Road solicitors prompt crackdown

Complaints from Ford Road drivers about solicitations at intersections have prompted Canton Police to take action and township officials are looking at ways to curb the practice.

Since last fall, Ford Road drivers have been dodging what some call overzealous solicitations from members of a Florida-based religious organization.

But beginning this month, anyone in the middle of Ford Road may be ticketed the moment they set foot out of the crosswalk. More rigid enforcement of the universal traffic code by police is, in part, a response to complaints about the members of Deeper Life Christian Churches.

The Detroit and Pontiac churches are affiliates of The House of David, based in Tampa.

"We have previously allowed service clubs to solicit in the roadways," said Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro. "But based on the volume and type of complaints, we had to make a move. Our motivation is traffic safety."

The Rev. Danny Williams, of the Detroit church, said the church raises money to "help people that no one else will, the dregs of society."

He explained he was for 27 years a crack cocaine user until being delivered by the church.

"Many of those people you see out there were also drug users, and were criminals and stealing things until God delivered them and now they're out

District bus chief resigns

Two years after he was hired to correct major problems in the Plymouth-Canton Schools transportation department, Director of Transportation Marv Bartal is resigning.

"I tried to correct the problems and it didn't work," Bartal said.

Bartal, who is leaving his position June 30, admitted there are major problems within the department that haven't been solved. But, despite his credentials, it's time for someone else to attempt solutions.

"It was like jumping right into the fire," said Bartal. "Every time something went wrong, the finger was pointed at me."

"I don't think I can contribute more to transportation than what I already have, so maybe it's time for someone else," said Bartal. "The day I resigned I went home and got eight hours of sleep."

Bartal's problems escalated twice this winter, once with parents and another with drivers. Both times, administration involvement was necessary to remedy the situations. Privately, some say that's what led to Bartal's demise.

Parents in the rural areas of the district complained in January about buses not traveling the rural routes during poor weather, and not receiving

Performing Arts Center tweaked during session

Planners announced earlier this week the Canton Performing Arts Center would move around Cherry Hill Village before it settled in its final location. The day after the presentation, the center made its first move.

Tuesday night, architects and village planners unveiled preliminary ideas for the center, which would sit at the end of a street which had come to be known as the Avenue of the Arts.

By Thursday afternoon, the site where the avenue had been situated was on paper a parking lot, and the Performing Arts Center was placed at the northeast corner of Cherry Hill and Ridge roads.

"There's got to be flexibility all the way around, or we won't get anywhere," said Canton Township Planning Commissioner Catherine Johnson. "That's just part of the process."

The reason for the change included concerns about how retailers would fit in the village alongside the theater, explained Cherry Hill Village planner

Spring is finally here - and that means it's time to start sprucing up your home.

Canton's Building and Inspection Services Division is hosting a free workshop for homeowners to help residents with their home improvement projects.

"There is a lot of interest in modernization and home improvement," said Canton Building Official John Weyer.

The workshop, slated for March 31, brings together a variety of experts in the field, as well as Canton township officials to assist residents with their projects.

"We have a lot of information and resources available within our community," Weyer said.

Joe Gagnon, the "Appliance Doctor," is the featured speaker and will be pro-

Bentley teacher named Extra Miler by district

Alice Chrenko, Bentley Elementary School classroom teacher, was awarded the Extra Miler Award at the Board of Education meeting March 13, 2001.

Chrenko was cited for her positive approach to teaching. She allows children to be creative and to use their imaginations. She is very willing to try new ideas herself and is highly motivated and engaged with her profession as she continues to excite, surprise and endear herself to parents and students alike.

Rachelle Benner states, "Mrs. Chrenko is very energetic and has implemented new and exciting things in her classroom. She shows great concern for her students and communicates wonderfully with her families!"

Parent Martin Herschok further states, "It is abundantly clear to anyone who spends even the smallest amount of time with Alice Chrenko that she is a truly gifted teacher. And, as with any great teacher, her students' welfare and progress are always foremost in her mind. She is accessible at all times. Parents are welcomed into the classroom. She has devoted her life to teaching and nurturing her students and an entire generation of children are the better for it."

Alice Chrenko received a certificate of recognition, a pin of the Flag of Liberty and Learning, and a dinner gift certificate presented by Board Trustee Roland Thomas.

Police arrest woman with stolen narcotics

When Washtenaw County Sheriff deputies arrested a 30-year-old Canton woman last week, they discovered she may have stolen $400 worth of prescription drugs from the Farmer Jack Pharmacy at 225 S. Canton Center Road.

The deputies said the drugs were in her possession when they arrested her, and she admitted stealing the drugs from an Ypsilanti Farmer Jack. However, the Canton Farmer Jack's store number was printed on the four bottles.

The woman had allegedly pilfered 300 Xanax pills, 100 Tylenol with codeine, 100 Vicoden pills and 300 Alprazolam pills.

Farmer Jack employees told Canton police someone had apparently broken a lock to obtain entry to the area of the pharmacy where the prescription drugs are stored.

The woman was lodged in Washtenaw County Jail for an unrelated charge.

Child endangerment

Canton police stopped a drunk driver on Ford west of Lotz Road late on St. Patrick's day after they spotted him driving 60 mph in a 45-mph-zone. The motorist then ran a red light.

When police officers pulled him over, they smelled intoxicants. The man's 4-year-old son was a passenger in the man's vehicle.

He was given a field sobriety test, which he failed, then arrested. He also failed his breathalyzer test, with a .157 percent blood alcohol level.

Police also noted he was drinking a beer while driving.

Just after midnight, Canton police stopped a woman motorist on Ford near Morton Taylor Road after observing her cross the center line twice.

Police noted she smelled like alcohol. According to police reports, she stated she doesn't drink, had not had anything to drink, and "insisted she would never drink and drive with her son in the vehicle."

She failed a field sobriety test and was arrested. Her blood alcohol level was .17 percent.

The woman's 13-year-old son was a passenger in her vehicle.

Both drivers were arrested for drunk driving and issued citations for child endangerment.

Disturbing the police

Canton police were called to a Mystic Court home to investigate a rude neighbor.

The victim, a 44-year-old man, told police his neighbor was peering with binoculars into his home.

When officers approached the neighbor, who was sitting in his back yard watching a portable television and drinking liquor, he bombarded them with expletives and told officers to leave him alone.

When police told him he couldn't look into his neighbor's window with the binoculars any more, he again swore at the officers.

He misidentified himself twice when officers asked his name, then told an officer that his brother-in-law is a U. S. Senator representing Ohio, and could have the officer fired.

The officer attempted to deliver a ticket for disturbing the peace but he wouldn't come to the door. Officers delivered the ticket to the man's wife.

Jim Constantine.

"One of the biggest constraints regarding that plan," he said, "is how viable that commercial district going to be."

Constantine explained the district's retailers would more likely succeed if they were situated on a major thoroughfare like Cherry Hill rather than tucked away on an unfamiliar new side street.

"The focus has to be on creating viable retail in the village. The only thing worse than no retail is retail that isn't viable. There was always a question as to when these commercial businesses would become viable," he said. "In five months, in five years?"

The theater's new location will lend itself to a more traditional urban form, which Constantine said didn't make sense at the end of the avenue.

The theater's entrance will be at the intersection's corner and retail or restaurants will serve as building fronts on Ridge and Cherry Hill.

"You can get two of the best restaurants in the county sitting right there in the theater," Constantine said. The restaurants' entrances could be inside the theater lobby, he added.

He explained the design will serve the community well for several reasons. First, he explained, the theater entrance would be lit every night, including the two out of three nights there would be no theater events.

"The front portion could be lit every night of the week and have activity all the time," Constantine said.

Besides image, the new design could come down to a dollars-and-cents advantage for the community.

"If your theater were exposed on all four sides, like in the avenue plan, you have four sided visibility," Constantine said. "But limiting the front facade to just a corner, the visible architecture becomes less, and therefore can be very cost effective."

Behind the theater a 92-space parking lot would be constructed.

While some of the presentation's attendees asked about additional parking behind the theater, Constantine cautioned against an over-planned village and over-pleasant parking.

He said part of the charm of some towns is the tight parking.

Municipal Services Director Aaron Machnik agreed, citing Ann Arbor as an example, and said a parking ticket in Ann Arbor is like a "badge of honor."

"You know you have the best parking spot in Ann Arbor if you have a parking ticket on your window," Machnik said.

Books abound

Canton Library's new store stocked with bargains

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER
cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

Canton's generosity and love for a good read turned into fast cash Wednesday night at the Canton Public Library's used bookstore's grand opening.

The store, Secondhand Prose, opened its doors Wednesday evening for a special "Friends-only" preview, then opened to the public Thursday morning.

"It was a great success," said Marsha Barker, Friends and Volunteer Coordinator for the library. "We made $2,000 in three hours."

She credits the opening night success to generosity from the Canton community, whose readers donate their used books, and to the dedicated, book-loving Friends.

"People were lined up at the door by 6 o'clock," she said.

The decision to open the bookstore was born of success of the Friends used book sales which have traditionally been three times a year.

Barker said the Friends usually bring in about $30,000 a year from the three sales events, but a little research indicated they could be making as much as $80,000 or $100,000 annually.

Barker checked out similar stores in Ann Arbor, Midland and Troy. She then presented her findings to the Library Board of Trustees.

"We convinced the board it would be a good use of space," she said.

The space for the bookstore, however, is "the brightest and lightest, roomiest of other bookstores like it," said Barker. "Usually the used bookstore gets tucked away in a musty, dark basement somewhere."

More than books

Secondhand Prose, on the other hand, is in a bright and sunny corner of the library, and features comfortable chairs, cafe tables and, for a donation, coffee and biscotti.

Besides a wide variety of hardcover and paperback books, the store also offers compact discs, DVDs, videos and children's books. The store also boasts a selection of old and rare books, which include many first editions in good shape, most going for about $20.

"We also have a surprising number of books from the late 1880s and early 1900s in our special selections," Barker said. While hardcover books and multi-media materials sell for $1, the special items are marked at about half or a third of their market value, which Barker finds by researching on the Internet.

The store is manned entirely by volunteers, who work two-hour shifts.

Proceeds from the sales and donations fund items that are not included in the library budget, such as courtyard sculptures, children's programming, the summer reading club and prizes for the young adult reading club.

The Friends also make donations to the Michigan Historic Collection, the Multicultural Collection and the Women's Collection.

"Those are projects that are very near and dear to our hearts," Barker said.

"We also fund special emergency projects, like when the library needs a new print station that's not in their budget," Barker said. "We kind of pick up the slack."

The store is currently staffed by about 50 volunteers, but Barker said she could use 25 to 50 more to keep the store open during all of the library's operating hours.

Barker is recruiting volunteers to work in the store, but laughs as she said, "I hate to even call it work. You come in and drink some coffee and talk to other people who love books."

Barker also invites people to donate their used books. Currently, the donation bins are in front of the library, near the book return. Soon, she said, the bins will probably be located behind the library.

The library gratefully accepts hardcover and paperback books and textbooks fewer than 10 years old. The library cannot accept magazines or condensed version books.

Secondhand Prose is open Monday, Wednesday and Saturday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Thursday 6 to 8 p.m., and Sunday during the school year noon to 4 p.m.

For more information or to volunteer, call Marsha Barker at 397-0999, ext. 121.

Library Board of Trustees has opening

Canton residents who want to serve their community are invited to introduce themselves to the Library Board. The Canton Library Board of Trustees is searching for a new member to fill a vacancy.

The spot on the board was vacated by Craig Gruber when he moved out of state earlier this month. Gruber had been appointed to the board before being elected to the four-year term in November.

The seat on the board is available to U.S. residents of Canton who are 18 years old or older.

"Other than that, there are no specifics," said

Library Administrative Assistant Karin Fisch. "We've had board members who come from all walks of life, teachers, doctors, attorneys, bankers, just your regular citizens."

The board oversees the library and its director, sets policy and ensures executive performance. The board meets on the third Wednesday of every month at 7:30 p.m.

Those who would like to be considered for a board seat should send a letter of interest and a resume by April 9 to: James Gillig, Board Chairman, 1200 S. Canton Center Road, Canton, MI 48187.

notification so students wouldn't be stranded at their bus stops.

Last month, bus drivers approached the school board, complaining of poor morale and a shortage of drivers to adequately cover the routes.

Bartal has worked for three different bosses since coming to the Plymouth-Canton school district, and said there have been many changes beyond his control. That's as far as he wants to take that discussion.

Superintendent Kathleen Boher admits working in the transportation department can be a thankless position. However, she has conveyed on several occasions she expects the district's customers to be served well by the system.

"We do have specific challenges, and we still don't have solutions for those problems," said Boher. "To work for three supervisors in a short time can be difficult. Each has their own approach and expectations."

"Marv has given the school district a good effort," she added. "It's hard as a transportation director to be a hero. It comes with the territory."

Bartal acknowledges one of the biggest challenges still facing the district is having enough bus drivers to cover the 100 bus routes.

"Sometimes we deal with a 25 percent absenteeism rate by drivers," said Bartal. "There are some very good drivers who go above and beyond to cover the routes, but they get burned out."

"I've tried a lot of things like advertising, sending letters home and job fairs, but nothing seems to work," he said. "The substitute drivers have no benefits. And, with 95 percent of our drivers female, and single mothers, they need benefits. Personnel needs to look at better pay and benefits."

"Not only does it affect the drivers, but the students and parents," added Bartal. "Students get home late and parents get angry. I can understand parents getting upset, but if we have no drivers, we can only do the best with what we have."

Unfortunately, Bartal will leave some of the same problems his predecessor, LuAnn Grech, left for him.

"I think I know what I'm doing," said Bartal, who is the president of the Michigan Association of Pupil Transportation. "I thought this would be the place I would retire from. But, when I can't even get past two years here, something is wrong."

New fire captain

Kenneth S. Arble has been promoted to captain by the Canton Fire Department.

The 25-year-veteran assumed his new duties on March 14. He replaces retired Capt. Donald Adams.

"Ken is a very capable leader," Fire Chief Mike Rorabacher said in a prepared statement. "We feel he has the skill set and people skills to be a highly effective captain."

Arble joined the department in 1975 as a cadet/firefighter. For the past three years, he has served as a lieutenant.

Arble's promotion was one of four personnel moves made by the department this month.

James Sumner was promoted from firefighter to lieutenant and two new firefighters, Jamie Strasser and Brian Switzer, joined the department.

Spring showcase: Park Players to stage 'The Sound of Music'

The Park Players of the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park present Rodgers & Hammerstein's classic family musical The Sound of Music at the Gloria Logan Auditorium for Performing Arts located inside Salem High School at 46181 Joy Road, Canton.

Performances are 8 p.m. April 5, 6, 7 and 3 p.m. April 8. Tickets are $8 for adults, and $6 for students and seniors. Tickets are on sale weekdays 2:30-5:30 p.m. and are available at the door on performance dates one hour prior to curtain.

The production is supervised by faculty at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park. It is directed by Geoffrey Kopp, with Jennifer Neumann serving as vocal director; Catherine DePentu, orchestra director; Paul R. Bird, technical director and designer. The company features more than 100 students from Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton High Schools in the cast and crew.

The Sound of Music is based on the actual story of the Austrian Von Trapp family singers and their escape from Nazi occupation in 1938. Seniors Liz Filios and Will Hundley star as Maria and Captain Georg Von Trapp respectively. Other major roles are played by Meg Myland, Jerry Reid, Megan Carroll, Joe Drake, Valerie Akers, Kelly Filios, Devin Burnstein and Chris Lamar.

The Park Players under the direction of Geoffrey Kopp were recently honored as State finalists in the annual Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association competition with their production of The Miser.

*Consult your tax advisor regarding interest deductibility. Loans are subject to credit approval. The as low as interest rate 7.74 (APR 7.75 to 8.17) is valid only on loans in a first or second lien position, having an 85% or less loan-to-value ratio on three to five year terms, and on financed amounts of $5,000 to $250,000. All loans are subject to satisfactory appraisal, title, and insurance. This offer is available to homeowners who are 18 years of age or older. This offer is available only to new Bank One Home Equity Loan customers on new home equity loans. The amount of the loan for which you qualify depends upon your annual gross income and the lendable equity in your home (up to 100% of the current value of your home less any debt secured by your home). The maximum loan-to-value ratio allowed in Texas is 80%. Borrower is responsible for the loan origination fee, appraisal, flood search, title search, title insurance (when required), mortgage taxes (if any), and recording fees. This offer is valid for owner-occupied, single-family residences, townhouses, and condominiums only. Co-ops and mobile homes are excluded from this offer. Solicitors from page A1 doing the work of the Lord," Williams said.

Public pest

Canton Clerk Terry Bennett said so many people have called to complain or inquire about the roadway solicitations she can barely stay on top of all the phone messages she receives.

"Yesterday, just while I was at the Canton Chamber breakfast, I got 10 messages on my voice mail," Bennett said. "That's just while I was at breakfast."

She said people complain they can't make a turn onto Ford Road for fear of hitting one of the solicitors. They ask if the people are panhandlers, and complain that they are being very aggressive and are pounding on car windows and harassing motorists.

Capt. Laura Golles, who issued the directive to ticket the parishioners, said the group registered with the township on Oct. 25. The very next day, the phone complaints from motorists started, she said.

"It's been a continuous problem for us," Golles said. "We've had complaints that they're beating on windows and harassing people."

Solicitors have been ticketed by police for several civil infractions while collecting funds at the intersection of Haggerty and Ford roads. The infractions included impeding traffic and disobeying a pedestrian signal. Violation of the traffic code ordinance is a civil infraction, which is punishable by a fine.

Golles said the problem has become so bothersome, the township now must examine an ordinance that would prohibit all solicitation in the roadways, which then would also have a negative impact on local groups such as the Goodfellows, Knights of Columbus and Kiwanis.

Unstoppable force

Williams said he doesn't believe the ordinance will ever come to fruition.

"This is the Lord's doing, and nobody can stop the work of God," he said. He added that people complain about the fund-raising efforts because they don't understand the work of God.

"When I was out doing crack for 27 years, nobody cared about that," he said. "Until I pick up a can and go out into the street to do the work of the Lord."

Bennett said getting the group off the street has so far been impossible. She's called the Michigan Attorney General. She's called the IRS. And has found the township can do very little about non-profit groups.

She reported they are, indeed, registered with the state and with the IRS as a non-profit organization, and therefore, do not need to be licensed to raise money.

"We have no ability to cite them for raising money," she said. "So we began looking to see if we have any alternatives to get them off of the right of way."

The township attorney advised officials their only recourse is to stop solicitors from impeding traffic under the universal traffic code.

Canton Police Sgt. Jerry Hardesty said the Deeper Life group is the only one he's aware of that has been the subject of complaints.

"The problem is that all it takes is one motorist not paying attention," Hardesty said. "As we all know what happens when a car and a body come together, the body doesn't stand a chance."

He added the people in the roadway are causing a major distraction for motorists.

"We wouldn't get so many complaints if it weren't bothering the drivers," he said.

Williams sees it differently. He said his flock is not in danger because they're doing holy work.

"We all have an appointment with death anyway," he said. "We are all going back to God one day."

Bennett said the public has options when they're approached by any street solicitor.

"The bottom line is they're here because we continue to give them money," Bennett said. "If you don't give them money, it won't be worth their while to be here."

Bennett encouraged motorists to go a step beyond calling to complain.

"If people feel they're intimidated, we need for them to refuse to give them money, and to also turn their cars around and drive to the police department and fill out a police report so we have a paper trail to show this is mode of operation for this group, and not an isolated incident."

"We're fortunate to have Joe Gagnon as one of our speakers," Weyer said.

Gagnon is well known for recently advocating for consumers against water heater manufacturers who were using defective plastic dip tubes.

"What I am finding is that consumers are very interested in consumer protection laws," he said.

Gagnon sees consumer rights improving in Michigan.

"Under (Attorney General) Jennifer Granholm's leadership, issues are being focused on and acted upon like never before. She cares for the little guy."

He is also deeply concerned with the deceptive practices and advertising within the service industry. "That is one of the things I am going to be focusing on."

Murray Gula, the host of "Home Improvement Radio," will also be on hand to address a number of issues that affect homeowners, from the "fix-it" to the "fix-up."

His radio show informs the public and refers them to the right party, association or company to get the job done.

For residents considering a remodeling project, Tom Admusik of Regal Construction Co. will be on hand to help plan, and answer questions about your project.

He will talk about how to select a contractor, getting the proper permits and will also share some modernization tips.

N.A. Mans Building Center of Canton will be presenting with the newest product lines and construction materials.

"They will be showing the newest designs for kitchens and baths," Weyer said.

Canton's Ordinance Inspectors will also be at the workshop to answer queries about property standards, seasonal ordinances and how property complaints are handled.

The Canton Public Safety Department will field questions on crime prevention and traffic safety.

Officers will address issues on subdivision streets, while Canton Fire Marshal Frank Barrett will provide insight on home safety during a remodeling project.

