State school superintendent Thomas Watkins said he wants to change the way society perceives the public education system in Michigan. "Public education is the true Statue of Liberty in this great country. What you do is so important. We need to talk about the greatness that is happening in our public schools each and every day," said Watkins, who addressed

Rawsonville makes debut in Van Buren

Summer vacation came to an abrupt end Thursday for students of Van Buren Schools.

Superintendent Larry Tabor spent much of the first day of classes visiting the district's nine schools and said the first day of classes went off without a hitch.

"Everything went as planned. It's always nice to see the parents and students again after a long summer. That's the fun part of this business. That's what it's all about," he said.

There are a number of changes in the district this year, probably the most important of which is the opening of the new Rawsonville Elementary in Ypsilanti. The new state-of-art facility opened Thursday on the same site of the old school, which dated back to the early part of the last century.

Although she had initial doubts about tearing down the old school, Rawsonville Principal Theresa Green said she is excited the new building is ready because it will allow students to take advantage of the latest educational technologies.

"For years I was against building a new school, because there was such a rich history with the old one. But I had a reality check as we started to get new technology and computers. It was to the point

Sign changes on the way

■ Canton trustees began talks last week on proposed changes in the township sign ordinance. The changes are likely to hit local business owners in the pocketbook.

The Canton Township Board of Trustees last week came a little closer to completing the ordinance that will help tidy up the township's appearance.

The board discussed changes to Canton's sign ordinance Tuesday at a study session.

"Other communities seem to handle it and handle it well," said Vic Gustafson, Planning Commission chairman, of roadside sign ordinances. "Canton is on the slippery slope of looking dog-eared. There is no reason we can't handle it."

■ 'Canton is on the slippery slope of looking dog-eared.'

-Vic Gustafson, commission chairman

The township formed a committee to examine signs in Canton and nearby communities including Northville and Plymouth townships, Novi and Livonia, said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack.

"It appears our signs are much larger," than the average signs in other communities, he said. "What was really characteristic of Canton signs was that one size fits all. If you were on a postage stamp-sized lot, you got the same size as a Home Depot."

The revised ordinance will limit signs to 24 square feet, half of what is currently allowed. It will also eliminate menu signs for properties with more than one tenant.

While the ordinance is being revised in order to address safety and aesthetic issues, Char Little, a local business owner who attended the session, thinks the ordinance may have the opposite effect.

Principal charged, suspended

Pioneer Middle School will open Monday without Principal Tom Owens, who has been suspended pending the outcome of a warrant charging Owens with indecent exposure in Hines Park.

Owens was arrested Aug. 15 for reportedly exposing himself to an undercover sheriff's deputy, according to Wayne County Sheriff spokeswoman Nancy Mouradian.

"According to the report, Mr. Owens was sitting on a picnic table in the Levan Knoll area of Hines Park in Livonia. He flagged down an undercover morality officer who was patrolling the area," said Mouradian. "After they had a brief conversation concerning the weather and other non-specific topics, Mr. Owens walked over to the area near the comfort station where there are trees and bushes and exposed himself to the officer."

Mouradian said Owens was fingerprinted and booked in Westland before being released. A warrant was approved by the Wayne County prose-

Car stolen from gas station, Canton woman tells police

Canton police are looking for two young men who stole a new blue Oldsmobile last Saturday. The owner of the car, a 22-year-old Canton woman, parked the car in front of the Shell gas station at 44000 Michigan Ave.

She did not recall whether she left the keys in the car or left the car running. When she returned to the parking lot, the car was missing.

A witness saw two young men, in their late teens or early 20s, sitting on the curb in front of the gas station at about the same time as the alleged theft occurred.

Store video showed the two men walking toward the car.

Embezzlement

Police want to question a 45-year-old man who may have stolen $1,084 from his Canton employer.

The man worked the late shift at the Marathon Gas station at 41439 Michigan Ave. last week and when he closed up, he did not put the money from the register in the safe.

When asked by his employer what happened to the money, the man said he took the money home with him. On his way home, he said he was stopped by the Inkster Police Department and was arrested.

He told his boss he used the money to bail himself out of jail.

The man and his boss got into an argument, and the employee quit. Police have tried to contact him, but have not been able to locate him yet.

Cigarette sting

On Tuesday, Aug. 21, the Canton Police Department conducted a tobacco sales check on local businesses. A total of 10 businesses were checked. Marathon Gas, Amoco Gas and the Oakview Party Store, sold tobacco to a minor. Businesses checked were: Marathon Gas on Michigan Avenue, Amoco Gas at 40401 Michigan Ave. and the Police said the ongoing decoy operation is to ensure compliance with local ordinances and to keep establishments from selling alcohol or tobacco to minors.

A 35-year-old Livonia woman told Canton police someone put an obscene photograph on her windshield.

The woman was shopping last Thursday at the Super Kmart at 41690 Ford Road. When she returned to her car, the photograph of a man's penis was on her windshield.

Kids tip off police; predator arrested

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER
cmarsshall@oe.homecomm.net

Two Canton children led police to an alleged Internet predator. The man, a 21-year-old Westland resident was arrested Tuesday and released Thursday pending further investigation.

"There will be charges related to this case, but it depends on how much we find on the computer," said Det. Debra Newsome. "We have to find out if there's a pattern there, or if this is a one-time thing."

The man had been corresponding for two weeks on the Internet with a 12-year-old Canton girl. The girl told police she became frightened when he started urging her to meet him, even though she had told him she was 12 and she knew he was an adult.

The girl told her friend, a 13-year-old Canton boy, about the man. While the girl was at the boy's house, he sent the Westland man an instant message. He told the man he was a 13-year-old girl.

The two corresponded for an hour. The teenager called Canton police while he was chatting online with the man. When police arrived, the officer observed the conversation taking place on the screen.

Before the officer arrived, the boy had arranged a 10 p.m. meeting to have sex at Miller Elementary School in Canton.

Officers went to the school and awaited the man's arrival. Shortly after 10 p.m., the man arrived and began walking toward the playground. Officers questioned him for a few minutes, and the man admitted to arranging the meeting with a 13-year-old girl.

Upon searching his car, officers found condoms. After his arrest, police obtained a search warrant, and seized three computers from the home where the man lives with his parents.

He told police he had previously corresponded with young girls, but had never before arranged to meet.

According to Canton police reports, a 12-year-old Canton girl reported in March that a Westland man using the same screen name had sent her nude photographs of himself over the Internet.

The girl told police he had asked to meet her at a mall for a sexual encounter.

ADVANCEMENTS IN FOOT CARE

CORNS & CALLUSES

Corns and calluses are accumulations of dead skin that grow to protect foot bones from excessive trauma. Friction can stimulate the skin to grow faster than the body can shed it. Callus forms over diffuse areas such as the ball of the foot or the heel. Corns develop over smaller precise locations such as on or between toes. Corns and calluses have no roots and they are not contagious. Elective toe surgery is a routine procedure, performed under local anesthesia, that can correct a problem in one visit. It eliminates repetitive visits to the podiatrist.

We specialize in no-surgical relief of heel pain.

New digs for Charter Academy

The first day of school is exciting enough. When it's your first day in a new building as well, emotions run side by side — or even ahead of — academics.

That was the scenario for more than 500 students Thursday at Canton Charter Academy.

The second-year charter school at Ford and Ridge Roads has moved into permanent quarters after students and staff spent a year in portable classrooms.

"We're happy to finally be in a real building," Principal Claudia Williamson said earlier this month. "It's really beautiful to see it up and ready."

The $5 million building will house 530 K-6 students this year, up from 324 K-5 students enrolled during 2000-2001. The school will eventually run through the eighth grade.

"Hopefully this will drive our instruction, because K-3 are the primary grades for developing reading skills. This is a big change in direction for us. Not that we didn't focus on literacy in the past, but the MLPP training will give our teachers an important tool to assess each individual child. It's a big, big change for us," he said.

every time we plugged in a computer or tape recorder, we had a power outage. It just wasn't working," she said.

Green, who has been Rawsonville's principal for 23 years, said the old school had also been outgrown. In addition to modern music and art facilities, the new school also has a gymnasium. In the old school, the cafeteria doubled as a gym. There is also more classroom space to house the growing student body.

"This new facility is wonderful. It's modern and there is plenty of space. We were just overcrowded in the old school. This is like moving into a new home. There is a place for everything," she said.

The district also opened its Early Childhood Development Center this year in a wing of the old Edgemont Elementary School, at 125 Edgemont in Belleville. The facility will house a number of special education programs, as well as A Great

Meet the boss: Principal Theresa Green talks to kindergartners in Pauline Howell's classroom.

Start, which is a popular tuition-based pre-school program.

According to Tabor, a number of the programs, including the autistic/impaired program, were housed in Romulus schools last year.

"It's definitely beneficial to get the programs back in the district, because we had to pay Romulus for the services before," he said.

In addition to the infrastructure changes, Tabor said the district is implementing a new reading curriculum this year.

The district used a $400,000 grant from the state to train every kindergarten through third-grade teacher in the Michigan Literacy Progress Profile program, which gives them the ability to better assess each student's reading aptitude. The grant was also used to hire literacy specialists for each elementary to work with the teachers.

Tabor feels the program will be a big benefit to both teachers and students.

"Hopefully this will drive our instruction, because K-3 are the primary grades for developing reading skills. This is a big change in direction for us. Not that we didn't focus on literacy in the past, but the MLPP training will give our teachers an important tool to assess each individual child. It's a big, big change for us," he said.

Sign ordinance from page A1

"I think there will be accidents all over Ford Road because people will be trying to look for the signs," she said. Little owns Sign-A-Rama on Ford Road in Canton.

Little's business is one of those which does not have its own roadside sign, and relies on the menu sign to direct customers to her store.

"The only way somebody might see me, if they're really looking, is on that sign."

The township's current sign ordinance was last revised in 1989, and many Canton's businesses are not yet in compliance.

Pylon signs and signs that sit atop poles are noncompliant, and township officials hope to convince business owners to take them down.

It's likely the businesses will have a 10-year period to replace the signs, and trustees said they believe the Downtown Development Authority may be able to create financial incentives for early replacement.

"That would be nice (if the DDA paid a portion of the sign replacement), but a lot of my customers, especially the new businesses, are just small businesses and are on tight budgets already," Little said.

Ground signs cost about $25,000, and while they're expensive to replace, they're worth every penny to the business, she added.

"When I considered getting a Small Business Administration loan, I was told by several people the bigger your sign, the more likely you are to get your loan. That's how important they are to bringing customers into your store."

Ralph Schufeldt, president of Canton's Downtown Development Authority, welcomed the new ordinance, and the township's interest in enforcement.

"I can go right down Ford Road and rattle off the business owners who don't care about their image," he said. "It's rather sickening, the trash, the overgrown weeds."

The majority of business owners will comply with ordinances willingly, said Gustafson.

Besides the permanent signs, the ordinance will also address temporary signs, such as garage sale signs, even signs for schools and churches, real estate and open house signs, and handheld signs for business such as pizza restaurants.

To keep up with all the signs and their requirements, the township will hire a full-time ordinance officer that focuses on signs, outdoor storage and sales, and aesthetics. The officer's salary and benefits have been included in next year's budget.

ator's office last Monday, she said.

Owens has yet to be arraigned in 16th District Court in Livonia. Mouradian said the misdemeanor charge could result in a fine or up to 90 days in jail.

Owens' attorney, John Allen of Detroit, said the charges are only allegations.

"Whatever is alleged, it was done on his personal time, didn't involve young people and didn't happen at the school," said Allen. "It's an allegation, and a lot of times the police are wrong in what they saw."

Owens, 44, has been principal at Pioneer the last five years. A statement from the school district said his future will be decided after the outcome of court proceedings.

"We are aware of the allegations concerning Pioneer Middle School Principal Tom Owens and understand that a warrant has been issued against him. Mr. Owens is a long-time, dedicated district employee. Without drawing any conclusions as to his guilt or innocence on the charges, the district has temporarily suspended him from his job responsibilities pending the outcome of the proceedings," read the statement.

Owens, who is suspended with pay, was not at Pioneer on Thursday and Friday, the first two days of work for teachers. Assistant Principal Philip Freeman will assume his duties when school begins Monday.

Superintendent Kathleen Booher, in a statement issued by the district, said, "I am confident that, during the interim, the educational services and the teaching and learning environment at Pioneer will proceed in the same fine manner as has occurred in the past."

Owens has sought the expertise of the Triangle Foundation, a gay-lesbian advocacy group, according to Jeff Montgomery, executive director of the Foundation, who said he's talked with Owens about the incident.

"The Wayne County sheriff's department is doing what the Detroit police stopped doing, targeting those they presume are gay," Montgomery said.

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano disagreed, noting, "The prosecutor has backed the arrest by issuing a warrant."

Owens is the president of the Plymouth-Canton Administrators union. Vice president Ellison Franklin, principal at West Middle School, said the union is supportive of all its members, no matter what the situation.

"We will be following procedure to make sure the contract is being upheld, rights are not violated and there is due process," said Franklin.

Tax revolt of '70s, '80s left a legacy in Michigan politics

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

Passage of Proposal A in 1994 ended a 20-year-long "property tax revolt" in Michigan, but it left a legacy shaping state politics that remains with us to this day.

While the entire country shifted right politically in the 1980s, Michigan's was more dramatic, has lasted longer, and has yet to see a counter swing back.

Democrats controlled all three houses in Michigan (House, Senate and governor's mansion) as recently as 1982, and the state was considered to be traditionally Democratic.

Today, Republicans count all three in their list of possessions. They lay siege next year to the state's congressional delegation.

The property tax revolt had everything to do with that political shift, according to Earl Ryan, president of the Citizens Research Center, a public policy think tank in Livonia.

The revolt entered the realm of partisan politics when then-Gov. James Blanchard decided in 1983 to raise income taxes, despite campaign promises that he would not.

Angered voters took out their wrath on two state senators, Phil Mastin of Waterford and David Serotkin of Macomb County, unprecedented in the history of the state. In doing so, voters turned control of the state senate over to Republicans, the first trophy in the GOP's case.

Not true, according to Bill Ballenger, editor of Inside Michigan Politics.

"That's Republicans engaging in rewriting history a bit," Balenger said.

"Remember that in that next election (against Bill Lucas), Blanchard was reelected by 67 percent, that's the largest margin ever in a race for governor. . . . If voters were mad and wanted to punish him, they would have done it that election. That would have not waited seven years to punish him. That doesn't make sense."

Blanchard probably had little choice but to increase the tax, many Republicans now admit, due to budget deficits run up at the end of Gov. Bill Milliken's term in office due to a slumping economy.

Nonetheless, Republicans have played Blanchard's tax hike to help them gain control of the state, Balenger said.

Matt Resch, spokesman for the Gov. Engler's office, agreed the tax revolt had much to do with the Republican take over.

That's why Engler has concentrated on the issue of tax cuts during the entire length of his time in office, Resch said. To date, Engler says the count of tax cuts enacted during his time in office comes to 31.

California typically gets the credit for leading the tax revolt nationally, because voters approved the well-known Proposition 13 in 1978.

But according to Patrick Anderson, of the Anderson Economic Group, "Michigan was right at the vanguard."

The state put tax reform proposals on the ballot as early as 1972.

Through the 1970s, '80s and early '90s, there were no less than 15 of them, constitutional amendments and ballot initiatives, placed on the ballot by both the legislature and numerous citizen petition drives.

Only two of those initiatives passed, Proposal A and the Headlee Amendment to the constitution back in 1978.

Although Headlee is an effective tax limitation measure, according to Anderson, it did not have the effect of providing tax relief that voters were looking for.

Despite that, Ryan does not believe that Proposal A would have passed if voters had had a choice between it and the status quo. At the time, lawmakers had scratched laws enabling the property tax system and told voters that they could either approve Proposal A or lawmakers would try to fix the tax system themselves, trading property taxes for an income tax hike.

Proposal A has been successful at addressing the worst of the concerns about property taxes, according to Dr. David Plank of the Education Policy Center at Michigan State University.

But he said, the real legacy of Proposal A isn't its impact on partisan politics. It has been the shift in power over education policy from the local districts to the state government, Plank said.

Power goes to the people who hold the purse strings, according to Plank, so naturally the state has more say in education policy setting now that the funding levels are decided more in the state legislature than at the local ballot box.

You can see that increase in state influence through its requirement for MEAP testing, the state initiative to increase accreditation standards, adopting of a four-day weekend at Labor Day, and the adoption of "zero tolerance" rules about how students will be disciplined for certain violations of rules.

"All of those were decisions that used to be made by the school districts. The state now controls it," he said.

Analysts say Proposal A has flaws

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

Seven years after the passage of Proposal A, the property tax and school finance reform package from 1994 is "beginning to creak a little," say policy analysts.

That means that whatever weaknesses there were in the plan are beginning to show now, said Dr. David Plank, director of the Education Policy Center at Michigan State University.

Experts on school finance who look at Proposal A from a statewide perspective say that overall it has been effective, providing tax relief while improving funding of school districts.

Four areas of concern, according to Plank, however include:

- High spending school districts cannot raise additional funding and are being pinched by inflationary cost increases.

- Although the gap has closed significantly between the richest and poorest schools, a gap of almost two to one still exists.

- Proposal A gives all students a foundation allowance, this year at $8,300, but some students are more expensive to educate than oth-

Charter schools for instance have mainly provided alternatives for elementary students, the least expensive set of students to teach.

Education of more expensive secondary students is left to the public schools.

- Bonding for building of schools was left on the property tax, so there remains a significant gap in what districts can afford for renovation or reconstruction of school buildings.

"Bonding is the unfinished business of Proposal A," Plank said.

But the toughest to resolve are the first two items, said Earl Ryan of the Citizens Research Council.

"We are talking about two goods competing," he said. "In the end it is a matter of perspective about what is the best way to educate kids. In adopting Proposal A, voters in this state wanted to assure that all kids receive essentially equal educational opportunity. The problem is you can't do both." It would be too expensive to let top spending schools take in additional money and bring all other districts up to the same level.

BACK TO COLLEGE

On the road: Matt Compton gets a CD ready for his drive to school — a time he uses to get away from everyone and collect his thoughts.

Commuting students juggle college, work

Many have found the drive to higher education

Editor's note: This is the second and final installment in our look at the back-to-college scene, comparing dorm and commuter students.

BY CARA PLOWMAN
STAFF WRITER

Although going away to college is a natural transition for a lot of high school graduates, Matt Compton is among those who opt to stay at home and commute to school.

Compton's decision to commute to Wayne State University allows him to work in his field of study, while taking classes.

At his parent's home in Canton, Compton's bedroom is laid out like an apartment, complete with an office area for studying, an entertainment system and a recliner. He maneuvers the furniture with ease, even though it's crammed into a space not much larger than a dorm room.

The life of a commuter

Commuters spend a lot of time in their cars, either driving to school and looking for a parking spot in the endless rows of vehicles or driving to work.

Compton, 21, usually starts his day at 7 a.m. After getting ready, he jumps in his car and prepares himself for the 45-minute drive into Detroit, usually making it to class at 9 a.m.

"I love my morning drive and my afternoon drive. That's my time to get away from everybody, to collect my thoughts," he said.

Between classes, he spends down time at the gym or in the student center.

Compton, who is a business major and German minor, then heads to work.

For commuters, Compton's routine of balancing class and work will sound familiar.

Commuting to school has its disadvantages, but for Compton, a junior, it's the only way to juggle his need to make money while getting an education.

While in high school, he started looking at colleges and realized that money would play a key role in his decision. With a 4.0 high school GPA, Compton could have gone to any school. Ultimately, he chose WSU because of a full scholarship offer. Factors like WSU's downtown location, its reputation and cost made it attractive. Compton calls the campus a "hidden treasure."

"I'm in the city and I love it. Because I'm in the city, it means that job opportunities are so much greater."

On the job

Commuters save money on room and board or other expenses that come with dorm life. That was a big factor, said Denise Compton, Matt's mother. "The fewer loans you have when you graduate, the better off you are."

