The Canton Observer and the League of Women Voters of Northwest Wayne County will sponsor a Meet the Candidates forum featuring candidates for the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The public forum will be 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 8 at the Canton Public Library, 1200 S. Canton Center Road.

Candidates will participate in a panel discussion, moderated by the League. Audience participation is welcome and the moderator will ask for written questions at the beginning of the event.

As part of our effort to inform readers about election issues, the Observer is running a series of candidate profiles on our front page. The stories will continue over the next few weeks and the paper will endorse candidates for three school board seats (a one-year term and a pair of four-year terms) on Thursday, May 9.

Crash victim is probable suicide

BY JACK GLADDEN
STAFF WRITER
jgladden@oe.hometown.com

An 18-year-old Westland woman was killed in a crash on I-275 near Cherry Hill Road about 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in what was apparently a suicide.

Westland Police Chief Emery Price identified the victim as Gina Jackson, a senior at Wayne Memorial High School.

Michigan State Police said Jackson was driving a green 2002 Ford Explorer Sport Trak northbound on I-275 when she crossed the median and struck a tractor-trailer truck traveling south. The driver of the truck was not injured.

Price said shortly before the accident Westland Police received a 9-1-1 call from Jackson's ex-boyfriend, in which he said she had threatened to kill herself. He said Jackson and the friend had just recently broken up.

The ex-boyfriend said the call was made from Jackson's house where she lived with her parents. He went to her house but by the time he arrived she was gone. He called her mother, who, he said, works at Wayne Memorial and told her about the incident, then called 9-1-1.

"She called me crying saying she was going to kill herself," the ex-boyfriend said in a tape of the call played by police. "She left a death note on her bed. She said 'It's 9:28 ... I'm killing myself and it's all your ... fault,'" the tape said.

Westland police dispatched a car to the house where her mother, who had returned home, turned over a suicide note to the officers, according to Price. They also put out an alert to have patrol officers keep an eye out for her Explorer.

"Within minutes of that call," Price said, "we received notice from the State

Debra Madonna is no stranger to the Plymouth-Canton high school complex. As a member of the Parent Involvement Committee, Madonna helps parents navigate the Park, and helps them learn how to get involved with students.

"I think I know what makes successful kids, healthy kids, and how to be a good parent helper, without interfering with teachers," said Madonna, the mother of two students and a recent graduate. "It's a partnership."

Madonna said her concerns with the district's budget and how the priorities are set led her to run for the one-year unexpired term on the Board of Education.

"I don't think the board is taking as broad a view as I would like," she said. "It's much more narrow. They're making decisions in a vacuum."

School board hopeful wants to continue what she started

Marcy Staley was appointed to the Plymouth-Canton school board in December, replacing Steve Guile, who resigned after moving out of the district. Staley knows it takes more than a few months to understand the inner workings of the district, which is why she is seeking election to the unexpired one-year term on the Board of Education.

"I just got started and I wanted to carry on with what I've been doing," said Staley, 45, of Canton Township. "I've learned more than I ever thought I would in the 4-5 months since I've been on the board."

Staley has been president of the Community School Council, a member of the Housing and Facilities Committee, and co-chairperson of the 1997 bond issue, which she feels is a good lead-in to becoming a board member.

Observer honors Academic All-Stars

In what has become an annual feature of this time of year, The Observer Newspapers proudly presents the Academic All-Stars in a special section of today's paper.

These are public and private high school seniors chosen on the basis of their grade point averages in academic subjects and SAT or ACT scores. They also distinguished themselves in such ways as community and school involvement.

"We are proud to honor the best and brightest students in our communities. Each of these students has set high goals for themselves. We wish them the best in all their future endeavors," said Hugh Gallagher, managing editor of The Observer Newspapers.

A panel of five principals from Observer area high schools met to sort through the 47 applications and double-check the numbers that gave scores to each student.

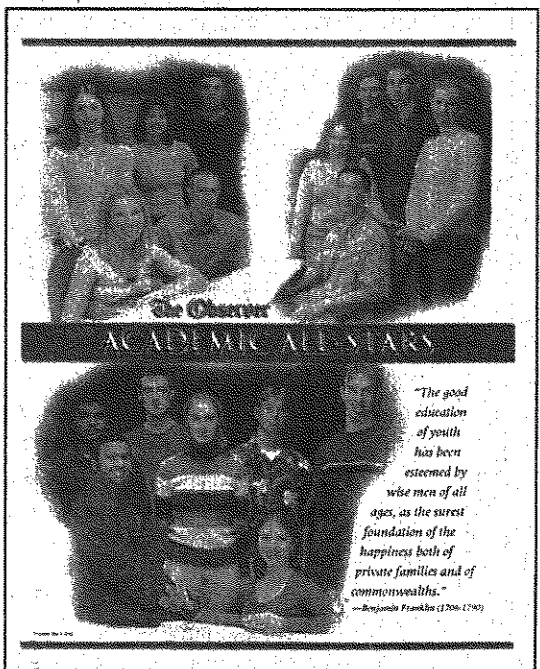

These numbers involved grade point averages and SAT or ACT scores. The highest possible total score was 2,000; all of this year's all-stars had total scores of more than 1,900.

This is the 17th anniversary of The Observer's Academic All-Stars program. The 2000 Academic All-Stars are:

Michael McDonald, Salem High School; Walter C. Lin, Churchill High School; Matthew R. Elsey, Harrison High School; Anne Lieberman, North Farmington High School;

Tekla Bude, Canton High School; Adam Z. Kogut, Churchill High School; Bethany Nestor, North Farmington High School; Stacey Ann Schroeder, Ladywood High School; Daniel Christensen, Canton High School; Prashanth Pandian, Harrison High School; John W. Schultz, Detroit Catholic Central High School; Alex Duncan, Farmington High School; Drew Mokris, Farmington High School; Luman Temby, Thurston High School; Suzanne Valade, Mercy High School; Rebecca Lobenherz, Salem High School; Jerin Philip, Detroit Catholic Central High School; and Laura Anne Meili, Clarenceville High School.

In addition, The Observer honors the 29 students who are runners-up.

Bad check leads to 3 arrests

A call from the TCF Bank inside Super Kmart on Ford Road Monday afternoon about someone attempting to pass a bad check led to three people being arrested for passing stolen checks and possessing cocaine and narcotics paraphernalia.

When police arrived at the scene they found a car with the engine running and a woman lying in the back seat, apparently attempting to hide, according to police reports.

After determining that the woman was involved in passing stolen checks, police placed her under arrest. Another woman and a man accompanying the woman were also arrested.

A search of the car turned up a bag of crack cocaine under the back of the driver's seat, along with a crack pipe and several torn stolen checks.

COP CALLS

Samaritan scammed

A 49-year-old Livonia resident who attempted to assist a motorist in Canton on Saturday turned out to be a victim.

The man told police he stopped to help a motorist with a flat tire near the Shell station at Michigan Avenue and Lotz about 5:30 p.m.

He said two white males stopped and pretended to be interested in helping but suddenly ran away. After they left the man noticed his wallet containing $30 in cash was missing.

Police have no suspects.

Vandalism?

An employee of Sheldon Place, the closed down senior high rise complex, told police Monday that sometime over the weekend someone used a tool to unlock the door going into the garage area of the building.

The door had a new safety bar that was pulled off by the intruders. The employee said the movement of the building, which was abandoned last year after leaks and cracks developed, had caused a gap in the doorway where the safety bar was attached.

The employee said nothing was taken and he suspected kids were involved. Police have no suspects.

Cat stolen

An employee at a construction site reported on Monday that sometime over the weekend someone stole a 2000 model

Caterpillar backhoe with front and rear buckets from the site.

He said a key was in the machine, which was valued at $65,000.

Nuts taken

A resident of the 41300 block of Crossbow Circle told police on Monday that he had parked his 2000 Pontiac Grand Am in front of his apartment building on Friday and went out of town for the weekend.

On Monday morning he got in the car and began driving, when the left rear wheel fell off, causing damage to the left rear quarter panel. Upon inspection he discovered that the lugnuts were missing from the wheel.

Damage was estimated at $200-plus.

Canton dust control almost thing of past

BY DOUG JOHNSON
STAFF WRITER

It's a dirty job and Canton is still involved in it — at least on a small scale.

Dust control for 7.5 miles of dirt roads was approved by the Township Board of Trustees Tuesday night at a cost of $14,100. Three applications will be made throughout the warm months, starting in the third week of May.

Tom Casari, township engineer, agrees that dust control is a dwindling task.

"About 10 to 12 years ago we were doing about twice as many miles (around 15) and 16 or 17 years ago it was more like 30 miles," he said.

"We are at about a quarter of what we were" two decades ago, he added. The roads that will be chlorided:

State Police said alcohol did not appear to be a factor in the accident and that Jackson was not wearing a seat belt. They are awaiting an official ruling on the death from the Wayne County Medical Examiner.

Since the accident happened on I-275, that investigation is being handled by the State Police. But because of the suicide note and the 9-1-1 call, Price said Westland Police are still looking into the situation and "trying to put everything together."

Domestic violence spurred First Step director Judy Ellis to shift gears

BY BRAD KADRIC
STAFF WRITER
bkadrich@oe.homecomm.net

When First Step, the agency dedicated to helping abused women and children, was getting started around 1980, Judy Ellis decided to volunteer some time.

When she had to watch a battered woman lose her case, her dignity and an ear, Ellis — a teacher and real estate vice president — decided to make a full-time change.

Ellis, now the executive director of First Step, remembers the life-changing decision well. She'd just watched a husband essentially get away with beating his wife, saw members of his church stand behind the husband, and watched a judge slap the husband on the wrist.

The woman — who lost an ear, had her face slashed and the tendons in her fingers sliced because she was filing for divorce — later told Ellis, "I don't think I'm worth much."

Ellis knew she'd found her calling.

"She didn't get to say her side of the story; it was before there was any such thing as 'victim's rights,'" Ellis said in her Plymouth Township office. "Her husband pled guilty and got a suspended sentence."

The ride home from court was a quiet one.

"It was so horrific, we couldn't even speak," said Ellis. "She said to me, 'I don't think I'm worth very much.' Shortly after that, (First Step) asked me to come on full-time, and I did."

That was in 1981. Within four years, Ellis was named the executive director, a position she's held since. She'd been a teacher in the Clarenceville school district, and was a vice president of a real estate company. She gave all that up to join First Step, whose mission is to reduce the incidence of domestic and sexual violence and to offer services to victims of those crimes.

When she joined in 1981, First Step operated out of the Nankin Mills Nature Center. After starting as a volunteer, First Step officials asked her to become their community service coordinator, handling volunteers and community outreach programs.

Back in the day, First Step didn't have a shelter (now they have one). When a woman or child needed help, the agency was forced to try to find hotels/motels for them, at a prohibitive cost. It was one of the first problems Ellis tackled.

"We needed to look at ways to partner with groups, and to raise enough money to make it happen," Ellis said. "Now we have more friends, more partners."

Now, what was a $150,000 budget when she took over has grown to $2.5 million, about 65 percent of which is federal funding. First Step partners with hospitals, with police departments, with other agencies, all in an effort to provide as many services as possible for victims of domestic abuse, which Ellis estimates at more than 7,000 a year in this area.

First Step offers a 24-hour help line, legal information, individual and children's counseling, support groups and parent education. There are prevention programs, advocacy teams throughout western Wayne County and legal clinics.

Ellis doesn't see many of them directly now, but she still gets involved with staff members who are dealing with individual cases.

"They call it vicarious traumatization," she said. "There's a tremendous need on staff to help one another and keep the healing process going."

is dedicated, a fact that hasn't escaped the people who work with her.

Desiree Herrick has been First Step's children's program coordinator a little more than three years, after doing similar work for an agency in Mt. Pleasant. A witness to domestic violence as a child, Herrick has dedicated her life to helping kids cope with the effects, and says Ellis shares the passion.

"She's really good to work for, really good at problem solving," said Herrick. "She's committed to breaking the cycle of violence. It's certainly more than a job she chose. I think it's something she felt called to do."

Ellis firmly believes domestic violence can be prevented, with the right kind of education. She thinks society is making progress, with changes in legislation and a stronger emphasis on funding at the federal level.

The agency's non-residential, shelter-based and community-based services are aimed at conducting just such a societal education in an effort to reduce the number of victims hurt and killed — Ellis says there's one death every five days from domestic violence.

"You can never know for sure if someone is lethal," Ellis said.

"But there are signs that, if we as a society learn them, will help us prevent it."

Ellis doesn't cry as much as she used to, but the work still gets to her. The last good cry she had was about three months after the terrorist attacks Sept. 11. In those 90 days, 12 victims in this area alone died in domestic violence incidents.

"It's definitely difficult work," Ellis said. "(But) once you realize what's happening to women and children, it's pretty hard not to get involved. I don't cry often, but sometimes I do."

O&E announces changes in its management lineup

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers has reorganized its management structure in order to better serve its readers and advertising customers.

Three executives were promoted Tuesday to new senior level positions by Tom Neri, O&E general manager and publisher.

Susan Rosiek, currently Observer Publisher, has been named executive editor for all editorial functions at the O&E.

Ron Shamma, currently Eccentric Publisher, is now circulation director and is responsible for circulation sales and distribution for all O&E publications.

Todd Williams, currently classified director, is now advertising director for all local retail and classified advertising sales at the O&E.

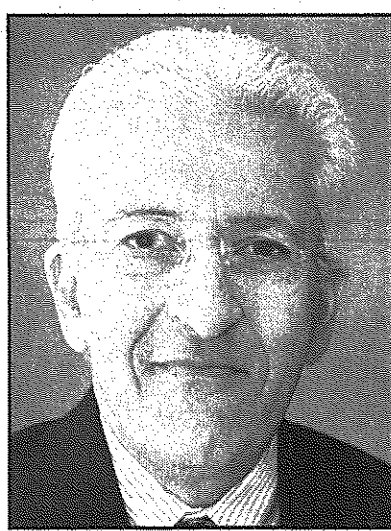

Jeanne Towar will continue as publisher of the Birmingham Eccentric.

"We are fortunate to have strong executives with the background, experience and knowledge required to lead each of these critical areas," said Neri.

"The current competitive climate and economic conditions

Susan Rosiek

Ron Shamma

require the O&E to respond to marketplace challenges with a strong and unified approach. I believe we can best serve our markets by having each major customer-oriented area of our publications — editorial, sales and circulation — led by an experienced executive dedicated to achieving excellence in that discipline," added Neri.

Rosiek is a former publisher and managing editor of the Observer Newspapers. She has been with the company for more than 25 years and is a graduate of Michigan State University. She is vice chair of the board of directors at St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia and a member of the board of the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

Rosiek and her husband, Steve Barnaby, live with their son Ian in Plymouth Township.

Observer readers can reach her at (734) 953-2100 or e-mail her at srosiek@oe.homecomm.net

"I look forward to hearing from readers about issues in their hometown and what they enjoy reading in their hometown Observer," said Rosiek. "Our core business is our local newspaper and we strive to deliver the best coverage of local news, sports and features ever Thursday and Sunday."

Her management team includes managing editors Joe Bauman and Hugh Gallagher and Keely Wygonik, assistant managing editor/features.

Shamma, a former Eccentric Publisher has been with the O&E for two years. He was previously a publisher of a group of weeklies in Traverse City and had extensive newspaper experience at daily newspapers in Michigan and Wisconsin. Shamma lives in Clarkston with his wife Molly. Shamma is a Troy Chamber of Commerce board member, active in the Auburn Hills Chamber and a current class participant in the Leadership Oakland program.

His management team includes circulation managers Michele Austin and Larry Geiger.

"This new structure will give us an opportunity to better serve the readers needs, with Michele's focus for the Observer group and Larry's attention to readers of our Eccentric papers," said Shamma.

"We are placing a new emphasis on growing our circulation and seeing that our readers delivery need are met every time," he added.

His management team includes circulation managers Michele Austin and Larry Geiger.

Observer readers can reach him by e-mail at rshamma@oe.homecomm.net or by phone at (734) 953-2410.

Williams, who came to the O&E a year ago as director of the classified advertising department, has worked as advertising director for Flint Area Newspapers, classified ad director of Suburban Newspapers of Northern New Jersey, ad director at the former Crain Communications Detroit Monthly and classified ad director at the Metro Times.

An Ortonville resident, Williams and his wife, Judy, are the parents of an 11-year-old son, Logan.

In his new role as advertising director, Williams will manage all classified and retail operations.

"Our new management structure will allow us to enhance service to our retail and classified customers. The O&E is a powerful advertising tool and delivers the audience that advertisers want to reach on Sunday and Thursday," said Williams who is a graduate of the American Press Institute.

prohibits judges from seeking office after age 70.

Six of the candidates for the third judge are from Northville Township. They include Eric Colthurst, currently a part-time magistrate at the court, Sheila Walsh Crowley, C. Megan Matthews Dodson, David Esper, James Malinowski and Karen Woodside. Candidates who live in Plymouth Township are Michael Gerou and Timothy O'Connor. Thomas Doetsch, Sr. and Michael Fifer both reside in Canton Township.

The court boundaries also include the cities of Plymouth and Northville.

"It's going to cost at least $100,000-$150,000 to campaign," said Gerou. "It's an expensive district with 150,000 people in five communities."

The state House and Senate passed a version of House Bill 4788 Dec. 13, adding a third judge to the court.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Bruce Patterson (R-Canton Township), was signed into law by Gov. John Engler Jan. 9.

For nearly a decade, 35th District Court judges have been seeking a third judge to help with the growing caseload.

Figures released by the court show judges MacDonald and Ron Lowe each handle an average of 22,389 cases a year. That compares to the statewide average of 12,763 per district court judge.

To help alleviate the problem, 35th District Court has been using a visiting judge and part-time magistrate to handle the cases. The primary election is Tuesday, Aug. 6, with the two candidates who receive the most votes facing off in November.

Madonna, 50, said the current school board isn't taking a good look at the budget, considering the fact they yet to hold a budget session.

"They predicted things were fine, and they voted for a science curriculum that costs hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now we're laying off teachers," she said. "If you have your priorities, it's more clear cut. But, a lot of times the motions are on the table and the board doesn't have the whole picture in front of them."

"(The science program) may be a good investment, but I don't know if that's what you would spend your money on first," she said. "That's the fiduciary responsibility of the board."

"I wouldn't have voted for the layoffs (of 18 teachers)," she added. "The laying off of teachers is so drastic, and affects the morale of the district so much. The board should have spent a week to look at it and come back. They have to take responsibility that they've been approving expenses, and now we're laying off teachers."

Madonna acknowledges there are communications problems, especially when citizens go to board meetings and participate in the public comment portion of the agenda.

"When people speak at citizen comments, it's like a big, fat thug, and they leave. When a person goes to a board meeting and speaks, they're entitled to be engaged," she said. "I know no one ever calls them back. I hear that all the time."

"I don't necessarily think there should be an answer that night, but someone should be calling them back with an answer," she said. "If you don't, you not only lose customers, but valuable resources. I don't think you would have as tough a problem in passing bonds if you took care of your customers."

Madonna supports the Talented and Gifted program parents in their efforts to keep a magnet school setting, instead of a home school program.

"The TAG advisory board and the TAG parents have been very clear in their support of this magnet program as it currently exists," she said. "They want the program to grow, in one location. TAG parents and students feel that a return to home schools would damage this program. I support them in their efforts."

And, Madonna is in favor of keeping Central Middle School as a school, nor "repurposed" as suggested in a report by Superintendent Kathleen Booher.

"The students who attend Central have a unique opportunity to be part of a neighborhood and a community," she said. "The shrinking dollars available for transportation have placed limits on field trips. Central students can walk to the Historical Museum, Plymouth Library and Kellogg Park."

with the harmony that has been built up in the district," she said. "We've had tough times with employee groups in the past, that's no secret. But, we've worked hard to improve that climate, and we're going into teacher contract negotiations. It's as positive an atmosphere as we've had in the 15 years I've been here."

Despite criticism from some, Staley believes the board has communicated well with the community, and will continue to do so.

"I think this board has done more in the last year as far as community outreach than I've ever seen the board do," said Staley, referring to board presentations to community groups, and the recent community forum.

"One of the things that came from the community forum is that we need to take better care of our Web site," she said. "As far as dialogue, when people come (to the board) with a concern, it's just respectful to give them some type of answer. That's one of the things we're doing in the revision of our policy."

Staley is confident the Renewal Project, which will integrate all three high schools, will work because administrators and teachers "have bought into it and taken it on as their project."

"I like that we will have more mentoring of students, that we will have tighter control on student dress code and conduct, and I especially like that we're reviewing the curriculum," said Staley, the mother of three children in the district.

If elected, Staley may have an opportunity to make decisions on Superintendent Kathleen Booher's facilities report, which was released last October.

"We need to accommodate our growth," said Staley. "Four of the five middle schools are in Plymouth, and 60 percent of our students are in Canton. We're bus-ing students, all the time, to Plymouth."

"Do we want to put $17 million into Central (Middle School), or $17 million into a building where it's most needed, where the students are to accommodate that growth," she said. "If we had to choose, I think the logical choice is to build another school in Canton."

As far as the financial outlook for the district, Staley isn't worried about the future.

"I think we're in good shape. We're in the position of facing the limitations of Proposal A. We've been looking at that wall coming at us for a very long time," she said. "Layoffs and cuts to programs are the very last thing we want to do. But, we also need a balanced budget, and if we need to lay off a few staff in order to have the resources we need, that's what we must do."

Ostoin a familiar sight in Salem corridors

BY BRIDGET PALUMBO
SPECIAL WRITER

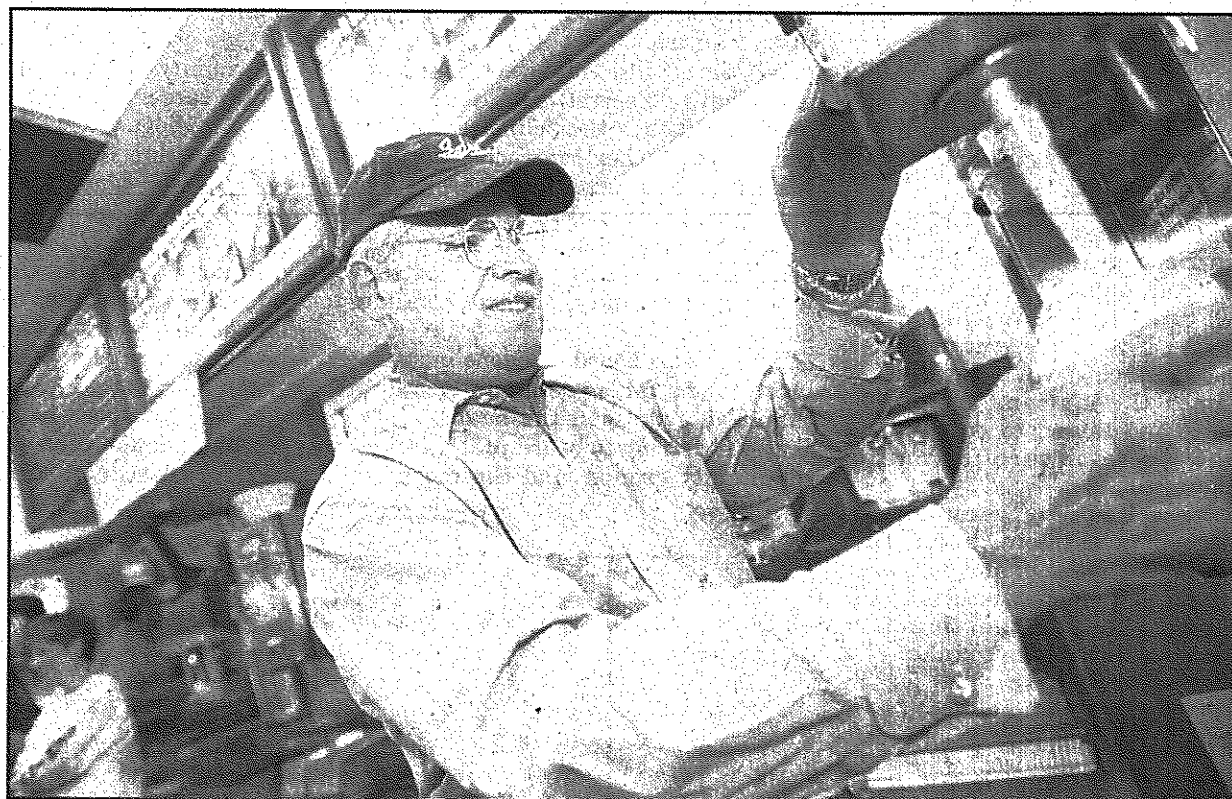

"Let's go you guys. Get in there and learn," Gerald Ostoin told a few boys loitering in the hallways of Salem High School. The words from Salem's principal sent them scurrying off to their classrooms.

While some principals spend most of their time in their office or meetings, Ostoin has adopted a policy of visibility during the 15 years he has been a principal of Salem.

"This whole building is my office," Ostoin said. Barring any meetings, Ostoin walks around the school once or twice a day to check what needs to be done and the students' and teachers' mood. He also pulls cafeteria duty every day that he can.

"What I like most about him is that he has an open door policy," said teacher Lauren Cummings. "You don't have to make an appointment or have a set time."

"He's totally accessible," Ostoin's school day begins at 4 a.m. He comes into the building to work out, which includes running a mile and doing 200 sit-ups (400 on Saturday and Sunday). "One time I fell asleep here. I got up around 2 a.m., went home, and came back at 4 a.m.," the principal said.

Dishing it up: Salem High School Principal Gerald Ostoin serves up a McFlurry dessert during the teachers' shift at McDonald's Tuesday night. High school staffers took part in a competition working the dinner shift at the Ann Arbor Road restaurant.

While Ostoin was nursing a sore knee with an ice pack after one of his morning workouts, Marjorie Hay, his secretary, asked him why he didn't go to the doctor.

"Because they'll tell me I can't run," Ostoin told her.

Meetings are also a large part of a busy principal's life. "Sometimes I have meetings here. Sometimes I have meetings at colleges or universities. Sometimes I have meetings down at the board office," Ostoin said.

And there are nighttime meetings too.

"He's just a really hard worker. He really focuses it on the kids. More so than most adults," said Hay.

Despite the hectic schedule, Ostoin manages to find the time to do activities with and for students. For example, every year he gives a lecture on jazz to the school's Humanities class.

Ostoin also has pioneered and been the drummer for The Bongo Boys, the school's long-time student pep band that now includes singers, the "Bonnettes."

"I started playing drums when I was about 4. My parents used to give me one of those old, cheap paper sets every year for Christmas and in a couple of hours, I'd have it all destroyed."

