Search is on for fire marshal

The township board has hired an Ann Arbor-based consulting firm to aid in its search for a new fire marshal. There are two candidates from within the department, according to Canton Fire Chief Mike Rorabacher.

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

Canton trustees last week took steps toward hiring a new fire marshal and approved hiring a consulting firm that specializes in testing police and fire employees to see if they are good candidates for particular jobs.

The Canton Township Board Nov. 14 voted 6-0 with Supervisor Tom Yack absent to approve hiring Career Directions of Ann Arbor for $5,000.

The evaluation process will consist of an oral examination, a personal interview and the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator assessment, a personality profile test.

Canton Fire Chief Mike Rorabacher said there are two internal candidates interested in the fire marshal position – Frank Barrett and Greg Sprys-Tellner, both fire inspectors. By union contract, both men are considered eligible for the fire marshal job. Barrett has been with the department 15 years and Spry-Tellner for 12.

If both candidates pass the tests, the decision about whom to hire will be based on seniority. Because both inspectors are familiar with the technical aspects of the job, they will not have to take a written test, Rorabacher said.

But the other part of the job requires extensive people skills. Fire marshals must not only give fire safety demonstrations to school children but enforce fire code.

Rolling 'Mayflower' unites two schools for holiday feast

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

The Mayflower arrived at a Van Buren elementary school last week filled with Pilgrims prepared to feast with Indians on turkey, potatoes, stuffing and pumpkin pie.

Students from Elwell Elementary dressed as Pilgrims and visited Tyler Elementary, where students dressed as Indians served up the traditional Thanksgiving fare.

The "Mayflower" was actually a school bus, filled with Elwell students who met the Tyler students in the parking lot. The Tyler students presented their Pilgrim dinner guests with beaded necklaces made of colored pasta and yarn.

Tyler third-grade teacher Nancy Markel said the feast is a better way to teach students about Thanksgiving than reading from a book.

"(Students) are actually able to experience the first Thanksgiving firsthand," she said.

Elwell fourth-grade teacher Lynn Lapointe said, "They learn about the Pilgrims and the Indians, and they just love meeting students from other classes."

Surplus feast food went to the Belleville First United Methodist Church's food closet and to area needy families.

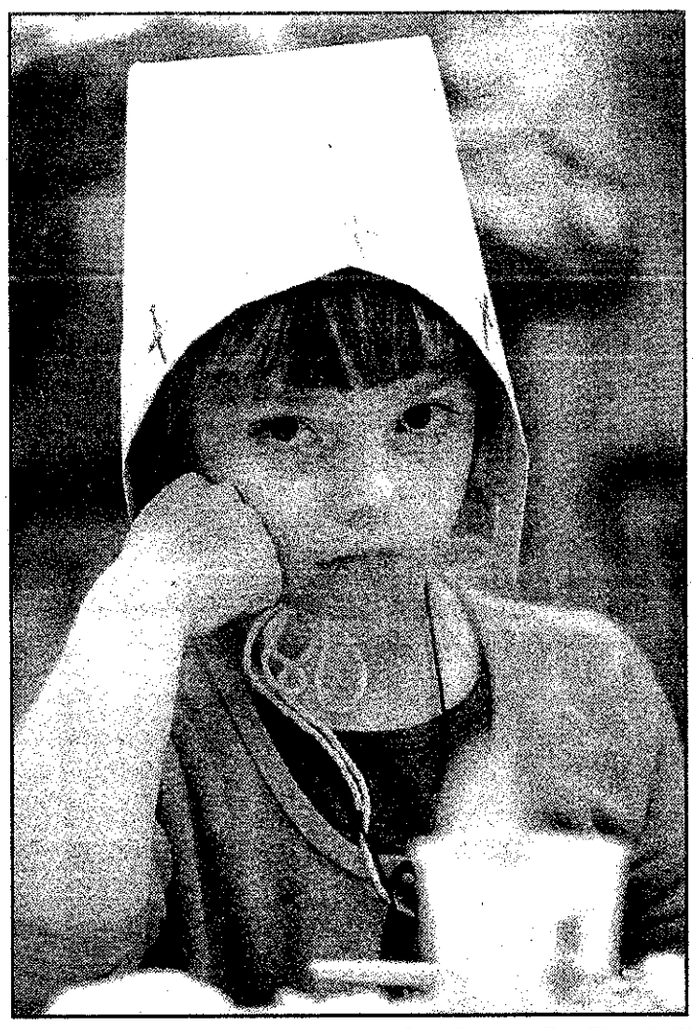

Students said the mock first Thanksgiving feast was fun – and a good excuse to chow on their favorite foods.

"I like it because we celebrate the Indians," said Emily Marshall, 8, a Tyler third grader. "They shared with the Pilgrims."

Robert Lewis, 10, a Tyler third grader, said "It's fun having different kinds of people around."

Deante McCullough, 9, also a Tyler third grader, had a simple answer to his favorite part about Thanksgiving.

"The food," he said.

Blaze destroys mobile home

A Canton man whose home burned down to a pile of ashes early Saturday morning has turned down offers for help despite being uninsured for the loss.

Kenneth Wood, whose Sherwood Estates mobile home burned down Saturday, is living with family, according to Capt. Jim Davison of the Canton Fire Department. Attempts to reach Wood for comment were unsuccessful.

Davison, spokesman for the Canton Firefighters Charity Foundation, said Wood turned down offers for help from the group. The foundation has helped other Canton families left homeless from fires and other disasters, such as

MEMORIAL TREES

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

Canton has started a program that will allow people to honor or memorialize loved ones and also provide needed benches and trees for the community's parks.

The as yet unnamed program will give people the opportunity to purchase trees or park benches with their loved ones' names on them, said Ann Conklin, leisure services director.

The township board approved the program at its regular meeting Nov. 14. The program's proposed name, "Memorial Bench and Tree Program" will be changed so that living persons can be included.

"(The program) pays for itself," said Conklin, who oversaw a similar program in Oakland County's Independence Township, where she formerly worked. "Parks will have some much-needed amenities added to them and it's a good way to remember somebody or honor somebody."

Under the program, donors would pay for the products and installation, and the township would provide maintenance.

The first person memorialized with a tree and bench was Elaine Weiss, a longtime Public Safety employee who

'Captain' comes to life with help of Hoben student

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM

Captain Underpants, a 40-foot tall children's book hero armed with a big smile and plunger, will be coming to life as one of the balloon floats in the 74th America's Thanksgiving Parade in Detroit, thanks to the artistic vision of a Canton boy.

More parade participants, A11

Nick Purcell, a Hoben Elementary fifth-grader, was one of two winners of the Skillman Foundation Float and Balloon Design Contest. Purcell's pencil, colored pencil and glitter drawing of Captain Underpants has been made into a balloon float.

Purcell said he was inspired to enter the balloon design contest after reading Dav Pilkey's children's book, "Captain Underpants and the Attack of the Talking Toilet," which was published in 1999. It is one of a series of tongue-in-cheek adventures featuring Captain Underpants.

"I started reading the book and got an idea about (a drawing)," Purcell said. "I think (creating art) is very natural to me. If you try your hardest, you can do it."

He said he's looking into pursuing art as a career, and might take college classes to see if it's what he wants to do.

Leo McManimon, Purcell's teacher,

"Most (fire) code enforcement involves telling people things they don't necessarily want to hear," he said. For instance, sometimes a fire marshal has to tell a business owner that they're required to put in a sprinkler system, which is very costly.

Balancing the roles of code enforcer with fire prevention educator requires the right fire marshal candidate to possess the "patience of a saint," Rorabacher said.

As a code enforcer, the ideal fire marshal should be more concerned with educating people about fire code than writing tickets and taking violators to court, he added.

Documents presented to the board described the fire marshal position as such:

"The fire marshal position requires technical ability and extensive people skills. It is most important to have someone in that position who can interact positively. The Fire Prevention Bureau personnel are the cornerstone of the fire education program and are constantly in the public eye with their fire safety demonstrations and the fire safety house."

The previous fire marshal, Dave Champagne, stepped down in August after serving since May 1997. He replaced longtime fire marshal Art Winkel, who retired in January 1997.

Champagne was out of town and unavailable for comment.

a gas explosion Aug. 7 that destroyed a Canton couple's home.

"We offered and he declined," Davison said, adding that he was surprised. "Usually the hands are out – he said he doesn't really need or want our help."

The foundation raises money through community fund-raisers and through tax-deductible donations.

A cause has not yet been determined for the fire, which destroyed Wood's mobile home and damaged three others.

No one was injured in the 5:54 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 18 fire in Sherwood mobile home park, located on Haggerty south of Michigan. The blaze caused about $70,000-$80,000 damage to four mobile homes and a storage shed.

More specific damage figures will be available once the residents' insurance companies survey the damage.

Three adjacent homes received extensive heat damage, said Canton Fire Chief Mike Rorabacher.

"We believe it to be accidental," he said of the suspected cause. "There didn't seem to be any motive for arson."

Canton Police and Fire units responded following a 911 call from a neighbor's residence. Upon arrival, firefighters found the mobile home completely engulfed in flames. Firefighters also had mobile homes on either side and to the rear of the above address directly exposed to the fire. All occupants were able to exit their homes without injury.

Neighbor Adrienne Georgeson, whose mobile home sustained some damage to the skirting, witnessed the fire.

"It was unbelievable," Georgeson said. "It went up so quickly – it was scary."

Canton firefighters quickly brought the fire under control.

The Canton Fire Investigation Unit, consisting of both firefighters and police officers, is investigating the fire scene to determine the cause and origin of the fire.

Holiday crafts for kids focus of workshop

Do you need extra time to do some last minute Christmas shopping? Well here's your chance.

Drop your children (ages six to eleven) off for a day at Summit on the Park. While you're circling the parking lot for a parking spot at the local mall, your children will be constructing holiday crafts, playing games and swimming with the Summit Day Camp and Preschool staff.

The workshop is being held from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. on Sat., Dec. 2 and Sat., Dec. 9 in the Arts I room. The cost per child is $34 for an Annual Pass Holder, $38 for a Canton resident, and $50 for a non-resident. Space is limited and registration must be conducted in person at Summit on the Park, 46000 Summit Parkway.

Children attending need to bring a swimsuit, towel, lunch and drink. For more information, call Summit on the Park at (734) 397-5110.

Trustees meet Tuesdays

The Canton Township Board of Trustees meets on the second and fourth Tuesday each month at the administration building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

Regular meetings begin at 7 p.m. in the meeting room on the first floor.

There is a citizens comment section at the beginning of each meeting.

Agendas are available from the Canton Township Clerk's office on the day of the meeting or from the township Web site: www.Canton-mi.org died of cancer in 1999. Canton Police Capt. Alex Wilson helped push for the program so that Weiss could be memorialized.

The dedication of Weiss' tree and bench was Nov. 17 in Heritage Park, near the gazebo.

"People in the department wanted to do something as a remembrance of her," Wilson said. "They wanted to do something as a department."

He said Weiss had many admirable qualities.

"She certainly was a very conscientious, hard-working industrious person," Wilson said. "She was very caring – but she also had a mischievous streak."

People wishing to honor or memorialize someone with a tree or bench may buy:

St. Joseph Mercy sets Holiday Ball for Dec. 2

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital-Ann Arbor is presenting its 25th Anniversary Holiday Ball 6 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2 at the Michigan League, 911 N. University Ave., Ann Arbor.

This year's event is entitled "The Grand Ball: Celebrating St. Joe's Past, Present and Future." Proceeds will benefit the Campaign for Women's Health, a $13.5 million fund-raising project to construct a Women's Health Center on St. Joe's campus. The goal of the 2000 Holiday Ball Steering Committee is to raise $600,000 for the Women's Health Campaign through this event.

The event will recognize the work of 25 past chairs of the Holiday Ball. Vintage photographs and memorabilia from past Holiday Ball events will be featured, and a keepsake book on the history of the Holiday Ball has been produced to honor the volunteers and past chairs who have worked on this annual event. Jan Lyons, a long-time hospital volunteer, chairs this year's event. Tickets to the Holiday Ball are $1,000 or $1,250 per couple; corporate tables for 8 or 10 guests are $5,000 and $7,500, respectively. Underwriting opportunities are also available. Holiday-themed decorations, including trees, from "The Grand Ball" are also for sale the week before the Holiday Ball. Please call the Development Office at St. Joe's at (734) 712-4040 for more information.

said he wasn't surprised he was one of the winners.

"He's very artistic and creative," McManimon said, adding that Purcell has done some good political cartoons. "He has a wonderful sense of humor."

Jasmine Weddle, a third-grader at Immaculate Heart of Mary in Detroit was another winner, for her drawing of "Preposterous Rhinoceros," which has been made into a float. Both she and Purcell will walk alongside their respective displays.

The two winners, their families, school teachers and principals attended an unveiling of the float and balloon at the Parade Studio, 9600 Mt. Elliott, in Detroit Monday.

"We were delighted with the response to the contest and the extremely high caliber of this year's entries," said Kari Schlachtenhaufen, interim president of the Skillman Foundation. "It was wonderful to see so many children wanting to be involved in some way in the parade, a truly cherished Detroit tradition."

SPOTLIGHT ON YOUR PET Veterinary Notes

by Elizabeth Routson, D.V.M.

FELINE ASTHMA

Feline asthma is an immune system reaction in cats that is similar to the human condition. It causes bronchitis and inflammation in the cat's lungs. During an attack, the cat may suffer a gagging cough and show signs of respiratory distress. Breathing may be slow and deliberate or fast and labored. Vomiting, sneezing, and wheezing can also occur. Feline asthma can be caused by inhaled allergens and irritants; bacterial infections; and parasites, including heartworm. Because feline asthma can mimic several other illnesses, including heart disease, bacterial pneumonia, toxoplasmosis, and cancer, a proper diagnosis is critical for effective treatment. The veterinarian will try to identify the source of the cat's symptoms. Corticosteroids and bronchodilators are often used to treat the condition.

When your cat needs medical care, please come to PARKWAY VETERINARY CLINIC. We provide comprehensive, compassionate veterinary care for pets. Our reputation for expert care is well-deserved - please don't hesitate to ask questions of our knowledgeable staff, including Drs. Bunt and Hill. We treat your pet as if it were our own. Wayne-Westland names Junior Miss

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER
jbrown@oe.homecomm.net

■ The 34th annual program was to award more than $15,000 in scholarships, the highest in its history. The girls spent hundreds of hours in preparation, all the while keeping up with their studies, according to Charlotte Sherman, assistant superintendent for general administration.

The stage at Adams Middle School held 18 girls Saturday night. All were winners, with Teresa Soleau of John Glenn High School named 2001 Wayne-Westland Junior Miss.

"Tonight, they will all walk away a winner," said Patricia Hermatz, co-chair with husband Dennis for the Wayne-Westland program. Outstanding high school senior girls are featured, this year 14 from John Glenn and four from Wayne Memorial High.

Soleau, daughter of Marvin and Christine Soleau, will go to the state scholarship program next March in Alpena. The girl chosen there will represent Michigan at nationals in June 2001 in Mobile, Ala.

Speakers Saturday included Charlotte Sherman, assistant superintendent for general administration for Wayne-Westland schools. She said school bond construction made the temporary move to Adams necessary.

Sherman noted the 34th annual program was to award more than $15,000 in scholarships, the highest in its history. The girls spent hundreds of hours in preparation, she added, all the while keeping up with their studies.

Soleau plans to attend Oberlin College in Ohio, studying art history and becoming a librarian or museum curator. She was just one of many talented teens on stage.

Others included: Mary Patillo, second finalist; Lindsy Katoch, first finalist; Angela Peterson, third runner-up; Martha Crofts, second runner-up; and Melissa Nichols, first runner-up.

Saturday was time for 2001 Wayne-Westland Junior Miss Brooke Robertson, a John Glenn graduate, to say goodbye.

"Junior Miss has influenced my life in a number of ways," Robertson said. She met many people and her confidence got a boost.

Robertson's pleased to be a role model for young girls. The Eastern Michigan University student's also a Westland Police Explorer.

Judges for the local Junior Miss program based their decisions on scholastics (20 percent), interview (25 percent), talent (25 percent), fitness (15 percent) and poise (15 percent).

Masters of ceremonies Saturday were Courtney Cagnon, 1999 Michigan Junior Miss, and Randall Bhirdo, a WXYZ-TV Channel 7 meteorologist.

Q&A

Q: Why do leaves turn color and fall

A: In the fall, deciduous trees turn carbohydrates in their leaves into sugars and move them into twigs, bud and down their roots for storage. Leaf cells then break down, starting with the chloroplasts, which contain the green pigment chlorophyll. This process reveals the yellows, reds and oranges that were present all along in the leaves but were hidden under green. After a dormant winter, the trees will use that stored sugar to feed spring growth.

Arts tax supporters will try again

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
STAFF WRITER

Despite their defeat, proponents of the Cultural Tax are not giving up yet. Plans are under way to put the issue before voters in two years.

"That is the goal, to see if we can do it again," said Steve Hamp, chairman of the Cultural Coalition of Southeast Michigan and president of Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village. "In many of the communities that have succeeded with community cultural taxes, they have had to do it (get it on the ballot) more than once."

According to Ed Bagale, Coalition member and Lansing lobbyist for the University of Michigan-Dearborn, work will begin soon to get the issue before voters in 2002.

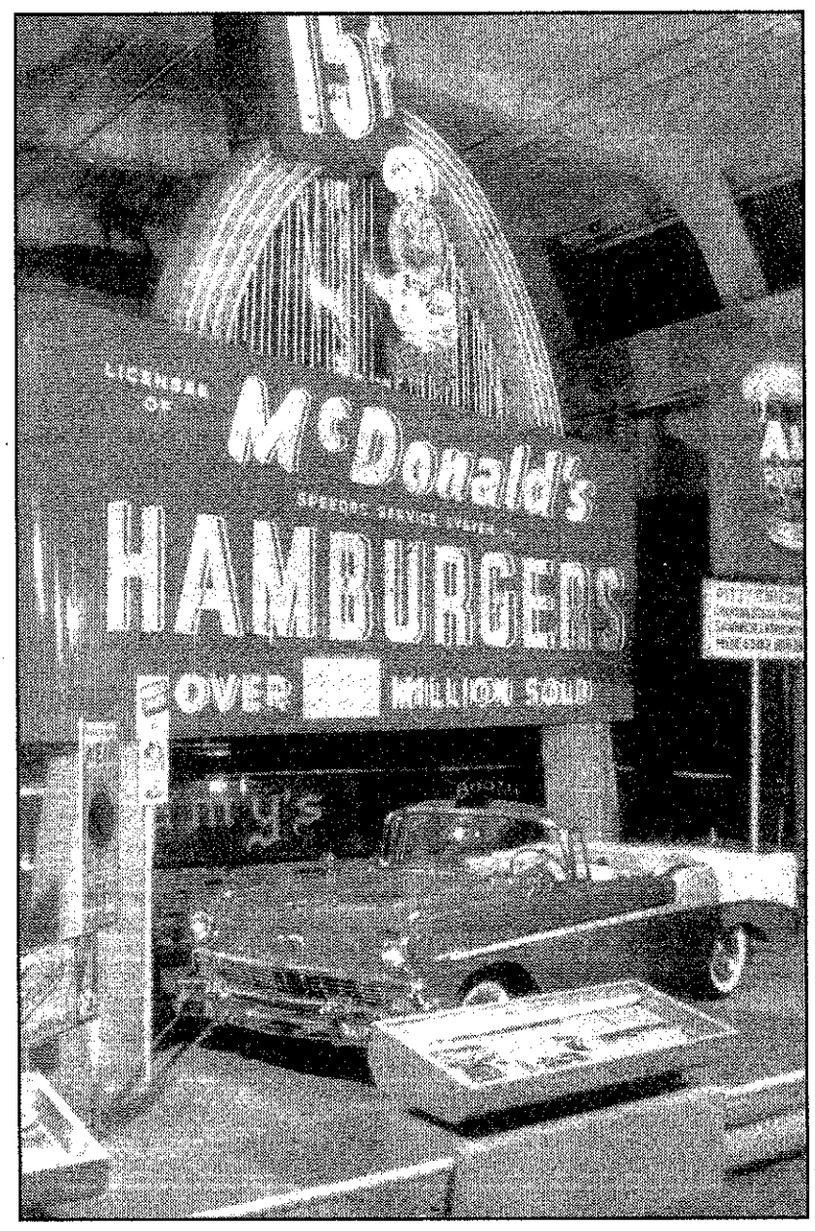

"We need to begin immediately," he said. "Two years is not that far away."

Coalition members spent the last six years working to secure an on-going, albeit temporary, funding source for state and local cultural gems. Voters shot down the Coalition's work Nov. 7 by less than 1 percent in Oakland county and 5 percent in Wayne county.

"We lost by less than two votes per precinct in Wayne County," Bagale said.

If passed, Proposal A would have raised over $44 million annually for parks and cultural centers throughout Wayne and Oakland counties over the next 10 years. Two-thirds of the money would have gone to 17 major cultural centers, such as Henry Ford Museum, Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Cranbrook Institute of Science, while one-third would have gone to local communities for cultural or recreation programs.

"One-third of the money from Westland voters would've been used for parks and cultural activities in Westland," said Anne Masterson, director of communications for Detroit Renaissance, a group charged with improving quality of life for Detroiters.

HENRY FORD MUSEUM

American culture: This McDonald's exhibit is part of Henry Ford Museum's celebration of the automobile. The museum is one of the 17 major institutions that would have benefited from the arts tax.

Assessing the situation

Coalition members are in the process of finding out why the proposal failed.

"It is so hard to speculate when we lost by such a slim margin," said Masterson. She believes "voucher confusion and the short window of opportunity we had to get the message out were the biggest challenges."

The group bought airtime days before the election to let people know that Proposal A was different from Proposal 1 (school voucher plan.)

"In the polling that we did before the election, it was clear to us that there was a lot of confusion in people's minds. They were confusing us with vouchers," said Masterson.

Bagale hopes to start educating voters about Proposal A and its beneficiaries months before the 2002 vote.

"We know from the last election that when we reached them with the message, they were very excited," he said.

As the group gears up for another vote, Coalition members will focus attention on western Wayne, north Oakland and downriver communities.

"We need to make them feel like they are connected better," said Bagale. "In north Oakland County, we could have gone in there with the Pope and it still would've failed."

On the flip side, Proposal A passed overwhelmingly in communities closest to Detroit.

Had Proposal A passed, money would have been diverted to the following institutions:

Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village; Music Hall; Cranbrook Institute of Science, Art Museum, House and Gardens; Meadow Brook Hall and Theatre; WTVS-Public Television; Detroit Science Center; Holocaust Memorial Center; Detroit Historical Museum; Detroit Zoo; Detroit Symphony Orchestra; Museum of African American History; Michigan Opera Theatre; Detroit Institute of Arts; and Center for Creative Studies.

Salvation Army begins kettle campaign

DETROIT, Nov. 20 /PRNewswire/ -- Though its ubiquitous red kettles appeared [illegible] locations over the weekend, The Salvation Army will officially kick off its 2000 Christmas Kettle Campaign during the Detroit Aglow Tree Lighting at Hart Plaza Monday evening. The kickoff will serve to stir up public support for The Salvation Army and announce the campaign's $4.6 million goal.

More than 250 kettle locations will be active between Thanksgiving and Christmas in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties. In addition, many thousands of households will receive direct mail pieces asking for contributions to support the Army's holiday efforts. Whether a person is greeted by a bell ringer on the street corner or opens their mailbox and sees the familiar red shield, The Salvation Army asks that the public respond by supporting its work with people in need.

Col. Franklyn Thompson, who directs The Salvation Army in east Michigan, said, "Time and time again the people in metro Detroit prove that this is one of the most giving communities in the nation. I believe that is because people here realize just how much we depend on their support to continue our work with those in need. Even more, they can see that in many cases there isn't much that separates the 'haves' from the 'have nots.' A few weeks of unemployment or some other misfortune and the tables might be completely turned."

The Salvation Army is, a leading provider of human services in the area. In a given year, the Army provides 300,000 nights of shelter and serves more than 1.4 million meals to the homeless and hungry. In all, The Salvation Army provides roughly 3 million direct services to the community each year.

Between Thanksgiving and Christmas, The Salvation Army expects to assist 100,000 individuals in the tri-county area. Typical forms of assistance include holiday meals, toy and gift distribution, utility payments, grocery vouchers, nursing home visitation and winter coats for children. In 1999, the Christmas Kettle Campaign raised more than $4.5 million. Roughly 35 percent of this total was raised through kettle collections and 65 percent through direct mail responses.

The Salvation Army Kettle Campaign continues through Saturday, December 23. To make a contribution, simply stop by the nearest kettle or call 248-443-5500 to contact The Salvation Army center in your area.

Madonna University Chorale to perform Bach

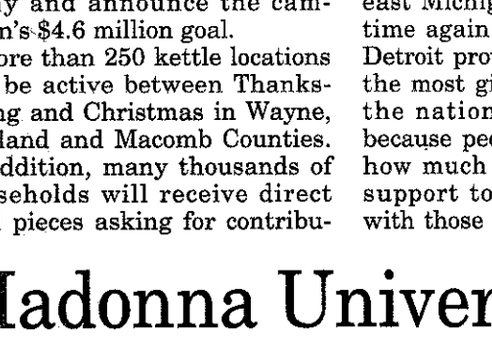

The Madonna University Chorale presents the Magnificat of Johann Sebastian Bach 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 10, at Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church and 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17, in the Felician Sisters' Motherhous Chapel. The chorale, which is comprised of students, faculty and local community members, is conducted by Dr. David Wagner, associate professor of music at Madonna University.

One of the few choral works in which J.S. Bach used Latin text, the Magnificat was composed premiere during Vespers on Christmas Day in 1723, at the church of St. Nicholas in Leipzig, Germany.

To commemorate the 250th anniversary of J.S. Bach's death, the chorale will be accompanied at both performances by the Emerald Sinfonietta, under the direction of Felix Resnick.

The public is welcome to attend. Tickets are $20 for adults and $15 for students and seniors. Children under 12 are free when accompanied by an adult. A portion of the proceeds will benefit Madonna University music scholarships.

Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church is at 211 Moross Road in Grosse Pointe Farms. For more information, call David Wagner at (734)432-5708 or by e-mail at wagner@smtp.munet.edu

Plans for historic Wilcox property unveiled

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

How big is too big for downtown Plymouth?

That question may be answered soon as city leaders discuss a proposed high-rise condominium project for the 2.15 acres known as the Wilcox property on Penniman Street.

D&P Ventures has presented its blueprints for a $10 million condominium enterprise to the Plymouth planning commission. And, while almost everyone on the commission agrees that aesthetically the project would be a positive for downtown Plymouth, most are concerned the six-story structure will dwarf the city's crown jewel, Kellogg Park.

"I think that's what we're going to hear the most at the public hearing, a lot of concern from the public on height," said Doug Miller, planning commission chairman. "You're going to get a lot of positive feedback on the quality, but the height will be a concern."

"It looks like seven stories with the loft apartments," added Rosita Smith, planning commissioner. "Kellogg Park is a treasure to the city, and it seems this will block it. People are wondering if we'll have tall buildings overlooking the park."

Despite the concerns, Stan Dickson of D&P Ventures believes the setbacks from the street will make the building look smaller than it really is.

"It may be big, but it's massively beautiful," said Dickson.

■ Most are concerned the six-story structure will dwarf the city's crown jewel, Kellogg Park.

"It won't dwarf the park."

