District listens to North Pointe

Plymouth-Canton school officials met with residents in the North Pointe subdivision Monday to hash out concerns over construction of the athletic complex for the new Plymouth High School.

Residents of North Pointe Subdivision in Canton Township are optimistic they can reach an agreement with Plymouth-Canton Schools officials to keep a lighted football field and track, along with other sports complex facilities, from being constructed in their backyards.

School officials met with nearly 35 homeowners Monday night in an effort to make homeowners more comfortable with plans for the $50 million Plymouth High School construction project at the 305-acre Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

"They seem to be making an honest effort to accommodate our concerns," said Joe Paronish, a resident of the subdivision located at Joy and Beck roads, on the outer edge of The Park. "They made some major concessions by agreeing not to award the bids for the grounds portion of the contract, and to meet with us again next month. All we're asking for is non-intrusive athletic fields."

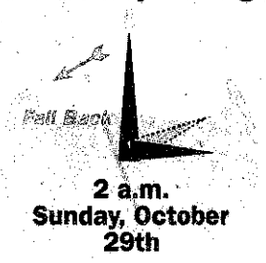

Residents say they were surprised to learn of plans that call for a football field, track, baseball fields, bleachers and towering lights to be constructed within 50 feet of the $350,000-plus homes they purchased adjacent to the school property.

After hearing concerns about the fields being built so close to their property lines, noise from the high school marching band practices, stadium lights shining into their homes, and fans using their yards to get to the complex, school officials presented four possible alternative solutions, several which call for moving some of the sports facilities.

"There were a couple of good possibil-the Canton Township Board of Trustees next month.

The other candidates are incumbents John Burdziak, Melissa McLaughlin and Robert Shefferly; and Democratic challenger Tom Hartnett.

LaJoy is married to Jean and has two children – Chris and Todd, 27-year-old twins.

One of the biggest accomplishments he listed was founding Canton's Leadership Canton program. LaJoy said his heavy business background was a big help. He owned Norrell Staffing Services in Ann Arbor until last year and is president of Human Resource Development Systems of Canton.

His business background gives him unique experience among other board members, he added.

"My background is heavily in business," LaJoy said. "No one (else on the board) has been involved in being an entrepreneur."

LaJoy also put his business sense to use when chairing the Canton Cable Committee, which helped attract a second cable provider, Americast, into Canton, Plymouth and Northville.

Now there's $650,000 in the cable fund – thanks partially to a 5 percent royalty both MediaOne and Americast pay to the township.

"I took a lead, but I don't believe that any one person does anything," LaJoy said.

As a former varsity soccer coach at Catholic Central and a past president of the Canton Soccer Club, he said recreation is very important – and so far Canton hasn't dropped the ball.

"I'm a staunch supporter of recreation," LaJoy said. "I've had my footprint all over the growth of soccer in this community."

Independence Park opened last spring at Denton and Proctor, and is home to new soccer fields for both practice and competitive play.

"There's so many darn things to do in Canton," he said.

LaJoy departed from other trustees when voting in support of an official Martin Luther King Jr. holiday, which would give township employees the third Monday in January off. The board voted 6-1 to instead form a human relations commission to study alternative ways the slain civil rights activist's birthday could be celebrated.

"I just think that it's absolutely the right thing to do," LaJoy said of celebrating the holiday. (King) certainly deserves a holiday – he was a great American."

He did say the human relations commission was a "good step," though.

All good communities need to have a balance of recreation and culture. He described Canton's ongoing plans to build a performing arts center as "good for the community."

Also in the works are plans to expand the Summit and Pheasant Run Golf Course, expand soccer facilities at the Canton Softball Center and build a third fire station. Funds are in the budget to build the new station.

"I think the community has a lot on its plate right now," LaJoy said. "We need to keep moving forward and continuing to make things happen."

STAYING OFF YOUR FEET

What do runners do for exercise when an injury forces them off their feet? If the injury is a stress fracture, runners should take to the water. Swimming maintains aerobic fitness and take as much weight as possible off the injury. If the injury is plantar fasciitis, cycling may present a good way to take pressure off the painful arch and heel. Care should be taken to pedal with the toes up and the heels down to stretch calf muscles. If the injury involves the Achilles tendon, deep-water running may be the best way to simulate the running motion without aggravating the Achilles. Water running stretches and strengthens the Achilles to clear fluid from the injured area and prevent scarring.

Diamond in the rough

Wanted: Buyer for historic Gilmore property

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON
STAFF WRITER
kmortson@oe.homecomm.net

For some people the thought of buying a 156-year-old house that needs more than a little TLC isn't even worth a drive-by. But for a distinct group of individuals, it's a diamond in the rough.

That sentiment and a competitive proposal are what the Canton Township Resource Development Department is looking for. The township recently opened bids on a 1.6 acre parcel of land, known as the Gilmore Property, including the century-and-a-half-year-old Greek revival home that remains on the farmstead.

According to Mike Ager, manager of the Canton Township Resource Department, the property alone is worth more than the $70,000 minimum bid they are seeking.

"We're not necessarily looking for the highest bidder, but the person who puts together a comprehensive renovation plan on a schedule, because we don't want the house to sit dormant for two to three years, who also has the finances to support the rehabilitation of the house to active use," said Ager.

The property at 6205 N. Ridge Road, just north of Ford Road, was first recorded as a land grant from President John Quincy Adams to Alfred G. Fellows on Oct. 31, 1825. In all it consisted of 160 acres. Those familiar with Canton Township will recognize the Fellows name. Alfred Fellows from New York first appears on the tax rolls in 1827 and in the 1830 Michigan census. He and his brothers, Festus and Roy, purchased adjacent property – and thus Fellows Creek was named. The creek once ran across both farms and remains a part of the landscape of Canton Township.

The property changed hands from the Fellows family to John Patterson, whose descendants maintained the property through the marriage of Florence Patterson to William Gilmore in 1936. At one time the farm's activities included the growth of hay, corn, oats, winter wheat, potatoes and three acres of apples as well as some livestock. The following year Florence and William purchased the farm known today as the Gilmore property.

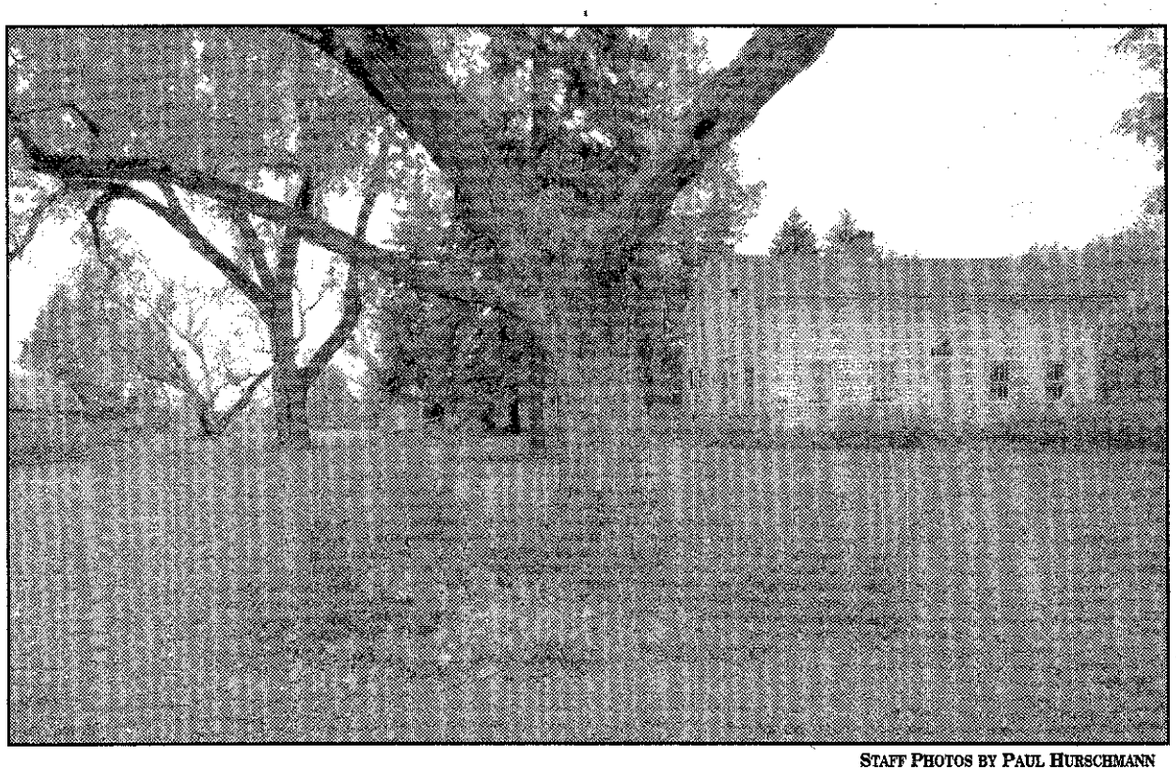

The Gilmores replaced the home's roof, clapboard siding and some windows. They also removed a deteriorating portico and converted a chicken coop into a summerhouse with fireplace. According to Ager the property stayed in the Gilmore family until 18 months ago when the last tenant left and the Township was able to purchase the property and surrounding acreage.

Unfortunately the vacant home underwent water damage from burst pipes due to freezing temperatures. "We had a heater in there last winter," Ager said, "and we'll do the same this year" to avoid a repeat of the breakage.

The water left plaster damage in the kitchen and the hardwood floors buckled and sagging – in need of repair and possible replacement.

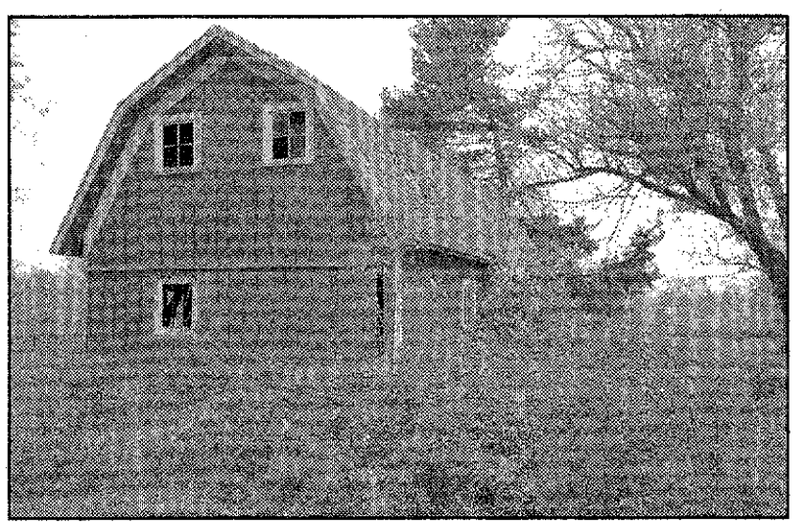

"Whoever purchases this property and home has to follow the strict guidelines established by the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation," said Ager. The proposal drawn up by the Township states that the house as been designated an historic property or "historic district" under Canton Township's Historic District Commission. "The outside of all structures located on the property must be restored according to these standards," states the request.

A benefit to the future homeowner will be the possible qualification of the Gilmore property for a 25 percent tax credit under the Michigan Historic Preservation Tax Incentive Program.

Going back: The 160-acre parcel on Ridge, just north of Ford Road, was first recorded as a land grant from President John Quincy Adams to Alfred G. Fellows in October 1825.

Barn: This 20th century barn is one of several outbuildings on the Gilmore property.

Historically speaking

Melissa McLaughlin, Canton Township trustee and vice chair of the Canton Historic District, said the house maintains "a tremendous amount of historic integrity."

Some of the features of the approximately 1,800-square-foot, one-and-one-half story Greek Revival house include four bedrooms (one of which maintains original stenciling in a leaf pattern), one bathroom, possibly the original wooden cupboards in the kitchen, original hardware on interior doors, dining room, living room and a basement with hand hewn beams.

McLaughlin said the stone foundation is a very sound structure according to an inspector. Exterior buildings on the property include a small two-story 20th century barn, storage shed and a one-story frame summer house (former chicken coop) that features a fireplace.

"A substantial amount of work needs to be done to the kitchen and back porch area," said McLaughlin, "and I'm sure someone would want to modernize it to today's standards of living and possibly add an addition to make it larger, but I wouldn't say the whole house needs to be gutted or situated at the end of the bulldozer."

The property on the north, south and western borders is surrounded by approximately 136 acres of property recently acquired by the township. Ager said the township has plans to use that property as a community park with both active and inactive areas similar to Heritage Park. "This will be a great location for someone to establish residence," said Ager.

The manager of the Canton Township Resource Department said two dates (1 p.m. Oct. 25 and 10 a.m. Nov. 6) have been selected for potential bidders to view the property and home. After the proposals are due Nov. 15, he expects finalists to be selected, notified and interviewed in November. If everything moves forward as planned, Ager would like to see a developer/purchaser agreement signed in December.

Request for proposal packages are available at the Resource Development Office (third Floor, Charter Township of Canton, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton. The package includes such things as project description, site description/inspection, etc. Bidders need to deliver five copies of their proposal to Canton Township in a sealed package labeled "Gilmore Property Proposal for Purchase/Renovation." They will be accepted no later that 4 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15. You can call or write (734) 397-5389 or e-mail mager@canton-mi.org.

ities," said Kelly Flynn, one of the homeowners affected. "It's much better than having noise and lights right in our backyard. They still have a lot to bring back to us."

Superintendent Kathleen Booher told the group that, while attempts will be made to accommodate homeowners, the major concern is providing the best atmosphere for students.

"That space needs to be designed with forethought that there might be some other facility at that site sometime in the future," she said. "We don't know what will go there, but we do know the school board would like us to use these 305 acres as wisely as possible so they don't have to look at additional expenditures for property than are really necessary."

■ 'I'm very optimistic we're going to work out a solution that's acceptable to everybody.'

–Terry Chen, homeowner

Booher noted the current plans were put together with the sports facilities in a "logical orientation to the (Plymouth High School) building."

"There is a great deal we cannot alter, but we are looking for what we can do to help the residents," said Booher. "We also want to stay true to the stakeholders who set the vision for the (high school) bond, as well as be fiscally responsible."

Booher said moving any of the sports facilities will cost the district additional bond money. However, the cost of rearranging the sports complex have yet to be determined.

Meanwhile, residents are hopeful they can come up with a mutually satisfactory plan at another session scheduled for Nov. 2.

"I'm very optimistic we're going to work out a solution that's acceptable to everybody," said homeowner Terry Chen, whose backyard view will change from a wooded area to the back side of bleachers. "I just want to look forward and fix our concerns."

"I've distributed signs and literature," Hartnett, 54 said of his campaign. "Beyond that, my hope is that people consider the wisdom of having some Democratic representation on (the township board).

"There's some people that are surprised (that I'm running)," Hartnett added.

He said he decided to run so he could play a role in managing Canton's growth.

"The main reason (I'm running) is I think Canton is a great community to live in," Hartnett said. "I suppose I felt that recently many things were happening too fast."

Development is one thing that's happening too fast. A majority of the developments seem to be pushed by a small number of developers, Hartnett said.

"I think there's a cartel handling all these developments. There's a lot of money to be made (in Canton)."

Too many projects, he added, are approved with little or no dissent, which run the risk of appearing as "rubber stamps."

"I think that there's just not a role to challenge," Hartnett said. "You have to find out what powers you do have and exercise them."

Hartnett said his experience as a systems analyst and as a lawyer will be helpful when serving on the board.

"I've had to negotiate with people under stress," he said, referring to his job as an attorney with the paternity division of Wayne County's Friend of the Court office. "I've dealt with men and women in trouble and hope that would give me a feel for people and their problems."

He said his computer background and math degree gives him a "good head for figures."

One issue where Hartnett disagreed with most of the board was about how Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday should be celebrated. The board is leaning against closing the township on the federal holiday and instead will likely seek a human relations commission to study alternatives.

A final vote will likely be after the election.

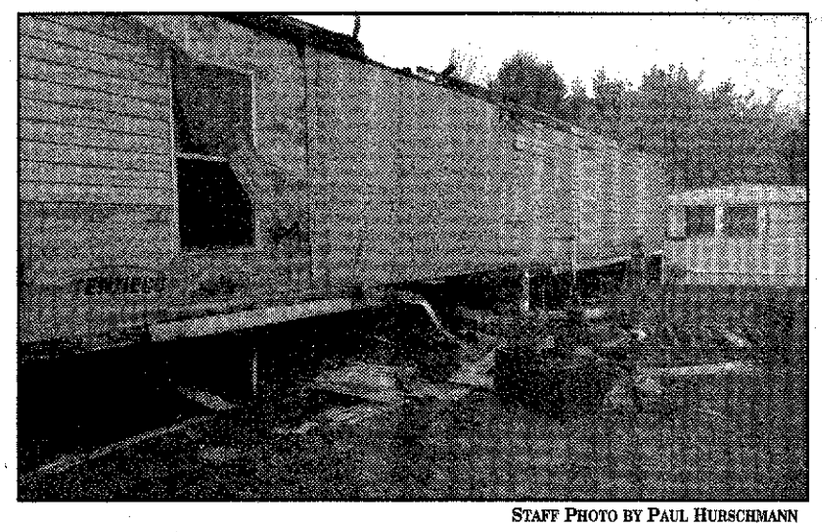

Hartnett has spoken in support of an official township holiday at public meetings. He described the institution of slavery as the "largest forced migration from one part of the earth to another" that affected 12 generations of people.

America is still experiencing the divisive effects of slavery and will continue to do so for at least 100 more years, Hartnett said. Slavery officially ended in 1865, following the Civil war.

"I think it's the right thing to do," Hartnett said. "I think that Martin Luther King stood for the rights of all the people that are marginalized."

fire under control at the home.

No one was in the home at the time and no firefighters were injured. Damage was estimated at $35,000. The mobile home owner's name is Mike Armstrong.

The fire was extinguished with approximately 3,500 gallons of water. Fire and police units were at the scene within three minutes and were at the home until 6:38 a.m.

The Canton Fire Investigation Unit, composed of fire and police personnel, responded to the scene to determine the fire's cause and origin.

The cause of the fire was initially viewed as suspicious in nature, but investigators soon thought that it was most likely accidental. The fire investigators' final determination Wednesday was that the cause is undetermined.

"There's no hard evidence to say one way or another," Canton Fire Inspector Frank Barrett said, referring to accidental and suspicious causes. The fire most likely originated in the mobile home's family room.

Investigators studied burn patterns and debris at the scene. The investigation has been turned over to the Canton Police Department's detective bureau.

Say it with Flowers

by Steve Mansfield

THE LOWDOWN ON CENTERPIECES

The challenge posed by a dinner-table centerpiece for Thanksgiving is to come up with a showy arrangement with a low profile. Because tall arrangements obscure diners' view of each other and discourage conversation, centerpieces in shallow containers are preferred. Little flowers in shallow containers tend to look lost, however, and long-stemmed beauties are prone to falling over. What to do? Look to gold blooms with strong petals and leaves. Try selecting branching stems, such as Casablanca lilies or peonies, which work especially well because their blooms balance one another, both literally and visually. These bold blooms will stay put in a shallow container. Just trim the stems short and allow the flowers to extend beyond the rim a little.

A beautiful autumn arrangement can make the whole dining room come alive at Thanksgiving. At HEIDE'S FLOWERS & GIFTS, we're up-to-date on all the latest styles and trends - innovative and creative, yet knowledgeable of traditions and customs. For a consultation, visit or call us here at 995 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth (453-5140), Mon-Sat. Since 1899, HEIDE'S FLOWERS & GIFTS has been dedicated to providing quality and service to our community. Visit our website at www.heidesflowers.com. Look for our next article in two weeks.

■ Education: Bachelor of science degree from Wayne State University, graduate of High School of Commerce, Detroit.
■ Political Party: Republican

board against Democratic challenger Tom Hartnett. The other incumbents include John Burdziak, Philip LaJoy and Melissa McLaughlin.

He is married to Lorraine, has three children and nine grandchildren.

As a part-time trustee, Shefferly said his job involves serving as part of a legislative body and helping set policies.

"I'm the only trustee who lives east of Canton Center," Shefferly said. "We have different problems than the people on the west side."

Some of those problems include aging infrastructure such as roads, sewer and sidewalks. Shefferly lives in Carriage Hills, one of Canton's older subdivisions.

He described himself as a fairly quiet trustee – instead preferring to read material and ask questions beforehand. But there are a couple of issues he didn't stay quiet about – growth and Canton's need for a post office.

As a planning commissioner from 1978-1992, he said he voted no on every proposal for a new subdivision to make a statement.

"Basements were flooding like there was no tomorrow," Shefferly said, adding "I didn't object to any of these subdivisions."

A township sump pump program has helped stem flooding problems. The program provides free sump pumps to homes built before 1984, he added.

As for the post office, he said he never gave up. He collected signatures at the Canton Liberty Fest and helped put a post office committee together.

"I just thought that a community isn't whole unless it has a U.S. Post Office," Shefferly said.

The Canton post office opened in late 1998.

Roads are one of Canton's hottest issues. Since Canton is a township, it's the county's responsibility to repair most of its roads as opposed to cities, which repair their own streets.

"We've got some roads to take care of," Shefferly said. "You can't get Wayne County to do anything unless you help (with funding)."

Road repair is one issue needing attention. Warren between Morton Taylor and Canton Center needs repairs and Joy Road needs to be widened, Shefferly said.

"Joy Road is an entrance into Canton," he said.

The trustee election race has been decidedly lacking in controversial issues. But a decision not to have an official Martin Luther King Jr. holiday did generate some protests by local clergy and residents.

Shefferly said he supported the decision to instead form a human relations commission to look into alternative ways of celebrating King's birthday, which is officially celebrated the third Monday in January on the federal and state level as well as by many local governments and school districts.

"I have to see what this commission is going to say," he said.

As for the holiday, "there doesn't seem to be much interest in it," Shefferly said, referring to citizen input.

Debate from A1

town Detroit to witness the debate between the two candidates vying for Abraham's Senate seat in next month's election.

Instead, students learned their plans for a firsthand look at the political process were dashed when Abraham's office called and canceled the trip.

"We received a call from Sen. Abraham's office at 4:30 Friday afternoon, telling us the tickets were no longer available," said Bill Boyd, Salem Close Up teacher. "It was too late to notify students, and they showed up Monday dressed up and ready to go. They were very disappointed, and in many cases mad.

"We've been teaching students to talk to their representatives, tell them what they think, and their elected officials will listen to them," added Boyd. "They didn't think much of that message after the tickets were withdrawn. At one point, someone put a caption on Abraham's picture that said 'the devil.'"

Boyd told his students to make their voices heard, and they did by complaining to media outlets. The next thing they knew, their message was received loud and clear.

Word got back to Abraham, who then scheduled a one-hour meeting next Wednesday at Salem to talk politics, and eat pizza, with those students who missed the debate.

"The students got involved, and they got it done," said Boyd. "They went from bitter at Abraham to excited about what they accomplished."

Husk, Cavanagh trade charges in commission race

BY RICHARD PEARL
STAFF WRITER
rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

Wayne County Commissioner Kathleen Husk of Redford Township bristled Tuesday at a charge from 9th District Democratic opponent Philip Cavanagh and lobbed one of her own back at him.

Cavanagh, of Dearborn Heights, said Husk, whose service to constituents has been praised, hung up on two of them. "I was kind of aghast," he said.

Replied Husk, "If he has people call me to harass me, I'm not going to sit on the phone with them."

Then she added, "Mr. Cavanagh just moved here a couple of months or so ago. I know my community. I've lived here 23 years, I'm a former school board member and a community volunteer. If he'd like me to show him around town and introduce him to a few folks, I'd be glad to.

Husk

Cavanagh

"He's trying to make something of nothing," the Republican said. "People know they can call me and get help.

"I have a good record," Husk said of her first two-year term as commissioner. "Do people want me saying nasty stuff about him? That's not what people want.

"I trust people. They know me well enough by now," she said. "People are loyal to me. They know my work record and I'm counting on that."

She claims 99-percent attendance at commission meetings – but Cavanagh took her to task on one she missed.

He said she missed the Aug. 29 committee of the whole meeting, a six-hour-long budget hearing. Husk was at an ice cream social her office scheduled for 100 senior citizens in Dearborn Heights.

Cavanagh said Husk was the only absentee, "so our district did not get representation when dollars were being fought over."

He said she also missed a battle that day over budgeting two county auditors at troubled Metro Airport, which is under state scrutiny – but later voted against the budget because there were no auditors at Metro. "She was trying to have it both ways," he said.

Husk said the social featured a band and food and couldn't be rescheduled. Besides, she said, the meeting was "a study session," not the final vote.

Cavanagh criticized Husk's claim of restoring rodent-control funding because the county executive rejected it.

But Husk answered that the health department responded to her calls, regardless of the lack of extra money.

Husk said her achievements included helping stop no-bid contracts at Metro and replacing non-performing vendors; replacing a non-performing landscaper on the Grand River median; getting a citizens' advisory board approved for the Friend of the Court; and improving accounting for county road dollars and work through use of global positioning satellites (GPS).

She said she also got working two-way radios for road department trucks and "stopped $30 million in wasteful spending by the county mental health department" through audits.

Husk said she got parks millage money for the district despite personally opposing the millage, helped get federal emergency aid for Dearborn Heights' flood victims and has pushed Redford officials to improve roads.

She said her re-election effort "is going really well," with hundreds of lawn signs up and people calling for more.

Cavanagh, a brother of Commissioner Christopher Cavanagh of Grosse Pointe, also said things are going well.

"I've actually had fun. It's kind of grueling, but I enjoy getting out there and meeting people," he said.

But he feels the district needs representation on the roads, airports and public services committee and will seek it if elected.

He also said his degrees in law and accounting and a master's in business administration would come in handy in dealing with the budget and laws.

McNamara doing well following heart surgery

Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara was reported "in good condition" at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak Tuesday.

"That's all the family would allow me to say," said Ilene Wolff, print media relations specialist for the hospital.

June West, McNamara's spokeswoman, confirmed Tuesday that the four-term CEO had undergone quadruple-bypass open-heart surgery at Beaumont on Friday night.

She said he would be out of work for a few weeks while he recuperates. McNamara was born in September 1926.

According to reports, the surgery was a scheduled procedure, not an emergency.

McNamara has been the county's CEO since 1986 and was Livonia's mayor for 16 years before that. He now lives in Plymouth Township.

Veteran Kay Beard faces 2 challengers

BY RICHARD PEARL
STAFF WRITER
rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

Kay Beard of Westland has not one, but two, opponents in her bid to be elected Nov. 7 to a 12th consecutive two-year term on the Wayne County Commission.

Making it a three-way contest is Carl L. Baehr of Westland, the candidate of the U. S. Taxpayers Party, who joins a third Westland man, William H. Steele, the Republican Party candidate in trying to derail Beard, who has been the commission's second in command since 1993.

Neither Beard nor Steele had any knowledge of Baehr as of Tuesday. Baehr did not return phone calls to the Observer and could not be reached by press time.

"I first found out" Baehr was running "when I got a sample ballot several weeks ago," said Beard. "I never heard of him, don't know anything about the party. But they had candidates in a lot of races."

Beard, who also chairs the commission's audit committee, is still basking in the glow of her 3-to-1 Democratic Party primary victory over Westland Mayor Bob Thomas.

"I thought it was going to be real tight," she said of the primary. But her margin of victory was her biggest ever, "and it came over Thomas, who's well-known, which surprised me even more. Let's say I was pleasantly shocked."

That race was true to form for her political career, Beard said: "My big race is always in the primary. I never have a big race in the fall."

Nevertheless, Beard, who feels she has "a pretty good record (of government service) to run on," is still making sure the word gets out. "People are still taking signs to put up" on their lawns, she said.

Steele confirmed a report Beard heard that he is "not planning to do any particular campaigning" for Nov. 7.

"I haven't really had the opportunity to run a campaign," he said, noting among other things that his mother had become ill and died two weeks ago.

"I took what contribution moneys I had to Pat Gibbons for her campaign" for Michigan state representative. "It might be more help to her, she may have more of a chance.

"Even with the money, if I had spent it on my own campaign, I don't think I would have won against Kay Beard," Steele said.

He said Baehr's entry into the race would have "a negligible effect" on the outcome.

Madonna plans open house

Information on financial aid and scholarships will be available and transfer students are encouraged to bring their transcripts. Complimentary refreshments will be provided.

The University's flexible schedule allows the student to attend full time or part time. For more information, call Madonna University's Admission's Office at (734)432-5339.

Hines repaving scheduled

Resurfacing of a 2.2-mile stretch of Hines Drive between Newburgh and Joy Roads in Livonia is scheduled to begin Monday, Oct. 30, according to the Wayne County roads department.

Work is expected to run from about 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, with intermittent closures. The operation should take about four or five days, weather-permitting.

Completion of the resurfacing will then be suspended until final resurfacing next spring.

They oohed. They aahed. They read. Dozens of families sampled the new Children's center at the Canton Public Library Sunday as the staff threw open the doors to the first phase of a $6 million expansion project.

Young patrons – and their parents – were treated to special activities including magicians, clowns and a scavenger hunt in the new, 9,200-square-foot addition on the west side of the library at 1200 S. Canton Center.

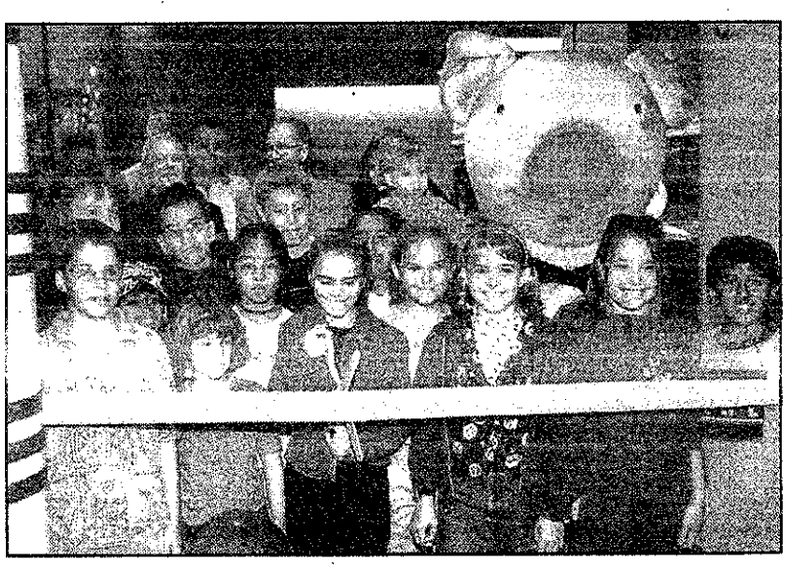

The colorful children's center includes separate shelving for books, DVDs and videos; 32 computer stations and "secret" reading spaces like a tent and a hidden alcove designed to make the library experience a fun one.