"Electrical wiring, smoke detectors, fire extinguishers and debris clean-up will be just a few of the topics covered," Weyer said.

The workshop is structured to feature Gagnon as the main speaker, then participants will be able to go to a number of concurrent "break out" sessions depending on their particular interests.

"Except for Joe Gagnon, each session will be repeated twice," Weyer said.

The event, to be held at the Summit on the Park, is open to all Canton residents at no charge. Refreshments will be provided.

For more information, or to register for the workshop, call: (734) 394-5200.

Interested residents are asked to RSVP for the program by March 23.

$51 million road project program gets under way

BY RICHARD PEARL
STAFF WRITER
rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

Most of the $51 million in 2001 road improvements announced this past week by Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara will be going to five west-county communities.

Some $45.9 million of the road-work will be done in Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Livonia, Westland and Redford Township.

Together, the five municipalities have 28 of the 70 total miles of roadway which the county has moved from its "perennial pothole-patching program" to its long-term improvement list, said roads department spokesman John Roach.

The projects involve resurfacing, widening, paving and rebuilding. The roads are among the county's worst.

Roach said the current slowdown in the national and state economies won't affect funding for the projects. "All this funding" is already secured, he said. "But as for future years, (it will be) wait and see," he said.

Among the west-county projects is the one in Canton which last week kicked off the ambitious county construction program: The rebuilding of heavily traveled Canton Center Road between Ford and Warren roads.

That one alone accounts for $5.5 million.

Even larger dollar-wise is the $7.5-million half-mile grade separation work that will kick-off construction of the much-awaited CSX Railroad overpass on Sheldon Road at the City of Plymouth/Plymouth Township boundary.

That is the most expensive project and the one with the greatest impact, but it also will be the last one to get under way this year: Work won't begin until December.

However, the work will necessitate closing Sheldon at the crossing for more than a year while the bridge is constructed and the road is rebuilt.

"As this project gets closer, we'll be providing plenty of information for motorists, residents and businesses in the area," said Cameron Priebe, the county's director of public services.

Priebe noted the project "will eliminate the inconvenience of delays caused by crossing trains" and promised "we'll do our best to minimize the inconvenience during the construction process."

In general, plans call for traffic to be re-routed around to Beck

Road on the west and I-275 on the east, according to Roach. The railroad project will follow the reconstruction of the I-275 and M-14 intersection this summer, he said.

The county will post regular updates on all road projects via its Web site, www.waynecounty.com/wayneroads, throughout the year.

CCW foes say petitions set to go

HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

Opponents of the recently passed "shall issue concealed weapons" legislation say they have enough signatures to put the law to a referendum on the November 2002 elections ballot.

The People Who Care About Kids Committee has gathered an estimated 200,000 signatures on its referendum petition drive, well over the 151,000 needed to earn a ballot spot, according to Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor and committee member Ruth Carter. She said the group hopes to get 225,000 signatures before the March 27 deadline for submission.

Committee members gathered at Mulligan's Golf Center in Auburn Hills Wednesday evening, March 14, to turn over petition forms. An estimated 2,000 were in attendance.

Glenda Edwards of National Petition Management, a circulation company based in Southfield, said late petition forms can still be turned in through March 21 at 25820 Southfield Road, Suite 209, in Southfield. Anyone who would still like to sign petitions may go to that location to add their names as well.

The referendum is an attempt to overturn a bill passed last year by state lawmakers that requires local county gun boards to issue permits to carry concealed weapons unless applicants have a criminal record or a history of mental illness. The law also mandates that applicants take weapons training classes, be over age 21, and establishes gun-free zones.

Opponents are petitioning against the law on the belief it will put 200,000 new guns on the streets in Michigan.

Despite the fact the bill included a $1 million appropriation for the distribution of trigger locks, Carter said the group has continued to collect signatures. The state Constitution prohibits referendum petitions on appropriations bills, but Carter explained it will be up to lawmakers to sue to keep the referendum off the ballot.

More likely, Sen. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, said, the petition will be rejected by the Secretary of State's office and committee members will have to sue to get the question placed on the ballot.

Referendum supporter and Wayne County Prosecutor Mike Duggan has said attempts in the past by the legislature to protect bills by adding appropriations provisions have proven unsuccessful. The courts have overruled lawmakers and placed the question on the ballot anyway.

Election vote counting is not 'a well-oiled machine'

HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

Did you vote in last year's election? Or did your ballot get tossed out later due to some error you didn't know you made?

Errors can be made with any type of voting system, according to Chris Thomas, director of the Michigan Elections Bureau. On Thursday, Feb. 15, he gave an overview of Michigan's voting process to the House of Representatives Redistricting and Elections Committee, which is considering reforms to the state's vote-counting method in the wake of the election debacle in Florida this past November.

"Michigan is not in crisis," Thomas said. State lawmakers have already addressed many of the questions, as a result of a couple of contentious gubernatorial recounts back in the 1950s, about how votes are to be counted that Floridians were still wrestling with this past year. For example, Michigan law already specifies that "hanging chads" only count as votes if two corners are broken away. Chads with three corners still attached or merely "dimpled" aren't good enough to count as votes in this state.

But thanks to Florida, Thomas said, the public has learned that our election tabulation process is "not a well-oiled and efficient counting machine." In Michigan, too, there is still a good deal of room for improvement, he said.

Thomas stopped short of making specific recommendations for reform Thursday, but his boss, Secretary of State Candice Miller, already has. During last year's controversy in Florida, she called for the adoption of a statewide standard voting system. Miller did not recommend which system — punch cards, optically scanned ballots, computer touch screens — should be used, just that all municipalities should use the same one. That way, voters would not have to learn a new balloting system when they move from one community to another.

"Uniformity would be a marvelous thing," Thomas agreed. "In some places, you have four or five different systems within a single county. Try to do a voter education program on any scale when you've got four or five systems within a county. It isn't going to happen."

The most frequent cause of spoiled ballots is voter error, Thomas said. It is not unusual for 10 percent of votes to be lost in a primary election when voters improperly cross over from one party to the other.

Even the new computer touch screen polls can be misused. In the last election, Thomas noted in one precinct that 27 voters did not cast ballots for president. Some don't vote for president, but he also speculated they may have misused the touch screen. When voters touch the party line button, the computer automatically puts checks in the boxes of all candidates who then get votes. Some voters may have incorrectly thought they needed to go through the ballot and uncheck those boxes, Thomas suggested.

Optical scan ballots can produce errors when a voter tries to erase a vote and make a different selection. The scanner may read the smudge and reject the ballot as an "overvote."

That's fine if scanning equipment is in the precinct and the voter gets another chance to cast his or her ballot, but some municipalities have tried to save money by placing scanners only in a central location. Those votes will be lost then, because the voter will have long since gone home, Thomas explained.

Currently, Michigan has a real mix of systems. Of the more than 5,000 precincts in the state, most use optical scanning equipment, but nearly 1,500 use punch cards. Only a few have moved to touch screen computers. More than a 100 still use paper ballots, and almost 700 still have the old mechanical lever voting machines.

Thomas said cities seem to prefer optical scanners at present, which are much less expensive than touch screen computers. A precinct can be equipped with a scanner for $4,000 to $5,000, where touch screens for that same precinct might run $16,000.

If the state were to require a switchover to a single system, Miller's office believes the state would have to pay for the purchase of that new equipment. Presently, individual municipalities are expected to buy their own voting equipment.

Michigan is a step ahead of most states, since it has a Qualified Voter File system in place, a process for registering voters as they apply for their drivers' licenses, or change the address on their license when they move. It is a system no other state has, Thomas said.

When voters register at Secretary of State offices, notification is sent electronically to the clerk in the resident's new community, and to the community that resident is leaving so that the person can be eliminated from voter rolls there. Paper confirmation follows within days.

The system keeps voter rolls up to date and gets notification of new registrations to clerks quickly, Thomas said.

But it sometimes fails, state Rep. Nancy Quarles, D-Southfield, pointed out. In the last election, five seniors from Groves High School in Birmingham and Oak Park High were turned away from the polls because clerks had not received notification of their registrations.

There is already a system in place to handle that problem, Thomas said. If a voter has registered but poll workers don't have him or her on their list, the voter need only file an affidavit saying that indeed he or she has registered. Once the affidavit is filed, the voter will be allowed to cast a ballot.

is continuing at a pace that is nearly double what it was five years ago," McNamara said. "While there is still a lot of work yet to be done, we are seeing measurable progress from year to year."

He noted among the other major projects this year is the complete overhaul of five miles of Van Born Road, from Venoy Road to Telegraph Road, including two miles of complete reconstruction.

When completed later this year, Van Born Road will be completely pot-hole free its entire 14-mile length, from Canton Center Road in Canton to the Southfield Freeway, McNamara said.

Priebe said, "Watching our road system improve is sort of like watching a child grow.

"When you're up close, you don't notice the changes as much over time, but because we measure our results through an annual road survey, we can clearly see that progress is being made," he said.

A major contributor to the county's success, he stated, is its quality control program, which is recognized by road builders as being the state's most extensive.

"By placing intense scrutiny on the materials that are used and the construction process, we are able to catch any potential problems before they become part of a final product," Priebe said.

"As a result of this front-end approach to quality control, we have not had the kinds of problems that some other road agencies have seen with premature pavement failures," he said.

The county will invest an additional $3.3 million in preventive maintenance efforts, such as crack-sealing, pavement removal and replacement, and microsurfacing to help extend the life of roads that were resurfaced several years ago.

"Now that we have stabilized the majority of road system, we have more discretionary funds that we can use to concentrate on good, basic preventive maintenance," said Patrick Hogan, county roads director.

"This will keep our roads in good condition longer an ultimately save us a great deal of money," he said.

Marlene Briolat of Livonia and Barbara Granger of Westland were among the 14 new CASA volunteers from across the Detroit area sworn in Monday, March 19, by Judge Mary Beth Kelly, Family Division presiding judge in the 3rd Circuit Court.

Briolat, Granger and the others bring to 26 the number of volunteers advocating for some 88 abused and neglected children through the Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) service established in 1997.

Volunteers are screened and then trained to speak in court for children in abuse and neglect cases, gathering information and preparing reports and recommendations for the judges.

Splitz standouts

Splitz Gymnastics, located in Canton, finished sixth in the Michigan Level 7 State Championship meet March 17-18 and had several stand-out performers.

Alyssa Kelley, from Plymouth, collected three state titles in the 12-year-old division, winning the vault (9.4), uneven parallel bars (9.575) and all-around (36.65). Kelley was also third in floor exercise (9.175).

Christa Smutek, from Livonia, was third in the all-around in the 7-10 division with a 36.975. She was second on balance beam (9.3) and floor (9.325) and fifth on vault.

Kristie Savage, of Dearborn, was second on beam (8.95) and floor (9.2) in the 12-year-old division.

Meghan Barida, from Canton, took fourths on bars (9.25) and floor (9.125) in the 12-year-old division. And Megan Narus, from Northville, was fifth in floor (9.15), eighth on bars (9.25) and 10th all-around (35.825) in the 11-year-old division.

The team's score was 110.025.

Last month, the Splitz team traveled to Chicago for the Chicago Style Invitational, one of the largest of its kind in the country, featuring more than 2,300 competitors.

The best team finish was provided by the Level 7s, who finished tied for second. Top individuals included Smutek, a first in the all-around (36.825) with firsts on beam (9.325), floor (9.5) and vault (9.325); Kelley, with a first on vault (9.475), third all-around (37.45), fifth bars, seventh beam and ninth floor; Barida, a sixth on bars; Savage, an eighth on bars and an 11th all-around; and Narus, a third on floor (9.45), a fifth all-around, ninths on beam and bars and an 11th on vault.

The Level 5s placed fourth, with Lindsay Bridges, from Canton, finishing first on beam (9.475), floor (9.55) and all-around (36.675), with a second on vault and a third on bars; Andrea Rivera, from Belleville, a first on floor (9.4), third on bars (9.25), a fourth on vault and a third all-around; Kali Pierce, from Canton, second on beam (9.15) and sixth on floor; Megan Valentini, from Canton, fourth on floor; Hannah Allen, from Canton, seventh on vault; Taylor Standish, from Plymouth, third on vault (9.05) and ninth on bars; and Mandy McManus, from Canton, fifth on vault, sixth on bars, ninth on beam and seventh all-around.

The Level 6s got superb showings from Lindsay Allen, from Canton, first on beam (9.325), seventh on bars, seven on floor and fourth all-around; Amy Quiambao, from Plymouth, seventh on bars, sixth on floor and seventh all-around; Katerina Kariotis, from Canton, 10th on bars; Lindsey Petruska, from Plymouth, fourth on beam and seventh on floor; and Alyssa Bredugh, from Novi, sixth on floor and ninth on bars.

Lady Ocelots honored

Schoolcraft College's Rachel Eley and Angelica Blakely were each honored by selection to the all-Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference team, and Lady Ocelot head coach Karen Lafata was named coach of the year.

Eley, a freshman point guard from Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher, was a first team selection and was runner-up in the MVP voting. She led SC in scoring (12.5 points), assists (6.3) and steals (6.3).

Blakely, a sophomore from Detroit Kettering, was named to the second team. She led the Ocelots in rebounding (8.5) and field-goal shooting (52.7 percent) and was second in scoring (11.2).

Lafata has guided SC to the NJCAA Tournament in Hagerstown, Md., where the Ocelots were 1-1 going into Saturday's game.

Softball Center offerings

The Canton Softball Center, located at 46555 W. Michigan in Canton, has several upcoming events of interest. Call (734) 483-5600 for further information.

Youth All-Skills Baseball and Softball Clinic: From noon-5 p.m. May 5, for ages 7-14, five hours of professional instruction from, among others, Plymouth Canton baseball coach Scott Dickey, including take-home drills sheet, contests, sports break, T-shirt, rules review, etc. Cost is $50 per camper.

Softball Umpires Wanted: The Canton Softball Center will offer a free USSSA Umpires Training Session from 6:30-8 p.m. March 30. New and experienced umpers wanted. Rules review and registration for 2001 offered. Multiple games (at $18 per) per night, flexible schedule.

Last-second shot beats SC

It was an experience for Schoolcraft College, this trip to the NJCAA Tournament, and not always a pleasant one. But despite two overtime losses, the Ocelots made a good account of themselves.

Now Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team knows what separates winners from losers at the NJCAA Division I Tournament.

With 13 seconds left in overtime, SC's Derrick Bird nailed two free throws to put the Ocelots ahead of Okaloosa-Walton (Fla.) CC 96-93. Unfortunately for SC, the lead didn't last.

Demetrius King sank a three-pointer from the wing with 5.6 seconds left to tie it for Okaloosa. That was only part of the bad news for SC; Mike Peek's inbounds pass was pilfered by Kedrick Brown at midcourt.

Brown took two dribbles and launched a 28-footer that went through as the buzzer sounded, giving Okaloosa a 99-96 victory in a consolation-round game played Thursday in Hutchinson, Kan.

The Ocelots finish their first-ever trip to the NJCAA Tournament with a 1-2 mark, both losses coming in overtime; they end their season with a 32-4 overall record. Okaloosa, 29-5 after the win, advanced to yesterday's game for fifth place.

"We played some tough teams here," said SC coach Carlos Briggs. "It feels like we were snakebitten. Their shots seemed to fall at the right times. On that three by King, we had a hand in his face and he still hit it."

"We showed we can compete with the best. We made a decent showing — but we still didn't show what we were capable of doing."

Bird led the Ocelots with 22 points, including 3-of-5 on three-pointers. Keanan Weir scored 20 (4-of-5 on threes), Sam Hoskin had 19 points and eight rebounds, Dave McGlown totaled 18 points (3-of-5 threes) and five assists, and Peek scored 11.

Brown, a 6-foot-7 forward headed to Louisiana State, topped Okaloosa with 32 points, including 5-of-10 on threes.

Ocelots win, fight for 5th

Schoolcraft College's women's basketball team didn't surrender in its trip to the NJCAA Division II Basketball Tournament, held in Hagerstown, Md.

After a poor performance in their tournament opener last Wednesday, a 64-43 loss to Monroe (N.Y.) CC, the Lady Ocelots rebounded to upend South Suburban (Ill.) College 70-60 in a consolation-round game Thursday.

The win sent SC (26-6) to Satur-

Nationally renowned

Best in the state: Last year, Canton's Anne Morrell (in white) was co-winner of the state's best soccer player award.

Canton has to be a bit more than a stage for Anne Morrell

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisk@oe.homecomm.net

Three major contributors from last season's 21-2-2 team that advanced to the Division I girls soccer state final are lost. That's the bad news for Plymouth Canton's team.

Everything else is bright. The Chiefs have a team that's been ranked sixth nationally, one that has in place nearly all the key components from last season's squad.

Starting, of course, with the state's co-player of the year in 2000: Anne Morrell.

As a junior, Morrell — who committed to attend North Carolina a year ago — scored 38 goals. She had 10 in seven state tournament games.

She's been ranked as one of the best players in the nation for several years. The only honor that has escaped her is a state championship for her team.

The Chiefs came close last season. They beat some powerhouses in the state tournament in reaching the final, including Plymouth Salem, Livonia Stevenson and Brighton.

But against Troy Athens in the title match they came undone, losing 4-1. Both of their losses last year were to Athens.

"Yes, they did (have a lot of talent)," Canton coach Don Smith said of the Red Hawks. "We did too, we just didn't use it as well. We had done a good job of getting everyone involved until that last game."

As far as that season-ending defeat, Smith only said, "I haven't dwelled on it. I hope they learned their lesson."

There has seldom been a team returning as much talent as Canton does. The 1998 Livonia Stevenson squad, which was unbeaten in winning the state title, comes to mind.

That doesn't mean the road will be easy for Canton. Not hardly. Stevenson, with its own superstar in Lindsay Gusick, has been ranked 17th nationally. And although Salem lost

Finding ways to use Gusick to be a key in Stevenson's season

Sometimes soccer is like a bridge game.

When you've got an ace, everybody else is hopeful they can trump it.

That's Livonia Stevenson's situation this spring.

The Spartans have one of the state's ace of aces in Lindsay Gusick, a premier player who is a viable candidate for Michigan's Miss Soccer award (for which one of her chief competitors will be Anne Morrell of league rival Plymouth Canton).

A complete player such as Gusick is something many teams are void of — which means they'll be trying any way they can to trump her as a means toward beating Stevenson.

Coach Jim Kimble of Stevenson goes through this just about every year, though, so he's already concocting a game plan to bring home his bid of a competitive team at the state level.

"As far as we go will depend on how well she does," Kimble said bluntly, "how well we protect her and how well we hide her as far as tactics go."

Come again? What's to hide?

Gusick will be visible all over the field as one of the most talented forwards in the state. Everybody's going to be watching her.

Which is why Kimble is brewing up a no-trump plan for Gusick and the Spartans.

"There are options (for us) rather than having her have to score all the goals," Kimble said. "We've got some young forwards who could be pretty good. We might move her back to mid-field on occasion."

"So that gives us a couple of different dimensions we can go to — which

Good coaching, good teams

Observerland boasts top talent, state's best teams

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK
STAFF WRITER

You don't do it for the money; that's for sure.

Because the pay for coaching at the high school level would have to be multiplied by 10 just to reach minimum wage, based on the hours put in.

And Terry Jobbitt doesn't coach for the recognition, either, although he was recognized as the Observerland Coach of the Year for the 2000-01 hockey season for the job he did with the Livonia Franklin team.

"You don't do it for that type of recognition," Jobbitt said. "You do it because you love coaching and you want to help the kids to go somewhere and do something."

"You want to see the kids go to a higher level at the end of the year."

Jobbitt also is thrilled to say his team is one of 19 that earned all-scholastic honors with a collective GPA of better than 3.0.

Franklin has to play in the shadow of Livonia Stevenson and Redford Catholic Central. But there's more to high school sports than winning championships, and that needs to be formally recognized from time to time.

The Patriots finished their season with a fine 17-4-6 record, losing in the regional finals, in overtime, to Southgate Anderson, 5-4. Two of the other losses were to Stevenson.

This was the second time in a career that's nearing two decades Jobbitt has been saluted as the Observerland Coach of the Year. He's earned that honor from his league compatriots four times.

"I'd like to thank the boys for how hard they worked," he said. "They're the ones who deserve credit for helping me get this award."

Jobbitt thought, at the start of the season, "This was definitely the best team we'd had at Franklin in years, if not ever."

"But I looked around and saw how much better the entire league was."

"I said, 'Hey, I've got a really good team here, but are we going to do better than last year? And, if we are, how are we going to accomplish those goals?'"

"So I changed my ways, and I changed some of my ideas."

Jobbitt tinkered with his practice schedules, deleting some procedures and adding others that would sharpen his players' skills.

He also modified the Patriots' power play, lifting its efficiency from 20 percent to 32.

"And the whole season we emphasized the team concept," he said. "We had great effort all year long. We had really good scoring from our top three lines."

Borrowing some syntax from Sparky Anderson, will be a nice change for her. I don't think teams will be able to key largely on her. Which will be interesting."