Ostoin said.

Ostoin has degrees from both Eastern Michigan and Ferris State universities. He taught for five years before becoming an assistant principal.

He came to Plymouth as an assistant principal in 1973 and he wears his school colors on his car, if not his sleeve. The license plate of his blue Corvette — which happens to be the same shade as Salem's school color — reads "TRUEBLU."

Bridget Palumbo, a journalism student at Michigan State University, is a 2000 Salem High Graduate.

Redford supervisor joins race for U.S. House

BY MATT JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER
mjachman@oe.homecomm.net

Kevin Kelley made it a race Friday morning with his announcement that he is vying for the U.S. House of Representatives in a newly drawn district.

"I'm here to tell you it's not a done deal," Kelley, a Democrat and the supervisor of Redford Township, told a crowd of friends and political allies at the packed Timber Wolf Tavern. "We're going to work very hard."

Kelley, 43, a former Wayne County commissioner and state legislative aide, whose father, Jack, was a longtime Detroit City Council member, said he can "bring the values of the 11th District to Washington."

Kelley is so far the only Democrat in the race. State Sen. Thaddeus McCotter, a Republican from Livonia, is being challenged in the GOP primary by David Hagerty of Canton Township, the president of Globaltec Industries Inc. The filing deadline is Tuesday, June 11.

The tentative 11th District - Democrats are challenging Michigan's Congressional reap-

Endorsed: Supporters County Executive Ed McNamara and Sheriff Bob Ficano flank congressional candidate Kevin Kelley and his fiancée, Connie McNealy. Kelley, Redford Township supervisor, announced his run for the 11th District seat Friday at the Timber Wolf tavern.

Kelley was joined at the Timber Wolf by County Executive Edward McNamara and a former rival, Sheriff Robert Ficano, both of whom offered their endorsement.

"It's amazing, with age, how wisdom comes about for both of us," said Ficano, whom Kelley challenged for sheriff in 1992. "He's been an outstanding supervisor."

"We're blessed, because Kevin has certainly proven he's an able administrator by what he's done in Redford," said McNamara, who is retiring this year.

Kelley, who is in his sixth year as supervisor, described himself as a moderate Democrat who can work with people from either major party.

"It doesn't matter whether you're a Republican or a Democrat when it comes to getting a road paved or getting a drainage ditch built," he said.

He said his campaign will stress fiscal responsibility; former President Bill Clinton's greatest achievement, he said, was balancing the federal budget, and "it had great dividends for the economy."

Kelley said he's "not afraid to use the 'T' word," but added, "you have to be responsible with taxes."

He doesn't favor a tax increase, but perhaps not making President George W. Bush's 2001 tax cuts - which Kelley said he supported - permanent. The country today faces the cost of the war on terrorism and homeland security, he said.

"Given the set of circumstances we face today, I'd say let's step back," Kelley said.

Kelley made a second major public announcement concerning his future Friday: He is getting married, on Saturday, May 11, to attorney Connie McNealy.

"It's a lot of stress to add a campaign to a marriage," he said. But McNealy's support was key in his decision to run, he said.

"She is going to help me win this seat," he told the crowd. "She is committed."

Kelley said he was recruited to the candidacy by state Democrats starting six or eight weeks ago, and was not planning to run as recently as two weeks ago.

Johnson Controls revises Salem rezoning request

BY DOUG JOHNSON
STAFF WRITER

The rezoning of 367 acres at Napier and Joy roads for a massive Johnson Controls Inc. research campus will be back before the Salem Township Planning Commission May 6.

The rezoning request was reviewed by the planners in January but they took no action following a crowded public hearing where they heard both positive and negative comments.

The application has changed some since January, and now includes six acres of access property bought from township trustee Bill Baxter. JCI reportedly paid more than $1 million for his homestead.

Baxter was also on the planning commission, a post he has since left. Baxter's potential conflict of interest has been a point of contention with the planning commission and the board of trustees.

A review of the proposal documents filed with the township revealed some of the details of JCI's plans for the site, which is roughly bounded by the M-14 freeway, and Gotfredson, Napier and Joy roads. High-end single home subdivisions in Plymouth Township are across the street on Napier.

Here is a selected list of details from the submission documents:

■ Johnson Controls is a car accessory and car interior company based in Milwaukee. They plan on putting up at least three buildings – a large research, development and testing structure, a day care and staff wellness center, and a prototype/center of excellence building.

■ The employee entrance would be off of Gotfredson, and would come in on the Baxter property, cross an Detroit Edison easement and go to the middle of the site. Gotfredson might have to be widened to accommodate turning cars. A traffic study suggests as much as 80 percent of traffic would come to JCI from that entrance.

■ The public entrance would be on Joy down past the golf driving range. About 10 percent of the traffic would go that way, according to reports submitted. Joy would likely have to be paved between Ann Arbor Road and Gotfredson.

■ A back entrance for deliveries would come in off of Napier.

■ JCI would build their own waste water treatment plant using oval-shaped aeration ponds; chlorine products would not be necessary. The submission report makes it clear JCI would eventually hook to some municipal sewer system. The site for the water plant would be near the (Joy Road) bottom edge of the property.

■ Water would likely come from the City of Detroit water junction at Napier and Ann Arbor Road.

■ Tax revenues for the project once constructed are estimated at $28 million over 12 years (for schools, community colleges and municipalities).

■ Johnson Controls currently has three buildings in Plymouth Township on Halyard, two owned and one leased. Those would be abandoned.

■ The rezoning submission has a variety of estimates of how many employees might work at the campus. Initially, there could be as many as 2,000. As many as 5,000 by year 2016 are also projected.

■ The site will have a lot of open space (44 acres) and wetlands; roads will follow the topography.

The exact request is for rezoning from agriculture residential/recreation conservation (AR/RC) to research and research applications. The public hearing will be held in the hamlet of Salem at 9620 Six Mile Road in Township Hall starting at 7:30 p.m.

Both Plymouth and Canton townships sent letters to the Salem Planning Commission opposing the initial request, and those letters were read into the record at the January hearing.

Plymouth Township supervisor Steve Mann is also on record as opposing the plan. At one time the township hoped the large acreage on Five Mile Road owned by Detroit could be used for JCI's project.

Big benefit: The latest benefactor for the Saguear memorial wall at the new Plymouth High School is a local connection: Coca Cola and the Canton Meijer teamed to donate $2,500 for the project to honor Sandra Saguear and others who overcame adversity. Rotary; Al Crosby of Coca Cola; Pat Fuller of Meijer; and Mike Mackiewicz of Coca Cola.

Walkers go the distance for March of Dimes cause

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER
jbrown@oe.homedcomm.net

Members of the Canton High School girls track team, and at least one gymnastics team member, were out in force Saturday, walking briskly along Hines Drive in Westland. Their mission had nothing to do with training though.

The two dozen or so teammates and coaches were participating in the March of Dimes WalkAmerica fund-raiser.

"My friends are on the track team and I decided to come down with them," said Canton resident Amber Schley, a Canton High junior on the gymnastics team.

"It's easier to run than to walk," said Canton High senior and track team member Rachel Lindman of covering the distance.

"We're having a lot of fun doing it," Lindman added, noting it's good to support the March of Dimes.

The annual walk supports the non-profit agency's work fighting birth defects and helping families with premature babies. This year's route started and circled back to the Nankin Mills area of the park.

Canton resident Ellen Cassel, a Plymouth Salem High freshman on the track team, said, "I'm just running with family. Because I wanted to be with my Aunt Teresa." Teresa Nadolski of Westland said, "As you can see, I'm the senior member here."

For some, the decision to take part was more personal.

"My cousin was a premature baby," said Tamar Vescoso, a Garden City High School senior. He's now 2 and doing fine.

Vescoso was out Saturday with Erica Waters, also a Garden City High School senior. They were part of a contingent of about 12 students from that school in the National Honor Society.

Terra Russell, a Garden City High sophomore, was also walking the route. "I just feel compelled to do it," she said, adding the weather was pretty good.

"Uphill is cold, a little colder," added Rich Waronek, a Garden City High teacher who co-sponsors the National Honor Society with colleague Sharon Kollar. Some students were working and unable to participate, he said.

National Honor Society students from Westland John Glenn High included Dane Watts, Jennifer Knorp and Parker Plague, all juniors. "We're getting our community service hours," Knorp said.

Plague said the Glenn students found out about WalkAmerica just a few days ago, and that Knorp and others went to work raising money. "She's a hard worker," he said.

The event, focusing on healthy babies, had special meaning for Plague. "I was premature, but I'm OK now," he said.

"It means I'm actually doing something on my Saturday mornings," Plague said. "It's not about what you receive."

A nearby sign at Newburgh and Hines Drive said it all: "Saving babies, together."

Patty and Ken Ziroll of Livonia were walking "to save babies," she said. They have a niece, now 14, who was premature and is fine.

Their team was called the Duo Slugs, from his work at Duo-Gard Industries. About 20 participated in raising pledges and walking, he said. Many other teams were distinguished by their colorful T-shirts.

Some in the annual event, including Frances Yousif of Redford, have participated previously. "I walk every year," said Yousif, who teaches at Redford Union's Pearson Education Center. "It's a great opportunity to get out and raise money for a good cause."

She also works for Home Depot in Northville Township, one of the companies active in WalkAmerica. Yousif had been walking to prepare for the event. She had no weather-related complaints.

"It's been warmer, but today is pretty good," she said.

Supporting the cause also brought out Diana Voutsinas of Livonia, who walked with husband Kostas. She was sponsoring a National Honor Society group from Fordson High School, with six students walking as community service.

Also in the NHS were Jennifer Barrick and Elizabeth Brozovich, both of Farmington Hills and seniors at Farmington Hills Harrison High. "We just thought that it'd be a good cause to come out and help," said Brozovich, agreeing it's a lot of fun, too. There were about 15 Harrison NHS students walking.

"We do it every year," said Barrick. Their friends Libby Grewal and Lena Barczynski were among the other Harrison students.

Tim Smith of Livonia and daughter Elizabeth, 7, were part of the Preemie Stars team, with 34 members present. Smith is an Observer & Eccentric sports editor in Oakland County.

Elizabeth was born early and her story is part of Smith's book, "Miracle Birth Stories of Very Premature Babies."

Q&A

Q: Why is the word "stymie" used in golf?

A: The word "stymie" comes from the Scottish word styme, meaning a person who is partially blind. In golf, stymie rules used to allow a golfer to putt his ball onto the line of his opponent in order to block the path to the hole. Stymies were taken out of the Rules in 1952, as they tended to lessen the importance of true golfing skill and slow down the game.

HELP FOR ARTHRITIC KNEES

Aches, pain, and discomfort give testimony to the vulnerability of the knee. Much of the lack of durability of this joint can be explained by the fact that, during adulthood, knee cartilage naturally wears down about a quarter of a millimeter each year. One way to ease the pain of arthritic knees is to strengthen the quadriceps muscle in an effort to stabilize the joint. The quadriceps is the thick, powerful muscle that runs the length of the top of the thigh. Its weakness can be both a cause and a consequence of symptomatic knee arthritis. One basic exercise for the quadriceps involves lifting the leg from a bent to a straight position while sitting in a chair. If you are experiencing pain or stiffness after exercising, don't wait until serious cartilage damage occurs, instead, ask your physician for a referral to the HANDS ON CENTER FOR PHYSICAL THERAPY. Our staff of experienced, licensed physical and massage therapists provide the latest, most effective therapies, in closed rooms for your privacy. To learn more about our wide range of services, please call 455-8370. You'll find our center located in Plymouth, at 470 Forest Avenue, Suite 20, for your convenience, we offer early morning and evening treatment hours.

P.S. Driving ability was also found to decrease with increasing age and increasing severity of spinal cord injuries.

CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

Our fundamental purposes are to enhance the lives of our readers, nurture the hometowns we serve and contribute to the business success of our customers.

District's lack of open discussion is troubling

Plymouth-Canton school officials have been taking some heat lately for a perceived lack of communication — between the administration and board members, between the administration and residents and between the board members and those who elect them.

As the campaign for three school board seats in the June 10 election drones on, it is becoming clear to us this will be one of the major issues.

And perhaps deservedly so.

Despite the district's attempts to open up — focus groups, vision priority teams, etc. — Superintendent Kathleen Booher and the administrative staff are drawing flak for not communicating.

More and more, people appear to be coming away from school board meetings with an uneasy feeling that their concerns are at best being minimized and at worst ignored. The issue appears to stem from the fact the board doesn't respond to concerns during the citizens comments portion of meeting agendas. Citizens are allowed to state their case, but in most cases they are politely dismissed with a "thank you, we'll get back to you," or less.

Many people — including some of the candidates in the June election — are saying that such promises aren't always kept. We'll grant you the candidates may be trying to crack a political egg. But district residents have just as much at stake if the allegations are true.

The Plymouth-Canton school board is currently taking a look at its long list of policies, revamping those that are still relevant, ridding themselves of ones that aren't.

One of the proposed new policies is a requirement that individual board members who want something discussed at a meeting have to obtain a majority vote for the item to be brought forward. Another possible policy is a moratorium on anyone except the school board president talking to the community, including the media.

Before the administration presents or the school board approves such drastic changes, we thought we'd throw our two cents in: It would be folly.

All seven board members are elected officials, none with any more power than the others. If John Q. Public has a concern, complaint, compliment or comment to make, he shouldn't be shuffled to the board president because of some policy shift.

Likewise the idea that only a majority vote can bring a subject to the table for discussion. Liz Givens, the board president, has no more actual authority on that board than Marcy Staley, the board's newest member. If Staley wants something discussed, she shouldn't have to convince three others to agree with her.

Troubling too was that here was virtually no discussion — at least not openly — at the board level about the decision to lay off 18 teachers. In addition to fulfilling its contractual obligation to district employees, the administration — along with elected trustees — have a responsibility to deal openly and forthrightly with the community on such issues.

Teacher layoffs are perhaps the most drastic decision a board can make. They affect the quality of education and they deserved a frank, open discussion.

Sure, board meetings are supposed to be about conducting the district's business, and the board is great at that. But there is also currently no other regular forum for citizens to talk to the board.

Board members should remember that, and do something about it.

Putting SpeedLink ahead of SMART is a dumb idea

In the greatest example of putting the cart before the horse since the advent of the internal combustion engine, some supporters of a long-range mass transit plan are busy trying to kill off the possibility of additional taxes to support buses already on suburban roads. This, despite the fact that the operating mechanism for the so-called SpeedLink proposal is stalled in the state Legislature and nobody yet has publicly put a credible source of revenue on the table for the $2 billion in startup costs — or $200 million operating budget — the comprehensive transit plan will require.

We understand frustration with the existing SMART system, which has never really lived up to expectations as transportation link for suburban residents. But we just don't get the thinking that crippling current bus service would enhance the chances for some future major league mass transit overhaul.

The dissent against a millage renewal and increase for the existing SMART system isn't widespread, but it could be enough to derail the delicate balancing act needed to get the proposal on the Aug. 6 primary ballot. And much of it comes from an unlikely corner — a coalition of religious leaders, usually among the staunchest advocates for poor and elderly people who rely on mass transit.

After initial opposition to any tax increase, leaders of Metropolitan Organization Strategies Enabling Strength (MOSES) said last week they would back a .33-mill renewal and additional .6 mills for two years to maintain existing SMART service and replace buses. The regional transportation authority is looking for a four-year millage increase. The SMART plan would generate $44 million a year in revenue, pocket change compared to the projected costs for SpeedLink.

The coalition of 130 area congregations has indicated it will offer only lukewarm support for any SMART proposal, saying new tax dollars for SMART will discourage voters from addressing long-range needs.

Commissioners in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties are expected to weigh in on the SMART proposal in the next week or two. The plan needs approval from all three commissions to make the ballot. The Wayne County Commission tabled the matter last week and was scheduled to take it up again on Tuesday. A committee of Oakland commissioners has recommended that body give the proposal the green light. In Macomb, some commissioners have been vocal in their opposition and a vote has been delayed until sometime in May.

Then there's SpeedLink. The revolutionary (well, for Michigan anyway) plan calls for a combination of high-speed, dedicated bus routes and traditional bus routes that would crisscross the tri-county area over the next 20 years. The agreement came out of a summit last summer between state and local officials, along with area business leaders.

What the plan doesn't have is money behind it, or even a timetable for getting there. Now that it's approaching crunch time, SpeedLink's carefully crafted support network is starting to split at the seams. A state Senate bill to set up a regional transportation authority "is dying of its own weight," said Sen. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia. Lackluster support from Gov. John Engler, outright opposition from some suburban lawmakers and union concerns about job security — along with election-year politics — may put the plan on the back burner.

Add to that a general public that doesn't put mass transit in any form at the top of its agenda. A University of Michigan survey released last month taken in the five counties that make up southeastern Michigan revealed that only five percent of the population uses mass transit and just a third of those surveyed would pay higher taxes for it. The one bright spot was that 69 percent of the respondents said reliable and safe public transportation is a key factor when it comes to quality of life.

Keeping SMART on life support may not be an attractive idea to those dreaming of the kind of big-time transit system common in other metropolitan areas. But given southeastern Michigan's history on the issue, we believe it's something voters should at least be given the chance to decide.

Who are we?

The Transportation Department of Plymouth-Canton Schools is one of the most valuable assets in our community. The people involved in taking your children to and from school are one of the most precious groups we have around us.

Work at the bus yard starts between 5-5:30 a.m. while most families are still fast asleep in their beds. It's still dark outside. At times you can still see the moon and stars. The roads are almost empty of cars. The weather conditions could be horrific with ice, snow and sleet or absolutely beautiful, depending on the season.

Some winter months we are out before the salt trucks, springtime, before we have been alerted of 50 mph winds!

We usually know before anyone that a traffic light is out or where the black ice is or that a car is in the ditch, or an animal has been hit and needs help, downed electric wires, etc. We are the first to know and see most everything going on in the early hours of the day.

The bus yard lights are on along with the bus garage. Over 100 buses are getting ready for the journey of picking and dropping off your most precious possessions ... your children. One by one we pre-trip our buses which includes entire inspection of the bus from outer to inner to under the bus. Everything must be perfect during the pre-trip or the bus doesn't leave the yard.

Sometimes drivers see and report situations that have just happened that police and fire departments are not yet aware of. These drivers reports are called into dispatch, who, in turn, call the proper authorities. They have probably saved some lives, patrolling your community day and night during the bus route drive.

We have many substitute drivers to accommodate routes when drivers call in sick. They are very efficient and well trained.

Drivers and staff are all dedicated to making things run as smooth as possible. Drivers and staff are so proud and happy when they are able to turn a bad situation into a good one with the children.

Drivers have sick children. Calls are made to dispatch and parents are called and school principals get involved in getting your child the help they need.

Drivers have small children who miss their stop on the way home. Drivers contact dispatch to notify this and that if parents calls, the child will be dropped off a little later than usual and not to worry.

Special Ed drivers are the greatest people. They are transporting some children who are terminally ill and drivers are truly affected by their early departures.

Drivers in conversation call the riders, "My kids". They are proud of "Their kids". They brag that the kids on their bus "are the best" and "their kids are polite and good to them". They like bragging about "Our Kids".

If you have a concern or any questions regarding your child's bus ride, please feel free and comfortable to call and ask to talk to the staff at (734) 416-3000. They all are very wonderful people anxious to please. They are good listeners. No concern is too small.

Be kind to the staff when you call. They care about your children. They are your best friends.

All transportation drivers and staff are a wonderful group of people who love their jobs and love your children. Be good friends, call as often as needed. We are one big family when it comes to caring and protecting your children. The Plymouth-Canton transportation group reminds me of "Guardian Angels."

What a view!

I am so glad that the group Scenic Michigan prevailed in its case against billboards in Livonia.

I enjoy my daily drive through majestic Livonia along I-96, and the awe-inspiring views I encounter along the way. I would hate to have my views of the stark, bare cement walls, the tops of nameless, faceless, windowless industrial buildings, and generic, cookie-cutter subdivisions obscured by billboards!

'No' means no

I am responding to the article about the Youth Advisory Council and Tom Yack, published on April 25.

The water park is not a dead issue. Mr. Yack is looking for support anywhere he can find it. Fifty students stated they would like a "splash park." This is fine that the administration canvass different areas of opinions, but could this be on the infringement of dirty politics.

There were public meetings held concerning the development of Ford and Ridge into a water park. All people in attendance, except a few, were dead set against a water park. The majority of the people want a natural park. A park where one could walk in the woods and enjoy nature, or picnic in the shade of trees.

Why does one have to have a developed park? I fear that most of the trees will be cut down, and soccer fields planted. Then a few sticks will be added, to replace the big, beautiful trees that are forever gone. Why is Canton spending thousands of our tax dollars for major development for a park? Have you ever gone to Crosswinds Marsh? It's beautiful. There are dirt trails in the woods, and boardwalks over the water. There are places for kids to play. It's not developed. You can enjoy nature. Why doesn't Canton listen to the taxpaying residents?

The people said, NO. Stop asking and looking for support. The people who elected the current administration voiced their opinion and desires. Don't give in to the select few.

About behavior?

The Catholic Church allowed priests to molest boys for years and everyone agrees they should have known better. However, many consider the Boy Scouts of America are prejudiced for not allowing gay troop leaders, a conservative policy many years old. If the church fired homosexuals and the BSA hired them would everything be fine?

Is this really about behavior? Public schools accept homosexuality, and gay couples are glamorized on TV and in the movies. Politically correct groups are mainstream, and therefore moral — no matter what they do. And vice-versa!

A noble commitment

The Michigan State Board of Education has declared May 7 as a day of recognition for teachers in the state of Michigan and asks that local communities appropriately recognize those who so unselfishly influence the lives and aspirations of children. Clearly it is our responsibility as members of our community to endorse that recognition and expand it to all those school district employees whose input and support provide a nurturing, yet challenging learning environment for all youngsters.

In a school district everyone is a significant role model — the custodian, the bus driver, the para-educator, the coach, the secretary, the counselor, the principal and the administrator. Each has a unique role with a common focus — doing what is best for the children. So as the week of May 6 unfolds, take the time and the initiative to say "thank you" to those who chose to work in a school setting with children as a career path. It is a noble commitment and one that deserves community support.

Only question is 'when,' not 'if,' for NextEnergy proposal

Often the best time to judge the impact of a seemingly bold new idea is a couple of weeks after it's announced. By that time, the various interest groups — both pro and con — will have had a chance to weigh in. And there's nothing like the sudden glare of public disclosure to highlight previously obscured defects in conception or execution.

Phil Power

This timing applies especially to NextEnergy, the far-reaching plan to make Michigan the world center for alternative power sources for automobiles that was announced by Gov. John Engler three weeks ago. Initially conceived and funded by the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, the program would:

■ Create a NextEnergy Center that would sponsor research, stimulate commercialization and provide technical help to auto manufacturers in developing an energy technology that doesn't rely on petroleum-based internal combustion engines. Engler compared the center to Silicon Valley in California, which spawned the computer revolution.

■ House all this work on a 700-acre state-owned site south of Ann Arbor. Doug Rothwell, CEO of the MEDC, says ground should be broken by the end of this year.

■ Solidify Michigan's position at the core of the U.S. auto industry. Experts believe the industry is in the process of moving from gasoline-powered engines to power trains based on fuel cells, chemical devices that convert hydrogen or methane to electricity. Fuel cell research is scattered all over the world at present, and the NextEnergy initiative is designed to concentrate energy research right here in Michigan.

■ Make good business sense. By 2010, the market for fuel cells could grow from $220 million today to $95 billion, according to Engler. Moreover, at least 100,000 Michigan jobs depend directly on making gasoline-based power trains — jobs that are under direct threat as fuel cell technology gets adopted.

"So far, reaction has been overwhelmingly positive," according to Rothwell. "In all the days I've been on this job, I've never had an issue that has been so universally applauded." Auto industry executives like the idea of coordinating (and subsidizing with public funds) research into alternative energy sources, while environmentalists are enthused at ending the days of the air polluting, carbon emitting gasoline engine. And who knows about a continued supply of oil from the Middle East?

Rothwell has been in Washington in recent weeks, scuffling up more dough to match the state's multi-million commitment. The idea is to try to earmark appropriations to the Interior and Energy Departments, relying on the Michigan congressional delegation and on Energy Secretary (and Engler chum) Spencer Abraham. "The entire congressional delegation, both sides of the aisle, are very supportive," according to Rothwell, while federal agencies "tell us this is the best proposal they've ever seen."

NextEnergy advocates are already talking with the auto companies about consolidating their pre-proprietary energy and fuel cell research into the Center, while links are being forged with University of Michigan scientists just up the road.

Of course, problems have come to light. One possible hitch has to do with the habit of university scientists to treat work like this as purely basic research. A heavily funded initiative to concentrate development of flat panel displays at the U-M College of Engineering collapsed a couple of years ago for exactly this reason.

Another difficulty arises from the fact that Michigan is relatively late in the fuel cell competition. California already has a Fuel Cell Partnership, with eight automakers, four major energy companies and Ballard Power Systems, the world's leading fuel cell manufacturer, as members. Ohio's governor, Robert Taft, is expected to announce soon his own fuel cell initiative, and Indiana, Texas, Minnesota and New Jersey are all interested.

More broadly, the auto industry is evidently thinking hard about the basic nature of the automobile. The GM Autonomy concept car, unveiled at the auto show in January, has a skateboard chassis and interchangeable body types to hang on it. Some experts ponder whether the car of the future is an automobile with an electric motor in it or an electric device with wheels on it. Such radical thinking could drastically change the prospects for NextEnergy.

But three weeks out, things are looking pretty good. "The only question is 'when,' not 'if,'" says Rothwell, with a grin.

County executive race may hinge on appeal to suburbs

Benny Napoleon paid a visit to Schoolcraft College last week to make his case to become Wayne county executive.

The former Detroit police chief is the third candidate or potential candidate invited by Schoolcraft President Conway Jeffress to share breakfast with staff and faculty members. Detroit City Council Member Sharon McPhail and Sheriff Robert Ficano preceded Napoleon. County Commission Chair Ricardo Solomon is also a candidate. All are Democrats in a county where only Democrats get elected to county executive and where the primary is the election.

Ed McNamara is a tough act to follow. Everyone acknowledges that boss politics is alive and well in metro Detroit. The phrase "McNamara machine" is used by friends and foes alike to describe the reality.

McNamara's latest brilliant political maneuver — a pact with Republican Gov. John Engler to establish an airport authority — guarantees his influence for years to come. McNamara has already named four of the six commissioners who set up shop last week but must await Federal Aviation Commission approval to become official. The seventh commissioner would be appointed by the Wayne County Commission, which is suing to stop the authority and demurring at making its appointment.