A separate area is being created for the library's teen patrons.

The expansion project will continue to the south side of the building with the construction of a state-of-the-art Internet training room and Friends of the Canton Public Library book room. The final phase, on the east side of the library, will include enhancements to the adult and young adult areas.

Ready, set... Jennifer Novak from Canton and friends prepare to cut the ribbon to introduce the children's wing.

House will take up poet laureate bill

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

Michigan is one of only 13 states that doesn't have a "poet laureate," but that may soon change.

Legislation to create such a post is winding its way through the approval process in Lansing. Passed by the Senate, it now awaits House action when lawmakers return to session following the election.

Sponsor Sen. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, is hopeful about its chances.

"Considering the speed with which it passed the senate, I would say that means Gov. Engler at least doesn't oppose it. He's very good at stopping things he doesn't want," McCotter said.

The poet would be appointed by the governor and his or her duties would be largely specified by the governor. But mainly, the position is ceremonial.

McCotter likes Bob Seger for the job.

"As Wordsworth wrote, 'My best and favorite aspiration mounts with yearning to some philosophic song of truth that cherishes our daily lives,'" McCotter said. "Mr. Seger's lyrics have clearly accomplished this in the hearts and minds of Michigan workers ... Besides, most people my age already know the words."

But McCotter hasn't heard yet from Seger whether he would be interested in the post.

"I'm told he said he was honored to be considered, which sounds like he's being diplomatic about it," McCotter said.

If the post was indeed created, state residents with other ideas about who should be Michigan's leading wordsmith could nominate candidates through the senator's office or by contacting the governor's office directly. Whoever won the job, would retain the post through the governor's term of office. Although unpaid, the poet laureate would get expenses.

McCotter said he is promoting the bill because he appreciates the art form and wants to promote it in Michigan.

"This is an education bill, it just doesn't cost a million dollars and that's what's throwing everybody," McCotter said.

State Sen. Thaddeus McCotter

SEMCOG moves offices to Buhl Building

SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, will relocate its offices to the Buhl Building, 535 Griswold, in the Central Business District of downtown Detroit.

"As a council of governments in a major metropolitan area, we recognize the importance of the central city of Detroit to the prosperity of the entire seven-county region and look forward to being a part of its continued revitalization," said Paul Tait, SEMCOG executive director.

Tait noted that the decision to relocate to the Buhl Building reflects SEMCOG's regional policy and emphasizes SEMCOG's commitment to its core regional values – revitalizing downtowns, successful renovation of older buildings, promoting economic activity in areas with existing infrastructure and transit accessibility.

SEMCOG will lease 33,336 square feet of space in the Buhl Building. "The Buhl Building is a historic building meticulously renovated and maintained. It is well-suited to meeting SEMCOG's member and staff needs," said Tait. The length of the lease term is for seven years, with an option to renew.

"Detroit Downtown Inc. is delighted that SEMCOG has continued its 30-year tradition of commitment to downtown by selecting one of our landmark buildings as its new headquarters," said Detroit Downtown President Linda Bade. "The planned relocation to the beautiful Buhl Building emphasizes SEMCOG's faith in the continued vitality of downtown and its pivotal role in Southeastern Michigan."

With a full-time staff of 90, SEMCOG expects to move into its new Buhl Building space in Feburary 2001.

Since ite establishment in 1968, SEMCOG's offices have always been in Detroit – first in the Book Building and currently in Detroit Edison Plaza.

The Buhl Building, a 27-story, 385,000-square-foot office tower, is among downtown Detroit's most prominent skyscrapers. It was named for Christian Buh.

Bar ratings become issue in Court of Appeals race

HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

For incumbent Judge Kurt Wilder, the key issue in the race to retain his seat on the Court of Appeals is experience.

Northville attorney Stephen Korn, on the other hand, discounts that experience. He says it is his "dedication to fighting systemic injustice."

For voters, it could come down to Bar Association ratings, a system long used by local attorney groups to help voters decide how to cast their ballots in judicial races.

The Detroit Metropolitan Bar Association issued its rankings recently and gave a rating of "outstanding" to Wilder.

Korn was ranked "not qualified."

"Mr. Korn was given a rating of 'not qualified' because he demonstrated legal reasoning and verbal and written skills that are well below the minimum standards for an appellate judge. He also exhibited a lack of understanding of the role of the appellate court," said the Bar Association's explanation of the rating.

This is the first time the Detroit Bar has issued a statement of explanation along with its ratings, which are produced by a committee of 45 attorneys, according to committee chair and Detroit attorney Eugene Boyle. The statement was intended to answer the questions and criticisms the group usually receives when it issues a "not qualified" rating, he said.

Very confident

Boyle said the committee was "very confident" of its ratings in that race. He further said there was "little or no dissent" to the rankings given to both candidates in this race.

Korn called the ratings "foolish" and said they appeared to be politically motivated.

"That rating came from an interview with three people in a back room that went on from 6 to 6:15," he said. "Literally, they gave only 15 minutes to review a 20-year career. I say shame on them and shame on the process."

He disputed the claim that the committee consisted of 45. Any information that group was given came by way of the interview with just three others, Korn said.

He also has endorsements, he said, including various Democratic district committees, the Michigan Federation of Teachers and School Related Personnel and the Michigan Teamsters.

The two face off on the November ballot in a race for a seat on the 1st District of the Court of Appeals. District 1 includes Wayne, Lenawee and Monroe counties. The court, which reviews the cases of trial courts – district, probate and circuit – within its jurisdiction works in three-judge panels. It's estimated some 95 percent of appeals end at the Court of Appeals.

Wilder was appointed to the post by Gov. John Engler in 1998 to fill a post vacated by the death of Judge Myron Wahls. Prior to becoming a judge, Wilder was an attorney in private practice from 1984 to 1992.

Korn, an attorney who resides in Northville and has offices in Warren, specializes in probate and estate law, spending much of his time working with senior citizens. He practices mainly in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

He discounts Wilder's experience. He notes that a number of attorneys have been appointed to appellate level judgeships without ever serving as a trial court judge, even at the Supreme Court level. Justices G. Mennen Williams and James Brickley count among them.

"In my 20 years as an attorney, practicing in many disciplines, I have dedicated myself to fighting against systemic injustice," Korn said.

The challenger is used to running counter to the current in the legal field. He points with pride at his victory in a 1983 paternity case, in which he challenged what he said was standard policy in the Wayne Circuit Court of requiring paternity defendants to waive their right to trial if they wanted to have a blood test.

Another case he points to is the one he filed on behalf of Southfield City Councilman Sidney Lantz earlier this year against City Clerk Nancy Banks. Last November, Lantz was elected to a two-year post on council, but lost out on a four-year seat by just 70 votes. Later, 180 absentee ballots were found in the city's post office box, uncounted in the election. An Oakland Circuit judge ruled that ballots have to be in the clerk's hands by the time polls close to be counted, and that state law doesn't consider when absentee ballots were postmarked.

Korn has filed an appeal to the Court of Appeals, and that is where the case now sits. He worries that if another election passes before the appellate court reaches a decision, the case may become moot. Once the case is no longer relevant, the court will not rule, he said.

The time it takes for the Court of Appeals to issue a decision is one of his key issues in running for the bench. Not only do decisions take too long, the court also cannot tell attorneys the status of a case while it is pending. He said he is not clear how the court, or who on the court, decides the priority for issuing court decisions.

Wilder agrees there is a long lag time in the issuing of decisions, but it is not as long as it once was. In 1993, cases typically took two years to get through the Court of Appeals. Today, 87 percent take less than 18 months. But Wilder said it is not clear how much more that time can been trimmed.

Wilder and Korn agreed on the issue of unpublished court of appeals decisions, both said they would like to see more "published," or precedent-setting rulings, coming out of the court. Wilder said it's needed because of the recent addition of family court. There is a need for the court to give guidance to the lower courts in that area.

Korn is still unhappy with Wilder over the way this race got started. The candidate got on the ballot by signature petition; he needed 6,200 signatures to qualify. He turned in 7,000, but Wilder challenged the validity of those signatures. Korn eventually made the ballot, but the fight was expensive and time consuming, he said. It took him, he said, hundreds of hours and more than $12,000 of campaign money to fight off the challenge.

Korn charges that it's standard practice among incumbent judges to challenge petitions in an attempt to keep challengers off the ballot.

Vote for trustees with an eye on the future

John Burdziak

Tom Hartnett

Phil LaJoy

Melissa McLaughlin

We like most of what we've seen over the last four years from the Canton Township Board of Trustees. We also worry about the future.

What to do about disappearing green space, traffic-choked roads and maintaining older neighborhoods certainly make the list. But most of our concern centers on a broader, less tangible worry – one that has far more serious consequences than any single issue facing the community today.

Where will the next generation of Canton leaders come from? When will they step forward? And how will they handle the challenge as the explosive growth of the last 10 years begins to taper?

With that in mind, we endorse the re-election of three incumbents to the board next month, as well as the election of one newcomer, the only challenger for a part-time trustee seat. Incumbent Republicans John Burdziak, Phil LaJoy and Melissa McLaughlin, along with Democrat Tom Hartnett, are in the best position to help guide the township through Supervisor Tom Yack's fourth term.

All four candidates demonstrate a solid understanding of the role Canton's part-time trustees play as part of the full board and in legislating policy. They share some basic views on development issues, but exhibit healthy differences on how much is too much. And each brings different strengths to the table when it comes to personal background and career skills.

Burdziak is a 27-year resident who appreciates the past, but isn't shy about moving Canton forward. Burdziak said this month that the township should continue pushing for recreational opportunities for its residents. "We need more soccer fields, maybe even a golf range," he said. Burdziak believes that while the board can regulate growth, it can't deny the rights of property owners. He understands that growth brings with it a need for additional services and infrastructure.

LaJoy, seeking a third full term, brings his experience as an entrepreneur and a community enthusiast to the board. It's more than a pun when LaJoy, a past president of the Canton Soccer Club, quips that he's had his "footprint" all over the sport locally. LaJoy was also instrumental in negotiations to bring a second cable provider – Ameritech – into Canton to provide competition for rates and service. LaJoy is the only current board member on record as favoring a full township holiday for Martin Luther King Day. "I just think that it's absolutely the right thing to do. (King) certainly deserves a holiday – he was a great American," LaJoy said last week in an interview with the Observer.

Hartnett's public support for the holiday is just one reason we feel he merits election to the board. The staff attorney for Wayne County's Friend of the Court office will be a valid and needed check on some of the board's recent decisions. Hartnett believes too many projects are approved by trustees with little or no dissent. He also feels board members should be more vocal. One role played by the board is to further public discussion of issues, Hartnett said.

McLaughlin stresses the fact that a trustee's job involves more than just discussion and decisions at the board table. She has turned a part-time trustee post into that of full-time community advocate. During her time on the board, she has become a beacon for residents with any number of concerns. In addition to serving as the board's liaison member on the planning commission, McLaughlin serves on the Historic District Commission and can be found on nearly any committee for every event or cause in the township.

These four candidates are more than qualified to serve as trustees and represent the best possibilities as Canton looks toward the future. Voters should choose John Burdziak, Tom Hartnett, Phil LaJoy and Melissa McLaughlin when filling out their ballots on Nov. 7.

Kirchgatter is our choice for township treasurer

Canton voters will have a choice when it comes to the treasurer's race this time around. And that's good. Competition keeps everyone – including elected officials – on their toes.

Still, the Observer believes incumbent Elaine Kirchgatter deserves strong consideration for a third term as treasurer, one of three full-time township trustees. Republican Kirchgatter is opposed by Democrat Steven Kilijanczyk on Nov. 7.

Since her election in 1992, Kirchgatter has sought changes that have modernized the treasurer's department. Records on computer or via fax are now accessible to any township taxpayer. Kirchgatter is looking at further enhancements, including an automated telephone system to help callers check records. But the treasurer is wary of change just for the sake of change. There must be demonstrated advantages for the public or from a cost standpoint before moving forward with new technology, she believes.

Elaine Kirchgatter

For example, Kirchgatter says the township has looked at the possibility of accepting tax payment on credit cards, but would have to add a 1 percent fee to tax bills to cover the costs. "That's like passing a tax increase on to the people. I don't know that it's justified," she said.

Kirchgatter was also responsible for helping to develop the township's current investment policy, which has been cited as a national example for municipalities. The township's expanding tax base of recent years has boosted investments to $78 million.

Kirchgatter, 60, was a part-time trustee for four years before her election as treasurer and she has a solid understanding of development and other legislative issues before the township board. She believes the master plan should be used as a guideline for long-term goals and she has adopted a realistic approach. "I think that most people coming to the community realize that it's no longer the rural community it once was," she said.

We do note that Kirchgatter and the township have been named in a lawsuit filed Sept. 8 by a current employee and a former employee in the treasurer's office. The suit alleges age discrimination, harassment and invasion of privacy. It would be difficult to draw any conclusions until the matter is adjudicated, which unfortunately won't be until after Election Day.

Based on qualifications and past performance, voters should cast their ballots on Nov. 7 for Elaine Kirchgatter as township treasurer.

Walsh is better

I wish to express my opinion regarding the Observer endorsing Bruce Patterson's re-election to a second term as the representative for the 21st State House District.

I have listened to Patterson speak , but I hear nothing but political rhetoric. He does not speak to the issues that are at the forefront of this nation. I am appalled at his voting record concerning health care issues. He has voted no on health care issues that have had an negative impact on personal lives as well as not looking out for the best interest of the indigent population.

Wayne County presently has an eligible Medicaid population of 357,753 and continues to rise. There is a crisis as I write concerning our loved ones who have mental health and substance abuse disorders that require long-term care. The average length of stay per patient in a mental health facility is 11.75 days; for those that require long-term care, the average can be as high as 165 days.

This is unacceptable. What does Patterson plan to do to ensure the needs of our uninsured, elderly, mentally ill and substance abuse population? As a health care provider along with also being a consumer, point blank he scares me. We the people need someone in Lansing who cares, has a proven track record of meeting the needs of a special population.

Nursing homes have a failing report card. This warrants sending Mickey Walsh to Lansing. He has advocated all nursing homes be accredited, that all care givers be licensed in the state of Michigan with ongoing credentialing of providers. Walsh has personally witnessed and worked with people who have been part of national disasters, ensuring that they had safe places in which to stay with their families, access to health care and personally worked with the skills he has acquired over the last 43 years to make a difference.

I end this with one question. Do you want someone in Lansing who represents "veteran leadership" simply by being there or do we want a person like Mickey Walsh, who has and continues to be there for the people?

Vote for Nader

It's almost always the same response and the same comment. "What, you're throwing away your vote?" This is after I tell family and friends of my recent decision to vote for Ralph Nader in November. "How can you vote for someone who cannot possibly win," they all chant.

Here is my answer: In my opinion neither candidate (George W. Bush nor Al Gore) is acceptable. Time and time again they rant on about the ills of society and their own great plans for change.

There are some, including the press, that call it an exaggeration or embellishment, and some even say it's OK in order to make a point. I call a lie a lie and I call liars unacceptable as candidates for the highest office in the land. The presidential debate was full of such "exaggerations" and "embellishments." There they stood asking for our votes, one looking like I must have looked when my mother would say, "Wipe that sneer off your face, missy," the other looking like someone should have shouted, "Earth to Governor Bush," just not quite there.

And let us not forget that both the candidates owe big favors to the fat wallets that helped finance their campaign, big business and special interest groups, trial lawyers, teachers unions, drug companies, HMO's, the oil industry, tobacco, and many more. Can either help get prescription coverage for seniors and the uninsured while still making drug companies happy campers? I don't think so.

Nader has very little charisma, but he is honest and his answers sincere and forthright. He has no hidden agenda and I will be able to feel good in the fact that I stood up for what I believe. Lying is always unacceptable. I voted for President Clinton and his sex life was, and is, none of by business.

It saddens me to see the choice we are given, especially since Senator Joseph Lieberman seems to be an honorable man who would make an excellent vice president.

So it seems that I have no chance of voting for the winner this year. But didn't someone once say, "Only dead fish swim with the steam?"

Not for Nader

We saw and heard Ralph Nader at a recent meeting of the Economic Club of Detroit and listened to a 45-minute tirade lambasting the auto industry.

Here we have a man who is running for the office of President of the United States and he delivers a message which would be humorous if it wasn't so tragic. He didn't understand nor did his aides advise that he should be spending the time in presenting his message and explaining why he should be elected to the highest post in the land.

If it hadn't been for the hand-outs at the end of the meeting we would never of found out anything about his platform, his aims or goals.

On the other hand, we are fortunate enough to live in a land where any person can become President. Haven't we already proven that?

Favors teacher testing

I was surprised to hear that only one of every three Michigan teachers has taken the current test for teachers. Proposal 1 will fix that problem by testing all teachers in main academic subject areas. Education reform is vitally important and teacher testing is at the top of the list in terms of reform that I would like to see.

Overlooking judges

Has the media overlooked their obligation in describing the characteristics of judges in elections? I look but never find any professional facts on judges running for any of the offices. The most I ever discover after a search is what school they attended, how old they are, marital status and other unimportant personal data. What I want to know is their party affiliation. Knowledgeable voters are already aware that the term "nonpartisan" on the bottom of the ballot is a lie.

Tell the public this: How many verdicts have they had overturned and why? Or have they overturned other judges verdicts and why? (Although, I understand that judges do not have to give reasons for their rulings; they simply pronounce without comment. How convenient!)

What offices they have held and how long? Are they defense or prosecuting attorneys? What type of cases have they heard? On what courts have they sat? Are they objective? How many guilty people have they freed? How many not-guilty people have they sent to jail/prison? Do they discriminate/profile?

Do they themselves have outstanding violations against them, such as parking tickets or worse? Are there any appearances of corruption or biases or unsavory relationships? How do their peers rate them? Is there any nepotism or cronyism surrounding their work histories? Have they worked in a private practice?

What are their records for plea bargains? Do they set punishments according to "example" or justice? Are their sentences reasonable related to the crime or misbehavior? Do they act with "political correctness" or justice/law? Do they owe anyone anything, such as a favor for campaign contributions? How much money have they received for campaigns and from whom?

There are many legitimate questions which are routinely ignored by the media. My friends and acquaintances regularly note this at election times. It's time for the media to fully inform the voters about judges.

Judicial selection process appears to be 'broken'

Suppose you get arrested and charged with a crime. Suppose, further, when you get to court you discover the presiding judge in your case had his campaign entirely financed by your worst enemy.

As you take your seat in the courtroom, would you reflect serenely on the majesty of the law and the fair and impartial justice system? Somehow, I doubt it.

Phil Power

Well, that's exactly what is happening to the highest levels of the judiciary in Michigan, courtesy of our peculiar system of allowing the political parties to nominate candidates for Justice of the Supreme Court and then electing them by statewide ballot.

We are in the midst of the most expensive, most partisan and most disgracefully distorted campaign for Justices of the Supreme Court in our history.

Expensive? According to the latest campaign reports filed with the Secretary of State, Democratic nominee Marietta Robinson has raised $724,607, Republican Clifford Taylor $545,420, Republican Robert Young $535,251, Democrat Ed Thomas $525,063, Republican Steven Markman $489,856, and Democrat Thomas Fitzgerald $363,162.

That's a total of $3,183,359 raised by the candidates themselves! And that doesn't count an estimated $2 million more spent by the political parties and "independent" special interest groups on their behalf. Figure most of the money going to Democratic candidates comes from the trial lawyers and the unions and most of the dough going to the GOP is coming from the business community.

Partisan? The three incumbent justices on the ballot – Markman, Taylor and Young – have formed the core of a conservative majority on the seven-member court. They've put restrictions on civil lawsuits and supported aggressive tactics by the police. Criminal defense and personal-injury lawyers charge the Republican candidates with stacking the deck against the ordinary citizen and for the law enforcement and business interests.

Disgracefully distorted?

Consider a TV ad paid for by the state Republican Party that attempted to convince voters that Democrat Judge Fitzgerald encourages child molestation. How? By citing a single Fitzgerald ruling affirming a relatively lenient sentence in a case involving a man who was convicted of sexually touching a child.

Consider Democrat-sponsored TV ads portraying Republican candidates as tools of insurance companies and big business who have voted against ordinary citizens 82 percent of the time.

I can only conclude that the net effect of this year's campaign will be to lead Michigan citizens to conclude that justice in our highest court is up for sale to the highest bidder.

What's an ordinary voter to do?

Certainly, few have any idea whatsoever of the legal qualifications or judicial philosophy of any of the candidates. Indeed, of the people I've talked to about the race, none – none! – could recite the names of all the six major party candidates. And if past elections are any guide to this one, around a third of the voters won't even cast a vote for Supreme Court Justice.

Nobody seems willing to expend the effort or the political leadership to change the system, which almost certainly involves amending the Michigan Constitution.

To be fair, very few like the current system. I've talked with most of the candidates, and in private conversation each of them speak with disgust about what's going on. Republican Gov. John Engler, who has played a significant role in tilting the Court to the conservative side during his years in office, allows it might be time to look at reforming the system. And Democratic Attorney General Jennifer Granholm says "the current system is broken."

But nobody seems willing to expend the effort or the political leadership to change the system, which almost certainly involves amending the Michigan Constitution.

About the only major group that seems to like the current system is the Michigan Chamber of Commerce. Bob LaBrant, a lawyer-lobbyist for the Chamber, was quoted last Friday in the Detroit Free Press as saying with respect to a reform movement, "We might get all worked up. But I don't think Joe and Mary Michigan are really paying any attention."

LaBrant's attitude illustrates perfectly the complaisant cynicism displayed by the major players in Michigan politics. They're perfectly willing to stand by while our justice system is trashed and brought to the level of merely another political apparatus.

Long-ago Halloween taught lesson that nothing, not even life, is forever

Halloween 1964. We could barely eat our dinner that Halloween night. The outside air smelled of burning leaves, and inside the warm popcorn balls my Mom had just made sat drying on the kitchen counter. It seemed dusk would never come.

I sat in my tiny Bugs Bunny costume, the plastic mask pushed to the top of my head, pushing the uneaten pork chop back and forth, stirring my Mom's homemade Applesauce, watching as the apple juice ran into my boiled potatoes, not caring. I was far too excited to eat. My brothers sitting across the table never ate, fiddling as usual with their food. Dad was to take them trick or treating, but I was 8 and able to go alone with my friends.

In 1964 I loved being 8 and growing up in my tiny western Michigan town. My Dad was a high school teacher, and my mom was active in groups and clubs, and knew everyone. It was a different world then. We didn't know about kidnappings, rape, or about strange, sick people who would put razors in apples, or cyanide on popcorn treats. Our community was safe, loving and, in later years, boring.

Cathy Standish

"When can I go, Mom?" Mom turned away from the sink and looked at my brothers and me, sitting at the kitchen table, not eating, breathless with excitement. That must have been the moment she conceded.

"If you want to leave a little early, clear your places and go ahead." I was 8 then, and I loved my mom. This time before the teen years hit were good ones for my Mom and me.

My brothers and I scrambled, clearing our places, putting on our shoes. I grabbed my treat bag, and an extra bag for our top secret mission of the evening. My Mom saw the two bags in my hand, and thankfully, said nothing. I feared she would take me for being piggish or greedy. I decided she was too busy to notice.

I ran out the back door, running as fast as I could to my friend Ellie's. I tried wearing the Bugs Bunny mask, but I couldn't see. The plastic eye holes bounced about my head and face, blinding me. The hot plastic smell made my nose feel stuffed, and I pushed the mask on top of my head as I ran.

Ellie was waiting on the front porch when I arrived. Conspirators in our secret mission, we looked at one another knowingly. Our costumes in place, our treat bags prepared we headed into the growing dusk for our house-to-house mission for candy and treats.

We stepped up to the door of Ellie's neighbor, the nicest and richest man in town. I gulped, feeling nervous at what I was about to ask. Holding out my treat bag, he plopped a lovely chocolate bar into the bottom of it. Ellie held out hers, and he did the same. "Mr. Stout," I asked, in my tiny nervous voice, "could I have another for this bag, please?" He looked at me a little funny, but he was a very nice man. "Why sure," and he threw another into my extra bag.

Behind our tiny elementary school was a farm and a pond. The pond was used by the farm animals that would often wander to the fence dividing the farm from the schoolyard. Sometimes we would leave the perimeters of our playground to pat the animals' noses. Several weeks before Halloween, Debbie left us with the animals, and squatted by the end of the pond. "I am making mud pies" she hollered. Her hands all muddy, I shuddered. I hated mud, I hated dirty water, but Debbie loved it.

They discovered Debbie's hepatitis very quickly. On Halloween night Debbie was lying at home, very sick. No tricks. No treats. Ellie and I were afraid she was going to die. We had never heard of quarantine, let alone hepatitis, and we were scared for her.

That night we filled our bags, and we filled one for Debbie. In retrospect, I now understand that the people of our town knew what we were doing, carrying that extra treat bag, filling it up for our sick friend stuck at home.

Thankfully, Debbie got better, and life was normal by Christmas. She always knew it was us that dropped the load of candy by her front door, and not the Halloween Fairy as we claimed. But we have never admitted a thing.

We stayed away from the farm after that. But it was that Halloween in 1964 that will stick with me forever. For in that Halloween year of 1964, I discovered the truth that life is not forever.

After the fear, spellers took it to defending champs

We stood, the three of us alone center stage, the two-time defending champions off to the side, confident and bold.

After a sub-par finish a year ago, our team wanted to redeem itself. Nervous and jittery lest we fall again, we waited for the event to begin, the tension thick enough to cut with a knife.

Then came the first command.

"Your word is ..."

Who remembers the first word? No one. We tackled it, and all the others, as we attacked the ninth-annual Community Spelling Bee presented last week by the Community Literacy Council in cooperation with Yazaki and the Neville Financial Group. We came equipped with all the zest of youngsters vying for a trip to Washington.

But I learned a new lesson in terror, with judges listening to every letter we uttered. It was Bruce Willis facing a dozen terrorists in Die Hard, the condemned prisoner facing a firing squad.

For journalists dedicated to the written word, you'd have thought we'd breeze through it. And you'd have been wrong.

When the question of participating in the bee first came up, I was pumped. I had, after all, been the sixth-grade spelling champion at Macomb Park Elementary School. I still have the dictionary I won, the one with my name sprawled across the front in gold-embossed letters.

How easy it would be to vanquish these spelling wanna-bes.

And then the lights came on, and the first word was spelled, and we were off and running, 14 teams vying for the coveted spot of "least embarrassed." The format was simple: three-person teams spelling words from lists provided by the council. Misspell a word, you're out.

Five teams fell in the first round, none in the second. When the third round started, and the words got harder, the dictionaries hit the fan.

Down went the Plymouth Salem High School team, which hung on deep into the third round. Down went the two-time defending champion Friendly Spellers from the Canton Public Library. Their captain, Kathy Gladden, whose husband Jack works for the Observer, made sure to mention our less-than-stellar finish from 12 months before.

Pretty bold talk from a team that would finish a distant third. Our team — including captain Tedd Schneider and the always-dangerous entertainment writer Stephanie Casola — was determined to make the naysayers eat their words.

Finally, it was down to the final two teams, and the back-and-forth began. In the championship round, if one team failed to spell a word correctly, the other team got a shot at it. If that team got it right, it would get one more word to proclaim itself the top bee.

But a funny thing happened on the way to the title. After a second-round display of spelling acumen, both teams went brain dead in the final round. It was the Observer team spelling against the Spell Binders from the Community Federal Credit Union. And neither team could get a word right. Words like "burgeois" — one team forgot the "e," the other put it in the wrong place — befuddled six bright, competent adults.

Then it happened. The Spell Binders didn't know "watteau" had a double "t" in the middle. When the judges said, "I'm sorry," we had it. We had no idea a watteau is a certain style of dress, but we were pretty sure it had two t's. We were right and, after also correctly nailing "sukiyaki," we had the coveted trophy in our grasp.

The relief was immediate and tangible. When we first decided to participate, I thought it was just a great opportunity to get out in the community. When our boss' first question was, "Can we win?" I thought, "That's not what it's all about."

When we'd won, I knew it was worth it.

And the best thing was it came in support of a great cause. The spelling bee is the council's biggest fund-raiser, this year pulling in some $5,000 in cash to help raise literacy awareness. The council sponsors a tutor program that will be the biggest beneficiary.

Yazaki joined the team as a gold sponsor this year and, coupled with the continued staunch support of the Neville Financial Group, helped the bee accomplish its best year yet.

"This has been a most fabulous year," said Deborah Taracuk, the president of the council's Board of Directors. "It's a lot of work, and we haven't always gotten a terrific return. But this year it was a meeting of everything.

