Village supermarket in works

The Canton Township Planning Commission Monday recommended approval for a proposed supermarket in the traditionallydesigned Cherry Hill Village. Some embraced the idea, others were cool to it.

BY CAROL MARSHALL STAFF WRITER cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

A Cherry Hill Village developer lobbed a bombshell at the Canton Township Planning Commission when it announced plans to construct a supermarket in the neighborhood.

David Stollman of Biltmore Properties gave commissioners their first peek at the retail possibilities for the village, which will be constructed in the heart of historic Canton, near Cherry Hill and Denton roads.

Most commissioners were less than

"This undoes acres and acres and years and years of hard work," said commissioner Karl Zarbo of the proposed 50,000-square-foot supermarket.

Zarbo had been describing the neotraditional village as being similar to his grandmother's neighborhood.

"That doesn't remind me of going back to grandma's house," he said. "I want to go back in time to where you guys took me. You created it. Now don't pull me out of there."

Future Cherry Hill Village homeowner Alan Stockfisz also protested the Water use rules tightened

CAROL MARSHALL STAFF WRITER cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

Last week, Canton asked residents to voluntarily limit their outdoor water use. This week, the request became a little more urgent and will be manda-

On July 18, the City of Detroit asked that all communities receiving water from them institute an odd/even day outdoor water use restriction. Tuesday, the Canton Township Board of Trustees voted in favor of requiring the restrictions.

Violators could be fined up to $500 per violation or could be imprisoned for up to 90 days.

We're not in this to make any money or ticket people, but we do want people to restrict their water use so that everybody can go about their daily business and have enough pressure when they want to take a shower or do the dishes," said Township Engineer Todd Zilincik.

The Building and Inspection Department will be in charge of monitoring and citing violators.

"Generally since it's an ordinance violation, the ordinance officers would be the ones that would go out and investigate this," said Engineering Services Director Tom Casari.

Violators will be given a notice and will be advised to comply within 24

"If they still don't comply after that time, they could be given a ticket,' Casari said.

Complaints that are called in will be handled immediately, and the ordinance officers will also monitor water use while they're out on regular assigned duties.

Zilincik said even after a good rain, people should be aware the restrictions will still be in effect for up to a month.

"Even though it rains, people should know they still have to stick to the odd/even watering schedule," he said. "Especially when it's so dry like this,

A bystander saved a man from drowning last week at a local pool, police said.

The man had been swimming underwater at the Holiday Estates pool last Thursday afternoon. Witnesses said they noticed he suddenly stopped moving, according to police and fire reports.

A bystander jumped in the pool and pulled the 34-year-old man from the water, and admnistered mouth-to-mouth until Canton Fire Department medics arrived.

The man was taken by ambulance to Annapolis Oakwood. He had regained consciousness on the way to the hospital.

Golf outing funds scholarships, raises spirits of Canton mom

By Tracey Birkenhauer Special Writer

Organizing an annual charity golf outing proves therapeutic for Barb Kilgore, whose 16-yearold son, Mike, died on May 4, 1998 from a heart arrhythmia.

"I'm surrounding myself with a community that cares and giving back to students who have similar beliefs to Mike's so they can carry on his legacy," said the 46-year-old Canton resident.

"As you can see, we are pretty passionate about this...but we are passionate and proud of Mike, who he was and who he continues to touch.

from Olympian Chung Do Kwan in Garden City and the Summit in Canton competed in the state tournament in February for a shot at attending the national competition.

"I was freaked out," said parent Michelle Habib of Canton, whose 11-year-old son, Joseph, won his spot at the national competition. "Of course, the kids because of their training were so calm you'd think they were getting ready to play a video game. You never would have known you were in a room with thousands of kids, they were so calm and mannerly."

Debbie Gossett agreed. The Canton mother said her 13-yearold daughter's fourth-place medal is a nice reward, but the real benefits of Tae Kwon Do are more meaningful.

"It has done tremendous things for her," Gossett said of her daughter, Jessica Newberry. "She's built up strength and muscle, and has trimmed up even though she was never overweight. But the real great thing is her self esteem. For a 13-yearold girl, that is huge."

Gossett described her daughter as being more focused and disciplined than she was before she began training a year ago with instructor Master Sang Sop Kil, of Kil's Tae Kwon Do in Can-

Immediately after returning from the state competition, the students who would travel to Tampa beefed up their training schedules, said Covert.

Covert described Olympian Tae Kwon Do as having all the benefits of the martial arts train-competition-ready aspect. "It's about endurance. The kids compete 12 hours, from early in the morning until late at night, and I drive the kids pretty hard to get them ready for that," Covert said. "My job is to keep them safe. If they're not ready and they're tired, they'll go out there and get creamed.'

Covert's two young sons, 9-year-old Alex and 7-year-old Austin, also brought home medals.

"That's why I train all the kids so hard. I wouldn't want my own kids to go into a competition and get hurt," he said. "The kids, the coaches, everybody worked their butts off. They were all there to compete and were prepared very

"I bought out in Cherry Hill to get away from that," he said. He added the 24-hour parking lot lights, wayward shopping carts and additional traffic are undesirable, and he would likely boycott shopping at the nearby grocery.

Modern shopping

Stollman agreed the original plan was to attract small markets, and stores such as butcher shops and bakeries.

After talking at length with John Pardington, owner of Holiday Market in Canton, Stollman reconsidered.

Stollman said Pardington had explained that small shops haven't survived in Canton for many years because shoppers prefer to have a large enough selection that can shop in one

Further, Stollman said the customers who are buying homes in the village frequently ask where they are going to grocery shop.

Nearby developments will produce more than 4,000 homes with 12,000 or more residents.

Village Planner Jim Constantine argued the grocery will be necessary for other retailers to survive in Cherry Hill Village.

Without a major grocery store to meet daily needs of nearby residents, the villagers will need to venture outside their neighborhood for their weekly shopping, he said. Shoppers would then be less likely to use a barber, shop at a specialty boutique or go for ice cream in Cherry Hill

"We can provide coffee shops and places for people to go, Stollman said. "But those places aren't in business anymore ning them out business....Shopping isn't like because the big stores are run-what it used to be. Our old world look doesn't meet what people's needs are today.'

Big box

Commissioner Ron Lieberman said he's not opposed to a grocery in the village, but is uncomfortable with the size.

"I said this is beyond a grocery store. This is a supermarket,' agreed Commissioner Bob Wade.

Commissioner Chairperson Vic Gustafson said he is concerned the nearby families won't bring in enough business, and a grocery would close, leaving the large unusable building in its Commissioners Catherine Johnson and Melissa McLaughlin agreed with the need for a grocery in the village.

"Viability isn't going to be the issue here. Aesthetics is the issue," said Stollman, adding several grocery retailers have approached him about locating in Cherry Hill Village.

After the meeting, Pardington confirmed he has been meeting with Spartan Stores representatives and accountants to determine whether another Holiday Market would be viable at the village location.

Zarbo said putting a large store in the village "violates everything we've talked about since I've been on this board." He added the public support for the village would not have been as enthusiastic if people had known there would be "big box" store there.

"Where do we put the Walgreen's and the Blockbuster?" he asked. "This is not what I had in mind." "If Blockbuster wants to come into Cherry Hill Village, so be it. But they're going to have to fit in there." Stollman said, pointing to an elevation of the classical brick stores designed to wrap around the proposed grocery.

Besides the grocery, other permitted uses for the planned development district were preliminarily approved. Other uses included assisted living facilities, hardware stores and gas stations.

The commission approved the preliminary PDD and zoning ordinance amendment 7-0.

the first few rains just wind up running off."

During the water use restriction, individuals with odd numbered addresses may only do outdoor watering only on odd numbered dates. Likewise, those having even numbered addresses should water lawns, fill swimming pools and wash cars on even numbered dates. Because water consumption is at its peak between the hours of 6-9 a.m. and 3-6 p.m. daily, Canton is also requesting a voluntary observance to limit outdoor use of water between these hours. Cooperation in maintaining these water use restrictions will enable water customers to continue receiving an even distribution of water with minimal low-pressure problems.

Homeowners in subdivisions with common areas are also asked to restrict watering their common areas to every other day. Residents should be aware that many public areas, such as parks and golf courses receive their water from ponds which are independent of the Detroit water system.

If residents have any questions regarding the requested water use restriction they may contact Canton's Public Works Division at (734) 394-5150.

Special evening honors Sister Francilene

July 2001 marked a new transition at Madonna University in Livonia.

Sister Mary Francilene Van de Vyver, who had led the school through 25 years of growth and development, stepped down as president handing over operation of the university to Sister Rose Marie Kujawa.

But before the official changeover on July 1, more than 700 people gathered last month at Laurel Manor in Livonia to salute Sister Francilene for her vision, compassion, service to the university, commitment to higher education and leadership throughout the region and state.

Andrea Nodge said that gifts totaling more than $50,000 have been raised for a scholarship in Sister Francilene's honor. Nodge, director of marketing and public relations at Madonna, served as emcee for the June tribute and coordinated plans for the evening.

Speakers representing civic and political leaders, the Felician Sisters, higher education, the Van de Vyver family and Madonna University praised Sister Francilene's strength, vision and compassion. A special video presentation gave the audience a personal and professional look at Madonna's longest-serving pres-

Mayoral tribute: Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey delivered a tribute to Sister Francilene on behalf of civic leaders.

Family tribute

In a poignant tribute, her siblings, mother and extended family - nearly 40 strong - assembled on stage to serenade her with "Song of Praise" sung to the tune of "Edelweiss."

"Grant you peace, perfect peace, courage in every endeavor" they sang to a rousing ovation from the audience.

Sister Mary Renetta, Provincial Minister of the Felicians Sisters, cited Sister Francilene's 42 years as a Felician Sister.

"I came to realize that by your ministry of presence you have multiplied yourself thousands of times and you have touched the hearts of hundreds of thousands of people these past 25 years.

Legend among leaders

Edward O. Blews, Jr., president of the Association of Independent Colleges and Universiies, called her "the dean of Michigan independent higher education leaders." He presented her with a resolution conferring upon her the title of "Legend of Michigan Independent Higher Education."

He cited her transformation of Madonna from a "small though special college" into a large, growing, dynamic university highly respected in the state and nation with an international reach and reputation.

Sister Francilene had served on the association's executive committee for five years and as chairwoman of the board of directors in 1983-1984

Sister Rose Marie Kujawa, praised the outgoing president's vision and strength and pledged to continue her work at Madonna University.

In addition to the speeches and tributes, guests were entertained by Linette Popoff-Parks, chairwoman of the Madonna University Music Department, playing Chopin and a sign language musical presentation of "You'll Never Walk Alone" by Mike Meldrum, Rebecca Shriner and Katie Balough of Madonna's Office of Disability Resources.

Meaningful gifts

Guests received copies of Walking Through the Woods," a book written by Sister Francilene during her treatment several years ago for colon cancer, bookmarks, small stones handpainted with messages of peace, love and joy and a violet pin with the symbol of the Pancreat-son for the stones is an inspired statement that came in one of the get-well cards. It read: "The path will wait while you take the stone from your shoe..."

"During our lifetime, each one of us experiences challenges, difficulties, death, pain, separation, troubles -- so when we stop to take out that stone that is bothersome, let's remember to look up and see that the path is still there _ our path of life here and into eternity," said Sister Francilene.

"Please put that pin on today and become a member of a group that together with our dedicated doctors and medical personnel, can make a real difference in advocating for early detection and effective treatments for pancreatic cancer."

She quoted from the letter she wrote her parents on her first day as President of Madonna University — July 1, 1976.

"I owe so much to my two dear parents. You first taught me to do all of life's work for the glory of God..."

"Allow to me end my reflections as I began — "Thanks be to God for the past 59 years of life; 25 serving as the leader of Madonna University, I trust God wanted me to be."

"For all that has been, I give thanks.

"For all that is now in my life, I give thanks. And for all that will be, I give thanks, because the best is yet to come.'

The following are excerpts from the speech given by Sister Mary Francilene at her June 6 tribute in Laurel Manor.

Vyer, and her sister, Sister Joyce Marie Van de Vyer,

I'd like to follow the program and begin by thanking all of our civic leaders who model for us commitment to the welfare and good of all members of society. Every time I have had the privilege of offering an Invocation for a civic event, I am overwhelmed by the dedication of those among us who give countless hours to make our cities, counties, state and country a better place in which to live, work, pray and nurture families.

To my presidential colleagues - and there are many here this evening - I shall always treasure our interactions, projects and shared mission of higher education in educating students for truth, goodness and service.

Please welcome among your ranks now, Sister Rose Marie, that as she accepts the role of presidential leadership on July 1, she can count on your loyal support, advice, and collegiality.

In truth, Sister Rose Marie is already a leader among leaders given her 17 years as chief academic officer at Madonna; one who established many of the programs of study on both the national and international levels.

Now let me tell you something about being a nun for 42 years. That is all I ever wanted to be.

The first memory I have is from the age of three. when my mother took me to the corner drugstore. Remember how the old drugstores had a small recording booth in the back that you could make a 45 record? Anyway, we went to make a record for Daddy's birthday. I said the prayer "Hail Mary" followed by the words, "Happy Birthday, Daddy, This is Patricia!" But I loved to pray and follow the nuns and couldn't wait to become one...

I met the Felician Sisters when I was in eighth grade and left home at the age of 13 to enter the Felician Academy – a preparatory program for girls interested in the sisterhood; and subsequently entered the Felician Sisters at the age of 17. I ly!" In truth when one studies the strides made over the past 25 years, so much is due to the hard work, dedication, and energies of others, not myself. Mostly, I tried not to stand in the way of others' ideas. I felt it a major responsibility to encourage creativity and to acknowledge the accomplishments of our faculty, administrators and staff.

Above all, the one goal for which I did strive was to develop a sensitive, respectful, loving, diverse, university community. That we are! It has been a blessing and privilege to have held the role of leader among so many wise people.

You have already met my talented family! Can you imagine when we were all young children? There were six of us and together with Mother and Dad we had our own little orchestra. We would go on Sundays to the various hospitals to play for the patients. We had two violinists, a pianist, a clarinet and Hawaiian Guitar player, one accordionist, organist, string bass player, guitarist, and drummer. That's another thought I have about Heaven that there will be a lot of music!

Tonight I want to especially acknowledge and thank my Mother. She and Dad supported and helped each of us throughout our lives. In my case, when I was a music director, they came for many evenings of musical rehearsals. They helped with our other volunteers in raising bingo funds for scholarships, and they have always been there whenever I needed advice or wise counsel. She gave life to me 59 years ago and continues to give love every day — our mother, Irene Van de Vyver.

Thank you to my family, my aunt, uncle, cousins, nephews and nieces, and to my friends who came for this evening from such places as Philadelphia, Chicago and Buffalo.

Thank you to the benefactors, volunteers and board members of our wonderful Madonna University. If love could effect an immediate cure, I'd be cured a long time ago!

