SPECIAL SECTION

Today's Observer features our Fall Home Improvement section, with the theme "Getting Energized."

The 24-page section is chock full of stories about ways to upgrade homes with an eye on conserving energy and cutting utility bills. Stories focus on the importance of updating furnaces and fireplaces, with natural gas costs expected to soar during this coming winter.

We highlight other sensible projects, including roof insulation and window tinting. Also chronicled is how people – with the help of the Home Depot – might use government rebate checks for home improvement efforts.

Hopefully, you will like the stories about what you can do to modernize and maximize life in your homes. But the other side of the coin is what you've already done.

Several pages are brimming with "Hammer Time" contributions, readers' own stories and photographs about their "do-it-yourself" home repair projects. We solicited such entries several weeks ago in your Observer, and the response was excellent.

Because of space concerns, however, we were not able to include all of the stories and photographs. Whether or not your entry made the final product, thanks for participating.

THE WEEK AHEAD

Administrator returns to district

■ Former interim Superintendent Ken Walcott is coming back to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools on a temporary assignment.

A familiar face is coming back to the Plymouth-Canton school district.

Ken Walcott, who was the district's interim superintendent two years ago, is coming back to serve as interim executive director for human resources.

Walcott has signed a personal services contract to take over for Cindy Champnella, who for personal reasons left the district after serving for only two months. Walcott said he'll be working several days a week until the district finds a permanent replacement.

"I visited with the staff and principals and feel I can be of help to the district," said Walcott from his home in Mona Shores, Mich. "I enjoyed the district while I was there, and look forward to coming back to make Plymouth-Canton the best it can be."

Walcott served as interim superintendent beginning in July 1999, after Chuck Little left for a position at Indiana University. His tenure ended in January 2000 when the Board of Education hired current Superintendent Kathleen Booher.

Walcott, who has held numerous positions in his educational career, said human resources won't be foreign to him.

The award-winning P-CEP Marching Band steps off with a new leader for 2001-02

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

As competition season nears for the Plymouth-Canton marching band, it's tough to tell who's more nervous — the kids or their new director.

"I can't wait for the performances," said Plymouth-Canton Marching Band Director Clayton Wachholz, who is anxious to get on with the band competitions. "I think it will be a lot more nerve-wracking when we get into the first couple of shows."

Wachholz, 33, has been on the job barely a month, taking over a nationally reknowned band that has finished second, first and second in national competition the past three years. Despite his short tenure, he's not oblivious to the expectations.

"Unfairly so, people will judge our (national) placing and me, and if it's not as good as it could be ... " he pondered. "And, if it's good, they'll say 'that's what we expected.'"

It hasn't taken Wachholz, who had been a teaching assistant at the University of Wisconsin, long to make his own observations of this year's marching band, and his expectations of the music program.

"What's been most impressive is the way everybody approaches rehearsal," said Wachholz. "It's a very professional atmosphere.

2nd Hazardous Waste Round-up is Saturday

Canton's second annual Hazardous Waste Round-up will be held Saturday, Sept. 15, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., rain or shine, in the parking lot of the Canton Administration Building.

The event was launched last year to fulfill a previously unmet community need, according to township officials.

"Basically we get a lot of input from the community. They wanted this kind of event," said Bob Belair of Canton Public Works. "I kind of believe a lot of people were just leaving the stuff stacked up in their garages before."

There have always been sites where Canton residents could take their hazardous household wastes, but there is a disposal charge, explained Belair.

The event brought some 1,200 cars last year, and Belair said he expects

Reps team up on bill to amend state school finance formula

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

Two local lawmakers are heading a group of state legislators in sponsoring a bill to help school districts, such as Plymouth-Canton, which need more money than the present state foundation grant for operating expenses.

However, the success of that bill may not be felt for a couple of years, and maybe only if the two lawmakers get re-elected next year.

State Rep. Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, and State Rep. John Stewart, R-Plymouth Township, after much pressure from Plymouth-Canton school board members and school administrators, are co-sponsoring a bill that would amend Proposal A.

"We were caught asleep at the switch when the dollar amount that was fixed under Proposal A was established during a nine-month window in 1993-94," said Stewart. That was the time frame local districts had to hold one last millage vote before Proposal A went into effect. Voters in Plymouth-Canton turned down the district's request, allowing the state to set Plymouth-Canton's foundation grant at a lower, per-student dollar figure than neighboring school districts.

■ 'Plymouth-Canton Schools are who we had in mind (with this legislation). It reflects a couple of significant factors, including an increasing enrollment.'

–State Rep. John Stewart, R-Plymouth

"Plymouth-Canton Schools are who we had in mind (with this legislation)," said Stewart. "It reflects a couple of significant factors, including an increasing enrollment."

Under the pending legislation, a local school district could ask voters to approve an additional one mill, which would be used for operating expenses.

"The local school district would use the money for operating expenses," said Stewart. "This is different from what is now allowed under Proposal A, in which a local millage would have to be shared with other school districts within the county. We're getting support from districts such as Rockford, East Grand Rapids and districts up north which are growing."

According to Patricia Brand, Plymouth-Canton's executive director of business services, the additional one mill could bring the district nearly $4 million.

School board member Mark Slavens, who is a member of Michigan Citizens for Fairness in Public School Funding, is in favor any bill that would bring the school district more money.

"I support any effort that attempts to increase funding for schools," said Slavens. "However, the best way to improve funding would be to increase per pupil funding from the state."

Trustee Judy Mardigian, who, along with Slavens, testified in front of a legislative committee seeking more state money for Plymouth-Canton Schools, supports the two lawmakers in their effort.

"I view it as a positive step that they are working together to find new avenues for funding for our district," said Mardigian. "The extra money could do a lot in enhancing our educational programs."

The caveat to the bill may be time, if Stewart and Patterson will be around to usher in the legislation.

"Gov. (John) Engler has pretty well said he has no intent to approve any changes at all to Proposal A, so we may have to plant the seed now," said Stewart. "If it doesn't come to fruition this fall or next spring, we'll have to persuade a new legislature."

And for that to happen, two things will need to occur. Stewart will have to be re-elected to his state representative seat, while Patterson, who is term-limited in his state rep district, will have to be elected to a first term as state senator.

Gunmen rob Stacy Street residents

Canton Police are investigating the armed robbery of a 22-year-old Canton man and two friends Thursday in the 1100 block of Stacy Street.

The three men were watching television at approximately 10:20 p.m. when two suspects entered the home and robbed them of about $200 cash.

The suspects are described as being black males, one wearing a ski mask and carrying a nickel-plated handgun and the other wearing a light blue short sleeve shirt and carrying a blue steel handgun.

According to police reports, a 26-year-old Detroit man, a friend of the Canton man, answered a knock at the front door of the Stacy Street home. Upon opening the door, the suspect wearing the blue shirt struck him in the head with the butt-end of the gun knocking him to the ground.

At that point, the second suspect came into the home and knocked the Canton man to the ground in a similar fashion. Both victims were robbed while on the ground, reports said. A third victim, a 20-year-old Wayne man, was also knocked to the ground but was not robbed.

All three victims suffered minor cuts to their heads, but declined medical attention or transport. No other injuries were reported and it appears that no gun shots.

Police reported no suspects late Friday, but said the victims may know their attackers.

COP CALLS

Cable impostors

A 34-year-old Canton woman told police she was being watched by two phony cable company workers late last week.

The woman saw the men – in their early 20s, dressed in white T-shirts, jeans and wearing empty tool belts – from her yard in the 39000 block of Coronation. When they noticed her looking, they approached her and told her they were checking television cables and were employed by Comcast.

She asked one of the men for identification, and he told her it was in his truck. The pair headed to their truck to retrieve the ID, but never returned.

Two lawn care employees who were working nearby said they saw the men get into a newer, dark-colored SUV, which left the area just before police arrived.

Comcast told police there were no contractors in the area that day, and their contractors are required to wear uniforms and carry identification.

Diaper bag stash

A baby-sitter was charged with retail fraud and contributing to the delinquency of a minor Monday night at Meijer at 45001 Ford.

Police were called to the store just after 10 p.m. A store loss prevention officer had seen the woman put seven packs of Newport cigarettes into her cart. There were two small children riding in the cart, and the older of the two, a 6-year-old girl, concealed the cigarettes in a diaper back.

The woman had also asked the girl to put a bottle of brandy and toothpaste into the bag, according to police reports.

The woman admitted to stealing the $81 worth of merchandise, and was arrested. The children were released to their mother.

Drunk driver

A 20-year-old Belleville man was arrested for drunken driving Monday night after he ran his car off a street and into a ditch.

Police officers on foot patrol in a Mott Road mobile home park overheard a loud argument and were approaching to investigate.

One of the men arguing got into his car, and fled, squealing his tires as he left. He didn't make it far before he ran his car off the road, onto a lawn, over a small hill and into a ditch.

When police caught up to him, he was still sitting in his car, and the engine was still running.

The man, smelling of alcohol, staggered through a few field sobriety test tasks before telling officers, "I've had too much to drink. Take me to jail."

The alcohol level measured by a breath test was .211 percent, more than twice the legal limit.

Anyone can suffer from athlete's foot. It's a fungal infection that thrives in a warm, moist and dark environment. Shoes present on excellent environment for fungal infections to grow.
The best prevention is to create a shoe climate least suitable for their growth:
• Choose a shoe made of a natural material that allows the foot to breathe.
• Apply absorbing cornstarch to your shoes before and after wearing them.
• Don't wear the same shoes on consecutive days.
• Clean your feet thoroughly at least twice a day.
• Change your socks at least twice a day.

CANTON CHAMBER LUNCHEON

Even though there has not been one hint of frost on the pumpkins, and the gift-giving season is months away, it's not too early for crooks to begin plotting their holiday charity schemes against you.

People eager to make charitable donations during the holiday season are sometimes taken for a ride by dishonest and disreputable con artists, according to Fred Hoffecker of the Eastern Michigan Better Business Bureau.

"Americans are in general very generous, and Michiganders are extremely generous. How do you know (which charity) is a good one?" said Hoffecker at the Canton Chamber of Commerce luncheon Wednesday.

Too often the "charity" winds up being a post office box or a mail drop at a prestigious local address, Hoffecker said.

Compounding the problem, many shady faux-charity groups seek their victims because they already know who's likely to give because they have given before. Some charitable organizations sell lists of donor names, phone numbers and addresses.

"If you donate to one organization, your name really begins to circulate," Hoffecker said.

Organizations are not required by the government to supply to potential donors the percentage of money that supports programs, and sometimes large amounts of donor gifts are spent on administrative costs or high salaries.

Even if donors can get copies of the organizations' financial statements, the print can be too small or confusing to read or understand.

Hoffecker suggested contacting the Better Business Bureau to check charity backgrounds.

In order to earn a satisfactory rating with the Better Business Bureau, more than half of the money the organization raises must go toward programs and services.

Besides disreputable charities, there are some schemes that offer crooks year-round opportunities, such as lottery scams and the Nigerian letter scam, in which people are asked to help pay to release a multi-million dollar oil fund from Nigeria. In exchange, people are promised a percentage of the fund. He said over the last year, he's seen a rising number of similar schemes with postmarks from Senegal and Latin America.

Although most people are too suspicious or savvy to fall for such a story, there are a few who continue to say, "What a deal," Hoffecker said.

The scam has proven not only to be bogus, but has also been deadly for some.

There have been to date seven Americans who have gone to Nigeria to recoup their money, and never returned, said Hoffecker.

"There's always somebody out there that wants to get you. There's always somebody out there that thinks they can beat the system," said Hoffecker. "There's a sucker born every minute, and I think every 10 minutes there's someone else born that's ready to take advantage."

Canton man arrested following police chase

BY KURT KUBAN
STAFF WRITER
kkuban@oe.homecomm.net

A Plymouth Township police officer arrested a Canton Township man Sept. 1after a brief chase.

Police investigators allege Vincent Lee Wallace, 26, stole a 1989 Mack dump truck, which was pulling a trailer carrying a Caterpillar bulldozer, from a construction site near Napier and North Territorial.

Wallace was arraigned Monday in 35th District Court for driving with a suspended license. Because it would be his second offense, if convicted, Wallace faces one year in prison, a $1,000 fine or both for the misdemeanor charge. Because there were warrants for the arrest of Wallace, he was transferred to a Wayne County jail after his arraignment. He may also face charges of stealing the vehicle, said Officer Jamie Senkbeil of the Plymouth Township Police Department.

With the help of Hogan from the K-9 squad, Officer Steve Cheston apprehended Wallace after he jumped from the truck and ran into a wooded area near a township subdivision.

The chase began shortly after 7 p.m., when Wallace was attempting to turn left at Beck from eastbound North Territorial. The truck had slid through a red light and into the middle of the intersection, Cheston said. The truck's brakes were smoking, and several vehicles had to brake "sharply" to avoid colliding with it, according to Cheston's report, Cheston attempted to pull Wallace over after he made his turn onto Beck, but Wallace sped up and turned onto the eastbound M-14 entrance ramp, Cheston said. The truck nearly struck a vehicle in the right lane of the freeway, and then swerved onto the shoulder.

When the truck slowed to 25 mph, Wallace jumped out, running south toward a wooded swamp area separating the freeway from the South Burningtree Lane subdivision, Cheston said.

According to the report, the truck continued driverless for 300 yards along the shoulder, before heading down a hill and through a chain link fence. It came to a halt in the same wooded area when it entered a creek about 175 yards south of M-14.

Cheston and Hogan then chased Wallace, who was jumping over the fence at the time.

"I exited the vehicle taking Hogan with me. The truck driver was just jumping the six-foot chain link fence at the edge of the woods at that time," Cheston wrote in his report. "I yelled at the driver three times to stop or I would release the dog."

Hogan tracked down Wallace in an area of tall grass. For several minutes, Wallace struggled with the dog and Cheston, before Wallace complied and was taken into custody. Wallace was treated at the scene for minor injuries suffered during the scuffle with Hogan.

According to the report, Wallace's record showed a probation violation warrant from Wayne County, and two misdemeanor warrants from Jackson County. He also has 11 current suspensions of his driver's license and two prior arrests for driving on a suspended license.

Senkbeil said the township began pursuing stolen vehicle charges against Wallace after police investigators contacted the owner of the truck and learned it had been stolen.

"He (Wallace) initially told us he had the permission from the owner to be driving the vehicle. However, we contacted the owner and he had never heard of the guy. We want to charge him with stealing the vehicle. We wrote a warrant request, but we're waiting for the prosecutor to make a decision on it."

Wallace is scheduled to appear in the 35th District Court for a preliminary examination on the suspended license charge Sept. 14.

Lutheran Walk set for Sept. 22

More than 250 people are expected to descend upon Westland Saturday, Sept. 22, to raise more than $60,000 for four children's programs.

The seventh annual Lutheran Social Services of Michigan WAALK and Rollathon is named after and co-sponsored by Aid Association for Lutherans, which matches the funds raised by walkers.

Held at the Nankin Mills Recreation Area of Hines Park, walkers, bikers and Rollerbladers will begin their one- to six-mile trek at 9:30 a.m. Funds they've collected will directly benefit four separate children's service organizations:

- Lutheran Adoption Services placed 215 children, a record number, into adoptive homes in 2000. Finding homes for these children continues to be the largest challenge faced by this agency.
- The Wayne County Family Center Homeless Shelter has a unique approach to providing emergency and transitional housing to homeless families by allowing them to live together in private apartments. In addition, their day care and medical clinic help families get back on their feet.
- Ann Arbor Foster Care serves Washtenaw and western Wayne County children from infancy to age 18. In addition to foster care, this agency provides youth independent living services to help older teens with the transition to adulthood.

Ramp revamp: Work begins to smooth Ford, I-275 exit

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER
cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

A road construction project to improve the ramp from I-275 southbound onto Ford Road began Friday, and will continue through the end of October.

The project will add an additional lane to the ramp, and expand the deceleration lane on I-275 by more than an eighth of a mile.

"During the morning and evening rush hours you have a problem in that area with back-ups on southbound I-275," said Michigan Department of Transportation spokesperson Robert Morosi. "Our studies indicate that adding that extra lane and extending that deceleration lane should eliminate that problem."

The right lane of southbound I-275 will be closed at Ford Road for 14 days to extend the deceleration lane. The ramp will close completely on selected weekends while the project is underway.

"We don't anticipate closing the ramps entirely except for a few weekends," said Mark Chaput, manager of the MDOT's Transportation Service Center in Taylor.

The back-ups had become unsafe for the 190,000 motorists who travel that stretch of I-275 daily.

"There is a sight line issue there and it becomes a safety problem," Morosi said.

When the project is completed, the ramp will have two left turn and two right turn lanes.

The ramp from northbound I-275 is not yet slated for improvements.

Bill Knapp's, a popular restaurant chain with senior citizens, shuttered 16 of its locations Aug. 25, including stores in Plymouth Township and Westland.

According to company spokesman Nick Tholey, the closings are part of a natural business cycle and not a sign the Battle Creek-based chain is in dire financial straits. The chain, which dates from 1948, still operates 31 restaurants in Michigan and Ohio, including two in Livonia and another in Farmington Hills. Those stores escaped last week's ax.

"We consistently look at our properties, to see the profitability of each. This is just the natural process we go through, especially when leases come up," he said.

The Bill Knapp's in Plymouth, on the corner of Ann Arbor and Haggerty roads, opened its doors in 1973 and was the chain's first Detroit-area location. The Westland location at 36601 Warren had been open since the early 1990s.

Tholey said the company's first concern is to find other employment for its displaced employees, who didn't find out they were out of a job until a mandatory meeting Saturday morning. The Plymouth location had 27 employees; Westland had 25.

"We don't expect any of our employees will be without jobs for long. Many of the employees have already agreed to transfer to one of our other locations. For the rest, we are working on referrals so they can find work at other restaurants," he said.

The news that Westland's Bill Knapp's had closed didn't surprise Scott Veldhuis, economic development director for the city of Westland, because it was perceived as too senior-oriented.

"They weren't catering, at least in my mind, to the needs of a younger population," said Veldhuis, noting the restaurant in Westland was a good one.

Pointing to its other closings throughout Michigan and Ohio, Veldhuis believes the closing doesn't indicate there is anything wrong with the local economy.

"They're all over the place. It's not just a Westland phenomenon," he said.

Students from freshmen to seniors know what's expected of them, and their focus matches the outcome. We're one of the hardest working, most dedicated bands in the country."

Quite frequently, a new band director comes in and makes wholesale changes because the program is in disarray. However, Wachholz has been fortunate, inheriting a program that has been running on auto pilot for much of the summer without a director.

"I stepped into a marching band where the program was already designed. I kind of just walked in and began working with a good product," he said.

The marching band has been practicing since June, and Wachholz said everyone, including himself, is ready to put what they've learned in practice into competition, which begins Sept. 15 at Novi.

"We're ready right now to perform. We won't have all the show on the field right away, maybe two-thirds of it," said Wachholz. "Most good bands take it slow. The show is really complex, so by the beginning of October we should have the final product together.

"What most bands do is have the entire band playing all the time," he said. "What we do is feature smaller sections in a well-designed way. Another reason we'll be interesting this year is we have a really fine color guard.

■ Wachholz said to look for the marching band to be staying longer at Salem and Canton football games.

"We gear up for the weekly competitions, and design our show to max out at the national championships," he said.

The national finals will be held Nov. 8-10 at the RCA Dome in Indianapolis. Not surprisingly, the show designed for competition this year was specifically produced for judging in the dome.

"Most of our shows are outside, but we plan the show thinking how it would sound in a dome, specifically the RCA Dome," he said. "We want to make sure the sound isn't overpowering, and there are good vantage points for the judges and audience."

Wachholz said to look for the marching band to be staying longer at Salem and Canton football games. There were complaints last year because the band would leave after halftime.

"People told me right away it was a bone of contention," he said. "If we can do more to add to school spirit, then we should.

"Our focus will still be the half-time show, but the students have told me they are interested in having more of a pep band atmosphere in the second half, something like you'd see at a University of Michigan football game."

Wachholz has more on his mind than just the marching band. In the short time he's been on board, Wachholz has plans to introduce other programs for student enrichment.

"I'm interested in chamber music and maybe having student recitals. We're going to start a tuba choir, and a full brass choir ensemble. These are all things students desperately want to do," he said. "In the second semester we're going to start a jazz big band. If we can learn about a hour of music, I'd like to take the band around the community to play.

"I've already got three or four times the students I need for that," he added. "I want to do a bunch of little things that don't involve all the students, but those who are really motivated. I want to try and facilitate those endeavors, too."

When former Plymouth-Canton Marching Band director Dave McGrath decided to leave the district, there were obvious concerns as to finding a replacement for one of the nation's top marching bands.

However, all's well that ends well appears to be the consensus of colleagues, students and parents in describing Clayton Wachholz, the successor for a program that attempts to keep its national standing.

Alan Spaeth, who helped design this year's marching band show, and who choreographs the Color Guard, said it's been an easy transition with Wachholz.

"A director change is always difficult, but this one has gone very smoothly," said Spaeth. "Clay is very level-headed, and he's been a good fit for the band. Clay teaches true to his personality. He's very passionate about music and it comes across in his teaching. The kids emulate that."

Natalie Korona, 17, of Canton is a drum major who is hopeful of a great senior season with the marching band and Wachholz.

"He's great. He's a lot more personable with the drum majors," she said. "He's here all the time, putting a lot into this program."

Nate Reno, 14, of Canton, is a freshman percussionist. He's expecting a lot from both the band and himself his first year.

"Mr. Wachholz is always helpful to the band, and has a good attitude toward everything," said Reno. "When he's out helping the band you can see his passion, and it makes you want to work harder."

Liz Adams of Canton had an opportunity to watch Wachholz work with band members, including her daughter Adrienne, during band camp last month.

"He has a good rapport with the kids, and they seemed to be enjoying working with him," said Adams. "Everything I've seen, thus far, has been positive."

CAMPUS NOTES

SCHOLARSHIPS

Kristopher Kowal, a 2001 graduate of Salem High School in Plymouth, has received the 10th annual scholarship presented by the Ann Arbor Ad Club, which is presented to students who plan to pursue a career in advertising, marketing or related industries. Kowal will use the $1,000 scholarship to attend the Rochester Institute of Technology to pursue a degree in commercial photography.

Lindsay M. Miller, daughter of Jonathan and Bonnie Miller of Plymouth, and a graduate of Plymouth-Canton High School, has been awarded a grant from Albion College's Foundation for Undergraduate Research, Scholarship and Creative Activity. Lindsay is a senior majoring in biology.

STUDY ABROAD

Theresia Radtke, a junior, will be departing for study abroad on Aug. 18. Radtke, a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, will study in Quito, Ecuador for six months. The college has sought to provide its students with opportunities to understand how people in other cultures live and to attend excellent academic institutions in other countries.

GRADUATES

The following students have received their degrees from Western Michigan University in June, 2001. They are Erin J. Waterscheid, of Canton, BA in Public Relations; and Corrina Huang, of Plymouth, BA in English.

Jane Lindamood received a Master of Education degree with a specialization in Arts in Education from Harvard University in June, 2001.

better than 10 years at the various districts I've worked," he said. "I've had good training, the business doesn't change that much."

Since leaving Plymouth-Canton, Walcott has been a consultant for the architectural firm URS, which has offices in Farmington, among other places across the country. He's been working with a number of school districts, including Lincoln Consolidated in Ypsilanti, designing schools.

The human resources position has been a revolving door since Errol Goldman retired as assistant superintendent for personnel and employee relations Jan. 1. Bill Taylor held the interim title until Champnella took over in July, and the position was changed to executive director for human resources.

County announces $17 million in federal road money

BY TIM SMITH
STAFF WRITER
tsmith@oe.homecomm.net

Christmas came early for Wayne County motorists who are tired of traversing bumpy stretches of Beech Daly, Sheldon and Five Mile among other area roads.

But the present – $17 million in federal money for road improvement projects in the county – can't be "opened" until 2003.

A number of Observerland roads made the cut for the 2003 Federal Aid Road Projects program announced Wednesday by Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara.

For example, Beech Daly between Joy and Plymouth is earmarked to receive more than $760,000 for work. Another $1 million will go toward fixing up Merriman between Warren Road and Ann Arbor Trail. About $640,000 will target a stretch of Seven Mile, between Haggerty and Newburgh. Two projects will each receive approximately $1.2 million: Five Mile, from Levan to Farmington roads; Sheldon Road between Joy Road-Ann Arbor Trail.

"The roads we will fix with these federal dollars are among the most heavily traveled on the county system," said McNamara. "These are the arteries the federal government considers the most critical to moving the people, goods and services that keep the economy healthy."

The federally aided roadwork won't start until the 2003 construction season. One more step remains for the 23 projects targeted for chunks of money – the list requires final approval from the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments as well as inclusion in the regional Transportation Improvement Plan.

Not a problem

According to Wayne County spokesman John Roach, SEMCOG's approval should be little more than a formality.

"There's really nothing too controversial on it so it should not be a problem," Roach said. "The key thing for these projects to become reality is we have to make sure the (architectural and engineering) design work gets done" to show good faith that the federal dollars won't go to waste.

