Cheer Club

The holiday season is here and so is the Plymouth-Canton Observer Cheer Club.

Opening the Cheer Club to new and returning "members" is one of our favorite holiday traditions. Please join us by bringing donations of new toys and canned or boxed food to our office at 794 S. Main in Plymouth during business hours.

The items will be collected until Friday, Dec. 14, when we turn them over to the good folks at Salvation Army. They'll distribute the items to needy people in Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

The idea is to make the holidays special for everybody, not just the lucky families where people have plenty to spend.

So if you're out doing your Christmas shopping and have a few minutes to look for another toy or maybe a gift of warm clothing, your thoughtfulness will be appreciated.

When you bring your donations by our office, we'll ask you to leave your name and city/township of residence. That's because we like to print donor names in the paper, while the Cheer Club drive is on. Of course, you may remain anonymous if you prefer. Each year, we've recorded around 200 donors to the Cheer Club from Plymouth and Canton.

Happy Holidays! Please keep our Cheer Club in mind.

Fit, fitter, fittest: Patrick Brown of Canton works out five days a week at the Summit and says he loves the new, larger fitness center. "I like the new machines and that there are more of them, and I can't have to wait."

New Summit fitness center opens

The 6000-square-foot center more than doubles the size of the original center, which is a now an aerobic studio. The new facility includes 60 or more pieces of equipment: strength equipment, plate-loaded equipment and elliptical trainers, more dumbbells, a stretching area and an cardiovascular fitness "cardio theater" or entertainment system. Facilities superintendent Sean Fletcher said that users comment on the nice view of the park in the new facility. The center has about 5,000 members but not all are active; there is definitely room for more, Fletcher said. Canton residents get a break on the price. The center offers 104 open hours a week: Monday through Thursday 6 a.m. until 10 p.m., Friday 6 a.m. until 9 p.m., Saturday 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. and Sunday 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. Call (734) 394-5460.

Kroger OK'd, but warned

BY JACK GLADDEN

JGLADDEN@OE.HOMECOMM.NET

Kroger won site plan approval for a Michigan Avenue store Tuesday night from the Canton Township Board of Trustees, but not before some wrist slapping from Trustee Melissa McLaughlin and Treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter.

McLaughlin, who also serves on the Planning Commission, said she was concerned that the company's proposed delivery hours will be from 6:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The new store, to be located at the corner of Michigan Avenue and Canton Center, just east of the Home Depot, is also adjacent to the Kimberly Meadows subdivision, which McLaughlin called a "family oriented subdivision."

"For people with young families with children sleeping, 6:30 might be a little early," she said. She also argued that the delivery hours issue had been raised earlier at the Planning Commission meeting.

Attorney Bryan Amann, representing Kroger, said that some deliveries are from outside vendors and the company can't control when they make their deliveries.

McLaughlin asked Amann and Rick Ragsdale, real estate manager for Michigan Kroger stores, to limit delivery hours from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

"We'd like to get you guys to agree with it just out of the goodness of your hearts to be good neighbors. If Farmer Jack can do it, I assume that Kroger

Field teacher is true friend of river

BY KURT KUBAN

kkuban@oe.homecomm.net

Several years ago, some of the students in Rick Plecha's fourth-grade class at Field Elementary asked him why the little creek running next to the Canton school gave off such a terrible stench.

That question sparked Plecha's crusade to clean up the stream, which is called Truesdell Creek and is a tributary of the Rouge River.

Over the course of the last five years, Plecha has used the creek as a living classroom for his students. They have cleaned out all the garbage that once littered the creek bed, eliminated nuisance plant species like purple loosestrife from the banks and replaced them with native plant stock, and regularly monitored the quality of the water.

■ Rick Plecha, who has taught at Field since 1977, said he was surprised, but pleased, by the award.

Plecha was also instrumental in getting a number of corporations to donate money to build an observation deck along the creek, which the students use during some science lessons.

Plecha's efforts earned him the annual "Best Friends of the Rouge Award," which was presented to him last week by Friends of the Rouge at its annual membership meeting at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Friends of the Rouge, which is celebrating its 15th anniversary this year, is a group of volunteers devoted to cleaning up the Rouge River watershed. Jim Graham, the group's executive director, said Plecha's dedication to teaching his students environmental ethic is exactly the kind of effort it is going to take to save the river from years of degradation.

"He earned this award because of his innovative ideas. And the fact he's gone well above and beyond what the normal classroom teacher does to instill a sense of environmental awareness in little children," Graham said.

Plecha, who has taught at Field since 1977, said he was surprised, but pleased, by the award. However, he said the real award is seeing his students realize the importance of a clean, healthy environment.

"First and foremost, it's an honor to work with these kids. It's such a pleasure seeing them getting involved with environmental work. Winning this award just makes it more special," he said.

Plecha has been an active participant in the Friends of the Rouge-spon-

Osmond brother will visit here Friday

He "was born a child of freedom given liberty and life" and when Merrill Osmond sings those words from his new hit song America it will be along with 530 children who attend a charter school in Canton.

Osmond will use all of the school's pupils to help him sing the song and film a video, according to Canton Charter Academy's music director, Cathy Feldman.

Osmond will make an appearance at the Academy at 2 p.m. Friday, Dec. 14 for the video; the school is at 49100 Ford Road and Ridge Road in Canton.

Merrill Osmond, the lead singer of the famous Osmond Brothers, recorded the song to raise funds for the Sept. 11 tragedy. He chose as his charity the Families of Freedom Fund founded by Bill Clinton and Bob Dole to provide educational scholarship dollars for the victims' families and those injured in the Sept. 11 attacks.

Osmond is also in town to promote the Wayne County Community College District; they are sponsoring the event at the Canton Charter Academy.

The Academy moved into their new school building this fall.

A 36-year-old Canton man has been missing since Nov. 21.

James Edward Weaver Jr. left his Eddington Court home around noon the day before Thanksgiving and hasn't been seen or heard from since. His father, who recently filed a report with police, said it was not like his son to be out of touch for so long a period.

Edwards is described as a black male, 5-feet 9-inches tall, approximately 160 pounds with brown eyes and hair. Police believe he is driving a 1999 red Chevy Cavalier.

Anyone with information about Edwards' location or who has come in contact with him since Nov. 21 is asked to contact the Canton Police Department at (734) 394-5400.

Police have no suspects.

Windshield smashed

A Canton resident told police he was driving south on I-275 Saturday under the bridge near Koppernick when someone threw an object off the bridge and smashed the windshield of his car. Damage was listed at $600.

Purse theft

A Westland woman reported to police that her purse was stolen while she was shopping at Super K on Ford Road Saturday.

When she reported the theft to store security, she was told that a purse had been found in a men's restroom.

The Mayflower
Project is back on track

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

What was once considered a white elephant at the corner of Main and Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth is slowly transforming into the downtown retail, office and condominium gem developers promised.

After a nearly six-month delay in construction because of financial problems, the $13 million Mayflower Centre appears to be back on track.

"Time-wise the building is about 75 percent complete. Dollar-wise the building is about 55 percent complete, as we're spending in the neighborhood of about a half-million dollars a month," said Mark Baker of Downtown Plymouth Ventures, the real estate holding company of the Mayflower. "We're on target and well within budget."

View: The main entryway to the Mayflower project looks out over Kellogg Park.

Construction on the Mayflower Centre came to an abrupt halt about a year ago when Tri-Mount Vincenti Companies owner John Vincenti became financially over-extended. Vincenti teamed up with investors to form Downtown Plymouth Ventures, which secured a $10 million bank loan to complete the project.

"This project had a bad rap, and it was well deserved," admitted Baker. "People came in doing an honest day's work and didn't get an honest day's pay. We went from being 30 days late to currently 15 days early in paying contractors.

"Now you can see the stone, brick, windows and doors ... people in Plymouth can see it coming together," he said. "Once we add the final touches, that's when it will turn into a gem."

No leases for the retail and office space have been signed, though Baker said they're confident Starbucks and Panera Bread still have plans for the ground floor.

The only office space leased was for New Liberty Bank, which has reportedly pulled out of the Mayflower and bolted for a project that will transform the Mason's building on Penniman into a bank with a drive-thru. Baker declined to talk about the bank's pullout, other than to say "I can't comment on that. It's been referred to our attorneys." One source indicates the two sides are working out a financial settlement.

At one time, it was reported there was a prospective buyer for the $1.2 million corner condo that overlooks Kellogg Park. However, that, too, failed to transpire. "When it got to the point to sign a purchase agreement, they weren't ready to do that," said Baker. "So, all 11 condos are available at this point." They range from 3,500-square-feet to 6,500-square-feet, with cost ranging from $600,000 to $1.2 million.

Baker said the building will be available for the first tenants to bring in their interior finishing crews late in the first quarter of 2002, with condo owners in the early part of the second quarter.

John Stewart could have challenger in House primary

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

In somewhat of a political twist, a Northville woman who recently announced she was challenging 20th District House Representative John Stewart (R-Plymouth Township) in next year's August primary has dropped out of the race.

And, as quickly as Teresa Folino declared she was out, Plymouth resident Jonathon Grant proclaimed he's in the Republican primary race against Stewart.

"I have a job opportunity that's too good to pass up, and I'm going to withdraw from the campaign and give my support to Jonathon Grant," said Folino. "I talked with him (Monday) morning, and all systems are go."

Folino, who lost to Stewart by 81 votes in the August 2000 primary, had been campaigning and soliciting contributions for the 2002 race. However, Folino said her new job as Technical Training Consultant for AAA Auto Claims will take a lot of her time. Even so, Folino added she will continue her position as vice-chair of the 13th Congressional District Republican Committee.

This will be Grant's first attempt at seeking public office, though he had considered a run for Plymouth City Commission. He plans on forming a committee in January, and filing his intentions next spring.

"Sometimes people who have been in office become jaded," said Grant. "I believe a fresh perspective can be healthy."

Grant said he disagrees with the voting record of Stewart. "Yes, I do. My being approached to run is a sense the community is looking for effective leadership," he said.

On the top of Grant's list of campaign issues is K-12 and college level education.

"There seem to be more questions than answers," he said. "We need to look at whether we are effectively managing the revenue we have. We need to talk about solutions."

Grant said he also plans to bring "intense focus ... to senior services and the environment, all while striving to keep taxes low."

Unlike the recent Plymouth city commission election which got downright ugly at times, Grant said he plans to stick to the issues in the upcoming campaign.

"I won't get negative," he said. "That's not to say I won't attack John Stewart's performance or voting record, but we will stick to the issues."

Stewart seemed a bit surprised to hear of Grant's interest in his House seat.

"Jonathon told me he was supporting and endorsing me about a month ago," he said. "I welcome any and all challengers to the race."

As a sign that politics is already alive and well in the campaign, Grant said "That's just not accurate."

The newly-redistricted 20th House seat includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville, Northville Township, a slice of Canton Township along I-275 and the city of Wayne.

Kroger

can do it as well," she said.

On another issue, Kirchgatter asked Ragsdale whether the new store on Michigan Avenue would endanger the existing store on Canton Center, which was built about four or five years ago just a mile from the Kroger at Ford and Sheldon, which subsequently was closed down.

"I sat here and listened to the presentation and I remember a concern that we had concerning the proximity of that store to the other store down on Ford Road and if they were going to keep two stores open," she said.

"The representative from Kroger stood here and said they were going to keep that store open. I ask that same question this evening. Can you give me any better assurance tonight that we won't have a second empty Kroger in six years or whatever?"

"I don't think there's a retailer in America who can tell you what's going to happen in six years," Ragsdale replied.

"But there are absolutely no plans at all to close the store at Ford and Canton Center roads."

The plan was approved unanimously.

The 59,000-square-foot store will include a drive-up pharmacy window and probably a bank in the future.

In other action, the board:

■ Approved the sale of 19 acres of land on the east side of Haggerty between Michigan Avenue and Palmer to the J.B. Donaldson Company. The approximate sale price is $2.4 million. Proceeds from the sale will go to the public improvement fund. A likely occupant of the parcel is Schenck Motorama, a company that designs and builds systems and equipment for the automotive industry.

■ Approved a three-year contract with Huron Valley Ambulance Inc. to provide transportation for seniors and handicapped individuals.

■ The 59,000-square-foot store will include a drive-up pharmacy window and probably a bank in the future.

Van Buren 'school of choice' openings listed

Van Buren Public Schools (VBPS) is a "schools of choice" district, meaning that students outside of the VBPS district who live in Wayne County may apply to attend schools in Van Buren.

All interested individuals must apply between Jan. 7 and Jan. 18, 2002.

This offer is only available for a limited time.

The following total openings are available in the elementary schools.

■ Kindergarten, 6; first, 7; second, 11; third, 4; third gifted and talented, 4; fourth, 4; fifth, 8; fifth gifted and talented, 3.

■ Middle schools, sixth, 2 South Middle; seventh, 10 South Middle; eighth, 10 South Middle; currently no openings exist at North Middle.

■ High school, ninth, 5; tenth, 5; eleventh, 5; and twelfth, 5.

If you fail to apply during this window, you will not be able to apply again until the end of the 2002 school year.

Additionally, if more requests are made than there are openings available, names will be selected by lottery. Once all slots have been randomly filled, extra names will be placed on a waiting list. If students who were selected in the lottery do not attend VBPS when the second semester of school begins, students on the waiting list will be admitted at that time.

Whoever is chosen by a vote of the current school board will serve through June.

"They will all be interviewed with the same questions, and will answer questions on a rotating basis," said Elizabeth Givens, school board president.

"(The questions) will allow us to gauge how informed and how quickly up to speed this person will be. I think that's a real key issue for an appointment," added Trustee Judy Mardigian.

The departure of Guile means there will be three board seats to fill in June. The four-year terms of Susan Davis and Darwin Watts will end.

Davis, who will have served eight years on the school board, has already announced she will not seek re-election. Watts has yet to indicate if he will run for a second term. The election to fill Guile's board seat will be for the remaining one year of his term.

Physical Therapy UPDATE

Hands On Center

Presented by Hands On Center For Physical Therapy

SHOULDER PAIN

The rotator cuff is made up of four muscles that surround the arm bone. This cuff keeps the shoulder steady as the arm moves. If is is injured, pain will usually occur in the front or the outside of the shoulder. Pain relief strategies include active rest, ultrasound, and ice treatments. Normal function can be restored with special exercises. The first step of rehabilitation therapy is simple range-of-motion exercises. By bending over and moving (rotating) the shoulder in large circles, the serious complication of rotator cuff injury, called a "frozen shoulder," can be avoided. Range-of-motion exercises are followed by resistance exercises using rubber tubing or light dumbbells. The final step is resistance training with weight machines or free weights.

But don't do this at home.. at least not if you aren't under the care of a physical therapist! The wrong exercises, or the right exercise performed too soon, with too much weight or resistance, can actually worsen your condition. If you are experiencing pain or stiffness, ask your physician for a referral to the HANDS ON CENTER FOR PHYSICAL THERAPY, located at 470 Forest Avenue, Suite 20. We offer all the latest treatment methods, and a pleasant, spacious environment in which your privacy is respected. To schedule a consultation, call 455-8370.

P.S. A tear of the rotator cuff is suspected when pain persists in spite of a good rehabilitation program, or when there is weakness in certain motions of the arm.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF CANTON
BOARD PROCEEDINGS – DECEMBER 4, 2001

A regular/ study meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Canton held Tuesday, December 4, 2001 at 1150 South Canton Center Road, Canton Michigan, 48188 Supervisor Yack called the meeting to order at 7:00 p.m. and led the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

Members Present: Bennett, Burdziak, Kirchgatter, LaJoy, McLaughlin, Shefferly, Yack

Staff Present: Aaron Machnik, Tony Minghine, Dan Durrack, Anne Conklin

Others Present: Dale Yagiela, Growth Works.

Item 1: Growth Works Update.