That kind of political end run around the commission is either an arrogant display of power or a masterful strategic move toward more effective and responsive government — depending on your point of view.

It's hard to see any of the candidates who are lining up to take Ed's place wielding that kind of power, playing those strings like Yo-Yo Ma overpowering the orchestra in a cello concerto. Each has his or her much smaller power base, each has demonstrated some political savvy, but none is close to McNamara's PhD level political gamesmanship.

The gamesmanship suggest that the election might be a showdown between the two police officers, Napoleon and Ficano.

Unfortunately, race is never not an issue in metro Detroit politics. Livonia's Ficano is the only white, suburban potential candidate. Napoleon might find his numbers seriously diluted if Detroit's African-American vote is spread among three known candidates.

The key then might be for the three Detroit candidates to spend a little more time out in the suburbs while retaining their political base. Schoolcraft's political breakfasts are a good start.

Napoleon has always been good in public situations, first gaining attention as spokesman for his predecessor as police chief, Ike McKinnon. His easy style was on display last week as he went over his qualifications and laid out his agenda. He said he's focusing on three issues — education, business opportunity and safety. Since the county executive only has a direct impact on business opportunity, Napoleon will have to build that web of connections that allows a McNamara to have impact even on those areas over which he has no direct control.

McNamara has yet to declare for any of the candidates, though when asked last week he made pointed reference to Napoleon being the only candidate who has filed. Napoleon made the same point. McNamara has had strained relations with Sheriff Ficano. McPhail challenged him for county executive four years ago and didn't stint on personal attacks. Ricardo Solomon is leading the fight against the airport authority, but he has picked up the support of McNamara's protegee Prosecutor Michael Duggan.

Choices, choices, choices. This might be an interesting race after all.

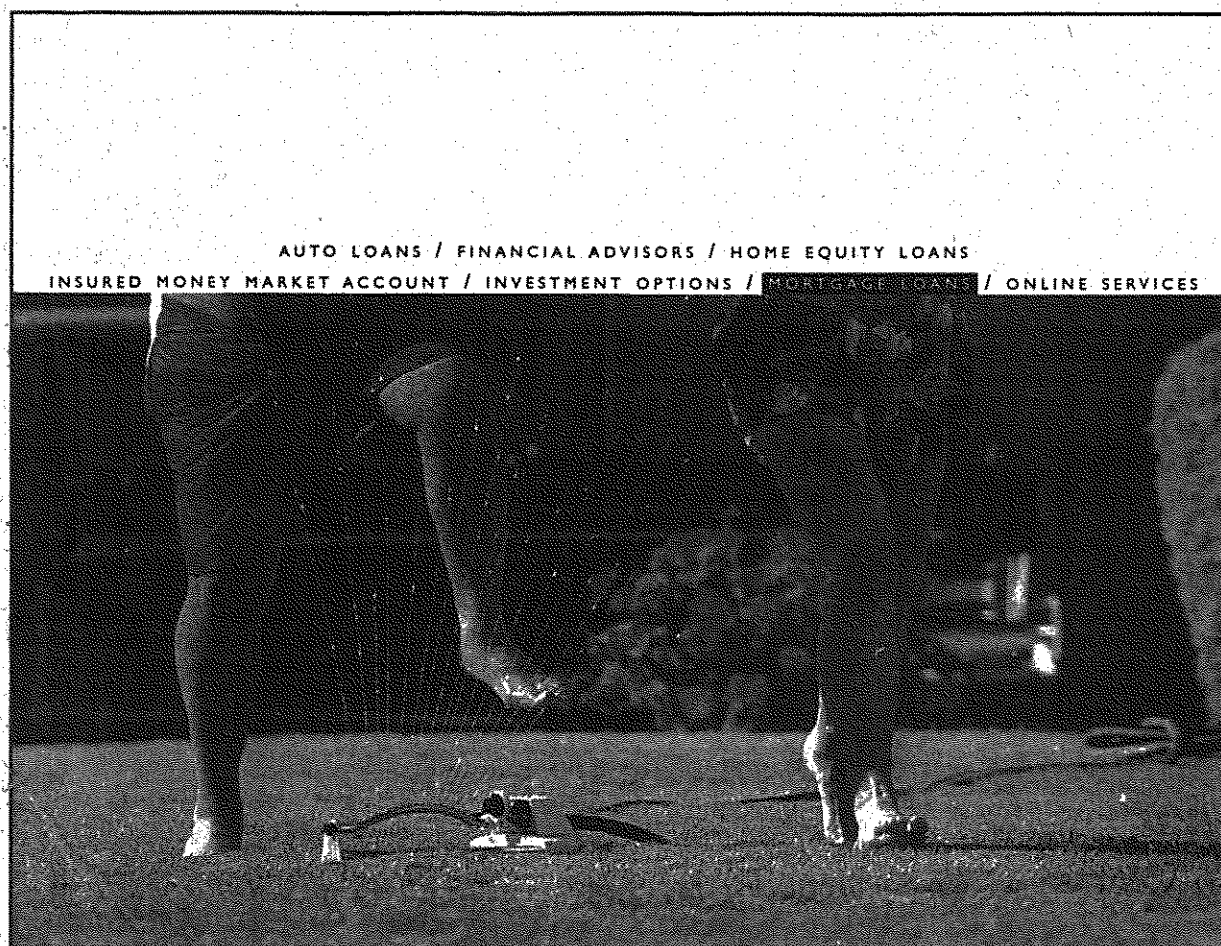

Another interesting race might be brewing in the new 11th Congressional District. A few weeks back I suggested it would be a good donkeybrook if Irishman state Sen. Thaddeus McCotter were to face a Democrat Irishman. I offered up Mike Duggan but another McNamara man has stepped in, Redford Supervisor Kevin Kelley.

The district was pretty much created for McCotter. But McCotter faces a primary race against businessman David Hagerty.

Kelley is running as a moderate, betting that the nominally GOP district isn't as conservative as the senator and that the support of McNamara and Ficano will tip the scales.

We'll see.

Schoolcraft College holds 2 commencement ceremonies

More than 1,000 students are set to receive diplomas from Schoolcraft College this year, as graduates enter an uncertain job market, with some promising opportunities in education, business, nursing and government.

The college will hold its 37th commencements 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 3, at for 140 public safety education graduates and 6 p.m. Saturday, May 4, for the general commencement.

Michigan Supreme Court Justice Marilyn J. Kelly will deliver the commencement address at the public safety ceremony, and Doug Rothwell, president and chief executive officer of the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, will speak at the general commencement. Both ceremonies will be in the Physical Education Building on the Livonia campus.

Justice Kelly was elected to the Michigan Supreme Court as its 99th justice in 1996, after terms on the Court of Appeals from the Second District. She served for a dozen years on the Michigan State Board of Education, the last two as its president, and was president of the Women's Bar Association and the Women Lawyers' Association of Michigan. She will speak on "The Vital Role of Law Enforcement in the 21st Century."

Doug Rothwell has led Michigan's economic development programs since April 1993, when

Gov. John Engler appointed him head of the Michigan Jobs Commission. He is credited with helping create more than 24,000 jobs in the state. Rothwell received the National Governors' Association Distinguished Service Award for "his innovation, leadership and commitment to spurring job growth."

Under his leadership, Michigan was voted the number one state in the nation for new and expanded business facilities for the fifth year in a row, as reported in Site Selection Magazine.

The college will award its Distinguished Alumni Award to Richard Gray, the first student accepted for admission 40 years ago when the college opened.

He has taught at Pioneer Middle School in Plymouth for the past 33 years and currently teaches history and physical education.

The college will confer honorary degrees on Jack E. Kirksey, mayor of Livonia, U.S. Rep.

Joe Knollenberg from the 11th congressional district, State Sen. Harry Gast from the 20th district, and Margaret DiPonio, businesswomen and friend of the college.

The largest categories of graduates will receive associate degrees in arts, science and applied science.

Those with arts and science degrees traditionally transfer to four-year institutions and earn bachelor's degrees.

Madonna will graduate 900

Madonna University will graduate more than 900 students at its 57th commencement 10:30 a.m. Saturday in Calihan Hall at the University of Detroit Mercy, Detroit.

Approximately 648 will receive a bachelor's degree; 264 will receive a master's degree; and the remainder, either an associate's degree or a certificate.

Honorary doctorate degrees will be given to Bloomfield Hills residents Tarik S. and Helen C. Daoud and John H. and Dianne

M. Sennett.

A distinguished alumna award will be given to Mary Anne Barczak of Sterling Heights, who graduated in 1957 with bachelor's degree in music education.

The Daouds are the owners of Al Long Ford in Warren. They have been involved in numerous philanthropic efforts. Tarik Daoud has served on the Board of Trustees of Madonna University since 1996.

John Sennett is chairman of Sennett Steel Corp. in Madison Heights. For years the Sennett and his wife, Dianne, have been supporters of Angels Place, homes prepared for adults with mental challenges, and the Cornerstone Schools. John Sennett is a member of the Madonna Board of Trustees.

All graduates and their families are invited to attend a Baccalaureate Mass at 7 tonight in the Presentation Chapel at the Felician Sisters' Motherhouse on Schoolcraft in Livonia.

Revealed: A Great place to live

The race is on. In less than four years, the Detroit area will host the Super Bowl. Every available dollar will be spent to project an image of vitality, excitement and friendliness to the world and to showcase our region's most positive offerings.

Yet even now, the Detroit area's cultural organizations present a welcoming, first class impression of our region. If a major sporting event is considered an effective way to sell the nation on Detroit, can't the attention of television to those bustling Friday nights at the Detroit Institute of Arts or Cranbrook or to the national treasures located right in the Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village do the same?

It is our cultural organizations that have the greatest ongoing ability to tell our story and showcase what is unique about us. Since the mid-1990s, Detroit Public Television has been a member of the coalition of cultural institutions that are dedicated to making their attractions more accessible and enjoyable.

Our major contributions during that time have included specials with the DSO, the DIA and coverage of hundreds of musicians, arts and cultural groups and artists of all kinds on Backstage Pass, a timely weekly series that showcased the local arts scene, entertaining viewers and encouraging them to enrich their lives by attending area showings.

For five years, the program turned Detroit Public Television into a welcoming center for performances by top local and national acts in the performing and visual arts. Then last fall came the economic slump and the difficult decision by funding sources to discontinue support, along with the resulting reality that production of Backstage Pass must be suspended.

We, along with the worthy arts organizations that received major exposure on the show, hope that in some form we can make local arts and culture a focus again. However, that cannot happen without stable, long-term funding. Despite the "public" in our name, less than 10 percent of Detroit Public Television's annual revenue comes from federal government funding. Unlike other PBS stations, we receive no operating or capital funding from the state, county, city or any university.

One of the positive outcomes of the proposed regional arts tax is that if it were adopted, Detroit Public Television would dedicate the resulting revenue to local productions, including coverage of the region's arts and cultural offerings. With a million local families a week tuning in to Detroit Public Television - twice as many as watched us 20 years ago - and another million across Canada who watch us weekly, we can be a huge megaphone for the good things going on in southeast Michigan.

The letters and comments we have from cultural institutions that thanked us for jumps in attendance after we featured them on Backstage Pass shows the value of our station in building what Dr. Bill Anderson, Michigan's director of the Depart-

Birmingham music therapist Margaret Hull seems breathless after walking in the door from a meeting with Livonia Mall management. She and the rest of the Southeast Region Committee of VSA arts of Michigan have been working to bring more than 225 children and adult performers with disabilities to the mall for their annual festival Friday-Saturday, May 3-4.

Celebrate the Arts

What: VSA arts of Michigan's Southeast Region Committee, Farmington Musicales and the Livonia Mall join forces to present a festival of music, dance and the visual arts

When: The festivities kick off with performances by VSA's children and adults with disabilities 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Friday, May 3 and noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, May 4

Where: Livonia Mall, Seven Mile and Middlebelt. For more information, call (248) 476-1160

As if worrying about having enough busses with wheelchair lifts isn't enough, Hull is busy reminding Pontiac school teachers the festival location changed. The committee couldn't be happier that it did. The switch led to a collaboration with the Livonia Mall and Farmington Musicales to Celebrate the Arts with dozens of performances May 3-13.

One last detail to work out though - Hull needs to rearrange the delivery time for a piano from Hammell Music so it arrives after her 90 special education students from Pontiac schools sing. The students from Pontiac Northern High School and Washington and Madison Middle schools began rehearsing together six-weeks ago after the vocal groups individually prepared the songs in anticipation of the annual festival.

"It's a good experience for them to be with that number of students," said Hull who serves on VSA's Southeast Region Committee. "Our theme this year is Love Can Move Mountains. The terrorist attacks of Sept. 11 really quieted me and I couldn't think what we could do but patriotic songs, then on Nov. 1 it dawned on me what remains is love.

"What truly amazes me is that these students with challenges can remember all these words. Sometimes I can't even do that."

On a more serious note, Hull talks about collaborating with the Livonia Mall on this year's festival.

"It's difficult moving from one mall to another, meeting with mall administration but I got a warm and exciting feeling that they wanted us

The jester isn't the only one fooling around in the Farmington Players production of Once Upon a Mattress. Minutes before rehearsal begins the cast and co-producers exchange barbs.

This is Lisa Muscio's first time directing and she's wasting no time telling her mother Jan Salisbury what to do. Her father Bill as co-producer of the show gets equal time.

"It's actually quite fun. I'm having a good time," said Muscio who's done everything from musical comedy to drama with the Farmington Players over the last 14-years. Muscio minored in theater at Michigan State University after acting in productions at North Farmington High

"The biggest challenge is coordinating 20 schedules and the acting, dancing and music. It's a big cast with 19 members, 9 main characters and myself as director. Carol Burnett played the role of the Princess on Broadway in 1959. It was difficult trying to find the perfect princess for the prince who the queen doesn't want to marry."

Not to worry. Rita Montpetit will have them rolling in the aisles when the comedy opens Friday, May 3, in the theater at Barnes & Noble Booksellers in West Bloomfield. The Rochester Hills resident even resembles Burnett in this take-off on the fairy tale about the Princess and the Pea.

"I get compared to Carol Burnett a lot," said Montpetit.

here. They're in tune with bringing the community to the mall for performances and events."

Bobbi Gelman is just as excited about having the VSA festival at the mall. She supports everything the nonprofit organization does including providing therapeutic music, dance and drama classes and scholarships for children and adults with disabilities. When a committee member called to say the festival was looking for a new home she took it as a sign. For the last two years the mall held its own arts festival in March. Only a few days earlier Farmington Musicales contacted Gelman about holding performances at the mall during National Music Week May 6-12.

"I'm most excited about re-energizing our festival by bringing in VSA and Farmington Musicales," said Gelman. "I'm excited about having more group support and to add to that in years to come. When the calls from both groups all fell in the same week it told me something — that this was meant to be."

Now Gelman is finalizing dozens of details just like Hull. Order 800 red, white and blue pinwheels to give out to children in keeping with the Sights and Sounds of America theme. No balloons because of the VSA children and adults with allergies. Where to place the 40 pieces of art in the touring exhibit of emerging artists spotlighted by VSA arts of Michigan. Set aside at least four tables for the group's hands-on art activities.

"We'll have Showtime at the Apollo auditions for talented children ages 5-12, the semi-finals May 9, finals May 11, as part of the festival," said Gelman. "We do 6-12 events a month, lots of family performances. We did 40-50 performances in December alone. In addition to the VSA exhibit the mall's Grass Roots Gallery will feature local artists, and Sherry Morgan who takes mannequin body parts and paints them will be demonstrating in Sears Court."

Ronda Music, the newest Southeast Region Committee member, is coordinating the hands-on art activities for children during the VSA performances. The West Bloomfield resident has plenty of experience. She teaches art to 625-children a week, including those with special needs, in West Bloomfield Schools.

"I want for kids, whatever they walk away with, to feel successful," said Music, who's volunteered with VSA arts of Michigan five years. "I think the festival is wonderful. I'm sending the flyers for it to all the arts teachers in the district. I think it's important the word gets out."

Karen Barsy, a dance therapist with Livonia Public Schools, couldn't agree more. She'll bring her Dance Magic group of special needs students to the festival 12:30 p.m. Saturday, May 4.

"We're performing in jazz style," said Barsy. "We just started this year. This is the first class of its type. All are mobile, special needs students ages 6-13. We had one boy who didn't intermingle and he's really interacting. His mom says that's the only place he does that. I love the kids, love seeing the progress. For the special needs kids when they perform it's like another world opens up for them."

Like Barsy, Lourie Davis is grateful for the festival which gives children and adults with disabilities the opportunity to perform for the general public. At FAR Conservatory in Birmingham where Davis is a creative arts therapist, students look forward to showing off their skills in music, dance and drama. The conservatory will hold a free recital of its own 6 p.m. Thursday, May 2. Music, dance, theater and puppets are on the program at the conservatory inside First Presbyterian Church, 1669 West Maple. Call (248) 646-3347 for more information.

This is the first year in the Livonia Mall festival for Pop, a jazz dance group of six-students ages 12 to 26. Conservatory students Kelly Miles of Novi and Ben Monkaba, Troy, also will perform. Miles will tap dance and Monkaba will perform a drum solo, beginning 1:45 p.m. Saturday, May 4.

"Our program is very upbeat, hip hop. It's something they listen to, something they enjoy so performing is much more enjoyable," said Davis, a Farmington Hills resident who earned a master's degree in art therapy from Wayne State University.

"I'm excited because at first they were shy. It was a challenge. Now they focus more. Knowing they're going to perform releases their inhibitions. I see them coming together as a unit and enjoying the camaraderie. We have a couple of Down's Syndrome kids, one who never picked up her feet. She does now thanks to the Popcorn dance."

"My father gave me the gift of dance. I was very shy. I came alive when it came time to dance," Davis said. "It taught me to express myself and have fun."

Marjorie Van Hoy knows the power of music. That's why she joined Farmington Musicales 10 years ago. She hopes droves of people will help them celebrate National Music Week. Like the VSA festival, Farmington Musicales is bringing their lineup of performers to a new location this year. In the past, they held annual National Music Week performances at Tel-Twelve Mall, Twelve Oaks, Somerset, and Laurel Park Place. In addition to the Livonia Mall performances this year, they will also hold a concert to benefit their annual scholarship competition 7 p.m. Saturday, May 11 at the Costick Center in Farmington Hills. Headlining the program is the Christa Grix Jazz Trio. Call (248) 471-6017 for tickets.

"Farmington Musicales is a group of musicians and people who appreciate music and who meet once a month, September to June, since 1965," said Van Hoy who'll perform ragtime and semi-classical pieces that she composed for piano. "We're part of the National Federation of Music Clubs founded in 1898. Music clubs in the Detroit area first organized festivals in malls 30 years ago. Music Week celebrates the universality of music. This year's theme is "Music, a Language of the Heart. It focuses on the universal joy that comes from performing or listening to the music."

"The Celebrate the Arts festival gives us a chance to interact spontaneously with people over things we've written. We're excited about working together with VSA and the Livonia Mall to share the musical arts with the public."

ment of History, Arts and Libraries, refers to as "cultural tourism."

Despite the pressures of corporate funding cuts and increased national program costs, we are proud to have been able to present a number of recent programs that celebrated achievements in the arts when external funding or organizational networking permitted. These include special editions of Backstage Pass that profiled the winners of ArtServe Michigan's Governors' Arts Awards and our broadcasts of The Sphinx Competition, an annual event that presents young African-American and Latino classical music talents.

And thanks to other donors, new broadcast efforts to enhance the arts and education will be seen on Channel 56 in the days and weeks ahead.

With funding from the Johnson Controls Foundation, Different Takes, a one-hour special that showcases select winners of the Michigan Student Film and Video Awards, airs Sunday, May 5, at 4 p.m. Hosted by Elliot Wilhelm, (Detroit Film Theatre and Detroit Public TV's Friday night Film Festival), this one-hour program spotlights nine filmmakers from around the state, with studio segments providing insight from the young artists on the creative process, each followed by the airing of their work. Local winners include High and Dry, created in stop-motion animation by Richard Wohlfeil of William Ford Career Tech Center in Westland, and From Farm to Table, an instructional piece created by Valerie Brown and Devin Termini of Oakland Schools in Waterford.

Later this month, through the support of SBC Ameritech and the Agnes Scott Memorial Fund, Detroit Public TV welcomes winners of its annual Reading Rainbow Young Writers and Illustrators Awards to our studios. We'll showcase works of children from Plymouth, Rochester, Bloomfield, Canton, Farmington Hills, Detroit and many other local communities on a Channel 56 special airing June 11-12 and 14 and 16 during daytime children's programming.

We'll bring new video attention to the Detroit Zoo and Detroit Historical Museum with Welcome to Youville, airing May 20-24 at 1:00 p.m. In the half-hour special, which is supplemented with a fun CD-ROM and teacher materials, second graders from Macomb, Oakland and Wayne Counties develop the skills necessary to imagine, plan and create "the community of their dreams."

Perhaps there's a lesson here for us all. As we prepare to be in the Super Bowl spotlight in 2006, we must set the stage by learning to create the community of our dreams right now. We can best succeed by taking advantage of the enthusiastic participation offered by our region's cultural leaders. Detroit Public TV, through its partnerships with viewers, cultural organizations and educational institutions, is committing and searching for resources toward that goal. Birmingham playwright focuses on the trials of marriage

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
lchomin@oe.homecomm.net

Kitty Dubin types away at the computer in a feverish race against time. Her latest drama, Dance Like No One's Watching, is set to open with previews beginning Wednesday, May 8, at the Jewish Ensemble Theatre in West Bloomfield.

The first run of any play requires a birthing process of sorts. Once completed the script becomes a starting point for the collaboration between playwright, director and cast. Dubin is in the final stages of rewriting dialogue after an eight-hour rehearsal the day before.

"It's a world premiere so it's alive and changing everyday," said Dubin in an interview at her Birmingham home. "We're rehearsing every day of the week but one. As you hear the script read and move people around on the stage it's different than when you're reading silently. It's gone through lots of development. The big kinks are out of the way. Now I'm fine tuning."

Inspiration for Dance Like No One's Watching came long before Dubin wrote the first word three years ago. Set in a therapist's office much like the Birmingham one in which Dubin counseled patients for 25-years, the drama revolves around a couple attempting to overcome the trials and tribulations of marriage. The arrival of children frequently creates a crisis between two people even in the happiest of relationships.

"It's not about anyone in particular," said Dubin. "It's typical of men and women. I wanted to explore the complexity and difficulty of modern marriage. I worked with a lot of couples over the years."

Dubin has nearly 33 years of personal experience to call upon as well. Husband Larry, a law professor at the University of Detroit-Mercy and a legal analyst, raised their 25-year-old son Nick together.

"I've learned a lot and my marriage has changed a lot," said Dubin. "Because life is changing so fast and people are changing, your marriage has to change, too."

"The play is about a couple who after a year of marriage has twins. The husband is addressing his career issues and climbing the corporate ladder. She's conflicted because before the births she was a stewardess traveling all over the world for 10 years and is suddenly at home with two babies. It's a tremendous loss of identity and isolation. Anyone who has kids goes through this transition from this great romance to asking 'is it ever coming back again? Do I love this person or do I hate this person?' At its heart, it's a drama with comic undertones. Situations just get so bad they're funny."

Dubin attributes the success of her marriage to dedication on both their parts. In the play the couple, played by Robin Lewis-Bedz and Thomas Hoagland, must rely on the therapist (John Siebert) to help them. Dance Like No One's Watching dissects the relationship and personal histories.

"Marriage takes work, work and more work, staying conscious, knowing if you take it for granted the connection disappears," said Dubin. "You have to work at it almost daily to keep it alive and attend to one another."

But before they reach the point of nurturing one another, the couple in Dance Like No One's Watching must work through issues, in some cases, that originated long before the marriage.

"I have a lot of confidence in director Geoffrey Sherman and the cast," said Dubin. "The therapist plays several roles including the father of the woman. As they talk about things that happen they come to life. The therapist asks where they met. They met on an airplane. Suddenly the audience hears the sound of an airplane and the wife appears wearing a stewardess uniform. It's a device that really works. Visually and psychologically it's very interesting."

Just like her playwrighting students at Oakland University in Rochester Hills, Dubin strives to advance her skills.

"I keep learning about the process of playwrighting," said Dubin. "The basic rule of drama is show not tell, not for someone to come on and explain. I try to teach that to my students."

"The big challenge for me in some ways is to let go of the play and surrender it to the director and cast but when you're initially writing it you have to figure out what you're saying. You have to take a point of view and focus in on what that is. Over the period of time when I was writing it I developed insights about marriage and then had to figure out how to dramatize that."

Judging from audience response to a staged reading of the play at the Jewish Ensemble Theatre in 2000, Dubin accomplished just that. According to artistic director Evelyn Orbach, who selected the drama for the 2001-2002 season, it's Dubin's best play so far.

Orbach's watched Dubin's talent evolve from the time her first play, Mirrors, debuted at the State Fair Theatre in Detroit in 1986 as an equity production. Since then the Jewish Ensemble Theatre has done three of Dubin's plays The Day We Met (2000), Change of Life (1995) and The Last Resort (1990).

"Each time we've done one of Kitty's plays, they've done better than before as far as community response," said Orbach. "There's always substance in her plays. A staged reading gives you a sense you never really realized when you read it. Her last three were in our Festival of New Plays. Part of our mission at JET is to bring recent plays of substance to audiences. Kitty's work is a marvelous mix of comedy and drama. They're serious subjects but she's funny."

"What I love about this play is that in the end it's about finding yourself and not being what others want you to be."

The last year has forced Dubin to look inward just as the female character does in the play. Within the span of 12 months Dubin's mother and father died. Now she needs to grieve the loss. After the JET production closes Dubin plans to take some time for herself. She hasn't been able to do that. Four days after her father's funeral, her one act play, Mimi and Me, was produced at the American Playwrights Theatre in New York City. In February, she received the Jewish Woman in the Arts Award from the Festival Dancers of the Jewish Community Center of Metropolitan Detroit and the Janice Charach Epstein Gallery.

Since 1984, several of her dramas and one-acts have been produced at Purple Rose Theatre in Chelsea; Live Oak Theatre, Texas; University of Detroit-Mercy Theatre, and by Heartland Theatre Company. Dubin began writing plays in the early 1970s after taking a class at Wayne State University while working towards a master's degree in English.

"The thought of writing plays was totally daunting but I found I had a knack for it," said Dubin. "I tried short stories, poetry, but playwrighting was all dialogue. I knew this was my genre after my professor suggested I enter the Detroit Motion Picture Playwriting competition and won $350 and saw it produced at Wayne State. I got bit by the bug. Seeing people totally enjoy my work was intoxicating."