Roach added that of the $17 million plan, nearly $4 million would be channeled toward road improvement projects identified by cities. One such project is in Livonia, on Stark Road from Hines Drive to Plymouth Road.

The list was unanimously approved Wednesday by representatives from all 43 communities in Wayne County, during the county's annual federal aid meeting.

Most of the projects on the list will be resurfacing jobs, where 3-to-4 inches of asphalt will be laid over roadways "for completely new riding surfaces," Roach said. Roads will be extensively repaired prior to asphalting, however.

Projects making the list were selected based on an annual survey of the county's road surface condition. Wayne County roads rated in the worst condition go to the top of the list for money from the county's share of federal and state gas tax revenues.

"We have seen significant improvement in the overall condition of our roads over the past several years," said Cameron Priebe, Wayne County's director of public services. "And the efficient use of our federal aid dollars is a big reason."

Although the sight of orange cones is never a pleasant one, Roach said Wayne County residents should take comfort in knowing that the condition of area roads improves with each passing federal road repairs program.

"Every year we're seeing fewer poor roads and more roads in good condition," Roach said. "Every year we go through this process gets us closer and closer to eliminating all of the poor roads."

Calling the list "a living document" was Priebe.

"It is possible that we could obtain more federal funds, or that some of these projects could encounter obstacles that take them from the list for now," Priebe said. "To prepare for either scenario, we have a list of alternate projects the committee approved which can fill the gap."

the round-up to be much bigger this year.

The Salvation Army will participate for the first time in the event and will be accepting sellable furniture that's is not stained or torn, clothing, dishes, pots and pans, microwave ovens, toaster ovens and knickknacks.

"The Municipal Services Department wanted to bring in the Salvation Army because they were looking for more items to make it more of a community event," Belair said.

Residents who are dropping off items for the Salvation Army only must enter at Summit Parkway and follow the signs for Salvation Army. The signs will be located in the parking lot by the playscape.

Movie producer Laurel, 63, remembered as coach, pianist

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER
jcounts@oe.homecomm.net

Robert Laurel was remembered by his son Doug as not just a movie producer but also a Redford baseball coach and a man who was active in his church, St. Robert Bellarmine in Redford.

Mr. Laurel, 63, died while playing a pickup basketball game at the church on Tuesday. There has been no cause of death listed, said Doug Laurel.

"He played basketball at the church with a lot of guys," Doug said. "He played a lot of softball."

Although the world knew Mr. Laurel as the producer of "The Rosary Murders" and as a jazz pianist, Doug said his father was a devoted baseball coach in the Redford Township Little League.

"If your were on one of his teams, you remembered it," he said.

The elder Laurel was a "pianist about town," playing at Baker's Keyboard Lounge and the London Chop House, said his son.

When he was playing piano in the late 1970s he and longtime friend William X. Kienzle, a former Catholic priest who wrote "The Rosary Murders," joined forces to make the book into a movie.

The movie was eventually made in 1987 and was a moderate box office success.

He continued in the movies business with a production company named Murryhill and was in the process of making a movie called "Pig Man" that was to be shot in November in Dearborn. He also was involved in a movie called "Adrift: Seventy-six Days Lost at Sea," a film about a man floating on a raft in the Atlantic Ocean.

Doug Laurel also said his father recorded a CD with the London Symphony of jazz piano music.

"He had a lot of drive and different interests," said the younger Laurel.

Mr. Laurel is survived by his wife of 41 years, Janet; two sons, Doug and Robert; two daughters, Janet and Christian Cavanagh; and one grandchild, Janae.

Services were held Saturday at the John Santeiu and Son Funeral Home in Garden City.

OBITUARIES

WANDA C. HEUGEL

Services for Wanda Heugel, 73, of Canton were held Sept. 5 at L. J. Griffin Funeral Home.

Mrs. Heugel was born Sept. 22, 1927, in Detroit and died Sept. 3 in Canton. She was a hairdresser.

Mrs. Heugel was preceded in death by her husband, W. Ray Heugel.

Survivors include sons, Peter C. Zabala, William Bruce (Wendy) Heugel, and son, Christopher C. (Amy) Heugel; grandchildren, Amanda, Shannon, Evan, Alex, and Sydney; great-grandchild, Kyle; and brother, Benjamin Wolfe.

Arrangements were made by L. J. Griffin Funeral Home Canton Chapel.

DOROTHY MAI CARTER

Services for Dorothy Carter, 76, of Canton were held Aug. 24 at the Schrader-Howell Funeral Home with the Rev. Neil Swanger officiating.

Mrs. Carter was born Dec. 3, 1924 in Troy, Tenn., and died Aug. 20 in Ann Arbor. Mrs. Carter was a homemaker. She came to the Plymouth Community in 1954 from Tennessee. She was a member of the Plymouth Crediteers and the Plymouth Elks. She loved Bingo and visiting Windsor. She was a loving mother, grandmother and great-grandmother.

She was preceded in death by her husband, James.

Survivors include daughter, Sara (Frank) Hlavin of Canton; son, James (Margaret) Carter of Westland; daughter, Mary (Al) Bambach of Westland; daughter, Brenda (Don) Johnson of Plymouth; daughter, Audrey Jordan of Westland; sister, Fay Ann (Dale) Cunningham of Tenn.; 11 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Arrangements made by Schrader-Howell Funeral Home.

JOANNA SELEY

Services for Joanna Seley, 91, of Canton will be held Sept. 11 at St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church with the Rev. Paul E. Schaefer officiating. Burial will be at Grand Lawn Cemetery in Detroit.

Mrs. Seley was born Feb. 15, 1910 in Hammond, Ind., and died Sept. 6 in Livonia. She worked for Kelsey-Hayes during World War II making machine guns for military use. She came to the Canton community in 1988 from Plymouth. She has been a member of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church for 17 years. She was a self-taught artist and did a little sculpting. She loved math and she and her late husband traveled all over the United States.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Robert in 1966. They had been married 34 years.

Survivors include sister, Irene Peters of Canton; several nieces and nephews; and grand-nieces and grand-nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Arrangements made by Schrader-Howell Funeral Home.

New SMART kneeling buses allow easier wheelchair access

New SMART buses are on the road around metro Detroit.The first 20 of 100 new buses have been received to date. Production on the next 80 will begin in September. SMART will take delivery of 5 per week until the Spring 2002.

Gillig Corp. in Haworth,Calif. manufacturers the new buses. The Gillig buses are the low-floor design. The buses have a kneeling capability – suspensions that can drop the front end to curb level. Passengers in wheelchairs board the bus on a motorized ramp instead of a hydraulic lift. Even if the motor failed, the bus driver can manually operate the ramp. Currently, if a wheelchair lift is broke down the bus driver cannot pick up a wheelchair user. This problem exists throughout the United States where the hydraulic lift is being used.

During the next 3 years SMART is planning on replacing its fleet with 287 new low floor buses. The new buses are heavy-duty and either 35 feet or 40 feet in length. SMART is expected to spend $104 million to purchase the new buses. Approximately $24 million is interest and $80 million is capital cost. The total number of buses purchased during the contract is contingent upon the availability of federal and state funding.

"The overriding goal was to purchase the best possible bus on the market today and get the new buses on the street as soon as possible," said Dan Dirks, SMART General Manager, "Our passengers will notice a significant improvement in the ride and quality of the buses."

Various parts of the buses are produced by Michigan manufacturers such as American Seating in Grand Rapids, Detroit Diesel in Redford, Vultron in Auburn Hills, Romeo Rim in Romeo and Transmatic in Waterford.

A creative purchasing agreement was used to shorten the time to replace the entire fleet. Through Municipal Services Group, SMART is able to finance the purchase of the vehicles with future federal grants. If traditional purchasing methods were used only 59 buses would be received in the first year and the total fleet replacement would have taken until 2007. The existing fleet would not have lasted that long.

Red-light running significant factor in fatal traffic crashes

Forty-three percent of all fatal crashes that occurred at intersections with traffic lights in the southeast Michigan region in 2000 could be attributed to red-light running, according to traffic crash data compiled by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

"We at SEMCOG hope that these statistics help to drive home the fact that there are serious problems at lighted intersections," says Paul Tait, SEMCOG executive director. "The good news is that there is a simple solution and we can all contribute – stop when the light is red."

In 1999, 49,536 traffic crashes took place at signalized intersections in Southeast Michigan; 13.9 percent of those (or 6,861) involved red-light runners. Of the 81 crashes that resulted in fatalities, red-light runners were involved 43 percent of the time.

Each year in the United States, more than 1.8 million intersection crashes occur. In 1999, red-light-running crashes accounted for 92,000 crashes (up from 89,000 crashes in 1998), 90,000 injuries (up from 80,000 in 1998), and about 950 deaths.

The goal of the Stop Red Light Running Program is to re-establish respect for traffic signals to enhance the safety of drivers and pedestrians in communities nationwide, while reducing the number of trauma center admissions caused by this traffic problem.

In Lansing, House Bill 4598, which authorizes the installation and use of cameras on a highway or street, was introduced in 2001 and was referred to the Committee on Transportation.

In response to this legislation, SEMCOG's executive committee passed a resolution supporting the concept of unmanned traffic monitoring devices – under certain circumstances – as an additional means of reducing red-light-running traffic crashes and their severity associated with intersections regulated by traffic signals. The resolution noted that other safety measures, including traffic engineering improvements (e.g., signal light timing studies, lane improvements, sight distance evaluations, signage, etc.), education, and other law enforcement strategies have been implemented first and deemed to be inefficient in reducing red-light-running-related traffic crashes.

Rocks shut out Huron in 4th for win

It took a while for Plymouth Salem to assert itself, but when the Rocks did in their Salem Tournament opener against Ann Arbor Huron, they did so with authority, keeping the River Rats scoreless in the fourth quarter.

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

When Brittany Tyson connected on 1-of-2 free throws with 1:26 left, she gave her Ann Arbor Huron basketball team a one-point lead.

It wasn't safe, that advantage. But it was the last point her team would score.

And if that had been the last quarter the River Rats would be playing against Plymouth Salem in the opening round of the Salem Tournament last Thursday, it just might have been good enough. Unfortunately (for Huron, anyway), that wasn't the case, either.

The Rocks shut out their opponents over the last 9:26, outscoring them 14-0 along the way, turning what had been a close contest into a lopsided one, with Salem finishing on top by a 44-31 total.

The Rocks, who improved to 3-0, met Northville (which defeated Novi in the first game Thursday) for the tournament championship Saturday. Huron (0-4) took on Novi in the consolation final.

"We worked through it," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, "and we've had three decent tests.

"I thought we got into a bit of a rhythm (in the second half). We started to dissect their zone a bit."

This game wasn't easy, by any means. The Rocks had two strong stretches, in the game's opening minutes and in the last quarter.

Salem at Rock bottom

A bright spot: Not much has gone well for Plymouth Salem's football team this season, but against North Farmington Friday Myron Covington did manage to gain 82 yards rushing. Many of his runs ended like this one, with a tackle near the sideline. However, he did manage to score both of the Rocks touchdowns in the game.

Loss to North leaves Salem at 0-3

They just didn't see it coming. And it cost them.

Bryan Smith stepped into a starting role at quarterback for North Farmington and led the Raiders to their first win of the football season Friday, at the expense of Plymouth Salem, which suffered its third-straight loss, 35-14 at Salem.

Smith, who didn't play the previous week in Plymouth Canton's 35-0 win over North, carried the ball 15 times for 139 yards and completed seven-of-11 passes for another 86 and a touchdown.

His 9-yard TD toss to Brian Johns opened the scoring in the first quarter. The extra-point attempt hit the goal post, giving the Raiders a 6-0 lead.

North led 14-0 at halftime following the first of three TD runs by senior tailback Justin Cook and a two-point run by Smith.

Cook, who had scoring runs of 5, 4 and 1 yards, gave the Raiders a 21-0 advantage with his second touchdown in the third quarter.

Following a half-hour delay because of lightning, Salem cut the margin to a 21-6 on the first of Myron Covington's two TD runs, this one from 4 yards out. The extra-point kick failed.

The Rocks tried an onside kick, but the Raiders recovered it.

"We lost a little momentum after the lightning delay," North assistant coach Rick Lee said, adding the Raiders were three and out twice.

But they regrouped and put the victory away with Cook scoring his third TD and Smith breaking loose for a 36-yard TD run with about five minutes left in the game. Covington scored from 6 yards out inbetween the North scores.

"It was a great team effort, from the guys starting to the guys not playing much," Lee said. "They hung together all week long; they didn't let last week's loss get to them and went back to work.

"(The win) is a confidence builder for next week. The kids tasting success early is important. It gives us a little momentum.

"It was just a hard-fought game. The kids did a nice job from A to Z in all aspects of it."

Cook had 15 carries for 42 yards, but he had more than 100 total yards with punt and kick returns included. Johns caught five passes for 62 yards.

North defenders Justin Kasgorgis, Johns and Aaron Kirksey had 14 tackles apiece.

Covington finished with 82 rushing yards on 19 attempts for Salem. Hewitt was 3-of-8 passing for 91 yards, suffering one interception.

The Raiders are 1-2 and 1-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. The Rocks are 0-3 and 0-1.

Chiefs stop N'ville with stubborn 'D'

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

Two pivotal football games in the Western Lakes Activities Association Western Division race, both expected to be close, down-to-the-wire struggles.

Farmington Harrison at Walled Lake Western. Plymouth Canton at Northville.

What major disappointments.

Harrison and Western have battled for league supremacy for the last half-dozen years, but there was no battle Friday — Western capitulated early, falling behind 28-0 by the end of one quarter en route to absorbing a 44-0 thrashing at the hands of the Hawks.

Canton is the up-and-coming power in the WLAA, but to prove themselves the Chiefs had to dispose of Northville, which a week earlier had shocked Westland John Glenn 13-7. The Mustangs also handed Canton one of its three division losses last year by a 41-21 score.

Friday's game figured to be close. It wasn't.

Three touchdowns, all instigated by the Chiefs' defense, all coming in the final 3:28 of the second quarter, broke open a close game and carried Canton to a 49-0 victory.

Which sets up this season's Game of the Decade: Harrison at Canton, 7:30 p.m. Friday.

"In the back of my mind," Canton coach Tim Baechler said, "I thought we could beat (Northville) by four. Our defense just took control."

No argument there. The Chiefs scored with 2:21 left in the first quarter on a 4-yard run by Chad Fuller. Ankit Kachhal's extra-point kick missed but Canton led, 6-0.

This game could have easily turned and headed in another

Season's off to a fast start

Rocks win a pair by a single point; Chiefs edged by Stevenson

What a way to start the season.

Certainly Plymouth Salem's boys cross country team couldn't be happier. The Rocks faced some of the toughest teams in the Western Lakes Activities Association in their season-opening quad meet at Cass Benton Thursday, and came away with three wins — two by one-point margins.

Salem edged defending WLAA champ Northville 27-28 and Walled Lake Central 28-29, then triumphed over Livonia Franklin 15-50.

Central, Northville and Salem were all without key runners, who were missing with various ailments.

Salem's Justin Hajduk finished first overall in 16:59. Next best for the Rocks was James Leddy in fifth (17:50), followed by Randy Bearden, ninth (18:05); Adam Warner, 11th (18:22); and Bill Stemmermann, 14th (18:58).

Other Rocks' runners were Mike Horgan, 16th (19:04) and Jason Poniatowski, 19th (19:22).

The 3-0 Rocks go up against Westland John Glenn in a WLAA dual meet at 4 p.m. Thursday at Cass Benton.

Salem, Canton boys just might mount a WLAA title challenge

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

There's still a Warner in the lineup for Plymouth Salem's boys cross country team. Question is can Adam Warner, just a sophomore, match what his older brother accomplished.

Because the Rocks will need someone of that caliber to make a run at the Western Lakes Activities Association title.

They do have talent. At last Thursday's WLAA quad meet, the Rocks beat two of their top challengers (Northville and Walled Lake Central) each by a single point. A major part of that came courtesy of the fine running of junior Justin Hajduk, who finished first overall.

Hajduk figures to be one of the league's top runners this fall; he placed third at last year's conference finals. Question is, do they have enough to overcome their other losses?

Salem finished fourth at the WLAA finals last October even with Donnie Warner placing first overall and Hajduk third. Also missing from that lineup

■ CROSS COUNTRY

Four teams. More than 70 runners. Place 10 of yours in the top 22, and a coach has every right to think his team will beat his three opponents.

It didn't quite work out that way for Plymouth Salem's girls cross country team Thursday in the Western Lakes Activities Association quad meet at Cass Benton.

The Rocks did get two wins, beating Walled Lake Central 27-32 and Livonia Franklin 15-48. But they couldn't quite top Northville, losing 25-30.

The Mustangs did win all three of their duals, while Central was 1-2 and Franklin went 0-3.

"The race to watch was us and Northville," said Salem coach Dave Gerlach. But the surprise element came from somewhere else.

Salem's Lauren Kane, just a freshman, proved fastest overall, finishing first in 20:28.

"I knew Lauren Kane was capable of running with the top runners from Northville and Central, but what she ran was a perfect race," said Gerlach. "She's got great footspeed and she showed a knowledge of tactics like a senior."

Next best for the Rocks, however, was Lisa Keski-Hynilla in eighth place (21:48).

Stephanie Hajduk finished 10th (21:54), Lianne Griffiths was 11th (21:57) and Kristin Mastic was 12th (22:08).

Other Rock runners: Erin Jensen, 15th (22:28); Kim Wood, 18th (22:48); Halle Burton, 19th (22:51); Jill Grey, 21st (22:58); Sheena Haddad, 22nd (22:59); and Lauren Loftus, 24th (23:38).

Northville won by placing all five of its scoring runners in the top 13, including a grouping of 3-4-5.

Salem takes on Westland John Glenn in a WLAA dual meet at 4 p.m. Thursday at Cass Benton.

Canton goes 0-for-3

Plymouth Canton's girls ran into some difficult competition in its season-opening WLAA quad meet at Cass Benton, and the Chiefs didn't fare too well.

Canton faced Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Churchill, the two teams that figure to vie for the WLAA championship, and lost both by a 15-50 score. The Chiefs didn't fare much better against Farmington, losing 16-39.

Stevenson emerged with the dual-meet win over Churchill by the narrowest of margins, winning 38-40 based on the sixth-runner tiebreaker.

Stevenson and Churchill runners filled the top 12 spots. Canton's best finisher was Mary Maloney in 19th (22:21).

Other scorers for the Chiefs were Rachel Lindemann, 21st (22:29); Carrie Oleski, 28th (22:51); Pam Reasorm 30th (23:01); and Sara Stobbe, 31st (23:01).

Other Canton runners were Sara McCormack, 35th (23:34); Tanda Shivete, 39th (24:06); and Allison Schmidt, 42nd (24:23).

The Chiefs run next against WLAA foe Livonia Franklin at 4 p.m. Thursday at Cass Benton.

Chiefs win 1 of 3

Plymouth Canton's fate in its WLAA season-opening quad meet against Livonia Churchill, Livonia Stevenson and Farmington Thursday at Cass Benton was decided by a single place.

The Chiefs placed their four of their five scorers among the top 15, but that wasn't quite good enough as they won just one of three duals.

Their win came against Farmington, 24-31. Canton lost to Churchill, 21-36, and Stevenson edged the Chiefs, 27-29.

Best among Canton's scorers was Steve Debien, who was fifth overall (17:13). Brandon McClellan placed seventh (17:30), Pat Pruitt was 10th (17:35) and Matt Rymond finished 15th (17:43). Canton's final scorer was Ross O'Hara, 22nd (18:54).

Other runners for the Chiefs were Steve Kress, 26th (19:24) and Pete O'Neill, 40th (20:27).

Churchill won by capturing the top three spots in the meet with Ryan Gall (16:42), Will Chapman (16:48) and Logan Schultz (16:58).

Canton goes against Livonia Franklin in a WLAA dual meet at 4 p.m. Thursday at Cass Benton.

(Warner, an all-state performer, is running at Duke University) is Rob Showalter, Kurt Sarsfield and Greg Kubitski.

Still, the Rocks have what it takes. Impressive returnees, according to coach Geoff Baker, include Adam Warner ("He's got the drive"), juniors Jim Leddy, Randy Bearden, Chris Vraniak, Dave Anderson and Mike Horgan, and seniors Ben Brockschmidt, Bill Stemmermann and Jason Poniatowski. The three seniors share the team captaincy.

Among the more promising newcomers are Jason Lewis and Dave Hannon, both juniors.

"This year and next year are looking pretty bright," said Baker. "If we stay healthy, we could make a run (at the title)."

That's the key, of course. Vraniak and Hannan are currently out with ailments, but both are expected back within a week or so. Both should be among the team's top 10 runners.

But the Rocks' lineup could be changing weekly. "With nothing really set," noted Baker, "this group should be hungrier. That should push us along."

Northville, the defending WLAA champ, "looks really good — like they have the best depth, one-through-seven," Baker said, taking note of the Mustangs' strong pack. Livonia Stevenson, Walled Lake Central, Livonia Churchill and Walled Lake Western all look good, too.

"And that's not even throwing Canton into the mix and they're going to be pretty good."

So who's the WLAA favorite? Who knows?

"It should be a great conference meet," said Baker. "If everyone stays healthy and we run faster than everyone else and our pack continues to improve, we'll be in the hunt."

This is one season in which the conference race is indeed wide open.

Canton could challenge

No, Plymouth Canton didn't start out as well as it had hoped. The Chiefs lost two of their three dual meets in their WLAA-opening quad meet Thursday at Cass Benton.

But don't count the Chiefs out just yet.

"We're hoping to do a top three," said Canton coach Bill Boyd when asked where his team could finish in the league. "The kids are hungry for success. For them to go to the state meet, they'll have to beat Livonia Stevenson or Plymouth Salem — probably both of them."

But that goal is down the line a bit. First there's the league to take care of.

The Chiefs have lost five key runners from last season, including Scott Gillen and Brian Page. But there's still plenty to build around; indeed, Boyd has 19 runners out for the team.

Pat Pruitt, a senior, will be the team captain. Other seniors include Ross O'Hara, who missed last season with mononucleosis, Brandon McClellan and Steve Debien. All could be formidable factors for the Chiefs.

"The seniors have kept the other kids in focus," said Boyd.

There are others who could give the Chiefs a lift. Promising juniors include Aaron Lanning, another absentee with stress fractures, and Jon Western, and sophomore Matt Rymond.

"We have to stay away from injuries," said Boyd, echoing a common coach's decree. "I think (Livonia) Churchill is the top team, easily. They have three kids under 16:45, another under 17:00.

"Northville's the defending champs and they only lost two guys. And Walled Lake Western has the Naughton brothers (Kevin and Neal) — they could go 1-2 at the league meet."

Canton could figure in the top five. "We were a very disappointing seventh (last year)," noted Boyd. "Injuries got to us — we didn't have anyone left.

"We don't have the depth we had last year. We were 5-2 in duals, but we'll have to stay healthy to match that."

With so many teams in the WLAA title hunt, expect more than a few surprises this season. In that regard, Canton hopes to give more than receive.

SALEM GOLF

In a Western Lakes Activities Association golf match that was rescheduled for Friday, Plymouth Salem probably wishes it had left things alone and as they were instead of changing them after losing 157-163 to Walled Lake Western at Bay Pointe Country Club.

Only one of the Rocks broke 40, which wasn't nearly good enough. Joe Deane led Salem with a 39; Bobby Jones and Jon Gordon each shot a 41, wtih Andy Thackaberry next at 42. Dave Wong's 44 and Ryan Williams' 45 were non-counting scores.

Salem is supposed to play in the Adrian Invitational Monday.

Salem scored the first seven points of the contest and led 9-1 following a basket by Mary Lou Liebau with 3:51 left in the first. But Huron got rolling, outscoring the Rocks 11-2 through the rest of the period for a 12-11 lead after one. Tyson and Jessica White each had four points in the River Rats' run.

It stayed close the entire second quarter, neither side leading by more than three and Huron clinging to a 20-19 halftime edge. However, it was becoming evident Salem would get its points from either Liebau or Kelly Jaskot (they combined for 38 of the Rocks' 44) and that Huron was going to win if something was done to counteract its dominance of the boards.

"We really talked about that at halftime," said Thomann. "We had to start getting a body on a body."

There were no signs of immediate improvement in the third quarter: The River Rats, using a variety of zone defenses, kept the Rocks on the perimeter while they drove through Salem's man-to-man, getting two and three shots a possession at the basket.

White's putback with 3:36 left in the third allowed Huron to match its biggest lead of the game, 28-25. But Jaskot drained that away with one easy stroke, swishing a three-pointer 20 seconds later to knot it at 28-all.

With 1:11 left in the third, Amy Szawara nailed a jumper from the corner to give Salem a 32-31 lead going into the fourth. Huron would never overtake it.

Jaskot and Liebau combined for all the points scored in the final period, each scoring six. Huron, which was on 12-of-35 (34.3 percent) from the floor in the first three periods, was 0-for-10 in the fourth.

Liebau finished with a game-high 20 points and 12 rebounds for Salem, which hit 16-of-50 from the field in the game (32 percent). Jaskot scored 18, including three three-pointers.