Mr Yagiela indicated Growth Works has been addressing the needs of high risk youth in the community of Canton. This has been accomplished by providing services based upon a process of accountability which has included feedback from the community. The program has been benchmarked against similar programs. The strongest part of what Growth Works does is building partnerships with the stakeholders. System change approaches can produce measurable results and create impact that make a difference in the Canton Community. Mr. Yagiela reviewed the present programs that are in place at Growth Works.

* Youth Assistance Program
* Adolescent Drug Treatment Program
* Western Wayne Care Management Organization

The Human Service Center will meet the guidelines set by HUD/ CDBG. The building will serve mostly Canton residents. It will also be the home to the Canton Community Foundation and provide Character Counts Training.

Mr. Yagiela suggested that Board of Trustees assist the agency in developing a 'Service Center' system change. He indicated that Human Service agencies see themselves as businesses. Services are free but waiting lists to service those without insurance are often long. There is presently little coordination of agency service. Duplication is present and accountability is lacking. There is no scale of economy thus limited success at impacting long term rehabilitation of youth at risk. The service center would not provide all services to all people but rather provide referral to agencies that benchmark process and are accountable for service. Agencies that show continual quality improvement would be part of the benchmark. The Township can assist by restricting access and looking at support funding and sponsorship of agencies. A collaboration vs. competition model is being proposed by Mr Yagiela.

Item 2: Administration Building Expansion

Director Minghine reviewed the process with TMP to date. Models were shown to the Board of Trustees for review. Director Machnik indicated that the cost of the building was still proposed to be 14 million.. Floor plans would soon be drawn, as well as a site plan.

Motion by Bennett, second by LaJoy to adjourn at 8:15 P.M.. Motion carried unanimously.

The above is a synopsis of the actions taken a the regular/ study board meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Canton held on Tuesday, December 4, 2001. The Full text of the approved minutes, including comments will be available following the next regular board meeting held on December 11, 2001.

LinkMichigan 'broadband' development plan draws fire

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

Access to "broadband" – high speed connections to the Internet – has yet to arrive for most Michigan residents, according to Gov. John Engler and he fears the state may be falling behind.

Gov. John Engler

If Michigan does get broadband, it could mean the creation of an additional 500,000 jobs and "an increase in state output of goods, services and income of nearly one-half of one trillion dollars."

So Engler is asking lawmakers to create a means of financing the state's "LinkMichigan" program. The plan includes a new authority to provide capital for development of broadband; a second authority to oversee use of the publicly-owned rights of way, down which telecommunications companies must string their wires; and a 7 cent per foot fee to be charged to the firms that use those rights of way.

The plan is already drawing fire from business interests including the Michigan Center for Public Policy.

"We are not saying this is not a problem, but creation of a new tax – 7 cents per linear foot – which would cost taxpayers $70 to $100 million is not the way to go about it," said Rich Studley, spokesman for the state Chamber.

'Not ready for broadband'

According to the Mackinac Center, 78 percent of households in Michigan already have access to high speed cable modem systems and 45 percent have access to DSL (digital subscriber lines). Yet only 12.5 percent of households are subscribing. That means residents here don't want access or aren't ready for it, the Center concludes.

"The demand side of Michigan's broadband market is prompting telecommunications providers to deploy high speed services based on sound business cases. To ignore market signals and deploy any faster is a recipe for financial disaster," according a join statement issued by the Chamber and Mackinac Center.

The plan includes providing financing to schools and municipalities, and the state may own and operation broad band lines as well, so it is "apparent that the government intends to own the system," Studley contended.

The chamber would rather take "a more market-oriented approach," he said, spurring broadband development through the removal of regulatory barriers and the creation of tax incentives.

"We've got to quit looking for the bogey man in every proposal," state Sen. Joe Schwarz (R-Battle Creek) responded. "The train is leaving. We hope they are on board. We hope they will hop on board, but the train is still leaving the station."

Senate bills

Schwarz is sponsoring two of the three bills needed to implement Engler's plans, Senate Bills 879 and 880. Sen. Leon Stille (R-Spring Lake) introduced SB 881 to complete the package.

Schwarz said he believed companies aren't deploying broadband fast enough, and that Ameritech specifically is "dragging its feet." So the state needs to be an "instigator" of broadband services, Schwarz said.

Engler took issue with complaints the market is not ready. He noted that the state has created agencies to do similar things for other industries in the past. The Michigan State House Development Authority, which makes low interest loans for inner city home buyers, is one example, Engler said.

Critics say Engler, who has asked lawmakers to pass these bills by the end of the year, is going too fast.

"We're ready to go," Engler said. "The proposal is ready. In my experience, the reality is that when someone says we'll do it in January, what they mean is that we'll do it in April or May ... I feel some pressure to move now. It takes time to get something like this up and running."

But Studley contended lawmakers should have more time to consider the package, because of its complexity.

"If this is a good idea, it will stand the test of time. If it is a good idea, it will still be a good idea in January or February," he said. "I think it is very unfair to ask legislators to pass this before they have really had a change to look at it."

Not a tax

Engler took issue with critics who are calling the 7 cent per foot fee a tax.

"Some legislators have been told that nothing is being charged today" for the use of those rights of way by telecommunications companies.

"Well," Engler said, "that is not accurate. It very much depends on the jurisdiction and it depends on the company."

In fact, some municipalities charge companies so much for use of rights of way that this past January, Engler labeled those cities and townships as "broadband bandits."

Scot Schrager, of the Michigan Municipal League, explained his group has signed on to support the bill. Half of the 7 cent fee will be returned to local units of government to cover the cost of overseeing rights of way in their jurisdictions.

Ameritech disagrees that deployment of high speed lines is going slowly. According to company spokesman Steve Kauffman, Ameritech has wire enough of the state to make DSL available to 2.1 million, regardless of whether they are actually now subscribing.

■ 'We are not saying this is not a problem, but creation of a new tax – 7 cents per linear foot – which would cost taxpayers $70 to $100 million is not the way to go about it.'

Rich Studley
—Spokesman for State Chamber

There is more broadband available to Michigan customers than the state believes there is, according to Telecommunications Association of Michigan president Scott Stevenson.

When the Michigan Economic Development Corporation was preparing its LinkMichigan report last year, he said, the industry did not give the state information about the degree of deployment because the state would not agree to keep it confidential, he said. The industry considers that information to be a trade secret.

Stevenson also argued that "there is a major disconnect between what the sponsors say this will do and what it actually will do." Nation-wide, he contended 75 percent of broadband services are provided through cable television companies, not the telephone company.

School gay display ruling is a win-win

Two years ago, we argued that establishing displays at West Middle School and Salem High School centered around the gay lifestyle – and the superintendent's subsequent order to dismantle them – was a free-speech issue.

Last week, an arbitrator essentially agreed with us, ordering Plymouth-Canton school district officials to apologize to Mike Chiumento, a music teacher at West Middle School, and Tom Salbenblatt, who teaches math at Salem, for violating their First Amendment rights.

At the time, we said a silent showcase presenting gay history in a positive manner is reinforcement against harassment and hate crimes. In his ruling last week, arbitrator Paul Glendon said Chiumento and Salbenblatt were "not teaching anything by putting up the displays; they were merely presenting information which they hoped would improve the climate of the school by enhancing understanding and acceptance of gays and lesbians ... their purpose in doing so was to help create a safe, accepting, affirming learning environment for all students."

Interim Superintendent Ken Walcott said at the time sexual orientation wasn't a part of Plymouth-Canton's curriculum, and ordered the displays to be removed. "When we hire staff, we don't ask them their race, color, creed or lifestyle," he said. "But once we hire, we practice K-12 instructional goals adopted by the Board of Education, not lifestyle make-up. That's not our mission."

Glendon was critical of Walcott, who had been doing the job on an interim basis and was replaced a few months later by Kathleen Booher, noting, "it is painfully apparent his real reason for ordering grievants to take down these displays was that they themselves are gay and in (Walcott's) personal opinion, their purpose was to 'promote (their) own lifestyle.'"

That doesn't appear to be true, since neither Chiumento nor Salbenblatt has ever been accused of trying to influence anyone one way or the other, except in trying to make the schools an environment more accepting of diversity. No harm in that, given the way negative feelings and hostility toward those of us who are different pervades society.

The district, for its part, disagrees with the ruling, but "respects the arbitration process." The apologies to Chiumento and Salbenblatt will be written, and an appeal of Glendon's decision is unlikely.

In our opinion, Glendon's ruling is a win-win situation for the district, the teachers and the students. The district has to apologize but keeps its ability to establish and direct its curriculum; the teachers get vindication; and students will be exposed to issues that bear discussion.

Even though public schools must remain secular they can still teach moral values. One such value – acceptance –when modeled by a staff and an administration willing to allow for a free exchange of ideas and unwilling to allow discrimination of any kinds, meets the highest ideals of democracy.

The Plymouth-Canton schools must create safe and accepting environments for all students, including those who are gay or lesbian or just asking questions. As with other sensitive issues we may never agree on sexuality. Even though public schools must remain secular they can still teach moral values. One such value — acceptance — when modeled by a staff and an administration willing to allow for a free exchange of ideas and unwilling to allow discrimination of any kind, meets the highest ideals of democracy.

This issue generated a great deal of debate, in the form of letters to the editor and water-cooler talk, two years ago. It's sure to generate just as much this time around.

Which means the biggest winner of all is the one we consider most important: Free speech.

State school chief leads public education cheers

Since becoming the Michigan Department of Education Superintendent Tom Watkins has been a vigorous spokesman for public education.

In numerous columns and speeches, Watkins argues that our public education system is good now and can only get better.

In a speech Thursday at the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Watkins defined his job: "I'm a cheerleader for public education. I do want to stand up and cheer for high-quality education across the state. But more importantly, I want to be a megaphone, where I can amplify the voices of great educators about the good things that are happening in schools every day."

Public education has been the target of numerous complaints. Public schools have been kicked around by politicians and railed at by religious groups. Every pundit has a secret plan for "saving" our schools.

Watkins has been a consistent voice in support of what is good about public education and a leader in defining what can be better.

Our public schools are facing severe revenue problems. As the economy continues to decline, school systems will be forced to make do with less.

Watkins has some ideas for revenue enhancement, including an education license plate, but he also is generating a number of bright ideas to involve everyone in the education process.

A brochure, "Thirty Ideas in 30 Days," draws together some interesting ideas about public education and how we can become involved in our schools.

Some examples:

■ The Ladder vs the Hammer. Seek opportunities to lift up public education rather than constantly hammering it down.

■ Create an Army of Involved Parents. Parental involvement is crucial to academic achievement.

■ Students as Teachers. The best way to learn and master a subject is to teach it. Encourage upper-level students to tutor or mentor younger children in their school district.

We agree that it is the responsibility of all of us — educators, parents, business leaders, legislators — to understand how important our public schools are and to work together to improve them.

■ School to Work or School at Work. Promote alternatives to traditional high schools by creating schools attached to and integrated with leading businesses and other employers as well as cultural and learning institutions.

■ Walk a mile in Someone Else's Shoes. Once each quarter, arrange a two-way job shadow between school superintendents and principals and key executives from the local community.

■ Maintain a Solid Foundation. Protect the Foundation Grants to our schools at all costs.

■ Teacher recognition. Celebrate the accomplishments of to educators with a Teacher of the Year awards program, sponsored by a leading business organization.

■ Listen to the Public.

We support Watkins in his enthusiasm for public education. We agree that it is the responsibility of all of us – educators, parents, business leaders, legislators – to understand how important our public schools are and to work together to improve them.

■ PFLAG wrong

It appears that those who claim to promote tolerance and a desire for the homosexuals in our society to be seen as "contributors to society" are talking out of both sides of their mouths this holiday season.

The leadership of (PFLAG) Parents, Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays along with the Triangle Foundation are telling their members and supporters to place fake $5 bills into the perennial Salvation Army kettles across the state in protest.

A statement from the PFLAG Detroit Chapter page tells members to "Let the Salvation Army know that you oppose their decision to rescind the domestic partnership benefits offered by the western states.

Thanks to PFLAG Genesee County for the "I would have donated $5.00" bill that you can give to the Salvation Army. Simply Print and place in the Salvation Army's Bucket."

Anyone visiting the PFLAG Web page can access and print these bills that read:

"I would have donated five dollars, but the Salvation Army's decision to discriminate against gay and lesbian employees prevents my donation now and in the future."

Other Michigan chapters in Jackson and Grand Rapids have taken the same stance and are encouraging their supporters to follow suit. And in Cleveland Ohio, the PFLAG chapter there has gone as far as to replicate the American one dollar bill and changing it into a three dollar bill for placement into the Salvation Army kettles.

So it seems that these local homosexual support groups are using social sabotage efforts to bankrupt an organization that offers help to the poor and needy no matter what their sexual orientation is. And in turn, they (PFLAG and company) ask that the remainder of society treat them as equal, productive and contributing members even though they are conducting themselves in a very narrow-minded, hateful and selfish manner.

No matter side you are on with regards to the sexual orientation issue, you should ask yourself if the poorest of poor should be used as pawns by the homosexual activists in society to make their point.

If the homosexuals in society are truly as caring and concerned about the quality of life and taking part in the leading productive lives in peaceful coexistence with others, why are they taking food, clothing, shelter and funds away from those too poor, hungry, sick and or weak to defend themselves?

I for one plan to do my part to try and make up for the small-minded efforts of PFLAG by donating to every red Salvation Army kettle that I see. Please join me in bringing a little joy and love to those who are in most need this time of year.

■ Lame ruling

On the ruling in favor of the gay display: I think this is the lamest ruling since we decided it was OK to murder the innocent unborn and exonerate each of us from the guilt. Is it me or was school designed to learn the basics in reading, writing, and arithmetic?

I can see it now: OK class we need to hurry up and finish the chapter on parts of speech so that Johnny has time to tell you why he has decided to have sex with other boys instead of girls. Please! Next thing you know the pedafiles will have their say as to why they want to have sex with children, and we will all have to listen cause it would violate the first amendment not to!

Oh one more thing: now that the gays are allowed to publicly "educate" our children on their agenda, can our children publicly pray in school each day to ask for God's blessings?

■ Court updates

I would like to take this opportunity to update your readers on where things stand on the new judge for the 35th District Court. State Rep. Bruce Patterson, State Senator Thad McCotter and myself have been working diligently to accomplish this goal.

It has been a difficult fight because there are many other areas of the state that feel they need a new judge as well. However, through the efforts of Bruce Patterson, who has been our leader on this issue, the idea has not yet been rejected. This is significant because other areas have been told "no."

Bruce has worked tirelessly on 35th District Court issue and helped defeat a plan that would have split up the 34th District Court. Due to his hard work, a proposal that was under consideration to split up the 35th District Court and add one judge to the 35th was laid to rest. We all want to see a new judge in the 35th, but not at the expense of other well-run courts in the area.

Bruce is currently leading negotiations with Governor (John) Engler on getting a new judge in the 35th and we are hopeful that this can be accomplished. But be assured that even if we are not successful in our effort it will not be from a lack of trying. This is an important issue and we shall do our best to succeed.

■ Drinking driving kills

On Sept. 11, we were horrified and devastated when thousands of people were struck down in a violent, senseless act. Each year, 16,000 people are struck down in violent, senseless acts. Each year, 16,000 innocent people are killed by people who drink and drive. This year, my daughter was one of them.

Anna was only 19. She was beautiful, smart, and talented. But more important than that, she was kind, giving, and full of joy. She had a wisdom and faith beyond her years. She was a friend to everyone she met, young and old alike. She touched so many lives that the church couldn't hold all the people who came to her funeral. But she could have touched so many more.

When those planes slammed into the World Trade Center towers, we all wanted to do something to help the victims and their families. We wanted to do whatever we could to prevent such a thing from ever happening again.

