District campaign seeks tots tract agreement with the school district.

After six hours of bargaining Thursday night, PCEA President Chuck Portelli said negotiators were able to make enough changes in the previously rejected contract to once again call it a tentative agreement.

"We did some tweaking with it, but it's not dramatically different than the contract that was rejected," said Portelłi.

Teachers turned down the contract April 11, after two days of voting, mainly because they didn't like the proposed salary schedule. That agreement called for teachers at the very top of the pay scale, along with first-year teachers, to receive a 3 percent wage hike. Teachers in between, who are in their second through 10th years, would have received a 1.75 percent wage increase. It takes 11 years, plus a master's degree, for a Plymouth-Canton teacher to get to the top of the wage scale.

"The new tentative agreement, which the PCEA bargaining team is recommending, calls for the same wage increase across-the-board," said Portelli, who declined to announce the Youngsters and their parents will head to school for the first time next week as Van Buren Public Schools will host their annual Kindergarten Open House and Registration.

Parents can register their children for kindergarten Monday-Thursday. Despite early registration, the district faces uncertainty in the fall regarding the number of kindergartners in Van Buren schools, said Personnel Director Louise Williamson. "It's kind of a moving target," she

On Wednesday, the girls said they were excited, but added they didn't flip out when they heard only a week ago they would make the trip to dance for the president.

"It hasn't quite sunk in yet," said their mother, Alicia.

The entire Cox family of five, plus Alicia's mother and brother, hit the road Thursday. The girls danced at the White House, then returned late Friday night.

Since receiving word the dancers all from southeast Michigan and most from Detroit - had been invited to the White House celebration, the troupe has practiced nearly every night to learn new dances and coordinate a new program.

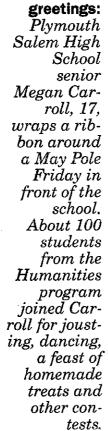

Alicia Cox explained the invitation was the product of a promise George W. Bush made to the youngsters when he was campaigning last year.

She said Bush arrived at an event and due to a tight schedule, had to interrupt the young dancers' performance to make his speech before dashing off to his next destination.

Cox said Bush apologized to the dancers' instructor, who accepted the apology on the condition the troupe would have the opportunity to finish the dance at the White

Cornerstone Church is building on faith

BY CAROL MARSHALL STAFF WRITER cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

The Rev. Ricky Roop's cherubic face turned toward the sun, and he squinted toward the site where the new Cornerstone Baptist Church will soon be built.

His pressed trousers and white shirt contrasting with the hard-hats and Tshirts surrounding him, Roop said the road to church has been a long and bumpy one.

When the Roop moved from South Carolina to Canton in December 1999. he was greeted by inhospitable weather and a struggling, 14-member congregation. Folks told him he was crazy.

When you set out in the ministry to follow the Lord, you go where He leads you," he said in his soft, southern accent.

Roop said he's been led in the right direction.

The Cornerstone Baptist congregation, 80-people strong, has now outgrown its meeting place, the historic Cherry Hill School.

Roop cautiously boasted the site has held as many as 170 church-goers even though the building's capacity is only 60

"It's been a building process," Roop said. "Not just with the building but with people."

The congregation has grown by some 400 percent, thanks to its original 14 members, whom Roop asked to head out into their communities, pick up the phones and begin inviting their friends and neighbors to church.

And it's church, with a big C. Roop said it's not the kinder, gentler, comeas-you-are church. It's the church your grandparents joined because their parents were members.

"We have found there are still some people out there that believe in an oldfashioned, fundamentalist, independent, Bible-believing Baptist church," he said. "That's what we pride ourselves on."

Five Western Wayne County communities are expected to meet with Wayne County parks officials tomorrow concerning construction of a $10 million water park on the western edge of the county.

Representatives from Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Northville and Northville Township will meet with county officials at an afternoon session designed to steer the project to western Wayne County.

"Nothing has been decided, yet, where it will go," said Plymouth Mayor Pro-Tem Colleen Pobur, who works for the Wayne County parks system. "Canton is relatively new to the mix.

"It appears this side of the county is in competition with downriver," she said. "They want something that is visible and easily accessible."

Discussions have centered on the possibility of the water park being constructed at Five Mile and Sheldon in Northville Township. Canton Township is reportedly dangling a carrot for Wayne County officials at I-275 and Michigan Avenue. Another option is the Phoenix property located near Five Mile and Beck roads, near Scott Correctional Facility.

Plymouth city commissioners nd Plymouth Township and trustees have passed resolutions supporting the Northville Township site. The township would reportedly donate the land, with Wayne County paying for the entire project. The water park is expected to be modeled after. Detroit's Chandler Park.

A Canton man told police he was assaulted with a baseball bat just after midnight Friday.

A witness to the incident said the suspect parked near the victim's house on Foxthorne. The witness said the suspect got out of his car, and began peeping in the victim's windows, then walked back toward his car.

The victim called out to the suspect to ask what he was doing.

The suspect got back in his car and pulled up to the victim's home. He got out of the car, carrying a baseball bat. He told the victim it was none of his business what he was doing and started swinging, saying, "I'm going to kill you."

The victim ran back into the house to call police, and the suspect got in his car and left.

The suspect told police he retrieved the bat from his car because the victim told him he had a gun in the house.

The suspect was arrested at his home by Livonia police.

Christians must end divisiveness, speaker says at annual breakfast

BY CAROL MARSHALL STAFF WRITER cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

On the 50th anniversary of the first national day of prayer, some 300 Canton and Plymouth area residents came together to celebrate their faith at the 11th Annual Community Prayer Breakfast.

"It was on this kind of a Godly heritage that our nation was founded," said the Rev. Eric Moore. "We know we must pray. Our nation and our community depend on it."

The event's featured speaker, Prentice Tipton, said the community depends also on praying together.

Tipton, of New Baltimore, serves as President of the Challenge Ministry in the Macomb County/Metro Detroit area.

Challenge Ministry was created to unite men of different Christian communities and all races.

Tipton said Christian churches have broken into more than 26,000 factions and denominations. He said they claim to have split due to theological disagreement, but have adopted a "smug, proud self-sufficiency" in which they do not need each other.

"The unthinkable has happened. Christ is divided and by whose authority?" Tipton said.

"The body of Christ in Canton, what will it take for a family reunion?" Tipton said. "And I'm not talking about a once a year prayer breakfast. I'm talking about down-home, shoulder rubbing Christian love."

Tipton said events such as the O.J. Simpson verdict and the presidential election fallout last November point to a "deeply divided" country.

Tipton told his audience, "We need the power of unity. The power of unity will speak louder than any other voice

Message of unity: Guest speaker Prentice Tipton likened the current state of Christianity to a wedding fight.

Kindergarten Open House schedule

Van Buren Public Schools will host a districtwide Kindergarten Open House and Registration this week. Parents and their children are welcome to visit their future school for a tour and to meet kindergarten teachers.

The open house schedule is as follows. Contact your child's school to confirm a morning or afternoon time.

- Monday, May 7 Edgemont Elementary School, (734) 697-8002; Tyler Elementary School, (734) 699-5818.
- Tuesday, May 8 Elwell Elementary School, (734) 697-8277. Haggerty Elementary School, (734) 697-8483.
- Wednesday, May 9 Savage Elementary School, (734) 699-5050
- Thursday, May 10 Rawsonville Elementary School, (734) 482-9845.

Districtwide late registration is set for 7-8:30 p.m. May 1 5 at Edgemont Elementary School for parents unable to attend Open House.

If you are uncertain which school your child will be attending, please contact the Van Buren Public Schools Communications Department, (734) 697-9123 ext. 224.

and February, the district lost 107 students. Eighteen of those were kindergartners.

Further, Williamson said the figures from the kindergarten roundup registration aren't particularly accurate, so the district will remain uncertain about its staffing and space requirements in September.

Williamson said a number of factors contribute to the kindergarten conundrum. First, she said all districts have had to adjust to a lower birth rate and fewer young students.

Further, some of the unpredictability comes from first-time students' parents.

"Kindergarten parents aren't in the loop yet," she said. "So they're not really thinking in terms of getting their kids registered this early. Then in the fall, the school buses go rolling by, and they realize they have to register, even though they've been talking with their children for weeks or even months about how great school is going to be."

Also in the mix are the needs of working parents. She said many are opting to send their children to all-day private daycare or to public schools with enrichment programs.

"That issue is being discussed with all school districts over the next couple of weeks, particularly in Van Buren," she said.

Kindergarten parents aren't in the loop yet. So they're not really thinking in terms of getting their kids registered this early.'

(C)A3

-Louise Williamson, District personnel director

Williamson said the district is currently examining the feasibility of offering such programs at Van Buren schools as soon as next fall.

So far, only Rawsonville Elementary has offered all-day kindergarten and Savage Elementary will launch its first allday program in the fall.

"We're trying to evaluate what we have room for," said Director of Instruction Ray Gross. "Expense is another factor."

Gross said while the benefits of all-day programs are evident, the board of education has to weigh need, cost and space issues to determine feasibility.

"Part of the deal with things that are good for kids is you still need to figure out how to pay for them," Gross said.

Parents need to bring three proofs of residency, the child's immunization records and birth certificate.

grant proposals due June 1

District drug-free

Applicants have until Friday, June 1, to submit proposals for funding under the Drug-Free grant awarded to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

A state grant for $72,840 has been awarded to the district from the Safe and Drug-Free Schools Program for the 2001-2002 school year. The local grant is coordinated through a sub-committee of the Plymouth-Canton Community Council for Substance Abuse Prevention.

Proposals should address drug prevention, drug intervention, violence prevention, student safety, parent training or community programs. All proposals submitted for consideration must include the following information:

A history of the project documenting an effective impact on the population served;

Strategies and activities used as part of the project;

■ Data that shows how this was determined and by what process the information was gathered;

A clear presentation that describes the design of the project, its intended outcomes and measurable criteria to determine its effectiveness.

Applications for proposals are available through the Board of Education office, 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday-Friday.

They must be completed and returned to the Education Services Department, no later than Monday, June 1.

Interviews are scheduled Monday, June 11, only. Interview times will be determined after the receipt of the application.

All activities provided through the Drug-Free grant will need prior approval of the CPAs Committee.

amount of wage hike until his membership meets Monday. "We also settled some other lissues, like the late start at the elementary schools."

Portelli said teachers were not prepared to make changes that would have staff development at the beginning of the day, with classes starting at 11 a.m., ·instead of the traditional four half-days for staff development in which students attend class for a half-day followed by teacher in-service time.

Superintendent Kathleen Booher said she's not surprised lthe agreement came quickly after rejection of the original contract.

"What I see is a continuing desire to dialogue between the union leadership and the school district," said Booher. "I've had thorough discussion with the school board, and I'm very pleased to see the potential for a settlement."

Portelli indicated more than 400 teachers voted against the first tentative agreement, the most ever to vote against a contract during his tenure of negotiations. The pact was ultimately rejected by 55 votes.

The PCEA membership will gather Monday at Salem High School for a 4:15 p.m. meeting to hear details of the latest tentative agreement. Voting is slated to take place on May 14-15. If it's accepted by the 1,000-member union, the Plymouth-Canton school board is expected to ratify the contract at its May 15 meeting.

Last week, Bush made good on his word and sought out the instructor, inviting her to bring the dancers to Washington.

That really impressed me," said the girls' father, Mike Cox. "That he made that kind of effort to make good on his word.'

Family tradition

The girls have been dancing since they were barely old enough to hoist the dresses over their heads on their own.

Nina has been performing with the troupe for eight years, Maria Elena for four and Lauren for three

"I like it because it teaches me my culture and background,' said Nina, who was the first in the family to join Raices Mexicanas at the urging of her grandmother. Her little sisters explain they like to dance for reasons ranging from the fun dance steps to the high-heeled shoes.

Once Nina was involved, dancing became contagious at the Cox household and her sisters donned their dance shoes and followed in her footsteps.

The girls each attend one practice a week, but now that Nina dances with the older group, and Maria Elena and Lauren dance with the younger dancers, the girls and their mother all trek to Sainte Anne Church in Detroit two nights a week to practice.

The dancers perform yearround, with late-April marking the beginning of their busy sea-son. They perform at schools, festivals and churches. They've danced at Hart Plaza and the Detroit Opera Theater. The performances are free to those who invite them, though the group accepts donations to help defray their costs.

The lessons and group membership are also free.

Quality time

Mike Cox said even though his daughters are the performers, the dance group has brought the entire family closer.

He said he thinks the girls spending time with each other and their mother has been a tremendously positive aspect of their family life. Further, he said his daughters have benefited from the physical exercise and cultural lessons that dancing provides.

"It keeps them off the streets. and away from trouble and the wrong crowd and drugs. It also gives them a sense of self-worth and accomplishment," he said, adding that for some of the girls' peers in Detroit the troupe is even more instrumental in providing a positive creative and social outlet, while keeping them out of harm's way.

He said he hasn't been able to attend rehearsals like he would like to, but intends to start, now that he's working days instead of afternoons.

Cox said not only does he attend every performance, his daughters' grandparents, aunts and uncles, and cousins come as well. The family makes an event out of the performances, and goes out for dinner after.

"That way we see each other more than just on holidays and birthdays," Alicia said. "All we ask for is your commitment and that you provide your own dress-es," said Alicia.

It's a lot of work, admits Christina Rocha-Staub of Detroit, whose 9-year-old daughter is a member of Raices Mexicanas.

"We call ourselves the Mexican soccer moms," Rocha-Staub jokes. "This is our answer to soccer, ballet and Girl Scouts."

tight to tradition and so does his fledgling congregation. The Bible is strictly the King James version. Women are not ordained as ministers. And families show up at church dressed only in their Sunday best.

"Wearing pants will not send a lady to Hell. My mother-in-law is sitting out in front of my house with britches on." Roop said. "But the house of Lord deserves more reverence."

Roop said he's confident the congregation will continue to grow, pointing to the site across Ridge Road where some 1,350 new homes are currently being constructed.

"We know we're not going to get 1,350 families in here," Roop said, acknowledging his church's style of expressing their faith will not appeal to everybody.

But he knows many of his neighbors will seek out the fundamentalist church.

Building voter confidence is key to good elections

BY MIKE MALOTT HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE mmalott@homecomm.net

"Elections are not just about determining who won and who lost," says Craig Donsanto, director of the Elections Crimes Branch of the U.S. Department of Justice. "Another institutional goal of elections is to legitimize a transfer of power and to hold the governors responsible to the governed. People are generally suspicious of the elections process. They have to be able to have confidence in elections. If it breaks down, the process itself begins to break down."

The integrity of the elections process "suffered a serious attack in the last election," he said, referring of course to the vote count debacle in Florida after the November elections, leaving the country wondering who its next president would be for more than a month.

Donsanto made those comments at a panel discussion at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor Friday, April 20, on the topic of election administration, its current practices and prospects for reform. He was invited by U-M political science professor and researcher Michael Traugott to talk about the issue along with Michigan Director of Elections Chris Thomas, federal Office of Election Administration Director Penelope Bonsall and Multnomah County, Oregon, Elections Director Vicki Ervin.

The forum previews several movements for revision of the elections process in Michigan.

Many ideas

Late last year, Secretary of State Candice Miller, in the wake of the Florida recounts, called on the state Legislature to adopt a statewide voting system. Currently, everything from paper ballots and punch cards to computer screen voting machines are in use in various Michigan communities. Thomas said Miller will likely unveil her recommendation for a single statewide system in the coming month. Thomas explained Miller's recommendation will probably be for a voting machine type, rather than a brand name, to avoid having a single supplier for the entire state.

Traugott also said he plans to launch a study on how voters use, and how well they use, various voting systems. Current studies rely on after-the-fact analyses of how voters cast ballots on various machines.

In Florida, many voters expressed concerns they may not have voted for the right person using the so-called "butterfly ballot." But in a controlled situation, Traugott will be able to determine if voters cast their ballots the way they intended to.

The panel discussed a variety of voting systems, and not all got a good review.

E-voting problems

"E-voting is the worst idea anyone ever came up with," Donsanto said. Because Internet sites are susceptible to hacking, vote counts might be tampered with. Terrorists could hire "computer whiz-kids" to break into or crash voting Web sites on election days.

"Even if they don't, if an election is close or produces an unexpected result, it could raise the question," Donsanto said. "If someone made the suggestion and people believed it was possible, it might become as bad as the actuality of it."

Ervin would agree. She reviewed Arizona's vote by Internet system and concluded it could be susceptible to "vote buying."

There, elections officials send personal identification numbers by mail to registered voters, which they use to enter the voting Web site.

"What could be more transferable that a PIN number?" she said.

But Ervin is very pleased with her own state's vote-by-mail system. She said it has increased voter participation and eliminates the problem of early forecasts of the outcome of elections because voters don't go to a polling place where they can be questioned in "exit interviews."

Further, Ervin said vote-bymail ballots in Oregon were spurring kitchen table political discussions among families and friends.

"When they get their ballots in the mail, if they aren't familiar with the issue, they can ask family or friends about it and sit down at the table to talk about it. That never happened before," said. some voters might be coerced into casting their ballots in a particular way, she said, perhaps would one spouse directed the other to vote for a particular person. And while the state set up a system for reporting coercion, there has never been such an allegation there.

Vote-by-mail

Ervin also argued vote-by-mail systems reduce the chance for "vote buying" because voters are never in a central location where the unscrupulous can attempt to influence their ballots. Others on the panel disagreed, saying vote buyers in some states have been known to follow postal workers around neighborhoods while vote-by-mail ballots are delivered.