Huron got nine points from Tyson and eight more from White.

Agape 40, Detroit Urban 25: Canton Agape Christian rebounded from a slow first quarter — the Wolverines were trailing host Detroit Urban Lutheran 7-4 — with a strong second period, outscoring their opponent 13-3 to take a 17-10 halftime lead.

Agape was never threatened the rest of the way as it improved to 3-1. Urban Lutheran is 2-2.

Amy Henry led the Wolverines with 10 points; she also had nine steals. Lisa Ther had nine points. Desiree Mitchell's 12 points topped Urban Lutheran.

"We shot poorly," said Agape coach Chuck Henry, noting his team's 15-for-65 performance (23.1 percent). "They were very quick. It was a sloppy game."

It must have been — Agape committed 21 turnovers.

Flat Rock 60, PCA 43: Shannon Brodie poured in 11 first-quarter points as host Flat Rock jumped to a 21-8 lead, increasing it to 35-16 by halftime as the Rams improved to 2-1 at Plymouth Christian Academy's expense Thursday.

PCA fell to 1-3.

"The first half kind of killed us — really the first quarter," said PCA coach Annie Malcolm. "I thought they were pretty tough. They're a Class B school."

Brodie, whose father Bob is the Plymouth Salem HS boys basketball coach, finished with a game-high 18 points. Danielle Miller scored 15 and Autumn Hudson netted 11.

The Eagles got 14 points from Amy Brandt in her best offensive performance of the season. Amanda Saagman had nine and Shannon Murray totaled eight, both getting all their points in the second half when PCA outscored Flat Rock 27-25.

"That was probably our best game so far (this season)," said Malcolm. "I proud of their effort and the fact that they didn't quit despite the (odds). We pretty much knew we couldn't come back and win that game. We just wanted to play hard, come out and have fun — and we did."

Ladywood 76, Flint NW 40: Senior center Liz Obrecht dominated at both ends of the court Thursday night in leading the host Blazers to their third win in four tries.

Obrecht scored 20 points and pulled down 15 rebounds to lead Livonia Ladywood, which raced out to a 41-20 halftime lead. The Blazers held the Wildcats to just three field goals in the second half.

Nikki Watts added 13 points for Ladywood, Ruth Sventickas had 10 and Lauren Hesano eight. Amy Jacovetti scored seven, all in the first half.

Flint Northwestern (1-3) shot 27 free throws and made 16. Ladywood made 6-of-11.

Dearborn upends Salem in dual opener

■ SWIMMING

As warm-ups go, this dual meet really got things moving.

Plymouth Salem met Dearborn in a season-opening, non-league girls swimming dual meet Thursday at Salem, two days before the Rocks were to host the annual Western Lakes Activities Association Relays. With the score literally changing with each event, the meet was ultimately decided when the Pioneers outscored Salem in both the 100-yard backstroke and 100 breaststroke.

The final score: Dearborn 95, Salem 91.

"I thought it was a good meet," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "It was an entertaining first meet. I mean, dual meets really don't mean much except you want to swim well, and we did.

"I was pleased with the effort we got. We found some freshmen who will contribute."

Salem got wins in the 200 free and 100 butterfly from Monica Glowski. She won the 200 free in 2:05.34, and she captured the 100 fly in a state-qualifying 1:01.52.

The Rocks also got a win from Jenny Crabill in the 100 breast (1:19.86), with their team of Glowski, Alicia Dotson, Nicole Genrich and Danielle Powers finished first in the 200 free relay (1:47.89) and their foursome of Glowski, Dotson, Powers and Crabill taking the 400 free relay (3:57.44).

However, Dearborn — which trailed Salem 71-69 after the 200 free relay — collected the top two spots in the 100 back in outscoring the Rocks 11-5 in the event. After that the Pioneers went 2-3-4 in the 100 breast to outpoint them 9-7, which gave them an 89-83 lead (the biggest advantage by either team) going into the final event.

Salem swims at Plymouth Canton at 7 p.m. Thursday.

SC jolts St. Clair CCC

■ VOLLEYBALL

Well — St. Clair County CC may have won the first two volleyball meetings against Schoolcraft College, but the Lady Ocelots struck back by beating the Lady Skippers 26-30, 30-28, 30-25, 30-23 Thursday at St. Clair.

The win boosted SC's record to 7-2 in matches, 1-0 in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference.

Fran Hamilton led the way for the Ocelots with 20 kills; she also had 10 digs and two blocks. Andrea Kmet (Livonia Franklin) added 17 kills, 10 service aces, 20 digs and two blocks; Noelle Swartz (Canton/Westland John Glenn) had 10 kills (a .348 kill percentage); Carly Szajnecki had 10 kills and four blocks; Kellie Kern had 31 set assists, six kills, 16 digs and two blocks; and Ioana Vescan totaled 25 set assists and four aces.

SC had lost twice to St. Clair County CC, the defending NJCAA Division II champion, at last weekend's St. Clair CCC Tournament. The Ocelots avenged those Thursday.

Madonna buries Cougars

Madonna University opened its Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference season with a lopsided sweep of host Spring Arbor College, 30-16, 30-19, 30-23 last Tuesday.

The win pushed the Lady Crusaders over the .500 mark at 5-4 overall.

Donna Birkenhier paced Madonna with 13 kills (a .391 kill percentage). Tera Morrill (Livonia Franklin) had eight kills (.316), five service aces and nine digs; Marylu Hemme (Plymouth/Livonia Ladywood) contributed five aces and six digs; Amanda Suder (Plymouth Salem) got 13 digs; Denise Gallagher totaled 12 digs; and Jennie Wind finished with 28 set assists and six digs.

The Crusaders hosted the Julie Martin Memorial Tournament this weekend. Results will appear in Thursday's Observer.

Canton among state's elite

■ SOCCER

The state soccer rankings haven't come out yet, but it's a good bet Plymouth Canton will be near the top in Division I.

The Chiefs kept rolling along on Wednesday, scoring four times in each half to rout visiting Livonia Churchill, 8-0.

Canton is 6-0 overall and 1-0 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. Churchill slips to 1-4 and 0-1.

Seniors Nahshon Washington and Nick Rolfe each scored a pair of goals for Canton.

"Canton is a good team and they were ready to win at the start," said Churchill coach Reid Friedrichs, who was missing three key players to injury. "Canton was simply faster, they beat us to every ball.

"They've beaten Troy, Troy Athens, Ann Arbor Pioneer, (Midland) Dow and (Warren) DeLaSalle — five of the top 15 teams in the state. If they're No. 1, they've earned it."

Stevenson 10, John Glenn 0: Teamwork was the name of the game Thursday as host Livonia Stevenson rolled to an easy triumph over Westland John Glenn.

Ben White pumped in four goals for the winners, while J.T. Katikos added two. Paul Johnson, Jon Spray, Nik Djokic and Brian Ennis also scored for the Spartans, now 3-0 overall and 1-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"I was pleased with our play because we were unselfish around the box and it resulted in a number of goals."

Goalkeepers Charlie Knoll and John Magoulick each played a half to combine on the shutout.

Garden City 3, John Glenn 2: Danny McCall had a bittersweet afternoon for Garden City on Friday.

He scored the game-tying and winning goals for the Cougars in a 3-2 win over Garden City, but twisted his knee in the late going.

"Hopefully he'll be able to play on Wednesday," said Cougars coach Bill Torni as his team improved to 4-0. "He did it all in that game, scored two goals and played goal for a while in the second half."

After the Rockets took a 1-0 lead, Garden City tied it in the 17th minute as Brent Reynolds converted a pass from Jamie Miller for a 1-1 halftime lead.

Glenn came back in the 58th minute with a goal and a 2-1 lead, but McCall scored the tying marker in the 65th minute, then the game-winner two minutes later.

Josh Dodson made 11 saves in goal for the Cougars, who had 12 shots on the John Glenn goal.

RU 10, C'ville 0: Redford Union's youth was still more experienced than Livonia Clarenceville's, as the Panthers wound up with a 10-0 shutout win on Thursday.

Aldo Meradiegue led RU (1-0) with three goals and two assists, while Chris jackett, Plamen Mitev and Tony Carignan had two goals each. Dylan Borland added a final goal, while Brian Stephens had five assists on the game.

Jason Dunning stopped the only shot against him in goal for RU, while the Panthers had 20 more shots on goal in the contest.

direction, one more friendly to Northville. The Mustangs gave up yards grudgingly to Canton but, early in the second quarter, they stopped the Chiefs on downs at their own 12.

Sparked by quarterback Drew Herpich (and aided by a personal foul penalty against Canton), Northville marched out of its own end, driving to the Chiefs' 16, where it faced second-down-and-8. However, Herpich couldn't connect with his receivers after that, throwing three-straight incompletions to turn the ball over on downs.

The tide was beginning to turn.

But it didn't just yet. Canton struggled on its ensuing possession, failing to pick up the first down and punting. Northville took possession at its own 42 with 3:39 left in the half.

On their first play, Herpich's pass, an out-pattern intended for Brandon Ajlouny, was picked off by Kyle Lasko and returned 59 yards for a touchdown. Brendan Murphy's two-point conversion pass to Dave Reeser was good, and Canton's lead was 14-0 with 3:28 left.

The Mustangs got possession back at their own 31 with 3:23 left. They kept the ball one play.

A fumble was recovered by Canton's Todd Shirkman at the Northville 31. Four plays later the Chiefs were in the end zone again, this time Dane Kobus scoring on a 10-yard run. Kachhal's placement was good and, with 1:53 still remaining, Canton led 21-0.

Northville took possession after a good kickoff return at the Canton 48. However, two sacks and a pass completion that gained nothing left the Mustangs facing fourth-down-and-distant with about 30 seconds left. Herpich tried a long pass but Lasko picked it off again, returning it 36 yards, from the Canton 25 to the Northville 39.

After a pass completion moved it 13 yards to the Mustang 26, Murphy found Chris Smilo on a fade route that Smilo hauled in for the touchdown — a drive that took two plays and 13.3 seconds. Kachhal's extra-point kick made it 28-0 at the half.

The third quarter was scoreless, with each team driving deep into their opponents' territory only to come away pointless. Northville's best drive of the game ended when Herpich's quarterback sneak on fourth-and-1 was stuffed at the Canton 12 on the first play of the fourth quarter.

The Chiefs responded with an 88-yard scoring march, highlighted by Reggie Joyner's 59-yard scamper on the very first play that gave Canton a first down at the Northville 29. Four plays moved it to the 7; from there, Fuller plunged through the middle for his second TD of the night and, with 9:20 left, Canton's lead was 34-0.

Two more scoring drives followed, the first covering 68 yards and ending with Doug Davidson's 16-yard TD run with 5:07 to play. The next was far shorter — just two plays for 48 yards, the key a 44-yard scoring run by Kyle Whitlock with 1:14 remaining. A bad snap on the conversion kick resulted in a two-point pass and a 49-0 score.

"We've been known for our offense, but our defense has taken command," said a pleased Baechler.

Indeed, Canton limited Northville to 19 yards rushing on 23 attempts. The Mustangs completed 10-of-23 passes for 101 yards, suffering three interceptions and one fumble. They had just eight first downs.

Canton gained 400 rushing yards, 206 of those coming in the fourth quarter. Joyner led the way with 128 on 11 carries, but he had plenty of company: Kobus had 14 attempts for 95 yards, Whitlock carried twice for 52 yards, Fuller finished with 12 tries for 47 yards, and Davidson collected 45 yards on two tries.

Murphy completed 2-of-7 passes for 41 yards and one TD. Canton had 17 first downs.

Of course, the cloud Canton is currently floating on could dissipate quickly against a Harrison team that is being called perhaps the best in school history — and that's a history that numbers 11 state champions.

"We weren't really that up for this week," Baechler said. "Even after (losing) last year. They were calm, focused.

"It'll be the same this week, we'll prepare the best we can. We know we aren't supposed to win. We'll just do the best we can."

Someone has to give Harrison a battle. Might as well be Canton.

Impact of Farmington decision uncertain

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

What does the future hold for the Western Lakes Activities Association following the impending departure of the three Farmington schools to the Oakland Activities Association?

"I hope the 12 teams remain solidified because if anybody else goes it could have a dramatic impact," Livonia Stevenson principal Steve Archibald said. "We don't want the strength of the league to change.

"And hopefully after our meeting on Monday we'll have a clear direction and decision on their part soon."

North Farmington, Farmington and Farmington Hills Harrison have submitted a "letter of interest" to join the 28-school OAA. In what could become a mere formality, the Farmington trio will learn of its fate with when the OAA board of governors meet on Oct. 11.

Meanwhile, principals in the WLAA will be meeting on Monday to discuss what is next for the 2002-03 school year. The WLAA's athletic directors will also meet on Wednesday.

It was only last week that Farmington Public Schools Athletic Director Brian Swinehart notified WLAA members of his district's intentions.

Last fall, Swinehart was on a committee to revamp and reconstructe divisional alignments for the WLAA, which will eventually expand to 15 schools for the 2002-03 school year.

That's when two new schools Plymouth and Walled Lake Northern, become members, along with Wayne Memorial of the Michigan Mega Conference.

LEAGUE SHUFFLING

The league currently consists of 12 schools:

Lakes Division — Farmington, North Farmington, Stevenson, Plymouth Salem, Westland John Glenn and Walled Lake Central.

Western Division — Harrison, Walled Lake Western, Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin and Plymouth Canton.

Following months of meetings last spring, principals of the WLAA decided to divide the 15 schools into three divisions each based on past performance standards in all sports along with a provision that schools in the same school district would not be aligned within in the same division.

But the Farmington Public Schools, after digesting the package over the summer, apparently balked at the comprise plan and decided to initiate interest in going to the OAA, which aligns schools in divisions by each individual sport based on past record.

Data provided recently to the Observer documents the success rate of all 12 WLAA schools from the 1993-94 school year through 1998-99.

The three schools at the top include Stevenson, 27 conference and 23 divisional titles; Salem, 23 and 18; Canton, 17 and 26.

The next three include: Walled Lake Central, 12 conference and 14 divisional titles; Harrison, 11 and 15; Northville, seven and 18.

The bottom six include: North Farmington, five and three; Churchill, four and five; John Glenn, two and seven; Walled Lake Western, one and four; Farmington, zero and three; and Franklin, one division title.

Apparently the Farmington schools did not feel the equity of competition issue was full addressed.

"As I recall one or two Farmington principals voted for the final resolution," Churchill principal Rod Hosman said. "When we were done I don't think that's what they (Farmington) wanted. Hey, it's not everything we wanted either, but it was something everybody pretty much could live with it. And that's what a good compromise is all about."

If the three Farmington schools, the three lowest enrollments within the existing WLAA, do pull out and join the OAA, that leaves the WLAA with only 10 varsity programs next school year.

Both Walled Lake Northern and Plymouth High won't field full-fledged varsity teams until the following year 2003-04.

"There may be some disruption, the main concern is scheduling," Hosman said. "But I feel good about the schools who are left.

"I feel they're committed and I think we'll be fine."

John Glenn athletic director Gerald Szukaitis said the news about the Farmington Schools leaving "comes as a surprise."

"Brian (Swinehart) assured us last spring it was a dead issue," Szukaitis said. "But apparently the Farmington principals were not happy with the recommendations and the A.D.'s weren't either.

"I was on the realignment committee and it was disappointing to me that the A.D.'s proposal was not accepted by the principals.

"I've said I'm for realigning by sport and by past record. The downside is you don't know where you're going (division-wise) every couple of years. Everything is pretty new."

Fellow WLAA A.D.'s and administrators can only speculate the real reasons for the Farmington Schools' impending departure.

"Obviously they feel it's in their best interest, but I can't tell you the real motivation," Hosman said. "I could speculate that their superintendent (Robert Maxfield) has a strong Oakland County background coming from Berkley and he has a tighter association with their superintendents. They probably feel it's better for those schools, and their coaches think they will be more competitive. Their coaches have been doing a lot of talking."

Szukaitis said football and boys basketball carries more weight.

"That's the first thing people look at," the Glenn A.D. said. "The thing that sets off most emotions is football."

And if there is one sport and one program that has been at the top of the WLAA longer than any in its history, it's Farmington Harrison football.

But unfortunately with open enrollment within the Farmington Public high schools, North Farmington and Farmington have not kept pace.

Talkin' turkey 'bout these vultures

Thanks to a hot tip from naturalist Rick Smith, my wife and I got to watch some turkey vultures roosting for the night.

It was around sunset, when the warm sun no long creates updrafts, that we headed west on Five Mile Road out of Plymouth. As we approached the area where Rick had spotted the roost, several vultures were flying low to the tree tops.

They were easy to identify because of their size, a wingspan of almost six feet, black coloration, wings held in a flattened "V" shape and their tiny head. Seldom did they flap their wings, even when maneuvering to land in the trees.

NATURE NOTES

TIM NOWICKI

But without the sun to warm the air and create rising thermals on which they could soar, they must touch down and rest for the night.

From the road, we watched several fly from the south toward the roost. It was obvious that this was a traditional site that local birds return to each night.

As long as nothing interferes with their roosting, most birds use the same roost night after night.

It appeared that arriving birds would circle the core area looking for a spot, or maybe they were waiting for those in the trees to settle down. Or, maybe their was a controller at the roost waving in circling flyers when the perches were clear!!??

By the time the sun had disappeared and darkness was settling in, all the birds were on the roost. Without the bright sky in the background it was difficult to see the profile of their bodies under the canopy. Drivers passing by would never be able to see them if they were unaware of where to look.

However, their roost site was strategically, or appropriately, placed near a land-fill, and just to add some ambiance to the site, there was a dead skunk on the road. What more could these carrion eaters want in a roost site?

After leaving the vulture roost we passed a lake on the way home and noticed a handful of great egrets on their roost. Though light was definitely dim at this time, the white feathers of these medium sized birds was reflecting what light was still available.

They choose an old fallen tree along the shore of this lake. Though exposed on the lake side, if a predator did approach them, they would be able to easily escape out over the water.

Roosting in a group is advantageous. The more birds in the area, the more likely one will notice danger and alert the others, either directly, or indirectly. More birds on a roost means it is less likely that each bird would get caught.

In Pontiac, at M-59 and Telegraph roads is a roost of hundreds of starlings. They have chosen a large billboard sign to roost at. This particular sign is two sided with an open space in between - that is where the birds perch. Before they settle for the night, they circle the billboard in black peristaltic waves.

Eventually, a "leader" directs them to the roost for the night.

It's difficult finding where birds roost for the night, after all they don't want to be detected during this potentially vulnerable time, so they hide very well.

Tangles of vines, dense evergreen trees, man-made enclosures and leafy trees are just some of the places birds are know to roost in.

Waterfowl often sleep on the water and take their chances with underwater predators.

Keep your eyes open, you may find a night roost, too.

Communing with nature at Fairlane

Right in our backyard is more wildlife than any of us might imagine. The banks of the Rouge River are home to a wide variety of plants and animals.

One great place to view wildlife is the University of Michigan-Dearborn's new Environmental Interpretive Center. This is especially true for those who love birds and flowers.

JEFF MCGOWAN

The building itself is a new addition to a series of nature trails on property that once was part of Henry Ford's Fairlane Estate. It was built to resemble a bird in flight when seen from above. It includes three laboratory classrooms, an exhibit hall, and wildlife viewing areas.

Orin Gelderloos, Professor of Biology and Professor of Environmental Studies, hoped for a facility like this since he came to UM-D in 1969. Funding was made available by the state legislature, Wayne County, and the Ford Motor Company. Dr. Gelderloos credits the administration for making it all possible.

A variety of exhibits are being installed to teach visitors of all ages. Gelderloos believes it's important to have exhibits that are both entertaining and instructive.

"You can have lots of razzle-dazzle and not learn anything," he said. "Of course you have to have fun."

Exhibits will vary from high-tech electronics to low tech.

Eventually, the Hines Park bicycle trail will be extended to the university so it will be possible for families to come by bike from as far as Northville.

Walking along the trails from the EIC to the Fairlane mansion, it is possible to see animals like squirrels and groundhogs, but the real stars are the plants and birds. Now is the beginning of the fall wildflower season. Look for goldenrods and astors in the sunny areas. These plants bloom in response to the shorter days of autumn.

Stop and look very closely at the plants.

"The exciting thing about goldenrods and astors are the insects," said Gelderloos. They are home to soldier beetles, long-horned wood-boring beetles, ladybugs, and wasps. The beetles, in turn, serve as food for dragonflies.

Also housed in the Environmental Interpretive Center is the Rouge River Bird Observatory. Each morning, birds are captured when they fly into fine "mist nets." Then they are weighed, banded, and released unharmed. Many birds are in the midst of their fall migrations. Twenty-six different species of migratory birds have been identified in the last several weeks.

Some birds come from as far north as the Arctic Circle. Bird watchers who wish to add to their life lists may want to visit the 300-acre Environmental Study Area. Species identified this season include the black-and-white warbler, Philadelphia vireo, and rose-breasted grosbeak.

One of the more unusual finds was a Virginia warbler, which nests in the four corners area of the southwest United States. According to Gelderloos, this rare bird got blown over here by strong winds. "To get it in our nets is even more rare," he said.

The Environmental Interpretive Center is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

The nature trails are open from sunrise to sunset. The best times for viewing wildlife are dawn and dusk. Schools, scout groups, or other organizations interested in the Center's educational programs should contact Rick Simek at 313-593-5338.

Area centers spiff up for season

I have visited 93 bowling centers in and around the greater Detroit area in the past four weeks and spoken with proprietors, managers and people who work the counter.

They tell me the bowling is in great shape as we enter a brand new season.

Most places have upgraded facilities. Some have new ownership or management. Many have invested in new lane surfaces, going more to the synthetics.

TEN PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

A little paint or clean carpeting can go a long ways toward making a place look spiffy.

The newest area bowling center is also the furthest away — the new Premier Lanes in Chesterfield Township managed by an old friend from Troy Lanes, Bonnie Hethcote.

The center has 34 bowling lanes, three movie theaters, a video room and the Foxchase restaurant. They are planning a similar center on our side of town.

Plaza Lanes in Plymouth has new owners in All-Star Steve Klein and Gerald Johnson at the helm. They bring some youth and energy into the picture, so watch them go at it with gusto.

Bel Aire Lanes in Farmington has new ideas in place under the guidance of Mike Winkel, who is expanding his leagues and getting more young bowlers.

In nearby Romulus, the old Romulus Rec is going to be the new Romulus Rec with a new owner, George Forsey, who also brings youth and energy to the scene.

He has upgraded the restaurant with good food that attracts a nice lunch crowd from outside bowling.

Ford Lanes in Dearborn Heights has installed new synthetic lanes but left the approaches in with the original wood. We'll see how that works out.

Greg Sicilia's Vision Lanes in Westland has a new pro shop with Mike Norris in charge. It is slated to open Sept. 14.

Colonial Lanes in Ann Arbor was visited on a Michigan football Saturday. Not so curiously, the parking lot was full.

Manager Frank Pepp says they charge seven dollars per car on that day for stadium parking, only a few blocks from the Big House. For those home dates, the parking lot may make more money than the bowling lanes.

Mark and Diane Voight of Farmington Hills have bought Woodhaven Lanes on I-75 and transformed it into a first-class operation.

Anyone wanting a personal score card to keep a record of yearly scores can find one on the counters of all local bowling centers, courtesy of your Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

•Tom and Kathie Parks moved away from Livonia several years ago after having bowled in the Men's and Ladies All-Stars for years.

Now they are moving to Canton and will resume local competition at the All-Star level.

They also have increased the size of their family with the birth of identical twin girls on July 20, 2001. The girls, Adrianna Moe and Kayleigh Suzanne, have the good genes to become great bowlers.

•With the new season upon us, who will be the first to bowl a 300 game?

At the moment, there are two perfectos reported by Westland Bowl on Tuesday Sept. 4. Both came in the Tuesday Men's League by Sam Fullerton and by Rob Lademan.

On the same night, Town 'n Country Lanes, also in Westland had one in its Tuesday Junior Classic League, by James Pierce.

There likely are more 300s by the time this goes to press, but these are the first ones we have been told about.

•The Pioneer Women's Club of Detroit announces its 53rd Annual Tournament to be held at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 3, at Thunderbird Lanes on Allen Road. Membership is open to women who have bowled 20 years or more.

To enter the bowling portion, you must be a DWBA sanctioned bowler and show your card.

Entry fee of $11 is payable with the annual dues ($2) and $10 more for the dinner social. No entries accepted postmarked after closing date, Oct. 27, 2001. Entry forms available at most bowling centers.

•Mike Norris of Westland was winner of the August Michigan Majors championship at Galaxy Lanes in Grand Blanc. He was second-high qualifier so he had only one final match, in which he beat D. J. Hochstein for top honors.

D. J. did have a slight advantage — he's the owner of Galaxy Lanes.

For the match, Mike averaged 224.8 and took home a winner's check of $1,000. Not a bad two day's work.

As Norris will soon be opening the pro shop at Vision Lanes, he will have several innovative programs for all bowlers including a kids plan and his "Strike Club," a chance for people to get extra values in their purchases.