In addition to wanting to save money on his education, Compton chose to commute so he could earn on-the-job experience during school.

Last year, when Compton sent out resumes to corporations in the Detroit area, he received a call from Deloitte & Touche, a business consultation firm. He's worked there since May.

In the Deloitte & Touche office, Compton is lauded by coworkers who go on about the work he has done and his commitment to the company.

"He's incredibly motivated," said coworker Nancy Carrara, senior international human resources consultant. "He always says he wishes he could do more."

Whenever a fellow employee strolls by his roomy cubical, Compton warmly asks how they are or demands a hug.

"It's very encouraging to see young people who are motivated, good people. He seems like he's very well-balanced," Carrara said.

At Deloitte & Touche, which handles taxes, human resources and payroll for businesses, Compton takes care of payroll for Volkswagen and Rolls-Royce.

Gaining work experience while in school is a leading force for commuters students.

Paul Tennes, 20, stays busy working on two degrees at two different schools, all while gaining experience in his field as a patrol officer. The Canton resident is a junior, behavioral sciences major at the University of Michigan-Dearborn and studies at Schoolcraft College in the Criminal Justice Academy. He also works at the U-M-Ann Arbor in the Public Safety Department.

Tennes is working for certification to be a police officer.

"I'm able to have a full-time job and take classes at the same time. I work to be financially secure but also to bring experience into my field along with my degree," Tennes said.

Focus is key to Matt Compton's success, something that might have been missing if he had been living on campus.

"I think people who live on campus are motivated less. You have so many more things that you can take part in."

Most commuters would like to get involved in campus activities but find little time after classes, work and studying. Compton said he would have liked to join organizations centered around German or business.

Is he really missing out on parts of the college life?

"You always dream about (living on campus). You always think about it. You know that you lost something," he said. "It's almost envy to see that one person has something you can't have, but it's all in balance."

So-called "commuter colleges" like U-M Dearborn, Oakland University and Schoolcraft College are sometimes labeled "half-way schools" and "last resorts." Some people consider them a step below Michigan State University or the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor. But dramatic increases in enrollment at smaller schools within the past decade may signify a shift in the way students view commuter colleges.

Compton said he thinks WSU's reputation could be better, but still backs his decision.

"Going to Wayne State kind of knocks me down a little bit in my opportunities. You take a person from U-M and compare them to Wayne State and ultimately it depends on GPA and everything else. But if you have that nice school background, it says a lot for you."

Schoolcraft College student Sara Ringer, 19, of Canton didn't want to move away from her family and friends for school.

"I didn't have to change anything about my life. I can still work and go to school like I did in high school and basically keep it the same," said Ringer, who is studying elementary education.

Compton doesn't regret staying home during college. His sister Jackie, 19, commutes to Eastern Michigan University, and his brother Scott, 23, used to commute to Schoolcraft College.

His parents, Richard and Denise, said they have always supported their son's decision.

"Matthew is a real go-getter. Things always fall into place for him," said Denise.

Compton will finish out his business degree in two and a half to three years. After that, he plans to take his time obtaining a master's degree, possibly in law or accounting.

"Anywhere you go you're going to find happy people and you're going to find unhappy people. It's really a train of thought. You are what you think you are. I'm one of those people who chooses to be happy and thankful for where I am and what God's given me because I'm very, very, very lucky."

Home work: Matt has plenty of room to study in his room.

Living with the folks isn't so bad when you think about it

Editor's note: Cara Plowman served as a summer intern for the Observer, working as a staff reporter. She is managing editor of Oakland University's Oakland Post.

When I graduated from high school, my grandma told me that college would go by fast but it would be the best four years (maybe five) of my life. Three years later, as I ready myself for my senior year, I look back and realize she was right.

College can be an expensive four-year party if you're not careful. As a student who lives at home and commutes to class, I've found an easy way to save money without losing out on "college life."

Even though many commuters still choose not to get involved in campus activities, many more now do. Those who try out for sports teams, join clubs and spend time on campus realize that they can get the same experiences commuting that they can living on campus.

Since I started college at Oakland University in fall 1998, I haven't really stopped moving. From working long hours at the school newspaper, attending basketball games and swimming matches, learning about campus politics and student government and hanging out with people I've met, I have managed to make my college experience unforgettable. All that and I still made it to (most of) my classes.

Commuters definitely have the reputation of lacking school spirit, but more students are getting involved on campus now. For those who still aren't active, remember, you picked the school you wanted to go to. Why not show support for sports teams, join organizations and hang out in the student center. It's the best way to meet people.

I picked OU because it was close to home, inexpensive and has a good reputation. At first, I dreaded the thought of living with my parents for another four years, but then I realized that I have the rest of my life to pay bills and live on my own. What's the big rush?

Besides, college isn't about sharing a 10-foot by 10-foot dorm with someone you barely know, cramming for tests or going crazy at keg parties. School is about learning, growing and making potentially lifelong friends. If you manage to save a few bucks along the way, more power to you.

After I graduate next spring, I'm proud to say I will not have any student loans to pay off. Because I stayed at home, applied for scholarships and worked hard, I was able to pay for everything without borrowing money. OK, mom and dad did help a lot.

One downside that a commuter can't avoid is driving. Waking up early for classes, bad weather and rush hour traffic take their toll. The good thing about it is the time you get to be alone and think. For me, it's worth it just to be able to eat home-cooked meals and take showers in peace.

The roommate situation was the deciding factor in my decision not to live on campus. At OU, about 1,100 students take the plunge each year and move into dorms. The small, square rooms resemble those of a cheap motel. One window, one closet and one bathroom are not qualities I look for in my living space (so, call me spoiled).

Some people remain close to their college roommates after graduation, but I've heard too many stories to venture down that path. As my luck would have it, I'd end up getting the roommate you hear people talk about. The one that locks you out of the room every time her boyfriend visits, invites 20 people over to party the night before your big exam and insists on cranking up the stereo every night at 2 a.m.

No, thank you. So what if I live out of my car, get stuck in rush-hour traffic every day and can never find a spot to park.

Underclassmen who live on campus have no car, no privacy and no peace and quiet. Before picking a school, I weighed the positives and negatives of commuting and living on campus. Your decision might be different, but think both options through.

Don't just run out and apply for a dorm without talking to people who have lived in one already. Mom and dad are a lot less likely to let you move back home after you've left for a while.

Besides, who wants to eat cafeteria food three times a day anyway?

Competition heating up, Booher tells P-C teachers

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

Superintendent Kathleen Booher conveyed to teachers Friday morning they're one of the keys to the continued success of the Plymouth-Canton school district.

At the same time, however, in her welcoming address Booher revealed the competition is chasing the state's seventh-largest school district.

"Our students are excelling at an all-time high. We've won an unprecedented sum of grant dollars. Our graduates are an impressive array of scholarships and awards," she said.

Booher told educators the recent Standard and Poor's school evaluation service tells it all.

"While we have less to spend per student than all our peer group districts, we spend a greater share of it directly on teaching and learning. Only 2.4 percent of the districts in the state spend less on school administration. Only 11.8 percent of the districts generate a more favorable performance-cost index, which is a return investment based on MEAP test performance," said Booher. "We have a mission that every child achieves personal excellence. We have a vision to achieve, to see that Plymouth-Canton Community Schools leads the state in K-12 education."

Booher reminded teachers they are ambassadors of the district, helping to ward off the competition facing the district from parochial, private and charter schools, which she unveiled takes thousands of students from Plymouth-Canton.

"Competing for students is real. There are roughly 4,000 children whose families believe there's another place that is suited for their child," she said. "Many times a family makes its choices based on inaccurate or incomplete information."

"Plymouth-Canton is a great place to learn. We need to extend a helping hand, or offer an encouraging smile, to every child who needs to know this is the best place to learn," said Booher. "Let us strive to see that every parent in our community knows it, and every child that walks through our classroom doors feel it."

hundreds of Plymouth-Canton teachers Friday morning as they prepared to begin classes Monday. "We want to create a ladder to lift up public education, to lift up teachers, to lift up students."

Watkins, who became the superintendent for public instruction last spring, took issue with the current system of using MEAP scores as the sole criteria for a school's accreditation.

"I think MEAP tests are a good tool to help align standards with curriculum, but it's not the only tool," said Watkins to a round of applause by teachers.

Watkins said he's also attempting to persuade Gov. John Engler to delay the .1-percent income tax reduction, which could reduce education-coffer revenue by nearly $200 million.

"Hit the pause button on the income tax reduction (and use the money) to invest in our children during the slowdown in the economy," said Watkins. "Let's invest it in early childhood development, reading, after school and summer programs."

Teachers showed their approval with another round of applause. However, Watkins admitted it will be a tough sell, noting "the governor isn't particularly thrilled with me."

On that note, school board member Judy Mardigian asked Watkins to carry a message back to Lansing.

"We receive inequitable funding compared to our surrounding neighbors (school districts) ... which typically collect nearly $25 million more a year in Ann Arbor and Livonia for the same number of students," she said. "We need a labor market adjustment, or something to reconcile differences in our labor markets, so we can be more competitive and do a better job."

Watkins admitted Proposal A, passed in 1994 to shift funding of schools from property taxes to state foundation grants, needs a closer look.

"We need to find some areas where we can adjust it, but it will be very difficult because of the tight economic times, and the philosophical thinking that education is fully funded," he said.

Afterwards, many teachers expressed support of Watkins and his efforts for educational change.

"I think he'll be a good advocate for public education at the state level," said Dan Glass, Central Middle School teacher. "I think people should spend time with teachers to see what kind of time and effort we put in the classroom."

Diana Jenkins, a speech and language pathologist at Bird Elementary, liked Watkins' straight-forward and positive approach.

"The main issues are the loss of funding for reading programs and summer school," she said. "Parents want summer school, more learning, more teaching time on task."

Camping out Summer program keeps kids busy

BY KURT KUBAN

Plymouth Township Park was the site of several summer camps this year, including those held by the Plymouth chapters of the YMCA and Salvation Army.

About 30 children, ages 5-14, are took part in the 10-week camp sponsored by the Plymouth Family YMCA, which ended Friday.

According to YMCA spokeswoman Bobbie Pummil, the children were divided into three separate camps: Jubilee Camp for ages 5-7, Adventure Camp for ages 8-11, and Challenge Camp for ages 12-14.

Pummil said the children spent Mondays and Fridays at the park participating in a number of activities, including sports games, craft making and having picnics. The boys and girls spent the rest of the days going on field trips to a number of places and events, including several Metro Parks, Four Bears Amusement Park, and a Detroit Shock basketball game.

"Most of the kids in camp have both parents working, so this gives them something to do during the summer. The kids seemed to like it. It wasn't all play, though. They visited some museums and did some crafts at the park several days," she said.

Everything went as planned, although Pummil said organizers were hoping to sign up a few more children.

"Our numbers were a bit low. We would like to see more kids in camp," she said.

The eight-week Salvation Army of Plymouth camp ended Aug. 17. Held in two sessions, the camp had a total of 90 children between the ages of 6 and 12 participate.

Proposals to let high spending districts seek additional millage money from local voters would "undo the progress we have made evening out the funding levels" between high and low district, Matt Resch, spokesman for Gov. John Engler said.

That one of the goals of Proposal A, to hold back top spending schools to let poor school districts catch up, so that funding per pupil would even out.

And the gap has narrowed, he said, because the state has moved up the low districts from less than $4,200 per student to $6,300 this year.

Next year the figure goes up the $6,700.

Matthew Brouillette, Director of Education Policy at the Mackinac Center, isn't eager to see limitations raised on the millage rate districts can ask of local voters.

"Actually, it make the law worse than it was (before Proposal A) because the 6 cent sales tax would not rolled back. So instead of a shift, trading a tax increase for a decrease, you would have an increase and an increase."

Brouillette is not sympathetic to school districts that say they are pinched by inflation. He believes they are "not doing a very good job of managing their money now."

He argued that in most school districts, significant savings could still be accomplished through outsourcing non-instructional services and reviewing their health benefit programs.

Analysts noted that ending the frequent millage requests schools district made of local taxpayers was also one of the goals of Proposal A.

Opening the door to enhancement millages would open the door to those frequent requests, they said.

Defense, passing game lifts Canton

There wasn't too much that went wrong for Plymouth Canton in its season-opener at Ypsilanti Friday. The Chiefs' defense dominated and two blocked punts by Mike Tolhurst set up scores for the offense.

Know this: A coach is never all together happy with his team's performance in its season-opening game.

With that in mind, it's not all that surprising to hear Plymouth Canton football coach Tim Baechler say, "We've got some things to work on," even after his Chiefs destroyed host Ypsilanti 37-6 Friday.

"We weren't consistent enough on offense," he added. "Defensively we played well, but we made some mistakes. I was happy with our passing game."

He should have been. The Chiefs gained 156 yards in the air while passing the ball just a half-dozen times.

This game proved to be a mismatch from the start. Chad Fuller gave Canton a lead it would never relinquish just 2 1/2 minutes into the game, scoring on a 6-yard run. Ankit Kachhal's placement made it 7-0.

Mike Tolhurst burst through the line to block a punt on the Braves next possession, and the Chiefs recovered at the Ypsi 27. On the first play following the block, Reggie Joyner rambled 27 yards for the touchdown and, with 7:31 left in the first quarter, Canton led 14-0.

That's the way it stayed until late in the first half, when quarterback Brendan Murphy tossed a 58-yard scoring pass to Brandon Wilcox to make it 20-0 with 1:11 left until intermission.

In the third quarter, Tolhurst — a 5-foot-11, 230-pound senior defensive tackle — blocked his second punt of the game and was awarded the safety when the kick rolled out of the end zone.

However, the Braves struck right back, recovering a fumble on the ensuing kickoff and returning it for a touchdown, making it 22-6.

"Unbelievable," said Baechler.

The Chiefs remained in control, however, scoring a pair of fourth-quarter

Goody named coach

Former Whaler Eric Goody was named an assistant coach last week, completing new coach Mike Vellucci's staff.

"Eric will be a great addition to the Whalers' staff," said Vellucci. "Having grown up in the Whalers' organization as a player and now as a coach, we feel Eric will be able to contribute to the success of the team."

Goody played for the Syracuse (N.Y.) Stars AAA team in upper New York before joining the Whalers as a fifth-round draft choice in 1996. He played for the Whalers for four seasons, helping them reach the Ontario Hockey League finals once and twice helping them finish with the league's best record.

He was drafted in the sixth round by the Toronto Maple Leafs in 1997. He is currently attending Eastern Michigan University in pursuit of a degree in business.

Madonna teams ranked Madonna University's women's soccer team earned a pre-season ranking of eighth in the NAIA, while the Lady Crusaders' volleyball team was ranked 13th.

The Madonna soccer team reached the NAIA Final Four last year, posting a 19-3-2 record. Two of their losses came against eventual national champion Simon Fraser University.

The volleyball team was 40-8 last year, reaching the NAIA National Tournament, where it was 2-2. The Crusaders won the conference and regional championships last season, but must replace first team All-American Brandy Malewski.

The volleyball team starts its season at sixth-ranked Lindsey Wilson College (Ky.) Wednesday. The volleyball team travels to the Point Loma Tournament in San Diego Friday.

The Whalers play most of their home games on Friday and Saturday nights, with the home season-opener scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 15 vs. the Erie Otters. Fans can come early for a pre-game celebration featuring Nickelodeon characters Angelica and Rocco, from Rugrats. Joining them will be Whalers' mascot Shooter, Lovely the Clown and Balloon Man Dan.

Pioneer overpowers Salem in season-opener, 24-0

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

Nowhere to run. Nowhere to hide. No way to start.

That sums up Plymouth Salem's season-opening 24-0 thumping Friday night suffered at the hands of Ann Arbor Pioneer, which cashed in on two blocked punts and suffocated the Rocks' inexperienced offensive line with a swarming, no-holds-barred defensive effort.

The game marked the debut of Salem coach Bob Cummings, who now has the unenviable task of leading his 0-1 troops onto nationally ranked Farmington Hills Harrison's turf next Friday night.

"We have a lot of new people up front, and they definitely got a test tonight," Cummings said. "It's going to take a while for the offensive line to gel. We have two kids up there (on the offensive line) who played fullback last year."

"Pioneer has a big, tough defensive line and they gave us problems. They got penetration when we tried to run and they blitzed us when we tried to pass. We have to keep working hard and get improvement out of every one of our players."

Of the four first downs Salem compiled (all in the second half), three came as a result of Pioneer penalties.

Rock quarterback Scott Hewitt (1-for-13 passing) was forced to throw off his back foot most of the night by a huge, hard-charging defensive front five anchored by junior noseguard Brandon Kennedy (6-3, 330 pounds) and senior tackle Joe Rewoldt (6-2, 270 pounds).

Salem's ground game never got rolling as the Rocks managed just 49 yards on 25 carries (1.9 yards a carry).

Looking for help: Salem quarterback Scott Hewitt had trouble finding receivers all night. Here, Pioneer's Kevin Simon pressures.

"From midway through the first quarter until halftime, I thought Salem did a good job of controlling the line of scrimmage," said Pioneer coach Chuck White. "But in the second half, I thought we came out and took control of things a little better. I liked our effort, but our execution needs work."

"It looked like a first game out there tonight."

After a three-and-out on its opening possession, Salem was forced to punt. However, Kevin Schopieray's kick was redirected by the mid-section of Pioneer's leaping Kevin Simon and recovered by Pioneer at the Salem 7-yard line.

Pioneer then scored on its first offensive play of the season when Brad Williams rumbled into the end zone over left tackle.

Ann Arbor converted an unconventional two-point conversion when the center snap was mishandled, but holder Dan Calderon scooped the ball up and lofted a pass to tight end Chris Corwin to make it 8-0.

"We went seven-straight quarters (at the beginning of the season) last year without scoring, so getting that early touchdown was a relief," White admitted. "Any time you can block a punt and score, it gives the team a lift."

Pioneer made it 11-0 with 10:14 left in the first half when Mark Spencer booted a 33-yard field goal.

Salem's first possession of the second half mirrored its disastrous game-opening possession. After two runs and an incomplete pass netted just three yards, the Rocks were forced to punt from their own 20.

However, Pioneer senior defensive back Wade Lehmann, who was lined up wide, blocked Schopieray's punt. The ball rolled into the end zone where

Rocks have returnees to challenge for WLAA title

BY C.J. RISAK

Plymouth Salem is one of the pre-season favorites to win the Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball championship.

What a surprise. If the Rocks weren't one of the favorites, that would be news. This isn't. Because year in and year out, Salem — and Canton, for that matter — is among the league's powerhouses.

A year ago, the Rocks waited until the final weeks of the season to assert themselves. They ambushed the WLAA champions, Northville, and they did it convincingly, beating the Mustangs three times in a two-week span.

But if Salem were the albatross dragging down Northville, then Canton served the same role with the Rocks. The Chiefs beat Salem twice last season, including in the state district final.

Will things be different this season? The results might be, but don't count on a change in leading characters.

Returning star: An all-WLAA performer, Kelly Jaskot led Plymouth Salem in scoring last season and was the top ball distributor in their offense.

True, Canton is rebuilding. But the Chiefs will be bigger this season and Salem coach Fred Thomann figures they will still be athletic, although matching last season's all-around athleticism might be difficult.

Northville returns its backcourt and should be formidable as well. And Farmington Harrison, a WLAA power

Last season was something — well, different.

Everybody wanted a piece of the action, and by season's end, a lot of them got some. Northville emerged as the champion in the Western Lakes Activities Association, but the Mustangs were ousted from both the WLAA Tournament and the state districts by Plymouth Salem.

The Rocks ended up as Lakes Division champs and WLAA Tournament winners, but they couldn't get past Plymouth Canton in the district final.

The Chiefs mostly-senior squad won the district title before getting beaten by West Bloomfield in the regional semifinals. Seven of those Canton team members — Janine Guastella, Amanda Lentz, Anne Morrell, Christina Kiessel, Angie Neu, Ashley Williams and Meghan Meier — have graduated, which is too bad.