Bonsall said more than 50 bills reforming the elections process have been introduced in Congress, but there is no consensus on what direction reform at the national level needs to take. She said that mandating new balloting machines nationwide might cost $700 million.

Even if Congress was willing

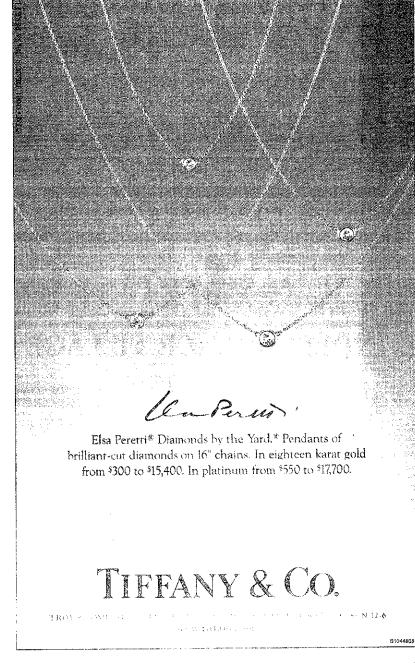

There had been concern that ome voters might be coerced ato casting their ballots in a articular way, she said, per-

> Thomas said Michigan already has many of the laws in place needed to avoid a Florida-like recount. State law already specifies what types of marks on a ballot can be counted as votes and regulates how recalls are conducted.

He said Michigan's "motorvoter law" coordinating voter registration with resident's driver's license records has eliminated much of the "deadwood" on voter registration files, making further reforms possible. One reform he considers likely is the elimination of the requirement that a voter has to be leaving town to get an absentee ballot.

"People talk about this last election as meteorologists talk about storms, as a one-in-50year or one-in-100-year event," Traugott said, "in which we nearly had a breakdown in the election process. So what are the lessons? One is that we got a reminder that we don't actually have national elections. What we really have is many simultaneous local elections held on the same day at the same time but under different rules and with a great variation in the procedures. Another is that the system is under continuous reform."

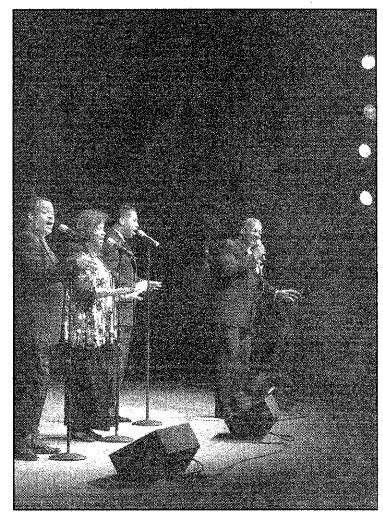

Families share a lot more than a last name. However, the things they have in common aren't always that obvious. Like their blood pressure. High blood pressure has been strongly linked to heredity, so it tends to run in families. There are no symptoms, so it can easily go unnoticed. And, left untreated, high blood pressure can lead to a heart attack, stroke, or kidney failure. But, the good news is that it's easily checked and readily treated. So maybe it's time to start a new family tradition. Call for an appointment to get your blood pressure checked today. To find a University of Michigan physician near you, simply call 1-800-211-8181. "Stay & Play" program.

Suburban leaders praise Archer, want a successor who cooperates

BY RICHARD PEARL SPECIAL WRITER

What qualities will the next mayor of Detroit need?

Considering the many challenges he or she will face, "It might take four or five people rolled up into one," quipped Tom Yack, Canton Township supervisor.

Yack and other municipal leaders in western Wayne County were asked by the Observer to appraise outgoing Mayor Dennis Archer's two terms in office – Archer recently announced he won't seek re-election – and discuss the qualities they feel his successor will need in leading southeast Michigan's hub.

Detroit gives southeast Michigan its identity statewide, nationwide and internationally. It also provides many suburbs with their drinking water and sewerage disposal.

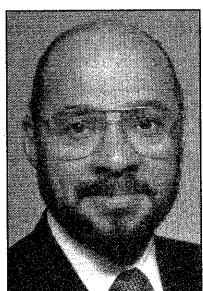

And Detroit is regaining its luster as a cultural and entertainment center.

But, along with accomplishments like the Fox Theatre entertainment district, the casinos and Comerica Park and General Motors' move to downtown, Detroit is beset by a shrinking populace and tax base, an entrenched city bureaucracy, decaying neighborhoods and security concerns.

According to several of his west-county counterparts, what former state Supreme Court Justice Dennis Archer did best since succeeding Coleman Young as mayor in 1993 was improve the Detroit-suburbia relationship.

Besides his intelligence and sincerity and his constant efforts for Detroit, what most of them liked "was that he was an approachable person," said Canton's Yack. "He carried a conciliatory message to whomever he was talking to – and that was a needed change from Coleman Young."

"He established credibility with the suburbs and the region," said Redford Township Supervisor Kevin Kelley. "He established a feeling people could do business in Detroit and support Detroit" in its comeback efforts.

Dennis Archer: Detroit mayor ready to turn over reins of big city after two terms.

Archer also whetted their appetite for someone to continue such cooperation because, as Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey put it, "the problems are regional."

'One metro area'

Added Garden City Mayor Ron Showalter, "We are all part of one metro area and our futures do intertwine."

Westland Mayor Bob Thomas mused that, "Somebody could get in there and turn it all back the other way.

"The next guy has got to jump right on it and take off, heading in the same direction," he said.

"If it (relationship with the suburbs) does take a U-turn, it would not be pretty," said Thomas.

The next Detroit mayor needs to be a stronger administrator, they said.

"The next guy needs to be a little more aggressive," like a Rudy Giuliani in New York or an Ed Rendell in Philadelphia, said Kelley. "He has to be more aggressive in dealing with the bureaucracy of the city, in forcing change" in a government that Kelley said has twice as many departments as the state's, but with a much smaller budget. The next mayor will have to "really reform the way the city government operates," said Kelley. "And that's not an easy task - 50 years running the same way."

Demand increasing

Kelley said Detroit residents are starting to demand improvements in basic services such as police and fire, street lights and trash collection. The new mayor will have to "do things more efficiently with less dollars per worker, and that's a tough thing to do. But that has to be done."

Livonia's Kirksey sees a need to revitalize Detroit neighborhoods by demolishing derelict buildings and improving security. Westland's Thomas said the city needs to "eventually make people want to move back there and live," thus bolstering the tax base.

Canton's Yack said the next mayor should be a risk-taker who might privatize trash collection and possibly give Belle Isle to the Metroparks to run because the city "is not going to have the money" to restore it.

He or she might want to establish a "residential empowerment zone" with private, gated communities that would forgive residents their taxes "as a way to get people back there (and) spending money," Yack suggested.

Whoever succeeds Archer "has got to be somebody who, in a way, can't disregard the local unions ... but who can also appeal to the general public and what they're looking for," said Yack.

"One of the biggest challenges will be working with the (Detroit) city council," he said. "In many cases, they are part of the problem and not part of the solution."

The next Detroit mayor, said Yack, should put "politics on the back burner" and not worry "about whether he'll be around in four years.

"Four years from now, you may be unemployed, but you'll be able to sleep at night knowing you did the best you could" for the city." Yack said.

THERE ARE A NUMBER OF REASONS WHY PEOPLE FEEL GOOD About Living In the Area.

Because of their skill and experience, the doctors and nurses of St. Mary Mercy Hospital can't help inspiring trust. But in addition to treating people from the area, our doctors actually are from the area. They live here. Raise families here. Attend PTA meetings here. In short, they have their fingers on the pulse of the entire community. And in their expert medical opinion, it's a very healthy pulse indeed.

The team is coached by Joe Przybylski and Jim Fisher.

City champs

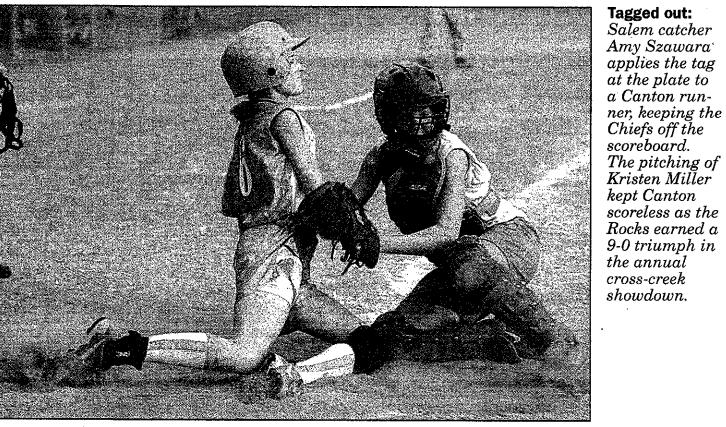

The city championship in wrestling was conducted recently, in conjunction with the class by Plymouth Canton wrestling coach John Demsick, and champions as well as several standouts were lauded.

First-place winners were Josh Gebbe, KevinTykoski, Shane Gring, Patrick Terranova, Adam Gillikin, Joe Vella and James Franz. Other standout placewinners were Ramen Pakray, Ĉraigen Bouldry, Jeremy Angel, Alex Freitag, Andrew Kirby, Daniel Pocock, Matt Hayes, Dan Whittington and Matt Shaffer.

"I'm very proud of the wrestlers involved in this year's city championship," Demsick said. "We have a batch of talented athletes that took the class and are learning. I hope they stick with it.

"It's a shame that we don't have an actual competitive middle school program similar to all the area schools that we wrestle. It would be helpful for wrestling and football, both, since (wrestling) is a relatively cheap sport to offer. Instead, we have boys volleyball at middle school, and then they get to the high school and find that there is no boys competitive volleyball."

Fast-striking Rocks roll past Chiefs

Bonnie Southerland didn't quite make it.

Her Plymouth Salem softball team did, but its fast coach wasn't quite quick enough.

Salem defeated campus rival Plymouth Canton, 9-0, Thursday night at Massey Field in Plymouth.

But afterward, Southerland wasn't quite adept enough at scaling the left field fence in foul territory to escape the marauding band of Rocks intent on giving her a cold splashing with the contents of a blue and white cooler. Ice included.

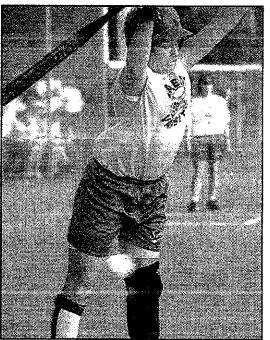

Southerland was one leg kick away from flipping over the fence when two of her team members hauled her back and, with the help of reinforcements, pinned her down.

Eventually the cooler and its icy contents arrived to give Southerland's uniform a good pre-soak.

Just way too much.

That's what Plymouth Salem's girls track team had over Westland John Glenn in their Western Lakes Activities Association dual meet last Thursday at Salem far more of everything, including points, 112-25.

Everybody had a share in this win for the Rocks, but Salem coach Mark Gregor was particularly impressed with Michelle Bonior, who won two individual events — the shot put (32-feet, 10-inches) and the 200-meter dash (26.9) — was part of a winning relay and placed second in the 100 (12.7).

"I thought Michelle Bonior was outstanding," said Gregor. "She was first in the shot, first in the 200, ran in the 4x100 relay that was a winner and was second in the 100 with a real good time."

Another double-winner in individual events for the Rocks was Autumn Hicks, who captured the high jump (4-10) and the 400 (1:02.6).

Other winners for Salem in individual events were Ashleigh Shear in the discus (94-4); Jenny Jedlick in the pole vault (8-0); Erriane Dundle in the 300 hurdles (51.4); Jessica Shamberger in the 100 (12.5); Jordan Falcusan in the 800 (2:31.9); Heather Whittington in the 1,600 (5:29.0); and Liane Griffiths in the 3,200 (13:02.0).

Bonior, Susan Woodard, Melissa Drake and Shamberger teammed for a win in the 4x100relay (52.2); Hicks, Dundle, Kara Dendrinos and Woodard combined in the 4x400 relay (4:18.9); and Laura Baumgart, Griffiths, Stephanie Hejduk and Lisa Keski-Hynnila won the 4x800 (11:04.2).

The win left Salem at 4-0 in dual meets overall, 3-0 in the WLAA's Lakes Division. Glenn is 3-3 overall, 1-3 in the Lakes.

Undefeated Farmington Harrison completed a first-round sweep of divisional baseball opponents Friday to remain unbeaten at 11-0 overall.

Tim Doig earned a pitching victory while leading the Hawks to an 8-4 win over visiting Plymouth Canton.

Harrison is 5-0 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association and will begin the second half of the round-robin schedule Monday at Livonia Churchill.

Doig held the Chiefs in check for six innings and was two outs from throwing a complete game.

Canton erupted for four of its runs in the seventh off Doig, who allowed seven hits total, struck out three and walked two.

Drew Stanton came on to close out the game for Harrison, which had 10 hits. The Hawks scored three times in the first inning, once in the third and twice in both the fifth and sixth innings.

Stanton was 3-for-3 with two RBI; he also stole three bases and scored two runs. Doig went 2-for-2 and scored

Canton tops N'ville; Salem slips

Nothing's going to come easily for Plymouth Canton's boys track team.

The Chiefs struggled against Northville Thursday at Canton in a Western Lakes Activities Association dual meet before finally putting the Mustangs away, 74-63.

The win keeps Canton unbeaten in WLAA duals at 4-0; they are 3-0 in the division. Northville is 1-2 in Western Division duals.

"It was exciting," said Canton coach Bob Richardson. "We had some great races, some great efforts. And our kids came through."

The clincher came in the 200meter dash, with Mike Parker finishing second in 24.0. That earned Canton enough points to push it past the 69-point barrier, which is the number needed to elinch a victory.

Glenn stops Salem

There were some good things that came out of Plymouth Salem's dual meet at Westland John Glenn Thursday, but a victory wasn't one of them.

The Rockets got just enough points to edge Salem, 70-67, leaving the Rocks at 1-3 overall, 1-2 in the WLAA's Lakes Division. Glenn is 2-4 overall, 1-3 in the Lakes.

Snyder was first in the shot with a heave of 51-feet, 5-inches; he won the discus with an effort of 137-0.

Dan Dwenger finished first in the pole vault for the Rocks (10-0), one of six other first-place finishes for Salem. Other individual-event wins came from Ehinor Arbaughman in the 110 hurdles (16.44), Rob Showalter in the 300 hurdles (43.23), Donnie Warner in the 1,600 (4:45.39) and Randy Bearden in the 3,200 (10:41.9).

Salem's 4x400 relay team of Tom Huls, Tony Stott, Jeremy Boothroyd and T.J. Winowiecki also took a first (3:53.14).

On Thursday, the Rocks will try to get back on the winning side when they host Livonia Stevenson in a WLAA Lakes Division dual.

Chiefs clipped by Spartans; Rocks tumble

Defense has been a strong point for Plymouth Canton's baseball team the past few seasons, but not recently.

In losses to Walled Lake Western (4-3) and Northville (7-5), the Chiefs uncharacteristically committed nine errors. Their defense was better last Wednesday against Livonia Stevenson, but their results weren't: The Spartans stopped them, 4-1.

Matt Staley "pitched very well," said Canton coach Scott Dickey. "He just got beat." Staley surrendered eight hits and a walk, striking out four.

The Chiefs managed just five hits, with Jay Sofen getting two of them. Brent Kwiatkowski had a double and drove in their only run.

The Spartans broke the game open when Pete Penta slammed a two-run home run in the fifth inning.

RU 7, Salem 6: On Wednesday, Redford Union won its second-straight game with a win over visiting Plymouth Salem.

"We had some young kids throw some nice strikes and hit their spots," said Panthers' coach Rick Berryman, whose BASEBALL team improved to 3-10 overall. "We threw three sophomores and a junior and they did a nice job. I hope this means we're coming around."

Shawn Meyers (1-0) earned the win, giving up a hit and three walks in two innings of relief pitching, while Chris Rigley came in to get the save.

Coach Dale Rumberger did likewise for Salem. Andy Boyer started and took the loss for the Rocks (9-6), giving up five runs and five hits in three innings.

John Hageman led the RU's hitters by going 2-for-4 with two RBI, Joe Bakos hit a solo homer, Matt Pelc was 2-for-2 with an RBI and Chris Rigley added an RBL

Chris Trott led Salem by going 2-for-4 with an RBI, Chris Mackinder scored twice, Chad Goethe had an RBI and Mike Thackaberry went 1-for-1, but walked three times.

Agape 13. Greater Life 2: This game, played Thursday at Griffin Park, ended in five innings as Canton Agape Christian improved its record to 9-6 thanks to powerful hitting supplied by Rob Hough, Paul Anleitner and Rob Guttersohn.

Hough, who had two hits and drove in four runs, slapped a two-run single in the fifth that provided the Wolverines with their 11-run margin.

Anleitner, who gave up just one hit but walked six and struck out 13 in getting the pitching win, added two hits (including a double) and two RBI, and Guttersohn had two hits, scored twice and drove in a run.

St. Agatha 3, Agape 2: Bobby Konrad's run-scoring single tied it at 2-2 for Canton Agape Christian in the top of the seventh, but Pat Wood - who slugged a two-run double to score Redford St. Agatha's first two runs in the first — got a run-scoring single in the bottom of the seventh to win it Tuesday at St. Agatha.

The winning rally started with a leadoff single by Dan Boulter, who had three hits in the game, in the seventh. He stole second and scored on Wood's hit. Wood had two hits and three RBI in the game.

Five different players accounted for Agape's five hits. Mike Bommarito also had a base hit and an RBI, while Josh Anthony had a double.