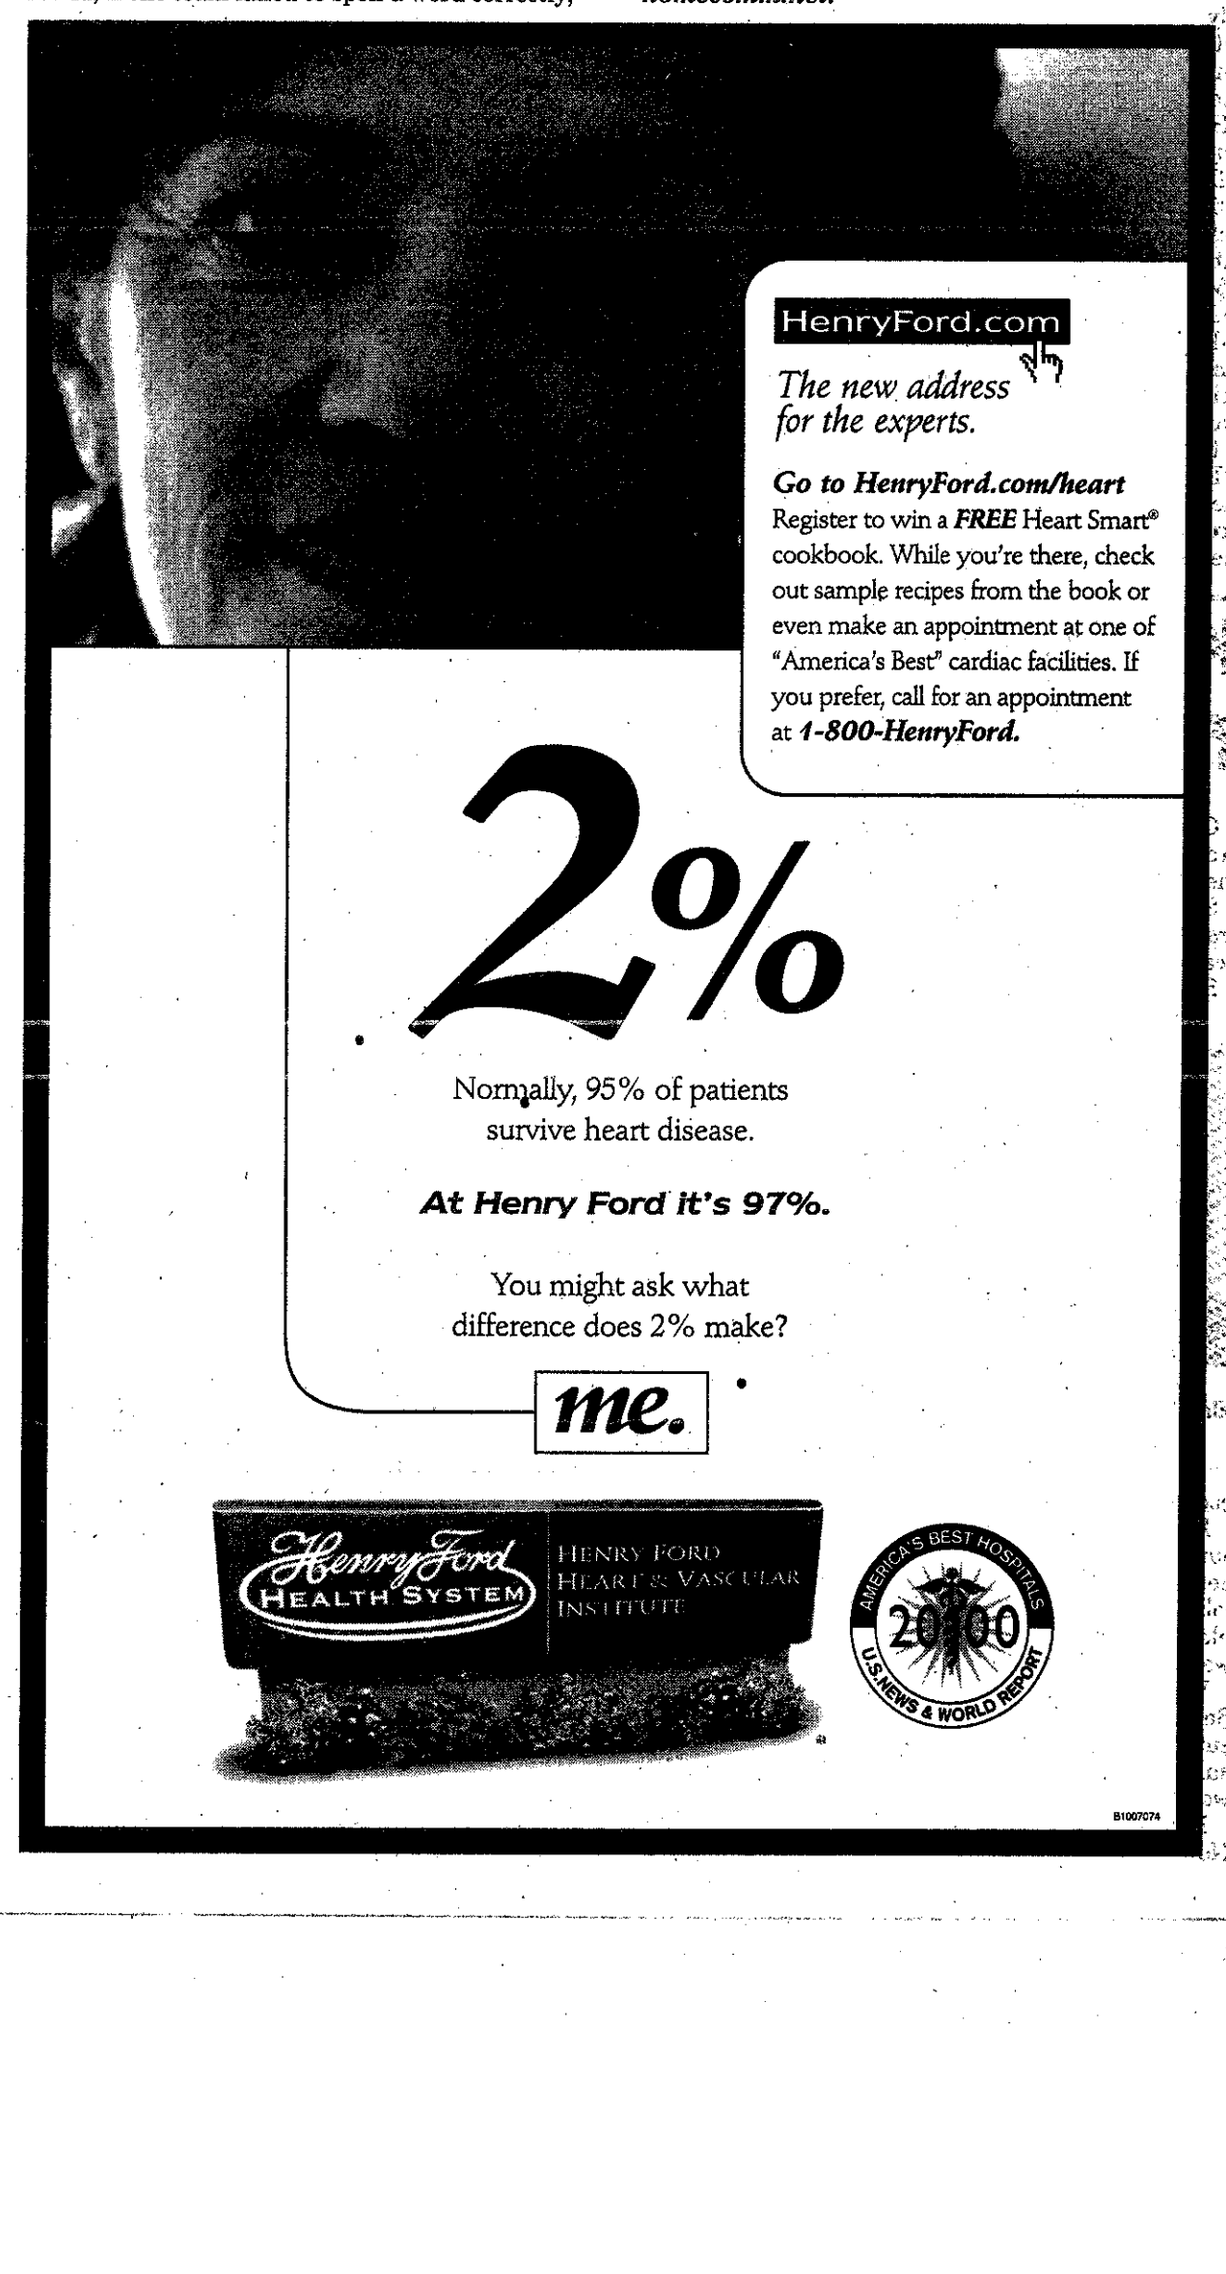

"We brought in more money, and our new sponsor, Yazaki, gave us a bigger and better spin."

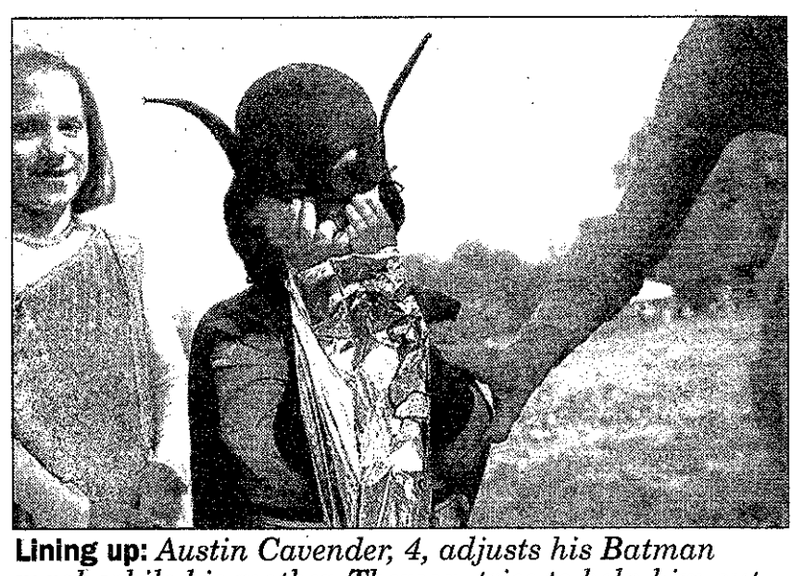

So what started in abject terror coalesced into an effort to help a dynamite cause. Of course, dethroning the Canton library team leaves the Observer's "Deadlines" with a target squarely on their backs.

Until next year, I have just one question:

Where is my gold-embossed dictionary and my trip to Washington?

WAYNE COUNTY PARKS TREATS 400 YOUNGSTERS TO A HALLOWEEN PARTY

About 300 youngsters dressed up as ghouls, ghosts, monsters and goblins for the eighth annual Wayne County Parks Halloween festival Saturday in Westland.

The youngsters enjoyed games, a hayride, a magic show by Gordon Russ and a performance of "Frankenstein Follies" by Off Broadway Productions.

With Halloween right around the corner, Wayne County Sheriff Robert A. Ficano is reminding parents of small children to be especially alert.

"Tragedies can be avoided by simply following the rules of common sense," the sheriff said.

"We wish all our young ghouls and goblins a safe Halloween," he said.

The department recommends:

- that adults escort young children and that they go trick-or-treating before dark;
- that costumes not be too restrictive and that nobody uses masks that cover the entire face and restrict vision;
- that both purchased and home-sewn costumes have reflective or light-colored materials;
- that adults still supervise older children, but if that's not possible, then set and stick to a time-limit;
- that children never be allowed into any neighborhood that neither you or they are familiar with;
- that children be encouraged not to eat their treats until they bring them home and have them inspected;
- that you discard any unwrapped candy or anything that looks like it may have been tampered with;
- that the children's goodies be brought to your local police station or hospital for X-rays (call first to make sure it's being done at either spot).

Girls will be girls ... forever

Seven or 70, girls will be girls. A few weeks ago my Aunt Louise, 69, stopped by my mother's house to deliver some groceries. While she was inside unpacking, I was outside getting the last few bags out of her trunk.

A nicely dressed man, a rather youthful-looking senior walking down the street, stopped in front of the house.

"Excuse me, but do you live here?" he said, floating out a soft Tennessee accent.

"My mother does," I answered. "We're you looking for someone?"

"Well..., I just moved back here, only a few blocks away. I used to know a dark-haired lady whose sister lived on this street."

"Mmmm."

"I think it was this street," he said, looking up and down the block. "It looks familiar, but that was over 40 years ago."

The search

I proceeded to name all the neighbors of that era and all who had come and gone since, but with each name he shook his head no. Finally, running his hand through his wavy hair, he offered another clue.

"The family had some kind of fancy French name. I think they were from Canada."

"Oh, really?" My interest perked.

"And this lady's sister used to watch my friend's little girl."

Zap! Voila! My maiden name is French. My father's family was from Canada. My mother took care of my Aunt Louise's daughter. And my Aunt Louise still has lots of dark hair.

"Could the lady's name have been Louise?" I asked.

"That's it!" he said. "Louise! We were... well, we were good friends."

If "good friends" back then meant what it means now, I sensed romance. I asked him his name and told him to wait right there. When I said my aunt, his long-lost Louise, was in the house, he just about had a heart attack.

The surprise

Aunt Louise was tucking the last can of tomato soap onto a shelf when I burst into the kitchen. "You're not going to believe this, " I gasped, "but some guy named Joe Smith (not his real name) is out in front asking about you. He just moved back from ... he was walking ... has a Southern accent ... he's good looking!"

"Oh, my God, that's my old boyfriend!" she shrieked and ran into the bathroom as fast as her two replaced knees could carry her. "Keep talking to him. Give me time."

Meanwhile, my mother, Aunt Louise's older sister by 12 years, had pushed her walker across the living room floor and popped out onto the porch. Correctly reading the surprised look on Joe Smith's face, she said: "Don't worry. I'm not Louise. She's coming."

Minutes later Aunt Louise emerged, hair freshly brushed, cheeks rouged and lips bearing a coat of red gloss. "Why Joe," she crooned. "You old devil, you haven't changed a bit."

"You look pretty good yourself," said Joe.

I pulled my mother back inside as the conversation between Aunt Louise and Joe Smith tumbled across the chasm of time, something about country music, Cadillacs and summer airplane rides in a two-seater. My aunt seemed to grow younger by the minute.

Later that evening I asked her about Joe. "He really liked me," she said a bit wistfully. "He liked to spend money and have a good time. But we were never ... you know ... we were just good friends."

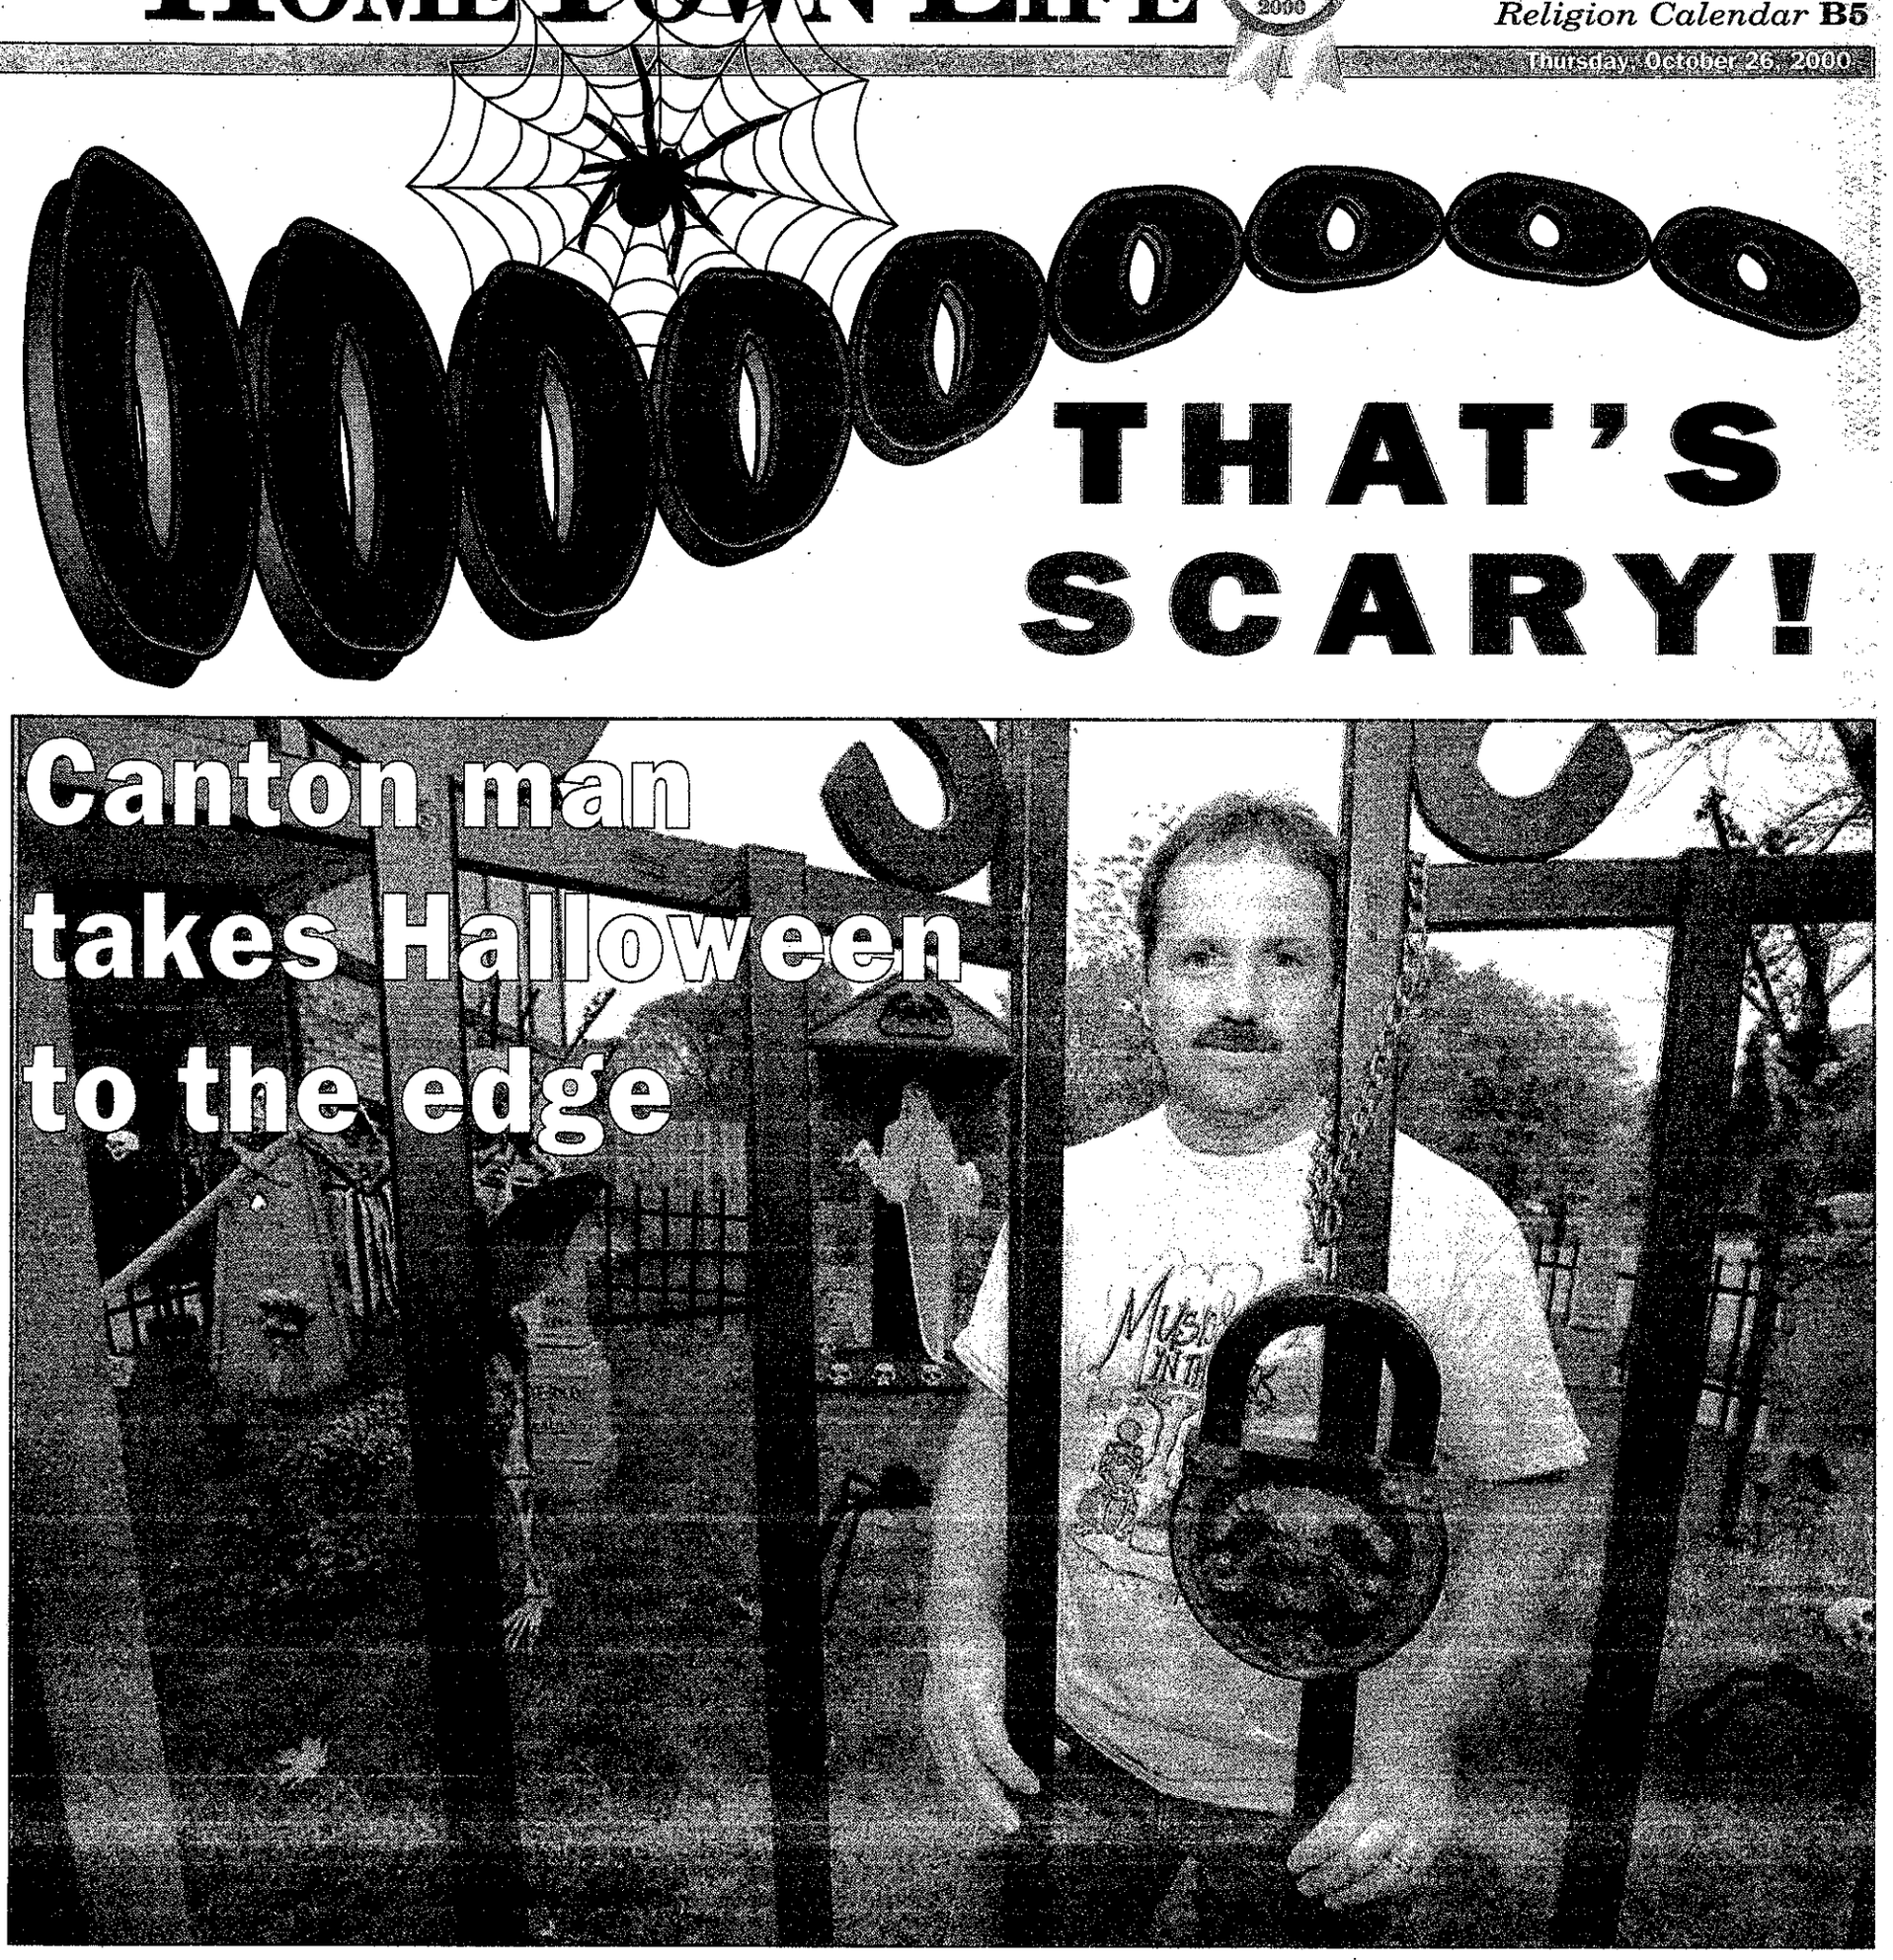

Sure.

"Do you think you'll ever see him again," I asked. After all, it was possible.

"Oh, I don't think so," she said. "But, darn, I'll never be able to leave the house again without lipstick."

Like I said, girls will be girls ... forever.

Buried, dead or alive: Dan Sarna stands ready to greet ghouls and goblins brave enough to come begging for candy this Halloween at his Canton home where he spends approximately $1,000 a year on decorations and displays — many of his own creation.

Got a corpse you want to get rid of? If it's after midnight, just slip it under the gate of the cemetery at Dan Sarna's home on Westchester Street in Canton this Halloween. If he doesn't bury it, he'll surely dismember it ... or at least serve up a banquet of brains.

Every Halloween, hundreds of pint- and gallon-sized trick-or-treaters trek by Sarna's ghoulish display.

"We get about 400 kids," said Sarna. "Some come in cars. Neighbors say I have to subsidize them for candy because the kids first come here then go across the street and a few houses down."

The centerpiece of Sarna's display is his "House of Skeletons," which for 50 weeks of the year serves as his garage. This year, it's the dining chambers for a family of skeletons, including the undernourished "Baby Bones" perched in a highchair. Even Stephen King would feel comfortable here listening to the eerie music and feasting off a plate of brains and eyeballs.

"It's not scary to me. I'm never scared," said Kaiia Gavlas, 6, who lives just a few houses away. She then pointed at her companion and neighbor, Adam DuLong, 5. "It freaked out him one day," she proclaimed.

"It's creepy," said Adam.

So, is Dan Sarna a wild and crazy guy with a demented brain, a man who likes tickling your funny bone, or any bone that will make you shriek?

"No," said his wife, Linda. "He just enjoys Halloween."

"I'm just a normal, quiet guy," he said.

Passion for play

Sarna's display, which began 13 years ago with just a few items, now envelopes his entire home and lawn and includes such notables as Count Dracula,

■ The grounds are littered with tombstones, rats, giant spiders and half-rotted corpses, which began life (death?) as plastic skeletons covered in cotton balls and liquid latex then painted brown.

Bucky the Spiderman, the Flying Crank Ghost and "Uncle Ritchie," who's always in the hot seat.

The electrifying Uncle Ritchie was named after Dan's uncle. "He looks just like him," said Linda. "He's deceased."

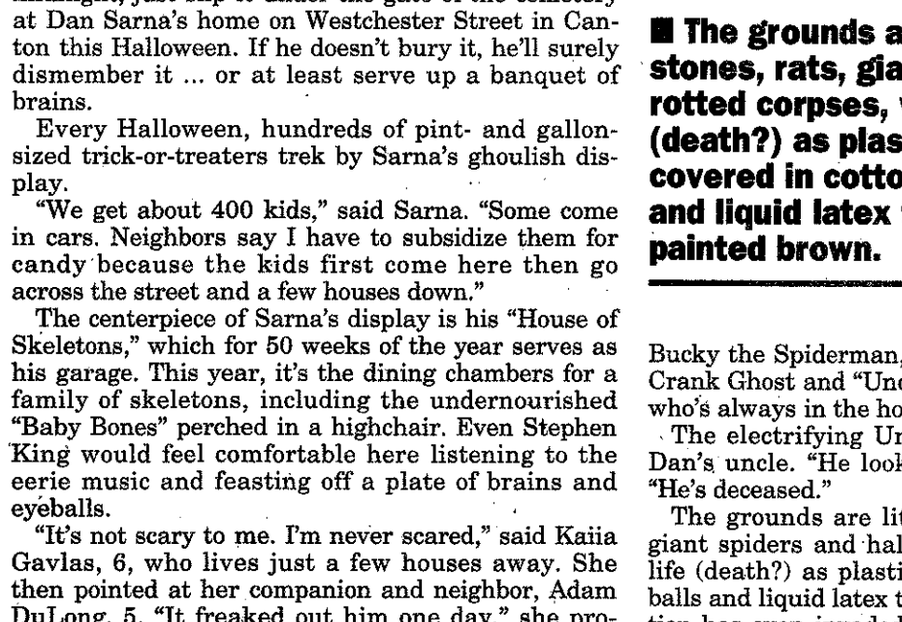

The grounds are littered with tombstones, rats, giant spiders and half-rotted corpses, which began life (death?) as plastic skeletons covered in cotton balls and liquid latex then painted brown. The collection has even invaded Sarna's home, and the "Master of the Crypt" now waves menacingly from living room front window.

Sarna, a pipe fitter by trade, makes 70 percent of his displays, often using discarded work materials such as piping, gauges and Styrofoam. Even his old wooden fence was recycled into tables of torture and cages of horror. He also buys and barters off the Internet, spending about $1,000 each year. And, of course, Linda keeps his addiction for the bizarre going.

"Our anniversary is in October, and every year I buy him a new character," she said. This year, Linda's gift was a fearsome-looking devil's head with orange eyes and rings in its nose and ears.

Also new this year is the "Flying Crank Ghost," a gauzy free spirit who floats blissfully in front of her mausoleum, her arms moving up and down thanks to a motorized crank. The mausoleum, which arrived in a kit, took Sarna a week to build.

Sarna's collection has just about outgrown his home's storage area. Props fill his basement, attic and rafters 50 weeks out of the year. "Next year, I'll need a couple of semi-trucks," he said.

ZAP!: "Uncle Ritchie" finds himself in the hot seat once again.

Sarna fans

"I like the guy coming out of the upstairs window, although the ghost is pretty neat. I tell everybody you've got to see it," said neighbor Vicki Berrey

Sarna's daughters Kristen and Katie, 15, like the gauzy ghost the best. They often help their father assemble the display each evening. And son Matthew, 16, likes to wear a costume and stand perfectly still on the front lawn, waiting for some unsuspecting child – or adult – to wander by.

It's all in the spirit of Halloween.

"He's kind of weird," said Kristen of her father. "It's been fun though."

Sarna is already thinking about what he's going to do for next year, and Linda's thinking about her husband's next anniversary gift. When asked how many more years he'll have a Halloween display, Sarna said: "'Till we move."

"And we're not moving," said Linda.

"I just don't know how to stop," said Sarna.

No one wants him to. Happy Halloween.