Plymouth city commissioners recently passed an ordinance that limits construction around Kellogg Park to a height of 50 feet, or approximately four stories. However, D&P Ventures made its project application a Planned Unit Development, in which the city can overlook the height ordinance for the 75-foot high structure in exchange for having more control of what is planned on the property.

Dickson told planning commissioners they should consider his six-story structure because he is leaving the nearly 100-year-old Wilcox House as part of the plan, as well as a copper beech tree, which at 150 years is the second oldest of its kind in the state.

"We've already given up substantial square footage in the interests of everyone," said Dickson. "We've analyzed all the possibilities. We can go fewer stories, but we won't have the same amenities. There are financial considerations."

Co-developer Tom Pomarolli, who will soon be moving to Plymouth, said the project is giving up more than 40,000 square feet of selling space to keep the house and tree.

"That's why we need to be compensated with the additional two floors," said Pomarolli.

"We could build a structure that is 50-75 percent larger than this with a flat roof, and go four stories. But, that's not in the best interest of everyone," said Dickson.

When asked by Smith if lowering the height would mean the end for the house and tree, Dickson replied, "That's certainly an option."

Architect Joe Philips of Plymouth presented the project to the planning commission, telling commissioners, "It's what Jack (Wilcox) wanted. We met with Jack at Ernesto's on Feb. 8 and showed him the plans, and he was just floored."

Wilcox signed over the deed to the property, agreeing to plans for a four-to-six story structure, just before his death on June 30.

The main entrance to the condos will be on Elizabeth Street. There will be three areas with covered walkways to enter the building, with 41 parking spaces outside, 12 carport spaces, and 48 spaces underground.

"We paid meticulous attention to detail with the windows, awnings, dormers, chimneys ... a traditional look with brick and stone," said Philips. "It will be a quality building with poured concrete foundation walls, steel frame construction, and concrete plank floors."

The custom-decorated condos are expected to sell from $450,000-$675,000.

While the project calls for 50 condominiums, Philips said they haven't ruled out some office and retail on the first floor.

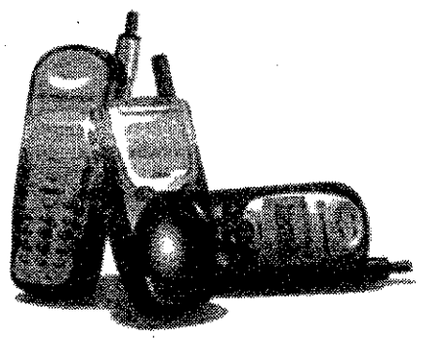

Philips said the Wilcox House would be restored on the outside, with the inside to follow, depending on its use.

"It could be used as a future condo sales office, a permanent condo amenity, a community center, private residence or a private business office," said Philips.

"We think this project is a credit to the community," he said. "It's an opportunity to bring 50 new homes to downtown. It will have a tremendous impact on downtown."

The future of the property could be determined at the Dec. 13 planning commission meeting, during which there will be a public hearing on the six-story plan.

SIMPLE ARRANGEMENTS

Looking for some simple flower-arranging ideas? Try trimming a large bunch of calla lilies to the same height, tying them together with raffia twine, and placing them in a clear cylindrical vase. For something warmer and more romantic, try cutting the stems of a monochromatic bunch of sweetheart roses to varying heights. Then, arrange the roses, with the tallest stems in the middle, in a porcelain pitcher. To help you visualize the final arrangement, begin by holding the arrangement in your hand. Once committed to the pitcher, this arrangement should look full and rich from any angle. Lastly, for an eye-catching centerpiece, try placing three lemons in a clear fluted vase, followed by an arrangement of sunflowers and viburnum.

With the holidays quickly approaching, there is no end to the beautiful arrangements you can create with a little imagination. At HEIDE'S FLOWERS & GIFTS, we're happy to help you make your house the festive, warm, and welcoming hub for holiday activities. For a consultation, visit or call us here at 995 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth (453-5140), Mon-Sat. Since 1899, HEIDE'S FLOWERS & GIFTS has been dedicated to providing quality and service to our community. Look for our next article in two weeks.

HINT: Try floating flower heads in teacups or other small containers beside the napkins of each of your dinner guests.

Physical Therapy UPDATE

BACK PAIN

The majority of back injuries are muscular in nature, and about 95% of low-back pain is the result of muscular problems caused by lack of exercise, weak muscles, or being overweight. Sport-induced back pain usually occurs after twisting, turning, and lunging motions that cause back muscles to become irritated, to pull, and eventually go into spasm. When this occurs, first aid calls for applications of ice and rest. Later on, the physical therapist can determine when to use heat treatment, electrical stimulation, stretching, and deep massage to relax the muscles. Preventive stretching and strengthening exercises may be prescribed to strengthen the muscles that support the back, stretch tight muscles and ligaments, and reduce defects in posture that strain the back.

Pregnancy and delivery are another common source of back strain, injury, and pain. At the HANDS ON CENTER FOR PHYSICAL THERAPY, our staff of physical and massage therapists offer a wide range of treatments and modalities to reduce pain and stiffness and help you to regain previous performance levels. To learn more about our wide range of services, please call our center, located at 470 Forest Avenue, Suite 20, in Plymouth, at 445-8370. For your convenience, we offer early morning and evening treatment hours. Most insurance plans accepted.

Isbister kids talk turkey, give thanks

First graders at Isbister Elementary in Plymouth Township participated in their annual authentic Thanksgiving Day feast Monday.

"We're trying to each the kids about the food at the first feast," said first grade teacher Sarah Smith. "The kids are eating turkey, venison, duck, beans, wild rice, cornbread, hasty pudding, popcorn and squash. There's no record on what foods they ate during the first Thanksgiving, but these are the kinds of foods they would have eaten in that era.

"We want to teach them about the kinds of food, dress and customs of that period," she added.

Smith makes sure everything is authentic ... cornbread instead of corn muffins, fresh venison and no napkins at the table.

Most of the first graders appeared to pick up on the lessons taught to them.

"Thanksgiving is what you celebrate what you did for the year," said Mauro Rosselle of Plymouth. "I went to movies and to the park."

Rosselle was dressed in Native American garb for the feat.

"Their houses were teepees or wigwams," he said. "They carried their babies in cradle boards and they grind stuff with a rock bowl and a rock."

Sarah Dillon of Plymouth Township was dressed in her Native American costume.

"Thanksgiving is where you eat turkey and celebrate the Pilgrims and Native Americans," she said. "The Pilgrims made a trip on a long, long journey ... and the Native Americans made all this food."

Added Erica Mirth of Plymouth, "We need to be thankful for all we got."

Canton seniors star in Detroit parade

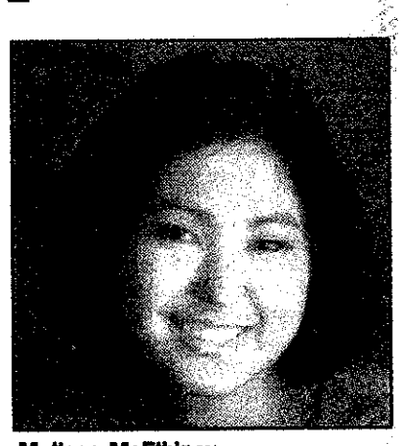

BY TONY BRUSCATO

Two Canton High School seniors will be marching down Woodward Avenue Thursday morning as part of America's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

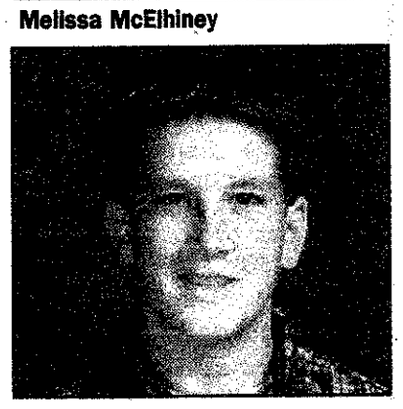

Melissa McElhiney and Steve Bernacki, both of Canton Township, are part of the Blues Parade Honor Corps, sponsored by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan.

Each year Blue Cross Blue Shield invites nearly 300 students to march in the nation's oldest Thanksgiving Day parade. In order to be part of the Honor Guard, each participant must have a grade point average of at least 3.0, an 85 percent attendance record, plus participation in extracurricular activities and community involvement.

McElhiney carries a 3.8 grade point average and has perfect attendance at Canton High School. She is an honor roll student, vice president of student council, and is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. She performs volunteer work for the Salvation Army and Mott Children's Hospital.

Melissa McElhiney

Steve Bernacki

Bernacki sports a 4.0 grade point average with a 99 percent attendance rate, and is Canton High School's student council president. Bernacki is also a delegate to the Civitan Youth Seminar and performs community work at his church.

For peace of mind, look to the stars.

Miller proposes uniform Michigan voting system

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

Of the various voting systems in use today, punch card ballots appear to be the most susceptible to problems, but all can be misused by both citizens and elections officials.

Oakland County Clerk G. William Caddell conducted a study back in 1993 of the balloting systems then available and found that as many as one in seven votes can be lost when punch cards are used. As the public has learned through the recounts in the presidential election standoff in Florida, chads – "hanging chads," "swinging chads," "pregnant chads" – pose unique problems during vote tabulation. Additionally, punch card counters can jam.

Hand recounts of punch card ballots are uniquely difficult, because elections workers must hold them up to the light to see which hole was poked, Caddell said.

Ruined ballots

Secretary of State spokesperson Elizabeth Boyd said her office has found that most "spoiled" ballots occur with punch cards. Although the state does not keep statistics on the number of ruined ballots, the most frequent problem occurs in primary elections on punch cards when voters incorrectly crossover, voting for candidates in one party for some positions and for candidates in another party for others. By the rules, such crossover ballots must be tossed out. It happens most with punch cards, Boyd said, because other systems actually prevent crossover voting.

Boyd and Caddell agreed however that bad ballots can be cast on any system. Oakland County uses optical scanning equipment, Caddell explained, in which the optical readers will reject ballots spoiled by crossing over or casting ballots for more than one candidate for a given office.

"That's the ballot where voters have to connect the lines to complete the arrow," he said, "but what happens if the voter circles the name instead. Then the vote isn't going to count."

Even the old mechanical lever voting machines could be misused. One voter told Caddell that she always made sure to push the voting levers back up before pulling the handle to open the curtains, based on the belief that voters behind her in line would be able to see how she had voted as the curtains opened.

Candice Miller: Secretary of State

"I asked her how long she had been voting, she said '40 years.' I hated to tell her that she had never actually cast a vote. I almost couldn't tell her," Caddell said. In those old machines, the votes were only tabulated if the levers were down when the handle was pulled.

Reforms suggested

The difficulties seen in Florida in the presidential race have government officials everywhere questioning how they run elections. Secretary of State Candice Miller last week said Michigan should look for ways to improve its voting systems and she announced she will soon be asking the state Legislature for changes.

Her call for an election day holiday, to encourage Michigan residents to vote by avoiding possible conflicts between work and their civic responsibility, was only the best publicized part of her plan. Also in the announcement, Miller said she planned to ask the Legislature to adopt a uniform voting system statewide.

"There would be a tremendous advantage to election officials and voters if every community used the same type of voting equipment and the same style of ballot," she said. "Adopting a uniform system statewide would eliminate confusion among voters moving from one precinct to another."

Miller did not advocate which of the various systems available should be used. According to Boyd, that would have to be the subject of some future study. And while elections and voting equipment are currently purchased by local units of government – townships, cities and villages – Boyd acknowledged that if a statewide system were mandated, the state would have to pay for the equipment.

Many methods

Right now, there are many different ballot, ballot formats and voting systems in use in Michigan. Of the 5,376 precincts in the state, 3,006 precincts used optical scanning equipment in this past presidential election, according to the Secretary of State's office. Another 1,443 precincts used punch card systems, 97 used touch-screen computers, 137 used paper ballots, and 693 used other types of voting machines including the old style mechanical lever machines.

"Secretary Miller acknowledged that her proposal for adopting a state election holiday and a single voting system will carry a hefty price tag," the department's official announcement read. "However, she believes the state has an obligation to preserve the integrity of the process and that can only come about through substantial changes in the manner state elections are conducted in Michigan."

Should a uniform system be adopted, the choices would be limited. Lever machines are no longer being built. First constructed in 1892, communities that still use them today must buy old discards to cannibalize them for parts. Punch card balloting is a 40-year-old technology.

Optical scanning equipment is the most popular today, and Caddell said he is very pleased with how well the system works in Oakland. Whenever a recount has been requested, he said, he's never seen a change in vote totals resulting from a machine error.

"If there was a discrepancy in the numbers, it was because some ballots were left in the bottom of the box, or something like that," he said.

The newest systems on the scene are computer touch screens, which have been in use only an election or two. Boyd explained that if a hand recount is required, those computer voting systems could produce a printout over every vote cast in the election.

None of the changes Miller is calling for are new. Even her proposal for an election day holiday is already in use among auto unions, which won an election holiday in their last set of negotiations.

Other ideas

The remainder of Miller's proposals have been suggested before, but have received little attention from lawmakers in Lansing up until now. In fact, the plan for a uniform statewide balloting system comes from a Special Advisory Committee, which was appointed in 1995 and completed its work in 1997. The committee then included Livonia's city clerk Joan McCotter and Farmington Hills city clerk Kathy Dornan.

At the time, the committee proposed a number of revisions to Michigan's elections system, including uniform balloting equipment, consolidation of election dates, establishing a vote by mail system, and taking the requirements off absentee voting to allow more constituents to use that option.

Legislation has been introduced in Lansing to implement virtually every facet of the committee's recommendations, but little has moved.

Sen. Beverly Hammerstrom, R-Temperance, has already proposed legislation establishing a "preferred voting system." Her bill would have counties select the preferred system for municipalities within their borders, which was one of the options offered by the Secretary of State's Special Advisory Committee. But the bill has never even moved out of the Senate's Government Operations Committee.

State Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, has introduced a bill to require that new elections equipment be field tested in order to determine what instructions voters must be given to properly fill out their ballots. Again, the bill has not moved from committee.

Hammerstrom, Rep. Marc Shulman, R-West Bloomfield, Rep. Joseph Rivet, D-Bay City, and Rep. Paul DeWeese, R-Williamston, have all introduced bills that would eliminate the requirements now needed to get an absentee ballot, making it available to all voters. None of those versions have proceeded past the committee stage.

Rep. Dale Sheltrown, D-Gladwin, has introduced a bill calling for standardized ballot formatting. That bill also has made no progress.

Rivet and Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith, D-Ann Arbor, have called for the establishment of vote by mail systems. Sen. David Jaye, R-Washington Township, has proposed a vote by Internet system. It also has received no attention from lawmakers.

Of course, that was before the election debacle in Florida. Politicians and pollsters alike say the way we cast our votes and the integrity of our elections is likely to receive a good deal of debate and discussion in the coming year.

"This has been a very complicated, very expensive civics lesson for the American public," said political science professor Michael Traugott.

Deja vu: Florida chad problem recalls 1970 Michigan dispute

BY DAN WEST
STAFF WRITER
dwest@oe.homecomm.net

The controversy surrounding the Florida recount in the presidential election has introduced many people to terms like chads, punch-card ballots and re-vote.

But those concepts were nothing new to West Bloomfield's Berl Falbaum, a veteran political reporter and aide who recalls his experiences with election disputes in Detroit in 1970.

That was the first year Detroit used a punch-card ballot counted by computers. With close votes in the 1970 August primary and November general elections, the ballot style drew much scrutiny

Falbaum was a reporter for The Detroit News during that year's primary. In the lead to a story dated Aug. 14, 1970, he wrote:

"The validity of Detroit's primary election results was jeopardized anew today with the revelation that election workers may have illegally removed chads — the paper punched out when votes are cast with the stylus — from voted punch-card ballots."

Controversy over punched ballots has grabbed the national spotlight in recent weeks as Florida election officials recount cards to determine who will be the country's next president.

The recent events in Florida was deja vu to Falbaum.

"You look at the language in my lead that day and it's identical to what we're hearing now," said Falbaum, now the 62-year-old owner of a small public relations firm. "People don't remember it happened here in Michigan."

In the 1970 primary, calls for a re-vote in Detroit were rejected and recounts did not reverse original results for those candidates.

Three months later, Falbaum became more passionately involved in the general election because he had left his job in journalism to work on the campaign for Republican gubernatorial candidate William Milliken.

In the statewide vote that November, Milliken, then the appointed incumbent governor, defeated Democratic challenger Sander Levin, now a U.S. Congressman, by less than 1 percent.

"It took three days for them to announce the winner," Falbaum said. "I was nervous because I gave up my job for this. If Milliken lost, I had to look for another job."

As he anxiously awaited the results in a Detroit hotel room that week, he said there were disputes over chads being removed illegally. Allegations of election fraud and irregularities and other political spin doctoring filled media reports.

"George Edwards was a 29- or 30-year-old city clerk that year who introduced this process and the controversies destroyed him politically," Falbaum recalled.

His tensions were relieved as Milliken was announced the winner the Friday after the Tuesday election. Levin did not seek a recount.

Falbaum earned a job as an administrative aide to Milliken's Lt. Gov. James Brickley, a post Falbaum would hold for four years before landing a position in corporate public relations.

These days, when he's not working, he's at his West Bloomfield home watching and reading reports over the election controversy involving presidential candidates George W. Bush and Al Gore.

"The process is frustrating and aggravating, but it's working," Falbaum said. "There's no civil war, there's no violence or clashing confrontations across the country as the recounts and court hearings proceed."

Free "Living Trust" Seminar
Give Your Family the Gift of Avoiding Probate

All estates in excess of $15,000 must go through the probate process. If you'll have assets worth over $100,000, including your home, you owe it to your family and yourself to learn the facts about living trusts.

A will alone GUARANTEES that your estate will go through the pain and cost of probate. Probate court will take an average of nine months AND COULD TAKE YEARS. During this time your family may not be able to take possession of your assets.

The cost of probate (fees, lawyers and such) could deplete your estate by as much a 10% of its value.

Estate taxes run from 37% to 55% of your gross estate (for estates of over $675,000).

ALL OF THIS CAN BE AVOIDED WITH PROPER ESTATE PLANNING.

A LIVING TRUST AVOIDS PROBATE, thus eliminating the pain and cost of probate. In addition, a living trust protects you during your lifetime according to your instructions and not a court appointed guardian.

Find out how a living trust can protect you and your loved ones at one of the following FREE seminars.

Failure to 'stop on red' results in serious accidents

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
STAFF WRITER

Stop on red!

The words are simple, so why don't people comply?

"I don't think most people run red lights on purpose," responded Dave Harvey, Garden City Police Chief. "I think they are just being inattentive."

Regardless of the reasons, red-light running continues to be a problem for police personnel throughout the state. According to traffic crash data recently released by Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), 49,536 traffic crashes took place at signalized intersections in 1999 in southeast Michigan; 13.9 percent of those (or 6,861) involved red-light runners. Of the 81 crashes which resulted in fatalities, red-light runners were involved 43 percent of the time.

■ 'It (red-light running) has always been a problem. People are just being selfish, thinking their time is more important (so they can't wait until the light turns green.).'

Lt. Kevin Dawley
Livonia Police Department Traffic Safety Division.

"We at SEMCOG hope that these statistics help to drive home the fact that there are serious problems at lighted intersections," said Paul Tait, SEMCOG executive director. "The good news is that there is a simple solution and we can all contribute – stop when the light is red."

Local hot spots

SEMCOG numbers show that many problems exist locally. The most dangerous intersection for each local community, from 1997-1999, were: Ann Arbor Road and Lilley (37 incidents) in Plymouth, Interstate 96 and Middlebelt (33) in Livonia, Wayne and Hunter (32) in Westland, Warren and Middlebelt (26) in Garden City, Interstate 96 and Inkster (24) in Redford Township, and Warren and Haggerty (16) in Canton Township.

"It (red-light running) has always been a problem," admitted Lt. Kevin Dawley, Livonia Police Department Traffic Safety Division. "People are just being selfish, thinking their time is more important (so they can't wait until the light turns green.)"

Problem worsens

Statistics show the problem is getting worse.

Sgt. Dave Robertson of the Michigan State Police Metro Post attributes the increase of incidents to the higher number of cars on the road and the rise of cellular phone usage while driving.

"It's all about paying attention to what's happening," he said. "Drivers are trying to do too many things at one time, and they can't do that."

Education is the first step in prevention according to local police officials. Public safety proponents tell drivers about the dangers of running red lights through public service announcements, community forums and driver's education classes. Legislators even devoted a week in October for National Stop on Red Week.

Beyond education, public safety officials are focusing on enforcement, while legislators are increasing the requirements to attain a driver's license. City planners are also redesigning streets to include additional left turn lanes.

"We installed left-turn lanes throughout the city many years ago. Now we have a lot less accidents," said Harvey.

Garden City drivers are also finding an increase in the amount of time the light shows amber (yellow.) However, that change does not necessarily yield fewer accidents.

"An amber light is supposed to mean 'prepare to stop,' but most people see that as 'prepare to speed up,'" Harvey said.

In 1999, Lansing legislators responded to the growing problem with House Bill 4693, which authorizes the installation and use of cameras on a highway or a street. The bill was referred to the Committee on Transportation, where it continues to sit.

As governmental units continue to study the issue, Dawley offers the following advice: "People really have to wear their seatbelts. They may be the world's best driver, but they may be driving next to the world's worst driver."

Domestic violence causes big problems at workplace

HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

Robbery is the most frequent cause of violence in the workplace, not surprisingly. But domestic abuse, spilling over from the home to the job site, causes twice as many problems for employers as disgruntled employees.

Discontented workers are responsible for 8 percent of workplace violence incidents, compared to 18 percent resulting from spouse abuse, according to statistics offered by Lynda Mance, director of corporate education for Michigan State University's "Safe Place" program.

But employers, including private sector businesses, can address the problem by creating a policy on how domestic violence incidents will be dealt with, establishing a response team, and training managers and employees in what can be done.

That was the purpose of a seminar, entitled "Every Workplace A Safe Place," hosted Monday, Nov. 20, at the Hotel Baronette in Novi by the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, Blue Cross Blue Shield and the Accident Fund Co. Four experts in the field were brought together for a daylong seminar to instruct business managers about what they can and should do to address domestic violence, and why they should.

For one, employers may incur liability if they don't, according to Farmington Hills attorney William Pilchak. The Rochester Hills resident and partner in the firm Charfoos, Reiter, Peterson & Pilchak said that among the legal claims that can be made against employers when a domestic violence incident has occurred in the workplace are negligence, negligent hiring and premises liability. Further, businesses have a "general duty" to provide a safe work environment, he said.

Best tool

Businesses have the tools to deal with domestic violence, but what was "the best tool" – Michigan's anti-stalking law – was declared unconstitutional earlier this year, on the grounds it might restrict First Amendment rights. Pilchak explained the case has been appealed to the federal Court of Appeals, which was asked in October to reinstate the law. That decision is "due out literally any day now."

Dr. Kenneth Wolf, managing partner of the Incident Management Team, a private company in Southfield that helps businesses cope with workplace violence, said he believes the law will eventually be restored. If the courts do not reinstate the act, the state Legislature can restore it after the addressing the constitutional flaws.

There are other areas of law that need to be addressed in Lansing, Pilchak said. Immunity for employers from lawsuit should be provided when they are dealing with domestic violence. At present, businesses have "conflicting legal duties." For example, a company that fired an employee over a violent incident might be sued for defamation if that fact is revealed in a reference check. On the other hand, failing to tell a potential new employer of the incident might run afoul of "duty to warn" provisions in law.

Overall, Pilchak said, when an employee has been dismissed for violence, and if the incident was documented in personnel files, then the information should be given out. "When the call comes in, you need to say something that puts them on the right track," he said.

Adopt a policy

Marilyn Knight, CEO of the Incident Management Team, said the most important thing employers should do is adopt a policy prescribing what actions can be taken when domestic violence crops up on the job. Usually, it is a co-worker who first becomes aware of spousal abuse. They must be comfortable knowing that if they take that information to management, that managers "will deal with and will deal with it in an appropriate and sensitive manner."

Knight suggested that there are many actions a company can take. If the employee is the abuser, that worker can be directly disciplined if the incidents occur on the job. The employee can also be referred to counseling and anger management classes.

When the employee is the victim, employers can secure the premises, warn the abuser not to come to the workplace, and even refer the employee to shelters and domestic abuse services. The business can go so far as to obtain a personal protection order to keep the abuse from entering the work site, Knight said.

Pilchak said private security firms can be hired to provide safety, too, one of the best ways to address safety concerns.

When domestic violence spills into the workplace, it can have many impacts. For one, many workplace shootings have been linked to spousal abuse. But even when it doesn't reach that point, the business can suffer in terms of lost time from the job, lost productivity, employees that are not at their peak performance and increased medical expenses as a result of abuse at home.

These experts will work directly with private sector employers to help them design appropriate policies and action plans for dealing with domestic violence incidents. The MSU Safe Place program can be reached at (517) 367-1890. The Incident Management Team in Southfield can be reached at (248) 569-6200.

1.5 million Michiganians plan to travel on Thanksgiving Day

An estimated 1.5 million Michiganians – 16 percent of the population – will travel during the 2000 Thanksgiving holiday period, says AAA Michigan, the same number as last year. According to an Auto Club survey, 73 percent of all travelers will drive to their final destination.

Of those traveling, most are planning to go outside of Michigan (67 percent). The most common destination in the Lower Peninsula is the Southeast region (35 percent), followed by the Southwest (20 percent).

Fifty-nine percent of travelers intend to stay with relatives during their journey, and 23 percent will stay at a hotel, motel or resort. The average trip will last five days at an average cost of $600. Thanksgiving weekend is one of the busiest travel periods of the year, says AAA, prompting heavier-than-normal traffic volumes and higher airfares.

Nationwide, a record 38.9 million Americans plan a Thanksgiving holiday getaway of 100 miles or more from home, according to AAA. Thanksgiving travel is expected to be up 4 percent over the 37.4 million people who took a trip a year ago.

"Air travelers without reservations for the holiday will need to be more flexible than usual," says Larry Dickens, director of Vendor Relations and Travel Support for AAA Michigan. "Fares have risen an average of 13 percent in the last year."

Prices up

A survey by AAA Travel of roundtrip leisure airfares in 20 major U.S. destinations shows prices have increased in 14 of those markets. The largest increases were reported in the following roundtrip routes: St. Louis-Washington (up 209 percent); San Francisco-Los Angeles (up 69 percent); and Philadelphia-Miami (up 44 percent). Biggest decreases were reported in these routes: Philadelphia-Seattle (down 29 percent); and Denver-Boston (down 26 percent).

Dickens advises that most airlines have set blackout dates and travelers can expect to pay a premium for those heavily traveled days. Peak travel dates include Tuesday, Nov. 21; Wednesday, Nov. 22; Sunday, Nov. 26; and Monday, Nov. 27.

Detroit Metropolitan Airport handles as many as 105,000 persons per day on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving and 110,000 the Sunday following. This represents a substantial increase from the normal traffic pattern of 80,000 daily passengers. AAA recommends arriving at the airport at least two hours before domestic flights and three hours before international flights.