Anthony took the loss in relief of starter Rob Hough, who surrendered two runs in the first inning. Anthony worked six innings, allowing one run on three hits and two walks, with one hit batsman; he struck out 10.

Wood was the winning pitcher, giving up one earned run on five hits and one walk, with two hit batsmen and nine strikeouts in seven innings.

S'field Christian 7, Agape 6: Canton Agape bounced back from a 7-1 deficit after four innings to make it close, but the Wolverines couldn't quite catch Southfield Christian Monday at Griffin Park.

David Donaldson was the losing pitcher for Agape, allowing seven runs (three earned) on seven hits and two walks and one hit batsman in seven innings, with four strikeouts.

Donaldson also had two hits (including a double), scoring twice. Mike Bommarito added two hits and an RBI, Josh Anthony had three hits (with a double) and Mike Ossana chipped in with two hits and an RBI.

"We're right there," said Agape coach Jeremy Chrastina. "We just can't quite find a way to get these good teams."

Oakland Christian 12, PCA 5: The game was close until a couple of mistakes in the seventh inning led to seven runs that doomed Plymouth Christian Academy Tuesday at Griffin Park.

The win improved Auburn Hills Oakland's record to 4-1 overall, 2-0 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference Clay Welton started but was relieved after giving up five earned runs. Mark Erickson took the loss in relief, allowing four runs (two earned) in 1 2/3 innings.

Jim Morrison led the Eagles' attack with three hits, driving in two runs. Brian Carnevale and Xander Younce each contributed two hits and an RBI.

This will be a busy week for PCA², with five games scheduled.

Madonna splits 2 twinbills with Cardinals

The season came to a splitting end for Madonna University's softball team.

Madonna split two doubleheaders with Saginaw Valley State on Wednesday and Thursday.

And since it failed to qualify for the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference post-season playoffs, its season is over.

The Lady Crusaders finished their season 19-35. Saginaw Valley is 18-25-1.

Madonna beat Saginaw Valley on Wednesday, 5-3, before falling by a 12-4 score.

SOFTBALL

Catcher Arin Fowler went 3for-3 and shortstop Kristy McDonald went 3-for-4 including a double. Second baseman Candace Morgan went 2-for-4 while designated Pam Konwinski drove in two runs.

Jenny Tenyer went the distance with a 10-hitter. She struck out two and walked one.

Madonna had 12 hits overall and had a 4-2 lead after two innings. Saginaw Valley scored in the third but Madonna put up an insurance run in the sixth.

The Lady Crusaders pounded out 13 hits in the second game the same as the Cardinals — but couldn't score again after putting up four in the first.

Saginaw Valley scored three in the second and chased losing pitcher Missy VanDoorn with two in the third inning of the sixinning mercy game.

Center fielder Jamie Bobrowski drove in two runs while right fielder Stacie Wilson, first baseman Angela Litwin, designated hitter Konwinski and third baseman Meghan Quinn had two hits apiece.

Center fielder Jamie Bobrowski tripled.

Thursday, the Cardinals pounded out a 7-1 win in the opener while the Lady Crusaders bounced back for a 4-2 nightcap win. Tenyer (8-15) gave up 12 hits, walked one and struck out one. The Cardinals scored four in the first, one in the third and got their last two in the seventh.

Litwin was the only player with two hits and Konwinski had Madonna's lone RBI.

VanDoorn (10-14) came on in relief of Morgan to start the third and pitched five innings of two-hit shutout relief to pick up the victory.

Madonna scored all four of its runs in the fourth to overcome a 2-0 deficit.

Litwin, Konwinski and Wilson each had two hits for Madonna. Litwin and Wilson had the only RBI. Konwinski had a triple.

Or almost, anyway. Starter Ryan Johnson gave up just one hit and no walks in three innings, striking out four; reliever Clay Welton struck out eight in three hitless innings, walking just one; and Evan Alexander finished up with one inning, giving up a hit and a walk but fanning three. The pitching win went to Welton.

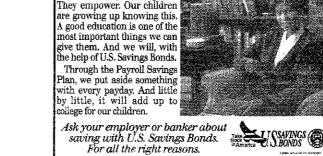

The win improved PCA's record to 5-4. Zoe is 2-6. Alexander, a sophomore, had

Spring wildflowers in full bloom

B6*

Hardwood forest have a carpet of spring wildflowers blooming now.

Spring beauty, a delicate pink flower with reddish stripes radiating from the center outward, is at its peak. Trillium, jack-in-the-pulpit, trout lily and others can also be seen depending on the composition of the forest floor.

But as you scan ahead to see where the trail is leading, you may also see blooms from a tree. In dry oak-hickory or beech-

maple forests, the juneberry tree is blooming. They do not tower into the upper canopy like most trees, rather

they are in the mid canopy, or about halfway up. Some may reach heights of 60 feet, most measure about 20-30 feet tall. TIM NOWICKI

Flowers of the juneberry are made from five narrow white petals about an inch long. I have not detected any fragrance from the flowers that might attract insects which pollinate them. An entire tree of blossoms must be an adequate target for the insects.

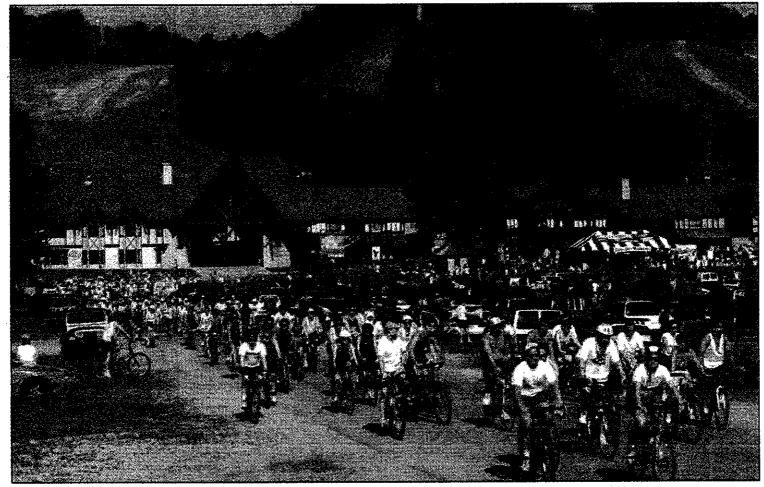

Juneberry, one of the common names of this beautiful and beneficial tree, is derived from the month in which the berries ripen.

Upon ripening, birds and various animals will gorge on this fresh feast. This is the kind of tree that is beneficial to plant in a backyard to attract wildlife. It's able to tolerate many different kinds of soils, except wet soils, and it's pretty while blooming.

Berries are good for birds, it does not grow too tall and it is a native plant. Look for the scientific name Amelancheir laevis or Amelancheir arborea.

A frequently used common name besides juneberry is serviceberry. The derivation of this name is full folklore In Michigan's cold climate the ground can freeze to depths of at least a couple feet, essentially preventing anyone from digging a hole in winter. During the days of the early pioneers, when someone died in winter, they could not be buried until spring. It is believed that the blooming of the serviceberry marked the end of winter and the ability to conduct a funeral service and burial for those who died in winter. Another explanation, is that services were postponed until the serviceberry bloomed in order to give relatives from mountainous areas time to travel.

Scenic ride: Trip up north doesn't start 'til you reach Boyne

Popular ride: The Zoo-De-Mackinac is in its 11th year of riders traveling from Boyne to Mackinaw City

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER skowalski@oe.homecomm.net

Boyne Highlands in the northern lower peninsula is well known for its ski slopes, but another activity in that region has gained on skiing in populari-

This is definitely not a snow job.

A 51-mile bicycle ride between Boyne Highlands and Mackinac City, which started one summer 11 years ago as something among eight friends from the Detroit area, has grown into an annual event that attracts nearly 2,000 riders.

The Zoo-De-Mackinac, to be held the weekend of May 19, is the creation of brothers Greg and Doug Drawbaugh, with help of friends from their days as students at Central Michigan University and ski weekends at Boyne Highlands. Zoo is a reference to the Zoo Bar, a popular hangout, and the ride's starting point.

Those with a win-at-all-cost attitude beware: Riders who finish the M-119 A modest start route along the Lake Michigan shoreline celebrate by lifting beer, not trophies at the end.

easy and no one ever does," Mee said. "Everyone is dancing, drinking, partying the night before, and then we pack the bars (in Mackinac) the next night."

Greg Drawbaugh remembers one of the late-night Friday revelers, Tim Peterson, years ago having as much trouble starting the ride as finishing it.

"He kept telling us he was going to be training for the thing and he never did," said Greg Drawbaugh, who works at an accounting firm in Troy. "So his strategy was to not party much the night before and get a good night's sleep. He ended up drinking too much, sleeping two hours.

"He rented his bike. We had a mass start, he rides 20 feet and his shoe lace gets caught in the chain link. He tips over into a mud puddle, gets up, cuts his shoe lace loose and rides the whole thing, 51 miles, all muddy, on two hours sleep.'

From its modest beginning, the event

"It says in the newsletter to take it at that point, officially naming it a business as liability and the need to cooperate with area officials and authorities became a greater concern.

Among those cooperating are a family friend, Steve Kircher, whose family owns Boyne Highlands.

Avid snow skiers, the Drawbaughs and their friends got the idea to bike from Boyne to Mackinac while driving north on scenic M-119 one year.

Snow is typically gone and temperatures can "soar" into the 70s by mid-May up north, but something heavier than a windbreaker is sometimes needed for the unpredictable climate.

"We thought 'Boy this is a beautiful road, wouldn't it be a neat place to bike, Greg Drawbaugh said. "A year or two later, we bought mountain bikes, the eight of us rode to Mackinac and had a few beers to celebrate. It was such a good time we decided to do it the next vear.

"We sent a flier out to about 10 other people, told them to meet at Boyne Highlands and 80 people showed up (the second year). It was all kind of word of mouth. It went from eight to 80, to 250, to 500 to a couple thousand."

that we can bring her so much business," said Greg Drawbaugh. "I think she serves more in one night than in a couple months."

All ages welcome

The median age for the Zoo-De-Mackinac is 25-40, the Drawbaughs say, and their mother Dolores is one of the exceptions.

Dolores avoids the Zoo on Friday night, although she's been known to join the post-ride celebration. She has talked her sister, Lorraine Antenucci, into coming along for the ride.

I don't get too many takers," said Dolores, who has trained for the ride with 30 mile daily bike rides at a winter home in Florida. "It's a little tougher (than Florida) but the scenery is prettier in Mackinac. It doesn't come any better than that."

Though some try go non-stop to Mackinac, most opt to stop about half-way at the Legs Inn where lunch is served.

Once riders arrive at Mackinac, a ferry ticket to the island is included in the admission cost.

The riders aren't alone on the bike route.

A large support crew comes along for assistance, providing medical attention or automobile transportation if a rider doesn't feel up to finishing. Riders' luggage is also transported to Mackinac for the overnight stay on Saturday, and there are enough automobiles or public transportation at a minimal fee to transport riders back to Boyne on Sunday.

What: 12th annual Zoo-De-Mackinac, a 51-mile bicycle ride

When: Saturday morning, May 19

Where: The bicycle ride — it's not a race starts at Boyne Highlands Resort and follows the scenic Lake Michigan shoreline to Mackinac City, where chartered boats wait to take riders to the final destination at Mackinac Island

Cost: $38 entry fee ($45 after May 5), which includes a pre-ride party Friday night at Boyne Highlands, luggage transportation to Mackinaw City, lunch at the Legs Inn Saturday, round-trip ferry transportation to and from Mackinac Island and post ride parties Saturday night. Riders either can bring their bikes or rent them upon arrival Serviceberry may also be a transformation of the word sarvissberry, which comes from an English derivation of a Latin term sorbus, which is a term used to describe a similar kind of fruit as that found on the juneberry.

Another common name give the juneberry is shadbush, derived from the fact that in certain parts of the country, this tree blooms when the shad make their spawning run.

As an under story tree in the forest, juneberry does not get a lot of light. Some trees cannot tolerate low light levels and will die, others like juneberry can tolerate and survive low light levels.

Because it cannot get a lot of light, juneberry is a slow growing tree. Slow growth results in a very dense, heavy, close grained wood. As a result of this dense wood it takes a very high polish.

Native Americans took advantage of this quality by making arrow shafts from this dense wood. They also realized that the berries of Amelancheir arborae are tasty.

Berries were made into pies and dried like raisins. Teas made from berries were used to cure digestive and other internal problems.

As you walk through the forest in spring it will be easy to identify the blooming juneberry, but after the blossoms are gone, look for its light gray smooth bark.

The ride starts about 10 a.m. Saturday and most pull into Mackinac City by late afternoon.

"Some people think it's really grueling but it's definitely not a race," said Chris Mee, a Birmingham salesman and one of the original eight. "It's a casual ride with everyone having fun. It's more of a social event.

"There's a few people who really think it's a race. We just laugh at them and say You really don't get it.' It's for fun, to meet people. Friday night up north that weekend all you see are bikes on all the cars."

Some riders have met their future wives or husbands on this trip. Some have just met "Ralph" - they are usually the ones who enjoyed the Zoo too long the night before.

grew to 250 riders by the third year. The Drawbaughs took the event more serious

The nearly year-long planning is worth all the fun packed into one weekend.

"The people we've met, letters we get about how much enjoyment they had makes it worthwhile," said Doug Drawbaugh, whose wife Kelley participates and helps organize the event.

The weekend gets underway with a Friday night tradition for most riders at the Elmira Inn, 15 minutes south of Boyne Highlands. There, riders find the welcome mat put out by owner "Ma." Included on the menu is "Ma's" creation, the "Potato Burger."

Coming from a family of more than 20 children, it's easy for "Ma" to treat a couple thousand as family.

"It's not the healthiest thing in the world but she's a neat lady and it's neat

The Zoo-De-Mackinac has about reached its saturation point in participants, with limited openings for this year's ride, but don't worry. It's just one of many weekends planned in the northern regions of the state by the adventurous Drawbaughs.

The sixth-annual Adventure Kayak Weekends are taking place Aug. 11, 18 and 25 and the seventh annual Biketoberfest is the weekend of Oct. 7 this vear.

Scheduled next winter are the fourth annual Adventure Snowshoe Weekends and eighth bi-annual Big Sky Ski Bash, held in conjunction with the Boyne Winter Carnival.

"If you're a young professional and into outdoor activities (these events are) a great place to meet someone in a nonthreatening atmosphere," said Greg Drawbaugh. "It's a really friendly group."

The live televised finals will wind up this eventful week on Tuesday, Oct. 23. There will also be youth squads in the Pro-Am, enabling our fine young bowlers in this area to compete for scholarship money. You read it here first, the ball which will be given out with fully paid entries is the hot new "Trauma" by Storm available in weights from 12 to 16 pounds. Entry forms will be available on bowling counters all over town starting in August or if anyone wants to get their entry in early to ensure not being shut out, call Taylor Lanes at (734) 946-9092.

In case you missed it, Myrtle Ringe was featured on WXYZ-TV at 5 and 11 p.m. newscasts on April 25 and again on the Sports Final on April 29. As you may recall, she is the 91-year-old from Redford who converted the 7-10 split a few weeks ago. Jay Berry did the interview at Mayflower Lanes, and she then went on a lane and threw a strike for the TV audience. Nice going, Myrtle.

The 9th Greater Detroit Senior Masters is now under way at 300 Bowl in Waterford. Going into this weekend's match play in order of the top qualifiers, were Dick Beattie of Dearborn leading the pack with an eight-game total of 1,842. Ed Dudek of Livonia made it to the third spot with a score of 1,711, only a pin behind Charles Jackson of Warren in second with 1,712. Joe Fitzsimmons of Waterford is in fourth (1,798), John Annual Awards Banquet last week at St. Wodarski of Westland is in fifth (1,701), Rick Capaldi of Canton 11th (1,658), Ken OfBrien of Troy in 15th (1,611), Mike Surdyk of Redford in 17th (1,607), Ken Kossick of Canton in 19th place (1,590), Ed Austreng of Waterford 22nd (1,572), Dan Mayer of Waterford 25th (1,563), Phil Horowitz of West Bloomfield 26th (1,557) and Mark Parise of Canton in 29th (1,555).

This is a strong representation of Observer & Eccentric cities competing with the best senior bowlers from all around the metro Detroit area. Match play started yesterday and continues through today to determine this year's champion. The 300 Bowl in located at 100 Cass Lake Road, phone (248) 682-6300.

If you saw the name Ken Kossick above, how about his son, Brent Kossick, who just returned form Muskegon where he competed in the YABA State Tournament last Sunday and rolled a 300 game along the way. It was his second 300 for this young man who is a student at Madonna University and wants to become a teacher and athletic coach. Don't be too surprised if Brent becomes a bowling coach somewhere along the way. The State Tournament is still ongoing, so it will be a while before we know how he finished in the standings.

The All-Star Bowlerettes held their

Mary's Cultural Center in Livonia. The league has just completed its 55th year and is now going to move the venue to Plaza Lanes in Plymouth next season, where they hope to continue to carry on the great traditions and storied history of the league. Many a great woman bowler has come this way, name them, they have bowled in the Bowlerettes at some time. rick by brick the light crawls across the wall of the Rialto in Grayling. Robert Gniewek is capturing the essence of the 1920s theater in oil for posterity.

It's half past 10 on a Monday morning and Gniewek eagerly speaks about the work in progress as he pages through photographs of his completed paintings.