New coach has big goals for PCA

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisk@oe.homecomm.net

Several key players from a team that won 15 games last season have graduated, and that's not an ideal situation to step into for a new coach — which is what Annie Malcolm is at Plymouth Christian Academy.

But don't count the Eagles out of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference girls basketball race too early, either. Malcolm knows the sport, and she knows the program.

And just as importantly, the players in the program know her.

"I coached the JVs last year and the eighth-graders the year before that," Malcolm explained. "Of the 10 players on the varsity, I coached seven of them."

And she did it well. Malcolm takes over for Rod Windle, who has moved on to coach at Livonia Churchill. Last year, Malcolm guided the PCA junior varsity to a 13-4 record while the varsity was chalking up a 15-8 mark and winning a state district championship.

Malcolm has a basketball background. A graduate of Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard, she went to the University of Notre Dame on a scholarship, graduating in 1990. She served as a graduate assistant at the University of Detroit Mercy for two years before leaving the game to raise her family. She decided to return to coaching two years ago.

Despite the loss of four seniors, the cupboard isn't bare at PCA. The only returning starter is 6-foot-1 senior post player Amy Brandt, who averaged nine points and nine rebounds last season. "We'll be looking for her to do that, and more, this year," said Malcolm.

Four others with considerable varsity experience also return. Back are the Guilfoyle twins, 5-9 Kim and 5-7 Laura, both junior post players. Kim averaged about 7.5 rebounds a game last season on the varsity, while Laura was a good rebounder and defensive specialist for the JV team. Malcolm is hoping to get some more offense out of both of them this season.

Also back in the post is 5-8 sophomore Erin Young. Indeed, interior size is perhaps PCA's greatest attribute.

But the Eagles have more. Amy Garbacz, a 5-3 junior who played some on varsity last season, returns. "She's the fastest player on the team," said Malcolm. "She can really push the ball up the floor and make things happen."

Also back is 5-8 sophomore Amanda Saagman, a guard/forward who's "an all-around good athlete — I look for her to do a bit of everything for us," said Malcolm.

Four other players Malcolm will count on who are up from the JV team are 5-4 junior point guard Megan Roupas, a possible starter ("She's a good ballhandler and very aggressive at driving to the basket"); 5-7 junior guard/forward Melanie Brady ("She's the best outside shooter on the team. We're looking for her to score over zones"); 5-7 sophomore shooting guard Shannon Murray ("She had a great pre-season — she's challenging for a starting spot"); and 5-8 sophomore post player Lindsay Pew

("She has a good shot, she just needs to get used to handling the ball").

"Our post play is probably our biggest strength," said Malcolm. "That's where most of our experience is."

But this team won't rely solely on its size. "We are going to try and push the ball more this year than they did last year," she said.

As for picking a favorite in the MIAC, that's not too difficult. Auburn Hills Oakland Christian has won the title several years in a row. "They're always tough," said Malcolm. "And they will be again."

"A lot of teams have returning players, so we'll have our work cut out for us. We have a tough non-league schedule, too."

the past few years, has holes to fill but could still mount a challenge.

However, the team that seems to boast the greatest returning arsenal is Salem.

"I certainly wouldn't want to dissuade that," Thomann said when told his team is a favorite. "I think we have the ability to do that."

"But having said that, this isn't a team that can just show up and win. They're going to have to be ready to play right from the beginning."

A year ago, the Rocks overcame an early-season injury to leading scorer Mary Lou Liebau and went on to post a 17-5 record, including a 9-2 mark in the WLAA. They also collected the WLAA Tournament championship (again — they've won three in a row).

Three starters are gone from that team: center Dawn Allen, guard Katie Kelly and forward Jenna Van Wagoner. Allen "was as good an interior defender as we had," Thomann said, while Kelly "played solid defense on the ball" and Van Wagoner "was just great at figuring things out on the court."

Filling those holes won't be easy, but many of those on this season's squad are experienced. Indeed, five current Rocks have started at some time in their career.

It starts with all-WLAA selection Kelly Jaskot, a starter for the past three seasons. The 5-foot-7 senior guard averaged a team-best 10 points a game last season while she was learning to become the team's primary distributor. Jaskot's all-around ability makes her one of the conference's best players.

"She's a great scorer," Thomann said of Jaskot. "We've worked hard with her on her decision-making, and she's doing very well. We're looking at a lot of different things with her, trying to figure out what will be best for the team."

Liebau also returns. The 5-11 senior forward averaged 10 points a game while playing barely half the season; her ability in slashing to the basket and grabbing offensive rebounds makes her invaluable.

Other part-time starters a year ago were 5-6 senior guard Amy Szawara, 5-8 senior forward/guard Shannon Miller and 5-8 sophomore forward/guard Marissa Sarkesian.

Thomann has two other seniors he can summon: 5-8 forward Kelly Holka and 5-3 guard Jenny Schwan. There are also three juniors and a pair of sophomores who could see playing time.

The juniors are 5-11 post player Stephanie Phillips, 5-10 forward Laura Baumgart and 5-7 forward/guard Maggie Tudor. The sophomores are 5-2 guard Jordan Falcuson, who spent some time on the varsity last season, and 6-1 post player Kathy Hammerschmidt.

While he believes the offensive firepower is strong, Thomann isn't as certain about his team's defense and rebounding talents.

"The ability to score is definitely one of our strengths," he said, relishing a lineup with Jaskot and a healthy Liebau in it. "And we handle the ball, not as good as we need to, but better than most teams."

"We really struggle to rebound the ball at times. And we're going to have to defend at the level we did last year. That was one of (last year's) team strengths. This team is good, it's just not at that level yet."

"If we can improve in those areas it will allow this team to compete at the level I think they can compete at."

Thomann is certain everything will come together for this team. He's not as certain predicting when.

"I don't know when, but I honestly think this team will jell," he said. The hope is it happens early — Salem opens with West Bloomfield, the team that eliminated Canton from the state tournament in the regionals last year, on Thursday. And the Rocks could play Northville twice in a one-week span early on, the second time in conference action.

Other key dates: Oct. 2 at Canton and Oct. 23 at Harrison.

If things go well for Salem, it could surpass last year's record and take a longer trip in the state tournament.

Because if there was a quality that defined that team, it was a certain orneriness. Those seniors (three of them, as well as one junior, were on the state championship-winning soccer team) just didn't like to lose. They would have appreciated another shot at West Bloomfield, the team Canton opens its season against Tuesday at home.

The Chiefs ended up with a 16-7 record last season despite not having a key player over 5-foot-8. Even with that lack of size, they outrebounded their opponents.

Thing is, they didn't even shoot that well from the perimeter. And they were barely mediocre at the free-throw line.

But they won. Whatever shortcomings they may have had, they found a way to win.

"We were lucky to have kids like that athletically," said Canton coach Bob Blohm. "Last year our scoring came off transition a lot — cutting, driving. They were an excellent rebounding team for their size, and they were tremendous defensively."

This season's team is the antithesis. The experience that graced the Chiefs for the past couple of years is missing; so is the raw athletic ability.

"Now we've got to regroup a little bit and get after it," said Blohm. "Experience is going to be the one thing (lacking). You can do all the skill work you want to, but you're going to have to get out there and compete to find out where you are."

"It's going to be fun. It's been fun already. There's a lot of teaching going on."

This season's squad features just two seniors: Courtney Jarman, a 5-9 forward, and Lesley Whiting, a 5-10 forward. That's right — both are taller than any of the key players from last season's squad.

In fact, this year's Canton team features four (count 'em — four!) players who stand 5-10, and two others who are 5-9.

"This group won't be as athletic as last year's group," said Blohm. "But this group is bigger. They have the potential to be a great defensive team. And they certainly can be a great rebounding team."

Two current team members have varsity experience, and both are juniors: Briana Wolcott, a 5-8 guard, and Kristen Lake, a 5-10 center.

Other sizable team members are juniors Alana Abdal, a 5-10 center; Christina Redd, a 5-10 forward; and Jessica Johnson, a 5-9 guard.

Joining Wolcott and Johnson in the backcourt will be Colleen O'Brien, a 5-5 junior, and Rachele Guastella, a 5-5 sophomore.

"This year, we have four kids who are 5-10, so hopefully we can get something done in the paint," said Blohm. Jarman, Wolcott and Guastella are solid perimeter shooters, but as the Canton coach noted, "It's different shooting on the varsity than it is on the JV."

"What we want is to get a good shot, get a second shot and get back on defense so we don't give up any easy shots."

That may sound simple enough, but learning the Canton system isn't so easy. It helps that this group has come up through the ranks together.

"The strength of this group is they have decent size, and they have improved defensively, although that takes time to develop," Blohm said. "It may take all season before they get it right."

"They play very well together, and their work ethic is good. We just need to see them on the court. I've already seen some growth since practice began."

At the top of the list of WLAA opponents to watch is cross-creek rival Salem, which returns Kelly Jaskot and Mary Lou Liebau. The Rocks lost just three seniors to graduation.

Northville, Walled Lake Central, Walled Lake Western and Farmington Harrison could also be formidable.

And where will Canton fit in this mix? "I'm real anxious to see them play," said Blohm. "The thing is, we have to be patient, they have to continue to improve their games. We have to have balance, score inside and outside."

"Hopefully, we'll improve by game (No.) 20."

The Chiefs will improve quicker than that — and you can count on it.

Salem grad claims state PGA

Jeff Roth, head golf professional at Knollwood Golf and Country Club in West Bloomfield and a Plymouth Salem HS graduate, won the 80th Michigan PGA Championship on Wednesday by a resounding nine strokes.

"My goal is to win majors," the 43-year-old Roth said. "I have a lot of years ahead of me. I'm planning on winning more. I'm motivated to win more."

Roth finished the championship at 18-under-par, and the key for him in the final round was staying out of trouble, as he had during opening rounds of 67 and 65.

"I didn't want to make a bogey," said Roth, who was mistake-free over the entire 54-hole event. "It's probably as good as anyone has done. I don't think it's been done before."

Roth had won the Michigan PGA Championship in 1998 and '99.

Jeff Gniewek, of Prestwick Village Golf Club in Highland, was runner-up for the second-straight year. He shot 68-72-67 to finish at 9-under-par and win $8,000.

"I expected Jeff not to let down. Eighteen under is really good and he missed a few today. It was awesome. He putted lights out. We were playing for second place," said Gniewek, who battled for the runner-up position with Mike Fay, an assistant professional at Arcadia Bluffs Golf Club who set the course record 63 at Shanty Creek in the second round and finished tied for third place with Oakland Hills Country Club assistant professional Steve Brady at 8-under-par.

Other local contenders of merit included Randy Erskine, of Great Oaks Country Club in Rochester, who shot 71-72-69 to finish in fifth place at 4-under-par and win $2,800; and Ken Allard, of the Auburn Hills Golf Center, who shot 72-69-72 to finish T-6 at 3-under-par and win $2,180.

Stan Sall, the Wabek Country Club assistant professional, who competed in the Buick Open two weeks ago, finished in the top-20 at the Michigan PGA by shooting 77-70-69 and finishing at level par. Todd Greenlee of Lincoln Hills Golf Course in Birmingham shot 70-75-72 to finish at 1-over-par and win $1,025.

Jeff Coble of Oakland University in Rochester, Brian Dice of Knollwood CC, defending champion Brian Cairns of Orchard Lake Country Club, Al Kuhn of Bloomfield Hills Country Club and Bill Baldwin of Franklin Hills Country Club all finished in the top 30.

Roth, who moved to Knollwood in March after 13 years at Flint Golf Club, began the final round at Shanty Creek's Cedar River Golf Club with a six-stroke lead and shot 6-under-par 66 to secure the title and the $10,000 first prize.

"That's as good as I can do," said Roth. "It just goes to show you what can happen when you combine good ball striking with good putting. The greens were in great shape for good scoring."

Roth's win, his ninth major championship title, ties him with Lynn Janson for third on the all-time Michigan Major Championship win list. Legendary Chick Harbert has 10 major wins and Al Watrous has 13. In total, Roth has won 18 Michigan PGA sanctioned events.

Chiefs, Rocks stay close

The feeling-out process continued for Plymouth Canton's golf team Thursday at the Byron HS Invitational, held at Eastern Michigan's Eagle Crest course.

The Chiefs placed sixth in the 21-team field with a mediocre total of 336. Harper Woods Notre Dame won the title with a 287.

"I want to get a look at as many kids as I can, so when we start conference play I'll have a good idea who can do what," said Canton coach Tom Alles.

Chris Slupek was the low scorer for the Chiefs with an 80 on the par-72 course. Ryan Van Loozen was next best with an 84, followed by Steve Paul at 85 and Tim Son Hing at 87.

Last Monday at Forest Akers, both the Chiefs and Plymouth Salem finished in the middle of the pack at the 36-hole East Lansing Invitational. Canton's four-player total was 642, with a 316 on the East Course and a 326 on the West.

PREP GOLF

Salem had a 648, with a 309 on the East and a 339 on the West. Redford Catholic Central outshot both of them, carding a 312-322/634.

On top of the Chiefs' ledger was Ryan McKendry with a 73-79/152. Next best was Scott Oliver at 78-80/158, followed by Andrew Wagner, 82-83/165, and Michael Baracy, 83-84/167.

For Salem, the leader was Bobby Jones with a 72-79/151. Jon Gordon was next best at 77-82/159, followed by David Wallen, 79-86/165, and Ryan Williams, 81-94/175.

CC was led by Mike King with a 72-80/152. Next best for the Shamrocks was Nick Kolderman, 78-79/157; Jared Henderson, 80-80/160; and Andy Soley, 82-83/165.

Both Canton and Salem compete at the Brighton Invitational, at the Links of Whitmore Lake, before taking a two-week sabbatical prior to the start of the Western Lakes Activities Association dual-meet season.

Shamrocks move up

Catholic Central improved a bit on Friday and came in fifth at the Pinckney Invitational.

"We're just kind of young and these guys just need experience," said CC coach Bill Hayes, whose team was 14th on Monday at the East Lansing Tourney. "I'll expect more later because I think we're capable of more."

Hartland won the tourney by shooting 300, just edging Ann Arbor Greenhills with 301. The Shamrocks shot 310 - led by senior Andy Mitchell with a 73. Tristan Lester (from Plymouth) carded a 78. Andy Soley shot 79 and Nick Kolderman shot an 80 at the par-73 Rush Lake Hills course.

Beautiful Hair

with

Easy Care

European stylist, Joncé, now based in Birmingham, at Farrell Reis Salon, shares how to achieve a great look without spending a lot of time. "Before I can create anything beautiful with my "structured tm" cut, I must have or create a foundation from which I can work. As with any sturdy building there must be a foundation to maintain and support it. What so many people do not realize about creating a look, is that it is more than just a beautiful style. The client must be able to go home and achieve the look that the stylist created, on their own.

To begin with, a stylist should spend an ample amount of time consulting with his/her client to see the quality of hair, face structure, client's wants and lifestyle that they will be working with. I can not even begin to promise a new client I can achieve their goal in one visit, unless all the conditions are perfect, which is very seldom.

First, I look at the quality of the hair, texture, condition, density etc. No one can feel beautiful or look beautiful if their hair is not in a healthy state. This is always my main objective, to achieve healthy, shiny, non frizzed hair. It simply goes back to the basics. Your hair did not become that way over night, so it may take a few months to achieve our end goal. I focus heavily on returning the hair to it's most natural state. Many clients I see come to me with over processed hair from too many improper chemical treatments. I do many color services on clients, but as I state, it is how you go about achieving things to get the best results, and for me that is to work with the best products (I use Wella) and all my knowledge of hair care to not damage the hair.

Second, after consultation and analyzing the clients hair, I do a structured cut. Many of my clients are surprised by the amount of time my cuts take, generally 1 hour to 1 hour and 15 minutes, but it is at this point and every cut after (second cut generally takes 50 minutes) that I create the foundation from which I and my clients will always be able to work from. If you take the time to think about how long your hair cut generally takes, and the time you spend afterwards having to "work" with your hair and make it do what you want, wouldn't the investment in time for a quality hair cut make up for the daily effort you put into it? I base my cuts on many things, but my end goal is to have the hair fall where it is designed to. My clients are able to style their hair with very little, if any, use of products, brushes, dryers or irons, and be done in minutes. Why? With precision cutting you can guarantee the look, that is why it is so important to make sure your stylist is giving you a cut you are not having to work against or trim off some pieces at home. This should never happen!

Last, but not least, if I do a chemical process on a client, (color, highlights, marbleizing etc.) it will always be based first on the condition of the hair. If I do not feel the hair can take a certain treatment I will tell the client this and suggest another alternative. It would be very easy for me to sell many additional services to my clients, but I won't. Based on the value I have for my clients and the end result I am after, I would much rather see all my clients walking around with beautiful, healthy hair they are able to work with and love.

In closing, I do not have a problem with "styling products", they are fine, but the product is not there to create the style or make it stay where it is supposed to, products should be used simply to enhance what is already there!

Take care of yourself and your hair.

1st-quarter onslaught carries John Glenn

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

Westland John Glenn was ready this time for Detroit Kettering.

The Rockets opened their football season Friday night in grand style, pouncing on the late-arriving Pioneers for 21 first-quarter points en route to a 28-8 victory.

Glenn, a 25-7 loser at Kettering in last year's opener, played a dominating first half, building a 28-0 advantage.

"We were more prepared than a year ago, we had a better plan," Glenn coach Chuck Gordon said. "Kettering was hit hard by graduation, but it's nice to get off to a good start because being 0-1 is not fun."

"We hope we can find something to build on from this game because we know our schedule is only going to get tougher."

Kettering, last year's Detroit Public School League runner-up, was assessed a 15-yard penalty to start the game after arriving at the Glenn field at 6:52 p.m. for a 7 p.m. start.

Officials gave the Pioneers a 20-minute warmup and Glenn elected not to take the ball, but go on defense first after Will Kennedy booted the ball into the end zone.

Glenn's defense stopped Kettering on its first series on three downs and quickly went to work offensively after a Pioneer punt traveled just 17 yards.

Anthony Davis, Glenn's 5-foot-10, 173-pound tailback, scored with 6:58 left in the quarter on a 7-yard touchdown and Andrew Peiffer added the first of his four straight extra points.

Brent Turner then made a big hit on the Kettering kickoff return and Peiffer recovered at the Pioneers' 14.

Three plays later, Davis scored on a 1-yard run to give Glenn a 14-point cushion with 5:09 left in the period.

With 3:22 left in the same quarter, DeAnthony Grandberry intercepted a Kettering pass and made a nice return to the Pioneers' 43. Grandberry coughed the ball up just inside the Kettering 50 on the return, but Peiffer pounced on the loose ball.

Grandberry then ripped off a 32-yard run and added Glenn's third TD in the period on a 2-yard jaunt.

The two junior tailbacks combined for 90 yards on nine carries in the opening quarter.

"Both for their first varsity starts I thought they ran hard,"

Gordon said. "And you've got to have backs who run that hard."

"And I thought our offensive line really made a lot of progress in a week. We were disappointed with their play in our scrimmage, so we came back and had them concentrate more on their assignments and their techniques."

With 9:55 left in the second quarter, Glenn scored again as Davis racked up his third TD on a 7-yard run to make it 28-0.

Meanwhile, the Rockets' defense held Kettering in complete check during the opening half. The Pioneers had just 38 total yards.

"We were nervous about their speed and we had to make sure we got everybody in the right place as far as pursuit because they can break one at any time," Gordon said.

The Pioneers never got off any big gains with the exception of a 48-yard TD pass from quarterback Marcus Ford to Howard Gaston in the final minute.

Ford was held to three of 10 for 59 yards. The Pioneers had only 70 net yards on the ground in 24 attempts.

"We didn't play well tonight, we had a ton of errors," said Kettering coach Robert Hunt, who refused to use the late bus arrival as an excuse. "We didn't tackle and we didn't play well defensively. And our quarterback had some first-game jitters."

"It took us the whole first half to find out what was going on. We also had poor field position, but the bottom line is that we weren't ready to play."