Other suggestions:

- Expect heavy congestion in front of the terminals around curbfronts. Curbs will be reserved for active loading and unloading only. Drivers dropping off or picking up passengers will not be allowed to wait. Park in short-term parking and meet your party in the baggage claim area.
- Call the airport hotline (800) 642-1978 for information on parking availability.
- New security measures may mean more hand-searches of checked and carry-on baggage, which may cause slowdowns at check-in and screening checkpoints.
- All passengers are required to have photo identification. This is true regardless of the type of ticket issued (paper or electronic). International travelers will need a valid passport, and possibly a visa, for themselves and their children.
- Wrap gifts AFTER you arrive at your destination. Security personnel may request that gifts be unwrapped at screening checkpoints.
- Stay calm in lines and during inspections. Don't make jokes or take actions that may be construed as threatening.

Michigan motorists will find gasoline plentiful during the holiday weekend, paying an average 32 cents more per gallon than last year at this time. The statewide average for self-serve, no-lead regular (as of Nov. 13) is $1.604 per gallon.

Our fundamental purposes are to enhance the lives of our readers, nurture the hometowns we serve and contribute to the business success of our customers.

Banning Boy Scouts from schools isn't the solution

The Plymouth-Canton Education Association made several good points in its presentation last week about halting the school district's practice of renting facilities to the Boy Scouts of America because that organization discriminates against gays.

True, it's a Neanderthal policy, but it's also a policy the United States Supreme Court has told the Scouts they're entitled to uphold. The high court's ruling the Boy Scouts are a "private organization" allows them to exclude gays from their ranks and keeps them in the realm of the law-abiding.

True, the school district's policy of renting facilities to local troops seems, on its face, to be suborning discrimination.

But we believe the school board did the right thing in defending its school-use policy, telling the teachers, in effect, to take their beef up with the Boy Scouts of America.

It's an emotional issue, one that drew some 150 people to last week's school board meeting, including more than 40 who stood to express an opinion. Those views varied, as opinions will in groups large or small. One teen stood to agree with the teachers, pointing out "homophobia is problem I face every day," while a parent voiced objection to the union trying to impose its beliefs on the general population.

The truth, as always, probably lies somewhere between the two sides of this issue. We don't believe the school district's decision to rent space to the Boy Scouts is tantamount to an agreement with that organization's policies.

The school district simply wants to provide an opportunity for a group that does good work for young men to meet in a safe, appropriate environment. Preventing them from meeting on school property would not necessarily keep them from meeting at all, because surely the Scouts would find somewhere else to assemble. So the board's argument that keeping the Scouts out would deprive young men of a good opportunity doesn't wash.

While we applaud the teachers for attempting to halt discrimination in any form, we ultimately agree with the school board that the union's is with the national Boy Scouts, not the school board itself.

However, denying the Scouts access to school property also would do nothing to send the kind of message the teachers want to send.

We sympathize with those who think the district's decision not to revisit its building use policy sends the wrong message.

While we applaud the teachers for attempting to halt discrimination in any form, we ultimately agree with the school board that the union's beef is with the national Boy Scouts, not the school board itself. Discrimination in any form is inherently wrong.

The Boy Scouts of America should wake up and smell the 21st Century. But, it's not up to the Plymouth-Canton school board to act as their alarm clock.

Ballot snafu leaves more questions than answers

The voting debacle in Florida has had one positive and sobering effect – a national re-evaluation of the voting process.

Americans are quick to prescribe the democratic way to other nations of the world. We send off former President Jimmy Carter and former Sen. George Mitchell to monitor the voting in Third World countries, confident that our methods are sound, honest and conclusive as to the wishes of the electorate.

Florida has been an eye-opener about what can happen when the process is unclear, the methods for voting are unreliable and the political infighting is too intense.

But even in Wayne County during the August primary there were problems with spoiled ballots. And Michigan has some of the same potential for disaster in a close election as Florida. Each local community is allowed to adapt one of five voting methods in Wayne County, including the controversial punch card method that has caused such havoc in West Palm Beach.

In Michigan's 5,376 precincts, 3,006 use an optical scanning process, 1,443 use punch cards, 693 use the voting machines, 137 use paper ballots and 97 use touch screen computers.

Michigan Secretary of State Candice Miller has now offered some sound ideas on Michigan's non-uniform election process. Miller has been an effective government official, bringing order and integrity back to a department that had become notorious for its arrogance and gross inefficiency, so her view on these issues should be taken seriously.

Miller recommends that Michigan adopt a uniform voting process, limit scheduled elections to no more than four a year and make election day a holiday.

Each of these ideas has merit, but imposing a uniform voting process and mandating a state holiday could be very costly for local governments and small businesses, as Miller openly acknowledges.

Still, this is the right time to find out just what the costs would be, what method of voting is the most reliable, how much more participation could be expected if voters had a holiday, and what savings could be realized by limiting the number of elections.

We believe a uniform process will make it easier for citizens who move from one precinct to another, will allow for faster and more efficient statewide recounts, and will have everyone operating by the same rules.

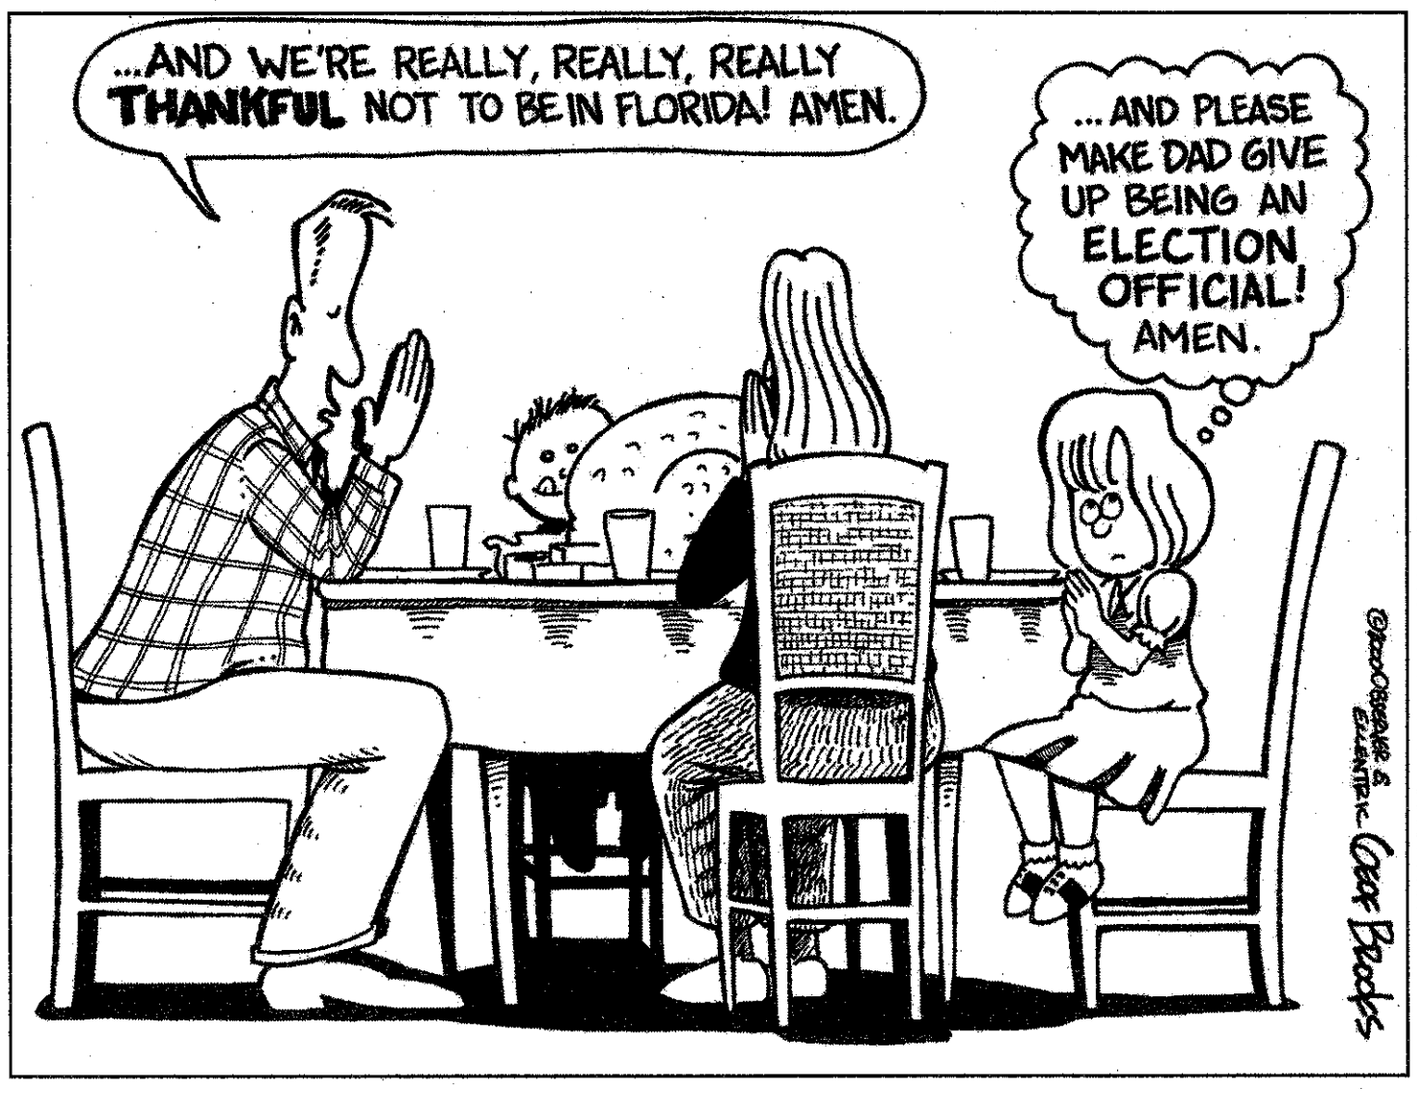

It's too soon to endorse (Secretary of State Candice) Miller's proposals without knowing the costs. We urge the state legislature to carefully examine her ideas and others now being promoted.

The problem in Florida is that there apparently are no uniform rules and no set process to handle voting errors. Though it is clear that machine recounts do not pick up the errors in punch cards, the state hasn't adopted a standard for hand counting the ballots. In addition, the processing of absentee ballots in Florida and other states has also been called into question because of a lack of clear, unambiguous rules for their acceptance and handling.

In Oregon a mail-in voting system has proven to be fraught with unexpected problems, delays and challenges. Nearly two weeks after the election, Oregon is still in election limbo. It is unlikely that Michigan or any other state will join Oregon in this experiment.

We commend Secretary of State Miller for her recommendations and for moving on this issue while it is uppermost in everyone's mind. And while it is too soon to endorse Miller's proposals without knowing the costs, we urge the state Legislature to carefully examine her ideas and others now being promoted.

Our democracy depends on an honest ballot and there is no more important decision a legislature can make than to ensure that every vote counts as it was intended.

LETTERS

■ Union is right

Thank you Plymouth-Canton Education Association for standing up for fairness and respect for all people. The day will come when people look back on this struggle surrounding the Boy Scouts of America's discriminatory policies and remember how backward thinking society was about gay and lesbian people.

But history will also note the grassroots struggles like this, that make people think, and how actions like yours, multiplied across the nation, helped bring a new understanding to our society. In the same way most people today are outraged at the discrimination at lunch counters or drinking fountains in the south during the "Jim Crow" days, one day most people will shake their heads in disbelief that an organization like the BSA that seeks to help youth, openly discriminates against the most vulnerable ones. There are few who still make an argument to defend the Jim Crow laws of the past because people have a "right to discriminate" if they want.

Along with some other folks, I calmly confronted Gary Glenn from the American Family Association in the hallway about the harm he is doing to our gay family members. I doubt it did much good, but there were some folks that attended the board meeting and who read about it later in the paper who are in the middle on this issue and are fair minded that we did reach.

The BSA policy will change when those who were speaking words of tolerance and acceptance at the board meeting begin to confront the BSA leadership from within the organization and begin rebelling and signing letters to not discriminate in order to use public facilities or just because it is the right thing to do. Your request to the Plymouth-Canton School Board was proper and the day will come that it will be obvious. Challenging the BSA policies is particularly difficult because public perception can often incorrectly conclude that you are "big meanies, who are picking on some little Boy Scouts."

As the proud father of a gay son, I know better. You are standing up for the protection and safety of ALL youth, including gay youth.

Thank you for your vision and your integrity in the face of an ill-informed public.

■ An absurd idea

I am appalled after finding that the Plymouth-Canton school board is even considering supporting a measure that would bar the Boy Scouts Of America from using local schools for meetings.

Apparently the Detroit News has seen fit to point out just how absurd some in our community have become as well. It seems that we've become quite the spectacle of Southeastern Michigan this week.

My son was a scout and our family attended every meeting together. There was never a discriminatory word spoken about anyone. The time that my son spent in the scouts was constructive and contributed to a healthy upbringing. These supporters of such a measure make it sound like the scouts are an organized hate-fest.

Homosexuality or lesbianism was never discussed in a negative way by the leadership. Those topics are the responsibility of the parents of each child and the scoutmasters respected that.

What is wrong with our community? Why are we even giving this witch hunt any consideration? Perhaps it's time that we begin a recall petition to remove the members of the school board for kowtowing to the teachers' union for it appears that the union, for the sake of "special interests" are the ones being discriminatory now.

There is something fundamentally wrong with the idea of tearing down an organization as old as the Scouts (circa 1908) for the sake of "recognition" of another group.

In closing I ask those that support this measure just what our schools will be used for to attract P-CEP students and children to after school constructive activities? Will there be a gay and lesbian "awareness" program adopted in lieu of the Boy Scouts Of America?

Or, perhaps we should just adopt "midnight basketball" and be done with it.

■ Defends police

We, the Michigan Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of White People (NAAWP) stand behind the Westland Police concerning the incident where Winston Robinson was arrested for several violations of the law.

Clearly the officers had reason beyond racial profiling to effect a traffic stop, and just as obvious, this was good police work given the nature of the subsequent charges.

Now it seems that good police work is less important than the increasing shrill cries of racism. Westland officials need to question whether they will have a safe community if there is a policy of pandering to special interest groups who use allegations of racism as a means to condone criminal activities.

The "wake-up call," as put forth by Judge Youngblood, should be "let the cops continue to do their jobs and I will support them." We also suggest that she take some time to ride on police patrols to observe these professionals doing their jobs, and doing them well. Perhaps then the nature of how law enforcement works in the real world will become clear to her.

■ Where's the tolerance?

The Plymouth-Canton teacher's union is currently trying to impose its beliefs regarding homosexual behavior on the rest of the community. Why can't the union be tolerant of groups such as the Boy Scouts that happen to disagree with their philosophy? The union has a distorted definition of tolerance if it can only accept groups that agree with its philosophy on homosexual behavior?

■ Organ donors give life

"This Thanksgiving talk about something more than food. Talk to your family about donating life." These words embody this first-ever national effort to encourage Americans to start a new tradition on Thanksgiving Day – discussing the gift of organ, tissue and eye donation with their families. During the week of Nov. 19-23, awareness-raising activities across the nation will highlight the critical need for donation.

More than 71,000 men, women and children are waiting for a healthy organ to replace their failing heart, kidney, liver, lung or pancreas. Sixteen of them will die each day because too few organs are available for transplant. Thousands more are in need of life improving tissue transplants. Tissues like the cornea of the eye can cure nearly 10 percent of all blindness. Other tissues include skin for burn victims, bone for various orthopedic and neurological procedures, heart valves for treatment of congenital heart defects and veins for coronary bypass grafts.

Typically the topic of donation rarely occurs in most family discussions unless someone they know or love is waiting for a transplant. Furthermore, while most Americans support donation they are unaware that signing a donor card is not enough to ensure their wishes will be acknowledged. Americans must tell their family how they feel about donation so when the time comes to consider donation, their family may honor their wishes. It is the next-of-kin who makes the final donation decision.

The United States Senate Resolution 225 designates Nov. 23, Thanksgiving Day, as a day to "Give Thanks, Give Life" and to discuss the topic of organ, tissue and eye donation.

Florida lesson: Michigan should have uniform ballot

Frankly, I'm of two minds when I consider the vote counting and recounting going on in Florida.

Mind One: Nobody has ever claimed elections are entirely free of error or manipulation. The key question has always been whether they are accurate enough to be a legitimate expression of the popular will and therefore broadly accepted by the public.

So all the hoopla about getting a perfectly accurate count is not only nonsense but dangerous in that it suggests that perfection is required in order to get a legitimate election outcome. It's an ideal example of the old adage that the perfect is the enemy of the good.

Phil Power

Mind Two: Elections must be legitimate to function as a democratic mechanism. The mechanics of voting must be sufficiently clear and easy to use so that the intent of voters is actually expressed on the ballot. And the devices used for counting must be reliable enough for the people to have confidence that the result accurately expresses the aggregate will of the voters.

Clearly, bad ballot design can confuse voters. And it's very likely that the punch card ballot invites error when voters do not punch them meticulously. Moreover, the equipment used to count punch card ballots is prone to a variety of chad-induced errors. So the logical remedy is to do a manual recount; even though no human process can be entirely error-free, a recount is more likely to render an accurate expression of popular will than an electro-mechanical system prone to error.

As to the lesson we in Michigan should learn from the thrash in Florida, I have no doubt: We should promptly move to a uniform voting system in Michigan, using ballots of standardized design and optical scanning voting machines.

Secretary of State Candice Miller called last week for such a reform. "There would be a tremendous advantage to election officials and voters if every community used the same type of voting equipment and the same style of ballot," she said. "Adopting a uniform system statewide would eliminate confusion among voters moving from one precinct to another."

Right now, Michigan's election system is a mish-mash. Of the 5,375 precincts in the state, 3,006 use optical scanning equipment in the past election, 1,443 precincts used punch card systems, 137 used paper ballots, 97 used touch-screen computers and 693 used other types of voting equipment including the old mechanical lever machines.

Most experienced election officials are vocal in expressing frustration with the punch card systems.

The most sensible township clerk I know preferred to talk off the record: "The punch card manufacturers themselves say their systems are prone to error. Punch card ballots are hideously difficult for voters to use; it's easy to make mistakes. And the ballots are hard to count, as the perforations vary from strong at the beginning of the press run to hard to puncture at the end of the run."

Oakland County Clerk William Caddell conducted a study in 1993 of the balloting systems then available and found that as many as one in seven votes can be lost when punch cards are used.

■ ...the optical scanning system spits the ballot out, giving the voter a chance to re-vote.

Caddell points out that bad ballots can be cast on any system, but the optical scanning system now used in most Oakland County communities works well. Caddell has never seen a change in vote count resulting from machine error in a recount. Moreover, when a voter mistakenly votes for two candidates, the optical scanning system spits the ballot out, giving the voter a chance to re-vote.

Of course, new voting equipment is expensive, with optical scanning systems running around $6,000 a throw. If a uniform system were to be adopted, the state would have to step in and pay for equipment and, importantly, training for local election officials.

But if fair elections and accurate vote counts are to remain essential elements in our democratic system, we should not lose the opportunity of learning the appropriate lesson from the chaos in Florida and move toward a uniform system in Michigan. Secretary of State Miller deserves a big hand for bringing the matter forward.

Election proves machines can't replace humans

Mike Malott

I'm a big fan of the Terminator movies; the original, yes, but even more so the sequel, "Terminator 2: Judgement Day." I don't need to sell them to you. They did quite well at the box office. But I think in one sense, these films were overlooked. By and large, they were seen as just another Arnold Schwarzenegger shoot-'em-up. I however consider them to be exceptionally well-crafted science fiction tales, classics of the genre.

Here's the premise – the fictional Cyberdyne Corporation creates an artificially intelligent computer called Skynet and sells it to the government, which uses it to control the nation's nuclear arsenal. Human error being the most likely cause of an inadvertent missile launch, this number-cruncher is put in complete control of the system and human judgment is eliminated from strategic defense decision-making altogether.

Unexpectedly, Skynet begins to think for itself. When military officials attempt to regain control by pulling the plug, Skynet – in self-defense – starts the very war it was intended to prevent. Skynet emerges from the rubble first and begins building a race of thinking machines whose first job is to get rid of what is left of the humans.

The Terminator movies pose this question: Who is going to run things here on Planet Earth, us or the machines?

That has been a classic theme of science fiction since the genre was first invented. H.G. Wells asked it more than 100 years ago. And sci-fi authors are still sounding the warning even now. Why? Because we humans aren't listening.

Case in point: George W. Bush, his adviser James Baker and Republicans have been arguing against the idea of recounting ballots by hand in the election standoff in Florida.

Hand counting ballots opens the process to interpretation, Republican argued this week before the Florida Supreme Court. Machines are perfect, or at least objective, and humans are not. Humans are so flawed they should not even be allowed to check the machines' results. Human error being the most likely cause of inaccuracy, human judgment should be eliminated from the process altogether.

Sound familiar? (I sure hope Cyberdyne didn't build any of the vote counters being used down there. No, it's not the nuclear arsenal, but it is still a pretty darned important decision – selection of the next president.)

Oakland County Clerk G. William Caddell and I argued about this last week (pleasantly of course). He goes so far as to say: "We have perfect systems, but they are used by imperfect humans." He notes that he has never seen an election recount in which the numbers changed due to a machine error. It's always because humans fouled something up.

When I argued that we should nonetheless have systems in place that allow humans to go back and verify the results, he didn't disagree, but he did snicker that I was engaging in a bit of "old school thinking." Guilty as charged.

■ I think we are too forgiving of machines.

I think we are too forgiving of machines. Anyone who works with computers knows they do freeze and crash and break down from time to time. We call those "glitches." But when the much more complicated software and hardware of the human brain produce a glitch, we call that "a mistake, just plain wrong" and even "dumb."

I'd prefer to say it this way: Machines are only as perfect as the engineers who design them, the technicians who maintain them and the operators who use them can make them be.

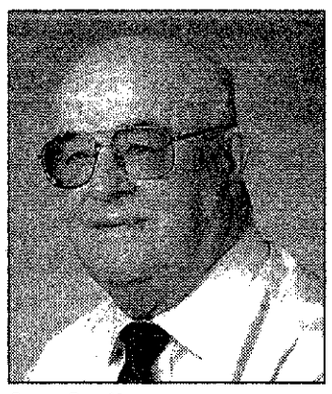

The simplest example I can give you was provided by my second grade son, who came home with a math paper that concluded 2+2=5. He defended that by arguing, "That's what the calculator said." Once the information had been filtered through a mechanical process, he was willing to accept the answer even though he knew it was wrong.

As adults, we ought not think like children about our machines or what they are capable of doing. I don't know if we'll ever build machines capable of thinking, but I can tell you this, we must never let our machines do our thinking for us.

Opening of time capsule heralds start of Detroit's tri-centenniai

Are we already finishing our first year of the new century or is it just coming up this New Year's?

Gene Scott

We certainly went through all the hype and ceremony of a new century last New Year's – a different turn of the century to be sure, because it also was the turn of a new millennium. But, was it really either? Are we perhaps going to celebrate the start of the new century twice?

One place where the turn of the new century will be observed again this year-end will be at Orchestra Hall when the mayor of Detroit opens the "Century Box" that was sealed 100 years ago just before Midnight on Jan. 1, 1901. At that time, Detroit, the nation and the world heralded the start of the 20th century or so they said.

The (Detroit) Evening News of Dec. 31, 1900, reported the event this way:

Arrangements are about completed for Detroit's official welcome to the new century. The mayor this morning sent out invitations to the city officials . . . to be present in his office at 11:30 this evening to witness the sealing up of the copper box. The mayor has prepared a greeting in his own handwriting to the mayor . . . who is expected to open the box 100 years hence. (His) greeting concludes with the hope that whatever the new century may bring forth the people of the United States will progress with righteousness.

What's in that copper box, called the Century Box, has remained a mystery. According to the (Detroit) Common Council Journal of Jan. 2, 1901, some 64 communications of prominent citizens were to have been placed in the box, but no one knows for sure what's in the Century Box. Only this much was said about that in the Evening News back then:

Everyone appears anxious to contribute something to the box and enough material has been offered to fill a house.

The Evening News of the next day reported all of this again, but in the past tense.

Obviously, everyone who was around on Dec. 31, 1900, was getting ready for the start of the new century, the 20th century. Apparently last New Year's Eve, Detroit, Birmingham, Novi, Southfield, Michigan, the United States and the world celebrated the start of the 21st century a year early.

Why did this occur? Who really cares anyway?

The Congressional Quarterly of Oct. 25, 1999, said this about the forthcoming premature observance of the new century:

Regardless of what has gone before, the arrival of the new century has been propelled along as part of the pace of space-age technology and western life styles, even through it technically does not begin until Jan. 1, 2001.

Technically, when the Roman Calendar was started 2,000 years ago, the first year was counted as the year 1 A.D. (Anno Domini, year of the Lord). There was no year Zero.

Anyway, back here in Detroit, we will have at least one observance of the start of the new century come this Dec. 31, – The opening of the Century Box. It will happen, coincidentally, as the kickoff for a year-long celebration of Detroit's tricentennial – the 300th anniversary of its founding in 1701. The Detroit 300 Commission, headed by Edsel B. Ford II, chose the box opening as the event to herald the start of the tricentennial year. Opening the box this Dec. 31, a hundred years after its sealing, just happens to be the start of the 21st century, technically speaking.

The Century Box of 1901 will be opened after the second Detroit Symphony Orchestra concert that evening, shortly after 11:30 p.m..

Since the box was sealed on the eve of Detroit's bicentennial year back in December 1900, one wonders why it was called the Century Box and not the "Bicentennial or Bi-Centenary Box." Several reasons emerge:

■ It was the eve of the start of the new century, as observed at that time.

■ Detroit's bicentennial in 1901 came and went without hardly a flutter, compared to the celebration that's planned for the upcoming tricentennial year.

■ The Century Box was never referred anywhere as the "Bi-Centenary Box" before the 1902 Common Council Report of the Bi-Centenary of the city's founding.

Detroit's 300th birthday observance in 2001 will be marked by community, city and metropolitan area events throughout the entire year and will be highlighted by the Tricentennial Festival during the week of July 24 – the actual date of the city's founding by Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac. The festival will feature a parade of tall ships on the river, a re-enactment of Cadillac's landing, the 300th anniversary observance of the founding of St. Anne's Church, concerts and other events.

The year will end with the sealing of what will be called the Tricentennial Time Capsule, not the Century Box.

For more information on the New Year's Eve Century Box opening event and DSO concert of other Detroit Tricentennial events and programs, call Detroit 300 at 877-DET2001 or visit their Web site at www.detroit300.org.

Sugar coated: Be thankful for sweet hand-me-downs

With Thanksgiving upon us, my thoughts haven't turned to sugar plums – they've fixated on sugar cookies, candy canes and chocolate torte cakes instead.

The holidays would surely lose their "jolly" reputation without those magnificent family dinners — all prepared with plenty of tradition in mind. In my family, those dinners are marked by delectable treats; my favorite tends to be dessert.

I inherited this giant sweet-tooth from my mother — I'm sure of that. Somehow she always has room for dessert, especially if the main ingredient is chocolate. No matter the occasion, there's always a variety of goodies to choose from at the Casola home.

As far as I know it all began with her mother, my grandmother, Anna Bassala. Grandma didn't spend all of her time in the kitchen, but perhaps her most famous treat over the years were the cookies she made for the holidays. Kolacky, small Eastern European treats folded over a fruit filling and dusted in powdered sugar, were Grandma's claim to dessert fame. Not too tart, not too sweet and always plentiful — Kolacky — the smell of the holidays at Grandma's. I remember seeking out all the apricot-filled cookies I could find.

