Budget ups public safety ante

The township budget for next year includes money for three new firefighters – in anticipation of a third fire station – and four new police patrol officers. The fiscal 2001 budget was approved by the board on Tuesday.

Funds for three firefighters and three fire sergeants to service a third fire station – as well as four police sergeants and four police patrol officers – are among the highlights of Canton's 2001 budget.

The $17 million 2001 budget was unanimously approved by trustees Tuesday.

By state law, municipalities must approve budgets within 60 days of the beginning of the fiscal year. Canton's fiscal year begins Jan. 1, 2001.

Canton's millage rate will hold steady at 1.11 mills, as was approved by the township board at its Aug. 15 meeting.

Canton's estimated general fund balance as of Dec. 31 will be $6.57 million, down from $8.03 million Jan. 1.

Tony Minghine, finance and budget director, said work on the budget began in June, when budget worksheets were sent to the township's various departments. He said getting a budget ready for approval is a long, detailed process.

"This budget is not at all reflective of the work and scrutiny that's gone into this," Minghine said.

Plans for a third fire station are specifically mentioned in the 2001 budget.

"The consistent growth of the township and the demands for service placed on the fire department confirms the need for an additional fire station,"

Fiegel says boo to holiday costumes

Neighborhoods throughout the Plymouth and Canton communities on Tuesday will be filled with the likes of Scooby Doo, Blue's Clues, Buzz Lightyear and the Power Puff Girls.

Halloween has become one of the most popular celebrations in America, with more money spent on decorations than at any other time of the year.

And, in the Plymouth-Canton school district, it's a longtime tradition for kids to dress up for Halloween parties, parade around their buildings, and in many cases walk throughout their neighborhoods as parents and friends take pictures. It's a time-honored legacy that has benefited many generations of all of the district's elementary schools ... except one.

Parents at Fiegel Elementary are upset their school is the only one of 14 that doesn't allow children to dress in costumes for Halloween. It's a skeleton they would sooner see locked up in the closet.

"I remember when I dressed up for Halloween parties in school, and I would like to have my kids have those same memories," said Wendy Frazier, a mother of two Fiegel students. "If the other schools are doing it successfully, why can't we?"

The answer comes from Fiegel principal James Johnson.

"It was the decision of the staff not to add costumes or a parade to the activities we already have planned," said Johnson. "Every classroom will have a Halloween party, we had pumpkins delivered to the school to decorate, and we'll have a magic show for students on Tuesday. There are plenty of opportunities in the community for kids to wear their costumes."

Halloween costumes at Fiegel were dropped nine years ago when some inappropriate characters were worn by

Sullivan, Bovitz trade barbs in heated race

11TH DISTRICT COUNTY COMMISSION

BY RICHARD PEARL
STAFF WRITER
rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

Wayne County Commissioner John J. Sullivan, D-Wayne, defends his first two years in office and says his opponent, Robert A. (Rob) Bovitz, only wants the 11th District seat for a steppingstone to the state House of Representatives in two years.

It's a charge that Bovitz, the Republican Party candidate from Canton Township, doesn't deny as their battle for the county's largest and fastest-growing district heads for the Nov. 7 general election.

"I'm not going to rule (a state House run) out," said Bovitz, "but I'd rather be one of 15 people on the (county) commission than one of 110 state reps."

Bovitz says that state Rep. Bruce Patterson, R-Canton Twp., recruited him for the county race, saying, "I kind of see you as my heir-apparent."

In two years, explains Bovitz, Patterson must decide between a third and final term as representative and a run for the state Senate seat now held by Loren Bennett, R-Canton, who plans to run for secretary of state.

Patterson wants Bovitz to succeed him in Lansing. But the 39-year-old Bovitz, a certified public accountant who runs a Trenton CPA firm with his father, says he told Patterson he likes his career and prefers to be "closer to home where I can be involved in the community.

But "you don't know what's going to happen in two years," he notes.

For now, Bovitz is running for the county commission seat because "Sullivan hasn't done anything with it. If there weren't term limits, Bruce would still be county commissioner."

Bovitz and others charge Sullivan, 30, with being invisible in the district, which has nearly 200,000 residents and stretch-as stated in budget documents.

A committee was formed in 1999 to explore the feasibility of adding a fire station. The committee was made up of elected officials and representatives from the fire department, finance department and public safety administration.

The committee worked with the architectural firm Siegal Tuomaala Associates and determined the new station would be 7,000 to 10,000 square feet and house six firefighters as well as by space for fire and EMS equipment. The committee recommended the fire station and its equipment be funded through bond sales rather than the department's fund balance.

The fire lieutenants' salaries were set in the budget at $55,200 each and firefighter/paramedic salaries set at $35,000 each.

The police sergeants positions were set at $56,700 each and the officer positions set at $33,400. Four present sergeants will be promoted.

In a related measure, the township board approved an acquisition plan for purchasing property at Cherry Hill and Ridge in Cherry Hill Village. The board approved hiring the law firm Cummings, McClorey Davis & Acho to negotiate and make an offer to purchase the property.

Cherry Hill Village is one of the proposed sites for a third fire station, a performing arts and education center and several large residential developments with homes built in neo-traditional styles. The township received a $300,000 state grant last summer to go towards building the facility.

Board OKs site plan for Summit expansion

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

Lines for exercise equipment should become shorter and getting in and out of the Summit should be easier once a $2.3 million expansion of the community center is completed, according to township officials.

The Canton Board of Trustees Tuesday unanimously approved the site plan and construction contract to expand the Summit on the Park community center by 9,400 square feet.

The expansion plans call for:

- New fitness center, which would be nearly doubled in space
- New men's and women's locker rooms
- Renovation of a racquetball court to special needs locker room and storage space
- Renovating the current fitness center into a new aerobics studio
- Renovation of the projection room into additional banquet office space
- An additional guest entrance

The project will be funded with a $750,000 state recreation grant and through the sale of bonds.

The lowest qualified bidder for the Summit construction work was Heaney General Contracting of Ypsilanti, submitting a bid for $2.3 million. The estimated construction time is 320 calendar days, which is less than a year. Construction is expected to begin within 30 days, said Ann Conklin, leisure services director.

"It's very exciting," Conklin said following the board's decision. "We're very appreciative of the board's support."

Increased use of the Summit since it opened in early 1996 is the driving force behind the expansion plans.

Debra Bilbrey-Honsowetz, Summit manager, said some 383,645 people used the Summit's recreation facilities in 1999. The 2000 figure is 368,049 users through September, meaning year-end use is likely to increase by more than 107,000.

Those increased numbers are most noticeable in the fitness center, where people wait to use stair climbers, treadmills, exercise bike and weights, according to Bilbrey-Honsowetz.

"People are waiting unreasonable amounts of time to use fitness equipment," she said.

Exercise equipment is not included in the expansion costs. The new equipment will be purchased at a later date, Conklin said.

Aaron Machnik, municipal services director, said the township's plans to expand the Summit had nothing to do with Life Time Fitness' plans to build in Canton. The Minnesota-based health club chain plans to build a 108,890-square-foot facility on Haggerty south of Ford next year.

"Our project was originally envisioned long before Life Time planned to come to Canton," Machnik said. "The expansion is sorely need in an effort to meet needs for clients using the facility."

Heaney General Contracting was one of seven companies bidding on the work. The actual low bidder was Greystone Construction of Novi at $2.2 million, but was disqualified for not meeting bid specifications.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said attracting seven bidders was "outstanding" for a project of this size.

Expansion of the building will require enlarging the parking lot, which will be handled as a separate project.

Center's caterer wins 5-year deal

The Canton Township Board approved granting Summit Gourmet, the food service provider for the Summit's banquet center, a five-year contract at its most recent board meeting.

The board unanimously approved the contract Tuesday, Oct. 24. Summit Gourmet initially signed a one-year contract with the township last year.

Terms of the contract include:

- Food service revenue increased from 20 to 23 percent for first three years and 25 percent for years four and five;
- Canton Township will concede canned soda beverage sales to Summit Gourmet and Canton will receive 23 percent of revenue from those sales;
- Summit Gourmet will provide a banquet software program called Cater Mate for use by Canton Township, which will be responsible for the annual subscription fee;
- Summit Gourmet will have exclusive commercial food service rights to the Summit, except for senior citizen program events, pizza and snack food items brought in by guests using recreation facilities, snack foods for community service use and refreshments provided by the township for smaller groups.

Before the board voted on the contract, Supervisor Tom Yack asked if anyone wanted to try a cannoli – baked by Summit Gourmet.

Ann Conklin, Canton's leisure services director, said she's been pleased with Summit Gourmet's service thus far.

"We have a great working relationship," Conklin said. "The quality of food far exceeds all our expectations.

"We look forward to a great continued relationship with Summit Gourmet."

Merit semi-finalists named

Eleven seniors from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools have been named as semifinalists in the 2001 National Merit Scholarship program.

Named as semifinalists were Michael Kleemann, Yibo Ling, Elizabeth Martin, Anna Moniodis, Allan Poon, Cynthia Rich and Jason Wilson from Salem High School and Stephanie Chang, Betsy Radtke, Jennifer Wagner and Kimberly Weaver from Canton High School.

Mark Bolger, the Salem High School basketball player who died last January, also qualified as a semifinalist.

All semifinalists entered the 2001 Merit Program by taking the 1999 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT).

The test served as an initial screen of more than 1.2 million Merit program entrants, all juniors, who were enrolled in some 20,000 high schools nationwide. The highest scorers in each state were designated semifinalists, in numbers representing less than one percent of the state's high school graduating class.

A semifinalist must fulfill a number of additional requirements to become a finalist and be considered in the extremely rigorous competition for Merit Scholarship awards. The requirements for finalist standing include meeting very high academic standards in college preparatory course work, submitting SAT1: Reasoning Test scores that confirm the PSAT/NMSQT performance, and being fully endorsed and recommended by the high school principal.

Also, the semifinalist and an official of the school must complete a detailed scholarship application to provide important information about the student's personal interests and activities, academic and other achievements, volunteer and paid work, educational plans and goals.

P-CEP marchers score again at Huron Valley Invitational

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

The Plymouth-Canton Educational Park Marching Band brought home another glittering array of trophies from the Huron Valley Invitational held at Lakeland High School in White Lake on Oct. 21.

The 200 performers once again made a grand sweep of all Flight I caption awards for Best Music, Best Marching and Best General Effect, along with the Flight I first-place trophy.

The band's performance of its show, Reflections: on Obsessions, also netted the highest score – 89.95 – of all 26 competing bands in all four flights.

Other bands from the Observer area included Harrison with a second place in Flight III; and, from Flight I, Wayne Memorial in ninth place, John Glenn, Westland – sixth, and West Bloomfield – fifth.

"I thought we did really good today," said alto-saxophonist Jeremy French, a sophomore. "It is a lot harder work (than last year's show), but it is a lot more fun. And it is a bigger payoff because, in the end, we feel better about ourselves."

Drum major Elliott Tackitt, a senior, agreed that this year's show is much harder than those in his other three years of marching band. "The drill is incredibly hard," he said. "I'm not even marching and I get tired watching them."

■ 'We worked really hard today in our practice and it has all paid off. We put our whole heart into it.'

–Susan Lundy, saxaphonist

He said it also gets more difficult to improve each time, but the band has put in a number of eight-hour practice sessions. Tackitt felt everything went well with the performance up until the closer when, he said, "we had some minor issues."

Band director David McGrath attributed that to a number of factors. He said it was partially due to the performers' fatigue after a long practice day, as well as the newness of the ending drill, which was marched in completion for the first time at Lakeland High School.

"We took the tempo and the performance a little faster than we have ever rehearsed it. So the last minute and ten seconds of the performance was a little bit dicey, but the first four parts were better than last week." And the previous week's exhibition performance at their own Great Lakes Invitational was a stellar one, according to McGrath.

Junior alto saxophonist Susan Lundy was pleased with the bands' performance.

"We worked really hard today in our practice and it has all paid off," she said. "We put our whole heart into it."

Senior alto saxophonist Charlie Cross agreed. "There was a different type of atmosphere here," he said. "It wasn't just a regular old show. The band wanted to take it to the next step up from GLI last week," he said. "Each year the shows get better. This show has a lot of potential and the band needs to make it happen

"The next three weeks (before the state and national competitions) will be crunch time for the marching band."

McGrath said, "We have our work cut out for us in the next three weeks – it's going to be pretty grueling and they are working very, very hard already. I think they're up for the challenge though, and their attitudes and desires are as strong as I could ask."

Canton parks 'champion' Wally Baker, 74, dies

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

Additional obituaries, A8

■ Baker was instrumental in helping the township acquire land that would one day become home to Heritage and other parks

Wally Baker was a man who firmly believed Canton should have the best recreation services and parks. He had a lot of pride in Canton, according to people who knew him.

Baker, 74, died Oct. 24 of leukemia. A memorial service is planned for 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4 at the Summit. His family has requested that donations be offered in lieu of flowers. Donations may be sent to the Friends of the Canton Public Library, 1200 S. Canton Center, Canton, MI 48188 or the Myeloproliferative Disorder Foundation, 2210 Halsted, Suite 133, Chicago, IL 60614.

Mike Gouin, former Canton Parks and Recreation director who retired last year, remembered Baker as a "real gentleman.

"He was a real champion for the acquisition of park land," Gouin said. He really, really cared. He had a real passion for seeing the community offer the kind of services he felt it deserved."

Over the past 15 years, Baker was instrumental in helping the township acquire land that would one day become home to Heritage Park, Summit on the Park, Pheasant Run Golf Course and Independence Park, a new soccer park at Denton and Proctor.

But Baker also wanted to see Canton get more passive recreational parks, where visitors could hike on nature trails and just enjoy being outside, Gouin said.

Ron Bradley, who served on the recreation board with Baker for about 10 years, described him as someone who was serious about his role on the board.

"He kind of had a serious personality," Bradley said. "He was very business-like and serious, but he would crack a joke once in a while. He was very focused on what he wanted.

"He loved Canton and he loved parks."

The recreation board is down to only five members out of eight. Bradley said he hasn't been notified about when the vacancies might be filled.

Baker was born July 18, 1923 in Rogers City, where he graduated in 1940. He attended Michigan Normal College, which became Eastern Michigan University, prior to serving in the U.S. Army at Camp Ellis, Ill. for three years.

Surviving are his wife of 57 years, Lucille; children Michael Baker of Canton, Diane (Dominic) Palumbo of Niceville, Fla. and Nancy (Albert) Kurtz of Ann Arbor; sister Phyllis (George) Manitz of Alpena and brother Ronald Baker of Rescue, Calif. and many nieces and nephews.

He is also survived by nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

McCabe Funeral Home handled the arrangements.

Van Buren board honors students

Twenty-one high school students, three middle school students and one elementary student were recognized recently by the Van Buren public schools board of education.

The Belleville High School Video Club and Stage Crew members were given certificates for their contributions to the club. The students videotape school board meetings and school functions such as band and choir concerts, videotape community events such as the Belleville Strawberry Festival's queen pageant and provide lighting for stage productions, among other things.

Club adviser Steve Wilson said the students averaged at least 20 hours of service weekly in addition to school hours. Students needed to complete 120 hours per semester to get the 1/2 credit for the elective.

Every student exceeded that requirement, with some exceeding it by more than double, Wilson said.

Recognized students, including the extra hours they put into the class over two semesters, are:

Hans Ihlenfeldt, 642; Richard Mills, 336; Megan Smith, 513 ; Randy Thorne, 389; Jackie LaMothe, 305 hours; Jordan Pagel, 421.5 hours; Nick Thorne, 251; Heather Krouse, 192;

One-semester students and their extra hours:

Bryan Thompson, 52; Branden Skrzycki, 5 hours; Amanda Woodall, 315 hours; Rachel LeBron, 221 hours; Mike Nowitzke, 159 hours; Phillip Sohoza,157 hours; Tom Ellmore, 152 hours; Laura Bennett, 146 hours; Mike Zaborowski, 138 hours; Tyler Burda, 125 hours; Justin Ellis, 72 hours; Mike Laskaska, 59 hours; Aaron Harding, 11 hours.

Four younger school students were presented with awards for their school spirit. Awarded were:

■ Andi Powell, 13; a South Middle eighth grader, recognized for her participation in a variety of sports, nominated by Vice Principal Karen Mida.

■ Jonathan Gonczy, 10, Edgemont Elementary fifth-grader, recognized for getting patio stones donated for the school's Michigan Garden, nominated by teachers Pat Matkovic and Karen White-Trigg.

■ Stacy Porzondek, 10, a Haggerty Elementary fifth-grader described as a "one of a kind" student, nominated by teachers Rebecca Smith and Pamela Bradley

■ Daniel Walz, 9, a Savage Elementary fourth-grader, who helps students find their buses, serves on student council and performed in the school's talent show.

P-CEP students honored

Nine students from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools have been named Commended Students in the 2001 National Merit Scholarship Program.

A letter of commendation from National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which conducts the program, will be presented to these scholastically talented students.

Receiving honors from Salem High School are SarahJensen, Nicolle Kownacki, Lisa Ligreci, Kory Pund and Amanda Srodawa. Honors received by Plymouth Canton students included Leslie Babich, Justin Crawford, Nicole Exe and Brian Page.

About 34,000 Commended students throughout the nation are being honored for their exceptional academic promise. Although they will not continue in the competition for Merit Scholarship awards to be offered next spring, Commended Students placed among the top five percent of more than a million students who entered the 2001 Merit Program by taking the 1999 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

students. The theme was changed to Harvest Day and costumes have been banned ever since.

Frazier said parents have been trying for several years to get costumes back at Fiegel. In fact, Frazier thought she walked out of a PTO meeting last month with an agreement to let students wear costumes this year after presenting a survey which showed 180 parents favored wearing costumes, while only 24 objected.

"We were under the impression when we left the meeting that we would try the costumes this year, but not the parade because it would be easier on the teachers," said Frazier. "All the parents at the meeting put up their hands in agreement, but none of the teachers did. Mr. Johnson said it was OK, and we all left the meeting feeling we were wearing costumes.

"However, several days later he had a meeting with the teachers and they decided not to have costumes, and that was it," she said.

■ 'We can have fun without having the costumes.'

–James Johnson, Fiegel principal

"We can't figure out where the core problem comes from," added Kelly Daroczy, a PTO board member and the mother of a second grader. "Basically, what they're saying is they don't care what the parents want."

Johnson said he stands by the decision.

"We can have fun without having the costumes. Besides, how much of a day do you devote to a party situation?" he questioned. "I would rather we be discussing how to get children to read better, getting them to school on time or getting their homework done. I've had some parents tell me wearing the costumes is offensive."

Other principals in the district say they continue with the parties and parades because it's what their parents want.

"It's a reflection of our school community ... they enjoy it and they support it," said Cheryl Clason, principal at Smith Elementary in Plymouth.

"It's one of the traditions that hasn't been challenged here," added Joyce Deren, principal at Hoben Elementary in Canton. "Usually it's a big family day with parents taking pictures."

Most of the district schools have students put their costumes on after lunch, with most of the afternoon activities geared toward Halloween. Deren said if parents don't want their child participating in Halloween parties, other activities are planned for those students.

Clason, like most elementary principals, sent home notes to parents asking that "no costumes of a violent nature be worn to school. This should also include using toy weapons as props."

"Parents are generally good at adhering to the policy, and we have very few problems," Clason said.

Despite the fun and success of Halloween at the other elementary schools, Fiegel parents remain convinced their voices aren't being heard.

"Tradition to me is very important, and Halloween is part of America's culture," said Sandy Hassien, a Fiegel mother. "How can you build memories if you don't have traditions to build upon?"

"We walked out of that meeting believing our kids were finally going to wear costumes to school," said Tracy Range, another Fiegel PTO board member. "Something that is time-honored and harmless ... it's not fair, especially since all the other schools make it work."

Johnson said he'd be willing to "talk about a policy for next year so teachers would have a heads up."

Frazier, who has been fighting the issue for five years, isn't convinced.

"It's not like we haven't heard that before," she said.

Train installed at Midfield Terminal

A unique elevated passenger system was installed Wednesday in the new midfield terminal being built for Northwest Airlines at Wayne County's Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

The train system – the only indoor, above-ground system of its kind in the world – is expected to provide fast, quiet and comfortable transportation inside the $1.2-billion terminal's mile-long main concourse, an airport spokesman said.

A 180-ton crane lifted the four 33,000-pound, futuristic-looking, bullet-nosed Express Tram system cars and inserted them through a 15-by-60-foot hole in the new terminal's roof 60 feet above the ground, then onto their concrete travel surface.

Each two-car "train," running 21 feet above gate-level, will hold up to 212 passengers. They operate like elevators turned on their sides – propelled by cables, but resting on cushions of air, rather than wheels.

"This Express Tram system will bring an easier and more convenient travel experience" to those using the new terminal, said Jim Greenwald, vice president of facilities and airport affairs for Northwest.

Greenwald, who is responsible for design and construction of the new terminal, added, "This community can now see the features of this building being installed and understand the tremendous benefits (it) will bring to air travel in Michigan."

Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara stated the tram's installation "marks another exciting milestone as we count down the final 15 months" to the terminal's opening.

"How appropriate for airline passengers to glide to their gates on a cushion of air!" he said. "The Express Tram will not only be fast and efficient, but also unique and fun."

The tram will have stations at the north, south and middle of the terminal. It can take travelers from the center station to either end in just two minutes, or traverse the entire concourse in four minutes.

The system can move more than 4,000 passengers per hour in each direction. It will work in tandem with 1.5 miles of moving walkways.

The Express Tram system features LED (light-emitting diode) message screens above each door, dynamic signs at each station telling the waiting time and 18-inch flat-screen television monitors at the end of each car.

Poma-Otis Transportation Systems Inc., of Farmington, Conn., built the system. Its Otis Elevator Company subsidiary – the world's leading provider of elevators, escalators and people-moving systems – is responsible for installing and maintaining the system.

Otis also is installing all other passenger conveyances in the new terminal, including 43 elevators, 50 escalators and 34 moving walkways.

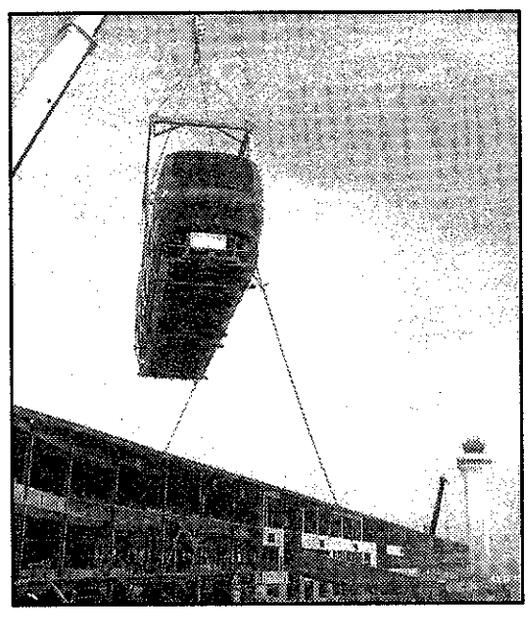

Workers from the International Union of Elevator Constructors Local 36 and the Operating Engineers Local 324 installed the tram system Wednesday.

Indianapolis-based Hunt Construction Group is project general contractor. Building designer is Smith Group of Detroit.

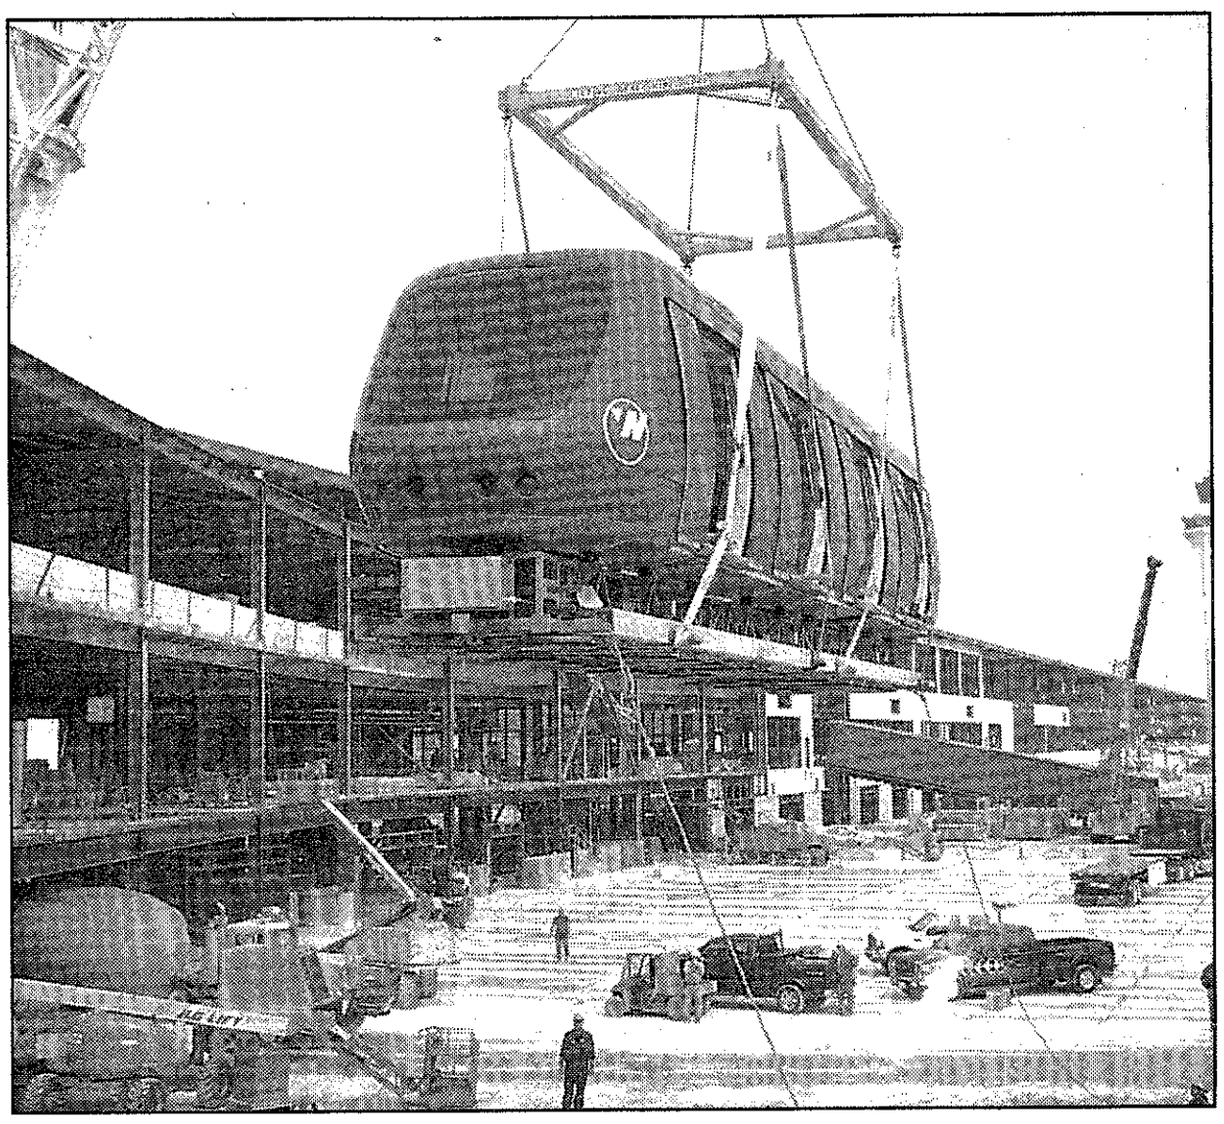

Projected to open in December 2001, the new terminal will have 97 gates, 18 luggage carousels, an 11,500-space parking garage and more than 80 shops and restaurants.

The terminal project is part of a five-year, public-private partnership between Wayne County and Northwest Airlines.

Poma-Otis is a joint venture of Pomagalski of France and Otis Elevator Company. Pomagalski, based in Grenoble, is the world's leading supplier of ski-area transportation equipment, with extensive experience also in automated people movers, funiculars and inclined elevators.

Through the roof: A giant crane lowers a tram car for the new passenger moving system at the Northwest Midfield Terminal at Metro Airport.

Faster service: The new train system installed Wednesday at Metro will be the only indoor, above-ground system of its kind in the world and is expected to provide fast, quiet and comfortable transportation.

Detroit 300 photo contest is extended

Students throughout Metro Detroit and Windsor can breathe a sigh of relief. The October 1 deadline for the Detroit 300 Kids - Past, Present, Future Photography contest has been scratched. The new deadline is Sunday, Jan. 1, 2001.

"We've had a terrific response from young photographers throughout the four counties," said Detroit 300 Education Program Manager Pamela Rhoades Todd. "But, after fielding quite a few calls from anxious parents and teachers, we thought it would be a good decision to extend the deadline to oblige those students who hadn't received word of the contest until that returned to school last month."

The contest is for students in grades 4-12 interested in exploring and documenting the region and its history through their camerawork. Photo entries must depict young people at annual events, historical settings, or well-known local landmarks within Wayne, Oakland, Macomb or Essex (Ontario) counties. Only one entry per student can be submitted and all entries must be original student work.

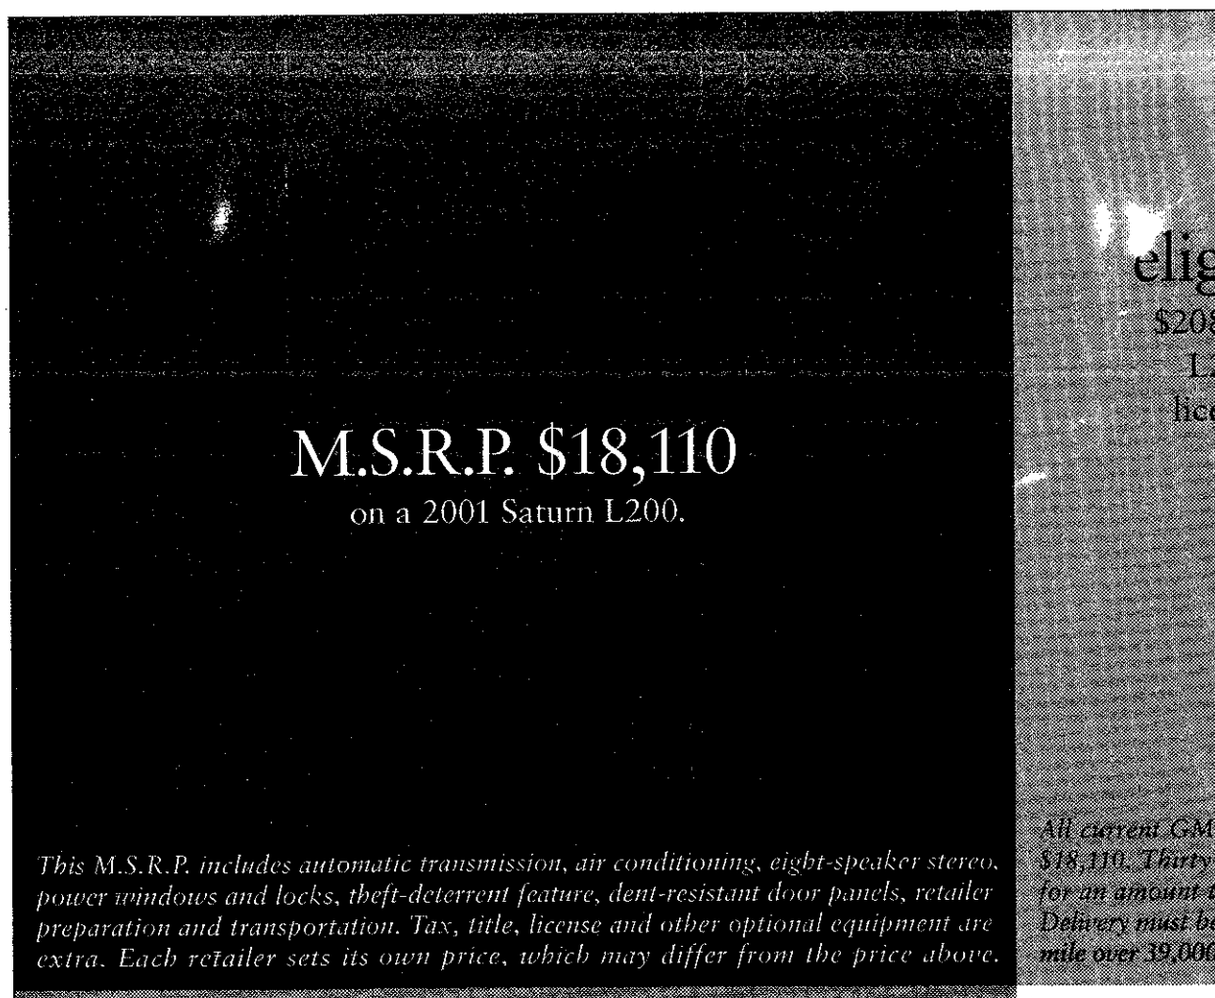

The six top winners in their grade category will receive a $100 U.S. Savings Bond. The grand prizewinner will receive a $500 U.S. Savings Bond.