Glenn finished with 231 total yards and 13 first downs (to Kettering's five). Davis had 108 yards in 17 carries, while Grandberry added 50 on just three carries. Junior quarterback Brian Ceckiewicz was four of 11 passing for 61 yards.

"Their backs may not be as explosive as Dan Smitherman," said Hunt of the Glenn grad who finished with a school-record 2,225 yards rushing last year. "But their backs broke a lot of tackles. I'm happy Smitherman was not here, but that group out there (Davis and Grandberry) is solid."

"Glenn blocked well and they got to our quarterback. They played fundamental football."

Although things got sloppy, the Rockets were able to maintain control for much of the second half as well despite not scoring.

"We got some breaks early and we took advantage of them," Gordon said. "And we were able to ride that momentum the entire game."

it was recovered by Spencer, whose extra point made it 18-0.

"We were still in the game at halftime," Cummings stressed. "But it took a lot out of our team when they scored off the blocked punt early in the third quarter. That's definitely something we have to work on."

Pioneer sealed the deal with 22 seconds left in the third quarter when Williams ran untouched into the end zone from four yards out to make it 24-0. The touchdown capped a 13-play, 55-yard drive that was kept alive by a roughing-the-punter penalty against Salem.

The Rocks netted just 39 yards in total offense compared to Pioneer's 225 yards. Senior running back Myron Covington was the Rocks' top gainer, picking up 21 yards on 10 carries. Hewitt, who was sacked twice and intercepted once, completed just one pass — a 4-yard out to Covington.

"Defensively, I thought we played pretty well in the first half," Cummings assessed.

Senior linebacker Wes Boyde turned in a stellar effort with 13 tackles. Senior defensive tackle Zack Jensen also played well for Salem, recording a fumble recovery and several stops.

Pioneer was victorious despite getting whistled for 10 penalties totaling 85 yards. Salem committed four infractions for 25 yards.

Chiefs — B1

TDs. Wilcox got the first on a 1-yard dive on the first play of the fourth period, capping a 64-yard, 11-play drive. The key play in that drive was a 28-yard pass from Murphy to Chris Smilo to the Ypsi 1-yard line.

Canton's final points came from its second unit, with Nate Twietmeyer hauling in a 29-yard pass to the Braves' 17 and Dave Nicoloff scoring on the next play. The Chiefs converted a two-point conversion when holder Brian Richardson grabbed a bobbled snap and tossed a pass to Smilo.

In the final analysis, Canton's defense was dominant and its offense was plenty good enough. On Friday, the Chiefs have their home opener in a Western Lakes Activities Association crossover against North Farmington, a 42-12 loser to Northville Friday.

League affiliation: Western Lakes Activities Association (Western Division).
Last year's overall record: 5-16.
Notable losses to graduation: Kate Hagan.
Leading returnees: Deanna DeRoo, 5-8 Sr. F; Sallie Kuratko, 5-7 Sr. G; Robin Muir, 5-5 Sr. G; Lindsay Cecil, 5-5 Sr. G; Courtney Koen, 5-11 Jr. F; Rachel Morgan, 5-9 Jr. F.

Winkle's '01 outlook: "I expect us to be improved. We have some returning players who are good with the ball, girls who can make an impact in games."

"I'm happy with the output we showed at team camp, also in our summer league along with our overall conditioning."

"We have speed and ballhandling, so we're going to push it and get transition baskets. But we also want to be effective in the half-court offense."

"Defensively we want to pressure our opponents and limit layups."

"Besides DeRoo and Kuratko, we have some others who are threat to score. Cecil is a shooter who has potential to step up and have a big game. I'm not going to be hesitant to come with people off the bench."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN

Head coach: Mary Kay Whalen, first season.
League affiliation: WLAA (Western Division).
Last year's overall record: 5-15.
Notable losses to graduation: Kerstin Marshall.
Leading returnees: Jenie D'Annunzio, 5-6 Sr. G; Ashley McCall, 5-9 Jr. F-C; Gabrielle Nixon, 5-8 Sr. G; Ashley Sako, 5-7 Jr. G; Olivia Mauricio, 5-8 Sr. F.

Whalen's '01 outlook: "We're small, but athletic. We've been working hard defensively. We'll press and try and cause turnovers. We'll be uptempo because we don't have a lot of size. We'll try and create stuff all over the court."

"Offensively we're coming along. D'Annunzio is our best shooter and offensive threat. Nixon is our floor leader. McCall is a tough rebounder, she'll battle with anybody. Schniers is also coming along."

"Our seniors are our leaders, but we also have a good, young group."

"If we play good defense, we'll stay with teams."

Rozman's '01 outlook: "We have a big gap to fill with a freshman (Troselli replacing Guskick). She's small, but strong and has very good skills. She has good court sense and very productive summer for us. I'm looking forward to having her four years."

 "We're trying to figure out what our offensive niche is going to be. I think we have more options this year with the kind of defenses we can run. We'll be pressing. This group has more quickness so we're going to try to create as much as we can defensively."

"Hollandsworth is versatile. She can play guard and post. We have a lot of people who can play various positions. We have a lot of interchangeable parts and it's a group of hard workers."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN

Head coach: John Albrecht, second season.
League affiliation: WLAA (Lakes Division).
Last year's overall record: 5-16.
Notable losses to graduation: None.

Promising newcomers: Erica Novack, 5-6 Jr. G.

Albrecht's '01 outlook: "We'll play a ball possession-type offense. We'll be deliberate and make very possession count. Defensively, we'll play man-to-man."

"I think we'll be improved. It may not show in wins and losses, but we should be more competitive."

"The core group is very committed and worked very hard in the off-season."

"Senior Crystal Davis has really made strides and Thauvette is stronger. She played point last year as a freshman and made only 49 turnovers in 21 games. She's an intelligent girl. Tyree is a good shooter and she has to do a good job inside."

Gorski's '01 outlook: "Jana Beumel had a great summer. She's more aggressive in her role and plays all five sports. Her scoring was a pleasant surprise."

"Watts has improved her passing and is probably our best outside shoot. Hesano is also a good shooter. Amber Willoughby will play the point."

"Liz Obrecht has always been excellent at rebounding and defense, now she needs to be more of a scorer for us. We're also looking for the intangibles such as leadership."

"Sventickas has improved her range and can handle the ball. She can play some guard and forward. She's one of the top three as far as quickness and we expect her to pick up her scoring."

NATURE NOTES

TIM NOWICKI

Loons lead to other discoveries

The marvels of migration make many animals pass by our area. Several species of birds in particular are only seen as they move north or south in spring and fall. Just the other day my wife and my son were driving past Newburgh Lake and saw a common loon. This bird was starting its southern journey to the Florida coast along the Atlantic or the Gulf of Mexico. Some Michigan birds may winter along the Atlantic farther north than Florida.

Back in the late 1800s, loons were nesting on many lakes in southeastern Michigan. People were able to see them all summer long and note their arrival in late March and early April. Their nest would have been along the shore of an undisturbed part of the lake. Loons have to nest on floating mats of vegetation, small islands with a gentle slope to the shore, or right next to the shore. They are unable to walk on land because their feet are set so far back on their body.

A lake must be at least 10 acres in size. This is important for a couple reasons.

First, there must be enough food to feed their two young plus the adults. The second reason is that loons need to run along the surface of the lake before they can take flight.

They need to run far enough in order to get enough lift for their heavy body. A loon that accidentally lands on the ground cannot take flight without some help.

Loons are designed for diving to catch fish. Solid bones, unlike the hollow bones of most birds, help loons stay underwater.

Feet of a loon are positioned farther back on their body than most diving birds so they can push their entire body forward. They are masters at diving and catching fish, but on land they are helpless.

Now that lakes in southeastern Michigan are so heavily used and so developed along the shoreline, loons are restricted to nesting in the northern two-thirds of the state. We see them only during migration to and from those nesting lakes.

In the evening I searched for the loon, but did not see it.

However, while at Newburgh Lake I did see two caspian terns. This relatively uncommon bird nests in isolated areas of northern Michigan.

Some populations are found along the Saginaw Bay shoreline and islands, other populations are found in the Beaver Island region.

These two birds were also heading to the southern Atlantic Ocean coast line and the Gulf of Mexico to spend the winter. Fortunately, I got to see them and hear them before they left.

I recognized them as caspian terns by their long-pointed wings characteristic of terns and their large bill and body.

The common tern is the most frequently seen tern in our area. It has the same basic coloration as the caspian, light gray to white breast and belly, black cap to the head, and a reddish beak.

Caspian terns are almost twice as big and the bill is much more massive.

Both caspian terns were wheeling through the air spinning around each other as they made a primitive call. Maybe they were discussing the fishing opportunities in the lake and whether they should return next spring to hunt for food. Hopefully the loon was successful and will return again, too.

I don't know if loons and caspian terns were seen on Newburgh Lake before they cleaned it up, but this may be an encouraging sign regarding its recovery.

Out-of-staters sweep the trimmed-down Triathlon

Out-of-state competitors swept the male and female overall places in the Aug. 19 Newburgh Lake Duathlon sponsored by the Friends of Wayne County Parks.

The scheduled triathlon was called off because of heavy rains the night before causing unacceptable water bacteria levels. The duathlon portion attracted at total of 164 competitors and two teams.

Frank Pattison, 30, of North Olmsted, Ohio, was the male and overall champion in one hour, 8 minutes and 38 seconds in the 5-kilometer run, 14-mile bike and 5K run.

Pattison's first 5K, including the transition, was clocked in 16:55 followed by a 34:30 in the bike and a 17:15 in the final 5K run.

Westland's Lee Shaw, a former Eastern Michigan University runner, took second in 1:13:19.

Jennifer Schliffe, 28, of Chicago, Ill., was the women's champion in 1:26:09. Her 5K splits were 21:38 (including the first transition) and 22:37, respectively. Her bike time was 41:45.

Local age-group winners included Sam Manees of Canton (Male 15-17); Chris Wiznisky of Farmington (Male 18-20); and Maureen Mayes of Farmington Hills (Female 55-59).

Chicagoan Paul Egan, formerly of Livonia and a Catholic Central High School graduate, captured the Male 35-39 Division and was third overall in 1:17:47.

Gavie signals the start to the season

AL HARRISON

Can you imagine 84 teams of five bowlers each under one roof in one day for a tournament where the pride of winning is more important than cash prizes?

It happened last Monday night at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park as the 65th annual John P. Gavie Memorial Tournament took place.

There were lots of excellent scores throughout the house as proprietor Jim Strobl made sure that the lanes would be good. Not easy, but possible for a good shooter to score well.

Now that the Gavie Memorial Tournament has taken place, the new bowling season has officially begun.

Good luck to all the bowlers out there in our communities, who together make the greater Detroit area the largest and best bowling scene anywhere in the world.

The Gavie is the largest one day tournament of its kind anywhere.

More than a tournament, it is a social event where old friends get together again and renew friendships.

In the opening ceremonies, Aleta Sill was honored for her having been selected as one of Detroit's top ten athletes of all time, taking her place along with Gordie Howe, Bobby Layne, Joe Louis, Sheila Young and Dave Bing among others in connection with Detroit 300, the city's tri-centennial celebration this year.

The tournament was also dedicated to Dan Ottman of Troy in the men's division, Sill in the women's and Gene Stus in the Seniors.

The men's champion, Storm Team, consisted of Dick Beattie (700), Rick Eiermann (590), Brantley (715), Jeff Austreg (720) and Kevin Trumbull (705) for a winning total of 3,430.

High series in men's went to Vern Flowers, who shot an 803 series.

The winning team in the women's category was Turbo 2-N-1 Grips with Erica Mickowski (628), Shelley Zarick (659), Novella White (662), Lisa Pittaway (735) and Michelle Ewald (684) for a total of 3,368. The high game was a 299 bowled by Michelle Mullin while Pittaway's 735 took high series honors.

As for the seniors, it was Gil & Co with a winning total of 3,077 rolled by Gil Weems (527), Kit Floyd (520), James Jacks (597), Norman Johnson (631) and Will Lenox (610).

The nearly 500 bowlers who participated had a great time and each came away with a souvenir bag and a big smile.

The very next night, also at Thunderbowl, the Detroit Pepsi All-Star Classic began its 67th season.

This is the league that Joe Norris built. Incredibly, 25 percent of bowlers who are in the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame competed in this league at one time or other over the years.

They carry on the tradition of legendary bowlers of past years who helped establish the league as the standard of excellence.

They bowl in the Arena section, and the public is welcome any Tuesday night to watch some of the most proficient bowlers anywhere.

The Hamtramck Singles Detroit All-Star Traveling Classic bowls on Thursday nights at 30 different bowling centers in Metro Detroit. Many of the stars bowl in both leagues.

The rosters of the all-star leagues are full of great names from around the area, many of whom are present and future Hall-of-Famers.

Jim Kidd of Livonia was not kidding when he sent me the final results of the Regional PBA Tournament at Bowl One Lanes in Troy. It was he who emerged with the winning score of 703 in the Pro-Am event.

Kidd rolled a 202 after a slow start. Combined with Dave Traber's 277, it put him in position after one game. His next partner was Dale Strike with a 222, adding to Kidd's 236 for a 458 doubles total.

The final game was with Dave D'Entremont, who shot only a 192, but the rules in the Pro-Am give the amateur a minimum 200 pro score. Kidd rolled a 265, giving him a total of 1,402 and first-place prize money.

Kidd bowls regularly in the St. Genevieve's Men's League on Thursdays at Merri Bowl in Livonia and a mixed league at Skore Lanes every other Saturday.

The Pro-Am event in Professional Bowlers Association is always a good way to be bowling with the best bowlers in the nation, so be sure to visit the next PBA tour stop at Taylor Lanes.

Entry forms are on the counters at most area bowling centers.

Artist uses rainbow of colors in paintings

Al Weber's painting of a polar bear is the first thing visitors to his Canton home notice. The rainbow of color, created by 12 layers of watercolor, shimmers to life in the light.

It's easy to see why Weber has won so many awards for his work over the years. Painted after a photograph taken at the Brookfield Zoo in Chicago, the polar bear hung in a show in the House of Representatives building in Washington, D.C., for several months before returning to the prominent place on Weber's wall.

Weber maintains a file of some 5,000 slides he uses as reference for his paintings. Many were taken during the days he worked as a consultant for Ford Motor Co. Europe, Tokyo, Malaysia, Venezuela, Brazil - Weber paints all the places he's seen. "Drawing is the basis for art," Weber said modestly.

Weber developed his talent for perspective and composition as a student at Art Center College of Design in Pasadena, Calif., as visitors to his one-man show at the Plymouth Community Arts Council will see. The retrospective, which features a technical drawing of parts, and a crystal cruet on scratchboard, goes back to his college days in the early 1950s. Weber will talk about the work during a gallery walk Friday, Sept. 7, at the arts council.

Among the works not to be missed are Cool, Cool Water. A black-faced lamb watches as its mother drinks from a stream in this heart-touching scene. One of Weber's newest works, the painting was created after a trip to England. Weber and his wife, Edith, a native of England, enjoy visiting Derbyshire and the lake district often. In fact, one of the newer pieces captures the serenity of Edith's parents home in Derbyshire.

Other works show Weber's imagination at work. Using techniques such as squirting paint from a bottle or throwing acrylic-soaked string onto paper, Weber creates compositions from the abstract lines left from the process. "I try to make something out of it. I like experimenting with different techniques. This work I used marbled Jack Pierson is going to be a busy guy this Labor Day weekend. As a member of the education committee for the Ford Detroit International Jazz Festival, he's responsible for coordinating the performances of more than two dozen middle, high school and college bands from around the state.

But he's not complaining even though it means he'll barely have time to catch his breath between leading the Schoolcraft College Jazz Band 4 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31 on the Absopure Waterfront Stage and giving a clinic on improvisation 2:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 3 on the Jam Academy stage. A jam session follows. In between Pierson serves as one of the International Association of Jazz Educators judges assessing the school bands. At the end of the festival IAJE will award scholarships to a high school and college student.

But before that the 70-year-old jazz educator will direct the 18-piece Edsel Ford High School Jazz Band noon Sunday, Sept. 2 on the Ford Motor Company Amphitheater Stage.

"It's exciting to see it all fall into place," said Pierson, a Plymouth resident. Pierson also coordinates the IAJE Band which plays the newest jazz charts for directors and students. "It's a wonderful weekend downtown, so many things going on musically." Pierson doesn't mind all the hours he puts in even though he'll practically be living downtown during the four-day festival in Hart Plaza. Unlike today's young musicians, Pierson had plenty of opportunity to experience jazz while growing up in Cleveland. Every Saturday he would go to the Palace to listen to Glenn Miller and other big bands. Pierson began playing piano in 10th grade after buying his first Dizzy Gillespie record.

"In the old days when I was a kid I could go and set in and play with professional musicians in the clubs," said Pierson, now in his third year as director of the 20-piece Schoolcraft College Jazz Band. The group played the Michigan Jazz Festival at the college in July. "Today, kids are trained academically but they don't have the

Vocal group shines at jazz festival

To say Ginny Lundquist is excited about singing in the Ford Detroit International Jazz Festival is like saying the event draws a modest-sized crowd. Far from the truth, the festival is expected to lure three-quarters of a million jazz lovers to Hart Plaza over Labor Day weekend. And PRIME will be performing in front of all of them 5:45 p.m. Monday, Sept. 3 on the Kowalski Jefferson Avenue Jam Academy Stage.

Of course, it's not like PRIME hasn't appeared in front of large crowds before. In 1999, they performed at the granddaddy of all jazz festivals - Montreux in Switzerland. At the time, the group was on a European tour which included a stop at the North Sea Jazz Festival in Holland.

"The Detroit jazz festival is great," said Lundquist, an Orchard Lake resident and one of the founding members of the Farmington Community Chorus.

For a song: PRIME vocal jazz performs Monday, Sept. 3 at the Ford Detroit International Jazz Festival.

"It's one of the best things a jazz group can be in. Detroit is one of the homes of jazz."

But singing is only part of the fun for Lundquist who will be joined on stage by PRIME director Steve SeGraves of Plymouth; lead soprano Cat Hadrian, Hazel Park; alto Gwen Jacques, Novi; Carl Rinne (baritone/trombone), Ann Arbor; Dan Rafferty (bass), Waterford; Eileen Standley (keyboards), Plymouth; Takashi Iio (acoustic bass), Sterling Heights; Sheila Brown (drums), Canton; and Lundquist's husband Eric (sax/clarinet). In addition to performing songs ranging from Fats Waller's Honeysuckle Rose to the title cut from their CD, In a Mellow Tone, Lundquist is looking forward to seeing the New York Voices 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 2 on the Absopure Waterfront Stage, and Barbara Ware and the Matt Michaels Trio 6:45 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31 on the Motorcity Casino Pyramid Stage.

"New York Voices are four singers I really admire," said Lundquist who along with SeGraves and the rest of PRIME recently gave a workshop on jazz singing at Alma College. "They're led by Darmon Meader. He's really a talent. He's a tenor with a high range and does really wonderful scat solos."

Art on the Green attracts crowds year after year

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Deb Eliassen can't wait to display her glass work in this year's Art on the Green. The Farmington Hills artist probably won't be able to top the exhilaration she felt last year after winning best of show but she's willing to try.

For the last year, Eliassen's been creating new designs that could possibly win the highest of honors. Among them are the glowing glass vessels from her Anemone series. Eliassen sandblasts the exterior to make them look like they're lit from within.

"I'm excited," said Eliassen, a Farmington Hills resident. "And besides I really enjoyed Art on the Green last year. It's local. It's one day and it's a very nice tranquil setting on the grass in a park-like area."

Atmosphere is what draws fair goers to Art on the Green year after year. That and the fact it features more than 75 artists showing a variety of media.

"It's small enough that it's so accessible," said Peggy Kerr, president of the Franklin Arts Council which puts on the fair. "It's a small hometown event. People don't have to park miles away just to go to this. There's something for everyone - the excitement of the parade, the Round-up celebration next to us, the intimate setting. People make it a tradition."