Gusick, having an Honor Roll brain as large as her ability, is skilled enough to be able to make a transition such as that on the fly. Which will certainly create some opportunities on the field.

There are other storylines that will play themselves out for the 2001 season.

One is the elevation of college All-America goalie Jenny Barker of Madonna University to head coach at Livonia Franklin.

Barker, who has assisted with the Patriots the last two seasons, now assumes head coaching responsibilities from Mary Kay Hussey.

"Mary Kay got me into coaching the very next year after (graduating from Livonia Stevenson) high school," said Barker, who quite probably is the youngest head coach in the history of the Western Lakes Activities Association. "I just wanted to continue it."

Barker, who still has another season to play at Madonna, led the Crusaders to the NAIA playoffs last fall and became an All-America in the process.

But that's secondary to her goal of graduating with a degree in mathematics and secondary education. That will allow her to continue her coaching career. She said she's on track to graduate in December of 2002.

"I'm thankful I have another season of eligibility left," she said. "I'm really grateful. I'm looking forward to that."

She's also looking forward to leading Franklin's team.

"I'm just thankful and grateful I can coach in such a great conference," Barker said. "As far as coaching against Stevenson, it's just another team."

Livonia Churchill will also have a new coach this season. A

Chad Campau is stepping down temporarily to be with his wife, who is expecting twins in the near future.

Taking his place is boy's coach Dave Hebestreit.

The WLAA is one of the most competitive and powerful soccer conferences in the state. Other leagues produce a team or two equal to or better than the Lakes' powers, but it's rare to see one with such top-to-bottom strength.

"This looks like another typical year," Barker said, "with Stevenson, Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton up there.

Churchill's usually in the running as well."

Because of Gusick, the Spartans will get the Lions' share of the attention, however.

Gusick has accepted a full ride scholarship to play soccer at the University of Virginia. She's also a member of the U-18 Women's National Team. She was also a key three-point shooter on the Stevenson basketball squad.

"She's an Addidas All-America and our best player, obviously," Kimble said. "I'm good friends with her family and she comes from a great family. You couldn't ask for more, both as a player and as a person."

She comes from a line of outstanding Stevenson soccer players, including Allison Campbell, a great goal-scorer, and Andrea Sied, a physically dominant defender who controlled games from the back end of the field.

"Lindsay is very, very athletic," Kimble said. "She can change the complexion of a game with her athleticism. She's a student of the game and a fierce competitor."

"And this is the best physical condition I have seen her in over four years. I definitely have optimistic hopes for the season."

As do all — even after the games start.

LIVONIA FRANKLIN

Coach: Jenny Barker, 1st season.

League affiliation: WLAA (Western Division).

Notable loss to graduation: Alexis Bowman, defender.

Leading returnees: Kara Wisniewski, Jr., midfielder; Kate Roberts, Jr., sweeper; Megan Farrell, Soph., goalkeeper.

Promising newcomers: Shannon Powers, Fr., forward; Alicia Thom, Jr., midfielder; Caitlyn Meloche, Fr., forward.

Barker's 2001 season outlook: "We're just looking to build off last season. We want to add new players into the mix, and build up the experience that we have."

"I'm real excited to have the opportunity to work with such a great group of kids."

"Hopefully I'll have the opportunity to learn from them and they'll have the chance to take some soccer knowledge from myself."

"It's a tough league. We always get a few good games out of it and we look forward to those."

WAYNE MEMORIAL

Coach: Larry Brenner, 7th season.

2000 record: 16-4-1 (first place, Mega Blue).

League affiliation: Michigan Mega Conference, White Division.

Notable losses to graduation: Jenny Clark, defense; Amanda Blescoe, defense; Lori Giordano, defense; Tina Bradley, midfielder; Tiffany Mishloney, midfielder; Christine Raupp, midfielder; Tish Tedders, midfielder; Ronda Brockman, forward; Kristina McCahill, forward; Kristal Swope, forward.

cutt, Sr., forward; Alana Green, Jr., forward.

Promising newcomers: Nicole Quinn, Jr., defense; Lisa DiRusso, Soph., defense; Kalli Prater, Soph., midfielder; Amy Veres, Jr., forward; Ashley Britton, Fr., forward.

Brenner's 2001 season outlook: "We moved up to the Mega White Division and lost some very talented players to graduation."

"But our solid core of veteran players returning along with our new players should keep us very competitive again this year."

"They are very hungry to show that we can continue to be a strong team. The attitude is great."

"We need everyone to play their role on the team to have a successful season."

"This is the most talented group of girls trying out in our seven years of the program."

LIVONIA STEVENSON

Coach: Jim Kimble, 7th season.

Notable losses to graduation: Andi Sied, defense; Megan Urbats, forward; Cheryl Fox, defense; Deanna McGrath, midfielder.

Leading returnees: Lindsay Gusick, Sr., forward; Dana White, Sr., midfielder; Katie Beauvoisin, Sr., defense.

Promising newcomers: Melissa Dobbyn, Fr., forward; Maureen Jackson, Fr., midfielder; Mindy Magoulick, Fr., goalkeeper; Laura Sulak, Fr., midfielder.

Kimble's 2001 season outlook: "We like our team. It's young and athletic. We're going to compete in very game we play."

"But it will all come down to sorting out the defensive end of the field. If we can replace Andi (Sied) soon enough, we'll be at the top end of the rankings."

"If we don't sort that out, then we may have some difficulties."

"(Plymouth) Canton is obviously the team to beat in our league, with (Anne) Morrell and (Amanda) Lentz and (Plymouth) Salem is there every year."

"Canton is the team to look at. But I like our chances. I like our scoring punch. We are going to score some goals."

"It'll be an interesting year."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN

Coach: Jerry Poniatowski, 6th season.

2000 record: 9-8.

Notable losses to graduation: Jade Fukuda, goalkeeper; Val Kurzynski, forward; Noelle Swartz, midfielder.

Promising newcomers: Brittany Zwick, Soph., forward; Shannon Abbot, Fr., forward.

Poniatowski's 2001 season outlook: "As usual, it's an extremely tough league. We'll just try to keep our heads above water."

"We'll take what we can and try not to give up anything."

"We'll try to keep things nice, clean and sportsmanlike. That's what the league is all about."

LIVONIA CHURCHILL

2000 record: 8-9-1.

Notable losses to graduation: Karen Kramer, defense; Kristin Leszczynski, midfielder; Michelle Smith, midfielder; Melissa Sultana, defense; Renee Kashawic, goalkeeper-forward.

Leading returnees: Michelle Esparza, Sr., midfielder; Dana Thomson, Sr., forward-midfielder; Jamie Zimmer, Sr., defense; Sarah Phillips, Jr., forward; Deanna DeRoo, Jr., forward; Amy Sanders, Jr., defense; Meghan Parnell, Jr., defense; Charity Burbridge, Soph., midfielder; Sarah Leary, Jr., midfielder; Lindsay Delaney, Jr., midfielder; Laura Boies, Jr., midfielder; Sarah Hart-sell, Jr., goalkeeper.

Promising newcomers: Jacqui Gatt, Fr., midfielder; Kyle LaPorte, Fr., forward; Christina Thom, Fr., defense.

Hebestreit's 2001 season outlook: "I think that we're bringing in 5-6 new starters, either from girls returning or new players. I think we'll be real competitive."

"We have a solid crop of freshman that came in, the best freshman crop we've seen. Plus we have a lot of returning players."

"We're still filling a few holes this week."

"We're going to be real speedy. We have a lot of team speed all over the field."

"We're starting all club players, which is a first for us. It's very nice to have."

LIVONIA LADYWOOD

Coach: Jill Logsdon, 3rd season.

2000 record: 5-12-1.

Notable losses to graduation: Andrea Schimmel, center-midfielder.

Leading returnees: Katie Rozum, Jr., midfielder; Jenny Bartkowiak, Jr., midfielder; Sunny Grezlik, Soph., midfielder; Lauren Hesano, Soph., forward; Megan Kogut, Soph., midfielder.

Promising newcomers: Sandy Swish, Fr., forward; Sue Christenson, Fr., defense; Christine Williams, Fr., defense; Brittany Cauly, Fr., defense; Stefanie Szczechowski, Soph., goalkeeper (transfer from Dearborn Divine Child).

Logsdon's 2001 season outlook: "We're very young this year, but we picked up a lot of talent."

"I think that we're going to be strong and definitely compete this year in the Catholic League."

LUTHERAN HIGH WESTLAND

Coach: Mark Brenner, 3rd season.

2000 record: 8-8-2.

League affiliation: Metro Conference.

goalkeeper; Lindsey Bowman, Sr., defense; Emily Kamrath, Sr., stopper; Krissy Rose, Sr., center-midfielder; Amy Kamrath, Jr., center-midfielder; Caiti Helms, Jr., winger.

Promising newcomers: Samantha Poole, Soph., defense; Beckie Walker, Fr., forward.

Brenner's 2001 season outlook: "I've got a very knowledgeable new assistant, Adam Danielczyk, who will be a tremendous asset to the program."

"I think we can build on last year, but we need new leadership to emerge."

"If we have a solid defense and we start to play possession soccer, we can have a really successful season. If the girls play with a lot of heart, they can do that and be successful."

"Cranbrook-Kingswood will probably be the leading team in the conference. (Macomb Lutheran) North is always pretty solid, too."

"I think we can be in the running if some things pull together for us."

PLYMOUTH CANTON

Coach: Don Smith, 15th season.

2000 record: 21-2-2, league co-champs, state finalist.

League affiliation: WLAA (Western Division).

Smith's 2001 season outlook: "I would think so (we'd be ready). We've just got to make sure we stay focused. They'll be ready for us, they'll come after us. But we've got a lot of good leadership, a lot of seniors this year."

PLYMOUTH SALEM

2000 record: 14-3-1.

League affiliation: WLAA (Lakes Division).

Notable losses to graduation: Christen Shull, sweeper; Suzie Towne, defender; Jenny Fitchett, keeper; Jamie Coyle, forward; Jesse Bucks, defender; Jeannine Edwards, midfielder; Liz Gizicki, midfielder; Jenny Fisher, forward; Brandi Groves, defender.

Promising newcomers: Nikki Anderson, jr., forward; Megan Gouley, jr., midfielder; Melinda Briones, jr., forward; Katie Cooper, jr., defender; Sara Schupra, jr., midfielder; Stephanie Baron, jr., keeper; Rachelle Marshall, soph., defender; Marissa Sarkesian, fresh., midfielder; Jordan Falcusan, fresh., midfielder.

Nora's 2001 season outlook: "I think (our strength) will be our defense. Jill Dombrowski has just been playing phenomenally. That will be our strength — quick counters off her play. We want to out-possess the other team. (Canton, Stevenson) will be the teams to beat, that's for sure. We'll try and peak around play-off time and see what happens."

SOCCER NEWS

The Livonia Youth Soccer Club (LYSC) is encouraging local youth soccer teams to become charter entries in the Livonia Spree Invitational Tournament (June 22-24).

The tournament is open to boys and girls teams in age groups from under-9 through under-19. It offers recreational, select and premier divisions.

The tournament, scheduled in conjunction with the city's 51st anniversary, has been sanctioned by the United States Youth Soccer Association (USYSA).

All teams are guaranteed a minimum of three games in pool play with group winners and wild card teams moving on to play in a trophy round.

All players will receive commemorative participation pins and they, along with their families, will be eligible for discount tickets to the Livonia Spree.

For an information packet including team entry forms as well as additional rules and information, call the tournament hotline at 734-462-5889.

Jobbitt noted, "You've got to keep up to stay ahead."

Kids, he added, are getting bigger and stronger all the time.

"Now you've got to work to bring them up to a higher level yet."

The only thing that marred the season, Jobbitt believes, was losing the Division II regional final to Southgate Anderson.

He wonders what might have been if four of his players hadn't come down sick on the eve of the game.

"Give a lot of credit to Southgate," he said. "They played a very good game. But could we have beaten them healthy? I don't know."

"But, to lose only four games all year long, the team did over and above what we expected them to do."

"We were in the running for the conference championship up until the last game with Stevenson. We lost to them twice by one goal."

"We never lost to Churchill this year. We tied them twice."

"Stevenson and Churchill were ranked Nos. 2 and 3 in Division I, and we ended up ranked seventh in Division II. It was the first time we were ranked anywhere in a season ever."

FIRST TEAM

Kevin Marlowe, goaltender, Stevenson: Made the Coach's Dream Team squad after a stellar senior season.

Had a 1.71 goals-against average with a .932 save percentage.

"He's a leader," Stevenson coach Ed Shepler said. "He's very reliable; solid both on and off the ice."

"He controlled games. At times he determined how the game was going to go."

Jared Ross, forward, Catholic Central: Ross proved to be the dream player in a dream season for a dream team, helping the Shamrocks to an undefeated season, capped with a state championship and Ross becoming the third player in school history to be named Mr. Hockey.

Ross scored 30 goals and had 38 assists, and was named to the Division I first team and the coaches' Dream Team.

"All season long, Jared put the success of our team, in terms of individual wins and losses, ahead of individual points," said CC co-coach Todd Johnson. "He's an unbelievable offensive player. He has dominated the game offensively more than any player we've had in the last six years and that's a huge statement."

Derek Genrich, defense, Catholic Central: Genrich joined Ross on the Division I first team and the Dream Team. A three-year varsity player, Genrich bounced back from an injury last season to score three goals and nine assists.

"He led our defense this year physically and emotionally," said Johnson. "He and his family made a lot of sacrifices to send him to CC and all of his hard work really paid off by being captain of the third-straight state championship team."

Josh Garbutt, forward, Franklin: The center made the coach's All-State team in Division II.

Garbutt tied for first in the Western Lakes Activities Association scoring derby with 26 points (15 goals, 11 assists). Totaled 22 goals and 21 assists overall, including five game-winners.

In 76 games over three seasons, Garbutt scored 51 goals and had 55 assists.

"Josh has always been a hard worker," Coach Terry Jobbitt of the Patriots said. "He's definitely a team player."

"He's a kid every coach would love to have on his team."

Jim Spiewak, forward, Catholic Central: Right now, Spiewak probably doesn't know he was selected for this honor. After CC's season ended, he signed with the USHL's Cedar Rapids Roughriders and is commuting between school and hockey during the week.

"He will be a Division I player after a year of junior hockey," said Johnson. "He might be the hardest working player off-ice in the last six years with how hard he works in the weight room and keeping his grades up. He made a tough decision between junior hockey and his senior year in high school and he figured that it was best for him to come back to CC for the season. It placed a lot of pressure on him at times, but he handled it well and was rewarded with his decision."

Spiewak, a three-year player for CC and all-state selection the last two years, scored 17 goals and had 23 assists during the season.

Brett John, forward, Catholic Central: John was the second-leading scorer for the Shamrocks and also earned a spot on the Division I all-state team. A two-year member of the varsity, John scored 29 goals and 23 assists this season.

"He's a prototypical power forward who can not only score, but punish opposing players along the boards and in front of the net," said Johnson. "He has a tremendous desire to push himself and his teammates beyond the level of comfort in practice and in games. He's going to have a really good hockey career and a good chance at playing Division I in college."

SECOND TEAM

Rory Cesarz, forward, Churchill: This left wing made the All-State team. The senior scored six game-winning goals this season and registered a high of plus-28 on the ice.

"He was at his best in our biggest games," coach Pete Mazzoni said. "He can play the physical game but is probably our quickest forward. He's a pure goal-scorer."

Cesarz had 15 goals and 10 assists in 26 games.

Chris Garbutt, goaltender, Franklin: Set school record with seven shutouts, including four in a row, and posted nine in stellar career.

Caps career with selection to Division II All-State team.

Had a 2.19 goals-against average with a save percentage of 90.6.

"He's an excellent goalie," noted his coach, Terry Jobbitt. "This year he took a big step forward."

"He became an excellent strong team player and took the blame for goals that were not his fault. He kept us in games and won the big ones for us."

Sean Genrich, defense, Catholic Central: Genrich, a three-year player, was selected to the all-state first team with five goals and 13 assists.

"His first two years in the program, he was a role player and worked hard last summer to be a key component," said Johnson. "We gave him an opportunity to be on the first power-play unit and he did a nice job. He's a good role model to our younger guys in the program. He comes to play every game."

Bill McSween, defense, Redford Unified: McSween was one of the highest scoring defensemen in the state, scoring 15 goals and 25 assists for 40 points and earned a spot on the all-state first team and led RU to the Mega Conference title.

"He was an outstanding player who covered his area well and saw all of the ice," said RU coach John Gumbleton. "He's not physical, but can take control in the corners and in front of the net. He's interesting to watch, how he doesn't let the puck get away from him. He doesn't hesitate to rush the ice and get in deep. Sometimes, an offensive defenseman isn't good in his own end, but he's good in both ends. He's a very good player."

Bobby Zagata, forward, Stevenson: The senior center was called "the best forward in the area" by his coach, Ed Shepler.

"He's a game-breaker," Shepler said. "He has very good speed and is well above average talent-wise. He can turn it on when the team needs it."

Zagata scored 21 goals and had 20 assists for the season.

Aaron Jakubowski, forward, Churchill: Only a junior, Jakubowski was captain of his team.

His plus-minus was a positive 19 and he had nine goals and 10 assists.

"He can win faceoffs," said his coach, Pete Mazzoni. "He can go in the corners and tie people up. He's the best two-way player."

NATURE NOTES

TIM NOWICKI

Refreshing refresher course on geese

Though Canada geese have not been around this past winter as they have been in previous winters, they have returned from their southern wintering areas where open water and fields with little snow in which to feed were found.

Once again their constant presence provides numerous opportunities for us to listen to their rising, two-note honking sound.

It was an unfamiliar sound that attracted my attention up to the sky the other day.

First the higher pitched one note call drew my attention to the skein of geese in a classic "V" formation flying overhead, then the small size verified that they were snow geese. They were heading southeast, not north as one would expect this time of year - probably because they had spotted a place to stop and rest. It may have been the Detroit River that attracted their attention, or some of the open fields on the Canadian side of the river.

Just to be sure of my identification, I played the sound of the snow goose on my computer program. Sure enough, it was the same.

Spring is the best time to see snow geese since they may stop along their northern route when they find conditions are not suitable to proceed. Shiawassee National Wildlife Refuge near Saginaw is a good place to see them in spring.

In fall, migration often takes them directly from nesting sites in the Hudson and James Bay area to their wintering grounds in Louisiana in one long flight. Seldom are they seen in Michigan during fall.

Snow geese are smaller than the giant Canada goose that lives in southeastern Michigan by about five pounds. Though the name snow goose would suggest they are white colored birds, they also come in a blue color with white accents.

Not too long ago - about thirty years or so - the blue colored snow goose was considered a different species than the white colored snow goose. Then a researcher learned that a mated pair consisting of two white colored individuals could raise blue colored offspring, or two blue colored individuals could raise white offspring.

A snow goose born white will stay white the rest of its life. The same is true of the blue colored individuals, they stay blue the rest of their life. Variation in color is similar to the color differences of the screech owl, or the ruffed grouse.

If you are walking at night and you hear a recognizable goose sound, listen carefully because they could be snow geese and not the familiar Canada goose we see every day around here.

To learn more about snow geese and other birds that return in spring you can take a bird study class. Schoolcraft College is offering a class that starts April 23 from 7-9pm. There will be five classroom sessions on Mondays and three field trips on the weekends. In the classroom, bird identification is emphasized by using slides and study skins. Migration, anatomy, song and other topics are briefly covered throughout the class. Weekend field trips are designed to put identification skills into practice.

If you are interested in the class, I would be pleased to have you join me, since I'll be teaching the class. Contact Continuing Education at Schoolcraft College (734) 462-4448 for registration details.

Special memories at Trout Opener

Michigan's Trout Opener falls on the last Saturday in April.

The day is as important to anglers, as October 20th and November 15th are to pheasant and deer hunters, respectively.

Fly fishers look forward to Opening Day with the same eagerness as a child on Christmas Eve. I can recall becoming so wrapped up in plans for Opening Day that I once got confused when a friend asked if I was going to the Tiger Opener. "Of course I will," I answered. "I'll be in Grayling at least a day before."

My friend had to explain what he meant. Although I, like many fly anglers, enjoy baseball, it was the furthest thing from my mind.

While the Trout Opener ranks high on the fly fisher's calendar, the day is usually not about fishing. It's more about renewing old friendships.

There's plenty of time to fish all summer. Last year was a good example.

I floated my friend Al the day before the opener on the "Holy Waters" of the AuSable River (which is open to catch-and-release fishing all year).

As I poled my AuSable riverboat around a bend, I heard a familiar voice booming across the river. It belonged to another friend, Pat, who was staying at a lodge with at least a half-dozen other people that I knew.

After being introduced to the folks I hadn't met before, a cold beverage was placed in my hand. Fishing came to an end for the day as we renewed old friendships and made new ones.

The next morning brought the Trout Opener itself. Because the mornings in April can be quite cool, insect hatches usually don't start until midday.