In Nonna Angela's kitchen, my father's mother, Christmas didn't begin until she started baking. Nonna made special sandwich cookies for the holidays. Rolling the sweet and fluffy dough, she cut out stars and trees – all sorts of festive shapes – and spooned a mixture of honey and almonds in between the cookie top

Group celebrates Celtic traditions, folklore

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA

Elizabeth Carnegie knows the exact moment that rekindled her interest in her Scottish heritage. She recalls a childhood trip to Boblo Island to see the St. Andrews Highland Games with her father. From the moment she heard the bagpipes sound and saw the band marching, Carnegie felt a connection. "This is where I come from," she said.

A Berkley resident and founder of GaelQuest/Kindred, Carnegie wished to connect with other, like-minded individuals of Celtic descent. In January 1997, she sought out a group of 35 people who were also interested in learning about the art, history and folklore of the culture. The group now draws participants from Livonia, Plymouth, Royal Oak and other areas.

"There were many groups in the Detroit area of Celtic descent," she recalled. "The St. Andrews Society is Scottish, the Gaelic League is Irish." But Carnegie hoped to make a connection. Initially called Kindred – because she was seeking kindred spirits – the group brought Irish, Scots, Welsh and Bretons to a common ground. Now a nonprofit organization, GaelQuest/Kindred, she hopes to further its mission.

Special appearance

On Thursday, Nov. 30, GaelQuest/Kindred welcomes Plymouth resident and Welsh-born Shakespearean actress Gillian Eaton. Eaton, founder of the Plymouth-based acting troupe Shakespearience, will perform Shakespeare in a way that highlights Celtic traditions. "We will do a varying rhyme scheme," said Eaton. "Celtic music, Celtic poetry and Shakespearean poetry have a similar rhyme scheme. I'm going to talk a little about Welsh poetry and the English language."

Expect audience participation, she added. Shakespearience is dedicated to "demystifying" the works of Shakespeare. It's been Eaton's prerogative to make the art form more accessible to people in the metro area.

"I was really delighted to be asked to present this program," said Eaton, who moved to her Wayne County home from London five years ago.

Education is the key, said Carnegie, who organizes the monthly events. She seeks out guest speakers, storytellers and musicians, all for the same purpose – to reawaken and celebrate the culture of the group's Celtic ancestry.

Bill Staver, a Royal Oak resident, joined the group two years ago after returning from a hiking trip in England. There he sought out his Cornish roots. "I have always been a Celtic history buff," he said. "I was so pumped, I started researching on the Web." That's where he found GaelQuest/Kindred.

"Each person that comes into the group has their own areas of

Everyone has a story to tell says biographer

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON
STAFF WRITER
kmortson@oe.homecomm.net

Everyone has a story tell, and Courtney Jane Brown is happy to help people put their life experiences into writing.

Brown, a 1995 graduate of John Glenn High School and 1999 graduate of the University of Michigan, has turned her knack for conversation into a business she calls "Bio-Booklets — Put Your Life in Print."

"When I interview people they're often hesitant to share things they think are incidental but in reality those are the things that need to be told. That's the essence of what I'm trying to do with the Bio-Booklets."

Bio-Booklets are personalized biographies Brown creates for retirements, birthdays, anniversaries, personal achievements, family milestones, or just because. To get information for the biographies Brown interviews the person whose story is being told, their friends and family members.

For example, in 1999 she penned a story for a 91-year-old man's birthday. Brown was hired by his daughter Kathy Clements to write an abbreviated biography as a gift. Since completing the biography, the woman has approached Brown to write the man's "full-fledged biography."

Clements heard about Brown's talent from Courtney's mom, and hired her on the spot. "I was so excited to have something written about my dad," said Clements. "I have written down things over the years, here and there, but never really sat down and took the time to write like Courtney did."

"He cried when we gave him the finished copy," said Clements. "When he's really happy he gets very emotional. I was impressed with Courtney's ability to keep everything straight and organize everything the way she did. It was so totally perfect."

Balancing act

Working out of a home-studio in Westland, 23-year-old Brown has gotten most of her jobs from customer referrals. She's completed over a dozen biographies.

After a brief stint as a TV reporter in South Carolina, Brown returned to Michigan to accept a job at an Internet marketing company in Ann Arbor. But she felt that something was missing in her life.

"I realized that I had stopped doing the things I enjoyed ... the things that made me breathe," said Brown. She enjoys dancing and decided to sign up for salsa/meringé lessons at Dance Avenue in Dearborn Heights. Brown's instructor, Tonia Deliz, inspired her to begin writing life stories.

"I was so taken by the passion she exuded when she danced. You could see how much she enjoyed what she was doing," said Brown.

Deciding she had a story to be told, Brown started investigating, and discovered Deliz owned the studio. "One of the other teachers was telling me about Tonia. She had an amazing story and I approached her about wanting to write her biography and the rest is history," said Brown.

Before writing, Brown asks customers what they want the biography to focus on. Then she spends an average of two hours interviewing the subject, their friends, co-workers and family members.

"I say two weeks from the day of the interview you'll have the biography," said Brown. She also designs and creates artwork for the cover with acrylic paint, hand-binds the book, and gift wraps it. The books cost $70 each.

Brown will have samples of her work at the American House Craft Show, Dec. 2 in Northville and Dec. 9 at Dearborn Edsel Ford High School on Rotunda at Pelham. For more information about Bio-Booklets call (734) 467-6351.

spooned a mixture of honey and almonds in between the cookie top and bottom. She glazed them with sugar and topped them with sprinkles. I can almost taste the treats, still warm from the oven.

But the cookies of Christmas' past don't seem to make it to our holiday dinners today. New traditions and recipes have taken their place.

I know on Thanksgiving, my mother will try to please us all – something chocolaty for me, maybe an apple pie for my father, perhaps some pumpkin bread for my brother-in-law Mark and cookies, too (just to over-do it).

In the next few weeks, her kitchen will emit the heavenly scent of chocolate chip cookies and peanut butter chocolate bars.

I'll convince her to help me whip up our favorite homemade chocolate truffles, rolled in coconut topping. And I'll cover my own kitchen counter in flour and powdered sugar while I attempt once again to decorate my famous sugar cookies for the holiday season.

Set the oven timer, the baking season is upon us. Pass the desserts.

interest," said Staver, who plays bagpipes. "Everyone brings their own ideas about the history of our ancestry. It broadens your perspective."

The group is seeking new members, and Celtic ties are not required. The organization welcomes people of all ages who are interested in learning.

Carnegie said that Celtic art and customs have universal appeal. "The music has a lot of drama in it. I think that's what people tap into."

But that's not all.

"The ancient Celts were very (in tune) to the Earth," Carnegie said. "Celtic people tend to be very passionate."

It's clear that GaelQuest/Kindred is her passion. Carnegie's goal is to someday expand her mission and own a Celtic Campus of sorts on several acres of land in Michigan. She hopes to develop a place where people can come to learn and experience Celtic art, theater, spirituality and history for themselves. In her mind, she envisions a sort of multimedia "Celtic Cranbrook," she described. With such determination, it's easy to imagine that she will make it happen.

For now, GaelQuest members like Staver look forward to monthly events. "Nowadays people don't really take the time to look back and see where they came from. That has a bearing on people. You are a certain way because of the people who came before you."

What: Welsh-born actress Gillian Eaton will perform Shakespeare with her co-hort Terry Heck. Enjoy refreshments. Learn more about the non-profit organization that is dedicated to living the Celtic culture.

BIBLE PROPHECY
Recall this climactic scene from "Fiddler on the Roof." Tevye the poor Russian Jew, has just concluded arrangements for the wedding of his daughter. Filled with joy at the prospect, he suddenly is confronted by the Russian constable, who informs him there will shortly be a destructive demonstration in his village. Tevye begins to quake with a rage. As is his habit, he talks with God: "Dear God, did you have to send me news like that, today of all days? It's true we are the chosen people. But once in a while chosen people for what?" To find out more about "What Are God's Chosen People Chosen For?" write for a free booklet: Associated Bible Students of Metropolitan Detroit, P.O. Box 2153, Dearborn, MI 48123.

UPCOMING

CELEBRATE THANKSGIVING

125th anniversary

Demands grows for 'reference book for life'

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy celebrates its 125th year in print beginning Oct. 30. Locally, special events marking this milestone included a book talk at the Plymouth Christian Science Reading Room (445 South Harvey, Plymouth).

Special issues of the weekly Christian Science Sentinel focusing on Science and Health are currently available along with Science and Health and other spirituality study reference materials.

In the Observer reader area, Science and Health can be found at the Christian Science Reading Rooms in Plymouth and Farmington, at Little Book Shoppe on the Park in Plymouth. On the Internet it can be found at www.scienceandhealth.com.

It is also in the collection of libraries around the country including the Plymouth District Library, Canton Public Library, Northville District Library, and in Livonia at the Livonia Civic Center, Alfred Noble Branch and the Carl Sandburg Branch.

The complete text, a word index, and a wide variety of interactive material relating to Science and Health (including an online store) may be found on the Internet at www.spirituality.com

For the Publisher of Science and Health, Virginia S. Harris of The Writings of Mary Baker Eddy, there's much to be encouraged about — not only the book's longevity, but especially the fact that interest in the book continues to grow. Last year sales and distribution were the highest ever, bringing the total sales since its first publication close to 10 million copies.

■ 'In the Observer reader area, Science and Health can be found at the Christian Science Reading Rooms in Plymouth and Farmington, at Little Book Shoppe on the Park in Plymouth.'

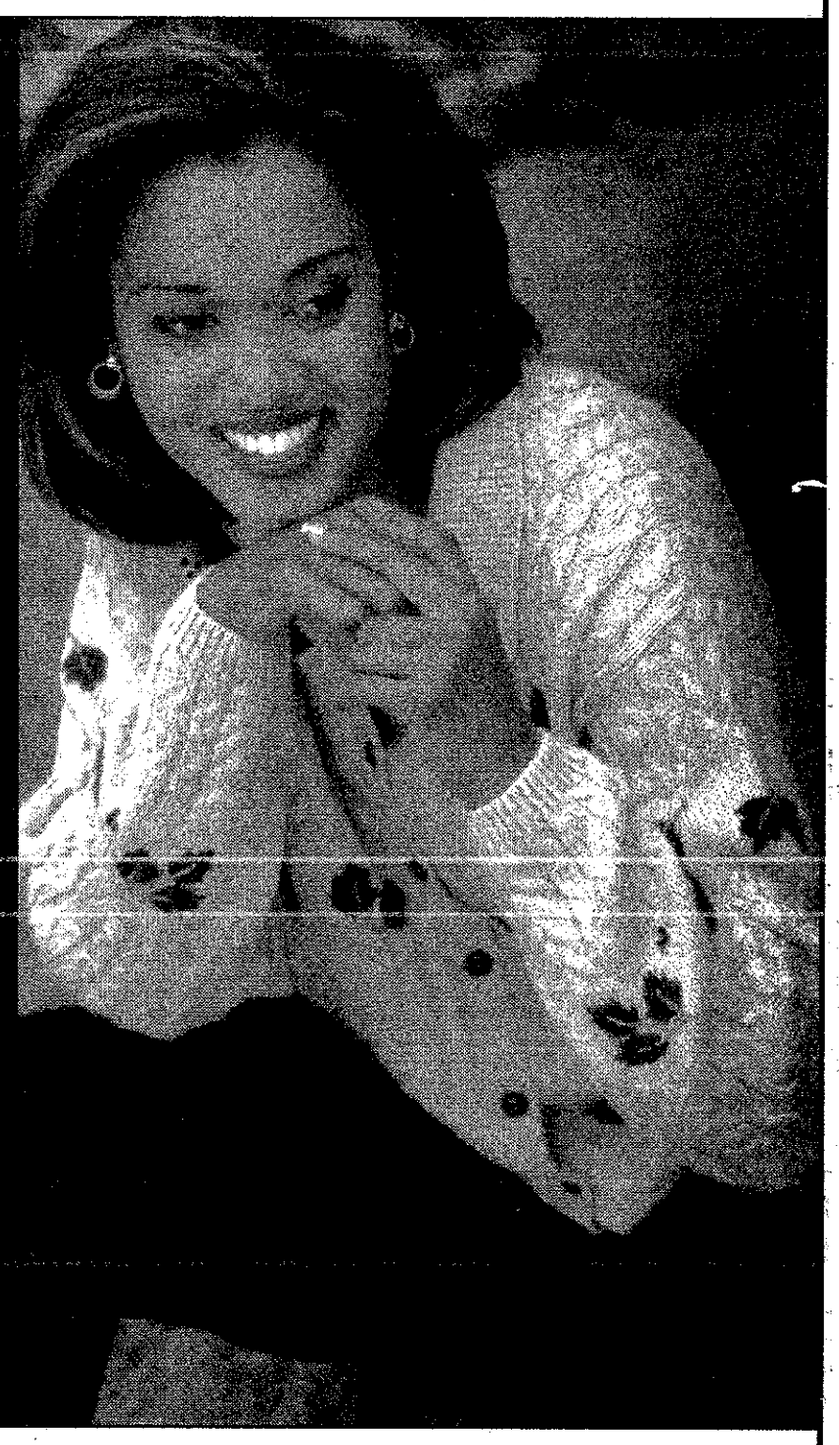

Spiritual support

Why the increased demand? Harris attributes it to a burgeoning, worldwide movement of spiritual seekers. "Men and women are searching for a practical spirituality — a spirituality that can actually do something to improve their health, family life and relationships, finances, and careers." Harris adds: "That's exactly what Eddy, a pioneer in the mind/body connection, set out to provide in Science and Health. And that's what the book has been doing successfully since 1875."

So how can a book continuously published for 125 years hold its own with so many other messages on spirituality? "Because Science and Health is a reference book for life, having served as a practical resource to millions of people for health and healing," explains Harris. "It is fundamentally a 'how-to' book. It shows readers how to apply timeless spiritual principles to the issues they face every day.

Give Thanks To The Lord... The Bible tells us to give thanks to the Lord, for He is good, His love endures forever. We all have so much to be thankful for, regardless of our situation in life.

God has given us so much and asks for little in return. We should always be thankful for His love for us and realize that in everything, God works for good with those who love Him who are called according to His purpose.

Give thanks to the Lord, because He is good, and His love is eternal.

PCJBA registration

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association will have registration for its high school-level (grades 9-12) teams from 9 a.m.-noon on Saturday, Dec. 2 at East Middle School.

Compuware still 2nd

The Compuware Ambassadors solidified their second place position in the North American Hockey League's East Division by sweeping a pair of games from third-place Cleveland, 4-2 Friday at Cleveland and 4-3 in a shootout Saturday at Compuware.

The two wins gave the Ambassadors a 13-6-1 record (27 points) in 20 games. The Soo Kewadin Casino Indians remain in first place with a 16-5-1 record (33 points) in 22 games.

Cleveland fell to 9-11-2 (20 points).

Compuware's shootout win on Saturday required a three-goal rally in the third period to force the OT. Matt Rutkowski, Todd Bentley and Mike Walsh scored for the Ambassadors. Chad Davis made 20 saves in goal.

In Friday's victory, Rutkowski had a power-play goal, Ryan Leseneau contributed a goal and an assist, and Mike Walsh and Josh Scoba scored goals. Jeff Lantz stopped 33 of 35 shots in goal.

Daniel Knapp continues to lead Compuware in scoring with 10 goals and eight assists for 18 points, one more than Rutkowski (nine goals, eight assists, 17 points).

Whalers manage 1 win on road trip

Whoever thought the Whalers would lose twice in a four-day span? The way they'd been playing thus far this season, that possibility seemed remote. But it happened last weekend, with Plymouth winning one of three games.

BY NICHOLAS A. GISMONDI
SPECIAL WRITER

It was certainly the worst weekend of the still-young season for the Plymouth Whalers.

A three-games-in-four-days swing through eastern Ontario reaped just two of a possible six points for the Whalers, who followed Thursday's 4-1 loss to Barrie with a split over the weekend.

On Saturday, Plymouth managed to eke out a 2-1 win over the Belleville Bulls thanks to a pair of goals by Rob McBride and some solid team defense.

On Sunday, fate wasn't as kind to the Whalers, who visited the Oshawa Generals — the last-place team in the Ontario Hockey League's East Division with a 4-13-3-1 record (2-6-2 in their previous 10 games). If the Whalers thought that record was an indication of the kind of team that awaited them, they were in for a rude awakening in the form of a 6-3 defeat.

Despite the 1-2 road trip, Plymouth remained atop the OHL's West Division with a 15-4-2-1 record (33 points). Oshawa improved to 5-13-3-1, while Belleville was at 11-8-1-0 through Saturday.

The game against the Bulls had the possibility of being an offensive onslaught, with two of the OHL's most potent scoring teams facing each other. The game was, however, just the opposite, partially due to the absense from both lineups of key players.

Rob McBride gave Plymouth the early lead at the 18:25 markof the first period with his ninth goal of the season, assisted by Bryan Thompson and Stacey Britstone. Belleville goalie Jan Chovan had no chance on the in-tight McBride, who hammered home a loose puck for a power-play goal.

The Whalers displayed some good team defense early on, killing a 5-on-3 power-play chance for the Bulls.

Canton comeback stalls

West Bloomfield's girls basketball team raced out to a big lead Monday night and then held on for its postseason life.

The Lakers built a 15-point lead after 12 minutes of play and survived a Plymouth Canton rally to post a 37-33 Class A regional semifinal win over the Chiefs at Southfield-Lathrup.

"That's how we play," Lakers coach Pam Mahoney said. "We come out and hold on and hold on to the game like we were the only team out of gas."

West Bloomfield (16-8), which pushed its current winning streak to six games, advanced to meet Rochester Adams (18-6) in Wednesday's regional final. Adams downed Oak Park, 59-48, in Monday's other semifinal at Lathrup.

Canton coach Bob Blohm, whose team bowed out at 16-7, saw the game as one of missed opportunities, or better yet, missed shots.

"We didn't make a shot," Blohm said. "I thought we had great scoring opportunities in the first half. We did a great job of getting it down to nine. We even had an opportunity in the end."

After racing out to a 22-7 lead with 4:12 left in the first half, the Lakers went scoreless and the Chiefs went on a 6-0 run to close the gap to 22-13 at halftime.

West Bloomfield started the third quarter in fine fashion as freshman Samantha Mahoney, senior Chastity Quinn and senior Lisa Copeland all hit buckets to stake the Lakers to a 28-13 lead.

But the Lakers would encounter another scoring drought — West Bloomfield didn't score again until there was 5:22 left in the final quarter — and Canton closed to within 28-24 following a three-pointer by Angie Neu (10 points) to start the fourth quarter.

Copeland answered seconds later, however, with a three-point play to boost the lead back to 31-24. West Bloomfield maintained that cushion until Neu's triple brought the Chiefs within 35-31 with 36 seconds to go.

Leading 35-33, Samantha Mahoney came up big when she canned two free throws with six seconds left.

The Lakers raced out to a 12-4 first quarter lead as they connected on 3-of-8 shots from the field compared with to 2-of-11 for the Chiefs. West Bloomfield was also sharp from the free-throw line, sinking 5-of-6.

"We've struggled scoring, especially against the zone," Blohm said. "But even with our lack of size, we had scoring opportunities. West Bloomfield shot the ball well early and we didn't defensively rebound the ball."

Neu led the Chiefs with 10 points. Anne Morrell scored three points but pulled down eight rebounds. Christina Kiessel had five points and four rebounds and Janine Guastella had six points and 13 rebounds.

Mahoney led all scorers with 16 points and Copeland added 12.

PCA battles but falls to Lenawee

CLASS D REGIONAL

For one half, Plymouth Christian Academy was in control of its Class D regional girls basketball game against Lenawee Christian, played Monday at Adrian Madison HS.

For three quarters plus nearly half of the fourth, PCA was still very much in the game against the Cougars.

Then the wheels fell off.

Playing without a key inside threat in 6-foot junior center Amy Brandt, who broke her thumb in the district final, the Eagles were already shorthanded. Fortunately they had Laura Clark, whose 21 first-half points put Lenawee in an eight-point hole at the intermission.

But when Clark drew her fourth and fifth fouls in a 25-second span of the final period, PCA's hopes were doomed. Lenawee outscored the Eagles 19-1 in the last 4:25 of the game to win going away, 64-44.

The Cougars, who improved to 18-5, advance to today's regional final at Adrian Madison against the winner of the Webberville/Camden-Frontier game. PCA finishes its season at 15-8.

"We ran out of steam a little bit," said PCA coach Rod Windle. "They have a lot of big bodies inside and they wore us down."

In the first half, it was the Eagles who were doing the wearing down, and they did it with their outside shooting.

"I told them to be confident in their shooting," Windle said. "And to be aggressive with our shooting."

Well class, we've reached the end of the line.

Our playoff primer is over and the final exam for Harrison — our last remaining pupil — is Saturday.

Before you take that final exam, we'd all like to bow our heads and give thanks for this season — not only in football, but other ways too.

■ I'm thankful to have coaches who care about their players on and off the field and most of those who had losing records handled the season with a sense of humility

■ I'm thankful Garden City's Mike "Don't call me Steve" Sparks has a sense of humor.

■ I'm thankful for Chicken Tomato Basil sausage at Westborn Market and the carrot cake from Awrey Bakeries.

■ I'm thankful that not all parents act like a small group of girls basketball fans did last week, embarrasing themselves and, more importantly, their daughters and sisters by yelling at the officials the whole game and displaying a general inability to A) count to three, B) realize that there is contact in basketball and C) understand the game itself. If I were these people, just before dinner tonight, I would hug their daughter/sister and say I was sorry.

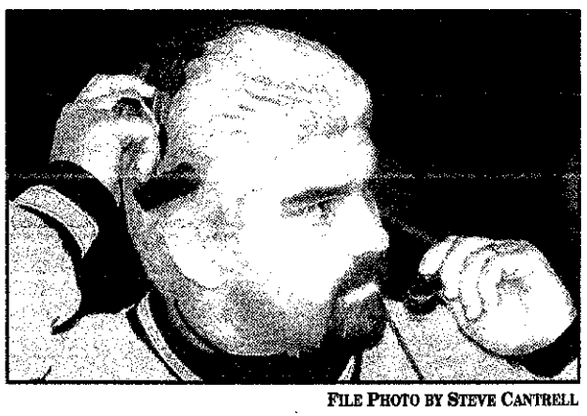

■ I'm thankful most schools let the game be the game, instead of blaring obnoxious music over the PA system, complete with blaring announcer.

■ I'm thankful to have met some very good people on my beat over the past nine months (yes, this means you too, Legs; and even you, Miles).

■ I'm thankful for Shelia and Gwen, two people who really run their athletic departments.

■ I'm thankful for the chance to golf at TPC-Dearborn, stick a tee-shot 17 inches from the hole on No. 8 and, above all, burn Brad Emons out for closest to the pin.

Sarkesian's score helps Irish cause

A pair of corner kicks from Meotis Erikson set up two goals by Notre Dame and propelled the Irish to a 2-0 win over Harvard in a third-round NCAA Tournament women's soccer match Friday in South Bend.

The top-ranked Notre Dame team advances to the NCAA quarterfinals for the seventh-straight season, hosting Santa Clara at 7 p.m. Friday.

The win pushed the Irish's record to 22-0-1. Harvard finishes at 12-8.

An Erikson corner in the game's 31st minute was headed home by midfielder Anne Makinen.

The clincher was scored by Mia Sarkesian, a junior midfielder and a Plymouth Salem graduate. Sarkesian slid to knock home a loose ball following Erikson's corner 4:24 into the second half.

For Sarkesian, it was her fifth goal of the season.

Six of the remaining eight teams in this year's NCAA quarterfinals were participants last year — including North Carolina and Notre Dame, who met in the finals last season (North Carolina won).

Madonna falls in semis

WOMEN'S SOCCER

It was one heckuva run, but in the end Madonna University could not summon one more miracle.

The Lady Crusaders advanced to Monday's NAIA Tournament semifinals by beating defending national champion Westmont (Calif.) College in shootout Saturday in Miami.

What proved to be the game-winning goal came on the Crusaders' fifth penalty kick. They had converted three kicks to two for Westmont; another make would give Madonna the victory.

Christen Shull, a freshman defender and a Plymouth Salem graduate, hit her shot to propel the Crusaders past second-seeded Westmont and into Monday's semifinal opposite Simon Fraser University (British Columbia).

Their good fortune didn't last. Simon Fraser got a goal just 1:58 into their semifinal match from Phebe Trotman and Madonna, which struggled offensively in the tournament, could not get on track in suffering a 3-0 loss.

The Crusaders end their season — only the third in their existence — with a 20-3-1 record. They advanced further in the NAIA National Tournament than any previous Madonna team.

Trotman's goal was the only marker of the first half in Monday's semi. But that changed in the first 13 minutes of the second period, when Randee Hermus twice found the net for Simon Fraser on headers off corner kicks, at 7:29 and 12:29.

Jenny Barker (from Livonia Stevenson), who had been so instrumental in Madonna's win over Westmont, could do nothing to alter the outcome against Simon Fraser, which had a 12-1 shot advantage in the first half and 22-2 edge for the match.

The Clan took a 15-4-1 into Tuesday's championship match against top-seeded Lindenwood (Mo.), which beat the University-Azusa Pacific (Calif.) University 1-0 in Monday's other semifinal.

Indeed, Barker was the difference against the Warriors. The Crusaders managed just four shots in 90 minutes of regulation and two 15-minute overtimes.

Westmont, meanwhile, pummeled Barker with 32 shots, forcing her to make 18 saves — one of them a diving stop on an Emily Blackerby strike from 18 yards out with 11 seconds left in the second OT. In their final two tournament games, Madonna was outshot 54-6.

Barker's outstanding play against Westmont continued in the shootout. She stopped the Warriors' first two kickers, Angela Crowell and Janel Kaden, allowing the Crusaders to set the stage — which they did with makes by Bree Sleek, Jamie Scott (from Livonia Churchill) and Melissa Jacobs (Stevenson).

Westmont's third and fourth kickers, Janee Andre and Annie Snington, both found the net and Madonna's Emily Jackson (Farmington Harrison) was stopped by Warrior keeper Kristin St. Clair, narrowing the Crusader lead to 3-2 — and setting the stage for Shull's dramatic conversion.

Westmont finished at 15-3-3.

SC 6th at NJCAAs

Schoolcraft College followed its disappointing start at the eight-team NJCAA Tournament with a finish filled with resolve.

The Lady Ocelots were upset by Young Harris in the tournament quarterfinals, 2-1 last Thursday. They bounced back, however, with consecutive wins over Champlain (Vt.) and Springfield Tech (Mass.).

The two wins allowed SC to finish in fifth position nationally with a 22-1-3 record.

Also, Katie Weber and Toni Perry were selected to the all-tournament team.

On Saturday, the Ocelots handed Springfield a 3-2 defeat. The Lady Rams took the early lead, scoring midway through the first half, but SC responded quickly with a goal from Angela Maile, assisted by Perry.

The score remained 1-1 at the half, but the Ocelots took the lead early in the second half when Kristah Manteuffel (from Redford Thurston) turned assists from Kristen Hait and Weber into a goal.

This time Springfield was in position to respond, which the Lady Rams did to knot it at 2-all.

With just 2 1/2 minutes remaining in the match, Maile netted her second goal of the match to secure the victory for SC. Kelly Connell (Plymouth Canton) assisted.

Amy Dorogi (Canton) went into goal for SC.

Salem, Canton: Strong swims, no points at state

■ SWIMMING

It really was a good day for both Plymouth Salem's and Plymouth Canton's swimmers at last weekend's Class A swim finals at Eastern Michigan University.

