SCHOOL FUNDING

The Plymouth-Canton school district, which faces deficit spending in the 2002-03 school year, won't get immediate financial help from Lansing.

However, despite that inference during a House subcommittee hearing Wednesday at the state capitol, school officials came away hopeful they may someday be able to ask voters for an additional millage to help keep the district afloat.

Superintendent Kathleen Boher, along with Board of Education trustees Judy Mardigian and Steve Guile, addressed the School Aid and Department of Education Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee

Engineers looking for new deal

Plant engineers, who are in charge of the heating, air conditioning and custodial units at each of the buildings in the Plymouth-Canton school district, are pressuring administrators for a new contract. They've been working without a contract since last June 30, and say it's time a new pact be negotiated.

"Our wages have not even kept up with the rate of inflation, let alone pay us for additional work that's requested of us," Tom Finck, president of the Plymouth-Canton Federation of Plant Engineers, told the Board of Education.

"We take great pride in contributing to a safe, clean, comfortable environment for everyone within the district.

Zero tolerance: Cops stage spring campaign

Canton police are again cracking down on underage drinking in the weeks surrounding Plymouth-Canton Schools' graduation.

A zero-tolerance policy against substance and alcohol abuse will be enforced by the Canton Police Department.

"We're going to be out investigating our local business owners as well as home parties to make sure that everybody's complying with drinking laws," said Capt. Laura Golles.

Recent police stings have resulted in citations to Canton businesses for selling tobacco and alcohol to working decoy teenagers.

She added when a minor buys alcohol or tobacco in a store, it's usually the clerk or responsible employee that receives the fine.

"So they have a lot more incentive to keep an eye on what's going on and ask for that ID," she said.

A much bigger problem, Golles said,

Three hundred children surrounded the square, and in unison chirped, "Hola, Hector!"

The children of Canton Charter Academy offered their 12-year-old friend from El Salvador, Hector Castro a welcome and a check for $1,400.

"My kids raided their piggy banks as soon as they heard about Hector," said Kim DeGraaf, wiping proud tears from her bright blue eyes.

DeGraaf, a school secretary and mother of two Canton Charter Academy students, said her children told her Hector's story a little more than a month ago.

Canton closes gaps

■ The township will spend $1.2 million over the next eight years to add sidewalks in local neighborhoods.

BY CAROL MARSHALL

cmarshall@oe.hometown.net

"Hoofin' it" through Canton is about to get a little easier as the township begins work on its $1.2 million sidewalk gap program.

Tammy Watson was glad to hear it. She told the Canton Township Board of Trustees taking her small children out to Flodin Park near her home - at Morton Taylor and Saltz roads - is a treacherous journey.

"On more than one occasion we've almost been hit by a car," she said. "I'm a little miffed that we spent all that money on a skating arena and we couldn't put down a little concrete for a sidewalk."

Watson addressed the board at its last regular meeting, and coincidentally the gap program was on the agenda the same evening. Township Supervisor Tom Yack said about a year ago, a committee was formed to inspect the township and determine what missing sidewalk segments were important to complete.

The committee made a list of 60 gaps, and prioritized them. The project will take about eight years to complete. The first 12 locations will be constructed this fall.

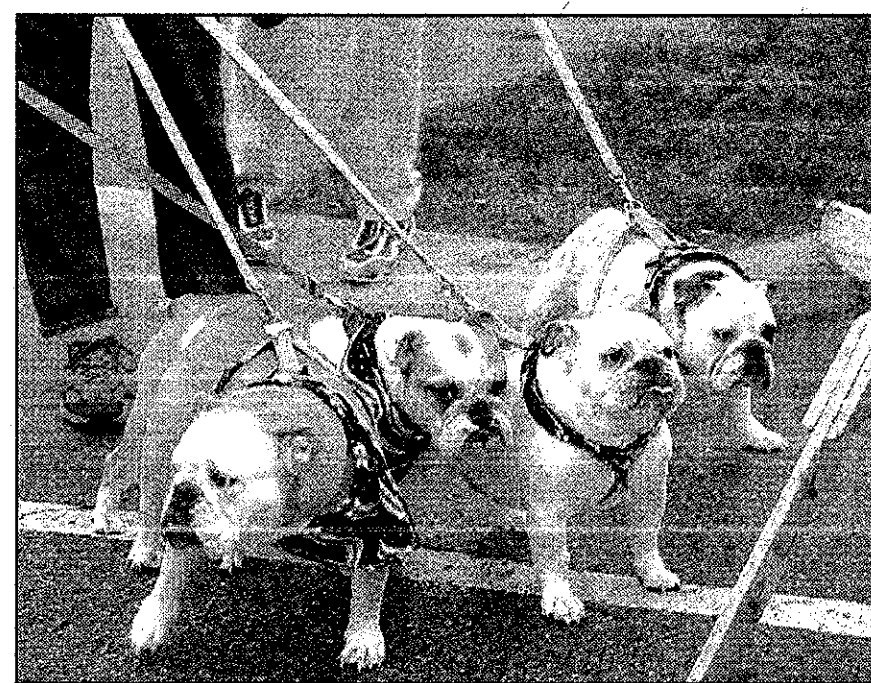

Yack said gaps near schools and playgrounds are the most urgent. He added some of the high-priority sites will not be addressed until next year, however, because the township needs to obtain right of way from property owners.

"We'll have to ask for that or buy it," he said. "So that may take a while."

The first leg of the project will cost $100,000 this year. Design will take place over the next few months and construction is anticipated to start late September, and will be completed by the end of October.

Besides the area near Flodin Park, other high-priority areas include the north and west side of Sheldon Center between Amy Lane and Charrington, east side of Canton Center near the Post Office, the west side of Veteran's Way near Heritage Park, and the west side of Haggerty from Larimore to the existing commercial drive.

Checkbook disappearance ends with missing $20,000

A Belleville woman told Canton Police her niece stole approximately $20,000 from her checking account over the last month.

The victim told police she thought the suspect, an 18-year-old Canton woman, along with three other relatives in their 20s, may have taken a book of checks from her home.

The victim said she told her sister the checks were missing. The sister then told everyone in the family what had happened. A few days later, the checks reappeared. However, a large sum of money was missing from the victim's checking account.

The victim's sister asked her daughter if she had anything to do with the missing funds, and she allegedly admitted to taking the checks and cashing them at a Canton bank.

Field fury

A referee told Canton Police he was assaulted by an irate parent at Independence Park during the Canton Cup soccer tournament last weekend.

According to the victim, a 17-year-old Mount Pleasant man, the assault occurred Sunday afternoon after an altercation on the field.

As one of the young players was leaving the field, an adult from the opposing team approached the player. The referee told police he could see the adult was angry, so he stepped between the youth and the adult.

The adult then grabbed the referee by the shoulder and threw him to the ground.

The teen tried to get the name of his attacker, but he stormed off.

Locker larceny

An Ann Arbor man told Canton Police someone stole nearly $1,000 from his locker while he played a game of hockey at Michigan Deck Hockey.

The 26-year-old victim said he left the money in his pants pocket last weekend. He left the trousers in a locker at the business, located at 45109 Michigan Ave.

After his game, he returned and the cash was gone.

School assault

A Plymouth Salem High School student claimed a teacher assaulted her at school.

The 15-year-old girl's mother told police her daughter was playing with the teacher's pencils. She said the teacher grabbed the girl, and twisted her arm.

Larceny from cars

Two vehicle parked on Ashley Court were apparently broken into the same day, and more than $10,000 worth of items were taken from them.

A man told Canton Police someone broke into his truck sometime between 5 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday. Missing from the truck was a laptop computer and numerous tools, valued at more than $10,000.

Another man told police his car was broken into on Sunday morning between 6 and 8:30 a.m. He was missing a radio/CD player valued at $188.

in support of Rep. Bruce Patterson's, R-Canton, House Bill 4111, designed to increase Plymouth-Canton's state foundation grant of $6,525 per student.

Plymouth-Canton administrators and school board members have been fighting for years to get an increase to gain parity with neighboring school districts.

"This is a school district that's in crisis," Guile told the committee. "Our buildings are at capacity, and class sizes aren't going to get any smaller. A bond for additional buildings or expanding additional facilities will have a detrimental effect on our budget."

The trio touted the recent Standard and Poor's report indicating the district "achieves well above-average student results ... with spending per student that is lower than the average of a group of peer districts." At the same time, they handed out a multi-year projection which indicates deficit spending beginning next year, and a fund balance that hits negative figures in 2004-05.

"Our board is concerned about the $2.1 million to open the new high school, new overhead costs, and a new elementary school that will be near capacity when it opens in August," said Mardigan. "Our schools are already jam-packed."

With the current state foundation grant, Booher told the committee "we are feeling a serious competition disadvantage. We are in a unique position, and feel we need a lifeline."

In opening statements, Patterson said Plymouth-Canton Schools face a serious competitive disadvantage compared to Farmington Hills, Ann Arbor, Birmingham and Romulus.

"This disadvantage is being felt now. But, due to our district's growth, it will be felt even more as our third high school opens and a very talented board and administrative staff are faced with mounting operating costs," said Patterson. "The gap in funding left by Proposal A has not narrowed sufficiently or quickly enough."

Patterson's bill would increase Plymouth-Canton's foundation grant to $9,000 per student, with $7,800 coming from the state and $1,200 from the district through a millage. However, Proposal A does not allow for districts to hold individual millage campaigns.

Committee chairman Ron Jelinek, R-Three Oaks, was sympathetic, but noted Plymouth-Canton has, and continues, to receive more than the average foundation grant.

"Our problem is that there are many districts scratching to hold the line on reductions," he said.

Pan Godchaux, R-Birmingham, said she likes the idea of allowing school districts to put an operating millage proposal in front of voters.

"We took away from communities the ability to provide more resources for their school districts than the state was going to provide," she said.

The committee failed to vote on the bill, effectively killing it. Patterson said he knew it would be a hard sell.

"There is a need, there is a crisis," said Patterson. "We will continue to explore solutions. But, this isn't something that comes together overnight."

The Plymouth-Canton contingent was pleased their message was heard, and there could be a future opportunity to conduct an operating millage.

"The solution isn't simple, and will take much more dialogue," said Booher. "We support these efforts, which we know will go through a lot of revisions before a final solution."

Legislators pledge to keep working

BY TONY BRUSCATO

It appears the Plymouth-Canton school district's plea for financial aid isn't falling on deaf ears.

Just hours after three representatives of the district testified in front of a House committee considering legislation to give Plymouth-Canton a bigger share of state aid funds, a bill was introduced in the House to allow school districts the opportunity to levy additional operating millage with approval from voters.

The bill was introduced by Sen. Pan Godchaux, R-Birmingham, and co-sponsored by John Stewart, R-Plymouth Township.

The bill allows an enhancement millage to be presented to voters at regular school board elections, which are held on the second Monday in June.

"We're encouraged by what we see as a small wave of support," said Stewart. "I'll work hard to get it passed. It will allow districts to raise money for themselves."

Plymouth-Canton Trustee Steve Guile, who testified at Wednesday's subcommittee hearing, hopes it's only the beginning for relief for all school districts in need of financial help.

Van Buren holds Grand Opening

Van Buren Public Schools Superintendent Larry Tabor will hold Grand Opening Ceremonies of the district's Early Childhood Development Center 1 p.m. Saturday at the former Edgemont Elementary School.

The center currently houses the district's Special Education and Michigan School Readiness Preschool programs. The district's tuition preschool program,

A Great Start, will open its doors to its first students in the 2001-2002 school year.

The Early Childhood Development Center was renovated before it opened in January 2001. The Board of Education was eager to open the building so that all of the district's preschool programs would be centrally located.

A Great Start and the Michigan School Readiness Program have a limited number of openings for the 2001-2002 school year.

For more information on the district's preschool programs or to register your child for preschool for the fall, please contact the Van Buren Public Schools Communications Department at (734)697-9123, ext. 224.

Gifts for Hector: Kindergarten students hand pictures they had drawn and colored to visitor Hector Castro of El Salvador.

er about the boy who was playing outside one day last winter, and was perched atop a brick wall when an earthquake struck, devastating his town.

Young Hector Castro fell into a burning trash pit so deep he couldn't climb out until after 90 percent of his body was covered with severe burns.

Hector was treated in El Salvador for the burns, receiving painful skin grafts. He lost his legs because they were burned too badly to save.

His parents, who earn $120 a month, and four siblings had no resources, and the family lives under two plastic tarps.

"They didn't have much before and now they're even worse off," said Principal Claudia Williamson.

It was while he was being treated that he met Ohio couple Don and Karen Manley, whose daughter, Elizabeth Kose, teaches at the academy.

The Manleys were in El Salvador on a church mission trip, scheduled before the January earthquake. While visiting a hospital, they met Hector and knew they had to help.

"He was such a happy boy, even in the hospital," Kose said. "He was smiling all the time." The Manleys knew the only way to help was to bring Hector to the United States for medical treatment.

Four weeks ago, they brought the boy and his mother to their Ohio home. His mother returned to El Salvador to remain with her other children.

Lessons unplanned

Kose told her students about Hector during a lesson about compassion, and she said once

Elizabeth Kose, whose parents met Hector while on a church mission in El Salvador, told her students about the boy during a lesson about compassion. Once the students got wind of the boy's story, they were called to action, Kose said.

the students got wind of the boy's story, they were called to action. The students went to the task of raising money to help Hector's family.

Kose said $1,400 may not sound like much in the suburbs, but in El Salvador it will nearly build a house for the Castro family.

"It only costs about $3,000 to build their house," she said. "We wanted to make sure that when Hector gets to go home, he has a house to return to."

DeGraaf said even though her children knew about Hector and broke open their piggy banks to help him, they didn't at first quite understand what it meant to live through such a tragedy.

"I told them one day in carpool to imagine they're just out playing soccer one day, and then something happens. And they can't. And they don't have a house," she said. "As soon as they understood, they got real quiet. Then they started talking about what they could do for him."

Deborah Svrčina's fourth-grader, Dallas, told his mother, "Mama, this is a terrible thing that has happened. We just have to help him."

So, Svrčina raced for her wallet. Dallas raced for his wallet. Even 4-year-old Molly Svrčina got out her money to add to the collection.

Julie Laurette reported that her first-grader asked if he could give Hector the $150 in his piggy bank.

"He said, 'I don't need Rollerblades that bad,'" said Laurette, adding her son has been influenced by the school's curriculum, which includes values training.

"Our whole school is based on compassion, moral values and ethics," she said. "This is just amazing."

Hector has been fitted with one prosthesis leg, and is undergoing physical therapy before receiving the other one.

Kose said after Hector's voyage home this fall, he will remain in the hands of all the students.

"It changes you when you meet him. It is a tragedy, what has happened to Hector. But it's a blessing for everyone who's ever met him," she said of the little boy from El Salvador who plays on a baseball team, rounding the bases in his wheelchair. "What I'm teaching my students is you can do anything if you believe you can."

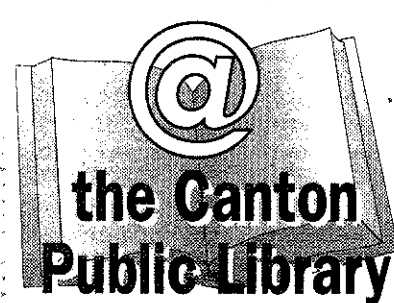

Kose said the rest of community is welcome to make donations to help Hector. They can be mailed to: Hector Castro, c/o Children's Wishing Star, 320 Pheasant Run Place, Findlay, OH 45840. For more information, call (419) 424-0979.

Q and A

Q: What was the Johnstown

Flood?

A: On May 31, 1889, heavy rains caused the Conemaugh River Dam to burst. At nearby Johnstown, Pa., the resulting flood killed more than 2,300 people and destroyed the homes of thousands more. Nearly 800 unidentified drowning victims were buried in a common grave at Johnstown's Grandview Cemetery. So devastating was the flood and so widespread the sorrow for its victims that "Johnstown Flood" entered the language as a phrase to describe a disastrous event. The valley city of Johnstown, in the Allegheny Mountains, has been damaged repeatedly by floods; 1936 (25 deaths) and 1977 (85 deaths) were the next most destructive.

■ D-Day Anniversary! In the early morning hours of June 6, 1944, Allied forces landed in Normandy on the north coast of France. In an operation that took months of planning, a fleet of 2,727 ships of every description converged from British ports (Wales to the North Sea). Operation Overlord involved 2 million tons of war materials, including more than 50,000 tanks, armored cars, jeeps, trucks and half-tracks. The U.S. alone sent 1.7 million fighting men. The Germans believed that the invasion would not take place under the adverse weather conditions of this early June day, but as the sun came up, the village of Saint-Mère-Eglise was liberated by American parachutists, and by nightfall the landing of 155,000 Allies attested to the success of D-Day. The long-awaited second front had at last materialized.

Jaye has no local defenders in Senate

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

David Jaye went down swinging. As Michigan Senate deliberated his expulsion Thursday, May 24, the Washington Township Republican — long known for his feisty demeanor — remained defiant to the end. He leveled a long list of countercharges against those senators seeking his ouster. In the end, however, 33 other senators disagreed, voting to remove him from office. All local senators voted to support the expulsion resolution. Only two votes were cast against it, one coming from Jaye himself.