That feeling of euphoria is what the female half of the couple experiences in Dance Like No One's Watching.

"The character says the line 'dance like no one's watching' in the play to describe a feeling," said Dubin. "When I'm dancing like no one's watching I feel very alive and connected to myself."

Award-winning choir shakes up audience with 'Gospel Mass'

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

The soul-stirring experience of singing Robert Ray's Gospel Mass moves the members of the Detroit Concert Choir, literally. Alan Cooper's sung it a number of times with the choir. He can't wait for audiences to hear and feel the music at concerts Saturday, May 4, at St. Hugo of the Hills in Bloomfield Hills and Sunday, May 5, at First English Lutheran Church, Grosse Pointe Woods.

"It's uplifting, inspirational, a piece the choir enjoys singing," said the 42-year old Waterford resident who works in Canton. "I love singing. It's extremely relaxing. It stimulates the artist side of me. I'm an engineer so singing brings me in contact with the arts."

Cooper's been singing since the age of four and knows church music, but this piece is a little different from the style of music with which he grew up. That's why he sings with the Detroit Concert Choir under the direction of Gordon Nelson. It offers members the opportunity to taste different styles of music.

"The standard of music is excellent," said Cooper who sang with a male choir in Manchester before being transferred to Detroit from the U.K. in 1995. "It's a competition choir with a variety of repertoire second to none. We sing from the heart and soul."

Susan Bielman agrees with Cooper that music, especially the Gospel Mass, arouses feelings deep inside. She has sung Ray's composition a few times during her 14-years with 80-voice Detroit Concert Choir. It is one of the tracks on the choir's fourth CD, Hallelujah! Amen!

"I love it," said Bielman, a Troy resident who went to Wales in 1996 to compete with the chorus and took the top award, Choir of the World. The Detroit Concert Choir has won 14 awards in European competitions in the last 10 years.

"I was raised Catholic. The mass is all prayer but a gospel-type music. The solos stand out and touch the heart."

Vickie Kimler thinks the reason the music moves audience and singers alike is because of a jazz technique employed by Ray. Tenor soloist James Moore Jr. takes the spotlight to carry it off.

"He uses scat singing. They go up and down the scale," said Kimler of Farmington Hills. "I love it. It makes you want to dance in your seat while you're singing no matter what your faith."

While Kimler enjoys performing the Gospel Mass, she's just as fond of the rest of the Heart of America program, including Amazing Grace.

"I like all of the pieces," said Kimler. "It's music that uses rock, jazz and classical. I call it modern rock gospel blues. We'll sing selections that won the choir first place in an international competition in Austria last summer along with folk songs and spirituals."

Heart of America: The Detroit Concert Choir perform a program of American folk, gospel and spirituals May 4-5 in Birmingham and Grosse Pointe Woods.

It came from Canada: The Constantines head stateside

Bry Webb won't deny the pop radio days of his youth. As the singer and guitarist for Canadian-based rock quartet The Constantines, Webb is well-rooted in the underground scene. But his childhood was flooded with the common sounds of the Eurhythmics, Dire Straits and The Smiths. "I have a soft spot for pop music," he said.

STREET SCENE

STEPHANIE CASOLA

You might not know that by the sound of the band's U.S. debut, The Modern Nervous Sinner Man E.P., released last month on Suicide Squeeze Records. The label is known for releasing singles by such subtle artists as Elliot Smith and Modest Mouse.

In just 3 songs, only 12 speeding minutes, The Constantines lash out with jarring energy, haunting emotion and provocative lyrics. Take, for instance, the lyrics of a tenderly twisted love song, Underneath The Stop Signs: "Somewhere behind the barricades/Coughing up these wedding vows/Losing our heads/Throwing soft sounds. It's the lies our tongues are telling/ It's the lies our tongues."

This isn't your usual pop radio fare. Far from it. The music often falls closer to the realm of primal scream with a beat.

During a recent interview, Webb lamented the loss of his father's tremendous record collection — which was sold long before Webb had a record player of his own. "He was always making mix tapes off of the radio for my sister and me," Webb recalled.

His love of music converted into playing music around Grade 8. "I really wanted to play guitar," said Webb. "I figured it would be too expensive. Everytime I saw a guitar it was out of my range. My Grade 8 teacher told me I could go to a pawn shop and get one for a hundred bucks."

And that's what he did. By age 13 he and a group of friends had started a band. "We were all into skateboarding," he said. They were fans of bands like Minor Threat and The Descendents.

Thanks to a local promoter who hosted the Speed City Concert Series on Saturdays, Webb got plenty of stage time in during his teenage years. "It got me into playing live shows," he said.

Webb eventually began playing with drummer Doug McGregor in a hardcore punk band. The two spotted future bandmates Dallas Wehrle (bass) and Steve Lambke (guitar and vocals) performing in a band called Captain Co-Pilot. Eventually stealing the musicians away, they formed The Constantines around 1999. Webb moved from his home in London, Ont. to Guelph.

"We just wanted to be a good live band," he said. The Constantines intended to play the sort of music they wanted to hear. With influences coming from all sides — Webb frequently names The Clash, Bruce Springsteen and Fugazi — the band emanates sheer rock energy.

Webb recently relocated to Toronto. The city, "as crowded, busy and loud as this" has brought new inspiration to Webb. He's found even more to write about.

And it hasn't hurt the band in the notoriety department, either. The Constantines were recently nominated for a Juno Award in the Best Alternative Album category.

For now, The Constantines are concentrating solely on the upcoming tour — which will take them to the West Coast for the first time. Webb sounded excited about returning to the Detroit area. "We hope to get back there more often," he said. "It's a good town."

The Constantines perform at the Lager House tonight, May 2, with opens Radio Holiday. The Lager House is located at 1254 Michigan Avenue, Detroit. Call (313) 961-4668 for more information.

Symphony welcomes spring with music

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

John Gajec admits he's a little rusty when it comes to playing oboe but that won't stop him from changing chairs for the Redford Civic Symphony's spring concert 3 p.m. Sunday, May 5, at Thurston High School in Redford.

Gajec usually plays cello but because of the death of orchestra oboist Warren Liljegren in November he's filling in. Liljegren performed with the Redford Civic Symphony for 30-years, first under Gajec who was then conductor and later under Dr. Joseph W. Lewis Jr. of West Bloomfield and Robert Zimmerman of Redford. Dr. Lewis, Zimmerman and Benny Moon conduct the May 5 program featuring selections from Richard Rodgers' Oklahoma and The Sound of Music, The Jolly Robbers Overture by Von Suppe, and Mazurka and Czardas from Copelia by Delibes, among other selections.

"I haven't played oboe for years but it's coming back to me," said Gajec. "We're doing a lot of favorites of audiences. I look forward to every program."

Admission to the concert is free. For more information about the May concert or the next program 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 25, in Redford's Capitol Park, call Gajec at (313) 538-1652 or visit the Web site at redfordsymphony.8m.net.

"Playing Princess Winifred is just a fun role, a dream role because the character and myself have no inhibitions. It's very carefree, kooky, zany, bawdy and naughty."

Tony Castellani plays the Prince trying to win over the scatterbrained Winifred. Acting is a change of pace for Castellani who directs the drama program at East Hills Middle School in Bloomfield Hills and the senior division of Cranbrook Theatre School during the summer.

"Theater is a wonderful addiction. I love directing kids, exposing them to theater. I'm not a frustrated actor while directing," said Castellani who played the same role with Ridgedale Players last October. "I enjoy playing Prince Dauntless who's attempting to become a man and his mom's not letting him grow up. Queen Aggravain (Jan Salisbury) tests all of the prospective females and finds every reason why they're not good enough."

"It's a musical I think kids would really love, a fairy tale complete with comedy, enchantment, and a cornucopia of talent."

Tim Belanger, like Castellani, played the same role in Once Upon a Mattress before. Nearly 25 years ago, the South Lyon resident became Sir Harry the Knight in a production at Livonia Bentley High School.

"My character is arrogant, pompous, and takes it upon himself to find a princess because his amour, Lady Larkin (Jan Forhan), is in a family way and no one can marry until the Prince does," said Belanger. "I love the singing and dancing. I just hope I'll be able to sing when the show opens. I got laryngitis two weeks ago and only now am I starting to sing again."

Sing or not, the show will go on with The Jester (Darryl Ziegelman), Minstrel (Tim Timmer) and a mute King (Chuck Fisher) trying to further a plot to foil the Queen's plan to keep the Prince all to herself.

"I thought it was going to be easy but mime is not easy, said Fisher of Birmingham. "The King's mute because of a nasty spell. It's not easy miming and chasing the damsels through the castle."

The Queen doesn't find that amusing and isn't shy about showing it. She yells at the top of her voice throughout most of the show. Still Salisbury is having a good time because she gets to spend time with her daughter the director.

"I always wondered what it would be like to be directed by my daughter," said Salisbury. "I respect her opinion. She came up with good ideas and made us very proud. We're on the same wave length."

Albeit a little kooky.

High energy rock 'n roll makes Godspell a plugged-in circus-romp retelling of the Gospel According to St. Matthew. Pressure-treated lumber is safe, long lasting Safety concerns about pressure-treated lumber have surfaced lately. Often referred to as Wolmanized lumber (a trade name, just like Kleenex is to tissue), pressure-treated lumber has been the material of choice for many years for outdoor projects. The worries are mostly about the toxic chemicals used to treat the lumber leaching into soil, especially around child play sets.

What is pressure-treated lumber?

In the simplest terms, pressure-treated lumber is construction lumber that has had chromated copper arsenate forced into the wood cells under great pressure. Copper is a fungicide to prevent decay caused by various fungi. Arsenate (a form of arsenic) is an insecticide. This particular form is found as a natural trace element in soil, water and living organisms. Chromate "sets" the other two chemicals in the wood making them highly insoluble and leach resistant so it's safe for human, animal and plant contact.

Because this compound sounds pretty scary (one of the chemicals is arsenic) I did some research. I found that many of the fears are unfounded. Because the chemicals are "fixed" into the lumber, very little leaches in the soil. Several studies in Florida, California, and by the Consumer Product Safety Commission have found that there is no significant danger from using pressure treated lumber in or around play areas. A Florida study said that a child would have to eat a spoonful of dirt a day, taken right next to a play set, for thirty years before there would even be a potential health effect. California's Department of Health found that no form of CCA treated wood has ever been found to cause cancer in animals or humans.

California's Department of Health found that no form of CCA treated wood has ever been found to cause cancer in animals or humans.

Changes Are On the Way

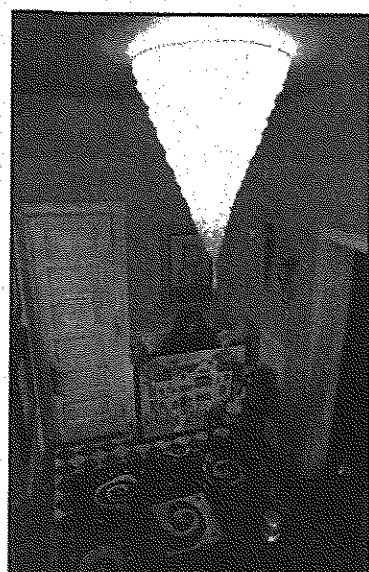

Public perceptions about treated wood, as well as new technologies are causing changes in the industry. Over the next two years a new generation of preservatives will be on the market. This new preservative will be copper based, but without arsenic. This will likely come at a price however. It's expected that the new product will cost 10 to 20 percent more than the existing.

CCA treated wood has been safely used for over seventy years. Both the EPA and the CPSC find treated wood acceptable for use for playground structures. People are exposed to more arsenic in food, water and other natural sources than from treated wood.

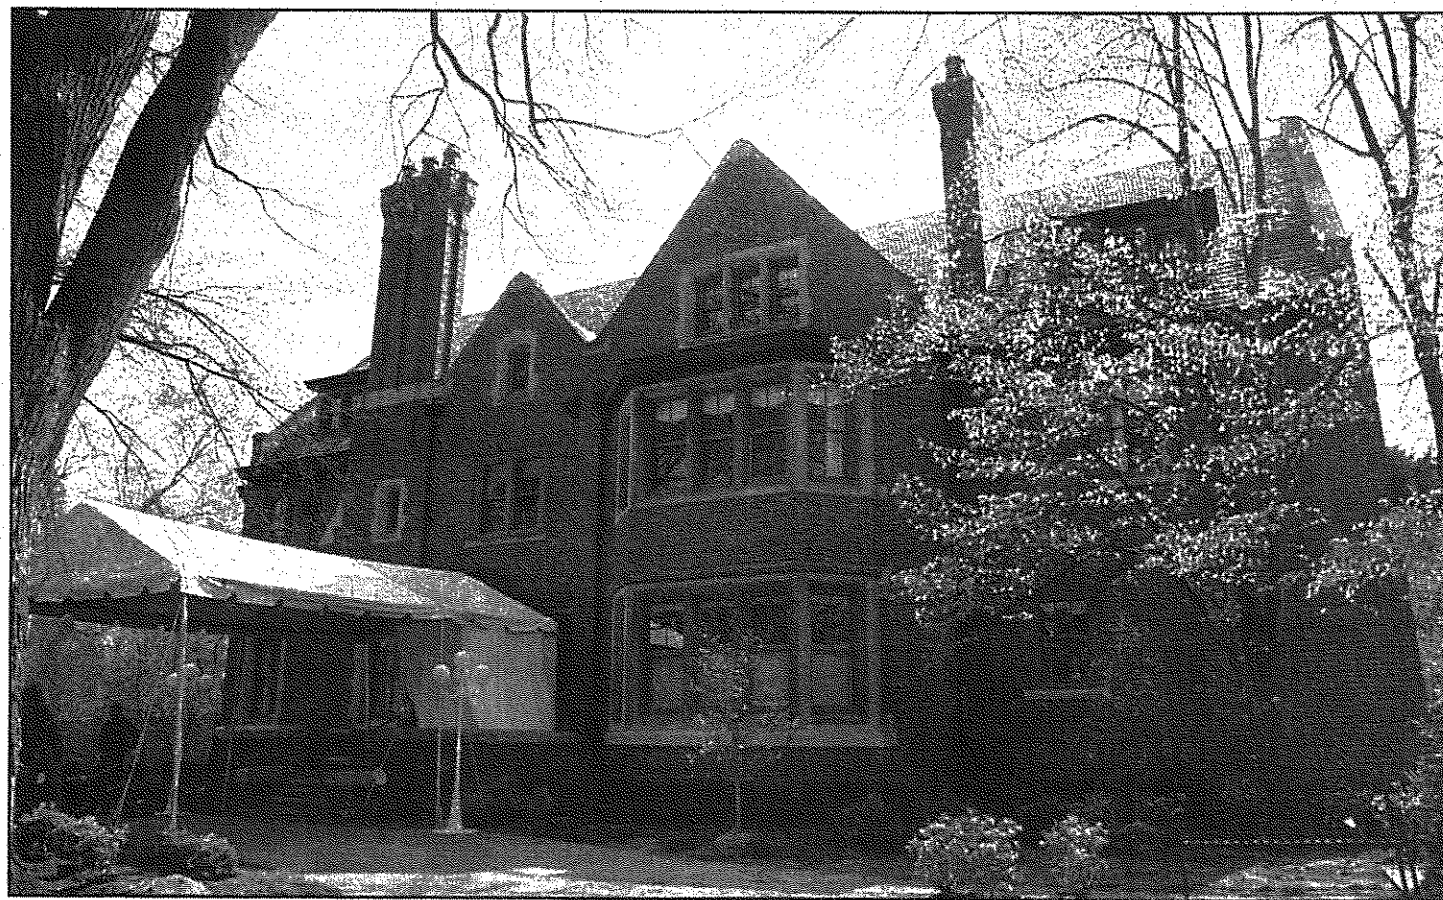

Still certain precautions should be

Show House designers give 1900s Tudor new look to benefit Detroit projects

Inside the chocolate brick 8,600-square-foot Albert Kahn Tudor hides a vivid pink West Palm Beach-style bedroom with palm trees painted on the walls. It's any little girl's delight and was created by Shawn McCrindle Interiors and Lisa Ficarra Artworks of Grosse Pointe.

Nearby, the intricately handpainted woman on a glamorous changing screen in the master bathroom, by Faux Unique of Canton, adds a romantic glamour to the three-story provincial home at 41 Provencal Avenue in Grosse Pointe — it's this year's show house presented by the Junior League of Detroit.

Intricate birds and subtle marbling painted on the hallway walls are nothing short of breathtaking and were created by Jane Shoot Painted Interiors of Grosse Pointe. The stately dining room subdued with dark wall color appears inviting and is an interesting mix with the lavish dining table adorned with blue and white china and silver gazing globes by Marshall Fields Interior Design Studio of Southfield. The seemingly overcrowded table adds to the eye candy for anyone who wants to explore the talents of some of Oakland and Wayne county's finest designers.

The Designer's Show House 2002, presented by the Junior League of Detroit, is expected to attract up to 20,000 visitors between May 4 and May 27. This year's chosen show house is located in prestigious Grosse Pointe Farms at 41 Provencal; at Kerchavel Road off Moross. The more than 30-room, three-floor home was built in 1906 in Detroit's Indian Village. It was dismantled and re-built brick-by-brick in Grosse Pointe Farms in 1930.

The show house intent is to raise money for community improvements in the city of Detroit; this year's will benefit educational and cultural programs for the city's John Monteith Regional Library. Mary Kay DuCharme, Junior League Past President, said the "tour" can be full day event; lunch is available in the home's Tuscan-style garden room and an antique boutique is located in the lower level.

The Junior League of Detroit consists of women volunteers throughout metro-Detroit. Its mission is community improvement.

The stately house, which is for sale, includes nine bedrooms, 7 1/2 bathrooms, a living room, dining room, library, kitchen, butler's pantry, breakfast room, and a sun room. It also includes carved wood and marble fireplaces, ornate moldings and custom-built cabinets are featured in bedrooms, the kitchen and the butler's pantry. A built-in pool, tennis court and carriage house are on the grounds.

The house has rooms uncommon in newer homes, which made a fun challenge for the designers.

Sharon Bergman Design, of Bloomfield Hills, decorated and re-designed the linen room.

"It was my first linen room," the experienced designer said. "There just aren't many of them in newer homes."

Bergman chose colors of gold and beige to keep it feminine and subtle; and for a whimsical flair she chose monkey paper for the walls and linen drawers.

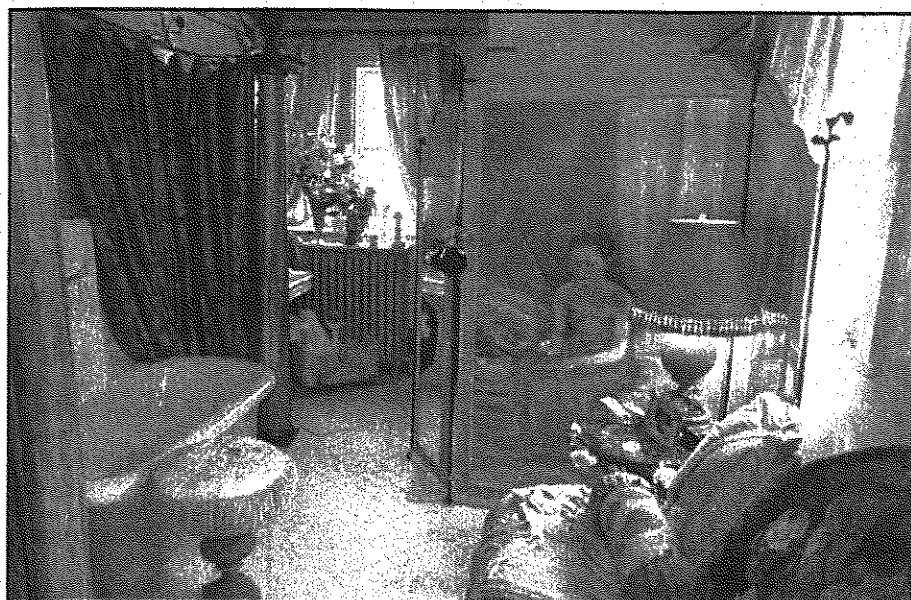

"Working on the house is a great experience for the designers," Bergman said. "The JLD is truly a pleasure and it's nice to contribute to something where you know exactly where the money goes ... in this case the library."

Once the designers were chosen by the JLD, they had to finish their rooms fast.

"What is also amazing is the designers had just two months to complete their rooms," said DuCharme.

Many of the rooms have touches of old English elegance popular among Searching for a quaint birdfeeder to lure chickadees or hummingbirds into your yard this spring?

How about a partially enclosed, 6-foot house with panels built from leaves, twigs, strings and feathers plus an overheard lightsource for the birds?

The house designed and created by JPRAA Architects of Farmington Hills is too big to hang from a tree, of course, but the over-sized birdhouse is ample enough to attract a whole chorus of songbirds into a backyard. It's just one of 100 birdhouses on display at the Home and Garden Show at The Somerset Collection North Garden Grand Court in Troy through May 12.

The exhibit opened April 20 and is proving immensely popular, according to Linda McIntosh at The Somerset Collection.

"It's been incredibly busy," she said. "I can't believe how much time people are spending look at them. It appeals to everyone from 8 to 80."

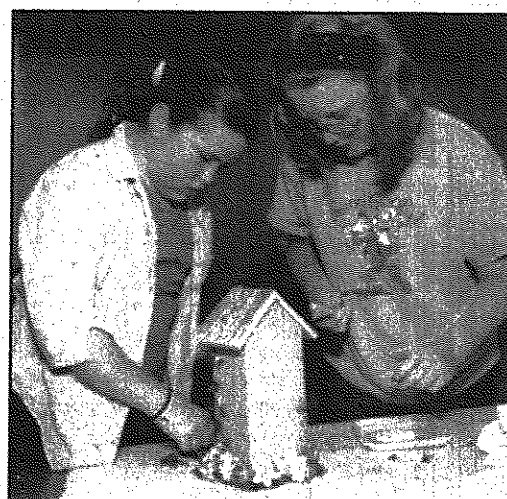

The birdhouses were designed by local companies, architecture firms and even fifth-graders at Hamilton Elementary School in Troy.

Raffle tickets are available daily for the 46 birdhouses designed by the children. The other birdhouses are available for ownership through a May 11 silent auction. All the proceeds from the raffle and auction are being donated to the Detroit Zoo.

All but the children's houses will also be judged in categories of architectural creativity, craftsmanship, most creative, a student award and best of show. The show winner will receive $2,000.

Echinacea gives interest to garden

If you want an easy-to-grow plant in your garden that gives lots of color and interest, you can't go wrong with Echinacea, the plant chosen as the Herb of the Year for 2002.

MARTY FIGLEY

It is also known as purple coneflower or rudbeckia. There are several species and each one is a little different. The flower changes as it matures. It begins as a pale pink color with thin, downturned petals (ray flowers), then gradually turns a deeper purple as it gets larger. Then the prickly center cone, which gives the plant its common name, becomes more conspicuous and turns a burnished copper color. It sometimes glistens.

■ The flower changes as it matures. It begins as a pale pink color with thin, downturned petals (ray flowers), then gradually turns a deeper purple as it gets larger. Then the prickly center cone, which gives the plant its common name, becomes more conspicuous and turns a burnished copper color. It sometimes glistens.

The name also may come from the hedgehog, the animal with many spines on its back, which is in the genus Erinaceus, spelled very like the flower's botanical name, Echinacea.

If you choose to remove spent flowers during the summer, the plant continues to bloom. I personally like to leave those attractive heads for winter interest in the garden.

Not only does coneflower provide beauty in the garden, it is a great nectar plant for butterflies and hummingbirds; small birds eat the seeds.

Coneflowers like sun, but full to partial sun will do all right. They do well in acidic to neutral soil, average to dry, although the species in general cultivation is usually grown in moist, fertile soil.

The plants are easy to start from seeds, which ripen in the late summer to fall. The seeds do require cool, dark, moist conditions for a time. This is called stratification. The seeds can also be saved and sown in the spring. They can also be divided in the spring or fall, or root cuttings can be taken in the winter.

The flowerheads of "Magnus" can be well over 6 inches in size. In "White Lustre" the greenish white ray flowerets hang down from a brassy cone.

There are several plants that are wonderful companions of coneflowers. Pair it with black-eyed Susan (Rudbeckia hirta), goldenrod (Solidago spp.) and yellow coneflower (Ratibida pinnata).

A pale purple coneflower (E. pallida) is more elegant and grows well in a sunny spot. It grows 3 feet tall. The petal-like ray flowers are narrower than purple coneflower and a bit longer in their droop.

The following information is contained in Rodale's Illustrated Encyclopedia of Herbs, first published in 1987:

Echinacea was one of this country's plant drugs during the 1920s. Native Americans used it as a remedy more than any other plant in the Plains states. The roots are the source of the medicinal properties. Indians used it for snakebite and bites of other poisonous insects; the juice of the plant to bathe burns. Some Indians used the juice to make their hands, feet and mouths insensitive to heat in order to hold, walk on or "swallow" hot coals and fire during ceremonies.

In folk medicine, the juice was used as a blood purifier to cure a wide variety of ailments such as rheumatism, streptococcus infection, bee stings, poisonous snakebites, dyspepsia, tumors and other ailments.

Beautiful feature: Coneflowers add beauty for many months in the garden.

Many herbalists regard echinacea as one of the very best blood purifiers, as well as an effective antibiotic.

GOOD GARDEN TIP

There's a great opportunity for all gardeners and would-be gardeners to participate in a worthwhile project in downtown Birmingham.

A group of dedicated people has been caring for the gardens at the historic Allen House at Southfield and Maple roads. This facility officially opened as the Birmingham Historical Museum on Memorial Day last year.

The goal is to restore the original gardens back to their previous glory. This won't be accomplished in one year, but will take several years to achieve. Therefore, many hands are needed.

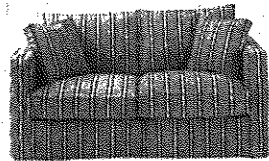

This is an excellent way to meet fellow gardeners and make new friends. The first spring cleanup will be 8 a.m. this Saturday, May 4. Please call Barbara Button at (248) 258-1695 for further information.

Marty Figley is an advanced master gardener based in Birmingham. You can leave her a message by dialing (734) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone. Her fax number is (248) 644-1314.

Got grass? Mow high!

Make your lawn easier and cheaper to maintain by mowing high—three inches is the rule!