New book from page A1

Parker's research took her to four states, countless libraries and museums, interviews with experts – she even enrolled in a hearth cooking class at Greenfield Village. Then there were numerous drafts and the struggle to find a publisher. (She ended up taking those duties herself, using a small press she owns for pamphlets and other documents.)

The book, which covers roughly 60 years from the mid- to late-1600s, revolves around the lives of the Weymouth, Lilburne and Cooper families and their migration to New England. It mingles fictional characters with wellknown personalities and events of the time.

The protagonists' reasons for range from financial ambition - patriarch John Weymouth leads a group of London financiers who invest in a Massachusetts banking company; to Richard Lilburne, a country gentleman seeking to flee England's Puritan overlords.

Mary Cooper though was the most intriguing character she developed, Parker said. Cooper, midwife to the Weymouth's newborn son, wants nothing more than to improve her own family's lot in life. Her vision of the New World is dominated by fertile soil that produces enough to feed her husband and two children.

That far-off dream leads Mary and Thomas Cooper to throw in with the Weymouths, trading four years of service for passage, clothing, provisions and the setting sail to the New World future promise of their own land.

Book signing for The Water's Edge

Virginia Bailey Parker will sign copies of The Water's Edge 6:30-8:30 p.m. Friday at Little Book Shoppe on the Park in downtown Plymouth.

The 384-page softcover retails for $18.95 and is available at the Plymouth store. It will be in other area book stores next month and will also be available through Amazon.com, B&N.com or by ordering from the publisher, Snowy Creek Press.

Character development

"My original thought was to tell the story from different viewpoints," Parker said. "Then things came to me during research. Mary Cooper was one. So then I had to go off and research that topic, midwifery."

She credited the late Dr. John Gosling for his immeasurable help. "He also had been to England many times and told me the narrative describing the country was perfect," said Parker, who has never visited the continent.

Another challenge, Parker said, was staying true to historical events and the character of the times. Always an historian first, she found this difficult.

The effort to find a publication was an education in itself, Parker said.

"They pigeonhole you. I kept hearing that this book has regional appeal that would limit sales."

I know that the setting is New England but I believe the themes are universal, something everyone can relate to," she added.

The Water's Edge does have two distributors, Partners and Baker & Taylor.

Parker has also written freelance articles and columns for the Observer Newspapers and other publications. She is on the board of the Michigan Oral History Association and is a commissioner on Canton's Historic District Commission.

Now busy as a reviewer for Publisher's Weekly, Parker said she has a couple of new books in the works, including another novel, this one set in Michigan during the 19th century.

Revised sign ordinance will benefit township

Where would Canton be without a good sign ordinance? Probably buried underneath a sea of neon and quasi-words such as "nite" or "thru."

That's the picture that emerged last week after a joint session of the township board and planning commission set up for the eventual fine-tuning of the current local law. The Observer strongly supports commissioners and trustees in their revision efforts.

It's not that the current sign ordinance is sub par, but things have changed dramatically since the last time the issued was addressed. The character of the township, what looks good from an aesthetic standpoint, and sign technology, itself, have shifted during the last decade. Add that to the fact that many signs along Canton's business thoroughfares don't even comply with the current ordinance and you have the recipe for a legislative makeover.

The plan calls for suggestions from the July 17 meeting to be reviewed by the planning department, which will then draft a proposed ordinance and forward it to the commission and then the township board. The board has the final vote on a new law.

The key to success, we believe, will be in how well drafters balance the goals of eliminating clutter and adhering to the "look" they want for Canton with the business community's need to stand out and be seen by customers. From what we've seen so far, township officials are headed in the right direction.

Proposed changes include shrinking the maximum square footage of signs from 50 square feet to 24 square feet. We believe that might be a bit tight. A 30square-foot maximum would still allow for a 6-by-5-foot or 10-by-3 foot sign.

Banners and flashing lights would be banned as well.

Also, signs that don't comply with the

Setbacks shouldn't end

efforts on river or lake

current ordinance (and presumably the new one) would need to be torn down. That includes signs sitting atop poles like the Meijer sign on Ford near Canton Center. But some township officials are advocating financial incentives like paying part of the cost, or even a 10-year grandfather clause.

The character of the township, aesthetics and sign technology have all shifted during the last decade.

New signs for a major business like a supermarket or department store can cost as much as $500,000.

But technology and building materials have evolved over the years making smaller, monument-style signs nearly as visible as the old pole-sitters. They look a lot better, too.

A committee studied signs in adjacent communities - including Plymouth, Livonia and Farmington - before coming up with the recommendations.

If done in a fair and even-handed manner, the new ordinance will benefit community residents and businesses.

Look no further than the Rite-Aid store or AAA building on Canton Center Road, south of Ford, to find a good example of township input helping to shape a functional, attractive commercial district. You might quibble over the columns on the AAA office or the color of the drug store windows, but the fact is, those developers wouldn't have followed the "upscale" blueprints without the insistence of local officials.

The same thing can and should happen under a carefully revised sign ordinance.

Fight crime, not sales

In response to the letters on sidewalk sales, I am amazed and incredulous. Canton is so concerned with outward appearance that our taxes must be going to beautification and not police patrol and crime.

Canton is becoming overridden with robberies every day, and a dozen people that I know personally have been victimized. Canton is an easy target for many fringe area criminals, because our police are not presenting a strong presence in our community. This is obvious because burglaries are growing in frequency and becoming more blatant.

When is our planning commission going to realize that we can't whitewash Canton while our security is eroding daily by rampant crime? Many of our kids are buying, selling and are the victims of drugs. Shouldn't addressing deeper problems in our community be our priority, instead of merchandise on a sidewalk?

The Michigan Constitution of 1963 is quite clear. In Article I, Section 6, itreads, "Every person has a right to keep and bear arms for the defense of himself and the state." I'm not sure which part of this statement people are struggling to understand. Article II, Section 9 states "The power of referendum does not extend to acts making appropriations for state institutions or to meet deficiencies in state funds..." There is no qualifying clause in this section reading "...unless some people feel that the appropriation in question was added solely for the purpose of avoiding referendum, in a lame duck session."

The Michigan State Police are indeed a state institution, which will incur costs in implementing the rigorous requirements of the new CCW law. What's the big difficulty in accepting a completely constitutional appropria-

The claim that the Legislature was paid off by special interests is equally laughable. Support for this bill came from Michigan organizations, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs and the Michigan Coalition for Responsible Gun Owners, which received no out-of-state funding, but mostly from individual Michigan citizens. On the other hand, the Michigan Partnership to Prevent Gun Violence received $375,000 from the Joyce Foundation of Illinois in the year 2000 alone. Out-of-state interests have similarly funded the Million Mom group.

My advice: Get over it, drop the irrational fear of your law-abiding neighbors, and, if you want to change to law, try amending the Michigan Constitution first.

■ Don't shun patients

I am writing this letter in response to the article titled, "Brain injury victims just looking at Plymouth as place to rejoin life."

In this particular article Susan Clark, a resident of Plymouth, was interviewed. She expressed her views on the patients living in a rehabilitation center on the street which she resides. I wondered what she would do if her daughter were in an accident and incurred a serious brain injury. I am certain that she would want her child to be ensured the best care.

That is exactly what Timothy Broe, head of the rehabilitation center, aims to do for his residents. The city ordinance allows the center to be established and does not require that citizens of Plymouth be notified of these sorts of centers being in existence. Every neighborhood encounters incidents where outbursts take place. They are not limited to neighborhoods where residents are regaining their

Clark said she was concerned for her daughter's safety. I am more concerned for her mother's narrow-minded, discriminatory views. My parents protected me from things in life; they did not shelter me from life.

It's important for children to see all walks of life. I hope that Susan Clark's daughter learns that everyone is different and we all have our good and bad points. Brain injury patients are a part of our society. It is our moral obligation to assist individuals that need our help and not shun them. I really hope that you can print this letter. It is very important to me that my points are heard. I feel that no one was on the side of the patients. I think that someone needs to be on the side of not only these residents of rehabilitation centers, but any center that helps individuals recover from whatever might ail them.

■ Who is 'we' anyway?

"We" who?

The pronoun (used by writer Mike Malott in his column "Racial profiling ban would treat the symptom rather than the disease" July 12) has become the drug of choice for the intellectually self intoxicating.

It leaves its abuser high in the misguided belief that they have overpowered the faint of mind, so the reader can now see the same light the writer sees.

Featured most prominently by investigative journalists who, lacking the intestinal fortitude to ask their own questions, try to fill in the blanks to questions raised by "others." Who are "others?" And Mr. Malott with his insight that, "... we abandoned those neighborhoods in the 'white flight' ... we turned them into shopping districts for our recreational pharmaceuticals ... we've let our government withdraw services from the central cities, and ... we've priced many of the suburbs beyond the means of all but the wealthiest," has taken a nasty spill himself. Listing badly to starboard he has graciously bestowed his self mortification on us all. It must be the "mouse in his pocket" that accounts for his repeated reference to "we." Who else could "we" be?

We could be Americans who work and pay taxes and raise families and vote, hoping that our efforts do some good. Or we could be Malott's "whiteys" who did all these bad things to everyone else. You know who you are. That's right, you! Or is it "WE!"

We, who thought we could work and live and buy a home and make mortgage payments and pay taxes in a city other than Detroit. We, who thought we were free to live where we wanted. What were we thinking? Not very Malottesque, obviously. We, who made all those developers price homes into the stratosphere, just so we could work ourselves to death.

Mr. Malott is engaged in nothing more than race baiting. It's the drug of the intellectually infirm. If officers are acting unlawfully, then action should be taken. Training, monitoring and legal action if appropriate.

Let's keep focused.

The situation this summer at Newburgh Lake and the Rouge River is regrettable. Mother Nature has given the lake and river a one-two punch, with hot weather and low water helping make bacteria lev-Wayne County advises people not to make full body contact with the water. which means County Executive Ed McNamara won't be swimming in Newburgh Lake as he promised when it was clean enough.

His swim was part of a high profile public relations campaign for Newburgh Lake after it was drained and dredged and chemical contamination removed.

As part of a parks millage, the boat house at the lake was revamped and there were paddle and row boats for rent at the lake. It was our new vision for the Rouge system. It was no longer our collective sewer for industrial and human waste it was going to be our play ground.

It was an admirable vision. But rivers and lakes have a way of defying our political agendas.

Wildfowl still use the lake as a toilet and Mother Nature has a way of drying things up on certain years. It's now time to take a more serious look at Newburgh and the Rouge. The lake itself isn't really a lake. It's the backwaters of the Rouge. The Rouge itself is a dammed, controlled river. It's not a wild, free flowing stream like others in the state. In a way, it's been a managed drain for western Wayne County. When water is withheld from a river, water levels and flowage suffer. On a recent day this week, the river in Hines park was barely moving. When that happens, bacteria levels rise. The river isn't being flushed and cleaned. The solution to getting the river and lake cleaner is to get the state Department of Natural Resources involved.

That's the politics of the county and it's the expertise the county has. What's needed now is the vision of fish

Wayne County has run Hines and the water system in it as an urban park.

biologists and others in the DNR with wildlife and forest management experi-

One solution is to remove the dams and improve the flow of the river. Removal is being proposed for the Huron River that runs though Ann Arbor. Dams hold back the river flow, and slow the natural cleansing process of the river.

They also create ponds and lakes like Newburgh. It would be difficult for us to give up the lake. However, it would be interesting to see what DNR types would say about the elimination of dams on the Rouge.

Wilcox Lake, upstream from Newburgh, has a dam, which created the lake. It would be interesting to find out if its removal would increase the water flow enough to improve the water quality in Newburgh and the Rouge. The real challenge facing western Wayne County is how we look at the Rouge. Are we going to let it limp along as a managed park, or are we going to try turning it into a wilder river?

Wild rivers tend to flood sometimes because there are no controls. Downed trees and other natural debris often collect in river bends, creating ponds and wetlands. Beavers also do their work of creating their own ponds as a place to live. All those natural ponds create wildlife and fish habitat.

Western Wayne County residents have done a good job of cleaning up the Rouge. Redford Township has built a retention basin with the help of federal money to keep untreated storm and sewer water from going into the river. People have also volunteered countless hours to clean up the Rouge.

Now it's time for us to step back and find a new mindset for Newburgh Lake and the entire watershed. We need to see parks in a new light. They should be more than baseball and soccer fields. The Rouge watershed should be returned to as close as a natural state as possible.

Getting the DNR involved would be one step. And looking at removing dams another. It's time to take a fresh look at the river system.

No telling where exporting Michigan waters would stop

Water just might be the most important and valuable thing we have in Michigan.

Whether it's the clear water in our streams, the rippling waters of our inland lakes or the water in the mighty Great Lakes – the largest source of fresh water on the planet – water is what makes Michigan.

It's not only the source of much of the remark-ch of the remarkable quality of life in our state, but experts predict that as the world wide shortage of water intensifies, our water will become an enormously valuable resource.

So when somebody starts dabbling with our water, Michigan hackles get raised right quick.

President

George W. Bush found that out last week. According to the Toronto Globe and Mail, Bush said he wanted to talk to Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chretien about piping Canadian water to the parched American Southwest.

"Our nation must develop a comprehensive water strategy, particularly as these western states continue to grow," the newspaper quoted Bush as saying during a meeting with a group of reporters. "I'm from a part of the world where ... there was no water," said Bush, adding that when world oil prices crashed in the early 1980s to less than $10 a barrel, water seemed more valuable than oil.

The President's remarks set off a firestorm. A spokesman for Prime Minister Chretien said that if Bush raises the issue, he will be told Ottawa has long opposed such a move. Canadian Environment Minister David Anderson said, "The Prime Minister will tell the President that we have a policy of not exporting water and that, I guess, will be it. I imagine it will be a brief conversation."

U.S. Rep. Bart Stupak, D-Menominee, who represents the Upper Peninsula and northern lower Michigan, told me "I'm just surprised at how cavalier his comment is or what a dangerous a precedent it could set. He doesn't seem to recognize the sensitivity of people about this subject."

The issue is far more consequential than the casual comment of a politician who grew up in the dusty oil fields of Texas and whose first instinct is to treat most liquids as though they were oil. By treaty, once water is moved commercially across an international border, it becomes a commodity regulated by free-trade rules. That means any entrepreneur could imagine a business filling tankers with Lake Superior water to ship to Saudi Arabia or building a water pipeline to, say, Midland, Texas.

What is troubling about the President's remark is the underlying mind-set it reveals: A natural resource is something to be exploited for economic gain, not to be preserved for future generations.

Worse, once the export of Great Lakes water starts, there's no telling where it might stop. With water levels in the lakes already declining to record lows, I'd hate to see oil industry logic – pump it until it's dry, then go drill another well – applied to our water.

What is troubling about the President's remark is the underlying mind-set it reveals: A natural resource is something to be exploited for economic gain, not to be preserved for future generations.

Basically, the President was suggesting that if lots of people are moving where there is little water, the thing to do is figure out how to get the water out there regardless of the environmental consequences or the impact of international law.