In addition to listening to the Johnny Trudell Band and meeting Carol Shelby, creator of the Shelby Mustang and AC Cobra as part of the classic car show at the Round-up, Art on the Green visitors will be able to enjoy the music of Renny Kauffman and folk musicians Blackman and Arnold. Kids will have fun too. An art activities area includes mixed media projects plus the opportunity to color in a T-shirt design by VSA arts of Michigan student Katie Wise. The cost is $8 but parents will performance opportunity. The clinics and jam sessions help educate them.

"We have a handout for kids and encourage them to play and we tell them what things to practice to improve their improvisation skills, also who they should listen to. In jazz, that's probably the most important thing."

Pierson knows the importance of educating musicians at an early age. He taught music in Dearborn Schools for 35 years before retiring and becoming executive director of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association. Co-founder of the jazz studies program at Henry Ford Community College with Don Lupp, Pierson directed the band at the Montreux Jazz Festival in Switzerland in 1973 and the first Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival (now the Ford Detroit International Jazz Festival) 22 years ago.

"Every time it's a different set of kids for the improv clinic," said Pierson. "The challenge is you have kids in the audience who've never improvised and those who have. And you never know if there could be a Charlie Parker or Dizzy Gillespie out there who's never improvised so you try to get them to try it."

Bill Baxtresser can't forget the first time he soloed in one of the festival's jam sessions four years ago. Baxtresser plays trumpet with the Farmington Harrison High School Jazz Band as well as the Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra and Civic Jazz Band. Harrison's performance, noon Monday, Sept. 3 on the Absopure Waterfront Stage, marks the fourth time Baxtresser will perform in the festival.

"It opened my eyes to many different possibilities to what I'd been doing with improvisation," said Baxtresser who recently returned from a jazz camp in Lake Placid, N.Y. "And every performance you do is an educational experience. It's basically like a professional job. And playing in the festival is the most exposure we're going to receive for the Farmington Harrison Band."

Bittersweet

The group's performance is bittersweet for Mark Phillips. This is his final time directing the Farmington Harrison High School Jazz Band. He takes over as band director at West Bloomfield High School this fall.

"The kids are really excited about it," said Phillips, band director at Harrison for 21 years. "It's kind of special because I won't be back. It's our final farewell. We learned new songs for the festival including Steve Spiegl's Ber Ceuse for Mallory. It's a difficult time chart with alternating rhythms. I'm looking forward to having a lot of the kids doing improv solos."

"It's kind of an honor (to be in the jazz festival) because you have to do well at the state jazz festival," Phillips continued. "It's such a big venue and for them to be on stage with so many famous national and international musicians who are a part of it. To play at that festival is something they remember for the rest of their lives."

The Rochester West Middle School Jazz Band is one of the bands who vied for the honor of performing in the festival by earning high marks at Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association competitions held throughout the school year. Composed of eighth-graders, the 26-piece big band rehearses every day. It is one of two jazz groups Bob Kroll directs at West Middle School.

"A few of the kids had older brothers and sisters who performed at the festival so they had ambitions," said Kroll who grew up in Westland and graduated from Wayne Memorial High School. "The MSBOA process motivates them to perform well. They set a goal and worked toward achieving it. They made a commitment to themselves and the whole group. It pushed them. It raised the barre of their standards."

A professional saxophonist with Take Five, Kroll believes, like Pierson, that experience and listening to jazz is essential in developing young musicians.

"It's especially important for them to be able to see all those performers," said Kroll who's taught music at Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp since 1989. "Unlike 30 years ago, it's tough to see jazz performers, especially at that young an age."

"And it's important for them to perform in the festival. It's about the culture," continued Kroll who's played with The Contours, Temptations and Four Tops. "It's about being a performing musician."

community scholarships and organizations like VSA arts, which provides music and arts therapies programs for children and adults with disabilities.

VSA arts of Michigan

"We saw how art helped develop Katie Wise's abstract thinking," said Virginia Debenham Rodgers, arts council vice president. "It just goes to show that art can go a long way to help people with disabilities."

The art fair and council helps Birmingham Groves High School students as well. This year Carly Hoffman, Michael Denson and Robbie Madvin will exhibit their work for free thanks to sponsorship from the Franklin Arts Council.

"I'm excited about the three students from Birmingham Groves High School showing their art," said Kerr. "We started sponsoring a student last year for the 20th anniversary. It's important having the young kids. It's a way for them to get exposure and the opportunity to share their work."

Whimsical works

George Landino has been sharing his work with Art on the Green crowds for nearly all of its 21 years. An art teacher for 42 years in Birmingham Public Schools, Landino will bring whimsical, tongue-in-cheek works focusing on everything from cowboys and Indians to animals and sportsmen. One especially close to his heart is of a fisherman. Landino created the wooden sculpture in memory of his father. It features a man asleep in a boat while a whole school of fish swim under his line.

Landino will also bring boxes topped with themes ranging from dancers to cats, dogs and other animals.

"I like Art on the Green because it's a one day show, a rally before kids go back to school," said Landino who will do 11 shows this year including Only the Best, a national drawing exhibit Nov. 17-18 at the University of Michigan Track and Field House in Ann Arbor.

"They really have good artists at Art on the Green," quipped Landino. "It caters to art connoisseurs who want something special."

Custom design

Of course, one of the "good artists" Landino is talking about is Adam Shirley, a former student of his at Birmingham design studio on old Woodward in Birmingham.

Shirley will only do two shows this year because requests for his wedding and engagement rings keep him busy working 14 hour days. He'll bring a wide array of earrings, bracelets, necklaces, brooches, and rings to Art on the Green.

Precious metals

Shirley describes the gold, silver and platinum pieces as "contemporary, hard edge, industrial designs with matte finishes."

"I haven't done Art on the Green before but I lived just down the road and heard about it," said Shirley who received his bachelor of fine arts degree from Center for Creative Studies.

It's that reputation for offering quality art that keeps the crowds as well as artists coming back year after year.

"Our art show is like being in a candy store," said Kerr. "You can't decide what to buy."

Weber, pointing to a portrait of a woman. The colors in the woman's hair and face mirror the marbled paper it's painted on.

"This 'one was done after squirting paint on paper from a bottle. It's good discipline and develops creativity."

Weber's love of cars can be seen in several of the paintings including Packard Brass. The work was featured in the 1999 Michigan Water Color Society exhibition. The gold hardware literally glows on this close-up painting of a headlamp from a 1910 Packard.

Weber has a way with cars. And no wonder. He worked as a clay modeler at Ford's Design Center in Dearborn for 20 years.

Trees and sky reflect in the hood of a 3.8 litre Jaguar from the early 1960s. A painting of a late 1950s D type Jaguar was exhibited in the Eye on the Classics Show at the Ford Estate in Grosse Pointe.

But there's more. A Shire colt rests in the fields at Domino's Farms in Ann Arbor. According to Weber, the muscular beauties were originally developed in England to carry knights and their heavy armor and then later used as draft horses.

Weber paints a range of subjects from street musicians in New Orleans to a Ukrainian cellist appearing with the Livonia Symphony Orchestra. They're all here in his lower level studio where he's currently working on a commission featuring 1981 and 1991 Morgans, a handmade British car.

"Over the 19 years I've been doing fine art, I've gotten a lot looser and have more knowledge about working with pigments, how they work physically, how they work with water, will they lay over another color?"

It's apparent by looking at the paintings, Weber's having no trouble mastering the transparent, opaque and staining colors.

A summer of surfing without getting wet

BY ALICE RHEIN STAFF WRITER
OK, the gig is up. Party's over. August is coming to a close, and thus begins the unofficial end of summer.

I still think the Detroit Institute of Arts has one of the most comprehensive visual resources Web sites as it continues to catalog its collection on www.dia-mondial.org.

York. Bridget Riley, whose abstract op-art paintings I tried to replicate in my Barbie house in the '60s, was featured there this summer, and the Web site www.dia-center.org gives viewers a taste of art from her perspective.

Where did it go, you ask? I'm wondering the same thing. You see, even though you've seen my smirking face every Sunday throughout the summer, I haven't been at work.

Many works that you wouldn't find on the walls are shown on the site, including some by local artists including Dirk Bakker and Stephen Goodfellow.

Next, it was off to Chicago to see what was happening at the Field Museum, www.fieldmuseum.org.

No, through the miracles of modern technology, I've been sending in my stories to my trusty copy editors while I've been home nursing my new cutie pie.

Yep, everyone thinks it's been a summer of bon bons and soap operas for me. But you moms among us know better.

Let's just say that when I wanted to do a phone interview with the former director of the Louvre, and his press agent said he only would do interviews between 8 and 10 in the morning French time, I said, no problem.

Sleep deprived or not, there is absolutely nothing more special than spending those first precious months with a new baby. But I did miss out on a summer vacation, which usually involves large cities and numerous art galleries.

Next Best Thing
So I did the next best thing. I took a virtual vacation via some pretty great gallery Web sites.

But for a couple hours there, I was strolling through some of my favorite places in the world. Internet art doesn't come close to capturing the real thing, but it's sure a heck of a lot better than Jerry Springer.

Book details end of an era

The Final Season
Tom Stanton

Grandmothers knitted sweaters as they kept score of the ballgame. Children with baseball gloves in hand would chase down foul balls and home runs in pursuit of the ultimate Tiger Stadium souvenir—the baseball.

That factor will always separate Comerica Park from Tiger Stadium.

BY CHARLES LASTER SPECIAL WRITER
Tiger Stadium has always been an oasis amidst a concrete expanse. Within this structure, children were able to dream, adults were able to marvel and the elderly were able to reminisce.

In his book, The Final Season, Macomb County resident Tom Stanton has captured the aura of one of baseball's landmark stadiums as it hosted the Detroit Tigers in its final season.

By linking Tiger Stadium to four generations of his working class family, Stanton has provided an insight of not only the changing American family, but also the changes that have occurred in the city of Detroit and its baseball team.

For a person passing through the concourses of the ballpark for the first time, the view was one of astonishment. The beautifully manicured field with the green seats as a background was not what one would expect when first encountering the exterior of the stadium. From a distance, it has been described as having the appearance of a battleship. Inside, marvelous events were taking place.

What will link these two venues is the fact that Detroit Tigers baseball will be played at Comerica Park. Fathers will establish bonds with their children and new memories will be established in this new venue.

Stanton appears bitter that this link to generations of his family is doomed to end. He says a new stadium will never capture the sights, smells and sounds of the old ballpark.

Who is to say whether he is right or wrong?

Most certainly there will never be a Ty Cobb, Hank Greenberg, Charlie Gehringer or Al Kaline gracing the Tigers' new home, Comerica Park, but there will be other ballplayers.

The game has changed where allegiances are rare and players will follow the money. We probably will not have athletes playing in Detroit for decades as Al

Simply the best

Shopping has a price, but affords an experience

Pretty package: With its elaborately painted front door and cozy, quaint interior, Ribbons gift store in downtown Birmingham took first place for best store decor and best store exterior and signs in Oakland County.

Mammoth shopping malls or quaint downtown districts?

A department store, mom-and-pop shop, big box outlet or upscale boutique?

The best place to shop, it seems, largely depends on the type of shopping one has in mind.

With a category like best malls and mainstreets for people-watching, the Observer & Eccentric's retail survey speaks to the reality that shopping transcends mere commerce.

The shopping experience

For Jean Chuey, the 45-minute drive from her home in Livonia to the Somerset Collection is well worth the effort.

"I don't go there often, but when I do, I always have good experiences," said Chuey, who voted the Troy mall as best for shopping overall. She also named it as best for people watching, window shopping and eats.

"I usually make a day trip out of it. It's more of a leisure type of day, but I always end up buying a few things," she said, adding she feels similarly about spending a day in downtown Birmingham, which she selected as best for shopping overall.

Surprisingly, a number of Wayne County residents voted for Oakland County shopping spots - namely Somerset, Birmingham and Great Lakes Crossing in Auburn Hills - in the survey portion devoted to malls and mainstreets.

At play is the shopping experience - atmosphere in combination with other elements.

But when Chuey has a shopping list in hand and limited time to spare, she heads to Laurel Park Place in Livonia because "for me, it's really close."

Obviously, those who live near Somerset can rely on the mall for both power shopping and leisurely browsing. Not surprisingly, Somerset split the vote with Laurel Park Place as best for speedy shopping since the quickest shopping is closest to home (we received an equal number of ballots from readers living in Wayne and Oakland counties).

Big guys, little guys

In today's media-driven culture it's tough for consumers to escape the draw of large national retailers, and plenty of the big guys, from Marshall Field's and Nordstrom, to Sharper Image, Toys-R-Us and Hallmark, fared well in the survey.

But a healthy handful of the little guys showed they can compete. Again, sometimes a unique experience outweighs other factors in shopping.

Ribbons, a tiny, beautifully decorated gift store in downtown Birmingham known for its elaborately painted front door, won for best store decor and best store exterior in Oakland County. Ribbons' closest competitors were Neiman Marcus, Marshall Field's and Saks Fifth Avenue.

Other independent retailers selected by Oakland County shoppers were Studio 330 in Bloomfield Township for best gifts and Blossoms in downtown Birmingham for best florist.

Likewise, the unique sophistication of Birmingham and quaint hometown character of Plymouth explain why these downtowns were standout winners.

Something for everybody

Overall, the Somerset Collection took home more than its fair share of accolades in the best mall category.

But the fact is the mall houses hundreds of stores and appeals to a wide range of shoppers. A whopping 70 stores there do not have locations elsewhere in Michigan, including Tiffany & Co. and Gucci on the higher end of the scale, as well as, more moderately priced stores like RCBG.

However, Great Lakes Crossing stole some of the thunder, winning best for bargains and best for kids and family in the malls survey.

Anyone who's been to the mall knows there's an appealing shopping experience for everybody.

While mom shops for designer clothing at Saks Off 5th, dad can play a game of simulated golf at Bass Outdoor World and the kids can get lost at Gameworks. Later the whole family can have lunch in the jungle at the Rainforest Cafe.

The price is right

Besides, there are thousands of excellent bargains to be had at the outlet stores at Great Lakes Crossing.

Today's shoppers not only crave discounts and deals, they develop a loyalty to retailers who provide them.

While the bargain factor contradicts the shopping-as-experience idea, don't forget there's an exchange of money involved.

Numerous stores well known for discounted prices were favored by readers in the survey.

Best Buy won for best for high tech in Wayne County. Tapper's Fine Jewelry & Diamonds in West Bloomfield took best jewelry store in Oakland County. Thrifty Florist was the preferred florist among Wayne County readers.

When it came to buying shoes, readers from both counties favored a good deal, DSW Shoe Warehouse in Oakland County and Payless in Wayne County.

But, hey, isn't a great bargain an experience in itself?

Family fun: At Great Lakes Crossing, which won best mall for the family, kids can play at Gameworks while their parents shop.

Put-In-Bay's landscape is both picturesque, historic

BY MARY RODRIQUE
STAFF WRITER
mrodrique@oe.homecomm.net

Cruising along Lake Erie on a Jet Express ferry boat to Put-In-Bay, Ohio, on a glorious summer day felt like being transported somewhere far from home.

But day trippers from the Detroit area can get into quick vacation mode on this tourist island just a short drive from Toledo. It's 20 miles this side of Cedar Point - 90-minute ride there, 90 minutes back home and a fun day sandwiched in-between.

Never having been on this little island jewel in the western part of the smallest Great Lake, I found Put-In-Bay - actually a village on South Bass Island - to be a charming mix of old and new places.

Perry's Victory and International Peace Monument pokes high above the Victorian homes, gift shops and restaurants in town. This memorial to a turning-point battle in the War of 1812 is run by the National Park Service and is the most prominent attraction visible on approaching the island. It commemorates Commodore Oliver Perry's naval victory over the British in the Battle of Lake Erie.

Historic

Built between 1912 and 1915, the tower features an open air observation deck 317 feet above Lake Erie. The monument is also a tribute to nearly two centuries of peace between the U.S. and Canada. On a clear day like the day we visited, Ontario's Pelee Island was visible to the east from the observation deck.

Put-In-Bay has everything from a state park to museums and winery tours - even 18 holes of miniature golf on the theme of the War of 1812. Visitors can rent bicycles, motor scooters or golf carts. We opted for a golf cart, a handy way to tool around town and see the un-touristy areas as well. About 500 residents make their year-round home on the island.

Unlike Mackinac Island, cars are allowed here, but discouraged. The Jet Express we took from Port Clinton, Ohio, is a passenger-only service. Miller Boat Line from Catawba, Ohio, has auto-passenger ferries. Cars are definitely not needed.

A Lake Erie island is described as a small continent with its own weather. We toured the Heine-man Winery, a small family owned operation established in 1888 and now run by the fifth generation of the Heine-man family. Although the winery is very local - the wines are sold on the island only or shipped by mail - the process described by a well-informed guide was interesting. And the $5 admission charge included a visit to the Crystal Cave, located directly below the winery. It ended with either a free glass of wine or grape juice produced on site.

Historic: The National Monument to a War of 1812 battle.

Put-In-Bay has several caves, but only two are open to the public. The larger, Perry's Cave, features an underground stream and a year-round temperature of 42 degrees. Crystal Cave is really the world's largest known geode, with 10-sided crystals poking out on all sides.

There's something for every taste at Put-In-Bay. Shoppers can browse dozens of gift shops. Nature lovers can visit the Alaskan Birdhouse Wildlife Museum with more than 100 species of North American wildlife in their natural habitat.

Have kids with you? Visit the Aquatic Visitors Center run by the Ohio Division of Wildlife. See live fish exhibits, hands-on displays, and a chance for kids to fish for free - fishing gear and bait provided. An old-fashioned wooden horse carousel in the center of town offers rides for $1.50.

Pristine: A view of Put-In-Bay from the national monument (above). Swimmers (right) enjoy the beach at the state park in Put-In-Bay.

Driving around in the golf cart, we stumbled upon a small airport. Sightseeing and air tours are available. Kayaking and para-sailing are other ways to get unusual views of the island.

There are motels and bed-and-breakfast inns on the island for those who wish a longer stay.

Summer is fading fast. But Put-In-Bay is open through autumn with bird watching opportunities, fall festivals and island celebrations.

For information about the area, call the Ottawa County Visitors Bureau (800) 441-1271 or visit www.lake-erie.com

Pickled okra? It's a great southern treat

I sat and stared at the little veggie on my plate. My wife and I stopped for lunch after spending the morning at the South Carolina Aquarium in Charleston, S.C. I originally wanted a sandwich or a salad, but instead ordered that day's wonderful chef charcuterie dish at the Slightly North of Broad (yes, that's the name of the restaurant). That dish featured rabbit rillettes, a country paté and a chicken liver mousse.

Once the plate arrived, I studied the four little green pickled okra sitting on the edge of the plate.

Now I know I've eaten these vegetables before in gumbos or jambalaya dishes, but this time, I was enjoying them on their own. Pickled okra. I just had to try one before I dipped into the meats.

Enjoying a snappy treat

I bit into one and enjoyed a crisp, snappy taste. Obviously the meat dish and its variety of flavors of rabbit and chicken liver were the highlights of my lunch, and one I thoroughly enjoyed.

Southerners enjoy it (okra) breaded with cornmeal and fried, similar to the infamous fried green tomatoes, but okra probably tastes more like eggplant.

But I was somewhat fascinated by these little green guys, so I decided to read up more on the subject of okra.

Okra is believed to have been brought to the United States nearly 300 years ago by African slaves. Grown in tropical and warm temperature climates, it is in the same family as the hibiscus and cotton plants. Since it is grown in many subtropical nations, Indian cooking also features okra prominently.

Southerners enjoy it breaded with cornmeal and fried, similar to the infamous fried green tomatoes, but okra probably tastes more like eggplant. Okra also releases a thickening substance when it is cut, making it useful for soups and stews. In Swahili, okra is referred to as "gumbo" and that name to that dish.

Okra can be served with tomatoes, onions, various peppers and eggplant. It is an excellent source of fiber, and a half-cup has nearly 10 percent of the daily requirement of vitamin B6 and folic acid.