The roots of your lawn grow as deep as the grass grows tall, so taller grass has deeper, healthier roots. Keep your lawn 3" or higher and never cut off more than 1/3 of the blade each time you mow. A healthy lawn tolerates hot, dry weather better—so you won't need to spend your summer watering and fertilizing.

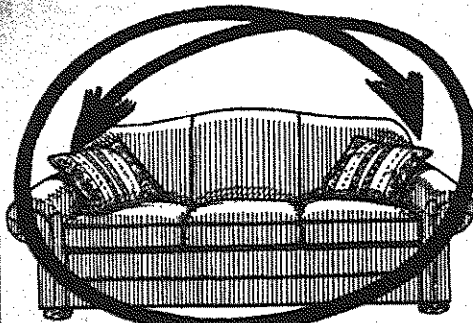

Mow high.

It's that easy.

Opulent: Marshall Field's Interior Design Center of Southfield used rich color and texture for the formal dining room with Chinese persimmon, Canton cobalt and Empire green. Butterscotch silk upholstered walls have classic molding.

Grosse Pointers, such as dark-colored walls or floors, accents of birds and dogs and heavy wooden antique furniture.

Other rooms have a look of their own.

For example, Perimutter-Friewald, Inc., of Franklin, which has participated in all past JLD and DSO Show Houses, used yellow paint to create an elegant and cheerful Park Avenue atmosphere in the living room. With porcelain antiques and a flower-patterned flooring, the room holds a quiet mystique.

From Fenton, Mrs. Miller's Decorative Painting included Alice in Wonderland as the theme for the hallway on the second and third floor. Life-size characters and a fantasy forest dominate the area.

In a more regal tone, Le Belle Provence of Birmingham used a "Chien Chic" style for the master bedroom. A European glazed wall treatment with inset wallpaper was used in the bedroom, and an original marble fireplace was enhanced by Le Belle.

At the home's entrance, Broken Color Design Studio, of Grosse Pointe, used hand-colored Venetian plaster technique on the front door to create an old world charm and look of polished marble. No detail has been overlooked.

Once guests finish the indoor tour, the outdoor gardens are expected to be just as applauded.

The JLD has raised nearly $3 million from Show House events since 1976. More than 100 volunteers will participate in this year's show house.

"Based on what we've seen from our entrants the creative spirit is alive and well in South-east Michigan," said James Gerey, general manager of Troy's Somerset Collection. "A goal (of the show) is to get people thinking about new possibilities for their living environment."

The birdhouses are part of a 3,000 square-foot garden display including trees, 1,200 square feet of brick pavers, and plants like crab trees, rhododendrons, hyacinth and tulips. Created by Great Oaks Landscape Associates of Novi, the garden also contains a glass conservatory from Canterbury Conservatories in Holland.

Tiseo Architects, of Farmington Hills, built a cubed birdhouse with Plexiglas and steel. The 1.4-foot by 1.4-foot Plexiglas cube sits on a 9-foot steel tube intended to prevent squirrels from helping themselves to birdseed.

Tiseo architects said they didn't want to rival a bird's natural ability to build a home.

Designer Agnieszka Coletta said: "We knew we could never compete with a bird's ability to create a house. What we've created is a secure, protected environment for them to build their own home while giving us an opportunity to look inside at what they're doing."

The Hamilton students used acorns, gemstones, twigs and paint to create their homes.

These, however, are good practices to follow when using any wood. In addition, burning pressure treated wood can cause toxic fumes. Dispose of scraps in regular garbage.

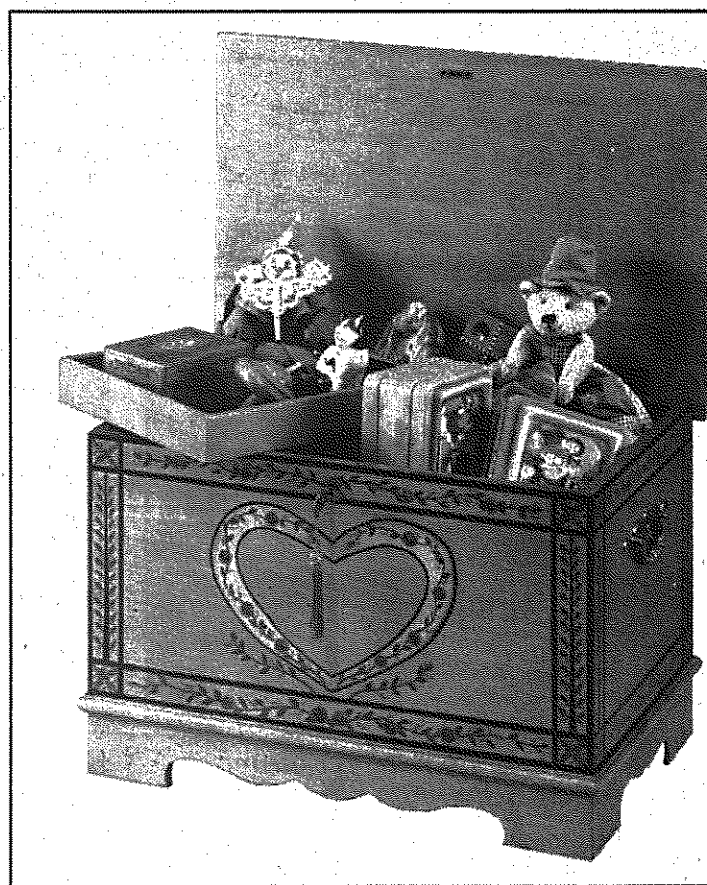

The wood preservative indus-

Be on guard, don't get ripped off

In the last few days I received a phone call from a homeowner

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

in the area checking out faulty wiring harnesses on 13-year-old Brand X furnaces.

He knew that the homeowner had this brand furnace and exactly when it was installed. He said the furnace might catch fire so the homeowner authorized Smith to send someone over to check it out. Two guys looked at the furnace, and without taking anything apart, they confirmed he had the problem that would cost $600 to repair.

They also offered to install a new furnace if he didn't want to fix his old one, and said the cost would be $4000. The other stipulation was that he had to decide now because they were leaving to go back to the factory and wouldn't be back his way for quite a while. The homeowner for these facts and figures in writing but they refused, and said they didn't have any service invoices with them. They couldn't even give him a phone number where he could return a call.

The homeowner informed the guys that he was not going to get the work done and they left his house. He noticed the shirts they were wearing had no names on them and neither did the white van they were driving. As soon as they left he called the police department and reported the incident. The officer asked if the homeowner had written down the license plate number of the white van. He hadn't but was told he should have. This is the end of the story for now.

Not long after Jennifer Granholm became Attorney General, she closed down a furnace company who had been ripping off consumers for many years. These are the very same guys who called and came out to the gentleman's home. They installed the furnace 13 years ago. That's how they knew the model number and exact date of installation.

As reports and complaints about this company start to filter in to police departments across the area, be aware that the Attorney General doesn't take too kindly to violations of stipulations set forth in her lawsuit. Stay tuned.

Joe Gagnon can be heard Saturday and Sunday on 760 WJR. He is a member and past president of the Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals. His phone number is (313) 873-9789.

OUR MENTAL HEALTH

LEN MCCULLOCH

Anxiety, panic attack: Help is available

Anxiety Disorders have many faces. According to the National Institute of Mental Health, a panic disorder is one type of several anxiety disorders.

A person with generalized anxiety disorder is haunted by chronic worrying, typically about many things they are unable to control. Their worry is unrealistic and is generally accompanied by a range of physical symptoms.

Specific phobias are anxiety reactions to objects or events outside of oneself such as small rooms, thunderstorms, spiders, and elevators.

Agoraphobia is said to exist when anxiety is so pervasive that a person is homebound, unable to venture out into the feared environment under any circumstances. This was portrayed well by the actor Sean Connery in the movie, Finding Forester in which the Pulitzer Prize winner, William Forester, was a recluse, unable to leave his apartment without experiencing extreme anxiety symptoms.

Obsessive compulsive disorder is an anxiety disorder characterized by having to follow certain routines and check things repeatedly and/or preoccupation with numbers or words.

Posttraumatic stress disorder is a form of anxiety disorder characterized by a reaction to a traumatic event where one experiences feelings of helplessness, horror and fear. These reactions may be short-lived or chronic and classic examples include the Vietnam Veteran Syndrome and, more recently, the World Trade Center, Terrorist Bombing Syndrome.

Panic attacks

Panic attacks contain some of the features found in many of the above various anxiety disorders. A panic attack is defined by the Association for Advanced Behavior Therapy as a sudden rush of intense fear or dread, which is accompanied by several physical symptoms or thoughts which may include shortness of breath, dizziness, feeling faint or unsteady, pounding heart, trembling, sweating, choking sensation, nausea, feeling that things are not real, numbness or tingling in the extremities, hot flashes or cold chills, chest pains and fear of going crazy, losing control, having a heart attack or dying.

In a true panic attack, these symptoms are not the result of real medical condition but are an extreme stress reaction in which the autonomic nervous system is temporarily out of control.

National statistics tell us that one of ten Americans suffer an anxiety disorder at some time in their lives. Full-blown panic attacks are said to be experienced by as many as 14 million Americans. The distinctive feature of a panic attack is the suddenness with which fear is experienced, seemingly, "out of the blue" with no obvious outside cause.

The average age at which treatment is sought for panic attacks is in the mid-30s, although the disorder is seen in children as well as the elderly. Panic attacks, in many ways, become like phobias, but instead of being afraid of a specific object or situation, panic sufferers are afraid of their own bodily sensations.

A psychological vulnerability develops which includes a belief that the physical symptoms of anxious arousal (e.g., shortness of breath or dizziness, etc.) are harmful or threatening and difficult to predict or control. These beliefs seem to form the basis of an ongoing dread of the return of panic.

Most sufferers are prone to attacks

WELCOME TO THE INTERNATIONAL VISITORS COUNCIL OF METROPOLITAN DETROIT

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER
rskoglund@oe.homecomm.net

It's the most prestigious international visitors' program in the land. Alumni include Margaret Thatcher, Tony Blair, Anwar Sadat and the current interim prime minister of Afghanistan, Hamid Karzai. For thirty years, members of the International Visitors Council of Metropolitan Detroit — one of 96 such councils in the United States — have been hosting foreign diplomats, future political leaders and leading business professionals, all sponsored by the U.S. Department of State.

And most of the hospitality takes place in the intimacy of American homes.

"It's a fascinating activity because all the people who come are so gracious and so accommodating," said Nelda Czubiak of Farmington Hills. She and her husband, Tom, have been IVC Detroit hosts for 25 years.

Czubiak said her dinner menu for foreign guests is always "strictly American." She serves up platters of old-fashioned pot roast, and they love it. She admires her guests' adaptable taste buds and questions if her own would be so adventurous if she were in another country.

"I would probably have a fit. First of all, I have a touchy stomach."

For members of the IVC Detroit, food plays a central role in hosting. Most hosts strive to create a memorable experience.

"A lot of people like to do a typical Thanksgiving dinner, whether it is Thanksgiving or not, or they do a Fourth of July picnic," said Gretchen Hitch Kirkpatrick of Bloomfield Village, IVC Detroit's past executive director, who retired in 1995 after 22 years.

Sometimes there are humorous cultural misunderstandings, said Hitch Kirkpatrick. She recalled when an IVC Detroit host once planned a backyard barbecue. The women's foreign guests were confused. They wondered why they all had to go outside and start a fire when there was such a beautiful stove in the kitchen.

However, there's nothing like being invited into a host home for dinner, said current IVC Detroit Executive Director Julie Oldani. It gives visitors "a window into how we do things." The atmosphere is casual, and the demands of a busy day are stripped away.

"One of our past presidents said the best business is always discussed after 5 o'clock. You can relax, and the real bonds of friendship are formed," she said.

Understanding

IVC Detroit sponsors two programs: the International Visitors Program, which hosts dignitaries chosen by U.S. embassies in their own countries, and the Community Connection Program, which hosts professional administrators and business entrepreneurs from Russia, Ukraine and Belarus.

Both programs help dispel stereotypes.

Hosting "lends itself to building a sense of global unity," said Chuck Nagi of Livonia, who works in planning and public relations for the Ford Research Laboratory in Dearborn. He and his wife, Terese, have been IVC Detroit members for three years.

Acting as a host family has been "surprisingly comfortable," he said. Most dinners are kept informal, with conversation centering on family, friends, jobs, education, lifestyles and general income levels.

Come join the celebration

For the last three decades, the International Visitors Council of Metropolitan Detroit has welcomed more than 12,000 international visitors, thanks to the hospitality of its volunteer citizen diplomats. In 2001, Senator Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania nominated volunteers from all 96 councils in the United States for the Nobel Peace Prize.

The IVC Detroit will celebrate the accomplishments of its many members by hosting the "IVC Detroit 30th Anniversary Gala Dinner" 7 p.m. Friday, May 17, at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club, 405 East Long Lake Road, Bloomfield Hills. Tickets are $150, with a cash bar available.

The event is open to the public. Black tie optional.

Dinner guests will be entertained by legendary songstress Margaret Whiting, daughter of the great songwriter Richard Whiting. She earned 12 gold records in the 1940s and 50s for her renditions of Moonlight in Vermont, Come Rain or Come Shine and that Old Black Magic. Also, the "big band" sound of the Tommy James Band will keep guests on the dance floor to the very last note.

To purchase tickets, and spread some international goodwill, please call IVC Detroit Executive Director Julie Oldani at (313) 983-4314.

Local group hosts event to stop massive dog killings

Amazing: More than 20,000 docile greyhounds are killed in the U.S. every year because they don't run fast enough. Still greyhound racing is legal in many states.

It's legal and profitable and the fact that these poor greyhounds live in cages 22 hours a day is ignored. It's also ignored that once the dogs don't make money for their owners, they're sold to research labs, sold to Mexican and South American racetracks, euthanized or shot. Some are left to die of starvation in cages.

A very lucky few are adopted.

The hundreds of cases of neglect and abuse that greyhound rescue groups report to the media seem shrugged off by the greyhound racing industry and called "isolated incidents."

Racing is a money maker and because of it greyhounds die, but first they suffer. They live in cages, are kept underweight, some are abused. My own greyhound's body is riddled with scars.

Four things we can do to help:

1. Attend a golf outing sponsored by Michigan's most active rescue group on May 11 to help raise money for greyhound rescue and rehabilitation. It's $100 and includes open range, raffle, drink ticket, 18 holes with golf cart, light lunch and dinner.

2. Never attend a greyhound race and urge others to do the same. (There are no tracks in Michigan. There are many in Florida, Arizona, Connecticut, Texas, Alabama, Kansas and more.)

3. Adopt a greyhound. Visit www.rescuedgreyhounds.org

4. Foster a greyhound

Retired Greyhounds as Pets needs money to help with its rescue missions. They've helped greyhounds who've been shot, whose legs were broken, who have cancer, who need teeth cleaned, who need vaccinations, who are emaciated, etc.

REGAP's third annual Golf to Save Greyhounds is at Cattails Golf Club in South Lyon on Saturday, May 11. The planned event includes an open driving

Polar Palooza is summer's coolest outdoor celebration

Polar Palooza, this summer's coolest celebration, is on its way to bring up to 50 fiberglass polar bears to Royal Oak this summer.

This outdoor public art event will feature an eclectic array of polar bears decorated by local artists. Space is limited and individuals or corporations interested in sponsoring a bear of their own should act now. The polar invasion begins in July and the bears will remain on display throughout the summer in downtown Royal Oak, along Woodward Avenue, and at the Detroit Zoo.

A sponsorship fee of $5,000 per bear includes the bear's production, an artist honorarium for labor and supplies, repair and maintenance, four Cruising Palooza passes, four Auction Palooza tickets, and a mounted plaque acknowledging the sponsor.

Sponsors can pick their own artist, team up with registered artists or decorate the bear themselves. Polar Palooza's call to artists has already yielded more than 100 eager artists from metropolitan Detroit and out state Michigan. Artist submissions came from professional artisans, design students, hobbyists, elementary schools, and interior design studios.

The Polar Palooza celebration will continue throughout the summer with a series of special events in August and September.

"Cruising Palooza," a party on the rooftop of the Detroit Zoo's parking garage, will be a fun-filled event with great entertainment and an amazing view of the Woodward Dream Cruise on Aug. 17. "Auction Palooza," a celebration in which the public can bid on their favorite bear, will be held on Sept. 27 at the Royal Oak Music Theatre.

Organizers of Polar Palooza include the Detroit Zoo, the Detroit Metro Convention and Visitor's Bureau, ArtServe Michigan, the Downtown Royal Oak Association and the Royal Oak Chamber of Commerce, and media partner FOX 2.

For further information or to sponsor a bear, call Tom McGannon of Eventures, Unlimited at (248)543-8368.

more in public than at home. Thus, agoraphobia or the fear of venturing out into the environment, results in many panic prone individuals becoming homebound in an attempt to avoid further attacks.

Treatment options

There are several treatment options to consider. Psychodynamic psychotherapy helps an individual uncover deep seated conflicts which find their expression in the form of symptoms of panic attacks, in particular, and anxiety disorders in general.

Cognitive therapy helps an individual modify their beliefs about their sensations of panic. For example, instead of reacting to physical symptoms with beliefs such as "I can't stand this, I must be having a heart attack, I need emergency help," the individual is taught to think in terms of "These physical symptoms are unpleasant but not harmful, I can tolerate them until they pass. They are a signal for me to relax and avoid stress."

Behavioral treatment can include educational training in deep muscle relaxation and abdominal breathing exercises as an antidote for the overactive nervous system. Through exposure therapy, people repeatedly place themselves in situations that provoke anxiety and panic and may conquer their fears.

Medication

Medication therapies are more plentiful than ever before and good results are being seen. For short-term treatments, well known tranquilizers such as Valium and Xanax can provide quick relief from the physical and some of the psychological symptoms.

A different class of medications, namely antidepressants, such as Tofranil, Elavil and Norpramine, have been found to be successful in longer-term treatment. More recently, newer pharmaceutical tools such as Zoloft, Paxil, Effexor and Prozac have been shown to be quite effective in the longer term management of these disorders. These medicines can work alone or in combination by effecting different areas of brain chemistry which often overlap.

From clinical findings and research about anxiety disorders and panic attacks, we are finding that combinations of treatments often produce very favorable results. Commonly, a non-medical psychotherapist will work with a panic sufferer from the psychodynamic, cognitive and behavioral standpoint in conjunction with a medical practitioner who will use a trial of medications.

Understanding your disorder and getting appropriate professional help can put panic into perspective.

Last year, more than $8,000 was raised — but much more is needed. REGAP is run solely by volunteers and funded completely by donations.

REGAP wants to end all greyhound racing.

Here's why: Thousands of incidents of starvation, neglect, injury and abuse have been publicized by the Greyhound Protection League, a national group that works to inform the media about greyhound atrocity.

Here are just some of the incidents that have been printed in daily newspapers nationwide over the years:

■ In West Virginia 50 dogs were left to die of heatstroke (Greyhound Network News). At a Massachusetts racetrack, a small greyhound was trampled to death when she got caught between other dogs during a race (Sunday Enterprise). A Wisconsin kennel owner sold more than 850 dogs to a cardiac research laboratory without permission from the dogs' owners (Wisconsin State Journal).

■ Forty-two abused greyhounds were seized in Austin, Texas. Six greyhounds died of heatstroke while being transported from Oregon to Florida in 95 degree heat, source Fox 35 News.

■ Two hundred greyhounds were abandoned and left to starve in Alabama after racing season was over, source PR Newswire.

■ Two hundred more greyhounds were found starving to death in Summerfield, Fla., laying in their own waste, source GPL. More than 400 greyhounds were found starving in their crates in Venezuela — the dogs raced in the U.S. and were then sold off to South America. In Tucson, 101 skeletal greyhounds were carried out of a kennel. They had been left to starve, and 36 died, source GPL.

The National Greyhound Association, which promotes racing, says the dogs are kept in climate controlled kennels. It called cases of neglect rare and says abusers are punished.

Needless to say, REGAP needs money to help these poor dogs.

Another fund-raiser

To benefit animals that are found homeless in Oakland County, The Michigan Animal Rescue League is hosting the 9th Annual Tail-Wagger Two-Step Walk for the Animals at Independence Oaks Park at 9501 Sashabaw Road in Clarkston from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 19.

MARL is a wonderful group that does not euthanize homeless animals. Adoption, rescue and spaying and neutering is their goal. The group rescues in animals in low income areas of Pontiac, Detroit and other areas. MARL needs foster families, families looking to adopt a new animal and of course, donations. Call 248-335-9290 for more information.

Pride and Humility

The dictionary defines pride as proper and justified self respect and a proper sense of personal dignity and worth. Everyone should take pride in their work, their family, their country and heritage. it is also good to take pride in things such as our personal appearance. When we take pride in all of the good things that our Lord has given us, we tend to take better care of them. However, we must be careful to have pride and self respect without arrogance or superiority. Children who are proud of their parents and respect them will try to be better children and do what is pleasing to their parents. As adults, we should always try to do what is pleasing in God's eyes. The Bible tells us that God opposes the proud, but gives grace to the humble (James 4:6). We should try to temper our pride with humility and not have an exaggerated opinion of our selves. The best way to be the best we can be. People who exalt themselves are usually esteemed less by others, and those who humble themselves are often more admired.

...do not think of yourself more highly than you ought, but rather think of yourself with sober judgment.
N.I.V. - Romans 12:13

Pentacostalism: Biggest social trend of 20th century

BY RICHARD N. OSTLING
AP RELIGION WRITER

Did journalists, pundits and historians miss one of the 20th century's biggest social trends in writing all those backward looks at New Year's 2000? Philip Jenkins, professor of history and religious studies at Penn State University, thinks so.

While Fascism and Nazism have vanished and Communism is dying, he observes, "perhaps the most successful social movement of the past century" is Pentecostalism, which started with a handful of believers and now encompasses hundreds of millions. And that's only part of the picture, since there are far more Roman Catholics than Pentecostals.

What many have missed, Jenkins says, is Christianity's strong expansion in the "South" - Latin America, Africa and parts of Asia - while in the "North" it merely holds steady in the United States and shrinks in western Europe.

That scenario is spelled out in Jenkins' book, "The Next Christendom: The Coming of Global Christianity" (Oxford University Press). There's statistical support in the two-volume World Christian Encyclopedia from the same publisher.

Jenkins says southern Christians read the Bible quite differently from western liberals. The rising Christendom is drenched in supernaturalism, both biblical and present-day, he reports. So it resonates with the world of the literal New Testament as a faith for the poor, despised, diseased and persecuted.

Unlike declining liberal churches to the north, Jenkins says, southern Christianity gives the Bible "authenticity and immediacy." Scriptural messages to the oppressed are drenched with meaning, and pessimism about the secular world is widespread. Churches preach evangelism, moral conservatism, mysticism, miracles of healing, exorcism and strength under persecution.

Westerners can understand the sufferings of God's people in the Bible as "an intellectual exercise." But in many lands, martyrdom and oppression are current realities and churches cherish "visions of coming world in which God will rule, persecutors will perish and the righteous be vindicated."

Jenkins believes communism's death and the declining credibility of many nation-states makes religious identity perhaps the most powerful force in global affairs. This has a potential nightmare aspect, since Christianity and Islam are the two main competitors and each is massive and expansion-minded.

That differs from Samuel Huntington's much-mulled "Clash of Civilizations" (1996), which depicted Islam's growth and militancy but downplayed Christian expansion. Jenkins is convinced that into the foreseeable future, Christianity will maintain its numerical "massive lead" over Islam.

At one time Islam was largely tolerant and Christianity was often oppressive, Jenkins observes, but in recent years "there is no question that the threat of intolerance and persecution chiefly comes from the Islamic side." He cites numerous examples.

By 2050, many major nations "could be profoundly divided between Islam and Christianity and, judging by present trends, any or all of them could be the scene of serious interfaith conflict," he writes. Dangerous types of countries:

■ Predominantly Muslim with significant Christian minority (for example, Indonesia, Egypt, Sudan).

■ Predominantly Christian with significant Muslim minority (Philippines, Congo, Germany, Uganda).

■ Muslims and Christians roughly equal (Nigeria, Ethiopia, Tanzania).

Although Christianity usually "atrophy among the rich and secure," he says, the United States is a huge exception. So are professional and high-tech groups within Pacific Rim nations.

Regarding the United States, he notes an amazingly daft 2000 piece by a New York Times editorial writer that described emptying pews and aging memberships, as though American Christianity were dying.

That's true in some situations. But overall, the numbers remain constant, and churches are growing among Pentecostals, evangelicals, Roman Catholics, blacks and immigrants.

By Jenkins' projections, the United States will still have the world's biggest Christian population in 2050, and by then will be the only nation in the "North" with more than 100 million Christians.

The particulars of the FY 2002 Final Statement are as follows:

Treasurer Kirchgatter would like more information regarding the amounts that were requested by each project sponsor and if other communities are sponsoring these projects also.

Ms. Weidenbach indicated that information is in their grant package and she can get that information to the Board.

Treasurer Kirchgatter expressed some concerns regarding Helpsource's financial responsibilities not being taken care of and questioned why Growthworks amount was decreased.

Supervisor Yack agreed he would feel more comfortable holding off on any action until next week to give the Board an opportunity to look further into the concerns presented tonight. Also the Board has the ability to shift dollars around if there is concern and the Board does not agree with the recommendation. The Board can be presented with an amendment and see what the consensus is. The board will reconsider this issue on April 30, 2002.

Motion by Kirchgatter, seconded by Bennett, to delete the $2,500 line item going to HelpSource and add the $2,500 to Growthworks line item.

Trustee McLaughlin suggested postponing a decision until next week when the Board could be presented with some assurances that HelpSource is up-to-date or getting up-to-date with their transportation financial responsibilities and that the $2,500 granted to them is actually going to support in the manner suggested.

"They are very aware of our culture, more so than Americans are aware of theirs," he said.

Being a member of IVC Detroit and hosting dinners – fosters a broader personal perspective, Nagi emphasized. "I think we do make a difference.... When we talk with our own family and friends we can say this is what's really going on."

Americans often perceive their culture as being at the forefront of social development, said Czubiak. Sometimes, that's a misperception. One year, she and Tom hosted a group of women from South America. The group was active in furthering women's issues in their own countries.

"We think we're ahead of everybody, and it's not true," said Czubiak.

History lessons

Sheryl Kammer of Bloomfield Hills loves to travel and learn about new cultures. Her husband, Rick, is a stay-at-home kind of guy, so Kammer often travels abroad with other groups or by herself. When she's home, Kammer enjoys being an IVC Detroit host.

"If I can't get there, then the next best thing is meeting someone from there," she said.