I am hoping that we can work with equal determination to prevent alcohol related crashes...to prevent people who drink from slamming their cars into innocent people.

Please remember, especially during the upcoming holiday season, that it's not just drunk drivers who are the problem.

Even one drink impairs your abilities...and not just your physical abilities, but also your ability to judge whether or not you are capable of driving safely.

And if people ask why you are refraining from drinking or from serving alcohol just tell them that a friend of yours was killed by someone who drove after drinking. Anna would have been glad to be called your friend.

■ Project Blue Light

As we begin to decorate our homes for the upcoming holiday season, I encourage all citizens to participate in "Project Blue Light" to show support for Law Enforcement. Display a blue light in the window or use strings of blue lights in other holiday decorations.

"Project Blue Light" is a tribute to those who continue to work the streets of America and those who made the supreme sacrifice in service to their profession.

Police Officers are trained to deal with many dangerous situations and taught to expect the unexpected. Still, having to be on constant high alert since the terrorist attacks began on Sept. 11 can take its toll.

Let us show the police that we know they are out there protecting us and that we do appreciate them.

Shine your blue light for law enforcement.

FBI questioning raises hard constitutional issues

Last week marked the 60th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. The national mood of outrage led to the triumphant American entry into World War II. It also led to the shameful internment of hundreds of thousands of Japanese-Americans.

And last week FBI agents began to interview 560 people who are 18 to 33 years old, from Middle Eastern or Islamic countries, who are living in southeastern Michigan on non-immigrant tourist, student or business visas. The interviews are part of a nationwide effort to contact more than 5,000 people to determine if they have been recruited by or have information about Osama bin Laden's terrorist organization, al-Qaeda.

Phil Power

To his credit, U.S. Attorney for southeastern Michigan Jeffrey Collins has said the interviews should be conducted in the "least intrusive manner possible," that those interviewed could be accompanied by a lawyer and should be advised that none are suspected of terrorism. But I've heard a lot of stories about the fear and alarm experienced by people who got the government letter inviting them to be interviewed.

Sure, it's easy to say that if they're innocent and want to cooperate, they have nothing to be worried about. But I didn't get the letter; my stomach isn't churning as I drive by the police station on my way to work.

Nationwide, 1,200 people were detained shortly after the terrorist attack on the World Trade Center. Of the 600 or so still in custody, around a dozen are being held as material witnesses to the outrage, 60 or so are being charged with lying to federal agents and the rest are being held for unspecified violations, presumably of immigration laws. Most of their names are still being kept secret; some have lawyers, some do not.

The bedrock legal doctrine of habeas corpus (literally, from Latin, "we have the body") is intended to make sure the government does not arbitrarily and in secrecy throw somebody in the slammer for an indefinite period without being charged in a public proceeding with a specific crime. Attorney General John Ashcroft first said that names of those detained were being kept secret to preserve their privacy. He then argued that to release the names would advertise to al-Qaeda who we had picked up.

In his forceful testimony last week before the Senate Judiciary Committee, the Attorney General reasoned that the country is at war and therefore winning the war against terrorism and keeping Americans safe from terrorists justifies what in normal times would be regarded as excessive measures by the government. The response from civil libertarians and some senatorial critics is that it's especially important at moments of crisis to hold fast to the principles that define and guarantee just why we are in the right in the war against terrorism.

Sure, it's easy to say that if they're innocent and want to cooperate, they have nothing to be worried about.

I admire people who are blessed at all times with the ability quite clearly to distinguish right from wrong. Whether they're best described as "true believers" or "terrible simplifiers," they have the advantage in crisis times like this. The effectiveness of their certainty is that they need not concern themselves over shades of gray. Things are either black or white, and that's that.

Well, things in the real world are rarely that simple.

Interning Japanese-Americans after Pearl Harbor seemed like the right thing to do at the time. But in wartime back then there wasn't much public debate or discussion. And the verdict of history now is that the episode is among the most shameful in American history.

The contending views are powerful. On the one side, "the Constitution is not a suicide pact," as Justice Robert Jackson argued 60 years ago. On the other side, our government should be of laws, not of men or of particular circumstances, as John Adams pointed out during the debate over the adoption of the Constitution.

That's why a robust public debate about whether the government is going too far, too fast in the war against terrorism is so important, whether it's the U. S. Senate or the Detroit chapter of the ACLU raising the questions. Attacking those questions and that debate as unpatriotic is to miss the point entirely.

Don't let technology, work, worries keep you from true meaning of holiday season

The calendar says it's Christmastime but you'd never know it by looking outdoors. It's hard to get into the spirit of the holidays in 60 degree, balmy weather, but don't fret. This is Michigan and it is December. Any time soon Michiganders will be knee deep in snow and complaining about frigid temperatures. So, mellow out and enjoy the imitation spring.

This year thousands of Americans are having their own difficulty "getting into" the spirit of Christmas after the 9-11 tragedies. Losing loved ones is always hard no matter what the season. Those first gatherings with empty chairs make even the happiest festivity feel strange and unimportant in comparison to everything else. But gathering together as family and friends, showing love and support for each other, is important, particularly to those grieving. If ever there were a time when friends and family could make a difference in someone's life, certainly it's now.

Maybe that's what holidays are all about – getting together with people we don't often take time to treasure in the everyday hustle and bustle of life. It seems that lately there's very little time left at the end of the day for spending with those we love.

Our personal lives are put on hold while things of more importance take precedence – often work related things like paperwork, expense reports, research, and perhaps the biggest culprit of all, e-mail.

Yep, there's no doubt technology has invaded our lives forever, ironically keeping us electronically connected while driving us further apart as caring human beings. While Baby Boomers and the X Generation let computers dictate how they spend their time, the senior generation is often left out in the cold, unable to participate from lack of technological know-how. They are not members of the electronic age. Many do not wish to become one either.

And in 100 years from now, when all of this makes very little difference, who will be the better for it? The electronic fools who sacrificed personal relationships and time spent with those they loved doing little things like sharing a cup of coffee and listening to each other's dreams, or the traditional-minded seniors who still enjoy swapping stories and being together with family members in the same room watching television at night and wondering, who the heck comes up with the questions for "Who Wants to be a Millionaire?"

This holiday season, why not look into your heart and find the true meaning of Christmas, right where it always was, just temporarily blocked by outside forces and unimportant things eating away at your potential?

Ultimately, we all control our own destiny, so why are we so driven by impersonal forces? Success and job security play a huge role in how we live our lives and the sacrifices we make along the way. But is that what's most important? Is that what should consume us? Is that really the lesson plan of life? If the tragedies of 9-11 taught one thing, surely that would be to treasure the time we have on earth with those closest to us, knowing that life is precious and in limited supply.

This holiday season why not look into your heart to find the true meaning of Christmas, right where it always was, just temporarily blocked by outside forces and unimportant things eating away at your potential?

This year spend time with someone who's hurting, check-in on seniors who live alone, volunteer to help the needy in your community, donate your help to local animal shelters, surprise the children's ward of any hospital with small gifts and toys, or contact the Salvation Army to see how you can help others less fortunate than yourself – share your bounty with the world and reap the rewards of your efforts. After all, that is what life is all about.

Airport says it has enough concessions despite delays

BY KURT KUBAN
STAFF WRITER
kkuban@oe.homecomm.net

In the same week Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport opened a major new runway, officials confirmed a number of shops planned for the airport's new midfield terminal won't open when the terminal is unveiled in February.

According to Metro spokesman Len Singer, the delay has come about because New York concessionaire Select Service Partners withdrew from the midfield terminal project in late September. Select Service was to open 15 shops and restaurants in the McNamara Midfield Terminal.

Despite the delay, Singer said Metro passengers will still have plenty of options to eat, drink or shop when the terminal opens Feb. 24. He said the terminal's other 65 vendors are all on schedule to open on time.

"When the terminal opens, there will be plenty of restaurants, shops and beverage providers available for customers," Singer said.

According to Singer, Wayne County officials have split Select Service's space into five different bids, which went out to the public in late November. He said the number of shops is dependent on what kind of proposals come in from vendors.

"We have separated this into five separate bids, so local businesses would have a better opportunity to provide concessions in the new terminal," he said.

"We would like two Coney Island-like concepts, and at least one sit-down restaurant, which could be a national chain such as a TGIF Fridays. Other than that we are open to all ideas. We just want to make sure that the concept is appropriate for the available space."

Singer said all the proposals should be in by February, and the hope is some of the shops will be open for business this summer.

"If everything goes absolutely perfect, and we get these projects on the fast track, early summer is a real possibility for some of these places," he said.

New runway

The news of the delay threatened to overshadow the Tuesday opening of the airport's new 10,000-foot, $225 million runway, which gives Metro a total of six runways.

According to Metro spokesperson Michael Conway, the new runway, officially commissioned as Runway 4L/22R, will mean less delays for passengers, because three planes can now land simultaneously.

"For passengers, this new runway means less delays, more opportunities for more destinations, and more frequent flights to current destinations," Conway said. "What an advantage for our community."

The new runway was unveiled Tuesday at a ceremony attended by Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara and several Federal Aviation Administration officials, including Jane F. Garvey. Garvey said the new runway will give Metro advantages over some of the nation's other major airports.

"Nationwide last year, a large number of commercial flights were delayed or canceled. While much of that was due to weather, many of the nation's large airports have had trouble meeting air traffic demands," Garvey said.

"This new runway will give Detroit Metropolitan Airport one of the most efficient airfields in the country."

Telling radio stories to a live theater audience

If Sue Zizza invested in the next "sure thing," she'd put her money into audio drama — plays and stories produced for radio, Webcast or cassette and CD.

Zizza, an independent audio producer and sound designer from New York, heads the National Audio Theatre Festivals, Inc., an organization dedicated to developing audio theater. She calls audio storytelling "a sleeping giant" in the arts and entertainment business.

"It's a small industry that is in the process of waking up and looking around and saying, 'where do we go next?' " she said. "Look at how the audio book industry has done. It started small and look at it now. It's an ever growing industry."

An audio book is printed material read on tape, usually by a single narrator. Audio drama or radio theater is written for the ear. It goes beyond simple narration to include dialogue, sound effects and music. And it includes both contemporary stories and old time radio shows.

"The same people listening to audio books, given the opportunity, are buying audio theater," Zizza said. "We are finding more interest on the national level for the art of audio theater and for training in the art.

"There is a growing audience for this. It's a matter of education - not educating the consumer, but educating the people who make advertising and marketing decisions that there is in fact an audience for this."

At least two upcoming events in southeastern Michigan seem to bear out her notion.

Garrison Keillor's fans snatched up tickets faster than you could say "Lake Wobegon," for his live radio broadcast from Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor. Tickets to A Prairie Home Companion, Public Radio International's weekly mix of Keillor storytelling, skits and music, sold out in a week. Fans can listen to the show at home when it is broadcast live at 6 p.m., on Saturday, over 91.7 FM. Or meet Keillor at 2 p.m., Sunday at the Borders store in downtown Ann Arbor.

Meanwhile, Marty Bufalini, a writer and independent producer from Grosse Pointe, will direct a cast and sound effects crew through radio-style performances of It's a Wonderful Life, this weekend on the Second City stage in downtown Detroit. Shows are at 2 p.m., Saturday and Sunday. The troupe also will broadcast live over WKQI, 95.5 FM at 8 a.m., Friday.

"I've been doing radio shows around town for five or six years," said Bufalini, who produced his first few audio theater

FILM

Not Another Teen Movie stars speak out

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homecomm.net

Just as the Wayan Brothers managed to make good fun of slasher films with Scary Movie I and II, Director Joel Gallen found another genre worthy of spoofing – teen movies.

In Not Another Teen Movie, opening Friday in metro area theaters, Gallen assembles a cast of characters that reflect the most loved, hated and memorable names from the past two decades of teen-centered cinema. Risky Business kicked off Tom Cruise's film career and brat pack films like Pretty in Pink, Sixteen Candles and The Breakfast Club made cherry-haired Molly Ringwald an unparalleled teen icon.

Now films like American Pie, Cruel Intentions and Bring It On continue the tradition, adding more shock value than films released in the 1980s could've mustered.

"Basically it's making fun of our own industry," said Jaime Pressly, who portrays Priscilla, "The Bitchy Cheerleader" in the film. "It's hilarious."

In November, Pressly and fellow cast member Eric Christian Olsen (Austin, "The Cocky Blonde Guy") visited Birmingham on a tour to promote the film. During a press interview at the Townsend Hotel, the actors confessed to being true fans of the teen genre. When asked which member of the John Hughes brat pack they wished they could be, Pressly and Olsen lit up.

"I think I might've been the Ally Sheedy (character) in The Breakfast

Please see TEEN, B2

Not your average high school: At John Hughes High, cheerleaders like Priscilla (center, portrayed by Jaime Pressly) rule the school. Not Another Teen Movie opens in theaters Friday.

Snowy teen flick: If you like beer-drinking snowboarders, boy-meets-girl plots and buxom babes, you'll like this movie dude.

Characters make Out Cold worth a look

BY CHRISTY LEMIRE
AP ENTERTAINMENT WRITER

NEW YORK (AP) – How cool would it be to work at Bull Mountain? 'Cause really, you don't work. As the guys in Out Cold prove, you snowboard all day, then drink beer, then snowboard some more.

Sometimes you snowboard WHILE you drink beer, in a game called King of the Mountain. See, you have to board down the entire mountain with a full mug in your hand, and whoever has the most beer left at the bottom is the king. Dude! It should be an Olympic sport!

But one day, the high-altitude hijinks come to an abrupt halt for Rick (Jason London) and his slacker buddies, Luke (Zach Galifianakis), Anthony (Flex Alexander) and Pig Pen (Derek Hamilton).

Entrepreneur John Majors (Lee Majors) – a stereotypical, cigar-chomping good ole boy who wears a cowboy hat – buys the Alaskan resort and turns it into a yuppie haven, complete with sushi and espresso.

This all makes the movie sound far more complicated than it is, however.

It's basically a low-rent remake of the 1984 low-rent teen-age sex comedy Hot Dog ... The Movie, instead it has snowboarders instead of skiers. 'Cause, like, nobody skis anymore, duh!

Brendan and Emmett Malloy – first-time directors credited as "The Malloys," as if we're supposed to know who they are – have basically created a feature-length version of those videos that are on a constant loop at surf and ski shops. The snowboarding IS impressive, though, featuring stunts from some of the world's top pro boarders.

It's easy to make fun of this movie for being mindless, sophomoric, predictable, you name it – especially with Majors, the Six Million Dollar Has-Been, as its big-name star. And it is all those things. But the characters are pretty likable, and the cinematography of snowboarders carving perfect S-turns through pristine snow is gorgeous.

And Out Cold wouldn't be complete without a Playmate of the Year – the blond, buxom Victoria Silvstedt (1997) replacing the blond, buxom Shannon Tweed (1982), who appeared in Hot Dog before going on to make Cannibal Women in the Avocado Jungle of Death and Cold Sweat.

But we digress.

Silvstedt, an Anna Nicole Smith look-alike, plays Inga, John Majors' Swedish stepdaughter who likes to ride mechanical bulls and go hot-tubbing in the snow, naturally.

Majors' other daughter, Anna (Caroline Dhavernas), happens to be a girl Rick met and immediately fell in love with in Cancun. So when she shows up with her dad at the Bull Mountain pub where Rick and his buddies hang out, he gets to quip in a shameless Casablanca reference, "Of all the bars in all the ski towns in Alaska, why did she have to walk into this one?"

But Anna is engaged to be married, and everyone knows that Jenny (A.J. Cook), a cute, laid-back snowboarder chick, is a much better match for Rick anyway.

So will Rick and his friends take back the mountain in the name of all that is pure and right in this world? Will Rick and Jenny end up together?

Dude, you know the answers to those questions.

Out Cold, a Touchstone Pictures release, runs 89 minutes.