There's no hurry to get to the river. Al and I cooked breakfast for some friends who joined us in camp, then made our way to another lodge on the main stream where a memorial of sorts was underway. Bud, another good friend, had passed away that winter.

About twenty of us showed up to share coffee, donuts, and a few stories. We were each given a small fly box containing some of Bud's ashes, with specific instructions to disburse them at a favorite fishing spot.

Later in the day, my wife and kids met me on the river where all the people from the memorial were fishing. My 10-year-old daughter had some flies I taught her to tie. She wanted to fish them that day. I gave her my rod and tied on a fly.

A few moments later, she caught her first brook trout - on a fly she tied herself. I placed Bud's ashes in that hole, a spot that became very special to all of us. She still talks about that day.

We all had a great time, and I spent so much time helping my kids that I don't remember if I caught a fish myself.

This year, I'll be back on the AuSable, fishing with friends and family.

This time we'll remember John, another fishing partner we lost this year.

We'll continue our traditions. There are many great trout rivers all over this state. Why not create some traditions of your own and get out there on the water the last Saturday in April?

Jeff McGowan, a commercial fly tyer and a licensed guide, is a member of the Michigan Fly Fishing Club. For more information about the Club, visit www.mffc.org.

Nice catch: Kathleen McGowan understands the thrill of catching a fish on the Trout Opener.

License fees going up

Get ready to pay a little more for the opportunity to hunt and fish in Michigan. In a move that was expected two years ago, but was postponed until this year, Department of Natural Resources Director K.L. Cool has approved a price hike this year for hunting and fishing licenses.

In a nut shell, all resident hunting and fishing license fees have increased a dollar. That means the combo deer license, which is actually two licenses, will cost an extra two bucks ($28). Small game, archery deer, firearms deer, bear, turkey, fur harvester and a restricted fishing license all cost $14 this year, while an all-species fishing license will cost $27.

Application fees for special lottery hunts like elk, turkey and black bear remains at $4.

Non-resident license fees have increased between $4 and $14, depending on the license.

The increase is expected to generate some $1.7 million for the state's Game and Fish Protection Fund, which finances fisheries and wildlife programs, provides up to 60 percent of the Department's Law Enforcement budget and 20 percent of the Department's administrative costs.

The last time we had a license fee increase was five years ago. At that time, Cool received the authority to institute a license fee increase in 1999 and in 2001. He decided to forgo the hike in 1999, or we might be paying $15 for licenses this year.

You can still get a 15-percent discount by purchasing four licenses at one time.

E-licensing available

The DNR recently initiated a program which allows you to purchase hunting and fishing licenses via the internet. E-licensing is available at the DNR's web site located at www.dnr.state.mi.us. A current MasterCard or Visa is needed to make a purchase.

"We designed the system to be very user-friendly," said Tom Weston, DNR E-Commerce Manager. "Customers will be able to print most small game and fishing licenses at home, and the system allows them to make sure their computer setup meets the PC needs for online purchasing. They even can test their printer."

Customers need a computer with Netscape 4.0 or newer, or Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 or newer, to complete the transaction. Additionally, these browsers must utilize 128-bit encryption, which is the highest level of protection possible for the use of credit cards or to make other financial or confidential transactions over the Internet.

Fishing regulation changes

With April 1 rapidly approaching, anglers should start thinking about purchasing a 2001 Michigan fishing license. The 2000 licenses expire March 31.

With the new season comes some changes in regulations that anglers should keep in mind. Some of the major changes that take effect April 1 include:

■ Walleye - Lake Erie: Only one additional walleye may be taken from Lake Erie, in addition to the daily possession limit of five. In 2000, anglers were permitted to keep five additional fish. This reduction is the result of a downward trend in both walleye populations and catch rates in Lake Erie.

■ Lake trout - Great Lakes: Several changes have been made to the lake trout size limits and fishing zones as part of the agreement concerning treaty fishing rights in the Great Lakes. Refer to pages 19-21 in the 2001 Michigan Fishing Guide for details.

■ Bass season - Lake Michigan: The open season for largemouth and smallmouth bass on Lake Michigan, within one-half mile of Beaver, Garden, High and Hog islands, is July 1-31.

■ Fishing rod limit - Great Lakes: A change to the number of fishing rods that anglers may use on the Great Lakes went into effect last September.

Anglers trolling for trout and salmon on Lake Michigan, Lake Huron, Lake Superior and the St. Marys River may use three lines or three single rods and lines. No more than six hooks total may be attached on all lines. These changes do not apply to shore anglers.

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

On the road again ... to Reno's ABC convention

Last week was travel time for this writer as the American Bowling Congress National Convention was going on at Reno, Neva. Two pieces of luggage plus two bowling balls and the "Wild Blue Yonder" on United Airlines to Reno and the National Bowling Stadium.

That was the start of a great week which included bowling at the stadium and working the convention as a Greater Detroit Bowling Association delegate representing you if you are a league bowler.

The ABC convention is where the proposed rule changes are voted upon and the other topics of interest are discussed by the 1,168 delegates from all 50 states and Canada. The main topic of discussion was the feasibility of a Single Membership Organization which would combine the efforts and facilities of the ABC, WIBC, YABA, USA Bowling and Bowling, Inc. into one solid, single unit.

This could create a more efficient operation for all, a cost savings and would enable all to deliver member services much easier. It would mean abolishing each organization and forming a wholly new one. There were a lot of pros and cons to this idea, and where it goes from here depends a lot on how the women bowlers will see it in their upcoming convention next month in Ft. Lauderdale.

A special tribute was paid to the late Joe Norris with several special video presentations. He would have bowled the prior week in his 72nd ABC tournament.

Over 80,000 bowlers are entered in this year's ABC including over 14,000 teams at Reno's splendid National Bowling Stadium. I'd rather not say much about the tournament, as we had a reverse block (oil on the outside boards and dry in the middle) in the team event and nobody in the GDBA contingent bowled very well. Just wait 'til next year, and that will be in Billings, Mont. Year 2003 is slated for Knoxville, Tenn., and back to Reno's National Bowling Stadium again in 2004.

TEN PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

While I was gone, Sandy Weed of Novi last week bowled her first 700 series with 240-216-255 totaling 711 pins. She had been stricken with leukemia only five years ago. Most people might just give up, but not Sandy. She ran the full course of chemotherapy and radiation, fought back and not only is in full remission, but is now bowling like she did before she became ill. The bad news is that she did not like lanes 31 and 32 at Country Lanes in Farmington, so she did not enter the usual jackpots. The other bad news is that she did this against my team.

For the many bowlers who knew her, Lillian Vandervennet of Westland passed away on March 13. She had been the counterperson and day manager at Country Lanes for 17 years and had been well known by many bowlers over the years for her congeniality and ability to keep the leagues running smoothly. She took over for Sandy Weed's spot on her team for a year while she was recovering from her illness.

So you want to be a better bowler.

There is a way to do just that by signing up for a one-day clinic with PWBA champions Aleta Sill and Michelle Mullin. Sill is famous for her great success in her pro tour career, and the first woman to top one million dollars in tour earnings. She is a member of the Ebonite Pro advisory staff. Mullin is a former Team USA coach and has a Gold certificate in USA Bowling. The one-day clinic features: Video analysis and on-the-lane coaching, spare shooting, practice plan and more. The cost is $149 for the complete package. It will take place on April 7 or 8 at Sterling Lanes in Sterling Heights. The "All-Star Grill" women's team is at it again. They are leading the Detroit Women's Bowling Association City Tournament in the Actual Team event with a team score of 1035-1153-1095, totaling 3,286. This is the same team that recently claimed the all-time high series at Cloverlanes with a 3,600 series.

Canton soccer from B1

nine seniors to graduation, the Rocks have a couple of promising newcomers and enough experience to make things difficult for the Chiefs.

Last season, Salem tied Stevenson and was leading Canton 1-0 in the state playoffs until the final 17 minutes, when Stephanie Johnson scored twice to save the Chiefs.

Johnson, who had 18 goals (six in the tournament), is back for her junior season. Amanda Lentz, a senior attacking midfielder, also returns; she totaled 16 goals and 14 assists last season and was all-conference, all-district and all-region.

Those are three of the key returnees. But there's much more.

Sarah Heimerl, a senior, and Sarah Plymale and Ashley Rosaen, both juniors, will be in the rotation at midfield as well.

Abi Morrell, last season's stopper, has taken her talents to Western Michigan. Beth Sandusky and Arielle Bryant, both seniors who were marking backs in 2000, will step into that position.

Sweeper Jessica Palis has also graduated, but there's some good news there. Janine Guastella, a starter at marking back going into last season, missed most of the campaign after suffering a knee injury. She's back for her senior year and will get a shot at sweeper.

Betsey Huebler, who filled in admirably for the injured Guastella, and Nicole Schilk, both seniors, will be joined by juniors Lindsey Lasher, Shaina Smith and Rachel Lindman at marking back. Again, all played extensively last season.

Keeper Amy Dorogi has graduated. Taking over will be sophomore Briana Wolcott, and Smith is confident there won't be any dropoff. "She's got to get some good game experience," he said. "She's learning fast. I think she has better movement than Dorogi." Tarah Rhoades, a senior, returns to back her up.

Newcomers to the team this year are junior midfielder Jessica Dean, sophomore all-around player Danielle Shepard, freshman forward Rachel Perry and junior keeper Katie Maloney.

Can this team be as good as it looks? Smith believes the Chiefs' dependence on Morrell to produce goals hurt them last year. He wants Morrell to have as many assists as goals this season.

"We just got to make sure we stay focused," said Smith. "They'll all be ready for us, they'll come after us. But we've got a lot of good leadership, a lot of seniors."

They've got all the ingredients, to be sure.

Still a force

Rocks lost a lot, but remain formidable

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisk@oe.homecomm.net

"Rebuilding" is not a word Plymouth Salem soccer coach Joe Nora is particularly afraid of. Or concerned about.

"With the constant turnover, I look at every year in high school coaching as a rebuilding year," he said.

This season could qualify as something more. After all, Nora — in his second year as Salem's coach — lost nine seniors to graduation from last season's 14-3-1 squad.

Gone are such stalwarts as sweeper Christen Shull (now at Madonna University), midfielders Suzie Towne, Jeanine Edwards and Liz Gizicki, forwards Jami Coyle and Jenny Fisher, defenders Jesse Bucks and Brandi Groves, and keeper Jenny Fitchett.

That's a lot. But as Nora pointed out, "We still have 14 or 15 returning."

"Our talent level is high. It's just a matter of them getting the team philosophy and us working out the (playing) rotation."

There are several solid players to build the team around, starting with senior keeper Jill Dombrowski. As a junior, Dombrowski earned all-conference and all-Observer honors, recording five shutouts with a 0.678 goals-against average.

"Jill Dombrowski has just been playing phenomenally," said Nora. "It all starts with her."

By that, Nora meant he plans to have Dombrowski help build the Rocks' attack "with quick counters off her play. That will be our strength."

That also means Salem's defense will have to be strong and its midfield will have to be able to control the ball. "We want to out-possess the other team," he said.

And although there are holes to fill, there are plenty of players with considerable experience. Joining Dombrowski as team co-captains are senior marking back Maureen Griffith and junior midfielder Natalie Thomas.

The defense, which Nora figured would be his team's best component, features returnees Amanda Marsonok, who recently committed to Madonna University, Danielle Portelli, Amber Williams and Shara Huggins, together with Griffith. All are seniors; all played extensively last season.

At midfield, returning are senior Rachel Berezak and sophomore Janae Bucks, as well as Thomas. Senior Kellee Mullin (second team all-Observer) and sophomore Katelyn Lee both played at forward last year, strengthening that position.

Newcomers from the junior varsity who should help include juniors Nikki Anderson and Melinda Briones at forward; juniors Megan Gourley and Sara Schupra at midfield; junior Katie Cooper and sophomore Rachelle Marshall at defender; and junior Stephanie Baron at keeper.

Nora also figures to get some solid play from a pair of freshmen: Marissa Sarkesian, whose sister Mia starred at Salem and currently starts for Notre Dame, and Jordan Falcan. Both are midfielders.

As Nora indicated, the talent level is high. Still, there's a void whenever a team loses nine players to graduation, and it isn't easy to fill — particularly in a conference as tough as the Western Lakes Activities Association.

In 2000, Plymouth Canton and Livonia Stevenson played for the WLAA title and ended up tying, thereby sharing the crown. Both enter this season with solid lineups; both are ranked nationally.

Knowing that Northville and Livonia Churchill also figure to be tough doesn't make the Rocks' road any easier. "They'll be the teams to beat, that's for sure," said Nora.

As for his own team, he said, "We'll just try and peak around playoff time and see what happens."

That could be interesting indeed.

Tyrone Hayes contributed 20 points and nine boards, King scored 14, and Brandon Vincent and Thomas Hughes added 10 points apiece.

"It was real tough, physically and emotionally," said Bird. "Both teams had to come in and suck it up. Both had the same types of games last night."

Thursday's contest certainly wasn't a defensive one. SC converted 32-of-52 from the floor (62 percent), including 13-of-24 threes (54 percent); Okaloosa was 38-of-73 from the field (52 percent) and 10-of-26 on threes (38.5 percent).

Okaloosa had the game's biggest lead, going up by 11 in the first half. SC managed to trim that to 46-41 at halftime, and with 10:49 to go in the second half, a three-point play by Hoskin gave the Ocelots their first lead, 62-60.

It was close the rest of the game, the biggest lead by either side just five points — 78-73 SC following a McGlown triple with 3:48 to go.

The Ocelots trailed 82-79 with 1:19 remaining in regulation. Bird's three with :35 to go knotted it at 82-all and eventually forced OT.

"We showed a lot of character and a lot of guts," said Okaloosa coach Bruce Stewart. "We had three (close) games in three nights."

"This was a hard game to approach — we had to readjust our goals. We want to get 30 wins and finish fifth in the country."

As for SC, Stewart had nothing but praise. "They're very talented," he said. "Hoskin is as good an inside player as we've played, 14 (Bird) is one of the best pure shooters we've faced, and they're very athletic at the other spots."

Statistically, the teams were even — except in offensive rebounding. Okaloosa had a 15-8 advantage.

day's game opposite Penn Valley (Mo.) CC in a battle to finish in the top five.

South Suburban finished its season at 20-11.

The Ocelots built a 33-24 lead by halftime, but South Suburban narrowed the gap to 55-54 with just 2:37 to play.

SC got back on track, however, stretching its advantage to 62-56 with 1:24 to go. Rachel Eley took over from there for the Ocelots, scoring five-straight points to clinch the victory.

Eley finished with 11 points, five rebounds, four assists and six steals.

Shafawnda Smelley led SC with 19 points (5-of-6 on three-pointers). Angelica Blakely had a superb game, totaling 17 points, 10 boards and six steals, while Devin Francois and Ra'Sheida Edwards scored eight points apiece, Francois also grabbing 13 rebounds and making six steals. Edwards had three steals.

Suburban got 26 points from Lennetta Bentley and 17 points and 10 rebounds from Amanda Rawson.

The Ocelot defense forced 35 Suburban turnovers and 20-of-56 shooting from the floor (35.7 percent). SC had 26 turnovers and converted 24-of-64 shots (37.5 percent).

Musical mission: Christian college building program

When Kimberly Swan was appointed coordinator of the music department at William Tyndale College in August, she never dreamed the job would require 50 hours a week. But she's not complaining. Just the opposite. Her enthusiasm and excitement grows stronger every day.

"We're trying to re-establish the music department," said Swan, a Westland resident who grew up in Livonia. "Twenty years ago there was a strong department with two choirs and a community band. You have to work at it all the time. You have to go out and recruit students. I've been mailing out information, calling and going directly to Christian schools in the area to tell students about our music department."

Building a program

So far, 22 music majors have chosen the small Christian liberal arts college (formerly known as Detroit Bible College) in Farmington Hills because of its one-on-one attention to students. William Tyndale offers bachelor degrees in music, performance, church music, and music/ youth studies. It also offers evening classes to accommodate working adult schedules.

"I know all of the music students by name," said Swan, who teaches voice at the college. "I get to talk to them about their goals, dreams and sometimes their homes."

It's apparent that home and family are important to Swan, and William Tyndale College provides a little of each. Swan shares office space with her father, Jerry Smith, chairman of the music department. Her mother, Sharon Smith, was hired to teach piano last Christmas when the instructor accepted another job.

Her mother, Sharon Smith, was hired to teach piano last Christmas when the instructor accepted another job.

Program

On Saturday, March 31 Jerry, Sharon, Kimberly and her husband, Jeffrey, a tenor, will sing sacred music with the college's students and faculty at Grace Chapel in Farmington Hills. The program of classical, pop, jazz and traditional music will also feature the Tyndale College Choir, Tyndale Artists Ensemble, and the Praise and Worship Ensemble.

Paul Bechler leads the Tyndale College Choir, Smith the Tyndale Artists Ensemble which is composed of faculty, alumni and semi-professional choir members from area churches. The Praise and Worship Ensemble leads chapel services once a week at the college.

Swan is hoping to fill all 400 seats. The concert begins with "Anthem of Spring."

"It's musically difficult but musically satisfying," said Swan. "It's all about creation - how everything starts to wake up."

Sounds like an anthem for the music department if Kimberly and her dad have anything to say about it. Both believe the college's music department will become stronger with an increase in music student enrollment. To make the program more attractive, Swan wants to send the choir on a tour to Chicago or Indiana next year. She's already writing grants to get the endeavor and the group off the ground.

"It helps the choir grow if you have a tour," said Swan. "We have a long way to go but a lot of good things have already happened like being able to purchase a sound system you can travel with."

And spreading the word in song won't hurt either. In February, the college's choral groups joined students from Walled Lake High School and the Hartford Memorial Baptist Choir to present a concert in honor of Black History Month.

Roots: Ronald K. Brown's dance troupe Evidence uses a blend of African and modern dance to tell stories about the black experience.

Inspirational Journey

Contemporary choreographer draws on history

Ronald K. Brown makes no apologies for the intensity of his work. Dances focusing on slavery, death, and the struggles of women of African descent, allow him to tell the stories of his people.

Using a blend of African and modern styles, the Brooklyn-born choreographer creates thought-provoking, high energy pieces brought to life by his young dance troupe Evidence. Brown, who founded the New York-based dance company in 1985, is hardly an overnight sensation but his work is beginning to earn him a reputation as an up-and-coming choreographer.

Celebrated groups in the dance world think his work has something to say, too. In 1999, the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater commissioned him to create "Grace," a dance capturing all the fervor of a spiritual journey.

On Saturday, March 31, audiences in this area will have their first opportunity to see Ronald K. Brown/Evidence as part of the University Musical Society series in Ann Arbor. It promises to be a moving experience.

Food for thought

"I like going to theater to receive a gift that was on the filmmaker's or playwright's mind," said Brown. "Entertainment is nice but I live to receive a piece of the creator's imagination and heart. It feeds me to see what people are creating."

Observation and research are two essential ingredients in the Brown process of creating dance. Brown didn't begin choreographing "Incidents," one of three works on the program at the Power Center for the Performing Arts, until he read Linda Brent's story about the life of a slave girl.

He also does a lot of "looking at history" and listens to music. "Incidents" is set to traditional spirituals by the Staple Singers and a young Aretha Franklin, and contemporary music, including traditional Nigerian instrumentation, by Wunmi Olaiya.

"Technology is moving so fast," said Brown. "Sometimes it's all about what's new with little consideration of where we come from. Knowledge and power comes from history and legacy. Even though my work is contemporary, it's important to show what's come before."

"High Life" builds on images of the first section - "Bid Em In." The work likens the journey of ex-slaves from the rural South to the urban North with the exodus of young African people from villages to the cities. It is set to music by Nigerian

Dignity and perseverance

"It's a piece about migration performed in an auctioneer's voice," said Brown. "The dance calls to mind people on the slave block. What did people carry with them through the migration? A sense of self-determination, dignity and perseverance is what people were holding onto. It goes through different time periods and draws a parallel with the hybrid cultural development in West Africa in the 1970s when those countries got their liberation. It was a similar search for a better life. That's where the term "High Life" comes from. The music comes out of Africa in the 1950s. You can hear the similarity in the music coming from Africa with the music James Brown was playing."

EXHIBIT

Artists take time to share their creativity with children

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Sherry Eid stands in front of "Dancing Wolf" talking about colored pencil and showing a photograph of the American Indian from which she created the work.

It's apparent by the looks on their faces that the drawing is not exactly what third-graders from Livonia's Cass Elementary were expecting to see during their tour of the exhibit. But that's part of the fun for Eid and three members of the Artifacts Art Club. Every year for the last eight, Eid and club members have led children on tours of their spring exhibit as a way of introducing them to original art.

Eid personally makes sure the children at Cass learn about drawing, painting and sculpture throughout the school year. Once a month she takes copies of art into the classroom as part of the Masterworks program in Livonia Public Schools.

