Shooting victim is silent

A 52-year-old Canton man suffered a gunshot would to the head Wednesday at approximately 10:45 p.m.

The injury does not appear to be life-threatening, according to Canton Police Capt. Alex Wilson.

"It's a surface wound," he said. "The bullet didn't penetrate his skull."

The bullet entered at the base of the skull behind the right ear, and traveled upward between the scalp and skull until it came to rest at the top of the man's head. The bullet was removed at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Exact circumstances of the shooting are unclear due to conflicting statements from the victim. The incident is under investigation by Canton Police and no suspect has yet been identified.

"He's told us about two or three different versions of what happened to him," Wilson said. "He's not real forthcoming about what happened."

The man told police he was driving westbound on Michigan Avenue near Lilley at the time of the incident.

The man had told police he was on his way to the McDonald's restaurant to get some burgers and a car pulled up along side of his 1996 Ford Thunder-

Holiday safety is C of C topic

Business safety and security for the holidays will be the topic of the Chamber of Commerce Third Thursdays Breakfast Nov. 15 at Summit on the Park.

A panel discussion will include:

- Michelle Miller from Kmart, who will talk about loss prevention.
- Ron Philpot, a corporate security expert from Bank One, who will discuss such things as bad checks and counterfeit money.
- Sgt. Charles Raycraft from the Canton Police, who will have tips on building and parking lot security.

Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack usually gives an update on township affairs at the end of these breakfasts.

The free breakfast is open to the public, starts promptly at 7:30 a.m. and is done by 8:30 a.m.

Township trustee Philip LaJoy usually organizes the breakfast events. "We know business people have to get to work. These are quick, crisp and to the point."

Andy's law

New statute honors injured Canton man

By Carol Marshall
Staff Writer
cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

On April 30, 1999, 19-year-old Andrew Lefko was a different man than he is today. It was his first day on the job, working midnights on the I-275 road construction project near Grand River Road. He showed up at work wearing new boots and Carhartt clothing, dreaming of banking overtime wages to buy a house for him and his high school sweetheart, to whom he had just proposed.

In the blink of an eye, his world changed.

The first night at his job, Lefko was struck by a young drunk driver, and suffered devastating head injuries. Once an avid fisherman, hockey lover and dirt bike rider, he can no longer walk or talk. He will respond to people he loves and trusts by blinking his deep gray eyes. He doesn't eat, and is fed through a feeding tube.

Last week, Lefko and his mother, Diane Wasson, traveled by limousine with their entire family for the signing of Andy's Law, named after Lefko.

Under the new law, which went into effect Oct. 1, Michigan became the first state in the country to enact a specific measure creating stiffer penalties for drivers who injure or kill a highway construction worker. Guilty drivers serve up to one year in prison and pay a $1,000 fine for injury and up to 15 years in prison and a $7,500 fine for killing a highway construction or maintenance worker.

The law helps, but Wasson wistfully wishes for more.

"I would give anything if he could just say, 'Mom,'" said Wasson. She leaned over her son's hospital bed, set up in the family's Canton home, and kissed his forehead. Lefko gazed back at her with the exclusive trust and recognition most mothers only see in their babies' eyes. She has continued to pay for her son's wireless phone since the accident, just to hear him on voice mail when she dials the old phone number.

Fighting back

Wasson testified before the House Criminal Justice Committee last August.

"We went and I didn't know what to expect. I just spoke from my heart. The committee approved the law, and then the Senate passed it. I e-mailed every single (state) senator and representative before the vote, and it passed," Wasson said. "I just don't want other families to have to go through what we have been through. If that kid that hit him had said even once he was sorry or

Canton cop, businesses aid elderly woman, 75

By the time Canton police Officer John Dunfee met Dorothy Scott, she had already been without hot water for more than a year.

The 75-year-old woman had been hauling water from a garden hose into her Sherwood Mobile Home Park home, and didn't think she could face another winter without access to running water in her house.

Dunfee and several local businesses pulled together to help Scott. Home Depot donated a 40-gallon hot water tank, and Game Plumbing, a new Canton business, installed it and replaced the rotted subfloor underneath.

■ Home Depot donated a 40-gallon hot water tank, and Game Plumbing, a new Canton business, installed it and replaced the rotted subfloor underneath.

Any time she turned on the hot water the tanked leaked and damaged her home.

It was all in a day's work to Dunfee, who coordinated the effort to help Scott.

As part of his community policing assignment, Dunfee patrols Sherwood, Academy, Glenn ridge and Westpoint mobile home parks along Michigan Avenue. He's responsible for coordinating neighborhood watch programs, working with residents and nearby schools and businesses to reduce crime, and counseling at-risk youth.

Dunfee met Scott shortly after he took the assignment three months ago. Since then, he's learned there are many other people in need.

"Most of the people I meet that are in need are in situations like Dorothy's. Maybe it's a single working mother, or someone who's retired or disabled. They're people on fixed incomes who might not have money for much beyond their rent, food and utilities," he said.

Often they don't know where to go for help. Dunfee can put people in touch with the appropriate agencies, from the Family Independence Agency to church and charitable organizations.

Canton couple surprise burglars; police car damaged

A Canton couple tried to detain two burglars they caught in their house, but all they managed to keep was a shoe.

The 63-year-old man and his wife returned from shopping early Monday evening to find an unfamiliar old brown Ford Bronco in their driveway.

The man went around to the back of the house and saw two people – a 30-year-old man and a 20- to 30-year-old female – in his home, apparently trying to take a television set.

The homeowner approached the couple and asked what they were doing. The startled intruders scrambled to escape, and the man tried to detain them by blocking the door.

The couple escaped, but the male half of the pair left a shoe behind. The homeowners' 33-year-old son was home at the time of the invasion. The son, who is disabled, was in his bedroom and apparently unaware of the crime.

Cop car damaged

An unruly drunk driver caused $150 in damage to a police squad car during an escape attempt last weekend.

The man had been arrested and transported to the Canton Police Department. When he complained of numbness in his hands, paramedics took him to Oakwood Health Care Center in Canton. He was examined and taken back into police custody.

The handcuffed man began sliding back and forth across the back seat of the squad car, banging his head against the windows. He then began kicking the windows, and managed to successfully smash one of them.

The man told the officer he would jump out the window. The officer pulled off the road when the passenger wriggled his head and chest out of the window.

He was restrained and taken back to the station.

Child endangerment

Canton police arrested a 38-year-old Belleville woman after she was involved in a car crash while under the influence of prescription drugs.

The woman rear-ended a Ford Expedition at the intersection of Canton Center and Heritage Drive. When police and firefighters arrived, she was still in her car. Her 6-year-old son was also in the car, his mouth bleeding.

Officers noted the woman appeared dazed and had a difficult time understanding instructions.

While the woman fished through her purse looking for her insurance information and driver's license, an officer noticed she was carrying several prescription bottles.

Some of the recently filled prescription bottles, including a Xanax bottle, were already empty.

The woman told police she is ill and has lupus. Further, her husband had recently died and she was stressed from starting a new job.

The woman failed field sobriety tests, and was arrested for child endangerment and transporting an unbelted child in the front seat. Her young son was released to his grandmother at the police station.

CANTON CONNECTION

Wayne County Community College

Even though the tax request from Wayne County Community College failed in Canton Township, it narrowly passed 141,000 to 138,300 across the county.

The suburban parts of the WCCC district soundly defeated the proposal (1.5 mills for 10 years for operations), but votes from Detroit were more than 2-to-1 in favor.

Few Canton students attend WCCC; most opt for Schoolcraft. Some suburbs may be able to get out of their community college districts if a bill pending in the Michigan House gets out of committee. The bill is sponsored by William O'Neil (D-Allen Park).

The Canton vote was 423 no and 71 yes; 6,320 voters in four southern Canton precincts were eligible to vote. The balance of Canton (Plymouth-Canton schools) is in the Schoolcraft district.

TAG screening dates announced

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will once again be screening students for admission to the Talented and Gifted Program for the 2002-2003 school year.

The TAG department screens all district third-graders when they take the Cognitive Abilities Test in January.

Parents of third-graders eligible for further screening will be contacted by mail. Parents of second-, fourth- and fifth-graders need to contact their school office for a nomination form (forms will be available at all school offices starting Dec. 3). Parents of sixth- and seventh-graders need to contact their middle school office for a nomination form (forms will also be available on Dec. 3).

Second-grade nomination forms need to be returned to the building principal by Jan. 11, 2002. Fourth- and fifth-grade nomination forms need to be returned to the building principal by Jan. 31, 2001. Sixth- and seventh-grade nomination forms need to be returned to your school counselor by Feb. 2, 2002.

Nominated second-graders will take the Cognitive Abilities Test at their school at the same time the test is given to District third-graders. For fourth- through seventh-graders, the TAG department will look at previous testing.

If you are a district resident and your child attends private school, you may pick up a nomination form at your nearest public elementary school (for grades 2-5) or middle school (for grades 6 and 7) office.

There are two informational meetings regarding the TAG Program scheduled for Dec. 11 and Jan. 9 at 7 p.m. in the Miller School gym. Interested parents should attend one of the above meetings. Test scores and available space will determine placement in the TAG program.

If you need additional information, call the TAG office at (734) 416-4867.

Blood drive at Hoben

A Red Cross blood drive will be 2-8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 27, at Hoben Elementary School. The American Red Cross notes that many times after a holiday there is a need for blood donors. For more information or to schedule an appointment, please call Pam Dauzy at (734) 844-7099. Hoben is at 44680 Saltz Road in Canton, between Sheldon and Canton Center roads.

Field silver jubilee

Staff and students at Field elementary (1000 Haggerty, Canton) are getting ready to celebrate the school's silver anniversary in December.

From 6:30-8 p.m. Dec. 12 a rededication of the Mildred Field Elementary School will be held. The school was dedicated on that day in 1976 and is named for Mildred Field, who was the principal at old Starkweather Elementary School in Plymouth for 18 years in the 1950s and the 1960s.

The veteran educator was one of several Plymouth-Canton educators who have had elementary schools named for them.

A 25-year pictorial school history will be displayed through the building, and visitors will be able to relive some of the big school, state, national and international events from the past 25 years.

Fox Hills support

Fox Hills Golf and Banquet Center has pledged support to the Salvation Army.

Golfers bringing a frozen turkey weighing at least 15 pounds to Fox Hills Nov. 17 will receive free greens fees and cart for 18 holes of golf on that day.

The turkeys will be donated to the local Salvation Army to distribute to families in the area who may not have a turkey dinner for Thanksgiving. Reservations are required. To reserve a tee time, call (734) 453-7272.

DAR helps vets

The Sarah Ann Cochrane Plymouth-Northville Chapter of the DAR is extending its program to help veterans in local hospitals through the month of November.

The DAR will place boxes in three local libraries – Plymouth, Northville and Canton – to help collect donations.

ADVANCEMENTS IN FOOT CARE
– presented by –
Canton Foot Specialists
Dr. Steven Watson
Dr. Michael Lefkowitz
WHO SHOULD WEAR ORTHOTICS?
Orthotics are custom-made inserts which fit into your shoes. Superficially they look like arch supports and some actually provide minimal arch support. Orthotics actually change the way you walk. They allow the foot to supinate at the proper time in the walking cycle.
Orthtics are universally acknowledged as being useful in the treatment and prevention of many foot problems such as bunions, heel spurs and shin splints.
Orthotics prescribed by podiatrists should be custom-made for your foot type and problem. Many over-the-counter devices are available, but their benefits are not reliable. Every foot is unique and an one-size-fits-all device doesn't usually provide much relief.

Charter school ceremonies honor Academy building

BY DOUG JOHNSON
STAFF WRITER

The Canton Charter Academy held their ribbon cutting ceremonies Monday, celebrating the completion of the school's building in August and its opening this fall.

The Academy is at 49100 Ford Road at Ridge Road.

Classes actually started last year but were held in trailers.

Among the speakers at the ceremony was J.C. Huizenga, founder and chairman of National Heritage Academies based in Grand Rapids.

"We are about helping children achieve their greatest potential. The success of this school reflects the success of that mission," Huizenga said, commenting later in the week. "Our partnership with parents is very important. We live for parent input."

The rostrum lineup also included Jim Poole, vice president for operations at Heritage.

"The ribbon cutting ceremony was a great tribute to our parents and the trust they have placed in us to educate their children. It was heartwarming," Poole said Friday.

Principal Claudia Williamson said most of the school's 530 students come from Canton, Westland, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti and Belleville. The school has been a quick success, and a waiting list is being maintained. Currently there are no openings in the school, which operates grades kindergarten through sixth. Parents must provide transportation but tuition is paid by the state through the local foundation grant (state aid).

"The school focuses on three main things: back-to-basics academics, parent involvement, and moral focus," Williamson said.

The moral focus component includes a morning assembly every day where the students sing a patriotic song, say the Pledge of Allegiance, and recite the Canton Creed that stresses school and community. Then a class presents something with a "moral emphasis," Williamson said.

Moral focus

Community involvement includes participation in the charitable giving Operation Christmas Child that fills shoe boxes with small toys, school supplies, hygiene items and fun things like hard candy, T-shirts, picture books and inexpensive watches. The boxes are sent to needy children around the world.

Students are also trying to help a local family (the John Wysocki family in Plymouth Township) who lost their home to a fire.

A chili dinner fund-raiser is planned for Friday, Nov. 16 from 4-7 p.m. at the school. Chili is $1, beverages and baked goods are 50 cents.

Williamson's remarks at the ceremony Monday thanked everyone involved:

"This is a momentous occasion. Building a school community takes vision, faith, commitment, energy and resources. Each of you present today has contributed in some way to the creation of Canton Charter Academy. Thank you for believing in a dream to build an educational program of the finest quality."

Construction work continues outside the school on the driveway in from Ford Road and on the deceleration lanes on Ford Road in front of the school property.

Among local officials present was Academy board chair Carl Berry and township supervisor Tom Yack, township trustee Melissa McLaughlin and Canton fire chief Michael Rorabacher. Students Michelle Drennan (6th) and Siera Tyl (2nd) also made presentations at the ceremony.

This is one of 28 schools operated by the company; 23 are in Michigan and more are planned. In Canton, grades seven and eight will also be offered in the future.

Attorney General has Booher e-mail case

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

Plymouth police say they've turned over their investigation of a possible illegal e-mail involving Plymouth-Canton Schools Superintendent Kathleen Booher to the state attorney general's office and Michigan State Police.

"We've sent the case to the high-tech crime unit of the attorney general's office, and the state police intelligence unit," said Plymouth Detective Ed Ochal. "They have the expertise in handling cases like these and the resources we don't have."

In a letter to the attorney general's office last month, Booher asked for state help to investigate a bogus e-mail sent under the name of deceased superintendent Mike Hoben. It was sent to nearly 40 administrators with a signature of "K," made to look as if it were sent by Booher.

Plymouth police previously determined that sending the bogus e-mail wasn't a crime. However, school district attorney Kari Shay said a state statute which makes it a crime to impersonate a public employee may re-open the investigation.

Any crime relating to the e-mail will be considered a high misdemeanor, according to Shay. A conviction could bring a one-year prison sentence and a $1,000 fine.

Meanwhile, Dearborn police say they hope to wrap up an investigation next week to determine if criminal charges are warranted against former Plymouth-Canton school board president Mike Maloney, for using a false name in order to obtain confidential employment information about Booher.

Shay asked Dearborn police to investigate 18 telephone calls that were reportedly made from Maloney's office at Lear Corporation in Dearborn to Berkley Schools, Booher's former district.

Central school students aid disaster fund

Central Middle School students and staff recently conducted a penny drive and raised $2,915.45 to aid the victims of the disasters in New York and Washington.

The day after the terrorist attacks, the students at Central began raising money as a patriotic gesture to support their fellow Americans in their time of need. They brought in more than $2,400 in coins which filled over 22 bank bags that were so heavy they were very difficult to lift.

All the money was donated to the American Red Cross Liberty Fund through Comerica Bank. The bank matched the money raised by the Central students.

showed any remorse, I could have forgiven him. It was his second drunk driving charge, but I could have. I could have even had him over to my house. But he was so cocky. And he has violated his parole three times and been put back in jail."

Tough battle

Since 1999, Wasson and Lefko have been through hell, she said. Lefko was in a coma for seven months, and it took a year and a half before he was cognizant of his surroundings. Doctors told Wasson the first few days after the accident it would better to let him go, to disconnect the life support equipment that was keeping him alive.

Since then, there has been a seven-month stay in Austin, Texas, for rehabilitation. The family has moved seven times in just over two years, trying to find the right home to accommodate Lefko's needs.

"Because of his size, he needs a larger wheelchair, so then you need wider hallways and doorways and big bathroom," Wasson said of six-foot-tall Lefko.

Wasson has had to educate case managers, fight with workers' compensation insurance companies, and even defend to doctors her decision to bring her son home instead of admitting him to a nursing home.

"It was only last week that the insurance company finally said Andy's permanently disabled. He can't walk, or talk. He can't hold the trunk of his body up on his own, but they thought he was not disabled? That makes no sense to me," she said.

Andy's Law doesn't change any of that, Wasson said. But it does help her make some sense of her loss.

"It's not every day you get a law named after you. And now when people say Andy's Law, lawyers will know exactly what you're talking about, and they'll know why that law was written," she said.

bird and honked at him.