Club," said Pressly. "She's someone no one would think I'd play, and someone I'd love to play."

The reclusive "basket case" Allison Reynolds does seem far from Priscilla the cheerleader, particularly for the stunning blonde actress.

Olsen said without a doubt, he'd choose a John Cusack character – most likely the role as awkward, sensitive Lloyd Dobler in Cameron Crowe's Say Anything. Yet it's hard to imagine Austin – who speaks in ignorant rhymes throughout the movie – hoisting up a radio blaring the romantic song In Your Eyes to get the girl.

"The films in the 80s were so good," said Pressly. "It got to the point where they came back." She was actually part of that revival, earning a role in the romantic teen comedy Can't Hardly Wait six years ago.

"This is really big right now," she said. "So many things came out of that (movie)." Pressly's credits also include the television show Jack and Jill and movies Tomcats and Joe Dirt.

What separates Not Another Teen Movie from the rest is its blatant ability to examine and emulate a genre devoted to teenage behavior. The story here follows Janey Briggs (Chyler Leigh) on her transformation from glasses-and-ponytail simplicity to near Prom Queen material. She's the object of a bet between popular jock Jake Wyler (Chris Evans) and his cocky friend Austin (Eric Christian Olsen) and the object of affection for her best friend, the utterly obsessed Ricky (Eric Jungmann). Meanwhile, Jake's ex-girlfriend, Priscilla (Jaime Pressly), has found someone new – a camcorder-toting boy named Les (Riley Smith).

The John Hughes High School's Freshmen "Virgin Posse," Mitch (Cody McMains), Bruce (Samm Levine) and Ox (Sam Huntington) are trailing after a new foreign exchange student (Cerina Vincent). And Sadie (Beverly Polcyn), the 90-year-old undercover reporter has been spending a little too much time with Catherine (Mia Kirshner), "the cruelest girl in school."

"You cross a lot of lines that haven't been crossed before," said Olsen. His credits include the film Pearl Harbor and television shows like Smallville, Get Real and ER.

"We push the limit so much in this movie," added Pressly. "Even though we spoof everything, it's still so original."

Even the actors being "spoofed" in the film agreed to make cameo appearances – which Pressly and Olsen consider a testament to the good spirit shared by its cast.

"I laughed for two straight months," said Olsen.

The humor of Not Another Teen Movie isn't for everyone. The actors are quick to admit that. Pressly said she isn't a fan of "sick humor" but the shock factor made the film that much funnier. "Yes it grossed me out in certain parts," she said. Olsen compared it to a train wreck, saying as much as you don't want to watch some scenes, it's hard not to look.

Like it or not, Not Another Teen Movie proves one thing – parodies are here to stay.

performances at Greenfield Village in Dearborn. "I did a tremendous amount of work when I started. I searched all over for scripts. I started doing It's a Wonderful Life three or four years ago. This is our second year with Olympia Entertainment."

Olympia expanded the group's performances this year. If needed, they'll add a Dec. 22 show.

"It's a Wonderful Life is such a perennial favorite. It's such a feel-good script. I do have other scripts. I have a pretty good script of Christmas Carol but it's done other places. Meadow Brook (theater) does it every year," Bufalini said.

"Nobody does It's a Wonderful Life, especially the way we do. People love it. It surprises me how much kids love it. People are fascinated watching those different characters come out of the same throats and by seeing how the sound effects are done. And hopefully, watching the director will be fun."

Bufalini, who also has taught broadcast performance at Wayne State University, will cue actors and sound effects crew from behind a music stand on stage. He'll also play three characters in the play.

Sara Fouracre of Beverly Hills, a morning show co-host at WKQI, has played the part of Mary Bailey for two years. WKQI morning show voice man, Eric Harthen of Pleasant Ridge, also returns this year to portray George Bailey.

"I made an audition tape and tried every voice. I played it on the phone for Marty," Fouracre said, recalling her informal audition last year.

"Every once and a while on the (WKQI) show, I get to do a character voice or parody or skit that Eric puts together for me. But mostly on the show we just try to be ourselves. This (It's a Wonderful Life) gives me a chance to do what I've always wanted to do, which was act."

Fouracre, a Birmingham Seaholm High School graduate, studied broadcast journalism and theater at Michigan State and completed the program at Specs Howard School of Broadcasting, before landing the job at Q 95.5.

"Radio acting is very different from theater acting. That's why I try to get the same people every year," Bufalini said. "I tell my students in my classes at Wayne State to use your body, gesture, use your face. Don't just read. Those are just chemicals on a piece of wood pulp. It's your job to make it come alive."

Bufalini hopes he and other audio drama enthusiasts will get a chance to perform again in the future.

"I'd like to see it go further, maybe do a one-hour show somewhere once a month," he said.

Zizza said funding is a major challenge for serious audio professionals.

"You need funding, resources and material. There are a lot of hobbyists out there. But if the product isn't good, it won't sell," she said.

Zizza isn't certain how many audio drama troupes nationwide regularly produce stories, but says they use a variety of venues – from the Web to radio.

"I can tell you we have over 5,000 people on our mailing list."

Fisher Theatre marks its 40th anniversary

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
SPECIAL WRITER

With its perfect acoustics and eloquent design, there is no other venue like the Fisher Theatre to Harry Nederlander.

"I think it's a building that will probably never be repeated," said Nederlander, 84, whose family company, Nederlander Co., runs the Fisher.

"It's so lavish and so beautiful and so fine. Today, I think the cost of putting that building up would be totally prohibited. Just look at the work in the lobbies."

Plenty of Detroiters have stared in awe at the lobbies and the magnificent architecture of the building on their way to an evening of theater.

The gem of the Detroit theater scene is currently celebrating its 40th anniversary.

In honor of the birthday, the Nederlander Co. and Wayne State University created the "Apple Award," a prize that will be awarded annually to a nationally recognized theater professional who has made significant contributions in his or her field. This year, the inaugural "Apple Award" – $10,000 and a crystal apple – will be presented to playwright Neil Simon at a black-tie gala in the spring. The award presentation was to occur Tuesday-Wednesday, Nov. 27-28, but has been postponed because Simon is recovering from back surgery. A new date will be announced soon.

"I think we've tried to judge people as we see them and out of the group we came up with a winner," Nederlander said about the decision to honor Simon. "It wasn't just a single shot to get somebody some publicity. It's very worthwhile."

In a press release, WSU President Irvin D. Reid echoed that sentiment.

"Wayne State University is extremely pleased that a professional of Mr. Simon's stature will be the first recipient of the Apple Award. This is an exceptional opportunity for our students to interact with a nationally renowned theater professional who has devoted much of his life to the arts."

Simon's resume reads like a Best of Broadway – Barefoot in the Park, The Odd Couple, Plaza Suite, Last of the Red Hot Lovers, The Sunshine Boys, Chapter Two, Biloxi Blues, Lost in Yonkers, The Goodbye Girl among others.

The award was named after Nederlander's mother, Sarah Applebaum Nederlander, who was affectionately known as "Apple."

"The biggest kick I get out of it is the memory of my mother. That's where the 'Apple' came from. She was quite a woman. She had a lot to do with the business, keeping things together. Nothing runs 100 percent all the time," he said.

The Fisher also marks its anniversary with a cleaning, new wallpaper, carpeting and air conditioning. It's 40th season kicked off in September with The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas. It winds up in May with the Pulitzer Prize-winning drama Proof.

Long history

The Fisher Theatre was designed as a 3,500-seat movie and vaudeville theater. Opening Nov. 11, 1928, it featured "Mexican-Indian art, banana trees, a goldfish pond and wandering macaws that audience members fed by hand," according to the Fisher's official history. It closed in December 1960.

The theater re-opened Oct. 1, 1961 after a $3.5 million facelift with a little more than 2,000 seats for theater-goers. David Tobias (D.T.) Nederlander, son of a Detroit cigar maker, began managing and booking productions, as he had done for the nearby Detroit Opera House. It soon became a favorite among theater actors. Mary Martin, Carol Channing, Joel Grey, Bernadette Peters and Lynn Redgrave have performed on the Fisher Theatre stage. The venue has hosted world premieres of

The Reindeer Section invades Glasgow

When forming a supergroup with 15 musicians, getting the entire band together to perform a show sounds impossible. The Reindeer Section hasn't appeared live with a complete line up yet.

Featuring various members from Glaswegian darlings like Mogwai, Belle and Sebastian, Arab Strap, Eva and Astrid, and the brainchild of Snow Patrol's Gary Lightbody, the band lends itself more easily to a studio project. And its music can stand alone.

Stephanie Casola

On Ya'll Get Scared Now, Ya Hear! Lightbody intrigues, rather than frightens. It all began when he approached friends in the Glasgow music scene in the middle of a Lou Barlow gig. "We were all out one night and I said 'Let's make a record.' I don't think anyone expected anything to happen. The next day, I wrote the record and we went in and did it."

He makes it all sound so simple. But in Glasgow, it's not unusual for a musician to play in multiple bands or sit in on someone else's record. "It brought everyone together in a really nice way," Lightbody added.

Revealing

He is awfully modest when it comes to his songs, many of them heart-breaking and romantic. "It's kind of a safety net record, to be honest," he said. "For me, I've always been in a relationship. I'm a serial monogamist. This is the first time I've been single in seven years and its kind of (like) wanting to be a warm blanket or a hug."

The Reindeer Section

- Kidd Dynamo
- Ian Archer
- Laeto
- Low
- Slade
- T-Rex
- DJ Laurent Garnier
- And You Will Know Us By The Trail of Dead
- The White Stripes
- The Strokes

Compared to his work with Snow Patrol, Lightbody said the process of making Ya'll Get Scared Now, Ya Hear! went quickly. The pressure was off. An element of spontaneity went into this record. Some of the musicians had just popped their heads into the studio for a listen, and were handed an instrument or microphone.

In the Section, Gary Lightbody is accompanied by John Cummings (Mogwai, guitar), Jenny Reeve (Eva, violin and vocals), Colin Macintyre (Mull Historical Society, vocals), Aiden Moffat (Arab Strap, vocals), Jonny Quinn (Snow Patrol, drums), Mick Cooke (Belle and Sebastian, trumpet), Richard Colburn (Belle and Sebastian, various instruments), Gill Mills (BBC Radio, vocals), Micheal Bannister (piano), Willy Campbell (Astrid, guitar and vocals), Charlie Clarke (Mogwai, guitar), Gareth Russel (Astrid, bass), Bob Kildea (Belle and Sebastian, V-Twin, guitar) and Roy Kerr (drums).

Bright Star Recordings

When it came time to release a record, the choice was easy – a new label based in his hometown of Belfast called Bright Star Recordings. "I'd known Johnny Davis for ages," said Lightbody. "We're their first sort of proper release. We came in just at the right time and helped each other. They were really enthusiastic. They've done it the right way."

Lightbody takes the reigns in this band, right down to the cover artwork on Ya'll Get Scared Now, Ya Hear! The blue and gold "evil reindeers" are his own creation. Though he admits it's not far from stick figure art, the little mascots add a playful quality to a record of unrivaled beauty.

Live, the band might not have it all together. Lightbody admits "we were a bit shambolic to be honest." He describes the shows-to-date as "good fun," though, and isn't that the point?

Focused

Lightbody was drawn to music listening to bands like Nirvana. "It was his angst, but I could just tell he slept and drank music," he said. "I just saw passion in him and I wanted it so much. I'm not very good at anything else. Playing the guitar, that was me. I've not had any formal training."

It started with an inexpensive guitar he received at Christmastime, age 12. Now, Lightbody said, "I don't know what I'd do without it – listening to it, playing it - I love everything."

And he does mean everything. One peek at Lightbody's record collection reveals an eclectic mix. From Stevie Wonder to Roberta Flack, Tool to Fleetwood Mac, the Deftones to Nina Simone, he's garnered quite an array of music.

"Music is more important than anything else," he said. "Everything else is secondary. If you're gonna be passionate about something, you've gotta do it."

The big question remains, will The Reindeer Section ever make it over the pond for an American tour?

"We're going to do the next record in America," said Lightbody. "We might do some shows while we're over there."

Stephanie Angelyn Casola writes about popular music for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. She'll be waiting. In the meantime she can be reached at (734) 953-2130 or e-mail at scasola@oe.homecomm.net.

several musicals and plays including Hello Dolly, Fiddler on the Roof, Sweet Charity and Golden Boy.

"There have been some great shows," said Alan Lichtenstein, executive director of the Nederlander Co., which also operates the Masonic Temple Theatre. "Madame Butterfly and Angels in America were really spectacular shows. Certainly, Les Miserables was spectacular. The first time we played Les Miz, it was an enormous success. I really enjoyed Stomp. We were the first city in the country that played Stomp for a week. That was a pretty exciting moment."

Lichtenstein, who has worked at the Fisher since Jan. 1, 1981, is responsible for booking the productions that visit the theater each season. He calls it a "fun" job and somewhat of a challenge.

"Every year it's a little different. We try to find the best package of shows every season and determine how to market them. That's the fun part. Every show is a little different. It's nice to keep the lights on in Detroit. It's a great theater. The shows look good in there," Lichtenstein said.

The "quiet" theater scene in Detroit has allowed the Fisher to host several openings. "Shows can open very quietly in Detroit as opposed to all your eyes on San Francisco or Boston. They can work in peace and get a show."

Lichtenstein is just as in love with the Fisher as Nederlander is. When speaking about the venue, he sounds like a proud father talking about his child.

"It's just the intimacy and the acoustics. The shows sound good in there. Plus, there's not a bad seat in the house."

At Home

Accent your home with outdoor greenery

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

If you're thinking of dragging out the same old decorations and displaying them the way you always do, then take the advice of David McKnight.

Bring the outdoors in.

McKnight, owner of Emerald City Design in Plymouth, recommends a simple style that can lead to a breathtaking look. McKnight suggests grouping three evergreens ranging in height from three-foot to nine-foot, then decorate them with white lights and snow.

"Less is more," McKnight said. "It brings together the whole thought of the holiday time. It's an accent and it's not like you look at it and say, 'Whoa – that's too much.' "

Carole Nefe, a designer with Thrifty Florist in Westland, likes the natural look for her own Christmas tree. The tree in her home features bark birds, cork screw willow twigs, berries and very little else.

"I like trees with a natural look opposed to ones with too many ornaments," Nefe said.

McKnight advises that decorators trim branches from spruce, evergreen and holly trees, and add that greenery to create a festive look to any mantle or empty space.

Collect a few branches, snip them to the size you want and tie them together with a special ribbon. Add a few ornaments or pine cones if the look is too sparse for you.

Lay the arrangement on a coffee table among framed family pictures and you've incorporated the glorious beauty of nature with a homey, family touch.

