.

A Kyle Lasko interception set up the third Chiefs' score, and Kobus scored it on a 3-yard run. Oliver Wolcott's placement made it 21-0.

Wolcott, the Canton quarterback, was instrumental in the next drive — which began with a minute left in the half, thanks to Todd Shirkman's interception. Wolcott completed passes of 17 yards to Chris Smilo and 11 yards to Dave Reasor, putting the ball at the Farmington 11.

Brandon Wilcox eventually scored from 4 yards out and it was 27-0.

The Chiefs kept the Falcons pinned deep in their own end in the third quarter and took advantage of it by scoring two more TDs, one on a 35-yard drive and a second on a 36-yarder.

Kobus scored the first from 2 yards out; Fuller got the second on another 2-yard run. Billy Gaszi's two-point conversion run came after Kobus' TD, with Wolcott nailing the extra-point kick on the second.

Kobus finished with a team-high 111 yards rushing on just 12 tries. Fuller added 89 yards on 20 carries, and Gaines had 52 yards

Canton lets 4th-quarter lead slip away in loss

For a 20-minute stretch, Plymouth Canton really outplayed Farmington Harrison in Thursday's Western Lakes Activities Association basketball showdown.

The Chiefs outscored their adversaries 33-25 in that span and, although they didn't exactly shoot the lights out, they did make 13-of-37 (35.1 percent).

Unfortunately for Canton, during the other 12 minutes Harrison dominated. And the Hawks were at their absolute best when it counted most: During the game's last five minutes, when they overcame a six-point deficit with determined offense and ball-hawking defense to pull away to a 47-36 triumph.

Harrison's road win improved its record to 10-3 overall, 6-1 in the WLAA. Canton slipped to 8-5 overall, 5-2 in the conference.

With only four games left in the WLAA race, the victory kept the Hawks within a game of first-place Northville (11-1 overall, 7-0 in the league), tied with Plymouth Salem for second. Harrison still must play at Salem and Northville, which made this victory that much more essential.

Hawks' coach Pete Mantyla understood that. "To keep us in (the league race)," he said of the importance of the win. "We're playing all good teams the rest of the way."

To continue to be successful, Harrison will have to continue to diversify its offense. Three players reached double figures in scoring against Canton, and the one with the least in that trio — Ayana Richmond — provided the pivotal points.

Canton, which took a two-point lead into the fourth quarter (29-27), put the pressure on Harrison with a 6-2 start to the final period. The six-

Canton, Salem ousted at region

In August, when the weather was still hot and the leaves on the trees were still green, the prospects for the season for both Plymouth Canton's and Plymouth Salem's golf teams were difficult to discern.

In the final analysis, both teams surprised with their dual-meet prowess during the Western Lakes Activities Association campaign. But such success builds expectations, and neither team showed a high skill level in tournament play when it counted most.

Competing at the 18-team Division I golf regional hosted by Ann Arbor Pioneer at Leslie Park Friday, Canton slipped to 13th with a 336 while Salem finished 14th with a 338 (see statistical summary).

The host Pioneers won the regional title with a 311 team total (five golfers played with top four scores counting). Saline was second with a 312 and South Lyon edged Ann Arbor Huron for third by a stroke with a 316. The top three teams qualify for the state tournament, Saturday at Forest Akers West in East Lansing.

Jacob Hamilton of Jackson earned medalist honors with an even-par 72.

"Early this season when we saw some of the teams I thought would be the strongest that were going to be here, I thought we were in the mix," said Salem coach Rick Wilson. "But we didn't score near our dual-meet average or even our 18-hole tournament average, which was about 80 a man."

Canton coach Tom Alles had similar thoughts regarding his team's showing. "It's been a good season for us," he said. "I know the guys gave it their best.

"We finished about the way we started (the season). We didn't play 18-hole tournaments very well and I don't know why. Usually we start slowly and finish strong. This year we didn't."

Nobody shot better than 80 for either team. Canton was led by Derek Vermeulen and Ryan McKendry, each with an 83.

Scott Oliver and Andrew Wagner shot 85s and Michael Baracy scored a 90.

Salem was led by Jay Smith's 81. Mike Thackaberry was next with an 83, Bobby Jones and Jon Gordon shot 87s, and Brian Gullen carded a 96.

"I was disappointed, a little bit, with the way we finished," said Alles. "When other teams shoot in the 320s and you're in the 330s, you know you have a ways to go.

"We had our successes and failures this season. Winning the (Western Lakes Activities Association) Western Division title was one of the highlights."

Salem's Wilson, whose team elevated to finish with the best dual-meet record in the WLAA only to stumble at last Tuesday's conference tournament, couldn't easily explain what happened at Friday's regional.

"This is a golf course that can get you in some difficulty," he said. "But we had an 18-hole practice session there Wednesday. So the kids knew what to expect.

"It just didn't happen for them. I know they weren't trying to shoot those numbers. They may have been (pressing) a little bit. They may have felt we faded a bit at the conference tournament and they were trying to redeem themselves.

"I think they thought last Tuesday was a fluke and they wanted to bounce back."

Still, as Wilson noted, "The guys did at times surprise me this year."

It was just that at the end-of-the-season tournaments, neither Canton nor Salem had any surprises left.

GOLF

Finishing fourth in the Catholic League golf championships on Tuesday proved to be just the wake-up call Redford Catholic Central needed on Friday.

The Shamrocks won the Division I regional at Pontiac Country Club with a 10-stroke cushion over runner-up Northville, 305-315.

"It was quite a bit different from the other day," said CC coach Bill Hayes. "I think the kids realized if they didn't win today, it was the end of the line, so they really played well. I'm very proud of them. We've accomplished a lot this year, but this was the biggest."

Milford was the regional's other qualifier to Saturday's Division I state championship at East Lansing's Forest Akers West course with 316 — beating Clarkston on a tie-breaker. Redford Union came in 16th in the regional at 371.

CC's T.J. Lester was the overall medalist, shooting an even-par 72, while Matt Davey came in third at 75, Nick Szilagy tied for fifth at 76 and Brian Peczynski had an 82. Jon Luna shot 86 to round out the CC top five.

"They really shot well," said Hayes. "Three guys in the top five is fantastic."

RU was led by Brad Johnson with an 83.

Glenn wins region

Westland John Glenn, which went 4-8 in dual meets and finished fifth in the Westland Lakes Activities Association Tournament, captured the Division I regional — first in school history — Friday at Carrington Golf Club in Monroe.

Glenn's 318 total was three strokes better than runner-up Dearborn (321) and five better than Adrian (323).

Leading the way were four juniors — Jason Lang, who shot a team low 78, followed by Rich Sudak and Keith Fukuda with 79 each, and Jeremy Fendelet, 82. Senior Randy Villemure shot added an 85.

Whalers blast the Battalion

BY NICK GISMONDI
SPECIAL WRITER

A clinic.

That's the best way to describe the Plymouth Whalers' play Thursday night as they remained unblemished on the road this season with a 4-2 win over the Brampton Battalion in an Ontario Hockey League game in Brampton.

After two sub-par games by Plymouth last weekend against the London Knights, coaches Pete DeBoer and Steve Spott worked very hard to work out the bugs at practice last week. The result was a complete shut down of Brampton's offense.

Plymouth got two big additions back to their lineup in Damian Surma and Libor Ustrnul, and the effect was immediate. Surma finished his first game in the 2000-01 OHL season with two goals and an assist. Ustrnul, a defenseman, added an assist and was instrumental in shutting down top Battalion sniper Raffi Torres, a first round pick of the New York Islanders who has seven goals and six assists this season for a team-leading 13 points.

"Both of those guys are huge team players for us and it's great to have them back in the lineup," said DeBoer. "Ustrnul was instrumental in shutting down Torres and the game could have easily have been 2-1 without the play of Surma."

After a scoreless first period, the Whalers unloaded the offense in the second. Stacey Britstone opened the scoring :25 into the period on a play that began with Surma feeding a pass to Stephen Weiss, who went wide right. Weiss dropped a pass and Britstone fired it past Chant for the 1-0 lead.

Weiss made it 2-0 on the power play, stuffing home the rebound of a Surma shot for his sixth goal of the season.

Surma added another power-play goal at 13:53 of the period to extend the lead to 3-0, assists going to Cole Jarrett and James Wisniewski.

The Battalion got a goal from Jay McClement at 14:53 of the second to make it 3-1, but the Whalers dominated the action, outshooting Brampton 15-4 in the period.

The game's final goal was an empty-netter by Surma with 11 seconds left, improving the Whalers' record to 6-0 on the road and 7-1 overall.

"We played solid defense and did not make any stupid mistakes tonight," said Ustrnul, an Atlanta Thrashers draft choice. "It feels good to be back in the line up and to play well, especially against someone like Torres."

The Whalers remain the top team in the OHL with 14 points.

Salem dispatches Saline; PCA pierced by Lancers

SOCCER

A non-conference soccer match was hardly what Plymouth Salem needed at this stage of the season. But the Rocks made the most of the situation Friday, quickly dispatching Saline by a 4-0 margin at Salem.

The Rocks improve to 16-3-1 overall. Saline slips to 7-6-5.

"It was good to see," was Salem coach Ed McCarthy's response when asked about the four goals scored, something his team has had trouble doing at times this season. "It felt good to go out and get some goals and still come in with the shutout.

"I'm happy with the way we've been playing lately."

Speaking of shutouts, this one was the 10th of the season for Tavio Palazzolo.

Sean Loewe, playing what McCarthy called "his best offensive performance" of the year, scored two first-half goals and assisted on a third.

Brian Popeney accounted for Salem's other first-half goal. In the second half, Nick Tochman netted a penalty kick for the Rocks' fourth goal, awarded when Kevin Savitskie was knocked down in the box by the Hornets' keeper.

Salem travels to Livonia Churchill for a Western Lakes Activities Association crossover match at 7 p.m. Monday.

Oakland Christian 1, PCA 0: Auburn Hills Oakland Christian clinched the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference Blue Division championship Friday as goalie Kevin Mahan notched his 10th shutout of the year in a 1-0 win over visiting Plymouth Christian Academy.

The Lancers improved to 13-4-1 and 6-1-1 in the MIAC as Shane Wilson scored the lone goal on assists by Adam Hallett and Pete Boyse.

The Eagles fell to 2-4-2 in the MIAC, 7-6-4 overall.

Stevenson 1, DeLaSalle 0: The Spartans appear to be ready for the showdown.

Livonia Stevenson plays Plymouth Canton for the Western Lakes Activities Association championship on the Chiefs' turf Wednesday.

Coach Lars Richters' team brushed up for that battle on Thursday with a 1-0 victory over Warren DeLaSalle.

Salem appeared to put the game away late in the third quarter. After starting on their own 37, the Rocks got solid running from Ellison and Beau Tomlinson to move methodically down the field.

Tomlinson finished the drive with a 10-yard touchdown at 2:53. The sophomore fullback had 75 yards on 11 carries.

Ruggiero got busy after Salem's score. He led the Patriots on a 65-yard drive by completing six passes, including an 11-yard touchdown pass to Kuras. A two-point conversion made it 19-16 at 10:56 of the fourth quarter.

Salem then appeared to have Livonia on its heels with a drive of its own. The Rocks, in fact, moved to Franklin's 37 before linebacker Jessie Edmunds picked off a David Hoskins pass and rumbled 36 yards.

The Patriots took over at Salem's 27-yard line with 6:35 remaining. Livonia moved to the Rocks 14 before facing a fourth down situation.

Lee elected to try a 31-yard field goal. Andy Brennan didn't let him down as he drilled the ball through the uprights to tie the game 19-19.

The field goal set the stage for Ruggiero's heroics. The senior said he never felt the game was out of reach.

"I thought as long as the defense held we'd come back on offense," said Ruggiero.

point lead, the Chiefs largest of the game, didn't last long, however — thanks to Richmond.

The junior guard triggered the Hawks' game-winning spurt by scoring six of their first eight points, all coming in a span of 1:48. Becky Zak added four more as Harrison scored 10-straight to go up 39-35.

With 2:17 remaining in the game, Canton's Anne Morrell sank 1-of-2 free throws to narrow the gap to three. It was the final point of the night for the Chiefs, who finished the game (0-for-10 from the floor in the last five minutes) the way they started it (0-for-8 over the first five minutes).

Harrison wasn't any better at the start, which is why the Hawks led by only three (8-5) after one quarter. They made 2-of-15 in the first quarter while Canton was 2-of-12.

But in the final quarter, Harrison converted 5-of-12 from the floor and 10-of-15 from the free-throw line. The Chiefs missed their last 10 shots from the field.

For the game, Canton was a paltry 14-of-56 on field-goal attempts (25 percent); Harrison was only 16-of-56 (28.6 percent), but after the opening quarter the Hawks made 14-of-31 (45.2 percent).

"Ayana had some really big baskets for us in the fourth quarter," said Mantyla of Richmond, who scored eight of her 11 points in the period. "A lot of it was her asserting herself."

Zak was the force inside that the smaller Chiefs couldn't cope with. They tried to front the 5-foot-11 senior center, but lobs from Taylor and Richmond often resulted in easy layups for Zak. She finished with a game-high 16 points.

Kelly Taylor was also a thorn in Canton's collective sides, both offensively and defensively. Taylor finished with 13 points.

The Chiefs' defense, always the team's strong point, faltered down the stretch (surrendering 20 fourth-quarter points), and that bothered Canton coach Bob Blohm.

"I'm totally frustrated with the whole thing," he said. "We were up 35-29 and we didn't defend the rest of the night. Our defense has not been very good. I think in a lot of ways the effort is there but the execution isn't.

"I don't know what happened. We just came to a grinding halt (in the fourth quarter)."

Canton's defense did force 24 Harrison turnovers. Unfortunately, the Chiefs committed 21.

Janine Guastella's 11 points was best for the Chiefs. Morrell had nine and Ashley Williams eight.

At least Canton's schedule the rest of the way is considerably easier, with four games against teams in the league's lower tier. However, to move back into contention, the Chiefs are now dependent upon what the other contenders do.

They could have had their fate pretty much in their own hands. Now Harrison does.

PCA 53, Zoe Christian 47: A strong fourth quarter enabled visiting Plymouth Christian Academy to upend Warren Zoe Christian Friday.

The game was tied at 44-all in the fourth quarter when the Eagles asserted themselves. Laura Clark, who hit seven free throws in the period (she was 11-of-14 from the line in the game), hit two from the line to give PCA a two-point lead; Kim Guilfoyle then added a basket to make it 48-44.

Clark finished with 15 points and nine assists, while Guilfoyle contributed 13 points and 11 rebounds.

Amy Brandt kept PCA in the game with 18 points and four boards.

Shannon Myree led Zoe with 19 points; Krista Zink added 10.

PCA improves to 10-3 overall, 5-1 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. Zoe is 6-7 overall, 2-4 in the MIAC.

The Eagles host league-leader Auburn Hills Oakland Christian, the state's second-ranked team, at 7 p.m Tuesday.

points and Amy Szawara added six to fuel a 14-4 Salem run.

"Eventually we had some nice sets were we found Amy underneath for two or three baskets and that got us going," Thomann said.

The Rocks, who hit 12 of 25 second-half shots, outscored Stevenson 27-11 in the second half.

Three Rocks finished in double figures.

Dawn Allen, a 5-9 senior forward, scored a team-high 13. Szawara, 5-6 senior, contributed 10, while 5-7 junior point-guard Kelly Jaskot had nine. Jenna Van Wagoner, a 5-11 senior, had all five of her points in the opening half.

Gusick, Stevenson's leading scorer, was limited to five points on two-of-12 shooting.

"Katie Kelly did an outstanding job on Gusick," Thomann said. "Gusick is hard to guard because she has a quick trigger.

"And Jaskot did an outstanding job running our offense against their pressure."

For Stevenson, the schedule doesn't get any easier. On Tuesday, the Spartans host WLAA leader Northville.

"Their shots didn't fall tonight and it started to feel overwhelming for us," Rozman said. "We just have two days to regroup and we'll see what happens. We just have to have a better effort."

on four attempts before he was forced from the game in the second quarter.

Wolcott completed 8-of-9 passes for 136 yards in his best performance of the season. Brendan Murphy relieved in the fourth quarter and was 2-of-3 for 16 yards.

Now just one very large obstacle looms between the Chiefs and a playoff berth: cross-creek rival Plymouth Salem, which lost 25-19 at Livonia Franklin Friday. The two teams clash for the annual end-of-the-regular-season bash at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Canton's Swartz opens holes for Toledo

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

Talk about a baptism of fire, getting thrown into a pit with a bunch of Nittany Lions.

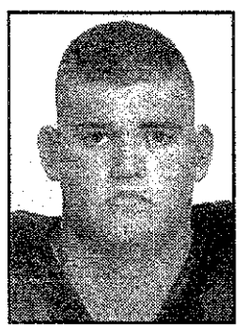
But Westland John Glenn's Noah Swartz, a 6-foot-6, 300-pound red-shirt sophomore offensive tackle from the University of Toledo, played like a seasoned veteran as the Rockets opened their season in grand style with a 24-6 victory Sept. 2 at Penn State.

He certainly made the grade in his first start as a collegian and is one of the big reasons why Toledo is off to a 5-1 start.

"The feeling was pretty awesome," Swartz said of the win before a capacity crowd in Happy Valley. "It was fun to play a Big Ten team and win. We knew going in that Penn State had a good record. It was the first game and everybody was looking forward to it."

Was the win over Joe Paterno's team his greatest football moment?

"We played some good games at Glenn," Swartz said. "My junior year in the playoffs we came back and beat (Redford) Catholic Catholic Central. It came down to the last drive and we scored."



Noah Swartz
Tackle for Rockets

The Toledo Rockets, whose only loss is a 21-14 setback to West Division leader Western Michigan, recently beat host Eastern Michigan handily at Rynearson Stadium, 42-14.

For Swartz, of nearby Canton Township, it was a satisfying homecoming.

Despite being bothered by a twisted knee, Swartz alternated every two series with backup and good friend Archie Godfrey, his roommate, and helped UT rack up 281 yards on the ground.

Two UT running backs, Chester Taylor (River Rouge) and Antwon McCray, each surpassed the 100-yard mark on the day.

"Chester initiates a lot of the calls," Swartz said. "We have a good relationship with the backs, but we make sure they don't get the big heads. Our quarterback (Tavares Bolden) also makes us look good. We have good senior leadership on this team."

Swartz graded his performance "a 90" against the Eagles.

Meanwhile, UT coach Gary Pinkel says the future is bright for Swartz, who has two more years of eligibility left after this season.

"He was thrown right into it at Penn State and he performed like we thought," Pinkel said. "Noah is as talented an athlete as any athlete we've had on the offensive line, and that includes Andy McCollum, who's playing center right now for the St. Louis Rams.