One by one, Gniewek tells the story behind the urban landscapes. Roadside diners and motels, Art Deco theaters, a garage on Woodward Avenue in Royal Oak – each painting a picture of a time when life proceeded at a much slower pace. A Canton motel is from an April show, "Mid-20th Century Roadside Culture" at the Louis K. Meisel Gallery in New York, the Farmington Civic from another solo exhibition at the David Klein Gallery in Birmingham in November 1999.

"The Rialto is a single screen movie theater," said Gniewek. "There's so few of them left."

The Rialto is but one of the reasons Gniewek began painting Art Deco theaters and various commercial buildings around town in the late 1970s after earning a master's degree from Wayne State University. Surviving the 1967 Detroit riot, as a student at St. Cecilia High School in the heart of serve the past.

Preserving the past

"I grew up in Detroit," said Gniewek. "That's what I know; that's what I was attracted to, then I branched out to looking at urban landscapes throughout the world.

"I used to drive around the city and see what caught my eye. The theater series began with the Berkley in Royal Oak. Detroit has a rich history of Art Deco theaters of the '20s and '30s and today of course there's nothing left."

Gniewek expects the Rialto to take 250-275 hours to complete, a quarter of the time he put into a large-scale painting of Times Square. Photorealism is a slow, painstaking process. In the last 22 years, Gniewek's output seems small compared to a watercolorist's but the 140 paintings take the viewer back to a place where it seems possible to reach out and feel the coolness of a brick exterior.

Gniewek's ability to breathe life into a subject is why his work was published alongside artists Richard Estes and Chuck Close in Louis K. Meisel's book "Photorealism Since 1980." And it's why he's been invited to exhibit with Estes, Close and a group of Photorealists at a Denmark museum in late summer. Gniewek is currently preparing for a June exhibit at Van de Griff/Marr Gallery in Santa Fe, New Mexico, a show next year in in Japan. It seems the urban landscapes are popular with viewers regardless of where they live. The painting of the Redford Theatre sold at a September show at the Van de Griff/Marr Gallery.

Appeal of Realism

"The Realist movement started 20 years ago. Realism is where the appeal is for me," said Gniewek. "I like doing dramatic landscape, things people can relate to, things that bring back good memories, lots of bright color and movement. Focal points keep the eye moving around. There's so much going on."

The excitement of the night scenes especially appeal to David Klein who's represented Gniewek for more than six years. The strong contrasts between light and dark set a mood whether it's the Fox Theatre or the State.

Gniewek's researched them all and it shows as he leads a tour of a dozen or so of the 196 singlescreen movie theaters that showed movies in Detroit and its suburbs in the mid- to late 1940s.

"The 1920s Burlesk on Woodward was one of the original burlesque houses," said Gniewek. "The Colonial in Detroit showed movies 24 hours a day. The Senate on Michigan Avenue at Livernois still holds organ concerts a couple of times a year. Built in 1951, the Ford Wyoming is the only Art Deco

CIONAL WOLK.

Commissioned three years ago by First Presbyterian Church in Dearborn where it premiered, Requiem for the Past Millennium will spotlight the talents of the Ann Arbor Digital Music Ensemble, a 24-voice choral group under the direction of Bradley Bloom, and Stephen Wroble and his students in Schoolcraft College's Computer Technology Department who will provide the graphics.

This is the fifth time the Requiem will be presented to an audience. According to Nissen, singers in the All State High School Choir at Interlochen, University of Michigan Choir and Flint Festival Chorus loved the Requiem when they performed it in concert.

"There are still images, a photo album of portraits of humanity, good and bad," said Nissen, who began writing music as a young child. Nissen earned a doctorate in composition from the University of Michigan School of Music. "We're looking back to the past 1,000 years."

Bloom, who taught music at Schoolcraft College for 30 years before becoming associate dean for the University of Michigan School of Music on May 1, can't think of another Requiem that combines traditional text with electronic and traditional instruments.

"It's usually done with timpani, voice and organ but we're using synthesizers and wind controllers," said Bloom who initially learned of the work when conducting the Flint Festival Chorus concert. "We have literally sounds that reflect the past and sounds that are current and of an electronic nature, but always palatable.

"It's not heavy metal but at times is eerie, mysterious. It's a first-class work that travels a fine line between being accessible and yet challenging to performing artists."

New art form

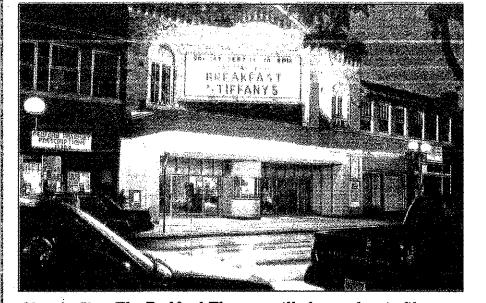

Wroble's biggest worry is to make sure the projected graphics, which he, Sarah Abati and Douglas Mumm flash on the screen, keep time with the music. Using three computers, the visual artists will overlap two different images at the same time onto the single screen.

"We believe we're creating a new art form, said Wroble, an associate

Marceau touches people with his soul

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN STAFF WRITER lchomin@oe.homecomm.net

Marcel Marceau smiles and suddenly he's 20 again. The mention of mime brings back a flood of memories - his studies with Etienne Decroux. At 20, Marceau enrolled at Charles Dullin's School of Dramatic Art in the Sarah Bernhardt Theatre in Paris to study with the mime master after saving 250 Jewish children from the Nazis during World War II as a member of the French Underground. It was at this time that he learned the depth of the tragedy. His father was deported to Auschwitz and never came back. Marceau's love for his art kept him strong but he never forgot those early years in France.

On the second day of a mime workshop, offered as part of the University Musical Society educational programming on the University of Michigan campus, Marceau demonstrates a walk expressing sadness, depression, despair, but also joy. After all, that's what he's given audiences for more than 50 years. An hour before, even

With his expressive face and dancer's body, he shows students that mime is not an abstract but a concrete world, and they must learn from the past. "Keaton," he said, "knew how to do the face." There are many references to Laurel and Hardy and a handful of comedic legends. As a child Marceau imitated Chaplin, then World War II broke out and he wanted to become a painter. Marceau went to art school in Limoges where with great pride he notes, Auguste Renoir was a student. All the while Marceau remained in the French Underground.

At the end of the war in 1945, he joined a military theater company and performed for General Patton's Sixth Army. The first article written about his mime appeared in Stars & Stripes.

By 1947 Bip, his alter ego, the little clown in a battered opera hat, was born and in 1948 he left studies with Decroux to create his company. Bip became part of his life forever.

CHORAL CONCERT

Ars Nova, a 26-member choral ensemble, will give a concert 7:30 p.m. Saturday, May 12 at First United Methodist Church, 6443 Merriman Road, Garden City.

Tickets $8, $5 seniors, for ages under 18. For more information, call (734) 421-8628.

"My Spirit Sang All Day" will feature music by Brahms, Dvorak, Britten, P.D.Q. Bach, Debussy, and other composers. Ars Nova was founded by its music director Craig Scott Symons in 1985. Symons is music director/organist at First United Methodist Church in Royal Oak where he oversees nine vocal and handbell choirs and a performing arts series. He holds master and doctor of musical arts degrees from the University of Michigan. As a conductor, he has led Wayne State University's Men's Glee Club.

"He's a very good director," said Daniel Showalter who joined the ensemble in 1990. Showalter is a substitute teacher in Westland in addition to conducting the train at Greenfield Village in Dearborn. "He tries to pick out pieces that you usually don't hear. Classical pieces that sound wonderful."

YOUTH ARTS FESTIVAL

More than 1,000 of the state's finest young artists will gather Thursday-Saturday, May 10-12 for the 39th annual Michigan Youth Arts Festival at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo.

This year's guest artist, Greg Reuter, is a music theater singer/dancer/actor and a graduate of the Creative and Performing Art program at Churchill High School. A troupe from the Livonia Public Schools CAPA program will perform at the Gala on opening night Thursday, May 10.

Unique to the state of Michigan, the festival honors Michigan high school students gifted in dance, drama, instrumental and vocal music, visual arts, creative writing, film and video. More than 60,000 students from across the state become involved in the adjudication process that results in over 900 students being invited to participate in the festival.

"The Focus on the Mission" photography exhibit will open with a reception 6-9 p.m. Thursday, May 10 at the Focus: HOPE Gallery in the Center for Advanced Technologies building at 1400 Oakman Boulevard, Dearborn.

Fifty-two students from more than 30 high schools in metro Detroit came together recently as part of a diversity project sponsored by the community arts department at Focus: HOPE.

The photography project challenged participants through discussion, interactive activities and photographic assignments to think about the role of diversity in their lives and communities. The goal was to leave with new friends, experiences and a better knowledge and respect for other cultures.

Power of words inspires children's book author

BY ALICE RHEIN STAFF WRITER

For Ann Arbor author Kurt Hassler, the idea for writing a children's book came out of a rather heady class in medieval literature he took while attending Indiana University.

He became intrigued with the power of the word and how words were thought to possess power.

That's what planted the seed for Hannah and the Homunculus that Ann Arbor-based Sleeping Bear press recently published.

Hannah is a precocious girl whose "No" is stolen in the night by a rag doll obsessed with increasing his vocabulary. When Homunculus captures her precious negation in a jar, Hannah literally can't say no to her father's request for her to eat her oatmeal, or her mother's request to clean the garage.

Hannah ponders her predicament in the woods, where she happens upon the rag doll's tree stump and stash of other words such as "compromise," "stalemate" and "impasse."

She engages in a word battle with Homunculus, and finally strikes a deal. She knows where else that he can find her word.

After two years of thinking about the Hannah character, Hassler wrote the book in one afternoon in Central Park. He chose the nemesis to be homunculus because it is an obscure word that's fun to say, but hardly a vocabulary staple.

"I like the idea of using challenging words in children's liter-ature," said Hassler. "So much today is simple, and while that's a good start, I like to build on that. It fits into my philosophy of the power of the word."

What Hassler also wanted to character that had a real voice. June 9.

"I think this is particularly important with little girls," he said, noting that one of Hannah's strengths is that she is outspoken and not afraid to say no.

Illustrated by award-winning artist Kate Darnell, Hannah and the Homunculus is a visual feast of bold color and movement. She also illustrated Fibblestax that was published last year by Sleeping Bear Press.

Hassler said that he will feel a sense of accomplishment if people read the book and can take something away from it. "I want children to raise questions, and begin to grow a new vocabulary." he said.

Kurt Hassler will be signing copies of his book at Borders Books and Music in downtown Ann Arbor at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 6, and at Arborland Mall in accomplish was to establish a Ann Arbor at 3 p.m. Saturday, hall (the European term for vaudeville)," said Marceau. "Chaplin was not just an entertainer. He touched with his soul. I want to bring this to theater about comedy and tragedy of life."

Marceau peppers his instruction with references to master painters and sculptors like Michelangelo and Rodin. He compares mimes to sculptors creating gestures in their work. He speaks frequently of choreographer Martha Graham. Marceau hopes to leave a legacy like theirs by passing his knowledge on to students in workshops and at his school in Paris. Éstablished in 1978, the Ecole Internationale de Mimodrame de Paris offers a three-year curriculum, based on grammar and technique, to students from 20 nations. His Ann Arbor workshops have been around nearly as long, but his affiliation with UMS goes back even further. Marceau first performed on the UMS series in 1971.

Award

On May 12, he will receive the UMS Distinguished Artist Award at the Ford Honors Program at Hill Auditorium. The highlight of the evening, though, will be his 30th UMS series performance.

Over the years, Marceau's received many awards including two Emmys and the French government's highest honor, Officier de la Legion d'Honneur.

"I hope to inspire mimes like Martha Graham inspires dancers," said Marceau who earlier used the dance term plie' to describe the lunge he uses to mimic depression. "When you have no school you cannot give heritage to people - what is the art of mime. Like dance, every art has a grammar. I brought silence on stage. When I first

Michael Lee waits nearby as Marcel Marceau finishes an interview. Lee was instrumental in bringing the master of mime to the University of Michigan for a two-week residency. He'll chauffeur Marceau back to his hotel before returning again the next day for the first week of workshops in the Dance Building on campus. Lee is looking forward most to the advanced workshops being held the following week. He began studying with Marceau in the 1980s.

"The workshops are a reminder how difficult mime is, going back to the basics with Marcel in mime vocabulary." said Lee, a mime for the last 20 years. Lee, who owns the Opus Mime studio in Ann Arbor, opens the TreeTown Theatre Festival at the Performance Network on May 31. "He changes, he changes emotional content as he changes."

Lee throws his head back to demonstrate one of the earlier exercises.

Motivation

Students come to the workshops for different reasons. James Smith of Ohio came to perfect the mime he and his

But many, like Nancy Lyon of New York City, are professional mimes or hope to be. While Smith said, he "didn't realized how much is involved. It's not as easy as it looks learning the different gestures and the discipline," Lyon knows firsthand. This is her 15th year studying with Marceau.

"I'd follow him anywhere," said Lyon who started out as a dancer. "It's a hard profession. I'm still learning all the nuances. It's such a deep art, so profound. Even after you get the movement, there's the acting. After years of working on form now I can go for the feeling.

"I want to be the best I can be to continue his legacy – he is the Michelangelo, the Mozart – so that it doesn't get left to the street mimes. That it continues to be an art form."

Lyon, like Marceau, could talk about mime for hours if left uninterrupted.

"It's the most difficult art form. It's not as physical as dance but it encompasses spiritual and dramatic. There's an idea or story you're trying to get through. I wanted to be able to do movement that could make people laugh or cry. He gives you a window into your soul and how to unlock it."

nized me. It's wonderful."

Only moments before Marceau demonstrated the reason students flock to the workshops. Accompanied by his assistant Gyongui Biro, Marceau struts his Walk of Humanity. But first he speaks about the letters young members of the French Underground wrote home before they were shot. The writing touches the reader deeply. This is where his Walk of Humanity originated. It is a metaphor that "goes beyond reality, touches the root of reality." Later he will say, "You cannot shoot humanity. Evil will always be there. Good will always be there."

The seriousness of the subject is broken only when Marceau says, "Of course, it will be no good but let's try it."

The laughter heard earlier returns. In between exercises for smelling a flower, one of his most famous routines, and drinking movements that earn a chuckle when Marceau throws back a schnapps, the poet-like voice relays golden gems. "Silence is tiny" is a phrase he repeats to help students tone down their exaggerated movements. Above all, though, he wants them not to imitate him but to create their own work. Marceau wants the art of mime to survive long after he's gone.

On tour

At age 78, he'll continue to tour as long as he's "strong." After Ann Arbor, he plays Buffalo. He's already been to Princeton and Bloomington, Ind. In August, it's on to Germany then Japan and back to America next fall.

If I didn't tour I would be forgotten," he says humbly.

The next day he and the students will tackle courage, fear, pride, love and hate.

"My art has kept me young. The fact is when I play I'm much deeper. It's my life. It's my passion. It will be as the first time I do it every time."

professor of computer graphics and a Plymouth resident. "It's a visual performance that only exists during the time it's being created."

Livonia Symphony Orchestra

The Livonia Symphony Orchestra isn't inventing a new art form at its chamber concert on Friday, May 11, but making classical and modern music upclose and personal.

Spring Vignettes features such popular selections as Leonard Bernstein's Maria alongside Haydn's Symphony No. 22.

"It's for fun not education," said LSO conductor Volodymyr Shesiuk of Garden City. "Maybe people will sing with us. Each time we do a chamber concert we have good audience. It's not a big hall so we can be closer to people.'

The only thing that worries Shesiuk about the season finale is his violin solo with the 20member chamber orchestra. The Ukrainian-born conductor is used to leading musicians from the podium not being the one in the spotlight for Rachmaninoff's Vocalise.

"Yes," he answers when asked if he's nervous about the performance then quickly changes the subject to another highlight of the Friday evening program -Haydn's Philosopher Symphony.

"He was a composer for high society but has taken melody and themes from lower society. What's important for this is orchestration - two English horns played by Kristen Williams and Barbara Grover. I'm also looking forward to Carl von Dittersdorf's Sinfonia Concertante for Double Bass (played by Steve McKenzie) and Viola (Mircea Cure). How often can you hear solo by double bass and viola?"

Name that tune

Carl Karoub, on the other hand, is excited about the second half of the program which he'll be conducting. Karoub, who plays French horn with the LSO, created new arrangements for several of the selections on the portion titled Name That Tune.

We're playing Swanee from 1919," said Karoub who together with members of the orchestra recently started an endowment fund to insure the future of the LSO. "Gershwin wrote it, Al Jolson loved it. A Scott Joplin rag Easy Winner from The Sting, and Embraceable You, written for string quartet, rearranged for full orchestra - it's all from the early days of Gershwin and Al Jolson. It should be fun with the audience participating. The female and male voices trying to out do each other."

It's a good thing music lovers don't have to choose between these two concerts. Luckily, they're on different nights so why not make a weekend of it.

How to purchase perfume for Mother's Day

BY NICOLE STAFFORD STAFF WRITER nstafford@oe.homecomm.net

ift-giving is a tricky business. Just locating a gift "that'll do" demands more than casual retail browsing. And while the process overwhelms many at Christmas time, it deceives even the most seasoned of shoppers come Mother's Day. We're talking about one gift here, something sweet, something personal. A little something mom wouldn't buy for herself. How difficult can it be?

Given you have an eye for precisely the sort of thing that tickles mom's heart and the time to find it, no problem. Short of that, you'll either find yourself in the lingerie department in search of another robe or somewhere ritzy forsaking thoughtfulness for extravagance.