Nothing about ways to conserve water. Nothing about the idiocy of subsidizing water shipments to arid regions to encourage further development that has already outrun the capacity of existing natural resources to sustain it. Nothing about the effect upon a state and region whose very identity is bound up in water — as much as Texas' is bound up with oil.

This is not a trivial issue. In the next election, Michigan will lose a seat in Congress as a result of population loss recorded in the last census, while southwestern states will gain. The balance of federal political power will shift away from Michigan.

Gov. John Engler, who has argued that control over Great Lakes water ought to be left in the hands of the states that border them, might want to use this episode as a teachable moment to help his friend, President Bush, understand he's now something more than merely the governor of a parched state.

A fresh look at the mail – and e-mail – yields surprises

Tedd Schneider

Our mailbox here at the Observer is usually pretty full. And of course these days, we receive a lot of e-mail as well. Which reminds me, this would be a good spot to slip in a shameless plug for one of our newest features.

For the last few weeks, we've been soliciting e-mail responses to specific stories on local issues, usually about once a week on the front page. We call this feature "What do you think?" although sometimes we use a headline more closely associated with the story. The e-mail address is tschneider@oe.homecomm.net (Note to those not online: a plain, old typed letter to the Observer at 794 S. Main, Plymouth MI 48170 or a fax to (734) 459-4224 works just as well.)

The response from readers has been very good, and we print signed letters in the next edition, right at the top of the letters column. A few emails on the sidewalk sale issue even helped us when it came time to pull together our own editorial.

But back to the original topic – sorting through all that mail. I used to do this using the standard business technique. You know, designating piles for immediate attention, future attention and the trusty circular file. How boring.

But newspapers aren't the only thing that benefit from a fresh approach. Sometimes newspaper editors need a good whack and a change too. That's why I now separate my mail into just two piles – things I like and things I don't. (After which, of course, I redo it in the tried-and-true way, being the stubborn, middle-aged, by-the-book type that I am.)

Of course, my correspondents have nothing to worry about. Things I don't like, or even detest, have the same chance of ending up in the paper as those I cherish. It's always been part of the philosophy here that we're a local paper and "What comes in gets in."

So how exactly does this decidedly low-tech approach to mail sorting work? Let me demonstrate.

Thing I like – Handwritten note from proud Canton mom about her son making the Dean's List last semester while up at college.

■ Thing I don't like - Fill-in-the-blank form letter about a high school student being nominated for the "U.S. National Great American Achievement Academy," really just a ruse to sell a bunch of "special publications" to unsuspecting relatives

Thing I like – Well thought out and timely letter from a local resident on local, state or national topic, either responding to something in a previous edition or just spouting off about the general malaise/beauty around them.

Thing I don't like – E-mail from some unknown "expert" in Alaska, usually with dozens of recipients on the address line, purporting to urge us to think deeply about the plight of an animal, tree, or the American worker. These though, are a giant step up from the printed missives — often in nearly unlegible handwriting or typed on a 1948 Royal — that run on and on about the New World Order, Kennedy assassination conspiracy or bankers and media types taking over the world.

Sometimes newspaper editors need a good whack and a change too.

■ Thing I like – Note from reader telling me how much they appreciated a story, either because it provided useful information or because the Canton Observer turned its spotlight on them or their business, things are really going well.

■ Thing I don't like – Press release from out-of-state PR firm urging a high-profile story on a Canton resident or business that has already appeared in the paper numerous times over the years.

■ Thing I like – Suggestion on how the paper can do a better job and enhance itself as an asset in the Canton community; or an idea for a feature story on a local person or place.

■ Thing I don't like: Clipping – with no indication of who sent it – with red marker swipes at typos and grammatical errors.

If you sense a common thread here, you're probably on the right track. I like correspondence that is human, personal and raises interesting issues, offers a slice of Canton life. In turn, we like to pass that along to readers. It's a big part of how we stay focused on our mission of being a key source for local information.

So now that you've had a peek inside our mailbox and our computers, we'd love to hear from you.

Soft money is just as much a problem at the state level

"The Michigan campaign finance system is so weak in its regulation of electioneering communications that any corporation, union, individual, interest group or political party can spend as much as it wants and report nothing."

Pretty strong stuff, but that is the conclusion of a report compiled by the Michigan Campaign Finance Network after three months of research into spending in last year's elections.

The MCFN proposes limits on contributions to political parties, limiting caucus contributions to individual candidates, and mandating electronic filing of reports. The last proposal, he said, would enable watchdogs, like the Network itself, to track contributions and spending through a computer database.

But the most important change is to redefine what constitutes "issue advocacy" versus "election advocacy." The network suggests that any ad be considered election advocacy if it contains a candidate's name or a picture of that candidate, and is broadcast within 60 days of an election.

Robinson is skeptical about whether the political will exists in Lansing to crack down on soft money. After all, the politicians tend to like large contributors. But he also believes that if voters express to senators and representatives a desire for more accountability in state elections, lawmakers will warm to the idea.

County commission names terminal for Ed McNamara

The Wayne County Commission thought such an honor was appropriate, and Tuesday approved a resolution to name the facility the Edward H. McNamara Terminal. Only one commissioner voted against the resolution, but mostly because he thought the commission was rushing into the decision.

Those attending the commission meeting at Crowne Plaza Hotel enthusiastically supported the resolution, and gave the 14year Wayne County Executive several warm ovations.

"This is normally an honor reserved for the dead," said McNamara with a wide smile.

In the resolution, summarized at the meeting by commission Chairman Ricardo Solomon, it was detailed how the "vision and unceasing effort and commitment" fostered by McNamara over the past decade greatly led to the terminal becoming a realiwest, the airport's driving force. There will be 97 gates, 11,500 parking spaces, 1.5 miles of moving walkway, a new entrance off of I-275 at Eureka Road, 80 shops and restaurants and a sixth jet runway.

"One of the smartest things we did was sit down with Northwest" and turn over construction of the terminal to the airlines, McNamara said. "And it is true they are a 400-pound gorilla and they are people that are in business to make money. ... But they also are people who know what they are doing."

If not for that partnership, McNamara told the gathering "this terminal would not be in the position it is today."

"This airport is the greatest economic generator this state has seen or ever will see," emphasized McNamara. "It will create more permanent, highclass jobs than any other activity that has taken place."

Before McNamara spoke about the honor, several commissioners appeared to be enthusiastic about the new terminal and naming it in honor of the county

"This has been a long time coming, but it's here," said District 3 commissioner Robert Blackwell, who heads up the commission's airport committee.

Commission Vice-Chairwoman Kay Beard of the 12th district said she was "proud to be a part of naming the terminal in honor of Ed. He worked so hard to get the funding. ... If anybody deserves a name on that terminal, it's Ed."

Don't rush it

District 2 commissioner Bernard Parker was the only one to vote against the resolution, after commenting that the decision should be put on hold. Although Parker said he generally supported the contents of the resolution, he thought members of the public should have had an opportunity to give their input into the process.

■ Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer: "Mr. McNamara has been the guiding force in making this dream a reality, and it is only fitting that it be named in his honor.'

U.S. Rep. Joseph Knollenberg: "Executive McNamara is universally credited with being the most effective advocate for the 97-gate, $1.2 billion terminal. Under his leadership, Metro Airport will be able to advance into the 21st century as a principal, up-to-date transportation center." U.S. Sen. Carl Levin: "While the airport has spurred economic growth, it has been Ed McNamara's vision that has propelled the airport's growth into this increasingly important

U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers: "I believe it is fitting for the commission to recognize Ed McNamara's efforts in bringing Metro Airport into the 21st century."

■ Detroit Renaissance President Paul Hillegonds: "As the opening of the midfield terminal draws near, recognition of Ed McNamara as a driving force and effective advocate for the successful completion of this project is appropriate."

Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson: "The Edward McNamara Terminal would be a fitting and much deserved tribute."

Washburn responded that since Northwest is leasing the terminal from Wayne County that it did not have authority to formally name it. But that doesn't mean the airlines couldn't affix a secondary name if it wanted to.

"They don't have formal authority to name the facility," Washburn explained. "But they can call it whatever they wish."

Annual phenomenon ready to rattle CPOP Gallery

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA STAFF WRITER scasola@oe.homecomm.net

The sturdy wooden sign perched outside Time Stereo headquarters in Livonia reads - in giant carved letters - "Noise Camp." Its simplicity hardly reveals a hint about this annual phenomenon, a combination of performance art and sound that delivers a camping aesthetic in an urban setting.

Now in its seventh year, Noise Camp is brought to you by the fine folks at Time Stereo records, and it remains unrivaled in the metro area. Where else can you play Penguin Toss, indulge in tofu hot dogs and listen to a noise band, Princess Dragonmom, by moonlight?

"Camp. Go to camp."

Livonia resident, artist, and Time Stereo founder Davin Brainard is to blame. He came up with the concept while working as a counselor for a kids camp organized by Clarenceville United Methodist Church. He decided to record the sounds of camp but realized that as soon as he revealed a microphone, the campers would just start screaming. "I took all the tapes and made it into a sort of camp collage," he said. It mixed children's giddy voices with the sounds of the environment and spurred an idea. "We decided to make it a live show."

Brainard, along with musical cohorts Warren Defever, Kevin Callaway, Dion Fischer and newest import Ronald Cornelissen (a Dutch visual artist making his first American Noise Camp appearance), captured this ambiance in sound - under the moniker Princess Dragonmom.

"It starts off quiet and it slowly builds." described Defever of Noise Camp. "By the end, it is an over-the-top noise battle."

What: A strange electroacoustic camp-themed noise project featuring music by Princess Dragonmom When: 7-11 p.m. Saturday, July

Where: CPOP Gallery, 4160 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Cost: No charge, for all ages What to bring: Lawn chair, compass, marshmallows, ghost stories, a sense of humor. For more information: Call (313) 833-9901 or visit www.timestereo.com or www.cpop.com

As far as Brainard knows, no one has ever attempted to top this "strange outdoor electroacoustic noise project.'

Noise Camp debuted at Alvin's in 1995, then moved onto Zoots Coffeehouse. Four years ago, organizers found new, spacious grounds at Detroit's CPOP Gallery. "They're friendly," said Brainard of the CPOP staff. "They have a nice outdoor area, and they let us do it."

Defever thinks its the perfect setting for the event. A completely urban corridor is taken over by manufactured natural surroundings. The event – part art installation, part noise rock show - includes a crafts table for kids, a photo booth to capture camp memories, camp haircuts, songs and ghost stories, all before a campfire.

Act like a kid

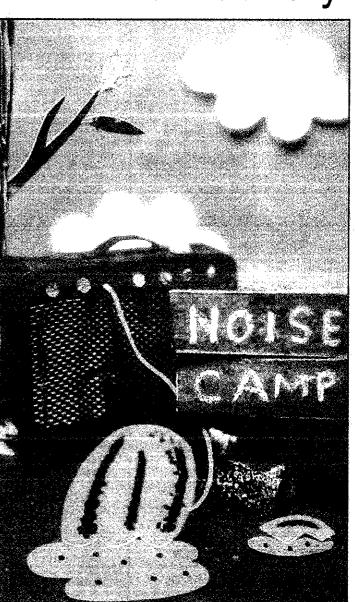

Ribbons are handed out to those campers considered the best swimmers at "Fort Lake" and best eaters munching tofu hot dogs. Camp counselors and Girl Scouts are on hand to protect campers from impending danger such as skunks that spray insect repellent.

Noise Camp doesn't evolve much from one year to the next, yet it caters to campers of all ages. "Some people we know like to have ideas for Noise Camp," said Brainard, feeling misunderstood. "We're not trying to make an all new Noise Camp."

Undisputed highlights include the "good bush" and tree, walking works of art. "The bush kind of thinks he's Iggy Pop," said Defever, who is sometimes known to don the "Tree" suit, which never has eye-holes.

"Sometimes the tree gets in a fight with the bush," said Brainard, in a serious tone. "Last year the big fight spilled out onto Woodward," added Defever. No one was

Celebrate Scottish heritage at Highland Games

BY KEELY KALESKI-WYGONIK STAFF WRITER kwygonik@oe.homecomm.net

Give them a day, and they'll give you Scotland - the St. Andrew's Society of Detroit isn't kidding. Its Highland Games, being held this year on Saturday, Aug. 4, at Greenmead Historical Park in Livonia, are the oldest continuous event of its kind in North America.

The event features a variety of activities including piping and drumming contests, Highland dance and heavy athletics competition, parade of clans, three stages of entertainers, children's activities, genealogy tent, and vendors selling Scottish related

"We learn a lot, we meet a lot of people, it's just plain fun," said Craig Stewart of Canton about the 152nd annual event. "I like bagpipes, wearing the family kilt, and learning things about our Scottish heritage."

Stewart's a member of St. Andrew's Royal Scottish Honor Guard, and will be participating in the games with his wife, Suzanne, and stepdaughters, Amy and Jessica Burnett Calmes.

the St. Andrew's Society, and remembers attending Highland Games as a child. Her grandmother, Mary Burnett Summers was born in Scotland, and her great uncle was a Highland dancer.

"I was too shy to compete, but I used to go to the games and watch my cousins," remembers Suzanne.

Her daughter Amy wanted to start dancing after she attended Highland Games in Fergus, Ontario.

"I love dancing, it's my heritage, and it's fun competing," said Amy, 12, an eighth-grader at East Middle School in Plymouth. She's been in nine competitions and won 36 medals, 20 of them first place. This summer she attended the Ohio Scottish Arts School Highland Dance Camp, and recently won her sixth best in group champion trophy.

On Aug. 4 she'll be competing between 9-11 a.m. in the novice, age

Campers are surrounded by Brainard's paintings, which often depict camp counselors who have suffered some evil fate - a beehive or bucket of paint that has fallen on the counselor's head, for instance. Brainard studied art at Wayne State University. Using bright primary colors and a childlike vision, the artwork becomes an integral element in understanding Noise Camp.

The evening culminates in a performance by Princess Dragonmom. True to its noise roots, the band plays unconventional instruments.

Noise Camp offers a rare opportunity to hear the sounds of the electric pine cone, the electric log and even the electric bear. The instruments combining elements of nature and art with electronic pick-ups, like those used on a guitar.

Dion Fischer (The Go) is likely to reprise his role, playing the only perishable instrument in the bunch, the electric watermelon. "It's all fairly primitive," said Defever

Detroit resident Crispy Fachini lives just down the street from the campsite. "It's not as scary as when I used to go camping as a kid." A native of rural Applegate, Mich., Fachini camped deep in the woods on his parent's property. He never once encountered an electric bear. "The last camp at CPOP, I went with four of my friends, and we arrived on a scooter, a Vespa, and we made a grand entrance.

"I like the Sword Dance best," she said. "It's difficult to do, I like the challenge. The dances all have a story behind them. I like the bagpipes, how they sound. It makes me feel like I'm dancing for Scotland."