Start it from seed

You should grow it from seed as it doesn't transplant well, and you must wait until about 10 days after the last frost. After it grows for about the next six or seven weeks, the pods usually form about 4 days after flowers appear and they must be harvested when young, at about 2 inches long.

If a knife doesn't enter the pod easily, then it has overripened and probably is woody and tough. The pods ripen rapidly, so they need to be harvested quickly. Seeds can be saved for next year's crop. Some species of the okra plant can grow tall, and it is a nice ornamental plant for a garden, as evidenced in gardens we visited in Old Salem in Winston-Salem, N.C., an old Moravian settlement preserved for the public to enjoy.

Southerners enjoy okra year-round. Here it is often available from May to October, but even then, it isn't always easy to locate. Your best bet is to just ask at your favorite produce market when they may have it.

So go ahead and fry it up or sauté it with some garden fresh tomatoes this harvest season. And if you can't find any okra, enjoy zucchini or eggplant for your own sautéed vegetable medley instead.

King of the Grill A YANKEE CHASES AFTER MEMPHIS BBQ

BY NICOLE STAFFORD
STAFF WRITER
nstafford@oe.homecomm.net

"At least we can get ourselves a decent meal - down at the Rendezvous."
- Memphis in the Meantime, John Hiatt

When R.J. Dreyer attended college in Memphis, somebody must have cast a southern spell on him.

Only sorcery could explain his determination to make barbecued ribs - the right way.

"There's the right way and my way, and they're both the same thing," says Dreyer, 38, who lives in Bloomfield Township and grew up in Midland.

Actually, the right way in Dreyer's southern-educated opinion is the way barbecued ribs come at the Rendezvous, a landmark Memphis barbecue joint that first opened in 1948. It seats 100 patrons and is tucked away in the basement of a building in an alley.

That musician John Hiatt refers to the restaurant in a song about Memphis only goes to show how beloved the Rendezvous is to the city.

Dreyer not only attended college in Memphis, but also worked as a waiter across the street from the restaurant at the Peabody Hotel.

Before going to work, he and his buddies customarily met there for a slab of the tender ribs and a few beers.

"The first time I went to the Rendezvous, I was wondering 'where's the sauce?'" he recalls.

The restaurant makes their ribs with a dry rub and no sauce in the traditional Memphis barbecue style.

"Then, your eyes kind of open up and you realize this is pretty good barbecue."

While local restaurants like Memphis Smoke in Royal Oak do a good job representing the style of barbecue ribs, nothing compares to the fare at the Rendezvous, says Dreyer. "I want people to be able to experience what I have, what I feel are the best ribs ever made."

Love me tender

With that in mind, Dreyer has spent the last six years refining his technique for making barbecue ribs. The process occurs over the course of three days, yielding ribs with meat that literally "falls off the bone."

"Everyone says 'cook 'em slow, cook 'em low,'" he says in defense of his barbecue process.

The cooking odyssey begins with a dry rub - Dreyer uses a bottled one bought from the Rendezvous - and overnight sit in the refrigerator.

The following day, he cooks the ribs at a low temperature for four hours, after which he returns them to the refrigerator for another overnight rest. Following a second low heat stint in the oven, the ribs are smoked over hickory wood chips on an outdoor grill.

While Dreyer admits he's privy to insider tips on southern barbecue and has years worth of experience perfecting his recipe, he insists making them isn't difficult or, for that matter, time-consuming.

It has more to do with an old-fashioned Southern virtue: patience.

Southern roots

Dreyer can't pinpoint the moment when the urge to duplicate the Rendezvous ribs came over him. He only knows his passion for them set him on a course no less urgent than a religious calling.

After finishing his undergraduate work and leaving Memphis, Dreyer frequently visited the city in large part to get what he describes as "your fix" of barbecue.

Make your Labor Day aperitif a little unusual

Would you like an aperitif?

A very French question. Exceedingly charming in Paris. Never asked on these shores where cocktail is the term used. Call it either, but if you've not tried Lillet (pronounced Lee-LAY) ditch the white wine or bubbly and try it at a Labor Day celebration next weekend.

The etymology of the French word aperitif, as well as the Italian aperitivo, derives from the Latin aperire meaning to open. That fits with the idea of opening up or stimulating the appetite with an aperitif. Lillet does that and more.

What is Lillet?

Lillet, the only aperitif produced in the Bordeaux region of France, is also the best-selling French aperitif in the U.S. and one of the top 10 selling French aperitifs in the world.

Unlike other wine-based aperitifs such as vermouth, it is produced from quality Bordeaux wines. Sufficiently high quality to qualify it for bottling at petits chateaux. It is not cooked, oxidized, artificially concentrated or flavored with herbs.

Just like wines from Bordeaux, Lillet, created in 1887, now comes in two colors - blanc (white) or rouge (red). It is made from a blend of 85 percent Bordeaux wine enhanced by the addition of 15 percent subtle fruit liqueurs sourced around the world. About 70 percent of the production is Blanc but Rouge is growing rapidly in popularity.

Lillet is vinified in cellars built in the 1800s and located some 20 miles south of the city of Bordeaux in the town of Podensac, on the dividing line between the two wine regions of Graves and Sauternes.

How to enjoy Lillet

Lillet Blanc $17 has a golden-honey color and floral bouquet with hints of candied orange rind, lime and fresh mint. Lillet Rouge $17 has the intense aroma of fresh oranges and red berry fruit. Hints of spice and vanilla add charm.

Well chilled, both are enjoyed neatly served in a stemmed Bordeaux wine glass containing a flambéed zest of orange, lemon, lime or grapefruit. To flambé, squeeze a sliver of citrus peel of your choice over a lighted match held an inch or two above the glass. Aromatic oils drop into the glass adding the zest aromas to the drink. Actually, the flambé technique is an American innovation, but one that has caught on in France also.

For full enjoyment, don't serve Lillet on the rocks because it dilutes the flavors. But you can pretend to be James Bond in Ian Fleming's Casino Royal and shake up a James Bond Martini (also known as a Vesper Martini).

Shake three parts gin, one part vodka and one part Lillet Blanc with ice and pour into a frozen martini glass garnished with fresh lemon zest.

Once opened, a re-corked bottle of Lillet will keep 10 days to two weeks in a refrigerator.

Farmington Hills chef takes grand prize

STAFF WRITER

mrodrique@oe.homecomm.net

It was a grand day for Farmington Hills chef Valerie Boguslawski.

The schoolteacher and recent graduate of Oakland Community College's culinary arts program topped the competition at the final cook-off of the Alize Culinary Mentorship Challenge in New York City on Aug. 15.

Boguslawski's recipe entry, Alize Triple Grand Terrine, was chosen by a panel of top notch women chefs and restaurateurs as the ultimate winner after being served at a three-course luncheon at Verbena Restaurant and Courtyard Garden.

"I still cannot believe it," she said this week. "I was competing with two young women who both had restaurant experience. I'm honored."

Paris bound

She wins a scholarship to the famed culinary school, Le Cordon Bleu, in Paris, France and a month-long apprenticeship to Verbena's owner and executive chef, Diane Forley, in New York City. Boguslawski can choose any six-week curriculum at Le Cordon Bleu. She's opted for pastry making. That will be followed by the apprenticeship at Forley's three-star Manhattan eatery.

Kobrand, the makers of Alize, a beverage which combines French cognac with fruit juice, sponsored the competition for women chefs. Joining Boguslawski in the Big Apple were fellow finalists Liz Young of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Pamela Neitenbach of Kahului, Hawaii. The three prepared, plated and presented their dishes to the panel of judges for a final tasting.

Top culinary judges

Judges included Anne Rozensweig of Inside, Gabriella Hamilton of Prune, Amy Sherber of Amy's Bread, Victoria Burghi of Union Square Cafe, and Heather Carlucci of Veritas. The menu began with Neitenbach's Alize Nut Duck Sausage, which was followed by Young's Pan Seared Scallops. But it was Boguslawski's complex, decadent terrine dessert that was unanimously chosen the winner after the votes were tallied.

Boguslawski made four terrines - each featured ribbon sponge cake encasing layers of vanilla, chocolate and cran-raspberry Bavarian cream. The frozen confections were drizzled with raspberry sauce and served with chocolate curls.

"There was only half of one cake left over," she said. "And the wait staff was digging into it with spoons."

She was one of more than 200 chefs to submit original recipes to the competition.

Boguslawski, on sabbatical from a 30-year teaching career, is a member of the Herb Society of America, a club whose members prepare gourmet meals each month. In the '80s, she won a AAA-sponsored amateur cooks contest for a meal made with all-Michigan ingredients. Earlier this year, Boguslawski earned a culinary degree with a pastry-baking certificate from OCC.

Mint adds to tabbouleh's freshness

SPECIAL WRITER

Mint is related to basil, thyme, oregano, rosemary and sage. It shows up in dishes all over the Mediterranean, where it originated.

Carried beyond the Mediterranean region as conquerors advanced and peasants emigrated, mint is now used in kitchens around the world.

Because it's such a popular herb in cooking and in making a soothing, refreshing tea, many cooks grow their own. Growing a patch is easy, although once established, it has a tendency to take over the garden.

In England, mint is used for making a sharp sauce and a sweet jelly. Both compliment the flavor of lamb and soothe digestion after eating a rich lamb roast or grilled chops. The French use mint mainly with green peas, and Italian cooks add it to their breadcrumb stuffing for artichokes, zucchini and other vegetables.

Mint is also popular in Greek and Turkish dishes and adds a bright, unexpected note to tabbouleh. Middle Eastern recipes call for it, both fresh and dried. In Morocco, mint tea, a sugary blend of the fresh herb and green tea, is ubiquitous.

Asian countries make other uses of this herb. Incendiary mint chutney and cooling raita, the combination of yogurt and cucumber with garlic and mint, are served with curries. In Vietnam, mint is part of the table salad at every day's lunch and dinner. Mint leaves, along with aromatic, Asian varieties of basil, are a customary addition to pho, the rich beef broth with rice noodles that is Vietnam's national dish. In Thailand, mint is used in some curries.

In the New World, Americans think of it mostly for flavoring mint juleps and garnishing berries and desserts. In Mexico, yerba buena, a wild spearmint with a taste reminiscent of oregano, is commonly added when cooking beans and other dishes.

Spearmint, one of the more than 25 varieties of mint, has broad, pointy, bright green leaves. Its mild taste is almost sweet. Darker, bitter and pungent peppermint is more suited to making tea. When buying mint, fresh or dried, taste it to make sure you are getting a full-flavored product.

MINT TABBOULEH

- 1/2 cup bulghur, cooked according to package directions
- 2/3 cup chopped mint, lightly packed
- 12 small cherry tomatoes, halved, or 6 large, quartered
- 1 small zucchini, finely diced
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 2 teaspoon extra virgin olive oil
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste

Drain cooked bulghur well and place in medium bowl. Add mint, tomatoes and zucchini. Toss with fork to combine. Add lemon juice and oil while tossing with fork. Season to taste with salt and pepper. This salad keeps in refrigerator, tightly covered, 1 day. Makes 4 servings.

Okra is delicious pickled or Creole-style

PICKLED OKRA

- 3 1/2 pounds small okra pods
- 4 or 5 garlic cloves, peeled
- 4 or 5 dried whole small hot red peppers
- 4 to 5 teaspoons dill seeds
- 6 teaspoons salt
- 4 1/2 cups white vinegar
- 1 1/2 cups water

Leave a small portion of the stem end on each okra pod. Rinse the okra and drain well. Pack enough okra into 4 or 5 one-pint jars to pack them firmly but leave 1/4 inch headspace. Insert 1 garlic clove, one hot red pepper and 1 teaspoon of dill seeds into each jar as you go along.

Combine the salt, vinegar and water and bring to a boil. Pour equal amounts of the boiling liquid to cover the okra, leaving 1/4 inch headspace. Seal tightly with screw-top lids. Process 10 minutes in a boiling water bath.

Recipe from "Craig Claiborne's Southern Cooking" (Times Books, a division of Random House, 1987)

CREOLE OKRA

- 2 pounds fresh okra, sliced 1/4 inch thick
- 1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon granulated garlic
- 1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper
- 2 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
- 1 cup chopped onions

- 1/2 cup chopped green bell pepper
- 1/2 cup chopped red bell pepper

Spray the inside of a 5-quart Dutch oven with nonstick vegetable cooking spray and place over high heat. Add the okra and sauté for 15 minutes or until okra is no longer slimy. Remove from heat and spray the surface of the okra with the cooking spray; then return the pot to high heat. Add vinegar, salt, garlic, white pepper and red pepper; cook and stir for 10 minutes. Add the tomatoes, onions and bell peppers and stir well. Remove from heat, spray again with cooking spray and return to heat, cooking for 10 minutes longer, stirring often.

Cook for about an hour between 200 and 300 degrees. Apply additional dry rub and basting sauce during the cooking process to obtain red-rust coloring.

R.J. Dreyer of Bloomfield Township uses a dry rub purchased from the Rendezvous restaurant in Memphis where he first fell in love with Memphis-style BBQ. Dreyer

Most years, he attends the city's annual summer barbecue festival where 250 teams smoke and grill in a competition that's closed to the general public.

Fortunately, Dreyer is able to attend because he has friends on some of the teams that compete.

"When I would go down there, I would go to the Rendezvous and eat until I couldn't move," he says of his visits.

On one occasion, he binged on the Rendezvous ribs, going to the restaurant the day before he would attend the barbecue festival and then the day after. To get his second "fix," he took a cab from his hotel and to get the ribs takeout. "I had the cab ride around the block while I picked up the ribs. It was like a $60 cab ride."

Eventually, Dreyer purchased a bottle of the Rendezvous spice rub to take back and use in Michigan. "And I just started dabbling."

Today, an empty bottle of the dry rub is a crisis. "I have a friend in Memphis. If I twist his arm, he'll send it."

Dreyer, who loves to cook and describes himself as always having been "interested, intrigued and excited about food preparation," makes the ribs four or five times a year.

And sitting down to eat the ribs - the catch phrase in Memphis when you go to eat barbecue is "let's eat some heat" - is

For Dreyer, like most barbecue kings, the passion, the mission, only mounts.

"Trial and error, tips from family. Yeah, I put it all together, but I'm always looking for more," he says of his ribs. There's more to Southern barbecue than ribs. "I need to perfect my slaw," says Dreyer. "Cole slaw and barbecue go hand in hand. You can't have one without the other."

After all, Dreyer has his work cut out for him if he wants to be a Southerner.

"I've tried. They know you're from Michigan. They call you a Yankee all the time."

Lillet Rouge is superb with blue cheeses such as Stilton, Roquefort or Gorgonzola. It also takes to duck preparations as well as game meats. As a dessert pour rather than aperitif, it also complements a summer fruit compote, chocolate mousse or flourless chocolate cake.

The kids are back to school. Once again, you are back in the kitchen packing lunches, racking your brain for something different that they will eat. Sound familiar? Experts say that children as well as adults need a wide variety of foods to achieve balanced nutrition and maximum health protection. But getting children to eat varied foods is easier said than done.

With a little creativity, persistence and nutritional savvy, however, you can entice your child into trying new foods. How you do that depends on the child. If your child clings to his PB&J when offered something different, don't try to deprive him of it. See if he'll try peanut butter and jelly on whole wheat bread, or in a whole-grain wrap instead of the less-nutritious, refined white bread. If he accepts that, push the envelope a little more. Suggest he jazz up his sandwich with sliced bananas, or add a little crunch with slivers of cucumber or celery.

If your child agrees to try something other than her daily favorite, offer her a whole-wheat pita pocket lined with lettuce leaves and filled with chicken or tuna salad made with low-fat dressing. If your child likes ethnic foods, suggest a pita filled with hummus and shredded vegetables like broccoli, zucchini, or sprouts.

Some kids will try different foods if they are presented in an appealing way. Cut up a sandwich into triangles and trim off the crust. Or cut sandwiches into fun shapes with cutters used for making cookies and canapés.

Desserts should also be varied. Many children will eat fruit if they can dip it in yogurt, so add a small container of low-fat, flavored yogurt to the lunchbox. Kids also enjoy whole-wheat or carrot muffins, banana bread, or granola bars.

Make sure snacks are healthy, too. Make a trail mix with raisins or other dried fruit combined with a whole-grain cereal or air-popped popcorn.

Kids will often try a new dish if they like the main ingredients. The following, for instance, combines pasta with peanut butter (two favorites) and vegetables.

PASTA À LA PEANUT BUTTER

- 8 ounce package rotelle or other spiral pasta
- 1 package (8-ounces) frozen snap peas
- 1 medium red bell pepper, seeded and chopped
- 1/3 cup light soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons peanut or light sesame seed oil
- 3 tablespoons chunky peanut butter
- 2 tablespoons minced fresh ginger
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper, as desired

Cook pasta as directed on package.

Meanwhile, place snap peas in strainer, rinse with hot water and allow to thaw completely. Drain well. Drain cooked pasta and transfer to bowl. Mix in peas and bell pepper.

In separate bowl or blender, combine soy sauce, oil, peanut butter and ginger. Mix until well blended. Pour over pasta mixture and toss to coat. Cover and chill. Add salt and pepper to taste and serve. Makes 6 1-cup servings.

A Farmington Hills physician is studying the use of a nasal spray to alleviate the symptoms of premenstrual syndrome and premenstrual dysphoric disorder. The investigational compound, PH80 is designed to stimulate nerve receptors located just inside the nasal passages. Trichotillomania

Seeking support: Gloria, who has lost most of her hair to trichotillomania, visits with Bobbie Slade of Livonia. Slade facilitates a support group for those with compulsive hair-pulling.

Compulsive hair-pulling disorder is treatable

BY ALICE ASHMORE
STAFF WRITER
aashmore@oe.homecomm.net

With one quick motion, 25-year-old Gloria removed her wig and revealed a secret she has kept hidden since age 3 — she pulls her hair out and can't stop.

Gloria, suffers from trichotillomania, or compulsive hair pulling, an impulse control disorder that affects between 2 and 4 percent of the general population, according to the Trichotillomania Learning Center, a non-profit organization based in Santa Cruz, Calif.

Even though those statistics make the disorder as common as asthma and diabetes in the general population, "trich" (as it commonly called) remains a little-known illness.

It is the shame and the sense of isolation often associated with "trich" that leaves many who have the disorder living in embarrassment and silence.

"My father was very hard on me," Gloria said. "He did not understand (the disorder) and it made it very difficult for me to have a relationship with him."

She was often punished by her father for the behavior. Gloria also described a great deal of shame she felt as a child for causing stress in her family about her hair pulling.

"I remember him (my father) screaming to my mother about me. I had all that guilt."

Gloria, an engineer by profession, found information was scarce on her mysterious illness. She sought help for the disorder in January of this year.

"There was a stigma about going to a therapist. It just wasn't talked about in my family," Gloria said. "It made it difficult to make that first step."

Suzanne, 41, has lived with trich for nearly three decades. She hasn't left her home without wearing a bandanna or a wig since she was in junior high school. She started pulling her hair out at about age 12, and is nearly bald from the disorder. For many years, she felt completely alone.

"I thought I was absolutely alone, that I the only one who did this. I thought there was something very wrong with me — that I was ill," she said. "Why would anyone do this to themselves?"

Suzanne discovered her problem had a name after reading an article about trich in the National Enquirer.

"It said something like 'bizarre disorder causes women to pull out their own hair.' It was worded in such an unbelievably degrading way," she said.

Despite the sensational wording, the article made an impact. "I saved the article for a long time — just to know I wasn't alone," Suzanne said.

The disorder was named at the beginning of the 20th century by a French dermatologist named Hallopeau. Literally translated, trichotillomania means

■ 'Clearly there is a biological basis for trich. I really believe people have a biological predisposition for it. It can be triggered by trauma or stress in someone who has the predisposition. Even a major life transition like a move can cause it.'

—Laura Nisenson
clinical psychologist

"hair pulling frenzy."

Although women outnumber men by a 10-to-1 ratio in reported statistics, men may be under represented.