Every customer will get to bowl one game for evaluation before drilling, then another after drilling to make sure everything is just right.

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Expand your creativity and have fun all at the same time

Summer is over but not the fun. Dozens of classes in the area offer the opportunity to play with clay, ham it up on stage, learn about photographic lighting, or visit an artists studio.

Why not take the time to expand your creativity or your child's? At the Plymouth Community Arts Council you can do it together in the Mud Shapers clay class beginning 6:30-8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 19, for eight weeks. The arts council bills it as a great way to make holiday gifts.

"It's for second grade through age 70 and led by members of the Village Potters Guild," said Leslie Greeneisen, arts council education coordinator. "The clay will be all hand-built. We're encouraging children and adults to work together. Several parents and children have already signed up."

Figurative drawing, new preschool classes for ages 3-6, a mandala workshop with Cathy Dyer, Sculpey classes in polymer clay for third grade and up, and two 4-week photography classes with Observer lensman Paul Hurschmann are just some of the ways to express yourself this fall. Or learn everything you've ever wanted to know about beading, wheat weaving, glass bead making, and batik in a folk art series held on the fourth Tuesday of the month.

Kids are sure to love the theater programs where they can pretend to their heart's content. The Whistle Stop Players are holding auditions for Charlie and the Chocolate Factory today and Thursday, Sept. 13, from 6:30-8 p.m.

"Children and adults need to tap into their creativity, expand their horizons," said Greeneisen. "Art is the oldest form of expression."

Prices for arts council programs range from $9 for drop in classes to $150 for a portrait painting workshop (Nov. 17-18) with Robert Maniscalco, and $250 for a watercolor workshop (Oct. 19-21) with Donna Vogelheim. Classes begin Sept. 17 at the arts council. For more information, call 416-4278.

Farmington/Farmington Hills Cultural Arts

Nancy Coumoundouros is working at expanding her creativity at programming cultural arts activities for the cities of Farmington Hills and Farmington. In addition to painting, jewelry making and guitar classes, she's planned tours of artist studios. The first session features Kegham Tazian and Elaine Grohman Saturday, Oct. 13. The cost is $5 for one artist, $8 for both.

"We keep adding new things that you don't see everywhere," said Coumoundouros, cultural arts division coordinator. "There's a class in hand-made art books with Mik-Young Lee where students can create wonderful photo books, keepsakes for weddings or a baby (Oct. 20). I'm especially excited about a theater workshop for kids, ages 6-18, on Oct. 6. Ring of Steel, a fighting group will show them how to do stage combat, and there will be sessions in makeup."

New Artfest classes are offered in one session or as a series. Children, ages 5-11, create masks and glow-in-the-dark creatures, do scratch art and embossing, and make special effect paper and pop-up cards for the holidays. Classes begin Saturday, Sept. 22, and run through Dec. 15.

For information or to register, call (248) 473-1857.

Visual Arts Association of Livonia

Mary Ann Adams can't wait for the fall semester to begin at the Visual Arts Association of Livonia. She's been taking watercolor classes there with Edee Joppich since 1989.

"I don't think you ever stop learning," said Adams, a Plymouth resident. "Every semester I get excited. Teachers are learning new techniques themselves."

DSO's new season promises to move audiences

Thomas Wilkins seems in no hurry to take a nap before guest conducting an evening concert with the Dallas Symphony. He always has time to talk about his position as resident conductor for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Wilkins loves the job so much he's planning to move his family to the Detroit area from St. Petersburg, Fla., next year. In the meantime he's looking forward to sharing the music with DSO audiences when he fills in for music director Neeme Jarvi at the Gala Opening event on Friday. Jarvi is currently resting at home in Florida following surgery in Finland after suffering a stroke. He is expected to return to the podium some time in November.

"I want to deliver a high energy product to the audience so they walk away saying I had no idea that the music would be that special," said Wilkins who also conducts the DSO's Young People's Concert series. The programs are among the most popular of the DSO series.

Bernadette Peters

"The thing I love the most is getting people to fall in love with classical music whether they're 9 or 92, I want to win some hearts."

Marshall Hutchinson thinks the DSO's new season will definitely woo audiences of all ages. Guest artists combined with an eclectic repertoire should draw music lovers by the droves to Orchestra Hall.

"My personal highlight is the Young People's concerts," said Hutchinson, a Farmington Hills resident. Hutchinson begins his 19th season as a bassist with the DSO. "I've done some of the best concerts with Tom Wilkins. He picks great literature. He has a personal way of relating to the children."

Don't get Hutchinson wrong. Even though he'll enjoy playing the children's concerts and several other classical programs with Wilkins this season, Hutchinson can't wait for Jarvi to lead the orchestra again. Wilkins and several guest conductors will fill in until then. Fortunately, Itzhak Perlman was able to step in at the last minute to conduct the opening concerts. Perlman, who makes his debut as the DSO's principal guest conductor this season, leads the orchestra in three more weeks of concerts in addition to playing violin in "Autumn" and "Winter" from Vivaldi's The Four Seasons Wednesday-Thursday, Nov. 7-8 and Saturday, Nov. 10.

"We're all anxious about Neeme's return and looking forward to it," said Hutchinson. "It's going to be an exciting season. The highlight is Perlman as principal guest conductor. Rehearsals with him are almost like master classes but I'm also looking forward to Edgar Meyer in June. We don't normally think of a bass as a solo instrument."

Detroit Symphony Orchestra

What: Opens its 2001-2002 season with principal guest conductor Itzhak Perlman leading the orchestra in Schubert's Symphony No. 5, Barber's Knoxville: Summer of 1915 and Brahms' Symphony No. 1. Guest artist is soprano Heidi Grant Murphy.
When: 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 12, 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 15, 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 16.
Where: Orchestra Hall, 3711 Woodward Ave., Detroit.
Tickets: $20-$54, $75 for a limited number of box seats. Call (313) 576-5111.
Gala Opening – A benefit black-tie event featuring the DSO and Bernadette Peters, begins with a 5:30 p.m. cocktail reception in a Gala Tent in Orchestra Place courtyard, followed by an elegant sit-down dinner and 9 p.m. concert at Orchestra Hall Friday, Sept. 14. Tickets $250, includes concert only and afterglow. Call (313) 576-5111 or visit the Web site at www.detroitsymphony.com.

Dual talent: Violin virtuoso Itzhak Perlman (above) debuts as the DSO's principal guest conductor on Wednesday. And Tony Award-winning actress Bernadette Peters (Far left) is the guest vocalist for a benefit concert for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

"It's like what happened with cello at the beginning of the century – a Renaissance in bass. I went to a convention in Indiana with 800 bass players from 23 countries in June and saw Meyer perform for a young bassist program. They had this awestruck look as they watched him play. The lobby had two or three tables filled with bass recordings of classical and jazz music. It's part of

Activities abound at Detroit Festival of the Arts

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

lchomin@oe.homecomm.net

Maureen Riley seems a little rattled about losing one of her headliners for the Detroit Festival of the Arts. But she shouldn't be. As festival director, she's spent the last year lining up an extraordinary array of performers from around the world.

Detroit Festival of the Arts

What: A visual and performing arts extravaganza featuring European style street theater, a juried artists market, children's fair, literary festival, international cuisine and more.
When: 4-9 p.m. Friday, Sept. 14, and 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 15-16. Children's fair hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.
Where: In Detroit's Cultural Center area bounded by Warren and Ferry, Brush and Anthony Wayne Drive. For information, call the University Cultural Center Association at (313) 577-5088 or visit the Web site at www.detroitfestival.com.

"One of the fabulous acts we're bringing in is Project Bandaloop, an aerial dance company that uses a vertical plane as their stage instead of horizontal. They'll be performing on the facade of the Scarab Club," said Riley. "We bring in incredible unusual talent that's never been seen before in this area. Saigon Water Puppetry is an ancient art form from Vietnam. Puppets appear on the surface of water. On the Wayne State stage, we'll have a giant pagoda with pond and dragons spewing water as a setting for the puppets.

"We have performers from places as far away as China and Latvia to Detroit, and, just like our music, our foods are from around the world."

In addition to offering international cuisine by 27 vendors, the festival spotlights European street theater, a literary festival with a lineup of Detroit writers including Naomi Long Madgett, and a children's fair celebrating Detroit's 300th birthday by offering activities by 60 organizations. A colonial village (presented by Maggie and Bob Allesee) will feature historical performances, story-telling and crafts. And then there's the three dimensional multi-sensory art installation – Architects-of-Air Luminarium.

"It looks like a cathedral of air. From outside it appears as a very large blow-up of a multi-colored structure. Festival-goers will get the chance to walk through and experience light and color in a new way."

Visitors to the juried artists market will experience a rainbow of styles and subject matter in addition to hand-colored black-and-white photographs by William Thayer. The Redford man will exhibit in 25 shows all over the country this year. But the Detroit Festival of the Arts remains at the top of his list. Thayer showed his work in the first festival 15 years ago and has only missed a couple of years due to scheduling conflicts since.

Colorful sight: William Thayer took this photograph of a Parisian cafe with black and white film then hand-colored the print.

"It's a very good show. It's a fun thing," said Thayer, who will spend the month of October in Europe shooting new work with a hand-made wooden pinhole camera. "They bring in a lot of interesting performers. For the Shakespearean festival, we try to close our booth up for the night to go see it. It's a family event."

Sara Frank likes exhibiting in the show because it's easier to browse through the 125 booths. Frank, a West Bloomfield artist, will bring tiles with themes ranging from insects, women and nursery rhymes to music, also mirrors with tile borders and tables with tile tops.

This is Frank's third year in the festival, and one of just six shows she will do in 2001. Most of her work comes from commissions for custom backsplashes and fireplaces.

"The Detroit Festival of the Arts is small enough that people can see the art section without difficulty," said Frank, who took her first ceramics class at Pewabic Pottery in 1995. "I personally enjoy the street performers. Last year they had life-size Slinky. I'm looking forward to seeing what they have this year."

But the festivities don't end with the festival's programming. The International Institute is holding its 75th World Market at 111 East Kirby across from the Detroit Institute of Arts. Continuous folk dance performances, ethnic food, arts and crafts, and children's activities will introduce visitors to cultures from as far away as Ukraine, Greece and Scotland.

The World Market originated after immigrants, who came to Detroit to work in the factories, lost their jobs during the Depression. To help out, the women of the families brought treasured heirlooms, needlework, woodcarvings, jams and jellies to the International Institute to sell. Every year since then, the "American" community is invited to not only buy goods in the Institute's International Gift Shop but enjoy songs and dance from around the world.

"It's a chance to explain the importance of immigrants and to show we're all from one world," said board member Eva Boicourt of West Bloomfield.

For more information about the International Institute's World Market, call (313) 871-8600.

Shakespeare revisited: Repercussion Theatre returns to the festival with a new twist on Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" 9 p.m. Friday-Saturday on the north lawn of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Children's fair: Activities, provided by 60 organizations will keep kids busy at the Detroit Festival of the Arts.

what's happening. When I was in college you could hardly find a recording of the bass."

Stephen Edwards is just as excited about Meyer's performance as Hutchinson because he thinks of Meyer as the "Michael Jordan of the double bass." Still Edwards can't wait for his first rehearsal with Perlman.

"You know – he's Itzhak Perlman so when he suggests to a string player to do something you believe him," said Edwards, a Beverly Hills resident who joined the DSO in 1972. "Anything he asks you do, you know he can do. He has a wonderful ear in terms of color and taste. The opening concerts are going to be exciting. It's a blessing that he was able to fill in for Neeme."

John MacAlwee couldn't agree more.

"It's very exciting because we're into the Perlman season," said MacAlwee, vice president of marketing and communications. "We've been talking about this for a long time. It's nice when it finally arrives, but there's so many different concerts it's hard to pick a favorite. There's repertoire we haven't done in a while, The Planets by Holst, and recent work (UFO) by composer-in-residence Michael Daugherty. We have guest artists like Evelyn Glennie one of the greatest percussionists in the world. She's hearing impaired and feels the music through her feet.

■ 'We have a lot of very good music scheduled. I personally love Stravinsky – all three ballets. We're going to miss Neeme but I'm quite pleased to be working with Perlman. It's a bonus.'

Violinist Cathy Compton
Speaking of Itzhak Perlman

"And it's nice to have Gunther Herbig return. (Herbig conducted the DSO 1984-1990). We also have our pop series, a super jazz fall with Cassandra Wilson, the Afro-Cuban All Stars, and Herbie Hancock celebrating the 75th birthdays of John Coltrane and Miles Davis, and a fun concert with The Klezmatics (Oct. 13). Klezmer music is so popular all over the world. The concert is presented in partnership with the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield."

MacAlwee could go on and on about the new season.

"We're doing three of Stravinsky's ballets. Rite of Spring is one of the most important musical works of the 20th century. Firebird is always a favorite and shows the development of Stravinsky, and Petrouchka," continued MacAlwee. "This is the third year of our Introduction to the Classics series with Tom Wilkins. It grows substantially every year. It's a great way for people not familiar with classical music and a lot of classical music enthusiasts to become familiar with the music because the conductor talks about the piece."

Violist Cathy Compton thinks "every concert has something for everyone." She is most excited about playing the world premiere of Episodes for Orchestra by African-American composer Olly Wilson Feb. 1-3. Compton studied sight reading with Wilson at Oberlin Conservatory of Music.

"We have a lot of very good music scheduled," said Compton, a Pleasant Ridge resident entering her 28th season with the DSO. "I personally love Stravinsky – all three ballets. We're going to miss Neeme but I'm quite pleased to be working with Perlman. It's a bonus. He's thrilled to be conducting pieces that are not violin concertos. You can see the pleasure in his eyes to be changing his repertoire. But since he's such a fine musician, anything he does is fine with me."

To register, call Adams at (734) 455-9517.

D & M Studios

Donna Knight expects D & M Studios new home school classes on Monday to be a hit with kids and parents. The classes previously had been held on Friday only. They will be taught by Sharon Dillenbeck, Canton artist and studio owner.

"When kids come back from summer break they're so excited, their faces light up," said Knight. "Sharon has new and innovative ideas for the preschool classes, but we have classes for ages 3 to 103 plus workshops for the Christmas holidays, an all-day paint workshop Nov. 23, and a Christmas card workshop. We also are carrying a bigger selection of art supplies including paint by number kits."

'Before Motown' celebrates Detroit's early jazz history

Before Motown:
A History of Jazz in Detroit, 1920-1960
By Lars Bjorn with Jim Gallert
University of Michigan Press, $54.50 hardcover, $24.95 trade paperback

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER
hgallagher@oe.homecomm.net

Sounds of the city: A sociology professor at University of Michigan-Dearborn, Lars Bjorn penned "Before Motown: A History of Jazz in Detroit."

Ask anyone about music and Detroit and the first thing that pops to mind is Motown, that infectious, smooth, pop style of rhythm and blues that rivaled the British Invasion for popular music supremacy in the 1960s.

Detroit usually doesn't get noticed as a jazz center. Jazz is primarily associated with four cities – New Orleans, Chicago, Kansas City and New York. But while Detroit never produced the distinctive sounds that identify the music of those cities, it contributed many important players. Some remained in Detroit and others went on to the national 'scene where they contributed to the shifting phases of jazz.

In addition the rich vein of jazz talent provided the fledgling Motown Records with some of the best session musicians in the world.

"Before Motown: A History of Jazz in Detroit" is a labor of love by jazz fan and University of Michigan-Dearborn professor of sociology Lars Bjorn. Bjorn, writing with jazz broadcaster Jim Gallert, tracks the history in jazz in the city from 1920s to the 1960s, exploring the bars, dance halls and small record labels that nurtured jazz. The history is bolstered by numerous interviews with musicians and fans, clippings from newspapers of time (especially African-American newspapers), and great black and white photos. Many of the interviews were gathered by Gallert over the years he was host of WDET's, "Jazz Yesterday" program.

Bjorn's expertise is sociology allows him to put the music in the context of social change, from the migration of black families in the south to Detroit to the shifting relationship between blacks and whites. Bjorn traces the growth and spread of the black population through the city, and the rise of numerous venues that provided an outlet for jazz musicians.

As Bjorn points out Detroit was a significant player in the development of jazz in two periods, the 1920s and the 1950s, but the city was always a place where musicians loved to play and a city that nurtured young talent. Cass Tech High School was especially important as a breeding ground for talent.

While Bjorn and Gallert write about white jazz musicians, clearly the focus, as it must be, is on black musicians in the context of the city's shifting race relations.

In the 1920s, two big bands arose as important national acts, one white, the Jean Goldkette Orchestra, and one black, McKinney's Cotton Pickers. Goldkette's orchestra featured Bix Beiderbecke, the white trumpet player who briefly rivaled Louis Armstrong.

Bjorn tracks the many bands that arose as jazz music went from being a novelty to becoming the popular music of the 1930s. Black and white bands each had their own clubs, saloons and dance halls. Detroit's Paradise Valley had a score of night spots featuring the new music.

National attention shifted more and more toward New York and away from Chicago and Detroit as the big bands of Duke Ellington and Benny Goodman took center stage. But by the early 1940s, jazz took another turn with the creation of bop. Bjorn and Gallert claim the 1950s as Detroit's most important period, both as a place for musicians to play and as a source of musicians.

The names a prominent jazz musicians to emerge from Michigan during this period confirms their view including the Jones brothers (Hank, Thad and Elvin), Tommy Flanagan, Pepper Adams, Kenny Burrell and Yusef Lateef. Bjorn and Gallert draw on the oral histories to show how several Detroit clubs became incubators for the new music including the Blue Bird and Baker's Keyboard. Miles Davis came to live briefly in Detroit to escape his drug connections and play freely.

The book makes the connection between jazz, the blues and rhythm and blues. Many local jazz musicians brought their musical sophistication to the Motown sound.

This book combines social history, nostalgia and, best of all, dozens of personal memories to tell a forgotten jazz story.

Jazz symposium featured at museum

A Detroit Jazz History Symposium will be held 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 29, at the Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History, 315 E. Warren Ave., Detroit. The symposium is sponsored by the museum and the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The symposium will feature lectures, panel discussions and live performances. The event is in support of the museum's current exhibition, "Jazz in Detroit Before Motown: 1920-1960."

The day will begin with a lecture on the history of jazz in Detroit presented by Lars Bjorn, professor, University of Michigan-Dearborn, and Jim Gallert, Detroit jazz historian, co-authors of the book, "Before Motown: A History of Jazz in Detroit, 1920-1960." They will include recorded music and photographs in their presentation.

Photographers Bob Douglas and James "Beans" Richardson will be on hand to discuss their experiences and prolific work in capturing the music scene in post World War II Detroit in the session, "Photographing Detroit Jazz."

A panel discussion will feature Detroit jazz musicians from the 1940s-50s including bassist "Beans" Richardson, saxophonist George Benson, pianist Johnny Allen, bassist Will Austin and drummer Bert Myrick. Benson, Allen, Austin and Myrick will conclude the program with a performance.

The fee for the symposium is $15 for non-members, $10 for members and includes a luncheon and museum admission.

For reservations or more information on the symposium or the exhibit, call the museum at (313)494-5800, Ext. 0.

Village Music Studio offers private lessons in piano, voice and dulcimer as well as Kindermusik classes for children from birth to age 7. Group piano classes, ages 5 to adult, are also available.

Bus Trip: This tile by Sara Frank is one of the hundreds of art works visitors won't want to miss when they take a bus trip to the Detroit Festival of Arts. The cultural arts division of the cities of Farmington/Farmington Hills is hosting the excursion.

CALL FOR ARTISTS

The Westland Chamber of Commerce is looking for professional art in all media by area artists for a silent auction to be held at Taste of the Arts 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 27 at the Hellenic Cultural Center on Joy Road in Westland.

The third annual event is a fund-raiser for the Chamber and Family Resource Center in Westland. Last year about 600 people enjoyed food and beverages from 20 area restaurants, live entertainment, artwork by Wayne-Westland students, and a silent auction featuring about 40 artworks. This year's event will have a holiday theme.

For information, call (734) 326-7222.

ARTISTS NEEDED

North Farmington High School is looking for artists and crafters for its annual Holiday Arts & Crafts Show Saturday, Nov. 17.

This is a juried show. No manufactured goods. Media include pottery, silk flowers, dried flowers, baskets, candles, photography (other than Detroit), wood shelves or anything unusual. Other items wait-listed at this point.

For more information, call Dianne at (248) 553-0913.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY CONFERENCE

On Friday-Sunday, Oct. 5-7, the Historical Society of Michigan will present Detroit's Story: 300 Years of Opportunity, Diversity and Success, a conference on Detroit's history. The conference brings together noted scholars, including the Honorable Damon J. Keith, U.S. District Circuit Court of Appeals, and Philip Mason, history professor at Wayne State University.

The program will focus on opportunity, diversity and success. Tours of specific sites associated with the city's development will be available. Members of the historical and genealogical societies, educators and the community are invited to participate.

Along with Keith and Mason, other speakers include Esther Gordy Edwards, Doug Fraser, Arthur Johnson, and Mary Ellen Riordan. Special programs will be held at the Detroit Historical Museum, Walter P. Reuther Library and the Museum of African American History.

For more information or a registration flyer visit the Web site at www.hsofmich.org or call the Historical Society of Michigan at (734) 769-1828.

ACTING CLASSES

Registration is currently underway for Redbud Productions' acting classes for adult actors, and high school and middle school actors. Taught by director/actress Loretta Grimes, the class concentrates on the techniques of Sanford Meisner. Sessions will include emotional work, improvisation and scene study.

Classes begin Saturday, Sept. 15 (1:30-3:30 p.m. adults, 3:30-5:30 p.m. high/middle school students) and run through Dec. 1 in Ann Arbor. Tuition is $100. Space is limited. Call (734) 663-7167.

Grimes trained at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York where she learned Meisner's technique. She encourages students to act moment-to-moment, recalling emotional images from their past to serve as a background for their character's emotional state of mind.

The right bra works wonders

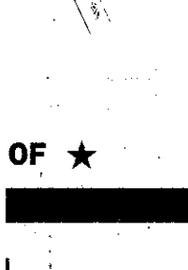
CYBER SHOP



CARI WALDMAN

I never realized until recently how important the right bra is to looking good.

Standing in front of a three-way, dressing room mirror, trying on blouse after blouse and one slinky T-shirt after another, I quickly decided it was time to not only invest in new fall clothes, but also toss out this summer's comfortable cotton sports bras and buy a new collection of undergarments.

According to research, most bras wear out and function less optimally after six months of use.

Furthermore, bras need a day of rest after wear to return to their original fit, say the bra police. Wearing the same bra over and over again puts stress on the garment's fabric and causes it to stretch and lose its fit more rapidly, the experts say.

Okay, hopefully I've gotten you to ask yourself: When is the last time I had a really good fitting bra? In any case, fall fashion is packed with body-clinging fabrics, so why not take inventory of your undergarments and learn more about achieving a good fit.

General tips to get you started:

■ To achieve good support, make sure your bra fits properly. You need to fit fully into the cup of your bra, and the cup needs to entirely support you. A common trick is to bend over, place all tissue into the cup, then stand and center yourself in each cup at the seam of the bra.

■ For the best support and comfort, the back band of your bra should be anchored at or below your shoulder blades.

■ If you wash your bras in the washing machine, place them in a mesh lingerie wash bag to protect them from being wrapped around the agitator or other clothing.

Avoid putting your bras or panties in the dryer. The heat of the dryer breaks down Lycra, spandex and elastic, so you will find yourself replacing undergarments more frequently.

Here are a few tips aimed at fall fashion trends:

■ Seamless style bras are a good bet for fall, as knits are popular.

■ With low-cut and plunging necklines, it's always nice to get a little extra lift and cleavage. Try a lightly lined seamless and padded bra.

■ To prevent blouses from pulling or gapping in front, try a "minimizer." They reduce the bust line by one or two inches and give you a rounded shape.

Now that we've learned about proper fit and bra styles that suit fall fashion trends, grab a cup of tea and head for your computer. I found the experience of buying bras on-line to be a seamless fit with my busy life:

Feminine Florence

Local clothier talks shopping, culture in latest travel book for women

BY NICOLE STAFFORD
STAFF WRITER
nstafford@oe.homecomm.net

Lynn Portnoy loves to dress the women who come to her clothing boutique.

But dressing up is more than meets the eye at Lynn Portnoy Women's Clothier in Southfield.

At the risk of sounding silly, it's a defiant assertion of womanhood; though Portnoy cares about fashion, the act of exalting the female perspective – and prodding women to experience the world through their eyes – is what drives her.

As she drapes a "fabulous" Italian wool wrap over a pair of petite shoulders, yes, Portnoy is selling a stylish stole. But she's also peddling the splendor of being a woman.

The same principle informs Portnoy's travel books, Going Like Lynn: A Series of Liberating Travel Primers for Women, the latest of which takes readers across the Atlantic Ocean to the Renaissance city of Florence.

Portnoy is slated to sign copies of her latest primer at local Borders stores: 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 16 at the Birmingham store, 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 8 in Novi and 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14 in Beverly Hills. However, Going Like Lynn – Florence, as well as Portnoy's guides to Paris and New York, sell at Borders stores and by direct order.