Symbolically, Mother's Day gifts are heavy duty; you want to indulge the woman who rarely indulges herself and capture your one-of-a-kind intimacy.

With flowers, you're half way there. Go one step further with perfume roses or orange blossom or Lily of Valley every day of the year - you've found intimacy and decadence in a bottle,

"Perfume or fragrance is one of the most personal and extravagant things you can give a person," said Laurence Williams, Jacobson's divisional merchandise manager for beauty and fragrance. "The person receiving the gift recognizes what an extravagant, thoughtful item it is.'

So popular is the gift of fragrance that Jacobson's sells more perfume during Mother's Day and Christmas than during the rest of the year, said Williams. For most department stores, the same is true. Indeed, the fragrance industry thrives on gift-giving. That and its ability to continuously renew itself with the introduction of new scents each and every season.

As she likes it

Don't worry which fragrances are new or hot or hip (don't pay attention to those complex fragrance descriptions, either). The first rule of perfume gift-giving is knowing what a particular woman, in this case mom, likes. If you're not sure, look and take note, ask dad or mom's best friend. Make a list of the fragrances that mom loves and wears, including perfume name and type, as well as brand.

Light choice: Fragrance is a personal, yet extravagant, gift. If you don't know what your gift recipient's favorite scent is, purchase a light fragrance like Allure by Chanel.

centration class. Even if the bottle is a quarter full, she'll appreciate the gift, if the fragrance is an all-time favorite or one she wears daily.

Keep in mind that perfume doesn't last forever and starts to lose its character once opened. On average, fragrances last three years from the date they were manufactured. Storing perfume in a cool dry place away from factured more than two or three years

If, on the other hand, you're looking for a discontinued fragrance - perhaps one of mom's old favorites - you may have no choice in the matter. Furthermore, fragrance outlets and small, independent perfumeries, as well as some perfume web sites, are the best bet when it comes to finding discontinued, rare or unusual scents.

The whole deal: Mom isn't often likely to overindulge herself, but you can with a gift set in her favorite fragrance. Chanel's gift sets for Mother's Day run $58.50-75 at local department stores.

Buying tips

🖬 If you don't have a specific fragrance in mind, make a list of those you know she likes and uses; bring the list to the perfume counter and ask for recommendations

If you want to surprise her with a brand new fragrance or one that's new to her, choose one from the same scent category.

Don't worry about those complicated fragrance descriptions or a fragrance's 'notes.' You're only concerned with the its dominant scent characteristics.

R Fragrances are categorized by strength of concentration, or the amount of oil they contain. The greater the concentration, the stronger the scent, the longer it lasts and the more expensive it will be. Parfum has the greatest concentration. Eau de parfum is next followed by eau de toilette and cologne. Eau de cologne is the least concentrated. Popular Internet sites for perfume 🛢 www.fragrancenet.com 1.1.33 🔳 www.perfumania.com www.fragrance zone.com (wholesale prices) 🔳 www.fragrancewish.com

While many Michigan retailers projected a rise in summer sales, most also believe the economic slump will linger.

Sixty-one percent of retailers expect second quarter sales to top last year's numbers, according to the monthly Michigan Retail Index Survey. It's the highest level of optimism since September.

However, when questioned if they expect the current downturn to be short or long - at least 67 percent said "long."

Most brands or designers - some-times referred to as perfume "houses"

- manufacture an array of fragrances, each of which can be quite different from the next. Don't assume mom will like a perfume because it comes from a house or designer of another fragrance she wears.

Fragrances come in five types or classes based on oil concentration. Concentration is directly connected to the potency and longevity of a fragrance, as well as its price tag.

The greater the concentration, the stronger the scent, the longer it will last and the more expensive it will be. In order of concentration from greatest to lowest, they classes are: Parfum, eau de parfum, eau de toilette, cologne and eau de cologne.

Ideally, you'll be able to replenish mom's running-on-empty supply of a particular perfume in the same con-direct sunlight best preserves quality and character.

To save or not to save

If you're replacing a particular bottle of fragrance that mom loves, uses and needs, you'll probably save a few dollars off the retail price by shopping at a discount outlet or on the Internet. In today's marketplace, giving discounted fragrance isn't a taboo. Perfume can be expensive; a discount might allow you to buy a gift you otherwise couldn't afford.

Just make sure you're buying mom exactly what she likes and uses, said Arlene DeAngelo, district manager at The Fragrance Depot, a discount perfume outlet at Great Lakes Crossing in Auburn Hills.

Most discount fragrance retailers have no-return policies, said DeAngelo. At The Fragrance Depot, for instance, purchases are a final sale unless the customer requests permission for exchange be written on the sales receipt.

When shopping at a discount outlet, it's also a good idea to ask how long a fragrance has been on the shelf or check its manufacture date. Beware of retailers, whether an outlet or perfumery, that carry fragrances manu-

Department stores limit offerings and have to make space for the steady and seasonal stream of new fragrances. And while outlets offer savings of up to 40 percent off department store prices, they only stock what they're able to purchase at a discount. Outlets also sell tester bottles of perfume at an additional discount, so make sure you're getting the "gift-packaged" version when buying for mom.

Thrill of a new scent

"Obviously, if you know what she wears and needs, it makes the pro-cess much easier," said Williams. "If vou don't, it's still not a huge risk.'

The safest route is to buy a fragrance that mom already has but in a different concentration category. Many, if not most, women, like to have perfumes of varying potency on hand for different occasions. Generally speaking, parfum, though perfect for evening wear, is too strong for the office or grocery shopping. Eau de toilette, on the other hand, is light enough to wear day-to-day.

"Most fragrance people are willing to try something new," added Williams.

Her formula for success: Bring a list of mom's favorite perfumes to the fragrance counter and ask for a recommendation.

Most women are drawn to perfume from one scent category, such as floral, citrus, sweet or spicy. Women also tend to prefer a certain strength of fragrance, a characteristic separate from potency and oil concentration.

Ask for suggestions based on scent category and strength. When in doubt err on the side of a lighter fragrance. Current best-selling perfumes include: DKNY in the citrus category; Angel by Thierry Mugler and Lolita Lempicka both from the sweet category, Chanel No. 5 in the floral category; and Rush by Gucci and Poison by Christian Dior both from the spicy category.

Paradise found

Oceanfront villa in Jamaica, now that's a vacation

BY SANDIE PARROTT SPECIAL WRITER

our own — well, OK — rented villa overlooking the ocean with your own pool and staff. Now, that is a vacation!

Picture this — you arrive at the villa after about a four-hour flight and a long drive from the Montego Bay Airport. The staff greets you at the curb, takes your luggage and says dinner is ready whenever you are.

Does this sound like a dream? Well. I have done this and it's wonderful and it isn't that expensive!

The Villa Life

The typical villa or vacation home comes with a staff appropriate for the luxury, location and size of the property. For example, our four-bedroom villa came with a live-in cook/housekeeper and a caretaker along with another maid who came in daily.

Our dealings were mostly with the housekeeper. She made sure the bar was stocked to our liking, meals prepared for our pleasure and she made suggestions for places to go or things to do. She also made reservations or called for availability.

We had a two-story villa with a circular staircase, our own pool off of a private walled courtyard, a huge semicircular deck off the back with stairs leading down a cliff to the ocean below.

Good Luck

We even had a few coconut trees on the property. One day, the caretaker shimmied up a tree with his machete. He cut off a couple for our son and his friend. He chopped off the top and told them to drink the cool coconut juice. He then said to toss them in the ocean with a wish for good luck. This made quite an impression on the guys.

Fresh Catch

If you are going

Villas and vacation homes

There are many companies that specialize in this type of vacation. Many travel agents can locate information about villas. They are very popular for people who want extra privacy or a chance to have a group of friends or family in one location. Sizes of villas start from one-bedroom cottages to huge mansions with 10 or more bedrooms. Rates are either on a daily or weekly basis and are comparable to a hotel or package vacation.

Rental cars

There are many rental car companies, but they are always short on vehicles, especially larger ones. The cars are typically foreign, so controls might be backwards. For example our car had the turn signal and wiper blades reversed. We always laughed when we accidentally turned on the wipers when we were turning.

Try to reserve before you leave for your vacation and bring your confirmation number with you. Driving is slow and on the left. Be on the lookout for huge potholes, men digging trenches (with the warning sign at the edge of the ditch) and people and animals darting across the road.

Dunns River Falls

If you are in Jamaica, you must climb the Dunns River falls. Get there early, before the tour buses, or it gets very crowded. The cost is $6 with an additional $1 for a locker and $5 if you want to rent special shoes. If you have sturdy, waterproof shoes, with tread soles, you will be fine. Plan on some time for doing this activity. It may be too difficult for small children and older adults.

Requirements

Jamaica requires a passport or a birth certificate with a raised seal and picture identification for entry into the country. Leaving the country requires a $27 Departure Tax.

Currency

One U.S. dollar is currently equal to 47.27 Jamaican dollars. The rate is constantly fluctuating so check it immediately before you go.

Shopping

Things to purchase in Jamaica include Blue Mountain Coffee, Appleton Rum, Liqueurs like Tia Maria, jerk seasonings, Scotch Bonnet (the hottest pepper in the world) pepper sauce, Macanudo cigars, woodcarvings and straw goods.

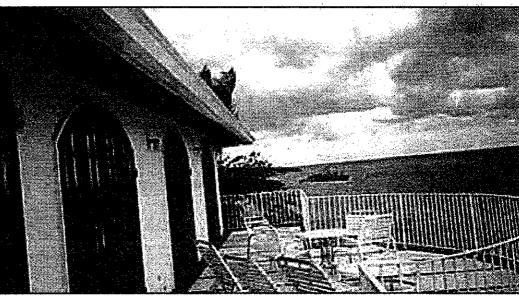

Check the woodcarvings for types of borer insects. Things to avoid include ganga (it's illegal there, too), tortoise shells, food from street vendors and hair braiding (unless done at a reputable parlor with clean tools).

sters each day from our deck chairs perched high above the water. One day a diver came to our dock and asked if we wanted fresh lobster for dinner.

The cook picked out the best We watched the men dive ones, held them up and asked if down and set their traps for lob-they were okay. She immediately went and put them in a pot to cook.

One small caveat --- lobster fishing is closed from April through June, so make sure you abide by the laws during those months.

Private paradise: The view is stunning from a villa balcony overlooking theCaribbean Sea.

Market Day

The rest of our food for the week required a trip to the market with the cook for choosing what we wanted to eat. That was a fun experience and great for photographs. She knew which stalls had the best produce and price. The little booths sold an assortment of fresh fruit like ackee, melon, bananas, star apple, breadfruit, yams, callaloo (like spinach) and potatoes. The smell of spices was very strong, including allspice, ginger, nutmeg and garlic.

The food was quite inexpensive, but you must include it in your budget for the trip. Villa vacation agents can give you an idea of how much money to bring. Of course, that will depend on your preferences.

Ice cream seemed to be difficult to find when we were there. The housekeeper told us to go down the road to this tiny little neighborhood bar. Sure enough they had ice cream, tucked away in a small cooler.

Dinners were served to us like royalty. The setting was a tropically furnished formal dining room with French doors open to the Jamaican breezes and the ocean views. There was even a anything or were ready for the next course!

Everyone driving a vehicle (that term is used very loosely) in Jamaica is a potential taxi. We learned this when we asked how we could get to the town of Ocho Rios, about four miles away. The housekeeper told us to let her know when we were ready. She then walked us out to the road and put out her thumb! A late model dark green Mercedes pulled up. There were already people inside. We said, "No, you are already too crowded." But the driver insisted he could take us. So we all piled into the car. The occupants sat on each others laps to give us room — after all we were paying! We said we wanted to go to a nice beach. He took us to Turtle Beach. You have to picture this: A beat up old Mercedes loaded with passengers pulling up to an all-inclusive resort. The driver says, "Security," and they wave us through. It was a beautiful beach.

Beep, beep

This is the high pitched double beep sound made by the small cars driven by natives of Jamaica. This is a language all on its own. It means: Hello - I know you; Get out of my way; bell for us to ring if we needed I'm going to turn right now; Do you want a ride?; I'm stopping to pick someone up and You are kind of cute.

Doing the falls

My son and his friend wanted to climb Dunns River Falls. They went to the bottom of the 600foot falls where they empty into the ocean and waited for a guide to escort them up. We were afraid. I freely admit it. The guide told them to hold hands and form a human chain on the rocks. He demonstrated where to climb so everyone stayed safe. He occasionally stopped so the less daring people who used the stairs could take pictures or point out special elements to the climbers like a natural rock slide.

Jamaica is a study of contrasts. It is Reggae music, wonderful beaches, great spicy food, dreadlocks, poverty and persistent vendors. Have an open mind when you visit. Also, keep in mind that some areas of Jamaica, because of nude beaches and persistent ganga vendors. may not be suitable for children.

A villa vacation is a great way to experience the real Jamaica. Instead of staying in a hotel with everyone else, try living in a home or condo with all the comforts you can imagine.

FOCUS ON WINE

RAY & ELEANOR HEALD

Wizards enhance sales of red wines

n the year 2000, Australian wine sales in the U.S. grew 41 percent. In no small measure, it's due to increasing appreciation of Australian red wines from talented winemakers - the red wizards of Oz.

Recently, much buzz from Australia has centered around the acquisition of Rosemount Estates by the giant of the industry, Southcorp Wines, whose powerhouse brands include the standard-bearer Penfolds, Lindemans (currently the best-selling Australian import), the California joint venture Seven Peaks, along with Coldstream Hills, Seaview, Seppelt and Wynns Coonawarra Estate. With Rosemount now in the stable, Southcorp om is always there for you - nurturing your body with food and your soul and spirit with her wisdom. So on Mother's Day (Sunday, May 13), delight Mom with special treats to show how much the family appreciates what she does every day.

Let Mom relax while the family shows its appreciation of her many talents by preparing Sunday brunch. Mom will appreciate the family's efforts and thoughtfulness in creating an elegant and sweet day.

Of course, family members don't need to limit the breakfast or meal for Mother's Day. She'll certainly appreciate the surprise of a simple and pretty meal at any time of year.

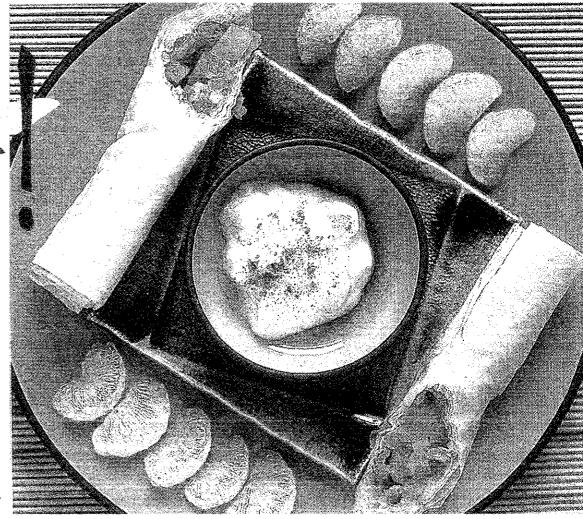

Banana Split French Toast is as delicious as it looks. Maraschino cherries give this savory brunch entrée a festive look.

Get festive

For dinner, consider cornish hens for an entree. Cornish hens are hybrids developed from White Rock and Cornish chickens. They taste like chicken (honest!) and can replace it in most recipes. They create an impressive sight, roasted whole, turning an ordinary meal into an elegant one. Serve the hens with wild rice.

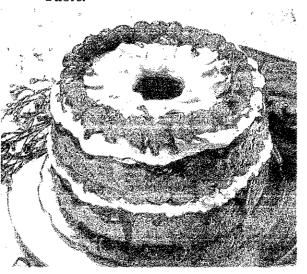

Then there's dessert. Honor Mom with a fancy dessert. Chocolate Angel Cake looks impressive, but it's easy for Dad and the kids to make with a cake mix and a can of tangy cherry pie filling.

Not challenging enough? OK, then there's Pear

Sweet accompaniments

When you want a dessert that is not too filling after a hearty, heart-healthy meal, this artfully arranged Asian-flavored sensation provides the finishing touch. You can also pack the spring rolls with or without the sauce - for something different in your brown bag.

(Please note that you need to thaw the phyllo dough in the refrigerator a day ahead of time.)

PEAR SPRING ROLLS WITH CITRUS DIPPING SAUCE

- Butter-flavor vegetable oil spray
- 2 medium pears, such as Anjou, Bartlett or
- Bosc (10 to 12 ounces)
- 1/4 cup golden raisins
- 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts
- 1 tablespoon light brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon chopped crystallized ginger (about one slice) or 1/8 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/8 cup mandarin oranges, canned in water or light syrup, drained and finely chopped (optional)
- 1/8 teaspoon ground mace or ground nutmeg
- 8 sheets (about 12-by-16 1/2 inches) frozen

Oz is a result of very good wines at reasonable prices. Because land prices are cheap, overall wine production costs in Australia are significantly lower than in California.

Not bound by European traditions or a bevy of wine laws, Oz winemakers have freedom to innovate. Big volume brands score with their wine blends. Not just through blending wines from a number of regions for consistent taste year to year, but putting wines of complementary character, such as shiraz, grenache and mourvedre together to craft flavor red wines.

Get to know the little guys

High volume leaders in the Australian wine industry have been challenged.

Classy, stylish and complex red wines are also being produced by the little guys, small producers who only within a year or so, have found importers to bring their wines to the U.S.

Small producers promote regionalism. Like their counterparts in the best wine regions of the world, they realize that there are special places to grow grapes and are revealing this on their labels.