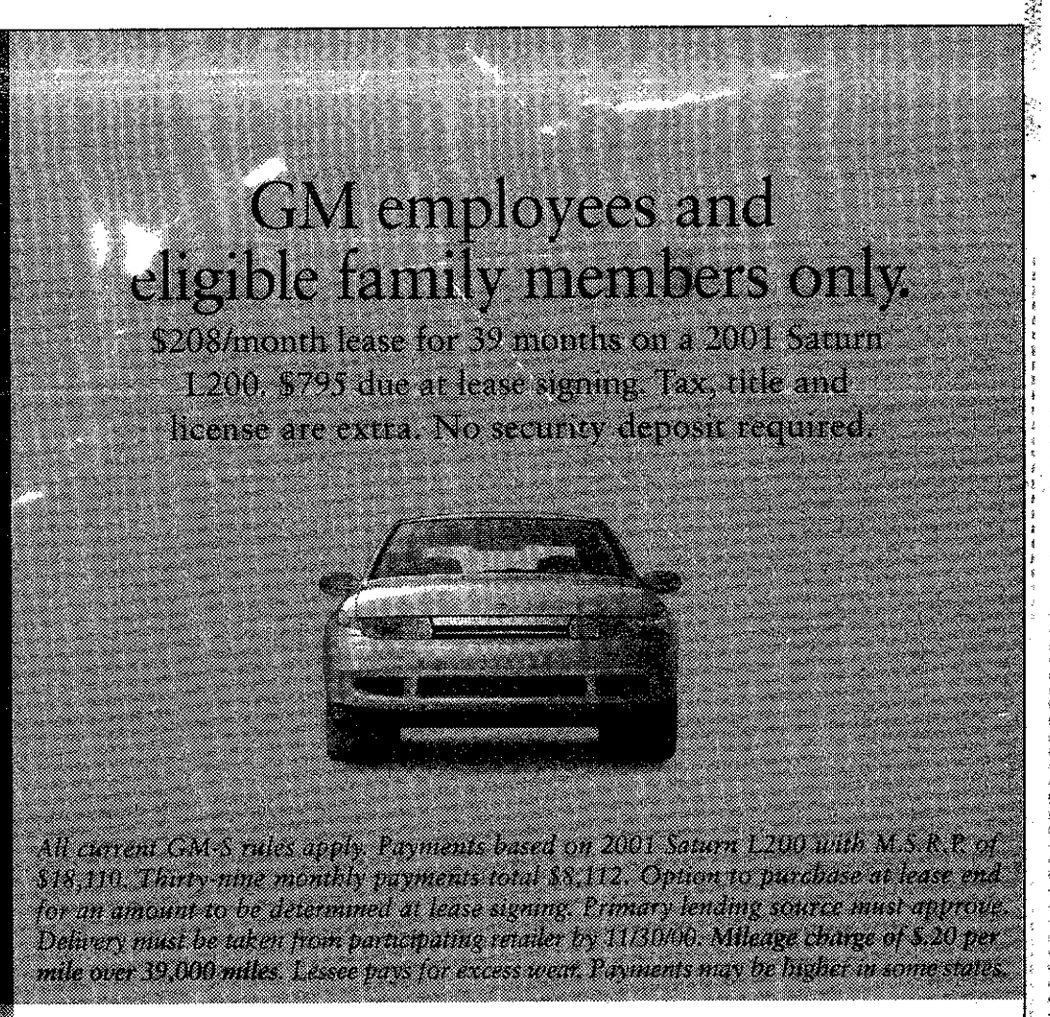

The official contest brochure and entry form can be downloaded from the Detroit 300 Web site at www.detroit300.org , obtained by calling Detroit 300 at 313-871-1303, or by writing Detroit 300, Suite 310, Albert Kahn Building, 7430 Second Avenue, Detroit, MI 48202.

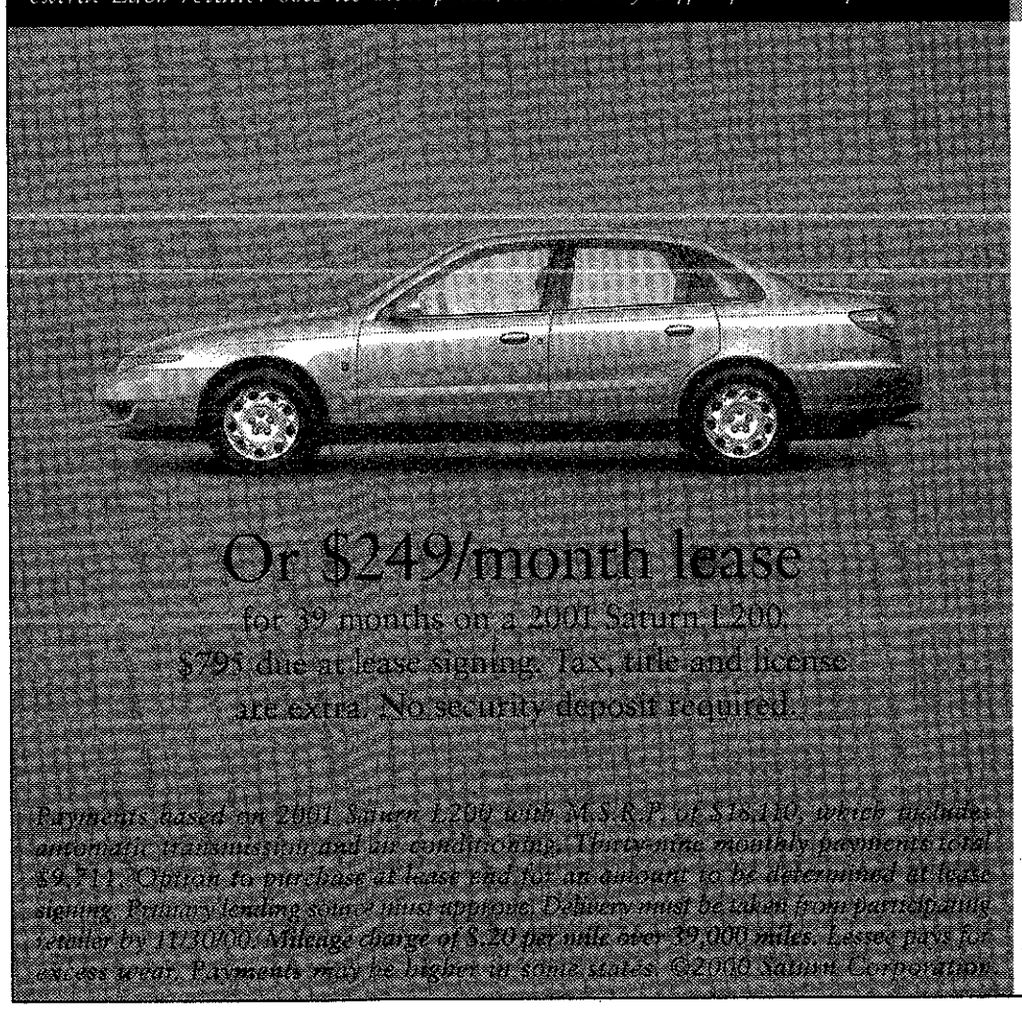

Photography entries must be accompanied by the official entry form and mailed to Mel Miller, Department of Consultant Services, Macomb Intermediate School District, 44001 Garfield Road, Clinton Township, MI 48038. All entries must be postmarked by Sunday, Jan. 1, 2001, to be eligible.

Students of selected entries will be notified by April 1, 2001.

ADVANCEMENTS IN FOOT CARE
– presented by –
Canton Foot Specialists
Dr. Steven Watson
Dr. Michael Lefkowitz
HEEL PAIN CAN BE SOLVED
The most common cause of heel pain is incorrect foot movement during walking or running. This can place too much stress on the heel bone and the soft tissues that attach to it. Muscle and bone problems can be inherited. External causes such as heel injury or bruising, poorly fitted or worn-out shoes, and exercise weight also play a role. The incorrect movement of the foot can be corrected with an orthotic device.
We specialize in non-surgical relief of heel pain.

Based on Canton's experience, dump could be good for Sumpter

BY RICHARD PEARL
STAFF WRITER

rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

If Canton Township's success with its landfills is any indication, Sumpter Township can expect good things from its new trash contract with Toronto.

According to reports, beginning next year Sumpter's massive, square-mile Carleton Farms landfill is to receive the Canadian city's trash under a five-year contract that will pay it $1.50 per ton.

A total of 600,000 tons is expected the first two years and 500,000 tons per year thereafter.

That 50 cents a ton is more than Canton receives under its contract with Allied Waste at its much-smaller landfill just south of Michigan Avenue on the west side of Interstate 275.

Canton Finance Director Tony Minghine said the township gets 40 cents per yard, with each yard equaling three tons of trash.

Canton's revenue has been between $600,000 and $1 million per year, he said, and it has helped pay for the Summit on the Park complex and for either purchasing or improving parks in the township.

"We've been able to put our (revenue) to a lot of good uses," said Minghine. "Those moneys never were in operations, but in community projects.

"It's not a bottomless pit," he noted, referring to the business of accepting trash. "It will run out someday.

"But we will not be impacted on the operations side," he said.

"In Canton's case, (the landfill contract) has had a positive impact on the community. We've demonstrated what can be done," Minghine said.

He also said the estimate of possibly as many as 200 trucks a day trundling down I-275 to Sumpter sounds "huge, but in reality, when you look at the total traffic count on 275, it's insignificant. And most of the (trash-truck) traffic will be in the day, when people are at work" and not on the freeway.

"People picture a parade of trucks," Minghine said, "but that's not what it is."

Center enrolls for winter term

The Learning Center at Madonna University in Livonia is currently accepting applications for its winter term, which begins Monday, Jan. 22. Since enrollment is limited, parents/guardians must submit an application form before Dec. 1, 2000, to allow time for an initial assessment and to ensure placement in the winter program.

The tutorial sessions are designed for children from the first through 12th grades who are experiencing difficulty in reading and related skills. Individual or group instruction is available.

Prior to admission, each student will be informally assessed and a tailored remedial plan will be designed. Instruction is designed to enable the student to be a more successful and independent reader and will include strategies for reading fiction and non-fiction text, process writing and study skills. Students will develop a portfolio of their work during the session.

Classes run from Monday, Jan. 22, through Thursday, April 19. Parents may choose the day and time that best fits their needs: 4-5 p.m. or 5-6 p.m. Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday or 3:55-5 p.m. or 5-6:05 p.m. (the extra five minutes are added since sessions will be canceled on Holy Thursday).

With more than 48 years of providing service to children who are experiencing difficulty in reading and writing, Madonna University's Learning Center has assisted thousands of children, from public and private schools representing some 20 different school districts.

Since enrollment is limited, it is important that applications be submitted as early as possible.

More nursing home facilities apply for $10 million in Michigan grants

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 27 /PRNewswire/ -- Director Kathleen Wilbur announced today that there is a 7.5 percent increase in the number of facilities applying this year for $10 million in nursing homes grants the Michigan Department of Consumer & Industry Services offers to improve the quality of life and long-term care for nursing home residents.

CIS received applications from 387 facilities, which represents over 90 percent of the state's facilities that are eligible for the FY2001 grants. The facilities selected to receive grants will be announced in November.

"We noticed a significant increase in the number of applications with 27 more facilities applying this year for the grants than in FY2000. The increase is the result of our outreach and education efforts, which included simplifying the application process, hosting 3 training sessions for potential applicants, posting the application and instructions on the CIS' website, and extending the application deadline," Wilbur said.

Wilbur said grant applications for the Innovative Projects category, aimed at improving the quality of care of residents, was the most popular of the three categories for the nursing home grants with nearly 600 project ideas submitted by 359 of the applicants. Several of the applicants are seeking grant monies for physical plant improvements/equipment purchases, outdoor construction, resident activities, special beds, vehicles for resident transportation, special needs units or therapy, and computer systems or programs.

The $10 million in FY2001 grants will be distributed by a formula that is based on the number of successful applications and total number of licensed beds. Nursing homes receiving grants must use the funds for designated projects by Sept. 30, 2001.

Best this season

Angie Sillmon, a sophomore middle blocker for Western Michigan University's volleyball team from Plymouth Salem, turned in one of the best blocking performances in WMU history in a straight-set sweep of Mid-American Conference rival Akron Oct. 21.

Sillmon collected one solo block and eight block assists in the three games, which the Broncos won by scores of 15-12, 15-9, 15-12. It was the best by a Bronco this season and the third-best in school history for a three-game match.

Sillmon has a total of 59 blocks in 60 games (0.98 per game), second best on the team. She also has 103 kills, 54 digs and 10 service aces.

WMU was 14-5 overall and tied for first in the MAC's West Division with Ball State at 9-1 (through Oct. 26).

Rockers ready to roll

The Detroit Rockers, who will have their first-ever soccer game at Plymouth's Compuware Arena at 3:05 p.m. today, have reached out to local fans by signing broadcast contracts with Media One Cablevision and WTKA-AM 1050.

Media One will broadcast all 15 Rockers' games live from Compuware this winter on Channel 25, starting with today's game against Wichita.

WTKA-AM will broadcast "The Ticket," a weekly recap of Rockers' games, player interviews, a look ahead and a coach's corner segment featuring Rockers' head coach Drago, at 11 a.m. Saturdays. Jim Stark and Al Fellhauer, who bring the Sports Den to listeners in the Ann Arbor area from 7-9 p.m. Mondays, will host the show.

Besides a new venue to play in, the Rockers are bringing some new faces to town. And with Halloween just around the corner, what better time to introduce the Transylvanian Trio to the fans?

Lorin Spasovici, Dan Ilie Diac and Costea Decu are three of the best indoor players in Romania. All three were signed by Rockers' general manager David Woodrow and Drago after a five-day tryout in Brasov, Romania, a city that sits at the foot of the Transylvanian Alps. They finally obtained their visas and arrived in Detroit with their families Sept. 20.

All three should be in uniform for the Rockers' home opener. Of the three, Decu is expected to make the biggest immediate impact.

Salem finds its offense, rips Pioneers

When the state tournament started, Salem's scoring problems were so acute the question wasn't if the Rocks could go the distance. Rather, if was when they'd be eliminated. That isn't a question any longer.

BY SCOTT DANIEL
STAFF WRITER

An offensive explosion.

That's what Plymouth Salem had Friday in its 4-0 district final victory over Ann Arbor Pioneer. Dan Longpre scored twice while Brian Popeney and Sean Loewe added goals.

After a sluggish start, the Rocks scored at 26:42 of the first half as Popeney collected a rebound off a Jeff Haar shot and slammed it home.

"It was a tight game until that point," said Salem coach Ed McCarthy. "Getting that goal early really helped us."

The Rocks, now 18-4-1, move on to Tuesday's regional opener at Plymouth Canton. Salem will host the winner of yesterday's Birmingham Brother Rice-Northville tilt at 5 p.m.

A Warriors' victory would put Salem up against the No. 1-ranked school in Division 1.

"They're really strong offensively and have an all-state goalie," McCarthy said of Birmingham. "We see a lot of great teams in our conference and have as tough a schedule as anyone. But we haven't seen the toughest team in the state and that's Brother Rice."

As for Friday's game at Ann Arbor Pioneer, the home team took it to Salem early on. Pioneer used its speed on the offensive wings to create several good scoring opportunities.

"We knew we had to defend Trai Blanks well," McCarthy said of Ann

Ball-control offense drives Chiefs to a win over Tigers

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton's offense may not possess the speed and elusiveness of a Porsche — but it's as tough and reliable as any four-wheel-drive vehicle that's ever been assembled.

The Chiefs relied on that toughness Friday night in their 21-10 all-terrain victory over Belleville in a first-round Division 1 playoff game played on the Tigers' home turf.

The win — Canton's first playoff victory since 1990 — propelled the Chiefs into next weekend's district final at Ann Arbor Huron. The River Rats defeated Walled Lake Western, 13-10, Friday night.

Like any high-performance machine, Canton needed a tune-up Friday night. It came in the form of a halftime pep talk from its coaching staff, at which point Belleville led 10-7.

"We told them that if we go out and score 21 points, it's over," Canton coach Tim Baechler said, condensing his intermission speech. "They had a couple of fluke plays against us in the first half, but I knew that if we went out in the second half and played Canton football, we would win the game."

The Chiefs not only went out and played Canton football, they played keep-away. Canton dominated possession of the ball in the final 24 minutes, running 36 offensive plays compared to Belleville's 14.

"I have to give Canton credit," Belleville coach Bob LaPointe said. "They came out and controlled the ball on us in the second half. It's hard to score when you don't have the ball."

A trio of Canton running backs — juniors Chad Fuller, Dane Kobus and Bill Gazsi — pounded the ball effectively into the mid-section of Belleville's defense throughout the game.

But it was quarterback Oliver Wolcott who provided the knockout punch on two of the Chiefs' three scoring drives. Wolcott, a senior, tossed a pair of TD passes — a 27-yarder to Gazsi in the first half and a game-clinching 26-yarder to junior tight end Dave Reeser in the final quarter.

"Oliver played a good game," Baechler said. "Our coaches up in the booth were a little upset with him after his first two passes tonight (both poorly thrown incompletions). But he said he was okay, and he proved it later in the game. He set his feet better later on and threw a couple of great passes."

Following a first quarter that featured two failed fourth-down attempts (one by each team) and an interception by Canton's just-promoted-from-the-junior-varsity defensive back Mike Lafata, the Chiefs lit up the scoreboard first with 7:34 to go in the half when Wolcott fired a 27-yard bullet to Gazsi, who snuck undetected out of the Chiefs' backfield following a fake handoff.

Wolcott booted the extra point through and the visitors led 7-0.

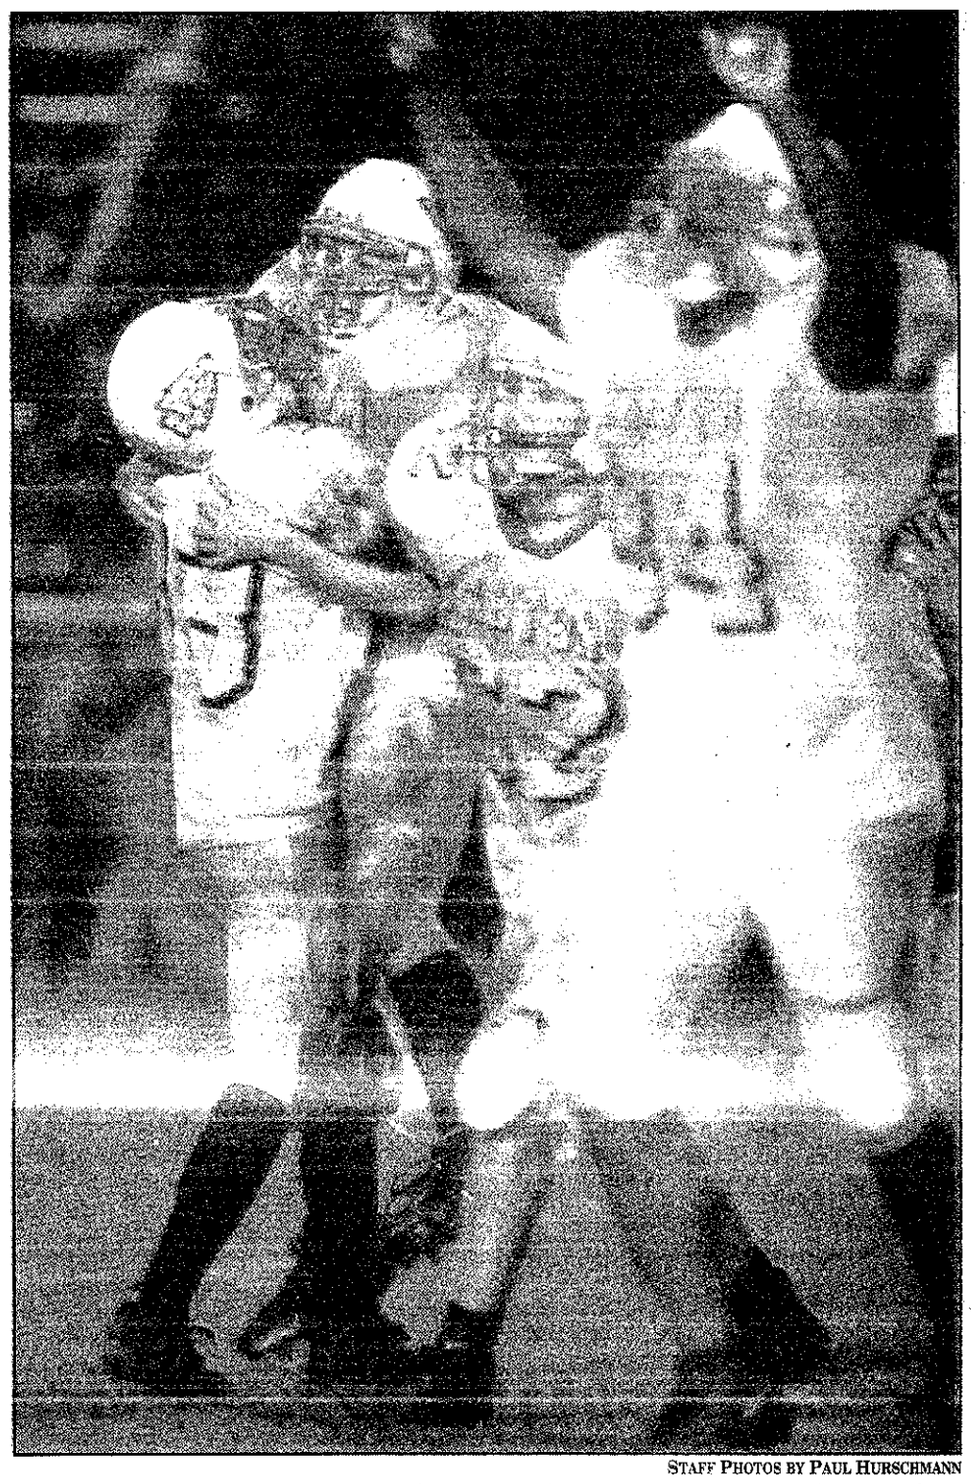

Sparked by a 50-yard run by senior tailback Kyle Myers, Belleville responded on its next drive by moving 65 yards on six plays to [illegible] was a 20-yard field goal by Joe Orskey that cut the deficit to 7-3 with 4:32 left in the half.

Canton's next drive ended at its own 39 when Kobus fumbled on a first-and-10 play and the Tigers' Jacob Wilerson recovered.

Just when it looked like Belleville would waste a golden opportunity to score, quarterback Jason Szmansky connected with split end Ernie Davis for 10 yards on a fourth-and-eight play to the Canton 27.

On the next play, Szmansky hit wide receiver Chris Miller with a 27-yard

Madonna sweeps WHAC's top team

Both coaches would say the same thing. These teams know each other. They know what to expect. They know the importance this match carries.

League co-champions or outright winners — that's what was at stake. Such a volleyball match would mean intense play and a five-set, down-to-the-wire finish.

Well, maybe not. Madonna University completely dominated the team that had been unbeaten in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference — Cornerstone University — in posting a 15-13, 15-5, 15-5 victory Thursday at Madonna.

And you know what? It was almost a replay, with the two teams in opposite roles, of what happened earlier this season when Madonna played at Cornerstone.

In that Oct. 3 match, the Golden Eagles completely ruled the Fighting Crusaders, rolling to a 15-4, 15-7, 15-10 victory.

So here's what we've got. WHAC co-champs in the regular season if both win their final matches. If that's the way the scenario plays out, then the all-important No. 1 seed goes to Cornerstone — because the Eagles total two more points scored against Madonna.

And that means they will host the WHAC Tournament Nov. 10-11.

How could each team be so completely dominant everywhere in the conference, except when playing their No. 1 rival on the road? Who could explain it?

Certainly not the coaches. "No, no, no," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham when asked if he had anticipated a three-game sweep when Cornerstone came to town Thursday. "They're an excellent team. We got beat by them just like this on their court."

His Cornerstone counterpart, Amy Settles, said it was stunning to her. "I wouldn't have expected this from my key kids, but they handled the pressure very poorly," she said.

"There were mental errors. They weren't mentally ready to play, and that's hard to believe."

Whalers shut out Sudbury

BY NICK GISMONDI
SPECIAL WRITER

The Plymouth Whalers came into Friday night's game as the No. 1-ranked team in the Canadian Hockey League. They gave another reason why by defeating the Sudbury Wolves, 5-0 at Plymouth's Compuware Arena.

Plymouth started with an offensive-style game that enabled them to take a 3-0 lead after one period. Rookie Nathan O'Nabigon got things started with an unassisted goal, his second of the year, when he walked in and let a low shot go that beat Wolves goalie Miguel Beaudry at the 2:07 mark.

Defenseman Cole Jarrett continued to show his power on the point when he netted his fourth goal of the season with a slap shot from just inside the blue line at 12:01 to make it 2-0. Stephen Weiss, who won the offensive zone draw and sent the puck back to Jarrett, got the assist.

BASKETBALL

North Farmington took Plymouth Salem into overtime Thursday before finally relenting and losing, 38-36 in the final Western Lakes Activities Association regular-season basketball game of the season.

The Raiders finish the WLAA round-robin schedule with a 6-5 record. The Rocks are 9-2.

"The kids played with such passion," North coach Linda Perkins said. "They were just solid tonight; they played really smart ball.

"It was nice to see them come back from Tuesday's game (a 54-23 loss to Farmington Harrison) and play this hard and so well."

Salem outscored North in overtime, 4-2. Samantha McComb, who scored a game-high 23 points, gave the Raiders the lead with two free throws.

But Mary Lou Liebau also made a pair of free throws to tie it, then scored the game-winning basket with 50 seconds remaining.

The Rocks led 9-8 after one quarter, but the Raiders were ahead at halftime, 20-15. Salem rallied in the third quarter to force a 26-26 tie, and the score was knotted at 44-all at the end of regulation play.

"It was an awesome game," Perkins said. "I really thought we would come out on top and so did the kids. That's the closest we've come to Plymouth Salem in a lot of years.

"(The loss is) disappointing but it was a good game, because the kids brought themselves back and played really hard.

"It gives the team confidence to know we can play that well. It was a great night. We just didn't come out with the victory."

Staci Russell added 11 points for the Raiders, who are 10-7 overall. Dawn Allen and Liebau led the Rocks (12-4 overall) with 15 and 14 points, respectively.

North made 11-of-17 free throws; Salem was 5-of-9.

The win assures Salem the No. 4 seed in the WLAA Tournament, which begins Tuesday. The Rocks will host fifth-seeded Livonia Stevenson at 7 p.m.

Northville, which defeated Farmington Harrison Thursday, clinched the WLAA championship and the No. 1 seed in the tournament. The Mustangs host Walled Lake Western Tuesday. Harrison is the second seed and plays at seventh-seeded Walled Lake Central.

Plymouth Canton is No. 3 and will play at sixth-seeded North Farmington Tuesday (the Lakes Division team hosts the first-round games; if both teams are from the same division, the higher seed hosts).

Canton 59, Churchill 14: About halfway through the first quarter, this game was, for all intents and purposes, over. That's because by that point Plymouth Canton had already scored more points than Livonia Churchill would for the entire game.

The Chiefs had a 23-4 lead after one period; it was 29-10 at the half. The Chargers managed just four points in the second half.

"I didn't think it would be that bad," said Canton coach Bob Blohm. "And we didn't press for one minute."

Janine Guastella led Canton with 12 points. Anne Morrell scored 10, with Angie Neu and Christina Kiessel netting nine apiece.

Deanna DeRoo's eight points paced Churchill.

Canton improved to 12-5 overall, 9-2 in the WLAA. Churchill is 3-13 overall, 2-9 in the conference.

The Chiefs, who finished third in the WLAA, play at North Farmington (Lakes Division teams host first-round games) Tuesday.

Ladywood 56, Notre Dame 44: Melissa and Michelle Harakas each scored 16 points Wednesday, leading Livonia Ladywood (12-5) past visiting Pontiac Notre Dame Prep (8-9) in first-round Central-AA Division playoff game.

Melissa came up with seven steals and helped key a 32-18 second-half surge. She also filled in admirably at the point-guard slot for injured Lauren Hesano (concussion).

Michelle, who sat out nearly two quarters because of foul trouble, also grabbed seven rebounds.

Sophomore forward Ruthie Sventickas added nine points for the victorious Blazers, who trailed 26-22 at halftime. Jana Beumel contributed six points off the bench.

Sherronda Watts, a 6-foot-3 freshman center, had 12 points for Notre Dame Prep along with teammate Jenny O'Rourke.

Ladywood advances to the Central-AA semifinals, 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 1 vs. Birmingham Marian (11-6) at Schoolcraft College.

PCA 65, Roeper 39: There was no doubting who wanted this game more.

Plymouth Christian Academy wanted second place in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference all to itself, and on Friday the Eagles made certain they would get it by ripping visiting Bloomfield Hills Roeper.

PCA scored a season-high 65 points in disposing of the Roughriders.

"This was a huge win," said Eagle coach Rod Windle. "I'm very proud of our team. They kind of made a statement to be the second place team tonight.

"The girls really stepped up. They showed they can win a big game."

It was close only for the first quarter and part of the second. PCA led 16-13 after one period, but Roeper took an 18-17 lead earlyin the second.

The Eagles answered by scoring 14-straight points and, as Windle described it, they "never looked back."

It was 34-20 at the half. The closest the Roughriders got in the second half was 12.

Laura Clark had a superb game, scoring 24 points — including five three-pointers — and dishing out eight assists. Amy Brandt finished with 11 points and seven rebounds, Kim Guilfoyle had eight points and 19 boards, and Kallie Gross netted seven points.

Sandra Morris led Roeper with 17 points. Lauren O'Lane totaled 13.

PCA finishes the MIAC at 7-3; the Eagles are 12-5 overall. Roeper is 10-8 overall, 5-5 in the MIAC.

No. 1 Saints just 1 goal better than Crusaders

MEN'S SOCCER

Charles Ovalle knocked in a header with 11 minutes left in the first half, providing Aquinas College with one more goal than Madonna University's men's soccer team could score in the final Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference regular-season match of the season Wednesday in Grand Rapids.