Redford Suburban League flaunts fashions to benefit center for the blind

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homecomm.net

It's an annual fashion soiree of sorts.

Each fall with the turning of the leaves, the Redford Suburban League hosts its Celebrity Festival of Fashion. The event, now in its 27th year, brings local names and faces from print and broadcast media to the catwalk sporting the latest in casual and formal attire — all for a special reason.

As a second-time model in the event, I can say it's always a pleasure to join in the fast-paced fun of slipping into lovely new outfits from Cache of Novi (Men's Warehouse outfitted our male counterparts), to have your hair and make-up done by the creative staff of Walled Lake's The Works Salon, and to amble down the runway amid a roomful of friendly, smiling faces. The show, held Wednesday, Oct. 18, drew a crowd of more than 900 visitors to Livonia's Burton Manor.

Saying thank you

Co-chairperson Doris Gabrys of Plymouth extended her gratitude to emcees Doris Biscoe and Rich Fisher, the celebrity models, corporate sponsors and "everyone who came out to support our efforts."

But the success of the event hinges on its purpose. Each year the Redford Suburban League reaches out a helpful hand out to children in the community who are in need. This year, that spotlight fell upon The Penrickton Center for Blind Children in Taylor. The center offers private, non-profit residential and day care services for children age 1 to 12 who are blind and have at least one other disability. It is the only such facility of its kind in the state. Because the center offers services free of charge, it relies on the support of area foundations, like the Redford Suburban League

"We chose them because, of all the organizations we support, they don't get any government support," said Cynthia Jamieson, league member and Redford resident. I've known about Penrickton Center for twenty-some years."

Ongoing support

Miriam Skinner, league treasurer and Canton resident, could not yet estimate the amount of money raised by the event, but said she was pleased with the outcome.

"It was a good turnout," said Skinner, who resided in Redford for 20 years. "Penrickton is such a unique place."

Because of the league's support, one specific change was made this year.

"We've been able to give money to them every year," said Jamieson. "This is the first year we've ever given all the money we raised to one organization. In the past it's been (spread among) 20 different organizations."

The money couldn't come at a better time for The Penrickton Center. It will go toward a $1.5 million goal of expanding the center from 12,000 to 20,000 square feet and renovating it to provide additional bedrooms, bathing facilities, therapy rooms, as well as updating electrical, plumbing and heating systems. The improvements have been ongoing since September 1999.

Kurt M. Sebaly, executive director of the center, said he is honored to be the first sole beneficiary of the league event. Sebaly even agreed to participate, as a celebrity model. Those in attendance might recall he walked down the runway with WJBK Fox 2 correspondent Kerry Birmingham – who stole the show from him twice – once in her tiger-stripped suit and again in a midriff-baring formal dress. "All in all it was a lot of fun," he said.

Sebaly joined the staff at the center in 1979 as a social program director and has been there ever since. The Penrickton Center's staff of nurses, child care and social workers offer training in personal hygiene, motor skills, speech and language acquisition and mobility. The children enrolled are exposed to music, massage, dance, movement and occupational therapies.

The center maintains a ratio of three children to one child care worker. Currently, 21 children are enrolled in the residential program — which does not include weekends or holidays — and seven children are in the center's day care program. Children come from as far as Toledo and Howell, but the center also services families from Westland, Garden City and Livonia. The expansion will increase enrollment to 33 children.

"No two days are alike," said Sebaly. "You never know what's going to happen. We believe in what we're doing."

The Redford Suburban League believes in what the center is doing as well, said Skinner. "What they do for the children makes (our work) all worthwhile."

Mt. Hope welcomes Livonia council member

Maureen Miller-Brosnan was the featured guest in the second of a series of pulpit conversations with Pastor Steve Schafer in October at Mt. Hope Congregational Church in Livonia.

Miller-Brosnan

The series, titled, "God in the Community" is one in which Livonia leaders are invited to take part in the worship service at Mt. Hope by sharing their views on the spiritual aspects of leadership, how they have seen God working in the community and in each of their own lives.

Recently Livonia City Council president, Maureen Miller-Brosnan said that the busyness of her life, with community leadership in numerous civic organizations, government, church, and family are part of who she is.

She has to set priorities and, even though she doesn't have much time between activities and duties, she knows that there needs to be a time each day simply to listen to God and not to always be running and doing.

She is very proud of the spiritual diversity and quality in Livonia's people.

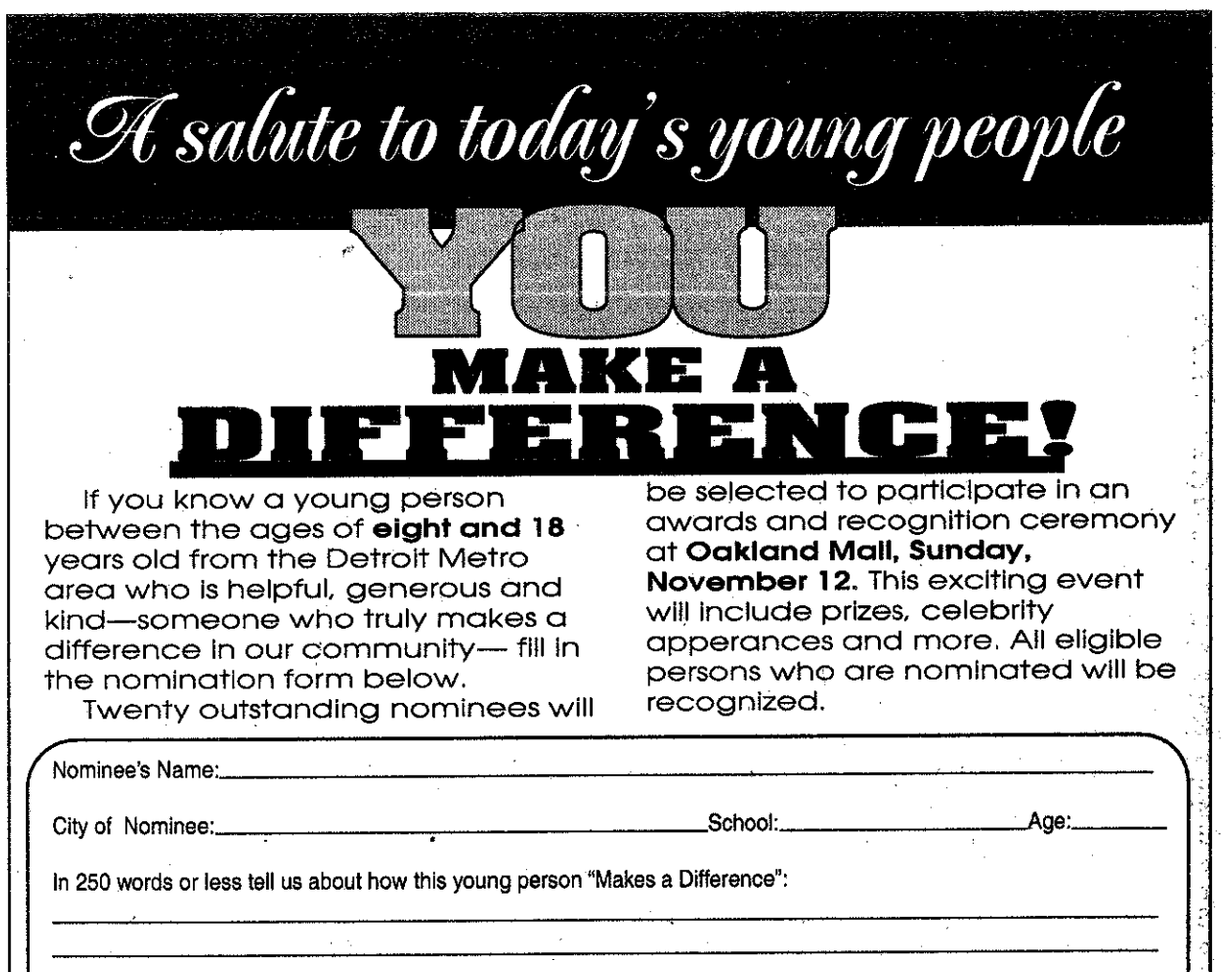

Miller-Brosnan is the youngest person ever to be elected to the Livonia City Council and has served the city in this capacity for the past six years. She serves on the board of the Livonia Community Foundation, the Livonia Community Prayer Breakfast, the Livonia Family YMCA, Livonia Town Hall and will served this year, along with her husband as honorary chairpersons of the St. Mary Mercy Hospital Foundation Fundraiser – Hollywood Nights.

The Mt. Hope series continues with a different community leader sharing his or her faith monthly through May. Mt. Hope is located at 30330 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia. Visitors are always welcome.

Give Thanks To The Lord... The Bible tells us to give thanks to the Lord, for He is good, His love endures forever. We all have so much to be thankful for, regardless of our situation in life.

God has given us so much and asks for little in return. We should always be thankful for His love for us and realize that in everything, God works for good with those who love Him who are called according to His purpose.

Give thanks to the Lord, because He is good, and His love is eternal.

SC runners 1st

Five Schoolcraft College runners finished in the top 10, and that was more than enough to propel the Lady Ocelots to the top at the Alma Invitational Cross Country Meet Saturday.

SC finished with 28 points, well ahead of Alma, which was second with 49. Hope College placed third (69), Lansing CC was fourth (84) and Macomb CC finished fifth (136).

The Ocelots' Katie Chonacas (from Livonia) was first overall in 19:46, just ahead of teammate (and Plymouth resident) Gabrielle Crandall (19:54), who was second. Other SC scorers: Heidi Frank (North Farmington), seventh (20:15); Jennifer Furlong (Livonia Franklin), eighth (20:16); Amanda Davis (Garden City), 10th (20:18).

Non-scorers for SC were Christy Smith (Livonia Churchill), 25th (21:38); Andrea Garibaldi (Canton), 29th; and Theresa Mifsud, 62nd (25:19).

SC travels to the NJCAA Regionals Nov. 3 in Cleveland.

Canton tops Salem

Plymouth Canton's junior varsity football team proved more than a match for its cross-campus rival, Plymouth Salem, as the Chiefs ran their record to 8-1 with a 42-6 victory.

A tipped-ball interception by Canton's Joseph Henry set up the Chiefs first touchdown. By halftime they had built a 35-0 lead.

Reggie Joyner scored three Canton touchdowns, Doug Davidson had two and Dave Nicoloff tossed a TD pass to Shawn Zullo. Nicoloff also threw a two-point conversion pass to Andy Howald, while Ankit Kachhal booted four extra-points.

Canton's freshmen team was also victorious, posting a 20-6 triumph over the Rocks. The Chiefs, who led 14-6 at halftime, got two TDs from Brian Vella.

Hawks reap title

The Livonia-based Michigan Hawks recently won the under-15, -16 and -18 Michigan State Youth Soccer Association Cup title to advance to the Region II Tournament next summer in Springfield, Mo.

Anne Morrell (Plymouth Canton) was named MVP in the under-18 division, while Melissa Dobbyn (Livonia Stevenson) took MVP honors in the under-15 bracket.

Three Hawks received most valuable goalkeeper honors including Kathryn Cumming (under-15), Katie Anger (under-16) and Cindy Bennett (under-17).

Young stays hot

Jennifer Young continues to be the offensive force for Central Michigan University's volleyball team. The sophomore from Plymouth (Livonia Ladywood HS) collected 52 kills in three matches spread over a four-day span, leading the Chippewas in kills in two of them.

Young had a team-best 21 kills (.317 kill percentage) in a 15-5, 16-14, 0-15, 10-15, 15-11 win at Eastern Michigan Oct. 18; she collected 17 more, also a team-high, in a 15-11, 16-14, 15-6 home-court loss to Akron last Friday; and she totaled 14 kills (.250) in a 4-15, 15-12, 15-13, 15-9 loss to Toledo at CMU.

Young leads the Chippewas (11-10 overall, 6-4 in the Mid-American Conference through last weekend) in kills with 287. She has a .264 kill percentage.

CYO champs

All Saints Elementary, a Catholic school located in Canton, had something to celebrate this week. The Blue Thunder sixth grade volleyball team, in just its second year, won the CYO West One Division championship with a 7-1 record.

Team members are Ellyn Wetter, Meghan Matheny, Melissa Chomin, Bridget LeFevre, Caitlin Cox, Elisabeth Stratton, Lexi Burdette, Rita-Lou Jourdan and Claire Madill. The team is coached by Janet Brady.

Goal!

Late score gives Salem district win over Canton

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

The strategy was simple, really. As Plymouth Salem boys soccer coach Ed McCarthy would describe it, do what you do best.

Which is exactly what the Rocks did in their annual (at least it seems that way) showdown with Plymouth Canton in the state district tournament Wednesday.

"I was talking to the boys yesterday," McCarthy recounted. "We've been having trouble scoring goals, and we debated serious changes in the lineup.

"We decided to change nothing. We would defend well and go for the shutout.

"Our strength is defending. Go with what got us here."

Give the Rocks credit — they stuck to their plan and, even though the Chiefs were applying all sorts of pressure throughout the second half, it was Salem that scored the game's only goal for a 1-0 win.

The victory propels the Rocks into the state district final opposite Ann Arbor Pioneer. That match will be 7 p.m. Friday at Pioneer.

Salem improves to 18-4-1 overall. Canton's final season record is 12-5-4.

The game's single score came after the Chiefs had kept the ball in Salem's end of the field for most of a 15-minute stretch. With 5:21 left in the second half and both teams staring at the distinct possibility of overtime, the Rocks broke into Canton's end on a seemingly harmless play.

In other words, Canton defenders were there.

But Salem's Brian Popeney sent the ball to Kevin Savitskie on the wing and Savitskie crossed it back inside to Popeney, who buried it behind a lunging T.J. Tomasso, the Canton keeper.

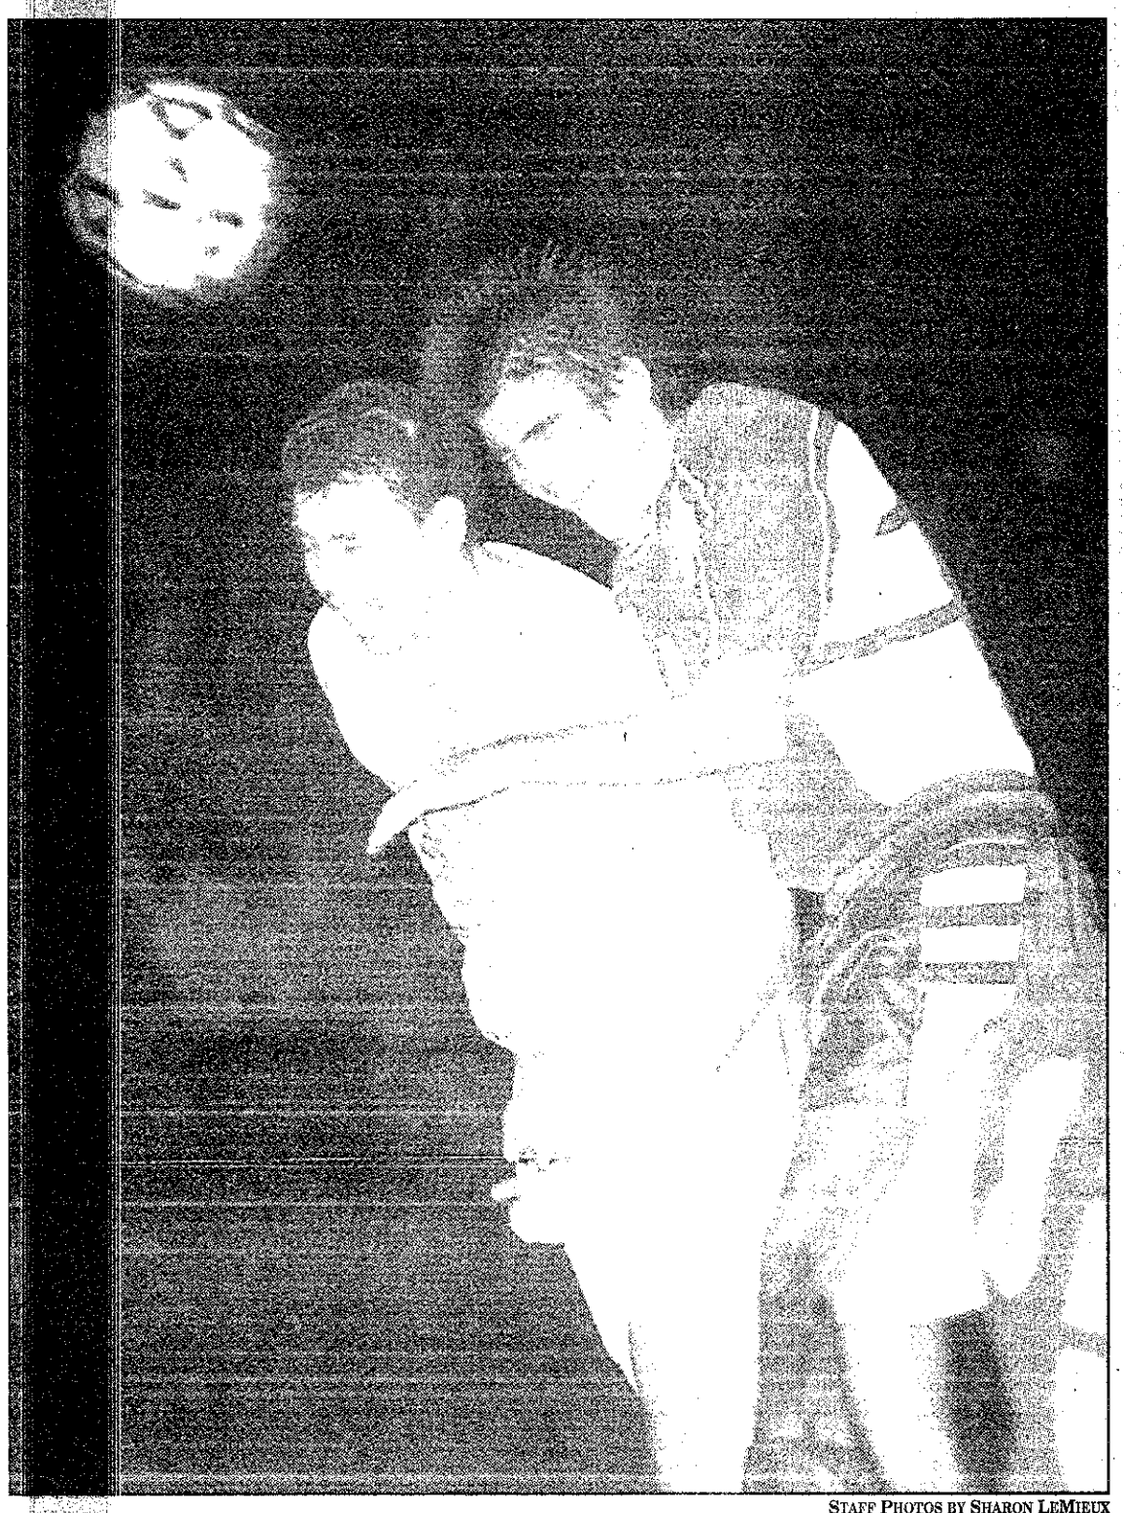

"It was a give-and-go with Savitskie," said Popeney, a sophomore midfielder. "Kevin sent me a perfect pass and I just put it in.

"It was a big goal because this is a big

Rocks hand Mustangs 1st league loss

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Dreams of a league championship were dashed for Plymouth Salem when Farmington Harrison's Ayana Richmond sank two free throws in the last minute of a one-point Hawks' win last Thursday.

But the Rocks weren't about to give up. They still had something to prove.

And on Tuesday at the new Northville HS, playing in a gym the host Mustangs — who came into the game unbeaten in the Western Lakes Activities Association — had yet to lose in, Salem proved it was still a power to be reckoned with in the conference.

The Rocks took the lead with 25 seconds left in the first quarter on Kelly Jaskot's three-pointer and never again surrendered it, handing Northville's its first home-court defeat by a 37-26 margin.

The outcome left Salem and Plymouth Canton tied for third in the WLAA at 8-2 (Salem is 12-4 overall). Northville, now 9-1 in the conference and 14-2 overall, hosts Farmington Harrison — also 9-1 in the WLAA — in a game to determine the league championship tonight.

The difference in Tuesday's game, according to [illegible] "I think we really created a defensive situation they haven't faced before. We kept them on eight (points) forever.

"We took away their running game and made their perimeter players make shots."

The Rocks also eliminated Northville center Mary Tanski from the equation. A formidable force in the paint, the 5-foot-10 senior was never a factor offensively or defensively. She did not score a basket in the game, scoring two points on free throws.

"We couldn't get her the ball," Northville coach Pete Wright said. "When she was open, it was only for a few seconds, and then help was there so fast if

Canton, Belleville have similar styles

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Really — why even exchange game films?

Belleville will try to do what Plymouth Canton does. And vice versa.

When the Chiefs take their first trip to the state playoffs in 10 years Friday, visiting Belleville, they'll be in for some good ol' style, head-knockin', between-the-tackles type of football.

The kind that would make Woody Hayes proud.

Certainly that's what both coaches preach. Sure, there might be 15 passes thrown. In the entire game.

By both teams. Combined.

Running threat: Dane Kobus led Canton in rushing this season.

"We are very similar (offensively)," said Canton coach Tim Baechler of the Tigers. "I think they actually pass fewer times than we do."

Belleville coach Bob LaPointe wouldn't disagree. "They play good, old-fashioned football — good line play, good trapping play," he said. "The way they play together, it reminds me a lot of us."

Friday's game will feature two teams determined to play keep-away with the ball. Expect to see a few 10 or 15 play drives. It's the foundation both squads are built on.

"We want to keep their offense off the field," said Baechler. "We want to control the clock and control our field position."

By the same token, the Canton coach knows his Chiefs must do everything they can to prevent Belleville from doing the same thing.

"We're going to have to play some great run defense," he said. "There are going to be some plays that are third-and-3, third-and-4, and we're going to have to step up.

"We gave up a 17-play drive against Salem last week. We just can't do that."

Belleville, which played in the Mega Red Division, won its first seven games this season before losing to Dearborn Fordson and Romulus in the last two weeks. In both losses, the Tigers were in a position to win (Fordson and Romulus have qualified for the state playoffs, too) but couldn't manage it.

Canton qualified when it beat Salem, 27-7, last Friday. The Chiefs have won their six games by an average margin of 30 points.

However, none of their six victories have come against a playoff qualifier. Also, injuries have taken their toll on Canton over the past couple of weeks.

In their win over Farmington Oct. 13, the Chiefs lost running back/defensive back Jerry Gaines with a finger injury and offensive/defensive lineman Brad LaVallee. Against Salem, running back/defensive back Brandon Wilcox went down with an ankle injury.

On Tuesday, running back Billy Gazsi was out

DETROIT ROCKERS PREVIEW

Rockers figure that changes to boost results

BY C.J. RISAK

New.

Is there another single word that can better describe the 2000-2001 Detroit Rockers? The team will be playing the bulk of its games out of a new venue — Plymouth's Compuware Arena — with a roster that is for the most part rebuilt.

The ultimate plan of their coach, Drago, is for a largely new team on a new field to reap new results.

Better results.

"My biggest task was to convince this team they could win," said Drago. "For six years this has been a losing team. In the past we had players that, win or lose, good or bad, they would play.

"That's terrible. It creates a complacency. There's no accountability."

That lethargy, that acceptance of defeat, was at the top of Drago's list of things that must change. Bringing in new players could help the situation — if they were an upgrade.

Drago firmly believes they are. Of course he does. This is a man who effuses optimism, who proudly proclaims, "I love life and I love people. Every morning I wake up and thank God. All my life I've made a living playing the game that I love.

"Why wouldn't I be grateful?"

Negativism won't be allowed among the Rockers if Drago has anything to say about it. And although some of the players missing from last season's squad (only seven of 16 from last season's roster return) are prominent — goalie Bryan "Goose" Finnerty is at the top of that list — there are some big-time players com-

Madonna tips Siena Heights

It was a good win, but it might be too little to make a difference — for now.

Madonna University got two goals from Salvatore Piraine, last year's Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference player of the year, including the game-winner in downing Siena Heights 4-2 Saturday at Livonia Ladywood.

The win enabled the Fighting Crusaders (9-3-1 in the league) to close to within striking distance of the Saints and the No. 2 seed for the WHAC playoffs, which begin Friday. The conference's top two seeds receive first-round byes; Aquinas, 11-1-1 in the WHAC going into yesterday's game at home against Madonna, has first place sewn up.

Siena Heights was 9-2-2 with a trip to Tri-State yesterday still left to play. Should the Saints lose and Madonna win, the Crusaders would get the opening-round bye.

On Saturday, the Crusaders took it to the Saints from the start, getting a goal from Piraine at the 9:42 mark; Patrick Griffin (Plymouth/Redford Catholic Central) assisted. Matt Rozek made it 2-0 with 1:11 left in the half on a steal and a breakaway.

But Siena Heights closed ranks and the score, getting a pair of goals in the first six minutes of the second half. Steve Mazimpaka scored the first, assisted by Andy Power (from Plymouth Salem); Jason Whitacre got the second, assisted by Sam Skeels and Pat Kehres.

MEN'S SOCCER

Griffin got an insurance marker with 17:08 left in the match; Jeff Budd (Livonia Stevenson) and Brian Seidel assisted.

Joe Suchara (Stevenson) made five saves in goal for Madonna, 11-7-1 overall. Joe Adcock had two saves for the Saints (11-4-2 overall).

Should the standings remain unaltered by Wednesday's results, Indiana Tech will play at Madonna Saturday and Tri-State will be at Cornerstone Saturday. Madonna lost to Tech 3-2 Oct. 14 at Ladywood.

Sophomore Gary Bell, Madonna's sophomore midfielder, was named WHAC player of the week after scoring three goals and adding three assists during the week, all coming in a 9-1 victory over Spring Arbor.

Schoolcraft wins state

Schoolcraft College got a school-record 10th-straight shutout, beating Macomb CC 2-0 Saturday at Macomb. The Ocelots, ranked 15th in the NJCAA, improved to 12-3-2 overall.

This weekend, SC hosts the Region 8 Tournament, and there's been a change in the opposition. The Ocelots will open with Cincinnati State, which was upset by Cuyahoga CC 2-1 last Saturday and lost the top seed in the state. Cuyahoga will meet Kellogg in Saturday's first game at 11 a.m.; SC and Cincinnati State meet at 1:30 p.m.

The championship match is Sunday at 1 p.m.

The regional winner advances to the Midwest Inter-regional hosted by Iowa Central in Fort Dodge, Iowa.

"Sergio (Mainella, SC's sweeper) and the boys played well again defensively," said SC coach Van Dimitriou. "They played exactly the way I asked them to play."

Meaning SC could not afford to lose a player to a red card (and the resulting one-game suspension). Knowing the match would be a rough one, Dimitriou warned his players to be careful and keep their composure.

The Monarchs, who had five yellow cards and a red, could not, and that was a decisive factor.

SC scored 18 minutes into the match when a corner kick by Justin Fishaw (from Plymouth Canton) reached Shawn Presnell (Redford Thurston); his header was stopped, but Nick Skotanis was there to knock home the rebound.

Following Macomb's red card, Fishaw knocked in a pretty pass from John Johnson (Plymouth Canton) 25 minutes into the second half to ice the victory.

With Mainella (Stevenson) at sweeper for Tom Stark (suspended for academic violations) and Doug Koontz (Plymouth Canton) in goal, the Ocelots put up a defense that was unbeatable — again. SC has now outscored its opponents 35-1 over the last 12 matches.

Lady Crusaders claim championship

It's been a fast track for Madonna University's women's soccer program.

The Lady Crusaders, in just their third year of existence, captured the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference championship with a 6-0 triumph over Aquinas College Tuesday in Grand Rapids.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

Madonna improved to 14-2-1 overall, 13-1 in the WHAC. Aquinas fell to 11-7 overall, 9-5 in the conference.

The win assures Madonna of a first-round bye in the WHAC Tournament, which begins Saturday. The Crusaders will play the winner of the Cornerstone University-Indiana Tech game next Wednesday.

In the victory over Aquinas, Melissa Jacobs and Michele Vettraino (both from Livonia Stevenson) each scored two goals to lead the assault. Both of Jacobs' goals were unassisted and came in the game's first 30 minutes as the Crusaders built their 4-0 lead.

Jamie Scott (Livonia Churchill) scored a goal on a penalty kick and Susannah Bryant also scored a goal. Kelly Delaney, Paula Shureb (Stevenson) and Nicole Allevato had assists in the game.

Jennifer Barker (Stevenson) made 11 saves in goal to earn the shutout.

On Saturday at Livonia Ladywood, Siena Heights got a goal from Dawn O'Neil 38 seconds into the second overtime period to hand the Crusaders their only regular-season WHAC loss, 2-1.

The Saints, who improved to 14-4 overall and 11-2 in the conference with the victory, took the early lead on a goal by Nicole Tobin (Stevenson) at the 27:39 mark. Madonna tied it 5:11 into the second half on Scott's penalty kick.

O'Neil's game-winner came on a rebound of a Tobin shot. Barker made eight saves in goal for Madonna.

COLLEGE VOLLEYBALL

St. Clair bumps shorthanded SC

Maybe the third time will be a charm for the Schoolcraft College women's volleyball team.

The Lady Ocelots came closer Tuesday, but visiting St. Clair CC came away with the Eastern Conference championship with a 4-15, 15-12, 15-9, 10-15, 15-11 triumph.

St. Clair, 43-2 overall, finishes conference play at 15-0. Schoolcraft drops to 19-11 and 13-2.

St. Clair beat Schoolcraft in four games earlier this season. The two teams could meet against this weekend in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association Tournament in Battle Creek hosted by Kellogg CC.

"We hope to see them in the state finals," said Schoolcraft coach Tom Teeters, who has had to adjust his lineup after middle-hitter Lauren Ruprecht (from Livonia Churchill) went down Sept. 28 for the year with an ankle injury.

"I was really pleased. We played a really good first game and we need to repeat that effort. We also showed great improvement over our first match effort."

Fran Hamilton (South Lyon) was Schoolcraft's top hitter with 27 kills (.333 percent). She also led with four blocks. Nicole Boyd (Westland/Livonia Franklin) added 19 kills.

Setter Jana Nitschke had 67 assists and only three errors.

Meagan Sheehan (Livonia Churchill) led with 21 digs and two aces. Jessica Tilson (Livonia Ladywood) also had two aces.