Jaye accused Senate Majority Leader Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, of "railroading" him out of office. "This is payback because I've dared to challenge the Republican leadership," he said. Jaye said it was "political payback" for the unpopular positions he has taken. He accused Sen. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, and the remainder of the six-member Select Committee to Examine the Qualifications of Sen. Jaye of violating his due process rights, not giving his attorneys time to prepare a case, rushing expulsion through based on accusations alone rather than convictions, and refusing to accept testimony from his witnesses. Jaye argued he'd not been allowed to have character witnesses to testify about his contributions. "Only people who had negative things to say were allowed," he said. He further accused DeGrow of keeping secret files on him. And he claimed that topless photos found on his state-owned laptop had been rebuilt by a "computer whiz" from "secret copies" of his hard drive. But the resolution for his removal cited three drunk driving convictions, the last for which he spent 45 days in jail last summer; "a record of abuse, intimidating and violent behavior"; "two physical altercations"; and "misuse of his position as a State Senator to intimidate legislative staff members and misuse of Senate staff members and resources." DeGrow countered that, despite the fact charges were dropped in Florida, there was evidence Jaye had hit his fiancée, including her statements on a 9-1-1 tape and marks on her face when police arrived. In an incident in Bay County last November, McCotter said he believed an 18-year-old witness who testified that he saw Jaye hit and kick his fiancée, Sonia Kloss. A security tape from the store where the incident occurred, while not showing the strike, corroborated the witness's testimony, McCotter argued. Two other witnesses reported seeing the assault. And copies of Jaye's digital photos were made in the course of standard processes when the laptop was being repaired, at Jaye's request, Sen. John Cherry, D-Clio, contended. McCotter explains Sen. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, served as chair of the Select Committee and voted to expel. If senators did not make up their minds before hand, McCotter said, Jaye's remarks — attempting to use the privilege of his office as a defense for his conduct — ultimately convinced members to vote for his expulsion. "I can't be silent about what I perceive to be a repeated pattern of misconduct," McCotter said. "To portray oneself as a victim, to portray oneself as anything but responsible for one's own actions and the damage to the institution they inflict, would be disingenuous at best. In my mind, much of what we've seen, quite simply, is a request for special treatment from Mr. Jaye, that he would not afford to any citizen in the State of Michigan." "We do legislation all the time that affects the life, limb and property of every resident of the State of Michigan," McCotter continued. "And we follow the due process, procedural due process that is set forth in the Constitution, and the rules of the Michigan Senate. This resolution received far more deliberation and attention than many floor amendments that are placed onto appropriation bills that affect far more people. So to say that one did not have one's day is again, at best, disingenuous, especially when one has had a whole lot to say about this subject everywhere but under oath." Bennett's view Aids to Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, explained that he voted for the resolution for "conduct unbecoming to a state senator." Aids to Sen. Dianne Byrum, D-Onondaga, said only that she "thought it was the right thing to do." Her office deferred to Sen. Cherry for any further comment. Sen. John Cherry, D-Clio, served on the Select Committee and voted for the expulsion. "On very rare occasions, it is necessary for an individual to leave these chambers, voluntarily or involuntarily, because their behavior is so egregious that they can no longer command the institutional and public respect that is necessary for democratic institutions to function, and I fear that this is one of those moments," Cherry said. Sens. Bill Bullard, R-Highland, Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, and George Hart, D-Dearborn, did not speak on the resolution and did not respond to phone calls.

Board hopefuls see smooth transition into Jeffress era

BY TIM SMITH
STAFF WRITER
tsmith@oe.homecomm.net

The five candidates for the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees all have a similar take on the pending changing of the guard at the top.

Name-ly, the dawning of the Conway

Election coverage continues Sunday

Jeffress administration will be relatively painless for Schoolcraft board members, faculty and students — mostly because he's already been a top administrator for a number of years under the watch of soon-to-retire President Richard McDowell.

Incumbent Mary Breen, a board member since 1983 (one year after McDowell's tenure began) said there is a "fantastic opportunity" for the future with the embarking presidency of Jeffress, the longtime vice president for instruction and student services.

"We know what he's like," Breen said. "We know how he operates, we know that he has always done a good job."

Although she predicts a smooth transition, Breen said a key will be how well Jeffress adjusts to the additional duties of the presidency, such as dealing with the public.

According to incumbent Brian Broderick, a lawyer who is concluding his first full term on the board, the hiring of a known commodity improves the chance of a relatively seamless transition.

"It's a natural progression (for Jeffress)," Broderick said. "I don't know that there'll be any real big adjustment. ... Everybody knows him, everybody is aware of his personality and style. I think he's a perfect fit for the school and a perfect complement to follow up Dr. McDowell."

SCHOOLCRAFT BOARD ELECTION

Likewise, incumbent Richard Reaume — appointed in November 1999 to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Steve Ragan — said the hiring of an insider should smooth over any transitory bumps.

Jeffress already knows about issues such as programs, facilities and employee contracts, which are soon to expire.

"There's no learning curve involved," Reaume said.

Challenger Kevin McNamara

said he would have preferred the new president not be hired until after the board election, "although, from what I hear about Jeffress, I understand they probably would have voted for him (anyway). He's a good guy, a great guy."

But the challenger sees a potential problem in that the board will have to work with Jeffress to ensure Schoolcraft adequately taps into state and federal dollars.

He said McDowell was well-connected, with the state community college association and with various lobbying groups.

"... The board's got to pick up some of the slack of getting federal and state money in to the college," McNamara said.

Challenger Fred Bolden noted several issues that Jeffress will need to quickly get to speed on, "increasing college income beyond tuition and taxes, looking at business partnerships."

The college will need to "work with state and federal legislators" on trying to improve financial aid for Internet courses, the challenger added.

Salary set for new chief Jeffress

BY TIM SMITH
STAFF WRITER
tsmith@oe.homecomm.net

The Schoolcraft College board last week approved incoming President Conway Jeffress' salary for his first year at the helm.

According to Trustee Richard Reaume, the salary for Jeffress will be about $130,000 — approximately the same as what Richard McDowell is earning. McDowell, longtime president at Schoolcraft, is retiring effective July 1, when Jeffress takes over.

Reaume said the president's salary is reviewed annually, as part of the overall evaluation. Usually, the salary is increased in concert with what faculty and other staff members receive, in the area of 2 or 3 percent, he explained.

Schoolcraft board President Carol Strom could not be reached for comment about the approval.

Meanwhile, the McDowell era winds down with a public reception 5-7:30 p.m. Thursday, June 28, at the Waterman Campus Center.

A program and special presentation begins at 6:15 p.m. Reaume said administrators from the five public school districts that comprise Schoolcraft's area are expected to attend and contribute to the program.

We never thought the board wouldn't compensate us for the duties and responsibilities that were added to our workload."

Finfrock said his union, which represents 23 plant engineers, have been bargaining for over a year, and will soon be negotiating with the district's third representative as a result of changes in administration.

"Since 1992, inflation has risen 26 percent and our wages only 11 percent," said Finfrock. "We don't feel we are being unreasonable. We would like to be able to maintain our households at the same level we did 10 years ago. Instead, we're raising families and living on much less, and making more concessions with our health insurance and other benefits. Many of us have taken on second jobs just to keep up with inflation."

Superintendent Kathleen Booher admits the negotiations have been slowed down by the fact there have been several changes in the district's negotiators.

"As Tom Finfrock pointed out, they began negotiations with one person who has left the district, and resumed with another," said Booher. "Yes, they've been meetings. Yes, there have been discussions in closed sessions with the board. Obviously, we're not at a point, yet, where we have an agreement."

Finfrock said the stalled negotiations have taken its toll on union membership, with several plant engineers moving on to other districts.

"They are doing the same duties as Plymouth-Canton plant engineers, but are better compensated for their efforts," he said. "We're not asking for any special favors. However, we are requesting to be treated with respect, and offered a fair settlement commensurate with the duties and responsibilities we perform."

got out of hand, so a couple of years ago, the schools had to put a stop to it."

He explained some of the students were filling squirt guns or balloons with bleach and water and assaulting each other with the caustic mix. Then there was an injury accident involving a teen driver who couldn't see because her windshield was so covered with shave cream.

"There were just a lot of people getting dragged into it that didn't want to be, so we'll just be there making sure people can leave when they want to leave," he said.

Besides the extra enforcement, two school resource officers have conducted special awareness programs on alcohol and substance abuse for students prior to graduation.

Physical Therapy UPDATE

Presented by Hands On Center For Physical Therapy

TRAINING ANKLES TO AVOID SPRAINS

Ankles are complex hinges that support your entire body weight and, when you run or jump, may transmit a force of impact equal to three times your weight; thus, ankle injuries are the most common of all joint injuries. To avoid ankle sprains, stretch your calf muscles before and after exercise. Tight calf muscles pull the Achilles tendon and can reduce the range of motion of the foot, thereby increasing the risk of twisting the ankle. To stretch calf muscles, stand on a step with your feet flat against it. Then, extend one leg behind, keeping your rear heel on the floor and the knee straight (but not locked). Lean forward until you feel a stretch in the calf.

If you find that you are prone to ankle sprains, or that your ankle will suddenly give away without warning, causing you to fall or stumble, ask your physician for a referral to the HANDS ON CENTER FOR PHYSICAL THERAPY. Our staff of licensed physical therapists can show you how to strengthen the "Weak link" on your body, as well as how to prevent injuries in the future. To learn more about our practice, or to schedule a consultation and exam, please call our center, located in Plymouth, at 470 Forest Avenue, Suite 20, at 455-8370. Evening treatment hours available.

P.S. The great majority (85%) of ankle sprains are "inversion" sprains, in which the sole of the foot turns inward, injuring the ligaments of the outside of the ankle.

CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

Our fundamental purposes are to enhance the lives of our readers, nurture the hometowns we serve and contribute to the business success of our customers.

Foundation milestones definitely worth noting

The Canton Community Foundation has passed some significant milestones this year.

The charitable organization is midway through its 11th year as a community mainstay. Its endowment fund stands at about $750,000 and is halfway to being the self-sustaining source of revenue that board members envision.

The foundation's just-published annual report shows significant increases in its assets and support. Expenses and liabilities were up only slightly during the same period. In fact, between May 1998 and May 2000, the foundation's net assets nearly doubled to $585,000.

Meanwhile, the groundbreaking for Canton's new Human Services Building in Cherry Hill Village – which will house the foundation and Growth Works juvenile justice programs – is likely in September. Site plans have been approved by the planning commission and township board. Bids for construction of the 14,000-square-foot building will be taken next month. It will be financed jointly by the township and through federal Community Development Block Grant funds.

It will represent a necessary and well-deserved change from the current offices on Michigan Avenue at Sheldon, used as a township recreation center in the days before the Summit.

If this is the first you're hearing about these accomplishments, we're not surprised. Call it a tribute to Foundation

President Joan Noricks' quiet, competent leadership and the dedication of the foundation's board of directors. With this group, the foundation has been more intent on doing good things than making a lot of noise.

Credit also goes to some 800 donors who made contributions during 1999 and 2000.

But somebody needs to blow the foundation's horn and it might as well be us. We can't think of a single program or project that has meant more to the well-being of the Canton community during the last decade. What the foundation provides goes far deeper than a shiny, new subdivision or retail development.

Scholarships to local students, short-term financial and emotional help for families in need, character-building programs for area children, supporting area efforts in the arts have all been on the foundation's agenda. Hundreds of local residents have benefited directly during its 10-year mission and many others have been touched in some way by this organization.

Begun with the premise that municipal government can't be all things to all people, the Canton Community Foundation has morphed from a simple alternative to township hall to a true, local institution. The Observer salutes its progress and looks forward to the next decade of accomplishment.

Incumbents represent best choice in Wayne-Westland

It certainly is refreshing to see a new face, Patricia Mitchell, in the Wayne-Westland school board race.

She's challenging incumbents Mathew McCusker and Ed Turner in the June 11 race for two four-year seats. Mitchell brings a fresh perspective to the school board election, but on balance the Observer looks at the incumbents' records and endorses them for re-election.

McCusker has served for some 17 years on the board and is current president of the Michigan Association of School Boards. Turner's served diligently, too, and has been involved in community activities including the YMCA and Wayne-Westland Junior Miss.

Both men have been conscientious in carrying out their board duties, and we encourage voters to return them to the school board June 11.

The incumbents have helped to oversee bond-financed construction work, which voters approved in 1998. That work is approaching completion, and the district can take pride in the improvements to school buildings.

Both McCusker and Turner are highly visible in our community, attending a number of school events to meet students and their families. They're committed to education.

We urge all Wayne-Westland voters to vote in the school election June 11. We recommend Mathew McCusker and Ed Turner, the incumbents, be re-elected.

3 deserve Schoolcraft nod

A new era is on the horizon for Schoolcraft College. On July 1, longtime Schoolcraft vice president Conway Jeffress assumes the presidency with the retirement of Richard McDowell.

On May 16, ground was broken for the 55,000-square-foot addition to the Waterman Campus Center. The VistaTech Center will include expanded space for the college's nationally known culinary arts program, for a state-of-the-arts information technology center and for auditoriums for college and business presentations.

It's an exciting time to be associated with the college that has taken a leadership position just when community colleges are gaining new respect as an important and key component of post-secondary education.

It's no wonder that incumbent trustees Mary Breen, Brian Broderick and Richard Reaume want to continue in their positions. They are being challenged for the three, six-year terms on the seven member board by Fred Bolden of Canton and Kevin McNamara of Livonia.

We believe the three incumbents have earned the right to continue serving the college through these exciting times and urge the election of Mary Breen, Brian Broderick and Richard Reaume.

Each of these candidates has been part of a harmonious board that has worked well together and with the administration. That board has been instrumental in developing the financing for the Waterman expansion and for keeping Schoolcraft's technology up to date. They also came together to select a qualified internal candidate to replace McDowell with little of the usual infighting that goes on during the selection of an administrator.

Breen, Broderick and Reaume each bring a strong background to their roles.

Breen has been a school teacher and administrator. She also has a long history of political involvement. She is particularly aware of the changing nature of community colleges and supports efforts to keep Schoolcraft competitive.

Broderick is a lawyer with a background in public policy. He says his major focus is on finding new financial resources for the college and to keep Schoolcraft affordable for students.

Reaume, appointed to the board in 1999, brings business and technical experience to the board. His expertise in computer systems is especially important as Schoolcraft makes its bid to become a major center for technical business training.

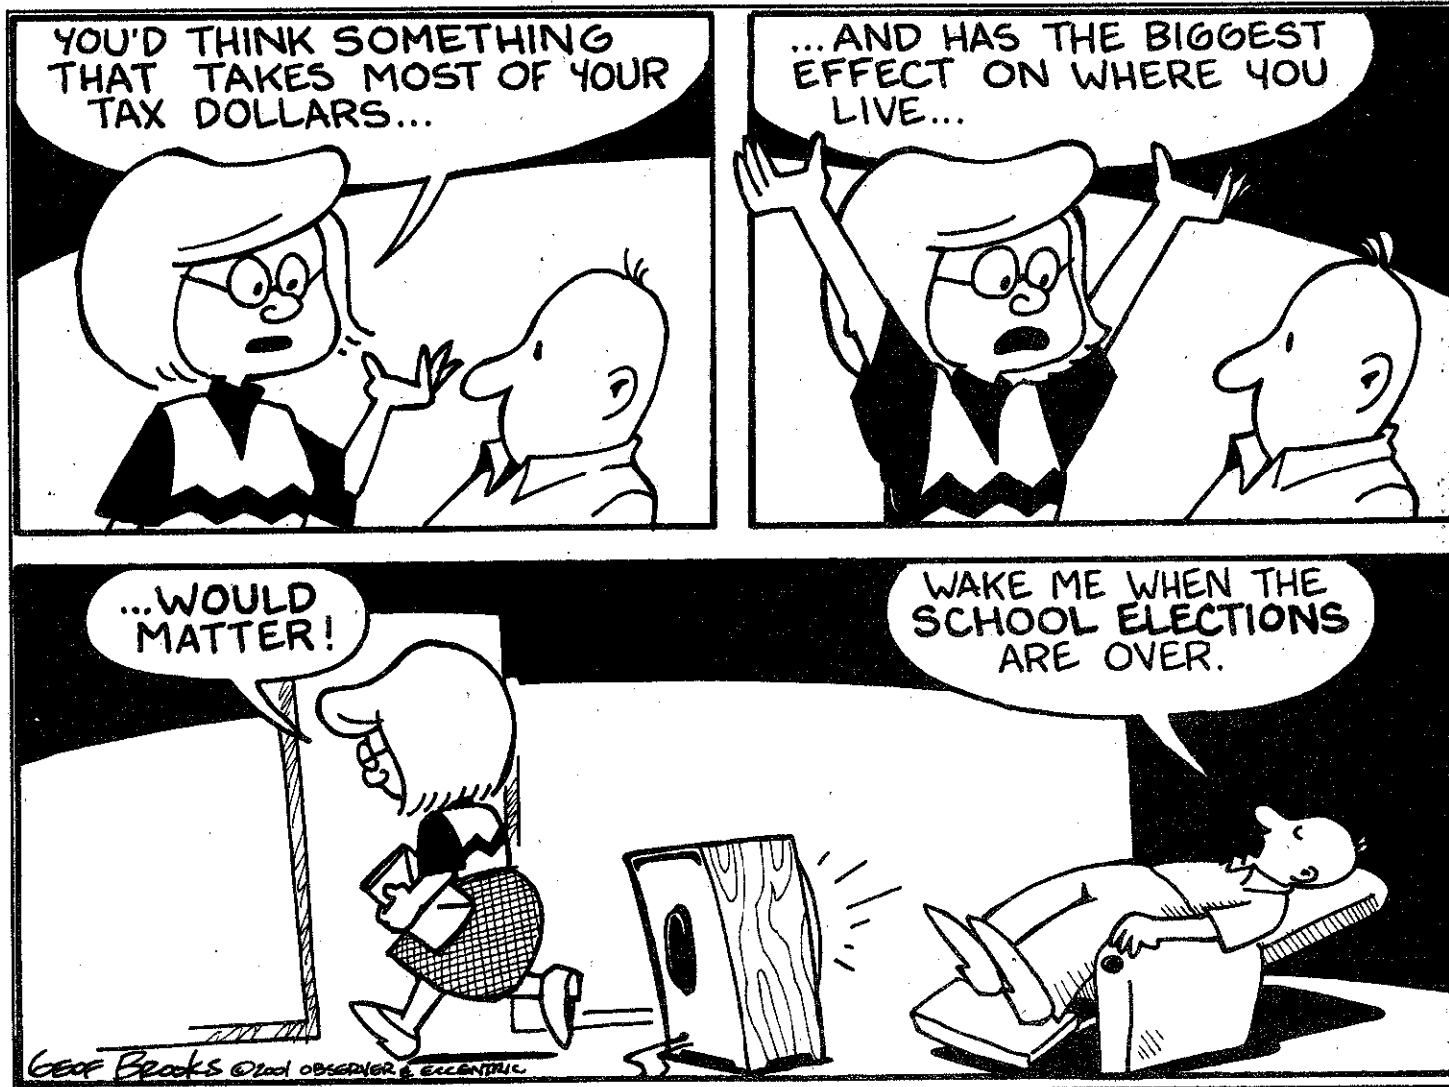

While we endorse the incumbents we welcome the interest of the challengers.