Caitlin Campbell of Plymouth and Holly Dorger of Bloomfield Hills competed in the U.S. Highland Dance national championships in Long Beach, Calif., and will also compete in at Greenmead.

Local dancers

Other local dancers scheduled to participate in competition at Greenmead are Kelly Cook of Franklin; Lindsay Corbets, Christina Hugo, and Allison Gibson of Rochester Hills, Erin Welsh of Plymouth, Elizabeth Maylen of Birmingham, and Anna Falkowski of Livonia.

If you're Scottish, Craig said the games are the perfect place to learn more about your heritage. "If you're not Scottish you can come and have a good time," he said. "There's a lot to see the athletic events, dancing, it's a nice day."

Susie and Bill Baker of Bloomfield Hills joined the St. Andrew's Society after visiting Scotland in 1997.

"We loved it so much we wanted to get involved," Susie said. 'We're part of the melting pot, but chose to celebrate our Scottish roots."

Intuit-Solar shifts the musical climate

A. CASOLA

It isn't easy to catch up with Jon Layne these

The owner of the Birmingham-based Intuit-Solar record label rarely takes a break.

Between promoting records by his artists, like DJ Assault's latest, Jefferson Avenue, flying out to high profile events like Miami's Winter Music Conference where he organized a music showcase, and staying one step ahead of the music scene, the West Bloomfield native never seems to rest. He even runs the label out of his quaint Birmingham home - a way to make living and breathing the business that much more comfortable. It started out simply enough.

"The label was created from our club night, Solar," he recalled of the company's fiveyear history. What started as a weekly event at Ann Arbor's Blind Pig spun into a burgeoning opportunity for Layne and a handful of intriguing local

> "Disco D came to me and said he wanted to put out a record." said Layne. "I had some money and said 'Let's do it." In 1998, he released Disco D's D-Down EP.

> Layne considers Intuit-Solar and its related projects - such as Area Code Management and the hip hop subsidiary DTW - to be "a platform for emerging Detroit artists."

> Area Code handles the day-today affairs of DJ Assault, Jive Electro recording artists the Detroit Grand Pubahs and rapper Hush, while the electronicbased label Intuit-Solar includes artists like Japanese Telecom and Sean Deason.

As one of the only non-artists in the metro area who runs a record label, Layne possesses a different perspective. He's even chosen to keep the company suburban-based. "It wasn't my fault Ameritech changed my area code from three-one-three to two-foureight," he said with a smile. Basically, I don't look at this as Birmingham. It's Detroit. It's where the music comes from the inner city and the people that support it. It's all here."

And it certainly doesn't sound Birmingham. From the electrosonic beauty of Deason's music to the brazen attitude and beats of DJ Assault, Intuit-Solar artists don't fit any existing mold - city or suburban.

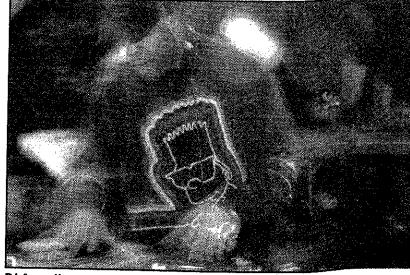

"I wanted to help propel things to a much higher level, and get this music heard by the masses," said Layne, from a comfortable room in his home-office. There exists no one characteristic that links Intuit-Solar artists to one another, except perhaps a penchant for innovative, experimental sounds. Those sounds fall into many categories - from drum 'n' bass to hip hop, techno to electro. The label known for compilations like the Comin From Tha D installments (featuring tracks by DJs Godfather, Terrence Parker, Ectomorph, Recloose, Sean Deason and Disco D) keeps gazing toward its Layne realizes some listeners aren't quite prepared for Intuit-Solar's artists, but he carries on believing that someday it will be understood. "With the label and artists, we are very advanced, very futuristic. Today, the world might not be ready for us." His is a new vision of Motown, another reason to make Detroiters proud of the music coming from the city and surrounding areas. "We're going to keep doing what we're doing."

Layne proposes nothing short of a sonic take-over. "You just gotta hear it and be part of our experience, part of our world.

DJ Assault dismisses his 'ghettotech' past for accelerated funk

By Stephanie Angelyn Casola STAFF WRITER

scasola@oe.homecomm.net

."Music is not as good as it used to be six or seven years ago," laments Detroiter Craig Adams. "It's hard. Its just a lull."

Better known as DJ Assault, Craig Adams should know. After all, he was raised on Top 40 radio. The sounds of Run DMC, LL Cool J and the Beastie Boys filled his home at age 10. Even his parents, avid R&B fans, encouraged music. And when he reigns behind the turntables. there's no telling what's going to

Adams started spinning records in 1993 while attending college in Atlanta. "I knew I didn't want to work for anybody," he said during a phone interview. "I continued thinking of my own ideas. Not always music. I like my time to be my own."

AlleyCat Productions Presents

A Musical Drama by Paul Bruce

His time doesn't seem to be his own these days, though, as he traipses across the globe spreading his brand of accelerated funk to the masses. Assault's latest effort, Jefferson Avenue, hit stores July 24 to show a new side of the artist once deemed "ghetto-tech."

Replacing his speed-of-light beats and techno-driven dance tracks with what's being called the future of hip hop, a more complete Craig Adams has emerged. He wrote, produced and recorded the entire album himself.

Around 1999 Assault met and began working with Intuit-Solar's Jon Layne. Now associated with the label and managed by Layne's Area Code Management, Adams' notoriety has skyrocketed. DJ Assault seems to be everywhere - his music is reviewed in Rolling Stone and the New York Times, and the artist is even featured in ads for Fresh Jive Clothing. "It was kinda interesting," he said of the experience. "Maybe its like a clue or a hint to keep the body pretty tight.'

But DJ Assault won't soon abandon his music for a career in front of the camera. Jefferson Avenue redefines the artist - and he's proud of it. "I was just being myself. I just kind of let it flow, natural."

Adams admits, if you're expecting ghettotech, if you're expecting Detroit techno, you're bound to be disappointed. "I don't listen to that music. It's not

For DJ Assault, this is more than a sign of change - its an evolution. "I've been rapping as long as I've been DJing," he said. "I'm sick of like, gimmicks."

Look out Jay-Z, Assault isn't kidding. A marketing major in college, he knows where the lucrative side of music falls these days. "I wanna be where the people making money is, and it's rap," he said. "Electronic music, you can't name me one person who has made as much money as Dr. Dre has. That's a fact. The music is not nearly as big."

Layne believes in this direction. "It's the best Assault record his new outlook. Meet Craig Diato date," he said. "I think he really explodes with G-String, Bounce and Ride It."

Despite the buzz about Jefferson Avenue, Adams is not so sure it's going to be a success. "I don't think it'll do real well," he said. "It's going to surprise people. It's like a new idea about hip hop. If you listen to techno, you won't like this. I did something so new and different. It could work, but it would need, like, major money behind it.

On this record, Assault introduces a new personae to match monds. "I thought it was cool to have a bunch of aliases," he said. "Then I got deeper with it. I could be myself, so I didn't have to have a character to be who I am. The first part is me. Diamonds ... I could be myself and shine and (be) valuable.

"If you're true to what you do, you still shine."

Eating at Antonio's just like eating at home

By Joanne Maliszewski Special Writer

Then Antonio Rugiero says the food in his family's restaurant is just like what mama makes, he's not kidding.

"Most restaurants don't have a mama like mine," said Rugiero, who with his family owns Antonio's Cucina Italiana in the Halsted Plaza, Farmington Hills.

When you sit down for a taste of the central Italian cuisine, nary traditions and heritage. Signature dish

If you want to know immediately what that heritage is about, try Antonio's signature entree, gnocchi with "Rita"

Rita, is lending her family's culia peek at the recipe. It's a secret. This much Rugiero will say about his mother's recipe: "It is a tomato base, with a hint of cream, mushrooms and Parme-sauce, and don't count on getting over it. It's the sauce that has given us a reputation."

That reputation is all about freshness, home cooking and reasonable prices.

'We aren't the kind of place where we make a computer menu everyday," Rugiero said. "We are more traditional. We don't have anything premade."

Other signature entrees offered at Antonio's are the chicken Antonio and veal chop. Pan-prepared, chicken is smothtopped with Provolone, and featured with a side order of Fettucine Alfredo. The 10-12 ounce veal chop is broiled and seasoned with rosemary, salt and pepper.

"The veal chop is the closest thing we find to a traditional Italian menu," Rugiero said.

Soup at Antonio's is the same as the Rugiero boys were served as kids with mama at the stove. Signature recipes include minestrone, which is more like the traditional Italian soup rather than puree, and chicken soup.

"We make chicken soup the old-fashioned way," Rugiero said. "It is slow-cooked."

Rugiero present gnocchi, a specialty dish at their family-owned restaurant, Antonio's Cucina Italiana.

COUPLE POURS HEARTS INTO RESTORATION OFLIVONIA HOME

Original: Henry Skowronek holds some of the original hardware for the windows in this turnof-thecentury Victorian house.

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON

kmortson@oe.homecomm.net or a decade Valerie Skowronek had her heart set on an old Victorian house she saw in a Livonia neighborhood. It was love at first sight after she spotted the turn-of-the-century home while shopping at a garage sale across the street. "I said, if there was ever a house I could have ... that would be ny dream house, "remembers Skowronek.

Ten years later, Valerie and her husband, Henry, find themselves standing in the parlor of the late 1800s house they purchased in March 2000, and Valerie couldn't be happier.

"It's the house I always wanted and I'm so excited we were able to buy it after seeing it all those years," said Valerie.

The couple estimates they looked at 100 houses while they were in the market but always went back to the house on St. Martin Street near Inkster and Seven Mile roads. Ironically, they only lived a few blocks away in Redford. They walked by regularly to keep an eye on the property.

In order to make their intentions known to the homeowners, they stopped at the home, introduced themselves and left their name and number — hoping that one day if the property was ever sold they'd be the first to hear about

The Skowroneks were eventually contacted by the seller, but the road to home ownership was a bumpy one.

"We had so many obstacles and heartaches when it came to purchasing this house," said Valerie. "We went back and forth with the seller on whether or not he really wanted to sell it, what the selling price was, whether he was going to sell the lots on each side of it. We thought we were going to lose it before we got

Patience is a virtue

Finally in March 2000 the final purchase agreement was signed and the Skowroneks had their dream house. They paid approximately $150,000 for the 2,000-square-foot house with a detached garage that also included two additional vacant lots, one on each side of the home.

By no means though was the house ready for inhabitants, other than the infestation of ladybugs and other four-legged creatures that took over the inside. The couple also didn't start working on the house for another four months after they closed, because they had exhausted all of their extra income on the down payment with hopes of making their monthly payments

"We worked so many hours to get the money for the down payment, and then even more, to have the money for the monthly payments, that we didn't have any extra cash to start the renovations," said Henry. The pair owned two rental properties in Detroit, one of which was built in 1919, that required refurbishment. Once they sold one of those two homes, they were free to start working on the

The five-bedroom, two bathroom home also features a parlor, formal dining room, kitchen pantry, and a back porch the Skowroneks had to gut and rebuild because it deteriorated and separated from the house, just like the chimney

The couple renovated both bathrooms and hope to reinstall the claw-foot tub soon. They enjoy antiquing and look forward to furnishing the home with period furniture and accessories.

For the outside of the house they envision a white picket fence around the front of the property and a Victorian rose garden with fruit trees on one of the two vacant lots.

After 12 months of labor they plan to move in by the fall and begin siding the exterior clapboard that is aging and faded. "It's hard to find people you can trust who are experienced enough to do this kind of work and who will maintain the historic integrity of the house," said Valerie.

Although the couple hasn't been able to find county records verifying the date the house was

They did learn from a neighbor that the home was moved from its original location a few lots away in 1922. Valerie also started the process of having the house listed with the state of cal registry.

Get creative with child's furnishings

No parent wants to stifle or confine his or her child. Keeping with that philosophy, it's easy to see why children are tough on home furnishings.

As they explore the depths of their energy and creativity, they can't avoid giving the interior design a tremendous beating.

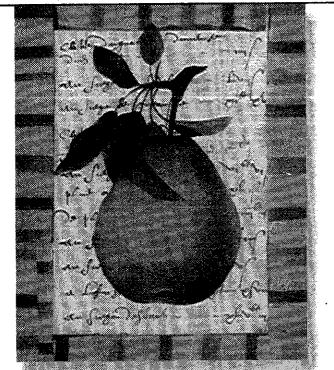

Laminate is not just for kitchens. Laminate's superresistant, wear-and-tear properties make it the ideal surfacing material for high-stress furniture such as tables, dressers, shelves, play stations and even bed frames. There is no limit to the type of furniture that can be created with laminate.

Wall and doof cladding helps protect walls and doors from crayons, dirt and dents while simultaneously dressing them up with large sheets of laminate. Normally used only in commercial environments, laminate for wall and door cladding has now made its way into the high-traffic areas of residential homes.

Children take as many hard knocks as they give. Therefore, the gently curved edges and blunt corners of certain Wilsonart Custom Edges and post-formed edges serve as safeguards since they eliminate the sharp 90-degree angles common with laminate

Bring the colors of outdoors inside

Gardening is the No. 1 pastime in America, according to lifestyle experts.

The feeling of the sun on your back and dirt in your hands can be rejuvenating and refreshing. But in a world of longer work hours and packed schedules, even the most enthusiastic gardener has less time to get out-

People who love the outdoors but rarely get to enjoy it need not despair. Creative decorating techniques in the "garden style" can enable even those with a brown thumb to bring the peaceful feeling of the outdoors into

"The garden style is about bringing the outdoors inside by decorating interiors with elements of the garden and nature - blurring the lines between inside and out," says Linda Hallam, author of Better Homes and Gardens Garden Style: Decorating Ideas for Indoors & Out.

"With our hectic lives, we all long for the feeling that fresh air and sunshine can create."

Elements of nature reflected inside the home through furniture, floor covering, and accessories can relax homeowners after a long day.

"Natural designs in flooring are increasingly popular with today's consumers- sisal, ceramic, and wood with colors, patterns, and textures that echo those of nature are all favorites," said Francis Francavilla of Independent Carpet One in Westland. "And with today's new laminates, vinyls, and manmade fibers, you can combine a natural look with high performance and affordability.

One of the simplest things a home owner can do to bring the feeling of the outdoors inside is buy a few hardy potted plants such as a spider or baby jade plant - and lay a sisal or jute rug on the floor. The green of the plants and the natural tones of pets and colorful area rugs that the sisal fibers will echo the outdoors while making the space inviting and warm.

If you don't have a way with plants, wreathes of dried flowers or herbs, bouquets of fragrant eucalyptus, or botanical prints can create a garden feel.

"Natural fibers such as sisal, jute, and seagrass are as old as time itself," says Rick Fields, sales manager of Design Materials in Kansas City. "These fibers are strong enough to make rope, so they make an incredibly sturdy floor covering.'