Andrea Kmet (Westland/Livonia Franklin) led with a 4.22 serve receive percentage.

Madonna stops Saints

Madonna University set the stage for its showdown with Cornerstone University (7 p.m. tonight at Madonna) with first place in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference at stake by sweeping Siena Heights 15-5, 15-7, 15-6 Tuesday at Madonna.

The Lady Crusaders improve to 31-5 overall, 9-1 in the WHAC. The Saints slip to 24-11 overall, 5-4 in the conference.

Brandy Malewski (Redford Thurston) paced Madonna with 13 kills and a .357 kill percentage. Erin Cunningham contributed 10 kills (.500 average), two service aces and 19 digs, while Kelly Artymovich had 10 kills (.333) and 11 digs.

Amanda Suder (Plymouth Salem) added 14 digs and three aces, while Jennie Wind finished with 11 digs and 30 set assists.

They won their final match against Thomas More (Ky.) University 15-13, 15-6, 15-6.

Malewski led the Crusader attack with 103 kills in the four matches. She also had 54 digs, 29 blocks and seven aces. Cunningham totaled 68 kills in the tournament, with 11 blocks, 65 digs and five aces, while Jennifer Frost had 35 kills and 32 digs, and Wind collected 141 set assists, 11 blocks and 37 digs.

PCA upsets Southfield Christian in MIAC final

■ CROSS COUNTRY

This was supposed to be a battle for second place.

Going into the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference boys cross country championships, held Saturday at Auburn Hills Oakland Christian, Plymouth Christian and the host Lancers were expected to be fighting over second Southfield Christian, which had been dominant during the season, was a heavy favorite to win the title.

But that's not how it turned out. "I told the kids all year that if we're close, our sixth man better run fast," said PCA coach Steve Bauslaugh. "When the results came in, they thought I was a prophet."

Who would blame them? PCA and Southfield Christian tied for first with 40 points, making the best sixth man the deciding factor. That belonged to PCA, which had runners finish both 16th — that was freshman Matt Worley, in 22:21 — and 17th (freshman Reagan Rose, also in 22:21), ahead of Southfield's Elliot Kleinfelder, who was 18th (22:42).

"That won it for us," said Bauslaugh, whose teams have won the MIAC title in three of the last five years (and finished second in the other two).

The meet's top finisher was Oakland Christian's Justin Joyner (18:34). Southfield Christian's Seth Gustafson was second (18:53).

PCA's best runner was Mark Varner, a sophomore, who was fourth (19:03). Next for the Eagles was sophomore Andrew Cannon, sixth (20:19); freshman Ben Baloga, eighth (20:29); junior James Bauslaugh, 10th (21:12); and senior Nick Roupas, 12th (21:17).

As pivotal as it proved to be to have his sixth and seventh runners run well, Bauslaugh also made note that Baloga managed to out-kick Southfield Christian's Grant Gillary down the stretch, beating him by six seconds to finish one spot ahead of him. If he hadn't there would have been no need for the sixth-man finish.

"This is our third championship in five years, but I think this one means the most because of some of the things we had to go through this year," said Bauslaugh. "We had a lot of people hurt during this season, but we jelled at the right time."

On Saturday, PCA competes at the 16-team Division IV Regional at Belle Isle, hosted by Grosse Pointe University Liggett.

"We'll have our hands full," said Bauslaugh. "We're hoping to at least qualify some individuals (for state).

"We have a lot of freshmen and sophomores on this team (just one senior). The kids are already talking about next year."

rivalry. It was probably the biggest goal of my career."

It was certainly well-timed. The Chiefs, historically masters of the counterattack, had been dominant throughout the second half. Their pressure was relentless — but also unproductive.

"That's just part of the ball game," said Canton coach Don Smith of the loss, his team's first defeat since it was beaten by Salem 2-1 on Sept. 6. "You've got to put it in (the net). We both had chances on breakaways. We just didn't take advantage of ours."

Although the Chiefs did keep the play in Salem's end, few serious goal-scoring opportunities were spawned. It was apparent from early in the game Canton was superior in speed; it would take a near-perfect defensive performance to off-set it.

Which is what McCarthy got, starting with Tavio Palazzolo in goal.

"That back six of ours is why we're where we are," McCarthy said. "I thought they played about as well as possible in the first half."

At the same time, he acknowledged the severe pressure Canton applied in the second half. "It was far more than what I would have thought," he said.

Still, Salem's the team with the win and a berth in the district final. Pioneer, which is 16-3-1 overall and ranked 10th in the state, should provide another stern test for the Rocks. The Pioneers beat Belleville Wednesday, 4-0.

McCarthy is banking on the carry-over affect. "This game should really give us a lot of momentum," he noted. "Canton was one of the top two or three teams in the state."

But the Chiefs couldn't get a goal when they needed it most, resulting in a seat on the sidelines while the Rocks pursue a third trip to the state championship match in McCarthy's five-year tenure as coach.

Salem 1, Saline 0 (OT): Anyone who thought Plymouth Salem would have a walk-through into Wednesday's district semifinal was quite wrong.

Saline gave the Rocks a battle Monday at Saline, taking them to overtime before bowing. Jeff Haar got the game-winning goal, but it wasn't all that dramatic. His crossing pass hit the Hornets' keeper and deflected into the goal.

"It's not the prettiest way to win," said Salem coach Ed McCarthy. "No question we're struggling offensively."

It was Haar's first game back in three weeks, following a hamstring injury.

Salem — C1

she did catch it."

It didn't take long to realize it would be a defensive game — about one quarter. Jaskot's triple gave Salem a 5-4 lead; she finished with a game-high 13 points. No one else reached double figures in scoring.

Jaskot added five more points in a 12-0 Salem run that didn't end until the Mustangs got a three-pointer from Sara Cox with 2:50 left in the half. The score was just 13-8 at the intermission.

Indeed, the Rocks' man-to-man defense continued to harass Northville, which started the second half without adding a point until just two minutes remained in the third quarter.

The Mustangs finally broke into double-figures on Nicole Cauzillo's triple with 1:12 left in the third, making it 21-12. Two free throws by Cauzillo in the closing seconds trimmed Salem's lead to 21-14 entering the final period.

But Northville couldn't generate enough offense to overtake the Rocks. The closest the Mustangs could get in the last quarter was six, thanks in part to Katie Kelly netting all five of her points in the period. Amy Szawara and Dawn Allen scored six points apiece for Salem.

Kelly Anderson was best for Northville with eight points. Emily Carbott had seven.

"We didn't score a lot today, but we did score," said Thomann. "Defensively, we were able to keep them out of their scoring area."

Allen and Jenna Van Wagoner took turns defending Tanski. Obviously they did their job well, although both ended up fouling out.

In the end, the result only impacted Northville, which now must beat Harrison to win the title. "When you fall behind (in the standings) by two games with four left to play, it's going to be hard," said Thomann.

Still, the Rocks made their point. Come tournament time — the WLAA Tournament starts next week, followed by the state districts — they hope to take it even further.

Whalers ranked atop junior poll

BY NICK GISMONDI
SPECIAL WRITER

Two unanswered goals in the second period allowed the Plymouth Whalers to boost their Ontario Hockey League-leading record to 9-0-1-1 with a 4-2 triumph over Toronto St. Michael's Majors Friday at Plymouth's Compuware Arena.

Stephen Weiss played an important role in the Whaler offense, scoring one goal and assisting on another. His goal with 13:49 elapsed in the first period, on an assist from George Nistas, put Plymouth ahead for good at 2-1.

Weiss slipped the puck to Kris Vernarsky who scored at the 7:34 mark of the second period to make it 3-1.

Rookie Karl Stewart scored his first OHL goal at the 11:20 mark of the second period, tipping an Andre Robichaud slap shot past Toronto goalie Peter Budaj, who replaced Andy Chiodo after the first period. Stephen Morris also assisted.

Plymouth's Cole Jarrett got the game's first goal at the 5:13 mark of the first period, scoring directly off his face-off. It was the Whalers' first shot of the game.

Matt Ellis and Chris Minard scored for St. Mike's.

"They are a much improved hockey team," said Weiss. "We wanted to come out and work hard right away against them and not take them lightly. We had a few lapses in the first period but we bounced back and got their goalie pulled and we were all over them the rest of the game."

It'll be a busy weekend for the Whalers. They host the Sudbury Wolves at 7:30 p.m. Friday, then travel to Owen Sound Saturday and Toronto St. Mike's Sunday.

CHL's top team

The fast start the Plymouth Whalers have gotten off to hasn't been ignored by those ranking the Canadian Hockey League's best teams. The Whalers have moved up to the No. 1 spot in the Bank of Montreal MasterCard CHL Top Ten ranking.

The Whalers have put together their best start ever with nine wins, one tie and one overtime loss. They have been led by goalie Rob Zepp, who leads the OHL in goals-against average (1.71) and save percentage (.926) and Stephen Weiss, who has 11 goals and eight assists for 19 points in 11 games.

Plymouth has accomplished this despite the absence of some key veterans, most notably Justin Williams, who's been playing with the NHL's Philadelphia Flyers.

OK, it's the football playoffs — time for the primer on coach-speak, post-season edition.

Coach-speak is sort of like English, except it doesn't say anything. If it were a food group, it would be white toast. Without butter, please.

Coach-speak is simple.

When a coach says, "We're just happy to be here," he really means to say, "If the other team didn't fumble on our 10 in the last 30 seconds of the last game, we'd be sitting home on Friday night watching 'Sabrina, the teen-age witch.'"

When a coach says, "It's going to be a hard-fought game," he really means to say, "If we don't play like a powder-puff team, we can win this stupid thing."

When a coach says, "They play a lot like we do," he really means to say, "They can't throw the ball, either."

When a coach says, "we're going back to basics," he really means to say, "we're so screwed up, we couldn't move the ball if we put it in a truck and drove it down the field."

When a coach says, "it's a matter of execution," he really means "hope it's not ours."

Speaking of going back to basics, there's the results from the final weekend of regular season picks. Your winner? Dan O'Meara with a 110-19 record and a 12-2 week, followed by Brad Emons at 106-23 (11-3), yours truly at 101-28 (10-4) and C.J. Risak at 97-32 (10-4).

Friday's Games

Canton (6-3) at Belleville (7-2), 7 p.m.: There are two kings at Belleville. Bob LaPointe is the king of coach-speak, who actually told me that "we can throw if we have to," meaning if it's third-and-30, passing is the third option after quick-kick and a trap play. The other is athletic director Mike Colletta, who is just known as "The King." PICKS — Belleville: Beaudry, O'Meara. Canton: Risak, Emons.

Detroit Central (6-3) at Garden City (6-3), 7 p.m.: Central coach Woody Thomas told me his team is going back to training camp this week to prepare for Garden City. In coach-speak, this means "We've lost three-straight games and if we lose a fourth, I'm going to take them out in the woods someplace, drop them off and make them find their own way home." PICKS — Garden City: Beaudry, O'Meara, Risak, Emons.

Erie-Mason (6-3) at Clarenceville (9-0), 7:30 p.m.: In coach-speak, if Greg Hudkins says "We just want to improve over last year," what he really means to say is "If we lose the first playoff game again, I'm gonna resign, move down to Florida and be a cabana boy." PICKS — Clarenceville: Beaudry, O'Meara, Risak, Emons.

Westland John Glenn (7-2) vs. Detroit Redford (7-2) at Detroit King, 7:30 p.m.: Up, down, up, down . . . which John Glenn team shows up this week? If Chuck Gordon says, "They play hard, they've got a big front line and they're quick," what he really means to say is, "Umm, Lloyd? Since Michigan has a bye week, how about a little help?" PICKS — John Glenn: Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons. Detroit Redford: Risak.

Saturday's Games

Livonia Stevenson (6-3) vs. Catholic Central (7-2) at RU's Kraft Field, 1 p.m.: When Stevenson coach Tim Gabel says, "They always play good team defense," he really means to say, "Can we accept transfers from non-playoff teams to pick up some extra help?" PICKS — CC: Beaudry, O'Meara, Risak, Emons.

Dearborn Heights Crestwood (7-2) at Harrison (9-0): When Crestwood coach Terry Hubert says "Harrison has to be the favorite, they're a strong team," he really means to say "If we win this game, I'm going to kiss my coaches on the forehead at mid-field and tear down the goal posts myself." PICKS — Harrison: Beaudry, O'Meara, Risak, Emons.

Taylor Light & Life (6-3) vs. Redford St. Agatha (6-3) at RU's Kraft Field, 7:30 p.m.: "I think this could be a fun match," said Aggies coach Bernie McMahon. Maybe. Or maybe he means to say, "If we don't score more than eight points this time against them, I personally am going to roll out the balls for the start of basketball practice myself." PICKS — St. Agatha: Beaudry, O'Meara, Risak, Emons.

CC's Lester ties for 5th at state

STATE GOLF

After blowing through the Division I regional two weeks ago, Redford Catholic Central had the potential to make noise at the state championships.

Instead, CC struggled on Friday at Michigan State University's Forest Akers West Golf Course and shot a 335 and failed to make the cut for Saturday's final round.

"It was a good learning experience for us," said CC coach Bill Hayes. I expect for us to be back next year. I think course management was a bit of a problem. I think we did some thing we usually wouldn't do."

T.J. Lester, of Canton, led the Shamrocks by shooting an 80 on Friday to advance to Saturday's round. He followed that up by shooting a 76 on Saturday to finish tied for fifth overall.

"He had some problems at the end of Friday's round or he might have won," said Hayes. "He played very well both days."

Zach Davis and Brian Peczynski both shot 87, while Jon Luna had an 88 and Matt Davey finished with an 89.

"It was good season, and I'm happy we won the regional. We had some kids up there who didn't play, but they watched and it was a good experience for them. Next year, we expect to back there."

Rice manhandles CC for Prep Bowl championship

Birmingham Brother Rice won the Prep Bowl Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome, beating Redford Catholic Central for the second time this season, 24-7.

Rice enters the state high school football playoffs at 8-1, while CC finishes the regular season at 7-2.

Things were looking good for CC when Rice's Gemara Williams fumbled the ball on the second play from scrimmage in the Catholic League final.

FOOTBALL

And they looked really good 12 plays later even though quarterback Tom Jakacki fumbled into the end zone when he was hit while rolling out — because Chris Davis recovered for the touchdown.

Mike Sgroi kicked the extra point with 5:49 left in the first period to give CC a 7-0 lead.

The Shamrocks nursed that lead into the second quarter but Warriors' quarterback Matt Baker, who completed 11-of-22 passes for 94 yards, hit Mark Mueller with a 16-yard touchdown toss to square the score after Ross Ryan kicked the extra point with 6:52 to play in the half.

Rice closed the half with an 80-yard drive that stalled out after 15 plays and ended with Ryan kicking a 26-yard field to break the tie with six seconds to play in the half.

Things still didn't look too bad at that point, and through the scoreless third period, but then Mueller made one of three interceptions the Warriors had in the game and returned the ball to the 39.

Rice drove that 39 yards over the next 11 plays, with Baker throwing 5-yards to Matt Studenski to make it 17-7 with 10:34 left in the game.

Williams, who ran 14 times for 75 yards, scooted 24 yards to score with 1:43 left to ice the decision.

Mike Banaszak led CC with 109 yards rushing on 23 carries.

Linebacker Ryan Rogowski led the Shamrocks' defense with six solo tackles and nine assists. Defensive tackle Matt Lopiccolo added two solos and six assists.

CC, which trailed, 16-11 in first downs, lost the ball on turnovers four times while forcing just one turnover, the early fumble, on Rice.

The Shamrocks got 238 yards in total offense, 162 on the ground, while the Warriors had 200 yards rushing in their 294-yard total.

Canton battles back to defeat Vikings

BASKETBALL

The last couple of weeks have been a bit of a struggle for Plymouth Canton's girls basketball team.

They are winning — Tuesday's victory over Walled Lake Central was the Chiefs' third in a row. But they are struggling a bit through games against lesser opponents.

Tuesday was a perfect case in point: Canton entered the game with a 10-5 overall record and a 7-2 mark in the Western Lakes Activities Association, while visiting Central was 6-9 overall, 5-4 in the conference.

So what happens? Led by Stacy Brinkman, the Vikings tear Canton apart in the first quarter, building a 16-4 lead by the time the second quarter is to begin. Fortunately for the Chiefs, Central's starting surge was short-lived — Canton rallied to post a 40-33 triumph.

"I don't know why, but we're having a hard time getting started," said Canton coach Bob Blohm, his team now 11-5 overall, 8-2 in the WLAA.

Blohm was upset enough about it to pull his starting lineup after the first quarter. "I told them I might not play them the rest of the night," he said.

It didn't come to that. The Chiefs outpointed Central 15-6 in the second period to narrow the deficit to 22-19 at the half; through three quarters, the game was knotted at 30-all. A 10-3 Canton surge in the fourth quarter was the decisive factor.

"We got a little better defensively after the first quarter," Blohm said, noting a total of 11 points allowed in the second half.

Still, the Chiefs struggled offensively against a zone defense that wasn't that great, according to Blohm. "A big challenge for us right now is passing and catching the ball against a zone," he said.

The offense against Central was provided almost entirely by Janine Guastella, who scored a season-high 23 points, and Angie Neu, who totaled 13 (11 of those coming in the second quarter). Brinkman topped the Vikings with 16 points, including three three-pointers (Central had six of them); she had 10 points in her team's first-quarter surge.

Canton finishes its WLAA regular-season campaign tonight at home against Livonia Churchill.

PCA 44, Inter-City 32: The middle quarters — and the long-distance shooting by Laura Clark — were the key in Plymouth Christian Academy's win over visiting Allen Park Inter-City Baptist Tuesday.

The Eagles improved to 11-5 overall, 6-3 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. Inter-City is 5-11 overall, 0-9 in the MIAC.

PCA outscored the Chargers 30-14 in the second and third periods, making their lead 38-20 going into the final quarter. Clark finished with 15 points, including four three-pointers, and eight assists.

Amy Brandt added 13 points and 12 rebounds, and Kim Guilfoyle contributed eight points and eight boards. Stacy Copeland topped Inter-City with eight points.

The Eagles host Bloomfield Hills Roeper Friday in a game that will decide second place in the MIAC. Roeper, 5-4 in the conference, took PCA to overtime before losing on Oct. 6.

Agape 50, Whitmore Lake 30: The Henry sisters, Margie and Amy, powered Canton Agape to an easy victory Tuesday night over visiting Whitmore Lake.

Margie Henry scored a game-best 21 points and Amy added 10 in a game played at Wayne Memorial.

The Wolverines (9-4) led 9-4 after one quarter and 27-13 at halftime.

Nicole Salamin paced Whitmore Lake (3-11) with 15 points.

JUNIOR LEAGUE FOOTBALL

Lions fall

The Canton Lions varsity football team suffered its first defeat of the Junior Football League season, losing 24-20 to the Livonia Falcons. The Lions scored all their points in the second half, getting two touchdowns from Robert Kelly and another on a 40-yard run by Julian Smith, who also booted a two-point conversion.

The Lions junior varsity were winners Sunday, beating the Falcons' JV 14-6. Matt Kennison scored on a 5-yard run, with Josh LeDuc kicking the two-point conversion, for Canton's first points; Konrad Konsitzke, who's 20-yard pass to Ryan Kilgore was instrumental in the drive, scored the second Lion TD on a 3-yard run. Joe Sander, Greg Pollard, Matt Farmer and Konsitzke led the defense.

The freshmen Lions were defeated 7-0 by the Falcons Sunday, dropping their record to 4-2-1. A length-of-the-field drive in the game's final minutes ended for the Lions at the Falcon 4-yard line. Chris Fischer, Nick Wright, Luke Konsitzke, Jeremy Epley, Justin Scott, Robbie Walker and Erik Wright led the defense.

Steelers win 3

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers remain perfect after beating the Garden City Chargers 28-6 Sunday. Dylan Tobin scored two rushing touchdowns, Andy Case got another and Jake Powers completed a 15-yard pass to Tim Storch for a fourth TD. Steve Campbell, with two interceptions, and Donny Hoffman, with a fumble recovery, led the defense.

Two unbeaten squads tangled in the Steelers-vs.-Chargers JV contest, and the Steelers emerged with a 12-6 win. Kyle Gendron's flea-flicker pass to Deshon McClendon gave the Steelers the early lead; after the Chargers knotted it at 6-all, Shawn Little threw a 25-yard touchdown pass to Nick Cole. A dramatic goal-line stand late in the third quarter prevented the Falcons from knotting it. Matt Stott, James Judge, Matt Czajkowski and Jeff Piper led the defense.

Dalton Walser, operating behind strong blocking provided by Zach Guy, John Kaptur, Todd Turfe, Zach Faust and Sean Mauldin, scored two touchdowns (one on a 55-yard run) to lead the Steelers' freshmen to a 14-0 win over the Falcons Sunday. Jackson Vaughn, Adam Powers, who had a fumble recovery, and Paul Kanaan, with an interception and a blocked punt, led the defense. of action with what was feared to be mononucleosis. His availability remained questionable.

Gaines, an all-Western Lakes Activities Association selection at defensive back, provided the Chiefs with an outside running threat. His loss could further narrow Canton's offense.

"I told the guys when (Gaines) went down that he's a big play guy, but he's not our whole offense," said Baechler. "I told them we can't worry about things we can't control."

Three players from the Canton junior varsity team — Reggie Joyner, Matt Bennett and Doug Davidson — will try to fill some of the gaps.

Even with the injuries, the Chiefs are still formidable in the offensive backfield with Dane Kobus and Chad Fuller. In the win over Salem, they combined for 211 rushing yards on 36 carries, scoring three touchdowns.

The loss of Gaines and Wilcox may be felt more on the defensive side of the ball.

The Tigers, according to LaPointe, don't have any superstars: "A different kid each week steps into the spotlight." In the loss to Fordson last Friday, it was running back/strong safety Kyle Myers who turned in a solid performance.

Jacob Wilkerson leads Belleville in both rushing and, on defense, tackles.

"Jacob's just a good football player on both sides of the ball," his coach said. "He loves to play the game. He's quick and he's tough."

LaPointe knows what his team must do to beat Canton. "We have to get the ball in our hands," he said. "Force a turnover or get them to punt, so we can get the ball and do something. If they maintain ball control, it'll be tough to beat them."

Funny. Canton's Baechler might've said the exact same thing.

And the "biggest" is Shawn Boney, whom the Rockers acquired in a trade with the expansion Toronto Thunder-Hawks. Boney is a rarity, a forward who combines enormous size — he stands 6-foot-7 and weighs 265 pounds — with speed (under 5.0 for the 40-yard dash), quickness and agility.

"He's bringing a dimension we needed," said Drago.

Boney played the past three seasons with the Cleveland Crunch (he was taken by Toronto in the expansion draft), who reached the NPSL finals last year before losing to the Milwaukee Wave. He scored 50 points in 1998-99 but for the past three years has played behind one of the NPSL's most dynamic scorers, Hector Marinaro.

"He didn't get a lot of chances to play (in Cleveland)," said Drago, adding that won't be the situation here. Not one to understate anything, Drago said Boney could be this league's "Shaquille O'Neal. He's very marketable."

One thing Boney certainly does give the Rockers is a more powerful, physically imposing lineup. But as big as he is, he can't carry the team — nor will he have to.

It helps immensely to have major contributors like Tim Ernst, Sean Bowers and Matt Knowles back and healthy. The three of them missed a combined 58 games last season, or nearly half a season each.

Ernst, a forward, still led the Rockers in scoring with 65 points, followed by defender Randy Prescott with 60 and Bowers, a midfielder, with 54. Other key returnees are defenders Droo Callahan (38 points), Joe Malachino (52 points) and Matt Knowles (38 points in 17 games); midfielders Joel Shanker (37 points) and Rodrigo Gonzalez (35 points; and forward Gary DePalma (33 points).

Alan Placek is slated as the starting goalie (2-3 record, 18.2 points allowed per game), in place of Finnerty.

Some of the notable additions include three players from Romania who are being touted as the "Transylvanian Trio": midfielder Costea Decu, goalie Dan Iie Diac and defender Lorin Spasovici. Decu should contribute immediately, Drago said, while the others may take some time to adjust to living in a new country.

Diac, by the way, is second only to Boney in size: Diac is 6-6, 220.

So can this assortment of players from all over the world (Boney is originally from Trinidad) pull together and be something more? Last season, the Rockers finished last in the NPSL's North Division with a 19-25 record, 12 games behind NPSL champion Milwaukee.

Drago is certainly confident, and not just due to his starting lineup, either. "For the first time, we have players on the bench who can play," he said. "We never had that here before. Now we have the players who can challenge.

"Whoever performs will play."

The team has added all sorts of support help, from an acupuncturist to a psychologist (to help them control their anger). It should add up to a better chance to win.

"The organization is getting bigger, more professional," Drago said. "The players must understand they cannot be above the team."

His ideas would seem right enough. His attitude is certainly a winning one. And if his ability to judge talent is accurate, the Rockers should be challenging for an NPSL championship within a couple of years — which is Drago's goal.

The quest begins Saturday at Baltimore. On Sunday, the Rockers have their home opener against Wichita at 3:05 p.m. at Compuware.

Note: Finnerty, who was given permission to negotiate with other teams after a contract dispute with the Rockers that still hasn't been resolved, has signed with Buffalo. He was in goal for the Blizzard's season-opening 18-10 loss to Kansas City last Saturday, giving up 18 points while making 13 saves.

This is great if you are in business because the fact that we have 20,000 more readers than one year ago means more potential customers for you. According to a recent independent survey by The Media Audit, 460,000 adults read one of our 16 local Observer & Eccentric Newspapers every week.

What makes this even more compelling is that during the same period, readership in the Sunday Detroit News and Free Press dropped by 114,000 readers and daily readership in the combined News and Free Press fell by 95,000. Readership of the Sunday Oakland Press declined by 18,000.

Seems like we're the only newspapers with readership figures that are going in the right direction.

Remodeling job transforms bungalow into dream home

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

Drive through a quaint, 50-something Plymouth neighborhood where all the houses have a different style and the trees are established enough to create breathtaking color shows in the fall and you immediately understand why a young couple took a tiny bungalow and transformed it into their dream house.

And, surprisingly, Dave and Patty Young say the effort wasn't nearly as bad as they thought it would be.

"If you have patience, a remodeling project doesn't have to be a nightmare," Patty said.

In fact, Dave said, the project can be fun and even strengthen a marriage if you approach it the right way.

They learned to regularly practice the art of compromise as they made hundreds of decisions from every window and room size to paint colors, floor coverings and bathroom fixtures.

"When you do this, you begin to appreciate each others' opinions," said Dave, an engineer with Toyota.

Three years ago when they first saw the $105,000 home with a double lot on Brownell their fertile imaginations saw tremendous potential. They looked beyond the tiny front room and kitchen and began plotting how they would change the 870-square-foot home on a dirt road south of Hines Park east of Haggerty.

It had two bedrooms, one bathroom, a family room, and a kitchen with a laundry area and no basement.

They knew it would be much too small to raise a future family. But, once they lived in the house a couple of years, they began to appreciate their neighbors, too.

They liked the big trees and the cozy setting of the neighborhood.

"We plan to stay here for awhile," Dave said. "We liked the neighbors and the neighborhood and we want to raise a family here."

Plotting a plan

So, they started jotting down their ideas and gave them to designer, Rick Miller, owner of Designs By in Plymouth.

Miller said he likes to sit down with potential customers to give them a good idea "of what they're going to be up against" in terms of cost and potential problems.

"They usually give me a fixed budget and what they want," Miller said. "The little nice things, like the special faucets and tile that can run up a bill sky high. Always talk to more than one builder to compare."

The Youngs' ideas began to materialize after they brought in Rick Boyce of Boyce Carpentry and Millwork and a bank to work out the financing. Last June the builder began to break ground.

After more than $130,000 worth of changes, the ranch became a two-story home.

While the house looks like a colonial, it has three dormers to eliminate a boxy style and giving the front a Cape Cod flare.

They tore off the roof and added three bedrooms, a bathroom and an upstairs laundry room. The spacious attic offers extra storage room.

They also added central air and a new furnace. Midway through the project they learned they needed all new plumbing and electrical work.

The first floor has a bedroom, bathroom, a family room, dining room with a computer area and a 16-foot vaulted ceiling.

DIY's cut costs

Patty and Dave estimated that they cut costs by about $30,000 by agreeing to take on major projects like, all the carpeting, painting, remodeling the kitchen and installing the bathroom fixtures themselves.

"People asked us why we just didn't start over, but we liked the original house," Patty said pointing to a cove ceiling.

They kept the first floor front room, bathroom and bedroom intact, because, Dave said, he liked the "feel and integrity" of the original house built in 1947.

They figure that they couldn't have bought a 2,000-square-feet house with the same property for less than the remodeling costs, explained Patty, who works as an office and accounting manager for a small sign company in Dearborn.

"The neighbors are very, very happy," Dave said. "We had just about everyone over for a block party and to tour the house and every one loves it."

During the party, one of the neighbors noted that when someone in the neighborhood makes improvements it increases the value of all the houses in the neighborhood, Patty added. Their house is now one of the biggest in the area.

Outside the family room window is a large apple tree. Lilac bushes fill the back yard. The front is adorned with towering Norwegian Maples.

The remodeling job also gave them a chance to spend time with Patty's parents, Bert and Lynn Schwartz who live in Canton. They even welcomed the Young's dog, Cooper, until the remodeling project was completed.

Hopefully, they'll move into their new, old house by Halloween.

Patty and David said they were amazed by how quickly the project seemed to progress.

"There were times when we would go to work and we'd come home and you wouldn't believe the difference," Patty said, adding that at other times the builder was concentrating on detail work and the progress wasn't as obvious.

Their advice to others considering a similar project is to "have a good plan in mind," Dave said.

"Research the people that you're doing business with thoroughly. Take your time. This is not something to rush through."

Patty and Dave suggest talking to customers of the businesses you plan to hire.

"The process has not been completely painless," Dave said. "Maybe our threshold of pain was high. But, it went fairly smoothly."

"When you expect the worse to happen and it doesn't, you're happy," Patty said.

It couldn't have been too bad, because Dave has more changes in mind.