Bolden and McNamara would both bring interesting perspectives and talents to the board.

Bolden, who ran last year for the county commission, is a computer expert. As an African-American he would bring another voice to the board and says he is interested in bringing more diversity to the campus.

McNamara, the son of Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara, says he would bring strong political skills and an ability to attract private, state and federal funding to the college. We urge him to continue his interest in leading fund development programs for college if he is not successful in winning election.

We believe the three incumbents will provide the new president with the support he and the college need and urge the election of Mary Breen, Brian Broderick and Richard Reaume.

Questions library

On May 16 I attended the Canton Public Library Board's Meeting. I have been attending meetings as a member of the public for over a year now.

The stated Objectives of the CPL state, in part, that the library "will continuously solicit, welcome and consider the views of its owners," the owners being the citizens of Canton. By way of a Board decision of Nov. 15, 2000 a policy of public participation was implemented which in part states:

"The public will be allowed to participate as items on the agenda come up. They must first be recognized by the Chairman and then will have a 5 minute time limit to speak."

With a waive of his hand, without a vote by the Board, Dr. James Gillig, chairman, unilaterally rescinded the policy and advised me I was not going to be heard on the issue at hand – the discussions with the Mark Fisher Group regarding possible endowment and fund-raising projects for the library. Mr. Fischer's group is being paid by the library a fee of $4,000 per month apparently to assist the library in obtaining endowments and/or other annual fund endeavors. The Fischer group has been paid at least $24,000 as of April 1, 2001 towards these fund raising goals. The group stands to earn $48,000 for the calendar year 2001.

By comparison, the library in 2000 spent approximately $500,000 on library materials.

A plan which includes attempting to obtain $25,000 endowments from the likes of Yazaki, Kmart, Meijer and other area business certainly has merit. Why has Dr. Gillig chosen to quash the public participation on this matter? Why was I not allowed to inquire as to when/where/ and the method to be employed by the Fisher group to get the plans underway? Apparently, the staff and the Board may be the agents to actually solicit the funds, then why are we paying the Fisher group this kind of money? More importantly under what authority does Dr. Gillig silence his clients, the public, in contravention of the Board's own policy. Dr. Gillig vaguely referred to consulting the Board's attorneys on the matter of public participation. Are not the Board's attorneys the public's attorneys as well?

How do Dr. Gillig's actions conform to the stated objective of the library. I would invite everyone to review this situation and make their thoughts known to the library board. The Board is elected to serve the public. Apparently there is another agenda.

Bad drivers

I have two children who attend elementary and junior high in Canton, and I cannot believe how parents drive when dropping off their children.

For several years I have witnessed parents who act like ambulance drivers while dropping off their children. It seems like an easy task to pull into a school drop-off zone, wait your turn in line, get close enough to drop off the child, and proceed out of the zone. Simple, or is it? With our world becoming so busy, and immediate, what happens is we can't wait three-five seconds to stay in line and drop them off. What we do is cut off other parents, drive in the outside lane, go at least 50 mph and put everyone at risk of being run over.

I spoke with the assistant principal at my son's junior high this week and suggested they put cones in the second lane of the drop off zone to stop people from racing through while dropping off the children. He told me they tried that and what happened was the parents ran over the cones. Every morning I point out bad drivers to my son and tell him what not to do when he begins driving. We wonder why road rage is becoming more common place when we as parents are teaching our children how to be as dangerous and disrespectful as possible when dropping them off to be educated.

I have some advice for parents when dropping off your children: Wake up a little earlier so you're not in such a rush. Think about how your children perceive your driving. Remember that when a child gets run over in a drop off-zone or a school parking lot, it may just be your son or daughter. Also with all the violence and road rage increasing every day, remember who taught those drivers early in life how to drive. Driving safely and being courteous to others are lessons they need as soon as they are big enough to see out of the window of your car.

Dirt road a mess

We have a health hazard in Canton Township on Saltz Road between Beck and Ridge which needs to be taken care of immediately.

The dust on this dirt road is an unhealthy menace. After complaining countless times to the Phoenix Yard for Wayne County Roads, I complained again on April 30 to Mr. Gilcox, the manager there. He informed me that it was his responsibility and that the road should be at least "watered down daily and calcium chloride put on it every three months," especially with all the construction going on in the neighborhood. This had not been done on Saltz Road between Beck and Ridge.

I have also complained to the Wayne County Roads Field Office. On Sunday, May 7, I spoke to Margaret – operator 5, phone 955-9920 – who told me my complaint would be addressed. Still no change in the road.

We are choking down here. We cannot open our windows, we cannot let the children play outside, we cannot tend to our lawns without literally choking on dust every time a car goes by. I have to change my furnace filters every three weeks since the construction started; before this I changed it every three months. The filter is black when I change it. Just think what our lungs must look like! When I walk out to my mailbox if a car is going by, it creates so much dust that it sticks to my lipstick on my mouth and I come in the house with my mouth coated with road grime.

Please help us, Supervisor Yack, we need to breathe.

The township installed sewer and water mains on Saltz Road between Beck and Ridge back in September of 2000. Since then this road has not been maintained properly, such as gravel and calcium chloride put on it. In the winter it was the mud; churned up so thick that it became impacted and frozen underneath my van to the point of nearly disabling the steering and nearly causing an accident. On the way to taking the vehicle to a mechanic we discovered that it was the extraordinary amount of impacted mud causing the malfunction of the steering.

There are subdivisions being built on this road with a constant parade of dirt haulers and bulldozers going by with no letup in sight.

We need our road dusted down on a regular basis. I hope you have the clout to take care of this. Your fine town of Canton is not fine town on Saltz Road. It is a dirt ball.

Matt was special

The community lost a son, a grandson, a brother and a friend to many. Matt Taggie, age 22, was fatally stabbed while attending a birthday party in Ypsilanti on May 11 with many of his Plymouth and Canton friends.

Although he was our neighbor, sadly we did not know Matt Taggie, except to exchange periodic greetings while walking by the home he shared with his parents and brother. We have gotten a glimpse of Matt through discussions with some of his family members and friends, including our niece, who attended the party.

Matt was a special young man who touched many lives as evidenced by the hundreds of persons who attended his funeral, about 200 of them young people, many of whom openly wept during the service.

Matt was a good kid, a loving and thoughtful son, grandson, and brother – someone any of us would be proud to call a friend. He will most certainly never be forgotten, as he will live on in so many others.

This tragedy is a rude awakening for our community. Our kids should be able to gather with their friends to celebrate a birthday in a nearby community. As parents, we should not have to worry about their safety in such an environment. We are sure Sandy and Ed Taggie didn't think they had to worry about their son's safety that Friday night. He was with many friends, young adults who are your kids, your neighbors' kids. What a tragedy. Our condolences to Sandy, Ed and Nick.

To get broadband sooner, let the competition flourish

You're the chief executive officer of a growing high tech company thinking about moving to Michigan. Locating near your big customers in the auto industry makes sense, and you like the high skills in the Michigan workforce and the quality of life the state offers.

But you need high-speed, high-capacity broadband and Internet access to operate your business, far in excess of the 56K dial-up modem that is pretty much the standard across Michigan.

When you ask service providers like Ameritech how long it will take to put in a T1 switch or even get DSL service, you can't get an answer.

When you ask Comcast where its broadband backbone will be in the next few years, they'll say that's "proprietary competitive information" and therefore confidential. When you ask our location specialist about putting your headquarters in Birmingham, you'll be told the city now charges service providers a fee plus a percentage of revenues far above what other communities charge.

You think again and decide not to move to Michigan.

It's exactly this set of problems that led the Michigan Economic Development Corporation to announce earlier this month an initiative called LinkMichigan. The idea is to spur broadband growth throughout the state, possibly to areas where broadband service does not exist, increase competition and even reduce rates. The program would:

- Require service provider companies to make public where their networks are located. Currently, such information can be kept secret.

- Set up common rules and service standards for broadband companies so customers would be treated fairly and reduce delays in providing service.

- Rationalize the patchwork of local regulations and fees to help service providers plan and build their networks.

- Bundle demand for high-speed broadband from state government offices and possibly universities, school districts and local governments as an incentive for service providers to build networks. Unused remaining bandwidth could be sold to business customers.

According to the MEDC, Michigan is lagging behind other states in providing high-speed access to the Internet. No city in Michigan is on the list of top-25 markets for fiber-optic networks. Auto suppliers, for example, need high-capacity broadband to download blueprints and design changes. Something like 80 percent of the tier-one suppliers are already connected, but of the remaining 17,000 small and medium suppliers in Michigan, less than 20 percent have access to the necessary bandwidth.

"Whether for business, government, health care or education purposes, high-speed broadband access is increasingly becoming a necessity, not a luxury," the MEDC report concluded.

But for Michigan – a peninsula off the main data flow network that runs across the country from the East Coast to California – getting fully connected to sufficient broadband is not going to be easy. Thus LinkMichigan.

Reaction to the program so far has been mostly positive. Business groups think access to broadband is essential to compete in a global marketplace, while universities and community colleges see high-speed Internet as a necessary teaching and research tool.

Business groups think access to broadband is essential to compete in a global marketplace, while universities and community colleges see high-speed Internet as a necessary teaching and research tool.

Most of the opposition is coming from the service providers – Ameritech, Verizon, Comcast – who see their monopoly position threatened by efforts to open up the broadband market.

Much of their thinking stems from a long-held view that broadband, like copper-wire telephone service, is what the economists call a "natural monopoly." On this theory, it makes no sense for a company to string yet another set of wires to serve a community. Better to establish non-competitive service areas and have a public body regulate pricing.

But in today's world, where economies compete globally in terms of their capacity to exchange and process complex information flows, such 19th-century thinking is archaic. Far better to open up the broadband market to competitive market forces. And if it takes a far-reaching initiative such as LinkMichigan to do it, so be it.

Vote: Board members play crucial role in education

The lazy days of summer are here.

Our minds are on lakes and rivers, vacations to foreign lands, baseball games and golf courses. They are definitely not on schools.

Could there be a worse time for school elections? Probably not, but on June 11, voters will be asked to decide which candidates will serve on local school boards and the Schoolcraft College board.

If past history proves right, very few voters will turn out for these elections. Even under ideal conditions, school elections draw a depressingly small percentage of registered voters to the polls.

As the king said in "The King and " it is a curiosity. Opinion pollsters tell us that "education" is always at the top of public concerns. Business leaders are forever complaining about the quality of young workers who seem woefully deficient in English and math. Both political parties focused on education in the recent presidential campaign, and President Bush vows that he is "the education president."

So why all this apathy at the polls? Some argue that it doesn't make any difference who serves on the school board. They see little if any difference in their neighbors who choose to run for the board – all sincere, friendly, eager to give up personal time to serve the public. Many believe that all the important decisions about education financing and curriculum are made at the state level anyway and the boards have little influence.

Considering the large amount of taxpayer money that goes toward supporting public schools and the impact that the quality of schools has on real estate values, it would seem that voters would turn out in numbers just to protect their wallets.

The truth is that school boards have a tremendous influence over the direction of a school system, both in the allocation of resources and the quality of instruction. It is important that voters take the time to know the candidates, listen and read carefully about what they have to say because they are not all alike and their decisions could have a major influence over the quality of life in our communities.

The recent downturn in the economy and a drop in sales tax revenue will have a profound effect on local schools. A well-chosen school board will find ways to maneuver through the crisis and provide leadership in dealing with the state on adjusting Proposal A to fit the new reality.

School boards also have an impact on curriculum. They oversee the school administration and often the superintendent

The financial decisions a board makes will affect how many teachers the schools have, class size and the quality of books, lab equipment, computers and other materials. Are these things important to a candidate or is his/her only interest in cutting taxes?

School boards also have an impact on curriculum. They oversee the school administration and are often asked to choose a new superintendent. A good board doesn't interfere with day-to-day operations but is always aware of the direction that the administration takes. Public schools are answerable to the public and the board represents that public. If you don't vote, how can that board represent your views?

Some board members come to the board with an agenda. They support book banning or Creationism or New Age massage or condoms in the classroom.

Should they be elected, they might pursue their agenda to significantly alter the schools (as the state board in Kansas did a couple years ago when it voted to support the teaching of Creationism instead of evolution).

If you support any of these agendas, it's important for you to get out and support these people. If you don't, it's important for you to get out and oppose them!

That's what democracy is all about. If you don't use it, you'll lose it and you'll allow those who have narrow agendas to gain control.

The Observer Newspapers devote a lot of time and space to covering school elections. We believe strong schools are an important part of a strong community. We urge you to do your part.

Mike Malott

In the end, former senator David Jaye just didn't get it.

Making his final speech to the Michigan Legislature's upper chamber Thursday, May 24, Jaye wrapped himself up in the Bill of Rights, patriotism and democracy. He went so far – with Memorial Day right around the corner – as to say that veterans had not fought and died in America's wars so that his rights could be "trampled" by the state senate.

"I know the Constitution says that this chamber has the right to determine the suitability of a senator to serve, but it most certainly didn't give you the right to trample on my Sixth Amendment rights, on my due process rights, because the Michigan Constitution even says that every legislative and administrative proceeding must have due process," Jaye said.

What Jaye didn't get – and apparently still doesn't because over the weekend he began demanding apologies from the senators who ousted him in a 33-2 vote last week, – was that he was an elected official, he was part of the government.

The Bill of Rights was written, not to protect him, but to protect the rest of us from people like him.

Had he read down a little further in the Constitution, he'd have come to another phrase, in the 14th Amendment, that mentions "equal protection of the laws."

What that means is that the law applies to everyone equally. If it says that if average citizens can't, for instance, hit someone or drive while drunk, then presidents can't do that either. Nor can congressmen. Nor can bureaucrats or judges.

And state senators can't do it either.

Of course, there have always been powerful people who thought they get some sort of special privilege by virtue of their positions. That kind of behavior was exactly what the framers of our Constitution wanted to get away from.

Perhaps it was Sen. John Cherry, D-Clio, who said it best: "I think that is what inspired the committee to come to the conclusion that Senator Jaye was no longer fit to serve because he used his office, the privilege of his office, the privilege conferred on him by the public, as a sword and a shield, to allow him to do things that an ordinary citizen would not be able to do, and to protect him from standards of conduct that ordinary, everyday, hardworking citizens struggle very hard to meet."

Sen. Joanne Emmons, R-Big Rapids, put it well, too: "Being a senator does not give you a license to treat employees differently than would be tolerated in the private sector. A male who not only hits but denies hitting a woman in spite of eye witnesses is wrong. Being a powerful state senator does not excuse such an assault. Being a powerful state senator does not make you immune from the consequences of your behavior, simply because you are elected."

We likely haven't seen the last of Jaye. He has promised to sue. He could run again for the same Senate seat . . .

Sen. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, put it this way: "When I think about the equal application of law and fairness, I would like the people of Michigan to ask themselves a simple question: If I did what Mr. Jaye did, would I still have my job, and where would I be?" I don't think the answer you would get back is the same one that he asked this body to give to him. ... I believe it was absolutely, unequivocally clear that Mr. Jaye has used a misperceived sense of senatorial privilege as a sword and a shield against people less powerful than he is. If we allow that to continue ... what we do not condemn we condone."

We likely haven't seen the last of Jaye. He has promised to sue. He could run again for the same senate seat, and if voters choose to return him to office, there is very little senators could do. Jaye's district (the 12th) is in western and northern Macomb County.

But when he goes on the attack against senators who nearly unanimously voted to oust him, accusing them of being unfair or political, don't you believe it.