He then pulled off on the shoulder of the road. A man got out of a car, approached the victim's passenger side window, pulled a gun and shot him, he said.

Later, the victim stated he was driving along Michigan Avenue when his assailant honked. He said he then rolled down his passenger side window, and the suspect shot him while his car was still moving.

"In one story, a guy came up to him on foot and shot him. In another story, he approached in a car, but the victim couldn't describe the car at all," Wilson said. "Apparently the guy doesn't want us to find out who shot him."

Circumstance after the shooting appear more certain, Wilson said. The victim drove home, to the 900 block of Kingsway in Canton, and told his brother he had been shot. His brother then transported him to Oakwood Medical Center in Canton. The victim was then transferred to Ann Arbor.

"When I find out they need something, I meet with them to find out exactly what those needs are and hook them up with the right agency to help," he said.

Some need is more obvious than others. He looks for houses that may not be kept up very well. Or he may receive information from school personnel or from mobile home park management.

"Maybe a teacher might tell me some of her students are coming to school with no coats, or the park manager might tell me someone has been ticketed for not keeping up their property," he said.

That's how he met Scott. The park manager thought she might need help with some painting or with yard maintenance. When Dunfee got to her home, he found the need was more serious.

"I just ask people straight up what they need. A lot of times, they're suspicious at first but when they find out that I really can help they open up. That's how it was with Dorothy," Dunfee said. "Dorothy is a very nice, strong-minded lady. When I found out that she didn't have hot water, I wanted to help."

Dunfee's duty takes him a step farther next week when he meets with representatives with the FIA.

"Part of the problem was Dorothy was already working with the FIA and they just kept telling her to hold on a little longer. The FIA was so slow in paying the different contractors they found, and their price range was so low, contractors won't even work with them," he said. "I decided we needed a meeting to discuss the lack of service and help for people who need it."

P-CEP band is still best in state

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

The Plymouth-Canton Educational Park Marching Band rocked the Silverdome on Nov. 3, capturing the Flight I state championship; all Flight I captions for Best Music, Best Marching and Best General Effect; and the highest score of all 42 bands at the Michigan Competing Band Association State Championship competition. It was the eighth consecutive year the P-CEP performers brought the bundle of top trophies home and the 14th time in the MCBA's nearly 29-year history.

"I think we did excellent," said an excited Chelsea Tripp, Canton senior flutist. "This was one of our best performances."

Erin DuLong, Salem senior and alto saxophonist, couldn't agree more. "I thought we did really well," she said. "This show is very different and, because we don't have a drum line, it is a lot harder. But it is so much fun. We did very well performing together as one today and, musically, we did a lot better than we ever have."

The 185 P-CEP marchers captivated the nearly 14,000 spectators with their masterful eight-and-a-half-minute production of "Programme One," a fast-paced and intricately woven tapestry of music, choreography, color and drama.

The performance earned the nationally acclaimed band the highest score of the day, 90.5 out of a possible 100 points.

"I was very pleased with our performance because it was quality music making," said P-CEP Band Director Clayton Wachholz. "We happened to be on a marching band field, but I thought we sounded like a wind ensemble. That's what we try to go for."

He added that, after mastering the physical and mental demands of putting on a marching performance of that caliber, the students are now achieving the emotional qualities.

"We're starting to believe in the show, in each other, and we're hitting the emotional," said Wachholz.

That's what the P-CEP players call the "It" according to Salem senior tuba player Alex Parsons.

"It's this feeling that you get," he said. "Once you get it, it's just the most amazing thing. We've been working very hard and today it really came all together. The show takes on a life of its own and our show has finally found its life."

Mack Pittard, executive director of the MCBA, said a show of that nature allows the students to "put all their emotions into a performance and find out what it is like to get that many people all doing a performance at the same level at the same time. It is a pretty amazing effect."

Other bands taking first-place in their flights-which are determined by the school's enrollment, not band size-were Flight II, Jenison, 87.95; Flight III, Farmington Harrison, 81.95; and Flight IV, Durand Area 82.30.

Of the 80-some bands participating in the MCBA, only the top 10 highest-scoring bands of the approximately 20 in each flight, qualify for the finals competition. Two bands were added to this year's list, one because of standstill performances during the extremely wet fall and the other due to a technical error.

Other local bands at the state competition included Novi, second, 80.15 and West Bloomfield, seventh, 66.2, both in Flight I.

The Plymouth-Canton Music Boosters have coordinated the State Championships for about 10 years and this year was no exception.

Booster president Connie Moore said some 200 parents, grandparents and alumni volunteered to help with the show, some working the entire 15-hour day. "It is nice to see so many out here," said Moore. She added that helping to organize the 5,000 teens that comprised the 42 bands made it all worth it.

"The kids' faces just light up when they come into this Silverdome," she said. "For a lot of them, this is the first time that they have been in here."

Canton senior Zachary Shemon brought additional honors to the P-CEP band, receiving a $1,000 scholarship from the MCBA. Scholarships were awarded to two seniors in each flight. The students had to write about their musical accomplishments and about what marching band means to them. University music scholars not associated with the MCBA selected the recipients.

SEMCOG predicts slow growth in 2030 Development Forecast

BY TIM SMITH
STAFF WRITER
tsmith@oe.homecomm.net

In 2030 questions about health care services and transportation to and from the doctor's office likely will be much more prevalent than school construction bond issue proposals.

According to the just-released 2030 Regional Development Forecast for Southeast Michigan, issued by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, population in Southeast Michigan will grow more slowly than the rest of the United States over the next three decades – 12 percent (to 5.4 million) compared to about 25 percent nationwide. And, both the population and infrastructure serving the region will continue to age, bringing issues that will need to be dealt with, said Paul Tait, SEMCOG executive director.

But Tait maintained that suburban communities will remain vital.

"The loss of population doesn't necessarily mean your community is declining," Tait said. "It can still be a very vibrant community."

Among communities covered by the Observer, double-digit population decreases will occur in Redford Township (13.3 percent) and Garden City (18 percent). In Livonia, population will drop 7 percent from 100,545 to 93,509, while Westland's population will decrease nearly 8 percent, from 86,602 to 79,763. In Farmington Hills, the population in 2030 will be 77,505 – down 5.6 percent from 82,111 in 2000.

On the plus side, however, major population increases are expected in both Canton Township and Plymouth Township. In Canton Township, population will jump 45.9 percent, from 76,366 to 111,391 over the next three decades. During that span, the Plymouth Township population will increase 23.6 percent from 27,798 last year to 34,372.

"It's a big number," said Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack. "Even if it falls somewhat short of that, Canton will be either the second or third largest community in Wayne County in 2030."

Among some of the trends detailed in the 34-page report are the following:

■ Households will increase 22 percent by 2030, greater than the 12-percent population increase; Tait explained that there will be 403,000 new households in the region, but those would be composed of fewer people, many without children.

■ Jobs will grow by 16 percent, reaching about 3.1 million by 2030. Many of those will be in non-food service-oriented positions, including accounting, computers and legal services, for example.

■ Because more of the population will be elderly and unable to drive, another important issue will be developing an effective public transportation system.

■ Other infrastructure challenges will intensify as rural

Canton supervisor skeptical of projections

BY TIM SMITH
STAFF WRITER
tsmith@oe.homecomm.net

Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack said communities are happy to receive information-packed reports such as SEMCOG'S new 2030 Regional Development Forecast for Southeast Michigan.

Such reports are nice to have for comparison purposes, to make sure government officials are on the right planning track. They also are useful for residents to glean over. But Yack said it would be a mistake to put too much stock in them, or rely on them for guidance in dealing with long-term issues such as roads or sewer repairs.

And he sounded skeptical about SEMCOG's projection that Canton's population will grow 45.9 percent between 2000 and 2030 – the largest increase among those areas served by the Observer.

"Wow, that kind of increase? I don't know," Yack said. "... They miss the mark sometimes."

Yack acknowledged that Canton would continue to grow over the next three decades, just not at the rate estimated by SEMCOG. And he said the report only underscores what is already known by officials who are on top of running their cities or townships.

"You have to do it (long-term planning) without that," said Yack, about the SEMCOG report. "The growth and development is right in front of you. If you wait for a document like this that comes out once every 10 years, you'll be way behind the areas become urban. According to SEMCOG, "Additional roads and sewers will have to be built and those existing in older parts of the region will have to be rehabilitated."

Future forecast

Tait added there is a $17 billion shortfall for future road projects, with another $14 billion to $26 billion worth of needs to rehabilitate aging sewers.

"The other message in our forecast is that local governments are going to be looking at different service needs," Tait said. "In the past, they were looking for youth recreation programs, for example, and not be concerned about senior citizen facilities."

Other needs to be focused on due to the aging population include emergency medical services, transportation, health care and continuing education for older adults.

The information contained in the 2030 Regional Development Forecast for Southeast Michigan will be shared with city and township officials so that they can better prepare for long-range planning, Tait said.

"As an organization that has 150 local governments as members," Tait said, "one of our jobs is to get information to local elected officials and staff to help them with decision making. There are some definite trends here that will impact what communities look like in the future."

Canton's Yack, however, said while having such information within grasp is nice, it is "not as valuable as having a future land use plan."

But he said SEMCOG's guide could offer helpful insight into regional trends and assist communities in where to spend money.

"In the macro sense it probably is helpful for communities to see this," Yack said.

Farmington Assistant City Manager Bill Richards said although having the SEMCOG report is an interesting tool, "30 years is a long way out. We prefer to use smaller (planning) cycles."

power curve."

According to Yack, about 15 percent of Canton remains unbuilt, primarily on the western portion of the township. But future land development proposals will have less density (fewer houses or condominiums) than existing subdivisions and complexes do

Whether SEMCOG is right or wrong, the supervisor said Canton still will have significant growth between now and 2030. Improving roads will remain a major challenge.

To that end, Yack said Wayne County will play an important role.

"We have a great relationship with the county, they have great plans for upgrading some of our roads from two to five lanes," said Yack, referring to Warren, Cherry Hill and Palmer.

But Yack said the first of those road widening projects, Warren, probably won't begin until 2003, with the other projects to follow.

State to launch free arsenic testing for home wells

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

The state of Michigan will conduct free testing of private water wells for high arsenic levels if a bill, passed by the House and Senate, is signed into law by Gov. John Engler.

Areas of the state known to have a high numbers of households with wells contaminated by arsenic include the counties of Oakland, Livingston, Ingham, Washtenaw, Shiawassee, Genesee, Huron, Lapeer, Saginaw, Sanilac and Tuscola.

In northern Oakland, said State Rep. Ruth Johnson, R-Holly, the problem occurs so frequently that when the Department of Environmental Quality tested 500 homes there, one in three had arsenic in their water.

"Arsenic in well water is easy to remedy once the homeowner is aware of the problem," she said. Homeowners can drill a new well, although that can be expensive and the new well also may have arsenic present. Or homeowners can switch to bottled water for drinking and cooking.

There are also filter systems that remove arsenic from well water, although Johnson cautioned that not all filters work equally well. Homeowners should make sure their filters are certified by the Water Quality Association, Johnson advised.

Arsenic is a metal and a chemical element that can be present naturally in groundwater. The first symptoms of arsenic poisoning include thickening and discoloration of the skin, heartburn or stomach pain, memory loss, fatigue or numbness in the hands and feet. Arsenic is a carcinogen and, in higher doses, it is a deadly poison.

Once put in place, the water-testing program will be operated by the state DEQ. Residents will be able to get specimen bottles from county or municipal offices, and then send them to the state for testing. The DEQ will then inform the homeowner whether and at what level arsenic is present in the water, and whether that level exceeds federal safe drinking water standards.

Just as state lawmakers were working on the bill to create the testing program last week, the federal Environmental Protection Agency released its new standards on drinking water, dropping the acceptable level of arsenic in drinking water from 50 parts per billion to 10. That ends a controversy at the federal level ignited when President George W. Bush first took office and balked at EPA plans to lower the level considered safe.

Johnson contended that homeowners who have private wells should have them tested once a year, and not just for arsenic. Nitrates and other volatile organic compounds can be health hazards as well.

A full battery of tests for all possible contaminants would cost $400, she said. But a test for nitrates, for example, is just $8.

Under Johnson's amendment, the DEQ will also begin to map the areas in which contaminants are being found in wells. The maps are to be available by Oct. 1, 2002, in health departments and public libraries. The maps will serve as a guide to homeowners as to substances are being found in their areas and for which their wells should be tested.

The testing program was tacked on as an amendment to House Bill 4626, which adjusts fees for the transportation of hazardous wastes.

Lightfest 2001 begins Nov. 15

Wayne County will officially premier Lightfest 2001 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 15.

This year the county is adding 10 new additions to the light show. Some of the additions include a spectacular "Celebration of Lights" entrance arch, an animated Old Man Winter, a large waving polar bear with cubs, an animated five player baseball scene and more. Many of the Lightfest favorites, including Santa's Colossal Sleigh, Santa's Flight School with Parachuting Reindeer and the Giant Poinsettia Wreath will continue.

The show runs 7-10 p.m., seven days a week with the exception of Christmas.

In addition to the complementary displays, there are other events planned throughout the holiday season.

Hines Drive will be closed to traffic beginning at 5:45 nightly. Visitors enter the Lightfest at Hines Drive and Merriman. For more information, call (734)261-1990.

Roman Forum will be smoker-free for a day

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER
cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

Canton restaurateur Greg Gatto will be kicking his customers' "butts" out of the restaurant for a day. The owner of The Roman Forum at 41601 Ford Road will turn his restaurant smoke-free for a day in recognition of the American Cancer Society Great American Smokeout Nov. 15.

"I would go smoke-free for good today, but I don't know if I'll be able to do it," Gatto said. "There are so many restaurants on Ford Road, I don't know if I could afford it. There's so much competition." About 25 percent of Gatto's customers smoke, and he said he's not sure he could afford to lose their business permanently.

The smokeout will mark its 25th anniversary this year.

"Twenty-five years ago, the American Cancer Society started the Great American Smokeout as an annual day to spotlight the dangers of smoking and challenge people to stop using tobacco," said Steve Konsdorf, area executive director for the American Cancer Society, Great Lakes Division.

"On this anniversary milestone, the Society renews its pledge to conquer lung cancer, help smokers make the important decision to quit and support them in their efforts."

Just as beneficial to smokers, the smokeout offers non-smokers a break from second-hand smoke. According to the American Cancer Society, 3,000 people die annually from illnesses caused by second-hand cigarette smoke.

Gatto will give the smoke-free environment a trial run for the day of the smokeout, and if it's popular with his customers, he'll make it permanent, he said.

The smokeout is a positive event for smokers and non-smokers alike, Gatto said.

"If you're healthy, cigarette smoke doesn't bother you. It never bothered me before, but I had a heart attack some time ago. You don't realize until your health isn't so good that smoke really bothers you," he said.

For more information about the Great American Smokeout or for help quitting smoking, contact the American Cancer Society at (800) ACS-2345, or visit their Web site at www.cancer.org.

Canton fire captains complete command course

Canton Fire Captains Jim Davison and Bill Grady recently completed Eastern Michigan University's fire staff and command school.

The 10-month-long school, which began in January, focused on management of fire agencies, planning and decision analysis and fire personnel administration, among other areas.

The two men spent 400 hours in the classroom as well as time on their own studying, completing projects and term papers.

"There was some good information that was presented," said Davison, who has been with the department since 1974. "We covered a real spectrum of command-level fire topics."

■ 'I focused on how we get the word out on fire safety. It was a lot of work.'

Captain Jim Davison

"It was very intense," said Grady, a Canton Fire Department veteran of nearly three decades. "We were in school for a week each month. I'd say I averaged about 40 hours the other three weeks studying and doing projects."

Besides Davison and Grady, the school was attended by fire chiefs and administrators from around the state. Fire officials from Traverse City, Cadillac, Mount Pleasant, Dearborn and Taylor attended.

It was Eastern Michigan's third fire staff and command school. Graduation ceremonies were held in Ann Arbor.

"We'll be sending additional officers to the school next year," said Canton Fire Chief Michael Rorabacher, who completed the course a year ago. "It's very worthwhile."

Davison and Grady spent a significant amount of time on term papers. Davison, for example, wrote a 30-page paper on fire safety education. "I focused on how we get the word out on fire safety," said Davison. "It was a lot of work."

Bills would block teachers from recommending Ritalin

Y MIKE MALOTT
OMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
malott@homecomm.net

Many parents feel teachers nd principals are pressuring hem to put their children on italin when the drug really sn't necessary.

And now the state House of epresentatives agrees.

Lawmakers have voted to pass egislation making it illegal for eachers to recommend that stuents be placed on "psychotropic rugs." Before passage, the bill as amended to make it clear nat school personnel can discuss behavioral problems with parents and can recommend that children be evaluated for learning disabilities or emotional impairment.

But the four-bill package, which now heads to the state Senate for review, bars educators from recommending that drugs be used, prohibits them from expelling a student if a parent chooses not to place a child on Ritalin, and appoints an advisory council to study the issue of medications for Michigan students.

Clawson resident Larry Smith told representatives that he was pressured to put his son, Matthew, on Ritalin by school officials. Matthew had used the drug for eight years when he died at age 14. The autopsy cited heart damage caused by long-term use of Ritalin.