"Most guide books are geared towards business men or are a more general source," says Portnoy, who traversed the globe all by her lonesome as a clothing buyer for Claire Pearone, a well known metropolitan Detroit women's clothing boutique that did business in what is today the Somerset Collection.

"I want a little hotel with a concierge who knows I've come home," says Portnoy, alluding to women's No. 1 worry about traveling alone: personal safety.

But such hurdles are precisely why Portnoy, who's tooled around solo in such places as Afghanistan and Guatemala, writes travel books; arm them with knowledge and unleash the traveling fool in them all. "This isn't a dress rehearsal," she comments, rather seriously. "What are they waiting for?"

So, rather than catalogue the major hotel chains, Portnoy ticks off a tiny list of small, neighborhood hotels – former palaces, mansions and villas in the case of Going Like Lynn – Florence – where the concierge is likely to be a member of the family that runs the hotel.

Instead of a lengthy description of every major tourist attraction, Portnoy goes straight to the female heart: dining, culture and shopping, broken down into three chapters. In each, she describes her personal favorites and provides all the essential tourist information. But pay close attention, some of Portnoy's selections veer off the beaten path.

Have you ever heard of Florence's cat houses?

Do you know where can you buy leather and feel spiritually nourished simultaneously? The answer to the last question is inside the S. Croce Church. "It's the only place I know where you can pray and shop," jokes Portnoy.

As with all her guides, Portnoy weaves her recommended destinations into a time-efficient itinerary followed by a resource list to close the primer.

Her signature instruction on how to pack a travel wardrobe in one bag follows the first chapter "Pre-planning."

"I think I knew I was going to be a traveler when I had my first spanking," recalls Portnoy. "I dug up the rose garden because I wanted to see China. Children were told then that China was down there. And I invited all the neighborhood's children over to help dig."

But fear not, Portnoy won't make you want to dig, just travel.

TRAVEL

Testing science centers for fun

BY ALICE RHEIN
STAFF WRITER
arhein@oe.homecomm.net

Just like every living organism has its own unique characteristics, so do science centers. I did some experimenting this summer, traveling to five science centers, and have some interesting results to report. These are presented in no particular order.

|---|---|
| Toledo | www.cositoledo.org/ |
| Ann Arbor | www.aahom.org/ |
| Cranbrook | www.cranbrook.edu/institute |
| Detroit | www.sciencedetroit.org/ |
| Cleveland | www.greatscience.com/ |

New science center

It's an architectural example of phoenix rising from the ashes. The exposed ducts and elevators only add to the techno feel of the place, and, praise be, the equipment is all in working order – so far. That was the main criticism about the old center: Nothing worked. Here, lights blink, water flows, drums drum – you get the idea.

The New Detroit Science Center is based on the curriculum followed by Michigan science teachers. There is a section on waves and vibrations, which includes sound waves and our favorite light wave mnemonic ROY G BIV. The Daimler-Chrysler Motion Laboratory gives demonstrations of principles of science, such as friction, and kids can be chosen to glide along the floor in a hovercraft.

The IMAX Dome Theatre has a new screen and a better sound system. And on the fourth floor is the special exhibition area.

I would hope the center is a work in progress, as there is little in the way of explaining the point of many of the experiments. Sure, you want to ignite the spark of curiosity in little minds, but don't leave them guessing. A few placards here and there to provide explanations and the New Detroit Science Center is well on its way to being a place where learning can be fun.

Cranbrook Institute

It's still the best place to take in the natural sciences. And no place can come close to replicating the beauty of its Bloomfield Hills grounds. Cranbrook offers those budding geologists plenty of rocks and minerals to view. Years ago, it was pretty much a place where parents repeatedly told their children "do not touch." (Perhaps that was just my parents.) But in recent years, more hands-on exhibits have been added.

One of Cranbrook's gems is the planetarium and the programs offered for children in its theater. Little kids love the Young Stargazers program, where planets and stars come out in the simulated night sky.

Cranbook also hosts traveling exhibits in its downstairs exhibition area.

Hands-On museum

OK, technically it's not a science center, but this Ann Arbor icon has some of the most intelligent and well-explained displays I've seen. Want to know how your vocal system works to produce various vowel sounds? There's a gizmo here that shows you.

Yes, there's also the science center requisite – the tornado machine – but tucked away in an unassuming corner is the best explanation of the Bernoulli effect (it's what helps make planes fly) that I've ever seen.

What the Hands-On has above other centers is the ability to explain complex science principles in simple-to-understand terms.

The museum's come a long way since it was a fire house. And an addition was added last year. The expanded preschool area includes water play, a two-tier house and a baby area with all the latest in politically correct infant stimuli. But, judging from the swarm of little ones one recent Saturday, they could have made the area twice as large.

Great Lakes Science

Perhaps it just couldn't live up to my expectations, since I had heard so much about the great Cleveland science center, but I was disappointed. I should say there are a great number of innovative displays designed to help children learn about the conservation of the Great Lakes, and that's a good thing.

But so much of the equipment wasn't in working order, despite the fact that there seemed to be plenty of staff. You know that because they all walk around in white lab coats.

The center boasts some great live programs throughout the day, and staff members seem genuinely interested in helping kids make sense of what's what.

Still, so many of the displays were simply a matter of push a button, watch, and move on. It's no wonder that there was a half-hour lineup for kids to take a turn at hitting a baseball to see their speed. At least it's something both interactive and personalized.

COSI-Toledo

COSI is my favorite science center – and not just because it has an awesome toddler area with a treehouse to climb and an ambulance to drive.

COSI knows how to make science fun. Though it often hosts national exhibits, the beauty of COSI is that you never get tired of its permanent installations. And there are displays that interest people of all age levels, including those in the early throes of high school.

For most kids, the area that's always a draw is the sports center, where they can test their speed and skills at running, throwing, cycling, and playing virtual volleyball. Granted, COSI could do a little more here explaining the physics and body mechanics involved with just a few well-placed posters, but it's not all just for fun. The Life Force area lets kids be junior detectives while explaining medical concepts.

While every science center is designed for learning and fun, I've concluded they're not all created equal.

Electrifying: It's hard to resist the urge to be a mad scientist when confronted with the Plasma Ball at Cleveland's Great Lakes Science Center.

Just my imagination: COSI-Toledo lets kids use building blocks to create all sorts of things, including a makeshift drum set.

'Eat' your fruit and vegetables in unusual ways

Remember those words –"You have to eat your fruits and vegetables?"

Many health professionals suggest that we should eat seven servings of vegetables and two servings of fruit per day. It is common knowledge that on most days, the average American doesn't come close to that.

For centuries, fruit and vegetable juices were used for their therapeutic benefits, but that dietary choice was replaced with a lot of complicated recommendations from books, nighttime specials and talk shows. It would seem we are all just trying to figure out the big old jigsaw puzzle of nutrition.

No matter what your personal beliefs are, some of the most important core nutrition is alive in raw foods, juices and new, on the horizon, smoothies.

Many colors, content

Smoothies come in many shades of color and content. Some come alive with fun names like Peach-Keen, Vaccinator, Love Potions and All Protein to name but a few. Smoothies are liquid concoctions containing raw fruits, vegetables or dairy products. They can include yogurts, ices, soy products, coffees and green teas. The possibilities are endless.

Smoothie tips

The very best smoothies are made from the highest-quality fruit. For the most flavorful smoothies, always use perfectly ripe fruit in the prime of its season. Also, use organic fruit whenever possible.

A smoothie is only as good as the sum of its parts. Use all natural ingredients, if possible. Avoid artificial ingredients and sweeteners that can leave an unpleasant aftertaste.

Use fresh or frozen fruits within two weeks. Experiment with flavored ice cubes, which creates a cool and thick smoothie, full of concentrated flavor. To make, simply pour the juice, tea, or nectar of your choice into an ice cube tray and freeze. Freeze the fruit for a frostier drink (bananas work well).

Avoid sweetened frozen fruit as this adds calories and may make the drink too syrupy sweet.

Smoothies and raw juices are often laced with "power-ups," such as ginseng, antioxidants, blue-green algae, protein powder and a ton of other herbs, minerals and powders. Smoothies are full of nutrients, and most are low to moderate in calories and fat.

They are assimilated quickly into the body system in their liquid form, which has huge diet and health benefits, and helps make smoothies a viable nutrition alternative for our fast-paced lives.

It's 'Super'

If you visit your local "true" smoothies and juice bars or pick up one of the better blender recipe books, you will stumble across listings of "Super Smoothies," boasting to do everything from cure your cold, freshen your breath, enhance your immune system, and even make your love life glow. Super Smoothies generally include additives such as ginseng, antioxidants, and protein powders, minerals and herbs.

I've been enjoying breakfast drinks every morning for nearly six years now. (I call my smoothie the Over Thirty). It is loaded with protein powder, blue-green algae, vitamins, soy milk, and fresh fruit and juices. It helps, as the fast-paced restaurant world can often leave you on your feet for 10 hours at a time without even noticing that you have cooked all day but not attended to your own nutritional needs. Our smoothie bar serves up smoothies with the addition of an herb or supplement in one out of every two smoothie orders.

Smoothies are relatively easy to make at home. All you need is a blender and fresh ingredients, and your options are infinite. Smoothies

Learn ABCs of nutrition

Students can digest good eating habits

BY PEGGY MARTINELLI-EVERTS
SPECIAL WRITER

Packing your child's lunch for school can be thankless and daunting. Children are informed consumers and can be fussy about what they eat for lunch.

A great way to get children to eat their lunch is to include them in grocery shopping and food preparation. Sandy Rizzo of Rochester makes grocery shopping a family outing.

"When we're in the market, my children help select cereals and other snacks," Rizzo said. "This way, they can enjoy treats, but in limited quantities."

Foods of choice

Let the children pick out the vegetables, fruits, grains, cheeses, meats and other lunch box ingredients.

Fourth-grade teacher Kathy Wochaski recommends keeping the size of the lunch in proportion to the size of the child.

"Some kids' lunches are huge," Wochaski said. "Parents would be shocked at what goes right into the garbage. They see an empty lunch box when the child gets home and assume their child ate everything." Whole pieces of fruit are generally too large for younger kids to finish. The fruit may be too difficult for small hands to peel or too large to eat.

Choose fresh fruits and vegetables that are cleaned and cut up, like carrot sticks or baby carrots, celery sticks, cucumber rounds, broccoli florets, green pepper rings, cherry tomatoes, apple wedges, melon balls, orange slices, or strawberries. Additional healthy choices include dried fruits, juice boxes, fruit cups and vegetable juice cocktails.

Last night's dinner is a great way to build today's lunch. Cold chicken, pizza, and salads are great for lunch and can be a creative way to use leftovers. Also, last night's chicken can be turned into a tasty chicken salad or sandwich.

For Lake Orion resident Janet Barnard, chocolate is no longer a staple in the home. "Now that our children are getting older, we decided it was time to stop stocking up on junk food," Barnard said.

You can set a good example by eating nutritious foods yourself. Keep soda pop, sugary snacks, potato chips and other low nutrient foods out of sight of children.

Children do not like things that are too spicy, salty, soggy, squishy or tough. Also, those convenient all-in-one lunch meals are handy, but they are very expensive and often high in sodium and fat. Make the lunch yourself, and you'll spend less money and put together a more nutritious meal.

Let your kids know that a complete meal does not consist of a candy bar, potato chips and a pop. Ask your child to limit vending machine purchases and instead buy from the lunch line. Encourage them to choose more nutritious offerings, such as nuts, rather than chips or chocolate.

Keep food safety in mind by keeping hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Use a good quality Thermos for savory soups like chicken noodle or creamy vegetable, or macaroni and cheese and other hot foods. Use an ice pack or frozen juice box to keep meat, cheese and dairy foods cold.

Fun in a lunch box

You and your child will have fun making and eating these kid-friendly lunch box treats:

- Walking Sticks: Wrap slices of turkey or ham around a bread stick, carrot or celery stick. Wrap a pickle in a slice of ham.
- Pretzel Shish Kebobs: Alternate a frankfurter and cheese chunks on pretzel sticks.
- Fruit Kebobs: Alternate mini marshmallows with fresh fruit chunks on skewers.
- Treasure Logs: Cut thin slices of meat and roll with a piece of cheese.
- Blue Suede Sandwich: Combine peanut butter with bananas, raisins, nuts, shredded apple or carrots. Spread onto bun, bread or bagel.
- Merry-Go-Rounds: Spoon peanut butter on a thin apple slice.
- Jack-O-Lantern Sandwich: Spread a round cracker, rice cake or piece of bread with cheese spread or grated carrots moistened with salad dressing. Decorate with raisin eyes and nose.
- Lotsa Pasta: Cook up fun shapes of pasta, toss in some cut up broccoli or shredded carrots, and mix in a little olive oil or Italian dressing.
- Trail Mix: Make your own using granola, mini chocolate chips, nuts, sunflower seeds, dried fruits, Goldfish crackers and pretzels.
- Peanutty rollups: Spread a lettuce leaf with peanut butter, place a carrot or celery stick in the middle, then, roll up the lettuce leaf.

Let your children know you are thinking about them by adding a love note, stickers or a special napkin to their lunch. Give kids information about food to inspire them to eat nutritiously. Explain how food makes their muscles and bones grow, and how it keeps them healthy.

Children should be empowered to make their own food choices and encouraged to eat a wide variety of foods.

"PIGS" IN A BLANKET

1 package crescent rolls, pizza dough or buttermilk biscuits
Your choice of the following:
Lean ham slices
Muenster cheese or your favorite cheese
Mozzarella cheese, shredded
Tomato, thinly sliced
Scrambled eggs, cooked
Dill pickle slices
Bell pepper slices

Preheat the oven to 375°F. If using pizza dough, roll it out thinly and cut into 4-inch squares. If using biscuits, roll each biscuit until it is flat and about 1/4-inch thick. For crescent rolls, carefully unroll each triangle.

Place ingredients on the dough. Be sure they do not hang over the edges of the dough. Once assembled, place a second piece of dough on top and pinch to seal the edges. Transfer the "pig" to an ungreased cookie sheet.

Bake for 10-12 minutes until puffy and brown. (Pizza dough may take a little longer.) Serve immediately or cool, wrap, and refrigerate or freeze for later.

TURKEY STROLLERS

6 lawash, pita breads or flour tortillas
1/2 pound turkey breast, shaved
6 lettuce leaves, ridge removed
6 tomato slices
6 cucumber slices
12 sweet red pepper strips

Do you prefer Left Bank or Right Bank wines?

FOCUS ON WINE
BY RAY & ELEANOR HEALD

For two centuries the French region of Bordeaux has produced world-class red wines as blends of five varieties: cabernet sauvignon, merlot, cabernet franc, malbec, and petit verdot. But that's far too simplistic. Confirmed Bordeaux wine lovers know whether they are Left Bank or Right Bank.

What's the difference?

Divided by two rivers the Dordogne and the Garonne, Bordeaux literally has two banks, the Right with the major appellations of Pomerol and Saint-Emilion; and the Left, with the appellations of Saint-Estephe, Pauillac, Saint-Julien, and Margaux, generally grouped together under the name Medoc.

The two rivers make a significant impact on climate, soil, and grapes grown. Since the Medoc is also bordered on both sides by water, the Atlantic Ocean and the Gironde River, greater diversity is created. Wines from each bank have decided personalities.

A recently released four-pack, Collection Baron Philippe of Bordeaux wines (about $60) from Baron Philippe de Rothschild, has two Left Bank and two Right Bank wines that may help you to decide which bank you're on. Additionally, the four-pack is a savings of $15 total, over buying each wine separately.

The similarity between all this and Left Brain and Right Brain is too close to ignore. If you don't already know, your answers to the following questions may help you to decide about your brain. We'll get to the wine in a minute.

- Would you clear off a table before checking a French map to locate the Bordeaux region? Left: yes; Right: no
- Do you remember what the sales person who sold you your last bottle of wine looked like? Left: no; Right: yes
- Would you choose a wine because it had a catchy name or very attractive label? Left: no; Right: yes
- If someone whistled a tune, could you guess what it is without hearing the lyrics? Left: yes; Right: no

What about the wines?

OK, now you have a pretty good idea about your brain, so let's get back to the banks. From the Left Bank, the 1998 Baron Philippe de Rothschild Medoc is a blend of 55 percent cabernet sauvignon, 35 percent merlot, 5 percent cabernet franc, 3 percent malbec, and 2 percent petit verdot. It offers a rare opportunity to

Wine Picks

We've tasted more Bordeaux wines from the 1998 vintage. Some are terrific bargains.

Since we're into this Left Bank/Right Bank thing, they are categorized that way and listed in our order of our preference. Sorry, Right Bankers, uh, right brainers, we have only one recommendation for you.

- Right Bank: Chateau Puy-Blanquet ($20), a mellow style and good structure.
- Left Bank: Chateau Meyney ($28) is typical of St.-Estephe with bigger fruit, more power, and ageability.Chateau Larose-Trintaudon ($17) is softer on the palate with gobs of layered complexity. A great find at this price. Chateau Greysac ($17) has excellent balance, but it's a little on the light side (however if you don't like big and bold, you'll really like it). Chateau Bel Air ($15) has dark fruit complemented by intriguing olive notes and a nice grip in the finish.

Grill yellowfin tuna, then enjoy with salad

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Yellowfin tuna has pale-pink flesh and a more intense flavor than albacore. It's used in a low-fat recipe for grilled tuna featured in "Weight Watchers Great Cooking Every Day" (Hungry Minds, 2000, $24.95).

GRILLED YELLOWFIN TUNA WITH CITRUS SALAD

- 1/2 teaspoon arrowroot
- 1/3 cup low-sodium vegetable broth
- 1 medium pink grapefruit
- 1 medium orange
- 1 tablespoon minced jalapeno pepper (wear gloves to prevent irritation)
- 1 tablespoon roasted peanut oil
- Freshly ground pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 pound trimmed yellowfin tuna fillet, cut into 4 pieces
- 1/2 teaspoon finely grated lemon zest
- 1/2 teaspoon finely grated lime zest
- 1 cup very thinly sliced fennel bulb
- 1 red onion, very thinly sliced
- 2 teaspoons chopped fennel tops

Dissolve the arrowroot with 2 teaspoons of the broth in a small bowl. Bring the remaining broth to a boil in a small saucepan. Stir in the arrowroot mixture and cook, stirring, until thickened, about 30 seconds. Remove from the heat and let cool slightly.

Using a sharp paring knife, slice away the top and bottom ends of the grapefruit. Place on a cutting board on end and slice the rind away, removing all traces of pith. Working over a large bowl to catch the juices, cut the grapefruit sections out from between the membranes, letting each one fall into the bowl as you cut it free. Discard any seeds. Repeat with the orange.

Add the jalapeno and the juice from the citrus sections to the thickened broth. Whisk in the oil and season with pepper.

Spray the grill rack with nonstick spray and prepare the grill, or spray a nonstick ridged grill pan with nonstick spray and set over medium-high heat.

Season the tuna with the salt and pepper. Grill the fish 5 inches from the heat, until opaque in the center, 2 to 3 minutes per side.

Meanwhile, warm the dressing. Add the grapefruit and orange sections and the lemon and lime zest; warm through (do not stir or the grapefruit will break apart). Divide and arrange the fennel on each of four plates and top with the onion. Arrange the citrus salad next to the fennel. Drizzle the plates with the dressing and sprinkle with the chopped fennel tops. Makes 4 servings.

- 2 green onions, finely sliced
- 1/4 cup alfalfa sprouts
- Ranch or cucumber dill dressing

To assemble the sandwich, lay out the lawash loaves, pita bread or flour tortillas. Spread the lettuce leaf on the lavosh/pita/tortilla and place all other ingredients in a line from top to bottom, just slightly to one side of center.

Spread 1 to 2 tablespoons of dressing alongside the other ingredients from top to bottom. When all ingredients are in place, roll from the smallest side, tucking in as you roll it to the larger side. Cut size to match appetite. Roll in waxed paper and twist ends securely to hold. Serve cold.

would be a wonderful way to send our children's high sugar breakfast cereal packing, but your kids may not even realize these health benefits. (They would most likely trot off to school with stories of how their parents went "over the edge," allowing them to have fun fruit milk shakes for breakfast!)

However you choose to serve it up or buy it, smoothies pack those needed fruits, vegetables and dairy products. They are a good thing and good for you.

Perhaps the memories for our children will include the phrase "you have to eat or drink your fruits and veggies." Who knew getting our fruits and vegetables could tickle our tongues, too!

taste a Bordeaux Five and get a handle on your bank preference with a wine that can be enjoyed young as well as aged a few years.

Also from the Left Bank, the 1998 Baron Philippe de Rothschild Pauillac is a blend of 70 percent cabernet sauvignon, 20 percent merlot, and 10 percent cabernet franc. Pauillac is home to three of the world's most famous first-growth chateaux: Mouton Rothschild, Lafite-Rothschild, and Latour. Best enjoyed five to eight years post-vintage, you're going to want to taste this wine now to determine your bank preference.

Moving to the Right Bank, the 1999 Baron Philippe de Rothschild Pomerol is drinking well now, but will age. Brimming with opulent fruit as a blend of 70 percent merlot, 20 percent cabernet franc, and 10 percent cabernet sauvignon, it is a clear departure in the mellow spectrum from the Medoc wines which are leaner.

If you're watching the percentages in the blend, you're catching on to this Left Bank/Right Bank thing. The 1999 Baron Philippe de Rothschild Saint-Emilion (Right Bank) with 80 percent merlot, 12 percent cabernet sauvignon, and eight percent cabernet franc is fruit-laden, balanced, and elegant.

Anything match up?

Purchase the four-pack Collection and have some fun. Lately, wine is getting all too stuffy. Invite a few friends to dinner. All the wines will complement red meat, but differently. If you're vegetarian, kick up some vegetables with a great marinade, then grill them to caramelize the sugars for added flavor that will better match them to the wine.

First, have each person at the dinner party determine if he/she is left brained or right brained. Then proceed to Left Bank and Right Bank. Do they correspond? If not, hey, variety is the spice of life. The most important thing is, did you have some fun with wine?

Apple crisp: You can make great, low-fat desserts with apples. The next time you go to a potluck dinner, bring an apple crisp.

Enjoy a crisp fall with apples

Nothing tastes better than a crisp, juicy, crunchy apple when you're out hiking in the brisk autumn air or relaxing with a good book.

Whether you are picking your own apples in an orchard this fall or buying them at the market, this is the season to load up. The variety of ways you can use apples is endless – from smoothies and snacks to salads, side dishes, sauces and even entrées.

Americans can't seem get enough of this fiber-filled, nutritious fruit. Cultivated since ancient times and brought to the United States by the Pilgrims in 1620, today over 7,000 varieties of apples are grown in the United States – unfortunately, few of them are found in most supermarkets.

Red Delicious, the most popular variety, is great for eating out of hand or in uncooked dishes. Add sliced apples to low-fat yogurt or slip them into a sandwich. For a child's snack, slice an apple in half, scoop out the core and add peanut butter. Or make a smoothie by pureéing apples in a blender with bananas, juice and ice.

Combine sliced apples with canned sliced beets in a salad. Mix chunks of apples with any mixture of leafy greens and drizzle with your favorite low-fat dressing. Add chopped apples to a pilaf or cooked mixed vegetable dish just before serving.

Other types of apples are better suited for cooking and baking, like Rome Beauty, Braeburn, Jonathan, Empire, McIntosh, Granny Smith and Golden Delicious. Add some during the last few minutes of cooking a stir-fry or a curry. You can also make great, low-fat desserts with these apples. Next time you go to a potluck dinner, bring an apple crisp and watch your friends indulge in a dessert that's a treat for their health as well as their tastebuds.

APPLE CRISP

Canola oil cooking spray
4 Granny Smith apples, cored and cut into thin slices or bite-size pieces
1/2 cup raisins
3 tablespoons apple juice
1/4 cup whole wheat flour
1/4 cup old-fashioned rolled oats
1/4 cup brown sugar
3/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
3/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
3/4 tablespoons cold butter, cut into small pieces

Preheat oven to 375° F. Coat 8-inch square baking dish with cooking spray.

Combine apples, raisins and apple juice in bowl, toss well and set aside. In another bowl, combine flour, rolled oats, brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. With pastry blender or knife and fork, cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse meal.

Transfer apple mixture to baking dish. Sprinkle flour mixture evenly over surface. Lightly coat top with cooking spray.

Cover and bake 30 minutes. Uncover and bake for 20 minutes more or until apples are tender. Remove from oven and let stand on wire rack at least 20 minutes. Cut into squares and serve warm or at room temperature. Makes 6 servings.

Blend ingredients and serve.

Bananas, dried plums and peanut butter team up

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Making sandwiches at high speed can still get results that rise above routine.

Without stretching the pantry budget, have a bit of fun with easy but imaginative combinations of ingredients. Try this one for the lunch boxes or for a fast, nutritious snack for anyone (and remember that dried plums are what you used to call prunes).