"What we're trying to do is get the best out of his ability, and as he matures, pushes himself and gains more experience, he'll become even that much better."

Swartz, who wears a size 14 shoe, comes across as soft-spoken, even laid-back off the field. But on the field, Pinkel says, "Noah can crank it up a little, he's learned how to play with intensity."

Swartz, who also considered Western and Central Michigan, chose Toledo's football program because he sees a lot of similarities between his high school coach, Chuck Gordon, and Pinkel.

"They're both stern, both disciplinarians and both get crazy when you do something right," he said. "They both hate losing."

During his spare time, Swartz likes to cook in his off-campus apartment and loves to play video games. His favorite dish is spaghetti and his favorite video game Diablo II.

Swartz, who is majoring in business computers, isn't thinking about a pro career just yet.

"I'll see how it goes," he said. "Right now the most important thing is working on my education."

His ascent to becoming a starting linemen on one of the Mid-American Conference's top teams, is an interesting one.

Swartz played nine years of soccer before switching to football as a 10th-grader at Glenn.

He sat out his first year at Toledo and then played and traveled as a back-up for the Rockets a year ago.

"Right now he's just showing a glimpse of what is yet to come," Pinkel said. "We have high expectations for him."

Madonna romps

COLLEGE SOCCER

Madonna University's men's soccer team scored three goals in the first half and cruised to a 4-1 triumph over Tri-State University in a match played Wednesday at Livonia Ladywood.

The Fighting Crusaders improved to 9-6-1 overall, 7-2-1 in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference. The Thundering Herd slipped to 5-9 overall, 4-6 in the WHAC.

Dan Kurtinaitis got Madonna started, finishing a corner kick taken by Nick Szczechowski (from Plymouth Salem) at the 19:50 mark of the first half.

Patrick Griffin (Plymouth/Redford Catholic Central) doubled the Crusaders' lead at the 37:14 mark, taking a pass from Brian Seidel and putting it into the net. Salvatore Piraine made it a 3-0 match with just 1:53 left in the half, completing a two-man break on Tri-State keeper Will Lasher; Kurtinaitis assisted.

With 11:06 of the second half expired, John Hirshey completed Madonna's scoring following passes from Jeff Budd (Livonia Stevenson) and Matt Buzewski (Livonia Churchill).

Justin Harbert's goal a minute later accounted for Tri-State's only goal.

Joe Suchara (Stevenson) made seven saves for the Crusaders. Lasher combined with Jacob Fulk, whom he relieved in the first half, to make seven stops.

Salem splits duals

X-COUNTRY

Well, at least Plymouth Salem got one win in Thursday's double-dual girls cross country meet at Oakland CC.

The Rocks were beaten by Western Lakes Activities Association Lakes Division rival Farmington 17-43, but they were able to outleg Westland John Glenn 19-44.

"We knew going into today's meet that Farmington was racing very well and had a tough team," said Salem coach Dave Gerlach. "We had several key varsity athletes that were hurting or sick in the past week so we decided to give them a rest.

"I want our varsity to be well rested and healthy for the important meets in the next two weeks."

Anna Moniodis led Salem, finishing fourth overall in 22:20.

"I thought Anna did a nice job trying to lead this team and stepping up during this competition," said Gerlach. "She knew we were missing some key athletes and it was up to a few others to race well in order to get a double victory."

Next best for Salem was Erin Jensen, ninth (23:18); Andrea Griffiths, 10th (23:21); Autumn Hicks, 11th (23:24); Heather Whittington, 14th (23:39); Jenny Kassem, 15th (23:43); and Jill Grey, 16th (24:03).

The Rocks are 2-3 in the division and 3-4 in the WLAA.

Next up are the WLAA Conference Finals Friday at Kensington Metropark.

SIX WAYS TO JOIN A NOT-FOR-PROFT CREDIT UNION

Credit unions are for everyone, but the law places some limits on the people they may serve. A credit union's charter defines its "field of membership," which could be an employer, church, school, or community. Anyone working for an employer that sponsors a credit union, for example, is eligible to join that credit union.

Chances are good, that you are eligible to be a credit union member. If you don't belong, here's how to find a credit union to join:

1. Call the Michigan Credit Union League. A representative will tell you about credit unions in your area that you are eligible to join. The toll-free number is 1-800-474-JOIN.

2. Ask your boss. Your company may sponsor a credit union, or may be a select employee group (SEG) that has access to a credit union. Many employers offer direct deposit of payroll to your credit union.

3. Poll your family. Does your spouse's employer sponsor a credit union? Most credit unions allow credit union members' families to join. Each credit union, however, may define "family" differently. At some, only members of your immediate family are eligible. At other credit unions, family may include extended family members, such as cousins, uncles, and aunts.

4. Quiz the neighbors. Some credit unions have a "community" field of membership, serving a region defined by geography rather than by employment or some other association. Ask friends in the community if they know of a credit union you may join.

5. Read the yellow pages. Some credit unions rarely advertise, so you might not know about them unless you look them up. A yellow pages display ad may state a credit union's field of membership. If not, at least you'll know what number to call to ask about membership eligibility.

6. Visit mcul.org or creditunionsrock.com. Both sites feature a credit union locator that will assist you in finding a credit union.

WHAT IS A CREDIT UNION?

A credit union is a cooperative financial institution, owned and controlled by the people who use its services. These people are members. Credit unions serve groups that share something in common, such as where they work, live, or go to church. Credit unions are not-for-profit, and exist to provide a safe, convenient place for members to save money and to get loans at reasonable rates.

Credit unions, like other financial institutions, are closely regulated. And they operate in a very prudent manner. The National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund, administered by the National Credit Union Administration, an agency of the federal government, insures deposits of credit union members at 471 federal and state-chartered credit unions statewide. Deposits are insured up to $100,000 - and in some cases where a member has multiple accounts, more.

What makes a credit union different from a bank or savings & loan? Like credit unions, these financial institutions accept deposits and make loans - but unlike credit unions, they are in business to make a profit.

Banks and savings & loans are owned by groups of stockholders whose interests include earning a healthy return on their investments. Credit unions are usually more modest institutions than banks, which can sometimes lead to confusion. Few credit unions have imposing granite pillars at their front door or costly oak-paneled boardrooms where highly paid directors discuss billion-dollar transactions. Most credit unions are located in simple business offices. Sometimes this makes people think that credit unions aren't as safe as banks.

In fact, credit unions are the safest, most stable financial institutions in America. First off, all deposits at a Michigan credit union are fully insured by the federal government up to $100,000. What is of interest to the hard-pressed American taxpayer is that credit unions - unlike some other financial institutions - have always paid for their own insurance program and have never taken a penny of taxpayer's money.

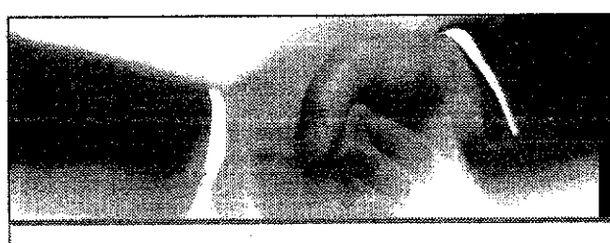
Because credit unions are not driven to squeeze out the most possible profits, they stay out of high-risk activity such as junk bonds, leveraged buy-outs, commercial real estate development and third world debt. Credit unions use their money to finance car loans, home mortgages, student loans and small consumer loans. This policy not only best serves the needs of credit union members and their community, but also gives credit unions a low-risk loan portfolio.

CREDIT UNIONS PROVIDING YOUNG ADULTS FINANCIAL KNOW HOW VIA THE WORLD WIDE WEB

By: Kolleen Schocke

Whether starting college, a new job, or a family, young adults will find solid, savvy advice on smart consumerism at creditunionrock.com - the interactive, smart Web site for consumers ages 18-25.

Launched in January, creditunionsrock.com was crafted by the Michigan Credit Union League (MCUL) and member credit unions to help young adults navigate wisely through a wealth of financial decisions. "Recent studies indicate that many young consumers are struggling to manage their personal finances," said Lori Z. Bahnmuller, vice president of Association Services for the MCUL and chairman of the Michigan Jumpstart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy. "It's not surprising, given that young consumers are welcomed into the credit system at a young age - some 25 percent report having obtained their first credit card while still in high school - before most have mastered even the most basic personal finance skills."



At Co-op Services Credit Union, we're committed to serving our members in the best possible way. Safety, value, service and convenience are four basics we adhere to. CREDIT UNIONS REWARD MEMBERS

Credit unions that meet their targets for building financial reserves can choose different ways to reward members with improved pricing. Some credit unions simply start offering a little lower loan rate and a little higher savings rate on a regular basis. Others rely more on bonus dividends or interest rebates to pay out extra amounts to members.

With that approach, the credit union pays out an extra dividend to savers at the end of the year or calendar quarter, and/or refunds some of the interest borrowers paid. That's a way to reward members for helping the credit union meet its financial targets, while allowing the credit union some additional financial flexibility. If the credit union falls behind its financial goals for a year, it can skip the bonus payout that year.

Your credit union's board of directors and management are responsible for setting the credit union's rates and fees. To keep the credit union competitive, they keep an eye on the rates and fees other financial institutions in your locale charge. A few years ago when consumers weren't borrowing very much, a lot of lenders cut interest rates to try to attract more loans. During the past two years, financial institutions have had to compete hard to attract savings, so you've seen more aggressive marketing of high rates on savings certificates. To keep other institutions from taking all the business, your credit union often will be forced to "follow the crowd" in setting certain rates and fees.

MICHIGAN CREDIT UNIONS LEAD NATION IN PERSONAL FINANCE LITERACY PROGRAMS

By Kolleen Schocke

Michigan credit unions lead the nation in credit union classroom presentations, reaching nearly 30,000 students during the 1999/2000 school year with over 1,200 presentations on personal finance, the Credit Union Network's National Youth Involvement Board (NYIB) reports.

Marking the second consecutive year in the first-place category for greatest number of classroom presentations, Michigan credit unions conducted 1,213 sessions last school year - up from 803 in the 1998/1999 school year. Michigan credit unions also ranked first-place nationally in the number of students reached category, teaching some 29,870 students last year. Further, Michigan credit unions took top honors for number of classroom presenters, with 133 staffers visiting schools.

"Michigan credit union educators continue to demonstrate their dedication to personal finance education for all young Michiganders by growing presentations by more than 30 percent last school year," said Heather H. Harris, chairman of the NYIB and assistant vice president of Consumer Education for State Employees Credit Union in Lansing. "We're pleased to welcome new educators this year, many of whom graduated immediately from our credit union educators seminar in November to the classroom."

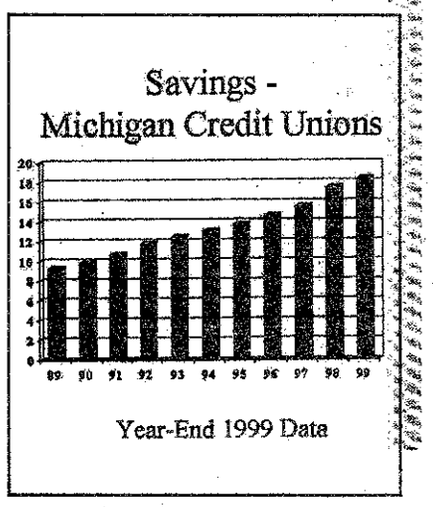
Credit union educators teach students K-12 about savings, debt, credit, budgets, investing and spending, and the overall importance of practicing smart personal finance habits.

In November 1999, the Michigan Family Involvement Council and the Michigan Credit Union League sponsored a "Credit Unions in the Classroom" seminar for some 100 new and seasoned credit union educators. A second session was held this year Oct. 4-5 in Northville to encourage even greater classroom participation from credit union staffers and volunteers.

"Every educational effort helps, even if it's only a one-hour classroom presentation," Harris said. "With students gaining 20 percent of their money management knowledge from financial professionals, it's our responsibility to make a dedicated effort."

CP Federal Credit Union in Jackson won individual recognition from the NYIB for conducting the fifth highest number of presentations among credit unions nationwide. Susan Young, youth representative at CP Federal, also earned national third-place honors for the number of presentations conducted by an individual and second-place for number of students reached. She gave 203 presentations in the 1999/2000 school year, reaching 5,638 students.

Nationally, 622 presenters reached 127,129 students through 5,315 presentations in the 1999-00 school year. The NYIB is comprised of credit union professionals dedicated to financial literacy, youth education and leadership development. For a complete report of the 1999-00 school year, visit the NYIB's Web site at www.nyib.org.



WHAT GOES IN TO RATE AND FEE DECISIONS?

By Keith Peterson
Everybody's Money

How does your credit union decide what rates to set on loan and savings accounts, and the fees it charges for services? While every credit union is unique, some elements are common to every credit union.

The credit union movement's motto, "not for profit, not for charity, but for service," says a lot about how credit unions operate. Your credit union's goal isn't to make profits for stockholders, because there aren't any stockholders: The members - you - own the credit union. That means you won't often find a credit union setting rates and fees on a "whatever the market will bear" basis, as is common at for-profit businesses. Most credit unions offer better rates and fees than most banks for any given service.

But credit unions aren't charities, either - they don't solicit donations to give away money or to subsidize the financial services provided to members. That means your credit union needs to set rates and fees that will generate enough income to pay its cost of operations. Income must equal or exceed outflow.

In addition to covering its costs, your credit union needs to build up financial reserves to absorb unexpected losses from loan defaults or other financial setbacks. All credit unions in Michigan carry federal deposit insurance that protects each member's savings up to $100,000 in the event the credit union fails. However, it's better for all concerned if the credit union's reserves allow it to withstand adversity and avoid service disruptions, rather than relying on federal insurance to protect member savings.

Determining just how large a reserve base to have is an inexact science. Regulators encourage credit unions to err on the conservative side.

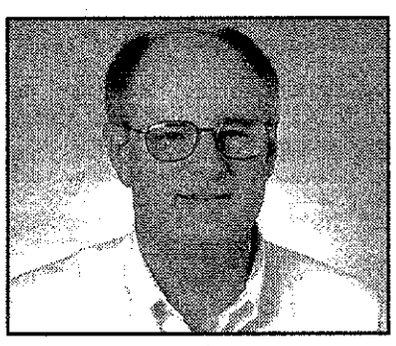
NATURE NOTES



TIM NOWICKI

Jays prepare to fly south for winter

Have you noticed more blue jays around these days compared to summer? I've noticed several in flocks as I walk through the oak forest at work. This is the time of year when several family groups from northern climates gather together and move south. These are the groups we are seeing in the forest.

Blue jays eat primarily plant material. Fully three-quarters of their diet consists of seeds such as acorns, beech nuts and corn. Jays enjoy black-oiler sunflower seeds at feeders, too. They will take a seed and fly to a nearby branch and then place the seed under their toes, or between their toes. Once the seed is secure, they will pound on it with their stout bill. One blue jay I watched during a winter season liked one particular place on a branch. It used that spot so often, it scraped the bark off the branch.

Acorns are a very important wild food for blue jays. They will pluck them off tree branches or search under leaves for them.

Some acorns are carried to a cache where they are stored until needed. A Jay can carry one acorn in his throat and another in his bill as he flies to his cache. Sometimes jays drop an acorn en route. Scientists noticed how a spur from an oak forest to another separated forest developed over a period of time. They concluded that as blue jays flew from the oak forest across the clearing to the other forest, they dropped acorns either accidentally or intentionally. If a predator attacked them in the clearing, they probably dropped their acorns to reduce their weight, thus making it easier to avoid the predator.

Many acorns stored in the ground are not recovered. Those acorns are likely to grow into new oak trees. Since blue jays are related to crows, and crows are one of the most intelligent birds, jays are also intelligent enough to remember where most of those acorns are buried.

Nuts are not the only food eaten by jays, according to Terres' Encyclopedia of North American Birds. Blue jays have also been known to eat various berries, many different kinds of insects, including gypsy moth caterpillars, small fish, frogs, mice, bats, eggs and nestlings.

During the nesting season jays remain quiet as they search for nests of small songbirds. This is not a significant part of their diet, but it is the food that many people are disturbed about. Both crows and blue jays will eat the eggs – probably for the calcium that they need replenished after laying their own eggs – and nestlings, despite the best efforts of the parent birds to chase them away.

Blue jays are big for songbirds. They are about 12 inches long and weigh about 3 ounces. Smaller birds cannot defend themselves against such a big bird and often must vacate their position at the bird feeder when jays arrive. Size does make a difference in the animal world.

That is probably why jays mob great horned owls. Owls are bigger than they are and will kill jays when given the opportunity.

But jays can make life miserable for owls by drawing attention to their position, which often attracts crows, who are larger and capable of inflicting injury on the owl.

While there are lots of jays in the area, listen to their calls and see if you can hear them imitate the sound of a red-shouldered hawk.

Livonia resident Tim Nowicki is a naturalist with Independence Oaks Park north of Clarkston in Oakland County.

Coach: Parents should relax; don't blame ref for everything

PAUL BEAUDRY

A week ago, I wrote a column complaining about the decline of common sense in sports.

It decried a Livonia youth football coach who struck a parent and faced assault charges, despite the fact that the parent would not stop provoking the coach.

It bemoaned the Brighton superintendent who suspended girls basketball coach Carol Henson, who gave her daughter a multi-vitamin supplement — then gave one to another player who asked for one, prompting the suspension.

It gently ripped officials who treat some incidents as no big deal, when they should be, and make other incidents into more than they should be.

And it praised two Minneapolis high school soccer teams that came up with a novel way to defuse the bad blood between the two schools.

All who responded agreed that there's sometimes a loss of common sense when it came to sports. One woman wrote asking what her area youth soccer program could do to improve its image along those lines.

I turned the question over to Garden City soccer coach Bill Torni and asked him to respond – being better suited than I to offer advice.

The abridged letter and response follow. Both offer solid insight into what is happening in not just sports, but society.

The advice is, I feel, sound. Hopefully, we can all learn from it. Take a step back and realize just what is at stake – children.

A parent's letter

"LT" of Livonia writes: The lack of common sense response to potentially bad situations really upsets me, too.

You mentioned the soccer game in Minneapolis and the cooperation between the athletic directors and players in resolving the situation. What a great example! I am a soccer mom who is frustrated by the rough play even at my son's U-6 level (I have three soccer players — another in travel rec and another in premier).

We have the necessary ingredients to be able to control the game, but we adults are not willing to take action on behalf of our children. I would much rather use money for less uniform or equipment in favor of funneling that money to paying for referee training.

Half the problem on the field is that the referee is not educated and/or practiced enough to make the appropriate call. Training brings confidence and confidence brings the ability to make the right call as well as standing up to the screaming, insulting adults when a difficult call is made or not made.