Special places are also rare. Production is low and some of these wines are pricey. We recently went in search of the best from small producers.

What we discovered is not unlike elsewhere in the great world of wine. The pricey stuff was great. In particular, three Clarendon Hills Shiraz: 1999 "Piggott Range" Shiraz $102, 1998 "Liandra"$70 and 1999 "Moritz" $52.50.

From Victoria, 1998 David Traeger Shiraz $32 had a touch of mint over gentle oak, the character that people rave about in a Heitz Martha's Vineyard Cabernet from the Napa Valley. Some show stoppers were not Shi-

You can really surprise Mom by planting flowers in her garden or as borders in the yard. Grab the ones she likes. Or you can buy a hanging basket for the garage overhang or a container plant to lighten up the porch.

- 1/2 cup fat-free or lowfat flavored vogurt, such as mandarin orange, tangerine, vanilla, peach, apricot, apricot mango or raspberry
- Ground mace or ground nutmeg (optional)

Preheat overn to 375 ° F. Spray a rimmed baking sheet with vegetable oil spray.

Keeping unused phyllo covered with a damp dish towel or damp paper towels to prevent drying, lightly spray one side of a sheet of dough with vegetable oil spray. Place short end toward you. Lay another sheet on the first and lightly spray with vegetable oil spray. Spoon about 1/3 cup pear mixture in center, spreading it so you leave about a 2-inch border all around dough. Fold about 2 inches of each long side toward the center of the dough. Starting at one short end, roll dough jelly-roll style to enclose filling (you'll have a cylinder shaped like a spring roll). blood pressure. Based on these results, the National High Blood Pressure Education Program now suggests people with high blood pressure should follow the DASH diet for prevention and management of hypertension. The DASH diet includes nine servings of fruits and vegetables per day, which are rich sources of potassium, magnesium and fiber.

Let's look at some of the popular fruits and veggies of the season and unique ways to eat them.

I invested in an inexpensive juicer several years ago. Today cantaloupe remains one of my favorite fruits for juicing. It makes for a quick spring/summer "pick-me-up."

Watermelon

Watermelon is a favorite of Michelle Soltz of Huntington Woods, who craved it when she was pregnant with her second child, Madelyne. "I used to cut it up into little squares and eat it," Soltz said.

Strawberries are enjoyed by Donna Sklar of Farmington Hills, who adapted a strawberry shortcake recipe to create a healthy alternative. (See inside Taste).

"This dessert never fails to delight guests who think it is an extravagance," Sklar said. "I often keep strawberries in the freezer so I have been able to make this for last-minute or unexpected guests."

In salads and side dishes, Sklar enjoys asparagus. She used to tell her children that spring was officially here when asparagus was 79 cents a pound. Sklar adds fresh asparagus to salad, seasons and broils it, or mashes the asparagus and mixes it with mayonnaise. "It's great on top of pumpernickel bread with onion," said Sklar, who learned of this dish from a young Scandinavian couple.

Kiwi, a green delicacy, is enjoyed by my daughter. You can cut a kiwi in half and scoop the halves out with a spoon. It's a great treat while you're on the go. (You can also place it in a plastic bag in your child's lunch box, along with a spoon.)

Herbs accent dishes

For a garnish on salads, chives may be used. Common chives do not have bulbs and hardy chives have many long yellowish, brown bulbs.

Fresh peas are prepared with mint by Kathy Fresia of Huntington Woods. She snips the mint leaves raz, but a Bordeaux varietal blend, 1998 Nepenthe The Fugue $33 and a 1999 Cabernet Sauvignon from Kangarilla Road $24.

At under $30, there are some very flavorful Shiraz including 1999 Clonakilla Langhorne Creek $21. In this wine, the cooler climate of the region offers brighter, less jammy shiraz fruit and loads of sophistication.

The 1998 Elderton $28 has depth and class. The 1999 Franklin Estate "Isolation Ridge" $22 has a solid fruit core with a touch of leather, much like a Rhone red. Big, rich, round and uniquely Oz best describes 1996 David Wynn Shiraz. 1999 Hewitson "L'Oizeau" $29 is mellow and very easy to like, as is the 1998 Kangarilla Road $24 with bright, juicy fruit.

Top value reds

Independent of variety, the price of these red gems from Oz make them very attractive. The "Langhorne" character showed through in 1999 Buckley's Cabernet Merlot $12. 1999 David Wynn Shiraz $13 is all about raspberry fruit and peppery spice.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Hepatitis

The nation's "silent epidemic" of hepatitis threatens to ruin the health of millions of Americans and overwhelm the liver transplant system even further. Many of the 4 million people estimated to carry hepatitis don't even know it. Many more engage in risky behaviors that can transmit the virus – from body piercing and tattooing to unprotected sex and intravenous drug use. And anyone who received a blood transfusion before 1992 is at risk, too.

To help the public understand how they can help themselves or their loved ones avoid or cope with hepatitis infection, the University of Michigan Health System will hold a Hepatitis Awareness Night 6:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 8, in Room 100 of Ypsilanti High School, 2095 Packard Road, Ypsilanti.

Drs. Anna Lok and Robert Fontana, UMHS hepatitis specialists, will discuss who's at risk, how to find out if you have the disease, and what might happen to those who have it. They'll also present an update of the latest treatments and clinical trials.

For more information, call (734) 615-0158.

The sneezin' season

Suffering from sniffles, sneezes and nasal drips? How do you know if it's a late-winter head cold or the beginning of spring allergies?

According to Dr. Edward Zoratti, head of Allergy and Clinical Immunology at Henry Ford Health System, there are some basic guidelines to help distinguish allergies from a cold or sinus infection.

Allergies: Nasal mucus tends to be clear; no fever is present; symptoms are more recurrent and more persistent over a several-week period and improve with prescription or over-thecounter antihistamine decongestants.

Common cold: Nasal mucus is cloudy or discolored; fever may be present; symptoms improve over a week; symptoms are responsive to over-thecounter decongestants such as Sudafed. Antihistamines have little effect.

The timing of symptom onset also helps an allergy specialist determine the culprit. Trees begin budding in March and continue to bud through mid-May. Just about that time, grass allergies set in and last through July.

Tiped Trens Busy high school schedules leave little sleep time ike most teens, Kate Keim, 16, and Samantha Juras, 17, of Canton never get enough sleep. They know they should go to bed earlier, especially on school nights, but. ...

"Everybody I know goes to bed late, everybody," said Keim, a junior at Salem High School. "Do the sleep experts go to bed early? No, I don't think so."

Staying awake in classes is often difficult, and first hour at 7:15 a.m. can be real killer, said Juras, a junior at Canton High School. "You fall asleep in classes. Even if teachers hit you with an eraser, you don't wake up."

up." "Everybody in first hour is out of it," said Keim.

The problem is a serious one. It's about more than sleepy teens nodding off in class. Sleep deprivation can be a matter of life and death. Drowsiness or fatigue has been identified as the principal cause in at least 100,000 police reported traffic crashes each year, killing more than 1,500 Americans and injuring another 71,000, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA, 1994). Drivers age 25 or younger cause more than one-half of all fall-asleep crashes, reports the NHTSA.

Besides an increased risk of unintentional injury and death, studies show that sleep deprivation in teens is associated with low grades and poor school performance, negative moods and the increased likelihood of stimulant use, including caffeine, nicotine and alcohol. And the more responsi-

Our biological clock, or circadian system – the metabolic, glandular and sleep rhythms associated with the 24-hour cycles of the earth's rotation is timed according to the day's light/ dark cycle. However, while adults may fall asleep around 10 p.m. and wake up refreshed at 6 or 7 a.m., studies show that the typical high school student's natural time to fall asleep is 11 p.m. or later. And, with a sleep need of nine or 10 hours, teens are not exactly bright-eyed and ready to begin their day at 7 a.m.

"It feels like your whole body is screaming for sleep," said Juras.

"Any hour of the day, if I lie down, I'm out. Sometimes I take a five-minute nap in each class," said Keim.

There's a reason for this early-morning mind fog.

"Teenagers appear to be slightly 'phase-delayed,' meaning there's a shift to going to bed later and getting up later," said Dr. Tim Roehrs, research director for Henry Ford Hospital's Sleep Disorders Center.

Although sleep researches know that sleep need is biologically and genetically determined, they don't know what part of the brain controls our need for sleep. "We used to think sleep need did not change throughout a lifespan. That is not clear yet. The teen years may be one of those exceptions," he said.

Changing a sleep pattern is difficult, he added. "When you try to sleep out of your biological clock rhythm, your sleep is not as good. It's more fragmented."

The average total sleep time during the school week decreases from 7 hours, 42 minutes for 13-year-olds to 7 hours, 4 minutes for 19-year-olds, according to Adolescent Sleep Needs and Patterns, a comprehensive report published by the National Sleep Foundation. Only 15 percent of adolescents surveyed reported sleeping 8.5 or more hours on school nights, and 26 percent reported sleeping 6.5 hours or less.

Compared to other teens, Keim and Juras's lives are not over-scheduled.

Crashing on the weekends is not always the solution, he added. "A month of sleep deprivation takes more than three nights of normal sleep."

Sunday, May 6, 2001

In tests involving people who were sleep-deprived, Rochrs discovered that when the subjects sleep hours were increased from eight to 10 hours, they slept 95 percent of the time. As they gradually recovered from sleep deprivation, they slept 85 percent of the time. In one week, the subjects leveled off at 8.3 hours of sleep.

Because teenagers' circadian rhythms are so sensitive to erratic schedules - weekdays vs. weekends, job shift changes, to effectively adjust them requires making gradual, persistent and consistent changes, say researchers. Adapting to an early school schedule after summer or any vacation during which later hours are kept can take from several days to several weeks. (For anyone traveling to a different time zone, it takes one day to adjust to every hour of sleep change, said Roehrs. So, if you're flying to California. count on a three-day adjustment.) Naps help, said Roehrs. "For teens, this is probably a little more easily done than with adults. Nap 30 minutes to an hour as long as you finish the nap within three-four hours of when you want to go to bed."

Menopause

Women's Health Services of Saint Joseph Mercy Health System Ann Arbor will present Preparing for Menopause 7-8:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 8, at the Saint Joseph Mercy Canton Health Center, 1600 S. Canton Center Road in Canton.

The program is geared for women aged 35 to 50. The session will include a comprehensive overview of the physical and emotional changes, symptoms and health risks associated with menopause and how to best prepare for and manage them.

Preparing for Menopause is one of three sessions in the SJMHS Menopause Management Series held at the SJM Canton Health Center. Lifestyle Strategies for the Menopause Years will be held Tuesday, May 22. Treatment Options: Hormone Replacement and Complementary Therapies will be held Tuesday, June 5.

The cost for each session is $5 and registration is required. Call 1-800-231-2211.

bilities a teen has in school and the community, the greater the risk of negative effects from lack of sleep. Unfortunately, American teens' busy schedules of early morning classes, sports, extracurricular activities, part-time jobs, and social activities – "You have to see your friends," said Juras – are often at odds with their biological clocks, which are set at going to bed later and getting up later than children and adults.

Biological clock

"When you become a teen, your sleep need goes up, but at the same time your schedule demands less sleep," said Dr. Ronald Chervin, director of the Michael S. Aldrich Sleep Disorders Laboratory and assistant professor of neurology at the University of Michigan Hospital.

Dr. Tim Roehrs, research director for Henry Ford Hospital's Sleep Disorders Center.

Keim works 18 hours a week at Bill Knapps and takes care of her horse, Rocky, two weekdays and on Saturday. Juras, who lives with Keim's family, takes dance lessons two days a week and private voice lessons once a week. Yet, both girls seldom make to bed before 11:30 p.m., and they seldom manage more than six hours of sleep during the week.

"If I had eight hours, I'd be sleepy but functional," said Keim. "I need 10-11 hours. That's what I do on weekends."

Making up sleep time

Adequate sleep time is based upon how alert you are the following day. "You can't get five hours of sleep one day and then get 10 hours and expect to be fine the next day. We don't recuperate that quickly," said Chervin.

Can you really make up for dose of heavy-duty sleep deprivation? "No!" said Juras.

"It's not like something you can put into your bank," said Keim.

Schools need educating about teen sleep needs

Nancy Bitzarakis, a high school nurse in the Plymouth-Canton School District, said sleep deprivation among teenagers is an issue for several reasons, including afterschool jobs and extracurricular activities.

"Their schedules are packed, and that contributes to fatigue. They are as booked as adults are."

But the main reason for adolescent fatigue? "They stay up real late on the weekends, and then on Monday, they face that time adjustment all over again," said Bitzarakis.

The National Sleep Foundation suggests school systems can positively influence adolescents' sleep patterns by educating teachers and school health providers to recognize the physical and emotional effects of adolescent sleep deprivation; integrating sleep-related education in the curricula, including driver's education; and establishing later start times for high school classes.

Bitzarakis said a Canton High School student recently conducted a survey about sleep deprivation and school start times involving 20 students and six teachers. Five of the six teachers reported their first-hour students were sleepier, and 80 percent of the students said they would do better if school started later.

However, changing the school start times is not so easy. For most school districts, start times are related to bus schedules. Elementary school-age children are the last to be picked up because parents don't want them waiting for the bus in the dark. Also, many buses are scheduled for after-school activities, said Bitzarakis.

And there are other community concerns.

"Child care is an issue for some parents. They need an older sibling at home when a younger sibling comes home from elementary school. It's a bigger issue than some people think," said William Camp, executive director for secondary education, Wayne-Westland School District.

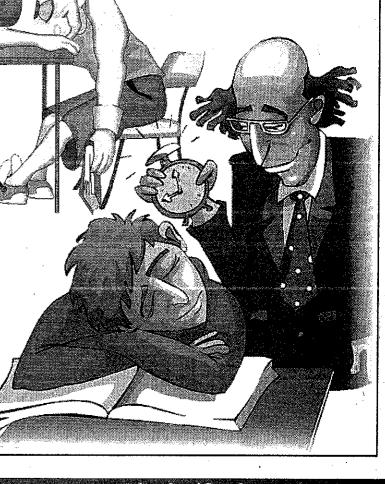

Wayne-Westland high school classes begin at 7:20 a.m. "Some students like the early start time. They prefer to come to school early and get the day over," said Camp.

A lot has to do with student motivation, he added. "Some teachers say their morning classes are dynamite and their afternoon classes lethargic. Other teachers report the reverse."

The school day now starts later in Minnesota, and the results are good. Students reported feeling more alert and rested dur-

Teens looking for some zzzz's should follow tips

Be a bedhead and not a deadhead! For a healthy body and mind, understand the dangers of insufficient sleep and avoid them. The National Sleep Foundation recommends the following tips for tired teens:

1. Understand that sleep is food for the brain. Lack of sleep can make you look tired and feel depressed, irritable or angry. Even mild sleepiness can hurt your performance - from taking school exams to playing sports or video games. Most adolescents need between 8.5 and 9.25 hours of sleep each night. Remember, you should awaken refreshed, not tired.

2. Be consistent. Establish a and maintain this schedule during weekends and school (or work) vacations. Don't stray from your schedule frequently, and never do so for two or more consecutive nights.

If you must go off schedule, avoid delaying your bedtime by more than one hour. Awaken the next day within two hours of your regular schedule. If you are sleepy during the day, take an early afternoon nap.

3. Get into bright light as soon as possible in the morning, but avoid it in the evening. The light helps to signal the brain when it should wake up and when it should prepare to sleep. (If you regular bedtime and waketime wake up in the middle of the night and turn on the light, melotonin, a sleep hormone, will start to decrease within 10-15 minutes, said Dr. Tim Roehrs. research director for the Sleep Disorders Center at Henry Ford Hospital.)

4. Understand your circadian rhythms. Then you can maximize your schedule throughout the day according to your internal clock. For example, to compensate for your "slump" times, participate in stimulating activities or interactive classes. Try to avoid lecture classes and potentially unsafe activities, including driving.

5. After lunch (or after noon),

Teens from page D4 stay away from caffeinated cofing first hour and throughout fee and colas as well as nicotine.

the day, according to preliminary findings and focus group studies by the Center for Applied Research and Educational Improvement at the University of Minnesota, as cited in Adolescent Sleep Needs and Patterns.

Students in the suburban Edina school district reported "increased hours of sleep, lesserratic sleep behaviors and less depressive feelings and behaviors, better grades and little restriction in time spent in extracurricular activities.

Keim and Juras say there are more night owls than morning doves in their schools' student populations. They wish that Michigan school districts adopted Minnesota's policy. "If kids aren't learning at 7:15 a.m., then you're teaching to a brick wall," said Keim. "Most people work to 5 in the afternoon. Why can't teachers work to 5 p.m.?"

Lack of sleep affects whole day, said Juras. "If you fall asleep in class and teachers yell at you, it kind of puts you in a bad mood all day.'

Understanding disability income insurance is important

tion suggests that, at age 35, ERIC disability poses ZIMMERMAN a greater risk for you than death. While the estimates vary, it's clear that a significant number of Americans face the risk of disability at some point in their lives. Moreover, the risks associated with becoming disabled can have some special implications for lesbians and gay men. Understanding the need for adequate disability insurance is an important part of any financial plan. Understanding the special needs that arise from the risk of disability is especially important for members of the gay community.

What are the special needs some gay men and lesbians may need to consider as part of their disability planning? Generally speaking, when an individual becomes disabled, a support network emerges to help this person adjust to his or her new circumstances, often providing assistance that lasts for the duration of the disability. Almost always, this support network includes family members -- parents, siblings, and/ or children. Many members of the gay community remain estranged from their biomuch logical families – either because thought to what of their orientation or because would happen if they have been unable to disyou became disabled. Nevertheclose their orientation.