The 1-0 Aquinas win solidified its position as the WHAC's No. 1 team. The Saints and Siena Heights, which finished second in the conference, get first-round byes in the WHAC Tournament.

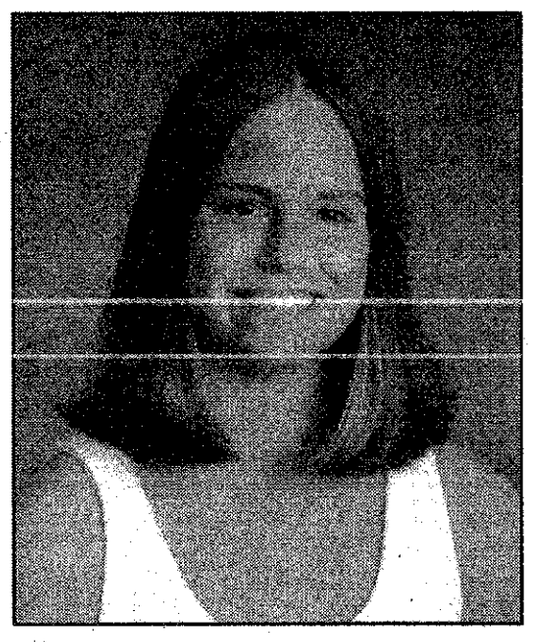

Madonna had a wide edge in shots on goal, 21-12. Joe Suchara (from Livonia Stevenson) had 10 saves for the Fighting Crusaders. But the Crusaders could not put any of them in the net.

Sean Fischbach had eight saves in earning the shutout victory for Aquinas. Jon Mies assisted on Ovalle's goal, scored 33:43 into the match.

Madonna, the third seed in the WHAC Tournament, is 11-8-1 overall, 9-4-1 in the conference. Aquinas is 15-2-3 overall, 12-1-1 in the WHAC.

Salem gets a victory

Plymouth Salem splashed past Westland John Glenn Thursday to improve its Western Lakes Activities Association Lakes Division dual-meet record to 4-1 with a 131-55 victory at Salem.

Salem swim coach Chuck Olsón, who was injured when his Ford Explorer rolled over in an accident Oct. 15, was back on the deck to guide the Rocks. Olson severed the top of his ring finger on his left hand and suffered neck and back injuries in the accident.

He was hoping to return full-time at the school Monday.

"I had a lot of swimming stuff (in my Explorer)," Olson said. "It was right after the MISCA meet (at Eastern Michigan)."

SWIMMING

How the accident occurred was still a bit fuzzy to Olson, who was (fortunately) wearing his seatbelt.

"I feel pretty lucky," he said.

It didn't take luck for his swim team against John Glenn. The Rocks won 11 of the 12 events, sweeping all three relays. They had eight different winners in the individual events.

Included were Jenny Crabill, first in the 200-yard individual medley (2:25.95); Emily Laskie in the 50-yard freestyle (26:95); Lindsay Parker in the diving (168.75 points); Kari Foust in the 100 butterfly (1:06.35); Nicole Genrich in the 100 freestyle (1:00.81); Amy Mertens in the 500 free (5:29.48); Rachel Underhill in the 100 backstroke (1:11.61); and Rachel Goto in the 100 breaststroke (1:22.60).

Foust, Mertens, Monica Glowski and Laskie combined to win the 200 medley relay (1:56.26); Glowski, Alicia Dotson, Danielle Powers and Laskie were first in the 200 free relay (1:47.09); and Glowski, Foust, Mertens and Dotson took the 400 free relay (3:54.25).

Salem hosts the WLAA Swim Finals this week, starting with the swim preliminaries at 1 p.m. Thursday. The diving prelims are at 2:30 p.m. Friday, with the finals starting at noon Saturday.

Madonna blindsided

BRAD EMONS

Must be the month for baseball acrimony.

Subway Series, Clemens vs. Piazza, not to mention the status of the lease of Madonna University's baseball park with the Livonia Public Schools.

Madonna administrators were blindsided when they were informed it would have to vacate its hardball diamond, located on the grounds of the Bentley Center.

The Crusaders were told they have to be out within 180 days (around April 15).

Franklin High School's baseball teams would be the new tenant, although it's the Patriot girls softball team which needs a place to play next spring.

At a school which is already land-locked due to a new locker-room annex and construction underway for a new fieldhouse, the Franklin girls softball facility has been wiped out.

The MU ball diamond, rented at a cost of $2,000 per year from LPS, has been under a year-to-year lease agreement for the past eight years.

As all local baseball fans know, former MU coach Mike George took a slab of dirt and a backstop at old Bentley and transformed it into a field of dreams. They've sunk nearly $100,000 into the complex including new dugouts, fencing, netting, bleachers, an irrigation system, along with other ammenities such as a press box and scoreboard.

It rivals any amateur field in the metro area.

Although MU employees are under a gag order from president Sister Mary Francilene, current baseball coach Greg Haeger and many connected with his program are crying foul.

The MU baseball program would obviously be severely hurt by LPS' move, but as superintendent of schools Ken Watson says, "Our first responsibility is to take care of our students."

"We have a problem that we're short one field," Watson said. "And we need to accommodate both the Franklin baseball and softball teams."

It appears Sister Francilene got Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey involved with the matter and things have significantly changed since Dave Watson (no relation), the LPS Director of Operations, first informed MU athletic director Ray Summers of the situation.

It appears to the two schools are trying to work out something with the city to accommodate one of the threeteams.

The remedy is a no-brainer as far as I'm concerned.

Let Madonna keep its lease, let Franklin baseball stay on its existing field and put the Franklin girls on the main softball diamond at Ford Field, which is the closest and best site available.

Sure, it's somewhat of an inconvenience for the Franklin girls to play off campus, but other Livonia spring teams have done the same.

Only recently did the Churchill varsity baseball team, with its diamonds undergoing renovation, play at both Bicentennial Park and Ford Field.

A strong rumor has been floating around that Ken Watson approved the severing of the lease with MU in response to Sister Francilene's support of Proposal 1, the school voucher issue in next month's election.

Sister Francilene has made it known her support for "Say Yes to Schools," while Ken Watson obviously "Says No" to vouchers.

Ken Watson flatly denies that played into the decision. He and Sister Francilene were actually together last Thursday at a Chamber of Commerce function and Watson says the subject of the fields or vouchers never entered into their conversation.

"We have two different units trying to work out problems, the school voucher issue doesn't exist," Ken Watson said.

Sister Francilene would not comment on current negotiations with the city other than that there "is ongoing discussion."

I can't believe the Livonia Public Schools would be foolish enough to pull the plug completely on the Madonna baseball program.

It would be the major public relations blunder.

But Ken Watson does have a point when he says, "Madonna needs to look into some long-term solutions" regarding its athletic facilities "on it's own property."

If MU is going to continue to compete in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference, it needs a long-range plan for upgrading on-campus athletic facilities.

That is a problem Sister Francilene must address. She has to step to the plate.

Meanwhile, LPS appears to be softening its stance on the lease and it's trying to work to a solution.

"We're hopeful all parties will be satisfied and they understand, and that it's not a done deal," Ken Watson said.

Let the Yankees and Mets continue to scrap. We don't need a Clemens-Piazza dispute.

Surely something can be ironed out in a New York minute.

scoring dart to give the Tigers their first lead of the night with 1:17 showing on the first-half clock. Orskey's extra point gave the hosts a 10-7 halftime cushion.

"Up until that point, Canton had been taking away the middle routes from us," LaPointe said. "But our quarterback made a nice read and throw, and our receiver made a great catch."

Led by its offensive front seven of Matt Nuss, Rob Labanino, Brandon Wright, Mike Schmid, Tim Koerner, Chris Smilo and Reeser, Canton opened the second half with a statement-making drive that started on its own 35 and ended 12 plays later in the end zone.

Gazsi capped the drive when he plunged 1 yard to paydirt on fourth-and-goal behind solid blocks from Labanino and Smilo. Wolcott's extra point made it 14-10 with 6:10 to go in the third quarter.

Belleville's next drive was thwarted when Canton's Dan Farkas sacked Szmansky on a third-and-seven play on the Tiger 40.

Canton all but sealed the win with a 12-play, 66-yard scoring drive that started with nine seconds to go in the third quarter and finished with 6:28 left in the game. The TD unfolded when Wolcott hooked up with Reeser on a 26-yard post pattern. One play previous to the touchdown, a 14-yard Wolcott-to-Reeser TD pass had been nullified by an offensive holding penalty.

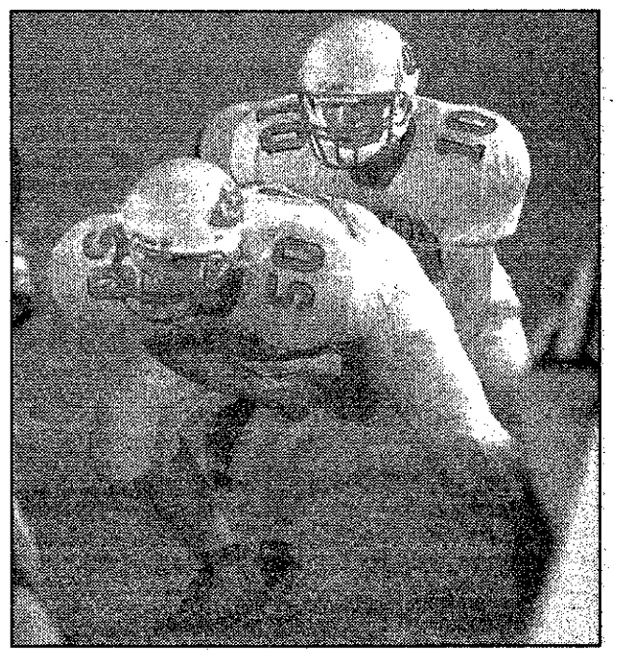

Kobus, a recent addition to the Chiefs' defensive unit, intercepted a pair of Szmansky passes in the final six minutes. Canton's Kyle Lasko also picked a pass off in the game's waning seconds.

Canton outgained Belleville, 254-193.

Fuller led Canton's ground attack with 72 yards on 16 carries. Kobus finished with 53 yards (18 carries) while Gazsi churned out 50 yards (15 carries).

Wolcott was 2-of-6 passing for 53 yards. He also ran the ball three times for 26 yards.

Myers paced the Tigers' offense with 48 yards on four carries. Szmansky completed 6-of-12 passes for 86 yards.

On target: Canton quarterback Oliver Wolcott (10) tossed a pair of TD passes.

Arbor's standout junior forward. "I was deeply concerned about him."

The Rocks' offense sputtered early. Passes missed the mark and the few shots Salem got sailed either high or wide.

That changed with about 15 minutes remaining in the first half. Haar had a corner kick at 35:40 that Longpre was able to get a foot on, but the shot went high.

Moments later Haar, who had missed several weeks of action with a hamstring injury, proved to be the catalyst again as he assisted on Popeney's goal. Salem dominated the remainder of the half.

The Rocks made it 2-0 at the 30-minute mark on a goal by Loewe. Popeney, on the left wing, made a great centering pass on the play as he slid and kicked the ball skillfully back to the middle of the field.

According to McCarthy, his team wore Pioneer down.

"We have great size and strength," he commented. "I think it began to take a toll on them."

The second half was all Salem.

The Rocks wasted no time making it 3-0 as Longpre got his first goal at the 3:08 mark. McCarthy felt the goal put the game out of reach.

"It's not likely that we'd give up three goals to anyone," he said. "We felt if we could score twice we'd have a good chance to win."

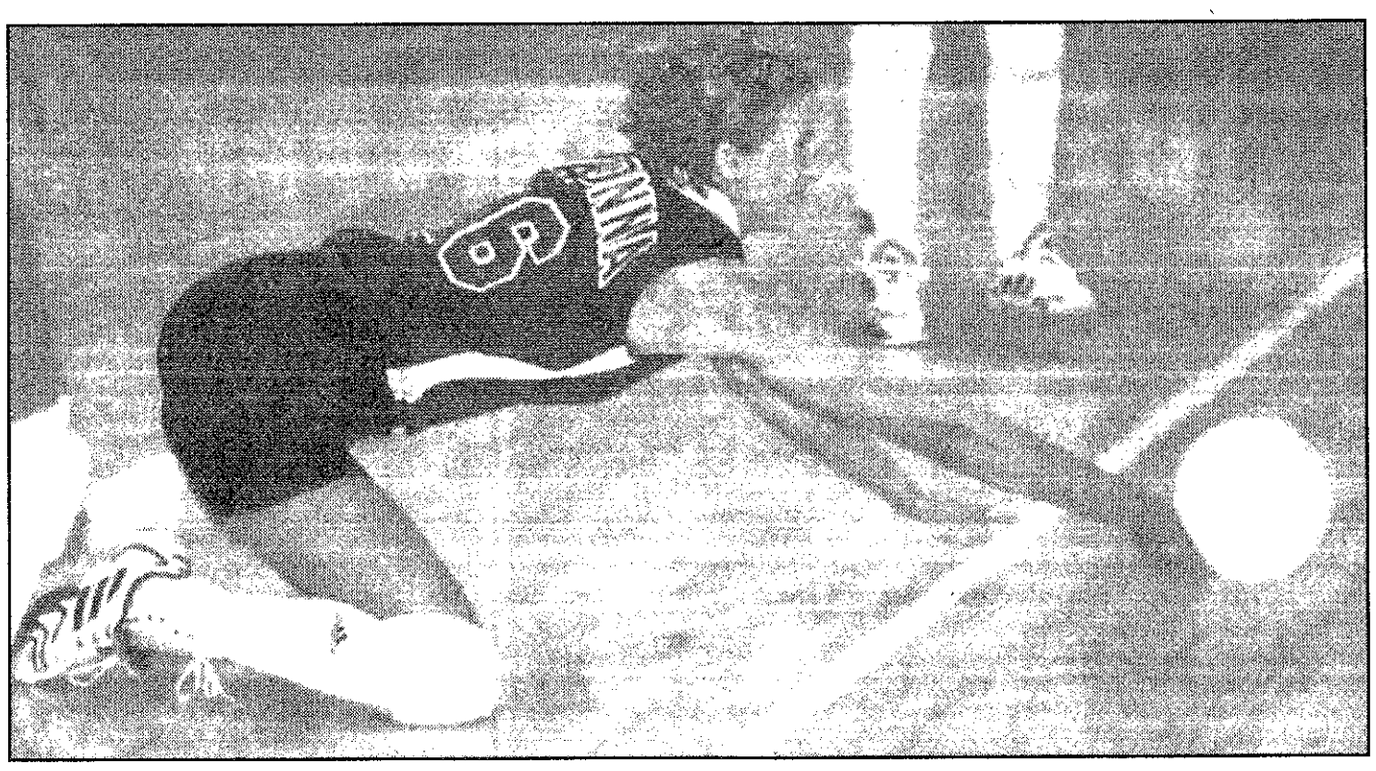

Longpre's second goal came about midway through the half. Loewe made a cross-field pass from the right wing. Longpre took the pass and drilled a shot just inside the right post to make it 4-0.

Diving save: Madonna's Kelly Artymovich makes a diving dig to help save a point during Thursday's first game. Artymovich also had several kills — nine all told — in the match.

Madonna volleyball from B1

Just as surprising, the pivotal point came when Madonna managed to hang on — barely — to win the first set after the Eagles had battled back from a 12-2 deficit to knot it at 13-all.

One would think that whatever the outcome, the momentum would swing to Cornerstone.

Nope. Instead, the Crusaders took complete command, scoring six points on Amanda Suder's (from Plymouth Salem) game-opening serve. Following an Eagle side-out, Madonna got three more points to make it 9-0 on Kelly Artymovich's serve (all on Cornerstone hitting errors).

The lead reached 14-0 with Jennie Wind serving, after an Eagle side-out on a service error.

"Right away we didn't execute well," said Settle, her team 28-5 overall. Both teams are 10-1 in the WHAC; Madonna is 32-5 overall.

Madonna did, getting particularly strong play from seniors Artymovich, Brandy Malewski (Redford Thurston) and Erin Cunningham. Malewski finished with a match-high 12 kills (.480 kill percentage); she also had six digs and six blocks.

Artymovich was next best for the Crusaders with nine kills; she added eight digs and three service aces. Cunningham added eight kills (.250) and seven digs.

"My three seniors have been focused all week," said Abraham. "Brandy's something special. All three of my seniors are special."

Jennie Wind added 32 set assists and 14 digs, Marylu Hemme (Plymouth/Livonia Ladywood) had 14 digs and Suder totaled 11 digs.

Cornerstone's best was Laura Ennis and Allison Schneider, each with seven kills. Sarah Haney contributed 21 set assists and six digs.

Of course, all the numbers and figures could be reversed once again when Cornerstone hosts the WHAC Tournament. Still, it will be difficult to view Madonna as an underdog; all four of its non-league losses have come to ranked teams in tournament finals.

Then again, this loss could benefit the Eagles down the road. As Settle noted, "Wake-up calls aren't necessarily a bad thing."

18:03 to close out the scoring in the first period. Stacey Britstone brought the puck across Sudbury's blue line wide to the right to start the play as Weiss cut wide left.

The two-on-one for the Whalers resulted in Britstone passing to Weiss who had the easy tap-in for the 3-0 lead.

The Wolves went 0-4 on the power play in the first period, which didn't help their chances.

Weiss scored his second goal of the game at 16:30 of the second period, tipping in a hard shot from the point by Libor Ustrnal to make it 4-0. Kris Vernarsky stuffed in a rebound at 6:51 of the final period for the Whalers' final goal.

Rob Zepp, the Ontario Hockey League's top netminder, picked up the shutout,.

"We played a solid team defense tonight," said Whaler's head coach Pete DeBoer, "as well as generating a good offense, and Zepp was sharp in net,"

Whalers add defenseman

The Plymouth Whalers are a young hockey club, with just one over-age player on their roster in Stacey Britstone. At least that's all they had until Friday.

Plymouth acquired defenseman Ryan O'Keefe and a fifth-round draft pick in 2002 in exchange for second-year forward Stephen Morris. Morris, his agents and the Whalers management mutually agreed upon the trade.

"Stephen felt he had a better chance to get in the lineup in Barrie and play some more than he was here," explained DeBoer. "It's an unfortunate situation because we were not looking to deal away Morris, but it was an option he wanted to pursue that was presented to him through his agents."

This partly solves the Whalers' search for over-agers, who can add a element of leadership and experience to the club. O'Keefe, who this season for Barrie had one goal and four assists (five points), has experience in both the OHL playoffs and the Memorial Cup.

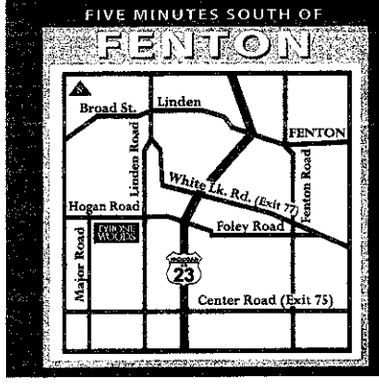

Last year he recorded seven goals and 28 assists for 35 points while playing a rock solid defensive game. The Whalers expect him to be a solid, tough defenseman. O'Keefe's character will also play a role.

"O'Keefe appealed to us because of the scouting reports we got on him," said DeBoer. "He is a character player who has leadership skills.

"We are a young team and we need to replace guys like (Randy) Fitzgerald, (Eric) Gooldy and (Shaun) Fisher. O'Keefe is hopefully the answer for us."

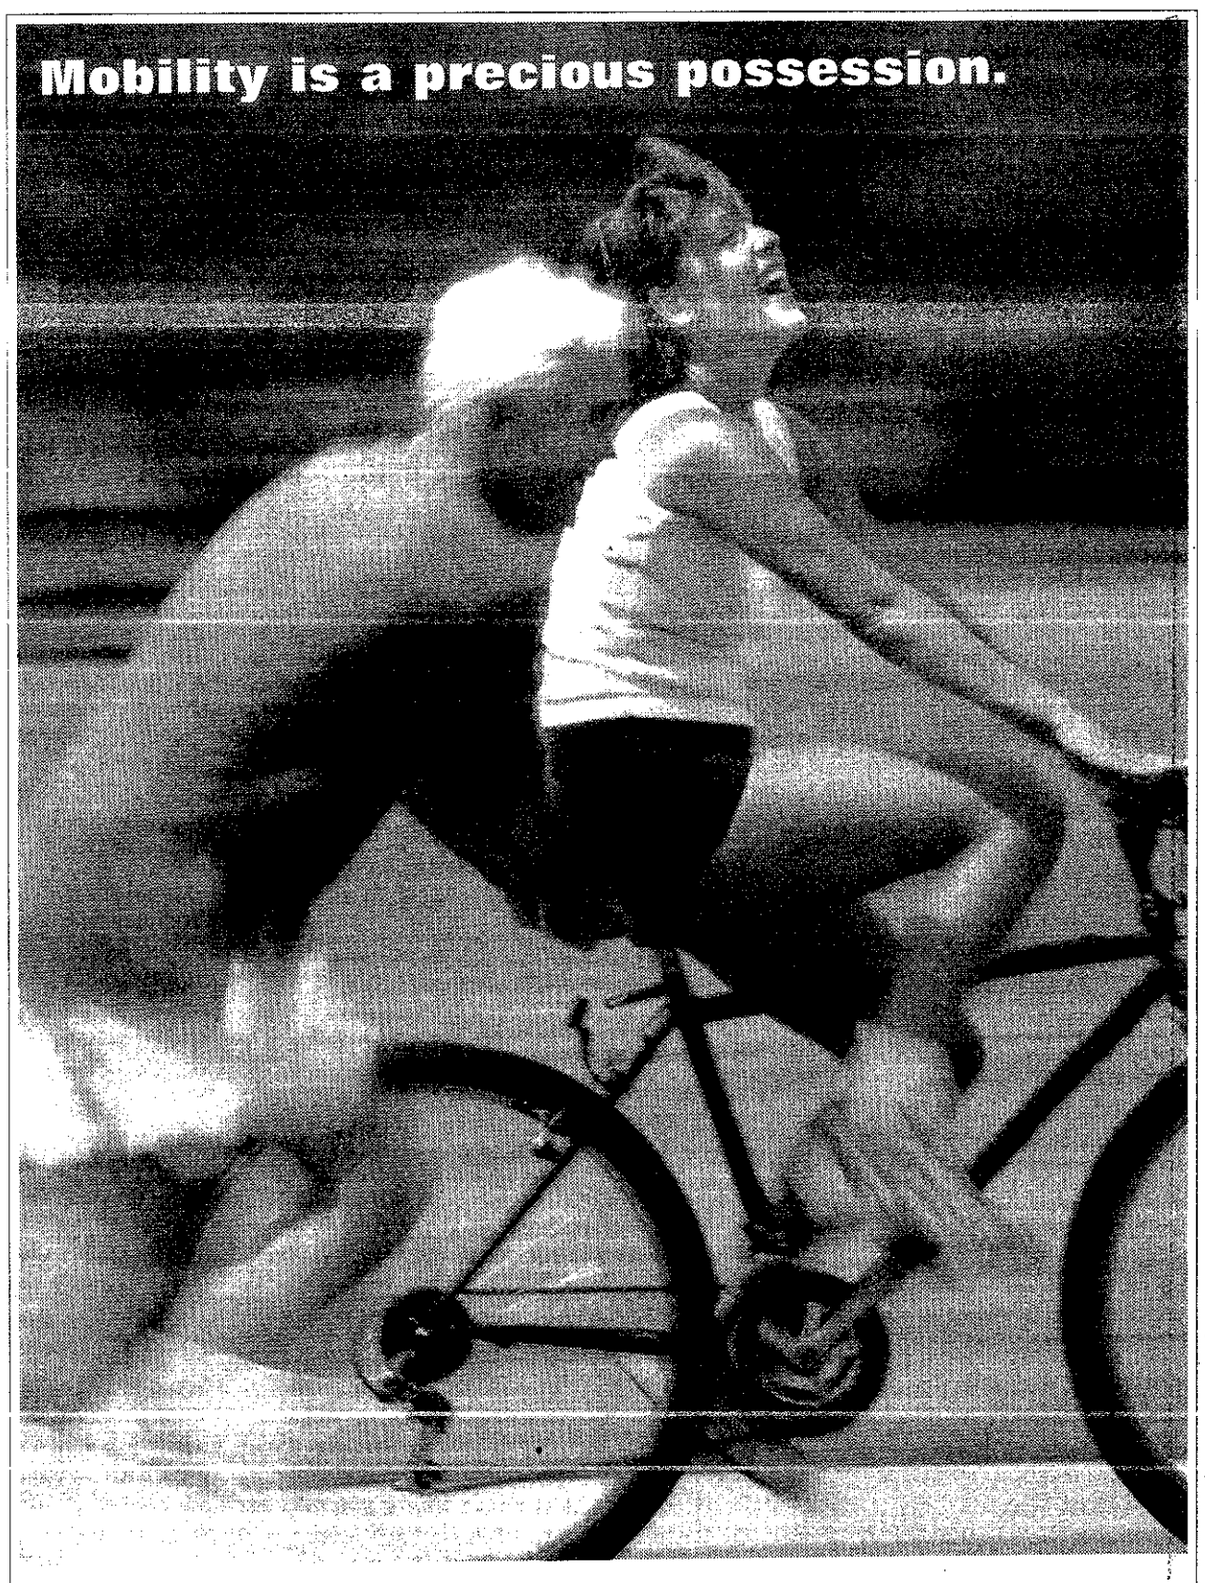

Morris was off to a steady start this season for the Whalers, recording three goals and three assists for six points in 11 games.

"It was a decision that all parties felt good about. I am going to have a better chance to play more in Barrie, and hopefully this will be a positive career move for myself," said Morris. "I will definitely miss everyone here in Plymouth though."

NATURE NOTES

Animals can't buy new coats at local Kmart

Fall is the season when animals prepare for winter. They cannot wait for snow or cold temperatures to arrive before taking appropriate measures. White-tailed deer cannot drop into Kmart for a winter coat during the first snowfall. Animals and plants must prepare well in advance.

One group of animals that shows a dramatic change from summer to winter are the small weasels, or ermines. Most people do not realize that Michigan sports three species that change their fur color from winter to summer. The three species are the short-tailed, long-tailed and least weasels. They are long thin predators seldom seen because they are small and hide very well.

In summer they are a brown color. Brown is a color that camouflages the weasel when seen against the dried brown leaves of the forest floor. However in winter, brown does not provide camouflage, so they shed the brown fur and grow white fur. This process occurs over a period of several days. The new white fur is thick and serves to insulate the weasel against cold temperatures.

Few animals change fur color as dramatically as the weasels. In fact, just one other animal in Michigan changes its fur color. Snowshoe hares, found in the Upper Peninsula and in the northern half of the Lower Peninsula, also change their fur color to white in winter. When spring arrives, they shed their white fur and grow fur that is mousy brown in color. Weasels in southern states with no snow do not change color.

Most people are aware of these changes in fur color for winter, but they may not be aware that some animals come in different colors. Different individuals of the same species can be a different color.

Many people now have black-colored squirrels in their yard. This is the gray squirrel, even though it is black. It just so happens that gray squirrels can be born either gray or black and will stay that color for the rest of their lives. In some cases the color options may give the animal a survival advantage, but I'm not aware of anything like that with the gray squirrel.

Ruffed grouse, a chicken-like bird of aspen forests, also show at least two color phases, gray and rufous. Each color has the same camouflage pattern to the feathers, except the base color is either gray or reddish. Both allow the bird to hide very well on the forest floor.

Studies have shown that the red-phase birds cannot survive long periods of cold temperatures. Gray birds are seen more frequently in the northern part of their range, while reddish birds are more common in the southern part of their range.

By the way, ruffed grouse are preparing for winter now by growing its own snowshoes. Narrow stout scales grow along the edge of each toe like a fringe. This fringe produces extra surface area for the bird to rest on when walking in the snow. The fringe functions in the same manner as the snowshoes worn by people. In spring the extra scales, or fringe, falls off because it's not needed in summer.

There are many things that animals and plants do to prepare for winter; these are just a few of the things you might discover if you watch wildlife closely.

The heck with Up North, catch fish around here

STAFF WRITER

Looking for a place close by to go fishing?

You don't have to go "Up North" – or any farther than a 40-minute drive – to find good spots.

In fact, long as the weather holds, you've got plenty of locations within about 45 minutes of, say, Plymouth Township.

Observer reader and five-year Plymouth Township resident David Russell, an Allen Park native, says he either goes "Up North" alone or takes his and wife Jill's two oldest daughters, 7 and 4. But the Russells wanted sites closer to home.

Jeff Braunscheidel, a fisheries biologist with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources office in Livonia, says the Russells are in luck. He says most people don't consider southeast Michigan a good fishing area, but "There's an excellent variety of fishing" to be had.

"You're not going to find a lot of rainbow trout, but there's just about everything else," he says.

There's even fall and spring salmon and steelhead trout runs in the Lower Huron River, from Flat Rock to the Belleville Dam, Braunscheidel says. The fall runs begin in early to mid-November.

Area fishing sites are as close to the Russells as the pond at Plymouth Township Park, or Newburgh Lake in neighboring Livonia, or Nankin Lake in Westland. Even Canton Township, Jill's hometown, has a kids' annual spring fishing derby.

Farther away are the various Metroparks: southwestern Oakland County, southeastern Livingston County, north-central Washtenaw County and south-central Wayne County. There's also the Detroit River, teeming with varieties of fish.

At any of these sites, those over age 16 need fishing licenses; state laws prevail.

Phil Koslan, veteran Plymouth Township parks employee says the one-acre man-made pond at Township Park – formerly McClumpha Park – is stocked with both large and smallmouth bass, bluegill and sunfish. It's open year-round.

Dock installed

"We just put in a fishing dock this spring," Koslan says. The catch-and-release fishing is "geared to smaller kids."

Newburgh Lake, which starts in Plymouth Township and was drained and dredged two years ago to remove pollutants, offers only "catch-and-release" shoreline-fishing, the DNR's Braunscheidel says, because the state has not yet approved its fish for consumption.

"It'll probably be a couple years before it gets really, really good" with the "multitude of species" Newburgh now has, he says.

"But you can go to fish there now and catch panfish and small bass, so it can be a fun day for kids," he adds.

Newburgh has about eight species, ranging from fathead minnows to channel catfish and northern pike. In between are bluegill, pumpkinseed fish, crappie, largemouth bass and walleye.

No eating yet

At Nankin Lake, the mix includes minnows, hybrid bluegill, largemouth bass, channel cat and northerns. Since it, too, is part of the Rouge River system, the fish there aren't for eating either, as yet.

If you want "keepers," go northwest to Kent Lake in Kensington Metropark in southwest Oakland County, says Braunscheidel. It's part of the Huron River system and the fish can be eaten.

Species include walleye and pike "and there's also excellent bass – large and smallmouth – as well as crappies and bluegills," he says.

It's nice for the small-boat owner, personal watercraft and water-skiing aren't allowed.

Some fishermen recommend wading the Huron River at Dexter in the Dexter-Huron Metropark northwest of Ann Arbor in Washtenaw County, but that might not be for young children.

Heading southeast, Braunscheidel recommends "parks around Ann Arbor, around the (Huron) river, a lot of city parks that can be fished."

Near the dam

He specifically likes the Geddes impoundment off U.S. Highway 23 near the Dixboro Dam for shorefishing. Ford Lake, southeast of Ypsilanti, is better for boaters.

Farther south and east is Crosswinds Marsh, the prize-winning southwestern Wayne County man-made preserve created when the expansion of Metro Airport took some wetland. The marsh has been open three years.