Last year, Kammer hosted two Russians as overnight guests for three weeks. Fortunately for this big-hearted hostess, the Russians had a busy agenda and were gone from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Kammer's hospitality never ran out – she made her guests tons of apple fritters and pancakes for breakfast – but she no longer hosts overnight stays.

"Now I just do dinners," she said. "But I'd have to say my husband got some good meals out of that visit."

Kammer once entertained a man from Moldova who was in line to become the country's next president. The man, who Kammer described as being "the largest human being I have ever seen," told her he had twice been the target of two assassinations.

"I said you've been the target of assassinations and you're in my living room!"

At times guests provide their hosts with reality checks.

The Czubiaks once drove their van full of guests – all considered minorities in this country – through a Detroit suburb to see the ice flows on the Detroit River. When they stopped to take pictures, they encountered unwelcomed stares.

Kammer learned from a group of 22 African women that 60 percent of the population in their various countries was women. The reason? The ongoing tribal war between the Tutsis and the Hutus resulted in the genocide of millions, mostly men and children.

Jonathan Swift of Bloomfield

Hills is director of International Studies at Madonna University in Livonia. He also hosts two Bloomfield cable programs on Channel 56, Dining Out and Global Connections. In addition, he is a board member of the International Visitors Council of Metropolitan Detroit.

"It gives you a window in the world. Not only a window, but a door you walk through," he said about the cultural and educational benefits of belonging to the IVC Detroit.

As a former teacher in the Livonia School District, Swift introduced the popular Global Education program based at Stevenson High School. He once arranged for 10 Russian educators to tour the school.

"They felt that maybe their students were better behaved," he said. "But they were in awe of the facilities and were surprised the school sponsored student musicals and plays."

Two of Swift's Russian guests brought video cassettes and asked if they could film his home, room by room. "Even the bathroom. They said you have so much space...oh, look at this, look at that."

When asked if IVC Detroit visitors ever change their perceptions of the United States, Swift said the results are two-fold: "First, they act as interns in various businesses (referring to the Community Connection Program). Essentially that is what the government grant is for. Second and just as valuable is the people-to-people experience.

"They're given the opportunity to meet Americans in their homes."

Demsick also broke the state record in dips with 47 (old mark: 45). This is the second-straight year Demsick has won the overall title (all ages) in dips.

"I thank God that he has blessed me and kept me healthy to compete," Demsick said. "I owe a lot of the help (I get) to the younger physical education teachers that I work out with. They keep me going."

Ocelots win conference

It went as expected — right down to the final putt.

And when that final putt dropped, the two top men's golf teams in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference had identical scores: 625.

Which made Schoolcraft College's superior depth decisive.

The Ocelots emerged from Tuesday's conference tournament, played at Bay Pointe Golf Club in West Bloomfield, with a first-place finish. SC and Flint Mott CC both carded 36-hole totals of 625; the tiebreaker was the best overall fifth score, and that belonged to the Ocelots' Brian Harnos (from Garden City), who put together rounds of 82 and 84 for a 166 total.

Mott's fifth-man score was a 171 by Phil Hathaway.

sion II (Mott is ranked ninth), found itself trailing the Bears by five strokes after the first 18 holes, Mott having shot a 312 to SC's 317. In third after the first 18 was Oakland CC at 321.

The Ocelots roared back in the tournament's second half with four scores of 80 or better. At the forefront of their assault were a pair of Plymouth Salem HS graduates, Mark Doughty and Jay Smith.

Smith tied Mott's Ken Williamson for the best 18-hole score of the day, a 74. Doughty was right there as well, carding a 75 to go with his opening round of 76 for a medalist-earning total of 151.

Smith's opening 78 gave him a 152 total and made him runner-up to Doughty. The Ocelots third sub-80 score on the second round came from Tom McCall, who shot 79 to go with his non-counting 85 opener for a 164 total (Harnos' first-round score of 82 counted in the team total). Third overall among the SC scorers was Brian Downing, who was a model of consistency with an 81-80/161.

"I was just telling our school vice president, Dr. Reibling, that I don't remember any school ever taking all the trophies at any tournament," SC coach Carolyn Steffen said. "Finishing first as a team and having both the medalist and the runner-up. But this was the tournament to do it, at the conference."

Salem stuns North in 8th

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjriskak@oe.homecomm.net

After a couple of blunders in the bottom of the seventh inning allowed host North Farmington to come back and tie this key Western Lakes Activities Association softball game Monday, one might believe Plymouth Salem was ready to fold.

Wrong. The Rocks collected their seventh-straight win, and their fourth in a row in the Lakes Division, scoring a controversial run in the top of the eighth inning to earn a 5-4 victory.

Salem improved to 9-3 overall, 4-0 in the Lakes. North is 3-1 in the division, 8-2 overall.

"The girls were swinging the bats really well today," said Salem coach

SOFTBALL

Bonnie Southerland. "They know when we play North it's always intense. They knew they had to win, with both teams 3-0 in the division (coming into the game)."

The Rocks built a 4-0 lead against Raider ace Beth Danielewicz on a two-run single by Maggie Tudor in the second inning and a run-scoring double by Kelly Jaskot and a one-run single by Amy Szawara in the fourth.

North got one run in the fifth and three more in the seventh, the seventh-inning rally starting with singles by Ali Goldberg and Jehan Hindo. After Goldberg was picked off base and a ground-out, Lindsey Taub's two-out single was misplayed by Salem's left-fielder, allowing a run to score and Taub to reach third. Amy Berke's double plated Taub and an error by the Rocks' shortstop on Danielewicz's grounder scored the tying run.

But Salem answered immediately. With two out in the eighth, Szawara singled (her third hit of the game) and moved to second on a passed ball. Mandy Bradley grounded to second, but the throw was dropped by the North first baseman and Szawara kept running and scored. North coach Dave Brubaker insisted his first baseman recovered the ball before Bradley reached first, but his protest went for naught.

Canton seeks 3rd straight Observerland track title

Since the turn of the millennium, there's only been one champion of the Observerland Boys Track & Field meet. Several teams will be in the running to try and end that trend this weekend.

The 32nd annual Observerland Meet will take place Saturday starting at 3:30 p.m. at Livonia Churchill High School. Like last year, 20 teams will take the track to unseat two-time defending champion Plymouth Canton.

One of the most anticipated races at the meet will also be the shortest. This year's field in the 100 meter dash is as good as ever, with state-placing runners like Borgess' Darryl Anglin, Clarenceville's Tim Shaw, Harrison's Marcus Woods and T.J. Dillard from Wayne all capable of running under 11 seconds in the race.

"That race will only last 11 seconds, but you've got some state-quality kids in there," said Catholic Central coach Tony Magni.

Anglin won the 100 at the West Bloomfield Invitational Saturday, equaling his mark from last year's state meet with a 10.9.

In the field events, Canton has dominated in recent years, and appears to have the athletes to do it again this year, although coach Bob Richardson has never been too comfortable with the label of 'favorites.'

In the field events, Canton has dominated in recent years, and appears to have the athletes to do it again this year, although coach Bob Richardson has never been too comfortable with the label of "favorites." He said the meet is a fun one for the kids, because of different events like the shuttle relay and medley relays, and knows his team takes pride in being defending champs.

"It's good to see great competition, and we'll see plenty of that this weekend," he said. "It's the biggest meet in the area, and a real showcase of the talent we have at schools around here."

The Chiefs are used to coming out on top in this event, winning last year's meet by a comfortable 12 1/2 points over runner-up Catholic Central. Canton took first places in the high jump, long jump and distance medley last season, and looks to have one of the top shuttle hurdle teams this season, led by Dane Kobus.

The Shamrocks figure to be strong in the distance events, with a few athletes also members of the school's Division 1 champion cross country team last fall. CC's Ryan Lowrey has recorded the top open mile time of anyone in the area so far this season (4:31.3) but will be followed closely by a trio of Livonia Churchill runners and a pair of Plymouth Salem milers, Justin Hajduk and Chris Vraniak.

"We'll do fine in the distance events," Magni said. "We go into every meet thinking that if for some reason we can't win, let's at least come home with a trophy."

CC's Tom Grant, possibly the top hurdler in the area, will not run at the meet because of a pulled quad that needs some rest, according to Magni. Not having him on the track means contending for the meet

Soccer club will play in Canton

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

They have a home — well, three homes to be exact (a minimum of two games to qualify). They have a coach. And their roster is nearly complete.

Now they have nine days to practice before their season-opener. And a week after that, they will open at (one of) their new home(s).

The Mid-Michigan Bucks, a Premier Development League soccer club, is coming to town.

To be accurate, the Bucks have already arrived. They opened their office in the High Velocity Sports Center in Canton, run by former Detroit Rocker standout Goose Finnerty, six weeks ago. After playing the first two of their 18 regular-season matches on the road, the Bucks will have their home opener against the Chicago Fire Reserves at 7:30 p.m. May 18 at Birmingham Seaholm HS.

That will be one of two matches played at Seaholm (the second is against the Indiana Invaders, 7 p.m. June 2). They will also play four at Plymouth Canton HS (5 p.m. May 25 vs. the Dayton Gemini; 7:30 p.m. June 20 vs. the West Michigan Edge; 5 p.m. July 7 vs. the Invaders; and 7:30 p.m. July 20 vs. the Gemini), two at their former home at Saginaw Township's White Pine Stadium and one in Toledo.

There are multiple reasons for the switch in venue. First, Bucks' owners Dan and Jim Duggan are Livonia natives and Redford Catholic Central graduates. And many of the team's players are from the metro-Detroit area.

Also, the Duggans had a three-year option on the Detroit-area franchise rights for the United Soccer League, rights they would forfeit if they did not make the move. And soccer continues to grow in popularity; nurturing that growth is part of the Duggans' long-range plan to bring a Major League Soccer franchise to Detroit.

"We want to be part of the MLS," said Jim Duggan, who serves as team president. "The way the Bucks can help is to prove people will come to games. If we can fill up Canton and Seaholm a few times, it will go a long way toward getting a (MLS) franchise."

Already there seems to be a swelling of anticipation surrounding the Bucks' arrival. "We've sold way more tickets already," said Jim Duggan. With the World Cup Tournament about to get underway, that excitement should snowball.

Ticket sales have been helped by their presence in Finnerty's facility. Finnerty serves as the director of coaching for the 157 teams in the Canton Soccer Club; when he officially opened High

Salem drops 3rd straight in division with Raiders' sweep

Things were looking so promising for Plymouth Salem's baseball team after it battled back to edge Plymouth Canton in eight innings last week.

But the Rocks have changed directions. Monday's 10-7 defeat at North Farmington was their third-straight loss to a Western Lakes Activities Association Lakes Division rival; it left them at 7-7 overall, 1-4 in the division.

North is 6-5 overall, 4-1 in the division.

Monday's game was a make-up of Saturday's scheduled second game at Oldsmobile Park in Lansing, which was rained out. Salem lost the first game Saturday, 12-6.

The Rocks committed 10 errors in the two defeats.

On Monday, North scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth to break a 7-7 tie. Jason Berthiaume singled in one run for the Raiders and Rich Hegstrom's sacrifice fly delivered another, with the third run scoring on a throwing error.

Salem got a run in the first inning on a triple by Steve Cox and a sacrifice fly by Drew Parling. The Rocks added three more in the second on Cliff Thomas' lead-off triple, a single by Tony Puzzuoli, a double by Cox that plated Puzzuoli and a triple by Jon Gordon, tying the game at 4-all.

A three-run third inning gave Salem a 7-4 lead. Andy Boyer followed singles by Neil Kowalik and Cliff Thomas with the Rocks' fourth triple of the game. Puzzuoli's groundout scored Boyer with the third run of the frame.

Rickey Calleja took the loss for Salem; his record is 2-2.

Last Saturday in Lansing, North scored six runs in the second inning and never looked back in beating Salem in a game halted after six innings due to rain.

Eleven of the Raider runs were unearned. Boyer absorbed the loss.

Cox, Parling and Andy Thackaberry each had two hits to lead the Rocks. Hegstrom collected four hits and two RBI to pace North; Matt Clark had two hits and two RBI.

W.L. Western 1, Canton 0: Mark Hanson deserved better.

The Plymouth Canton righthander surrendered just one hit to WLAA Western Division rival Walled Lake Western Monday, but an unearned run in the top of the seventh was enough for Warriors' ace Mike Pisha.

Pisha, too, hurled a one-hitter, striking out 12. Hanson gave up one hit and one walk, fanning nine.

BASEBALL

■ We had our chances. Basically it was two great (performances) as far as pitching is concerned. Hanson (now 3-2) couldn't have done any better.'

*Scott Dickey
Canton coach*

In the Warrior seventh, the first batter reached base on an error. On the ensuing sacrifice bunt attempt, the Chiefs tried to get the runner at second but the ball got past the second baseman, allowing the runner to move to third. On the throw from the Canton outfielder to third base, the runner at first tried to move to second. Again, the throw got past the second baseman and went into the outfield, allowing the run to score.

Andy Howald had Canton's only hit, a single in the fifth following a walk to Mike Tomasaitis. When Chris Pirch reached base on an error, the Chiefs had the bases loaded with one out. The next batter, however, struck out and Tomasaitis was thrown out at the plate trying to score on a passed ball.

"We had our chances," said Canton coach Scott Dickey. "Basically it was two great (performances) as far as pitching is concerned. Hanson (now 3-2) couldn't have done any better."

The loss left Canton at 9-4-1 overall, 2-2 in the Western Division.

Bethesda 11, PCA 10: Plymouth Christian Academy outthit Sterling Heights Bethesda Christian 20-10, but errors in the field and on the basepaths led to the Eagles' demise Tuesday at Bethesda.

A run in the bottom of the seventh, the second scored in two innings against PCA ace Clay Welton, enabled Bethesda to collect the victory. PCA slipped to 6-3 overall, 2-3 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

"We didn't deserve to win it," said Eagles' coach Don Shumaker. "We made a lot of errors, mental and physical."

Welton and Brian Carnevale each slugged a solo home run, Carnevale's in the first inning and Welton's in the fifth. Welton had four hits in the game and drove in four runs; Carnevale finished with three hits and three RBI.

Aaron Boone also had three hits, including two doubles, and three RBI; Mark Erickson had three hits (with two doubles); and LaVaughn Stevenson and Xander Younce had three hits each.

Welton took the loss, in relief of starter Carnevale (3 2/3 innings) and reliever Younce (1 1/3 innings).

Agape 13, Franklin Road 2: This five-inning mercy of Novi Franklin Road Christian featured six Wolverine batters with more than one hit Monday at Griffin Park.

The win pushed Canton Agape Christian's record to 9-5. Franklin Road is 0-5.

David Donaldson was the winning pitcher, allowing two earned runs, in five innings on seven hits and four walks, striking out 10.

Bobby Konrad paced the Wolverine attack, going 4-for-4 at the plate and driving in two runs. Mike Ossana was 3-for-3 with a double and two RBI; Rob Hough had two hits (including a double), two RBI and two runs scored; Jeremiah Belton had two hits, two runs scored and an RBI; and both Donaldson and Mike Bommerito collected two hits (including a double) and an RBI.

Mt. Clemens 7, Agape 6: A three-run sixth inning elevated Mt. Clemens past Canton Agape in the first of its two games played Saturday at Sterling Heights Bethesda Christian.

Rob Hough took the loss, giving up seven runs (two earned) on six hits and nine walks, striking out nine.

Johnny Estrada and Mike Ossana each had two hits for the Wolverines, with Estrada driving in two runs and Ossana one.

Agape 13, Bethesda 11: Canton Agape allowed Sterling Heights Bethesda to score three runs in the bottom of the seventh to tie the game at 9-all, then scored four times in the eighth to collect the victory Saturday at Bethesda.

The game-winning rally in the eighth started with singles by Mike Bommerito and Jeremiah Belton. They both moved up on Josh Anthony's fly out, with one run scoring when Rob Hough's grounder was booted.

With two out, Mike Ossana singled in a second run and Johnny Estrada followed with a two-run double. Bommerito went 4-for-4 at the plate with four runs scored, with Estrada getting two hits and three RBI.

Belton also had two hits, two RBI, three runs scored and two stolen bases; Anthony had two hits (including a triple) and three RBI; Ossana had two hits, two RBI and two runs scored; Paul Chrenko had two hits, two stolen bases and an RBI; David Donaldson had two hits; and Hough had a double, two RBI and two runs scored.

Rocks' late goal trims Churchill

A dominating effort turned into a one-goal victory for Plymouth Salem's soccer team Monday against visiting Livonia Churchill.

The Rocks improved to 3-2-3 overall with the win. Churchill is 3-3-1.

A quick counter against Salem's pressure allowed the Chargers to draw first blood. Kyle LaPorte scored the goal to give Churchill a 1-0 lead.

The Rocks countered with a goal by Marissa Sarkesian to tie the score (assisted by Michelle Marshall). Still, despite constant pressure, the Rocks weren't able to net the game-winner until three minutes remained, with Natalie Thomas scoring it (from Jordan Falcusan).

"The girls played really, really well," said Salem coach Joe Nora. "We dominated, with most of the game in their half (of the field). We outshot them about 40-4, we just had trouble putting it away."

"But we were happy." Last Saturday, Salem struggled through a slow start against state-ranked Troy HS, which resulted in a 3-0 loss at Salem.

"The score was 3-0 about 10 or 15 minutes into the game," said Nora. "We came out a little flat and Troy came out extremely tough.

"I think we're learning quality teams need to play 90 minutes. We're going to work on that. After the three goals we tightened up (our defense) a little bit. It was back and forth in the second half, we had some good chances and so did Troy."

The Colts (now 8-1) got goals from Lindsay Peterson, Kristi Mitchell and Rachel Marshall and three assists from Lauren Skinner.

Canton 5, North Farmington 0: Danielle Shepard scored three goals and Kara Marsh added two as Plymouth Canton blanked North Farmington Monday at North.

The victory improved the Chiefs' record to 4-3-2 overall.

Stephanie Johnson contributed two assists, with Katie Mills and Ashley Rosaen adding one apiece.

PCA 7, Zoe Christian 0: Plymouth Christian Academy scored three first-half goals and added four more in the second to stop Warren Zoe Christian Tuesday at PCA.

The Eagles improved to 3-1-1 overall, 3-1 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. Zoe is 1-3-1 overall, 0-3-1 in the MIAC.

Sara Roberts and Sarah Moriarty each scored two goals for PCA. Christine Cleary, Katie Polera and Holly Johnson added on goal apiece.

The Eagles' defense, led by Abi Cockron, Jessica Cleary, Gen Hott and Johnson, was outstanding. Val Burota and Rachel Rudzisz divided time in goal to earn the shutout.

Athens 4, Canton 1: After a tight first half, Troy Athens — the state's top-ranked team — got two goals from Erin Mulligan in the second half to put Plymouth Canton away Saturday at Athens.

Kara Marsh scored for the Chiefs in the opening half, but her goal was offset by scores from Linsey Laskowski and Allison Epple that gave the Red Hawks a 2-1 halftime lead.

"I was real pleased with the girls' effort," said Canton coach Don Smith. "The score was not indicative of the effort put out and the game we played."

"The girls are playing real well. They did an outstanding job. (Athens) just got a couple more (goals) than we did. But the girls are coming along nicely."

Foley 1, Ladywood 0: Laura Hicks scored the game's only goal with 15 minutes left in the opening half as Madison Heights Bishop Foley scored a Catholic League victory over Livonia Ladywood Tuesday.

Foley is 5-1-2 overall and 4-1-2 in the Catholic League, while Ladywood falls to 5-2-2 overall and 3-2-2 in the league.

"We tried hard, the team played well," said Ladywood coach Jill Logsdon, whose team was outshot, 9-3.

Logsdon praised the play of sophomore stopper Christine Williams along with freshman defender Megan Szczypka.

On Saturday, Ladywood crushed host Riverview Gabriel Richard, 7-1, as Sue Christenson led the way with three goals and one assist.

Sunny Grezlik contributed two assists, while Katie Rozum, Lindsay Rowe, Sandy Swish and Mallory Brake each added a goal.

Velocity last December, his studies had indicated there were 31,000 youth soccer players (ages 5-19) within a 20-mile radius of his center.

"The response we are receiving from local soccer clubs has been tremendous," said Dan Duggan. "And this should be the most exciting team that we've ever fielded."

That team includes a new coach: Dario Brose, a former midfielder for the San Jose (Calif.) Earthquakes of the MLS who missed last season with a litany of ailments that included two knee injuries, a hip flexor and two stress fractures in his feet.

The Duggans heard about him — "We were trying to get him to play," Jim Duggan said — through his brother, Dennis, who played several years of indoor soccer with the Detroit Rockers. Although the 32-year-old Dario has not coached at this level previously, he has a wealth of international soccer experience.

"He knows the outdoor game," said Jim Duggan.

Other players the Bucks will sign for the season (many are college players and are restricted by NCAA rules that forbid a player from signing with a club prior to May 1) are Ryan Mack (from Seaholm) and Pat Noonan, both from Indiana University; Paul Snape, an Oakland University graduate and the Bucks' all-time leading scorer; keepers Eric Pogue (Troy Athens), a Western Michigan grad, and Joe Zawacki (Livonia Stevenson), from the University of Michigan; Tino Scicluna (from Redford/Detroit Country Day), the team's captain the past two years; Mike White (Stevenson), from U-M; Benji Djeukeng and Boyzzz Khumalo, who play for NAIA powerhouse Lindsey Wilson College; Brian Williams of OU; Justin Dettler (White Lake) from Notre Dame; and Kellen Kalso (Oxford) from Michigan State.

"We've got to get this together quickly," noted Jim Duggan. "Some teams have been there (practicing) for a month and a half."

All the changes may take time to adapt to, but if the Bucks can match their previous successes — five division titles in six seasons — they should find a willing audience.

get her sixth win of the season (against two losses), giving up two earned runs on 11 hits and one walk, striking out five. Danielewicz allowed four earned runs on 15 hits and no walks, fanning 13.

Jaskot and Rachel Heid joined Szawara with three hits apiece (one a double). Tudor and Kelli Szczepanski added two hits each. Berke had three hits for North, with Taub, Hindo and Aliisa Melvin getting two hits apiece.

"My seniors came out strong and pretty much led this team," said Southerland. "The girls got a good attitude and are playing hard."

Salem 11, Thurston 1: Plymouth Salem scored five times in the first inning and never lost steam in beating Redford Thurston in five innings Saturday at Salem.

Michelle Jurcak gave up one earned run on two hits and five walks, striking out eight to get the pitching win. The loss went to Kristin Eckler, who lasted three innings.

Mandy Bradley had two hits and two RBI and Janesse Chapman had two hits (including a double) and one RBI for the Rocks. Szawara sparked the five-run first with a two-run triple and Jurcak had a run-scoring double in the second.

Jackie Green's third-inning double scored the Eagles only run.

Salem 10, A.A. Huron 4: In its second game Saturday, Plymouth Salem pushed across eight runs in the fifth and sixth innings to pull away from visiting Ann Arbor Huron.

Ocelots

SC's sixth golfer was Derek Lineberry (Plymouth Canton HS), who had an 89-83/172.

St. Clair County CC, which trailed Oakland CC by eight strokes (321-329) after the first 18 holes, battled back to tie the Raiders at 650 by outscoring them 321-329 in the second round. St. Clair then won the fifth-man tiebreaker to place third (OCC's fifth man withdrew after the first round).

Henry Ford CC was fifth at 678 and Wayne County CCD placed sixth with a 711.

SC maintained its sixth-place standing in the NJCAA polls, best among Michigan teams. Indian Hills Community College-Ottumwa (Ottumwa, Iowa) remains No. 1 in the polls, followed by South Mountain CC (Phoenix).

Next up for the Ocelots is the MCCA State Championship Tournament next Wednesday and Thursday at Crystal Mountain Resort's Mountain Ridge Golf Course in Thompsonville.

If a single stroke seems somewhat unimportant in the grand scheme of things, consider this: At last year's state tournament, the Ocelots finished second to Grand Rapids CC by one stroke. That experience certainly played a role in Tuesday's conference tournament, and hopefully will carry over to next week.

PCA improved to 2-5 overall, 1-2 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Association. Baptist Park is 7-4 overall, 1-2 in the MIAC.

Agape 8, Franklin Road 7 (nine innings): Rachel Estrada singled in Andrea Hough with the game-winning run in the ninth inning to lift Canton Agape Christian over Novi Franklin Road Christian Monday at Griffin Park.

Agape improved to 4-7. Franklin Road is 2-5.

Hough, who had three hits and scored two runs in the game, started the game-winning rally with a single. Lisa Ther bunted her to second and Estrada singled her home. Estrada finished with two RBI and two stolen bases.

The game started well enough for the Wolverines. They scored four times in the first inning and increased their lead to 7-0 with a three-run fourth. But Franklin Road chipped away at the lead, scoring four times in the sixth and then tying it with three runs in the seventh.

Estrada started and pitched the first six innings, allowing four runs. Amy Henry pitched the final three innings to get the victory, giving up three runs. Christie Carlson took the loss for the Warriors.

Madonna softballers make it to playoffs

COLLEGE SPORTS

The unlikely ending to Saturday's Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference softball game between Madonna University and Indiana Tech, played in Fort Wayne, Ind., mirrored the accomplishments of the Lady Crusaders.

Madonna and Tech battled through seven scoreless innings. But in the eighth, the Crusaders busted out, scoring seven runs to earn a 7-0 victory.

The win guaranteed them a spot in the upcoming WHAC Tournament. Madonna is 25-24 overall, 15-12 in the conference; Tech is 8-32 overall, 2-25 in the WHAC.

Madonna seemed a longshot to accomplish much of anything at the start of the season, with a roster with just one senior and one junior on it. But the Crusaders grew into their roles quickly.

In the win over the Warriors, Jamie Bobrowski and Mary Warchuck each tripled in two runs. Krystle Shina, who had two hits in the game, singled in another run in the eighth-inning rally.

Warchuck also had two hits for Madonna.

The pitching win went to senior Missy VanDoorn, who kept Tech scoreless on three hits and two walks, striking out five in eight innings. The loss went to Crystal Ybarra, who allowed seven runs (four earned) on eight hits and two walks, fanning five.

Saturday's second game was rained out. The WHAC Tournament begins Monday; who and where Madonna plays will be determined by this week's games.

Breaking news flash...

Outpost Cloverlanes in a far-away region once known as Livonia became an action-filled battlefield Sunday as the two superpowers of the universe clashed in mortal combat using only primitive spheroids as weapons.

Some of these lethal balls of urethane weigh as much as 300 klegs (about 16 pounds).