PEANUT BUTTER, BANANA AND DRIED PLUM SANDWICHES

(Preparation time 10 minutes)
4 slices whole wheat bread, toasted
1/4 cup peanut butter
1 medium banana, sliced
1/4 cup (about 2 ounces) quartered pitted dried plums
2 tablespoons honey
1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon (optional)

On each of two bread slices, spread 2 tablespoons peanut butter. Top with banana slices and dried plums. Mix honey with cinnamon if desired. Drizzle honey over dried plums. Top each with remaining bread slices.

Makes 2 sandwiches.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Healthy hearts

"Good" and "bad" cholesterol, heredity, stress, diet, exercise – how do these factors impact your heart?

St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia will offer several classes related to cardiovascular health from Sept. 20 to Nov. 29 to clarify the overabundance of heart health information available to consumers. The first class, "Take it to Heart," held from 7-9 p.m. in West Addition A, will assist in understanding and identifying personal risk factors for developing heart disease.

There is a fee. Participants can preregister by contacting the Community Outreach Department at (734) 655-8940 or 1-800-494-1650 (out-of-area callers).

Volunteers needed

The American Cancer Society is looking for individuals interested in the fight against breast cancer to volunteer for the fourth annual "Making Strides Against Breast Cancer Walk" Saturday, Oct. 13, at Detroit's Belle Isle Park. A variety of volunteer opportunities are available. Call 1-800-ACS-2345.

Prescription program

Starting Oct. 1, 2001, the Elder Prescription Insurance Coverage will take effect. As of Sept. 20, 2001, the Michigan Emergency Pharmaceutical Program for Seniors will no longer exist.

The EPIC is a new state program that will provide a 12-month prescription benefit for eligible and enrolled low-income seniors, allowing more complete coverage than was previously available. The initial focus of EPIC will be on current MEPPS recipients and current Senior Prescription Drug Tax Credit Beneficiaries. However, other qualified older adults will be able to apply for assistance once these two priority groups have completed enrollment.

EPIC applications currently are being mailed out to MEPPS clients who have participated in MEPPS within the last 12 months, followed by Senior Prescription Drug Tax Credit Beneficiaries. Assistance is available to answer questions and fill out applications by appointment at the City of Westland's Friendship Center.

Open enrollment for all other potential participants will begin Jan. 1, 2002. Call (734) 722-7632.

Breast Health Expo

Saint Joseph Mercy Health System will present its annual Breast Health Expo 5:30-8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 3, at the Education Center at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, 5301 East Huron River Drive, Ypsilanti.

A special presentation by Dr. Janet Osuch, a full professor of surgery and epidemiology at Michigan State University who has spoken extensively on breast cancer throughout the country, will focus on medical education and public policy. She will discuss common concerns and misconceptions:

- The need for screening when there is no family history of breast cancer.
- Why women should wait until age 40 for initial screening.
- Differences between breast preservation treatment and mastectomies.
- The need for radiation with a lumpectomy.
- The need for mammograms for women over the age of 70.
- Why the machine must squeeze so hard during mammograms.

The SJMHS Breast Health Expo will also include health exhibits, door prizes and light refreshments. Admission is free but reservations are required. Call the Saint Joseph Mercy HealthLine at (800) 321-2211.

RESHAPING soft skulls

BY MAUREEN MCGERTY
SPECIAL WRITER

One Michigan baby girl recently was diagnosed with a common positional head deformity and treated at the University of Michigan Health System's Orthotic & Prosthetic Center.

The flattening of Alexandra Case's head and her preference for sleeping on her right side led her mother, Cheryl Case of Auburn Hills, to seek medical assistance. Because the baby's skull and neck muscles were affected by her sleeping position, a diagnosis of torticollis was reached. The condition was corrected when Alexandra was fitted for a bivalve cranial helmet developed by the center in Ann Arbor.

"She's doing really well with it," said Cheryl Case. "She's doing really well. It doesn't seem to bother her at all. She looks cute, like she's getting ready to play hockey."

Last spring, the Food and Drug Administration okayed the Michigan Cranial Helmet, a customized headgear designed for newborns and infants with cranial, or skull, malformations. Developed by the University of Michigan Health System and manufactured by Ann Arbor-based Danmar Products Inc., the bi-valve, or dual-sided, helmet guides the reshaping of a baby's skull.

Problems

Many common skull problems result from sleep or womb position, delivery, surgery or injury. The good news is they can be corrected.

"Because the bones have not hardened, there is still time," said U-M board-certified Ammanath Peethambaran, who led the helmet's design and development for the Orthotics & Prosthetics Center of the UMHS Department of Physical Medicine & Rehabilitation. "When the child is born, the head seems to be in a perfectly round shape, but once the child lays in the bed or on a surface, you may see that one area is flattened. It's like a balloon filled with water."

Making the helmet

Development of what's now known as the Michigan Cranial Helmet began in 1994 at U-M's Orthotic and Prosthetic Center. To date, more than 1,200 infants have been fitted for the helmet.

"We take a mold of the child's head," said Mark Taylor, a board-certified prosthetist/orthotist who assisted Peethambaran with the helmet's development. "We modify that mold to make it symmetrical so that the child will grow into the mold."

Each bi-valve, or two-piece, helmet, which weighs just a few ounces, is custom-fit for each infant. Because it's made in two pieces, the helmet can be widened to allow for growth.

"They're made out of eighth-inch co-polymer, which is a plastic," Taylor said. "We use a quarter-inch aliplast lining. Aliplast is a foam padding that lines the helmet."

Once a helmet has been prescribed by a pediatrician, parents or caregivers may schedule an appointment at the center. After a mold is taken, it takes about a week to complete the fitting.

"We've had patients as young as 12 weeks and as late as 12 months," Taylor said. "Parents may expect a more symmetrical development of the skull. We can see change when an infant has had a growth spurt. If the child doesn't grow much, we'll see little change. Not all infants are the same.

"If you put one of our helmets on a deformed head, the skull will grow into the void area near where the flatness is and then take the shape of the outer shell provided by the helmet," he added. "The helmet does not apply any force on the head, but allows the skull to grow within the pre-shaped helmet."

Correcting other problems

Positional head deformities create cosmetic differences as well as face and jaw problems. These, in turn, may be responsible for eating and breathing difficulties that can occur as a child ages. Once skull bones harden and fuse together, their shape and position must undergo surgical correction.

Other FDA-approved helmet designs have been developed in Florida and Arizona.

U-M's bi-valve design is unique; other designs use a band style that fits an infant's head. Early research and development of similar projects began in the 1970s. Total cost of the Michigan Cranial Helmet is $1,500 and includes evaluation, casting, lab work, fittings and follow-up visits. Be sure to check with your insurance provider about coverage.

Pediatricians alert parents to babies' misshaped heads

Babies' skulls are soft and moldable through the first year, and sometimes beyond, when head bones begin to harden and fuse along junctures, or sutures, between the several bones of the skull.

Both fontanelle or "soft spots" – one front and one rear – vary in terms of how quickly they fuse. The posterior (rear) fontanelle may fuse before a baby is born or within one month. The anterior (front) fontanelle fuses in eight to 16 months.

"When a baby is born, there's going to be a lot of molding and adapting of the head shape to the birth canal," said Dr. Silvia Operti-Considine, a pediatrician with Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills.

"As a pediatrician, I need to know if a birth was vaginal or a C-section. If there was a vacuum or forceps involved, it may make a difference on the head shape," she added. "Depending on the size of the birth canal, the head size has to decrease. The sutures are open ... and this gives flexibility to get smaller or narrower. You also have the pressure of the birth canal, be it a long or short delivery."

A newborn's skull may be altered during a hard delivery by the use of a vacuum, causing a localized hemorrhage occurring between a suture. "These are things temporarily changing the shape of a head. Keep an eye on them. As time goes by, even in the first two weeks, they're going to disappear."

An infant's preference for the right or left side is tied in with how feeding takes place. "If mom tends to prefer one side to another, the kids tend to have preference for positioning the head in one way, and flattening of the skull may occur." This may carry over to how a baby chooses to sleep.

The key to understanding the seriousness of skull malformations is symmetry of features.

"If you look from the top of the head and find a flattening of the frontal right part, you'll have a symmetrical flattening of the left occipital part. It will be the shape of a parallelogram. These are things we monitor," Operti-Considine said. Watch for eye and ear symmetry, also, she advised.

No need for alarm

Not every baby needs a molding or shaping helmet. Most flat spots go away on their own.

To help prevent sudden infant death syndrome, pediatricians advise parents to place sleeping infants on their backs, instead of their tummies. Babies who sleep on their backs may develop flat patches on their heads. As public awareness converges on both soft-skull flattening and sudden infant death syndrome, many parents may be in a quandary about how to position their sleeping infants.

"If you bottle-feed your baby with your left arm and you notice the right side of the head is flattening, alternate arms. You can also position a baby's head while sleeping to one side for one week and to the other side the next week.

"You can always have them facing the outside of the crib. As they get older, they tend to look to the side where there's more stimulation. Look for an improvement around six months."

More serious issue

If a more serious problem presents, the pediatrician will refer the infant to a specialist after a skull X-ray, MRI or both have been done. Sight, hearing and breathing problems may be involved.

Pediatric neurosurgeons and plastic surgeons then may become involved. Usually, it's a specialist who refers a patient to a clinic such as the UMHS Orthotic and Prosthetic Center to be fitted for a type of molding helmet if needed.

"Cranial stenosis is a relatively uncommon problem for the severe type, I think, one for every 2,000 live births," said Dr. Mark C. Watts, a pediatric neurosurgeon at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. "Most of the time, in cases where patients are thought to have cranial stenososis, it's really a positional problem."

Infants, before they develop, can't move or support their heads or roll from side to side. Until they reach a certain stage of development, they're often lying on one side of their heads for a period of time, he said, and it tends to flatten.

Once mobile, with stronger neck muscles, babies find new positions, and the flattened spots reshape themselves. Positional flattening generally rights itself without intervention.

How can parents and caregivers discern between a common instance of flattening and a more serious problem?

"It's often difficult for parents and pediatricians to tell the difference," Watts said. "You often look for a couple of different things ... the cheek is somewhat flattened, the nose deviates and the child just doesn't look symmetric in terms of the position and structure of the eye and nose."

Watts occasionally prescribes a shaping helmet for a patient who needs to have minor changes made in the shape of his or her head.

"Helmets can help round things out and make the child's head quite normal," Watts said. "At Henry Ford, we use them infrequently. We tend to let nature take its course. There's only a small number of kids who need helmets."

When a parent, caregiver or pediatrician suspects a problem, it's a good idea to regularly photograph your infant in the event comparisons need to be made by a physician or specialist in consultation. It's also a good idea, Watts said, to monitor the circumference of a baby's head during well-child check-ups.

Follow your child's milestones," Watts said. "Jot down when your child attempts to crawl, roll over, smile and coo and track with the eyes around the room."

If you observe a characteristic that seems different, check with your physician.

Good sleep hygiene for kids means good health

What better time than late summer or early fall to take a few tips from pediatric sleep experts and start the school year off on the right note? Now's the time to help children and adolescents make gradual changes to improve their sleep habits – and to take note of whether they have sleep problems that may warrant special attention.

Says Timothy Hoban, a pediatric sleep specialist in the Division of Pediatric Neurology at the University of Michigan Health System, the issue of "sleep hygiene" is crucial year round for kids, whose daytime alertness, school performance, growth and development can suffer without proper sleep. But many children and teens experience sleep disturbances that go uncorrected.

"If you look at the spectrum of problems that can affect sleep, I think it's probably the rare child who doesn't have occasional problems with insomnia, bedtime struggles, waking up groggy or oversleeping," he says. "It's a little tougher to estimate how frequent the more severe problems are," he adds, but if observant parents and doctors catch them, the disorders can often be treated successfully.

Parents of children with developmental issues, such as attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, mental retardation and autism especially need to pay attention to their children's sleep patterns, which are more likely to be disrupted because of their condition or medication, Hoban says.

But all parents should be aware that sleep problems aren't limited to adults. At the U-M's specially equipped Michael S. Aldrich Sleep Disorders Laboratory, Hoban and others study the sleep patterns of scores of children a year, using monitoring equipment to find evidence of everything from insomnia and sleepwalking to breathing problems and narcolepsy. They and others are also discovering that kids and teens have much different sleep patterns than adults.

As children grow from infants to toddlers to preschoolers and kindergartners, parents face a constant evolution of their offspring's sleep patterns. The newborn who needed 16 hours of sleep and naps interrupted by feedings develops quickly into a youngster who can sleep through the night but needs a nap or two to achieve their nine to 13 hours of needed sleep.

In these little ones, struggles at bedtime and nighttime waking are common as they try to exert their independence but still harbor some of babyhood's traits. Hoban advises parents to establish a pleasant bedtime routine at a regular time that includes such activities as brushing teeth and tucking in, but to set limits and respond consistently to demands, tantrums and stalling. Worries about the dark and monsters can be fought with nightlights and reassurances.

Parents should leave their children's room when bedtime comes, Hoban advises, to avoid having the child become too dependent on having a parent present in order to sleep, and to allow the child to develop his or her own "settling down" abilities.

Fighting daytime sleepiness

As children grow older, their push for control over their sleep routines, and their need to get up early and stay alert all day in school, makes good sleep hygiene habits even harder to establish – but more important to stick to. If they aren't, the child's daytime behavior can be affected.

"It's becoming increasingly recognized that there are tired children in school, and that the tiredness may take different forms," Hoban explains. "It may not just be out-and-out sleepiness and falling asleep, but also being grumpy or irritable, or having problems sustaining attention."

School-age kids obtain less sleep than they did only a few years earlier, often getting by on eight to just over nine hours, which is often less sleep than required for optimal daytime alertness and performance. Their schedules increasingly become their own during the day and evening, so they may try to exert the same control at bedtime.

"This is a time when kids will sometimes push the limits," says Hoban. "We actually see some kids this age having problems of sleep deprivation, meaning that they may not allow themselves enough time for sleep." Parents who try to impose naps may even make the problem worse.

Sleep walking and talking or night terrors that provoke crying and screaming without waking or nightmares also arise more frequently at these ages. So can apnea, in which breathing interruptions during sleep can cause both physical and behavioral problems. Parents should consult their child's physician about these issues.

To confront sleep deprivation and other problems, Hoban advises a mix of common sense and scientific approach. "In general, we don't recommend too many stimulating activities just before bedtime, like video games and vigorous athletic pursuits. These can make it tougher for a young person to gear down and be in a relaxed, quiet state that's conducive to sleep. And we recommend trying to keep bed times relatively regular because it helps govern the body's circadian rhythm – the intrinsic brain activity that governs sleep."

Keeping the child's bed reserved "just for sleeping" instead of homework, reading and TV can also help, especially for kids who have insomnia or those whose circadian rhythms are changing. "If somebody is not feeling sleepy, they should get up, leave the bed, and be allowed to do something quiet until they feel drowsy," Hoban suggests.

Delayed sleep phase

As kids grow into adolescence, sleep deprivation and daytime sleepiness take center stage due to rebellion against parental control, packed school and activity schedules, and natural changes.

"Adolescents will very often have irregular sleep habits, staying up substantially later on weekends than on school nights and making it tough for the body to establish its own circadian rhythms," Hoban explains. "And teens may be balancing schoolwork, jobs and family activities that may have an impact on their evening time and bed time."

Teens are natural "owls," with a body clock that makes them alert and energetic during the evening and inclined to sleep later than younger kids and adults in the morning. Combine this with irregularity of bedtimes, and early school start times, and some adolescents develop something called "delayed sleep phase syndrome." Body rhythms keep such teens from being tired until the wee hours of the morning, and morning schedules prevent them from getting the eight to 10 hours of sleep their bodies would normally demand.

"There is increasing evidence in the medical literature that there is a substantial proportion of adolescents with this tendency," Hoban says. He notes that some school districts have started to change their high school start times to allow students to sleep later in accordance with their natural rhythms. Not enough evidence has come in to say whether or not this improves attendance and alertness, Hoban cautions, but studies are under way.

As much as possible, teens should heed the advice given to their younger siblings and try to get to bed around the same time each night after a "wind down" time of quiet activity. Anti-insomnia medication or herbs often help only temporarily and can't make up for bad habits.

Just the facts

- The amount of sleep an individual needs each day varies from person to person, but generally is around 16 hours for newborns and around eight hours for adults.
- Sleep is crucial for maintaining physical well-being, helping to regulate growth, and possibly in helping imprint long-term memory.
- Each night of sleep features a repeating cycle of stages, marked by shifts in brain and body activity. Dream-filled rapid eye movement, or REM, sleep, and four stages of light and deep non-REM sleep all occur in different amounts in children and adults.
- A 1999 survey found that 60 percent of kids under age 18 complained of being tired during the day, and 15 percent of kids reported falling asleep at school, during the previous year.
- Half of sleep time during infancy is REM stage, but by adulthood it's only about 25 percent.

ALCOHOL AND GOUT

Alcohol does not cause gout. Rather, heavy drinking affects the kidney's ability to rid the body of uric acid, which is the cause of gout. Uric acid results from the breakdown of protein in our body; it is a normal activity that the body regulates depending on intake of protein and the level of uric acid in the blood.

The kidney contains special cells which separate out uric acid and excrete it into the urine. Alcohol impedes that process. If the blood uric acid builds up high enough, then gout results.

Another way that alcohol can cause gout is by the impurities dissolved in the alcohol. In England in the 18th century much of the wine consumed was sold in lead lined casks. Lead, like alcohol, interferes with the kidney's ability to excrete uric acid. The same set of circumstances existed in America during prohibition with the making of large amounts of bootleg liquor in lead containing vats. Both in England in the 18th century and America in the twenties, the incidence of gout increased dramatically.

You won't run the risk of bringing on an attack of gout if you don't drink in excess. The only exception are a few unlucky people, who for reasons unknown, are prone to gout attacks even with uric acid levels that are normal. In that unusual circumstance, even moderate drinking may slow the elimination of uric acid enough to precipitate an attack.

You would be misguided to forswear wine in the belief that you would end your risk for gout. In most cases, attacks of gout have nothing to do with drinking. Of course, at all times, sober judgment is in order in deciding how much you drink and when.

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

I have a situation where I had a party and offered alcohol to a guest who was knocked unconscious when he fell at my home.

I revived him and put him on the sofa before going to bed, but I did not tell his wife about the fall until the next morning.

He suffered major injuries and was rushed to the hospital. I' m wondering whether you think that I have any liability.

In a case with similar facts, the court indicated that the "Restatement of Torts 2nd" focuses on those who may give gratuitous aid to a person. It doesn't matter that the care givers may not have proper skill and training to provide such services. The statute envisions the assistance of a private person such as a homeowner to a person in need of aid.

The reasonableness of the homeowner's actions (as a layman) in caring for the person is a question of fact. As such, that question of fact must be determined by a fact finder and not by the trial court as a matter of law.

The court therefore did not give credence to the possibility that the homeowner could be liable. In this particular instance, you should, of course, contact your insurance carrier and cooperate in all respects with it. Your carrier will be familiar with the law in a case such as this.

For conductors, it's a matter of presentation.

Same for Realtors when it comes to showing houses or condominiums.

Some sales pros are more subtle in orchestrating a visit and some are more talkative than others.

But most Realtors develop routines and a panache that works for them as they take center stage with a potential sale in the balance.

And many will admit that the homes are more important than themselves.

"I think that you're more comfortable and do a better job if you have a style," said Kathleen Sanchez, associate broker with Coldwell Banker Shooltz in Oxford.

"It gives you a comfort zone. It doesn't look like you're aimlessly wandering the house. People hire you for your expertise and you look like an expert," she said.

"I think it's important to make your buyer comfortable," added Ronn Kamm, a Realtor with First Harvest in Redford.

"I don't know whether there is any one routine," said Sally Bell, associate broker with Century 21 Travis in Troy. "As it opens in front of you, you go with the flow."

Drive together

When bringing prospective buyers to a house, Sanchez likes to drive together with clients and let them look over a home's feature sheet and seller disclosure statement while en route.

"It gives them an idea what they'll be seeing," she said. Going together also provides for immediate feedback on questions.

"When we get there, I open the door, step back and let them walk in first. I try to get lights on, shades open.

"If there are upgrades like Anderson windows or a corian counter, I'll always point that out.

"You never give your opinion. You just restate facts – 'This house has a large living room like you said you wanted or this one has four bedrooms, the other one had three,'" Sanchez said.

■ 'When it comes down it, most people have a gut feeling when they get to a house ... "this is going to be the house."

Ronn Kamm
Realtor
Redford

"Then I try to ask, every house, 'Would you buy this house? We're not just in business to show houses, but selling. I make that clear right up front."

Sanchez prefers to keep couples together when walking through a house and prefers to start on the main floor, then go upstairs, then to the basement and garage.

Unless, of course, a client states a particular feature impresses him or her, then they go there first.

Anticipate questions

A good Realtor also is totally familiar with a house and anticipates question buyers might have, Sanchez added. "Things like, 'Can you put a boat in the driveway or build a pole barn here?'" she said. "You're going to feel funny if someone asks and you don't know."

The most important thing he can do for a prospective purchaser is open the front door, said Randy Goodson, associate broker with Prudential Chamberlain Stiehl in Farmington Hills.

"I always say people buy the first 30 or 40 seconds from the feel they get when they walk-in," he said. "Typically, I think a house can sell itself if the lights are on.

"I try to point out things they may not notice or things that are unusual for a particular price range," Goodson added. "A $300,000 home, for instance with a library with a lot of paneling and crown molding. Those things you point out.

"If you're a buyer's agent, you also have to point out what's negative and what could impact them on resale," he said.

Let visitors meander where they want to go, he added. "If you take too much control ... you may move them past things they want to look at."

No fudging

Realtors should be honest in their presentation, too, and avoid sleight-of-hand, Goodson said.

"You can't fit a size 14 foot in a nine shoe," he said. "I see Realtors do that – every house is the best house and the next house it's the same thing."

The house is more important than the Realtor, Kamm agrees.

"I think a house shows itself. I've taken different courses to help you be a better salesperson. The reason you need an agent is to take care of particular details, not necessarily show a house."

A Realtor doesn't have to engage in ongoing commentary – "here is the kitchen like, duh," he said. "When it comes down it, most people have a gut feeling when they get to a house ... this is going to be the house.

"I try to lead a little bit," Kamm said, adding that he will give an opinion about such things as the roof and mechanicals, but always with the caveat that a private inspection will yield more useful particulars.

But the house is the star, not him, Kamm said and folks don't need to be force-fed. "No one want to be sold anymore," he said.

Bell has been in the business nearly 30 years.

"I kind of like to look outside a little bit, then go in the house," she said. "Make sure they come in the front door, then just get out of their way.

"I like to keep the husband and wife together, kind of step back and let them find the beauty in the house," Bell said. "It's like an adventure, an exciting discovery. You can't rush people.

"Just be there. I'm the neutral party. That's what you need me for. You become their advisor, friend, sounding board.

"It's the whole show, an emotional experience," Bell said. "If you have someone who loves something, your role is to help them through the whole gambit. It's a whole team effort, not a one-man band."

No-brainer ways to save money

MORTGAGE BITS

TIM 'TIMBO' PHILLIPS

"It's too good to be true!" Have you ever met a skeptical person who would not look down if you told him he was standing on a ten-dollar bill? More likely, he would just cock his head and sneer at you while he walks off waving his crooked finger at your nose. I can never figure these people out.

I also cannot figure out why some homeowners have still not explored their refinancing options. Some of you stand to save dozens of ten-dollar bills a month with an interest-rate reduction on your home mortgage, but you simply won't take a look. Maybe if I give you a peek you will become a believer?

If your current FHA loan has private mortgage insurance attached to it and have not refinanced since Jan. 1, 2001, you should know that you are stuck with your monthly mortgage insurance premium forever – or at least until you refinance your home. Like conventional mortgages, the new FHA loans let you nix your monthly mortgage insurance when you attain a 20-percent ownership in your property. For many, that makes a refinance worthwhile even without a better interest rate.

Also, the FHA's "streamlined" refinance allows borrowers to take advantage of today's lower rates. If you have not been late on your FHA mortgage and you have an interest rate above 8 percent (or an adjustable-rate FHA loan), you should consider streamlining. The FHA will also allow qualified borrowers to "cash out" up to 85-percent of their home's value.

If you change from an FHA loan to a conventional mortgage, you may be eligible for a pro-rated refund of your upfront mortgage insurance from HUD. That refund could be hundreds or thousands of dollars, depending on the age and size of the original FHA mortgage.

Fellow veterans, you can improve your VA mortgage rate (or change from an adjustable- to a fixed-rate loan) using their Interest Rate Reduction program for just $50 out-of-pocket. The VA's "cash out" option lets you refinance up to 90 percent of your home's value. Check it out.

Tim "Timbo" Phillips is a mortgage loan officer in Plymouth. For a free mortgage pre- qualification or credit assessment, you may contact him at PhillipsHQ@ yahoo. com, or at (734) 797-5522 [24 hours]. Homebuyers should always consult a professional for guidance specific to their situation.

Wanna planta tree?