Fruit is decorative

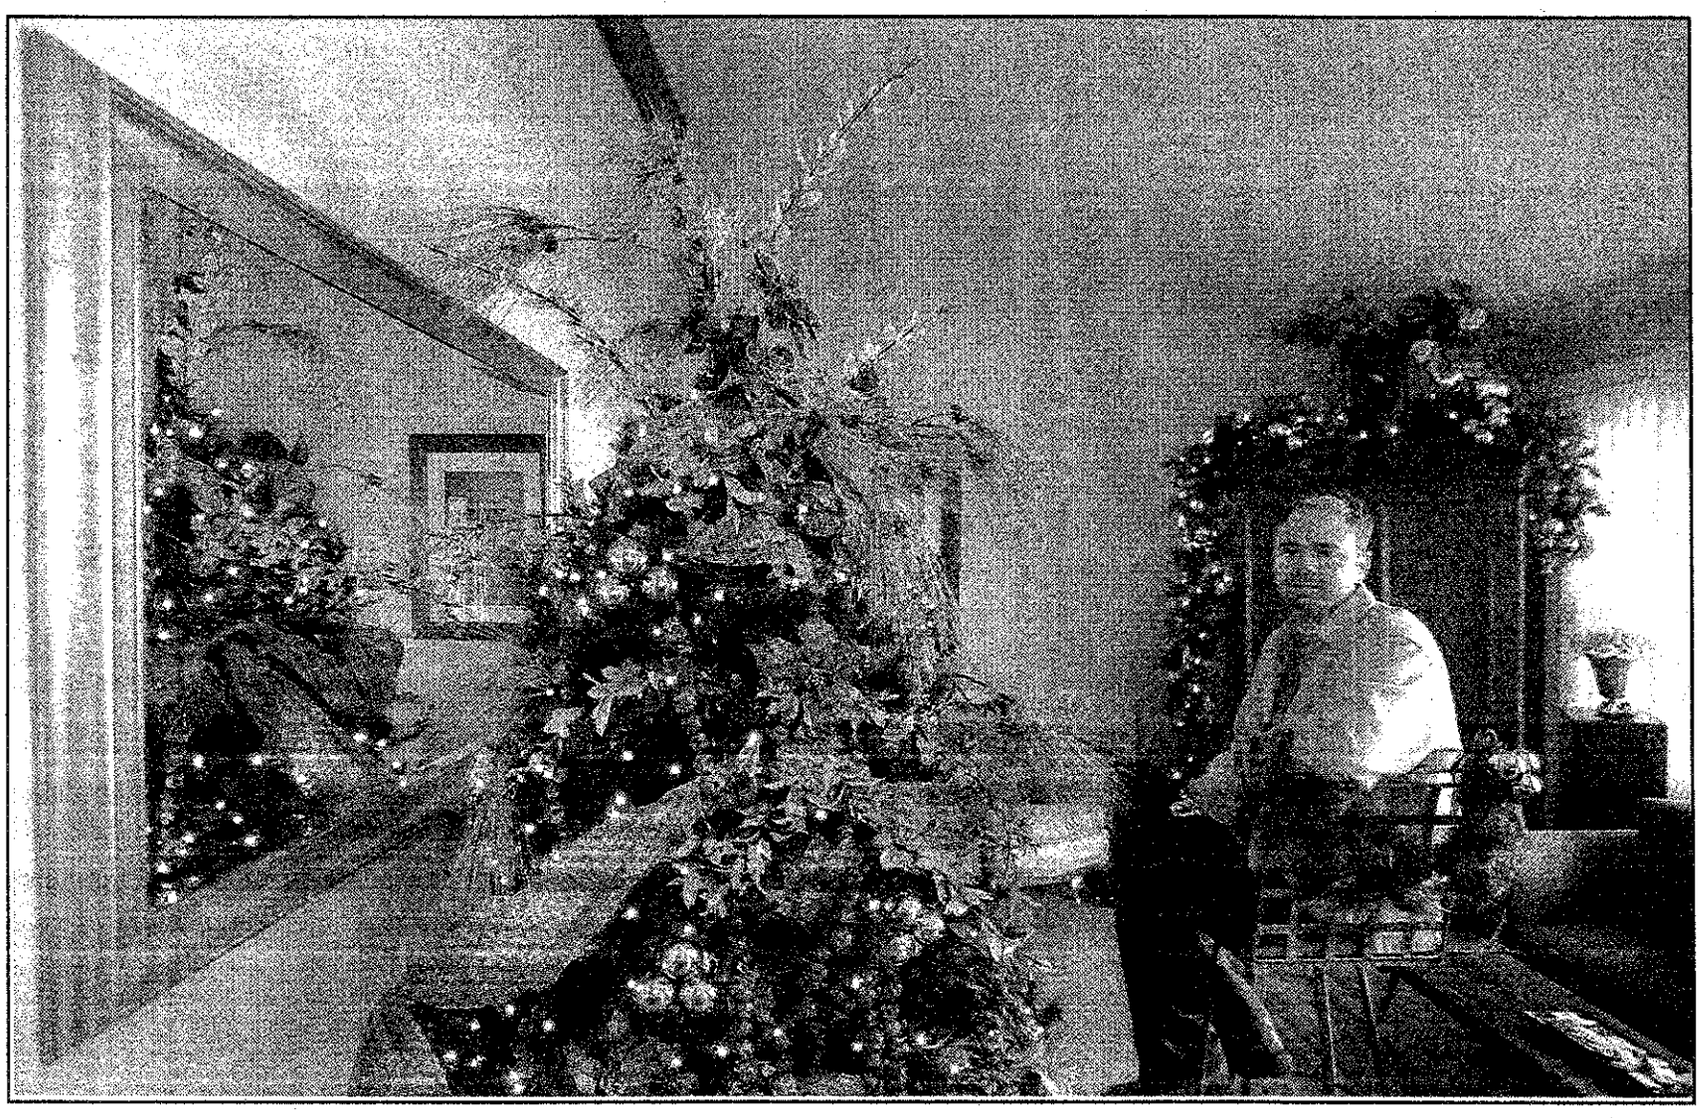
Following that natural theme, Carolyn Russo, owner of Flowers from Joe's in Livonia, says fruit ornaments in all kinds of sizes and materials are popular.

"Fruit is huge this year," she said. "Not only do you see fruit motifs in decorating right now, of course, but for Christmas, it's big." Crystallized fruit, sugared fruit and gold fruit are prevalent. "You're seeing it on trees and centerpieces," Russo said. "It's kind of an older southern tradition and it's coming back very strong."

Holiday decorating doesn't have to stop in the front rooms. Add seasonal cheer to bedrooms by stacking wrapped gift boxes and placing them inconspicuously in a corner. If the thought of wrapping empty boxes seems like a waste of time and money, use the gifts you've already purchased.

There's no rule that gifts have to sit under the tree until they're undressed on the big day.

"We're all about clustering different things and bringing things together," said McKnight, who has won several awards at the Festival of Trees display at Cobo Center in Detroit.



STAFF PHOTOS BY PAUL HURSCHMANN

Unique: David McKnight, owner of Emerald City Design in Plymouth, freshens traditional holiday decor by bringing the outdoors indoors.

While he stresses the beauty in simplicity for holiday decorating, McKnight also has a taste for the spectacular – if it's done right. Last year, Emerald City Design awed spectators at the Festival of Trees with a 6-foot, lifelike Grinch with a decorated tree below it's arms.

While a 6-foot Grinch might not be right for your home, there are some ways to entertain your guests with unusual table settings. Like, arranging the top of the table with greens, crystallized snow, ribbon and any other flat decoration. Top the arrangement with a sheer or organza fabric. The effect is confusing at first, but that's the idea.

Avoid oversized centerpieces that will dominate a table and ultimately ruin the dinner party, because there isn't enough room for the plates. "And make sure that you can see and talk to the people across from you," McKnight said.

If you're making your own centerpiece, think about grouping candles of various sizes and arranging them on a serving dish or wooden board and adding greenery.

Choosing the unusual, in everything you decorate, will elicit the excitement you want.

"Instead of trimming out a window with white lights, there's so many other opportunities, like trimming a door with gift boxes," McKnight said.

Decorating ideas to stay away from include trimming the roof line of a house and taking lights to a window six feet away. And at all costs, he added, avoid tacky Christmas tree skirts that don't fit around the tree.

"A skirt can be created with a piece of fabric or a table cloth that's bunched around the tree trunk, instead of something that goes half way around the tree," McKnight said.

If you're buying fabric for a tree skirt, you'll need about four yards of material to create the draping effect. Standby colors, like red, green or gold material are popular. Or pick an accent color that will match the hues of the tree ornaments.

A lot of people think that certain colors don't mix, like silvers with golds and creams with whites. But, they actually look good together if they're accented right, McKnight said. For instance, the silvers and golds look spectacular on a tree if they're grouped with small white lights creating a sparkling scene, he added.

A newer trend in decorating trees is to mix and layer light sizes and blend those that twinkle with those that don't. The key is to make sure that the entire tree has all varieties of the lights at all levels.

Decorating Christmas trees with a red, white and blue theme is extremely popular this year, explained Jerry Baker, a designer with Thrifty Florist in Westland.

"I've seen a lot of trees with a patriotic look going on since what happened Sept. 11," he said. "They're taking little flags and buying red and blue ornaments with white lights or using red, white and blue lights."

The burgundy poinsettia is another new item this year. It joins the rose poinsettia, that came onto the plant seen a few years ago. They join the traditional red and the less common pink, yellow, peach and peppermint flecked choices of the Christmas plant.

Homemade ornaments that the kids have made and cherish might not have the best craftsmanship or monetary worth, but they're packed with sentimental value and shouldn't be forgotten just because you've chosen to have a tree with a theme, or because you think it might make an elegant tree look folksy.

"Put them on another tree," McKnight said. "They really create a holiday atmosphere."

A lot of families let each child put up a small Christmas tree that reflects their individual styles and interests. Often times the tree is small and can fit on a tabletop in their bedrooms.

Homeowners are decorating with a passion that Russo said she hasn't seen in past years. They're filling every space, from powder rooms to guest rooms and most importantly, the foyer, which provides every visitor's first impression. A lot more people are starting to decorate earlier, too – by mid-November, than they had in the past, Russo said adding that she has seen a big interest in whimsical ornaments and figurines.

"People love snowmen," Russo said. "It's kind of a traditional thing that has exploded. Even if they have a real elegant house they still have a couple of snowmen here and there. We found that that is bigger this year than the Santa figurines."

A lot of homeowners are buying simple, but elegant fresh flowers, like a dozen red roses with fresh greens, to fill their rooms, she added.

After you've tried to incorporate the unusual, some of the traditional, in the season of traditions, are necessary, too. Just as every little girl can't leave the house on Christmas day without her new holiday tights, every house needs garland and other greenery packed with fresh berries to create a festive look.

If all the decorating is done and you still don't have the holiday spirit, McKnight recommends looking outside our homes and our-

"I think people do get tired of how Christmas has gotten commercialized," McKnight said. "If you involve yourself with a community center or a charity, since that's what Christmas is all about, people will get totally excited about the holidays."

Hip, hip, hooray for rose hips

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

"That which we call a rose/By any other name would smell as sweet," from Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, is a well-known phrase.

Another of Shakespeare's phrases, from Timon of Athens, not often heard, is, "The oak bear mast, the briers scarlet hips," so we do find that he knew about the fruit of the rose.

Those wonderfully red seed capsules don't receive the attention that roses do, so perhaps if we share some interesting facts about them we will all learn about rose hips and appreciate them more.

Rose hips contain much vitamin C. During World War II, syrup was made from rose hips to supplement the diet of soldiers because rose hips have a much higher content of that vitamin than citrus fruit. British volunteers gathered the hips from hedgerows to make the syrup.

Hips are still prized as food and medicine. Today we can gather our own hips (or heps, as they were called long ago) and make our own concoction.

The flavor of hips is tangy yet sweet, and they can be used fresh, dried or preserved. The most prevalent use today is to steep them for tea. Rose hip syrup, puree, jam, jelly and sauce can be used as is or as a flavoring in other recipes.

The process to prepare hips is quite involved. Trim off blossom and stem ends with scissors, cut in half lengthwise, remove the tiny hairs and seeds in the center, and rinse. Don't use aluminum utensils or pans, or the vitamin C could be destroyed.

Dry the hips by spreading the halves in a single layer on screens or trays and place in a dehydrator, an oven on the lowest setting, or a dark, dry, well-ventilated place. Store in glass jars in a cool, dark place.

If you wish to try a recipe for soup, here's one that is adapted from A Herb Cookbook by Painter, published in Auckland.

Combine 3 cups prepared fresh hips with 6 cups water in a saucepan and simmer for 25 minutes. Cool and drain hips, reserve liquid. Mince hips and combine with liquid and 1/2-cup sugar. Bring to a boil, stirring.

Combine 1 tablespoon each cornstarch and cold water and slowly stir into the hip mixture; boil until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and add 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 1/2-teaspoon each grated lemon rind and ground ginger; mix well.

Cool and refrigerate. Serve chilled, topped with a spoonful of heavy cream or sour cream in each bowl.

I understand now why we don't run across more recipes that use rose hips – what a job!

Never use hips from roses that have been treated with a pesticide that isn't clearly labeled as safe for food crops.

These bright orbs are also a delightful addition to dried flower arrangements and wreaths. The color lasts for many years.

You will find hips in clusters on old-fashioned shrub type roses like the rugosas. I didn't cut all the spent flowers from my Bonica roses and they are full of hips. Gather them now (we've had our first frost), or enjoy their colorful beauty on your shrub roses and let the songbirds enjoy them this winter.

Congratulations to the following South Oakland County Resource Recovery members, who received special recognition for their hard work at the recent Annual Volunteer Awards Program:

Howard Knorr of Beverly Hills; Peter Bray of Birmingham; Barbara Bini of Bloomfield Hills; John Keane of Bloomfield Township; Peggy Malnati of Farmington Hills; Celeste Watts of Franklin; Penelope Morris, Martha Humphrey and Holly Pinder of Berkley; Dena Serrato of Royal Oak; and Ann McInnis of Springfield Township.

Good garden tip: When you get your Christmas tree home, cut 1/4-inch from the bottom of the trunk and set it in warm tap water to keep it fresh. Keep water in the stand when you take it indoors. A spray of Wilt-Pruf will also hold moisture in the needles.

Ovens recalled, appliances need care to remain safe

A few weeks ago, I mentioned here the recall of certain microwave ovens produced by Whirlpool. At the time, these products were not being repaired, but now they are.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

The Whirlpool Corp., in close cooperation with the Consumer Product Safety Commission, has voluntarily recalled approximately 1.8 million microwave hood combinations to repair the problem. Other brand names made by Whirlpool are KitchenAid and Kenmore.

To determine whether you have one of these products, said to be sold between January 1998 and September 2001, and are probably mounted under the cabinets in your kitchen, view the serial number. If it starts with XC, stop using the microwave. If it's a Whirlpool or KitchenAid, call for service at (800) 785-8952. If it's a Kenmore, call for service at (800) 4-MY-HOME.

This recall is one of the most serious I can ever remember in all my years in this industry.

These units have the potential to cause fire, so the cost of this venture by Whirlpool will be staggering. I certainly hope that every one of the 1.8 million consumers who own this product will be notified of the problem.

■ An accumulation of steam and oil vapors in and around the wave-guide opening can lead to overheating and fire, which could cause personal injury and property damage.

It will take months – perhaps years – until every unit is repaired. During that time, some fires might occur. Whirlpool has offered to reimburse customers for an inexpensive microwave at $100 or less, a countertop model you can use until they come out and fix yours. The company will send you a check for the full amount when you send in your invoice. Whirlpool is also going to give you a new warranty for one year starting the day they fix your product. This is also another expensive part of this venture.

I must give Whirlpool an A plus in customer satisfaction.

Think of how many millions of microwave ovens have been produced and sold since 1970. Why would this happen on this particular brand and model? An accumulation of steam and oil vapors in and around the wave-guide opening can lead to overheating and fire, which could cause personal injury and property damage. With this statement made by Whirlpool let me give you a few words that I wrote in a past column.

Clean the ceiling

"If you don't clean the ceiling in your microwave oven, the food splatters will cook over and over again until they become a rock-hard substance. These areas can cause a sparking affect, which in turn can ignite whatever material is near the spark." Those of us who fix microwave ovens see this all the time because consumers miss the ceiling part when they are cleaning. Maybe the manufacturers of these ovens should put a little warning label where it is easily viewed that states: "Your warranty is void if you do not clean the ceiling."

I cried last year when a woman told me of her daughter, fresh out of college, who moved into her own apartment and died a short time later. The microwave caught fire and she died in the fire. Her lawyer can't even get an opinion on why the microwave oven caught fire.

There are 15,000 house fires a year in this country caused by the clothes dryers and yet most people just turn it on and walk away.