Darrin Bauer, a Wayne County naturalist who is also Crosswinds manager, says there are several fishing docks in the marsh and that fishermen are catching 17-19-inch largemouth bass, channel cat, "lots of carp and bluegill and sunfish," some bullheads and black crappie.

"It's slowly developing into a decent fishery," Bauer says. "We don't allow any ice-fishing, but there's hardly a time you don't find somebody fishing."

Portia Fields-Anderson, assistant parks superintendent for the Lower Huron and Willow Metroparks, says fishing is allowed anywhere along the river in the Lower Huron Metropark and in Washago Pond in the adjacent Willow Metropark. Washago also loans fishing poles and rents both paddleboats and rowboats for fishing.

Bob Wittersheim, supervising park interpreter, says panfish such as sunfish and bluegills and "a surprising number of good-size 2-3-pound bass, perch and crappie" are being caught in Washago.

But park people also "are excited about the potential for steelhead and rainbow trout and salmon runs" since a fish ladder was built four years ago at the Huron River dam farther downriver in Flat Rock.

Seek the treat

And don't let the tricks get you down

AL HARRISON

Halloween is upon us and it is time again for tricks and treats.

Trick: when you have an apparently great pocket hit and still leave the 7-10 split. How about a nice treat: That would be if you can convert that 7-10 split.

Trick: That is when you stick at the foul line and fall flat on your face or get over the line where you slip on the oil and fall flat on your back. Treat: That is whenever the approaches are nice and smooth, so you can make better shots all day long.

Trick: When the lane conditions do not match the ball you brought. The one you left at home would have worked better on this day. Treat: When you find a good line to the pocket and are getting good carry.

Trick: You miss a spare in the 10th frame and the other team wins by one pin. Treat: You triple in the 10th and your team wins by one pin.

Have a happy and safe Halloween, no tricks, all treats.

If you watched the Pro Bowlers Tour on ESPN last Tuesday you must have been impressed by the newcomer, Robert Smith. It was the Flagship Open at Erie, Pa., where Smith beat the great Walter Ray Williams in the championship match, 239-233. This is an exciting new star on the scene, and what a devastating ball!

Watching these pro players makes you more appreciative of what it takes to be a professional bowler. They can withstand the pressure, and there is plenty of that. Sometimes the one who gets the breaks is the one who cashes in big time. The next two Monday nights will feature some big tour stops on the Women's Pro Tour, with the PWBA Greater Harrisburg open on Monday. Our local lady pros such as Cheryl Daniels, Aleta Sill, Lisa Bishop and Novella White will be in the starting field. Watch for that 8 p.m. time slot on ESPN-TV.

By now all members of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association should have received in the mail, the new plastic sanction cards and the fall issue of the GDBA newsletter featuring a great article by yours truly. As an extra benefit to sanctioned bowlers, there are discounts available from several merchants including all ABC Warehouse stores on major appliances, TV, audio and camcorders at employee prices, Detroit Pistons tickets discounted from $28 to $20 for GDBA members, D.O.C. group vision plan, Eastown Printing with 25 percent off on wedding invitations, Sunshine Honda in Plymouth (save $100 on the purchase of a new or used Honda) and Tominello Chiropractic with a complimentary consultation and posture analysis for GDBA members (a $350 value). They are on 11 Mile Road in Royal Oak. These are all listed on page 2 of the news letter. Page 5 lists the participating pro shops that support a $20 discount on purchases of $150 or more in bowling equipment. If you did not receive a copy or are not in the GDBA, copies of the newsletter will be available soon at most area bowling centers on the counter. Take one, it's free.

Personal record score cards are being printed up and will be distributed over the next two weeks to all area bowling centers, courtesy of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. You can keep a written record of all games bowled in each league every season. Personally, I have kept this up myself for more than 40 years of league bowling with every game bowled in all leagues. Don't ask why, I just like to do it. Even if you are not a league bowler, you can keep track of your games in open bowling and be able to figure what your average would be if you were in a league. It is a good barometer for you to see how you are improving or going downhill, so to speak. They are free for the taking, and this is something we are doing again, just for you, our loyal readers.

Buck activity is picking up as rut approaches

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Some of the best deer hunting of the season – at least in my estimation – is about to unfold. Recent reports from across the state indicate that bucks are getting edgy.

The internal clock on a whitetail buck tells him when it's time to breed. When that clock begins to ring, bucks know what time it is and boy do they become active. Ask any veteran bow hunter when the most exciting time of the season is and they'll undoubtedly tell you that time is now.

The rut, or breeding period, for whitetail deer is about to begin. Nature dictates, mostly by the hours of daylight, when this period will take place.

In order to ensure that fawns have ample time to grow before winter and harsh conditions set in, nature dictates that fawns in Michigan will be born in May and early June. This gives them five solid months (June through October) to grow and develop before the howling winds of November arrive.

To ensure the fawns are born in May and early June, nature dictates when breeding occurs. In Michigan, breeding peaks in the month of November. Some hunters feel weather conditions trigger the rut, but they are mistaken.

The main element triggering the rut is dwindling hours of daylight. If weather dictated the rut, an early winter would mean fawns would be born in April and many would die of pneumonia because of the tendency for April to be a wet, cold, month. If we had a late winter, breeding wouldn't occur until December or later, in which case fawns wouldn't be dropped until say July and they wouldn't have enough time to grow, especially if we had an early winter the next year.

No, it's not the weather, but the hours of daylight that triggers a buck's hormones and tells him it's time to go searching for a doe. We're probably still a week or two away from that breeding season, but those hormones in a bucks are already beginning to influence his activity.

Want proof?

"Bucks are getting active. They're all over the place," said Jack Walsh, of Walsh Gun and Tackle in Caseville. "One guy got a nice big 8-point earlier this week."

"Bucks are chasing does all over the place up here. Things are starting to heat up," said Ron Bauer, of Clem's Live Bait and tackle in Alpena.

"Bucks are tending scrapes and chasing does," said Hank Wilford, of Hank's Sport Shop in Sault Ste. Marie. "One hunter took a 15-point up here a couple of days ago."

The next week or so is what veteran deer hunters refer to as the pre-rut stage, the period when bucks are ready and anxious to breed, but does are not yet receptive.

Now is the time to get out into the woods. Bucks are on the prowl throughout the day, checking for an estrus doe that is ready to breed. Their activity level is at the highest point of the year. Bucks are curious and aggressive right now and the use of calls, rattle horns and mock scrapes or deer scent will work better now than at any other time of the season.

If a buck smells the scent of another buck in his area he will become aggressive and protective, thrashing nearby saplings in an effort to deter a potential rival. The clash of antlers from rattle horns will drive bucks nuts as they storm in to see who has intruded, and is fighting on his turf. One or two low grunts from a deer call is sometimes all that is needed right now to turn a buck back in your direction that otherwise may be heading for the north 40.

Don't wait for "next weekend" to make that trip north or to get out to your favorite deer blind. Get out there now and enjoy the action. It won't get any better.

(Bill Parker writes a weekly outdoor column for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to: Outdoors, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009.)

SOCCER

N'ville sends Stevenson to sidelines, 1-0

The boys soccer season ended abruptly Thursday in the Division I district semifinals for Livonia Stevenson.

Senior midfielder Tim Kelleher one-timed a shot from 15 yards out midway through the opening half to give host Northville an upset 1-0 victory over the Western Lakes Activities Association co-champions.

Stevenson bows out with a 14-3-2 overall record, while Northville (10-5-3) advanced to Saturday's district final against top-ranked Birmingham Brother Rice (19-1).

"We made a miscue in the middle of our defense, the ball squibbed out to the keeper's left side and he (Kelleher) hit it well to the back post," Stevenson coach Lars Richters said. "Then we kind of panicked when we got a goal down and we kind of lost our composure, but that's kind of expected from a young team when the pressure is on."

Stevenson had chances to score the equalizer, but Northville senior goalkeeper Jon McClory (seven saves) kept the Spartans off the board.

On Oct 9, Stevenson beat Northville at home, 1-0.

"We knew Northville was going to play a tough game," Richters said. "Losing the last game is never easy, but a lot of what the guys accomplished during the season they can be proud of."

•GREENHILLS 1, LUTHERAN WESTLAND 0: Ann Arbor Greenhills (8-6-6) scored off of a free kick at the 1:30 mark and the Gryphons repelled No. 1-ranked Lutheran Westland (15-4-1) for the remainder of the match in posting an upset victory over the Warriors in a Division IV district final Friday at Westland Huron Valley Lutheran.

The game's only goal was scored by Greenhills' Hunter Patton on a header following a free kick from 30 yards out. Patton's deflection left no chance for a save.

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Swing to the brass and flash of the Big Band

Johnny Trudell is as big a supporter of Big Band music as when he began playing it more than 45 years ago. His fear is if the next generation isn't introduced to the swinging sounds of Stan Kenton, Woody Herman, Count Basie, Maynard Ferguson and Harry James the music won't survive.

That's why he and the other members of the Michigan Jazz Festival committee are planning a Salute to the Big Bands Sunday, Nov. 5, at Clarenceville High School in Livonia. The concert, featuring Trudell's 17-member band which includes five saxophones, four trombones, and four trumpets plus Trudell, celebrates the music of the bands who played the Clarenceville Jazz Series in the 1970s and '80s. Proceeds from the event go to support the Michigan Jazz Festival Sunday, July 15, at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. Trudell founded the festival with Emil Moro six years ago.

High note: Johnny Trudell leads a tribute to the Big Bands of Basie, Kenton, Herman, James, and Ferguson.

What: Salute to the Big Bands featuring Johnny Trudell's Big Band
When: 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 5
Where: Clarenceville High School Auditorium, 20155 Middlebelt, between Seven and Eight Mile, Livonia
Tickets: $15, proceeds go to support the Michigan Jazz Festival. Call (248) 474-2720 or (734) 459-2454

"They're all my favorites," said Trudell, a trumpeter who's played with Tommy Dorsey, Dizzy Gillespie and Sarah Vaughan. "I enjoyed all these Big Bands – Count Basie, Kenton. We'll play four to five tunes from each.

"We're trying to expose younger people to the music and what these bands sounded like. For older folks it's reminiscing. They loved that music. And it's to educate the younger generation. Otherwise, there won't be any audiences in the future."

Trudell doesn't have to worry about audiences just yet. He has enough work to keep him busy playing six nights a week for some time to come. In the last three months alone, Trudell's played in a Big Band festival at Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel, with Connie Francis at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts, Brian Wilson at Pine Knob, Don Rickles at Andiamo's in Warren, the Ford Detroit International Jazz Festival (formerly known at the Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival), the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's JazzStage series, and with the Matt Michaels Trio at Ron's Fireside Inn in Garden City.

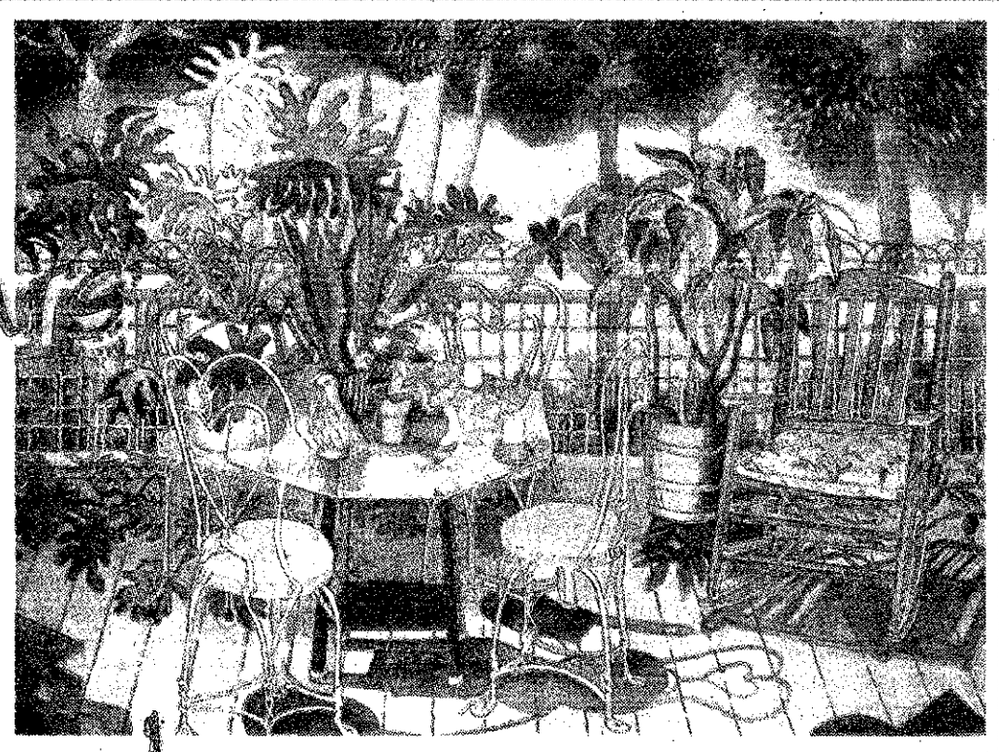

Big Band revival

Midge Ellis believes Trudell's active performing schedule signals a revival in Big Band music. She remembers bands like Harry James which stopped at Clarenceville twice a year as they criss-crossed the country playing new as well as old favorites.

Maynard Ferguson brought an all-English band the first time he played the Clarenceville series, sold it out

28 Years of Art and Imagination

Temple show offers wide range of works

It's not a gallery, but for three days every year the Birmingham Temple becomes one of the artiest spaces around.

This year the 28th annual invitational art show is no exception with one-stop shopping for clay, glass, fiber, drawing and painting, jewelry, photography, sculpture and wood by 108 artists from all around the Midwest Friday-Sunday, Nov. 3-5 at the temple in Farmington Hills.

Some of the highlights include 18 clay artists, glass by Deb Eliassen of Farmington Hills; glass and wrought iron sculptures of flowers by Andrew Madvin, Birmingham; contemporary silver jewelry by Matthew Gross, Berkley; African bead work by Dorothy Jett-Carter, Oak Park; vintage jewelry by Krista Moss, Milan, and sculpture by Mike Sohikian, an iron worker on the Ohio turnpike.

Show chairman Toby Kiritsis says among the artists not to be missed are Paul Adams and his drawings of old Detroit and its trolleys because "it's a trip down memory lane." Waterford artist Dan Carmichael's metal garden sculptures of large sunflowers, and West Bloomfield fiber artist Celia Block's silk painted jackets and scarves are sure to be show stoppers as well.

What: 28th annual Birmingham Temple Juried Art Show featuring 108 artists
When: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, Nov. 4-5. No charge.
Where: 28611 W. 12 Mile Road, Farmington Hills
Gala Opening: 7-10:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 3 with wine, hors d'ouevres, dessert, and music by pianist Sam Wedes. Tickets are $15, and available at the door. Call (248) 477-1410 for more information

Eight categories

Judges Nancy Jones, curator of education at the Detroit Institute of Arts; Linda Margolin, DIA associate curator of education, and Ann Kuffler of Ariana Gallery in Royal Oak will award blue ribbons for the best in each of the eight categories.

"It's an opportunity to showcase marvelous art most of which is by area artists," said Kiritsis, a Livonia resident. "The style of the temple lends itself to a gallery setting. It's an opportunity for people to come and enjoy our temple and the art. During the gala they'll have an opportunity to meet many of the artists and talk with them, to walk around and have some hors d'ouevres, wine and the first chance to purchase art."

Award-winning Canton artist Connie Lucas is excited about bringing more than a dozen still life and nature-theme works, including an etching of a cat, to Birmingham Temple. This is her second year in the show and she's loving every minute of it even though she's displayed art in more than 355 juried exhibitions statewide and nationally.

"It has everything – jewelry glass, ceramics," said Lucas. "It's a beautiful show. They even have clothing."

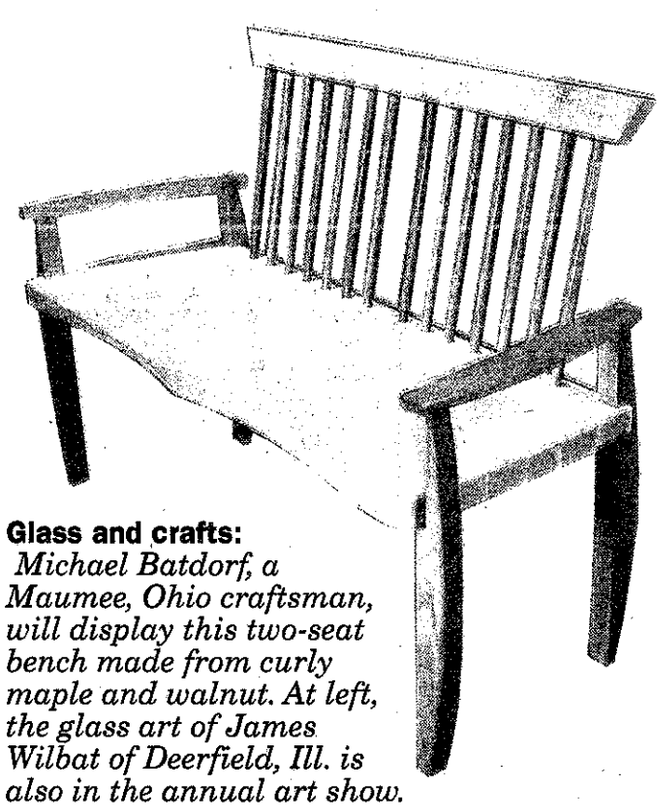

Barbara Demgen will display a dozen watercolor, oil and acrylic paintings, including her jungle animals, and a work she refers to as a "veggie study" which would be perfect for a kitchen.

This is the second time in the show for the Livonia artist who's been painting more than 30 years. Demgen recently won Best of Show for the Wayne County Council for Arts, History & Humanities Artists Among Us exhibit at the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

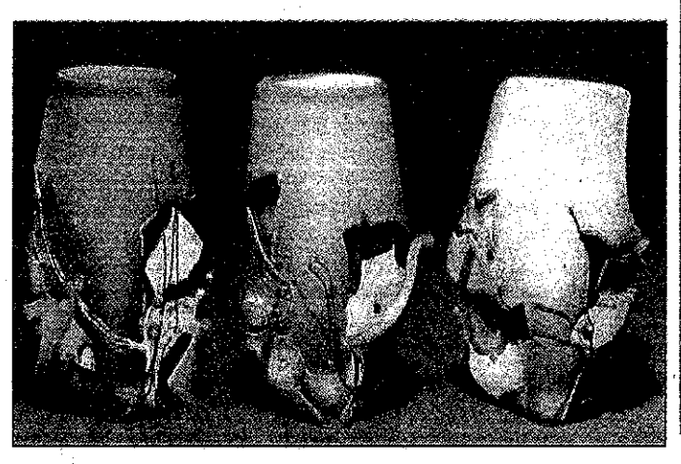

"It's nice to see all of the work up gallery style," said Demgen. "You're showing alongside someone on the next wall."

Over the years, Robin Motta has purchased paintings, jewelry and sculpture at the show. Like the rest of the show's committee members the Bloomfield Hills publicity person uses the event to do a little early Christmas shopping.

"It's set up in a gallery fashion," said Motta. "You can take time to stroll around and not get lost, and the prices are pretty reasonable."

Glass and crafts: Michael Batdorf, a Maumee, Ohio craftsman, will display this two-seat bench made from curly maple and walnut. At left, the glass art of James Wilbat of Deerfield, Ill. is also in the annual art show.

Artist draws on color, flowers for inspiration

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Dorothy Koliba loves color and flowers. Two years ago, she took a trip to Europe and returned with enough inspiration to paint dozens of works, many of which are in her one-woman show opening Wednesday, Nov. 1, at Wentworth Gallery in Livonia.

Using layers of watercolor, Koliba paints the deep values she so loves in a scene featuring a sidewalk cafe in Salzburg, Austria. Cityscapes, painted on location in Brunico, Italy, capture the quaint streets and buildings on long, summer days.

"I like Europe because there are flowers all over," said Koliba, a former resident of Livonia and Plymouth now living in Brighton. "I think people like flowers and color. The brighter the colors, the better because of the dreary Michigan winters. That's why I do love to paint gardens. In summer, I paint on location at the Milford Garden Walk."

What: Dorothy Koliba exhibits watercolor florals and landscapes.
When: Wednesday-Friday, Nov. 1-10. Receptions will be held 2-8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4 and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 5
Where: Wentworth Gallery in Laurel Park Place, 37648 Six Mile Road and Newburgh, Livonia. Call (734) 462-5840

Koliba's beginnings as an artist are somewhat unusual. Her first canvas was a wall she filled with Mickey Mouses for her six-month old daughter's bedroom. Oils came next and before long Koliba was driving to Flint once a week to take watercolor classes. Next came workshops with Nita Engle, Tom Lynch, Janet Walsh, Peggy Brown, Edee Joppich, and Donna Vogelheim.

Floral fantasy: Detail of Dorothy Koliba's watercolor of a girl in a garden.

Over the years, she's exhibited work at Livonia City Hall, Farmington Public Library, and the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair.

"Back in 1970, there weren't any watercolor classes in the area," said Koliba, "so for four years I drove to Flint because I love the media so much."

Koliba's love of the medium and her ability to produce vibrant colors with it are two of the reasons Denise Lafferty chose to exhibit the work. Lafferty discovered Koliba's paintings at the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair in July.

"She paints subject matter very appealing to our customers," said Lafferty, director of the Wentworth Gallery in Livonia. "A lot of people have been requesting we show local artists and her work has a relaxing, vacation feel to it. We're hoping to show about four local artists a year."

Orchestra goes all-American for opening concert

Volodymyr Shesiuk rushes into Churchill High School in Livonia without even a moment to spare to take off his jacket. The Livonia Symphony Orchestra conductor is running short of time.

The new season opens Saturday, Nov. 4, at Churchill High School and the rush is on to learn the music for the all-American program. The 28th season will offer audiences a medley of musical styles as well as guest artists.

At the top of Shesiuk's list is the return of Joshua Cullen, a young pianist the orchestra debuted at the age of 8. Cullen is now a student at the University of Michigan School of Music in Ann Arbor. He'll perform a Grieg concerto performed in Japan in September.

"I'm excited about Joshua Cullen but I'm also excited about the first concert –Americana with pianist Pauline Martin playing George Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue," said Shesiuk.

A Koch International Classics recording artist, Martin is a music professor at Wayne State University. In the last few seasons, the orchestra has spotlighted artists and music written by professors from WSU. At rehearsal on Monday night, the orchestra tackled James Lentini's Sinfonia Di Festa which embarks on its musical odyssey with powerful orchestration then fades to a lyrical string passage accented by bassoons and gradually builds to new musical expression.

"It's not the premiere but I like this music," said Shesiuk. "We wanted to bring something new or old with new feeling to the first concert. The new is the 1815 Overture by Christopher Tew."

What: The Livonia Symphony Orchestra opens its 28th season with an Americana program
When: 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4
Where: Churchill High School Auditorium, 8900 Newburgh, north of Joy Road, Livonia
Tickets: $15, $10 students/children, call (248) 645-6666 or (734) 425-4855

A former orchestra violinist now living in Tennessee, Tew opens the overture with an American folk song from around the time of the War of 1812. According to LSO board of directors President Bob Bennett, Tew weaves and overlays American music of the same period into the fabric.

"It's constructed like Tchaikovsky but written with American and English traditions or original material," said Shesiuk. "It's the same instrumentation but we can't use the cannons here, and flugelhorns substitute for cornets."

Arthur Miller honored for contributions to American theater

ANN DELISI

For those who might be missing out, this has been a week of celebration. It's a week to honor a group of contributors to the arts, who, in one way or another, have touched the lives of a majority of the people in Michigan.

Although this celebration has been taking place annually for the past 15 years, there was something and someone who made the Wednesday's Governor's Awards for Arts & Culture ceremonies unforgettable, and well, dramatic.

Receiving the International Achievement Award was playwright Arthur Miller, whose body of work includes some of the most gripping moments in the history of American theatre. If Death of a Salesman had been the only play he had written, that alone would have made Arthur Miller an institution. The impact that one work has had on our perceptions of family life and its ability to be so vibrant and relevant to modern audiences more than a half-century after it was written cannot be overstated.

I'm hesitant to provide a short list of his other plays for two reasons. Not only am I likely to leave out one of your favorites, but at the age of 85, Miller is still writing. Who knows what treasures remain?

On the next edition of Detroit Public TV's Backstage Pass, airing 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 29, the series presents a rare and revealing interview with Arthur Miller, whose local roots include his graduation from the University of Michigan in 1938.

Although he has returned to his alma mater a number of times since, and even chronicled the visits in his 1987 memoir, Timebends, this past week's activities and the Governor's Award were noteworthy for us all. In a formal, unified way, we had the opportunity to say "thanks."

Backstage Pass also acknowledges the other honorees at this week's ceremonies, who include civic leader Arthur L. Johnson, artist and businesswoman Gwen Frostic, Detroit Symphony Orchestra chairman Peter D. Cummings, poet Terry Blackhawk and others who encompass some of the state's brightest educators, artists, philanthropists and institutions.

Jazz bands unite for day of music

Music aficionados are invited to come together Sunday, Oct. 29, for a jazz doubleheader.

Eric Mannering's Imperial Jazz Band and Tom Saunders' Detroit All-Stars Band will perform at the Monaghan Knights of Columbus Hall in Livonia from 2-6 p.m.

Tickets for the local performance are $10 in advance or $13 at the door. Advance purchases can be made by calling Bill Knowles at (248) 476-2674. A light menu and cash bar will be featured.

Mannering, originally from England, began his musical journey at a young age by playing violin for his father. Over the years, he would expand his musical knowledge to include piano, trumpet, harmonica, drums, banjo and accordion.

His musical prowess allowed him to play with various dance orchestras, jazz bands and the village brass band of his native Rochdale.

One place he played was a club in nearby Liverpool run by Brian Epstein who also booked the rock group Quarrymen, soon to evolve into the Beatles. On the cabaret circuit, he also met Matt Monroe ("she walks like an angel walks") and Gerry Dorsey, who took the name Englebert Humperdinck.

Saunders, who regularly performed with the band Surfside Six at the former Presidential Inn in Southgate, is a world renowned cornetist. Musical performances have taken him throughout Europe as well as to Japan.

Native to southeast Michigan, Saunders for years has been involved with the Annual Jazz Festival in Decatur, Ill., each January. His continued participation and knowledge of the event led officials to appoint him director.

The Monaghan Knights of Columbus Hall is located at 19801 Farmington Road, between Seven and Eight Mile roads. The event is sponsored by The New Windsor/Detroit Jazz Club.

three nights in a row and was the most popular with young people.

"When he first came people would say Maynard who," said Ellis, a Livonia resident and member of the Michigan Jazz Festival committee. "By the end of the series, it was just Maynard. Nobody needed to know his last name."

One of the traditions even back then was to open the Clarenceville series with a high school jazz band. This year the young musicians are from Northville High School and under the direction of Mike Rumbell.

"I saw a revival in the '70s and '80s for the big bands and I think they're coming back again," said Ellis. "Every year when I attend the International Association of Jazz Educators convention in January, there's 7-8,000 educators and students interested in jazz. High schools everywhere have jazz bands now. In the Observer area nearly every high school has a band and now a lot of junior highs have them. This opens up a lot of hope that these young people will appreciate jazz in the future."

Curt Newman sure hopes so. He'll never forget the first time he heard the Stan Kenton Orchestra more than 40 years ago.

"A friend brought over a recording by the Stan Kenton band," said Newman, who serves on the board of directors for the Michigan Jazz Festival and has been playing tenor saxophone with Trudell for the last five years. "When I heard that I said, 'I got to play that music.' It was sort of like a dream come true when I played as a sub with Kenton at Clarenceville in the '70s."

That first recording of Kenton inspired Newman to found the Brookside Jazz Ensemble with Craig Strain in 1968.

"Between Johnny Trudell, the Brookside Jazz Ensemble, Austin Moro and Jimmy Wilkins, it's kept Big Band music alive," said Newman. "Johnny Trudell is Detroit's Doc Severinson. He's a phenomenal player and arranger, and one of my few heroes."

And we all know how much the world needs heroes. If Big Band music is to survive it needs more jazz lovers like Trudell, Ellis and Newman to keep the swinging sound alive.

Shesiuk about playing the work. A Brighton resident, Avery began playing second violin with the orchestra more than 25 years ago.

"We did part of the overture this summer," said Avery. "It gives violins a lot of playing to do."

Season opener

Mississippi Suite by Ferde Grofe, Star Trek Through the Years arranged by Custer, and Semper Fidelis by John Philip Sousa round out the program which opens with a Duke Ellington medley conducted by Carl Karoub, assistant conductor and one of the orchestra's French horn players.

"It's a great piece featuring Take the A Train and Satin Doll and calls for audience participation," said Karoub.

Reaching audiences is the idea behind programming a wider range of music for the season.

"We need to bring more pops to the community," said Shesiuk. "We saw last year a bigger audience when this music was played. It's a way to get people to come listen to classical and new music. I want each time to take orchestra to another level. I want to attack something new and make from this some art."

One of the most popular programs last season the orchestra isn't tinkering with is the Nutcracker Ballet with the Dearborn Ballet Theatre Saturday, Dec. 2.

"It was a sellout and we're bringing it back for a first time, two years in a row, due to popular demand," said Bennett.

After the holidays, the season continues to draw new audiences with theme concerts such as Passport to Scandinavia Saturday, Jan. 20 with Cullen playing Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor.

Building on success

Standing-room only for last year's sole chamber offering inspired the orchestra to double the pleasure by offering two concerts in the Livonia Civic Center Library this season. The first is a Valentine Bouquet Sunday, Feb. 11, and features solos by orchestra members Steve McKenzie on bass and violist Mircea Cure of Troy.

"I'm looking forward to playing as a soloist," said McKenzie, a Royal Oak resident who's performed with the Dearborn Symphony 30 years. "Bass and viola don't usually have solo parts so it's unusual. I think it will be sort of surprising for the audience. It's very melodical."

Bennett believes soloists such as McKenzie, Cure and Cullen will make for another successful season. Not to mention the two keyboardists on the Saturday, March 10, program – The French Connection. Madonna University professor David Wagner will return to perform Camille Saint Saens Organ Symphony No. 3 followed by pianist Laura Kargul, a Livonia native. Kargul frequently concertizes in the area and will be giving a recital at the Kerrytown Concert House in Ann Arbor Sunday, Nov. 5.

"I'm excited about the character of the music and the talent of our guest artists," said Bennett. "We're bringing the most interesting and diverse programming we've ever had. On the March program we'll have two grand pianos and an organ and we're going to turn it into a true orchestra hall."

An Evening with Antonin is next on the season schedule Saturday, April 21 with Dvorak's New World Symphony and a performance by cellist Natalia Khoma, a Michigan State University music professor. Spring Vignettes closes the season with a chamber offering of Bernstein, Haydn, Offenbach, Rachmaninoff, J.S. Bach and Andrew Lloyd Webber.

"The season offers a variety of different music that gives the audience a full spectrum of what the orchestra can do," said Jim Poe, a Farmington Hills bassoonist who joined the orchestra in 1991. "Since Volodymyr (now in his sixth season) took over he's given us more challenging music and a lot of background about the composers. We've taken on challenging works and are attracting better players as well."

Sounds like another successful season is in the works.

Film gives lesson in friendship

ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Beware the man in the van.

That's one lesson to be learned from A Room for Romeo Brass, the lopsided but often likable second film from Shane Meadows, the 28-year-old Englishman who made a thrilling debut as a writer-director two years ago with TwentyFourSeven.