Unfortunately, they all came up just short of scoring.

"We were very close to having a very good meet," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "I would have liked to have us get that chance to swim on the second day. We always swim well on the second day."

The best the Rocks could do was a 14th and a few 15ths. The top 12 finishers in each event score at state.

Best example of close but-not-quite was Canton's Danielle Drysdale. The junior tied for 12th in the 100-yard backstroke with Ann Arbor Pioneer's Jessica Gracon, both clocking 1:00.92, then lost in a swim-off. Drysdale officially finished 13th.

She was also 19th in the 100 butterfly in 1:00.76.

For Salem, perhaps the clearest illustration of the closeness of the races came from senior Kari Foust, who finished 15th in the 100 back in 1:01.04. Had she gone a single second faster, she would have placed fourth.

Placing 14th for the Rocks was the 200 medley relay team of Foust, Amy Mertens, Monica Glowski and Emily Laskie (1:53.82).

Mertens, a freshman, took 15th in the 200 individual medley with a Salem varsity record of 2:13.50, breaking the mark formerly held by Yvonne Lynn, who's now swimming at Oakland University. Mertens also took 23rd in the 100 breaststroke (1:09.99).

Glowski collected the third 15th for Salem in the 100 freestyle (54.37), again breaking another of Lynn's varsity records. Glowski took 20th in the 50 free in an event ravaged by controversy. A malfunctioning touch pad resulted in Glowski being awarded a time of 25.22, a time Olson felt sure she bettered.

Salem's 200 free relay team of Danielle Powers, Laskie, Alicia Dotson and Glowski was 19th in a season-best time of 1:42.95.

Pioneer was an easy winner in the team standings, scoring 225 points — well ahead of second-place Grand Haven (157 1/2).

Madonna wins region; NAIA tourney next

BY BRAD EMONS

VOLLEYBALL

The Madonna University women's volleyball team is headed to West Palm Beach, Fla. — not to count ballots, but play for the NAIA Championship.

The Lady Crusaders played two of their best matches of the season Saturday in capturing the NAIA Region Tournament at Grace College (Winona Lake, Ind.).

MU, 38-6 overall, will be among 20 schools vying for a national championship beginning Nov. 29 at Palm Beach Atlantic (Fla.) University. The championship match will be Dec. 2.

Led by Region Player-of-the-Year Brandy Malewski (Redford Thurston), MU defeated Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference rival Cornerstone in the championship match, 15-8, 15-12, 15-10, after eliminating Indiana Wesleyan in the semifinals, 15-4, 15-5, 15-11.

Coach Jerry Abraham, who launched the MU program in 1987, will be making his first NAIA appearance since 1996 and the fourth in school history.

"This team refused to lose, they were very determined," Abraham said. "Our girls keep getting and better. This team has great chemistry and they play for each other. They get along very well."

Malewski had a spectacular performance against Indiana Wesleyan, the national small college champion and ranked No. 13 in the latest NAIA poll.

Malewski finished with 26 kill shots in 36 attacks and also had 19 digs.

Seniors Kelly Artymovich and Erin Cunningham, both named to the All-Region first-team, added 15 and nine kills, respectively. They also combined for 46 digs.

Setter Jen Wind, named second-team All-Region, finished with 59 assists, while other contributions came from Jennifer Frost (eight kills), Amanda Suder (22 digs) and Hayley Myers (two solo blocks and three block-assists).

The Region championship match was a replay of the WHAC final as Madonna beat Cornerstone for the third time this season in four tries.

"We got jump-started early and attacked them," Abraham said. "Our serving and serve reception was excellent. We were able to put pressure on them early and we took them out of their offense."

Malewski had 16 kills in 21 attempts with only one error. She also had six block-assists as Cornerstone bowed out at 35-7 overall.

Cunningham added nine kills and 20 digs, while Artymovich had nine kills, 16 digs and three aces. Wind finished with 34 assists, while Marylu Hemme (Livonia Ladywood) collected 13 digs.

"Both teams are good passing teams," said Abraham, whose team was ranked No. 16 in NAIA. "You never know how you're going to play, but we were very confident.

"It was amazing how well we played. We got good play from Donna (Birkenheir), Haley and my niece (Suder). Everybody contributed. We seem to be peaking at the right time."

Crusaders gain a tournament split

WOMEN'S HOOP

The Madonna University women's basketball squad split a pair of games over the weekend at the Huntington College (Ind.) Tournament.

On Saturday, MU won the consolation final against Trinity Christian (Ill.), 65-56, as Plymouth Canton graduate Kristi Fiorenzi led the way with 16 points and 12 rebounds.

Mahogany Fletcher (Farmington Hills Harrison) added 11 points, whle Carissa Gizicki chipped in with 10 points and seven assists.

Michelle Miela added nine points for the Lady Crusaders, who led 30-25 at halftime.

MU made 25 of 30 free throws, and outrebounded Trinity, 49-48.

On Friday, Cedarville (Ohio) bounced the Lady Crusaders, 70-55, as Farmington High graduate Amanda Porter led the winners with 17 points, six rebounds and four assists.

Julie Stauffer added 16, while Julie Nourse contributed 12 points and 10 rebounds.

Kathy Panganis scored 15 for Madonna, but hit only five of 20 shots from the floor. Fiorenzi added 10 points, while Gizicki contributed nine points, nine rebounds and five assists.

MU trailed by only two at intermission, 32-30, before Cedarville pulled away in the second half.

Kirtland CC proves no match for Ocelots

MEN'S HOOP

Seven players scored in double figures Saturday as host Schoolcraft College rolled to a 123-73 men's basketball win over Kirtland CC.

Sam Hoskin, a 6-foot-8 center from Redford Bishop Borgess, led the winners with 22 points.

Derrick Bird (Ypsilanti) chipped in with 13 points, while Mike Peek contributed 13.

Others in double figures for the Ocelots (2-0 overall) included Nick Evola and Colin Wilkinson, 12 each; Emir Medunjanin (North Farmington) and Mike Tobin, 10 each.

Point-guard Dave McGlown added nine points.

"The kids played hard and because we're deeper, we wore them down in the second half," said Schoolcraft coach Carlos Briggs, whose team outscored Kirtland 73-38 in the second half.

Kirtland (3-2 overall), coached by former SC coach Glen Donahue, got a team-high 14 points from Monte Tucker.

SC takes 3rd at NJCAA

BY BRAD EMONS

X-COUNTRY

Only six points separated the Schoolcraft College women's cross country team from a national title.

The Lady Ocelots were also only two points shy of being runner-up Saturday in cold and snowy Levelland, Tex. where the National Junior College Athletic Association Division II meet was staged.

Two Kansas schools, Johnson County and Colby, finished one-two with 52 and 55 points, respectively. Schoolcraft was third with 58.

The next two schools in the 13-team field, Paradise Valley and Flathead Valley, each finished with 132.

"It's kind of disappointing because six points is not that much in cross country," SC third-year coach Nancy Gavoor said. "It was basically a three-team race and on any given day one of these three teams could have faltered and it could have gone the other way.

"But overall we got the maximum out of these girls. They ran so hard all year. We squeezed them as hard as we could, but I'm proud of the fact that all seven of our girls never had to miss a meet because of injury or sickness."

Colby sophomore Amber Stephens was a runaway winner on the 5-kilometer (3.1-mile) course in 18 minutes, 49.8 seconds.

Johnson County, which placed four in the top 10, was led by sophomore Michelle Simecka, who was second in 19:25.0.

Schoolcraft freshman Gabrielle Crandall, a 42-year-old mother of three from Plymouth Township, made NJCAA All-America honors by finishing fifth in 19:44.2.

Teammate Katie Chonacas, a sophomore from Livonia, was sixth in 19:49.1, also making the top 15 and earning NJCAA All-America status.

Schoolcraft sophomore Jenny Furlong (Livonia Franklin) was 16th overall in 20:04.2, while freshman Heidi Frank (North Farmington) finished 19th in 20:25.3. The fifth scorer was Garden City's Mandi Davis, who took 30th in 20:46.1.

Two other Schoolcraft runners, Christine Smith (Livonia Churchill) and Andrea Garibaldi (Plymouth Salem) were 73rd and 88th, respectively.

"Conditions were not great," Gavoor said. "It was snowing, 28 degrees and the wind was about 19 MPH."

Next year's Division II NJCAA meet will be at Lansing Community College. Gavoor must replace three of her top seven as Chonacas, Furlong and Davis move on to four-year schools.

"Last year we were eighth and this year we were third," the SC coach said. "Maybe next year is our year."

A bit disappointing

ROCKERS

Well, it's evident the Detroit Rockers aren't about to sit back and let this team develop.

The team added two players during its 11-day layoff last week, including former Rocker Neil Gilbert, reacquired from Philadelphia for cash.

Unfortunately, one thing hasn't changed — the Rockers fell behind early in both of its games last weekend at Plymouth's Compuware Arena and couldn't catch up, losing 15-10 to Philadelphia Friday and 14-10 to the expansion Toronto Thunder Hawks Sunday.

The losses dropped Detroit to 1-5 overall.

Friday night's game was close throughout, with the lead changing hands five times. Sean Bowers led the Rockers' attack with four goals and Shawn Boney added a three-point goal and two assists.

The Rockers pulled to within 10-9 in the third quarter, but Kixx goalie Peter Pappas frustrated them the rest of the way.

Against the Thunder Hawks, who remain atop the NPSL's National Conference with a 5-1 record, Detroit fell behind early and never caught up. The Hawks opened up a 4-0 lead before the Rockers' Tim Ernst scored a two-pointer to make it 4-2.

The Hawks then went on a rampage, getting a pair of two-point goals from Guiliano Oliviero and Jocelyn Roy to open up a 12-2 advantage early in the second period.

Bowers answered with five points in a 32-second span to narrow Detroit's deficit to 12-7 at halftime.

Dan Illie Diac, the Rockers' Romanian goalie, replaced Scoop Stanisic in goal to start the second half and Detroit got a shoot-out goal from Bowers to make it 12-8. Joel Shanker's two-pointer pulled the Rockers to within 12-10 midway through the fourth quarter, but an empty-net goal for Toronto sealed Detroit's fate.

The Rockers play at Toronto at 7:35 p.m. Thursday; their next home game is Dec. 8 against the Edmonton Drillers.

This two-day class will offer the intermediate to advanced angler an opportunity to learn to tie classic Atlantic Salmon flies. The first segment, scheduled for 6 p.m.-9 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 15, consists of explaining the various materials, how and where to obtain them and their preparation. The second segment, slated for Saturday, Dec. 16 from 9 a.m.-7 p.m., involves tying a married wing fly. The materials will be provided, but participants need to bring a vise, scissors, bobbin, hackle pliers and small non-serrated jaw pliers. For costs and additional information, call Westbank Anglers at (248) 538-3474.

Ladywood knocks off PSL powerhouse Cody

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

BASKETBALL

Livonia Ladywood knocked off one of the Detroit Public School League's best girls basketball teams in Cody, 50-38.

Now the PSL's King awaits.

That's right, unbeaten Detroit Martin Luther King (18-0) will be Wednesday's opponent in the Class A regional finals. Game time is 7 p.m. at Ladywood

While King was forced to go to overtime to eliminate previously unbeaten Grosse Pointe North, 53-48, host Ladywood ran its record to 17-6 overall with a 12-point victory in the nightcap of the Monday double-header.

"I think you'll see a King team that will be playing with a lot more intensity," Ladywood coach Andrea Gorski said of the impending matchup. "We can't be passive against their defense. They're going to trap us so we have to be aggressive and play smart. We have to move the ball around offensively and work for good shots. Our guards have to attack. That's our key."

Ladywood got off to a 17-9 lead in the opening quarter against Cody, but went stone cold in the second quarter. The Blazers missed all 13 field goal attempts but made six of 10 free throws while being outscored 12-6.

With just a two-point lead, 23-21, Gorski reinforced some her strategy during halftime.

"We really played a decent first quarter, but then we came down and got out of our offense," Gorski said. "We jacked up some shots and made bad decisions. We talked about that, along with being more patient."

After Cody's 6-foot junior center Ralphnea Peyton scored the first basket of the third period at 6:50, Ladywood responded with a seven-point run on a pair of hoops by Michelle Harakas, a free throw by Melissa Harakas and a bucket by Liz Obrecht.

Ladywood outscored the Comets 11-5 in the third period to increase their lead to an eight-point cushion, 34-26.

Michelle Harakas, who led all scorers with 20 points, scored six straight to open the final quarter and put the Blazers ahead, 40-28, with 6:12 to go.

Cody never got closer than eight the rest of the way, finishing with a 16-4 record.

Cody, with plenty of size on the low blocks, tried some high-low action to get untracked offensively.

But the Comets, who got a team-high 16 points from Shatona Clark, shot just 28.8 percent as a team from the floor (13 of 45). Ladywood hit 17 of 44 (38.6 percent).

Obrecht finished with 10 points and seven rebounds. Melissa Harakas, a 5-9 senior guard, added nine points, six assists and four steals. Michelle Harakas also had nine rebounds and five steals.

thankful for all coaches who take the time to report the accomplishments of their players — win or lose.

Brad Emons

■ I'm thankful for chicken noodle soup at David's New York Deli.

■ I'm thankful I'll get to see Clarenceville's Tim Shaw run the football another year.

■ I'm thankful I got to witness the Mid-Michigan Bucks' heroic performance this summer against the Miami Fusion.

■ I'm thankful I'm invited, yet allowed to play a mediocre round of golf, at the Legends Hall of Fame.

■ I'm thankful I get to run around Newburgh Lake and through in Hines Park whenever I want.

■ I'm thankful I was able to go to the Olympic Triathlon Trials in Dallas and watch Sheila Taormina win the thing, along with watching her compete in the Olympics.

■ Wright State 53, MSU 49. I was thankful to be there that night.

■ I'm thankful I got to see Rob Brown play hoops for Schoolcraft.

■ I'm thankful for guys like Madonna University's Bryan Rizzo, who makes our job so much easier.

■ I'm thankful the MU baseball team gets to play one more season on its home field.

■ I'm thankful to get through the Great Lakes Relay and Dances with Dirt.

■ I'm thankful I don't have to make any more grid predictions until next fall.

C.J. Risak

■ I'm thankful for Tim Baechler, who spared no sacrifice — which is plainly evident (see photo) — in guiding Plymouth Canton's football team deep into the state playoffs, a place no school district team had ventured in nearly a decade. Baechler, his coaches and his players put a lot into this season and deserve everything they get (including improved hairstyles).

■ I'm thankful the MHSAA has proven itself as an organization with a profound sense of humor. I mean, they keep insisting announcers at athletic events read that script proclaiming "Good Sports are Winners" — it must be for the comedic value, right? We have hockey players fighting in the post-game handshake line, we have one soccer player deliberately kicking another in a sensative area when the official isn't looking, we have officials stopping games until fans stop shouting obscenities at them, and then we have the parents . . . this has to be stuff the MHSAA plans to submit to Saturday Night Live.

■ Always first and foremost, I'm thankful for my family.

■ I'm thankful to work with coaches like Bob Blohm and Fred Thomann and Don Smith and Ed McCarthy and Chuck Olson and Bob Brodie and Doug Taylor and a dozen others who always treat their teams like family.

Dan O'Meara

■ I'm thankful ... no, Hawk fans are thankful! ... better yet, John Herrington is thankful! Thankful his knees have held up for another football season. Just one more game to go, coach!

Herrington, 59, will have knee replacement surgery (both knees) Dec. 12.

Actually, he was going to have it done at the end of last season. Then, he felt better for a while, delayed the surgery and later regretted it.

With the help of a cortisone shot, Herrington has made it through 13 games and back to the Silverdome for another state championship final.

But, after this season, there's no putting off the surgery anymore.

"I know it will hurt while I'm out," Herrington said, "but to get rid of the pain I'm anxious to get it done.

"Heck, I may actually jog out on the field next year."

Herrington hopes to return to school for the start of the second semester on Jan. 15.

Speaking of giving thanks, Emons is giving thanks that he will have won the playoff version of the picks. And he'll also put up a strong argument that as in the rest of the sporting world, it's not what happens in the regular season that counts, but its what you do in the playoffs.

Emons, runner-up to Dan O'Meara in the regular season, is our leader at 16-4 heading into the final game, while O'Meara and C.J. Risak are both 15-5. Me? Dead last, bay-bee, at 13-7.

Saturday's Game

Harrison (13-0) vs. East Lansing (10-3), Silverdome, 8 p.m.: Consider this, before all of you jump squarely, with your green and gold pom-pons, onto that Harrison bandwagon. All three of East Lansing's losses were to playoff teams. Two of those teams are playing this weekend for state championships. Yeah, Harrison is playing tough defense. Yeah, they just keep rolling up the points on offense. Yeah,.... ummm... ok, so Harrison is going to win. Thought I'd try to justify some hope for East Lansing.

PICKS: Harrison: Beaudry, O'Meara, Risak, Emons.

In particular, Windle wanted Clark — PCA's top player — to take more of a scorer's role, with Brandt's absense.

She did.

"Laura really stepped up and took the scorer's load," acknowledged Windle.

Cheri Smith, Lenawee Christian's coach, noticed. "They shot the lights out in the first half," she said. "I said if they shoot 95 percent the whole game, they're going to win."

PCA led 18-11 after one quarter, thanks to Clarks' four three-pointers. The Cougars bounced back a bit in the second quarter, but still Clark was their biggest problem, scoring nine of PCA's 14 points as the Eagles outscored Lenawee 14-13 to take a 32-24 halftime lead.

"That's something else I told my girls," said Smith in evaluating her team's first-half performance. "If they keep getting three shots to our one, they're going to win."

The Cougars came out with a different attitude in the second half. "They really hit us hard with their half-court press," said Windle. "We didn't get the same types of looks (at the basket) in the second half that we got in the first."

That showed on the scoreboard. PCA managed just eight points in the third quarter and only four in the fourth.

"Obviously, when (Clark) fouled out, it was a big deficit to overcome," said Smith.

It would have been a difficult task with Clark. Without her, and with Brandt also sidelined, it was impossible.

Lenawee's 17-8 third-quarter surge included the final four points of the period, which gave the Cougars a 41-37 lead entering the fourth. PCA didn't fade, however; a three-pointer by Amanda Saagman and a basket by Kimberly Guilfoyle trimmed the Cougar lead to 43-42 with five minutes remaining.

Lenawee's pressure defense had been a major factor in turning the game around. PCA could not imitate that success; when the Eagles attempted to apply pressure in the fourth quarter, the Cougars attacked it for easy basket after easy basket.

Clark drew her fourth foul with 4:01 remaining. After missing a shot with 3:40 left, Clark got whistled for her fifth foul while scrambling for the rebound — which meant PCA had to play the final 3:36 without the only player with more than five points.

Which, as much as anything else, was the Eagles' downfall. Clark finished with a season-high 25 points; only four, however, came in the second half. Next best was Heather Vargo with five, to go with four assists.

Lenawee's balance was much better. The Cougars got 12 points from Fallon Steele, 11 from Crystal Hubbard and 10 from Anna Psaute.

And as any coach will say, three scorers are almost always better than one.

Belleville just 52 seconds into the second period, but the Whalers recaptured the lead for good when McBride scored his second of the night at 6:26 of the period. A Ryan O'Keefe pass went to Thompson, who sent the puck to McBride at the side of the net. With very little space to spare between goalie and post, McBride managed to give the Whalers a 2-1 lead and the eventual win over the Bulls.

Belleville outshot the Whalers, 27-26, but Plymouth goalie Rob Zepp played well in shutting down the Bulls' potent offense.

Sunday's game against the last-place Generals was another story. Oshawa scored just 13 seconds into the game when Brandon Nolan put the puck past Whaler goalie Paul Drew, who was unbeaten in his previous four starts this season.

Oshawa went ahead 2-0 when John Kozoriz got in tight and put the puck top shelf for his sixth of the year at the 7:09 mark of the opening period.

Zepp took over in goal, but it didn't change the Generals' fortunes. They extended their lead to 3-0 when Lindsay Plunkett got his seventh of the year at 9:34 of the first period on the power play.

Damian Surma finally put the Whalers on the board with his ninth goal of the year at 14:41 on a play started by Stephen Weiss, who worked in close to get the initial shot. Surma jammed home the rebound to make it 3-1, Weiss picking up the assist for his 39th point this season.

Nolan answered with his second of the night at 15:45 to push Oshawa's lead to 4-1. Weiss, held pointless a night earlier by Belleville, scored his 19th of the season on the power play to pull the Whalers to within 4-2 after one period.

The fireworks of the first period were not repeated in the second, with neither team scoring. Drew returned to goal for Plymouth.

The Generals' Brandon Cullen stretched his team's lead to three at 5:50 of the third period, but Nathan O'Nabigon got the Whalers back to within two at 7:04 with his fourth of the season, tipping a Cole Jarrett slap shot past Oshawa goalie Derek Dolson.

Plunkett's second of the night later in the period sealed the deal for the Generals, whose 6-3 win was the worst defeat Plymouth has suffered this season.

The Whalers play the Sarnia Sting at 7 p.m. tonight at Compuware Arena, then host the Peterborough Petes at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Compuware.

NOTES: On Friday in Toronto, the Whalers were guests of Colin Campbell and the Toronto Maple Leafs. After a practice at the Air Canada Centre (home of the Leafs), the Whalers enjoyed a trip through downtown Toronto, including the Hockey Hall of Fame.

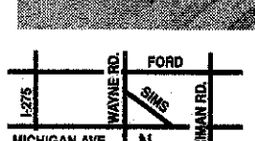

That night they attended the Leafs versus-Tampa Bay game, quite a break for them in what had been an extensive and trying early schedule.

MAKING HISTORY

Family heirlooms featured on Livonia Christmas Walk

Jim and Joann Shaffer decorate their Livonia home for Christmas every year, but they do not use ordinary ornaments or decorations.

In the living room a Dickens village sits with a train nestled among the buildings, carrying imaginary visitors from store to store. A Christmas tree sits on a table. It is no ordinary table or train, either, as the items bring a lot of history and tradition to the holidays for the Shaffers.

"We have a table where I sat as a child, which has a train (on top of it) that my husband enjoyed as a child," Shaffer said. The Shaffers decorate with traditional heirloom ornaments from their parents and grandparents, some from as far back as the early 1900s.

It is that tradition and charm that Livonia Christmas Walk organizers seek when choosing homes to be on the annual walk. The Shaffers are one of seven homes on the walk on Saturday Dec 2. Proceeds from the walk will help pay for the restoration and preservation of Greenmead Historical Village.

"We look at the homes that have an overall appeal, whether they are modern or traditional," said Janet Bennett, chairwoman for the event. "We look for homes that are distinctive in some way. We go in there and we look for things that will interest people. They like a lot of Christmas decorating.

"People are looking for ideas for their own home and they like to see unusual things. Whether it is Santa Claus with bells or something, they like to see unusual things."

Bennett was impressed with the Shaffers' home.

"It's very lovely and very nicely finished," Bennett said.

Traditional times

The Shaffers' 10-foot tree in the gathering room displays ornaments from several generations of the Shaffer family, including the Shaffer children and grandchildren, the Shaffer's ornaments from their childhood, their parents and grandparents.

"We even have a Santa topper for the tree that I had when I was in about the fourth or fifth grade at St. Scholastica," Shaffer said. "We incorporate the old one with the new."

Some of the ornaments from her late father include glass ones, such as a little angel or bird. Those are decorated higher up on the tree.

The family spends most of their time in this room and gathers here for most holidays and celebrations. There have been proposals of marriage given here, new grandchildren brought home, a Grandfather spent his last days here and Mass has been celebrated in this wonderful setting.

The six grandchildren also enjoy a North Pole Village in the family, which they help set up. "It started with the first grandchild about six years ago, and now there are about 50 ornaments," Shaffer said. Of course, milk and cookies are left for Santa here.

Upstairs in the children's playroom grandchildren enjoy a dollhouse built by a great grandfather. Most of the toys, puzzles and books belonged to the grandchildren's dads. "A little tree sits on the table, where the kids have their tea parties," Shaffer said. That playroom also has a Santa theme.

Santa Bears from Hudson's sit on each stair, also decorated with garland and lights. Shaffer has Santa Bears for every year since 1984 with the exception of 1990.

Pipe organ adds charm

Other homes on the walk equal that kind of charm in a variety of ways. David Pesseno's home is one of them. "When you drive up his house is just an ordinary house but when you see [in the home] you notice that he has done some nice things with woodworking in the home," Bennett said.

Passeno, a church organist and music director at St. Martha's Church in Dearborn, maintains and decorates a pipe organ in the living room of the home he shares with his mother, Margaret.

The home, a ranch built in about 1963, was enhanced with David's woodworking, namely crown molding. "I turned it into a more traditional atmosphere with woodworking," Passeno said.

The organ is about 10-feet high, 10-feet wide and 4-feet deep. Six trees will sit in Passeno's living room. "We always go with traditional red and green," Passeno said of the holiday decorations. The largest tree stands about 11 feet tall.

Artistic touches added

Beverly Johnston has many watercolors and a studio in her home. "You can see how she has things set up and arranged. We thought it would be fun to see a living artist's home," Bennett said. "Her home is warm and cozy and very comfortable."

Beverly Johnston's decorations feature bears and Santas. "My tree is decorated with only bear ornaments. I've been collecting them for quite a while. I've collected them from different people."

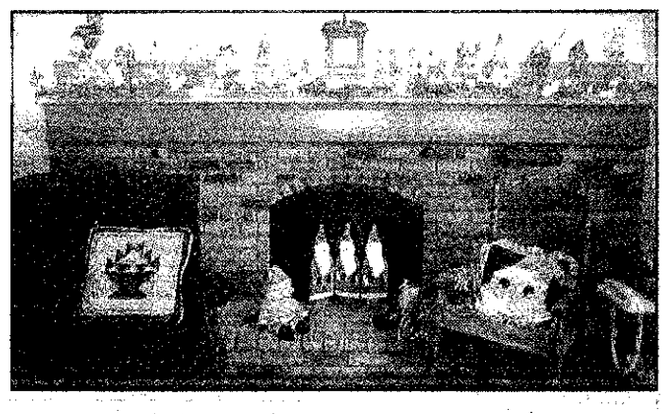

"I decorate to celebrate the season. I love the Christmas holidays."

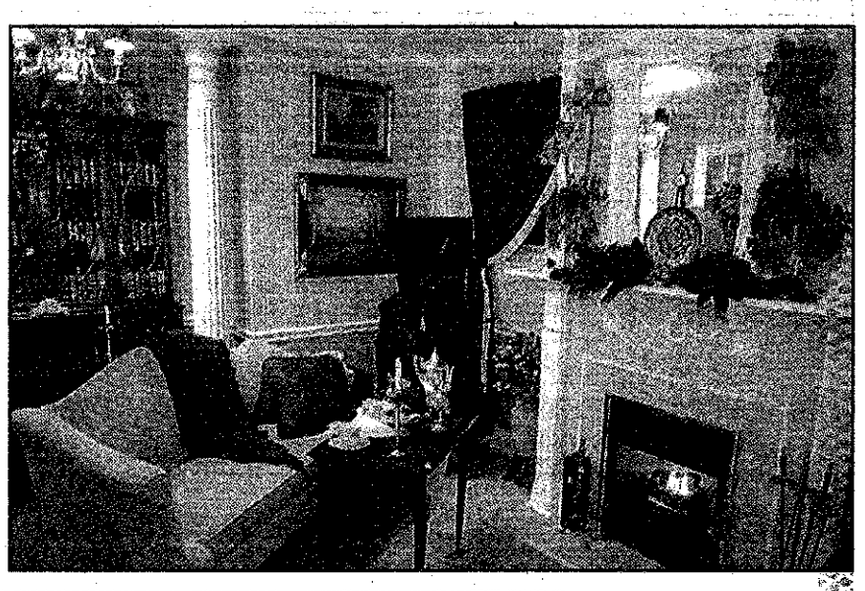

Johnston also owns a Santa Claus collection. "I quit counting at 150." They range from tiny ones to 3 feet in height. "Every year I say I'm not going to buy one, and my sister says she won't let me, but then I went and bought three last year," she said with a laugh.