According to Fields, these rugs work for any home because they can be cut to any size and easily dyed to in a spectrum of colors, from natural golds and browns to greens and blues that echo the outdoors.

A natural extension of backyard brooks and winding stone walls, stone flooring has also made its way inside. "Natural stones like slate, granite, flagstone, limestone, and travertine give a room a classic timeless feeling," says Glenn Strohl, general manager of residential sales for Dal-Tile. "They are also extremely durable and will last the lifetime of your home adding great value to the home

Likewise terracotta ceramic tile can go from kitchen to family room to patio so you can't tell where the home's interior ends and the outside begins. "This is also a great way to make your home seem larger," said Fran-are both romantic and soothing.

Hallam notes that bringing the outdoors in does not require spending an handsome chunk of change to replace all your furnishings. Attractive and affordable prices can be found in surprising places.

"The great thing about the garden style is that it concentrates on a more casual lifestyle. Your local home and garden center is a great place to find affordable ideas," Hallam said. "Less expensive furniture originally meant for the outdoors can work perfectly inside. You can even recycle items from your own backyard or basement and turn castaways into keepsakes."

Home furnishing experts suggest some fun ideas to bring the freshness of the outdoors into your home:

- Give older furniture a facelift with a fresh coat of white or brightly colored paint.
- Keep the feeling and colors of summer year-round with dried flowers or flowering houseplants throughout your home.
- Use tile, floral area rugs or sisal floor coverings in a room for a natural look from the floor
- Bring "outdoor" furniture inside. Put wicker chaises or Adirondack chairs in the living room or outdoor bistro sets in the breakfast room.
- Recycle elements from your yard as whimsical, decorative touches, like picket fencing as a headboard, tree branches as curtain rods, and birdbaths with glass tops as side tables.

Writing about hair makes me think about all the drains in America which get plugged because of it. A plumber once explained it to me by describing how durable human hair is. We discover a body, thousands of years old, and the hair is still as strong as rope. We can expect the same thing when the plumber cleans out the sink or bathtub drains.

A plumber once told me that his services would never be needed if consumers would turn up the hot water tank to the tank's maximum temperature and let hot water run into drains for 10 minutes each month. He also gave me a proven remedy for unplugging a blocked-up drain. Put a cup full of baking soda into a drain and then slowly pour in a pint of vinegar. Make sure that there isn't a drop of water going into that drain for at least an hour after you have put in the remedy. Then let hot water flow in there for at least 10 minutes.

Condenser cleanup

I think back to the many refrigerators I have cleaned in my lifetime, especially at homes with cats and dogs. Often I pulled out enough animal hair from the condenser to fill a brown grocery bag. Cats and dogs often are to blame for overheated compressors or the need for replacement.

Once animal hair covers the condenser tubing, every little piece of lint will stick to it. Keep in mind that during the winter months, animals like to lay in front of the refrigerator.

A cousin of the hair curler mentioned earlier is the hair dryer. You can save yours by following simple advice here and use an eyebrow plucker.

The hair dryer needs air flowing through it and when the air inlet area is plugged with hair, the elements inside overheat and burn out. Every few months I take the plucker or tweezers and pull out the hair and lint which builds up on the air inlet side.

dences as long as possible. "Rather than allowing physical limitations to threaten their quality of life, such people are custom building or retrofitting their homes now, to ensure ease of use later," said Stephen Taglione, president of Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan and of Westminster & Abbey Homes in Bingham Farms.

Indeed, special additions can go a long way toward preserving a person's ability to live independently in the golden years, whether physical impairments are great or small. For example, replacing regular doorknobs with latches and regular locks with keyless entry systems can help those with arthritic hands. Creating a master bedroom on the first floor can avoid dangerous situations for people who have difficulty climbing stairs.

When envisioning an accessible home for seniors, several obvious modifications come to mind, including grab bars in the bathroom, wide doorways that accommodate wheelchairs, and ramps in place of stairs.

But other important features are easy to overlook, including the provision of ample space in the kitchen and bathroom for easy wheelchair access.

Informative

A very scholarly book, Wildflowers of the Fairest Cape, Peter Goldblatt and John Manning (Timber Press, $34.95, paper), details 652 of the most common wildflowers to be found at "the fairest cape," as Sir Francis Drake called it.

Arranged by groups of related families, many of the plants are presently in cultivation; thereregion as well as a source of information about many plants grown in home gardens. Enjoy the color photos as you take a journey to this "flowerful" counwith these eminent botanists.

The Herbal Epicure, Carole Ottesen (Ballantine Wellspring, $16, soft), contains much information about growing, harvesting and cooking 60 plants that can be homegrown and provide nutrition for a healthier lifestyle. "All those chosen are safe,"

Ottesen says. Most of the recipes are for cooking, using the herbs that are healthful; others are for decoctions, syrups, etc. for medicinal use. I like the little tips in the sidebars, such as drying chamomile blossoms for tea and how to make pumpkins easier to peel. Ottesen approaches the subject in a relaxed manner.

Inspiring

A Fierce Green Fire, Marybeth Lorbiecki (Falcon, $19.95, pub-

Two books discover a garden's ecosystem; fore the book is a guide to the lished in 1996), is the biography of Aldo Leopold, the driving force of the conservation movement in this country.

> Influenced by his grandfather, Leopold became concerned about the destruction of our land during the 1800s and throughout his life. The struggles he faced to sway many opinions and the tide of indifference were mostly uphill. Father, writer, teacher, he devoted his life to ecology. This is a lesson about love and perseverance.

> "His greatest dream was to learn how to live on the land without spoiling it."

> David Brower, founder of the Sierra Club Foundation, also suggests reading A Sand County Almanac. Good stuff.

> Ann Lovejov's Organic Garden Design School (Rodale, $35) contains a wealth of information to help design a garden that is pleasing to you, suits your lifestyle, and works.

Lovejoy's goal is to have each garden be interesting in all seasons, be low maintenance and bloom with healthy plants. She talks about the layers of plants in the garden and their maintenance, and ties it all together with descriptions and photos of mouth-watering plants.

From soil to pests, it's all here. The lessons are presented in a four-color format. Thirty-four workbook pages of your "homework" allow you to record your progress.

You've probably all heard of the Chicken Soup series of books. My friend Pat Stone, who publishes Green Prints, was one of the seven editors for the inspiring Chicken Soup For The Gardener's Soul (Health Communications Inc., $12.95).

The 101 stories will inspire, bring a chuckle or two and/or invoke a memory. Some of the pieces were by writers such as Erma Bombeck, James Michener and Charles Kuralt. Others were by folks just like you and me.

This is a perfect book to take on vacation, or read in the shade of a big tree in your own back yard. You'll love it. GOODGARDEN TIPS

■ Pull off any tomato blossoms that cling to young fruit. The odd conditions called "catfacing" and "zipper streak" may result where the clingy flower pistil causes the fruit to scar at a young age.

■ If lettuce tastes bitter or secretes a milky white sap, it has been in the ground too long. If the juices are clear, it's still good for picking.

Give carrots a twist when vou pull them up so the leaves don't break off. Then immediately cut the leaves off just above the stem so they won't steal moisture and nutrients from the roots.

Azaleas, rhododendrons and camellias would like your leftover tea and the leaves.

JACK GLADDEN

He's pining for the old days

It's a silly thing to be nostalgic about. It was just an old computer bulletin board: oeonline.com. It evolved into being primarily an Internet service provider and — a victim of its own success, I suppose — it is merging with its sister service — HTonline.com — to form a new unit called HTDconnect.

The new service promises "fast, reliable Internet access" and from what I've seen so far, it seems to be delivering.

I made the switch-over this week-end from oconline to HTDconnect and, in a kind of coup de grace, deleted the oconline icon from my computer. I'm gonna miss it. It's been there since oconline was started up, sometime in the early '90s.

Back then the big craze for computer hobbyists was computer bulletin boards. Some guy with a home computer and a modem would set up a "bulletin board" on his system, and other people could dial it up and see what was there.

What was there, usually, was games that could be played online, software that could be downloaded (some legally, some not, depending on the bulletin board), discussion or message areas where users could interact with each other.

The Internet, although technically in existence at the time, was, for all practical purposes still in the future. The World Wide Web didn't exist.

Computer guru

A colleague of mine here at the Observer, a computer guru named Greg Day, set up a bulletin board system at his home and I spent a lot of time online visiting his site. One day Greg walked over to my desk and said held found a software program that stories online and he'd gotten permission from his boss to try it out.

He wanted to test it for a while before going "live" with it, so he installed a copy on my PC at work and gave me another copy to install at home. Oeonline.com was born.

It was all text based, no pictures. So-called "graphical interfaces" were yet to come. There were discussion areas where users could leave comments and others could respond to them. And in some of the areas, respond they did! Some of them read like out and out dog fights.

There was software to download – games, word processing programs, various computer stuff. Then there were the news stories that users could read. I can't even picture how they looked now. In computer years, that was a long time ago.

After that version of online had been around for a year or two, computer hobbyists had discovered the Internet. Greg added Internet access to oeonline.

It was nothing like it is today. Like the bulletin boards, everything was text based and (usually) made use of a "gopher server."

Gophers used a series of directories that led to another series of directories that led to ... well, eventually some site in Australia or Sweden where you were actually looking inside a computer located there. With an FTP program you could actually download files from one of those distant sites.

"Wow!" we'd say, looking at the computer screen. "We're actually downloading this from Switzerland."

Then came the addition of e-mail — a text-based program called Pine. No pictures. No graphics. Now you could send electronic messages to friends in distant places (as long as they had e-mail access also).

Oeonline was always a little slow to connect. There were a lot of busy signals. It was often klutzy and sometimes frustrating. But it was fun.

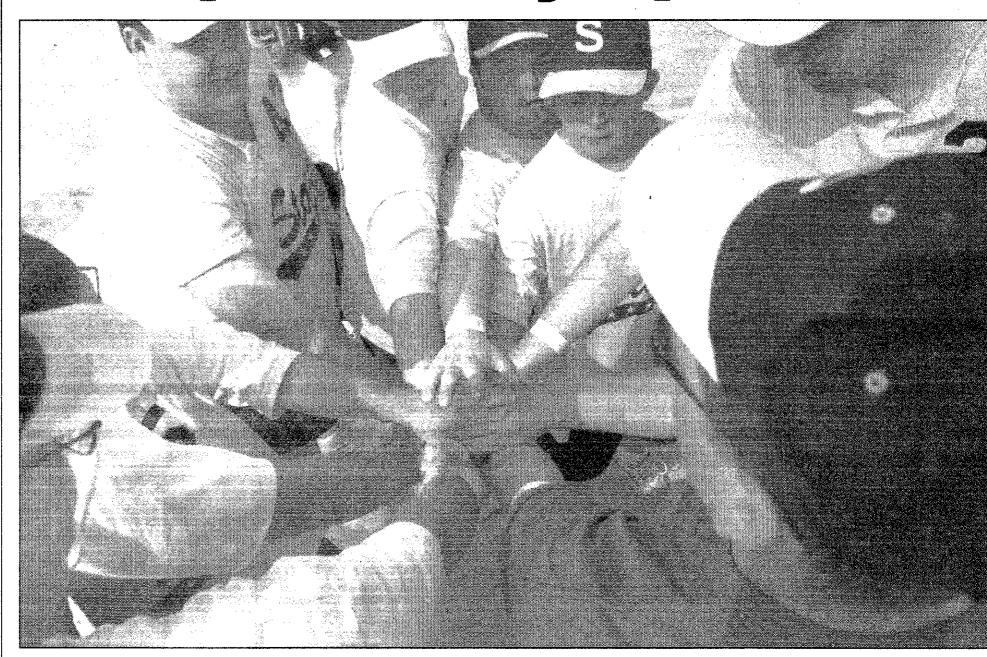

Then came the big revolution: hypertext and the World Wide Web. Hypertext allowed you to move from one site to another simply by clicking on a word or phrase and the Web introduced graphics as well as text.

Oeonline now had a genuine Web site and also became an Internet Service Provider. Things just grew.

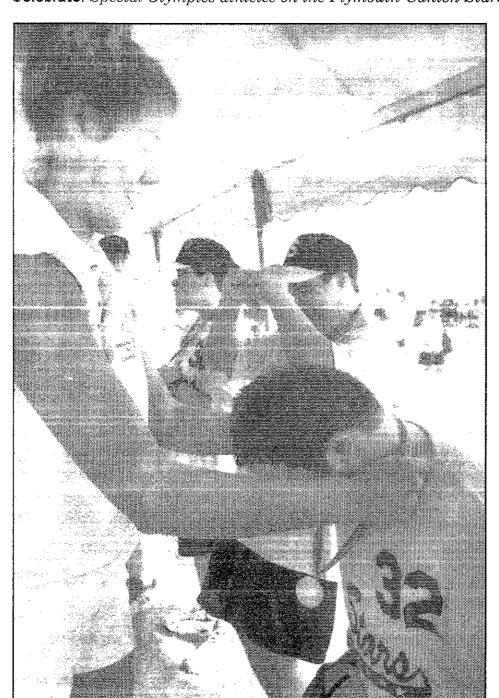

And now it's being replaced by state-of-the-art technology that promises speed and reliability. That's good.

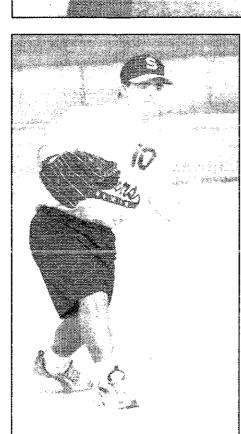

But a part of me is going to miss those old days when, after getting a busy signal 15 times in a row, you finally got connected. It was frustrating. But it was fun.

Special olympians

Celebrate: Special Olympics athletes on the Plymouth-Canton Stars team put their hands together to celebrate their win.

ore than 1,400 Special Olympic athletes gathered in Canton and Ypsilanti July 19-20 for the seventh annual Summer Sports Classic.

Area 23, which includes Livonia, Redford, Plymouth-Canton and Wayne-Westland, had 161 athletes participating in the softball tournament at Canton Softball Center and golfing in Ypsilanti.

Special Olympics Michigan Public Relations Director Marcy Lindberg said 58 softball teams, and an additional 176 golfers from all over the state, participated in the weekend festivities.

"This year is the largest ever," said Lindberg.

Joel Smith, Area 23 director, said the local athletes represented their hometowns well. "Our teams lost me be bray important n

Volunteers are an important role for Michigan Special Olympics, and Chuck Edwards, from Detroit Country 99.5-FM, said his radio station helped bring in volunteers.

"We advertised the need for volunteers and got a lot of calls. (Special Olympics) has received a lot of support this year," said Edwards. "And it doesn't matter if you win or lose, everyone is a winner."

Lindberg said nearly 400 volunteers showed up to help events run smoothly.

"We couldn't hold it without volunteer support. We needed the water people to keep people cooled off, the officials were all volunteers ... we need those folks to make events like this happen," she said.