Global ReLeaf of Michigan Inc, seeks neighborhood organizations throughout Michigan interested in planting trees on public property in their communities. Global ReLeaf volunteers work with the community group to plan the event, arrange for the purchase and delivery of the trees and provide technical assistance on the day of planting. The community group supplies the volunteers to plant the trees. Plantings are done on a cost sharing basis with Global ReLeaf of Michigan matching up to 50 percent of the cost of the trees or $1,000.

Global ReLeaf emphasizes planting trees in areas with heavy resident use and little tree cover, such as playgrounds, parks, schoolyards and roadways.

The deadline to apply is Sept. 15.

Consumer Mortgage Advisory #6: The Good Faith Estimate.

Before you complete that mortgage application and pay the fee, get a "good faith estimate." This discloses your interest rate, term, all costs and fees, amount of cash you will need at closing, and the annual percentage rate. It must be very close to accurate at the time of your application. That's the law.

MEYERS ON MORTGAGES

by GARY S. MEYERS

YOUR CREDIT AND BUYING A HOME

Will bad credit two years ago keep you out of the housing market? Does a real estate agent have a right to see your credit application? Today The Meyers Report gets answers to readers questions from the experts.

Q. We are purchasing a home. The seller's real estate agent asked my bank for a copy of the mortgage loan application. Do they have a right to see that? Why would they want to look at it?

A. Usually the seller's agent asks for a pre-approval letter, not the application itself. It's against the law for a lender to disclose debt to a third party without the borrower's approval. Your loan application has information about your debt.

"We, as bankers, know how private this information is," Tom Drozdz, residential mortgage originator for Archer Bank, said. "If I was the borrower, I would say no and tell them to call my banker. My banker will tell the real estate agent whether or not he thinks the loan will go through."

Q. When I was a college student my credit rating went from good to bad. During the last two years, since I have been out of school, I have tried to keep current with all of my bills, such as telephone, rent and utilities. I want to buy a house in the next two to three years and was wondering if I continued my path of keeping my bills current, will my past credit problems have a big effect when I go looking for a mortgage? The credit card bills I got in school, I haven't paid in five years thus far.

A. You will have to pay off all your outstanding collections, Rick Deleon, branch manager for Allied Mortgage Capital Corporation, said. Most lenders look for 24 months of a clean history, providing you have no bankruptcies or foreclosures in your past. That is time enough to re-establish your good credit. If you have cleaned up your bills, you may qualify for an FHA loan. For more details, check out Allied Mortgage's web site: www.nolandlord.com.

Q. My wife and I had a bankruptcy that was discharged two and a half years ago. It was only on credit card debt. We reaffirmed our house and two car loans. We want to start looking at a new house, but are unsure how this will affect getting a new mortgage.

A. "The bankruptcy does not prevent you from getting a new mortgage," Jeff Bock, retail manager for North American Mortgage, said. "Your rate and loan to value will fluctuate depending on how the rest of your credit report looks." Lenders will be looking for stability — how you have repaid other creditors, your earnings, and if your mortgage has been paid on time.

Most lenders will not process a loan less than two years after a Chapter 7 bankruptcy is discharged. A few will take an application as little as one day later, but require the borrower have at least 20 percent down. If someone has filed for a Chapter 13 bankruptcy, the borrower will be required to pay off his/her debts out of the loan first.

Q. My husband and I are trying to get a mortgage to buy a new home in the Plainfield, IL area. We already own a home and plan on selling it. The money we make from the sale will be used toward a down payment on a new home. We have had credit problems — been late on our mortgage and car payment, but not all the time. My husband has been at his job for 23 years and earned $74,000 last year. I have been at my job for four years and earned $10,000 last year. We know we can afford a house, but our credit problems are holding us back.

A. There is some good news for you, said Michael Niecestro, sales manager at Midwest Funding and a 20 year veteran of the mortgage business. Your job stability and the location in which you are house hunting are on your side. Plainfield is an "FHA Municipality." If you are planning to borrow at least $209,000 you may qualify for an FHA new construction mortgage.

"FHA is more liberal when it comes to underwriting guidelines and doesn't look at credit scores," Niecestro said.

Instead it puts more emphasis on whether the buyer is current on credit debt, ability to pay back the mortgage, and the down payment.

You already know that your late payments can be a problem for other conventional loans. When lenders run a credit report, they look for a credit score of at least 620, Niecestro said. The score will take into account such things as the amount of open credit, as well as past judgments, bankruptcies, and collections. You said you were sometimes late on your mortgage payments. Lenders do not like to see 30 to 60 day late payments unless the borrower has had a clean history for the last 12 months. Credit scores do fluctuate month to month. Therefore, if for some reason you have a lower score, you can raise it fairly quickly by bringing credit balances down and keeping payments current.

You can find out about utility changes at Redford meeting

■ The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 20, at the Redford Community Center Gym, 12121 Hemingway, Redford.

How will you be affected by changes that have occurred in the natural gas, electric and telephone industries? A forum will be presented Sept. 20 in Redford by the Michigan Public Services Commission to explain how consumers may be affected by those changes.

Legislation was signed into law last year that provides reduced electric rates for many Michigan residents and opens the door for customers to choose their electric generation supplier.

Customer choice is also available to natural gas customers. The telephone industry is changing as well – continually introducing new services and features. Consumers will hear about these changes at the forums. They will also be able to discuss concerns they may have on utility service or billing issues.

"Fundamental changes have occurred in the telephone, natural gas, and electric industries," said Chairman Laura Chappelle. "My colleagues and I welcome the opportunity to discuss these significant changes with area residents, businesses and interested groups, and to hear their concerns regarding utility issues."

The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 20, at the Redford Community Center Gym, 12121 Hemingway, Redford.

There is no need to register for the free informational meeting.

Similar meetings will be held at 6 p.m. Sept. 11 in Marquette, Sept. 18 in Warren, Sept. 25 in Gaylord and Sept. 27 in Battle Creek.

Canton condos avoid cookie-cutter look

Nearly a third of the 88 attached condominiums at Morgan Creek in Canton have sold since the models there opened four months ago.

And for good reasons, too, according to folks affiliated with Curtis Building and Kaftan Enterprises, which have teamed to shape the community on Cherry Hill between Lilley and Sheldon roads.

"The quick and easy answer is our units are marketable to anybody," said Craig Menuck, partner with Curtis Building. "We have younger married couples, older married couples with children. We have singles. The intention has proven true. It's tailored for anybody.

"Making it affordable has only helped," Menuck added.

Base prices start at $186,990 for a two story of 1,303 square feet with two bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths and go up to $203,990 for a story-and-a-half with three bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths and 1,536 square feet of living space.

"I think it's a very good value for Canton," said Jeffrey Kaftan, vice president with Kaftan Enterprises. "We built the same product in Saratoga Farms in Farmington Hills in 1997. We sold 155 units in less than two years."

There are other pluses to the development.

Morgan Creek: Purchasers of these attached condominiums can select either a two-story or story-and-a-half look with two or three bedrooms.

Open space

"Based on what you get nowadays where they kind of squeeze more units on less land, here, it's less dense," Kaftan said.

"We do have a 20-acre nature preserve back there and little Morgan Creek," said Art Anderson, sales representative. "We're going to put a little bridge up.

"It's an excellent location," Anderson added. "It's five minutes from the expressway system, 20 minutes from the airport. We're split between Ann Arbor and Detroit.

"You have all the services in the community near, whether it be health care or shopping," he said.

Then, there's the reputation of the builders, Anderson added. "That in itself draws the public."

Curtis has been around 57 years, Kaftan 35, the principals said.

A pair of two-story plans, each with a two or three bedroom option, and a first floor master that can be built as a three bedroom or two bedrooms with loft, are available.

A two-car garage, first-floor laundry, basement, 2-/1/2 baths (with pedestal sink in the powder room), range and dishwasher in the kitchen, ceramic or wood flooring in the foyer and half bath, and carpeting throughout are standard features at base price in all three.

A 10-year warranty is provided on basement waterproofing.

A gas-vented fireplace ($2,570), air conditioning ($2,550) and a 12-by-12 deck ($2,825) are upgrades.

The story-and-a-half, available as an end-unit only, has been built as a model.

The home contains a great room with sloped ceiling, kitchen/nook with island, and master with cathedral ceiling, walk-in closet and shower on the main floor.

Two bedrooms and a full bath with combination tub/shower are upstairs.

Base price is $203,900. The model has about $10,000 worth of upgrades.

Loft option

The same home is available with a loft replacing one of the upstairs bedrooms. The trade-off is 99 less square feet overall and a flat ceiling in the master for a base price reduction of $3,000 from the three-bedroom plan.

Landscaping is included. Brick and vinyl siding are primary exterior materials.

Homes are clustered together in groups of two to five per building.

Morgan Creek is served by city water and sewers. It's within the Plymouth Canton school boundaries. There are no sidewalks.

The property tax rate is $31.83 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $195,000 home there would pay about $3,100 the first year.

The monthly association fee which includes water, is $118.

Tom and Kim Diglio ordered a two-story and moved a wall between the kitchen and family room to add a three-way fireplace.

"I liked the plan for what we could do with it," Tom said. "I personally know the builder and developer. The customer also comes first with them.

"Canton is a booming area," he added. "It will be quiet, serene, with the woods and 20-acres (natural area)."

Private Retreat in the City

If you want a serene atmosphere, this site condominium is the one. Surrounded by trees and lush landscaping, all views from from every window are spectacular. Upon entering the gate you are greeted by an azure exercise pool in the midst of decking, flowers, and greenery. Step into the home and you'll find soaring light-filled rooms exquisitely decorated and maintained.

The house has a comfortable 4,000 sq. ft. on three levels with an attached garage. All required facilities are on the entry level... large entryway, master bedroom suite, library, open kitchen, spacious dining area, living room with custom fireplace, laundry room, and garage. Five sliding glass doors and three private decks invite you outdoors. The master suite consists of a king-sized bedroom with fireplace, dressing room with a skylight, double basin vanity for her, single basin for him, four closets, fully tiled bath with Jacuzzi tub and separate shower, and a private outdoor sunning/meditation court.

The lower level is a walkout with two bedrooms, family room with fireplace, island kitchenette/bar, exercise area, two storage rooms, utility room, and fireproof vault/wine cellar. This level can be closed off and has a private entrance. The third level is for guests with a bedroom, bath, two closets, and attic storage.

There are so many special touches to this home. One of the developers of Bloomfield Woods selected this site for himself and put only the "best" in his home, from the specially commissioned Glen Michaels fireplace wall structure to the New Zealand wool carpet to the "Caribbean Clear" silver/copper ionizing system which makes the pool chlorine free. Everything has been carefully planned and thought out. Please don't miss spending part of your afternoon at this quiet retreat in the City of Bloomfield Hills.

Custom Homes Feature Luxury Amenities
"Distinctive Details"

The basic fundamental of all Cambridge Homes' custom homes is superior craftsmanship; from the solid foundation to the hand-rubbed finishes, only the highest quality materials and fixtures are selected. Attention is paid to the smallest of details, nothing is overlooked. The result: the home you've always imagined, a home of comfort, style and elegance.

Now, Cambridge Homes is collaborating with some of the finest architects and interior designers in the area to work with homebuyers in designing one-of-a-kind homes for their newest development. Bellagio is Oakland County's premier gated community of custom homes. Each unique home reflects the personality of its owners, creating a prestigious neighborhood rich with architectural diversity.

After years of appreciating old-world craftsmanship, Mark and Eric Guidobono of Cambridge Homes are bringing the grandeur and classic beauty found in European architecture to Bellagio. Distinctive elements, including carved lime-stone facades, blacksmith-crafted ironwork accents, and leaded glass windows are reminiscent of magnificent country estates. Modern luxuries are available as well: A home theater, wine cellar, solarium, and indoor pool are all possible amenities in your Bellagio home.

Over the past 20 years, Cambridge Homes has become an expert at making the design/build experience exciting and positive by focusing on homeowner participation. "We've made a commitment to individuality, quality and creativity," says Mark. As evident in their previous custom home projects and in their Woods of Edenderry development in Northville, these are not your average home-builders, they are inspired craftsmen. Bellagio is certain to be their ultimate accomplishment.

Think about investing tax rebate on home

You probably have recently received or soon will get a tax refund. Here's a not-so-subtle reminder from your local retailer: "We will cash your tax rebate check, free of charge, with any purchase."

Despite the blizzard of ad pitches trying to tell you where to spend your tax rebate, of course it's up to you.

"With these tax rebates ranging from a maximum of $300 to $600, just one stop at the home improvement center is enough to make the money disappear," says Richard Roll, president of American Homeowners Association. "But homeowners have ways to invest it that could yield positive benefits in their homes or communities."

How much money can you expect, and when? According to the IRS, the refund checks range from up to $300 for a single taxpayer, $500 for heads of households and $600 for a married couple filing jointly.

Checks started hitting the mail in late July. Depending on the taxpayer's Social Security number, all will have been mailed by late September, we are told.

Local charities are making a case for making a little money go a long way.

United Way, for example, says that $600 provides 3 1/2 months of transportation for six elderly and disabled people for medical appointments and grocery shopping, or a year of academic support to prevent an at-risk youth from dropping out.

Some retailers are offering to cash IRS checks with any purchase from the store. If you cash in at the local home improvement center, consider investing in energy efficiency. You could lower your utility bills and help improve the environment at the same time.

Proper insulation cuts down on both heating and cooling costs and offers the additional benefit of noise control. Air leaks around windows and doors can account for up to 30 percent of a home's wasted energy.

Proper caulking and weather-stripping can help increase energy savings by up to 10 percent, while storm windows and doors or double-paned windows can cut heat loss at those sites in half.

Buying energy-efficient fluorescent light bulbs also cuts your electricity consumption substantially.

Guide explains financial aspects of home ownership

Buying a home is a major investment that requires a lot of decision-making. But the decisions don't stop once you've moved in.

What type of homeowners insurance will best suit your needs? What if you need some extra cash down the line - should you use your home to apply for a line of credit? How does it work?

Here's some help for each step of the way.

Get the facts on everything from buying your home and insuring it to applying for a home equity line of credit with a new package of publications from the Federal Consumer Information Center.

Learn about mortgage insurance, how to qualify for a low down payment loan, and how to calculate how much home you can afford with How to Buy a Home With a Low Down Payment from the Mortgage Insurance Companies of America and the Cooperative State Research, Education and Extension Service of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Use the guide's handy worksheet to evaluate your financial resources and determine what kind of house fits your budget. Once you've found your dream home, get the facts on insuring it with Twelve Ways to Lower Your Homeowners Insurance Costs from the Insurance Information Institute.

Find out how taking steps as simple as raising your deductible or upgrading your door locks can reduce your insurance costs.

If you're considering applying for a home equity line of credit, use When Your Home Is on the Line: What You Should Know About Home Equity Line of Credit from the Federal Reserve Board to find out which plan is best for you.

Learn about how a home equity line of credit works, the costs involved, how home equity plans are repaid, and how they compare to second mortgage loans.

This guide also includes a checklist to help you compare plans and a helpful glossary of terms.

Learn more with the "Your Home and Money" package. This package costs $1and there are three easy ways to get it:

- Call toll-free (888) 8 PUEBLO. That's (888) 878-3256, weekdays 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and ask for the "Your Home and Money" package. Have your credit card handy.
- Send your name, address and a check or money order for $1 to Your Home and Money, Pueblo, CO 81009.
- Visit www. pueblo. gsa. gov and read or print these and hundreds of other FCIC publications for free.

Prep work precedes painting

FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Painting windows requires special preparation and techniques because of their glass and open-and-close operation.

To protect the glass, you can use masking tape or a wipe-on protective film that's dispensed much like deodorant.

Another option is to skip this step and scrape off any paint from the glass with a razor. It's a case of spending your time masking or scraping.

Apply the tape or film only after thoroughly dusting the corners of each window pane. The crevice tool of a vacuum works well to do this.

If you paint the windows without tape or film, you can use a trim guard to protect the glass area. These come either as a triangular-shaped piece of metal or a metal strip with a plastic handle. On bare wood windows, allow some paint to seal against the glass.

When it comes to removing hardware, purists will tell you to remove it before painting. But this is not always practicable.

If a window lock is covered by several layers of paint but works properly, decide how much time you want to spend on the window. You will crack the existing paint if you remove the lock, and this also leaves a dent in the paint the shape of the lock. Unless you replace it with the same type, you will have to sand away the paint buildup in this area. If the hardware is not painted, it may be easier to remove it rather than paint around it.

Paint windows from the inside out. Begin painting the thin vertical and horizontal dividers between the panes in double-hung windows. The same holds true for casement windows.

If your window has a removable window grille, take it out for a much easier job. Use a 1 1/2-inch-wide sash brush, and don't drag your brush back across the edge because this will cause a run in the paint.

If you are painting a double-hung window and the upper sash is movable, reverse the position of the inner or lower sash and the outer or upper sash. Paint the lower half of the outer sash first, then paint the inside sash. But don't do the top edge where the lock is. Save that until last.

Return the sashes to their normal positions, but don't close the window completely. Then paint the top of the outer sash and the top edge of the inner sash.

Switch to a 2 1/2-half-inch wide brush and paint the window frame from the inside out moving the sash cord, if there is one, out of the way to avoid getting paint on it.

Next, paint the window casing. Cut in a nice, clean line where the casing meets the wall. Then paint the sill and the apron, which is the trim beneath the sill. When the paint is dry, scrape it off the glass with a razor scraper. Run the scraper down the joint between the glass and frame, then scrape away the paint working toward the sash.

Small apartments ideal for student housing

Student housing is increasing in demand and the Wild Wood (408-30) would be ideal.

It is a four-unit building with each unit containing 923 square feet. The unit is two-story and may require a parking area as none of the units comes with a garage.

There is a large bike storage area, easily placed on either end or placed on both ends with the revision of the plans. The facade of the unit is simple with a picket railing across the face of the second floor.

Each unit contains the same basic floor plan.

They have, however, been mirrored in two of the units, making the dining rooms back-to-back. The front door opens facing the living room in each unit. On two of the units the kitchen is on the right and a half bath and stairway is on the left. The other two units are just opposite.

Past the kitchen is a dining room that blends into the living room. Under the stairs is a storage closet with the water heater tucked away. The living room has sliding doors that open onto the back yard.

Upstairs are two bedrooms with a bath between. The stairs and the bath are reversed in two of the units to match the downstairs.

Bedroom 1 is the larger of the two bedrooms with a wall closet running the length of the entire wall. The bathroom has a tub and single sink. A linen closet is in the hall. Bedroom 2 has a corner wall closet with a raised built-in cabinet and shelf.

This quad is so simply designed that it would ideal to be part of an apartment complex. While the apartments are not large, they are ideally sized for students or lower income housing. It should also be economic to build and doesn't require a large amount of lot space.

For a study plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations and an artist rendering, send $24.95 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Road E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424. Please specify plan name (Wildwood) and the number (408-30).

Enjoy spas that come in all shapes and sizes

BY JAMES AND MORRIS CAREY FOR AP NEWSFEATURES

It has been only about 40 years since hot tubs were nothing more than wooden barrels filled with hot water. Then they got bigger, and were equipped with water jets and air jets. Later they were made of molded plastic instead of wood. When that happened a new industry developed almost overnight.

As spa industry growth continues, the consumer is left with the "how-do-I-choose-the-right-one" question. We can help.

The spa experience is without a doubt enjoyable and therapeutic. According to Jeff Kurth, chairman of the National Spa and Pool Institute (NSPI) and CEO of Marquis Spas, "A spa provides buoyancy that eliminates 90 percent of the force of gravity on the human body. Heat dilates blood vessels and increases the flow of nutrients to damaged muscle tissue while flushing out toxins that make you feel sore. The hydrotherapy part also helps to massage the toxins out of the muscles."

Kurth further commented: "Depending on the size, number, type and location of the jets, various types of massage can be achieved."

We agree that you really can feel the results. And the stress relief is pronounced.

Why get a fancy spa as opposed to one with fewer or smaller pumps and fewer jets? The more options, the better your chance of finding comfort and satisfaction for the whole family. Not every jet pattern in every location of a given spa will please everyone. Some will feel only OK; others will work wonders. Someone else in your family might find the greatest comfort in the position you like the least. The more options you have, the better served you and your family will be.

Today spas are available with up to three motors – just to pump water through the jets. Multiple controls and multiple compartments make it possible for one person in the family to have a vigorous massage while others can enjoy other options.

Possible features:

■ An airtight spa cover. A good one reduces energy loss when the spa isn't in use. Our favorite is vinyl-encased foam with a tapered top. Make sure it is an ASTM listed locking safety cover. A locking top will keep energy in and toddlers out.

■ Solid insulation between the spa and the skirt. Fully insulated units are more energy-efficient.

■ A built-in ozonator can reduce the amount of chemicals needed to kill bacteria in the water. If you are allergic to chlorine or bromine, an ozonator can be used in conjunction with silver, which is a natural bactericide.

■ Two filters are better than one. Units with multiple filters clean faster and better.

■ Measure the horsepower of the pumps, the number of jets, the number of controls and the number of stations. These are key elements to comfort in a spa.

■ Check with your doctor and your insurance carrier. Some insurance companies will cover the cost of a home spa. If you have no insurance coverage, check with your accountant to see if you can deduct all or part of the cost of your spa from your income taxes.

■ Spas, like swimming pools, can be used year-round. But as we know, swimming pools are best on hot days. This is not necessarily so with spas. We think spas are most fun when it's cold. There is nothing like sitting in a spa on a cool fall or winter early morning looking up at the stars.

The National Spa and Pool Institute helps set safety standards, and Underwriter's Laboratories (UL) tests spas for safety. Only those products approved by UL should be used. Folks with a heart condition or high blood pressure should check with their doctor before using a spa.

MEYERS ON MORTGAGES

YOUR CREDIT AND BUYING A HOME

Will bad credit two years ago keep you out of the housing market? Does a real estate agent have a right to see your credit application? Today The Meyers Report gets answers to readers questions from the experts.

Q. We are purchasing a home. The seller's real estate agent asked my bank for a copy of the mortgage loan application. Do they have a right to see that? Why would they want to look at it?

A. Usually the seller's agent asks for a pre-approval letter, not the application itself. It's against the law for a lender to disclose debt to a third party without the borrower's approval. Your loan application has information about your debt.

"We, as bankers, know how private this information is," Tom Drozdz, residential mortgage originator for Archer Bank, said. "If I was the borrower, I would say no and tell them to call my banker. My banker will tell the real estate agent whether or not he thinks the loan will go through."

Q. When I was a college student my credit rating went from good to bad. During the last two years, since I have been out of school, I have tried to keep current with all of my bills, such as telephone, rent and utilities. I want to buy a house in the next two to three years and was wondering if I continued my path of keeping my bills current, will my past credit problems have a big effect when I go looking for a mortgage? The credit card bills I got in school, I haven't paid in five years thus far.

A. You will have to pay off all your outstanding collections, Rick Deleon, branch manager for Allied Mortgage Capital Corporation, said. Most lenders look for 24 months of a clean history, providing you have no bankruptcies or foreclosures in your past. That is time enough to re-establish your good credit. If you have cleaned up your bills, you may qualify for an FHA loan. For more details, check out Allied Mortgage's web site: www.nolandlord.com.

Q. My wife and I had a bankruptcy that was discharged two and a half years ago. It was only on credit card debt. We reaffirmed our house and two car loans. We want to start looking at a new house, but are unsure how this will affect getting a new mortgage.

A. "The bankruptcy does not prevent you from getting a new mortgage," Jeff Bock, retail manager for North American Mortgage, said. "Your rate and loan to value will fluctuate depending on how the rest of your credit report looks." Lenders will be looking for stability — how you have repaid other creditors, your earnings, and if your mortgage has been paid on time.

Most lenders will not process a loan less than two years after a Chapter 7 bankruptcy is discharged. A few will take an application as little as one day later, but require the borrower have at least 20 percent down. If someone has filed for a Chapter 13 bankruptcy, the borrower will be required to pay off his/her debts out of the loan first.

Q. My husband and I are trying to get a mortgage to buy a new home in the Plainfield, IL area. We already own a home and plan on selling it. The money we make from the sale will be used toward a down payment on a new home. We have had credit problems — been late on our mortgage and car payment, but not all the time. My husband has been at his job for 23 years and earned $74,000 last year. I have been at my job for four years and earned $10,000 last year. We know we can afford a house, but our credit problems are holding us back.

A. There is some good news for you, said Michael Niecestro, sales manager at Midwest Funding and a 20 year veteran of the mortgage business. Your job stability and the location in which you are house hunting are on your side. Plainfield is an "FHA Municipality." If you are planning to borrow at least $209,000 you may qualify for an FHA new construction mortgage.

"FHA is more liberal when it comes to underwriting guidelines and doesn't look at credit scores," Niecestro said.

Instead it puts more emphasis on whether the buyer is current on credit debt, ability to pay back the mortgage, and the down payment.

You already know that your late payments can be a problem for other conventional loans. When lenders run a credit report, they look for a credit score of at least 620, Niecestro said. The score will take into account such things as the amount of open credit, as well as past judgments, bankruptcies, and collections. You said you were sometimes late on your mortgage payments. Lenders do not like to see 30 to 60 day late payments unless the borrower has had a clean history for the last 12 months. Credit scores do fluctuate month to month. Therefore, if for some reason you have a lower score, you can raise it fairly quickly by bringing credit balances down and keeping payments current.