"They were pretty much writing the prescription before he even saw the doctor. We were threatened with social services if we didn't get him on the medication," Smith said.

Educators, however, believe the law may impede their ability to work with parents to correct behavioral problems, and that parents might misinterpret the law to mean teachers can't recommend evaluations.

"Teachers working with children usually know when children's behavior doesn't fit norms and/or aren't performing to their full potential," said Livonia counselor Yvonne Constas. "It isn't necessary to be a physician to observe and evaluate behavior not in the best interest of children."

Teachers should be working with physicians to identify attention deficit disorder and hyperactivity when it exists in a child, she said.

Chief sponsor Rep. Susan Tabor, R-Delta Township, noted that Michigan is the third highest state in the nation for the percentage of children using Ritalin. She said the number of prescriptions for the drug have increase 600 to 700 percent in the last 10 years.

House Bills 5083-86 would leave it to physicians and parents to decide when a child should use the drugs. Also sponsoring bills in the package are Reps. Gary Woronchak, R-Dearborn, Barb VanderVeen, R-Allendale and Thomas George, R-Kalamazoo.

Representatives voted Thursday, Nov. 1, for the main bill, HB 5085, 88-16:

Reps. Glenn Anderson, D-Westland; Bob Brown, D-Dearborn Heights; Bruce Patterson, R-Canton; Jim Plakas, D-Garden City, Andrew Raczkowski; R-Farmington Hills; and Laura Toy, R-Livonia, voted yes.

Rep. John Stewart, R-Plymouth, voted no.

HELEN GARNER

Helen "Jane" Garner, 56, of Plymouth Township died Wednesday at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia of complications from a stroke she suffered Tuesday morning.

Jane Garner

Jane was an administrative assistant at the Observer Newspaper Group, where she worked for the publisher, advertising, circulation and editorial departments.

Jane started her career at the Observer Newspapers in 1968 in the circulation department, where she worked for many years as a secretary, then as a supervisor. She resigned in 1970 to stay at home with her then-young children — two boys.

"She was devoted to her boys," said Gail Smalley, who began her 16-year career at the Observer working with Garner. "I didn't know anything about the newspaper business, but she showed me the ropes. She was really patient.

"Jane could tell a story and make it really funny," said Smalley. "I used to tell her she could be a stand-up comic."

Garner returned to the Observer and the circulation department in 1980. She became an administrative assistant in the mid-90s and worked for former Observer Publisher Banks Dishmon, and most recently for Sue Rosiek, current publisher.

She was preceded in death by her father, Paul Allan; and sister, Carolyn Sue Goldberg.

Survivors include her husband, Ken Sr., and sons Ken Jr. and Thomas, both of Canton Township; her mother, Violet Allan of Westland; brother, Paul Allan; and sister Judith Allan, of Westland.

Whalers trade Smith

The Plymouth Whalers reduced their number of overage players to four — one more than the Ontario Hockey League allows — by trading right wing Mike Smith to the Kingston Frontenacs for a fifth-round pick in the 2002 draft.

Smith, signed by the Whalers as a free agent last summer, led the team in points for the first two weeks of the season. He had six goals and seven assists in 16 games as a Whaler, with a plus-10.

In the last two weeks, the Whalers re-signed Damian Surma and picked up for Erie standout Brad Yeo, giving them five overage players.

College standouts

■ Brett Stinar, a sophomore at Kalamazoo College from Canton (Plymouth Salem HS), was named to the all-Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association's second team in soccer. Seven of his teammates were selected to the first team, and three others (besides Stinar) were second-team choices.

Stinar tied for second in the MIAA in scoring with five goals and a conference-best eight assists (18 points). Kalamazoo was 12-0 in conference play and 18-2 overall after winning its first-round NCAA Division III match over Wheaton, 1-0 Friday.

■ Albion College's women's soccer team suffered its first loss of the season in the NCAA III Great Lakes Regional Final, 3-0 to Ohio Wesleyan last weekend. The Britons finished with a 19-1-1 record, beating College of Mount St. Joseph in an overtime penalty-kick shootout in the opening round of the NCAA III regional.

Albion outscored St. Joseph 4-2 in the shootout, one of them by freshman midfielder Allison Mills of Plymouth (Plymouth Canton HS). Mills finished the season with three goals and two assists (eight points).

Whalers blank Hounds

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

The same thought must have been going through the minds of all 25 Soo Greyhounds as they trudged off the Compuware Arena ice following Friday night's Ontario Hockey League game against the Plymouth Whalers: "We drove five hours for this?"

The red-hot Whalers put on a clinic for the crowd of 2,611, dominating the travel-weary Greyounds, 4-0.

Plymouth, which is now 9-0-1 at home this season, improved its record to 15-2-2-1 — good for first place in the OHL Western Conference's West Division. In fact, it's the best record in the OHL. The second-place Soo dropped to 10-8-4-0.

"It wasn't our best game of the year, but it I thought we played really well," first-year Whaler coach Mike Vellucci said. "The last few games we had been playing too much as individuals and not as a team. Tonight, we played as a team. Our wingers were picking up our back-checkers and we played as one unit."

The crowd was entertained on several occasions by the acrobatic efforts of goaltender Jason Bacashihua, who turned away all 18 shots he faced. The first-year Whaler, who is property of the NHL's Dallas Stars, stuffed at least four shots that appeared headed for the back of the net. It was his second shutout of the season.

"He's as quick as a cat," Vellucci said, praising his goalie. "The key to Jason is that his composure is outstanding. Nothing gets him rattled and he doesn't make mistakes. He doesn't beat himself. And the thing is, he makes it look easy. He's definitely a future NHL goalie."

Bacashihua's most spectacular save came with just over 12 minutes left in the game when he knocked aside a sizzling shot by Soo winger Dean Byvelds, who had broken free from the Whaler defense with the puck at mid-ice.

Left-wing Damian Surma accounted for the first two Plymouth goals — his second and third of the season — when he beat Soo goalie Ray Emery with a 20-foot slapshot at the 3:28 mark of the first period and with a back-handed power-play goal just over five minutes into the second period.

Knocked away: Whaler goalie JasonBacashihua earned his second shutout of the season Friday, blanking the Greyhounds.

Brad Yeo assisted on Surma's first tally while Canton's James Wisniewski and Cole Jarrett assisted on the second.

"Damian's been working hard all season, but he had a hard time scoring before tonight," Vellucci said. "But when you're a goal scorer like he is, you find ways to get it done like he did tonight when he found their goalie's five hole on the second goal."

Plymouth upped its lead to 3-0 with only three ticks left on the second-period clock when Yeo got just enough of his stick on the puck to make it trickle past an out-of-position Emery. Kris Vernarsky and Jarrett were credited with assists on the goal.

Stephen Weiss notched the Whalers' final goal when, with Plymouth shorthanded, he stole the puck at mid-ice, skated in on Emery, faked to his stick side then slid it past his glove hand to make it 4-0.

Weiss' goal was indicative of how well the Whalers' special teams played throughout the entire game. They not only scored power-play and short-handed goals, but they killed six minor penalties.

The Whalers outshot the Greyhounds, 31-18. Sixteen of the shots came in the second period when Emery was forced to match Bacashihua's heroics just to keep his team within breathing distance of the Whalers.

Whalers win, tie

Sure everyone's gunning for the Whalers. Why wouldn't they be? Not only is the Plymouth team the hottest thing this season, but the Whalers have been one of the best teams in the OHL for the last decade.

Example: last Sunday at Windsor. Sure, the final score indicated an easy three-goal win for Plymouth, but don't believe it: The 6-3 win included two empty-net goals by the Whalers in the final 51 seconds.

Karl Stewart was responsible for both of them, as well as a goal in the second period, which gave him a hat-trick. He also assisted on a second-period goal by Danny McDonald that gave Plymouth a 2-1 lead. After Stewart's first goal made it 3-1, but Windsor's Tim Gleason made it a one-goal game once again, scoring with just three seconds left in the period.

CC holds off Glenn

It took Westland John Glenn the better part of three quarters to find Redford Catholic Central's weakness.

But by the time the Rockets found it, it was too late to do much with it.

CC jumped out to a 35-0 lead in the third quarter, then held on for dear life as host John Glenn scored three touchdowns in the fourth quarter, helped by three successful onside kicks. But the rally fell short and the Shamrocks wound up with a 35-18 win and a Division 1, Region 4 championship on Friday night.

"I turned to a kid on the sideline and said I can't remember the first half, almost," said CC wide receiver Ryan Wrobleski, who scored two touchdowns receiving and added another on a 54-yard punt return. "They got the first (onside kick) then got the momentum."

The win moves CC (9-3) back into the semifinals for the second-straight year and the fourth time in the last five years. The opponent will be a familiar one – Walled Lake Western, the team that knocked CC out of the playoffs in 1999.

"Nothing has been easy for us all year," said Glenn coach Chuck Gordon as his team ended the year at 9-3. "When we were down 35-0 with a running clock, with would have been easy to go through the motions. But we fought back and at least made a game of it."

How things change.

Five years ago, Carlos Briggs had two returnees to build his first Schoolcraft College men's basketball team around. Nothing was really expected of him or his team.

This season, Briggs once again has just two returnees from last season's squad. Yet expectations are running high.

Great recruits? Maybe — they might develop into great players. But they'll be hard-pressed to match the group that Briggs put on the hardwood last year.

Gone are 11 players, nine of whom were on the team last season. All of them are playing basketball at another school this fall. Nine of them got their two-year degrees at SC.

Five of them — Sam Hoskin (DePaul), Nick Evola (Western Michigan), Derrick Bird (Auburn), Dave McGlown (Southern Illinois) and Lamar Bigby (Nevada-Las Vegas) — are at NCAA Division I schools. The others — Mike Peek (South Dakota State), Colin Wilkinson (football/basketball at Grand Valley State), Dwight Windom (Lincoln Memorial in Tennessee), Tony Jancevski (Madonna), Keanan Weir (Northwest Missouri State) and Mike Tobin (Rochester College) — are at smaller levels, but all will play this season.

Can't do much better than that. No wonder SC went 32-4 last season, losing to eventual NJCAA Divsion I champion Wabash Valley (Ill.) in overtime during the second round at Hutchinson, Kan. Briggs is 106-23 in his previous four years.

Problem is, there's very little left to build around. Briggs has been busy rebuilding a roster ravaged by graduations — the biggest reconstruction job Briggs has faced since that first season.

"It is," agreed the SC coach, noting one difference that made it easier that first year: "Nobody expected anything. Nobody expected anything. This year,

SPORTS NOTES

WSU takes 2nd

After capturing its first Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference championship in school history, the Wayne State University men's cross country team placed second last weekend in the NCAA Division II Great Lakes Regional.

Lewis (Ill.) won the team title Saturday at Wisconsin-Parkside with 42 points with Wayne State runner-up with 66, both teams qualifying for the nationals.

It will be WSU's first appearance ever in the NCAA Nationals.

Scoring for the Warriors were Nick Allen (Plymouth Salem), second place, 31:51 (10,000 meters); Joe Verellen (Livonia Stevenson), sixth, 32:23; Brian Goodwin, 14th, 33:05; Mike Buslepp, 16th, 33:09; Charlie Stamboulian (North Farmington), 28th, 33:48.

WSU's women's team also recorded its best finish in school history (sixth) at the regional with 150 points behind Grand Valley (60), Northern Michigan (81), Wisconsin-Parkside (84), Hillsdale (93) and Ashland (147).

Hillsdale senior Kelly McNeilance (Stevenson) took eighth among women in 22:44 (for 6,000 meters).

WSU's Jenny Furlong (Livonia Franklin) took 33rd overall in 23:28, while Heidi Frank (North Farmington) was 57th.

Sarkesian scores

Notre Dame senior midfielder Mia Sarkesian, from Canton (Plymouth Salem HS), netted her sixth goal of the season in the Fighting Irish's 2-0 win over St. John's last Sunday in a Big East Tournament quarterfinal played at Notre Dame's Alumni Field.

Sarkesian lofted a shot from 20 yards out into the upper left corner of the goal, giving her five post-season scores and a career-high in goals.

Varney 99th

He had his goal and he met it.

Plymouth Christian Academy's Mark Varney, running as an individual at the Class D state meet at Michigan International Speedway Nov. 4, wanted to finish in the top 100. He managed it, placing 99th out of 236 runners in 18:16.0.

A junior, he'll get another shot at it next year.

Underclassmen run

Plymouth Salem's underclass girls cross country runners finished an impressive third out of 13 teams at the Lakeland Freshmen/Sophomore Invitational Oct. 30 at Lakeland HS.

Clarkson finished first, followed by Novi and Salem (116 points).

Top runner for the Rocks was Lauren Kane, who finished ninth overall (21:42). Other Salem finishers were Monica Prezbienda, 14th (21:57); Halle Burton, 17th (21:59); Alyssa Borowy, 38th (23:41); Kim Towne, 41st (23:47); Sara Loewe, 50th (24:14); Katie Dondzilla, 52nd (24:31); Summer Kassem, 69th (25:49); Rikki Sowinski, 74th (27:14); Kristin Mastic, 77th (28:16); and Becka Brock, 78th (28:26).

Clean slate

Not only did Plymouth Salem's varsity girls basketball team post a 20-0 regular-season record, the Rocks' junior varsity squad matched it, with their win last Wednesday giving them a 20-0 mark.

Team members are sophomores Natalie Szawara, Colleen Whately, Jessica Wilson, Jill Niemi, Mandy East, Carly Schwan and Brooklyn Posler, and freshmen Jamie Siedlaczek, Ellen Canale, Alyssa Guerin and Brittany Lewis. The team is coached by Don Peterson.

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Hockey Booster Club will host its first Great Skate to raise funds for the high school hockey programs. Players will be collecting pledges and will participate in a skate-a-thon from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11 at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

All proceeds will go to the Canton and Salem hockey programs.

Warriors saddle Crusaders with 1st loss

COLLEGE HOOP

The first half was far from good for Madonna University's men's basketball team Thursday when it hosted Rochester College. The second half was worse.

The Fighting Crusaders saw their record fall to 2-1 with a 97-83 loss to the Warriors, who are 2-0.

It was close at the half, Madonna trailing 40-38 despite getting outrebounded 25-16. The Crusaders weren't too good defensively, either, allowing Rochester to convert 18-of-33 floor shots (54.5 percent) while making just 15-of-36 (41.7 percent) themselves.

It didn't improve after the intermission. Madonna hit 16-of-40 second-half shots (40 percent) compared to Rochester's 17-of-28 (60.7). For the game, the Warriors were 35-of-61 from the floor (57.4) to the Crusaders' 31-of-76 (40.8), and they also outrebounded Madonna 49-32.

A Noel Emenhiser three-pointer to start the second half did give the Crusaders a 41-40 lead, but Rochester outscored them 10-2 in the next four minutes to open up a 50-43 lead.

Madonna managed to claw its way back, tying the score three times — the last on two Emenhiser free throws with 8:10 left. But a 15-5 Warrior run covering the next 3:33, giving them an 84-74 lead with 4:37 to go, decided it.

John Bennett (Livonia Churchill) and Steve Horn each scored 12 points to pace Madonna. Mike Massey and Jimmy Woodworth (who was 5-for-5 from the field) had 11 apiece, and Aaron Cox scored 10. Tony Jancevski finished with seven points and eight rebounds.

Mike Robinson's 33 points and 16 boards topped Rochester. Bennie Theriot added 29 points and 14 rebounds; Jenero Dawood had 15 points and Wes Hazel scored 12.

The Crusaders did force 22 Rochester turnovers while committing just 11 themselves. Their three-point shooting, however, hurt them; they made just 4-of-22 from beyond the arc (18.2 pecent).

Madonna travels to the Fanshawe Tournament in London, Ont., for games on Friday and Saturday.

Falling short

Twisters tumble in title game

FOOTBALL

It was the best of halves, followed by the worst of halves.

The Michigan Twisters dominated the first half of their Lake Shore Football League championship match, scoring 19 points as quarterback Rob Elswick did a superb job of directing the offense.

But the second half belonged to the Central Ohio Lions, who scored 22 points to earn a 22-19 victory in the title game matching the two division champions Nov. 4 at Central State (Ohio) .

"There is nothing that can be said except our guys played their hearts out and we came up on the short end," Twisters' general manager Glenn Brothers said. "The Lions cannot be sold short. They are a great team with outstanding athletes.

"This in itself is a compliment to our squad. This season is now over and we look forward to 2002."

The Twisters made a goal line stand to end the first half, keeping the Lions off the scoreboard despite Central Ohio having a first down on the Michigan 5-yard line. The half ended with Michigan up, 19-0.

Elswick completed 8-of-10 passes for 109 yards and two touchdowns, to Frank Niscoromni (Farmington) and Reggie Brandon (Wayne) in the first half.

Tailback Corey Davis (Farmington) scored on a 14-yard run midway through the second quarter to reward a defense that forced three Central Ohio punts in the half.

But Central Ohio began its comeback with a 28-yard touchdown sweep followed by a 2-point conversion to make it 19-8 midway through the third quarter.

The Lions scored with eight minutes to play but failed in the conversion and trailed, 19-14.

The Twisters punted from their own 20 with less than three minutes to play but a 35-yard punt return gave the Lions the ball on the Michigan 25.