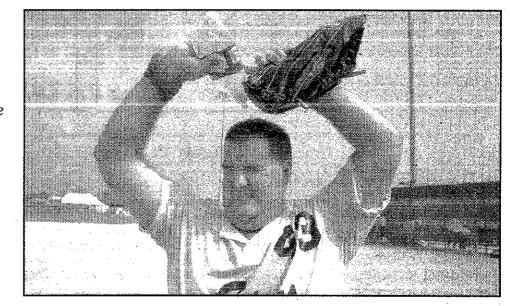

The motto all athletes follow – "Let me win, but if I cannot win, let ve in the attempt" – is an

Being Helpful vs. Complaining

It is a wise person who knows when and how to tactfully speak up about a situation that may need correcting. When a person is critical of almost everything, they may be looked upon by others as being a "complainer". There is a significant difference between grumbling and honestly trying to be helpful. Most businesses have a customer service department to handle problems and complaints. They usually do not call them "complaint departments" because they know that correcting problems and providing good service are beneficial to good business, whereas complaining denotes a negative tone. In addition, no one likes to listen to someone who is always complaining. The Bible tells us in Colossians 3:13, "Be tolerant with one another and forgive one another whenever any of you has a complaint against someone else. You must forgive one another just as the Lord has forgiven you." We should try to be more positive to reduce the stress in our lives; God wants us to work and live in harmony with those around us.

Do everything without complaining or arguing. Good News Bible Philip 2:14

The Indians will represent Michigan in the Cocoa Expo Summer Classic July 28-Aug. 5 in Cocoa Beach, Fla. They are 45-12.

The Indians went 4-1 to win the Madison Heights tournament, taking four in a row after an opening game 3-2 loss to the Oakland Rams.

The Indians defeated the Rams, 10-5, coming from 4-0 and 5-3 deficits to win. A seven-run bottom of the sixth was the key with Shawn Little relieving Nick Marrone in the sixth and picking Steve Merlo (Livonia), Little (Canton) and Marrone (Plymouth) each had two hits while Nick Sarkissian had a two-run double.

The Rams pounced on defensive mistakes to score four runs in the first two innings and were up, 5-3, after 5 1/2.

Little had hurled a four-hitter in the tournament opener but was beaten, 3-2. Merlo had two hits in that game.

In the second game, the Indians trounced the defending champion Perrysburg (O.), 22-0, with Marrone firing a no-hitter over the game's mercy shortened 4 1/2 innings.

Kyle Gendron (Plymouth) had three hits including a double and a triple. Eddie Duggan (Livonia) also had three hits, one of them a three-bagger. Adam Everson (Livonia) went 2-for-3 with a home run and a triple.

In the third game, the Indians trampled Novi, 17-2, with Brian Kirkendall (Plymouth) driving in six runs with three hits. Matt Forystek (Plymouth) and Gendron both scored three runs.

The Indians defeated the St. Clair Shores Mariners, 7-4, with Kevin Gordon (Redford) tossing a five-hitter. Merlo had three hits and scored three Steve Karchefske (Detroit) scattered seven hits on the mound for Concealed, which improved to 59-7 overall, struck out four and walked one in the finalgame win to up his record to 8-3.

Eric Voitkofsky (Wayne) only had one hit in the finals, but had four RBI on the day, while Jon Roddy (Caro) was 3-for-4 with three hits, a home and an RBI, Ryan Shay (Garden City) was 2for-5 with two runs score and an RBI, Brian Roland was 2-for-3 with three runs scored and an RBI and Adam Reilly of Taylor was 3-for-5 with two runs scored.

Concealed advanced to the finals Sunday morning by outlasting the enth-inning rally.

After Vojtkofsky's homer in the top of the sixth put Concealed up, 2-1, Indiana came through with two more in the bottom of the sixth for a 3-2 lead. Concealed rallied in the seventh as Karchefske hit a one-out pinch-hit single, followed by Roddy with a double. Reilly singled to score Karchefske, then Roland walked to load the bases. Shay then singled to put Concealed, up 4-3.

After an intentional walk, Brandon Garner (Melvindale) doubled home two more insurance runs.

Vojtkofsky led the way at the plate in the game by going 3-for-4 with the runs score and added a walk. Will Jostock (Lapeer) improved to 7-1 with the win.

Concealed advanced to the final four on Saturday thanks to a 10-inning, four-hour marathon that ended with a 10-9 win - as Vojtkofsky singled home Shay with the winning run. Vojtkofsky (13-0) also earned the win on the mound.

A six-run rally in the fifth inning gave Concealed a 9-4 win on Friday in the third game of the tourney. Eric Drieselman (Garden City) went 3-for-4 to help the hitting attack and had a run scored and an RBI, while Reilly was also 3-for-4 with two runs scored. Roland and Garner both went 2-for-4 with a run and an RBI.

Jeff Richard (West Bloomfield) improved to 6-0, earning the win in relief of Shay.

Summer hockey winds down with week of playoffs

They were seeded first, and through the first round of the Metro Summer Hockey League playoffs the regular season champion Lakers showed they deserved the honor.

The Lakers, 10-1 during the regular season, blanked the ninth-seeded Wildcats, 6-0, Monday night to earn a Wednesday night matchup against No. 8 Spartans.

The first upset came when the seventh-seeded Bulldogs outscored the No. 2 Whalers, 11-7, in Tuesday night's first game.

And the second followed immediately thereafter, when the No. 6 Warriors upended the third-seeded Wolverines, 7-6.

All games are at the Suburban Training Center in Farmington Hills. The Lakers scored twice in the first period Monday and finished the Wildcats off with three third-period tallies.

John Vigilante had a hat trick and assisted on another goal to lead the Lakers to their win over the Wildcats. John Picklo started and earned the shutout in goal for the Lakers. Jamie Ferrara was the Wildcats' goalie for the first two periods and was replaced at 10:51 of the third period by Brandon Tucker. The Wildcats were 1-9 during the regular season. Josh Shuryan opened the scoring with a goal at 7:19 of the first period, assisted by the Jardines, Nick and

Vigilante made it 2-0 just 11 seconds from the end of the opening period, assisted by Bryan Marshall (Livonia) and Steve Sharp. Vigilante scored the second period's lone goal at 9:40. Marshall and Sean Smith (Livonia) drew the assists. Brian Jardine made it 4-0 at 8:41 of the final period, assisted by Nick Jardine and Sean Baltazar (Plymouth) hiked the lead to 5-0 with 6:49 to play, assisted by Vigilante. Vigilante completed his hat trick with 2:03 to play, assisted by Nick Jardine and Jim Wheaton (Plymouth). A string of six unanswered goals in the second period of Tuesday night's first game were the key to the Bulldogs' upset of the Whalers, who were 8-4 in the regular season.

Ryan Radakovich (Livonia) and Matt York each scored twice as the Bulldogs, who were 4-5-2 in regular season play, scored roughly every 90 seconds in their string.

Jason Basile and York each had a hat trick while Basile, York, Ian Smith, Andrew Martin and Mike Radakovich (Livonia) had two assists apiece.

Rich Storm and Tim Kastamo scored in the last 3:12 of the opening period to give the Whalers a short-lived 3-2 lead that disappeared when the Bulldogs scored the first six goals of the second Storm scored twice while Lars Helminen, Jim Helminen, David Gill (Canton) and Bryan Young (Canton) scored once each for the Whalers. Mark Pietila and Lars Helminen each had three assists.

Dan Dobrowski went the distance in goal for the Bulldogs while Art Baker (Canton) played the entire game for the Whalers.

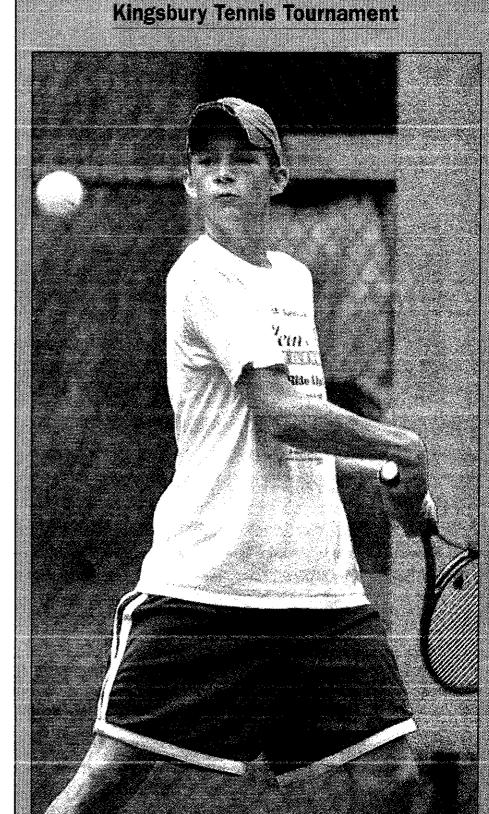

In the second game Tuesday night, the Warriors scored four in a row at the end of the first period and start of the second to overcome a 3-0 lead by the Wolverines.

The Warriors tallied three straight to close the second period and shut the Wolverines down until just 16 seconds remained to be played to take the win.

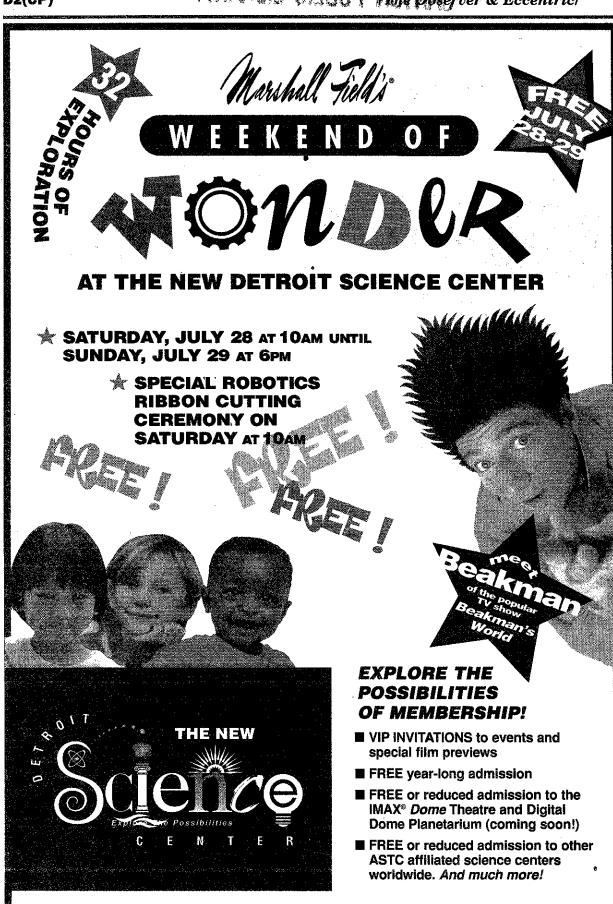

Eric Hawkins (Redford) put up a hat trick for the Warriors, 5-6 during the regular season, with Brandon Kaleniecki (Livonia), John Schultz (Canton), Brian Sutherland (Plymouth) and Dave Moss (Livonia) notching the other goals. Matt Van Heest had three assists while Moss had two.

Hawkins had two of his goals after the Wolverines had retaken the lead, 5-

It's off to nationals for DCI

BY BRAD EMONS SPORTS WRITER bemons@oe.homecomm.net

Left-hander Ryan Ford didn't have his best stuff Monday night at Ford Field, but it was more than enough for he and his Decision Consultants, Inc. teammates.

In its final regular season game, Ford gave up 13 hits, but pitched a complete game as DCI clinched the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League title outright and earned its fourth consecutive trip to the prestigious All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament with a 7-3 victory over the Adray Hurri-

DCI will get a direct seed into the 16-team, 20-under AAABA tourney which starts Monday, Aug. 6 in Johnstown, Pa.

DCI, which finished the regular season 27-6-2, eliminated the second-place Michigan Lake Area Rams II squad (24-8) through Sunday) from the LCBL title hunt with the victory.

"It seems it always comes down to the last game of the season to decide if we go down to Johnstown," said DCI manager Mike George, whose team led the LCBL this summer from start to finish. "It's been a fun group of kids because they listen and they're anxious to get back to Johnstown."

Ford, who threw 60-plus innings during his freshman year at Eastern Michigan University while earning a starting spot in the Eagles' rotation, improved to 10-1 on the year despite the 13 hits.

Over the first three innings the Rochester Adams High grad yielded three runs on eight hits, but settled down over the final four innings, allowing six hits and no runs. He did not walk anybody, but hit one batter.

In a jam

Ford also worked himself out of a one-out bases-loaded jam in the top of the seventh inning by getting Brian Wilson on a fly to right and Tim Poley on a strikeout to end the game.

"I'll use the old quote that 'the only thing he (Ford) had on the ball tonight was his fingers.' George said. "He's usually right around the plate, but everything was up in the strike zone over those first couple of innings.

they start and that's why Ryan is 10-1 — he really gutted this one out."

Ford had some friends in the field as DCI turned double plays in each of the first three innings to avert a disastrous start. "It was probably my worst outing," Ford said. "I didn't have good location, but I tried to keep the ball down and have my fielders help me. "I felt loose out there, and Mike (George) has done a good job giving me ample rest between starts."

Wilson, the Hurricanes' cleanup hitter, was 3-for-3 at the plate when he faced Ford with the sacks filled in seventh, but flied to right for the second out.

"We're a bunch of 18 and 19year-olds who are still learning to play baseball," said Hurricanes manager Rick Radzinski, whose team finished 14-21 in the LCBL. "DCI is at a better talent level and they have those Division I players who have been in those situations before. They don't get rattled and they come up with the key plays.

"Those double plays just killed us, but I was happy we showed that we could play with them."

Hurricanes strike first

The Hurricanes jumped out to a 1-0 advantage the top of the first inning on singles by Joe Mielkowicz and James Radzinski, followed by Nick Smith's groundout. But Ford got Poley to end the inning on a 6-4-3 DP.

DCI then tallied three times in the bottom of the first.

Tim Andrzejak's bloop single scored Spencer Hynes to make it 1-1. Shawn Dobson scored on a wild pitch and Andrzejak raced home when he teamed up with Dave Lusky for a 3-0 advantage by executing a double steal.

The Hurricanes threatened again in the second on singles by Adam Novak and Joe Ortiz, but Ford had other ideas, getting Nate Biringer on a 4-6-3 DP.

The Hurricanes, however, tied it in the third on RBI singles by Smith and Wilson. But then Novak hit into a 3-6-1 DP to prevent further damage.

"The last couple of games we've been able to turn double plays and today that was the difference," George said.

In the top of the third, Andrze-

Like it had done all season, DCI made most of its eight hits.

"Through the first 19 games we had only a .252 team batting: average," George said. "But we won it this year with timely hit-

And having a solid pitching staff doesn't hurt either as the team's four top starters - Ford, Peterson, Bobby Lindsey and Brent Brown — are a combined,

"Those guys kept us in games. earlier in the year," DCI coach: Frank Corej said. "The first part of the year we could have been .500, but we got the pitching until we could manufacture someruns.