Grab a seat Summer Concert Season is about to begin

Black Sabbath

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homecomm.net

With superstars like Madonna, Aerosmith, N'Sync and Janet Jackson scheduled to stop in and around the Motor City, it's bound to be the best summer for concert-going in a long while.

"Detroit is just a market of huge music fans," said Dave Clark, who works in event production and marketing for SFX in Northville. No one knows it better.

For Clark summer doesn't start until Dave Matthews Band returns to Detroit's Comerica Park: "He played the first show ever at Comerica Park and it was awesome." But Clark anticipates the second band to grace the stage at the new ball park, N'Sync, will earn its spot in pop music history. N'Sync is bringing along a 5-story high stage and a production like no one has seen to keep its legions of fans entertained. Clark said the "venue is taking off quite well", despite only hosting one concert last year. Not many tours are big enough to fill the COPA and timing a tour in between a busy baseball schedule isn't easy. Tours like N'Sync's will take days of preparation.

Anticipation

While Comerica Park is the newest open-air addition to the summer concert season, the DTE Energy Music Theatre (formerly Pine Knob Music Theatre) will again reign supreme with plenty of festivals, reunion tours and anticipated performers. Perhaps the most highly anticipated is Area One, a festival that joins electronic masters like Moby and Detroit's own innovators—Juan Atkins, Kevin Saunderson and Derrick May—with some of hip hop's best, Outkast and The Roots, on July 24. "Detroit has always been a big town for techno, which is an element of the festival," noted Clark. He believes the festival will sell out.

OzzFest returns at the end of July, bringing all original members of Black Sabbath together again, along with rock's new elite, Marilyn Manson and Linkin Park. Jeff Corey, director of public relations at Palace Sports and Entertainment said that's about as big a festival as possible.

Though the days of mega-tours like Lollapalooza and HOARDE are gone, Corey believes package tours have seemed to take their place. "I would say there are more 'package' tours than in previous years, such as Black Crowes and Oasis, Paul Simon and Brian Wilson, Styx and Bad Company, Journey and Peter Frampton, Poison with Warrant, Quiet Riot and Enuff Z'Nuff, Asia/The Fixx/The Outfield/The Motels, and the list goes on and on," he said. "These package tours are attractive to the concert-goer since they offer more 'bang for the buck." By packaging themselves with other headline-status performers, these tours have more clout and have more sales potential.

Metal heads have surely embraced the formula. This summer Poison brings back the noise with the Glam Metal Slam. The original four-piece will be joined by cohorts Warrant, Enuff Z'Nuff and Quiet Riot for one loud Independence Day celebration. Motley Crue's original crooner Vince Neil reunited the Voices of Metal, with Ratt, Slaughter and Vixen, for a similar revival Aug. 19.

Country

Country fans won't be neglected this summer as performers like Tim McGraw, Randy Travis, LeAnn Rimes and the Girls Night Out Tour Aug. 9 featuring Reba McEntire, Martina McBride and more. Music lovers get a chance to travel back in time with special shows like Sisters of the Sixties, The Spirit of '67 and 70's Soul Jam in mid June.

But the buzz on this summer's concerts really rests with the women of pop. Heavy-hitters like Janet Jackson and Rochester Hills' own Madonna will make rare and long-awaited appearances. Both pop divas are scheduled to play the Palace of Auburn Hills. Both have added second shows due to demand. And both will cost a pretty penny. Tickets for Madonna's completely sold out Drowned World Tour, Aug. 25-26, sold for up to $250 each. Clark anticipates the Madonna shows will be a highlight of the summer. "Who knows if she'll ever come back again," he said.

Changes

The Palace Sports & Entertainment's Jeff Corey noted the changes concert-goers will notice when they visit the former Pine Knob Music Theatre this summer.

Hear Improved sound allows a fuller sound which will be better contained in the pavilion and lawn areas.

Feel Walkways and plazas within the grounds were redone.

See A new water feature was added, which includes a real 1942 Chevy within its design - sort of a tribute to our Motor City heritage.

Movement No stopping of vehicles to collect a parking fee, which should greatly improve getting people onto the parking lot and off of the streets, freeway ramps and freeways. The parking fee is now included in the ticket purchase.

Taste The hill-top deck and concessions area will be open all season. It was constructed during last summer and only opened for the last few shows.

Pontiac's Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre seems to have become the unofficial summer home of punk. Boasting shows by Green Day and the 2001 Van's Warped Tour - with the likes of Rancid and Fenix TX Aug. 12 - the open-air venue will cater to those who like music with attitude and edge.

For something a little more subdued, more family-friendly, the Meadow Brook Music Festival presents art, children's shows and a plethora of performances by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra this summer.

The list goes on. "Be on the lookout for more shows," said Clark. "There's still more to come."

Leukemia in September, went into remission on Oct. 2, returned to the hospital Oct. 24, and never came home.

Stewart and I talk about how leukemia changed us — we're less materialistic, more compassionate, loving, eager to tell the people in our lives how special they are knowing there are no guarantees on tomorrow.

Change is a necessary part of this journey. You can't stop it. Life goes on, that's the great mystery, even when you feel as if your life has stopped.

"It's been seven months since I've been able to play," Stewart tells me explaining how medical treatments sapped his energy.

He's feeling good now, and is looking forward to his concert.

"It's a way to reconnect with all of the people who have bought records and come to our shows," he said. "Now I'm healthy again, I'm working out, I look at it as a way of starting over."

Stewart has been making music for a long time. He's recorded seven albums, and is working on a new one. Fans will hear songs from all of his albums, and my favorite, the newly released What We Talk of...When We Talk.

"It's really going to be a rhythm and blues type show," he says. "We'll have horns, a lot of singers and people on stage."

He's known the people he's performing with for a long time, and it gives him a good feeling. "Barbara Payton is just a terrific singer," he says. "She has a raspy tough voice like Janis Joplin."

Artistic challenge

Music, that's what counts. And while he can't place his music outside his experience with leukemia, Stewart is an artist who challenges himself stylistically with each recording. He knows audiences can be fickle, but enjoys exploring "the different shades and tones" of the gifts he's been given.

He's grateful to the people who have followed him over the years, listened to his music, and hopes that: "It's a source of comfort and connection, something you can count on in a slippery world."

Soulful music

Rhythm and blues speaks to him — it's music with soul. He wants people to be entertained, and hopes they go home with something to think about, reflect on.

"I'm a musician and hopefully a story-teller," he says. "My job is to be a bridge between my experiences and others, to touch people on a level deeper than conversation."

When We Talk Of...When We Talk has kind of a Motown sound. He's working on a new album that has a greasier, Memphis sound.

Life goes on, it's spring, and summer's just around the corner.

"You look for little things that keep you going," he tells me. "Remember Keely," he says. "They can't hit a moving target. Keep moving, even when you don't feel like it."

Doing something that's relevant is important to Stewart. He founded the Stewart Francke Leukemia Foundation to help others in need of bone marrow transplants.

"I wanted to be an intrinsic part of the community," he said. "I'm happy and kind of proud that I make a living as a not famous musician. To make something beautiful that resonates with people, some people would call it tilting windmills, it's the only answer I can come up with."

Fest features 'Smooth' jazz

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER
skowalski@oe.homecomm.net

Those who favor rock 'n' roll, rap or country and are attending their first V98.7 Smooth JazzFest in Southfield this weekend may be surprised to know they've already heard some of the music — by accident.

WVMV, 98.7-FM, is where you're most likely to find smooth jazz around metro Detroit. If it's not on at home, on your headset, or in the car, chances are it's on where you run errands or on the telephone while on hold.

Native Detroiters Tim Bowman, one of the scheduled acts at the third annual Smooth JazzFest, heard the title cut of his latest CD, Smile, while ordering a sandwich at Subway.

"I was standing in a Subway and they were playing my song," Bowman said. "They had it on and the workers were humming along with it. I was like 'OK, cool.'"

Smooth jazz superstar Al Jarreau headlines the list of acts at the V98.7 Smooth JazzFest, which runs Friday through Sunday outdoors on The Green in front of the Southfield Civic Center (Evergreen Road at Civic Center Drive). Among the local acts is Alexander Zonjic, who made a name for himself with a flute long before becoming the V98.7 Morning Show host when the station started 3 1/2 years ago.

Zonjic's evolution in music has taken him from rock 'n' roll to rhythm and blues to jazz, to smooth jazz.

"Ninety-nine percent of my stuff now is on flute," he said. "I never made it a point growing up to be specifically studying one genre of music. It's smooth jazz right now, definitely smooth jazz."

Zonjic calls smooth jazz "very melodic, rhythmic, accessible to large audiences." The reason this is the third annual JazzFest is because the first two were so remarkably successful.

Bowman went solo in 1996 with the first of three CDs, Love, Joy and Peace, featuring hit songs Rapture and I'll be there. His second CD, Paradise, featured the hit Free. He calls SmoothJazz Fest one of "the highlights of the year."

"It's put together so well," he added. "Some of the best talent in smooth jazz is there. There's such a buzz around the city when it's coming."

'Center of the World' deals with indecent proposal

BY DAVID GERMAIN
AP MOVIE WRITER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With The Center of the World, director Wayne Wang set out to show a sense of computer-age disconnection, how the touch of the keyboard can undermine live human contact.

He succeeded, though perhaps not in the way he intended, and not in a way that makes for a captivating film.

Center of the World is so detached, so emotionally stunted, so forcibly contrived, that it's a bore to watch. That's a puzzling result, given the heart and humanity of such previous Wang films as The Joy Luck Club and Smoke.

Topping off the tedium, the steamy sex scenes promised by the story line — a Vegas rendezvous between a lonely computer geek and a stripper — are about as sexy as shaking hands with a car salesman who has sweaty palms.

To paraphrase Frank Zappa, making a film about sex is like dancing about architecture — the medium of expression just can't capture the experience. Sex in cinema generally is gratuitous or dull, and often both. It's the rare film achievement that handles sex with insight, and Center of the World isn't one of them.

At the center of Wang's world are Richard (Peter Sarsgaard), a computer engineer about to become mega-rich from his company's stock offering, and Florence (Molly Parker), a garage-band drummer whose paying gig is stripping.

They meet at a coffee shop, they chat, he goes to her club for a lap dance. Standard boy-meets-girl stuff.

Rather than doing something totally crazy — like asking Florence out on a date — Richard plays it safe and offers her 10 grand to spend a weekend with him at a Las Vegas hotel.

Florence agrees to Richard's indecent proposal, with conditions: "No talking about feelings, no kissing on the mouth" — and no actual intercourse.

There's also a strict time limit. Between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m., she's Richard's personal sex siren. She's off duty all other times, though available for casual conversation.

The screenplay by Wang, Paul Auster and Siri Hustvedt — credited to the three under a pseudonym — is such a work of artifice that the film never has a chance.

Their cold-cash arrangement notwithstanding, Florence and Richard share a growing attraction that Wang and his collaborators irrationally choke off, apparently thinking they're making a heavy statement on contemporary isolation. Instead, they're just taxing the audience's patience with a man and woman too stupid to take the baby steps needed to start a real relationship.

Unlike Nicolas Cage and Elisabeth Shue's downward-spiraling characters in Leaving Las Vegas, Richard and Florence simply have no obstacles to romance and salvation, other than the histrionic barriers Wang and company choose to throw up.

Richard is characterized as a man more comfortable with computers than people. Yet Sarsgaard's Richard seems fairly personable and socially adept, making it a real head-scratcher why this rich, bright, decent, handsome guy had to hire himself a girlfriend.

And Florence early on is a variation of the hooker with a heart of gold, whose inexplicable turn to cold hostility is just another clumsy affectation of the script.

The movie's one spark comes when Florence's friend Jerri (Carla Gugino) stops by to titillate and torment the couple. Jerri is one more synthetic element piled onto the mix, but Gugino's frantic, seductive, raging performance steals the show.

(Gugino, incidentally, played the wholesome secret-agent mom in Spy Kids. Quite a change.)

When Jerri leaves, you wind up wishing the camera would follow her out the door and away from these two saps holed up in a hotel room. Her story was bound to make for a better film.

Meet the French Kicks

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.hometown.com

The French Kicks might be new to the rock scene, but they're living like bona fide stars.

When I called to speak with guitarist Matthew Stinchcomb last week I found the New York City foursome lounging on the East Coast of Maryland, fishing for soft shell crab and anxiously awaiting their summer tour. "We're living the life of a band that sold 30,000 records," he said with a laugh. "We're very good at being men of leisure."

The French Kicks have only been together for three years. The band hasn't even released a full-length record yet. But these childhood friends seemed to have struck a chord in the rock world.

The story

"We started I guess it was the summer of 1998," said Stinchcomb. "We played our first show that fall. Nick and Jamie, our original bass player, and I all grew up in Washington, D.C. We knew each other since high school or even before."

After attending Oberlin College in Ohio together, they moved to New York City and met guitarist Josh Wise through a mutual friend. "We hit it off instantly and moved to the country to get the band together."

The "country" was actually a small town in Virginia where the bandmates went to write and record music — while working on and living at a friend's farm. "I don't think we set out with a (musical) vision in mind," said Stinchcomb. "We were seeing bands around. We wanted to make the music we wanted to hear — melodic, song-based, but still nasty rock."

The name

The band says its name has no real significance. "We were trying to come up with a name but everything was so loaded with some sort of meaning," he admitted. "That's what we didn't want." Though there's some debate as to who thought of the name, it was the

The French Kicks

French Kicks that stuck. All they want ask is that people get it right.

"The first time we played D.C., we were all so excited because we're from there," recalled Stinchcomb. "The city paper (announced) in big letters the French Kiss (were playing)."

Detroit

But there's no mistaking the Kicks here in the Motor City. The band — now consisting of Stinchcomb, Nick and his brother Lawrence Stumpf and Josh Wise — has played Detroit's Gold Dollar twice and returns this Saturday. The band members had even toyed with the idea of moving to Detroit for a while.

Anyone who has caught the band live will notice an equality onstage. Three quarters of the band share vocals, a happy coincidence according to Stinchcomb. "I think it's better that way. We all have a slightly different range. I can sing the higher part. It's a no-ego thing. There's no frontman in the band."

Back to work

The French Kicks plan to head to the studio with their producer Greg Talenfeld (Beck, Pavement, Jon Spencer Blues Explosion) this summer to complete its first full-length record. The new songs don't yet have names. "We're calling one 'wakachalka' for how the guitar goes," said Stinchcomb.

In the meantime Britain's Pop-Tones label, headed by Alan McGee (Oasis), will release the current EP, Young Lawyer, overseas and later send them on their first European tour for four weeks. The new material picks up where Young Lawyer left off, he said. "They're a lot more open, sparse sounding. Some of it sounds electronic, the guitar and drum loops, but it's not. There are still a lot of three-part harmonies."

The Kicks met Talenfeld through mutual friends in the band Jonathan Fire Eater. "I like the stuff he's doing," he said. "It's really raw sounding."

As is the French Kicks music. Young Lawyer was almost completely recorded live. It contains enough crunching guitar and catchy melodies to get you hooked on the first listen. Hear it for yourself this weekend.

French Kicks with The Walkmen, The Dirty Shame, 9 p.m. Saturday, June 2, Gold Dollar Detroit. Call (313) 833-6873.

Downtown Detroit came alive last weekend with crowds spilling into Greektown eateries, snapping photos with the Spirit of Detroit, stumbling out of their hotel rooms and hot-footing it to the Focus Detroit Electronic Music Festival and related parties for three days straight.

For the second year, the DEMF proved a stunning success thanks to a wide range of performers — among them Terrence Parker, Tortoise, Mixmaster Mike and Inner City.

After a generous dose of electronic dance music percolating from every corner of Hart Plaza Saturday through Monday, my head is still humming to the beat and is dizzy from the crowds. Here's a rundown of recollections for those of you who joined me in the techno trenches and a hint of what of the rest of you missed if you skipped town last weekend:

First of all, Friday

10:18 p.m. Arriving at Detroit's CPOP Gallery for the private pre-DEMF party I tread high-heeled into a sea of people who don't often mingle: The corporate sponsors (many of them pleased Ford employees), the artists and entourage (a quick hello to Derrick May and his friendly publicist Jim Miller), the press (Mix magazine's Doug Coombe got it all on film) and festival organizers (Carol Marvin, CEO of Pop Culture Media, was dancing by midnight). This "storm before the storm" honors techno pioneers known as The Innovators — Juan Atkins, Kevin Saunderson and Derrick May — who each took a turn on the tables. The anticipation builds one record at a time.

Day One

2:15 p.m. Though crowds at the underground Bacardi/Real Detroit Stage are sparse as Berkley-based trio Halon begins to play, it deserves a full house. The interplay of drums, bass, synths and an electro-rock groove echoes and bounces off the walls as graffiti artists splatter a brand new creation on the wall nearby. Music and art meld into one. A friend yells into my ear that the band deserves a later time slot, more exposure.

3 p.m. I hike over to the CPOP Stage, known for its truly danceable DJs and probably the best overall sound at the festival, to see Norm Talley kicking up his vintage downbeats, a solid marriage of house and techno. The crowd around me couldn't stop moving.

9:25 p.m. Just trying to get down the stairs back into the concrete jungle of the Bacardi/Real Detroit Stage is almost impossible now. The first sprinklings of rain ushered festival-goers to take cover. But the hard-driving beats of Autechre demand my attention. Twisting through the crowd, I never manage to actually see the stage — I'm not quite 5 foot 2 inches tall. But British duo of Sean Booth and Rob Brown made it loud and clear — they could've crowded the floor from the festival's main stage just like Germany's Jazzanova was doing at the moment.