Central Ohio scored on a 25-yard pass play and threw for the two-point conversion to close out the scoring. The Lions intercepted Elswick on Michigan's ensuing possession to preserve their third straight league championship.

Mohacsi going strong

TEN PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

Livonia's Mary Mohacsi has done it again.

The 69-year-old has added more laurels to her long list of bowling achievements by winning the inaugural event of the Michigan Senior Queens Tournament last weekend at Classic Lanes in Rochester.

Mohacsi is well-known locally for her pro shops at Merri Bowl and Bonanza Lanes which she and son Mark have operated for years.

Her outstanding record includes induction to four different halls of fame — Women's International Bowling Congress, Michigan Bowling, Michigan Sports and Greater Detroit Bowling Association.

She also has captured several gold medals in international competition.

The Michigan Senior Queens was a new event this year open to women bowlers at least 50 years of age.

On Saturday, there was an eight-game block of qualifying, followed by another 10 games of eliminations, then four more games to decide the top five bowlers for the stepladder format finals on Sunday.

Mohacsi emerged as the top seed, meeting Dora Nettleman of Eaton Rapids in the final game. Mohacsi emerged the inaugural winner, 201-191.

•In case your wondering, the Professional Bowlers Association televised event disappeared to last Tuesday.

It is my understanding that it has been changed to Sundays on ESPN2. Check your TV guide for the time.

•The 73rd annual Detroit Lutheran Tournament has been announced and entry forms are now available occasion.

The dates are Saturday, Feb. 2, 9 and 16; and Sunday, Feb. 3, 10 and 17, at Cloverlanes in Livonia.

All participants must be members of a Lutheran Church (any synod). Non-Lutherans must bowl in a lutheran league. Entries close Jan. 19.

For more information or entry forms, write to: Jerry DeRuiter, Secretary, 21525 Centennial, St. Clair Shores, Mi. 48081; or call (586) 771-7004 or (313) 256-5833.

•The 71st annual Old Timers Tournament is just around the corner. It will be Saturday, Nov. 24. Squads action will be at 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. with the banquet starting at 3:30 p.m.

This event is the one that the late, great Joe Norris considered to be "The best tournament of its kind in the nation."

Bowlers use the scratch system amongst themselves in the following age brackets: under-50, 50- 59, 60-64, 65-69, 70-74, 75-79, 80-and-over.

This year's event is dedicated to John Meyka, and as usual, there will be free gifts to all bowlers.

Entry forms are available at bowling centers around town, get yours in early.

Bowling only is $9 per person. Cost for bowling and banquet is $18 per person. See you there.

first three quarters, this game was no contest.

The Shamrocks shut down Glenn's offense in every way imaginable – holding the Rockets without a yard in net offense out of 18 plays and just one first down in the first half and just 13 total yards in three quarters.

And on offense, CC was just down right scary.

Sophomore running back Derrick Brooks gained 123 yards on 13 first-half carries with a pair of touchdowns, Mike Banaszak had 62 more yards and quarterback Tom Jakacki had 80 yards passing (4-of-7 completions) with a touchdown for 269 yards in all.

"If you can't stop them, then they're going to keep pounding it at you," said Gordon. "They have a plan, they have a philosophy, they're good at it and they're going to stick to it."

The Shamrocks scored on long drives, quick drives and no drives. Brooks opened the scoring in the first quarter, capping a 79-yard drive with a 20-yard run – taking a 7-0 lead after the first of five Jason Gingell extra points.

Wrobleski made it 14-0 in the second quarter after finding a seam in coverage and taking a De'Anthony Granberry punt back 54 yards for a touchdown.

After Glenn's next drive stalled, CC came right back – alternating between Brooks and Banaszak in a five-play, 83-yard drive capped with a 9-yard touchdown and a 21-0 lead.

To add insult to injury, CC made it 28-0 before the half with Jakacki, rolling to his right and throwing across his body off the wrong foot, found Wrobleski alone at the 5, hit him with the pass and Wrobleski walked in for the score.

"It was supposed to go to Ryan Rogowski," said Wrobleski, who wound up with four catches for 136 yards. "Tom rolled out, ad-libbed, saw me open and threw."

CC wasn't done yet. Five plays after Rogowski picked off a Brandon Ajlouny halfback pass at the CC 29, the Shamrocks showed a little garter as Brooks took the ball on a halfback option, fluttered a pass out to Wrobleski, who ran in for the 68-yard touchdown, gave his team a 35-0 lead and started the running clock.

The Shamrocks had one more drive in the third quarter, that actually stalled at the Glenn 45 on the first play of the fourth quarter, allowing the Rockets to take over.

With good field position, Glenn should have been able to score. But no one would have guessed at what was coming next.

"I'm still shell-shocked," said CC coach Tom Mach. "It's my mistake for putting the second unit on defense in too soon. What they did is amazing."

What they did was hold the ball for 10 minutes, 24-straight plays, score three touchdowns, recover three onside kicks and scare the bejeebers out of the Shamrocks.

"The odds are pretty big about getting one onside kick, but three in a row?," asked Mach. "Once they get one, momentum starts building and building."

Ceckiewicz drove the Rockets down to the CC 30 in six plays and connected with Granberry on the seventh for a touchdown pass – cutting the lead to 35-6 but, more importantly, stopping the running clock.

Will Kennedy's onside kick was recovered at the Glenn 48 and again Ceckiewicz went to work, hitting Andrew Peiffer with a 41-yard TD pass that cut the lead to 35-12. Anthony Harrell recovered the second onside kick at the CC 44 and three plays later, Glenn scored again with Ceckiewicz and Granberry clicking on a 26 yard TD.

Once again, Kennedy's onside kick was recovered – this time by Peiffer. Glenn drove to the CC 14 with a first down, but this time the magic ran out as the drive stalled.

"You just kept looking up at the clock and it seemed like it never moved," said Rogowski. "You start getting scared. It seems like five minutes took an hour."

Ceckiewicz wound up completing 12-of-24 passes for 162 yards – 11-of-18 for 155 in the second half.

Glenn also had just 24 yards rushing for the game, while Peiffer caught five balls for 93 yards and Granberry had three for 64. Brooks ended up with 130 yards on 15 carries, while Banaszak had 79 yards on 13 carries as CC had 388 yards in total offense.

Whalers - B1

Brad Yeo, playing in his second game with the Whalers after being obtained in a trade with North Bay, started well by scoring twice and assisting on another. Yeo's first-period goal put Plymouth up 1-0, with Kris Vernarsky getting the assist.

Yeo scored again 8:24 into the third period (from Vernarsky and David Liffiton) to push the Whaler lead to 4-2. Again, the Spitfires answered, this one by Mike James with 7:19 remaining. However, Plymouth goalie Jason Bacashihua never allowed the game-tying goal, Stewart's two goals in the last minute assuring the win.

On Saturday at Plymouth's Compuware Arena, George Nistas scored a goal in the first period to give the Whalers a 1-0 lead. Barrie's Shayne Fryia knotted it with a short-handed goal with 7:23 left in the second period.

And that's the way it stayed, thanks to standout goaltending by Plymouth's Bacashihua and the Colts' David Chant.

expectations are higher."

And the higher the expectations, the greater the prospect for disappointment.

"It's a young group," said Briggs, noting there will be three returnees, two of whom played last season: Emir Medunjanin, a 6-foot-6 swing man from North Farmington, and Javon Clark, a 6-0 guard from Detroit Cass Tech and a University of Toledo transfer.

The third player back is a redshirt sophomore Mike Williams, a 6-7 swing man from Detroit City that Briggs has high hopes for.

"Mike Williams is a talented player," he said. "There's nothing he can't do. We're going to challenge him. We want him to step up and lead us. We want him to be the best player in the conference this year."

Around Williams will be some solid backcourt players. "Our guard play is pretty good," said Briggs. "Clark is one of the best shooters I've ever seen. He can flat out shoot."

Rulon Harris, a 6-1 graduate of Detroit Mumford and a transfer from Mott CC, is "a tough kid who will compete. He's already committed to University of Detroit (Mercy)."

Briggs is also looking for some big things from Medunjanin, who's gotten tougher and has improved his perimeter shooting.

There is a question mark in the front court. "We have to find a 5 (post) man," said Briggs. At present, there's a trio of players vying for the position, and Briggs will use them all: Yaku Moton-Spruill, a 6-8, 260-pound sophomore from Westland John Glenn; Justin Fiori, 6-9 and 260 out of Utica Eisenhowser; and Carl Muhammad, a 6-6 Detroit Redford grad.

"If one of them can step up," said Briggs. "If we can get 20 points and 12 rebounds (a game) out of that position, we'll have a chance to go out and compete.

"We do have size, we have some wide bodies. If we can get something out of the inside game, we've got a chance."

Others to watch are 6-3 guard Julius Austin, from Baldwin; 6-5 swing player Ronald Dorsey, from Detroit Pershing; and 6-1 guard Gary Johnson, from Wayne Memorial; and Ryan Celeskey, 6-2 guard from Redford Catholic Central.

One player who won't be around to watch is one of SC's most talented players: Delvar Barrett, 6-7 and 280 pounds from Cooley. Although technically Barrett is eligible, Briggs wants to see some academic progress before he puts him in the lineup.

The Ocelots, who have their home-opener at 7:30 p.m. Monday against the Siena Heights junior varsity, isn't alone in the drastic change department.

The conference itself has a new alignment, with the addition of Kirtland CC in Roscommon. The Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference will be divided into North and South divisions.

In the North, there will be Mott, Kirtland, Alpena, St. Clair County and Delta; in the South will be SC, Henry Ford, Macomb, Oakland and Wayne County. Teams will play divisional rivals twice and other division teams once, trimming the number of conference games from 16 last year to 13 this season.

A team to watch is Mott, as usual.

Another team to watch will be SC — as usual.

Smarty Party honors CC's top scholars

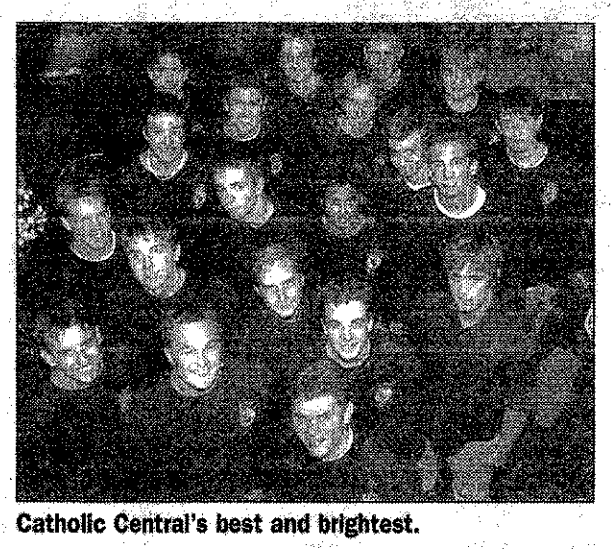
BY STACY JENKINS
STAFF WRITER
sjenkins@oe.homecomm.net

Some play in the band, some play sports, some have part-time jobs and some do all of the above.

But what sets a group of 21 seniors from Detroit Catholic Central High School apart is their academic success.

The school and the community celebrated the unprecedented number of students who achieved National Merit Semifinalist honors during a Smarty Party at Buddy's Pizza in Livonia recently.

Among the students was Canton's Daniel Cepela.



Catholic Central's best and brightest.

Each of the students scored in the top 1 percent nationally on the preliminary SAT test, which they took when they were juniors to prepare for college entrance exams.

Keith Szymanski and Scott Bowling, both Redford Township residents, were among the top scholars.

Szymanski, 17, plays the alto saxophone in CC's marching and symphonic band and works part-time at Buddy's Pizza. With a 4.3 grade point average, he hopes to attend the University of Michigan to study business. Paying attention in class and studying are key to his academic success.

Bowling, 17, has a 4.4-grade point average while juggling sports and playing the tuba in the marching and symphonic band. He hopes to study economics at the University of Michigan.

"My parents and my teachers have really pushed me to achieve a level of success of which I'm capable," said Bowling.

The trick to good grades for Livonia resident Paul Hagan is keeping pace with the workload.

"Just making sure I do my homework and keep up with everything and trying not to get behind," Hagan said.

Apparently, it's working. Hagan has a 4.5-grade point average and hopes to attend Notre Dame to major in engineering.

The teaching staff is the driving force behind the academic success of the Catholic Central students, said Adam Ralko, 17, of Livonia, who holds a 4.7 grade point average.

"The teaching staff at CC is of a higher caliber than you would expect at a high school," Ralko said.

Involved in student government, volunteer work, intramural sports and the math and Spanish clubs, Ralko hopes to attend either Duke University or Johns Hopkins to study medicine.

Being smart comes easy for Eric Olson, 17, of Livonia.

"I have a photographic memory," he said. "Facts are easy for me."

Olson, who has a 4.3-grade point average, hopes to attend either Boston College or Northwestern University to study broadcasting or communications.

Staying cool is the key to Joe Galea's academic success.

The 17-year-old Livonia resident has a 3.95-grade point average and is captain of the national champion quiz bowl team. He hopes to study economics at the University of Florida.

"My secret is to not stress out too much," he said. "I just try to keep it all in perspective and not get too wrapped up in school work, because if you do that, you don't have time for your friends and family."

Mark Kehres, 17, from Livonia, said staying focused is the key.

"You have to keep a goal in mind and work toward it," Kehres said.

He has a 4.0-grade point average, is involved in student council and was on the quiz bowl team. He hopes to study history at the University of Michigan.

It's a combination of things that have contributed to Daniel Cepela's success. The 17-year-old Canton resident maintains a 4.0-grade point average while doing volunteer work and sports. He hopes to study medicine at the University of Michigan.

"My secret is hard work, lots of studying, quality teachers and support," said Cepela.

Keith Lukasik, 18, of Plymouth, said it's pretty simple.

"I just do my work," he said.

Lukasik has a 4.8-grade point average while being involved in student council, varsity soccer, Science Olympiad and Spanish Club. He hopes to attend the University of Pennsylvania to study bio-medical engineering.

There's a little luck involved in academic success, said Sean Abraham, 17, of Plymouth.

"I'm just lucky to be smart, I guess, and to have great teachers," Abraham said.

Carrying a 3.8-grade point average, Abraham also plays varsity football and is involved in the Varsity Club and the Young Republican Club. He hopes to study medicine at the University of Michigan.

Enjoy the woods at Woods of White Lake

A variety of floor plans and a location in the heart of Oakland County near good transportation arteries make Woods of White Lake an attractive buy.

Cohen Associates is building detached condominiums on 21 acres off Bogie Lake Road about a half-mile south of M-59 in White Lake Township.

"We only have 29 lots surrounded by woodlands and wetlands all on half-acre or acre parcels," said DiAnne Hagan, sales representative.

"You have access to all the major areas," she added. "M-59 gives you access to U.S.-23. We're across the street from Alpine Ski Resort, which adds to the country charm."

"There are deer here," said Laurie Rakestraw, marketing director for Cohen. "I love this site. It's country with nice large lots. Shopping's here."

"All but one lot has a walk-out or daylight basement," Hagan said. "We're a semi-custom builder. We're willing to move walls, enlarge a house."

"During the grand opening, we had many, many people come in and tell us what great prices we have," Rakestraw said.

"I've been with Cohen almost eight years," Hagan said. "I think this is the best site he's done. It's surrounded by woods. It's private. It's small.

Sturbridge: This colonial of nearly 3,000 square feet features four bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths and lots of interesting angles.

Lots of windows

"Larry (Cohen) loves windows," she said. "All his homes have a lot of windows. When people come into the homes, they're amazed at what they see inside – windows and the use of space we have."

"They're livable," Rakestraw said.

Todd Buck is the building superintendent for Cohen at Woods of White Lake.

"I love doing changes," he said. "Even subtle little details add a lot of character. The openness of the floor plans looks like you have that much more home. The complexity of these houses is architecturally pleasing."

Cohen offers eight floor plans – six colonials and two with first-floor masters.

They range in price from $329,500 for 2,558 square feet to $389,500 for 3,338 square feet. The high and the low are both colonials with four bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths.

All floor plans at Woods of White Lake include at base price three-car garage, first-floor laundry, basement, fireplace and separate tub and shower in the master.

A double over, cooktop, microwave and dishwasher are included in the kitchen.

Buyers have a choice of wood or ceramic flooring in the foyer, hallway, half bath and kitchen/ nook, with carpeting provided throughout the rest of the house.

Brick, cement siding and dimensional shingles are primary exterior materials.

Look over model

The model, the Sturbridge, is a colonial of 2,951 square feet with interesting angles.

The home features a two-story foyer, living room with sloped ceiling, dining area set off with a flatter ceiling, kitchen/ nook with island, family room and den on the main floor.

All four bedrooms are upstairs.

The master contains a volume ceiling, walk-in closet and two-sink vanity. The other three bedrooms are served by a second full bath.

The Sturbridge carries a base price of $354,500. The model has upgrades including finished basement, air conditioning, deck and two-way fireplace in the master that will add to the price.

Homes in Woods of White Lake will have individual water well and septic tanks. There will be sidewalks. The community is within the Huron Valley school boundaries.

All but one available lot has a price premium, which ranges from $4,500 to $44,000.