"There are no epidemiological studies, but we feel that the number of men affected are higher than represented in the medical literature statistics," said Christina Pearson, executive director of the Trichotillomania Learning Center.

The TLC was founded by Pearson 10 years ago to increase awareness of trichotillomania, and to help those with compulsive hair pulling find help and support.

Trich can cause hair pulling from any part of the body.

"Any hair is fair game for someone," Pearson said

Biological Origins

Laura Nisenson, a clinical psychologist in private practice in Ann Arbor, sees a number of patients with trich and other OCD Spectrum disorders.

She treats trich with a cognitive therapy called habit reversal training and strongly believes that the disorder had its origins in biology.

"Clearly there is a biological basis for trich. I really believe people have a biological predisposition for it," she said. "It can be triggered by trauma or stress in someone who has the predisposition. Even a major life transition like a move can cause it."

Nisenson said shame is a major issue for trich sufferers. "There is a lot of shame and guilt because people blame themselves when they can't stop pulling. They are so relieved when we tell them it is biological. That what they are doing is the not their fault."

Medication

A group of medications called selective serotonin re-uptake inhibitors commonly used to treat depression and anxiety, are also used to treat trich. Prozac, Paxil, and Zoloft are examples of the drug family.

Trich and depression can often go hand-in-hand. "There is a lot of depression that is involved with trich that needs to be addressed," Gloria said.

Although knowledge about trich is increasing, finding a doctor or therapist can be difficult. "There are still painfully few doctors and therapists who know about it," Slade said.

Children and Trich

Many sufferers find the transition to adolescence is a trigger for trichotillomania.

"It is often the age of onset," Nisenson said.

"It is devastating for children and adolescents. They are so vulnerable with issues of social inclusion," said Antonia Caretto, a clinical psychologist with the Davis Group in Farmington Hills.

Caretto said she is careful when counseling parents of trich sufferers to tell parents. "I explain that this isn't a habit or attention seeking behavior. Overall, it is not a pleasant or pleasurable disorder."

Gloria said, "There are so many parents who are saying the wrong thing — there are children suffering in silence."

She added, "I think the most important thing is getting the word out."

Word is slowly spreading that help is available.

"It is such a shame-based disorder," Caretto said. "It impacts one's self esteem and relationships. It raises anxiety and causes horrible self-consciousness."

Suzanne describes her battle with trich as "a long process of humiliation and embarrassment — a lifetime of it."

Internet Support

Many "trichsters," as they call themselves have found a wealth of support and information with the advent of the Internet. E-groups, chat rooms and Web sites relating to the disorder are now common.

"It was April 1997 when I found my first real help on the Internet," Suzanne said. "It was a great relief, a huge relief. All of a sudden I realized that I wasn't crazy."

Bobbie Slade, an eyelash puller, was 39 and had been pulling for 26 years before she discovered that what she was doing had a name. "For the first time in the world I knew someone else did what I did."

Slade said, "The Internet has done so much for the trich community."

Slade has been pull-free for 10 years. She said Prozac, and some self-designed visual imagery helped her to overcome the disorder.

Local Support
Slade is now the president of the OCD Foundation of Michigan and the leader of a local support group for individuals with trich and their families.

The group meets twice a month at Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills. Slade said that meeting with others can help "normalize" feelings about trich.

Red Cross provides communications

Some 300 people across the state suffering from multiple sclerosis will have access to emergency communications and care thanks to an agreement between the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross and the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The recently approved agreement will provide people suffering from MS with the award-winning LIFELINE system that enables them to communicate with emergency personnel during a crisis. The LIFELINE units will enable the patients - many of whom have severe movement limitations - to trip the LIFELINE alarm using special attachments that require very little movement.

Technology

For example, a pillow switch that can be pinned to a pillow is activated simply by moving the head to the side. A "sip" or "puff" switch can be activated with a slight sip or puff from the mouth. It requires only a tiny pressure change, so the user does not need respiratory strength. And a sensitive "wobble" switch is activated by gross head or body movements coming from any direction.

Once a switch is activated, a signal is sent to a transmitter (about the size of a deck of cards) which, in turn, sends a signal to the LIFELINE Communicator which connects with the staffed LIFELINE Response Center. Help can then be dispatched to the home as the result of just a small body movement.

"These special attachments enable the Red Cross to provide the life-saving LIFELINE system to people with even the most debilitating injuries and conditions," said Beatrice Bynum of the Red Cross. "And it will enable them to live with dignity and independence in their own homes as long as possible."

Those interested in the LIFELINE service can call the Red Cross (313) 576-4118. The American Red Cross of Southeastern Michigan is the organization that turns caring into action by providing disaster relief and helping people prevent, prepare for and respond to emergencies.

To make a financial donation to the Red Cross or to serve as volunteer call (313) 494-2740 or visit their Web site at www.semredcross.org.

Influential individual

Gail L. Warden, president and CEO of Henry Ford Health System, has been named one of the most influential individuals in the healthcare field by Modern Healthcare magazine. The magazine recently celebrated its 25th anniversary of ownership by Crain Communications. In the issue, Modern Healthcare editors compiled a list of the 25 most influential people in the industry since 1976.

Warden

"Gail is most deserving of this honor," said Allan D. Gilmour, chairman of the board of trustees for Henry Ford Health System. "His leadership and vision in healthcare on the national, regional and local levels have been outstanding."

Warden was the 1995 chairman of the American Hospital Association's board of trustees, and executive vice president of the AHA from 1976 to 1981. He was the first chairman of the board of directors for the National Committee on Quality Assurmarketing and public relations for the hospital.

Only 25 percent of cancer centers receive accreditation from the American College of Surgeons, Sproul said.

"We go through a process that standardizes the quality of care across the nation, said Dr. Omar Majid, a radiation oncologist and chairman of the cancer committee at the hospital.

Approval by the commission is given only to those facilities that have voluntarily committed to provide the best in diagnosis and treatment of cancer, and undergo a rigorous evaluation process and review of its performance, Sproul said.

Majid said it took the hospital several years to achieve accreditation.

"We started working on it in 1996 — its taken us a good five years," he said. "They (the American College of Surgeons) have a very low tolerance for any defects of low compliance."

Majid said the accreditation gives cancer patients confidence in the hospital.

"They get a sense of security that they are going to get quality care and they don't have to travel," he said.

The cancer program at St. Mary Mercy Hospital consists of a complete cancer treatment cycle; including diagnosis, assessment, treatment options including chemotherapy, radiation therapy and brachytherapy, as well as follow-up, Sproul said.

Dr. Harmesh Naik, medical director of the Oncology unit, called the accreditation. "A giant step forward."

"I personally consider it a very proud achievement," he said.

here in Livonia — a lot of people do not know about our cancer program," he said.

Naik said the size of the hospital makes a difference in patient care.

"Being a mid-sized hospital we are much more nimble and fast. We can provide more personal care," Naik said.

Majid said he has a personal motto for the cancer unit at St. Mary Mercy Hospital.

"We may cure many people, but we comfort all," he said.

ALCOHOL AND ARTHRITIS

We know you can't drink and then drive. But is it safe to drink and expect to walk? In other words, if you have arthritis, is alcohol bad for your joints?

The direct answer is no. Alcohol plays no role in causing arthritis, nor has any effect on cartilage. Alcohol can cause muscle inflammation with resulting pain and weakness in walking and lifting. Usually your doctor can identify this effect.

Where drinking becomes an important issue is in the treatment of arthritis. A number of drugs useful in therapy can be toxic to the liver. If you use these medications, you must drink with restraint. Telling you not to drink at all is not necessary or fair since studies show that moderate use of alcohol is helpful to the heart.

The two drugs that require particular attention are methotrexate and arava. If you take an anti-inflammatory drug such as aspirin, motrin, or naproxen, you must be careful with your alcohol intake. These drugs can cause stomach irritation, and if the alcohol becomes additive, you can develop a bleeding ulcer. The same can occur with the newer medicines such as viox and celebrex.

A moderate amount of wine is one glass a day, that is, up to 3 ounces. A reasonable amount of beer is one can, approximately 9 ounces. There is no information on how much, if any hard liquor is safe. The best advice is to stay away from it.

The relation of alcohol to gout is complex. I will take up that question in a separate column.

Nearing retirement? Give yourself a financial check-up

STEVEN BERNER

As you approach retirement, you will quite likely be assessing your financial situation to determine if you have saved and invested enough to afford a comfortable future. Generally, financial professionals advise that to maintain your current lifestyle you will need approximately 70-80 percent of your current annual income each year in retirement, although your own situation may differ based on your personal goals and finances.

Taking an in-depth look at your finances and an inventory of your retirement funds approximately five to seven years before retiring will give you time to make adjustments to help you meet your goals when retirement time comes around.

Enough income?

Generally, retirees turn to these sources of income: Social Security benefits; earnings (including part-time jobs); personal savings and investments, including IRA account(s) or additional employee savings plans; and company retirement plans.

Typically, Social Security may only account for about 40 percent of your income in retirement. Personal investments and savings, company retirement plans and other sources will have to account for the remaining portion of your income — about 60 percent.

After calculating your projected retirement income, you also need to examine your current expenses and determine which items will increase or decrease, which will be eliminated and which will be added after you retire.

Compare your expense calculations with your projected sources of income and determine whether you will have a surplus of a deficiency. At the same time, determine at what point in retirement you will need to begin drawing on your retirement plan assets. If, after comparing your expenses with income, you have a surplus, you are on the right track to enjoying a comfortable retirement. However, if you note a deficiency, you can make decisions now to help ensure that you will have a relatively comfortable retirement later on.

retirement. Examine all the investments available through your retirement plan and determine into which category — stocks, bonds or cash equivalents — each of them falls. Next, assess your level of risk. As people prepare to retire, they generally want less risk in their investments than in the past. Since your income from employment will have stopped or decreased considerably and your assets may be invested over a shorter period, it may be more difficult to recover from loss. Therefore you may want a lower-risk investment strategy than before. Whether you intend to use your money over a relatively short period or spread it out through your retirement is another important factor.

There is no set allocation strategy that works for everyone. Before determining which strategy best fits your personal situation, keep in mind that different people have different financial resources and expectations regarding how long they will be in retirement. Therefore, individuals have different risk tolerances and investment horizons. And remember, no matter what asset allocation strategy you choose, there is always some level of risk and no guarantee that you will not experience a loss.

Also, keep in mind too that you need to look at your holdings as a whole. Consider your personal accounts, retirement accounts and any additional sources of retirement income that you may have. By planning the entire picture you will be better able to ensure that you have a portfolio that reflects your immediate and long-term goals. Your financial adviser can help you determine if your strategies are on the right track toward a secure retirement and help you find ways to maintain your position or work toward your goals.

Pre-cast, insulated foundations and lots platted so the homes face each other in small pods rather than the main road sets off Courtyards at Chamberlain.

Fifteen homes - all raised ranches - will be constructed on a long, narrow infill property on Van Born between Wayne and Howe roads in the city of Wayne.

The city selected Copper Creek Development to deal with the land, said its president, Mel Belovicz.

"Originally, someone wanted to put apartments in, but it was turned down. The neighbors didn't want that," Belovicz said.

"I gave the next highest bid, but the best proposal: four pods with four houses in a pod facing in and a common driveway."

Lots a minimum 120-by-60 feet go in a horizontal to vertical direction rather than more traditional 60-by-120. That orientation allows for more space between houses and no roads within the narrow land configuration.

"It's going to be a premier, interesting project," Belovicz said.

And not just because of the lay of the land, either.

"Insulated slab foundation is a state-of-the-art kind of thing," said Belovicz, adding that the design with no basement provides better protection from the cold.

One basic floor plan is offered at Courtyards at Chamberlain.

The front porch is about six steps up from grade level. From the front foyer, you can go up a few more steps to the upper level or down a few to ground level.

The upper level will feature a family room with cathedral ceiling, dining room, kitchen and closet laundry. The master with combination tub/shower and walk-in closet is on the upper level, as are two secondary bedrooms and a full bath.

The lower level will feature a bedroom, bath, recreation room, home office or fifth bedroom and utility room. The lower level also will have a garage entrance.

The raised ranch also will feature at base price two-car garage, range and dishwasher, hardwood flooring in the

Fireplace ($3,200) and air conditioning ($3,200) are upgrades.

Six different exterior elevations and 13 exterior color package exteriors can bring diversity to the common plan. Vinyl siding is the primary exterior material.

Base price of the 2,400-square-foot home is $184,900.

"Wayne/Westland schools is one of the selling factors," said Cary Belovicz, sales manager for Copper Creek Development and Mel's son. "One of the big things with the homes is maintenance-free exterior."

"Part of the design of the community with the pods was for family friendly and it's the best use of land," Cary added.

Stressing quality

"The other thing is the quality of homes we build. You get affordable, and we're not sacrificing quality," Cary said.

(While the model is under construction, the Beloviczs say prospective buyers should visit their community at Meadows of Canton on Palmer between Lotz and Hannan to check out their work.)

"It seems the people who live in Wayne want to stay in Wayne," Cary said.

"We're trying to get people who live here, who want a bigger house, that move-up. The biggest thing I have to show people is quality," he said.

"We're gearing for the person that is looking for a lot of bang for the buck," Mel said. "Wayne is a good city. It's well run. It's very efficient. They offer a lot of services."

As construction progresses, the first houses should be finished by Thanksgiving, Mel said.

Courtyards at Chamberlain is served by city water and sewers.

The property tax rate is $41.76 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $185,000 home there would pay about $3,900 the first year.

COURTYARDS AT CHAMBERLAIN

On the north side of Van Born Rd. and east of Wayne Rd. in Wayne.

The association fee is projected at about $120 annually.

Prospective buyers at Courtyards of Chamberlain can obtain sales information at Meadows of Canton, (734) 394-1000, noon to 6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Understand a contractor lien before remodeling your home

FROM HOME SERVICE STORE FOR AP WEEKLY FEATURES

It's among the worst surprises to confront homeowners—a contractor files a lien to collect unpaid money on a home improvement or remodeling job.

Whether the claim is valid or not, the resulting court action can add hefty legal bills to home improvement projects that already are stressful enough.

The chief legal counsel for the nation's largest home improvement services company describes liens as "a legal and financial minefield," yet homeowners can—and should—take steps to protect themselves and their property.

"The homeowner first needs to find a reputable contractor," says attorney Hans Huessy of the Home Service Store, "and second, they should weigh all the options to head off a dispute before it leads to a lien." He says liens are necessary because homeowners often refuse or neglect to pay legitimate invoices.

Huessy suggests prior to selecting a contractor, pay a personal visit to the candidate's last few jobs followed by a call to the Better Business Bureau to learn if the contractor has any history of customer complaints.

Most liens filed in local or county land records against homeowners are mechanics liens, where the contractor pursues money allegedly owed for labor or materials.

Most liens must be filed within a few weeks or months, or at most a year, after work is completed. Once a lien is filed, the contractor has a certain amount of time to bring an action to enforce the lien. The amount of time varies widely by jurisdiction and if a court docket is packed, a case can drag on for years.

In some instances, Huessy says, "sleazy contractors hold a homeowner hostage by filing spurious liens, a sort of 'low grade extortion.'" The problem for homeowners is that unresolved liens might jeopardize a credit rating and can hold up the sale or refinancing of a home. They might also put the homeowner's mortgage in default.

Issues related to the lien—length of time before it must be filed, where and how it must be filed, paperwork, etc.—vary widely from state to state.

Liens can also be filed by materials suppliers or subcontractors hired by the general contractor.

Huessy says because it's common for contractors to pay suppliers and subcontractors, the homeowner must be diligent in managing project purse strings.

It's a mistake, he says, to pay a contractor the full amount in advance of the project, or even before all the work is completed and inspected. Often, the contractor won't manage the money appropriately or won't use the funds to pay off suppliers or subcontractors.

Jilted workers and suppliers have the legal right to seek payment from the homeowner. In the worst-case scenario, a homeowner can be ordered to pay for the same work twice, once to the general contractor and, if the GC fails to pay the subcontractor, again to the sub.

Huessy recommends homeowners adopt a pay-as-you-go stance with contractors. Once work is completed to the homeowner's satisfaction, funds are then disbursed to the general contractor to pay for materials and subcontractors.

A homeowner can avoid most of the worst lien problems by insisting on lien waivers from all contractors involved in the project.

(NAPSA) — It can be easy to lower your energy bills. Experts say a simple test can save the average household hundreds of dollars a year.

To the naked eye, most homes look air tight. A recent study found however, that this is often not the case. The average home has a number of holes, gaps and cracks through which heat can escape in the winter and cool air escapes in the summer.

These leaks can add up and sealing them is a bright way to cut rising energy costs.

In fact, it is estimated that if all the cracks in the average home were combined, the resulting hole would be four feet wide and four feet tall—that's similar to having a window wide open in the house, year round.

To find the cracks in your castle's armor, heating experts recommend the incense test: Starting in the attic, hold a lit incense stick next to windows, doors, electrical boxes, plumbing fixtures, electrical outlets and ceiling fixtures around the home—anywhere that air might be able to escape. If the smoke stream travels horizontally, there is a leak.

Additionally, check for dirty spots in the insulation. This is a clear indication that air is leaking in and out of a home.

Once you've located the leaks you'll be able to seal them and start saving money. It's a good idea to use a polyurethane foam sealant to block the airflows. The sealant is said to be easy to use and such products can help keep homeowners from throwing more money out of leaks, cracks and windows.

MEYERS ON MORTGAGES

by GARY S. MEYERS

One of the best standbys for savvy home buyers has been the adjustable rate mortgage, better known as an ARM, which traditionally rides slightly lower than fixed-rate mortgages (FRMs). However, the recent downturn in economic indicators, along with tweaking of interest rates by the Fed, has caused a shift in the relative advantages between the two.

The trouble started last year, when the Fed started raising interest rates to counter fears of inflation. In the first half of the year, rates went up a full percentage point. At the time, ARMs and FRMs rose at about the same rate, with ARM rates staying about 1.5 percentage points below FRM rates, according to a report recently released by Freddie Mac. The report adds that ARMs held 30 percent of the mortgage market during that period.

During the last half of the year, however, things started changing. The rate increases started being felt in the economy. The U.S. Treasury Department started issuing fewer securities and began paying off long-term debt, reducing the supply of securities that many interest rates are tied to.

"We entered an inverted bond curve," said Norm Stein, vice president of lending with a major Bancorp. "When that happens, long-term debt starts looking better than short-term debt, and fixed rate mortgages start to look better and better against ARMs."

According to Freddie Mac, as the economy slowed in the second half of 2000, interest rates on FRMs fell over 1.7 percentage points, while short-term rates stayed at relatively high levels.

"According to Freddie Mac's 17th Annual ARM Survey, the interest-rate advantage between ARMs and fixed-rate mortgages fell to a record 0.37 percentage points for the traditional one-year ARM," said Frank Nothaft, deputy chief economist for Freddie Mac. "Consequently, the ARM share fell to 16 percent of loans issued in November, compared to 29 percent at the same time last year, according to industry sources."

Stein said that in many cases, the effects are temporary, but in this case, the inverted curve had some staying power.

"This particular situation usually comes right before a recession," Stein said. "At first we thought that it was happening because the country was paying down a lot of long-term debt, but then the other indicators started sliding, and it didn't let up."

What does this mean for consumers? In the short run, said Stein, it means don't go running after ARMs. They'll be pretty hard to find anyway.

"We've been seeing this trend for the last six or seven months, as rates have gone down. It's not that we're not offering them anymore, it's just that ARMs don't make sense right now. You're better off getting a fixed rate, and if rates go down any more, you can always refinance."

But if you're already in an ARM, don't just ditch it because they don't look good. Take a closer look and determine whether or not it can still benefit you. If you're in a one-year ARM, you may want to see how low it goes. Timing, however, is everything.

"Many people are getting out of their ARMs because the effects are delayed," said Stein. "Even though rates are going down, they're still making monthly payments based on higher rates, and it's going to be a year or so before they see the effects. If they get into a lower interest fixed-rate, they'll see the effects immediately."