Day Two

8 p.m. Rain showers didn't hinder attendance — Today even last year's no-show Laurent Garnier made it to the DEMF's main stage. Engulfed in hazy blue light, Paris's Garnier is in the midst of a two and a half hour live set that delivers even more of his jazzed up techno than the hungry crowd anticipated.

9:20 p.m. Kenny Larkin's moonlit set at the Motor/ MGD Stage is nothing less than inspirational. A techno name to be reckoned with, Larkin draws a massive crowd just as a giant barge heads east on the waterfront, south of the stage. Overlooking the majesty of the water, the view of Windsor and the sea of dancers, I wonder what all this must look and sound like from the other side — a bombardment of different ages and ethnicities in the city.

12:30 a.m. Carl Craig's only performance all weekend — at his 10-year anniversary party for Planet E records, called All Access — is easily the place to be. In an unassuming building on Cass Avenue, the party takes over three levels and includes some of the best in techno — IBEX keeps the mood going strong on the main level as guests wandered around the grass-covered floor; Mike "Agent X" Clark held court spinning deep house below; Reelocase wanders upstairs with records and girlfriend in tow. At just the right spot I could literally feel the beat of Richie Hawtin's Plus 8 party next door. The line still wraps around the corner and its 3 a.m. But the late-comers aren't too concerned because Craig won't make his way to the turntables until after 5 a.m.

Day Three

1:28 p.m. Bordering on exhaustion, I saunter into the hotel where Carl Craig is hosting his Planet E press conference to find the former DEMF artistic director flagged by his label's artists, Reelocase, IBEX, Mike "Agent X" Clark and Chicago's Common Factor. The conference focuses on the future of his label. "Ten years went by really fast," said Craig as he vows to "stay futuristic."

No matter what happens with the organization of the DEMF in the future, Craig said he hopes it will maintain its objective of bringing new music, DJs and producers to the forefront and celebrating this Detroit commodity. Jugging by the flood of bright pink "I Support Carl" stickers across the grounds at Hart Plaza this weekend, his legacy lives on.

3 p.m. Carl Cox, scheduled to perform on the main Ford Focus stage, calls in sick. This is the second disappointment of the day, since LTJ Bukem — set to perform on the Motor/ MGD stage later this afternoon — also cancelled. At least the weather is reflecting change. A little sunshine finally breaks through the clouds.

9:05 p.m. Often dubbed the Godfather of Techno, Juan Atkins doesn't miss his performance as he did last year. In reverence and appreciation, the crowd is hardly leaving room to stand, forget about dancing.

It's sometime after 10 p.m. now and Derrick May is supposed to be on deck, returning from his legendary set last year to headline the festival. All I feel and all I hear are hard pellets of hail falling on my head and nearly everyone is running for cover.

May cancels due to the weather.

Losing electricity

12:38 a.m. I can't possibly make it to another party and decide to head home for well-deserved sleep.

If you missed the DEMF or just want a musical souvenir, grab a copy of Planet E's All Access, compiled by Carl Craig. The CD features a mix of tracks from Richie Hawtin's Minus Orange (Video Mix) to Inner City's Good Love (Reese Deeper Dub), Reelocase's Can't Take It (Herbert Remix) to Bill Van Loo's Knowing Dub. Random Noise Generation's The Playground also finds its way into the mix, a previously unreleased track. Grab a copy and call you're long distance friends to brag — this CD won't be released outside of Detroit until June 12.

Family atmosphere makes Villa Maria memorable

BY JENNIFER PLACINTO
STAFF WRITER

The Valente family's history is visible to any customer who enters Villa Maria Ristorante, the newest addition to the family's fine dining legacy.

With family pictures dating back to the early 1900s hung along the walls of the five-year-old restaurant, the Valente family continues to make history with its delicious Italian foods. Worn baby shoes, an old wooden sled and washing board are some of the items hanging from the dining room walls which serve as reminders of the heritage behind this dining experience.

The late Al Valente, who was born in Detroit, opened his first family restaurant in Rosedale Park in 1973 with the help of his parents, Alfredo and Mary Valente, who worked at Maria's Pizzeria. Alfredo immigrated to this country from Casino, Italy.

Al expanded his business with the opening of Ristorante Di Maria's on Walnut Lake Road in West Bloomfield which his widow, Joyce, still owns today. He also opened Little Italy in Northville before taking on his last venture — Villa Maria. Al died in 2000 at the age of 65.

New look

Formerly known by customers as the "big pink house" on the southwest corner of Haggerty and Maple roads in West Bloomfield, Villa Maria recently received a fresh, new look of on the inside and out.

"It really needed a little facelift," said manager Dana Cooper of the now yellow house.

While Cooper, 34, is not a member of the Valente family, each of the three remaining businesses are owned and operated by family members.

Robert Gallagher, Al's nephew, serves as chef/manager at Villa Maria under the ownership of Mike and Lisa Jepko, Al and Joyce's son and daughter-in-law.

Gallagher, 34, has been working for the family restaurants for the past 15 years.

"I grew up in it," Gallagher said. "I worked at Maria's in West Bloomfield when I was a Instead it is rented for receptions, showers, baptisms and other parties during weekend afternoon hours and some weekday nights.

kid."

Gallagher continued that work while attending Michigan State University where he received a degree in business. But the family business kept calling him back and, "I couldn't say 'no,'" he said.

Gallagher received his culinary training under Jeff Jepko, another of Al's sons who is chef and co-owner of Little Italy. Gallagher's brother, John Gallagher, is the other co-owner.

Desserts

Desserts like Tira Misu and some other Villa Maria menu items are prepared by Edna Gallagher, 70, who is Al's sister and Gallagher's mother.

some tasty and unique fares.

"We have a lot of original pasta and veal dishes that you're probably not going to find in other places," Cooper said, adding that the wine list also continues to grow.

Gallagher said the family atmosphere of guests knowing the staff also makes the dining experience memorable. Cooper said it's neat to see the children of customers who were expecting when they first starting coming to the restaurant.

While there is often a waiting list on weekend nights, lunch and dinner are served weekdays typically without a wait.

Cooper attributes the quieter weekday environment to the incredible amount of traffic along Haggerty Road. She said most people don't want to tackle the drive during their lunch hour because they fear they won't be back to work in time.

"It's horrible," she said of the traffic.

However, Cooper said, "The service is fast. We can serve a lunch pretty much as fast as any place."

And prices are reasonable — $6.95 to $13 for lunch entrées.

The most difficult task for Villa Maria owners is getting new customers in the door.

"Even after five years, people say they drive by all the time and never stop," Cooper said of first-time customers.

But the drive home from the newer United Artists Theatre, located off Maple and Haggerty in neighboring Commerce Township, is snagging more customers.

"It helps with the later crowds," Cooper said.

New man in charge

New coach: Mike Vellucci has added the titles of general manager/coach to that of president of the Plymouth Whalers, fulfilling a dream he's had to coach this team. Vellucci succeeds Pete DeBoer, who resigned last week to take a similar position with Kitchener.

Vellucci chosen to coach Whalers

BY C.J. RISAK

cjrisk@oe.homecomm.net

The Whalers got their guy. And it didn't take a lot of looking or consideration or searching, either. All Plymouth Whalers owner Peter Karmanos had to do was walk into a different office at Compuware Arena and talk to someone on staff.

On Wednesday, it was announced that Mike Vellucci, who was hired last summer as president of the Whalers, would become the team's general manager and coach.

The move comes as no real surprise, despite the sudden resignation a week ago of coach/general manager Peter DeBoer. DeBoer accepted a similar position with the Kitchener Rangers, an Ontario Hockey League rival of the Whalers.

Vellucci said since DeBoer's resigning, he's received "hundreds" of calls regarding the job.

"My phone's been ringing off the hook," Vellucci said at Wednesday's press conference.

Still, considering the short period of time between DeBoer's resigning and Vellucci's hiring, it appears only one man was actually considered for the job.

"I talked it over with Mr. Karmanos and he said to me, 'I want you to coach and be my general manager, too," Vellucci said. "He just thought I was the right choice."

His background verifies that. A Farmington native — he graduated from Farmington HS in 1984 — the 34-year-old Vellucci first played hockey for Compuware's midget team, which won a national title.

He went from there to the OHL's Kitchener Rangers, then to the Salt Lake City of the International Hockey League, helping it win a national title, and graduated to the NHL and the Hartford Whalers.

Vellucci took over as president/general manager/coach of the Compuware Ambassadors in 1993. In his seven seasons in that capacity, the Ambassadors won four North American Hockey League titles and two national championships. Twice he was named the NAHL Executive of the Year ('94 and '99) and was NAHL Coach of the Year once ('98).

His regular-season record in those seven seasons was an impressive 241-82-27, a .689 winning percentage. For six-straight seasons, Vellucci guided the Ambassadors into the Gold Cup National Jr. 'A' Championship Tournament, winning it in 1994 and 1999.

In a statement to the media, Karmanos said: "We are very pleased to be able to fill this position with someone as qualified as Mike. Mike has proven he knows what it takes to be successful, having won two national championships.

"We are fortunate to have a person within our organization with his experience. The fact he already knows the players and the staff should allow for a smooth transition for everybody involved."

Vellucci said he did not expect to be in the position of coach, but he agreed to be. "I'd like to thank Peter for giving me this opportunity to coach," he said. "It's been a lifelong dream.

"To be honest with you, when I was promoted last year to president I pretty much gave up any idea of coaching. I thought Pete DeBoer would be here a long time.

"I figured I'd concentrate on the administration end of it."

DeBoer's abrupt departure altered all that. It's hoped his sudden exodus won't change anything else with the Whalers, which ranks as one of the OHL's premier organizations.

Vellucci is well-acquainted with many of the Whalers, both past and present.

STATE DISTRICT SOCCER

Chiefs start fast, wreck Churchill

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

The Plymouth Canton girls soccer team looked like a steamroller Wednesday, dismantling host Livonia Churchill in a Division I district semifinal, 7-0.

The Chiefs, 14-3-1 overall, moved into the district final 1 p.m. Saturday at home to play the winner of today's other semifinal match between Westland John Glenn and Garden City.

Canton striker Anne Morrell, bound for the University of North Carolina, notched her 130th, 131st and 132nd career goals — all in the first half — as the Chiefs built a 5-0 lead.

Rachel Perry and Melanie Dunn also scored in the opening half for Canton.

Stephanie Johnson contributed a pair of second-half goals.

Amanda Lentz assisted on two of Canton's goals, while Erica Aherns, Sara Heimerl, Ashley Rosaen and Dunn collected one assist each.

CANTON

Starting goalkeeper Briana Wolcott made three solid saves in the first half to preserve the shutout.

"We played a good ballgame and moved the ball well," Canton coach Don Smith said. "We've been playing pretty well, even in the games we've lost we've hustled and worked hard. We really haven't had a letdown game."

For the first time in school history, Canton was not staring rival Plymouth Salem in the face during a district encounter. The two teams were split up this year. Salem is in the Northville district.

"It's nice not to have that pressure game on your back, but it really doesn't matter," Smith said. "It just feels different because this is the first time in 39 seasons — between the boys and the girls — that we haven't been in the same district."

Rocks overcome injuries, advance

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisk@oe.homecomm.net

Sure, it's a numbers game. The more goals you score, the better off your soccer team will be.

Bigger and better. More the merrier. Higher and higher. Right?

Well, not in all instances.

It was great for Plymouth Salem when it put three goals on the board against Farmington Hills Mercy in a state district opening-round game Tuesday, played on a soggy field at Mercy. The Rocks' 3-0 triumph advances them to today's district semifinal against Novi, to be at 6:30 p.m. at Novi's field, Meadow's Stadium.

The 'O' wasn't such a great number for Mercy, which ended its season at 5-7-3. Salem is 12-4-1.

And there was another '3' that didn't sit so well with the Rocks.

In the first half of Tuesday's match, defender Stephanie Baron suffered an injured knee and left the game. The extent of her injury was unknown.

Baron was the third starter to go to the sidelines for the Rocks. Team captain Maureen Griffith, an all-Western Lakes Activities Association all-Division defender, suffered a knee injury in Salem's first game against Plymouth Canton and was lost for the season.

Over the weekend, forward Kellee Mullin, a first-team all-WLAA performer, injured her ankle, which forced her to miss the Mercy match. She could return against Novi.

This is not the time of year to be without three starters, two of them seniors. Fortunately against the Marlins, Salem took advantage of its opportunities often enough to keep its season alive.

PCA blanks Greenhills

Plymouth Christian Academy recovered from a 9-3 loss suffered last Tuesday (May 21) against Taylor Light and Life Christian to blank Ann Arbor Greenhills 9-0 Thursday in a non-league baseball game played at Concordia College.

With the win over Greenhills, PCA's record stood at 12-6.

Clay Welton got the win,

improving his pitching record to 5-2. He gave up just two hits and one walk, striking out six.

Brian Carnevale led the offense, collecting three hits including a triple and driving in four runs. Doug Parton also had three hits with an RBI and two runs scored; Travis Yonkman had three hits; Welton had two hits with two RBI; and Jim Morrison had two hits.

In the loss to Light and Life, the story was different — and so was the competition. The Crusaders entered the game with a 20-1 record and left it with 21 wins.

Andy Pawlak did double-duty for Light and Life, getting the pitching win after allowing three runs on six hits and four walks, with four strikeouts. He also slugged a pair of solo home runs, in the fifth and sixth innings.

Teammate Bill Witz added a three-run homer for the Crusaders in the fifth. Those were the only three homers in a game played by PCA at Griffin Park this season.

The game was close, the Eagles trailing 4-3, until the fifth, when Light and Life struck for four runs. Ryan Johnson, Welton and Xander Younce each had RBI singles for PCA.

Mark Erickson took the loss for the Eagles, allowing eight earned runs on nine hits and two walks, with two strikeouts in 4 1/3 innings.

B.H. Roeper 3, Agape 2: Canton Agape Christian completed its regular season with a loss at Bloomfield Hills Roeper Saturday. Agape goes into the Division IV state tournament with a 13-10 record.

Josh Anthony took the loss for the Wolverines despite a strong game. He gave up one earned run on six hits and eight walks, striking out 11.

David Donaldson led Agape's offense with a double and a triple, with one RBI. Paul Anleitner added two hits, including a double, and an RBI.

Salem looks ready

It was just what Plymouth Salem girls track coach Mark Gregor had wanted.

Nothing more than a good tune-up for this weekend's Division I state track meet.

At the Meet of Champions, hosted by Ann Arbor Pioneer Tuesday, no team scores were kept but top members of track teams located throughout the area competed.

Salem had 10 finishes in the top 10, led by Autumn Hicks and Michelle Bonior with two individual top-six finishes apiece.

Hicks had the best of it for the Rocks, placing fourth in the 400-meters (1:01.6) and fifth in the high jump (4-feet, 10-inches).

She was also a member of two top-six relays. The 4x400 team of Hicks, Melissa Drake, Kara Dendrinos and Erriane Bundle was fifth (4:17.4) and the 4x200 team of Hicks, Vicky Rozalski, Drake and Bonior took sixth (1:50.3).

Bonior also took sixths in both the shot put (33-6) and the 200

GIRLS TRACK

(26.7).

Other top-six finishers for Salem were Ashleigh Shear, sixth in the discus (102-4); Jenny Jedlick, sixth in the pole vault (8-0); Bundle, sixth in the 300 hurdles (49.7); and Liane Griffiths, fifth in the 3,200 (12:19.9).

The Rocks will be represented in seven events at the state finals Saturday at Rockford HS, with Hicks in the high jump, the 400 and the 4x200 relay together with Rozalski, Bonior and Drake. Other qualifiers are Bonior in the shot put and the 4x100 relay with Celena Davis, Drake and Rozalski, Jedlick in the pole vault and Shear in the discus.

Plymouth Canton, which did not compete at the Tournament of Champions, will be represented by Meredith Fox in the 400 and Amy Driscoll in the pole vault.

We're sick and tired of being No. 1

Arthritis has become the leading cause of disability in people over the age of 15 - affecting over 1.5 million Michigan residents alone.

The numbers tell only half of the story. They don't convey the daily physical pain and limitations, the psychological distress, and the social and economic problems caused by arthritis.

If you or someone you know is affected by arthritis, we urge you to get active and take control.

We can help. But you have to do your part.

From exercise classes, self-help courses and public education forums, to support groups, family camps and conferences, answers to what you can do to manage your arthritis are just one call away.

The worst thing you can do is nothing at all.

Canton — D1

9-1 under interim coach Dave Hebestreit, was outshot 19-7. Canton also had more crosses (15-1) and headers (18-13). Churchill was only better on restarts (5-1).

"The first seven minutes we played pretty well," Hebestreit said. "But Canton was able to counterattack and control the tempo.

"Our biggest problem was our inability to deny the ball served in and our inability to mark the back side. They just kept knocking crosses back and forth across the field. And they have more team speed."

Whalers - D1

While with the Ambassadors, he coached future Whaler stars such as David Legwand (now playing with Nashville in the NHL), Justin Williams (playing for Philadelphia) and Brent Johnson (now with St. Louis).

He's also coached current standouts such as Damian Surma, Jared Newman, Nate Kiser, Andre Robichaud and James Wisniewski (from Canton).