The property tax rate is $26.56 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $366,000 home would pay about $4,900 the first year.

The annual association fee is projected at $200.

The sales office/model at Woods of White Lake, (248) 889-1714, are open noon to 6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Custom Homes Feature Luxury Amenities

"Distinctive Details"

The basic fundamental of all Cambridge Homes' custom homes is superior craftsmanship; from the solid foundation to the hand-rubbed finishes, only the highest quality materials and fixtures are selected. Attention is paid to the smallest of details, nothing is overlooked. The result: the home you've always imagined, a home of comfort, style and elegance.

Now, Cambridge Homes is collaborating with some of the finest architects and interior designers in the area to work with homebuyers in designing one-of-a-kind homes for their newest development. Bellagio is Oakland County's premier gated community of custom homes. Each unique home reflects the personality of its owners, creating a prestigious neighborhood rich with architectural diversity.

After years of appreciating old-world craftsmanship, Mark and Eric Guidobono of Cambridge Homes are bringing the grandeur and classic beauty found in European architecture to Bellagio. Distinctive elements, including carved lime-stone facades, blacksmith-crafted ironwork accents, and leaded glass windows are reminiscent of magnificent country estates. Modern luxuries are available as well: A home theater, wine cellar, solarium, and indoor pool are all possible amenities in your Bellagio home.

Over the past 20 years, Cambridge Homes has become an expert at making the design/build experience exciting and positive by focusing on homeowner participation. "We've made a commitment to individuality, quality and creativity," says Mark. As evident in their previous custom home projects and in their Woods of Edenderry development in Northville, these are not your average home-builders, they are inspired craftsmen. Bellagio is certain to be their ultimate accomplishment.

Housing starts unexpectedly strong for month of September

In a surprisingly strong showing, starts of new housing units rose 1.7 percent in September to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.574 million, the Census Bureau reported.

"The housing numbers for September were better than expected, although some rebound in multifamily starts seemed inevitable," said Bruce Smith, president of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) and a home builder.

"But it's important to note that permits for new construction, which can be an indicator of future activity, decreased by 3 percent, including a 4 percent setback for single-family units."

"Looking at the big picture, it appears that the housing market was flat in the third quarter following a strong first half," Smith said. "We expect about a 10 percent decline in housing activity in the fourth quarter before the market rebounds early next year."

Despite the anticipated decline in housing activity in the aftermath of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, Smith remained optimistic about the long-term outlook for housing. "We will take a hit over the next several months, but the fundamentals of the market are sound. Interest rates are around 6.5 percent for fixed-rate mortgages and close to 5 percent for adjustable-rate mortgages, and the underlying demand is strong."

Smith stressed that the September starts and permit figures reflect builder behavior, not consumer actions. "The starts numbers show that builders were still in gear in September, and the permits suggest that they were seeing demand drop off as the month progressed," he said. "This is borne out by NAHB builder polls which indicated positive conditions immediately after the attack, but showed decreased consumer demand and deteriorating market conditions by the early part of October."

Reflecting this decline, NAHB's Housing Market Index, which is considered a leading indicator for single-family housing, dropped 8 points in October, Smith said. "The HMI, which was conducted in the first two weeks of October, recorded decreases in every factor that it measures: sales of new homes, sales expectations for the next six months and prospective buyers."

Plan renovations carefully

To borrow from an old quote, what's good for homeownership is good for the country, and people are jumping on the remodeling bandwagon in record numbers.

"Home construction and remodeling are critical bellwethers of the economy," says Richard Roll, president of American Homeowners Association (AHA). "The good news is homeowners are investing at record rates in their homes. But consumers should evaluate their budget and needs before making that investment."

If you want to improve or expand your living spaces, you're not alone. The U.S. Census reported remodeling expenditures were up seven percent in 2000 to almost $153 billion nationally.

Spending on big-ticket replacement items, such as windows, roofing, siding, heaters and air conditioners, was up 15 percent, too.

Two major factors are driving the current remodeling boom. First, most homes in America were built in the 1970s or earlier, and our aging housing stock needs a facelift. Second, more homeowners have the equity, income and yearning to improve their homes.

Just remember to reflect on your budget and long-term plans before getting started. How long do you plan to live in your home?

If you plan to move in the next five years, think twice about spending big. At a minimum, figure out if a major remodel will pay off at resale.

Talk to an appraiser or real estate agent to find out if a major improvement such as installing a new bath or addition will be consistent with other homes in the area.

According to the Census Bureau, spending on maintenance and repair jobs "held virtually steady" while spending shot up on "largely discretionary addition and alteration projects."

But that doesn't mean home repair and maintenance aren't just as important. Unless you keep your home well maintained, replacing major systems and repairing your home's structure will end up costing you more in the end.

Winterize your home with these easy tips

(NAPSA) – Cold temperatures and varying amounts of snow and ice can really take a toll on a home. Appliances such as water heaters and furnaces are forced to run more often and at a harder pace. Gaps and unsealed spaces are more prominent when winter winds cause cold drafts, and homes are generally just colder in the winter, which cause outrageous heating bills. With additional insulation however, it's possible to maintain a comfortable temperature inside your home. Insulation also keeps your utilities functional year after year, while reducing your heating bills. With a few simple ideas, you and your home can be warm and secure from the blustery winter weather.

There are a number of simple ways to cost-effectively insulate and winterize your home. Try the following in order to protect your home from the harsh effects of winter weather:

■ Insulate your windows. Window insulation is a quick and easy fix that keeps the heat in and the cold out while keeping your energy costs down. While window insulation is notorious for difficult installation, new innovative roll-on kits have proven to be hassle-free.

■ Cover the air conditioner. In order to keep your air conditioner intact each year, it helps to buy a cover that protects the unit from winter weather. By covering the air conditioner, less moisture comes into contact with the unit, therefore decreasing the chance of rust or malfunction. The cover also prevents cold air from entering around the seam of the unit.

■ Cover outdoor faucets. Covering outdoor faucets keeps them insulated and prevents freezing. Faucet covers are easy to assemble and are just another way to winterize your home and save money.

■ Wrap pipes. Prevent pipes from freezing by applying inexpensive, insulated pipe wrap. By making this small effort, you can minimize the frustration that comes from frozen pipes either bursting or not working.

Thomas Ervin
Let's Talk About Real Estate

"Is It The Right House?"

When you begin looking at homes, you have high hopes that you will find the "perfect house." As ideal and understandable as these feelings are, the house you eventually buy will not be perfect. This brings up the question, "If I won't find the perfect house, how will I know if it is the right one for me?" Here is a checklist of thoughts that may make your buying decision easier:

Is the house in the right location?

Location is one of those things that you can't change after you buy the house. Is it the school system you want? How about the surrounding homes? Do they support the price you are paying for your home?

Does it have the basics you need?

Bedrooms and bathrooms define the type of house it is. These two features also put a property into one price range or another. Most buyers know what their bedroom and bathroom requirements are now and may be in the future. It is ideal to buy a home that already has the bedrooms and bathrooms you need? These can be costly additions if needed in the future.

Does the house have any major functional drawbacks?

Some homes have some inherent problems that cause them to be a questionable investment. Some large family homes, as an example, are located on very small lots.

Does It Just Feel Right?

Don't buy a property that you dread coming home to each day. Does it appeal to you in its present condition or can you afford to put it in shape so that it can be an enjoyable place to live? Buy your next home with your head and your heart.

Home works well on a small lot

Designed for a narrow lot, the Danforth is a compact and informal home, economical to build as well as to heat.

A comfortable large vaulted great room dominates the family living area. Its fireplace, tucked into an angle near the kitchen, heats both rooms, and the hearth is wide enough to warm the whole family at once in winter.

The kitchen has two dining areas, one for formal dining and the other for daily meals. And it has an eating bar for snacks, as well. The dining room, to the rear, is open to the great room and has double glass doors that open onto a small deck.

Some families may prefer to reverse the functions, designating the front-facing room for formal dining. If left as a nook, the family sewing machine might also find a welcome here.

A front-facing room on the other side of the entryway can be used as a home office, study, media room, hobby room, or bedroom. Amenities in the Danforth's master suite include a walk-in closet and a dressing area with two vanities. A pocket door separates this space from the water closet, providing additional privacy.

Utilities, along with extra counter and storage space, are tucked into a passageway that leads from the Danforth's garage into the house.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $25 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, OR 97402. Please specify the Danforth 10-004 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring more than 350 home plans is available for $15. For more information call (800) 634-0123.

Mortgage broker can be home loan specialist

Pilcowitz

When we need an insurance policy, we shop around for the best coverage at a competitive price.

When making out a new will, the lawyer must be sharp, and someone we trust.

It's no different when choosing the professional who handles our home mortgage. The stakes are high. For most Americans, the home remains the bulk – or at least a large proportion – of their total assets and outstanding debt obligation.

From the consumer's standpoint, these are the best of times. A period of generally stable and attractive interest rates, combined with an expanding financial services industry, has extended home ownership to more and more Americans.

At the same time, however, fewer people fit into pre-defined or traditional lending categories.

There are more single heads of household, as well as individuals with non-traditional income like shared pensions or divorce settlements, forced job relocations or unexpected and extraordinary medical expenses.

■ A period of generally stable and attractive interest rates, combined with an expanding financial services industry, has extended home ownership to more and more Americans.

Also, as a result of recent economic conditions, consumers may have incurred extra debt or even missed a credit card payment here or there, which can pose a challenge when applying for a loan.

To help navigate today's complex lending environment and find ways to responsibly qualify more people for loans, a new specialist has evolved – the mortgage broker. Much like your insurance agent or attorney, the mortgage broker is dedicated to representing your best interests.

He or she will have access to several sources of money and mortgage programs, including ones for those who don't fit into traditional loan guidelines. In fact, there are approximately 30,000 mortgage broker operations across the nation, and mortgage brokers are involved with more than half of all residential loans originated in the U.S.

Serving as the liaison between the borrower and the lender, a broker creates an efficient process by coordinating the detailed application process, including the extensive disclosure requirements that must be completed. The broker then counsels the consumer on available loan package choices so the borrower can select the right loan for their needs.

Since the broker is not compensated unless and until the loan closes, the broker has the ultimate incentive to provide the best possible service to the borrower.

Brokers can shop lenders – both conforming and non-conforming – much more effectively than consumers. Brokers receive price information daily and know the features of transactions that affect price. Beyond having relationships with numerous lenders, brokers can find lenders who specialize in various market niches that many traditional lenders avoid.

Mortgage brokers, therefore, are especially helpful when people have special situations, such as past credit problems, first time buyers without a long work history, corporate relocations, self-employed borrowers, those seeking "jumbo" loans (larger than $265,000) and those who are simply too busy to shop for the best mortgage on their own.

Rates and fees are important. But so are the intangibles. Hire your mortgage broker carefully, and you will spend your home dollar wisely.

Here are some things to ask when "hiring" a mortgage broker:

■ How does the pre-qualification program work? Does it seem reasonable and realistic? Watch out for those brokers over anxious to qualify you for "too much house."

■ What underwriters (equity sources) does the broker regularly work with and why? What types of mortgages do they write? Are they well versed in both conforming and non-conforming lending resources?

■ Does the broker handle FHA and VA mortgages? Ask what special mortgage programs you might qualify for.

■ How much loan-to-value may be available based on a preliminary review?

■ What is the broker's fee? Make sure you receive a good faith estimate that details all fees.

■ Who will service your mortgage? If it's a third party, ask about the notice procedure when your mortgage "changes hands" in the secondary investment marketplace.

■ Can the mortgage broker help you fit the mortgage into your overall economic goals?

■ Are you comfortable with the broker, their organization, their staff, and as a person? Do you feel the broker is as knowledgeable as the other financial professionals you work with – accountant, stockbroker and insurance agent?

Bob Pilcowitz is president and CEO of Southfield-based Franklin Mortgage Funding, a wholesale non-conforming mortgage lender. Franklin Mortgage Funding works with more than 200 brokers statewide. He can be reached at (248) 799-4000.

Youth conductor comes full circle

The Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan probably doesn't have a more enthusiastic cheerleader than Derek Weller. He began playing with the youth orchestra back in the 1970s and today serves as music director of the nonprofit organization as well as conductor of the Livonia Youth Philharmonic Orchestra.

Founded with the goal of furthering musical talent and knowledge, LYPM consists of four orchestral levels based on students' abilities. The Philharmonic Orchestra, the highest degree of achievement, requires young musicians to have a minimum of four years playing experience, including band and orchestra. But students with as little as six months of training are able to play in the Advanced and Concert Strings. However, all are required to take private music lessons and participate in their school music programs if they exist.

"The Livonia Youth Philharmonic gives students an opportunity to play in a group larger than a public school and was first founded by public school teachers who wanted to have an organization for serious students in public and private schools," said Weller, principal bass with the Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra.

What: Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan perform the first concert of the 2001-2002 season
When: 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 17
Where: Stevenson High School, 33500 Six Mile, west of Farmington Road, Livonia
Tickets: $6, $3 seniors/students. Call (734) 591-7649 or visit the Web site at www.LYPM.org

Weller, who travels once a week to teach bass at the Interlochen Arts Academy, first became interested in music at around age 6. Weiler was inspired by his vocal teacher at Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church, Shirley Harden. Her grandson Wesley Harden now plays under Weller's direction in the orchestra.

"The Livonia Youth Philharmonic is important because these students are the cream of the crop," said Weller. "They're serious to get up on a Saturday morning to start rehearsing at 9 a.m."

David Bernard is one of the dedicated LYPM members. The 14-year-old trumpet player is now in his fourth year with Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan and currently plays with the Philharmonic Orchestra. He began playing trumpet in fifth grade because he wanted to follow in the footsteps of his father and grandfather, both of whom are trumpeters.

Bernard's now a student at Holmes Middle School in Livonia. Although he lives in Livonia, it is not a requisite to join LYPM. Students from as far away as Wixom and Milford play with the youth music organization.

"I wanted somewhere else to play besides the school band, to enrich myself," said Bernard. "It's been great.

Walking through the latest exhibition at the Detroit Institute of Arts brings to life the history of the city, literally. Joseph Wesner encourages visitors to experience rowing down the river as French explorers did 300 years ago. Videos placed on the floor and wall ease onlookers into a state of tranquility as they watch the single oar moving through the water.

Mike Kelley and the Destroy All Monsters Collective lure viewers into the Great Hall with murals of pop culture figures like John Sinclair and Johnny Ginger while Scott Hocking and Clinton Snider revisit the city's past through relics taken from abandoned buildings.

Artists Take on Detroit: Projects for the Tricentennial takes visitors on a roller coaster of emotion, especially those who have lived here many years. For those who have not, the journey reveals the dark days during the 1967 riots in a structure Tyree Guyton constructed on site as well as recent bright spots of people helping people in an installation Riches of Detroit by Deborah Grotfeldt and Tricia Ward.

Organized by the museum, the exhibit features a total of 10 installations by 14 artists, all with their own views of the city. Visitors can get to know the artists previous to seeing the exhibit by going to an online catalog at www.dia.org.

"The title Artists Take on Detroit is kind of a pun," said MaryAnn Wilkinson, DIA curator of modern and contemporary art. "It's artists stepping up to the challenge. It's their opinions, attitudes, their take on the city."

"It seems like Tyree Guyton adds stuff everyday," said Wilkinson of Open House, a collection of posters, shoes and dolls housed in a see-through structure.

"It's a very interesting piece, a departure from Tyree's work with the Heidelberg Project where he works with an existing structure. Here he worked with Youth Build Detroit to construct a frame for a house that was built in sections then put together in the museum."

Guyton incorporates sound into the structure. Visitors can listen to him talking about the history of the city while perusing posters from past political campaigns alongside one that reads "Got Roaches? for an exterminating company. In addition to the July 19, 1967 issue of the Detroit Free Press displayed in the house, headlines tell of accomplishments such as man landing on the moon.

"It's the most overtly political piece he's ever done and the one that's sculpture," said Wilkinson. "Visitors are amazed. They spend a lot of time reading and listening to what's going on inside. That's the nature of installation art – to spend time."

Visitors could spend an entire day treasuring the images in Relics. At least that's what Hocking and Snider were hoping for when they first thought about assembling the 2-foot-square boxes lining the walls. Inside, found objects tell the story of a once vibrant city. Hocking spent several years living in Detroit while attending College for Creative Studies (formerly Center for Creative Studies). Both artists now have studios in Hamtramck where they assembled the boxes containing toy soldiers, duct work, old pop cans, and a plastic rocking horse.

"It's an archaeological reference to objects created by man – a building, painted wall, tools gathering rust for decades," said Hocking, a graduate of Stevenson High School in Livonia. "Back at CCS I started using found objects because that was my environment and I didn't have any money for art supplies. I began collecting objects in March by going to places where homeless wouldn't even venture, but I see the beauty in them.

OPERA

MOT brings Armenian tragedy to stage for second time

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER
lchomin@oe.homecomm.net

Gerald Papasian reminisces about the first time he directed Anoush when the Michigan Opera Theatre performed the Western world premiere in 1981. He's back in Detroit to stage the Armenian tragedy, this time in Armenian, and that's no easy task even though he's working with the same conductor, Raffi Armenian.