By providing the means for quality officiating from the earliest ages, we are giving our children the best possible opportunity to learn the sport the way it was meant to be played, instead of focusing on self-defense on the field. I realize that body contact is part of soccer, but I'm afraid that we have let it get out of control because calls that should have been made haven't during the children's early years and it simply becomes a part of the game.

To me, this is totally unacceptable when we have the ability to make a positive change.

Coach Bill Torni offers this response:

I am in my ninth year as varsity coach at Garden City High School.

I have been involved in soccer since 1978, as a parent, a rec and premier coach, a trustee through president of a soccer association, a state-qualified referee, and hold a Level "D" coaching license. I have also gone to various clinics and seminars on team management. I am supplying this information not to impress you, but to define the basis of my advice.

Shift focus: Parents should focus on positives of the game; don't dwell on the negatives.

Referees do need better training. This is, however, not even phase one of the solutions to youth sports (note sports, not soccer).

In my experience, the 5- and 6-year-olds are quite content with running and kicking a ball in any direction for whatever reason.

It is the parents and coaches who want more out of the game.

Half the problem

In your letter you wrote, "Half the problem on the field is that the referee is not educated enough and/or practiced enough to be able to make the appropriate call."

I am glad you recognize this is only half the problem. A club official should be supervising the youth referees and evaluating them at the field in real time. That could go a long way in solving half the problem.

The other half is within your realm.

Be supportive of the play, take note of specific instances where you think the referee could improve, and then try to objectively see the official's viewpoint. If you feel that the referee is consistently doing a poor job officiating, then you need to be specific with criticism at the proper venue, not the game.

Too many young referees quit because of the abuse they receive from spectators and coaches. They do not get the chance to mature and gain experience. Your club needs to better supervise youth games, if you are having the problems you mentioned. Become involved, offer assistance, and try officiating a match or scrimmage yourself.

You don't know how many times I have heard how the referee "blew that call" that "cost us the game."

How often do you hear "Man, did I shank that shot, that cost us the game"?

Set example

We need to lead by example.

In my matches, if I notice a player is really bothered by a call/no call I will bring him off until he can focus on his performance. We as coaches and spectators can have an effect on the game personality.

Understand that referees are going to make mistakes, but also understand the more they are harassed the less prone they will be to make any call at all.

I think that you are correct in your assessment of referee shortcomings and the effect that this is having on the game. We are seeing, in youth soccer, inexperienced officials because we don't cultivate them from a young age.

The community soccer leagues are where it needs to start. When I was the referee assignor in Garden City, each referee had a top level that they could officiate — based on ability, not age. Inquire how your league is making assignments. Have your league contact referee associations for an available list of officials if they find they are short in talent.

I feel that all referees should belong to an association. The state requires it, but let's face it we sometimes count ourselves lucky to have a warm body dressed in black to officiate without placing demands on them. Community leagues must make sure that the games can be properly handled. If that means going outside and getting qualified officials, so be it.

Good training

The best training is youth matches. Experience is the key ingredient.

When talking to your child about the game, don't make the official's shortcomings the main focus of your discussion. Focus instead on the good things accomplished — the nice pass combinations, movement off the ball, strong defensive containment, and scoring chances. Most players already know what went wrong; they need to hear from you what went right. Try not to let the players hear you harangue the officials during the match. I guarantee this only incites them.

I would like to offer one last bit of advice. Make sure that your teams are placed in comparable talent groups. It will increase the team talent while eliminating the one-sided, ego-busting, revengeful games.

I am really concerned, as a coach, about society's willingness to place blame on the official instead of the hot-headedness of today's young athlete — not just soccer, but all sports.

I feel that you have correctly identified one problem facing sports — violence being morphed into the games — but the sole blame cannot be placed on officials. As you say, "we have the ability to make a positive change."

15-year-old bowling whiz wins 2nd event

AL HARRISON

Brandon strikes again! The 15-year-old bowling phenom from Warren has put another tournament title in his pocket along with a $1,000 first place check in the season's first monthly Bacardi/Brunswick/Blue Ribbon Group tournament last Saturday at Beech Lanes in Redford.

■ Brandon has a certain flair to his style, great accuracy and a whip-like arm swing with a shot that hits like a stick of dynamite, leaving no ten pin, no four pin, no five pin, he just sweeps the back end clean on most of his shots.

Brandon Hilgendorf also became the first two-time winner of this event, having captured the title last season at Cherry Hill Lanes. To gain the victory, he had to get by a tough obstacle in Ed Dudek of Livonia who breezed through the rest of the field to make the finals against Brandon. In stark contrast, Dudek is a veteran of Senior Leagues and the Seniors tournaments. Brandon has a certain flair to his style, great accuracy and a whip-like arm swing with a shot that hits like a stick of dynamite, leaving no ten pin, no four pin, no five pin, he just sweeps the back end clean on most of his shots.

Mike Surdyk of Redford finished in the third spot and Matt Randall of Allen Park took fourth place money.

The Bacardi/Brunswick/Blue Ribbon Group tournaments will be held on the first Saturday of every month. The next one is slated for Nov. 5 at Westland Bowl. For information or entry forms, call (734) 722-7570.

If you missed the first episode of Ed on channel 4 last Sunday night, the new series that features a lawyer who goes back home from the Big Apple to Stuckeyville. He buys the local bowling alley only to learn that they have virtually no customers. He winds up giving free legal advice to anyone who comes in and bowls three games. The time slot is 8 p.m., so if you missed the first show, try it this week.

Something new has been added this year in the Greater Detroit Bowling Association. If you have paid your sanction fee, the card will come in the mail. The latest newsletter is about ready to go out in the mail to all members.

Tim Detherage of Westland stopped Joe Fitzsimmons of Waterford in his bid to become the oldest Budweiser Michigan Majors champion 223-192. Joe is 66 years old and led the tournament throughout the match play before falling to Detherage. Joe would have displaced Scotty Laughland of Windsor who had previously won at the age of 62 a few years ago. The win for Detherage was worth $1,000, and Fitzsimmons received $500 for second place. The next BMMBA tournament is slated for Oct. 21-22 at Ches-Ami Lanes in Grand Rapids. Check out the BMMBA on the Internet by logging on to www.michiganmajors.net. Any questions? Call Lee Snow at (248) 981-3723.

From Belleville, Mich. to Sebring, Fla. is a pretty long distance for Lisa Bishop to travel, but she made it worthwhile by taking the title and a check for $11,000, in the fourth win of her pro tour career. She did it by defeating Cara Honeychurch 257-193.

Honeychurch was even further away from home as she hails from Melbourne, Australia. Lisa did not have to worry about spare shooting in the final match as she delivered 10 out a possible 12 strikes. West Bloomfield's Cheryl Daniels finished in 13th place and Aleta Sill of Dearborn came in 22nd. The Ladies Pro Tour can be seen at 8 p.m. Mondays on ESPN.

Music series spotlights Polish pianist

Libby Sherbin and Claire Levine volley back and forth non-stop as they discuss one of their favorite subjects – the Birmingham Temple's Vivace Music Series opening Oct. 21 with pianist Kazimierz Brzozowski.

Like the title of the series, they are filled with energy and enthusiasm for the diverse musical programming. Their devotion to bringing the best in classical, jazz and Jewish music to the series has lasted through more than 20 years of serving on the committee.

What: Birmingham Temple's Vivace musical series spotlights the talents of pianist Kazimierz Brzozowski
When: 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21
Where: Birmingham Temple, 28611 West 12 Mile Road, between Inkster and Middlebelt, Farmington Hills
Tickets: $18, $15, seniors/students/members, call (248) 788-9338 or (248) 288-3953

"When we started the series, which is now entering its 26th season, we wanted to bring cultural and arts events to the Temple and community," said Sherbin who co-chairs the committee with Levine. "Our first artist was so successful we expanded to two and then four concerts and attempted to sell them as a series. It's an extension of our philosophy about the importance of the arts and makes a statement about our humanism.

"An afterglow allows the audience to meet the artists and mingle in the Temple as well as meet old and new friends."

Diverse programming

Variety is key to the series. Twenty-six years ago, the committee had to search for artists, now musicians and vocalists come to them to perform in the Temple in Farmington Hills where over the years William Bolcom and Joan Morris, Alexander Zonjic, and Phil Marcus Esser have taken turns in delighting audiences.

"We started with purely classical interests and with local artists then began to draw on artists from different parts of the state and then New York and LA," said Levine. "Over the years we've had a variety of music including folk, ethnic, jazz, vocal and Sephardic. This year one of the concerts features Klezmer music. We've also sponsored young artists we think have a promising future, also immigrant artists from Russia such as Irina Mishura, who went on to sing with the Michigan Opera Theatre and is now with the MET."

Artists such as Kazimierz Brzozowski are chosen by a committee of 25-30 music lovers, including Jerrie Laytner, creator of visual art for programs and brochures, after they've attended concerts or listened to the artists' CD. Brzozowski captured the hearts of several committee members when they heard him play as part of the Adult Learning Institute at Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

Musical background

Brzozowski has loved playing piano since he was seven-years-old in Lublin, Poland. After studying at the State School of Music in his hometown, Brzozowski went on to earn a master's degree at the Chopin Academy of Music in Warsaw. He came to Michigan to do his doctoral work in piano performance at the University of Michigan School of Music in 1987 on scholarships from the Kosciuszko Foundation in New York and the Johnson Foundation.

"Music was always something I liked," said Brzozowski, a Walled Lake resident. "There was a piano at home and I had two older brothers who went to music schools so I wanted to be like my brothers. In Poland, the whole system for teaching music is different. There are no private lessons. Kids apply for music school."

Ideally, Brzozowski likes to practice

Artist NEVER LOSES Sight OF HIS ROOTS

Watchful eye: Kegham Tazian mixes mediums to create this painting focusing on a guardian of the environment.

The Prophet: Kegham Tazian drew this work on the computer then added collage, which consisted of his old prints, then paint.

Kegham Tazian rushes into the Smith Theatre Gallery to install one last art work in his sabbatical exhibit at Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

The assemblage, a statement about the dominance of computers in everyday life, marks a brief journey away from the paintings and clay sculptures that frequently focus on the stoic, veiled women of his homeland. A Farmington Hills artist of Armenian heritage, Tazian has no intention of abandoning this subject matter.

The 54 mixed-media works and figurative sculptures reflect a deep love for the villages and countryside of Lebanon where he was born and spent his childhood before immigrating to the U.S. in 1960. With few exceptions, Tazian uses the colors of the earth and sky he remembers there.

Who: Kegham Tazian exhibits the mixed media, sculpture and computer aided art created during his sabbatical
When: Through Friday, Nov. 3. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday
Where: In the Smith Theatre on the campus of Oakland Community College, 27055 Orchard Lake Road at I-696, Farmington Hills. For more information, call (248) 522-3593

Inspiration

"My inspiration is my heritage," said Tazian, who's been a member of the arts faculty at OCC for 34 years. "Although I came here as a young man, the U.S. is like a studio rather than a source for subject matter. I'm a firm believer in that our concept for the work never changes but the way in which we handle it does. I can't stay with one medium."

Tazian's versatility is seen in a number of works where abstraction and realism exist side-by-side. He's especially successful in The Window, a two-dimensional painting in clay that features a woman trapped behind iron bars.

In another work, two women become part of the cave-like surface Tazian lays on top of a piece of Styrofoam insulation retrieved during renovations at the college a few years ago.

Works featuring a mother-and-child theme appear among a few totally abstract works created by layering and spattering paint.

Long and lyrical bronze figures stretch and reach for each other and the heavens. Tazian consciously avoided the clay sculpture he's known for in favor of bronze figures, but one stunning work features two faces emerging from the tops of towering rock formations that look like ancient buildings.

Computer-aided art

Viewers familiar with Tazian's works in national exhibits as well as local venues such as those sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission in the fine art gallery at the Civic Center Library won't be disappointed in the new computer-aided art. Tazian focuses on the same themes as he did when he was named the Farmington Area Arts Commission's artist-in-residence in 1985 but now incorporates a variety of fresh textures. Using Fractile Painter 5 on a Macintosh computer, Tazian quickly draws in the subject then adds collage and paint to create mixed media such as The Prophet, which incorporates some of his old torn-up prints. Teaching allows Tazian the freedom to experiment and create all of this art without financial consideration.

"This is another computer-aided art – America is a quilt of what we are – the rural, the cities," said Tazian, whose commissions include the city of Farmington's 125th anniversary sculpture and work for Forest Lake Country Club, Bloomfield Hills, Siemman's International Corp., Troy, and Wayne State University's Medical Center. "It's no different than a canvas. Being in the classroom, you can't be oblivious to what's current but not to lose sight of how to do things in a traditional way.

"Computers are an additional tool that have allowed me to get a little more versatile, another way to do things as far as texture. The person behind the mouse has to know what to do. My respect for painting and drawing hasn't diminished. It brings up the question – is it art or isn't it art? Any new idea is up for confrontation. Still you have to be an artist to do it. I haven't abandoned traditional ways."

Tazian is still a teacher at heart, lecturing on the basics with one eye to the future.

Twin Towers: This clay sculpture, featuring two faces emerging from the top of a rock like structure, is reminiscent of Kegham Tazian's earlier works.

Exhibit puts world in focus

Jules Verne wrote of going around the world in 80 days.

Barnes & Noble in West Bloomfield, is offering a special world tour – through a major exhibit by award-winning fine art photographer Monte Nagler.

The show, running, Oct. 16-31, will feature about 70 photos taken all over the globe by the Farmington Hills resident over the last 15 years. Most of them were taken within the last two or three years. Nagler will be present at the display 3-9 p.m. every day.

"I like hanging out at the exhibits, telling the stories (behind the photos)," said Nagler, whose Focus on Photography column appears in the Observer & Eccentric At Home section. "I like to explain to the people why I like black and white.

"It's more artistic. There is more feeling and emotion in black and white than in color. For me, the creativity when shooting color ends as soon as you hit the shutter release."

Reception

A reception for the artist will take place 7-9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20. Nagler will give a presentation, Journey Through the History of Photography, 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, at which he will show some of the original photos he owns by Alfred Steiglitz, Ansel Adams and other famous photographers.

Ideally, Brzozowski likes to practice three hours a day, but his busy teaching and concertizing schedule doesn't always allow him to do that. This year alone, Brzozowski, a member of the music faculty at Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills, performed three concerts in Japan, and at the International Summer Music Festival he founded in Poland. The festival provides high school and college students from around the world with intensive studies and the opportunity to perform as solo artists and with a chamber orchestra comprised of members of the Lublin Philharmonic.

Chopin

"I began the camp because I'm from Poland and know Chopin is from there and I like to go back there," said Brzozowski who made his Carnegie Hall debut in 1993. "Chopin is my favorite composer. As far as piano music, he's one of the best. He was ahead of his contemporaries with harmonies and technique."

■ The Birmingham Temple juried art show opens with a preview and reception 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 3 and continues to Sunday, Nov. 5. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday-Sunday

Brzozowski will play mazurkas by Chopin along with music by Mozart and Prokofiev to add diversity to the audience's listening pleasure.

"Mozart is 18th century classical, Prokofiev Sonata No. 2 is early 20th century, and Chopin is 19th century romantic," he said. "It's all different styles so it's interesting for people."

Like Brzozowski, Sherbin, Levine and the rest of the committee have programmed music for all tastes this season. The second concert will spotlight the talents of New York musician, composer and film maker Yale Strom and Hot Pstromi Saturday, Nov. 18. Strom studied the roots of Jewish music for his newest documentary film from which he'll present clips. His band along with vocalist Elizabeth Schwartz will perform Yiddish standards, Klezmer music and Strom's compositions which combine elements of Klezmer, Hasidic, Sephardic and classical.

The third concert features the flute and classical guitar music of the Dearing Concert Duo Saturday, April 21. Steven and Abha Dearing, husband and wife musicians from Plymouth, will perform a variety of styles which include Renaissance music, modern French and "New Tango."

The final concert of the season, Saturday, May 26, is one jazz lovers won't want to miss. The Western Jazz Quartet will be joined by vocalist Sunny Wilkinson.

Support

"We've had a lot of support from Rabbi Wine not only for the music series, but our art exhibit, drama group, choirs and an annual book fair," said Levine.

Nagler started taking photography seriously after studying with Adams. It was then that he realized that "making photographs is a way to experience beauty instead of just looking at it."

Nagler has a fall exhibit every year, usually in the Rochester area. This year's site is a different venue.

"I'm a book store lover," Nagler said.

The exhibit will present examples of the lyrical black and white photos for which Nagler is famous.

On view are the power of Stonehenge as well as the delicacy of a castle in Spain, a simple interior in Louisiana as well as majestic rocks in Arizona, expressive faces as well as evocative places.

■ Dramatic elements are shown in some photos, such as those of a beach in Malibu and a dune in New Mexico.

Some appear to be from a dream, such as the photo of a pavilion in Korea that seems to be standing behind a veil of mist. Dark, leafy branches frame the image.

"That's one of my all-time favorite pictures," Nagler said.

Among the charming pictures are those of a young mother and child in China, and of a bicycle standing against the side of a building in France.

Dramatic elements are shown in some photos, such as those of a beach in Malibu and a dune in New Mexico. In the former, waves swirl around craggy rocks, under a sky filled with a pattern of clouds. In the latter, the sand and clouds present shadow plays.

Subjects in other photos take on a magical look. Boulders in New Zealand resemble loaves of bread, or beads in a giant necklace. Cascading falls in Michigan look like silk.

Nagler is also a noted writer, lecturer and teacher of photography. His photography books are titled How To Improve Your Photographic Vision and Statements Of Light.

If you get a chance to make the short trip to Barnes & Noble on Orchard Lake Road between 14 and 15 Mile, it's very likely that you'll leave with a view of the world.

MOT opens season with 'La Bohéme'

BY ALICE RHEIN
STAFF WRITER
arhein@oe.homecomm.net

In the metropolitan Detroit area, the "Big 3" refers to Ford Motor Co., General Motors and DaimlerChrysler.

But in the world of opera, it refers to the most beloved operas of Giacomo Puccini: La Bohéme, Tosca and Madame Butterfly.

For its season opener this year, the Michigan Opera Theatre will perform what has become the greatest of the greats, the beautifully bittersweet love story La Bohéme, through Sunday, Oct. 22 at the Detroit Opera House.

The MOT last performed this story of four struggling artists living in the Latin Quarter of Paris in the mid-1800s in 1996, the year the new opera house opened.

Few can forget the collective gasp from the audience as the curtain opened for Act II, and the Café Momus on Christmas Eve came to life.

The scenery was breathtaking – far more impressive than its previous incarnation at the Masonic Temple. And the chorus was exuberant.

This year's production should be equally impressive, and Suzanne Acton, the chorus master, is ready once again to bring the Italian opera to its fruition.

"I can't even count how many times I've been involved in La Bohéme's production," said Acton, who has also conducted the opera for other companies.