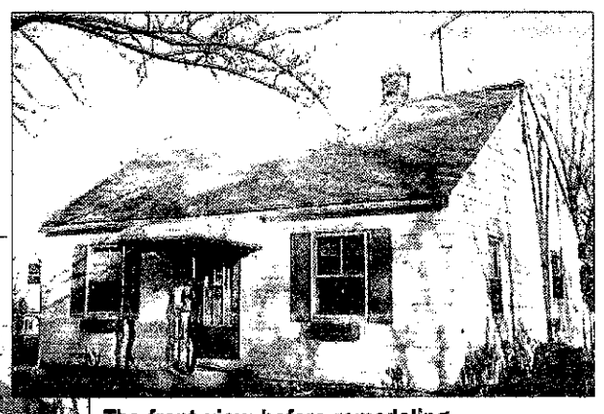

"We'll add a basement, someday," he said.

And at the slightest mention of fireplace, an observer watched Dave's eyes light up as he seemed to consider that possibility, too.

If you have a remodeling project of which you are particularly proud, let us know about it and we can share your triumphs and tribulations with our readers. Mail before, during and after photos of your project and send a description of your project to Ken Abramczyk, At Home Editor, Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150 or e-mail him at kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net. Please include a daytime phone number where you can be contacted.

To the rear: The Youngs' Plymouth home had a drastic change made to the rear entrance, too. A small room was enlarged into a much-used family room with sliding glass doors.

Evolution: Starting with the front view before remodeling and going counter-clockwise, the Youngs had the roof removed, then the second story was put on. New siding brought both stories together, and finally, the up-dated, roomier home was ready.

GARDENING

These books help gardeners grow

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

■ By starting with a rich soil, feeding it and caring for it and the plants that are grown, good organic crops can and will be the result.

Each time we study a book we learn. Here are some dandies.

Gardener, garden columnist, editor and professor Allen Lacy of New Jersey shares many insights in In a Green Shade ($25, Houghton Mifflin). Stories from Lacy's popular newsletter, Homeground, have been incorporated into this book.

Each season is eloquently represented as he describes the experiences he has had with many different plants, sequence of bloom, weed prevention, preparing a bed and much more. His free-flowing style, insights and comments teach a lot about this thing we call gardening.

For instance, about winter color: "One difference between people who garden and those who can hardly tell a lily from a liatris is the non-gardeners think of winter as the season when gardens have nothing to offer. Gardeners know better."

Learn about play-pretties and why Lacy likes a lawn of clover! A good read.

The Gardener's Essential Companion, Dora Galitzki ($14, Fireside), is divided into three sections:

1. When Nature Goes Crazy — Animals, insects, diseases, weather, etc., and the season when they are most troublesome; when and how to control them; with language that is easily understood.

2. Better Gardens from Better Gardeners — Great tips and ideas with excellent directions, from pruning and propagating to maintenance. Information about trees, flowers, vegetables, and how to select the best. Subjects are as diverse as growing ginger and homegrown chicory.

3. Nature and the City — This section includes questions from city folk and a miscellany of information. A good book to read when you just have a little time.

Flower power

If you are enamored with this lovely plant, Clematis The Genus, Christopher Grey-Wilson ($39.95, Timber Press), contains excellent information about this member of the Ranunculaceae or Buttercup family.

In this scholarly work for gardeners, horticulturists and botanists, Grey-Wilson describes in detail the more than 300 species, many of which are in cultivation. In addition, he introduces us to many still only found in the wild; maps show the distribution of all the species in the wild.

Details of growing techniques include planting, propagation, training, feeding, and how to handle pests and diseases. Excellent photographs depict the great diversity of the shapes and colors of the flowers.

The national flower symbol of the United States, the rose, is now honored by the book Ultimate Rose, Beth Smiley and Ray Rogers, editors ($19.95, DK), published in collaboration with the American Rose Society.

The history of the rose and the rose in literature and its beneficial attributes are featured. Each classification is beautifully illustrated with a single blossom that gives a luscious feel and look to the book.

Cultivation from planting to pruning, arranging and preserving this well-loved flower rounds out the book. A lovely gift.

If you want to learn how to find, observe, identify, record, photograph and study birds, you will find the information in National Audubon Society Birder's Handbook, Stephen Kress ($24.95, DK).

Kress is a renowned ornithologist and explains in detail what equipment is needed in the quest. Each bird family is described; the photos will inspire readers to find just one more bird. Birding hot spots for the 50 states are shown on maps.

For novice and more advanced birders, the book includes how to build a library, organizations and periodicals, and education programs, as well as Internet information. Well-written and thoughtful.

Organic Gardening, Crow and Elizabeth Miller ($26, IDG Books), is one of the latest books on this subject. The authors share their successful techniques in a gentle way.

By starting with a rich soil, feeding it and caring for it and the plants that are grown, good organic crops can and will be the result. The authors explain how to extend the harvest for many edibles and how to grow beautiful gardens and lawns by working with conditions that exist.

The key, they stress, is to carefully observe these natural cycles and to time your planting, cultivation and pest control activities to coincide with the progression of the seasons.

The appendixes contain much valuable information from questions they have answered to an organic gardener's yearly plan.

Marty Figley is an advanced master gardener based in Birmingham. You can leave her a message by dialing (734) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then 111, then 3445. Her fax number is (248) 644-1314.

Learn how to take care of your tools and learn how to sharpen blades and keep wooden parts in good shape at a three-hour tool-care class offered on at either 9:30 a.m. or 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 9.

Gardening is great fun as long as gardeners maintain health. Avoid common problems by participating in a discussion of safety and health concerns, such as back and muscle strains, skin exposed to poisonous plants and toxic substances and airborne irritants. The three-hour class is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. or 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 7.Call (248) 4-GARDEN for information on fall classes or click on www. michigangardening. com

Build on architectural subjects for great shots

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Amateur photographers will often think about dabbling in architectural photography with its sophisticated view cameras, perspective control, etc., only to get cold feet and end up shooting the kids in the back yard again.

But remember that you're not shooting for Architectural Digest and many exciting and refreshing pictures can be yours with the equipment you currently own. Keep a keen eye open for the numerous structures you encounter every day.

At home or in your travels, there will be architectural subjects that will most certainly enhance your photography album.

Architectural photography is also an excellent subject with which to experiment with abstracts. Imagine how creative you can be with the steel gridwork in a building under construction or with a pattern of textured brickwork.

Don't overlook details, either, such as a single window, unusual doorway, or rocker on a nostalgic front porch. Remember, a detail helps "tell the story" of the whole.

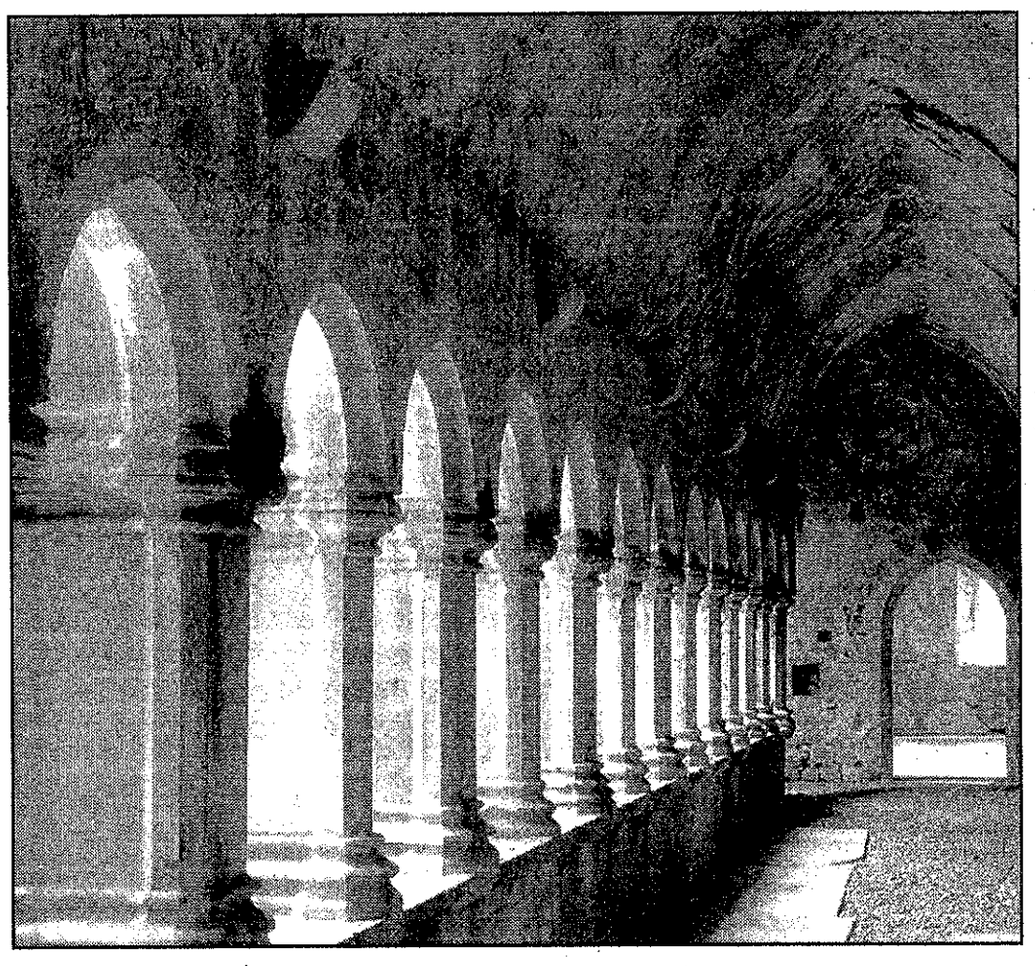

As in most photography, morning or afternoon light will give maximum impact to your shots. And don't forget nighttime photos of floodlit buildings and fountains for a totally different look.

You may be thinking, "What about distortion in architectural photography?" Don't worry, only the pros are concerned with this.

On the contrary, distortion in buildings and other structures can add an element of mystique and drama to your shot. Distortion can give your picture a special esthetic quality not obtained in professional architectural photography.

So leave the kids in the back yard for a while, and put you and your camera in the architectural mode!

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (734) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then 111, then N-A-G-L-E-R. His fax number is (248) 644-1314.

Mighty Quinn: The historic Quinn Abbey in Ennis, Ireland, provided many opportunities for good architectural photographs. Monte Nagler especially liked the design of this one.

CREATURE COMFORTS

Halloween can be more trick than treat for pet

ASK THE VETS

DRS. MICHAEL AND TRACY JAFFE

Dear Doctors, Do you have any recommendations regarding pets and Halloween? Our dog goes berserk any time the doorbell rings! Our schnauzer gets even more stressed on Halloween than she does when she hears fireworks on the Fourth of July.

Halloween can be fun for children and adults, but unless you have a very laid-back pet, you should plan on keeping your four-legged companion out of the limelight.

Since pets are creatures of habit, many become stressed from all the Halloween commotion.

Some friendly dogs enjoy greeting trick-or-treaters at the door with a smile and a wagging tail. If you have one of these docile, quiet, happy-go-lucky dogs, great. Let them participate in the big night. But take precautions.

From the trick-or-treater's standpoint, a barking or very active dog at the door may be frightening. If you'd like your dog to greet the youngsters, make certain you stand between the trick-or-treaters and your dog.

If your pet has the tendency to bite or bark when someone rings the doorbell or knocks on the door, don't let him near the children. Keep your pet indoors in a separate room, away from the front door. Both parents and trick-or-treaters will appreciate this.

Make certain your pets don't roam loose outdoors, even if they are in a fenced back yard. Unfortunately, some unsuspecting, unsupervised pets, especially black cats, may fall prey to cruel pranksters on Halloween or on the days preceding or following the holiday.

You might choose to have your dog accompany you outdoors as you supervise your children's trick-or-treating.

Keep your dog on a short leash and don't allow her to approach other people or pets. Sights of little ghosts and goblins, bobbing flashlights, high-pitched children's voices, and scary Halloween sound effects may startle your pet.

Make certain your pet has an identification tag on his collar in case he escapes from the house when you open the front door for trick-or-treaters. If your pet gets lost on Halloween, at least whoever finds him will be able to contact you.

If your pet dresses up for the big night, make certain there aren't any constricting elastic or rubber bands on the costume. A rubber band that is accidentally left on after the costume is removed can become embedded in the skin and create a severe problem.

As with youngsters, make certain the costume doesn't interfere with your pet's mobility or his ability to see, hear or breathe. Most pets don't enjoy "dressing up," so please think twice about having him don an uncomfortable or annoying outfit.

A festive bandana placed around your dog's neck and then removed later in the evening is enough decoration. Don't forget to remove the bandana, and don't place it around your pet's neck unless he is accustomed to one and is supervised!

No treat

Chocolate can be toxic to your pet (including your bird). It contains the methylxanthines theobromine and caffeine. Ingestion of 1 ounce of milk chocolate per pound of body weight can be fatal.

If the chocolate is semi-sweet, dark or unsweetened (baking chocolate), the methylxanthine concentration is higher. Consumption of just 1/5 to 1/10 of 1 ounce per pound of body weight of these darker chocolates may be lethal.

White chocolate doesn't contain methylxanthines, and is safer for your pet to eat — although we don't advise any candy consumption!

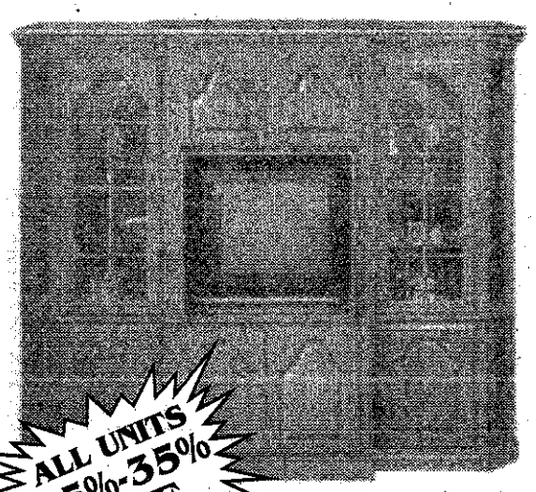

Signs of chocolate toxicity include weakness, a racing heartbeat, diarrhea, vomiting, seizures and possibly death. Pets who eat candy, lollipop sticks and candy wrappers can get pancreatitis, an upset stomach or a gastro-intestinal obstruction.

To prevent your pet from getting sick, keep him away from the candy bag and instruct your children not to share their loot with their four-legged best friend.

If you think your pet has eaten something he shouldn't, especially chocolate, please consult with your veterinarian or local veterinary emergency clinic immediately. Don't wait until the next morning.

Federal regulations will cost consumers

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

The press release I pulled off the fax machine at work made my legs weak and shaky. I couldn't believe what I was reading. In Washington D.C. – "The Department of Energy proposed regulations today that would stifle consumer choice when it comes to buying their next washing machine, air conditioner or heat pump." U. S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Hills, counter punched by introducing legislation to extend the public comment period by three months in the hopes that the public outcry over the regulations would change the Administration's mind.

Regulations

The clothes washer regulations would in effect outlaw most top-loading washing machines and force consumers to purchase the more expensive and longer cycle time front- or side-loading washers. Even by the Department of Energy's overly optimistic calculations, these machines will on average cost $200 more than a top-loader.

By making this move I am fighting for the rights of all American homeowners and ensuring that Department of Energy Secretary Bill Richardson stays out of your laundry room. He's already costing you enough to fill your gas tank and heat your home, Knollenberg said.

Folks, I do not know this Congressman named Joe Knollenberg but I do know that he and Glenn Haege, America's Master Handyman, are working on a bill in Washington to reverse a law regarding toilets just passed in the last few years. These new toilets that consumers are forced to use in their homes as dictated by the men and women in Washington who have never in their lifetime held a pipe wrench are not doing the job. That is a plain and simple proven fact in this country and consumers are so fed up with the problem that in this area, people are driving over to Canada and buying their toilets. The new toilets which have been forced on us are using more water than the old style because one flush doesn't do the job.

They never saved water as the government said they would, they use more than the old ones because we have to flush them more times than normal. (How in blazes did the government get involved in toilets anyway?)

Now, it's washing machines they are going after. The government is now telling us that we can save water consumption by using a front load washer and folks, they are correct.

Have you been out shopping for a new front load washing machine lately? Try the new Maytag model which cost over $1,000. I tell you that not everyone can afford that.

How long will it take you to recover the extra cost for a washer? Let's say you can't purchase the $450 washer and you are forced to buy the front loader. It could take you up to 15 years to save the difference in water conservation and if you think the price will come down, I've got news for you. Once the manufacturers get the price up there around $2,000 they will have accomplished what they have wanted to do for the past 20 years, that is increase their profits to where they think they should be.

Is it any wonder why the lobbyists are in Washington are trying to get these regulations passed and no one knows about it?

One more thing on front load washers. They have been around for years and we in the service industry don't like them. If this regulation goes through, and you need service, or to purchase a new washing machine, air conditioner, or heat pump in the future, the amount you spend will be out of sight.

Call Knollenberg's office at (248) 851-1336 or the U. S. Department of Energy (202) 586-0371 or e-mail bryan.berringer@ee.doe.gov to express your concerns about these proposed regulations that would limit your choices when it comes to buying your next washing machine, air conditioner or heat pump.

Stay tuned.

Bob Vila: House painting can be easier and longer-lasting for everyone

(NUE) – Painting the exterior of your own home can save money while protecting your property from the elements and dramatically improving its appearance.

A good paint job is said to be 90 percent preparation and 10 percent painting. This is where modern paint technology has come to the rescue. Sears, for example, has introduced Weatherbeater Ultra which is warranted for as long as you own your home. Its new polyurethane-added Super-bond formula grips through chalk and dirt to provide superior adhesion and eliminates the need for washing or sanding on sound surfaces.

You'll need to scrape loose, peeling, "alligatoring" or blistering paint. Also remove and replace rotted wood, and prime bare surfaces.Caulk cracks in siding, around doors and windows, as well as open joints in building materials.

Mildew can be removed by scrubbing with a solution of one quart household bleach and three quarts water. Rinse the surface and allow it to dry before painting.

Most exterior paint jobs require a 1- to 3-inch straight or angled sash brush for trim and a 3- to 4-inch brush for larger areas.

Nylon and/or polyester bristles are considered best for latex paints, while natural (hogs hair) bristles are intended for oil-based paints. Some premium brushes, such as the Weatherbeater Paint Brush, combine the virtues of all three. Nylon provides durability; polyester adds stability in hot, humid weather; and natural bristle improves overall brushing quality.

Solid paintbrush bristles are more durable than hollow ones. For best coverage and precise edging, the ends of the bristles should be tapered, not square-cut. Wooden spacer plugs should separate the rows of bristles. These spacer plugs form reservoirs to hold paint. A shaped, hardwood handle provides the best grip and balance.

Here are some paint application tips:

o Apply paint liberally. Load the brush bristles by dipping them to half their length and remove excess paint by tapping (not wiping) the brush against the side of the can.

o Don't paint late in the day or when heavy dew is likely.

o Don't paint in temperatures below 50 degrees (45 degrees for Weatherbeater Ultra) and above 90 degrees.

o Paint wood trim and frames around doors after the main body of the house is painted.

o For latex paint, clean brushes and applicators with dish soap and warm water before the paint has dried. Use paint thinner for oil-based paints.

Hotline aids homeowners in search of inspectors

Buying a home is one of the largest investments anyone can make. That is why it is critical to find a qualified professional to inspect a home before making this important purchase, the American Society of Home Inspectors says.

But with the number of home inspectors on the rise, finding a qualified inspector can often be a difficult endeavor.

To assist consumers, ASHI has created a resource on its Web site – www.ashi.com – and information hotline – (800) 743-2744 – for individuals to track down qualified home inspectors in any area.

"We often recommend home buyers ask for referrals from neighbors or friends," said Mark Cramer, ASHI president.

"But when this information is not available, the ASHI Web site or 800 number can be extremely useful in locating an accomplished inspector for your home."

■ 'We often recommend home buyers ask for referrals from neighbors or friends.'

Mark Cramer
— president, American Society of Home Inspectors

As the oldest and most respected non-profit, professional organization of home inspectors in North America, ASHI also recommends consumers check the references of every inspector before obtaining services to ensure a proper match for their needs.

A few things home buyers can learn by visiting www.ashi.com:

■ Answers to frequently asked questions about home inspections

■ What to expect from a qualified home inspector

■ Links to important real estate and home related Web sites

■ Qualifications for membership in ASHI

■ The names of ASHI members in their area

"Because the home buying process can be stressful, it is important for consumers to be well informed," Cramer said. "Our Web site provides information that can help homeowners to make more informed decisions."

In addition to visiting the Web site, anyone interested in obtaining more information about the ASHI or the names of ASHI members near them can write the organization at 932 Lee Street, Suite 101, Des Plaines, IL 60016.

Celebrate season with fall feast

INVITING IDEAS

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

With just the hint of color left on the trees, preserve the moment by celebrating the natural beauty of the season.

Create for your guests an "autumn" backdrop. Gather up loads of assorted squash and gourds, making sure they are all different shapes, colors and sizes. Separate out the edibles, as you may want to use some of them in your recipes for your menu.

Cascade your remaining harvest in and out of baskets, and place them on tables, stairways, countertops, or smack-dab on the front porch, to welcome your guests. Warm and inviting are the colors and textures of these fall favorites!

Make a list of autumn-flavored or hued delights: Richly golden wedges of hearty cheddar cheese, foods that you can infuse with rich pure maple syrup, an appetizer of roasted red bell pepper dip for crusty bread rounds, skinned roasted red peppers blended with some mayo, game-laden stews or casseroles with thick sauces and chunks of colorful vegetables, baked sweet potatoes re-stuffed with mashed pulp, butter, maple syrup, and a touch of brown sugar, or brightly hued soups reminiscent of the season (squash and pear, pumpkin, kale, roasted spears of asparagus or artichoke).

If sending invitations to guests, use fall colors or make some simple leaf prints. Here is one of those perfect opportunities to include the children on parts of the creative process.

Computer paper now comes in all kinds of designer colors, weights and textures. Word process yourself on some autumn-colored sheets and make envelopes out of brown paper bags (great way to recycle them).

Table runners can be made out of brown bags colored, painted, or cut up into large leaf shape designs.

Carry the theme through with your dinner table (or buffet) centerpieces. Use all natural things: Dried flowers, acorns, fresh fall fruit, pine cones, gourds, branches of trees that have fallen, some good old Indian corn. Sunflowers look luscious, even those that have been picked over by our feathered friends.

Here is a neat recipe from the host of NPR's The Splendid Table, Lynne Rossetto Kasper. (Tune in to Lynne's show noon Sundays on WUOM-FM 91.7.)

EARLY AUTUMN VEGETABLE ROAST (VERDURE AL FORNO)

From the book The Italian Country Table: Home Cooking from Italy's Farmhouse Kitchens by Lynne Rossetto Kasper, Simon & Schuster, 1999 ($35 hardcover).

Serves 4 to 6

Ingredients:

- 1 small to medium eggplant, cut into 1- to 1-1/2-inch wedges
- 3 small zucchini, cut into 1 1/2-inch chunks
- Salt
- 2 medium onions, each cut into 4 wedges
- 2 to 3 medium carrots, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 4 sun-dried tomatoes (not oil-packed), minced
- 3 small patina squash, cut into large chunks
- 1 sweet red pepper, cored, seeded and cut into large chunks
- 1 large stalk celery with leaves, coarsely chopped
- 1 large handful green beans, trimmed and cut into thirds
- 1/3 cup oil-cured black olives, pitted
- 1/2 cup tightly packed cup fresh basil leaves
- 1/4 cup tightly packed cup fresh marjoram leaves
- A 6-inch branch fresh rosemary
- 4 branches fresh thyme
- 2-1/2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 3 large cloves garlic, thinly sliced
- 3 medium ripe, delicious tomatoes, cut into 1-inch chunks

Directions:

Toss the eggplant and zucchini with about 2 teaspoons salt, spread them out between two triple thickness of paper towels, place a baking sheet or cutting board on top, and weight with several cans for about 30 minutes.

In a large bowl, blend together the remaining ingredients except the garlic and fresh tomatoes with 1-1/2 tablespoons of the olive oil. Let stand at room temperature.

After 30 minutes, if possible, add the eggplant and zucchini to the other vegetables. Set a large, shallow, heavy roasting pan (a half-sheet pan is ideal) on the oven's middle rack.

Preheat the oven to 450 degrees F.

With oven mitts, remove the hot pan from the oven. Sprinkle with the remaining 1 tablespoon olive oil. Spread the vegetables over the pan and roast 30 minutes, turning occasionally for even browning. Scatter the garlic and tomatoes over the vegetables and continue roasting 15 to 30 minutes longer, turning occasionally, or until the green beans are tender.

Turn the vegetables out onto a platter, taste for seasoning, and serve hot or at room temperature. The vegetables could be garnished with sprigs of fresh herbs.

Cook's Note: Do feel free to use the vegetables of your choice. This is one of those recipes you have an abundance of liberty with, and Lynne would agree!

Design center welcomes public to luxury kitchen, bath event

Michigan Design Center presents Luxury Kitchens & Baths, an evening of great design ideas and options presented by the most talented kitchen and bath designers in the metro Detroit area. The event is 6-9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 2.

Michigan Design Center is in Troy, north off Maple between Crooks and Coolidge.

The keynote speaker will be James Krengel, CKD, CBD, who will discuss What's Hot and What's Not, bringing consumers up to date on new products plus ideas to make their new kitchens or baths just right for them.

Find out why the kitchen of today is so diverse, and why the "one size fits all" kitchen no longer works.

"Consumer polls have told us that luxurious, livable kitchens and baths have never been more in demand, and are a top priority in remodeling and new construction projects," said Susan Zinger, general manager of MDC.

"We hope to offer the information consumers need to make the most important decisions facing them, including design, materials and resources. This is an excellent opportunity for people to find out what their options are before they begin their project."

After the keynote address, consumers will be free to browse the kitchen, bath and tile showrooms, 7:30-9 p.m.

They may meet and talk with representatives from the premier kitchen showrooms in metro Detroit, including Madison Design Group, Kitchen Studio, Royal Oak Kitchens, Bella Cucine, Virginia Tile, Beaver Tile Distributors, Genesse Tile and Ann Sacks Tile & Stone.

Michigan Design Center is the resource market for the interior design profession, and MDC showrooms sell to the trade only.

Consumers interested in products from the showrooms may contact Designer On Call by phoning (888) DIAL MDC Monday through Friday, or by visiting MDC's Web site at www.michigandesign.com

Tickets are $30 and include refreshments. To reserve, make checks payable to Michigan Design Center and mail to MDC, 1700 Stutz Drive, No. 25, Troy, Mi. 48084. Your tickets will be mailed to you. For more information, call Lisa at (248) 649-2020.

Dressing your home for the holidays

/PRNewswire/ – A pinch of style. A dash of comfort. Add a whole lot of family and friends and you've got the recipe for a perfect holiday gathering.

As more than 25 million Americans set their seasonal place settings, the American Furniture Manufacturers Association asks, "Will your home be ready for your company?" and offers advice for those planning to entertain guests and celebrate the season.

"Now is the best time to begin anticipating your furniture needs for holiday entertaining," says Jackie Hirschhaut, vice president of the AFMA. "Not only will you have your pieces with plenty of time to spare, you can have fun exploring the latest styles and colors recently introduced by manufacturers."

■ 'The holiday season is the very best time for entertaining. Start preparing now, and you can be sure your home will look and feel fabulous in time for all the festivities. Consider the spruced-up setting a special gift to yourself.'

Jackie Hirschhaut

— vice president, American Furniture Manufacturers Association

Home of plenty

No matter where your celebrations focus - from the kitchen to the family room - the AFMA has harvested some tips for creating a holiday home that serves up style, function and comfort on a silver platter.

Dining Room: No more room at the end table? One hundred and four people celebrated the first Thanksgiving. While your dinner party may not be as large, you will want a dining table that will comfortably accommodate all your guests. You also may give thanks for a buffet table that creates more serving space.

Family Room: For get-togethers where fans huddle up to watch football action, create a home theater to be envied by all. Toss in some comfy recliners or a big sofa, and they'll go from mashed potatoes to couch potatoes in an instant.

Living Room: More than 150 million family road trips will be made during the holiday season, so fashion this room to be a place where adults can be adults – using coasters on a new coffee table or sipping eggnog on a loveseat by the fire.

Kitchen: Where will family and friends go to munch on leftover goodies? The kitchen, of course, where the feasting all began. Would a kitchen island add some tasteful workspace? Would a bench or some stools add atmosphere?

Guest Room: When it's time to relax, invite your guests to sleep in a room that they will truly long for next year. An armoire or chest could give your guestroom a country inn feeling. Or is a nightstand and lamp just what your guests need to feel comfortable?

"The holiday season is the very best time for entertaining," says Hirschhaut. "Start preparing now, and you can be sure your home will look and feel fabulous in time for all the festivities. Consider the spruced-up setting a special gift to yourself."

The AFMA is headquartered in High Point, N.C. and represents more than 350 leading U.S. furniture manufacturers. These manufacturers represent a total of 150,000 employees and more than 75 percent of U.S. furniture shipments.

Gold hangtags promote furniture fire safety

Although only a small percentage of home fires start in upholstered furniture, ignition is generally caused by smoldering cigarettes. Most of these fires are preventable.

In an effort to improve home safety, furniture manufacturers, retailers, and suppliers formed UFAC in 1974 to search for safer materials and construction methods. Since then, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, there has been a 76.8 percent decline in upholstered fires from 1978 to 1994.

Changes in furniture construction, the decline of cigarette smoking, the increased use and improved maintenance of smoke detectors, as well as consumer education, have all been factors.

The UFAC gold hangtag appears on the upholstered furniture constructed to be more resistant to cigarette ignition.

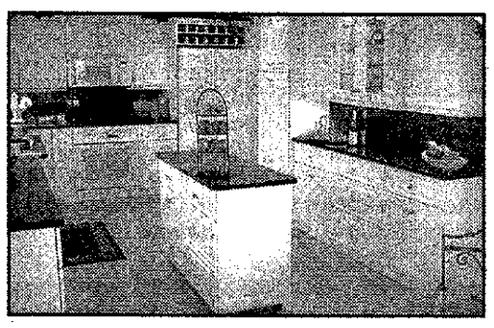

The Gold Tag also:

- Cautions that the furniture is not fireproof;
- Warns of the possibility of toxic gasses if ignited;
- Promotes careful smoking habits; and
- Encourages smoke detector use.

Other benefits to furniture buyers from the voluntary UFAC industry program: furniture cost increases have been kept to a minimum and consumer choice of fabrics – including cotton, linen, silk and rayon are still available. UFAC, the Upholstered Furniture Action Council, is a voluntary association.

Company expands its line of clocks

Howard Miller, a Michigan clock company, has introduced seven new products.