In addition, longer-term ARMs may cause some people to miss lower rates completely. "If you got in a three-year ARM at the beginning of this cycle and rates start going back up," said Stein, "you could miss all of the benefits, so it's better to lock in a lower rate now."

While the Fed's emergency rate cut earlier this month and the expected rate cut in the next few weeks could take some of the sting out of the economic picture, it may not be enough to reset the ARM/FRM relationship for a while.

According to Freddie Mac projections, the interest rate easing will have the greatest effect on short-term ARMs tied to the one-year treasury note. It adds, however, that the ARMs' share of the mortgage origination market will more than likely not break the 25% mark anytime soon.

"In any event," Stein remarked, "it's all relative. In these good times, we've gotten greedy for the low rate. I remember a time in the not-too-distant past when we thought the interest rates would never again go into the single digits. Now we're scrambling to scoop up that extra one-half or one percentage point to get the absolute lowest possible rate."

So if you love the thrill of the hunt, it may be time to dis-ARM yourself.

"If you're in an ARM," said Stein, "especially a long-term one, you may want to get out and lock in the low rate. If you're not in one, it doesn't make sense to think about it."

Don't buy a castle just because rates are low

"Don't let the drop in interest rates lure you into buying more house than you can afford," said Steve Rhode, president and co-founder of Myvesta.org.

"Use lower interest rates to your advantage and buy what you can reasonably afford. That way you'll be able to furnish your new home and live comfortably, without setting yourself up for future debt problems," he said.

Almost 10 million mortgages were made last year. That number could increase this year because interest rates are predicted to drop to new lows.

"Lenders may try to give you the biggest mortgage their formulas determine you can afford," Rhode said. "Just because a lender qualifies you for a certain amount doesn't always mean it's the right one for you."

"Your mortgage shouldn't be more than 40 percent of your take-home pay. Keep other debts, including credit cards and auto loans, under 20 percent.

"Too many people are in serious debt trouble because they buy too much house for their income. The last thing anyone wants to hear is that they should move into a less-expensive home. But in many cases it's necessary for people to downsize their homes to make ends meet," Rhode said.

The lower interest rates are expected to trigger a rush of mortgage refinancings.

"Some families could free up hundreds of dollars a month by refinancing. Be sure to use extra money to build your future by paying down debt and putting money into savings."

The economic enthusiasm of the last few years has died down. That, coupled with increasing numbers of job layoffs, could help to bring more people into reasonable spending limits, he added.

This home designed for sloping lot

A side hill slope is needed for the split-level Stone Cottage. This beautiful ranch home has accented arched windows, porch railings, and a covered porch. This 1,662 square foot home would look ideal in a wooded setting or on the coast, near the ocean.

Vaulted, the enormous great room with a corner fireplace and numerous large windows provide a welcome look for visitors. In the front could be a formal living room while there is plenty of room at the rear of the great room for a dining room. Sliding glass doors near the fireplace open onto a large deck.

The C-shaped kitchen sets in the front, overlooking the covered porch.

The sleeping area is up a half flight of stairs. All three bedrooms are vaulted. A full bath with a tub is located adjacent to the master bath. The master suite has a large walk-in closet and full master bath, complete with a tub and shower, and "his and her" sinks. A large window near the tub bathes the room in light.

The lower floor contains the two-car garage along with the family room and the utility area. The garage has a workbench with a sink for washing hands after working on the car or working in the garden. It is also an ideal area for the hobbyist. There is a storage cabinet on one side that has the pantry, which opens in the kitchen, over it.

The family room has three large windows with a sliding glass door to the patio. An optional hot tub has been shown on the patio. There is a large built-in shelf on one wall of the family room. For convenience, a door from the patio goes directly into the full bath with shower, as well as a pocket door opening into the utility room. This makes it easy to put wet towels into the washer once the family is done with the hot tub. There is also a door from the utility opening into the family room.

This split-level home has many

Stay well Remodel with care

This can be a major concern for those with respiratory problems - particularly the estimated 36 million Americans who live with allergies and asthma.

Dirty indoor air may pose an even greater risk for those living in the midst of a major home renovation.

That's because common renovation and remodeling tasks - such as sanding, sawing, painting and putting up drywall - often release dust and other tiny particles into the air.

Here are several tips from Dr. Nathan Yost, former professional contractor and current adviser to the American Lung Association Health House Project, to help you breathe easier during a renovation:

- Isolate work areas from the living space with plastic sheeting or zipper doors.
- Use an exhaust fan in the work area to help prevent contaminants from entering the living space.
- People with asthma or allergies may want to consider living elsewhere during a major remodeling project. This can be especially important for children.
- If you have pets, limit their access to the remodeling area so they don't track contaminants throughout the home.

■ Hire a professional to remove asbestos and lead-based paint. Remodeling or attempting to remove these materials yourself can increase your exposure.

■ Do not occupy a recently painted room until it's been thoroughly ventilated for several days.

■ Use a high efficiency furnace filter. High efficiency filters contain electrostatically charged fibers that capture up to 30 times more allergens and other pollutants than the typical fiberglass filter.

■ Run the furnace fan continuously - regardless of the outdoor temperature. This lets the filter capture more dust, allergens and other particles in the air. To ensure that the furnace fan is running continuously, set the furnace thermostat to the "on," rather than "auto" position.

■ Vacuum every day during the remodeling project. Use a high efficiency vacuum or a central vacuum ducted to the outside. Be sure to check the warranty of your vacuum before you clean large amounts of construction debris.

■ Consider using a respirator to help reduce exposure to dust from sanding wood, drywall or non-lead based paints.

■ Don't allow contractors to smoke in the home or on the premises.

Thomas Ervin Let's Talk About Real Estate

"TAKING YOUR AGENT'S ADVICE"

Many people hire Realtors, but don't take their advice. It is not unusual for a homeowner to list his or her property and spend the entire time working against the person hired to sell the property. Here are a few examples:

AN UNREALISTIC ASKING PRICE

Most people ask the professional real estate salesperson to conduct an analysis of the current market to ascertain the present value of their home. When they hear the facts, however, they don't like what they hear and choose to ignore reality and set a price that discourages buyers from considering their property.

PREPARING THE HOUSE FOR SHOWING

A house only has one chance to make a good first impression. If it is not in good repair and well decorated, the word will get around that it should be avoided. This often happens because sellers are reluctant to spend money on a home they are leaving. It is essential, however, to spend a few wise dollars so that the home will sell for the highest possible price.

THE SELLER'S ROLE DURING SHOWINGS

Many sellers scare off interested buyers by their over-aggressive behavior while buyers are inspecting the property. Buyers don't want to have to deal with a seller and his or her comments. They like any necessary communication with the seller to be conducted through the Realtor. Some sellers become concerned that the agent showing the house doesn't know it as well as the seller does. This is true, but the agent does know his or her buyer and the best way to satisfy the buyer's needs for information.

ADVICE: Don't work against your Realtor. Listen to his or her advice. It is based on years of experience.

Shed roof sun room

There are three sizes included in the plans from as small as 8' x 12' to as large as 14' x 20'. Sliding glass doors and large windows highlight the room. There is a 4/12 pitch shed roof enhanced by three large skylights, allowing for streaming sunlight to permeate the entire room. Two complete sets of the plan are included.

ed. One set is for you or your builder and the other set is for the building department. The plans are clearly labeled detailed drawings along with full framing instructions. Illustrations are drawn three dimensionally with full elevations and cross sectional "Easy-To-Follow" diagrams.

BY KEVIN BRENNER AND KATE KELLY
TODAY'S HOMEOWNER ONLINE

(AP) The contractor who Phil Smith hired for his addition last year is one of the best in town. But every night after the contractor and his crew went home, Smith took out a flashlight, tape measure and the architect's plans to inspect the work.

Smith presented any questions at a twice-weekly meeting. When something looked really wrong, he called his contractor from work. And when Smith's concerns resulted in a change from the original plans, a change order was written.

The result? A job that went smoothly for homeowner and contractor.

Questioning your contractor makes a lot of folks uncomfortable. But your nonexpert status can give you the objectivity needed to catch such errors as missing switches, misplaced windows or delivery of the wrong model of an appliance.

What to look for

Carry a tape measure, flashlight and notebook for any inspection. If you're checking back against an architect's plans, remember that there's a separate plan for each of the following: foundation, framing, door and window schedule and finish schedule. You'll need to cross-reference the plans to get a full picture of all the work being done.

Foundation.

Measure the distances between outside walls to be sure they conform to the foundation plan. You'll find distances clearly marked on the plan, along with wall heights, wall thickness and slab thickness. It's acceptable if lengths and widths vary by less than an inch. But because both walls and slabs are load-bearing, thickness for these components must be to spec.

Framing

Check ceiling heights carefully to be sure they're as specified.

For example, the framing crew might not have picked up that the ceiling height in the dining room is 9 feet, 6 inches instead of 8 feet. Also check the length and width of rooms. And if you're building to accommodate a couch, bar unit or pool table, for instance, now is the time to be sure the item will fit.

Doors and windows

Center lines of doors and windows are also marked on the plans. Check the placement of each by measuring in from a nearby foundation corner to confirm its location. As the floor plan takes shape, note the direction of door swings — and make any changes before doors and jambs are installed. Also check that windows and doors align as planned to establish sight lines or to allow light and air to flow through the house. Doors or windows that are out of line are easy to fix at the framing stage.

When windows arrive, check the model and type against what you specified.

Structural sheathing

Don't panic if rough window openings are sheathed over; the plywood is cut away later to ensure a snug fit. But if you see drywall covering the rough opening, it's probably a mistake.

Heating and plumbing

As the HVAC and plumbing contractors start work, check their plans against yours. Then ask some basic questions. For instance, in a bedroom, will a bed or bureau block heating and cooling vents? Re-position ducts if need be. And be sure water and drain pipes are roughed in at the right locations by checking against the plans.

Wiring

An easy way to check the electrical plan is to enter a room as if it were finished. Reach for light switches. Try to plug in a lamp. Are outlets and switches conveniently placed? Also determine whether you need threeway switches in rooms with multiple entrances and extra outlets in the kitchen, where several appliances will go.

Hardwood floors

When installing this type of flooring, be sure the lumber spends at least two days out of its packaging in the house to prevent shrinkage gaps later. Also check that the planks are perpendicular to the floor joists and the installed flooring is covered with plywood or paper to protect it as other work continues.

Insulation

This important material is placed in the walls just before drywalling. Make sure it's the R-value you asked for by carefully reading the insulation label and checking it against your specifications. For exterior walls, check that the insulation paper or foil is facing toward the room. Be sure spaces between studs and joists are entirely insulated, especially where joists end at exterior walls. Pay particular attention to the spaces around windows and doors; leaving even a small section uninsulated can cause drafts and heat loss.

Drywalling and paint

Be especially vigilant in these areas. Use a bright light held at an angle to pick up imperfections in the wall. If the drywall isn't smooth enough, for example, point it out and have it redone. While painting and tiling are under way, make sure you're available to approve colors for walls or floors. The same goes for grout.

Then double-check grout after it has dried because the color tends to lighten.

Fixtures and fittings

If your addition includes a kitchen or bath, walk through the room and pay close attention to fixtures and faucets. Are they the right color? Do fixture finishes match? Also be sure metal finishes haven't been scratched by plumbing tools and that everything works without leaking.

Be especially careful that custom-tile patterns match the approved layout plan, and that there are no gaps in any trim or molding joints.

Nursing is a profession for people who care

BY ROSANNA GULOTTA
 SPECIAL WRITER

Nurse, oh nurse...is there any one here? I have been waiting for six hours for anyone to check on me and I could really use some water? And perhaps something to eat? Oh, and maybe a fresh bedpan? Hello?"

This, fortunately, is not characteristic of hospitals in the United States. When patients need help, they simply push a button and within a short time, mere minutes, not hours, an attending nurse is ready to help.

Many of us take for granted the amount of work and care nurses perform. These caregivers tend to the patients' needs ranging from the least glamorous, to the most endearing. Their day consists of whole body care: physical, emotional and even spiritual. They share in the joy of new life and in the sorrow of a life that is soon to pass.

Patients and their family members continually seek the knowledge and compassion of these caring professionals.

Unfortunately, the increasing number of patients per nurse challenges the quality of care that nurses wish to give their patients. The nursing shortage is the result of many factors including baby-boomers reaching retirement age, nurses leaving the hospital setting for private practice or other careers and the decrease in number of graduates in the nursing field.

However, this decrease in number of nurses has opened numerous job opportunities for both nurses and nursing assistants alike.

Sherrine Thomas, a registered nurse, is a recent graduate of Madonna University. Because she is a full time wife and mother, job hunting would seem to be one more thing added to her plate. But she had little difficulty in finding a job with a metro hospital.

Many metro-Detroit hospitals have numerous job positions posted on their web sites that include registered nurses, nurse technicians and nursing assistants.

Thomas is eager to put her knowledge and training to work. She was certified in another state to do community and family health education, but found in Michigan that most of the public education positions was held by registered nurses.

"Now I am more marketable and I hope to eventually get back into community nursing or work as a school nurse," said Thomas. "My future desire is to do medical missions as a family overseas because there is such a need."

There are rewarding aspects within the nursing career other than patients' heartfelt thanks. The average starting

Job hunting can be lonely at the top

Q. I have an extensive background in my field. Should I downplay my qualifications to get my foot in the door?

GEORGE HAYES

A. Recruiters often talk about the air being "thinner at the top" meaning that the number of available positions in any given industry is greatest in the mid-level salary ranges.

This fact has little strategic value for senior-level job seekers. Many accomplished, senior-level candidates would be happy to take lower level positions, but they simply can't. It's not money or ego. They don't have equal access to the biggest part of the market. Why?

Age discrimination. I'm not going to launch into another analysis or expose. It doesn't do any good, and I'm afraid it has the effect of providing a rationalization for inaction or depression.

Next, employers are reluctant to hire a canon when a BB gun will do. The underlying concern is that a senior level person would be bored or become a threat by second guessing the decisions of her boss.

Finally, employers might have some legitimate concerns about a candidate's skills being rusty. A sales manager uses different skills than a salesperson. A controller is not an accountant times two.

There are often unstated concerns about a person's abilities and enthusiasm for tasks that were mastered twenty years ago.

So, your easiest access is typically within a band of positions centered not far from the level of your last one. Concentrate your efforts on this segment of the market. However, when interviewing for a lower level position: Express enthusiasm for the tasks. State clearly that you are not "above" doing those things and, in fact, would pay is approximately $18-20 an hour. Some job benefits include health, dental and vision care, life insurance, pension plans and paid vacation. Depending on which hospital, some even offer childcare and reduced-cost memberships to local health clubs.

But what if you're an experienced nurse looking for a change of pace? Here's a solution. James Johnson, co-owner and manager of United Nurses Staffing Agency, places contingent nurses into hospitals that are short-handed.

Johnson said, "We feel we can provide excellent care for a patient because the hospital politics don't affect our nurses and we provide an extra pair of hands for times when it's truly needed."

Upon arrival at the hospital the contingent nurses are fully briefed on what their jobs will entail. The hospital will also give the nurses a contact person for any questions they may have later. The hospital also ensures the safety of the contingent nurses as if they were employed by the hospital itself.

"The hospitals have been very supportive," said Johnson, "and they are very happy to see the extra help."

Although benefits aren't as lengthy as what a hospital has to offer, the pay and flexibility for contingent nurses are great. Average pay is $33-$37 an hour and the nurses make their own schedules. Nursing agencies do offer malpractice insurance, workman's compensation and health and life insurance plans for their nurses.

For those wanting to get into the medical field but lacking the necessary means to do so, there is an alternative. Nikki Fraser, of Centennial Health Care Inc., has developed an in-depth training program for potential nursing assistants. Recruits go through 107 hours of paid training that includes classroom and clinical experience. High standards are expected and achieved in this program.

"I have immense respect for nursing assistants," said Fraser, a registered nurse and certified nursing assistant herself. "I love my job and do it because I want to." Fraser has been in nursing care for 23 years.

Fraser and Shela Myrick, the director of the Centennial Career Center, have a mutual goal of graduating caring professionals.

"We also want people to stay with us," said Fraser, "We've trained them and know that they are quality caregivers."

But wherever the nursing assistants choose to work, average starting pay is $8.50 an hour and they also receive standard benefits.

"We can make a difference in lives," said Myrick, "and that is what matters."

Tasks that care givers perform go by with hardly any public praise. So why are individuals drawn to nursing care, and stay, day after day? Simply because their work is important.

find it exciting again. When possible, cite recent responsibilities that were similar to those in question. Talk about how up-to-date your skills are and use cliches like "hands-on" liberally.

Mask your ego. Be quick to point out that being the boss is not your objective. In fact, it would be a relief and more fun to be a worker bee for a change. Tell an anecdote about some know-it-all who upset the whole department. You are obviously not like that.

Get the interviewer to articulate concerns. You can't deal with an objection until you know what it is. Use the ninth-person passive voice and say something like: "If the company (not necessarily you) had any reservations - just hypothetically - about hiring a more senior level person - just speculating - what do you think they might be?"

If you hear the word "overqualified" you should cock your head like a hound dog and ask "Overqualified?" Force the interviewer to define what it means so you can put it to rest.

OLDSMOBILE...

2001 Silhouette

The granddaddy of all automobile manufacturers

BY JOSEPH MAVILIA
© AUTOWIRE.NET

This week we're looking at the Oldsmobile Silhouette, and it's so sad that it also comes at a time when Olds, the granddaddy of all automobile manufacturers, is being phased out of existence.

I grew up with Oldsmobile and I'll miss it. I suspect dad leaned toward Olds because it was one of the early car companies that he grew up with. He was from the same old school, and when he wasn't driving in those grand old machines, he was flying around in those other new inventions — airplanes — of the early 1900s.

They were the pioneers who spent cold nights working on all those new gadgets coming out of the industrial revolution.

Those must have been exciting and exhilarating times. I can visualize them driving around, sharing dirt roads with horses and buggies. They must have impressed the ladies with their

Today, the technological age keeps those pioneer spirited people indoors with their fancy new mega gigahertz, gigabyte, rip roaring computers with five-foot flat screens hanging on the wall to impress other computer nerds, who also rarely see the light of day. I've been one of those computer guys for over 25 years and I love it, but the mystique of the past is somehow more romantic and fun to consider.

Some of us still hang onto remnants of the past, and I guess it's time to saddle up and go for a ride in the backcountry, cut a few cords of wood and feel like a man again. I'll do that right after I finish mending those fences.

Continuing down Memory Lane, I think I'll also miss Olds, when I think back to those days when I'd stop to body surf at Laguna on my way back to the San Diego Naval Base in my black 1949 Olds 88 hard top coupe. For the life of me I can't see why GM decided to stop building this history-making car line. Oh well.

This Olds, like other Minivans, is soft riding and comfortable. It has all the power you'll need in this class of utility family car, unless you'll be pulling a boat or have a need to go off-road. I can't think of a better vehicle for families and all those Soccer Mom's who have to shuttle the kids to and from.

I really felt at home driving this Silhouette — like an old friend. But it helps when you feel good about what you spend your hard-earned money for. This is a very pretty and classy minivan you can drive to any occasion. And the fit and finish is as good as they get.

As for conveniences, this thing is loaded, and of course the price reflects it. The entertainment center is wonderful to keep the kids and grandkids occupied while you listen to the radio, or simply talk about things they don't care about anyway.

The power sliding door on the passenger side is indispensable. There is no question I'd find a way to justify the extra money to have this option, especially for the children. Another nice item is the sensor that audibly lets you know when you're getting close to objects while backing up.

A recommendation: All minivans cost too much but, relative to the more popular SUVs, you'll get much better gas mileage, and it's all around a better family car. Before you spend all the money, think about whether you really need all the gadgets. If money is no object, then buy this super-loaded family van. I've driven the Ford Windstar, the Dodge Caravan, and I was very impressed with the Honda Odyssey.

But as much as I liked these other minivans, I still have a love affair with Oldsmobile.