Although set in the same region – the low-income communities in and around the central England city of Nottingham – Romeo Brass isn't in a comparable league. Indeed, there are times when you're tempted to dismiss this movie as a classic case of sophomore slump.

But that would be unfair to what does work, starting with Meadows' achievement with his two barely adolescent leads, Andrew Shim and Ben Marshall.

Shim plays the Romeo of the title – a heavyset 12-year-old who likes soccer and french fries, and filling, fattening breakfasts. He's less fond of his errant father, Joe (Frank Harper), who in turn elicits nothing but scorn from Romeo's mother, the tough-talking yet kindly Carol (Ladene Hall).

Happily for Romeo, he has a real soul mate in his next-door neighbor, Marshall's Gavin, a quiet boy with an impish laugh and a bad back that prompts local bullies in a nearby park to call him a cripple.

The ensuing fight introduces Morell (Paddy Considine), who turns out not to be the savior that he appears at first.

A decade or so older than the two boys, the van-driving Morell is a toothsome obsessive who fixates on Romeo's sister, Ladine (Vicky McClure), who sells jeans in a local shop.

It is early in his fairly preposterous courtship of Ladine that a prank played on Morell by the boys goes awry, and with it, the tone of the film.

Before long, the ostensibly kindly Morell is speaking of the kids as "evil," threatening a sexually uninterested Ladine and training Romeo to become a warrior – and to forsake the sweet-faced Gavin, Romeo's real friend.

Though the audience can sense Morell is trouble, the characters take considerably longer to come to that glaringly obvious realization. By the time Romeo's mother is urging her son to steer clear of this new friend, alarm bells will have long been ringing around the theater.

As written and somewhat overeagerly acted, Morell is an authorial conceit – the smiling psycho – that just doesn't work, however possible such people may be in life.

Whereas TwentyFourSeven made shockingly clear a climate in which violence can suddenly flare up, forever altering the working-class landscape that is Meadows' terrain, Morell's actions seem superimposed, and Considine's goofily menacing turn does not make them any more real.

The defining rapport between the boys is where the movie really scores, even if the actual ending begs more questions than it answers.

Nor do the boys exist in isolation: Meadows and co-writer Paul Fraser deftly sketch in the two households that have brought Gavin and Romeo together.

An entire family history, for instance, is lightly told in a beautifully played scene that finds Gavin's mother, Sandra (a radiant Julia Ford), discovering her son's stash of pornography – only to learn that the offending magazines in fact belong to her husband.

Next door, the dysfunctionality is rather more blatant. While the return of Romeo's dad elicits screaming matches, Romeo and his mom have a clearly fiery but tender relationship – even if he does eat most of the fries mom has sent him out to buy. (Meadows, the director, appears briefly as an employee at the fish-and-chip shop with a sympathetic eye for a bargain.)

Perhaps the single best sequence occurs during the opening credits, in a series of vignettes that neatly capture the boys' teasing yet very real bond.

That may explain why it seems mostly a red herring when Bob Hoskins – who starred in TwentyFourSeven – appears out of the blue midway through the film as a bedside tutor to the would-be magician Gavin.

Hoskins' presence, however starry, is fairly superfluous. Whatever problems the film possesses as far as plot, its two youthful leads give A Room for Romeo Brass more than its share of magic.

SCREEN SCENE

Arthur Miller honored for his contributions to American theater

ANN DELISI

For those who might be missing out, this has been a week of celebration. It's a week to honor a group of contributors to the arts, who, in one way or another, have touched the lives of a majority of the people in Michigan.

Although this celebration has been taking place annually for the past 15 years, there was something and someone who made the Wednesday's Governor's Awards for Arts & Culture ceremonies unforgettable, and well, dramatic.

Receiving the International Achievement Award was playwright Arthur Miller, whose body of work includes some of the most gripping moments in the history of American theatre. If Death of a Salesman had been the only play he had written, that alone would have made Arthur Miller an institution. The impact that one work has had on our perceptions of family life and its ability to be so vibrant and relevant to modern audiences more than a half-century after it was written cannot be overstated.

I'm hesitant to provide a short list of his other plays for two reasons. Not only am I likely to leave out one of your favorites, but at the age of 85, Miller is still writing. Who knows what treasures remain?

On the next edition of Detroit Public TV's Backstage Pass, airing 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 29, the series presents a rare and revealing interview with Arthur Miller, whose local roots include his graduation from the University of Michigan in 1938.

Although he has returned to his alma mater a number of times since, and even chronicled the visits in his 1987 memoir, Timebends, this past week's activities and the Governor's Award were noteworthy for us all. In a formal, unified way, we had the opportunity to say "thanks."

Backstage Pass also acknowledges the other honorees at this week's ceremonies, who include civic leader Arthur L. Johnson, artist and businesswoman Gwen Frostic, Detroit Symphony Orchestra chairman Peter D. Cummings, poet Terry Blackhawk and others who encompass some of the state's brightest educators, artists, philanthropists and institutions.

three nights in a row and was the most popular with young people.

"When he first came people would say Maynard who," said Ellis, a Livonia resident and member of the Michigan Jazz Festival committee. "By the end of the series, it was just Maynard. Nobody needed to know his last name."

One of the traditions even back then was to open the Clarenceville series with a high school jazz band. This year the young musicians are from Northville High School and under the direction of Mike Rumbell.

"I saw a revival in the '70s and '80s for the big bands and I think they're coming back again," said Ellis. "Every year when I attend the International Association of Jazz Educators convention in January, there's 7-8,000 educators and students interested in jazz. High schools everywhere have jazz bands now. In the Observer area nearly every high school has a band and now a lot of junior highs have them. This opens up a lot of hope that these young people will appreciate jazz in the future."

Curt Newman sure hopes so. He'll never forget the first time he heard the Stan Kenton Orchestra more than 40 years ago.

"A friend brought over a recording by the Stan Kenton band," said Newman, who serves on the board of directors for the Michigan Jazz Festival and has been playing tenor saxophone with Trudell for the last five years. "When I heard that I said, 'I got to play that music.' It was sort of like a dream come true when I played as a sub with Kenton at Clarenceville in the '70s."

That first recording of Kenton inspired Newman to found the Brookside Jazz Ensemble with Craig Strain in 1968.

"Between Johnny Trudell, the Brookside Jazz Ensemble, Austin Moro and Jimmy Wilkins, it's kept Big Band music alive," said Newman. "Johnny Trudell is Detroit's Doc Severinson. He's a phenomenal player and arranger, and one of my few heroes."

And we all know how much the world needs heroes. If Big Band music is to survive it needs more jazz lovers like Trudell, Ellis and Newman to keep the swinging sound alive.

FINAL DAYS

Monte Nagler continues his annual Fall Photographic Exhibition through Tuesday, Oct. 31 at Barnes & Noble, 6800 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield.

A student of the late Ansel Adams, Nagler specializes in moody, atmospheric landscapes he photographs while traveling around the world.

"This will not only be a chance to see some of my original works, but works of artists that the public may never have a chance to see in person," said Nagler. "This will be my largest exhibition this year."

JAZZ CONCERT

Tom Saunders' Detroit All-Stars Band and Eric Mannering's Imperial Jazz Band will perform 2-6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 29 at the Monaghan Knights of Columbus Hall, 19801 Farmington Road, Livonia.

Tickets are $10 advance, $13 at the door, and available by calling Bill Knowles at (248) 476-2674.

ART OPENING

Michael Derbyshire, a Grosse Pointe Woods watercolorist, will exhibit his recent works Nov. 3-22 at the Plymouth Community Arts Council, 774 N. Sheldon at Junction.

An opening reception will give the public an opportunity to meet the artist 7-9 p.m. Friday, Nov. 3. For more information, call (734) 416-4278.

The Land, Sea & Sky exhibit features Derbyshire's favorite subject matter. Lifelong experiences on the water prompt the artist to paint scenes with a "from the water" point of view. In addition, the paintings often feature homes, farms, workshops, docks and boats of the lobstering and fishing communities.

Derbyshire has had one man shows in the Fox Art Gallery at the Livonia Civic Center Library and the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. He's also displayed his work at the Scarab Club and Detroit Artists Market, and the Our Town exhibit at The Community House in Birmingham. An award-winning artist, Derbyshire took first and second place for his watercolors at the Michigan State Fair in September.

LACE EXHIBIT

The Great Lakes Lace Group is sponsoring a display of fine lace, including handmade tatting, bobbin and crocheted, through November at the Livonia Carl Sandburg Library on Seven Mile, west of Middlebelt Road.

The annual Love of Lace event will be held 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18 and features displays, demonstrations and vendors of lace making supplies. There is no admission charge. For more information about the Great Lakes Lace Group's meetings and activities, call (734) 421-0519 or send e-mail to TMJULIEN@aol.com.

ARTS & CRAFTS SHOW

The 10th annual Holiday Arts & Crafts Show invites the public to come and look, browse and shop for the holidays 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18 at North Farmington High School, 32900 West 13 Mile.

Admission is $2, $1 seniors/students with all proceeds benefiting students in the instrumental music program at the high school. No strollers please.

More than 100 artists and crafters from around the state will exhibit their wares.

YOUTH ORCHESTRA CONCERT

The Detroit Symphony Civic Sinfonia, a training orchestra for students, presents its first concert of the 2000-2001 season 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 5 at Orchestra Hall in Detroit. The program is free.

Civic Orchestra music director Charles Burke, a Canton resident, will lead the young musicians in a challenging program of dance music from a variety of works including selections from Copland's Rodeo, the Triumphal March and Ballet from Verdi's Aida, and The Lord of the Dance by Ronan Hardiman.

A division of the Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra, the Civic Sinfonia is composed of 65 students in grades five to 11 from 50 different metro Detroit schools. The orchestra was created last year as a way to accommodate the growing number of students who were eager to be part of the DSO programs.

For more information about the Civic Sinfonia and all of the DSO's educational programs, visit the Web site at www.detroitsymphony.com.

One of the most exciting educational programs is continuing with improvisational workshops for members of the Detroit Symphony Civic Jazz Orchestra, one of the DSO's three youth ensembles.

Led by three Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra members, the programs are open to all jazz students and teachers 6-8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 31 and Tuesday, Nov. 7 at Orchestra Hall. There is no charge for the workshops which are open to the public.

Workshops include techniques for specific instruments based on the instructor's expertise. The Oct. 31 session will focus on trombone, the Nov. 7 workshop on clarinet and saxophone.

Look for all things beaded

CARI WALDMAN

A few years ago, you may never have thought of showcasing your grandma's beaded lamp on a side table.

But you may want to reconsider.

Back in vogue, beaded accessories for the home are making a rich revival.

Tom Ford of Gucci was one of the first fashion designers to bring the brilliance of beading to the runway early last year.

Following the hot trend, home designers are taking the gleaming hint and spicing up their lines with beaded things for the home.

"People are leaning towards luxurious and embellished accessories," says Barbi Krass, interior designer and owner of Colorworks Uncommon in Farmington Hills. Talking about a line of Victorian beaded and crystal candlesticks made of antique lamp parts that are available in her shop, Krass adds, "the blown glass base on each candlestick is like a huge bead, each one uniquely different.

"More than ever people have a greater appreciation for interesting pieces in their homes and they are looking for beautiful effects, many with colorful beads."

Besides candle sticks, beads are making an appearance on such home items as pillows for the living room, lamps perfect for the bedroom, napkin rings for the table top, and finger towels for the powder room.

Shoe designer Chat Room has taken the trend for beaded home accessories one step further, literally. Their easy slip-on shoes embellished with embroidery and beading are great to wear around the home and office, or when entertaining.

From casual to "glitzy," Chat Room shoes, which can be found at Jacobson's stores, are made from velvet, organza and stretch satin.

Beaded home pieces run the gambit in price. In other words, you can either splurge — opt for the home sections at Saks Fifth Avenue and Neiman Marcus — or grab a real deal from stores like Pier One or Home Goods.

At the same time, keep in mind specialty bead retailers like Bead Works in Franklin and Beada Beada in Royal Oak have large selections of unique beads that could easily turn existing lamp shades or silk couch pillows into something uniquely beaded.

With a hot glue gun and a creative eye, grandma's tired lamp will be stylish in no time.

Touch, test and take it all in

Shoppers get the edge at beauty boutiques

BY JULIE YOLLES
SPECIAL WRITER

There are three endearing words that women around the world yearn to hear: Clinique Bonus Time.

That sacred ritual of beauty-product diehards is akin to utopia.

Bonus time in the beauty industry is a sales booster technique that most major lines use, including Clinique, Lancome and Estee Lauder.

For every set amount spent on products, you take home a free makeup pouch (to add to the hundreds of other ones you have) and a selection of free cosmetics — often in colors that you'd never be caught out in public wearing.

But they're free, just the same.

A true makeup junkie camps out at her mailbox, anxiously awaiting her In Style magazine, the bible of cosmetic trends and launches. She savors every page, with highlighter in hand, and plots her next purchase. Armed with a shopping list, she sets out on her latest expedition, only to be stopped by endless lines, rushed service and, often times, less-than-knowledgeable sales personnel brought in just to work the crowds.

Worst of all, your latest and greatest beauty find is under lock and key in the dreaded glass showcase barrier.

Enter cosmetics boutiques.

They're eye candy heaven, a place to indulge your senses, touch and experiment with products, and be pampered by objective experts.

In 1998, the second-largest beauty retailer in Europe entered the United States mass market with its first store in trendy Soho. By the end of this year, Sephora will have 68 stores across the country, including four in Michigan. Among them, locations at the Somerset Collection in Troy, Lakeside Mall in Sterling Heights and Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi.

Described as "elegantly funky," Sephora defies the closed display-case strategy employed by major department stores by arranging cosmetics, fragrances and other products alphabetically and by specific category. Product displays are also completely accessible to customers.

That's only the beginning of the beauty boutique trend. Birmingham has been home to independent beauty boutiques Todd's Room and Lori Karbal for several years. And, now, West Bloomfield has its own independent version, Ruby's Balm in the Boardwalk shopping center.

"With my store, I wanted people to be able to smell it, touch it and know the price of everything," said Sheryl Freedland, Ruby's Balm owner.

Named for her and husband Seth Korelitz's 5-year-old daughter Hannah Ruby, the boutique is packed with high-end grooming products for kids and adults, hair and gift accessories, and six make-up lines (Paula Dorf, Philosophy, Three-Custom Color, Bloom, T. LeClerc and English Ideas).

The boutique is a delicious experience in sensory overload geared towards discerning customers who want to sample the latest and coolest makeup colors, perfumes and skin care and bath products.

"Instead of taking me to a dermatologist when I was a child, my mom would take me for facials," said Freedland, a Huntington Woods resident. "We have an incredible belief that things can be bought in a bottle."

As a student at Barnard College in New York, Freedland would spend hours browsing apothecary shops. Eventually, she found her way to the Aveda Concept Salon in Boston where she worked as the manager for three years.

"For me, it's always been about skin care. I was a closet skin care junkie. Now (with the opening of Ruby's Balm), I'm out of the closet and I can talk about it openly," Freedland jokes. "I don't have to be ashamed anymore."

And she's not ashamed of her countless buying trips to trade shows and New York. Her favorite pastime in the Big Apple is obsessing about the make-up counters at Henri Bendel, Barney's and Bergdorf Goodman.

The self-proclaimed "sucker for packaging" does whatever it takes to ensure that her new store is filled with the most up-to-date, top-of-the-line beauty goodies, of which many are all-natural or hand-mixed.

In addition, Ruby's Balm will serve as a destination spot for special gift purchases, including Bed Head cotton pajamas, make-up kits, Mike & Ally hand-enameled soap dishes and aromatherapy candles. There's even a Mother-to-Be line ready to debut its "Itchy Belly Cream" in January.

To assist customers and enhance their experience, Freedland will always have makeup artists on staff to do free applications and help select products from different lines.

"The difference between us and a department store is that if you go to 'Mary' at the department store, she can only sell you products from the line she represents, which might not be right for you," said makeup artist and stylist Todd Skog of Todd's Room in Birmingham. "We can jump around (among different brands) to make sure you get products that work."

Formerly a makeup artist at Blu Salon and later Lori Karbal in Birmingham, Skog opened his own cosmetics and skin care boutique four years ago in a 900-square-foot space on West Maple in Birmingham. Todd's Room is now located around the corner in a space three times the size.

"We wanted to have more hard-to-find items, more boutique lines. We wanted to be different," said Skog, who, along with four full-time makeup artists performs applications and eyebrow arching and gives lessons. Two months ago, Skog brought in a facialist to add to the repertoire of personalized service offered at his boutique. In the spring, he plans to introduce his own cosmetics line called Room.

"(The growth of beauty boutiques) is healthy competition. It pushes you to offer better service," said Skog. "But the client who shops at Sephora is not our client. Here, you establish a relationship with your artist. You know what your client likes, and we provide the knowledge behind it. That's the difference."

Lori Karbal of Lori Karbal in Birmingham couldn't agree more. For eight years, her intimate cosmetics and skin care boutique has been nestled in art gallery row on North Old Woodward.

Subscribing to the Cheers credo, everybody knows your name, Karbal's shop is a favorite hangout for those in search of glamour, gifts and gab.

"I always loved cosmetics as a child," Karbal said. "My dad owned National Wholesale Drugs and I used to go to his big warehouse, pull out boxes and take makeup. I was like a kid in a candy store," says Karbal.

Voted "One of the Top Beauty Boutiques" in the nation by Self magazine in 1998, Lori Karbal staffs a full-time makeup artist, manicurist and massage therapist.

On the pulse of grooming trends, Karbal has brought in products aimed at kids and teens.

Last month, Karbal brought in Anthony Logistics for Men, the world's largest line of men's skin, bath and body care products.

Anthony Logistics for Men is the brain child of former Bloomfield Hills resident Anthony Sosnick. The line includes 26 products in all plus four special grooming kits for shaving, the face, body and hair.

Looks like beauty booty is here to stay.

BOOKS

Detroit Revisited

Local author and photographers offer a nostalgic glimpse at city's past

BY ALICE RHEIN
STAFF WRITER
arhein@oe.homecomm.net

For those who've endured the collegiate rite of passage known as the master's thesis, it typically signals an end.

A passing grade, a degree bestowed, and the paper that's drawn blood and sweat for the better part of a semester or longer is tossed into the bottom desk drawer. That is, if it's picked up from the professor's office at all.

That wasn't the case with Mary Desjarlais. After receiving a master's degree in history from Wayne State University, the Ferndale resident realized she had the springboard for what could be a very interesting book about the history of Detroit.

And since Desjarlais's background also included an art history degree from the University of Michigan, Dearborn and master's level pursuits at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, she envisioned her work as prelude to a fine arts photography book.

"I knew the 'Detroit 300' celebration was coming up, and I thought there might be an interest in a fine arts, historical book about the city," she said.

She brought up the idea to longtime friend Gene Meadows, an architectural photographer whose 1998 solo exhibition at Cranbrook Art Museum received critical acclaim.

And as the two talked, the book began to take shape.

Though Meadows had a modest collection of Detroit photographs, what the two decided they needed were historical images – ones that could show the progression of the city during the 20th century when, as Desjarlais wrote, "Detroit found itself transforming from a small diversified city to one of the top five largest cities in the country and perhaps the most important in the world for the twentieth century."

Enter Bill Rauhauser, a professor of photography at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit who has photographed Detroit for more than 50 years.

"I always had it in my mind to make a book, but I never pursued it," said the Southfield resident. "When Mary and Gene, who was a student of mine at CCS, came to me about the idea, it sounded like something I wanted to do."

Rauhauser was also able to complete the last piece of the puzzle, which was to find photos from turn-of-the-century Detroit. Years earlier, Jean Shilson-Wyatt, the granddaughter of John Baldwin Thomas, a photographer in the late 1800s and early 1900s, gave Rauhauser a collection of her grandfather's negatives and photographs.

It was these photos that laid the foundation for the photographic journey that is Detroit Revisited, which is being independently published this month.

"I said I'd never get into business with friends," joked Meadows, while sipping coffee one morning in his comfortably decorated home in Royal Oak.

"Yet it's been a gift to me to be involved in this book. I lost my roots in Detroit when my father's generation moved to the suburbs. I think the book can bring a younger generation to its roots."

Detroit Revisited opens with Desjarlais's historical account, which reads more like a lively biography of a city than a footnote-laden master's thesis.

She defines the conditions that made Detroit ripe for growth in the 20th century, and challenges some myths about the reason for its downfall in the latter half of the century.

But, Desjarlais said when it comes to the book, it's not really a historical document of Detroit so much as a fine arts book.

"It'll appeal to people who have a soft spot, a romance for the city they grew up with and can't let go. Most of these photos are unpublished, so it's also an excellent document for historians," she said.

And those interested in fine arts, and particularly photography, will find that Thomas, Rauhauser and Meadows capture Detroit's personality in three very different ways.

Thomas's photographs, which span the 1890s-1920s capture the streets of a bustling city: Men in suits and hats, women in long dresses, streets paved with track lines and construction of new buildings everywhere.

Rauhauser described his own approach as that of a "flaneur," a passionate spectator roaming the city streets with camera in hand.

"My photographs celebrate the citizens of Detroit, past and present, who played, and continue to play a role in advancing the automobile culture," wrote Rauhauser in the book's artist's statement.

Indeed, his photographs give viewers an honest "day in the life" scene of the city and its people.

Many, including Rauhauser, have argued Detroit was the "city that changed the world." After all, mass production paved the way for mass marketing and mass consumption.

And while his works take a documentary approach, his student, Meadows, finds the artistic beauty in Detroit's architecture.

"I choose my images based on their graphic quality and my desire to preserve architectural memories," wrote Meadows in his artist's statement.

Though Meadows admits being intrigued with Detroit's grittiness since he was a child growing up on Eileen Street at 7 Mile Road, his photographs capture a more sleek and hopeful city.

Taken together, the three photographers' images paint a portrait of a beautiful city that, over the years, has been burned and beaten, yet still maintains a strong and powerful heritage.

"What the city was," wrote Desjarlais, "Will never be again. But the purging and melting of Detroit has brought the city to a new century of opportunity."

Detroit Revisited captures both the hardships and triumphs that made Detroit not only the Motor City, but also the city of the 20th century.

Detroit Revisited is available pre-order by calling (248) 357-0364

Cost is $39.99 + $4.95 shipping or $129.99 + shipping for the deluxe edition which includes an 8" x 10" black and white photograph signed by either Gene Meadows or Bill Rauhauser.

Ghost buster: This cat ain't afraid of no ghosts among the pumpkins.

Scary reading, anyone?

BY RON BERTHEL
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Hunting for a haunted habitat this Halloween? There's a new book that can help you plan your eerie itinerary.

The International Directory of Haunted Places (Penguin, 275 pages, $16 paperback) by Dennis William Hauck is a guide to more than 700 haunted houses, sacred sites and other supernatural locations around the world.

Haunted places include Panama's Fort Clayton, where a soldier's ghost roams the clinic and even has been seen riding the local bus; Newby Church in Yorkshire, England, where a shadowy, hooded figure turns up in photographs; and suburban Tokyo's Hachioji Castle, which, since a bloody attack there in 1590, has been haunted by the sounds of screaming and the thud of fleeing bodies landing on the rocks below.

Thirty photos accompany the text. The book provides, when available, phone numbers and Internet addresses.

Among other terrifying tomes:

The Pagan Book of Halloween (Penguin, 189 pages, $11 paperback) by Gerina Dunwich (Horror writer H.P. Lovecraft would've loved that last name).

This guide to Halloween "magick," incantations, spells and lore is by a Wiccan high priestess who has been a practicing witch for more than 25 years. Dunwich provides a history of Halloween, describes Wiccan practices of working positive "magick" for healing and harmony, and offers recipes for seasonal dishes including cider, corn pudding and pumpkin muffins.

The Field Guide to Ghosts and Other Apparitions (Quill, 166 pages, $13 paperback) by Hilary Evans and Patrick Huyghe.

Firsthand accounts of ghost sightings in various cultures throughout the world are chronicled, along with illustrator Harry Trumbore's renderings showing the great variety of ghosts reported. Among the spirits linked to famous folks: Vice President Walter Mondale's daughter Eleanor claims a ghost visited her in his home one night; in Havana, what is thought to be Ernest Hemingway's ghost haunts workers at his former estate; and a ghost named Ataulfo has taken up residence in Madrid's Reina Sofia art museum, home of Picasso's "Guernica."

Spellcasters: Witches & Witchcraft in History, Folklore and Popular Culture (Taylor, 264 pages, $24.95) by Pauline Bartel.

The familiar image of the witch – an old woman in black, stirring a cauldron of some mysterious steamy brew and with a black cat at her side – dates back more than 3,000 years. This book examines the origins of witchcraft and its place in society today. Bartel discusses witchcraft's reaction to the spread of Christianity and its role in folklore and fairy tales, historic witch hunts, how witchcraft is viewed in various cultures, and the portrayal of witches in films and television.

TRAVEL

Southeast Asia

A potpourri of cultures, cuisine

BY NORMA AND WENDY SCHONWETTER
SPECIAL WRITERS

From bustling cities like Hong Kong, Singapore and Bangkok to the resorts and lushness of Bali, you can glimpse the colors, sounds, smells and life of Southeast Asia. These fascinating cities, in four different countries, are featured bargains from several tour companies.

Chinese cooking dominates the foodscape in Hong Kong and Singapore. Although Cantonese-style food is quite popular, for those with a hankering for more zippy fare there is a good selection of Shanghai, Beijing, Szechwan and Hunan. Both countries offer other ethnic food, including Thai, Indian, Malay, Indonesian and Vietnamese.

Cuisine in Bali is strongly Indonesian, although other ethnic food is available.

Thai food tends to be quite spicy although it can be ordered to suit your taste. Seasonings include Chinese food ingredients with unique spicing combinations that include: chili, lemon, grass, basil, mint, garlic, curry paste, coconut milk and peanuts.

Transportation systems are good, with mass transit (MTR) and buses in all the cities except Bali, where the roads are more primitive and travel by the locals is mainly via motorcycle. Visitors use taxis.

Hong Kong

Access to Hong Kong Island from Kowloon or vise versa is via Star Ferry or MRT. The spectacular and inexpensive ferry ride offers a view of the skyline, cluttered with construction cranes; vast, showy skyscrapers and sampans. Hong Kong Park contains the Flagstaff House Museum of Tea Ware, which is accessible from the MRT. Hong Kong's oldest colonial structure, it is beautifully landscaped and houses an unusual collection of teapots and the history of tea making.

From designer boutiques and department stores to sidewalk sales, there's shopping for everyone. The Temple Street Night Market comes alive after sunset, offering inexpensive items, watches, cameras, luggage and electronic gadgets. For bargains, check out the Jade Market (from 10 a.m.) and Stanley Market. The latter contains an assortment of stalls with good buys on designer overruns, T-shirts, silk, Chinese crafts and products that make great gift items. For a fun souvenir, get a wooden "chop," your own personal seal, with your name carved in both Chinese characters and English.

Bali

Bali is a small, romantic, tropical island with beautiful beaches, terraced rice paddies, lush green hills and a volcanic mountain. Its economy is mainly based on tourism. You can easily travel around the island with a driver/guide, although sightseeing is limited since it is basically a resort. Folklore is brought to life in a form of ballet by colorfully clad Barong dancers.

Other sites of interest - the Monkey Forest has 500 free-roaming, friendly Macaques monkeys and giant bats (flying foxes.) A tour of Kintamani Volcano offers a spectacular view of Lake Batur (a crater lake) and a chance to visit the Elephant Cave, a hermitage from the 11th century.

Singapore

Climb to the highest point in the city, Mt. Faber, by cable car, for spectacular panoramas of Singapore and the island of Sentosa, a beach resort with a tropical oceanarium and beautiful fountains. The late afternoon or early evening tours are best to view the fountains' colorful displays of lights and lasers dancing to music.

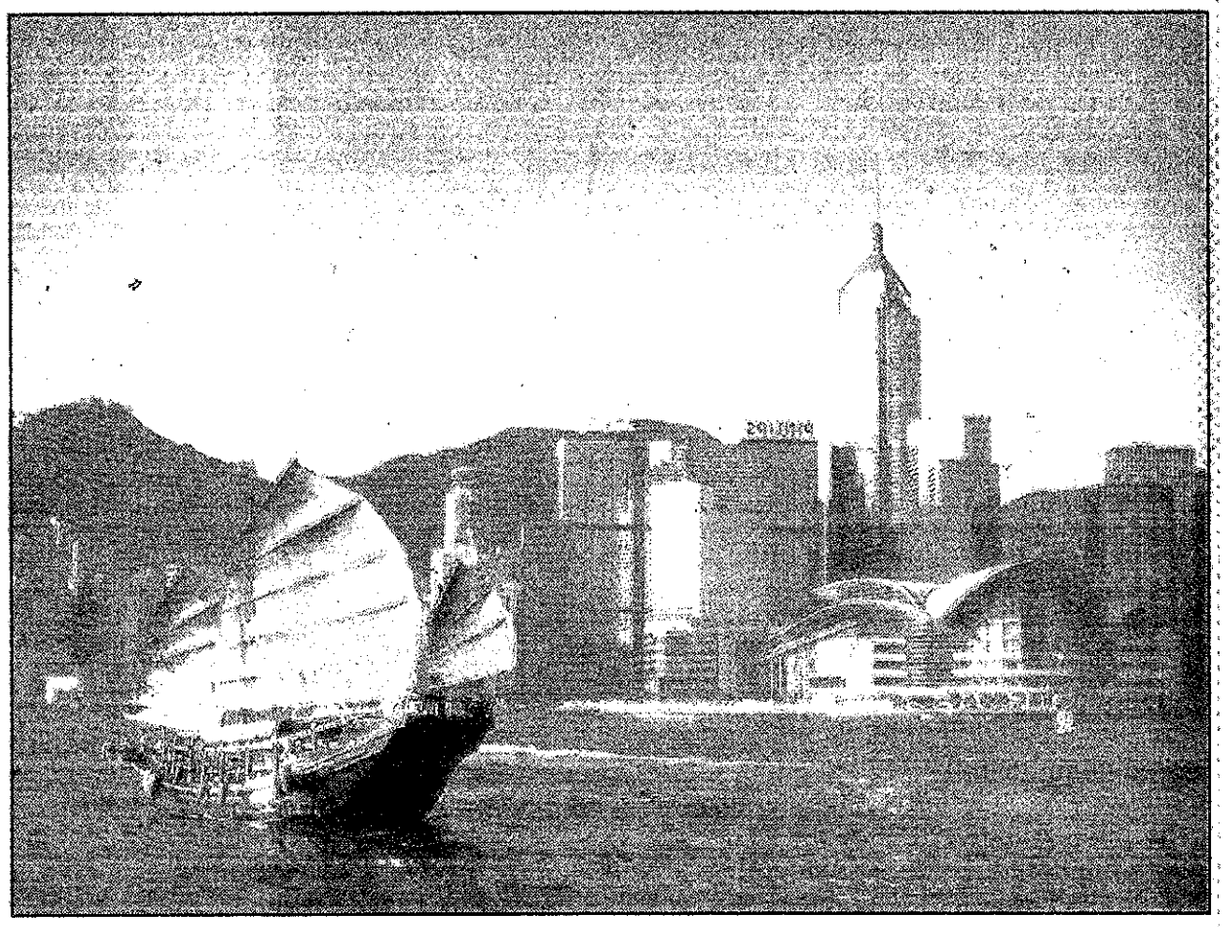

Night Safari is a unique zoo that is open from 7:30 p.m. to midnight to view jungle animals, mostly nocturnal. There is a 45-minute tram ride that takes you excitingly close with a guide pointing out sightings of animals. For an even closer view, take a walk on the nature trails through the tropical rainforest.