"With Masterworks they only see the prints but this way they can meet the artist," said Eid. "It's a thrill. The kids coming up and asking for your autograph, and afterward reading thank-you notes that start Dear Artist. They're honest about which ones they like and why."

Carrying tote boards, the classes of Helene Uhlmann and John Colby carefully look at each work while listening to the artists talk about the materials and process used in its creation. Afterward, students meander through the exhibit and cast votes for their favorites. A small group of girls begins to congregate before a grouping of works featuring cats. Some take the opportunity to sit on the floor and draw.

"It's a chance for students to look at different kinds of art," said Uhlmann. "The part we like is some of the artists are here to talk about their inspiration. Another benefit is that many times children will come back with their parents so they look too. They don't always realize there is an art exhibit."

Uhlmann proudly displays her own exhibit of art works created by students before viewing the exhibit. In preparation for the tour, the third-graders created art based on titles of work in the Artifacts show. Kendell

"We offer a $3,000 scholarship to any freshman who wants to audition, is talented in voice, piano, saxophone or another instrument, and has a 3.0 grade average," said Swan. "I like to think of us as the school that can help those than can't afford the big schools."

Smaller doesn't mean inferior in the case of the music department at William Tyndale College. By singing in concerts like the one today in Canton, Swan helps her students learn about all aspects of a professional career.

Jerry Smith brings plenty of music education experience to his position. His background includes 27 years as choir director at Bentley High School in Livonia, 27 years as director of music ministry at Ward Presbyterian, and 12 years teaching music at William Tyndale College. He was recently named director of music and worship at First Presbyterian in Plymouth.

Most important, Smith is the college's biggest cheerleader. Smith is used to starting from scratch. In 1986, he founded the Creative and Performing Arts Program based at Churchill High School in Livonia.

"When I first came to William Tyndale 12 years ago, the department was stable and occupied an entire wing. Then the full-time faculty was dismissed and nearly phased out. It was brought back with minimal funding about seven years ago," said Smith.

"You need a music department especially in a Christian college. We receive calls every day for people to play for churches. The churches are begging for organists and guitarists. Now we need to build the department up by seeking out more students."

In order to make that happen, Smith has taken lessons from an unlikely source.

"Sports can't survive at any level without recruiting. I watch to see how they recruit. You get a star like U of M did with Charles Woodson and the enrollment grows. We need to find the numbers and the stars to build the program."

Chilkiewicz's electric pink sky is every bit as vibrant as Esther Franz's strawberry and blue sky on exhibit at city hall. Kelsey Shore, and many of the students were way off, however, when creating their version of "Dancing Wolf." Naturally, Shore's wolves dance across the landscape.

"I thought it was a wolf dancing, too," said Kara Cetnar. She and Gina Pearson seemed especially fascinated with Eid's colored pencil drawing of a cat taking a sun bath and Ruth Shaw's "Seen Through a Mouse Hole."

"It's very interesting," said Pearson. I like it because I like cats."

Drawn to animals

While Thomas Cullen was taken with Fred Baker's "Red

Tailed Hawk' and "Head of a Hawk" because of an interest in animals and birds, he was here to learn. Cullen shares a love of drawing with the artists whose works are on exhibit. Cullen took his first class at Art Store & More in Livonia six months ago.

"I found out there's computer art," said Cullen.

Renee Boudreau likes art as well and also takes classes at Art Store & More. But not all children have the same opportunity.

"I think it's good for the kids to have that exposure to the culture out there," said Kathy Boudreau, Renee's mother. "Maybe some kids will find they like art."

Mom Linda Macinkowicz couldn't agree more.

"It's important that they be exposed to art and see all the different things you can do, that you can do things other than crayon."

That is exactly the conclusion Lauren Myres came to about art. "I learned that they don't use all crayon and marker but pastel," said Myres, "and sometimes they do pencil sketches."

Seeing Pegg Gray's pastel drawing of an elephant, Delphine Rusaki's vibrant watercolor of yellow and orange tulips, Roland Franz's electric cars parked on "Bourbon Street" and Nancy Hurd's young girl caught in a moment of intense study is sure to inspire these young students to find out more about art and that's exactly what Eid had in mind when she came up with the idea for the tour.

Watching reactions

"It's fascinating to watch their reactions," said Gray who led the tours along with Eid, Ruth Shaw and Lorelei Christy.

Shaw brought her camera to capture the responses and possibly focus on them in a future painting.

"There's always a boy bored by the whole thing," said Shaw, "but last year I got a commission from a 10-year-old girl who wanted a painting of a horse."

"It's just a delight," added Christy. "They're curious and ask good questions. It's wonderful to see young people interested in the arts. If they're not exposed to these things they just won't know."

And Eid isn't about to let that happen.

was planted in Brown during a visit to a Jacob Lawrence exhibit in 1996.

"I spent hours at the museum looking at the migration series - the images of the people coming to the city with their rural background encountering the new culture and their need to be outside," said Brown. "This stoop culture develops."

The Black experience runs like a silken thread through all of Brown's pieces including "Upside Down" from "Destiny," a 1998 piece he co-choreographed with Rokiya Kone from the Ivory Coast. Brown's many trips to West Africa taught him about traditional dance and its language of movement.

Brown's exposure to a variety of styles over the years helped develop his own voice. From his participation in the Police Athletic League's summer dance programs and performing in the ballet "Swan Lake" in high school to working as a member of the Mary Anthony Dance Company for two years, Brown took what he needed and invented the rest. Today, he uses all of it to mold the eight dancers in his company. All have training and experience with a variety of styles ranging from West African to ballet and modern.

"It's contemporary African dance, a fusion of different techniques," said Brown. "We use a lot of energy. I'm interested in using dance as a mode of expression. I try to share stories. I have this belief that dance is a narrative or contemporary ritual that the dancers go through and a journey the audience can witness."

'They're quite an extraordinary group of dancers. It's a fusion of styles and colorful. It's exciting for the UMS series because it brings in world dance.'

Peter Sparling

Dance professor/choreographer

World dance

Peter Sparling finds the "world" aspect of Brown's choreography particularly exciting. He's seen the young troupe perform and admires Brown's style. Sparling performed with the Martha Graham Dance Company for many years before becoming an accomplished choreographer in his own right. His company, Peter Sparling Dance, recently performed a concert presented by Canton Project Arts.

A professor of dance at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, Sparling is especially looking forward to the master class Brown will give at his Dance Gallery Studio in Ann Arbor. It is one of three classes in which Brown will help dancers to increase their physical range and work on phrasing as a way of expression to free up the spirit. The classes are open to the public for observation and participation.

"They're quite an extraordinary group of dancers," said Sparling. "It's a fusion of styles and colorful. It's exciting for the UMS series because it brings in world dance."

It's spring, and time to fall in love. Well, if there's nobody in the picture, you can spend a lovely evening laughing and watching other people fall in and out of love in the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford's production of "The Fantasticks."

"I love what it's about. I love what it has to say, and the style of the play," said director Rob Papineau of Livonia. "It's based on an ancient Roman comedy and the premise that kids will do what you tell them not to do."

Two best friends, next door neighbors who are single parents, fake a feud because they want their children to marry.

"I love this crazy story," said Papineau. "All parents know their children behave this way. So the parents use reverse psychology to bring the kids together, and it works."

"But then the parents need another scheme to end their bogus fight. The answer is an even crazier plot involving the mysterious El Gallo, Shakespearean actors and a pretend kidnapping."

The show is full of familiar songs such as "Try to Remember," and the hilarious "Plant a Radish," which compares raising kids to raising vegetables.

"Veggies are more reliable," said Misha Dionne of Livonia who plays the mother. "A garden produces exactly what you plant, but your little future president might grow up to be a circus clown."

Act 2 gets interesting. "That's when the two kids grow up," said

■ The show is full of familiar songs such as 'Try to Remember,' and the hilarious 'Plant a Radish,' which compares raising kids to raising vegetables.

Maggie Keenan-Bolger who plays Louisa, the young girl in love. "That's when the two kids grow up. They have a fight and go off to experience some 'life,' but life is tough and they get their hearts broken a little. That's when they learn to appreciate each other, and come back home."

The curtain went up Friday, March 23, on the production, and Papineau was excited.

"It's terrific, everyone is having fun, and working together," he said.

Cast

The cast also includes Craig Broombaugh of Redford as Matt, Louisa's love, and Ken Wood of Canton as a parent. Mimes are portrayed by Renee Hermiz (Troy), Ethan Bobee (Garden City), and Matt Ripper (Westland).

Redford residents Matt Ripper and Aaron McCurry are cast as the Shakespearians, and Steve Morgan as the dashing El Gallo.

Written by Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones, "The Fantasticks" premiered at the Sullivan Street Playhouse on May 3, 1960. It has since become one of the longest-running musicals in the world, and has played in over 5,000 cities in the U.S. and 80 foreign countries.

Young love: Craig Broombaugh stars as Matt, and Maggie Keenan-Bolger as Louisa in "The Fantasticks."

Consumer troubles – try the attorney general

I don't know if you recall an earlier column I wrote about a damaged couch I received, my efforts to get it repaired and subsequent phone call to the Michigan Attorney General Consumer Protection Division.

The day of delivery, the couch arrived with a small tear. For over a year, I worked with the retailer to have it repaired. The problem was the company, for whatever reason, kept sending the wrong replacement fabric. Of course, I didn't know whether the fabric was right or not until the company repair technician showed up at my place. And, yes, I had to hole up in my apartment for half a day and wait for the technician to arrive during our scheduled "window of time" appointment.

Eventually, I called the Consumer Protection Division for advice. And since my experience over the phone was so encouraging – not to mention pleasant – I wrote a column to encourage other consumers to seek out their help when faced with a problem.

Once again, I am moved to promote the department and encourage others to take advantage of their services.

Positive result

I followed the advice given to me by a Consumer Division representative: I filed an official complaint.

Within a few weeks, I received a letter from the Attorney General acknowledging my complaint.

That's good, I thought, but didn't put much stock in the process. I figured the letter was more perfunctory than anything, like when you call your local legislator with a gripe and an aide calls back promising to "look into it and get back to you."

Naturally, I forgot about my complaint and the letter. If nothing panned out, I'd badger the retailer or file in Small Claims Court.

Then I received a call from the headquarters of the company that sold me the couch. The man gave me his name, said he had received the complaint I filed with the Attorney General and reviewed it. And, "frankly," he said, "this is very embarrassing."

"Okay," I replied not knowing what else to say.

"So, we're willing to do whatever you want here. We can try and get the repair done properly. We can get you an entirely new replacement couch, if you want. We'd be happy to have you pick out another sofa. Or, we're willing to issue you a full refund and pick up the couch."

"Okay," I said, again words failing me.

"Of course, we would like to retain you as a customer, but the choice is yours."

"Well, all right, thank you," I said, adding, "I really did try to get the couch repaired."

I guess I was feeling a little guilty at this point, although wrongly so. "Well, can I think about it and call you back? It's a busy day for me."

"Absolutely," he said, adding, "And those are just a few options. You may have an idea we haven't discussed, so let me know."

Well, well, much better, I thought. Then came the shock. How could this be true? Total consumer satisfaction.

At best, I had figured the resolution would be a lesser one, something in between, like a discount on the sofa. Worse case scenario, well, you know what I thought.

Isn't it sad that we, myself included, are so cynical about the government's ability to help and protect us?

All I can say is, if you're experiencing a similar problem, file a complaint. Sure, the paper work is no party, but it may be well worth the effort.

And, no matter what the result, you'll feel a whole lot better for trying.

To contact the Michigan Attorney General Consumer Protection Division, call (517) 373-1140 or visit their web site at www.ag.state.mi.us. Complaint forms can be downloaded from the site or filed directly on-line by going to the "File a Complaint" link on the left side of the home page.

Wraparound

Fashion gets wrapped up in design trend

Get wrapped: Jones New York white cotton stretch wrap shirt (clockwise, from top left), $74 at area department stores; Banana Republic tied leather trench coat wraps high on the waist, $450 at Banana Republic stores; MaxMara black leather wrap waist jacket, $1,885 at MaxMara, the Somerset Collection in Troy; Anne Klein side-tie skirt, $46, for wrapping over matching tank suit, $80, both in gold tone at Jacobson's stores; Chanel wrap style sunglasses, about $225 at Shades Optical in Birmingham; and Elsa Peretti sterling silver scarf to wrap the neckline, $1,350 at Tiffany & Co.

If it wraps, you can't go wrong as far as fashion is concerned.

That's so true that Mary Jo Scofes, vice president divisional merchandise manager – designer for Jacobson's Stores, rates a basic wrap blouse in the her top five wardrobe pieces for the spring fashion season. "The wrap theme, overall, is very popular, she said.

And, it's everywhere. The design trend has influenced not just blouses and skirts but jackets, trench coats, jewelry, sunglasses, swim wear and even foot wear.

To boot, the belt – a quintessential wrap – is being touted as today's must-have accessory.

Fashion historian talks about Hollywood style

Sunday's Oscars are sure to bring television viewers from across the country closer to the glamour of Hollywood.

But a more in-depth look at the fascinating world of movie star style and the relationship between film and fashion will be taken next week at Oakland Hills Country Club in Bloomfield Hills.

Courtesy of Project Hope and Saks Fifth Avenue, author and fashion historian Sandy Schreier will present Hollywood Dressed and Undressed.

The event, which includes a reception, luncheon and book signing, is slated Thursday, March 29, and tickets are still available.

Schreier, who lives in Southfield, is the world's foremost private collector of 20th century couture, American fashion and Hollywood costuming.

She's also a fashion insider with ties to the entertainment industry. In the 1960s, for instance, she created costumes for The Supremes. She also designed accessories for Yves Saint Laurent's first collection for show in the United States.

As the author of the 1998 book Hollywood Dressed and Undressed: A Century of Cinema Style, Schreier lectures throughout the country and regularly shares her experiences in the media. She's been a guest on Oprah and talked about fashion and cinema on the American Movie Classics network.

In addition to appearing in numerous publications, including Vogue, People and In Style, she has curated exhibitions of costume history at several museums.

Schreier's latest book Hollywood Gets Married is slated for release soon.

TRAVEL

Spend some time in paradise – St. Lucia

BY SANDIE PARROTT
SPECIAL WRITER

It's not just the twin mountain peaks, thousands of acres of lush rain forest teeming with wild orchids, ferns and rare birds such as the "jacquot" (St. Lucian Parrot) that make the island of St. Lucia a nature lover's paradise.

Let's not forget the sulfur springs, mineral rich waterfalls, beaches, hiking trails, botanical gardens and plenty of warm waters for snorkeling and diving.

Most of the resorts and nicer beaches are on the northwest side of the island. And you'll get a panoramic view of when you arrive at Hewanorra Airport at the southern tip of the island and travel toward Castries. The route can take an eastern or western approach around the rain forest and higher elevations. While the western route is more scenic, it's a bit slower. Roads are not clearly marked, but if you watch a map for village names, you will be fine.

The Drive-in

St. Lucia claims to be the only place where you can drive into a volcano. Well, you don't really drive in, but you are able to park within a few hundred feet. Your nose will tell you that you are getting close to the volcano because of the pungent scent of sulfur springs.

There is an interesting half-hour tour included in the admission price. A guide will take a small group of people on a hike around the bubbling, gurgling steaming mass and explain the workings of the volcano. It is pretty interesting if you can stand the smell.

Soufriere

This quaint fishing village settled by the French in 1746 is the oldest town in St. Lucia. The area is not as prosperous as it once was, but the 9,000 or so residents

WINDJAMMER LANDING

The Villa Beach Resort is sprinkled over 55 acres looking down upon Labrelotte Bay. We rented one of the many two bedroom villas strewn across the hillside. Some of the one bedroom and all of the 2, 3 and 4 bedroom Mediterranean style villas each have their own plunge pools.

The villas are equipped with tropical furnishings, multiple balconies and everything you will need except food. There is every amenity available at the resort including a pleasant wide beach, water sports, restaurants, special parties and even nannies and cooks. They also have special golf cart vehicles to take guests up and down the cobblestone paths. Several pricing options are available from an all-inclusive deluxe room to a villa with private plunge pool. Call (800) 743-9609 or check their Web site at www.windjammer-landing.com for booking or questions.

GROCERY SHOPPING

You will need to get supplies if you rent a villa or condo. Resort stores are terribly expensive, but very convenient. If you want better prices and a little adventure, go to the nearest local grocery store. It is a challenge to figure out what is available for meals without your usual brand names and favorites. Produce of all kinds such as mangoes, bananas, pineapples, passion fruit, coconuts and guavas are fresh, cheap and available — desired snack foods and sodas are not.

RENTING A CAR

If you think you will be driving to your hotel, make sure to reserve a car before you go on your trip. Cars can be in short supply if several airplane flights or cruises arrive at the same time. Don't worry if they are all gone. Just insist you reserved a car. The rental agency will take you to your hotel and deliver your car either later that day or usually the next day. If you need a car for an outing, make sure to reserve in advance — maybe even the previous day. Make sure you reserve a car that will carry all of your group's luggage. Most cars are quite small. Main roads are generally good, but secondary roads can have large potholes. Don't drive too fast — roads are winding and you never know what is around the next bend. Driving is European-style, so don't forget to drive on the left.

We were cautioned not to give money to the children. It is easy to hand a few children some quarters — it seems harmless enough, but unfortunately, we were told the children start skipping school to beg for quarters.

The locals, in front of their very tiny houses, serve drinks and food from coolers and hand-made grills. We were a bit suspicious of the food, but it looked interesting. We mostly drank beer or soft drinks from bottles.

The reason for bringing dollar bills or small change became obvious to us when we tried to buy a beer. We only had a five-

CULINARY ADVENTURES

BRUCE KONOWALOW

*A morel dilemma:
Go with a pro
to identify them*

Michigan and morels are heavenly words for those of us who salivate, knowing that the long-awaited harvest will begin soon.

This edible fungi, prized by mycologists (mushroom hunters) and foodies alike, is one of the primary pleasures of early spring.

In and around Boyne City, Mich., tight-lipped mushroom hunters traipse off to their secret spots in the woods, searching for this elusive and (when purchased in a store) costly culinary delight.

Nothing guaranteed

There are no guarantees where morels will grow consistently, but they seem to prefer undisturbed forest floors and areas that house large oak, elm and ash trees. Apple orchards, black cherry trees and areas subjected to forest fires can create the preferred environment, if the rainfall and the temperature are just right. It is this uncertainty that makes it incredibly

The prized black morel is usually found in the last two weeks of April and the first two weeks in May. Every Mother's Day weekend, Boyne City hosts the National Mushroom Hunting Championship. Contestants have 90 minutes to scour the woods and turn in the largest cache of morels.

By the end of May, they cannot be found.

In the Midwest, there is believed to be three varieties of morel - the yellow morel, the black morel, and the half-free morel. Black morels can be as small as 1/2-inch high to over 12 inches tall. Some consider the yellow morel the best tasting; they are sometimes referred to as gray morels. The half-free morel is very tasty, but more fragile than the others are. The half-free is sometimes confused with another spring mushroom called the verpa, which is somewhat poisonous. The basic rule of thumb in mushroom hunting is "if in doubt, throw it out."

Watch what you eat

A good rule to follow for morels is "Do not swallow if the centers' not hollow." If you slice a morel open, you will find there is no flesh in the inside, just the occasional insect or worm.

Both false and real morels contain a chemical that causes a violent reaction with alcohol. True morels may contain trace amounts; false morels contain larger doses. With that in mind, it is probably best to go out with somebody that has experience and knowledge before you take any unnecessary risks. Downing a couple of cold ones during your hot pursuit is probably a bad idea, if you intend on eating large quantities of your catch.

If you are not the outdoors type they can be purchased either in the fresh or dried state. It is not uncommon to pay more than $20 a pound for fresh morels, depending on the available supply. Dried morels are more readily available, however they may be as much as $90 a pound.

Both fresh and dry morels should be washed, as they can be sandy. Fresh morels often contain worms or insects.

The morels' earthy flavor makes them the tastiest of all mushrooms. Bruce Konowalow is the director of the Culinary Arts Department at Schoolcraft College and a Taste columnist. Konowalow is a former director of the New York Restaurant School in New York City.

FAMIE ON SURVIVING FAME

Chef's next project is promoting new cookbook

BY NICOLE STAFFORD
STAFF WRITER
nstafford@oe.homecomm.net

Detroit Chef Keith Famie lost 27 pounds as a Survivor II cast member. "From 170 to 143," he says, speaking on his cell phone on route to the Towne Center in Southfield. "There's the saying I lost my baby fat. I refer to it as losing chef fat. Unfortunately, my chef appetite has kicked back in."

Famie's hunger for media attention, well, just keeps kicking.

He has returned from the Australian Outback, but is still alive on the No. 1 CBS reality television show, which concludes May 3. Back home in West Bloomfield, Famie has a cookbook - and, hey, who knows what else fame, and maybe fortune, will bring - to tout.