But that isn't to say that it's become routine for her. Each new production brings new principal performers (Francesca Pedaci and Inese Galante as Mimi, and Raul Melo as Rodolfo are making their MOT debut) and the children's and adult chorus, which feature prominently in Act II, are always changing.

"That's one of the nice things about this business. Though it's the same opera, the ingredients that go into it are different every time," said Acton.

Parisian life: The Latin Quarter in the mid 19th-century sets the stage for "La Bohéme's" tragic love story.

What: Michigan Opera Theatre presents La Bohéme
Where: Detroit Opera House, 1526 Broadway, Detroit
When: 8 p.m. Oct. 18, 20, 21 and 2 p.m. Oct. 15, 22.

Child's solo

One of the new ingredients in this production is 11-year-old Dennis Strach, a Rochester Hills resident who has the lone child's solo in addition to his part in the chorus.

Strach, a 7th grader at Holy Family in Rochester Hills, is no stranger to opera. He performed in last year's productions of Tosca and Werther, and will play the lead in the Music Hall's production of Amahl and the Night Visitors on Sunday, Dec. 10.

"I was surprised and very happy to learn that I'll be working with (Acton) in Amahl, too," said Strach, "She's always ready to work with you if you need more help."

Since the opera is sung in Italian, help usually means getting the words just right. Acton said she first teaches the pronunciation, then the tempo, then the meaning.

"This particular piece is more difficult than Tosca because the children don't sing a whole piece, they have to know where to enter while others are singing, and they have to be able to find the right pitch," she said.

Her approach is to focus heavily on the language first. And while attention span differences need to be taken into account, Acton said the children learn very quickly.

"I had one child ask me 'Why do the adults have so much problem learning the words?'" said Acton. "The children catch on very quickly."

As one of the most performed and beloved of all operas, La Bohéme is appealing to both novices and devotees alike. The story glimpses into the lives of four young bohemians and Mimi, a beautiful young woman stricken with consumption.

"Even if you don't know La Bohéme, you know the music," said Acton. And that is more than reason enough to spend a night at the opera.

THEATER

Meadow Brook Theatre presents compelling drama

BY LANA MINI
LMINI@OE.HOMECOMM.NET

Denise McCauley understands the play she is soon to perform is an important one.

Her role as Mrs. Frank, the strong-willed mother of the child who's mere name rings of the Holocaust tragedy, is one that can never be overplayed.

The original stage version of The Dairy of Anne Frank will be performed at Wilson Hall, Oakland University in Rochester Hills, MeadowBrook Theatre. It will run Oct. 18- Nov. 12. With many of the 30 performances selling-out quickly, it seems obvious the community agrees with the importance of the play.

"As time has passed, we may be seeing the last generations of Holocaust survivors," McCauley of Bloomfield Hills said. "It's important their stories continue to be told."

While preparing for the performance, the Anne Frank cast visited the Holocaust Memorial Museum and spoke with a concentration camp survivor.

"It was important for her that we knew everything that happened — people can never forget and new generations must hear about it. I'm really honored to be a part of this," McCauley said.

The character of Mrs. Frank has been all-consuming for McCauley, who re-located to Bloomfield Hills from Chicago several years ago.

"Mrs. Frank was very repressed emotionally...she couldn't afford to show emotion because she needed to be strong for her family. But, I think living in the annex took the biggest toll on her and I hope the audience gets a sense of that," McCauley said.

Although McCauley as Mrs. Frank does not have a great many lines, she is still on the stage, living in the annex, during the entire play. Showing the passage of time while living in hiding will be one of the more difficult aspects to perform.

At Meadow Brook: Nicole Raphael plays the role of Anne Frank in The Diary of Anne Frank at Meadow Brook Theatre beginning this month.

Cast

The role of Anne Frank will be performed by Nicole Raphael. Other starring cast members are Traber Burns who plays Otto Frank; Heather DeSisto as Margot; Andrew Glaszek as Peter; Nicole Katovich as Miep; Thomas Mahard as Mr. Kraler; Dorry Peltyn as Mrs. Van Daan; Paul Raphael as Mr. Van Daan; and John Shuman as Mr. Dussel.

Interestingly, in the play, the duvet that McCauley uses while playing Mrs. Frank actually belonged to the mother.

The performances are expected to have an intimate touch since Guest Director Susan Kerner was once friends with Anne Frank's stepsister and her childhood friend.

She also worked on another related piece with playwright James Still titled, And then they came for me: Remembering the World of Anne Frank.

Kerner is an associate professor at Montclair State University and was resident director at George Street Playhouse. Patrons might recognize actors Glaszek and Mahard from their roles in A Christmas Carol also at Meadow Brook. McCauley has performed in Meadow Brook's Crimes of the Heart and the female version of The Odd Couple.

McCauley earned a Master's Degree in Fine Arts in acting at Goodman's School of Drama. She began her career as a French translator, but fell in love with the theater.

"The script is incredible," McCaulely said. "We didn't need to add a thing."

She added the play seems accurate, of course, through the eyes of Anne, a child.

For example, in Anne's mind, Mr. Dussel was quite awful because he invaded her bedroom living space, which she was forced to share, when he entered the hideaway.

"In Anne's mind he was horrible, but that wasn't the reality amongst the others in the annex," McCauley said. "But it was her reality."

The Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award-winning stage version of The Diary of Anne Frank was written in 1955 by Albert Hackett and Francis Goodrich, a husband and wife team also recognized for the screenplay of It's a Wonderful Life.

Opening

Ironically, the show opened in Germany simultaneously to more than one million people. Two years later it was made into a film.

Of course Anne Frank greatly details the hopes, fantasies, fears and experience of an adolescent world while the real world around her falls apart. Otto Frank, one of the few family members who survived the Holocaust, published his daughter's diary in 1947. Detailing the events and emotions of Anne, her family, and neighbors as they hide from the Nazis in Amsterdam during World War II, the diary has been translated into 56 languages.

The Diary of Ann Frank is sponsored by Bank One. The Eccentric and WOMC-FM radio are media sponsors for MBT's season.

The word dervish translates as "seeking doors" and began with the inspiration of Mevlana Jalaluddin Rumi, a 13th century mystic and poet who preached love and self-discovery as his religion. It is a seven-part ritual in which the energy of God, or Allah, is said to travel through the body and into the world as a result of pivoting around the left leg in various patterns while accompanied by traditional music.

One of the beauties of this ritual is the way that mind, emotion and spirit combine in a practice and worship that seeks the purification of all three in the turning towards Divine Unity.

Makeup tips are for Halloween faces, too

DISCOVERING BEAUTY

MARY ANNE TOCCALINO

Halloween is almost upon us. And in my opinion, it's not just for kids anymore.

As a makeup artist, it is my favorite time of year. I get the opportunity to transform clients into ghoulish monsters, wicked witches, and deadly zombies.

Here are a few tips and techniques that will enable you to tap into your own artistic abilities so you and your family can be the hit of the Halloween season.

Rule number one: Make sure you plan ahead.

Don't leave your costume and makeup plans until the night before Halloween. Do some advance preparation by getting all the material, props, costumes and makeup items you'll need ahead of time. If you procrastinate, it's inevitable that you won't find exactly what you need.

To save on time, log on to a couple of Web sites that specialize in costumes and special effect makeup. A few useful websites include: halloweenempire.com, makeupmania.com, makeupkits.com and kaoya.com.

All of theses sites offer online ordering and overnight delivery. Additional websites offering Halloween makeup and costumes can be found at Yahoo or Lycos searching under halloween makeup.

Now that you've planned ahead, think ahead. Decide if you should apply your makeup before or after getting into costume.

If your costume can be put on without touching your face and messing up your makeup and outfit, then go ahead and get into makeup first. This way, you won't take the risk of smearing makeup on your costume. However, if your costume is difficult to put on, then go ahead and get into it. Just be cautious when it is time to apply your makeup by simply draping a towel around your neck to protect your wardrobe from splatters and drips.

This way you can do a great job on makeup without being irritated by damaging your costume. While applying your Halloween makeup, make sure to secure your hair back, away from your face.

Use a scarf or clips to completely secure the hair from your face. This will keep your face makeup out of your hair and prevent your hair from messing up your makeup. You'll also obtain a clear view of your entire face this way.

And speaking of view, use a couple of mirrors (one on either side) to study your face. Take a moment to imagine the makeup on your face before applying it.

Take time to make a mental note on how you're going to apply the makeup, step by step. A little planning can prevent wasted time, mistakes and give you new ideas as you think about the application.

Nothing is too strange for Halloween, so be creative! Here are some costume/makeup ideas and some old Hollywood techniques to achieve some old-fashioned Halloween fun.

■ Old as the hills – When trying to look old, start by covering the skin in a lighter-than-normal color using a pale foundation and lightly dusting on baby powder. Then draw on dark lines and slightly blend them to the surrounding area with your finger. Add baby powder to give the skin that weathered dry look. Also, put some light makeup in your hairline and brush it with baby powder to add gray to the hair.

■ Vampire – To be a vampire, initially cover your face with white powder, makeup, or make up stick. Outline sharp eyebrows and then fill them in with black pencil. Draw lines on the face with reddish-brown makeup, and then blur the edges outward. Outline the eyes and draw a line upward on the outer corners. Drip fake blood from the edges of the mouth. You can create this yourself with corn syrup and red food coloring. Comb hair into a point towards the forward and extend it with black pencil. Use fake teeth to complete the transformation.

Stylists aren't just for famous faces anymore

BY NICOLE STAFFORD
SPECIAL EDITOR

nstafford@oe.homecomm.net

Actresses and high profile women have long turned to stylists to shape and refine their appearance and image.

Somewhat mysterious and seemingly inaccessible until recently, stylists might be best described as beauty and fashion generalists. They have an eye for what looks good and a technical background in hair, makeup or fashion.

Todd Skog, perhaps the area's the most well known stylist, calls the profession "the personal shopper of the beauty world."

Skog, owner of Todd's Room in downtown Birmingham, has been consulting with individual clients and working with local talent commercially for almost four years now.

And, the stream of non-commercial clients, from beauty-anxious teens to female executives to 65-year-old women, just keeps getting longer, says Skog.

"It runs the whole gamut. And, women come in for everything."

Brides and bridesmaids have been joined by prom queens, party attendees and ordinary women simply seeking to look their best.

"They're looking for someone to weed through it all, and show them what's best after that," says Skog.

'It all' is the proliferation of beauty information and influx of specialized beauty products on the market that's left the average woman dazed and confused.

Once more, she has less time to sift through information and make choices.

"Just as a stylist, I myself get confused," says Skog.

The newest stylist in town, Jonce, who was educated at Vidal Sassoon and Tina & Guy, says he couldn't agree more.

Women are looking for someone with the technical knowledge they don't have and the trust they need to affirm their own instincts, says Jonce, who will work out of Farrell Reis salon in downtown Birmingham.

"As a client, you don't know the technical stuff because you're not a professional, but you do know what looks good on you," he explains to Kay Lawrence, the Birmingham resident who's in for a consultation.

Only a few minutes into the session, which can last from 15 minutes to two hours depending the client's needs and the individual stylist, Lawrence is astonished.

Jonce has confirmed many of her intuitions about what works best for her, what makes her look best.

"I've learned a great deal about myself – about my hair, about my face, about my face shape and head shape," says Lawrence. "But he's really confirming what I've been believing about myself all along."

Jonce suggests no bangs over the forehead; Lawrence says she's pleaded with hair stylists not to cut them. Jonce recommends a pastel, red-toned eye shadow to contrast Lawrence's green eyes. "Really," says Lawrence. "I used to use a pastel pink."

Such conclusions, though, are reached by client and stylist together. Tips about makeup and clothing and hair recommendations emerge as the stylist explores the artistic principles underlying beauty, from balance and contrast to the effects of light and shadow.

Some stylists offer free consultations. All should be considered no-strings-attached. "There's no commitment," says Skog. "You don't have to feel, oh, I'm cheating on my hair stylist."

■ 'Today, you work with your stylist. You work one-on-one together to define a look.'

Todd Skog
—Local stylist

Though Jonce offers small group seminars – he has one slated for professional women in November and a makeover session in January – one-on-one work with a stylist is informative, rather than instructive.

The client, her needs and her lifestyle, rather than trends, are the focus.

"Women are much more savvy about beauty. What they want is someone they can trust," says Skog. "Today, you work with your stylist. You work one-on-one together to define a look."

To make an appointment with Jonce or obtain additional information about his seminars, call (248) 646-1066. To find out more about the services at Todd's Room or schedule an appointment with Todd Skog, call (248) 594-0003.

Globe-trotting Ling will guest conduct for DSO

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER
kwygonik@oe.homecomm.net

Conductor Jahja Ling is a man on the go. The resident conductor of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra is one of the few American conductors of his generation to have guest-conducted nearly every major symphony orchestra in the U.S.

I caught him on his cell phone in a New York City airport as he waited for a plane to Detroit. He'll be conducting the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Friday-Saturday, Oct. 20-21 in a concert featuring the world premiere of a new work by Pulitzer prize-winning composer William Bolcom of Ann Arbor, Copland's Appalachian Spring, and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4.

Ling has worked with Bolcom before, and is looking forward to conducting his newest piece — Concerto Grosso for Saxophone Quartet.

"I'm very excited, it's a great opportunity," said Ling. "It's going to be wonderful, a four saxophone solo. The saxophone is not a regular orchestra instrument, it's rare."

Prism Saxophone Quartet

Bolcom's work will feature the Prism Saxophone Quartet as soloists. Concerto Grosso incorporates blues harmonies, rhythm-and-blues and bebop.

"It's a pleasure," said Ling about conducting Appalachian Spring. "I know the composer. I played the piano part at Yale and Mr. Copland conducted."

Tchaikovsky, Ling believes, is one of the greatest composers. "I love it," he said referring to Symphony No. 4. "It's melancholy and uplifting. The second movement is intriguing."

Born in Jakarta, Indonesia of Chinese descent, and now a U.S. citizen, Ling is also Music Director of the Florida Orchestra and Artistic Director of the National Symphony Orchestra of Taiwan.

What: Guest conductor Jahja Ling leads the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in a concert featuring the premiere of a new work by William Bolcom, Copland's Appalachian Spring, and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4.
When: 10:45 a.m. and 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21.
Where: Orchestra Hall, 3711 Woodward Ave., Detroit
Tickets: Call (313) 576-5111 or visit the Web site www.detroitsymphony.com (All evening performances will be preceded by Ford ConcerTalks featuring host Charles Greenwell.)

He began playing piano at age four, and, at age 18, received a Rockefeller grant to study piano and conducting at the Juilliard School of Music.

In the summer of 1980 he was awarded the Leonard Bernstein Conducting Fellowship at Tanglewood, and was selected by Bernstein in 1982 to be a Conducting Fellow at the Los Angeles Philharmonic Institute. After earning his master's degree at Juilliard, he earned a doctorate of musical arts degree from Yale. Bernstein was a mentor who encouraged Ling to pursue a career in conducting.

A turning point in his career was when a teacher told him that he had the talent to communicate to an orchestra.

"I like the different sounds of the instruments, and the color of sound," he said explaining why he enjoys conducting. "When you play piano the colors are limited."

A conductor on the go, Ling said he enjoys conducting the different orchestras and the uniqueness of each one. "I'm very happy, I'm very busy," he said.

The last time Ling was in Detroit was 1991 when he conducted the DSO at the Meadow Brook Music Festival.

Meeting colleagues

"I heard Orchestra Hall is an excellent hall," he said. "It has great acoustics. It will be nice to meet with some of my colleagues again. Your concertmaster, Emmanuelle Boisvert was a member of the Cleveland Orchestra. I've worked with some of the other musicians too."

"When I was playing with the Cleveland Orchestra, it's hard to believe – a dozen years ago, Jahja Ling was our Resident Conductor," said Boisvert. "I remember his performances were very dynamic and very musical. He also spent a lot of time working with children which is so important. This will be the first time I have played under his baton since, and the first time for many of our musicians. Each guest conductor is quite different, and so that gives us added anticipation."

Jahja Ling

Toronto: A cultural mecca

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
SPECIAL WRITER

I can remember when my aunt, a native Detroiter transplanted for a time to Toronto during the '50's, scurried whenever possible to Detroit for her fix of culture and big city life.

Those times, as Detroit Tigers' announcer Ernie Harwell would say, are looong gone. Over the last 40 years - a relatively short time for a city to develop - Toronto has experienced an influx of cultures, far-sighted planning, and creation of a world-class cultural, culinary, and couture scene.

The city offers so many attractions for children - the Ontario Science Center, Ontario Place, the Toronto Islands, the dinosaurs and special kids-oriented galleries at the Royal Ontario Museum -- that it has become a family vacation destination. My adult children still talk about the towers and dungeons of the 20th Century castle, Casa Loma.

Propelled by its active theater scene and the strength of the American dollar, my husband and I reversed my aunt's journey and headed for Toronto for our three-day fix of culture and big city life in early August.

Our first order of business was to see The Lion King. Even resorting to a New York-based ticket broker two months before, we were unable to get tickets for a weekend, so settled for a Thursday night performance.

We weren't disappointed. The artistry of the production, particularly the combined use of puppetry and the human body to portray the animals, for us, took precedence over the story and music. Director Julie Taymor succeeded in her stated goal of making the production "as theatrical as possible, not try to hide the mechanics: Let people see the actors and dancers behind the animal characters."

It was only after we had booked our air and hotel reservations that we heard about Mamma Mia, the musical hit from London based on the songs of Abba - Sweden's gift to pop music. We were limited to tickets for the Friday night performance at the vintage Royal Alexandra Theatre.

Our usually dependable New York broker couldn't help us. But a call to the concierge at the hotel we had chosen turned up two seats for which we paid the price for tardiness even with the favorable exchange rate. In hindsight, I recommend more flexibility and planning than we had.

Still, in my mind it was worth it. The Abba songs you've heard take on a new dimension as they are worked deftly into a romantic comedy. Believe me, you never thought of Dancing Queen, or Money, Money, Money quite in the way they are delivered. It is pure enjoyment and no doubt headed for a New York production.

Part of the fun of going to theater in Toronto is joining the throngs in its theater district. It's not quite Broadway but close. According to the great travel guide book Fodor's Toronto, it's the third largest center - after New York and London - for English-speaking theater in the world. These two hot tickets are lodged in theaters along King Street, where you can dine at any of dozens of bars and restaurants in the shadow of the CN Tower.

The tower, high as it is, was the only low spot of our trip. Even though we have been to Toronto a number of times, it hadn't been on our list. But given a clear day and the tower's proximity to the harbor, where we planned a stroll, we decided to give it a try.