As the outer-spacial warfare took on the aura of mortal combat, the Klingons of Praxis attacked the Federation forces by hurling their spheroids at the 10 standard bowling pins clustered in defensive formation.

The Federation responded in kind with domination on the lanes and emerged triumphant for the second year in a row.

The real winners were actually the Special Days Camp, which provides a summer camp setting for children with cancer and their siblings.

The fourth annual intergalactic battle of bowling raised over $2,000 to help pay for the costs.

The event was a big blast for participants and spectators alike, as they could hear the blood-curdling screams after one of the warriors left the dreaded 7-10 Klopfer.

The battle cry of the Klingons could be heard across Jeffries Freeway as the earthlings were busy purchasing supplies at the Meijers trading post.

The trophies for high game went to Admiral Rick Smith, the Federation Commander for his superior 189 game and to 'Jorah' (Karen Drum) for the most pledges at $334.

These two great forces shall meet again next year for a rematch.

Any interested Star Trek fans or fun-loving bowlers who would like to join in or make a contribution can contact Admiral Klau, the Klingon commander at planet earth phone designation, at (734) 422-8166 or Smith at (586) 566-5972.

The Cass Sicilia Memorial Ladies Classic concluded its league season at Westland's Vision Lanes with the championship honors going to team No. 17, Top Shelf, consisting of captain Colleen Asel, Nancy Caldwell, Donna DeAngelis, Karelle Hoskins and Jeri Lantzzy.

This league has turned out to be one of the more successful ladies classics in the area, the others being the All-Star Bowlerettes on Monday evenings at Plaza Lanes in Plymouth and the Cherry Hill Match Play Trio, which runs Thursday night at Cherry Hill Lanes.

They still have another week to go to produce a championship team.

This area takes pride in having some of the strongest ladies leagues in the nation, with these leading the way.

Wonderland Lanes in Livonia recently concluded its youth scholarship tournament with the following award recipients:

Kelly Schmansky, Westland (Class of 2005), $300 scholarship award; Courtney Niland, Livonia (Class of 2005, $175; Brandie Reamie, Livonia, (Class of 2012), $125; Chris Blair, Livonia (Class of 2006), $100; and Tiffany Clowney, Detroit (Class of 2010), $50.

Many leagues are finishing their season now, and before we decide to put the bowling equipment in mothballs for the summer, consider the spring/summer league bowling.

Bear in mind that most of the local bowling centers are air conditioned, it is a great way to escape the heat on those long hot summer days.

It's also a chance to work on your game, the bowling rates are seasonally lower, there are more lanes available for open bowling, and don't forget about taking a lesson or two from one of the professionals in this area.

Check with your local bowling center and see what they have to offer for summer fare and even if you are a golfer, plan a bowling day when it rains.

Be careful of religious decorations

We are concerned about decorating our community facility but wonder if we are potentially running into any problems with discrimination. Do you have any comments?

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

If, during the holiday season, you throw a party for your members or you decorate your community, you must be careful not to give the impression that you favor one religious holiday over another.

If you create that impression, a member may claim that you are discriminating on the basis of religion, which is a violation of the Fair Housing Act.

To avoid potential liability, it's recommended that you follow this advice:

- Don't refer to specific religious holiday.
- Use non-religious decorations.
- If using religious decorations, give all religions equal billing.
- Throw non-religious holiday parties.
- Offer equal access to all religions when renting common grounds.
- Don't distribute religious cards of gifts.

You are best advised to ask your association attorney any questions you have regarding this type of activity.

Robert M. Meisner, a lawyer, concentrates his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate, corporate law and litigation. This column provides general information and shouldn't be construed as legal advice.

Sign crackdown irks Realtors

BY DOUG FUNKE

The controversy resurfaces periodically.

Realtors who host open houses on weekends say they need temporary directional signs to get visitors to the homes.

"Realistically, you can't take a house and bring it out to the corner of the street," said Marge Whetstone, a Realtor with Keller Williams in Northville.

And the most visible, effective place to put those signs are in right-of-ways, between the sidewalk and the street, along major roads.

Municipal officials, charged with maintaining a safe, attractive environment for everyone, say signs in the right-of-way are potential hazards and promote clutter.

"They're considered obstructions," said Lee Blizman, zoning division supervisor in Farmington Hills. "We could be sued and have been for things in right-of-ways."

"There's the aesthetic component, also," she added.

Most communities have laws banning signs between the sidewalk and street.

"April is when the weather starts getting better and people seriously look around," said Furhad Waquad, affiliated with Real Estate One in Bloomfield Hills.

He's chairman of the political affairs committee for both the Metro Consolidated Association of Realtors and the state association.

"If there are no signs and a house is deep in the subdivision unless you drive every street ... you can't get to the houses," he said.

Waquad knows that when he puts signs in the right-of-way, he risks confiscation and a fine to retrieve them. "But what are you going to do?" he asks rhetorically.

David Woodcox, director of inspection for the city of Livonia, knows exactly what he has to do — periodically remove the signs.

"It helps to get a handle on things by working an occasional weekend and if we're successful in finding the people responsible, we issue a violation to cease and desist," he said.

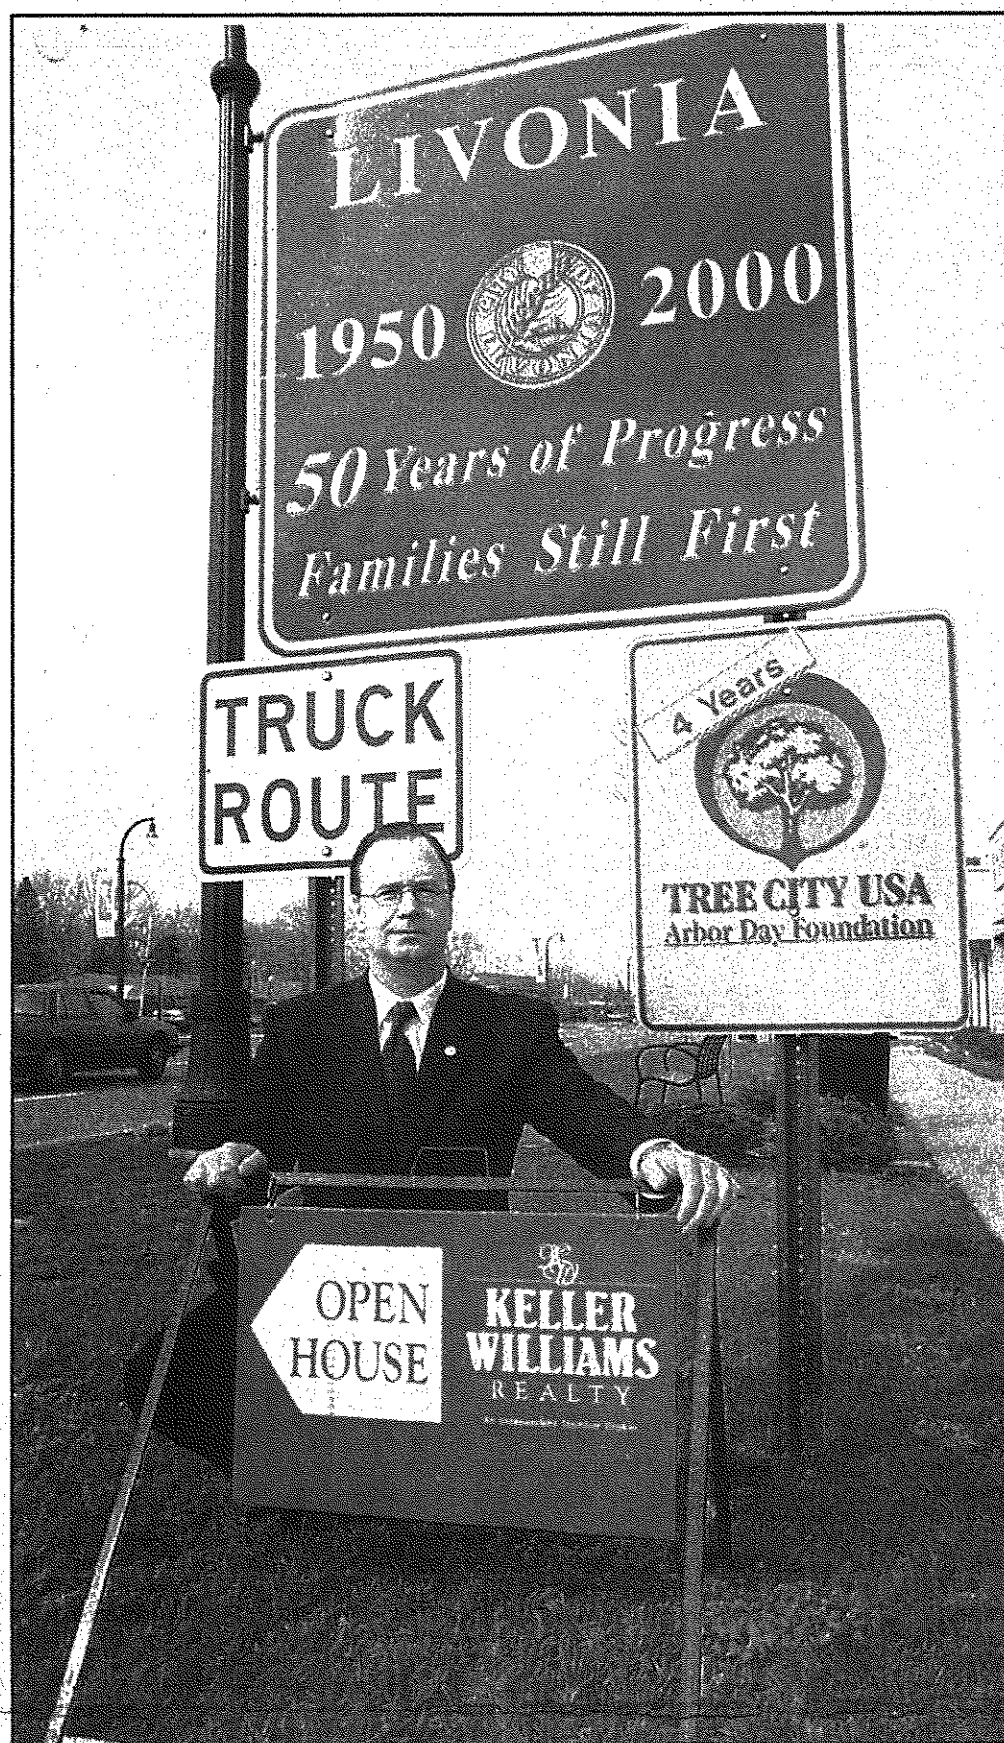

Lou Ronayne, chairman of the government affairs committee for the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors, sees both sides of the coin.

"The problem from the city's standpoint is they've got a lot of bandit signs — lose weight quickly, work from home," he said.

But there are a couple of differences with the directional signs Realtors use, Ronayne said.

"Our signs aren't permanent. They're up for a three hour period, then down, on Saturday or Sunday."

"Residential sales lead to an increase in the tax base," he added. "For that reason alone, it would

Point of contention: Lou Ronayne poses with a temporary open house sign that would be illegal in the right-of-way where the permanent welcome to Livonia sign is located.

■ 'Residential sales lead to an increase in the tax base. For that reason alone, it would make you think they would want to work with us.'

make you think they would want to work with us."

Ronayne also puzzles as to why churches are allowed to have signs in the right-of-way of some communities, but Realtors can't set out temporary signs.

Then there's the permanent welcome-to signs some municipalities allow in right-of-ways and smaller signs at city or township limits promoting service clubs and school sports champions.

"What I'm finding is that cities pretty much copy each other's sign ordinances," Whetstone said.

"The verbiage is pretty much the same."

"We've had complaints in Farmington Hills, Novi, Northville, Northville Township and Livonia," Ronayne said of his members.

Ronayne and Waquad believe that a compromise is possible so that Realtors and municipal officials don't have to play cat-and-mouse, wink-wink or roll the dice on defying the law to continue a traditional form of advertising.

"Make it acceptable one day a week from sunrise to sunset," Waquad said. "Most signs have a name and phone number. If they're not down, have a $50 fine or whatever they think is appropriate."

Waquad would also allow signs with similar hourly restrictions for garage sales, estate sales, fund-raisers and special community events from the general public.

"Everyone could have it without people saying, 'Who do Realtors think they are?' It would be the same for everybody," he said.

Cities generally are responsible for residential streets, counties for major mile roads and township public roads, the state for major trunk lines like Telegraph, M-59 and Ford.

Ronayne is upbeat about a political solution. "I think it can be resolved," he said.

David Rzyzi, permit engineer for Wayne County, isn't as optimistic.

"The county would not endorse any kind of law to allow for private advertising to be placed in the county right-of-way. Who are you going to pick and choose? Where are you going to draw the line?"

"I can't imagine the state would allow Realtors to place signs," Rzyzi added.

Dick MacIntosh, an independent Realtor in Waterford and chairman of the governmental affairs committee for the North Oakland County Association of Realtors, has ambivalent feelings.

"I personally don't think there's a problem (with signs) for three hours. I'm a big promoter of right-of-way (safety). I don't think anybody will give permission."

So for him and probably most Realtors, the game probably will continue.

Buying down interest rate saves money

If you are planning to remain in your next home — or more accurately, your next mortgage, for more than five years, it may make sense for you to discount your mortgage's interest rate. There are certain times when discount points can really make sense for some borrowers. Right now may be one of those times.

With mortgage rates remaining near their thirty-year lows, adding discount points to your loan — or "buying down" your interest rate — can yield some profound financial results in the long run. Be careful though. There are times when discounting is a huge waste of money.

Here's the point

In the mortgage world, one "point" equals one percent of your loan amount. Accordingly, one point on a $100,000 mortgage would cost $1,000. On a 30-year fixed-rate mortgage, that discount point will typically reduce your interest rate about one-quarter percent. For example, your 7.5 percent rate should drop to about 7.25 percent with one discount point.

Where's the benefit? Consider that one discount point on a $150,000 mortgage costs $1,500 and will save you about $25 per month at today's rates. Not accounting for inflation, it will take you 60 months, or five years, to make back the cost of your discount point. Stay in the loan for ten years, and you have recouped twice your original investment.

"Rolling" your discount points into your mortgage during a refinance will give you an immediate reduction in your monthly mortgage payment. Best of all, you will not "pay" for your points until you sell your property or refinance again many years in the future.

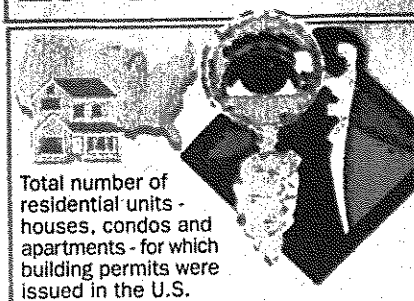

Improve cash flow

Fixed-income borrowers stay to gain the most from discounting mortgage rates. Using discount points to drive down their monthly mortgage payments will result in more money left over at the end of the month. The improved cash flow means a better lifestyle.

Still not sure if discounting is right for you? Have questions about discounting shorter-term mortgages? Put the monkey on your loan officer's back to do the math for you. The show may be worth your money.

Meet the 2002 Observer Academic All-Stars

Michael McDonald
Salem High School

Walter C. Lin
Churchill High School

Representing the brightest among their high school peers, these 18 students have become models of excellence because of their high grades, grade point averages and standardized test scores.

But these students also show through their extracurricular involvement their commitment to excelling outside the classroom. These students strive for excellence in sports, academia, school activities and the work world, as many of them became employees for the first time.

As in past years, this year's All-Stars were chosen on the basis of their grade point averages in academic subjects – including math, English, social studies, science and foreign language – and on the basis of their SAT or ACT test scores.

Listed in order of point ranking are the 2002 Academic All-Stars:

Michael McDonald, Salem High School; Walter C. Lin, Churchill High School; Matthew R. Elsey, Harrison High School; Anne Lieberman, North Farmington High School; Tekla Bude, Canton High School; Adam Z. Kogut, Churchill High School; Bethany Nestor, North Farmington High School; Stacey Ann Schroeder, Ladywood High School; Daniel Christensen, Canton High School; Prashanth Pandian, Harrison High School; John W. Schultz, Detroit Catholic Central High School; Alex Duncan, Farmington High School; Drew Mokris, Farmington High School; Luman Temby, Thurston High School; Suzanne Valade, Mercy High School; Rebecca Lobenherz, Salem High School; Jerin Philip, Detroit Catholic Central High School; and Laura Anne Meili, Clarenceville High School.

Michael McDonald
Salem High School
Plymouth

For Michael McDonald, a Salem senior, being a student is a full-time job.

McDonald rounds out his "job" as a student by logging 30-plus hours weekly in marching band, where he is section leader; jazz band; pit orchestra; Math Olympiad; National Honor Society; track and field; Dearborn Homecoming; the "Santa Snaps" picture program; Rouge River clean-up and by serving as a Field Elementary Latchkey volunteer.

McDonald plans to attend the University of Michigan, Massachusetts Institute of Technology or California Institute of Technology to study applied physics or materials science and engineering.

Academic accolades include National Merit Finalist; U.S. Department of Education Presidential Scholars Program; Michigan Math Prize Competition Finalist and winning third place in The Fountainhead Essay Contest.

McDonald cited his most influential teacher as Ben McMurray, who teaches philosophy.

"His class turned me into a more skeptical thinker, qualities I think are very healthy in a world when so much information through the Internet and otherwise is easily available."

To improve public education, McDonald said he would move high school start times back to accommodate a teenager's sleep patterns.

"I have a hard time with morning lecture-oriented classes, because I am often drowsy," he said.

McDonald is the son of John and Sandra McDonald, and the brother of John, 31; Kathy, 29; and Mary, 27.

Walter C. Lin
Churchill High School
Livonia

For Churchill senior Walter C. Lin, the school day doesn't end when the dismissal bell rings.

Lin keeps busy after school by participating in student government, where he has held a variety of offices; earning varsity letters in track and field and cross country and serving as a member of the National Honor Society, Spirit Committee and Students Against Destructive Decisions.

Outside of school, Lin volunteers at Botsford Hospital and Marywood Nursing Home.

Lin said he plans to attend the University of Michigan, Harvard University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Yale University, Princeton University, Cornell University or the University of Pennsylvania to study bioengineering or mechanical engineering – to prepare himself for a career as a physician or engineer.

Lin's academic accomplishments include National Merit Finalist; AP Scholar with honors; Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition honorable mention and certificate of distinction; Summa Cum Laude graduate; honor roll; American High School Mathematics Examination Certificate of Distinction; certificates of merit in AP biology, AP calculus, AP computers, math/science/computers program curriculum, (including accelerated Algebra 2), chemistry, computer math, accelerated analysis, physics and biology; Sigma Mathematics League merit award and Western Lakes Activities Association scholar athlete.

Lin said Mary Buda, a math teacher, was most influential of all his teachers.

"As one of my teachers for each year in high school, (Buda) has instilled in me a sense of responsibility for everyone around me as well as for myself."

Lin said that to improve public education, he would try to encourage more interest in math, science and computers.

"Since the world has grown more dependent on math, science and technology, I would provide funding to schools to encourage interest in these areas and to introduce students to conducting research in these fields."

Lin is the son of Charlie and Katherine Lin, and younger brother of Peter, 20, and Nancy, 24.

Matthew R. Elsey
Harrison High School
Farmington Hills

Harrison High School senior Matthew Elsey's accomplishments in math and science may help him as he goes on to college to study math or physics at one of several prestigious universities across the country.

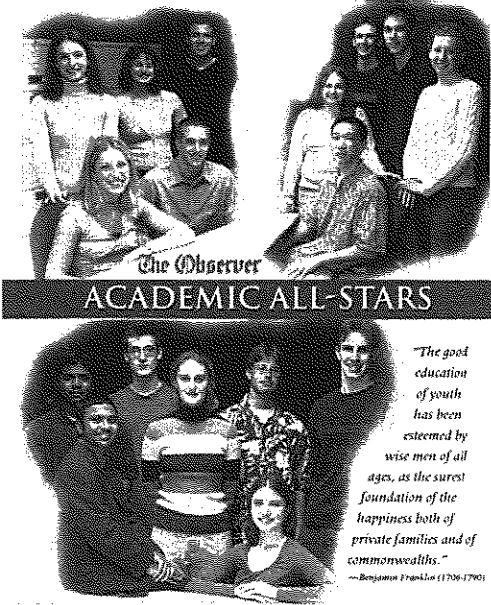

Elsey is a member of Tests of Engineering Aptitude, Mathematics and Science (TEAMS), as well as class vice president and a varsity basketball captain; participates in track and field and has served as a delegate in the Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Conference.

Elsey said he plans to put his knowledge to work at Northwestern University, the University of Michigan or Duke University, where he plans to study mathematics or physics.

His main academic accomplishments: National Merit Finalist; Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition silver award winner; Presidential Scholars candidate; American Invitation Mathematics Examination invitee; Who's Who Among American High School Students and earning an academic letter.

When naming his most influential teacher, Elsey's memory surfed back to third grade, when his teacher was Kelly Loniewski.

"She put me on an accelerated track in math and made math the most interesting and even fun part of my education," Elsey said.

To improve public education, Elsey said, "I would encourage students and their families to take a more active role in the educational process."

Elsey is the son of Terry and Joanne Elsey and younger brother of Teresa, 19.

Anne Lieberman North Farmington High School Farmington Hills

Anne Lieberman, a North Farmington senior, shows through her extensive list of activities – and stellar transcripts – that there is more to being an excellent high school student than just getting good grades.

As a co-captain in varsity gymnastics, she helped lead her team to a "Most Spirited Team" award; participated in varsity cross country, varsity track and field and was a scholar athlete in all three sports.

Lieberman plans to attend the University of Michigan, where she has been admitted to the Honors Program. She plans to study biology and the sciences.

Her academic awards include National Merit Finalist; first place, Chemistry Fair; Department Merit Awards in honors geometry, honors pre-calculus AP English and AP biology and Girls' State delegate.

Lieberman said her most influential teacher was Michael Horner, math.

"...(Horner) believes that calculus should always be accompanied by music, and pretends that even he is befuddled by the higher math. It's a humorous ruse, but his brilliance is too obvious for it to be believable."

Lieberman said that ensuring teacher qualifications is key to improving public education.

"I would improve public education by producing better teachers to instruct non-honors courses, because the excellent teachers are almost always in the honors track. I would also make the honors track more accessible to students."

Lieberman is the daughter of Rochelle and Joel Lieberman, and the sister of Miriam, 19; and Michael, 15.

Tekla Bude Canton High School Plymouth

Canton High School senior Tekla Bude is a student who will be following her heart when she goes to college this fall – even if that means not having her pick of well-paying jobs after graduation.

She made this sentiment clear when she listed physics and medieval history as possible fields of study at the University of Michigan – where she has been accepted into an honors program.

"Can you think of anything to do with a major in medieval history and physics?" Bude said, showing that she has a sense of humor about pursuing her dreams.

Bude's after-school hours are quickly filled as Girls' Track and Field captain; Elementary basketball coach; State Honors Choir; Plymouth-Canton School Renewal Committee; tutoring; cross country; basketball; Madrigals women's ensemble; church choir; private voice lessons; National Honor Society; German Club officer and Science Olympiad.

Academically, Bude is a National Merit Finalist; Presidential Scholar nominee; AP Scholar with honors and STARS Award winner, and has won both the Dean's Merit Scholarship to the University of Michigan and an MEAP scholarship.

Bude looked back a few years when picking Kurt Heyer as her most influential teacher in fifth and sixth grade.

"...(Heyer) has had the most influence on me, not only because he was an excellent teacher, but because his dedication to his duties and responsibilities was a great example for all his students. His attitude has inspired me to pursue every interest and obligation to the best of my abilities."

The key to improving public education lies in the mind, not in technology, Bude says.

"Before we concentrate on how many computers, automated attendance systems and self-flushing toilets we have in our public schools, we should work on creating a love of learning in each individual student."

Bude is the daughter of Ronald and Lois Bude and the sister of Thea, 16.

Adam Z. Kogut Churchill High School Livonia

For Churchill senior Adam Kogut, being a math whiz may add up to success as a college student studying math or engineering.

Kogut, a summa cum laude student, has won several math-related awards, including an American Mathematics Competition medal; and a bronze award and honorable mention in the Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition. Other academic accomplishments include a SIGMA gold medal; Continental Computer Competition recognition; ALME qualifier; National Merit Scholar qualifier and honor roll.

College prospects: University of Michigan, where he has been accepted in the College of Engineering; Michigan State University and Michigan Technological University, where he plans to study engineering or mathematics for a possible career in materials engineering.

After school, Kogut's pursuits include the Spanish Club; SADD; PTSA; Spirit Club; Math Club; Student Council representative; junior varsity tennis; junior varsity cross country; varsity tennis; varsity cross country and scholar athlete.

As someone who both loves and excels in math, it wasn't surprising to learn that Kogut's most influential teacher was math teacher Mary Buda.

"(Buda) has taught me for six semesters of mathematics, Algebra 2 through AP Calculus BC. She is an excellent teacher and a wonderful person."

Overhauling the grading system is the first step toward improving public education, Kogut says.

"Education can only take someone so far, and a 4.0 (grade point average) not even that far, (so) the resolve to succeed and excel is what is most important."

Another change Kogut said he would like to implement is bringing recess back to middle and high school students.

Kogut is the son of Cathy and Jimmy Kogut and the brother of Derek, 19, and Trevor, 14.

Bethany Nestor North Farmington High School Farmington Hills

North Farmington senior Bethany Nestor is proof that working behind the scenes can be just as important as working in the spotlight.

Nestor has worked behind the scenes as a head sound technician and lighting technician for several of North Farmington's theatrical productions. Other after-school activities include Student Council; Humanitarian Club; National Honor Society and varsity tennis captain.

Nestor plans to attend the University of Michigan, to pursue an undetermined field of study.

Her high school academic awards include Merit Awards in biology, social studies, physical education, foreign language and English; WLAA Scholar Athlete; Girls State delegate and National Merit Finalist.

Nestor said her most influential teacher has been Beverly Schmitt, who taught her sophomore chemistry class and teaches her AP chemistry class.

"(Schmitt's) exuberant energy and genuine love of teaching make even the most disinterested students enjoy her class," Nestor said.

As for improving public education, Nestor said the focus should be on reducing class size and changing standardized testing formats.

"I believe that students perform better in an environment where they receive a large amount of individual attention from a teacher," Nestor said.