Consequently, the critical support network for organizing one's life after a disabling event may not exist for some members of the community. Instead of relying on family, they may need paid assistance for common tasks such as housekeeping, running errands, and so on. Because of the special family circumstances in which some lesbians and gay men find themselves, disability may be more expensive than average.

Choosing a policy

Now that you've established the need, it's time to focus on ways to insure against it. Choosing the right disability policy can be daunting, and it's likely you'll want the help of a financial adviser. There are certain basic concepts you'll want to be familiar with before evaluating your options:

Amount of Coverage. Your policy should replace between 60 percent and 70 percent of your predisability income.

Definition of Disability. Make sure your policy does not exclude coverage for occupational disabilities that arise if you receive worker's compensation benefits.

Worker's comp is not an adequate substitute for private disability insurance.

Definition of Occupation. Some policies provide coverage as soon as a disability prevents you from continuing to work in your own occupation; others require you to be unfit for work in any occupation before benefits begin. You may consider the "any occupation" unacceptable. If you can't find permanent "own occ (occupation)" coverage - it is increasingly difficult to obtain - your policy should provide "own occ" benefits for a minimum initial period before it switches to an any occupation definition.

Renewability. In theory, there are six types of renewability provisions that may be offered for any given policy. Some insurers have refused to renew the policy when a policy-holder was unable to obtain replacement coverage. To avoid this possibility, look for insurance that is noncancellable or guaranteed renewable. Ignore any alternatives.

Waiting Period. Sometimes called an elimination period, this refers to how long you have to wait after becoming disabled before benefits begin. Ninety days is standard, but a longer waiting period can lower your premium.

Inflation. Your policy should include a cost-of-living adjustment, so any benefit payments that last over an extended period can keep pace with inflation.

Waiver of Premium. Your policy should include a provision waiving the payment of future premiums if you're disabled; otherwise, you would have to continue paying premiums while disabled in order to keep your insurance in effect.

Foundation.

Definition of Illness/Sickness. Make sure your policy covers illnesses when they are first manifest, not when they are first contracted or begin. Benefits can be denied for an illness contracted before coverage begins even if it's unknown at the time. This could be devastating for illnesses with long dormant periods such as HIV or some forms of cancer.

As an example, with a good policy, the definition of sickness also includes when you are reasonably and lawfully mandated by a state licensing board not to perform the material and substantial duties of your regular occupation because you have an infectious disease as diagnosed by a physician.

Many people receive disability insurance as a fringe benefit from an employer. Often, this is adequate protection. If you have a policy at work, check to be sure it offers all the protection you need. Many insurance companies offer supplemental policies, both through your employer and in the private market, that can help bridge any gaps. Consulting a financial adviser may help you determine what's best for you.

The Arab Community Center for Economic and Social Services (ACCESS) and the Wayne State University School of Medicine will present the second biennial National Conference of Health Issues in the Arab-American Community May 11 and 12 at the Dearborn Inn, 20301 Oakwood Blvd, Dearborn.

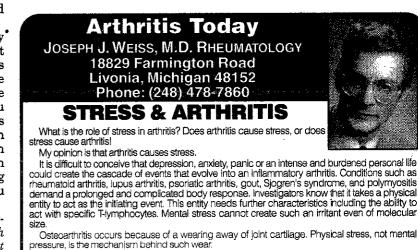

The conference - scheduled 7:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday – is designed for physicians, community leaders and students in the allied health fields. It will also have a cultural component, featuring art exhibits and folkloric music. A gala dinner will take place on May 12.

The conference brings together an international group of health professionals, medical researchers, health care policymakers, and community leaders to address key health issues affecting Arab-Americans, including: Diabetes and cardiovascular diseases; cancers, such as lung, breast and prostate; maternal and child health care; environmental health; mental health and behavioral issues.

Guest speakers include representatives from 12 Arab nations - including Algeria, Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Morocco, Palestine, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Syria and Yemen.

Since Arab-Americans are not yet a federally recognized minority population, the conference aims to enhance awareness of the socioeconomic, educational and cultural problems faced by Arab Americans when adapting to the norms and practices of American society. Some of these problems present formidable challenges to health care providers.

Free physicians $300, nonphysicians $150 and students $50. Pre-registration required. Call Margie Hovis at (313) 842-5201.

You may consider fibromyalgia a special case where stress plays a substantial role. I agree. However, the predisposition to a stress response seems to be in-born with the person experiencing fibromyalgia. The predisposing traits of heightened sensitivity, fearfulness, and frequently elicited tension are attributes often present since childhood.

In fibromyalgia, the personality causes strain rather then strain bringing on the personality. Finally, the daily pain of arthritis and the sustained period of its presence, must leave its mark as stress. It is not reasonable to ask an individual to accept the lost expectations and arbitrary limits arthritis imposes without making allowance for depression, anger, anxiety, and tears. L1044773

LENDERS ANNOUNCE "SAFE MORTGAGE PROJECT"

(Troy, MI) Four of the nation's largest and strongest lenders and two newspaper chains announced the "Safe Mortgage Project," to educate consumers on how to get home loans without being defrauded or injured financially.

The four lenders included Chase Manhattan Mortgage, GMAC Mortgage, First Federal of Michigan (a division of Charter One Bank) and Great Northern Financial, All are members of Premier Mortgage Lenders, a trade group dedicated to "Truth in Lending" and consumer protection.

"Every consumer is entitled to a home mortgage with a reasonable interest rate that is free from over charges, fraud and fear," said John Kuczeski, senior vice president of GMAC Mortgage, at the meeting of Michigan's Premier Mortgage Lenders. Joining the lenders in this consumer protection/education program were other major corporations: Marriott Hotels, the Livonia, MI-based Observer and Eccentric Newspaper chain, and the Oakland Press newspaper chain.

As media people, it is virtually impossible for us to sort out good advertisers from bad, nor should we make such judgments because of the freedom of speech," said Banks Dishmon, general manager for the Observer and Eccentric Newpaper chain. "However, what we can and should do is support any group that works toward the betterment of the human condition and does business honestly.'

"We at Chase are in the business of making money responsibly," said Peter Boomer, vice president regional manager for Chase Manhattan Mortgage. "As an industry, we must do no harm. Unfortunately, it doesn't always work out that way. Consumers have absolutely no way to deter-mave absolutely no way to deter-mine if a mortgage company is a good guy or a bad guy.. "However, with the Safe Mortgage Project there is a list-ing of "safe lenders," said Boomer. "While we at Chase would like the consumers' business and feel we have some of the best products, consumers also are safe if they get a mortgage from GMAC, First Federal of Michigan or Great Northern and other members of Premier Mortgage Lenders."

While we have some of the lowest rates ourselves, consumers who only look for the lowest rates are making a big mistake, that can cost them money, or even their homes," said Curt Van Peenen, president of Great Northern Financial Corp. "Too often rate shoppers get hit with higher closing costs that could cost thousand of dollars. Or, they could wind up with a higher rate than promised.

The biggest problem in the industry today is false advertising, where mortgage companies advertise rates and programs that they simply do not have," said

by GARY S. MEYERS

"Worse still, if a company is apt to make false rates, you can safely bet that they will try to tag you with something else. For example, they may try to con-vince you that your credit isn't good enough for a low rate and you have to settle for a higher interest rate, for which they they

"We look forward to supporting the Safe Mortgage Project with Premier Mortgage Lenders. In our newspapers you will see the consumer advisories and advice on safe borrowing as part of the Premier Mortgage Lender program, that will appear in all of our newspapers," said Dishmon.

"We have been members of Premier Mortgage Lenders since 1992 in Chicago. In fact our company was one of the found-ing members," said Boomer. "The program works and is the only one of its type in the nation." ******

CANTON PUBLIC LIBRARY Classified Advertising NEW HOMES & REAL ESTATE

Heritage will have 120 condominiums

Crosswinds Communities offers its next generation of stacked, mediumdensity residences at Heritage Condominiums in Waterford.

"It's a new plan we've developed," said Bernie Glieberman, president and CEO at Crosswinds. "Waterford is a great upcoming community. We try to be one step ahead."

The condominiums appeal to younger people just starting out and older folks who want to sell a big house and buy one condo near their children and grandchildren here and another in a warmer climate for winter. Glieberman said.

"It's very affordable," he added. Some 120 residences, 12 to a building, are under construction on a 17-acre parcel off Scott Lake Road north of Elizabeth Lake Road. Six condos will be built across the front, six more mirrored across the other side with six attached single-car garages on each wing per building. Every home will have private entrances from a main door and garage.

3 floorplans

Three floor plans are offered, all with two bedrooms and two full baths, and all living on one level.

The Newport, 1,187 square feet, is a ranch at ground level with absolutely no steps. Base price is $124,900.

The Pinnacle, 1,335 square feet, is a middle/upper unit, again with all elements on one living level. Base price is $134,900.

The Oxford, 1,365 square feet, is an end/upper unit with all elements on one living level. Base price is $139,900.

Four of each plan go per building.

"Location and lifestyle are the two most attractive things to this community," said Kevin Emens, sales associate.

"It's centrally located in Oakland County. There's easy access to M-59 and Telegraph Road. The Oakland County complex is not even five minutes from here, Summit Place Mall, a mile away. Dixie Highway is up here (north) two miles away.

"In the 24 purchase agreements and 10 deposits, I've literally had every walk of life," Emens said. "We've got empty-nesters trying to downsize, Heritage: Three different floor plans are included within this attached condominium community in Waterford. families. first-time homebuyers trying HERITAGE CONDOMINIUMS to get out of a rent situation, newlyweds.

"There's nowhere else in Oakland County that competes with our price point," Emens continued.

"Most of the people I talk to first of all are impressed with the price to get them here. When we walk through, they're impressed with the size. Together, that goes to value.

"The Newport is a very functional, practical home," Emens said. "The Pinnacle gives you lots of space through the garage and loft. The Oxford (with volume ceilings) is elegance and class."

All residences at Heritage Condominiums will include at base price garage, air conditioning, laundry, range, refrigerator and dishwasher, and carpeting throughout.

Options

A gas fireplace is available in all units for $3,490, a jet tub in lowerlevel Newport models for $1,475 and a 184-square-foot loft in the Pinnacle for $9,990.

Brick and vinyl siding are primary exterior materials. All units will be landscaped.

Heritage Condominiums will feature a pool/ cabana, and fairly sizable wetlands.

The community is served by Waterford well water and sewers, sidewalks and is within the Waterford school boundaries.

The property tax is $27.15 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $135,000 home there would pay about $1,850 the first vear.

The monthly association fee is $120 for Newport units, $135 for Pinnacles and Oxfords. It includes water, maintenance of the common areas and building exteriors, grass mowing, snow removal, trash hauling and insurance.

Crosswinds offers a 10-year warranty on its homes at Heritage and can alter the first-floor plan to be barrier free.

Heidi Talbot ordered a Pinnacle unit with loft.

"I wanted to stay in Waterford and found it to be so affordable," she said.

The loft and condo aspect also attracted her.

"I needed extra space," Talbot said. "I won't have to do a lot of (maintenance) things. I'm excited they will have a pool and walking trails."

The sales office at Heritage Condominiums, (248) 738-6333, is open 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily, closed Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Pulte, Del Webb to merge

The acquisition of Del Webb Corp. of Phoenix by Pulte Homes of Bloomfield Hills creates a residential building entity they say has a size, geographic presence and product portfolio unrivaled in the industry.

Under a merger agreement, Pulte Homes will acquire all of the outstanding shares of Del Webb in a tax-free stock-for-stock transaction.

The companies anticipate that the transaction should be completed within three months pending shareholder and regulatory approvals.

Both companies are publicly owned and currently listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

The combined company will use the Pulte Homes name and will be headquartered in Bloomfield Hills. Del Webb's current business will become the Del Web Group of Pulte Homes and will remain headquartered in Phoenix.

A Pulte Homes-Del Webb marriage would create a $6 billion revenue powerhouse, they say.

Together, Pulte Homes and Del Webb build homes ranging in price from $90,000 to over $1 million. Based on most recent 12-month results, the two have delivered more than 28,000 homes across 44 markets in the United States.

The combined company expects to realize significant operating efficiencies, at both a national and local market level, from the combined operating volumes.

The combination of complementary products and land positions will enable Pulte Homes to rapidly introduce Del Webb's brand name into new markets where Pulte Homes already has established operations, a spokesman said.

At the same time, both companies can now capitalize on Del Webb's land positions in some of the nation's fastest-growing markets in Arizona, California, Illinois and Nevada to further expand market share.

Robert K. Burgess, chairman and chief executive officer of Pulte Homes, said, "This combination raises Pulte Homes' operations to an entirely new level and provides a vital piece in our Homeowner for Life strategy of serving homebuyers throughout each stage of their lives." LeRoy C. Hanneman, president and chief executive officer of Del Webb, said, "This combination offers unprecedented potential as the strengths and attributes of two market leaders are joined."

Del Webb Corp. is a leading builder of active adult communities for people 55 and older.

The company operates 10 active adult communities in markets including Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz.; Las Vegas, Nev.; Palm Desert and Lincoln, Calif.; Hilton Head, S.C.; Georgetown, Texas; Ocala, Fla.; and Chicago.

Pulte has operations in 41 markets across the United States, Argentina, Puerto Rico and Mexico, where it is the fifth-largest builder. Over its history, the company has constructed more than 275,000 homes.

The transaction value will be based on a 15-day average of Pulte Homes' closing stock price for a period ending three days prior to Del Webb's stockholder meeting.

If the average price were equal to Pulte Homes' closing stock price of $46.78 on April 30, the transaction would have an equity value of $800 million, or $40.51 per Del Webb share.

Cleaning may help duct work between shutting off the furnace and turning on the central air conditioning processor may be a great time to clean the air ducts.

"Cleaning the ducts can make a big difference in your respiratory health, especially if anyone in your household has a chronic respiratory condition," says Richard Roll, president of American Homeowners Association.