What: Michigan Opera Theatre presents the Armenian opera Anoush
When: 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 14, and Friday-Saturday, Nov. 16-17, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11 and 18.
Where: Detroit Opera House, 1526 Broadway
Tickets: $18-$105. Call (313) 237-SING or online at www.MichiganOpera.org

The Michigan Opera Theatre production about two star-crossed lovers continues to Sunday, Nov. 18, at the Detroit Opera House. Armenian soprano Hasmik Papian sings the title role. Canadian soprano Aline Kutan alternates as Anoush.

Papian debuted with the American and Metropolitan Opera as Aida in 1999 under the direction of Placido Domingo. Kutan recently sang the role of The Queen of the Night in the New York City Opera production of The Magic Flute.

"It's tough," said Papasian, whose parents live in Southfield. "Twenty years ago everyone knew exactly what they were saying because it was presented in English. Now it's more difficult. There is more time dedicated to explaining things.

"But for me being an Armenian, besides the fact I love opera and directing opera, I love being able to see the opera staged with the best singers."

In addition to presenting Anoush in Armenian, Papasian is working on an unfamiliar stage. Last time, the opera was performed at Music Hall when Michigan Opera Theatre was just a fledgling company.

"It's like a homecoming," said Papasian. "The challenge in doing it 20 years later is the world has changed, but it's very exciting, a new challenge.

"It's not a well-known opera apart from Armenians who have traveled to Armenia, so there's the obstacle of presenting an opera not known but one I think the audience is familiar with. It's a classical story of how hatred destroys young innocent love, almost like Romeo and Juliet, where two families fight. Set in the Caucasian Mountains of Armenia, it's a sad tale. They have very rigid codes of honor. Anoush's brother and lover do a wrestling match. The lover wins the match and from that moment onward the brother swears revenge and eventually kills him. I'm trying to tell the story through the point of Anoush, almost like a flashback through the point of her madness."

The story is a favorite of Alice Haidostian of Bloomfield Hills. She initiated the first production 20 years ago by inviting MOT director David DiChiera to breakfast. Haidostian discovered Anoush while researching opera for a master's degree in music literature at University of Michigan School of Music. Before long she was playing a recording of Anoush for DiChiera, then accepting the responsibility of raising

The music selection is good. I went to Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp the last two years and was named best trumpet player in my section and outstanding camper for the symphony orchestra."

Julia Kurtyka believes Bernard has advanced so quickly on trumpet because of his training with the youth orchestra, tailored to students in grades 1 to 12. Kurtyka, a violinist with the Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra, conducts LYPM's advanced and concert strings, which consists of students from age 8 to 14.

"We teach them how to play in an ensemble, to become aware of what's going on around them, to work together as a team," said Kurtyka. "But we also like to have a lot of fun."

Kurtyka makes teaching fun not only with LYPM but for her private students.

"If they start with the Suzuki method by first grade can play really well. With Suzuki there's more parent involvement. There are games and learning by rote, what you can hear," said Kurtyka.

"As far as students in LYPM, they have a chance to interact with each other, to be exposed to fairly good music. Very often the music is quite advanced."

Hard at work: The Concert Strings rehearse for a Saturday, Nov. 17 concert.

But don't take Kurtyka's word for it. The Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan gives the first concert of their 2001-2002 season 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 17, at Stevenson High School in Livonia. It is one of several opportunities for the young musicians to perform in the community.

$40,000 to put on the first MOT production. Until her husband suffered a stroke in 1989, Haidostian had actively volunteered with organizations such as the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Detroit Science Center. Raising money was nothing new to her.

"The sound of the music is so gorgeous," said Haidostian, chairman of the fund-raising committee Armenians for Anoush. Haidostian led the two-year campaign to raise more than $400,000 for the 2001 production.

"At the time I loved opera and when MOT got going at Music Hall I imagined one day sitting there, lights dimmed and the orchestra playing the Overture to Anoush, the most famous opera of Armenia. Everyone knows about the 1915 massacre, but Armenians have been persecuted for centuries. This year we're celebrating the 1700th anniversary of the adoption of Christianity as the state religion, and we're still here and you can point to a country named Armenia and it's still there."

It was that pride in Armenia and Hovhannes Toumanian (1869-1923) that bolstered Haidostian through eight-hour days of soliciting funds over the phone. Anoush is based on Toumanian's poem of the same name. But an Armenian heritage is not a prerequisite for enjoying the opera.

Derek Weller, principal bass of the Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra, has enjoyed every minute of rehearsing Anoush.

"I love the music," said Weller, who also is music director of the Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan. "I'd never played it before. It's exciting to play a new opera; it's an exciting adventure. This opera in particular is very different. It uses a very different harmonic language. It gives it a different Middle Eastern sound."

"I hope visitors are overwhelmed with visual history, immediately overwhelmed with the present, our vision of things whether we're talking about Detroit or something universal, for people to walk in and be effected in some way. Everybody can find at least one box that relates to their memory. We'd like to make some kind of connection, for them to be moved or inspired by a piece."

Depending on the amount of time they invest, visitors will leave Mike Kelley's Blackout installation with knowledge of how environment shapes an artist. Kelley revisits the days he spent growing up in Westland by creating an 11-foot sculpture of astronaut John Glenn after a work at his old high school. More than 20 racks of newspaper clippings tell of daily life in Westland, Garden City, Livonia and surrounding communities from 1968 to 1972.

"It's playful," said Kelley from his studio in Los Angeles. "That's what made me and where the works come from. It's about the imprinting school and community does on a child. The sculpture took three-quarters of a year. I hired a guy to take me to every island on the Detroit River. I wanted to do something I'd never done, to visit someplace I'd never seen. I went exploring and discovered all the ceramics on an island which was probably a dump in the 1920s and 30s.

"Most Detroiters are proud of their city. It has a lot of energy, good things and bad things. Different viewers form different opinions. It's an inner trip. They can flash back by going though all the newspaper articles or just look at it as here's a big piece of mosaic sculpture."

Bloomfield Township sculptor Joseph Wesner wants visitors to relate to Voyageurs as if one of the early French explorers. Or they can just walk on water. Wesner's floor video of the Detroit River is almost dizzying to visitors entering the installation.

An oarsmen for eight years during high school and college, Wesner comes to the water-based city from a different perspective.

"It's an interesting experience – you sit backwards to go forward and have no point of orientation," said Wesner who teaches sculpture at College for Creative Studies. "The oar is a tool like a chisel in your hand.

"In Voyageurs the passage and journey relates to Cadillac's discovery (of Detroit). I try to make it a very, very direct experience, for the viewer to become the water, the boat and the oar, all those things to reference the passage through time and space. French explorers paddled those very long canoes holding 15-16 rowers. It's about the generous relationship to this idea of passage, being transported themselves, moving in life, soothed into this relationship whether it's through meditation or yoga or whatever they do to get into this stream of life."

Whether it's Wesner's moving installation or Michael Hall's unconventional take on forgotten artists from the Great Lake region in the DIA's collection, the exhibit brings a sense of pride to Detroiters.

Hall forces viewers to learn about artists not by looking at their work but personal history and his connection to them by facing the paintings against the wall. He wants us not to forget the regionalist painters in our own backyard.

Petah Coyne talks about the city's Irish Catholic roots by covering silk flowers with dripping wax in the haunting Altar Mary.

"Every artist took the show seriously and rose to the occasion," said Wilkinson. "It's wonderful, thoughtful, creative. When they talk about Detroit they don't talk about the crime, race, all the negative aspects. Relics is like stepping into someone's private workshop. It's organized. Shape, color, form becomes something beautiful. It's history and remembering through objects."

At least two of the installations deal with contemporary issues though. Ronit Eisenbach and dance professor Peter Sparling go back to school in the community-based Fast Forward, Play Back to connect to the children at Dossin Elementary in northwest Detroit while Deborah Grotfeldt and Tricia Ward worked with the community to enrich the students at Catherine Ferguson Academy in Detroit by building an art park. Documentary photographs show the stages of the project including the benches that were created from hay bails by covering the top surfaces with plaster.

"They taught girls to build furniture, to go back to the land and prioritize. All the hay was grown at the school," said Wilkinson.

"All these artists come to the notion of Detroit with such a different perspective. It comes out in how unique each project is from the other, the approach. People would be amazed at how many ways there are of talking about Detroit. There's such a fresh vision and attitude that comes through the show."

Juvenile furniture business is a brand new world

New concept: Pottery Barn Kids, an interior decorating store for children's rooms, recently opened at the Somerset Collection in Troy.

Martha Stewart probably kicks herself every time she sees a Pottery Barn.

In 1999, the home decor retailer launched Pottery Barn Kids, a catalog of fashion-forward furniture and accessories for children's rooms.

A year later, the company rolled out the first Pottery Barn Kids store, a bright and airy interior decorating showroom with appeal to parents and children alike.

In October, the retailer opened an 8,000-square-foot Pottery Barn Kids at the Somerset Collection in Troy, along with several other stores elsewhere in the nation. That's despite fears about the slowing economy's effect on the retail sector, which tells you a lot about juvenile furniture and the evolving home decor business.

"Pottery Barn Kids really believes that retailers were missing the kids' markets," said Geoff Wissman, vice president and manager, home goods at Retail Forward, a retail industry research and analysis firm in Ohio. "And I'm hard-pressed to think of any specialty retailers that really focused on kids."

Besides, several retailers have followed Pottery Barn Kids' lead. Both Sears and the Bombay Company recently debuted an Internet site and catalog of home merchandise for kids, said Wissman.

Is it a coincidence Ethan Allen and Warren-based Art Van Furniture, which has 28 stores in Michigan, have beefed up offerings and display merchandising in the juvenile furniture category?

"Our research shows there's an increased demand for youth furniture," said Tom DeCorte, vice president of merchandising for Art Van. "We've always had a good assortment of children's furniture in our stores, but as we remodel, we've given additional space to the youth category and improved displays."

DeCorte even describes the youth furniture department at the retailer's recently remodeled Westland store as "a major addition." Art Van recently started offering a line of Harry Potter furniture, too.

But retailers' belief in the strength of juvenile furniture has more to do with tapping an untapped market, than meeting an overflowing demand for children's bedroom sets, said Wissman at Retail Forward.

"A lot of the people in the traditional furniture store industry ... were basically selling the same thing – functional furniture but not overly fashionable," he said, explaining why specialty furniture retailers like Pottery Barn and Crate & Barrel have come on the scene and been so successful. "There's been a shift in the market," said Wissman.

One has to wonder what's next: Furniture stores for pets?

Interesting tidbits from the Indiana State Museum collection

BY MEGAN JONES
SPECIAL WRITER

While the Indiana State Museum's collection includes thousands of items that you would expect — including fossils, art, clothing and furniture — the archives also are home to a number of bizarre artifacts. Some of the most unusual items housed there are two fleas dressed in blue and pink outfits, tree trunks embedded with Civil War shrapnel and hairballs from the stomachs of cattle and other livestock.

"In the 19th and early 20th centuries, museums typically were repositories for strange objects, mostly because collection strategies didn't exist," said Ron Richards, chief curator of natural history at the museum. "The Indiana State Museum was no different back then. As a result, an array of interesting items has become a part of our collection."

If fleas and hairballs aren't your thing, it won't be hard to find something that interests you from the rest of the museum collection's more than 400,000 artifacts.

The new Indiana State Museum, set to open next May, will use thousands of artifacts to teach visitors a comprehensive lesson on Indiana's arts, culture and natural science dating back 4 billion years, and looking forward to the future. For many of the artifacts, it will be the first time they have been taken out of storage for display.

"The current museum can display approximately 1,000 artifacts at any given time. The new museum will allow us to exhibit more than 10 times that amount," said Dale Ogden, curator of Americana for the Indiana State Museum. "In particular the five Indiana Treasures exhibit cases on the first floor of the new museum will allow us to have a continual display of all kinds of artifacts that will rotate regularly, if not constantly."

A little bit of everything

Each of the artifacts that will be displayed in the new museum's exhibits has its own tale to tell. For example, there's a piece of wreckage from a Japanese plane with part of the Rising Sun symbol still visible. The chunk of metal was donated to the museum several years ago by crewmembers from the USS Indiana after the Japanese plane crashed into their ship in 1944.

There also are thousands of bones and teeth of rhinoceros, camels, peccaries (a prehistoric pig) and other rodents that museum curators unearthed with the help of local volunteers during a 1998 archaeological dig in Grant County. The bones, believed to be between 4 and 6 million years old, are the oldest known mammal remains found in Indiana to date.

Interestingly, the museum's military collection includes a pistol from Gen. Kosciusko, the Revolutionary War general and aide to Gen. George Washington. Kosciusko gave the gun as a gift to Miami Chief Little Turtle who then passed it on to Chief Richardville who gave it to Hyacinth LaSalle, a noted trader in Indiana.

■ 'Sam DeVincent's bequest is a priceless contribution to the preservation and future interpretation of Indiana's musical heritage.'

Dale Ogden
curator of Americana for the Indiana State Museum

If learning about Indiana's art history interests you, then you will be happy to know that the Indiana State Museum boasts the largest collection of works by Indiana artists. In addition, the museum has the first known oil painting done in Indiana by artist Lewis Peckham, the largest collection of paintings by Brown County artist T.C. Steele and many contemporary works of art.

But if politics are your cup of tea, you'll be interested in the museum's political collection, which includes more than 5,000 buttons, pins, ribbons, documents and other memorabilia, including a cup and saucer from William Henry Harrison's 1840 campaign.

Treasure hunting

Where do museum curators find all of the artifacts in their collection, you ask? There are a few different ways that treasures make their way from their original owner's attic to the Indiana State Museum collection.

Some people contact the state museum directly about donating their artifacts. That's what Sam DeVincent of Fort Wayne, Ind., did when he agreed to donate about 1,100 original copies of Indiana-related sheet music he had collected, including pieces by a variety of ragtime composers and religious artists from the early 20th century. While the Smithsonian Institution received a large assortment of his collection, DeVincent saved much of the Indiana music for the Indiana State Museum. Curators expect to exhibit 60 sheets of music from this collection at a time, on a rotational basis throughout three or four of the exhibit areas.

"Sam DeVincent's bequest is a priceless contribution to the preservation and future interpretation of Indiana's musical heritage," said Ogden.

Other artifacts are found as a result of the museum curator's detective work. For example, the museum was looking for a symbol of the post-World War II era last year. With the help of references from the Studebaker National Museum in South Bend, Ind., and the Studebaker Club Web site, curators found a 1950 two-door Studebaker Champion "bullet-nose" sedan for sale in Ohio. This vintage automobile is being restored in Nappanee, Ind., and will be part of the new museum's Global Indiana exhibit.

Without a doubt, advancements in technology have made tracking down artifacts easier for the Indiana State Museum. While the Internet helped curators track down the Studebaker automobile, curators also have had success with other online services. In fact, curators recently acquired a first-edition copy of Theodore Dreiser's Sister Carrie from an online dealer. In the book, Dreiser, a Terre Haute, Ind., native, chronicles the dark aspects of city life during a time when many Indiana authors were writing about the "Golden Age" of America. During this "Golden Age of Literature" between 1880 and 1920, only the state of New York produced more published authors than Indiana.

Preserving our past

With so many one-of-a-kind treasures in the collection, museum curators must take great measures to ensure that all artifacts are preserved. To that end, the new museum will include state-of-the-art preservation labs for the artifacts and specimens in the museum's collection.

"We've always 'made do' in our current facility, even if that means using converted bathrooms as conservation cleaning areas," said Peter Lundskow, head conservator for the museum. "It will be nice to have spaces specifically designed for our needs in the new building."

Those conservation and preservation spaces include high-tech lighting, ventilation and temperature controls as well as cutting-edge conservation equipment. The new museum also will have an isolation area available to store contaminated artifacts when they arrive at the facility.

"Our facility has only allowed us to do limited conservation on fabrics and paper items," Lundskow said. "We now will have the space and equipment to do larger artifacts."

The new lab areas are set up to handle washing, cleaning, screening, identifying and cataloging specimens of all shapes and sizes, including mastodont bones, which require special processes to prevent contamination. The collection storage area also will include uniform cabinets and adjustable drawers so all artifacts fit together in one space.

"We can reassemble broken specimens, secure them and then have more time to produce the actual 'science' of what happened on the site," said Richards. "We then can use more of the information for upcoming exhibitions and programs."

Moving day

But before museum curators can take advantage of the new preservation facilities, they need to move the artifacts to the new museum. The current museum will close Jan. 1, 2002, so that museum officials can orchestrate the elaborate move that will involve 400 24-foot-long climate-controlled trucks taking artifacts from the current museum and several local storage facilities to the new museum in White River State Park. Curators will spend the months prior to opening to integrate the artifacts into the new museum's exhibits.

When May 2002 rolls around, we'll get a glimpse of some of the never-seen-before treasures that have been hiding in the "state's attic!"

For more information on how you can donate an artifact to the Indiana State Museum, please call (317) 232-1637.

ADOPT-A-PET

This Week's Featured Pet

This cute pooch named Miles is waiting for you to come to the shelter and adopt him. He is a two-year-old male Beagle who would love to make his new home with you! His last home surrendered him to the shelter when they realized that they didn't have the time to care for a dog. This pooch has a handsome caramel colored spotted white coat and a slender head that loves to swing his floppy ears. He is quite a good listener and loves to explore the outside ground with his twitchy nose. He seems to always find something when he follows his nose! He will make a fun and loving pet to either a family or an individual.