"We've been able to move the ball and force other teams into errors. Many a game we came up. with the clutch hit and the defense played well.

"The kids have the tenacity" and they never quit. That's often demoralizing to the other teams."

George can also add four additional LCBL players to his roster for the trip to Johnstown.

Most likely to be added arethree pitchers — Madonna Unicaversity's Dale Hayes (Westland John Glenn) and Brads McCloskey (University of Michigan/West Bloomfield), a pair of right-handers from the Michigan Lake Area Rams; and left-hand ed pitcher John Picco of the Michigan Bulls.

Picco, who pitched for Villanova (Ont.) High, was a 15th-round pick of the New York Yankees.

Also expected to get an invited to Johnstown is former Redford Union High standout Mike Macek, a hard-hitting utility player who is transferring this fall from Saginaw Valley State to Wayne State.

GC Broncos win

The Garden City Youth Athletic Association Broncos Division (u12) tournament team won the District 6 title over the weekend state title play in Grand Ledge.

The team opened with a 15-10 win over Westland II, but lost to Tri-Village, 11-7. Garden City rebounded with a 9-6 win over Westland I and came back to beat Tri-Village twice - 5-4 and 13-10 - in the finals to take the crown. Brennan Clendening had a pair of homers in the finals and Jonathan Helston added another during the tourney.

Team members include Josh Lewallen, Josh Hudson, Brandon King, Carl Ford, Andrew Pack, Joey Velasquez, Steven Rochowiak, Helston and Clendendening, all of Garden City; Drew Thompson and Chris Lind of Westland; and Brian Armstrong of Livonia. The team is coached by Mark Hudson, Marty Clendening and Brian King.

Rams clinch title

The 12-and-under Michigan Rams clinched a share of the Little Caesars Pee Wee Division title July 9 by defeating the South Farmington Blues in 10

Derek Fairchild had the gamewinning hit, knocking in the Rams' last two runs in the top of the 10th inning.

Matt Fenster (Bloomfield Hills) had five hits to lead the Rams; Sean Falvo (Redford) and Kyle Verbeek (Birmingham) had four hits apiece, including a home run by Verbeek. Drew Davenport pitched the first seven innings and A.J.Webb worked the last three to pick up the win. Both the Rams and the Blues had identical 18-2 records. During a recent trip to New York, the Rams were 6-3 competing against 47 other teams from around the country at Cooperstown Dreams Park.

Kingsbury, a freshman this fall at Franklin High School. won the Boys 14-and-under title by beating top seed Charlie Schuster of Ann Arbor, 6-2, 6-4, in the third annual Jud Kingsbury Memorial Tennis Tournament staged last weekend at the Livonia Family YMCA.

The tournament, honoring the former part-time teaching pro who passed away in 1998, attracted 125 boys and girls junior players vying for singles titles in four age groups.

Ryan, who won the 12-andunder Kingsbury crown in 1999, avenged a loss to Schuster in last year's quarterfinals.

"I tried hitting deep into the corners with a lot of topspin," said Kingsbury, who is spending the week at Michigan State University's summer tennis camp. "I tried to make him tired by hitting into the corners, but he threw a lot of drop shots at me and he came to the net.

"He (Schuster) played a totally different game than last year."

Kingsbury reached the finals with a 6-0, 6-2 victory over Trevor Kogut after winning by injury default in his opening round match against Alex Chaio of Ann Arbor.

As a 12-year-old, Ryan was ranked No. 5 by the Southeastern Michigan Tennis Association. The 13-year-old has good bloodlines.

Meanwhile, Ryan Kingsbury wasn't the only Livonian to come away with a title at the tournament.

Livonian Kristen Palombo, who plays at Farmington Hills Mercy High School, won the Girls 18-and-under title with a 6-4, 6-0 victory over Christy Podolski.

Glenn Wozniak of Livonia took the Boys 14-and-under consolation final.

Dan Carlson of Farmington Hills, who played doubles this spring at North Farmington High, upset two higher seeds to win the Boys 16-and-under championship.

Members Present:

Gustafson, Johnson, Lieberman, McLaughlin, Wade, Zarbo

Members Absent: Staff Present:

Director Conklin, Director Machnik, Kathleen Salla,

Jeff Goulet, John Weyer

Others Present: Gregg Greene, Debbie Greene, Chuck Suppnick Discussion involved possible ordinance modification(s) regarding current non-conforming signs, buildings that are not occupied that continue to have a sign, residential signs, banners and conflicts and inconsistencies that currently exist in the ordinance.

Kathleen Salla explained the standards for the DDA District and the recent projects being undertaken. The DDA board will meet this fall for a longrange planning session to identify future projects and priorities for those projects. The DDA board welcomes any input about the Canton DDA for enhancements and/or improvements in how the board can best serve the needs of merchants, business owners, residents, and other property owners within the District's boundaries.

Discussion involved the Mature Neighborhood Improvement Program and sidewalk replacement program where sections of the sidewalks are being replaced beginning with older neighborhoods first.

Discussion involved this issue dealing with sidewalk sales, outside sales and displays. Enforcement in this area could include ordinance modification(s) and/or a citizen's committee, which also has the DDA as a component.

Discussion took place and the Planning Commission felt that it is time to examine for Future Land Use revisions. The areas that were considered for first evaluation include the following:

Michigan Avenue; Canton Center Road, North and South; and Ford and Lilley Roads A strategy session for the Planning Commission will be scheduled for this purpose. Options for possible regulations on the small subdivision developments to have these areas be more compatible with those surrounding it was discussed. Landscaping along road frontage (both the county road and private roads) may be a possibility through ordinance modification(s). Discussion took place regarding a Beautification Award. A marketing campaign is forthcoming for beautification and pride in the community. This will help the community understand what is important to Canton Township. Motion by Bennett, supported by McLaughlin at 9:50 p.m. to adjourn.

Motion carried unanimously. The above is a synopsis of the joint study session of the Planning Commission and the Board of Trustees meeting held Tuesday, July 17, 2001. The full text of the approved minutes will be available following the next regular board meeting of Tuesday, July 24, 2001.

She makes hair stand on end running her drag racer

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK STAFF WRITER

If only hair styling went that

Stephanie Yearkey, full-time hair stylist, is also on the go as the full-time weekend driver of a drag racer.

Yearkey, 32, recently went to the IHRA (International Hot Rod Association) Nationals in Cordova, Ill., where she finished first in the E.T. Bracket handicap division last month (June 14-16).

It's not the highest carving on drag racing's totem pole, but first place is first place whether you're playing solitaire or tournament bridge.

Yearkey's division and she drove love it." her 1970 Nova through seven rounds to win.

She took the finals with a reaction time of .529 and an elapsed time of 9.830 seconds in the quarter-mile. She won the combo final when her rival broke down but her reaction time was .579 second with an elapsed time of 9.844.

No doubt about it, that is scissor-quick.

"I love the whole thing," said Yearkey, who finances her avocation from her Studio 66 Hair Salon, located on Wayne Road between Ford and Warren in Westland. "It's definitely my There were 128 drivers in world. It's hard to explain. I just

Yearkey has a one-woman crew, Vanessa Balash, her best friend.

One peek into Yearkey's Studio 66 hair salon confirms her devotion to drag racing. Everywhere you look is a photographic or emblematic reminder.

"We definitely get clientele from the races," said Yearkey. "They love it's a two-girl team. We come out and do it all ourselves. We love the people out there. They're like family."

Yearkey was attracted to automobiles and racing as a youngster growing up in Redford. But she didn't fully understand why until she was 27.

"I had taken auto mechanics logos. through high school," said Year-key, a product of Redford Union High, the adoptive daughter and only child of Donna and Rob Parkki.

"I owe a lot to them because they helped me out there, too,' she said.

After graduation from RU. Yearkey decided to do something about life's necessities — like paying the rent and buying groceries. So she enrolled in beauty school.

A boyfriend, John Cassar, "really got me involved in racing about 10 years ago. When we split up, he let me keep my (racing) car. He's still one of my best friends and helps me out to this Cassar was also curious about Yearkey's background.

"He found out my biological parents," said Yearkey, whose biological father was Ron Stone. "They used to drag race, so it's in my blood.

"I got my first win in '97 at Detroit Dragway - where my parents used to drag."

That explained, to Yearkey's satisfaction, her fascination with

"My mother and father split up early," she said, "and I would take care of my mom's cars. Guys would come over to work on them and I always pitched in. "My poor mother thought I'd never put a dress on." Yearkey, who has no desire at all to try oval track racing, got $2,000 from her E.T. Bracket victory plus another $1,900 in contingency money for display-

That will help, she said, because she spends an estimated $10,000-20,000 a year to keep the old Nova humming.

She runs weekends, mostly at Milan Dragway, and nurses two sets of tires provided by Harlow Tire in Westland through a season of racing.

"This year alone I've already gone over $6,000 in expenses," she said.

Thus Studio 66.

"I always wanted to cut hair," she said. "I used to tell my mom I was going to buy a semi-truck, go out on the road and do hair."

She doesn't do hair at the race track, though. Just scorches it.

Legislation set to erase DNR deficit with trust fund bucks

BI

Legislation awaiting Gov. Engler's signature would allow the Department Natural Resources to avert a projected million $3.3 deficit for the 2003. year That's great news for sportsmen, who faced the prospect of possible layoffs of field personnel in the wildlife, fisheries and law enforcement divisions without the legislation.

Sponsored by Rep. Larry DeVuyst (R-Alma), H.B. 4912 allows the legislature to appropriate up to $6 million annually from the Game and Fish Trust Fund into the Game and Fish Protection Fund, the general operating fund of the DNR.

The bill sacrifices a portion of revenue that was supposed to alleviate the need for license fee increases in the future. The Trust Fund was established in 1987, and receives royalties from the sale of natural resources such as timber, and oil and gas, on lands purchased with money from the Game and Fish Protection Fund.

The Trust Fund currently stands at approximately $85 million and interest from that fund is transferred back into the Protection Fund to provide additional finances to the Department in lieu of a license fee increase. License fees make up the lion's share of revenue in the Protection Fund.

Now that the DNR can take up to $6 million from that fund annually, it obviously won't grow at the rate it has been, about $3 million to $7 million annually.

While that news appears dismal, it could have been much worse. The original bill called for a cap of the Trust Fund at the current level and for all future revenues to be diverted to the Protection Fund.

Thanks to a powerful effort by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, that version of the bill was amended in the House to the current version, which also calls for an appropriations process, with input from the public, before a penny can be diverted from one fund to the

We're fortunate to have such a group as MUCC supporting and watching over the rights of sportsmen in Michigan. Without MUCC, our future would be a little dimmer today.

Even with this legislation, there likely will be license fee increases in the near future. But that's not a bad thing, either. Stagnant license sales and rising inflation certainly make balancing the DNR budget a cumbersome affair. Periodically implementing $1 license fee increases generates millions of dollars that will be dearly needed in future years.

Let's face it, current license prices – $14 for deer licenses, fishing licenses, small game licenses – is really quite a bargain. To pay $14 to enjoy Michigan's abundant fisheries is still a fantastic deal when compared to other recreational pursuits like a round of golf, an afternoon at Comerica Park, or a concert.

Even if you pay $28 for an all species fishing license, which includes trout and salmon, it's still a heck of a deal that runs all year long. Thanks to sound fisheries management practices by the DNR, salmon are plentiful throughout the Great Lakes, walleyes are stacked like cord

Bucks miss league title

The Mid-Michigan Bucks concluded their 2001 season Sunday by losing a 3-0 decision to the Indiana Invaders at Alma College's football stadium.

Goalie Eric Pogue fought off Indiana early in the first half but the Invaders eventually scored for a 1-0 halftime lead.

The Bucks started the second half with pressure but again were unable to convert, which hurt when Indiana was able to break through for a second goal despite several more spectacular saves by Pogue.

The Invaders closed out the scoring late in the game with their third goal to end the Bucks' season at 10-9-1.

It was the first time in its six seasons that Mid-Michigan has not won a Great Lakes Division championship.

wood in many areas, and hundreds of inland lakes have benefitted from DNR stocking efforts.

The opportunities are even more abundant in wildlife. There are more deer and turkeys in Michigan that there were at the turn of the century. The bear population is thriving and has grown to some 16,000 animals. Canada geese, nearly nonexistent some 25 years ago are so plentiful today they are a causing a nuisance in some urban areas.

We really do have a lot to be thankful for, and the DNR can take much of the credit. But while we're saying thanks, we better say a big one to MUCC for ensuring that our future will be as bright as the present.

Complications

If you've had trouble in recent days making a campground reservation through the DNR's 800-44-PARKS number, you're not alone. The Department has been experiencing technical diffi-

We really do have a lot to be culties with its campground and hankful for, and the DNR can harbor reservation number.

Evidently a train derailment has knocked out major cable and telephone circuits used by the system.

"We regret any inconvenience and ask that State Parks customers please be patient with us while the circuit damage is repaired," said DNR Parks and Recreation Bureau Chief Rodney Stokes. "We hope the situation is quickly corrected."

In the meantime, the DNR is encouraging people to make reservations via the Internet at www. michigandnr.com.

Permit deadline nears

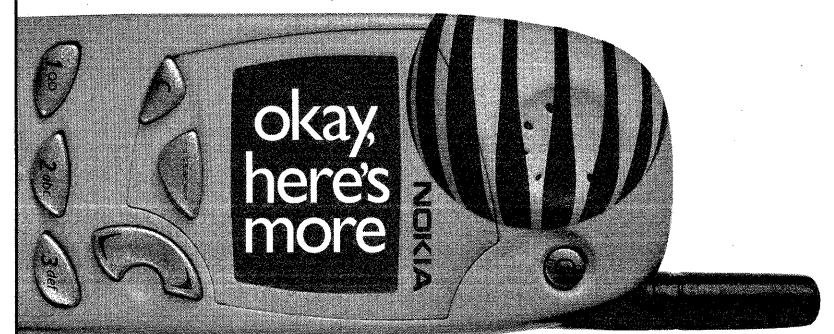

Aug. 1 is the deadline to apply for a fall turkey permit and an antlerless deer permit. Leftover antlerless deer permits will go on sale in September, but hunters can apply now to nearly grantee themselves a permit for their desired Deer Management Unit.

Unit.
When applying, be sure to check the map carefully as all the Deer Management unit boundaries have been changed, as have the numbers.

GREAT OFFER!

Attention Movers, Shakers, and Rumblers-You're gonna love this!

Run a transportation ad in your hometown classified section - sell your van, boat, go-cart, RV, motorcycle, ATV, jet ski - whatever moves - and we'll run your classified ad until it does move....right on out of your garage!

Is this a great deal or what? We'll keep running your classified transportation ad until it sells.

Limited time offer, two time minimum, private parties only, other restrictions may apply

So if you have a mover, shaker, floater, or rumbler, park it with us until it's sold.