Just last Wednesday, for example, Famie was spotted doing lunch at Mei Ling, a vegetarian Chinese restaurant in West Bloomfield. Along for the tofu, was Famie's Survivor comrade Michael Skupin of White Lake Township and two mystery men, one of whom was feverishly pitching clothing lines and speaking engagements to the two Survivors. Suffice to say cell phones were in abundance.

In any case, retreat into anonymity simply is not on the plate for this chef. Soggy rice is no foil for Famie.

And while he's open to new opportunities, he plans to continue taping his local cooking show for WDIV Channel 4.

"I would, no question, like to see an opportunity to do something in the national arena, but I'm not going to pick up and go to Hollywood. This is where I live and this is where my children live."

To promote the cookbook, Famie's Adventures in Cooking ($29.95 Sleeping Bear Press), a launch party, complete with celebrity appearances, is slated April 6 at The Marriott at Centerpoint hotel in Pontiac to benefit the Rainbow Connection.

Famie will help cook for the event's strolling dinner. And an auction which includes a chance to win dinner cooked by Famie, with Skupin as maitre d'. When the moment is ripe, another Survivor cast member, Maralyn Hershey, will join the event's entertainment and sing.

"Now, they're friends of mine," says Famie of the cast member appearances, which may include a few surprise ones.

Book signings, media interviews, publicity propositions all tied to Survivor. Isn't it a bit irritating to a chef coming out with his first cookbook?

"It's only natural," says Famie. Besides, it benefits his charity, The Rainbow Connection, his book and the publisher, Sleeping Bear Press. "There's no question that the book now has a newer and broader audience" says Famie.

Book party adventure

What: Book release party for Famie's Adventures in Cooking featuring strolling dinner prepared by Chef Keith Famie and the Marriott Parkway Grille's Chef Jerry Nottage, entertainment by Stewart Franke and drawing for two round-trip airline tickets to Sydney, Australia

Appearances: Chef Keith Famie and his Survivor television show comrades Michael Skupin and Maralyn Hershey

When: 6:30 p.m. Friday, April 6

Where: Marriott at Centerpoint, 3600 Centerpoint Parkway in Pontiac

Tickets: $75 per person or $125 per couple to benefit the Rainbow Connection, call (248) 338-7760

Back story

In fact, Famie's book was to be released in October after a contract with Sleeping Bear was signed the month before. Just weeks before the scheduled launch, Famie called the publisher and explained he had to leave town on business.

"We were stunned," recalls Beth Flintoft, publicist at Sleeping Bear. "We were like we can't really release a cookbook without the chef, so we called the printer and said 'don't print.'"

The following January, Flintoft was on business in Paris and in search of an American newspaper. "I walked by and said there's an English newspaper I can read." It was USA Today, which had done a front page story about the new Survivor cast.

Later, Famie called Sleeping Bear's president, Brian Lewis, to apologize and explain that he wasn't able to reveal he was headed to Australia to tape Survivor.

Q & A la Famie

"Do you know where the Towne Center is?" inquires Famie, breaking out of interview mode, still talking via cell phone. "It's made up of a couple of buildings, OK," he says. "So, I'm in the right place. Go ahead. Next question."

What's the first food he ate after Survivor? "I can't tell you that," he says. "I ate like a barbarian," he does say, emphasizing the word 'barbarian.'

"I can tell you I had a lunch meeting in Detroit soon after I got back. And I had two servings of bread pudding."

What about food cravings?

Please see FAMIE, D2

Book circuit: Chef Keith Famie also has been doing book signings to promote Famie's Adventures in Dining ($29.95 Sleeping Bear Press). At Borders Books & Music in downtown Birmingham, he signs one for Catherine Harris of Pleasant Ridge.

Going costal with wines from Mendocino

California touts its "coastal" wine regions. North of San Francisco, coastal, in the minds of many, means the larger Napa Valley and Sonoma County appellations. What about Mendocino County? It's the northernmost of California's coastal wine-growing regions and not that well known.

Recognized for its ruggedly beautiful land, the Mendocino area attracted pioneers such as the Pomo and Yuki Indians 5,000 years ago and back-to-the-land settlers in the last 30 years. Home to 30 wineries today, Mendocino County extends the youthful promise of bountiful opportunity that is both the myth and reality of the West.

Mendocino wineries range in size from small, hand-operated family cellars to large, high-tech facilities. The vineyards are equally varied with old, head-pruned varieties to those with modern trellis systems. A pioneering spirit is all pervasive and sensed in the wines of the area.

The years following California's 1850s Gold Rush witnessed the first planting of wine grape varieties. Immigrant farmers who failed as prospectors, turned to agriculture as a way of life in their new homeland. They knew to choose flat land for food crops and rugged hillsides for grapes. Prohibition killed early wine industry promise.

The 1960s wine boom inspired the revival and replanting of wine grapes. Through the 1970s and especially the 1980s, winegrowing expanded due principally to the efforts of Parducci Wine Cellars and Fetzer Vineyards. Their success inspired others to come to the region, especially since the cost of vineyard acreage is more reasonable than in Napa or Sonoma.

Today's focus

Attention in the region has turned to a refined focus on particular grape varieties and achieving distinctive wine styles that are different from other coastal growing areas.

Since chardonnay remains the number one consumer wine choice, even with the enthusiasm for red wines, we thought it would be interesting to learn whether Mendocino chardonnays had a defined thread, a distinction not common in chardonnay from other California wine regions.

A tasting revealed that the best Mendocino chardonnays showcased flavorful pineapple and tropical fruit, but came across leaner and more French Chablis-like, creating a good harmony with foods, especially seafood.

In this category, the 1998 Handley Estate $16, 1999 Bonterra Vineyards $15 and 1999 Greenwood Ridge Vineyards, Mendocino Ridge, DuPratt Vineyard $24 scored highest. Handley is the most Chablis-like while Bonterra and Greenwood Ridge sport a touch more oak, but not overdone.

The 1999 Husch La Ribera Vineyards $18 had nice pineapple and tropical fruit

- Pick of the pack: 1999 Morgan Pinot Noir, Monterey $22. Lovely wine and a very good value.
- Zinsations: 1997 Mazzocco Zinfandel, Dry Creek Valley $16 and 1998 Gundlach-Bundschu Morse Vineyard Zinfandel $18.
- Tired of too much oak in California chardonnay? Wines from the Chablis area of northern Burgundy in France offer some of the purest chardonnay flavors without oak. It's hard to beat these from Domaine Roger Seguinot: 1998 AOC Chablis $16 has richer mouthfeel than most AOC Chablis. 1998 Vieilles Vignes (64-year-old vines) $17 is richer and more generous than the AOC. 1999 Fourchaume $20 is deliciously fruity with citrus, lime, apple and some typical mineral notes.

"Some people craved things like peanut butter and jelly sandwiches," says Famie. "I'd be craving things like roast lobster or a poached salmon with a dill mustard sauce. My cravings got real creative."

Did being a chef help him get cast in Survivor?

"Oh sure. There's no question that it had something to do with it. What people do for a living, I'm sure, affects that."

What did he expect to gain from the experience?

"I thought of it as an extreme challenge. You're thrown in the middle of nowhere and you have to scrounge for food. I like that kind of living on the edge."

Suddenly, the cell connection dissolves and Famie has to call back. "I was in an elevator," he explains.

Unfortunately, the change in environment seems to have affected Famie's willingness to talk. His answers shorten. To many questions — what about the rice, for instance — he replies "I can't talk about that."

What about the uses of his luxury item, the chef's pan?

"I can't talk about that. I'd love to, but I can't," he says.

Seconds later. Another interruption.

"Nice to meet you," Famie's voice is directed to someone outside the wireless connection. Conceivably, there's a hand-shake, maybe even a giggling female in a Navy blue suit on her way for a coffee break.

"I'm back," says Famie. "Did you get the stuff about the book party?" he inquires, apparently bored with question-and-answer time and ponderous ideas like the synthesis of cooking and entertainment.

He does, however, say it's exciting. The Food Network and other media cooking forums — even his own local show on WDIV television — help elevate the industry while educating audiences about cooking and food. "I think that all of us — I'm talking for chefs as a group in general — feel excited, happy and fortunate. On the other hand, what we do is very entertaining. It's a form of entertainment."

accents, but an overt lemon tartness in the finish pushed it to an unbalanced acid side, even for enjoyment with fish.

With more obvious oak, but still not over the top, 1999 Fetzner Barrel Select $13 and 1998 Navarro Vineyards $14 were best. 1998 Jepson Estate Select $15 was simple and lacked a charm found in other wines. A slightly sweet finish in the 1999 Lolonis $18 was distracting and not well-designed for food.

The 1998 Parducci Vineyard Select $10 was a little thin, but hard to beat at the price. The 1999 Milone Family Winery Sanel Valley Vineyard $19 was coarse with an unpleasant finish.

Mendocino County's grape-growers claim leadership in practicing and promoting organic farming. Bonterra Vineyards is the unparalleled leader combining earth-friendly farming with top-notch winemaking. The flawed and oxidized character of the 1998 Frey Chardonnay $12 indicates that some wineries have a way to go in the organic arena.

Honey Lemon Tart has a tangy taste of spring

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A dessert with a tangy taste of spring, Honey Lemon Tart would be equally appropriate as part of a meal or as a snack with tea or coffee.

HONEY LEMON TART

- For the filling:
- 1 cup honey
 - 3 eggs
 - 1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
 - 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
 - 2 teaspoons freshly grated lemon peel
 - 3/4 teaspoon baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt

- For the crust:
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 cup vegetable shortening
 - 3 tablespoons cold water
 - 1 egg yolk
 - 1 tablespoon honey

To prepare the filling:
In medium bowl, whisk together honey, eggs, lemon juice, flour, lemon peel, baking powder and salt; set aside.

To prepare the crust:
Preheat oven to 350 F.

In small bowl, combine flour and salt. Using pastry blender or 2 forks, cut in shortening until mixture is crumbly. In separate bowl, whisk together water, egg yolk and honey. Add to flour, stirring until mixture forms a ball. On floured surface, roll out dough to 11-inch circle. Lay dough in a 10-inch tart pan; press dough firmly against bottom and sides of pan. Place pan on baking sheet.

Pour filling mixture carefully into tart pan. Bake at 350 F for 25 to 30 minutes or until filling is set. Cool on wire rack.

Makes 8 servings.

Add drama to meals with fat-free cooking method

BY DANA JACOBI
SPECIAL WRITER

Nothing does more to make you look like a culinary expert than cooking "en papillote," meaning food sealed in an envelope of baking parchment or aluminum foil.

This dramatic technique is a particularly healthful way to serve vegetables like winter squash, as well as fish and chicken. This virtually fat-free cooking method is simple enough to use often. In many instances, you can make the packets hours in advance and refrigerate them until baking time.

When you bring these ballooned packets with their elegantly folded edges to the table, and then slit them open, an enticing, aromatic cloud is released.

Their interior reveals colors heightened by the steam — a harbinger of deliciously concentrated, succulent flavors.

WINTER SQUASH AND RED PEPPER EN PAPILOTE

1 1/2 pounds delicata, acorn or butternut squash, or a combination of them
1 large red bell pepper, seeded and diced
1/4 pound shallots, peeled and sliced lengthwise
2 teaspoons chopped fresh rosemary or 1 tsp. dried
1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
1 teaspoon salt, or to taste
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper, or to taste
1 teaspoon extra virgin olive oil
4 teaspoons chopped pumpkin seeds

Preheat the oven to 425° F. Cut four 15-inch lengths of baking parchment or foil wrap. Fold each piece in half, crosswise, to make 12-by-7-1/2-inch rectangles. As if making a valentine, cut each piece into the shape of half a heart. Set them aside.

Cut squash in half lengthwise. Scoop out and discard seeds. Cut squash crosswise into 1-inch slices, then peel. Cut into 1-inch cubes. Place squash in a large bowl and add bell pepper, shallots, rosemary, vinegar, salt and pepper. Toss to coat vegetables evenly.

Place one-fourth of vegetables in center of each heart along one side of fold. Drizzle 1/4 teaspoon oil over each mound of vegetables. Sprinkle one teaspoon pumpkin seeds over each.

Fold parchment over so edges of both sides meet. Starting at top of the heart, at the center, fold about an inch of paper over twice and press firmly to seal. Repeat along entire edge. Twist pointy end to seal tight. Make four packets in all and place on cookie sheets, two to a pan.

Bake 25 minutes or until vegetables feel slightly soft when packet is pressed gently. Remove from oven and let packets sit 10 minutes before serving.

To serve, place each packet on a separate plate. Using a sharp knife, slit each open down the center and fold back paper.
(Take care, as the released steam is scalding hot.)

used for cooking en papillote, dating back to a time when foil wrap was not available.

Suitable substitute

Although foil is a suitable substitute, it doesn't puff up attractively when steam is released, as happens with the heavy paper. Baking parchment is now as easily available as foil, in many supermarkets and specialty stores.

To make packets the traditional way, cut the paper into a heart shape. You will quickly get the hang of rolling, folding and pressing edges along the curves, twisting the point into a tight seal.

Chefs often use foil, which can also be formed into the classic heart shape, or into a rectangle by folding in the two short ends and sealing together the two long edges. Rectangular packets take up less room in the oven, a good choice when doubling this recipe.

Fragrant herbs

Fresh herbs are often sprinkled over food cooked this way to add extra fragrance as well as flavor.

Balsamic vinegar contributes a bit of moisture to encourage steaming, and a few drops of olive oil add to and meld the flavors.

Go wild for morel mushroom stew

See related column by Bruce Konowalou on Taste front.

Try this recipe developed by Master Chef Dan Hugelier, who teaches restaurant operations and ala carte cooking for Schoolcraft College's Culinary Arts Department in Livonia.

Hugelier stresses the use of seasonal vegetables and adapts all of Schoolcraft's American Harvest Restaurant menus according to the season.

This recipe for a wild mushroom stew is an excellent appetizer when served in small puff pastry Vol-au-Vent or Bouché (both are different shaped puff pastry patty shells.) This stew would also make an excellent crepe filling. If you would like to try something a little different, mix this mixture into scrambled eggs. It makes a supreme brunch or light luncheon entrée.

MOREL WILD MUSHROOM STEW

- 3 pounds assorted wild mushrooms; use any variety or combination of chanterelle, morels, shiitake, and "lobster chicken" or "hen of the woods," sometimes available at Eastern Market
- 8 ounces shallots finely diced
- 2 each whole lemons juiced
- 8 ounces whole butter, melted

- 8 ounces Madeira wine
- 2 ounces Armagnac
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 2 tablespoons fresh parsley, minced
- Salt, pepper, and nutmeg to taste

Cook mushrooms until brown in butter, adding more butter if necessary. Add shallots, lemon juice and seasonings, sauté briefly.

Add the Madeira, Armagnac and cream. Reduce the sauce until it coats the mushrooms. Add the fresh parsley. Taste and adjust the seasonings.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Tai Chi and balance

St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia will offer a series of six tai chi martial art classes 9:30-10:30 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday beginning April 3 in the hospital's auditorium. Tai chi helps improve balance, body awareness, strength, visual control, breathing, and memory. The classes include meditation, repetitive form sequences and introduction of the Yang short form.

There is a $10 registration fee, and participants are asked to pre-register by calling (734) 655-8940.

Healing laughter

What better way to heal a broken heart than by spending an evening laughing? Northville-based New Hope Center for Grief Support presents "Laughing on the Outside" 4:30-9 p.m. Sunday, April 1, at Joey's Comedy Club, 36071 Plymouth Road, Livonia.

The cost is $50 ($24 is tax-deductible) and includes a buffet dinner, entertainment and live and silent auctions. Mark Hayes from Channel 7 will be the celebrity MC. All proceeds benefit the New Hope Center, which offers free, Christian-based grief-support groups and services to adults, children and teens in Southeastern Michigan.

RSVP by March 26 by calling (734) 261-0555. Make checks payable to New Hope Center and mail to 113 E. Dunlap, Northville, MI 48167. Charge by phone at (248) 348-0115.

Healthy seniors

Senior Health Services of Saint Joseph Mercy Health System of Ann Arbor will sponsor a lecture for seniors 1:30-2:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 4, at Canton Summit on the Park, 46000 Summit Parkway off Canton Center Road, Canton.

The event will feature Dr. Bharati Srivastava and Debra Longo, who will present "Staying Healthy as You Age." They will discuss the aches and pains, feelings of sadness, loneliness and worthlessness, and the onset of forgetfulness that accompany aging. They will explore what is normal versus a potential problem.

Light refreshments will be served. The event is free but reservations are required. To register or for more information, call (734) 397-5444.

Dementia conference

Eastern Michigan University's Alzheimer's Education Program presents the sixth annual Edna Gates conference on Dementia Care April 3-5 at the Novi Hilton, 21111 Haggerty, Novi.

The conference is geared to health professionals and persons caring for family members. Topics include:

- Listening to the voices of younger people with dementia.
- Recognizing the creative potential of people with dementia.
- Helping families understand their relative's intimacy needs.
- Helping families accept help.
- The decision to move to residential care.

The cost is $275 for the three-day session; $190 for two days; $120 for one day; $50 a day for students. For reservations, call Lisa Gray at (734) 487-8578.

Health fair

American House Northville will sponsor a free health fair 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, March 28, at its senior living residences, 42000 Seven Mile, Northville, one-fourth mile west of Haggerty.

The health fair will offer screenings for blood pressure and glucose, as well as hearing, vision and bone density testing. Local health-care professionals and representatives from the Arthritis Foundation and the Alzheimer's Association will be on hand to share information and referrals.

National Poison Prevention Week

Unintentional poisonings from medicines and household chemicals kill about 30 children each year

Each year, unintentional poisonings from medicines and household chemicals kill about 30 children and prompt more than 1 million calls to the nation's poison control centers. The 40th observance of National Poison Prevention Week aims to help prevent those childhood poisonings by reminding people to check their homes now.

"Most homes are filled with potentially poisonous products, including laundry detergents, paints, thinners, insecticides, plant food and bathroom cleaners. While these products help maintain our homes and lifestyles, they can sicken or even kill individuals who take them internally," said Tom Kiurski, a firefighter and paramedic with the Livonia Fire Department.

The three most important safety messages to prevent poisonings are:

- Use child-resistant packaging because it saves lives;
- Keep medicines and household chemicals locked up out of reach and out of sight of young children because some children can open child-resistant packaging; and
- Keep the poison control center number next to your telephone and call immediately if a poisoning occurs.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission requires child-resistant packaging for 28 categories of medicines and household chemicals and is considering such packaging for a group of chemicals known as hydrocarbons.

"Child resistant packaging saves lives," said CPSC Executive Director Pamela Gilbert. "For aspirin and oral prescription medicine, special packaging has saved the lives of over 900 children since the early 1970s."

National Poison Prevention Week is organized each year by the Poison Prevention Week Council, a coalition of national organizations working to prevent poisonings. For 40 years, National Poison Prevention Week has emphasized the responsibility of parents, grandparents, and other caregivers in preventing poisonings.

"Children are curious, and they act fast. So do poisons. Keep chemicals and medicines locked up out of reach and out of sight. Poisonings can, and ■ 'Children are curious, and they act fast. So do poisons.'

—Poison Prevention Week Council must be prevented," said William W. Bradley, chairman of the Poison Prevention Week Council.

Not child-proof

Child-resistant packaging is not child-proof. If a young child swallows a medicine or chemical, parents must call the poison control center immediately. Dr. Alan Woolf, president of the American Association of Poison Control Centers, said, "By treating poisoning in the home instead of the emergency room, poison centers save the United States $350 million annually."

The "Poison Control Center Enhancement and Awareness Act" will provide a stable source of federal tax money for poison centers and make them more accessible to the entire nation. The money will support poison center programs throughout the United States.

At a news conference in Washington, D.C. marking the beginning of National Poison Prevention Week, three-year-old Stevie Carrico and his parents, Debbie and Steve Carrico, told the story of his poisoning. Stevie swallowed some cough and cold medicine. His parents called the poison center, which recommended that they give him syrup of ipecac to make him vomit. He is fine today.

Safety tips:

Here are the basic poison prevention tips that every person should check during National Poison Prevention Week:

1. Use child-resistant packaging properly by closing the container securely after each use. Never transfer medicines from child-resistant bottles to open containers.
2. Keep all chemicals and medicines locked up and out of sight.
3. Call the poison center immediately in case of poisoning. Keep on hand a bottle of ipecac syrup, which causes vomiting. However, use it only under the direction of a physician or the Poison Control Center. Check the expiration date.

4. When products are in use, never let young children out of your sight, even if you must take them along when answering the phone or doorbell.

5. Keep items in original containers.

6. Leave the original labels on all products and read the label before using.

7. Do not put decorative lamps and candles that contain lamp oil where children can reach them. Lamp oil can be very toxic if ingested by young children.

8. Always leave the light on when giving or taking medicine. Check the dosage every time.

9. Avoid taking medicine in front of children. Refer to medicine as "medicine," not "candy."

10. Clean out the medicine cabinet periodically and safely dispose of unneeded and outdated medicines.

"If someone should become poisoned, call your local emergency number, which is 911, right away," said Kiurski. "Try to identify the poison that was taken, since treatment is based on the type of poison. Keep the container and any unused poison nearby for emergency medical technicians to take to the hospital for identification of ingredients and dosages."