Bangkok

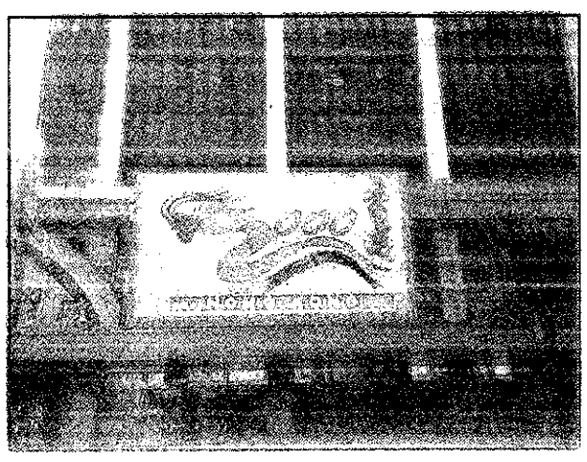

Bangkok, capital of Thailand since 1782, is called the "Land of the Smiles" because the people are very friendly and tolerant.

There are a multitude of ways to get around town such as a tuk-tuk. A three-wheeled taxi that holds two to three people, it's fun on a short ride, but tends to be noisy and is open to traffic fumes. Be sure to agree on the price first, no tipping. Less than a year old, the Skytrain is an excellent way to get around. Taxis are air conditioned and plentiful except at rush hours and Fridays. Be sure to use a legal taxi with a meter. Another transportation system that is quick and wonderfully tranquil is a river taxi on the Chao Praya River.

For the best shopping and best prices without the pressure of crowds, heat and humidity, go to Gaysorn Plaza and Naraya Prand (some bargaining is possible.) These shopping centers are air-conditioned and have everything you can find at either the Pat Pong Night Market, which begins at 6 p.m., or the Floating Market (bargain well here.) The Thailand Arts and Crafts Museum on the second and third floors of the Gaysorn Plaza have a huge selection of items to bring back as gifts. It is located across from the World Trade Center near the Skytrain. Best buys are silk and silk items; jewelry; baskets; pottery; teak chopsticks and Benjarong, exquisitely decorated porcelain.

Up in lights: A neon sign in Hong Kong proclaims 2000 as the "Year of the Dragon."

FOCUS ON WINE

RAY & ELEANOR HEALD

It's a good time to sample wines from Sonoma

It's a great time to be a wine lover! In great measure, it's due to the excellent wines produced in California. Certainly, there are spectacular wines from France, Italy and other countries. But nowhere outside California can one find wines of such uniform excellence at affordable prices.

Sonoma County, Calif., with its emphasis on agriculture and cuisine, plus proximity to the ocean, is the likely sister region of France's Provence.

Since the early 19th century, grape-growing and wine-making have been integral to the area.

In the late 1960s, investors from corporations, commerce and industry became pioneers of the modern wine-making era. They pulled out unprofitable fruit orchards and plowed grazing land to plant vineyards. They helped create the current wine boom with new wines appealing to an American consumer. Technological advances helped make better wines while new varietals and clonal selections were developed for the vineyards.

Wine picks

Here are the Sonoma County Harvest Fair 2000 Sweepstakes Winners

■ White: 1999 Hanna Sauvignon Blanc, $14. Other sauvignon blanc gold medal winners: 1999 Chateau Souverain, $12, 1999 Dry Creek Vineyard Sonoma County, $12, 1999 Dry Creek Vineyard Dry Creek Valley DCV3, $18, and 1999 Murphy-Goode Estate, $12.50. All are fabulous wines with seafood.

■ Red: 1998 Hartford Zinfandel, Fanucchi Vineyard, $28. Only 346 cases of this wine were made. None is available in Michigan presently, but it's worth a search elsewhere. Hartford is a new brand with tremendous promise. Only chardonnay, pinot noir and single-vineyard zinfandels are made under the Hartford label.

Today's wines clearly show the impact of such efforts.

Sonoma County is a patchwork of small family-owned wineries co-existing as next-door neighbors to larger, corporately run mega-producers. They respect each other and share methodologies while producing their own unique style of wines.

In the last decade, there has been renewed interest in farming. Small family farms specializing in crops, such as baby vegetables and tender salad greens, have sprung up. Others are focused on fresh fowl, turkey, duck and range-fed chickens. Baby lamb from the County is so delectable, it is sought after by the best restaurants coast to coast.

Together wineries and farms constitute one of the premier wine-growing and food regions of the world.

Such thoughts flooded in as we sat for three days, with 18 other wine pros from across the country, judging the wines of Sonoma County.

The Sonoma County Harvest Fair requires that wines entered in the competition be made exclusively from grapes grown in Sonoma County. We experienced the bounty of the County!

A total of 653 wines representing 115 winery labels were entered. Gold medals, wines which define the varietal character in a manner only rarely encountered, were awarded to 51 wines, or less than eight percent of all entered.

Sonoma's best wines

(First listed wine is best of class.)

■ Cabernet Sauvignon (less than $20): 1997 Sebastiani.

■ Cabernet Sauvignon (over $20): 1997 Geyser Peak Reserve, 1997 Carmenet Reserve, 1997 Golden Creek Reserve Ladi's Vineyard, 1997 Kenwood Vineyards Jack London Vineyard, 1997 Sebastiani unfiltered.

Time for Tea

WHEN IS THE RIGHT TIME FOR TEA? HERE IS EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK AND NICOLE STAFFORD
STAFF WRITERS

It's tea time. Derived from a ritual of English royalty, an afternoon tea is considered a light, tie-over snack served between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. while a high tea, served after 5 p.m. compares more to a meal than a snack.

Confronted with a "down time" in her daily schedule, the Queen of England requested her servers bring tea and accompaniments to her in the late afternoon, explains Pauline Palazzolo, The Townsend Hotel's afternoon tea director for the past 11 years. The Townsend serves afternoon tea Tuesday through Saturday.

"Then, it became such a wonderful thing to be invited to take tea with the Queen," that the entire culture took up the practice, says Palazzolo.

"There's something about saying 'come over and have tea' that makes you want to dress up and use your best manners," says Palazzolo.

When it comes to high tea, the Sweet Afton Tea Room in Plymouth breaks away from the traditional serving times, instead offering it during normal restaurant hours, 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

"It's almost a full meal," said owner Nancy Burton. "Our serving order is mini-quiches, tea sandwiches, scones and mini-tarts.

"Most places don't serve (high tea) everyday, so most people don't have to wait until Monday," Burton said.

(Also serving Beef Wellington and shepherd's pie, you might say Burton's restaurant is "steeped" in British themes.)

Treats at tea. Small sandwiches, scones and "sweets" complete an afternoon tea. Scones can be served with just a spread or embellished with ham, cream cheese, salmon, etc., while fancy cakes and cookies (below) round out the occasion.

Have your own

Of course, you can always throw your own afternoon tea.

Assembling the traditional components of an afternoon tea is a fairly simple process. The amount of time, work and attention to detail required depends on your preferences.

Other than freshly steeped tea, the food elements are scones with clotted cream and preserves followed by a choice of tea sandwiches and then what the British call a "sweet."

If you're giving a tea at home and don't have much time to spare, purchase scones and your "sweet" from a local bakery. Devonshire cream or mascarpone cheese, both which are available at gourmet markets, can substitute for clotted cream. Plan to serve one scone and about three small pastries or one slice of cake to each guest.

Though a jelly roll is traditional for a "sweet," almost anything in the dessert category works, from store-bought cookies to elaborate tortes, says Palazzolo. Follow your instincts and cater to your guests' tastes. Candy, cheesecake, mousse, even chocolate-dipped fruits are fine choices. "It almost doesn't matter, as long as you have a sweet."

Your second course, a selection of tea sandwiches, is probably more important. But again, what you prepare need not be complicated and time-consuming.

Palazzolo recommends using three traditional ingredients: cucumber, watercress and a sandwich spread. She also suggests serving a choice of different sandwiches and preparing about five per guest. A simple combination might be one set with cucumber and cream cheese on white bread and another with a sandwich spread, an item readily available in the deli at most grocery stores.

White bread is traditional. Nut breads and whole wheat versions add variety. However, do use a soft bread and cut off the crusts. And, as long your tea sandwiches qualify as "finger-food," they can be served open-face on a single slice of bread or layered high using several slices.

The first step is to spread butter on the top of each layer of bread, crust removed. Then, follow with your sandwich spread or cream cheese and slice bread into four or six pieces. Add cucumber, watercress, baby shrimp, smoked salmon and other toppings for decoration. "Be creative," says Palazzolo. A tea's success probably depends more on aesthetics and mood than on the flavor of your edibles.

Serve it fresh

The tea you serve, however, ought to be superb. The Townsend Hotel serves Harney & Sons and only stocks five pounds at a time to guarantee freshness.

Consult a specialty market for specific recommendations; most stock a variety of excellent brands, says Palazzolo. Store your tea in an air-tight container, either tin or plastic.

While Earl Grey and English Breakfast tea are traditionally served at an afternoon tea, Palazzolo suggests offering a flavored herbal tea as well.

Use tea leaves – not tea bags – and avoid using a metal ball for straining.

Tea time: Pauline Palazzolo, afternoon tea director of The Townsend Hotel in Birmingham, pours herself a freshly steeped cup of tea.

"It takes the ceremony out of it," says Palazzolo. Besides, loose tea leaves will often remain at the bottom of your tea pot, and having a few leaves in the bottom of the cup is traditional. If straining is necessary, do it as you pour with an individual cup strainer.

To get the best flavor from your tea leaves, follow proper steeping instructions, always bringing water to a rolling boil.

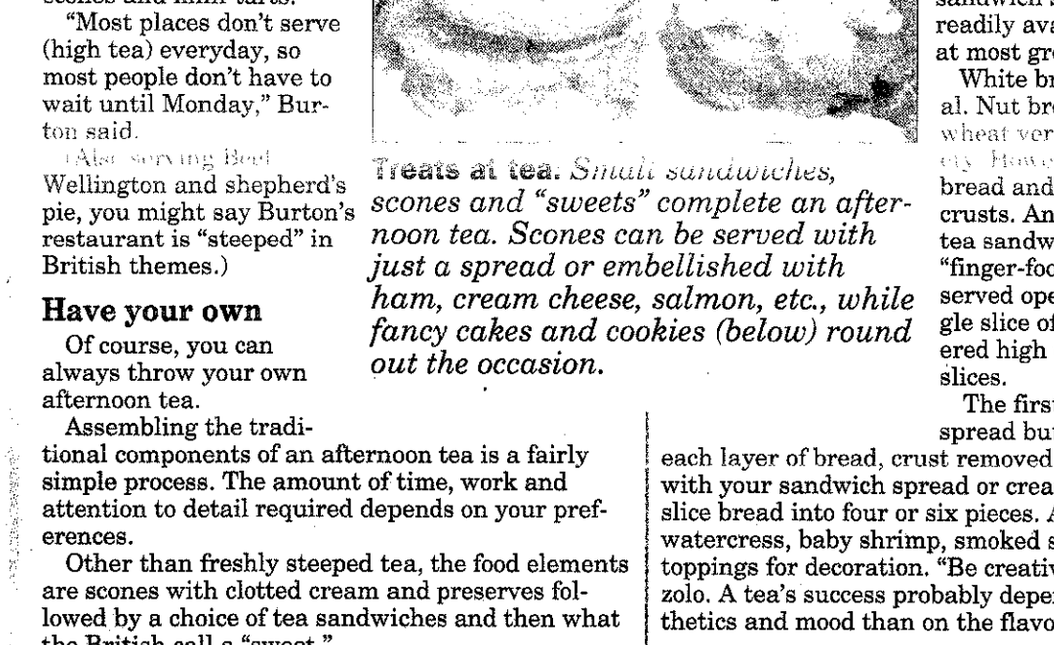

In water that's reached a rolling boil, a burst of flavor will issue from the tea leaves, reducing bitterness. If you boil the water beyond 212° F, you'll lose its oxidation, which affects the tea leaves' ability to expand and impart flavor. Serve your tea with decorative sugar cubes, milk – not cream or half-and-half – and thin lemon slices.

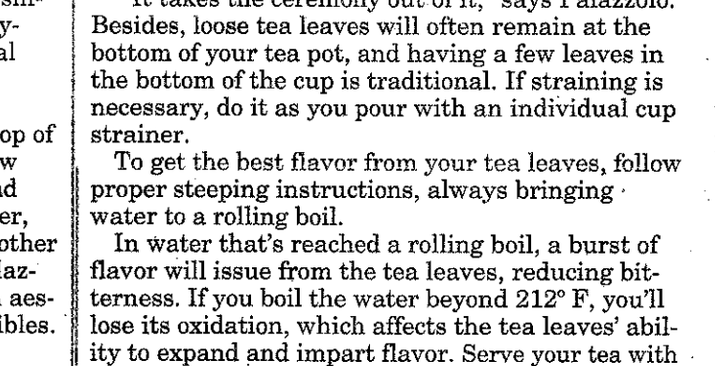

The only required serving pieces are a tea pot and tea cups. Otherwise, be creative and use the plates and dishes you have. If you have china and sterling silver, by all means, dust them off and make good use of these pieces, says Palazzolo.

Just a few china dishes passed down by grandmother? Again, use what you have; a combination of patterns and styles creates a personal and cozy atmosphere. Tea parties are elegant, but not stuffy, says Palazzolo.

Most important, allow your guests to take tea by giving it properly. As hostess, your role is to spoil and indulge your guests. That's why the first step for servers at The Townsend Hotel is to place a napkin on each guest's lap.

Likewise, pour each of your guest's tea for them. "Tea is a ceremony. Tea is medicinal," says Palazzolo. "It's all about pampering."

BASIC SCONES

2 cups all-purpose flour
1/3 cup sugar
1/2 tsp salt
3 tsp baking powder
1/3 cup chilled shortening, margarine or butter
2/3 cup milk

Sift together dry ingredients. Cut fat in with pastry cutter or rub in with finger to size of small peas. Add milk gradually, just enough to form stiff dough, but not enough to be sticky. Turn out onto floured board and knead 12 times, turning each time. Roll out to 1/2 to 3/4 inch thickness; cut out with 2 or 3 inch round cutter. If you want crisp crusts, place apart on ungreased cookie sheet. If you like soft sides, place close together. Bake at 375°F for 12 to 15 minutes. Eat at once, spread with butter, strawberry jam or Devonshire cream.

DEVONSHIRE CREAM

3 oz. pkg cream cheese, softened
1 tsp sugar
1 cup heavy cream

Put all ingredients in mixer and blend until smooth and stiffened. Makes 2 cups cream.

PREPARING YOUR TEA PROPERLY

You'll need:

Teapot | tea leaves | strainer
sugar | milk | lemon slices

Take a china teapot that holds from 4 to 6 cups and, in a tea kettle, boil enough water to fill the pot twice. When the water comes to a rolling boil, remove from heat within 30 seconds and fill the teapot. Let sit for one minute then pour out the water. Spoon fresh tea leaves into the pot (about 1 heaping teaspoon per cup), fill again with hot water and allow to steep for two to three minutes depending on strength desired.

To remove leaves, pour through a tea strainer into cups. Add milk, sugar or lemon, if desired.

Wine

Nelson Estate, 1998 Sonoma Creek Sangiacomo Vineyard.

■ Pinot Noir (under $20): 1998 Chateau St. Jean.

■ Pinot Noir (over $20): 1998 Castle Vineyards, 1998 Davis Bynum Le Pinot, 1998 Forchini, 1998 Gary Farrell Allen Vineyard, 1998 Kenwood Vineyards Reserve Olivet, 1998 Murphy-Goode.

■ Zinfandel (over $18): 1998 Hartford Fanucchi Vineyard; 1998 Gary Farrell Bradford Mountain, 1999 Mayo Old Vines Ricci Vineyard, 1998 Rosenblum Rockpile Road Vineyard.

■ Chardonnay (under $20): 1999 Kunde Estate.

■ Chardonnay (over $20): 1999 Mayo Hillside Select, 1998 Davis Bynum Limited Edition, 1998 Gallo of Sonoma Laguna Ranch, 1999 Geyser Peak Ricci Vineyard, 1998 Rosenblum Lone Oak Vineyard Reserve.

Remarks we've made over the last months were emphasized by judging results. No great merlots or zinfandels under $20; Chateau St. Jean is the best Pinot Noir under $20; and Kunde chardonnays are terrific. Not all wines listed are available in Michigan, but are worth a search elsewhere.

Pumpkin dishes only begin at Halloween

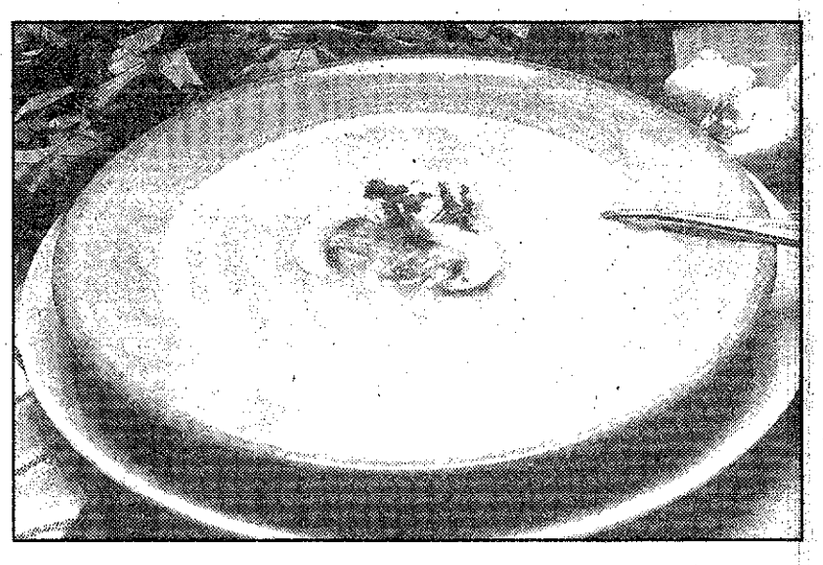

■ Pumpkin soup is sensational made with chicken or vegetable stock. For variety, try pumpkin and lentil soup, seasoned with onion, clove, ginger and curry powder.

Jack-o'-lanterns and pumpkin pie are popular signs of the season, but there's a lot more good eating from the pumpkin patch at this time of year.

Pumpkins are a perfect food for fall meals, providing healthy amounts of vitamin A and dietary fiber.

The huge pumpkins that look so good on Halloween, however, are not the best for cooking, as they tend to be stringy and tasteless. Look instead for smaller varieties. Mini-sized pumpkins, for example, are great for stuffing. Avoid any that are cut or bruised. Pumpkins should have a good orange-golden color and a hard rind, and they should be heavy in relation to their size. Store them in a cool place until ready to use.

The best way to start is to grill, bake, or steam the pumpkin. The easiest way is to cut it in half, put it cut side down on a slightly greased baking sheet and bake at 350° F until tender (30 to 90 minutes depending on size). After cooling, scoop out the fiber and seeds, and you're ready to prepare the tender meat any way you wish.

Curried pumpkin soup: Pumpkins are a perfect food for fall meals, providing healthy amounts of Vitamin A and fiber.

Pumpkin soup is sensational made with chicken or vegetable stock. For variety, try pumpkin and lentil soup, seasoned with onion, clove, ginger and curry powder, or sample the curried pumpkin soup recipe below.

You'll find pumpkin in recipes from around the world. Try a Mexican-style pumpkin and bean stew, made with pumpkin cubes, bell peppers, kidney beans, black-eyed peas, plum tomatoes, mild chilies and finely chopped garlic. Add cubes of cooked pumpkin to an Italian risotto, seasoned with thyme and sprinkled with grated Parmesan cheese and black olive slivers.

Pumpkin purée works wonders in all sorts of desserts and baked goods. Light and moist, it's a great addition to cakes, cookies, bars, muffins and rolls. Stir it into softened low-fat vanilla ice cream or use it to make pumpkin pudding or mousse.

CURRIED PUMPKIN SOUP

- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour

- 4 tablespoons Parmesan cheese, freshly grated
- 1-1/2 cups turnip greens or Swiss chard, cooked, drained, chopped and seasoned with salt, pepper and nutmeg

Cook lasagna noodles in 4 quarts lightly salted, boiling water until tender. Drain well and rinse with cold water; set aside.

In a heavy, non-aluminum saucepan, melt butter over medium heat. Add onion; cook until clear, about 3 minutes. Add flour; stir well; cook about 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add apple cider and vegetable stock; simmer. Season with salt and pepper, nutmeg, coriander, clove and thyme. Add applesauce and lemon juice. Continue to simmer for 10 to 15 minutes, stirring to medium-thick consistency.

Preheat oven to 350 F. Lightly oil an 8-by-11-inch glass or ceramic baking dish. Place one layer of pasta on bottom; on this spread 1/3 of the applesauce mixture, then a layer of greens, followed by a thin layer of cheese. Repeat, finishing with sauce and cheese on top (there should be 4 layers in all). Cover with foil. Bake for 40 to 45 minutes. Remove foil and continue to bake for 15 to 20 minutes. Remove; let cool for 15 minutes before cutting. Makes 6 to 8 servings. Recipe from U.S. Apple Association.

Cookies look sinister, but tame a monstrous taste

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Halloween's ghastly specters may give your children or party guests the chills, but rich Spider Cookies with cream-cheese frosting will revive their spirits in no time at all.

These treats are easily made and will beguile tasters in spite of the suitably sinister look of their decorations, devised from black licorice and jellybeans.

SPIDER COOKIES

(Preparation 20 minutes, cooking time 10 to 12 minutes)
1 cup (2 sticks) butter, softened
1-1/4 cups granulated sugar
1 egg
3 squares (1 ounce) semisweet chocolate, melted and slightly cooled
2-1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/4 cup cocoa
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
Black licorice whips, black jellybeans, black decorating gel, assorted Halloween candies
For cream cheese frosting:
2 packages (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2 cups confectioners' sugar

To make the cookies: Cream butter and sugar in mixing bowl until fluffy. Beat in egg and then melted chocolate. Beat in flour, cocoa, baking powder and salt until combined. Divide dough in half and shape each half into a roll about 8 inches long. Wrap in waxed paper or plastic wrap. Refrigerate at least 2 hours or overnight.

Preheat oven to 350° F. Cut rolls into 1/4-inch slices and place 1 inch apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake until cookies are set when lightly touched, 10 to 12 minutes. Cool completely.

To make the frosting: Combine cream cheese and confectioners' sugar. Spread about 1 teaspoon of frosting on half of the cookies. Top with remaining cookies and spread additional frosting on top.

Decorate the cookies with "spiders," using jellybeans for bodies and licorice for legs. To make cobweb cookies, squeeze a small amount of black gel on the middle of the cookie. Use the end of a toothpick to draw gel from the middle of the cookies to edges. Then put gel across to connect the gel lines in a cobweb pattern. Cookies can also be decorated with a variety of ready-made Halloween candy decorations. Once frosted, keep cookies refrigerated.

Makes 32 servings.

You won't whistle past graveyard mousse

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cooks will be pleased to note that this light-as-air pumpkin mousse is fast and easy to whip up from a fairly simple combination of ingredients.

It's the spooky decorations that instantly transform the mousse into theme-party fare – and it will probably vanish off the dessert table faster than a Halloween apparition disappears into the twilight-zone mists.

GRAVEYARD PUMPKIN MOUSSE

(Preparation time 15 minutes)
12 chocolate sandwich cookies
1 cup heavy cream
8-ounce package reduced-fat cream cheese (Neufchatel style), softened
3/4 cup sugar
15-ounce can pumpkin
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
3 medium bananas, cut into 1/4-inch-thick slices
For garnish: long gummy worms, clean plastic skeletons or spiders

In food processor container, process cookies to form fine crumbs; set aside. In mixer bowl, beat cream to form stiff peaks; set aside. In separate mixer bowl, beat cream cheese and sugar until creamy. Add pumpkin and pumpkin pie spice; mix well. Fold in whipped cream and banana until blended.

Spoon 3/4 cup of pumpkin mousse into each of 8 stemmed dessert glasses or large custard cups; spread to make top even. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons cookie crumbs over the top to make "dirt" surface. Cover and refrigerate until serving time.

To garnish: Arrange gummy worms, skeletons and spiders on "dirt" layer, with worms looking as if they are crawling over the edge of the glass or dish.

Makes 8 servings.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Sleep study

The Sleep Disorders Center at Henry Ford Hospital conducts ongoing investigations of new therapeutics and medical treatments for people with insomnia and other sleep-related problems. The center is currently seeking individuals to participate in one of several studies.

All participants must be in good health and will undergo a free physical examination. The center is looking for people between the ages of 21 and 50 who have difficulty falling asleep, or between the ages of 35 and 60 who have no difficulty falling or staying asleep.

Eligible participants will receive financial compensation for their time. For more information, call (313) 916-5185.

Stroke talk

Stroke is the third leading cause of death in the United States. On average, someone suffers s stroke every 53 seconds and someone dies of a stroke every 3.3 minutes.

St. Mary Mercy in Livonia will present a Carelink lecture on Stroke 1-3 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 8 in the hospital auditorium. Ginger Ramsay, RN, will present a comprehensive overview of stroke including types of stroke, risk factors, warning signs, treatment and prevention. All attendees will also receive a stroke risk appraisal.

There is no charge for this lecture but registration is required. The hospital is located at 36475 Five Mile Road. Call (734) 655-8940.

Managing stress

According to the American Psychological Association, 75-90 percent of all physician office visits are for stress-related complaints. St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia is offering a three-session/three week stress management class, "Stressed for Success," 6:30-8:30 p.m. starting Nov. 7. The class will take place in Pavillion Room A (use South Entrance off Levan Road).

Many coping skills will be explored including a variety of relaxation techniques, communication skills and the use of humor. There is a registration fee and pre-registration is required. Call the Community Outreach Department at (734) 655-8940.

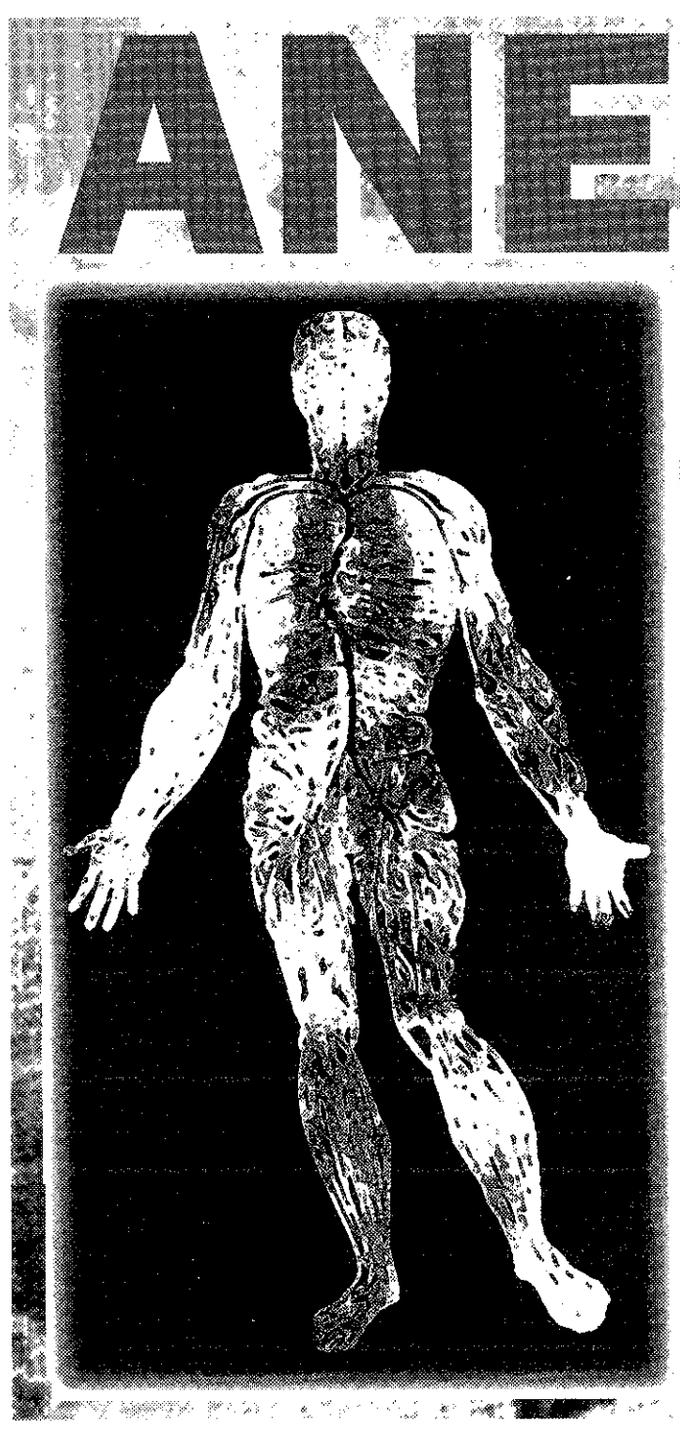

Aneurysm study

The Center for Molecular Medicine and Genetics, Wayne State University School of Medicine is conducting genetic research on the human chromosomes associated with aneurysms.