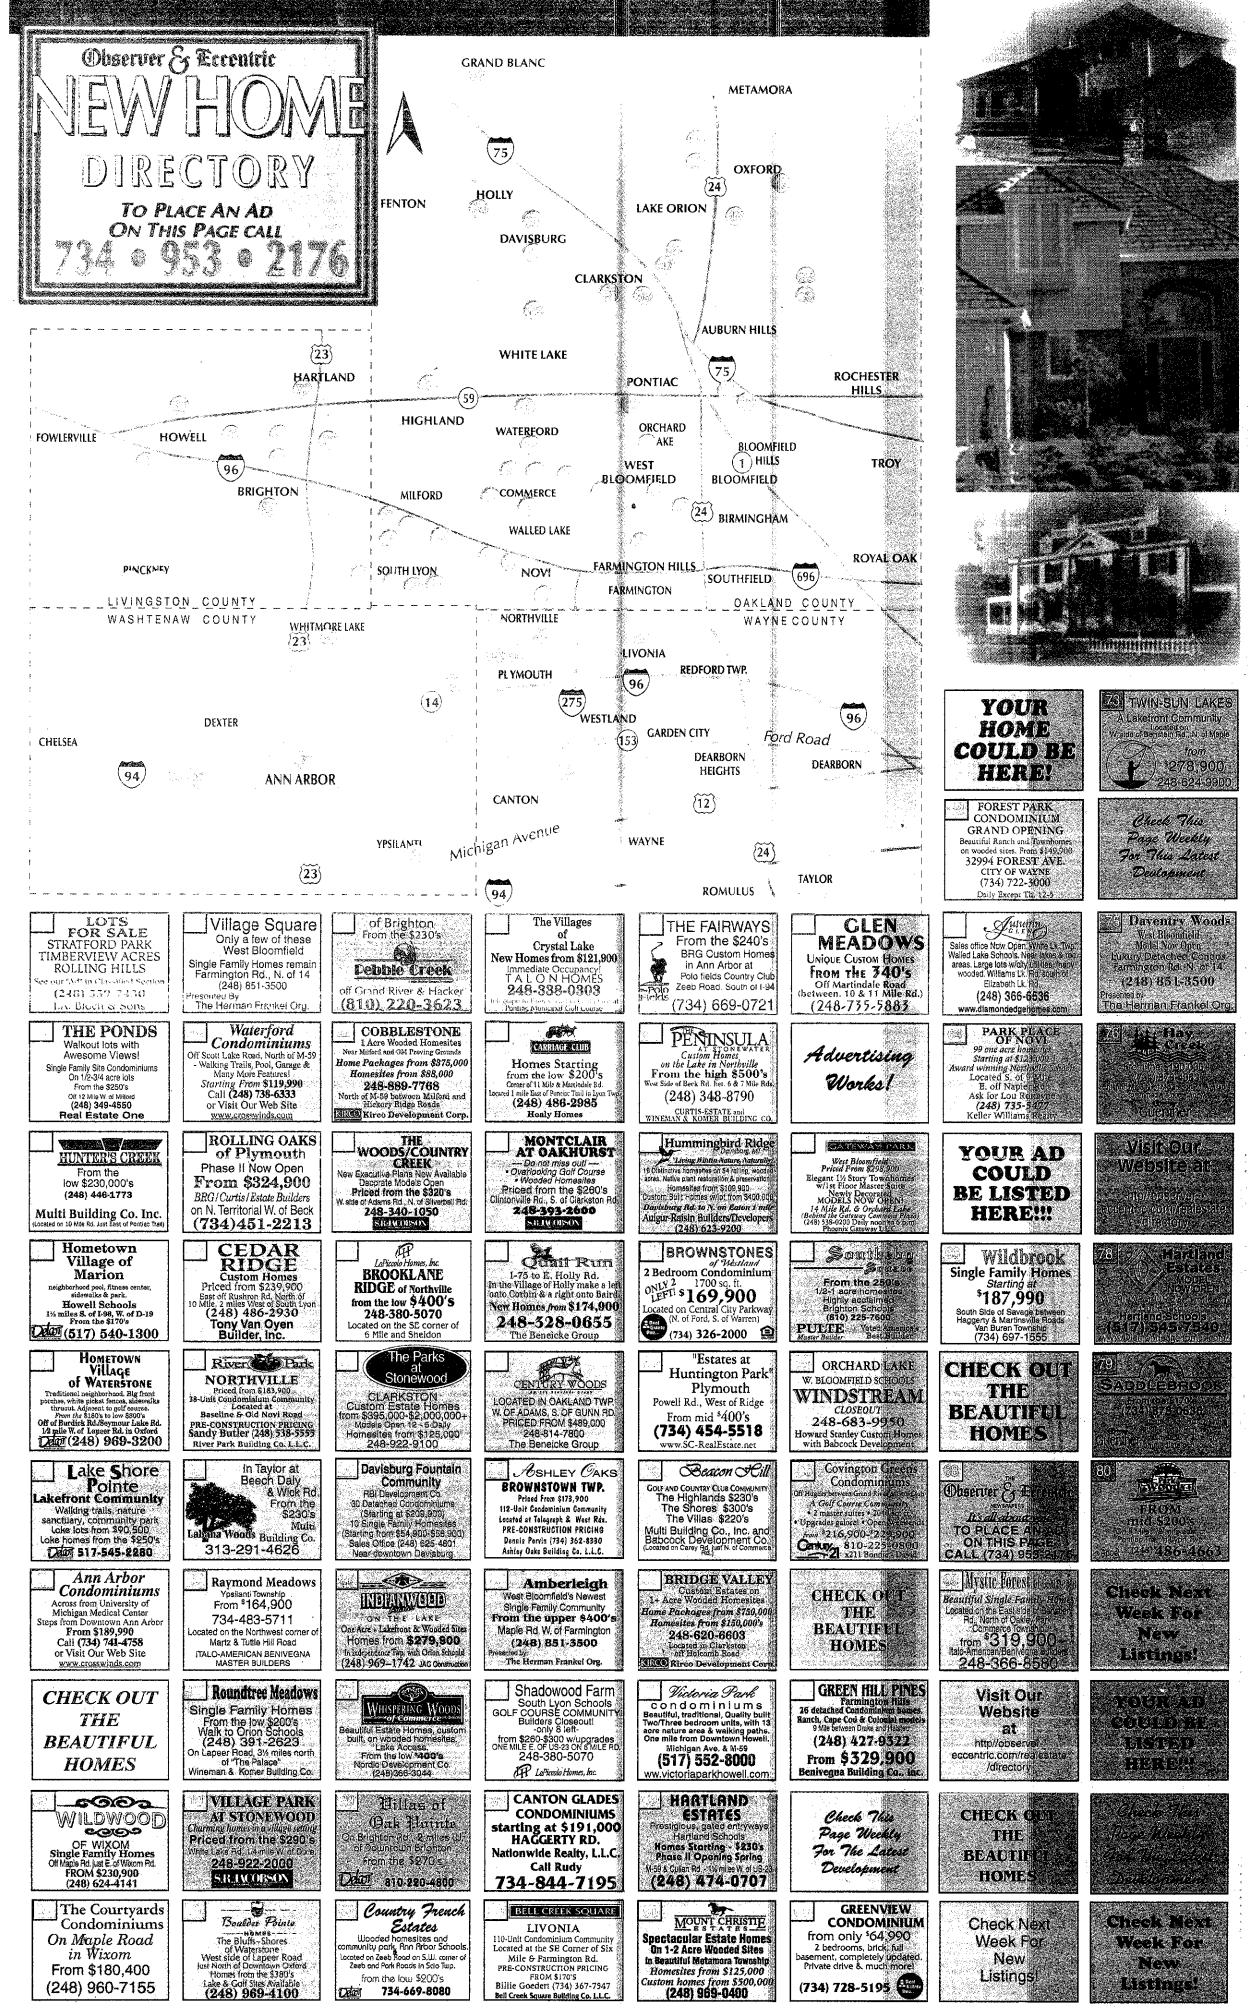

Air ducts can collect an amazing quantity of gunk. Cleaning them can help to eliminate dust, odors and contaminants that

Employers use behavior tactic in job interview

By MARGO DEWEY SPECIAL WRITER

ith the economy plunging downward, many companies are laying off workers instead of hiring. When there is a job opening, however, the search for the "best candidate" is becoming more intense.

A solid resume and years of experience are not a guarantee anymore for nailing a job interview. Employers are looking for new avenues that will help them understand a little more about their potential employee before they are hired.

Many businesses are using the method of behavioral interviewing. This technique evaluates everything about an individual through the assessment of specific actions or behaviors in given circumstances or jobs.

Sam Sarafa, owner and general manager of Management Recruiters of Ann Arbor, an affiliate of Management Recruiters International Inc. (MRI), provides this method of evaluation for his clients, and he believes it is very effective.

"Candidates who are prepared to answer questions in the appropriate way have an advantage over candidates who are blindsided by it and must be coaxed by the interviewer to respond appropriately," he said. "It's not that you can 'beat the test' by understanding it beforehand. It's more a question of making the interview go a little better by knowing what's required of you."

With reality shows like "Survivor," watching a person's behavior is fascinating not only to fans of the show, but also CEO's and directors of personnel departments who are taking notes on how well a person responds to difficult situations and being a team player.

"Through behavioral interviewing, we have found that candidates applying for a job have the most difficulty describing themselves," said David Sarafa, director of operations for Management Recruiters. "They don't elaborate about themselves. You need to think about details, specifics you can give a potential employer about your-

Outplacement consultants and employment constantly books preach salvation through networking – the high-odds method of finding a job and the secret weapon of successful career changers. The numbers cited seem to prove that networking, as a marketing method, is superior to ads, agencies and direct mail combined. While I'm a believer, I also think there are some fairly large differences between networking theory and networking reality. You can execute a networking campaign flawlessly and still experience frustrations they never prepare you for in boot camp. Many of the problems are caused by contacts who just don't act right. That's right.

It's the old associates, ex-bosses, neighbors, acquaintances and friendsof-friends who can make the whole thing a bust for both parties.

Do I sound like an ingrate? Probably. But I feel lousy when candidates strike out despite good technique and sincerity.

Here's a fantasy letter from an experienced job seeker to all those people about to be contacted for help and information – that is, networking:

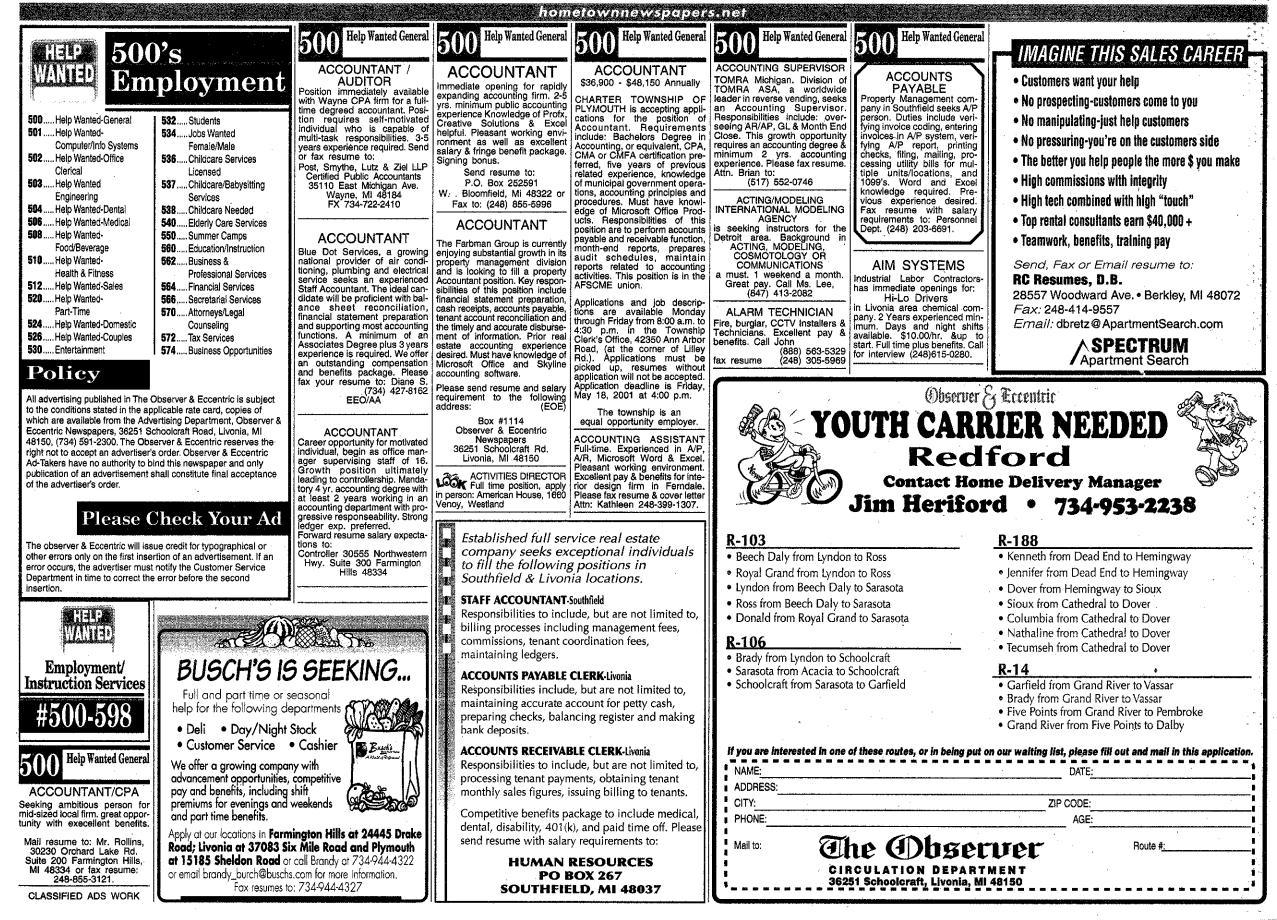

Dear Mr. Contact:

I sincerely appreciate the opportunity to meet with you next week. As we discussed, my purpose is to benefit from your experience and expertise. I will consider the meeting productive if you can give me some insight into the employment market as you see it, a few thoughts on recent developments in your field, your views regarding my background and some ideas about how to uncover opportunities in your industry or elsewhere. I would consider it a particularly successful meeting if you agree to keep an eye open for me and suggest a few people I could contact for self which includes how you may have achieved a specific task or details. goal while on the job."

Behavioral interviewing consists of four tools that can describe an individual as well as assist a job candidate in an interview which includes: dominance, extroversion, patience and conformity. These tools assess the behavioral characteristics of a person as to how they would communicate with others and how they would handle various situations.

"The idea behind behavioral interviewing is that you can tell much more about a person's attitudes, work habits, and skills by hearing them describe real actions taken in real circumstances than by letting them speak in the abstract about themselves," said Sam Sarafa. "It's amazingly effective because each of us reveals our motivations and attitudes whenever we recount our part in human interaction."

There are a few clues to recognize when you may be in a behavioral interview as well as some strategies to keep in mind:

A behavior interview often begins with a statement that the interviewer will be looking for specific instances from real situations in answer to his/her questions, and not to be nervous if it takes the candidate a few minutes to gather his/her thoughts and memories to answer.

The questions will often begin with words like "tell me about a specific situation in which you......"

When the candidate wanders towards generalities, the interviewer will often coax the candidate back to specific examples, asking the names of people, their titles and other concrete

You can prepare for a behavioral interview. First, decide what your chief skills or strengths are and fix in your mind actual experiences which will exemplify each. Secondly, understand the job description you are being interviewed for and be prepared to recall specific actions and behaviors which address the skills needed in the position.

"Today job candidates are being much more well informed than a few years ago," said Sam Sarafa. "With the wealth of knowledge on the internet, candidates are prepared for interviews, and this now forces the employer to conduct a candidate profile using a method like behavioral interviewing."

Management Recruiters and Office Mates 5 of Ann Arbor, founded in 1970 by Sam and Rosemary Sarafa, has more than 100 years of total recruiting experience and knowledge in the resolution of staffing problems.

The firm conducts searches for direct hire, temporary and temp-to-hirepositions either on a retained or contingency basis.

Management Recruiters International Inc. is the world's largest search and recruitment organization with 1,000 offices worldwide. Based in Cleveland, MRI has system-wide billings of $575 million and places 35,000 people in jobs annually.

additional information.

Just to clear the air, let me tell you what I don't want.

First, please don't put me through a courtesy interview. I have tried to be clear that I am only seeking help and information. I do not expect you to have a job for me. I mean it. Don't feel that you have to conduct a meaningless screening exercise just to be polite. That's a waste of time and a little dishonest. Let's just talk and share some ideas.

I'd deeply appreciate it if you wouldn't critique my resume. I know you are well intentioned, but I've been working with an outplacement professional who helps people craft effective resumes. Also, I got a few books from the library and read the advice on the Internet. In addition, the last 37 people I met with told me to move a sentence here or change a word there. I respect your knowledge in your field, but leave my resume alone.

You should also know that I don't expect you psychoanalyze me.

Unemployed is not synonymous with mentally ill. My neuroses and psychoses are pretty much under control and I don't need an amateur playing shrink or social worker. There are enough aspiring mental health professionals over at the outplacement firm. Let's talk business. Stay out of my head.

I'm begging you - don't make me carry the entire conversation. I realize that the obligation to be clear about what I am seeking is mine alone. But this is awkward enough without having to pry every word out of you. A good networking meeting is a casual dialogue - I talk then you talk then I talk. Give me a break. Make an effort.

orn in Detroit, dressed in Milwaukee" is the vernacular Ford uses to promote its 2001 Harley-Davidson F-150 pickup.

This limited edition model is the result of the motoring heritage of Ford's truck technicians and those of the world famous Harley-Davidson motorcycle company. The result is a Harley-Davidson badged, 260-horsepower mean looking Ford pickup that's available in one color and one color only - Black Clearcoat.

The Harley-Davidson F-150's legacy is exactly the same as the motorcycle it represents — emphasizing independence and individuality. Emulating the countless Harleys on the road, from Dresser to Chopper, this F-150 is a no-nonsense representation of both past and present Harley-Davidson philosophy. Initial onlooker impressions center on the Goodyear Eagle GTII tires and stunning five-spoke cast hand polished aluminum wheels.

A powerful 5.4-liter 260-horse Triton V8 and lightning-tuned, dual outlet exhaust emits a rousing rumble through a dual-outlet muffler, which happens to be finished in slash-cut chromed tips. These exhaust tips mimic the many "Easy Rider" style Harley exhaust systems seen on the Hogs that roar along the nation's highways.

Based on the F-150 Super Cab chassis, the Harley-Davidson model is an attention getter from the word go. A billet style front grille accentuates a black surround chrome inset, and the black bumpers on front and rear are appropriate for the design setting. There are round driving lights, unique Ford-Harley logos on the fenders, tonneau cover and a 3mm body stripe finished off in Harley-Davidson orange.

In finishing the look, Ford and Harley decided to add chrome tube side nerf bars after lowering the truck a full inch on its 138.5-inch wheelbase chassis. Heavy-duty front stabilizer bars aid in handling aspects, while final horsepower is delivered to the rear wheels via a four-speed automatic transmission and the famous 9-inch ring gear. A 3:55 rear gear ratio assures quick acceleration, yet the truck is still able to produce acceptable 15 city and 19 highway EPA numbers. The suspension also features Ford SVT (Special Vehicle Team) Lighting Shocks, a 1,500-pound payload and a 4,000-pound maximum towing ratio. The final GVW comes in at 6,400 pounds

The cabin is both Harley-inspired yet quite plush. Seats are finished in a black front leather design and carry the famous Harley-Davidson logo. The leather-trimmed armrests, black leather wrapped steering wheel, unique Harley-Davidson "spun metal" gauge cluster and a Ford and Harley ornament to the right of the tachometer make for a great driving environment.

Another Harley emblem embeds the leather console, and chrome door releases set off the final design. Included in the package are: air conditioning, tilt wheel, speed control, remote entry, privacy glass, power windows and locks, overhead console with compass and temperature indicators. A third door allows direct access to the full bench rear seat. On the road the F-150 Harley-Davidson drives with authority and preciseness. Passing is a zip with the Triton V-8 power, and handling is excellent thanks to the tweaked suspension and those huge tires and wheels.

We took several trips in the Harley Ford, and everywhere we went "excitement" was the creed.

Of course, all of this special attention doesn't come cheap. The base price of $32,305 is upped after adding a sliding rear window ($125) and 6-disc CD changer ($210), with the final price, including destination ($690) coming in at $33,330. This is very expensive for a 2wheel-drive pickup, but the Harley/Ford is no "normal" truck in any manner.

Harley-Davidson and Ford should be applauded for ingenuity in presenting a limited edition F-150. The influences of both vehicles in the respective categories of owner loyalty and performance heritage are blended together in the final product. As with it's two-wheel counterparts, the F-150 Harley-Davidson is one truck that will certainly get you noticed . . . in a big way.