After waiting more than an hour in line, including viewing a drab, poorly done film about it, we finally made it to the Lookout Level (1,136 feet) of the highest free-standing structure in the world. What greeted us were wonderful views and another long line to get to the Skypod, 30 more stories up. Although we had paid the steep price ($22.50 each Canadian), we decided the time involved wasn't worth it and departed.

On our way to the Harbor, we passed one of three film crews we saw during our stay. Toronto has become a major movie and advertising production site. The Sutton Place Hotel, where we stayed, is known for drawing top people from stage and screen as guests. So is Bistro 990, just across Bay Street from the hotel, where we enjoyed an authentically French pre-theater dinner. However, our waiter told us if we wanted to see the "stars" we'd have to return much later in the evening.

Two and a half days in Toronto go by fast. We latched on to a docent-led tour of the Period Rooms and viewed the metalwork, ceramics and glass collections at the eclectic Royal Ontario Museum. The next day, we toured its across the street neighbor, the Gardiner Museum of Ceramic Art, the first museum in North America devoted to ceramics and ceramic research. Starting with figures and vessels of the Americas from 3000 BC to the 1500s, you work your way through Italian Renaissance ceramics, English 17th Century pottery and both Chinese blue and white and European porcelain from the 18th Century.

This turned into our decorative arts holiday. We spent at least an hour -- and some dollars -- in William Ashley China at 55 Bloor Street West in Yorkville which has the largest assortment of china, glass, tableware and kitchen gadgetry I have ever seen. Its windows, headlined "The Great Wall of China" display hundreds of plates of different patterns.

I did find time to shop for clothing, finding success at the Bravado Boutique at 10 Hazelton Avenue. A children's shop, Chicco, in Old York Lane provided me with some essential grandchildren gifts.

If you are going to Toronto anytime through the end of October, your trip will be buoyed by the 326 assorted moose statues scattered throughout the city. Like their counterparts in Chicago and New York City, this whimsical public art both enlivens the city and is a charitable endeavor.

Each business that sponsored a moose can choose to keep it or donate it to an auction, reports Maureen Gallagher, marketing manager for Toronto Special Events. A third of the money raised at the auction goes to the Canadian Olympic movement and two-thirds to each business' charity of choice.

Not to worry. She did promise that for those who plan trips to Toronto over the holiday season, "There will be some holiday moose around - but not the whole herd."

SEASONAL SENSATIONS

DIANE REYNOLDS

Fill plates with palate-pleasing autumn salads

One of my favorite summer meal choices is enjoying the vast array of fresh flavors a cool salad meal offers. We all seem to make healthier meal choices when the temperature soars.

With brisk autumn weather underway, there is no reason not to continue some of these habits by including salads as a meal introduction, a side course, or a front and center entrée. Busy weeknight meal dilemmas can be solved with a two-course meal of tasty salad served with a hearty cup of soup or chili.

Don't forget that a cupful of leafy greens counts as one serving toward your "5 A Day" need for fruits and vegetables. Make that salad a generous size with a variety of fruits and veggies to easily get three or four servings in a single meal.

Selecting the greens

First, get out of the iceberg rut. (You know who you are!) You're the shopper who breezes by the vast selection of vibrant salad greens to smugly select your usual; basketball-sized iceberg lettuce. When you're served a trendy salad of mixed greens, you're likely to make the visual comparison to lawn clippings. Chances are, you've never given the variety of salad greens a fair shake.

Start by selecting a new leafy item each week and combine it with your old standby. Soon you'll find that each type of lettuce has a unique flavor to offer. From the hardy Romaine lettuce to delicate baby spinach and curly endive, salads suddenly take on so much character they don't need to be drowned in ranch dressing.

Further your adventure by adding fruits to a green salad for a taste-bud treat. My favorite fall salad is spring mix greens (conveniently available as a bagged salad) topped with dried Michigan cherries, a sprinkle of chopped walnuts and thin-cut Granny Smith apples. Top it off with raspberry vinaigrette for real eye-appeal.

Dress it up

When working with a variety of delicate greens as a salad base, most can't withstand being overwhelmed by a heavy creamy dressing. A good bottled low fat vinaigrette or a homemade one is a simpler way to show off the color and texture of a gourmet salad.

To make your own, combine good quality olive oil with balsamic or red wine vinegar. Season the mixture with fresh ground pepper, a sprinkle of salt and minced garlic. Shake in a tightly covered jar and it's ready. Add sprigs of a fresh herb such as dill or basil for a great flavor profile. If desired, heat the dressing in a skillet or carefully in a microwave. You'll find the flavor of the dressing becomes more pronounced. Drizzle the warm dressing over salad greens and enjoy.

First, make a base

Salad greens make a great base for a larger meal. First, cover your dinner plate with a layer of greens. Delicate exotic greens, spinach leaves alone or mixed shredded green and red cabbage, are possibilities.

Top your choice with whatever you're having for dinner! For example, thin slices of roasted meat or poultry with potatoes and root vegetables (roasted in a slow cooker all afternoon) take on a whole new meaning when plated on top of attractive greens. Add a bit of the warm vinaigrette I mentioned above for an upscale feel.

Nutritionally speaking

Salads have been selected for decades as a healthy "light" meal alternative. Ladies would dine out on salads to save their waistline. Then we realized that salads covered in high fat dressings, bacon bits, cheeses and meats were doing the opposite.

Now we've come full circle to realize

Chili chases away the chills

When chili lovers walk into the Great Lakes Regional Chili Cookoff in Plymouth in early October, they first notice the displays promoting the chili.

Donna Bothell of Wolverine Lake and her friends wear cow suits with little udders on the front. Her table features three steer heads to promote her Mad Cow Chili.

Another display includes a hazardous materials sign with the chili's creator wearing a protective suit and a flashing caution light promoting Nuclear Chili. Douglas Byrd of Canton wore a chili pepper garland to promote his heat.

They all watch over simmering pots with tantalizing special blends — often an array of chili powder, cumin, meat, garlic or chili peppers, depending on the cook's imagination.

Jim "Colonel Jim" Sholar of Canton didn't have any props, but he won first place at the Oct. 1 regional cookoff for his Colonel Jim's Chili. More than $10,000 was raised from the Great Lakes Regional cookoff for the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

Firing 'up: Keith Matherly of Livonia stirs his pot of "El Fuego Chili" Oct. 1 at the Great Lakes Regional Chili Cookoff in Plymouth.

Warm you over

Sholar said chili is such a popular dish because it is flavorful.

"It's the flavor of it and the combination of spices, garlic and meat," Sholar said. "It's good food.

"I think it's something all walks of life can enjoy. It's good, hearty and wholesome. It has a lot of flavor. People are always looking for food with a lot of flavor."

Keith Matherly, who owns and operates Adventures in Dining, a personal chef service in Livonia, and Butcher Block in Livonia, also competed in the cookoff, his fourth.

"It's a comfort food," Matherly said. "It's wholesome and a meal in itself. You can jazz it up.

"You need to manage the spices well and let em cook up. And it tastes better the next day."

Bob Jones of Willis, Mich. has competed for 17 years, and enjoys the nostalgia chili brings.

"I like it. It's that healthy bite that makes you sweat." That burn reminds him of years ago when he headed to downtown Detroit coney islands for coneys and chili.

Robert Dudas of Manchester, Mich., keeps changing his chili. He has competed in Michigan, Ohio and Illinois. "I hope eventually I'll come up with a winning combination," Dudas said.

"It's easy to make. You can do all kinds of things with it. You can make it spicy hot."

Donna Bothell of Wolverine Lake enjoys chili and the teamwork with her crew.

"We have fun," Bothell said. "We put the fun back in chili. It's not for the faint of heart and it's 'udderly' delicious," she joked in reference to her cow outfit.

So, what's with the cow outfits Bothell and her friends wear?

The chili was called Mad Cow Chili, but the name actually originated from Bothell's search for steer head skulls, once made famous as a Western motif by artist Georgia O'Keefe. She displays the heads at the chili cookoff.

"I bought one in Corktown, then another I found three days later in the garbage, and I found a third at a garage sale," Bothell said.

Bothell finished her story about the steer head collection with a joke. Someone one time asked her a general question about her home. Donna's reply: "I don't know, but the steers are dropping like flies."

Enjoying the camaraderie

Sholar has enjoyed the competitions in Plymouth. But beyond the first-place finish, Sholar enjoyed his fellow competitors.

"There was a lot of camaraderie and a lot of interaction between us," Sholar said before he won the award. "This year was my favorite one. That's what makes it all fun, the entertaining of people who visit the cookoff and you are serving chili."

For chili recipes, see inside Taste.

Colonel Jim's Chili

- 2 cans (10-1/2 ounce each) chicken broth
- 1 (8 ounce) Hunt's Tomato Sauce
- 3 tablespoons pure California chile powder
- 1 tablespoon pure New Mexico chile powder
- 5 tablespoons Gebhardt chili powder
- 2 tablespoons ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 teaspoons Wesson Oil
- 1 small onion, finely minced
- 5-7 cloves garlic, finely minced
- 6 pounds bottom sirloin, cut into 1/4-inch cubes
- 1 teaspoon Tabasco sauce
- Freshly ground black pepper to taste

In chili pot, mix 1-1/2 cans chicken broth and tomato sauce. Stir in chile powders, cumin and salt and bring to boil. Meanwhile, add 1 teaspoon of oil to a skillet and saute onions and garlic over low heat until tender. When the onions and garlic are finished sauteing, add them to the sauce mixture.

In the same skillet, adding a little oil as needed, saute meat, 1/3 at a time, until no longer pink and add to sauce. Bring to low boil and let simmer 2-1/2 hours, adding more chicken broth as needed.

One half-hour before serving, adjusts the seasoning with salt, freshly ground black pepper to taste and add Tabasco.

Cooks uncover secret to really good chili

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

For a good homemade chili, chili cooks have tastes and methods that are as varied as the chili themselves.

Jim Sholar of Canton, winner of the regional chili cookoff in Plymouth, likes a good homemade chicken broth for a base.

"You then use fresh tomatoes and fresh herbs, with oregano being the most important," Sholar said.

"Fresh jalapenos are used with the seeds, because the seeds give it heat and add cayenne pepper for a base.

"You add cumin and chili powder at different intervals and different amounts."

For many chiliheads, Gephart's chili powder is a favorite, Sholar said. "That seems to be a hands-on favorite (of competitors)," Sholar said.

Chili is a dish that can be created for the entire family, said Keith Matherly, chili cook and owner of Adventures in Dining and owner of Butcher Block in Livonia.

Matherly likes onions, garlic, chili powder, cumin and tomato paste.

"For the most part, you don't want one item to overpower the other," Matherly said. "You want a nice marriage of everything together. After a while, you get a good feel for things."

Bob Jones of Willis, Mich., uses chili powder and ancho chili powder in his Okie Dokie chili. Jones likes a good "back-bite" or what the taster feels on the back of the palate after swallowing the chili.

"You really need the right meat and the right blend of spices." Jones cooked his chili for three hours that day as did most of the cooks did, but usually 90 minutes is sufficient, Jones said. "And you never use it the first day," Jones said.

Robert Dudas of Manchester, Mich., likes his chili with two different chili powders and a garlic powder, and tried using hickory smoked salt.

Bob Vargo of Commerce Township works at Beau Jack's in Bloomfield Hills. Since 1980 Vargo has won nine chili competitions, six in Michigan, Canada twice and Indiana once.

"I have three or four different types of chili, depending on the competition," Vargo said.

Vargo likes jalapenos and onions in his chili and prefers Mexican or San Antonio chili powder. He grows his own habaneros. "That's probably the hottest pepper you can buy," Vargo said.

"Some are real hot and some are real mild. I do this to taste. Then I'll know it needs something a little sweeter."

Mix and match salads

It's easy to create different salads by combining a variety of familiar foods with some new choices to get your family interested in salads.

Try mixing one or more items from each group below.

Build a salad base by including bagged salad mixes of all types; baby spinach leaves; red and green shredded cabbage; cold cooked grains (leftover are fine!) such as couscous, brown rice, whole wheat pasta or rice noodles; shredded carrot; bagged broccoli slaw mix; Romaine lettuce torn into strips.

Add some interest with sliced radishes; thin-cut apples of different colors; citrus sections; warm roasted potatoes, sweet potatoes, onions or squash; shredded soy cheese; cooked dried lentils or dried beans; sprouts; canned artichoke hearts; flavored tofu; canned mandarin oranges; fresh mushrooms, including exotic choices; cucumber; bell peppers of all colors; thin sliced or cubed leftover meat, fish and poultry; canned baby corn; tomatoes; sliced bananas; grapes; canned garbanzo beans; broccoli or cauliflower florets.

Dress it up with vinegars of all types (balsamic, red wine, white wine, herb flavored and cider); olive oil; peanut oil; fresh herbs; sun-dried tomatoes; salsa; minced garlic; fresh ground pepper; bottled low fat and fat free dressings.

Finish it with baked croutons; soy "bacon bits"; sunflower seeds; slivered almonds; soy nuts; toasted pumpkin seeds; dried cherries; dried cranberries; dried apple slices; crystallized ginger, and peanuts.

that the sky is the limit with the variety of salads a person can make. Exotic and everyday ingredients are side by side at the grocery store. Many healthy choices abound.

Here are some simple tips. When it comes to leafy greens, the darker the color the more concentrated nutritional value it has. This usually means more vitamin A, vitamin C and other nutrients. With regard to other veggies and fruits to dress a salad, get a wide variety for greatest nutrient profile. Don't be afraid to mix the contrasting flavors of fruits and vegetables together.

Dressings and garnishes can undo all the good a beautiful salad has to offer. Make your own dressing and use sparingly. Bottled dressings are great for convenience. Read the labels and figure out how much fat is in the amount you'll actually use on your salad. Add a whole grain to your salad for health promoting fiber, flavor and texture. Hearty barley, brown rice, whole-wheat pasta and quinoa are some of the grain foods that can be combined with greens to create a healthier version of comfort food.

Finally, keep it seasonal. There is no need to eat the same type of salads year round. Each fruit and vegetable has a particular nutrient or fiber bonus to offer. We also know that all contain some type of phytochemicals, plant substances studied for preventive health benefits.

The best way to get full disease fighting protection is through variety. Focus on each season's best produce. In the fall and early winter, choose apples, carrots, deep orange squashes and sweet potatoes. Cooked vegetables are great on a bed of salad greens! Round out your choices with canned fruits and veggies as a backup for no-prep salads. Keep dried fruits on hand year round as a salad garnish staple.

Now it's up to you! Check out a list of mix and match salad ideas inside today's Taste Section and try a healthy addition to your dinner tonight!

Black bean chili: With canned hominy, you can make complete dishes like this Black Bean Chili with Hominy and Winter Squash in less than one hour, from chopping the ingredients to ladling the finished dish out of the pot.

Halloween chili won't trick you

BY DANA JACOBI
SPECIAL WRITER

Halloween marks the onset of autumn and winter party time.

Pozole, a soupy stew that seems tailored-made for cold weather, is a fiesta food Mexicans serve to celebrate feast days, birthdays, or pretty much any occasion when they want to party.

The key ingredient in this dish, big, fat, corn kernels, is know as "posole" in the Southwest and as "hominy" throughout the South as well as other regions.

The process for making hominy involves treating dried field corn (not the tender sweet corn we steam on the cob) with lime. It is then rinsed, which removes the outer hull, and then either dried or cooked and canned. This slaking transforms the texture of the corn and makes it more nutritionally valuable.

With canned hominy, you can make complete dishes like this Black Bean Chili with Hominy and Winter Squash in less than one hour, from chopping the ingredients to ladling the finished dish out of the pot.

Hominy gives heft to this meatless chili and, together with the beans, makes it a balanced, complete dish. Creamy, orange-fleshed winter squash, like Kabocha or Golden Nugget, adds sweetness and a touch of Halloween's colors.

Using tomatoes canned with green chilies cuts down on the preparation and adds a nice amount of heat.

The result is as festive and colorful as a Mexican Pozole.

BLACK BEAN CHILI WITH HOMINY AND WINTER SQUASH

1 tablespoon corn or canola oil
1 medium onion, chopped
2 large garlic cloves, minced
1 15-ounce can black beans, rinsed and drained
1 15 1/2-ounce can hominy (also called posole)
1 14 1/2-ounce can diced tomatoes with chilies, with their liquid
1 cup kabocha or other winter squash, peeled and cut in 3/4-inch cubes
1 15-ounce can vegetable broth
1 cup cilantro, lightly packed, chopped
Freshly ground pepper

Baked tortilla chips (optional)

Heat oil in a small Dutch oven or large saucepan over medium-high heat. Sauté onions and garlic until onions are soft, about 4 minutes.

Add beans, hominy, tomatoes and squash. Pour in broth. Mix in cilantro. When chili comes to a boil, reduce heat and simmer until squash is tender but not soft, about 20 minutes. Season to taste with pepper. Serve in bowls, ladled over a handful of tortilla chips, if desired.

This chili is also good topped with some shredded Jack cheese, chopped onion, sour cream and additional cilantro. Makes 4 servings, each containing 225 calories and 4 grams of fat.

Crisp Asian Salad: You can blanch carrots and pea pods to prepare this salad.

Asian accent flavors salad

BY DANA JACOBI
SPECIAL WRITER

To reach the goal of five or more servings a day of vegetables and fruits, eating salads is indispensable.

Enjoying them calls for variety. But to many Americans, a salad means just one thing: a bowl of lettuce eaten on the side, perhaps accompanied by cucumber slices, a few cherry tomatoes, or shreds and slices of a few other vegetables. (If you dine in sophisticated circles, the greens may be the blend of baby leaves the French call "mesclun.")

In the traditional Asian diet, salads with big, bold flavor play an important role. They include ingredients familiar to us but used in different ways. They also incorporate foods that are sold at many supermarkets but aren't often thought of as salad ingredients.

Here are ideas inspired by classic Asian salads.

"Table Salad" is a platter heaped with whole lettuce leaves, shredded carrots, cucumber, bean sprouts and fresh mint, basil and cilantro.

Placed in the center of the table, it is an integral part of most Vietnamese meals. Everyone helps himself to whatever he wants, using lettuce leaves as a wrap to hold the other vegetables and a little of the cooked foods, such as satés and noodle- or rice-based dishes.

A Western-style version might include thin slices of roast chicken to wrap inside a tender leaf lettuce packet, along with other vegetables and fresh herbs. Serve small bowls of a lemony, soy sauce-based dressing. Eat your salad out-of-hand, dip it in the dressing and munch away.

The Japanese love ohitashi, steamed spinach sprinkled with soy sauce and shaved bonito (dried tuna) flakes. They also serve asparagus and cucumbers dressed with soy sauce, sesame oil and sesame seeds. Inspired by these dishes, consider serving lightly cooked asparagus and spinach at room temperature in new ways.