To let this pooch sniff you out as his possible new owner, visit the Michigan Humane Society Westland Shelter.

FOCUS ON WINE

RAY & ELEANOR HEALD

Zinfandel: A red wine that's quite American

Zinfandel is uniquely American and one of the great red wines of the world.

Although its origins are undoubtedly European, its genealogy was lost more than 150 years ago when the vine cuttings were first brought to California. With no comparable European model, Americans have made zinfandel their own.

Wine Picks

With Thanksgiving upcoming on Nov. 22, we recommend celebrating with American wines. You can't get more American than zinfandel.

We've suggested several from Mazzocco in the column. Here are other zinfandels we rated highly: 1999 Limerick Lane $37; 1999 Robert Mondavi Napa Valley $21; 1999 Dry Creek Vineyard Old Vines $21; 1997 Haywood Los Chamizal Vineyard $21; and 1999 Sebastiani "Old Vines" $20.

For dessert: 1999 Dry Creek Vineyard Late Harvest Zinfandel $13/375mL is a full-bodied dessert-style that pleases with a yummy berry bouquet and flavors of black currant, chocolate, and clove.

Zin, as it is frequently called, is a versatile grape and from it winemakers have made claret-style wine, late-harvest dessert-style wine, and of course, white zin. Thanks go to the Trinchero family of Sutter Home Winery in Napa Valley for creating white zinfandel several decades ago when red zinfandel was out of favor with American consumers. Without white zin, hundreds of acres of old vine zinfandel grapes may have been ripped out in favor of chardonnay or cabernet.

In Sonoma County's Dry Creek Valley, zinfandel was first planted by Italian immigrants more than 100 years ago. These marvelous heritage vineyards are still growing healthy grapes and the wineries lucky enough to get the fruit are making stunningly intense and concentrated zinfandels.

Juicy and 'jammy'

Phyllis Zouzounis, winemaker at Mazzocco Vineyards, is one of those talented people who has learned how to deal with this most finicky grape.

She explained, "Zinfandel is so site-specific, vintage-variable, and difficult to get completely ripe, that the wine is rarely easy to make. Yet the rewards are well worth the effort.

"Juicy, jammy, raspberry, and blackberry fruit flavors with hints of pepper and spice are zinfandel's typical signature. Fruit from old vines adds complexity and intensity."

One of Mazzocco's flagship wines is the Dry Creek Valley Zinfandel, a blend of fruit from top vineyards in the best region on earth for this grape.

But Zouzounis' passion for zinfandel is demonstrated in a number of vineyard-designated Mazzocco zins that reveal the variety's multiple personalities and give credit to the dedicated growers who nurture the fruit. Mazzocco honors these growers by adding their name (and sometimes their picture) to the label.

Aged and spiced

The 1997 Mazzocco Zinfandel, Cuneo and Saini Vineyard, Dry Creek Valley $22 is big, rich, and full-bodied with raspberry and blackberry fruit, a character sometimes referred to as bramble bush. The wine was aged 18 months in French oak barrels and two years in the bottle before release. It finishes with a touch of black pepper and spice.

The Cuneo and Saini Vineyard was

Nuts! and enjoy this nutritional food

BY PEGGY MARTINELLI-EVERTS
SPECIAL WRITER

Nuts are a natural, whole food, and a powerhouse of nutrients. They are a delicious addition to just about any recipe – as a part of the main dish, salad, sandwich, dessert or snack. Nuts are nature's convenience food and are easy to carry along for a quick energy-rich snack.

Susan McHale of Farmington frequently uses nuts in cooking. "I love the flavor and texture of nuts," McHale said. "I give a pile of pistachios to each of my kids to crack open. Then, I chop them and stir them into cooked pasta with some broccoli and tomatoes, and season with a little olive oil."

Yes, there's fat, but...

Nuts are quite high in fat for such a small amount of food. They contain mostly unsaturated fats, which tend to have a neutral effect on blood cholesterol. The good news is that nuts contain phytochemicals, which are plant chemicals that may protect against heart disease and stroke.

Cheryl Levitt, who works in Farmington Hills, mixes toasted nuts with precooked rice for a satisfying "center-of-the-plate" meal. Her family does not have big meat eaters, she says, "but I don't like to see them eating only pasta or rice."

"I sauté toasted cashews, walnuts or sunflower seeds with cooked rice and a little garlic and onion for a meal in a snap," Levitt said.

The apparent increase in food allergies in children now plays an important role in food selection. About 5 percent of young children are diagnosed with food allergies, most within the first few years of life. Misunderstanding food allergies can result in life-threatening reactions. Children with nut allergies must avoid them in all forms. In some cases even minimal exposure to nuts can cause an allergic reaction.

"My granddaughter can't even smell peanut butter without a reaction," said Patricia Wendel of Livonia. "We pay careful attention to everything she eats and leave strict instructions to all care givers."

Parents have to be sure to plan in advance for parties, inform the school of the child's allergy, take measures in case of an accidental exposure, and help the child enjoy a normal and safe childhood. Many food labels now state if there may have been exposure to nuts during processing.

Peanuts are versatile

Some nuts grow on trees and some grow underground. Farmers have peanuts to sell today largely because of the work of the famous botanist George Washington Carver. At the turn of the century, cotton crops were being destroyed by the boll weevil, and the land had been stripped of nutrients by continuous planting of cotton. Carver proposed that farmers turn to other crops, especially peanuts. He set about inventing new ways to use the crops. He is credited with inventing more than 300 uses for peanuts.

Jeff Calcott of Birmingham adds nuts to his lunch a few times a week. "I find it so easy to just put a few peanuts or cashews into my lunch and go," Calcott said.

Nuts can be enjoyed as a part of a balanced and varied diet. In setting dietary recommendations, the World Health Organization recommends a daily consumption of fruits and vegetables including a one-ounce serving of nuts or seeds. One ounce of nuts is usually about one quarter cup, 15 to 25 nuts, or one small handful.

Start your day with nuts by adding them into your breakfast cereal or yogurt, or by sprinkling them into your favorite muffin mix.

Pistachios are versatile and perfect for your favorite pancake recipe while almonds are full of alpha-tocopherol, the plant form of vitamin E and a powerful antioxidant. Hazelnuts, also known as filberts, are a favorite of bakers because they don't discolor yeast-leavened breads.

When lunchtime rolls around make sure to consider the old favorite, peanut butter and jelly.

Peanut butter is a good source of protein and contains some B vitamins and iron. Some commercial brands have saturated fat added to help the product maintain its creamy consistency.

Check the facts

Check the Nutrition Facts chart and ingredient labels. Avoid those with "partially hydrogenated" or "hardened" vegetable oils, which show the presence of saturated fats.

Pine nuts have become a recent favorite because of their mellow, sweet flavor, but are more expensive than other nuts because of the labor-intensive harvesting process. A mixture of breadcrumbs and finely chopped, toasted nuts is a wonderful coating for meat, poultry or fish. Bake it, broil or grill it for a delicious dinner.

Another option is to go meatless and toss nuts into stir-fried vegetables, soups, salads or pasta. Ground pistachios are also a great coating on a cheese ball for entertaining. For a tasty change of pace, try Chicken Pecan with Orange Sauce. (See related recipe.)

A small serving daily of a variety of nuts can contribute vitamins, minerals, fiber, and phytochemicals. As part of a low fat, high fiber diet, nuts can help reduce the risk of certain types of cancer and heart disease.

Nuts have nourished human beings throughout time and around the world. To keep nuts as fresh as possible, store them in the refrigerator in an airtight container for up to six months, or up to a year in the freezer.

Enjoy the flavor and nutrition of nuts the next time you are looking for a great meal or snack.

Chicken Pecan with Orange Sauce

1 cup orange marmalade
3/4 cup Dijon mustard
1/2 cup honey
4 teaspoons butter or margarine, melted
1/8 teaspoon cloves, ground
1 cup half & half
6 5-ounce chicken breasts, boneless
1 1/4 cups toasted bread crumbs
1 cup pecans, toasted, chopped fine
1 teaspoon dried parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup margarine

Combine orange marmalade, mustard, honey, butter or margarine, cloves and half & half in a saucepan. Heat on low for 5 minutes, stirring constantly until well blended. Keep warm and set aside.

In a long pan, combine the toasted bread crumbs, chopped pecans, parsley and salt. Separate the sauce in half. Use half of the sauce to dip the chicken, then roll in breadcrumb mixture. Shake off excess.

In a large frying pan, melt the margarine and sauté the chicken breast fillets until golden and cooked to an internal temperature of 165° F. Serve each breast with about 2 tablespoons of warm orange sauce on top. Makes 6 servings.

Stuffing brings a taste of home to the table

2 UNIQUE

KELLI LEWTON

I see the signs of the ever-famous eating holiday approaching rather quickly.

Just last week in my neighborhood grocery store, I noticed a monument of the box bread stuffing mixes, some even toting designer flavors.

It's home cookin'

Stuffing is truly the epitome of good home cooking. Our memories of stuffing are seldom associated with fancy-schmancy restaurants or famous chefs, but rather with dinners prepared by love, by Grandma or Mom shared with family and friends.

Like other home kitchen favorites, stuffing, also known as dressing in the South, is quite easy to make. Even when many food personalities try to dress it up and give it cultural names like "bread torta" or a "bake," it still is stuffing to me!

While there are many versions of this savory dish, the most popular ones are, without a doubt, bread-based. When combined with the basic essentials of melted butter, celery, onions, seasoning and herbs, plain bread is transformed into a heart- and tummy-warming family favorite. As stuffing is normally is baked inside turkeys or chickens, it gains even more richness from the tasty roasted juices that seep and bake their way to flavorful richness.

Stuffing was not a part of the Pilgrims' feast. It was originally developed as an economical way to stretch meat.

A highlighted dish

For many food lovers, stuffing has now become a highlight of many roasted chicken or turkey meals. In fact, a Thanksgiving meal without it is almost unthinkable. Throughout the year, it is also a great side dish even when baked in a separate dish as an accompaniment to any roasted or grilled meat or fish. In the fall, it can also prove festive to bake stuffing inside of hollowed out squashes and gourds.

Because bread is such a neutral base in cooking that marries well with almost any food, stuffing lends itself to

Stuffing tips

A general rule of thumb is to measure 1/2 cup stuffing per pound of poultry bird to sufficiently fill the cavity.

Do not stuff the bird until you are ready to roast so the bread does not soak up juice from the raw turkey. Be careful not to overstuff. Fill the cavity loosely as the mixture will expand during baking.

To bake stuffing separately from meat, spoon into a buttered dish. Dot with some additional butter and splash a little extra stock or bouillon on top. Cover and bake in 325° F oven, uncovering for the last 15 minutes of its baking time.

Remove any extra stuffing after serving and store in proper container and refrigerate.

For variety, try cranberries in a compote

Studies show that eating a variety of colorful fruits and vegetables every day is key to better health. Cranberries are rich in fiber, vitamin C, flavonoids and other substances that help protect against health problems like urinary tract infections, and chronic diseases like cancer.

Fresh cranberries are usually sold in 12-ounce bags, which makes about three cups when chopped. Select bags with cranberries that look plump and unblemished. You can refrigerate bagged cranberries, tightly wrapped, for two months or freeze them, unopened, for up to nine months. (If a recipe calls for frozen cranberries, thaw the fruit just before using, to retain crispiness.)

Before cooking, rinse cranberries in cold water and remove stems and any bruised fruit.

Once cooked with some sugar to offset their tartness, cranberries can be added to many dishes, from quick breads, salads, salsas and chutneys, to soups, grain-based entrées and desserts. Just a handful will add texture and a bright accent to an otherwise bland or uninteresting dish.

Add a half-cup of chopped cranberries to your favorite banana bread or apple muffin recipe. Sprinkle some over your leafy green salad, or toss a handful into a pilaf or stuffing. Before baking apples, fill the cored center with cranberries, then sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon.

This artful fruit compote is colorful and versatile. It can be served "as is" for family meals; as a topping on angel food, sponge, or pound cake for company; or for those favorite winter comfort foods, rice and tapioca pudding.

FRUIT COMPOTE

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1-inch piece fresh ginger, peeled and very thinly slivered
- 1 cup dried fruit mix
- 2 cups fresh or frozen cranberries
- 1 orange, peeled and sectioned
- 1 Granny Smith apple, peeled, cored and cut into small, thin wedges

In large saucepan, combine sugar, water and ginger. Bring to a boil over high heat. Add dried fruit mix. Bring back to a boil and immediately reduce heat to low simmer. Cook, uncovered, until fruit is not quite tender, about 5 minutes.

Add cranberries and simmer, stirring occasionally, until cranberries pop. Stir in orange and apple. Remove from heat and allow to cool down. Serve warm or at room temperature. Makes 6 servings.

Perhaps this year, it might be fun to be daring and sprinkle a little something extra into your bread stuffing and perhaps you will be starting your own new family tradition.

planted in 1917 on benchland in the heart of Dry Creek Valley. It is a classic example of the complexity and intensity that old zinfandel vines can produce.

The 1997 Mazzocco Zinfandel, Quinn Vineyard, Dry Creek Valley $22 is a medium-bodied wine with jammy, ripe fruit, and concentrated raspberry flavors, typical of the Dry Creek appellation.

The 12-year-old Quinn Vineyard is located on a hillside site and its fruit is already showing great stuff. When planting a vineyard, it helps to select vines from a superior gene pool. The budwood used to plant the Quinn Vineyard came from the old vine vineyard of Cuneo and Saini and is showing some of the same class as the heritage vines from which it came.

The 1997 Mazzocco Zinfandel, Stone Ranch Vineyard, Alexander Valley $22 has the yummy plum and dried fruit character of zin grown in Alexander Valley's warmer climate. This wine was aged 15 months in French barrels and is bottled unfiltered to preserve its richness and body.

This 80-year-old vineyard is located in the heart of Alexander Valley. It produces small grape clusters that offer deep color and rich varietal character to the wine. Cool mornings and warm afternoons allow a long, slow maturation that adds character and layers of flavor.

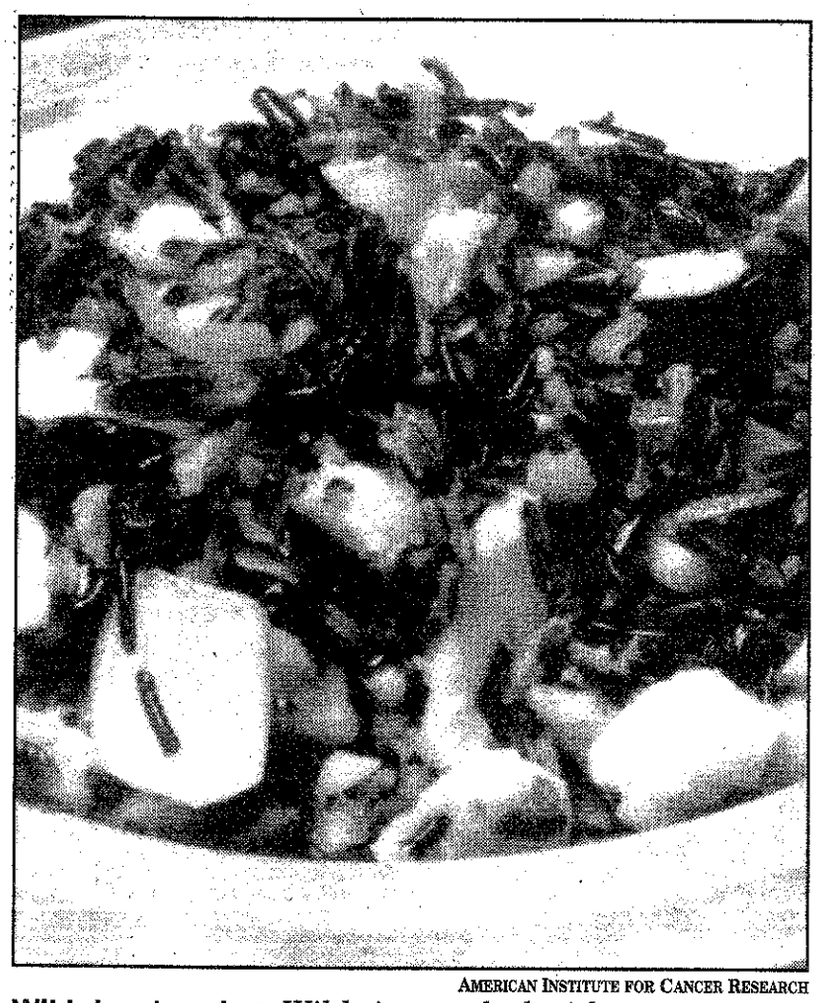
Dress up your stuffing with wild rice, cranberries



AMERICAN INSTITUTE FOR CANCER RESEARCH

Wild rice dressing: Wild rice mashed with potatoes create a texture much like that of old-fashioned stuffing: creamy and chunky. Butter, chicken broth and commercially prepared poultry seasoning add to the appealing illusion that this dressing was baked in the bird.

BY DANA JACOBI
SPECIAL WRITER

For years, battle lines have been drawn at holiday time between the traditionalists and the adventurers. I learned the depth of this great divide long ago, when Thanksgiving was a communal affair and friends cooked separately, then came together to feast.