To get a free packet of poison prevention publications, write to "Poison Prevention Packet," CPSC, Washington, DC 20207. The direct line to the Poison Control Center, located at Children's Hospital in Detroit, is (313) 745-5711, or (800) POISON 1.

County addresses pregnancy issue with classes

The Wayne County Health Department is holding a Teen Rally in the Wayne-Westland area on Friday, March 30 to announce a Teen Pregnancy Prevention Program (TP3) — an effort aimed at helping youngsters from becoming parents too soon.

"While teen pregnancy in the United States has declined in recent years, there are communities within Wayne County where teens are becoming pregnant at an alarming rate," said Patricia Soares, Wayne County Public Health director. "We are directing our teen pregnancy reduction efforts towards Wayne-Westland because teens giving birth in this district exceed state and county levels."

According to reports tabulated by county officials, live birth percentages range from 2.8 to 9.0 percent of teen mothers living in Wayne-Westland School District. State and Out-Wayne County teen-mother percentages are 3.1 to 2.5 respectively.

TP3 health education/youth development program will focus on male and female teens ages 13-19 years old who are at risk of experiencing a first or repeat birth. TP3 has established a teen hotline for youngsters to pre-register for classes listed below or call (866) 266-TEEN.

The teen rally will run from noon to 6 p.m. at the Wayne Recreation Center (4635 Howe Road) in Wayne. WDTJ 105.9 FM's two radio personalities "Spudd" and "Sunny" will be on hand to greet participants.

There will be two sessions from 3 p.m. and from 4-6 p.m.

and teens can attend either session. There will be games, prizes, giveaways, refreshments and an assortment of fun-filled activities. Identification is required for entry.

Classes for the "Reducing the Risk" TP3 program will be held at the Dorsey Center (32715 Dorsey) in Wayne from 3:30-6 p.m. Wednesdays from April 11-June 6 (except April 18) and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 12 - June 7 (except April 19).

Wayne County Administration Building (33030 Van Born) in Wayne. Wednesdays, April 11 - May 9 from 3:30-6 p.m. and Thursdays, April 12 - May 10 from 3:30-6 p.m.

Simmons Center (29150 Carlisle) in Inkster. Thursdays April 12 - June 7 from 3:30-6 p.m.

Inkster Recreation Center (2025 Middlebelt) in Inkster. Wednesdays from April 11 - June 6 from 3-5:30 p.m.

Salvation Army (2300 Venoy) in Westland every Wednesday from April 11 - June 6 from 3:30-6 p.m. and Thursdays April 12 - June 7 from 3:30-6 p.m.

ARTHRITIS CHECKUP

There are inspections you can make on your car that do not require you being a mechanic. You can check the tire pressure, the level of brake fluid, see if there is sufficient water in the batteries, observe for excessive buildup around the battery posts, and see that you have sufficient windshield wiper fluid and coolant in the appropriate reservoirs.

You can do the same to gauge the state of your arthritis health.

First, you can ask yourself these questions. Are you able to wash and dress in the morning, either immediately on getting up or within 10 minutes of arising? If you ache after exercise or extra activity, does the discomfort resolve within 24 hours of stopping the activity? If you feel fatigued in the afternoon, does a nap of 20 minutes restore your energy for the evening?

If your answer is yes to these questions, then likely your joints and muscles are reasonably sound.

Second, to confirm this conclusion, put your muscles and joints through the following tests. Raise your arms above your head, then grasp a pen tightly in each hand, extend your elbows, cross your legs, get up from a chair and walk across the room. If you can do these maneuvers without pain, hesitation, or restriction, and your answers to the questions was "yes," then you do not have a joint problem that requires medical attention.

If you differ from the above criteria, then there is reason to see your doctor for further evaluation.

New medical definition may make number of heart attack cases soar

One of the most compelling questions regarding the November 2000 hospitalization of Vice President Dick Cheney was whether or not he'd really had a heart attack.

"At first, the answer was 'no.' Then, a check of Cheney's enzyme levels showed he had, in fact, suffered his fourth heart attack.

"Why the confusion? It may have been due to the fact that, for the past several years, physicians have been working to pin down the best set of criteria for determining whether a patient has had a heart attack, also known as a myocardial infarction.

In September 2000, a new, widely accepted definition of myocardial infarction was introduced — a definition developed by a joint committee of the European Heart Society and the American College of Cardiology. The most significant change: The definition adds cardiac troponin, an enzyme found only in heart muscle tissue, to the measures already used to determine whether or not a myocardial infarction has occurred.

Researchers at the University of Michigan Health System, including Rajendra Mehta, M.D., clinical assistant professor of cardiology in the UMHS Cardiovascular Center, recently completed a study investigating the significance of this change in definition at UMHS. They found that the new definition will mean a significant increase in the number of myocardial infarction cases at U-M, and implies such an increase nationwide. The information was presented today at the 50th annual Scientific Session of the American College of Cardiology.

"In the United States, nearly a million heart attacks are diagnosed annually," Mehta says. "These data suggest that under the new criteria, 250,000 more will be diagnosed each year. These myocardial infarctions would have been missed by the old criteria." In addition to the far-reaching clinical implications, it's likely that the financial implications also will be great, although those remain unknown.

Criteria

There have been many proposed criteria for the diagnosis of myocardial infarction. Prior to 2000, the most commonly used were those published by the World Health Organization in 1979, which state that a myocardial infarction has occurred when two of the following three criteria are met: symptoms consistent with ischemia or decreased blood flow to the heart; changes in an electrocardiogram; and/or elevated enzymes, most commonly, one called CKMB.

But the new guidelines, published in 2000, require that elevated enzymes, which can include CKMB or troponin, be one of the criteria in addition to either ischemic symptoms or ECG changes.

"Thus, this is the first definition published that officially includes the use of troponin as a diagnostic marker," Mehta says.

Study

In the U-M study, all patients admitted to U-M hospitals from May 1, 1999, to Jan. 1, 2000, with suspected acute coronary syndrome were entered in a database. There were 493 patients included, all of whom had both CKMB and troponin tests performed.

CKMB is the creatine phosphokinase that is found in the heart muscle. Troponin is an enzyme found in muscle tissue. Specifically, cardiac troponin is found in myocardial cells in the heart. Both enzymes are vitally important in muscle contraction and many physicians routinely measure CKMB and troponin to evaluate ischemic heart disease.

"When a myocardial infarction occurs, heart muscle dies and in the process, the muscle leaks intracellular components such as CKMB and troponin into the surrounding tissues," says Mark Meier, M.D., UMHS resident physician and a study researcher.

Cardiac troponin is a more sensitive marker of myocardial damage because the troponins are more abundant in the myocardial cells than CKMB, says Meier. Cardiac troponin is also more specific because, unlike CKMB, it is not found in other tissues and is not present in the blood in normal individuals.

After identifying the 493 patients, the researchers looked more closely at the 305 patients whose enzyme levels were elevated. They were then divided into two groups. Group A contained patients with a positive CKMB test. Because all of these patients were admitted with symptoms, everyone in Group A would be diagnosed with myocardial infarction according to the World Health Organization criteria from 1979.

Group B patients had a normal CKMB level, but elevated troponin. Those patients would not have been diagnosed with myocardial infarction based on the World Health Organization criteria of 1979, but would be considered heart attack patients under the European Heart Society/American College of Cardiology standards of 2000. Because the troponin test is more sensitive and picks up even slight muscle damage, using troponin levels detects patients who have had a less severe heart attack.

Diagnostic increase

The results showed that, at UMHS, including troponin in the diagnostic criteria will result in a 26 percent increase in the number of myocardial infarctions diagnosed each year.

"It may also mean that the criteria may select for a clinically less complicated patient population," Meier says. "Patients in Group B had fewer in-hospital complications such as arrhythmias and heart failure. In addition, they needed fewer angioplasties and bypass surgeries." However, during six months of follow-up, their complication rate reached or exceeded that of patients diagnosed with the old criteria.

The results suggest that the clinical and financial implications are far-reaching, but as yet, unclear.

Aggressive treatment

By identifying patients with an increased cardiac troponin level as having had a heart attack, clinicians will be able to target aggressive, life-saving strategies that are known to improve both short- and long-term survival. So, although the cost of the blood test for troponin is added to patient care costs, this cost may be greatly offset by the number of lives saved due to preventive care.

"We already know that inadvertent missed diagnoses of heart attack may have grave consequences, including death," Mehta says. "Using troponin levels allows us to identify more high-risk patients and give them the care they need."

Physicians worldwide are becoming aware of the new definition and are incorporating it into their clinical practice, Mehta says. More studies are needed to determine the financial and specific clinical implications.

New technology offers early diagnosis of lesions

St. Mary Mercy Hospital now offers women increased accuracy in diagnosing breast lesions using state-of-the-art stereotactic technology.

In November, St. Mary Mercy purchased the latest breast stereotactic technology from community driven funding received at Hollywood Nights, the hospital's largest annual benefit.

"The technology takes excellent images and is very accurate," said Dr. Stephanie Falbo, a radiologist at the Marian Women's Center. "The procedure is a less invasive way to determine a diagnosis of whether the lesion is cancerous or not."

Stereotactic breast biopsy does not replace surgical biopsy, but offers early diagnosis of certain types of lesions. If the lesion is determined to be cancerous, then the patient can go on to have a formal surgical procedure (lumpectomy and axillary node dissection).

"The stereotactic method allows us to take small pictures in two planes to pinpoint exactly where the lesion is in the breast," said Dr. Falbo. "We use computer assistance to calculate exactly how deep the lesion is, and a vacuum device pulls a small amount of the breast tissue in to sample the area." Patients experience a small incision and no stitches.

Other benefits include: Minimal impact on healthy tissue; minimal scarring; minimal treatment following the procedure using only antibiotic ointment and a bandage; and minimal commitment of time.

"The response at St. Mary Mercy so far has been very positive," said Dr. Falbo. Nearly 500,000 stereotactic biopsies have been performed worldwide.

For more information on the stereotactic biopsy procedure or other breast care services, contact your physician or the Marian Women's Center, ext. 1100.

Two studies ease concerns about using aspirin for some heart attack patients

BY LINDSEY TANNER
AP MEDICAL WRITER

CHICAGO (AP) — To improve survival chances, heart attack patients can safely take aspirin with a blood pressure-lowering drug, although combining the treatments is only slightly more effective than using just one, Yale University researchers report.

Their findings address concerns that combining aspirin with ACE inhibitors might be ill-advised for some patients with heart trouble.

"We could find no evidence of an adverse interaction," Dr. Harlan M. Krumholz and colleagues, the new study's authors, said in Monday's Archives of Internal Medicine.

A related Krumholz study published in the same journal suggests that aspirin can safely be used to lower mortality in heart failure patients.

Both studies involved patients aged 65 and older. Aspirin, which improves blood flow through the arteries by making it less sticky and less likely to clot, often is recommended to help prevent and treat many heart problems. But its use has been somewhat controversial in patients with heart failure — a heart that can't pump efficiently — who don't have clot-related coronary artery disease.

ACE inhibitors, which lower blood pressure and help the heart pump more efficiently, often are recommended for such patients, said Dr. David A. Meyerson. Some doctors may be reluctant to prescribe aspirin for heart failure patients without clot-related disease partly due to concerns that it might hamper the effectiveness of ACE inhibitors, he said.

While it's unclear how aspirin improved survival chances in the heart failure patients, the results "suggest that one of our simplest medications continues to be one of the most valuable," Meyerson said. "The survival benefits appear significant."

Meyerson said the AHA will evaluate whether to add aspirin to treatment guidelines for older heart failure patients without clot-related cardiovascular disease.

Its existing guidelines for heart attack patients recommend combining aspirin and ACE inhibitors.

Screening critical to increase cure rate of colorectal cancer

SAN JOSE, Calif., March 5 /PRNewswire/ — March is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month, and colorectal cancer expert Mark Segall, M.D., a colorectal surgeon at Good Samaritan Hospital, is speaking out with advice for consumers on this potentially life-threatening disease.

"Colorectal cancer is the second leading cause of cancer deaths in the United States, with more than 56,000 people expected to die from this disease each year," Dr. Segall explains. "However, it is a preventable and very curable disease if caught early."

Because there are often no symptoms when it is first developing, colorectal cancer can only be caught early through regular screening. "The benefits of early detection and treatment are dramatic," Dr. Segall says. "The possibility of curing patients after symptoms develop is only 50 percent, but if colorectal cancer is found and treated at an early stage before symptoms develop, the opportunity to cure it is 80 percent or better."

"Most colon cancers start as non-cancerous growths called polyps. If we are able to find these polyps while they are still non-cancerous, we remove them and the cancer may be prevented. Major surgery can usually be avoided, as well," Dr. Segall adds.

Guidelines

The American Society of Colon and Rectal Surgeons (ASCRS), which is dedicated to advancing the treatment of patients with diseases affecting the colon, rectum and anus, offers the following colorectal cancer screening guidelines:

For people at average risk of getting colorectal cancer:

- A digital rectal examination and fecal occult blood test (to screen for hidden blood in the stool) are recommended annually beginning at age 40.
- Flexible sigmoidoscopy (to examine the lining of the lower colon and rectum) is recommended every five years at age 50 or older.

(Alternatively, a colonoscopy, which examines the lining of the entire colon and rectum, performed every 10 years or a barium enema, an X-ray of the colon, performed every five to 10 years is acceptable.)

- For people at increased risk (those with a personal or family history of colorectal polyps or cancer, those with a personal history of breast, uterine or ovarian cancer, and those with chronic ulcerative colitis or Crohn's disease): Above screenings at an earlier and more frequent rate are recommended.

Prevention Tips

In addition to getting screened regularly for colorectal cancer, people can lower their risk of getting the disease by:

- Avoiding foods that are high in fat; eating plenty of vegetables, fruits and other high-fiber foods; exercising regularly and maintaining a normal body weight; and not smoking and drinking alcohol only in moderation.

Tax advice available over the telephone

Millions of taxpayers will tackle their tax returns on their own this year, and cannot afford to get them wrong. But whether they're seasoned tax gurus or frightened first-timers, chances are they will have a few questions. The Internet has given rise to many tax preparation resources, helping people to decipher tough tax codes without resorting to hiring an outside preparer.

This year, a new resource called Keen is expected to help many people with their tax questions by offering instant advice from tax professionals over the telephone.

Procrastinators and non-procrastinators alike can speak with IRS Enrolled Agents, CPAs, and other tax professionals who charge a per-minute fee to give advice about whether it's better to take standard or itemized deductions, how to maximize business expense deductions, and many little-known tax breaks.

The advisors can be accessed through Keen's Web site,

'Procrastinators and non-procrastinators alike can speak with IRS Enrolled Agents, CPAs, and other tax professionals who charge a per-minute fee to give advice about whether it's better to take standard or itemized deductions, how to maximize business expense deductions ...'

http://www.keen.com, (or by telephone at 800-ASK-KEEN).

Choose

Taxpayers select the tax advisor who's right for them by perusing descriptions that include the advisor's fee, and how other Keen members have rated their experiences with this person in the past. Then Keen will automatically connect the two parties privately for a live phone call, with NO delay.

People accessing Keen by telephone simply follow voice prompts to choose an appropriate Speaker. Most advisors are available during non-business hours, and people do not have to wait on hold to speak with them.

The fees are relatively inexpensive (usually less than a couple of dollars per minute) and may be downright invaluable for those last-minute pressing tax questions. Keen also offers thousands of other advisors who provide advice on many other topics, from dieting and health tips to advice on jobs and relationships.

During March and April, Keen will host three conference calls with its tax partners (Financial Finesse and Tax Resources) so consumers can get general tax filing tips and advice.

Thanks to live, round-the-clock help that is now just a click away, lonely days poring over tax forms at the kitchen table may be a thing of the past.

A good environment attracts good employees

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER
hgallagher@oe.homecomm.net

The revolution in communications technology has created a similar revolution in office design.

The new emphasis is on teamwork and the days of small individual offices for workers and plush executive suites for bosses are fading fast.

"There's a cultural shift for companies," said Joseph Lozowski, president of University Business Interiors. "We want to encourage communication. There's also an economic benefit in getting more people into a smaller space. Years ago we had high panels trying to create offices. Management is now going into cubes. What people are trying to promote is more communication."

University Business Interiors in Farmington Hills provides office design ideas and furniture to make the best use of space and modern technology. In

Companies are redesigning to accommodate new technology, promote teamwork and communication and attract young workers who put an emphasis on a comfortable and efficient work environment. UBI helps companies find the right design for them and provides the furniture. On average the cost runs to about $5,000 to $6,000 per work station, a price that includes periphery design for common areas.

"We talk with managers and ask what are their goals and then we meet with the individuals and ask what are their goals," said Barbara Thomas, UBI's director of design. "We try to mesh those together."

Different work groups have different needs.

"Engineers don't like bright lights,"

Thomas said. "You'll notice that it's usually dark, so it looks like no one is working. You have to sit down and decide what is their intent and what is the best design for their intent."

Another consideration in designing an office is ergonomics. Desks, chairs and files have to be built to provide maximum comfort and flexibility for workers.

"We deal with the environment, social, ergonomic, all different things trying to coalesce it all together," said Lozowski.

With the advent of the computer and the necessity of working long hours at a desk, the chair has become a major concern. But not everyone can agree on what works and what doesn't.

"What's funny from a design end," Thomas said, "is that the management try to provide ergonomic solutions for their employees and a lot of workers

Long interview likely bodes well for job seeker

Q. How long does a typical interview last? One employer talked with me for almost two hours and it wasn't very productive.

A. Many interviews are unstructured and rambling. However, there does seem to be a rough correlation between the length of an interview and the odds of getting an offer. Long interviews often mean the employer is getting good vibrations. When you are winning the interpersonal battle, but the skill or experience match is less than perfect, the interviewer might be doing her best to see how you fit into the organization.

There are, of course, many exceptions. Some managers have too much time on their hands and are happy to conduct needlessly long interviews because it makes them look busy. Others just don't have any sense of time management or are thorough to the point of inefficiency.

Professional recruiters are likely to conduct relatively short, to-the-point meetings. An initial screener only needs to know where you've been, where you are going and what your parameters are. The decision to pass you up the food chain is usually based on how appropriate your skills and experiences are, your general likeability, and the presence or absence of any aberrations or weirdness. Once in a while, an outplacement candidate will talk about a "great" meeting with a recruiter that lasted three hours. I usually suggest finding another recruiter.

As a candidate, there is not much you can do to control the length of the interview. If an employer wants to drone on, leave it alone. Reflecting, rambling, philosophizing, exploring and speculating can often be considered buying signals. But count on most first interviews to last around 30 don't want to use them. It's a double-edged sword. We tell them don't spend money unless you have to ... talk to employees and find out what they will use."

Lozowski said the company is doing a project with Borg Warner in which workers are trying out different furniture over a yearlong period.

"Companies are worried about the legal ramifications if they don't offer something. They have the well being of employees at heart," Lozowski said.

Lozowski added many employees don't know the proper way to adjust their chairs. He demonstrated one chair that could be adjusted in numerous ways to accommodate any size person.

"Over years, research shows what we need is to keep moving. There is no perfect position if you stay in a position too long. Fidgeting is good," Lozowski said.

In the past, the plush executive office was a symbol that you had arrived. Now executives are being moved into cubicles.

"Some executives couldn't handle it," Lozowski said. "It takes time to adapt to working in that environment. What we're showing a lot of executives are bigger cubes in wood with conference rooms across the aisle. We understand the benefit of openness is not always appropriate."

The new office modules provide for more flexibility, mobility and adaptability than the older offices. Everything from desks, chairs and files to wall panels are now on easy to move casters. Mobile file cabinets and vertical storage units provide a lot of well-organized storage space in a small area. Open rooms can be rearranged to meet different work needs or to handle an expanding workforce in the same square footage.

Panel walls with multiple outlets and flexible power grids allow everyone to plug into the high-tech world.

"We're designing everything to take total use of technology," said Lozowski. "Two or three computers, more power and data lines, cell phones."

For some the open cube style seems too noisy. Lozowski said his company offers a "white noise" system that sounds like a quiet running air conditioner to muffle sound.

At UBI's office, which it shares with its business partner University Moving and Storage, the work area is also a showroom for various design options. UBI is a primary dealer for Haworth, one of the Big 3 in office design with Steelcase and Herman Miller, and Haworth offers a variety of attractive options to the sterile row after row of unattractive cubes lampooned in the Dilbert cartoons.

Thomas said that though most companies are cost conscious, they are still interested in "creating an environment, not just an office." Some companies have even installed foosball tables.

"It gets people up and exchanging ideas. Two engineers might be discussing an idea and a receptionist might offer some valuable input," Thomas said.

This interaction and team approach to work is both attractive to talented young workers and, in the long run, more economical for employers.