The Thai like even their vegetables fiery hot. Their papaya salad is a heaping plate of finely shredded cabbage and green papaya, over which they pour a lime-tart dressing laced with red chilies and a dash of pungent fish sauce. Adapting this idea, you could combine green and red cabbage shredded thinner than spaghetti, with grated carrot. Add a Thai-style, light vinaigrette made with rice vinegar and wake up dozing taste buds.

Another approach is combining familiar vegetables with Asian and even Latino favorites, as in this crisp Asian salad tossed with an Asian-inflected dressing.

CRISP ASIAN SALAD

16 yellow or green beans
1 large carrot, halved and cut in 3-inch by 1/4-inch pieces
2 cups bok choy, white part only, cut diagonally in 1/2-inch slices
1/2 cup jicama, cut in 3-inch by 1/4-inch pieces
1/4 cup (about 1/2 oz.) chives, cut in 2-inch lengths

Dressing:
2 tablespoons rice vinegar
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon roasted sesame oil
1/2 teaspoon peanut oil

Bring a medium-sized pot of water to a boil. Fill a large bowl with cold water and ice cubes.

Blanch pea pods for 30 seconds. Transfer them with a slotted spoon to the ice water. Add beans to the pot and cook 2 minutes.

Transfer them to the ice water. Blanch carrots 3 minutes, then add them to the ice water. Drain the vegetables well. Place them in a bowl.

Add bok choy, jicama and chives to the other vegetables. No more than 30 minutes before serving, whisk vinegar, soy sauce, lemon juice and sugar into the sesame and peanut oils. Pour this dressing over the vegetables, tossing to coat them. Serve immediately.

SESAME-CRUSTED SALMON

Serves 4

Ingredients:
4 salmon fillets
salt and pepper to taste
1 cup teriyaki sauce
1/2 cup sesame seeds
2 teaspoons soy margarine
2 teaspoons olive oil

Directions:
In a shallow dish, season fish with salt and pepper. Marinate in teriyaki sauce for 20 minutes. Remove. Roll in sesame seeds.

Preheat oven to 275 degrees. In a large ovenproof skillet, sauté fish on all sides with soy margarine and olive oil over low heat for 5 minutes or until brown. To finish cooking, place fish in the oven for 5 to 7 minutes. Total cooking time should be 10 to 12 minutes.

THAI SHRIMP AND ASPARAGUS SALAD

Serves 4

Ingredients:
1 1/2 pounds asparagus
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 teaspoon finely chopped ginger
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
8 ounces small to medium shrimp, peeled and deveined
1 tablespoon soy sauce
sprinkle of hot sauce

Directions:
Bring a pot of water to a boil and cook asparagus until just tender. Rinse in cold water. In a skillet, heat oil on medium and stir-sauté ginger for a minute, then add garlic and shrimp and cook until shrimp are pink. Stir in soy sauce and hot sauce. Remove from heat and allow to cool.

Help farmers, buy local foods

Did you know that your favorite holiday foods are grown on American soil? Everything from the turkey on your table to the pumpkin in your pie is grown on America's farms and ranches. But America's farmland is in trouble. Each year we lose almost 2 million acres of our most productive earth to urban sprawl. There are things you can do to help protec tAmerica's agriculture.

To ensure that the ingredients of your favorite holiday recipes are around for future generations to enjoy, you can:

- Buy directly from farmers at farmers' markets and farm stands.
- Ask your grocer, cafeteria or favorite restaurant to buy fresh, local food.
- Read labels to choose products made from American grown fruits, vegetables, eggs, milk and meats.

By buying locally grown foods, you help farmers keep their land in production and thereby maintain wildlife habitat, scenic open spaces and healthy rural communities. And, of course, who doesn't like the great taste of fresh, vine-ripened fruits and vegetables?

No reason not to have mammogram

Most women 40 and older realize that regular mammograms are the best way to detect breast cancer in its earliest, most curable stage. Yet, according to a recent survey, a significant number – 24 percent of women living in Wayne County – neglect this important aspect of their healthcare.

There are numerous reasons why. I've outlined some of the more common concerns:

I don't like the discomfort.

Most women find mammograms uncomfortable for a few seconds. Remember that compressing the breast gives us the best chance of finding abnormalities. Scheduling a mammogram seven to 10 days after the start of your menstrual period can help minimize the discomfort.

I don't have a family history of breast cancer.

The greatest risk factor for breast cancer is being female, and the second greatest is age. More than 75 percent of women diagnosed with breast cancer do not have any other risk factors. Family history is most significant for women with a mother or sister who developed breast cancer, especially if it was diagnosed before menopause.

I can't take time off work.

Most women lead hectic lives, juggling work and home responsibilities. Many health providers realize this and make appointments available in the early morning, late afternoon and evening. Most major health systems offer mammography in a variety of convenient locations.Visits usually take less than an hour from the time you arrive until the time you walk out.

Dr. Sharon Helmer

A physician's order will be honored at any mammography center, but your health insurer may only pay for tests at selected sites. Be sure to check your coverage before you make an appointment.

I don't want to expose myself to radiation.

[illegible] mography today is very low. A woman who has annual mammograms from the age of 35 to 75 significantly reduces her risk of dying from breast cancer. The reduction is 25 times higher than the small increase in the risk from radiation.

I'm afraid they might find something.

If you have breast cancer, it won't go away because you don't have a mammogram. And your chances of beating the disease are significantly higher if you find a lump before it can be felt. The average lump found during a screening mammogram is only 0.12 inch in diameter. There's a 96 percent chance of cure with treatment for a lump this small. The average size of a lump found by occasional self-exam is about an inch, and chances for cure at this stage shrink to 70 to 75 percent.

Smaller lumps also involve less invasive surgery and less extensive follow up care.

One more important point: if a mammogram shows a lump, it doesn't mean you have cancer. Three-quarters of breast abnormalities are benign – they're not cancerous.

If you do need a breast biopsy, advances in medical technology make this procedure easier and less painful. Minimally invasive procedures such as stereotactic and ultrasound-guided core needle biopsies give women the diagnostic accuracy that used to be possible only with surgery. These procedures involve very little discomfort or scarring.

Dr. Sharon Helmer is director of the mammography division at Oakwood Healthcare System. She can be reached at (313) 593-7300.

Clinical trials offer breast cancer patients new options

By Maureen McGerty
Special Writer

Emerging diagnostic and treatment procedures offer promise and new options for women and men facing the diagnosis of breast cancer. While early detection is still key, continuing research offers innovations and refinements now available under clinical trials.

Mastectomy and lumpectomy remain standard in the treatment of invasive breast cancer. Historically, they've also involved complete lymph node removal, which has caused varying complications for patients.

"While there is argument among physicians of what the actual therapeutic value is of taking out the lymph nodes, there is no argument that the reason we take them out is to find out if the tumor has gone there or not," said Dr. David Nathanson, a surgical oncologist and program director of the Josephine Ford Cancer Center in the Henry Ford Health System. "That tells us the stage of the breast cancer."

Under the aegis of the American College of Surgeons, Ford is part of a national trial being conducted to determine the efficacy and safety of sentinel [illegible] surgical procedure to check cancer cell invasion through removal of just the first, or sentinel, lymph node in an armpit.

The procedure derives from early '90s research into melanoma, which also affects lymph nodes. In 1995, Nathanson began doing sentinel node biopsies at Ford, gathering clinical data and performing to date more than 500 standard operations (mastectomy and lumpectomy) with removal of the sentinel node. He noted an accuracy rate of 98 percent.

"We're still not in a position to offer this as a standard," he said. "We can offer patients the opportunity to have only the sentinel lymph node removed. It's with the understanding that they're on a trial."

It may take up to five years for the now-selective procedure to become a treatment standard, said Nathanson. The study also aims to collect clinical data from bone marrow samples given by female patients. Analysis of bone marrow matter is rarely an aspect of standard diagnosis and treatment of breast cancer but is considered important.

Study participant

In early August, by way of a routine mammogram and then an ultrasound – standard diagnostic tools – Mary Lowe of Novi, 75, was diagnosed with breast cancer. She took part in the study as Nathanson's patient.

"I had a core biopsy done," she said, noting there is no family history of breast cancer. "That showed it was malignant.... They put a clip in to mark the spot."

Another needle biopsy, and the insertion of a wire, was done on the day of Lowe's surgery. A special dye showed that the cancer had not moved into her lymph nodes. Removal of the first nodule also confirmed the cancer had not spread. Lowe began a six-week radiation treatment program October 4.

"I went through a simulation without the (radiation) treatment the prior week so that they could mark my body," she said. "They put markings in, like little 'tattoos,' so that they get the same place every day to do this. I was in and out within 15 minutes. You feel nothing. So far, I'm feeling good. I understand that I'll probably get tired. I'm just taking this a day at a time, a step at a time."

Digital mammography

Efforts to refine pre-biopsy detection methods by researchers at the University of Michigan Health System's Department of Radiology led to development and clinical trials for digital mammography, also called 3-D color Doppler ultrasound.

"It's actually much more precise than the traditional way of doing mammography," said Dr. Max Wicha, a medical oncologist, director of U-M's Comprehensive Cancer Center and co-director of the Breast Care Center. "We have that in place now, and I think most big hospitals will be going to this over the next few years. It will make the ability to detect smaller breast cancers at earlier stages even better."

In a study of 38 women – 20 with malignancies confirmed by biopsy – reported at a meeting of the American Institute of Ultrasound in Medicine, researchers were able to tell the difference between tumors and benign masses 100 percent of the time combining digital and filmic ultrasound imaging

"We're hoping to add 25 to 50 percent more information to current ultrasound images, increasing the chances of being right when we try to discriminate benign from malignant masses," said Paul Carson, Ph.D., a U-M professor of radiology and bioengineering who led the technique's development. "While we do not expect ultrasound to replace either mammography or biopsy, we see great potential for complementary use to benefit patients."

Three-D color Doppler ultrasound allows observation of blood flow in vessels around a tumor. As fast-growing cancer cells need extra blood to spread, the imaging distinguishes between tumors and benign masses; it also zeros in on signals of increased blood flow and formation of new blood vessels in the targeted area.

Carson's colleague, Dr. Marilyn Roubidoux, a U-M breast imaging specialist and associate professor of radiology, said: "Mammography only finds about 85 percent of all cancers, so we need additional methods of detection.... I see this technique as useful for patients who have mammogram results that are extremely complicated for the radiologist to interpret. In these cases, finding a small tumor is like trying to find a seagull in a cloudy sky. Our approach can help find the seagulls that are hiding in the clouds."

Digital mammography remains under study at U-M and is not a part of routine mammogram appointments.

Breast cancer awareness month

Every three minutes a woman in the United States learns she has breast cancer.

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Take the time to get the facts on breast cancer with a new, free package of five publications from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the National Cancer Institute. Use Understanding Breast Changes to learn about breast conditions that are not cancer and screening methods for the early detection of breast cancer. Find out about the risk factors for breast cancer and NCI's recommendations for screening with The Facts About Breast Cancer and Mammograms.

Use Mammography Today's easy-to-follow question and answer format to learn when you should get a mammogram and what to do if you change mammogram facilities. FDA Sets Higher Standards for Mammography tells you how to find a certified mammography facility and how to prepare for a mammogram. Breast Cancer: Better Treatments Save More Lives discusses new drugs and procedures that can help improve the lives of women with this disease.

Generally, if you are in your 40s or older, it's best to get a mammogram every one to two years. If you're looking for a mammogram facility, make sure the facility you choose has a Mammogram Quality Standards Act certificate that has not expired. This certificate means that your facility undergoes regular inspections, and its staff has had special training. If you change facilities, be sure to get your original mammograms and bring them with you to your new facility.

There are three easy ways to get your free publications:

■ Call toll-free 1 (888) 8 PUEBLO – that's (888) 878-3256 – weekdays 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. EDT and ask for the "Breast Cancer Awareness" package.

■ Send your name and address to Breast Cancer Awareness, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

■ Visit www.pueblo.gsa.gov and read or print these and hundreds of other FCIC publications for free.

The National Cancer Institute's information service provides information and referrals to patients and their families as well as community outreach, education and screening programs. Call (800) 4-CANCER.

To reach the American Cancer Society, call (800) ACS-2345 or log on to www.cancer.org.

The medical community strongly recommends continuing self-examinations and annual mammograms for women over 40 and those with special risks.

U-M has changed its patient care guidelines to urge annual mammograms for recipients of breast reconstructions, particularly women who have had surgery called a TRAM flap (short for transverse rectus abdominis myocutaneous).

"Of the patients who had had TRAM reconstructions for breast cancer, approximately one percent during our two-year period [of study] developed a cancer recurrence," said Dr. Janet Bailey, MD, a U-M radiologist and research team member. "That's completely analogous to what we see in women who've undergone lumpectomy and, of course, we do recommend mammography after lumpectomy.... We think it's a very reasonable standard of care to do screening TRAMography on all the women who have had a TRAM reconstruction for breast cancer."

Insidious disease

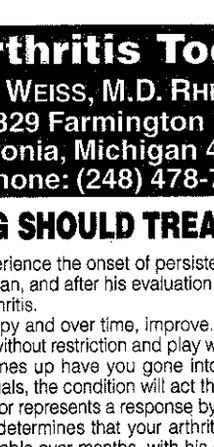
Just as cancer may recur in reconstructed tissue, so can it return in other body organs following breast surgery. And, cancer doesn't always manifest in the breast as a "lump."

Once again fighting the disease, breast cancer survivor Barbara Windsor, 64, of Livonia is determined to retain her quality of life as she faces colon surgery. Windsor underwent her first mammogram at age 51, followed by a biopsy at U-M, radical mastectomy with lymph node removal and a year of chemotherapy, which, in her case, brought on menopause.

"It wasn't a lump," Windsor said. "That's why I couldn't have felt it in any self-examination. It was in the milk ducts – long, stringy things. It was well-advanced."

She returned to her job as a chemist at Parke Davis in Ann Arbor during chemo treatment and worked up until four years ago when she underwent colon surgery. Aggressive chemo and radiation treatments followed, leaving Windsor much frailer physically than she had been during her bout with breast cancer.

"They 'scar-tissued' the inside of my colon," she said. "Sometime in the next six weeks, I'm having a colostomy. We've been trying for four years to get some kind of control over the large intestine and it isn't working.... They said the lifestyle that I have now wouldn't be appropriate for another 20 years."



Nathanson

Even so, Windsor still bicycles with her husband (though not the 100 miles a day she was accustomed to, even after breast cancer), volunteers in the Discovery Shop and belongs to the Adult Learning Institute at Oakland Community College.

New radiation treatment

Currently under study at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak is an experimental internal radiation therapy treatment called MammoSite Radiation Therapy System. The system is designed to assess the effectiveness of the device and procedure.

The device, an applicator with a balloon-tipped end, delivers radiation to the site of a removed tumor and the area surrounding it, where tumors may recur. The treatment also decreases therapy time from seven weeks to five days.

"MammoSite's accelerated time could make breast-conserving treatment an option for many more women," said Dr. Frank A. Vicini, MD, a radiation oncologist at Beaumont. "This is the first breast cancer treatment device to deliver radiation directly to the original tumor site and decrease the radiation time without a complicated and invasive procedure."

Beaumont is seeking participants for this clinical study. Women must be at least 45 years of age and in good health. For more information, call the Department of Radiation Oncology at (248) 551-7029.

HOW LONG SHOULD TREATMENT LAST

Assume you experience the onset of persistent joint pain and swelling. You see your physician, and after his evaluation and testing, you learn you have rheumatoid arthritis.

You receive therapy and over time, improve. Possibly in 2-3 years, you become better to the point that you work without restriction and play with no aching afterwards.

The question comes up have you gone into remission, that is, has the arthritis left you? In about 5% of individuals, the condition will act that way. Whether the reason for this change is the effect of medication or represents a response by the body is unknown.

Your doctor first determines that your arthritis is inactive. he weights your observations that your activities are stable over months, with his examinations that show your joints are no longer inflamed. He will question you closely on your fatigue if any, to determine how soon it comes on and how long it lasts. Also, he must decide if any deformities in your hands and feet are the result of oid inflammation and not continuing joint involvement.

The next step is to decrease your medicine. Often this means lowering your dose of methotrexate by one tablet a month, or lessening your prednisone dose by one milligram every 2-3 weeks.

The key is to go down slowly. If aching occurs, then your physician will return to the dose where you maintained joint comfort. When you feel good, you must balance hope with caution.

In my family, learning is everything.

Books don't just enlighten. They empower. Our children are growing up knowing this. A good education is one of the most important things we can give them. And we will, with the help of U.S. Savings Bonds.

Through the Payroll Savings Plan, we put aside something with every payday. And little by little, it will add up to college for our children.

U.S. Savings Bonds helped my parents put me through college. And next year, it's Michelle's turn. Sure, Savings Bonds have important to our past, but they'll be even more important to our future. that's what makes our investment so valuable.

Ask your employer or banker about saving with U.S. Savings Bonds. For all the right reasons.

Get home ready for winter

JERRY GOETZ

Make sure your air conditioner is ready. It should be turned off at the circuit breaker so that the small heater on some compressors does not use energy during the winter. In the spring, turn the circuit breaker on 24 hours before you use the unit.

If you cover your outdoor air conditioning unit, allow ample space at the bottom for good air circulation it.

You should have your furnace inspected by a licensed heating/ cooling contractor at least every two years.

Clean or replace the filter element in the furnace humidifier. The air filters should also be replaced to provide optimum airflow. If you have an older furnace, the motor and belts should be checked and metal parts lubricated.

I also suggest you walk around the outside of your home to inspect for areas that may allow cold air into your home. Look at caulking around doors and windows, poor-fitting door and window seals, and attic soffits and roof caps or ridge vents. These should be free of dust and debris.

If you have had roof ice dams in the past or have mold and mildew in rooms, check the attic insulation. Add some insulation. Make sure the top of the outside wall is covered.

The attic should be insulated to an R45 (15 inches of insulation). Check the insulation between the floor joists where they set on the basement or crawlspace walls. This should have at least six inches of batt-type insulation between the joists.

If you have questions or comments regarding this column or would like us to discuss a particular energy subject, call me at my toll-free number, (877) 349-4130.

Stonebrooke: Ranches and townhouses are available at these apartment-to-condominium conversions in Southfield.

Kaftan Enterprises, which has enjoyed success in recent years with apartment-to-condominium conversions, now offers up Stonebrooke Condominiums in Southfield.

Just over 200 units of the former Franklin Pointe Apartments at the end of Beck Road west of Northwestern will be renovated and marketed for individual ownership.

"This is the most fun I've had in the building business in years," said Mel Kaftan, president.

"I can take a property that needs to be updated, architecturally make it pretty. The buyer gets a good product. The surrounding community is upgraded. The tax base more than doubles. And we make money at it," Kaftan said.

Three plans are offered.