Helpful Hints:

For the best results when writing your classified ad, put yourself in the readers/buyers shoes. Describe the items for sale or job opening by including details that would attract your friends. Avoid abbreviations. Include a phone number and best times to call. Include price/salary range, and benefits. Include an e-mail address if possible, because your ad also appears on our internet site. Use key wording for easy searching and reading. List age, brand, style and condition of items. Don't be afraid to ask our friendly, professional staff for help. Remember you want results, so the more you tell and the more people your ad reaches, the more responses you will receive. Call us today, we can help you!

Let's Talk About Real Estate

"BUYER'S REMORSE"

There is a rather common phenomenon known as buyer's remorse. Often occurring after the purchase of a big ticket item, it involves a feeling of panic that perhaps you acted too quickly in making a recent purchase and paid too much for the item.

This feeling is often related to the purchase of a car or home. After the euphoria of a purchase wears off, panic begins to set in. In the purchase of real estate, it usually happens about three days after signing the agreement of sale. Here are some factors that cause buyer's remorse:

You had to Compete With Another Buyer For The House

If you are in competition with another buyer, you may get emotionally involved in the competition only to question your buying decision after the battle is decided in your favor. You may wonder why the other buyer was willing to give up in the bidding. The thing to remember is that the property meets your needs and is the right buying decision for you.

A Trusted Friend Or Relative Questions the Purchase

It is not unusual for a buyer to take a trusted friend or relative for a ride by the house shortly after negotiating its purchase. If this person tells you that he or she would not have bought this house or would not have paid the price you paid, you could begin to have serious doubts. The important point to remember is this situation is that real estate is a very personal choice. If it appeals to you, that is all that counts. Also, your friend or relative may or may not be as aware of current real estate prices as you are.

ADVICE: Don't allow buyer's remorse to get the best of you. It happens to most people in varying degrees after a major purchase.

Home improvement 101: Get details in writing

BY HOME SERVICE STORE
FOR AP WEEKLY FEATURES

Before the euphoria of a home building job dissolves into a "we said-you said" spat between homeowner and contractor, a home repair expert suggests both sides can minimize miscommunication with a series of simple steps, including a clearly written contract.

"Usually somewhere between what was said and what was heard lies the breakdown in communication," said Jeff Polakiewicz of the Home Service Store. "What it should tell homeowners is that everything should be in writing. It's really the only way to do business."

In Polakiewicz's view, better contractors will initiate a contract conversation with homeowners, followed by ample give-and-take before agreeing to a mutually acceptable contract.

■ 'Usually somewhere between what was said and what was heard lies the breakdown in communication.'

Jeff Polakiewicz
Home Service Store

While Polakiewicz doesn't routinely see intentional contractor miscommunication in his role as a home repair project manager for the Home Service Store, he does see instances where contractor language is sometimes "over the head" of homeowners.

Often, the contractors assume that homeowners understand what they say, but homeowners are too embarrassed to ask what the terms, definitions and acronyms mean.

"I tell people to speak up when they are unclear about anything," Polakiewicz said.

He suggests homeowners let the written contract do the talking. Payment terms, inspections, and estimated start and finish dates should be in writing. Items relating to schedules are frequent sore points. "In my experience, the homeowner is most disappointed when the job isn't done on time," said Polakiewicz. "They may rave about the job, but they'll say, 'Yeah, but it took too long.'"

Standard fill-in-the-blank contracts available at most office supply stores can give homeowners an idea about contract structure. Contractors may be required to have contracts on hand that can be tailored to fit the job.

Yet homeowners fail to head off a major source of miscommunication – and irritation with the quality of work – by not checking contractor references.

"It's the biggest mistake homeowners make. People should check references, but most of the time they don't," said Polakiewicz. "What I tell people is to check the contractor's last three jobs.

"Get the addresses and go see their work. You don't want to see what he did three years ago, but what he did the last three weeks," he said.

Polakiewicz said homeowners who have had work done by a contractor are usually glad to share information about contractor performance. If the homeowner had a good experience, they "go above and beyond to say good things." But when their answers are short and clipped, it's a sure sign the job didn't go well.

Contractors can take additional steps to improve communication. "A contractor who is honest will tell the customer, 'This is what I thought I heard you say' right from the start,'" said Polakiewicz.

He points to kitchen makeovers as an example.

"Many times customers say, 'I want this and this and this,' but they don't know all the minutia it takes to finish the kitchen. I literally ask them how they cook, how they entertain and what they eat," said Polakiewicz. "It helps people identify how the kitchen should really work because blueprints don't always tell the whole story."

The interpretation of homeowner needs is critical to a job done right and on time. "The toughest thing for the contractor is identifying exactly what the customer wants," said Polakiewicz. "The homeowner is excited once the contractor's truck is in the driveway and they have grandiose visions, and if their expectations aren't met, things can go sour in a hurry."

Computer renditions or elevation drawings can aid homeowner understanding of how the finished job should appear.

Sometimes communication can be too positive, said Polakiewicz.

"Anytime a contractor says 'yes, yes' to your questions just to get the job, they aren't as forthright as they can be," he said. "Homeowners need someone to challenge their thinking so they can get the results that match their expectations."

Kitchen reflects style as well as a place to cook

BY CAROL MCGARVEY
BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS BOOKS
FOR AP WEEKLY FEATURES

The kitchen has form as well as function

If you are building a new home or remodeling an existing room, you can take advantage of myriad choices in cabinets, appliances, countertops and flooring choices. If you are freshening up an existing space and working around fixtures you may or may not have chosen, there are many opportunities for new looks, too.

What is your style? A new book, "Better Homes and Gardens Kitchen Decorating Ideas & Projects" (Meredith Books, $14.95 soft cover), will help define your look.

For example, if you favor American or French Country, butter yellow paint, French blue cafe curtains, and caned chairs or stools will help give a South-of-France look.

Paint can be your key to offering a background palette to set the scene. Perhaps a vibrant kitchen color will give a playful look. Or enliven a neutral color repeated from the dining room with a dramatic accent.

Storage is a key element in kitchen design, and open and closed are the defining choices. If new cabinets are in your plan, consider a combination of dark and light wood finishes, or of painted and stained. It's OK to mix glass-door cabinets with open shelving. These days, rules of the past are to be broken.

For extra storage, hang a plate rack to give more cabinet space. Purchase a cart on casters with open shelving for storing often-used pieces.

These tips might help make the most of available kitchen space:

■ If there's room, bring in a case piece, such as a formal secretary for a convenient desk area.

■ To maximize space in a small kitchen, choose white paint, distressed finishes or light wood, such as maple, to keep a small area as open as possible. Minimize countertop accessories to avoid visual clutter. Leave windows uncovered, if possible.

■ Built-ins sized to specific needs, such as space for a portable television or microwave oven, are a must in a compact kitchen.

■ For simple freshening up, paint the walls or cabinets for an instant update.

■ For new countertops and flooring, common choices are laminate, solid-surface material, tile and granite. To stretch your budget, combine two different materials. For example, granite is durable, but granite tile is lower in cost.

■ Energize a plain tile backsplash and counter with decorative tiles and insets.

■ Rule of thumb: Darker wood surfaces make a room look cozier, and white and light surfaces make the space seem larger.

■ For a clean, unified look, pair commercial-quality stainless steel countertops with stainless steel appliances. Visual warmth can be added with accessories such as pottery and textured baskets.

■ When the family and friends want to gather 'round the kitchen, lack of seating might be a problem. Here are some alternatives: An L-shaped banquette; a lunch counter area with small chair seating; a tiny bistro table and chairs; and pull-up stools around a center work island

Light reveals flaws

A table lamp sitting next to a wall shines critical light on the nearby surface and it will show even the smallest imperfections. Lumps, bumps, paint runs and nail heads, even tiny specks throw big shadows when critical light spills flush across a wall.

Pros often use critical light to catch flaws because a drywall finish job typically looks great until it's painted and illuminated with critical light. Then the awful truth comes out, especially if the paint is glossy.

Pros avoid this by sanding and continually checking with a critical light from various angles. They use a high-power flashlight or a high-intensity lamp (that projects hard-edged shadows), sanding and tweaking until it's super smooth. Then they paint.

2001 Insight: Honda should sell a ton of these

By Anne Fracassa
Avanti News Features
avanti1054@aol.com

Honda's roots, deep down, are in gas mileage.

That's how Honda got started here in the U.S., making some of the most fuel-efficient cars in the states, and a lot of die-hard traditionalists who formerly purchased American-made cars broke down and bought a Japanese-made vehicle.

ANNE FRACASSA

Not since the late-1970's and early 1980's have we been worried about gas mileage on our cars. With prices hovering at about $1 in the Midwest and $1.50 in the West and East, it's not been a priority for many of us. I think Honda knows something about the future that we don't know – gas is inching up again.

That's why this new Honda Insight – the first gasoline-electric hybrid vehicle to be sold in the U.S. – is going to be a smash hit if our gas prices start hitting the $2 or $3 mark. Hmmm. Maybe that's why it's called "Insight".

With the ability to travel more than 720 miles on a tank of gas, you can be certain Honda will be selling a ton of these.

At the heart of the Insight is Honda's own Integrated Motor Assist (IMA), which marries a compact 1.0-liter 3-cylinder engine and an ultra-think electric motor to achieve its 61 mpg city/68 mpg highway rating.

Now before you start thinking, "yeah, electric motor ... hrumphhhh!" let me tell you that this Insight drives just like the car sitting in your driveway or parking space right now.

You don't need to recharge it with a cord or any other external power supply. You don't need to retrofit your home or garage in any way. You don't need to take it to the dealer to have the battery freshened.

You don't even have to alter your driving style to accommodate the battery charge or its driving range. You just drive it.

I mentioned the IMA system, which is at the heart of the Insight. Honda has worked hard during the last 40 years it's been in business to get to this point. Technology that contributed to the Insight includes lean-burn combustion, low-emission engines, variable valve timing, high-efficiency electric motors, regenerative braking, nickel-metal hydride battery technology and microprocessor controls.

All that technology helps engineers develop this system, which allows you to drive the Insight just like any other car, except for a lot longer because of the huge gas mileage you can get with it.

A goal achieved by Honda was to have this compact 1.0-liter engine nearly outperform a 1.5-liter engine. The Insight engine has 12-valve VTEC technology built in.

What this gives you is a car that is not at all sluggish on takeoff from a light or merging on the freeway. Going up hills is not a chore.

The electric motor is used only for power assistance - not for primary power. The gas engine takes care of all that. So you don't suffer in performance.

One thing that was really hard to get used to was the fact that the engine shuts down when you're idling for a while. Not long, either. I was sitting at a traffic light when I felt the engine go off. I thought, at first, it had stalled out.

I took my foot off the brake and the engine engaged. Very weird. When the gasoline engine is at its mid- to high-rpm range, the electric motor shuts off and power comes only from the gasoline engine.

Now, how does it recharge without you doing anything?

That was the stickler all along. The general public would not agree to purchasing a car they had to monitor constantly or worry about whether it had a proper charge. Everyone in the car business knew this. So Honda found a way.

Power for the electric motor basically comes from the energy expended from forward momentum and braking of the vehicle and not from the gasoline engine.

Get a load of this: When the Insight is in its coasting or braking mode, the electric motor becomes a generator, of sorts, converting it into electrical energy. While the Insight is cruising, the motor and generator also recharge.

The batteries are completely out of sight on the Insight and located under the cargo compartment floor. You never see them. But it's obvious they're there. The cargo area is huge and can accommodate anything from a set of golf clubs to anything you can throw at it from a mall shopping trip.

You'll find a host of amenities that are all standard equipment on the Insight, including anti-lock brakes, electric power steering, dual air bags, AM/FM stereo cassette, power windows and mirrors, power door locks with keyless entry and anti-theft immobilizer system. Air conditioning is available.

The outside of the Insight is very futuristic, designed much light the concept cars we saw several years ago. The rear wheels are covered more than halfway. It does look cool, but it also looks very different.

A cashier at a McDonald's freaked out when she saw the Insight in the drive-through, making me a little jumpy. She just kept telling the rest of the kids on her crew how "kickin" the car is.

"Innovative" is the word I was looking for, because the Insight is that. It doesn't look like anything else on the road today.

A word about the inside: It's roomy, has excellent instrumentation and has smooth, clean lines throughout. An electronic display within the instrumentation constantly updates you on the Insight's fuel economy status, distracting you constantly as you watch it.

I imagine that would happen the first week or so you have it, then you'd be used to it and ignore it completely. Cool graphics, too.

Honda's Insight has been given numerous awards from several organizations from Popular Mechanics to the Sierra Club. Several states have ordered the Insight for their motor pools.

The Insight is just the beginning of what we're bound to see in the coming decade, as the gasoline/electric hybrid comes of age. I see this taking off and some of this technology being utilized in nearly every vehicle within a decade.

The Honda Insight is a perfect commuter car – especially for the long haul.

CAMPUS JOBS

A campus job is convenient, rewarding

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

Juggling a load of college classes and working is tough, but finding a job on campus can make it easier.

Mervat Kashou, the mother of three children, 13, 12 and 10, praises the benefits of a college campus job. She spent five years working at various jobs at Schoolcraft College while she completed an associate's degree in office information systems. Currently, she works as an assistant in the learning assistance center at the school.

"It's very convenient to work and go to class," the Livonia resident said.

"They're very flexible with my hours and they can work around my schedule. And if you have to leave for your kids, it's not going to be a problem."

Rachel Holden, 18, works in career planning and job placement at Schoolcraft, and is taking a full load of classes while working toward an associates degree in liberal arts.

In fact, she said, her schedule is so flexible that if she has 90 minutes between classes she can go to work and get paid instead of trying to wile away the time.

The Westland resident and John Glenn High School graduate usually puts in about 13.5 hours weekly doing basic office work, like typing, filing, answering phones and copy machine work.

"I don't have to drive anywhere else to go to work," she said. "I just walk across campus."

Kashou and Holden are among college students who say their jobs offer convenience; special learning experiences and a chance to make important acquaintances that might help them in their careers.

"There are all sorts of student assistant jobs that are available to people who qualify and they really are pretty good learning opportunities for students, particularly in office positions where they can get a lot of experience and take on some good responsibilities," explained George Cartsonis, Oakland Community College director of communications.

Oftentimes, these college positions are their first jobs and they learn basic work ethics, like punctuality, appropriate behavior and how to relate to co-workers and clients.

One of the biggest and most obvious benefits of working on campus, Cartsonis said, is the chance to defray some of the costs of taking classes and buying books.

"Plus it looks very good for them on their resumes to be able to say that you've worked at a college," he said. "The most important thing is to acclimate students to the work environment, because it's the most valuable experience they can get. We're very pleased to make these opportunities available to students."

Since there's a high turnover rate among student employees, the college office and department managers expect constant retraining responsibilities on their part. These bosses likely won't be as frustrated with people staying a short time as managers in other places of employment.

"We understand that if someone has an important test that means a lot that they might not be able to work," Cartsonis said. "That presents an opportunity for another student to

GEORGE HAYES

Q. I want to help my 15-year-old daughter make some career decisions.

What fields will be open to college graduates in five to seven years?

A. All of them. I haven't seen one "Field Closed" sign lately. The best early career decisions are those in which factors such as earnings potential, security, projected growth and parental aspirations are relatively secondary. Truly successful people have figured out the primary issue – what they love doing – and have pursued that vocation with persistence and vigor.

Of course, we have to sprinkle in a little reality here. The NBA and rock super stardom are long shots. Better have a Plan B.

Vocational consultants agree, however, that people who enjoy their work are often more energetic, productive and creative. As a result, they are sought after, make more money and, eventually, make their parents proud.

Unfortunately, most young people make far-reaching career decisions out of ignorance. Dad wants Junior to be a doctor (lots of dough). Uncle Ralph encourages him to get a job in a union shop (it's your only security). Then again, the lawyers on TV seem to be having lots of fun.

School counselors usually aren't equipped to help either. The student to counselor ratio is often astronomical and there isn't time for a lot of focused, individualized attention.

Give your daughter the three E's:

Exposure. Most kids make career decisions based upon what they think a job entails. They make assumptions based on hearsay or images manufactured in Hollywood. But visits to the plant floor or the offices of friends in take his place."

At Schoolcraft College there are some 200 students who work on campus in a plethora of jobs, like office work; as a cashier in the bookstore; in the culinary arts department working on special events or in the physical education building directing visitors to classes and activities.

The pay range is just as diverse as the job responsibilities starting at $6 and rising to about $10 hourly depending on how long they've worked on the campus and on the complexity of the job.

"The college understands that you are a student first and an employee second," explained Donna Nordman, Schoolcraft College coordinator of placement services.

Besides saving gas and time driving to a job, Nordman tells students there are other benefits.

"Instead of going to class and going home, you become very acquainted with other classes, other resources and other opportunities," she said.

"They get to meet more people who might give them information about their career paths."

Supervisors don't view student employees as workers, Nordman said, but as teaching opportunities.

"It's not like you're going to go into an off campus job and someone willsay: 'You didn't do that right.' They're going to say: 'Here let me show you that again.'"

Nordman recalled a student who worked part-time on the Schoolcraft switchboard. She graduated with a liberal arts degree and landed a job with a consulting firm.

"Much of her customer service experience she learned was on campus on switchboard," Nordman said.

Most of the student jobs at Madonna University require good communication and computer skills, explained Ingrid Kroeger, assistant director of career services. Jobs range from helping students trouble shoot problems in the computer lab; transporting media services equipment; shelving books and helping students in the library; and working in video communications.

Pay rates begin at $5.15 hourly and rise to reflect experience and skills. Raises are administered regularly.

Students who work in the computer lab get the extra perk of learning a number of programs.

"The staff is giving them additional training," Kroeger said. "The students really do get to know a lot of the faculty and staff. So the students get a good feel for the university beyond just coming and going."

Bob Thomas, Oakland University director of placement and career services, tells freshmen who are looking for work to consider doing something on campus, especially during the first 12 to 18 months.

It's a chance to learn how the university works and how to navigate through the system.

"It's an opportunity to get good work ethics in a learning environment and they can make a connection with the university," Thomas said. "When you come on campus as a freshman you don't know anybody."

different professions create real knowledge. Summer work can clarify likes and dislikes. Groups like Junior Achievement and Explorers provide hands-on experience. Vocational testing (in a private setting) can point to fields worth investigating. The more varied the exposure, the better.

Encouragement. Use your powers of observation to articulate what your child likes to do. On the other hand, be slow to conclude that any one field would be inappropriate. Often, one bad or frustrating experience will turn a kid off to an occupation that might have been perfect. Once a passion is expressed, reinforce it. Ask questions about related activities and studies. Express pride in your child's knowledge and progress.

Energy. Don't watch passively and hope that things "turn out." Do something. Extend yourself to pay for lessons or books. Initiate and review projects seriously. Together, identify and talk to professionals in the field. Visit campuses.

Just be careful not to let it become your thing. In a teenager's mind, there is a fine line between encouragement and pressure. Also, be willing to abandon a vocational idea once enough information has been gathered and processed. Helping your daughter figure out what she doesn't want to do is important, too.

Policy

All advertising published in The Observer & Eccentric is subject to the conditions stated in the applicable rate card, copies of which are available from the Advertising Department, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, MI 48150, (734) 591-2300. The Observer & Eccentric reserves the right not to accept an advertiser's order. Observer & Eccentric Ad-Takers have no authority to bind this newspaper and only publication of an advertisement shall constitute final acceptance of the advertiser's order.

Please Check Your Ad

The Observer & Eccentric will issue credit for typographical or other errors only on the first insertion of an advertisement. If an error occurs, the advertiser must notify the Customer Service Department in time to correct the error before the second insertion.

RUN IT UNTIL IT SELLS!
1-800-579-SELL
Give your Observer & Eccentric Classifieds a call today and we'll tell you how to "Run It Until It Sells"!
Applies only to all transportation classifications.

Helpful Hints:

For the best results when writing your classified ad, put yourself in the readers/buyers shoes. Describe the items for sale or job opening by including details that would attract your friends. Avoid abbreviations. Include a phone number and best times to call. Include price/salary range, and benefits. Include an e-mail address if possible, because your ad also appears on our internet site. Use key wording for easy searching and reading. List age, brand, style and condition of items. Don't be afraid to ask our friendly, professional staff for help. Remember you want results, so the more you tell and the more people your ad reaches, the more responses you will receive. Call us today, we can help you!

It's a Hummer-dinger!

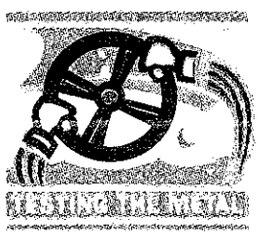
GENERAL HUMMER



BY J. ERIC ECKARD
© AutoWire.Net

Buying a Hummer is like having a baby. You can never afford one, but they're fun to look at and play with.

And they're also loud, uncomfortable and by the end of the first month, the newness wears off. So, why do couples continue to have babies, and why does the AM General Hummer continue to be a hot item for the rich and famous?

I guess there's nothing like holding a baby that you helped create. And I guess there's nothing like barreling down the highway in basically the same vehicle that Arnold Schwarzenegger, Karl Malone, Andre Agassi and thousands of soldiers drive.

The Hummer is the civilian version of the Humvee, which is the vehicle of choice for the United States armed forces. I drove a four-door hardtop, one of four models available to the general public.

While the military version of this go-anywhere, do-anything monster offers just what's necessary for troops to do battle on any kind of terrain, the civilian rendition offers luxuries like a six-disc CD changer, Monsoon stereo system, cruise control, power door locks and remote keyless entry.

And when I say monster, I mean monster. The Hummer is nearly 7-feet wide, weighs more than 3 tons and has a whopping 16 inches of ground clearance. It's powered by the General Motors, which recently acquired AM General, 6.5-liter turbo diesel. A V8 that puts out 190 horsepower at 3,400 rpm with a maximum torque rating of 430 pounds at a surprisingly low 1,800-rpm. Which does wonders for your 0-30 mph times.

If that sounds like the Hummer shortchanges you in the power department, think again. Granted, it takes a week to get from 0-60 mph — actually, 18 seconds — but GM's diesel is a dependable workhorse.

With its slow and methodical approach to the roadway, the Hummer is not a speeding ticket waiting to happen. But with its size, you do have worry about crashing into curbs, fire hydrants and small cars. I did laugh, however, when I read on the Hummer's Web site that "it handles more like a sports car than a truck." I've driven a few sports cars — Porsche, NSX, Corvette — and the Hummer handles nothing like one of these super cars.

Then, there's the exterior. You won't go unnoticed on a city street — and that's the good part about being behind the wheel of the attention getting Hummer. Although the expansive vehicle looks like it could hold a small army, most of the interior space is taken up by the enormous tunnel that houses the GM 4L80-E 4-speed automatic transmission and transfer case.

With a 16-inch ground clearance and 75-inch total vehicle height, that leaves 59 inches from top to bottom inside the cab. Compare that to a Suburban, which is about the same height, but offers just 10 inches of ground clearance.

But driving it for more than a few days is asking for a sore back and ringing eardrums. And as far as noise goes, I'm real glad AM General installs deluxe heat and sound insulation materials in its Hummers. Any more noise and I think I would have gone deaf.

But I will admit that the four-door hardtop is less noisy than the Hummer wagon, which I drove last year. With a smaller interior, the four-door hardtop has less space than the wagon for the engine and transmission noise to reverberate in.

So, does the lack of comfort make up for the prestige factor? Before I answer that, there are a few other features about the Hummer you should know about. The Central Tire Inflation System allows you inflate and deflate all four tires, making the Hummer a true off-road killer. If you decide to make a trek across the Mojave or Death Valley deserts, you can deflate the Hummer's tires and glide along effortlessly. Or if you get bogged down in a mud hole, inflate them all up again and off you go.

Another cool features is the 18-gallon auxiliary fuel tank to compliment the main 25-gallon tank. Switching from one tank to the other is as easy as flipping a switch — literally. And that's 43 gallons total. Just hope diesel fuel stays under two bucks a gallon. It costs about $75 to fill the dual tanks on a Hummer today. But if you're rich and famous, who cares?

As you can see, the true attraction to the Hummer should be in its off-road capabilities — not its unique appearance that will draw crowds and comments. Hummer says "most 4x4s' off-road success is 50 percent the machine's capability and 50 percent the driver's skill. The Hummer's prowess is more 90 percent machine and 10 percent driver." I can easily believe that statement because of the Hummer's solid construction and off-road features.

So, is all this enough to make up for the lack of comfort? There has got to be a thousand reasons not to buy a Hummer, just like there are a thousand reasons not to have a baby. But once you have a baby, people look at you differently.

And once you have a Hummer, you can have so much fun in showing off your new toy, that I guess that answers the question.

This friendly faced two-year-old is Giles. He is an orange tiger striped Domestic Shorthair male who was brought into the shelter as a stray. He is a very friendly and loving feline who would love to find a new place to call his home with people around who would be willing to give him all the attention he craves! Since he is already litterbox trained and neutered, he knows that he should have no problem fitting into his new home.