You wouldn't leave a loaded gun just sitting on the kitchen table, yet most homeowners don't pay enough attention to maintaining major home appliances. Look at the toaster in your kitchen. When is the last time you made sure it was free of bread crumbs?

Take care, my friends. Appliances can be like a loaded gun.

Stay tuned.

Key ingredients make dynamic photographs

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

I'm often asked by students and photography friends, "What makes a picture good? What separates the dynamic photograph from the ho-hum snapshot?"

There are a number of key ingredients that get a picture noticed and give it attention-getting power.

First is impact, sometimes difficult to describe but so important in the formulation of a good photograph. You might say that if a picture arouses feelings and emotions of joy, appreciation, excitement, even anger or sorrow, then that photograph most assuredly will have impact.

How do you obtain impact in your shot? Begin by selecting subject matter that is either unusual or is treated in an unusual way.

Use a special camera angle or perhaps a different lens. Place the subject in an unusual environment or try special filtration. Try shooting on a day with fog or mist or dramatic cloud patterns.

More than a snapshot: San Marco Cathedral provides the backdrop for this photograph of moored gondolas in Venice

Pay attention to good composition. Place the elements of your picture in the viewfinder in the strongest way possible. Try to express on film what you see and feel when taking your shot. Fill the frame for added impact and watch backgrounds for distracting objects.

A good picture will hold the viewer's attention and keep him or her thinking about the image. It will also stir up imagination. A good photograph will often have a story to tell that will have meaning and substance.

How best to put meaning in your shot is to photograph those subjects that capture your own interest.

If your own feelings become part of your photograph, you most certainly will produce a fine picture, one that will have more impact for others to enjoy.

Not only should a photograph say something worthwhile, but it should say it well. The picture must be well focused and have proper exposure.

Color saturation and contrast should be technically correct and your picture should be presented in a neat, professional way.

Also, sharpen your visual awareness and perception of the world around you. If you do, your photographs will be remarkably improved.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (734)953-2047 on a touch-tone phone. His fax number is (248)644-1314.

DOWNTOWN DECORATIONS
Decorations on shops in downtown Holly reflect the decorations popular during the time of Dickens in England. STUDENT'S SIDE OF LIFE

JENNY LYNN

Celebrate life by celebrating your birthday

It wasn't until late last night that I realized it was one my friend's birthdays. Then it occurred to me – everyone has a birthday whether he or she chooses to acknowledge it or not. I started to wonder when birthdays are no longer fun. When do they cross the line of being just another day in the year?

Recently, I watched my younger cousin mesmerized at the glow of the two candles on her birthday cake. I thought of how I celebrated my birthdays as a kid. Passing out cupcakes to my classmates was the highlight of my birthday. I remember counting down weeks, days, even months till my birthday. I am only 16 years old now, but the idea of birthdays has lost some of that magic, it's just not the same anymore. I go to school, go to swim practice, come home, do my homework, and then go to bed. It's practically a normal day – no big hurrahs for me.

■ 'Birthdays are also a celebration of life, and after the recent tragedies that the United States has undergone, the value of those special moments are priceless ...'

It doesn't really bother me that that's what happens on my birthday. I'm not a celebrity, my birthday isn't a national holiday. I was just wondering where has the fun gone? I have often heard adults talking about their birthdays as if they were a chore, or a depressing day. True, with each birthday, another year is added to your age, but isn't it worth it?

I encourage you to celebrate your special day. If not only to add another year to your age, but to remember and celebrate everything good that has happened over the last 12 months – or your life in general for that matter.

My friend, whose birthday I almost forgot, is 12 years older than me. She's married, has a family and is someone I've relied on to give me excellent advice. She's been through more than I have, but at the same time is young enough to help with the problems I face. We have drifted apart in recent months only communicating occasionally which is why I almost forgot her birthday.

I went to the Web site of our favorite band and sent her an e-mail card. A little impersonal, I know, but give me credit – I remembered before it was too late. I checked my e-mail the next morning to find that she had written me back. She complained of getting "old" (at the age of 29) and thanked me for sending the card. Evidently she has been having a rough past few weeks and she said this card really cheered her up. It doesn't take much to brighten someone's day and help them feel special.

Not everyone becomes "anti-birthday." Children have fun on their birthdays, and then there are also people like my Nana, who have fun everyday and enjoy life. My Nana is 84 years old and is proud of each one of those 84 years.

As people get older and have their own families, they tend to do more for their children's birthdays, and celebrate those over their own. But birthdays are also a celebration of life, and after the recent tragedies that the United States has undergone, the value of those special moments are priceless.

Celebrate your birthday and celebrate your life ... it's something that everyone should take time to do. To celebrate each year and what you have gained from it, rather than gripe about getting "older."

Jenny Linn is a 17-year-old senior at Franklin High School in Livonia and is in her second year working with the school newspaper, the Packet. Her hobbies include swimming and softball (she is on both school teams). She resides in Livonia.

Finished Product: Marilynn Irwin of the Livonia Garden Club show one of 76 centerpieces that were being made Saturday morning at Angela Hospice in Livonia. The garden club, volunteer students and scouts used live greens, red bows, red berry's and pine cones for the centerpieces to give to hospice patients and to families who lost their love ones. This was the eighth year that the garden club donated the materials and made the Christmas gifts.

Teen project beautifies hospice

Taking care: Angela Hospice Volunteer Kaitlin Hayes of Farmington Mercy High School, prepares a centerpiece last Saturday with the Livonia Garden Club.

Members of the Livonia Garden Club, with the help of members from the Angela Hospice teen volunteer program, assembled approximately 75 holiday centerpieces Saturday for hospice home care families.

"We are honored to be chosen by the generous members of the Livonia Garden Club for this project which benefits both the doers and recipients," said Nickerson.

This is the third year hospice volunteer and teen group coordinator Linda Nickerson has participated in the holiday project.

Helping hand

The Garden Club supplied fresh greens, pine cones, ribbons and candles for the project and guided the teen volunteers through the creative process of making holiday centerpieces. Sharing the centerpieces with patients and families who appreciate being remembered during the holiday season is a fulfilling end-result to the project say participants.

Teen volunteers have participated in many projects to benefit the adult and pediatric patients of Angela Hospice in Livonia. The group of teens is comprised of students from several area Livonia high schools including Churchill, Stevenson, Franklin and Ladywood.

Grace and Gratitude

The words "grace" and "gratitude" both come from the Latin word "gratus", which means favorable or pleasing, and from which we get the expression "gratis", which means a gift or favor that is freely given. We see the connection between God's grace and our gratitude in 'saying grace", which is expressing our gratitude for God's freely-given gift of food. How easy it is to forget, and thus to be unwittingly ungrateful for, all the wonderful things in our lives that come to us freely by the grace of God. Our families and friends, our health and wellbeing, indeed our very lives and the world we inhabit are truly gifts from our heavenly father. These are given freely to us and our Lord expects nothing in return, except our love and gratitude. Surely, this is a testimony to God's overflowing and abundant love for all of us. We do well to remember the ultimate source of this great bounty-our loving and gracious God. In turn, we should imitate his love through our charity to others.

O give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good: because His mercy endureth for ever..
King James Version - Psalm 118:1

never visualized I could write a book but I did."

A licensed occupational therapist at Providence Hospital, the Plymouth resident took three months leave of absence in 1999 to dedicate her time to writing. The result, she says, was something bigger than she ever expected. Journey of a Soul takes the hand of the reader and guides them through a better understanding of a higher self than the one they trust physically.

"I always had this intuitive feeling that there was something bigger out there than myself. It took me time to get used to it and now I know where it comes from and how to make sense of it. I always struggled with that and went the other way to an extent," said Feathers who describes her upbringing as "strict Catholic" in a family where she was one of 12 siblings.

Although her childhood was happy she says in her book that at times it was hard for her parents to share "special times" individually when their were so many children to divide their attention between. As an adult, she married into a relationship that was "happy and blissful" but ended due to a lack of nurturing. She goes on to say that a severe medical condition suffered by her husband added additional stress and pressure to their relationship — eventually leading to divorce.

Turning point

The catalyst for the change in her life emotionally, physically and spiritually came when she finally succumbed to the pain she felt for years and cried out for help. She says "He," answered her through the voice of a friend who was teaching an extended learning class. She was given the assignment to write very honest and straightforward letters to all the people she harbored anger toward, then burn them so nothing remained.

The exercise opened the flood gates to Feathers emotions. To this day she says know one could know the power of the exercise unless they do it themselves. She said she came to feel a strong sense of relief, peace, power, comfort and maybe most importantly, forgiveness.

From that point on, the Plymouth woman's life has been dramatically different. The journey she has taken has lead her to a better grasp of the healing powers she possess including clairvoyancy and the use of Reiki (hands-on technique for spiritual healing).

"Healing is not just done on one level but is multi-dimensional," said Feathers who has since resigned from her OT job at Providence Hospital. "You have to give yourself over to a higher spirit whether you call it God, Allah or Mother Spirit. I help guide people to a higher spiritual awareness once they open that door to understand the deeper meaning in life."

The Plymouth author describes her healing process in the book through chapters that cover "learning, healing ways, love, dimensionality, simplicity, reality and commitment."

Feathers is in a far different place in her life than she was a decade ago. She says she's learned by doing, what direction her life is going.

"There are days when I have woken up and thought I was going to do this and this and this but other things occurred and I realized it wasn't the right time for them to happen. That took some getting used to. You have to be patient during the process though and let things unfold as they will," said Feathers who credits meditation to bringing a calm and focus to her life.

Her metamorphosis has led her to a much happier self. Today she's involved in a new relationship, is looking forward to the birth of her first grandchild, the debut of Journey of a Soul and is wholeheartedly committed to writing two more books in a series of three.

'Bob's Job' teaches kids about work

Some people might have considered Tom Daldin and Rick Yarmy foolish for making the decision to create a children's television show together in Detroit. One considered himself crazy enough to quit his job in radio to try and make their dream a reality.

The result was Bob's Job, a program that shows children the childlike enthusiasm adults have when they truly love their job. It shows kids that you don't have to be an NBA superstar with purple hair and a $10 million endorsement deal to be happy, say creators. The program features real everyday working heroes who are happy, challenged, and fulfilled because they love what they do for a living. Episodes include features about a pilot, veterinarian and house builder.

After winning an Emmy for their second episode, Detroit Public Television, WTVS Channel 56, is airing the third episode of Bob's Job - Veterinarian. The show will air 8:30 a.m. Dec. 23.

Following the premier airing of the veterinarian episode, WTVS will air all three episodes of Bob's Job on consecutive Sundays at 8:30 a.m.

The show is different ... they shoot it documentary style and feature a character named Bob (played by Tom Daldin), who shares the fascinating and fun part of the adult work place with kids. Another great twist to the show is that the featured guest isn't simply shown on his or her job. The show's silly host follows them from the moment they roll out of bed in the morning, until their head hits the pillow at night. The first show features a real "day in the life" of an airline pilot.

Tom and Rick's goal is to show that if you love what you do for a living, any job can be fulfilling. You don't have to be a rock, sports, or movie star to have a fun, challenging and rewarding life.

21-5 run lifts Belleville past Rocks

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

Bob Brodie described it best: "It's hard to stop everything."

In its basketball home opener Tuesday, Plymouth Salem could stop very little of what Belleville offered — particularly in the second quarter, when the Tigers outscored Salem 21-5 in taking a 40-22 halftime lead.

That was more than the Rocks could overcome. The final was 64-49, Belleville improving to 3-0. Salem slipped to 0-2.

"They had many weapons," said Brodie. "They hit threes, they could fast-break, they scored off the glass. They don't waste any time (shooting) because they know they'll get the rebound.

"We didn't take our time (offensively) in the first half, and that hurt us. We did a better job of that in the second half."

Salem kept pace with the Tigers and their up-tempo style for a quarter, thanks to eight first-quarter points from Dave Hoskins. Still, Belleville led 19-17 after one.

What hurt the Rocks most was the Tigers inside-outside game, with 6-foot-2 senior guard James Holmes doing most of the damage. Holmes, shooting almost exclusively from the right-hand side at the top of the three-point circle, drilled five triples in the first half. He had 19 points before halftime, finishing with 23 for the game.

Holmes' outside punch effectively shredded Salem's defense. Brodie switched back and forth from man-to-man to a 1-3-1 zone, but nothing worked. Belleville did pretty much what it wanted.

"We knew their quickness would get to us," said Brodie. "If you go outside to stop them, they take you to the basket."

Which is what made Holmes' perimeter shooting so effective. "When we got him on the floor, we knew we had something special," Belleville coach Mike Krogel said. "The nice thing is, he's not the only card in the deck.

"We got a great game from Mike

Canton slips past Monroe

BASKETBALL

Great start, sagging middle, fantastic finish.

That was Plymouth Canton's basketball game Tuesday against visiting Monroe. The Chiefs jumped out to a 21-9 lead after one quarter, then allowed the Trojans to overtake them and take the lead going into the final quarter.

But Canton had a comeback of its own left. A three-point play by Steve Thornton, following an offensive rebound, with less than a minute left was a key factor in lifting the Chiefs to a 54-51 victory.

Canton improved to 2-1. Monroe is 1-1.

"After we got that first quarter lead, we relaxed," said Canton coach Jeremy Rheault. "Monroe pounded the ball into the post, then kicked it out for a three.

"But we fought back. We got some good defense, and we got a good game from our senior leaders. They did a good job."

The Chiefs' 12-point lead after one quarter shrunk to two at half (30-28) after Monroe outscored them 19-9 in the second period. The Trojans then took a 39-37 advantage after three quarters.

But Canton hung tough. Billy Gazsi led the Chiefs with 10 points. Brendan Murphy and Kyle Lasko added nine points apiece, and Andrew Meagrow had eight.

Salem could match last season's finish

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

It's a classic TV ad: Avis — we're No. 2 so we try harder.

Well, if Plymouth Canton's boys swim team, No. 2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association last season, plans to at least close the gap on the longtime defending champ, No. 1 Plymouth Salem, it will have to improve dramatically.

Because Salem doesn't figure to slip.

In fact, Rocks' coach Chuck Olson thinks his team might actually be better. "I think we have some talented kids," he said. "But things happen. All we can do is work through the season and look at the league meet.

"We're not going to sit back and get pushed around."

As Olson sat on the Salem pool deck discussing the Rocks' future, team members crowded around a bulletin board, reading a newspaper story about Canton's swim team and how it wants to push Salem.

Golden Goose

Finnerty's new indoor soccer facility is real kick

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

Bryan Finnerty is taking a year off from soccer — well, sort of.

At least the "Goose", his long-time nickname, won't be playing pro indoor soccer this season. To say he's out of soccer, however, would be very wrong.

This weekend, Finnerty and his partners will open the High Velocity Sports Center, located on Michigan in front of the Canton Softball Center. It is a 110,000-square-foot facility that will feature three full-size indoor soccer fields, two mini soccer fields and a roller hockey rink.

"This has been a long time in coming," said Finnerty. "The city's buzzing, getting excited."

It should be. These indoor fields won't be anything like those of the past, which were nothing more than concrete covered with artificial turf. Those surfaces weren't much different than playing on concrete, except falling on turf left nasty rug burns.

The indoor fields at High Velocity are covered with a rubber-based, grass-like turf that is far more cushioned than its predecessor and has more give. On artificial turf, a player's foot often stuck to the surface, which led to an abundance of ankle and knee injuries.

Deciding to go with this type field wasn't an easy decision, but in the end it gave the Canton location something no other indoor field in southeast Michigan had.

"Until the 11th hour we were going to go with the regular (artificial) turf,"

Please see SOCCER, D4

Turf time: Bryan "Goose" Finnerty (left photo) hasn't just put together another indoor soccer facility, but one that features the best type of indoor turf, the kind that feels and reacts like real grace. The High Velocity facility will feature three regulation-sized indoor fields, two smaller fields and a roller hockey rink.