"Not many things will change this year," Vellucci said. "And as far as coaching, not too much will change.

"I'm an emotional coach. Players will know where they stand with me. My door's always open to them."

It won't be easy following in DeBoer's footsteps. The former coach guided the Whalers to the brink of the last two OHL Championships.

Now it's Vellucci's turn, to see if he can take them to the summit.

midfielder (and another all-conference selection), scored goals in each half to help the Rocks overcome the loss of Mullin. Inbetween, Salem got a score from Sara Schupra that made it 2-0 at the half.

Janae Bucks assisted on Schupra's goal and took the corner kick midway through the second half that Sarkesian tapped in for the third goal, giving Bucks a second assist. Rachelle Marshall assisted on Sarkesian's first goal.

For Jill Dombrowski, the shutout was her 11th of the season. Unlike her counterpart in the Mercy net, freshman Monisha Berkowski, Dombrowski was hardly tested.

"I give tons of credit to their goalie," said Mercy co-coach Renee Larabell, herself a stand-out keeper when she attended Mercy and Michigan State. "She took away any opportunity we could get on them."

Not that Berkowski was lacking. "Not at all," said Larabell. "She's really stepped up for us this year."

Mercy's problem was simply a lack of opportunities. For the most part, the more aggressive Rocks kept the ball in the Marlins' end of the field. Mercy tried to counterattack, but Salem's superior speed ruined any of those chances.

"One thing we lack is speed up top," said Larabell. "We have speed in back (on defense), but not enough up top.

"I thought it was an evenly-played game. They had three good scoring opportunities and scored on them."

Although Salem got the 'W', coach Joe Nora wasn't particularly pleased with his team's overall effort.

"We had a real good first half," he said. "It was a good start to the playoffs. But once we got up 2-0 and especially when we were up 3-0, we started to coast.

"That's something we'll have to address."

Indeed, Nora used Mercy as an example. "They never quit," he said. "I like that about Mercy. That's what I talked to my team about, having character like that.

"I think we have character. We just need to bring it out. That's what not having a captain will do to you. You have to play the full 80 minutes."

The Rocks will have to after this. Novi was the second-best team in the Kensington Valley Conference; should Salem handle the Wildcats, it will meet the winner of the Northville-Livonia Stevenson match for the district title Saturday. Stevenson and Northville met in the WLA championship game last Thursday, with the Mustangs winning.

The district final will be 1 p.m. Saturday at Northville.

Spectacular: The Plymouth Symphony Spring Home tour features the home of Silvio and Georgia Scappaticci, a 5,000-square-foot Cape Cod on five acres. Visitors are greeted by this fountain, designed and hand-built by Silvio.

First you'll pass a pond. Then you'll see a waterfall and a bridge leading to a gazebo. Then suddenly it hits you — a spectacular water fountain, designed by the homeowner himself, that sits in the center of a circular drive.

It's all part of the beauty of the home of Silvio and Georgia Scappaticci, one of the homes featured on the Plymouth Spring Home Tour Sunday, June 3. The tour showcases a variety of architectural styles and home themes.

If you enjoy old architecture, you can view a Victorian-style home in the village. If you favor renovated structures, you'll enjoy touring a traditional subdivision home with newly expanded and redone rooms that adds precious square footage.

The home tour, "Architecture of the Millennium," reflects the variety and mix of housing stock in the Plymouth community. Tour proceeds benefit the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

While architecture played a role in the selection of homes on this year's tour, "homes also were chosen for historical significance or decor," said K.C. Mueller, home tour organizer.

"People today just love to go and get decorating ideas," she said.

Remodelers will enjoy the tour, too. "When you look at the (Stemberger) home, they did so much of it themselves," Mueller said. "The (Carollo) home was redone in Country French."

Connecting with the past

The Scappaticcis doubled the size of their great room with a two-way stone fireplace centered in the room. Walnut borders ash hardwood floors.

The Scappaticcis installed a new kitchen island center island adds to the kitchen's flexibility.

Silvio also built a feeding area for about 30 deer. He mixes about 800 pounds of oats, corn and molasses every 10 days, feeding three of the deer at a time from three posts sticking up from the ground.

A home owned by Walter and Mary Menard features everything from 7,000 square feet of radiant heated floors to a two-story waterfall on the first and second levels.

Walk into the home and you'll find the following: six fireplaces, nine bathrooms, a library, an oval office, a 3,000 bottle wine cellar, a 10-seat movie theater, a four-story elevator, exceptional crown molding and woodworking, and granite and Corian countertops.

The home features Indiana limestone both inside and outside the home. There's two 18-foot tall great rooms.

The fourth floor not only houses a bedroom and full bath, but a 2,000-square-foot gallery, representing at least 25 artists from around the world.

Victorian revisited

Chuck Avis' home in Plymouth's Old Village is a Second Empire 1890s French Mansard house completely restored to the Victorian era.

Avis replaced plaster walls, created new window moldings and floor trim, added a sun room and expanded the kitchen. Steam heat still warms the house, but the home also has an additional gas furnace and central air conditioning. The original slate tile roof remains on the home.

A beautiful antique armoire serves as a front hall closet. Family heirlooms, including an 1820s twig rocker that belonged to Avis' great uncle, are displayed in the living room. A magnificent chandelier brightens the room with blown glass and originally served as a stairwell newel post light.

Brian and Karen Stemberger also remodeled a home originally built in 1968.

They expanded the great room in three directions by removing walls. A staircase was opened and bookcases were and hardwood was installed.

Karen used a feather duster dipped in raspberry paint and glaze to create special effects in the dining room. In an upstairs bedroom, Karen painted dark paneling with stripes. The couple had hardwood floors refinished.

A master suite is triple the size of the original bedroom, and includes a walk-in closet and second level deck.

Brian learned to "tooth" in the new hardwood floor, using a drum sander to sand the floor, then staining it to match.

Redone with flair

Lori and Larry Carollo restored their home with a country French flair. Larry did much of the renovations before the couple moved in, knocking out a wall in the split front foyer, adding columns, a banister, planter boxes and a flower shelf.

Lori painted walls with rags and sponges, creating a marbled effect. Searching through Larry's supplies, she found joint compound, which she slathered on walls, mixed and applied acrylic paint and glaze, and then set in plaques.

A "mother-in-law" suite was reconfigured into a luxurious master suite with murals and drapery. Visitors will notice the dramatic change in design and architecture, thanks to David Michael's American City Design Studio in Old Village. A formal dining room includes stained glass apple motifs and a painted border on the wood floor.

Visitors to Todd and Maureen Taliaferro's home are greeted by a brick paver circular drive and lush landscaping. Their home features a massive great room and a two-story fieldstone fireplace. French doors, stained and painted dental crown molding are mixed throughout, while the foyer, dining room, hall and powder room feature hardwood floors.

A first floor master suite offers a separate dressing room with two closets. The master bath features an automatic light, Jason jetted tub and a brass-trimmed enclosed shower. Speakers are built into the walls.

The walkout lower level allows for entertainment with a kitchen, "Cheers" bar and fireplace. You can play pool, exercise, take a sauna and shower and relax. A fifth bedroom with its own patio is here along with a computer room, play room and powder room.

Four bluestone patios allow guests plenty of opportunity to relax. Enjoy tennis or basketball on private courts.

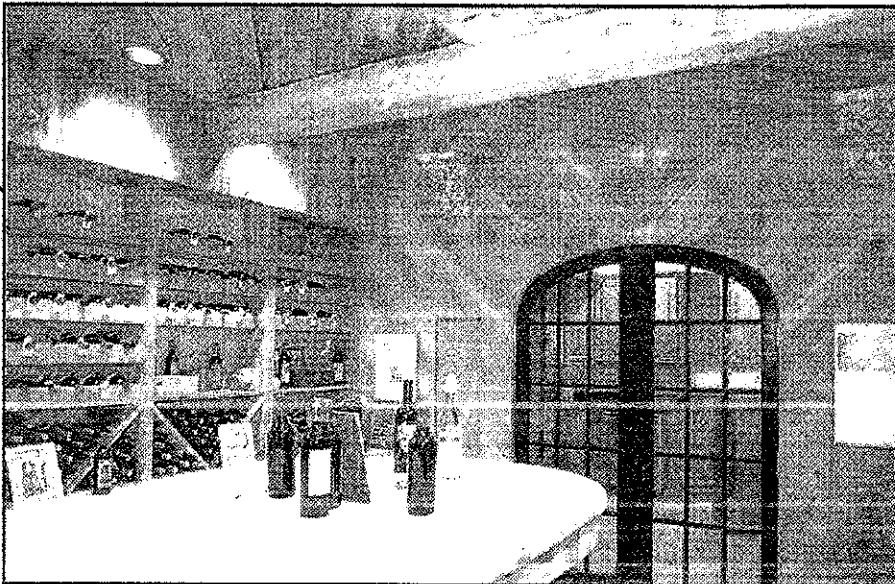

Cambridge Homes will be featuring a model on Bellagio Drive, 1/2 mile north of Eight Mile Road west of Beck Road. This gated community in Novi will bring back the designs used in homes of the past, such as Palmer Woods in Detroit.

This 11,000-square-foot model features a walk-

CREATURE COMFORTS

Mail delivers reader reaction

ABOUT ANIMALS

DR. BRAD DAVIS

While singing along with my Foghat boxed set the other day, I realized I was running low on gas. After stopping at the service station, and filling out the forms to get financing for a fill-up, I heard two people talking about a column they had read that had made them think about an issue in a different way.

The writing impressed them, with insightful perspective that influenced them greatly. In their opinion, the column was a powerful piece of writing.

If they had been talking about my column it would have been a better story. But either way, I do get e-mail sometimes.

Banning breeds

A column that pointed out the banning of a specific breed of dog, such as pit bulls, doesn't cure anything and certainly is unfair brought an avalanche of e-mail, mostly in agreement.

"The main reason that certain breeds of dog cause more injury and death than others is the types of people that seek to own these breeds. Today we hear about dangerous pit bulls and rottweilers but a few years ago it was German shepherds and Dobermans. What will be the next breed to be popular with those who are looking for a tough dog that can be raised to be mean? I don't know, but the media will again blame the dog and not the owners..."

— Michael Marsh
Watch the news for the Pressa Canario, dogs about the size of mastiffs. These dogs are good bets to be the next scapegoats for this problem.

By the way, a couple more local communities are now trying to ban pit bulls. This exemplifies knee-jerk politics at its most basic, and worst, level.

A column about Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine pointed out that getting in isn't easy, but certainly isn't impossible (hey, I got in — how hard can it be?). "Congratulations on a great article... As Ms. (Jeane) Anderson (MSU preveterinary advisor) is quoted as saying in the article, 'There is so much negative information out there on the rumor circuit about the level of competition to get in — all this discouragement,' I believe your article is a worthwhile educational piece for prospective applicants to read."

"Thank you for taking the time to clear some of the erroneous information applicants hear from people not aware of the long and involved process of becoming a vet! I thoroughly enjoyed reading your article and appreciate the clarity of its presentation."

— Hilda Mejia Abreu, B.A., M.S.,

Director of Admissions & Student Services Coordinator, MSU CVM

Kind words, but can you do anything about my student loans?

Wildlife

Another column seemed harmless enough, but raised the ire of a reader.

I wrote about destinations my wife and I had visited to view animal habitats, such as Alaska and the Everglades. The reader agreed those places are special, but felt I was remiss for not mentioning places closer to home.

"...I am a bit frustrated... that you even felt the need to travel that far. Within the state of Michigan there are incredible animal populations. There is a large elk herd between Vanderbilt and Wolverine, Mi. They graze in an easily accessible field and generally make themselves visible at dawn and dusk. Our family, like yours, also awoke to see a moose just outside our shelter while backpacking on Isle Royale. During our hike there we encountered several in very close proximity.

"There are also wolves (though they are generally heard and not seen) and foxes (too friendly) there. One does not have to rough it to experience the wildlife, the moose saunter around the lodge at Rock Harbor regularly too."

"Your column has made me want to head toward Maine to see the whales, but I wanted to make sure that you knew of the possibilities for wildlife experiences much closer to home."

— Andie Stewart
A very good point. Sometimes we get lost in our busy lives and forget what an incredible state we live in.

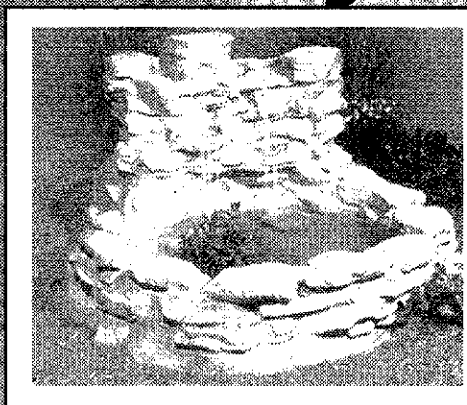

If there are any more suggestions for wildlife travel, in Michigan or not, e-mail me. Especially if you are offering a free weekend somewhere!

That's some of the e-mail I've received so far. Thanks to everyone who took the time to write. Now if you'll excuse me, it's time to change to the next CD, and I think this one has Fool for the City on it!

Take Home Message: Nothing mailed to me gets ignored. If you don't agree with something I write, please send e-mails or write me directly. You can also write if you do agree, or just like the column. I do have an ego, y'know!

HOME WORK

Store displays refurbished, old appliances in a 'museum'

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

Many years before I arrived in this country and before many of you were even born, Ed Bottum Sr. started a little manufacturing business in Brighton. His company produced products used in the installation and service of industrial air conditioning. Before he started his business, Bottum received a degree in engineering from the University of Michigan in 1933 and worked for the Kelvinator Company.

There, he met some of the inventors of the products we use today. Those formidable years were instrumental in what Bottum would do with the rest of his life and helped develop him into an inventor.

His company, Refrigeration Research Inc., is still operating today with Ed Jr. involved. His father still comes to work during the week.

More than 80 patents have been granted to Refrigeration Research. Whenever someone needed to know where to dispose of an older product, they called Bottum.

He kept many of the antiques he was asked to dispose because he loved these products, the original refrigerators in this country.

Refurbished

With the ability of his son and staff, they refurbished some of these products into working order. They set aside a little section of their factory. After a little polish and elbow grease, they put the products on display for the public to view and bring back memories.

Believe it or not, we have a little museum just up the road from us that could be such a history lesson for students and people of all ages. Refrigeration Research seems to be a well-kept secret in Michigan. You can take the children or your entire family and visit this "museum," at 525 N. 5th Street in Brighton. I suggest you call and make reservations to make sure that someone can walk your group around. The telephone number is 1-810-

227-1151.

You will see Audiffren Singrun operating products when visiting the museum, along with a French design of 1894. Other units were used to cool water for air conditioning the Willys Overland offices in Toledo until the 1940s. This operating unit is a rare air cooled model, made in Denmark by Glacia for air conditioning, and contains F-12 refrigerant.

The Crosley Shelvador's refrigerator manufacturers first thought it would be "tacky" to put food in the door of a refrigerator. However, the convenience of having "twice as much food up front" provided Crosley with huge sales increases which convinced other manufacturers to try other designs to get around the patent.

Farmers helped

Rural electrification didn't develop in most rural areas until after World War II, so before then, manufacturers created the Crosley Icy Ball refrigerators for farms. Charged with ammonia and water and generated with the help of a kerosene burner, a box temperature of 43 degrees could be maintained over a 24- to 40-hour period to make ice cubes. The retail selling price was $59.95 including the cabinet.

The first Kelvinator Refrigeration Unit was introduced in 1916 by Edmund Copeland, founder of Kelvinator and later the Copeland Compressor Company. All in all, folks, what a place to visit.

In several columns I have complained about the high temperatures found in many of today's newer refrigerators. While cutting the grass recently, I went into my old 1948 refrigerator and pulled out a can of root beer. With my new fancy thermometer I found it to be 36 degrees. I then went into the pickle jar located in the 6-year-old side by side in the kitchen. The temperature was 42 degrees.

Is it any wonder we loved the old refrigerators of yesteryear? It is the way things should be built, which are at the museum.

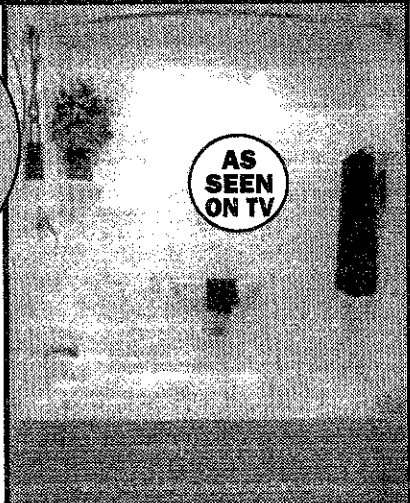

Joe Gagnon can be heard on WJR-AM 760 every Saturday and Sunday mornings. He is a past president of the Society of Consumer Professionals. His second book, "The Words and Wisdom of The Appliance Doctor" is available in book stores. His telephone number is (313) 873-9789.

Moving air makes us feel cooler. Sometimes just a simple room or ceiling fan will do the trick. Window fans and whole-house fans force inside air out and draw in outside air, but they're only effective when the outside temperature is cooler than inside the house.

My mother often closed the windows during the summer to keep warm air from entering the house. This is especially true when there was little or no breeze.