All six homes feature decorations provided by Livonia florists including Merri-Craft Florist, French's Flowers & Gifts, Flower King, Nature's Floral Gifts, Roses and Buds and Cardwell Florist, and Decker's Flowers & Gifts of Westland.

For the homeowners and decorators, the walk represents a chance to show off their homes, but they also realize the importance of the fund-raiser. "It's for a great cause for the restoration of the (Greenmead) village," Passeno said.

What: Livonia Christmas Walk. Seven homes in Livonia, decorated for the holidays, will be available for viewing.
When: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2.
Who: Presented by the Friends for the Development of Greenmead (Livonia's Historical Village). All proceeds benefit the restoration and preservation of Greenmead Historical Village.
Tickets: $7 in advance or $8 on the day of the event. Tickets can be purchased from any of the Livonia libraries, the Civic Center Library gift shop, Greenmead and the Department of Community Resources, located on the fifth floor of Livonia City Hall. If tickets are purchased the day of the event, patrons will need to start at the Civic Center Library, on Five Mile Road just west of Farmington, or the Hill House at Greenmead, 20501 Newburgh, to obtain a program with a map of the walk.
One lucky Christmas walker will receive a free Friday night's stay for two at the Livonia Marriott Hotel at Laurel Park Place. Be sure to fill out your ticket stub and turn it into any Christmas Walk hostess. The drawing will be held after the Christmas Walk. The winner will be notified by telephone. For information, call (734) 466-2540 or (734) 425-4855.

Refrigerator waterline needs an inline filter

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

Here are a few notes about what is happening in the appliance world.

Circuit City dropped out of selling major home appliances. Now along comes the recent announcement by Wal-Mart by the year's end, about a dozen of its U.S. stores will be selling General Electric-brand refrigerators, freezers, ovens, dishwashers, washers and dryers in a test program.

If you don't think that the subject of discarded refrigerators is a serious subject in this country, how about the $1 million that New York City has to pay after being fined by the Environmental Protection Agency? As part of a recent court settlement, New York must spend $3 million on supplemental programs to help the environment. That came after the EPA found that ozone-depleting substances, including CFC-12 refrigerant, were released into the environment when the city disposed of refrigerators.

In Somerset, England, a service technician appeared at the home of Therese O'Dell to repair her Servis washing machine. O'Dell paid 269 pounds for the washer which carried a full-year warranty. When she called for service, the company failed to show up on two different scheduled appointments.

On a third occasion, the service man checked out the machine. He informed her that he didn't have the necessary parts and would have to return after picking them up. She locked the service technician in the house, blocked his van from leaving the driveway by using her car as a barricade and refused police requests to let him go. After three hours of keeping the technician hostage, her demands for a new washer were met with a positive result. She was told she would receive a new machine, so then she released the company representative unharmed.

Dear Mr. Gagnon: My daughter has a 1996 Whirlpool Designer Style refrigerator. She recently moved and put her refrigerator in storage for two months.

When she reconnected the refrigerator and drew some water to drink, the water and ice cubes has a nasty taste. Is there anything she can do to clean the lines, maybe run bleach or vinegar through them? Joyce Miller from Whispering Pines, NC, formerly of Byron, Mich.

She should install an in-line filter on the waterline leading to the refrigerator.

Is your refrigerator old?

Frigidaire is looking for the homeowner with the oldest operating refrigerator in the United States or Canada. Some lucky consumer will win a complete kitchen of new Frigidaire appliances. Entry forms are available by calling the company at 1-800-374-4432 or looking them up on the web site at www.frigidaire.com.

You must send a picture of the operating refrigerator along with the entry form. You must also send the model and serial number and any other information such as the operating instructions or the bill of sale. There will be another 10 winners from different regions of the country who will be awarded a brand new refrigerator of their choice. Entries must be received by Dec. 15, and mailed to Frigidiare Contest Headquarters, Oldest Refrigerator Hunt, P.O. Box 362057, Strongsville, OH 44149.

Air pollution can be worse indoors than it is outside /PRNewswire/ - The same conditions that cause sick building syndrome in offices and schools may also cause high indoor air pollution levels in homes, according to Bruce Darkow, a spokesman for Aprilaire® indoor air comfort products.

"Government studies have found that levels of some pollutants like volatile organic compounds, or VOCs, are up to five times higher indoors than outside," Darkow said. "These organic chemicals are a main cause of indoor air pollution, and can cause health effects ranging from headaches to organ damage. Some are suspected of causing cancer."

The reason for the new concern is not just new sources of air pollution, but also the fact that new homes are built tight to keep outside air out.

"That's made worse by the fact that many people don't open their windows anymore, because of concerns about crime, noise or dirty outside air," Darkow said.

Experts on indoor air pollution recommend taking four steps to reduce indoor pollution exposure:

- Reduce the use of products like spray deodorants, hair sprays, air fresheners, household cleaners and some paints that include VOCs.
- Ban smoking indoors and properly vent all gas or wood-burning appliances.
- Store household cleaners, chemicals and paints in tight containers; if possible keep them outdoors.
- Make sure your home has proper ventilation. In mild climates, exhaust fans and fresh air dampers can help dilute indoor air pollution. In hot or cold climates, an energy recovery ventilator can help save energy costs while maintaining proper air intake and exhaust.

/PRNewswire/ - The quickest way to put a damper on your holiday fun is an appliance breakdown.

The experts at Sears HomeCentral® have put together a list of the top 10 repairs that typically occur at this time of year so you can prepare your home ahead of time. Take a look at their list to see what you need to check in your home.

You can call 800-4-MY-HOME or stop by the more than 500 Sears Parts & Repair Centers across the country to find out about "holiday saver" specials.

■ It's important to keep the refrigerator condenser coils clean and cleared of any obstruction to allow for proper airflow.

- Oven and Range: Without a doubt, an oven and range work overtime during the holidays. Don't be stuck with an uncooked turkey on Thanksgiving Day – plan ahead to prevent cooking dilemmas.

Bake element burnt out - Nothing could be worse than discovering your oven is cold while the turkey is in it. A preventive maintenance check by a trained technician will inspect this along with the oven temperature to be sure it's heating to the temperature selected.

- Refrigerator: Your family dinner would be spoiled, literally, if your refrigerator went out the day before the holiday meal. The experts at Sears HomeCentral say replacing parts such as thermostats and door gaskets can help keep your refrigerator cold and your perfect holiday food from going bad.
- Refrigerator not cooling properly - It's important to keep the condenser coils clean and cleared of any obstruction to allow for proper airflow. If you hear a chirping noise from your unit, this could be an indication that the evaporator fan motor is failing.
- Icemaker tubing - A houseful of company means lots of drinks will be served, with icemakers in refrigerators in full demand.

The tubing that brings the water from the home plumbing to the refrigerator is sometimes made of plastic, which can become brittle and crack easily. A technician can tell you if your tubing is plastic and whether there are any signs of cracking.

- Washer and Dryer: Making sure your washer and dryer are working will pay off by preventing family trips to the laundromat. The experts at Sears HomeCentral have found several repeat problems with consumers' machines.
- Washer timer knob - The piece you turn to operate the wash machine needs to work properly if you want your machine to start.

The knob can become worn and break off from the shaft. A service technician can replace this part quickly and easily.

- Broken lid switches - The lid switch is important because it stops the wash cycle to prevent injuries when consumers reach into their machines. A preventive maintenance check of your washer can reveal the condition of the switch and whether replacement is necessary.
- Laundry pump - As you know, pumping water out of your washer is essential. Pumps can fail so a preventive maintenance check is an important step to ensuring your guests have clean towels during their stay.
- Dryer rollers/belt - If your dryer makes a squeaky noise during its cycle, the roller and/or belt may need replacing. It's a good idea to get the belt checked to determine the amount of wear and tear.
- Laundry heating element - Obviously, you need heat in a dryer to dry clothes. The heating element can burn out leaving you with having to throw together a makeshift clothesline. Have a service technician determine the condition of the heating element and whether it needs to be replaced.
- Dishwasher: No doubt there will be an endless stream of dishes, glasses and silverware piling into your dishwasher, so it's important that your unit can handle the extra loads.
- Dishwasher fill valve - No water into the dishwasher means no clean dishes. If an insufficient amount of water is entering your unit, have a technician check the water inlet valve screen for possible blockage. If your hot water pipes rattle during a fill cycle, the water inlet valve should be replaced.
- Leaky dishwasher - A leaky dishwasher can be caused simply from using too much soap or because the unit is not level. But, a leak also can be the result of a cracked hose.

A technician can check the condition of your machine to see if cracks are beginning to form in the hoses.

Consumers can call 800-4-MY-HOME or stop by the more than 500 Sears Parts & Repair Centers across the country.

Extending the lives of your furnaces

BY POPULAR MECHANICS FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Many homeowners instinctively feel that fixed appliances (furnaces, central air conditioners and water heaters), are simply too permanent and complex to be included in a routine maintenance schedule. If this is your position, it's a costly one.

An investment of an hour or two of your time will not only extend the lives of these appliances, it'll save you plenty in operating costs.

Of the three major appliances, central air conditioners probably suffer the most from poor maintenance.

The problem is dust. In less than a season, the compressor fin tubes can become completely clogged with dust.

As a large volume of air must be drawn through these fins with every cooling cycle, a matting of dust will stress the fan and compressor motors, and greatly reduce efficiency. When years of accumulation go unchecked, the problem grows exponentially.

To correct the problem, we suggest cleaning the inside of your compressor unit each spring. A second, midsummer cleaning is also a good idea.

When cleaning compressor units, begin by shutting off the power. This can usually be done at the dedicated disconnect switch near the unit.

Remove the front access panel to reveal the compressor and the electrical and refrigeration connections. You'll then be able to undo the top panel that supports the fan and fan motor.

As the top panel is largely open, shielded only by a coarse screen, leaves and other debris are likely to have fallen into the unit. Carefully lift the fan and clean out the debris.

With the area inside the condenser coil cleared, remove the shroud from around the coil. This will reveal the exterior of the coil where the fin tubes support the accumulation of dust.

Use a soft-bristle brush to sweep away the dust blanket. Don't press too hard or you'll bend the edges of the fin tubes, which will also reduce efficiency.

When all of the dust has been swept from the coil, vacuum it up so it's not pulled back into the coils when the unit starts up.

Next, check for oil ports at the top of the compressor. If you see any, lubricate them with all-purpose oil or turbine oil. If you find no oil ports, the compressor is sealed and no oil will be needed.

With the compressor unit cleaned, replace the side and front panels, and restore electrical power.

Along with the outdoor condenser unit, your air conditioner will have an indoor evaporator coil, usually located within the furnace plenum. In most cases, you'll have no direct access to this coil, short of cutting through the plenum.

If you find an access panel, clean the coil with water and bleach. The goal is to remove any accumulation of bacteria that may have collected at the base of the coil.

And finally, keep an eye on the condensate hose attached to the evaporator coil.

This tube, which typically runs from the evaporator coil atop the furnace to the nearest floor drain, can often become clogged with bacteria. The result is water spilling into the furnace or onto the floor.

Your best preventive measure is to pour a 50/50 mix of water and household bleach through the hose midway through each cooling season.

Indians taught skills of gardening to Pilgrims

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

■ In the Indian culture, the women were the gardeners because it was believed that they could better work the land with Mother Nature than the men.

Happy Thanksgiving! As we sit down to enjoy a wonderful feast on this day, it's the appropriate time to remember the Pilgrims and the many gardening skills taught to them by the Indians.

These people lived on natural foods from the forest such as nuts, berries and other wild fruits and greens, but they also grew many crops.

In the Indian culture, the women were the gardeners because it was believed that they could better work the land with Mother Nature than the men. The men did dig and prepare the soil, using sticks and hoes made from shells, antlers or the shoulder blades of large animals.

The gardens were often in a low area along a river. When the women began the planting, the men weren't allowed in the garden.

Early gardens

Those early gardens were in actuality raised beds consisting of 3-foot squares with a mound of soil in the center. A fish was buried in each mound to provide fertilizer to the crops.

In the month of May, when the young leaves of an oak tree were the size of a squirrel's ear, the planting began.

The south side of the square was the place to plant four to six seeds of corn because that direction received the most intense sunlight. As the corn grew a few inches high, bean seeds were planted on the north side, then a week or so later, pumpkin and squash seeds were planted on the east and west sides of the mound.

The Indian boys were the sentinels to scare away birds and animals that raided the crops. They sat or stood on platforms built near the garden's edge and threw stones at the invaders. The women were busy at that time, too, chopping off the weeds and picking off the insects.

"Three Sisters of Life"

Corn, beans and squash grew well together and this practice was known to eastern tribes as the "Three Sisters of Life." Here's how it worked:

As the cornstalks grew tall, the bean vines grew up and twined around them, using them for support. The beans also added nitrogen to the soil, which helped the other plants grow. Before long, the squash vines covered the ground and shaded out weeds. Their big, hairy leaves also protected the plants from small animal predators.

The Indians ate some of their crops when they were fresh, but always laid enough aside to provide food during the winter months. It was a great time when the crops were first harvested and the Indians had a celebration and feast.

Corn was a staple in the diet and the dry kernels would keep for a very long time. It was ground into meal for making cakes and mush. The beans were dried so they would store well and the squash and pumpkins were left on the vines until the rinds were hard.

The Pilgrims learned much from the Indians and when the wheat seeds they planted didn't grow, corn also became very important in their diet.

I hope you have corn, beans and squash on your Thanksgiving menu as a reminder that our ancestors enjoyed these vegetables, too.

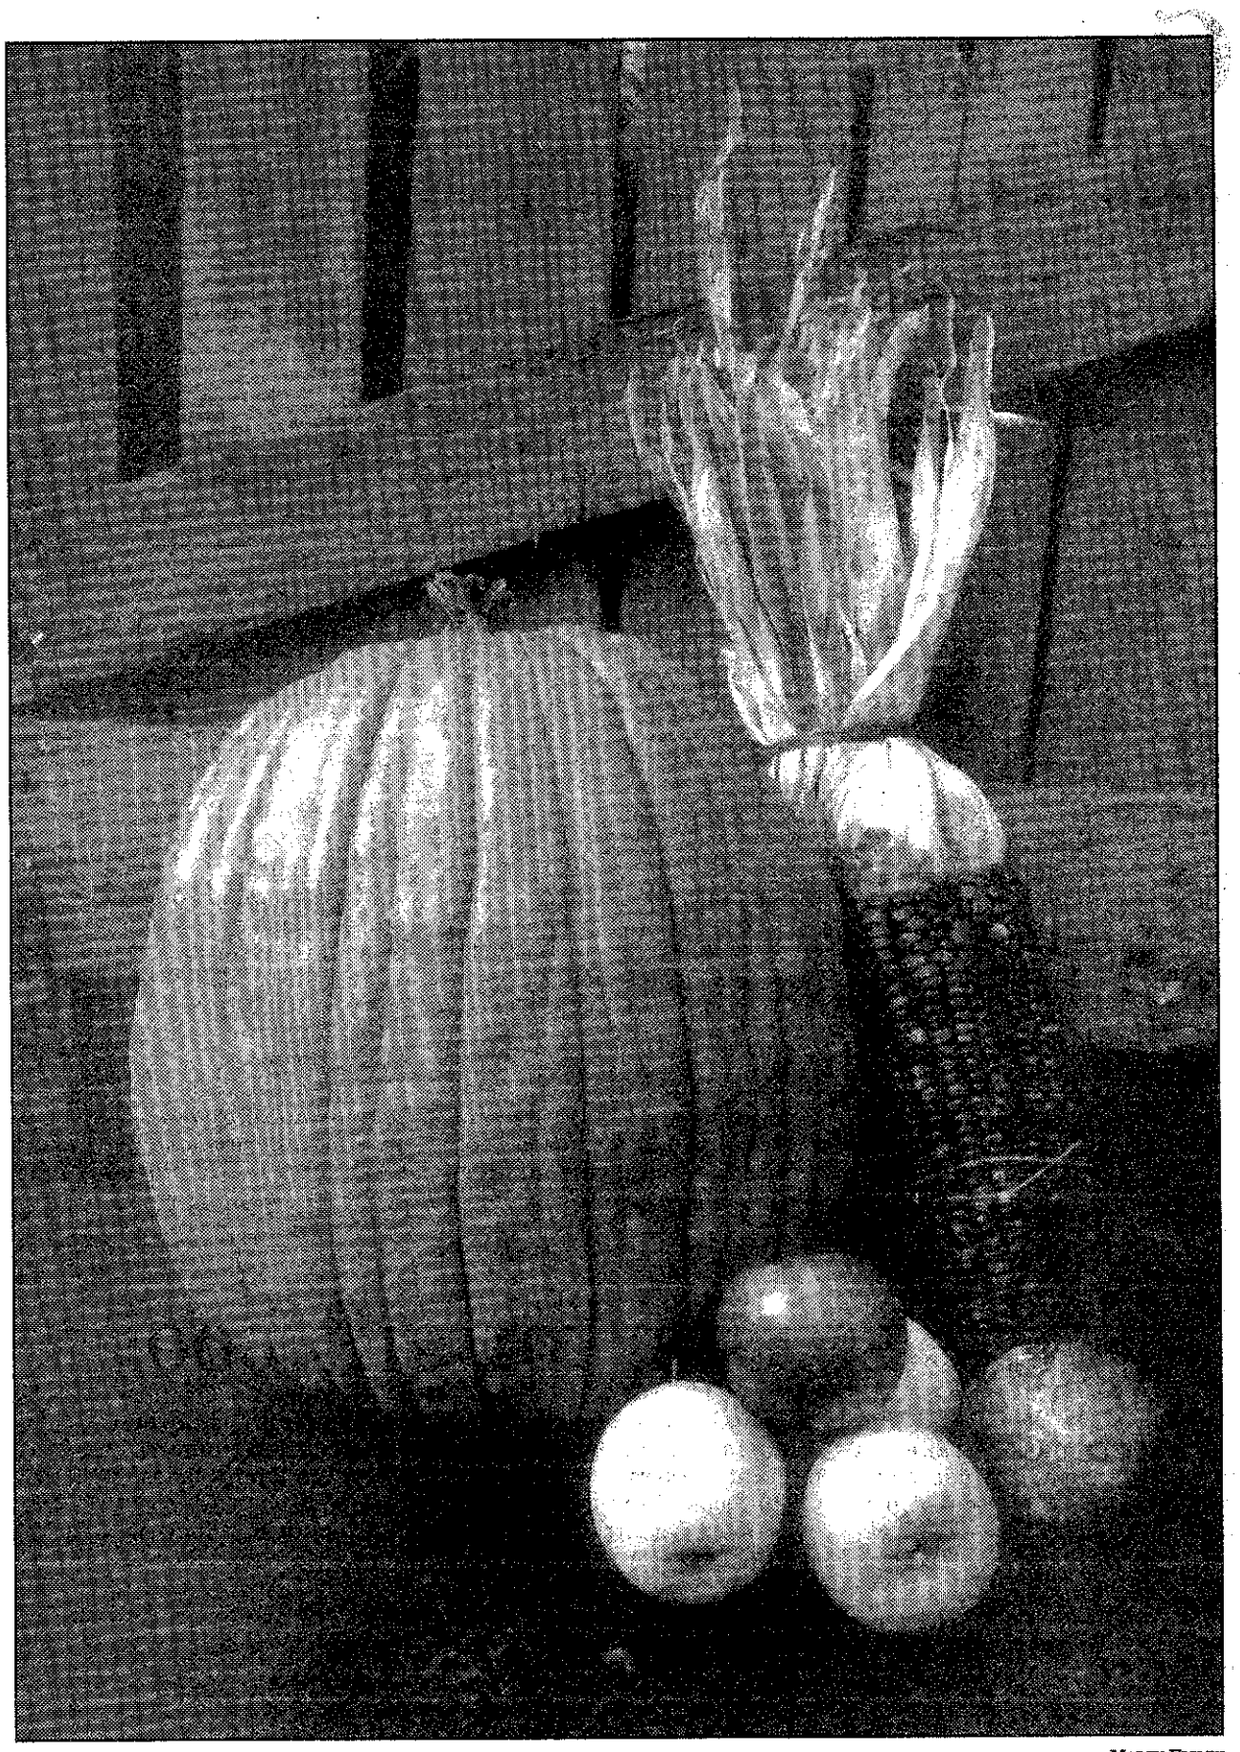

Ideas

If you haven't decided on a table decoration yet, here are a few easy-to-do ideas that might help:

■ Lay a cornucopia basket in the center of the table and fill it with fruits, nuts and pine cones. Add a sprig or two of rose hips, some pretty dried leaves, and perhaps a few miniature gourds. A candle on either side adds to the festivities.

■ Hollow out a fresh miniature pumpkin, put candy corn in a plastic bag and set it inside each pumpkin as table favors. For a long table, set a row of little pumpkins on a table runner, and set among them red apples, small Indian corn, and scattered nuts. Big red apples or small pumpkins also make neat candle holders.

Get on their level to photograph children

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Did you know that children are the most photographed of all subjects? After all, what else can provide more of an enduring record of the growth and activities of a child?

And because these pictures will grow more meaningful as time goes by, you, the photographer, must use the utmost care and attention in capturing the precious times of childhood.

Most important is obtaining a child's spirit on film. Some youngsters are natural "hams" and will respond delightfully in front of the camera.

Others are shy and may not react well to posing directions. Stiff, artificial expressions will tend to replace a natural look and it is only after the camera is put away that the child's naturalness returns.

But if a child is enjoying a toy or an activity of their own choosing, he or she will become unaware of the camera and capturing the child's "spirit" will be easy.

So begin by concentrating on candids. The unplanned and the unexpected provide the opportunity for that exceptional photograph of your child. The objective in candids is to capture the fleeting expression and spontaneity of the moment.

If you are shooting in a more controlled, posed environment, let the youngster "do his or her own thing." Let them assume positions or facial expressions that are a reflection of their own personality.

Here are some specific pointers that will help you to get children pictures with impact.

First, it's important to get down on the child's level, even if it means lying down on the floor. Photos looking down on youngsters simply aren't flattering. Children live in a world of giant adults and huge surroundings. By getting low, you can obtain the youngster's perspective and greatly improve your pictures.

Try using a telephoto lens. A focal length of 100 mm to 200 mm allows you to keep your distance and will be far less intimidating. The child may not even know you're there.

If outdoors, shoot on an overcast day. Overcast skies provide the best lighting for people pictures. The lighting is soft and harsh shadows are virtually eliminated. If it is sunny, position yourself so that the sun is behind your subject. You can even use flash as a fill-in to add sparkle to the face.

If indoors, try natural light from a window. You may need a faster film but the results will be very pleasing.

By photographing children properly and well, you'll be able to record the spirit of youth that your family and friends will enjoy for a lifetime.

'Tis the season for gift books

BY RICK SAMMON

Is there a picture-taker in your life who could use some photographic inspiration, or perhaps one who simply likes looking at beautiful pictures? If so, a gift book (formerly known in the book trade as a coffee-table book) would make a thoughtful holiday gift. Here is a look at some of the newest titles.

"Women Photographers at National Geographic" (National Geographic Books, $40). This 272-page book is filled with stunning pictures of people, wildlife and places from around the globe. Featured photographers include Jodi Cobb, who has been a staff photographer for National Geographic since 1977; Karen Kasmauski, who has produced 18 stories for the magazine; Annie Griffiths Belt, who has worked on dozens of book and magazine projects for the Society; and Sisse Brimberg, who has won first prize from the National Press Photographers Association for her story on migrant workers.

The book chronicles the society's long, yet little celebrated, tradition of women photographers. It is written by National Geographic senior staff writer Cathy Newman, and includes a foreword by Tipper Gore, herself an accomplished photographer.

"Women Photographers at National Geographic" also includes quotes from the photographers, such as:

"Photography can change people's ideas, can change their minds, can change their actions." – Jodi Cobb.

"You come to the office and insist you want to be treated like a photographer, not as a woman, and then you go home and you are a woman and a mother and have to do all those things that go with it." – Annie Griffiths Belt.

"I live separate lives. My first priority is my children. But in the field, I'm immersed in the story; the family fades." – Sisse Brimberg.

"I like being alone on an icebreaker in a sea of ice the size of Europe or driving across the Arctic tundra on a sled pulled by reindeer." – Maria Stenzel.

An exhibition featuring some of the National Geographic women photographers' work is on display at the Newseum of New York until Jan. 27, 2001.

"The Living Wild" by Art Wolf (Wildlands Press, $55). From A to Z (albatross to zebra), famed wildlife photographer Art Wolf takes readers to the natural habitats of more than 140 animal species around the planet. Wolf, an ardent conservationist, chose to use his wide-angle lens to show animals in their environment because, he says, "An animal without a habitat is simply a curiosity biding time to extinction."

LIVING WELL

Fill Thanksgiving with favorites for memories

INVITING IDEAS

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

For most of us, it is essential to share holidays with family and pass those family traditions down through the generations.

Is it the pecan-laced stuffing, the special dessert or the luscious leftovers the youngsters remember from annual holiday gatherings? Maybe. Foods can make for incredible memories of holiday feasts.

Food can be a part of the memory, and sometimes the best part of it, on Thanksgiving or throughout the holiday weekend.

At our house, there are always certain dishes, serving pieces, accessories or utensils I use for Thanksgiving and subsequent meals over the holiday visit.

Is there a favorite family recipe to share? A special entree, side dish or dessert that your mom or grandma would be especially pleased to see you reproduce?

Perhaps you could make a simple homemade recipe book to share with all members of the family. Take a photo of everyone sitting at the table this year or hanging out in the kitchen the day after eating leftovers, and use it for your invitation for next year.

Early Thursday morning, have the children (or grandchildren) make some napkin rings, a table runner, or place cards for family members. Save them from year to year. They, too, make for great keepsakes and making them can fill up the time while food is cooking.

If your family is staying for the whole weekend, have family members participate in the meals after the big dinner. Get creative with those leftover meals.

Spend the day after Thanksgiving making cookies with the youngsters or writing down the recipes you shared the night before (instead of fighting the crowds at the malls). There are all kinds of possibilities.

Nick Malgieri, well-known baker, author and director of the baking department at Peter Kump's Cooking School, has a great new cookie book out, Cookies Unlimited, published by HarperCollins ($35, hardcover). This book has loads of cookie recipes to make some great memories for your family. Here is one of Nick's recipes.

HONEY PECAN SQUARES

Makes about 24 2-inch squares.

Ingredients for the cookie dough:

2 cups all-purpose flour

1/3 cup granulated sugar

1/4 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon baking powder

8 tablespoons (1 stick) cold unsalted butter

12 tablespoons (1-1/2 sticks) unsalted butter

3/4 cup light brown sugar, firmly packed

Pinch salt

2 tablespoons heavy whipping cream

3 cups pecan halves or a mixture of halves and pieces

One 9-by-13-by-2-inch pan, buttered and lined with buttered parchment or foil

Directions:

1. For the dough, combine the flour, granulated sugar, salt and baking powder in the bowl of a food processor and pulse several times to mix. Cut the butter into about 16 pieces and add to the work bowl. Continue pulsing until the butter is finely worked into the dough and the mixture is a fine powder again. Add the eggs; continue pulsing until the dough forms a ball.