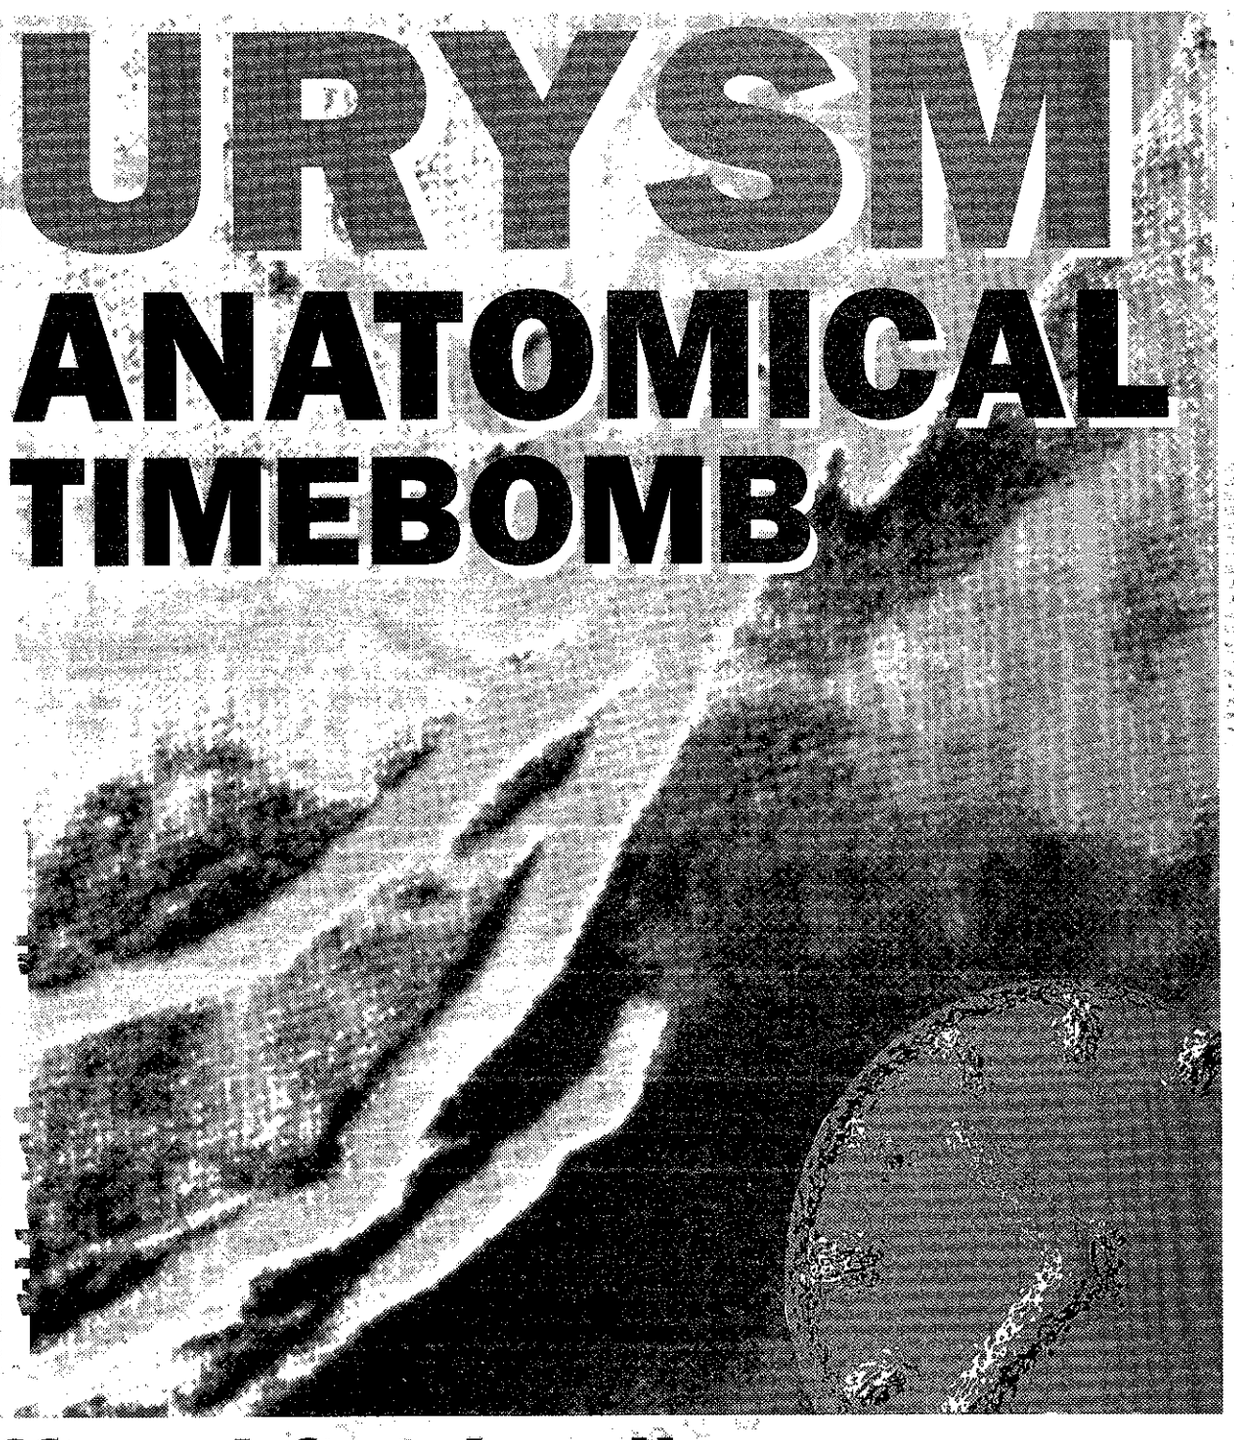

Once the genes involved in the cause of aneurysms are identified, a DNA test could identify people with a genetic tendency. These people would then benefit from routinely looking for aneurysms using tests such as an ultrasound.

Results of this study are not expected to directly benefit participants; however, participation will help unravel the cause of aneurysms for future generations.

If you have family members (living and deceased) who have, or have had, aneurysms and think you may be interested in participating in the study, contact researchers Dr. S. Helena Kuivaniemi or Dr. Gerardus C. Tromp or genetic study coordinator Alicia Salkowski at (313) 577-9735.

ANEURYSM ANATOMICAL TIMEBOMB

New surgery offered for deadly aneurysm

By Renée Skoglund
Staff Writer
rskoglund@oe.homecomm.net

■ 'The results are dramatically different from those with open surgery. Most patients are discharged in two or three days and can return to normal life in a matter of weeks, instead of months.'

—Dr. Thomas Siegel
– Vascular surgeon, Oakwood Hospital & Medican Center

Approximately 15,000 Americans die each year from ruptured abdominal aortic aneurysms, making it the 13th leading cause of death in the United States. Compared with the half million who die annually of heart attacks, the number of deaths due to aneurysms seems small.

But it's scary. Most patients die before they reach the hospital.

Surgeons at Oakwood Hospital & Medical Center-Dearborn, as well as the Detroit VA Medical Center, can now safely defuse this anatomical time bomb with the added benefit of a shorter hospital stay and recovery period.

Endovascular grafting, a new technique for repairing abdominal aortic aneurysms, involves making two small incisions in the leg or groin. Guided by X-ray equipment that provides a clear, three-dimensional view of the blood vessels, the surgeon inserts a graft into the aorta, where tiny surgical hooks affix it to the vessel walls. The hose-like graft allows blood to flow past the weakened area in the artery without the risk of a deadly rupture.

"The results are dramatically different from those with open surgery," said Oakwood vascular surgeon Dr. Thomas Siegel. "Most patients are discharged in two or three days and can return to normal life in a matter of weeks, instead of months."

Siegel is one of the few physicians in the state approved to perform this surgery. He has undergone extensive training by Guidant Corporation Cardiac & Vascular Surgery Group, the manufacturer of the Ancure Endograft System used in many aneurysm repairs at Oakwood.

"Oakwood's use of this device is good news to the many people in southeast Michigan who have an abdominal aortic aneurysm. For the first time, we can offer people a repair that promises much less risk and much more comfort. This technology allows us to fix the chief problem without worrying about causing complications, a constant concern with the older, highly invasive technique."

Prior to this new technique, patients faced a complicated surgery that required an incision from the breast bone to the pubic bone. Surgeons had to manipulate major organs to access the abdominal aorta, which lies close to the backbone. In addition, clamping of the artery to repair the aneurysm increased blood pressure in arteries already stressed, said Siegel.

Definition

An abdominal aortic aneurysm is a weakening, or bulge, in the wall of the body's largest blood vessel, the aorta, which runs downward from the heart along the spinal column and supplies blood to all the organs. The aorta's diameter normally measures 2.3 centimeters (1 inch) in men and 1.9 centimeters (3/4 inch) in women.

Although aneurysms can occur in any blood vessel in the body, the most common area is in the abdomen just below the renal arteries, which supply blood to the kidneys.

Statistics show that men are four times as likely as woman to develop an aneurysm, due in part to the earlier onset of arterioscleroris, or hardening of the arteries. Aneurysms most often occur after the age of 55-60.

According the American Heart and Lung Institute, small aneurysms – those measuring less than 2 inches – rarely rupture. However, as they grow bigger, the risk of rupture increases by 5 percent each year.

"At 6 centimeters, the risk of rupture over two years is extremely high," said Siegel.

Diagnosis

Aneurysms are not easy to detect.

"Usually there are no symptoms," said Siegel. "That's one of the problems. It's insidious. Once a person develops symptoms, the aneurysm is already leaking."

Sometimes an aneurysm is determined upon physical examination when the physician senses "expansibility" as he probes the abdomen, said Siegel. The pulsating aneurysm pushes probing fingers away from each other with each heartbeat. However, an aneurysm in an overweight person may be more difficult to detect by probing.

"A simple, good physical examination with palpation of the abdomen" finds most aneurysms, said Dr. Michael S. Dahn, chief of vascular surgery at Detroit VA Medical Center.

Sometimes physicians can "hear" an aneurysm by placing a stethoscope on the abdomen. They hear "the noise of turbulence in the blood," said Dr. Syam Zampani, chief of cardiology and director of the catheterization laboratory at St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia.

Other symptoms include back, chest, abdominal or groin pain; pain, numbness, coldness or weakness in the legs or buttocks; cramps in the back of the calves when walking; dizziness or fainting, rapid heartbeat, or sudden weakness.

When a physical examination indicates an aneurysm, the diagnosis is confirmed by an abdominal ultrasound or CT scan.

"If you can feel and hear it, than proceed with an ultrasound ... ," said Zampani. He does not use ultrasound as a primary diagnostic tool unless there are other indications – angina, a history of heart disease or stroke, or weak leg pulses.

Zampani is a proponent of the traditional surgery – "It has the best proven record" – and remains skeptical of new procedures. "We have to be careful not to raise false hopes that everyone with an aneurysm is a candidate for a stent."

He added: "What we see in research protocol may not be applicable in a community practice."

Candidacy

"Sixty-five percent (of patients with aneurysms) are candidates" for endovascular surgery, said Dahn.

Qualification is determined by anatomy. Blood vessels need to be of a certain size for the grafts to be properly inserted and fitted into place. Also, extensive calcium deposits within the aorta also may preclude candidacy. These characteristics are determined by CT scans and angiogram.

"Patients who don't have sufficient aortic neck or iliac arteries (the two main arteries extending from the aorta into the legs)" are not candidates, said Dr. Jeffrey Miller, an interventional radiologist who works with Siegal as part of a vascular surgery team.

The mortality rates for patients who have undergone endovascular grafting as opposed to traditional surgery have not been tracked over a five-year period; however, according to Guidant Corporations' two-year data, no ruptures have occurred in the 2,000 implants tracked world wide.

The post-operative morbidity problems – the respiratory, gastro-intestinal and wound complications associated with traditional surgery – have significantly been reduced, said Dahn. Many nurses, he added, report patients ready to walk out of the intensive care unit after surgery.

The typical hospital stay for endovascular graft patients is one to three days; for traditional open surgery, it's eight to 10 days.

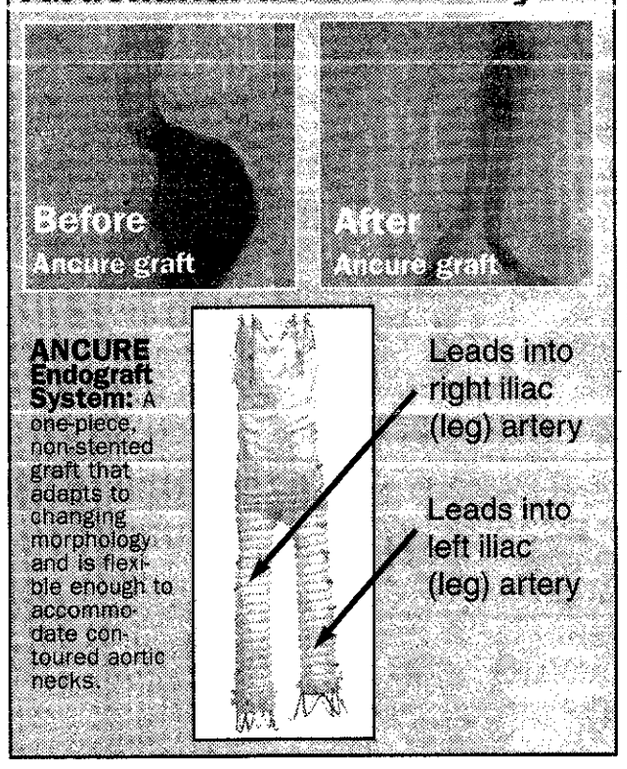

The manufacturers of the endovascular grafts restrict training to those hospitals that do a significant volume of vascular procedures and demonstrate great expertise, said Dahn.

The endovascular grafts have revolutionized aneurysm surgery, he said.

"I expect as time goes on and technology improves, more patients will become candidates for this procedure. It will completely replace open surgery."

Halloween hazards may be lurking

Halloween means miniature vampires, goblins and superheroes will scavenge neighborhoods for treats and become those creatures that go "bump in the night."

These creature will do whatever it takes to get their treats, including running through neighbor's yards and across dimly lit streets with nary a glance to check for potholes or ditches, let alone passing vehicles.

Parents must take special care to review with children the hazards this ghostly holiday can present.

Dr. Marie Lozon, director of pediatric emergency medicine at U-M Health System, sees the results of too much Halloween fun and unfortunate tragedies.

"The emergency department can be very busy on Halloween. We see everything from minor injuries like bumps and bruises to more serious cases such as car-pedestrian accidents," she said.

The first things many people think of when they hear "Halloween hazards" are pins, poisons or other contaminant's in the candy. However, the bigger danger is choking said Lozon.

"Sort through the treats to see if they're appropriate for your child, to see if they could present a choking hazard." And, of course, eating too much candy could cause stomach cramping and diarrhea.

Stop, look and listen

Trick-or-treating is usually held at dusk, "a very difficult time for drivers to adjust their vision," said Lozon. A child who breaks away from parents or darts out between two parked cars could run the risk of being hit by a passing motorist – resulting in a serious head injury, orthopedic trauma, abdominal injury, or even death.

(Keep in mind that Oct. 29 is the start of daylight-saving time when darkness will descend earlier in the day.)

On Halloween night, Lozon also sees children suffering from radial head subluxation, or nursemaid's elbow.

"This is not through any fault of the parent, this is just a normal safety measure where the child is being caught during a stumble or held tightly and the child wants to break free," she continued. "When the parent tries to check it or examine it by turning it, the child will cry. It will be very painful and usually requires a trip to the emergency department to have the bone relocated."

Halloween occurs at the time of year when shifts in temperature can be problematic for children with asthma. In addition to precautions for those children, all parents should be sure to layer warm clothing underneath children's costumes to ensure they are warm enough.

Safety preparations

To combat Halloween hazards, conversations about safety should start well before the little ghouls leave for haunting.

"First and foremost, discuss how they're going to behave while trick-or-treating, and plan who will supervise them," said Lozon. "Plan a route or general area for trick-or-treating and discuss the biggest danger to the children that comes from motor vehicle drivers who may be unable to see them."

Costumes should permit children to see and walk easily. Parents must also be sure that, if the costume is dark in color, a reflective tape is added to children's costumes so motorists can see them.

About older children who may want to roam with their friends without supervision, Lozon cautions: "Remember, they seem autonomous. They have excellent motor skills. They independently operate things at home, but yet, they are still children in terms of judgment and impulsiveness to a certain extent."

Refresh their memories about the Halloween rules from their childhood. "Maybe they will choose not to follow them, but probably if you've talked to them and made them aware of the dangers, they'll have a safer holiday."

Also, parents inviting children to trick-or-treat at their homes should make sure their pets are controlled and the walkways clear.

"It's very, very important to make sure that your porch is well lit, and that the children are not going to be injured. Also, give out candy that will not present a choking hazard," Lozon advises.

Finally, Lozon cautions parents against taking a group of more than a few children trick-or-treating. "Somebody will volunteer, 'I'll take seven kids with me trick-or-treating.' It's probably manageable for most people," she said. Following is a list of Halloween safety tips:

- Avoid masks, wigs and other costume pieces that could interfere with vision or cause a child to trip or fall.
- Be sure that your home's outdoor walkways are clear of obstructions and other hazards.
- Accompany children while trick-or-treating and carry a flashlight. Add reflective or light colored material to dark costumes.

Hospital offers adoption information series

Couples considering adoption as a family building option can get information on related issues and alternatives through the "Adoption Information Series," an educational series that meets monthly at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

The group will meet 6:30-8 p.m. Monday, November 6 in the first floor private dining room of the hospital's Administration Building, 3601 W. Thirteen Mile Road. There is no charge to attend.

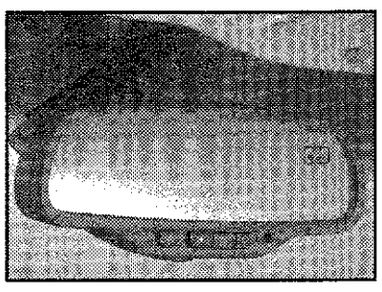

Social worker Paul Springer will discuss working with an adoption agency to finalize an independent adoption. A panel of couples also will discuss their experience with independent adoption.

With independent adoptions, couples work on their own to find a woman who is interested in placing her baby with and adoptive couple. Such adoptions must be finalized through an attorney or an adoption agency, according to current law.

Future cars equipped with emergency call system

New telematic system.

Not long ago, traffic accidents were reported by witnesses who first had to find a telephone. Then in the late 1980s cellular phones proliferated and accidents were increasingly reported almost instantly, often by several callers.

Nowadays, there are so many eager cellular accident reporters that it's almost a problem, said Lt. Jack Raker of the Canton Township Fire Division. Cellular reports on everything from overheated cars to massive pileups are common, he added.

Onto this scene now steps a new player, a car that makes the accident call itself.

Since 1998, automakers have offered "telematics" systems as optional or standard equipment in selected models. General Motors now offers it in 32 of its 54 models and leads the industry for putting telematics cars on the road.

Emergency calls

These systems include a built-in cell phone that automatically calls an emergency center in the event of an accident. The phone is connected to a global positioning system that reports the vehicle's exact location. The emergency operator receives this telemetry and has voice contact with the occupants of the vehicle, assuming they remain conscious and the telematics system hasn't been damaged.

The emergency call can also be made by pushing a button on the rear view mirror in the event of a medical emergency that doesn't involve an accident.

The calls are answered by operators who work for whatever company provided the telematics

BLOOD THINNERS AND JOINT PAINS

Arthritis can begin from unusual causes. For example, a connection exists between a medication used as part of heart disease therapy and sudden joint pain.

The heart medicine is warfarin (also known as coumadin). Your doctor prescribes it when you have an erratic heartbeat known as atrial fibrillation, in addition, patients with heart monitors may take the medicine. In both instances, the reasen is to prevent blood clots from occurring in the heart's ventricles.

Warfarin works by preventing the blood from clotting in its usual manner, and is popularly called a "blood thinner." This action may be good for the heart but poses a threat to the joints.

Over time, all of us are subject to a jar to our shoulders and knees. Getting out of a car or brushing against a door suddenly opening in front of us, are examples of such accidental hits. Normally the body's coagulation system stops any bleeding that might begin from such blows however blood thinners blunt this response.

If bleeding has happened, you feel a sudden and intense pain followed by marked loss of mobility in the involved shoulder or knee. You may think you have fractured the bone or developed an attack of gout.

The key to diagnosis is that this sudden episode came on when you were on coumadin. The only therapy that works is to put a needle in the joint and draw out the blood trapped inside. Once done, you need no further treatment.

system in that particular car. These operators will then alert the emergency service providers wherever the accident victim happens to be.

This can be particularly advantageous in the event of accidents late at night and accidents in rural areas when few witnesses are likely to be present, said Gary Wallace of ATX Technologies, one of three companies providing telematics systems to automakers.

There are more than 600,000 telematics subscribers in the United States, and it is hoped that there will be 11 million by 2004.

The service costs money, though. The basic service for the OnStar telematics system is $200 per month. Double that for premium service.

Some people see telematics as a tool to decrease emergency response times and therefore reduce the annual road death toll (currently about 42,000). "We will reduce the time between a crash and care, and that will reduce the amount of people dying," said trauma surgeon Dr. Howard Champion.

■ These systems include a built-in cell phone that automatically calls an emergency center in the event of an accident.

Farmington Hills Police Chief Bill Dwyer called it "a major breakthrough in providing service to the public."

OnStar spokesman Todd Carstensen predicts that telematic systems will eventually "be as common as power windows and air conditioning."

Multi-use

The OnStar telematics system also acts as an ordinary car phone, provider of news and sports information and an e-mail reader. If you've gotten yourself lost, just hit the (non-emergency) help button and an operator will tell you exactly where you are, give you directions, help you find a restaurant or ATM, even make hotel reservations. If need be, the operator can remotely unlock your doors, flash your lights and blow your horn.

Although the utility of telematic systems is not in question, some people believe the systems make accidents more likely by distracting drivers.

Paul Green, a senior research scientist at the University of Michigan Transportation Research Institute, says his research shows that talking on the phone while driving is dangerous, no matter whether you have a hand-held phone or a hands-free phone such as the telematics devices.

"At this point, safety and human factors efforts lag far behind electronics development," Green wrote. "If action is not taken a significant number of information system-related deaths and injuries will result."

What to look for in new office

WILLIAM DOYLE III

When the decision has been made to relocate, a number of issues should be considered. Objective factors may include the location of employees, customers (existing or potential), transportation routes, availability of needed technology and labor costs. Subjective factors may include prestige/ image, visibility and security. The first step is to identify and prioritize these with a real estate professional.

Project your space needs over time. Look at your organizational culture and identify what is important. Who gets enclosed offices and of what size? Who occupies cubicles? What ancillary spaces are there and how large do they need to be?

Use spreadsheets to list departments and their parts. Identify the space needed by each area. Eventually, you have identified the amount of space that your organization needs.

Use a block diagram to identify who needs to be next to whom. Hire an architect or interior designer for this.

Inventory your technology needs. This used to be simple: getting the right telephone on the right desk. It isn't simple anymore.

When the needs are identified, perform a market survey. Hire a real estate professional to find the options and preliminary costs to match your needs. Narrow the options to a workable number. Then send out requests for proposals.

Reduce transactions to writing. This protects you in a real estate transaction and requires the assistance of competent legal help.

The final phase: Make sure the required construction is appropriately specified, bid and completed. The relocation must be organized.

William Doyle III, CPA, is a partner specializing in real estate at Plante & Moran, LLP. He is managing partner of Plante & Moran's new Auburn Hills office.

If you want smaller home, try these condos

Empty-nesters or those whose kids are nearly grown who want to downsize, enjoy the amenities of newer houses and stay in Livonia especially will be drawn to Civic Park Woods.

That's the thinking, anyway, of the development/ building team there.

Eighteen condominiums, all ranches and most attached two to a building, are going up off Brookfield south of Five Mile about a half mile east of Farmington Road.

Several Realtors at RE/MAX Classic in Canton – Lee and Noel Bittinger, Jim Szkrybalo and Larry Henney – developed the property. Twin Valley is the builder. Henney is the primary sales rep.

"The biggest thing is it's a ranch," Henney said. "Most folks who have purchased are 55 and older, but they don't specifically have to be senior citizens."

"Our whole credo is we want to give value and quality," Szkrybalo added.

"Andersen windows throughout, ceramic bathrooms, quality in wood flooring," Henney said.

"I love Livonia," Szkrybalo said. "It has parks. It has schools. It's a good, all-around town. It's a family town.

"There's a spirit of cooperation between residents, politicians, city employees. You can get things done here without much of a problem," he said.

Both Szkrybalo and Henney have bought condos at Civic Park Woods.

"This is the highest-quality residential I've ever been involved with what we offer the customer," said Steve Summers of Twin Valley.

"Everything from nine-foot basements to brick work on the structure," Summers said. "Energy-efficient furnace. We have zero exterior maintenance with vinyl and aluminum.

"Every step of the way we've always based decisions on what we do as if we're living here," he said. "We want customers to be happy here. They will be."

Civic Park Woods is less than a mile north of the Jeffries Freeway.

"Everything is accessible from Livonia in 20 minutes," Szkrybalo said. "The city center is right here; you're a block from the library."

"We've got woods across the street belonging to the city, 11 acres, plus we've saved as many trees as we've possibly could," Henney said.

The 1,400-square-foot ranch, designed by R.G. Meyers of Plymouth, contains two bedrooms and two baths. Base price is $249,900.

Civic Park Woods: All 18 condominiums in this Livonia community feature two bedrooms, two baths and a two-car garage.

Landscaping, a two-car garage, first-floor laundry, fireplace, air conditioning, cedar deck and basement with daylight window are standard features.

Also included at base price are hardwood flooring in the foyer, laundry and kitchen/ nook, all-ceramic baths, dishwasher, up to seven recessed lights and a light fixture allowance of $500.

Skylights ($800) and poplar-fluted molding ($600) are upgrades.

The plan features a covered porch, a great room with cathedral ceiling, a master suite with sloped ceiling, walk-in closet and shower, a second full bath with combination tub/ shower and a second bedroom with bay window.

The steps leading to the basement are tucked out of the way off the laundry room. The basement is rough plumbed for future finishing.

Civic Park Woods, within the Livonia Public School boundaries, will have sidewalks. Most units carry a site premium ranging from $3,000 to $16,000.

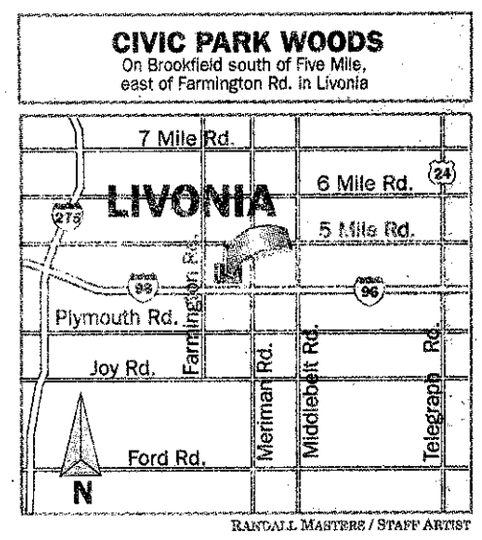

The property tax rate currently is $32.17 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price. That means the owners of a $270,000 condo there would pay about $4,400 the first year.

The monthly maintenance/ association fee, which includes grass cutting, snow shoveling outside water and insurance, is $120.

A lot of things attracted Shirley Bruff, who already lives in Livonia, to Civic Park Woods.

"I didn't want to move that far," she said. "It was so close to everything around here – no doctor visits. The house was a ranch to start with. I wanted everything on the same floor. It's comfortable."

No worries about outside maintenance also was a big factor, Bruff added.

RANDALL MASTERS / STAFF ARTIST

The sales office/model at Civic Park Woods is open 1-5 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays. Contact Henney at (734) 422-2577.

2-bedroom starter plan easily expandable

Homes designed for narrow lots that have a quality appearance to them are always in demand. Some developments have lots that need that special home to fit.

The Kirby Farm (D8093) has 1,212 square feet and is nearly square in shape. It has distinctive rooflines that provide character to the front this great starter home.

The entry has a covered porch with a transom overhead. Inside to the right side is a closet, while the stairs for the unfinished basement is on the left.

Straight ahead is the large great room with a fireplace covering nearly half of the back wall. Windows with transoms overhead decorate the balance of the area. In a front corner is a bookshelf, ideal for having a favorite book ready to read at a moment's notice.

To the right of the great room is a large nook. This eating area is enhanced with large windows bathing the room in light. For convenience, a door to the back yard has been inserted at the rear of the nook.

The kitchen for the Kirby Farm is C-shaped with an eating bar facing the nook. A corner sink is adjacent to the eating bar and a pantry is across the walkway.

At the end of the kitchen is a door leading to the utility room. An extra storage closet has been added to the utility. Another door opening into the two-car garage makes bringing in groceries or kids easier.

An extra jog in the garage provides a possibility of storage or a workbench for the weekend do-it-yourselfer.

The Kirby Farm has two bedrooms, the master suite in the left rear area, and the secondary bedroom (ideal as a kid's room or nursery) in the left front.

A full bath is located between the two bedrooms, along with a linen closet in the hall. This is easily accessible from the rest of the home through an arched doorway.

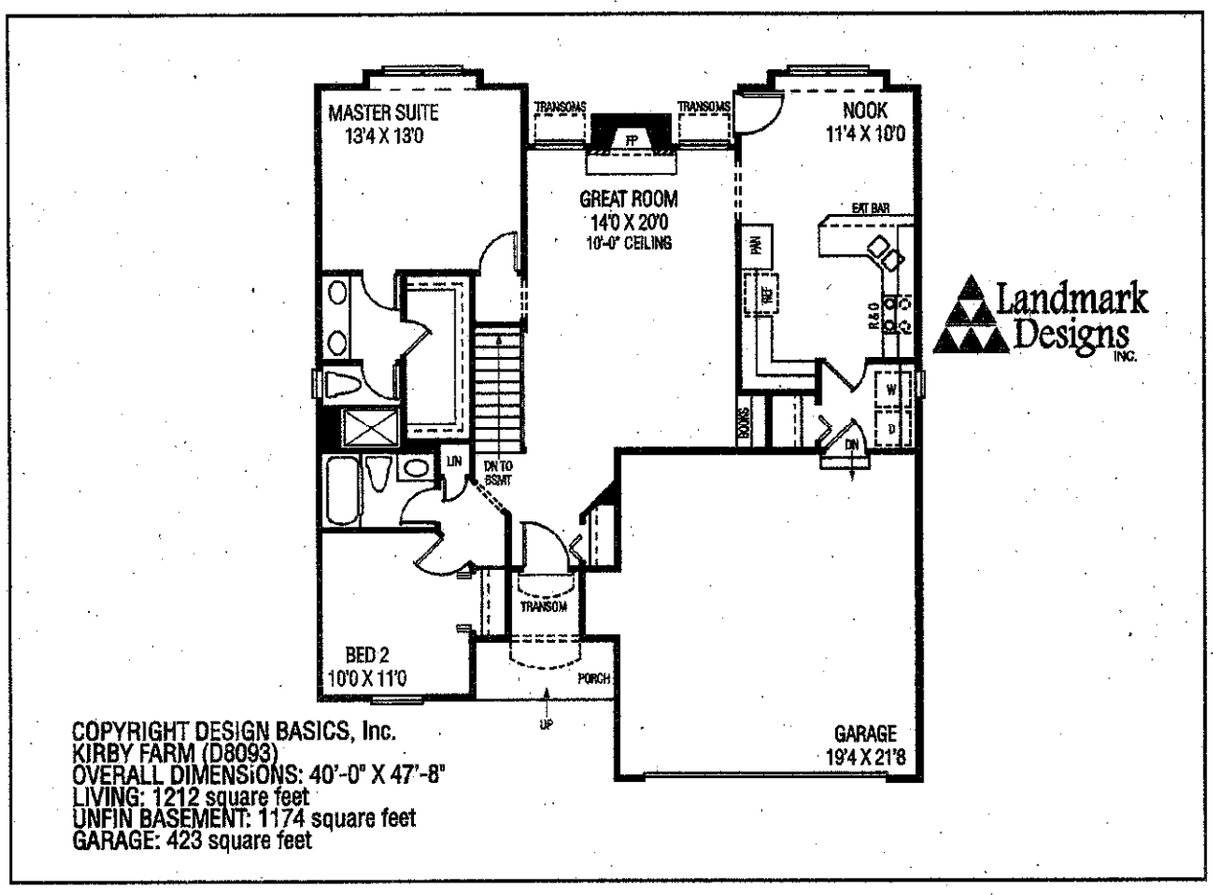

The master suite has a large walk-in closet with twin sinks directly across the walkway. This is ideal for getting ready for work in the mornings. There is an oversized shower conveniently located beside the closet.