In science classes we learned dark colors absorb heat and light colors reflect it. If you're deciding on a color to paint your house, keep in mind that white and light colors reflect up to 90 percent of radiant heat where dark colors can absorb over 70 percent of this energy.

Many homeowners in those days installed light-colored shingles with the idea they would help keep houses cool. I've recently learned that heat absorption of asphalt shingles varies little with color. Because of their makeup, even white shingles absorb almost as much heat as darker colors.

About half of unwanted heat enters through windows. "Low-E" (emissivity) and other glazing options on new windows can help cut much of this unwanted heat.

Window films provide a less-expensive alternative to window replacement. These are thin, self-adhesive plastic films, often having a thin metallic layer. Not only does this film help keep heat outside during the summer months, it also helps keep heat inside during the winter.

Additionally, these films help reduce fading of household furnishings. There are several good do-it-yourself kits on the market and area contractors who will apply this film.

Landscaping is a great way to keep the sun's rays off the house. Selectively planting deciduous trees will shade windows or even whole sides of the house in the summer, yet allow sunlight - and heat - to enter in the winter. Nursery employees and garden experts can advise you about what are the best trees for your area and the tree's height and branch spread. Avoid dense cover, such as evergreens, which can block airflow. Trees and plants further cool the air by evaporating large amounts of water through their leaves during photosynthesis.

Awnings, shutters and louvers block the sun's radiation before it reaches windows, but they can restrict airflow and view. Draperies, blinds and curtains are more convenient, but less efficient, as exterior shading.

Eliminating heated warm air from attics with proper ventilation or a power attic ventilator will keep the living area cooler.

Keep furnace filters and condenser coils clean. Shade the condenser (the outside part of your air conditioner) but don't restrict the airflow around it.

Harry Jachym, a licensed builder, lives in Plymouth and teaches building trades to high school students.

A Book of Blue Flowers, Robert Geneve ($34.95), is just the ticket for those who are crazy about blue and all its shades.

Geneve shares his thoughts about the color and says, "My wife has been a great help to me. On one of our many garden trips I asked her, 'Is that flower blue?' She replied, 'If you want it to be, dear.' I have come to believe that her response was not a bad one."

After his delving into the "why" of blue, families and garden usage, more than 150 genera are described in detail. Their cultural requirements, along with personal comments and propagation techniques, as well as a list of species and cultivars, are included.

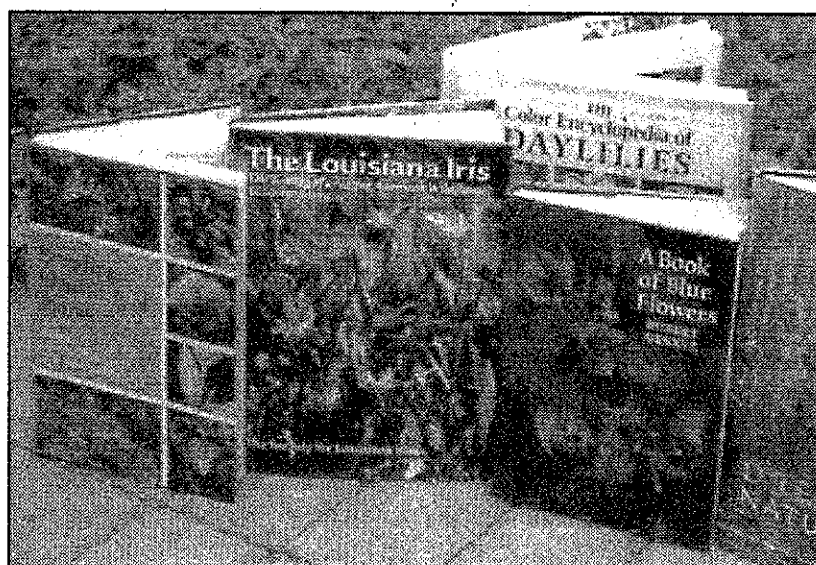

Breeding Ornamental Plants, edited by Dorothy Callaway and M. Brent Callaway ($34.95), will appeal to those who wish to create beautiful new plants.

The editors give an overview of the basic components of cellular biology and the principles of genetic inheritance, then a discussion of the practical issues involved in any breeding program. This chapter is followed by the experiences of 14 leading experts, each devoted to a particular plant or plant group, with clear instructions on the mechanics of making a cross and propagating the selections.

Will you be the one to create a new, perhaps bluer, plant?

Daylilies, irises

The Color Encyclopedia of Daylilies, Ted Petit and John Peat ($49.95), contains more than 1,200 portraits of this versatile flower, many of them contributed from colleagues around the world.

They illustrate the great diversity of the plants and are arranged in different categories such as Singles, Eyed and Patterned, Doubles, Spiders, Small and those of the Future.

The authors share the history, botany and horticulture, and explain specifically the characteristics breeders look for — such as size, ruffling, color, disease resistance, and length of bloom.

The important work of many hybridizers takes us on a journey that began when the flower was discovered in Asia thousands of years ago.

In Dream Plants for the Natural Garden ($34.95), Henk Gertsen and Piet Oudolf have put together an encyclopedic work that will offer good advice for many years.

They write, "We describe as reliable all plants which, over the years, can be maintained in an average garden without too much in the way of pesticides, fertilizer and laborers." Regarding wildlife (page 62; don't miss): "A garden was meant to be enjoyed, not worried about. Let there be food for all."

Perennials, bulbs, ferns, shrubs, biennials, annuals and more are described and illustrated in the 1,200 photos. This book will open an exciting and new dimension to gardening. Great stuff.

Written by members of The Society for Louisiana Irises, The Louisiana Iris: The Taming of a Native American Wildflower, second edition ($34.95), covers every aspect of these beautiful flowers, with emphasis on the newest hybrids, hybridizing techniques and cultural practices.

What a nice gift for an iris lover in the temperate zones of the country.

Touring

The 2001 editions (for all regions of the country — we're in the Midwest) of The Garden

Tourist, Lois Rosenfeld ($12.95, The Garden Tourist Press), will be of great help as you plan your gardening vacations for the year. Each destination is briefly described.

(For mail order, the cost is $12.95 each, plus $4 shipping and handling. The full set of five is $10.36 per book, plus $10 shipping and handling. Send your order, with payment, to the publisher at 372 Hopper Ave., Ridgewood, NJ 07450. Or call (201) 447-2331, or e-mail mkt-sol@idt.net.)

Volunteer Ken

Disability doesn't stop hospital worker from making his appointed rounds

STORY BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON • PHOTOS BY TOM HAWLEY

"I've been there so long it's like my second home," said Ken Chrzan, who's not your typical volunteer at Garden City Hospital. Next month he will observe his seventh anniversary as the first volunteer responsible for delivering operating room schedules to departments throughout the hospital.

Chrzan, a Dearborn Heights resident, has been reporting to Sue Methner, director of hospitality and volunteer services, since 1994. He first came to GCH through a day program managed by Buckingham Community Services. The organization provided him with a job coach who initially helped Chrzan become familiar with his responsibilities and determine what his abilities and limitations might be with the position.

"He's just enthusiastic and always ready to work," said Methner. "Enthusiasm is his main asset as a volunteer."

The 36-year-old, who was born with Cerebral Palsy, has received support from several organizations, including AHS Community Services and Buckingham, who work with the physically challenged to help them find places to live and work in the community. Chrzan has been living on his own in a small-group home setting since moving out of his parents' Redford home in 1989.

class at John Glenn.

"I knew him in school too," said Brist. "He's a wonderful person with a very big heart."

Ironically, Chrzan was born at Garden City Hospital — almost three months premature. He was hospitalized for 9 1/2 weeks before being sent home with his parents, Kenneth and Alice, and three sisters, Teresa, Barbara and Donna.

"I only weighed three pounds and I was 17 inches long," said Chrzan.

Chrzan currently lives with two other mobility impaired residents at a home near Beech Daly in Dearborn Heights. The staff from his support independence home, which helps Chrzan with his daily activities, drive him to and from the hospital where he works four days a week from noon to 3:30 p.m. After his shift he relaxes in the cafeteria and eats lunch before going home.

"I used to take the bus to work. I really miss doing that. They tried everything to get the bus to pick me up here but Nankin Transit doesn't serve this area," said Chrzan.

The 36-year-old is proud of the responsibilities he has at the hospital and the role he plays in the day-to-day activities. In addition to delivering the daily OR schedules, Chrzan picks up outgoing mail from nursing stations on each of the four

Eager to work

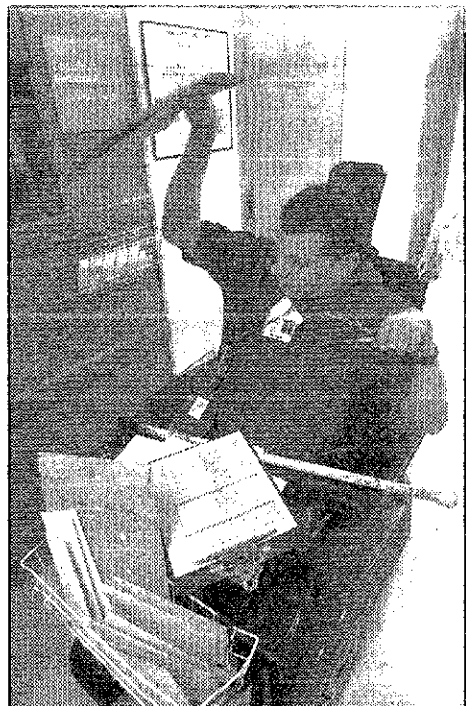

When you ask Chrzan about his job at the hospital, he squeals with delight.

"I get to meet a lot of people I like. If I ever had to leave, it I would be very sad," said Chrzan who has a reputation for flirting with the nurses.

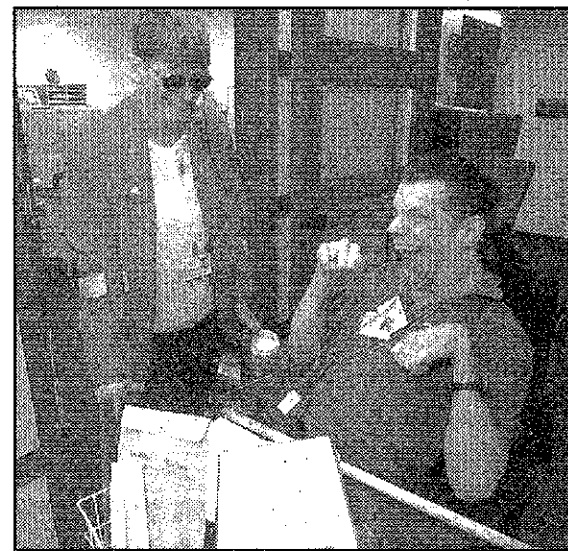

Lori Brist, director of the Westland Friendship Center and former Garden City Hospital employee, said she always knew when Ken was working on her floor.

"He greeted everyone. It was quite a pleasure to work with him," said Brist, who also knew Chrzan when they were students at John Glenn High School.