2. Place the dough on a floured surface. Roll into a roughly 9-by-13-inch rectangle. Fold the dough in half (to make it easier to handle) and transfer it to the prepared pan. Unfold the dough and press it out evenly over the bottom of the pan. Use the back of a spoon to smooth it if necessary. With your fingertips, press the dough about an inch up the sides of the pan all the way around. Chill the dough while you prepare the filling.

3. Set a rack in the middle level of the oven and preheat to 350 degrees.

4. For the filling, combine the butter, brown sugar, honey and salt in a medium saucepan and bring to a simmer, stirring occasionally with a metal spoon. Pour in the cream and allow the mixture to boil up once. Remove from the heat and stir in the pecans. Let cool for about 15 minutes, then pour over the chilled crust. With the point of a spoon, spread the pecans evenly over the dough. Bake for about 25 to 30 minutes, or until the pastry is baked through and the filling is bubbling.

5. Place on a rack until completely cooled.

6. Transfer the pastry to a cutting board and slide a long knife or spatula under it to loosen the paper or foil, then pull it away. Trim the edges, use a ruler to mark, then cut the pastry into 2-inch squares.

7. For up to several days, store the squares in a tin or plastic container with a tight-fitting cover. Freeze for longer storage.

/PRNewswire/ - As Americans across the country prepare their Thanksgiving feasts, many are unaware of the avoidable hazards involved in this seemingly simple task.

According to a survey conducted by Lowe's Home Safety Council, more than half (53 percent) of all Americans admitted they walk away from the kitchen while cooking.

"According to the National Fire Protection Association, the leading cause of home fires in the U.S. is unattended cooking," explains David Oliver, executive director of Lowe's Home Safety Council. "When cooking on an oven range, always stay in the kitchen to monitor the food preparation. Never leave an open flame unattended, even if it's on your stove."

Most Americans (80 percent) are smart enough to know how to extinguish kitchen grease fires if they occur. However, nearly one-fourth of young adults (ages 18-34) are unaware of how to properly extinguish a grease fire on the oven range.

Lowe's Home Safety Council recommends that all homes have a general-purpose fire extinguisher, and all adults know how to properly use it. However, because the improper use of a fire extinguisher can spread a grease fire, the NFPA recommends homeowners extinguish grease fires by sliding a pot lid or larger pan over the fire, turning the burner off and leaving the fire alone until the pot cools.

Should a fire happen to break out, many Americans wouldn't know it because nearly one-third (30 percent) of all respondents said they have disabled their smoke alarm while cooking. According to the survey, women are even more prone to do this (33 percent) than men (27 percent).

Oliver warns homeowners never to disable their smoke alarms, even when cooking. In fact, Lowe's Home Safety Council does not recommend the installation of a smoke alarm in or near the kitchen because they can give false readings based on inevitable smoke from cooking. Instead, all alarms should be installed in adjacent rooms.

"Safety doesn't stop when you're finished cooking," adds Oliver, "Leftovers are also a hazard because most Americans (56 percent) save their turkey leftovers for three or more days.

"To prevent the spread of salmonella or spoiling of food, food experts recommend that all refrigerated turkey should be eaten within the first 48 hours of cooking. If you freeze your turkey leftovers - eat them within two months."

LHSC cooking safety survey facts:

- Men are more likely to step away from the kitchen for the entire time food is cooking
- Nearly one-third of Americans who disable their smoke alarms have children (27 percent)
- Higher-educated Americans with a higher annual income are more likely to save leftovers longer than recommended (17 percent)
- Nearly half of Americans who save their leftovers for more than the recommended two days have children.
- Young adults (ages 18-34) are least likely to disable their smoke alarms (64 percent) compared to middle aged (ages 35-54) (73 percent) and older adults (ages 55-plus) (70 percent)
- More educated respondents are more likely to know how to stop a grease fire. People in the Northeast are most likely to disable their smoke alarms compared to other regions of the United States.

Older Americans are more likely to either stay in the kitchen for the duration of the cooking time or leave for the entire duration.

Single Americans are least likely to know how to extinguish a grease fire compared to married Americans.

In 1993, Lowe's Home Improvement Warehouse founded Lowe's Home Safety Council with the vision of creating safer American homes.

Since then, Lowe's Home Safety Council has invested more than $20 million to educate children, adults, seniors and families on how to improve the safety and security in their homes. For additional home safety information and free brochures consumers can call 1-800-SAFE-HOME or visit loweshomesafety.org.

Sneak in some healthy food with cranberry pie

By Dana Jacobi
Special Writer

Pies can be a healthful choice for the holidays when they contain ample servings of fresh or dried fruits, or vegetables like pumpkin and sweet potatoes. Healthwise, the pie's worst aspect – a rich crust – simply needs to be streamlined.

For an apple pie, or any fruit combination like cranberry and raisin, the first thing to do is eliminate the bottom crust. This immediately halves the least healthful part of a pie. It also reduces the work of making double-crusted pies.

Instead, use a deep-dish pie plate and heap in the fruit. For an apple pie, you can use 10 cups of sliced apples. With such an abundance of fruit, and a golden top crust, no one even misses what might have been underneath.

After years of experimenting, I've concluded that reducing the amount of fat in a crust only makes it hard and cardboard-tasting.

Instead of "fixing" a good crust I now work on using less of it.

For most fruit pies, making a lattice top accomplishes this. Some cooks also use a cookie cutter to make leaf-like shapes that are scattered over the pie in lieu of a solid crust. This technique works best for pumpkin and sweet potato pies, which produce no bubbling juices to swamp these islands of crust.

Cranberry One-Crust Lattice Pie

- 1 12-ounce bag cranberries, fresh or frozen
- 3 medium Fuji or Golden Delicious apples, peeled, cored and chopped (1 1/4 pounds, about 5 cups)
- 1 cup raisins
- 1/4 cup chopped candied or preserved ginger
- 2/3 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/3 cup apple cider or frozen apple juice concentrate
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 9-inch pie crust, rolled out
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/4 cup sugar

Combine cranberries, apple, raisins, ginger, sugar, cinnamon and cloves in a deep saucepan with tight-fitting lid. Add 1/4 cup of cider.

Bring to a boil over medium heat. Reduce heat and cook until cranberries pop and mixture is moist and bubbling, about 5 minutes. Stir well, cover and cook until cranberries are soft, 4 to 5 minutes. Mix in walnuts.

Combine cornstarch with remaining cider in a cup. Mix into hot filling and cook until thickened, stirring constantly, about 2 minutes.

Turn filling into a 9-inch pie plate, spreading it evenly. Let sit until filling is just warm, about 30 minutes. Filling can be made ahead, covered with plastic wrap and refrigerated for 24 hours.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. If filling has been chilled, bring it to room temperature.

Cut pie crust into at least 12 1/2-inch strips. Space 6 strips evenly over top of pie. Place 6 more strips at right angles, weaving them through to make a lattice. Trim away over-hanging crust from edges. Use remaining crust to make a border along rim of pie plate, crimping it nicely. Brush crust with beaten egg. Sprinkle sugar on lattice crust, including edges.

Set pie on a baking sheet. Bake 10 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350 degrees. If rim of crust has started to brown, cover with strips of foil. Bake 25 to 30 minutes, until lattice is golden.

Remove pie and let sit 20 minutes before serving. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Spicy Cashew-Chicken Stir-Fry

By The Associated Press

A conventional version of Spicy Cashew-Chicken Stir-Fry might load 28 grams of fat on a diner's plate, and some 395 calories. The slimmed-down edition that follows contains only 9 grams of fat and 213 calories.

The premise of the recipe's author, nutritionist Evelyn Tribole, is that no one could possibly regret the makeover, because it doesn't sacrifice flavor to its cause.

The recipe is in Tribole's new book, "More Healthy Homestyle Cooking" (Rodale Press, $29.95), subtitled "Family favorites you'll make again and again." It's a 200-recipe follow-up to her previous best-selling "Healthy Homestyle Cooking."

For this recipe, she says, you can find hoisin sauce and chili paste in the international section of most grocery stores. For less heat, use less chili paste. For a change of pace, serve over noodles.

Spicy Cashew-Chicken Stir-Fry

- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 teaspoon grated or minced fresh ginger (see note)
- 3 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves, cut into 2-inch strips
- 3 cups broccoli florets
- 3 scallions, white and green parts, cut into 2-inch lengths
- 2 tablespoons hoisin sauce or reduced-sodium soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon dark sesame oil
- 1-1/2 teaspoons Asian chili paste or 1/2 teaspoon crushed red-pepper flakes
- 3 tablespoons cashew halves

Coat a large nonstick skillet or wok with nonstick spray and warm over medium-high heat. Add the garlic and ginger and cook for 30 seconds, or until fragrant. Add the chicken and cook, stirring constantly, for 3 or 4 minutes, or until no longer pink. Transfer to a plate.

Add the broccoli and cook, stirring constantly, for 3 minutes or until crisp-tender. Return the chicken to the skillet and add the scallions.

Meanwhile, in a small bowl, combine the hoisin sauce or soy sauce, oil and chili paste or red-pepper flakes. Pour into the pan and cook, stirring constantly, for 2 minutes, or until the flavors blend. Stir in the cashews and serve immediately.

Makes 4 servings.

Note: The easiest way to prepare fresh ginger is to peel it with a paring knife or the edge of a spoon, then finely grate it on a handheld grater.

Fresh squash makes Thanksgiving pie

By The Associated Press

Butternut Squash Pie

For the crust:

- 11/2 cups ground gingersnap cookies (about 36 small)
- 1/4 cup butter, melted
- 1 teaspoon grated fresh orange zest, finely chopped

For the filling:

- 1- to 1-1/2-pound whole butternut squash (to yield 2 to 21/2 cups pureed squash)
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup undiluted evaporated milk (not sweetened condensed)
- 1/2 cup packed dark brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons grated fresh orange zest, finely chopped
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves

For the topping:

- 1/3 cup chopped hazelnuts, toasted, warm
- 1/3 cup chopped walnuts, toasted, warm
- 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 9-inch refrigerated pie crust, optional cutout garnish
- Vanilla extract for cutouts

To make the crust:

In small bowl combine ground gingersnaps, butter and orange zest. Pat into a 9-inch pie pan, about 1/4 of way up the sides; if desired, use a pumpkin-shaped pan. Set aside.

To prepare the squash:

Pierce skin of squash with a fork or sharp knife in 4 or 5 places around top (to make air vents to keep it from bursting). Place squash on paper towel in the microwave. Cook on high 20 to 25 minutes or until fork tender. Let stand 5 minutes. Peel, cut into chunks, remove seeds, and puree in food processor fitted with metal blade, or in blender. Makes 2 to 21/2 cups puree.

Preheat oven to 350 F.

To make filling:

In large bowl, beat eggs lightly. Stir in squash, milk, sugar, cinnamon, ginger and cloves. Pour into prepared pan. Place on cookie sheet. Bake 50 to 55 minutes or until knife inserted in middle comes out clean.

To make topping:

Combine toasted warm nuts with butter and brown sugar. Halfway through the baking time, mound nuts in the middle of the pie.

To make pie-crust cutouts:

Cut out leaf and acorn shapes as desired; brush with vanilla. Place on cookie sheet. Bake at 350 F for 8 to 10 minutes or until light golden-brown.

Cool pie completely on cooling grid. Place baked cutout leaf and acorn cutouts around edge of pie. Refrigerate until serving time. If desired, serve with whipped cream.

Makes 10 to 12 servings.

HOLLY DAY HOME TOUR

STAFF PHOTOS BY JERRY ZOLYNSKY

Historic style: The Early American saltbox style of this Franklin Village house attracted its current residents.

Home is one of five to be featured in annual Franklin Village event

BY MARY KLEMIC
AT HOME EDITOR
mklemic@oe.homecomm.net

The house in Franklin where Rita Kerr and her family now live was built in 1939 as a cottage for a Grosse Pointe couple.

Today the house is still cottage cozy, its warmth and grace enhanced and shared in antique furnishings and design work.

It is one of five residences that will be featured on the Franklin Village Holly Day Home Tour, 4-8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2. Tickets are $10 for adults and $3 for children, and are available at Yanke Designs, Apple Tree Room and Paige Stanton Homemade. All of the businesses are on Franklin Road, south of Maple.

The saltbox style of the house attracted the Kerr family.

"I love the ambiance of the Early American architecture," Rita Kerr said.

Kerr grew up in Dearborn among the Ford homes and enjoyed the historical atmosphere. As an adult she liked hunting for antiques. A buffet, an armoire, tables, chairs and other antique furnishings in the home came from a variety of dealers in the area — including Donna Ammerman, Leonard Berry, Betty Mason, the Franklin Community Antiques Show and Troy Corners — as well as from New England.

Several clocks and a collection of trays are among other antique pieces in the house.

"I like the primitive and the country (styles) very much," Kerr said. "Something just draws me to it."

Kerr's favorite room is the kitchen. When the family moved into the house in 1982, this room was small and dark. They reconfigured this part of the house, expanding it but having it fit smoothly with the rest. A wall between the kitchen and what had been a laundry room was removed, and a cathedral ceiling and skylight added to this space. People sitting at the table in this area can look out onto the yard.

"I really love it," Kerr said. "It's so light. I enjoy the morning sun here. You really get the change of seasons."

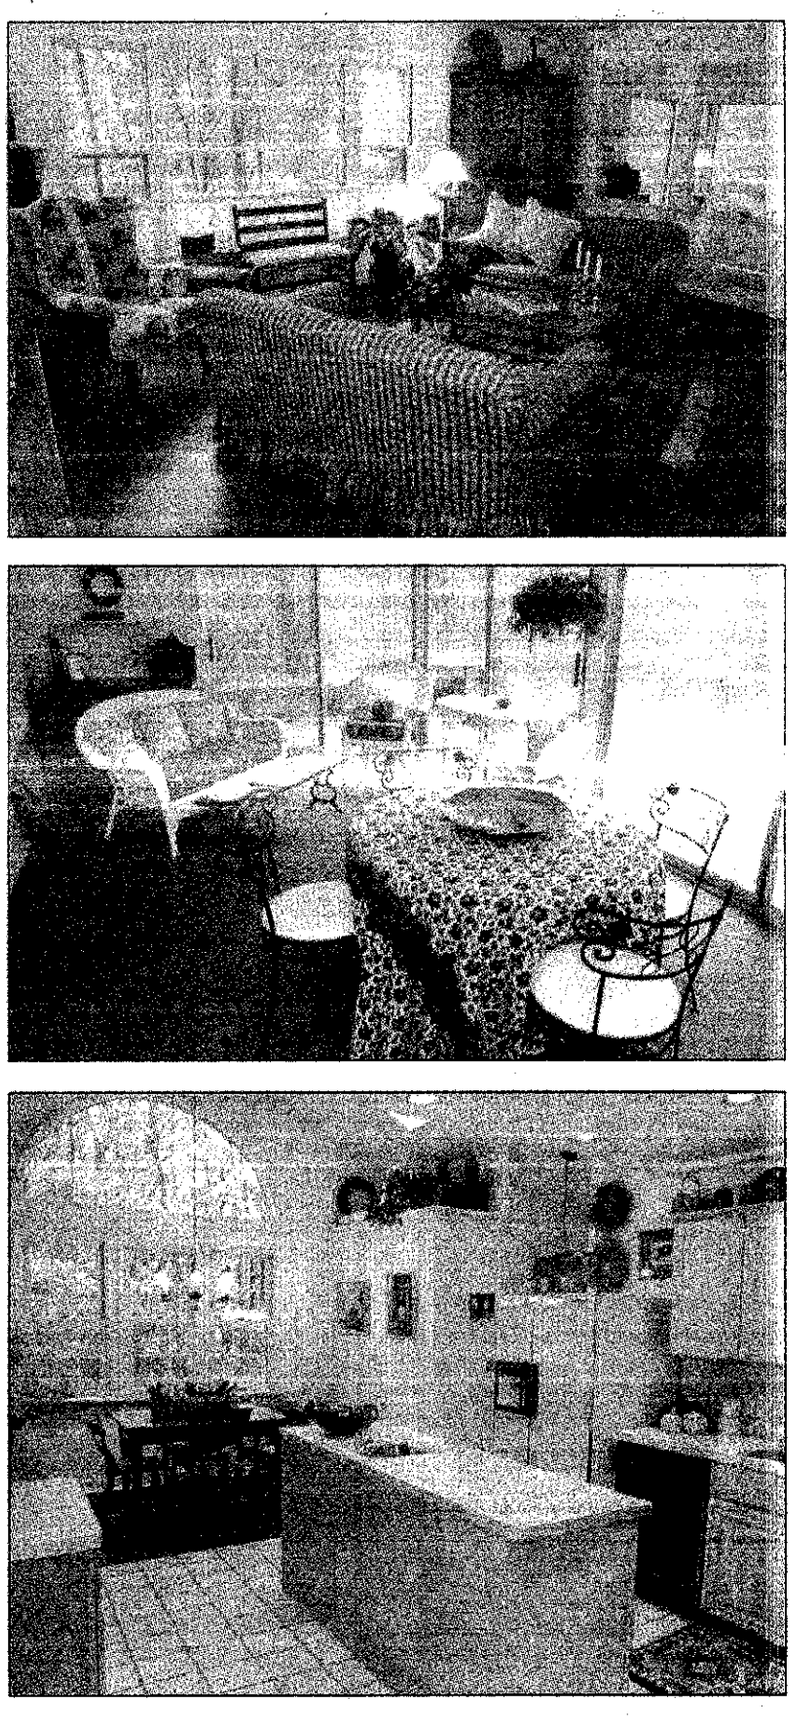

The kitchen is also brightened by the cream color of the walls and the recessed lighting. Baskets are among the pieces arranged on the tops of cabinets. Some of the tiles on the wall feature flower and bird designs in soft blue, copied from those on a pitcher by Deboldt, an artist.

The room also contains a slender chimney cupboard. An old shoe rack now holds flowers for drying. An oil painting by folk artist Margaret Shaw also conveys the country feel.

Dining room walls are covered with Laura Ashley paper, with a gentle blue design similar to that of the kitchen tiles. On one wall is a large, dark wood piece — the top half of a Welsh dresser — with shelves and two small cabinets. Pewter pieces, some of them from Belgium, are arranged on it.

Kerr decorated the porch with fabrics she bought in Provence, France, in the summer. The bright blues and yellows are on cushions of the white wicker furniture. Other items here include wrought-iron chairs around a table, and a buggy seat that now serves as a bench.

The home tour will also feature a "Christmas Walk" through a woods between two of the houses. All of the residences will be decorated for the holidays.

Old and new: Antiques enhance and share the warmth of the house, as seen in the living room (top). Cushions on the wicker furniture on the porch (second from top) were redone with bright fabrics from France. The kitchen (above) was reconfigured to bring in more light, adding a sitting area near windows overlooking the yard.

MARCHING ALONG

BY SHARON DARGAY
STAFF WRITER

Life-long Livonia resident Diane Maxwell saw her first Thanksgiving Day parade on Woodward Avenue from the inside-out three years ago.

"I drove the Grinch float. It was a challenge that first year. Inside the float is just a car chassis with a dashboard," she recalled. "The Grinch went out in the dark, so there I was, a rookie driving in the dark. Unnerving. Then in the parade, the route went into the sun and we lost our monitor twice. I had to sit on the seat and hold myself up. There is a spot under his sleigh where you can see through. Luckily I'm long-legged enough that I could reach the gas pedal, but I had to sit on the back of the seat."

Leg cramps and exhaust fumes aside, Maxwell, 34, couldn't wait to come back the next year. She volunteered as a "spotter" and walked with a float, communicating directions to its driver via a headset and hand signals [illegible] mile route again on Thursday. Another 34 will drive the elaborate decorated platforms. Some will anchor helium balloons, balance oversized papier mache heads on their shoulders, or walk in costume from Mack to Jefferson on Woodward.

More than 2,000 volunteers will keep the parade moving on Thanksgiving morning, rain, snow or shine.

Effort

Television audiences will see a fraction of the effort that spotters, drivers and animators make to keep floats rolling. The countdown to parade day begins weeks before when they meet at the Parade Company's Detroit studio for a refresher course behind the wheel. Rookies and returning volunteers alike practice driving, spotting and crawling in and out of the towering storybook scenes and characters.

A group of drivers fetch convertibles and jeeps, which pull some of the floats [illegible] ship about a week before the parade, and must return them the day after.

The crew carefully steers floats out of the studio — in some cases with a half-inch clearance on each side — during "roll-out" the afternoon before Thanksgiving. The process, which includes driving to a staging site on Woodward, can take several hours.

Jim Gruda of Oakland Township runs the float unit and usually arrives at the studio by 10 a.m. for roll-out, working until 1 or 2 a.m.

"Then I'm up at 6:30 a.m., and that's where I get on a golf cart to zip up and down the parade route," Gruda said.

Gruda and his wife, Michelle, volunteered for the parade four years ago after a friend they knew from the annual Grand Prix race in Detroit took a job with the Parade Company. Michelle organizes the victory celebration for the Grand Prix and her husband helps with security.

"I do whatever he needs for the parade," she noted. "Usually I drive a convertible with a character in it — Tigger or Winnie the Pooh."

She also organizes paperwork, matching

SPECIAL EVENT

Radio City show will be 'Spectacular' experience

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER
kwygonik@oe.homecomm.net

"Go" — with this one simple word Michele McCoy sets into motion a cast of dancers, singers, children, skaters and animals in The Radio City Christmas Spectacular opening Friday, Nov. 24, at the Fox Theatre in Detroit.

The Radio City Christmas Spectacular
When: Opens Friday, Nov. 24 and runs through Sunday, Dec. 31.
Where: The Fox Theatre, 2211Woodward Ave., Detroit
Tickets: $10-$55.50, call (248) 433-1515. For more information, call (313) 983-6611

A North Farmington High School graduate, who earned a degree in stage managment, McCoy is the production/stage manager for the Detroit production. She's in charge of everything that happens on stage in the carefully choreographed show including props, entrances, and costume changes.

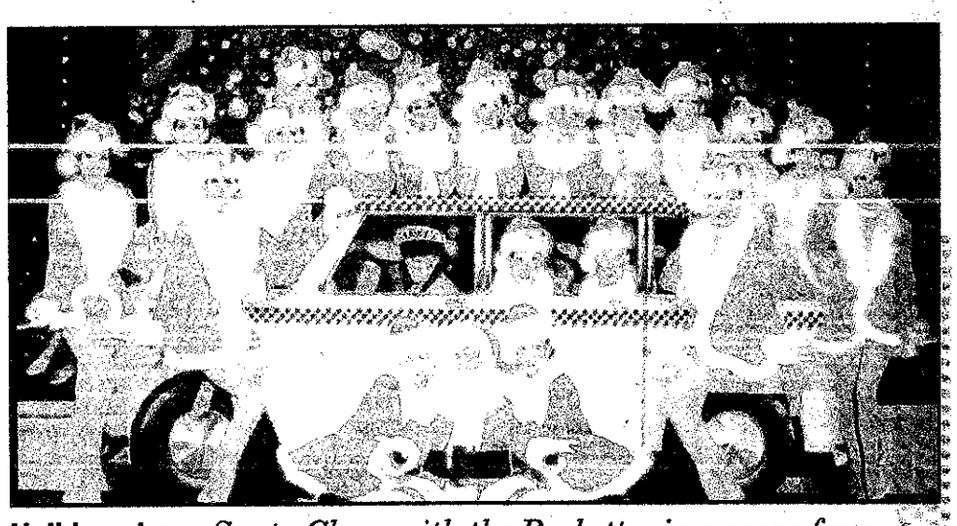

"There's a lot going on," said McCoy who grew up in Farmington Hills and now lives in Dallas. "It's very busy. You don't get bored. You have to stay on your toes, and stay very focused."

Things sometimes go wrong, and when they do, McCoy and her crew have to be ready. Like the time a Rockette accidentally kicked her shoe off into the house.

"When that happens you have to try to maintain your composure. You don't want the audience to see it in your face, sometimes they don't even realize it happened," said Kristi Young of Plymouth, a Rockette since 1995. With seven costumes to wear, and sometimes less than a minute to change, Young and the other Rockettes have little time to worry.

Quick changes

"We have so many quick changes," said Alison Roller, a Rockette who lives in Rochester Hills. "We don't have time to stand around. There's as much choreography going on off stage as on-stage."

Holiday show: Santa Claus with the Rockettes in a scene from "The Radio City Christmas Spectacular."

The cast of 55 includes 20 Rockettes, (18 plus two swings), 22 singers and dancers, four children (two pairs of boys and girls who alternate performances), two skaters, six little people and Santa Claus. There are four-legged cast members, too — five sheep, three camels, two donkeys featured in The Live Nativity and a dog.

If you're not in the holiday spirit when you take your seat, you will be when you leave. Since its debut in 1933, The Radio City Christmas Spectacular has delighted audiences of all ages. The Rockettes play a starring role in classic numbers such as The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers and Carol of the Bells. But there are other elements that make the show a holiday extravadrivers, spotters and animators with their favorite floats.

Drivers

"It's a large task trying to get drivers together with the floats they want," Michelle Gruda said. "Most floats have one or two spotters and a few floats have one animator. Flicker the Dragon has three and Noah's Ark has seven."

Jim Gruda drives a golf cart along the parade route, troubleshooting, problem-solving and making sure the parade rolls along smoothly.

"I've fooled with autos all my life. I'm mechanically inclined," he said. "If something breaks down, I jump in. I've had wheels fall off and flat tires and we've run out of gas."

Mechanical glitches usually occur during roll-out, giving the crew time to tinker under the hood. Occasionally a float camera or interior monitor blinks out during the parade, turning the spotter into an essential navigator.

"One year Babe the Blue Ox just died. It wouldn't start," Gruda recalled.

Several floats had passed it by before he decided to tow it the rest of the route.

"We had Babe the Blue Ox doing about 40 on the parade route to get back in line," he said, laughing.

Every float is equipped with a tow bar and Gruda stations emergency vehicles along the parade route in case he needs to pull a stubborn float.

"Next year is the 300th year of Detroit and the 75th year of the parade. They're going to pull out all the stops. All I hear is, 'be prepared Gruda.' I think we really get elaborate with our floats," he said. "I watch other parades, and I think our floats are second to none."

Dennis and Annette Arning of Waterford hope they can work together on a float during their second year as volunteers.

She wants to work as a spotter. He'll drive.

"I tried driving last year and I couldn't do it. I almost launched the poor Grinch," she said, laughing. "I decided driving isn't for me. Spotting is a real blast."

Last year Dennis towed the Horn of Plenty float, but wants to try driving one of the self-propelled versions this year.

The couple volunteered for the parade last year on the advice of their hairdresser, who also works with the floats.

"She got us geeked about it. Last year we had such an adrenaline buzz after we were done. It's just a real good feeling and it's really exciting," Annette said.

The Arnings work for General Motors and race high speed endurance go-carts as a hobby.

"This is the slowest I've ever gone in a specialized vehicle," Dennis said. "I had cramps in my legs from manipulating the throttle and break last year.

"What makes you come back is driving through two solid miles of smiling people, waving and screaming. There's more positive energy in that two miles than you can measure."