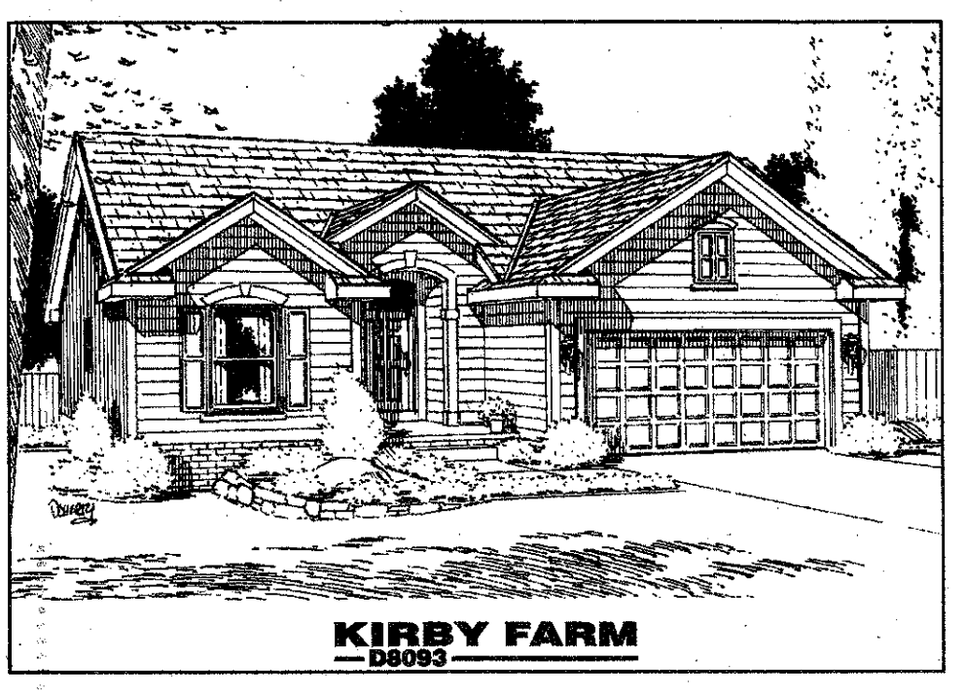

Entry into this suite passes through an arched doorway, and over the basement stairwell.

Finding a home that is open and roomy is sometimes difficult for the first time buyer. Kirby Farm has the openness of a traditional old farmhouse and could easily be expanded if the need arose.

For a study plan, including scaled floor plan(s), elevations, section(s), and an artist rendering, send $24.95 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Road E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424. Please specify plan name (Kirby Farm and the number (D8093).

Recycled leaves at new home yield good compost

BY SCOTT GIBSON
TODAY'S HOMEOWNER MAGAZINE

Burning all those leaves you raked up used to be a rite of fall. But it's against the law in many places now, and it's also wasteful.

Dry leaves are a key ingredient in compost – decomposed yard and kitchen waste that does wonders in the garden. Dawn Pettinelli, manager of the soil nutrient analysis lab at the University of Connecticut, says leaves combined with grass clippings, a little soil and water are the heart of a natural decomposition process that forms compost in as little as three months.

Used as an additive, compost makes soil easier to work and provides nutrients to plants. Compost will even improve the disease resistance of plants. You can simply throw garden and kitchen waste in a pile and leave it alone. Eventually it will decompose. But building a hot compost pile speeds the process.

"It can be as difficult or as easy as you want it to be," says Pettinelli about making a hot compost pile. "It's almost as much art as it is science."

Building a containment area for the pile is not necessary, although it will make the pile look neater and keep animals out. More important is the right proportion of materials high in carbon and those rich in nitrogen.

Materials such as sawdust, hay and dry leaves have a lot of carbon, which supplies food for the compost. Grass, manure (but not dog or cat droppings) and kitchen waste all have a high nitrogen content, which gives the compost energy.

Don't use meat scraps, though. They attract animals.

The standard recipe for a hot compost pile, according to Pettinelli, goes like this: Start with a 6- to 8-inch layer of brown stuff – leaves, wood shavings or salt marsh hay.

Then add two inches of a material high in nitrogen, then a shovelful or two of good garden soil or commercial compost booster and a handful of both green sand and rock phosphate, available at garden-supply centers.

If you're short of grass clippings or other greens for the nitrogen, use one cup of fertilizer or blood meal for every six or eight inches of brown material.

Repeat the layers until you have a cube roughly four feet on a side. If the material is very dry, add water; make it moist but not saturated. When the pile is assembled, mix it thoroughly. If the ingredients are correct, the pile should get to 140 F in about 24 hours.

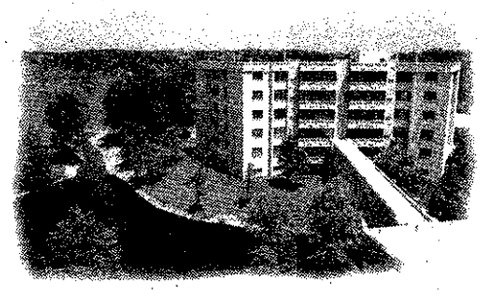

The pile should be turned at least once a month while the material decomposes, a process that takes three to 12 months. The pile does not need to be covered, although that is a good idea if the weather is unusually cold, rainy or dry.

Commercial barrel composters, which claim to drastically shorten the time needed for decomposition, do work, Pettinelli says. But there's a catch. You have to turn the barrel three to five times every day.

Set to holiday music, the special treats viewers to the captivating spectacle of sights and sounds of Christmas in each city including distinct holiday displays, local traditions and special landmarks.

HUD apartments aid 'very low income' senior citizens

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has awarded $597 million to non-profit groups around the country to create more than 6,500 federally subsidized apartments for low-income senior citizens.

HUD Secretary Andrew Cuomo, who announced the awards, said that the assistance is going to groups in 42 states and the District of Columbia under HUD's Section 202 Program for senior citizens.

Some 339 groups applied for the Section 202 assistance and 161 received grants. Michigan received $14.7 million in funding.

"The money that we awarded today is one way we can give back to those who have given us so much," Cuomo said. "Our elderly should never have to worry about being able to afford a safe and decent place to live."

In addition to funding construction and rehabilitation projects to create the apartments, the HUD grants will subsidize rents on the apartments for five years so that residents will pay only 30 percent of their incomes as rent.

To be eligible for the assistance a household must be classified as "very low income," which means an income less than 50 percent of the area median. Nationally, this means an income of less than $17,570 a year.

HUD provides two forms of Section 202 funds to non-profit groups:

■ Capital advances. This money covers the cost of developing the housing.

It does not need to be repaid if the housing is available for occupancy by very low-income seniors for at least 40 years.

■ Project rental assistance. This money covers the difference between the resident's contribution toward rent and the cost of operating the project.

Of the 20.9 million households headed by older persons in 1997, the most recent data available, 21 percent were renters, according to the U.S. Administration on Aging report, Profile of Older Americans: 1999. The median family income of older renters was $10,867.

HUD issued a report last year that said more than 7.4 million senior citizen households pay more than they can afford – defined as more than 30 percent of their income – for housing. Others live in housing that is either substandard or fails to accommodate their physical limitations or needs for assistance.

The HUD report, Housing Our Elders: A Report Card on the Housing Conditions and Needs of Older Americans, identified four serious challenges to elderly housing conditions in the U.S. – adequacy, affordability, accessibility and appropriateness.

Be bold when decorating

(NAPSI) – One of the hardest steps in decorating a room is often the first – getting started. Here are a couple of tips from the Carpet and Rug Institute on taking the leap.

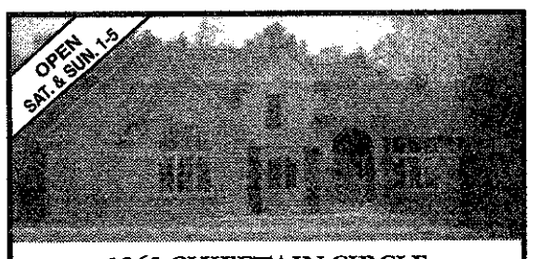

■ Turn to newspaper articles and design magazines for help. Don't be afraid to use the decorating ideas you find there.

■ Find the unusual, and use your imagination. Don't be afraid to experiment a little.

■ More and more people are choosing darker colors for walls and floors Just remember that because floors and walls are two of the biggest elements in a room, using darker colors can make the room look cozier.

■ Lighter colors on the floor can make the room seem larger and carpet texture can add a new, fresh appearance to the room.

WOODS OF SHEFFIELD ESTATES
35377 CURTIS
LIVONIA, MI 48152

This distinctive and very custom 2 story home is nestled in a very secluded section of Livonia. Near a city owned park area featuring bike and hiking trails, this area, especially the homes along Curtis east of Wayne offer some of the most fantastic homes ever built in Livonia. This breathtaking elevation boasts some of the finest brick accenting, double bay windows, a solid oak 8' front door/beveled glass sidelites, and a 3 car side entry garage. This home sits on a large lot in a heavily wooded area off Wayne Rd. between 6 & 7 Mile Rds. and affords easy access to x-ways smoothing your commute to work.

Built by one of Livonia's premiere residential building companies, Soave Homes, the care and high quality craftsmanship that went into building this home is evident to even the most discriminating purchasers. An open floor plan centered around the gourmet kitchen and Great Room features soaring ceilings, rounded arches, extensive use of crown moldings throughout, oak flooring in the kitchen, library, dining room, butlers pantry, powder room, and 1st fl. Laundry, and 2 way fireplace in the Great Room and library. The Great Room marble fireplace and huge 2 story window are open to the kitchen. This wonderful gourmet kitchen is accented with 42" raised panel oak cabinets and more crowns. Granite countertops and island w/snack bar, double oven, with cooktop, and desk and china cabinets make this a very special space. The oak library features distinctive crown moldings and an oak mantle surrounding the gas fireplace.

This home features a double staircase one that leads into the kitchen for those last nite snackers and another in the foyer. The main staircase curves majestically onto a dramatic bridge area overlooking the foyer and Great Room. Hampton oak railings and solid oak end caps nicely accent the staircase. Two of the four oversized upstairs bedrooms are equipped with bay windows.

Check out this incredible master suite that offers a Master Bath with all the amenities including a corner Jacuzzi w/tile surround, a large tiled shower, pedestal sink, bidet, and elongated toilet. The master suite also features cathedral ceiling, recessed lighting, His/Her walk-in closets, extra vanity area, and a large bonus room w/skylight. One of the finest homes in all of Livonia. Check out the competition as well as this awesome home at the open house today 1-4 pm or call me and we can arrange a private showing. $549,900

Let's Talk About Real Estate

"YOU NEED THE WHOLE PICTURE!"

Whether buying or selling, you must have a complete grasp of all the factors that will affect your next real estate transaction. Some people will ask, "I've heard interest rates are down and this is a good time to sell my house. Is that true?"

Although interest rates are an important factor, you should consider everything. Here are some other things to consider:

THE LOCAL MARKET
Real estate markets are hot one month and cold the next. Which type of market are you in now? If you are in a hot market and selling your home, you may realize a quick and successful sale. If you are buying in a hot market, you may have to scramble to find the best buy before someone else beats you to it. You may also pay more for a home in a hot market than in a cold one.

LOCAL ECONOMIC OUTLOOK
People view major decisions such as buying or selling a house with an eye on their own financial future. Is it solid or shaky? Each metropolitan area has its own major industries that account for much of the local employment. How do local people view the future of the local industries that affect your area? If they have confidence, you can look forward to a robust real estate market.

RECENT REAL ESTATE TRENDS
Is your particular part of town enjoying growing home values or experiencing declining prices? Every market has those sectors that are doing one or the other. You must know the status of the area you are selling in or buying in.

ADVICE: You can lose a substantial sum of money if you make real estate decisions without the information you need. The person who knows these things is the person who works with them daily, you local Realtor. Don't buy or sell without a Realtor.

More space: Sunrooms add function as well as form to the family home.

(IHIT) – Many new demands are put on the home with today's ever-changing family.

From elderly grandparents joining the fold to college students who return home after graduation, to blended families with wide-ranging age gaps among children, the family has never looked so different.

On top of that, many household heads are earning their wages at least partly from their home.

These changes are requiring more flexibility in the design and function of the home. One remodeling choice that is increasingly popular is the sunroom addition.

It meets the demands of the new millennium home because it's highly versatile and cost effective. Glass enclosures cost less than full construction additions and are wise choices because their uses can evolve as the family does.

According to Patio Enclosures, Inc., today's family is putting sunrooms to good and creative uses.

"We often receive email from our customers telling us how the simple addition of a sunroom solved their unique family situation while adding a fresh look to their home," said Rick Jones, president of Patio Enclosures, a large installer of custom sunrooms.

"During the holidays, we never seem to have enough room," said Dori Smedley. "We decided the most economical and appealing way to expand our home was to add a sunroom. Now I use the room as my home office - it's too fulfilling not to use everyday."

"While my daughter and grandson are living with us, the sunroom has become a much needed respite from the additional commotion in the house now," said Ilene Jones.

"We added a sunroom for a family that practically lives on a runway. The enclosure became a personal aviation watchtower and a great place for family and friends to relax and observe," said Darrell DeVantier of DeVantier Construction, a Patio Enclosures Inc. dealership.

From romantic spas and dining areas to playrooms and home offices, sunrooms are beautiful, airy rooms that can easily and cost effectively adapt to the changing demands on the home and family.

Sunrooms can be added onto a home, typically off the side or back. A more cost effective option is to convert an existing deck or patio into usable space.

Solariums, the most dramatic sunroom style, are all glass with a curved or angled roof and can be used year-round.

Three-season and year round insulated rooms can have a solid gable or single slope style roof with glass roof panels for a view of the sky.

You can see many different styles of sunrooms by checking out the photo gallery at www.patioenclosuresinc.com or by calling (800) 480-1966 for a free booklet.

Vinyl tint is reusable sunblock for windows

Outside, people can wear sunglasses to block the glare and ultraviolet rays that hurt their eyes. But now there's a product that they can apply just as easily to the windows of their homes to stop glare, reduce fading, and more.

It's called Cling View Sun Shade removable-reusable static-cling window tint.

No special tools or adhesives are needed. Static-cling vinyl is a snap to apply to glass or plastic windows. And because they are reusable, these shades are perfect for apartments, offices, skylights. Standard gray and bronze tints are available to fit patio doors or smaller windows.

For a free Sun Shade product booklet, call (800) 528- 4481.

Dead bolt locks require proper installation for maximum effect

BY DANNY LIPFORD
TODAY'S HOMEOWNER MAGAZINE

(AP) – I know from personal experience that burglars and vandals have a field day when they come across an exterior door unprotected by a dead bolt.

Even a door equipped with a high-quality lockset is an easy target because the latch might not extend far enough into the door frame to withstand a sharp kick. A well-placed boot will tear the strike plate loose and splinter the jamb, providing easy access to a house.

Installing a dead bolt in addition to the lockset you already have solved the problem.

When you buy a lock, don't look for bargains. There might not appear to be differences between a $6 dead bolt and a $16 model. But there are. Stick with a name brand. I've had good luck with Baldwin and Schlage hardware. If you're willing to spend an extra $10, you'll get a dead bolt three times as strong as the economy model.

Whichever brand you choose, look for a hardened-steel bolt that extends at least an inch into the doorjamb.

For doors that contain glass or entries with sidelights, I stay away from locks with a thumb latch on the inside. A burglar can break the glass and unlock the door. For these cases, a dead bolt with a key inside and outside is my favorite, but this choice is controversial because it makes it harder to get the door open in a hurry.

That is a concern in case of a fire, especially if you have kids.

In these cases, it's a good idea to keep a key near the door but out of sight and reach of someone on the outside. Some building codes require that at least one entry have a thumb-turn latch on the inside. Bottom line – check your local building code before deciding on which type to install.

Even a top-quality dead bolt is only as good as the weak link in the chain, and that's the doorjamb.

Some manufacturers reinforce the bolt with a steel pocket that is mounted in the jamb behind the strike plate. I like to go one step further. When we install dead bolts, we add an extra piece of steel strapping to make sure the bolt won't blow out the back of the jamb if it is kicked.

We take off the door casing and install the strapping on the inside edge of the jamb, right behind the strike plate.

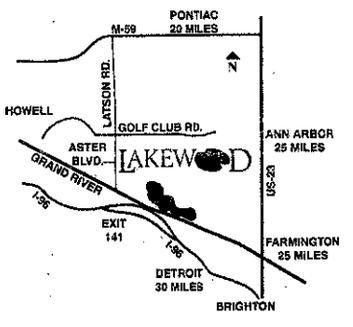

Use 2-inch screws, and rout a small hollow in the back of the casing to accommodate the strapping. We use flat stock about 3/4 inch wide by 1/8 inch thick by 6-to-8 inches long for the strapping; it's usually available at hardware stores and home centers.

Another tip: When installing the strike plate for the dead bolt, use 3-inch screws. These are long enough to penetrate the trimmer stud an inch.

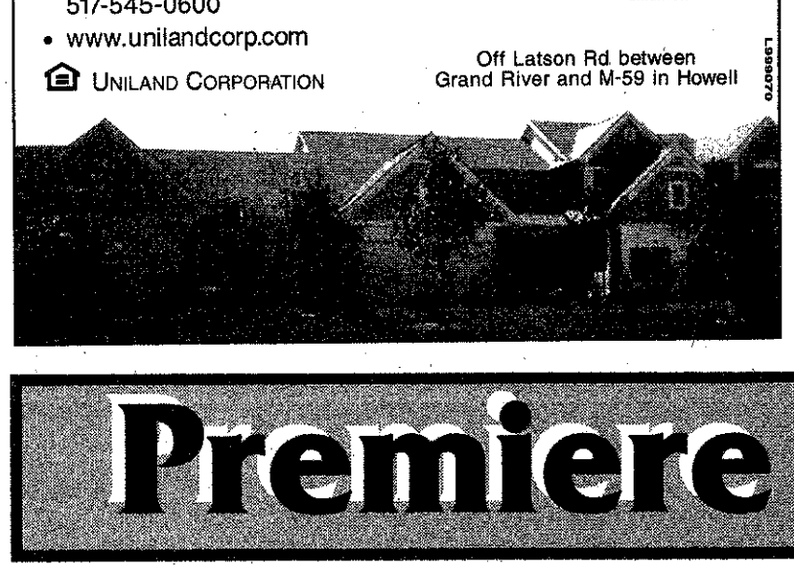

And while the casing is off, fill the void between the framing and the jamb with solid material. You'll get a strong, worry-free connection that frustrates potential burglars while you sleep soundly.

Relating to people is the key to retail

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

Being able to communicate well with customers is key if you're looking for a job in retail, according to local business owners and managers.

Samantha Williams owner of The Flower Pot is always looking for people "who can relate well with people and can talk to people." Flower designers are extremely hard to find, she added.

"If you look in the paper, you'll see that all flower shops are desperate for them," Williams said.

She also has a hard time finding people to greet customers and take care of the chores, like watering, vacuuming and doing other jobs at the Canton shop.

"In this business you have to go from dealing with a person who just lost a loved one and five minutes be happy for someone who is getting married or celebrating a birth," Williams said. "You have to be able to make them feel like they're special. Most of the people out here want to feel like they're the only customer you have and you have to give them all your attention."

Area residents aren't pounding down her doors looking for work, she added.

"There's no middle class out here," she added. "They're women who can stay at home and play tennis, or there's the executive woman."

Being a "hard worker and having a strong back" are prerequisites for employment at The Flower Pot.

She pays $8 an hour for employees without design backgrounds.

"I pay my people very well, because I believe that if you pay $6 an hour you get $6 an hour help," Williams said.

Some businesses, like Hillers Market with stores throughout southeast Michigan, are desperate to find workers considering the high unemployment rates in Michigan.

The unemployment rate in Michigan was 2.7 percent last February, which is the lowest its been since January 1978 when the U.S. Bureau of Labor and Statistics started its current compiling method. The unemployment rate peaked in 1982 when the figures reached 16.3 percent.

Be careful about those job promises

JOB SEARCH

GEORGE HAYES

Q. During the employment process, I was told that I would become a manager, but that I would have to work as a clerk during a probationary period. I accepted the position and a lower salary based upon these statements. A new manager was hired over me and I was told that advancement into the promised job was no longer a possibility. I was also told that this decision was not based upon my performance. I feel that I have been misled, but I have not discussed my concerns with management. I would still like to ask for an increase in pay. How should I handle these issues?

A. Every rule has exceptions, but this one has very few: Never accept a position based solely upon the expectation of advancement. Sure, you should ask about growth possibilities and the company's history of internal promotion. If you want to get a little more specific, find out what behaviors are necessary or what goals need to be achieved before advancement is possible. But take promises, projections and prognostications with a big grain of salt.

In business, a million things can happen between a promise and its realization. Most common is the sudden demise of the boss (or recruiter) who made the commitment. The new guy doesn't feel any obligation to honor what his predecessor told you and certainly doesn't see it as the company's pledge. Then there's the old one about business conditions having changed. And my personal favorite: "I don't recall talking about it at all."

for the Plymouth-Northville area of Hillers Market with stores in Plymouth, Northville, West Bloomfield, Walled Lake, Ann Arbor and Berkley, makes sure he makes time for prospective employees.

"Hiring is a priority with our company at this point – we need help," he said.

"I will stop whatever I'm doing to talk to people who are filling out applications. We need help.

"It's vital in our customer oriented business that we have enough employees to service our customers. It's always difficult to obtain help," Whetstone added.

Whetstone said "we can train and mold anyone into a position in our company and it's a matter of people coming in and applying."

Geographics and economics play the biggest role in employment vacancies, he said.

"You have certain areas where people come in and apply and in other, higher income, areas they do not come in," Whetstone said.

Cashiers, baggers and stockers are non-professional jobs that usually won't attract people with college degrees and others who are looking for high incomes.

A large portion of Hillers Market employees live in Livonia, Plymouth and Westland, he said adding that he tries to encourage those people to travel to the West Bloomfield, Northville and Walled Lake stores.

The starting salary for clerk/cashiers at Hillers is $8.45 an hour. The store is unionized.

Kent Commer, a consultant for Little Book Shoppe in downtown Plymouth, looks for maturity, reliability and employees who can communicate well with customers.

Understanding the interests of a wide range of people, from children to senior citizens, is important, too.

"We want someone who is in tune with the whole spectrum and be conscious of what a senior citizen would want from a book store," Commer said, adding that being "timely and showing up consistently" are other good attributes.

"It's not a problem with current employees, but with some of the ones we've had in the past," he added.

Finding employees is "harder than it used to be," he said, adding however, that the book store hasn't needed to vill vacancies much lately.

"People tend to want to have a lot of flexibility and can't commit for long periods of time," Commer said. "They're looking for short stints."

While some managers are desperate to find employees, others, like the owner of Weatherall Crafts in Redford, are swamped by people inquiring about work.

"I don't have a problem at all finding people to work," explained Weatherall Crafts owner Sue Holycross.

"It's a fun job," Holycross said. "People who do crafts are a nice crowd. I bet I get a call a week to see if I'm hiring."

Ory Schiesel, whose wife, Jan, owns Copper Cricket in Westland doesn't have a problem finding qualified people to work, either.

In fact, they usually hire former customers.

"You have to have an interest or knowledge of a collectible store," Schiesel said. "The people who have been here stay four or five years."

Pam Brown, manager of The Jewelry Factory in Livonia, laughed when she explained that "of course" employees can't have a criminal record. But, there are no other specific qualifications.

"We train them here," she said.

People tend to like working for a jewelry store, Brown said adding that The Jewelry Factory employees often keep their jobs for a long time.

Typically, the romance that surrounded the hiring process evaporates quickly after you are on board. As an unknown, you looked like the firm's savior. As a known, you look like just another employee. Yeah, your performance is OK to good, but how can we promote you over Sally who has been here for six years? It appears that you actually have a few, well, weaknesses.

Once you are hired, you are identified with the position you are in, not the one to which you aspire. You are seen, regarded and evaluated in your current job. You might think of it as waiting in the wings. Your associates think of it as a bona fide occupation. To them, you are a clerk – not a manager in clerk's clothing. And the more time that passes, the harder it will become to see you as anything else.

I wouldn't let this go on much longer. Your silence might be interpreted as acceptance or you could be viewed as someone who can be pushed around. Speak up soon. Ask for the money.

Now, even though you might be steamed, the idea is to be nice but firm.

Acura CL 2001
Truly a luxury ride
It's bright, bold and demands attention

BY STEVE SCHAEFER
AUTOWIRE.NET

What kind of color is that my wife asked upon her first sight of my Acura CL test car. "Sundance Gold," I replied, but I knew what she meant. It was bright, bold and the car demanded attention. Sure, the CL, all new for 2001, looks great in silver, black, or even white, but gold? A trio of young girls in an old Mustang zoomed past me on the freeway with thumbs up and smiles, so someone liked it.

Acura, Honda's purveyor of premium motorcars, has completely upgraded its luxury coupe. The new car is two inches longer and a half-inch wider than the 1996-vintage model, and wears a much more serious expression.

The new CL flaunts today's trendy edges, with what Acura calls its "signature pentagram grille" up front, an origami fold along each side and culminating in triangular taillights. Overall, it's handsome and clean, but it takes the super bright gold paint to truly attract attention.

Honda's famous VTEC engine technology gives the 3.2-liter V6 plenty of juice. Unlike in the original CL, a six-cylinder engine is the sole powerplant, with either 225 horsepower in the 3.2 CL or a hefty 260 hp in the Type S. Today's engines employ a bevy of clever electronic and mechanical tricks to eke out maximum power and fuel mileage, and a chance of meeting California's Low Emissions Vehicle standards. Honda's decades of racing experience and knowledge gleaned from its NSX sportscar serve the company well.

The Type S gets its extra 35 horsepower the old-fashioned way — better breathing. The Super CL uses a dual-stage induction system, low-restriction dual-outlet exhaust, larger diameter throttle body, and a higher compression ratio, along with special intake valves, camshafts, and cylinder heads. It all adds up to a jet like acceleration, with surprisingly good fuel economy ratings of 19 city and 29 highway on premium fuel.

The 260-horsepower engine receives California Low Emission Vehicle status, while the standard model garners an even better Ultra Low Emission Vehicle (ULEV) rating.

Acura's electronically controlled five-speed automatic comes with both engines. The extra gear means quicker acceleration in low gear and higher fuel economy in overdrive high. However, if you want to control the shift points, you can pull the shift lever to the left and select your own gears, using Acura's Sequential SportShift system.

The CL is a luxury ride, loaded with items like a six-speaker Acura/Bose sound system with a six-disk in-dash CD player and fully automatic climate control with air filtration. Also throw in are heated front seats, a power moon roof, leather-trimmed seats with memory, a tip-down right hand mirror for curb avoidance maneuvers, steering wheel controls for audio and cruise control, and keyless remote control.

For safety, CL models get front and side airbags, Xenon High Intensity Discharge (HID) headlights, king-size four-wheel disk brakes with anti-lock, and a fantastic traction control system.

The Type S also receives Vehicle Stability Assist (VSA). VSA electronically monitors and controls the throttle, fuel injection and brake systems to integrate the safety systems and keep the car on track automatically in situations where traction is lost or quick accident-avoidance maneuvers become necessary.

The Type S interior features perforated leather seats and steering wheel, a metallic-faced gauge panel and a unique shift knob. My car, with the ebony interior, had a black-tinted wood-grain appliqué that looked like genuine wood.

A navigation system ($2,000) is the only option. In my test car, it worked easily and intuitively, with a matte-finish touch screen, brilliant colors, and a slightly accented female voice prompt. This was an advanced DVD (Digital Versatile Disk) system, containing data for the entire continental United States, not just a single state, and more than 3.7 million points of interest.

At 3,500 pounds, the CL feels solid and strong, but not ponderous. A four-wheel independent, double wishbone suspension with stabilizer bars and a shock tower bar put a spring in the CL's step. The Type S adds firmer springs, increased damping rates and a larger stabilizer bar for enhanced cornering.

The standard CL gets 16-inch wheels and tires, but the Type S sports 215/50R17 Michelin Pilot V-rated tires on sharp, 17-inch alloys.

I was surprised to discover three interior assembly glitches, two on the driver's door and one on the center console. These were not functional defects, but took a little something away from the air of absolute perfection.

It is easy to get comfortable in the CL, even in back. The seats slide forward electrically to admit rear passengers, then slide back into position. But the best position is in the driver's seat, on the open road, under a clear sky.

The bottom line for my fully loaded Type S was $32,810. The CL list prices begin at $27,980.

Acura CL 2001
Truly a luxury ride

AUTOWIRE.NET

What kind of color is that my wife asked upon her first sight of my Acura CL test car. "Sundance Gold," I replied, but I knew what she meant. It was bright, bold and the car demanded attention. Sure, the CL, all new for 2001, looks great in silver, black, or even white, but gold? A trio of young girls in an old Mustang zoomed past me on the freeway with thumbs up and smiles, so someone liked it.

Acura, Honda's purveyor of premium motorcars, has completely upgraded its luxury coupe. The new car is two inches longer and a half-inch wider than the 1996-vintage model, and wears a much more serious expression.

The new CL flaunts today's trendy edges, with what Acura calls its "signature pentagram grille" up front, an origami fold along each side and culminating in triangular taillights. Overall, it's handsome and clean, but it takes the super bright gold paint to truly attract attention.

Honda's famous VTEC engine technology gives the 3.2-liter V6 plenty of juice. Unlike in the original CL, a six-cylinder engine is the sole powerplant, with either 225 horsepower in the 3.2 CL or a hefty 260 hp in the Type S. Today's engines employ a bevy of clever electronic and mechanical tricks to eke out maximum power and fuel mileage, and a chance of meeting California's Low Emissions Vehicle standards. Honda's decades of racing experience and knowledge gleaned from its NSX sportscar serve the company well.

The Type S gets its extra 35 horsepower the old-fashioned way — better breathing. The Super CL uses a dual-stage induction system, low-restriction dual-outlet exhaust, larger diameter throttle body, and a higher compression ratio, along with special intake valves, camshafts, and cylinder heads. It all adds up to a jet like acceleration, with surprisingly good fuel economy ratings of 19 city and 29 highway on premium fuel.

The 260-horsepower engine receives California Low Emission Vehicle status, while the standard model garners an even better Ultra Low Emission Vehicle (ULEV) rating.

Acura's electronically controlled five-speed automatic comes with both engines. The extra gear means quicker acceleration in low gear and higher fuel economy in overdrive high. However, if you want to control the shift points, you can pull the shift lever to the left and select your own gears, using Acura's Sequential SportShift system.

The CL is a luxury ride, loaded with items like a six-speaker Acura/Bose sound system with a six-disk in-dash CD player and fully automatic climate control with air filtration. Also throw in are heated front seats, a power moon roof, leather-trimmed seats with memory, a tip-down right hand mirror for curb avoidance maneuvers, steering wheel controls for audio and cruise control, and keyless remote control.

For safety, CL models get front and side airbags, Xenon High Intensity Discharge (HID) headlights, king-size four-wheel disk brakes with anti-lock, and a fantastic traction control system.

The Type S also receives Vehicle Stability Assist (VSA). VSA electronically monitors and controls the throttle, fuel injection and brake systems to integrate the safety systems and keep the car on track automatically in situations where traction is lost or quick accident-avoidance maneuvers become necessary.

The Type S interior features perforated leather seats and steering wheel, a metallic-faced gauge panel and a unique shift knob. My car, with the ebony interior, had a black-tinted wood-grain appliqué that looked like genuine wood.

A navigation system ($2,000) is the only option. In my test car, it worked easily and intuitively, with a matte-finish touch screen, brilliant colors, and a slightly accented female voice prompt. This was an advanced DVD (Digital Versatile Disk) system, containing data for the entire continental United States, not just a single state, and more than 3.7 million points of interest.

At 3,500 pounds, the CL feels solid and strong, but not ponderous. A four-wheel independent, double wishbone suspension with stabilizer bars and a shock tower bar put a spring in the CL's step. The Type S adds firmer springs, increased damping rates and a larger stabilizer bar for enhanced cornering.

The standard CL gets 16-inch wheels and tires, but the Type S sports 215/50R17 Michelin Pilot V-rated tires on sharp, 17-inch alloys.

I was surprised to discover three interior assembly glitches, two on the driver's door and one on the center console. These were not functional defects, but took a little something away from the air of absolute perfection.

It is easy to get comfortable in the CL, even in back. The seats slide forward electrically to admit rear passengers, then slide back into position. But the best position is in the driver's seat, on the open road, under a clear sky.

The bottom line for my fully loaded Type S was $32,810. The CL list prices begin at $27,980.