- A 1,300-square-foot ranch with two bedrooms and two baths at a base price of $114,990.
- A 1,540-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms and two baths at a base price of $123,990.
- A 1,520-square-foot townhouse with three bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths and a partially finished basement at a base price of $124,990.

With tax breaks, buyers can reap the benefits of ownership, including appreciation in value, for about what tenants there previously paid to rent, Kaftan said.

"Pride of ownership really comes through," said Jeffrey D. Kaftan, vice president. "Whether the check goes to the rental company or the mortgage company makes all the difference."

Franklin Pointe was built 1972-73, said Michael A. Carroll, sales representative at Stonebrooke with Bunny Band.

"The first thing I think we have going for us is location," Carroll said. "In 25 minutes, there's not many places you can't be from here – Birmingham, downtown (Detroit), Brighton, Howell and Ann Arbor.

"We're giving a huge amount of square footage for the dollar," Carroll added. "We have, of course, the advantages of any other condominium. We take care of the exterior of the building, snow removal, lawn maintenance.

"We do have a pool. And a bath house with changing area will be built," he added.

New vinyl and ceramic flooring, carpeting, kitchen and bath cabinets, countertops, sinks and faucets and light fixtures will be installed in all the units.

New ranges and dishwashers will be installed. All the units will be painted throughout.

Kaftan will provide a one-year warranty on existing furnaces, air conditioning compressors and water heaters in individual units.

New appliances, air conditioning ($1,375), furnace ($1,175) and water heater ($385) are available at a premium. Gas fireplaces also are available ($2,975).

Existing insulated windows will be replaced on an as-needed basis, Carroll said.

The exteriors, primarily brick and aluminum siding, will be repainted and repaired as needed. Roof shingles were last replaced in 1993.

Each unit at Stonebrooke will have access to one space in carports to be constructed.

All of the residences have private entrances. They're attached two to 12 in a building.

The townhouse features a living room, dining area, kitchen/ nook and half-bath with pedestal sink on the first floor.

Three bedrooms, one decorated as a den, and two full baths are upstairs. The master has a shower and two closets.

The laundry in the townhouse is in the partially finished basement. The laundry and a large storage/ utility room is off the kitchen in both ranches.

Each ranch contains a large living room/ dining area.

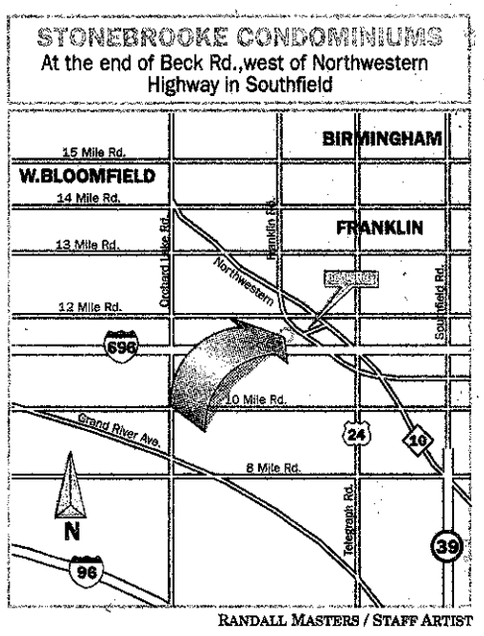
Units can be bought as is, no improvements, for a $7,000 discount.

Stonebrooke Condominiums is served by city water and sewers, which are included in the monthly maintenance/ association fee of $118. It's within the Southfield school boundaries.

The property tax rate is projected at $54.45 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price, That means the owners of a $124,000 unit there would pay about $3,375 the first year.

Shelly Forman, a longtime renter, decided to buy. She's moving from a townhouse to a ranch so she doesn't have to walk up and down steps.

"The location is really good," Forman said. "The way it's laid out – you have your own front entrance, your own back patio, you don't have to walk down hallways – for me, personally, is very good.



RANDALL MASTERS / STAFF ARTIST

"When it went condo, I panicked," Forman said. "Then I thought 'This must be really good.' "

The sales models/office at Stonebrooke Condominiums, (248) 352-4460, are open noon to 6 p.m. daily.

Protect your wood deck from winter snow, cold

(IHIT) – Homeowners don't typically think about their outdoor decks with the onset of winter. But, with the damage that cold weather, extreme temperature changes and moisture from melting snow can cause, ignoring deck maintenance and protection will leave you with a big clean-up job next spring.

According to deck care expert Pat Coughlin of The Flood Co., a company that has been making products to treat and care for decks for more than 150 years, the best insurance for a nice deck next spring is to prepare it well for winter. He offers the following advice.

If your deck is new and has never been stained, it needs special treatment. New wood is vulnerable and should not be left unprotected, especially during the harsh winter months.

Use a treatment that is specifically designed to work with new, unweathered wood. The treatment protects new wood during its critical first year, providing a slow, steady weathering period. The movement of moisture into and out of the wood is controlled.

If your deck is more than one year old, you will want to apply a finish before the cold weather arrives.

Most quality finishes should not be applied if the temperature drops below 50 degrees Fahrenheit. The best protection is an oil-based finish that penetrates deep and offers protection from the inside out, says Coughlin. The formula enables the product to penetrate deep into the wood pores – instead of resting on top where it will scuff off.

Finally, if your wooden deck is older and more weathered, nail down all loose floor boards and fix any exposed nails. For these decks, use a product that protects, but also improves the look of your deck by adding color or hiding its imperfections. For these decks, select a semi-transparent or solid color stain.

Semi-transparent stains introduce color to the deck, while still allowing the wood grain to show through. Solid color stains cover the wood grain – and the imperfections – and are often used to create designer, two-toned looks. These last longer than a clear finish because of the added pigment.

A long-lasting stain is important, according to Coughlin.

Flood Solid ColorStain is guaranteed against peeling on decks for five years and siding for 15. Flood Semi-Transparent Deck & Siding Stain is guaranteed against peeling and fading on decks for three years and siding for five.Protection

No matter which finish you choose, it is important to clean your deck before application. Otherwise, the dirt will prevent the finish from properly penetrating into the wood grain Use a non-bleach cleaner [illegible] cate fibers and won't harm plants and shrubs.

"Preparing your deck for winter is a wise investment," says Coughlin. [illegible] will allow you to enjoy your deck for years." For more information or to receive a free wood care guide, call The Flood Co., (800) 321-3444. Or write Wood Care Guide, P.O. Box 2535 Hudson, Ohio 44236-0035, or visit their Web site at www.floodco.com

Protection: If you spend some time winterizing your deck, it should be ready to meet your needs come spring.

Great room includes dining area, kitchen

Many lots available for building have a slope to them and finding just the right home to build could be difficult.

The Springer (G20-198) meets this need.

Its main level has 1,792 square feet with a basement level of 818 square feet plus a two-car garage consisting of 857 square feet.

The entry to the garage is on the right end and the back of the basement is facing the back yard, ideal as a daylight basement containing a recreation/ family room.

The covered porch on the Springer extends across the face of the home with the entrance just to the left of center.

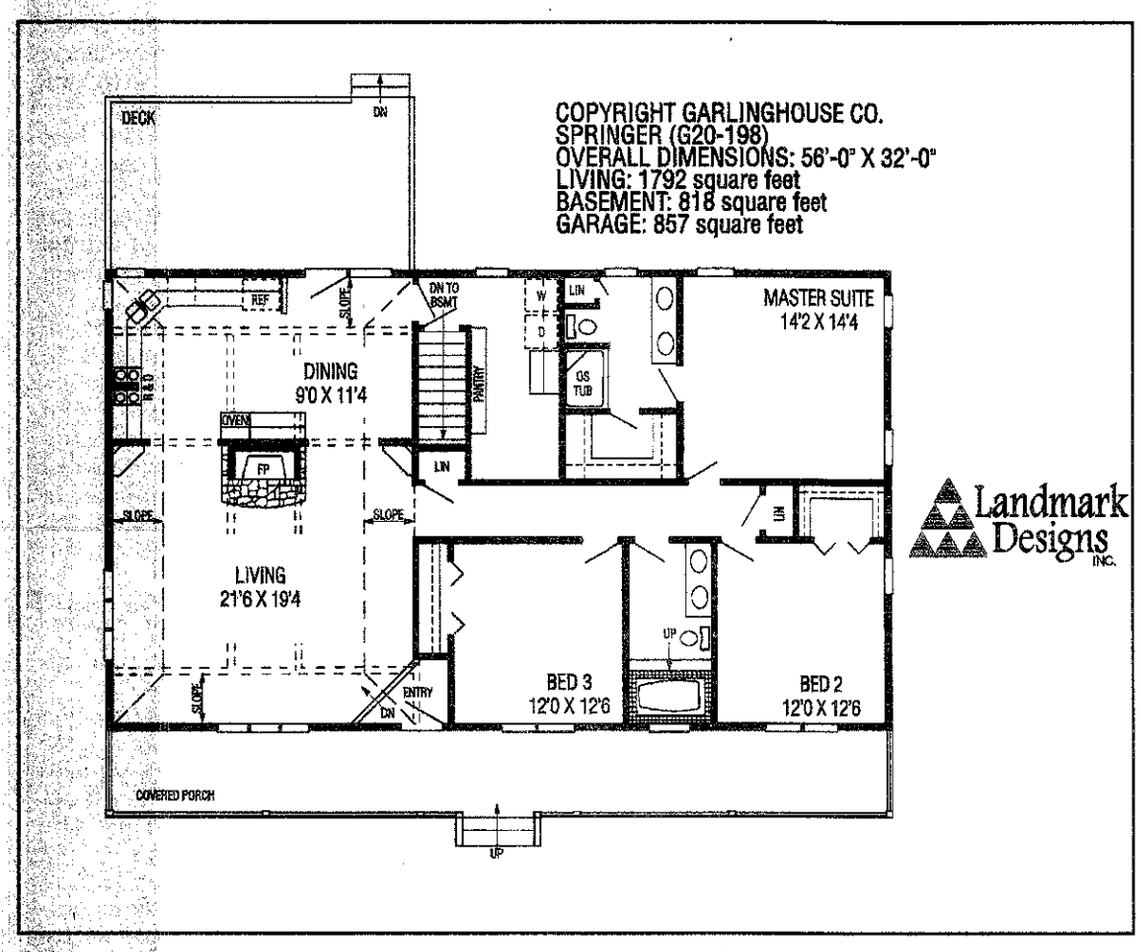
There is a step down into the large great room, uniquely designed with ceilings sloping from the walls toward the center of the room. This enhances the living room with its two sets of large windows and a decorative rock fireplace.

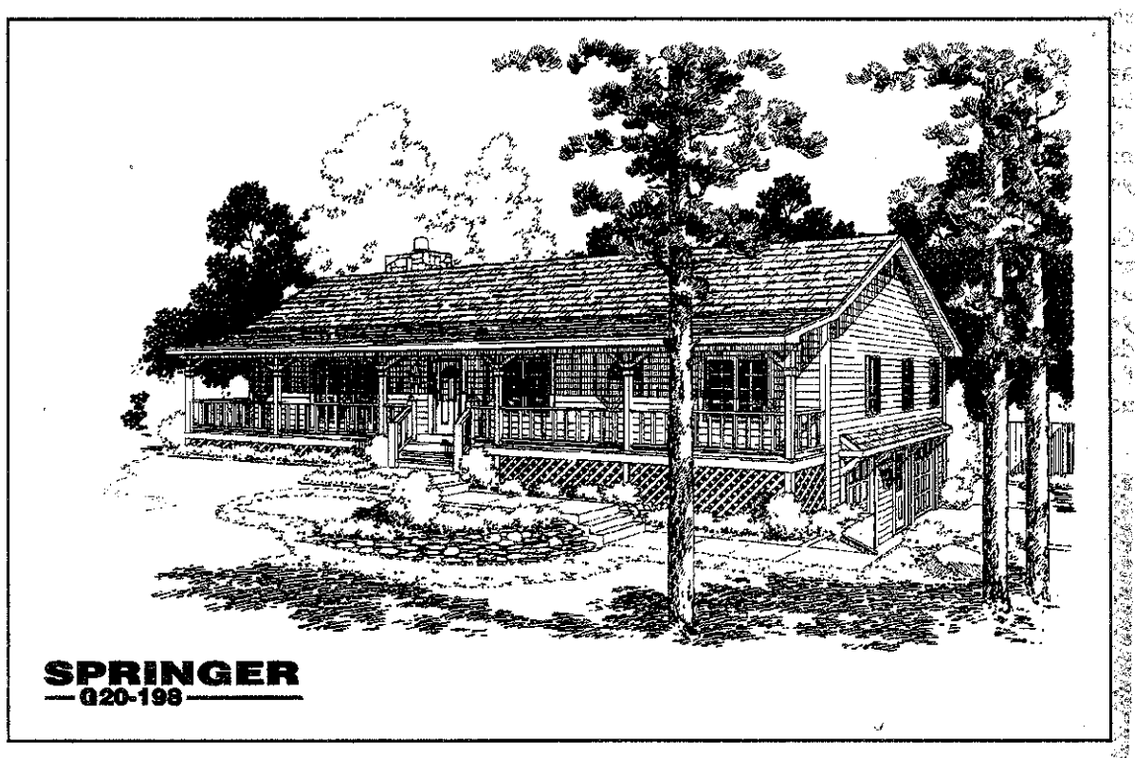
The rear area of the great room is the dining and kitchen area. The kitchen is in the corner forming an L. Plenty of cabinet/counter space makes it easier for more than one cook to occupy this area in the case of family gatherings. With the openness of this kitchen, cooking can be a pleasure as time and conversation can be shared with the family.

The dining room completes the circle around the fireplace/ovens. Off the dining room is a door leading to the deck in the back, ideal for those barbecues and afternoon picnics. Also in this area is the door to the basement stairs and the utility room.

A long pantry runs down the outside wall of the stairs, providing great storage for staples and much needed supplies.

A long hallway separates the bedrooms. The master suite occupies the balance of the back of the Springer. The main suite is huge with three windows strategically placed.





SPRINGER
G20-198

A private master bath is made easy to use with dual sinks, an oversized tub, linen closet and full walk-in closet.

Opposite the master suite are two other bedrooms, one with a full walk-in closet and one with a wall closet. Between them is a large bath with a raised tub and dual sinks.

Selecting an electrical contractor

(NAPS) – If you're trying to get your home's electrical system inspected or upgraded without getting overcharged, you may be interested in these tips on how to select a qualified electrical contractor.

■ Check the phone book, usually under "electrical contractors." Ask where the contractor is located. There are some out-of-area contractors that use phone lists to solicit business.

■ Ask for certificates of insurance, including proof of liability, property damage and workers compensation insurance. Phone the insurance company to make sure the policy is current.

■ Have more than one electrical contractor give you an estimate.

■ Beware of door knockers. Most reputable companies don't need to go door-to-door for work.

■ Ask for local references. You can also call the Better Business Bureau, (248) 644-9100.

■ Determine if the contractor is a member of a national or regional electrical association. Membership does not guarantee quality, but ongoing educational programs keep members up-to-date on the latest technological developments in the electrical industry.

These tips are from the National Electrical Safety Foundation. For more information on other electrical safety tips, write to the Foundation at 1300 N. 17th Street, Suite 1847, Rosslyn, VA 22209, or call (703) 841-3229.

How's your lawn doing?

(IHIT)-Horticultural experts generally agree that proper lawn care in the fall has greater impact than similar efforts in the spring or any other season for rejuvenating a lawn throughout the year.

Fall is the season when turfgrass growth begins to slow. According to the Turf Resource Center, a Chicago-based nonprofit group, it is also a good time to help your grass develop the stamina it will need to survive the stress of winter and get a head start for the coming spring.

Early October is generally the right time to focus additional attention for cool-season (northern U.S.) grasses, while the latter part of the month is best for warm-season varieties found in the more southern locations.

To achieve maximum benefit for year-round results, fall lawn care requires a number of different efforts, including mowing, removal or mulching lawn debris, aerating, fertilizing and watering.

The sequence of these efforts is as important as how they are performed.

Mowing

In addition to the immediate beauty of a freshly cut lawn, mowing in accordance with the following guidelines can help generate and maintain healthier turfgrass plants.

■ Make sure the mower blade is sharp – the ragged cut made by a dull blade tends to shred the grass blade tips, exposing a larger surface area to disease, pest and water loss.

■ Set the proper cutting height – the higher cutting height used during the summer (when the photosynthetic processes in the leaf tissues are at their peak) should have progressed to a lower cutting height late in the fall when the plant begins to store food reserves. The lower cutting height, without scalping, helps harden and strengthen the plants' roots and crown with increased nutrients that would otherwise have been used by longer grass blades.

■ Lawn debris – up to one inch of leaves can be mulched to serve as a protective cover during the coming cold season. However, clumps or large leaves, such as often accumulate in low spots, could trap dampness and become a breeding spot for diseases and pests.

If in doubt, remove the debris with a mulching mower and dump it in the compost bin for recycling into nutrient-rich soil for future garden use.

Aerating the soil

After a year of being trampled upon by various activities that tend to pack the soil, the grass roots need a breath of fresh air (oxygen) for respiration that only proper aeration can provide. This helps the root systems better establish themselves for the coming winter.

Aeration should take place approximately two weeks before applying the year's final fertilizer, or five to six weeks before the first frost.

The most effective aerator has hollow tines that penetrate the ground and remove core plugs of soil that are expelled as each successive plug is removed, leaving a vent for true aeration. Although a freshly aerated lawn appears a bit unsightly with numerous plugs laying all over it, they will eventually dissolve, returning nutrients to the soil for use by the grass.

The unsightly appearance can be reduced and the plug dissolving process speeded up by mowing with a low-cutting blade. Be sure to remove the grass clipping bag and then mow the entire lawn in a left-to-right pattern, followed by an up-and-down pattern to assure even break-up and spreading of the aeration plugs.

After mowing, watering the lawn further helps dissolve the aeration plugs.

Fertilizing/weed control

The fall application of a weed-and-feed type fertilizer provides longer lasting benefits to a lawn than that of any other time of the year, according to the Turf Resource Center.

Fertilizer should be timed about one month before the first frost. It is very important to read, understand and follow instructions on the fertilizer label.

The following information should take the mystery out of how much and which type fertilizer to buy, and how to apply it efficiently.

How much – The fertilizer bag label advises how many square feet the product will cover (see sidebar for calculating square feet of lawn area); any portion not used will be just as effective next year, if stored in a dry area.

■ Which type – Any reputable lawn and garden retailer will be able to recommend the best fertilizer mixture for a particular time of the year. In the fall, turfgrass needs less nitrogen (N) but higher ratios of phosphorus (P) and potassium (K) to encourage root growth and harden the grass plants for the coming winter.