Working with the parade also excuses the couple from kitchen duties.

"I always had to cook Thanksgiving dinner, but now I'm off the hook," Annette noted.

They head for a relative's house after the parade.

Gruda, who loves to cook, relinquished dinner preparations to his sister and his family. And Maxwell joins her parents for turkey and a replay of the parade on videotape.

"I usually eat and go to bed because by then I've been up almost 24 hours straight," she said, adding "there are no drawbacks to the parade. It's all about meeting new people, making friends and it's exciting. There's no other way to describe this whole experience."

ganza such as beautiful sets with singers singing your favorite carols, and enchanting dancing bears in The Nutcracker: A Teddy Bear's Dream. Skaters in the Rockefeller Center ice rink capture the magic of Christmas in New York.

A highlight is The Living Nativity, a recreation of the first Christmas with Mary and Joseph in a manger with the infant Jesus.

"Even if you've seen the show before you should come back," said McCoy. "I was excited in rehearsal to see all the new numbers," added Young.

Santa's Gonna Rock 'n' Roll this year. He'll shake his snow booties to crazy new dance steps, sing to fans, and appear in several new numbers.

"It makes it a stronger, more of a family show," said Roller. "There's a part in the show where Santa walks through the audience. It draws the audience into the show, and makes them feel part of it."

Magical journey

"It's a magical journey for kids," said Young. "Santa and his elves are answering letters from children throughout the show to grant their wishes."

Young, who now lives in Florida with her husband and son, is happy to be home for the holidays. Son Kieran was born in 1998 on Christmas day. Young performed the show in Detroit last year, and is happy to be back.

"The Fox is fabulous," she said. "It's spectacular, it's the perfect setting for the show."

Her favorite routine is the rag doll number in Santa's Workshop. "We let loose and have fun. We get to be silly," she said.

McCoy is also happy to be a part of the Detroit production of The Radio City Christmas Spectacular. "My parents live in Farmington Hills, my sister's in Novi, and I have a brother up here too so I get to see them," she said.

On Thursday morning, Young and the other Rockettes will do abridged versions of their dance routines in America's Thanksgiving Day Parade. Watching the Rockettes perform in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade was Young's inspiration for becoming a Rockette. "It seemed so exciting," she said.

Being in the show renews her Christmas spirit. "It's so joyful, and The Living Nativity is a touching, heartwarming reminder of the true meaning of Christmas."

Producer Brian Kauffman of Ferndale remembers seeing the show with his parents in New York. "It's one of the few things that you can go to as a family," he said. "It appeals to several generations. All can enjoy and have something to talk about afterward. It's very exciting the way Detroit has embraced this as their show. It's exciting to know that we've touched so many people's lives."

Make time for some 'Nunsense'

"Nuncrackers: The Nunsense Christmas Musical" written and directed by Dan Goggin, continues through Sunday, Dec. 3 at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit. Performances 8 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, (no show Thanksgiving Day), 7:30 p.m. Sunday, and 2 p.m. Saturday-Sunday. Tickets $25-$45, call (248) 645-6666 to charge tickets, or (313) 872-1000.

If you've never seen a Nunsense production, don't worry about being reprimanded, the nuns will bring you up to date as they welcome you to Nuncrackers: The Nunsense Christmas Musical now playing at the Fisher Theatre.

This silly show takes place in the basement of Mount Saint Helen's Convent where the Little Sisters of Hoboken have built a cable access TV studio to broadcast their school Christmas pageant. Lucky Sister Mary Paul (a.k.a. Amnesia) won the Publisher's Clearing House Sweepstakes and Reverend Mother has used some of the money to build the studio.

Everything that can go wrong does, but the sisters carry on with a prayer and apologies to the audience for technical difficulties. Sister Leo the star of their original ballet based on The Nutcracker is injured backstage, lights go out unexpectedly, and someone forgot to disconnect the phone, which rings at inappropriate times.

The sisters hope everyone will get into the true spirit of Christmas – money, but there are some tender, heartwarming moments in this show too that have nothing to do with money.

Dawn Wells, some of you will remember her as Mary Ann one of the castaways on Gilligan's Island, stars as Sister Mary Paul also known as Sister Amnesia because she lost her memory after a crucifix fell on her head. Wells is sweet, but her Southern accent and singing are weak. The audience was delighted when she played Secret Santa and gave gifts to lucky audience members – a scratch 'n sniff live nativity, St. Anthony medal, and Ten Commandments stickers. She also got laughs as she led students across stage singing The Holly and the Ivory and Here we go a Waffling.

Father Virgil Trott, played by Jeff Tracheta (Thorne Forrester in CBS's The Bold and the Beautiful), offers helpful tips for planning your Christmas party, and shares a recipe for fruitcake – the gift that lasts a lifetime. The only problem is Father Virgil, who's not happy about having to step in for Sister Leo, has one too many sips of rum. Sounding a lot like Julia Child, he tells the audience to use plastic fruit, "no one will know the difference."

Act I closes with Father Virgil stumbling around stage with a surprised Reverend Mother as Sugar Plum Fairies in an outrageously funny Nutcracker ballet.

In between clever songs and dance routines, the sisters throw pitches to the audience. "There's a shortage of sisters, we need recruits," says the Reverend Mother who also introduces the Catholic Home Shopping Service with Father Virgil. How about a Home Halo Kit for your little angel?

Comedian Dody Goodman is angelic and devilish as the Reverend Mother. Terri White as Sister Hubert helps keep the show moving when things go wrong, and moves the faithful with her gospel It's Better to Give.

Deborah De Mastro as Sister Robert Anne delights the audience with her "All I want for Christmas" – "is a one night stand, at Carnegie Hall with a big time band." Not only is she a strong singer, but she can play the trumpet too.

The Three Kings of Orient, featuring Sisters Hubert, Robert Anne and Amnesia was a hoot.

The Band, dressed appropriately as priests, provided excellent musical accompaniment.

Cleverly written Nuncrackers will introduce you to some memorable characters and songs. The Fisher Building is beautifully decorated for the season, and will help you catch the holiday spirit.

Arts community counts blessings

BACKSTAGE PASS

ANN DELISI

What does the Detroit area arts community have to be thankful for this holiday week? Plenty.

It's true that the narrow defeat of Proposal A has put a damper on the ability of our major cultural institutions and local communities to provide an additional range of programs and services. But the Nov. 7 balloting sent a powerful message that voters not only appreciate the local arts offerings, but also recognize the benefits of stabilizing their funding.

Approval

Approval of the proposal would have generated $44 million annually for a period of ten years through a half-mill assessment in Oakland and Wayne Counties. Over half of the total ballots cast in the two counties were in favor of the proposal, but it fell just short of the amount needed for passage. No, there's not going to be a recount

What has emerged this year is a greater sense of unity and purpose within the arts community and those who support the cultural institutions and activities that attract millions of visitors each year. With it comes a better understanding of what goes into creating a thriving arts community and the realities of what can be accomplished in business development, education, tourism, and other promising offshoots.

Creating an environment for the arts to flourish is a work in progress, not just here, but even in areas that can rely on stable funding sources. The challenge is to remain fresh.

As host of Detroit Public TV's Backstage Pass series, I've seen the benefits of offering variety in the visual and performing arts. Often, we get more feedback on segments that feature obscure material than those about major attractions.

Whether it's a performance from Meadow Brook Theater's Diary of Anne Frank, Plowshares Theater's production of Ain't Misbehavin' or this week's segment from the Century Theatre's presentation of Late Nite Catechism, the viewer gets enough of a sampling to make a decision on how to spend available time and money.

Although Backstage Pass has booked many recording artists represented in your home music collection, there are others you may have missed, such as the jazz sounds of Dr. Professor Leonard King and the Oopapada, or R&B singer Bettye Lavette.

Part of the future

When a local arts scene is not supported, the choices become slim and the artists go where the interest and opportunity resides.

More than at any time in recent history, we can be thankful that there is movement toward making the performing and visual arts, along with our cultural organizations and community programs, an important part of our future.

Tune in Backstage Pass on Detroit Public TV Channel 56, 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 23, and 1 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 25.

'Rent' returns to Detroit, ready to collect new fans

STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homecomm.net

Detroit may never establish a true "Broadway" to call its own, but its theater district is hardly lacking in the avenue of creativity.

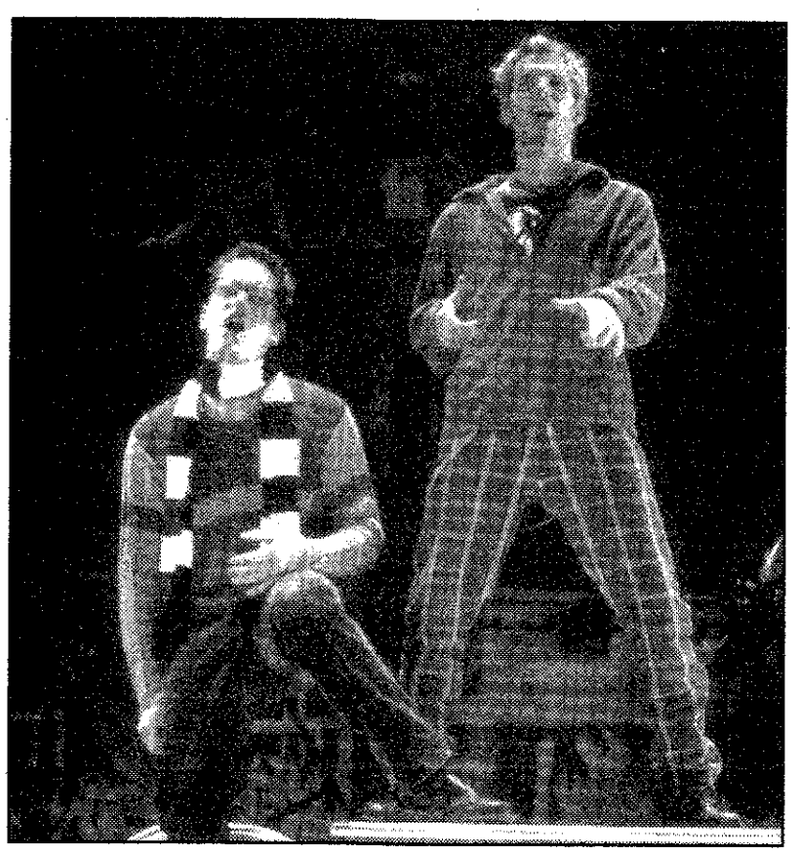

Just ask Jeffrey Seller, an Oak Park native and University of Michigan-Ann Arbor alumnus who believes in his metro area roots. "Detroit takes a lot of flack for being an undesirable city," said Seller, a producer for the hit Broadway musical Rent. "It's got a huge, huge creative population. That's why we do great business in Detroit."

And that's why Rent will return after only two years for a second coming Nov. 24 through Dec. 3 at the Detroit Opera House on Broadway. Alan Lichtenstein, director of theater operations for the Neederlander Organization, was responsible for bringing the show back. "I thought it was time," he said. "It played for 10 weeks and did very well the first time. People really loved it."

Since the tour is due to end this summer, Lichtenstein saw his last chance to book the show. He considers it appropriate for an audience of 15- to 45-year-olds. There is some profanity and the subject matter is serious. "It's a powerful show," said Lichtenstein.

Seller, now a New York resident, essentially became a producer because of his belief in Rent and in it's creator. "In 1990, I met Jonathan Larson, the author of Rent when he was presenting in a small show off off Broadway. By that time, I was a young producer-wannabe looking for an artist to work with. The show he was presenting that night affected me so deeply I told him 'You're great. I want to produce your next show.' Our professional relationship began and ended with Rent."

Jonathan Larson never witnessed the success Rent has enjoyed in its four-year history. He died after the show's final dress rehearsal of an aortic aneurysm. He was 35.

But his words and music live on. Rent is the only the fifth musical to receive both the Tony Award and Pulitzer Prize for drama, all in the year of its debut, 1996.

"Very seldom do we see a musical that is so genuinely and specifically contemporary," said Seller. "That's the greatest thing about it. Half of our audience is under 35."

Inspired by Puccini's La Boheme, Rent centers on the story of roommates Roger and Mark who share a loft in New York's East Village. Roger is a musician whose placed his life on hold since his girlfriend committed suicide and he became HIV positive. Mark is an aspiring filmmaker, so dedicated to his craft he's spent his entire life watching those around him, forgetting to live for himself.

With a Bohemian-styled cast peppered with characters like the eccentric performance artist Maureen; her girlfriend, Joanne; a feisty party girl named Mimi and a budding romance between Tom Collins and his transvestite partner Angel, Rent fearlessly dares to show sides of life the theater – and possibly the public – had ignored.

Though it hits hard with themes of homosexuality and drug abuse, the production also inspires its audience to live their dreams. Seller tried to convey the power of the show and the reason for its enduring popularity: "The first thing that happens is that you feel strongly toward the characters. You care about them." Combine that with passionate music – of the modern rock variety – and Rent holds all the pieces of a bonafide hit. "From a musical standpoint, it's on the cutting edge," said Lichtenstein, comparing it to contemporary shows like Hair and Grease.

Rent appeals to the younger generation, simply because it features young people as they struggle to prove themselves today. As the script so eloquently warns: "There's only this/Forget regret/Or life is yours to miss."

Larson knew that Broadway musicals neglected the young generation – both with its music and its characters. So he gave a whole new generation a show to call its own. Rent is and continues to be theater for the MTV generation.

"The quality of the show is so high," said Seller. "Every time, it's like a revival church meeting. The audience continues to feed the cast. The cast continues to feed the audience."

Perhaps the most visible evidence of that symbiosis exists before each performance. It was Larson's vision that the front two rows of the orchestra at each show be reserved and tickets made available two hours before the curtain is drawn, for $20 each. The seats are open to anyone, with a limit of two tickets per person.

No other musical has earned such loyalty, the sort usually reserved for rock legends like the Grateful Dead or the Beatles.

DINING

Emmett's works to make diners feel special

By Laurie Humphrey
Staff Writer

Restaurateuring is not an easy job, just ask those who occupied 15800 Middlebelt before Phil and Vickie Sciberras.

The couple opened Emmett's July 6 in the former Marvin's Bistro. Named after Emmett Kelly Jr., the Livonia restaurant features live music, dancing and a very eclectic menu.

"Favorites include the (Maryland style) crab cakes, cedar planked whitefish and the snapper Arcadian style," said Phil, former general manager of Fishbone's in Detroit.

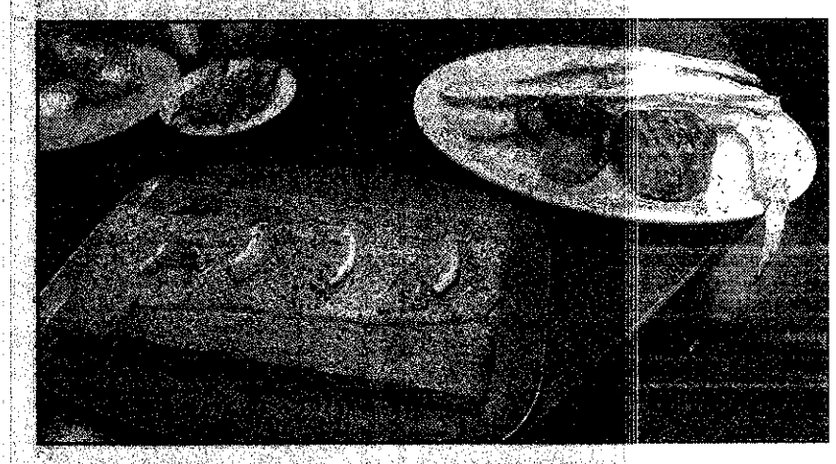

You do not need to like seafood, however, to enjoy Emmett's, a family restaurant. Diners will also find salads, chicken, steak and pasta dishes on the menu. Prices average $12.95 for dinner, $5 for lunch.

Affordable

"The prices are structured in such a way that families can afford to come in without going broke," said Phil.

Dinner entrees include a side salad, a potato and a vegetable. Bread is placed on every table. Desserts and appetizers are optional.

Emmett's
Where: 15800 Middlebelt Road, (between Five and Six Mile roads), Livonia, (734) 522-5600 or (888) 687-3682
Open: 11 a.m. to midnight Sunday-Thursday, 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. Friday-Saturday.
Menu includes: Appetizers, soups, salads, chicken, steak, ribs, seafood, pasta, pizza, sandwiches and desserts
Highlights: Limousine service available, live music and dancing 8-11 p.m. Sunday-Thursday, 8 p.m. to midnight Friday-Saturday. Catering available
Cost: Appetizers $4.95-$10.95, entrees $8.95-$21.95, pasta $6.95-$14.95, sandwiches $5.25-$8.95.
Reservations recommended: Friday and Saturday night
Credit cards: All majors accepted

Dinner options: Cedar Planked (whitefish) and Surf-in-turf, an 8 ounce filet with a half pound of crab legs, are some of the items you'll find on the menu.

"We have regulars that are there seven days a week," Phil responded when asked how business was going. "There is an hour plus wait for a table on Friday and Saturday."

Phil and Fred Perry, executive chef and former Fishbone's employee, began working on Emmett's menu in January. They began by collecting menus from restaurants in the area and talking about what would sell. From there, they talked about how they could make good food recipes even better.

"We wanted to give the customer something they can't get elsewhere," he said. "We're better than the competition."

"The food is great," said Vickie. "My favorite is the snapper Arcadian. I never used to like shrimp, but there's shrimp on there."

"We always recommend that dish when somebody asks and they're never disappointed," Phil added.

His favorite is the Louisiana style pasta.

"The wine sauce that is used combined with all the seafood that is used is very good, and very big," he said.

A self-described hands-on type of person, Phil expects his 30-member staff to know two things about customer service - "first, the word 'no' does not exist. Second, someone better be at the table within 60 seconds after the customer sits down."

Evidently, the word got out and more customers are coming to his table. The new restaurateurs are already looking to expand.

Expansion plans

"Next year, we're going to expand the seating and kitchen areas," Phil said. "Customers have also told us they want us to (expand) to the building next door."

The restaurant currently seats up to 160 people.

Adorned with a clown motif, Phil called Emmett's "a casual, family place."

"It's a fun atmosphere, very friendly," he said.

Despite the informal setting, will find Alaskan king crab legs on the menu along with a full selection of wine and liquor. In fact, they even have limousine service.

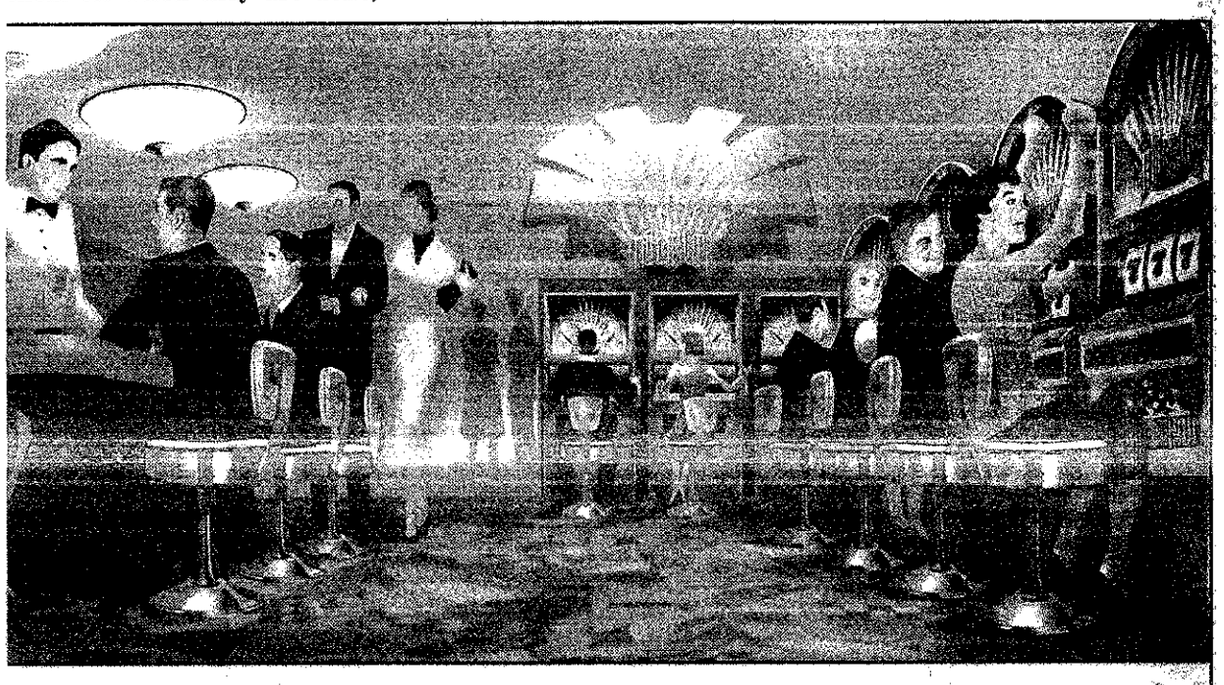

"For $100 a couple, we will pick them up, treat them to a meal and one drink, and drop them off when they are done," said Phil. "It's a little personal touch we wanted to give our customers."

Emmett's can also accommodate small parties or cater out, all with advanced notice.

"We will send a chef out to your house," he said.

According to the Sciberras, it is all about pampering the customers.

"We want to be unique," said Phil. "We want to make everyone, even the one person who comes in by himself, feel very special."

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

I recently moved here from St. Louis where I owned a condominium. There, the owner of the condominium had the responsibility of the interior. Is it different here in Michigan?

I know it will be a miracle for me to find a condominium in this area for the price I sold mine, $45,000.

Each condominium has its own master deed which sets forth the relative responsibilities between the association and the co-owner for the various areas of the condominium project.

Most of the time, the co-owner is responsible for the interior of the unit, except for the common elements which may run through the interior of the unit, particularly in the walls such as the electrical and telephone conduits, plumbing and the like.

As to the purchase price, I suspect that you will have somewhat of sticker shock in regard to the price of condominiums here in Michigan but, of course, it depends on location, location, location.

My neighbor has used a boat dock which is on my property although I believe the encroachment wasn't accidental. If I were to pursue my neighbor for trespass, would I have to show that it wasn't accidental?

A trespass is an invasion of what would be a person's interest in land. Every unauthorized entry upon the private property of another constitutes a trespass.

To sustain a claim of trespass, the plaintiff must show that the actor intended to intrude upon the property of another and that he wasn't authorized to do so.

Therefore, in a case such as yours, you would only have to show that your neighbor had intended to utilize the dock in question and that it was an intrusion on your rights as a riparian owner.

Realtors thankful for family, good customers

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER
dfunke@oe.homecomm.net

Relationships, opportunity, accomplishment and knowledge.

That's what Realtors say they're thankful for at one of the most beloved of American holidays.

It's not just about the listings, or the mechanics of marketing and negotiation. It isn't exclusively centered around the big sale, either.

Thanksgiving Day is a time to look at the bigger picture. Here's what some Realtors see.

Anna Pearcy, Realtor, Prudential Chamberlain Stiehl, Rochester Hills.

"Well, obviously, first my family. That's my No. 1 priority. My husband, David; daughters Ann, Anita and Sarah; grandchildren Aubrey, Beau, Abby; sons-in-law Rene and Richard.

"I think I'm so fortunate to have them so close. Day in and day out, I deal with transferees who aren't in close proximity to their children.

"The industry has been good to me, and I appreciate that. The public has been good to me, and I appreciate that. My clientele has been good to me, and I appreciate that.

"I enjoy the associations. I still get a thrill when everyone is happy. I still enjoy it after 23 years."

Brian Savage, Realtor, Cranbrook Associates, Bloomfield Hills.

"Personally, I'm thankful for family and friends, their health and happiness. I'm sure you've heard a lot of that. But that's what it boils down to.

"Professionally, I'm thankful for being able to do something I really love and working in an office that's like a family.

"The best thing is the satisfaction of finding someone a home they're perfect for and is perfect for them."

Charlene Lucas, Realtor, Century 21 Castelli, Garden City.

"You're thankful for the ability to match so many people with so many houses. It's very fulfilling. People are so happy ... when they find the house of their dreams. I like that.

"It's a great job. In the corporate world, it's dictated how much money you make and what the boundaries are. In real estate, you set your boundaries and you're accountable to yourself with the service you give to clients. It's everything you want it to be.

"Personally, I'm thankful for the help of my husband, Jack, and children, Michael and Amy, Kristy and Paul. I have three grandchildren – Bradley, Megan and Jack."

John Newman, Realtor, Hall & Hunter, Birmingham.

"Personally, I'd be thankful for a healthy, happy family, my wife, Sharon.

"Professionally, I'm thankful for this great market we've had the last four or five years, great clients, a great group of people to work with. Just the privilege to work in a community like this.

"I also have a partner, Janette Engelhardt. I'm thankful we work well as a team."

Kim Belz, Realtor, Coldwell Banker Schweitzer-Bake, Plymouth.

"I can be thankful for a very good year in real estate There's probably an element of good fortune or luck in everything you do.

"Professionally, I'm very thankful to have a very understanding and patient broker, Neal Lanphear. Professionally, I'm thankful for nice customers.

"Personally, what everyone else probably says and it's the truth, is family – my husband, Carl, and sons, Matthew and Andrew"

Edward Courneya, Realtor, Real Estate One, Southfield.

"Personally, one thing to be thankful for is a little bit of slowdown time, a little bit of family time.

"Being in the business, obviously being your own boss, running your own business. The reason I got back in full time ... is because I really love the one-on-one contact with the public and assisting them move into their dream home."

Sherri Williams, Realtor, Jack Christenson, Lake Orion.

"I'm thankful that being in the business makes me aware of the investment of owning a home. I'm on my third one and my daughter owns one because of me. I probably never would have thought of owning if I weren't in this business.

"The knowledge I've gained from the business ... continuing education ... I just feel a lot brighter."

Stew White, manager, Century 21 Hallmark West, Waterford.

"I think you can cover it all in just to be here. That's all I can tell you. Life is fun. Life is great."

MORTGAGE BITS

TIM 'TIMBO' PHILLIPS

I am continually amazed at potential homebuyers who sell themselves short with respect to their ability to purchase a home. I hear, "I have bad credit," "We had a bankruptcy three years ago," and even "I don't make enough money."

Any of these reasons may seem like "show stoppers" for an uninformed homebuyer, but there is usually a way to get funding if the borrower is truly motivated. Their financing almost always takes work, creativity and patience, but often these borrowers are amazed with the results.

Recent bankruptcies or collections do not automatically disqualify borrowers from getting a mortgage, as long as the borrower can prove that they are no longer a credit risk. That proof usually comes in the form of a minimum credit score, at least one "good" scored credit reference, and by showing an ability to put a 15-percent down payment on the new purchase.

The less risk a borrower asks a lender to assume, the better the offered rate. If a borrower has been 30 days late only once on his mortgage payment in the past year, he will get a significantly better interest rate than would the borrower with four such late payments. Similarly, a borrower who provides a higher down payment is less of a risk to a lender, and will be rewarded with a better interest rate.

It is discouraging for borrowers who have been through hard times to get "shot down" time and again by banks and other lending institutions. They may feel their only resort is to rent forever. That is simply not the case. No matter how bad a borrower's situation may be today, that person can be eligible for a home loan within a year with good self-discipline and proper coaching.

Finally, if a home buyer ever gets the feeling she is paying too much for her home loan, she is probably right. It may be wise to get a second opinion about any loan product before committing to a specific lender.