Salem blasts Western, 13-6

Eight first-period goals — three of them by Kevin Wilson and two by John Shultz — were enough to carry Plymouth Salem to a 13-6 hockey victory over Walled Lake Western Saturday at Lakeland Arena.

The win boosted Salem's record to 5-0-1.

The Rocks led 8-1 after one period and 11-4 after two. Wilson finished with four goals and two assists, while Shultz had two goals and three assists.

Other scorers for Salem were Mark Nagel with two goals and two assists; Brad Proodian with a goal; Dave Gill with a goal and two assists; Mike Crowley with a goal and two assists; Bryan Young with a goal and an assist; and Dan Valentine with a goal.

HIGH SCHOOL HOCKEY

CC 3, Park Tudor (Ill.) 0: Redford Catholic Central broke a scoreless tie with three quick goals near the end of the second period to beat Park Tudor (Ind.) Saturday at the Redford Ice Arena.

The defending Division I state champions are 2-3 overall.

Pat Coldren's goal from Jeff Davis and T.J. Quatlander with 3:40 to go in the second made it 1-0. Sean O'Malley scored 1:10 later from Ryan O'Dea and Bill Makela.

O'Dea capped the scoring with 48 seconds left in the period on a power-play from Eric Giosa and Eric Reinhardt.

Sophomore Jim Blanchard made 12 saves in the CC goal to earn the shutout.

The Shamrocks had 32 shots on goal.

Chiefs finish 1st at Novi Team Duals

Talk about screw-ups.

Novi, perennially a power in wrestling, hosted the Novi Team Duals Saturday — except the Wildcats did not follow the weigh-in rules and had to forfeit its dual meets.

WRESTLING

Apparently, Novi went through weigh-in Thursday afternoon, instead of the required Friday deadline. Since the Wildcats had already gone through their maximum number of weigh-ins for the week, they were forced to forfeit.

Plymouth Canton didn't mind. The Chiefs came away with four dual-meet victories, beating Lake Orion 46-24; Oxford 39-30; an All-Star team comprised mostly of Novi wrestlers, 42-16; and the forfeit win over Novi.

"We are real proud of our guys," said Canton coach John Demsick of the Chiefs, now 10-1 in duals. "We would have enjoyed taking on Novi in the normal way and feel a bit deprived of the opportunity.

"Nonetheless, we are proud of our first-place finish."

Four Chiefs — Rob Schnettler (112 pounds), Doy Demsick (130/135), Chris Hosey (140/145) and Phil Rothwell (215) — went 4-0 for the day. Dan Bergsma (125) and Greg Musser (145) were 2-0, and Dustin Armer (125/130) and Steve Hogg (103) went 3-1.

The Chiefs host the Canton Invitational Saturday.

Whalers take weekend pair from Sting

The Plymouth Whalers got back on track in a home-and-home two-game series against the Sarnia Sting.

On Friday at Plymouth's Compuware Arena, the Whalers got a goal and two assists from Kris Vernarsky to beat the Sting 5-2. On Saturday in Sarnia, the results were a bit better for the Sting — but not much. James Wisniewski (from Plymouth Canton HS) got a goal and three assists to lead Plymouth to a 5-3 victory.

The two wins improved the Whalers' record to 22-5-4-1, best in the Ontario Hockey League and first in the West Division.

Sarnia, 16-16-1-2 and third in the West Division, tied Saturday's game at 3-all with goals by Juris Stals and Kris Newbury, both coming in the first two minutes of the third period. But the Whalers pulled away to the victory on scores by Vernarsky (from Wisniewski and Stephen Weiss) and Wisniewski (from Rob McBride and Vernarsky).

The Whalers led 1-0 after one period on a goal by Chad LaRose (assisted by Wisniewski and Cole Jarrett). They increased it to 3-1 after two periods, with goals by Jarrett (from Damian Surma and Wisniewski) and Weiss (from Nate Kiser) sandwiching a goal by Stals.

Jason Bacashihua had 29 saves in goal for the Whalers. Robert Gherson and John Barrow combined to make 32 saves for the Sting.

On Friday, Sarnia led early on a goal by John Hecimovic. Weiss' goal (from Vernarsky and Brad Yeo) tied it with 2:39 left in the first period.

Second-period goals by McBride (from Jarrett and Wisniewski) and Kiser (from Greg Campbell and Surma) pushed Plymouth to a 3-1 lead. Sarnia trimmed it to 3-2 with a goal by Eric Himmelfarb 3:12 into the third period, but the Whalers iced it with goals by Vernarsky (from LaRose) and Yeo (from Campbell and Vernarsky).

Bacashihua made 28 stops in goal to earn the victory. Gherson had 41 saves for the Sting.

MU clipped in consolation

MEN'S HOOPS

Well, at least it was closer.

But just like the Lions, it was another loss for Madonna University's men's basketball team Saturday in the consolation finals of the Bethel College Tournament. Indiana-South Bend held off the Fighting Crusaders to post a 91-87 victory in South Bend, Ind.

The loss was the seventh straight for Madonna, dropping them to 3-8 for the season. Indiana-South Bend improved to 7-3.

The game was close throughout, the Crusaders trailing 38-35 at the half. Their shooting was certainly no detriment: They converted 34-of-68 from the field (50 percent), better than South Bend's 29-of-65 (44.6 percent). And although Madonna was hardly sharp from three-point range (5-of-16, 29.4 percent), South Bend was worse (1-of-16, 6.25 percent).

The difference came on the boards and at the free-throw line. South Bend outrebounded Madonna, 45-33, and converted 32-of-41 free throws (78 percent). Madonna made 14-of-19 at the line (73.7 percent).

Mike Massey came off the bench to lead Madonna with 22 points, making 8-of-14 from the floor. Tony Jancevski (from Plymouth Salem) enjoyed his best game as a Crusader with 20 points, 11 rebounds and two steals, with Steve Horn adding 14 points and Noel Emenhiser netting 13 points and four assists. Joe Kofahl contributed eight points and three steals.

In Friday's tournament opener against Bethel College, the Crusaders put 90 points on the board — and didn't even come close, as the Pilots outscored them by 22 in the first half and 20 in the second en route to a 132-90 victory.

Massey's 23 points led Madonna. Horn added 14 points, five rebounds and five assists, John Bennett (Livonia Churchill) had 14 points and five boards, and Emenhiser finished with 12 points, 10 rebounds and four assists.

While the Crusaders shot well enough (38-of-68 from the floor, 55.9 percent) and they had the same number of rebounds as the Pilots, they committed 39 turnovers. Bethel had 18.

Six players reached double figures in scoring for Bethel, led by Thomas Jackson and Jake Parker with 21 points apiece. David Keister and Chris Adkins added 16 each.

Crusaders take Invite title

WOMEN'S HOOPS

Madonna University's women's basketball team made it two titles in four tournaments when it claimed the Scotty Invitational championship by beating Seton Hill (Pa.) 67-47 in Saturday's final at Edinboro (Pa.) University.

The game was close until the second half. It was tied at 14-all in the first half when Madonna put together a 15-8 run to take a 29-22 lead into the intermission. Seton Hill pulled to within three early in the second half, but a 16-2 run by the Lady Crusaders cemented the victory.

Four of Madonna's five starters scored in double figures, with Lindsay Simmon netting 13 points (on 5-of-6 floor shooting) and three steals and Carissa Gizicki also getting 13 points to go with nine assists and two steals.

Kathy Panganis added 10 points, seven rebounds and two steals, and Tera Morrill (from Westland/Livonia Franklin) had 10 points and six boards.

Mindy McClelland's 15 points paced the Spirit, with Cortni McGinnis adding 14 points.

The win boosted Madonna's record to 7-4 overall.

Lady Ocelots stumble

Schoolcraft College, ranked ninth in the NJCAA, had fourth-ranked and unbeaten Kalamazoo Valley CC on the ropes Saturday in the final of the Schoolcraft College Invitational.

But the Lady Ocelots couldn't maintain a nine-point, second-half lead, eventually falling 78-71 in overtime.

The loss left SC at 6-3 for the season. Kalamazoo Valley improved to 6-0.

The Ocelots led 44-35 with 13:29 left in the game, but KVCC drew even and led by three with 1:36 remaining before SC knotted it to force overtime.

But for the Ocelots, it ended there. KVCC scored the first seven points of OT and SC never caught up.

Devin Francois led the Ocelots with 26 points and 10 rebounds. Kera Hill and Kelly Grenan (from Redford Thurston) each added 13 points, with Grenan hitting four three-pointers and grabbing eight boards.

Danielle Williams topped KVCC with 25 points and 20 rebounds.

Hall. He's only 6-2 and he gets it done (inside). He carried us in the first part of the game."

Hall scored nine of his 15 points in the opening half, seven coming in the second quarter. The Tigers converted 7-of-14 shots in the period while limiting Salem to 2-of-8 shooting.

Also indicative of Salem's defensive problems: Belleville, despite its fast-pace game, had just two first-half turnovers, none in the second quarter. The Rocks, facing some full-court pressure, turned the ball over seven times in the second quarter and nine times in the first half.

It did get better for Salem in the second half, but not much. The Rocks did manage to close to within 12 on a Hoskins three-pointer with 1:30 left in the third quarter, but the gap never reached single digits.

Hoskins finished with 13 points to lead Salem. Pat Abraham and Brady Pastalaniec each contributed 10.

said Finnerty. These surfaces certainly cost more — "more than twice as much" — but there will be fewer injuries, which should lead to lower insurance premiums since the possibility of litigation will decrease.

The facility will offer a lot more (more on that later), but most important may be Finnerty's name attached to it. Unlike another sports organization that didn't recognize the value of name recognition — the now-defunct Detroit Rockers dumped Finnerty, their keeper for a decade, just as they moved into the Plymouth-Canton area, where Finnerty is well known — this one has a great chance to succeed.

And not just because of its location, although that can't be discounted. According to Finnerty's studies, located within a 20-mile radius of High Velocity are more than 31,000 youth (5-19 years) soccer players playing for 2,100 teams. There are also 27,000 adults (20-and-over) playing for more than 1,700 competitive and recreational teams.

These are figures he's well acquainted with. Finnerty has been the director of coaching for the Canton Soccer Club, and its 157 coaches and teams, since 1995. Being associated with that many youth teams can be extremely beneficial when you're opening a soccer facility (the kind of association the Rockers failed to recognize).

Finnerty is smart enough to capitalize on these connections. He will have his own offices in the new building, but there will be additional office space available. Finnerty has already made available one of the offices — free of charge — to the Canton Soccer Club, which previously had no permanent location. He is negotiating with other local soccer clubs with a similar offer.

All of this started when Finnerty was in his first year with the CSC. At the time, the Canton Softball Center was offering indoor soccer in a temporary dome set up in the parking lot. That, however, was discontinued.

"We were trying to get set up with the dome," said Finnerty. When it closed, "we were sending kids up to Novi to play."

That left a soccer void that Finnerty wanted to fill. When the city, which purchased the softball center, offered 11 acres of the center's property for what they paid for it ($110,000 per acre), Finnerty started making contact with possible investors.

"This is what I envisioned," he said. "It's a perfect training area for local soccer clubs."

As for what else High Velocity will offer, the three regulation fields (175 feet by 80 feet) will be joined by a roller hockey rink the same size. What adds to the facility's uniqueness is the seating, which will be on the mezzanine 15 feet over the arenas.

The two smaller fields will also be on the mezzanine level; they, too, will have the same prescription-turf fields. Each field will have sound and video systems, with televisions that will allow parents to watch what's going on in other areas — such as a son playing video games in the arcade while the parent watches his/her daughter's game.

In addition to the arcade and video games, there will be a full-service concession area, four locker rooms and four meeting/party rooms.

"We want to be, not only the best facility in Michigan, but the best in the midwest," said Tony Collard, one of Finnerty's partners.

League play with the season's next eight-week session, which begins Jan. 2. There will be a 6 v. 6 Christmas Cup Tournament, with youth teams (ages seven years through high school) and adult teams Dec. 26-30.

As for Finnerty, his playing days are again linked to the Rockers organization, which folded prior to the current season and has a doubtful future. "If the team came back here — I've heard some grumblings about a new ownership group — I'd play," he said. "But I wouldn't like to move to another city again."

After the Rockers dropped him, Finnerty signed with Buffalo. It was a different experience, considering he had played in Detroit for the previous 10 seasons. In Buffalo, he had no public appearance obligations, which allowed him to spend more time with his wife, Denise, who at the time was pregnant with their twin sons, Joshua and Owen, now 10 months old.

"From a player's point of view, it was awesome," said Finnerty.

Yet he couldn't wait to return to his adopted state, Michigan — an odd statement coming from a native Californian. And it appears Finnerty intends to stay this time.

Pat Sharrow's 18 points paced Monroe. Mike Leach contributed 16.

The Canton defense forced 25 Trojan turnovers (the Chiefs had 16), and Canton had a 27-24 rebounding advantage.

Redford CC 84, King 69: Four players scored in double figures Saturday as Redford Catholic Central (1-0) opened its season with a win over Detroit King in the Beverly Hills-Detroit Country Day Classic.

Ryan Clark led the Shamrocks with 19 points, while Steve Wasil and Ryan Wroblewski each added 10. Jeff Niemiec contributed 14.

Shamrocks head coach Rick Coratti said considering the team had only been practicing together for one week, he was "very pleased" with the outcome. Six members of his 12-man team were football players and three were starters.

"We did fairly well," said Coratti of the win. "It was 38 all at the half and we had nine three's in the game. It was split up fairly well."

Canton opens with close win

Thanks to a strong finish by the 400-yard freestyle relay team and three state-qualifying swims by Matt Wisniewski, Plymouth Canton slipped past Dexter 94-92 in its season-opening dual meet Tuesday at Dexter.

"In the first half of the meet they outscored us big, by 16 points," said Canton coach Ed Weber. "That 400 relay pretty much determined winning or losing the meet."

Wisniewski reached state cuts by winning the 200 freestyle (1:49.29) and 100 butterfly (55.27). He also led off Canton's victorious 200 free relay team in a state-qualifying 22.64 for the 50 free.

SWIMMING

Joe Le also won individual two events for Canton, the 50 free (23.37) and the 100 free (51.09).

The Chiefs compete in the WLAA Relays Saturday at Plymouth Salem.

Will the Rocks withstand the challenge and make it 10-straight WLAA titles? Olson didn't answer the question directly, but did say this: "I sleep well at night."

He should. The Rocks have lost some key contributors in Aaron Shelton (breaststroke, sprint freestyle), Brian Mertens (individual medley, distance free) and Jim Ross (free).

But everyone else is back, including three of the four members in all three of their relays, relays that finished first in the state in the 200-yard and 400-yard freestyle and fourth in the 200 medley.

At last season's state finals, Olson opted to load up his relays, asking some of his best swimmers to sacrifice possible individual honors for the good of the team. It worked: Salem enjoyed its best-ever performance at the state finals, finishing third overall.

Much of the nucleus of that team returns, led by five seniors. Eric Lynn and Mike Johnson were both members of all three relay teams at state, Lynn also placing third in the 100 free and Johnson taking third in the 50 free. At the WLAA finals, Lynn won the 100 free and was second in the 200 IM, while Johnson won the 50 free and placed third in the 100 free.

They will share the team's captaincy with Kevin Schopieray, who scored at league in the 100 butterfly and 100 backstroke. Other seniors are Ben Mellis (back/free) and Jim Franks (free).

The third returning member of the state relay teams is junior Ben Dzialo, who won the 200 free and placed second in the 100 fly at league. Illness kept Dzialo from performing his best at state; he was 14th in the 100 fly.

Once again, quality depth won't be a problem for the Rocks. And there's plenty of talented freestylers, which has long been a Salem staple.