■ Proper application – To assure uniform coverage with either a broadcast spreader or a drop spreader, follow these simple steps:

1) Adjust the spreader application dial to one-half of the fertilizer bag's recommended setting and make the first application in an up-and-down pattern, covering the entire lawn.

2) Begin the second application immediately, in a left-to-right pattern, and continue over the entire lawn. (Hint: Use two small flags to mark the beginning and end of each row as you apply the fertilizer – small, brightly colored flags with stiff wire shafts work best.)

Pest control: Protect home, health

(NAPS) – To prevent pest infestations, remember that careful storage, routine cleaning and regular inspection are your best tools. However, when the pests get too close for comfort, it's time to call a professional.

"It is important that people understand the damage caused by pests. Termites alone account for more than $1 billion in property damage to more than 600,000 homes a year," says Dr. Harold Harlan, staff entomologist at the National Pest Control Association.

Professional pest control operators rely on training, expertise and sophisticated pest control methods – not just pesticide application – to assure sound, adequate, environmentally friendly protection against destructive insects and rodents.

They can design a preventative maintenance program to help fend off pests of all kinds.

When choosing a pest control service, it makes good sense to:

■ Verify that the pest control company is licensed with your state.

■ Ask someone you know who has used pest control services. Inquire about the type of pest problem encountered and how satisfied they were with the service.

■ Buy value, not price. What appears to be a real bargain may need a second look.

■ Membership in pest control associations such as the National Pest Control Association is a good indicator that the company has access to modern technical information and is committed to applying the latest technology.

■ Reach a complete understanding with the company before work starts: find out what the pest is, how the problem will be treated, how long the period of treatment will be, and what results can be expected.

"Pests are more than an unpleasant inconvenience," says Harlan. "They are a genuine threat to our property and to our health."

For more information on how to contact a professional pest control operator, visit the National Pest Control Association Web site at www. pestworld. org

Let's Talk About Real Estate

"Buying With The Future In Mind"

For most of us, the purchase of a home is the largest financial investment we will ever make. As with all investments, we must weigh its present worth and potential increase in value in the years ahead. Be careful of buying a property that may be a "good buy" today but a poor investment overall. Here are some things to look for when choosing your next house:

Future Demand
Is this property in the path of growth or have its better years past it by? Most residential areas have their own life cycle. Some are winding down while others have many years of increased prosperity ahead. Maybe an area that was once very popular is now too densely populated and not as attractive to potential buyers.

Surrounding Properties
What is the present value of the properties that adjoin the house on all four sides? The best situation is one in which surrounding properties are also similar in character and of equal or greater value than the home you are considering.

School System
Is the school system becoming more or less desirable? School systems have a life of their own just like any other organization. The reputation of the local school system has a major impact on future demand for a certain residential area. Test scores, student-teacher ratios and local millage votes can affect the desirability of the school system. Whether you ever plan to use the schools or not, they are important to your future buyer.

ADVICE: No one has a crystal ball that can forecast the future. There are, however, certain facts that can paint a rather conclusive picture. The best source of reliable information is your local Realtor. He or she has access to the facts you need to make an informed buying decision.

Skylights create bright interiors

Do you remember the old-fashioned skylight in the movie Barefoot in the Park that actress Jane Fonda found so charming and romantic?

And how it was a source of marital discord in the turn-of-the-century apartment she shared with her conservative, attorney husband played by Robert Redford?

Fonda's character appreciated how the natural light from the skylight brightened their tiny, otherwise dreary, flat; while Redford's character would dwell on the fact that this first generation skylight would leak when it rained or snowed, keeping him awake nights.

Fortunately, today we can experience the beauty of outdoor views that skylights afford without having to contend with the elements.

Manufacturers have taken the suspense out of skylight performance by designing them to be leakproof, energy efficient and durable enough to withstand extreme weather conditions.

Interiors transformed

"Abundant natural light can do wonders in accentuating a home's interior, furnishings and architecture," says Gary Hyman, Marketing Manager for Velux-America Inc., a leading manufacturer of roof windows and skylights.

"Light and outdoor views can make a small space appear larger, draw attention to a special location and create an open, spacious atmosphere for any style home," he said.

Skylights are a good choice for capturing sunlight and outdoor views because by their very design they open a home to much more light than do vertical windows and doors.

In addition, skylights allow beautiful clear views of the sun, moon and stars while also preserving privacy.

Ventilating skylights also add to comfort and proper moisture balance in a home by allowing fresh air to circulate and releasing the warm, moist air from cooking and bathing.

Protection against the elements

The key to complete skylight enjoyment is the proper installation of a quality product. Flashing is the waterproofing material, usually aluminum, that prevents the entry of moisture from around skylights and other roof openings.

For the most durable, weathertight skylight installation, L-shaped step flashing pieces are interwoven with the roofing material around the skylight for a completely watertight seal without caulk or mastics.

Velux offers flashing systems and roof curbs for practically all roofing materials and pitches including asphalt or fiberglass shingles, Spanish tile, metal roofs and flat roofs.

A clear choice

Insulated glass skylights offer a number of practical and aesthetic benefits that other materials just can't match.

Not only do glass skylights provide an undistorted, clear view to the outdoors, they also feature a low exterior profile that doesn't interfere with the roofline. Available with Low-E coatings and laminates, insulated glass also offers excellent energy efficiency for comfort in any climate.

Unlike plastic-based bubble skylights, which react to prolonged exposure to the sun by clouding and hazing, glass skylights don't react to the sun's rays thus preserving a perfectly clear view.

Making way for the sun

Even if there is a ceiling and attic space between the room and the blue sky beyond, a skylight can still bring in light and ventilation with the simple construction of a skylight shaft.

Basically, this includes cutting the roof opening for the skylight, cutting a larger opening in the ceiling below, and then framing, insulating and finishing the shaft between the two openings.

By making the ceiling opening larger than the roof opening, and flaring the shaft, light will be distributed more evenly throughout the room.

Extending life of home carpet

(NAPS) –The latest carpets don't usually wear out, but they can become unattractive. Every day dust, dirt and grime abrade and dull carpet fibers.

A free booklet, The Stanley Steemer Carpet Care Tip Booklet and Home Remedies Guide, offers spot fighting secrets plus answers to commonly asked carpet care questions. For a copy and to find the nearest Stanley Steemer carpet and upholstery cleaner, call (248) 426-9000.

Rug care need not be rugged. Just remember these simple maintenance tips:

Vacuum high traffic areas every four days and all other areas every seven days. Vacuuming prevents surface dirt from being ground into the carpet fibers.

Steam clean your high traffic carpet areas every six months and all other carpet and upholstery every year. Use a reputable carpet and upholstery professional.

A regular six-month professional cleaning is recommended if you have children or pets.

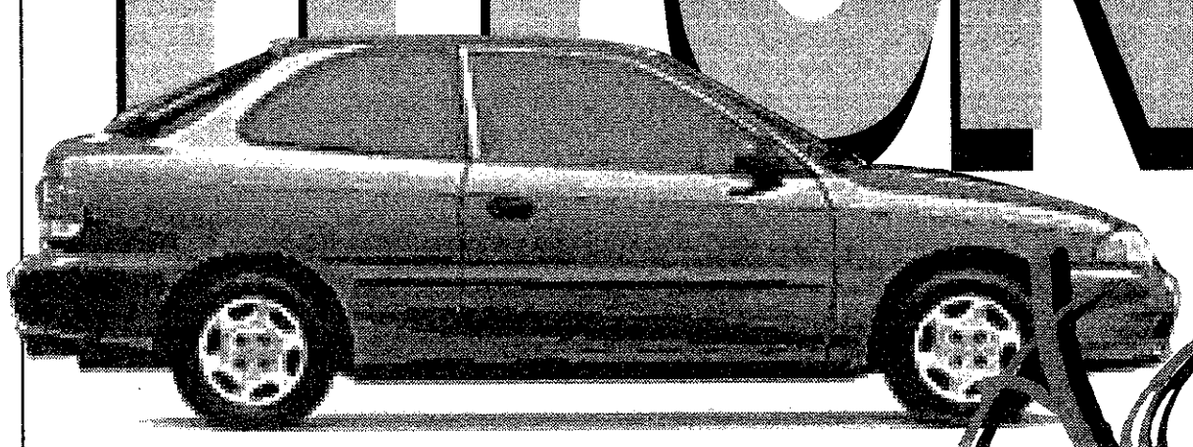
2001 HYUNDAI Accents



Style & economy

BY BILL SIURU
AUTOWIRE.NET

South Korean automakers like Hyundai, Kia and Daewoo, relative newcomers to the American automobile scene, are demonstrating with their lowest priced models, that inexpensive cars do not have to be "cheap" looking or low performing.

Hyundai's new entry-level model, the Accent, shows that you can buy a new car, and a quite capable car, for around the $10,000 mark.

The Accent was completely redesigned for 2000 and changes for 2001 are just refinements. The styling is pretty mainstream, is reasonably attractive, and definitely not "funky" as sometimes happens when designers have to package a four-passenger sedan in a package that is less than 14 feet long. Hyundai Accents come as a three-door hatchback in a very spartan L trim level or as a better-equipped GS model. The GL version is a four-door sedan.

Accent GSs and GLs now feature a 1.6 liter, four-cylinder, single-overhead-camshaft SOHC), 12-valve engine.

The engine produces 105 horsepower at 5500 rpm and 106 foot-pounds of torque at 3000 rpm. Previously, a 1.5-liter engine was used in all models and was on the anemic side. The 2001 Accents are now able to keep up in traffic and maintain 65-plus mph Interstate speeds without showing as much strain, especially when an automatic transmission is installed.

The L series still uses the 1.5-liter, 92 horsepower engine. A five-speed manual is standard on all models and a four-speed electronically controlled automatic transmission is optional on the GS and GL models. The fuel tank holds 11.9 gallons.

The Accent GL that I tested with a manual transmission was actually fun-to-drive, at least by econobox standards.

The five-speed trans shifted effortlessly and was appreciated, because shifting was frequently required to keep up with the flow of traffic. While great for around town travel, especially because of its small size and maneuverability, I do not think this is the car for that 2,000-mile vacation trip.

Prices for the Hyundai Accents start at the $9,434 mark for the very basic L model, which does come with a lot of standard features; like a rear window defroster, reclining front bucket seats, dual remote mirrors, intermittent wipers, power steering and brakes and a AM/FM/cassette radio. Air conditioning is a $750 option.

The GS with the larger engine is $400 more and can be ordered with options like air conditioning, a CD player, power door locks, power windows, and automatic transmission, all of which add only $1,750 to the sticker price. The GS starts at $10,344 and add another $1,750 for the total option package.

Quality of materials, as well as fit and finish, are quite good when you consider the price. And unlike many previous Korean cars I have driven, the heater, a/c and radio controls are now human size.

Front-seat passengers have a decent amount of room, but the rear seat is a little skimpy in legroom. The trunk is relatively large for this size car and there is a 60/40 fold down rear seat.

And like most of the entry-level cars on the market today, the Accent will depreciate faster than cars of other origin. After you buy one, the most economical strategy is to drive it until "the wheels fall off," rather than planning on trading it in soon.

Helping here is that Hyundai's come with one of the best warranties in the automobile industry. This includes a five-year/60,000-mile bumper-to-bumper warranty and the powertrain is covered for 10 years or 100,000 miles. Also, there is a free 24-hour roadside assistance program for five years with no mileage limits.

With these facts in mind, a Hyundai Accent can be a great entry-level car that you can buy and drive with confidence, knowing that the coverage and warranty will be around for a very long time.

Emergency car breakdown tips

Nine out of 10 cars inspected last year as part of National Car Care Month received a failing grade for winter readiness. But just because your car succumbs to the cold doesn't mean you have to.

For those times when you want to go but your car doesn't, AAA Michigan offers tips on how to cope in an emergency situation, recommending that drivers always carry an emergency kit in the vehicle, containing a flashlight, flares or reflective triangle, distress sign, telephone change, first aid supplies and some basic tools. And don't forget a fully charged cell phone.

During severe winter weather, Michigan State Police recommend that motorists tell someone where they are going, route of travel and estimated time of arrival.

Also, when traveling, be aware of early trouble signs. The Car Care Council offers a few of the more common signs of impending car trouble:

1. Jiggling at certain speeds, indicating a tire out of balance.
2. Squealing or scraping sound when you apply the brakes.
3. Knocks or pings from the engine when you accelerate or climb a hill.
4. Failure to start but the engine turns over.
5. Adding oil between oil changes.
6. A "check engine" or similar warning light is activated.
7. A rumbling or hissing sound from the muffler.
8. The thumping of a tire that's flawed and may soon fail.
9. The clicking of a worn CV joint as you make a tight turn.
10. An engine that keeps chugging after you've turned off the ignition.
11. Moisture or antifreeze odor detected inside the car.

If your vehicle is disabled . . .

■ Activate hazard warning lights immediately and pull off the road on the far right shoulder, well off traveled lanes.

■ Warn oncoming traffic by setting flares or reflective triangles behind the vehicle, especially at night.

■ If it's necessary to stop on a center median, pull off the road as far as possible.

If you decide to stay with your vehicle, close the windows and lock the doors. If someone approaches offering assistance, talk through a closed window, and ask the individual to call for help by telephoning police. On Detroit-area freeways during rush hour, the Freeway Courtesy Patrol may offer assistance. In an emergency, motorists can always dial 911.

EDJT helps companies afford quality training

SPECIAL WRITER

Grants helping businesses stay competitive in today's global market are becoming more and more tempting to companies looking for an edge.

The Michigan Economic Development Corporation last August doled out $3.2 million in Economic Development Job Training grants to improve job skills for 7,400 Michigan workers at 71 Michigan companies.

Schoolcraft College in Livonia received $649,253 to develop training programs for five companies – Simpson Industries, Yazaki North America, Inc., Motorama Engineering Group, Air Gage Company and MascoTech/Hi-Vol Products.

The programs include everything from basic skills to high-end robotics, explained Shirley Zappala, Schoolcraft College team leader for contract training.

"Everything is customized and it's offered wherever and whenever the customer needs it," she added.

Sometimes the companies approach the college without defined training needs and are generally looking to improve quality or increase production. In these cases, Schoolcraft employees help the business representative identify areas for improvement and then develops appropriate training programs.

Schoolcraft establishes a partnership with the companies so, most often, they come back for future training needs, Zappala said.

"There are so many consultants trying to make a fast buck off of companies," Zappala added. "Schoolcraft has a history and a reputation for quality training. It's not canned, shelved training. It's customized to each business."

The companies are offered the training program with minimal costs for application fees and other incidentals. The bulk of the training is paid for with EDJT grants by the MEDC, which is often dubbed the state's one-stop shopping center for business services.

The agency works with local companies to retain and expand job opportunities and improve Michigan's overall business climate.

"These grants are designed to train workers in high-skilled, high-wage positions," according to Jennifer Kopp, MEDC spokesperson.

"It makes sure existing Michigan businesses and employees receive the most benefit in training and that we can compete in the global workplace and attract businesses and workers to Michigan," Kopp added.

Representatives of area companies that received training from Schoolcraft as a result of EDJT grants say the classes will not only help their businesses, but their employees, as well.

That was the case with Yazaki North America Inc., headquartered in Canton.

The company is a global supplier of automotive electronic technologies to most major automotive manufacturers. It also produces products and technologies to other automotive suppliers.

"Yazaki has benefited from this grant by being able to offer Yazaki North America associates the opportunity for training in these classes where they may not be able to otherwise," said Cathy Koshizawa, Yazaki North America advanced marketing department copy writer.

At least five technical and personal growth classes were offered as a result of the August grant and close to 200 Yazaki North America employees at the Canton location participated.

"It has promoted improved product quality, built job satisfaction and has boosted associates' morale," Koshizawa said.

Be careful about going into business

JOB SEARCH

GEORGE HAYES

Q. I've been laid off for the second time in three years. I'm thinking of going into business for myself. Any tips?

A.. Get a job first.

Many people who become frustrated with the ups and downs of conventional work start thinking about alternative ways of making a buck. This is good, admirable and the American way. It can also be dangerous.

Executives and mid-level people who have been terminated with a lucrative severance package are the franchisers' best friends. Some of these people make a mad dash down the entrepreneurial highway sans map or compass. They have never before pursued going into business for themselves, but they "know what they're doing." They often fail.

Going out on your own requires a lot of soul-searching. Analyze your business strengths in a realistic way. At the very least, you'll need some sales and administrative skills, plus good technical knowledge of your service or product. What do you hope to gain by starting your own business? The thinking usually goes something like this:

Assumption: There will be freedom from politics. I won't have to kiss anyone's ring anymore.

Reality: Pucker up, friend. As an employee, you probably only needed to keep one or two bosses happy. As a business owner, you'll have to make nice-nice with every unsavory customer capable of writing a check.

You may have fewer choices regarding relationships. And if you intend to have employees, you should also intend to have a therapist.

Assumption: I will be more secure.

Gage, Co., in Livonia said EDJT grants open up new opportunities for job training that the company wouldn't otherwise be able to afford.

The company makes air electronic and computerized dimensional gaging for the automotive companies.

"It's helped us to do a lot of training to bring our people up to the skill levels needed to be competitive in the world wide market," Smith said.

During the last four years Air Gage has sent about 180 employees through different training classes provided by these grants.

"We're a smaller company and this has given us that money to go that extra for training employees," Smith added.

The grant process begins with the company approaching the MEDC, which writes a request on the business' behalf. The grants are available to small and large businesses that provide information technology, advanced manufacturing and bio-medical services.

Another consideration is whether or not the company plans to hire a lot of employees. EDJT requires employers provide a 25 percent match for training existing workers. The grants are given to community colleges, vocational-technical schools or other training providers to administer the training.

A lot of training this year will be delivered through distance learning with programs like, the Michigan Virtual University based in Lansing. This program is offered on the Internet and allows employees to learn at their own rates and without traveling to schools.

"Distance learning programs have revolutionalized worker training," according to Doug Rothwell, president and CEO of the MEDC in a press release.

"These programs are ideal for today's busy worker," he added. "They allow workers to learn when it's most convenient, whether its at noon or 2 a.m."

Reality: You might be more, not less vulnerable. Personally, if more than one of my major clients relocates or closes the doors, I become a familiar face at the Family Independence Agency.

Assumption: I can make a lot of money.

Reality: Maybe, but it usually takes an agonizingly long time if it happens at all. And potential isn't recognized as legal tender in most states.

Assumption: I can set my own schedule.

Reality: This is often true but it depends upon what kind of store or practice you want to open. Some business owners say they only work half the time – and they can choose which twelve hours a day it will be.

Assumption: I will be independent.

Reality: Maybe again. But as a small time consultant, I simply cannot do without my accountant, my attorney, my printer, my landlord, and several others. Sure, they are replaceable, but losing any of them would be costly and a gigantic pain. I hope they don't read this.