The company is expanding some of its best-selling collections, such as adding floor clocks to the Moment in Time Collection of handcrafted reproduction wall clocks, a floor and wall clock to the Furniture Trend Designs category, a new mantel clock to the New Haven Collection, as well as unusual new designs in table and curio floor clocks.

The introductions conclude with the incomparable O'Neal, the deepest curio cabinet on the market.

"Howard Miller is never content to rest on its laurels," said Philip D. Miller, executive vice president of Howard Miller. "Whether it's an addition to a current collection or a totally new piece, Howard Miller is always committed to offering customers new choices to fulfill their design needs."

Howard Miller expands its acclaimed Moment in Time Collection with the introduction of two open-face floor clocks.

The first design, the original Howard Miller floor clock is finished in antique cherry on select hardwoods and veneers.

The focal point is an aged dial, inspired by one of the company's first wall clocks and representing a weathered metal dial that has been rusted over the years.

The second, the Savannah Botanical floor clock, has the open case finished in antique white on select hardwoods and veneers and is sure to bring a bit of the outdoors to any room in the house. Its aged soft white dial is adorned with red and yellow roses and green trim, reminiscent of the Savannah Botanical Society wall clock.

The simple, open design of both cases provides a complete view of the working antique pendulums and cast weight shells, which hang from a leather strap. Enclosed movement cases offers easy access through the back and feature sound escapement panels with a simple pattern on both sides of the case.

There is also room for a bottom shelf to display that favorite plant or piece of pottery. The key-wound movement counts the hours and strikes on the half-hour. Both clocks measure 80 inches high, 22 inches wide and 17 inches deep.

Floor clocks

The Hillgrove floor clock and Bloomfield wall clock are welcome additions to the Furniture Trends pieces, which are designed to complement furniture collections.

Both clocks feature a warm golden oak finish on select hardwoods and veneers, accented by a removable detailed crown and complementing overlays on the top and sides of the dial. Both also feature a lamb's wool-colored dial adorned with tiny rose vignettes between Arabic numerals. The dial rests behind a convex glass crystal.

Showcasing the same carvings and a similar bombé base and tapered midsection, the Hillgrove floor clock is a close relative to another Furniture Trend Design clock – the La Rochelle, with its French and Scandinavian influences.

Special features of the Hillgrove include a uniquely contoured locking door with crystal-cut V-grooved glass and an illuminated case that allows the polished-brass pendulum weights to be viewed and admired. The base also features a raised recessed panel with a hidden functional storage compartment.

A cable-driven, Westminster chime Kieninger movement offers an automatic nighttime shut-off option. A free brass nameplate is included for the customer's name and special date to be engraved. The Hillgrove stands 84 inches high, 24-1/4 inches wide and 13 inches in diameter.

The Bloomfield

The Bloomfield wall clock is a companion piece to the Hillgrove floor clock. The case features wraparound molding and also showcases a polished-brass pendulum. A quartz, dual chime movement plays Westminster and Ave Maria chimes.

It measures 33 inches high, 15-1/4 inches wide and 5-1/2 inches deep.

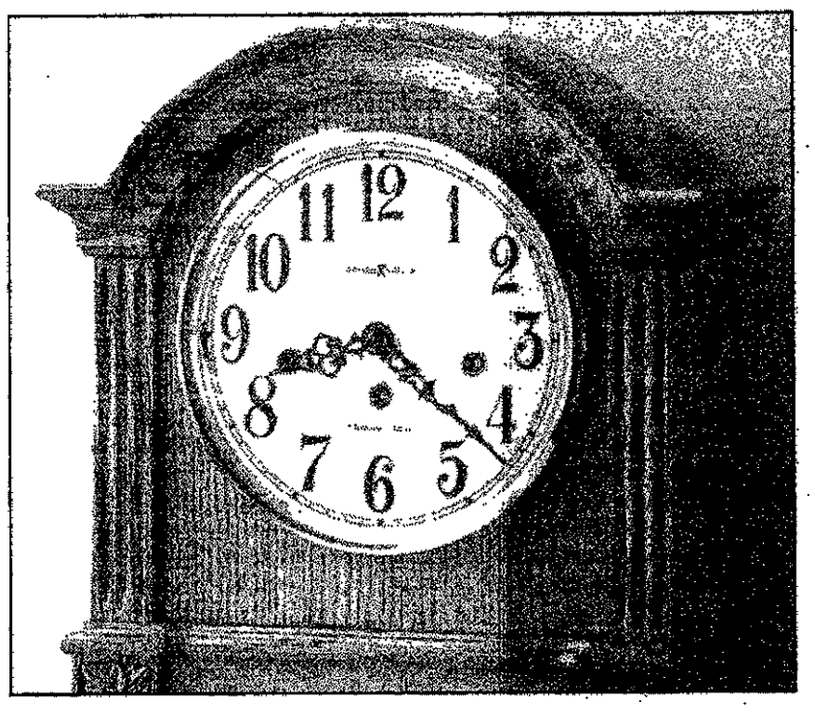

The newest addition to the stately New Haven Collection, the New Haven Mantel II clock combines a Golden Oak finish on select hardwoods and veneers with all the popular features of the original New Haven mantel clock.

Two carved overlays and jewelbox ash veneer inlay accent the base. The unique lambs' wool-colored dial has a polished brass-finished bezel with fluted columns framing the dial on both sides. A key-wound, Westminster chime movement offers a silence option and durable bronze bushings. Measuring 13-1/4 inches high, 11-3/4 inches wide and 4-3/4 inches deep, this handsome piece suits the finest of mantels.

The stylish Victoria table clock is sure to be a conversation piece. Fine, black wire is delicately sculpted to create a designer look from the Victorian age.

For free information on fine clocks and collectors cabinets or to find a store near you, call (800) 873-0506 or visit www.howardmiller.com.

Trinity House Theatre hits a homerun with season opener

Guy Snyder is making a habit of playing clergy. Last season, the Livonia resident played a priest in Elie Wiesel's A Trial of God.

When Trinity House Theatre opens its 20th season with The Foul Line, Friday, Oct. 27, Snyder takes on the role of [illegible] in Jean Patton's humorous drama about a clergyman and a coach, played by Chad D'Aigle, a Westland resident and graduate of Waterford Mott High School. Directed by Susan Vanden Brink, the play features original music by guitarist Paul Murphy.

"He's a man who cracks like an egg," said Snyder. "He's extremely introverted and gone down a path of life doing what others thought he should. His best friend's daughter is dying and prayer doesn't seem to help. He cracks and goes into a psychiatric hospital to find out who he is. That's where he meets Stanley (the coach)."

"It's not an easy role," continued Snyder who began acting in Trinity House Theatre productions nine years ago. "I'm more like Stanley, a loud character, verbose. But it's helped me understand people in my own life who are like Franklin. There's depths and moments of lightness. I enjoy it because at Trinity House they go beyond the regular shows to give something with substance which illuminates Christian values."

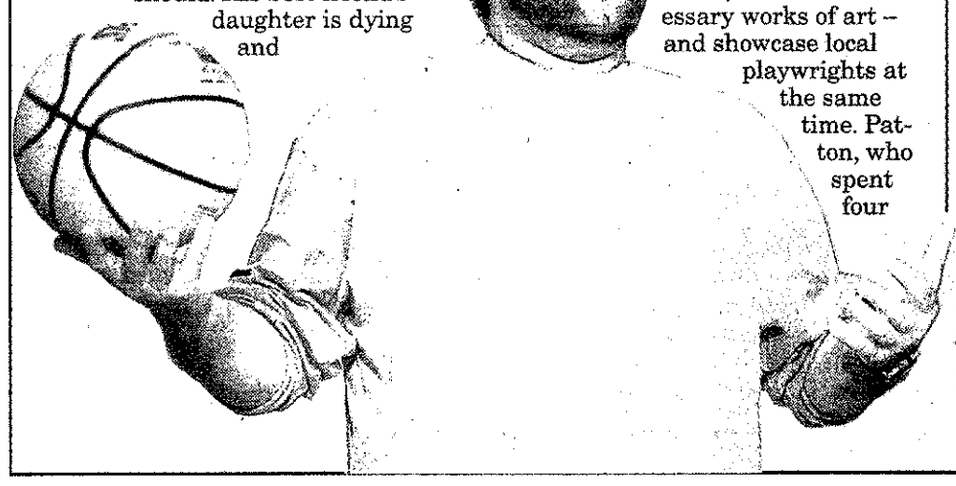

That was Paul Patton's intention when he founded Trinity House Theatre in 1981. He wanted to focus on brave, truthful and necessary works of art – and showcase local playwrights at the same time. Patton, who spent four years writing The Foul Line, was pastor of Trinity Church in Livonia from 1978 to 1993.

"A friend of mine called about a minister having a break down and asked what he could do to help," said Patton, who's written 25 plays in last two decades. "I started wondering, what is the journey for a minister to get better? Life is not ultimately absurd. but life has many seemingly absurd moments. Many times, you have to laugh to keep from crying."

Vanden Brink chose to use a minimal set and flash photographs by her husband Lloyd on a white background behind the actors.

Theodore Bikel never tires of playing the humble milkman Tevye in Fiddler on the Roof even though he's done it more 1,650 times. He arrived in Detroit last week to begin a 37-week tour of the musical which will culminate with a Broadway revival.

Fiddler on the Roof continues through Sunday, Nov. 12, at the Fisher Theatre. Director Sammy Dallas Bayes has recreated Jerome Robbins' original choreography, set to the music of Jerry Bock and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick, for the revival.

"The point of keeping a role fresh is it's part of the job," said Bikel. "It's not the audiences fault you've said the words before, or sung the notes before. With the audience, you have to assume they're all new. You have to be new. That's what an artist does."

At age 76, Bikel must tap enormous reserves of energy to play Tevye, a character taken from Sholom Aleichem's short story about a man struggling to preserve his values and family traditions in an era where hostility abounds. Tevye is forced to choose between village customs and his daughter's happiness when she begs to marry a poor tailor rather than the aging butcher to whom Tevye committed her.

Skip traditional Halloween fare, go for film fright

BY GREG KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER
gkowalski@oe.homecomm.net

Halloween is approaching, and as they typically do, the TV stations will trot out their usual film fare for the season. You can be sure to see some version of Frankenstein and The Mummy along with modern classics like Bram Stoker's Dracula.

They're fine, but don't bother.

Instead, treat yourself to some different Halloween nasties. Here are some non-mainstream films you might want to try. They're at most video stores, believe it or not. But keep in mind, none of these is for the kiddies.

■ Sleepaway Camp. Plotwise, this is pretty standard stuff. Teen who just doesn't fit in is tormented at summer camp. Naturally, this results in multiple murders. Dozens, if not hundreds of movies, have used this plot. But this one is different. It has a gritty feel and style and a genuinely shocking ending that really packs a punch.

■ Spider Baby: Lon Chaney Jr. stayed sober the whole two weeks it took to film this masterpiece of lunacy. He is the patriarch of the insane Merrye family, which includes a daughter who is convinced she is a spider and acts accordingly. Chaney even sings the title tune, and he isn't bad.

■ Sorority Babes in the Slime Ball Bowl A Rama: Yes, folks, this legendary cinematic triumph actually does exist. And it delivers the promise of its title. The plot isn't worth recounting, other than to say it's about a demonic bowling alley. But any movie in which a guy's head substitutes for a bowling ball can't be all bad.

■ Mutant on the Bounty: Futuristic tale about a saxophone player who accidentally is beamed aboard a spaceship in the future. Full of wonderful details, like the guy who spends a good portion of the film with a telephone sticking out of his head.

■ Cemetery Man: A modern masterpiece by Michele Sovai, who specializes in this sort of thing. A caretaker at a cemetery has an unusual problem – 10 days after they're buried, the dead arise to feast on the living. But this guy is so screwed up that the evil dead are a mere convenience in his life. Brilliantly staged, wavering between hilarity and gross horror. Another film with a truly remarkable ending.

■ Re-animator: Generally considered the best horror movie of the 1980s, this is bizarre, hilarious and shocking. Loosely based on a story by H. P. Lovecraft, this is about a crazy medical student who invents a formula to bring the dead – and even pieces of the dead – back to life. It works, but the re-animated dead are completely insane and want to eat people. The amorous severed head scene is now legendary among horror film fans.

■ Brain Damage: Brilliant allegory about drug addiction, only the central character is a a brain-eating worm-like creature that has a penchant for singing old songs. Utterly gross and grotesque but charming in its own way.

■ The Corpse Grinders: Two undertakers beef up business by grinding people into cat food. Need we say more?

■ Suspiria: The quintessential "giallo' Italian slasher/horror film. Don't even try to figure out the plot, which is something about murders at a girls school. Just watch the colors and flowing style

■ Cannibal: The Musical: Why not? The tunes are actually pretty good and serve as dinner music – of a sort.

Happy viewing

Spook season: With classic horror flicks like "The Exorcist" seeping back into theaters, why not stay in on Halloween night and rent something spooky that you haven't already seen?

INTERVIEW

Best in Show's Fred Willard talks comedy improv

BY JON KATZ
SPECIAL WRITER

In sports, there is a small group of "go to" guys: the receiver you throw to on third and long; the guard who gets the basketball for the final shot.

In comedy, Fred Willard has been a "go to" guy for over 30 years. Johnny Carson knew it then when he featured The Ace Trucking Company, Willard's over-the-top improv group, more than 50 times. Jay Leno knows it today, using Willard to portray anything from a foreign ambassador to a professor of cloning.

Stopping in Detroit to promote Christopher Guest's Best in Show, Willard talked about his appearance in the previous Guest film (the cult favorite Waiting for Guffman) and the personal praise he's getting for the current one:

O&E: You and the rest of the cast were hilarious in Waiting for Guffman. How did you become involved in Christopher Guest's follow-up project, Best in Show?

F.W.: "I had heard that he'd already called a few people about this movie, and I thought, 'Oh dear, I hope I'm gonna be in it, too.' And then he called and told me it was about a dog show. I said, 'Chris, is this gonna be good for me?' And he described what I was gonna be doing and sent over a tape of the Westminster show. He said it was gonna be the same style as Guffman, pretty much improvised. Next thing I knew, I was in Vancouver doing it."

O&E: Tell us about your character, Buck Laughlin, the totally out-of-place half of the announcing team that broadcasts the big event.

F.W.: "Christopher described Buck as the coach of a second-level college team who's probably done some announcing. Now he's doing this show but hasn't taken any time to learn about dogs. So I said great, that's right up my alley because I'm a sports fan and I don't much about dogs and have never been to a dog show."

O&E: In Guffman, you played the husband of Catherine O'Hara (Macauley Caulkin's mom in the Home Alone series). In Best in Show, she's married to Eugene Levy (the flustered dad in American Pie), who co-wrote and appeared in both films. Was there any competition to see who would play which part in this repertory company of comedians?

F.W.: "Everyone wants to be paired up with Catherine O'Hara. To me, she's one of the finest actresses around. So I was tickled to be her husband in Guffman, but Eugene Levy is, of course, unstoppable; he's just wonderful."

O&E: Both films were largely improvised. How does that work?

F.W.: "When Christopher talked to me first in Los Angeles (about Waiting For Guffman) and told me that there'd be no script, I thought, great. Then I thought, that's gonna be tough, we have to create our own roles. We shot one scene with me and Catherine and Eugene in a Chinese restaurant (the scene was cut from the film) and he said we were going to shoot for two hours and use the best of it. I thought, 'What are we gonna say for two hours?' But the night we did it, it seemed like 15 minutes."

O&E: So how does Chris Guest direct you?

F.W.: "We go until the camera runs out of film, then he comes up and says something like 'OK, I liked that part, let's do another take and explore that.' Once you get into character, it's easier than it seems. You know your character, you know what your partners are doing, it's very structured (in that) you know exactly who you are and what you have to get out."

O&E: You were part of an outrageous improv group, The Ace Trucking Company, back in the late '60s. Johnny Carson just loved you guys.

F.W.: "We would write scenes and premiere them on the show and they'd build sets for us. We were really spoiled. After that, we'd be in a nightclub and people would request that scene and we wouldn't wanna do it because we didn't have the set, we didn't have the props."

Puppy Love: Harlan Pepper (Christopher Guest) prepares his Bloodhound, Hubert, for the dog show in "Best In Show."

DOANE GREGORY

Something to say: (From left) Fred Willard and Jim Piddock are commentators Beck Laughlin and Trevor Beckwith for the Mayflower Kennel Club Dog Show in the movie "Best in Show."

O&E: And then you went to Second City in Chicago.

F.W.: "I saw the original Second City (including Alan Arkin and Barbara Harris) on Broadway, and it really knocked me out. When a producer gave me a chance to audition, I thought, 'I can't do this,' they're all intellectuals. One of the people I auditioned with was Robert Klein; I learned so much from him. I guess I hit a vein and they offered me a part, and I had the best years of my life there. David Steinberg was in the company, and you always felt confident on the stage with him, one of the best improvisers anywhere. And I still go to see Second City companies. There's a little fraternity of Second City people like Betty Thomas, Shelly Long, Bill Murray. Detroit has a very good company, I saw them last year."

O&E: And now you've come full circle, with your sketch work on The Tonight Show with Jay Leno.

F.W.: "I just love it, I always look forward to doing it. The material is on cue cards, and then the last thing the writers will say to me is 'Make Jay laugh, do your bit and ad lib.' Jay is very giving, very generous. If he sees I'm about to open my mouth, he'll lay back and let me get my line in. He's wonderful to work with."

O&E: You're getting rave reviews in Best in Show. When Buck reaches for sports clichés like 'It's the bottom of the ninth, it's the final round, it's the goal-line stand' to describe a dog show, it's so absurd but so funny.

F.W.: "We saw the film for the third time the other night, and even I said, 'I hope I don't have any more lines, he's such a pain in the neck.' But they left just enough in so it doesn't become 'Oh no, not this guy again.'"

Drama from page E1

"We want to amplify the emotional undercurrent of what these people are going through," said Vanden Brink. "It's issues we all deal with, questions of identity, working through pain. Stanley is the coach to whom winning and losing is everything. Franklin has never committed himself completely to anything."

"It's a struggle with what's important in life," added Kathy Kitzmann, president of Trinity House Theatre and a Redford resident. "The characters help each other. There's a lot of levels. We're using gray as one of the colors to reflect the grayness and ambiguity of life."

■ 'We want to amplify the emotional undercurrent of what these people are going through.'
Susan Vanden Brink
Director

Laura Gumina plays Mona, one of the patients in the psychiatric hospital. The Livonia resident played one of the lead characters in the Trinity House Theatre production of Grace and Glorie last season.

"Mona grounds the play," said Gumina. "She's the playwright's voice. She speaks the truth and confronts other patients when they lie. She calls herself a frequent flyer. She has self deprecating humor and at one point says, I wish I could live here forever."

Sue Tavidian's character kills herself to escape from the torture of mental illness. A Westland resident, Tavidian hasn't been on a stage since she did mime at Stevenson High School in Livonia.

"She's a people pleaser and deep down is very depressed but can't get out of that role as a people pleaser. There's all different levels of healing. The minister is aware of his problems and leaves healed. Stanley can't see his problem – that life is either winning and losing – and is totally lost."

D'Aigle doesn't want to spend the rest of his life locked up in the hospital but he isn't ready to kill himself either. A senior in the Wayne State University Theater Department, D'Aigle has performed at the Renaissance Festival for 11 years.

"Stanley's a man's man," said D'Aigle who'll play one of the kings in the Renaissance Kingdom at the Somerset Collection in Troy beginning Nov. 18. "He's been having bad seasons. He's always idolized himself as being one of the best coaches. During a game he disagrees with a referee and attacks him. He has quite a few fits of rage. He's like a wild animal. When he's backed into a corner, he fights his way out. Now, he can't coach basketball anymore. So what does he do?"

The audience will have to see The Foul Line to find out.

basically a chess piece."

Set in 1905 in Anatevka, a Ukrainian Jewish village in Russia, Tevye is as concerned about his daughter's future as with the problems growing between the Russian Cossacks and the Jewish villagers.

"The challenge is you have to transport an audience to a time and place so different from where we are," said Bikel. "This takes place in Russian village where the relationships between Russians and Jews were terribly strained and anytime could erupt into violence."

The musical's ability to cross lines of time and culture is what makes it eternally popular. Since opening on Broadway in 1964, Fiddler has dazzled audiences around the world with its memorable characters, story line and songs If I Were a Rich Man and Matchmaker, Matchmaker.

"It is the universality," said Bikel. "It's set in a certain time and place but it transcends that. It's the canvas on which it's been painted."

Documentary explores little known rescue mission

BY JON KATZ
SPECIAL WRITER

"It was an idyllic life and I was the center of the universe." For Kurt Fuchel, that was the Vienna, Austria he knew in 1938 as a 7 year old.

Then, in March of that year, the Nazis came. And Kurt's idyllic life was ripped asunder.

For baby boomer Deborah Oppenheimer, executive producer of "The Drew Carey Show," the years preceding World War II had become a personal jigsaw puzzle.

"I couldn't ever get my mother to sit and tell me her story. She would start crying and I would start crying, but I could see what it did to her emotionally. She died without my ever knowing what happened to her."

Until now. Oppenheimer discovered that her mother, like Kurt Fuchel, was one of more than 10,000 children in Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia whose parents made the voluntary but agonizing decision to send them away to Great Britain. These children, or Kinder, as they came to be known, were taken into foster homes and hostels, expecting eventually to be reunited with their parents. Most of them never saw their families again.

Rescue mission

This extraordinary but relatively unknown rescue mission called Kindertransport is the subject of Oppenheimer's feature-length documentary, Into the Arms of Strangers: Stories of the Kindertransport, opening Friday exclusively at the Landmark Maple Art Theater in Bloomfield Hills.

With the cooperation of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, Oppenheimer found and interviewed Fuchel and more than a dozen other participants, parents and rescuers. Their accounts meld with remarkable footage – and the narration of Dame Judi Dench – to present a disturbing yet uplifting look at that dark chapter of our history from a new perspective, that of the children themselves.

Sitting in her Dearborn hotel suite after the film's screening, Oppenheimer and Fuchel – one of the few who did reunite with his parents and who now lives in the New York area – discussed the documentary and the importance of its message.

Important message

"I didn't make the movie to make a statement; I made it because nobody had heard of the Kindertransport," said Oppenheimer. "But I think that the people in the film are eloquent in their honesty and what they say has tremendous relevance today, because we don't learn from history."

It was Hitler's policy of forced emigration prior to Germany's invasion of Poland that allowed Jews and others to leave for friendlier lands. But it wasn't easy – from either side of the operation.

"Countries had quotas that were filled very quickly," said Oppenheimer.

"The only country that was willing to do anything, and then only for children so as not to be a burden on their economy or to take jobs away, was Great Britain, which forced the parents into the devastating decision of having to send their children away alone to strangers."

And what of the United States? While a bill allowing an additional 20,000 children to our shores was submitted to Congress, it died before coming to a vote. "The American response was shameful," said Oppenheimer. "Canada, in fact, said none is too many," added Fuchel.

Research

Oppenheimer researched the Kindertransport operation for over two years and developed a general script with Academy Award-winning documentary filmmaker Mark Jonathan Harris ( The Long Way Home). They threw out half the script after putting their interviewees on film. What the Kinder told them, no one could possibly have written.

"All of the people were surprised by the emotion that was tapped from inside of them (during the interviews)," Oppenheimer said. "They had never sat for hours and told their stories like that."

Writer/ director Harris, in previously released materials, commented that "when they talk, you can still see the child in their faces as they remember. They're back there at that moment and it's clear they're all still living it."

The vast majority of children left their parents bound for British holding centers, where they would remain unless selected by foster parents. Inevitably, the cutest and youngest children were picked first. Brothers and sisters were separated. Teenagers were often chosen to work as servants.

Others had to be placed in hostels. The parents of director John Schlesinger (Midnight Cowboy) organized a hostel for 13 children. The parents of Lord Richard Attenborough (Cry Freedom) took in two girls.

Kurt Fuchel's story was less typical than most. He had already been sponsored by a couple in Norwich, England when his parents put him on the train.

"They told me to do whatever the nurses on the train would tell me to do and to be a good boy. I'm sure they said something like they'd be along soon, but of course they said it in German, which I don't speak anymore," recalled Fuchel.

"My parents got out by hiding out in France, and that's where they stayed throughout the war. I lost touch with them when the Vichy government (in France) was taken over by the Germans. But they knew where I was, and after the war they sent a telegram saying that they were alive. They said good-bye to a seven year old and found a 16 year old."

Leaving home: Children prepare to leave the Berlin-Charlottenburg Station in May 1939, in "Into the Arms of Strangers."

Fuchel emigrated to America in 1956, and is a past president of the Kindertransport Association of North America. He estimates that one-fourth of the original 10,000 Kinder found their way to the United States or Canada.

"The message today I hope reaches the young people," Fuchel says with the quiet optimism of a real-life survivor. "Who knows, 20 years from now they may see in the papers that there are places where the children are in danger and need a helping hand, a place to live for a while, an education. And perhaps they will think back and respond."

Embracing Oppenheimer's 'Into the Arms of Strangers'

FILM REVIEW

SPECIAL WRITER

The young Jewish children hold their parents' hands while strolling casually down a busy street in 1938 Vienna. Not far away, a bouquet of red balloons wafts by. It's a peaceful, pleasant scene, until the balloons come closer and their imprints become clear – the terrifying black swastika, symbol of Nazi Germany and their "final solution."

If you think you've seen it all regarding World War II, you haven't seen this. And chances are you haven't heard the remarkable accounts of some of the 10,000 children of Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia who were sent by their families to Britain just days or months before the trains would change direction, bound instead for destinations such as Auschwitz and Buchenwald.

Such are the indelible sights and sounds of Deborah Oppenheimer's feature-length documentary, "Into the Arms of Strangers: Stories of the Kindertransport." Interviews with the children of the Kindertransport, the parents and foster parents and two of the operation's organizers are intercut with rare and often disturbing footage of an era that left an entire race vowing "Never Again."

For nine months prior to Germany's invasion of Poland and the start of the War, Britain conducted an extraordinary rescue mission, taking the children (Kinder) of those who could no longer care for them with any assurance of continued freedom. It was permitted with numerous restrictions by the Nazi government.

Most of the Kinder never saw their parents again. One of them was Sylva Avramovici Oppenheimer. Her inability to talk to her daughter about the experience led Deborah Oppenheimer, upon her mother s passing, to seek out the details. The Kindertransport story has never been offered with such mass appeal.

There is ample and alarming real footage of Hitler Youth, anti-Semitic graffiti and the trains preparing to leave Vienna and Berlin.

The final sequence affirms the legacy of Kindertransport. Over photos of the survivors one of the Kinder says, "I look at my children and grandchildren and know there was a purpose in my life."

Bedazzled brings devilish charm to Halloween season

BY VICTORIA DIAZ
SPECIAL WRITER

In Bedazzled, we meet Elliot Richards. Elliot (played by Brendan Fraser) has big problems. He is a working stiff, who happens to be a dork of the first magnitude. He lacks a single real friend. He has no clue. People avoid him as if he were last week's garbage. And to make matters much worse, Elliot has fallen in love. Alison, the object of his affection, barely knows he exists.

"Dear God, I would give anything to have that girl in my life," Elliot mutters one day, after a close encounter with the angelic Alison (Frances O'Connor) – and somehow we just know this statement is going to get him in a lot of trouble.

Enter The Devil – in a red dress (and played by Elizabeth Hurley). Being The Devil, she's slick and savvy and knows a sucker when she sees one. Almost before the clever opening credits have faded to black in this movie, she's offered Elliot a heck of a deal.

It's the same deal The Devil has offered in other fantasies, of course: Give me your soul, you poor slob, and I'll make all your wishes come true.

At first, Elliot is having none of it. He's sort of a Dudley Do-Right transplanted to San Francisco – and, after all, this is The Devil (she even has a business card to prove it, and can shoot pool like you wouldn't believe).

But The Devil knows where the lug's most vulnerable spot lies, and soon enough, she closes in with all the accuracy of a heat-seeking missile. Not only can he have Alison, she purrs, but fame and fortune as well.

It's way too much for the mortal Elliot to resist, of course. In the way of almost all flesh, he's quickly signing on the dotted line, and our story is seriously, though comically, underway.

To the accompanying clatter of castanets, Elliot finds himself waking up in a sumptuous boudoir, the lovely Alison at his side. In one of the more hilarious segments of this movie, he discovers that (1) he's morphed into a mustachioed macho man (2) he's acquired mucho dinero somehow, and (3) he can speak knockout Spanish.

It seems all a dream come true really, until Elliot discovers that a couple of devilish tricks have planted some real trouble in paradise.

Okay, so he didn't get it right the first time. (Fame and fortune and having Allison may not be quite everything.) The Devil is willing to give Elliot his due, and grant him another wish, and then maybe another and another. Who are we to quibble with The Princess of Darkness?

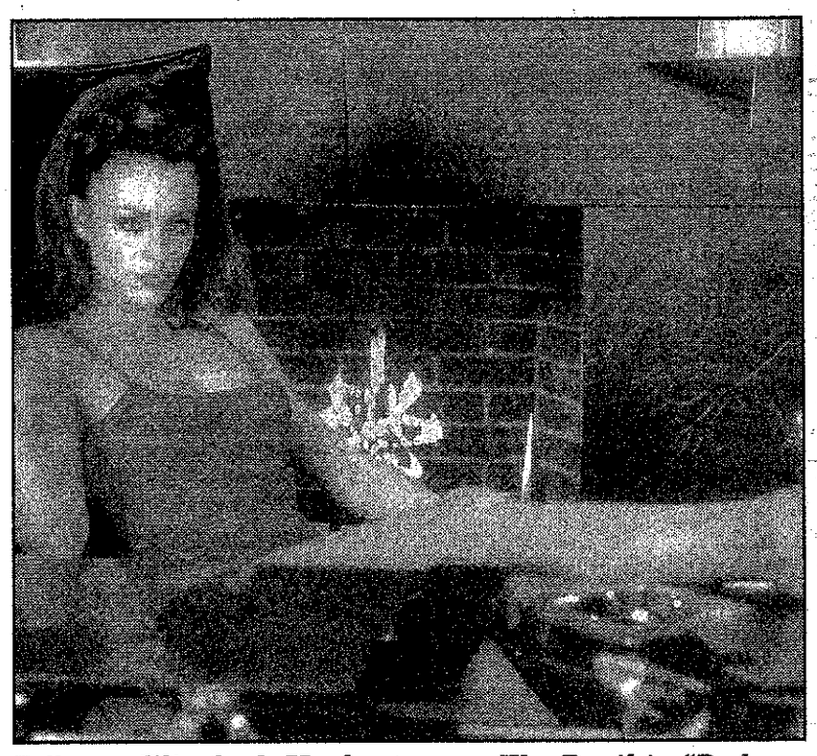

But the hapless guy's dreams keep coming up more like nightmares. In one, he's a sweaty, white version of basketball star Dennis Rodman, with a very small problem. In another, he's the world's most sensitive man (weeping copiously at every sunset). In still another, he thinks he finally has this wish thing down right (he's smart, sensitive, handsome, and legal), only to find that his hoped-for relationship with Alison is more hopeless than ever.