Key juniors who return include Mike Horgan, ninth in both the 100 fly and 500 free at the WLAAs; Matt Showalter, fifth in the 100 breast and 14th in the 200 IM at league; Jeff Nevi, fifth in the 100 back and 10th in the 200 IM at league; Adam Sonnanstine, who scored in both the 200 and 500 free at conference; and Joe Aumiller, a breaststroker/IMer.

The top member of the sophomore class is Casey Johnson, who could fill the gap in breaststroke created by Shelton's graduation.

Now for the newcomers — the freshmen. Two made an immediate impression on Olson: Nick Dixon, a strong sprint freestyler who, like Lynn and Dzialo, could excel in any stroke; and Penn Chou, a swimmer who "has got all the strokes — he's got a lot of talent," particularly in the breast, according to Olson.

There are also three freshmen divers the Salem coach is hoping will garner some points along the way.

Indeed, diving could be one of the weaknesses on this team, and there aren't many. As Olson replied when asked what his team's strength was: "Flexibility. We've got a lot of guys who can swim the 50 or 500 (free), and we've got state-qualifiers in the IM and free.

"And we have three All-Americas back in Lynn, Johnson and Dzialo. That makes making a lineup a lot easier."

Talent sometimes shrivels when faced with adversity. Olson doesn't believe that could happen to this team.

"Their attitude (is a strength)," he said. "They've got some experience. It's tough to put them in a situation they haven't been in. They swam well everywhere."

If Dixon lives up to Olson's expectations, the Rocks could perform even better at state.

"That depends on what the rest of the state does," the Rocks' coach said. "We could swim even better than last year and not do as well."

Then he added, "I would be disappointed if we don't go faster than 3:09 (at state), if we stay healthy."

The best indication of what to expect at state could be revealed at the Rock-Kilgore Invitational Jan. 12, when the state's top three teams from last season — Rockford, Ann Arbor Pioneer and Salem — together with Canton, Dearborn and Livonia Stevenson will collide. "I'd pay to see that," said Olson.

That week, which includes the Canton-vs.-Salem dual meet two days earlier, should more clearly define both Canton's and Salem's chances. Olson believes Canton could finish in the top 10 at state.

Not that he's willing to give anything in to the Chiefs. The Rocks are still No. 1 in the area, and they plan to stay there.

BUSINESS REVIEW SERVICES, INC. PRESENTS
"A CLOSE UP LOOK AT LOCAL BUSINESSES"

Paul Kenzie, O.D.
Therapeutic Certified Optometrist

Play it safe, have Dr. Kenzie examine your eyes even if you don't think you need vision correction. Early intervention is important. Many eye diseases do not have symptoms until it is too late for treatment. In addition, high blood pressure, diabetes, and other diseases, not related to the eye, can be detected through an eye examination. Years ago, an Optometrist's primary responsibility was to examine the eyes for the purpose of prescribing optical correction, whether for glasses or contact lenses. They would also check for eye health problems including glaucoma, diabetes, cataracts and high blood pressure. However, if any eye health problems were discovered it was the optometrist's responsibility to refer the patient to a physician. That is not the case anymore. Due to that fact that Michigan state laws have changed, more than 70% of Optometrists in the state have gone back to school and have been re-licensed to provide treatment for eye problems outside of surgery. However, any systemic problems or neurological problems will always be referred to a specialist in that field. Dr. Kenzie offers adult and pediatric vision care, treatment of eye disease and injury, complete eye examinations and a large selection of eyewear and contact lenses. This information has been brought to you in the interest of better eye health by Dr. Paul Kenzie, located at 108 North Main Street (across from Central Middle School) in Plymouth, phone 734-453-8450. Happy holidays to all from Dr. Kenzie & staff.

Time varies to redeem foreclosure

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Due to an error in a recent column, we repeat the question with the correct legal conclusion.

I sold using a land contract. The buyer owes me 60 percent of the purchase price, plus back taxes and insurance. How long will he get to pay me off if I get a judgment?

After a default, you may terminate the land contract by forfeiture and obtain a judgment of possession.

The buyer has 90 days, if he has paid less than half the purchase price (six months if he's paid half) to get current and to reimburse your court costs.

The term purchase price doesn't include unpaid taxes or insurance premiums. Your buyer must pay everything due, plus court costs, within 90 days after judgment.

You instead may sue to foreclose the land contract, sell the property and obtain a judgment for any deficiency.

Although the purchaser will have six months after the date of public sale in which to redeem the property, he will have to pay the amount bid at sale, which usually is the full balance of the purchase price, plus interest, court costs and the costs of sale.

Robert M. Meisner, a lawyer, concentrates his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate, corporate law and litigation. His e-mail address is bmeisner@mich.com

It helps to understand the nuances of the language, if you want to participate in the activity. And real estate has a lingo all its own.

Agency – The relationship between a Realtor and others in the negotiation process. A Realtor can represent the buyer, seller or both. The law here requires Realtors to disclose exactly whom they represent.

Closing – The meeting in which all the papers are signed, fees paid and the home legally changes hands.

Closing costs – Fees usually paid by the buyer to obtain a mortgage and process paperwork relating to a property transfer. They include title insurance, appraisal, credit report, document preparation fees and recording fees.

Commission – A negotiable fee, about 6 percent, paid by the seller, divided among all Realtors involved.

Down payment – A cash deposit, usually 20 percent of purchase price paid at closing that becomes the buyer's immediate equity in the home.

Earnest money – A cash deposit, usually 3 percent of a purchase offer accompanying that document, from a buyer to show a sincerity of purpose.

Equity – Ownership interest in a home. Equity equals sales price (and later, appreciation in value) less mortgage owed.

Escrow Account – A fund set up for the purchaser of a home by the mortgage lender to include the property tax and sometimes the homeowners insurance portion of the monthly payment. The lender then pays those bills directly when due.

Homeowners Insurance – An annual insurance policy that repairs damages to a home resulting from weather events, fires, criminal activity or personal injuries to visitors.

Home Warranty Insurance – A policy usually paid by the seller to entice buyers covering breakdowns in major mechanical or structural systems for the year after sale. Cost ranges $375-$425.

Inspection – Usually included as a condition of sale by purchaser to get a third-party overview on the condition of a house and its systems.

The buyer usually pays the fee.

Listing agent/agreement – An individual with whom a seller contracts to sell a house. Interview several professionals as to their marketing plans before deciding on one.

Mortgage – A loan from a financial institution to a purchaser to buy a home. All kinds of products are available with various conditions.

Multilisting Service – A compilation of all homes available for sale updated by computer and available to Realtors.

Open House – A marketing tool in which prospective buyers can walk through a home available for sale. The seller's Realtor usually hosts the open house while the owners are out.

Points – A fee paid by a purchaser to a mortgage lender to obtain a more-favorable mortgage interest rate. Fee usually ranges from 1 to 2 percent of amount borrowed.

Pre-Approval – A letter based on credit check and employment verification stating how large a mortgage the lender will grant to a would-be buyer.

Private Mortgage Insurance – A monthly fee required by a mortgage lender to borrowers who make a down payment of less than 20 percent to protect the lender in the event of financial problems and foreclosure.

PMI can be costly. On a 30-year, $150,000 mortgage, the monthly cost is $90 with 5 percent down, $65 with 10 percent down and $36 with 15 percent down.

PMI is no longer required when an owner's equity reaches 20 percent.

Purchase Agreement – A legally binding offer from the buyer to seller that proposes specific terms of sale. Both purchaser and seller may want to consult lawyers before offering and accepting.

Real Estate Sales/ Transfer Taxes – Usually paid by the seller at closing, the tax is applied at a rate of $8.60 per $1,000 of a home's sales price.

Realtor – A sales person who belongs to a professional association and subscribes to a code of ethics. Every Realtor is an agent, but an agent doesn't have to be a Realtor. All agents, however, must be licensed by the state.

Seller Disclosure Statement – Required by law and available to prospective buyers, the form requires sellers to reveal their knowledge about the condition of the home.

Settlement Costs – These are payments including sales commission, sales/transfer taxes and title insurance from the seller at a property closing.

Title Insurance – Usually required of both buyer and seller to protect financial interests in ownership disputes.

The seller buys a policy for the protection of the buyer, and the purchaser acquires a policy for the lender. On a $200,000 sale involving a $180,000 mortgage, the seller's policy would cost upwards of $900, the buyer's $350.

MORTGAGE BITS

TIM 'TIMBO' PHILLIPS

Have you have ever been faced with a daunting task that you know is sure to sap your time, effort and energy, but you know it must be done?

Too often, that formidable task keeps slipping to the bottom of your prioritized stack. Most us would rather knock out 10 simpler list items than tackle "the monster."

Your mortgage loan officer is really no different than you are in that regard. In light of the current mortgage refinance market, you should take every effort to make sure your file gets a high priority on your loan officer's list. An easy way to get your file off to a good start is to prepare to complete a bulletproof loan application.

Initially, your lender will need the complete name, current address and social security number for each borrower to pull their credit histories. For most of my clients, I check credit during our very first phone conversation. If your credit report is a bit bruised up, your loan officer may immediately give you specific tasks – I call them homework assignments – that will help him either clear up those blemishes, or at least mitigate their impact.

Some of these credit-related tasks may include supplying copies of divorce or bankruptcy papers, proof of paid collections or copies of previously discharged mortgages. These requests may seem trivial (or even painful), but leaving them undone may result in your loan being left undone. Do these things right away.

During this pre-application phase, plan on also digging out some other documents, including your past two pay stubs, your most recent banking and investment statements, and your past two years' W2s or tax returns, if you are self-employed.

Renters should also compile their landlord information for the previous two years and real estate investors should list property and loan information on each of their properties.

Getting your mortgage approved efficiently requires a team effort between you and your loan officer. You will usually receive priority service from your mortgage loan officer if you give the same energy in return.

Tim Phillips is a mortgage loan officer in Plymouth. For a free mortgage pre-qualification or credit assessment, go to www.vlender.com /p /phillipshq or call (734) 797-5522 . Homebuyers should always consult a professional for guidance specific to their situation.

Home equity loan can pay for holidays

Interest rates are close to what they were 40 years ago. This is an opportunity for new buyers and homeowners who want to turn equity into cash to pay off bills or buy gifts for the holidays.

"As the end of the year approaches, this is a perfect opportunity to use some of the equity in your home for extra holiday cash," said Jeff Jannett, vice president of sales, Shore Mortgage. "Given today's low mortgage interest rates, credit card purchases should certainly be avoided. However, before you make a move it is a good idea to study your situation thoroughly."

Make a list of your debts, total your monthly payments and determine what you can accomplish with some extra cash.

For example: an individual who has a monthly payment including principal and interest of $1,230 on a home with an initial mortgage of $160,000 and a current balance of $144,000. His current interest rate is 8.5 percent. John also pays $400 a month on a second mortgage with a balance of $30,000 for a combined monthly mortgage payment of $1,630.

The homeowner was quoted an interest rate of 6.5 percent on a 30-year mortgage of $174,000 – a loan large enough to pay both mortgages. He refinanced and his new monthly payment is now $1,099 – a combined savings of more than $500 a month ... money to pay off credit card debts and/or buy holiday items.

Shore employs dozens of loan officers who speak languages including Spanish, Slovak, Russian, Hungarian, Japanese, Chinese, Greek and a number of Arabic languages.

Remodeling calls for good decisions

BY KEVIN BRENNER AND KATE KELLY
TODAY'S HOMEOWNER ONLINE

■ Any building or remodeling job requires dozens of crucial decisions that set the pace for a small army of workers and craftsmen.

"Decision fatigue" is a common reaction in homeowners new to the remodeling process who underestimate the pace and sheer number of decisions required of them in the design and product-selection stages.

Any building or remodeling job requires dozens of crucial decisions that set the pace for a small army of workers and craftsmen. Slacken the pace, and you lose momentum and end up paying for downtime. Make snap decisions, and you could live with expensive mistakes for years to come. The key to avoiding decision fatigue is knowing which decisions you need to make and when to make them. Then coordinate as many of those decisions as possible with your project manager and the various subcontractors before the remodel starts.

Know what's coming

Early in the planning stage, ask your contractor or architect to work up a complete room-by-room, item-by-item list of decisions your project involves. You'll notice the list breaks out into two general categories: design and products.

Design decisions include appliance location, skylight and window placement, heating duct or baseboard locations, door placement and swing direction, the number and location of outlets and lighting plans. Product decisions concern the type and size of items such as cabinets, kitchen and bath sinks, shower stalls, toilets, appliances, flooring, tile, windows, doors and electrical fixtures, along with their features.

Even late installations demand early decisions on design and product. For instance, while a shower stall is one of the last fixtures to go into a bathroom, which you choose affects plumbing rough-in locations and the framing plan, both of which affect the floor-tile pattern and how much drywall is needed. The same goes for electrical fixtures, which are supplied by hidden wiring roughed in before the drywall goes up. A late location change for a ceiling fan can mean having to remove and reinstall wallboard. And while adding a garbage disposer in the kitchen might seem like a minor detail, it could require an extra 20-amp circuit that's tough to rough in after drywall and cabinets have been installed. The result is an expensive change order.

Create a calendar

Once you have your list of decisions, work with your builder to organize them procedurally around the steps of the job.

For each decision on your list, assign a date by which you'll give the builder your final choices and decisions. But be realistic. Leave enough time before each due date to do some research in magazines and showrooms.

Use a loose-leaf binder with subject dividers for each major decision area. Fill it with notes, business cards, brochures, paint chips, fabric swatches and other information. And organize each decision area according to its due date. Then stick to those dates.

Any remodeling project is a three-dimensional chess game where each step affects all the others. Seemingly minor decisions like cabinet trim and backsplash tile can be as important as major ones like window and tub placement.

Keep your promises, and you'll find it easier to insist your contractor does, too. Timely decision-making puts the performance onus on him and reduces the chance of error. Best of all, you won't hear the contractor say he could have done a better job if only he had had more time.

Get America Working!

We all know the circumstances that have made this one of the most unforgettable years in our country's history. No one will ever forget these last few months, but we believe that these next few months will be a time to heal.

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers would like to help the people that have been effected, the ones who lost their jobs by all the cutbacks.

For the cost of $1 per line (15-20 characters), you can tell prospective employers about your qualifications and why you would be an asset to their company. This promotion is only for people looking to find a job within a company.

Your ad will run in a special location in the classified section titled "The O&E New Career for a New Year," and will appear in the Sunday, January 6th, 2002 edition.

As a special bonus, the sooner we receive your ad the longer the ad will appear in the paper, and for no added charge-that's right FREE!

December 8th is the first edition your ad can appear for free. It will be placed in the "Jobs Wanted" (534) category of classifieds. All you have to do is get your ad to us by Wednesday of that week and the same holds true for every week until Wednesday, Dec. 26th. Write down your qualifications, and either mail or e-mail them to the Observer & Eccentric. We will then contact you to set up your ad and give you the total cost. All ads must be prepaid. Please include separate from your ad, the phone number you can be contacted at, and your E-mail address if sent by mail.

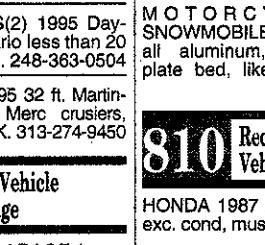
ADOPT-A-PET

This Week's Featured Pet



This handsome male Golden Retriever is Captain. He is a mature pooch who was brought to the shelter as a stray, who was desperately trying to find a place to call home. Although he never found a home, he hasn't given up hope! He is still hoping that he will soon meet his new owners and be taken to his new home in time for the holidays. Due to his friendly personality, this pooch would make a great family pet or a wonderful companion for anyone who is in need of a lifelong friend. Although he is a little on the heavy side, with a little help from his new owner and some regular exercise, he will be a very healthy pooch who will share many happy years to come with his new owner.

If you would like to welcome Captain into your family, visit the Michigan Humane Society Westland Shelter.