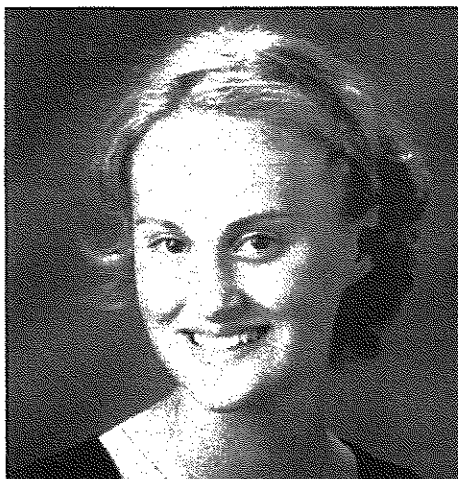

"I also believe that standardized tests such as the MEAP should be reformatted in order to more effectively evaluate what students are actually learning in school."

Nestor is the daughter of Thomas and Susan Nestor and the sister of Megan, 15, and Melissa, 13.

proof that it is possible to be as successful in the classroom as in athletics.

Schroeder combines her academic and athletic prowess as a scholar athlete in cross country and track and field. Other academic accomplishments include principal's honor roll; perfect attendance; Scholastic All-Catholic Award; top class ranking; National Honor Society; AP Scholar with honors; National Honor Society treasurer; National Merit Award semi-finalist; Michigan MEAP Merit Award recipient; Athlete/Scholar award (cross country), Michigan State University Distinguished Scholar Award; National Merit Finalist and Presidential Scholars Program candidate.

She plans to attend Michigan State University, to study engineering/biomedical research or automotive design.

As for extracurricular activities, Schroeder has received varsity letters in cross country and track and field; is a Spanish Club member and is cross country captain.

Schroeder's most influential teacher is Robert Bartone, whose expertise is social studies.

"Mr. Bartone has had a great influence on me because of his strong commitment to the truth. Mr. Bartone goes beyond bland lectures, he supplements them by the use of such additional resources as videos, music and books."

Creating smaller classes and teaching younger students how to write research papers is key to improving education, Schroeder says.

"I would also incorporate volunteer activities to help instill pride in the community," she said.

Schroeder, an only child, is the daughter of Warren and Marie Schroeder.

Daniel Christensen Canton High School Plymouth

Though Canton senior Daniel Christensen hasn't yet decided what kind of career he wants to pursue after college, chances are it may have something to do with science – or maybe even robotics.

Christensen led his school's computer animation team for a recent robotics competition at Eastern Michigan University, and is also active in the Science Olympiad.

Though he said his team "didn't fare too well" in the EMU competition, they didn't give up and quickly prepared for another contest in Grand Rapids.

He plans to attend the University of Michigan, to study computer sciences.

Academically, Christensen is a National Merit Finalist and AP Scholar With Distinction.

Harry Greenya was named as Christensen's most influential teacher.

"(Greenya's) was the first class that I found engaging and positively challenging," Christensen said.

In order to improve public education, Christensen said he would "eliminate specific class graduation requirements and allow students to evaluate teachers."

Christensen is the son of Paul and Joan Christensen and the brother of David, 12.

Prashanth Pandian Harrison High School Farmington Hills

If Harrison senior Prashanth Pandian realizes his dream of becoming a computer networker, he will be able to say that he helped groom himself for his career as far back as high school.

Some of Pandian's activities that are steering him in that direction are Robotics, Science Bowl; Science Olympiad; National Honor Society; Quiz Bowl; varsity tennis; marching band and TEAMS.

He hopes to attend the University of Michigan or the University of Illinois-Urbana-Champaign to study computer engineering – to prepare for a possible career in computer networking.

His academic honors include: National Merit Finalist; Academic Letter; Who's Who Among American High School Students and American Invitational Mathematics Examination invitee.

One of his 10th grade teachers, William Clair, was listed as his most influential.

"My gratitude extends to Mr. Clair for teaching me to think critically," Pandian said.

Pandian said allowing more student involvement in administrative decisions is key to improving public education.

He is the son of Annamalai and Bhuvanewari Pandian and brother to Balaji, 8.

John W. Schultz Detroit Catholic Central High School Redford

Detroit Catholic Central senior John Schultz shows through his after-school activities the importance of balancing school life and religious life.

Schultz's school and church activities include Quiz Bowl; band; Math League; Guardian Lutheran Youth Group; church usher; mission trip to Haiti and Habitat for Humanity.

Schultz plans to attend the University of Michigan, for an undetermined field of study.

Academically, Schultz busies himself with the National Honor Society; with the Gabriel Richard Club; and as a National Merit finalist. As a 10th grader, he placed first in the Father Enright Writing Contest.

Schultz said that his most influential teacher was Gene Grewe, an English instructor.

"(Grewe) has influenced me more than any other teacher. Mr. Grewe's class was the first class which I always actually wanted to attend, and it opened me up to the enjoyment of school and learning."

Schultz said that in order to improve public education, the key players involved must be committed to wanting to improve it.

"To this end, there should be some incentives put in place to encourage teachers and students to want to improve education."

Schultz is the son of Ronald and Sandra Schultz and brother of Paul, 19; Mark, 18; and Joy, 14.

Alex Duncan Farmington High School Farmington

Farmington High senior Alex Duncan has distinguished himself from his high school peers by showing that a pursuit of academics can go hand in hand with a pursuit of the creative arts.

Duncan, who is drum major in the Farmington Falcon Marching Band, is also National Honor Society president; directing the spring musical, Mame; chairman of the Leadership Development Committee of Farmington Public Schools' Student Roundtable; stage running master for the play Noises Off; 2001 Homecoming King; Four-Star member of Troupe 4894 and a member of the International Thespian Society.

Universities that Duncan is considering attending include Yale University, Harvard University and the University of Michigan, for an undetermined course of study.

Academically, Duncan has received the University of Michigan Regents Award; been honored by the National Merit Scholarship Program and received a Superintendent's Award of Excellence.

Helping Duncan find his way is English teacher and department head Leanne Young, whom he listed as his most influential teacher.

Duncan said that emphasizing increased parental involvement in their children's education is how to improve public education.

"I have observed a strong correlation between parent activity in a child's life, and the emotional, social and academic success of the student."

Duncan, an only child, is the son of Russell and Susan Duncan.

Drew Mokris Farmington High School Farmington Hills

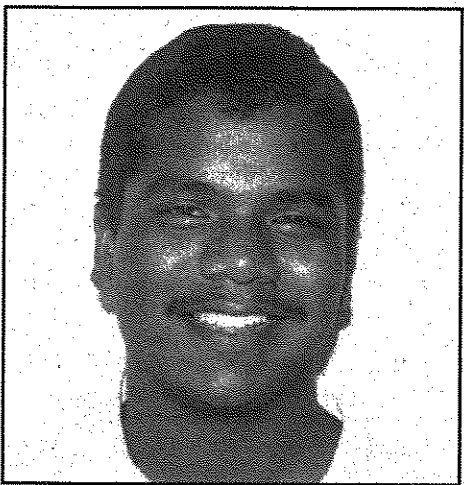

For Farmington High senior Drew Mokris, getting the most out of his high school experience means more than just going to class every day – and even more than just getting all A's.

Mokris fills his activity roster with the National Honor Society, cross country, track, art club, math club, Farmington Festival Theater (set crew member), Science Olympiad and Quiz Bowl.

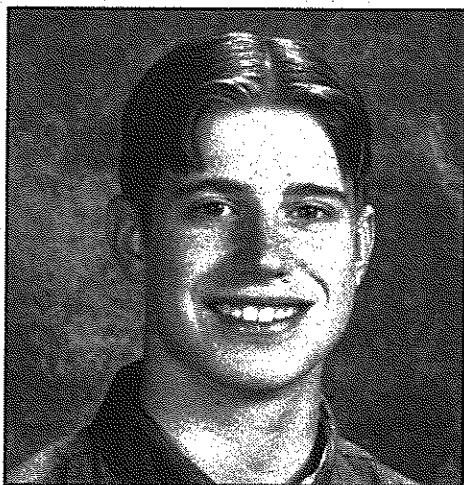

Mokris plans to attend the University of Michigan or Northwestern University, to study engineering.

Academically, Mokris is a Scholar Ath-

Madonna University's Technology Enhanced Learning Environment Centers Around Students

Due to a generous grant from the Ford Motor Company, Madonna University established the Ford Motor Company Technology Wing. The wing includes the Technology Learning Center, the Faculty Professional Development Center, staff offices and a technology-enhanced classroom. Madonna University places a high priority on computer literacy and the Ford Technology Wing supports this philosophy by providing the latest in computer technology and training for educational and programming needs.

Madonna University's e² College

The Campus of the Future Is Here Today

"Imagine what going to college will be like in the future," speculates Dr. Ernest Nolan, vice president for academic administration. "Students will still come to a 'bricks and mortar' campus where they can interact face-to-face with faculty members and other students. But much of their actual instruction – what we often think of as attending lectures and taking notes – will happen electronically. Today we are seeing the beginning of a trend in which the Internet will become the most powerful tool students and professionals will use for learning and keeping up to date in their fields."

The electronic "classroom" now encompasses the whole world – students can practice their foreign language skills by communicating with peers in other parts of the world; access, as part of an online "lecture," supporting materials selected by their faculty from authentic sources, such as the Shakespeare Oxford Society; or discuss readings with other students prior to coming to class by logging into real time "chat rooms". These new learning and teaching tools challenge both students and faculty members to develop creative and effective strategies that promote engagement and interaction, while also accommodating hectic schedules and allowing individuals to tailor their college education to when they have time available for studying.

This vision of the future is foreshadowed by Madonna University's unique concept christened the e² College – which stands for the extended and electronic campus.

Utilizing an electronic learning management system called Blackboard, students may engage in a range of activities, from accessing full online courses to participating in threaded discussions that enhance a face-to-face class.

To participate in Blackboard instruction, students need access to a computer with an Internet connection, a web browser (Netscape 6.1 or higher or IE 5 or higher), associated programs recommended by the instructor (i.e. Word, Excel, Acrobat), and an e-mail account.

For more information about online courses at Madonna University, contact the Admissions Office at (734) 432-5339.

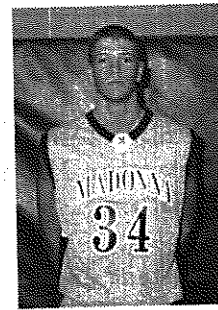

Basketball Player Finds Family At Madonna University

When head basketball coach Bernie Holowicki first saw Noel Emenhiser playing basketball as a sophomore at Woodlan High in Monroeville, Indiana, he was immediately impressed and recruited him.

"He is an outstanding basketball player, but is not caught up in himself," said Holowicki. When Noel was chosen the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference Player-of-the-Week this past January, one of his first comments to me was, 'Coach, this is not about me. It's more about us as a team'," added Holowicki.

"I have seven brothers and two sisters," said Emenhiser. "We have always been a close family. That is why I like Madonna University so much. You feel that you are a part of the Madonna family because people know you and everyone is friendly and open."

The young athlete is very grateful for the financial assistance he has received. In addition to a Madonna University grant and a basketball athletic award, he received the Catholic Student Award, which is in the amount of $1,000 (renewable each year for a maximum total of $4,000). The Francis and Anna Kujawa Scholarship, an endowed scholarship to honor the memory of the parents of Sr. Rose Marie Kujawa, CSSF, Ph.D., president, was also included in his awards.

Residence Hall: "Right Fit" For Madonna University Students

Mary Um says she made the right choice when she decided to live in Madonna's Residence Hall instead of commuting from her parents' home in Farmington Hills.

Born in Ann Arbor, Um moved to Korea with her family when she was seven years old and returned to the States last summer.

A freshman psychology major, Um has taken on additional responsibilities in the Residence Hall, serving as a Residence Assistant two days a week.

"This gives me even more opportunity to talk with fellow students, which helps me to practice my English," she said.

Kamal Sayej of Palestine was encouraged by his priest, Fr. Iyad Twal, Queen of Peace Parish, Palestine, and Rateb Rabie of the Holy Land Christian Ecumenical Foundation, to think about studying abroad.

"I was able to come here because I had many wonderful people behind me. The scholarship I received made it possible for me to come to Madonna University," Sayej said.

Now majoring in business, the freshman has adapted very well to his surroundings and finds that living in the Residence Hall has made his adjustment much easier.

"I really like the people here at Madonna and I've made so many friends here in the dorm. Living on campus is providing us an opportunity to learn about other cultures and share our experiences."

Sports Thrive At Madonna University

The Madonna University athletic department has demonstrated consistent growth since its inception in 1982. Originally featuring only two teams, men's and women's basketball, the department has developed into a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Division II sports program that offers men's baseball, basketball and soccer and women's basketball, soccer, softball and volleyball. In addition, the athletics department sponsors an intramural program that allows students to participate in co-ed volleyball, indoor soccer, basketball and softball.

Madonna is recognized by the NAIA and is a member of the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference (WHAC). The campus features a regulation-size gym located in the Activities Center, which seats up to 600 people; an international-size soccer field, which hosts camps and tournaments; and a fast pitch softball field. The Activities Center is open to all students during posted open gym hours and locker room facilities are available.

Athletic grants and scholarships are available to students who show promising talent and have demonstrated academic success.

lete and a Phi Beta Kappa member, and has earned an academic varsity letter.

Math teacher Brian Shaw was named as his most influential teacher.

"(Shaw) taught me much about mathematics that has applications in other areas."

Students helping other students through tutoring is a good way to improve public education, Mokris says.

"This is beneficial for both the tutor and the tutored," he said.

Mokris is the son of Mark and Lynda Mokris and brother to Natalie, 14.

Luman Temby Thurston High School Redford

As a Thurston senior, Luman Temby shows that the most valuable lessons about teamwork are generally learned long before one even enters the workplace.

Temby, who has a varsity letter in football, hones his teamwork skills on the gridiron. He also is a National Honor Society member; plays basketball; tutors other students; is sports editor of the school newspaper; and has participated in building his class float.

Temby is undecided about where he will attend college, but plans to study business or engineering.

Academically, Temby was named 2001 Student of the Year; was on the Academic All State First Team for football; won the National English Merit Award in 2002; and was listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students, 34th and 35th editions.

Temby's most influential teacher was Jason Brater.

"He encouraged me to strive for my best and to think beyond Michigan, in terms of college and my future," Temby said.

Getting increased funding will help improve public education, according to Temby.

"I would seek to increase funding for all schools and improve infrastructure, discipline and standards in inner city schools."

Temby is the son of Mark and Teri Temby and brother to Tyler, 13.

Suzanne Valade Mercy High School Farmington Hills

If Suzanne Valade realizes her dream of becoming a professional translator or interpreter, she may be able to say that some of the activities she pursued as a Mercy High student helped push her in that direction.

Valade is troupe secretary and stage crew member of the International Thespian Society, and has logged more than 500 hours working on various stage productions – including Peter Pan, The Night of January 16th, Carousel, Little Women, Guys and Dolls, Anne of Green Gables, Annie and Meet Me in St. Louis.

Valade plans to attend Northwestern University or the University of Dayton, to study languages and international relations, for a possible career as an interpreter in business or politics. She has studied French in high school.

Academically, she is a National Merit Finalist and a National Honor Society member, and received regional and national honors from the Scholastic Art Awards.

Valade said that her most influential teacher has been Tom Schusterbauer, an English instructor.

"I am thankful to Mr. Tom Schusterbauer, my freshman year English teacher, who taught me to write well. He critiques literature with a dose of energy and spirit."

Valade says that focusing less on standardized tests will improve public education.

"In recent years, public education has focused too much on standardized tests, with the result that some students now see the point of their studies as passing tests, not gaining knowledge."

Valade is the daughter of William and Mary Ann Valade and sister to Mary Jane, 23.

Rebecca Lobenherz Salem High School Plymouth

Salem senior Rebecca Lobenherz has shown through her choices of activities the importance of pursuing both academic and volunteer endeavors.

Lobenherz has logged more than 170 hours with the American Cancer Society by working in its Discovery shops, and has volunteered with Relay for Life, Rouge River Rescue and a variety of school-sponsored events.

Lobenherz has also taken a turn at the mike for WSDP, her high school radio station, as a DJ, news director and news reporter, and is a member of both the student council and National Honor Society.

She plans to attend the University of Michigan, to study social sciences or physical sciences.

Academically, Lobenherz is a National Merit Scholarship honoree; was named in Who's Who Among American High School Students and received the Dean's Merit Scholarship for U-M.

Lobenherz didn't name any teacher as being the most influential.

"So many teachers have been influential that I don't want to name just one," she said.

To improve public education, Lobenherz said, "I would allow for more individual attention to students who needed help."

Lobenherz is the daughter of Jan Lobenherz and sister to Jessica, 20, and Christopher, 16.

Jerin Philip Detroit Catholic Central High School Northville

If Detroit Catholic Central senior Jerin Philip realizes his dream of becoming a doctor, he could say that he got a taste for helping others while working as a hospital volunteer and as a tutor to other students.

Philip is a volunteer at Detroit's Henry Ford Hospital. Other after-school pursuits include Varsity Quiz Bowl; serving as president of St. Thomas' Youth Group; and the Northville Tutoring Program.

Philip plans to attend the University of Michigan, Washington University, St. Louis, or Duke University, to study biomedical engineering for a career as a physician.

Academic feathers in his cap include the Gabriel Richard Club; being an All-Catholic League State Scholar; an honorable mention in the Father Enright Writing Contest and winning a National Merit Scholarship.

Philip's most influential teacher was Robert Talbot, math.

"His enthusiasm for math has rubbed off on me," Philip said.

To improve public education, Philip said he would "increase teacher salaries and de-emphasize teaching toward standardized tests."

Philip is the son of Jose and Annie Philip and brother to Jaime, 15, and Jobin, 10.

Laura Anne Meili Clarenceville High School Livonia

Laura Anne Meili, a Clarenceville senior, is taking her time deciding what she wants to do with her life after high school – and even college.

"Ask me again in five years," she said of her post-high school and college plans. She plans to attend the University of Michigan or Miami University of Ohio to study psychology, math or writing for a possible career as a math teacher, counseling psychologist or writer.

Meili rounds out her high school days as captain of the varsity volleyball team, as a member of the pom pon squad, National Honor Society, band (color guard) and by writing for the school newspaper – where she has also served as page editor and copy editor.

On the academic front, Meili is a Michigan Math Prize test qualifier and a Detroit Free Press Student of the Week, and has been named to the High Honor Roll.

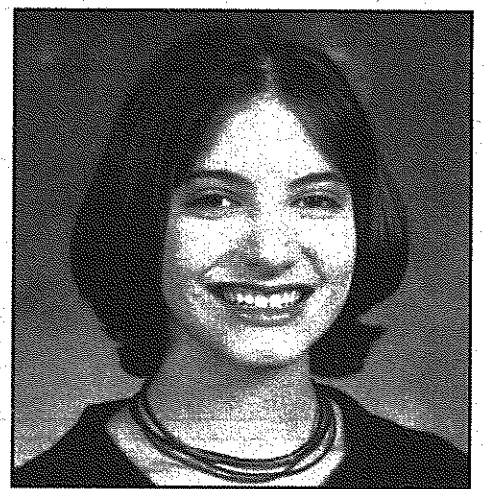

Bobbi Gutman was named as Meili's most influential teacher.

"Bobbi Gutman – she has become my second mom. She constantly pushes me when I'm up or I'm down. She refuses to settle for average."

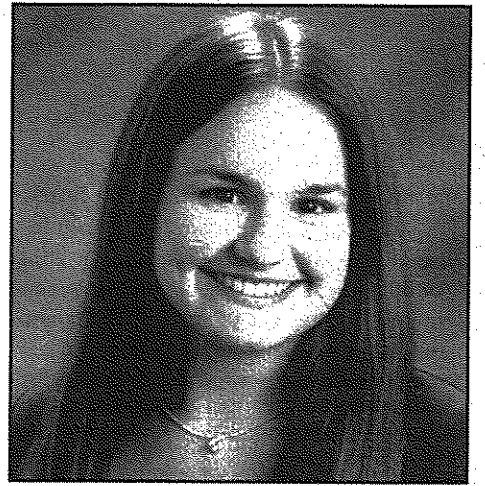

One-on-one attention for students will help improve public education, Meili says.

"I would try to get each student more individual attention either from teachers, counselors, etc. Kids need to know that what they do in school matters to others, too."

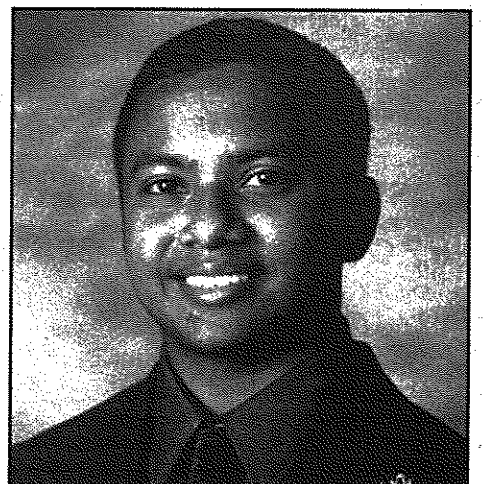

Meili is the daughter of Lisa Meili and sister of Evan Michael, 13.

Madonna University Student Fulfills Life Goals Through Academic Service Learning

She will continue to promote change and enhance the volunteer experiences of those around her. Regina Fortushniak, a journalism/public relations major, is this year's Outstanding Community Impact Award recipient who exemplifies the outstanding contributions that Madonna University students make through academic service learning activities.

Awarded by Michigan Campus Compact (MCC), a coalition of 32 colleges and universities, this honor is given to students who have made service an integral part of their college experience, demonstrated a deep understanding of community/societal issues, and who have shown an effort toward building a partnership between campuses and communities to initiate positive, long-term changes.

"As a Community Impact Award recipient, I will be receiving a $200 check to donate to the organization of my choice," said Fortushniak. "I have selected the ConnectMichigan Alliance, as I am on their board of trustees and have seen first-hand how integral this organization is to the community service organizations in Michigan."

The third Madonna University student to receive this honor, she is one of six students statewide who will be recognized at the governor's award dinner in Lansing this April.

Among her many accomplishments, Fortushniak was the chairperson of Madonna University's Peace and Justice Committee, served as a planning committee member and presenter at an MCC service leadership camp, and participated in journalism-related course projects involving the All Saints' Neighborhood Center in Southwest Detroit. Fortushniak will take time off from her studies this upcoming academic year to participate in various City Year Detroit activities, one of the leading domestic Peace Corps initiatives in the nation.

"I am honored to be receiving this award," added Fortushniak. "My service-learning experiences here at Madonna have provided me with the assets I need to be successful in the future."

Kevin West, Madonna University's service learning director states that academic service learning enriches day-to-day subject material, giving students a heightened awareness of their social and civic responsibilities before leaving campus.

"Regina exemplifies the 'engaged' student," West said. "Her efforts across a host of volunteer activities and in her service learning course work has prepared her to be a capable community leader subsequent to graduation. Our University's mission statement speaks to 'a commitment to serving others through a liberal arts education.' Regina embodies this mission through her learning and service."

For more information about academic service learning at Madonna University, contact Kevin West, service learning director, at (734) 432-5704.

Graduate Studies Experiences Growth, Success in 20 Years

Drawing on the strengths of the nursing and business programs, Madonna University administrators, including Sr. Rose Marie Kujawa, CSSF, Ph.D., current president, and faculty members, Dr. Noreen O'Neill, Dr. Charlotte Neuhauser and Dr. Ernest Nolan worked together to launch the University's first Master of Science in Administration (MSA) degree program with specialties in nursing and business administration in 1982.

Since then, graduate studies has grown to 20 programs and seen enrollment rise from 50 students in 1982 to more than 900. Today, Madonna University master's programs are also offered in Shanghai.

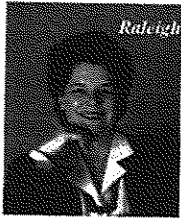

Administrators and students attribute the program's success to several factors, but one that is consistently mentioned is how adult students can apply their studies to their professions.

"We have a commitment to helping career-oriented working adults gain the skills for advancing their careers," said Dr. Edith Raleigh, dean, graduate studies and director, Center for Research.

While graduate studies has achieved considerable success in just 20 years, administrators concur that it will continue to expand. Alumni also cite the academic quality and excellent faculty as other factors that have contributed to the graduate program's success and growth.

"I think the master's degree will become the necessary credential for entry or advancement in professional areas. We're in a very good position to respond to that need," said Nolan, who served as dean of graduate studies from 1982-1997 and is currently vice president for academic administration.

Team of principals ranked All-Stars

Five principals from high schools in the Observer area met March 28 at The Observer offices in Livonia to select this year's Academic All-Stars.

As before, the 2002 Academic All-Stars were chosen on the basis of their grade point averages in academic subjects and SAT or ACT scores. They distinguished themselves in other ways as well, such as their community and school involvement.

The committee sorted through 47 applications representing public and private high schools in Canton, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth, Redford and Westland and Wayne. Of these, 18 students were chosen to be Academic All-Stars. The All-Stars, along with the runners-up, are honored in this special section of The Observer.

The selection process is rewarding to the panel in a special way.

"I always truly enjoy this because this shows the kind of students we have in the schools," said Rod Hosman of Churchill High School, who chaired the committee. "Truly, truly outstanding."

"It's good to have academics rewarded," said Sister Joan Charnley of Bishop Borgess High School.

"They are well-rounded people," said Patricia Patton of Canton High School. "Sometimes there is stereotyping kids who are academically very strong but you can see they do a lot of things."

"It is interesting to see how well rounded ... how involved (they are)," said Jerry Perttunen of Garden City High School, who was on the committee for the first time.

"The future of our nation is in good hands," said Dan Willenborg of Franklin High School.

Personnel at each of the participating high schools did the calculations to rank the students, and the panel double-checked the numbers to verify accuracy.

Using grades from "core" classes in math, English, social studies, language and science, a core grade point average was established, then multiplied by 250. The best any student could do was a 4.0 GPA, which translated to a score of 1,000.

Next, a student's SAT score was divided by 1.6, or the student's ACT score was multiplied by 27.778, adding another 1,000 possible points.

The highest possible total score is 2,000. All of this year's winners had total scores of more than 1,900.

This is the 17th anniversary of The Observer's Academic All-Stars program. The program started in 1985 when Robert Schramke, the Redford Union High School principal at the time, approached a newspaper executive with the idea of honoring students for academic achievement.

"We believe that honoring these outstanding students is part of our mission as local newspapers," said Hugh Gallagher, managing editor of The Observer Newspapers. "These are bright, well-rounded young people who will make fine contributions to our communities in the years to come."

Each All-Star will receive a certificate of recognition and the latest edition of Webster's New World Dictionary.