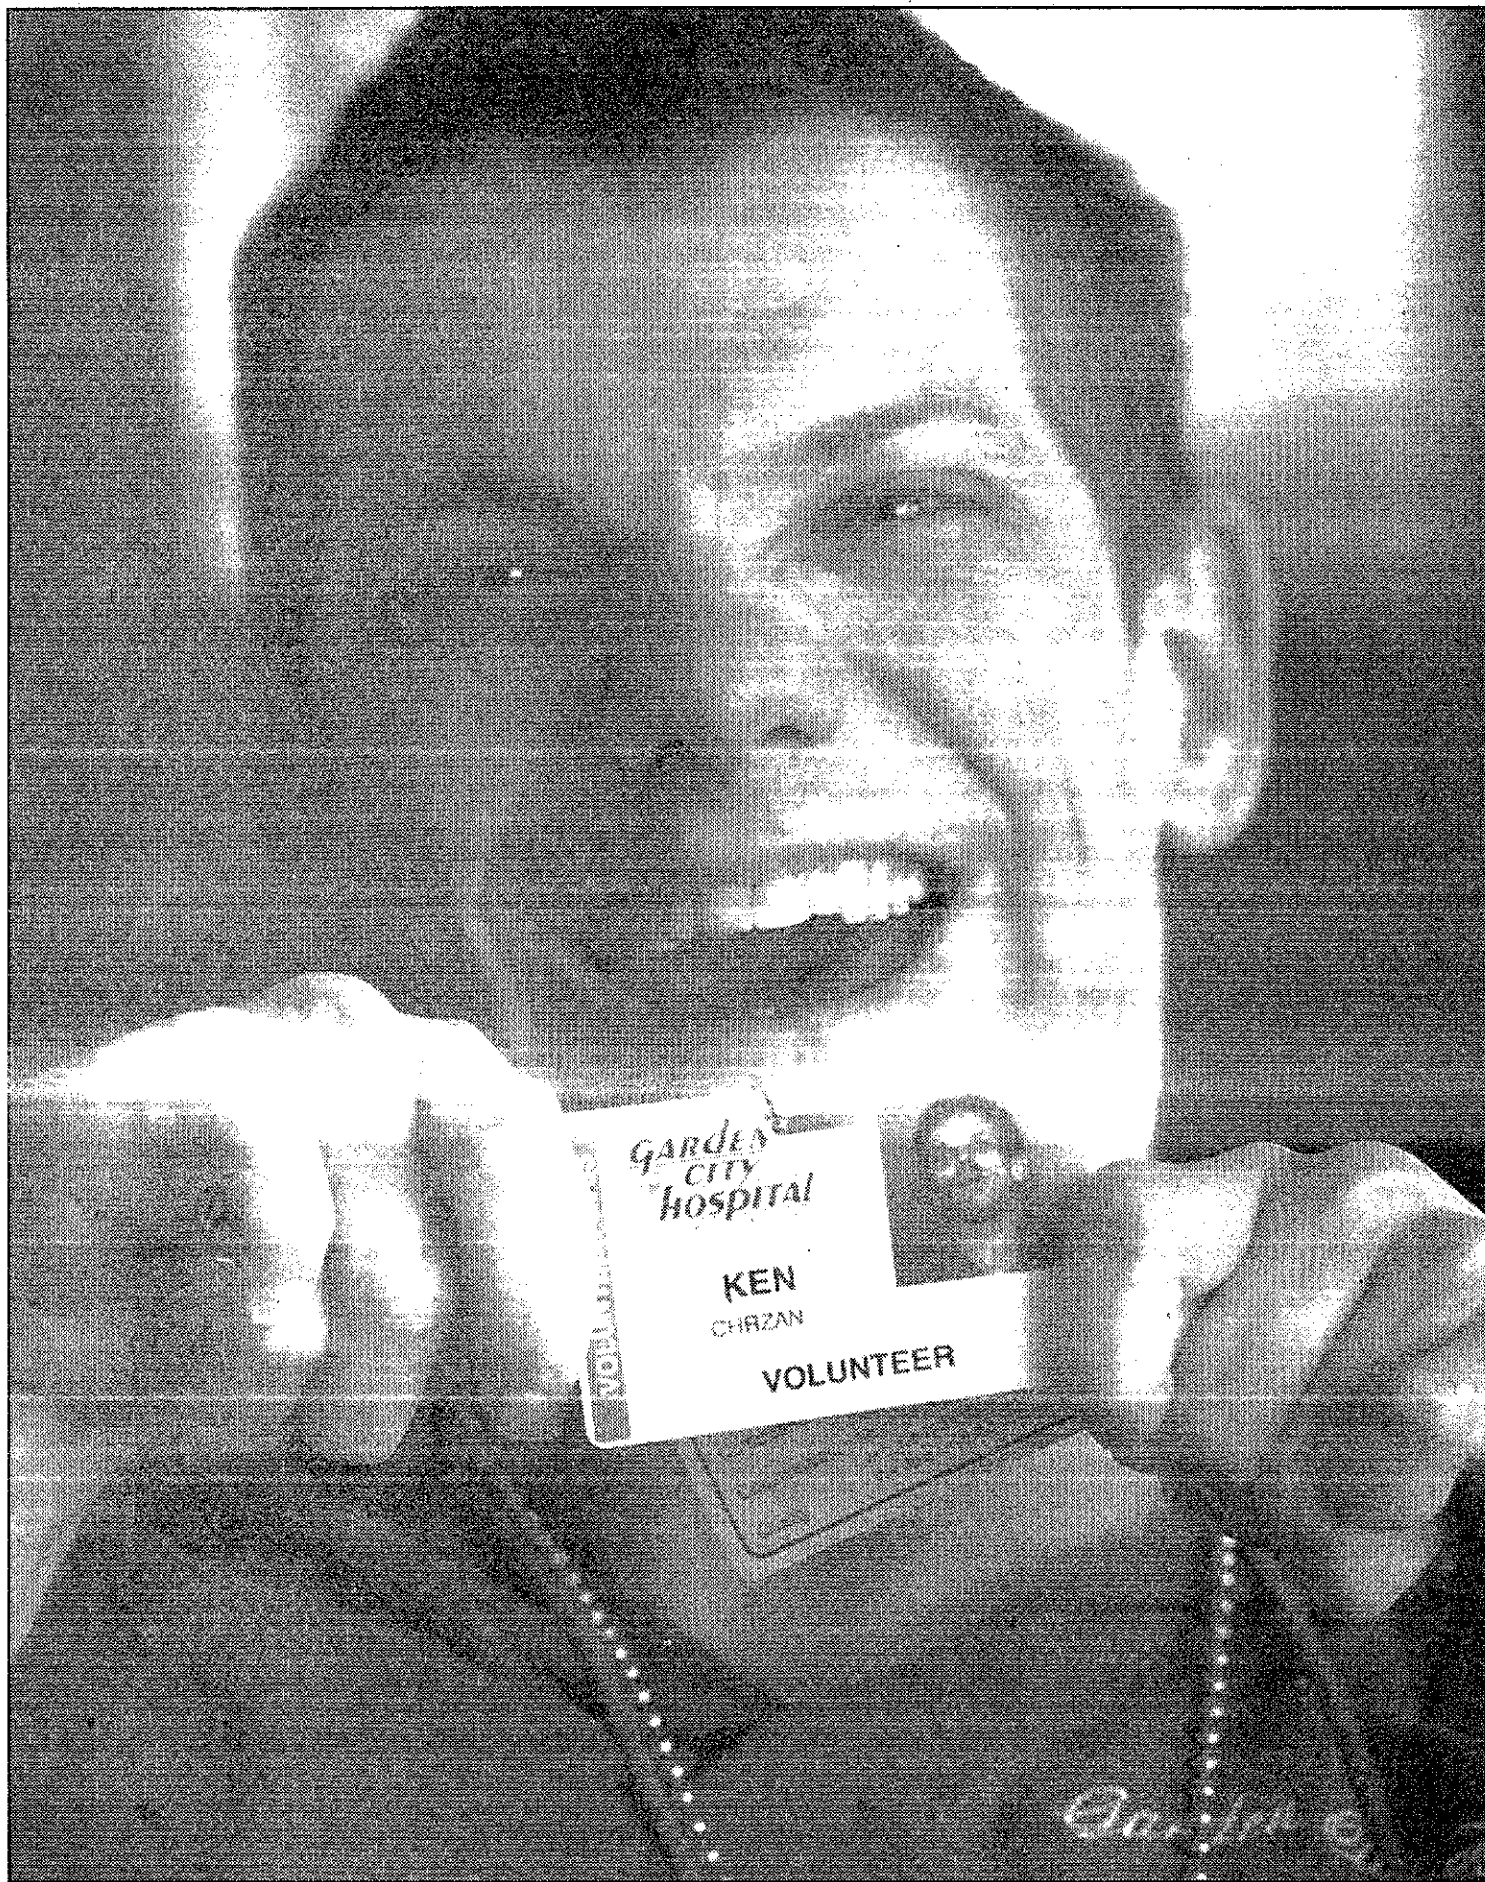

Chrzan received his education at Roberts Elementary School in Inkster, Cherry Hill Junior High School and was mainstreamed into John Glenn High School after the special education program he attended was discontinued. Chrzan said he is a proud member of the 1985 graduating Task: Ken picks up paperwork from a hospital mailbox.

Greeting: Volunteer receptionist Cathy West talks with Ken Chrzan.

Proud: Ken Chrzan, a volunteer at Garden City Hospital shows off his identification badge. Next month he will celebrate his seventh anniversary as a volunteer at the hospital. For safety purposes he uses a hand-held mirror (left) to help him navigate his wheelchair when he's backing up. At the end of his shift Chrzan (below) relaxes in the cafeteria and eats lunch, before going home for the day.

Getting the job done: Ken, 36, delivers the daily operating room schedules and delivers them to various departments. He also picks up outgoing mail from nursing stations throughout the hospital.

The Ultimate Sacrifice

Memorial Day is a special holiday set aside to honor and remember those who gave their lives for their country. Countless men and women throughout the years have died to protect our country and to preserve our way of life. We should always be grateful to those who made the ultimate sacrifice, and we should be thankful to God that we live as free people. Certainly we live in the greatest country in the world. Even though we have our share of problems, many people from all over the world immigrate here every day. God has blessed America and will continue to do so, as long as we remember that our Heavenly Father is our sustaining source. Two thousand years ago our Lord Jesus Christ made his ultimate sacrifice for the whole world, and by His dying on the cross we can obtain peace, joy and everlasting life. God bless America is not only a statement, it is a prayer.

Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.

floors he works.

"I have a basket on my chair where I put the mail and I hold a mirror to help me see when I back up," said Chrzan. He also uses a cane to push paperwork under the doors of various offices and to activate the elevator buttons. In April he was outfitted with a new wheelchair he calls "the Cadillac." One of the chair's special features is that the seat raises up and down to help him grasp things that would ordinarily be out of reach.

In his first year of volunteering, he worked approximately 250 hours. Chrzan has since been recognized at an annual volunteer luncheon at the Hellenic Cultural Center for surpassing 1,000 and then 2,000 total volunteers hours.

"I'm working to get my 3,000 hour pin. This has been my favorite job," said Chrzan, who previously volunteered for the Multiple Sclerosis Society and the American Cancer Society. "All my friends work at the hospital and my boss, Sue, is a very nice lady. I've learned a lot from her."

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Are you aware of any success stories for lofts in the Midwest? Upon a recent visit to Des Moines, Iowa, I saw a warehouse that had been converted into loft condominiums in downtown Des Moines overlooking the Des Moines River and has been extremely successful.

The loft project may have been developed to keep pace with other Midwestern cities. The loft development creates a new style of living which, based upon personal observation, was very attractive.

I am a contractor who built a home too close to a lot line. I am trying to collect from my insurance company by putting in a claim, particularly since my plans were approved by the homeowners association and I am being threatened by an adjacent homeowner. Do I have coverage?

In a recent similar case, the Florida Supreme Court held that where a contractor's policy covered damages caused by an "accident" but excluded coverage for damages "expected or intended from the standpoint of the insured," the contractor was covered.

The court reasoned that the contractor didn't openly defy the setback requirements.

The court made the insurance company defend the case and otherwise provide coverage.

You are best advised, of course, to consult with your own legal counsel concerning this matter.

Competitive edge slices piece of home sales pie

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER
dfunke@oe.homecomm.net

Last week's effort won't sell this week's house. A winner never quits, a quitter never wins. He or she who hesitates is lost.

Competition can be tough with several thousand Realtors here scrambling for residential real estate commission dollars.

So every little and not-so-little advantage counts when hustling for listings and matching buyers with sellers.

Paul Balogh, a Realtor with Cranbrook Associates in Birmingham, finds that an outgoing personality and tenacious work ethic serve him well.

"Meet and greet - that's what it's all about. The No. 1 thing is meeting people, shaking hands. Part of it is having a personality so people can approach you."

Balogh scouts for prospective clients in seminars he organizes for first-time buyers. Other hunting grounds might not be so obvious - grocery stores and restaurants.

Tenacity is another thing. "It's just a will never to give up. It's never say die. You can hit tremendous dry spells, but that doesn't mean you won't be back in business."

Developing a niche - his is an expertise in Canadian shoreline properties - also helps, Balogh said.

Use the mails

A monthly newsletter pays dividends for Tim Haggerty, an associate broker and partner at Remerica Hometown One in Plymouth.

"It's a constant reminder to a large sphere of influence that I'm in the business and here for them," said Haggerty.

"I let them know how I'm doing with the family, something informative like tax implications, sales I've made. Then, once again, I ask for business."

At least 575 newsletters go out to family, friends, past clients. He also mails a couple of thousands post cards to prospective buyers and sellers in target market areas twice a month.

Haggerty said his budget for the newsletter/post cards runs $15,000 per year based on bulk purchases, and he considers it money well spent.

"It really endears me to clients, commits clients to me, based on knowledge of me and how I've been doing. It's a constant reminder - he has a family to support, there they are and he's doing business in your neighborhood."

Call back now

Timely responses to inquiries keeps customers happy and leads to referrals, said Kyle Fohl, a Realtor with Century 21 Today in Livonia.

"You return phone calls immediately, make sure they're aware of everything going on," Fohl said. "Probably communication more than anything else. In this business, it always doesn't happen."

"I have people leave a message on my voice mail and they're amazed when I call back two minutes later. My cell phone is on 24 hours a day."

"My idea is to take care of the clients you've got and they'll send you more."

Linda Rea, affiliated with Real Estate One in Troy, confirms that experience and a good Web site pay dividends. She also subscribes to a team approach.

Many hands, light work

"A client-care coordinator takes care of listings," Rea said. "I have a buyer specialist. I have a new construction coordinator. I have an accountant that keeps all the books, budget. We have a high-tech person who helps take care of the computers, Web site."

"It gives you more time for the customer," Rea said of her team. "If you're good, do enough business, you can afford that. I'm not stuck changing hats all the time."

Focus and good communication impress clients and lead to other clients, maintains Judy Addis, an associate broker with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Clarkston.

"Follow-up and referral business - it's that simple. If you give good service, stay in contact and follow up ... you will build a nice business."

"When I get all my (client) surveys back, they all agreed I stayed in contact, kept them informed and made the process very easy."

Regular evidence-of-success post cards to past clients and friends sometimes bear fruit, she added. "It will trigger a thought process - 'I know someone in the same situation. Maybe Judy can help.'"

Listen carefully

For Howard Novetsky, affiliated with Real Estate One in West Bloomfield, it all boils down to staying power and effective listening.

"Patience is important. A lot of us are looking for instant gratification. Normally, it doesn't happen. I've been in the business 16 years, and I'll probably be in the business another 16. I'm not a flash in the pan."

"Sometimes, I'll work weeks and weeks and nothing happens. Then six months later or a year later, I'll get a call out of the blue. A guy will call and say, 'You never sold me a house, but you did this, this and this for me. I remembered you and referred you to my cousin.'"

"I'm a very good listener. That's another thing. Sometimes, I think they (other Realtors) try to push their own listings."

MORTGAGE BITS

TIM 'TIMBO' PHILLIPS

What do the following mortgage borrowers have in common? Doug completes a cash-out refinance on his home start-to-finish in 10 days. Ericka, a single mother who runs a home-based cash business, buys a home without having to show any income. Danny, a recent college grad, gets 100-percent financing on his first home at a very competitive interest rate. Mary, an aspiring real estate investor, picks up her third rental property with just 10 percent down.

There's nothing magical about the bargains these borrowers received on their mortgages. They deserved the great deals they received by paying their debts on time. They did not miss payments then "double up" the next time. They did not leave high balances (in excess of 50 percent of the maximum) on all of their charge cards. In fact, most had just a few credit cards and paid on each consistently.

Mortgage underwriters evaluate borrower reliability, and they know all the tricks. People who always pay bills on time will probably continue to do so. People who are chronically late will continue that pattern. Lenders rely heavily on credit scoring to provide insight into a borrower's character, and to help assess borrower risk potential.

Credit scores represent the statistical probability of the borrower defaulting. Credit scores range from 400 (worst) to over 800 (best). A borrower with a score of less than 600 has a one-in-nine chance of defaulting. A borrower with a score of 700 has a 1-in-124 chance.

The rewards: faster mortgage approvals, better interest rates and terms, less paperwork, less stress, larger loan amounts.

If you have a mediocre record, work hard to re-establish a good record. Even a small increase in your score can make a huge difference in the mortgage rate and terms available to you.

Give yourself a break. Take care of your credit because it can certainly take care of you.

Cooling house market makes 30-year rates rise

Mortgage rates around the country rose this week but are still more than one percentage point lower than they were last year.

The average interest rate on 30-year fixed-rate mortgages climbed to 7.20 percent, up from 7.14 percent last week, according to a nationwide survey released by Freddie Mac, the mortgage company.

Fifteen-year mortgages, a popular option for refinancing, went up to 6.76 percent this week, compared with 6.67 percent the previous week.

At the same time last year, rates for 30-year mortgages averaged 8.62 percent, near a five-year high, and rates for 15-year mortgage remained at a five-year high of 8.31 percent.

On one-year adjustable-rate mortgages, lenders were asking an average initial rate of 5.82 percent, up slightly from 5.81 percent the week before. Last year, one-year ARMs averaged 7.25 percent, which was the highest since 1991.

These rates do not include add-on fees known as points, which averaged around 1 percent of the loan amount for all three types of mortgages.

"Mortgage rates caught up to other interest rates this week amid signs that housing may be starting to cool down," said Robert Van Order, Freddie Mac's chief economist. "Current job layoffs, coupled with lower consumer confidence, usually lead to fewer purchases of big-ticket items, like a house."

The government reported Thursday that new-home sales fell by 9.5 percent in April, the biggest decline in four years, to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 894,000.

MEYERS ON MORTGAGES

DON'T LET SMALL ROOF PROBLEMS TURN INTO BIG ONES

by GARY S. MEYERS

The answer may seem simple: "Call a roofer and have it fixed." But how do you get the most for your roofing dollar? With a little homework, you'll be surprised at how much time, money, and aggravation you can save.

Aside from simply keeping you dry, your roof also holds the entire house together and gives the whole structure its strength. This is so important that in hurricane-prone areas, special fasteners are required by insurance companies to ensure that the roof stays on the house in extreme conditions. If the roof blows off, the rest of the house will collapse within minutes or even seconds.

Now, do you really want to mess around up there?

With proper care, a well-installed roof can last as long as 20 years before it needs replacement. That doesn't mean, however, that it may not need repair once in a while. Roof damage can begin in many ways. Tree limbs, high winds, hail, or even a carelessly-hit baseball can take their toll on the best roof.

"A lot of damage comes from normal freeze-thaw cycles," says Tom Bollnow, Technical Director for the National Roofing Contractors Association (NRCA). "And, if you try to fix a roof yourself, you can often make the damage worse."

While the damage may not be apparent at first, it can grow until the precious shield between you and the elements is breached, and it's usually at the worst possible time.

Q. Okay, I'm awakened in the middle of the night by a leak in my ceiling. What's the first thing I should do?

A. The first thing you should NOT do is put a pan under it and forget about it until morning.

"You can save a lot of time if you do some investigation right away," says Bollnow. "First, if you have an attic space that you can get to, go up and see if you can find where the water is coming in. Often it will come in at one point and follow the pitch of the roof or the insulation to another point before coming through your ceiling. Once it stops raining, you may not be able to find the leak."

Once you have found the leak, says Bollnow, mark it for the contractor. While you're in the attic, go ahead and set up your bucket. It's better to put a catcher under the leak in the attic to help preserve the ceiling below.

"You also should note the weather conditions," Bollnow advises. "There are several questions you can answer that will help the contractor."

• Did the leak start right away? If not, how long after the rain started did the leak begin?

• Was the rain light or heavy?

• Was the rain blowing, and if so, from which direction? Did the leak accompany the wind? If so, the wind may be blowing the rain under a loose shingle.

Q. Can't I just leave the bucket in the attic?

"It's not a good idea to just forget about it," warns Bollnow. "Even if the leak is small, there may be dirt or debris in it, and the next heavy rain could wash it away, revealing a much bigger problem." Besides, unintended problems never get better.

Q. How do I start looking for a contractor?

Bollnow advises that you start with your local contractors association if your area has one.

"One thing they can do for you is recommend two or three contractors in your area," he said, "and it's better to get someone relatively close, because they can respond more easily."

Bollnow adds that your own neighborhood can be a good source of information.

"Find out if any of your neighbors have had work done on their roofs recently, and if they're happy with the job," he says. "Word of mouth is still one of your best resources."

Q. What do I do if the contractor tells me my roof needs to be replaced?

A. A little knowledge goes a long way here. If you know when your roof was replaced last, you can pretty much tell if he's on the level.

"The average roof lasts about 20 years," said Bollnow. "So, if you're close to the end of that, he's probably right. If it's only three or four years old, it would have to suffer some major damage to need replacement. In any event, you will want to get a second opinion, and maybe even a third."

If there is a problem with a new roof, it probably is under warranty. You immediately should start with the installer.

Even if the roof is in dire need, Bollnow adds, "there's usually something he can do about the immediate problem until you can get some estimates and do it right."

Q. What is my liability if the contractor gets hurt on my roof?

A. Whether you're just getting an estimate or having major repairs done, you should make sure your contractor carries general liability and workers compensation.

"Your homeowners insurance will cover it, but it shouldn't have to," said Bollnow.

Remember, your roof is the key to the entire house. Take care of it while it's still in good shape, and it should give you years of good service. Neglect it, or try to fix it yourself, and you could be letting in a world of trouble.

How to get past the zoning board

Asking for zoning approval for your remodeling or construction project? Your local zoning board may just say, "Go ahead, make my day."

"Few homeowners understand the arcane, political process of zoning approval until forced to deal with it," says Richard Roll, president of American Homeowners Association. "It pays to do your homework before seeking approval from your local zoning board."

If you want to add on to your home or build a major renovation, you'll probably need to face the local zoning board.

These citizen volunteers may seem like friendly neighbors, but when they put on their zoning hats, they can be tough adversaries.

It doesn't matter if it's your local zoning board or your homeowners' association board. Either group can tell you where to build your addition or how to operate your home-based business.

The best place to begin your crusade is with your neighbors. In some cases, neighbors oppose a project before the board because they were not asked in advance. If you are planning on major changes, especially to the outside of your home, talk to your neighbors first and get their input.

Be sure to consult early with the local zoning office. The staff can explain the zoning rules and if you need a permit or variance for your project. Listen carefully; their advice will make the difference in getting your application approved.

Another way to grease the skids is to hire a professional. Turn to a lawyer or architect who knows local zoning laws, how to write your application and how to speak on your behalf.

Don't give up because you fail the first time. You have the right to appeal, especially if you feel the decision was unjust or wrong. It's never easy, but you may get the original decision overturned.