This friendly furry faced feline is Merial. She is a one year old Domestic Meduim hair female who was brought to the shelter as a stray. This kitty is full of purrs and love and can ever possibly have too much attention! She has a wonderful soft tan and brown tiger coat with a tiny face lit up by her big green eyes. Since she is already litterbox trained, she should

GREAT OFFER!

Attention Movers, Shakers, and Rumblers-You're gonna love this!

Run a transportation ad in your hometown classified section - sell your van, boat, go-cart, RV, motorcycle, ATV, jet ski - whatever moves - and we'll run your classified ad until it does move....right on out of your garage!

Is this a great deal or what? We'll keep running your classified transportation ad until it sells.

Limited time offer, two time minimum, private parties only, other restrictions may apply

So if you have a mover, shaker, floater, or rumbler, park it with us until it's sold.

Does a buyer have any recourse against a builder who "cheats down" The model had a fireplace with dual doors that opened. Mine has one heavy glass sheet across the front. The model had a 34-inch upper and a 16-inch base kitchen cabinet. Mine has a 30-inch upper and a 12-inch base kitchen cabinet. Also, can you tell me who is responsible for a radon test?

The answers depend on the purchase agreement that you presumably signed. Most builders/ developers indicate that the unit you buy is not necessarily exactly like the model. On the other hand, if representations were made to you in writing or perhaps orally upon which you relied that you unit would be identical with the model, then you may have a claim against the developer/builder.

With respect to the radon test, the builder may have disclosed the fact that any radon testing must be undertaken by the buyer, which is normally

If you are living in a condo, the homeowners association may have some responsibility to undertake radon testing but that's not normally the case. Who's responsible is a difficult question because it depends on whether the radon is coming from a common element. Most associations · leave it to the co-owner to do the testing, although it has never been definitively determined whether the association has a direct responsibility to do

How much might it cost you to leave the hose lying across the front lawn? How much might it cost you to leave the rake leaning against the side of the house? How much money might you lose by not spending a few dollars on a potted flowering plant? If it's summertime and you're selling your house, can you drive down your own sales price with inattention, carelessness or neglect? Yes, you certainly can, said residential real estate expert Carol Frick. Summertime, she said, can highlight house or property flaws that might not be seen or even exist in other seasons. Frick, office manager at Ralph Manuel-Real Estate One in Birmingham, said that a strong first impression outside is vital to a possible summertime sale of your home.

"Be sure the lawn is well maintained, the grass mowed and watered. Make sure the front door is painted and the windows are clean. Don't leave the hose or yard tools around.

"Any one of these things can be a turn-off and say the house isn't well maintained."

Some maintenance items, she pointed out, are essential to a sale, such as a crack-free driveway required for FHA approval.

Don't forget flowers

"And put a lot of flowers on the front porch. It looks welcoming and friendly and doesn't cost much."

At Hannett, Wilson & Whitehouse, Bloomfield Hills, sales manager Carol Nystrom guides summertime home sellers into week-long dress rehearsals of showing their homes.

"When we list the home, we tell the seller to take the first week of marketing time to get the house ready."

It can hurt a potential sale, Nystrom said, if a "customer walks up and sees bushes that need pruning or trees with dead branches. Or if there aren't any flowers. Or if there's a broken step."

On the other hand, Nystrom said, the appearance of the outside should make the house look lived in. "Let the customer see the toys in the play yard."

A pool can be a plus or negative. "Is it safe? Is there a fence to protect children and animals? Has the swing set been installed according to Consumer Product Safety Commission stan-

Nystrom said she wouldn't be surprised to see $2,000 in maintenance being worth 10 times itself. "The most important thing is to have the outside attractive," said Vicki McAskin, Realtor, Hall & Hunter, Birmingham. "Keep shrubs trimmed. Keep grass trimmed, maybe twice a week instead of once a week. Keep flowers watered. Maybe add more flowers than you're used to. "Make sure the front door brass is polished. Take away any possible reason why a buyer wouldn't want to come in."

McAskin said she has had buyers who refused to go into a house because the condition of the outside "makes it look like the owners wouldn't be keeping up the interior."

If the outside is well maintained, McAskin said, buyers can assume that the inside is taken care of as well.

"If the outside stays neglected and the house sits on the market, showings stop and the seller has to lower the price. I give sellers that scenario every time.

Mike Root agrees that the house should look lived in, that it should look homey. "Customers don't mind that people live there. They just don't want dirty dirt."

Root is a sales associate with Century 21 Hallmark West, Clarkston.

"Summer is a hot time of year to buy or sell. School seems to be the major factor. Everyone wants to get settled in before the new school year starts.

"You want the lawn looking good, bare spots filled in. Pull weeds from cracks in the front walk. Otherwise, it looks as though you don't maintain the house inside. Customers wonder, if they let this go, what do they take care What kind of homeowner is this?

"Powerwash the outside." One more item on his Not-to-Do List: Don't hang laundry outside.

Looking for curb appeal

"The main thing is curb appeal," said David C. Sacco, broker, Horizon Real Estate Group, Livonia. "If the curb appeal is bad, even if the inside is gorgeous, the customer doesn't even want to get out of the car."

"If your house is messy," said sales agent Marilynn D. Udman, "you have to be realistic about the price. Udman is with Dempster A. Ross Realty, West-

"That doesn't mean it has to be as nice as the neighbor's," but you're not likely to get as much for yours.

Joan B. Char, associate broker and office manager, Coldwell Banker Schweitzer, Farmington Hills, said a seller should remember that customers might have been drawn to the home by sales photographs and now are facing reality.

"If the house is immaculate inside and out, the seller will get more money." So fix up, Char suggests, or possibly cut the price.

On the other hand, Realtor Harry Wagner doesn't see anything about summertime as a special challenge. Wagner of Prudential Chamberlain

Stiehl, West Bloomfield, said, "Price and location are still the main thing." A customer who really likes a house

"can always cut the lawn."

Cash-shy can make big buys

MORTGAGE

PHILLIPS

Homebuyers with very little cash – or very little desire to spend their cash often use high loan-tovalue (LTV) loans to buy properties.

Unlike traditional mortgage lenders who grant loans based primarily on the strength of the borrowers, "equity lenders" allow borrowers to buy homes based more on the value of the property itself.

Using a small down payment means borrowers can leverage their investment. If you pay \$10,000 for a home that appreciates \$5,000 per year, you would have a 50-percent annual rate of return when you sell the property. Buy the same property with \$1,000 instead and your rate of return jumps to 500 $\,{}^{\circ}$ percent instead.

The FHA loan is a fantastic mortgage option for homebuyers with small down payments. Qualified FHA borrowers can get up to 97-percent financing to buy homes. However, if a borrower has bad credit or needs 100-percent financing, or requires a "jumbo" mortgage, he may not be able to use the FHA. Many lenders have designed mortgage programs to fill these niches.

Some lenders today will give borrowers a loan (or a combination of loans) totaling 100 percent of their property's value without deeply scrutinizing the borrowers' credit history or worrying about the size of the loan. Many of these lenders will also allow the property seller to pay for the borrower's closing costs and, in most situations, will not require escrow accounts. Mortgage insurance premiums are usually factored into the interest rate.

If you decide to pursue a minimumdown home purchase, the lender is going to make certain that the property is worth the amount he is loaning you. Plan on added time and expense for a "review appraisal" prior to final loan approval.

Also, expect to pay a higher interest rate on your new mortgage. A high LTV makes for a riskier mortgage because the borrowers have a small or non-existent ownership stake.

You will likely have to pay your own property tax bills as they come due.

Home sales unexpectedly strong

$180,000

WASHINGTON - Despite slowing economic conditions, existing singlefamily home sales rose in May, according to the National Association of Realtors.

Existing-home sales increased 2.9 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.37 million units in May from an upwardly revised pace of 5.22 million units in April. Last month's sales activity was 3.5 percent above the 5.19-million unit pace in May 2000.

Sales activity is exceeding some expectations, said David Lereah. NAR's chief economist.

"With slightly higher mortgage interest rates in a slowing economy, some forecasters have been expecting a sales slowdown," he said. "However, demand is still very high, interest rates remain close to historic lows and many people are confident about their own economic future.

"Some of the current rise in home sales may result from 'fence-jumping' as people take advantage of good interest rates before they move any higher, but any way you cut it, this is an exceptionally strong housing market," Lereah said.

The national average commitment

rate for a 30-year, conventional, fixed-rate mortgage was 7.15 percent in May, up from 7.08 percent in April; it was 8.52 percent in May 2000, according to Freddie Mac.

The current level of home sales underscores the importance of homeownership in achieving the American dream, NAR President Richard A. Mendenhall said.

"Record high levels of homeownership translate into stronger communities as more first-time buyers make the transition from renter to owner, establishing their own economic foundation - this helps to foster deeper commitments and community involvement," he said.

"At the same time, we need to focus on the fact many families still can't afford decent housing, and it's important to expand opportunities for those at the bottom rung of the housing ladder," he added.

The national median existinghome price was $145,500 in May, up 5.7 percent from May 2000 when the median price was $137,600. The median is the midpoint, which is a typical market price where half of the homes sold for more and half sold for less.

Housing inventory levels at the end of May dropped 6.1 percent from April to a total of 1.53 million existing homes available for sale, which represents a 3.4-month supply at the current sales pace; there were 1.63 million homes available at the end of April. However, the May inventory level is 2.7 percent higher than May 2000, when 1.49 million homes were on the market.

Regionally, the existing-home sales pace in the South rose 3.8 percent in May to an annual rate of 2.19 million units, and were 7.4 percent above May 2000. The median price of an existing home in the South was $138,200, which was 9.2 percent higher than a year ago.

In the Midwest, existing homes were selling at an annual rate of 1.18 million units in May, up 3.5 percent from April; the pace was 0.9 percent above May 2000. The median price in the Midwest was $124,000, up 3.9 percent from May 2000.

Home resales in the West rose 2.3 percent in May to an annual rate of 1.36 million units, and were 0.7 percent above May 2000. The median existing-home price in the West was $196,000, up 6.8 percent from the same month a year earlier.

MEYERS ON MORTGAGES

REFINANCE RULES PART 1 OF 3 PARTS

by GARY S. MEYERS

It's another refinance boom. And, as with every refinance boom two things happen, more people want new mortgages and are prepared to to lay out cash for them and more mortgage companies spring up to take that cash. While most will provide reasonably priced products that work, too many don't. The problem for consumers is that they can't tell difference until they are committed. No pun intended.

This week The Meyers Report begins a new series of the "rules" for wise mortgage hunting and what can go wrong is you choose

(RULE #1) PICK THE RIGHT LENDER FIRST. Before you look for the lowest interest rate, choose a lender that you know will be there at the closing table with enough money to close, at the promised rate and with the promised closing costs. "You also want to know that, in the event of problems, the lender will be there when you need them today, tomorrow and next year," said Peter Boomer. vp/regional manager for Chase Manhattan Mortgage. (RULE #2) CHOOSE THE RIGHT MORTGAGE PRO-GRAM. All mortgages are not alike. Even in the computer age, we are still unique. Some of us need smaller down payments, or higher income ratios to qualify. Perhaps you need to rehab or upgrade your new dream house to increase its value. Different lenders have different programs to meet those needs. Choose the lender who has the best program for you. If the lender is honest, the mortgage rate will be competitive and the fees will be relatively low.

(RULE #3) THE TRUST RULE. Don't just follow the lowest rate advertised. The wise borrower should first find out if, "they can trust the loan officer and their their company? And, can they help you?" Unless you are absolutely assured of a yes to both of those questions, the lowest advertised interest rates are irrelevant, or worse, dangerous to your financial health.

But there is a problem with Rule #3, the trust rule. There is no local, state, or federal agency that will tell you if a lender is in trouble, has numerous complaints against them or is under investigation for anything, even criminal activity.

"We are prohibited by law from releasing any information about any mortgage licensee who has complaints against them or is under investigation. We release information only if there is an indictment, conviction, revocation or surrender of licenses, because only at that point is the issue public record," said Dea Brennan, a director of mortgage banking for an Office of the Commissioner of Banks and Real Estate. The sad fact is this: A state license to do business in a state is no guarantee of performance, strength or integrity. However, banks, thrifts credit unions, and insurance companies are heavily regulated and routinely examined by state and federal agencies, such as the FDIC, the U.S. Controller of the Currency and the SEC if they are publicly traded. The longer a company is established, the more it is tied into the community and the more it must be responsive to good and bad press.

Our advice for consumers: Stay with name brand lenders, who have been around for a long time. These companies have a lot to lose if any of their employees behaves badly. They also have the financial strength to correct mistakes made by their employees, others do not.

Does this mean that all mortgage brokers are bad? Absolutely not. Just be sure to know with whom you are dealin and know what is a fair price, including closing costs. Above all, remember, if the offer is too good to betrue, be very carefull.

Several individual council members also provided financial support for the project. In addition, many section members, friends and families worked on-site to build the house in Detroit's Core City Neighborhood Development in southwest Detroit. The site was a mile from Tiger Stadium on Roosevelt between Michigan Avenue and M.L. King Jr. Boulevard.

Section members worked during the section's four designated "Build" days in June, constructing the floor, walls and roof.

For Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, June 16 was the Saturday designated for their 24 volunteers to work together "to wall" the house.

Under the direction of section member Scot Norris, the group worked to make a house appear on the floor they built the prior Saturday, also under his direction. Standard Federal's Legal Department worked June 23 to bring their 36 volunteers to "roof" the house and to do ground work on other HFH lots. Standard Federal also provided lunch that day for all of the volunteers working on the house.

The house is 1,150 square feet with a full basement and three bedrooms. The land was provided by the city of Detroit via the Michigan State Housing Authority. MSHDA and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board each provided $10,000 grants for the construction of the house, in addition to the section's $50,000.

Prior to becoming the new homeowner and taking on the responsibility of the monthly interest-free (20year) mortgage payments, the new homeowner must contribute "sweat equity" to qualify for the ownership of the house. Homeowner Mavis Street worked with section volunteers June 9 and 23. She is the single mom of Stephanie, 11, and is working as a clerk at the Detroit Medical Center.

Both Robert Dewaelsche, executive director of Habitat for Humanity Detroit, and Kenneth Benson, president and founder of Habitat for Humanity Michigan, joined the section volunteers on the work site June 9 and 16. Benson was interested in participating in the raising of the house walls.

The walls of the home were built through Michigan's Prison Build Program. The program's more than 100 minimum security inmates frame walls, build cabinets and mill trim on prison grounds for the houses built by HFH in Michigan.

Prisoners earn $1.75 a day working at prisons in Ionia, Freeland, Lapeer, Plymouth, Kinross and St. Louis and can learn skills they can use when they are released. The Thumb Correctional Facility in Lapeer provided the walls for the section's house.

The program has already received national recognition as a finalist in the Council of State Governments' Innovations Awards Program. The walls are delivered to the construction sites by the Michigan National Guard. On two of the section "Build" days, volunteers unloaded walls from Michigan National Guard trucks for other HFH houses under construction on nearby lots.