The traditionalists always wanted to repeat what I call "The First Thanksgiving." They always wanted everything on the table to be the same, into eternity. The more adventurous ranged from those favoring minor changes, like cranberry chutney in place of something more classic, to outright radicals. At their most daring, they proposed chocolate mousse in place of mince pie, and even a loin of pork in place of turkey.

I fall somewhere in between. For me, mashed yams (no marshmallows, thank you) and canned baby green peas evoke memorable family Thanksgivings and, therefore, are essential. With those old familiars, I can tolerate the creamed onions and mashed potatoes with gravy which are foreign to me but equally essential for friends originally from Maine and the Midwest.

For the bird, I am content roasting a turkey breast. It is easy to prepare, provides the mandatory leftovers and leaves more room for the irresistible trimmings.

For the dressing (or "stuffing," since many people can't even agree on which to call it), I often use grains in place of a bread base and cook it separately. In this dressing, wild rice mashed with potatoes create a texture much like that of old-fashioned stuffing, creamy and chunky. Butter, chicken broth and commercially prepared poultry seasoning add to the appealing illusion that this dressing was baked in the bird. Vegetable broth produces a vegetarian version.

WILD RICE STUFFING

1 cup dried cranberries
2 medium all-purpose potatoes
1 celery rib, cut in 1/2-inch slices
1 large leek, white part only, coarsely chopped
1 large shallot, coarsely chopped
1 medium red onion, coarsely chopped
3 tablespoons unsalted butter
4 cups cooked wild rice (1 cup uncooked)
1 teaspoon prepared dried poultry seasoning
1 cup reduced-fat chicken broth
Salt and freshly ground black pepper

In a bowl, cover cranberries with warm water to plump, 20 minutes. Drain and set aside.

In large saucepan, cover potatoes with water, cover and cook until tender when pierced with knife, about 45 to 60 minutes. Drain. When cool enough to handle, peel and chop coarsely.

While potatoes cook, hand chop or use food processor to dice celery, leek, shallot and onion until medium-fine.

In a large, non-stick skillet over medium-high heat, heat butter until bubbly. Immediately add chopped vegetables and sauté until lightly colored, about 6 minutes. Add rice, cranberries, seasoning and chicken broth. Bring to boil, then reduce heat and simmer until rice softens, stirring occasionally, about 10 minutes. Remove pan from heat.

Using large, sturdy fork, mash warm potato into mixture in pan until texture becomes that of traditional dressing, about 3 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Dressing can now be cooled and refrigerated up to 2 days. To reheat, spread in 8-inch baking dish, cover with foil and bake in oven preheated to 350 degrees until heated through, about 30 minutes.

Makes 12 1/2-cup servings.

Nutritional information per serving: 142 calories, 3 g. total fat (2 g. saturated fat), 25 g. carbohydrate, 3 g. protein, 2 g. dietary fiber, 23 mg. sodium.

Lentils are a hasty cook's legume

BY DANA JACOBI
SPECIAL WRITER

Legumes, sometimes also called pulses, encompass beans, lentils and peanuts. Lentils are by far the easiest and arguably the most versatile legume. Cooking them is easy and quick.

Lentils were the first legume to be cultivated, back in 7000 B.C., in the Middle East. They are almost the richest plant source of protein, second only to soybeans. Cooks, both ancient and modern, have used them to make soups, spreads, purees, stews and salads. One of my favorite tricks is mashing soft-cooked lentils with meat when making meatloaf.

Unlike beans, lentils do not need to be soaked before cooking. About the only caveat is not to add salt or acidic ingredients, like vinegar or tomatoes, until lentils are almost completely cooked, because acid prevents legumes from softening. (This may be desirable, however, if you are cooking lentils to use in a salad, when you want them to hold their shape.)

Besides being pot-ready, lentils cook in less time than other legumes. Split red lentils turn into a grainy purée in as little as 20 minutes. Larger, whole green lentils, which actually range in color from khaki green to brown, require 30 to 45 minutes. As with other legumes, the cooking time depends on their age and the method used.

Making lentil soup is a snap, especially meatless versions. It takes even less time if you make it ahead because, if you turn off the heat when the lentils are just cooked, they will become creamy tender when the soup is reheated later. And, in any case, as with most soups, lentil soup improves when it sits for a day or two, gaining deeper flavor that intensifies with each reheating.

A ham bone, hock, or bacon is often added to give lentil soup a deep, smoky flavor. Vegetarian versions tend to be more delicate as well as leaner. To give them the mouth-filling layers of taste that make a great soup, you can use a rich vegetable broth and a liberal hand with seasonings. Adding vegetables, like the chard in this version, brings greater depth and color.

LENTIL SOUP WITH SWISS CHARD

4-6 Swiss chard leaves, 2 with stalks intact, cut into thin slices*
1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
1 rib celery, chopped
2 garlic cloves, finely chopped
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1 can (14.5 ounces) vegetable broth
3 cups cooked green lentils*
Pinch of red pepper flakes
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
4 slices grilled, toasted or stale crusty, country-style bread (optional)
1 garlic clove, halved, optional

In a small Dutch oven or large saucepan, heat oil over medium-high heat. Sauté celery, garlic and chard stems until celery is tender-crisp, 4 minutes. Add remaining chard and cook, stirring occasionally, until wilted, about 3 minutes. Mix in paprika, then tomato paste. Stir in broth, then 2 cups water. Add lentils and pepper flakes.

Bring to a boil, reduce heat to a simmer and cover. Cook 20 minutes. Season to taste with salt and freshly ground pepper. Divide soup among 4 bowls.

If using bread as garnish, rub each slice on both sides with cut side of garlic. Float one slice in each bowl and serve.

*Those who love chard will want to use the full amount. Others may want to use less. One cup dried lentils, cooked with 2 1/2 cups water for 30 minutes, will produce enough cooked lentils for this dish.

Makes 4 servings.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Awareness month

November is National Diabetes Awareness Month. Brochures on preventing type 2 diabetes can be obtained by calling the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports (800) 434-8642 or visit www.michiganfitness.org

10th anniversary

The Marywood Nursing Care Center and Marybrook Manor will celebrate its 10th anniversary on Nov. 15. The celebration, "A Generation of Caring" will be at Laurel Manor Banquet and Conference Center in Livonia and will include dinner, speakers and entertainment by pianist Paul Bechler and the Spirit of Detroit Chorus of Sweet Adelines International.

Proceeds from the event will go for improvements to the physical plant and amenities at the center. For more information or tickets, call (734) 464-0600.

Great employer

Garden City Hospital was selected by Crain's Detroit Business Magazine as one of the best places to work in southeastern Michigan for the second year.

"I was especially pleased to see that Crain's recognizes that Garden City Hospital is all about family values," said Gary Ley, president and CEO of the hospital. "I have always felt that employees of the hospital are like an extended family, and this comes through in the way they deliver patient care on a daily basis."

Judged on employment-related issues such as compensation, organizational performance, leadership, quality of work-life, benefits and work conditions, Garden City Hospital received an honorable mention award.

Tumor technology

Patients at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak are the first in the country to benefit from new radiation technology for brain tumors. Using new technology from MRC Systems in Heidelberg, Germany, doctors are better able to shape radiation beams to the size and shape of tumors while protecting healthy tissue. As a result, they are able to better treat the tumor and minimize complications and side effects. Until now, doctors had difficulty treating irregularly shaped tumors or those that are close to critical brain structures such as the brain stem of nerves that allow sight.

Diabetes support

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor will offer a diabetes support group for those with or affected by diabetes. The group will meet two times each month 2-3:30 p.m. the first Friday and 7-8:30 p.m. the third Tuesday in the Exhibition Room of the hospital's education center.

The Dec. 7 meeting will focus on exercise and diabetes and Dec. 18 there will be a discussion and support group for sharing experiences. Call (800) 231-2211.

Here comes the FLU

Being prepared is your best defense

With the festive holiday season just ahead, people are not thinking about the flu. But flu season is on its way, typically striking the United States from November to March.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that 35-50 million Americans come down with the flu each year. More than 100,000 people are hospitalized annually with the flu, and approximately 20,000 die from the disease. Children are two to three times more likely than adults to get the flu, and children frequently spread the virus to others.

Influenza, or the flu, is a respiratory infection caused by a variety of related viruses. It differs in several ways from the common cold. For example, people with colds rarely get fevers or headaches or suffer from the extreme exhaustion that flu viruses cause.

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (Web site www.niaid.nih.gov) offers the following facts on the flu:

1. When and where do people usually get the flu? Flu outbreaks usually occur in late fall and winter. The disease can spread through a community creating an epidemic. During the epidemic, the number of cases peaks in about three weeks and subsides after another three to four weeks. Because schools are an excellent place for flu viruses to attack and spread, families with school-age children have more infections than other families, with an average of one-third of the family members infected each year.

2. Is the flu an important disease? Besides the rapid start of the outbreaks and the large numbers of people affected, the flu is an important disease because it can cause serious complications. Most people get better within a week, although they may have a lingering cough and tire easily for a while longer. For elderly people, newborn babies and people with certain chronic illnesses, the flu and its complications can be life threatening.

Taking precautions

3. How is the flu transmitted? You can get the flu if someone around you who has the flu coughs or sneezes. You can get the flu simply by touching a contaminated surface like a telephone or doorknob then touching your nose or mouth. Also, the viruses can pass through the air and enter your body through your nose or mouth. You are at greatest risk of getting infected in highly populated areas, such as in crowded living conditions and in schools.

4. What are flu symptoms? Symptoms usually develop one to four days after being infected. You can spread the flu to others before your symptoms start and for another three to four days after your symptoms appear.

Symptoms start very quickly and include headache, chills, dry cough, body aches, fever, stuffy nose and sore throat. Typically, the fever begins to decline on the second or third day. The flu almost never causes symptoms in the stomach and intestines. What some people call the "stomach flu" is not influenza.

■ The vaccine can be administered to children as young as six months old. Children should get the flu vaccine if they are taking long-term aspirin treatment, as they may be at risk of developing Reye's syndrome following a flu infection.

5. How does a doctor diagnose the flu? Usually, doctors or other health care workers diagnose the flu on the basis of whether the flu is an epidemic in the community and whether the patient's complaints fit the current pattern of symptoms. Doctors rarely use laboratory tests to identify the virus during an epidemic. Health officials, however, monitor certain U.S. health clinics and do laboratory tests to determine which type of flu virus is responsible for the epidemic.

6. How can I keep from getting the flu? The main way to keep from getting the flu is to get a yearly flu vaccine. You can get the vaccine at your doctor's office or a local clinic, and in many communities at workplaces, supermarkets and drugstores. You need to get the vaccine every year because it changes.

7. How long does it take to build up immunity? Your immune system takes time to respond to the flu vaccine. Therefore, you should get vaccinated six to eight weeks before flu season begins to prevent getting infected or reduce the severity of the flu if you do get it. The vaccine itself cannot cause the flu, but you could become exposed to the virus by someone else and get infected soon after you are vaccinated.

8. Are there possible side effects from the flu vaccine? The most common side effect in children and adults is soreness at the vaccination site. Other side effects, especially in children who previously have not been exposed to the flu virus, include fever, tiredness and sore muscles. These side effects may begin six to 12 hours after vaccination and may last for up to two days.

Viruses for producing the vaccine are grown in chicken eggs and then killed with a chemical so they can no longer cause an infection. The flu vaccine may contain some egg protein, which can cause an allergic reaction. Therefore, if you are allergic to eggs or have ever had a serious reaction to the flu vaccine, the CDC recommends that you consult with your doctor before getting vaccinated.

9. Who should get the flu vaccine? If you are in any of the following groups or live in a household with someone who is, the CDC recommends you get the vaccine:

- You are 50 years of age or older
- You have chronic disease of your heart, lungs or kidneys
- You have diabetes
- Your immune system does not function properly
- You have a severe form of anemia
- You will be more than three months pregnant during the flu season
- You live in a nursing home or other chronic-care housing facility

The vaccine can be administered to children as young as six months old. Children should get the flu vaccine if they are taking long-term aspirin treatment, as they may be at risk of developing Reye's syndrome following a flu infection. They should also get the flu vaccine if they live in a household with someone in the above groups.

10. Are there medicines that will help prevent the flu? Although the flu vaccine is the best way to prevent getting the flu, three antiviral medicines also are available by prescription that will help prevent flu infection. These include Tamiflu (oseltamivir), Flumadine (rimantadine) and Symmetrel (amantadine). The Food and Drug Administration has approved Tamiflu for use in adults and adolescents 13 years and older. Rimantadine and amantadine have been approved for use by adults and children 1 year of age and older.

Rimantadine and amantadine have unpleasant side effects. Your doctor can help you decide which medicine is best for you.

11. What is the treatment for the flu? Resting in bed, drinking plenty of fluids and taking over-the-counter medicine such as aspirin or acetaminophen (Tylenol, for example) works fine for most people. However, you should not give aspirin to children and adolescents who have the flu, as aspirin has been associated with Reye's syndrome. Further, you should not take antibiotics to treat the flu, because they do not work on viruses. Antibiotics only work against some infections caused by bacteria.

Take the flu seriously

12. What are possible complications from the flu? Complications can result from a bacterial infection, which causes pneumonia in your weakened lungs. Pneumonia also can be caused by the flu virus itself. Symptoms of complications will usually appear after you start feeling better. After a brief period of improvement, you may suddenly develop high fever; shaking chills; chest pain with each breath; or coughing that produces thick, yellow-greenish mucus.

13. Are there other flu complications that affect children? Reye's syndrome, a condition that affects the nerves, sometimes develops in children and adolescents who are recovering from the flu. Reye's syndrome begins with nausea and vomiting, but the progressive mental changes – such as confusion or delirium – cause the greatest concern. The syndrome often begins in young people after they take aspirin to get rid of fever or pain.

Other complications in children include convulsions caused by fever; croup; or ear infections, such as otitis media. Newborn babies recently out of intensive care units are particularly vulnerable to suffering from flu complications.

Please see FLU, D5

14. Are there different types of flu viruses? The first flu virus was identified in the 1930s. Since then, scientists have classified flu viruses into types A, B and C. Type A is the most common and usually causes the most serious epidemics. Type B outbreaks also can cause epidemics, but the disease it produces generally is milder than that caused by Type A. Type C viruses never have been connected with a large epidemic.

15. Where can I get more information about the flu? Visit the following Web sites:

Coalition's goal is to make Livonia heart safe

Sudden cardiac arrest strikes over 220,000 people in the United States each year. With 90 percent of these deaths occurring outside a hospital setting, less than 5 percent will survive.

Heart Safe Livonia is a coalition of local organizations committed to improve the outcome of victims of sudden cardiac arrest in Livonia.

Public Access Defibrillation programs and technological advances of automated external defibrillators make is possible for trained lay rescuers to deliver defibrillation to victims before the EMS arrives.

"Public places such as malls, theaters, golf courses and office buildings are a few examples of facilities where a PAD program would benefit the community," said Ginger Ramsay, Community Outreach Department, St. Mary Mercy Hospital, and coordinator of Heart Safe Livonia.

Sudden cardiac arrest is usually caused by an electrical malfunction of the heart called ventricular fibrillation, for which defibrillation (an electrical shock applied to the heart through the chest) is the only definitive treatment. For every passing minute without defibrillation, survival decreases by approximately 10 percent. Cities with a PAD program are experiencing increased survival rates greater than 30 percent.

"When a person goes into ventricular fibrillation, the only effective treatment is electrical shock by defibrillation. CPR simply maintains the blood flow of oxygen to the brain and vital organs," said Dr. Ash Gokli, director, Emergency Center, St. Mary Mercy Hospital.

Compact

Automated external defibrillators are the size of a laptop computer and weight five pounds, which makes them more accessible to a wider range of emergency responders and even lay persons.

Anyone who can learn CPR can learn to operate a defibrillator. All it takes if 4-6 hours of training by the American Heart Association. St. Mary Mercy is a certified training center.

For more information contact Ginger Ramsay (734) 655-8947.

ATTITUDE

Having rheumatoid arthritis, osteoarthritis, or lupus arthritis does not bring on the desperation or despair these diagnoses evoked in past years. At present the medical community can offer drugs and operations not imagined 25 years ago and not perfected ten years ago.

However, if you have arthritis, you cannot look forward to a rapid return to normal activity because of the advance of medicine. Cultivating an attitude is just as important as taking medicine and undergoing an operation.

First, see your arthritis as a problem not to eliminate, but to manage. You will gain a perspective that will give you a reasonable approach to rest, activity, and work.

Second, look at your arthritis and the setbacks it imposes, in a realistic fashion. You will experience limitations based on pain and fatigue; in addition, arthritis results in a decrease in dexterity. At the same time, you cannot become morose, nor dwell on your deficiencies.

Third, expect that surgery may give relief, but do not look forward to it as a cure. Remember that months of rehabilitation follow surgery for the knee or hand. Furthermore surgery, even when done by the most experienced physicians, is not always successful. You need to keep a clear eye: prepare as instructed for surgery, but ready yourself for even more effort after the operation. You should also prepare mentally to adapt to a surgical outcome that may fall short of expectations.

Finally, remember those times you have preserved and reached a goal you or others thought you could not attain. Recall past success to give you strength for the challenge of the future.