If all this sounds a little silly and predictable, not to worry. This movie, directed by Harold Ramis (Analyze This) works most of the time, despite a few stereotypical allusions that may occasionally offend. Its success is due largely to the strong performances of its two key players.

Brendan Fraser (Dudley Do-Right) gets the chance to mold himself into various comedic personalities, and almost always succeeds (one sequence in which he plays Abraham Lincoln falls short). He seems to have such a fine time in the role of the unsuspecting Latin lover, in fact, and his goofy enthusiasm is so contagious, that some film-goers may actually crave to see a movie built around this character alone.

Let it be understood, though, that the real casting coup here is Elizabeth Hurley as The Devil. Seeming just mean enough, just flirty enough, just sly enough, and certainly attractive enough, it would appear that the English actress and supermodel was born for this flashy, sassy role. The posh Brit accent somehow adds just the right touch of malice to every satanic syllable, too.

Too bad that Frances O'Connor as Alison pales by comparison. Sometimes, we wonder just what Elliot finds so utterly irresistible.

'The Ladies Man' leads nowhere

BY JON KATZ
SPECIAL WRITER

I'd like to say something positive about The Ladies Man, starring Saturday Night Live's Tim Meadows.

Just give me a minute.

Don't go anywhere; something will come.

Wait – I've got it. I'm positive that The Ladies Man, starring SNL's Tim Meadows, is funnier than Superstar, starring SNL's Molly Shannon. That's about the best I can do.

Won't somebody put a stop to Lorne Michaels? The creator and executive producer of SNL continues to shoot craps with his TV characters, turning six-minute sketches into 90-minute movies in hopes of coming up with another Blues Brothers or Wayne's World. With The Ladies Man, Michaels has rolled a snake eyes once again.

Certainly, Meadows has worked hard for this shot. An SNL cast member since 1992, the Highland Park native toiled for years as a featured player before making the first-string team, and has become one of the show's most enduring members in its quarter-century run.

His Leon Phelps – radio talk show host, courvoisier and self-titled Ladies Man – is the TV-to-film breakout character that cast members beg the writers to invent for them. In Meadows' case, he developed Leon himself from the men he encountered while working at a liquor store in Detroit. But like Shannon's Mary Catherine, the character just doesn't hold up as the centerpiece of your evening out.

We join Leon on screen just before he's fired from his Chicago radio gig for dispensing questionable advice: "When you're really, truly in love, you'll feel it deeply down in your pants, unless you're not wearing any."

Leon on TV is inexplicably attractive to the ladies. Here, the mystery is cleared up in no uncertain terms. It's surely not his '70s wardrobe or hair. His appeal is purely anatomical, not sartorial, and there's a posse of humbled husbands who'd like to string him up by his, well, microphone cord.

The rest of the slim plot concerns Leon's search for a mystery letter writer, one of his "Sweet Things" who has come into money but left no identifying name or address in her missive. It turns out to be Tiffani Thiessen (Beverly Hills 90210), who leaves out the middle name she's used in past credits (Amber), maybe in hopes she won't be noticed. With what she's almost wearing, she is very noticed.

The cast member who fails most is Will Ferrell as a Greco-Roman wrestler who leads the other husbands in an appalling version of Jet Song from West Side Story. Ferrell is arguably SNL's most talented player, but he's been saddled in supporting screen roles that don't begin to tap his abilities.

Meadows, meanwhile, is a likable, funny fellow. He may find that the small screen is not such a shameful place to carve out a career, and his transition this season from SNL to prime time's The Michael Richards Show may be the start of something big.

POPULAR MUSIC

Elliot Smith shines on Figure 8

STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homecomm.net

Elliot Smith answers the phone in a hesitant, almost sleepy voice. He's got a few days off before leaving on an American tour and he's spending it quietly in his Los Angeles home. It's not surprising to find the songwriter there, enjoying time alone.

The Dallas-born, Portland-bred musician first tasted success in the days muffled by the flannel shirt and sock hat contingent of the grunge era as a member of the band Heatmiser.

Now living in Los Angeles and having released his fifth solo album this year, the private singer-songwriter has created something timeless in Figure 8. While its title conjures images of movement, without a possible destination, the record uses lush melodies to focus on the journey itself. Influenced by records his parents owned when he was young – like The Beatles and Stevie Wonder – Smith taps into a the soul of beautiful music. Here's what he had to say when I called his California home:

Observer & Eccentric: What drew you to pursue a career in music? Did you grow up in a musical family?

Elliot Smith: "My mom's side of the family were all professional musicians. They had other jobs to make enough money... I though I'd be just doing (that), playing music and having another job. I didn't think that I'd be interviewed about it."

O&E: What is it about your approach to songwriting that gives your music an honest, quite personal feel to it?

E.S.: "Nothing in particular. I kind of think about it in not a very focused way. I'm almost always thinking about it. I don't usually think a whole lot about other people's assessment (of what I do). I don't really care if somebody thinks it's honest and personal. I don't even know if it is personal.

It is, it comes from me. It's sort of like a little daydream."

O&E: How do you feel about the recurring references and comparisons to the likes of icons like The Beatles and Bob Dylan?

E.S.: "I would never compare it to those (people). They sold millions of records. I like them a lot."

O&E: Who are you listening to these days?

E.S.: "I'm on a big Stooges kick...Quasi, Grandaddy, Oranger – who I took out on tour with me. Anything where there's lyrics and its not contrived."

O&E: How do feel about the state of popular music today, which seems to be flooded with boy bands and the rap-rock element? How does your music maintain its relevance in such a market?

E.S.: "I don't think I'm relevant. I'm just making records. I don't listen to the radio. By and large whatever sells, a lot of it is really dumbed down. It doesn't really have any personality to it."

O&E: Tell me about Figure 8.

Elliot Smith

What about the record is special to you?

E.S.: "It seems like a long time ago. My favorite song is always what the newest song is. I'm happy with how it turned out, but I wouldn't do it now. Son of Sam is my favorite, there are a bunch of different stylistic things going on at the same time."

O&E: How much of the music is altered for the live show?

E.S.: "I can't really take a string section on tour with me. It's sort of more rock sounding."

O&E: What does your newer material sound like? Are you-

19.5 Collective prescribes 'Sugarpil,' remixes for body and soul

STEPHANIE A. CASOLA

With equal measures of electronic wonder, mystical grooves and caustic breakbeats, the 19.5 Collective stirs visual elements into a sonic potion that permeates mind, body and soul.

If you ask NPFC member and guitarist Mikey Brown, he'll tell you it's all about letting go. Band mate Adam Walker – who got his start toying his Amiga computer in 1991 – insists it's derived from pure experimentation. Somewhere in between lies the essence of the 19.5 Collective.

"We were all making music individually," explained Walker. "Some of us were in groups, others were doing solo work...We came up with the idea of a compilation CD. While assembling the music we decided to cut a few new tracks – songs with all of us contributing. That was the beginning."

That was late 1997, when Mikey Brown, Michael Madill, Justin Mysza and Adam Walker brought together their visions for the future of film, music, programming and design to create the 19.5 Collective. Sean Foyle, Sean Haezebrouck and John Schuchard have since joined the ever-evolving project.

The NPFC released its first interactive CD on Hamtramck-based Planet Ant Records in 1999 and is ready to assault the senses of the public once again with the release of it's anticipated follow-up, the Sugarpil Remixes.

Tonight, the 19.5 Collective hosts a Sugarpil CD Release Party and rare performance at Motor in Hamtramck. Performing live is a fully-improvised experiment for these, the mad scientists of Detroit's electronic music evolution. Saying the Sugarpil remixes has been group effort doesn't even begin to explain it. The track, which appeared on the band's debut, was remixed by half a dozen artists across the country, said Brown.

"We called upon our large network of talented cronies," added Walker. "I called a friend in Charlotte, North Carolina to do a remix (we used to be in a project together in Indianapolis). It was all based on getting more of our friends into the ever growing consciousness of the collective. I couldn't be happier with the finished product."

Members of the 19.5 Collective each did a different remix of a different track to add to the new CD. It also includes an hour and a half of music in MP3 format. "It's a huge cathartic expression," said Brown.

From the start, the band members knew their artistic efforts would move beyond sound.

"I knew it would encompass more than just music, but I didn't know how or to what extent," said Walker. "The initial creative vision was more of a collage of all this great art that was happening. Now it has become a multi-faceted entity that has an inescapable agenda."

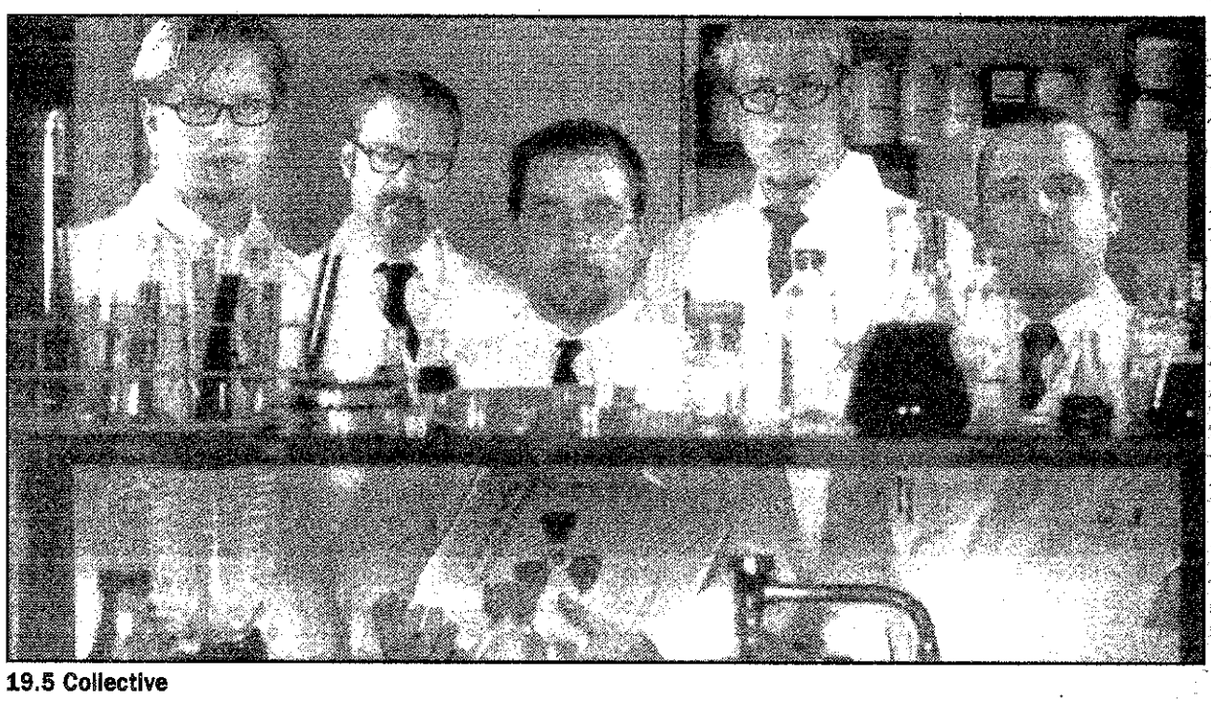

Part of that agenda involves visual effects specialist John Schuchard. "When we're playing live, he's up on stage," said Brown. "He's on a computer making videos on his midi keyboard. He's got a bunch of clips he matches with the music. It's kind of like his instrument."

The band's music lends itself to visual accompaniment. So much so, Brown believes it's a path destined to be followed. "(Film) scoring, that seems to be our mission," he said.

That's not the only avenue the band explores.

Last May, NPFC won a local Emmy award for Best Program I.D. for creating six different on-the-hour, themed station identifications for Detroit Public Television's Channel 56.

The NPFC is involved in a Web site collaboration known as submethod.com. The site combines digital design with touches of thought-provoking images, pop culture-inspired prose and atmospheric music.

19.5 Collective

"People were really into it," Brown said of the site, which is designed by Mike Young of Washington D.C. "It gets 1,000 hits a day." That translated into noticeable Web exposure for the group.

"All the music we wrote for that site has brought us hits all over the world," said Brown. "That's certainly such a popular site."

As part of submethod.com, the NPFC won the "sound" category at the recent Flash Film Festival in New York City. The festival was a highlight of the Flash Forward 2000 conference for Flash Web developers.

"There's an endless flow" to the 19.5 Collective, according to Brown. So just hang on and see where they'll go next.

Stretch the limits of sight and sound with The 19.5 Collective 9 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26 at Motor, 3515 Caniff, Hamtramck. Adam Walker promises "A blurring sonic anomaly" for all. Openers are Ceoxime and Blush. Tickets $6. Call (313) 369-0090. For more, check out www.npfc.org, www.submethod.com or purchase CD's online at www. planetant. com.

E.S.: "Some of the new songs we're playing were recorded smaller sounding. I think the next record's going to be kinda smaller, more words, less textures."

O&E:: How is it going over live?

E.S.: "People who come to see me, I don't think they come to see some hit song. I don't really have a hit song. They seem to be just as happy hearing new songs as they do the old."

■ 'How can you be happy if you don't achieve unhappy things?'

Elliot Smith
Singer-songwriter

O&E: "Your music has been viewed as carrying a certain dynamic. It often reveals a conflicting emotions of melancholy and euphoria. Where does that dynamic come from and do you see that as a reflection of life?

E.S.: "That's kinda how I feel. I'm glad you said 'euphoric.' All they ever seem to notice is the melancholy. How can you be happy if you don't achieve unhappy things? It is sort of how I am. That emotion is true."

Joey's Family Restaurant breakfast.

Start your day with a smile, hearty breakfast

Where do you go after you've dropped the kids off at school and before you tackle cleaning out the garage? Why, you go out for breakfast! Here's four of the nicest – and most reasonably priced – places to butter your toast and sip your coffee:

■ Rebecca's, 134 N. Center, Northville, (248) 348-2660. Open Monday-Sunday at 8 a.m. Carry outs available. Visa, MasterCard, personal checks and "small children willing to do dishes."

"The atmosphere is fabulous, and the crew is great," said waitress Jenny Miner, voted Northville/Novi waitress-of-the-year for 1998. "The people get good service and good food."

People line up out the door on Sunday mornings waiting for a table at this cozy cafe and ice-cream parlor in a 100-year-old building. "There are not a lot of family-owned breakfast places left. And besides, we do everything from scratch," said owner Rebecca Good (a Sandra Bullock look-alike, especially when she smiles).

And when Good and Miner talk about Rebecca's in terms of family, they have good reason. Four different sets of brothers and sisters work there, including Miner's twin, Jody.

For such a little place, the breakfast menu is big and includes items like Raisin Cinnamon French Toast with toasted walnuts, lots of omelettes and on weekends Eggs Benedict. "People love it. It's a big seller on weekends," said Good.

And did you ever think you could get grits in Northville? Well, you can on weekends at Rebecca's. "People order them like crazy," said Good.

■ Main Street Deli & Restaurant, 273 N. Main, Plymouth, (734) 453-7020. Open 6 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily. All major credit cards; no checks.

"These people here are wonderful. They know what service is all about," said Dimitrius Mauropalus of Plymouth Township, a frequent customer who claims even the Egg-Beaters omelettes taste great.

Owner Sandy Ayyash and Ron Ayyash, mother and son, work hard to make sure customers become regulars. "It's like family. If somebody doesn't come in for a while, we know there's something wrong," said Sandy.

Much of the restaurant's success – it's been in business 15 years – is due to the menu, which features items like homemade meatloaf for lunch and corned beef hash and Eggs Benedict for breakfast.

"It's a homestyle place," said Ron. "Everything is homemade. We have a lot of things that are not common in larger restaurants, like potato pancakes. Our Eggs Benedict is really good. We sell a ton of it."

■ Gest Omelette, 25906 Plymouth Road (near Beech Daly), Redford, (313) 937-3540. Open 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sunday, Monday; 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Friday.No credit cards or personal checks.

Gest's has the biggest omelette selection in town, everything from the Coney Island (yes, it has hot dogs) to the Italian (meatballs and mozzarella) to the Peach or Strawberry Delight. Owner George Basila won't reveal his secret for the perfect omelette, but whatever it is, it works.

"We have guys who eat here almost every single day, seven days a week. We go through 75 dozen eggs on a Sunday morning," he said.

That's a lot of yolks, folks.

One of the most popular omelettes is "Popeye's Favorite" stuffed with spinach, onion, mushrooms, Monterey Jack cheese and lettuce and crowned with Béarnaise Sauce. Bernadette Cundiff of Garden City always orders the omelette crepe-style (one egg). It's sooo good," she sighed. "But I don't order the sauce because it's fattening."

Demetrice Thomas of Detroit travels a long way for her Deli omelette made with corned beef, green onions, Swiss cheese, lettuce and topped with sour cream. "I beg George to open up a place in Detroit. Oh, my God, it's good. It's not often you match a good serving with a good price."

■ Joey's Family Restaurant, 3415 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield (across from Orchard Lake St. Mary's, (248) 682-3521. Hours: 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday; 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday. Diners, Discover, American Express and personal checks.

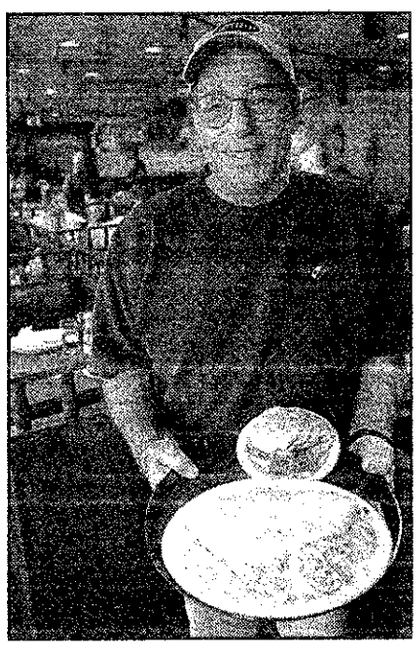

Got a taste for potato pancakes? Head to Joey's on a Sunday morning, the only day Eddie the cook makes this neighborhood breakfast favorite, served with sour cream and applesauce. "We fry them up and serve them up right away. The batter is not saved to the next day," said Deborah Casey, one of the owners.

Everything, absolutely everything, is homemade in this small, family owned restaurant that's been in business for 23 years.

"We have real good food, bacon and eggs, nice omelettes and really good hash browns, not the shredded kind, but sliced. It's not fancy food, not country club, just good, old-fashioned home cooking," said Casey.

Joey's has lots of regulars who show up for breakfast and come back for one of the dinner specials, such as meatloaf, stuffed cabbage and beef tips. And if someone hasn't come around for awhile, Casey gives them a call. "We know our customers by name, know their families and what's going on in their lives."

That's the best kind of place to have breakfast.

It's pretty; association disagrees

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

We moved into our condo and hung a pretty terra cotta plaque on the outside of our unit. The condo association's architectural control board said we had to submit an application, which we did, but they denied our application.

The bylaws say the committee has the right to approve any visible from outside my unit. The bylaws also say that the committee can withhold approval if they don't like the way something looks.

We think the condo association is out of line to ban our decoration.

It appears the association is within its rights to tell you to take down anything it doesn't like.

Of course, the committee must have a consistant record on dealing with such requests. It can't let one owner put up something and forbid another who wants to do the same thing.

You could have argued that the language in the restriction didn't literally include any and all changes made, but you probably wouldn't have been successful.

In a similar case out of Florida, the court did indicate that the language included was broad enough to include the construction of a plaque that required the architectural control committee's approval.

It's too late to do anything foolish like refuse to take down the decoration. Just take down your plaque and comply with the association's restrictions.

Weatherize your home: It's later than you think

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER
dfunke@oe.homecomm.net

It's getting later and later, but there's still time to get your homestead ready for winter, the experts advise.

■ Clean out the gutters and downspouts.

■ Fill in low spots around the foundation of the house with topsoil, making sure the grade slopes away for proper drainage.

■ For extra protection, consider installing downspout extenders.

■ Either drain and blow out your underground sprinkler system yourself or hire it done. Figure on paying $35-$100 for a residential job.

■ Disconnect, drain and store garden hoses.

■ Turn off the water supply to outside spigots from inside shut-off valves. Then open the outside spigot to drain all residual water before turning it off for the season.

■ Replace the filter in the furnace and turn on its humidifier, if there is one. Turn off the dehumidifier so the appliances aren't working at cross purposes.

■ Put up the storm windows on older houses. Shrink-wrap plastic coverings may help reduce drafts, too.

Most of us could do more to get ready for winter – "not only for personal comfort, but you can save money in the long run," said David Kellett Sr., president of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan. He's also president of Kellett Construction in Bloomfield Hills.

"If they don't do it, they're throwing money out the window," said Mike Goewey, president of Property Facts Home Inspections in Livonia and president of the Michigan Chapter of the National Association of Home Inspectors.

■ 'The worst time to have a problem is the middle of winter.'

George Klempert,
Family Heating & Cooling
Garden City

"The worst time to have a problem is the middle of winter," said George Klempert, owner of Family Heating & Cooling in Garden City and Madison Heights.

"The rule of thumb is people wait until the last minute on things," said Kip Summer, owner of Summer Sprinklers in Waterford. "We get a big demand when the weather gets cold."

The do-it-yourselfer can take care of some maintenance tasks. Trained professionals probably should be called in for others.

Watch out for water

"Water is one element we have to keep away, whether it comes in from the roof or windows," Kellett said.

"Clean the gutters. After the leaves fall, get up there and get them clean. Soil settles and forms space for water to sit. Divert water away. Fill in low areas and with something more than mulch. Caulk around windows," he said.

Folks who live in older houses should make sure that aluminum air vents on the roof are always free of obstructions such as leaves and birds nests, Goewey said.

Also, go into the attic and check the vents from the down side to make sure that no obstructions are there, either.

Clear gutters, downspouts and vents will help snow melt off the roof and prevent ice damming.

Make a difference

Here are a few other little things you can do now to make a big difference later:

■ Remove and store non-permanent window air conditioners to reduce the potential for drafts.

■ But don't completely wrap an outdoor air conditioning processor, Klempert advised. A piece of plywood over the top of the unit will protect it from falling icicles.

■ If you have a fireplace and use it often, get an inspection and cleaning every year, chimney sweeps recommend.

"We do about 10,000 cleanings a year," said Jerry Spencer, owner of Best Chimney Co. with offices in Royal Oak, Taylor and Allen Park. "It's a very good $100 investment."

■ The pilot flame on the furnace should burn blue. If it's bright orange or yellow, it may need adjusting and/or the burner may need cleaning.

Klempert recommends an annual inspection, which will cost $60-$70, for furnaces 10 years old and older.

■ Buy a half dozen furnace filters at a time, then you'll have them on hand to change on a regular basis, Kellett said.

■ Go beyond removing leaves and cutting the lawn for the last time in front of the house. Pick up debris from the curb and at storm drains on the street.

■ Change the batteries in all smoke detectors.

■ Find the snow shovels. Fire up the snow blower to make sure it's working properly before you need it.

Lenders want your business

MORTGAGE BITS

TIM 'TIMBO' PHILLIPS

One of most enjoyable aspects of being a mortgage broker is having access to mortgage programs from wholesale lenders from coast-to-coast. It is exciting to have a front-row seat as heavy-weight lenders pit their marketing teams against each other in the quest for the ultimate prize – your mortgage.

The spirit of free enterprise is still soaring in the mortgage industry, and consumers are the real beneficiaries of this open competition. Let me share with you some of the results of years of rivalry in the home-lending arena.

Not long ago, certain groups of people found it difficult to get mortgages. If you were a self-employed business owner, a seasonal worker, a sub-contractor, a commissioned salesman, a single parent, or a buyer with less than two years in your career field, you experienced a paperwork nightmare trying to qualify for a loan. "No-document" and "stated income" mortgages have been introduced to benefit those borrowers.

Lenders are also edging in on the home equity lending market. Until recently, if you planned to put an addition onto your home, you would likely have had to take out a home equity loan. The interest on that second mortgage was probably a higher percentage rate than that of your first loan. The alternative now is to simply refinance your first mortgage based on the future value of your home after your improvements so that you only have one mortgage at a discounted interest rate.

Though it is very difficult to beat the FHA's lenient credit guidelines and very low down-payment requirements, wholesale lenders are countering with "no credit" programs for young borrowers.

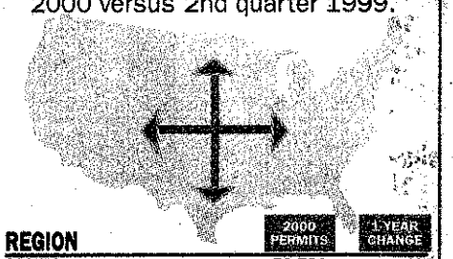

Having bad credit is bad, but having no credit is no longer a problem.

As competitive as the lending business has become, you should check with your mortgage broker to see if there is a program to fit your special situation. Like hundreds of others, you may benefit from the new diversity in the mortgage marketplace.

Book explains outdoor lighting

(IHIT) – A well illuminated homesite can add value to your property in three ways: By enhancing personal safety and preventing injuries, deterring vandalism and theft, and extending the productive work hours or outdoor recreation time beyond sundown.

But do you know how to match the right type of light source to each need and location? If you want to illuminate the area in front of your garage, will a 40-watt low-pressure sodium lamp provide enough light? How high should it be mounted? Knowing what you need and where to install it can make all the difference in how you spend your outdoor lighting dollars.

All too often, homeowners will buy whatever outdoor light fixture happens to be on sale at their local home center, without a thought about mounting height, wattage, energy efficiency, or ease of maintenance.

■ All too often, homeowners will buy whatever outdoor light fixture happens to be on sale at their local home center, without a thought about mounting height, wattage, energy efficiency, or ease of maintenance.

The following recommendations can help you make a better choice.

To illuminate large areas around buildings or parking lots, use high-intensity discharge lights. This family of light sources are characterized by their intense, bright light. They must be mounted high to spread the light and avoid glare.

The most efficient are the golden-colored high-pressure sodium or low-pressure sodium lamps. Mount the fixtures 20 to 30 feet high, depending on the bulb wattage. Don't try to illuminate multiple areas with just one light, also insist on a fixture style that uses a reflector or head assembly to direct light downward.

A well-designed fixture may cost a little more, but you are gaining in the long run because all the light that you are paying for is being directed where you can use it. A typical 90-watt, high-pressure sodium lamp (120W with ballast), burning from dusk to dawn (about 4,100 hours/ year) costs $50 to operate annually, at 10¢ per kilowatt-hour.

Around entrance doors, gates or other locked areas, use motion-sensor lights. These infrared-activated spot lights have two advantages: They are only on when needed, and they brighten specific areas to help get keys in locks or maneuver oversized equipment through gates or doors.

The automatic-off feature also saves energy, since lights are only on a short time.

Near the front walkway of a home or business, use a decorative yard light on a six-foot lamp post to illuminate pathways. These fixtures not only enhance the home's appearance but can lower your liability for personal injury and help visitors find their way safely.

If the light will be on from dusk to dawn, use a compact fluorescent bulb (rather than a standard incandescent) to save energy and reduce the number of bulb changes. These screw-in fluorescents are a worthwhile investment. Make sure the bulb is rated for outdoor use or it won't come on during cold temperatures.

For a good overall lighting plan, there are other site-specific details that need to be considered. But overall, the best lighting scheme combines high-intensity discharge area lighting on tall poles, with motion-sensor fixtures near doors and gates, plus a decorative yard light to illuminate walkways.

To help homeowners or business owners understand more about outdoor lighting, a new publication, Outdoor Lighting for Safety and Productivity is available from the National Food and Energy Council. The four-page illustrated publication explains each type of high-intensity discharge light source for area lighting needs, how to use motion-sensor lighting, and provides recommendations on the right fixture style and placement. An example is illustrated using four light sources and lists the expected kilowatt-hour use and annual operating cost for each light.

To order a copy of the guide, contact the National Food and Energy Council, 601 Business Loop 70 West, Suite 216D, Columbia, MO 65203, or call (573) 875-7155. The cost of a single copy is $4.50 (includes postage and handling) with quantity discounts after nine copies.

Land, tax information available online

It's been about a year and a half since Oakland County created a service that provides immediate access to residential land and property tax records via computer on its Web site.

"We think it's going well," said Phil Bertolini, program and promotional manager for @ccess Oakland.

"We have six products out now and a seventh (commercial/ industrial properties) hopefully before the end of the year.

"The purpose is to bring enhanced access to public records to those who live and do business in Oakland County," said Bertolini, administrator in the equalization division for the county's department of management and budget.

@ccess Oakland includes residential property profiles, current tax profiles, delinquent tax profiles and a mortgage application acceleration program that projects comparable sales value.

■ 'Our goal is to recoup some revenues invested in the technology and mitigate cost of people to retrieve information.'

Cost to users ranges from $1.50 per property for a delinquent tax profile to $20 for a specific database search of up to 10 percent of a municipality's housing stock to $500 annually and 50 cents per property for a business account for information on file with the register of deeds.

"Our goal is to recoup some revenues invested in the technology and mitigate cost of people (employees) to retrieve information," Bertolini said.

Revenues generated by @ccess Oakland are divided among municipalities in the county.

L. Brooks Patterson, county executive, came up with the idea and Patterson's assistants, Bob Daddow and Jerry Poisson, pushed for state legislation that allowed for its creation, Bertolini said.

Dale Kukla, a manager in the digital information service, and his staff developed the Web site.

"Oakland County is committed to developing new technologies that enhance interaction with government," Patterson said. "@ccess oakland is a fine example of user-friendly technology that provides immediate Internet access to county records – anytime, anywhere."

Title companies and Realtors have been primary users, Bertolini said.

@ccess Oakland is free to municipal governments within the county, he added, and some, including Royal Oak and Waterford, make a computer with the service available to the public in their city halls or libraries at no charge.

People can still appear in person at county offices and municipal buildings to research public records at no charge other than copying costs during business hours.