In networking meetings, it is more important to keep an eye on the clock and make an attempt to wrap it up at about the 45-minute mark. Unlike interviewing, this is not a selling situation but an information exchange initiated by you. Demonstrating respect for the other person's time will win you a friend.

Q. How long should a company give you to decide on an offer? I had an employer pressure me for a start date immediately.

A. When an employer makes the business equivalent of a marriage proposal, a reasonable amount of time should be allowed for serious contemplation. At least in theory, the goal is to create a long-lasting union. Many employers actually encourage candidates to take a week or so to think it over and express a willingness to have additional meetings if necessary. When both parties try to minimize surprises, the marriage is more likely to work.

But think of the suitor who is hurting or struggling with low self-esteem. What if another party enters the picture and snatches the candidate away? What if the candidate asks embarrassing or difficult questions, discovers weaknesses and nixes the deal? It's unrequited love.

Even if you get a great offer, never accept on the spot. Some residual issues will almost certainly occur to you about 2:30 a.m. You'll sit bolt upright in bed and say "Damn! I should have asked them about the travel or the co-ops or taking off for deer hunting!" In most cases, companies should be willing to give you three to five days to make up your mind. If the employer pushes for a yes or no decision RIGHT NOW, the answer, under ordinary circumstances, should probably be no.

AMERICA

Welcomes the 2001 Hyundai XG-300

It's just a little ol' Hyundai, but it looks and drives like a Mercedes or Infiniti Q45

©AUTOWIRE.NET

Hyundai, the company that built its reputation in America with inexpensive, basic transportation, continues to surprise car shoppers.

After introducing economy sedans like the surprising Accent, sleeper sports cars like the Tiburon, and the competitive midsize Sonata, Hyundai now debuts a flagship full-size sedan in America. Welcome the XG300.

The name sounds like a 1950s test rocket or a secret ingredient, but actually it is typical of today's alphanumeric nomenclature.

Everybody wants their cars to sound like an upscale Mercedes, BMW or Volvo, and the XG300 fits right in.

In any case, the XG300 includes practically every feature a shopper would expect in an entry-level luxury car, for a price well below its near-luxury segment competitors. And who are those competitors? They start with the top-of-the-line Toyota Camry, Honda Accord, and Nissan Maxima and move up to the territory of the Lexus ES300, Acura TL, and even the Volvo V70.

The XG300 matches up well against those vehicles in size and power. That means generous front and rear legroom, plentiful trunk space, and a dual-overhead-cam V6 engine with about 200 horsepower on tap. The XG300's engine produces 192 horsepower, and fuel mileage is typical, at 19 city, 27 highway.

Controlling the V6 is a Hyundai's Shifttronic five-speed automatic transmission. Getting five forward speeds in a "value-priced" car is remarkable in itself, but this one offers a second gate that enables drivers to select gears manually, a feature usually reserved for upscale European and Japanese models.

The list is just beginning. The XG300 sits on a four-wheel independent suspension with double wishbones up front, with front and rear stabilizer bars to keep the car level in curves. For superior stopping power, Hyundai serves up four-wheel disc brakes with antilock and mounts Michelin V-rated tires on alloy wheels to make them stick.

Inside the car, there is little to wish for. The long list begins with power windows, locks, and mirrors. The sound system features AM/FM and CD (cassette decks are on their way out). Then, there are the power driver and front passenger seats, covered in rich leather.

Throw in air conditioning, cruise control, remote keyless entry, a trip computer, and heated outside mirrors and the package gets better and better. There are many other little touches, like pop-out coat hooks, an illuminated ignition keyhole, and a rear fold-down armrest with storage compartment.

A couple of omissions show the downside of value pricing, however. The air conditioning was not a fully automatic climate control system and the trip computer did not include either outside temperature or fuel mileage information.

Hyundai seems to have modeled the XG300 after the $60,000 Infiniti Q45. You can see it inside, in the beveled sections of artificial wood, the chrome accents, the handsome typeface on the instrument panel gauges, and the center console proportions.

Outside, the oversized chrome door handles, complex and handsome alloy wheels, formal grille and the high chiseled tail all show Q45 influences. My pal Jim sees a touch of Rolls Royce in the rear styling.

The XG300 is more than a list of ingredients and influences, however. Driving down the road, it is hard to connect this imposing, whisper quiet, luxuriously appointed sedan with the ill-fated Excel of the 1980s. In a 400-mile week of commuting and around-town errands, the XG300 felt strong, quiet and pleasant, like a luxury sedan should.

Quality is always an issue, but Korean cars now are approaching Toyota levels of fit-and-finish. The materials appear substantial and the seams are straight. I detected no squeaks or rattles, and even the scent was unobtrusive.

Color choices in the XG300 are sophisticated inside and out, mine sported midnight green paint, and the artificial wood seems real enough out of the corner of your eye. You don't get real wood in this market segment anyway.

I have only a couple of minor complaints. For some reason, courtesy lighting is nonexistent in the rear seat area, although red lights on the door edges provide visibility to other drivers when the doors are opened. Also, the wavy pattern on the instrument panel gauge faces is an odd choice in my opinion.

Although cars like the XG300 have been marketed in Hyundai's native Korea for years, Americans are just now seeing upscale Korean products. Hyundai's planners apparently feel we are ready for them. Maybe that's true, because this car, loaded to the gunwales, equipped with the industry's best warranty, is priced at just $23,827, including everything but tax and license. You simply can't touch it with anything else.

Condos give easy access to 2 freeways

Good value for price, low-traffic volume and easy access to two freeways and points beyond recommend the Meadows of Van Buren Condominiums.

Just over 100 units, 40 ranches and 64 carriage-style residence with some units up, some down, are slated for the first phase of the attached condominium community on Tyler just west of Belleville Road in Van Buren Township.

Prices start at $92,900 for a 1,050-square-foot home with two bedrooms and one bath in the carriage (stacked like apartments) section, $138,900 for a ranch of 1,210 square feet with two bedrooms, two baths and an attached garage.

"I don't think they (buyers) will ever get the square footage for what we're selling for," said Dale Lentz, president of Antler Construction. "They can't get 1,100 square feet new for what we're selling for."

"We've brought the cost down to get a variety of buyers: empty-nesters, ... first time homeowners ... retirees. We have a low-maintenance dollar amount (association fee) too."

A 4-1/2 acre pond is the community's centerpiece. The entrance is well-landscaped and bermed.

Then there's the location. "There's not a lot of traffic like Canton, but we're close to the expressway - easy on, easy off," Lentz said. "You can get to the airport in 15 minutes from here. Belleville Lake is right here. Everything is right here."

Shopping is very close, as well as the Van Buren municipal complex including senior center, recreation building and police department, said Sally Phillips, sales representative.

Visitors are impressed with the community generally, construction features specifically, she added.

"They like the cathedral ceilings, like the deck, like the laundry room being on the main floor," Phillips said. "It's a good price and location."

Carriage buildings generally contain four units up, four down. All residence feature at base price 14-by-8 wood deck, air conditioning, dishwasher and microwave, individual laundry, textured ceilings plus carpeting and vinyl flooring.

All units contain their own furnace and water heater, and one reserved space in a carport.

contains a combination tub/shower. The master in two-bath units has a shower.

The second-floor units contain cathedral ceilings and planter shelves.

Cost is $92,900 for two beds/ one bath, $101,900 for two beds/ two baths. Only two bedroom/ two bath units will be built in carriage offerings during subsequent phases.

The ranch units, 1,210 square feet, all have private entrances, a 1/12-car attached garage, two bedrooms, two full baths and volume ceilings.

They also feature living rooms and dining areas.

The ranches are grouped three, four or five together. Base price is $138,900 for middle units, $142,900 for ends.

Decks ($3,100) and fireplaces ($3,200) are optional.

Brick and wood siding are primary exterior materials.

The Meadows of Van Buren Condominiums is serviced by city water and sewers. It has sidewalks and is within the Van Buren school boundaries.

The property tax rate is $28.26 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $102,000 unit there would pay about $1,450 the first year.

The monthly association fee is $80 for carriage units, $87 for ranches. It includes water, lawn cutting, snow removal and exterior maintenance of the units.

Georgetta Houston moved into the Meadows of Van Buren after living in the area for many years.

"This was all on one floor, no steps," she said. "I overlook the pond. It's nice and bright. The sun shines in. I have two daughters and they decided mother should enjoy some new things. I highly recommend it."

The sales office/ models at the Meadows of Van Buren Condominiums, (734) 699-8980, is open 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Time is Running Out New Construction in Hartland

"Beautiful"
"Great Designs!"
"Wonderful Neighborhood!"

These are just a few of the comments we've been hearing from our customers! But what are they talking about-- it's Heritage Meadows of Hartland.

Heritage Meadows is one of the latest and most successful communities offered by Triangle Development. With a beautiful neighborhood and spectacular home designs, we've sold over half of the community in less than nine months! Once you get a chance to see this community, you'll know why!

We have something for everyone. We offer five different floorplans to select from, including a ranch, two colonials and two first floor master options. The plans vary from 1,565 sq. ft. to 2,400 sq. ft. with prices ranging from $189,900 to $242,900.

Conveniently located in Hartland Township, Heritage Meadows is just seconds away from M-59 and US-23. Although close to major thoroughfares, the community's feeling of tranquility and beauty is unbelievable. The sense of community is further perfected by the neighborhood's sidewalks, streetlights, and protected open spaces. We are located within the highly acclaimed Hartland school system, which offers many newly built facilities.

Hurry in now to Heritage Meadows and see what everyone is talking about!!! We still have available lots and an inventory of homes for immediate occupancy. We are located on Clark Road, on the north side of M-59, less than a mile east of US-23. We are sure that we have the perfect home that you'll be proud to make your own.

EMAX Move Like a Pro! Classic Realty

Plan serves both starter, retirement needs

The Wilson (408-05) contains 1,673 square feet of open living.

The exterior has a ranch-style motif with a covered front porch. Brick used as an accent enhances the looks.

This is a two-story home, with the second story over the garage. The three different room lines add a unique look to the home, also.

When entering the Wilson, a huge great room opens before the viewer.

There are bay windows in the front, looking out to the street, while a gas fireplace is on the side toward the front of the home. Farther down the same wall is a large window that looks out on the side deck. In the rear, opening onto the deck, are a set of patio doors.

The kitchen is centrally located with an eating bar on an island separating the kitchen from the rest of the great room. A large window over the sink allows a view of the landscaped backyard and to enjoy the antics of children playing on the rear deck.

In the right rear corner is the large master suite. It has a full bath with an oversized shower and a walk-in closet adjacent.

Between the staircase to the second floor and the garage is the utility room, which also contains a half bath. A door to the two-car garage is in one end.

Upstairs are two more bedrooms. Bedroom 2 has a wall closet and a large window. It is narrow and long, ideal for a smaller child. Bedroom 3 also has a wall closet with a large window, but it is more square shaped and larger. Outside the two rooms is a full bath with a tub and a linen closet.

The Wilson would be an ideal retirement home or a great starter home. Even with the bedrooms upstairs, they are close enough to be convenient to new parents. The Wilson is so simplistic in its design that an air of openness abounds.

For a study plan, including scaled floor plan(s), elevations, section(s), and an artist rendering, send $24.95 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Road E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424. Please specify plan name (Wilson) and the number (408-05).

A catalog featuring hundreds of home plans is available for $14.95, or save by ordering both for $29.95. For faster processing, call (800) 562-1151 or visit the Web at www.landmarkdesigns.com

AAA offers severe weather safety tips

April 1-7 is Severe Weather Awareness Week in Michigan. The state's storm season runs from April through August, with peak season from May to June.

With volatile weather conditions likely in the spring and summer, state residents need to take steps now to be prepared, says Ric Phillips, AAA Michigan manager for Homeowner claims. To help homeowners and car owners protect their property, AAA Michigan offers the following severe weather safety tips:

- Check condition of roof.
- Repair or replace loose shutters, eaves troughs and downspouts.
- Make sure downspouts direct rainwater at least three feet from house.
- Trim dead branches off trees.
- Test the operation of the sump pump.
- Seal any cracks in basement walls.
- Clean out basement window wells of debris that prevents proper drainage.
- Fill above-ground pools with water so high winds won't blow the sides in.
- Replace glass storm doors with screens.
- Unplug all electrical appliances during storms.
- Use surge protectors on computers and unplug during storms or before vacation.
- Secure patio furniture, or put in garage when storms are predicted.
- Tie down mobile homes and arrange for emergency underground shelter.
- Keep items off basement floor and keep floor drains clear.

AAA Michigan recommends you keep these items in your basement in the event of severe weather:

- Two flashlights (with batteries)
- Extra batteries
- Portable, battery-powered radio
- Bottled water
- Blankets
- Snack items
- First-aid kit
- Emergency phone numbers

Factors to consider when buying a vacation home

Picture yourself digging your toes into the sand in front of your very own beach house. You can dream it. But can you afford it?

"Affordability is of course the first factor but not the only factor to consider in purchasing a vacation home," says Richard Roll, president of American Homeowners Association. "Whether it's your primary home or a vacation property, you have to consider the huge benefits and responsibilities of home ownership along with the costs."

The vacation home market has been booming and prices are generally high. So don't count on finding a bargain.

On the bright side, you can count on your beach home to generate substantial rental income about 21 weeks out of the year. You're going to need that income to help offset your costs, and more than just the usual mortgage, utilities, taxes and insurance.

You're also going to pay fees to a management company to market and maintain your home as a rental property, plus the costs of any repairs.

Just remember that it's not strictly a financial decision. You can spend a lot of money on vacations and not expect a financial return, right?

Look at the intangible benefits that don't show up on the balance sheet. If you're always missing vacations, you're going to run out of excuses with your own beach home, or your friends or family will drive you crazy.

Sooner or later you have to go, if only to inspect the property, or make repairs and improvements.

And do you yearn to be a "local?" Your vacation place will be a home away from home. Ownership gives you a stake in the neighborhood and a permanent part of the mystique of a coastal community.

Of course, Uncle Sam throws in a few tax benefits that help the bottom line. You can deduct any negative cash flow minus any principal paydowns on the loan, and take depreciation on the home and furnishings.

But the real payoff is fun, relaxation and possibly a higher quality of life.

Life in California is tougher than usual with its energy problems.

The civil authorities say energy conservation is urgently needed to manage the available reserves of electricity, especially during peak use periods 4-8 p.m.

But the same tips can help you save money here in Michigan, whether your home is newer or older. Here's how consumers can help reduce the pressure on the electricity and gas system:

General advice

■ Turn the thermostat down to 68 degrees or below. Reduce setting to 55 degrees or less before retiring or when away for the day.

■ Avoid running large appliances such as clothes washers, dish washers and clothes dryers and electric ovens.

■ Close off vents to rooms that aren't being used.

■ Turn off all non-essential electrical lights.

■ Close shades and blinds at night to reduce the amount of heat lost through your windows.

■ Minimize heating by keeping the thermostat at 68 degrees or below.

■ Wear comfortable business attire. Dress appropriately for cooler temperatures.

■ Turn off any lights that are not needed, especially in unused offices and conference rooms.

■ Turn down the remaining lighting levels if you can.

■ Turn off your computer if you are out of the office for more than a few minutes.

■ Some computers have a "low power stand by" mode. Check to see if your computer is set for it.

■ If a blackout is imminent, back up your computer and frequently save what you are working on — to be ready if the power goes off.

Keeping your home comfortable

■ Check your heating ducts to make sure that they are properly connected and not leaking air. Studies show that one of every four homes loses as much as one-third of its heating (or cooling) from bad ducts. Repair them as needed, using approved materials and methods.

■ Insulation, properly installed, offers the single most effective means of conserving a thermal blanket around the house. Install it yourself or hire an insulation contractor.

■ Draw draperies and window shades to limit heat loss. Open them during the day to let sunshine in.

■ As much as 18 percent of your home's heating loss can be through building openings. Stop this loss by weather-stripping all doors and windows and caulking openings.

■ Consider installing a clock thermostat to automatically set back your thermostat at night. Never cover the thermostat with draperies or decorations. Also, don't put lamps, television sets or appliances that produce heat close to the thermostat.

■ Use bathroom heaters sparingly, if at all.

■ Regularly replace or clean filters.

In the kitchen ... a dash of conservation can make a big difference

■ Plan meals that can be cooked together in the oven all at once to make full use of the energy it takes to heat your oven.

■ Don't preheat your broiler or range.

■ Avoid opening the oven door when baking. Taking a "peek" wastes energy.

■ Microwave cooking is faster, more efficient than conventional cooking. It can save a lot of your time and energy, too.

■ Learn more about pressure cookers. They prepare foods in two-thirds less time, and many people say the final product is more flavorful than conventional cooking.

■ Wash only full loads of dishes in your dish washer. Let the dishes air dry by turning the washer off after the last rinse cycle and opening the door slightly.

If the power goes off

■ Drive carefully. Traffic signals may be out in a rolling blackout. Consider each intersection to be a four-way stop and drive defensively. If you are a pedestrian, be extra alert, since normal traffic patterns are disrupted.

■ If you use candles to light your home during a rolling blackout, be

■ Avoid opening your refrigerator and freezer as much as possible.

Financing your home improvement project

When planning a home improvement project, it is important to choose the financing option that best suits you.

Four of the most popular are a home equity line of credit, a second mortgage, a cash out refinance of your current mortgage and, of course, a home improvement loan.

An equity line of credit is similar to a credit card except that your house is used as the collateral which usually makes the interest tax deductible. A credit line is usually between 75 to 80 percent of the home's appraised value minus the balance of other mortgages.

There is usually no limit on how the money is used, but you may need to keep a minimum balance to keep the line of credit open. You use the account by writing special checks or using a credit card. The interest rate is not fixed but variable, based on the Prime Rate plus a margin of up to three percent.

There may also be closing costs such as appraisal and application fees, points and other costs which can vary from one lender to another.

A second mortgage loan can be useful when you know exactly what your remodeling project will cost. Like other installment loans, it has predetermined payments for a specific period of time, usually 15 years. With a fixed rate, a second mortgage can benefit from the low interest rates in today's market.

A third option is cash out refinancing which refinances your first mortgage plus the amount of your home improvement project. Most lenders will limit a refinance to 75 or 80 percent of the property value and may include in your payments any fees charged.

You should compare the rate, terms, and financing costs of a mortgage available today to your current mortgage payments (and your years left to pay) plus the monthly payment for an equity line or second mortgage.

A less common option is a home improvement loan through HUD's 203(k) program that allows homeowners to borrow up to 110 percent of a home's value. The house must be at least three years old and require at least $5,000 in repairs.

To determine the amount of the loan, a construction consultant gives an on-site estimate of the improvement. The lender releases the funds in as many as five payments through the renovation process. Upon completion of the improvements, the lender sends an inspector to approve the work for the final payment.

The financing option you choose will depend on your situation. If you don't know exactly how much the home improvement project will cost, the flexibility of a home equity credit line may be best for you.

Or you may prefer the predictable monthly payments of either a second mortgage or cash out refinancing.

For some, it is important to know that, depending on the lender, the property may not be used as a rental when a financing option has been added to the first mortgage.

Whichever method you select, it is good to comparison shop among, say, three lenders. Ask all your questions, and make sure you understand the answers. Get the terms in writing and feel free to negotiate the details whenever possible.

Builders win energy demonstration grant for house

A fledgling Farmington Hills residential building company is one of only five to win an award from Michigan's Five Star Home Grant program to help build energy-efficient houses.

Sterling Manchester will use a grant of $7,500 to install an innovative hot water system, compact fluorescent lamps and bulbs, backdraft dampers on exhaust fans and an insulated garage door in an 1,800-square-foot home in Detroit.

The builder also intends to develop a video on the innovations, advertise its availability and arrange tours for Realtors, appraisers and students.

"We've made the business decision we would build high-quality, energy-efficient and low-maintenance homes," said E. Noel King, vice president with Sterling Manchester.

The company intends to concentrate on modular (factory-built) homes in the $125,000-$185,000 range. Dorne A. Adams also is a vice president. "All houses we build are Energy Star," King said.

"The Building Industry Association has an energy committee. The energy committee does seminars every month. Information is there for builders - how we can build a more energy efficient house.

"I think it's a process you'll find being done by more builders as energy costs become more critical," King said.

Builders competed for the grants based on energy efficiency, marketing plans and innovations. The money was awarded through the Michigan Department of Consumer & Industry Services.

"The Five Star Home Grant program is an incentive for Michigan builders to utilize the latest technology to reduce energy costs and pollution," said Gov. John Engler.

"As a condition of receiving the grants, the builders will be promoting these homes and showcasing the advantages of an energy-efficient home," Engler said. "This will make other builders and future home buyers more knowledgeable about energy-efficient products currently available to reduce utility bills."

"Builders and consumers are becoming increasingly interested in energy-efficient products with each year we present these grants," said Kathleen Wilbur, CIS director.

"Energy-efficient products often pay for themselves and then some with the money they save in future utility bills."
